ISSUE OF PURE BALLOT.

Mr. Ellegood's Final Plea For Honest Manhood In The First District Next Tuesday. Read And Hearken.

To the Voters of the First Congressional District of Maryland:

An election of vital importance will be held in this Congressional District on November 4th next, not only important because of the National Issues involved, but chiefly because of the Issue of a Pure Ballot And Fair Election, an issue not of my own seeking and one which could and ought to have been avoided, and would have been if the Republican candidate had adhered to his first expressed intention.

The Republican press, by their cartoons, admit that the Democratic "barrel" is empty, and the Republican candidate admits that the Democratic candidate is "sincere" in his efforts to suppress bribery, and he admits that there is a corrupt Political condition in this Congressional District.

Yet he has in his "open letter" declined to co-operate or agree with the Democratic candidate not to contribute any money for illegitimate purposes, and has declined also to co-operate in the organization of the two parties in each Election District of the nine counties for the suppression of bribery, and by his silence in regard to my last personal and open letter, has declined to call upon the People, irrespective of party, to organize for its suppression. Therefore the press and the public have concluded, in the language of The Baltimore Herald, that my "opponents must either meet or confess openly that a 'hoodle' campaign is the only one possible for them in this Congressional District."

As the candidate of the Democratic Party I therefore earnestly request all persons, irrespective of party, to co-operate and sealously watch with "eternal vigilance" for the corrupt use of money from now till the close of the election.

By vigilant watching, the law can easily be enforced against the one who gives or promises to give any reward to induce a person to vote or refrain from voting. Respectfully Submitted,

Jas. E. Ellegood.

Democratic Candidate of the First Congressional District.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Godell and Griffith Have Close Call On Burning Launch.

Mr. William Godell, of the Mother-ton farm, near Allen, had a narrow escape from death by fire and water Saturday night near Deal's Island. He, in company with Mr. John Griffith, had been to the Island in his gasoline launch to get a load of potatoes. Soon after leaving the wharf it was discovered that the launch was on fire from a leak in the feeding pipe. The boat, which is about 35 feet long, and propelled by a six-horse gasoline engine, was turned to the shore, as it was evident that the fire could not be put out, and the gasoline tank had about 10 gallons of gasoline in it, but before the vessel was gotten in shallow water both men were forced to jump overboard. Several oyster boats, seeing their danger, went to their assistance, but on account of the danger from the gasoline exploding could not for some minutes give the necessary aid. After the gasoline tank exploded the men were then picked up by the oyster boats. The launch was burned to the water's edge, the hull being grounded in shoal water. Mr. Godell and Mr. Griffith report that they do not care for another such experience.

Race Events In Salisbury.

Tuesday was local race day for Salisbury and about 600 spectators presented themselves at the track in the afternoon to witness the events as scheduled in last week's Advertiser. Some of the heats had startling climaxes, and the winner was often guess work for the entire mile stretch. A number of the contests were close and exciting, but the track owing to the late rain was in poor condition and from 10 to 15 seconds slow. The three minute class was won by Gordy's gray. Time, 3:53. Other entries were D. J. Ward's "Robt. F.", and Mr. Shore's bay mare.

2.45 class, entries Harry P. Linn's "Morgan", David J. Ward's "Dinah Gray" and S. J. Duffey's "Minnie." Won by "Morgan"; time 3:41.

2.35 class, entries Willis Wimbrow's "Raymond Bell", James Powell's "Oakley Bell", and W. M. Day's "Geo." Won by "Raymond Bell"; time 2:41.

Judges: Sewell Richardson and John Hastings.

Referees: E. Lee Walter and Dean Perdue.

CHRYSANTHEMUM WEDDING.

Miss Edna W. Gillis of This City Becomes The Bride Of Dr. Harry C. Tull Of Jester-ville, Maryland.

A lovely wedding ceremony took place at high noon Wednesday of this week at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. Allison A. Gillis, corner North Division and William Streets, when their daughter, Miss Edna Williams Gillis, was united in marriage to Dr. Harry Clinton Tull of Jester-ville, Md. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Dr. Reigart, pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian Church.

The house was elaborately decorated for the occasion, large white chrysanthemums and palms being gracefully arranged about the spacious reception hall, parlor, library and dining-room. Daylight was excluded and the house lighted with lamps and candelabra with pink shades.

For some time previous to the ceremony, Miss Nettie Jones of Baltimore rendered several selections on the piano. The bridal party descended the broad stairway to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march rendered by Miss Emma Powell. During the ceremony Miss Powell played "Sublime Evening Star" by Tannhauser. Miss Grace Ellegood of Salisbury, and Miss Nettie Evans of Nanticoke, bridesmaids, led the procession, gowned in pink silk mull over taffeta, trimmed with white lace medallions and carrying white chrysanthemums. Miss Mamie Gillis, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink silk dotted mull over taffeta, trimmed with hand embroidered medallions, and also carried white chrysanthemums.

The bride presented a pretty picture gowned in a handsome white lace robe over taffeta and carrying a large bouquet of Bride's roses. In her hair was a large diamond sunburst. She also wore a ring which is over a hundred years old and had been worn by the bride's grandmother many years ago on her wedding day. The groom was attired in a black Prince Albert coat and striped trousers. His best man, Dr. Dorsey Lewis of Odessa, Del., was attired in the same fashion. Miss Helen Gillis of Philadelphia and Miss Addie Williams of Salisbury, cousins of the bride, were the little ribbon girls. They wore dresses of white point de esprit, pink sashes, and white slippers. The large bay window in the parlor was banked with palms and from the arch above hung a curtain of smilax. In front of this the bridal party stood while the nuptial vows were said.

The bride presented her attendants with pins in the shape of golden hearts in the centre of which was a four leaf clover set with a tiny pearl.

After the ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served by caterer Schneck of the Peninsula Hotel to the large number of relatives and friends present. The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gillis of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Williams, of Milford, Del. Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Tull of New Church, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Tull and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ross of Upper Fairmount, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Parks of Landonsville, Md.; Mr. Herman Tull of Ardmore, Pa.; Miss Minnie Taylor of Dover, Del.; Mr. Thomas Walter and Miss Walter of Jester-ville, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Evans and Miss Julia Wallis, of Nanticoke, Md.; Mrs. T. M. Purnell and Miss Katherine Purnell, of Snow Hill; Miss May Costen, of Pocomoke City; Miss Nellie Higgins, Vienna, Md.; Mr. Oscar R. Evans, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Brown Dunning, Dr. Bennett, Dr. H. J. Stricker, Dr. J. H. Smith, Miss Blanche Harmon and Miss Nettie Jones of Baltimore.

The bride received a number of handsome presents, including valuable silver and cut glass. A handsome upright piano was the gift of the bride's mother. Mr. Gillis presented his daughter, as a wedding present, with a certificate for several shares of stock of the Wicomico Building and Loan Association. The groom's gift was bank stock.

Dr. and Mrs. Tull left Salisbury on the two o'clock express for the northern cities. After an extended wedding trip they will make their home at Jester-ville, Md.

The bride, who is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gillis, is well known here and a favorite. Two years ago she attended the Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore, and has considerable musical talent. She is a member of Wicomico Presbyterian choir. Dr. Tull is a graduate of the Maryland University and is a promising young physician, having practiced medicine very successfully for the past two years at Jester-ville, Md.

EASTERN SHORE FAIR.

President Bosley Has Elaborate Plans For Fair At Queenstown. Rail-Road Has Ideal Locality He Says

Mr. W. H. Bosley, president of the Queen Anne's Railroad Company, is considering a plan for the establishment of a large country fair at Queenstown, designed to eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted on the Peninsula.

Originally the railroad company had its rail and water terminals at Queenstown, where the steamers from Baltimore and trains from Lewes and Rehoboth, Del., met and exchanged passengers and freight. Now the company has terminals at Love Point and a shorter line by water from Baltimore.

At Queenstown the company owns about 100 acres of smooth and level land finely adapted for a fair ground. Mr. Bosley said yesterday that the expert who planned the York (Pa.) fair, which is one of the most successful in the country, has been engaged to map out a plan for the Queenstown grounds and prepare an estimate of the cost.

Mr. Bosley's idea is to offer to Queen Anne's and the other counties on the Peninsula certain space on the grounds upon which to erect buildings for their exhibits. Pride would then inspire each county to try to make the best exhibit, and the result would be an exhibition of the choicest products of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and adjoining counties of Delaware, which, with racing and other attractions, would make a fair such as has never been held in that section.

There are only two fair associations left on upper Maryland and Delaware peninsula. One is in Kent county and the other in Talbot. Farther down the Peninsula in Virginia fairs are held, but they are more given to racing than to the display of agricultural products. All are more or less confined to a single county and there is little interest outside.

"I think Queenstown is an ideal place for a country fair of the Peninsula," said Mr. Bosley yesterday. "The ground we have there is well suited for a fair ground and will make a good big one. Plans are now being prepared and I expect them to be soon ready. My idea is to say to each county, 'Now here is so much ground for you; go ahead and put up your buildings and make your exhibits and see which can beat with the best.' This, I think, will bring out a fine display. The grounds are so conveniently located as to be easily reached from any part of the Peninsula and Baltimore that I feel sure the attendance will be large. Our railroad crosses all the Pennsylvania lines at right angles, and would run right to the gate of the fair grounds. The line of steamers would also take people from Baltimore right to the grounds in a pleasant ride at several hours. With a cheap round-trip rate, including admission to the fair, I believe a big crowd would go from Baltimore.

"Our idea is to have a fine race track, with the best racing, and other attractions equal to the New York and Hagerstown fairs. We hope to get everything to hold a fair there next year, and later on spring races may be made an additional feature."

Mr. Bosley has just returned from an inspection of the Suffolk and Carolina railroad, of which he is president. He said that the improvements and developments being made will more than double the earning capacity and value of the road.

Mr. William D. Uhler will be appointed general manager and chief engineer of the Queen Anne's Railroad to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. Isaac W. Troxel. Mr. Uhler is now general freight and passenger agent of the road. The change will probably take place on Saturday. "I believe in rotation in office and consider it the right thing to do to promote a man in service when found capable to fill the position," said President Bosley. Mr. Troxel recently tendered his resignation, to take effect November 1, and it was accepted.

Violating Game Laws.

On Tuesday Lewis A. Burk, of Atkinson district, Worcester county was arraigned before Justice T. E. Bonneville, of Pocomoke, charged with killing partridges and woodcock contrary to the law and also of shipping said birds out of the state also contrary to the laws of the county. Mr. Burk shipped a box to a firm in Philadelphia on that day and the officers thinking the package to be a suspicious one, opened it at the express office before the train arrived. In it were found 20 fine quail and one woodcock. The box was brought up town to the office of Squire Bonneville and a writ issued. After hearing the case the Justice fined the offender $5.00 for each bird, amounting in all to $105. He refused to pay the fine and upon giving bail in the sum of $200, he was released to appear before the grand jury this week.

King Alcohol.

To the voters of Nutters and Salisbury Districts: Voted, a very solemn question is now at hand, and it should receive your earnest consideration. For a long time "King alcohol" has ruled over our dominion. His rule has not by any means been a pleasant one; he has dealt with his subjects harshly. He has robbed many of the happiness they would have otherwise enjoyed; taken food from the mouths of children and clothes from their bodies.

He is a thief for he steals man's character—his highest possession. Are you willing for such a character to remain in your midst continuing his depredations?

Kind voter, golden opportunity has been offered to you! Will you make use of it? Perhaps many of you have been enemies to the liquor traffic for quite a while, yet without courage sufficient to leave your party and go to the one which says "no rum"! Now it is presented to you in a different manner. You may vote your beloved Republican ticket or your beloved Democratic ticket and yet say "No rum"! Will you do it?

The thimble clad child is now calling to you for assistance. Will you give it? Heart-broken mothers and weeping wives are earnestly beseeching you, ere it is too late, to recall this terrible "Monster" who is daily sowing the seeds of disgrace and crime which is blighting their homes.

If there are any who are not in the habit of voting at all, let me ask you to remember your duty in regard to this matter.

Voting, especially on an occasion like this, is a duty you owe to your community, your family, yourself, and your God.

God demands of you that you use your influence to prevent evil. Will you do this? Remind your neighbor of his duty and perform your own.

If you are real men—men who love truth, liberty, and justice,—prove it on election day.

On the fourth of November invite King Alcohol to come down from his throne; lead him to the scaffold as he has led others; cause him to die as he has caused others to die; bury him at the feet of those whom he has buried; bring glad tidings of great joy which shall be a blessing to all people.

Governor Smith has reappointed Judges McSherry, Dennis and Waters to serve as judges of their respective courts until after the regular election 1908 when their successors will be elected by the people. This was what was expected of the Governor, and in making these appointments he has performed a service that was in accordance with the wishes of the people irrespective of party. Judge Waters is completing his 31 years of consecutive service, a longer term than any other Judge now on the State bench.

OLD WORCESTER ENTHUSIASTIC.

Rousing Speeches By Messrs. Weeks And Ellegood In Snow Hill.

James E. Ellegood, Democratic candidate for Congress in the First District, received a great ovation in Crisfield and Snow Hill, Wednesday. He and Thomas G. Weeks, of Baltimore, addressed large and wide awake audiences in the Courthouse afternoon and evening. Gov. Smith was present. His popularity in his home district was shown by the spontaneous outburst of applause which greeted his appearance in the room. It lasted several minutes and ceased only to break out again longer and louder than before.

Mr. Ellegood devoted his speech principally to the anti bribery platform and the refusal of the Republican party and candidate to take any part in the effort to purify the ballot. He urged upon all the importance of going to the polls and exercising their right of suffrage and so casting their ballots that honesty and manhood might triumph.

Mr. Weeks fired his audience with enthusiasm in the afternoon, and said just enough to whet their appetites for the evening meeting, when he hit the tariff and trust issues straight out from the shoulder. Mr. Oliver D. Collins presided.

AN OLD SOLDIER.

Every old soldier likes to review his career and tell his exploits, on land or sea. And young people sit for long hours, wide awake, in wapt admiration of his former valor and distinction. The following is a true story told by Daniel Sturgis, Laomi, Ill. He says: "I am an old soldier and being troubled with Constipation, I need more of your Victor Liver Syrup. It is the best medicine I ever tried. It tones up the system and regulates the bowels." Multitudes bear like witness. Your Druggist has it.

Chestnuts are a very small crop this year. In fact nuts of all kinds appear to be more scarce than usual. According to an old time belief, that is a sure "sign" of a mild winter to follow. Should this prove true this year it will be a fortunate thing for the people, considering the high price of fuel.

NEW B. C. & A. STEAMER.

Will Be Queen Of The Fleet. Virginia To Be Finished By May 15, 1903.

The Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway has contracted with the Maryland Steel Company for a new steamer to be built at Sparrows Point.

The steamer will be equipped with a surface condensing beam engine, cylinder 88 inches in diameter, with 9 foot stroke, feathering tight side wheels, and speed of 15 miles an hour.

On the first deck will be kitchen, pantry, storeroom forward, of the wheel on the port side; aft of the wheel will be the mail and package room and washrooms. Aft on this deck will be a separate cabin for white and colored first class passengers.

The hole forward will be fitted for male and female second class passengers. The remainder of the space will be taken up by the boiler room, coal bunkers, electric plant and quarters for the crew.

The saloon deck will be finished in white and gold, with buff leather furniture throughout. It will have 40 state-rooms, two designated as bridal chambers. Six additional rooms will be so arranged as to be thrown into a suite. All of the rooms are to be equipped with stationary washstands, electric call bells and lights. The dining room, smoking room and toilet will also be on this deck.

On the hurricane deck will be the pilot house, captain's and officers' quarters, lifeboats, etc.

The steamer will cost when completed about $180,000, and it is the aim of the officials of the company to make her the queen of the fleet. The new steamer will be completed by May 15, 1903. It has not yet been decided on what route she will be placed.

The officials have decided that this latest addition to their fleet, which now numbers 18 steamers, shall be called the Virginia. The contract calls for a vessel of the following dimensions:

Length between perpendiculars	190 ft.
Beam mold	34 ft.
Beam on guard	35 ft. 6 in.
Depth of hold at side	11 ft. 1 in.
Depth of hold at center	10 ft. 5 in.
Sheer forward	3 ft.
Sheer aft	1 foot.

Hick's Forecasts For November.

The first storm movements for this month will be central on the 3rd and 4th. On and touching these days a rise in temperature, falling barometer, cloudiness and rain will pass eastward from western extremes to the Atlantic.

The second storm period for November will be central on the 9th extending from the 7th to the 12th. This is a regular Vulcan period, with moon at first quarter on the 7th, and on the celestial equator on the 11th. As we enter well into this period a marked change to warmer will move out of the western parts, falling barometer will follow, and wide areas of autumnal rain will move eastward from about the 9th to the 12th. These storms will reach their culminating stage about the 11th with possible lightning and thunder southward, all followed from the northwest by change to snow, rising barometer and cold, clearing weather. Watch and see.

The anti-storm conditions following the preceding period will break down about the 15th and 16th, which are reactionary storm days. The moon is full on the 15th and at her perigee on the 16th, also at her highest point northward in the sky on the 17th. There fore on and touching the 15th and 16th low barometer, rising temperature, and wide areas of renewed rain, turning to snow generally to northward, will pass eastward from the far west over the country. Be on the watch, first for warmer, pleasant weather, then for cloudiness and rain, then for shift of temperature and wind with snow, then for high barometer, stiff northerly gales and cold, clearing weather—not all at once on your patch, but each in regular rotation. One of the marked storm periods of the month falls in and near the center of a Mercury period. This Vulcan period covers the 19th to the 28th. Be prepared at this time for all the progressive phenomena of a very active storm period. Low barometer and warmer will end in general rains, rain will lead to snow and sleet—look for sleet—and snow and sleet will be attended and followed by a change amounting to a cold wave. The cold will come in its crisis about the 23d and 25th. It vessels are navigating the lakes at this time, great suffering and probably disaster will result. Let all concerned take heed!

The Best Remedy For Croup.

[From the Acheson, Kan., Daily Globe.] This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and tolu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

Renovation.

Breases blowing through the mantle from open windows, the females of the house passing to and fro, armed with brooms and brushes, and wearing strange millinery on their heads, and various noises echoing from rooms above and adjoining the study all remind us that housecleaning time has come.

What was that sound? It was a long roll, like that of distant thunder. A bedstead is being shifted. We hope that all the unpleasant dreams hidden in its pillows will be shaken into oblivion. Bang! There they go. We hear those dreams scampering over the tin roof of the porch. From the racket they make we judge that they must be heavily-shod nightmares. Let them find stables somewhere in the woods! But lying in the sunshine of this October day, may those same pillows gather to themselves many a vision of brightness for the illumination of future sleep!

There is no rougher steed to ride than a nightmare. It cuts up more capers than a witch's broomstick. For nocturnal excursions we prefer a quieter animal. Give us a gentle family horse during slumber, and we will jog peacefully along clear to the end of the journey, halting at the hitching post of the daybreak, and taking breakfast in the hospitality of the sunrise.

But it was not of this that we intended to write. Our thoughts are of the renovation that Nature has instituted in the great house out of doors. The hour has come for her autumnal cleaning. Therefore we see her hard at work. With servants of north winds she is taking down the draperies of the orchards and fields and woods, and sweeping the dust from the carpets of the roads.

We like the house better as it is. With regret do we look at the changes being made. But dame Nature has a mind of her own. Let ministers and all other meddlers attend to their business and she will attend to her concerns. So, in spite of our feeble protests, the old pictures of the summer that we loved are being removed from the landscape walls; the soft green shades at the windows of the trees are being put away for the lace curtains of the winter; and the flower-wreathed rugs that were woven in the loom of May are soon to be replaced by bare floors waxed with snow and ice. Even the birds are to be set loose, their cages opened, and standing lonesomely in every room that once was melodious with wonderful harmonies. Probably we shall grow accustomed to the new order of things after awhile, but it will take a long time.

Like that are the changes of life. When we think that we are settled in happiness, there comes a disturbing element that pinches the heart. Former things pass away and new ones take their place. The day was and the shadows of evening gather. Autumn has come. There is a chill in the air. It is a common experience.

But if we can get hold of the idea that changes are for renovation, we need not walk in the dark nor the cold. When the day passes on it leaves behind it the glories of the sunset. Yes, but these will fade. So they will. Yet the gloom that follows shall have its black folds pinned with stars. Then afterwards come the grandeur of the morning. And back of winter is riant and warm hearted June.

When Nature orders the autumnal cleaning of her summer palace, it is that she may prepare for another spring. There are germs of disease lurking in many a corner of the house. These must be killed by a low temperature. The moths of danger must be beaten out of the floor coverings. The air must be freed from noxious vapors. It is renovation, that fair faced April may renew the worn out things of the past.

Likewise are the trials of life renovating, if we so accept them. Trusting in the love and wisdom of God, these purge us of evils that would destroy. Beyond is the goal of perfection. Our feet shall surely strike its shining plate. Christian optimism looks through the glass of faith and discerns the "far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." In the flashing splendors of the heavenly state there will be no withering joys, no clouded prospects, no ice-bound graves. Autumn's work is here; there the skies are ever clear and the gardens always in bloom. Upon the life that is immortal death cannot frown.

WILLIAM HENRY BANCROFT.

Bribe Giving And Bribe Taking.

In printing a fine full-page portrait of Mr. W. J. Folk, the St. Louis Circuit Attorney, who has brought about the exposure of bribery in St. Louis and the conviction of bribe-givers and bribe-takers, The Outlook remarks: "For nearly a year he has been the central figure in the most remarkable prosecution of political maneuvering since that of the Tweed Ring in the early seventies. This prosecution has resulted in the conviction, not only of bribe-takers, but of bribe-givers, and has brought home to the rich and influential classes of St. Louis the extent to which the responsibility for civic corruption rests upon them. Mr. Folk was nominated for his present office against his protest, but having been elected, has discharged its duties against still stronger protests from party leaders who put him in nomination. Democratic corruptionists, as well as Republican, have been prosecuted without fear or favor."

Seriously Injured By Train.

While extra freight train No. 2, going south, was on the siding of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad at Princess Anne Station Saturday evening, Marion Bradley, a brakeman of that train, was struck at the switch by the Crisfield accommodation, going south about 7.30 o'clock. Bradley was attending the switch and it is supposed he fell asleep after long hours of continuous work. The wounded man was taken to the station and afterwards removed to the residence of Mr. L. F. Causey opposite. Dr. Goldsborough rendered surgical aid, assisted by Dr. E. G. Norfleet. A severe scalp wound and a broken rib was found to be the result of the accident. The wounded man afterward revived sufficiently to be removed to his home in Delmar, where he has a wife and two children.

Democracy's Winning Fight.

Unless all signs are to fail, James E. Ellegood, Esq., the Democratic Congressional candidate in the First District, is into a winning fight. Mr. Ellegood came to Kent on Tuesday and was accorded such a reception as to warrant the prediction that the Democracy of the county will do its whole duty in securing his selection.

Chairman Hepburn, in introducing the speaker spoke with no uncertain sound as to the duty of the Democracy of Mr. Ellegood's district in the matter of securing the election of the champion of a clean ballot and a citizenship removed from the seductions of the vote buyer.

"There is no use of money so dangerous in its results to the commonwealth as the criminal use of it for the destruction of civic virtue of the people, for the debasement of citizenship. If I were called upon to reduce to two words the platform on which I stand, I would say Christianity and Citizenship.

Washington in his Farewell Address said our Christian religion constituted the firmest prop of our country's peace and happiness. While it was a high privilege and a proud boast to be a Roman, it is a higher one to be an American Citizen. There are those who denounce politics and decry all participation in party politics as unworthy of an honest citizen; people talk of getting in and out of politics as one might talk of getting into and out of a rotten vehicle. It is a grave error to talk in this way. No man, woman nor child can get out of politics, since all our rights, duties and privileges are derived from, controlled and regulated by politics, hence all are in politics, that is, within its influence.

If politics are corrupt, then its influence reaches every citizen; if honest and upright, all in like manner, receive the blessings of honest government, that equal protection to "life, liberty and the purest of happiness," equally applicable to rich and to poor.

What a calamity that a political party should nominate men chiefly for their wealth and their willingness to use it corruptly for personal victory over a political opponent who cannot or will not resort to like means. Yet, we find that by his own voluntary conduct the candidate of the Republican party has put himself and his party in the attitude of becoming the champion of bribery in order to win, for the sole reason that the party of which I have the honor to be the nominee, has in the past been guilty, and he believes it will be in the future, condemning this party of what he proposes to be guilty of in the present, apparently unable to see that he is condemning and stultifying himself.

Bribery is an old offense and there are many notable cases in both sacred and profane history, and always followed with disastrous consequences. You have read where the executive committee of the Democratic party of this district, with the candidate, made a proposition to the Republican candidate to cooperate with me and to organize an organization for the suppression of bribery, yet he refused to concede fair play to a candidate that he admits to be honorable and fair, and refused to permit his party to organize and cooperate with the Democratic party for the overthrowing of this gigantic evil, this more than all the trusts, a corrupt political trust by which offices of honor, profit and trust are to be monopolized by the rich, converting the spirit of this government into a corruptly managed aristocracy while holding on to the form of a republic.

The Baltimore News, the leading evening paper of that city says: "The truth is, that every honest citizen of this district ought to feel that any candidate who declines to cooperate with his opponent in a genuine effort to raise the level of political morals deserves to forfeit his election, no matter to what party he belongs."

The Baltimore Herald declares: "It is the most quibbling for his opponent to decline the offering of honest elections thrown down on the ground, that future political organization in the district may not see fit to follow its lead." Messrs. S. S. Fields and Lloyd Wilkenson addressed an enthusiastic meeting in Stam's Hall at night.—Chester-town Transcript.

Mrs. Tupman, a prominent lady of Richmond, Va., a great sufferer with woman's troubles, tells of her cure by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For some years I suffered with backache, severe bearing-down pains, leucorrhoea, and falling of the womb. I tried many remedies, but nothing gave any positive relief. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in June, 1901. When I had taken the first half bottle, I felt a vast improvement, and have now taken ten bottles with the result that I feel like a new woman. When I commenced taking the Vegetable Compound I felt all worn out and was fast approaching complete nervous prostration. I weighed only 98 pounds. Now I weigh 109 1/2 pounds and am improving every day. I gladly testify to the benefits received."—MRS. R. C. TUPMAN, 423 West 30th St., Richmond, Va.

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me?"

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

Mrs. W. H. Pelham, Jr., 108 E. Baker St., Richmond, Va., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must say that I do not believe there is any female medicine to compare with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I return to you my heartfelt thanks for what your medicine has done for me. Before taking the Vegetable Compound I was so badly off that I thought I could not live much longer. The little work I had to do was a burden to me. I suffered with irregular menstruation and leucorrhoea, which caused an irritation of the parts. I looked like one who had consumption, but I do not look like that now, and I owe it all to your wonderful medicine."

"I took only six bottles, but it has made me feel like a new person. I thank God that there is such a female helper as you."

Be it, therefore, believed by all women who are ill that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they should take. It has stood the test of time, and it has hundreds of thousands of cures to its credit. Women should consider it unwise to use any other medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women. Perhaps she has just the knowledge that will help your case—try her to-day—it costs nothing.

FOR CONGRESS:
JAMES E. ELLEGOOD,
 OF WICOMICO COUNTY.

VOTE FOR THE RIGHT AND THE RIGHT MAN.

The growth of bribery in the First Congressional District has been so rapid that few realize that it has now reached a stage where it threatens to entirely destroy our very liberty by its corruption of our suffrages. The purchasing, or attempting to buy, the conscience of a man to obey the dictates of another is aiming a blow at the very foundation of civil liberty—the boast and pride of our country—at the very germ of personal freedom and independence. It has already reached the point in this district where one of the parties nominate a man for its candidate, not for his ability to serve the people if elected, but for his ability to furnish the means to corrupt our voters at the polls. It has reached the point where men no longer advocate it in secret but actually dare to openly defend it. It is not time to stop this pernicious practice which threatens to deprive us of the civil liberties that are so dear to the heart of every American citizen? If we do not check its growth it will soon have such a hold upon us that, try as we may, we will not be able to shake off its strong arm. The open, bold and fearless attitude of Mr. Ellegood, the democratic nominee for Congress, on this baneful practice of vote buying should win for him the admiration and support of every good citizen who has the true interest of his country at heart. No one, who knows him, can doubt Mr. Ellegood's ability or sincerity. Now is the time for the voters of the First District to come forward and wipe out for good this political corruption. Every vote cast on Tuesday next will be for or against it. Don't flinch, don't hesitate, the time for that is past. Vote solid good and hard for the right man, our highly esteemed fellow townsman, Hon. James E. Ellegood.

—In an article published on the first page Hon. James E. Ellegood, the First District Congressman requests "all persons, irrespective of party, to cooperate and zealously watch with eternal vigilance for the corrupt use of money from now till the close of election."

Mr. Ellegood has assumed a determined attitude, which, upheld by the machinery of the law and 'vigilant watching' should keep the vote buying element in abeyance. The law can easily be enforced against the one who gives or promises to give any reward to induce a person to vote or refrain from voting.

—A Prohibitionist in town Tuesday said that now is the chance of his people to show their strength and sincerity of purpose by voting for Ellegood. He is a Christian gentleman in the fullest sense, a man of high ideals, strong convictions, lofty purposes, and of unflinching nerve to carry them out. His defeat will be a reflection upon every good citizen of the Eastern Shore.

—It is gratifying to learn that the republican leaders in Delaware admit that they are defeated and that by their coquetry with Gasman Addicks they stand an excellent chance of seeing two democrats representing their state in the Senate.

—Every citizen who votes for Jackson for Congress votes to encourage bribers of vocal voters. He was asked to cooperate with Mr. Ellegood in debarring money from this campaign but refused. Will the good thinking men ratify his action.

VOTE FOR ELLEGOOD AND WIN.

For several weeks now the First Congressional district has been ringing with the work of one of the most unique campaigns ever inaugurated on the Eastern Shore. Mr. Ellegood our democratic candidate has been from county to county, district to district explaining the issues to the people and making stump speeches. The question of your vote is now up to you. Is it for honest manhood, pure untrammelled suffrage, or is it going to be cast for a continuance of the bribery evil, the trusts and their hatchery—the tariff? Can a thoughtful voter do other than vote for the former, represented in James E. Ellegood by the democratic party when he fully realizes the situation and all the evils that are attendant on vote buying? There is no longer time for hesitation.

"Act, act in the living present!"
 Heart within and God overhead,
 Vote for the Hon. James E. Ellegood and live to recall that day with pride and thanksgiving. Work for Mr. Ellegood, the Democratic candidate and use your strongest influence to aid his election. The District looks bright for a Democratic majority greater than was given the same Republican candidate in 1900. Ellegood is going to be elected. The best sentiment of the whole people is for him. Help by your work and vote.

LEADERS WORKING TOGETHER.

There is unlimited joy in democratic circles in Washington over the harmony which prevails throughout the party and the prospects that united effort will not only elect many democratic members to the House of Representatives but will out down the republican majorities all along the line. Within the past week David Bennett Hill has returned to his own and has spoken in the Wigwam of Tammany Hall. Ex-President Cleveland has not contented himself with writing an inspiring letter to the New York democracy but has promised to go on the stump and on Thursday addressed an audience at the grand rally held at Morristown, N. J. in support of DeWitt C. Flanagan, nominee of the Fifth District. Mr. Bryan, according to all reports is working like a Trojan in Nebraska and Tom Johnson is puncturing the tires of Uncle Hanna's "Stand pat" juggernaut in Ohio. For many years there has not been such an exhibition of democratic harmony and the results are bound to be gratifying.

—Readers do you realize the fact that a vote for Jackson means a vote for the Coal Trust, Meat Trust, Standard Oil Trust, Steel Trust and all the other great combinations? It surely does while on the other hand a vote for Ellegood is a vote against these gasping monopolies, against bribery and corruption and for the best interest of the common people.

—An absolute secret ballot is now guaranteed under our election law. No one can possibly discover how a man votes unless he tells himself. Let every voter know this.

Mark Ballot Carefully.
 The Court of Appeals has decided that the cross (X) mark on the ballot must be made entirely within the square, and must not extend beyond the square in any manner whatever. Unless care is taken not to extend cross (X) mark beyond, or over the lines of the square, the vote may be lost.

TO HON. JAMES E. ELLEGOOD.

Written by an admirer of James E. Ellegood's high standard in seeking the suffrage of true American freemen; and also what he has been, is, and will be to the end of his campaign work or "election over."

He has suffered for his democracy as few of us have done,
 Though a boy for his zealous principles,
 Left an irate father's home
 Launched out upon wide ocean that he might tune his lyre,
 While passing through tempestuous waves,
 the wild spray flashing fire,
 Around him o' the storm-spread black, and cyclones lashed the sea,
 But in thinking of home and friends behind, said "a Democrat I'll be,"
 All know he has lived his boyish wish, in country, state and church,
 And for true manly rights has always stood, with moral chastely search,
 On, on in manhood he has walked, though not a millionaire,
 With hand and heart and brilliant thought has lived a character fair,
 And though passing now through crazy
 scenes, with an earnest watchful eye,
 He'll be firm as the placid star that gleams,
 athwart the azure sky,
 Though in front of him wrong doers should stand, letting Sibyl's luere fly,
 Through all, his banner-mark will be, "My honor though I die."

—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company, and the Ocean City Bridge Company will be held in Salisbury on Wednesday, November 5, at noon, for the election of directors for the ensuing year.

—Mr. Edwin Warfield is the Maryland member of the board of Governors of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association of the United States. The object of the association is to erect a national memorial to Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Warfield was recently elected President of the Maryland Society, Sons of the American Revolution.

—A New York man recently kissed a Binghamton girl against her will. She had him arrested on a charge of larceny, and although he offered to return the goods the Judge fined him $25 for each kiss. The New Yorker was not gallant enough to say they were cheap at the price.

—Notwithstanding the seeming apathy prevailing among the voters the National Democratic Campaign Committee claim a Democratic majority of twenty in the next Congress to be elected the first Tuesday in November. If their prediction is not true, it will demonstrate that our Republican friends are wedded to their idols, ugly and expensive as they are.

—The teachers of the public schools of Talbot county have decided to publish monthly a four page paper devoted entirely to school news. The name selected is "School Life", and the publication will make its first appearance November 1st. Prof. Sydney S. Handy is editor-in-chief, with Prof. H. E. Adams, assistant.

—Farmers in Kent as well as Wicomico, Worcester and other Eastern Shore Counties, are complaining of the scarcity of farm labor and numbers are talking about organizing a company to import labor. It is getting worse every year and there seems to be no remedy but the procurement of good hands by colonizing from the old countries.

Bad Coughs

"I had a bad cough for six weeks and could find no relief until I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Only one-fourth of the bottle cured me."
 L. Hawn, Newington, Ont.

Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or consumption. Don't wait, but take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral just as soon as your cough begins. A few doses will cure you then.

Three sizes: 25c., enough for an ordinary cold; 50c., just right for bronchitis, hoarseness, hard colds, etc.; $1., most economical for chronic cases and to keep on hand.

If Salisbury Don't Get Coal Soon.

If Salisbury don't get coal soon they're going to pipe natural gas to Salisbury. Going to run great big 12 or 14 inch pipes clear from Parsonsburg to Salisbury, and sell gas by the thousand feet. Won't it be nice? All you'll have to do will be to step into a store and say to the clerk: "I want three yards of your best Parsonsburg gas, out on the bias, sent up to the house right away. We're going to have company for dinner and we're all out of coal;" or when you want to enter into politics, you can simply have a small pipe run into your house or office and imbibe enough natural gas to carry you a day or two. And did you ever live where they have natural gas? It's one of the greatest heaters on earth. It does away with smoke. It makes great business for the hardware men (putting new grates in old stoves). Well if Salisbury people do hit this pipe Lacy Thoroughgood will arrange to run a small line into his store for heating purposes only, that's all the gas you'll get from Lacy Thoroughgood—the rest will be straight business from the shoulder. There's no use talking when you come right down to solid facts there's but one store in Salisbury where you can get the right kind of clothing at the right kind of price, where everything is known about clothing there is to be known. THE DEMOCRATS OF MARYLAND.

Instructions To Voters Of The Dominant Party From Democratic Headquarters.

Election day will be Tuesday, November 4th. The polls will be open at 8 o'clock A. M., in the counties, and close at 6 o'clock P. M.

It is our hope that every registered Democrat will go to the polls as early as he can and vote. See that the ballot given you has endorsed upon it the initials of the Judge who gave it out.

Vote the ticket by marking a cross (X) mark in the space provided there for to the right of and opposite to the name of the Democratic candidate for Congress.

There is only one office to be filled at this election, therefore your ballot should be marked with only one cross (X) mark.

Make the cross (X) mark within the square provided for the purpose, namely, to the right of the name of the Democratic candidate for Congress.

Do not let the (X) mark extend beyond the square; make it entirely inside the square.

Do not make any other mark whatever on the ballot; if you do your ballot will not be counted.

Any mark whatever on the ballot except the cross (X) mark, whether in the square or out of it, will cause the ballot to be rejected.

Do not make a dot or a circle or any other mark but a cross (X) mark in the square.

If you mark any square on your ballot with any kind of a mark other than the cross (X) mark entirely within the square, your ballot will not be counted.

Be sure not to deface or tear your ballot in any way. If you make a mistake in marking it, do not attempt to make a correction; return it to the Judge and get another.

You are entitled to a third ballot if the first two have been spoiled and returned, but you must not consume more than seven minutes in marking it.

Mark your ballot with the indelible pencil which you will find in the election booth. Do not use your own pencil; your ballot will not be counted if you do.

After marking your ballot, fold it exactly as it was folded when handed to you by the Judge; and give it to the ballot Judge without permitting any one to see how you have marked it.

See that the Judge tears off the coupon and deposits the ballot in the ballot box. MURRAY VANDIVER, Chairman State Central Committee.

Letter To Wm. H. McConkey. Dear Sir: Paint is one of the things that Railroad Companies know all about. Do you know what "all about" means? It means in paint, where to get it.

We sell the paint for two-thirds of the cars and stations and bridges and everything else, that railroad men want to keep good looking and sound, all over the country.

A man who wants a gallon or two of paint knows nothing about it; buys whatever is handy, or gets some painter to "make" it.

A Railroad Company asks its chemist, "which is the best?" The cheapest thing, to preserve or beautify anything with, is paint. So the whole world is painted; except, of course, the part of it owned by poor slow folks.

And the paint they use is people's intelligence meter; or ignorance-meter; tells how much or how little they know.

Lead and oil has had its day. Devote lead and zinc is the paint, because it wears twice as long. Yours truly, F. W. Devos & Co.

Pastor Heavily Pounded.

Messrs Editors:
I hasten to inform you that quite a number of people, both old and young, invaded the M. P. parsonage, Quantico, last night and severely "pounded" us. They took charge of our home without a moment's warning, and we dared not interfere, for what could we do with so many.

No arrests have yet been made, but we have identified them. They were these people of Quantico. I know every one of them. They need not deny it. And most of them were church members, each one of our town churches, being well represented. We sustained no injury or loss from the event, but realized a lasting benefit, as each brought something to supply the larder. We also found articles from persons who were unable to be present.

Friends come again, but just let us know in advance and we will be ready for the attack. FRED J. PHILLIPS, Pastor.

THE ELECTION IN MARYLAND.

Results in The State And Over The Country. Estimated Majority Of Next Congress—25 Republican.

The latest returns from Tuesday's election in Maryland show the following results. The candidates elected and their respective pluralities:

First District—William H. Jackson, Republican, by 1,658.

Second District—J. Fred C. Talbot, Democrat, by 1,552.

Third District—Frank C. Wachtler, Republican, by 179.

Fourth District—James W. Denny, Democrat, by 580.

Fifth District—Sydney E. Mudd, Republican, by 4,820.

Sixth District—George A. Pearce, Republican, by 2,588.

The majorities for Messrs. Mudd and Pearce are very large, but there was in neither case any marked increase in the Republican vote. There was, however, a great decrease in the Democratic vote. Mr. Pearce's vote in Frederick was 1,000 less than he received two years ago. In Allegany it fell off about 1,000 and in Washington county 1,100. His increased majority therefore came from the greater falling off of the Democratic vote.

At the State election last year every county on the Eastern Shore gave a majority for the head of the Democratic ticket—Dr. Hering, candidate for Comptroller of the Treasury. This time only three counties gave Democratic majorities—Cecil, Queen Anne's and Worcester—and the "Shore" swings around from a Democratic majority of about 2,000 a year ago to over 1,500 for the Republican candidate, Queen Anne's was the banner Democratic county, and gave almost the normal majority of about 500. The only counties in which there was a decided Democratic slump are Worcester and Wicomico. The former gave Dr. Hering last year a majority of 1,900, which dwindled this year to 88.

The Republican plurality in Maryland is 8,901; and in Baltimore City $20 in 1900 the state gave 13,947 and the city 4,916 Republican plurality.

With the returns from a few close districts in doubt, it is shown by the latest dispatches that the Republicans will have a majority of about 25 in the next House of Representatives. Their majority in the present House is 40. Chairman James M. Griggs, of the Democratic Congressional Committee, concedes the Republican victory.

The Senate after March 3, 1903, will consist of 55 Republicans, 30 Democrats and 5 Independents, who will vote with the Democrats. The Republican majority will be 22.

A decided surprise was the election of a Democratic Governor in Rhode Island by 7,000 plurality.

The plurality of Odell (Rep.) in New York State is now estimated at 8,867. Bird S. Coler and other Democrats charge that there has been fraud up the State.

In Delaware the Legislature is surely anti-Addicks, but the Democrats will not have enough members to elect United States Senators.

The West Virginia Congressional delegation will be solidly Republican. The Virginia delegation will consist of nine Democrats and one Republican, the victory of Col. W. J. Slomp (Rep.) in the Ninth district being assured.

Republican pluralities in States not previously enumerated are estimated as follows:

Pennsylvania.....140,998

Ohio.....100,000

Indiana.....80,000

Illinois.....60,000

Massachusetts.....87,479

New Jersey.....10,000

Iowa.....70,000

Wisconsin.....40,000

Michigan.....33,000

Kansas.....35,000

Montana.....2,000

Utah.....5,000

Washington.....10,000

Wyoming.....4,000

South Dakota.....17,000

Idaho.....8,000

Nebraska.....5,000

California.....2,000

Outside of the South other States carried by the Democrats were Rhode Island, Delaware and Nevada.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK PLANT.

Electric Light Establishment Is Dangerous. Dim Lights on Thursday Night. Reward Offered.

Some one, evidently with the intention of maliciously damaging the works, put over half a pound of emery dust in each bearing of the new engine at the electric light plant some time between 8 p. m. Wednesday and 3 p. m. Thursday. The party used every precaution against its being discovered until too late. The emery dust was wrapped in paper and placed in each bearing in order, it is supposed, to keep any from scattering around the sides, thus leading to detection before it had done its disastrous work. The attempt must have been made by some one closely acquainted with machinery for the most vital parts of the engine were selected for the dust to operate on. Fortunately the engineer discovered something wrong before the engine had been running longer than three or four minutes. As far as can be learned the damage was slight. The company was compelled to cut off the lights until about nine o'clock [Thursday evening]. A reward of $300.00 has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party or parties.

The Salisbury Light, Heat and Power Company has about completed the improvements they have been making in their plant. The small engine has been replaced by a new Russell engine of two hundred horse power, two additional dynamos have been put in, making the total capacity of the plant 4500 lamps.

Death of Miss Daisy Anderson.

The death of Miss Daisy Anderson at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, last Saturday evening was a sad blow to her family and many friends. She was the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Anderson of Rockawalking and was taken to Baltimore about eight weeks ago for an operation for ear trouble. Several operations were successfully performed, but blood poison developed, causing death.

The body was prepared for burial and brought to Salisbury Monday evening via the B. C. & A. Railway, accompanied by her sorrowing parents. It was then conveyed to her late home in Rockawalking, where funeral services were held Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock conducted by Rev. Dr. Martin Dale. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Burnett White, Purnell T. White, George White, William Phillips, D. B. Cannon and Thomas Abbott.

Interment was made in the Rockawalking church yard. A large concourse of people were present to pay their last respects to one whose kind and loving disposition had won for her a large circle of friends.

Miss Anderson graduated from the Salisbury High School with the class of 1901 and was very popular with her classmates.

The Vote In Wicomico.

Tuesday was rather a quiet and orderly election day throughout the country. Particularly was this the case in Wicomico County. MR. ELLEGOOD DISCUSSES THE ELECTION.

Says the Democratic Party has Won a Glorious Defeat and the Republicans Suffered Inglorious Victory.

In conversation with an ADVERTISER representative after Tuesday's election Hon. James E. Ellegood being asked about the result in the First District said:

"I have no complaint to make. The Democratic party kept its pledge made at the Ocean City Convention and did what I asked it to do, that is give me a clean election on its part, and it is gratifying to feel that the votes for me were votes of confidence and not votes of purchase.

"Our party has won a glorious defeat and the opponents suffered an inglorious victory. There has been many a moral triumph in temporary defeat. Truth crushed to earth must rise again. It is more than poetical sentiment.

"The descending grade in politics is from patriotic to party and then to personal politics, and the latter has become dangerously practical as well as personal.

"Rich men with ambition for power, and men actuated by cupidity, coupled with men prompted by an over-due zeal for party success, look on patriotic politics as sentimental and call it 'Sunday School Politics'.

"In this campaign I found myself in a delicate position. When speaking or writing as an individual on the crime of bribery, the damage if any, would react on me alone, if I said anything indiscreet or rash; but as the candidate of a great party, and as a vote seeker for it and its principles, I felt the responsibility of a representative. While compelled from a sense of duty to criticize the attitude of the Republican party and its candidate, there was a like duty not to justify the conduct of my own in its past history in this respect. Whether this duty in both respects was performed I leave the public to decide.

You see there was, therefore, a danger of offending my own friends and of losing instead of winning votes. If at any time I gave offense to them, it has not been made known to me, and the support received from the substantial and unpurchasable voters is especially gratifying. If I was to say anything, it would be to express regret that there was not more efficient organization and rewards offered for the arrest of the bribe givers. The beneficial effect of this course can be shown by Queen Anne County where the Republicans were not allowed to use money and we got a good majority. In Pafsons (my own) District we got our usual majority by not allowing any money to be used, and in Delmar where the use of money began but the banker was scared early in the day, we got within a few votes of our normal majority.

That the white 'floater' can be relied upon to vote the Democratic ticket after taking Republican money was not demonstrated, but that most of them have Democratic sympathies where there are no temptations must be admitted. There is a certain sense of honor with the vote seller as well as with the vote buyer and it is very much akin, like the criminal penalty under the constitution which is equal. But somehow we seem to have gotten into the mental habit of condemning the poor man who sells and condoning and honoring the rich ones who buy. In addition to this somewhat awkward position the loneliness of an anti-bribery campaign in nine counties impressed me with the magnitude as well as the need of such a reform.

Out of 80,000 registered voters it is not a May day dance to find oneself with convictions and without money to enforce them, combatting 15,000 negro voters, a venal vote of about 10,000, a substantial Republican vote of about 5,000 led by men with a 'barrel' and willing to use it.

What do you think of the Democratic, in comparison with the Republican press in this district? Surely the dignity and fairness of the former towards the Republican candidate hardly admits of comparison. I learned of only two Republican papers that declined to print the Republican cartoons of the Democratic Candidate. You will recall that the home organ, The Salisbury Courier, first spoke of me as a "Christian gentleman" but in its vicissitudinous and lightning changes of opinion afterwards cartooned me as a hypocritical pretender of reform and wound up with an editorial charging me with being a villain, and challenging me to disprove that of which there is no proof, and to deny what was never said. But I presume that is a part of the penalty for having no more discretion than to try to reform the Republican party in this District.

THE RESULTS.

What do you think of the result? "As a candidate I am not conscious of personal regret; as a citizen I can't say I feel very proud of my native Shore that the jury of our countrymen should have brought in a verdict in favor of money power in elections, for I hardly think there is any Republican to deny after the election what was not denied before."

THE REMEDY.

"What do you think is the remedy for the corrupt condition?"

"Well, the arrest and conviction of a few persons in high places, like they have done in St. Louis with some rich bankers, would have a deterrent effect. Of course public sentiment must be aroused. The public conscience must be awakened to the fact that it is a most disgraceful crime to directly or indirectly influence a voter by any bribe or promise of reward. But there are so many people you know, who only couple disgrace with punishment, and who determine the moral quality of an act by conviction; putting a paper wall between an office of trust and the penitentiary. I also tried to arouse the people to the sense of danger, and to show that destruction must inevitably follow if not checked, as all history proves; but one of the trouble is that politicians and rich people are not all historians, and are willing to live in the present and 'stand pat' on that; and instead of 'letting well enough alone,' they will not even let bad enough alone, but go on from 'bad to worse.'"

"You say it was a lonely experience. How did you like it?"

"If it had been a clean campaign, as I had reason to expect, it would have been very pleasant if not cheerful, but the painful experiences of life the world does not care to here.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, Weep, and you weep alone."

"However I am not lamenting and am still on the anti bribery platform feeling as good as new, still ready, though not eager, for the fray in the fight for good citizenship; as I said before, the nomination came to me.

Besides, I have some private and domestic duties to look after that are quite as congenial as trying to reform the Republican party, and the practice of law is less laborious and more remunerative.

"Rip Van Winkle," Up-to-date.

A beautiful stage effect is shown in the fourth act of Aiden Benedict's production of "Rip Van Winkle," which will be seen at Ulman's Grand Opera House on Monday evening Nov. 10th. As the curtain rises everything is entirely dark, owls and bats are seen flying around the stage, then the sun begins to rise and the owls blink their eyes and fly away to their nests in the crags, the birds begin to sing, the stage is covered with leaves and from beneath them "Rip" is seen to rise as the sun bursts forth in all its glory. During "Rip's" sleep of twenty years, nature has mantled him with her fallen leaves and kept him warm. The pretty idea is a new one in this time honored play and only a sample of many charming novelties which Manager Benedict has introduced in his production. Reserved seats on sale at box office, prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

St. Peter's Harvest Home.

The Harvest Home Festival held in St. Peter's Church Salisbury last week was a grand success.

The altar was beautifully decorated with lights and flowers. The chancel filled with fruits and vegetables in great abundance.

Two excellent sermons were preached by the Rev. J. Gibson Gantt of Worcester parish and Rev. R. G. Hamilton of Somerset parish.

The services were well attended and enjoyed by the people. Six barrels and three boxes of flour, fruits, vegetables, hams, groceries, candles, shoes and a liberal offering of money were sent to the Home for Friendless Children at Easton.

Ocean City Bridge Co. Directors.

At the meeting of the Ocean City Bridge Company, held Wednesday, the following directors were elected: Robert P. Graham, Willard Thomson, A. J. Benjamin, W. L. Rothstein. The gentlemen from Philadelphia arrived on a special train, accompanied by Superintendent Holiday, of the Delaware Railroad, and Superintendent Brooks, of the Maryland division. The officials of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway arrived on the new steamer Maryland, of the company's fleet, commanded by Capt. Edward Johnson.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. SOCIETY A TREADMILL.

The December Show That Must Be Run by the Fashionables.
"As a matter of fact," says C. E. Wayne in Almslee's, "society is a treadmill. For those like Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, who would keep well to the fore, there can be no rest. The ceaseless rotation continues from year's end to year's end. To falter is to slip back. To halt is to drop out. The season in New York may be said to begin with the horse show in November. By that time the clans that have been scattered during the summer have opened their town houses and are prepared for the winter's fray.

Horse show week is marked by more or less informal dinner parties and more or less riotous supper parties. Following the horse show comes the introduction of the season's debutantes. For the more fortunate balls and dances are given, but the great majority make their bows at afternoon teas. This, too, is the season of autumn weddings, and the weeks are crowded with events hymeneal.

A little later the open season begins, and before the middle of December there is the assembly ball. After the first of January there are so many private balls and dances that invitations to subscription balls go begging. But certain cotillions, like the Cinderella and the Junior, are annual fixtures. For three months there is an ever increasing whirl of gaiety. Every day, every hour, has its event which the woman that pretends to social prominence cannot afford to ignore. The pace is terrific, and how any except those of unusual mental and physical vigor stand the strain must ever remain a mystery.

For many the forty days of Lent intervening between the season proper and the early spring season afford little rest. Life at the fashionable Lenten resorts has of late years become but a meager modification of the life in town. What with dinner parties, high play at bridge and late hours, there is really small relaxation from the dissipation of the winter. "Easter brings an avalanche of weddings, and then there is a rush across the Atlantic for the London season, which means more dinners, more opera, more balls and eventually more indigestion and more insomnia. By August the Newport season is on, and the same ceaseless round continues. Then there is a brief period when house parties are the thing, but big dinners and bridge are features here, too, and then—it is horse show time again."

A Nice Distinction.
The bronzed and blue eyed "cap'n" who takes summer visitors on long and delightful sails in his pretty boat, the Phoebe Lou, has never grown rich, although his native town on "the cape" is full of well to do people for nearly four months every year. A newcomer to the place thinks he may have found the key to the captain's moderate circumstances.

One day this young man had invited a party of a dozen to go as his guests for an "all day cruise" with the captain. At the end of the excursion he found that in the hurry of the early start he had left his money at home. "I'll be down tomorrow the first thing to pay you, captain," he said regretfully. "and I'm sorry I was so careless as to come off without my money today."
"See here," said the captain, gravely tendering the young man a bulging wallet which he extracted from an inside pocket, "if you'd feel any easier to settle your bill tonight I can lend you the money well as not, and you can give it back whenever it's convenient or let her run over till another spring. It's pretty near the end of the season anyway. I know how you feel about a regular bill I always want to get 'em paid up soon as they're due."—Youth's Companion.

The Kaiser's Scrapbook.
Before Prince Henry of Prussia came to the United States Emperor William directed that a complete collection of newspaper clippings be preserved in the archives of the Hohenzollern family perpetuating the history of the trip. Huge volumes are now growing up under the hands of his secretaries, embracing as many as possible everything printed even in the smaller papers in America, including editorial notes of an infinite variety and all the cartoons. His majesty was greatly amused at some of the pictures and was much impressed with the generally kind vein of most of the editorials, but he disapproved that everything unfavorable be included in the record. Emperor William has added to this collection complimentary copies of newspapers received from proprietors or editors. He was amazed at the pictorial representations of scenes three or four hours after the events had occurred.

The Vegetarians.
Vegetarians hold that meat is poisonous and condemn it severely in every possible way. Water forms 75 per cent of its composition, they claim, and what gives it its flavor is the principle of active poison in it. Venous blood, they say, is admitted to be poisonous, and it is this blood in meat that causes it to taste pleasant. To prove their claim they state that meat washed clean of its venous blood has no taste whatever, and no one will eat it. "Eat vegetables, fruit and grains," say the vegetarians, "if you would be healthy. Join our ranks, for one-third of the world's inhabitants belong to us already. The millions of Buddhists are with us, their creed forbidding them to kill any living thing. Tolstol is a vegetarian, and Thoreau was one also, while in the past our fold included Adam, Plato, Voltaire, Benjamin Franklin and a thousand other important names."—Philadelphia Record.

WHAT HAPPENED TO BOWEN

So Wonder That He Begins to Suspect That He Is Cursed.
Walter E. Bowen of Charleston, Ind., has a number of narrow escapes to his credit, and he carries many scars, but notwithstanding his experiences his physical condition is good. Mr. Bowen describes himself as "my own Jonah." Nearly every year since his fourth birthday he has met with some accident which has confined him to his bed for at least a month.

When Mr. Bowen was but four years old, an angry turkey gobbler nearly "dropped" him to death. The next year he was almost drowned in a branch by a young woman who attempted to toss him from bank to bank. One year later he was kicked through a stable window by a mule, striking against a scantling. The scantling rebounded, tossing Bowen back through the window, and he was again knocked out by the mule. The second time the boy failed to be returned by the scantling, otherwise the mule would have continued the game indefinitely and until the boy's life was crushed out. That same year he was found asleep in the woods with a large blacksnake wrapped about his body, and it required careful work to kill the snake without hurting the youngster.

When he was seven years old, a cow fessed him over a fence, breaking several ribs. A few weeks afterward he fell into a creek and for the second time in his life narrowly escaped death by drowning. When he was eight years old, young Bowen had broken one of the hogs on his father's farm to ride, and he invited the son of a neighbor to a hogback ride. After his friend had been mounted Bowen bounded astride an untamed animal, and with one wild "whooff" the animal plunged over a fifty foot bluff into the creek below with the boy on his back. The hog was flattened out like a pancake by the force of the fall, but Bowen's fall was broken by the animal underneath him, and in a few weeks he was again able to roam in search of trouble.

When he was nine years old, he was attacked by a brood sow, which tore every stitch of clothing off his person. In his tenth year he was run over by a wagon, crippling him for months. For three successive years he escaped injury, and then he was struck over the head with a garden rake and for a time hovered between life and death. After his recovery he was well sprinkled with bird shot while hunting.

Some years ago Bowen went south to work as a bricklayer, finding a job in Alabama. Immediately it began raining, never ceasing day or night, and, becoming discouraged, he returned to Indiana, only to find a letter following him saying that the rain ceased immediately after his departure. When Bowen was appointed janitor of the school building, he signaled his appearance by falling into the water tank, but he knew how to swim and escaped drowning. Last week he fell from a band wagon, suffering a fractured skull, from which he is now convalescing. Bowen now says that he is not only a Jonah to himself, but also a hoodeo. While one of the unluckiest men in town, however, he continues one of the most popular.—Indianapolis News.

The Rev. Robert Zaring, pastor of a Methodist church of Indianapolis, makes the suggestion that the church appoint inspectors to examine sermons before they are delivered, with a view to eliminating obsolete, trite or heretical matter. He evinces his good faith by expressing a willingness to run the risk of losing some of the contents of his own sermon barrel if only the general public may be benefited.—Philadelphia Times.

SMOKING HILLS.

A natural phenomenon in the western part of North Carolina.
A natural phenomenon that causes much wonder and has so far baffled scientific explanation exists in the western part of North Carolina. The scene of this wonder is located about twelve miles from Asheville, in Buncombe county. From some of the hills in that section columns of dark smoke are seen to rise at a certain time each year, and all efforts to ascertain the cause have been without avail. When seen at other times than when the smoke issues from them, there is nothing unusual in the appearance of these hills.

They inclose a valley about four miles long and half a mile wide, and their tops are from a quarter to half a mile apart. The columns of smoke rise to a height of about twenty feet and are about a dozen feet apart. The general appearance is that of smoke produced by the burning of coal.

It is indeed a strange spectacle to see this smoke rising on a clear day when there is not a cloud in the sky. It was in September, 1890, that the phenomenon began to be noticed, the first hill to smoke being Watch Knob, one of the largest. Others then exhibited the strange freak, and there are now seven that smoke.

Many theories have been advanced and found to be without foundation. The volcanic theory was suggested and soon found to be without any scientific basis to warrant its acceptance. The fact that the hills began to smoke immediately after the big Charleston earthquake, started much discussion as to some probable connection between the two events, but this again could not be proved by the scientists, and the mystery still remains as deep as ever.

A strange fact in regard to the matter is that persons on the hills and, in fact, in the exact spots on which the smoke is seen by those in the valley can detect neither odor nor color and report that there is nothing to indicate that the smoke is in the air around them.

The neighborhood is visited constantly by parties of tourists, and many artists have taken pictures of the hills.—Exchange.

A Blessing, but not in Disguise.
Sometimes, so our preachers say, sorrow and adversity are blessings in disguise. Few people fully appreciate this, however. In sickness, whether blessing or not, we want the best medicine obtainable; and especially if baby is sick. Mrs. Emma Hocket, Newtonville, Ohio, writes: "For a long time we thought baby would not live, but on using your Victor Infants Relief we found it did more good than any other medicine we ever used. It proved quite a blessing." Your Merchant or Druggist sells it at 25 cents.

The oyster schooner Henry J. Phillips commanded by Capt. Richard A. The captain and two men, comprising the crew, narrowly saved themselves.

Crooked Days:

Such days come to the sunniest dispositions. Whether it is that the wind is from the east, or that there is an unusual twist in the digestive apparatus, or whatever the cause, nothing seems to be straight.

Perhaps the sleep of the preceding hours was haunted with dreams, wagues drawn by nightmares and loaded with weird fancies rattling and rumbling over the pillow. You awoke yawning and unrefreshed. You put your right shoe on your left foot. The breakfast lacks its accustomed relish. The mail taken from the post-office box is without interest. The editorials in the papers are as juiceless as a boarding-house breakfast. There are clouds in the mental sky and a prospect for immediate rain. There are shadows over the heart and the promise of deeper gloom. There is a squint in the vision that makes everything awry. A crooked day!

Your regular daily duties, generally light and pleasant, are dull and irksome. If you are a woman, the broom that you handle has the weight of a crowbar. The pie crust gets the shortening into it the wrong way. The apple dumplings are balls of lead. The bread turns out to be sour. The servant moves among her tasks like a caterpillar afflicted with the rheumatism. You step on the cat's tail, and in the effort to regain your equilibrium you drop a fat-iron on your favorite corn. Then you dance like an Indian on the path of war, and the feline that caused the trouble runs from the scene with its injured caudal appendage high in the air, and bristling with thickness, while in a remote corner, with its back arched in a curve of defiance, it spits at you a volley of animal profanity. A crooked day!

The room is chilly, and you try to make a fire on the hearth. Instead of bright, cheery flames at once leaping up to kiss the soot in the chimney, a few sickly blues curl lazily from the andirons, and then die in a whirl of smoke. You put on more kindling and strike another match. In the excitement of the moment the match loses his head! You try another. It cracks with a loud report, as if it meant to accomplish something out of the ordinary, like some persons that make a great noise in the world. It flares like a Roman candle in a political parade; and just as you are about to apply it to the paper of shavings it goes out, its black, round end a period in the sentence of impatience written in your brain. What is the matter with the fire and the matches? A crooked day!

If you are a man, your collar button leads you in a game of hide-and-seek in the bedroom. The pen that you use with ease on other days goes slowly and laboriously over the page, plodding like an elephant in the undergrowth of a forest, and leaves behind it a trail of broken and crumpled ideas; and these are punctuated with sundry blots and squirts of ink that the said refractory pen persisted in splattering from its point. While you attempt to write, your thoughts are interrupted in their flow by saucy flies that ought to be in their autumnal dormancy within the shades of the windows. From the tip of your nose, or upon the crest of your ear, or on the top of a bald place on your head, as from a mountain summit, they look impudently down upon the landscape of what you are doing; and then sit quickly beyond the reach of your hand, the sound of their departure like that of a saw mill in operation. In despair you leave your desk and go out into the street. Riding a wheel, every gate that you pass is guarded by a snarling, barking dog. Or your path along the sidewalk is blocked with impertinent pedestrians, who, in spite of a vigorous ringing of your bell, will not get out of your way, compelling you to go through a set of evolutions that would do credit to an acrobat, and those gyrations threatening a mode of dismounting far from graceful. Or walking, you meet disagreeable sights at every step. Rude persons push you back from the counter in the store you have entered to make purchases. They take your place at the ticket window of the railroad station. They step on your toes in the post office. You feel pugnacious, but are afraid to strike anybody for fear of getting hurt! You return home, and above the lips that are often the playground of smiles there is a deep frown, like a field of nodding daisies with a thunder-cloud hovering over it. From the tongue that usually drops roses fall nettles and thorns. Out of the eyes that on other days love-glances gleam flash sparks of anger. You are out of humor all the remaining hours. The night comes on with a scowl on its face, and its breath has in it the sound of hissing serpents. A crooked day!

The probability is that such crooked days are born of some indigestion in eating. There are certain articles of food that throw the physical machinery out of gear. Then the mind is unbalanced. In consequence the products of that mind are angular. Ever since the moment that Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit there has been a like tendency of mankind towards an unwholesome diet. Symmetrical days are not made out of a disordered digestion. A torpid liver is a poor couch for which to attempt the awakening of happy hours. Sunbeams cannot be found in a coal mine. Music cannot be struck from broken strings. Neither can bright and harmonious days issue from a brain that is tainted with virulent blood. As well think to obtain the odor of cologne water from a sewer or to extract honey from a heap of compost.

When crooked days come, let those who recognize the deformity try to make them straight. Then is the time to be careful of one's looks and words. If you feel waspish, avoid stinging anybody. Keep to yourself as much as possible. If the sun is shining, take a brisk walk in its glow. Seek cheerful scenes. Do not go near a graveyard. Write no letters on such days, or you may wound friendship, or expose a family skeleton. Be chary of telling your troubles. If the key of the day has rusted in the lock, and you are a prisoner to your own morbidness, oil the bearings of that lock with the determination to be free. Above all, pray for the grace of Him whose strength is in reserve for those who call out of weakness for divine aid. Then the day will pass on, throwing you a farewell from the roosters hands of the sunset, and leaving behind it a promise to come to you in radiance on the morrow, that promise written in sparkling ink upon the star-gazed sheet of the night. That new day will not be a crooked day.

WILLIAM HENRY BANCROFT.

"DOWNIE'S SLAUGHTER."

Efforts to Trace the Genesis of an Old Story:

A legend of Aberdeen university tells of a college servant, by name Downie, who, having rendered himself obnoxious to the undergraduates, was one evening forcibly conducted by a party of students into one of the college rooms and after a mock trial sentenced to death. He was then led into another room, draped with black and containing a block and masked executioner with an ax. Downie was blindfolded and made to kneel at the block. After an interval the executioner struck his neck with a wet towel. The face was at an end, but Downie was found to be dead. The terrified students swore a solemn oath of secrecy, and the real circumstances of the death were revealed only after many years by one of the participants on his deathbed. This story, told with much circumstantial and picturesque detail, appears for the first time in print, so far as I have been able to discover, in a curious book, "Things in General," published anonymously in London in 1824, but now known to have been written by Robert Mudie.

Mr. George Walker, in his entertaining volume, "Aberdeen Awa," 1897, page 205, suggests that the legend "owes its creation to that clever wag Sandy Bannerman (afterward Sir Alexander Bannerman, M. P. for Aberdeen), and that if it is the poorest history, it is a bit of the richest romance." Bannerman, according to Mr. Walker, invented the story and told it to Mudie, who was not a university man. But, apart from the question whether Bannerman can be credited with originating so remarkably dramatic an incident, it is not easy to reconcile a first appearance of the story in a somewhat obscure book published anonymously in London with the fact that but a very few years later, as Mr. Walker tells me from his own recollection, the legend was such a household word in Aberdeen that students were habitually greeted by school children with the cry "Airt an' pairt in Downie's slaughter," or the query, "Fa (Aberdonian for 'who') killed Downie?" Further, Dr. John Cumming, in his "Millennial Rest," gives the story (drawing a moral therefrom) as one current when he was an undergraduate. He matriculated at King's college, Aberdeen, in 1822. Again, a correspondent assures me that his father had the story from John Bowman, schoolmaster of St. Vigean's, as a tradition of his university days (1788-97).

Not a hint of the tragic occurrence is to be found in any college record, and it is difficult to understand how there came to be localized in Aberdeen a legend the machinery of which smacks rather of German student life or the Holy Vehm. Can any reader recall in history or in fiction the incident of a pretended execution causing actual death?—Notes and Queries.

A Story of Secretary Moody.
They are telling a story in Washington about the new secretary of the navy. Mr. Moody was riding on one of the Boston surface cars and was standing on the platform on the side next the gate that protected passengers from cars coming on the other track. A lady—a Boston lady—came to the door of the car and as it stopped started to move toward the gate, which was hidden from her by the men standing before it.

"Other side, please, lady," said the conductor. He was ignored as only a born and bred Bostonian can ignore a man. The lady took another step toward the gate.

"You must get off the other side," said the conductor.

"I wish to get off on this side," came the answer in tones that congealed the official into momentary silence. Before he could either explain or expostulate Mr. Moody came to his assistance.

"Stand to one side, gentlemen," he remarked quietly. "The lady wants to climb over the gate."

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

All Correspondence Is Sacredly Confidential

This is a very important consideration in a woman's correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. It is a great satisfaction to feel that one woman can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only, — a woman full of sympathy for her sick sisters, and with a knowledge of woman's ills greater than that possessed by any other person.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

The reason Mrs. Pinkham is so amply qualified to give advice in cases of female ills is for the reason that over one hundred thousand cases come before her each year, — some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day. Twenty years of constant success, — think of the knowledge thus gained. Surely, women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free.

As an illustration of the good coming from such advice we herewith publish two letters and portrait of Miss Hattie DeGroat, the reading of which should give every sick woman confidence in Mrs. Pinkham's ability to help them. This is only one of thousands of the same kind of letters which Mrs. Pinkham has on file.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you, for I have been suffering for a long time. I have such bearing-down pains, and such shooting pains go through me. I have headache, backache, and feel tired. Menstruation is very painful, sometimes have to stop work and lie down. My stomach bloats terribly, and I am troubled with whites. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,
July 24th, 1900.
MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, SUCCASUNNA, N. J."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I can hardly find words to thank you for your advice and wonderful Vegetable Compound. I was in a terrible state, every part of my body ached, was very nervous, had hysterical spells. I think I would have become insane had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your letter told me just what to do, and your medicine cured me, and I cannot express my thanks."
March 8th, 1901.
MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, SUCCASUNNA, N. J."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends. Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit. Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that the thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ELECTION AFTERMATH.

The campaign of this year will be one long remembered by the voters of this district. Mr. Ellegood lived up to his promise of a pure ballot throughout the district, and though he goes down in defeat, the effort he made to better the condition of politics will not be forgotten soon. Defeat for him does not mean a personal one or one for his party. On the other hand it was a great victory when we take in consideration the wholesale corruption seemingly practised by his opponent. He can feel that every vote cast for him was cast for principle's sake and was not influenced by the corrupt and illegal use of money. It is true that the Democratic party in the past has been guilty of this great crime against good citizenship, and it is equally true that they, seeing to what grave danger it was leading, were bold enough to cut loose from corruption, and try to make our elections what they ought to be—an unbiased, unprejudiced expression of public sentiment. On the Republican party rests the stigma of its defeat. If it were true as they stated that the Democrats were making a virtue out of necessity that would make them none the less guilty. We feel that it is better to suffer an honorable defeat than win a victory by questionable means, to speak of them in the most charitable way.

THE VOTE IN MARYLAND.

By the election of Tuesday, Maryland acquires Democratic representation from two Congressional Districts in the State. While it is to be deplored that our own district candidate was not elected it is a source of much gratification that the State regains two Democratic votes in the next House, against trusts and tariff burdens. In the First Hon. Mr. Ellegood made a hard aggressive fight for the freedom of the American ballot and only the great odds which were brought into the fray could have availed against the campaign he made. The District will long honor him for the courage and fortitude he displayed in championing the cause of honest manhood. Mr. Ellegood in speaking of his defeat said:

"I have no fault to find, except that probably there was not the organized effort to prevent bribery which I expected. I do not believe the democrats in any county in the district spent money, but it is very evident that the republicans spent much. I would have been better satisfied if the local organizations in each county had had these hoodlums arrested. I made a clean fight and my party stood by me. I am more gratified with my honest votes than I should have been with more votes dishonestly secured. I said in the campaign that I had rather go down in honest defeat than be elected by bribery, and I feel the same now. I do believe that this attempt to run an honest campaign will be a start in the right direction and that some good will come of it. Like all other reforms it cannot be accomplished in a day, but the seed once sown will certainly bring a harvest."

Mr. Ellegood received word from several parts of the district that the democratic leaders have evidence of vote buying on the part of the republicans, and all this evidence will be gotten together and may be of great service latter on.

A COUNTRY THAT HAS NO STRIKES.

"New Zealand has done the most daring thing ever attempted by any modern Government. The New Zealanders claim that New Zealand is a country without strikes. Laborers and employers have their disputes there as elsewhere, but the one cannot quit work or the other lock out workmen, pending a settlement of the dispute in court. It is also a country without paupers or penitentiaries, for injured workmen are cared for by their employers. The aged workmen is pensioned by the Government as a soldier of industry worn out in the ranks. The government owns not only the postal system, but the express service, the telegraph lines and the railroads. Recently it has purchased a coal mine to supply its locomotives with fuel, and it intends to compete with private miners in the sale of coal to the public for enough to keep the price of coal down to a reasonable figure."

There is not a pauper in New Zealand.—Church Review.

SPEND $30,000,000 ON TURF.

Americans Spend of Racing—$3,500,000 By New York Tracks.

It costs the votaries of the turf $30,000,000 to witness horse racing in America each year, more than half as much as was voted by Congress for the prosecution of the war with Spain, says the New York World. This vast amount comes out of the pockets of the public that it may witness a lot of thoroughbreds chase one another around the various tracks of the country in contests of speed.

In New York alone nearly $3,500,000 is spent during the racing season, from April 15 to November 15, to maintain the six racing associations that deal in the "sport of kings".

To own a racetrack at the present time seems better and more profitable in some ways than to have a diamond mine.

The team has a game with Princess Anne for next Tuesday at Princess Anne. Special rates have been asked for and the boys expect to carry a large crowd. Train leaves Salisbury at 1.08 p. m. Those desiring to become members will report to the captain.

Sleeplessness

Is akin to insanity. Many a woman realizes this as she lies awake hour by hour, peopling the darkness with phantoms, starting at the creaking of the bed or the rustle of the bedclothes.

Such symptoms in general point to disease of the delicate womanly organs, and a constant drain of the vital and nervous forces. This condition cannot be overcome by sleeping powders. The diseased condition must be cured before the consequences of disease are removed.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which cause nervousness and sleeplessness, nourishing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep. Irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness are perfectly cured by "Favorite Prescription."

"My wife was sick for over eight years," writes Albert H. Fuller, Esq., of Alton, Grady Co., Tenn. "She had uterine disease and was treated by two physicians and got no relief. At last I read about Dr. Pierce's medicine and we decided to try his 'Favorite Prescription.' It was sent to the drug store and got one bottle and the first dose gave ease and sleep. She had not slept any for three nights. Being sure that it would cure her I sent for five more bottles and when she had taken the sixth bottle she was sound and well."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev. FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., Pastor of John's Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Many sympathy with a class peculiarly subject to hardships and temptations is manifested in this sermon by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage on the text Nehemiah xiii, 20, "So the sellers of all kind of ware lodged without Jerusalem once or twice."

President Harrison once sent forth a proclamation which aroused widespread interest. In it he announced that the claims of many Indian tribes had been bought up by the government; therefore, by the power which was vested in him as chief executive of the United States, he would on April 22, 1880, open the central portion of Oklahoma to the American people. All the men and women who at that time entered the new country could stake themselves out a claim or a lot or a farm. On the appointed day thousands upon thousands of people assembled upon that borderland. Some sat upon fleet thoroughbreds, ready to make the race for the choicest lots in the cities which would within a few days spring up as if by magic and the streets of which were already laid out. Some came on foot. These divested themselves of all superfluous clothing, so that they could run as swiftly as possible. When the signal was given by the pistol held in the cavalryman's hand, the great multitude broke into a run. The would be settlers rushed ahead so fast that within a few hours the whole land was taken possession of, and cities like Guthrie began to teem with life. Oklahoma, only ten years after it was first opened to the white man, had nearly 400,000 inhabitants.

But no sooner was Oklahoma settled and the little country stores set up than the wholesale merchants of New York and Philadelphia and Chicago and St. Louis began to send into this new territory another great army of invaders made up of the representatives of their different establishments. These modern crusaders have been aptly termed in the commercial traveler's parlance the "knights of the grip." Instead of riding a war charger, like the knights of olden time, they rode behind an "iron horse," which is called a locomotive. Instead of carrying a spear or a shield, they carried models or pictures, showing how the steel and iron had been melted into plows and reapers and spades and axes and hammers and saws. Instead of having mailed armor, they had pieces of cloth, which they carried as samples of clothing, which they wanted to sell to the storekeepers for the new farmers and their wives and children. There is not a town in the United States, no matter how small it may be or how newly established, which has escaped the weekly, if not daily, invasions of the commercial travelers.

Ancient Commercial Travelers. In the scene of my text can be found almost an exact duplication of the invasion of the newly settled regions of Oklahoma by the knights of the grip. No sooner did Nehemiah, the governor, return from his Babylonian exile and rebuild the walls of Jerusalem and make it a safe place in which to live than the commercial travelers of that day began to flock toward the Davidic capital to dispose of their goods. But there was one habit about many of these ancient commercial travelers which Nehemiah did not like. Some of them would persist in arriving at the city walls on the Sabbath day and trying to turn God's day of rest into a day of barter and gain. The governor, in order to stop the sin of Sabbath desecration, ordered that the city gates should be closed on the night before the Sabbath and not be opened again until the morning after the Sabbath, no matter how much these ancient commercial travelers might want to get in and escape the dangers of being murdered by the robbers who nightly infested the surrounding hills. Thus we read the words of my text with a clearer interpretation, "So the sellers of all kind of ware lodged without Jerusalem once or twice."

As we walk in and out among the sellers of Nehemiah's time, barred without the city walls, and examine their piled up wares and hear the muttered curses of the men blaspheming because they could not enter the Jerusalem gates and watch the preparations they are making to resist the attacks of the robbers I am reminded of the dangers to which our modern knights of the grip are exposed. They, too, have lurking enemies who would despoil them, and because those enemies are more treacherous, more insidious and more ruthless than the Bedouin hordes who menaced the ancient commercial travelers of Nehemiah's time I am anxious to point them out and put the imperiled men on their guard.

The evil dangers threaten a commercial traveler's life when he is away from home. They try to ambush the seller of all kinds of ware when he is on the march; they strike at his heart in a time and in a place when he is apt to think he can sin with impunity, because no one will be the wiser, as he can cover up his tracks; they come to the knights of the grip in the insinuating and dangerous ways that evil temptations sometimes overthrow Christian people when they are traveling abroad. It is a well known fact that the average European travelers will commit sins in Paris or Vienna or Rome or Monte Carlo or Peking or

Calcutta that they would never dream of doing if they were at home among their own friends and neighbors. The young Dutch Queen Wilhelmina illustrated this common tendency of the human race to be worse away from home than they are by their own fireside in the quaint and pointed answer which she gave to the Prince of Wales when visiting Queen Victoria some years ago. The then heir apparent to the English throne asked her what she was most impressed by in England. "It is to find that the English people are so refined and gentle and kind and religiously devout in their own homes," she replied. "One would never have guessed it from the specimens I have seen traveling in Holland."

Sinners Away From Home. An average man can commit as a rule twenty sins away from home, when he is traveling alone, in a railroad train, or stopping alone in a hotel, or living alone with strangers, far more easily, with less risk of injury to his position and reputation, than one sin when he is being watched by his employer's eyes or when he is in daily companionship with a Christian mother, wife or child. It makes an immense amount of difference how a locomotive will act when it is on the down grade whether or no the engineer has perfect control over its powerful Westinghouse brakes. It makes an immense amount of difference with some of us when we are heading toward the open drawbridges of sin whether or no we have our loved ones near by, who are ready to reach out their hands to help us close the throttles and apply the spiritual brakes, so that we can halt before we have gone too far and it is too late to try to stop.

But though the swift moving currents of daily influences in a commercial traveler's life are apt to flow in the wrong direction when he is away from home, yet that is no valid excuse for his yielding to temptation. In the first place, God has distinctly declared that he will never allow any temptation to come nigh us which is greater than we can bear, if we will only throw ourselves upon his mercy and plead and continue to plead for divine strength. Mighty as are the temptations the commercial traveler meets when he is away from home, the divine power which is at his disposal is infinitely stronger. It can triumph over every opposing force.

But there is still another reason why the commercial traveler should not yield to the temptations which he meets away from home. The modern knight of the grip is naturally a stronger man, mentally, morally and physically, than the average man who is compelled to stay at home and work. It takes brains, and lots of brains, to be able to sell goods away from home. The time is past when the great merchants think that any drunken, gambling, blaspheming employee is good enough to go upon the road. The employers today demand that their commercial travelers be men of character, of brain, men with the moral stamina to say yes and no. And, young man, the mere fact that you are a commercial traveler is proof positive that you have character enough, by the grace of God, to be able to resist any temptation which you may meet in your travels.

Temptations assail the commercial traveler alike when he is buoyed up with great success and when he is discouraged by great financial depression, when he is thrown off his guard by exultation or disheartened by a long succession of bitter disappointments. Many commercial travelers do not receive a regular guaranteed salary. They work on a system of commissions. The more goods they sell the more money they receive. The less goods they dispose of the less income they have. The average commercial traveler's income is apt to ebb and flow like the tides. In one town the knight of the grip may sell thousands of dollars' worth of goods. In every store he enters he finds a large purchaser. In another town he may not even meet expenses. Then, when the average commercial traveler has what he calls a run of luck, he is apt to be unduly elated, and that elation is often the means Satan uses to trip him up. The imminent dangers of exultation and disappointment are the Charybdis and the Scylla which every commercial traveler has to face.

Now, my friend, you who spend most of your life selling goods upon the road, I want to warn you against the dangers which come from either exultation or discouragement. Henry Ward Beecher cured one of his parishioners of the temptation of entering into Wall street speculations by an experiment. The pastor of Plymouth church asked his friend not to gamble in stocks for at least three years. During those three years Mr. Beecher wanted him to make a study of the stock market. Every time he thought stocks were going up he was to make a memorandum of the same and decide how much he wanted to buy and every time he thought he ought to sell stocks to make a memorandum of the same. Then, at the end of three years, Mr. Beecher said, "Count up your results and find out where you would have stood if these purchases and sales had actually been made." This the parishioner did, as Mr. Beecher desired. At the end of three years he found out that if he had entered Wall street and speculated as he wished to do he would have been bankrupted ten times over. You, my commercial friend, may learn the same lesson. You do not have to experiment yourself, but you may see in the lives of other commercial travelers the results of allowing either exultation or despondency to overcome you. Recall the history of those commercial travelers whom you have known for the last five or ten years. I want you to try to remember all the drinkers and carousers who started out with you upon the road. Almost without exception, you know they have lost their positions and are living in comparative poverty or are lying in drunkards' graves. Now, my friend, dare you as an intelligent man have run any such risks? Dare you in any circumstances drink or dissipate, no matter how intense may be your disappointments or how exultant your joy?

Dangers threaten a modern commercial traveler's life because his mind is often beclouded on account of physical debilitation. To be a really successful commercial traveler a young man ought to have a physical constitution of iron. He ought to have the same kind of bone and muscle and sinew which made the knights of old famous. He ought to be able to digest any kind of food, sleep in hard or soft beds, sleep on a hall lounge or on a chair, or lying upon the bare wooden seat of the caboose of a freight train. He ought to be able to walk along a dark country road at midnight in midwinter to catch the 1 o'clock train for the next town. He ought to be able to assimilate irregular meals, and have his rightly rest broken up once or twice, and sometimes even thrice, by the changing of cars, and yet be cheerful and happy and sell his goods just the same during the day. Alas, I well know what are the physical difficulties of a traveler's life! For many years I have, off and on, traveled around the country as a lecturer. I have had to suffer all these trials, and have met and talked with the knights of the grip in many a lonely station in the midnight hour while waiting for a belated railroad connection.

You Must Pay the Price. But, even under the very brightest of conditions and even though a man's backbone may seem to be made of steel, nature will assert itself. A commercial traveler must always pay the price and have his physical frame rebel at the hardships which it has been made to suffer, and so during those times of physical exhaustion a commercial traveler, on account of the physical becloudment of his mind, is often apt to take a depressed view of life. He is apt to often lose his faith in God and in his fellow men and to feel that his own life is not worth the living and that he is but of little use to his fellow man. My brother, I want you, if you are a commercial traveler and a stranger who have just by chance dropped into this church, to know and feel that your life is worth living. God does love you. Your dear ones are dependent upon you. It is of infinite importance whether you do right or wrong. You must not let your belief in God falter when you need a physician and a dose of medicine and a good rest; you must not let the hand of Satan touch you and lead you into the paths of sin when your head aches and your digestive organs refuse to do their proper work. One of the greatest generals of the ages was defeated in battle and driven into exile because the night before the battle opened he was writing in physical torture produced by a sudden and violent attack of dyspepsia. Many a commercial traveler has been defeated in life's spiritual battle because his health has become undermined and undertaken. Oh, ye knights of the grip, be very careful of your physical health, for your spiritual happiness and faithfulness may be destroyed through your physical debilities.

Dangers threaten a modern commercial traveler also unless he rigidly fulfills his religious duties and spiritually employs himself on the Lord's day. It is very easy when Sabbath morning comes, in a little town where the commercial traveler has to spend his Sunday, for him to say to himself: "Well, I guess I will not go to church today. I will stay in my room and read the morning newspaper or write some letters." It is very seductive after a hard week's work for the commercial traveler to go to bed Saturday night with the intention of staying there until half past 10 o'clock the next morning and then, in order to save time, to break the Lord's day and take the Sunday train for the next town. Or, if a commercial traveler is spending Sunday in a large city, it is very easy for him to go and hear the different popular preachers in the same way that, out of curiosity, he might go to see the great tragedians act the part of a "Hamlet" or an "Othello," a "Richard" or a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

The True Worship. Though all those attractions may be very fascinating, yet, my friend, you must remember that the true worship of God does not consist in the mere satisfying of our intellectual curiosity or in lying in bed on the Sabbath day, but in work, hard, conscientious work, for the Master. The old adage tells us that "Satan has to hunt the busy man, but the indolent man hunts the devil." Therefore, my brother, the easiest way to overcome the temptations which beset the commercial traveler during the long, lonely hours of the Sabbath day is to worship God while away from home in the same way you would, or rather ought to do, if you were at home.

Go to the little village meeting house bright and early and offer your services to the Sunday school superintendent, and say that you will take a class for the day if any teacher is absent. Go to the Young People's meeting at night and offer there your most earnest prayer, and give them the most practical, helpful talk you can. After the morning or evening sermon go to the pulpit and take the country or the city minister by the hand and tell him that you intend to pray for him and his work during the whole week. If you will do all this regularly and systematically every Sabbath day, you will find, oh, commercial traveler, that you have not only been a messenger to help others, but that you have deepened your own spiritual life. By such an evangelistic mission as this you will not only by divine grace overcome the sins peculiar to the Sabbath, but also the besetting sins which every weekday lurk along the wayside of every commercial traveler's journey.

The worst dangers of a modern commercial traveler's life generally assail him when he is comparatively a young man. Once in awhile you may find an old man who still travels upon the road, but as a rule the commercial travelers are comparatively young men. The life is so hard an older man can rarely stand the physical strain. Unless protected and restrained by the grace of God these young men are apt to fall into the traps of sin impulsively. They are apt to say to themselves: "Well, I know I ought not to sin, but I am young yet. Therefore I can afford to sow a few wild oats, and then I can repent and at last live to a respectable middle age, and even be honored in my old age."

This expectation, my young friend, might be all right if it were true, but, as a rule, it is not true. Generally a sinful young age means a sinful middle age. A sinful middle age means a sinful old age, if the human body is not destroyed by sin before the three-score years have been lived out. The sins of youth will generally follow a man and curse his whole after life, as the sins of Benedict Arnold's youth cursed him to the grave. Talleyrand, the great French statesman, gave a dramatic account of the desolation of the traitor. When he was exiled by the order of Napoleon and had to leave France, he intended to sail for America. Coming to the little French seaport town where he was about to embark, he heard that an American gentleman was living in the hotel. So he sent up a card and asked for an interview. Talleyrand was ushered into a dark room, where this American gentleman sat. Then Talleyrand said: "Sir, I have been exiled from France, and expect to cross the sea and live in America. I hear that you are an American gentleman. Therefore I craved an interview to ask you to give me a few letters of introduction to some of your friends in New York city." With that the gentleman laughed a horrible laugh. As he retreated toward the door he said: "No, Mr. Talleyrand, I cannot give you any letters to my friends in America. The reason is that I have no friends in America. I am the only man today who was born in America, and who has shed his blood for freedom, who has not one friend in all America. My name, sir, is Benedict Arnold. I am Major General Arnold of his majesty's service. I am Benedict Arnold, the traitor." As Benedict Arnold's youthful sin followed him to his grave, so the sin into which the youthful commercial traveler falls follows him to the grave. Oh, my young friends who spend most of your life upon the road, I beg of you to seek divine help and pray and continue to pray that you may overcome the daily temptations of the commercial traveler's life.

How to Overcome Sin. I would plead with each one of you to consecrate yourself to the Divine Master's service, so that you may overcome the besetting sins of a life away from home. You are not at heart a bad man. You have many tender ties which ought to bind you to a life of purity and truth. In all probability you have the same kind of home ties as had the commercial traveler I once met upon the road. It was during a long, tiresome journey. Toward the evening hour, as it gradually began to darken, I closed my book and began to think about the mother of my children and the little babies at home. I said to myself: "Yes, the little white nightgowns are now about to be put on; yes, they must be saying their prayers about now; yes, I can almost hear them say, 'God bless papa and mamma.'" Then, looking across the aisle, I saw a young man about my own age open his satchel. He took out of that satchel a little paper package. He began to unfasten the cord. Then he exposed to view three or four photographs and began to look long and earnestly at them. I crossed the aisle. Putting my hand upon the young man's shoulder, I said, "Well, old fellow, I have a wife and some babies too." "Have you?" he answered as his face lighted up with a smile. "Would you like to see mine?" Then we talked about home. Then his eyes became moist when he laughingly and yet pathetically said, "Let me show you a letter I received this morning from my baby." He held up an old crumpled brown piece of paper, over which a little child's chubby finger had scrawled a lot of hieroglyphics, which writing looked like a lot of hen tracks in a barnyard. Then I turned and said, "You ought to be a good man with such a family of little ones." "Yes," he answered, "I know I should, and do you know, I feel that if it was not for my lovely, consecrated home and my wife's prayers and the thought that my little children are every night praying for me I might yield to the many temptations of a commercial traveler's life. But every time I start to do wrong my little children's arms seem to cling about my neck as they cry: 'Don't, papa. For your dear little babies' sake, don't sin.'"

And so in that evening hour, as the train was speeding toward my destination for lecturing, I felt as I feel now. I felt that, though the average commercial traveler has many sins besetting him, yet he is armored and helmeted from the attacks of temptations by his absent loved ones' prayers. The average commercial traveler ought to be true to his gospel faith when God has given to him a lovely, consecrated, Christian home. Oh, ye knights of the grip, will you be true to the Christ who is pleading with you today to bow at his feet? Will you be true to Jesus on account of the prayers of your loved ones even if your conscience tells you that no prayer is so appropriate for you as that of the publican, which you can utter in your own behalf?

Weak

Heart From Attack of LaGrippe.

Palpitation, Smothering, Short Breath.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

The terrible after effects of LaGrippe are most dangerous when they attack the heart, the engine of life. Weak hearts are as common as weak stomachs and when an attack is made upon the weak heart, that organ soon becomes a diseased heart and the patient will unless promptly treated, suffer long and eventually die of heart disease, the dread of millions. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure strengthens and regulates the heart's action, enriches the blood and improves the circulation.

"Some years ago I had an attack of the grip, and it left me with a very weak heart. Palpitation, shortness of breath and smothering spells that made me sit up in bed to breathe, robbing me of sleep, made me most miserable. I would become fatigued and exhausted from the least exertion and was in such a critical condition that I could not attend to my business. My physician seemed unable to control my case, and instead of getting better I was gradually growing weaker every day. Then I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and after I had used two bottles I was greatly improved. I continued with the remedy until I had taken in all six bottles, when I was able to attend to business without inconvenience. I was completely and permanently cured of heart trouble by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers from that terrible affliction."—H. H. ELLIS, Gloversville, N. Y.

COLUMBIA.

Twenty three persons enjoyed a stroll for tea berries last Sunday afternoon in the vicinity of Bloomey Race. Persons of this neighborhood were included, and some visitors from Sharptown and elsewhere. All reported a grand and good outing and reaped quite a large quantity of berries. The crop is an exceedingly large one, and the fruit is of a large size and is much sought after by many of our residents and also by people visiting in the neighborhood of tea berry districts.

Leaves from the shade trees cause our house wives much annoyance until they are all off and cleaned away.

Preaching at Mt. Hermon next Sunday at 8 p. m. All are cordially invited to attend and hear an interesting sermon.

Some of our sweet potato growers are exhibiting some large potatoes this season, and are growing them larger each year, and present indications seem to point to years to come when they will grow them so large it will be impossible to move them from the field at all, and consequently will lose a part of their crop or otherwise will have to build potato houses over them where they lie. The crop is good in this section, many persons being unable to get them in the houses fitted up for keeping this particular product. Many small potatoes have been hauled to nearby canneries where they are disposed of at ten cents per basket. This is a fair price for potatoes which are unfit for anything else except to feed away to stock.

Many of our young folks and some older ones attended and enjoyed a good meal at the oyster supper held at Providence last Friday and Saturday evenings. All say it was an ideal repast in every respect.

Corn husking has begun and promises a fair yield.

Our young friend Mr. Harry Phillips is much improved. We trust to see him in our social circles again soon.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Beach was visited Sunday by three of Sharptown's charming young ladies including Mrs. Lucy Bennett, namely: Misses Clara, Ethel, and Bessie Bradley. Come out in the country again girls and enjoy some more tea berries.

The many friends in this place, of Miss Daisy Anderson were pained to hear of her recent death. Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

SALISBURY VS. PRINCESS ANNE.

The Two Foot-ball Teams Have A Close Contest Tuesday, Return Game Thanksgiving.

The Salisbury boys under charge of Capt. Bernard Ulman went over to Somerset on Tuesday afternoon to test the mettle of Princess Anne's eleven. They found the latter's strength and skill not to be despised. The game was called at four o'clock. The Salisbury team won the 'toss up' and chose the goal, giving Princess Anne the ball.

Ulman caught the kick off, but was blocked before he reached the opponent's ground. The fight was on and each side struggled hard to force the 'pig skin' towards the other goal. Every foot of ground was sharply contested, but so evenly matched were the teams that neither side was able to make any material gains.

The half ended without either side scoring. In the second half the Salisbury boys took the aggressive and kept their opponents on the defensive during the entire half, keeping the 'pig skin' well within the enemy's territory and narrowly missed scoring several times. On one occasion they had the ball on the line, the sphere belonging to Princess Anne, but Wilson succeeded in kicking it well out in the field. Salisbury was successful in again taking the ball within fifteen yards of line but lost the ball and Princess Anne by an end play carried the ball in the center of the field, J. R. Wilson making the longest run in the game. Time was called, neither side scoring.

Dougherty was hurt in last quarter and Mayer was substituted. Princess Anne made a better showing in the center plays and Salisbury in the ends. Hugh W. Jackson was umpire, Gordon Tall, referee and Arthur Richardson, time-keeper. A returning game is to be played at Salisbury on Thanksgiving, Nov., 27.

Both towns expect to strengthen their team by practice, and a very interesting game is expected. The line up of the teams was as follows:

WILSON BONDSMEN CASE.

Decision Upon Demurrers Filed In Trust Estate Case.

The Circuit Court for Worcester County last week rendered a decision upon the demurrers filed in the suit of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company, trustee of Clara Louise Wilson, against the bondsmen of the late William Sidney Wilson.

The questions raised by the defendants are as follows: That the suit was improperly brought in a court of law; that it should have been brought in a court of equity; that the Mississippi Valley Trust Company is not a person beneficially interested in the trust property, and, therefore, no right to bring the suit; that William Sidney Wilson was never legally appointed trustee; that none of the moneys in the several counts mentioned lawfully came into the hands of William Sidney Wilson that he did not misappropriate any money lawfully received by him as trustee; that since the execution of the alleged bond the defendants have been released and discharged from all obligations under the bond; that they have paid over all accounts to Clara Louise Wilson for all the moneys, income, rents and profits accruing from the trust fund alleged to have been delivered to William Sidney Wilson; that they have discharged all obligations on account of the bond set forth in the plaintiff's declaration.

To these pleas the plaintiff demurred, and the demurrer was sustained by the court and leave was granted to amend pleas.

Alonso Miles was in court for the defendants; Henry L. D. Stanford for the plaintiff.

Wreck At Bishop's Switch.

The breaking of an axle of a lumber car attached to a special freight train at Bishop's Switch, Md., Tuesday afternoon caused a serious freight wreck and delayed for several hours the freight and passenger traffic on the D. M. & V. branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Seven cars were demolished, and one of the trainmen was injured, but not seriously.

GORMAN'S STAR RISING.

National Political Sentiment Pointing Toward Our Democratic U. S. Senator For The Presidency.

The New Yorker, owned and published by interests favorable to Tammany Hall, Tuesday make the following significant comment upon the editorial of Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, which appeared in a recent issue of The Baltimore American.

"It is about Senator Gorman that the elements of peculiar good fortune seem to be forming. The veteran Maryland statesman has steadily grown in popular estimation, and his re-entry into active life politically will be signally felicitous and timely. On the 4th of March he will resume the discharge of his interrupted senatorial duties, and will from then be rightfully esteemed a star performer on the stage of national affairs. He will not have to scheme to drag himself before the footlights or conspire to be forced to the foreground. He will belong there by right of re-election to the Senate of the United States. "As a candidate Senator Gorman will enjoy the confidence of the conservative interests (Wall street and the rest of the business world), and he will be the least objectionable of any Eastern man to the wild-eyed factions in the West.

"FAIR TRADE" PLATFORM.

A platform declaring for "fair trade," with Gorman standing on it, will more than likely be the outcome. Such a declaration might not satisfy the free trade doctrinaires, but it would not frighten many Eastern Democrats, while meeting with distinct favor throughout the South, which has been splendidly pleased with recent industrial developments not disconnected with tariff protection benefits. Mr. Cleveland once denounced Senator Gorman for remodeling his pet Wilson Tariff Bill, characterizing the Gorman compromise as infamous. The country, with a vivid recollection of the hard times contemporaneous with and subsequent to the Cleveland free trade agitation and with still fresher memories of the boom that followed the enactment of the Dingley Bill will hardly be prepared to subscribe to the Cleveland theories on the subject, and will be very much more inclined to a middle course, such as would be given popular definition in the phrase "fair trade."

Many things may occur within the next two years to change the political map, but it is unmistakably true that present indications point to the nomination of Senator Gorman by the Democratic National Convention to be the standard-bearer of the party in the next great battle of the ballots.

The County Commissioners.

The County Commissioners will meet next Tuesday for the purpose of going over the accounts of delinquent tax collectors up to 1900, so they can ascertain the exact amount due from each.

The Board will then proceed to enforce immediate settlement by process of law, as they are determined to close up all accounts of delinquent collections.

At the meeting Tuesday, this week, Commissioner Adkins reported that he did not sell contract to build the road in Quantico, because all the bids were too high. The work will be done by private contract, thus effecting a saving to the county.

Rev. Dr. Holloway and others were before the Board in the interest of the proposed Riverside Road. The Commissioners informed them that they were waiting for an estimate from Mr. Otis Lloyd as to cost of bridge over the creek before taking action.

Fire At Chiscopeague.

At a late hour Tuesday night fire was discovered in the stables connected with the Atlantic Hotel, Mr. Phillips, proprietor. In a short time the building was a roaring furnace. The hotel caught fire several times and was only saved by the heroic efforts not only of the employees, but also the guests of the house. Lit Handy one of Baltimore's oldest notion salesmen rendered the most efficient aid, Mr. Leount also of Baltimore did nobly and deserves praise. Loss of provender some four hundred dollars.

13 Cent Stamps Out.

The new issue of 13-cent postage stamps is out. The Postmaster General received the first sheet of the printed stamps last Friday and the stamps shortly will be on sale in all the post-offices in the country. The issue bears the portrait of the late President Benjamin Harrison.

MUDD READY FOR FRAY.

Old Patronage Fight. Ready To Accommodate Opponents With Or Without Notice.

That the fight between Senator Louis E. McComas and his followers, on the one hand, and Representative Sydney E. Mudd, on the other, which began last winter about the distribution of Federal patronage for the State of Maryland is to continue during the coming session of Congress, and probably in the primaries to be held next Spring, was shown Thursday by a statement given out by Mr. Mudd affecting political affairs in Maryland.

Mr. Mudd intimates that his opponents in the party are talking to his detriment, and says that while he is not at all anxious to foment factional strife in the Republican organization of Maryland he is ready for all comers and will fight all those who attempt to do him injury.

In an interview given to a correspondent of The Sun Thursday he said:

"Of course, I take it that every fair-minded man will understand the purpose of all this kind of talk. It seems to me, I regret very much to say, to emanate, directly or indirectly, from some part of the same sources that thought they accomplished a great and good thing by depriving my district and myself of Federal patronage in a recent contest before the President. It would appear that this very noted achievement did not figure very largely against me in the recent election.

"Now, I am entirely sincere when I say that I am not courting any factional fight in our Maryland politics," concluded Mr. Mudd. "I want Maryland to elect a Republican Governor and a Republican Senator, and am ready and willing to do anything in my power to aid in the accomplishment of these two results. I don't want any personal or factional fights to interfere with this accomplishment, but if the aforesaid prominent agencies, with their co-agencies and followers, are feverishly impatient for the inauguration of the work that they have been telling the people through the newspapers for the last four or five months they were going to do against me in the spring primaries and in various other respects, as all this sort of talk would seem to indicate, I want to say to the gentry that I am ready to accommodate them on short notice, or without notice at all, for that matter, in all that line of work they might want to enter upon."

LETTERS NOW BEING DELIVERED.

Tammany Says Post Office Held Up Circulars. Thousands of Campaign Documents Coming in.

The hundreds of thousands of campaign circulars sent out to the voters of Greater New York by Tammany several days before election are now being distributed through the mails.

Not one Republican document sent through the General Post Office at the same time was permitted to lie dormant.

Leader after leader called at Tammany Hall yesterday and brought with them the documents just received through the mail.

"That shows just what he had to contend against," said Leader Charles F. Murphy. "The power of the Federal Government was invoked against us. I'll wager that not one Republican document was put aside like ours, it is an outrage."

These documents cast in postage alone over $7,000. The printing, handling and clerical work makes the whole amount reach nearly $15,000, all of which money was practically thrown away.

The Democratic leaders were indignant yesterday and declare that action will be taken against Postmaster Van Cott in order to determine just who is responsible.—New York Journal.

BLAZE IN DELMAR.

The Fire Department Renders Excellent Service—Baptist Meeting.

About 12.15 p. m. on Sunday last the alarm of fire was again sounded in Delmar. Smoke and flames were seen rising from the roof of the dwelling at the southeast corner of Second and Elizabeth Streets, occupied by Mr. Wm. J. Thompson and owned by Arthur Brewington; Most of the household effects were removed. The volunteer fire department responded promptly and soon two streams were playing on the flames. It was impossible to save the burning building but the fire was kept under such control that it was prevented from extending to the adjacent buildings.

The cost of the property destroyed was about $1700. Insurance for $1000 in the Western Insurance Company of Toronto.

The annual two days meeting of the O. S. Baptist Church was held on Tuesday and Wednesday last. Preaching services were held morning, afternoon and night, and attended by large congregations. Elder A. B. Francis, the pastor, was assisted by Elder W. W. Meredith and John L. Hastings. An out door dinner was served each day.

MARY JANE'S RED HEAD.

Black Woman in Wicomico County With Fiery Hair.

Allen, Md., Nov. 13—There is a young colored woman residing in the town of Allen, Wicomico county, who is attracting considerable attention just now. Her name is Mary Jane Cornish.

She lives just as other colored women of today do, but the noticeable features about her are her ebony colored face and fiery red hair. Her face is as shiny black as that of an imported African, while her kinky hair is as red as any white person's. She presents a rather weird appearance.

The young woman is very industrious and is affable and courteous in manner. She takes the banterings of her white acquaintances on her appearance good-naturedly. An amusing thing about it is that the colored population of the town hold themselves aloof from her, especially those who are superstitious, who look upon her as being a representation of Satan. Many of them refuse to meet her on the street.

A curious reporter inquired of a colored man why he did not pay attention to Mary. He replied; "Bos, I hab allus heard dat red headed white folks am de debil, but a red-headed niggah! She am de debil untied!"

The young woman's parents say they are unable to account for her appearance, adding that she had always been so from birth.

—Diphtheria has broken out in several of the Sussex and lower Kent towns, and the epidemic now threatens to put the Harrington public schools out of business for some time. Wherever the disease gets a hold of the children, the local boards order the schools closed and the infected houses placarded. Every precaution is taken to prevent the plague's spread.

—Dr. John S. Fulton, secretary of the Maryland State Board of Health and Dr. Guy Steele, health officer for Dorchester county, returned from Elliott's Island on Tuesday night, where they went to investigate several cases of smallpox. They found the disease in two families and took the necessary steps to quarantine both houses.

—The thought that we are the actual creatures of the world's future is one that must load us with a sense of responsibility that will be intolerable or inspiring according to our disposition. Yet, when we speculate about the condition of the world in the coming century we do not realize that things in that age will be what we make them. Mr. Wells makes this point very clear in his study of "Mankind in the Making" in the November Cosmopolitan.

—An automobilist in Connecticut has been convicted of manslaughter for running over and killing a man. The decision is eminently just. Doubtless the automobilist had no desire to injure anyone, but a person in possession of a dangerous instrument must handle it so as not to injure his fellows. Too many automobilists seem to think that they own the roads and that no one else has any right upon them. A few jail sentences will teach these selfish and reckless individuals that other users of roads have some rights which they must respect.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." Mrs. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as they have rid thousands.

Indian Summer.

Glorious skies! Glorious atmosphere! Glorious landscapes! A panorama of splendors above, around and beneath! An overflow of supernal radiance, and the beauty dripping upon the hills, the streams, the woods, the fields and the gardens! Through the air the flash of angel wings! Upon the trees that have not been bared by the wings the touch of magic hands! The breath of divinity freighting with perfume the vales by the watercourses! That is Indian Summer.

To some it is a season of sadness. Shadows over the mind. Clipped the wings of buoyancy. Muffled every bell of joy in the heart. But I never feel that way when the sun is shining. In the sheen that pours from an unobstructed sky Indian Summer is to me an exhilaration. A ride on the wheel is then a tonic to every fiber of the brain. I come back to my study with enough exuberance of spirit for the writing of a score of sermons. The bracing breezes have blown away every lingering cobweb from the soul, and scattered every speck of dust. Only when the wind is in the east, and the azure glass of the sky is draped with curtains of storm, and the hangings of the trees are damp from contact with the fingers of the mist am I at all inclined to melancholy in the waning days of the autumn tide.

Indian Summer is the brilliant peroration of a discourse of which April was the promising exordium. Through all the months intervening the orator of Nature has been thrilling his audience with growing periods of wonder. May was one climax; June was another. But the end has come. Gathering up all the strength that was held in reserve, the speaker is now flooding the sense of his auditors with a flaming cataract of eloquence that is marvellous in thought and diction. His words burn as though kindled with sacred fire; and in their glow they reflect all the colors of a sunset. When the last sentence shall have fallen from his lips, the listening throngs will disperse and go home; and over the great hall out of doors will steal the silence of vacancy. Then Winter, the old gray-headed janitor, his long, snowy beard in a drift of whiteness down his breast, will close the auditorium, wrapping his cloak about him as he descends the steps, and leave behind him a row of windows with drawn shades of frost.

One of the lessons to be learned from Indian summer is the economic character of Nature. Seemingly God is prodigal in his throwing off of the leaves. Every passing wind strips them from the limbs of the trees. They lie in heaps along the streets of the town and over the paths of the woodlands. Under the chemistry of the air these brown piles of refuse will rot and die. But there is no waste whatever. Those leaves are checks drawn to the order of Spring, and bearing the signature of a Name that has more wealth behind it than those of all the world's multi-millionaires put together. Deposited in the bank of Winter, the amounts written on those checks are all placed to the credit of the endorser. Some day the whole balance will be called for and handed out over the paying teller's desk in shining coin of crocus and dandelion and rose and honeysuckle, and in new crisp, green notes of wheat and grass and foliage.

God is an economist of the highest order. In His realm there is nothing wasted. Would that men would pattern after Him! This would be a far better world to live in, if every human mind would heed the lessons that God places on the board in Nature's school-room. But, alas! there are many triflers and truants who care not to learn. These exhaust their energies, adding nothing to their capital for future use. Among these is the drunkard. The autumn of life comes to his body and brain and spirit, but it has no Indian Summer, unless by grace divine there is a change in his mode of living. Instead there are murky skies and dull landscapes. The moan of the winds is a dirge that is played over the corpse of his manhood, and the first mournful notes of an everlasting winter for the soul.

Sad, inexpressibly sad the time of falling leaves in the history of all classes of sinners that have thrown away their very soul in a dissipation of the forces of life. What will a man give in exchange for his soul? There is nothing to give except ashes. Destroyed character is not a legal tender in the moral kingdom.

But I turn from this darkness, for it oppresses me. Through my study window I look out upon the glory of this day at midnoon. The autumn is dying, it is true; but in its dying how grand it is! It is like those who pass from earth with the certainty of being clothed upon with an unfading immortality. Autumn is Summer's farewell kiss and parting clasp of hand for a journey to renewed health and beauty. We shall see her again after the winter is done. So does the hope of the Gospel brighten the pillow of those who close their eyes upon earth's scenes in faith, and thus does it fragrantly breathe its benediction upon those who wait for a similar summons. Indian Summer! Then the Summer that is eternal!

WILLIAM HENRY BANGS.

Because She Was Kied To A Stranger Many Years Ago.

Hiram Beverly, an old man, who recently died at Seattle, Wash., left an estate worth $1,000,000 to Lizzie Boyce, of near Hiawatha, Kansas, because she had shown him kindness when he was in sore years ago. He did not know the girl's address and his attorney had written to a paper here in the hope of finding the young woman.

Lizzie Boyce is the 24 year old daughter of Elijah Boyce, a farmer, who lives a few miles north of Hiawatha. Miss Boyce took the news of her inheritance very calmly, stating that she would believe it when she saw the money or its equivalent. She says she remembers the old man, or the one she presumes is referred to in the letter, very well.

"About seven years ago, early in the fall," she says, "an old man and woman traveling in a wagon stopped near our house. I went out to see them and found the old man moaning by the side of his wagon. He was quite ill and I doctored him as best I could, gave him nourishing food and nursed him till he was able to resume his journey. He thanked me profusely on parting, and took my name, saying I should hear from him some day. I do not see why he would leave me all his property for so simple a favor as I did for him."

If The Baby Is Cutting Teeth.

Be sure and use that old and well tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Sheriff B. N. Hardesty of Prince George county nearly lost his life Saturday at Lanham Station, on the Baltimore and Potomac railroad, while attempting to remove from a train a party of Washington sportsmen he had placed under arrest on the Pope's Creek train at Bowie for having game in their possession in Prince George's county. An express train came along and the Sheriff had a close call. His prisoners got away.

Joseph E. Holler of Cumberland, a Baltimore and Ohio conductor, was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction for threatening to kill Miss Emma Wierman. Mr. Holler and Miss Wierman had been lovers, it was alleged, for about eight years. He contended that they had been engaged, but Miss Wierman denied that. Anyway, Holler became jealous, and finally wrote her a letter in which he threatened to kill her, and later showed her a pistol.

A Blessing, but not in Disguise.

Sometimes, so our preachers say, sorrow and adversity are blessings in disguise. Few people fully appreciate this, however. In sickness, whether blessing or not, we want the best medicine obtainable; and especially if baby is sick. Mrs. Emma Hockett, Newtonville, Ohio, writes: "For a long time we thought baby would not live, but on using your Victor Infants Relief we found it did more good than any other medicine we ever used. It proved quite a blessing." Your Merchant or Druggist sells it at 25 cents.

Six-Year Paint.

Painters say; "Paint once in three years." They are right. It is a good job that lasts three years in good condition. But use Devco lead and zinc, and your paint will last six years. It will last twenty if the conditions are favorable. Sold by L. W. Gunby.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

All Correspondence Is Sacredly Confidential. This is a very important consideration in a woman's correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. It is a great satisfaction to feel that one woman can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only, — a woman full of sympathy for her sick sisters, and with a knowledge of woman's ills greater than that possessed by any other person.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

The reason Mrs. Pinkham is so amply qualified to give advice in cases of female ills is for the reason that over one hundred thousand cases come before her each year, — some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day. Twenty years of constant success, — think of the knowledge thus gained. Surely, women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free.

As an illustration of the good coming from such advice we herewith publish two letters and portrait of Miss Hattie DeGroat, the reading of which should give every sick woman confidence in Mrs. Pinkham's ability to help them. This is only one of thousands of the same kind of letters which Mrs. Pinkham has on file.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you, for I have been suffering for a long time. I have such bearing-down pains, and such shooting pains go through me. I have headache, backache, and feel tired. Menstruation is very painful, sometimes have to stop work and lie down. My stomach bloats terribly, and I am troubled with whites. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, July 24th, 1900. Miss HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N. J."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I can hardly find words to thank you for your advice and wonderful Vegetable Compound. I was in a terrible state, every part of my body ached, was very nervous, had hysterical spells. I think I would have become insane had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your letter told me just what to do, and your medicine cured me, and I cannot express my thanks." March 8th, 1901. Miss HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N. J."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends. Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit. Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that the thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Alaskans Dying Off.

History shows that civilization brings diseases and vices which are fatal to native populations. This is being illustrated in Alaska. Capt. Newt of the whaling steamer Jeanette, which just arrived at San Francisco from the north, says:

"At least 95 per cent of the natives along the arctic coast have died from measles. They are dying off like rabbits and there seems to be nothing to check the death rate. When the natives began to wear civilized man's clothing and drink whisky, then began their decline. Diseases unheard of attacked them, and, not knowing how to care for themselves, the people died rapidly. Pneumonia, rheumatism, grip and every conceivable malady made their appearance among them and spread along the coast with appalling results."

Presence of Plague Suspected.

Captain Laurent, of the Russian steamship Baron Driessen in quarantine at the Delaware breakwater, Lewes, Del., is highly indignant at the quarantine authorities for holding him here at a tremendous daily expense simply because a sailor died when one day out from the Capes of what he considers ordinary tuberculosis. Dr. C. H. Lavinder, the resident physician, seems to differ from the diagnosis, however, as the symptoms were indicative of that dreaded disease, bubonic plague, or cholera, and in order to make a sure decision, some capillary glands from the victim were sent to Washington for an autopsy, and Dr. Lavinder is unable as yet to say when the steamer will be released, as the matter is entirely in the hands of the Washington authorities.

THE RECENT CAMPAIGN.

There have been many remarkable features about the campaign just closed. The President and members of the Cabinet have been most positive in their promises of reforms which the real leaders of the party oppose and oppose vigorously. Mr. Moody has, on several occasions, promised the immediate repeal of the duty on anthracite coal, while Hanna, Aldrich, Allison, et al, have protested that there must be no change in the sacred tariff schedules. Attorney General Knox has been promising the people that there would be additional legislation looking to the control of the trusts. The real leaders have said, half heartedly, that there would be a change in present statutes if it was demonstrated that such change was necessary, but Mr. Knox says unqualifiedly that such change is necessary and points out the instances where he has been unable to prosecute trusts, because of the inadequacy of the law. The President has caused it to be made known that he intends to recommend a bipartisan board to consider tariff revision while Senator Hanna has assured the people they must "stand pat" and not permit any schedule to be revised. The Minnesota republicans have promised sweeping tariff reform and the eastern republicans have urged the reelection of the party because such reelection would prevent tariff reform.

The democrats, however, have adhered to one issue and that is tariff revision. They believe that the infant industries have been nursed into trusts by the tariff and they are anxious to reduce that tariff in the interest of the consumers. Mr. Bryan and Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Hill, all the ablest men in the party in fact, have stated the issue to be the same and have emphasized the necessity of tariff reduction for the welfare of the country.

Harvard athletes have been training on the streets of Boston in their gymnasium suits, and now the police authorities of that city have issued an order that hereafter no one who is not fully clad will be allowed to thus present themselves before the sensitive public. A good ruling.

Miss Helen Gould of New York gave $10,000 of the $15,000 required to build a Y. M. C. A. building for the use of the soldiers at Fort Monroe, Va. She turned the first spadeful of earth for the foundation, and the soldiers presented her with a miniature spade as a memento.

The U. S. courts have just decided that Cuba was not territory of the United States during the period of the American occupation, but was a foreign country. It had no national existence, but its old laws and not the laws of the United States were in force there.

We can afford to differ on the currency, the tariff, and foreign policy; but we cannot afford to differ on the question of honesty, if we expect the republic permanently to endure.

Pitts Will Sustain.

The jury in the will case of Sallie L. Bowen vs Laura J. Ward and Emory Ward, known as the Pitts will case, which has been on trial at Snow Hill for several days, Tuesday afternoon rendered a verdict for the caveaters, the Wards, thus sustaining the will. Julia A. Pitts, the testatrix, devised her real estate to the Wards, ignoring her only child, Mrs. Bowen. Laura J. Ward, one of the devisees, was reared by Mrs. Pitts. The other devisee was Laura J. Ward's infant son. The daughter, Mrs. Bowen, objected to the probate of the will, alleging undue influence and mental incapacity.

Conference Dates Named.

The board of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church announced the dates and presiding bishops of the conferences to be held throughout the world on Monday night at their meeting in Wilmington Delaware. The Wilmington Conference will be held in Easton, Md., beginning March 18th.

Mr. Harvey Holloway has issued invitations to the marriage of his daughter, Miss Mollie Holloway to Mr. Charley L. Hammond, Wednesday evening, November nineteenth at seven o'clock, at home, nineteen hundred and two.

James Wise, of Berlin, Md., is a guest of his sister, Mrs. S. G. Mariner. Mr. Wise is said to be the oldest undertaker in the world. He is 87 years of age and has been an undertaker for over seventy years, the last fifty seven years in Berlin. His record beats them all.—Smyrna Call.

Mr. Alfred O. Jenkins, of Highlandtown, on Wednesday evening fulfilled the condition of an election bet by rolling a peanut with a toothpick for a distance of three blocks. In the presence of a large crowd Mr. Jenkins accomplished the feat, but declares that he would not undertake the job again for a thousand dollars.

A Friend Indeed.

We never forget a benefactor or a Doctor who brings us from the pit of the grave. Why should we? Gratitude is one of the noblest of the graces. Do you think Mrs. Whitely, Montpelier, Ind., will ever forget Victor Liver Syrup? She says "After spending One Hundred and Fifty Dollars with Doctors and patent medicines I was cured of a bad case of Liver Complaint and Female Trouble by using only 2 bottles of Victor Liver Syrup." So little, yet so valuable for health. Sold everywhere.

Colds

"I had a terrible cold and could hardly breathe. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and it gave me immediate relief."
 W. C. Layton, Sidell, Ill.

How will your cough be tonight? Worse, probably. For it's first a cold, then a cough, then bronchitis or pneumonia, and at last consumption. Coughs always tend downward. Stop this downward tendency by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Three sizes: 25c., enough for an ordinary cold; 50c., just right for bronchitis, hoarseness, hard colds, etc.; $1., most economical for chronic cases and to keep on hand.

This Is What Doubting Thomas Said

This is what Doubting Thomas said about Lacy Thoroughgood November 17th, 1886. Just 30 days after the destruction of Salisbury by fire, as soon as the ashes got a little cool, Lacy Thoroughgood bought $140 worth of Bull pine and commenced to build a store 16 by 24 feet on Dr. Dennis' lot, now occupied as a residence by Mr. V. Perry, on Church Street. Doubting Thomas said; "FIXIN' UP A STORE IS HE? WELL HE'S CRAZY; the very idea of his starting a clothing store; he's got no money." This is what he said in September the following year; "GREAT GUNS, you don't tell me! He's moved down on Main Street in the Hooper Building; that's a nice store. What's the use of that? Well he's nutty." This is what he said a year later; "GEE-HOSS I PHAT! fixing up his store handomer than anybody in town, must be going to put some new ideas into the clothing business. Well I'll go down and see what he's doing just out of curiosity." This is what he said; "I always said if somebody'd only go to work and run an up-to-date clothing store in Salisbury it'd pay, sort of run it clean and tidy like, and not so darned dirty. I said when you started you'd show Salisbury people a new sort of clothing store. Well you'll get my trade hereafter." Yes, Lacy Thoroughgood has been in the ready made clothing and hat business in the Hooper Building for sixteen years and has sold several hundred thousand dollars worth of the best clothing that ever came to Salisbury, and is still selling it, but Thoroughgood's immense business has out-grown his quarters and in January 1903 he'll move to the handsomest store room in Salisbury, which is being fitted up for him by Hon. W. H. Jackson and is situated next to R. Lee Waller & Co's shoe store. Well between now and January 1903 Lacy Thoroughgood proposes to run a removal sale that means something; every suit and every overcoat and every hat must go regardless of cost.

"More haste, less speed," and "hasten slowly," are proverbs born of experience that some things can't be hurried without loss and waste. That is special ly true of eating. The railway lunch habit, "five minutes for refreshments," is a habit most disastrous to the health. You may hurry your eating. You can't hurry your digestion, and the neglect to allow proper time for this important function is the beginning of sorrows to many a busy man. When the tongue is foul, the head aches, when there are sour or bitter risings, and fullness after eating, hot flashes, irritability, nervousness, irascibility, cold extremities, and other annoying symptoms, be sure the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition have "broken down." Nothing will re-establish them in active healthy operation so quickly as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, purifies the blood, and builds up the body. It is a strictly temperance medicine containing no alcohol or other intoxicant.

Given away Dr. Pierce's great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send $1 one cent stamps for the paper covered book, or $1 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure not known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Best Remedy For Croup. [From the Aetohison, Kan., Daily Globe.] This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hives syrup and tulu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

Stepped Against A Hot Stove. A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and the mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Keller, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by all dealers.

Next fall there will be about 20 officers to be voted for in Washington county. George B. Oswald, of Clerk of the Circuit Court, and Thomas E. Will Investigate. A remarkable case comes to light at Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there by name of G. W. Roberts had long suffered with incurable cancer. Every body believed his case hopeless until he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. The treatment cured him completely. Now everybody who knows of it is investigating Electric Bitters. It exerts a mighty power to expel biliousness, kidney and liver troubles and it's a wonderful tonic for rundown systems. Don't fail to try it. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all Druggists.

Three well-developed cases of small-pox have been discovered in the town of Gorman, about 18 miles from Oakland, Garrett county. The patients are foreigners, who recently went to the town. What To Do Until The Doctor Arrives. "One of my children was taken with cramp colic and suffered severely," says S. B. Elizes, of Monett, Mo. "I telephoned for a doctor, then gave a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and a few minutes later a second dose. Before the doctor came the child was relieved." For sale by all dealers.

David Huffer, a retired farmer living in Burkittsville district, recently took his first car ride. He drove to Middletown and from there came to Frederick on the trolley. Although Mr. Huffer is 79 years old and was born in the neighborhood in which he lives and has lived all his life, it was the first time he was ever on a railroad car of any character and he enjoyed the experience not a little.

By Bribing The Nerves. With opium a cough may be stopped temporarily, but the inflammation of which the cough is a symptom goes from bad to worse. Do not waste time and money on delusive "cough mixture." Remember that Allen's Lung Balm does not merely put the nerves to sleep. It gets right down to the root of the trouble and so cures even deep seated affections of the throat and lungs.

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves—November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease.—Catarrh.

Margaret, 14-year-old daughter of William McNeil, residing near Midland, Allegany county, was fatally burned yesterday while working about the kitchen stove. Mr. McNeil was badly burned in smothering the flames with his coat, and his son Charles had his hands and face burned in tearing the blazing clothing from his sister.

Cold Comfort From Doctors. Doctors say neuralgia is not dangerous. This is poor consolation to a sufferer who feels as if his face were pierced with hot needles and torn with a thousand pairs of piners. A word of advice to him; stay indoors and use Perry Davis' Painkiller. The blessed freedom from pain which follows this treatment cannot be told. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

Mr. J. Alfred Bramble of Tolchester farm, Kent county, was shot in the arm with a lead intended for partridge, the birds escaping unharmed. Mr. Frank Wheatly of Edgewater, Kent county, was shot in the leg by Elwood Burgess in the same manner. A young man near Kennedysville met with a similar accident.

Doesn't Respect Old Age. It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect pill. 25c, at any Drug Store.

Philip V. Reich died at the home of his mother, Mrs. William Reich, in Frederick yesterday, from the effects of an overdose of chloral which he had taken to quiet his nerves. He was 46 years of age and a telegraph operator.

A Runaway Bicycle. Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, scalds, Skin eruptions and Piles. 25c, at any Drug Store.

Walter Robinson of Newark, while gunning in Cecil county on Saturday afternoon, was accidentally shot in the back and legs by a companion. A physician extracted 88 grains of shot. Robinson's companion shot at a rabbit and did not see him in the thicket.

A Liberal Offer. The undersigned will give a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach, and Liver Tablets to any one wanting a reliable remedy for disorders of the stomach, biliousness or constipation. This is a new remedy and a good one. All Dealers.

The Jefferson Club of Githersburg, founded in 1898 by Rev. J. L. Lodge, D. D., and supporting a circulating library of 2100 volumes, has decided to disband because of lack of interest and decrease in the number of books issued to the members.

Carlessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Louis Cragg of Dorchester, Mass. is one of many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This great remedy is guaranteed for all Throat and Lung diseases by All Druggists. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling how many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured, in writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. PROVERBS

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, I. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

THE SALISBURY HIGH SCHOOL.

Two New Libraries Added. Officers Of Graduating Class Appointed. Editors For A Year Book.

Two new libraries containing sixty volumes of standard literature, well bound, were put in the High School Library this week. This makes over a hundred volumes that have been added by donation and purchase this year. The nucleus of a good library has now been laid and it is the hope and intention of the teachers to add to the collection year by year. It is a good work and the teachers deserve a great deal of credit for their efforts in this direction. A well-stocked and carefully selected library is of vast importance, in fact absolutely necessary in order that the pupils may obtain a good liberal education, and the movement should receive the support, financial and otherwise, of every citizen interested in education.

The graduating class of 1902 have elected the following officers: President, Frank Adkins; Vice President, Lillian Coughlin; Secretary, Cecil Goslee; Treasurer, Leola Meleon; Historian, Lillian Coughlin; Prophetess, Nellie Humphreys; Orator, M. A. Holloway. The graduating class expect to issue a year book next spring. It will be a history of the school, particularly of the class of 1902, and will contain an account and list of the alumni. The following editors and associate editors have been selected: Editor in chief, Alma Lankford; Associate Editor, Ora Disharoon; Literary Editor, Nellie Graham; Athletic Editor, Willis Taylor; Humorous Editor, Nellie Humphreys; Religious Editor, Albert Hearn; Business Manager, M. A. Holloway. The Alumni Editor is to be appointed by the alumni committee later.

HYMEN HAS MUCH TO DO.

Many November Weddings in the County and Near-By—Two's are Made One.

ADKINS-SHEPPARD.

The marriage of Miss Edna May Sheppard and Mr. Frederick Paul Adkins, which was solemnized at noon Wednesday of this week, was one of the prettiest ceremonies of the season.

The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Sheppard on Park Avenue, the rooms on the lower floor being beautifully decorated for the occasion, with roses and chrysanthemums in pink and white. Palms and potted plants were also used and the house was lighted with lamps and candelabra with pink shades.

Rev. S. J. Smith, D. D. pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, of this city, officiated. The ushers, Messrs. Walter S. Sheppard and William E. Sheppard, brothers of the bride, Mr. E. Dale Adkins, a brother of the groom, and Mr. Homer White, the groom's cousin, led the bridal procession to the parlor. They were followed by Miss Edna Adkins, sister of the groom and Miss Bertha Sheppard, the bride's sister, as bridesmaids, who paused at the entrance and formed an arch with flowers, under which the rest of the party passed. The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given away, and was received by the groom who had entered with his best man, Mr. Edgar Laws, in front of a lovely bower of palms, where the minister pronounced the rites which united the two as husband and wife. Miss Maria Ellegood was the maid of honor, Mrs. George Johnson, of Powellville, a cousin of the groom, played the wedding march from Lohengrin. She also rendered several selections previous to the ceremony.

The bride wore a trained gown of white silk mousseline over taffeta, with a bertha of Duchess lace, and long bridal veil. She carried Bride roses, and wore a handsome four leaf clover pin, set with pearls and diamonds, a gift of the groom. Miss Ellegood wore a dress of white silk mul over taffeta, trimmed with Duchess lace, and carried Bridesmaid roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in white Paris muslin, trimmed with lace medallions and pink liberty silk sashes. They too had bouquets of Bridesmaid roses.

The groom and best man were attired in frock coats, striped trousers, gray gloves, and white ascot ties, and wore boutonnieres of white rose buds. The ushers wore cutaway coats and striped trousers. The gentlemen attendants wore gold stick pins, presented by the groom.

After the ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. No invitations were sent out in town, but a number of personal friends and relatives were invited to witness the ceremony. At St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church in Pocomoke City Wednesday Mr. Frances U. Barnes was married by Rev. F. B. Randall to Miss Mary Azne McMaster, daughter of Mr. E. W. McMaster, School Examiner of Worcester county. The ushers were Mr. Samuel K. Dennis, private secretary to Gov. John Walter Smith; Dr. Fred Adams, of Kingston; Mr. Frank Porter, of Somerset county and Mr. J. Henry Young, of Pocomoke City. Miss Emma Barnes, of King's Creek, was maid of honor, and Mr. James U. Barnes was the groomsmen. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. E. W. McMaster. The marches were rendered by Miss Lollie Miles. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McMaster, Miss Ella McMaster and Robert F. Duer, of Princess Anne; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Corrdry and Mrs. D. Frank Fooks, of Snow Hill; Mrs. W. U. Polk, of Salisbury; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Barnes and Mr. Benjamin Barnes, of King's Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Barnes, of Atkinson district; Mrs. John Keas and Miss Maude Whaley, of Berlin; Mrs. James P. Dale, of W. Halesville, and Hon. Lloyd Wilkinson, of Baltimore.

Baker--Tull.

A beautiful home wedding took place Thursday at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert H. Jones, of Fairmount, twelve miles south of Princess Anne. The contracting parties were Mr. J. Henry Baker, of Baltimore, son of Senator James H. Baker, of Kent county, and Miss Louise Willie Tull, daughter of the late Dr. J. Henry Tull, of Somerset county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ralph T. Coursey, pastor of Fairmount Methodist Episcopal Church, of which the bride is a member. The bride wore a light brown suit of broadcloth, with beaver picture hat of the same shade, and carried bride roses.

Dennis--Hears Elopement.

All attempts to overcome the objections of the bride's parents having failed, Miss Eleemosynary Hearn and Mr. Murray Dennis decided to take things in their own hand. On Sunday they secured a team and decided to drive over to Powellville, and get the Rev. Mr. Kelso to tie the knot. On their arrival at his home they found he was conducting a service at Wango. The determined couple were not to be deterred at such a trivial disappointment, so they continued their drive and found the minister at the home of Mr. Berry Wimbrow, near Wango, and the eloping pair were soon made man and wife.

Diggs--Graham.

Mrs. Mary A. Graham, daughter of the late Wesley Thornton, and Mr. Samuel J. Diggs of the Maryland Lime & Cement Co. of Baltimore, were married at the residence of Mr. G. E. Mitchell at noon Wednesday by Rev. W. S. McDowell, D. D., pastor of Broadway M. E. Church. The party left on the north-bound express. After their return from the bridal tour they will reside in Baltimore.

Wallace--Baker.

Miss Evelyn Baker and Mr. Wynne Wallace of Claiborne were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Baker at noon Wednesday, by Rev. Chas. Hill. A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony. The happy couple took the two o'clock express for Norfolk and will go from there to Washington and Baltimore on their bridal tour. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will make their home in Claiborne.

HORTICULTURISTS TO MEET

In Baltimore Next Month. Programs Being Sent Out. Mr. W. F. Allen To Discuss Cantaloupe Culture And Marketing.

The program for the fifth annual meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society is now being distributed by the secretary, Prof. A. L. Quaintance, of College Park. The session will be held in Dushane Post Hall, Baltimore, Thursday and Friday, December 18 and 19. The society, although quite young, has already been of much value in developing and improving the horticultural conditions of the State. Its membership during the past year has increased to nearly 2,500, and includes the principal fruit and vegetable growers of Maryland, as well as many in Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia. Special efforts are being put forth to make the forthcoming session the most successful in the history of the society. For the last two months owners of orchards in various parts of the State have been sending fruit to be put in cold storage here until it is placed on exhibition during the gathering of the society.

An interesting collection of beneficial and injurious insects and of the principal plant diseases of the State is being prepared by the officers of the State Horticultural Department and will be displayed so that fruit growers may see at close range their most important friends and foes. Exhibits of fungicides, insecticides and spraying apparatus will also be made, thus bringing together the pests themselves and the most approved means and methods of their suppression. This feature will no doubt prove of great value in view of the increasing necessity for the control of insects and fungous growths in successful fruit culture.

LESSON IN APPLE GROWING.

Owing to the great possibilities for successful apple cultivation in Maryland a considerable part of one session will be devoted to a discussion of the various problems connected with the growing and handling of this crop. The officers of the society have prevailed upon Mr. L. A. Goodman, of Kansas City, Mo., to attend and discuss "Profitable Apple Orchard." Mr. Goodman is secretary of the Missouri State Horticultural Society and is fully conversant with his subject, being owner and manager of a 2,000 acre apple orchard in the famous Ozark region.

The growing and handling of cantaloupes will be discussed by Mr. W. F. Allen and E. A. Fry, from the Eastern Shore and Blue Ridge sections of the State, respectively. Both of these gentlemen have found cantaloupe growing quite profitable and will be able to give much valuable information.

Prof. G. Herald Powell, of the Division of Pomology, United States Department of Agriculture, will tell of the Government's experiments in the cold storage of Kieffer pears and means of enlarging the Kieffer pear market. The expansion acreage devoted to this fruit, particularly on the Eastern Shore, has brought prices in the home market so low that this discussion will be of great interest as promising a means of securing greater revenue from the crop.

PEACH GROWING IN MARYLAND.

A most important feature of the meeting will be the discussion relative to peach growing in Western Maryland and on the Eastern Shore. The culture of the peach, as shown by the last census, is on the decline here, there being a decrease of 34.3 per cent in the number of trees in 1900 as compared with 1890. Many progressive growers are of the opinion that this fruit must be grown on a more intensive system than the so-called "natural method" largely followed in the past. This subject will be fully discussed by the leading producers of the State.

The reports of the State Entomologist and State Pathologist containing the results of their inspections and experiments will offer suggestions as to the most approved methods of preventing the usually heavy losses from insect pests and fungous diseases.

THE PROGRAM.

The program of the meeting is as follows:

Thursday Afternoon, December 18--Opening prayer, Rev. J. H. Eccleston, Baltimore; secretary's announcement, report of secretary-treasurer, reports of standing committee, reports of special committees, president's annual address, Capt. Robert S. Emory, Chestertown, Md., report of State Entomologist, report of State Pathologist, "Trucking in the Past and Prospects for Same in the Future," Richard Vincent, Jr., White-mars, Md.; chestnut culture, general discussion.

Thursday Evening, 8 o'clock--"Horticultural Education," R. W. Silvester, president of the Maryland Agricultural

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W. Chester, Pa.

Thanksgiving Thoughts.

In a few days, by reason of presidential and gubernatorial proclamation, the people of the United States will present the spectacle of a nation returning thanks to God for His bounty and grace. Let the bells that swing in the church steeples ring out that day their loudest and most vibrant notes. May they sound so clearly, indeed, as to penetrate every home and remind every one of our great population of this national Sabbath. Instead of a few flowers in grateful bloom among a wilderness of empty seats within the sanctuaries, may there be throngs of blooming, and the aroma of thankfulness rising from millions of fragrant hearts. Let the nation be that day one vast garden from which our God shall gather bouquets of gratitude. Let there be not only here and there a note of praise, but a full chorus, the melody of the hallelujah starting its wave from our eastern coast, rushing on from north to south over mountains and plains, and breaking its final doxology beneath the setting sun along the shores of the Pacific. Let all who have breath praise the Lord for His goodness and mercy.

There is much cause for the giving of thanks. Full our national flour bin. Full our corn cribs. Full our barns. We have an abundance of material wealth. We have had but to reach forth our hands and pluck the golden fruit of prosperity. God has opened to us His treasure house, and we are blessed above all the nations of mankind. This, too, in spite of our national sins. Though we have permitted Mormonism to practice its lustful abominations and rear its sty of filth within our borders, though we have licensed intemperance to indulge in its orgies of drunkenness wherever there is a city or a town or a hamlet, though we have allowed the greed of gold to form gigantic monopolies for the enrichment of the rich and the impoverishment of the poor, "cornering" the very necessities of life and turning them into luxuries, yet have we been the recipients of God's manifold favors. It may be that these gifts are only the hush that betokens a coming storm of judgement. The lightnings of wrath are now asleep. Woe to us if they awake!

Nevertheless let thanks be given. The recognition of Providence in our national life is highly appropriate. Widespread disaster will not overtake a grateful people. It is only when a nation lifts itself in pride and utterly forgets God that judgment falls. The glory of our mines of gold and silver, of our vast harvest fields, and of our heavily laden orchards belongs to Him in whose hands our breath is. Therefore let us reverently bow in his loving presence on the day appointed and give voice to thanksgiving. Whoever float the folds of the stars and stripes may there be an outpouring of praise that shall make this one day in the calendar of the nation a memorable day.

But the nation is made up of individuals; and there may be some persons who will think that they have not much reason for being thankful. The past twelve months have had many a cloudy sky, and brought many a rain of tears. There have been business reverses and the wreck of financial ships on the reefs of failure. There has been the breaking of plans by the rude fingers of disappointment. There have been killing frosts that blighted the flowers of hope. Some have a story to tell of struggle and pain and weary walking over the path of life. Some can speak of suffering and privation. Some can relate a tale of hearts broken by bereavement, and a lonely fireside where the sound of loved voices is no longer heard as in the days of yore, that music forever hushed on earth, a green, flower-dotted hillock and a white tombstone in the graveyard rising before the vision from the ashes that are scattered on the hearth. Oh, the pathos of human life! Oh, the bitter tears that drop their brine along human cheek! Oh, the shadows that sift their gloom over human minds! The paragraphs in the book of human life that write the happiness of man have their sunny words punctuated with many a comma of grief, many a semi-colon of sighs, many a period of sob. It has ever been so since the day of man's expulsion from Paradise, and so will it continue to be while this present world endures. This world of course rolls among the stars as a lost Eden, and amid the harmony of the spheres it sings the dirge of dead joys. Alas! alas!

Yet there is still cause for thankfulness. When the heavens darken with storm the gardens do not cease to bloom neither do they withhold the fragrance that is natural to them. In the gathering of the clouds they recognize the coming of messengers of blessing. The showers will refresh them, and wash away the dust from soiled leaves and petals. Under the gifts of the dark vapors they will shine with an increased brightness and breathe a richer perfume.

So should we continue our thanksgiving even in the gloom of sorrow. Whatever comes is of God's ordering. He knows when to withdraw the light of joy. When the rush of the trouble is over we should stand erect again, enabled by the pang of affliction, and blessing the hand that disturbed us for awhile, and kissing it with the aroma of praise.

On the approaching Thanksgiving, therefore, let every heart be grateful. Should you have to go to church on that day missing the arm that was once lovingly linked with yours, or the arm upon which you gladly leaned in the days gone by, or should you have to put on threadbare garments from a scanty wardrobe, or should you sit down to a meal that can boast of no fullness, do not grumble. God hears plenty of that kind of discord. Try rather to count your mercies. You will then find yourself lost in the mazes of a problem in arithmetic that you cannot solve. But without attempting to get the exact result of the sum of God's goodness, just write beneath the columns this answer; "My cup runneth over." God will accept that, and mark you a perfect scholar in the lesson of the day. At the falling of the night, your task finished, you will go to your couch with the reward that ever comes to him that has faithfully performed what has been assigned to him. Then, as you look forth from the window, before closing your eyes in sleep, and see the silvery glow of the heavens, your mind will sing to you the lullaby, "The mercies of God are like the stars for multitude."

LILY WHITE MOVEMENT.

That the utmost vacillation and indecision has been shown by the President in handling the "lily white" movement in the south is the opinion of all who have closely observed his actions in that connection. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt has abandoned the enterprise as hopeless and is now prepared to return to the old custom of maintaining a southern organization, with its concomitants of colored republican officeholders, etc. He has removed two federal officeholders in Alabama for their activity in eliminating the negro from the party councils and now it is reported that he has removed District Attorney Warren S. Reese for the same cause. For a considerable time, the President, encouraged Senator Jeter C. Pritchard to believe that he would have the assistance of the federal administration in his project. Senator Pritchard explained most forcibly to the President that the only hope of building up a successful republican party in the south must be based on the elimination of the negro and showed him that so long as republicanism stood for negro officeholders, the better element of the south would "vote democratic" regardless of their convictions on national issues. Now, Mr. Roosevelt has abandoned the Senator and has returned to the old custom.

That he has done so is believed to auger that he expects to favor the restriction of southern representation in Congress and that he believes he must take the step in order to solidify the southern delegations to the next national convention. Soon after the convention of Congress, it is said, Representatives Dick, Crumpacker and Dayton will be called in conference with the President and several members of the Cabinet to consider the subject of restricting southern representation and it is for that reason that Mr. Roosevelt, it is thought, has determined to revert to the old negro officeholder policy of his predecessors.

Henry Watters, the veteran editor, says Hon. Arthur P. Gorman is the Moses of Democracy. Says he: "The democratic party has a clear field before it for 1904. In Mr. Gorman, at least, it has one national leader of surpassing wisdom and experience, a democrat from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet. He will presently resume his place in the councils of the nation. His word should pass for much with every thinking democrat. He is not only a wise man, he is an upright courageous man, worth a dozen Hills or a thousand Clevelands. For the time being at least, let us rally around Gorman, for, whether he leads us to victory or defeat, he will not lead us astray."

The women who want to vote are fast learning the tricks of the trade. One was arrested and jailed in Colorado Tuesday for repeating. She had cast two votes and was about to deposit the third when arrested. She gave as an excuse that she wanted to make more money. She is reported to have been of the Republican persuasion. If so she ought to go to Philadelphia and learn of the masculines of that city where they vote not only three times but thirty and three and are not jailed for it either. So it is said.

MILLIONAIRE CONVICTED.

With Verdict Of Guilty, Jury Fixes Three Years' Penalty For Bribe Attempt.

Col. Edward Butler, millionaire and politician of St. Louis who was on trial charged with attempting to bribe Dr. Chapman, of the St. Louis Board of Health, in order to influence his vote on the indorsement of a garbage contract with the city, was found guilty Thursday night by the jury, which fixed the punishment at three years in the penitentiary.
 T. H. Hickman, foreman of the jury, said the verdict was reached on the first ballot. Colonel Butler, Mrs. Butler and their two sons, Congressman James J. and Edward, Jr., and their wives were in the courtroom when the verdict was received. All eyes were turned toward Butler.
 An appeal to the State Supreme Court was made. Judge Hookaday fixed Butler's bond at $10,000, which was signed by a number of prominent men of Columbia.

Rural Free Delivery Recommendations.

In the annual report of the First Assistant Postmaster General the following recommendations are made:
 It is recommended that Congress make provision for a leave of absence, with full pay, for rural carriers, not to exceed 15 days in a fiscal year.
 Extension to rural carriers of power to receive and register letters has proved so acceptable a public benefit, it is said, that it is the purpose to further increase their usefulness by adding, under proper regulations, an extension of the money order system to rural routes. Rural carriers are now empowered to receipt for money orders. It is intended, after January 1st next, to empower them also to pay money orders at the residences of known patrons of the routes.
 The maximum fee for a money order ($100) is 30 cents. It is recommended that the maximum be reduced to 25 cents with proportionate reductions wherever the amount exceeds $50.

"The Folks Up Willow Creek."

Stories that recall the old home among the hills, the silvery brook, the sloping woodland, the wide-stretching meadows, the fragrant hay, and the curious doings of the old folks and the farm hands, will never lose their interest. Such a story is told in the play, "The Folks Up Willow Creek," presented by the Frank Davidson company. A sweet clean delightful touch of rural life. Absolutely perfect in its scenery and presentation. It is a sermon, a song, a poem and a picture combined, not only enchanting while you listen, but lingering with you as a pleasant memory for many years, many days. Opera House one night only. Thursday, November 27th. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents. Seats will be on sale at box office.

County Commissioners.

At Tuesday's session the County Commissioners authorized Dr. Todd to notify all delinquent tax collectors that settlement must be made by January 1st and that unless settlement was made on or before that day executions would be ordered and the property of the collectors and their bondsmen would be held for payment. Mr. Levin W. Dorman was authorized to purchase 15,000 bushels of shell, at a price not to exceed three cents per bushel, for the use of the public road. This order with ones previously given will make 25,000 bushels purchased for the roads. The difference between three cents and four and a half cents, the present price, is to be paid by the property owners in front of whose property the shells are to be placed.

CLOSE BRUSH WITH COON.

Killed Dog, Bore Hunter To Ground And Knawed Face And Throat.

David Jones, a farmer residing in Fulton county, Pa., had a fight with a raccoon and as a result is confined to his bed and was only saved from being killed outright by the timely arrival of his son.
 Jones and his son were hunting and their dog treed a coon. When the elder Jones had chopped down a tree in which the coon had taken refuge, his dog charged upon the animal as it scampered away. Suddenly the coon turned and attacked the dog. Then Jones rushed up to help his pet. Turning aside from the now helpless dog the coon leaped at the huntsman's throat with such force that he bore him to the ground, where he gnawed his face until the son beat him off. The dog died a few minutes later.

They Met on the Street Yesterday

They hadn't seen each other in a long, long time. Each looked at the other sort of inquiringly and the other smiled back, as they shook hands. Hello, Tom! Where you been all this fall? I aint teen you since way long last summer. Me? Oh, I been laid up with rheumatism agin. Darnfol doctor kept me eatin' Atlas Oats an Grape Nuts and who knows what all, and wouldn't let me drink anything but some Patent Water, an by gosh he had me near dead, when I read one of them fool ads of that man Thoroughgood about his natural wool underwear, an by golly the more I thought about what Thoroughgood said about his health underwear the more determined I was to try it, and I sneaked down and got two shirts and two pair of drawers of the finest all-wool underwear I ever saw, and it did me good, an I'm now on my way to Lacy Thoroughgood's store to buy a new suit of clothes and a new overcoat. Where you going? Me? Oh, nowhere particular. Well come, lets go to Thoroughgood's together. Say, do you know that Lacy Thoroughgood sells the highest grade of clothing and hats and men's furnishings sold in Salisbury. Why you can't go in a city anywhere and find a finer line of goods, and his prices are so reasonable, and Thoroughgood "phits" the "phat" and the lean, one equally as well as the other, everybody gets fitted in clothes at Lacy Thoroughgood's store. There's no use talking when you come right down to solid facts there's but one store in Salisbury where you can get the right kind of clothing at the right price, no end of style, almost none to variety. Well that man Thoroughgood must be a bird. Well he is surely a clothing man. His goods suit me.

IT MUST COME.

As inevitable as the changing seasons of the year is the change which comes to every woman. And just as one anticipates the changes of other seasons it is wise to anticipate this change of season and prepare for it.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a medicine for every season of woman's life, will entirely meet the needs of women at this period of change.

It cures the physical ills and relieves the mental anxiety and depression usually associated with this critical period. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev. FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D. Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 16.—The duty of Christian laymen to present the gospel invitation to people who have not yet accepted it is enjoined in this sermon by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage on the text Luke xiv, 23, "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in."

Christ was comparing the kingdom of heaven to a great banquet which God had prepared for his invited guests, who would not come. The Earl of Leicester made great preparations to receive Elizabeth, the "Virgin Queen of England," when she visited the castle halls of old Kenilworth.

But, as the divinely invited guests would not come, then God practically said: "I will have my banquet hall filled notwithstanding. If the guests for whom the banquet was prepared will not come to me, then I will send out for those who will appreciate it."

When some one asked Mr. Moody: "How shall we reach the masses for Christ? How shall we give the gospel invitation to those sinners who are out in the highways and the hedges?" he bluntly answered his questioners, "Go after them."

But, though the eternal salvation of our unrepentant loved ones ought to be a perpetual cause of anxiety for us day in and day out, yet there are thousands and hundreds of thousands of church members who never think it obligatory for them to present the love of a living Christ to those who ought to be as dear to them as a Jonathan was to a David, a Damon to a Pythias or the memory of a murdered king of Denmark was to an avenging son.

be our helper and guide along the troubled journey of life.

These church members are not ready to do as a Sunday school teacher did some years ago. She was the daughter of one of the wealthiest financiers in the world. Her teacher, who was a very intimate friend of my mother, told of the incident. Being converted, the young girl not only gave her heart to Christ, but she at once wanted those who were dearest to her to do the same.

Personal Evangelistic Work. When John McLean, the famous associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, was converted many years ago, it was on a Sunday morning at church.

The gospel invitation should be presented by the church members to their friends and to the strangers wherever they may be found, because the vast majority of sinners never enter the church at all.

But, though the eternal salvation of our unrepentant loved ones ought to be a perpetual cause of anxiety for us day in and day out, yet there are thousands and hundreds of thousands of church members who never think it obligatory for them to present the love of a living Christ to those who ought to be as dear to them as a Jonathan was to a David, a Damon to a Pythias or the memory of a murdered king of Denmark was to an avenging son.

After awhile they separated. Mr. Trumbull became an engineer in Hartford; his Christian friend went to Yale, but during his last year at college he sent a letter to his old chum pleading with him to become a Christian.

The Fault of the Pews. So, today, I lay the blame for the lack of spiritual results in our churches far more upon the pews than I do upon the pulpits. God knows, I do not believe that our ministers are perfect men, but most of them are earnest men, intense men.

One of the most delightful methods of teaching botany to children is afforded by "school gardens." There are more than eighty such gardens in Europe, extending from Switzerland, whose Alpine flora is very beautiful, to Sweden, which is also a land of beautiful plants and flowers.

He immediately said to himself, "If the personal work of a layman can do so much in the salvation of an immortal soul, I will never make the mistake my friend made with me by postponing for so long a personal invitation to another." So, the same night on which he was converted, Mr. Trumbull went to one of his fellow workmen and told him he had been converted.

Got His Hebrew Mixed. Mr. John S. Sargent, the artist, sometimes tells of a ludicrous mistake he once made which brought home to him the need of verifying details. At the request of the trustees of the Boston Library he painted some scenes on one of the frescoes and sought to represent in Hebrew characters "I am thy God."

Carleesness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Throat and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary.

If you have a bad cold you need a good reliable medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to loosen and relieve it, and to allay the irritation and inflammation of the throat and lungs. The soothing and healing properties of this remedy and the quick cures which it effects make it a favorite everywhere.

While Clinton Yeiser of Union Mills was riding a wheel on a lonely road early yesterday morning, a man carrying a stout club emerged from the bushes and ordered Mr. Yeiser to throw up his hands. Instead of complying the latter quickly drew his revolver and said: "Drop that club and walk in front of me." The would be robber obeyed. Mr. Yeiser presently let him go.

Col. W. S. Powell, at a meeting at the Vanville Farmer's Club near Muirkirk, Prince George's county, spoke of the advisability of having a State fair under the auspices of the farmers' clubs, and stated that some means should be devised for bringing to the attention of prospective settlers in Maryland the many advantages possessed by the lower counties. He said that efforts should be made to have the State make an appropriation for the breeding of horses. It was stated the flock of Angora goats near Cedarville is not thriving, owing to disease.

The English "Society for the Prevention of Consumption" presided over by the Prince of Wales, was recently addressed by Sir William Broadbent, who stated that it was definitely known that every case of consumption began with a germ communicated from some other case. There is no such thing as inherited consumption. There may be local weakness which tends to consumption, but the germ has absolutely to be planted in that weak spot before consumption can ensue. This ought to comfort thousands of people who have "weak chests" or "weak lungs." They are not foreordained victims of this dread disease. All that is needed to bid absolute defiance to this deadly scourge, is to be able to strengthen the weak lungs, and build up a strong body. The answer to this need is found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It so purifies the blood and increases the blood supply, that disease is thrown off, and the weak organs are nourished into perfect health, which defies germs of every kind. People, given up by doctors, emaciated, bleeding at the lungs, with obstinate, lingering coughs, are being cured every day by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery." It is a strictly temperance medicine containing no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure not known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work.

The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO, Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Charles W. West of Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, was convicted at Annapolis Monday of having a nickel-in-the-slot machine in his saloon and running it for gambling purposes. The case was brought on the evidence of Louis Wien and John Sperzel, agents of the Anti-Saloon League of Baltimore City.

The Best Remedy For Croup. This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hives syrup and tincture, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

Sarah F. Hall, the colored woman who shot and killed John A. Holland, her nephew, early Sunday morning near Perryman, is now lodged in Belair jail. She persists in saying the shooting was accidental and resulted from the attempt of Holland to wrest the gun from her hands.

Stepped Against A Hot Stove. A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, stepped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and the mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering Dr. King's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Keller, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by all dealers.

Bernard Slenger, a young man of Cumberland, was coon hunting near Hancock and with his companions, had lain down for the night beside a fire and had his gun attacked with others. One of the dogs ran against the guns, knocking one down and discharging it, sending a full load of buckshot into Slenger's leg.

Will Investigate. A remarkable case comes to light at Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there by name of G. W. Roberts had long suffered with incurable cancer. Every body believed his case hopeless until he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. The treatment cured him completely. Now everybody who knows of it is investigating Electric Bitters. It exerts a mighty power to expel biliousness, Kidney and Liver troubles and it's a wonderful tonic for rundown systems. Don't fail to try it. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by all Druggists.

Three well-developed cases of smallpox have been discovered in the town of Gorman, Garrett county. The patients were foreigners, and three persons who had come in contact with them were hastened in their attempt to enter Oakland and escorted back by the sheriff.

What To Do Until The Doctor Arrives. "One of my children was taken with cramp colic and suffered severely," says S. E. Elzee, of Monett, Mo. "I telephoned for a doctor, then gave a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and a few minutes later a second dose. Before the doctor came the child was relieved." For sale by all dealers.

The cornerstone to be erected on the Mason and Dixon line for the purpose of marking the dividing line between Frederick and Washington counties will have the names of the commissioners of the two counties, their clerks and the county surveyors inscribed thereon.

A Victory To Be Proud Of. is the final and absolute cure of a sore throat, in which the rawness and tenderness have been spreading dangerously near those guardians of life, the lungs. The luxury of a sound throat and robust lungs is most keenly enjoyed by people who, having suffered all the consequences of "a little cold, you know," have been rescued from misery and danger by Allen's Lung Balsam.

The Baltimore County Commissioners will present to Officer James E. Mann a gold watch as an appreciation of his bravery in effecting the arrest of John Daly and Charles Mountney for highway robbery.

GOLDEN GATE TOURS.

Under The Personally-Conducted System Of The Pennsylvania Railroad.

California and the Pacific Coast resorts have become so popular in recent years with the better class of winter rest and pleasure seekers that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has decided to run two Golden Gate tours this winter, one to include the famous Mardi Gras spectacle at New Orleans. On the going trip both tours will travel by the Golden Gate Special, one of the finest trains that crosses the continent.

One tour will return by this train, while passengers by the other and later tour will use regular trains returning. In California, passengers will be entirely at their own pleasure in the matter of itinerary. Should a sufficiently large number of passengers desire to join in taking an itinerary suggested by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the services of a Tourist Agent and Chaperon will be at their disposal.

The first tour will leave New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and other points on Thursday, January 29, and will travel via Chicago, Kansas City, and El Paso to Los Angeles and San Diego, arriving at the latter point February 2. An entire month may be devoted to visiting California resorts, the Golden Gate Special leaving San Francisco on the return trip Tuesday, March 3, and returning via Salt Lake City, Glenwood Springs, Colorado Springs, and Denver. The rate for this tour will be $300, covering all expenses of railroad transportation, including side trips in California, as well as berth and meals on the Golden Gate Special going and returning. No hotel expenses in California are included. Tickets are good for return trip for nine months, excepting that passengers who do not return on the Special must provide their own Pullman accommodations and meals eastward.

Tour No. 3 will leave Thursday, February 19, by the Golden Gate Special, Cincinnati, Montgomery, and Mobile will be visited en route to New Orleans, where the party will stay during the Mardi Gras festivities. The train will be side tracked for occupancy during the three days spent in New Orleans. Stops will also be made at Beaumont, Texas, Houston, San Antonio, and El Paso. The train will arrive at San Diego, February 28. So far as special train arrangements are concerned, this tour will be completed at San Diego. Passengers may depart of their time in California as they see fit. Should a sufficient number desire to take a suggested trip through California, the services of a Tourist Agent and Chaperon will be placed at their disposal.

The rate for this tour will be $275, covering all railroad transportation for the entire trip, including side trips in California, seat at the Mardi Gras Festival, and Pullman berth and all meals on the Golden Gate special from New York until arrival at San Diego.

Private compartments, i. e., drawing rooms or state rooms, may be obtained by the payment of additional charges on both tours. A detailed itinerary is in course of preparation, giving all information concerning these tours. Application should be made to George W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, Pa.

Doesn't Respect Old Age. It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect pill. 25c, at any Drug Store.

A legacy of $500 to the First Presbyterian Church of Annapolis is the will of Ensign Joseph C. Breckinridge, who was washed overboard and drowned from the torpedo boat Cushing in 1898, has been used to buy new pulpit furniture and a brass tablet.

A Runaway Bicycle. Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer unyielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c, at any Drug Store.

The Cecil County Commissioners advertised for proposals for a new iron bridge at North East, to be 120 feet in length, with an 18 foot driveway, with sidewalks on either side of 8 feet.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It. How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmey's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. John Daly and Charles Mountney for highway robbery.

QUANTICO.

Preaching service in town Sunday as follows: In the morning at 10:30 in the M. E. Church, by Rev. O. L. Martin, in the evening at seven in the M. P. Church by Rev. F. J. Phillips and in the P. E. Church by F. B. Adkins.

The P. E. Church was the scene of a very pretty marriage on Wednesday at high noon, the contracting parties being Mr. Herbert N. Messick, a prominent business man of Delmar, and Miss Susie Marie Gale, daughter of Register of Wills, Levin J. Gale of this town.

The bride entered the church by the main aisle leaning upon the arm of her father, who gave her away, being preceded by the maid of honor, Miss Carolyn Huffington of Allen, a cousin of the bride. The groom attended by his best man, Mr. Jas. Wilson of Delmar, approached from the vestry room and met the bride in front of the altar where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Franklin B. Adkins, rector of this parish, who used the full English ceremony. Miss Lala Jones, St. Philip's accomplished organist, rendered the wedding march. Messrs. Clifford Taylor and Earle Dashiell were ushers.

The bride was becomingly attired in white silk muller over white taffeta silk elaborately trimmed with ruffles and lace and carried Bride roses. The maid of honor wore pink silk gingham over white taffeta and carried white chrysanthemums. The groom, with best man wore Prince Albert coats with striped trousers. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, the menu consisting of oysters, salads, biscuits, coffee, chocolate, cakes and ices. The bride was the recipient of many valuable presents. After receiving the congratulations of their guests Mr. and Mrs. Messick accompanied by many friends drove to Salisbury from which place they took the afternoon express for an extended tour on the north. Upon their return they will board for a short time with Mr. and Mrs. Levin J. Gale, Mrs. Messick's parents. Both parties are well and favorably known in Quantico. Miss Gale has long been a leader of society and although one of our most attractive and amiable young women, extremely popular with everybody. Mr. Messick was reared in this vicinity, and is considered to be a progressive and thoroughly alive business man—having business interests in this place as well as in Delmar.

Miss Mae Humphreys of Salisbury is visiting Miss Nellie Brady of this town. The Misses Blanche and Marie Tainter—one a school mistress at Delmar the other at Tyaskin—spent Saturday and Sunday with their parents in town. Mr. George Graham, of Marion, Somerset county, was in town for a few days this week.

COLUMBIA.

The recent warm weather has been very advantageous for wheat and clover to make a good growth before winter sets in. We think both crops will get further advanced than last year's crop did in this section.

Since our gunning season opened, this sport seems to be the hobby of many of our residents, and who we believe enjoy relating their gunning adventures and experiences in bringing bunny to a standstill, and in most cases only trying to halt the quail.

Mr. C. M. Kenny is preparing to build a mammoth barn which will add greatly to the capacity of his farm buildings. Our farmers are raising larger crops of grain and hay and consequently more barn room is quite a necessity as well as a desirable thing to have for the storage of all farm crops.

We presume the turkey is roasting higher than usual.

Corn husking is the principal occupation of many farmers at present.

Again do we welcome the rabbit and quail as forming a part of our diet, and we only regret that we do not have them a larger part of the year.

At this season when the porker is getting fat we chance to see a neighbor surveying them closely and we imagine as we peep at him, he is saying "if you don't grow too fast I am going to beat you," and then a race is started and all available efforts are made by both parties to come out ahead, which is all settled at killing time. One man in the community who is often peeping in another pen, has a comfortable seat at his which is often occupied by him, we suppose to watch them grow. Hope he won't get left.

POWELLVILLE

BODY OF CANTWELL FOUND.

Had Been in River About Ten Days'. Jury of Inquest Says "Accidental Drowning."

The body of Charles Cantwell was found Thursday morning opposite Tilghman's fertilizer factory. Mr. Cantwell was last seen Monday a week ago just above the water works. He seemed to have been drinking at that time and several friends tried to get him away but failed. That afternoon about six o'clock James Parker and S. J. Majors heard someone calling as though in distress but not being able to locate the call did not attempt to find the reason for it. As he did not return home and his friends not being able to ascertain his whereabouts they began to suspect that he had accidentally fallen into the river. For several days they dragged the river up and down without success until Thursday morning the body was found. A coroner's jury called by Squire Trader was composed of the following citizens:

Peter S. Shockley, foreman, Jonathan H. Waller, Edward Humphreys, Ishma Killiam, William J. Johnson, W. Bert Hitchens, John C. Spence, Clark Chatham, R. B. White, William L. Brewington, L. B. Gillie, Thomas J. Turpin.

A verdict of "accidental drowning" was rendered. The body which was badly decayed, having been in the water it is supposed for about ten days, was taken in hand by undertakers, D. C. Holloway & Co., and interred in the Methodist church yard Thursday afternoon.

Marriage of Miss Powell.

Miss Miriam Estelle Powell and Mr. Daniel Barton Cannon were quietly married at half after six o'clock Tuesday morning of this week at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert E. Powell, 305 North Division Street, Rev. Dr. S. W. Reigart, pastor of Wicomico Presbyterian church officiated at the ceremony which was witnessed only by the immediate families of the contracting parties.

The parlor in which the marriage took place was beautifully decorated with large white chrysanthemums and roses. There were no attendants, and the bride and groom entered together while Lohengrin's wedding march was rendered by Miss Annie Cannon, sister of the groom. The bride wore a handsome tailor made traveling suit of navy blue broadcloth, with hat and gloves to correspond, and carried a large bouquet of bride roses. The groom was attired in a black outwary coat and striped trousers.

After the ceremony an elegant wedding breakfast was served, the dining room and library also being decorated with roses and chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Cannon left on the 7.30 train for a bridal trip to the Northern cities. They expect to be at home to their friends after December the first.

Both the bride and groom are well known young people of Salisbury. Mr. Cannon is engaged in the wholesale tobacco and cigar business, on Main Street, and is one of Salisbury's rising young business men.

Gilbert—Brewington.

One of the most picturesque weddings of the season was that of Miss Maude Helene Brewington, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scott Brewington, of 2323 Entaw Place, to Mr. Harry Eugene Gilbert which was solemnized at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church Thursday evening.

The color scheme of the wedding was corn color and white, and the church was handsomely decorated with chrysanthemums in those colors. The chancel was banked with white chrysanthemums and tall overarching palms bordered the aisles.

Mrs. Harry Hartman Davis, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Myra Brewington, another sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

The groom with his best man, Mr. W. H. Forythe, Jr., met the bridal party at the chancel. The ushers were Messrs. William Baker, Jr., Alexander T. McIlvain, J. Frank Supplee, Jr., John L. Sanford, Harry B. Thomas and Mr. Charles Wood.

A dinner to the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony, and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert left for an extended wedding journey. They will reside on their return at 2815 North Charles Street.

The wedding gifts including, besides an elaborate array of silver, cut glass, bric-a-brac and jewels, some valuable stocks and several checks.

FOOTBALL ON SALISBURY'S HEATH

Princess Anne Plays Our Home Eleven Another Tie. Boys Work Hard But Couldn't Score.

The Salisbury and Princess Anne football teams met again Thursday and once more held each other down to "zips"—0-0.

The Princess Anne boys in charge of Cap't. Mac. Dorman arrived over the N. Y. P. & N. at 7.35 a. m.

The game was called at 10.25 o'clock. Salisbury won the toss and elected to defend the western goal.

Mac Dorman kicked off to Salisbury's 40 yard line. By a succession of right end rushes the home boys carried the pig skin to their opponents 25 yard line where they lost it on downs. In fact the whole first half was a series of "trades" with the ball on downs or fumbles. In the middle of the half Capt. Mac Dorman received an injury in the side but pluckily stayed in the game. The half ended with the ball in mid-field and Salisbury's hands.

The second half was characterized by very good individual playing but very little team work on either side.

After twelve minutes of play the home team did so much "kicking" on the referee's decisions that he declined to serve any longer and Mr. Waller took his place. Several times the home team had to take the ball back after making large gains. One time Mayer and Ulman, by a pretty double play, made a gain of thirty-five or forty yards, but it appeared that they had started off without waiting for the referee's signal, so the ball had to be returned. The home boys seemed to have the advantage all through the game yet it was not decisive enough to allow them to score.

Capt. Mac Dorman was hurt again, for the third time, in the second half and had to leave the field. Dixon was put in his place.

The rooters gave the home team their enthusiastic support, and during some stages of the game their excitement was so great that they poured on masses over the field almost surrounding the players.

Both teams had a better line up than in the previous game and showed decided improvement in their tactics. The line up of the two teams was as follows: Salisbury: Dove, L. E.; Goele, L. F.; Taylor, L. G.; Sherman, C.; Rowe, R. E.; Simms, R. T.; Stewart, R. G.; Schuler, Q. B.; Mayer, L. H. B.; Ulman (Capt.), R. H. B.; White, F. B.

Princess Anne: Huffington, L. E.; Lankford, L. T.; Pusey, L. G.; Adams, C.; K. Carrow, R. E.; Prinn, R. T.; Dixon and Morris, R. G.; C. Carrow, Q. B.; Mac Dorman and Dixon, L. H. B.; R. Wilson, R. H. B.; H. Wilson, F. B.

Mr. Gordon Toll of Princess Anne was umpire and Mr. Wythe Mumford and Mr. J. H. Waller acted as referees. Smith and Richardson, time-keepers.

Score, 0-0.

Death of Mrs. Maria Sirman.

The death of Mrs. Maria L. Sirman, widow of the late George W. Sirman, of this city, occurred at her late home on William Street, last Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. Mrs. Sirman was eighty-three years of age on her last birthday and has always enjoyed good health till within the last few months. She has been confined to her bed about four weeks. Five children survive, who are, Mr. G. Edward Sirman, Mrs. Albert Stephens and Mrs. Samuel Jackson of Salisbury, Mrs. Joseph Davis and Mrs. R. M. Johnson of Philadelphia. Mr. George W. Leonard of this city and Mrs. Emily Jones, mother of Mr. John W. Jones, of Allen, are brother and sister of the deceased.

Funeral services were held at her late home Thursday afternoon at two o'clock conducted by the Rev. Mr. Lennox, pastor of Division Street Baptist Church assisted by Rev. Chas. A. Hill. Interment was made in Parsons Cemetery. The pall bearers were the following grand children; Messrs. Claud Sirman, George Sirman, Oscar Davis, John Davis, James Parsons and Marion Turner.

Exhibition Pool Playing.

Several interesting games of pool have been played between Mr. W. Mowell Hawkins the champion gun shot of Maryland and who held the amateur pool championship of Maryland for four years and Mr. William Killiam, of Salisbury.

On Saturday Mr. Killiam won eight out of thirteen, Tuesday they split even. Thursday Mr. Hawkins scored 100 to Mr. Killiam's 76. Mr. Brown of Princess Anne who was to play Killiam for the Eastern Shore championship Thursday, did not come, so Mr. Hawkins was asked to take a part.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN SALISBURY.

Services At Asbury M. E. Church And St. Peter's.—Foot-ball And Pigeon Shoot.—Large Evening Audience At Ulman's Opera House.

Though unfavorable weather conditions prevailed in this section Thursday it was a very busy Thanksgiving Day both in and out of town.

Places of business were closed and it was observed in a true holiday spirit by old and young. Family dinners were in order and the customary reunions made happy occasions.

AT THE CHURCHES.

Regular Thanksgiving service was preached at St. Peter's P. E. Church by the rector, Rev. Mr. Howard, from Deuteronomy 26:18: "We Have Brought The First Fruits of the Land Which Thou Hast Given Us, O Lord." The offering was a special one to meet the expense of introducing the choir.

The Thanksgiving Sermon preached at Asbury M. E. Church by Rev. S. W. Reigart, D. D. was from the text: Psalm 100:4, "Be Thankful Unto Him." The speaker started out by inquiring, "Why Thanksgiving Day? since every day and minute God is lavishing His blessings upon us. It is for national blessings rather than individual mercies for which the nation's representatives and head calls upon us to give thanks. What an impressive sight to see an entire people assembling in God's House and offering songs of praise to Him!"

The appointment of days of national Thanksgiving is not a modern idea. The ancient Hebrews had their feast of Tabernacles in which the fruit of the earth were enjoyed and shared with each other amid giving of thanks. The Puritan founders of New England had their days of thanksgiving. The first national Thanksgiving was appointed by George Washington, first president of the United States.

If ever a nation has cause for gratitude to God it is the American people. No people fare so well, dress so well, are housed as comfortably as the people of this land."

The speaker contrasted the living of the present time with that of the gold on age of "Good Queen Bess" when the laboring populations of England for the most part lived on "horse-corn," a mixture of beans, oats, peas, textiles and sometimes acorns. "Peace and plenty are the chief blessings of a nation and these we have enjoyed. The darkest cloud that has obscured the sun of our prosperity has been the causeless, senseless strike of the coal miners of Pennsylvania.

The speaker gave his views of the strike with boldness and freedom. He claimed that whilst men of any class have a right to combine to advance their interests they have no right to employ unlawful methods to accomplish their object; that a strike of any magnitude is always attended with deeds of lawlessness; that in this country the ballot is a better weapon than the fist, and that by the power of their votes the miners had again and again secured legislation for their protection and the advancement of their own interests; that his sympathies were less with the striking miners than with the men who stood at their post, who suffering all manner of abuse, their houses destroyed with dynamite, their wives insulted, their children shut out of school, their sick deprived of the attendance of a physician, and their dead not allowed decent burial, the men who at the risk of their lives asserted their right as American freemen to keep at work; these were the heroes of the strike and the men over whom the shields of the law should be thrown.

The speaker asserted that property had rights which government is bound to protect, and that the greatest danger which menaces this country is not from the trusts, but the spirit of lawlessness shown in the lynchings, boycotts, and strikes which disgrace our civilization. The reign of the "trust" may be tyrannical. The rule of the strike is anarchy.

The speaker commended President Roosevelt for his efforts to end the strike and looked hopefully for the success of the labors of the Commission of arbitration.

Dr. Reigart then took a view of things nearer home, and mentioned among the causes for gratitude our exemption as a community from scandals, fires, strikes, pestilences, business failures etc. We may not all have coal, but we have wood to burn. He referred to the munificent donation by Hon. Wm. H. Jackson of a hospital for the relief of the sick and suffering; to the magnificent fight of Hon. James E. Ellegood in behalf of pure politics which if not entirely successful has relegated the boodle barrel to the cellar, and purified the political atmosphere, and he closed with a tribute to the noble "400" who on last election day voted to abolish the saloon, the foe to the home, the school and the church. He said an occasion for thanksgiving to God in the moral uplift which has been given to the community by the brave fight in behalf of temperance and civic righteousness.

The sportsmen were in particular evidence out of town and some notable records were made among the quail and rabbit "Sure-Shots." Wonderful stories are now being circulated as an aftermath and it is largely to be wondered if there is any game remaining in meadow, brake or bramble for the rest of the open season. All game bags came in full—unless the contents had been left elsewhere.

Clay pigeon shooting and foot ball occupied lovers of this sport at the old base ball grounds in South Salisbury, during morning hours.

The races scheduled for the afternoon attracted two or three hundred people but owing to the rain did not pan out.

THE PIGEON SHOOT.

Some fine exhibition shots were made by Mr. J. Mowell Hawkins, representing the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., who has been shooting quail in the county for several days. Mr. Hawkins shot 10 breaking all. He also shot 3 pulled at one time breaking them with his Winchester gun. Messrs. Walter B. Miller, L. P. Coulbourn and Elmer Bradley made the best runs.

Miller broke 19 out of 20 and Coulbourn 49 out of 50. Parker broke one pair of doubles with his Winchester shot gun very cleverly.

Others who made some excellent amateur shots and broke creditable numbers were: Messrs. Graham Gunby, Donald Graham, Frank Gunby, John Parker, W. S. Bell and Chas. Mitchell.

A movement is under way for the formation of a gun club. The prospects are good as there is plenty of shooting talent here.

AT ULMAN'S OPERA HOUSE.

A splendid entertainment was afforded those who attended, and by the way those "who attended" were many, about six hundred being in the audience. The attraction was the Frank Davidson Company which presented, "The Folks Up Willow Creek" an interesting comedy. The play contains a delightful blending of wit and humor, pathos and home spun philosophy, sentiment sensation, sunlight and shadow.

The cast of characters without a single exception was taken with great excellence in all their different phases. Mr. Davidson, in particular, delighted the audience with the facility with which he assumed his many roles. As the protean artist Mr. Davidson represented a detective, a Hibernian, a Mongolian and a physician in rapid succession.

The company had its own scenery carrying about 1000 square yards with them.

Hearn—Brows.

Zion Church, near town, was the scene of a beautiful and impressive marriage ceremony last Wednesday evening, when Miss Ora Edna Brown, daughter of Mr. William I. Brown, and Mr. Herman Lloyd Hearn, were united in marriage. The church was handsomely adorned for the occasion. The bride and groom being quite popular, a large audience was present to witness the happy event.

At 7.30 p. m. Miss Ethel McFaul was escorted to the organ. After rendering several selections she began the grand and solemn wedding march and the ushers appeared. These were Messrs. Manlius Johnson, Ira Parker and Harlan Brown. Mr. A. C. Brown, of Delmar, was best man. The bridesmaids were the Misses Annie and Nettie Hearn and Miss Lucy Parker. Miss Ella Brown was maid of honor.

As the happy couple approached the chancel they stood under a bell suspended from an arch, where they were solemnly united by the pastor, Rev. D. F. McFaul.

After the ceremony a largely attended reception was given at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah S. Hearn. The company was a joyous one and an abundance of refreshments was dispensed to all. The happy couple were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents.

Race Next Thursday Afternoon.

Those interested in racing will be glad to know that the race between Mr. Day's horse George R. and Raymond Bell, which did not take place last Thursday on account of the wet condition of the track, will come off next Thursday, December 4. A prize of one hundred dollars is to be given to the winner.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic. "I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicine of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

TIDE TURNING TOWARD MARYLAND

Attention Of Nebraska Farmers and Others Attracted By The Climate, Facilities And Resource Of Our Favored State.

Maryland has been overlooked by many in the rush to occupy the lands of the far west, but there are evidences that the tide is turning. A delegation of Nebraska farmers have been in Maryland for several weeks with a view to purchasing land on which to locate permanently. In speaking of the impressions and knowledge gained by the visit one of the number said:

"We are all farmers, owning our property in Nebraska, but owing to the extreme cold and poor facilities for reaching the markets with our product we have been casting about for sometime to locate in some State where we can better our condition. I think I can speak for all of us when I say that from what we have seen we are greatly pleased with Maryland, especially your climate and the many facilities which are afforded farmers to market their produce. We are so pleased with the State that we have determined to purchase land here; in fact, we have selected the property to settle upon, but owing to your system of land renting we find we cannot get possession of the farms for a year. So we will return home and come back next spring, when we can close the deal for the property. I feel assured that if many of our farmers in the Northwest could only see your State they would be only too glad to settle here."

This conclusion of the Nebraska farmer is not at all surprising to those who are familiar with the great undeveloped resources of our State. Thousands of acres of land may be purchased at a moderate price, and, with reasonable fertilization, can be made highly productive. Nearby markets, bays and water courses abounding in fish and oysters, and an agreeable climate, combine to render Maryland one of the most desirable places of abode in the world. The wonder is that these natural advantages and charming features have not long ago been appropriated.

Just at this time with its forest-gleaming with scarlet and gold, with its orchards of apples and pears, with great shocks of corn and well filled barns, with rivers and bays smooth and deep beneath the October haze, old Maryland presents a scene of loveliness which other commonwealths must hesitate to challenge.

Boys' Reward For Saving Passengers.

John Gregg, who is fourteen years old and lives in Principio, Md., recently saved the Colonial express from going into a washout, and the Pennsylvania railroad has placed him on the payroll and will give him a college education if he desires it. A representative of the railroad went to Principio a few days ago and hunted the boy up. He was told that the railroad company was anxious to do something for him and he was asked what he liked best in the world. He thought for a long time, finally confessed that he "didn't know" and was told that he could go through college and learn any trade he cared to select. "I guess I'd rather be a fireman than anything," he said. He was told to take a year to think it over in, and if he was of the same mind at the end of that time his wish would be granted. Mr. F. A. Grier, Division Street, Salisbury, has a photograph of the washout. It shows a tremendous abyss 65 feet deep and 200 feet long. The rails are left suspended above the washout in a straight line. Without parallel in railroading, so it is said.

Re-opening Services at Union M. E. Church, Near Delmar.

On Sunday, December 2, 1902, re-opening services will be conducted in Union M. E. Church near Delmar, Del., which has been beautifully renovated at a cost of several hundred dollars.

This church is historical, having been used by the white people during the greater part of the 18th and 19th century and is held dear in the memory of many prominent persons of the surrounding country, because of their spiritual birth there.

Prominent ministers of the Delaware Conference are expected to render service during the day. Among the number expected will be Rev. Dr. J. E. Waters, P. E., and Rev. J. E. A. Johns both of Salisbury.

Rev. C. A. Hill of the Wilmington M. E. Conference and pastor of the M. E. Church at Salisbury, will conduct the service at 2.30 p. m.

E. H. NICHOLES, Pastor.

Dissatisfied American Women.

The American woman is restless, dissatisfied. Society, whether among the highest or lowest classes, has driven her toward a destiny that is not normal. The factories are full of old maids; the colleges are full of old maids; the ball-rooms in the worldly cities are full of old maids. For natural obligations are substituted the fictitious duties of clubs, committees, meetings, organizations, professions, a thousand unwomanly occupations.—Everybody's Magazine.

BACKWARD CHILDREN.

The Slow but Sure Ones Are the Kind That Always Win.

This is a subject that is intended to comfort parents whose children are what are commonly called dunces.

Do not be downhearted or discouraged if your son is behind in his class. It is a very common occurrence for a backward boy, one who was beaten by all at school, to shoot ahead later on.

What becomes of all the wonderfully precocious children?

It is very often the case that the clever boys who gain prizes by their greater quickness and facility later on in life, when effort and perseverance are needed, do not possess those qualities or have not had them developed, while the dunces, who endeavored, struggled and did his best, now can prove the worth of those qualities that in his school days seemed of so little use.

Encourage your dull children, for you cannot tell but that through the aid of your sympathy and encouragement they may turn out to be brilliant men.

Three of our greatest generals were dunces. General Sheridan showed so little capacity as a boy that his mother introduced him to one of his tutors as an "incorrigible dunce."

General Ulysses Grant was called "Useless Grant" by his mother because of his dullness as a boy.

Stonewall Jackson was noted for his slowness, but at the same time was remarkable for his indefatigable application and perseverance.

Mr. Smiles, the author of "Self Help," tells a story of a boy in his class at school who was one of the greatest of dunces.

One teacher after another had tried his skill upon him and failed. Mr. Smiles says: "Corporal punishment, the fool's cap, coaxing and earnest entreaty proved alike fruitless."

"Sometimes the experiment was tried of putting him at the top of his class, and it was curious to note the rapidity with which he gravitated to the inevitable bottom."

"The youth was given up by his teachers as an incorrigible dunce, one of them pronouncing him to be a 'stupendous booby.' Yet, slow though he was, this dunce had a sort of dull energy of purpose in him that grew with his muscles and his manhood, and, strange to say, when he at length came to take part in the practical business of life he was found heading most of his school companions, and eventually left the greater number of them far behind."

"The last time the author heard of him he was chief magistrate of his native town."

Dr. Arnold said of boys that the difference between one boy and another consists not so much in talent as in energy.

If your slow, backward child has persistence and application, he will surely head the cleverer fellow who is without those qualities.

Watch and wait patiently and do not be in too great a hurry to see your child's mind develop, but carefully train his habits of energy and endeavor.—Margaret Stowe in New York Journal.

Live Serial Experiments.

Many persons have a horror of being buried alive, which is why experiments in testing whether one is really dead or not when he appears so are attracting attention in Europe. The experiments of a Dr. Feard have been so successful that they have been approved by the French Academy of Sciences. The doctor uses the well known coloring matter fluorescin, which he injects into the body. If a person is really dead, the fluorescin has no effect whatever, but if there is any life yet remaining the body quickly becomes yellow and the eyes greenish in color. These symptoms will remain for one or possibly two hours and then disappear. Many persons declare that the existence of life can be discovered by the use of the X ray, but it is not always possible to have an X ray apparatus on hand in doubtful cases, whereas fluorescin can always be procured.

White House China.

The magnificent china service for the White House which is being designed at the Wedgwood potteries at Stoke, England, will arrive some time in December. The design and pattern are of Mrs. Roosevelt's selection. The china will be the first service of English manufacture to be used at the White House. The famous twenty-five thousand dollar service purchased by Mrs. Hayes was from the Haviland firm of France.

The new service is plain white with a gold border, with the seal of the United States in colors on each piece. The shapes are colonial. This is the first time that the arms of the United States have been used for the decoration of White House tableware. The design and shapes have been copyrighted and may not be duplicated except by permission of the president. The set consists of 1,850 pieces.

The Lead of the Telephone.

To show how far Stockholm is ahead of other European capitals in the matter of telephone facilities it may be mentioned that while London has 47 telephones per 10,000 inhabitants, Paris 71, New York 150 and San Francisco 700, Stockholm reaches the figure of 980. In every bedroom in every hotel there is a telephone; every tradesman, warehouse, shop and private dwelling is connected. Even the ordinary washerwoman is on the exchange. In the streets at nearly every corner is a public kiosk, where on payment of a small coin one can speak not only to any local subscriber, but even to one in any other town throughout the length and breadth of Sweden.—London Mail.

ANGELS OF STUDIOS.

Women Artists Employed as Posers For Religious Pictures.

Posing for religious pictures is a business quite apart from the sitting for the artistic figure, and there are four models in New York who make a specialty of posing for artists and sculptors whose subjects are distinctly religious. For several years Miss Jessie Williams has posed for various Madonnas. She is a young woman of no great beauty, but her face has the soft, sympathetic expression which artists find it to be difficult to secure. Miss Williams posed for F. S. Church's "Madonna of the Sea," and from beginning to end the work upon the picture was tinged with humor.

Mr. Church first conceived the idea one day when down at Coney Island, the last place one would think of in conjunction with Madonnas, where he obtained the central idea of the cross formed of white sea gulls flying toward the land, just above the Madonna's head. The next day he sent for Miss Williams. The day was rainy and muddy. Miss Williams, who is evidently a prudent young woman, wore a pair of rubber boots and a short skirt, a costume, to be sure, not very conducive to the forming of a Madonna. Mr. Church gave her an old gray gown lying about the studio. Twisting an old skirt into a bundle, he tied it with a cord, and from this model, while Miss Williams gazed at the rag doll, he made his beautiful Madonna.

Miss Marion French is known as "the angel of the studios." She has posed more times as an angel than any other model in New York. Her features are delicate, her eyes are serene and placid, her hair golden, and she is, in fact, an ideal type. Whenever an artist is in need of an angel Miss French may be seen about the studio.

Gertrude Henderson plays varied roles in religious posing. Madonnas are rarely attempted by Miss Henderson. She is posed for the odd picture, a St. Cecilia, a Ruth or a Rebecca, such subjects being regarded as her particular domain. She has received some dramatic training, has a peculiarly emotional face and readily adapts her expression to suit the requirements of the artist.

That the painting of a religious picture depends a great deal upon the imagination and creative power of the artist or sculptor there can be no doubt, for as a matter of fact there is nothing save tradition to build on. There is no special model which has been handed down to us from Biblical times. There is a general type that has been established. As this is the case, it takes much study and work to select a model whose features suit the religious groups, which explains why there are so few models of all those who frequent the New York studio districts who are able to pose for religious pieces.—New York Times.

The King's Shilling.

Rather curiously it appears that the new King Edward shilling has found its way to London from Belgium. While not in general circulation as yet in the Anglo-Saxon capital, a few of them were paid out in the city within the last few days, having arrived in a consignment of coins received from abroad.

The Bank of England, it seems, was not aware that there had been a new issue from the royal mint.

The new coin has the advantage of being at least original in design, and, while severely plain on the obverse, is sufficiently decorative in its arrangement to lead us to hope that the medalists who have charge of the designing and cutting of the dies from which the British coins are struck are learning something of the delicacies of the art from the French.

It is to be presumed that they will shortly be in general circulation, though further inquiry at the bank draws forth no further information as to when this may be expected, and the puzzle is still unsolved as to how the coins actually made their appearance abroad before they were known in London.

His Red Necktie.

J. Howard Jacobs of Reading, Pa., who died recently, was buried wearing a red necktie. Around this fact there is woven a curious story. Mr. Jacobs, who was one of the leading lawyers of eastern Pennsylvania, wore a red tie for the first time twelve years ago at an important case that he was trying. The case seemed all against him. Every one was sure he would be beaten, and yet he won. After the verdict one of the opposing lawyers said: "Jacobs, that tie of yours hypnotized the jury. You had better wear it hereafter in all your important cases." Mr. Jacobs took his rival's advice. At every subsequent case of moment he wore a flamboyant red tie, and it is said that never when he had this tie on did a verdict go against him. It was in honor of this superstition of his, which all his friends knew and respected, that he was buried in a cravat of so brilliant and inappropriate a color. It is not explained whether his friends thought he would need the lucky color in the last case he would plead.

The Ministers Agreed.

The recent death of Dr. Barrows, president of Oberlin college, recalls an incident in connection with the parliament of religions over which he presided during the World's fair in Chicago. At the conclusion of one of the meetings, which was characterized by debate and discussion, he was asked: "Is there anything upon which the parliament did agree?" "Well, yea," said Dr. Barrows, "we all agreed that if any one of us should lose his money during the fair the public would not concern itself as to how he lost it, but how he came to have it to lose."

WINTERY WEATHER TO COME.

So Say The Weather Prophets Who Have Studied The Goosebone And Other Signs.

Here is cold, cheerless news that makes shivers chase each other with lightning rapidity up and down the spinal columns of those unfortunate whose coalbins are empty.

It is going to be a hard winter. Signs in the rural regions, as interpreted by weather prophets, say so, and that settles it.

To those who have delved into the mysteries of persimmon crop lore, who have gathered statistics of the relation between full persimmon trees and zero marks on the thermometer, the forecast is beyond denial.

To those city folks and country folks to whom the abundance of the persimmon yield is not an all convincing argument of the future state of weather, these forecasts present another unflinching sign, free of cost, that the wintry blasts will blow and that the king of the Arctic regions will transfer his sceptre to these parts.

The cornhuks are heavy, and when cornhuks are heavy—oh, my!—look out for a continuous performance of falling snowflakes and howling blasts.

SOME OTHER SIGNS.

One agriculturist living near the mountains says the real cold weather will not set in before the middle of December, perhaps not then for the reason that the snakes are still to be seen on top of the ground. He says that snakes invariably take to their holes for the winter at least two months before cold weather sets in for good. That there will be no heavy snow he regards as certain from the fact that the mountain grass and other wild growth is now high enough to insure food to the mountain birds and fowls. Nature, says he, is not cruel enough to starve the innocent birds.

If leaves hang persistently to many trees after frosts there will be plenty of snow this winter. The heavy coats of fur on the fur bearing animals also show that the winter is likely to be severe.

Probably one of the most generally accepted weather indications is the last Friday of each month. As the weather is that day, so, it is said, will be the following month. If there is a thaw between Christmas and New Year's a thaw every month of that winter is expected, and if there is a green Christmas a fat cemetery is predicted.

One farmer in Western Maryland notices that hornets have built their nests among the highest branches of trees, which, he says, is a sure indication of a hard winter.

Another weather observing farmer predicts a cold winter because gnats in swarms have disappeared.

THE GOOSEBONE.

But wait until Elias Hartz, the famous goosebone prophet of Reading, Pa., shall have been heard from before you are fully convinced as to what the winter will be. For 66 years Prophet Hartz has foretold the kind of winter and his friends say that he has seldom missed it. Farmers consult him as to possible conditions before going ahead with their farm work.

Early in the spring Mr. Hartz pays a visit to the country and selects a new born goose. Sometimes he picks out three or four. They are placed in a separate pen from the others and he pays monthly visits to the farm to watch their growth. On Thanksgiving Day he makes his last visit and selects the best goose of the lot and it is killed. From this goose he takes the breastbone, and from it all of his predictions are made.

Hartz declares that he is always accurate in foretelling the weather with the aid of the goosebone. He was taught to use it, he says, by an old Irishman for whom he worked when a young man.

He is a close observer of all predictions made at the Government Weather Bureau, and says the weather experts often miss it. On one occasion, he says, a report was sent out that the weather would be clear and cold. From his goosebone he predicted a heavy snow storm, and he asserts his prediction came true. He then wrote to the weather chief, informing him of his mistake.

In former years the Berks County Agricultural Society refused to be guided by Mr. Hartz's predictions and had some very bad weeks at a great financial loss. Now the members consult him, and were guided in holding this year's fair by choosing the dates for clear weather furnished by the veteran prophet.

Each year the Reading Trotting Association consults Mr. Hartz as to the outlook for the weather. As yet week he may name is chosen by the association, and never once has Mr. Hartz missed it.

A Blow in the Back.

An overcoat is a necessary nuisance and the tendency to take it off on warmish days in late autumn and winter is as strong as it is unwise. A treacherous wind hits you in the back and the next morning you have lumbago. Rub well and often Perry Davis' Painkiller and you will be astonished to find how quickly all soreness is banished. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'

Fireside Thoughts.

The time has come to light again a fire upon the hearth. We pile on the chips and lay the wood in rows along the andirons with genuine pleasure. Then, applying a match, we have a blaze that curls with beauty and at once leaps up the wide chimney, rewarding us with a glow that gives warmth and suggests cheerfulness.

There is your true household fire. A roll of sheet iron on legs and a black pipe stuck through a hole in the wall cannot be called a fire. Such an arrangement is more economical, to be sure, than an open fire, and throws out more heat into the room; but that is the best that can be said of it. We like to watch the play of the flames, as they chase each other up the back bricks of the chimney. An air-tight stove is only a prison for a fire. No one knows what is going on inside until he turns the wheel door in front and looks through the narrow openings. Even then you see nothing except a dull glow, as if the fire had lost all its spirit from being confined in a cell. With an open hearth before you there are scenes brought to view that no artist can paint. Howeyer skillful his brush. In addition to that you have a fire that kindly draws the foul air of the house to its hands, and, then briskly tosses it up the chimney away from contact with your lungs. As a ventilator an open fire has no rival.

How the logs crack under the touch of the flames! These flames reach their fingers clear through the bark and find the heart of the logs, releasing therefrom many a jest told by the passing winds. The merriment is thrown off in sparks of wit and snapping repartee. The laughter goes around with such a roar that the soot is shaken from the bricks above, bringing an inquisitive breeze from the hallway to see what the matter is. Meanwhile, we sit beside those jocular flames and dream, or meditate, or make the plan of a sermon.

Sometimes we are reminded of boyhood days. Yonder flames are first cousins to those of the bonfires that we then started, and that now are greeting the vision of memory. Dangerous pastime for boys, the making of a fire. But was there ever a boy that did not delight in it? If so, he must have been a dead boy. Kindled in the backyard of the vacant lot, after a visit on tip-toes to the match safe, going softly for fear of disturbing mother at her reading, those fires were more of a joy than the best game of ball that was ever played, and for the reason, of course, that there was an element of peril in them.

Then another silent visit to the house, and a return to the bonfire with our pockets bulged away out beyond their normal proportions. Unloading them of a cargo of sweet potatoes, we prepared a banquet that was fit for a king. Sweet potatoes roasted in an oven never had the taste of those that we drew out from a bonfire, harpoosing them with a long stick used as a fork. Burnt to a crisp on the outside, the inside was a small gold mine of flakiness.

That boyhood cooking has sent its odors along more years than we care to tell. Those odors recall precious memories. Little did we then dream of the changes that were before us. Blessed ignorance of the future! The experiences of the past have ever kept us from wishing to know what shall be on the morrow. After one has seen a father and mother carried forth from the old homestead, and shed tears over two heaps of earth side by side in the graveyard, he does not care to have the veil of the unknown lifted. The secrets of God are better in His own hands. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Likewise is the good. A knowledge of the shadows to come would unnerve us for present duty. So would a revelation of coming brightness. It is well to live only a moment at a time. In this arrangement of His providence is seen the wisdom and kindness of God.

But how we repeat the pastimes of childhood in adult life! Our pleasure in sitting beside a fire on the hearth is the old pleasure of watching a bonfire send its writhing flames and pillars of smoke into the air. The satisfaction that warms the heart after finishing a task is the joy of pulling our own sweet potatoes out of the blaze. We are all children of a larger growth. The sport of early days develops into the work of maturer years. We pass on imperceptibly from one to the other, hardly knowing where the one ends and the other begins. The imaginary store becomes a real one. The driving of a broomstick is followed by the guiding of a horse of flesh and blood. The fancied train of cars is succeeded by one that thunders with great speed over the rails. The nursing of a family of dolls through the diseases of infancy is a preparation for the anxious nights of genuine sickness. Boys are little men, and girls are little women. Afterwards men are boys, and women are girls. Old age is a return to childhood. Life moves around in a circle.

Our hearth fire, however, starts a different line of thought. It is a picture of the optimism of life. Our joys burn out, and we throw no more fuel for the kindling of new ones. Plans that have been tried, and have failed, are followed by others. Hopes that have turned to cinders are replaced by live coals. Woe to those who sit by the fireplace of being in disconsolate atti-

This prosecution has resulted in the conviction, not only of bribe-takers, but of bribe-givers, and has brought home to the rich and influential classes of St. Louis the extent to which the responsibility for civic corruption rests upon them. Substitutes For Canteens.

Secretary Root has approved a preliminary plan for the expenditure of $500,000 intended to provide substitutes at military posts for the canteen, which has been abolished by legislation. Major French, of the Quartermaster's Bureau, will be at the head of the board to complete the plans, and two other officers yet to be designated will assist him. The intention is to provide reading rooms, gymnasiums and other amusements for the soldiers. The appropriation was made in the last Army Supply Bill.

Overjoy and excitement at the prospect of receiving a fortune of $150,000 caused the death by heart disease of John H. Heaton, who lived in a small village south of Elkton. Heaton died in the office of his attorney in Springfield while they were going over some papers relative to the inheritance.

And, and in the chill of dying embers That is pessimism. It will finally bring naught but a black chimney and a heap of white ashes. Quick, O man, O woman put no more wood, and blow those vanishing sparks into flame! Even if the day of life is well worn away, and the sun is dipping below the horizon, still keep the heart young, and in the gathering shadows of the night look on. There cometh a time to those who love God that shall carry on its shoulders an infinitude of gladness. The blaze of joy will lower here, and Death will scatter its remains over the bricks that once warmed your feet. But what matters it? There are better things farther away. Growing old is growing young. Declining years are the prelude to supernatural harmonies. The brook that rushes faster on near the end of its course is in haste to fall into the arms of the ocean. Eternity shall shine with immortal youth. There the eyes never grow dim with tears, the heart never feels a pang, the brain never suffers from cold of disappointment. Ashes are of the earth, for it is itself only a ball of ashes. The things that burn beyond are not consumed.

Chases Boy About A Mile Along The Edge Of Woods. Saved By Dog.

Charles Skelly, aged 16 years, of near Pinto, Allegany county, was chased a mile by a large black bear Tuesday which had been driven from the mountains by the forest fire. Skelly was walking along the road on the edge of the woods, when the bear appeared and made a rush toward him. After a chase of at least a mile Skelly encountered a fence, and the bear caught up, raking off Skelly's clothes with its paws. Skelly grabbed a fence rail, but this weapon was ineffective. The timely arrival of a dog alone saved Skelly's life. The bear was frightened away and swam the river into West Virginia. Skelly, much lacerated, made his way home.

LACY THOROUGHGOOD

HAS DOUBLED HIS BUSINESS IN TWO YEARS.

A Great Business and the Reason For It!

Lacy Thoroughgood's selling of clothes is without precedent in the history of Salisbury. Day after day Thoroughgood's store has been packed with buyers. It shows that the people who buy clothing know a thing or two. Lacy Thoroughgood's clothing department is just now in the height of its prosperity growing faster than ever before. The stock that Thoroughgood carries comprises everything fashionable for men, youths and boys to wear. It is Thoroughgood's purpose to give customers the best goods that money can buy. Could Thoroughgood have grown to such importance from the little clothes-box of an affair he started sixteen years ago if he hadn't done his work faithfully? Not a day passes that some one doesn't come to Thoroughgood and say "I have been buying clothes from you ever since I was a boy, and I haven't yet had cause to utter a word of complaint". That's just it, a great many of Thoroughgood's customers started with him when they were "knee high to a grasshopper" and because Thoroughgood has treated them fair in every respect they have stuck to him through thick and thin. Now you can understand why Thoroughgood has doubled his business in two years; he has an army of customers rooting for him; that is why Thoroughgood does more business than any other two stores in Salisbury put together, and more than any other store on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Everybody's talking about it. Everybody sees that Lacy Thoroughgood is doing the clothing and hat business of Salisbury, why shouldn't he, here's what Thoroughgood offers now.

MEN'S WINTER OVERCOATS WORTH $15 FOR $12.50.

Thoroughgood has every pattern and cloth young men want. Where else is there so fine a variety of well tailored suits and overcoats for so little money? Yes, the Weather's backward and clothing men are growling, but some how or other you're keeping Lacy Thoroughgood busy, just as busy as bees turning out these suits and overcoats. What great clothes they are; you have no idea how fast they are selling. No matter about the weather, no use to bother about it. Suits are suits and overcoats are overcoats, and you've got to have one before long anyhow; so what's the use waiting. Variety is complete now and the price is low. Not much time to stop and think—time, tide and these bargains in suits and overcoats wait for no one. Come today, goods are going so fast the very thing you want may be gone tomorrow. But twenty thousand dollars worth of Ready-made Clothing, Hats and Gents Furnishings will last from now until Christmas.

FISH EATEN BY FISH.

How the Little "Killies" Seek to Evoke the Big Bass and Trout.

The species of fish of which the New York aquarium has the largest number, but of which the public sees the least, is the killifish. Although they are only from one to three inches long, they are as quick witted as the brightest of the big fish. They have to be, for they have so many enemies. At the aquarium they have an opportunity to display their powers of adaptation. They have only one opportunity to show what they can do in this direction, but they make good use of it. There is only an instant in which to decide upon the use which they will make of this opportunity, but there is no hesitation in making the decision.

The "killies" are collected every day for the aquarium by a man employed for the purpose. They are needed in large numbers, for they are used as food for the other fish. Every day a quantity of them are thrown to the bass and trout alive. It is then that they display their intelligence or instinct, whichever it is. One is inclined at first thought to believe it is the former, for it is certain that they have never been called upon to meet the enemy in tanks shaped like those into which they are thrown. They quickly adapt themselves to the conditions under which the conflict for survival must be fought. The foe is as keen in the hunt as the hunted. It is a war of the wits.

The striped bass are kept in one of the oval basins on the main floor. There are a score or more of as fine specimens of the species as a fisherman ever looked upon in it, and it is tantalizing to one fond of fishing to watch them lazily moving across the white enamel bottom. A few minutes before 4 o'clock one of the keepers approaches the tank with a pail containing a hundred or two of the little fish. He leans over the edge, dips his hand into the pail, takes out a handful and tosses them into the center of the pool. There is a sudden commotion in the water. The bass are rising to the surface with a rush. It is now or never with the little fish. Do they lose their heads? No! The fight between the bass and their supper is now on. Will the bass have their supper? They have jumped for the largest of the "killies," leaving the smaller ones for dessert.

When by themselves, the smaller "killies" usually remain at the bottom of their tank. They do not seek the bottom now. It is safer on top. With sundry darts they sprint for the side of the tank. They know the habits of bass. The bass jump for their food. The small fish says to himself: "If I can only get to the side of the tank before the bass gets me, I have a fighting chance. Unless he is exceptionally clever he cannot get me without hurting his snout when he jumps for me." He succeeds in reaching the white tile side and finds there many of his fellows. They swim along the tank side in groups, and the bass leave them alone for a time.

But, unfortunately for them, the hunter is as wily as his game. The larger "killies" swallowed, he turns his attention to those gliding along the basin's side. He creeps up behind them and drives a number together. Then, skillfully darting upward at an angle which will just save his snout, he opens his mouth as he slides along the side, and in a tumble a half dozen of the little fellows. His jaws snap together above the water with a crash which suggests that he has struck against the side. He has not, however, for he has learned from experience. He turns at just the right moment and drops to the bottom, leaving the top of the pool a choppy sea. The "killies," with all their skill, lose the battle at last, for they are smaller, but they give the bass "a run for his money."—New York Tribune.

Well Up in Geography.

Our system of public instruction does not always show its impress upon those who become public men. The late Venezuelan question called out queries that were of interest to our minister to that country, who made note of them.

In December, 1892, a western member of the United States congress arose in his place and seriously asked, "Where is Venezuela anyhow?" This was pending a proposition to consolidate the missions to Venezuela and Guatemala, the impression being that the two republics were adjacent countries.

Another member, equally well up in geography and equally enthusiastic in his advocacy of economy, wanted to consolidate the missions to Venezuela, Ecuador and Peru.

It was during the same year that a St. Louis merchant wrote to our minister at Caracas to find out "the most available seaport of Venezuela on the Pacific." A cattle dealer in Colorado inquired whether, in order to visit Maracabo, it would be necessary to sail via Europe. Soon afterward a tobaccoist in Virginia wrote to ask whether it would be advisable to ship samples via the isthmus of Panama.

General Assembly Rates.

The Chicago and Northwestern railway announces that all lines have agreed to a rate of $50 for the round trip from Chicago for the next general assembly of the Presbyterian church, which will meet at Los Angeles in May.

The Knights of Pythias, Federation of Women's Clubs and quite a number of other national conventions found the coast a very desirable meeting place during the season just closed, and there is no doubt that the assembly will be likewise well pleased with its selection of Los Angeles for 1903.

The rapid growth of western travel has been largely due to the splendid facilities offered by the transcontinental railway lines and the low rates that have been made by them for meetings of this kind.

THE ARMY CHAPLAIN'S RANK

A Measure That Will Probably Be Before Congress.

There is a very laudable project in contemplation—it has hardly developed beyond that stage—whereby the chaplains of the army are destined to be benefited. Legislation is in view for their relief, and during the next session of congress, short as it is, an effort will be made to reorganize the corps, giving the senior officers, say the first ten or twelve on the list, the increased rank of major. It may be that the promotion from captain will be dependent upon service—that is to say, a chaplain who shall have served for a stipulated period in his corps shall be advanced to a majority, and it may also happen that the new law will contain a requirement of examination, although that appears hardly necessary under the circumstances.

If a chaplain gets into the army now, after the examinations already held to which designated candidates are subjected, it must be assumed they are good enough to continue in their work. If they make worthy chaplains as captains, they will make worthy chaplains as majors. There are instances of inferiority, but that distinction is not confined to the chaplains, who by a vast majority are good men, true to their calling, arduous and zealous in their efforts. Some of them easily deserve promotion, and it won't be any great sacrifice of the public funds if one or two incompetents profit by the integrity of their more conscientious associates.

It would be a hard matter to establish a system of supervision by which the chaplains are selected for advancement. The method of choosing according to longevity is the easiest and most just, probably, if for no other reason than that the chaplain who is found unworthy of advancement to a majority is equally unqualified to serve as a captain and ought to be wholly retired. The chaplains do not seem to be concerned in the movement for legislation. At all events, none of them is conspicuous in the preliminaries. The project is likely to be a feature of the army appropriation bill of the short session.—Army and Navy Register.

Crushing a New Sect.

The sultan of Turkey has ordered the extirpation, by as severe methods as can be devised, so as to teach a lesson, it is reported, of a new religious sect that has made great headway in Damascus. The new religion is not Jewish or Mohammedan or Christian, but a sort of medley of all three. It teaches that neither Mohammed nor Christ was a divine person, though their existence is admitted. They were simply great philosophers who were endowed with powers to perform certain miracles. More interesting, however, is that the members, having admitted some belief in Islam, are allowed a plurality of wives, while as a recognition of Christianity they are not forbidden to be total abstainers from strong drink. It is an enticing religion to those who have no desire to place too great a curb on their passions, and such are common in the land of the Turk; hence probably so great a number of recruits that the attention of the sultan and the sublime porte was attracted to it.

A Missing Word.

A writer in the Spectator is hunting for a word and asks the readers of the Spectator to assist him. The word desired is one that will express the ever increasing class of words that are named after some individual—e. g., "boycott," "macadamise," "dolly," "mackintosh," "gamp," "peeler," "Robert," "Bobby," "Whitehead" (for a torpedo), etc. Such words should be classified under a name by themselves. What should this word be? "Cognominals" has been suggested. A cognomen, however, is a surname, and such words are not always taken from the person's surname—"Bobby," for example, to indicate a policeman. "Onomatopoeic" and "aneronomatic" have also been suggested, but that would not include "gamp" or "Mrs. Grundy." No exception can be taken to the term "anthroponomic," so far as accuracy of description is concerned, but it is a terribly long word, and an apt short word is a desideratum.

A Bible Centenary.

Lord Bowen amused the house of lords a few years ago by a witty condemnation of "uncritical and unnecessary centenaries." A centenary is near at hand which is not unnecessary, at all events. In December, 1892, one Mary Jones walked barefooted twenty-five miles to the home of a Welsh pastor, carrying her savings of six years to exchange for a Bible. The pastor had but one copy left, and that had been promised to another person, but he procured a copy for her. The thought of that long tramp haunted the good Mr. Charles. He rallied Wilberforce, Zachary Macaulay and others to organize the British and Foreign Bible society, which has since then issued over 175,000,000 Bibles and parts of the book in almost 300 different languages.

Indians and Monuments.

"Civilization of the Indian seems pretty close," says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "when we read that marble dealers of Omaha have just closed a contract whereby they are to erect for the Cheyenne and Ogalalla Sioux Indians a monument to be placed on the battlefield of Wounded Knee, in South Dakota, which the Indians insist on regarding as a massacre. There is a lady ready a monument to the United States soldiers who fell there at Fort Riley, Kan., and with both sides to that sanguinary conflict commemorating it it is not likely to be forgotten, although the circumstances have already faded from the memory of nearly every one."

THE SPELLBINDER.

His Entrance into and His Place in Modern Politics.

The spellbinder made his appearance coincidentally with the dawn in the early eighties; at least, the names arose at about that time. The two types of men have existed since the first spellbinder persuaded his brother troglodytes to form the first tribal government and the first dude distinguished himself from his fellows by scrapping the sea mud from his hairy limbs before gulping down the mollusks whose high heaped shells were to be the kitchen middens of the archæologist.

The young Republicans who went forth converted to Democracy in the Blaine campaign and with the zeal of new converts held their audiences spellbound as they wove chaplets of rhetorical flowers about the head of the Democratic candidate were the first spellbinders, I think, to wear the title. It was swiftly adopted, however, indiscriminately for all political speakers.

The spellbinders of 1894, rightly or wrongly, at least left their party for conscience's sake and gave their services to their cause. Even today a majority of political speakers are absolutely unpaid. Of course one hears stories of fees of $10,000 paid to a noted Democrat for campaign services against Mr. Bryan in 1896 and of fees of $300 a night paid to a noted independent who opposed Mr. Harrison. In addition, however, to congressmen and senators and state and local officeholders who give their services, there are hundreds of speakers of various political faiths who neither hold nor expect to hold public office who would regard the offer of payment for a political speech as an insult. Nevertheless, the spellbinder must get what comfort he can from the triumph of his cause, for the world will not credit him with disinterestedness, and his best friends, out of politics, think him hired.

The orator of an earlier generation has had his day. The modern spellbinder, like the man of business, the soldier, the Salvation Army evangelist, concerns himself more with results than conventional methods, with matter rather than form.—Colonel Curtis Guild, Jr., in Scribner's.

"O Rare Ben Jonson"

A setting of Ben Jonson's "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" was published recently by the Wa-Wan Press at Newton Center, Mass. In a few weeks there came a letter from a woman who had been a singer in light opera, but who quit the stage because she could make a better living popularizing songs by singing them into the phonograph. She wrote from a small New York town, addressing the letter to Mr. Ben Jonson, Nedton Center. It read:

Dear Sir—For $5 I will include your song, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," in my new catalogue of phonograph records and will also send you a record of the same.

The letter was answered by Arthur Farwell, the composer, in this strain: "Dear Madam—As Jonson was a pal of Bill Shakespeare's he lent' with us at the present time. In any case, he would not sanction this expenditure of a sum which might be so much more satisfactorily applied at the Mermaid tavern. We feel that the last three centuries have sufficiently heralded his name abroad to make it unnecessary to resort to the phonograph in the present emergency."
 —New York Tribune.

Two Frock Coats.

The Paris Figaro thinks that the day of frock coats is over, reasoning from a circumstance which lately occurred at Ostend. During the international race week King Leopold gave a luncheon party and invited a famous English gentleman rider, one of the Vanderbilt family, M. de B., an eminent French turfite and the consul of a great power. The card of invitation bore in the corner the words "In frock coat." Now, M. de B. had no frock coat with him, so he went downstairs and, finding the manager, begged his frock coat for a couple of hours. The manager readily consented, but said, "I must explain to M. le Comte that this is not my best frock coat, which I should readily have placed at his disposal had I not already lent it to M. Vanderbilt." The explanation of the matter doubtless is that the gentlemen did not think they would need these garments of form and ceremony on a racing trip to Ostend.

"Private" John Allen's Feat.

Ex-Congressman John Allen, known as "Private" Allen, because he was the only private in the Confederate army, was standing on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, recently, watching the Grand Army of the Republic parade. With him were two ladies. As the multitude of Grand Army men swept by, Private Allen was visibly impressed. After several hours had elapsed Charles A. Edwards, secretary of the Democratic congressional committee, came along. Allen greeted him, stopped him and said:

"Edwards, how long has this parade been going along?"
 "Four hours and a half," replied Mr. Edwards after consulting his watch.
 Mr. Allen heaved a sigh, turned to the ladies and said in a tone of melancholy pride:

"Just see what I held at bay for four years."—New York Times.

Queen Alexandra's Dainty Fad.

Queen Alexandra's especial fad has a daintiness well in keeping with her personality. It is that of having her pocket money made perfectly clean and bright before she fingers it. Whenever a check is turned into hard cash for her use the coins are scrubbed in a lather of spirits of wine, water and soap before being placed in her purse, and any change that may be tendered her when making purchases is taken charge of by the lady in waiting until it has been subjected to a like process of purification.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Miss Rose Peterson, Secretary Parkdale Tennis Club, Chicago, from experience advises all young girls who have pains and sickness peculiar to their sex, to rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many beautiful young girls develop into worn, listless and hopeless women, simply because sufficient attention has not been paid to their physical development. No woman is exempt from physical weakness and periodic pain, and young girls just budding into womanhood should be carefully guided physically as well as morally.

If you know of any young lady who is sick, and needs motherly advice, ask her to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., who will give her advice free, from a source of knowledge which is unequalled in the country. Do not hesitate about stating details which one may not like to talk about, and which are essential for a full understanding of the case.

Miss Hannah E. Mershon, Collingswood, N. J., says:

"I thought I would write and tell you that, by following your kind advice, I feel like a new person. I was always thin and delicate, and so weak that I could hardly do anything. Menstruation was irregular."

"I tried a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and began to feel better right away. I continued its use, and am now well and strong, and menstruate regularly. I cannot say enough for what your medicine did for me."

How Mrs. Pinkham Helped Fannie Kumpfe

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it is my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have derived from your advice and the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The pains in my back and womb have all left me, and my menstrual trouble is corrected. I am very thankful for the good advice you gave me, and I shall recommend your medicine to all who suffer from female weakness."
 —MISS FANNIE KUMPF, 1923 Chester St., Little Rock, Ark. (Dec. 16, 1900.)

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure any woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, nervous prostration, and all forms of woman's special ills.

ROOSEVELT'S PERPLEXITIES.

There is probably no more perplexed man in Washington today than President Roosevelt. After yielding his own convictions, that the tariff ought to be revised, and accepting the dictum of Senator Hanna and his school of politicians, that the winning policy for the republican party was to "stand pat," after being assured that if he wanted to be elected in 1904 he must not countenance revision, the President is now receiving the assurance of the western members and senators that the only hope of the party in their section of the country lies in making good the pledges of the last campaign, that the tariff would be "revised by its friends." In the hope of gaining a clearer insight into the situation the President has appealed to the members of his Cabinet and to the republican leaders. There is no doubt amongst the eastern members who all say "stand pat" but secretary Wilson, for instance, says his state wants revision. Representative Babcock insists on an extra session called for that purpose exclusively and the Minnesota delegation say that they were elected on a tariff reform platform. The same is true of Idaho and other western states which were carried for the republican party only by the personal popularity of the President and the assurance that he would insist on a revision of the tariff which would curtail the inordinate profits of the trusts.

The argument advanced by the "stand paters" is that the present prosperity cannot last, that tariff revision will precipitate the reversal of present conditions and that if the republican party is caught in the midst of an attempt to revise the tariff, which will be inevitably attended by endless bickering and strife, the country will administer a prompt rebuke by voting for their opponents. A sample of the kind of advice proffered the President by his friends was recently afforded by Senators Lodge and Burrows. The former signified his willingness to ratify the Cuban treaty because it would not injure his constituents who raise neither tobacco nor beet sugar, but he protested vigorously against the New Foundland treaty because it might hurt some of the fishermen of his section. On the other hand, Senator Burrows expressed his willingness to vote for the New Foundland treaty but protested against the Cuban treaty. The fact that the tariff is a local issue is again being demonstrated together with the fact that no republican is willing to sacrifice one cent of protection to the interest of his own section for the benefit of the county at large. The President has held open his message, hoping to be able to judge which will be the more politic course for him to pursue, after he has conferred with the senators and representatives who have been invited to call on him this week.

GOVERNMENT VS. MARRIED WOMEN.

When a woman in the government employ, especially in the Postoffice Department, hereafter changes her name for any reason she cannot expect to hold her in Uncle Sam's employment. One of the rules of the service is that when anyone changes his or her name he or she must be reappointed, so that their new name can be placed on the payroll. Therefore, under the new order of things, women who marry can no longer serve the government in the Postoffice Department. This ruling was made by Postmaster General Payne Monday, and will be effective after the 1st of December.

The Postmaster General is not averse to marriage, but he thinks a woman who takes a husband should make the husband support her and give up her place to some unmarried woman, or to a man. Heretofore the practice in the department has been when a woman clerk changed her name for that of a husband to reappoint her under her new name, and her employment continued without interruption. In his order this afternoon the Postmaster General says that where a woman changes her name by marriage no re-appointment will be made.

The feeling against the employment of women in the executive departments has always been strong, especially among politicians, and the action of the Postmaster General is one result of the prejudice.

Besides there are instances in which both husband and wife are employed in the government service, and their combined incomes give them a great advantage over other clerks. With the War Department advising young officers to remain single and the Postmaster General prohibiting marriage by the women clerks under his supervision, the impression might be created that the government is opposed to the institution. This, however, is not the case, and the stand taken by two departments against marriage by employes of the government is simply due to the belief that to some extent it interferes with their duties.

A student in Chattanooga, Tennessee, Medical School, several days ago shot an Ohian who made insulting remarks about southern women. However much commercialism may have invaded the stately and dignified South of the old days; however much renegades and apostates may have fallen from the sublime grace of loyalty to old traditions; whatever changes may have taken place under the changed conditions, the unswerving virtue, the imperial beauty and the loveliness of southern womanhood remains one point around which the oldtime manhood and chivalry of the south can rally, and the man who dares assail it may expect just such summary resentment as was dealt out by the gallant Tennessean to the Ohio calumniator of southern women.

"Live so as to be missed," was the message a great man once sent to some young people. He knew that most lives are not of that sort. Many of us will not leave a very big gap in the world when we depart from it. Our lives have not been put into other lives. We have not spent our energies in touching other people in helpful ways. The best that can be said over many of our biers will be, "He never harmed anybody." And that is a poor eulogy.

RUTS

The walking sick, what a crowd of them there are! Persons who are thin and weak but not sick enough to go to bed.

"Chronic cases" that's what the doctors call them, which in common English means—long sickness.

To stop the continued loss of flesh they need Scott's Emulsion. For the feeling of weakness they need Scott's Emulsion.

It makes new flesh and gives new life to the weak system.

When You Were A Youngster.

When you were a youngster and people told you that you were growing, didn't it make you feel good? That's the way with Lacy Thoroughgood. His business has grown so big lately that he is compelled to seek larger quarters. So in January 1904 Lacy Thoroughgood will move his entire stock of Clothing, Hats and Gents' Furnishings to the finest store in Salisbury, which is situated in the Jackson Building, next door to R. Lee Waller & Co's. Perhaps you SAW a number of carpenters working in that store several weeks ago. They're there yet. It's PLANE to Thoroughgood that they don't intend to go away at all. They really get to be sort of a BORE, but it AUGURS a better store when they get done. They're AWL right though. One of 'em was trying to SAW a curve for an arch last week (this is on the square) and he said he couldn't do any crooked work in such a fine storeroom, and that everything must be done STRAIGHT—just like Thoroughgood will conduct the business in that store after January 1904 (this is on the LEVEL.) When the carpenters are gone, the painters and paper hangers are through, the Gold Dust twins and Aunt Esther are through scrubbing and cleaning, this will be the lightest, cleanest, cheeriest clothing store in Salisbury to trade in, this store will be a credit to the city we all love so well—but remember Thoroughgood will not occupy this store until January 1904. Now BETWEEN this date and January Lacy Thoroughgood will hold a REMOVAL SALE that means something. Thoroughgood is badly over-stocked and is determined to sell every dollar's worth of goods that he can before January 1, 1904. No buyer of Fine Suits or Fine Overcoats should stay away from this most extraordinary sale. Thoroughgood is badly over-stocked on Boy's and Children's Overcoats and Children's Suits and will sell regardless of cost to reduce stock. Remember Thoroughgood has twenty thousand dollars worth of Fine Clothing and Hats (all brand new) and is fully determined to sell the bulk of these goods before January 1904.

TALMAGE SERMON

By Rev. FRANK DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., Pastor of Jefferson Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago

The powder puff may help to hide the ravages of time but it avails little to hide the ravages of disease. When the face is disfigured by eruptions, the treatment must go below the surface to the blood, which is corrupt and impure.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures disfiguring eruptions which are caused by impure blood. It cures scrofulous sores, erysipelas, boils, pimples, eczema, salt-rheum and other eruptive diseases which impure blood breeds and feeds.

"I was troubled with eczema from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet," writes Mrs. Ella Quick, of Cass City, Tuscola Co., Mich. "Could not walk at times nor wear my shoes. There was no help for me—at least the doctor said there was none. I went to see friends at Christmas time and there heard of the good that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery had done for them, and was advised to try it at once. For fear that I might neglect it, my friend sent to the village and got a bottle and made me promise that I would take it. I had been getting worse all the time. I took thirteen bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and ten vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and used 'All-Healing Salve,' which made a complete cure. It was slow, but sure. I was taking the medicine about eight months.

"I would say to anyone reading this, try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery before waiting time and money."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicine. He gains; you lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Theodor's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Theodor's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Hopewell, Ark., May 25, 1901. I cannot recommend Theodor's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never saw any child suffer any other kind of constipation. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me up. C. Chicago, Nov. 23.—The similarities and the contrasts of our approaching anniversary with that celebrated by the pilgrim fathers of the seventeenth century are vividly sketched in this sermon by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage on the text Psalm c, 4, "Be thankful unto him."

Thanksgiving day of 1620 is our theme today. Plymouth rock is the pulpit. The mighty trees of the American forests are the massive pillars of the sanctuary. Our dome is the blue skies of the heavens. The sunshine of the "Indian summer," which derived its name from the time of Massasoit's visit to the Plymouth colony to be the pilgrims' guest on their first Thanksgiving day, shall be our illumination. The waves of the fathomless deep, with their white fingers of foam playing upon the many keys of projecting rock, shall lead in our singing. The bold, bluff hillsides overlooking the harbor of Plymouth shall be our auditorium. And we shall gather within these four walls as worshippers the stern faced, iron muscled and godly voyagers of the little sailing ship Mayflower, whose sacrifices made the pilgrims' first Thanksgiving day a possibility. Surely, if Governor Bradford and Elder Brewster and Captain Miles Standish and Edward Winslow, and Isaac Allerton and John Alden and that little band of twosome and ten men and women and children had anything to be thankful for 251 years ago we Americans now living ought to welcome the Thanksgiving day of 1902 with open arms. After the example of our noble ancestors, whose names have made the Plymouth colony immortal, we should never cease to thank God for the goodness and the mercies he has showered upon us and our land during the past twelve months.

The proclamation which President Theodore Roosevelt bent forth a few days ago, appointing the day when the autumnal queen of American festivals shall summon all people to worship at the sacred altars of church and home, was very similar in spirit to the verbal proclamation which Governor Bradford gave to the pilgrim fathers and mothers in the autumn of 1621. The first Thanksgiving day was really a harvest home festival. On that memorable morning the new governor—for John Carver, the first governor, had lately died—personally led his people and guests into the house of worship, where a religious service was held. There the psalms were sung. There the prayers were offered. There Elder William Brewster thanked God that he who had fed the flying birds and had clothed with fur the wild beasts of the forests had fed and clothed and protected them. Then the rest of the day was spent as a home day, as a day of feasting and frolic and fun. Let me read to you the account which Edward Winslow, the historian of the famous colony and one of the participants, wrote in reference to that day:

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor, William Bradford, sent four men on fowling, so that we might rejoice after a special manner, after we had gathered the fruits of our labors. At which time, among other recreations, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming among us, among the rest their greatest king, Massasoit, with some ninety men, who for three days we entertained and feasted. And they went out and killed five deer, which they brought to the plantation and bestowed upon our governor and upon Captain Miles Standish and others. And although it be not always so plentiful as it was at this time with us, yet by the goodness of God we are so far from want that we often wish you partakers of our plenty."

The First Thanksgiving.
Yes, even among all their sorrows and troubles the pilgrim fathers had many, many blessings surrounding them on that first Thanksgiving day. And it is to catalogue some of their ancient blessings, as well as some of the multitudinous blessings of our own time, that I preach this sermon.

The pilgrim fathers rejoiced in religious liberty. They rejoiced that they could not only worship Christ in their own way and according to their own belief, but also because as Congregationalists they could select their own pastors and elders and deacons and have their own kind of church government. It was in order to win this religious liberty that the little band of pilgrims first endured the persecutions in the village of Scrooby, England. It was to win this kind of religious liberty that in 1609 they emigrated from the English shores and became exiles in Amsterdam. It was in order to win this religious liberty that the little band of pilgrims in 1610 broke away from Amsterdam and, under their pastor, the famous John Robinson, went to Leyden, and it was in order to win this religious liberty that the immortal 102 passengers of the Mayflower finally crossed the seas and emigrated to a new and unknown world. Religious liberty means more than life and comfort and money to strong, consecrated men. It means their combined temporal and spiritual existence. It means so much that, though one-third of that memorable pilgrim band died the first month after they had landed upon the American shores and though all at one time were helpless on account of sickness except seven men and women, yet when the time came for the sailing of the Mayflower back to England not one of the survivors would return to their old home, even though Governor John Carver and the company were ready to let any one go who would. The spirit which led the descendants of the pilgrim fathers a century and a half later to shed their blood at Concord and Lexington and Bunker Hill to prove that "taxation without representation was wrong and must not exist" was that same spirit which made the pilgrim fathers on America's first Thanksgiving day rejoice in religious liberty. They thanked God for religious liberty, even though the dead sleeping upon Burial hill outnumbered the living. They thanked God for religious liberty, even though, to protect it, they had to go to church armed. While the main congregation prayed with their eyes shut, their sentinels on guard had to pray with their keen, vigilant eyes wide open. So next Thursday, fellow countrymen, let us thank God for religious liberty.

Let us thank God that when we arise in the morning we can gather our little children about the family altar and have morning prayers without having any Lord Claverhouse pounding upon our door or without hearing the tramp of any "Blood" McKenzies' hirelings ready to lead us out to execution. When 10 o'clock comes next Thursday morning and we hear the bells of God's sanctuary tolling, let us be thankful that we do not have to worship our Heavenly Father in secret, as the early Christians used to do in the dark catacombs of ancient Rome or as the pilgrims before their embarkment secretly did it in the stable of the Scrooby manor house. When next Thursday we sit down to a Thanksgiving dinner and my grace, our children and loved ones being gathered about the dining room table, groaning under the weight of the best viands the markets afford, may we thank God that that dinner will not be stopped on account of that grace. O religious liberty, thou art not always honored in this twentieth century, for the living have never seen the dagger of bigotry driven into thy rich, warm, throbbing heart! O religious liberty, before whose shrines Cromwell's Ironsides made the earth tremble and at whose altars the covenanters and the pilgrims were ready to sacrifice their lives, may we be ready to rapturously greet thee next Thursday morning and to reverently touch the pure white hem of thy garment with the holy kiss of thankful lips! It was for this religious liberty that the pilgrim fathers thanked God in 1621. It is for religious liberty that we, their children, ought to welcome the autumnal queen of American festivals.

With humble prayer and fasting
In every strait and grief
They sought the Everlasting
And found a sure relief.
Their covenant-God's overshadowed them,
Their shield from every foe,
And gave them here a dwelling place
Two hundred years ago.

The Lesson of the Pilgrims.
My friend, there ought to be a lesson for you in the pilgrim fathers' gratitude to God for the supplying of their necessary temporal wants. You may not be a millionaire. You may not have a big bank account nor enough money to keep you in ease if you ceased to work; but, like the pilgrim fathers of old, on this Thanksgiving day of 1902 you can thank God that you have a home in which to live, no matter how humble that home may be. You can thank God that you have enough clothes to keep you warm and enough food, plain, wholesome food to eat. Should your table be simply spread you can thank God with the same humble, beautiful Christian spirit with which Elder William Brewster of Plymouth colony gave thanks. Although the bread supply and the coffee and tea supply and nearly all other supplies for months had failed, and he and his family for weeks at a time were compelled to live upon fish alone, yet William Brewster used to gather his children about his table and utter a devout grace. With nothing but clams and oysters for breakfast, dinner and tea month in and month out, William Brewster used to thank God "that they were permitted to enjoy the abundance of the sea and the treasures hid in the sand."

But, although a few of us may thank God merely for the bare necessities, most of us can thank him next Thursday morning for the luxuries as well. Our national prosperity was never as great as today. If we were to cross the seas and recount to the inhabitants of any other land all the temporal blessings with which we are surrounded, those foreign inhabitants would not believe the Utopian stories we would tell them. They would be as skeptical about our Munchausen-like tales as the relatives of one of Dr. William S. Breckinridge's parishioners were supposed to be.

It was during a time of great plenty in Kentucky. Food at that time was so abundant as to be practically without value. But one day this parishioner came to Dr. Breckinridge and asked him to write to his family in Ireland. Among other things he said, "Tell them I have met twice a week, without fail." "Why, Patrick," said Dr. Breckinridge, "you know that is not the full truth. You know you can have and do have meat every meal of every day; instead of only two times a week." "I know that, your honor," was the prompt reply, "but if I told my old father and mother, who rarely have meat in Ireland more than once a week, that meat was so plentiful in America that I could have it twenty-one times a week they would not believe another word that I might ever say." Next Thursday, like the pilgrim fathers, all can thank God for the bare necessities of life. On that day, like Dr. Breckinridge's parishioner, nearly all of us can thank God for the luxuries also as well as the necessities. We can thank God that under the shadow of the American eagle's wings there are this year more refined and cultivated homes, more abundant tables, more beautiful wardrobes, more well selected libraries, with their food for the mind, more pianos and musical instruments, more pictures upon the walls and more of everything that goes to make temporal life happy than ever greeted any Thanksgiving day before. Thanksgiving day is a harvest day—a day for recounting your temporal as well as your spiritual blessings. It is a time for thanking God for a full cupboard as well as for a church altar.

The Freedom From Sin.
The pilgrim fathers rejoiced because they had removed their children from the sinful temptations of a foreign land. They themselves were men and women of sterling and unimpeachable integrity. They were just as willing to lay down their lives as martyrs for Jesus Christ, in Leyden in 1620, as were their three fellow townsmen, Henry Barrows, John Greenwood and John Peary, who, in 1593, laid down their lives in England; but, though the pilgrim fathers might be ready to die for Christ, their undeveloped children, on account probably of the influence of their foreign surroundings, were not always of the same mind. Their sons and daughters sometimes drifted away from the principles of their fathers. They not only fell into the sinful habits of this European city, but they married the sons and the daughters of the foreigners. They enlisted in the foreign navies and went forth as free lances to the foreign wars, and it was in order to save their own flesh and blood from the sinful contact of the "uncircumcised Philistines," as well as for religious liberty, that the pilgrim fathers turned their backs upon the land of their adoption and the homes of their friends. Shall we not, then, on this Thanksgiving day of 1902 be thankful that we can rear our children in a land whose silver dollar is stamped with the suggestive motto, "In God We Trust?" Taking our little children's faces between our two hands and looking lovingly and earnestly into the depths of their pure eyes, can we not be thankful that both we and they are living in Christian communities where human affections are held sacred and where purity is not an oddity and practically monopolized, as of old, by a few vestal virgins consecrated to life-long service in a heathen temple? Can we not thank God that our children are not breathing the morally depraved atmosphere of some less fortunate land whose daughters are sold like chattels, never even seeing nuptial day, and where a wife is regarded as disgracing a family when she becomes the mother of a daughter instead of a son?

We place a priceless value upon the physical lives of our children. Shall we not also place a priceless value upon their spiritual welfare? How much we value them few of us realize until we are brought face to face with the sore trial of parting from them. I used to consider myself a poor man financially until a few years ago. I never do so now after the following experience: I had been visiting my mother in the east and was returning with my wife and little daughter to my Pittsburgh home. Being very tired from overwork, I lay down in the cars to sleep. Meanwhile my little baby daughter began to smile and nod her head at a stern faced man reading across the aisle. She held out her hands for him to take her. After awhile his face lighted up with an answering smile. He took the baby on his lap and played with her hour after hour. As we neared the Smoky City this stern faced man came to me and said: "Young man, I do not know who you are, but here is my card. I am one of the wealthiest men in Milwaukee. I have everything that money can buy, but I have a home without any children. Young man, you can thank God that you have a family. And if you are willing to give me this baby and let me adopt her I will give you a certified check for $50,000, and she shall be my daughter and inherit all that I have." Of course I refused the offer. I told that man there was not enough money in all the treasury of the United States to buy my flesh and blood, and, though you may laugh when I talk about my $50,000 baby, yet I am not putting any higher valuation upon the physical lives of any one of my children than every father sitting before me today would upon his. If we parents thus place so high our physical valuation of our children, shall we not also place just as high the spiritual valuation? Like the pilgrim fathers of old, shall we not rejoice this coming Thanksgiving day because our children are not only living in Christian homes, but also in Christian neighborhoods and under the shadow of the spires of Christian churches? Shall we not rejoice because on account of being born in a Christian land they may the more easily learn to love Christ? Shall we not rejoice that on account of their spiritual advantages after their life's work is done they will associate with us in the great harvest home, where an eternal Thanksgiving day shall be spent in the green pastures and by the still waters of heaven?

The Hope of Meeting Loved Ones.
The pilgrim fathers rejoiced in the hope that they should soon be reunited with their loved ones who were left behind in Leyden. The whole community of pilgrims which in 1610 settled in Leyden did not cross the Atlantic in 1620, as many people suppose. No. Only a small part—120 men, women and children—came first. The vast majority of that community remained behind. And so these American pilgrims on Plymouth's first Thanksgiving day were living in the hope that John Robinson and the absent members of his spiritual flock would soon be by their side. They did not then know that death would first claim their beloved pastor and that his bones would be buried in the little churchyard which his preaching has made world famous and which is today the Mecca of many a pilgrim. They did not realize that most of their earthly friends would never meet beside the waters of the new world. But they did know, and they rejoiced in the knowledge, that, whether at the foot of Plymouth rock or at the foot of the great white throne of God, they would meet again. And if they did not meet again until they were reunited in that better land, then they would there meet to part no more.

My friends, cannot we rejoice in the hope that we are some day going to meet our redeemed loved ones? Can we not rejoice that when we meet them we shall part no more? Thanksgiving day without this blessed belief would be to us a meaningless festival and would be robbed of its chiefest joy. The young people may look forward gladly to the autumnal queen of American festivals as a holiday from school, a day for a football match, a day when they can eat a big turkey dinner, but most of us will think of Thanksgiving dinner as a day for vacant chairs—a day when we would be willing to give all we owned if we could only bring back some who have forever gone from our side.

But with the comfort of the blessed gospel how our sorrows can be turned to joy! Mother, father, brother, sister, husband, wife and child, shall we never, never meet you again? "Yes, yes!" answer the pilgrim fathers. "By the sacred book which we read the morning of the bright autumnal day when we celebrated Plymouth's first Thanksgiving day we can prove it. By the hope with which we parted from our dear ones as we set sail from Holland's shores we would tell thee, troubled hearts of 1902, we shall all, yea all, meet again."

Can we prove that we shall all meet our loved ones in heaven by a better way than the source from which the pilgrim fathers gathered their hope of a final reunion with their absent kindred? Upon the bold, bluff heights overlooking Plymouth harbor American patriotism has erected a colossal statue commemorative of the heroic deeds of these first great ancestors. At the base of the pedestal rest four figures. These symbolize freedom and education and law and morality. But these four figures, though beautiful in themselves, are all sitting at the feet of a gigantic statue called Faith. There Faith stands in midwinter, not only overlooking the surging, angry waters of the mighty deep, but also the halcyon graves of the mighty men whose principles laid the foundation of this nation. There the pilgrims' faith stands, with the opened Bible in one hand and with the other hand pointing upward to where the spirits of the mighty and the redeemed pilgrim fathers have passed to their reward. So at the foot of that mighty statue of Faith with open Bible may we all rejoice in the confident assurance that our Thanksgiving chairs at the family gathering shall not always remain vacant—that we shall all be together in the heavenly reunion.

Thanksgiving a Home Day.
But while studying the history of Plymouth's first Thanksgiving day we must remember that it was not only a day for thanksgiving to God, but also a day made memorable by home enjoyments. The pilgrim fathers opened the day with prayer. They also felt they did not desecrate it when they gathered about the festal board and laughed and joked as well as talked about the great themes of the gospel while they sat at dinner. As far as possible all our people should make next Thanksgiving day a home day as well as a church day, and, as the president of the United States by his Thanksgiving proclamation has signed the death warrants for all the biggest and the fattest turkeys the barnyards have been able to produce in the past summer, let grandfather and grandmother and all the children and the grandchildren meet again in the old homestead. It will not be very long before such gatherings will be an impossibility. In a few years the chief magnets that now draw the children together at Thanksgiving will be gone. Then, as you meet about the great, big roasted turkey, which is the symbol of a Thanksgiving feast, I not only want you to cut the best and the tenderest slices for your mother and father and for your wife, but I also want you to be sure not to forget to cut off a large part of that turkey for the poor. There will be many people next Thursday morning who will have nothing to eat except the plainest kind of food unless the Christian people, out of their abundance, are ready to help them.

Then next Thanksgiving day after you have helped everybody all round and after you have thanked God for all your many blessings, and after you have also worshiped in God's sanctuary, in spirit as your pastor, and as a privileged guest, I want to come into your dining room. And, though you may give different parts of the turkey to the different members of your family, I want you to save one part for me. I want you to save for me the "wishbone," and as I in spirit come among you there I want you to take hold of one side of that wishbone and let me take hold of the other. Then as I pull and break the wishbone and should I get the larger side I want you to let me make this wish: "May the many blessings which God has showered upon you during the last twelve months soften your heart in gratitude to him. May the vacant chairs in your dining room teach you that your earthly time is to be very short. Therefore, may you here and now resolve to love your Master as you have never done before. And in the earthly years that are left to you may you be as faithful in your trust to your home, your wife, your children and to the great world at large as were the pilgrim fathers to the principles which they established. And may the sweet and holy faith of Plymouth's first Thanksgiving day rest and abide with you forever." May God bless us this morning as we use the tear stained and blood reddened rock of Plymouth for a pulpit.

Close To Border Line of Life and Death.

Neuralgia of Heart, Weak Stomach.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Her.

Neuralgia of the heart causes sudden death. It is an acute affection of the cardiac nerve, just as neuralgia is of the nerves of the face, usually, and sciatica is of the nerve trunk of the thigh. One of its most frequent symptoms is derangement of the stomach and liver. Strengthen the heart's action and enrich the blood with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure; tone up the nerves with Restorative Nerve and you will soon be cured.

"Nervous exhaustion and liver trouble so affected my wife's health that she was greatly run down; neuralgia of the heart set in and for a long time she was very close to the border line of life and death. She was attended by two good physicians, who did all they could for her, but in spite of everything she grew worse right along. One day I saw an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure, and the doctor's explanation of the effects of nervous trouble upon the heart seemed so logical that I decided to give the remedies a trial. We now know that the stomach and liver troubles were part of the heart weakness. She improved wonderfully at once. Her appetite picked up, she slept well at night and the pain around her heart rapidly disappeared. Thank God, Dr. Miles' Heart Cure in a few weeks she was able to be up and attend to her household duties, and in a few months every sign of nervous and heart trouble had vanished."

JEWELRY HAS BEEN RECOGNIZED AS THE STANDARD OF ELEGANT GIFTS
THROUGHOUT ALL AGES.

Owing to increasing business and lack of space we moved the first of this year from the store now occupied by Kennerly & Mitchell to our present stand, 129 Main Street, where we are prepared to show our customers the most beautiful and extensive stock we have ever carried. Now is the best time to make your selections as those who wait until the last will have to take the "leavings."

From this time until January 1st, we will put away until called for any article on which a small deposit has been made.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that scabies has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure not known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Best Remedy For Croup. (From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.) This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglar. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and tulu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. Is never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Keller, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by all dealers.

There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis.
