BALTIMORE'S STREETS

And Their Paving. Contractor Declares Bituminous Macadam As Satisfactory As Bitulithic. Allowed in Specifications.

The Baltimore News of Wednesday in relation to street paving in the Monumental city says: "One result of this policy of closer operation between the Commissioners for Opening Streets, the Board of Awards and the Mayor has been an agreement to accept bituminous macadam as a competitive material in future work in the Annex. After a recent conference between the three departments it was deemed advisable to admit this material on the ground that it can be made a strong competitor against bitulithic, the price of which is considered unwarrantably high by city officials. This decision followed an offer made by a contractor to pledge himself to bid as low as $1.77 a square yard on this material, whereas the bitulithic price hangs around $2.50 a square yard. Bituminous macadam, the contractor declares, will be fully as satisfactory as bitulithic, and resembles the latter closely. Further, the contractor agrees that the city shall be secured from any claims by the bitulithic interests that bituminous macadam is an infringement on patent. This material will be allowed in the specifications for the paving of Twenty-fourth street from Maryland avenue to Charles street, a strip ideally located for comparison not only with bitulithic but with sheet asphalt and asphalt blocks."

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. Margaret Belle McCormick, of Maryland Ave., Baltimore, announces the engagement of her only daughter, Helen Bliss, to Prof. B. Edward Jones, of Willards, this county. Miss McCormick, who is considered very attractive is a graduate of the Western Female High School, possesses a vivacious manner and is quite versatile and accomplished. Prof. Jones is the son of the late Thos. A. Jones, of this county; he graduated at the Maryland State Normal School and the University of Law Department and has been admitted to the Baltimore and Salisbury bar. For several years past Prof. Jones has been Principal of the Tighman High School, Tighman, Talbot County, Md. The wedding will take place this month.

It is to be hoped that the City Council will take warning from the experience of other cities and pass, at once, a dog law ordering all dogs running at large to be immediately muzzled. If people in any community see fit to keep useless dogs the lives of innocent children as well as grown people should be protected by a muzzling ordinance and taxation if not the extermination of these canines.

PAVING OF STREETS

In Salisbury Considered By City Council. Difference of Opinion at Representative Hearing.

The meeting of the Council on Monday evening was anything but a tame affair. From the beginning it was evident that those who were before the Council protesting against the placing of contracts for Bitulithic on Division and Camden Streets were very much in earnest, as well as those who were opposed to brick on Division Street from Main to Humphrey's Dam and on Main Street extended. The property owners on these streets were up in force and several arguments were made before the council against the giving out of these contracts.

Sample Bitulithic.

An incident of the evening was a piece of Bitulithic brought up before the council by Mr. E. E. Twilley which he had treated with coal oil causing the cement to dissolve. When the representative of the Bitulithic became cognizant of what was going on, he lost his head and at first denied that the sample on exhibition was a part of his pavement. This caused an uproar for a few minutes when Mr. Twilley assured him that this was a part of the pavement he had given him when Councilman as a sample of his firm's pavements.

The Protests.

Written protests signed by a large majority of the taxpayers along the streets to be paved were presented to the Council in addition to the large personal representation which appeared before the Council. The protests made were based on the great expense of Bitulithic, which those protesting, considered entirely too expensive, and in opposition to brick at any price on account of the great noise made by a pavement of this class. They were in favor of macadam, shells, or some other class of pavement that did not have so much cost attached to it. Speeches were made by Messrs. L. E. Williams, F. Leonard Wallis, Jas. E. Ellegood, E. S. Toadvine and others in opposition to the proposed laying of bitulithic or brick on these streets on the grounds of the great expense that would be incurred both by the property owners along these streets and also to the city direct. It was argued that the size of Salisbury and financial resources of the city were not such as to make advisable the laying of such expensive streets in the residential section of the town, and that the traffic on these streets was not sufficient to make the laying of a street of this class necessary or advisable.

In Favor.

Messrs. W. B. Miller and W. Upshur Polk made speeches in favor of the position taken by the City Council. Mr. Miller was frequently interrupted during the course of his remarks and submitted to a regular fusillade of questions, and an open debate was engaged in by him and some of those opposed to the proposed street paving. The Council adjourned without taking any action beyond promising to give the matter careful consideration before action.

Ordinance—No Contract.

On Tuesday evening the Council held another meeting and asked the necessary ordinance for paving North Division Street and Camden Avenue with Bitulithic and Main Street extended and South Division Streets with brick. It is understood that the Bitulithic people amended their bid from $2.39 to $2.35 per cubic yard. The contracts have not as yet been signed for the pavement.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES

Assembled in Baltimore Wednesday And Elected Delegates To National Convention

The Democratic County Convention was held in the Court House, Monday at noon. Hon. Walter C. Mann was elected Chairman of the Convention which was called to order by Ex-State Senator Marion V. Brewington who in opening the convention took occasion to call attention to the improvement being made by the Board of County Commissioners in our roads. Mr. L. A. Bennett of Parson's District was made secretary. There being no contests in any of the districts no committees were appointed for Credentials. A very strong sentiment for the nomination of Mr. Bryan was apparent among the delegates—as a matter of fact all the sentiment seemed to be one way on this question. Delegates were elected to attend the State Convention held in Baltimore this week and was composed entirely of Bryan men. The Delegates to the County Convention were as follows:

Delegates To Convention.

Barren Creek—Allison E. Elliott, Jas. A. Waller, George W. Bounds. Quantico—Levin J. Gale, Albert L. Jones, Marion Nelson. Tysack—John W. Wingate, Noah H. White, Elmer M. Laugral. Pittsville—James W. Parker, John W. Wells, George A. Shockley. Parsons—James T. Truitt, L. A. Bennett, Thomas Perry. Trappe—Roscoe Jones, L. C. Bounds, J. W. Dashiell. Nutter's—James C. Johnson, John E. Johnson, Alfred Reddish. Salisbury—C. B. Disharoon, James I. Taylor, J. Clayton Kelley. Sharptown—Walter C. Mann, A. W. Robinson, Farnell T. White. Delmar—L. B. Ker, J. Wm. Freeny, E. M. Smith. Nanticoke—C. C. Moore, John F. Phillips, E. M. Efford. Camden—W. J. Staton, S. L. Trader, H. M. Malone. Willard—G. E. Davis, John W. Wilkins, B. R. Heam. On motion of Mr. James T. Truitt the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolutions.

Whereas, William Jennings Bryan in 1896 received 1,312,931 more votes than Cleveland in 1892 and in 1900 1,280,975 more votes than Parker in 1904, it is evident that he is the strongest candidate that can be nominated by the Democratic Party this year.

Resolved, That we the Democrats of Worcester county, in Convention assembled, re-affirm our allegiance to the doctrines of the Party as enunciated by the Democratic Conventions from time to time.

Resolved, That having implicit confidence in the character, honesty of purpose and the Democracy of William Jennings Bryan we respectfully submit, that he should be nominated for the Presidency at the Denver Convention, and to that end instruct our Delegates to the State Convention to be held in Baltimore, to use all efforts to have Maryland's Delegation sent in his favor.

Resolved, that we condemn the extravagance and salary grabbing of the last Congress.

Resolved, That all the rights of the States under the Constitution should be maintained and kept inviolate.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the wise and successful administration of State Affairs under Governor Austin L. Crothers, and the splendid record of the Democratic Legislature at which Session many very excellent laws were enacted, chief among which was the State Road Law. This great measure, inaugurated by Governor Crothers and passed by the Democratic Legislature, will do more to advance the interest and welfare of the whole people of the State than any Legislation passed in the last fifty years. Our Delegation in the last Senate and House are to be congratulated for their support of this measure.

Resolved, That we hereby authorize the delegations to the State and Congressional Conventions to fill any vacancies which may occur among its members.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the Corrupt Practices Act and call on all good citizens to see that same is enforced.

SPEND THE FOURTH

In Salisbury This Year And Help Swell The Expected Crowd. Preparations of Celebration Committee.

To those who had the pleasure of attending the celebration in Salisbury on July 4th last year nothing further need be said but that the celebration will be under the same auspices this year as last and that the celebration this year will by far surpass anything of similar nature that has ever been held in any town on the Eastern Shore. To those that were not present last year we want to say that you missed the time of your life. The celebration last year was a grand success, from start to finish. It exceeded the hopes of the committee that had same in charge, and was well attended. At night last year when the fireworks were about to be started, the steamboat wharf property was literally packed with the citizens of the city and surrounding county.

We are right when we say that those who attended last year can be depended to attend again this. To the Merchants we desire to call attention that on this date—July 4th—we expect to see every store decorated and every residence showing their colors. The committee are hard at work already on the celebration and have received many offers of assistance from the people of the town.

We can hear on every hand remarks about the big time there was in Salisbury some years ago when William J. Bryan spoke here, and there is no reason why these big times should come only once in a decade. The Fourth is the day and should be the day when patriotic citizens lay aside the cares and worries of this life and give themselves entirely over to the enjoyment of the day.

To the out of town people who are looking for a good time on the Fourth we suggest that they also spend the day here and we think, almost know, that they will get what they are looking for. The committee beg to announce that owing to the manner in which the fireworks were received last year, and on account of several requests, there will be another "Fireworks Fund" again this year. This is the only thing that the citizens are asked to help in, and we are sure that this fund will be much larger this year than last, when $100 was raised.

"Spend the Fourth in Salisbury." Committee.

Delegation on the part of some of the State leaders. As it was no instructions of any kind were given, and what the Bryan people had been fighting, the unit rule was not adopted. Delegates were elected to represent Maryland at the National Democratic Convention to be held at Denver. These men will all vote without instruction and are free each to support their favorite for the Presidency. Several Bryan men are on the delegation and the probabilities are that a fair proportion of the men sent votes will be cast for him. One of the unusual incidents of the convention seemed to be the desire on the part of some of the prominent leaders to escape the Denver trip. Resolutions endorsing the Corrupt Practices Act passed by the last Legislature were adopted. The delegates or "Big Four," to Denver are as follows: Governor Austin L. Crothers of Cecil county. Gen. Murray Vandiver of Harford county. Attorney General Isaac Lobe Straus of Baltimore. Congressman J. Fred C. Talbot of Baltimore county. And these are the district delegates: First—Andrew Woodall of Kent county and W. Grason Winterbottom of Dorchester county. Second—Charles H. Dickey of Baltimore county and T. Herbert Shriver of Carroll county. Third—John J. Mahon of the Fourth ward and John Hubert of the Second ward. Fourth—S. S. Field of the Twelfth ward and Daniel J. Lodge of the Nineteenth ward. Fifth—Jackson H. Balston of Prince George's county and J. Frank Smith of St. Mary's county. Sixth—Blair Lee of Montgomery county and G. Semmes Hamill, Jr. of Garrett county. The Democratic Presidential Electors selected are: At-Large—J. Euse Bay of Prince George's, James W. Denny of Baltimore city. First District—E. H. Brown of Queen Anne's. Second District—John F. Williams of Baltimore. Third District—Dr. H. H. Biedler. Fourth District—Peter J. Campbell. Fifth District—William H. Hallow of Calvert. Sixth District—Charles H. Conley of Frederick county. Hon. E. Stanley Toadvine was elected as Secretary of Convention. Hon. Jas. E. Ellegood served as chairman on Resolutions.

TRAIN ACCIDENT

Mr. P. C. Squires, Formerly of Berlin Now At The Hospital. Both Legs Crushed.

When the midnight express came in on Thursday night Mr. P. C. Squires, a commission merchant representing the commission house of Squires & Mackay of Buffalo, N. Y., boarded the train bound for Delmar and in some way, according to his statement, got through the train on the other side falling under the car wheels. Both legs were crushed, one just below the knee and the other above the ankle. Dr. J. McF. Dick was summoned and Mr. Squires carried to the Peninsula Hospital where Dr. Dick assisted by Dr. Morris amputated the crushed limbs. As this was supposed to be a vestibule car it has caused some surprise how Mr. Squires succeeded in going through to the other side. Mr. Squires is now at the Hospital and is reported as getting along very well.

Mr. Squires was formerly from Berlin, before removing to New York State.

ON THE SHORE

Read Building Is Comparatively Easy. Transportation Companies Could Help Largely With Materials.

During the rally of the Good Roads Commission into six of the Eastern Shore counties for the purpose of selecting the roads to be improved under the terms of the loan authorized by the Legislature Engineer W. W. Crosby, who accompanied the Commission, had an opportunity to note the lay of the land and inquire about the materials available for road-building purposes.

Much of this information he already possessed, for some of these counties have taken advantage of the terms of the Shoemaker act in obtaining up-to-date highways, and through his work under its provisions Mr. Crosby had acquired a fair idea of the situation.

"The Eastern Shore," he said, "is a beautiful country, and the task of road-building there is rendered comparatively easy, from an engineering standpoint, by the fact that the problem of grades can be ignored. Little, if any, grading will ever be necessary, as the country is practically flat.

"Materials for road construction offer the most serious difficulty. In many localities gravel even cannot be found. The State will be forced to transport stone, and the transportation will prove expensive. Stone suitable for road building purposes can be found at the headwaters of the bay. In fact, the quarries there are the most available I know of. The materials can either be taken to the Eastern Shore counties in scows or transported by rail.

Want Railroads to Help.
 "In many instances the railroads would deliver the materials much nearer the projected roads than would be possible if scows were used. Transportation by rail would, however, prove very expensive if the Company charged the State the scheduled rate. The Commissioners are very hopeful of obtaining concessions along these lines. The matter has not yet been taken up with the railroad companies in a formal way.

"Good roads are far from being new things on the Eastern Shore. It already has many excellent highways. Oyster shells have been used in some localities and mixtures of earth in others. Caroline is undoubtedly the banner Eastern Shore county in this respect. It has pushed ahead with the improvement of the highways, employing an engineer, Mr. Uhler, to look after the work, and he has obtained wonderfully good results with the materials at his disposal.

"Notwithstanding the scarcity of road-building material, I believe that highways can be built on the Eastern Shore for an outlay no greater than the cost that will be incurred in Southern Maryland, where the necessity of grading will increase the expense.

"When will the dirt begin to fly?" Mr. Crosby was asked.
 "It will be some time yet. When the Commission completes the task of selecting the roads that are to be improved the engineering department will have to get down to the details, and they are immense. Maps and plans will have to be prepared and grades calculated. It will take some time for this.

Will Begin Next Year.
 "The probabilities are that it will not be until next year that road building is commenced on a comprehensive plan, but some short links in the chain—places offering the least difficulties—may be constructed in the fall.

"How will the work be done—by contract or by day labor?"
 "That, of course, is for the Commission to decide," said Mr. Crosby. "But I rather imagine that it will not permit itself to be bound to any one plan. Specifications for bids probably will be advertised, but if the terms submitted are not satisfactory the Commission may try to go ahead with the work by employing day labor. The idea will be to meet every situation as it arises with the method that seems fit the particular case."

"Did the Commission have any great difficulty in deciding on routes on the Eastern Shore that would be satisfactory to the people."
 "The problem," said Mr. Crosby, "was not as easy as it was in Southern Maryland. Many of the people argued for the wharf roads, but when it was explained to them that the law called for a connected system of highways they got together readily on the roads upon which the money ought to be spent. The highways selected will aid the hauls to the wharves, for in making the choice the Commission kept in mind the fact that these roads were used probably more than any others, and planned accordingly. The people will, I believe, be satisfied with the conclusions."

MAYOR'S MESSAGE

Mr. Harper Reviews City's Condition and Makes Some Desirable Recommendations.

Salisbury, Md., June 1st, 1908.
 To the Honorable City Council of Salisbury, Maryland, Maryland, Gentlemen:—In compliance with the provisions of the Charter of Salisbury, Maryland, I have the honor to submit to you for your consideration a brief report of the condition of our city, and at the same time make a few suggestions and recommendations as it occurs to me will be for the betterment and advancement of the interests of our city. Salisbury has reached such proportions in size and interests that it is no longer a village, but a city, and the responsibility that rest upon us as its law making and law executing body, and as the questions which come before you from time to time are of such financial moment that they should be approached with due deliberation, broad-mindedness and due consideration for the best interests and welfare of all its citizens. I desire in the beginning to commend your Honorable Body for the able and business like manner in which you have conducted the affairs of the City for the past year, and extend to the retiring members of the City Council my hearty commendations and speak for their successors an equally excellent record of office. I want to express my sincere thanks to the retiring members of the Council for their cooperation and assistance during the past year in putting into execution some very commendable improvements and advancing the commercial interests of our city, and trust that the same hearty cooperation may characterize your administration.

Street Improvement.
 There has been a marked improvement in the streets under the supervision of Street Commissioner Sirman, and by his energy and ability has brought about a condition in our thoroughfares, considering the immense amount of traffic thereon that compare favorably with the conditions existing in the last several years. As the condition of our streets and the commercial advancement of our town gives it prestige with the surrounding Counties and State, I advise that all money available be expended in that direction, having due regard however to our income and financial condition. I desire especially to call your attention to the deplorable condition of our sidewalks in general. The irregularity of our sidewalks and their bad condition gives to those visiting our City a bad impression as to the progress and personal pride of our city. I suggest that necessary ordinances be passed providing that all sidewalks be repaired, be paved, and that those not paved, be repaired, and that those ordinances when passed be enforced. Parties failing to comply with the provisions of the ordinance, shall be liable to be immediately compelled by the Council having said sidewalks repaired or laid and the cost for same be collected out of the abutting property owner.

I also suggest that the law relative to the grade of sidewalks be strictly enforced because thereby can only uniformity be secured in the grade of our sidewalks. The sidewalks on Main Street and East Church street should be raised as high as possible to conform to the present street grade. I would also suggest a removal from the sidewalks on certain streets in our city of all awning supports, to the edge of the sidewalk.

There has been during the past year a great deal of substantial improvement in our city along the line of street building, in placing upon its various thoroughfares about 100,000 barrels of asphalt, in laying about one mile of sewers. This is a step in the right direction and a more commendable and judicious expenditure of the city's money cannot be made. It is important to the health of its citizens and the maintenance of its streets by proper drainage. I would also suggest for the better drainage of our streets that a system of brick and cement gutters be installed in all streets possible to conform to the present street grade. Lack of this character of drainage is very detrimental to our streets.

I am especially gratified to note the general observance of our laws relative to peace and good order on the part of our citizens, and desire to commend the Police Department for its vigilance in bringing about these good results. Speakeasies and crap shooting are fast disappearing from our midst because of the efficient manner in which the Police Department is performing its duties. There has been however a laxness on the part of our Police in the enforcement of the City Ordinances but there is an improvement along this line at the present time, which I trust will continue and the Police Department will recognize the fact that their appointment is primarily for the enforcement of our ordinances and secondarily for the enforcement of other laws.

During the past four years of my administration I have viewed with some pride the paving of our principal thoroughfares with brick, and the establishment of a more efficient water service, and also the installation of electric lights in the city, for these things I desire to commend the retiring City Council and trust that your Honorable Body will maintain the same spirit of progressiveness. We are now considering the extension of our sewerage system to the commercial and sanitary improvement of the City, and have due consideration for the wishes of its citizens.

Fire Department.
 I desire to commend also for your consideration our very efficient volunteer Fire Department, and whatever can be done for its advancement and welfare, showing a due appreciation on the part of the Council for this organization that sacrifices its time and resources for the protection of the lives and property of our citizens. All proper requests, from this organization, looking to a more efficient department should be favorably considered by your Honorable Body.

Prize Fights and Dogs.
 I desire to recommend the speedy passage of ordinances regarding Prize-fighting and the license system generally. The dog question is before us for solution, and the same is, as it has been in the past a nuisance, and should be regulated. Stray dogs should be taken to rid our City of the tramp dog, and the better class of dogs as well, should their owners not think enough of their welfare to prevent them from becoming a nuisance to our citizens. I advance the passage of such an ordinance as will permit our officers to use means that justify the one in exterminating noisy and vicious dogs. If, however, an ordinance be passed creating the position of the dog catcher whose duties shall be defined by the Mayor and Council to the effect of properly solving this question. The proper regulation of these various questions speaks well for a City and is an impetus to progress. People selecting a home look to the sanitary conditions and other similar conditions in a City before deciding as to their locating there. I note with some degree of pride that during the past year your Honorable Body has granted 160 building permits, and about an equal number granted each year for the past three or four years, which I trust will continue. This shows the thrift and energy and spirit of progressiveness that animate the citizens of our City.

Finances.
 The financial condition of our City is very favorable. All bills are paid promptly, and a very small bond indebtedness exists, outside of the bond indebtedness for the recent street improvements. We still have a fair surplus in our treasury. This speaks well for the able management of our City's affairs by its Council. I bespeak for you a successful term of office, and tender you my hearty cooperation in all matters pertaining to the advancement and betterment of our City's welfare, and I hope and believe that this same spirit of cooperation will be extended to me on your part in seeing that the affairs of the City are properly managed and its Law and Ordinances are properly enforced. Respectfully submitted,
 Chas. E. Harper,
 Mayor of Salisbury, Maryland.

FOUND CUTICURA INDISPENSABLE

For Her Children—Little Girls Suffered with Itching Eczema Which Simply Covered Back of Head—Baby Had a Tender Skin, Too.

ALL PROMPTLY CURED BY "WONDERFUL OINTMENT"

"Some years ago my three little girls had a very bad form of eczema. Itching eruptions formed on the backs of their heads which were simply covered. Before I heard of Cuticura, I used to try to do everything, but they failed. I then heard of Cuticura and immediately purchased it. I washed my children's heads with Cuticura Soap and then applied the wonderful ointment, Cuticura. I did this four or five times and the eczema had been entirely cured. I have another baby who is so plump that the folds of skin on her neck were broken and even itched. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and the next morning the trouble had disappeared. I am using the Cuticura Remedies yet whenever any of my family have any sores, I can never recommend Cuticura sufficiently; it is indispensable in every home. I cannot find its equal."
 Mrs. E. F. Ryder, West Brewster, Mass., April 20, 1907.

PAINFUL ULCER

On Foot for a Year. Healed by Two Sets of Cuticura

"I had an ulcer on my foot for a year or more and it was very painful as it was a running sore. I consulted a doctor, but his treatment did not heal it. About eight months ago I commenced to use Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. I used two sets and it is now all healed up. Mrs. E. F. Ryder, West Brewster, Mass., April 20, 1907.

Mr. Shipper, Do You Want To Save Money?

Our new commission plan saves you more money than a bank will do. Banks pay 3 per cent. interest annually. Our new commission plan will pay you 3 per cent. every day. Formerly it has been our policy to employ agents at your wharf to solicit berry and like truck shipments, for which 8 per cent. was charged to you for solicitor. Of this 8 per cent. charged, the agent got 3 per cent. This rule has been abolished the coming season by our house. We've put a new plan into effect.

Here's The Plan

Showing How You Will Save, Illustrated Below:

Instead of employing agents and paying them 3 per cent. for soliciting shipments for our house this season, we have dispensed with their services. Your shipments will accordingly be sold by us this season for 5 PER CENT. COMMISSION, instead of 8 per cent. formerly charged, saving you 3 per cent. commission every day you send your shipments to our house. At the same time you are guaranteed to get as much, if not more, money than any house here can sell for. Below is an example of the way you will save. Say you ship 10 crates of berries, 60 quarts each; they sell 10c a quart.

THE OLD PLAN.		OUR NEW PLAN.
10 Cr. Ber., 60's=600 Qts., @ 10c.....	$60.00	10 Cr. Ber., 60's=600 Qts., @ 10c.....	$60.00
8 per Cent. Commission.....	$4.80	5 Per Cent. Commission.....	$3.00
Check to you (old plan).....	$64.80	Check to you (new plan).....	$57.00

On ten crates of berries you save $1.80 in commission when your shipments are sent to us this season. If you ship one hundred crates, you make $18.00.

The story, tersely told, means this: All the money that the agents have been putting in their pockets each year—and which you have been paying—you can now put into your pocket through our new commission plan. Are you growing crops for the agent's benefit? No. Then write to us for tags today; send your shipments to our house—we can sell them profitably for you.

Plan for Summer Comfort

Don't add the heat of a kitchen fire to the sufficient discomfort of hot weather. Use a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove and cook in comfort. With a "New Perfection" Oil Stove the preparation of daily meals, or the big weekly "baking," is done without raising the temperature perceptibly above that of any other room in the house. If you once have experience with the

you will be amazed at the restful way in which it enables you to do work that has heretofore overheated the kitchen and yourself. The "New Perfection" Stove is ideal for summer use. Made in three sizes and all warranted. If not at your dealer's, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp gives perfect combustion whether high or low—is therefore free from disagreeable odor and cannot smoke. Safe, convenient, ornamental—the ideal light. If not at your dealer's, write our nearest agency.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicine. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merit, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

Beer Invasion of China.
Only second to British opium among the perils that beset China is American beer. China has been a Prohibition country from the fourth century. Exceptions have sometimes been made for the use of rice wine as a holiday confection, but nothing corresponding to the American saloon and the daily tipping of our Anglo-Saxon races has yet developed in China. J. B. Angell, our former Ambassador to Peking, wrote the International Reform Bureau that he did not see three drunken Chinamen in Peking in a year. But now American brewers are buying China, and "young China" thinks to prove its progressiveness by smoking cigarettes, whistling and drinking beer. The brewers are of course bull-dozing the Chinese with their bare-faced falsehoods about beer being a "temperance drink."

Saturday Night Talks

By F. E. DAVISON — RUTLAND VT.
INFALLIBLE PROOFS.
June 7, '08.—(John 20:19-31.)

The Bible is a biography and profane history also attests and makes us as absolutely certain of His incarnation and earthly existence as of Napoleon's.
The fact is established by documentary evidence that Jesus Christ was put to death and buried in Joseph's new tomb. So His enemies admit; so the Roman soldiers officially announced to Pilate; so the Centurion doubtfully authenticated; Jews were witnesses of the fact; seals were added to the rock; guards were stationed; death was assisted in his tomb imprisonment by armed soldiers. Pilate said, "Make it sure."
Another fact is incontrovertible. His disciples, that poor little band of believers who did not number more than 500 possibly, whose faith had been crushed, whose hopes had been extinguished, whose lives had been baffled, inside of a week became a believing, hopeful, loving, happy body of men and women unanimously declaring that the crucified Christ had come back from the grave alive forevermore. In the face of Caliph and the scribes and the Pharisees and the hundreds who had seen him hanging on the cross they persistently declared that he lived and walked with them for forty days. Five hundred witnesses stood ready to prove it. And not a scribe, not a Pharise, and not a priest, not a Jew, arose to declare or even to intimate that it was false, and to produce the evidence to show it false.
It was true, and they knew it, and by their silence they confessed it. Jesus had risen from the dead. He arose; the weeping Marys who appeared on that Sunday morning to embalm the crucified to find no dead body in the tomb confess it. The angels who were witnesses of the resurrection, testify to it. The Roman soldiers who framed a lie to explain the inexplicable, swear to it. The broken seals, the open sepulchre, the folded grave clothes, are silent evidences of it. The doubting Peter vouches for it. The 500 witnesses in the grove meetings at Galilee attest it. And all His enemies for hundreds of years admit "Christ is risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that sleep."
Notice some characteristics of the appearances. — It is to be noticed that as He was born of woman and not of man, His first appearance was to one woman and His second to several women, that His third was to two, thus gradually preparing the hearts and minds of His disciples for His reception in a body; that His fifth was apparently for the most hesitating of the company of His followers; and that two of the appearances were in sight of Nazareth, where He had lived and labored, and that the last was in sight of Bethlehem, where He was born, of Gethsemane where He had agonized, and Golgotha where He had been put to death.
Or take it another way. He appeared to Mary; Love is immortal. He appeared to the other women; immortal love honors by giving service. He appeared to Peter; immortal Love forgives. He appeared to the disciples on the way to Emmaus; immortal love sympathizes. He appeared to Thomas; immortal Love is tender of honest doubt. He appeared to the 500 at once; immortal Love comes up from the grave and pauses on its way back to the thrones, to give comfort and relief to grief, perplexity, penitence and doubt.
He was the same—and yet different. He came without announcement and went without advice. No one knew how or where. He acted as though He were at length independent of latitude or longitude, of space or dimensions. He was at home in God's universe, always at home everywhere. In His vision He grew to be not a Jewish Rabbi but the King of the Kingdom of Heaven. And when at length He was caught up out of their sight they went forth to preach to men everywhere that this was He who was dead, but is alive again, and behold, He is alive forevermore.
Back of the gloom—The bloom!
Back of the strife—Sweet life.
And flowering meadows that glow and gleam
Where the winds sing joy and the daisies dream,
And the sunbeams color the quickening cloud,
And faith in the future and trust in God.
Back of the gloom—The bloom!
Fronting the night—The light!
Under the snows—The rose!
And the valleys sing joy to the misty hills,
And the wild winds ripple it down the rills;
And the far stars answer the song
With all the music of all the bells!

THE TAX RATE FOR 1908

County Commissioners Fix The Rate After All Night Session, Provided For The Schools.

The County Commissioners met Monday and Tuesday for the purpose of figuring up the expenses of the county for the year and fixing the tax rate for 1908. After going over all the expenses the Commissioners decided to fix the rate for county purposes at $1, which is an increase of 16 cents over last year, when the rate was lowered about seven cents. This rate is made up to meet the demands of the public for improvements along the lines of good roads and good schools. For the past several months delegations have been before the Commissioners asking for new school houses and repairs to many school buildings. It was impossible to meet all these demands at once. The Commissioners had also to deal with the question of complying with the new School Law in reference to teachers' salaries, which makes an increase in the school expenses of about $5,000 per year. The item for public schools in this levy amounts in total to $38,000.00, $30,000.00 of this is for maintenance and $5,000.00 for new buildings and repairs to old school houses. Besides this the Commissioners had to provide an item of $2,500.00 for retirement and interest on high school bonds. During the year they paid a note of over three thousand dollars from the surplus, the remaining floating indebtedness on the Wicomico High School. Of course the $5,000 appropriated for new schools and repairs will not meet all the demands, but the Commissioners intend to make an appropriation each year for the repair and building of schools so that the work will progress all the time and things be kept in better shape.
The demands upon the Commissioners for roads and bridges have also been heavy and while they have spent about $30,000.00 on these items during the year, which is quite liberal, they have not been able to do everything which the public demanded, but are progressing all the time along this line. During the year many substantial culverts have been built and old bridges dispensed with. The repairs to steel roads have been a very expensive item and about one-half mile of new shell road have been constructed. It is the intention to provide for permanent improvements in the way of culverts and drains rather than the flimsy makeshifts of former years.
The assessable basis of Wicomico County is gradually increasing and this year it was swelled quite considerably. At a rate of 100 cents on the $100.00 on the basis of $3,728,384.00 the county will receive something over $37,000.00. The State tax is 18 cents, which added to the $1.00 makes a total rate of $1.18 on the $100.00. Several very large items had to be provided for in this levy. In the first place the school appropriation was increased from $16,000.00, as given last year to $25,000.00, which is a matter of $9,000.00, or about 10 cents of the increase of the 16 cents. It will be noticed that an item of $6,000.00 appears for bridges and the Commissioners have set aside this year $34,977 for building roads. This item has not been levied in former years, but has always been levied as a deficiency in the succeeding year. It is the intention of the Commissioners to use our proportion of the State money under the Shoemaker Act, every year, which will entail a cost of about $10,000.00 on the county for building new roads under that Act, outside of the other road expenses.

Refuses to Take Liquor Men.
The Vegte Society, which is the leading Swedish organization in New Britain, has taken an important step. It has changed its regulations so that in the future it will not admit to membership any one in the liquor business. This means bartenders and other employees as well as saloon-keepers. The reason for the action is that the society, which is a sick organization, has been put to a heavy burden by members who have been down in health. It has necessitated a constant drain on the treasury to pay them benefits.—Hartford Courant.

Alcohol in French Army.
French medical authorities point out that the gradual diminution of the size and height of the French conscripts is owing to the use of alcoholic drinks. The army standard has had to be reduced twice on this account. The physical deterioration of the German army, as compared with what it was thirty years ago, has excited the alarm of the Emperor. All authorities attribute it to alcohol.

Working in the Right Path.
One of the great truths taught at the gates of Eden is that we are not in favor of purifying their city of all corruption, vice and lawlessness, are unworthy of the suffrages of a civilized people.
The liquor traffic renders it hard for people to do right, and easy for them to do wrong; while the purpose of government is to render it easy to do right and difficult to do wrong.—Dr. Swallow.

Dangerous Drunken Men.
In 1902 there were 16,000 policemen in London, and 3,000 of them were injured in the course of their work. Of these, 1,625 were injured by drunken men; dogs injured sixty-eight, traffic forty, fire twenty, and disorderly crowds eight. So they could see that the drunken men were more dangerous to the police than all the fires and mad-dogs.—Facts and Figures.

Alcohol Produces.
Dr. Sawyer, of the St. Vincent Institution in St. Louis, says: "It can be asserted with great certainty that the boy who commenced to use cigarettes at ten will drink beer and whisky at fourteen, take morphine at twenty-five, and spend the rest of his lifetime alternating between opium, spirits and opium."

The Government of Honduras has prohibited the importation of bottles, rum and anisado in barrels, casks or demijohns.
A man may be driven to drink by worry, but any worry he has in the process will be found by his wife and children.
"Nothing would frighten the devil more than to have some church members live up to their professions."

No Need of Suffering from Rheumatism.
It is a mistake to allow Rheumatism to become chronic, as the pain can always be relieved, and in most cases a cure effected by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes sleep and rest possible. Even in cases of long standing this liniment should be used on account of the relief which it affords. 25c and 50c sizes for sale at Toulson's drug store.

PROPOSED STREET PAVING.

The question of paving our streets is an economic question, pure and simple, and should be so looked upon by the City Council and the Taxpayers, and material used which in the long run will be cheaper to the city.

The essential thing in deciding which is the most economical pavement to be used is to ascertain what the traffic on the streets proposed to be paved, calls for: this we understand has never been done.

The only information upon this subject, as far as we have been able to learn, is the individual opinion of some that the traffic is very heavy. This at best is only an opinion not backed up by figures and is easily counterbalanced by opinion of others who do not think the traffic heavy enough to justify an expensive pavement.

It will be admitted by all that the use of brick or bitulithic on all the streets of Salisbury would be financial suicide, the traffic on some of them certainly not being of sufficient volume to justify such a large outlay in original cost.

The question arises whether or not any of our residential streets carry a sufficient amount of traffic on their beds to justify the putting down of a pavement, the first cost of which is as heavy as that of brick or bitulithic. It certainly would seem to be the proper course to pursue to find first, as near as possible the traffic on these streets and then consider a pavement which will meet this demand. Without this information it is hard to see how an intelligent conclusion can be arrived at.

The consideration of the class and grade of a pavement before you know the requirements of the streets seems like putting the cart before the horse.

We understand that the various cities have had statements prepared showing the amount of traffic on the various streets, and upon this compilation the street commissioners decide the character of the pavements to be used as indicated by the amount of traffic.

After proper steps have been taken to ascertain the traffic on the streets in Salisbury, proposed to be paved, and if they should indicate a pavement of the character of brick or bitulithic, by showing that the wear and tear on these streets is such as to justify the use of these materials, and make their use the best economy, then neither the tax payers or the Council should hesitate about putting them down. But in the minds of those who have opposed the putting down of this class of pavement there is a reasonable ground for doubt and difference of opinion on this subject.

Another point upon which there is considerable dissatisfaction among the citizens is the question of supervising the pavement construction. Without entering into the merits of the question at all there is unquestionably a great deal of opposition to having it under the same supervision that the laying of our brick streets were under.

It is stated, the old Council entered into a contract with the engineer for the laying of the streets now proposed as well as the brick already laid and it would seem to be the part of wisdom on the part of Council to try and straighten out this matter before going any further with the work, unless they are satisfied with the services of the present engineer.

It looks reasonable that this matter could be adjusted more quickly and satisfactorily with the contracts unsigned and unpledged than could be done with the work under way.

While it is a principle that we all must acknowledge, that private interests must not be considered before public welfare, yet when the burden will fall as heavily as the cost of paving some of these streets will fall upon some of the property owners, it behooves those in charge to be very careful and sure the burden is for the best interests of all concerned before it is imposed.

Our Council is composed of men who stand high in our business and financial circles, whose honesty and integrity are beyond question, and who in whatever they do will only have, what they consider the best interests of the city at heart.

We respectfully submit to these men that in view of the high price bit on bitulithic and brick, in view of the strong opposition of the property owners along the streets to the proposed pavement, in view of the doubt with the information at hand of the requirements of the traffic on these streets, and the status of the engineer question the best policy would be to turn down the contracts proposed at the present time.

SHOCKLEY FOR ENGINEER.

County Surveyor Peter S. Shockley has made an offer to supervise the proposed paving of the streets of Salisbury. Mr. Shockley offers to supervise this work and employ a competent engineer to assist him in the work on a three per cent basis. The present contract with Mr. Hatton calls for a five per cent commission. The acceptance of Mr. Shockley's offer would mean a considerable saving to the city, and besides that would give entire satisfaction to the taxpayers and citizens, who have entire confidence in his ability and integrity. His appointment would assure the people that their interest would be carefully taken care of. Mr. Shockley's letter to the Council is as follows:

To the Mayor and Council of Salisbury Gentlemen:—My friends being desirous that I should engineer the paving work soon to be done in this town, I have decided to make you this offer: I will superintend the work for three per cent. of the cost of the job, (3) and as I do not think one man can lay out the work and properly attend to the construction work at the same time, I propose to hire an assistant, at my own expense, who shall, if possible, be a good engineer, who has had the necessary experience in street paving to answer all purposes.

Very truly yours, P. S. Shockley.

SUMMER FASHIONS

From New York. Frocks For The Girl Graduate; Lingerie Gowns; Wedding And Bridesmaids Dresses; Outing Hats; Coats of Lace Or Embroidery.

June is the month dedicated to the "sweet girl graduate" as well as the bride. And very charming are this season's graduating gowns simple and girlish in the extreme but yet, when made by a good dressmaker, possessing a chic that is all their own. Sheer materials are the prettiest, and lawn, batiste, India linen, swiss, mull, etc., are appropriate. A very simple yet most effective gown is of embroidered Swiss, the skirt made with a very narrow gored front with the fullness tucked to yoke depth on each side of this. It is trimmed with two very wide bands of Cluny insertion, one just above the hem and the other about six inches farther up. The waist has a round yoke of Valenciennes allover and has the fullness below this striped with narrower Cluny insertion. The same insertion also runs down the outside of the short sleeves.

The Empire Waist Line.

The Empire waist line has invaded the province of the lingerie frock and here as elsewhere, one finds a shortened waist the rule, though there are of course exceptions and princess dresses with natural waist lines still have a decided vogue. India linen, batiste and mull are the materials usually chosen for these frocks and Valenciennes, Cluny and baby Irish are the laces used to trim them. In these imported frocks a great deal of applique is seen and so beautifully is it put on the costume that it is difficult to tell it from hand embroidery.

New Lingerie and Outing Hats.

This summer's lingerie hat is in the Charlotte Corday shape with lace or embroidery ruffles fall in most becomingly about the face. These hats are trimmed with big bows of ribbon or bunches of roses or other summer flowers. A particularly smart model is made of allover lace, draped over a wire frame with double ruffles of the material edged with Valenciennes. It has a band of black velvet ribbon around the softly draped crown and a big bunch of pink roses at the left side of the front.

The Panama outing hat, simply trimmed with a fancy scarf twisted around the crown with fringed ends hanging down the back, is the proper thing for general wear at the seashore and mountains this summer. There are also hats of white and light gray felt that are considered very smart indeed for the same purpose.

The June Bride.

Dresses for the June bride are picturesque in the extreme. The materials used are all soft and supple and even when satin is chosen for the wedding gown it is of the pliable variety, the kind that "can stand alone" being hopelessly out of date. For the bridesmaid there are an endless variety of styles to choose from in this day of many modes. The Directorate styles, which are decidedly prominent this season are charming for the purpose. The skirt of some sheer material like mousseline-de-soie or chiffon with a Directorate coat and waistcoat of satin is extremely effective.

White Serge Suits.

The white serge tailor suit is very fashionable for street wear at the present moment in New York or for wear at the various summer resorts. In the newest tailored suits of linen considerable use is being made of cretonne trimmings. There are waistcoats of cretonne, or the gaily printed cottons, either in cashmere or conventionalized floral patterns, face the collar and cuffs of the jacket.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters as rapidly as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial Houses, $2.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10 cents per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights not needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

PEACEFUL INDUSTRIES

War Slays Its Thousands, Peace Ten Thousands.

COAL MINE DISASTERS

The Country Has Been particularly Shocked by Them Recently—Four Happened Within a Period of a Few Weeks, in Which 700 Lives Were Lost.

War slays its thousands and peace its ten thousands. For the year 1906 the Interstate Commerce Commission reported the number of railway accidents in the United States as 108,224—a total greater than all the casualties of the Boer War, which lasted three years. The records of the Public Service Commission show that 165 people were killed by street cars, elevated, steam and subway trains in New York City in the three months ending November 30th, 1907, and that 500 more were seriously injured. These figures have attracted much attention but they do not prove that the railroads are sinners above all the industrial agencies of the country. On the contrary, there are many more accidents in factories and in the building trades than on the railroads, but their vast total is not appreciated because it is the duty of the statistician to record them accurately. Only one State, New York has made any serious attempt to gather accurate figures relating to the loss of life by industrial accidents. On the basis of a report of the commissioner of labor, made a number of years ago, it is computed that the industrial accident rate in the factories of New York State reaches the appalling figures of 44 to 1,000, and that more than 232,000 factory employees are killed or injured every year in the United States. Mining and railway casualties bring the total of slaughter, mutilation, and other injuries up to more than 524,000 cases annually—a record which makes that of any twelvemonth in the history of war pale into insignificance. The entire losses, in killed and wounded in the Russo-Japanese War were 33,786.

The country has been particularly shocked of late by the succession of coal mine disasters—four within a period of a few weeks—in which about seven hundred lives were lost; and the recent execution of this dreadful death-toll lends special interest to the report on coal-mine accidents which has just been issued by the United States Geological Survey. This states that in the year 1904 nearly seven thousand men were killed or injured in the coal mines of the United States, and that the number of mine explosions has been steadily increasing. This increase is said to be due in part to the lack of properly enforceable safety regulations, which are insisted upon in European countries, particularly in France, where the accident death-rate among coal-miners, is less than one to every thousand employed; the American ratio is 3 to 1,000, being three and one-half times that of Belgium and higher than that of either Prussia or Great Britain. One of the devices employed in German mines for the rescue of miners caught in suffocating gases consists of an air-tight mask fitting over eyes, nose and mouth and connected by tubes with reservoirs of oxygen.

The amelioration of the horrors of peace should be regarded as equally important with the amelioration of the horrors of war. Some foreign philanthropists view it in this light, and not only have they induced employers and the governments of their respective countries to take action resulting in the installation of protective devices of many sorts, but they have established several institutions in which the most improved of these devices are kept on exhibition for the benefit of employers and work people. A similar work has been undertaken in this country by the American Museum of Safety Devices and Industrial Hygiene, which maintains a permanent free exhibition at No. 231 West Thirty-ninth Street, New York, where the management is demonstrating to employers the economy—to say nothing of the higher considerations—of insuring the safety of their work-people.

Production of Gold.

The production of gold in the United States during 1906 was $94,873,800, as against $88,180,700 for 1905, a gain in 1906 of $6,693,100. The principal gain was in Alaska which amounted to $6,429,600. Nevada's gain in gold was $9,919,500, Oregon's, $75,200; Arizona's, $55,800. The greatest loss in gold production by any State was in Colorado, where there was a decrease of $2,766,700.

The Roman stock exchange attacked by a dynamite bomb is stated to have been located in the ancient temple of Neptune. In this country our stock operators do not have to seek the aid of Neptune. They can furnish all the water they want themselves.

Massachusetts Densely Populated. Massachusetts is the most densely populated State of the Union, having about 260 inhabitants per square mile.

Work of Sand Dunes. It is stated that along the Lincolnshire Coast the sand dunes which fringe the shore are moving steadily inland. This, says the London Globe, is due to the wind from the sea blowing the sand from the face of the hills over to the back. At Malborough it is said that two acres of the property of individuals have thus been buried in sand. And at Anderby what used to be a field behind the dunes is now a sandy waste 40 yards in front.

DOG AGENTS FOR CHARITY.

Some Railroad Animals Collect $200 in a Year.

Among the different funds established by the Great Western Railway Company for the benefit of their employees, the "widows and orphans fund" has become familiar to the traveling public through the instrumentality of the company's collecting dogs. The sum collected by the dogs amounts to between £200 and £300 per annum, and provides enough to meet the assistance given by the institution to about 25 widows out of about 1,500 who are dependent on the fund. Some of the dogs earn as much as £30 or £40 a year; others are not so successful. A great deal depends upon the characteristics of the animal and much upon the way in which it is trained. The most famous of the Great Western Railway collecting dogs, says the Great Western Railway Magazine, was undoubtedly Tim of Paddington, which collected at that station for a number of years. He has been dead a few years now, but his preserved remains are to be seen in a glass case on the principal departure platform, where he continues to appeal to the public on behalf of the widows and orphans. In May, 1906, he was by special command of the late Queen Victoria honored by a presentation to her Majesty at Paddington Station, and in February, 1901, he was similarly honored by a presentation to his Majesty King Edward VII. He has earned for the fund considerably more than £1,000.

Another collecting dog—Jim—was brought to Slough Station when a few weeks old. He was like a ball of wool and could be put into one's pocket. He was very carefully trained. The first thing taught him was to get over the steps of the footbridge, and he never afterward once crossed the metals. He commenced collecting when about four months old. After a time he was taught to bark when he received a coin, which little recognition caused a great deal of amusement to his numerous patrons. One Sunday a hospital parade was organized at Southall, and Jim was taken there to collect. When his boxes were opened they were found to contain 265 coins. Considering that he gave a bark for each one, this must be regarded as a good afternoon's work. He died suddenly in his harness in 1896 and was afterward placed in a glass case on the platform by voluntary contributions from residents in Slough and the station staff. Including the contributions placed in his box since his death, his earnings amount to more than £100.

In a few instances the dog at a station is owned and cared for by a single individual, but generally is regarded as belonging to all the staff. The animals are invariably well looked after and kindly treated. It is sufficient to say in favor of this method of helping the widows and orphans of the Great Western dogs had up to the end of last year been successful in collecting nearly £3,000.

RIGHTS OF DOGS.

They Are Vastly Inferior to Those of Human Beings.

It is interesting to learn that there are countries—not our own where hydrophobia is unknown. A United States consul at Calcutta, India, reports to the department of commerce at Washington that the Pasteur Institutes at Kasauli and Coonoor are the only two in the British empire. There is little occasion for any institute of the character in the United Kingdom for the reason that rabies has been stamped out in England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, says the New Orleans Picayune. The dog regulations of England have been so stringent that no case of rabies has occurred for years, and the regulations covering the importation of dogs are so severe that the introduction of the disease is well-nigh impossible. Australia and New Zealand are practically free from rabies, and have strict laws regulating the importation of dogs. South Africa and Canada are not so well situated, owing to the existence of wolves, foxes and jackals, and wild dogs in those countries, some of which are peculiarly liable to rabies.

In our country the wonder is that rabies is not more common than it is. Not a few Americans love their dogs better than they love their own children, and many more would sacrifice their neighbor's children to save a cherished dog. But while not complaining of anybody's love of dogs, there ought to be strict laws holding owners responsible for their dogs' unprovoked attacks on human beings. Every dog is entitled to his day, but he should have no privilege before the law superior to those of the people. Every dog that attacks people in the streets should be by that forfeit his life.—Pittsburg Gazette.

Physician—Your boy will pull through all right. He has a wonderful constitution.

Mr. Tyte-Phil—I am glad to hear it, doctor. In making out your bill, if course, you will not make me pay for what this constitution has done in gulling him through.

Value of Bokhara Clover.

Bokhara clover is not cultivated to any extent in this country as yet, though it deserves to be. As a bee-plant, few flowers excel it. It is a very good plant for reaping the fertility of worn-out misused farming land for it will grow where other clovers refuse to grow at all. It is good for planting along railway cuts and embankments to prevent washing of the soil. It contains a large amount of carminin as a substitute for vanilla.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalence of Kidney Disease. Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patients, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that "Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fills the system with curative medicine, pain in the back, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get open during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, without cost, by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. AILMENTS OF WORKERS

Maladies Peculiar to Certain Forms of Trade.

NUMBER IS INCREASING

They Range From Bends to Writer's Cramp—Ship Engineers, Preachers, Stonecutters, Weavers, All Subject to Maladies Caused by Their Occupation.

Last year, probably 500 men in America and Europe died of the bends, and what is that? Simply a malady caused by breathing air at high pressure. In building tunnels and excavating for piers it is necessary to send men down into caissons in which the air, instead of being at its ordinary pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch, is at 50 or 100 pounds. Few men can stand this pressure long and even those that can ordinarily suffer alarming after effects. Coming out into the open air again their ankles and knees swell, they vomit and there are agonizing pains in their heads. Some times they sink into a comatose state and die.

Fortunately modern medicine tries to keep pace with modern maladies, and so it is usually possible to cure this disease. It is due as a rule to the fact that the transition from the outer air to the caisson, or vice versa, is made too rapidly.

The man who toposes over in agony after leaving a caisson is sent back and the pressure is reduced very slowly. In Europe, the tunnel and bridge builders maintain special chambers for this purpose. As a result the mortality in bends has been reduced to 3 per cent.

Unfortunately there are other occupations diseases which present greater difficulties. Some of them in truth may be cured only by the patient abandoning his trade.

One of these is chalicosis, which is a malady of the lung. It is caused by breathing great quantities of stone dust. You have often observed no doubt, that when a marble or stone building nears completion men go all over its surface with sandblasts, cleaning and smoothing the stone. Well, these blasts send up a cloud of finely powdered stone and the workmen are forced to breathe it.

At first their bronchial tubes make a brave effort to expel the dust and they cough a great deal. But by and by the little scavengers in the vestibules of the lungs are overcome and the minute particles of stone begin to invade the lungs themselves. The result is chalicosis, which is a form of pneumoconiosis, which means a scarlike overgrowth of lung tissues.

Wind instrument players suffer from a malady called emphysema. The small air passages in their lungs are inflated so much and so often that the surrounding cells are mashed flat. Workers in chemicals are subject to all sorts of unusual affections. Those who take part in the manufacture of rubber for example, are often badly injured by the capers of sulphuric acid—an exceedingly ill smelling liquid used to dissolve the elastic gum. These vapors cause headaches, neuralgia, a staggering gait and violent bodily pains, followed sometimes by delirium and mania.

Weaver's tonsillitis is a malady frequently met with among the employees of cotton mills, due to the presence of minute fibres of cotton in the crypts of tonsils.

These tonsils cause a chronic irritation and the way is thus opened for the entrance of stray germs. The malady yields to the treatment indicated for ordinary tonsillitis.

Tea tasters, despite the fact that they seldom if ever swallow any of the tea they taste, commonly suffer derangements of various bodily functions. The poison in this case is the very powerful alkaloid to which tea owes its soothing virtues.

It is a commonplace of observation that the excessive use of any one group of muscles leads to a sort of local paralysis. This malady was formerly very familiar in the form of what was called writer's cramp.

It was thought that the triumph of the typewriting machine over the old fashioned pen would cause it to disappear from the earth, but it is now in full bloom as typewriter's cramp. Similar neuroses afflict telegraphers, violinists, piano players, cigarette makers and milkmaids.

Another form of this serious and troublesome disease incapacitates marine engineers. These men usually spend all their time, awake and asleep, within a few feet of their beloved engines.

The constant vibration overworks certain of their muscles—particularly those of the legs—and the result is a good deal of pain. Sometimes this pain extends up the back and has distressing consequences. As a rule it is relieved by a few days ashore.

Workers in ship engine rooms also suffer from breathing hot, vitiated air and from constant stooping. Spasms, rigidity of certain muscles and various neuralgias and hysterical symptoms are sometimes encountered in such men.

Pure obstinacy often looks like courage.

Keeping Ants From the Hives. My honey-house was visited by ants, and I painted the stone under-plannings with petroleum, says a writer in Bee Culture. The thicket and most worthless is the best. The hives, paint the standards or legs and let the alighting-boards be about two inches from the ground—a jump that the bees will make easily, but which will prevent the ants from entering. They will climb up weeds or any old thing to get in.

PROPOSED STREET PAVING.

The question of paving our streets is an economic question, pure, and simple, and should be so looked upon by the City Council and the Taxpayers, and material need which in the long run, will be cheaper to the city.

The essential thing in deciding which is the most economical pavement to be used is to ascertain what the traffic on the streets proposed to be paved, calls for: this we understand has never been done.

The only information upon this subject, as far as we have been able to learn, is the individual opinion of some that the traffic is very heavy. This at best is only an opinion not backed up by figures and is easily counter balanced by opinion of others who do not think the traffic heavy enough to justify an expensive pavement.

It will be admitted by all that the use of brick or bitulithite on all the streets of Salisbury would be financial suicide, the traffic on some of them certainly not being of sufficient volume to justify such a large outlay in original cost.

The question arises whether or not any of our residential streets carry a sufficient amount of traffic on their beds to justify the putting down of a pavement, the first cost of which is as heavy as that of brick or bitulithite. It certainly would seem to be the proper course to pursue to find first, as near as possible the traffic on these streets and then consider a pavement which will meet this demand.

The consideration of the class and grade of a pavement before you know the requirements of the streets seems like putting the cart before the horse.

We understand that the various cities have had statements prepared showing the amount of traffic on the various streets, and upon this compilation the street commissioners decide the character of the pavements to be used as indicated by the amount of traffic.

After proper steps have been taken to ascertain the traffic on the streets in Salisbury, proposed to be paved, and if they should indicate a pavement of the character of brick or bitulithite, by showing that the wear and tear on these streets is such as to justify the use of these materials, and make their use the best economy, then neither the tax payers or the Council should hesitate about putting them down. But in the minds of those who have opposed the putting down of this class of pavement there is a reasonable ground for doubt and difference of opinion on this subject.

Another point upon which there is considerable dissatisfaction among the citizens is the question of supervising the pavement construction. Without entering into the merits of the question at all there is unquestionably a great deal of opposition to having it under the same supervision that the laying of our brick streets were under.

It is stated, the old Council entered into a contract with the engineer for the laying of the streets now proposed as well as the brick already laid and it would seem to be the part of wisdom on the part of Council to try and straighten out this matter before going any further with the work, unless they are satisfied with the services of the present engineer.

It looks reasonable that this matter could be adjusted more quickly and satisfactorily with the contracts unsigned and unpledged than could be done with the work under way.

While it is a principle that we all must acknowledge, that private interests must not be considered before public welfare, yet when the burden will fall as heavily as the cost of paving some of these streets will fall upon some of the property owners, it behooves those in charge to be very careful and sure the burden is for the best interests of all concerned before it is imposed.

Our Council is composed of men who stand high in our business and financial circles, whose honesty and integrity are beyond question, and who in whatever they do will only have, what they consider the best interests of the city at heart.

We respectfully submit to those men that in view of the high price bid on bitulithite and brick, in view of the strong opposition of the property owners along the streets to the proposed pavement, in view of the doubt with the information at hand of the requirements of the traffic on these streets, and the status of the engineer question the best policy would be to turn down the contracts proposed at the present time.

SHOCKLEY FOR ENGINEER.

County Surveyor Peter S. Shockley has made an offer to supervise the proposed paving of the streets of Salisbury. Mr. Shockley offers to supervise this work and employ a competent engineer to assist him in the work on a three per cent basis.

The present contract with Mr. Hatton calls for a five per cent commission. The acceptance of Mr. Shockley's offer would mean a considerable saving to the city, and besides that would give entire satisfaction to the taxpayers and citizens, who have entire confidence in his ability and integrity.

His appointment would assure the people that their interest would be carefully taken care of. Mr. Shockley's letter to the Council is as follows:

To the Mayor and Council of Salisbury Gentlemen—My friends being desirous that I should engineer the paving work soon to be done in this town, I have decided to make you this offer: I will superintend the work for three per cent of the cost of the job, (3) and as I do not think one man can lay out the work and properly attend to the construction work at the same time, I propose to hire an assistant, at my own expense, who shall, if possible, be a good engineer, who has had the necessary experience in street paving to answer all purposes.

Very truly yours, P. S. Shockley.

From New York. Frocks For The Girl Graduate; Lingerie Gowns; Wedding And Bridesmaids Dresses; Outing Hats; Coats of Lace Or Embroidery.

June is the month dedicated to the "sweet girl graduate" as well as the bride. And very charming are this season's graduating gowns simple and girlish in the extreme but yet, when made by a good dressmaker, possessing a chic that is all their own. Sheer materials are the prettiest, and lawn, batiste, India linen, swiss, mull, etc., are appropriate. A very simple yet most effective gown is of embroidered Swiss, the skirt made with a very narrow gored front with the fullness tucked to yoke depth on each side of this. It is trimmed with two very wide bands of Cluny insertion, one just above the hem and the other about six inches farther up. The waist has a round yoke of Valenciennes allover and has the fullness below this striped with narrower Cluny insertion. The same insertion also runs down the outside of the short sleeves.

The Empire Waist Line.

The Empire waist line has invaded the province of the lingerie frock and here as elsewhere, one finds a shortened waist the rule, though there are of course exceptions and princess dresses with natural waist lines still have a decided vogue. India linen, batiste and mull are the materials usually chosen for these frocks and Valenciennes, Cluny and baby Irish are the laces used to trim them. In these imported frocks a great deal of applique is seen and so beautifully is put on the costume that it is difficult to tell it from hand embroidery.

New Lingerie and Outing Hats.

This summer's lingerie hat is in the Charlotte Corday shape with lace or embroidery ruffles fall in most becomingly about the face. These hats are trimmed with big bows of ribbon or bunches of roses or other summer flowers. A particularly smart model is made of all over lace, draped over a wire frame with double ruffles of the material edged with Valenciennes. It has a band of black velvet ribbon around the softly draped crown and a big bunch of pink roses at the left side of the front.

The Panama outing hat, simply trimmed with a fancy scarf twisted around the crown with fringed ends hanging down the back, is the proper thing for general wear at the seashore and mountains this summer. There are also hats of white and light gray felt that are considered very smart indeed for the same purpose.

The June Bride.

Dresses for the June bride are picturesque in the extreme. The materials used are all soft and supple and even when satin is chosen for the wedding gown it is of the pliable variety, the kind that "can stand alone" being hopelessly out of date.

For the bridesmaid there are an endless variety of styles to choose from in this day of many modes. The Directorate styles, which are decidedly prominent this season are charming for the purpose. The skirt of some sheer material like mousseline-de-soie or chiffon with a Directorate coat and waistcoat of satin is extremely effective.

White Serge Suits.

The white serge tailor suit is very fashionable for street wear at the present moment in New York or for wear at the various summer resorts. It is the newest tailored suits of linen considerable use is being made of cretonne trimmings. There are waistcoats of cretonne, or the gaily printed cottons, either in cashmere or conventionalized floral patterns, face the collar and cuffs of the jacket.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE
COPYRIGHT, 1907 BY GEORGE H. BROADHURST

With all the advantages of youth, education and good looks and no vocation other than the enjoyment of wealth, the hero of our present story chose rather to sacrifice his ease and comfort on the altar of his duty as a citizen. His city called him to save her from spoliation and corruption, and he responded to the call. To lure him from the path of right came the seductions of love and the claims of a revered parent's memory, allied with the mighty forces at the command of political and financial malefactors. The firmness with which "the man of the hour," singled out for the highest post in a great municipality by those who saw in him only a weakling and a tool, resisted the very forces that had elevated him for their own purposes to official power will be an inspiration to the reader, as it has been an uplifting force in the minds of thousands who have witnessed its theatrical representation.

CHAPTER VIII.

"I've found out who their fourteenth man is, your honor," whispered Phelan in high excitement. "It's Robert—Richard P. Roberts of the Third. He's the alderman that Horrihan's trying to put the Indian sign on. We've got to nail him if we can."

"You're sure it's Roberts?" asked Bennett in the same undertone.

The administration ball was in full swing. Mayor and alderman had chanced to meet for a moment in a big, crowded reception foyer just off the ballroom.

"Am I sure it's Roberts?" echoed Phelan. "Am I sure? Might as well ask me am I sure Chesky Dick Horrihan is crooked. I've got the facts down straight. Them secret service chaps of mine—"

"If they get Roberts they will be able to pass the bill!"

"They ain't gon' to get him if Jimmy Phelan's hand don't turn out to be all deceas an' true," said "Ray."

"Keep an eye on him and don't let him go away without my knowing it. I must see him tonight, and learn positively how he stands as regards to the matter. He has a reputation for being honest. If only—"

"Here's Alwyn, Mrs. Bennett," came Perry Wainwright's voice from the doorway. "In here. Say, your honor, your honorable honor's honored mother has been looking every-where for you. And now that I've reminded her how long you've been gone, she says she'll chase out and find my partner for the next while. I wish it was Cynthia. Ever dance with Cynthia, Alwyn? Poetry of motion and all that. Like a swan or—oh, my!—last evening, alderman. I didn't see you? Are you dancing tonight?"

"Dancing? Phelan's Phelan is high as a kite. He's looking for you. He's had enough to be harassed into this open faced snarl that feels like I was going to slip through it if every minute, without tryin' to dance too. At a show of this kind I feel like a pair of yellow shoes at a funeral. So long, your honor. Even, Mrs. Bennett. There's the music startin', son," he added to Perry as he started for the ballroom.

"I heard it," said the lad, "but I'm in no wild hurry."

"Thought you said you had a partner to look up."

"I have—one of Judge Newman's daughters. Ever see her? I thought not or you wouldn't have wondered why I wasn't in a hurry. Better late than—"

"Are you having a good time, mother?" Bennett was asking the little old lady as he found a seat for her.

"Yes," she answered, "aren't you?"

"Of course I am. Why do you ask?"

"The foyer was thinning out as people trooped to the ballroom. For the moment mother and son were alone together.

"You aren't having a good time, Alwyn," she contradicted gently. "You're unhappy about something. Tell me."

"Nonsense!" he denied, with a forced laugh. "—"

"You are thinking of Dallas, my boy. Is anything wrong between you and her? What has happened?"

"Nothing," he answered sullenly. But the mother was not content. Her heart ached for the grief her son was trying to hide.

"Something has happened, Alwyn," she declared, "and I want to know what, so that I can help you. You love her. And that day she came back from Europe I felt sure she loved you. What is holding you two apart?"

"Nothing that can be said," he replied. "But you never go to see her."

"How can I? You know my attitude toward her. Now can I tell you what she's doing?"

posed his relations toward the Borough Street railway franchise bill. I am fighting him and his iniquitous bill with every means in my power! Dallas lives!"

"I hadn't thought of that. You poor boy! But surely—"

"And something more. Her money and Perry's are invested in Borough stocks. By beating that bill I seem outwardly to be willfully wrecking their fortune. I told you the plan I arranged with Perry to avert this, but she doesn't know of that. And—"

"Why don't you tell her, then? Or let me tell her?"

"Because it isn't her gratitude I want. I want her to love me."

"But don't you see in the meantime what a weapon you are putting into Mr. Wainwright's hands? Suppose he tells Dallas of your enmity to him and lets her know you are seemingly trying to impoverish her and her brother? He might prejudice her terribly against—"

"I've thought of all that. I must be content to wait. Next Friday the revised Borough bill comes up before the aldermen again for the final fight. When it's settled one way or the other I can go to her and explain. Meantime—"

"Meantime she is here tonight with Mr. Wainwright. Have you seen her?"

"Only for a minute."

"What was her mood with the same friendliness, the same interest, as of old? Don't think I'm inquisitive, dear. I only ask all these questions because I love you."

"I know," he answered, pressing her hand as it lay on his arm, "yet I can hardly answer you, for I hardly know. In her presence I am not at ease because I can't tell her everything, and she seems ill at ease because she knows there's something I don't tell her. Oh, it's a wretched position for me both!"

"Then why don't you clear it up?"

"By going to her and saying: 'Dallas, I am exposing your uncle as a blackguard and am destroying your fortune and Perry's. Will you marry me? These are the facts; but, thank God, it's only till Friday.'"

"After that I can go to her and make it all clear."

Before Mrs. Bennett could reply Perry returned to the ballroom, Cynthia at his side.

"Then why not give me the next one, too?" the lad was pleading. "If one two-step's good, two two-steps are twice as good. Please—"

"But see," expostulated Cynthia, showing him her card. "The next is Mr. Gibbs. I've told you that twice."

"I wish Gibbs all the luck in the world," observed Perry benevolently, as he deposited Cynthia on a fauteuil beside her chaperon, Mrs. Bennett. "I wish him to reach good luck that if he'd slip and break both his legs, I'd pay for a cab to take him home."

"Look out, please!" begged Cynthia. "He's coming."

"The next is ours, I think, Miss Garrison," said Gibbs, entering from the ballroom with Dallas on his arm. "I hope we'll have better fortune than not seem to suit very tonight."

"No, I'm afraid the suit was mine," protested Dallas. "I'm a little tired. I think, May, I'll sit here a few minutes. Mrs. Bennett" she added as Gibbs bore Cynthia away for their dance.

"You don't seem very fond of Mr. Gibbs, Perry," observed Mrs. Bennett, noting young Wainwright's scowl of impotent wrath.

"Not fond enough to make me want to live in the same world with him. Mrs. Bennett, you're too pretty to be in a chaperon. Come and dance this two-step with me. Please do!"

He nodded with vast significance toward Dallas and Bennett, and the little old lady, catching the idea, accepted with alacrity.

"I'm so glad even to get this minute with you," began Alwyn when he and Dallas were alone. "It's so long since—"

"Since you came to see me? Yes, but that is your fault. Alwyn, why haven't you called since? I can't help it."

"Don't you know why, Dallas?"

"No."

"Are you certain you don't know?"

"I—I don't know absolutely," she faltered. "Oh, there are so many things I don't know absolutely!"

"What is one of them?"

"For one thing, you and I used to be such good friends and—"

"There can be no talk of more friendship between you and me, Dallas. I must be everything or nothing to you. Tonight I can't speak as I want to, but I can be a very few days. Trust me till then. You know I am fighting Mr. Wainwright's interests and—"

"Yes," she replied bitterly. "My uncle gives me no chance to forget that."

"That is just it. I'm fighting him for my own amusement! I must oppose him or else give up a fight that I set out to win. And I mean to win it!"

"That's the same old fighting spirit I used to try so hard to awaken in you," said Dallas, a faint note of admiration in her rich voice. "I told you once it always took a blow to arouse you. That blow has evidently been struck."

"It has been struck!" he acquiesced, with a sad smile.

She saw the haggard lines about his mouth, the tired look in his eyes, and a lump came to his throat. He looked forward helplessly, but before he could speak he had unknowingly thrown away the golden moment by continuing.

"I must win this fight even though it affects others besides Mr. Wainwright. Even if—"

"What others do you mean?"

"Oh, I can't explain now. After Friday I can. On Saturday may I come to see you and tell you everything?"

"Why not now?"

"There are obstacles that—"

"Tell me what they are!" she begged.

"I can't. All I can tell you now is that I love you. I love you above all the world, sweetheart, and—"

"But fate in the dual guise of Horrihan and Wainwright intervened. The financier and the boss, seeking some quiet spot for a chat, strolled through the foyer, where Horrihan on sight of Bennett halted with a glower of dislike, which he took no pains to conceal.

A TOUCHING APPEAL.

Young Lawyer and Farmer Edwards' White Spotted Sow.

A North Carolina lawyer sends the following clipping from a newspaper, which shows that the days of true eloquence have not passed:

"This was a trial in Unadilla County, east Tennessee," said the lawyer, "and the indictment of defendant was for killing the prosecutor's hog."

"The facts were that the prosecutor lived on the head of a stream, and the defendant lived about a mile or two further down the stream, and in the month of May, the prosecutor's old sow got out and strayed on down the valley and got in the defendant's field and rooted up his corn. The allegation was that the defendant killed her, mangling her up pretty badly, and cutting her up with knives."

A young barrister named Smith, who had just got his license, was employed to aid the solicitor in the prosecution. The case was set for trial, and the attorney arose, and, with a very solemn air, said:

"May it please your honor, and you, gentlemen of the jury, since the days of the assassination of the lamented president of the United States, Abraham Lincoln, no such foul crime has stained our country's escutcheon as the assassination of Jack Edwards—black and white spotted sow. Gentlemen of the jury, and may it please your honor, go with me to the place of the tragedy and contemplate the scene and the circumstances. On that lovely morning in May when the earth was dressed in her robes of green and the air filled with the smell of sweet-scented flowers and enlivened by the voice of merry songsters, as that old sow walked forth in her innocence down that little stream, listening to the music of the water, little did she dream that before the twinkling of day hid himself behind the western horizon she should become the victim of a foul assassination."—Case and Comment.

No Trouble at All.

One day last summer a German entered an establishment of a photographer in a Southern town, and after several glances about the place, observed mournfully that the photographer did not seem to have the properties essential to the taking of a picture he desired.

"I should like a picture of myself in my wife's grave," he said. "May you fix a grave here in the shop for me?"

"I am afraid I haven't the necessary accessories," said the photographer. Then, with an attempt at tactfulness, he suggested:

"Couldn't we arrange to have the portrait made at the grave itself?"

"Do't in Pennsylvania," sighed the German. "It would be too expensive to go there. Just you fix up some kind of a grave here in the shop. I could be on foot. It's no trouble for me to reap anyone."—Harper's Weekly.

Did Better.

"You left off smoking because she asked you to?"

"Yes."

"And you left off drinking because she asked you to?"

"And you left off swearing because she asked you to?"

"Yes."

"And you began going into better society because she asked you to?"

"Yes."

"It is a wonder to me you did not marry her!"

"I had intended to; but when I had got rid of all of my bad habits I found I could do better!"—Modern Society.

ROME'S PET. A SHE WOLF

A Sentimental Reminder of the Ancient Legend.

KEPT AT THE CAPITAL

In Many Small Ways the Italian Government Fosters Patriotic Memories—Works of Art a Valuable Source of Income—Rivalry With Vatican as Relic Collector.

A few months ago there appeared in several of the Roman papers a curious advertisement, which ran something like this:

Wanted—To purchase immediately a gray she-wolf, to replace the wolf of the Capitol, which has just died.

Perhaps no one thing in Rome illustrates more eloquently what may be termed the programme of patriotism adopted by the Quirinal than the wolf of the Capitol. Hidden by the shrubbery at the top of the broad staircase mounting to the Capitol, it occupies two wire-fronted cages, about ten feet across, where, at the expense of a grateful municipality, it lives a life restricted, but of great social distinction as the modern representative of the mother wolf that suckled Romulus and Remus. Rome is never without its wolf, if it can help itself, imaginative, enjoying whatever appeals to the sense of mystery and the love of the well legend authentic and themselves the descendants of the shadowy Romulus—a belief which the government for its part, is only too glad to "play up."

For, in truth, the Capitoline wolf is but one of those simple but immense effective links between the Rome of Servius Tullius and the Rome of Humbert which the Italian Government never loses an opportunity to forget when absent and to strengthen when present. Insignificant as it may seem, it is a factor in the programme of patriotic education which the government has set itself. The comprehensive lines on which this policy has been conceived and the earnestness with which it is being carried out, can hardly escape even the casual visitor to Rome. By means that must appeal to the simplest imagination, it is stimulating the national spirit and pride of the rising generations of Italian youths, and, as one preeminent potent means to this end, it is bending every effort to make Rome seem what in reality it is—the Capital of United Italy.

As far back as 1870, according to Prof. Mario Cosensia of the department of the College of the City of New York, the municipality adopted a system of nomenclature in the case of new streets with the deliberate purpose of teaching history and patriotism at the same time. In that year municipal improvements were begun in the eastern section with the laying out of new streets in that part of the old Esquilino hill where Maecenas once had his garden and where the railway station is now. Here the streets are named after the royal house of Savoy—Victor Emmanuel, Margherita, and so on. In the Ludovisi quarter, which is rising from the gardens of Sallust, the streets bear the names of the provinces of united Italy—Lombardy, Campania, Veneto. Outside the mediaeval walls near the Janiculum, once the site of Nero's gardens, the streets are called after the great Romans of ancient times, such as Pompey, Caesar. Finally, those in the district around the old Praetorian camp memorialize the famous battles of the War of Unification—Magenta, Castelfidardo. All these latter centre around the Piazza dell'Indipendenza.

"In its relics and works of art," said Prof. Cosensia, "the Quirinal finds a tremendous aid to its patriotic propaganda. It also finds in them an enormously valuable source of national income. They are, in fact, one of the nation's most important assets. Rome for example, is a city of about 400,000 population. In the course of a year this is doubled by the tourists who visit it, some of whom come for long periods of study, and practically all of whom are attracted by its relics and works of art or by its religious associations. Rome is a city of memories. Every landmark, every square inch of painting by a master, every stitch of ancient embroidery that leaves it imperishable as it by so much. The same holds true for the country. The arch-essence of the Italian Government in its pious desire to have and to hold are the American millionaire, whose ability to pay ten times over what the Government with its paltry annual appropriation for the purchase of antiquities can afford, sorely taxes the patriotic scruples of the owners of antiquities, and the Vatican, now as ever a keen and experienced collector. Of the two the Vatican is the more deadly.

Prominent and Influential Son of the Dark and Bloody Ground—Yes, sah; but that is of no interest to me, sah. What I wish to know sah, is the price of a room with drink.

GIRL BATHER SAVED

Afloat 2 Miles At Sea Near Atlantic City. Plucky Endurance Made Her Rescue Possible.

Two score passengers aboard the yacht, Olga, just off Atlantic City, N. J., had the thrill of their lives when the yacht lurched up two miles at sea to rescue Miss Bessie McLaughlin, a bather who had fought for three hours against death in the depths of sea ocean.

Speechless and unable to give alarm, the young woman was paddling feebly to keep herself afloat when she was spied by Capt. Lake Conover from the deck.

Captain Conover had taken his passengers far out to sea on a pleasure trip and was on his way back to port when he first saw the floating form of the girl. Despite the expressed belief of his crew and passengers that the object was drift, Conover put the yacht about and made for the spot where he had last seen it on top of a wave. When it was ascertained that the dark object was a human being a boat was lowered and made its way to the spot where Miss McLaughlin was still floating and she was rescued.

PATTY CANNON DAYS

Story of How This Woman Operated in Slave Trade On Nanticoke

Patty Cannon thrived in crime a century ago. The scene of her activity was the tavern of her son-in-law, Joe Johnson, near the unimportant town of Reliance, in the Eastern section of Dorchester county, and on the boundary line of Maryland and Delaware. Before her marriage in 1802 to Jesse Cannon, a thrifty mechanic of the neighborhood, the woman was known as Patty Cannon. Whence she came none knew. Bright vivacious and with a will that brooked no barriers, she was a favorite in her set. Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Cannon, both girls, and they were yet infants almost when the father died, and to this day the belief is that he was murdered by his wife. Years later she confessed that she poisoned him.

Son-in-Law Her Partner.

While the other daughter was yet in her teens she married Joe Johnson, a thriffling character of the neighborhood. In her son-in-law Mrs. Cannon found a pliant tool to carry out her designs. He became her partner, and their business was to buy and sell slaves, more frequently to capture and subjugate manumitted slaves, who were sent to the rice plantations of South Carolina or to the sugar plantations of Louisiana. There was in those days a ready market for Maryland negroes. Slave owners adopted the principle of sending to the far South negroes who displayed criminal propensities. There were bargains in human traffic, and to Maryland came slave traders in search of negroes with thieving and other criminal propensities because they were cheap.

One of the devices employed to lure the free negroes into the custody of Patty Cannon and her son-in-law was to employ them, half a dozen at a time, as a crew on a coast trader. Once aboard and safe in the bay or at sea, the men were sent below and the hatches were battered down. A few days later the vessel was in a southern port and the prisoners were sold as slaves.

Slave Trading Post.

Joe Johnson's tavern became a trading post for slaves. Thither were sent and bought the unhappy toilers, and there they were confined until the slave trader from the South arrived. Their prison was in the attic, which was constituted of stout white oak. There were no windows. The scant ventilation was through a transom over the barred door. A score of miserable wretches were sometimes huddled in this prison. Once a child annoyed Patty Cannon by its plaintive wailing. Not being marketable, to the fire and to death went the innocent baby. Children that could not be sold and were handicaps to the sale of their mothers met a speedy death.

Her Insatiable Greed.

Profitable as was the business of Patty Cannon and of her son-in-law she longed for more gold. Her greed overmastered her. Slave traders became her victims. Sure was the verdict of death of the trader who made a display of his wealth. How many men Patty Cannon killed has never been known and will never be divulged. Once a stranger stopping at her place showed a roll of bank notes, she shot him dead. The body and the roll of notes disappeared.

It was for this very murder that, fourteen years later, she was arrested and locked up in the Georgetown jail. Probably it would never have been discovered but for the fact that while the field was being plowed one spring when the ground was soft the horses broke through this shallow grave, disclosing its ghastly contents. The exposure, together with the confession of the negro, led to her undoing.

Refuge For Runaway Slaves.

Another of the plans by which the negroes were entrapped required several agents, many of them negroes themselves, who caused it to be known that their horses were a refuge for runaway slaves and that assistance would be given them to escape North. When once a runaway took refuge there he was detained long enough for word to reach Patty when a raid would be made, and not only the fugitive, but the decoy as well, would be tied hand and foot and carried off despite his loud protestations. The decoy, was, of course, later released and returned to bait another trap. By this means suspicion was for a long time averted.

As miserable as her life, was the end of the Cannon woman. When arrested for her innumerable crimes she was taken to the Georgetown jail, where she was placed in chains. Deserted by her son-in-law, who had taken to flight, and by the rough men who had plotted and planned with her, she swallowed poison. Her suffering is said to have been intense for two or three days, for the potion was not immediate in its effect.

Here on the Eastern Shore legends yet a bound of the physical prowess of Patty Cannon. She could stand in a bushel measure and lift 500 pounds of grain to her shoulder. In a hand-to-hand fight she was as good as two men. Woe to the darky who happened to meet her alone on the country road. Many a time she grappled with a strapping negro, tied him hand and foot and threw him unaided into a wagon.

Mrs. G. W. Taylor has returned from the city with a full line of mid-summer millinery. Special prices and trimmed hats and a great selection of new fashions.

ANNOUNCEMENT

AFTER careful consideration, and because of the requests on the part of our many customers, we have thrown our doors open all day Sundays, from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M., with the exception of the hours used for church worship.

There are several advantages connected in this step we have taken. First of all, it being thoroughly known by this time that the PALM GARDEN has connected with it a first-class restaurant, there is laid open to the public an opportunity to get their appetites at certain places on Sunday, while others, because they do not SEEM IN, must go thirsty. The Palm Garden offers to all an equal chance, and you can find a variety of cold and hot beverages on the menu.

Then, too, there is absolutely no way, APPARENTLY, for the thirsty, tired person to get a cooling beverage on a hot Sunday. Some few favored ones are blessed with the opportunity of enjoying their thirsty appetites at certain places on Sunday, while others, because they do not SEEM IN, must go thirsty. The Palm Garden offers to all an equal chance, and you can find a variety of cold and hot beverages on the menu.

Having made a personal study of the Palm Garden as a much-needed unit in our already booming city, I am pleased with its growth and desire to make two explanations:

First—Thank you all for your growing interest and patronage. Second—I will not fail to appreciate a continued increase in this patronage.

Respectfully,
GEO. A. M. WILSON.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers of Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foamy discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c, including spraying tube or mailed by Ely Bros., 66 Warren Street, New York.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH RELIEVED.

Perhaps No Medicine in the World Has Relieved More Cases of Catarrh of the Stomach Than Pe-ru-na.

The Symptoms of Stomach Catarrh Are Heaviness After Eating, Belching Gas, Sourness of the Stomach, Sluggish Bowels.

ALDERMAN GEO. W. WEICK, DENVER, COL. SAYS:— "I HAVE USED PERUNA FOR CATARRH OF THE STOMACH AND IT HAS HELPED ME WONDERFULLY."

SOME OTHER STARTLING TESTIMONIALS.

ALDERMAN GEORGE W. WEICK, 174 South Seventh Street, Denver, Col., Alderman Eleventh Ward, writes: "I have used Peruna for catarrh of the stomach and it has helped me wonderfully."

Chronic Stomach Trouble.
MR. SAMUEL A. SEAL, Route 2, Treadway, Tenn., writes: "It gives me great pleasure to testify to the great good your medicine, Peruna, has done for me in a chronic case of catarrh of the stomach. I was confined to my bed for some time, and could not sit up. I had tried everything that I could find recommended for catarrh, without any benefit. I tried the best physicians in Hancock County, with little or no benefit. I then tried two of the best physicians in Hawkins County, and found they were doing me no good. I was gradually growing worse."

"Then a friend of mine, passing by, handed me one of your pamphlets, and seeing how Peruna was recommended for catarrh, I sent to Rogersville, Tennessee, next morning, a distance of about fifteen miles, and procured some according to directions, and after taking it a few days I began to get better."

"I continued using it until I was able to go to work on the farm again, and now I am in very good health and do work on my farm."

Catarrh of Head and Stomach.
Mr. Frank Richter, of 309 East Second Street, Winona, Minn., writes: "As a remedy for catarrh I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I know what it is to be afflicted with this awful disease, and consider it my duty to say a word in behalf of the remedy which gave me such relief."

"Peruna cured me, and I know it will cure any one else who suffers from this disease. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the curative effects of this medicine."

"Peruna is a well tested and frequently used remedy, and for catarrh of the stomach it is unsurpassed."

"My catarrh was principally located in my head and stomach. I tried many remedies without success. I tried several doctors, but they were unable to cure me. I read of Peruna in the papers, and five bottles cured me."

SHARPTOWN WANTS ROAD

Makes Plea For State Line Her Way. Letter To Advertiser Giving Comparative Advantages.

A few points in favor of a route from Salisbury via Mardela, Sharptown, Federalburg to Denton, instead of via Vienna to East New Market. Sharptown second town in county from commercial inhabitants and industrial standpoint—large factories, shipbuilding yards, etc.

Without transportation facilities, except such as is afforded by river. Practically cut off from other towns because of heavy sandy roads.

Would be a more direct line from lower to upper peninsula. Cost of building much less.

Cost of building up caseway at Vienna would be enormous and take large part of Wicomico's apportionment. Time has proven that a permanent road across this marsh is impossible.

It is not fair road should follow railroad instead of passing through isolated sections and towns and especially so when these places are on a more direct route. What benefit would the road afford parallel with a railroad, the people travel by rail.

A great traveling public would be benefited at Sharptown. Few people cross the river at Vienna. The following is a record taken from the books of the Sharptown ferry, for the first five months of this year.

WHERE TO BUILD THE STATE ROADS

Now To Be Determined. State Commission, Including Governor Crothers, To Arrive In Salisbury Next Tuesday. Public Meeting Called For 2 O'clock. An Important Day In Good Road Building. People Should Come Out.

The County Commissioners have received notice from the State Good Roads Commission that they will be in Salisbury, Tuesday, June 16th, to consider the question of building the State Roads in this county. The Commissioners have asked and authorized us to extend an invitation to all taxpayers in all sections of the County to be present and present their views on this question. The Commission, accompanied by Gov. Crothers and Mr. Crosby, the engineer, will arrive in Salisbury from Princess Anne on the 1 o'clock train and the meeting will be held in the Court House at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The commission is coming to get the lay of the grounds and to hear what the people want, and it is hoped that a full attendance will be had of all those who are interested in our road improvements. The matter of securing good roads in this County has long been felt by our citizens and at first regarded as more or less of a dream. But now a part of this dream has come true and we will have some first class roads built in a short time.

Where the roads shall be built is the question that is now up for decision, and it is the wish of those who have the building of the roads in hand to put them where they will do the most good to the County as a whole. Distance is no longer calculated by miles but by time, and in that some good roads which will save time will bring what are now considered more or less isolated spots into the centre of agricultural and commercial circles.

It is said that the main idea of the Commission is to build main arteries across the various counties, having in view at the same time the development of the section to be passed through and the connecting up of the counties in the state.

The commission will not have long to tarry in Salisbury, as it is understood they will leave on the afternoon train for Claiborne where they will take a State Steamer for Annapolis.

All should come prepared to state their side of the case clearly and concisely so no time will be lost.

The owners of Automobiles in the city have placed their machines at the disposal of the Commission while here, and it is hoped that they will have time to see what has been done to improve our highways and if possible to form some estimate as to the character of the roads that it is desired to improve.

It is the hope of the Commission that the meeting in Salisbury next Tuesday will be largely attended. Wicomico has long shown an interest in the improving of our roads, our County Commissioners are doing all the finances of the County will permit towards giving the farmers better facilities to get their crops to the markets, and all who are interested in this project of good roads should show their appreciation by attending.

Let Gov. Crothers, who originated and carried through the good road plan, and the commission see that their efforts in this direction are appreciated by the people.

APPEAL BY PROPERTY

Owners Along Division And Camden Streets To Paving Ordinance Passed By The City Council.

When the Council met on Monday evening three appeals from the ordinance on Street Paving were presented to them. These appeals were on the proposed paving on Division Street, Camden Avenue and South Division Street. The only street upon which an appeal was not taken is for Main Street extended.

Mrs. Jackson Appeals.
The appeal on North Division Street was filed by Mrs. Nannie R. Jackson. In her appeals she says she is aggrieved at the passage of the ordinance because: There is no necessity for the improvement at this time with materials so expensive as Bitulithic. That the Ordinance is so drawn as to admit of but one bidder and excludes competition. That said Ordinance is not in accordance with Section 158F of the Charter, which only authorizes the Mayor and Council to provide grading, shelling, paving and curbing, which said provision does not contemplate the use of Bitulithic or any other material except gravel, shells or macadam. That because the Ordinance puts the cost of drainage upon the abutting property and that Section 158F only provides for assessing the abutting property with the expense of grading, shelling, shelling, paving and curbing, and does not mention the cost of drainage.

Because the price is excessive. Because the Ordinance in question was not passed upon the day which it was proposed to be passed, and a few other objections.

Camden Avenue Appeals.
The appeal for Camden Avenue was filed by Toadvin & Bell, attorneys, and is signed by the following: Mrs. Nellie Jackson Leonard, L. B. Gillis, Merrill Abbott, Mrs. C. B. Brewington, Augustus Toadvine, Henry J. Waller and Miss Letitia R. Houston. This appeal does not state the objections, but asks that the paper be sent to the Circuit Court for Wicomico county for a hearing.

Division Street Appeals.
The petition for S. Division street is filed by Ellegood, Freney & Waller, for F. Leonard Waller, and like the former, does not state the objections, but asks that the papers be sent to the Circuit Court for Wicomico county.

On Thursday another appeal was filed by U. W. Dickerson, F. A. Grier, R. D. Grier and Miss Mary Leonard, Ellegood, Freney and Waller, Attorneys. This petition does not assign any reason in the petition further than to state that cause would be assigned at the proper time against the proposed ordinance as to the pavement on North Division Street. It is understood that the petitioners against the proposed paving will ask for a Jury trial, which if given them will postpone the case until the September term of Court.

There seems to be a difference of opinion as to the right of the petitioners to a Jury trial under the charter. An attempt will probably be made to get the case on trial at the July term of Court, when the right for a jury trial will probably be argued.

Opposition By Majority Property Owners.
These appeals are the outcome of the opposition on the part of property owners on Division Street and Camden Avenue, to Bitulithic pavements at the present prices. A petition signed by a big majority of the property owners to this class of pavement was presented to the City Council on the preceding meeting on the Monday before in which the property owners protested against the acceptance of the bids of brick and Bitulithic at the prices given and asked that further consideration be given the matter. On Tuesday following this the Council passed the ordinance appealed from.

It is stated that while comparatively speaking only a small per cent of the property owners along the streets in question have made an appeal, yet they have the support of the majority of the property owners along the streets, and that the only reason more were not filed it was well understood that one case would decide the entire question.

To The Courts.
The property owners take the ground that as they are to be called upon to pay one half the cost of building these streets—amounting in itself to something over $25,000—as well as bear their proportional part of the city's debt that they are entitled to some consideration in the matter, and after the Council's action in passing the ordinance in question the only redress left them was an appeal to the courts.

The character and standing of many of these property owners is sufficient evidence of itself that they are not acting in a selfish or narrow minded way, but are sincere in the attitude they have taken, which they consider tends to the best advantage of their city and home.

Largest Plant of Its Kind In State.
J. Bolgiano & Son, wholesale seed growers and seedmen, Light and Pratt Streets, Baltimore, Md., have just completed the installation of the largest chick food and poultry foods manufacturing plants in Maryland. The firm started the manufacture of these foods in a very small way, with the foundation idea that if only the very best material was used and the foods were made uniformly and carefully a heavy demand would spring up for them. The judgement was correct, for from time to time the firm has been compelled to increase its manufacturing capacity and recently has felt justified in enlarging its facilities for the making of the foods more than ten times the original capacity. The firm is now prepared to supply the trade with 150,000 bushels of poultry foods a year, and as it has been behind in its orders continuously for the past six months, it feels entirely taken. The foods are called "Square Deal" (Chick Starter for baby chicks up to three weeks old; "Square Deal" Chick Food for growing chicks, "Square Deal" Poultry Food for poultry and "Square Deal" Pigeon Food.

Tuesday's Proceedings of The County Commissioners.
A motion was adopted that the sheriff or his deputy be authorized to deliver to the road supervisor or his former any able-bodied male prisoner he may have in custody to work on the public roads or streets under the act of 1906.

A petition was presented to the Board from J. T. Jones, E. G. Davis, G. W. Tritt and several others asking for a new road in Willards District, so as to lessen the distance from Willard to Powellville about one mile. The matter was referred to Commissioners Johnson and Travis.

Notice.
There will be services, D. V., in Spring Hill Parish, on Sunday next, June 14th, as follows: Quantico, 10.30 a. m.; Spring Hill, 3 p. m.; Mardela Springs, 8 p. m.

HISTORIES UNFRIENDLY

To The South Are Dropped By The State Board On Complaints.

Upon the recommendation of a special committee appointed for the purpose of examining certain histories now in use in the public schools against which complaints of unfairness had been made, the School Board Thursday decided to remove from the list of authorized text books Montrosney's "Leading Facts of American History" and McMaster's "History of the United States."

This decision upon the part of the School Board followed the reading of the report of the superintendent in which such action was advised. The subject was brought up under the head of unfinished business by Col. A. B. Cunningham, who stated that he would like the Board to authorize Superintendent James H. Van Sickle to read the report on school histories which he had attempted to read at a previous meeting when he was prevented from doing so by Alceus Hooper. Mr. Van Sickle announced that the report was then in the hands of Secretary Roobe. The matter was put to a vote and carried.

The complaints against the books in question were embodied in a petition addressed to the School Board from the joint committee on school histories representing four camps of United Confederate Veterans of Baltimore. The petition requested the discontinuance of certain histories on the ground that they were unfair to the South; that their authors are Northern writers, unfriendly to the South and some of them malignant to the last degree.

Those present were Misses Edith Livingston, May Cansley, Ethel Dykes, Mattie Clark, Alice Tokovine, Bertie Dykes, Clara Ruark and Susie Shockley, also Mr. and Mrs. L. Mater Pollitt, Messrs. Roger S. Many interesting games were played and while the evening passed very rapidly no one seemed to lose any time in amusing themselves.

The celebrations and exercises of the One hundred and twenty sixth Commencement of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., begin on June the twelfth with the Banquet of the Adolphus Literary Society and end on the following Wednesday with the Annual Commencement Ball, the crowning social event of the year. The program is not so elaborate as the one connected with the one hundred and twenty fifth anniversary of the founding of the college nor is it expected that many men well known as leaders in the educational world will be present, but nevertheless it will be in the usual manner, impressive and enjoyable to those present. The graduating class is the largest in the history of the institution.

Sharptown Wants State Road.

The citizens of Sharptown are making a strong effort to have the road across the Nanticoke from Dorchester at that point. The following editorial appeared in the Sharptown Observer this week, showing the many advantages held out by that route:

The new State Road connecting the counties of the Eastern Shore is an improvement of the greatest value and will add largely to the material value of the natural and industrial resources. So far the route suggested has met with but little opposition until it was proposed to cross the Nanticoke river from Dorchester into Wicomico at Vienna. This part of the line is very much opposed by the people of some sections of Wicomico County and upper Dorchester.

Sharptown is decidedly the most practicable point to cross the Nanticoke. It has every advantage, in location, in convenience, in cheapness of construction and in its value to the commercial centres of Wicomico County. The crossing at Vienna is impracticable on account of the width of the stream, the depth of the water and the long distance across the marsh from the river to the high land. The enormous expense entailed in making of a solid road bed across that broad expanse of marsh and the continued repair bills of that part of the route, place it almost out of consideration.

WAS DISFIGURED AND TORMENTED
By Dry, Scaly Eczema on Most of His Body—At Times Flesh Seemed on Fire—Rim of Crusts Around Scalp—Suffered 3 Years

CURED IN TWO MONTHS BY CUTICURA REMEDIES
'I first became affected with a dry, scaly humor which was pronounced dry eczema by three leading physicians. It commenced on my legs and arms, and finally covered the greater part of my body. My scalp around the crown of my hair was a complete ring of scales and crusts. The disease was more disfiguring than I can describe, and I was unable to perform my duties as my hands were so sore that I could not keep my hands away from it at times.

ITCHING SCALP
For Ten Years. Could Hardly Sleep. Cured by Cuticura.
'My wife had suffered for the years with a bad itching of the scalp. Most of the time she could hardly sleep at night. The skin was all discolored and itched and she had lost hundreds of things which had been recommended in the papers and by friends, but in vain. Last year I sent for a set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. She used this complete treatment as per directions and has not been bothered since. Louis Siegel, Melbourne, Va., May 16, 1907.'

NATURE'S ARMY.

Great nature is an army gay.
Restless marching on its way;
I hear the bugles clear and sweet,
I hear the tread of milliou feet.
Across the plain I see it pour;
It straggles down the waving grass;
Within the coming mountain fess
I hear a thousand cannon roar.
It swarms within my garden gate;
My deepest well it drinketh dry;
It doth not rest; it doth not wait;
By night and day it swoopeth by;
Senseless it marches by my door;
It heeds me not, though I implore.
I know not whence it comes, nor where
It goes; for me it doth not care—
Whether I starve, or eat, or sleep,
Or live, or die, or sin, or weep.
And now the banners all are bright,
Now torn and blackened by the fight.
Sometimes its laughter shakes the sky,
Sometimes the groans of those who die
Still through the night and through the livelong day
The infinite army marches on its remorseless way.

A SIMPLE QUESTION.

Salisbury People Are Requested To Honestly Answer This.
Is not the word of a representative citizen of Salisbury more than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:
Mrs. G. W. Fooks, living three miles south of Salisbury, Md., says: 'I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as being exactly as represented. I suffered from kidney disease for eight years. I was treated by doctors for Bright's Disease. It came on me so gradually that I scarcely knew what ailed me. My back failed me. I was annoyed with constant dull pains which grew gradually worse, so that I could not sleep nights on account of the severe aches and pains. The secretions annoyed me, and showed plainly the dormant condition of my kidneys. I was always tired and worn out, and the different medicines I took did me no good, but I grew worse and worse. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and highly recommended so I go a box at White and Leonard's drug store, used them strictly according to directions. They cured me and the cure was complete and lasting. I have not had any return of the complaint since I took Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave a statement for publication in 1903, recommending them, and am glad to confirm same at this time.'

Mr. Shipper, Do You Want To Save Money?
Our new commission plan saves you more money than a bank will do.
Banks pay 3 per cent. interest annually.
Our new commission plan will pay you 3 per cent. every day.
Formerly it has been our policy to employ agents to solicit berry and like green-truck shipments, for which 8 per cent. was charged to you for selling.
Of this 8 per cent. charged, the agent got 3 per cent.
This rule has been abolished the coming season by our house.
We've put a new plan into effect.
Here's The Plan
Showing How You Will Save, Illustrated Below:
Instead of employing agents and paying them 3 per cent. for soliciting shipments for our house this season, we have dispensed with their services.
Your shipments will accordingly be sold by us this season for 5 PER CENT. COMMISSION, instead of 8 per cent. formerly charged, saving you 3 per cent. commission every day you send your shipments to our house. At the same time you are guaranteed to get as much, if not more, money than any house here can sell for. Below is an example of the way you will save. Say you ship 10 crates of berries, 60 quarts each; they sell 10c a quart.
THE OLD PLAN.
10 Cr. Ber., 60's=600 Qts., @ 10c.....$60.00
Freight.....$4.00
8 Per Cent. Commission.....$4.80
Check to you (old plan).....$51.20
OUR NEW PLAN.
10 Cr. Ber., 60's=600 Qts., @ 10c.....$60.00
Freight.....$4.00
5 Per Cent. Commission.....$3.00
Check to you (new plan).....$58.00
On ten crates of berries you save $1.80 in commission when your shipments are sent to us this season. If you ship one hundred crates, you make $18.00.
The story, tersely told, means this: All the money that the agents have been putting in their pockets each year—and which you have been paying—you can now put into your pocket through our new commission plan. Are you growing crops for the agent's benefit? No.
Then write to us for tags today; send your shipments to our house—we can sell them profitably for you.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating and restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting the abundant nourishment of their infants. It will find it a priceless help in preparing the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any stage or condition of the female system.

Exhausted, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, back-ache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressing stomach, nervous dizziness or faint spells, see imaginary spots or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhs, draining prostrations, involution or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famous medicine for woman's weakness and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients are printed in plain English on its bottles, and stated under each. Dr. Pierce thus invites the most intelligent investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send mental card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his Free Booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of cheap compositions, first nostrum, or unknown composition. Don't do it.

HOW FALLOW'S HEALS

The Bishop's Christian Psychology, What it is...

NO EDDY SCIENTIST

He differs from the Followers of Mrs. Eddy in that He Does Not Scorn the Aid of a Regular Physician— In Fact Insists Upon a Doctor's Diagnosis.

Staid orthodox circles in the United States were not a little astounded by the announcement that Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal Church had become a rival of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, and set himself up as a "mental healer" of diseases.

Bishop Fallows, however, differs from all other advocates of "mental healing," "faith cures" and the like. He does not scorn the aid of the regular physician. In fact, he insists that all his patients bring a physician's diagnosis with them and in all his "treatments" he proposes to aid a physician of the recognized school present.

Neither does he call his new cult Christian Science. He designates it as "Christian psychology." He does claim, however, that "Christian psychology" will cure anything that is curable by Christian Science methods, which are, he believes, simply cures by faith on the part of the patient that they will be healed. He declares that this faith cure is practiced by all physicians, and he believes it should be practiced in its highest form by all earnest Christians.

"This is not a new or a sudden fancy of mine," said the Bishop with a whimsical smile. "For twelve years I have been lecturing on physiological psychology at the Bennett Episcopal College. For the last three years I have been making a special study of the relations between mentality and disease.

"I have arrived at the conclusion that mentality when based upon a trust in religion, is a powerful aid toward the cure of all functional nervous disorders.

"I do not go so far as to say that all diseases may be cured by mental suggestion. Organic diseases like cancer and typhoid fever demand the services of skilled physicians. But in every illness the mental attitude of the patient has much to do with his condition, and in all those affections of the mind which might be classified as functional nervous disorders the mental attitude of the patient is the greatest single influence."

The Bishop then outlined a few of the diseases which he believed he could cure by Christian Psychology. Included in his list the following:

Hypochondria.
Sleeplessness.
Nervous dyspepsia.
Melancholia.
Hysteria.
Drug habits.

Want of self-confidence, irritability, worry, anger, fear, and weakness of will.

"The cure of the grip, I believe," said the Bishop, "can be aided greatly, and perhaps entirely effected, by the direct influence of what I may call strengthened mentality. One of the chief factors in the potency of grip is the mental depression into which it forces its victims.

It was last Sunday evening that Bishop Fallows in his sermon announced his purpose to put his belief into practice.

But so great was the confidence of the Bishop that the sick and suffering did not wait for the first Thursday's meeting to receive treatment.

On Tuesday afternoon the Bishop treated his first patient. A janitor named C. P. J. Esnorff could not wait until Thursday afternoon, and sought the Bishop in the vestry room of the church. He was suffering from a disease of the eye and was anxious for relief. He told the Bishop that medicine had failed to afford him any help.

Esnorff sat down and listened while the Bishop told him that he had two minds—the conscious and the sub-conscious—and how they constituted the forces that was to drive the sickness out of his eyes.

He then instructed Esnorff and set him so. The patient went away declaring he felt 100 per cent better—that the Bishop's talk had effected a wonderful improvement.

The Bishop hopes to enlist all the churches in the country in this movement. He explained this purpose in the sermon in which he first made his announcement. He said:

Christian psychology uses every curative agency in the world of nature as an aid to the powerful influence of suggestion and auto-suggestion for mental and physical health. It unites the physician with the clergyman in the great work of healing. It aims to give the physician trained men and women to assist him in his ministry to the sick and suffering.

"It is along these lines that the Boston Emmanuel Church movement has been carried on for more than a year by the Rev. Dr. Worcester and the Rev. Dr. McComb. The ablest neurologists of Boston and New England are heartily cooperating with them. The results have been most encouraging.

CONTROL OF PLANT DISEASES.

Requires Constant Vigilance and Steady Work.

The attempt to bring about the control of plant diseases by attention to cultural methods has great possibilities. No detailed instructions can here be offered, only a few suggestions arising from a study of the diseases and their causes, can be given upon which the cultivator with his complete knowledge of the plants themselves may make plans for putting them into practice.

Whatever is done to keep crops in a healthy condition is a virtual fighting of disease and this is largely accomplished by methods of culture.

Rotation of crops can often be employed advantageously. The wilt of melons and the rot of cabbage are examples of diseases that may be carried over in the soil. A rotation gives opportunity for the starving out of the germs and lessens the chances of the disease becoming prevalent again.

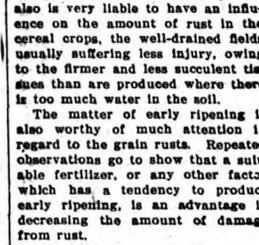

Drainage is a prominent factor in the general health of field crops. It is also very liable to have an influence on the amount of rust in the cereal crops, the well-drained fields usually suffering less injury, owing to the firmer and less succulent disease than are produced where there is too much water in the soil.

The matter of early ripening is also worthy of much attention in regard to the grain rusts. Repeated observations go to show that a suitable fertilizer, or any other factor which has a tendency to produce early ripening, is an advantage in decreasing the amount of damage from rust.

Peaches Affected With Yellow.

The accompanying illustration and description from a Maryland publication may be of assistance to farmers in determining this disease.

The fruit ripens several days or weeks before healthy fruit of the same variety. The prematurely ripened fruit is red spotted and has red streaks through the flesh and the fruit is worthless. Later the leaf buds develop into slender twigs which have small, narrow, pointed, yellowish leaves and the tree soon dies.

The disease may show on part of the tree only, though the whole tree be diseased. Examine all the trees carefully during the ripening period and afterward and pull up and burn every affected tree as soon as discovered no matter how slightly diseased. This will keep the disease down so that only a few cases appear each year, when if they are allowed to stand the disease spreads rapidly to the surrounding trees.

Planting for Good Rhubarb.

To have good rhubarb, one should provide a place not less than five feet in diameter for each plant. The soil should be as mellow and rich as thorough spading and manure can make it to the depth of at least eighteen inches and thirty would be better. Set the roots and protect them from weeds until the plants gain size and strength enough to protect themselves. River out any flowering stems that may appear as soon as they can be seen and do not be tempted into using any of the leaves the first year. The next year an abundance of leaves should come on. These should be snapped off by a sharp pull outward and downwards, so as to separate them at the base without disturbing the bud.

To Destroy Grubs.

A good method for destroying grubs in land is to plow it as for potatoes and plant to artichokes. When the tubers are ready for the hogs, turn them in and allow them to root up the field. They eat the artichokes and grubs, the one balancing the other. After they have turned the surface layer nearly over, plow the ground and allow them to root again. By following this method for two years in succession, nearly all the grubs will be destroyed.

Don't allow the clover to become too ripe before cutting. It costs more to keep vermin-stricken sheep than clean, healthy sheep. Now is a splendid time to select and fatten the unthrifty stock.

STREET PAVING.

The SALISBURY ADVERTISER has never opposed the paving of Division St. and Camden Ave. and does not now. We did oppose and still do the passage of the ordinance and the accepting of the bid of the Warren Bros. for the laying of their Bitulithic pavement at the price bid, and to placing the work under the supervision of Engineer Hutton. We advocated the employment of Mr. P. S. Shockley, whom we believe to be fully competent. And as we understand it this is the position of four-fifths of the property owners along the proposed streets, who will be compelled under the ordinance to pay one half of the cost and also their pro rata of the balance as general tax-payers. This is not only the opinion of the abutting property owners, but it is also the attitude of the majority of the tax-payers. And we certainly were very much mistaken if this was not also the opinion of the News, published by Messrs. Brewington Bros. Co., two weeks ago, when it editorially advocated turning down the bids for Bitulithic on the grounds that they were too high. While the News is entitled to hold or to change its views at any time, in this case it has failed to give any convincing reason for its change.

The statement that the price bid here for Bitulithic pavements is cheaper than in Baltimore City, can not be accepted without a comparison of the specifications in each case. A house may cost $5,000 while another of equal size may cost $30,000, depending on the material, workmanship and location.

The Difference.

The excavations and grading is a large part of the cost of Street paving. This work done in stone or clay soil will cost much more than if constructed in sand. It is evident that excavations and grading of 12 inches or more will cost more than 6 inches, or less. The filling and depth of the sub base regulates a part of the cost. The concrete base in Baltimore, which city has been cited as an example, is 6 inches while the specifications in Salisbury call for a five inch base. Mr. Horn, agent for the Bitulithic, admitted this fact and in justification of the slight difference claimed that the cost here would be greater owing to the additional cost in freighting the stone here.

Baltimore City, with a population of 100 times that of Salisbury, with an assessable basis 150 times that of ours, with an income over 600 times that of Salisbury, is complaining that the price asked for Bitulithic is too high. City Engineer Fendall, an expert in Street Paving, in the Baltimore Sun, of a few days ago, advocated delay because of the excessive charges made by the Warren Bros. for laying Bitulithic pavement and advised the City authorities to try tar or Bituminous Macadam, a much cheaper pavement but one which was guaranteed to be satisfactory.

A Large Consideration.

$30,000 to pave two streets is not a trifle and a bonded debt of $50,000, to pave these streets not an insignificant sum with which to burden the people. A mistake arising from caution or even unnecessary delay is in this case easy of correction. Before the Council is in a position to know what kind of material any of our streets should be paved with, they should have some facts and data of the travel and traffic over the streets, so that they, as well as the people, can have an intelligent basis on which to found their conclusion as to the material and cost. The city should first free itself from Mr. Hutton before any new contracts are entered into.

The abutting property owners who are called upon to pay one-half the cost of the paving should be given some consideration in this matter. To compel the property owners along these streets to pay out about $30,000 and give them no vote is no light matter. Let us have fairness and frankness in the difference of opinion that has arisen on the matter of paving our streets. It is not necessary to impugn the motives of either side. We believe and know that the majority of those who are opposing the giving of the contracts at the present time would be in favor of any substitute for the streets if facts are given and conditions shown which would justify an expenditure of this amount of money. The question as to the durability and value of Bitulithic as a street paving material will be admitted by almost everyone without argument, and its price is the only objection made against it—an objection that Baltimore City is today making.

Salisbury And Baltimore.

We have no desire to compare our city with that of Snow Hill on anything like an equal footing, but at the same time a comparison as to population would show about three to one, assessable value probably a much larger ratio, and street traffic undoubtedly much heavier—but while not taking Snow Hill for our basis of comparison let us not go to the other extreme and take Baltimore City with a population, 100 to our one, and assessed value of $150 to our $1, and we think it fair to presume, without facts or data on the subject, with much more traffic on its streets location for location.

The statement that if Bitulithic is put down we will all be proud of our streets is certainly true enough; we all expect to be proud of our streets, but pride is not always wisdom. Many a man is proud in the possession of an automobile, who places a mortgage on his home to obtain it. Salisbury has money enough to improve its streets with whatever material the wear and tear would prove to be the greatest economy, but it has no money to throw away on luxuries and pride.

—New York.—Captain Joshua Slocum, lone skipper of the Atlantic, bought his little sloop Spray into Quarantine and on her deck was the largest specimen of coral ever landed in this or any other country. The coral, known as "gun coral," because of the projections, like a gun battery, weighs two tons and fills a crate ten feet long and four feet high.

With the aid of Captain Slocum and a squad of natives the coral was pried off the reef of Golden Gay, near Andros Island, one of the Bahamas, by Professor B. E. Dahlgren, of the American Museum of Natural History, in this city and today the Spray will sail up the North River to Seventy seventh street, where the valuable burden will be unloaded. The voyages of the ten ton sloop ended yesterday completes nearly 8,000 knots, which began last November, when the Spray and her lone occupant sailed from Martha's Vineyard, Mass. Although Captain Slocum has kept no official log of his runs since his 46,000 mile cruise around the world, he believes that he is rapidly reaching the 75,000 mile mark for her entire voyages.

—Franklin City citizens are taking active steps to get a Carnegie medal for Selby Harrington, 14 years old, who swam nearly two miles to save the lives of his sister and cousins, Misses Ruth and Florence Harrington and Clarence Harrington, whose boat was capsized in the bay.

Selby, who appeared to be all right after his heroic effort, collapsed yesterday from the strain through which he had gone, and for a few hours was in a bad condition. He is much better today.

Letters poured in this morning from different places congratulating the little fellow, and his friends think they have good chances of getting him recognition from the Currier commission. A petition signed by hundreds will be prepared, reciting the facts of his daring swim after the boat in which he and his companions had upset, and his subsequent rescue of the other three after they had clinging to the boat for an hour and a half and, weakened, were about to sink when the boy returned with help.

—The man in the upper berth leaned over the edge, and jamming his brow firmly down on his brow, cried in a harsh, coarse voice that was audible for a considerable distance. "Hi, you, down there! Are you rich?"

"Huh" ejaculated the man in the lower berth, almost swallowing his Adam's apple. "What's the matter?" "I say, are you rich?" "What's that, sir? Rich? What do you mean by waking me up in the middle of the night to ask me such a question as that?" "I want to know—that's why."

"Well, then confound you, I am rich. Now, I hope your curiosity is satisfied."

"Very rich?" "Millionaire. Now, shut up, and—"

Well, then, why don't you hire a whole ship to do your snoring in?"

Mormons in Mexico. The wonderful success of the Mormon colonies in the northwestern part of Chihuahua and in northeastern Sonora is little appreciated in Mexico, where they alone of all foreigners have accomplished their aim—colonization. They now number fully 4,000 souls, 3,500 in Chihuahua and 500 in Sonora. They are prosperous to a high degree, have beautiful homes splendid school rooms and an educational system, good farms and orchards, good cattle, horses and hogs, and in every way their settlements would pass muster with the thrifty farming settlements in the western part of the United States and are an object lesson in Mexico. The Mormons in Mexico are an example of the best in a quiet, law-abiding people. It is exceedingly seldom that the authorities have any trouble with Mormons, and they pay their taxes for the support of the government better than the Mexicans themselves do. For thrift and industry they are proving what can be done in building up the country materially, and are thereby an example to all with whom they are in contact.—Modern Mexico.

Forgotten Poet. The Rev. Marjory Rees of Chelsea, who has been lecturing on "Ebenezer Jones, the neglected poet," has now published an interesting little pamphlet giving the result of his researches, for Jones lived in Chelsea, died at forty in 1860, and was buried at Shenfield. Mr. Rees describes him as a Welshman, and as to his claims to fame, Watts Dunton has written that among men who have expressed themselves in English verse I greatly doubt whether a more robust personality has appeared since Byron. Dante Gabriel Rossetti, who knew Jones well, once said: "This remarkable poet affords nearly the most striking instance of neglected genius in our modern school of poetry."—South Wales Daily News.

Where Stage Money is Made. It is a curious coincidence that most of the "stage" money fished by the villains in melodramas, and for which there is so much blood-letting and murder in sensational plays, is made in Washington almost within the shadow of the bureau of engraving and printing. The demand for it has caused it to develop into quite a little industry. It is widely used as "property" for regular theatrical productions and also for amateur theatricals. It is engraved on green paper, like "greenbacks."

A recent issue of "stage" money contained the picture of Cassie Chadwick, whose frenzied financial manipulations landed her in prison.

The Longest Name. The staggering length if the names given by native Hawaiians sometimes upsets Court officials in the Sandwich Islands. In a case recently on trial in Honolulu a witness on being sworn was asked by the lawyer to give his name. The witness replied as follows: "Kaliimooliokeaoionokamakahikakapukalani."

An Old Maids Soliloquy

Miss Jemima sat in her room, the most pleasing object in the midst of pleasant surroundings. It was a large, well-lighted apartment, handsomely furnished with articles for use as well as ornament. Her geraniums and ivy filled the window with a beautiful greenery and the air with perfume; the bird trilled merrily as a slanting bar of sunshine fell across his cage; the fire glowed like some gigantic ruby behind the polished bars of the grate, and over all was the serene influence of combined refinement and precision.

Miss Jemima closed the book she had been reading, and put it in its place in the bookcase, by the side of other volumes of its exact height.

"An old maid! The writer of that book seems to think that is a dreadful term. That is because he is a man and doesn't know anything about it. Now, I have been an old maid these many years, and rather like it. I look around and among all my acquaintances who dropped off with companions into the by-ways of life leaving me alone on the highway. I see none any better provided for, and a great many not so well. I never had an offer in my life, for which I am thankful for.

I don't assume to be a better or more strong-minded than others of my sex, and I suppose if anyone had come and begged and coaxed me to allow him to make me miserable I'd have consented, and been in the mire with the rest of them.

"I never had but one lover—Jonas Whitcomb was his name—and he married a girl up at the North village and moved out West. I haven't heard of him for years, I wonder what became of him."

Speaking of marrying, what a failure Ellen Lane's wedded life has been in the way of making her happier. Such a bright pretty girl as she was! She chose for her husband an honest mechanic, or he chose her, or they chose each other, I don't know which it was, or probably it was all three combined, and they started life with such high hopes and bright anticipations. His wages were good, and they calculated to work hard at first and be saving, and after a few years be able to rest. I want to see them the other day, not forgetting to take with me some serviceable present for the children, to insure my welcome.

They flocked out to meet me, saying they had a baby at their house, which they seemed to consider some thing wonderful, as if it were not an annual event.

"They all tell me their secrets because they know I have no one to repeat them to. I noticed she seemed nervous, as though she had something on her mind, but did not consider it anything more serious than the fit of her dress, or a stain on the dining-room carpet; but I inadvertently touched the jarring chord by speaking of Ellen and Cousin Mattie, and contrasting her lot with theirs.

"Ah, Jemima," she said, "the heart that knows its own bitterness, and then she told me that another besides herself shared her husband's wealth—a bold, handsome beauty, who spent his money with lavish hand, and was sole possessor of the heart that had promised to love and cherish his wife only until death parted them.

"That is the way, there is a skeleton in one closet in every household, and the master of the house generally carries the key; and so I shall continue as I have lived so far, happy and single. I am not working my fingers to the bone for children who follow so close upon one another they seem likely to overwhelm you.

"I'm not going to grieve my life away because a man married me when I was young and pretty, and loved me, and I faded, and then he coolly cast me aside for some one who suited him better, leaving me to solitude, my heart eaten out by jealous fancies, while he basked in smiles for which he paid a good round price. No, I am free from all such.

"Ah! there is the postman and he holds up a letter for me. Let me see, where is it from? Illinois? Yes; I guess it is from sister Jane or some of her children. 'Yours hopefully, Jonas Whitcomb.' What can it mean? And where did I put my glasses?

"I feel so flustered and the paper shakes as if I stood in a strong draught. He has been left a widow with six children, with no one to care for them. He says he is not very well off in this world's goods, but hopes to be able to make a living, and, hearing from sister Jane that I was still single, writes to ask me to marry him.

"Yes, there it is in black and white—my very first offer. What shall I do? But of course that is easily decided. I must do my duty and my duty is clearly to look after those poor, motherless children. I will write my answer immediately, so it may go out by the afternoon mail.

Uncle Sam: "I'm getting pretty tired of this."

THE VITAL QUESTION.

Prizes Offered For Tariff Reform Articles and Cartoons.
The tariff reform committee of the Reform club offers the following prizes, amounting to $300:

During the six months beginning April 1 $25 each month for the best tariff reform article or editorial and $25 each month for the best tariff reform cartoon.

All productions must be original and must have appeared in some newspaper or other publication and must be submitted with permission for their use by the committee, whether they receive prizes or not.

Productions submitted for competition in April must have been published since Jan. 1, 1908. Those submitted in May must have been published since March 1. Productions published in May or later must be submitted during the month of publication, but, falling then to receive prizes, may compete in the following month. All communications should be addressed to Tariff Reform Committee, 42 Broadway, New York.

The committee believes the tariff is the most vital public question now confronting the American people and should be made the leading issue in the coming presidential campaign.

A PROSPERITY PANIC?

How It May Be Turned to Good Account For the People.

That the panic of 1907-8 is called by some a "prosperity panic," probably by those who would avoid their share of responsibility for it, will bring little comfort to the thousands who have lost the means of livelihood or the wives and children who feel the bitter pangs of hunger. No panic was ever a "prosperity panic" in the sense of being caused by general prosperity among the people, though it might be caused by prosperity among a few at the expense of the many.

But this panic may possibly be the cause of prosperity—in the future. If it leads the people to sit down and cast up their accounts with those who enjoy tariff monopolies and other unjust privileges; if it gives them the comfort to the means of livelihood or the wives and children who feel the bitter pangs of hunger. No panic was ever a "prosperity panic" in the sense of being caused by general prosperity among the people, though it might be caused by prosperity among a few at the expense of the many.

A "Tax on Humanity."
We are familiar with the "tax on intelligence" levied in the form of a duty on foreign ideas embodied in books and the "tax on culture" imposed by way of a duty on works of art. Now comes a protest against the "tax on humanity." A representative of the medical profession objects to the duty on surgical instruments.

The higher cost of some of these instruments of mercy, due to the tariff, tends to deprive the poor of their benefit. We have tariff taxes on "intelligence," "culture" and "humanity." The list might be extended much further.

Where to Look For Relief.
Effective relief from the tribute exacted by the trusts is not to be found in suits to compel dissolution of a trust in its present form when it can immediately reorganize in another and perhaps more dangerous form, nor by large fines to be paid out of trust coffers when the fines can be assessed upon trust patrons through an increase in the price of the trust's product. But a large measure of relief can be had by removing the tariff wall which protects the trust from foreign competition and enables it to extort monopoly prices from American consumers.

Extortion of the Dingley Tariff.
All the robberies and thefts committed by all the insurance officers since life insurance was first originated do not amount to as much extortion as the Dingley bill for one year.—Governor Cummins of Iowa.

MAKING HARD TIMES.

Specific Examples Showing How Combinations Affect Industry.

Whether or not the trusts were responsible for the coming of the panic, it is easy to see how they are making the business depression longer and more intense. The officials of the American Newspaper Publishers' association have given out a statement showing that the paper trust is curtailing its output, closing down mills, discharging workmen and—keeping prices up. This sort of thing makes hard times harder. The tribute exacted by the paper trust has been raised so high that many newspapers and other users of paper have decreased the size of their publications and in some cases raised their subscription rates.

If the trust were interested in relieving the industrial depression or in anything except its own income, it would narrow its margin of profit a little, lower the price and stimulate the use of paper, keep its mills running and its workmen employed. Even protectionist editors can see the evils of the tariff on paper and wood pulp, which enables the trust to lay tribute on publishers and the people.

In like manner the steel trust by surrendering a little of its monopoly profit on steel, which is a raw material for thousands of industries, could not only keep its own mills running more steadily, but could give a great impetus to millions of factory wheels, giving re-employment to thousands of men and relief to millions of consumers of products into which steel enters. The trust would be compelled to do this if the tariff on steel were removed. The New York Journal of Commerce in its issue of Feb. 19, 1907, says:

"If the steel trust holds the whole process of recovery in check and keeps both capital and labor in idleness, it yields in prices upon products that it sends abroad and makes it easier for foreigners in order not to lose its hold upon export markets. But the domestic market it has at its mercy, and there it is inexorable. Abroad it has to meet competition. At home it has managed to strangle it while protected from any that might invade its territory from without. It has come to pass that the people need protection, which only competition can give, and they can have it among domestic producers as soon as they will permit it from foreign producers. It is to no small extent the tariff that enables the trusts to keep up prices and keep down the effort to recover industrial and trade activity."

EMPTY WORDS.

Beveridge Uses Strong Language, But Means Nothing.

In his speech before the Indiana convention Senator Beveridge speaks of opposition to revision as coming from "interests whom the tariff properly protected when it was made, but whom changed conditions now enable to act like highwaymen to other honest interests; from a purchased press owned by gluttonous corporations and by men whose wealth flowed from obsolete schedules."

As to the present condition, the senator's language is certainly warranted. But he insists that nothing must be done to the "highwaymen," the "gluttonous corporations" or the "obsolete schedules" until "after election." The thieving and oppression must go on, and it is assumed that the people will trust those who simply promise to abolish thieving in the future, having full power to do it now.

Beveridge's words are worthy of notice: "He who would revise the tariff on the eve of the presidential election is too hypocritical to be tolerated." We are at a loss to ascertain the senator's meaning. Would not the honest statesman or party give the nation the quickest possible relief from such intolerable conditions, not afraid to base its appeal to the people on something definite accomplished rather than upon fair and general promises to do in the future what it has full power to do now and dare not attempt?

To act before election would seem to involve less "hypocrisy" than the opposite course preferred by so many eleventh hour converts to tariff revision.
JESSE F. ORTON.

THE HIGHER LIFE

Selected Cases of Thought from Pious and Public Men of All Ages.

Man's Life As He Makes It.

Man has nothing to do with his birth, but he has a life to live that is everything to himself and a blessing or a curse to others. This life is mighty in its capacities and purposes and great in its development and exercises.—Rev. Dr. John L. Brandt.

Christ Our Salvation.

Christ is not unreasonable. God asks only one step at a time. He gives strength for to-day's burden—no more. He gives light for to-day's path—no more. "Give us this day our daily bread"—not bread for five years from to-day. He sends help never too soon—that is our safety; never too late—that is our salvation.—Rev. Dwight Hillis, Baptist.

Relation of the Sinner.

Sinners are not enemies of religion, they are subjects for religion. It is the Pharisee, the man with a warped conscience, the religionist with a stubborn ignorance that has always opposed true religion. It was not the drunkards and harlots of Jerusalem that killed Jesus; it was the earnest, punctilious, religious, ignorant hierarchy.—Rev. Wallace Smith, Episcopal.

Future Safeguard.

Apply the principle that Christ commands, to your own life. He bids you not worry about the future, but to trust God, knowing that "all things work together for good to them that love God." Just now you are in deep dejection over some trouble, forgetting all about the divine supervision. You will believe in a year that God has protected you and that the everlasting arms were always under you, even when you felt you were falling. Can you not believe in God's care now, before it is actually manifested.—Rev. D. Burrell, Reformed.

Preacher Only a Messenger.

The dictum that a man's sermons are effective in the measure of the man's goodness is false. It is not the man behind the sermon, but Jesus Christ above the man and inspiring the sermon which makes it strong. In other words, the ambassador of God bears a message not from himself but from God. Its real vitality, fire and life come by no means from the man's own life, but from the King whose messenger he is. He merely carries the message. He must have qualifications. He must be loyal to his King. He must be sincere. He must believe in the wisdom and teaching of the Ruler. But the truth which he brings is not his, but God's.—Rev. Frank Crane.

Living a Religious Life.

We find in the world plenty of desire to be religious and to live a religious life, but we do not see enough of that rare ability—the ability to wait patiently. Lack of religion is due to lack of patience more than to almost anything else. We see that the church is not perfect and that it has in its vast numbers of imperfect members, and so we become impatient and lose interest in things religious. We are willing to be aggressive on the cause of the Master, but we have not the power to wait for Him to work out those difficulties which only He can work out and make right.

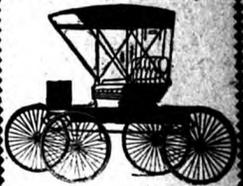

"In religion, as in every walk of life, there are two essential things which we must learn, namely, 'To labor and to wait.'"—Rev. H. S. Bradley, Methodist.

Keeping Gods Commands.

My friends, we ought to keep God's commands, "for this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments, and His commandments are not grievous." And we have seen, I think, that we can keep them with the help that God is ready to give us. We can keep them, for God loves us. God is in sympathy with us, God is more anxious to help us in our climbing than we are to climb ourselves; and this is a mighty thing for us to know, because, no matter what our own powers were, no matter how eagerly we were pressing our way upward, unless God were there to help us and to beckon us on, and to reach more than halfway down and grasp our hands, we never could expect to reach the altitudes of power of personal triumph.—Rev. E. M. Luke, Unitarian.

Faith and Love.

We must believe in Him or we cannot reap the benefit of His great and glorious work for us. Everywhere in Christ's message and in all the New Testament faith is made a condition of the blessed life. This is true of all life's relationships and it is supremely true of our relationship to God. There is little that He can do for us unless by faith we open our hearts and lives to Him. Faith is the channel that lets the life of God into the soul of man. There is only one greater thing in the world than faith, and that is love, and even love is born of faith, and nourished by faith. We cannot love very much one in whom we do not believe, in whom we have no confidence. Faith opens the way for love to flow into our souls. Without faith there is no life and no vital relationship.—Rev. H. Tupper, Baptist.

STREET PAVING.

The SALISBURY ADVERTISER has never opposed the paving of Division St. and Camden Ave. and does not now. We did oppose and still do the paving of the ordinance and the accepting of the bid of the Warren Bros. for the laying of their Bitulithic pavement at the price bid, and to placing the work under the supervision of Engineer Hutton.

The statement that if Bitulithic is put down we will all be proud of our streets is certainly true enough; we all expect to be proud of our streets, but pride is not always wisdom.

The Difference. The excavations and grading is a large part of the cost of Street paving. This work done in stone or clay soil will cost much more than if constructed in sand.

The man in the upper berth leaned over the edge, and jamming his frown firmly down on his brow, cried in a harsh, coarse voice that was audible for a considerable distance.

Before the Council is in a position to know what kind of material any of our streets should be paved with, they should have some facts and data of the travel and traffic over the streets, so that they, as well as the people, can have an intelligent basis on which to found their conclusion as to the material and cost.

and conditions shown which would justify an expenditure of this amount of money. The question as to the durability and value of Bitulithic as a street paving material will be admitted by almost everyone without argument, and its price is the only objection made against it—an objection that Baltimore City is today making.

Salisbury And Baltimore.

We have no desire to compare our city with that of Snow Hill on anything like an equal footing, but at the same time a comparison as to population would show about three to one, assessable value probably a much larger ratio, and street traffic undoubtedly much heavier—but while not taking Snow Hill for our basis of comparison let us not go to the other extreme and take Baltimore City with a population, 100 to our one, and assessed value of $150 to our $1, and we think it fair to presume, without facts or data on the subject, with much more traffic on its streets location for location.

The statement that if Bitulithic is put down we will all be proud of our streets is certainly true enough; we all expect to be proud of our streets, but pride is not always wisdom. Many a man is proud in the possession of an automobile, who places a mortgage on his home to obtain it. Salisbury has money enough to improve its streets with whatever material the wear and tear would prove to be the greatest economy, but it has no money to throw away on luxuries and pride.

-New York.—Captain Joshua Slocum, lone skipper of the Atlantic, bought his little sloop Spray into Quarantine and on her deck was the largest specimen of coral ever landed in this or any other country. The coral, known as "gun coral," because of the projections like a gun battery, weighs two tons and fills a crate ten feet long and four feet high.

With the aid of Captain Slocum and a squad of natives the coral was pried off the reef of Golden Cay, near Andros Island, one of the Bahamas, by Professor B. E. Dahlgren, of the American Museum of Natural History, in this city and today the Spray will sail up the North River to Seventy seventh street, where the valuable burden will be unloaded.

The voyages of the ten ton sloop ended yesterday completes nearly 8,000 knots, which began last November, when the Spray and her lone occupant sailed from Martha's Vineyard, Mass. Although Captain Slocum has kept no official log of his runs since his 46,000 mile cruise around the world, he believes that he is rapidly reaching the 75,000 mile mark for her entire voyage.

Franklin City citizens are taking active steps to get a Carnegie medal for Selby Harrington, 14 years old, who swam nearly two miles to save the lives of his sister and cousin, Misses Ruth and Florence Harrington and Clarence Harrington, whose boat was capsized in the bay.

Selby, who appeared to be all right after his heroic effort, collapsed yesterday from the strain through which he had gone, and for a few hours was in a bad condition. He is much better today.

Letters poured in this morning from different places congratulating the little fellow, and his friends think they have good chances of getting him recognition from the Carnegie commission. A petition, signed by hundreds will be prepared, reciting the facts of his daring swim along the boat in which he and his companions had upset, and his subsequent rescue of the other three after they had clung to the boat for an hour and a half and, weakened, were about to sink when the boy returned with help.

Before the Council is in a position to know what kind of material any of our streets should be paved with, they should have some facts and data of the travel and traffic over the streets, so that they, as well as the people, can have an intelligent basis on which to found their conclusion as to the material and cost.

Mormons in Mexico. The wonderful success of the Mormon colonies in the northwestern part of Chihuahua and in northeastern Sonora is little appreciated in Mexico, where they alone of all foreigners have accomplished their aim—colonization. They now number fully 4,000 souls, 3,500 in Chihuahua and 500 in Sonora. They are prosperous to a high degree, have beautiful homes splendid school rooms and an educational system; good farms and orchards, good cattle, horses and hogs, and in every way their settlements would pass muster with the thrifty farming settlements in the western part of the United States and are an object lesson in Mexico. The Mormons in Mexico are an example of the best in a quiet, law-abiding people. It is exceedingly seldom that the authorities have any trouble with Mormons, and they pay their taxes for the support of the government better than the Mexicans themselves do. For thrift and industry they are proving what can be done in building up the country materially, and are thereby an example to all with whom they are in contact.—Modern Mexico.

Forgotten Poet. The Rev. Marty Poes of Chelsea, who has been lecturing on "Ebenezer Jones, the neglected poet," has now published an interesting little pamphlet giving the result of his researches, for Jones lived in Chelsea, died at forty in 1860, and was buried at Shenfield. Mr. Poes describes him as a Welshman, and as to his claims to fame, Watts Duntton has written that among men who have expressed themselves in English verse I greatly doubt whether a more robust personality has appeared since Byron. Dante Gabriel Rossetti, who knew Jones well, once said: "This remarkable poet affords nearly the most striking instance of neglected genius in our modern school of poetry."—South Wales Daily News.

Where Stage Money is Made. It is a curious coincidence that most of the "stage" money flashed by the villains in melodramas, and for which there is so much blood-letting and murder in sensational plays, is made in Washington almost within the shadow of the bureau of engraving and printing. The demand for it has caused it to develop into quite a little industry. It is widely used as "property" for regular dramatic productions and also for amateur theatricals. It is engraved on green paper, like "greenbacks."

The Longest Name. The staggering length of the names given by native Hawaiians sometimes upsets Court officials in the Sandwich Islands. In a case recently on trial in Honolulu a witness on being sworn was asked by the lawyer to give his name. The witness replied as follows: "Kaliimaloilikekiohalaikamakahikiakauakoaikamauiauwilihoiauaokakaloiauaokalani." The Court at first was inclined to rebuke the man, but inquiry showed that the witness was guiltless of any attempt at levity.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE
COPYRIGHT, 1907 BY GEORGE H. BROADHURST

With all the advantages of youth, education and good looks and no vocation other than the enjoyment of wealth, the hero of our present story chose rather to sacrifice his ease and comfort on the altar of his duty as a citizen. His city called him to save her from spoliation and corruption, and he responded to the call. To lure him from the path of right came the seductions of love and the claims of a revered parent's memory, allied with the mighty forces at the command of political and financial malefactors. The firmness with which "the man of the hour," singled out for the highest post in a great municipality by those who saw in him only a weakling and a tool, resisted the very forces that had elevated him for their own purposes to official power will be an inspiration to the reader, as it has been an uplifting force in the minds of thousands who have witnessed its theatrical representation.

CHAPTER IX.

THE moment of strained silence that ensued upon Horrihan's entrance was broken by the irrepressible Perry, who, having rescued Cynthia from Gibbs at the close of their dance, was escorting her triumphantly to the ballroom.

"This is my dance," he remarked happily to Allyn as he thus up, "and we're going to sit it out. If Mrs. Bennett in her capacity of chaperon should ask for Cynthia, you can tell her we're going into the glass house to stroll among the romantic vegetables."

And he departed with his prize in the direction of the conservatory. The moment's interruption had sufficed for Wainwright to whisper an admonitory word in Horrihan's ear. Dallas, too, fearing a clash, took Bennett's arm.

"You're in luck," sneered Horrihan. "It's a warm room in here!" she murmured. "Perhaps we can find better air in one of the other rooms. Shall we try?"

"Wainwright," exclaimed Horrihan, as the portieres closed behind the mayor and girl, "I don't like that! Is your niece on his side or with us?"

"I don't know," answered Wainwright disconcertedly, "and I don't like to force an issue by asking her. It doesn't especially matter, I suppose. In any case, I can trust her."

"You're in luck!" sneered Horrihan. "That makes two people you say you can trust—first your secretary, Thompson, and then—Hello!" he broke off as a swarthy middle-aged man hurried in. "Looking for me, Williams? What's up?"

The newcomer was visibly excited, and at first glance Horrihan had seen that something was amiss.

"What has gone—deserted?" cried Williams.

"Ellis has gone," repeated Williams.

"Ellis?" echoed Wainwright in dismay for the man of whom Williams spoke was one of the aldermen, "Richard Thirteen" upon whom Horrihan counted. The boss made no comment, but waited impatiently for his beseecher to continue.

"Ellis has gone," repeated Williams. "He left a note for me saying his wife is very ill and the doctor's ordered him to take her south. So he can't attend Friday's meeting."

"Can't attend the meeting?" gasped Wainwright. "But everything depends on it!"

"Oh, he'll be on hand, the cur!" growled Horrihan. "The rest are standing solid of course!"

"I think so," hazarded Williams, "but some of 'em are pretty scared. We've never had such a night before as Bennett's putting up against us now, and—"

"I'll strengthen 'em up so as to knock out any weaklings!" declared Horrihan confidently. "It's Ellis we've got to look after now. Go after him, Williams, on the first train south and haul him back. Have him here by Friday if you have to kidnap him. I'll stand for any damage or expense. Only see he's here for that meeting. It's up to you. Now jump!"

As Williams hastened toward the door Horrihan called after him:

"On your way out send word to Roberts that I don't want to see him. Well, Wainwright," he resumed, turning back into the room, "it looks bad."

"Do you think?"

"I think we're in a tight place. If our aldermen found out about Ellis' quitting, there's no knowing how many of 'em would bolt. If we could only work Bennett!"

"Out of the question. He can't be turned."

"There's no man who can't be turned. I've one card up my sleeve yet that ought to land him. But I'd rather try something else first. I wish we could get a line on his price."

"He can't be bought! He—"

"Not! Everybody can be bought. Only there's some that can't be bought with cash. I'm wondering what there is that'll buy him if money won't."

Gibbs, in search of an elusive partner, crossed the foyer and paused to greet them.

"What news?" he asked.

Wainwright surveyed the broker's well-groomed figure with less approval than usual.

"You seem to be industrious enough tonight," said he. "It's a pity some of tonight's dancing energy couldn't have been devoted to your work this morning."

Gibbs flushed at the reproof in words and tone.

"I don't understand," he replied stily.

"Why didn't you notify me of the big block of Borough stock that was bought up just before noon?"

"I hadn't heard about it," answered Gibbs, with not quite all his customary assurance.

"Everybody else heard of it. You'll have to keep better tabs on the market than that if you're to be any use to us. Do you know who bought it?"

"No," returned Gibbs, with growing uneasiness. "Of course I don't. How should I know? What are you driving at?"

"This is what I'm driving at: Several big blocks of the stock have been unloaded on the market during the past few days and have been quietly snapped up. Somebody's evidently tapping on to our game. You don't know who?"

"I've told you twice that I didn't know," blustered Gibbs, masking his concern under a show of virtuous indignation.

The effort called forth all the astute young broker's nerve, for a certain shrewd scheme of his showed signs of falling through. By his original arrangement with Wainwright he was to have manipulated all the Borough stock purchases on the exchange floor and to receive 20 per cent of the profits on the condition that he invest not one dollar in the stock on his private account.

Having strong faith in the deal's success and having no equally strong incentive to keep faith with his partners, Gibbs had sought to swell his own profits by secretly buying up quantities of the stock for himself until every penny of his capital was involved. His troubled mind could not now determine whether or not Wainwright suspected him. Gibbs, while possessing all the ambition, selfishness and lack of conscience that go toward the making of a great financier, lacked the one chief essential for the part—namely, a cold and unshaken nerve. It was this defect that now threatened to expose him.

"Well," resumed Wainwright, as though dismissing the topic, "you should know who is doing this private buying. That's what we brought you into the deal for. Anyhow, the mysterious purchaser is liable to find himself in hot water before long."

"Why?" queried Gibbs in a voice he tried to make indignant.

"Only because the deal will probably fall through."

"Fall through?" cried Gibbs, dismayed.

"What do you—Why, you told me Mr. Horrihan could win over a fourth-alderman, and that with his solid thirteen!"

"Yes," drawled Horrihan, who had been unobtrusively eyeing Gibbs from the moment of his entrance, "we had some such notion, as you say. But my 'solid thirteen' didn't happen to be as solid as he looked. He's bolted."

"Bolted! That we—we will lose!"

"Say, Mr. Gibbs," observed Horrihan, "you seem to take this thing pretty hard for a man with only 20 per cent at stake. Mr. Wainwright stands to lose some millions. I'm interested to see you don't see as getting pale and shaky, do you? If a man can't play the chips he has no right in a poker game. Brace up and act like a man, can't you? We haven't lost yet. I've sent after the fellow that bolted, and I think I can land the fourteenth alderman too."

"Good!" exclaimed Gibbs in wild relief. "And you'll do your very best to pull the deal through, won't you?"

"No!" snarled Horrihan in staphanistic sarcasm. "I'm going to spend the time playing pingpong and diabolo with the kids or taking a course of lessons in fancy kitting. Oh, buck up, can't you, and quit acting like a baby! Judge Newman's out there on the other side of the ballroom. Chase over and tell him to come here."

"Too confused to resent the boss' words, Gibbs meekly set out on his errand.

"That chap's got a streak of yellow a yard wide," commented Horrihan, gazing after him.

"Not as bad as that," replied Wainwright. "He's young and not used to reverses. You'll find he is game, all right, when it comes to a pinch. What did you want of Newman?"

"You'll see. Here he comes."

"You wished to speak to me, Mr. Horrihan?" piped the little judge, hurrying into the foyer. "Good evening, Mr. Wainwright. What a success the ball is! My daughters have been dancing all evening. And Mrs. Newman is so—"

"Never mind Mrs. Newman just now," broke in Horrihan. "There's something important I want you to do for me."

He spoke as he always did to Newman, in the manner of one addressing an incompetent servant. The judge, for all his pomposity, sensed it was to ignore the politician's mode of address.

"I want you to hunt up Bennett," went on the boss, "and persuade him to stop fighting the Borough franchise bill. Tell him—"

"Oh," gasped the judge in genuine alarm. "I really don't think I could presume to—"

"Yes, you can," contradicted Horrihan. "You can do it, and what's more, you will. You don't feel shy about asking favors of me, and when it's the other way around you've got to come down on—"

"I know! I know!" protested the frightened little judge soothingly. "But you don't understand how—"

"I got you the nomination last fall. Are you going to be a white man or a welscher?"

"But I'm sure that Mrs. Newman—"

"To blazes with Mrs. Newman! Now listen to me. Go to Bennett and do what you can to make him keep his hands off our Borough bill. If he's difficult offer him, in my name, the nomination for governor next year. If you can get him—well, there's a vacancy year in the supreme court and—"

"I'll do what I can," assented the judge. "I'm sure you are right, Mr. Horrihan, even if your way of putting matters is just a little ragged. I'll see Mr. Bennett tonight and use all the persuasion in my power. I'm quite sure civic welfare will be best served if he will cease his unseemly opposition to the Borough bill. Thank you, Mr. Horrihan. I'm very sure that Mrs. Newman—"

"I'm sure, too," cut in Horrihan. "Now run on. We busy. Remember, now the very next supreme court vacancy—"

"Do you really think he has any influence with Bennett?" asked Wainwright as the judge vanished.

"Can't do any harm to try. They're neighbors in the country and in the same crowd in society and all that. If it falls, I've another card that's even stronger. Roberts ought to be here by now. You found out about those notes of his?"

"Yes; both of them. One for $7,000, one for $15,000. Both secured by mortgaging his factory. Roberts can't meet them. They've been extended twice, though the security must have been fairly good or the Sturtevant Trust company wouldn't have lent—"

"Williams said you wanted to speak to me, Mr. Horrihan," said a nervous voice from the door, and a pale, middle-aged man came forward. He wore worry's stamp between his perplexed eyes, and care had bent his narrow shoulders.

"Yes. Good evening, Roberts," replied Horrihan cordially. "See you later, Wainwright."

The financier took the hint and walked toward the ballroom, on his way out nearly colliding with Pheasant, who was entering the foyer. At sight of Horrihan and Roberts together Pheasant's eyebrows went upward, with a jerk, and he tipped out in the opposite direction as fast as his stout legs could carry him in search of Bennett. Meantime Horrihan had come directly to the point, as usual, in his appeal to Roberts.

"Look here, alderman," said he, "you've been trying for years to get through a park bill for your ward. Still want it?"

"Yes," returned Roberts. "My constituents are at me all the time about that park. They—"

"It would make your ward's property values go up 50 per cent, and it would make you solid there forever, hey?"

"Yes, but—"

"Introduce that bill again, and I'll guarantee it will go through."

"Are you in earnest?"

"There's my hand on it. Only, of course, it's understood that your park bill won't come up until after the Borough Street railway franchise is passed. Understand?"

"I'm afraid I do," said Roberts after a pause, "but I voted against that bill, and—"

"You voted against the bill in its original form," Horrihan interrupted reassuringly, "and you were right, too. It had a lot of clauses that you thought weren't square. But all those have been cut out."

"But I still!"

"But you'll be doing what's best for your own constituents by looking after their interests in the matter of the park. You'll be their hero for that. Of course if I wanted to put it another way I could remind you that your of as to be a good thing for the city. That's being honest, isn't it?"

"I suppose so. And the notes—the—"

"They'll be sent you by registered mail tomorrow if you want them. Do you?"

"Yes. That is, I—"

"That's settled, then. You've got a level head, Good night."

The boss strode out, a grim smile of victory on his big face, leaving Roberts standing confused, doubtful, his brain awlwhirl. How long the tempted alderman stood thus—oblivious to the music, his surroundings and all else—he could never remember, but a voice at his elbow brought him to his senses with a start that was followed by a thrill of fear as he wheeled and recognized the speaker.

ROYAL DOCTORS REWARDED.

Heraldic Lion Granted by King Edward to Two of His Physicians.

King Edward of England, the "fountain of honor," has granted to Sir Frederick Treves and Sir Francis Laking, Barons, the latter his physician in ordinary and surgeon apothecary and the former his sergeant surgeon, an honorable augmentation to their shields of arms in recognition of their skill and attention during his dangerous illness in 1902. The honorable augmentation consists of one of the lions of England as borne on the King's own royal arms—a lion passant guardant, gold, on a field gules (red). The shield of Sir Frederick Treves with the augmentation is shown here.

The only other instance in which the charges of the royal shield were permitted to be borne on the shield of a member of the medical profession occurred in 1612, when James I. granted to Gideon Delaune, his apothecary, who obtained the Charter for the Apothecaries' Society, the gold lion passant guardant of the royal shield, as well as a fleur de lys of France, which was then also a charge upon it.

Italian Beggars.

As the natural beggars of Italy increase toward the south, so do the beggars in numbers and in audacity. The lame, the halt and the blind come from one everywhere in Naples; mothers exhibit the stings of pitiable children and strong, well children follow the foreigner about, begging for sold. They stick like leeches to the traveller unaccustomed to the country's ways, sometimes even laying hands on him to call attention to their needs. This nuisance is in no small degree due to the careless generosity of tourists who scatter coins in the streets, or whose hearts are touched by pitiable spectacles. It is, however, better to make a firm rule not to give. In the first place your money, when given to manifestly needy beggars, is often extorted from them by able-bodied loafers. Besides, if you give to one, you'll soon find a crowd after you. If you must give, give little. A soldo (equivalent of our cent) is sufficient. Knowledge of methods of dismissing importuning beggars, touts and vendors will be found useful on reaching Naples and other cities of the south.

The word "alente" (nothing) spoken firmly, is the first to use. It does not suffice, for what Baudelaire describes as "a slight backward motion of the head, accompanied by a somewhat contemptuous expression."

"Va via!" (Italian for "Get out!") may also be found useful.—Travel Magazine.

The smallest deer.

The "mouse deer" is the chevre-tail, one of the smallest of hoofed animals. It stands less than twelve inches in height at the shoulder.

The prevailing color of the fur is brown, finely speckled with yellow. The spots are large and sometimes run into each other and form stripes. The under parts of the body are white. It possesses the peculiar habit of walking on the tips of its hoofs. This lends a stiffness to the legs which has gained for the chevre-tail the reputation of having no knee joints.

It has no horns nor antlers. But, as in the case of the musk deer, the male is provided with large canine teeth or tusks in the upper jaw. It is of exceedingly timid disposition and lies hidden in the jungle throughout the day and only ventures to feed in the early morning and after dusk in the evening. In captivity this tiny native of India is gentle, quite tame, but always shy.

Consumption is less deadly than it used to be. Certain relief and usually complete recovery will result from the following treatment: Hope, rest, fresh air, and—Scott's Emulsion.

"TO A WOODLAND VIOLET."

Golden Fairy-face, I found you where the redwood forest rises, So my fancy hailed and crowned you "Dryad of the Sandown Skies."

Convent-like the tall ferns waited you like a lovely clustered nun, So I knelt down and called you "Little Sister to the Sun."

Vision-like the mosses framed you like a sudden star your birth, So I thought a while and named you "Bit-o'-Dreamland, dropped to earth."

Bit-o'-Dreamland, Sister, Dryad, names which you may say are wrong, Yet what pleasure Joy and I had, singing you this little song.

—Clarence Urry, in Lippincott's.

A Grand Family Medicine.

It gives me pleasure to speak a good word for Electro Bitters, writes Mr. Frank Conlan of No. 436 Houston Street, New York. "It's a grand family medicine for dyspepsia and liver complications; while for lame back and weak kidneys it cannot be too highly recommended." Electro Bitters regulate the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at John M. Toulson's Drug Store. 50 cents.

—The rapid water-erosion of parts of Cape Colony is attributed chiefly to burning of vegetation and the starting of paths by cattle and wagons. Once started, erosion is very rapid, and the Ongara of Brak River, which did not exist sixty years ago, now averages 300 feet in width and 15 feet in depth.

Born in Iowa.

Our family were all born and raised in Iowa, and have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (made at Des Moines) for years. We know how good it is from long experience in the use of it. In fact when in El Paso, Texas, the writer's life saved by the prompt use of this remedy. We are now engaged in the mercantile business at Narcoossee, Fla., and have introduced the remedy here. It has proven very successful and is constantly growing in favor.

—Eunice Bros. This remedy is for sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

—One of the most curious phenomena of geography is found on the southern coast of the Island of Cephalonia, in Greece. It is a stream of salt water which has left the almost tideless sea and flowed inland with a volume sufficient to furnish water power to two mills.

Baldly Sprained Ankle Cured.

Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights—had not slept a minute. Mr. Stallings of Butler, Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it and bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle.—E. M. The Best Pills Ever Sold.

"After doctoring 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold." writes B. F. Ayson, of Ingleside, N. C. Sold under guarantee at John M. Toulson's drug store. 25c.

HOLDS BOOK OPEN.

Board With Clamps to Prevent the Leaves Closing. A device for holding the leaves of a book open, so that the contents will be plainly visible and at the same time allow free movement of the hands, is shown in the illustration.

Probably the most common, and at the same time unsatisfactory, method of accomplishing this is to place weights on the open book. Because of the incline formed by the leaves of the open book the weights seldom stay in position, readjustment being necessary every few minutes. In addition, the weights in the majority of cases cover the contents of the page, especially if it is

The holder consists of a board containing numerous perforations arranged in parallel rows. Bars supporting the clamps fit in the perforations, so that the clips can be adjusted to clamp books of various sizes. The holder is also equally as efficient in holding down flat sheets of paper inclined to curl at the ends. After clamping the book or other article to the holder the latter can be tilted or placed in any position desired.

Growth of Pearl Button Industry. "The button industry along the Mississippi River is flourishing," said Will M. Murray of Muscatine in Des Moines recently, "and there is a constant demand for men and girls to work in our factories. The industry never was in better condition. I suppose that 6,000 people are engaged in working in the factories up and down the river, and half of them are at Muscatine. Muscatine, you know, is really originated there, and it maintains its supremacy in the field. Muscatine alone produced $2,000,000 worth of pearl buttons last year. When you stop to think about it, that means a good many individual buttons. Probably every man of middle age remembers when his mother used to save the buttons carefully and string them on thread for preservation. It doesn't seem necessary any more to do that when one locally produces $2,000,000 worth of them in a single year, does it? They come in competition with the best French pearl buttons, and they get the purchasers, too, for they can meet competition anywhere in the world, under like conditions. In my judgment the industry will continue at its present high state of productivity and profit for an indefinite period extending into centuries, possibly. There seems to be no limit to the deposits."—Des Moines Register and Leader.

Gold in Walls of Old Mint. The passing of the old United States Mint building at Denver reminds old timers of the early struggles of the Government to make the maintenance of the mint worth while. Then came 1879 and the great strikes at Leadville, which brought tons of bullion to Denver and kept the mint officials busy and the institution running at full capacity.

The destruction of the buildings marks the end of the chapter. By the terms of the contract for the destruction of the building and the erection of the new Boettcher building on its site all the material except that of plaster on the concrete, and they are saving every particle of plaster on the theory that there must be some valuable settings of gold dust in any of the previous material after the mint's long years of use. The plaster will be submitted to a process whereby much gold is expected to be extracted.

Niagara and the Falls of Lodore. Having seen Niagara Falls, and having read Southey's poem descriptive of the manner in which the water comes down at Lodore it is alleged that an American Seaman convinced that the Lodore cataract was the greater. So he went to England to hunt up the falls of Lodore. He set out the moment he reached Kentucky and walked and toiled over rocks and boulders. He could not find the falls. He rested and asked a native: "Can you direct me to the falls of Lodore?" "Why, you're-a-gettin' on 'em." Was the heart-breaking answer. The falls of all 'he adjectives were dry!

Favors Covered Paths. The advantages of using covered paths with small openings are apparent from the fact that one of the most prolific causes of contamination is from the cow and stable at the time of milking. When these small paths were first introduced into the stables the men claimed that they could not milk into them, but when one of them was reminded that one of his directions was milking into the mouth of a cat sitting upon her head, his objection was readily overcome.—F. E. Davison.

Johannesburg. The fact becomes plain every day that Johannesburg is over-built and that its trade is no more a legitimate index of the prosperity of the Witwatersrand goldfields than is the gambling in gold shares in Europe a legitimate index of the prosperity of South Africa. The handsome town suffers from over-competition. Such trade as there is thoroughly sound, and quite worthy of the world's greatest gold industry.—Special Correspondent of South Africa.

This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter.

I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. A Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition to the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will cure very severe obstinate chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed the most marvelous cures.

An Old Maids Soliloquy

Miss Jemima sat in her room, the most pleasing object in the midst of pleasant surroundings. It was a large, well-lighted apartment, handsomely furnished with articles for use as well as ornament. Her geraniums and ivy filled the window with a beautiful greenery and the air with perfume; the bird trilled merrily as a slanting bar of sunshine fell across his cage; the fire glowed like some gigantic ruby behind the polished bars of the grate, and over all was the serene influence of combined refinement and precision.

Miss Jemima closed the book she had been reading, and put it in its place in the bookcase, by the side of other volumes of its exact height.

"An old maid! The writer of that book seems to think that is a dreadful term. That is because he is a man and doesn't know anything about it. Now, I have been an old maid these many years, and rather like it. I look around and among all my acquaintances who dropped off with companions into the by-ways of life leaving me alone on the highway. I see none any better provided for, and a great many not so well. I never had an offer in my life, for which I am thankful for.

I don't assume to be a better or more strong-minded than others of my sex, and I suppose if anyone had come and begged and coaxed me to allow him to make me miserable I'd have consented, and been in the mire with the rest of them.

"I never had but one lover—Jonas Whitcomb was his name—and he married a girl up at the North village and moved out West. I haven't heard of him for years, I wonder what became of him.

Speaking of marrying, what a failure Ellen Lane's wedded life has been in the way of making her happier. Such a bright pretty girl as she was! She chose for her husband an honest mechanic, or he chose her, or they chose each other, I don't know which it was, or probably it was all three combined, and they started life with such high hopes and bright anticipations. His wages were good, and they calculated to work hard at first and be saving, and after a few years be able to rest. I want to see them the other day, not forgetting to take with me some serviceable present for the children, to insure my welcome.

They flocked out to meet me, saying they had a baby at their house, which they seemed to consider something wonderful, as if it were not an annual event.

"They all tell me their secrets because they know I have no one to repeat them to. I noticed she seemed nervous, as though she had something on her mind, but did not consider it anything more serious than the fit of her dress, or a stain on the dining-room carpet; but I inadvertently touched the jarring chord by speaking of Ellen and Cousin Mattie, and contrasting her lot with theirs.

"Ah, Jemima," she said, "the heart that knows its own bitterness, and then she told me that another besides herself shared her husband's wealth—a bold, flaunting beauty, who spent his money with lavish hand, and was sole possessor of the heart that had promised to love and cherish his wife only until death parted them.

"That is the way, there is a skeleton in one closet in every household, and the master of the house generally carries the key, and so I shall continue to live as I have, so happy and single. I am not working my fingers to the bone for children who follow so close upon one another they seem likely to overwhelm you.

"I'm not going to grieve my life away because a man married me when I was young and pretty, and loved me until I faded, and then coolly cast me aside for some one who suited him better, leaving me to solitude, my heart eaten out by jealous fancies, while he basked in smiles for which he paid a good round price. No, I am free from all such.

"Ah! there is the postman and he holds up a letter for me. Let me see, where is it from? Illinois? Yes; I guess it is from sister Jane or some of her children. 'Yours hopefully, Jonas Whitcomb.' What can it mean? And where did I put my glasses?

"I feel so flustered and the paper shakes as if I stood in a strong draught. He has been left a widow with six children, with no one to care for them. He says he is not very well off in this world's goods, but hopes to be able to make a living, and, hearing from sister Jane that I was still single, writes to ask me to marry him.

"Yes, there it is in black and white—my very first offer. What shall I do? But of course that is easily decided. I must do my duty and my duty is clearly to look after these poor, motherless children. I will write my answer immediately, so it may go out by the afternoon mail.

Uncle Sam: "I'm getting pretty tired of this."

THE VITAL QUESTION.

Prizes Offered For Tariff Reform Articles and Cartoons.
The tariff reform committee of the Reform club offers the following prizes, amounting to $300:

During the six months beginning April 1 $25 each month for the best tariff reform article or editorial and $25 each month for the best tariff reform cartoon.

All productions must be original and must have appeared in some newspaper or other publication and must be submitted with permission for their use by the committee, whether they receive prizes or not.

Productions submitted for competition in April must have been published since Jan. 1, 1908. Those submitted in May must have been published since March 1. Productions published in May or later must be submitted during the month of publication, but, failing then to receive prizes, may compete in the following month. All communications should be addressed to Tariff Reform Committee, 42 Broadway, New York.

The committee believes the tariff is the most vital public question now confronting the American people and should be made the leading issue in the coming presidential campaign.

A PROSPERITY PANIC?

How It May Be Turned to Good Account For the People.

That the panic of 1907-8 is called by some a "prosperity panic," probably by those who would avoid their share of responsibility for it, will bring little comfort to the thousands who have lost the means of livelihood or to the wives and children who feel the bitter pangs of hunger. No panic was ever a "prosperity panic" in the sense of being caused by general prosperity among the people, though it might be caused by prosperity among a few at the expense of the many.

But this panic may possibly be the cause of prosperity—in the future. If it leads the people to sit down and cast up their accounts with those who enjoy tariff monopolies and other unjust privileges; if it gives them time to observe how the trusts have driven down the prices of the raw materials and labor which the trusts buy and have driven up the prices of the products which the trusts sell, all under the protection of a high tariff wall, then good may come out of evil and the panic may be truly called a "prosperity panic."

A "Tax on Humanity."
We are familiar with the "tax on intelligence" levied in the form of a duty on foreign ideas embodied in books and the "tax on culture" imposed by way of a duty on works of art. Now comes a protest against the "tax on humanity." A representative of the medical profession objects to the duty on surgical instruments.

The higher cost of some of these instruments of mercy, due to the tariff, tends to deprive the poor of their benefit. We have tariff taxes on "intelligence," "culture" and "humanity." The list might be extended much further.

Where to Look For Relief.
Effective relief from the tribute exacted by the trusts is not to be found in suits to compel dissolution of a trust in its present form when it can immediately reorganize in another and perhaps more dangerous form, nor by large fines to be paid out of trust coffers when the fines can be assessed upon trust patrons through an increase in the price of the trust's product. But a large measure of relief can be had by removing the tariff wall which protects the trust from foreign competition and enables it to extort monopoly prices from American consumers.

Extension of the Dingley Tariff.
All the robberies and thefts committed by all the insurance officers since life insurance was first originated do not amount to as much extortion as the Dingley bill for one year.—Governor Cummins of Iowa.

MAKING HARD TIMES.

Specific Examples Showing How Combinations Affect Industry.

Whether or not the trusts were responsible for the coming of the panic, it is easy to see how they are making the business depression longer and more intense. The officials of the American Newspaper Publishers' association have given out a statement showing that the paper trust is curtailing its output, closing down mills, discharging workmen and—keeping prices up. This sort of thing makes hard times harder. The tribute exacted by the paper trust has been raised so high that many newspapers and other users of paper have decreased the size of their publications and in some cases raised their subscription rates.

If the trust were interested in relieving the industrial depression or in anything except its own income, it would narrow its margin of profit a little, lower the price and stimulate the use of paper, keep its mills running and its workmen employed. Even protectionist editors can see the evils of the tariff on paper and wood pulp, which enables the trust to lay tribute on publishers and the people.

In like manner the steel trust by surrendering a little of its monopoly profit on steel, which is a raw material for thousands of industries, could not only keep its own mills running more steadily, but could give a great impetus to millions of factory wheels, giving re-employment to thousands of men and relief to millions of consumers of products into which steel enters. The trust would be compelled to do this if the tariff on steel were removed. The New York Journal of Commerce in its issue of Feb. 19 well says:

"(The steel trust) holds the whole process of recovery in check and keeps both capital and labor in idleness. It yields in prices upon products that it sends abroad and makes it easier for foreigners in order not to lose its hold upon export markets. But the domestic market it has at its mercy, and there it is inexorable. Abroad it has to meet competition. At home it has managed to strangle it while protected from any that might invade its territory from without. It has come to pass that the people need protection, which only competition can give, and they can have it among domestic producers as soon as they will permit it from foreign producers. It is to no small extent the tariff that enables the trusts to keep up prices and keep down the effort to recover industrial and trade activity."

EMPTY WORDS.

Beveridge Uses Strong Language, But Means Nothing.

In his speech before the Indiana convention Senator Beveridge speaks in opposition to revision as coming from "interests whom the tariff properly protected when it was made, but whom changed conditions now enable to act like highwaymen to other honest interests; from a purchased press owned by glibulous corporations and by men whose wealth flowed from obsolete schedules."

As to the present condition, the senator's language is certainly warranted. But he insists that nothing must be done to the "highwaymen," the "glibulous corporations" or the "obsolete schedules" until "after election." The thieving and oppression must go on, and it is assumed that the people will trust those who simply promise to abolish thieving in the future, having full power to do it now.
Mr. Beveridge's words are worthy of notice: "He who would revise the tariff on the eve of the presidential election is too hypocritical to be tolerated." We are at a loss to ascertain the senator's meaning. Would not the honest statesman or party give the nation the quickest possible relief from such intolerable conditions, not afraid to base its appeal to the people on something definite accomplished rather than upon fair and general promises to do in the future what it has full power to do now and dare not attempt?
To act before election would seem to involve less "hypocrisy" than the opposite course preferred by so many seventh hour converts to tariff reform.

THE HIGHER LIFE

Selected Gems of Thought from the Pen and Pencil of All Ages.

Man's Life As He Makes It.

Man has nothing to do with his birth, but he has a life to live that is everything to himself and a blessing or a curse to others. This life is mighty in its capacities and purposes and great in its development and exercises.—Rev. Dr. John L. Brandt.

Christ Our Salvation.

Christ is not unreasonable. God asks only one step at a time. He gives strength for to-day's burden—no more. He gives light for to-day's path—no more. "Give us this day our daily bread"—not bread for five years from to-day. He sends help never too soon—that is our safety; never too late—that is our salvation.—Rev. Dwight Hillis, Baptist.

Relation of the Sinner.

Sinners are not enemies of religion, they are subjects for religion. It is the Pharisee, the man with a warped conscience, the religionist with a stubborn ignorance that has always opposed true religion. It was not the drunkards and harlots of Jerusalem that killed Jesus; it was the earnest, punctilious, religious, ignorant hierarchy.—Rev. Wallace Smith, Episcopal.

Future Safeguard.

Apply the principle that Christ commends, to your own life. He bids you not worry about the future, but to trust God, knowing that "all things work together for good to them that love God." Just now you are in deep dejection over some trouble, forgetting all about the divine supervision. You will believe in a year that God has protected you and that the everlasting arms were always under you, even when you felt you were falling. Can you not believe in God's care now, before it is actually manifested.—Rev. D. Burwell, Methodist.

Preacher Only a Messenger.

The dictum that a man's sermons are effective in the measure of the man's goodness is false. It is not the man behind the pulpit, but Jesus Christ above the man and inspiring the sermon which makes it strong. In other words, the ambassador of God bears a message not from himself but from God. His real vitality, fire and life come by no means from the man's own life, but from the King whose messenger he is. He merely carries the message. He must have qualifications. He must be loyal to his King. He must be sincere. He must believe in the wisdom and teaching of the Ruler. But the truth which he brings is not his, but God's.—Rev. Frank Crane.

Living a Religious Life.

We find in the world plenty of desire to be religious and to live a religious life, but we do not see enough of that rare ability—the ability to wait patiently. Lack of religion is due to lack of patience more than to almost anything else. We see that the church is not perfect and that it has in it vast numbers of imperfect members, and so we become impatient and lose interest in things religious. We are willing to be aggressive in the cause of the Master, but we have not the power to wait for Him to work out those difficulties which only He can work out and make right.

"In religion, as in every walk of life, there are two essential things which we must learn, namely, 'To labor and to wait.'—Rev. H. S. Bradley, Methodist.

Keeping Gods Commands.

My friends, we ought to keep God's commands, "for this is the love of God, that we keep His commandments, and His commandments are not grievous." And we have seen, I think, that we can keep them with the help that God is ready to give us. We can keep them, for God loves us. God is in sympathy with us, God is more anxious to help us in our climbing than we are to climb ourselves; and this is a mighty thing for us to know, because, no matter what our own powers were, no matter how eagerly we were pressing our way upward, unless God were there to help us and to beckon us on, and to reach more than halfway down and grasp our hands, we never could expect to reach the altitudes of power of personal triumph.—Rev. E. M. Luke, Unitarian.

Faith and Love.

We must believe in Him or we cannot reap the benefit of His great and glorious work for us. Everywhere in Christ's message and in all the New Testament faith is made a condition of the blessed life. This is true of all life's relationships and it is supremely true of our relationship to God. There is little that He can do for us unless by faith we open our hearts and lives to Him. Faith is the channel that lets the life of God into the soul of man. There is only one greater thing in the world than faith, and that is love, and even love is born of faith, and nourished by faith. We cannot love very much one in whom we do not believe, in whom we have no confidence. Faith opens the way for love to flow into our souls. Without faith there is no life and no vital relationship.—Rev. H. Tupper, Baptist.

The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantalum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 50 candle power will be placed on meters as rapidly as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial Houses, $9.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10 cents per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights or needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Training Him

"He isn't staid," declared the young woman, rather indignantly. "I'm sure he's as generous as he can be in most things, but—" "Oh, I know," said the elder woman. "My husband used to be a great deal the same way."

"Indeed!" exclaimed the young woman. "Until he got educated," said the elder woman. "I had to educate him, of course, and you'll have to educate William. Arguing isn't any use."

"I know," said the young woman, sadly. "I've tried it." "And crying isn't any use," said the elder, with some severity. The young woman blushed and glanced hastily at a mirror that hung on the wall.

"No, your eyes aren't red," said the elderly woman reassuringly, "but you've been crying, and I tell you it won't do and coaxing won't work one time in a dozen." "Then how?"

"Use your common sense. There are lots of ways. Take him to shop with you the next time you go. That's one pretty good way of making him realize that a woman can't dress on nothing."

The young woman shook her head. "You don't know William as well as I do," she said. "I'd be worse off than ever and besides he wouldn't go."

"Oh, yes, he would," said the elderly woman, confidently. "He will if you manage him properly. You tell some woman friend what ex-quisite taste he has when he's around and notice how he'll begin to swell up. I never knew the man who didn't believe that he knew more about what was becoming to a woman than she did herself. Then follow that up by asking him to help you select a hat. He'll do it fast."

"Well, he wouldn't." "Go any place where there's a fairly good assortment, but not where they take $50 hats as a matter of course. All you've got to do is pick out an intelligent saleswoman and insist on something inexpensive. If she brings you anything over $8, say: 'Oh, dear, no. I can't afford to pay that price.'"

"I don't see—" "Well, you will. You'll see that he'll insist on seeing something better and you'll see that he'll be about as helpless as a babe between you and the saleswoman, and he'll see that the only way he can assert himself is to urge you not to consider expensive. Don't tell me he won't. I know 'em. You can have any hat you want and he'll go out of the store under the impression that he selected it. And you don't want to disabuse his mind, either. Tell him that you think the hat is perfectly charming and you are afraid he has been extravagant and the one at $11 would have done just as well. See if he doesn't tell you that it's economy in the long run to get a good thing and that you will get more than $5 worth of satisfaction out of the difference in the price. But don't ever let him convince you."

"Why not?" "Because it wouldn't do. But don't fail to tell him how your friends raved about the hat and how surprised they seemed when you told them it was his choice and how they said they would have to have their husbands pick out a hat for them and how you thought so, too, but didn't say it. And mention casually as the thing goes on to any company you have that you always let William select your hats on account of his exquisite taste and the only drawback being his criminal disregard of price. Same thing applies to gowns or anything else."

"But it would be awful to have to be avertingly taking him around." "You want home to," said the elderly woman. "Don't you worry about that. He'll get tired after the first few times and let you get what you want yourself. But you won't hear any more talk about extravagance. He'll have got his horizon extended. But don't on any account let him lose his own good opinion of his taste."

"It seems a little deceptive," said the young woman, "but I almost believe I'll try it."—Marie Kinn.

Work of Sand Dunes. It is stated that along the Lincolnshire Coast the sand dunes which there fringe the shore are moving steadily inland. This, says the London Globe, is due to the wind from the sea blowing the sand from the face of the hills over to the back. At Mablethorpe it is said that two acres of the property of individual have thus been buried in sand. And at Anderby what used to be a field has been buried in sand. It is now a waste of 50 acres in front.

UNPAID LONDON SINGERS.

A movement to Give Their Due to Musicians at Social Entertainments. The London social season has been longer than in other years and quite as brilliant as regards amusement, provided for guests. Music has been a great drawing card, but on account of the small returns gained by musicians there has been serious dissatisfaction.

Many of those before whom artists have appeared appear to be ignorant of the years of hard work and often privation the entertainer has to go through before he can present himself before an audience. Not only all parts of Great Britain, but America as well, has been very generally represented among the artists. They came here for the season, they were heard in some of the best drawing rooms and yet perhaps they did not clear enough to pay half their expenses. Some have received not the slightest remuneration for their services.

Things have been reaching a climax for some years, and if some protection is not provided for artists and some standard price set upon their wares many of them are likely to take their talents to other markets. Giving one's services for charity's sake has become such a tax on the artists that a few of the grandes dames of society have espoused the cause and received only thanks and fresh demands in return, and it is hoped that before a new season opens conditions will have righted themselves.

These ladies, headed by the Duchess of Portland, have decided that except in the case of artists singing at fixed salaries at the opera those invited to take part in charity concerts should be paid, if not the full amount usually given, at least a fair remuneration for the trouble and expense incurred by appearing in public. Unfortunately, this is not the only abuse from which the artists suffer.

Every year finds London more crowded with entertainers, good, bad and indifferent, and where there are so many it naturally follows that a large number must wait a long time before getting a hearing, since it is no easy matter for a newcomer to procure letters of introduction to people in a position to help them. This latter reason has led many arrivals to offer their services in concerts and at houses, simply for the privilege of being heard and seen, but the bad effect of such policy has for years been felt on all sides.

There are always women who, no matter how rich they may be, never have sufficient means for their wants, and who consequently are glad to entertain their friends at small expense when it comes their turn to return social favors. These accept the viceser of a new artist without remuneration, in many instances not even paying the accompanist, whose fee in that case must come out of the singer's slender purse.

It has become not uncommon for a woman of means to ask an artist to entertain her friends, explaining how great would be the advantage of being heard in her drawing room where so many rich and influential people are invited. There are some women, a few Americans among the number, who give frequent entertainments during the season at which their guests hear the best talent that can be obtained. Though these musicals may become famous, it does not become generally known that the services of the artists are given gratis.

One might expect the women's club of London to be generous in their many entertainments, but on the contrary it is understood that at all their functions the entertainers shall receive nothing except the advertisement of appearing.

A movement has now been started to give proper dignity and importance to the musical profession and to prevent artists from being asked to give their services for nothing. Several women have expressed their determination not to appear at a concert or reception where it is known that the entertainers are not remunerated.

The Kaiser's Press Cutting Agent. The German Emperor's interest in everything that goes on in the world is well known, but not every one is aware of the trouble he takes to keep in touch with current affairs. According to a Munich newspaper the Kaiser reads at least three papers every day, changing the list several times a week in order to become fully acquainted with the ideas of all political parties in the State. But this by no means exhausts his appetite for information. Every day the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, as well as that of the Interior, has to provide newspaper cuttings, properly named and dated and pasted on slips ready for the Emperor's perusal. These he carefully reads, making marginal notes as he goes along, and they are then scrupulously classified and put aside ready for immediate reference. Often, too, the Emperor, whose catholicity of interest and insistence on method would prove invaluable to any journalist, asks for cuttings relating to the particular technical subjects in which for the time he is especially interested.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Value of Bokhara Clover. Bokhara clover is not cultivated to any extent in this country as yet, though it deserves to be. As a be-plant, few flowers excel it. It is a very good plant for renewing the fertility of worn-out misused farming land for it will grow where other clovers refuse to grow at all. It is good for planting along railway cuts and embankments to prevent washing of the soil. It contains a large amount of cuparin as a substitute for vespala.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

ROADS AND ROAD MAKING

ONE OF THE GREAT PROBLEMS.

With Good Roads the Farmer Can Haul to Highest Market.

Here is what George W. Lattimer, Chairman of the Joint Roads Committee of the Ohio State Board of Commerce and the Ohio State Grange, has to say on the subject of good roads in his recent report: "The farther one studies and investigates this subject, the more he is convinced that it is one of the greatest problems of the United States. It touches the welfare and interest of more individuals than any other one question that is before the American public to-day. There is not a man, woman or child, in the country or city, that is not obliged to use the roads."

"Owing to the extremely bad roads of the present time, the farmer, who is the producer, is obliged to haul his product to the nearest market at such times during the year as the roads are passable. This occurs within two or three months in the fall, after the harvest. This glut and over-supply makes the very lowest prices of the year for the producer, and the consumer in the cities and centers of population is obliged to pay the very highest prices during the months of the bad weather. Good roads will eliminate such conditions so that the farmer can haul his products to the market at any time during the year, whenever the demand calls for it, and the consumer can buy whenever the goods are wanted. But the producer will be able to secure a better price for his product and the consumer pays lower prices for his necessities."

"For years the United States and State governments have been appropriating money for waterways, steam railroads and other means of communication, all of which are good, but these questions become insignificant of what good roads will bring to the inhabitants of this country. Everybody should be interested in this question, and should urge Federal, State and county aid for improvements which at this time are all vital to the welfare of our country."

Rural Delivery for Better Roads.

The large crops and high prices of farm products for the past 20 years, together with the general prosperity of the whole country, tend to increase the desire for the good things of this world, and affords more leisure to enjoy what we have. The increased number of people who ride over the country for either pleasure or business to say nothing of the driving required by the great system of rural delivery which has so recently been inaugurated, has created a pressing demand for one and of the country for the other for a better grade of highways. These have heretofore been dreamed of, but roads will be built by the government and others by the counties will always be the greatest promoters and builders of good roads.

Some States are already spending millions on their highways. Massachusetts appropriated $25,000,000 a few years ago for that purpose and now has many miles of beautiful roads as smooth as asphalt in pavement. All Europe abounds in fine roads; but they have been built for centuries and have learned the art to perfection. It may take generations to put all our roads in as good condition as they are abroad, but we have made the beginning, and each year will doubtless show much progress as a whole.

Road Construction.

A few suggestions about the proper construction of a roadbed may not be amiss.

To begin with the surface should be made very crowning, for it immediately begins to flatten by use, and will continue to grow more and more so all the time if nothing is done to prevent it. But it can be held in good shape by occasional scraping. The scraping will also do a great deal towards filling up the small depressions, which are the real beginning of all trouble. But some new material must be carefully put in by hand where needed—not too much, as that will create two holes, where before there was but one. Use more brains and less stone! A good road cannot be made without hard thinking. Keep in mind all the time that you are fighting water! You will notice that the roads always remain in the best condition on the grades where the water can easily run away, and you will also observe that they always grow bad first in the valleys and level places, and that it is because the roadbeds are flat, or perhaps even hollowing with little dams of sod on the sides so that the water stands there until it soaks in or dries up, instead of running away quickly, as it should, and would if the surface was kept crowning and the furrows kept from forming, which act as canals to conduct the water down into the lowest part of the road, where mud and destruction join hands in their evil work.

A Profitable Line.

I believe that raising cows for market if they are the right kind of stock, is as profitable as any line of farming. The helpers will always bring good prices, and the steers will top the market at the yards.

Keeping Ants From the Hives.

My honey-house was visited by ants, and I painted the stone under-plinings with petroleum, says a writer in Bee Culture. The thickest and most worthless is the best. For hives, paint the standards or legs and let the alighting-boards be about two inches from the ground—a jump that the bees will make easily, but which will prevent the ants from entering. They will climb up weeds or any old thing to get in.

ANNOUNCEMENT

AFTER careful consideration, and because of the urgent requests on the part of our many customers, we have thrown our doors open all day Sundays, from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M., with the exception of the hours used for church worship.

There are several advantages embodied in this step we have taken.

First of all, it being thoroughly known by this time that the PALM GARDEN has connected with it a first-class restaurant, there is laid open to the public an opportunity to set aside the unpleasantness of Sunday dinner preparations, and by dining at the Palm Garden during these hot summer Sundays you not only enjoy a fine dinner, but the place is cool and pleasant.

You can expect the best of service.

Then, too, there is absolutely no way, APPARENTLY, for the thirsty, tired person to get a cooling beverage on a hot Sunday. Some few flavoring ones are blended with the opportunity of appealing their thirsty appetites at certain places on Sunday, while others, because they do not STAND UP, must go thirsty. The Palm Garden offers to all an opportunity to get, and you can find a variety of the Creams and cold beverages on the menu.

Having made a personal study of the Palm Garden as a much-needed unit in our already booming city, I am pleased with its growth and desire to make two expressions:

First—I thank you all for your growing interest and patronage.

Second—I will not fail to appreciate a continued increase in this patronage.

Respectfully,
GEO. A. M. WILSON.

THIS HALF-COLUMN WILL CONTAIN REGULAR WEEKLY NEWS OF THE PALM GARDEN.

SCHOOL BUILDING

Their Construction and Maintenance Before The Board. Teachers Examined And Scholarships Awarded.

The question of opening up the Commercial Course in the Wicomico High School was taken up at the meeting of the School Board held Friday. The law required the department for this work to be equipped all ready for inspection by the State Board by August 1st.

Miss Lola Nelson was appointed as assistant in the Commercial Department. It was decided to install typewriters of the following makes, Underwood, Oliver and Remington in this department with the object of familiarizing the students with these different machines.

The question of repairing and building new School Houses was taken up and the Board will visit the different schools in the County to see what is needed. The County Commissioners levied $6000 for this purpose.

The Board on Friday will visit Deep Branch, Athol, White Haven, and other sections later.

Superintendent Bounds reported 29 took the examination for teachers, and that the results were very satisfactory and certificates will be awarded the entire number.

The following scholarships were awarded:

Western Maryland College, Westminster, to Miss Laura Ruark, of Salisbury, one of the recent graduates of the Wicomico High School. Miss Ruark was the only applicant for the vacancy.

The scholarship in St. Mary's Female Seminary was awarded Miss Stella A. Waller, of Salisbury. She is a daughter of Deputy Sheriff Frank Waller.

Miss Irma Boston, of Quantico, was appointed to one of the vacancies in the State Normal School, Baltimore. There are still two Wicomico county three vacancies in the State Normal School which the Board would like to fill. Four students—Miss Dennis Phillips, Miss Eva Taylor, Miss Annie M. Sheppard and Miss Laura P. West—will return to the State Normal School from this county next year.

There was no applicant in this county for the vacant scholarship in Maryland Institute, and the Board awarded the place to Griffith B. Coale, of Baltimore City.

Mrs. Amelia A. Ellis has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Edith May, to Eura B. Parsons, Tuesday morning, June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and eight, at half after ten o'clock at St. John's Church, Powellville, Md.

MR. WM. P. JACKSON

Of This City Selected National Committee for Maryland By The Republican Delegates From This State.

The delegates to the Chicago convention from Maryland have selected Hon. William P. Jackson, son of Congressman Jackson as the member of the National Republican Committee for Maryland. It is understood that Hon. Sydney E. Mudd was out after this office, and Mr. Jackson's appointment came as a surprise to many in this section. According to the Baltimore papers this was the result of a Stone-Pearce—with certain of Eastern Shore delegates—combination and is a defeat to Mr. Mudd.

An interesting feature of the contest was that Congressman Jackson was supposed to be with Mr. Mudd and that Mr. Phillips Goldborough was also with Mr. Mudd for the appointment. According to an alleged interview with Mr. W. P. Jackson given in Chicago, there is nothing in the statement of differences between himself and father and that they were not only father and son but "chums" as well. This is undoubtedly the case as it is well known here in his home town that the relations existing between them are of the most binding and cordial character. And it is believed by all that Mr. W. P. Jackson took no steps but what he knew he had his father's support and backing in.

The appointment of Mr. Jackson has stirred up things somewhat on the "Shore" as it is believed to mean that hereafter he will take a more active part in the affairs of his party.

The rumor is now being circulated that he will probably be the nominee of his party for Congress instead of his father this fall.

The impression has gone out that the Congressman did not want this nomination and that it was doubtful if under any circumstances he would accept it.

Mr. William P. Jackson stands very high in his home town and County where he has many warm friends and enjoys the respect and esteem of all.

Lecture At Hebron.

State Supt. Geo. H. Nock, of the Maryland Evangelistic Association will lecture at Hebron on Thursday evening, June 25, subject, "How to Keep Jack the Boy from Running to a Jack of a Man." The proceeds will be devoted to religious purposes. The lecture is represented to be full of pith and spice, at the same time helpful and inspiring.

CALL FOR GOOD ROADS

Meeting Issued Through The Salisbury Advertiser Met With A Large And Hearty Response. Seldom A Finer Sea of Faces Assembled Inside The Court House. Routes Discussed.

On Tuesday, the day of the meeting of the Commission of Good Roads, Salisbury was filled with people from every section, and seldom has a larger or more enthusiastic assemblage attended any meeting in Wicomico County held for any like purpose. From every section—North, South, East and West they came and from the intermediate points as well, the substantial citizens of our county, prominent farmers and successful business men. Taken, as a whole, we doubt whether it would be possible to get a more representative body of men from Wicomico County than composed the gathering at the Court House on Tuesday.

Gov. Crothers and the other members of the Commission arrived here about 1 o'clock from Princess Anne and were met at the station by a committee composed of San. Jesse D. Price, Ex-Sen. M. V. Brewington and Messrs. Chas. R. Disbarrow, W. B. Miller, S. King White, John H. Tomlinson, Irving S. Powell, and Jay Williams.

A number of automobiles were lined up at the station and the Gov. and other members of the party were taken for a short ride over the shell roads built by the county.

The members of the commission expressed themselves as very much pleased with these roads and Salisbury's size and progress were evidently a surprise to those who had never before been in our midst. After a short ride over some of these roads the party repaired to the Court House where the meeting was held. Here the commission was given another agreeable surprise in the number of citizens who were present.

The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock and Mr. W. B. Miller was made temporary chairman, and W. M. Cooper, Pres. Board of County Commissioners permanent chairman.

Addressed By Governor.

Gov. Crothers made an address speaking of the appropriation of money for good roads and outlining as far as possible the intentions and policy of the commission in building these roads. He gave the amount that Wicomico would get for her roads, as $210,000. It is understood that the policy would be to connect as many different sections of the County as possible with Salisbury and at the same time connect up with the roads built in the other counties. He also spoke of the money which was being used for this purpose, which would probably be met by the increased revenues now coming in and raised by acts of last Legislature, putting additional taxes on corporations, indicating that with these increased revenues no additional burden of taxes would probably have to be put upon the people. As the automobiles are accredited with damaging the roads to a great extent, it is also likely that a special tax will be laid upon them.

Sections Of County Represented.

A large number of delegations from the various sections of the county were present. One of the largest of these and the best organized was that of Sharptown under the leadership of Messrs. A. W. Robinson, J. O. Adams, W. C. Mann, and other citizens prominent. This delegation made a showing highly creditable to that section. They were here asking for the road to be built from Sharptown to Mardela and thence to Salisbury as opposed to the Vienna route. They gave as their reasons for this route that it would accommodate by far the greatest number of people and that it would be less expensive to build owing to the great cost of constructing a causeway at Vienna. They called attention to Sharptown being the second town in the county and that at present it had no good roads to a railway station, and that there was a great deal of traffic between Sharptown and Salisbury and would unquestionably be more if the roads were improved.

As far as could be judged Sharptown had the support of a major part of the meeting and it was conceded by all that if Dorchester should go to Federalsburg that this was the route to take.

The people in the eastern section of the county asking for the road to connect with Worcester County were present and advocated several routes. Powellville, Wango and the section of the county, from Salisbury to these points, wanted the road to go out direct and connect from Powellville with the Worcester line. They pointed out the advantages that would accrue to this section and the large amount of hauling over these roads daily to Salisbury and intermediate points. They also claimed that the other route spoken of would parallel the B. C. & A. R. R., and that the people in this section had not far to go to market their produce.

Pittsville argued for the road to go through their section and pointed out the large number of citizens who would be benefited by a route through there. Willards asked for the road to continue from Pittsville through their place and thus connect with Worcester line through New Hope.

Quantico, Tysackin and Nanticoke districts asked for the road to come from Mardela Springs by Quantico in order to accommodate the large number of people who lived in this section, some parts of which are the farthest away from the county seat of any portion of the county.

Delmar asked for the road to connect up with Delmar from Salisbury. The road to Princess Anne was spoken for by the people on the route and at Allen. There seemed to be no division on this route and the road will probably go through Allen if we connect with Somerset county.

Nattlers District asked for the road connecting Worcester county to be built through their section, via the old stage road. They called attention to the large acreage of trucks and valuable farms along this road, and that they were far removed from railroad facilities and could not hope for any improvement unless through good roads.

Speaking For The Routes.

President Cooper called for five minutes talk from these people representing the various sections. The following made addresses.

J. O. Adams, George W. Bell, Esq., Jay Williams, Esq., for the Sharptown-Mardela route; Hon. E. G. Davis, Mr. Thomas Truitt and N. Jerome Wimbrow, for the Willard route; Virgil Bailey and Mr. Edw. Williams for the Powellville route; Hon. I. S. Bennett for the Sharptown-Mardela route, via Riverton; George A. Bounds, R. B. Tainter, Hon. Franklin B. Culver, and E. S. B. Turner, for the road to be built from Sharptown to Mardela and thence via Quantico to Salisbury, to accommodate the three lower Districts—Nanticoke, Tysackin and Quantico. A. W. Reddish spoke for the building of the Nattlers District road to the Worcester line. Hon. Roscoe Jones was spokesman for the Allen road to connect with Somerset. A. F. Benjamin and L. B. Ker spoke for the road to Delmar, and George W. D. Waller, Esq., for the Delmar road running through Jersey.

Mr. Walter B. Miller outlined a system of roads that would come under the appropriation and connect up with Dorchester, Somerset, Worcester and Delmar. As per his estimate of $200 per mile, this would give us a mileage of 25 miles, and the use of our present shell roads by the commission would make the appropriation cover on this estimate the total mileage to reach these points.

All the members of the commission were present and expressed themselves as very much pleased with the meeting and audience they had and the reception accorded them by Salisbury and the people of the county.

The members of Commission present including Gov. Crothers, President John M. Tucker, Dr. Ira Remsen, B. M. Showmaker, Francis C. Hyton, Engineer Crosby and Secretary J. O. Bowerman.

SHERMAN NOMINATED FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

The Republican Convention at Chicago took up the question of nominating a Vice President yesterday morning, and Congressman Jas. Schoolcraft Sherman, member of Congress from Utica, New York, was nominated. Speaker Cannon of the House was supposed to be favorable to Mr. Sherman's nomination. Mr. Sherman was the choice of the New York delegation, which had instructed Chairman Woodruff to place his name before the Convention.

BREAK IN BRICK

Paving on East Church Street Considered Poorly Constructed.

The new brick pavement along Church Street in front of the Street leading to the Salisbury Ice Plant has raised some distance above the surface in the shape of a grave. It is supposed that this is due to the expansion of the brick under the hot sun.

This street has been considered especially poorly laid under the contract supervised by Mr. Hatton on behalf of the town. The condition of this street and the general public opinion as to the poor class of work done on our brick streets, should be sufficient reason of itself why the Council should not make any more contracts until the one with the present engineer should be finally settled and disposed of. If in the short time our pavements have been put down they already show wear and tear and in some places signs of giving away, then the dream of permanent streets—which will keep themselves so without any more trouble, cost or concern to the town—is doomed to be a short lived one.

It is understood that the contractors gave a five year guarantee on these streets, and have been notified by the council to repair the break in Church Street.

W. H. Richardson Drug Company Formed In Baltimore.

The Baltimore Sun publishes the following:

The first certificate of incorporation under the new incorporation law, which went into effect on June 1st, was filed in the Superior Court yesterday by Mr. Robert F. Stanton, of the law firm of Penrose & Stanton. The corporation formed is the W. H. Richardson Company, with an authorized capital stock of $100,000 divided into 100 shares of $100 each. Messrs. Robert E. L. Williamson, Frank W. Watts and William H. Richardson, all of Baltimore, are the incorporators. A wholesale and retail drug business will be done by the firm.

Mr. Richardson is a native here, and is well and popularly known in this city.

City Council Notifies Contractors To Repair Streets.

The City Council, Monday evening instructed its clerk to notify Sweeten & Co., the contractors who did the street paving in Salisbury, that repairs on Division and East Church Streets must be made at once. The contractors are under bond to keep the streets in repair for five years. There is quite a large "blow out" on East Church Street, caused, it is supposed, by expansion.

Permits to build were granted as follows: To L. A. Parsons, brick house on Cathel Street; to Charles Campbell, frame dwelling on Martin Street.

CÉLEBRATION ASSURED

Will Positively Be Held On July Fourth In Salisbury, As Has Been Previously Stated In Our Columns.

During the past week the report has been started that the Celebration Committee had given up the celebration for this year. This is a mistake as we are assured by the members of this committee that they are working, and are meeting with as good success as can be expected in making arrangements for their attraction on this occasion.

The merchants have been seen and while they will not agree to close their places of business on this date, owing to its coming on Saturday and would therefore be placing their patrons at inconvenience who would come here on that date for business purposes, they are willing to do, and are doing everything in their power for the success of the celebration. Arrangements are being made for two games of base ball, boat races, festival all day, parade, fireworks, etc.

There will also be several special attractions, arrangements for which are being made, but until completed they will not be announced. The moving picture show, running nightly at Uman's Opera House, under the auspices of Pearce & Soback, Baltimore, Md., have agreed to give the Celebration Committee benefits of their show on the night of the Fourth, even though it comes on Saturday night, when they always have their best crowds, and have also agreed to have special pictures for the occasion. The full program of which will be announced later. The Committee want to call special attention to the "Fireworks Fund," for which several contributions have already been sent to them, but the amount raised is still low and they will call on the people sometime next week in this interest. They should be helped along in this matter, as every citizen can afford to give something towards same, even though it may be small, it will be appreciated and will help to make this special attraction of the day a complete success. The advertising matter in all its glorious Fourth of July colors will be seen everywhere in Wicomico County, in a few days, so from now until the Fourth and all that day let every citizen come forward and get together to make this the grandest celebration, the grandest town on the Eastern Shore has ever had.

The attention of the merchants is again called to decorating their stores on that date; this should not be neglected, and taking advantage of the parade for advertising purposes. Every merchant has a chance to be represented in this parade with floats, or any other advertising schemes that they may want and should show their progressiveness by participating in same. The challenge of Uman Sons, published last week is still open and they are anxiously awaiting those who are going to take them up. They say they are going to decorate their stores on the Fourth and they challenge any merchant or merchants in Salisbury to equal or surpass it. Wake up merchants, don't let these people bluff you, but let us see what you can do.

There has been some report that the celebration was going to be held on July 4th. This too, is a mistake. It will positively be held on the date that it should be held on—July 4th. To all citizens of the surrounding country that come to Salisbury on the Fourth this year, they will see the time of their lives. There will be one complete program covering the entire day from 9.30 A. M., until 11.30 at night. There will not be a minute that there will not be "Something Doin'." So spend the Fourth in Salisbury.

TAFT NOMINATED

Republican National Convention. Names Obloqu To Succeed Roosevelt. First Ballot.

Victorious all along the line, the Administration forces carried their program, through almost without a break.

Taft was nominated Thursday on the first ballot, getting 709 votes out of the total of 890. Three Pennsylvania delegates insisted on voting for Roosevelt, and the other candidates practically got only the vote of their own States. The nomination of Taft was made unanimous on motion of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, of New York.

A modified injunction plank, said to be acceptable to some of the allies, was inserted in the platform, and there was no fight against it on the convention floor.

There was what had the indications of an effort to cause a Roosevelt stampede just before the roll call on the nominations, but it was a Senator Lodge and his phone.

Strong expressions of "I am with conditions and pro-con methods, which is a light in the party, were addressed surrounding the QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE.

"I Am Glad To Write My Endorsement Of The Great Remedy Pe-ru-na. I Do So Most Heartily."

Julia Marlowe.

ANY remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves. The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and indigestion is the result.

Pe-ru-na is not a narcotic nor a stimulant. It benefits the nerves by benefiting digestion.

Pe-ru-na frees the stomach of ostentatious congestions and normal digestion is the result.

In other words, Pe-ru-na goes to the bottom of the whole difficulty, when the disagreeable symptoms disappear.

Mrs. J. C. Jamison, of Marchant street, Watsonville, Cal., writes: "I was troubled with my stomach for six years. I tried many kinds of medicine, also was treated by three doctors. They said that I had nervous dyspepsia. I was put on a liquid diet for three months.

"Improved under the treatment, but as soon as I stopped taking the medicine, I got bad again. "I took the medicine for two years, then I got sick again and gave up all hopes of getting cured. "I saw a testimonial of a man whose case was similar to mine being cured by Pe-ru-na, so I thought I would give it a trial. "I procured a bottle at once and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured."

"I have gained in strength and feel like a different person. I believe Pe-ru-na is all that is claimed for it."

Nervines, such as coal tar preparations, are doing a great deal of harm. Sleep medicine and headache powders are all alike—heart depressants, and should not be used. The nerves would be all right, if the digestion were good. Pe-ru-na corrects the direction.

Hope For Niagra.
 Cleveland Plain Dealer.
 "The report of the International Waterways Commission to the Canadian Parliament gives good hope that Niagara Falls will be saved. The Americans, under the head of Congressman Burton have shown themselves inclined to do their part toward preserving the natural beauty of the falls from further marauding. The arrangement of the exploiters has been that without Canadian co-operation nothing effectual can be done; that the falls will be ruined, anyway, and that the dollars drained from the cataract will go to Canadian, instead of American pockets. The reports of the international commission is unanimous, both Americans and Canadians agreeing that the spoiling must be stopped, and stopped at once. It remains for the Ottawa lawmakers to take measures to co-operate with the American Congress."
 One of the most dangerous incentives to Canadian enterprise at the falls has been the American market for Canadian power. Even though power plants were prohibited on the American side, American manufacturers could make use of current transmitted from the Canadian power-houses. A suggestion which has been before the international commission has been the prohibition of the exportation of electric power from Canada to the United States. The dispatches do not state the extent of the international commission's recommendation on this important point, but simply that the finding is that the amount of exported electric current be limited. This would go far to check the activity of the Canadian power grabbers for the time being.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.
 As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. MAKE GOOD MEN FROM BAD "College Prisons" and Their Present Day Methods.

76.8 PER CENT. REFORMED

Punishment Has Been Superseded by Education, and Remarkable Results Are Shown by Such Institutions as the Elmira Reformatory on the Road to Freedom.
 According to a student of sociological statistics, a change in the plan of our prisons and prison administration from punitive to corrective lines would reduce by about two-thirds the financial burden imposed on the public for the support of the so-called criminal classes. In the opinion of the investigator the State of New York has a first class factory for the production of desirable citizens from apparently hopeless material. This is the reformatory at Elmira.
 The average population of the institution is about 1,400 individuals, ranging in age from sixteen to thirty years. About half of these are incorrigible graduates of the prevailing type of prison, where punishment is the primary idea.
 "They are in a class, in the very nature of things, the most troublesome persons that can be selected from the eight millions in the State, and they are at the most reckless period of their lives."
 As serving to show what can be accomplished through systematic reform methods, the record of the "class" liberated in the year ending January 1, 1905, is of special interest, because the men have been at large long enough to give good earnest of what their future is likely to be. There were 695 reformed criminals liberated upon parole of six months, and only through exemplary conduct under the watchful eye of the probation system could a complete release be obtained. Of this number, 535, or 76.8 per cent won their way to freedom, and are now to be classed among the useful members of the community, or, at least, as no longer a menace to society. Of the remainder, a few eluded the vigilance of the probation officers, but the majority who failed were taken back to Elmira for a second refining process.
 Elmira has been practicing social reform for thirty-one years and saves an average of three-fourths out of the 40 per cent. of the State's criminals regularly allotted to her.
 No more concise exposition of the basis of the Elmira theory can be found than the simple dictionary definition of the word discipline, as "education, instruction, cultivation and improvement; comprehending instruction in arts, sciences, correct sentiments, morals, and manners, and due subordination to authority." The secondary meaning of discipline, chastisement; punishment intended to correct crimes and errors," is conspicuous by its absence in the new, or as it is sometimes called, "college" prison. Violence as a corrective influence is said by experts to be worse than useless, and in handling the rough element at Elmira there is never a resort to flogging, putting in irons, or any sort of corporal punishment.
 This is what happens to the sullen, rebellious prisoners who are awarded, looking for trouble; He drops suddenly and mysteriously from the busy communal life of the institution, is seen no more in the school of letters or the shops, the lecture room, library, or the reformatory regiment and gymnasium. He has gone to the dreaded third class, and two purposes are accomplished: the refractory prisoner no longer exercises a bad influence upon his most tactful fellows, and isolation soon brings him to a different frame of mind, for this isolation is so dreary that the life of the regular colony seems highly desirable by comparison.
 A man in the third grade works all day at darning socks, mending clothes, or scrubbing floors, and he has no privileges whatever, nor is he allowed to communicate with others of his kind working by his side. Thirty days of perfect conduct is necessary to escape the third grade, and in just about this number of days most of the prisoners succeed in getting back to the second grade, where they started. If the third does not have the desired effect, solitary confinement is ordered, and twelve days is as much of this as has ever been endured by an avowed inmate before the desire was expressed to get back to the more agreeable communal life.
 Nearly all the children are defective physically upon their admission, and first aid is largely directed toward restoring them to health, upon the theory that no child can succeed with his studies while hampered by a weak body. This work is made possible by the ample space, pure air and good food procurable in the country. Farming is taught at all such institutions, both as an aid to health and as a proper training for the children sent west to live upon farms when their terms have expired. It is notable that in instances where it is possible to send the boys west after the average period of detention of 23 months, only a fraction of one per cent fail to become prosperous and prominent citizens.

SAVORS COVERED PAINS.
 The advantages of using covered pills with small openings are apparent from the fact that one of the most prolific causes of contamination is from the cow and stable at the time of milking. When these small pills were first introduced, many of the men claimed that they could not milk into them, but when one of them was reminded that one of his diversions was salting into the mouth of a cat sitting upon her hind legs his objection was readily overcome.—J. E. Dwyer.

A HINDU LEGEND.
 Twasbiri had created earth and all therein: Everything save woman, her he did begin.
 Of the stars he borrowed two to light her face; Of the moon its roundness, of the swan its grace.
 Lightness of the willow, softness of the flower; Frolic of the sunbeam, teardrops of the shower.
 Cruelty of the tiger, the peacock's vanity, Hardness of a diamond, the wind's inconstancy.
 Restlessness of the ocean, peacefulness of grove, Cocking of the parrot, cooling of the dove.
 Piecing these together pursuant of his plan, Twasbiri, world-creator, made a mate for man.

A SIMPLE QUESTION.

Salisbury People Are Requested To Honestly Answer This.
 Is not the word of a representative citizen of Salisbury more than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:
 Mrs. G. W. Fooks, living three miles south of Salisbury, Md., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as being exactly as represented. I suffered from kidney disease for eight years. I was treated by doctors for Bright's Disease. It came on me so gradually that I scarcely knew what ailed me. My back failed me. I was annoyed with constant dull pains which grew gradually worse, so that I could not sleep nights on account of the severe aches and pains. The aches annoyed me, and showed plainly the dormant condition of my kidneys. I was always tired and worn out, and the different medicines I took did me no good, but I grew worse and worse. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and highly recommended so I got a box at White and Leonard's drug store, used them strictly according to directions. They cured me and the cure was complete and lasting. I have not had any return of the complaint since I took Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave a statement for publication in 1905, recommending them, and am glad to confirm same at this time."
 For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
 Remember the name Doan—and take no other.
 —It has been figured out that during the month of March the wind movement as officially recorded was 3,336 miles by a given point, at an average of 378 miles a day, or 11 1/2 miles an hour. Considering these figures, to say that anything "went like the wind" would give the opposite meaning that has usually been accepted for that expression, as an ordinary freight steamer can make that speed without pushing.

BABY'S EYESIGHT WAS THREATENED
 By Terrible Eczema—Head Became a Mass of Itching Rash and Sores—Would Scratch Till Blood Came—Much Mucus Wasted in Fruitless Treatments—Disease Was Soon CURED AT SLIGHT COST BY CUTICURA REMEDIES
 "Our little girl was two months old when she got a rash on her face and within five days her face and head were all one sore. We used different remedies but it got worse instead of better and we thought she would turn blind and that her ears would fall off. She suffered terribly, and would scratch until the blood came. At night we had to pin her hands down. This went on until she was five months old, then I had her under our family doctor's care, but she continued to grow worse. He said it was eczema. When she was seven months old I started to use Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, and in three weeks—what a change! I kept using the Cuticura Remedies for two months and our baby was a different girl. You could not see a sign of a sore and she was as fat as a new-born baby, and all for the small cost of a dollar and seventy-five cents where we had spent ten times the money for doctoring. She is now two years old and has not had a sign of the eczema since. Mrs. H. F. Fooks, R. F. D. 4, LeSueur, Minn., Apr. 15 and May 2, 1907."

SLEEP KILLED
 By an Itching Humor. Another Cure by Cuticura Remedies.
 "I broke out with a humor which spread almost all over my body. The itching would get worse on retiring, so I could not sleep. I tried several remedies but it grew worse until I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Pills which began to relieve me at once. By the time I had used one vial of the Pills the humor was entirely gone. I wish every sufferer could secure the Cuticura Remedies. Trav's Dates, Hamburg, Ark., April 26, 1907."

"The Blood is the Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it the meaning and ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also affected, the mind and judgment are clouded, and many an evil deed or impure thought can be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Purify the Blood can be made sure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures and purifies the blood, drives out, cures, plagues, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open-sore ulcers, or old sores, the Golden Medical Discovery has performed the most marvellous cures. In cases of old sores, or open sores, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of Golden Medical Discovery as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by enclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. E. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it in stock as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for Golden Medical Discovery, which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

Truthful Facts in History.

In a leading magazine is printed an article in championship of the use of alcohol as a beverage in which the following extract appears: "Now, as ever, it is the drinking peoples that lead the progress of humanity. The Jews drank and gave us monotheism. The Greeks drank and gave us art and literature. The Romans drank and gave us law. The Teutons drank and gave us liberty. Britain has drunk (not always wisely) and established commerce. What have the teetotal races done for the betterment of the world?"

The article is taken and analyzed by the New Voice which says: The Jews drank, of course; but where are the Jews now? They are scattered all over the earth without any national home. Total abstinence are now taking up subscriptions everywhere to provide a place for the Jew where he won't be killed.

The Greeks drank, of course; but where are the Greeks now? The Greek civilization is a matter of history, and their descendants are now peddling peanuts to abstinences on the streets corners of American cities. The Romans drank, of course; but where is the Roman Empire to-day? It is a matter of ancient history, and the descendants of these drinking Romans are now prowling around American cities with monkeys and hand organs living off the pennies tossed out to them by abstaining Americans.

The Teutons drank, of course; but what "liberty" did we get from the Teutons? The Teutons for years have been running away from the tyranny and oppression of the Teutonic government to find liberty under the Prohibition laws of America. The Britons drank, of course. But it required $300,000 of these drinking British trained troops to subdue $5,000 abstaining Dutch farmers. Greece and Rome both died drunk. Wise men are now writing articles on the decay of France, another drinking nation. Russia has the delirium tremens and will soon die or reform. Japan, a temperance nation, with the oldest dynasty on earth, chased the vodka-soaked Russians all over Eastern Asia.

Teaching Temperance in France. Scientific temperance instruction is getting a strong foothold in France. In the schools, there are now text books covering the question and the Government offers prizes for the best essays on the question, not only by school children, but by mature scholars as well. Temperance restaurants are being promoted in Paris. La Croix Blanche, the gospel temperance propaganda, now has about 4,000 reclaimed drunkards in its ranks. Recently, sixty-eight leading physicians, including officers of the medical department of the army and navy, in the department of Flanders, signed a manifesto to impress on the people the dangers of drink, saying that the ravages of alcohol threaten the very existence of the French Nation. And this is the country where innocent American soothsayers declare there is no drink problem because the people drink "pure, harmless wine."

Grave Danger.

The first and most seductive peril, and destroyer of young men, says Mr. Carnegie in the Empire of Business, is a man who knows and tells you what observation has proved to him; and I say to you that you are more likely to fall in your career from acquiring the habit of drinking liquor than from any or all the other temptations likely to assail you. You may yield to almost any other temptation and reform—may brace up, and, if not recover lost ground, at least remain in the race, and secure and maintain a respectable position. But from the insatiable thirst for liquor escape is almost impossible. I have known but few exceptions to the rule.

Restricting Opium Importation.

The Australian Government has prohibited the importation of opium, except for medicinal purposes. Some time ago, several of the States agreed to forbid the sale and growth of the drug, and this action of the Government forbidding its importation, save for proper purposes, completes a great victory for good government in the Commonwealth. The traffic had assumed considerable proportions in the country. Considerable quantities were grown, and, in addition to this, twenty-eight tons were imported in 1905. The action of the Government involves the loss of about $80,000 per year in duties.

Effects of Alcohol.

The most fearful effect of strong drink is the weakening of the will. An habitual drunkard finds decision impossible. A man without decision can never belong to himself—he belongs to whatever can seize him.

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

JOE WILSON'S GOLD FEVER.

By Marie Badd.

There was an air of repressed elation about Joe Wilson as he took off his wet boots by the kitchen stove, that was unusual. Joe was not given to elation, the prosaic unemotional side of life being the one that appealed to him most strongly.

His wife watched him curiously, the mild distipation of an evening gossip at the corner grocery seemed to her an inadequate solution for his evident state of mind.

"We fellows," said Joe, as he lit his pipe and tipped his chair to a comfortable angle, "have been having the time of our lives at the store."

"A fellow was there from the city I wish you could have seen him, ma. He had on a fur coat that came clear to the ground, his boots were so shiny that they made one dizzy to look at 'em, and he had a diamond on his finger big enough to hang you hat on. He was the whole ticket, for sure, and talk, that fellow could talk the horns off a cow!"

"What was he talking about?" asked Mrs. Wilson.

"Alaska, say, ma, that's the country. Never knowed much about it before. When I was a kid at school the teacher never could lick it into me where it was, soomed so kind of tangled up with the North Pole, but, by cracky, I could make a been-line for it now."

"That fellow says we all are plum fools to trot behind an old mule, plowing up fields and planting crops, just getting victuals enough to fill up on, and sloshing enough to keep out of the lock-up, while in Alaska a fellow can take a shovel and dig up nuggets by the quart. There ain't a farm in Georgia where you can dig up a darned thing but brick-bats."

"Why don't he go to Alaska?" questioned Mrs. Wilson, turning a penetrating eye toward her husband.

"Oh, he's been. Made his pile, and now he's floating 'round the country shedding $10 bills like leaves off a tree. He sure set us fellows up."

"What did he do it for?" queried his wife, with a note of suspicion in her voice.

"Oh, he ain't got nothing up his sleeve, if that's what you're hitting at; he's as innocent as a lamb. His motor busted and liked to have blown him to smithereens; so he's waiting here till it is mended."

"What's that?" she asked in a tone of apprehension.

"Buy a share in one of them gold mines!"

"Joseph Wilson, have you gone crazy? Where'd you buy it from?"

"That fellow happened to have just three shares left in a mine that's turning out millions 'everyday. He said as he had taken a shine to us fellows he'd let us have a chance at 'em. Sam Homes said as'd take one, and me and Tom Leggett is snipe on t'other."

"Joe eph Wilson!"

"Yes, ma'am; that's my name, and I reckon it is good for that share. I knowed you'd buck against my buying it, but this is the chance of my life and there ain't a woman in the country can stop me from making a grab at it." Warned by the expression of his wife's face, Joe picked up his boots and fed.

The next morning he found his old enemy—scatias—had seized him so firmly that it was impossible to leave his bed. He threw himself into such a fever of impatience that his protesting, indignant wife was forced into going to Lawyer Hilton to see about procuring the money for the share. She returned more resigned and old Joe, the lawyer, said when the papers were ready he would send them around for him to sign. Joe was in a ferment until the papers were duly signed and he hopped down to the store to receive the congratulations of his cronies. Mrs. Wilson smiled grimly as she watched him go.

An hour or two later the kitchen door burst open and Joe darted excitedly in. "Where's my shotgun?" he shouted wildly.

"What do you want with it?" demanded Mrs. Wilson, turning pale.

"To riddle the hide of that shifty-toed devil; that's what for!"

"Who do you mean?" questioned Mrs. Wilson anxiously.

"I mean that lying scoundrel that trimmed me out of my hard-earned money; that's who. Give me my gun. I'm going to lay him out if I've got to chase him clear to Alaska!" Joe grabbed his gun and made a dive for the door, but his wife planted herself firmly against it.

"See here, Joe Wilson, I've got something to say," she said tensely. Put up that gun; your money's safe. Them papers in your pockets ain't worth shucks. Me and Lawyer Hilton agreed it wouldn't do no harm to give you a scare."

As Joe listened to his wife's confession expressions of chagrin and relief chased rapidly over his mobile countenance. After a moment's silence, he said, with a sheepish grin, "Say, ma, if I own up to being a fool will you call it square?"

A. W. ROBINSON.

A. W. ROBINSON

A native of Sharptown, where he grew up and has followed successfully all his life the business of manufacturing fruit and truck crates and baskets.

While Mr. Robinson has never aspired for political distinction, owing to exacting business duties and responsibilities which employed all his time, his popularity has compelled him at different times to forego all personal considerations, and as County Commissioner from 1899-1891, and as member of the General Assembly during the year 1890-1895 his record reflects the principles of the highest qualities of citizenship in his fidelity to and conservation of the interest of the people on all questions considered and acted upon.

MARVIL PACKAGE CO. Manufacturers of Fruit and Truck Packages.

In reviewing the conditions that have transformed Sharptown from the quiet and peaceful settlement on the Neck to a busy, bustling and thriving community of today it becomes at once apparent that this development is due largely to the steady growth of the package industry, one of her pioneer enterprises, and one which since its inception has always been an important source of constantly increasing industrial opportunity.

Under A. W. Robinson's progressive management conditions and advantages were developed to their utmost limit, so that when it passed to the Marvill Package Co., in 1908, the business had already become one of the important industries in its line on the Peninsula.

The officers of the Marvill Package Co. are H. F. Marvill, president; J. D. Marvill, Vice President, W. E. Valliant, Secretary and Treasurer, A. W. Robinson, general manager and who with N. E. Ward, E. J. Schofield and G. E. Crane form the board of directors.

ROBINSON HARDWARE CO.

Established in Sharptown in 1864 by men who had grown up in the business of manufacturing and repairing hardware.

B. H. PHILLIPS & BROS. General Merchandise.

Maintaining by means of its many stocks and by their methodical and convenient arrangement all the advantages and facilities of the most modern methods of storekeeping to be found in the department store method of conducting business the establishment of B. H. Phillips & Bros. offers to the inhabitants of Sharptown and vicinity exceptional market conditions and as a result a nice business is done in supplying the needs of a large representative and a constantly growing patronage.

The Phillips store has reached its position of importance and popularity by alert buying ability from manufacturers direct by quantity consignments, which secure the lowest fractional prices; by accommodation and reliable methods in all trade relations and by aiming always to make the satisfactory experience of patrons the best of continued patronage.

B. H. J. W. and J. E. Phillips compose the partnership, which succeeded the old and well known firm of S. J. Cooper & Co., during February of the present year, and of which latter concern B. H. Phillips had been connected actively for several years previous as partner.

S. J. COOPER & SON CO. Packers of Fruits and Vegetables

Maintaining through its operations a most favorable market amidst the berry patches, orchards and truck gardens of this section, and therefore offering the incentives of the highest possible prices, ready sale, quick returns and convenient delivery, all of which enter into the successful cultivation of fruits and vegetables, the packing industry of S. J. Cooper & Son Co., is an important enterprise, because it is as well, the source of valuable industrial opportunities to the inhabitants of Sharptown and of the surrounding country.

This plant was established in 1908 by W. H. Knowles, who, during February of the current year, sold it to the persons composing the present firm, which comprises men of established business ability and enterprise, and whose efforts and policies reflect a progressive spirit in all their undertakings.

NOAH W. OWENS. General Contractor.

To work up to the architectural designs and supply the sanitary appointments found in the modern residence require a combination of both art and skill, so that all the essentials to comfort and cheerful surroundings may be secured and preserved together with beauty of finish and effect. In his occupation of general contractor N. W. Owens has demonstrated repeatedly the possession of these qualities, which with established reliability and a hustling disposition have been instrumental in building up during the six years he has been in business for himself a select and an established patronage and a splendid reputation as a business man and citizen.

Under the sources of the preference shown for his services and to show by evidences of completed work his ability in the structural lines. These are Pythian Castle Hall, the homes of Herman Howard, Herman Spear, Mrs. E. Morris, Thomas Phillips, Austin Bennett, Dr. Whetley in Sharptown, buildings for John Nelson and Levin Vincent and others in Sussex, Wicomico and Dorchester counties.

N. W. Owens is a native of Delaware, grew up at the carpenter's trade and six years ago began business for himself as a general contractor. He is among the younger, popular and progressive business men of this section and enjoys as a result of his pronounced integrity and reliability the confidence of those who have ever sustained relations with him in any form.

W. D. GRAVENOR & BRO. Funeral Directors and Embalmers General Contractors

In the care and burial of the dead the services rendered by the leading funeral directors and embalmers of the county indicate plainly, thoroughly, scientific knowledge of embalming methods combined with pronounced executive ability in funeral direction within such limitations as have always a nice regard for ceremonial. Mindful of the high standard of such services and with a commendable desire to maintain the best facilities at home W. D. Gravenor & Bro., have sought by study and practice the best points of the Champion and the Egyptian schools of embalming supplemented more recently the methods advocated by Professor Scoll of Philadelphia, the celebrated authority and instructor on the art of embalming.

W. C. MANN, Livery.

Maintaining in Sharptown a reliable, complete and satisfactory service in the livery business, and responding promptly to all needs that arise in this line. W. C. Mann conducts an enterprise popular alike with the traveling public and home people. The stables contain from eight to ten first class road horses and nearly double that number of buggies, carriages and light vehicles, so that facilities are possessed to supply a "turn out" for any and all occasions.

W. C. Mann has been identified with the livery business for the past eight years, and in the surrounding territory and with traveling men generally his stables are well established.

He has resided in Sharptown since 1871, during which period he has been the recipient of distinction, indicating his popularity and standing, having served as County Commissioner, in 1888, member of the House of Delegates, in 1889, Deputy State Fish Commissioner from 1898-1899 and from 1905-1907, and has been chosen to fill representative offices in several leading fraternal organizations in which he is a devoted member.

Mr. Mann is a firm advocate of Jeffersonian principles, pure and simple, and as a public officer and citizen these principles have been in action and deliberation, a controlling and decisive influence. He is among the prominent and deservedly popular citizens of the county and enjoys the confidence and esteem of the people generally.

At his storekeepers the labels and trade marks of manufacturers and producers of established reputation proclaim and substantiate the policy to handle only standard productions in canned and bottled goods, in teas and coffees, in bakers light goods and confections, in extracts and spices and in staple particles generally in the food lines. The same policy is likewise pursued in meats, preference being given to strengthening and curing native cattle, for the reason that accurate knowledge of their fitness for food can only be obtained "on the hoof."

In the most department Mr. Elzey carries constantly a choice line of roasts, steaks and veal cutlets in fresh meats, and select qualities of smoked and sausage meats. He also deals in feed, corn and hay; a separate warehouse being provided for this department, where stocks are kept which respond promptly to all needs in this line at the lowest market prices.

As a buyer and shipper of hops and produce Mr. Elzey is prepared to pay the highest current market price, and to otherwise extend to patrons the most liberal consideration.

Mr. Elzey is a native of Sharptown, and is a direct descendant of the Elseys so intimately identified with Sharptown's early history and of the country surrounding it. In his early life he served a thorough apprenticeship at the shipbuilders trade, and followed it successfully in Sharptown, Philadelphia, Newport News and at other points and which competition he gave up eight years ago to embark in mercantile pursuits, building during the intervening years a select, representative and a constantly growing patronage.

Mr. Elzey is among the worthy and esteemed citizens of the community, is prominently identified with fraternal affairs, and combines in all business relations the qualities of enterprise and reliability, from which flow constantly the most satisfactory trade relations.

Observation and experience confirm the statement that no community contains within its limitations the conditions requisite for complete development, be it ever so blessed with both natural and acquired advantages should it be lacking in banking facilities established on a permanent basis through individuals familiar with local conditions, possessing substantial interests in local enterprises and possessing intimate knowledge of and sustaining the closest relations with the public generally.

The promoters of the Sharptown bank realized this fact and with commendable enterprise and public spirit arranged all the preliminaries which led up to the establishment in November 1903 of the Sharptown Bank, a branch institution of the Eastern Shore Trust Co., whose headquarters are at Cambridge, Md., and which is today, one of the prosperous financial enterprises of the Peninsula.

With the inception of a banking enterprise in Sharptown the beginning of a new era for the community, an era of complete independence in financial affairs and more favorable monetary conditions, one of which by the closest and most confidential relations thereby introduced and maintained, every inducement has been offered to enterprise, thrift and industry by co-operating with and safeguarding individual interests. The successful career of the institution is in marked contrast with the prophecies and opinions of a number of persons in the community who, when the subject of a local bank was first discussed, could see for it no future, giving reasons which to their minds seemed all sufficient and unassailable.

The following figures under their respective dates show the growth of the institution in financial strength and popularity since it began business in November 1903. They answer quickly and completely every inquiry, and at the same time are the sure and solid basis on which the property of the Sharptown bank securely rests.

Table with financial data for Sharptown Bank of Eastern Shore Trust Co. as of December 31, 1908. Columns include Capital Stock, Surplus & Undivided Profits, Total Deposits, and Total Resources.

B. P. GRAVENOR. Sail Manufacturer.

Identified actively and successfully for years with the business of sail making, owner of a popular dry goods and shoe store, and a member of the firm of Gravenor & Owens, which does a leading livery business, B. P. Gravenor has, by the results achieved won a position among the representative citizens and business men of the section. Born and brought up in Sharptown he served a thorough apprenticeship at the sailmakers trade, and for a number of years past has conducted business on his own account having for his patrons many leading vessel owners, whose continued preference is based solely on the high standard of workmanship, finish and quality, which are characteristic of the Gravenor productions, and which respond to the all satisfactory tests of durability and reliability of service.

Mr. Gravenor also conducts a shoe and dry goods store, which maintains, through fair prices, variety of selection and standard productions, the most favorable market conditions to supply all ordinary needs in these lines.

Together with Mr. Wilda Owens he conducts a livery business whose equipment comprises a number of first class driving horses and carriages so that conditions are maintained to furnish a prompt and a reliable service in this line.

Mr. Gravenor is also interested in the Sharptown Brokerage Co., dealers in vessel property and real estate; is a director and one of the promoters of the Sharptown bank, a prosperous monetary enterprise, and has a number of investments in vessel properties.

All these interests exert their influence in promoting the welfare of the community in one way or another, and as they are all successful enterprises Mr. Gravenor is to be commended for his energy and business ability in being responsible for their inception and development. He is an active and earnest member of several leading fraternal organizations, which are well represented in Sharptown, and which promote a well defined benevolent sentiment.

ADAMS & GORDY General Insurance.

Having recently secured a license to do business as insurance brokers, Adams & Gordy will establish a local insurance agency which will be composed of the leading fire, marine, life and accident organizations of the country, whose policies are liberal as are consistent with the faithful performance of contractual obligations, whose premium costs for the protection rendered are fair and reasonable. In their new departure Adams & Gordy will have the advantages arising from actual acquaintance with persons and property, as a result of which conditions will prevail to render a thorough, complete and satisfactory service in the insurance line.

J. O. Adams, W. H. Gordy and A. W. Robinson compose the firm. They are among the most progressive and popular of the business men of this section and sustain the closest and most confidential relations with the leading and influential citizens of this territory. Mr. Adams is one of the community's popular citizens, an ex-legislator, having served in the General Assembly of 1906, in which body, as chairman of important committees and in his representative capacity, his records strictly tally with popular interests in every instance.

Mr. Gordy is a graduate of St. John's College, of Annapolis, Md., subsequently a successful educator, and for several years was engaged in the traffic department of one of the leading railroads of the country. Mr. A. W. Robinson is the general manager of the Marvill Package Co., and one of the Peninsula's representative citizens. In establishing insurance advantages "at home" Adams & Gordy reflect not only a progressive spirit, but demonstrate as well the improved conditions generally that make practical an insurance agency in the community with brokerage features to safeguard persons and property in any amount.

HORACE G. ELZEY. Groceries and Meats.

Aiming in all purchases from growers and producers to secure for his patrons foods of established purity and wholesomeness, and maintaining their freshness and strength through frequent reorders H. G. Elzey maintains constantly for the inhabitants of this section the most favorable conditions to supply promptly their needs in groceries and meats.

At his storekeepers the labels and trade marks of manufacturers and producers of established reputation proclaim and substantiate the policy to handle only standard productions in canned and bottled goods, in teas and coffees, in bakers light goods and confections, in extracts and spices and in staple particles generally in the food lines. Mrs. Brodey enjoys an advantage exceptional to those in her business the country over in visiting the large cities and fashionable resorts, where styles are studied thoroughly, and many valuable points constantly acquired.

In its line the Brodey millinery store is thoroughly representative, and it is safe to say that it constantly offers in variety of styles, qualities and prices and in experienced skill and knowledge the best of metropolitan features.

Mrs. Brodey is a native of Sharptown and has sustained a life long association with its people, by whom she enjoys a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. For her enterprise and business ability in maintaining "at home" since beginning business seven years ago, an institution representative of all the best features in the millinery line, and building, in so doing, an amiable reputation. She is certainly to be highly commended.

Mrs. E. A. BRODY. Millinery.

In all lines of human effort where the result to be achieved depend on either individual skill or taste, or as in the millinery line, on a combination of both qualities, it becomes at once apparent that the question is reduced to seeking the individual of pronounced ability, location having nothing whatever to do with the matter. This being true, in a expert service rendered by Mrs. E. A. Brodey as a milliner the ladies in and around Sharptown enjoy advantages in all ordinary needs fully equal to those of the expensively conducted establishments of the larger cities at prices more reasonable and always money saving.

At her storekeepers Mrs. Brodey enjoys every facility to supply the demands of patrons with millinery; reflecting the latest Parisian styles and with such harmony of color, blending and effect as results from natural taste in adopting shape to feature, and color to complexion. The presence and exercise of this ability furnishes the explanation for the large patronage, and accounts for the preference and popularity which require in the

IF YOU WANT THE BEST LIGHT TRY A TUNGSTEN GLOBE.

ELECTRIC LIGHT METERS are being installed in the commercial houses just as rapidly as we can get them in and we ask our patrons to be a little patient and we will get around to them in a short time. The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantalum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS. We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING. will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters as rapidly as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS. Commercial Houses, $2.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10 cents per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights not needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Our Superintendent will give prompt attention to any complaints as to our service. We have a "trouble" man always on hand to help you out of any difficulty. Call up the Main Street office and your wants will be attended to.

THE COMMANDING PARROT.

Ordered Visitors Out of the Zoo Though Time was not Up.

"All out! All out!" Uttered in a tone of sharp command the words rang insistently through the large Bronx Park bird house in New York city, and although the afternoon was still young the half dozen visitors mechanically but reluctantly began to move toward the doors.

"At the entrance an elderly gentleman who was among the nightbirds promptly ordered from the premises, and who, after hastily consulting his watch, made no effort to cancel his annoyance, met Keeper Stacey coming in. Addressing the keeper, the visitor said, testily: "What kind of an institution is this, anyway? I thought you didn't close the Zoo to the public until late in the day."

"No more do we, promptly declared the surprised Stacey. "Whereupon the elderly gentleman,

THE COMMANDING PARROT. reinforced by the other avicted visitors, explained that they had just been most unceremoniously ordered outdoors.

Just then from a tier of cages directly behind his back he bawled the same commanding cry which had caused all the trouble. Whirling about the astonished keeper beheld a large gray parrot cocking his eye inquiringly at the little group.

"There's the guilty chap," he announced, "but this is the first time I ever knew he could talk." And sure enough, the parrot, seeing he was discovered, soon opened up and nearly took the roof off shouting "All out! All out! All out!"

Later the assistant keeper who usually gives the signal for emptying the bird house of visitors daily, explained that for several days the intelligent parrot, a recent acquisition to the Zoo, had made ineffectual attempts to imitate his voice. Stacey's theory is that the bird suddenly hit on the right combination, with the curious result described.

Long Distance Piano Record. The world's record for continuous piano-playing has been broken by W. Healy, who commenced playing a piano at Prince's Court, Melbourne, on a recent evening at 8 o'clock. Healy played continuously until 10.30 at night on the following Saturday evening—a period of fifty and a half hours—and he has thus constituted a new record, the longest time before this having been forty-eight and a half hours. During the performance Healy sustained himself on beef tea and chocolate.

Sitting on His Hat. I can vouch for the fact that many hats are still sat on. How, indeed, can a man who has just put all his mental energy into a perforation be expected to remember that his hat is on the seat directly beneath him? Down he sits and with an explosive crackle converts what had once been a tall and glossy into the semblance of a half-dressed concertina. Amid the more childlike joys of the house there is no incident that can compare with this.—R. C. Lehmann, M. P., in Cassell's Magazine.

Japanese Secret Service. Undoubtedly the most perfect secret service in the world is that possessed by the Japanese, who devote to it all the patience for which the oriental is famous. The late war in Manchuria offered ample evidence of the value of the work accomplished by it. In Peking, Harbin, Port Arthur, and Seoul the centres of an elaborate system were established, by which secret service men, disguised as barbers, servants, itinerant merchants, and traveling priests, swarmed all over northeast Asia. There was neither a village nor a military post that escaped observation, and many of the earlier successes of the Japanese were due to the excellence of the information supplied by the members of the secret service before hostilities began.—Chicago Journal.

Shorthand Without Hands. A youth of fifteen named Possbeck, who two years ago lost both hands in a machinery accident at Arncliffe, has accomplished the remarkable feat of gaining a speed certificate for shorthand. After his mishap, by which his hands were cut off at the wrists, he was received into a cripples' home. The Duke of Devonshire, one of the patrons, took an active interest in the lad and paid for two artificial hands. The cripple soon became so expert in their use that he is now a school teacher and can write shorthand at the rate of 115 words per minute.—London Tit-Bits.

Money is money and a corporation regards each shareholder as a certain sum and not as an individual.

Value of Bokhara Clover. Bokhara clover is not cultivated to any extent in this country, as yet, though it deserves to be. As a crop, few flowers equal it. It is a very good plant for removing the fertility of worn-out exhausted farming land for it will grow where other clovers refuse to grow at all. It is good for planting along railway cuts and embankments to prevent washing of the soil. It contains a large amount of curmarin as a substitute for vanilla.

THE BACHELOR'S CHOICE.

Henry Water was a sober, sensible bachelor of twenty-seven. He had made for himself a reputation for industry and integrity, and consequently had arisen from an apprenticeship to a partner in a mercantile firm.

During the hurry of the business season he had no time to think or grieve over the cold state of his house comfort, but when the dull season came the leisure hours dragged heavily, he could not help thinking how delightful it would be to have an agreeable companion and snug little home of his own.

About fifty miles from the city where his business life was led there lived an old and valued friend of his father's, in a pleasant country village, whose daughter was a girl of twenty, who had been invited to visit he resolved to accept, especially as he knew there were three daughters in the family, and he felt that he should not neglect the one who was the most sensible.

In the dull season his leisure hours dragged heavily. He had no time to think or grieve over the cold state of his house comfort, but when the dull season came the leisure hours dragged heavily, he could not help thinking how delightful it would be to have an agreeable companion and snug little home of his own.

The mother and a neat-looking maid could be occasionally seen in an adjoining room, bustling about preparing supper.

Soon the girl entered and arranged the table so gracefully and quietly—as if she had made such duties a study as a science,—that she won a glance of admiration as a pretty servant, a model of a help.

When they sat down the beautiful supper, the light home-made bread and cake, the hot, well-flavored tea, the excellency and good taste manifested in the whole ordering, made him felicitate himself upon having been fortunate enough to visit so charming a family. He wished more than ever that he was the possessor of just such a comfortable home, and the question again recurred:

When the supper was over a third young lady entered, and was formally introduced as one of the sisters, Miss Sarah. He was not a little surprised to find that the supposed servant girl, whose handiwork had won his admiration, was one of the sisters.

He found her cheerful and accomplished, more graceful than Miss Julia, who was older, or Louise, who was younger than herself.

In the morning, after a night's sound asleep, he was joined at breakfast by Julia and Louise, and, although their greetings and smiles were acceptable, yet he missed something, and it was not until Sarah entered, that he felt just right.

There she was with rosy cheeks, in calico, with a clean, white apron, bringing a plate of cakes as light as a snow-flake, beautifully baked by her own hands.

"I wish," he thought, "that one of those girls would take Sarah's place in the kitchen, that I might find out some of their housekeeping qualities and that I might have a little more chat with her."

But vainly he waited for such a chance. He, however, found opportunities for conversation, and discovered all he wished to know, and that, about her mental qualities, she was not behind.

At that remained was to ascertain what Sarah thought about becoming Mrs. Henry Water.

At the close of the fourth day of his visit, just before he retired to sleep, he slipped the white belt quite emphatically and said to her,—as there was nobody in the room of course, he must have spoken to the best girl of the household,—and said to it, "Sarah, the wife for me."

The next day was the limit of his visit, and as he stood at the window after breakfast, he saw Sarah looking at him as best as a Quakeress, and so piquant and pretty, that he rushed out of the house to join her, quite oblivious of the two handsome girls at his elbow.

But what will not man do when head and ears are in fever? He was so much under the tender influence of the maiden's gaze that all perplexity as to "which of the three" was over, and he then and there told Sarah in the most approved style that he decided at first sight to ask her the particular question.

What Sarah said in reply we cannot record here, but we conjecture it must have been perfectly satisfactory, as in a short time thereafter she became Mrs. Water, and now, in a snug, comfortable home, fully justified her husband's choice by being a most excellent wife and superlative housekeeper.

When Robert Latham Owen, Senator from the new State of Oklahoma, entered the Senate Chamber, he was regarded as merely an interesting addition to the greatest deliberative body in the world.

Although an Oklahoman by adoption, Senator Owen is a Virginian by birth. He was born in Lynchburg, Feb. 2, 1856. His father was Robert L. Owen, formerly President of the Virginia & Tennessee Railroad.

He gathered Cynthia's coughed savage-fragile body in his arms. He was for the mist that sprang into his own hard old eyes. The sound recalled the secretary to himself.

Young Owen was taught the rudiments in private schools in Lynchburg. Later he was sent to a preparatory school in Baltimore, an event that marked the first separation between mother and son.

ROBERT L. OWEN. been a man of stern purpose, but he was a hero to his two boys. He ruled them with a rod of iron, and while he wielded complete authority over their affairs, they made him their hero.

THE WHOLE WORLD KIN.

An incident Which Seems to Prove the Truth of This Saying. That New Yorkers are not in too much of a hurry all the time to be thought of as kindly was illustrated the other day in Nassau street, when the wind was playing such havoc with umbrellas, that a man with a taste for statistics counted just ten blown into wrecks in the space of twenty-five minutes.

Just as she was in front of the restaurant a particularly fierce blast of wind blew the umbrella backward, carrying the baby's cap with it. Instantly one man bolted from the door of the restaurant to her aid, took the cap, and a fourth grabbed for the tin cap and a fourth started on a jump across the street to the woman.

When Owen was a member of the Democratic National Committee from 1882 to 1886. He was a member of the subcommittee that drew the party platform in 1894, and ten years later was Vice-Chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee in Oklahoma.

Owen was nominated June 8, 1907, for the United States Senate by a State primary that gave him the largest vote of any candidate by about 10,000. The remarkable vote cast for him over the other candidates is an indication of the popularity he enjoys in his home State.

When Owen was a member of the United States Senate he was accompanied by his blind colleague, Thomas P. Gore. It was necessary that the two men settle which should be seated for the short term and which for the long. It was decided to leave the matter to chance.

The Auto Faker. "No I don't own an automobile, and I never expect to," the man admitted; "but then, is that any reason why I shouldn't own a pair of auto goggles, and an automobile driver, if you traveled around the country as much as I do you'd know that there are hundreds of people who wear auto fixings despite the fact that they probably never rode in an auto. I got to using those goggles last summer on the observation coaches, because I found they were good to keep cinders out of my eyes.

"Then I found that the auto rigging gave me prestige with other passengers. I got to talking with one man who wore the goggles trying to make a bluff of being an autoist to keep his eyes from fading out, and I learned that he had a good one."

English Department.
Harry Nelson, John Downing, S. Franklin Woodcock, George Pollitt, Claude Hearn, Henry Porter, J. D. Howell.

Several of these pupils have not quite completed their work, having started a little late, but opportunity is given to complete this work as the regular session will continue until August 1st. Several pupils drop out at this time on account of the warm weather, but begin again in September to complete their work and for the completion of some other department. Enrollments begin coming in for September and everything points to a more successful year than the past.

Many pupils are in positions while less than one half dozen are out of position at the present time. These conditions speak well for the work done at the above school as well as the loyalty of the business public to this home institution.

These are very difficult times to secure position as so many firms are dismissing help in place of hiring other help. So far this year the Eastern Shore College has had many more applications for young lady stenographers, especially, than they have been able to fill.

The marvelous new Chartier System of Shorthand enables the pupil well grounded in English to obtain a comprehensive knowledge of that subject in from 15 to 18 weeks.

Our business college graduates are now found in all of the leading firms of the Eastern Shore with many also located in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk and New York City.

The regular session of this college opens August 21 at which time it is the purpose of the management to have many different improvements both in course of study and methods of instruction.

That the roots of many native plants, growing wild in our American forests, possess remarkable properties for the cure of human maladies is well proven. Even the untutored Indian had learned the curative value of some of these and taught the early settlers their uses. The Indian never liked to work so he wanted his squaw to get well as soon as possible that she might do the work and let him hunt. Therefore, he dug "papoose root" for her, for that was their great remedy of female weakness. Dr. Pierce uses the same root—called Blue Cohosh—in his "Favorite Prescription," skillfully combined with other agents that make it more effective than any other medicine in curing all the various weaknesses and painful derangements peculiar to women.

Many afflicted women have been saved from the operating table and the surgeon's knife by the timely use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Tenderness over the lower region, with backache, spells of dizziness, faintness, bearing down pains or distress should not go unheeded. A course of "Favorite Prescription" will work marvelous benefit in all such cases, and generally effect a permanent cure if persisted in for a reasonable length of time.

For constipation, the true scientific cure is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Mild, harmless, yet sure.

SHARPTOWN, MD.

WITHOUT QUESTION IS ONE OF THE BUSIEST AND MOST THRIVING COMMUNITIES ON THE PENINSULA.

An Ideal Residence Location, And A Trade Centre Whose Importance And Popularity Grows Daily. Sketches Of Some Of Sharptown's Enterprises, Of Their Owners And Their Methods, And Whose Operations Are Sources Of The Prosperous Conditions That Prevail.

Sharptown, a veritable hive of industry and beyond all doubt surpassing, measured by population, any town on the Peninsula, or for that matter any community in a number of states, is situated on the Nanticoke River, which furnishes excellent shipping advantages for manufactured products and raw material, and is distant about eighteen miles by pike from Salisbury, the county seat, and eight to ten miles respectively, by pike, from Seaford and Laurel, Delaware. Sharptown takes its name from Governor Horatio Sharpe, one of the last governors of the old Colonial period and who administered the affairs of the territory from 1758-1765. In the early days the present location of Sharptown was originally a trading post for the Indians and for years subsequent to the banishment of the red man into the western country. The chief occupation of the inhabitants consisted of herring and shad fishing, which were abundant in the waters of the Nanticoke up to a comparatively recent date. Up to 1869 Sharptown was nothing more than a settlement with a few houses, principally the homes of fishermen and sailors. It was during this year the first industry, the Marine Railway, began operation, followed in 1871 by the establishment of the crate and package factory, two enterprises which give an industrial character to the community and which were followed later by other successful enterprises. Today there flourishes within the limits of the town, the marine railway, which gives employment to about eighty workmen, a greater portion of whom are skilled mechanics; the basket factory which employs constantly from seventy-five to one hundred persons; the shirt factory where fifty people are kept busy; the canning factory, which is shortly to be remodelled and equipped with the latest machinery, increasing the former capacity two fold and which, when improvements are completed, will employ in the neighborhood of seventy-five persons throughout seven months of the year; and a plant for the construction of launches and lighter craft generally, recently established, and which, when thoroughly developed, will give employment to a number of skilled mechanics. Among all these industries fully three hundred persons are employed, and this, in a community having but about nine hundred persons, is surely a splendid showing and one which challenges comparison.

Because of this exceptional industrial activity the economic conditions prevailing in Sharptown are unsurpassed. The people are, as a reward of their industry, self-supporting, many own their homes, which nestling in shade, are surrounded by lawns and gardens, suggestive of comfort and independence. Another feature, for it strikes the visitor as such, is that in Sharptown there is an entire absence of class distinction or social gradations which are the constant sources of unpleasant experiences. Industry, sobriety and honesty are the tests of manhood and any person possessing these qualities is welcome in any home, any assembly or to any function, no other qualification is necessary, none other is sought. So that in Sharptown, be it said to the credit of its people, the horny hand and the overalls of the workingman are held in the highest appreciation, and when it is stated that many of the workmen already own interests in vessels which represents a total investment of nearly two hundred thousand dollars there is brought unmistakable evidence of the thrift and frugality which are all predominant influences. The high moral tone of Sharptown's people is another exemplary feature which compels special mention and which, in considering the community as a whole, is exceptional. It proceeds from a well defined christian spirit inculcated and fostered by men of zeal and learning, who preside over the churches and religious societies and who, by both precept and example, preach and cultivate those qualities which are so essential for the best and truest citizenship. Sharptown enjoys for a town of its population exceptional school advantages, which include by special legislative enactment, a high school course of study. The schools are in charge of educators of pronounced ability and efficiency, who, by insinuating methods and mild discipline, secure the most excellent results.

All the leading fraternal orders are well represented in the community, also societies and clubs of a social or literary character and through them a spirit of good fellowship is kept constantly alive. It is the spirit that extends a welcome to the stranger and prompts the heartfelt hospitality so characteristic of Sharptown's people.

Sharptown's trade facilities have, within recent years, grown rapidly and reflect in this respect the progress which is everywhere in evidence. The stocks shown by the local merchants contain variety of price and quality to anticipate all ordinary needs, the prices quoted are honest equivalents and there is in all trade relations that commendable reliability of representation and performance which win and foster popular confidence.

In the building lines there is constant improvements being added in various forms and there is not a vacant house in town. The mechanics engaged in the structural lines are kept busy and the opportunities are present now to invest money profitably in building homes which can be rented or sold to advantage. In this connection it may be well to state that Sharptown is an ideal residence location and strictly a community of white people, those of the colored race employed in and around town being segregated in a settlement beyond the town limits where they live entirely apart.

Now that the State Road Commission is engaged in hearing the claims of the various committees for the new state road which is soon to be constructed, it is in order to mention here the advantages that would accrue to the public from this highway being routed through to Sharptown northward to Federalsburg.

1st. It is next to Salisbury, the most important town in the county in manufacturing and for its population second to none on the Peninsula.

2nd. It is more direct, therefore cheaper.

3rd. It would traverse a country hitherto undeveloped in Wicomico and Dorchester counties, which is rich in agricultural resources. The proposed highway through this territory would immediately yield through increased valuations greater revenues to the state.

4th. The road built through Sharptown, rather than at other points further down the Nanticoke river eliminates the greater expense of construction and maintenance through the marsh and bog lands extending a mile or more inland on either side of the river.

5th. Sharptown's future rests on a permanent and solid basis, its shipping advantages and industries and, it might be added, its growing popularity and importance as a retail trade center, where all needs for foods, home and farm equipment can be had at money saving figures.

In the years to come people will come to Sharptown from the neighboring country for miles around to secure their supplies and at the same time sell or ship their productions, so that the highway into the town must, in the very nature of things, extend its advantages to the greatest number of people, and that after all is the consideration uppermost.

WM. H. KNOWLES.

THE SHARPTOWN MARINE RAILWAY CO.

Distinguished as being Sharptown's pioneer industry, having been established in 1869, and the first enterprise to attract sufficient population to transform it from a quiet settlement on the Nanticoke into a thriving community, the enterprise now known as the Sharptown Marine Railway Co., has always been for the home people a substantial source of prosperity through its labor opportunities, and has been to shipping interests generally, especially within recent years, an important, reliable and popular establishment among those industries engaged in nautical construction work of all kinds. From its inception to the present time, hundreds of vessel and craft of all kind have been built and repaired, but at no time in the past has the future of the industry been brighter and more promising than it is today, due solely to an aggressive management in which practical mechanical skill and pronounced business ability are the controlling and directing forces. During the years that have elapsed since the industry was founded, it has passed through several ownerships doing business under different names, which condition continued up to 1899, when the Sharptown Marine Railway Co. was incorporated and organized, and which was reorganized in February 1906, introducing new officers, new policies and a thoroughly progressive management.

The present officers are C. E. Davis, President; J. P. Cooper, Secretary and Treasurer and W. H. Knowles, General Manager. Their policy is strictly in the line of progress, and to that end the latest improved labor saving machinery is being added in pneumatic tools and devices, steam power employed in all heavy work throughout the yards, and no suggestion is overlooked that has in it the merit of being practical to secure quick results. The plant covers an area of nearly three acres of land and is equipped with two railways capable of hauling out of the river vessels fourteen hundred tons capacity, the remainder of the property is used for such accessories as office, warehouses, tools and engine houses, and for the storage of large consignments of timber which is received direct from the stump.

At the present writing the plant is working up to the limit of its capacity, and orders have been received and are being executed, which will keep this capacity limit strained for the next twelve months. Whilst this is true, the management exerts every effort to satisfy all demands possible for repair work, even securing the assistance of owners of other shipyards to supply the needs of patrons. In the neighborhood of ninety experienced workmen are being constantly employed, and it can be seen at a glance that their aggregate weekly wages is an all important contributing factor to the prosperous condition which prevails in the community and for which Sharptown is noted and spoken of on all occasions.

C. E. Davis, the president of the enterprise is among Delaware's successful business men, one of the owners of the Laurel Monument Works, and a promoter and director of the Laurel National Bank, and of the Laurel Building Association, all of which are popular and progressive institutions.

J. P. Cooper, its secretary and treasurer, is a native of Sharptown and was for years connected with the old and well known firm of S. J. Cooper & Co. He is one of the owners and general managers of the operating business conducted under the name of S. J. Cooper Son & Co., and is one of the promoters and owners of the Maryland M'fg Co., all of which industries are the very foundations of Sharptown's excellent reputation as a thriving and an important industrial center. W. H. Knowles, the general manager of the concern is also a native of Sharptown, grew up and served a thorough apprenticeship as the carpenter's trade and for many years followed it successfully as a contractor and builder.

From 1869 to 1899 he was engaged in the manufacture of crates and baskets, and in the latter year organized and operated successfully the Sharptown Canning factory, a new industry to the community, and one which was a great acquisition because of its marine advantages to the farmer and its labor opportunities for the people. Mr. Knowles sold out his interests in this enterprise in December 1907 in order to concentrate his energies and give his sole attention to the more important duties exacted in the management of the ship yards. In all his undertakings W. H. Knowles has demonstrated pronounced business and executive ability and the qualities of integrity and reliability, which have always won for him confidence and esteem and all of which qualifications in combination, when intelligently directed, secure their rewards in successful and substantial results. Under his management the Sharptown Marine Railway Co., has reached a prominence in vessel construction which already makes increased facilities a serious question and which, when secured, will confer additional benefits on an already thriving community.

Mr. Knowles is ably and efficiently assisted by T. J. Sauerhoff, the Superintendent of the plant, who is a designer and draughtsman of pronounced skill to which is added a fund of invaluable practical knowledge acquired during a successful career of thirty five years in every department of vessel construction.

DOC CARTER.

Barber.

That Sharptown is conceded by the travelling public to possess one of the prettiest barber shops on the Peninsula, if not really the prettiest, is due entirely to the commendable taste of Doc Carter, its owner, who has been liberal in effort and money to secure the latest appointments and the most attractive decorative effects to create and maintain surroundings that, not only please the eye, but secure the more practical sanitary conditions of neatness and cleanliness which are strictly essential to the idea of every first class establishment in its line. Doc Carter is a native of Wicomico County, where he spent the first ten years of his life, after which he removed to Baltimore and became apprentice to the barber trade, which he has followed successfully all his life. For many years in the pursuit of his trade he has visited and worked in nearly all the large towns and leading barber shops of the country, as well as on the steamers in the western and southern trade, and acquired during those years valuable knowledge of the country of the customs of the people and many interesting experiences, which in their recital amuse and interest.

On June 16, 1907, Doc Carter settled permanently in Sharptown, in his native county, and during the intervening months he has rendered to its people first class service and established an enterprise, which is a credit to any community. Nor have improvements been as yet completed, for a new decorated metallic ceiling will soon be added, also more embellishment in art works, so that the disposition is plainly in evidence to constantly improve, and time and opportunity will continually add and suggest ideas in this line. Doc Carter, or as the little ones affectionately term him, "Uncle Doc," is one of the popular and progressive citizens of the community and his advent as a citizen and workman has been a positive acquisition to Sharptown and its citizens, because of the improved conditions his efforts have created and have amply justified, and which are thoroughly appreciated and highly commended.

TWILLEY & CO.

Groceries.

Doing a nice business, because the stocks carried and the service rendered is promptly responsive to the needs of patrons, the grocery store of Twilley & Co., is a popular and progressive enterprise. At their storekeepers Twilley & Co., carry constantly select stocks of canned and bottled goods, extracts and spices, teas and coffee, bakers light foods, candies and confections, cigars and tobacco, meats, feed and flour, and staple articles in the food lines generally. They also buy all the produce offered, quoting the highest market prices and grading all productions fairly.

To The Pennsylvania Railroad. Board of Directors Have Been Authorized To Purchase It.

The board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad has authorized the purchase of the stock of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad Company, payable in 4 per cent. 40 year trust certificates, principal and interest guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Railroad on the basis of $8,000 of said certificates for each $1,000 par value of said stock. The offer is open until August 1, 1908, to all stockholders who deposit their stock with the Fidelity Trust Company, which will act as depository. Almost all the stock belongs to the estate and family of the late A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad Company has been in operation for 35 years. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad Company both aided in its promotion, and formerly had a substantial ownership in its securities, but they disposed of them at the time the company was reorganized in January, 1899. The road is a feeder of an important connection via the Eastern Shore of Maryland with Southern lines through the Norfolk gateway, and its acquisition is in line with the policy heretofore pursued by the company in that respect.

In 1905 the company paid a dividend of 10 per cent. The road owns 118 miles of track from Delmar Del., to Cape Charles, Va. The officers of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk are as follows: William A. Patton, president; Robert J. Cassatt, assistant to the president; C. J. DeRouse, secretary of A. J. Cassatt and now of President McCrea; J. G. Cassatt, treasurer assistant to A. J. Cassatt and treasurer assistant to Mr. McCrea, and H. C. Carlisle, auditor.

TWO NEGROES ARRESTED

Charged With Violating The Liquor Laws Of This County. Suspicious Actions Led To Arrest.

Two colored men who save the names of Cassius Wilson, of Mt. Vernon, Somerset Co., and Joseph Thomas, of Charlottesville, N. C., were arrested on Thursday of this week and carried before Squire Trader on the charge of violating the liquor laws of the county. According to the testimony at the trial these parties had left Wilmington, Delaware Tuesday afternoon buying a ticket for Salisbury. They reached this place Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock. They took breakfast at the colored restaurant here, and soon afterwards they were seen going towards South Salisbury jugging a heavy satchel between them. On reaching W. H. Adkins' store they made inquiry for a farmer who they said wanted to hire help; as the party was unknown it is supposed a fictitious name was given.

Afterwards they went to a thicket nearby, and their actions seemed so suspicious to the residents of this section that they summoned the bailiff to investigate. Chief of the police was at this time very busy and did not go out, and soon after another phone was sent down, and finally they called on Justice of the Peace W. A. Trader and asked him to send down some one to investigate as their actions seemed to them very unusual. Mr. Trader found Chief of Police Disharoon and he was soon on his way there. It was thought possible that these might be parties implicated in the Phipps' store theft that occurred the previous night.

On Disharoon's arriving at Adkins' store he found the parties had left and were at the end of the bridge on the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. He asked them where they were going and they said they were going to take the train to Mt. Vernon. An inquiry as to their satchel brought the reply that it contained clothes. Disharoon picked up the satchel and remarking that it was very heavy, opened it and found nine quarts of whiskey and no clothes at all. He then arrested the parties, who claimed they were going to take the whiskey down to Mt. Vernon to treat their friends.

Squire Trader found them guilty and sentenced them to 90 days in jail or to work 30 days on the stone road in the County building, whichever sentence they might select.

This will make five men form jail at work on the roads.

It is stated that the authorities have been suspecting for some time that the local negroes were being supplied with whiskey from outside.

REPORTS OF ANDERSON'S

Talk At The Asbury Church Last Sunday Varying Statements.

Mr. W. H. Anderson, superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League, Rev. John M. Arters, League's Peninsula Manager, O. E. Burchenal of Wilmington, Del., and Rev. M. S. Paulson invaded Salisbury on Sunday and occupied the pulpits of several churches here. Mr. Anderson, who occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal Church in explaining the presence of the Anti-Saloon workers here said that the intention was to keep the citizens awake and alive on this question. He made a statement as to the position taken by the members of the Legislature from Wicomico.

An account of his remarks appearing in the Baltimore Sun on Monday created some excitement and quite a little indignation on the part of some of the friends of these parties, as a very strong inference was made that these parties had not been influenced by the proper motives in casting their votes. The part of the article giving offense is as follows:

"Mark the men, he said, 'who elected to the Legislature, betrayed you by selling body and soul to the interests of rum. Remember especially Senator Price, that member of the Joint Committee on Temperance, who refused point blank to call up the bill for the vote. Remember also those other two arch traitors you sent to Annapolis to represent your wishes but who did not.'

Mr. Anderson in a signed statement in Wednesday's Sun repudiated the statements contained in the Monday article, and gave the substance of his remarks:

In justice to all we republish Mr. Anderson's signed statement.

"I appreciate very much the enterprise of The Sun in reporting our Field Day at Salisbury, last Sunday, and the greater part of the account was accurate and satisfactory. On the general phases of the question some freedom of treatment is permissible, but where individual men are mentioned and their acts called into question a 'free hand' treatment sometimes gives an erroneous impression, even though intended with the utmost good faith.

"I am quoted in the article as saying: 'Mark the men who, elected to the Legislature, betrayed you by selling out body and soul to the interests of rum. Remember especially Senator Price, that member of the Joint Committee on Temperance, who refused point blank to call up the bill for the vote. Remember also those other two arch traitors you sent to Annapolis to represent your wishes, but who did not.'

"I did not say or intimate that anybody in Wicomico county 'sold out.'

"3. I never use the word 'rum.'

"4. I did not mention Senator Price by name.

"5. There was no 'joint committee on temperance.'

"6. I did not refer to anybody as 'traitors,' or use words of similar import.

"I did say that five Senators from the 'dry' Eastern Shore counties voted against the interests of the bill; that the Senator from Wicomico was one; that he was a member of the Temperance Committee of the Senate, and that the chairman of that committee stated that his committee had unanimously decided not to report the bill, which was a violation of the rules of the Senate. I did also state that Mr. Jones was the only member of the House from Wicomico county who supported the bill, and did as your report suggests, say that the county owed it to itself and the cause to send him back as an evidence of its appreciation, and that the county owed it to itself to send an entire delegation which would represent its temperance sentiment by supporting such legislation. In this connection it should be borne in mind that Senator Price holds over and his case is not at issue in the coming election.

"I further clearly and emphatically stated that the league did not come into any pulpits to start a political fight, but that it is the business of the league to give the facts and let the people use those facts as they see fit, and expressly disclaimed any criticism of any local man.

"I am in receipt of advice from influential temperance men in Salisbury to the effect that the temperance people feel that the cause has been put in a false position by this paragraph, and I am sure that they, as well as the writer, will appreciate your courtesy in publishing this statement.

Yours very truly,
William H. Anderson.

"Superintendent Anti Saloon League of Maryland."

PLEASED WITH TRIP.

Good Road People Like The Eastern Shore And Are Delighted With Their Reception.

The Members of the Good Roads Commission are enthusiastic over the result of their recent Eastern Shore trip. The three counties visited—Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset—cover completely this section of the State as the other counties on the shore had previously been gone over by the commission.

Further Investigation.

During the summer months the Commission will make further investigations and it is expected in about October will make public a general tentative plan covering every county in the State. This plan will be put out for the purpose of receiving criticisms and suggestions. The commission will hold special meetings in Baltimore after this tentative plan has been published for the purpose of hearing its critics and those who desire to make suggestions. It has until next May to ultimately decide upon the system.

In the meantime there are many counties where the route has already been so definitely determined by both the people and the commission that there is no longer room for doubt.

It is the purpose of the commission to immediately get ready the surveys of these routes and, it is hoped to be in a position to advertise for contracts by the end of fall or the beginning of next winter. To this end Chief Engineer W. W. Crosby has recommended to the commission the utilization of the present surveying force of the Maryland Geological Survey, which is equipped with the surveys and other necessary details for the work. This would obviate the necessity of employing in this time a lot of untrained men and furnishing them with the equipment. Among the Commissioners there does not seem to be any division of opinion as to the desirability of adopting this recommendation, as it will plainly save both time and expense.

Want To Begin Soon.

"Such surveys with the plats that the work under the Shoemaker act make necessary," said Mr. Crosby "are about completed, and the men that have been busy with this task could be put to work by July 1 on the proposed routes under the State loan act. I am anxious for the commission to give its consent in order that the work can be commenced. The minds of the members are concentrated on the selection of the routes. As soon as this is out of the way I believe they will take up the problems that confront them in connection with the actual construction of the roads.

"The trip through the Eastern Shore counties was satisfactory in every particular. Although no selection was made of the routes through Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset, the sentiment of the residents had crystallized to such an extent that the Commission will not have much difficulty in reaching a conclusion when it does take the question up.

"We found in Worcester a decided preference for stone roads. The county already has some of these roads there, and the residents are so pleased with them that they will not hear of the State building any other kind. Stone cannot be procured on the Eastern Shore. It has to be hauled there, and the freight charges on a quantity sufficient to build a mile of road vary from $2500 to $4500. This is the cost of the stone is about $1500, making the mile of road constructed in this way about $3000; for, of course it costs something to get the stone down in the way it ought to be put down.

"Such an outlay will reduce the road mileage in Worcester and the other Eastern Shore counties that insist on having a bang-up stone road, but means may be devised for reducing the cost. I have tried to interest people in the project of opening up a quarry on the Susquehanna, where stone is plentiful, but thus far have made no headway. The thing may come, however. If this is done, the State can get its stone for roads at reasonable cost. Then, too, the railroads may be willing to make some concession in freight charges."

Engineers Recommended.

Also it has been recommended by the commission that Mr. E. F. Ruggles, the present assistant engineer of the Geological Survey, and Mr. W. D. Uhler, of Caroline county, be employed by the commission. Both of these men are at present engaged on the road work under the Shoemaker law and it is suggested that their services can be utilized by the Good Roads Commission to exceptional advantage. These recommendations will be taken up by the commission at its next meeting, which will probably not be until after June 25, as it is desired to finish up the county tours before taking up a number of questions such as these, which have been left in abeyance.

Governor Crothers, Chairman Tact-er and in fact, all the members of the commission were particularly pleased

ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP.

A Negro Wanted Mr. Bethke To Hand Over His Watch On Way Home From Party.

While Mr. Charles Bethke, son of Mr. Chas. Bethke, the tailor, was on his way home Wednesday evening from a sailing party on the lake, he noticed a colored man who seemed to be following him. At first he paid no attention to the matter, but finally grew suspicious of his actions, especially at this time of night—about half past eleven o'clock.

He first noticed him on Poplar Hill Avenue after he had passed the home of Mr. Leonard Higgins. The man soon came up with him and asked what time it was. On Bethke giving him a reply the colored man in an entirely different tone of voice and hand on hip pocket, said, "See, I want that watch." Mr. Bethke turned at once and "you do, eh," attempted to strike him. Evidently surprised and scared at this resistance the colored man turned and ran down the street. Bethke not caring to pursue further continued to his home. He described the negro as short and stubby, inclined to be stout and evidently a stranger as he was unknown to him.

MASON'S BIG DAY

Will Be Wednesday, July 1. On Occasion Of Grand Commander's Visit. Entertaining Program.

The Masonic fraternity of this city is anticipating a large and interesting time here next Wednesday, July 1, when the local Commandery—Thomas J. Shryock, No. 11—will entertain.

They will be visited by the Grand Commander, E. G. Staley, and several other of the Grand officers, who will arrive on the steamer Virginia early Wednesday morning, with about 85 members of the Drill Corps of the famous Beausant Commandery, of Baltimore.

The day's program in Salisbury will open with a meeting of the Shryock Commandery at the Temple at 8 a. m. The Grand Commander will be met at the boat and will join in the march back to the Temple where a brief drill will be given.

In the afternoon there will be an exhibition Field Drill at 8 o'clock on Humphreys meadow. An automobile ride will be given at six and a banquet at ten o'clock.

City Council And Street Paving.

At the session of the city council on Monday evening the question of paving of the streets was taken up. The attorney of the Bitulithic Co., Mr. Turner, was present and the city was represented by attorney B. E. Graham, of Baltimore. After some discussion of the matter a resolution was passed authorizing the Mayor and Clerk to execute a contract with Messrs. Warren Bros., for the paving of Division and Camden Aves., with Bitulithic.

The Council decided not to accept the bids for paving on S. Division and Main Street, extended, which was to be done with brick but for the City to do this work.

Mr. Hutton, the engineer, was before the council and stated that he would be willing to cancel the contract upon the city paying him 10 per cent for the work already done or if desired by the council he would continue to supervise the work on the part of the town.

The council refused to grant any permits at the present, for boxing contests.

Notice.

There will be services, D. V., in Spring Hill Parish, on Sunday next, June 28th., as follows: St. Paul's Church, Spring Hill, 10.30 a. m.; St. Phillips Chapel, Quantico, 7.45 p. m. Franklin B. Adkins, Rector.

with the meeting held in Salisbury. They say that this was not only the best attended meeting the commission has held, but that the people of Wicomico county appeared to take an exceptionally intelligent interest in the project, and are thoroughly alive to the needs of the county and what good roads will mean to it. It has been pretty well decided that the Worcester road will run from Berlin to Snow Hill and from Snow Hill to Pocomoke City. There is some little difference of opinion as to the route from Snow Hill to Pocomoke City, some desiring the river route and others wanting it to go by way of Stockton and Girdlewood. The Somerset people want their road to run from the Wicomico county line to Princess Anne and from thence straight to Crisfield, and this is what they will get. There was practically a unanimous opinion in regard to the route.

The members of the commission were particularly delighted with the warm hospitality extended them in the three counties they visited and were impressed with the business being done and the wealth of the Eastern Shore.

ACCIDENTS ON LAKE.

Two Baltimore Girls Have Unexpected Cold Plunges. Miss Heckman Dies Narrow Escape.

While out rowing on the Johnson lake beyond the Electric Light Plant, Miss Morse, of Baltimore, lost her balance in the boat and fell out. Mr. Bala A. White, of Philadelphia, who was in the boat with her, managed to throw the boat around so as to catch Miss Morse before she sank in the water, and pulled her into the boat with no more serious results than a good wetting.

What looked like a more serious affair occurred a short time after on Humphreys' pond. Miss Heckman and Miss Greineson, of Baltimore, with Miss Ora Disharoon were out rowing and were just coming in. When they reached the boat house Miss Heckman in attempting to open the door fell out. This is one of the deeper parts of the pond, and Miss Heckman sank at once. Mr. Ray Fooks who was in a boat nearby saw the accident and rushing his boat to the rescue succeeded in grasping the hand of Miss Heckman, which was out of the water, and pulled her into his boat. Outside of a natural fright and wetting no serious damage was done.

Phipps' Jewelry Store Robbed.

On Tuesday evening some one broke through the plate glass window in Phipps' Jewelry Store and took one six watches that were in the window. Mr. W. W. Mitchell, Jr., was in the store until after eleven o'clock doing some work although the store was closed to the public at seven o'clock. The party or parties made an entrance by breaking through the heavy plate glass in the window making an opening large enough to reach through and get out anything in the window. Mr. Mitchell had left a tray with watches in the window and these were taken. An entrance was not made in the store itself. The watches were valued at about $150. The police are working on the case, although as far as could be learned no satisfactory clue has been found.

The bride was becomingly attired in a white serge suit, with hat and gloves to match.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for Atlantic City and other points north. Upon their return they will reside at 2401 Maryland Ave., Baltimore, Md.

Fisheries of Washington.

The fisheries of Washington continue to lead those of the other Pacific coast states in capital and products, though the catch of salmon in this state has decreased very noticeably during recent years. This, in a measure, has been offset by a very large increase in the halibut fisheries. In 1904 the fisheries of Washington supported 50 fishing vessels, with a tonnage of 1,541 and value of $184,600; 80 transporting vessels, with a tonnage of 1,247 and value of $261,300; 63 gasoline boats valued at $44,800, and 3,448 sail and row boats valued at $309,610. The principal apparatus were 27 seines, 1,388 gill nets, and 602 pound nets. The total value of vessels, boats, fishing apparatus, shore property, and cash capital was $5,319,301, against $5,601,343 in 1899, the year shown in the last previous canvass of the Pacific States. The number of persons engaged in 1904 was 8,899, a decrease of 1,089 since 1899. The products amounted to 88,954,790 pounds, with a value of $2,973,633 to the fishermen, a decrease of $1,633,939 pounds, caused chiefly by the closing of a number of canneries as the result of a correspondingly reduced demand.

Born in Iowa.

Our family were all born and raised in Iowa, and have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (made at Des Moines) for years. We know how good it is from long experience in the use of it. In fact when in El Paso, Texas, the writer's life saved by the prompt use of this remedy. We are now engaged in the mercantile business at Narcoossee, Fla., and have introduced the remedy here. It has proven very successful and is constantly growing in favor.—Ennis Bros. This remedy is for sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

The clergy were required to wear no peculiar garb in private life prior to the fifth century.

The Council of Aezed, in the year 506, ordered the clergy to wear clothes and shoes of a particular cut, and the distinction between clergy and laity was made more marked still in the sixth century by the introduction of the "tonsure" or clerical crown.

Badly Sprained Ankle Cured.

Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights—had not slept a minute. Mr. Stallings of Butler, Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it and bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle.—E. M. Brumitt, Hampton, Tenn. 25 and 50 cent size for sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

England's Sea Power Unquestioned.

Before England acquired her position as mistress of the sea, Spain ruled the North Atlantic. England's supremacy was achieved in destroying the Spanish fleet in the latter part of the sixteenth century, when she was contending with Spain for control of the newly-found continent of America, since which time it has never been relinquished. England's opportunity lay in the fact that having destroyed the power of Spain, she found no other power worthy of consideration on the seas to dispute her newly acquired importance.

In destroying the Russian fleet recently Japan performed quite as notable an act as England three centuries earlier, but her opportunity to go further was an impossibility, as the British, German, United States and French fleets as well were in the way. It has not always been easy for England to maintain her supremacy on the sea, and frequently she has had to do so against sharp competition, but her geographical position makes it absolutely necessary for her to be the first and foremost naval as well as merchant power on the seas.

This position she has maintained against America's greater opportunity, Germany's ambitious competition, and all the efforts of other maritime powers as they exist today, and doubtless will continue to do so as long as Englandmen retain the characteristics which produced the great navigators who made the conquest of the new world possible, or perhaps until the United States awakens to a realization of their power to become the ruling maritime nation, not only from a standpoint of wealth, but from their geographical position in facing the two greatest oceans in the world. Such time will not come perhaps until our population is doubled or trebled, but it will come as certainly as the day follows the night when the time is ripe for it.—Marine Journal, N. Y.

—After Willie's mother had repeatedly admonished him for having to be reminded, night after night, to pray for a certain old lady friend of the family who was very ill, the boy broke out one evening at prayer time with an exhortation for his apparent negligence, says the New York Times.

"I don't see much use in prayin' for an outsider," he said sullenly.

"Why not?" gasped the astonished mother.

"Well, you remember the lady next door who used to give me lots of cookies and apples?"

"Yes."

"When she was took sick with typhoid fever you asked me to pray for her one night."

"Well."

"I prayed for her, didn't I?"

"Yes, child."

"Well, she died next day."

—A good many people still hold the notion that all persons are equally good by nature and might be equally good actually had they but the will to be so. They fail to see that men are born with all degrees of moral capacities and incapacities and some of them wholly lacking in that regard, just as they are born with all degrees of intellectual endowment and some of them with none whatever. A man may be an idiot morally as well as intellectually.—Strand Magazine.

Deep Cracks From Eczema

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One—Hands in Dreadful State—Disease Defied Remedies and Prescriptions—Suffered Seven Years.

FOUND A PERMANENT CURE IN CUTICURA

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I used — Skin Lotion, — Remedy and others externally but I did not use any internal remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. I made a purchase of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of soap were used. I now keep them on hand for sunburn, etc., and use Cuticura Soap for shaving. I could write a great deal more in reference to my cure but do not want to take more of your time. William H. Dean, Newark, Del., Mar. 28, 1904."

CHILD SUFFERED With Sores on Legs. Cured in Two Weeks by Cuticura.

"My little daughter suffered with sores on her legs all last summer. Her feet were sore, too, and she couldn't wear her shoes. I think she was poisoned by running through weeds but the doctor said it was eczema. I tried several remedies but failed to find a cure. Then I sent for Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her in two weeks. I find Cuticura the best I ever tried for any kind of sore and I hope I shall never be without it. Mrs. Gerda Laughlin, Ivydale, W. Va., Apr. 25, 1907."

Dangerous Diving.

Drowning is a quicker death than most people suppose. Insensibility is said to begin in about one minute, and fatal unconsciousness generally supervenes in the neighborhood of two minutes. Few, even practiced divers, can remain under water more than a minute and a half and it is generally fatal to remain beneath the surface longer than that. At Navarino, where there are many expert divers, who plunge into the sea after sponges, not one was found who could remain under water for two minutes. In the Red Sea the crab divers generally remain down one and a quarter minutes, while at Ceylon the pearl fishers can seldom stay below for even a minute.

There is a case on record at Falmouth where a diver had descended eighty feet and on giving the signal was drawn up slowly. It was two minutes before he reached the surface. Blood ran from his ears and nose, and he was insensible. He died without speaking. Insensibility, however, does not always involve death, for in many cases a person may be resuscitated by the use of energetic measures.—London Saturday Review.

A SIMPLE QUESTION.

Salisbury People Are Requested To Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen of Salisbury more than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this: Mrs. G. W. Fooks, living three miles south of Salisbury, Md. says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as being exactly as represented. I suffered from kidney disease for eight years. I was treated by doctors for Bright's Disease. It came on me so gradually that I scarcely knew what ailed me. My back ached. I was annoyed with constant dull pains which grew gradually worse, so that I could not sleep nights on account of the severe aches and pains. The secretions annoyed me, and showed plainly the dormant condition of my kidneys. I was always tired and worn out, and the different medicines I took did me no good, but I grew worse and worse. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and highly recommended so I got a box at White and Leonard's drug store, used them strictly according to directions. They cured me and the cure was complete and lasting. I have not had any return of the complaint since I took Doan's Kidney Pills. I gave a statement for publication in 1903, recommending them, and am glad to confirm same at this time."

SOME FOLKS SAY. That all clothing is alike, that Lacy Thoroughgood's is no different than any other, that it don't fit any better, isn't made any better, doesn't have any better style, nor isn't made of any better goods. Lacy Thoroughgood is glad to say there are only a few such folks who have lost, if they ever had any, their Good Sense. Such folks invariably get ten dollars in value for fifteen dollars of their money, instead of getting fifteen dollars in value for ten dollars of their money and then wonder why it is they don't get along as well as others they know; why is it their clothes, though they pay more for 'em, don't look as neat, nor wear as well as those who buy from Lacy Thoroughgood. Such folks never buy right, they buy of too cheap stores or of the too high-priced ones. Lacy Thoroughgood came home from New York last week and brought with him 100 Suits for young men, manufactured by Alfred Benjamin & Co., the best in the world. These suits were made to retail for $20, $22, $25, $30 and $35. Thoroughgood proposes to sell them for $15 and $18. If this stock of clothing had been bought in the regular way and you had come to Thoroughgood and asked that he give you as fine a suit as could be made, irrespective of price, Lacy Thoroughgood would undoubtedly have given you one of these suits which was made to sell at $20, $25 and $30, but which Thoroughgood now sells for $15 and $18. And had you come leaving it to Thoroughgood's judgment, and in such a case he always uses his best endeavors and had asked him to give you the best suit in his stock at $20, he couldn't have served you more faithfully than by giving you one of the self-same suits which he is now selling at $15, because none better is, or can be, made than the suits he secured from the renowned makers, Alfred Benjamin & Co. The suits are in extraordinary variety, all the season's models of the choicest fabrics, you never saw such beautiful clothing in all your days, and at $15 too—just come in and look. ELECTRIC LIGHT METERS are being installed in the commercial houses just as rapidly as we can get them in and we ask our patrons to be a little patient and we will get around to them in a short time. The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantulum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters as rapidly as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantulum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial Houses, $2.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10c per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights not needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Our Superintendent will give prompt attention to any complaints as to our service. We have a "trouble" man always on hand to help you out of any difficulty. Call up the Main Street office and your wants will be attended to.

A FORTUNATE CAST

(Original.) Around the edges of the artificial pond the crowd pressed close. Small boys sat on the banks of dry grass that had long given up trying to imitate nature, and scattered paper bags and advertising material on the uncomplaining trout. The markers rested undisturbed on the dirty water, untouched by the hook in the hands of the embryo sportsman who stood on the end of the pier, wildly attempting to cast.

Well down toward the end of the pond a young woman in a brown suit edged her way through the crowd. After much pushing, she gained a position in the front row, and stood watching the pier. The frantic young man reeled up his line and departed. An official with a megaphone took his place.

"Mr. Alylen McLean will cast first. Handicap, 15 feet. Mr. McLean is now casting. Mr. McLean," he hoisted to either side.

The girl in brown watched the pier carefully. When Mr. McLean appeared she gave a sudden start and her dark cheeks flushed. Then she leaned more firmly on the bank, her chin in her hands.

Mr. McLean advanced, uncoiled his line, made a few preliminary motions and nodded unconcernedly to the time-keeper. Behind him, eagerly watching his progress, crouched his sworn friend and ally, Dr. Maxwell, muttering encouragement and cheer.

Again and again Mr. McLean cast. The crowd, attentive, critical, applauded. The girl watched, her eyes never leaving him. At last he seemed to become conscious. His eyes wandered from the markers and his arm lost some of its steadiness. The girl smiled slowly.

And then he saw her. Her brown eyes looked steadily into his meeting his look with a frank recognition, while the red lips curved in a merry smile.

It was her face, the face he had been longing to see since that day last summer when he had seen it for the first and only time. Then it had looked at him from a background of green bushes, and now it gazed out among hundreds of other faces, but it was still the same. He had been following a winding brook among the New Hampshire hills, making a desultory cast now and then, when suddenly, around a bend he had come upon her. She was sitting on a rock, her blue gingham skirt held carefully about her knees, her feet dabbling in the cool water. He remembered now her cry of dismay when she had seen him, and how she fled from the rock and up the bank.

But once among the bushes she had turned and laughed at him, even as she laughed now.

"Allan, for heaven's sake, what is it? Have you seen a ghost? Ninety seconds gone, man, and there you stand. What ails you?"

Dr. Maxwell's voice recalled him to his surroundings. He squared his shoulders, stepped forward and raised his arm. But he could see only the girl's face, and his hand shook. The hook flew out—far to one side.

A girl's shriek rang through the stillness. The girl in brown pressed her hand to her cheek and took it away, dripping with blood. Then she quietly slid down on the bank. Mr. Allan McLean dropped his rod and leaped from the pier. Dr. Maxwell was a close second. Cries and commands filled the air. Dr. Maxwell pushed McLean to one side and lifted the girl. He made a quick examination.

"Stand back," he shouted, "don't crowd—it's only a flesh wound. She's fainted that's all." When she came to herself there was a hospital dressing on her face and a strange young man bending over her.

"Don't be alarmed. You're all right. It's a most distressing accident, but I was fortunate enough to be on hand with my kit, and I don't believe it will leave a very bad scar. I can't tell you how badly my friend feels. He will never cease to regret his clumsiness. And now if you will tell me where you live, my auto is at the door, and I'd better take you home."

"You're very kind," she answered, in a shaky voice. Her pretty chin quivered. "It was my own fault. I shouldn't have tried to make him look at me. I'm Margaret Perry, and I'm stopping with my aunt." She named the address. "I'd like to go home, please."

It was really surprising how many calls Dr. Maxwell was obliged to make to be absolutely certain that that flesh wound was healing properly. And when it was healed he seemed professionally interested in the scar.

When Miss Perry returned to New Hampshire, Dr. Maxwell sent and received daily bulletins. A year later Mr. Allan McLean officiated as best man at a wedding in New Hampshire. The bride had a scar on her left cheek.

After the ceremony she turned to the best man.

"Allan," she said, laughing, "I think I've forgiven you for that unfortunate cast of yours. 'In fact,' looking up at her husband, 'I'm not sure but that I shall thank you for it all my life.'—Mrs. Sam Moses.

TRYING TO PLEASE HIM

To say that Jonzene was amazed would be stating the situation mildly. When a man has been married five years and got in the habit of coming home to a house in neat and shining order, an immaculately arrayed wife and a piping hot and tempting dinner, with later supplies of evening papers and magazines and slippers, he begins to take these favors as his right. But this time Louise did not meet him at the door and the living room was dark. He stumbled over things while searching for the electric button. When he had turned on the light he blinked at the room dazedly.

A litter of sewing scraps covered the floor; one rubber, three spoons of thread and the scissors added to the disarray. Open magazines were on the table and a vell was carelessly wound about a vase on the mantel. The shades were up unevenly and a lace curtain hung crooked. The room had a distinct rowdy and forlorn expression.

Jonzene sat down undecidedly and actually turned pale. Then he became conscious of the stillness that reigned in the kitchen regions. He investigated and found no maid there and not a sign of dinner.

While his surprise was rapidly changing into actual worry he heard Louise's key in the front door. She walked in beaming. There was an airiness about her which her hungry husband felt was out of place under the circumstances.

She threw her gloves on one chair and her hat on another and sat on her new coat, after carelessly slipping it off. Jonzene remained speechless. He wondered if sudden madness had stricken his pretty wife, whose symbol of life was order.

"Don't you like these new shoes of mine?" she asked, eyeing her patent leathers with satisfaction.

"They are all right," said Jonzene. "Are—aren't we going to have dinner to-night?"

Mrs. Jonzene regarded him with a childlike perplexity which also was new. It was as if she had been asked a question in mental arithmetic by a stern teacher. Then apparently realization flooded her mind and she threw up her hands and laughed.

"Well, just fancy!" she cried, merrily. "I had totally forgotten that this was Thursday and Nettie's day off! What do you think of that! I don't suppose there is a scrap in the house to eat!"

Jonzene waited for her as usual to suggest what they should do, but she merely smiled at him as one who is resolved to be good-natured under severe provocation.

"What shall we do?" he heard himself ask.

Mrs. Jonzene hummed a little tune. "My goodness!" she said. "I haven't an idea! Isn't it funny? What had we better do, John?"

Jonzene felt his throat contract at his first logical notion of suggesting that maybe she could manage something in the chafing dish. This sudden care-free creature and work seemed wholly incompatible.

"We could go to the cafe down the street," he said meekly.

They went and the dinner cost him just $9.30. Louise had betrayed a childish delight in asking for new dishes and had ordered liquid refreshments besides.

When they were at home again Louise went to the piano. Jonzene stealthily picked up the things on the floor, because being a neat man he could not read in peace with them there.

"Did my shirts come from the laundry?" he asked.

Again his wife turned a beaming face on him and wrinkled her brow. "Goodness! I don't know, John!" she confessed. "I never can remember to bother about those things!"

And this from a woman who had always known by instinct if a button were missing!

"Louise!" cried Jonzene, as with paper in hand, unable to read, he surveyed his wife playing riddle, though she had always professed to loathe it. "What is the dickens is the matter? What has come over you?"

Mrs. Jonzene turned around, still childlike—and then she laughed. The longer she looked at the pathetically harassed face of her husband the harder it was for her to stop.

She sobbed suddenly and spoke in her natural voice.

"Didn't I sit here the other evening," she demanded, "and listen to you raving over Alice Harmon for an hour? Yes, Mr. Smith was talking, too, but you did most of it! You said she was so appealing with her bright childishness and continued gaiety and her husband didn't appreciate it. You said you liked a trusting and dependent woman. You said Harmon ought to be glad to think for her and take the responsibility. You mentioned that a true man always felt that way. You added that she was a fascinating creature and Harmon ought to be ashamed of growling. I—I was just giving you a touch of Alice. I wanted to please you. I began to realize how bored you must have been."

TOLD BY SIGNS AND OMENS

Superstitions of the Virginia Mountain Folks. BIRDS AND HEADACHE

Interpretation of Sassafras, Kitchen Fire and Cow—Poverty Shunned by Peacocks—Influence of the Moon on Crops—A Stern Code of Perpetual Disaster.

Washington, self admitted centre of culture and enlightenment, looks upon superstition as a form of devil worship that vanished with witch burning. Yet within two hours ride of the Capitol are communities that despite public school and church choir factions problems and things are as deeply saturated with superstition as the scholarly bats that flitted through the intellectual twilight of the Middle Ages.

In the upper reaches of the Virginia counties that flank the Blue Ridge on the east and climb the mountain shoulders until they look down over the summit into the Shenandoah Valley the daily life of the hill dweller is hedged in with countless signs and omens, all portents of evil. Through them he walks gingerly, fearful lest in propitiating one genius of disaster he offended another.

"Sides, I want yer to go for ther doctor. Yer ma's aillin' this mornin' an' er durned whipper!" will set on ther horse block an' holler'd las' night 'til I coddid him off. Yer know what that means!"

Whippoorwills, that the ignorant may know as much as Hance, mean early and sudden death. For years they had made that block a rendezvous for their nightly chorals, while the family remained healthy as hostlers. But it shook not the old man's belief in the faith of his fathers. The doctor was hurriedly fetched, only to find ma recovered "as peart as a cricket."

"Don't yer put that sassafras wood in ther kitchen fire!" cried the old lady to her helping hand one day, a twelve year old girl, as yet untaught in the lore of the hills. "Every single cow on ther place'll go dry of yer do. Put it in a fire."

A listening city man wondered at this fine distinction.

"Law, chile," sagely explained the old lady, "it's jes' puttin' sassafras in ther kitchen fire what makes cows go dry; it don't make no difference in no other fire. Why, when I wuz er gal over'n Rappahannock—and wise saws and ancient instances were copiously cited to sustain the theory of interrelation of sassafras, kitchen fire and cow.

"Peacocks won't stay 'th us," explained the old lady when the city man suggested them as an ornament to the velocity big grass lawn. "They won't stay 'th po' folks."

"We used ter have er beautiful pair on 'em. They stayed here fer years 'til we suard 'em in a pen. 'Th iver Cyarters an' go' go'." Ther very night them peacocks went down ther moun't'n pass' Dorse Hefflin's place an' ole man Coasler's, who's both po' folks an' didn't stop 'tel they got pum' ter Col. Waller's, that owns 'bout half o' Warren county.

"They're been ther ever sence, an' they'll stay ther 'tel ther Wallers girls po' an' then they'll move on. No, 'tain't no use ter git peacocks 'hyah."

Cuttings and combings from the hair must be carefully collected and burned in the kitchen fire, that altar to the god of bad luck. Otherwise a general run of ill fortune will sit by the hearth for an indefinite term.

If the birds get the hair the ill luck is more specific. The miserable man has a headache that no coal tar product can relieve until the nestings leave their hair lined home. The unfortunate woman loses her remaining locks, unhelped by hair tonics.

"I've always had good crops," said a clever and comfortable farmer of the foothills, "because I always plant things that yield above ground, like corn and wheat, on the light of the moon and those that yield beneath like potatoes, on the dark. I've never failed. Yes," he reluctantly admitted, "we do use loam of fertilizer. But the moon—and the city man listened to a monologue on its virtues as a crop raiser.

"When yer hev er dawg that don't know 'nuff ter bark when he trees er varmint," confided a dweller in the Rappahannock Valley, "thar's only one way ter learn him how. Take er green gourd that's been raised in ther northwest corner er fer'—yer mus' pull it on er Saddy—an' ther mus' time that dawg trees an' don't give tongue take ther gourd an' bus' it wide open over his head. It'll learn him ter bark treed all right."

When the city man came home he found himself stopping to make a cross mark with his toe every time he turned back and shuddering whenever he heard howling dogs, the deadliest of mountain death omens. He insists that every one is superstitious as a crop raiser.

Keeping Ants From the Hives. My honey-house was visited by ants, and I painted the stone underplankings with petroleum, says a writer in Bee Culture. The thickest and most worthless is the best. For hives, paint the standards or legs, and let the alighting boards be about two inches from the ground—a jar that the bees will make easily, which will prevent the ants from entering. They will climb up wood or any old thing to get in.

DAIRY CREAMERY

FEEDING BREWERS' GRAINS

Unless Properly Treated Soon Loses Its Nutritive Value.

Twenty years ago practically all dairymen wherever possible were feeding fresh malt sprouts from the breweries but of later years we do not hear much about this business although we suppose it is still going on. Average analyses show that brewers' grains contain more than twenty per cent albumin, from forty to fifty per cent carbohydrates and more than six per cent fat which would show that this food is way up in all the elements that go into the making of milk. When fresh more than seventy-five per cent of water is present. If allowed to remain in this condition lactic acid fermentation sets in, which later is supplanted by butyric acid fermentation. Finally, after a certain amount of butyric acid has accumulated, putrefaction begins which by the production of ammonia neutralizes the lactic and butyric acids and imparts an alkaline reaction to the mass of grains. The odor is then offensive and the food value diminishes as the proteid contents are decomposed by the putrefactive bacteria. In this condition, if not positively injurious, brewers' grains are at least of little food value. For this reason all such stuff should be thoroughly dried when it comes from the vat and in this condition it will last a long while.—Field and Farm.

Milking Machines in Use.

It is said that there are now about one thousand milking machines in use in the United States, among large dairy herds. At the Nebraska Station, at Lincoln, one is in use to test an extensive way the effect of the machine on the monthly and yearly records of the cows, as well as the cost of operating, etc. This experiment has now been in operation some time, and though considerable data has been obtained, it is difficult to tell just how it will influence the yearly production of the animals. No difficulty has been experienced in milking any and all cows tried, and have any of the animals been forced dry by the treatment. Some cows we have wished to dry have been put on the machine, but we have found it necessary to skip milkings in order to reduce their flow. In one case a kicking cow was brought into the herd and the machine proved to be the best milker in this case, as hand milking was extremely difficult.

Where One Cow is Kept.

Families that keep only one cow should endeavor to have the best animal that can be procured. More labor is required to care for a single cow, proportionately, than for a herd. A cow for the family should give a large flow of milk for at least 10 months of the year, and the milk should contain not less than 4 per cent of butter fat, as cream is one of the essentials. It is better to have a cow that gives even richer milk, but the majority of family cows are selected without regard to merit in that respect. It is difficult to rear the calves in such cases, hence in purchasing the family cow it will be profitable to pay a high price for a superior animal.

Demand for Old Hats.

"Oh, yes, I am always in the market for second-hand derbys and silk hats. They sell better than anything else." The old clothes dealer pointed to a room filled with stocking hats. "There's not half enough to meet my demands," he said. "If you was to bring me a carload of old hats this morning I'd take 'em all."

"There's such a demand, eh?"

"You bet there's a demand. Especially among old maids and widows that live alone. They buy these hats and hang a couple on the hall rack. Then, when a beggar or tramp gets too rambunctious at the door they turn and say: 'There's his hat. George! There's his hat. George! Oh, George! Will you come down here and turn this rascal away!'"

"Then the tramp sneaks, thinking there's a man in the house. 'Restaurants when they open up new stands, generally lay in twenty-five or thirty hats. They hang them on the lobby to make people think business is brisk.'"

Treatment of Deaf Mutes.

In the experience of Dr. Marage, as reported to the Paris Academy of Medicine, very few deaf mutes have proven absolutely incurable, but of the others there are two classes—those who eventually understand and speak almost as well as anybody, and those who get no further than hearing and understanding music. A recent class of pupils from 11 to 14 years of age had been given a six weeks' course of acoustic exercise with the voice screen. By this system the teacher avoids fatigue and the children had not only acquired the ability to hear and understand French, but their voices had lost the harshness characteristic of deaf mutes.

THE TRUSTS SCARED.

Will the Big Combines Be Good After Election?

When the devil is sick, the devil a monk would be. Signs multiply that the trusts, which are robbing the American people by the shelter of a tariff wall, are becoming "sick"—with fear. The "trusts' own" representative, Congressman Balzell, speaking in the house of representatives Feb. 20, while protesting that he personally did not think the tariff needed revision, still believed it would be well to recognize the claims of those who think there should be some revision. He was inclined to think that the Republican national convention would promise that the subject of revision would be considered and believed that in the event of Republican success the tariff would be revised at a special session of congress immediately following the inauguration of the new president.

Can it be doubted that this language is induced by the quakings of the trust tariff devil, who sees possible death this year in the strong and unwonted interest now taken by the people in the workings of the Dingley schedules? The people are learning that the trusts, freed by the tariff from foreign competition, extort high prices from their own countrymen, while they export and sell their products at low prices in foreign lands. In outside markets they can undersell their foreign competitors, but the home market must be exclusively theirs—to charge "all the traffic will bear."

The pinch of hard times is driving these facts home. The tariff has failed to provide work for American workmen. It has stifled competition in the home market, which was expected to insure reasonable prices to American consumers. As the people give evidence of greater interest in these things than heretofore to promise revision after election. But—When the devil gets well, the devil a monk is he. If those who exact tribute from us through the tariff are allowed to keep possession of the government, if the stand patters have their way in the matter of nominations and at the election, will any one dare to hope for revision that will lessen the tribute we are paying? Judging by the past, in that case there would be no revision at all, the result of the election being taken as a vote of confidence which even absolves from all promises. If the people wish relief from paying tribute, they must set permit the trust tariff devil to live.

REVISION IN UTOPIA.

All History of Tariff Building Set at Naught.

A beautiful picture of tariff revision "by its friends" was drawn by the New York Tribune in a recent issue. According to the Tribune, the senate finance committee and the house ways and means committee will obtain authority to hold sessions during the recess of congress and "conduct such examination into the tariff schedules as may be deemed wise in view of the approaching revision." "There will be no public hearings, no widely advertised consideration of particular schedules, no particular business being brought before the committee, but the work will go on in a quiet and orderly manner, so that when congress meets again everything will be prepared for prompt and efficient action." "Before adjournment all the minutiae will have been arranged, and almost before the industries of the country have felt the first breath of disturbance the operation will have been performed and the patent will be completed."

The New York Evening Post is ruder enough to shatter this pleasant dream. Getting down to earth, the Post thus describes the procedure of a tariff revising senate finance committee: "Why, the protected manufacturers would be down upon it instantly, like a wolf on the fold. They would demand to be informed whether their particular schedules were being 'examined.' If so, the committee would be told bluntly that it could never hope to pass that examination and had better drop the subject at once. And only think of these secret inquiries being held while a presidential election is pending! More fat would be tried than schedules altered. It would be an unequalled opportunity for the tariff beneficiaries. Granting the same dim-bulbness might be on the committee, are they prepared to meet manufacturers whose protection they propose to take away? Better encounter a lioness robbed of her whelps."

As the Post well says, "All this prediction of injustice and oppression and special privilege being got out of the protective tariff without an open struggle is concentrated humbug."

Would Blaine Be a Stand Patter?

We understand a stand patter to be one who insists on maintaining tariff schedules in spite of the fact that those schedules are used as a shield for admitted monopoly and extortion. Whether James G. Blaine would be in this class if now living may be clearly seen by the following quotation from his work "Twenty Years of Congress": "Protection in the perfection of its design does not invite competition from abroad, but is based on the contrary principle that competition at home will always prevent monopoly on the part of the capitalists, assure good wages to the laboring man and defend the consumers against the evils of extortion."

At present, when scores of trusts and combinations are enabled to practice "extortion" on American consumers because they are freed from foreign competition by a high tariff, it is plain that Mr. Blaine would not be among those who consider the Dingley schedules sacred.

CANDIDATES WAKE UP

Cannon and Fairbanks Have Ears to Ground.

SOME RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

Former Stand Patters Now Favor Tariff Revision—A Concession to Popular Opinion—Fail to State if Revision Should Be Up or Down.

Evidently there will be no openly stand patter candidate for the Republican nomination for president. It seems now to be a neck and neck race between the former stand patters, Cannon and Fairbanks, to see which will make the largest bid for tariff reform support without burning behind them bridges that afford connection with the heavily protected "interests." Speaker Cannon, through the Illinois platform, declared for revision after March 4, 1909. On April 1 the vice president, through a letter read at the Indiana convention, came out for revision immediately after the election in November. Now the speaker by a resolution introduced in the house of representatives on April 2 shakes a big stick at one of the conspicuous tariff beneficiaries, the paper trust.

The speaker's resolution requests information from the attorney general and the department of commerce and labor with reference to criminal prosecution of the paper trust and investigation into its affairs. This action would seem to be a flank movement to avoid a direct issue at this time on the removal of the tariff on paper and wood pulp, as recommended by the president and overwhelmingly demanded by public opinion and no doubt favored by a majority of congressmen. Mr. Cannon is reported to have expressed the opinion that the high price of paper may be due to illegal combination on the part of the trust and not caused by the tariff at all. He would have the trust prosecuted, enjoined, dissolved, etc.

Far be it from us to shield the paper trust from any of these dreadful proceedings, but the speaker's move illustrates well the usual attitude of the politicians on issues of this kind. They give to manufacturers or allow them to retain a tariff wall, which is in itself a strong temptation to combine and monopoly and a protection against possible disturbance in the enjoyment of monopoly privileges. This is their contribution to the "interests." But they are equally generous with the people. For their benefit rigorous laws are passed, making criminal offenses of the very things which the tariff has encouraged and protected. Of course such laws are not enforced, and if perchance the big stick is brandished too close to a trust it "disappears" to appear again in a form less vulnerable to legal attack. But the trust never relinquishes its monopoly or forgets to raise the price to reimburse itself for the trouble of prosecution or the payment of fines.

If the high price of paper is not caused by the tariff, the speaker must yet acknowledge that it could do no harm to remove the duty, even though it did no good. He and other protectors of the "interests" might be driven to try this experiment if the people would show they are "next" to the politicians' game.

All the Republican candidates except Senator La Follette have forgotten to state whether they would revise the tariff up or down. The people should inquire into this, for it is a matter of some trifling importance whether they are to be robbed more or less. Suspicion on this point is aroused by the fact that all of the would-be revisers insist on a new lease of official power before making any attempt to relieve their constituents of the burdens now oppressing them. If their action were to be in the general interest of the people, why not give the people a taste of the good things before election? This might win the public appetite for more of the same sort next year. It would seem that general promises of fine things to be done "after election" or "next year" would by this time have lost their seductive power for American ears.

JESSE F. ORTON.

STAND PATTERS' TRICK.

Tariff Commission a Scheme to Delay Revision.

It is congress and congress only, aided by the president, that has power to revise the tariff. It should not and cannot, as I believe, shift its work to any commission. A congress that wants the tariff revised downward will proceed at once to lower duties. A congress that is controlled by stand patters and tariff beneficiaries and that is yet compelled to do something to quiet the people will be likely to appoint a commission to make excursions to foreign countries, to hold hearings and finally to make long winded and meaningless reports. While this commission will be slowly prosecuting its investigation the tariff trusts will continue to plunder the helpless consumers and will raise a campaign fund that will almost insure the re-election of stand patters and the defeat of revisionists. Instead of this programme of delay I would have a president who would call an extra session of congress to revise the tariff immediately and radically.—Ex-Governor William L. Douglas.

The "Friends" Are There Now.

The advocates of high protection insist that the tariff must be revised by "its friends." It would seem that the present congress contains as many friends of the tariff as are likely to be assembled there in the near future. Why not revise it now?

COLLECTING EYE STONES.

Most of the Genuine Specimens Found in the Province of Astrakhan.

The collection of eye stones is a dying industry. In New York the principal sources of supply are sailors who touch the Baltic Sea, and, as might be imagined, the supply is precarious.

Eye stones are analogous in some respects to bezoars, as they are a concentration found in the stomach of the European crawfish. Most of the genuine eye stones, crab's eyes, crabstones or lapilli calcareum, are procured in the province of Astrakhan in European Russia.

There appears to be some confusion regarding the nature of the eye stone, for some authorities speak of it as a concentration in the stomach of a certain crab and others as of a peculiar shell formation which is separated from the crab at the time it sheds its shell.

The so-called crab's eyes are found fully developed at the end of the summer, as the crabs begin to shed their shells. It is noted that these concentrations are absorbed into the stomach of the crab during the shedding season and there pulverized and absorbed, the dissolved calcareous substance being used, it is supposed, for the formation of a new shell. When these calcareous shells are not normally developed and absorbed it is observed that the shedding process is interrupted and the crab dies an early death.

A Unique Historical Chair.

A most unique, historical chair is in the Independence hall at Philadelphia, Pa. It was manufactured in 1838 by William Snider by order of the commissioners of Kensington. The chair is composed of the following rare relics:

1st. A portion of Christopher Columbus' house which was built near the city of San Domingo in the year 1499. This was the first house built in America by European hands.

2d. A portion of the great elm tree under which the treaty between William Penn and the Indians was formed. The Penn treaty was to continue unbroken "while the rivers and creeks ran, and while the sun, moon and stars endured."

3d. A portion of oak joint taken from a house which was once the home of William Penn.

4th. A portion of the cane taken from the seat of a chair once owned by William Penn.

5th. A portion of the last of a number of walnut trees which graced the yard about the old state house. The last of these trees was cut down in 1818.

6th. A lock of hair taken from the head of Chief Justice Marshall, placed in the center of the chair and protected by a glass cover.

7th. A portion of the U. S. frigate "Constitution."

8th. A portion of the great ship "Pennsylvania" which was built in Philadelphia and launched in the year 1827.

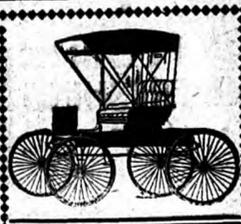

9th. The thirteen stars on the chair represent the thirteen original states and are made from the above listed relics.

Harrison Made Good His Promise.

Dr. J. N. McCormack of Bowling Green, Ky., in conversation with Drs. Grayson Potter and other physicians told a little story of the late General Benjamin Harrison. "During the civil war," said the doctor, "Colonel Harrison—for he was then Colonel—was for a time in command at Bowling Green. Many soldiers were sick, and he appropriated the hotel of the place, the Mitchell House, for use as a hospital. Mr. Mitchell murmured somewhat, but had to give way to military necessity, Colonel Harrison assuring him that he should be paid for the use of the house, even though Harrison should have to pay out of his own pocket. The war ended and the years went on. Mr. Mitchell was well to do and presented no claim. Finally, when Harrison became President of the United States, Mr. Mitchell concluded to send his bill directly to the President. He did so, and President Harrison sent him his check for the money."

Blowing Well of Texas.

There is a blowing well near Raymondville, Texas County, Mo. This well, which is on a hill, was drilled in 1899 to a depth of 187 feet. Soft water was struck at the bottom and rose seven feet in the well. In a dry time especially in the winter, the well becomes dry. In drilling it a cave three feet high was struck at a depth of 160 feet. When the well is dry, if there is a long prevailing wind from the north, a curre of air rushes from the pipe strong enough to blow the cap from the tub.

STREET PAVING. In order that the people may be able to have some idea of the cost of our streets under the present system of using shells, and thus form some estimate as to the traffic and necessities of these streets, the Council might give out the figures of how much has been expended for shells for a reasonable period of years—say for the past five years—and an estimate as far as possible as to what per cent went on the various streets, especially those it is intended to pave.

From the arguments heard from some of those advocating the use of Bitulithic on our streets, it would be supposed that the first cost to be considered was only what the city intend to pay—one half of the actual cost. This is not the right basis to figure the economic value of these streets upon. Suppose for instance the building of a Bitulithic street cost the city $30,000 and the abutting property owners $30,000, then the basis to take would not be the $30,000, that the city would be out, but the $60,000 that both city and property owners would have to pay.

While the property owners should bear a portion of the cost in the improving of our streets, yet that portion should not be thrown away in the consideration of the question. If the city had to pay the entire cost would the Council then consider this as the most economic street that could be put down? That is the question and unless they would so consider it, under these circumstances then they have no right to so consider it under the present conditions. To look upon the money that has to be paid by the abutting property owners as a donation, with which the city has nothing further to do, and which need not for a moment enter into their calculation in estimating the cost to the city, is unfair, unjust and wrong in principle.

Has the City Council considered as though they had all of it to pay in coming to their conclusion that it is cheaper and more economic to use Bitulithic on these streets, or have they been figuring on half cost? On the basis proposed the $50,000 bond issue means an expenditure of $100,000 the interest on this sum alone at four and one half cents $4500 a year. This goes to improve only a small part of the total streets of our city; to say nothing at all about the cost of maintenance, this sum is of itself equal to the amount claimed to be spent under present conditions. And how about other streets of the town that have been sharing in the yearly appropriation.

For people who are run down and nervous, who suffer from indigestion or dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, or torpid liver, coated tongue with bitter taste in the morning and poor appetite, it becomes necessary to turn to some tonic or strengthener which will assist Nature and help them to get on their feet and put the body into proper condition. It is becoming more and more apparent that Nature's most valuable health-giving agent are to be found in forest plants and roots. Nearly forty years ago Dr. E. V. Pierce, now consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., discovered that by scientifically extracting and combining certain medicinal principles from native roots, taken from our American forests, he could produce a medicine which was marvellously efficient in curing cases of blood disorder and liver and stomach trouble as well as many other chronic, or lingering ailments. This concentrated extract of Nature's vitality is named "Golden Medical Discovery." It purifies the blood by getting the stomach and liver into healthy condition thereby helping the digestion and assimilation of food which feeds the blood. Thereby it cures weak stomach, indigestion, torpid liver or biliousness, and kindred derangements.

The Atlantic and the Seaside Hotel are under new management which have the interest of Ocean City at heart. Besides the hotels the Ocean City Beach Company owns a large number of buildings for sea shore homes. Many well known people from large cities and nearby towns are booked at the Atlantic City hotel, where every arrangement is made for the comfort of guests. A popular place is the dining room where the orchestra plays beautiful music. After dinner in the evening dancing is indulged in the parlors or one takes a stroll on the board walk or beach. MARDELA.

Mr. Morris B. Stawson, son of the late Prof. M. B. Stawson, Mr. Paul H. Smith, Mr. John Bell, Mr. James H. Smith, Mr. James Bachelor and Misses Ethel and May Morrison, of Baltimore, are spending a few days at Mardele Springs, as guests of Capt. Wm. G. Majors.

The truckers are now busy shipping potatoes and blackberries. The excessively dry weather is cutting some of their crops short. The corn is making fine growth. The great heat makes it very hard on those compelled to be out in the sun. The wheat harvesting is about over.

Rev. B. G. Parker, our fellow citizen, was last week elected for the second time, Moderator of the Eastern District Association of Baptist Churches. The sessions were held in the Marion Church. It was thought to be the largest and best gathering for years. On the last night of the meeting there were several professions of faith. The reports from the churches showed a large increase in membership during the year. The Baptist work was never in a more prosperous condition on the Eastern Shore than at present. While the Baptists number over five million in the United States, yet this section is the weakest field.

Last Sunday the Knights of Pythias turned out in large numbers to worship with the Branch Hill Baptist Church. Pastor Parker gave them a special sermon. The weather was terrifically hot, but the large congregation was patient to the close of the services.

At the Athol Baptist Church, on Sunday night, some candidates were received for baptism. There has been a steady growth in this church ever since its organization.

The wedding bells have been ringing quite frequently in these parts of late. Mr. Guy Jackson and wife have returned from their bridal trip. Guy is one of our enterprising young men. His bride was Miss Edna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bacon. Mr. Jackson's new house is nearing completion.

Miss Edith Phillips has so far improved as to be able to take a ride through town one day this week. She has had a long and tedious spell of sickness, and we are all glad to see her out again. As she rode through the streets of our town she saw many improvements that have been made since she has been confined to the house.

The new road flurry has caused considerable talk, but we have not taken much hand in the matter as yet. We feel confident that the good sense of those in charge of it can be depended upon to put it straight through from Cambridge, Vienna and Mardele Springs, and from here to Salisbury.

Of course Sharptown should have a road but not this road. The County owes it to Sharptown to give it a good road, but this contemplated road is no back County road, it is a State road. The line of advance should not follow any craxy patched quilt arrangement, as it would have to shod it swing around to Sharptown. We raise our voices in favor of Sharptown having a good road, and will help her citizens in getting just such a road, but the purpose of this fund is not to build County roads, if we rightly understand the question. It is to be a main thoroughfare into which all the County roads are to enter. Our slogan is "The main line" and not a side track. And as for the cost of making a road over the caseway, it is not the bugaboo that it is represented as being. The roadway is already there and it will cost no more per mile to build the road there than anywhere else on the line. A perfectly reliable party is now ready to take the contract to build that part of the road for the same price per mile that it will cost to build the rest of the road. He will give his bond to do so.

Goodman's Underselling Store

Salisbury's New Store,

But The Oldest In Experience, When It Comes To Selling Goods At Rock Bottom Prices.

Saturday, June 20th, was a holiday long to be remembered. At last the people are appreciating that there is a whole lot of satisfaction when one can buy highest quality merchandise at the Lowest Prices, which was proven at our store Saturday, June 20. "What's going on here?" "Look how crowded it is!" "Looks like a National Convention." These were some of the remarks heard on all sides. No wonder at the remarks. It was just as we expected.

We are Selling Goods at Prices That Defy Competition!

Why shouldn't we, with the facilities at our finger tips? We control a number of stores on the Peninsula. We have an interest in a large wholesale house in New York. So you will understand that our buying is so enormous that manufacturers have to figure at a low margin to sell and hold our trade. Hence the great reductions which means money in your pocket. We don't ask you to take our word for it. We know our competitors will contradict our statement and tell you when a merchant sells merchandise at unbelievable prices he is cheating.

They've Got to do it in Order to Explain The Extortionate Prices

they ask. You don't know us and you don't trust us in regards to our honesty and integrity. We don't blame you. But you have ability and plain common sense, and we say if you can undertake the responsibility of judging a human being, why should you not be able to use that common sense of yours and know for yourself whether you get what we claim or not.

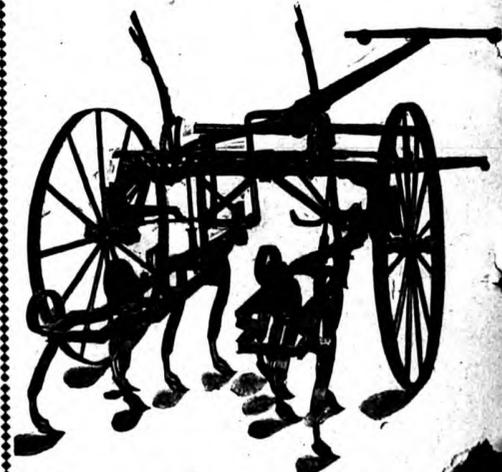

We Are Here To Stay! Let Us Sell One Misrepresented Article, And How Long Would It Take To Find It Out?

As man to man, we ask you would it pay us to deal with you on any other lines but honest business principles? Come in our store. Don't buy, but give us a thorough inspection, then LET US HEAR YOUR VERDICT.
