

FOR WOMEN AND WOMEN ONLY

Much That Every Woman Desires to Know About Sanative, Antiseptic Cleansing and the Care of the Skin, Scalp, Hair, and Hands.

WHAT CUTICURA DOES FOR WOMEN

Too much stress cannot be placed on the great value of Cuticura Soap, Cuticure, and Pills in the antiseptic cleansing of the mucous surfaces, and of the blood and circulating fluids, thus affording pure, sweet, and economical local and constitutional treatment for weakening ulcerations, inflammations, itching, irritations, relaxations, displacements, pains, and irregularities peculiar to females. Hence the Cuticura remedies have a wonderful influence in restoring health, strength, and beauty to weary women, who have been prematurely aged and invalidated by these distressing ailments, as well as such sympathetic afflictions as anemia, chlorosis, hysteria, and nervousness.

TORTURING HUMOR

Cared by Cuticura. "I suffered five years with a terrible itching eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success. Last my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first application of Cuticura Ointment, and was soon entirely well. Mrs. A. Eason, Bellefonte, Pa.

No small fibers adorn the pen, but has proven most perfect cleaner. Some of us un-believers might try it and report.

The Bible And Its Teachings.

(By Rev. H. G. England.) (Continued From Last Week.)

In Heb. 7: 12 we read, "For the priesthood being changed there is made of necessity a change also of the law." St. Paul's Second Epistle to the Corinthians, Chap. 18: 19-20 verses prove that the Christian ministry is a priesthood: "God gave unto us the ministry of reconciliation, to wit, that God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, not reckoning unto them their trespasses and having committed unto us the word of reconciliation. We are ambassadors, therefore on behalf of Christ, as though God were entreating by us, we beseech you on behalf of Christ, be ye reconciled to God."

"Reconciliation" is a rigidly ascetical term suggestive of sacerdotal functions and ceremonial acts. In I Cor. 11: 34; "Take, eat, this is my body, which is for you. This cup is the New Testament in my blood, this do ye (offer). For as often as ye eat this bread, drink this cup, ye do show forth the Lord's death till He come." This is a Memorial of the True Sacrifice and by the ministry of reconciliation is a sacrificial act.

A priest is a person authorized by God to act as His agent in bringing peace and salvation to man in the way He ordained. Some Christians have maintained that the word priest (Ierens) is not used in the New Testament as applied to the Christian ministry. The word "Ierens" applies to a bloody sacrifice, while the Greek word "presbuteros" refers to a unbloody sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving. It is not a question so much of words as of things. The thing is found in the New Testament. The powers of a priest hood were given to the Christian ministry; baptize in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Consecrate the bread and wine as emblems and symbols of the Lord's Body and Blood; remit and retain sins, St. Matt. 18: 18; St. John 20: 23. Such authority as this is nowhere given the Jewish ministry in the Old Testament. They are to act as the Ambassador of the King of Heaven, the Supreme Ruler of the Universe. The promise is made by the Saviour that the gates of hell shall never prevail against the Apostolic Church and ministry (St. Matt. 16: 18). All through the writings of the New Testament only is positively enjoyed as a law of God. I Cor. 10: 18 "All speak same thing, no division among you." Rom. 16: 17; "Mark them, cause divisions, avoid them." I Cor. 11: 18; 26; "God hath tempered the Body together, that there should be no schism in the Body."

In the 17th Chap. of Gospel according to St. John our Lord repeatedly prays for the unity of His Church and disciples. All divisions in the Christian Church today in a large measure are due to the worldly spirit of pride and ambition of the Bishop of the Church in Rome in usurping authority over his brother bishops and calling himself Pope. The early Catholic Church had no Pope, because all the Apostles were equal. There is no indication in the New Testament that St. Peter ever heard the yarn of his being a Pope. St. Ignatius, the disciple of St. Polycarp who was trained by St. John, is the first Bishop who speaks of the Kingdom of God as the Catholic Church, doubtless it was called that from the beginning. The Roman Empire controlled the whole world, the Emperor lived at Rome and this naturally gave the Bishops their prominence. The first experience in early history when the Bishop of Rome claims universal authority was in 688 A. D. The first writings after the Apostles still speak of three orders, Bishops, Presbyters and Deacons, and there is no record of any Church in the world without these three orders for over 1500 years. The term Bishop is sometimes used in the New Testament to refer to the second order, presbyters, but some of the early writers refer to it being used exclusively for the first order (Apostles) in order to especially honor the original twelve. Every branch of the Catholic Church in the world today, Greek Roman and Anglican has always had the threefold ministry, Bishops, Priests and Deacons. The Bishops in the five largest cities in the Roman Empire, Rome, Constantinople, Alexandria, Antioch and Jerusalem, were given supervisory powers over certain sections by the early Councils, and each of these bishops was called Patriarch. Among these the primacy of honor was granted the Patriarch of Rome because the Emperor lived there. Circumstances made it comparatively easy for the Bishop at Rome to usurp authority over his brother Bishops and claim to rule by Divine right. The Greek Catholic Church however, which is in Russia, Palestine, Syria and Greece never recognized his usurpation and do not today. There have been six General Councils universally acknowledged by every branch of the Catholic Church, Nice 325, A. D. Constantinople 381 A. D., Ephesus 431 A. D., Chalcedon 451 A. D., Constantinople 553 A. D., Constantinople 680 A. D. At the time of the Reformation in 1535-35 A. D., in Germany, England, Switzerland and other countries there was probably some excuse for men organizing divisions and schisms from the Catholic Church, contrary to the positive teaching of the Bible, but there is no excuse for continuing those schisms today when the original Priest hood and pure Catholic Faith can be obtained. In Germany and Switzerland the old Catholic Church refused to cast off the Roman usurpation and error, but in England owing to a quarrel with the King, (Henry VIII) had with the Bishop of Rome, the Catholic Church of England in convocation re-asserted her original independence of the usurping bishop and cast off all Roman errors retaining the original Catholic Faith. The Church of England did not separate from the Roman Catholic Church but arose in her right and cast off the foreign yoke. Out of 9400 Bishops, Priests and Deacons only 189 refused to accept the Reformation. There was no church re-organized by the bishop of Rome in England for 80 years after the Reformation. In 1570 A. D. Pius V called upon all the faithful to leave the old Catholic church of the land and organize in Italian schism. The Romanists had no Bishops in England however until A. D. 1685. After the Reformation in 1584, the Church of England was again brought under the authority of Rome in 1588 when Queen Mary fled a few years. When Queen Elizabeth ascended the throne, the Catholic church of England again cast off the Roman usurpation for good and all. A few of the bishops were unlawfully forced out of their dioceses by Queen Elizabeth. These bishops with others consecrated Archbishop Parker thus continuing the unbroken ministry from the first Apostles. The Church of England was brought to America before the Revolutionary War. After the independence was obtained the name of the Church of England was changed to Protestant Episcopal. Protestant because she protested inside of the Catholic Church against all error from whatever quarter and Episcopal because the government of the Catholic church has always been by Bishops.

There was great confusion on board the Yarmouth from this sudden and unexpected discharge, which, delivered at short range, had done no little execution on the crowded ship; but the officers rallied their men speedily with cool words of encouragement.

"Steady, men, steady!"
"Give it back to them!"
"Look sharp now!"
"Aim! Fire!"

The forty odd heavy guns roared out in answer to the determined attack. The effect of such a broadside at close range would have been frightful had not the Randolph drawn so far ahead and her course been so changed that a large part of it passed harmlessly astern of her. One gun, however, found its target, and that was one aimed and fired by the hand of Lord Desborough himself. A heavy shot, a thirty-two from one of the massive lower deck guns of the Yarmouth, which the pleasant weather permitted them to use effectively, came through one of the after gun ports of the Randolph and swept away the line of men on the port side of the gun. Some of the other shot did slight damage also among the spars and gear, and several of the crew were killed or wounded in different parts of the ship; but the Randolph was practically unharmed and standing boldly down to cross the stern of the Yarmouth to make her.

But the English captain was a seaman, every inch of him, and his ship could not have been better handled. Divining his bold little antagonist's purpose, the Yarmouth's helm was put at once, and in the smoke she fell off and came before the wind almost as rapidly as did the Randolph, her promptness frustrating the endeavor, as Seymour was only able to make an ineffectual effort to rake her as she flew round on her heels. The starboard battery of the Yarmouth had been manned as she fell off, and the port battery of the Randolph was rapidly reloaded again. The maneuver had given the Englishmen the weather gage once more, the two ships now having the wind on the port quarter.

The two batteries were discharged simultaneously, and now began a running fight of near an hour's duration. The guns were served on the Randolph with the desperate rapidity of men who, awfully pressed for time, had abandoned hope and only fought to cripple and delay before they were silenced; those on the Yarmouth, on the contrary, were fired with much more deliberation and did dreadful execution. The different guns were disabled on the Randolph by heavy shot; adjacent ports were knocked into one, the sides shattered, boats smashed, rails knocked to pieces, all of the weather shrouds cut, the mizzen mast carried away under the top, and the wreck fell into the sea—fortunately in the lee side, the little body of men in the top decks to a sudden death with the rest.

The decks were slippery with blood and plowed with plunging shot, which the superior height of the Yarmouth permitted to be fired with depressed guns from an elevation. Solid shot from the heavy main deck batteries swept through and through the devoted frigate; half the Randolph's guns were useless because of the lack of men to serve them; the cockpit overflowed with the wounded; the surgeon and his mates, covered with blood, worked like butchers in the steerage and finally in the ward room; dead and dying men lay where they fell; there were no hands to spare to take them below, no place in which they could lie with safety, no immunity from the searching hail which drove through every part of the doomed ship. Still the men, cheered and encouraged by their officers, stood to their guns and fought on. Presently the fore-topmast went by the board also as the long moments dragged along. Seymour was now lying on the quarter deck, a bullet having broken his leg, another having made a deep wound in his arm. He lay on his back, unable to move, his hands were useless, and his eyes were closed. The midshipmen were kneeling by his side, applying such makeshift bandages as they might be to the two bleeding wounds. There had been some talk of leaving the scene under Seymour's direction. The young man, all his nervousness gone, was most ably seconding his dauntless captain.

The two ships were covered with smoke. It was impossible to tell on one what was happening on the other, but the steady persistence with which the Randolph clung to her big enemy had its effect on the Yarmouth also, and the well delivered fire did not allow that vessel any immunity. In fact, while nothing like that on the frigate, the damage was so great and so many men had fallen that Captain Vincent determined to end the conflict at once by boarding the frigate. The necessary orders were given, and a strong party of boarders was called away and mustered on the forecastle, headed by Beauchamp and Hollins.

Taking advantage of the smoke and of the weather gage, the Yarmouth was suddenly headed for the Randolph. As the enormous bows of the line of battle ship came slowly showing out of the smoke, towering above them, covered with men, cutlass or boarding pike in hand, Seymour discerned at once the purpose of the maneuver. Raising himself upon his elbow to better direct the movement—

"All hands to the fore!" he shouted, "Give it back to them!"

This was an unusual command, as it completely deprived the guns of their crews, but he rightly judged that it would take all the men they could muster to repel the coming attack, and none but the main deck guns of the Yarmouth would or could be fired, for fear of hitting their own men in the melee on the deck. The Randolph was a wreck below at best, but while anything held together above her plank shears she would be fought. The men had reached that desperate condition when they ceased to think of odds, and like maddened beasts fought and raved and swore in the frenzy of the combat. The thrice-dedicated crew sprang aft, rallying in the gangway to meet the shock, Nason at their head, followed close by old Bentley, still unwounded. As the bow of the Yarmouth struck the Randolph with a crash, one or two wounded men, unable to take part in repelling the boarders, but still able to move, who had remained beside the guns, exerted the remaining strength they possessed to discharge such of the pieces as bore, in long raking shots, through the bow of the liner; it was the last sound from their hot muzzles.

The Yarmouth struck the Randolph just forward of the mainmast. The men, swarming in dense masses on the rail and hanging over the bowsprit ready to leap, dropped on her deck at once with loud cheers. A sharp volley from the few marines left on the frigate checked them for a moment, but they gathered themselves together at once and, gallantly led, sprang aft, handling their pistols and pikes and waving their cutlasses. Nason was shot in a moment by Hollins' pistol, Beauchamp was cut in two by a tremendous sweep of the arm of the mighty Bentley, and the combat became at once general. Slowly, but surely, the Americans were pressed back, the gangways were cleared, the quarter-deck was gained. One by one the brave defenders had fallen. The battle was about over when Seymour noticed a man running out in the foreyard of the Yarmouth with a hand grenade. He raised his pistol and fired. The man fell, but another resolutely started to follow him.

Bentley and a few other men and one or two officers and a midshipman were all who were able to bear arms now.

"Good-bye, Seymour!" cried Bentley, waving his hand and setting his back against the rail nearest to the Yarmouth, which had slowly swung parallel to the Randolph and had been lashed there. The old man was covered with blood from two or three wounds, but still undaunted. Two or three men made a rush at him, but he held them at bay, no man caring to come within sweep of that mighty arm which had already done so much, when a bullet from above struck him, and he fell over backward on the rail mortally wounded.

Seymour raised his remaining pistol and fired it at the second man, who had nearly reached the foreyard arm. Less successful this time, he missed the man, who threw his grenade down the hatchway. Seymour fainted from loss of blood.

"Back, men!" Back to the ship, all you Yarmouths!" cried Captain Vincent as he saw the lighted grenade, which exploded and ignited a little heap of cartridges left by a dead powder boy before the magazine. Alas! There was no one there to check or stop the flames. The English sailors sprang back and up the sides and through the ports of their ship with frantic haste. The lashings were being rapidly cut by them and the braces handled.

"Come aboard, men, while you can!" cried Captain Vincent to the Americans. "Your ship's a fire! You can do no more; you'll blow up in a moment!" The little handful of Americans were left alone on their ship. The only officer still standing lifted his sword and shook it impatiently at the Yarmouth in reply; the rest did not stir. The smoke of battle had now settled away, and the whole ghastly scene was revealed. A woman's cry rang out fraught with agony, "Seymour, Seymour!" and again was her cry unheeded; her lover could not hear. She cried again, and then, with a frightful roar and crash, the Randolph blew up.

"A tall coming down fast—the little brig, sir," reported the officer of the deck to Captain Vincent. "Shall we come about and give him a broadside?"
"No, no; we dare not handle the braces yet—not until the gear and spars have been well overhauled."
"Shall we use the stern chasers then, sir?"
The Yarmouth had left the scene of the explosion some distance away by this time, but she was still within easy gunshot. Captain Vincent earnestly examined the brig. As he looked she came up to the wind, hove to, and dropped a boat in the water. There was a bit of spar still floating there. The captain saw that three or four men were clinging to it.

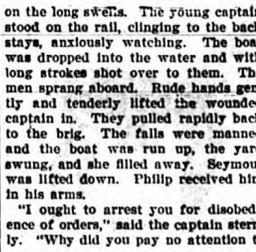

"No; she's on an errand of mercy. There are men in the water on that topmast there. Let her go free," he said generously. "We've done enough today to satisfy any reasonable man."
The colonel grasped his hand warmly and thanked him. The little brig picked up her boat, swung her main yard and filled away again on the port tack in the wake of the rest of the little squadron, now far ahead. Then, understanding the forbearance of the big ship, she fired a gun to leeward and dipped her ensign in salute.

The force of the explosion had thrown Seymour from his advantageous position far out into the water, and away from the sinking ship. The contact with cold water recalled him to his senses at once, and, with the natural instinct of man for life, he struck out as well as he might, considering his broken leg and wounded arm and weakened state. There was a piece of a mast with the top still on it floating near by. He struggled gallantly to make it. "Twas no use; he could do no more; closing his eyes, he sank down in the dark water. But help was near. A hand grasped him by his long hair and drew him up. One of his men, unwounded fortunately, had saved him. The two men presently reached the bit of wreck. The sailor scrambled up on it and by a great effort drew his captain by his side. Two more men swam over desperately and finally joined the little group. They clung there helpless, hopeless, despairing, fascinated, watching the remains of the Randolph disappear, marking a few feeble swimmers here and there struggling till all was still. Then they turned their eyes upon their late antagonist, running away before the wind in flames. They saw her fight them down successfully. Appalled, none spoke. Presently one of the seamen glanced the other way and saw the little brig swiftly bearing down upon them.

"Get it back to them!" Here's the brig, the far American! We shall be saved—saved!"
The brig was huddled smartly. She came to the wind, backed the main-top-sail and lay gently tossing to and fro on the long swells. The young captain stood on the rail, clinging to the back stays, anxiously watching. The boat was dropped into the water and with long strokes shot over to them. The men sprang aboard. Rude hands gently and tenderly lifted the wounded captain in. They pulled rapidly back to the brig. The falls were manned and the boat was run up, the yard swung, and she filled away. Seymour was lifted down. Philip received him in his arms.

"I ought to arrest you for disobedience of orders," said the captain sternly. "Why did you pay no attention to my signals? You have jeopardized the brig. You ship can blow you out of the water; you are quite within range."

But they soon saw that no motion was made by the ship, and in accordance with Seymour's orders the gun was fired and the colors dipped—a salute which the ship promptly returned.
"I ought to put you under arrest, Philip," again said Seymour faintly, while he was lying in the tiny cabin, having his wounds dressed, "but I will not. 'Twas gallantly done, but obey orders first hereafter—'tis the first principle of action on the sea." That was rather cool comfort for the young officer, considering that his somewhat reckless action had just saved Seymour's life. He made brief reply, however, and then resumed his station on the deck of his little vessel, which was rapidly overhauling the rest of the fleet. As soon as the night fell, the wind permitting, they were by Seymour's direction headed for the harbor of Charleston once more.

Reindeer in Alaska.

Uncle Sam has found a good way of sustaining life among the Alaskan Eskimos. About $1.25 a year per head pays the bills, the "value received" consisting of reindeer imported from Siberia, which furnish the natives with food, clothing, means of transportation and other necessities of life. At the present rate of increase, even if no more are imported, there will be at least 1,000,000 reindeer in Alaska in less than twenty-five years. It will not be at all surprising, in the opinion of some, if the reindeer industry should grow to be one of considerable commercial importance to the United States. It has even been estimated that in thirty-five years Alaska may be in a position to sell annually 500,000 to 1,000,000 reindeer carcasses, besides furnishing several thousand tons of hams and tongues. Nor may it be a segment of the brain to predict that at no very distant day trains from arctic and subarctic Alaska will roll into Seattle laden with bargains of this very palatable food.

GIVES MARRIAGE RULES

Mrs. Love's Advice for Managing a Husband.

LOVE AND REASON EQUAL

Beautiful Society Woman, Who Married Well-Known Broker and Club Man "To Reform Him" Points a Striking Lesson for Wives.—Love Should Not Rule Reason.

Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Sidney C. Love, a beautiful society woman, who married a well-known broker and clubman several years ago "to reform him," got a divorce recently and $50,000.

Using her own stormy matrimonial experiences as the basis for the text of her sermon, Mrs. Love points a striking lesson for wives. She says: "No woman should ever depend upon her husband for happiness. To do so is the saddest folly, and must result in heartache and disillusionment. Every woman should have a life apart from her husband. And don't marry a man to reform him."

This is Mrs. Love's explanation of the numerous mistakes marriages whose aftermath is the divorce certificate.

"The whole trouble is that women allow their hearts to rule their heads. No matter how selfish or how dissipated a sultor may be, if a girl loves him she will plunge into matrimony and close her eyes to possible results."
"You do not favor, then, the plan of marrying a man to reform him?" she was asked.

"By no means. I believe the idea to be fatal to happiness, as a rule."
"Of course it depends on the man and it depends also on the woman. There are some women who are born missionaries, and who can accomplish such a revolution in the men they love. But these women are rare, indeed—and rarer yet the men who are susceptible to reform."

"Don't you think love will accomplish wonders in the majority of cases?"
"Most assuredly, but I do not at all favor the plan of a woman's making herself a living sacrifice to help the man she calls husband. Let her do her part. Let her keep sweet and true and lovable, but beyond a certain point she should not venture, lest she merge her own individuality too wholly in her husband's, and let her impose upon her willingness to sacrifice herself."

"By what do you think a woman should be guided in selecting a husband?"
"I think she should be guided by love first, but she should listen to reason when a man's faults stare her in the face. She should know what qualities to avoid."

"What do you consider are the traits to be avoided first?"
"Well, a man with an ungovernable temper should certainly not be encouraged. No matter how well he thinks he loves a woman, there will be times when even his love will not serve to control his violent temper, and he will say and do things she can never forget."

"What other qualities are distinctly undesirable?"
"Drinking to excess is a habit which is sure to cause wretchedness if a girl persists in marrying the man who indulges in it. I advise all women to avoid men of this sort."

The tragedy of the entire situation is that it is impossible for a woman to know what a man's character truly is until she has lived with him as his wife.

"By some peculiar process of spiritual chemistry a horde of utterly unsuspected qualities come to the surface under the influence of the married state. She finds that she has married an entirely different being than she had supposed."

"Then what is the solution of the problem? How are the numerous disillusioned wives to face it?"
"The only remedy I can suggest is for all wives to have some vocation, some interest apart from their husbands, so they will not find it necessary to depend on them for happiness. The sooner women resign themselves to this attitude the better for them, I think."

"Happiness is within our own selves after all. We can live and be contented, despite heartache, humiliation and despair. A busy life, brimful of large interests and opportunities to help others, is a wonderful panacea for disillusionment and sorrow."

Queue Not All-Important.

Washington.—Discussing the question of the importance of the "queue" in the economies of China, Sir Chen Tung Liang-Cheng, Chinese Minister, has this to say:
"There is a great deal of misapprehension among Western people regarding the Chinaman's queue. Stories have circulated for years that the loss of the queue meant ostracism to a Chinaman in his own country and eternal perdition hereafter. That is not true."

"There is nothing in the Chinese religion nor morals, nor in the requirements of the Government, affecting the habit of queue wearing. It is entirely a matter of individual custom and preference. The Chinese wear queues because of centuries of habit. Many Chinese, even in China, have cut off their queues without exciting remark."
"In Mexico the Chinese, as a rule, are discarding their Oriental habits and costumes and intermarrying with the Mexicans. They cut off their queues, become Mexican citizens and are fast becoming important factors in the development of that country. The Chinese Government has no objection whatever to this, and, in fact, takes pride in seeing its people intermingle with those of other countries. The prejudices of old times are fast wearing away."

Preparation.

It may appear to you that all the good jobs are taken, but by the time you are capable of filling one it will be vacant.—Atchison Globe.

Hard Hearted Alnsworth.

When General Alnsworth, chief of the record and pension office at Washington, ordered that all his clerks must remain at their desks until 4 o'clock, there was much rebellion, and the injured feelings of the women clerks found vent in a protest to the general. The spokeswoman who went to him pointed out that if all the clerks went out together the women would be jostled in the corridors by the men who were hurrying to get away. She suggested that it would be a graceful act on his part to restore to the women clerks the old privilege of going home half an hour before the closing time. "Madam, I had not considered it," said Alnsworth, "but what you say is very true. I suggest, however, that you and the other ladies who do not want to be jostled remain in your offices until one minute past 4. I will guarantee that at that hour you will not be jostled in the corridors by anything more tangible than ghosts."

The New South More "American."

The beautiful old civilization has vanished, and in its stead is rising up the new civilization, with its promise of a greater, nobler beauty. If the former charm is lost, a truer loveliness is being found, for the people of the south, women as well as men, are slowly gaining in public spirit and extending their love and their loyalty beyond one native state to the whole United States. They are becoming not less southern, but more American. Such a rose leafy charm were little to relinquish for so great a good as this!—Miss McCracken's "Women of America."

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most distressing because so deep-seated and so insidious. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys are allowed to drain the vitality of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Impoverished Soil

Impoverished soil, like impoverished blood, needs a proper fertilizer. A chemist by analyzing the soil can tell you what fertilizer to use for different products.

If your blood is impoverished your doctor will tell you what you need to fertilize it and give it the rich, red corpuscles that are lacking in it. It may be you need a tonic, but more likely you need a concentrated fat food, and fat is the element lacking in your system.

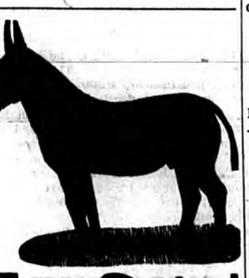

There is no fat food that is so easily digested and assimilated as

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil

It will build and strengthen the body when milk and cream fail to do it. Scott's Emulsion is always the same; always palatable and always beneficial where the body is wasting from any cause, either in children or adults.

We will send you a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy. SCOTT & BOWNE CHEMISTS 409 Pearl St., New York 50c. and $1.00. All Druggists.

According to one of the very latest authorities the old traditional theory in reference to the ground hog is all false. Mr. Alfred H. Butter, of Henswood writes that he personally saw one of these weather wise animals a few days back emerge from his den on a south hillside at Henswood and move to his feeding ground. Mr. But-ter says also that the little animal was fat and plump and looks as if he had gotten and thrived upon his three meals a day all winter. If such are the facts Mr. Ground hog is non est.

Good authority has it that the steamers Queen Anne, Queen Caroline and Endeavor, which are owned by the Queen Anne's Ferry and Equipment Company, are now in the market. The Queen Anne's Railroad, which was bought and consolidated with the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railroad, did not carry with it these steamers, which are operated with the Queen Anne's system. The Ferry and Equipment Company is entirely dis-tinct from the railroad company, and the steamers were only leased to the Queen Anne's Railroad Company. Captain Willard Thomson, vice presi-dent of the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company, and which now operates the Queen Anne's road, states that his company has no use for the three steamers, as they have all of the floating equipment they need. It is proposed to take two of the four Chester River steamers and use them for ferry purposes between Love Point, Queenstown and Baltimore.

ARE HANGING BY?

Many people owe their present good health to the fact that they consulted Dr. Pierce by letter, giving him all possible information about their condition, symptoms, etc., and received in return a good medical advice which cost them nothing. Write Dr. R. C. DeWitt, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce by no means confines himself to prescribing his well-known medicines. He tells you in the most common-sense way what ails you, what you ought to do, what line of treatment should be followed out in your particular case, and if your case does not indicate the need for his proprietary medicine, he will advise you plainly and frankly what you need, and the best possible method of improving your health. Dr. Pierce treats many chronic cases at a distance, through the mail and all you have to do is to write him your symptoms.

Mrs. John Burge, of Mohr, West Va., writes: "When I began taking your medicine I was suffering from female weakness which had run on for five years. Took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets and have been entirely cured. Before beginning taking your medicine I seemed to me I would never see another well day, but since then have enjoyed the best of health. I have never since taken one of your 'Favorite Prescription' before confinement and get along the best I ever did at such a time, and our baby is the healthiest one of them all. I think your medicine are the best in the world."

Talmage Sermon
By Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 26.—In this sermon the preacher gives a vivid description of the "great awakening" which is just now stirring the Pacific coast, contrasting it with other famous revivals and pointing out the lesson it teaches to the nation. The text is Revelation xiv, 15, "The time has come for thee to reap."

"Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision," rescued by surrendering their hearts to Christ. Oh, what glorious news it is that reaches us from all lands telling of old-fashioned revivals! As in bygone days, God is visiting his people. On every hand the Holy Spirit is moving on the dull and lifeless churches, rousing, apathetic Christians and bringing thousands of sinners to the foot of the cross. Australia has her Pentecosts, New Zealand her Pentecosts, England her Pentecosts, rock-ribbed Scotland her Pentecosts. Christ-mas Evans' beloved Welsh hills have witnessed such an outpouring of the Holy Spirit as no living man has ever seen before. Rough miners and cultured scholars, old men and children, have been stirred by a mysterious power and have turned to the Lord.

Our own dear land is sharing in the blessing. Great tidal waves of revival power have rolled up from Georgia. Great tidal waves of revival power have rolled forth from Pennsylvania and New York and Colorado. Great tidal waves of revival power are now rolling forth from California to the far east. Conquering revivalists everywhere. God has harnessed to his gospel chariots of revival fire an Evan Roberts, a Chapman, an Ostrom, a Torrey, a Biederwolf and a Shaeffer, the soul-winner of little children, and scores of other mighty gospel chargers in this modern work of grace. Truly God has poured out his Spirit upon all flesh. Our sons and our daughters are prophesying. Our young men are seeing visions. Our old men are dreaming dreams. O Spirit that inspired the Wesleyes and Whitfield and Finney and Baker and Cartwright and Moody, lead thou us on in this widening gospel movement for the redemption of a sinful world for Christ!

But, though the revival spirit has appeared in many cities, I do not believe its mighty power has yet been demonstrated to a greater degree anywhere than in our own beloved city of Los Angeles. Here for the past few weeks we have seen many public buildings at the same hour crowded with anxious seekers after Jesus Christ. These buildings were thronged on Sundays. Yes, but they have also been thronged on week nights. They have also been thronged at 12 o'clock noon, as well as at 12 o'clock at midnight. They have also been thronged in the mornings and in the afternoons. Everywhere Christian people have been reconsecrating their lives to their Saviour. Everywhere, like the ancient Philippian jailer, anxious men and women have been asking the modern Pauls and Silases, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

Everywhere gray haired old folks, broad chested men and women in the prime of life and agile limbed, clear eyed youths and maidens have been praying for salvation; multitudes have arisen in the public meetings, asking prayers for their mothers and fathers, their sisters and brothers, their children and their friends.

Meaning of the Manifestation.
What is the meaning of all this wonderful manifestation of the Spirit's power? Is there any law not yet discovered that governs such movements? Is it possible that in the spiritual world, as in the natural world, there is a close connection between cause and effect? Is there anything that we as individual Christians can do to bring into operation these life-giving showers of divine grace? Is it possible that if we as Christian people continue to obey God's law we can have a perpetual revival of divine grace in our churches and homes every morning, every noon and every night?

Before paying a grateful tribute to the great evangelistic leaders who organized this Los Angeles revival I would acknowledge with sincere reverence our debt to the inconspicuous besotted God for this season of blessing. The religious and secular newspapers have been giving column after column of space in recounting what the consecrated evangelists have been doing for Christ. Thousands of sinners in their meetings have signed the cards pledging themselves to Christ's strength to lead a Christian life. The picture of J. Wilbur Chapman and Henry Ostrom and W. E. Biederwolf and others have been scattered broadcast in hundreds of homes. But I am sure I voice their convictions when I tell you that this great in-gathering of souls is not due to their efforts. They have been merely the instruments used of God to reap the harvest which comes primarily from the Holy Spirit's operations. It is the work of God in answer to the pleading of Christian men and women who spent night after night in prayer before the welcome train brought our beloved brethren from their Pittsburgh, Birmingham, Atlanta, Denver, Armageddon. They met night after night and week after week until at last the Spirit came as it did on the little company in the upper chamber at Jerusalem.

The marvelous sights we have witnessed in Los Angeles during the last few weeks are not the work of any human agency, but of God. Those were the results of faith—the faith that moves mountains. When God's people plead with him for this blessing they put their trust in one who never fails. The preparation in the heart of man is with the Lord, and when these believing men and women begged him to touch the hearts of the people he heard and answered them. The earnest appeals of Dr. Chapman and Mr. Biederwolf would have found no response in the hearts of those men whom we saw arise in the men's meeting in Hazard's pavilion if it had not been that a mightier power than man's had been at work in them. If we want a revival to move a city we must get that revival by the "golden tongue" of earnest prayer. We shall never get it simply by the "silver tongue" of brilliant speech. Prayer, prayer, agonizing prayer, prayer which came from hundreds and thousands of anxious fathers and mothers and brothers and sisters and husbands and wives, was the cause, the chief cause, of the Los Angeles revival.

The Secret of His Success.
The same lesson was taught us by the movement led by Campbell Morgan a year ago. After the great English preacher had left the Pacific coast the ministerial union of this city met to discuss the results of those meetings. One clergyman after another discussed the causes of that awakening, but no solution was found. I confessed my own inability to understand it, for I had heard Campbell Morgan in the east, when he did not seem to have any such influence over men. Yet the sermons which were powerless there were practically the same sermons that were fruitful here. With that the Nestor of the congregational ministers arose, good old loving Dr. Warren F. Day. He said: "Brethren, you have omitted to state the chief reason of Campbell Morgan's success in Los Angeles. It was due to the fact that hundreds and thousands of Christians paved the way for his success by weeks of earnest prayer. The Christians prayed in their churches; they prayed in their cottage prayer meetings; they prayed everywhere!" "Amen," said I. "Dr. Day is right," Campbell Morgan's revival was due chiefly to the fact that those meetings were lifted up to heaven by thousands of pleading, praying Christians. J. Wilbur Chapman when he reaches heaven will see there many saved during this Los Angeles revival. But the old mother in Israel, the old Christian elder and deacon, the old Christian church member, will rejoice with him in this harvest. Christ from his throne will recognize their services. "You wondered why I will say to the evangelists, 'Why it was that your words so moved the sinner to seek salvation. It was in answer to the prayers of these humble Christians that the Holy Spirit touched the hearts of your hearers so that the good seed fell into good ground.'" Let us thank God for such prayers.

The Los Angeles revival teaches another great lesson. The vast number of people do not have to be taught who are saved. They know enough about the gospel of salvation to be saved if they will. They must be led by the power of the Holy Spirit simply to make a stand, to come to a decision, to do what they know they ought to do. They do not need to hear sermons on the authenticity of the Scriptures, the divinity of Christ or the doctrine of original sin. They are for the greater part believers in Christianity. It is the personal appropriation of these truths that they lack. They love sin so much that they will not come to the desired decision. In other words, they believe, but they do not wish to give up sin. It is not information about Christ nor explanation of the truths of Christianity that men need. They need the things they already have. It is the will that must be captured. They do not realize their danger nor that they must themselves seek salvation through Christ. The sermons preached by the evangelists proved that fact.

Methods of the Evangelists.
The city was mapped out into sections. Then the different Protestant churches, irrespective of creed, united in one central church of their respective districts. Thus the rich and the poor, the educated and uneducated, pastors as well as people, had the bread of life broken to them. And how did these evangelists break the bread of life? They gave their gospel messages in the simplest language, first taking it for granted that all men believed in the divine personality of Jesus. And when the invitation was given to come to Christ men and women arose by the scores and often by the hundreds and came. Ministerial friends, Christian friends, we as a class spend too much time in proving that Christ is rather than that Christ should be accepted. It is bringing them to public decision for Christ which men already know they ought to make that is the chief work of the Christian messengers. Hear it, ye Christian laborers!

Men believe in and know enough about Christ for salvation if they wish to be saved. I learn this fact from all the evangelists, but especially from one, Rev. C. T. Shaeffer, commonly called "the children's evangelist." "Oh," said I, "if I am going to get any benefit from these gospel meetings I must get a blessing for my children and my children's friends." So I went about the neighborhood and gathered in about ten little ones. I was father, mother, and company, all boiled down into one for the afternoon. They took the children and we, the children and myself, went to hear the evangelist's message. Well, the children got a blessing from that children's service, but the old folks got just as great a blessing. First Dr. Shaeffer got all the little ones singing. Then he commenced with the address from the text "My cup runneth over." Oh, he made it so simple! He said practically this: "Now, children, here is a bottle half filled with water. That water represents a mother's love. Now, my boys and girls, that bottle is not running over, is it?" "No," came back a ready answer. "Well, children, here is a cup full of water. We will call this cup 'food.' Here is another cup full of water we call 'rainment.' Here is another cup we call 'light.' Here is another cup we call 'life.'" Then Dr. Shaeffer, after expatiating upon the benefits of all the cups, poured their contents into the bottle and said, "My children, the bottle is not overflowing, is it?" "No, no," came back the united answer. Then Dr. Shaeffer took up another cup filled with what looked like blood. "This cup, children," said he, "represents the blood of Jesus Christ. Let me pour it into the bottle. Yes, with that cup the bottle is running over. All these gifts God has given to you, children."

While Dr. Shaeffer was talking the children were learning the sweet gospel message. They were being led to trust in Christ and to give their young lives to him. I said to myself: "Why is it that we ministers cannot preach like that? Why do we not talk in the simple, earnest, straightforward language of these evangelists? They take for granted that most people in this Christian land believe in Christ. Their great and noble purpose seems to be to lead people to a decision to give themselves to him. Cannot we, as gospel ministers, do the same?"

The Lord's Work a Business.
But another weighty lesson is pressed upon our hearts by this series of meetings. That is this: The Lord's work is a business. It is not a hysteria. It is not a few holy ejaculations. It is not lifting your head above the clouds so that the misty fog of practical duty on earth is not a few spasmodic and a few temporary gospel spasms. It is a business—a business which we should study carefully and plan systematically and press strenuously with all our faith and energy.

When these evangelists began their work, as far as human agency was concerned they had almost a perfect system of machinery. Dr. R. A. Walton was the advance agent, who taught us how to perfect this machinery. First, the meetings were systematically and completely advertised; second, all the workers of a district were gathered together under one head. Some went in to the choruses. Then other workers were detailed to certain sittings. Every three or four pews had their overseers or gospel sentinels. No sooner was a hand raised for prayer than a Christian worker was by that person's side to lead him or her to Christ.

Then, not satisfied with all this, one night General J. Wilbur Chapman—for he is a general of men—marshaled all his forces for a grand charge upon the citadels of sin. That night the Christian evangelists and their followers came from all over the city. Down into the saloons and the places of evil resorts they went. Everywhere the right hand of a Christian brother or sister was extended. Everywhere a pleading voice said to sinners, "Come, we want you for Christ." These valiant soldiers of the cross did not wait for sinners to come to the gospel banquet. They literally followed out the command of Jesus, which said, "Go ye out into the highways and the hedges and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled." And come they did. They came by the hundreds and the thousands. The drunkards, the libertines, the outcasts—oh, how many they longed to come! Can any one who witnessed that wonderful and inspiring meeting in the Grand Opera House of Los Angeles Feb. 3, 1905, ever forget the revelation?

An Impressive Spectacle.
The elements seemed to conspire against the effort. When the hours drew toward the evening of that wonderful night we said to ourselves, "Can we go out into this storm, even to bring sinners to Christ?" The rain then was falling in torrents. All the batteries of the elements were unnumbered. "Crash, crash!" went the boom of the thunder. "Zigzag!" went the lightning. An electric thunder-bolt struck the North Methodist church of Pasadena and set it on fire. The cars were blocked. Freshets were everywhere. After the theaters and places of amusements were emptied, long after most of the great city was asleep, hundreds of men and women marched through the flooded streets, sometimes wading above their ankles in water. They marched singing and praising God. They marched down to the haunts of sin. Then, after they had collected the Magdalenes and the hordes of the drunkards, they went in the wine trough of "the fair country," they started back to one of the largest theaters in the city. There in that theater were crowded at least 4,000 men and women. Many were in rags. Many faces were scarred and seared with the awful marks of sin. All, whether outcasts or rescuers, were anxious about souls—about their own souls or about the souls of others. Some curiosity seekers may have come to that meeting to scoff, but nearly all before they left prayed as the good publican prayed. There were tears—penitents which welled up from breaking hearts. Yes, there were some glorious tears, flowing unbidden and unbecked. Four thousand men and women, many of them criminals, gathered together in the midnight hour during the tempest to seek Christ. Did you ever see or hear the like of it? Can any one who witnessed that wonderful and transporting meeting in the Grand Opera House of Los Angeles ever forget the revelation? We are not then taught how Christ wants us to go forth into the highways and the hedges, seeking sinful men and women wherever they may be found?

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, told the city bells. The evangelists and their followers worked on. Nine, ten, half past ten—the Christian discipline worked on. Eleven, twelve, went the clock. What! Is anyone out tonight? The messengers of sin are out tonight. It is in the harvest time for the demons of death. But tonight—aye, tonight—the angels of mercy are calling and pleading. Mothers and fathers in heaven, wives and children in heaven, over the embattlements did ye not see the prayers being answered in the midnight hour? Oh, God, teach us, as these evangelists have taught us, that the mission of a Christian church is not alone to care for a few people who are our social equals and who happen to be in our churches. The greatest mission of Christian churches is to go after men and women—to go after them in saloons, in haunts of sin, in gambling dens, everywhere and anywhere—to go after them in the morning, at noon and at midnight.

The Church's Mission.
But, lastly, I learn from the work of these evangelists a lesson which ought to make us one and all ashamed of ourselves. If the churches of the Lord Jesus Christ would join together their forces to make a conquest for Christ they could win our country. The Master year in and year out, the mightiest mission of J. Wilbur Chapman and his associates is to unite Christ's forces. They have given us an object lesson of the victory that may be won by the united effort of all the denominations.

BILOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEFORD'S BLACK DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, indigestion, headache and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that the liver never always keeps in proper working order, unless it is kept in good health. TheFORD'S Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, it is a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a sensitive child without possible harm.

The beneficial action on the liver causes biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and violent contagion results.

Timely treatment with TheFORD'S Black-Draught not only cures biliousness, but it positively forestalls the invasions of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your Dr. for TheFORD'S Black-Draught.

ALL SICK WOMEN SHOULD READ MRS. FOX'S LETTER

In All Parts of the United States Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has effected similar cures.

Many wonderful cures of female ills are continually coming to light which have been brought about by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and through the advice of Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., which is given to sick women absolutely free of charge.

Mrs. F. Pinkham says for many years she made a study of the ills of her sex; she has consulted with and advised thousands of suffering women, who to-day owe not only their health but even life to her helpful advice.

Mrs. F. Pinkham writes:

"I suffered for a long time with womb trouble, and finally was told by my physician that I had a tumor on the womb. I did not want to submit to an operation, so wrote you for advice. I received your letter and did as you told me, and to-day I am completely cured. My doctor says the tumor has disappeared, and I am once more a well woman. I believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine in the world for women."

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass. She asks nothing in return for her advice. It is absolutely free, and to thousands of women has proved to be more precious than gold.

FAD OF A FASHIONABLE

Mrs. Vanderbilt Uses Hand Painted Plates and Glass Mats.

Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt, who has a very luxurious camp in the Adirondack Mountains, has had leather mats made to be used under the plates and glasses, as well as a large carpet, for her bar table. These mats are made round, the large ones for the plates and the smaller ones to go under the glasses.

The leather is burnt to form an artistic design, and used on a large, well polished mahogany table. The whole effect is most attractive. These mats are most useful for a country house, and particularly in the mountains, where one is obliged to lead a rough outdoor existence during the summer months. Some of Mrs. Vanderbilt's leather mats are not only burnt but painted. She has one set which is ornamented with pink roses, the roses first burnt and then colored with oil paints; they are beautifully shaded, and the work is very finely done.

Respect for Parents.

If the girl who speaks disrespectfully to her mother only knew the impression she creates on outsiders she would change her tactics.

The false pride that makes a girl ashamed of the hard-working mother and father should be strangled at its birth.

Many girls who really love their parents grow into the habit of thinking them old-fashioned and ignorant.

The American girl is the best girl in the world, but she is just a trifle too independent and cavalier in her treatment of her elders.

Nothing is more beautiful than the tender respect and deference shown by youth to age, and it is a great shame for the American girl to let her charms be marred by this one blot.

There is nothing that so prejudices people against a girl as seeing her by word, look or deed show the slightest disrespect to her parents.

Bit of Advice to Women.

Don't pick out a man for a husband simply because you love him. The most important thing is whether he loves you. A woman who loves her husband better than he does her is a doormat on which he treads. If he loves her better than she does him, he looks up to her as a goddess, and spends his life trying to win her favor.

A too adoring wife bores a man with her affection, but no woman ever had enough love given her to satisfy her, and the more affection the man lavishes upon her the stronger the claim he establishes. After marriage a thousand things draw a woman's heart to her husband; a thousand things estrange him from her.—Woman's World.

A Perfect Can-Opener.

A new patented can-opener has some special features which commend it. To a handle is attached a rod, at the extremity of which is fitted a screw, and a short distance therefrom is a cutting blade. The screw is driven into the center of the top of the can. The blade is made in the shape of a wedge, and is thrust through the edge of the top. This having been done, the handle is rotated about the can and a good, clean job is made of the opening process. The blade may be adjusted so as to permit cutting as large or small an opening as may be desired.

Sugar Cookies.

Cream three-quarters of a cup of butter with a cup of sugar and three table-spoons of milk, two well-beaten eggs and a pint of flour that has been sifted twice with two even teapoonfuls of baking powder. Roll out, add ketchup and as soon as the sugar is dissolved add the cherries. Stir gently until the sirup thickens, then turn into heated jars, fill to overflow and seal.

Ginger Cookies.

Mix together a pint of warm molasses, a cup of melted butter, a tea-spoonful of ground cinnamon, a table-spoonful of ground ginger and a half teapoonful of baking soda dissolved in a table-spoonful of hot water. Beat hard for three minutes, add enough flour to make a soft dough, roll out into cookies. Bake in a steady oven.

Preserved Cherries.

Stone and stem cherries, saving all the juice that exudes in the process. Weigh the fruit and allow a pound of sugar to each pound of the cherries. Put sugar and juice in the preserving kettle and as soon as the sugar is dissolved add the cherries. Stir gently until the sirup thickens, then turn into heated jars, fill to overflow and seal.

Dog Delivers Mail.

During the recent snow blockade there has been one man independent of the rural free delivery of mail, although he resides in the country and on a route established by the government, and that individual is Willoughby Beideman, of near Calhoun's District school in Sussex county. He owns a dog which has been trained to carry messages tied to its neck and follows him or the teams all the time. During the worst of the storm the dog was sent as an experiment with a letter to Lincoln, where the postoffice officials received it and sent back Mr. Beideman's mail by the four footed messenger. This story comes to us from our regular correspondent, who is a young lady, and above imposing upon the publisher a would-be funny story, and therefore the item is worthy of credence.—Milford Chronicle.

Many A Salisbury Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing more certain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Salisbury. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Hayman, book-keeper, residing at the corner of Chestnut and Park Sts., says: "Having been affected some time with an aching in the small of the back and other troubles which indicated disordered kidneys. I tried a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from White & Leonard's drug store, and, finding that they gave me some relief, I continued taking them, and I consider my condition much improved."

MARDELA.
There has been and is now a great deal of sickness in our community and some deaths. Mrs. Virginia Graham who was called here on account of the serious illness of her brother, Mr. Thomas Humphreys was taken suddenly ill and died. She was buried from the M. P. Church on the 28th, instant and what seems so sad, Mr. Humphreys did not know of her sickness and death. Miss Ella Humphreys, a daughter has been quite sick for some days. It has been an afflicted house hold.

Rev. Mr. Truitt, pastor of the M. E. Church was too sick on Sunday to fill any of his appointments. Rev. Mr. Parker, pastor of the Baptist church had been sick for over a week and could fill only one of his appointments on Sunday. Dr. L. N. Wilson is kept busy night and day.

On Friday the 24th, Edward Lockwood, colored, who lives close to town was burned out of house and home. He lost everything. He had built a nice little house and had it about paid for, but no insurance, so it is an entire loss. The white people are coming to his assistance. It is a mistake not to have property insured.

We had a sermon last Sunday by the Baptist pastor, Rev. Mr. Parker, which was provokingly suggestive. We don't know whether to agree with him in all he said or not, and were afraid to disagree, for should we do so, we might expose our own ignorance. The subject was "Modern Inventions and Discoveries hinted at in the Old Testament." The audience went away in a very thoughtful mood and feeling that there was more in the "Old Book" than they ever imagined before. And instead of the Bible being a "back member" as we have so often heard it said, it is the most up to date Book in the world.

We had most exciting episode in our town last Sunday night. It is rumored that one of Salisbury's enterprising young men, "A courting went" and of course, to do that thing right, he must needs come to Maryland, where the pretty girls abound. Some time in the night, though we would not be too definite in stating the exact hour, when he started home, his horse was more anxious to go than he was. It dashed off at a break neck speed and in turning out of the road below the Hotel, the buggy was upset, the harness broken and the horse rushed into and across the stream back of the church, and concluded to remain there until morning. But as no one was hurt, we are now safe in saying that for a time it was hard to tell whether it would be a funeral or a wedding. And now for the moral, "I'll not go home till morning."

WHY IS IT?

You can buy horses, mares and mules at King's for less money than elsewhere. One reason is, he sells more horses than all the other dealers in the State. Another reason is, while our horse and mule business is the largest of any in Baltimore City, (establishing capacity 200 head and continuously receiving consignments from the breeders all over America.) It is only one branch of this immense business. We carry in stock 100 vehicles of every kind, of which a large selection is suitable for country use, at lowest factory prices. The final reason is, we are THE LARGEST OUBINED HORSE AND MULE DEALERS, LIVERYMEN, CHARIOTRIAGE, WAGON AND HARNESS MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

ROGGE—PHILLIPS

Marriage in Baltimore. Will Reside Near Salisbury.

Miss Emma Gillespie Phillips, of Baltimore, was married Tuesday to Mr. Jesse A. Rogge, of Portland, Ore., formerly of Baltimore, at the Johns Hopkins Orphan Asylum, Thirty first street and Bennington avenue, where the bride has been a teacher for the last eight years.

The spacious drawing rooms of the institution were beautifully decorated with potted plants and pink carnations. The bride wore a handsome gray gown, trimmed with white lace, and carried a white prayer book. She was attended by two maids of honor, her nieces, Miss Mary Phillips, of Oxford, Va., and Miss Nannie Pennington, of Jerroldville, Md. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Edward W. Wroth, rector of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church, of which the bride is a member. The wedding marches were played by Miss Nettie O. Crane, of Baltimore, who also rendered selections before the ceremony.

A wedding breakfast was given in the bride's honor by the board of lady managers of the Johns Hopkins Asylum, by whom she has been greatly esteemed for her highly successful work on the teaching staff of the institution.

A large number of guests were present at the wedding, including the Board of lady managers and relatives and friends of the bride and groom from Baltimore and elsewhere. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents, as well as numerous expressions of regret at her departure from the school in which she had done such efficient work.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogge will reside near Salisbury, Md.

A Big Mortgage.

A mortgage for $2,000,000 one of the largest ever recorded in Queen Anne's county, was entered last week. Recording of the mortgage follows the passing of the Queen Anne's Railroad into the hands of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the document covering the purchase money and an issue of $300,000 of Queen Anne's Railroad first mortgage bonds. The mortgage was given under the name of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railway Company, to the Girard Trust Company, which paid the money.

EASTER FALLS LATER

In Month This Year, Than It Has For Nineteen Before. Most Important Festival Of Year.

Easter falls upon a later date this year than it has for 19 years. Easter of this year is April 23, and the Christian feast has not come so late in the season since 1886, when it fell on April 25. This last date is the very latest on which Easter can come, and it will not fall again on that date until the year 1943.

Easter has a range of 35 days on which it can fall. The earliest date is March 22 and the latest is April 25. In 1818 it fell on March 22, and it will not do so again until the year 2285, which is too far distant to cause much worry among the present generation. When Easter fell on April 23—the latest date—in 1886 it was the first time it had been so late since 1785. Easter will fall on April 23 in 1916 and again in the year 2000.

The following shows the chronology of Easter Day since 1886: 1886, April 25; 1887, April 10; 1888, April 11; 1889, April 21; 1890, April 6; 1891, March 29; 1892, April 17; 1893, April 2; 1894, March 25; 1895, April 14; 1896, April 5; 1897, April 18; 1898, April 10; 1899, April 2; 1900, April 15; 1901, April 7; 1902, March 30; 1903, April 12; 1904, April 3; 1905, April 23.

Easter is the most important church festival of the year, because by its dates are fixed all the movable feasts of the Christian year. During the first three centuries of the Christian era Easter was observed on different dates by the Greek Church, the Roman Church and the Celtic Church. In that year, however, the Council of Nicea decided the date of Easter. It was agreed that as the moon had been full on the night after the Crucifixion Easter must be governed by the phases of the moon and be a movable feast falling on the first Sunday after the full moon of the spring equinox.

A party in Wilkesbarre, Penn., who was run down by a trolley and every one supposed killed in a few minutes after being pulled from underneath the car, hunted for pencil and pad insisting upon writing the conductor apologizing for causing the interruption as he was deaf and dumb and could not hear the bell. The conductor happened to prove to be a gentleman, and readily excused him much to the deaf man's relief.

WONDERFUL SUCCESS

Of The Virginia Produce Exchange Interestingly Related By Director Thomas At The Meeting Held In Salisbury March 2.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen:—It is with pleasure that I am with you today to tell you of the success of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Produce Exchange of the Counties of Accomac and Northampton.

I am not here to talk to you in a visionary sense of what can be done, but to tell you what has been done, and to talk to you as a practical farmer and tell you of an up-to-date method of marketing your crop. The keynote of today is combination for protection, and the elimination of un-called for factions from your business. The farmers of this county have arrived at a point when the local buyers and solicitors must be eliminated from handling their produce so as to enable them to get closer to the consumer and dispose of their produce upon a business basis.

The local buyers and solicitors have an eye single to their own interest and not to yours. From a business standpoint it is to their interest to keep you in the dark as to the market value of your product so as to buy from you at the lowest cent. You farmer that have to work in your field cannot and do not know prices prevailing in the various markets. To see a farmer arrive at the depot with his product without any protection, is a deplorable condition. The buyers have all the dates of the market, while the farmers know nothing of the market value of his products, and are ready to take from them the support that should go to the children of his loins and the wife of his bosom. I appeal to you as free American farmers to come to the hovering wings of the Maryland Exchange. It will be your financial haven, and your protection from the wolves and leeches that are after your financial blood.

I am well aware of your farmers position and the argument used by the local dealers for their own selfish interest. The farmers of Accomac and Northampton have been through the same experience, but I am proud to say that we have withstood the test and have succeeded in establishing one of the grandest institutions of its kind in America today.

Well do I remember a few years ago when we were in a deplorable financial condition; farmers in poverty; business men bankrupt. We called a meeting of the local buyers to devise some means to dispose of our products to a better advantage. We were held up in derision and laughed to scorn. At that time our potatoes were selling at 25 cents per barrel; our real estate selling under the taxable valuation, but in our deplorable condition some of our "ocal Buyers" were making money; buying land and building houses. I am sure the question drifts across your mind, how could a set of men increase in wealth while the producers were in poverty. We had local buyers at every shipping point, and it was who could get orders at 10 cents per barrel brokerage. The potatoes were started, say $3 per barrel, one dealer would continue to under quote another until I have known the market to be reduced from $3 to 25 cents in thirty days. These conditions continued for several years. At 25 cents per barrel the local dealers could make more money, as the price had reached bottom—the farmers would not dig for less—as they got the same brokerage and could handle more cars for the same capital. I have in my mind one local dealer that handled several car loads per day, say 10, with a profit of 10 cents per barrel brokerage would net him $300.00 per day profit.

When we were in the most deplorable condition thirteen farmers met, organized, made by laws and procured charter for the Eastern Shore of Virginia Produce Exchange.

You have no idea what fun there was made of us. The farmers were told that a few men had started an Exchange for their own financial benefit.

Concluded next week.

Goosebone Weather Bureau in Talbot County.

M. L. Wroten has hanging up in his office in Easton, Talbot county, Md., the backbone of a goose, by which he says he can tell the kind of weather that will happen in less than 14 hours. He can look at the bone at 5 in the afternoon and tell whether it will rain, hail, snow or be clear the next morning. He says that when rain or snow is coming the bone will become moist or dark in color; when the weather is going to be clear, the bone is perfectly dry and white, and when a drop in the thermometer is impending it will turn purple. It is necessary, he says to have a new goose bone every year. He has washed the different bones of geese and always procured the weather goose for the past 5 years, and he has never known it to fail to accurately indicate the character of the weather.

UNFORTUNATE NOTORIETY

For The St. Regis Hotel. This Is An Attempt To Do Justice To The Proprietor.

Readers of all American newspapers recall very well the opening of the fashionable and magnificent St. Regis Hotel in New York City.

Many newspapers had something to say about the hotel, its fine furnishings, the unusual luxury. A few of them dwelt at length upon the extravagant prices to be charged, and not a few added imaginative touches that did more credit to the reporters' mental elasticity than to their regard for strict accuracy.

These false impressions of the big, new hotel were conspicuously printed out of the city, and especially in newspapers of England and the Continent. One London newspaper solemnly stated that at the dining room tables of the St. Regis Hotel the waiter came up through trap door.

Another newspaper said that the hotel was perfumed with violet in the morning, rose at noon, and lilac at night.

A third newspaper declared that the chambermaids at the hotel were required to wear plenty of pearl bracelets and necklaces, that they might be able to supply guests who happened to leave such ornaments in their rooms or at home.

In short a great deal of nonsense and misinformation was printed about the St. Regis Hotel.

It is painful to learn that the publication of this kind of newspaper trash—stuff that had no reasons for being written, but that was prepared innocently enough—actually did serious harm to the hotel and its proprietor, Mr. Haan.

We are assured by Mr. Haan that he sustained financial loss and a temporary setback to the prosperity of the establishment on account of the humorously exaggerated stories of the hotel's extravagant prices. It seems to this newspaper desirable to say, therefore—as conspicuously as possible—that the St. Regis Hotel is unusual only in its excellent appointments, and that in regard to prices it does not exceed the prices of the ordinary first class hotel of this and other cities.

The man who undertakes the construction and management of a new great hotel in any city is a useful citizen. He employs many people. He makes welcome those who come to the city for business or for pleasure—thus helping on the city generally—and he should be encouraged rather than discouraged. Hence this publication, which we hope may be copied by other newspapers.

Novelty in Baseball.

A baseball team composed entirely of the members of a theatrical company presenting Wm. B. Gray's beautiful rural play, "The Volunteer Organist" is a distinct novelty which the local fans are soon to have an opportunity of seeing, provided present plans do not fall. On Saturday, March 18 this splendid attraction is booked to appear at Ulman's Opera House and during the afternoon of that date the Volunteer Organist Baseball Club will cross bats with the strongest local team possible to get together. Several of the members of the theatrical team are famous players as Frederick Burt, the leading man of the company and pitcher of the team, was formerly a member of the university of Nebraska team and was in the box for his club the day the college boys took the measure of the St. Louis Browns. The leading comedian of the show is Wm. Hallman who was at one time a member of the Philadelphia Baseball Club, and for several seasons the leading second baseman of the National League. The balance of the nine is composed of excellent players and the local boys must put forth their best efforts if they expect to win against such crack players.

Appropriate Bible Verses Kissed By Roosevelt At Inauguration.

When President Roosevelt was inaugurated on Saturday his lips touched a passage in the Bible peculiarly in keeping with his character as a man of action. The passage is found in the Epistle of St. James, first chapter, 22d, 24th, and 25th verses: 22. "But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves." 23. "For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass." 24. "For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was." Presidents have usually kissed passages in the Bible near the centre of the volume, so that the book might remain open well during the inauguration ceremony. The verses kissed by President Roosevelt occur within a few passages of the end. As on previous inaugurations, however the Bible was opened at random, and it was purely through chance that the quoted passages received the kiss that sealed the oath of office.

LATEST ORIENT NEWS

Of The Russian—Japanese War And The Situation In Czar's Domains. Kurapatkin In Oyama's Net.

The situation in Manchuria is not quite clear because of the conflicting reports, but all seem to agree that the Russian position is most critical.

It is reported from Japanese sources that the Japanese have invested Tai-pas and that General Kurapatkin will be forced to surrender.

The Russians admit the Japanese have reached the Hun river and that General Renienkampff's corps is in great danger.

While the Japanese report having cut the railroad between Mukden and Harbin, the Russians say they have restored traffic, and even with this road crippled there are other avenues of escape northward.

The losses around Mukden, according to Japanese estimates, will far exceed 100,000 men.

The people of St. Petersburg are greatly irritated about the way General Kurapatkin's dispatches have been "doctored" so as to indicate victory was assured.

General Kaulbars decorated a sharpshooter named Ivan Barkoff on the field for heroism in refusing to have his wounds dressed.

Two young Russians, arrested as spies at Simintin, were beheaded by Chinese bandits and buried by Japanese soldiers.

Russia has paid to Great Britain $285,000 in settlement of the claims growing out of Vice Admiral Rojstvensky's firing on the British fishing vessels in the North Sea.

It is thought Vice Admiral Rojstvensky may not take his squadron to Jibuti, French Somaliland, because of the prevalence of bubonic plague at that port.

The Japanese threaten to seize the railroad unless Russia allows them to send 450 tons of rice to Simintin.

A report that Mukden had fallen caused great rejoicing in Warsaw, Russian Poland, but the censor prohibited its publication by newspapers. At Elkhatinslay, South Russia, five miners were killed and fifteen wounded by soldiers upon whom they had fired pistols.

The better classes in the Baltic provinces are demanding the revival of the teaching of German in the schools.

It is reported the assassin of Grand Duke Sergius is a member of a princely family connected with the Obolensky.

Russia is steadily reinforcing her defenses along the Indian frontier, presumably to be prepared for a struggle with Great Britain in the event of encroachment.

Doubtless hundreds of thousands of women all over the United States have seen Dr. Hartman's name in the papers, how he has undertaken to treat every woman suffering with any form of female disease who will write to him, free of charge. To those who have not heard of this it may be said that Dr. Hartman is a physician and surgeon of great renown in medical circles, especially in the treatment of those diseases which women alone have to bear. He has arranged to answer all letters that are sent to him from women troubled with any form of female weakness, free of charge, giving the benefit of knowledge which has cost him forty years to accumulate. The medicines he prescribes are forthright in the reach of any woman, and she can get them at any drug store. All she is required to do is to send her name and address, together with her symptoms, duration of sickness and age. Address Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Senator Roach, of Larimore, N. Dak.; Mrs. Senator Warren, of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Delva Lockwood and Mrs. General Longstreet, of Washington, D. C., are among the prominent ladies who endorse Peruna. Miss Helen Rolof, Kaukauna, Wis., writes: "Several times during the past two years or more my system has been greatly in need of a tonic, and at those times Peruna has been of great help in building up the system, restoring my appetite and securing restful sleep." Miss Muriel Armitage, 36 Greenwood Ave., Detroit, Mich., District Organizer of the Royal Templars of Temperance, writes as follows: "I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peruna, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy woman to-day." Miss Lucy M. Riley, 23 Davenport St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I wish to add, my indorsement to thousands of other women who have been cured through the use of Peruna. I suffered for five years with severe backache, and when weary or worried in the least I had prolonged headache. I am now in perfect health, enjoy life and have neither an ache or pain, thanks to Peruna."—Lucy M. Riley. "If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis." Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

THE DUTY OF MOTHERS At the First Sign of Disfiguring Humors is to Use Cuticura. Every child born into the world with an inherited tendency to torturing, disfiguring humors of the Skin and Scalp, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering, but because of the dreadful fear that the disfigurement is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity.

CHAPTER XXXV.

ANOTHER week had elapsed. The Yarmouth had been driven steadily northward and by contrary winds prevented from making her course. She was in a precarious condition too. A further examination had disclosed that some of her spars, especially the mainmast, had been so severely and seriously wounded, even more so than at first reported, as scarcely to permit any sail at all to be set on them and not fit in any way to endure stress of weather. The damages had been made good, however, as far as possible, the rigging knotted and spliced, the spars fished and strengthened as well. The ship had been leaking slightly all the time, from injuries received in the fight in all probability, but a few hours at the pumps daily had hitherto kept her free, and, though the carpenter had been most assiduous in a search for the leaks and had stopped as many as he had been able to come at, some of them could not be found. The weather had steadily changed for the worse as they had reached higher latitudes, and it was now cold, rainy and very threatening. The captain and his officers were filled with anxiety and foreboding. Katharine kept sedulously in her cabin, devoured by grief and despair, and the once cheery colonel, full of deep sympathy for his unfortunate daughter, went about softly and sadly during the long days.

The day broke gloomily on one certain unfortunate morning. They had not seen the sun for five days, nor did they see it then. No gladsome light flooded the heavens and awoke the sea. The sky was deeply overcast with cold, dull, leaden clouds that hung low and heavy over the mighty ship; a horror of darkness enshrouded the ocean. Away off on the horizon to the northeast the sky was black with great masses of frightful looking clouds. Through the glass the watchful officers saw that rain was falling in torrents from them, while the vivid lightning played incessantly through them. Where the ship was it had fallen suddenly calm, and she lay gently rolling and rocking in the moderate swell. But they could see the hurricane driving down upon them, coming at lightning speed, standing like a solid wall and flattening the waves by sheer weight. All hands had been called on deck at once at the first glimpse of the coming hurricane.

Desborough had the trumpet. The alert and eager topmen were sent aloft to strip the ship of the little canvas that the heavy weather and weakened spars had permitted them to show. It was a race between them and the coming storm. The men worked desperately, madly. Some of them had not yet reached the deck when the rain and the wind were upon them. By the captain's direction the colonel had brought Katharine from below, and she was standing on the quarter deck sheltered by the overhang of the poop above, listlessly watching. Desborough had made no progress in his love affairs. He had too much tact and delicacy to press his suit under the present untoward circumstances and indeed had been too incessantly occupied with the pressing exigencies of the shattered ship and the duties of his responsible position thereon to have any time to spare for more than the common courtesies.

The awful storm-was at last upon them. A sudden change in its direction caused the first fierce blow to fall fairly upon the starboard side of the ship. It pressed her down on her beam ends. Over and over she went, down, down. Would she ever right again? Ah, the spliced shrouds and stays on the weather side, which had been that attacked by the Randolph, finally gave way, the mainmast went by the board about half way below the top, the foremast at the cap and the mizen topmast too. Relieved of this enormous mass of heavy top hamper, the ship slowly righted herself. The immense mass of wreckage beat and thundered against the port side. It was a fearful situation, but all was not yet lost.

Gallantly led by Desborough himself, who saw in one sweeping glance that Katharine was still safe, the men, with axes and knives, hacked through the rigging which held the wreck of the giant spars to the ship, and after a few moments of sickening suspense the wreckage clear. A bit of storm canvas was spread forward on the wreck of the foremast, and the ship got before the wind and drove on, laboring and pitching in the heavy sea. The decks were cleared, and indeed there was little left to clear, the waves having broken over her several times when she lay in the trough of the sea, sweeping everything out with them, and the vessel was a total wreck, the spars gone, rails and bulwarks battered in and smashed, boats lost, the battle having destroyed those on the starboard side and the wreck and the sea the others. Stop! There was one boat left amidships, a launch capable of holding about forty persons in a pinch, and still seaworthy. It was, by the captain's order, promptly made as serviceable as possible in view of the probable emergency.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon the carpenter came aft with the sounding rod of the well in his hand. The strain had been too much for her; some of the weakened timbers had given away, or some of the seams had opened, or perhaps a butt had started, for the ship was leaking badly. Still those dauntless men did not despair. The crew were told off in gangs to work, and all night the clank, clank of the pumps was heard. Katharine dutifully laid down as she was bidden. But there was no sleep for her nor any one else on the ship that long night. The day broke again finally, but brought them no cheer. Their labor had been unavailing; the leak had gained on them so rapidly that the ship lay low in the got hold of them, they refused—and were indeed entirely unable to work longer with the oars, so that, unless the wind was fair and the sail set, they simply drifted on.

One by one the sailors died. Waking from a troubled sleep of short duration, Katharine one day found Chloë's dead hand around her feet, her cold lips pressed upon them. Some of the men grew mad before they died, and raved and babbled of green fields and running brooks until the end came, and still the little boat drifted on. Few and short were the prayers the living said as day by day they cast the dead into the sea. Desborough, the resolute, with undying strength kept steadily at the helm. Once only did he speak of the colonel standing among the officers.

The ship settled lower and lower.

"You are to go, sir. Nay, I will hear of no objections. You are my prisoner, and I am bound to see you delivered safely. Go, colonel. I mean it. I will have you put aboard by a file of marines if you do not go at once."

Katharine awoke from her apathy and stretched out her hands, with a piteous cry:

"Father, father! Oh, I cannot lose you!"

"Prisoner or no prisoner, sir," said the colonel, "let me say that I am proud of my connection with you and your officers and your men. If I live to reach the shore the world shall bear of this noble ending. Goodby, captain. Goodby, gentlemen. I would fain stay with you."

"No, no!" was the cry from this band of heroes, and then Hollins sprang forward and shouted:

"Lead, three cheers for the colonel and for our shipmates in the launch! Let them tell at home that we were glad to stay by the old ship."

The hearty cheers came with a roar from 500 throats.

"Colonel, we haven't a moment of time," whispered Desborough, who saw that the ship was sinking.

"Shave off, men! Pull hard!"

A few moments of hard rowing in the heavy sea put them some little distance away, and the boat waited under just enough way to give them command of the water, and then it was drawn down. A confused mass of heads and waving arms was seen in the water, and they, too, in a moment were drawn down into the vortex caused by the sinking ship. The woman again hid her face in her hands; the colonel laid his arm across the shoulder of his daughter; Desborough and the men in the boat stared horribly at the spot left vacant. A deep groan broke from them; they rose on the crest of a wave, sank down again, rose once more and looked again—the little boat was alone on that mighty sea!

OUR RICH PRESIDENTS

Two Were Independent When Taking Office.

OTHERS WELL TO DO

Washington and Van Buren Were Wealthy—Arthur Said to Have Been the Most Extravagant. His Famous Dinners Costing Thousands of Dollars.

Washington—George Washington and Martin Van Buren were the wealthiest men ever elected to the Presidency, but nearly all the Chief Executives managed to leave the White House well off, although some possessed little wealth when elected. Van Buren was so wealthy that he did not trouble to draw his salary until the expiration of his four years, when he signed for $100,000. Every expense of the White House outside of that provided for by Congress was paid by Mr. Van Buren out of his own pocket.

George Washington did not need the money for his expenses, but he drew his money with as much regularity as the department clerks. He had so much property to dispose of that his will covered twelve closely written pages, and if put in type would make five columns of a newspaper.

James Monroe's will contained only 162 words. He was a poor man. He lived well, but not extravagantly while President, yet he left the White House almost penniless.

Polk, Fillmore and Pierce were wealthy men, and left large estates when they died. Madison, too, had a good bank account and plenty of real estate, but the money he left to Dolly was scattered to the winds by a worthless relative. For her husband's papers Congress paid her $30,000, and this was all she had.

Andrew Johnson was comfortably well off, owning a mill, farm, store and other properties at Knoxville and Greenville, Tenn.

Buchanan was wealthy, too, as was also Andrew Jackson, but the latter was impoverished before death by assuming the debts of his son.

John Quincy Adams died rich. He owned much property in Boston and Washington. His will is filed in the Recorder of Wills' office in this city, and is of great length. Like Andrew Jackson, Mr. Adams had a large collection of walking canes, and these were bequeathed to his friends.

Thomas Jefferson always, according to history, made much display and was rated as wealthy, but in old age he was reduced in circumstances and was forced to cease entertaining with such a lavish hand at Monticello. Congress paid him $28,000 for a large portion of his valuable library, and this sum was economically spent during his last days.

William Henry Harrison was known as an everyday man, and when in the White House he cared little for style. He saved every dollar of his salary and died moderately rich. His grandson, Benjamin Harrison, was likewise economical, saved money and enjoyed a good law practice after his term.

General Grant while in the White House lived well, but at the same time he saved money, the salary of the President being raised from $25,000 to $50,000 while he was serving his second term. General Grant had a large stable of thoroughbreds than any President, and when he took a fancy to a horse he generally managed to buy it regardless of the price. He was not wealthy, although worth considerable, when his second term expired. An entanglement in a wildcat financial concern led him to pledge his awards, medals and gems to W. H. Vanderbilt for the loan of $100,000 to clear his name of the disgrace others had brought upon him.

The most extravagant President was Arthur, who not infrequently gave dinners costing as much as $5,000. When he went into the White House he was worth probably half a million. His predecessor, Garfield, died a poor man. The people raised $300,000 for Mrs. Garfield, and Congress voted her a pension of $5,000 annually.

Hayes was accused of parsimony during his incumbency of the White House because he offered no wine to guests. Mr. Hayes entertained little but it was not because he was not financially able, but simply because he did not believe in great social functions. Mr. Lincoln was poor when he entered the White House, and had he lived to serve out his term he would perhaps have been retired worth only a few hundred more than he began with, for he was not economical. Employees of the White House say that Mr. Lincoln gave away much money to people whom he believed or knew to be in distress.

Grover Cleveland was paying taxes on less than $8,000 when he was elected President the first time, but to say he was wealthy, Mr. Cleveland was no lavish spender during his incumbency of the White House, drew his salary with regularity and made investments in Washington suburban real estate.

Mr. McKinley was poor when he entered the White House. He was in debt, but by frugal management and the assistance of friends he was accumulating money when the assassin's bullet ended his life.

President Roosevelt was comfortably off when he was called to the chief executive's chair; not wealthy, but far from poor.

His Idea of It.
Caller—So your Papa and Mamma are going to take you to Europe with them?
Willie—Yes'm.
Caller—Aren't you afraid to go on the ocean?
Willie—N'm, I ain't afraid o' nothin'. I'm been vaccinated.—Coast Seaman's Journal

Preparation.
It may appear to you that all the good jobs are taken, but by the time you are capable of filling one it will be vacant.—Aitchison Globe.

Going Too Far.
Mrs. Doffin—I read in the paper that a woman, in looking after another woman to see what she had on, fell out of a window.
Mr. Boffin—Well, that only goes to show that some women in trying to follow the fashions can go too far.—Illustrated Bits.

The Fadesless Flower.
Luther Burbank, the California horticulturist whose experiments in the improvement of fruits and creation of new flowers and fruits have made him famous, has received many offers from persons in England, France and even in South America to purchase his wonderful creation, the so called fadesless flower. Some of the purchasers wish to buy it with reference to its use in millinery and others as a mere novelty of a marketable value, but so far Mr. Burbank refuses to sell it despite liberal offers. His custom is never to permit one of his creations to leave his hands until he has made it as nearly perfect as possible. Fortunately, owing to the wise generosity of the Carnegie Institution, he will be able to continue this policy and to withstand the temptation to part with his products until they are ready for general use.

Spoooner Propounds a Conundrum.
Senator Spooner the other day was propounding a conundrum to his colleagues. It was propounded to him the other evening while he was out to dinner. Although a very simple little thing, the senator, while possessing the keenest legal mind in congress, had been unable to frame a correct reply. He enjoyed trying it on others.

This conundrum was, "Which has more feet—one cat or no cat?"
"I pass it over to you," or something like that was the almost invariable reply.

"Why, no cat, of course," Mr. Spooner would respond. "One cat has four feet; no cat has five feet."—Washington Post.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, allays the feverish conditions, stops the cough and prevents serious results from a cold.

SOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

Consumption Threatened.
C. Unger, 211 Maple St., Champaign, Ill., writes: "I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption. I tried a great many remedies and I was under the care of physicians for several months. I used one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar; it cured me, and I have not been troubled since."

Three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50 cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much.

UNSURED OPPORTUNITY. Amid the blare of the bands and the fanfare of the trumpets of Saturday, the most momentous and eventful Republican administration of the quarter century was ushered into its initial stage.

It is difficult not to talk and think of Roosevelt. Seriously speaking, this picturesque man of the White House is an unknown quantity of tremendous possibilities both for good and evil.

There has scarcely been a day or a month at least of his administration that has not been vivid with interest and flecked with the color of his own vigorous life.

It is really a thrilling combination of conditions which surrounds the President of the United States. He is apparently a man of destiny as well as a man of possibility.

His honesty is at least at par in both parties. His wisdom and discretion are somewhat in question in the estimate of the ultra-conservatives of his own camp.

One prominent advantage that he enjoys is that of unquestioned leadership and dominance over the Republican faction and over the machine.

Now the question is. Will he be a better Democrat than a Republican? Will he be a people's President or a plutocratic representative?

Will he be a people's President or a plutocratic representative? Will he stand for the people? If so, will the spirit made in his own party by the popular ideas which he will carry, strenuously or not at all, be so serious as to separate him from the organization of the spokesmen and the trusts and the syndicates and give him an offering upon the new altar of Democracy.

Such a world wide ocean deep opportunity, we seriously believe, was never presented to a single human being to make himself great, not only great in that strange spell, a name—but great in popular action, in the highest esteem of liberty loving, cultured American people.

Never was a citizen of this country so liberally endowed with power for good, or for ill, as may be used. Never since the formation of this experimental Republic were such huge opportunities for a strong, plucky executive.

Will his presidency be for good or ill? Democratic or Republican? For the People's interest or the Trusts? Time alone can tell. Its late tendency has certainly, outside of New York's negro appointment, been of such nature as to inspire confidence, and to persuade the American people that they elected a Democratic president after all.

—Superb in stage settings, scenic effect and sumptuous costuming, the new "First Part" setting of the performance given by Gorton's Minstrels this season is said to surpass anything ever presented in minstrelry. The scene represents the broad lawn of the "Ponce de Leon Hotel," the famous winter resort of Florida. On every side sparkling fountains and bright hued flowers adorn the landscape. In the background appear the imposing outlines of this famous hostelry, magnificent in structure and gorgeous in color. Numerous brilliant electric lights add to the splendor and beauty of this tropical scene. The costuming of the company is elaborate, and calls for special attention. The vocalists are attired in the elegant satin court costumes of the time of Louis XIV. The end men are resplendent in evening dress suits of carise satin, the interlocutor appears in a costume of pure white satin, and the orchestra in steel gray satin. The whole picture forms a brilliant and picturesque ensemble, original in conception and pleasing in every detail. The company will appear at Ulman's Opera House Tuesday, March 14.

BLOOD CELLS. IN HEALTH. IN DISEASE.

Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal number of red blood cells in a man's blood is five million; in women four and a half million to the square millimeter.

The normal cell is not absolutely round in shape, but is somewhat irregular in shape. Every one can be in perfect health and possess the millions of rich red blood corpuscles if they only know how to get about it.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 5.—The secret so long sought by the ancient alchemists is the topic discussed by the preacher in this sermon, in which he shows how, though the body may grow old, the spirit may retain its youth and freshness.

When trouble struck the grand old patriarch Job, it hit him again and again. First came financial trouble, then domestic trouble, then physical trouble.

It is a pathetic longing not only that time be halted in its onward sweep, but be compelled to retrace the steps it has already taken.

Not a Sinner's Desire? Is it wrong for us to want to become young again or at least to stay young just as long as we can? I trow not.

How shall we renew the days of our strong young manhood? First, by associating with young people, and especially with children.

Letter To I. E. Jones. Dear Sir: The way to buy pain is to go by the name. There is a name never seen on sham patent or weak patent or short measure paint: Devoe. There are a hundred different names in paint. Some are sham; some work some short measure; and some all three. If there is another such paint as Devoe lead-and-iron, we don't know it. There are a few fairly good paints; a few; only one Devoe. A gallon Devoe is worth a gallon and a-half of those few.

A Hymn Anecdote. The romance of the famous hymns of the world is little less appealing than the romance of other literature. In connection with the hymn "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," of which Allan Sutherland writes in the April Issue, are related a number of incidents that bear out this assertion. Among them is one which has more to do, perhaps with the power of prayer, but is particularly worth repeating.

"Many will recall the thrilling experience of the passengers on the German steamship 'Spree,' in December, 1882. During a fearful storm the propeller broke, knocking a large hole through her bottom and leaving her helpless. She was not only in danger of sinking, but she was also rapidly driven out of her course. The passengers were in a panic, and one leaped overboard to his death. Dwight L. Moody, who was on the vessel inspired all with courage by his splendid composure and by his oft repeated assurance that God would answer their prayers and bring them safely to land. He frequently said afterward that nothing short of the direct interposition of Providence, in answer to prayer saved the ship. 'There never was,' he said, 'a more earnest prayer than that of those seven hundred souls on their helpless, almost sinking ship, in mid ocean on that Sunday when we met in the saloon to implore God's help; and God answered us, as I knew He would. He sent the 'Lake Huron' to our rescue and made the storm calm.' 'At this meeting wrote General O. O. Howard, who was a fellow passenger with Moody, we sang a number of hymns among them being 'My Faith Looks Up to Thee.' The singing was led by a Roman Catholic lady who was returning to the United States from South America by way of England. We were a united band of God's children, praying for deliverance."

IS THE HAT CHECK TO GO? Court Decision That Promises to Abolish a Railway Custom. By a court decision at Bloomington the hat check by means of which conductors keep tabs on their patrons, has been dealt a severe blow. It was held that a passenger is not obliged to show nor to produce upon demand the evidence the postboard gives that he has presented a ticket to the conductor. This is equivalent to a statement that the check cannot be used legally as receipt nor as a method of identification.

If this finding be sustained by the higher courts the problem put to the railways will be fraught with no inconsiderable difficulties. The big transportation systems can scarcely devise examinations which shall determine beyond debate the perfection of a conductor's memory, and that will be about all the collector can rely upon if he be forced to observe the Bloomington interpretation of the law. The litigation arose over the refusal of the Gwin brothers of Baltimore to honor a request for hat checks on a trip to the world's fair. These valiant gentlemen contended they had the right to throw the checks out of the window of the train should they so desire. That their fare had been paid was the testimony of their sister, who claimed she had been a witness to the transfer of tickets from the snug pockets of the brothers Gwin to the willing hand of the railway representative. When the conductor cast doubt upon the accuracy of her word, the three travelers the other came that resulted in suit. The sum demanded for injuries to feelings and pocket was $15,000; the verdict was for $500, but the principle involved was of far greater import than the financial side of the controversy.

Possibly Cornelius Vanderbilt or some other rising genius whose inventive talent has been applied to solving the puzzles pertaining to the operation of the railways will arrange a little black-board that may be put in cars so that pegs or chalk marks shall indicate what passengers have made good their indebtedness to the corporation. If no scheme can be arranged as substitute for the hat check, in the event that there is no reversal of the decision, then indeed will the conductor's lot be a trying one. The incident has served to emphasize the value of the lowly and much scorned hat check—Chicago Post.

A Tokyo Incident. The Russian cathedral in Tokyo, which is a conspicuous feature in the district of the capital where it is located, has been carefully guarded by police ever since relations with Russia have been strained. When hostilities broke out precautions were redoubled. No one is now allowed to go into the building without permission.

Recently an American journalist paid a visit to the cathedral, sent in his card and was permitted to enter. The day was Sunday, the time about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

On entering the building the visitor was astonished to see a number of Japanese collected in the space beneath the dome. It turned out that a marriage service was being celebrated according to the rites of the Russian Orthodox church, the bride and bridegroom being Japanese.

It says not little for their high courage and firm faith in their religion that these people should have determined to get married in the Russian cathedral at a time when such a cloud rests upon everything Russian. It speaks still more strongly of the broad toleration of the Japanese people, who permitted the ceremony to be performed.

Maryland's Prize Mineral Exhibit At St. Louis Fair.

EXHIBIT WON 42 MEDALS

Three Are Grand Prizes Awarded To State Exhibit, Coal And Bricks—Official Announcement Much Delayed.

Dr. William Bullock Clark, head of the Maryland Geological Survey, has announced that the exhibit of Maryland's mineral resources prepared by the Survey for the World's Fair at St. Louis has been awarded the distinctive honor of a grand prize for the best collective State mineral exhibit, a grand prize for an individual exhibit of Maryland coal, and also one for bricks of Maryland clay, eight gold medals, twenty-three silver medals and eight bronze medals, forty two awards in all.

The awards in the Mines and Metallurgy Building were much delayed, and the official announcement of these prizes has only just been made by Mr. John McGibbon, secretary of the international jury of awards. The honor to this State was largely due to the care and skill which Dr. Clark and his assistants, Dr. E. B. Mathews, Dr. Harry Fielding Reid and Mr. A. N. Johnson, exercised in displaying their material to the very best advantage. A grand prize went to the Consolidation Coal Company, and another was given to the Hydraulic Pressed Brick Company, of Washington, for brick made of Maryland clay.

Of the gold medals awarded, one was given to Dr. Clark as director of the exhibit, one to the Maryland World's Fair commission for its exhibit of building stones and one each to the Maryland Geological Survey publications. Silver medals were awarded to Dr. E. B. Mathews, Dr. Harry Fielding Reid and Mr. A. N. Johnson as collaborators in the preparation of the State exhibit. The other medals were awarded to manufacturing firms of the State. The St. Louis exhibit was very largely increased over previous displays and represented the geology, mineralogy and paleontology of the State, a large display of maps, sections, photographs, publications, geological fossils, and a full illustration of the work of the highway division of the Survey.

Perhaps you are not aware of it but there are said to be in the United States 550 female carpenters, 180 woodchoppers, 200 blacksmiths, 170 brick and stone masons, 3,500 iron and steel workers, 40,000 boot and shoe makers, 180 engineers and 600 machinists. No wonder that male coats are on the increase and men forced to the polite vocation of ladies tailoring.

SALVATION OF NEGROES

Only By Their Leaving America, Says Colored Bishop. Has No Business Ability. Fared Much Better in Slavery.

The influx of immigrants into this country, for the purpose of becoming laborers, is probably the wisest measure that can be adopted for the salvation of the negro; it is the only hope of the race problem—if one exists.

These words were spoken by Bishop H. M. Turner, a negro of Atlanta, Saturday when asked what effect the immigration of laborers would have upon the negro race.

"The negro cannot live in the country with the white people for there is no bond of sympathy between them, and their life is becoming more and more unbearable every day.

"The white people are pleased to consider the negroes competitors when they are mere bubbles on the surface of a great ocean. Under such conditions the negroes cannot survive, and it will be better for them, if the immigrants enter this country and take their employment from them, compelling the negroes to leave and build a country of their own."

When asked if he thought the negroes capable of building a nation of their own, Bishop Turner said he did not consider the negro a nation building race, and complete anarchy would rule if they were left to themselves. He, however, believed that in time some form of government would be organized which would suit the negro better than his present surroundings.

MARCH TERM OF COURT

Will Have Much Work Before It, Including 73 Trials. Several Important Removed County Cases.

For the March term of the Wicomico Circuit Court which convenes Monday, a long session seems certain. On the docket are 73 trial cases, 14 appearances, 4 appeals and one recognizance, besides a number of criminal cases. A large majority of important ones are from Worcester and Dorchester as follows:

Julian Scholl & Co., sue the Mayor and Council of Snow Hill for purchase price of a road machine. The firm alleges that they contracted with the Mayor and Council to deliver a road machine at a specified time, but before date of delivery the order was cancelled. Oliver D. Collins appears for the plaintiff; Robley D. Jones and Toadvin & Bell for defendants.

Stephen A. Carter and Gertrude Carter, his wife, sue the Diamond State Telephone Company for $2,000.00 for damages alleged to have been sustained by themselves and their horse and vehicle while driving on the public road from Pocomoke City to Kleg Grange. The plaintiffs allege that while driving along the road at night their horse became entangled in the telephone wires of a pole that had blown down; and that while trying to extricate the animal and vehicle another pole blew down damaging their horse and vehicle and themselves. Robley D. Jones and Toadvin & Bell appear for the plaintiffs; Clayton J. Purnell and John W. Staton for defendants.

Asyrus L. Jones sues Benjamin S. Jones for work done and materials furnished. Robley D. Jones and Toadvin & Bell for plaintiff; Melvin & Handy for defendant.

Dorchester.

There are two removed cases from Dorchester county—one claiming $10,000 damages and the other $1,500 damages. In the first case are 27 witnesses.

William E. Holland sues the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company for $10,000 for alleged ejection from the main saloon of the steamer Enoch Pratt, while enroute from Baltimore to Cambridge, on April 2, 1904. The plaintiff alleges that he was the holder of a first class ticket on the steamer, and that the officers of the steamer forcibly ejected him from the main saloon and compelled him to remain on the freight deck during the night, much to his discomfort and humiliation. Thomas W. Simmons will appear for the plaintiff; Graham & Fitch for the defendant.

Bertha L. West and Samuel L. West, her husband, sue Perry L. Moseick for $1,500.00 damages, for losses alleged to have been sustained to their property from fire, caused by sparks from a traction engine owned by the defendant, which was passing along the road in front of the property of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs allege that considerable property was destroyed by fire by sparks from the engine. W. Laird Henry will appear for the plaintiffs; Thomas W. Simmons for the defendant.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

Reveals That "Pe-ru-na is Calculated to Tone up the System, Restore the Functions and Procure Health."

SO SAYS PROF. L. J. MILLER, CHEMIST.

"Builds up the System."
Hon. Joseph H. Ridgeway, Secretary of the American Anti-Traff Society, writes the following letter from the Grand Central Hotel, St. Paul, Minn.:

"It is with great pleasure that I endorse Peruna as an honest medicine, competent to do a few things which I have used several times and know of nothing that cures so completely, and at the same time builds up the system."

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends and always with satisfactory results. I know how satisfactory the results invariably are. I only wish every family had a bottle—it would save much sickness and doctor bills."—Joseph H. Ridgeway.

"Feel Better Than For Five Years."
Mr. James B. Taylor, Roberts, Ind., writes:

"I am at the present time entirely well. I can eat anything I ever could. I took five bottles of Peruna, and feel better now than I have for five years. I have doctored with other doctors off and on for fifteen years, so I can recommend your medicine very highly for stomach troubles. I take great pleasure in thanking you for your free advice and Peruna."—James B. Taylor.

"I Enjoy my Meals as I Used to."
Mr. J. W. Pritchard, Wolf Lake, Ind., writes:

"I am pleased to say that I have been cured of catarrh of the stomach by Peruna. I could hardly eat anything that agreed with me. Before I would get half through my meal my stomach would fill with gas causing me much distress and unpleasant feelings for an hour or two after each meal. But, thanks to your Peruna, I am now completely cured, and can eat anything I want to without any of the distressing symptoms. I can now enjoy my meals as I used to do, and it is all due to Dr. Hartman and his wonderful medicine, Peruna."

"It has been one year since I was cured, and I am all O. K. yet, so I know I am cured."—J. W. Pritchard.

Dyspepsia is a very common phase of summer catarrh. A remedy that will cure catarrh of one location will cure it anywhere. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. That it is a prompt and permanent cure for catarrh of the stomach the above letters testify.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Dispensary, Catonsville, Ohio.

Prof. L. J. Miller, late Professor of Chemistry and Botany of the High School of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes from 327 N. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"As several of my friends have spoken to me of the favorable results obtained through the use of Peruna, especially in cases of catarrh, I examined it most thoroughly to learn its contents.

"I found it composed of extracts of herbs and barks of most valuable medicinal qualities combined with other ingredients, delicately balanced, calculated to tone up the system, restore the functions and procure health.

"I consider Peruna one of the most skillfully and scientifically prepared medicines, which the public can use with safety and success."—Prof. L. J. Miller.

Make A Bare Living.

"This they are unable to do," he said, "for the average negro only makes enough money to live on, and the fare for such a trip could not be saved out of his earnings. In fact, I do not see how they make enough to live on in Savannah, for there are too many here, but I suppose this is due to the fact that a large number of them have come from the country to the city to secure protection."

Bishop Turner said he looks upon the negro as an injury to the white race, and as long as he tries to live with the whites there is no future for him, and his ultimate end will be that of the Indian—extinction. He further stated the best thing the white man could do for the negro would be to place him back in slavery, for then there would be an object in protecting him.

Fared Better In Slavery.

"The negroes fared better and lived better when slavery existed than they do now. I remember a number of cases in the old times when the slave owners engaged in duels to the death, caused by one of the parties mistreating a slave.

The white man respected and protected the negro as a slave, but he has on use for him as he is in the present day. "The negro," he said, "has not the sense to command the respect of the whites. It is an unfortunate race, and when one acquires the knowledge of how to read and write instead of employing those great requirements for his better education, he only reads things of a sensational nature. The heathen negroes of Africa have more business ability and sense than the American negroes, and the intellect of the American negro is as that of a baby when compared with the African."

"The Volunteer Organist" Next At Ulman's Opera House.

In the last act of the "Volunteer Organist," which will be seen at the Ulman Opera House, March 18th, some beautiful full-blooded St. Bernard dogs are introduced. It is the business of these noble animals to rescue from the storm a little child who has strayed from home. That the dogs understand just what is expected of them is evinced by the earnestness with which they receive the charge to find the child, and then bound out in to the raging storm.

The dogs were especially imported from Switzerland by Mr. Martell for this production, and their value would call for a check of four figures. They may be seen on the street the day of the Company's appearance here. Price 5c, 10c, 25c and $1.00.

TONGUE CAN TELL SUFFERING

From Itching and Bleeding Eczema — Pain Terrible — Body and Face Covered with Sores — Doctors and Medicines Failed.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with itching and bleeding eczema, until I was cured by the Cuticura Remedies, and I am so grateful I want the world to know, for what helped me will help others. My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment. I continued with the Soap and Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. Any person having any doubt about this wonderful cure by the Cuticura Remedies can write to my address, Mrs. Altie Elton, Bellevue, Mich."

ITCHING ECZEMA

And All Other Itching and Scaly Eruptions Cured by Cuticura. The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalded head; all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt.

Mr. Paul Scott, mine host of the old Line Hotel made our town a visit Wednesday.

Straughn Prachett of Somerset county bought recently nine mink hides on Holland Island for which he paid eight dollars. He sold them to William Barborn of Somerset for $28. Barborn resold them to Albert Wingate of Wicomico for $32. When manufactured 'tis up to some young woman to pay the furrier $50 or $75 for her own use and look happy.

Mr. J. E. McCormick, of Salisbury, representing the Standard Oil Co., and John M. Walker, of Richmond, Va., spent a couple of days at Chincoteague Island shooting. The gentleman's novices in the business succeeded in bagging a nice lot of red heads, brown bills and mallard ducks.

Mr. M., who has recently settled in our community and making the transfer of baggage his daily vocation, has developed a fondness for trading in horse flesh, and prides himself upon being a first class judge of all the fine points that are requisite and necessary for any man to know in that line of business. Mr. M.—one day last week was fully convinced that there were others who knew a thing or two in the same business and as far as heard from succeeded in carrying off both horse and honors.

Mr. Gilbert H. Bowen, one more of our old citizens, has been called to his last home and was buried in the old Buckingham cemetery last Friday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Bancroft. Mr. Bowen had attained the ripe old age of 98 years the day before he died. He had been an invalid for a number of years and waited upon and attended by his only daughter as a child. In fact the last part of his life was almost entirely helpless. Since last fall he has been making his home with Mr. and Mrs. Calvin E. Taylor and the recipient of every comfort obtainable that would render his last days as pleasant and peaceful as possible. Mr. Bowen was a dear lover of making walking sticks which he would cut and fashion with his pocket knife. There is hardly a middle aged man in the community that does not hold in his possession one or more of them as a gift from the old gentleman, and still retain as a memento. His daughter Annie is an only child that's left to mourn her loss.

The Bible And Its Teachings.

(By Rev. H. G. England.)

Calvin received an answer purporting to be from the reformed divines declining his overtures. In the sixth year of Queen Elizabeth's reign these letters were discovered, but Calvin was then dead. John Calvin wrote of the original government of the Church; "The Episcopate itself had its appointment from God. The office of a Bishop was instituted by the authority and defined by the ordinance of God." Phillip Melancthon, a Presbyterian one of the most distinguished of the Continental Reformers thus speaks of Episcopacy; "I would to God it lay in me to restore the government of Bishops, for I see what the reform of church we shall have, the Ecclesiastical polity being dissolved. I do see that hereafter there will grow up a greater tyranny in the Church than there ever was before." There are a number of distinct organizations with the Presbyterian form of Church government, and their strength is not to be estimated by count of members. Numbering less than one-tenth of all Christians, they wield a more than proportionate influence. They are strongest in most enlightened lands, and among the more intelligent classes of society. The Presbyterian churches contain noble men and women, who are of the best and worthiest of our redeemed humanity; who are strong in faith and rich in consecrated gifts, in praising whom we do honor to ourselves as well as to them. If you blot their name from the roll of the Church of God, you will do much to dim the brightness of her record. There are some who find the roots of Presbyterianism far back in the Patriarchal age, who find Presbytery full grown when God said to Moses at Horeb; "Go call the elders of Israel together;" who trace it down through all the Old Testament history; who find it in the polity of the synagogues; and assert it to have been the polity of the Apostolic Church; claiming that in the third century the dark tyranny of Episcopacy overshadowed it, and the light of Presbyterianism dwindled to a spark which flickered more brightly now and then, as in the case of the Culdees and Waldenses; and at length by the breath of the Holy Spirit was fanned into a bright and lasting blaze in the glorious Reformation age. A glorious picture truly! And if I could so read the history of Presbyterianism I would become a Presbyterian myself if it would take me in. Disbelieving the claim that Presbyterianism was the Apostolic form of Church government; and not seeing what the Old Testament eldership of the Patriarchal and Mosaic times has to do with a Christian presbyterate, I can yet concede to them a noble origin and an honorable history. Dr. Alexander Mitchell, one of the most eminent Presbyterian historians of the present day tells us that the latest historical investigations do not warrant the claim that the Culdees were Presbyterians. And as to the Waldenses they have been claimed to have an Episcopalian form of government and have also been claimed by the Baptists. The Presbyterians need not be ashamed to confess themselves the children of the Reformation age. Many have denounced Calvinism as a stern, pitiless, iron creed; and it certainly is a strong iron ribbed form of faith which has produced in its children a type of heroic Christian character—a type which the world has needed, and will ever need. Our Church as such has no grave quarrel with Calvinism, save to bear witness by a reverent silence that some of these points of doctrine are too high for our reach or solution. Standing upon the broad platform of our Church unable to accept the peculiar doctrines of Calvinism, and yet unbound to oppose them, I protested against some of the bitter and sweeping charges that are often made against Calvinism. I hear it charged that they make God the author of sin, but I cannot join in that charge when I know that from every Presbyterian pulpit God is proclaimed as a Being of infinite holiness, and inflexible justice. I hear it charged that their predilection doctrine is equivalent to sheer fatalism, a doctrine which clogs the wheels of progress, as fatalism has done in all Mohammedan countries; and yet I cannot join in that charge when I find Presbyterians standing in the forefront of all progressive movement, and are generally among the best citizens in the community. It may be that they have outgrown their historical creed and are standing on broader ground today.

While standing at the work bench Mr. Richardson was noticed to suddenly straighten up and fall backward dead. CHAPTER XXXVI.

It was springtime again in Virginia. The sky, its blue depths accentuated by the shifting clouds, was never more clear, wherever it appeared in the intervals of sunshine, nor the air more fresh and pure, even in that land famed for its bright skies and its mild climate, than it was this April day, which, with its sunshine and shower, its unregulated alternation, seemed a symbolical of life—that life of which every tender blade of grass, every verdant flower thrusting its head above the sod, seemed to speak. There were health and strength in the gentle breeze which wantonly played with the budding leaves of the great trees, already putting forth little evangelists of that splendid foliage with which they decked themselves in the full glory of summer. That merry wind which swept through the open boathouse at the end of the wharf laid a bold hand upon the curls which fell about the neck of the young girl sitting there by the door near the water on one of the benches, gazing out over the broad reaches of the quiet, ever beautiful Potomac, rippled gently by the wind under the late afternoon sun. The gallant little breeze, fragrant with balm and perfume of the trees and flowers, kissed a faint color into her pale cheek and seemed to whisper to her despondent heart in murmuring sounds that framed themselves into the immortal words "hope, hope."

The young girl had but yesterday entered upon her twentieth spring. Four months ago there had not been a merrier, lighter-hearted, gayer, more contented young maiden in Tidewater Virginia, and today she thought as she looked down at her thin hand outlined so clearly upon the vivid cardinal cloak she wore, which had dropped unheeded on the seat by her side—today she was like that man in the play of whom her father read—a grave man; no, not a man at all.

Once, in her enthusiasm, she had fondly imagined that she had possessed all those darling qualities of energy and action, those manly virtues which might have been hers by inheritance could the accident of sex have been reversed. But now she knew she was but a woman after all—so weak, so feeble, so listless. What had also left her for? Once it was her father, then it was her country; then it was her lover. Now? Nothing! Her father, at the request of congress, would soon resume his interrupted duties in France, now become more important than ever. He was a man of the world and a soldier, a diplomat.

The hard experiences of the past few months were for him episodes, exciting truly, but only part of a lifetime spent in large adventure, soon forgotten in some other strenuous part demanded by some other strenuous exigency. But she! No, she was not a man at all, but a woman, unused to such scenes and happenings as fate had lately made her a participant in. Her father might have his country, he had not lost his love; his heart was not buried out in the depths of the cruel sea. What had become of that Roman patriotism upon which she prided herself in times past? Her country! What had changed her so? There were many answers.

There was Blodgett's grave at the foot of the hill. She had played in childhood with that faithful old soldier. Many a tale had he told her of her gallant father when, as a young man, he grayly rode away to the wars, leaving her lady mother in tears behind. She could sympathize with waiting women now and understand. There, too, far away in another state, lay the lover of her girlhood's happy day—the bright eyed, eager, gallant, joyous lad. What good comrades they had been! How they had laughed and played and ridden and rowed and hunted and danced and flirted through the morning of life! How pleasant had been that life indeed! He was quiet now. She could no longer join in his ringing laugh; the sound of his voice was stilled. They might never play together again. Was there any play at all in life? That was another answer.

There was the white haired mother, the stately little royal, Madame Talbot, who had been on the hill at Fairview Hall, her ambitions, her hopes and her loyalty buried with her, leaving the place untenanted save by wistful memories. She, too, had gone.

Answers? They crowded thick upon her! There were the officers of the yearmouth, Captain Vincent, Beauchamp, Hollins and all the other officers and men with whom she had come in contact on that frightful cruise. There were the heroic men who had stayed by their ship, who had seen the favored few go away in the only boat that was left seaworthy, without a murmur at being left behind, who had faced death unheeding, unrepining, sinking down in the dark water with a cheer upon their lips. There was the patriot, too, with his unquenchable patriotism, his friend because the friend of her lover; and Phillip, her brother; and there Seymour himself. Ah, what were all the rest to him! Gone, and how she loved him!

She leaned her head upon her hand and thought of him. Here in this boathouse he had first spoken to her of his love; here she had first felt his lips touch her cheek. There, rocked gently by the light breeze, upon the water at her feet was the familiar little pleasure boat. She had not allowed any one to row her about in it since her return, in spite of much protest. It was this very creak she wore that day, nearly the very hour. The place was redolent with sweet memories of happy days, though to think of them now broke her heart.

If all came back to her as it had come again and again. She briefly reviewed that acquaintance, short though it was, which had changed the whole course of her life. She saw him again as he struck prompt to defend her drive it away and crush his heart! It might be cruel, but she had no answer, no other answer, no new word, to tell him. Her eyes filled with tears. She could not trust herself to speak; she only shook her head.

"Ah," he said, rising to his feet and throwing up his hands with a gesture of despair. "I knew it. Well, the dream is over at last. This is the end. I sought life, and found death; that, at least, if it shall come I shall welcome. Would God I had gone down with the ship! You have no pity; you let a dead image—an idea—stand between you and a living love. Will you never forget?"

"Never," she said softly. "Love knows no death. He is alive—here. But do not grieve so for me; I am not worth it. You will go away and forget, and—"

"No, you have said it, 'love knows no death.' I, too, cannot forget. As long as I live I shall love—and remember. How if I waited and waited? Katharine, I would wait forever for you," he said, suddenly catching at the trife.

"No, it would be no use. My friend, we both must suffer; it cannot be otherwise. I esteem you, respect you, admire you. You have protected me, honored me; my gratitude—She went on brokenly. "You might ask anything of me but my heart, and that is given away."

"Let me take you without it, then. I want but you."

"No, Lord Desborough, it cannot be. Do not ask me again. No! I cannot say I wish it otherwise."

"His flickering hope died away in silence. "Katharine, will you promise me, if there ever comes a time—"

"I promise," she said; "but the time will never come."

He looked at her as dying men look to the light; there was a long silence, and then he said: "I must go now, Katharine. I suppose I must bid you goodby now?"

"Yes, I think it would be best."

"I shall pass this way again on my journey to Alexandria in half an hour; may I not speak once more to you then?"

"No," she said finally, after a long pause. "I think it best that we should not see each other again. It can do no good at all. Goodby, and may God bless you."

He bent and kissed her hand and then stopped a moment and looked at her, saying never a word.

"Goodby, again," she said. On the instant he turned and left her.

"Oh, Miss Wilton, you here?"

THRILLING ESCAPE AT SEA.

Constant Battle with Sharks in Row of 300 Miles.

San Francisco.—A voyage of 200 miles by oar, almost destitute of provisions and water, and pursued by a school of giants sharks that day and size the craft and devour its occupants, was the experience of Capt. Sam Harris and four South Sea Islanders, who composed the crew of the little trading schooner Victor, wrecked on Apataki Island. Apataki is 200 miles from Papeete, the Port of Tahiti.

This is a tale of the sea brought by the liner Mariposa, just arrived, which left Papeete on the day Capt. Harris and his men landed there, emaciated and nearly crazed, but still alive.

When the Victor struck the reef, the shipwrecked crew barely had time to put off in the boat for their long voyage, made without a compass and no sail, with one day's provisions on board and half a dozen coconuts. The milk from the latter was all they had to drink during the 11 days it took to reach Papeete. The voyage was enlivened by a constant combat with the sharks. In verification of their story oars were shown splintered and worn repelling the attacks of the ferocious fish which gave them no rest.

Countess Czaykowsk.

Senator Depew's former ward has obtained a divorce. The Countess before her marriage was Miss Edith Lyman Collins. She inherited a large fortune from her grandmother, Mrs. Nevins. She was married to Roched Bey, Count Czaykowsk, the representative of a noble Polish family. The Count was considered to have a brilliant diplomatic career before him, having been secretary of the Turkish embassies at St. Petersburg and Rome.

Englishmen and Mr. Roosevelt. Looking to the decliniveness of Mr. Roosevelt's majority, Englishmen ask, with the Spectator, "What will he do with it?" That he will do nothing with it, nobody expects. Unless Englishmen are wholly out of their reckoning, Mr. Roosevelt is not the man to rest on his laurels. The conviction here is that the next years are destined to be memorable in American politics, that Mr. Roosevelt is at last "unmuzzled," that he has a free hand, and will use it freely. People in this country regard the issue of the election as a mandate to Mr. Roosevelt to continue as he has begun. The Spectator, in attempting to forecast his policy, declares that "he will guide the American ship wisely and well, and instill into every branch of the government that high sense of public duty with which he is himself inspired."

It was a wintry evening in the suburbs of Eden. Cain had written a piece about the beautiful snow, and now he read it aloud to Adam and Eve and little Seth as they sat around the kitchen stove.

Abel came in from feeding the stock to take to hear the last verses.

"The very hell for you," said he to the author, "to believe such rot. You don't have to break the ice in the well to water the steers. You don't have to dig the sheep out of a ten foot drift. You can putter around your garden in the summer and turn literary indoors in the winter, and it's all very fine."

Little Seth began to whimper. "What you need," continued Abel, "is a literary executor."

But in the fight that followed it was Abel himself who got it in the neck. Dangerous it is to jest with art.—Newark News.

An Odd Bill of Fare. Roger Crab, a London character, wagered £1,000 that he would live for a year on 3s. 6d. and won his bet. Indeed, he more than won it, for at the end of the twelve months he had managed to save threepence out of his "housekeeping money," his expenditure for food, therefore, averaging just over 3 farthings a week. For this sum even the cheapest of ordinary vegetarian diet—such as lentils, for instance—was quite out of the question, and he had to content himself with nutmeg soup thickened with acorn flour, pudding made of bran and turnip leaves chopped together, and so forth. Yet on this diet Crab not only survived, but actually gained some few pounds in weight, while as for his general health he declared that he had never felt better than he did at the termination of his self imposed ordeal.—London Standard.

A Free and Easy Cook. A woman tells a story of the impetuousness of a cook for a short time in her employ. This cook was a native American, a daughter of New Hampshire. She came armed with the usual eulogistic credentials, but apparently she had been accustomed to treatment as one of the family, like the rural "help." As soon as she arrived in the house she began asking a series of familiar and personal questions. She was answered with civility, but in the end she reached a point where civility would no longer serve. "I see you have a new cook," said the landlady, "what is her name?" "Margaret," said the friend.

"Margaret," said the landlady, "I know you'll have to call her something else while I'm here, for my name's Margaret, too."—New York

Automatic Savings. A new idea for encouraging thrift is being developed in Italy. It is nothing more or less than an automatic bank. In a cast iron pillar there are three slots. In the top one the coin is inserted—a ten centime piece. If it falls it is promptly rejected and falls out of a lower slot. If it is good, the receipt promptly drops from the third opening at the bottom of the box. So soon as the depositor has collected five or more of these receipts he can exchange them for a bank pass book at the regular savings bank and on his savings he will be paid by government interest at the rate of 4 per cent. By means of this excellent little invention the laborer is able to place a fraction of his daily wages at interest without the trouble or time incident on making a journey to the nearest postoffice, a great convenience, seeing that such banks are open only at certain hours and those not suited to the man who works with his hands.

Growth of the Churches. Despite the clutter about outworn creeds and the anxious look on the faces of amateur diagnosticians as they sit up with the church and feel its pulse the statistics are still on the side of the church. They show it vital, not moribund. The figures for practically every denomination show a percentage of growth during 1904 larger than the increase in population.—New York Globe.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: if it is cloudy, it is evidence of kidney trouble; if it is clear, it is evidence of a healthy kidney.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage.

It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

A Severe Cold for Three Months. The following letter from A. J. Nussbaum, of Batesville, Ind., tells his own story: "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. WONDERFUL SUCCESS

Of The Virginia Produce Exchange Interestingly Related by Director Thomas At The Meeting Held in Salisbury March 2.

The year of 1900, the first year of our organization there was no record kept by which I could give you the number of packages that we consigned or sold.

We had an increase of 104,418 packages over that of 1900. Estimating 190 barrels to the car, we sold during the year of 1904, 1088 and consigned 257 car loads of Irish potatoes making a total of 1297.

The total number of car loads of Irish and Sweet potatoes handled during the year of 1903 was 3,444 while the total number of cars of Irish and sweet potatoes handled during the year of 1904 was 4,008.

From the workings of our Exchange we have never come down to 25 cent potatoes. From the poverty stricken state we have developed in a well clothed and prosperous set of farmers.

We are now operating at 40 shipping points, connected at each point by phone with the main office at Onley, Va.

Any stockholder has the privilege of demanding any information as to the marketing and the prices of his produce. Each point is represented by a local agent and inspector and General Director elected by the stockholders at each point who meets at the General office with the other Directors and directs the management of the Exchange.

All books are open to the inspection of any stockholder when there is any contention. It cost us less than 5 cents per package to handle our crop last year to say nothing about the increased prices received for our produce.

Mr. Chairman, I find your Exchange organized upon the same basis as ours. You have a young man that was educated in our office upon the running of an Institution of this kind whom I know to be qualified for this work.

"The Royal Chief" At Academy of Music, Baltimore, March 20th.

Time was, and not so long ago as years are counted, when any pretensions theatrical production, heralded as hailing from any other city than New York, could expect scant consideration. During the past four years, however, fully half a score of the most notable musical comedy successes of which the stage can boast have had their premier production at Chicago.

To have been successfully presented 200 times in Chicago is a record of which any play might well be proud. The presenting company appears to have been carefully selected, including people entirely capable of properly interpreting the roles assigned them.

The book, it is said, tells a story, a reasonable story, in which theatrical license has not been over-stretched to bring it within the bounds of possibility. The music has been supplied by a composer whose previous efforts were popularly accepted, and the book is by writers of reputation.

"The Royal Chief" will come to the Academy of Music, Baltimore, for an engagement of one week, beginning March 20th, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. There will be no advance in prices during this engagement.

WHY IS IT?

You can buy horses, mares and mules at King's for less money than elsewhere. One reason is, he sells more horses than all the dealers in Baltimore combined. Another reason is, while our horse and mule business is the largest of any in Baltimore City, (stabling capacity 600 head and continuously receiving consignment from breeders all over America), it is only one branch of this immense business. We carry in stock 100 vehicles of every kind, of which a large selection is suitable for country use, at lowest factory prices. The final reason is, we are THE LARGEST COUPHED HORSE AND MULE DEALERS, LIVERYMEN, CARRIAGE, WAGON AND HARNESS MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

TO GO BEFORE PEOPLE

Next November. Court of Appeals So Decide Concerning Suffrage Amendment. Governor Directed To Proclaim It.

With all eight judges concurring in all the principal features of the decision and three dissenting in many of the essential facts of the proceedings, an opinion was handed down Thursday by the Court of Appeals in the mandamus proceedings against Governor Warfield to compel him to proclaim the Poe Constitutional election franchise amendment.

The Court held that the amendment did not require the approval and signature of the Governor, and was, therefore, legally passed and must be placed upon the ballot at the next November election. A mandamus was ordered to issue compelling the Governor to proclaim the measure by advertisement so it may be presented to the voters for adoption or rejection.

Governor No Right To Participate.

The court cites at great length opinions on proceedings instituted on lines similar to the present contention, which were handed down in Pennsylvania and Louisiana, makes use of the language of article 14 of the Maryland constitution, which states that a proposal of an amendment by the General Assembly in the form of a bill shall have its passage by three fifths of all the members elected to each house, the entry of the proposed amendment on the journal the publication by order of the Governor for at least three months before the next general election, a vote of the people, and if a majority of the voters are favorable to its adoption, a proclamation by the Governor declaring the amendment to be adopted and henceforth the amendment shall be part of the constitution.

The court holds that there is not a word or syllable to be found in any of the provisions even suggesting that the Governor is entitled to participate in any way in formulating and proposing amendments to the constitution.

Provisions For Amendment.
The amendment passed upon by the Court of Appeals was passed by the Legislature at its last session, and the vital part is as follows:

Every such male citizen of the United States having the above prescribed qualifications of age and residence shall be entitled to be registered so as to become a qualified voter if he be—

First—A person able to read any section of the Constitution of this State submitted to him by the officers of registration and to give a reasonable explanation of the same; or if unable to read such section is able to understand and give explanation thereof when read to him by the registration officers; or

Second—A person who on the first day of January, 1869, or prior thereto, was entitled to vote under the laws of this State or of any other State of the United States wherein he then resided; or Third—Any male lineal descendant of such last mentioned person who may be twenty one (21) years of age or over in the year 1906.

No person not thus qualified by coming under some one of the above descriptions shall be entitled to be registered as a qualified voter, nor be entitled to vote.

Campaign To Begin At Once.

Referring to amendment Mr. Vandiver Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee says:—

"The campaign in favor of the amendment will begin at once. In anticipation of this, ever since the last election, and before it, in fact, we have been getting ammunition ready for the battle which we felt sure was to come, and we have perfected our organization at every point. We have not wasted our powder in skirmishes before the actual declaration of hostilities, but are now ready for a general assault all along the line. The provisions and objects of the amendment have been misunderstood by many and we will endeavor to correct this misunderstanding by the circulation of literature and by speeches, some of the best orators in the country having been engaged, and I think the amendment will be adopted by a decisive majority."

Looses Part Of Leg In Railroad Accident.

James Gordy, age 15 years, son of Mr. Benjamin Gordy, met with the misfortune to lose a leg Sunday morning by attempting to jump aboard a moving freight train near Williams' siding. The train was bound south and running rapidly when the lad attempted to jump it. He missed his footing and fell, the train passing over the right leg and crushing the big toe of the left foot. He was hurriedly brought to the Peninsula General Hospital, where Dr. Morris, assisted by Drs. Slemmons and Humphreys, amputated the leg about four inches below the knee.

UPHOLDS JIM CROW

Law. Court Of Appeals Renders Decision, That Maryland Law Is Valid Inside State But Not For Interstate Travel.

The Court of Appeals Wednesday, in handing down an opinion in the case of William R. H. Hart, Colored, against the state of Maryland sustained the Jim Crow law, but held that the provisions of that measure cannot apply to interstate passengers. "We are then of the opinion that, although the act of 1904, chapter 109, of the laws of Maryland, is valid in so far as it affects commerce wholly within the state, it is invalid as to interstate passengers, and must be construed as not applying to them."

Law Is A Proper One.

The court states in the course of the opinion, which is a lengthy one, and which deals with the measure very thoroughly, that the Jim Crow law is a very proper one, and that even in the absence of such a statute the railroad and steamboat companies doing business in Maryland would be justified in providing for and enforcing a separation of their passengers according to color. This stand is taken on the ground that there is more or less race prejudice in the state, which has a tendency to provoke disorder under certain circumstances, and that the law's prime purpose is to safeguard the community against the commission of acts of disorder, that being preferable to countenancing means of provoking disorder and then quelling the overt acts.

Hart is a colored school teacher in Washington, and was arrested and fined in Cecil county, Md., while he was a passenger between Philadelphia and Washington on the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad. When the train crossed the Maryland line he was ordered to leave the apartment assigned to white people and refused to do so. He was thereupon taken off the train and hauled before an Eikton magistrate, who fined him $5. He appealed his case, and it was argued before the Court of Appeals on January 17 last.

Argument Against Validity.

State Senator Henry M. McCullough of Cecil, who was the counsel for the appellant, made a strong argument against the validity of the whole Jim Crow law. It was based on the contention that under the Constitution of the United States exclusive power was reserved to the federal government to regulate commerce between the states, and that in so far as it applied to interstate passengers the law was invalid. It was further argued that if it was held that the law did not apply as between states, then the appellant, being an interstate passenger, had committed no offense.

Attorney General William S. Bryan, Jr., upheld the law as a valid exercise of the police powers of a state. He claimed that the state would be helpless to protect itself if it had no power to pass such laws as the Legislature regarded as proper for the protection of its peace and good order from those coming from other states. The decision of the Court of Appeals over-rules the construction put on the law by the lower court.

SALISBURY DISTRICT

Report At The Annual Wilmington Conference Made By Rev. Mr. Stengle Shows Good Results—A Resume.

Presiding Elder, Rev. Adam Stengle made an excellent report of Salisbury District at the M. E. Conference at Wilmington last week.

He spoke of the severity of the winter and declared that the weather had retarded both spiritual and financial work. Allusion was made to the salaries paid the ministers on the district, and the presiding elder expressed the opinion that a minister could do better work when properly paid. One change has raised the salary of its pastor and one has reduced the salary.

It was declared that in many instances church records were not properly kept and in some cases it is not known whether the trustees are incorporated.

Attention was called to the fact that it was a mistake for the churches to postpone their benevolent collections until the winter season, which is an inopportune time for the work.

Church property has received attention and a number of old church debts were paid. More than $8,000 were paid on old debts. Improvements to church property were made at a cost of more than $8,000. Reference was made to the fine new churches at Delmar and Pocomoke City. Personal notice of the work of the pastors was not given in the report, but Presiding Elder Stengle declared that all the ministers on the district had done good and earnest work. Mr. Stengle spoke of the church at Pocomoke City, under the direction of the Rev. J. E. Poole. The church cost $16,000 and conference is invited to hold its next session there.

A number of the churches on the district are preparing to erect new buildings. Some congregations, including this field, Sharptown and others, have raised considerable money toward the projects. The Ladies' Aid Society has done excellent work in all parts of the district, and has raised more than $5,000 for church purposes. The young people's societies are also doing good work, and there is an Epworth League in most of the churches. Special efforts should be made, he said, to enlist and retain the young people.

There are 34 chapters of the League and 23 Junior Leagues in the district. Revivals were held in all the 110 stations in the district. Good work was done at all these meetings. At Franklin City, I. B. Hancock, a local preacher, during the illness of the pastor, held a revival and 106 conversions were reported. At Delmar there were more than 100 conversions. A number of other places reported a considerable number of conversions, and the total number exceeded 1800.

Presiding Elder Stengle referred to the temperance question. He declared that there were only nine licensed places in Delaware portion of the district. Notable victories have been won in a number of places.

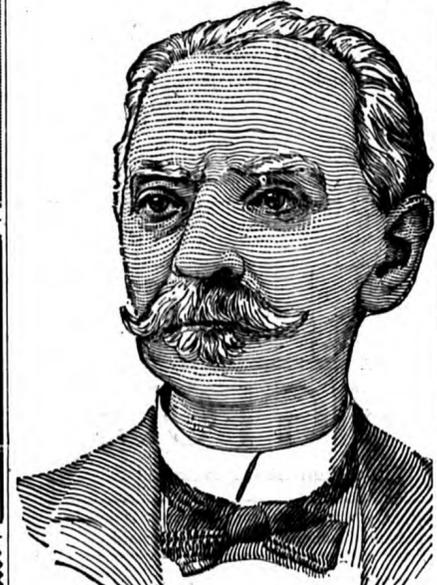

The new hospital at Salisbury was spoken of, and a high tribute paid to those who were responsible for its erection. The hospital was the gift of W. H. Jackson, an official member of the M. E. Church.

In conclusion, Dr. Stengle declared that the church was growing and not losing ground as so many declare.

Bishop Goodsell commented briefly upon the report. He spoke particularly of the remarks of Mr. Stengle that he had avoided praising the ministers on his district except in general way, and thought it was unwise to make such allusions. The bishop also agreed with Dr. Stengle that Christianity is not losing ground. The world is better now than it has been.

JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT

Was Alarmingly Afflicted With La Grippe. Cured by Pe-ru-na.

HON. W. H. PARSONS.

Pe-ru-na cures more cases of la grippe than all other remedies combined.

W. H. Parsons is Ex-State Senator and Ex-Special Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas, also Brigadier-General in Confederate Army. In a recent letter from 925 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., this prominent gentleman says:

"Upon the recommendation of personal friends and many strong testimonials as to the efficacy of Peruna in the treatment of the numerous symptoms of the grippe with which I have been afflicted for four months past, I have been induced to undergo a treatment with this justly celebrated formula. I feel a decided change for the better after using it only one week. It is especially good in toning up the stomach and has had a decided effect upon my appetite. I therefore feel much encouraged that I am on the road to complete restoration."

"My numerous friends in Texas, where I have had the honor to command a brigade of her Veteran Cavalry in a four years' war, may accept this voluntary testimonial to the merits of Peruna as a sense of obligation on my part for its wonderful efficacy."—W. H. Parsons.

reaches the source of all diseases of the mucous membranes by its action on the vaso-motor system of nerves.

Every person who has had la grippe during the last year should take a course of Peruna. No one need expect perfect recovery unless they do so. The grippe has produced catarrhal inflammation of the whole mucous membrane, and good health is impossible until these are restored to a normal condition. This Peruna will do. A great many remedies have been suggested for this condition from time to time, but Peruna appears to be the only remedy that has any substantial value in these cases. It has never failed to give satisfaction during forty years' experience and still occupies the unique position of being the leading (if not the only) specific remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

Henry Distin, the inventor and maker of all the hand instruments for the Henry Distin Manufacturing Co., writes the following from 1441 South Ninth street, Philadelphia, Pa.:

"I had a bad attack of la grippe last December which lasted more than three months, and which left me with catarrh, and several of my friends advised me to try Peruna. I began with a bottle the first week in March and it certainly did me a great deal of good. I was so well satisfied that I purchased another bottle and followed the directions, and can say that it has cured me."—Henry Distin.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

A reward of $10,000 has been deposited in the Market Exchange Bank, Columbus, Ohio, as a guarantee that the above testimonial is genuine; that we hold in our possession authentic letters certifying to the same. Every one of our testimonials are genuine and in the words of the one whose name is appended.

EMA ON LITTLE GIRL

Sleepless Nights for Mother and Awful Suffering of Child.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Had Given up All Hope of Ever Making Any Cure.

Mrs. L. E. Jones, Addington, Ind. T., writes: "My little girl had been suffering for two years from eczema, and during that time I could not get a night's sleep, as her ailment was very severe. I had tried so many remedies and spent so much money, deriving no benefit, I had given up all hope of making any cure. As a last resort I was persuaded to try Cuticura, and to my great delight a marked change was manifested from the first application. I gave the child a bath with Cuticura Soap, using a soft piece of muslin cloth. This I did twice a day, each time following with Cuticura Ointment, and at the same time gave the Resolvent, according to directions. One box of Ointment and two bottles of the Resolvent, together with the Soap, effected a permanent cure. I submit this for publication, hoping it will assist other sufferers in curing themselves."

The Czar's salary is something like $7,500,000 a year yet at the present would be more than pleased to have some one take the job off his hands, at least for the present.

Dr. Baggett who has been closely confined to his Ocean City office the past winter, enjoyed a most delightful trip to Washington City and a visit to his family there. The Doctor had the pleasure of renewing the acquaintance of many old friends.

Gen. Bryan has been asked to assist in the prosecution of the case against Simpers charged with the Constable murder which will begin in Elkton, March 27th.

A coterie of old friends were most hospitably entertained by Mr. George Scott last Sunday for dinner. Mr. Harry Dale and Leó Timmons of Whaleyville and Jerry Campbell, Berlin. To their regret Dr. Ira C. Tyndall who was also one of the invited was unable to put in his appearance tho' his inclination was good and he had the joyous board throughout his day's practice. 'Tis to be hoped his patients will be visited with no great calamity or be held responsible for the doctor's non attendance.

A little boy was bounding his rubber ball round the counter of carefully arranged pieces of hog-cow-steer lamb and calf. The father who had been a close observer of its leaps and bounds remarked to himself, "meats and bounds meats and bounds, there ought to be an awful good gag somers in that," but guessed he did not have book learning enough to get it up.

The late Russian Army forcibly reminds of one of many of our Maryland legislators. It shows the greatest reluctance to give up a pass.

One of neighboring county school teachers took an unruly pupil across her knee and padded the youngster until his pants actually smoked. The boy had a hip pocket filled with matches which ignited under the severe pressure and a small conflagration only averted by pouring a dipper of water in his pocket. Nine out of ten school boys nowadays are more or less filled with old Lucifer which requires constant and prompt attention.

Sheriff Lankford administered twenty lashes on the bare back of Levin White, colored, Tuesday afternoon in jail. The charge was beating his wife and received his just deserts.

One of the latest announcements from Wilmington, N. C., is that Mr. John R. Kenly will retire from the general management of the Atlantic Coast-line Railway to devote his entire attention to the duties of fourth vice-president of the same system. Mr. Kenly is a brother of Mr. E. G. Kenly at Malvern farm, this county and also an uncle of Mr. Glenn Kenly, who is with his uncle in North Carolina, and bids fair to make in the near future a railroad man himself. Success to him.

Our esteemed contemporary the New York News, reported last week that several departments of the Carnegie Steel Plant at Homestead, Pa., were closed on account of the absence of workmen. Industrial peace prevails in that section neither strike or lock-out reported and the community's health as good as usual. The plant superintendent was puzzled and upon investigation discovered that the stork had visited 31 families and the population proportionally increased. An item of news that ought to afford our President infinite satisfaction.

Mr. Thomas G. Hanley, we much regret to report is confined to the house and sick with the grip. A few days of quietude and rest, tho' a little irksome will no doubt prove beneficial.

Mr. Andrew Powell has this season joined one of the numerous crews that are fishing for sturgeon and left Monday for Chincoteague.

Without losing a single animal, seven shepherds recently drove a flock of 14,000 sheep from Manngau to Nabre, New South Wales, a distance of 900 miles.

Mrs. J. C. Drickson, who has been wintering in Baltimore since Xmas, returned this week accompanied by Mrs. Edward Tyler, her daughter. Mrs. Tyler is only paying a flying visit and will return to Baltimore Saturday.

Miss Adelene Hammond, editress of the Cathedral school Magazine, Washington City, is a most welcome guest at the home of her grand mother, Mrs. Esther Hammond on Main street.

Mrs. Clayton J. Parnell, of Snow Hill, was reported today critically ill with pneumonia.

Cap. John Long, of Frankford, passed through our town Monday with a drove of mules for sale through the lower part of the county and Virginia.

Cap. Long has been a dealer in cattle and horses for years very successfully. His last addition is a new venture entirely.

Mr. E. W. McMaster, of Pocomoke City, spent Wednesday night in Berlin.

Miss Lillian Duncan, New Hope, is a guest for a week of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor on Bay street.

The toothsome shad is now said to be more abundant in San Francisco Bay than anywhere on the Atlantic coast.

The latest fad among the Parisian Aristocracy is said to be visiting cards for their pet dogs, with monogram attachment, Boston and New York will be heard from later.

While walking along the shore of Silver Lake near Akron, Ohio, George Lodge stumbled upon a billet of pure silver. On further investigation he and his brother dug out 26 more, making a ton in all. An old citizen told how they were placed there by Indians just before the battle of Tippecanoe, who dumped this hoard into the water for safe keeping.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

TWO weary horsemen on tired horses were slowly riding up the river road just where it entered the Wilton plantation. One was young, a mere boy in years; but a certain habit of command, with the responsibility accompanying, had given him a more manly appearance than his age warranted. The other, to a casual glance, seemed much older than his companion, though closer inspection would show that he was still a young man and that those marks upon his face which the careless passerby would consider the attributes of age had been traced by the fingers of grief and trouble. The bronzed and weather-beaten faces of both riders bespoke an open air life and suggested those who go down upon the great deep in ships, a suggestion further borne out by the faded, worn naval uniforms they wore.

In spite of the joy of springtime which was all about them, both were silent and both were sad. But the sadness of the boy, as was natural, was less deep, less intense, than that of the man. He was too young to realize the greatness of the loss he had sustained in the death of his father and sister, and were it not for the constant reminder afforded him by the presence of his gloomy companion he would probably, with the careless elasticity of youth, have been more successful in throwing off his own sorrow. The man had not lost a father or a sister, but some one dearer still. He looked thin and ill, and under the permanent bronze of his countenance the ravages wrought by fever, wounds and long illness were plainly perceptible. They were gray hairs in his thick, neatly tied locks, too, that had no rightful place there in one of his age. The younger and stronger assisted and watched over his older companion with the tenderest care and attention.

They rode slowly up the pleasant road under the great trees, from time to time engaging in a desultory conversation. Philip endeavored to cheer his companion by talking lightly of boyhood days as each turn of the road brought familiar places in the old estate in view. Here he and Katharine and Hilary had been wont to play; there was a favorite spot, a pleasant haunt here; this had been the scene of some amusing adventure. These well meant reminiscences nearly drove Seymour mad, but he would not stop them. Finally they came to the place where the road divided, one branch pursuing its course along the river bank past the boathouse toward the Talbot place, the other turning inland from the river and winding about till it surmounted the high bluff and reached the door of the Hall. There Philip drew rein. "This is the way to the Hall, you know, Captain Seymour," he said, pointing to the right. Seymour hesitated a moment and said finally: "Yes, I know. The boathouse lies over there, does it not, beyond the turn? I think I will let you go up to the house alone, Philip, and I will go down to the boathouse myself. I will be back presently."

"Well, then, I will go with you," said Philip. "I really think you are too weak, you know, especially after our long ride today, to go alone."

"No, Philip," said Seymour gently. "I wish to be alone for a few moments."

The boy hesitated. "Oh, very well," he said, beginning to understand, "I will sit down here on this tree by the road and wait for you. I'll tie my horse, and you can leave yours here also if you wish. There is nothing at the Hall, God knows, to make me hurry up there now, since father and Katharine are gone," he continued, with a sigh. "Go on, sir. I'll wait. You won't mind my waiting?"

"No; certainly not. If you wish it. I shall be back in a few minutes anyway. I just want to see the—the boathouse, you know."

"Yes, certainly, I understand, of course," replied Philip bluntly, but carefully looking away, and then dismounting from his tired horse and assisting Seymour to do the same from his.

"Poor old fellow!" he murmured as he saw the man walk haltingly and painfully up the road and disappear around the little bend. Left to himself, Seymour stumbled alone along the familiar road over which a few short months before he had traveled light heartedly by the side of Katharine. As he pressed on, he noticed a man leave the boathouse and climb slowly up the hill. Desirous of escaping the notice of the stranger, who, he supposed, might be the factor or agent of the plantation, he waited in the shadow of the trees until the man disappeared over the brow of the hill, and then he staggered on. A short time after he stood on the landward end of the little pier, and then his heart stood still for a second and then leaped madly in his breast as he seemed to hear a subtle voice, like an echo of the past, which whispered his name, "Seymour, Seymour!"

Stepping toward the middle of the pier so that he could see the interior of the boathouse through the inner door, his eyes fell upon the figure of a woman standing in the other doorway looking out over the water, stretching out her hands. The sun had set by this time, and the gray dusk of the evening was stealing over the river. He could not see distinctly, but there was light enough to show him a familiar scarlet cloak at her feet, and, although her back was turned to him, he recognized the graceful outlines of her slender figure. It was Katharine or a dream! But could the dead return again? Had the sea given up her dead indeed?

He could not believe the evidence of his bewildered senses. It might be a hallucination, the baseless fabric of a vision, some image conjured from the deep recess of his loving heart by his enfeebled, disordered imagination, and yet he surely had heard a living voice. "Seymour—John—oh, my love!" Sighing the beating of his heart, heathing his breath even, stepping boldly lest he should frighten the slight vision, he staggered to the door and stood gazing; then he whispered one word: "Katharine!"

It was only a whisper she heard, but it reached the very center of her being. "Katharine!" he said softly again, with so much passionate entreaty in his wistful voice that under its compelling influence she slowly turned and looked toward the other door from whence the sound had come. Then as she saw him, lifting one hand to her head, while the other unconsciously sought her heart, she shrank back against the wall and stared at him in joyless terror. He dropped unsteadily to his knees, as if to worship at a shrine.

"Oh, do not go away!" he whispered. "I know it is only a dream of mine, so many times have I seen you ever since the night the frigate struck and I sent you to your death on that rocky pass in that beating sea. Aye, in the long hours of the fever—but you did not shrink away from me then; you listened to me say I love you, and you answered. He stretched out his hand toward her in tender appeal. She bent forward toward him. He rose to his feet, half in terror.

"Kate," he said uncertainly, "is it indeed you? Are you alive again?" She was nearer now. One glad cry broke from her lips. He was in her arms again and she was clasped to his heart—a real woman and no dream, no vision! What the wind could only faintly shadow forth upon her cheek, sprang into life under the touch of his fevered lips, and color flooded them like a wave. Laughing, crying, sobbing, she clung to him, kissed him with little incoherent murmurs, gazed at him, wept over him, kissed him again. All the trouble of the intervening days of sadness and privation faded away from her like a doused chrysalis, and she sparkled with life and love like a butterfly new born.

He that was dead was alive again; he had come back and he was here! As for him, in fearful surprise, he held her to his breast once more, still unbelieving. She noticed then an empty sleeve and raised it tenderly to her lips. "I lost it after an action with the British ship Yarmouth. It was only a flesh wound at first. We were long in reaching Charleston. The arm had to be amputated. It was a fearful action."

"I know it," she interrupted. "I was there."

"You, Katharine! Ah, that woman on the ship! I was not deceived then, and yet I could not believe it!"

"Yes, 'twas I. I gloried in your bravery until I saw you lying, as I thought, dead on the deck. Oh, John, the horror of that moment! Then I called you and you did not answer. Then I wanted to die, too, but now I am alive again and so happy—but for this." She lifted the empty sleeve to her lips. "How you must have suffered, my poor darling," she went on, her eyes filling with tears, her heart yearning over him. "And how ill you look, and how you stand here—how thoughtless! Come to the bench here and sit down. Lean on me."

"Nay, but Kate, you, too, have suffered. See!" He lifted her arm; the loose sleeve fell back. "Oh, how thin it is, and how smooth and round and plump it was when I kissed it last!" he said as he raised it tenderly again to his lips.

"It is nothing, John. I shall be all right now that you are here. You poor shattered lover, how you must have suffered!" she went on, with a sob in her voice.

"Oh, Katharine, this," looking down at his empty sleeve, "was nothing to what I suffered before, when I thought I had killed you!"

"When you thought you had killed me," she said in surprise. They were sitting close together now, and she had his hand in both her own. "How, when, was that?"

And then he told her rapidly about the loss of the Radnor and the idea which her note had given that she was on board of it.

"And you led that ship down to destruction, believing I was on her! How could you do it, John?" she said reproachfully.

"It was my duty, darling Kate," he said desperately.

"And did you love your duty more than me?"

has been spending the days of his captivity with us. He was exchanged to-day and leaves tonight."

"Katharine, he was in love with you," he said, with what seemed to him marvelous perspicacity. "Yes, John," she answered, still smiling. "Was he making love to you here?" "Yes."

"And you? You praise this man; you like him; you—"

"I think him the bravest man, the truest gentleman in the world—except this one," she said, laying her hand upon his shoulder and her head upon his breast. "No, no; he pleaded in vain. I only pitied him. I loved you. Do not be jealous, foolish boy. No one should have me. I am yours alone."

Kitchener's Rapid Rise.
General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, commander in chief in India, has just entered upon his thirty-fifth year of army service, he having joined the royal engineers as a lieutenant Jan. 4, 1871. He remained exactly twelve years a lieutenant, being promoted to captain Jan. 4, 1883. From that point his promotion was somewhat rapid, he passing through the ranks of major and lieutenant colonel to that of colonel in little more than five years, his colonelcy being dated April, 1888. He became major general in 1896, lieutenant general in December, 1899, and general in June, 1902. Lord Kitchener is now in his fifty-fifth year.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.
Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose. Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials, received from sufferers cured. FOLEY'S HONEY and TAR CURES Coughs and Colds PREVENTS Pneumonia and Consumption

Foley's Honey and Tar not only stops the cough, but heals and strengthens the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold.

There is no danger of Pneumonia, Consumption or other serious lung trouble if Foley's Honey and Tar is taken, as it will cure the most stubborn coughs—the dangerous kind that settles on the lungs and may develop into pneumonia over night.

If you have a cough or cold do not risk Pneumonia when Foley's Honey and Tar will cure you quickly and strengthen your lungs.

Remember the name — Foley's Honey and Tar—and refuse any substitute offered. Do not take chances with some unknown preparation that costs you the same when you can get Foley's Honey and Tar, that costs you no more and is safe and certain in results. Contains no opiates.

Cured After Physicians Said He Had Consumption.
E. H. Jones, Pastor M. E. Church, Grove, Md., writes: "About seven or eight years ago I had a very severe cold which physicians said was very near pneumonia, and which they afterwards pronounced consumption. Through a friend I was induced to try a sample of Foley's Honey and Tar, which gave me so much relief that I bought some of the regular size. Two or three bottles cured me of what the physicians called consumption, and I have never had any trouble with my throat or lungs since that time."

Three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50 cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much.

NEW THOUGHTS.

...growing more attractive as you grow in life?

"Healthy body," says Dr. R. V. Pierce, "is the special life in woman's disease of Buffalo, N. Y. and a healthy mind, and everyone can cultivate and enjoy happiness."

We must eat properly and digest it. It is a fact that any form of dyspepsia may in a few days transform a clear, white skin into a mass of pimples and black spots. A beautiful woman has the beauty of her stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures every medicinal disease by enabling one to eat, rest, digest and assimilate the proper nutritious food. It overcomes the gastric irritability and symptoms of indigestion, and thus the person is saved from those symptoms of fever, night-sweats, headache, etc., which are so common in stomach made up largely of alcohol will shrink the corpulence of the blood and make them weaker for resistance.

"It is to certify that I have used Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, think it the greatest medicine in the world," writes Mrs. W. J. Young, of New York. "I had dyspepsia in the worst form. I decided to try your medicine. I used it as directed and in a few days my own housework. A number of my friends also are using Dr. Pierce's medicine and they recommend it highly. May God bless you in your great work."

Dr. Pierce believes that a tonic made with alcohol will shrink the red blood corpuscles and make the system weak for resistance. That is why he avoided the use of any alcohol or narcotic in his "Medical Discovery," which contains the pure extract of iron roots and herbs without a particle of alcohol.

Accept a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for dyspepsia or debility.

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Calmage Sermon

By Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 19.—What the whole world esteems, yet what only the few strive for; what a man reverences and values as priceless, yet often flings away, and what every one wishes to bequeath to his children is the subject of today's sermon, the text chosen being Proverbs xxii, 1, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches."

What is capital? "Money, property or stock employed in trade, manufacture, etc., the sum invested or lent as distinguished from the income or interest." is the definition given by the lexicographer. It is wealth producing wealth, not wealth being absorbed or being eaten up by expenses. When Clarence Bowen, the New York editor and multimillionaire, was a young man he put his savings in a bank for safe keeping. When he went to draw that money out he received a certain amount of extra money. "What is that for?" asked the young man. "This is interest money," said the cashier. "This is money earned by money." "Then," said Bowen, "if money earns money, the more I save the more I will earn." The money Clarence Bowen put away in bank at interest was his capital.

But capital, according to the lexicographer's definition, is not represented in gold ingots or coin only. I climb with the miner in Colorado or Nevada. He points to some rock and says, "There are millions of dollars worth of gold buried here." "Why do you not get it out?" "Because," he answers, "I have no capital. I must have machinery to break the rocks; I must have miners to burrow into your depths; I must have money to cart away my ore to the smelting furnace. Money must be had before you can produce money."

I go into a store and see at work the busy manager of a great mercantile firm. I say to him, "Why are you working for others? Why do you not work for yourself? If you are smart enough to manage a business for other men, certainly you are smart enough to manage a business for yourself." "Aye, aye," answers the manager; "that is true. But I have not the money to start a business like this. I must have hundreds of thousands of dollars to sink before I can make a cent. I must buy my goods from the wholesale dealer before I can sell them to my customers. I must rent a store and hire clerks and spend enormous sums for advertising. All these outlays demand a large amount of capital."

Capital represents the seed and the land, to use an illustration of the farm. Income represents the harvest. The farmer must own or hire his farm and plant his seed before he can get his harvest, or his income. Now, as the farmer and the miner's machinery and the merchant's stock are nearly always valued from the standpoint of money, it is a common custom to give these sentences as truisms: "It takes money to make money." "Everything animate as well as inanimate will bow before the scepter of gold." "Midas' touch has in his hand the grip of iron." But today the author of my text emphatically says: "The best producing capital a man ever had in life is a good name. It is better than all the silver of the Leadville mines, than all the diamonds of Golconda, than all the gold of the Comstock bonanza, than all the pearls of the Persian gulf. Pile up the gold ingots of the United States treasury vaults on one side of the scale and put a good name on the other side of the scale, and the good name will outweigh the gold." If a good name is such a priceless treasure, let us begin to study why its wealth is of such vast value. Its producing capital must be and is enormous. If it were not so, King Solomon, up to his time the wealthiest as well as the wisest man who ever lived, would not have made this inspired statement in his book of Proverbs.

Value of a Good Name.

A good name, in the first place, is not a pauper. Her mansion is not the poorhouse, and her wardrobe is not filled with rags. Her family plot is not a potter's field. As a rule, she has a comfortable house to live in. Her sitting room has a glowing fireplace. Her library shelves are filled with books. "She is not afraid of the snow for her household, for all her household are clothed with scarlet." "She is like the merchant ships—she bringeth her food from afar." "Her husband is known in the gates when he sitteth among the elders of the land." For what her hand findeth to do she doeth with all her might. She gathereth the rowsel of an earnest and practical industry. She inevitably giveth to the holder of her family name all the necessities for a happy competency and a beautiful physical and mental existence.

You can see this fact demonstrated in almost every department of life. "Honesty is the best policy," whether it is found within church walls or down in the busy commercial section of a great city. My text does not say, "Be good, and you will be financially poor." Oh, no! If it did, that statement would not be true. It would not be true in professional life. In mercantile life or in domestic life. I go to you and say: "Why is Judge So-and-so the leader of the brilliant bar of one of our great cities? They tell me that his practice is worth $50,000 a year. He never impressed me as one who had a very brilliant mind." "No," you answer, "he has not. He is not a Rufus Choate nor a William Wirt nor an Edmund Randolph nor a Pinckney. He is, however, a good, fair lawyer. But, above all, he is an honest man. On account of his honesty his clients leave their property to him as their executor, often without bonds. When they know his chief purpose is to keep them out of the law courts rather than to push them in. Others lawyers may be more brilliant mentally, but Judge So-and-so holds his clients to him by links of steel. They all know he will look after their interests as though they were his own."

Why does your family physician have such a large practice? You trust him not only as a good doctor, but as an honest man. You know when he is called he will not put you to bed for an attack of grip and call it pneumonia and charge you $100 to cure you of a disease you never had. You know he will not run up useless bills against you, as some dishonest dentists do, who, if they cannot find any cavities in your teeth, will bore holes into them just to send you a bill to make you support them and their families. You know that yonder merchant has a large business not because he offers better goods than his rivals, but because you can believe his statements in reference to those goods. Indeed, I go further than my original assertion in reference to my text. A good name is more often found in a comfortable home than it is in a hotel.

Where Good Names Are Found.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added unto you." That means clothing, food, home, education. As a rule, all these blessings accompany the industry of a good name. In order to win a good name, sacrifices you will have to make. In order to win the battle of Waterloo, Wellington had to make awful sacrifices. A short time after his famous conquest the English commander wrote to a dear friend as follows: "What do you think of the total defeat of Bonaparte by the British army? Never was there in the annals of the world so desperate or so hard fought an action as such a distant. It was really the battle of the world. My heart is broken by the terrible loss I have sustained, of my old friends and companions and my poor soldiers." In the battle of Waterloo, in which you have to struggle for a good name, you will have to make many sacrifices, as did Wellington. But, as a rule, you will not have to suffer poverty, hunger, homelessness and cold. A good name is won by industry, frugality, purity, honesty and doing with all your heart and might what your hand finds to do. These characteristics of man, earnestly and faithfully followed through life, will inevitably land a man in a better place than the poorhouse or potter's field. It does not follow because you are financially poor that you are holy; it does not follow because you live in a palace that you are a rascal. Beau Brummel died a pauper; Peter Cooper lived in a rich man's mansion.

But a good name does more than pay your butcher's and baker's and grocer's and clothes' bills. It does more than give you a title deed to the house in which you live. It offers to you the most priceless gift on earth, next to the gift of Jesus Christ, the love of your family and your friends and the love and respect of the community in which you live. There is an old proverb which says: "A man cannot live on love alone. When poverty knocks at the door love flies out of the window." "Poor proverb! That the richest home on earth where love is not poorer than the poorest man's hovel where love dwells." The love of the community is yours if you will open it with the deeds and loves of a good man.

If you were a great man, a truly great man, I could not say this. One of the heavy prices a truly great man, as a rule, has to pay for his greatness is to suffer misrepresentation and slander and hate. Most of the contemporaries of John Milton never could appreciate the true worth of the blind sage, who in the black exile of national contempt had to go to his study for comfort and to his study for more of the glorious books that the two eyes of any inspired writer have ever seen since apostolic times. Many a solid statue in Westminster abbey could be washed as white as the driven snow if it were only possible to collect all the tears which once fell from the eyes of those whose bodies are now sleeping under yonder cold marble. Those tears were shed in the days of neglect and ostracism and poverty. Only the other day I ran across an editorial written by one of the most famous of northern writers, who afterward became one of the greatest eulogists of our martyred president Abraham Lincoln. This editorial was written in the heat of the civil war. "A man who would go down to Washington and shoot the stupid fool in the White House would be conferring an inestimable service on the American people were it not for the fact there was a bigger blockhead in the vice presidential chair." Ah, yes, the bitterest of execrations were hurled at Lincoln while he was alive, as the most fulsome of eulogies are given to him now he is dead.

The Innateness of the Public.

Though the world often has been unjust and bitter to the great men, I have always felt that this persecution and this bitterness were not due, as a rule, to the innate meanness of the human race, but rather to its inability at certain times to appreciate the heroes and heroines who were sacrificing their lives for the good of their fellow men. But, my friend, you need not be afraid that the world will be unkind to you. Let your good works be known. If you are any good works, you are not a great warrior, a great statesman, a great reformer. You are only an ordinary man, living an ordinary life in an ordinary place. Therefore if you are kind and loving and gentle and forgiving and helpful to your fellow men they will be kind and loving and forgiving and gentle and helpful to you. Why? Because each day of your life you come into personal touch with your little world, and the friends and the people of your community see you just as you are.

Would you not like to be loved by the people of the community in which you live? When you go to sleep tonight, would you not like to feel that some tired, sick woman who is tossing around on her bed unable to sleep is thinking of you with good cheer you brought her the afternoon by your visit and is saying, "God bless you, God bless you?" Would you not like to have people always speaking your name and saying, "No one is ever in trouble, but he is ready to help them if he can?" You can win this love if you will. Come, get a good name for kindness and love. Come, make the people by whom you are surrounded love you. The love of those with whom we come in contact is one of the most precious boons offered by heaven, whether he lives in a palace or a hut.

Taking another step forward in my subject, I declare that a good name is the most glorious of all inheritances which a man can leave to his children. It means more, infinitely more, than gold. It means more than fame, more than social position, more than landed estate. It means more than anything else on earth that you can give. Most of us want to leave our children the best we can. We must not forget to give them this treasure, which is of more value "than great riches."

The Greatest of Inheritances.

How can parents financially poor leave to their children the greatest of inheritances? Let me explain more in detail. The adjective "good" comes from the substantive "God." To be "good" in the highest sense means to be "goodlike" or "like Christ." Therefore, when a father bequeaths to his child a "good" name, he gives to him, in the highest sense, a Christ-like name and strength. He seems to step to his boy's side and put his hand in his boy's hand and say: "My son, I want you to come with me and kneel in prayer. I want you to come with me and learn to read the promises of God in his holy book. My son, when sinners entice thee I want to tell you where I have found strength in the past to resist temptations. And when sorrows come, as come they will, I want you to learn to say, 'God is my refuge and strength.' Side by side with the children the Christian parents walk. Side by side they go with them through life. Long after the parents have piloted their heads in the dust the memories of their good names or their Christian examples live on to guide their offspring. Are you not going to leave to your children the inheritance of a good name or a Christian example, such an inheritance as that which your fathers and mothers left to you? If any young man and woman need to be held to the cross of Christ by the Christian example of a parent's life, trusting in God and being with God, those children of yours need it. They have exactly the same kind of temperament that you have. They are high strung. They are impulsive. They can be easily swept off their feet by success and discouraged by defeat. What are they going to do in "the swellings of the Jordan"? My brother, even with all the advantages of the Christian surroundings of your boyhood, if any young man and woman need to be held to the cross of Christ by the Christian example of a parent's life, trusting in God and being with God, those children of yours need it. There are some women who seem to be perennially youthful. The grown daughters are companions as well as children, and the color in the mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the roundness of her form, all speak of abounding health. What is her secret? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has only ripened her charms. The secret of this marvellous health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of woman is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate female organs, that where these are diseased, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" dries the debilitating drags, heals ulceration and inflammation, cures female weakness and imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Women who have lost their health and their beauty have been made "robust and rosy checked" by the use of this marvellous medicine.

Letter to Duddy Bros., Salisbury, Md.

Dear Sirs:—You sell a good many things by the gallon. Being a decent man, you give full measure.

You know what we mean: you know that short weight and short measure are common among well-meaning men who have no short measures and weights in your town.

There are, though, Ribbons and laces and trimmings, sold by the "dozen," measure nine or ten years. There is no complaint, because "they all do it." You have the same plague in your goods—nearly everything, canned or bottled, cheats in the quantity. Almost nobody gives full weight in a factory package!

We are one of the almost nobodies. We sell paint, by the gallon, to paint your house; and our gallon is just the same size as yours that you measure vinegar with—281 cubic inches.

Good paint too—Devoe lead-and-zinc—takes fewer gallons than mixed paint and wears twice as long as lead-and-oil.

You own a house. That's why we are writing to you. Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & CO. P. S. The L. W. Gunby Co., sell our paint.

To Cure a Cough take Hanson's English Cough Syrup in small doses during the day, then sleep at night, a plaster over the throat with morphine. See all dealers.

After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value when they have done for me.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy—Mrs. Mary Chambliss, 50th and E. Capitol Streets, Beaufort, P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is the best and always helpful.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—For eight years I have suffered from the terrible worst of all ailments. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to live. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me." Mrs. Mary Chambliss, 50th and E. Capitol Streets, Beaufort, D. C.

Second letter. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value when they have done for me.

A Chicago Alderman Owe His Election To Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs," says Hon. John Shenck, 290 So. Peoria St., Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaign, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. In my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several doses that day, kept right on talking through the campaign, and I thank this medicine that I won my seat in the Council." This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

The barns and outbuildings belonging to Charles F. Brooke, state fish commissioner, at Sandy Springs, Montgomery county, were destroyed by fire last Monday morning; also 30 sheep and 2 prize-winning beagles. Loss placed at $4,500, and insurance $3,400.

Champion Liniment For Rheumatism. Chas. Drake, a mail carrier at Chapel Hill, Conn., says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the champion of all liniments. The past year I was troubled a great deal with rheumatism in my shoulder. After trying several cures the storekeeper here recommended this remedy and it completely cured me." There is no use of anyone suffering from that painful ailment when this liniment can be obtained for a small sum. One application gives prompt relief and its continued use for a short time will produce a permanent cure. For sale by all dealers.

The jury in Circuit Court at Elkton rendered a verdict for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the suit of John R. Smith, of Singery, who claimed $5,000 damages for injuries in being put off the train.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism and Neuralgia and expels Malaria germs. Only 50c, and satisfaction guaranteed by all druggists.
