LITTLE ONES MAKE LIFE

Brighter—Letter From City Charities—Write If You Desire One.

The ADVERTISER received the communication given below and instead of writing a "news" article as suggested have decided to publish the letter, as it is written as interesting as we could wish, and explains the situation very clearly. If any of our readers want to make their homes happier and brighter by the sweet chatter of child-lips, write the secretary, Nathaniel G. Grasty, Supervisor of Charities, Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore, Md., Court House, February the 1st, 1912
The ADVERTISER,
Salisbury, Md.

Gentlemen:—The Supervisors of City Charities believe that many of the homes of your readers that are at times dull and very lonely can be brightened and enlivened in a way so simple as to cause surprise. Loneliness causes an unhappiness in thousands of families, that would be transformed by the sweet companionship of a little girl or the sprightly voice of a tiny boy, and did they but know it, joy would come to many a lonely couple if a dear little child were adopted into the family, to be raised as their very own.

During the past few years, the Supervisors of City Charities have been instrumental in brightening homes from one end of the State to the other. The Supervisors have under their care at all times attractive and interesting little orphan children that they are glad to place in respectable private homes on trial, with a view to remaining permanently if the little one is congenital.

May we ask that in kindness to these children you write up a news item or an editorial to this effect, and give it publicity?

Thanking you in advance,

Very truly yours,
Nathaniel G. Grasty, Secretary.

Protecting And Care Asked For Game And Birds.

Parsonsburg, Md.,
Jan. 31, 1912.

I wish to call attention to the farmers, gentry and the public in general the importance of protecting the game—birds and rabbits especially—and also I want to call attention to persons that are inclined to shoot robin and song birds, also people shooting game, while snow is on the ground it being a violation of the law. I wish the farmers would take care of their birds and feed them if possible when snow is on the ground, and I think the public will appreciate the same. The Governor of the State and also the State Game Warden would be grateful to the people for protecting our game during the severe weather.

E. E. Parsons,
Deputy Game Warden.

COMING TO SALISBURY

Some Of Baltimore's Best Musical Talent

February 15.

Baltimore's musical public has been aroused over the latest acquisition to their circles in the person of the young piano phenomenon, Edward Mumma. Although only fourteen years of age his playing has created somewhat of a sensation, and musicians and laymen speak of his work in the highest terms of praise. Master Mumma was born in Harrisburg and until a few years ago lived in Philadelphia where he received his earlier education.

His first appearance in Baltimore was as soloist with the Peabody Orchestra last season when he played the Mendelssohn G minor Concerto. He immediately sprang into prominence for his wonderful technic, broad interpretation and exquisite touch brought forth many laudatory press notices from the local critics. Arranged in knickerbockers with a magnetic personality, with pleasant features, he presents an attractive picture at the piano, and his playing leaves nothing to be desired.

At a musical given by Mr. Harold Randolph at his home in Roland Park, Master Mumma appeared as pianist of the Concert Company and immediately won the favor of the large musical audience present. Since this time many requests have been made to have him appear in concerts and at private musicales, but it is very likely that his public appearances will be limited to a few recitals with the Peabody Concert Company.

Mumma will be at Ulman's Opera House February the 15th. The other two performers are Mr. Harry Soko-love and Miss Rachael Aldridge.

"Naughty Marietta" At The Academy.

Mile Emma Trentini, the world famous grand opera singer who is now being starred by Oscar Hammerstein in the comic opera success, "Naughty Marietta," will begin a week's engagement at the Academy of Music beginning Monday evening next, February 5th, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Mile Trentini was heard here the latter part of last season and will be warmly welcomed upon her return by the music loving public of Baltimore, whose enthusiasm regarding this vivacious little star was unbounded upon her previous engagement here.

FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing constipation, the urine, head aches, back aches, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidney trouble. The kidney trouble is often held in check and scaling pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. It is a true kidney tonic.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

CHAP. XVII.

Through the Camp of the Enemy. A glance at my watch told me that it was already within a few moments of midnight. There was, however, no illumination in the festivities, and I waited in silence until I heard the sentries calling the hour, and then pressed my way back into the noisy, crowded ballroom. "I was stopped twice by well-meaning officers whom I had met earlier in the evening, but breaking away from them after the exchange of a sentence or two, I urged my course as directly as possible toward where the spectacular brigadier yet held his post as master of ceremonies.

"Halt!" he cried sternly, peering at us in evident surprise. "Halt! this road is closed."

"Valley Forge," whispered the girl, and I noticed how white her face appeared in the flaming of the fire.

"The word is all right, Miss," returned the fellow, stoutly, yet without lowering his obstructing gun. "But we cannot pass any one out on the countersign alone. If you was going the other way it would answer."

"But we are returning from the officers' ball," she urged anxiously, "and are one our way to Major Brennan's quarters. We have passes."

"What is it, Mapes?" he asked sharply.

"Without waiting an answer he took the paper she held out and scanned it rapidly.

"This is all right," he said, handing it back, and lifting his cap in salute. "You may pass, madam. You must pardon us, but the orders are exceedingly strict to-night. Have you a pass also, Colonel?" I handed it to him, and after a single glance it was returned.

"Pass them, guard," he said curtly, standing aside.

Beyond the radiance of the fire she broke the silence.

"I shall only be able to go with you as far as the summit of the hill yonder, for our quarters are just to the right, and I could furnish no excuse for being found beyond that point," she said. "Do you know enough of the country to make the lie of your army?"

"If this is the Kendallville pike we are on," I answered, "I have a pretty clear conception of what lies ahead, but I should be very glad to know where I am to look for the outer picket."

"There is one post at the ford over the White Briar," she replied. "I chance to know this because Major Brennan selected the station and remarked that the stream was so high and rapid as to be impassable at any other point for miles. But get out of the way! This is far as my information extends."

The General laughed good-humoredly, evidently pleased with her assumption of military knowledge.

"Colonel Curran is certainly to be congratulated upon having found so charming a guide, madam, and I can assure you I shall most gladly do my part toward the success of the expedition. The Major was expected back before this, I believe."

"He left word that if he had not returned by twelve I was to wait for him no longer, as he should go directly to his quarters. I find the life of a soldier to be extremely uncertain."

"We are our country's servants, madam," he replied proudly, and then taking out a pad of blanks from his pocket, turned to me.

"May I ask your full name and rank, Colonel?"

"Patrick L. Curran, Colonel, Sixth Ohio Light Artillery."

He wrote it down rapidly, tore off the paper, and handed it to me.

"That will take you safely through our inner guard lines," he said gravely, "that being as far as my jurisdiction extends. Good-night, Colonel; good-night, Mrs. Brennan."

We bowed ceremoniously, and the next moment Mrs. Brennan and I were up upon the steps, breathing the cool night air. I glanced curiously at her face as the gleam of light fell upon it—how calm and reserved she appeared, and yet her eyes were aglow with intense excitement. At the foot of the steps she glanced up at the dark, projecting roof far above us.

"Do you suppose he can possibly be up there yet?" she asked, in a tone so low as to be inaudible to the ears of the sentry.

"Who? Bungay?" I questioned in surprise, for my thoughts were elsewhere. "Oh, he was like a cat, and there are trees at the rear. Probably he is safe long ago, or else a prisoner once more."

Beyond the gleam of the uncovered windows all was wrapped in complete darkness, save that here and there we could distinguish the dull red glares of camp-fires where the company cooks were yet at work, or some sentry post had been established. We turned sharply to the left, and proceeded down a comparatively smooth road, which seemed to me to possess a rock basis; it felt so hard. From the position of the stars I judged our course to be eastward, yet the night was sufficiently obscured to shut out all objects more than a few yards distant. Emissary for the varied camp-

COUNTY BOND ISSUE.

In view of the fact that a great many of those who attended the recent taxpayers meeting held in the Court House had not had time to properly consider the advisability of this County issuing bonds for the purpose of improving our highways, the Commissioners have deemed it best to issue another call to further discuss this question. This is a question which every taxpayer who is interested in the advancement of his County should most carefully weigh and consider before he decides upon the best policy to be pursued.

Everyone has one starting point—the advisability of building good roads. That this course is the proper one to follow is almost unanimous in this county. Since all have agreed that the improving of our highways is not only desirable from a standpoint of comfort and pleasure but that it is a good business proposition as well, the only thing for the people to consider is the ways and means of doing this work. Leaving the character of the roads to be built out of the question at the present time, the main thing will be to find out a method by which the necessary funds are to be provided for this road building. Supposing the sentiment is for hard roads—which it unquestionably is at present—the cost of building these highways will be somewhere from $5000 to $8000 per mile according to whether shells or stones are to be used in the construction.

It is proposed that a bond issue of $100,000 be made. This will cover about twenty miles at best, and it is folly to close our eyes to the fact that twenty while probably doing considerable good will be after all but a small portion of the work needed to be done in this country. And if the policy of improving our roads is to be adopted then we should be prepared to get ready for a far greater expenditure than this.

The whole question of whether or not good roads should be built can be reduced to the simple question of will they pay? Suppose that a good system of roads for this County should cost $1,000,000. Then how much more would this county be worth? If the valuation should be increased to say $3,000,000 more than at present it would be folly to fail to build these roads, if the spending of $1,000,000 will bring back $3,000,000.

This is the question which you want to think over. Will it pay? If you decide that it will, then comes the question of how soon can these roads be built? Of course as in the case of any investment if it pays at all, then the sooner it is made and completed then the sooner will the investor realize his profits. As far as the interest on the bonds is concerned, this question, may be disposed of by saying if the roads are not good enough investment to pay both interest and principal, then let them alone. Interest may be saved by waiting until money is raised from direct taxation but the loss from the investment while waiting will be a far greater loss. To build these roads by direct taxation can only mean that this generation will never see a great many of them built.

The ADVERTISER believes that good roads are a paying investment, even at the cost now given, and believing that, believes that they should be built as fast as they can be built. In order to do this, the county should raise all the money it can by raising the tax rate and then borrow all it can economically use. If the plan is to spend not more than $30,000 or even $40,000 per year on our roads, then issuing bonds may be doubtful policy for this sum can be raised by direct taxation. But if the policy is to expand this amount of money over and above the sum which would normally be levied for this purpose then let us by all means have the bond issue. Few will favor the issuing of bonds for the purpose of taking the burden of a few cents off the taxpayers, but many will favor the idea of borrowing this money, if it is to be additional to the work now being done.

Church Is Explained—All Kinds Of Reasons Written Down For Leader To Study.

A probe into work of the Church, with an open confession of shortcomings and failures and an optimistic view of the future religious prospect, was the feature of a State wide convention which opened this week in Baltimore at Franklin Street Presbyterian Church, in connection with the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

Reasons For Weakness.

There were several formal addresses in connection with the meeting, but what turned out to be the most interesting part of the program was that in which the individual members gave reasons as to what is the weakness of men's work in the church. Here are some of the replies that aroused most interest.

"We present the claim of the church before that of Christ."

"Too much glad hand and not enough real encouragement."

"Not enough tasks for men."

"Don't see the other fellow's point of view in life."

"The fear of hell and the reward of heaven not enough emphasized."

"Inability of average man to understand Christian ideals with practical ideals."

"Too much cigarette smoking."

"Too much to fill up the week and no time for church."

"Unwillingness to assume responsibility."

"Lack of love and interest in men."

"Men have no time for God."

"Liquor movement against church."

"Church social rather than spiritual."

"Prejudice against church on account of disreputable things said and done by men in the church."

"Too many fraternal orders."

"We ask for cash instead of service."

"Do not live up to profession."

"Nor question of methods, programs, plans and schemes, but problem of getting men in church to do anything."

"The men of today were not brought up in homes where the old piety prevailed."

"Complication of new competing social centers, claim for rich and poor."

"Secular study 72 hours a week for children and only one hour a week for religious study."

"Not the encouraging prayer."

"Lack of control of so called secular institutions."

"Reluctance to break from old paths."

Be Chummy, Says Speaker.

"The effort of the present meeting," said Mr. Waite, "is not directed toward boys, but to men: the chief object of the movement being to discover, enlist and train leaders, as well as to arouse parents as to the dangers that underlie a careless attitude toward their children."

"Boys have many rights," he said;

"among them I might mention the right to be well born and the right to omnibuses of their elders. It is far better men to suffer now with a headache, if playing with your children affects you that way, than to suffer with a heart attack later on. A third right of the boy is to have his questions properly answered, every one of them. Better be months too early with certain information than a day too late."

"But above all, the boy has a right to intelligent religious training; the good advice of the past is fast giving way to the do good counsel of the present, and the best you can do for the boy is to be the man who first used the words 'sowing wild oats' did not die before the words passed his lips."

Mother!

Don't fail to procure Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for your children while cutting teeth. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

"I rather guess not, madam," he said. "Damn him! I will hang him now higher than Haman, just to show Queen Esther that it can be done. Out of the way, madam!"

Rendered desperate by her slight resistance and his own jealous hatred, he thrust the woman aside so rudely that she fell forward upon one knee. His revolver was yet in his right hand, gleaming in the starlight, but before he could raise or fire it I had grasped the steel barrel firmly, and the hammer came down noiselessly upon the flesh of my thumb. The next instant we were locked close together in fierce struggle for the mastery. He was the heavier, stronger man; I the younger and quicker. From the first every effort on both sides was put forth solely to gain command of the weapon—his to fire, mine to prevent, for I knew well at the sound of the discharge there would come a rush of blue-coats to his rescue. My first fierce onset had put him on the defensive, but as we tugged and strained his superiority in weight began to tell, and slowly he bore me backward, until all the weight of my body rested upon my right leg. Then there occurred to me like a flash a wrestler's trick taught me years before by an old negro on my father's plantation. Instantly I appeared to yield to the force against which I contended with simulated weakness, sinking lower and lower, until I doubt not, Brennan believed I must go over backward. But as I thus sank, my left foot found steady support farther back, while my free hand sank slowly down his straining body until my groping fingers grasped firmly the broad belt about his waist. I yielded yet another inch, until he leaned so far over me as to be out of all balance, and then, with sudden straightening of my left leg, at the same time forcing my head beneath his chest in leverage, with one tremendous effort I flung him, head under, crashing down upon the hard road. Trembling like a reed from the exertion, I stood there looking down upon the dark form lying huddled at my feet. He rested motionless, and I bent over, placing my hand upon his heart, horrified at the mere thought that he might be dead. But the heart beat, and with a prayer of thankfulness I looked up. She stood beside me. "Tell me, Captain Wayne," she exclaimed suddenly, "he is not—not seriously hurt?"

"I believe not," I answered soberly. "He is a heavy man, and fell hard, yet his heart beats strong. He must have cut his head upon a stone, however, for he is bleeding."

She knelt beside him, and I caught the whiteness of a handkerchief within her hand.

"Believe me, Mrs. Brennan," I faltered lamely, "I regret this far more than I can tell. Nothing has ever occurred to me to give greater pain than the thought that I have brought you so much of sorrow and trouble. You will have faith in me!"

"Always, everywhere—whether it ever be our fate to meet again or not. But now you must go."

"Get! And leave you here alone? Are you not afraid?"

"Afraid?" she looked about her into the darkness. "Of what? Surely you do not mean Frank—or Major Brennan? And as to my being alone, our quarters are within a scant hundred yards from here, and a single cry will bring me aid in plenty. Hush! what was that?"

It was the shuffling tread of many feet, the sturdy tramp of a body of infantry on the march.

"Go!" she cried hurriedly. "If you would truly serve me, if you care at all for me, do not longer delay and be discovered here. It is the grand rounds. I beg of you, go!"

I grasped her outstretched hand, pressed my lips hotly upon it, and sped with noiseless footsteps down the black, deserted road.

(To Be Continued.)

Live Litterateur Resented.

"You don't seem to care for any authors except those of a previous generation."

"Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "I am kind of prejudiced in their favor. You see, there's no chance that mother or the girls will invite 'em to parties to act swellions and superior."

No Offense Intended.

"Gay, mother, hasn't the flamingo a nose exactly like Uncle Moritz?"

"You shouldn't say unkind things like that, Trudi."

"Why, mother, the flamingo can't swim—Ulk."

"I have been somewhat positive, but Dean Regnolds gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly." —George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

I grasped her outstretched hand, pressed my lips hotly upon it, and sped with noiseless footsteps down the black, deserted road.

"So I discovered when he gave you away," rejoined the young husband—Stray Stories.

Anty Drudge Tells How to Economize on Coal.

Mrs. Thrifty—“My husband is in the coal business and it doesn't cost anything for fuel to boil the clothes.”

Anty Drudge—“Your husband doesn't get his coal for nothing, does he? Besides it costs just half the wear of your clothes when you boil them, as they wear out just twice as fast. Use Fels-Naptha soap in cool or lukewarm water if you want to save time, bother and your husband's coal.”

John D. Rockefeller says “it is not what we earn but what we save that makes wealth.”

In washing clothes with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water, either in summer or winter, you save:

Fuel—No necessity for hot fire or boiling water.

Clothes—Your clothes last twice as long when washed with Fels-Naptha, because they are not weakened by boiling, nor worn out by hard rubbing.

Doctor's Bills—You don't risk your health by bending over steaming suds or a hot fire and then going into the cool outer air.

Time—The Fels-Naptha way of washing takes less than half as long as the old washboiler way.

Labor—Fels-Naptha takes three-fourths the work and all the drudgery out of washday.

If these savings are worth while to you, follow directions for using Fels-Naptha printed on the red and green wrapper.

MISS SANTA CLAUS

By Geraldine May Hall

“And we'll have a Santa Claus, children,” said Miss Holmes, as a fitting finish to her Christmas promises to Little Turtle school.

“He never comes this way, teacher,” piped up Battey Briggs, the youngest hope of the Shaky O outfit.

“We're too far from the main line, Pop says, and travel's bad in winter time.”

“Well, he'll come this year, Battey.”

Paula's gray eyes snapped with something more than resolution. She looked down at the meager school, only nine children culled from scattered ranches in the Little Turtle valley. Some of them rode miles on ponies to reach the log house, some of them had to ford the river three miles away, and still, day after day, through the long golden fall, and early winter with its stinging frost and wild winds, the faithful nine had arrived, right side up, so to speak, at the schoolhouse, with a composite smile for “teacher.”

There had never been a Christmas celebration at the Little Turtle school. Indeed, there had been precious little school there except at fitful intervals when new teacher would appear and try to wrestle with the problems of the position.

Paula Holmes from Omaha had out better than any of the others. She was little and gray eyed and “set in her ways,” as old Pop Briggs said. She boarded at the Shaky O, so Pop had plenty of opportunity to notice those ways. So had other members of the Briggs family, especially the eldest. And after nearly four months of courting, Don Briggs had stumbled into the holidays without a ray of hope or good cheer so far as Paula was concerned. She would not speak to him. He could not ride to school with her. The noted that Battey surreptitiously left on her desk were burned unread where Battey might see their fate, and bear the news home to the sender.

The quarrel had risen out of the Christmas celebration for the children. Paula said she would give one, and invite everybody in the valley.

“You won't get me there if the Crossbents come,” Don had said flatly, with all the arrogance of twenty-two. “I don't run with any sheep-stealers. Checkers Crossben drove his old lot of stonebacks up over our range last summer, and left it bare as Moses' curse of grasshoppers. I got one good shot at him—”

“You what, Don Briggs?” gasped Paula, horrified.

“Got a good shot at him, and left a hole in his hat too. Caught him up around our water hole, and I'll bet he had something hot to dope it up with, too.”

“Well,” said “Teacher,” decidedly. “I'm glad I found out what sort of a person you are in time, Mr. Briggs.”

“In time for what?” Don laughed down at her, his blue eyes dancing with fun at having caught her. “You know you like me, Paula. Anyhow, you said you did—once.”

“Never mind that, now.” Paula pushed back her curly hair that would come straying down in a way unsuited to a staid schoolma'am. “I want to understand this situation clearly, Mr. Briggs. You will not come to be Santa Claus if I invite the Crossbents?”

“No, ma'am,” Don replied, firmly. “And you'll find you can't have a celebration either, because half the valley won't speak to the other half now over the trouble with the sheep and cattle using the same water holes and range. If you get us all up there, there'll be a shooting up time. Pop will start it with old Sam Crossben, and I'll finish it up with Checkers.”

“Can't you speak to me again, Mr. Briggs,” said Paula, coldly. “I don't like to associate with such persons as you.”

“I'm glad I got well acquainted with you first,” smiled Don again. “Oh, we've met, and we've loved, and we've parted, all on account of Checkers.”

“Don't say it, Paula, dear. This will blow over.”

But Paula had walked away without answering, and had kept her word.

She would not speak to Don again, and she flatly would hold the Christmas celebration and invite all the valley ranchers, whether cattle or sheep.

But she had her warning from the children themselves. The mothers might come, and some of the big sisters, and old men, but the two factions had decided on a raid. Each believed the other would go to the schoolhouse, and each intended to break up the party, and chase the other faction into cover.

Paula heard the plan with close mouth and eyes that showed no fear.

“Don't you care what the boys say, children. You come here Christmas eve, and we'll have a tree and presents, and a Santa Claus.”

Her husband turned to the manager, and his tone was different.

“I think that room is too small. We couldn't turn around in it. We've got to have a great big room, and I guess we'll have to look in at some of the other hotels.”

“I think we may have some larger rooms vacant after 12 o'clock,” suggested the manager, grinning up his sleeve; but the man said they were in a hurry and could not wait.

“Waiter,” he demanded for about

“my chop.”

“Waiter,” he responded, “I am re-ments,” as he called them, he found his place taken, and a welcome as chilly as the frozen milk in the tin can.

“Who's going to be Santa Claus?” asked Checkers, casually. “Heard there was going to be one.”

“There is,” answered Paul, firmly. “Bet it's old Pop Briggs, on account of his whiskers.”

“It is not.” Paula's chin tilted a bit higher. “Thank you so much, Mr. Crossben, for helping me, and I'm sorry you can't come to-night, and help give the children a happy time.”

“Maybe we'll come,” said Checkers, doubtfully, scratching his head. “Is Don Briggs going to be Santa Claus?”

“He is not,” said Paula, coldly.

“Goodby.”

Yet both checkers and Don left the little log house with the firm conviction that the other was favored by the teacher, and was to appear as Santa Claus as a mark of honor.

Paula's cheeks were very pink that night when she faced her assembly, and noted how splendidly the whole valley had turned out to support her celebration. Only the younger crowd was absent, the boy from seventeen to twenty-five.

“And now children,” said Paula, finally. “I think it is time for Santa Claus, and I really must meet him out in the entry, and tell him your names, you know. I'm going to ask Mrs. Briggs if she won't take my place and introduce me when the dear old saint comes in, and I'll hold the reindeer.”

“That sounded wonderfully plausible.

The little ranch children stared and held their breaths, and wriggled about excitedly, as the door closed after the teacher. Then came the sound of sleigh bells that jingled merrily, and stopped with a flourish at the outer door. Then there was silence, with Mrs. Briggs beaming on them from the teacher's desk. And all at once a scream.

“My land, what's that now?” gasped Mrs. Briggs.

There came another and another, muffled now, and the stamping of horses' hoofs on the snow outside, of many hoofs.

Mrs. Briggs ran to the door and flung it open. There were the rival factions from the Shaky O, and the Crossbents, and they fought for possession of Santa Claus, a short stocky figure wrapped from toes to ears in Mrs. Briggs' coat, with a fur cap on, and a Santa Claus mask, resplendent in rosy cheeks, long curly white beard, and smiling lips.

“Boys, what on earth are you doing?” she cried. “That's teacher!”

It was a very white-faced, indignant little teacher that emerged from the folds of the raccoon coat when Don carried her into the schoolroom bodily, and set her down on the platform.

“It's Miss Santa Claus,” he said. “Boys, let's give her three cheers, and swear never to do it again, if she'll let us stay, and give us some candy, too.”

“I'll let you stay if you'll every one shake hands, and promise not to fight any more,” retorted Paula, with flashing eyes. “It's a shame the way the valley is upset with you all. And here you almost spoiled our fun tonight kidnapping me.”

“We thought you were Don,” said Checkers, sadly.

“We thought you were Paula,” grinned back Don. “I'll shake hands if Checkers will.”

There, before the teacher's desk, they shook hands, and after them all the rival members of the two factions shook hands, and good will and peace reigned at Little Turtle Creek for the first time in years. Just for a minute out in the snowy, dark entry Don stopped Paula as she waved good night to the crowd. The hood of the coat had fallen back, her cap was off, and she looked like a little Esquimau. Some way, his arms went around her just naturally, and their lips met.

“Can I see you home, teacher?” yelled Don jubilantly, and Checkers.

“You needn't speak to me again, Mr. Briggs,” said Paula, coldly.

“I'm glad I found out what sort of a person you are in time, Mr. Briggs.”

“In time for what?” Don laughed down at her, his blue eyes dancing with fun at having caught her. “You know you like me, Paula. Anyhow, you said you did—once.”

“Never mind that, now.” Paula pushed back her curly hair that would come straying down in a way unsuited to a staid schoolma'am.

“I want to understand this situation clearly, Mr. Briggs. You will not come to be Santa Claus if I invite the Crossbents?”

“How much?” inquired the head of the family. He was told “Six dollars.”

“That's too much,” he said. “I didn't want to pay over $3.”

His wife tugged at his arm, and said, in what she thought was an “inside.” “Let's go to the boarding house where we stopped the last time.”

Her husband turned to the manager, and his tone was different.

“I think that room is too small. We couldn't turn around in it. We've got to have a great big room, and I guess we'll have to look in at some of the other hotels.”

“I think we may have some larger rooms vacant after 12 o'clock,” suggested the manager, grinning up his sleeve; but the man said they were in a hurry and could not wait.

The report states the amount of sales to be $2000.

POSSIBILITIES OF CALF ARE DETERMINED BY FEED AND CARE

Youngster Should Always be Allowed to Have First or Colostrum Milk of Its Mother and Permitted to Nurse Until Eighth or Ninth Milk—Eight Essentials.

(By D. H. OTIS, Wisconsin.) Young calves need whole milk for the first few days. The calf should always have the first or colostrum milk of the cow and be allowed to nurse the cow until the eighth or ninth milking, when the milk is suitable for human food. Feed often with small amounts to avoid over feeding. Teach the calf to drink and feed whole milk for at least three weeks, changing to a skim milk diet gradually.

The amount of milk fed should be carefully regulated. A good plan with the normal calf is to give four pounds (two quarts) of whole milk three times per day, fed sweet and at blood temperature. In the state of nature the calf gets milk containing about three per cent fat. Our domestic cows have been bred in some instances to give nearly twice this amount. Milk that is too rich may cause serious trouble from scours, and in feeding such milk care should be exercised to give limited amounts at the proper temperature. The feeding of whole milk should be continued for about three or four weeks, when the number of meals may be reduced to two per day. From one-half to a pint of skim-milk may now be substituted for an equal quantity of whole milk. The amount of skim-milk may be gradually increased and the amount of whole milk correspondingly decreased until, at the end of a week or ten days, the calf is getting all skim-milk.

Skim-milk is a cheap feed for calves but should be fed carefully in limited quantities and only while it is warm and sweet. Skim-milk may form the

PURE-BRED IS MOST PROFITABLE

Farmer Will Find His Stock Not Only Better in Looks, But His Profits Will Show Big Increase.

Nearly every farmer has several dogs and in nearly all cases they are not worth their feed. A pair of good Scotch collies, English collies, sheepdogs, beagles, fox terriers or any other breed to which you may take a fancy can not only be made to pay for their keep, but will add a nice little sum to the farm purse, as young dogs of a pure breed can always find a ready sale.

To have all the stock on a farm of a pure breed seems to some people to be impossible, but the farmer will find that his stock are not only better in looks, but with careful management an increase of from 25 per cent to 50 per cent, in his profits can easily be made.

Eggs and Exercise.
The hens to lay well in cold weather must have plenty of exercise. If they are to be confined, give them a deep litter of straw to scratch in, and place the grain-feed in this straw so they will scratch. Inactive hens will not lay. It is a good plan on the farm to allow the chickens the run of all the barns and stables during the day. They will do no damage at this time and will secure a lot of feed that would otherwise go to waste. In securing it they will be compelled to exercise, which will promote laying. Also, the barn is a dry, warm place for fowls in winter, and dryness and warmth are great factors in their health and productiveness. They can easily be shut out of the barn at night.

New Rake Patented.
For weeding gardens and flower beds a rake has been patented which carries a small triangular hoe on the crossbar.

LARGE DEMAND FOR FAT GEESE

Corn Meal and Milk, With Some Beef Scraps, Makes Almost Ideal Ration—Mash Also Good.

Dressed geese are largely in demand in the cities during the fall months, but choice birds will bring good prices the entire year, writes W. F. Purdie, in an exchange. A good old stock, however, as they are not desired by the purchasers, and are more suitable to their owners as breeders. There is no advantage of selling off the old stock of geese, as they live many years, and the older birds are generally best for breeding purposes, and the young ones bring better prices in the market.

Do not proceed to fatten the geese suddenly, but confine gradually. Allow several in a small yard, which should be kept clean and somewhat darkened.

Corn meal and milk, with some beef scraps, wheat and brewers' grains fattened well.

A mash composed of four parts cornmeal, one part wheat bran, one part middlings and one part of beef scraps is a very good ration. Wet this just enough to have it in a dry, crumbly state, and feed all they will eat up clean three times a day.

Do not give them green food while fattening. They should be kept away from bathing water during this period, but a plenty of water for drinking purposes should be kept in their pen. Also keep a good supply of grit before them. Fast for twenty-four hours before killing.

Goslings may be put up to fatten when from 8 to 10 weeks old. After they are 12 weeks old they will begin to shed, and will fatten readily then until the end of the season. Previous to being confined they should have a good range where grass is plentiful, and it will then require but a few days to get them ready.

Dry Shelter for Sheep.

If you are going in for a few sheep this season, don't overlook the matter of shelter. Sheep must be kept dry as to fleece and feet, otherwise your venture will result disastrously. Provide dry quarters for wet weather, and you'll have no difficulty in carrying them over.

FROZEN HUMAN BODY

Found Near Allen—Young Cathell Had Been to Salisbury Sunday.

Considerable mystery surrounds the strange death of Rollin Cathell, son of Mr. Charles Cathell, a prominent farmer of near Allen, about eight miles from this city, who was found dead Monday morning in the stables of his home. Young Cathell spent Sunday evening in this city, with friends, and seemed to be in the best of health when he started to drive home at night about twelve o'clock. Monday morning his father, wondering why his son had not returned home, went to the stables, where the horse his son had used was in the stall, unbroken and lying nearby was the frozen body of his son. Medical aid was summoned at once, and upon examination it was found that the boy was dead, and frozen stiff. Considerable difference of opinion seems to exist as to the cause of the boy's sudden death, and those advanced are that he was overcome by the cold after his long drive, and after unbinding the horse, was too cold to make his way to the house nearby, but was frozen to death, with relief and help about twenty five yards away. Another opinion, and this by the attending physician, was that death was caused by a paralytic stroke which struck his heart, and that he was overcome before he could get out of the stable. There were no marks of any character that would suggest foul play, and while the body was found almost under the feet of the horse, his body was not bruised in any manner. While the physician's opinion is regarded by some as correct, the family of the boy believe he was frozen to death, as Sunday night was one of the coldest of the winter, it being about three degrees above zero, with a cold wind blowing. The long drive in the biting wind and cold, no doubt, numbed the boy, until he did not realize his own condition, and thinking first of his horse, put him in the stable before attempting to get warm himself, and after completing the task was too cold to go to the house. Cathell was a popular young man in his neighborhood, was twenty five years of age and is survived by his parents and four brothers.

HOLLAND ISLANDERS SAFE

Shut In But Enjoying Themselves—Revenue Cutter Breaks Through.

A great deal of uneasiness has been felt over the probable condition of the inhabitants of Holland Island, owing to the fact that no communications had been held with that place since the first of January. Reports were current that they were without food or doctor, and attempts were made by the Revenue service and the State boats to cut their way through the ice which blocked all passage of boats. After several days trial the Government revenue cutter, Apache forced a passage. On landing it was found that the inhabitants instead of starving were enjoying themselves, skating, playing dominoes and checkers, and we suspect handling occasionally an old deck of cards though reports say nothing at all about this. While not suffering they asked for a supply of flour, fuel etc., be sent over. The Doctor who was away at the time of the freeze-up has returned, no sickness during his absence was reported.

VALUABLE PROPERTY

Changed Hands On Main Street. The Sheppard Co. Acquire Desirable Holding.

A big transaction in Main Street real estate was made a few days ago when the large wholesale grocery firm of W. E. Sheppard & Co., purchased the property at the foot of Main Street belonging to Mr. Harry S. Todd. The purchase includes the brick warehouse on Main Street, the small brick building near the bridge and the big warehouse in the rear on Mill Street, which is connected with the Main St. warehouse.

This property is one of the best located in the city and it is well arranged, for the wholesale business of the firm. The big warehouse in the rear is connected with the B. C. & A. Railway Company, having tracks running into the warehouses. It is the intention of the Sheppard Company to make some extensive improvements in the buildings in the way of power elevators and elevators to carry feed and corn to the upper floors. They expect to use electric current to convey these elevators. It is also the intention to lay a brick street around the building so as to improve the sanitary conditions.

The business of the firm of Sheppard & Company has grown to such an extent they are compelled to have more room and thought best to purchase the property and they then could rearrange it to suit their own convenience.

The price paid for the property was $15,500.00 in fee. The brick storehouse was erected by F. U. Todd and Co., when they were in the grocery business after the big fire. The active members of the firm of Sheppard & Co. are Messrs. W. E. Sheppard, Walter S. Sheppard and W. A. Sheppard. They are classed among the best business men of this community and the firm has an enviable reputation.

HAS PLAN TO DRAIN

State Swamp Lands—Bill Provides Assessments To Pay For Work And Bond Issue.

Former State Senator W. McCullough

Brown has brought to Annapolis a bill providing a method by which the wet areas and swamp lands of Maryland shall be drained, the means being provided by those directly benefited without cost to the State. The measure when engrossed will be offered by Senator Milbourne, of Somerset, one of the counties of which the swamp acreage is very large. Back of the measure are several organizations, including the Grangers.

The estimated swamp acreage of Maryland is 828,000. This land, when drained, will be among the most valuable in the State for agricultural purposes.

The bill creates drainage districts, which shall be benefited by specific improvements and provides games by which all the lands within a prescribed boundary may be brought into a compact for the common good, including the right of condemnation if necessary for the right of any or all main drains and ditches and for widening or straightening natural water courses.

The advantage which each owner will derive will be appraised by a board appointed by the County Commissioners, in whose hands the administration of the law is placed. The work of improvement will be let out by contract, and paid for by an issue of bonds maturing through a period of twelve years so that the expenses can be more easily met. The assessment levied to redeem these bonds will be a prior lien upon all the land embraced within the particular district for which they were issued, although any land owner may pay for his proportion of the cost of construction, and be relieved of further claim against his land.

Maryland was included, at the instance of Senator Smith, as one of the States in which the Government might expend money for investigations with a view to swamp reclamation. Men representing the Department of Agriculture are now at Easton, Talbot County, making examinations and securing data for future use.

John E. George's Deputy Under Fire.

In a bill to be introduced by "Oy" Cummings of Montgomery county in a few days an attack will be made on Leroy Marks of Washington, Deputy Automobile Commissioner of Maryland.

According to Cummings, Marks, who is in the automobile insurance business, holds a contract with Automobile Commissioner John E. George under which Marks is allowed to issue Maryland automobile licenses to residents of Washington desiring to register their cars in Maryland. According to Mr. Cummings who said that he had an office with Mr. Marks the latter charges 50 cents more for each license than is charged at the main office in Baltimore.

"As a majority of the Washington car owners need Maryland licenses, the difference in price nets a neat sum for Mr. Marks," said Mr. Cummings. He advertises in the Washington papers as deputy commissioner, and all requests to the Baltimore office from Washingtonians for licenses are referred to Mr. Marks. Besides the latter being in the automobile insurance business is in a position to know first hand all new car owners in Washington and has an unfair advantage over the other insurance men there. I shall introduce a bill in a few days creating the office of deputy commissioner and restricting the nature of the employment. At present there is no such office—Balto News.

Mardela Has Electric Lights Again.

Mardela is again having the benefit of electric lights. About a year ago the citizens put up wire and lamps on the main street and contracted with Mr. N. O. Austin to furnish the lighting, but when Mr. Austin closed the Hotel last summer he failed to furnish any more light and the wires and lamps were hanging in the air, chiding the citizens not having made a better provision for light. The people were determined to have the light so they went to work, organized a company, bought and fitted up a plant which is now in full operation and Main Street is again lighted up to the great relief of pedestrians. A. R. Leonard, of Salisbury, has been installing lamps in several houses and a good many more will be fitted up as soon as the weather gets better.

GOPHERS ARE CAUSE OF MUCH INJURY TO THE ALFALFA CROP

Many Other Field Crops Are Damaged by Little Animals in Many Parts of the West—Poisoned Food Being Introduced Below the Surface Eliminates Danger to All Stock.

(By T. J. BREADLER, Kansas.) Like most important field crops alfalfa constantly suffers from the attacks of many kinds of hungry creatures. Roots, stems, foliage, flowers and seeds serve to fill countless empty stomachs and to support myriad of living things. Most of the creatures which rely wholly or in part on alfalfa for their food are either useful or too scarce to do appreciable damage, but especially with gophers, traps and poisons, the results of which prove so convincingly that the most effective and economical method of dealing with this pest is by means of poisons prepared into feed and placed in their runways.

Pocket gophers are easily poisoned. They are very fond of common vegetables, sweet potatoes, apples, raisins and prunes. The presence of strychnine, arsenic or other poisons does not seem to deter them from eating the food; but if the poison is sweetened and they seem to eat it more readily. In summer it may be desirable to take the trouble to sweeten the poison, but in the fall and early spring it does not seem worth while to do this. The poisoned food being introduced to the burrows below the surface, there is no danger of poisoning stock. It might be well, however, not to let swine run in the alfalfa fields for a time after the poison has been put out.

Cut the potatoes or other food into pieces not more than three-fourths of an inch in diameter. Cut a slit in each piece and with the point of the knife blade insert a little sulphate of occasionally some one species appears in such numberless hordes that the crop of large sections is devoured and great havoc is wrought.

No other animal attacking the underground parts of alfalfa can equal or even closely approach the gopher in destructiveness. It has proven one of the most formidable mammalian pests with which alfalfa growers have had to contend. Kansas alone suffers a loss of fully $500,000 yearly. This damage is not directly in the destruction of the alfalfa plant so much as it is in the interference with the work of cutting the crop and the loss by reason of having to cut the plant far above the ground, to avoid running into the mounds thrown up by the gophers. This loss amounts to about one-tenth of the entire crop. Besides the damage to alfalfa, there is a similar one to clover, timothy and native meadows, and the direct destruction of vegetable gardens and other crops. The gopher has the external cheek pouches, strong lower jaws, fore feet strongly developed for digging, and very small eyes and ears.

The gopher tunnels hither and thither in search of food, at intervals digging short lateral burrows to the surface through which it pushes the excavated earth and dumps it outside, thus forming the mounds that indicate its presence and mark its progress.

These animals are most active during the fall and spring, and one individual may throw up several mounds daily for several weeks at a time. During these seasons the work of a few gophers in an alfalfa field may cause the uninitiated to suppose the field infested by dozens. Although the animals are most active at these times they work only less vigorously throughout the rest of the year. Even in winter, whenever the ground is sufficiently free from frost, they throw up mounds here and there.

Many experiments in destroying the pocket gophers have been made, principally by the use of the means just described by the enterprising farmer can rid his land of gophers and keep them out of it. Once the farm is freed, the vigilance and prompt treatment necessary to keep it so will require but little time and effort.

In case the area to be treated is large some sort of a special instrument for locating the runways is desirable. A very good one can be made from a spade handle by covering the pointed end with iron and fastening a foot rest about 15 inches above the point.

Whatever sort of bait may be used, success depends upon introducing it into fresh runways. Choose fresh-looking mounds and prod on the line between them with a wagon rod or sharpened broom handle to locate the runway; or, failing there, prod about the freshets mounds. The sudden giving of the soil and the apparent looseness of the stick in it is sufficient to show that the runway has been located? Remove the prod and drop a teaspoonful of the poisoned bait into the hollow, leaving the hole open. Level the mounds with some sort of a drag, and as soon as new ones appear locate the burrows and put poison into them.

CONCRETE POST NEVER WEARS OUT

Heavy Smooth Wire May be Used For Reinforcing Them—Most Concrete Forms Are Triangular.

Concrete fence posts never wear out. To make them, forms of wood or metal are used. Where various forms are required, as corner post, brace posts or gate posts, probably wood forms are the cheaper. In case a large number of posts of one kind is to be used, metal forms are more desirable. They are lighter, more easily handled, and last longer than wooden forms. They also give a better surface finish to the concrete.

There are several kinds of reinforcement. Perhaps the best is the commercial bars placed on the market for concrete re-enforcing. The more common materials for this purpose are heavy, smooth wire and galvanized barb wire.

Most forms for concrete posts are triangular. Owing to its shape, and having re-enforcement in each corner, this post is almost as strong as a square one, and to make it requires less material and labor than for a square one.

The mixture of concrete depends upon where the post is to be used. One part cement to four or sand is good. For posts in isolated places, not subject to strain, a mixture of one to five is sufficient. Those used in a corral or around farm buildings where stock are kept are subject to constant strain and a mixture of one to three is preferable. This gives a more dense material when hard.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary system. It has the ability to hold water and soaks up pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, tobacco or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved to be a valuable medicine. It is known that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this general offer in this paper and send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., One hundred and Binghamton, N. Y. FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

Do You Get Up With a Lamie Back?

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary system. It has the ability to hold water and soaks up pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, tobacco or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved to be a valuable medicine. It is known that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this general offer in this paper and send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., One hundred and Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

DIRECT PRIMARIES.

There is no question but what the sentiment in this County is decided in favor of making all of our nominations by the direct vote of the people. In fact it is hard to find anyone who is willing to be quoted as being opposed to this plan of making out our ticket, although we presume there were some who are tied to the system adopted and carried out by preceding generations. While this is true yet there is a strong desire to have the primary so arranged that no one but members of the Democratic party shall be allowed to participate in the party's primaries and the same with the other political parties.

The voting of Republicans in our primaries last year was very distasteful to the majority of the Democrats, and in some cases this vote is believed to have had the controlling voice—for instance the defeat of the direct primary law then voted upon. Not only do our voters want this so arranged that party affiliation will have to be declared at the time of registration or at least some time in advance of primary day, but are also bitterly opposed to the retention of the envelope system as was practiced at last primaries.

It is hardly necessary for us again to call attention to the disadvantages of this marking of tickets outside of the booths, since anyone who attended the primaries here last fall had a good chance to see how this plan actually worked.

There were disgusting scenes around the polls when marked tickets were handed out to the voters as they came up, who were treated in many instances like so many cattle or slaves being told to go and obey their orders or take the consequences. This plan also is a big bid for bribery and corruption as it gives the buyers the chance to see whether or not the goods are delivered. An organization has all the advantages in this plan of voting since they have workers in every district of the County, and only when a split between the members of the organization occur has a man who is without the O. K. of these any chance of securing a nomination.

Our people want Direct Primaries and are going to have them.

If a law is not passed this year giving to this County the right to vote direct, then it is more than probable that our next primaries will be held under exactly the same plan as have the past two primaries been held—a sort of gentlemen's agreement. It will be better for all if this plan has the sanction of law, and our representatives in the Legislature will be doing a service to the party if they see to it that we have a proper law passed.

The present State law is not assisfactory to the citizens of Wicomico County and it is cannot be amended so as to take out the objectionable clauses, then let us have a law of our own. Those who believe in direct primaries should write to some or all of our representatives and Senator Price urging action. If in favor of secret voting say so. What we want is party affiliation, secret voting and all the safeguards thrown around our primaries to make them what they are intended to be, a free and unhampered choice of men to hold office. A primary election law with the general features of our present election law, providing for a proper party vote will answer best here.

MARDELA SPRINGS.

The play entitled "The Valley Farm" was rendered here on last Saturday evening in the auditorium of the school building by the local talent of our town. The house was filled to its utmost capacity by an appreciative audience. Those who took part in the play each and every one acquitted themselves in a manner to win the applause of those present, and left no room for just criticism. The object of the play was to raise money for a school library. Those who took part and those who patronized it deserve the commendation of the community as the object was a very laudable one. It was considered a success financially and otherwise.

The very cold weather has ceased for a while and as we are having it more pleasant our people are beginning to stir around and will soon get to work all right if the weather continues to improve.

Eggs dropped in our market yesterday from 40 to 82 cents. This was a stunner to our farmers.

Though the very cold weather was pretty tough on our rural mail carrier yet they never missed a single trip.

Mr. G. W. Bryd and son, William, spent several days of this week in Baltimore.

POSTOFFICE GOING AHEAD

Salisbury's Mail Matters: Have Big Lead On Other Shore Towns.

The total receipts of the Salisbury Postoffice for the year ending December 31, 1911, were $25,434.74, which were slightly in advance of the preceding year. The money order department was a busy part all during the year. Domestic Money Orders issued totaled 10,185, amounting to $54,234.71, the face amounting to $516.50. The orders paid at this office numbered 5,654, amounting in the aggregate to $38,294.89; showing total of $29,10 handled through the Money Order Department.

Foreign orders issued numbered 41, amounting to $907.81. Foreign orders paid at this office numbered 38, totaling $860.89.

Registered pieces numbered 3,246. These figures show the Salisbury office to be the largest on the peninsula south of Wilmington, Del., and the sixth largest office in the State of Maryland. Those exceeding it being Baltimore, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Annapolis and Frederick, ranking in the order named. It is impossible to obtain figures showing the number of pieces of mail handled in the office, by the city carrier and by the rural route carriers, but these amounted to several hundred thousand pieces. The postal regulations do not require carriers to count mail when the number handled exceeds 5,000 a month, and as there are several such routes in the county, no record was kept.

Lyric Theatre, Baltimore

The first of the closing series of grand operas by the Chicago Grand Opera Company at the Lyric Theatre, Baltimore, will take place next week when a magnificent production of Wagner's "Die Walkure" will be given. Thursday night, February the 15th, is the date.

The cast announced is a notable one including Charles Danvers, the French tenor as "Siegmund"; Mme. Minnie Salzman—Stevens as "Brunehilde"; Mme. Jane Osborne—Hannah as "Siglinde"; Clarence Whitehill as "Motan" and Henri Scott as "Hunding". Others to appear will be Mme. Jenny Dufau, a coloratura soprano who is a vocalist in comparison to Tetrazzini; Rachel Frazer—Green and Marts Wiskowska; Alfred Sandell will be the conductor.

SEVERAL TAKEN AWAY

By The Keeper in His Journey Through This Section
Samuel Kirk Gunby.

Although it was known that Mr. Samuel Kirk Gunby had been in poor health for some time, his death on Thursday morning at the Hospital, where he was undergoing treatment, was a surprise to his friends and associates. Mr. Gunby was the son of Mr. William Gunby, of Somerset County, and was seventy years of age.

In his earlier life he was engaged in the mercantile business at Franklin, afterward moving to Salisbury and the late Watt Jackson engaged in the same business. He afterward left this section to join the Fuller Detective Agency of New York. For the past few years he has been a resident of this city. He is survived by one brother, Mr. Fred Gunby of Virginia and two sisters, Mrs. L. S. Bell, of Salisbury, and Mrs. Ostler, of New York. The funeral services were held at the home of his sister, Mrs. L. S. Bell on Friday. The remains were interred in Parsons Cemetery.

Samuel M. Riley.

At the death of Mr. Samuel M. Riley of near Parsonsburg, Wicomico loses one of her oldest and most respected citizens. Mr. Riley was born in March 1833 and would have been 80 years of age. Mr. Riley had not been very well for some time. The funeral services were held at his late home Friday morning. He is survived by the following children: Messrs. Isaac, E. C. and Asbury Riley, and the following sisters, Mrs. E. H. Parsons of Parkley, Virginia, Miss Anna Riley and Mrs. Holloway.

Beuchamp Wright.

Another old resident of this County was lost in the death of Mr. Beuchamp Wright, of near Mardela Springs. Mr. Wright was 87 years of age. He is survived by a widow, who was a Miss Knowles, of Sharptown, and one son, Mr. Isaac E. Wright, of Sharptown, our daughter Mrs. Latimer H. Phillips, who lived on the old home farm with her father. The funeral services will be held at Mardela Springs this afternoon.

Mrs. Martha Burbage.

Mrs. Martha Burbage, died at her home in Snow Hill, after a brief illness. She leaves a son, Mr. H. Olav Burbage and one daughter, Mrs. W. E. Clift, both of Snow Hill. Mrs. Chas. R. Disbaron of this city attended the funeral.

DON'T YOU HATE TO ASK A MAN FOR A RECEIPT?

You may be paying money to a friend or to some one you would offend by asking for a receipt. Yet these very people are the ones who cause most annoyance. Sometimes they are so big or so busy that they forget you have paid, or a thousand and one things may happen to throw doubt on the transaction.

Always pay by check, and the endorsement will be your legal receipt. In this way you are also employing an automatic book-keeper that pays you a salary of 2 per cent. on your funds and one that also acts as a pocket book that cannot get lost. Every check you issue is an advertisement of your worth and standing. Stop carrying your working funds around in loose notes and change, open a checking account immediately; a small account entitles you to the same courtesy and attention as the largest.

Memory while sap remained the wife of another, was but an effort to her purity and womanhood. I would prove myself a man entitled to her respect, a soldier worthy my service and worse." It never again lay his hands on her. "Find mention in her presence it should be spoken with honor.

I was marching then, haled by the steady lops of my horse, and totally inavailable to any possibility of need. Then clear, upon my ears, instantly awakening me from such reverie, the sharp clang of iron on the road behind me. All sound of pursuit had long since died away, and I supposed the effort to retrace me had been abandoned. But there was no mistake now—at least one horseman, riding recklessly through the black night, was pressing hot upon my trail.

"The Lieutenant," I thought, "the Lieutenant, burned with anger at the trick played upon him, has pushed far ahead of his troops, doubtless mounted upon a better horse, determined to catch everything if he may only bring me back dead or alive."

This thought awoke me in an instant from my dreaming, and I spurred my horse furiously, glancing anxiously backward as I rode, but unable through that dense gloom to distinguish the form of my pursuer. Yet the fellow was coming, coming faster than any speed I could possibly conjure out of the weary black he strode, either by whip or spur. Closer and closer upon me came rushing down that pounding of iron hoofs on the hard path. Heavens! how like a very demon the man rode! As a trooper I could not withhold admiration from the reckless audacity with which the vengeful fellow bore down upon me. In spite of my utmost efforts it almost seemed as if we were standing still. Surely nothing less than hate, and a thirst for vengeance bitter as death implacable as fate, could ride like that through the black night on the track of a hunted man!

I was able to trust dimly his outline now as he rese on an eminence in my rear, his horse looming dark against the sky, like these giant streaks that smote fire in my child's picture-books at home, and then, with increasing louder thunder of hoof-beats, he came charging straight down toward me. In sheer desperation I glanced on either side, seeking some avenue of escape, but the high banks were unscaleable; my sole remaining hope lay in a shot that should drop that crazed brute before he struck and crushed me. Raising my boot, with all the practised skill of the service, I swung my body sideways, bracing myself firmly in the deep saddle, and took steady aim. The hammer came down with a dull, dead click, the revolver was chargeless, and with an exclamation of baffled rage I hurled the useless weapon full at the advancing brute. Almost at the instant we struck, my horse went down with the impetus, while over us both, as if shot from a cannon, ploughed our pursuer, his horse turning a complete somersault, the rider falling so close that I was upon him almost as soon as he struck the ground.

A dip of the flying hoof had cut a shallow gash across my forehead, and my hair was wet with blood, yet bruised and half stunned as I was from the hard fall, my sole longing was to reach and throttle that madman who had ridden me down in such demon style.

"You unchained devil!" I cried savagely, whirling him over upon his back, "I spared your life once tonight, but by the gods, I'll not do it again!"

"Gosh, Cap, is that you?" asked the voice of the other, feebly.

I started back, and lost my hold upon him.

"Bungay?" in an astonishment that nearly robbed me of utterance. "Good God, man! is that really you?"

"It's what's left o' me," he answered solemnly, sitting up and finding his head as if expecting to find it gone. "That wus 'bout the worst ride I ever took."

"I should think it likely," I exclaimed, my anger rising again as I thought of it. "What, in Heaven's name, do you mean by riding down on me like that?"

"Holy Gee, Cap," he explained patiently, "we've got no ter git there. It's all its purpose, do ye? Why, ther goin-durned old thing run away."

"Ran away?"

"Sure; I've bin a hangin' on ter them mane o' that critter fer nigh 'pon three miles, an' a prayin' for a feather bed ter light on. It's my last

"I'm on the cavalry, see, but I never need sons o' yer steamin' hoofs, but I reckon they don't go no faster nor that blame horse. Gosh, Cap, ye ain't got no call for ter git mad; I swells a stopped her with a yoke o' steers, durst' if I cud. I sorter reckon I knew how 'bout what Scott meant when he said, 'The turn the flying course spurned,'—you bet this one did."

Jed rubbed his cheek as if it stung him, and I looked at him in the faint dawning light of day, and laughed. His peaked head and wan-sick face looked pitiful enough, decorated as they were with the black loans through which he had ploughed; his coat was ripped from tail to collar, while one of his eyes was nearly closed due to the bruised flesh he'd puffed up over it.

"It is a fearful strife, for man endowed with mortal life," he quoted mournfully.

"You're right," I assented. "No doubt you had the worst of it. But how came you here?"

"Why, I was a huntin' for a horse thar at the picket post when ye scared up that bunch, an' by some sort a fu' luck I got hol o' that one, an' take arter ye, tho' I'm course I didn't know who it was raised such a rumpus, it wus so darned dark. Thar whole blame Yankees cabbedle took a blaste at me, I reckon, leastwise they was most darn keeless with their shootin' irons, an' I rode one fellower down thar bank, kerslashed inter ther water, by thunder, an' then derided critter I wus a straddlin' bolte. That's 'bout all I know, Cap, till I lit

These fates when they expect a fight," he answered, his own eyes dancing as he swept over them over that straight line of backs in his frost. "They'll serp the better for being a bit hungry—it makes them savage. Beasts all, Captain, what foolish notions some of those people on the other side have of us Southerners. They seem to think we are entirely different from themselves; yet I reckon it would puzzle any recruiting officer up yonder to show a finer lot of fighting men than those fellows ahead there."

I rode slowly forward to my own position at the head of the troop. As I swung my horse into our accustomed position I was too deeply buried in reflection to be clearly conscious of much that was occurring about me. Suddenly, however, I became aware that some one, nearly obscured by the enveloping cloud of dust, was riding without the column, in an independent of military discipline not to be permitted. In the state of mind I was then in this discovery strangely irritated me.

"Sergeant," I questioned sharply, of the raw-boned trooper at the end of the first platoon, "what fellow is that ridin' out yonder?"

"It's that pecky little cuus as come in with ye yesterday, sir," he returned with a grin. "He's confiscated a muel somewhat an' says he's a goin' back home long o' we uns."

Curious to learn how Jed had emerged from his arduous adventures, I spurred my horse alongside of him. The little man, biding forward dubiously, as if fearful of accident, was riding bareback on a gaunt, long-legged mule, which, judging from all outward appearances, must have been some discarded asset of the quarter master's department.

"Going home, Jed?" I asked, as he glanced up and saw me.

"Just as darn quick as I kin git thar," he returned emphatically. "By gosh, Cap, I ain't bin 'way from Marian long as this afore in twelve year. Reckon she thinks I've shdeddled for good this time, an' 'll be a takin' up with some other male critter lest I sit back ther mighty sudden. Wom'n's odd, Cap, dun'gah as ordinary 'bout somethin' else as a muel."

He eyed his mount critically.

"Durned if ever I thought I'd git astride o' any four-legged critter again," he said, rubbing his nose as if it were suddenly sensitive.

"He's comin' along," I said, turning to the others. "He's ridin' bareback on a mule, which, judging from all outward appearances, must have been some discarded asset of the quarter master's department."

Anty Drudge Explains Why the Waist Went into Holes.

Mrs. Don'te—"I must have been cheated in that woolen waist. It pulled right into holes in the wash-tub."

Anty Drudge—"You wouldn't think you were cheated if you got a leg of mutton which boiled that tender. It was the boiling that weakened your waist just as it makes meat or vegetables tender. Stop boiling your clothes. Wash them with Fels-Naptha in cool or lukewarm water, and they'll wear twice as long."

What are clothes made of?
Wool, cotton or linen, animal or vegetable fibre.

What does boiling or scalding do to them?

Makes them tender just as it does meat or vegetables.

What does hard rubbing on a wash-board do to them?

Wears them into holes before their time.
Are you abusing your clothes like that in the weekly wash?

Burning up fuel and working like a slave to do it?

There's a far better way to get clean clothes.

Let Fels-Naptha soap take the dirt out of them in cool or lukewarm water without boiling, without hard rubbing.

It saves the clothes—makes them last twice as long.

In summer or winter, it saves fuel, time, hard work, bother and discomfort.

Directions for the Fels-Naptha way of washing are printed on the back of the red and green wrapper.

Fellow them carefully.

MT. HERMON.

Mr. Thomas Lemon died at his brother's, C. O. Tassan, the first day of February, after a short illness of pneumonia. Mr. Lemon leaves three brothers and one daughter to mourn his loss. Mr. Lemon had been a consistent member of the Mt. Hermon M. P. Church for the past twenty years. He will be greatly missed in this community as he was always ready to lend a helping hand whenever called upon. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at Mt. Hermon Cemetery, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Phillips. Interment was at E. Q. Walston's burial ground and was attended by a large circle of his friends.

Miss Annie M. Jones was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hammond last Wednesday.

Mr. William Austin will hold a Christian Endeavor Meeting at Mrs. Sidney Lewis' next Tuesday night. All are cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Jack Godfrey purchased a fine sleigh at Salisbury last Saturday and is looking forward for some fine sport if the snow will continue to fall like it has done since Christmas.

Miss Maggie N. Trader was the guest of Mrs. Maggie Hammond last Sunday and spent a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodland Godfrey have returned from their wedding tour and held a reception at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Godfrey, at Mt. Hermon. A large dinner was served to the many guests and all report a very pleasant evening. Those present were Mr. John E. Johnson and family, Mr. Carl Twilley and family, Mr. E. M. Walston and family, Dr. M. Ward and family, Mr. George Walston and family. The waiters in charge at the table were Gertrude Bivins and Mervena Leonard, of Salisbury. We wish the happy couple a long life and the best of prosperity.

OAKLAND.

"When heavens are drearily shrouded With clouds and wintry gloom, We can dream of a land that is golden With sunshine and sweet bloom, And then the gloom and the darkness Like a roll away from our eyes, And we see in its beauty and wonder, The land of the golden skies."

After the cold wave and severe storms of January passed over, February comes to us weeping, yet we hope before it closes it will give us more smiles than tears.

The writer deeply regrets the loss of Dr. Morris.

Mr. Willie Brown and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Grover Farrow.

Mrs. David Pryor and son, and Mr. and Mrs. John Pryor all of Eden spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Covington spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kelley.

Misses May and Edna Reddish of the Salisbury High School spent Saturday and Sunday with their parents at the Manies. Owing to the rough weather their visits home this winter have been less frequent.

There has been much wonder and commotion among some people as to who is the writer of Oakland News. While many others seem to know to those who wonder I will just say that I am thirty-nine years old and I have married you. I have been married eleven years and would have a medium good looking husband if he would only keep barbers and wear his collar and tie. Now my dear readers just wonder once more and then guess who the writer is.

MONUMENTS

In erecting a monument, one should remember that it is not a mere mass of stone, but a memorial of honor that is to perpetuate the memory of the departed. Therefore, select the best to be made, and to its beauty of design and thought of material. Many years in the monument business has taught us that good monuments cannot be made at cut prices, but it has also taught us how to make the best monument at the lowest possible price.

We have on hand a complete assortment of designs, which we place at your disposal, but the best stones. Come in and see our large assortment built of Wisconsin Blue Granite, "The Silk of the Trade." The ideal monumental granite.

These men were honestly elected under a law which the gang helped pass, but the gang take its own medline like men and not be permitted to finish the job of discrediting the party in the State.

The State leaders all realize that to unseat these men would be a blunder, but there is danger that the gang will take advantage of their political necessity and force some concession unless the people object.

We do not believe that the Eastern Shore members of the Legislature will stand for the Temperance Committee reports. If they do, we understand that the local option question is involved. Tell your men that you will stand by them in refusing to enter a committee on this question involving a moral issue, or to be a party to any such nefarious scheme. Make clear to them that a vote to unseat these men or in favor of some motion which may later help the gang to unseat them, will, if these men are thrown out and the local option bill is beaten, be THE REAL RECORD ON LOCAL OPTION, for no man need expect the people to be satisfied with a mere formal vote for a bill after he has helped kill it by a previous vote.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION

In Baltimore. Delegates To National Convention. Jno. H. Dulany Speaker At Banquet.

The Prohibition party will hold its State Convention in Baltimore on February the 22d, to elect delegates to the National Convention, which is to be held in Atlantic City, July the 10th to the 12th. The Convention in Baltimore will be held at the Odd Fellows Hall of that city, and a full representation will be present as the interest of the members of the party is greater than for years in the success of the movement.

The Convention will be followed by a banquet at night at which will be present representative Prohibitionists from every section of the State.

Hon. Jno. H. Dulany, of this County, who was the candidate of his party for Governor in the last election, will respond to the toast "Our Standard Bearers." Wicomico will send five representatives to the State Convention.

These delegates will be chosen at a meeting at the Peninsula Hotel, Salisbury, to be held this Saturday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Vincent.

Mrs. Rebecca Vincent, widow of the late William M. Vincent, died at her home in Snow Hill on Monday, aged about seventy-five years. Before her marriage, Mrs. Vincent was Miss Rebecca Shockley, twin sister of Miss Belle Shockley, who survived her.

Together they lived with their brother, the late Solomon Franklin Shockley, at his home near Snow Hill until his death. The deceased married Lieutenant William M. Vincent about fifteen years ago and had been married only a few years when she was left a widow. Mrs. Vincent is survived by her sister, Miss Belle Shockley, and a large number of nephews and nieces, of the number several live in Snow Hill and others in different sections of Worcester and Wicomico Counties.

"HYGIENE KISS" TO

Be "Germless Joy". Druggists Will Demonstrate Sanitary Osculation At Ball.

Those who have risen up to cry out against the recent innovations in dancing, such as the turkey trot and kindred dances, should find all the joy of living and a restoration of confidence at the hygienic ball of the National Pharmaceutical Society to be held in the Amsterdam Opera House, New York, on February the 28th.

On this great occasion will be introduced the hygienic waltz for the first time on any ballroom floor. It will be followed by the introduction and demonstration of the hygiene kiss, a part of the program, however, which the dancers cannot carry on without the consent of a second party.

Dr. John Bates, a member of the committee, explained the hygiene kiss.

As a souvenir and sample the women present will receive each a simple but effective little device used for the hygiene kiss. It is a gauze ring fastened to a sterling silver handle after the fashion of a lorgnette. The screen has hygienic properties, it is said, and to be effective must be placed between two persons when they kiss.

On the invitations the committee promises, among other things, "Paramour Pleasanties" and "Germless Joy."

MORE ABOUT THE

Men And Religion Movement—Interesting Points Regarding It.

The Men and Religion Campaign which is attracting so much attention throughout the United States has already proven in the cities in which it has been demonstrated that this campaign is doing more to stir up activity among ministers and laymen than any other known religious campaign or movement in the past.

The unique thing in regards to this movement is that it is nothing new, its one great purpose is to use existing organizations now within the church to carry out an extensive and comprehensive plan to study the conditions within and without the church. And the reason why work should be done is not to bring the men of each local church together as the force to do the work.

It is a pitiable fact, but true, that in each church there are a few faithless earnest men who do all they can for the good of their church. The large majority of the workers, however, are women. This movement strives to awaken the consciousness of red-blooded men to go into their church work with a determination and force such as they do in their business enterprises. It strives to show men that a man can live seven days in the week doing his work wherever it may be, in an upright Christian like way.

When the men now in our churches live more consistent church lives among their business associates making the church of God the highest symbol of Christian product, then the men out of the church will be more ready to become church men. The church itself is revered by the average man, whether he be a church man or not. The representative man of the church has past years however, been far below the standard of a church man. It is through this movement that the indifferent layman is awakened to his obligations and responsibilities for service and fellowship among mankind.

There are five active phases of work set forth by this movement which gives any man who desires to be of some personal help to some one else the opportunity to relate himself to the work within his church that he soon becomes a part of the working force of the church.

The Men and Religion Forward Movement suggests that in each local church there be a committee of five men known as the Local Church Committee.

One man to represent Bible Study.

One man to represent Boys' Work.

One man to represent Evangelism.

One man to represent Social Service.

One man to represent Missions.

This committee so constituted can thus bring the entire message of this Movement to each local church and perpetuate that message in the local church.

February the 28th, 29th and March the 1st, a team of ministers and laymen will visit Salisbury. They will conduct what is known as an institute for one hour during which time each member of the team discusses and instructs in the very latest and best methods of how to promote successfully the work which he especially represents in the church. The men who have been appointed as the special representatives from their church should attend these institutes, especially that institute on the phase of work each man has assumed the responsibility of as representative in his own local church. He obtains instruction, also inspiration, and then goes back to his church ready to carry out some of the suggestions he heard at the institute, if the same are adaptable to his church. Through this method there will be five men from each church who will become fitted to promote the five lines of work in their church, and to these men, endeavor to get other men to attend the institutes and fit themselves to do likewise.

Do not the women of Colorado share with the men voters their responsibility of the corruption of corporate politics? Where has woman suffrage cleaned political parties?

For 16 years women have shouldered the responsibility of unclean politics in Colorado with the men of that State. The women there are simply part of one party or another, voting generally as do the men of the families. It is preposterous to say, or for any body of suffragists to say, that the women of Maryland want suffrage. There are women here and women there, doctors and lawyers, representing a small busy body, and not representing the women of Maryland, trying to burden the women of this State with a heavy responsibility.

"There are more than 600,000 women in Maryland, and it is for this great number of daughters and mothers to say whether they want suffrage, and not for a small body of women to do so."

Concrete Example.

Let each church set before it a practical illustration as to the meaning of "Conservation." Let it be assumed that there are now ten men or fifty men in the particular neighborhood of that church, recently quickened into a new religious earnestness. Let that church determine just what it would do with these men and for them. May we urgently suggest:

(a) They must be given something to do.

(b) That something must be truly worth while.

(c) It must be something that will appeal to men.

(d) It must be thoroughly consonant with the teaching and spirit of Jesus Christ and in harmony with modern needs.

For the sake of the boys and indifferent men who have not yet accepted Christ as their leader. It behoves every active church man so put in to this campaign all he is capable of, time, study and prayer, that it may in its coming to this city leave a plan of work that shall be carried out for years to come from which no one is at this time able to prophesy the results.

GALLS "CAUSE" FAILURE

Mrs. Garrett Raps Woman Suffrage—Points To Other States—"Votes For Women" No Longer Theory.

There are women here and women there among them physicians and lawyers, representing a small, busy body, but not representing the women of Maryland, trying to burden the women of this State with a heavy responsibility.

The world depends on their efforts. Beset with suffrage they let all things go until they get what they want."

Thus declared Mrs. Robert Garrett before a large audience composed of many young women and three men in the assembly hall of Strayer's Business College, in an address before the Stenographer's Association of Baltimore.

Mrs. Garrett's subject was "Women's Opposition to Women Suffrage." She was introduced by Mr. Hart Rose, president of the Stenographers' Association. Mr. Rose, who for a while lived in Denver, where the women have the ballot, declared that suffrage for women "is good in theory but bad in practice."

Bulletin No Benefit, She Contends.

Mrs. Garrett told the young women that much has been said about working conditions being improved under woman suffrage rule. To disprove this the speaker quoted laws from States having women suffrage and from those States in which the ballot is restricted to men. She gave statistics to prove that working women are protected to a greater degree in States where they have suffrage than in those where they have the voting franchise."

"Colorado, with its woman suffrage for 16 years, has not improved its political conditions," declared Mrs. Garrett. "On the contrary, Judge Lindsey, of Denver, has proved that the votes of women are practically held in bondage. Some suffragists in Baltimore believe that when they are permitted to vote panaceas for all governmental ills will be at hand. This is a great mistake, for it is absolutely certain that the women will be obliged to vote with one party or the other."

"Tried And Found Wanting."

Woman suffrage is not a theory an longer. It has been tried and found wanting. Why should the burden of political strife be placed on the shoulders of women? A woman can exercise a greater influence in the management of her home than by putting herself on equal political footing with her husband and marching to the polls, deserting her home and doing things in the cause of suffrage. Suffrage is no longer an experiment. It is a failure.

The Men and Religion Forward Movement suggests that in each local church there be a committee of five men known as the Local Church Committee.

One man to represent Bible Study.

One man to represent Boys' Work.

One man to represent Evangelism.

One man to represent Social Service.

PEOPLE WANT DIRECT PRIMARIES.

The ADVERTISER is very much gratified by the reception its course in advocating direct primaries is being given by the people of this County. Some have expressed an opinion that the Democratic party will make one of the biggest blunders of its history, if it fails to give the people what they want in this direction. According to our understanding Senator Price and the members of the legislature are in favor of direct primaries and all they want is to know how the citizens of this County feel upon the subject. We do not want to create a wrong impression in regard to the wishes of either Senator Price or any member of this County's delegation in regard to this subject and we desire to say that the statement that they are in favor of direct primaries if the people so desire is based upon our belief and not stated as coming from any of these gentlemen directly.

Those desiring direct primaries for this County should not take too much for granted, but should take occasion to let our representatives know how they feel upon this subject. If all interested will make a point of either seeing some member or better writing to them, then it is practically assured that our next primaries will be held under a legalized plan of direct primaries—a thing we never yet have had. We wish to again call the attention of those interested in the importance of having incorporated in this law, if passed, a plan to have party affiliation properly recorded so that none but democratic can participate in the Democratic primaries; a plan to do away with the objectionable envelop system of voting, giving in its place a ballot as secret as the one now used in our general election; a clause to throw around the new law all of the protection possible against bribery, intimidation etc. Outside of the feature of requiring party affiliation a primary law with the same general features of our present law will give entire satisfaction and will come near accomplishing what a primary is intended to do, give the people the right to select their own standard bearers uninfluenced by money, free from intimidation, and the result not brought about by trickery or manipulation. A free and untrammeled choice of people will be the results of a proper primary law, and the man who is open and above board need have no fear in entering a primary conducted along these lines. As it is it will be difficult to get the best class of citizens to make the fight, the result being that our offices will be filled with men, who are willing to resort to manipulation, trickery intimidation, bribery in order to gain their ends.

CONTINUE GOOD ROADS.

It is to be hoped that the Maryland Legislature and Governor Goldsborough will not let any political differences that may have interfere with the good work of making our thoroughfares more passable. This is the kind of work that will help more to develop the resources of the State than perhaps any other legislation that the Legislature can pass. Our farmers have got a taste of what good roads mean and they will not rest satisfied until we have a good system of roads built. The County Commissioners of this County, while not authorized by the tax payers, to issue bonds to improve our roads, certainly have received the O. K. of those attending both of the recent meetings held in the Court House to go ahead with the work in this County. They will doubtless make a levy next year sufficiently large to go on with this work, the regrettable feature of this is, that in the present financial condition of the County but little work can be done until after the next levy.

Mrs. Charlotte Smith.

On Wednesday Jan. 24, Mrs. Charlotte Smith died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Cathell, aged ninety.

She was a devoted Christian always cheerful and bright and devoted to her children. She leaves behind a loving child to mourn their loss, Mrs. Cathell, of Shad Point, Mrs. James Cathell and Mrs. T. C. Jones, of Franklin. Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. C. T. Jones, assisted by Rev. H. G. Dulany. Six of her grand-children acted as pall bearers.

Incorporation of Fruitland.

(Communicated.)

Messrs. Editors:—A word or two, if you please, in regard to the incorporation of Fruitland.

Fruitland at this time, seems to be progressing nicely, wholesomely and harmoniously. The man or woman owning property here, has a right to make all the improvements he or she may desire. The friction, discord, contention, unfairness, jealousy, etc., plus the cost, which will attend and result from the incorporation, will prove a disadvantage to the village instead of an advantage.

Whether or not Fruitland shall be incorporated is a question that should be answered by the interested people of Fruitland and every man thus interested, has a right to say whether or not he favors it.

How the master stands for and against with the citizens of the village, I know not. Let every man speak for himself. As for me, I put myself on record here and now again, in it, basing my position on the conviction that in this matter we would be a little premature. We would be simply dressing up a boy in a man's clothes, which necessarily proves burdensome. Let us skip along awhile longer in the breeches and, when it becomes manifest that long breeches are needed, we'll put them on.

Moreover, we find taxes, plus other pluses, quite enough for our purpose. Why should we add more to the cost of living here? A good many are now building outside of the limits of incorporated towns. Isn't this a loud hint?

Respectfully submitted,
J. I. T. LONG.
Fruitland, Md., February 9th 1912.

Meeting of Odd Fellows.

(Communicated.) One of the most enthusiastic meetings in the interest of Odd Fellowship was held Thursday evening, February 15, at the Odd Fellows Hall by a joint meeting held by Newton Lodge No. 56 and The Helping Hand Rebekah Lodge No. 23. The meeting was called to order by Past Grand, E. J. C. Parsons, who in turn introduced the speakers which included Deputy Grand Master, Fred E. Groom, Grand Secretary, William A. Jones, and Mrs. Susan Jones, Seer of the Maryland Rebekah Assembly all of Baltimore. They gave good talks and predicted a great future for Odd Fellowship in Salisbury.

Short addresses were also made by Brothers Harry Murphy, Thomas Parker and Chas. W. Bennett. Music was furnished by an Orchestra, under the leadership of Prof. Hopkins. Solos were rendered by Raymond Wimbrow and Bro. Wood Richardson. Newton Lodge is making plans to initiate a large class on March 12, and they urged upon every brother to go to work, so as to make a good showing by the time the Grand Lodge meets in April. Past Grand, the Hon. Bro. E. J. C. Parsons, the Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, Noble Grand J. Edward White had charge of serving the refreshments.

One to express his honest opinion. If it should develop that an honest majority of the taxpayers of Fruitland favor incorporation, harmonious acquiescence will be my course. Gentlemen, friends, citizens, neighbors, it is up to us. What do you say?

Respectfully submitted,
J. I. T. LONG.

Going or Coming

It will be to your interest to investigate what we have to offer before making your selection of a farm or other landed or wooded property in this section.

Buying or Selling

should be conducted on lines that invite confidence and inspire more and better business relations between each other. We try not to sell for today alone, but encourage a good foundation for further business transactions. Our old customers are among our best references. Ask those we have sold to if they are satisfied and then give us an opportunity to show you what we have for sale and satisfy you. Our property is so located, in such sizes and varying soils as to have some suited to everyone. Come to see us. Descriptive Bulletin and partial list of farms will be mailed for those asking. Send for one.

reading us in twain, fairly smothering us by sheer force of numbers. I saw the old Colonel plunge head-down into the rock beneath the horses' feet; the Major riding stone dead in his saddle, a ghastly red stain in the center of his forehead; then Hunter, of B., went down screaming, and I knew I was the senior captain left. About me scarce a hundred men bataded like demons for their lives in the midst of the guns. Even as I glanced aside at them, shielding my head with split sabre from the blows rained upon me, the color-sergeant flung up his hand, and grasped his saddle pomme to keep from falling. Out of his opening fingers I snatched the spangled staff, lifted it high up, until the rent folds of the old flag caught the dull glow of the sunlight.

"—th Virginia!" I shouted. "Rally on the colors!"

I could see them coming—all that was left of them—fighting their way through the press, cleaving the mass with their bows as the prow of a ship cut the sea. With one vicious jab of the spur I led them, a thin wedge of tempered gray steel, battering, gouging, rending a passage into that solid blue wall. Inch by inch, foot by foot, yard by yard, slashing madly with our broken sabres, battling as men erased with lust of blood, over our very horses fighting for us with teeth and hoofs, we ploughed a lane of death through a dozen files. Then the vast mass closed in upon us, rolled completely over us. There was a flash, a vision of frenzied faces and I knew no more.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Field Hospital, Sixth Corps.

My head ached so abominably when I first opened my eyes that I was compelled to close them again, merely realizing dimly that I looked up at something white above me, which appeared to sway as though blown gently by the wind. My groping hand, the only one I was able to move, told me I was lying upon a camp-bed, with soft sheets about me, and that my head rested upon a pillow. Then I passed once more into unconsciousness, but this time it was asleep.

When I once more awakened the throbbing pain had largely left my hot temples, and I saw that the swaying white canopy composed the roof of a large tent, upon which the golden sunlight now lay in checkered masses, telling me the canvas had been erected among trees. A faint moan caused me to move my head slightly on the gratefully soft pillow, and I could perceive a long row of cots, exactly similar to the one I occupied, each apparently filled, stretching away toward an opening that looked forth into the open air.

"But," I protested, my heart beating rapidly, "I met several that evening, and you have mentioned no name?"

"Well, to me it chances there is but one worthy of mention," he said earnestly, "and that one is Celia Minor."

"Miss Minor!" I felt a strange sense of disappointment. "Does she come alone?"

"Most certainly; do you suppose she would expose me in my present weak state to the fascinations of any one else?"

"Oh, as the wind lies in that quarter, does it, old fellow? I congratulate you, I'm sure."

My recollection of Miss Minor was certainly a most pleasant one, and I recalled to memory the attractive picture of her glossy black hair and flashing brown eyes, yet I felt exceedingly small interest in again meeting her. Indeed I was asleep when she finally entered, and it was the sound of Caton's voice that aroused me and made me conscious of the presence of others.

"I shall share these grapes with my cot-mate over yonder," he said laughingly. "By the way, Celia, his voice sounded strangely familiar to me a short time ago. Just glance over there and see if he is any one you know."

"I heard the soft rustle of skirts, and, without a smile, looked up into her dark eyes. There was a sudden start of pleased surprise.

"Why," she exclaimed eagerly, "it is Colonel Curran! Edith, dear, here is the Rebel who pretended to be Myrtle Curran's brother."

How the hot blood leaped within my veins at mention of that name; but before I could lift my head she had swept across the narrow aisle, and was standing beside me. Wife, or what, there was that within her eyes which told me a wondrous story. For the instant, in her surprise and agitation, she forgot herself, and lost that marvellous self-restraint which had held us so far apart.

"Captain Wayne!" she cried, and her gloved hands fell instantly upon my own, where it rested without the coverlet. "You here, and wounded?"

I smiled up at her, feeling now that my injuries were indeed trivial.

"Well, it's all of three now."

"Wan-thirty, on my soul, son."

That first voice sounded oddly familiar, and I turned my face that way, but was unable to perceive the speaker.

"Is that Lieutenant Caton?" I asked doubtfully.

"Most assuredly it is," quickly. "And who are you?"

"Captain Wayne, of the Confederate Army."

"Oh, Wayne? Glad you spoke, but extremely sorry to have you here. Madly hurt?"

"Not seriously, I think. No limbs missing, anyhow, but exceedingly weak. Where did they get you?"

"In the side, a musket ball, but extracted. I would be all right if that "I am glad you cared sufficiently for me," I said gravely, "to hold me in your thought at such a time. Our command merely performed the work given it, but the necessity has cost us dearly. You are yet at General Sheridan's headquarters."

"Only temporarily, and simply because there has been no opportunity to get away, the movements of the army have been so hurried and uncertain. Since the battle Miss Minor has desired to remain until assured of Lieutenant Caton's permanent recovery. He was most severely wounded, and of course I could not leave her here alone."

"There were tears in my eyes, I know, as I listened to her, and my heart warmed at this frank confession of her remembrance."

"There were tears in my eyes, I know, as I listened to her, and my heart warmed at this frank confession of her remembrance."

"I am glad you cared sufficiently for me," I said gravely, "to hold me in your thought at such a time. Our command merely performed the work given it, but the necessity has cost us dearly. You are yet at General Sheridan's headquarters."

M.T. HERMON.

Sunday School next Sunday at 9:30; Class Meeting at 10:30; Christian Endeavor at 6:30. All are invited to these services.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodland Godfrey, of Cape Charles, spent Sunday with his father, where they ate the eighteen pound goose.

Wednesday morning, February the 1st, 1919, was a sad day in the lives of C. C. Lemon and family for the Death Angel at that time entered his home and took away his faithful brother, John T. Lemon, thus removing him from earth to the spirit world above. The deceased was born January the 9th, 1854, near where he spent the greater part of his life. In the year of 1889 he married Miss Alice Dove. After that time he and his wife joined the church at Mt. Hermon where he has been a faithful soldier of Jesus Christ. Over thirty one years amid storm and calm, in darkness and in sunshine, with zeal born of knowledge and with fire kindled by the Spirit of God, faithfully upheld by the banner of Christ until he was called to his honorable place with the crowned ones. All his life he was literally a slave to his work, yet served his Master gladly and willingly. As a husband, he was sincere, brave and true: as a father, loving and helpful; as a friend, noble, courteous and respectful. For the past years his health had been failing but not until January the 24th was he confined to his bed. All through his sickness he realized that his end was near, but bore up gently for he felt that he was resting in the care of Jesus, who promised to be with him in his affliction. Before the end came he looked into the face of his friends and said: "All is well." He was 65 years of age. He leaves one daughter, Mella, and three brothers, Lander, Ocharie and Samuel Lemon, who are all married. In deep bereavement they mourn their loss. Asleep in Jesus, Blessed Sleep. Funeral services were held at Mt. Hermon Church by Rev. C. M. Gullum, the text was taken from the 90th Psalm. The remains were interred in the family burying ground at E. Q. Walston's, where he lies and sleeps. The pall bearers were Messrs. Geo. W. Walston, C. F. Mills, Ernest Hammond, Denert Tilghman, Murray Walston and Marion Ennis.

KELLY.

Mr. James E. Dickerson, of Piney Grove, had his barn burned and two new cribs. The barn was a large one. Up in the loft were twenty seven stacks of fodder and a lot of hay, all burned. In the two cribs were about three thousand bushels of ears of corn. He saved all of his stock. One mule was so badly burned that they thought it would die, but all the hair was burned off; some fowl were burned. His dwelling would have gone but for his neighbors. The furniture was all moved out. His loss will amount to several hundred dollars, including his entire crop of corn and fodder. The barn is said to hold seventy five stacks of fodder.

At The Academy of Music, Baltimore.

In these parlous times of political upheavals one would hardly expect to find peace in a political play. There is some campaign coming on, and any mention of politics fits in naturally to the air of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching."

Yet, despite these drawbacks, Mr. William H. Crane has achieved the feat in "The Senator Keeps House," a comedy of Washington official life in which he will open an engagement at the New Academy of Music next Monday evening.

There is all the atmosphere of the Washington muck-maker. There is the lady intriguer and the "Paid For" Congressman. All of the meanness and cheapness of practical politics is paraded before you, but it is all rubbed of its sting. Over the whole is thrown the quaint and honest simplicity of a United States Senator who believes in serving the people and playing watchdog of the Treasury, even though the popular election of Senators has not yet become a part of our government.

NO BOND ISSUES.

It is understood that the City has finally decided not to ask for a bond issue this Legislature. The improvements the City had in mind to make are needed ones, but perhaps under the circumstances it will be better to postpone the bond issue until plans for its expenditure are more fully mapped out and understood by the people. We believe that if the City will go ahead and map out a complete sewerage system and give it out to the public with an estimate of its cost when completed, the citizens of this City will give their consent to a proper bond issue for this purpose, for this is a question the importance of which is recognized by all. If we want to protect the health of this community from the attack of Typhoid and other diseases, we should look more closely to our sanitary conditions, and the providing of a proper sewerage system is one of the first and most important steps in this direction.

It is only right and just however, for the public to be informed, what is proposed to be done in this line,
and how much a proper sewerage system will cost before steps are taken to borrow the money for this purpose.

The other proposed improvement of curbing our streets is also something that should be done, though in our opinion, it is not as important as the other, since the health of the community is not at stake. Both of these will come in time, and it is up to our Mayor and Council to look forward and be prepared to meet them in a business like manner. People are naturally opposed to the borrowing of money unless they know exactly what it is to be used for, and just how much the sum asked for will do of the work proposed.

DO AWAY WITH THE ENVELOPE VOTING.

Primaries in order to perform their proper functions in our system of government should be so arranged that a full and free expression of the wishes of the members of the various parties in their choice of candidates will be obtained. If the envelope system is retained in the primary law, this free and untrammeled wish of the voters will never be obtained—or not until our voters get educated up to the point of voting as they please regardless of the wishes of those who are interested in the success of some man or set of men.

Voters are but individuals, therefore, they dislike to put themselves in a position of opposing the wishes of those who make themselves active in the political world, either as leaders, or that lower form of political activity, paid workers at the polls.

Bribery has been one of the greatest evils which has beset our political life, and the envelope system of voting should receive the condemnation of all good citizens on the ground that it gives every opportunity to the buyer to see that the goods bought are delivered.

Intimidation is another great evil which we have been trying to prevent for years. The envelope system opens the door to this, and many a voter will be coerced into voting under it as was the case in the primaries held in this County last fall.

Trickery and manipulation are both words which those who are at all familiar with the inner working of our political system, know the meaning of
and their perilous effect upon our body politic. The envelope system by giving the leaders and others interested the right to send out marked ballots to the voters, aids them to manipulate the Primary elections in such a manner as to secure the nominations for those they wish to be nominated.
This is further aided and helped by their having at every polling place, workers with tickets already marked to thrust in the hands of voters as fast as they come up. So faithfully did many of these workers perform their duty last primaries, that tickets different from the ones they wanted voted were in many instances snatched from the hands of the timid or uncertain voter, and one that suited his taste which he was either pleased with, argued with or commanded to go and vote.

No much confidence did the envelope

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

system of voting give to these workers that they would be able to make the voters do their will, that it was no uncommon sight to see them walking around the streets of Salisbury, offering to trade their districts vote for support with some of the other workers and leaders, and if their offers for a "deal" were refused to threaten defeat to any man who dared to oppose their wishes.

There are a few reasons why the envelope system of voting should not be continued in this County, and we trust that our people will insist not only upon a Primary law, but one which will allow of secret voting.

For the present he will serve as extra aide upon my personal staff."

I turned away, the Major leading me as if I had been a child. I walked as a man stunned by some sudden, unexpected blow. When I finally joined the mess upon the following day, clad new in st uniform, I had regained no small measure of self-restraint, and with it came likewise renewal of the military spirit. My welcome proved extremely cordial, and the conversation of the others present soon placed in my possession whatever of incident had occurred since that disastrous day of battle in the valley. No attempt was made to conceal our weakness, nor to disguise the fact that we were making a last desperate stand. It was evident to all that nothing now remained but to fold our tattered battle flags with honor.

Directly opposite me, at the long and rather scantily furnished mess-table, was seated a captain of infantry, quite foreign in appearance—tall, slender man, wearing a light-colored moustache and goatee. His name, as I gathered from the conversation, was Carlson, and I was considerably surprised at the fitness with which his eyes were fastened upon me during the earlier part of the meal. Thinking we might have met concern. Captain Wayne's reputation is not one to be轻视ed, either as regards his chivalrous regard women or his bravery in arms. I pledge you his early meeting with this major."

They drank the toast standing, and I read in each face before me a frank, soldierly confidence and comradeship which caused my heart to glow.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Scouting Detail.

This premeditated insult, which Brennan evidently dispatched broadcast in hope that through some unknown channel it might reach me, changed my entire relationship with the man. I have never felt that Brennan was at heart a bad man; he was hard, stern, revengeful, yet I have no doubt under different circumstances I might even have valued him highly as a comrade or a friend. There is no demon like jealousy; and his early distrust of me, fostered by that mad disease, had apparently warped his entire nature. Yet not even for love could I consent to leave my honor undefended, and after those hateful words there could be no rest for me until our differences were settled by the stern arbitration of the naked blade. All prudence to the winds, no opportunity of meeting him should now be cast aside.

The coming day was barely gray in the east when I was awakened by a heavy pounding upon the door. A smart-looking orderly stood without.

"Captain Wayne?" he asked.

"That is my name. What have you, my man?"

"Compliments of Colonel Maitland, chief of staff, sir," he said, handing me a folded paper.

"Dear Wayne:" the private note read, "Believing you would be glad to have the detail we have just arranged to send you at once upon some active service. Please report at these quarters immediately, fully equipped for the field."

Glad! It was the very medicine I most needed, and within twenty minutes of my receipt of this communication I was with Maitland, thanking him warmly for his thoughtfulness.

"Not another word, Wayne," he insisted. "It is not much, a mere scouting detail over neutral territory, and will prove still enough. I only hope it may help to divert your mind a trifle. Now listen—you are to proceed with twenty mounted men of the escort west as far as the foot-hills, and are expected to note carefully three things: First, the condition of forage for the sustenance of a wagon train; second, what forces of Federal troops, if any, are along the Honeywell; and third, the gathering of all information obtainable as to the reported consolidation of guerrillas for purposes of plunder between the lines. If time suffices, you might cross over into the valley of the Cowpens and learn the condition of forage there as well. A guide will accompany your party, and you are to avoid contact with the enemy as far as possible. You must carry five days' rations. You understand fully?"

"I do, sir; I presume I am to start at once?"

"Your squad, under command of Sergeant Ebers, is already waiting outside."

"Are you all ready, sergeant?" I asked of the rather heavy-weight German who stood fronting me, his broad, red face as impassive as though carved from stone.

"Ve vos, captain."

"Where is the guide?"

"Dot is him, mit der mule, ain't it?" he answered, pointing with one huge hand down the road.

"Very well, we will pick him up then as we go."

I cared so little as to whether or not he accompanied us at all, that we had advanced some distance before the thought of him again occurred to me. I knew the gentry fairly well, and had experienced in the past so many evidences of their stupidity, if not actual disloyalty, as to prefer my own knowledge of the country to theirs. My thought, indeed, for several miles was not at all with the little party of troopers jogging steadily at my heels, nor, in truth, was it greatly concerned with the fate of the expedition. That was but service routine, and I rode forward carelessly enough, never dreaming that every hour of progress was bearing me toward the most important adventure of my life. It was the German sergeant who recalled me to the responsibilities of command.

"Captain," he exclaimed apologetically, riding up to my side and wiping his round, perspiring face with great energy. "It was I who made this mistake. I was led to believe that the Swede was a good man."

"Is that so?" I asked in surprise at his words. A single swift glance around convinced me he was correct, for the mounts were exceedingly soft, and already looked nearly played out from our sharp pace. "Very well, we will hold here."

With a sigh of relief he drew back, and as he did so my eyes fell for the first time upon the guide. As I live, it was Jed Bumby, and when I stared at him in sudden amazement he broke into a broad grin.

"Durn if I didn't begin ter think as how you'd gone an' ol' fer got me, Cap."

"Not a bit of it, Jed," and I rode up to him and extended my hand. "But how come you here? Are you a 'gentleman'?"

"Durn thing, cap! know this year Bumby like a bull. 'Daded horses from the west, at eventide to the castle fronted.' By gum, you put Bumby up me through a blazed hard jott o' it so fur."

"Bumby!"

"To bot, ther mule; I reckon as how he ain't gone an' fer got him, how ye?"

Dynepal is our national elixir.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds up Pa.

"Bungay, what has become of Maria?"

The little man's eyes suddenly filled with tears.

"I just don't know, cap," he answered mournfully. "Whin I got home ther ol' cabin hed bin plum burnt down, nary stick o' it left, by gum! an' Maria she wuz clean gone. Hain't seen neither hide nor hair o' her since, that's a fac'. An' I sorter drifted back to you uns 'cause I didn't hev nowhere else ter go."

"Did you hunt for her among the old plantations along the valley?" I asked, deeply touched by his evident feeling.

"She very likely sought refuge in some of those houses."

He looked at me in surprise. "I reckon, cap, as how ye don't know much 'bout what's a goin' on in ther valley fer ther las' few months," he said soberly, rubbing down his mule as he spoke. "Tell ye what, that list hain't no plantation houses left now, that's a fac', leastwise not north o' ther lines we use sorter hol' onto. Sheridan he played hell with his cavalry raids, an' what the blue-bellies left ther durned guerrillas an' bushwhackers wiped up es clean as a slate. Burn if a crow wudn't starve ter death in ther valley now. Why, cap, them thar deserters an' sich truck is organized now till they're mighty nigh an army, an' they don't skeer for nothing' in 'em a reg'nt. I see more ner hundred an' fifty in one bunch up on ther White Briar two week ago, an' they're worse ner a parcel o' pirates. I reckon as how they got Maria, but I bet she giv' em a hot ol' time before she done quit."

Rumors of this state of affairs to the north and west of our defending lines had already reached me—indeed, the verification had formed part of my instructions; but Bungay's homesick yet graphic description made the situation appear terribly real, and my thoughts went instantly forth to those I knew who might even then be exposed to this great and unexpected danger.

The very conception of Edith Brennan in such hands as these was agony. I said I could never rest until assured of her safety, and since my order granted me full authority to prolong my journey, I might ascertain whether or not she yet remained within the valley.

"Fed," I asked, my mind finally settled.

"Ole Judge Miner's place? Sure; it's up on ther south branch of ther Cow-skin."

"Have those fellows got down that far yet?"

"Wal, I reckon not, but durn if I know for sure, cap."

"How long would it take us to reach there?"

"Bout two days, I reckon."

I turned and looked at my men in some perplexity. They were scattered along the edge of the road, and only one group had taken the precaution to build a fire. The sergeant lay flat upon his back on a grassy knoll.

"Hers," I said sternly.

He arose ponderous, and came forward with a decidedly halting gait.

"Vos I seat?" he asked.

"Yes," I said; "I want you to have the men get their supper at once, as we shall be obliged to ride a good portion of the night. Get the men to their supper. We shall go on in an hour."

How often since have I smiled at the expression upon his solemn round face as he turned ruefully away!

"You are obliged to accept any terms she makes."

"I am. But it was a little thoughtless of her to insist on my signing a contract to pay her 10% per cent of the gross receipts."

"A Waste of Time.

"Doctor," she asked, in pleading tones, "do you think it will be necessary for me to have an operation?"

"Oh, I hardly think so," he replied.

"There! I told my husband it wouldn't be any use coming to you. My next door neighbor has a doctor who has prescribed three operations for her during the past year."

ONE CASE OUT OF MANY TO PROVE OUR CLAIMS.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headache, was nervous, irritable and was despondent. Sometimes my appetite was good but more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance. I saw your advertisement in a Anty Drudge to the Rescue of Daughter's Pale Blue Gingham.

Mrs. Careful—“I have made my daughter such a pretty pale-blue gingham dress, and now I am worried for fear it will fade in the wash.”

Anty Drudge—“It won’t fade if you don’t rub it hard, nor put it in boiling water. Just wash it carefully in Fels-Naptha suds, made in cool or luke-warm water, and it will come out as bright as new. But be sure not to use hot water with Fels-Naptha!”

The Fels-Naptha way of washing gives the clothes a fair chance.

The old-fashioned way is destructive because it first softens the fibre by boiling, and then subjects it to the telling rub of the washboard.

With Fels-Naptha soap there is no boiling nor is there the hard back-breaking drudgery of the washboard.

Just rub Fels-Naptha soap on the clothes, roll and place them in cool or luke-warm water. Half an hour will be long enough for the soap to do its work. Then a light rub, thorough rinse, blued and the clothes are white, pure, and ready to hang out. And you’ll find Fels-Naptha just as good for every other kind of household cleaning. Follow closely the easy directions on the red and green wrapper.

Wool will be very much in evidence in stylish outdoor raiment this year. Here is an attractive coat, made of flannel or soft Vienna, with lace-wool knitted scarf and rough wool hat, trimmed with flowers made of woolen yarn. This represents real warmth, and is thoroughly appropriate for all out-door recreation.

LINEN COSTUME.

STORY OF JAPANESE GOWNS

Interesting Facts Concerning the Origin of Garments Worn in the Island Empire.

Nearly every woman nowadays cherishes a Japanese gown for house wear without realizing how interesting a garment it is. The sleeves themselves have a curious history. From the middle of the sixteenth century they began to increase in length, and, especially those for young ladies, have extended till now they are from three to four feet. This style, known as furisode, became very fashionable.

The width of the obi, or sash, has also varied, at first from two and a half to three and a half inches, and to six, seven, eight and nine inches.

It is interesting to note that our own new fashions in sleeves and sashes originated among the common people of Japan, and from them were finally adopted by the upper classes. The young ladies of the Samuri class were the first to follow the popular styles in this respect, and the higher classes began to follow suit, until now these fashions prevail everywhere.

It is only from about the middle of the seventh century that the women of the lower classes began to wear the long haori, or overcoat, at present so common among all classes of both sexes. This garment was originally a duster worn by men to protect their clothes when outdoors, and was then called dofuku, or traveling coat.

Finally they came to be worn indoors, and the women adopted the garment. The upper classes in time followed the same custom, and now the haori is an indispensable part of the clothing to be worn on formal occasions, even in summer.

NEWEST IDEAS IN GIRDLES

Many Materials for Choice and Design is Altogether a Matter for the Individual.

The newest girdles are made of rope, head, metal, fabric and chenille. The latter are particularly well liked, as are also those made of plied metal pieces run with ribbon and obtainable in assorted colors. There are also those made of colored pyroxylon, ribbon laced. These pyroxylon girdles, while extremely light in weight, have an effect similar to the heavier metal ones. Another of this class of girdle is the heavy linked chain or metal rope, made in either gilt, silver, or oxidized.

Due to the great popularity of cord girdles, there have been manufactured special ornamental pins in plain and chased effects, also set with colored stones, intended for use as a fastening for the girdles in place of a knot, being both practical and ornamental, and at the same time eliminating the knot tying wear on the girdle.

Latest Sweater.
The latest thing in sweaters are first souvenirs to the fuzzy wuzzy tam-o'-shanters that abounded some five years back. They look like goats and camels, for “they are wild and they are woolly,” with a sheep and a long beard nap, all combed out smooth and shiny—until one buys them, then they will probably gather up in lumps, but they will continue to be just as warm and comfortable and much softer than the regular worsted ones.

Chic Kerchiefs.
Very small handkerchiefs of colored silk with a hemstitched border are sold to wear in the breast pocket of one’s rough morning coat. The color scheme of the costume can be carried out by this small touch in a most effective manner, and the idea has been taken up by the Americans who are now in Paris.

Shocking Sounds.

In the earth are sometimes heard before a terrible earthquake, that war of the coming peril. Nature’s warning is a kind. That dull pain or ache in the back, when you sit down, need attention if you would avoid those dangerous maladies. Proper Diabetes or Bright’s disease. Take Electro Bitters at once and see how quickly and all your best feelings return. “My son received great benefit from their use for kidney and bladder trouble,” writes Peter Bondy from Brooklyn, N.Y. “It is certainly a good kidney medicine.” The 100 voices of all strength.

ANOTHER CATCH.

Jack—Here’s a problem for you, old man. A donkey was tied to a rope six feet long. Eighteen feet away there was a bundle of hay, and the donkey wanted to get to the hay. How did he manage it?

Willie—Oh, I’ve heard that one before. You want me to say “I give it up,” and you’ll say “So did the other donkey.”

Jack—Not at all.
Willie—Then how did he do it?
Jack—Just walked up to the hay and ate it.

Willie—But you said he was tied to a rope six feet long.

Willie—So he was. But, you see, the rope wasn’t tied to anything. Quite simple, isn’t it?

Remarkable Acquaintance.
Gadabout was boasting of his extensive acquaintances. No celebrity could be mentioned unknown to him. He was intimately acquainted with all of them. Finally Dobson inquired:

“Did you ever happen to meet the Siamese twins?”

Gadabout reflected a moment, and then said:

“Well, I am not quite sure that I met both of them, but I knew one of them very well.”

OF A KIND.

Ethel—Well, you’ll admit that Freddie’s actions are those of a gentleman?

Ella—Yes; he’s a good actor.

Delicate Suggestion.

“I proposed to a girl and went last night to get her answer.”

“How was it?”

“Oh, I wasn’t so much shocked as I might have been. She gave me a hint to be prepared for a refusal.”

“What was it?”

“As soon as she came downstairs, I saw she had on a lemon-colored dress.”

POSITIVE PROOF

Should Convince The Greatest Skeptic In Salisbury.

Because it’s the evidence of a Salisbury citizen.

Testimony easily investigated.

The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best proof. Read it:

John H. Connally, Financial Secretary Salisbury Council No. 92, O. U. A. M., 808 E. Isabella Street, Salisbury, Md., says: “I have used Doan’s Kidney Pills and I no longer believe there is a better kidney medicine to be had. Impure drinking water caused kidney complaint in my case. I had trouble from the kidney secretions and my back was weak. The contents of two boxes of Doan’s Kidney Pills brought me relief. I have obtained this remedy at White and Leonard’s Drug Store as I always like to have a supply on hand.” (Statement given June 25th, 1909.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT.

Mr Connally was interviewed by our representative on June the 2nd, 1911, and he added to the above statement: “It gives me pleasure to verify my former endorsement of Doan’s Kidney Pills. My experience has convinced me that this remedy can be relied upon.”

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Company, Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan’s—and take no other.

AUSTRALIAN BLACKBERRY IS ADAPTED TO ALL CLIMATES

Berries Have But Few Seeds Which Are Small and Is One of Best Shippers on Market—They Ripen Early Enough for All Purposes and Continue Until Frost—No Crop More Profitable.

California is the home of the Australian variety of blackberries, an illustration of which is shown herewith as grown by B. S. Kennedy of Sebastopol, Cal., who says:

In marketing small fruits I find this to be the most profitable and delicious berry in cultivation.

This strain of blackberry does not grow its roots through the soil like other varieties, which send up sprouts between the rows causing so much trouble, but it sends them downward into the moist soil, guaranteeing good crops of berries in the driest seasons when other kinds often blast, and outside of hill there is no sprouts, except where the tips of the vines are buried for that purpose.

The Australian blackberry is adapted to all climates where the temperature does not fall lower than 15 degrees below zero. The berries have but few and small seeds, a small soft core which is almost destroyed in cooking; they are very firm, solid and one of the best shippers on the markets, and make a fine dried article. In cooking they form a rich delicious syrup which makes them desirable for canning and general family pur-

Australian Himalaya Blackberry. They ripen early enough for all purposes (about the eighth of July) and continue until frost and do not grow so much of the fruit inside the mass of vines causing tedious picking, but every spring they send out long latters or fruit stems all projecting outside, and hanging down on each side of the rows, loaded with berries that are a pleasure to pick, and last but not least, they will yield three tons of berries per acre when only one year old and ever after that will more than double the yield of any other berry grown. The extensive experience I have had as a grow-

FRENCH SQUASHES AND PUMPKINS

French gardeners sow pumpkins and squashes in April in hotbeds, transplant the seedlings to other hotbeds and finally to the open ground in May. Several days before the plants are set out the holes are dug at a distance of one to two yards, according to the variety. These holes are then filled with thoroughly rotted manure, mixed with a little potash fertilizer and covered with soil. The young plants are and covered with a little straw if the sun is very hot. In frost or cold weather, which often occurs in France in the spring, a bell glass is placed over each plant. In very warm weather the plants are watered more frequently. The skin of the squashes shown in the illustration is so very tender that they must be handled and packed carefully in baskets for transport to shops and restaurants of the large cities.

American Duchess Is Stricken Deaf.

The Duchess of Vizcaya, who was Miss Anita Stewart of New York, daughter of Mrs. James H. Smith and heiress of "Scient Smith's" millions, whose husband, Prince Miguel of Braganza, at the time of the marriage, renounced his claims to the Portuguese throne and became the Duke of Vizcaya, has become almost totally deaf.

While mountain climbing at her mother's place in Scotland recently the Duchess felt something crack in her ear, so she exclaimed the sensation later. She afterward found herself so deaf she could only hear a voice shouting loudly in her ear.

The Duchess is greatly distressed by her affliction and has gone to Paris to consult a famous aurist specialist who is credited with having effected some remarkable cures.
