Warrants For Arrest. Valuable Goods Are Missed.

Chief of Police Woodland C. Disharoon and Constable J. Frank Waller have been quietly at work some time trying to detect those guilty of taking goods out of the stores of some of our merchants. This week they succeeded in locating a part of the stolen goods by careful observation.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Anna Nickerson on the charge of larceny. It is alleged that together with several other accomplices whose identity the police are not ready to reveal, she has taken several skirts, blouses, gowns and other valuable merchandise from our local stores and that the same had been distributed from Cape Charles to points in Delaware. One white skirt, valued at $14, and one braided skirt, valued at $9, have been recovered. A box of stolen goods which was buried near Middle Neck road is being searched for.

The merchants known to have been losers on this game are the firms of S. Lowenthal and R. E. Powell and Co., although it is believed that several others will be in it before the investigation ends.

Anna Nickerson has not been arrested, as she is in Delaware at this time. Search warrants are out for several others as well.

DEATH OF JUDGE HOLLAND

Mourned in Many Homes. Loyal, Kind and True, He Will Be Much Missed. Life.

The receipt of the news of Judge Charles F. Holland's death in Philadelphia, on Sunday, the 30th of April, came as a surprise, and shook to its many friends in Salisbury. He left here to visit his sister, Mrs. Sally P. Longland, of 373 Beeknell Street, Philadelphia, on Saturday, the 23rd of April, and spent the time of his visit in enjoying the pleasure of her and his two other sisters' company, all of them not having met together for a score or more of years—and in attending amusements with his nieces. On Saturday last he complained of slight pains in his back and in the back of his head—and on Saturday night the doctor was called in and gave him medicine. Before the doctor left he went to sleep and slept until the time of his death, passing from sleep to eternal life, as gently as the summer zephyr dies.

Judge Holland was the son of Elisha and Louise A. Holland and was born at Hollands Mills, near Milton, Delaware, April 3rd, 1841. He lived on the farm until 1861, and then answering the call of his country to arms he enlisted in Company E, First Delaware Regiment of Infantry. He entered as a private and rose to the rank of Sergeant. Having been wounded at the battle of Antietam, on convalescence he was transferred to the hospital corps at Washington, D. C., where he remained until the end of the war, when he came home.

Soon afterwards he became a law student under Judge Caleb R. Layton, of Georgetown, Delaware, in the meanwhile teaching school.

After being admitted to the bar, in Delaware, in the early part of 1868, he removed to Salisbury, practically starting his career as a lawyer, with the then new County of Wicomico. At first he formed a co-partnership with Col. Lemuel Malone, and afterwards with George W. M. Cooper, who, while he was a partner, became School Examiner of Wicomico County. This partnership was dissolved by the death of Mr. Cooper.

In 1871 he married Miss Anabella Welch, daughter of Nathaniel Welch. They had no children. His wife died in November 1888, since which time he has lived a widower.

Judge Holland, from the time of his coming to Salisbury, was a staunch Democrat, but would never accept a political office, although often requested to do so, until December 1894, when he was appointed Associate Judge of the First Judicial Circuit. In the fall of 1895, after a strenuous contest he received the Democratic Nomination, his competitor being George W. Fagnell, of Worcester County, and at the election was elected for the term of fifteen years. He was reappointed in 1900 and in 1901 was re-elected, and served until April, 1910, when he was succeeded by Judge E. Stanley Todevin. Judge Holland having been retired by the Legislature of that year, at his own suggestion, he feeling the strain of the work more than he was able to bear.

Judge Holland was a vestryman of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church of this city. He was a director of the Salisbury National Bank, and connected officially with several other banks on the Shore. His near ancestors were originally from Worcester County, Maryland.

As a Judge he was pre-eminent for his fairness, impartiality and ability. Sitting alone as a Judge, his decisions for the first twenty five years of his service were never reversed, but in one instance.

As a man he was the peer of man, steady, upright and honest. He built himself a name that was respected by all. Of kindly heart and jovial, cheerful disposition, he won friends wherever he went and once won, they always remained with him.

He was a fluent, ready writer, clear and crisp and easily understood. For several years he edited a paper known as "The Bachelor." He also wrote for the Salisbury ADVERTISER and the Eastern Shoreman.

He leaves surviving him three sisters, Mrs. Almira F. Muller, Mrs. Mary A. Jones and Mrs. Sally P. Douglass, mother of Mr. Samuel B. Douglass, of this city, of the whole blood and Elizabeth Fisher, of the half blood. His half brother, Mr. Wm. S. Holland, died a few years ago. He also leaves several nieces and nephews.

Aetna Wins Race.

The colors of Thomas Olyde broke in to the winning list in the first race at Pimlico Wednesday, when J. Killingworth brought Aetna home the winner over Springmare, the favorite in the close race of the day.

Running a grand race, Aetna, displaying the usual courage of those by Bryn Mawr, got the victory by a nose. Aetna, trained by Capt. W. F. Frazer, of Salisbury, was well thought of as the second choice.

REGULAR TICKET WINS.

Large Vote Polled. Both Sides Work Hard. Plenty Of Autos.

Salisbury is pretty well noted for its hot politics and the election held on Tuesday was up to the usual standard. The result was an overwhelming victory for the regularly nominated democratic ticket. It is seldom indeed that more party workers are seen working at the polls than was the case in Tuesday's election. Being but one polling booth, workers usually seen in different sections of the town were gathered on the same campus. It could be seen at a glance that there was to be no pretense of fighting on either side, but that both were in deadly earnest. Nor was this confined to the workers, but the interest seemed to be general, and a much larger vote than was expected turned out. The election of the regular democratic ticket was not a surprise to those who have closely followed this fight, the size of the majority however went beyond general expectations, and filled the prediction of two to one made by several of the democratic leaders on the eve of the election. The colored vote was harder to control than was expected by those who according to general rumor promised this vote solid to the sponsor of the Independent or Citizens ticket.

The democratic leaders had worked hard in this fight and had everything in good shape for the fray, while the Independents relying upon the promise of their Republican allies awoke too late to the real situation, and found that instead of making inroads upon the regulars, ranks, that they would have to fight to hold their own. Desperate efforts were made to bring the colored men in line but failed in a good many instances to produce the desired result. The fight was conducted in entire good humor and the voting passed off quietly. Considerable cutting was done on both sides, Mr. I. Ernest Jones being out on the democratic ticket owing to his connection with the B. O. & A. R. R.

Willmer L. Tilghman won high man on the successful ticket with E. E. Bradley a close second. Frank M. Mitchell led the citizens ticket. The result follows:

Willmer L. Tilghman	774
Elmer E. Bradley	730
I. Ernest Jones	718
Following is the vote of the Citizens ticket:
Frank M. Mitchell	378
Herbert H. Hitch	354
Merrill Abbott	350

The majority of the regular Democratic ticket was 369, taking the difference for the highest vote cast for Mr. Tilghman and Mr. Mitchell.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Of Company "I" At Armory Monday Night.

An election will be held at the Armory of Company "I" First Infantry, Maryland National Guards, in this city, on Monday next, at eight o'clock for the purpose of electing a Captain and Second Lieutenant of the Company. For over nine months the Company has been without these officers and much interest is being manifested among the members of the Company as to who they will elect for their Captain and Second Lieutenant. As several are spoken of for both positions, a lively contest is expected.

Captain J. Howard Hirst, commander of Company "O," stationed at Cambridge, Md., has been detailed to be present on Monday evening and conduct the election.

Among those whose names have been mentioned for Captain of the Salisbury Company, are Mr. Samuel B. Douglass and Mr. A. W. Woodcock, who is at present in command of the Company and First Lieutenant of the same. A full attendance of the members of the Company is expected next Monday evening on account of the interest in these contests. May the best men win.

—An entertainment will be given at Double Mills School next Friday evening for the benefit of the school.

ROYAL Baking Powder Economy

The manufacturers of Royal Baking Powder have always declined to produce a cheap baking powder at the sacrifice of quality.

Royal Baking Powder is made from pure grape cream of tartar, and is the embodiment of all the excellence possible to be attained in the highest class baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder costs only a fair price, and is more economical at its price than any other leavening agent, because of the superlative quality and absolute wholesomeness of the food it makes.

Mixtures made in imitation of baking powder, but containing alum, are frequently distributed from door to door, or given away in grocery stores. Such mixtures are dangerous to use in food. In England, France, Germany and some sections of the United States their sale is prohibited by law. Alum is a dangerous mineral acid, and all physicians condemn baking powder containing it.

The label of alum baking powders must show the ingredients.

FIGHT OUT OF MAN

At 65, Says Stubbs—Railroader On Rolling Expresses Some Original Sentiments.

J. O. Stubbs, vice president and director of traffic on the Harriman lines, is planning to resign and retire on his sixty fifth birthday, which will come on May 31st. He has bought a home in Ashland, Ohio, and contemplates spending his remaining days there. He expressed three sentiments: "There is no genius. It's hard work. The world belongs to the young man. I am going to retire because I want to live."

I have been too busy to make money for myself. A man must be possessed by his work and then be able to manage it. Even a horse is turned out to grass after 15 of its 20 years are passed. Obstacles create character, just as the resistance of the air currents makes the kite fly.

Thinking in bed killed Harriman. He was kept all day and thoughts on his problem at night.

In the army the age of retirement is 64, and I do not know that but 60 would be even better than that.

We put ten cents in the collection box at church, and pay two dollars for a theatre seat. It isn't treating the ministers right.

Men should retire from active business life at 65, not only for their own sake, but for the sake of whatever institution they aim to help.

Railroading is the only business in the world in which the rates are fixed by what a merchant can afford to pay rather than by how much he can be made to pay.

When a man gets past sixty his judgment may be more mature, but he has lost his fight. And by fight I do not mean the ability to quarrel, but to fight the battle of life with the same energy and effectiveness that he fights when he is only fifty years old. Life is nothing but a battle anyway. It is a fight from start to finish.

Hens Lay By Electric Light; Prostration Kills.

Clarence Dunham, of Iowa, who uses electricity for lighting his house, read that electricity makes hens lay. He did not believe it, but to settle the matter wired his hen house. At the end of the second week Dunham made the startling discovery that daily he was getting a greater number of eggs than he had hens.

Putting them on the best egg-producing diet, Dunham installed more electric bulbs, making the henhouses as light as day, regardless of the hour. The result was astonishing. Hens that previously had refused to lay got busy and produced one and two eggs daily, while many others laid three, and one or two four each day.

It proved too strenuous for the best layers and one after another died of a disease that Dunham says was akin to nervous prostration.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The Buyer who knows the Difference in Automobiles will own a

Our first object in advertising the Cadillac Thirty is to teach the buyers the real essentials of an automobile and to help them become competent to judge the merits of a car. If buyers knew the vast difference in automobiles, we would have three purchasers for every Cadillac we could secure.

Cadillac is Manufactured
There is abundant evidence to prove that no car at $2,500 or under will compare favorably with the Cadillac Thirty. In the first place a dependable, lasting automobile must be a manufactured car. It is foolhardy to claim that a machine assembled from parts secured here and there will give the same quality of service as a car the parts of which are made under one roof, with a thorough knowledge of the relation of each part to every other. The high standard of accuracy required in an automobile cannot be attained in an assembled car. Neither can the parts be made standard, so that the owner can rely on repair parts fitting properly. The buyer who knows automobiles will demand a great deal of the factory behind the car he is considering. And he ought to. It's the best insurance he can secure against high upkeep and trouble.

Cadillac Design
Then the design of the Cadillac affords advantages which no other car offers. No motor will compare with the cooling qualities of the Cadillac, yet less water is used than in any other car of equal power. What car of equal size will travel 17 to 22 miles on a gallon of gas? What other car will run 100 miles on a pint of oil? The Cadillac is doing this every day.

Cadillac Dependability
If you were an expert mechanic and had plenty of time to devote to your car, you could get good service from most any well-known machine. But only a few expert mechanics. When you buy a car you want steady, uninterrupted service. You will get this in a Cadillac, whether you are mechanically inclined or not. And you will get it at lower upkeep expense than with any other car. Truly, the buyer who knows the difference in automobiles will own a Cadillac Thirty.

ORIGIN OF Pinkham's Blood Purifier

Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., succeeded in producing, from the roots and herbs of the fields, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the most successful medicine for women's ailments the world has ever known. After she had put this on the market, women began to write her about their health, because they felt a natural delicacy about consulting any man physician regarding these ailments for which the Vegetable Compound is intended.

She soon found that her correspondents often had complications caused by impure, impoverished blood, and she recognized the necessity of having a reliable blood purifier which she could recommend with confidence as

The Best Spring Medicine

Then, as now, there were many blood purifiers and spring medicines on the market, and after looking into them, she found nothing so good as the old home medicine made from roots and herbs, which she had been accustomed to use in her own family, so she had this set up on a large scale, and furnished it to the stores. It has been very little advertised, but has attained a large sale solely on its merits, and is really a wonderful blood purifier and spring medicine.

It is a good, old-fashioned household remedy made from roots and herbs, which has been used from generation to generation for purifying the blood, removing humors and eruptions, and for that all "played out" feeling.

REAL ANARCHISTS.

The blending of politics and high finance, which would be better called low stealing, is one of the most serious signs of moral breakdown in the nation, and this blending is responsible for nine-tenths of the evils we face in America today. The most dangerous anarchist in America is the man who buys laws, who buys and coerces legislators. He is the anarchist—the dangerous anarchist, because we can't put him in jail. The race track owners, franchise sellers and privilege buyers are the anarchists.—Rabbi Wise.

UNEQUAL.

I never could believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world ready booted and spurred to ride and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden.—Richard Rumbold.

LIVING IN SOCIETY.

To live on the top of a pillar, to withdraw into the desert or to live in a community—all this can be provisory, necessary to men, but as definite forms it is evident error and unreason. To live a pure and holy life on a pillar or in a community is impossible, because the man is deprived of a half of life—community with the world. To live always thus one must deceive oneself. It is evident, indeed, that just as it is impossible in the current of an impure river to separate a little circle of pure water by some chemical process, so it is impossible to live alone or in a society with some as saints in a whole world which lives in violence for money. Ground and cattle must be bought or rented. Relations must be entered into with the exterior, the non-Christian world. We cannot liberate ourselves from it, and we ought not to except that in general we ought to abstain from those things which we need not do. We only deceive ourselves. The whole work of a discipline of Christ consists in establishing the most Christian relations with this world.—Count Tolstoy.

LIFE AND DEATH.

Life is joy, and love is power; Death all fetters doth unbind. Strength and wisdom only flower When we toll for all our kind. Hope is truth—the future giveth More than present takes away. And the soul forever liveth Nearer God from day to day. —J. R. Lowell.

STATE POWER.

A good deal of our recent discussion about federal powers and state powers treats them as if they were in antagonism with each other. No sane or public spirited man is jealous of federal power. But what we wish to guard against is the atrophy of the local agency, the weakening of those great instrumentalities which have vitalized our communities everywhere and made self government a human relation. What we wish to prevent is anything which will relieve our people from the necessity of taking care of themselves. Our system of government has been great because it has put upon the states the necessity of working out their own problems and has put the people everywhere upon their mettle; has left their economic and social salvation to their own discernment and their own exertion.—Woodrow Wilson.

HAPPINESS.

Happy the man, and happy he alone. He who can call today his own: He who, secure within, can say, Tomorrow do thy worst, for I have liv'd today. —Dryden.

LIVING THOUGHTS.

Make yourself nests of pleasant thoughts. None of us yet knows, for none of us has been taught in early youth, what fair palaces we may build of beautiful thoughts, proof against adversity—bright, fanciful, satisfied memories, noble histories, faithful sayings, treasure houses of precious and restful thoughts which care cannot disturb nor pain make gloomy nor poverty take away from us—houses built without hands for our souls to live in.—Ruskin.

Constipation causes headache, nausea, dizziness, languor heart palpitation. Drastic physics saps, sicken, weaken the bowels and don't cure. Doan's Regulator acts gently and cures constipation 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

Never can tell when you'll mesh a finger or suffer a cut, bruise, burn or scald. Be prepared. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil instantly relieves the pain—quickly cures the wound.

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handily assembled throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be used with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc. Dealers everywhere or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

THE SALISBURY ADVERTISER PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT SALISBURY, WICOMICO CO., MD. (OFFICE OVERSTREET COURT HOUSE)

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE—ONE DOLLAR PER ANNUM. Entered at the Post Office at Salisbury, Md., as Second Class matter.

THE NEW COUNCIL. Upon the newly elected City Councilmen now devolves the heavy responsibilities of their office.

The large vote they received last Tuesday should be very gratifying to them and to their friends, and the fact of the trust thus shown should make them all strive to live up to the high expectation of the public.

The handling of other people's money and the solving of other people's problems is far from a pleasant or easy task, and brings to those selected, as public servants, grave responsibilities and onerous duties.

The ADVERTISER congratulates the successful candidates, and wishes them a successful administration of their office. They will find this paper behind them in every move they make that tends to advance the welfare of this community.

Where the good seat postpaid to him. Where the which Preston De in the election in Baltimore a surprise to all sections of Maryland. The eyes of all those throughout the State who take an interest in public affairs have for some time been turned upon Baltimore, anxiously awaiting the result.

The election of Preston, while a great Democratic victory, can not be called an emphatic endorsement of the Democratic party, but to some extent leaves the situation as it was before.

It is now up to the leaders of Baltimore City to see that the incoming administration gives the people a square deal, otherwise not only will the party suffer in the city, but the State itself, will be endangered right on the eve of a Presidential election.

GET A WHITE CARNATION

And Wear It On Mothers' Day, Sunday, May 14th.

Mothers' Day will be observed throughout the country on Sunday, May 14th. In the churches and among clubs sermons and special programs will be part of the observance, but the general celebration of the day will consist in the simple act of wearing on that day a white carnation.

Interest in the sentiment of Mothers' Day is growing every year. The demand for white carnations last May was greater than the local supply could meet. The florists of the city are planning this year to have an abundance of the pretty blossoms by Sunday week, so that everyone can wear the emblem of the day at a reasonable price.

Mothers' Day was first observed in Philadelphia several years ago. Through the efforts of Miss Anna Jarvis, of that city, the interest is becoming country-wide and every year finds more and more places celebrating the day and more people wearing the white carnation in memory of or in honor of the mother.

In the West the custom is stronger than in Eastern Cities, except Philadelphia, where the observance is universal. Proclamations by Mayors, Governors and other authorities in some of the Western towns and States ask the people to remember the day just as the Thanksgiving proclamation calls for universal thanks.

Mrs. Elizabeth Nicholson.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Nicholson, widow of the late Levin Nicholson, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Parker, near Salisbury. Charles, Thomas, Eugene and Theodore Nicholson. She is also survived by several grandchildren.

She was a daffy wife, a loving mother and a faithful friend. She was converted when a girl of fifteen and for sixty five years, until her death, she lived a consistent Christian.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Parker, her pastor, Rev. J. Franklin Carey officiating. Interment was made in Patrons Cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. O. Mitchell, S. A. Williams, J. H. Mills, G. W. Williams, Henry Mills and Lafayette Mills.

"Oh, how hard we tried to save her but our cares were all in vain. Angels came and took her from us. She's with her Savior free from pain."

Short Crop of Cow Peas Prices Are Going Up!

The enormous demand for Cow Peas last year carried the price very high, and as the crop is very short and the acreage is rapidly extending, there are many indications which point to much higher prices as the sowing season approaches.

Whip-poor-will Cow Peas. The Whip-poor-wills are generally preferred in the Central and Southern States. They are bush form, early maturing and especially desirable for hay.

New Era Cow Peas. New Eras are a little earlier and make more vine than the Whip-poor-wills.

Wonderfuls, Clays and Mixed Cow Peas. For Hay, the Wonderfuls or the Clays are more productive. They should be planted with an occasional grain of Corn, Sorghum Seed, Kafir Corn, etc., which will prevent the vines from getting damaged by coming in contact with the ground.

Black Cow Peas. Black Cow Peas are a little earlier in maturing than Clays; they make a good growth of vine, are exceptionally good for medium or poor land, and will stand almost any amount of wet weather without injury. They can also supply Shantung Peas, Red Rippers, Blackeye Peas and Soja Beans.

REMEMBER - Bolgiano's Cow Peas are unquestionably the best. If your local Merchant will not supply Bolgiano's Cow Peas, write us direct and we will tell you where you can get them.

Mr. GALT'S OF DEATH AND HADES
 Sheol to Be Destroyed, Then Will Come the Shout:
 "O HADES WHERE IS THY VICTORY!"

Sunday, April 30.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached today on the Resurrection. Approaching the subject from another standpoint, the destruction of sheol, hadēs, the grave, the state of death.

He considered a number of texts relating to sheol. He said:—

Death is spoken of throughout the Bible as an enemy. Merely hymn-book theology presents it as a friend, an angel of God. Death is introduced to our attention in the Bible as the penalty for sin, with the distinct understanding that had Adam not transgressed the Divine commands he need not have died, nor ever have cast out of his Eden home. St. Paul emphasizes the fact that death is the penalty of sin and that the resurrection of the dead will come to mankind as the result of the redemptive work of Christ. He says, "Since by man comes death, by man also comes the resurrection of the dead. For as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive; but every man in his own order," band or cohort (I Corinthians vi, 21-23).

Sin and Death be begun and accomplished. For the day the saints are waiting and praying, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly!" And for that day the whole creation is waiting, although not clearly informed respecting the blessings in store for them (Romans viii, 19, 21).

"The Last Enemy"—Death.

St. Paul points us to the great Deliverer, the glorified Messiah, at the time when He shall take the Kingdom under the whole heavens and begin the fulfillment of the prayer He taught us, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as in heaven." He tells us He must reign until He shall have put all enemies under His feet—"The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death" (I Corinthians xv, 26). The meaning is clear. Messiah's Kingdom will address itself promptly to the rectification of every form of unrighteousness, financial, political, social, religious. He will rule the world with a rod of iron and every nation and every system or element contrary to the Divine standards of righteousness will be broken to shivers with His "iron rod." Thus, the Kingdom will be established in the earth in the midst of "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation."

But the putting down of sin will be the beginning of Messiah's work. Satan being bound, and the reign of sin thus stopped, each transgression will receive a just recompense and each good endeavor a just reward. Gradually mankind will rise out of sin and therefore proportionately come from under the power of death, until all the race of Adam will have been fully delivered from all danger as respects the monster which has devoured our race for sixty centuries. Not only so, but those twenty thousand millions who have gone into the prison-house of death will be released—not all at once, but gradually, as the Apostle declares, "Every man in his own order," band.

By the close of the thousand years of Messiah's reign, His victory over Sin and Death will be complete. Every member of Adam's race will have been lifted from the prison-house of death. It will be a prison-house no longer, for there will be no prisoners in it; mankind will have been lifted out of the clutches of Sin and Death, weakness and depravity, by the processes of restitution, resurrection, uplifting (Acts iii, 19-23). The victory over sin will be complete, because all who love sin and are willingly its servants, after being released from the condemnation of the Adamic death, will be destroyed in the Second Death. Thus Adamic Sin and Death will finally be completely routed and the prison-house of death be broken up. And Adam and his family, not willingly sinners, will all be set at liberty—restored to human perfection, as the earth will be brought to Edenic perfection.

"O Death, Where is Thy Sting?"
 They will be brought to pass the Divine prophecy, "O, death, where is thy sting? O, grave, where is thy victory?" (I Corinthians vi, 56).

They must notice when this is to be brought to pass. It is not now true. The sting of death is in us all, for as the Apostle explains, Sin is the sting of death. And because all have been stung by sin, all are dying. It will require the entire Messianic Age to fully extract from humanity the virus, the sting, of sin by bringing mankind to perfection. Only as the sting of death is removed will the power of death relax, because it is a part of the Divine Law that "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Death now has its sting. But when that which is perfect shall have come, the sting will be gone, the imperfection and weakness will be gone, the cause for sin will also be gone.

Not now, but then, will be brought to pass the saying, "O, Hades, where is thy victory? Hades, sheol, the grave, has been overthrown by a victory over Adam's race for sixty centuries. And its victory will not be entirely overturned until the Redeemer shall have delivered from the power of the grave the last member of the human family—for all of whom "He died, the Just for the unjust, to bring us back to God."

Thus, as the Apostle says, with the culmination of Christ's Kingdom, with the deliverance of all mankind from the power of Sin and Death, death will be swallowed up in victory. The Apostle probably quoted from Hosea xiii, 14, where we read, "I will ransom them from the power of the grave (sheol); I will redeem them from death; O death, I will be thy plagues (gradual destruction); O grave (sheol), I will be thy destruction; repentance shall be hid from mine eyes." The Almighty will never change or turn from this decision. Death and the grave, sheol, hadēs (the Bible hell), are to be destroyed. Every member of Adam's race is to be delivered by Him who redeems all.

Keys of Death and Hades.
 A key is a symbol of authority and symbolizes a legal power to open the prison-house and to release the prisoners. Adamic death has been a legal penalty upon our race—a just penalty. But although all shared the condemnation and weakness, God foreknew that some of the race would be granted the opportunity, would gladly return to loyalty to His laws. He has, therefore, made provision through Jesus for every member of the race, great and small, rich and poor. World-wide redemption will be provided and world-wide opportunity for the coming to a knowledge of the Truth and for being uplifted or resurrected will be afforded. The right or power to release mankind from the power of death and from the prison-house of the tomb, sheol, hadēs, the grave, is represented by the key in the hands of Messiah. He gained that key, that rightful authority to set us free from the grave, by the redemption which He accomplished for us at Calvary.

Hades Cast into Gehenna.
 "And death and hell (hadēs) were cast into the lake of fire. This is the Second Death" (Revelation xx, 14).

In the symbolic language of Revelation, Messiah's reign is described as glorious opportunity for all mankind to come back into harmony with the Almighty, and to attain everlasting life through the great Mediatorial Kingdom. The symbolic picture of which this text is a part, describes the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom, the saints of this Gospel Age being with Him in His throne, in His Kingdom, reigning with Him—a Royal Priesthood (Revelation xx, 4-6). The context further describes that period, in which all mankind shall be brought to a knowledge of the Truth, when all will "stand before the great White Throne." Messiah's Judgment Throne is to be tried, to be tested, to be proven, whether they will accept or refuse the perfection and eternal life which Divine mercy will then make possible for them. During that thousand years of Messiah's reign, as we have seen, death will be gradually swallowed up in victory. And as the prisoners of the tomb are gradually released, the grave will be destroyed, will be no more.

The statement, death and hadēs were cast into the lake of fire, which is the Second Death, is merely another way of explaining to us that Adamic death, and the grave connected therewith, will be superseded by the Second Death. Any of the race who, by the close of the Mediatorial reign, will not have come up to perfection and will not have gotten entirely free from the power of sin and the tomb, will themselves be responsible for their wrong condition, their imperfection. The great Mediator will have done every thing right, proper, and necessary for all. Whoever then will come short of eternal life will himself only be to blame. And the trial time over, any not fully delivered, any still held by sin and death, will be willingly held, and all such will be turned over to the Second Death, destruction, symbolized by fire, from which there will be no recovery.

Let it be remembered that the Valley of Hinnom, outside of Jerusalem, the earthly, where only the vile refuse of the earth is cast, is a type of the Second Death, symbolically represented as a lake of fire outside the New Jerusalem. In it will be consumed utterly, completely, everything out of harmony with the Divine will.

The Wicked Returned to Sheol.
 In the New Testament, as we have seen, hadēs stands for the grave or state of death, which results from Adam's transgression; while Gehennā represents the Second Death, which will come only upon those who shall first have been delivered from the Adamic sentence, or shall have had at least a full opportunity for deliverance, and who will manifest their love for sin more than for righteousness and who, therefore, will be sentenced to the Second Death.

But in the Old Testament there is no distinctive word used to represent the Second Death—the extinction which will be the penalty of personal, willful transgression. To meet the difficulty the word sheol is used a second time. For instance, we read of some who will be willingly wicked after enjoying a knowledge of the Truth—not merely inheritors of imperfection and weaknesses which they have not overcome, but intelligently willful sinners—"The wicked shall be returned to sheol to gether with all people who forget God" (Psalm ix, 17). In our Common Version the prefix re is improperly omitted. The "wicked" are only those who sin against light knowledge and opportunity, and only those can be said to forget God who have once known Him—who have been brought to a knowledge of the Truth and turned from it. Truly, my hearers, the resurrection hope is the great theme of the Bible.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for her self. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results. There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial. It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy.

CARRIAGE, WAGON & HARNESS DEALER

In the State of Maryland

...1911...

TAYLOR'S Horse and Carriage Bazaar has been crowded all this month with buyers. Never before were there so many strangers in our own buying horses, mules, wagons, buggies and harness; in fact it is hard to get waited on. Out-of-town customers are waiting to make arrangements ahead.

If anyone thinks the above statement is not correct and will come here, they will say they never saw anything like it.

I have 50 Horses and Mules, and most anyone can get suited, as our prices keep the crowd coming, and our reliability keeps them satisfied. Our guarantee is as good as any BANK.

I have more Horse Collars and Harness than any five stores on the Eastern Shore. Every customer is an advertisement for me. Seeing is believing; come see for yourself.

TOO SMART

By HARRY C. ERNEST

Captain Andrew Baldwin of the cavalry, tired and hungry—he had been engaged in a duty involving much effort and exposure—entered the mess room, unhooked his saber, and took a seat at the table. He called for a servant to bring him some refreshment. The captain, waiter of the mess, and a very efficient caterer. When a luncheon had been set before him he asked of the servant who placed it there:

"Julius, did you order the supplies?"

"Yes, sar."

"Any one been to my quarters to see me today?"

"Major Leadbeater. He was here to see you this mornin', sar."

"Did he say why he called?"

"No, sar; he didn't say nothin' 'bout what he wanted to see you fo', sar, but it must 'a' been some very particular fo' he waited some time fo' you, sar."

"Waited, did he?"

"Yes, sar; he waited in the room out there."

"How long did he wait?"

"Must 'a' been 'bout half an hour, sar."

"Half an hour! What did he do with himself all that time?"

"Well, sar, I dunno what he did with himself all de time, but once when I was goin' past de window outside I looked in here in de mess room, and I sor him measurin' de legs of de mess table."

"What?"

"The captain was about to put a piece of meat into his mouth, but he stopped his fork a few inches from his chin and stared at the darky."

"He was measurin' de legs of de table, sar."

"What with?"

"A yaller tapeline."

The captain laid down his knife and fork, leaned back in his chair, put his hands in his pockets, picked up his lips and gave a low whistle.

"There was no change in his position for full ten minutes, when without regard to his unfinished luncheon he arose from the table, took up his sword, hat and coat and left the mess-room. Going over to the officers' club, he found several men playing billiards and then and there entered into secret conference with them. The result of that conference will appear later."

A few days after this Captain Baldwin strolled over to the quarters of the infantry, where he met Major Leadbeater.

"Hello, major!" he said. "Heard you were over to my quarters the other day. Sorry I wasn't there. Anything special?"

"Oh, no! I was around your way with nothing to do and thought I might as well drop in."

"Well, try again. By the bye, can't you dine at our mess some evening this week?"

"I don't mind."

At the dinner the officers comprising the mess were present to a man. During the coffee and the smoking, when all were feeling comfortable after a good meal and plenty of wine, Major Leadbeater, who was a great hand at making odd wagers, asked one of the officers how high he thought the clock was from the floor. The officer named a height, whereupon Leadbeater offered to bet him a small sum that it was a certain other figure. The bet was taken, and Leadbeater lost. Several other similar bets were made by those present, when Leadbeater proposed a pool as to the height of the table at which they were sitting.

There was no difficulty in getting the officers into the pool. Indeed, every man took the chance allotted him. Then Leadbeater made a number of side bets. He had come to the dinner after having cashed his pay accounts in advance and had plenty of money. The figure he named was three feet two and one-eighth inches. The other figures named ranged from three feet and three-quarter inches to three feet one and a quarter inches.

When the bets were all made the colonel and the chaplain came in together—just to smoke a cigar with the youngsters—and the colonel, knowing of the pool, asked to be permitted to take a chance. But the chances were all taken, so he asked if any one would make a side bet with him. Leadbeater remarked that he would were it not that all his ready cash was staked. The colonel offered to accept his L. O. U. in lieu of a stake, and Leadbeater took him for $50. The chaplain, too, remarked that he had never made a bet before in his life, but he wouldn't mind taking something on his guess. But no one would make any side bets with him.

When the funds had all been put in the stakeholder's hands the quartermaster was called on to measure the height of the table. Procuring a tape-line, he proceeded with the work and suppressed excitement and many glances at one another among those whose money was at risk. Finally, with his thumb on a point in the tape indicating the table's height, he held the tape up to the light and announced:

"Three feet one and a quarter inches!"

"There's a mistake there!" cried Leadbeater and checked himself.

"Measure it yourself," said the quartermaster.

Leadbeater took the tape, made the measurement and turned pale.

"I've lost," he said in calmness as was possible under the circumstances.

That ended Major Leadbeater's money making by bet. An inch had been saved off the leg of the table.

COMING—THE HAREM SKIRT!

French Designer of Costumes Threatens to Introduce a Skirt With Trousers Effect.

Paul Poirot, the noted Parisian designer of costumes, has threatened fashionable women with a dreadful thing in smart skirts to follow the hobble. This is the harem skirt, adapted by M. Poirot from the Turkish trousers worn by oriental women. It seems a severe punishment for the vogue of the hobble, but M. Poirot assures every one that it is not as bad as it sounds, and those who have seen his samples of it say that it has a certain grace and distinction, besides being practicable.

The trousers effect is rather disguised. It simply seems a scant skirt diminishing still more around the ankles, but allowing its wearer to walk with less effort than an ordinary scant skirt.

The harem skirt is to appear in the spring. First it will be seen on the stage, as this is the approved Parisian manner of introducing a novelty in clothes. Then it will be visible in showrooms on manikins, and the judgment of leaders of fashion will go forth as to whether it is to be accepted or disdained.

English dressmakers declare that its introduction into England will be an impossibility, but from the avidity with which Englishwomen have seized the most extreme modes from Paris recently one may take this with a grain of salt.

ONE PIECE APRON.

A Neat Working Garment That Can Be Made in a Very Short Time.

Every woman who has use for utility garments, such as aprons, wishes them to be trim and neat, but possibly does not care to spend much time in making them and so welcomes the model illustrated, for it possesses these features. This design is so simple and easy to develop that half a dozen aprons may be cut and completely finished in a few hours.

To copy it in the medium sizes four and one-quarter yards of goods twenty-seven inches wide or three yards thirty-six inches in width will be needed.

This apron effectively protects the frock over which it is worn will appeal to the majority of women. Another advantage this design possesses is that the model is in one piece, and so after cutting it the seams must be stitched under the arms and on the shoulders, and when the edges are bound the apron will be complete.

To make the apron in the easiest and quickest way, after the material is cut blind or face the top and turn the remaining edges down one-quarter of an inch. Baste the edge to the apron and fasten it in place with a double row of machine stitching.

Then the underarm seams or darts must be sewed and finished with French fell. The shoulder seams must be sewed and finished to correspond with the others.

The simplest way to finish the edges is with a binding, which may be of wash braid or a narrow strip of the material cut on the bias.

If braid is used as a finish it is doubled over the edge of the goods so it conceals the raw edges and is then basted and stitched. When a bias strip is employed as a binding one edge is attached to the right side of the material with a three-eighths of an inch seam.

The opposite edge of the binding is turned down, folded over the seam to form a binding and held in place by a row of stitching.

A prettier way of finishing the apron and one that does not require much time is to face the edges. The strip used for this purpose may be of the same or of a contrasting fabric, cut on the bias. The strip should be about two inches wide.

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

By FRANCIS LYNDE

THE Weatherfords, millionaires mine people and so newly rich that the crisp bank notes fairly crackled when Mrs. Weatherford spent them, kept their lackered and liveried state in a castle-like house in Mesa circle.

Weatherford, the father, egged on by Mrs. Weatherford, had political aspirations pointing toward a United States senatorship.

The same owner himself would willingly have sold the mansion for a wife was inexorable. There were two grown daughters and a growing son, and it was for these that Mrs. Weatherford was socially ambitious.

It was a mark of the newness of the Weatherford riches that the glass and iron greenhouse, built out as an extension of one of the drawing rooms, was called "the herbarium."

The reception, for which the senator's wife had driven her guest thirty miles through the dust of the sagebrush hills, was one of the moves in Mrs. Weatherford's private campaign.

Having successfully passed the line with her husband and Patricia, little Mrs. Blount looked about her, saw Mr. Richard Gantry, signaled to him with her eyes and, with the traffic manager for her center rush to wedge a way through the crowded rooms, was presently lost to sight—at least from Miss Anners' point of view.

Whether she knew it or not, from the moment of her appearance at the hostess' end of the long receiving line the senator's wife had been marked and followed in her slow progress through the crowded rooms by a prosperous looking gentleman, whose hair like eyes never lost sight of her.

When his quarry stopped, as she did frequently, to chat with one or another of the guests the man with the eager eyes circled nervously and once or twice seemed about to make the opportunity, which was so slow in making itself.

But it was not until the little lady in the claret colored party gown had drifted, still with a hand on Gantry's arm, in among the palm and banana trees that the bird of prey person made his swoop.

"Dear me, Mr. Hathaway, you almost startled me!" "Did I?" said the lumber king rather grimly, as if he meant the query to be apologetic.

"I am sorry. I didn't mean to, but Mrs. Gordon said I would find you here, and so I took the liberty of—allowing you, I'm needing a little straightening out, you know, and—er—would you mind letting me talk business with you for a minute or two, Mrs. Blount?"

"Certainly not, if you can talk business in such a place as this," she said, making room for him on the rustic settee.

"Perhaps it isn't business; perhaps it's only politics," he resumed. "First, I wish you'd tell me what I've been doing to get myself into your bad books."

She laughed easily. "Who said you had been doing anything?" she asked. "The senator," he answered shortly.

"He said I would have to make my peace with you. I want to be put next in this pig in clover railroad puzzle. Our contract with the Transcontinental is about to expire, and I'd like to get it renewed on the same terms as before."

"Well," she said innocently, "why don't you do it?" "I can't," he blustered. "Everybody has suddenly grown mysterious. Kiltredge, the general superintendent, doesn't seem to remember that we ever had any contract, and Gantry is just as bad. And when I go to the senator he tells me I must make my peace with you. I can't understand what everybody is driving at. I've got something to sell that the railroad company needs. Where's the hitch? You can put me next. Why can't I get my contract renewed?"

The little lady was opening and shutting her fan slowly. "What was your contract?" she asked innocently.

"If I thought you didn't know I wouldn't tell you," she said bluntly. "It's a rebate rate east and west from all of our sawmills, and it was given us two years ago, a few days before election."

"And the consideration?" she asked, looking up quickly. "You know that, too, Mrs. Blount. It was the swinging of the solid employees' vote of the Twin Buttes Lumber company over to the railroad ticket."

"And you wish to make the same arrangement again?" she asked. "Exactly. We've got to have that preferential rate or go out of business."

"With whom did you make the contract two years ago?"

"With Mr. McVickar, verbally. Of course there was nothing put down in black or white, but the railroad folks did their part, and we did ours."

"A gentlemen's agreement," she murmured. "You have tried Mr. McVickar again?"

"Yes. He referred me to Gantry." "And what did Mr. Gantry say?" "I couldn't get him to say anything with any sense in it. The most I could get out of him was that I would have to see the boss."

"And instead of doing that you went to see the senator?" she asked. "Who else would Gantry mean by 'the boss'?" demanded the befogged one.

"Possibly he meant the senator's son," she ventured, tapping a very pretty check with the folded fan. "Have you been leaving Evan Blount out in all of this?"

"I didn't know where to put him in. That's what brings me here tonight. The senator or Mr. McVickar, or both of them together have set the whole state to running around in circles with this appointment of young Blount. Some say it's a deal between the senator and McVickar, and some say it's a fight. Half of the professional spellbinders are walking in their sleep over it right now. I thought maybe you could tell me, Mrs. Blount."

"I can't tell you anything that would help the people who are walking in their sleep," she returned, "but I might offer a suggestion in your personal affair. Mr. Blount is your man."

"Mr. Gantry may be back any minute, and I can give you only the tiniest hint. You must go to Mr. Evan Blount and appeal to him frankly as one business man to another."

"But I have heard—they say he's all kinds of a crank."

"Never mind what you have heard. Tell him all the facts and ask him to help you, and, for mercy's sake, don't offer him a block of your stock. Put it where it will do the most good. Put it in the name of Professor William J. Anners of Cambridge, Massachusetts, and show Mr. Blount how dreadfully disastrous the loss of the preferential freight rate would be to all the poor people in your lot of stockholders, including Professor Anners."

"PUT IT IN THE NAME OF PROFESSOR WILLIAM J. ANNERS."

Hathaway drew down his cuff and made a rapid pencil memorandum of the name and address of the new beneficiary.

"You will take notice that I'm not asking you this Professor Anners is or why I should be making him a present of a block of stock, but what you say goes as it lies. Anything else?"

"Yes. Be perfectly frank with Mr. Blount and don't let him put you off. He may pretend to be very angry at first, but you won't mind that."

"I won't mind anything if I can bring this business down to the everyday, commonplace earth once more. You and the senator and Gantry and McVickar are playing some sort of game, and you haven't shown me more than the back of the cards. That's all right. I'll play my hand blindfolded. If that's what you want, just so we win the odd trick. When and where can I find Mr. Evan Blount?"

"The day after tomorrow at his office in Temple court. He is out of the city now, but—"

Here Gantry's coming put an end to the private conference, and the president of the Twin Buttes company went his way.

It was not until they had served out their full sentence at Mrs. Weatherford's crush and were back in the quiet dining room suit at the Inger-Mountain, with Miss Anners safely behind the closed door of her own apartment, that the small conspirator passed the word of good hope on to her husband.

"It is working beautifully," she exclaimed. "He will go to see Evan day after tomorrow—and after that the deluge."

CASTLE HAVEN SOLD

One Of The Show Places Of The State In Cambridge.

Castle Haven, the country home of Oscar A. Turner, the well-known mining expert, has recently been purchased by Clark of the Circuit Court, W. Luke Robinson and Edw. S. Phillips, Esq., of Cambridge. The purchase price is said to have been in the neighborhood of $20,000, which, by many, is said to be a very cheap price for this place, which represents an expenditure of a great deal more than that sum.

Castle Haven is situated in the Neck District, about six or seven miles from Cambridge, and is said to be one of the finest water front locations on the Atlantic Seaboard. The property is on the Choptank River and LeCompte's Bay. There is plenty of deep water in front of the place, in fact, there is anchorage there for yachts of any size, the steamboat having at one time made its landing at the wharf.

While the location on the water is a very valuable one, an exceptionally fine one, one of the best known in that vicinity, and indeed, one that is hard to equal, the place possesses another very great advantage in that it has on it some magnificent buildings. It is completely fitted up, all ready to move into. There are outbuildings for every purpose, some of them especially constructed. Mr. Turner having expended several thousand dollars in fitting up the outbuildings. The house is equipped with hot and cold water and is lighted by electricity.

Castle Haven first came into prominence as the home of the late R. Watson Jackson, a brother of Ex-Congressman William H. Jackson, of Salisbury. Mr. Jackson expended large sums of money in making it one of the show places of the State. From his estate it passed into the hands of his brother, the late Wilbur Jackson, from whom it was purchased by Mr. Turner.

THE ELEVATING INFLUENCE

Of Improved Highways On The Community In Which They Are Located.

In response to a request from the Delmar Board of Trade for some facts that could be used in an agreement with the Sussex farmers in acquiring the right of way of Gen. DeFont's great State Boulevard, Mr. W. F. Allen has sent the following:

Twenty years ago I moved near where I now live, in the Southern Suburbs of Salisbury. That section was then a picture of abandonment and desolation. The roads were sand, sand, mud, almost a hub deep and empty vehicle made a heavy load. If I could but take you back even fifteen years and drive you over this road and let you view the section as it was at that time, and then after a period of fifteen years take you again over the same route, I am sure you would never question the value of improved highways again. At that time real estate conditions in Wicomico County were such that by a payment of $100 cash you could buy almost any farm that you wanted and the owner would accept a mortgage for the balance. My first purchase cost me about $28 per acre, and adjoining properties were bought for $17, $18, $27 up to $46 per acre, this being the highest price paid for any of the properties which I now own in that section. The farm known as the Layfield Farm or Trader Farm, located opposite where Mr. John E. Hastings now lives, was bought for $17 per acre. Of course there has been much improvement made in the land itself, but there is now a good shell road passing this property, and it is taxed at 87 per acre, with a selling value easily of $150 to $200.

Later, or about thirteen years ago the tract of land known as the Dennis land where my present home is located, was purchased for $27 per acre, and some of my best friends told me plainly that I was a fool. They were sincere and believed they were telling me what was for my good. Notwithstanding I was obstinate and persisted in making this purchase. This piece of property today, taken as a whole, is taxed at $150 per acre with a selling value of at least $400.

The property opposite where I now live, where Mr. Wm. N. Hearne resided for many years, consisting of about one hundred and seven acres was bought for $400, or $46 per acre. The front of this is actually being sold for residential purposes at $800 per acre, with the highest building restrictions of any property in the vicinity of Salisbury. This property of course has all been improved more or less and would have increased considerably in value without the improved roads, but, I believe I am very conservative when I say that 200 per cent of its present value is due to the existing improved highways.

The farm now owned by Mr. John Hastings was purchased a few years ago for the insignificant sum of $2000 for more than one hundred acres. I have reasons to know that nothing under $100 per acre, if that, will buy this property, and an improved highway passing in front of it is largely responsible for this increase in value. Take the property on the new State Road from Salisbury to Marsden; go back ten years before the County began to improve this road and get the selling price of any property that was transferred at that time and the price today, and the result will be one of the strongest arguments on improved highways. The farm at Spring Hill now owned by Mr. Wm. M. Cooper was sold six or seven years ago for $2400. Mr. Cooper came in possession of this farm shortly afterwards at a figure slightly higher than this. With the improvements which he has put on the land and the State Road which passes by it I doubt if Mr. Cooper today would sell this farm for $20,000, and what is more, it is worth every cent of it.

Further along, the old Hughes place before the advent of improved roads was sold at auction, if I remember correctly, at somewhere around $700. The purchaser has recently refused several times this amount for it.

And then we will go back to the road leading out from Salisbury east of the town, sometimes spoken of as the Byard-Purdue Road. If you will take the trouble to go back and find the values of this land before the shell road was built and then try to buy a farm anywhere on this road today, and you could hardly believe that any community could have made such a change, and so it is in every instance where improved highways are built. At the present time I know of several places where the owners are asking prices far in advance of what they did two years ago where there are no improved roads, and simply because the State has surveyed this route and they are fairly sure that within a year or two a state road will pass this property. If the mere prospect of an improved highway will have so much influence on the value of property in the vicinity through which it passes, what must be the results when the roads are actually built and this is not all. The increased val-

LAYMEN'S CONVENTION

Big Meet Here—Much Interest Shown.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement held their convention here this week and aroused much interest in their work to evangelize the world in this generation. The crowning event of the meeting was the big banquet given at the Armory on Wednesday evening, which was attended by more than one hundred guests.

The entire program of the three day convention was filled with one interesting and instructive address after another. As a result of the good work done in Salisbury there is more enthusiasm over the great good being performed through the agency of this grand movement than was ever before felt in this city. The program of the convention as carried out follows:

City Council Proceedings.

Permits to build were granted as follows: To E. P. Downing, concrete dwelling on London Avenue; to Jacob Hudson, dwelling on Brown Street; to J. W. Winder, stables near Pollitt's Alley; to James L. Johnson, addition to shop on East Church Street.

Clerk was instructed to notify B. F. Sweeten and Son that by resolution passed by the Council they would advertise for bids to repair certain brick streets put down by Sweeten and Son in Salisbury and would collect cost of repairs by suing on bond of Sweeten and Son.

With improved highways people begin to improve the property by enclosing the land, by building better dwellings and better barns. When these improvements are started it almost invariably creates a friendly rivalry, for I would not care to see my neighbor doing more for his property than I am doing for mine, and the consequence is that all properties bordering all such highways is taken better care of. The buildings are kept in better shape, better and more comfortable homes are built and surroundings begin to be looked after. Some one begins to plant ornamentals, and they find they are attractive and they try to plant them. Occasionally, of course, there is someone who does not fall in line, but what is almost invariably the result someone more progressive will come along and buy the property and this too is then improved.

Good roads in any part of the world is a forerunner of advanced civilization. No County, no State can build improved highways without being vastly benefited. The improvements come in so many different ways that it is really difficult to enumerate them. It not only improves the property through which they pass but the people themselves become more refined, more intelligent, better informed and more progressive.

DRAW BRIDGE ASKED FOR

Delegation Before Commissioners—Large Sums Expended For A Greater Salisbury.

A large delegation was before the County Commissioners on Tuesday asking for drawbridges over the river at Camden and Humphreys Dam. The property above Camden bridge is now being improved by the Salisbury Realty Company. This company has at a great expense dredged out the old mill race, to the railroad and has turned it into a navigable channel with ten feet of water at low tide. In addition to this the banks on both sides have been wharfed up, and the only thing waiting to be done in order to turn this stream into one filled with commerce is to give a way for the boats to go in and come out.

This question was agitated some time ago, at the time the Company was providing for the dredging out of this channel. At that time wanting to be certain that if they should spend the large amount of money, they would be able to use the property thus improved. They went before the Commissioners and asked for the bridges in the two bridges. The Commissioners refused to put in the bridges on account of the improvements not being at that time completed. Their minutes in regard to this proposition are as follows: "The Board answering the proposition, stated that they would put in piers bridges at Camden Street crossing and South Division Street crossing, when required by progress of the work of developing the property. The work of dredging out the channel is now completed most of the wharfage put up, and on Tuesday the Company together with other citizens went before the Commissioners to report progress, and state that in their opinion the time had come when the bridges should go in. A number of speeches were made by members of the delegations giving their side of the proposition and urging the Commissioners to put in the bridges. Both of the bridges in question will soon have to be replaced by more substantial structures the proposition of the property owners, means the additional cost of putting in draws. The County Commissioners did not render the decision at that time, but have taken the matter under advisement. Among those in the delegation asking for the draws were the following: A. A. Gillette, Wm. J. Downing, Vanderhook, U. W. Dickerson, C. J. Brotherton, J. D. Williams, B. H. Parker, R. B. Freese, Jas. E. Ellegood, B. Frank Kennerly, W. F. Allen, Otis Lloyd, E. E. Twilley, A. W. Robinson, O. E. Dismayson. Sometime last winter, John Somers, on the part of the County Commissioners, the City and the Realty Company was named to take up this whole matter. This committee met at the City Hall Monday night and made the following report.

Report of Joint Committee. "Meeting called to order by Mayor Bounds, Chairman of Joint Committee. Members present were Mayor Bounds, Smith, Dennis, Truitt, Ward, Llovd, Kennerly, Allen and Clark, with City Surveyor Shockley. Minutes of previous meeting read and approved. City Surveyor Shockley and Roads Engineer Clark submitted approximate estimates of $10,000 for each of the proposed bridges with spans of 40 feet, roadways of 26 feet and two 7 foot sidewalks on each bridge. Mr. Ward then submitted the propositions which had been advanced by the Salisbury Realty Co. and asked for a statement from the committee members from the City Council of Salisbury as to what part of the cost of the bridges they would assume. Mayor Bounds stated that as the Salisbury Realty Company had voluntarily increased the assessable valuation of their property and had gone to considerable expense to improve the property the bridges should be built, and as the City of Salisbury was interested in the matter of having adequate roadways and sidewalks on each bridge, the City of Salisbury should pay a part of the cost of the bridges. Mayor Bounds suggested that the different committees seek further instructions from their respective bodies, after submitting to them the results of the deliberation of this committee. Mr. Ward advanced the recommendation that the county pay for the abutments, the city and the Realty Company pay for the superstructure and draw. Mayor Bounds then proposed that the city of Salisbury pay only for the additional cost occasioned by the extra width of the bridges for the sidewalks.

Conference At Eden.

A Sunday School Conference will be conducted at Eden on the coming Sunday, May 14th, by State Superintendent Geo. H. Nook. At 3:30 an old fashioned experience meeting will be held followed by sermon by the State Superintendent. At 2:30 Mother's Day will be observed. Those attending are expected to wear a white carnation or some other white flower in honor of mother. At night a great mass meeting of which the pastor will have charge. Mr. Nook will speak and sing.

30,000 LAYING HENS

On Chicken Farm. Georgia Man Plans To Have Great Ranch Of Fowl.

At an expense of thousands of dollars, A. G. Candler, Jr., is establishing a large chicken farm, adjoining Druid Hills, on the Walling Mill Road in Georgia, the largest chicken farm in the United States. When his plans are completed 30,000 chickens will be busy supplying that section with eggs. It is Mr. Candler's purpose to revolutionize the egg business in Atlanta by establishing a year-round price and forcing other dealers not only to guarantee their eggs, but stamp the date on which it is laid on every egg that goes directly from farm to consumer. Mr. Candler is going in for fancy breeds of chickens. Believing that chicken-raising on business principles and on a large scale is a good business venture, Mr. Candler is putting money into the enterprise with the idea of making it pay, and from all appearances that is what he is going to do.

His Working Plan.
Here is his working plan for the selling part of the poultry business: He believes, and contracts, which he has already listed, show that he is right in his belief that clubs, cafes, hotels, boarding houses and the average housewife want to be certain that they are going to get really fresh eggs, and that when they know what they are going to get they are willing to enter into contracts to buy eggs from the farm that guarantees their freshness. Therefore, Mr. Candler is going to make just as many contracts as he is certain that he can fill. For instance when his farm is running full blast, he will refuse to contract for more than 15,000 eggs a day, although there will be many days when he will get as many as 25,000 eggs. The eggs left over after the contracts have been filled will not cause worry, for he can sell them to a wholesaler or to city grocers—that is if he does not want to use them for hatching, and he is constantly increasing the number of chickens. However when Mr. Candler sells eggs other than except by contract he is not going to put his stamp on the date upon them, for he cannot tell how long the middle men will hold them before they get to the consumer. Can Establish Price.

Mr. Candler believes that by starting a farm on the mammoth scale he can establish a year round price for eggs in Atlanta, thus changing the principle on which the trade has been based for many years. The price proposed by Mr. Candler is 35 cents a dozen, and at that price he already has customers who have contracted for about 200 dozen eggs a day. Last year about Christmas time, when thousands of Atlanta were paying 50 cents a dozen for cold storage eggs Mr. Candler's customers were getting laid the day before, stamped with that date and guaranteed to be of that date, eggs for 35 cts., or 15 cts. less than the average person was glad to pay for cold storage eggs, some of which were probably unfit for use. Another argument which Mr. Candler advances in favor of the one price theory is that while the price of eggs may go down in the summer to, say, 24 cents a dozen, the chances are that the consumer, buying from the thousands of dealers who do not guarantee their eggs will find that three of the eggs out of his dozen are not good. The eggs are not guaranteed so he not only loses six cents on bad eggs, but to complete his dozen he will be forced to buy three more eggs at a cost of six cents, and for his dozen he really paid 36 cents. According to Mr. Candler's plan a man buys 12 eggs for 35 cents whether the market price is 24 or 54 cents. Averaging the two it is evident that the consumer does not lose on the year round purchase, and he has the advantage of knowing that when he buys 12 eggs he gets 12 eggs that are fresh.

Covers Fifteen Acres.
Briarcliff Farm covers fifteen acres of land near Druid Hills. It is beautifully situated on several little hills, well wooded on the north side and cleared on the south. Mr. Candler was not so infatuated, as some of his friends suggested, with the racing game that he named his farm after one of the famous automobile race courses but named it because of the nature of the land which the farm covers. In a bottom between two hills Mr. Candler encountered a briar patch which covered about an acre. When he waded through that briar patch one day several months ago, before he had cleared it away, he decided that Briarcliff would be the most appropriate name for his farm.

The houses, many of them already up, have concrete floors and concrete walls up to two feet above the ground. With floors and part of the walls made of concrete it is impossible for rats or vermin to reach the chickens. In the interest of cleanliness Mr. Candler has had the houses built on sloping ground. These houses, divided into many pens, are 170 feet long, and one end is always about seven feet lower than the other. Thus when they are flooded with water it will be easily drained away. One man by playing a hose on the upper end can clean the whole house in a short time.

Walk in Each House.
In each chicken-house is a walk about three feet wide between the pens on each side, and from this walk practically everything necessary can be done without the employees entering the pens. For instance, the nests are built in a little wall backed toward the walk. The back to this wall is on hinges, and as the person collecting the eggs goes to each pen he merely has to open this wall or door and there is a row of nests visible as they reach. Below this row of nests are feeding troughs. There is running water in each chicken-house. And from the all-important walk again, all the employees have to do to let the chickens out of the pen into the "run" is to pull a lever which is connected by a rope with a little trap leading out into the "run."

The "run" for each pen is most interesting. Naturally, it is covered by fine wire. There is a gate leading to it from the rear, but this is seldom used except in the evenings, when the chickens are driven into the house for the night. The floors of these "runs" have been put through a harrowing process, and the surface dirt on them is cleaned out every two or three days. A prepared mixture of leaves, gravel and dirt is always on this surface, and every morning a small amount of grain is placed in this dirt in order that the chickens may exercise themselves before breakfast. The first thing done in the morning by the employees at the farm is to sprinkle this grain on the dirt and the "run." Then the chickens are let out on the "run," where they scratch about for half an hour. They are then allowed to re-enter the house, where breakfast is awaiting them. Mr. Candler believes that chickens need a great deal of exercise and has devised this plan for making them take it.

The Buyer who knows the Difference in Automobiles will own a

Our first object in advertising the Cadillac Thirty is to teach the buyers the real essentials of an automobile and to help them become competent to judge the merits of a car. If buyers know the vast difference in automobiles, we would have three purchasers for every Cadillac we could secure.

Cadillac is Manufactured
There is abundant evidence to prove that no car at $2,500 or under will compare favorably with the Cadillac Thirty. In the first place a dependable, lasting automobile must be a manufactured car. It is foolhardy to claim that a machine assembled from parts secured here and there will give the same quality of service as a car the parts of which are made under one roof, with a thorough knowledge of the relation of each part to every other. The high standard of accuracy required in an automobile cannot be attained in an assembled car. Neither can the parts be made standard, so that the owner can rely on repair parts fitting properly. The buyer who knows automobiles will demand a great deal of the factory behind the car he is considering. And he ought to. It's the best insurance he can secure against high upkeep and trouble.

Cadillac Factory
It is the Cadillac factory, its methods and facilities, which so strongly commend the Cadillac Thirty. No one, be he mechanic or not, can visit this plant and not be soundly convinced that the Cadillac is an excellent car.

And comparison with other factories and their methods will reveal the fact that no car at double the price is made as carefully and as accurately as the Cadillac. What this means to an owner can be easily determined by asking Cadillac owners what kind of service they get and what their upkeep amounts to, and then comparing notes with owners of other makes. You'll find that no car will stand comparison with the Cadillac on these two vital points.

Cadillac Design
Then the design of the Cadillac affords advantages which no other car offers. No motor will compare with the cooling qualities of the Cadillac, yet less water is used than in any other car of equal power. What car of equal size will travel 17 to 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline? What other car will run 100 miles on a pint of oil? The Cadillac is doing this every day.

Cadillac Dependability
If you were an expert mechanic and had plenty of time to devote to your car, you could get good service from most any well-known machine. But only a few are expert mechanics. When you buy a car you want steady, uninterrupted service. You will get this in a Cadillac, whether you are mechanically inclined or not. And you will get it at lower upkeep expense than with any other car. Truly, the buyer who knows the difference in automobiles will own a Cadillac Thirty.

How I Removed Pimples and Blackheads from My Face

"I have been bothered for a number of years with blackheads and pimples on my face. I have tried a number of remedies from physicians, with little or no improvement. More than a year ago I thought I would try Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and after taking it for a period of two months, I found a decided improvement. My face is now free from pimples and blackheads, and I cannot thank you enough for your wonderful remedy. I would be glad to let everybody know the benefit I derived from its use."—Mrs. CHARLES B. ANDERSON, Box 52, Creston, Wash.

The most common indications of impure, impoverished blood are humors and eruptions, and they are usually the fore-runner of more serious consequences which come from an unhealthy state of the blood.

All that is necessary is a good, home treatment, frequent bathing, fresh air, wholesome, nutritious, easily digested food, and the regular use of Pinkham's Blood Purifier. In this way the blood is purified and enriched. Pimples, eruptions, and blackheads disappear and the complexion will become clear and healthy.

You may be perfectly sure that Pinkham's Blood Purifier is just as reliable as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its makers could not risk their unequalled reputation among their vast army of friends by recommending a remedy that was not honest.

EVILS OF DIVORCE.

There is a social scourge more blighting and more destructive of family life than Monomania. It is the carefully rearing number of divorce mills throughout the United States. These mills, like the mills of the gods, are slowly but surely grinding to powder the domestic altars of the nation. Husband and wife are separated on the most flimsy pretexts. And as if the different states of the Union were not sufficiently accommodating in this respect one state has the unenviable distinction of granting a bill of divorce for the mere asking of it, on the sole condition of a brief residence within her borders.—Cardinal Gibbons.

LIFE IS SHORT.

Mark how fleeting and paltry is the entire life of a creature in embryo, tomorrow a mummy or ashes. So for the hair's breadth of time assigned to thee live rationally, and part with life cheerfully, as drops the ripe olive, extolling the season that bore it and the tree that matured it.—Marcus Aurelius Antonus.

TOO MANY BOOKS.

As some gourmands abuse their stomachs with too much eating, so some gourmands for mental food abuse their brains with too much reading. They stuff their minds with piles of indigestible literary food. They read and read and read until their brains absolutely refuse to do any independent thinking. Their brains become like a great sponge filled with water, sodden and heavy and inactive. I protest against the lightning rapidity with which men and women gallop through their books. Master those books. Read them over and over again and make them integral parts of yourselves.—Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage.

EASE.

It were better to be eaten to death with rust than to be secured to nothing with perpetual motion.—Shakespeare.

DOING REAL HARM.

People who do us harm in the end are not the wrongdoers whom all execrate. They are the men who do not do quite as much wrong, but who are applauded instead of being execrated. The career of Benedict Arnold has done us no harm as a nation because of the universal horror it inspired. The men who have done us harm are those who have advocated disunion, but have done it so that they have been enabled to keep their political position; who have advocated repudiation of debts or other financial dishonesty, but have kept their standing in the community; who preach the doctrines of anarchy, but refrain from action that will bring them within the pale of the law, for these men lead thousands astray by the fact that they go unpunished or even are rewarded for their misdeeds.—Theodore Roosevelt.

REAL ROYALTY.

If there be no nobility of descent, all the more indispensable is it that there should be nobility of character in them that bear rule so fine and high and pure that as men come within the circle of its influence they involuntarily pay homage to that which is the one pre-emptive distinction, the royalty of virtue.
—Bishop Henry C. Potter.

COMMON SENSE.

Common sense is an uncommon degree in what the world calls wisdom.—Coleridge.

PERSISTENCY.

The essentials of success are integrity of purpose and persistence, in endeavor.—William P. Frye.
The will of the present is the key to the future.—Horatio Stebbins.
In the lexicon of youth, which fate reserves for bright manhood, there is no such word as "fall."—Balwer-Lytton.

Druggery is as necessary to call out the treasures of the mind as harrowing and planting those of the earth.—Margaret Fuller.
What men want is not talents, it is purpose; or, in other words, not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.—Balwer-Lytton.

Constipation causes headache, nausea, dizziness, languor heart palpitation. Drastic physics grips, sicken, weaken the bowels and don't cure. Doan's Regulator acts gently and cures constipation. 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

MEXICO AND INTERVENTION.
 Every since the sensational mobilization of the army upon the Mexican border, the air has been full of rumors of plans for the annexation of our southern neighbor.

There is probably not a boy who is familiar with the past history of our country but who has at some time cherished the hope that the whole continent of North America would some day belong to us. But age and calm sober reflection brings to us a sense of right and wrong and though it could be brought about that our neighbors on the north and south could of their own accord become a part of our great country. A greater portion of this country would welcome and receive them with outstretched arms, yet the high sense of right and wrong would make the country at large revolt at a campaign of conquest.

The sensational articles now appearing in the press of some of our so called yellow journals, calling for American intervention whether or no, cannot under the circumstances be justified unless the conditions of anarchy is much more marked than appears from the press reports of our more conservative papers. It may be necessary in order to protect American lives and American property to send an American army across the boundary, but this should not take place until our government is satisfied that the Mexican authorities are unable to render the assistance and protection called for.

Millions of dollars of American money are invested in Mexico and some of those who are so deeply interested in Mexican property have more than a sentimental desire to see the American flag wave over the capital at Mexico.

DIRECT PRIMARIES.

While it is generally understood that our nominations this fall are to be made under what is generally known as the Crawford County System yet our voters should not forget that at these primaries it will be up to them to decide whether or not they desire future nominations made by this method or whether they prefer going back to the old convention plan of making same.

According to the law passed at the last legislature, the voters of both parties will be called upon to pass upon this question at this year's primaries. A majority vote in favor of the direct plan by either party will mean the extension of the present state primary law to this county in all future primaries.

The method of making our nominations is a very important matter, and is one that the voters at large cannot afford to ignore. If, in the opinion of our voters, the method in vogue last year and the one this year is an improvement upon the old convention system, then it is up to them to see that their voters are recorded in this year's primaries in favor of direct nominations. If on the contrary, it has proven a failure and in your opinion a less satisfactory way of nominating our men for office, it is no less a duty to see that your vote is recorded as opposing. The question is, do you want to make the nominations yourself or do you want them made by a convention?

THE GOVERNORSHIP

The citizens of this county have for some time been closely watching the situation in regard to the government of our next Governor. Several of the topics launched have been of special interest to this community. While wishing good luck to all Democrats wanting the nomination, this county has among its citizens a man that would fill the bill from any standpoint that it may be viewed, whether it be a question of ability and fitness, popularity and standing, or any other.
 When the proper time comes Wi-comico hopes that she will be allowed to present his name to the people of the State and is confident in such a case that his merits are such that his name for the high office of Governor will be at once recognized by all.

Mr. Jacob Phillips has returned to Salisbury after several months spent in New York City, Washington and Philadelphia, Pa.
 Mr. Amos Billingsworth, who has been two weeks with friends at his home, has returned home.

Russell White, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. White, of Fowseyville, fell overboard from a boat in the mill pond late Saturday afternoon, and would have been drowned but for the prompt arrival of assistance. He had gone down twice and was about to drown, when others arrived. Joe Bodley jumped in and brought him to the shore, but it was some time before he could be restored to consciousness.

The following alternates were elected: Ray Hearn, Harry Turner, T. O. Dishvorn, Burton Cannon and Edward Mills. All are cordially welcome.

Police Court News.

Detectives Gilmore and Merrill, of the N. Y. P. and N. detective force, arrested Frank Davis, George Rayne, Frank Larson and George Larson on the charge of vagrancy and trespassing on the property of the railroad. Three men were lodged in the jail, Monday night and were given a hearing before Justice Jones Tuesday, who committed them to the House of Correction. Tuesday afternoon another bunch of six were rounded up.

Joseph Moore, colored, was arrested for selling liquor. Several negroes told the officers that they had purchased liquor from Moore, and this led to his arrest; but at the trial some of the same parties who had been summoned as witnesses, swore they had never bought whiskey from Moore. The evidence being insufficient to convict Moore, Justice Jones discharged the prisoner.

James Jones, colored, was arrested Sunday night by Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith for carrying concealed weapons. A heavy set of brass knuckles were found on Jones. Tuesday Justice Jones fined the prisoner ten dollars and costs, it being his first offense.

Short Crop of Cow Peas Prices Are Going Up! The enormous demand for Cow Peas last year carried the price very high, and as the crop is very short and the acreage is rapidly extending, there are many indications which point to much higher prices as the sowing season approaches. Whip-poor-will Cow Peas. The Whip-poor-will Cow Peas are generally preferred in the Central and Southern States. They are bush form, early maturing and especially desirable for feed. New Era Cow Peas. New Eras are a little earlier and make more vine than the Whip-poor-wills. Wonderfuls, Clays and Mixed Cow Peas. For Hay, the Wonderfuls or the Mixed Cow Peas are more productive. They should be planted with an occasional grain of Corn, Sorghum Seed, Rair Corn, etc., which will prevent the vines from getting damaged by coming in contact with the ground. Black Cow Peas. Black Cow Peas are a little earlier in maturing than Clays; they make a good growth of vine, are exceptionally good for medium or poor land, and will stand almost any amount of wet weather without injury. We can also supply Shiny Peas, Red Rippers, Blackeye Peas and Soa Beans. REMEMBER—Bolgiano's Cow Peas are unquestionably the best. If your local merchant will not supply Bolgiano's Cow Peas, write us direct and we will tell you where you can get them. FREE. Health For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Coloma, Wisconsin.—"For three years I was troubled with female weakness, irregularities, backache and bearing down pains. I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking several bottles I found it was helping me, and I must say that I am perfectly well now and can not thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."
—Mrs. John Wentland, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 60, Coloma, Wisconsin.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

WICOMICO BOY GETS

Medal. The Carnegie Commission Makes Award For Saving Life At Beach.

Mr. Herman W. Downing, of this city, was awarded a handsome silver medal, by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission which met on Monday. This is in recognition of his noble work in rescuing a bather who was drowning in the surf at Ocean City, Maryland, on June 26th, 1909. Mr. Olapadde was in bathing with a party of Baltimoreans and was swimming near the pier when he was caught in an eddy and thrown against the piling. Downing seeing the danger of Olapadde, who had been deserted by his companions, was in, swam out to him. He reached him and had started back when a large wave swept over them and broke Downing's hold. Olapadde began drifting shore when Downing, though badly dazed and stunned, again grabbed him. The two were swept toward the pier and the attention of others was attracted to the exhausted but still struggling rescuer. Mr. L. L. Dickinson, of Berlin, threw off his outer clothes and plunged in.

Mr. B. Frank Waggaman and others on the pier got a rope and a ladder, one man sliding down a pile and throwing the rope to the two struggling men in the water. The line was seized by Dickinson, who succeeded in getting it around Downing and Olapadde and they were hoisted to the pier.

When young Olapadde and his rescuers reached shore Captain Jones and crew of the life saving station had responded to the call for help, took hold of him and with the assistance of Dr. Mosley, of Philadelphia, who was visiting at the resort, and Dr. Townsend, of Ocean City, resuscitated the young man.

Thirty five awards in recognition of acts of heroism were made at the spring meeting of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission and the issuance of fifty silver and twenty six bronze medals was authorized. In addition, the money accompanying the medals amounts to $841,000, and pensions to widows of heroes total $1,310 annually. Of the large amount, $1,000 is given to George K. Muir, of Grand Rapids, Wis., who was awarded a bronze medal last January. Muir is now suffering from tuberculosis at Wales, Wis., and the commission makes the money award to care for him.

The money is apportioned as follows: $6,000 for worthy purposes, $2,200 for liquidation of mortgages, $3,700 for other indebtedness, $4,000 purchases of homes, $14,000 for education, $3,300 death benefits and $1,000 for restoration to health.

In nine instances the heroes lost their lives and the award is made to a member of the family. Twenty of the awards are made in connection with rescues from drowning, five from railroad trains, four by runaways, five in mine or well suffocation cases and one the rescue of an insane patient from a roof cornice.

Since the adoption of the hero commission 4,491 cases have been referred for recognition, 487 have been granted and 803 cases are still pending.

Some of the heroes are quite young. One is only ten years old, four are thirteen, two are twelve and a number have not yet reached their majority.

Charles F. Falvey, 10 years old, died in an attempt to save William W. Hook from drowning at Washington, D. C., on June 21st, 1909. A Grouse medal was awarded.

Saved Child From Death.

"After our child had suffered from severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. T. Richardson, of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicines seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy. For cough, colds, hoarseness, laryngitis, asthma, croup and sore lungs, it's the most infallible remedy that's made. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by All Druggists."

HANDICAPPED.

This is the Case With Many Salisbury People.

Too many Salisbury citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pain and ache you must cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills help sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Can you doubt Salisbury evidence?

Mrs. William E. Nicholson, 217 Elizabeth Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills brought me great relief from kidney complaint and I believe they will do as much for other sufferers. I was afflicted with disordered kidneys from childhood, but was never troubled seriously until about two years ago. Then my back began to ache severely and last summer I was laid up for two weeks. I used many amounts of medicine, but I found only slight relief. Doan's Kidney Pills went at once to the seat of my trouble and helped me in every way. I consider this remedy worthy of the highest endorsement."

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

No. Never. It is foolish to fear a fancied evil, when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, beyond and lowlands. These are the malarial germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the bones and muscles and may induce deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out these vilest germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Brewster, of Luconna, N. C. "and I've had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy. Only 50c at All Druggists.

"Had dysentery or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Barbours, Ohio.

Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Testimonial from H. Fillmore Lankford, Attorney-at-Law: "I have a Wrenn Surrey which has been in use twenty years, and it is a good one today. I had the tires cut after using nineteen years."

Wrenn's make of Buggy is a guarantee that you get your money's worth. Why pay $20 more for an imitation when you can buy a Wrenn from $55 up?

Wagons, I have them—not the common ones, but the cheap ones. Cost $10 more, last twice as long.

Mr. Bounds came in last week and said: "Mr. Taylor, I want a Runabout, I bought a Wrenn Buggy from you ten years ago, and I am still using it." He bought another Wrenn. Best by test, cheapest on earth for the money.

Their Sister's Surprise

By Cora A. Donaldson

Ruth sat alone on the veranda, stranded by the merry withdrawing tide of young folk who were going out at the gate with cushions, shawls and cars. There were six of them—each of her tall, gorgeously colored young step-sisters had her beau. They were bound for the river where boats were waiting. Ruth, with a long sigh, could think of nothing nicer than to be able to spend an hour on the river in the light of the rising moon, accompanied by somebody who was sufficiently happy just in the privilege of making love to her.

The young folks' gay laughter came back to her from the still street. She leaned against the pillar, folding her hands and trying to imagine what she had never experienced. Behind her was the cheerful disorder of a hasty exodus, chairs out of their places, newspapers scattered, the rug kicked up. She ought to put things in order, but she was so tired. No one would come to see, and surely she had earned the right to rest for a little while.

Behind the trees came the silver flash of moonlight. She watched it pathetically while she thought of what the day had brought forth. Black-berry preserving for one thing. And for to-morrow a basket of early peaches waited. Besides, Edna's dress must be finished for the Coombs' musicale and something extra prepared for dessert, because her father had asked a business friend to dine.

And after to-morrow there were other days just as busy, just as wearisome—an endless succession whose duties must be faced with every bit of energy she could muster. The girls were young and thoughtless. Twenty, 18, 16 they were—just in their bloom. She was eight years older. She felt 80 years older sometimes.

She had been 20 when her step-mother died. It was a sad household and her father was always so helpless. He had turned to her. There had seemed nothing for her to do but pick up the fallen reins of domestic government and handle them as best she could. It was appalling how unprepared she was, for she had learned little save music. She had meant to teach it, but, alas! her teaching had begun and ended with the family circle. As for practicing, she never had time for it now. Starting up at the moon, she wondered if she had done all the duty required of her. At least she had done as well as she could. Her step-sisters were bright, headstrong, spirited, handsome, too, with their red hair and glowing complexions. To see them was to admire them.

She had always divided the money that came her way impartially among the three. It went such a little way after all. They were big and it took so much cloth to clothe them. Then, too, they were out of things so fast. And they had such a love for adornment. She was at her wits' ends sometimes to supply their demands in ways that would not distress her father. As for herself, anything did for her. It was a good thing that she was small, for the best part of the girls' discarded clothing made over very nicely for her. Only in footgear was she forced to be extravagant. She wore out so many shoes walking at her housework.

The girls did not help her very much. They hated housework. She could not blame them. She thought she hated it herself sometimes. And really it was an easy to do a task herself as to coax somebody to do it for one. The girls were young—just in the midst of their girlhood and wild to have all the good times they could. Youth came but once in a lifetime, as Louise said.

It came to Ruth suddenly that she had never had time to be young at all. First she had worked so hard in order to become self-supporting; then she had had to take charge of the household. For eight years she had played the part of a self-denying house-mother. She had been to no parties, had no smart frocks. As for beauty, why, she had never had one in her life. She had had no time at first and later the girls had won all the attention. Louise was already engaged to a young man, and she would stay with her father and he would be old together. For her it would be a case of "crusts and left-overs" to the end.

Hark! The man next door was playing and singing. She knew what he was singing. It was "The Monotone." What a strange man he was—or, at least, Helen said he was strange, and she knew him better than any of them, unless, indeed, it was her father. Ever since he had come with his old sister to live in the beautiful house next door he had been kind to them all, sharing his fruit and flowers with them and lending the girls books and music. They were always going to his house on some pretense or other, and they were always welcome. Ruth had gone once decorously to call, as befitting her position as nominal head of her father's household. She had been a little awed by what she had seen. It must be so nice to have rugs that had no worn places and chairs whose interior mechanism of springs was successfully concealed by abundant stuffing. Mrs. West had been very sweet to her, but Ruth had felt somehow that she preferred the society of the girls. And so she had not gone again.

The piano next door ceased. Mr. Marr evidently did not intend to sing again. Ruth wished he would. Whenever she heard him playing she felt an impulse to fly to the old piano in the parlor and practice with might and main. It was a pity that her music had cost so much and had come to nothing.

"Miss Ruth!" A man stood bare-headed on the grass before her, looking at her, a kindly smile under his grayish mustache. "She brought her eyes down from the moon to him with a start. "So the youngsters have gone and left you," he said. "I heard a commotion here a little while ago and suspected that the river had called them. It has called me, too. I've got a new boat down there under the bank—the paint is just dry on it—oh, a beautiful boat—and as my sister is as afraid of water as a hen I've come to see if you won't go with me for a little row. A boat isn't a good place to be alone in."

"Oh, Mr. Marr!" Ruth gasped in delight and her face blossomed in shy radiance. "Why, I've just been dying to go—and now I can't! It's so good of you to ask me." "Oh, the wonder of the river and the moon and the boat's motion and the man at the oars, whose face looked young enough and handsome enough in the generous light! He sung to her softly in his rich voice; he talked to her; he told her amusing stories. And Ruth forgot that she was timid and forlorn and laughed and confided in him until it seemed that she had told him every secret of her poor little life. "It is a pity that you have had to neglect your music when you love it so," he said, "but I am sure that with a few good lessons you could pick it up again easily."

"I suppose so," Ruth sighed, "but you see I haven't the time." "Take time. Give your housekeeping over to your sisters." As she stared at him in surprise he leaned forward resting upon the oars. "Ruth, tell me, if you could, wouldn't you emancipate yourself by marrying somebody who had money and would be good to you. Wouldn't you, dear?" "But—nobody—would—"

"Yes, somebody would—does. I, Ruth, I must seem like a pretty old fellow to you, but I believe I could make you happy. I want you, dear. And my sister is willing. We have talked it over together. If you will marry me I can promise that you shall never regret."

An hour later Ruth, somewhat recovered from the excitement of receiving and accepting her first proposal, stole upstairs. As she opened the door of her room an unusual sight greeted her. The girls were there squinting on the floor about the open window.

"We couldn't see the moon anywhere else," Louise said. "Where have you been, Ruth?" "I've been on the river," Ruth answered, trying to keep her happy voice steady. "I went with Mr. Marr in his new boat. And—and, oh, girls! I may as well tell you. I'm—he's going to marry him!"

There was an aghast silence. Then Louise spoke. "Well," she said, "of course it's all right if you love him."

"Love him!" Ruth repeated, and her voice rang. "I adore him, girls," she cried.

Prussia's State Income. The state income of Prussia from public properties amounted, in 1908, to somewhat more than the total income from taxation and from borrowings. The railways were the largest source of income and netted $149,755,000, or about eight per cent, on the total invested by Prussia in its railway system since the state began to buy and build railways, in 1848-49. Prussia derived from other sources, from its crown forests, the leased farms, the iron, coal, potash, salt and other mines, the porcelain factories, banking and a variety of less important industries, $28,900,000.—Scribner's.

CHAPTER XI.
THE GAME.

IF Evan Blount had been anticipating an unfriendly reception at the great mining camp in the Carnade hills he was agreeably disappointed. A committee of prominent citizens, headed by Jasper Steuchfeld, the reform chairman for Carnade county, met him at the train, escorted him to the hotel and during the afternoon, which was at his disposal, gave him joyously and hilariously the freedom of the camp.

The political meeting, which was held in the Carnade Mining company's electric lighted ore shed, was packed with an enthusiastic audience, and there were prolonged cheers and handclappings when the railroad representative took his seat on the improvised platform as the guest of the committee.

Later, when Judge Crowley, the reform candidate for the state senate, had opened the joint debate with a sharp arraignment of the railroad's methods, not only in its dealings with its patrons as a common carrier, but also in the pertinacity with which it invaded the political field, there was tumultuous applause. But it was no heartier than that which greeted Blount when he rose to present the railroad's side of the argument.

During the journey from the capital, which had consumed the night and the greater portion of the forenoon, he had prepared his speech. His argument—the one unanswerable argument as it seemed to him—was the existence of a law which presumed to limit the earnings of a private or at most a quasi public corporation, without making a corresponding regulation limiting the cost of such a corporation's service. Upon this foundation he was able to build a very fair structure of oratory.

The judge, his opponent, was a rather turgid man, whose speech abounded in flights of spread eagle eloquence and whose appeal was to the emotions and the impulses of his audience.

Blount, on the other hand, made a typical lawyer's speech, calmly delivered, logical in every syllogism and appealing frankly to the intelligence of his hearers. In every part of it he was greeted with generous applause, and at the close of the meeting he had what the editor of the local paper called in his issue of the following day "an ovation."

Steuchfeld and his fellow committeemen escorted him to the midnight train, and no one in the crowd of congratulators was more enthusiastic than the opposition chairman.

"That was a great speech, Mr. Blount," he said at parting. "If you can go all over the state making as good talks as you have made here to-night you'll tie us all up in a hard knot. But McVickar won't let you do it, not by a long shot."

Blount laughed. "There are no strings tied to me, Mr. Steuchfeld," he declared. "This is a new deal, and I am the dealer. Come down to the capital and let me convince you that we are out for open publicity and a square deal for every man, including the railroad man."

"All right," was the cordial reply. "I'll be down along some of these days, and if you can show me that McVickar isn't going into politics any further than you have gone here to-night I'll promise you to come back here and tell the boys that the jig is up."

Five minutes later the branch train pulled out, and the chairman and his fellow committeemen gave the departing joint debater three cheers and another. When the red tail lights of the train had disappeared around the first curve Steuchfeld turned to his fellow conspirators.

"Well, boys," he said, with a grin that went from ear to ear, "I guess we did it up all right and according to orders. I don't know what sort of man the Hon. Dave Sagebrush is playing this time, but whatever he says goes, and I reckon we gave the young man a right pleasant time. Anyway, he seemed to think so."

Blount did not reach his office in the capital until the afternoon of the second day. His first care was to call up the Inter-Mountain, and when the clerk disappointed him by telling him that his father, Mrs. Blount and their guest had gone out to Wartrace Hall he counted it as one more opportunity missed and settled down to business.

First in the memoranda on his desk was a stenographer's note asking him to make an appointment with one S. P. Hathaway, whose address was the Inter-Mountain hotel. Since the note was marked "important" he told the clerk to call up the hotel at once, and in due time the gentleman, who, the stenographer said, had called several times during the day, made his appearance at the door of the private office.

It was a mutual shock. Blount recognized instantly his companion of the Omaha-Aretas Pullman smoking compartment and the man who had doubtless sent the three highbidders after him on the night of mysteries and who had been the prime mover in the series of singular incidents ending in the midnight homecoming to Wartrace Hall.

On the other hand, the president saw before him the supposed agent of the forestry service. "Well, I'll be hanged!" he ejaculated, dropping into the nearest chair. "You needn't be," laughed Blount easily. "I'll admit that it was partly my fault, Mr. Hathaway. What can I do for you today?"

By this time the lumber king had recovered his breath and some measure of his composure. "Great Scott!" he said. "If you had given me half a hint that you were Dave Blount's son, but you didn't, you know, and now I am handicapped just at the time when I oughtn't to be. I have come to talk business with you today, Mr. Blount, and you've got me going when I ought to be coming. I've been given to understand that you are handling the political end of the railroad company in this campaign, Mr. Blount. Is that right?"

"It is and it isn't," was the quick reply. "The railroad company is not in politics in this campaign—as a political factor, I mean. What we are trying to do—what we mean to do—is to say the same matter plainly and fairly before the people with a plea for a square deal."

"I'm, yes," said the trust president, who was evidently suffering from a fresh attack of embarrassment. "But there are certain little business matters which have to enter into every campaign, and your company, like my own, is obliged to take cognizance of them. Two years ago the railroad people found it advisable and profitable to—make a little arrangement with me which was very mutually advantageous, and I called to see if it could not be made again."

Blount sat back in his chair, and the conciliatory smile disappeared. "State the facts, if you please, Mr. Hathaway," he said curtly.

"Well, it was like this. As you know, we have a great many sawmills scattered all over the state, and we employ a good many men. While our employees are residents of the state, they are not citizens in the sense that they take any active interest in state politics. They may be here this year and up among the Oregon redwoods next year and somewhere else the year following. That being the case, when they vote at all they naturally ask us how we would like to have them vote."

"Go on," said Blount. "Well, as I say, such being the case, we are able to control at least four, and probably five of the legislative districts in this state. The control is worth something to your people, and in the last election that fact was recognized. Since the Twin Buttes Lumber company is practically the only heavy lumber shipper in this region, it was given a preferential rate on its products, not at all as a quid pro quo, you understand, but merely in friendly recognition of our help in the last election."

"Really, it was not such a great thing that was done for us, Mr. Blount. If you are familiar with lumber rates in this territory you will know that the special tariff made for us is all that enables us to live. Without it we would go into bankruptcy inside of a year."

Blount had opened his penknife and was absently sharpening a pencil. "This special rate you speak of, Mr. Hathaway," he said, speaking slowly, "I imagine it is not confined to this state."

"Well—or—no," was the hesitating reply. "To meet competition it has been made to apply also on through shipments."

"And it is covered by rebates, I suppose?"

"Not exactly," was the reluctant admission. "The Transcontinental company is a heavy purchaser of lumber, and the greater part of the difference between the preferential and the regular tariff rate is taken up in our bills for stock sold to the railroad."

"Let me be quite clear upon that point, Mr. Hathaway. You mean that you are allowed to charge the railroad company more than the market price on the lumber it buys?"

The president of the lumber trust nodded. "Yes; that's practically the way of it," he admitted. "Then he once more pressed the time worn argument: 'It's the only way we can live and do business nowadays, Mr. Blount. Like every other large corporation, we have a small army of little shareholders—widows, orphans, charitable institutions and trustees' accounts. I have brought a list of our stockholders, and I'd like to have you look it over.'"

Blount took the paper mechanically and quite as mechanically ran his eye down the list of names. At the bottom of it, written in with a pen, was the name of Patricia's father, with his residence and occupation filled out in full.

"While Evan was staring at the pen written name Hathaway went on eloquently emphasizing the disastrous results that would fall upon the people for whom he was in the largest sense the trustee, the disaster hanging upon the withdrawal of the preferential rate."

Blount broke him in the midst of the special pleadings. "I see you have recently added one new name to this list, that of Professor Anners."

"Yes," interrupted the Twin Buttes president, "and he is a good example of our stockholders. Those like Anners—college professors, preachers and the like—buy stocks when they buy 'em all for an investment and pay for 'em out of their hard earned savings."

"I know," said Blount, frowning. "The fact that Patricia's father was involved added a fresh and exasperating complication, but he must come to some decision. Let us get down to the present fact." He went on brusquely. "What is it that you want me to do, Mr. Hathaway?"

"I want you to set the machinery in motion so that we can have our rate cut for another two years on the same terms as before. You are going to need every vote you can get this year, Mr. Blount, and you can't afford to turn us down."

Blount returned the printed list of stockholders and fell back upon the pencil sharpening. "Is it possible that you don't recognize the bald criminality of such a transaction, Mr. Hathaway?" he asked quietly.

"Of course I don't," was the ready reply. "It is the universal rule of the business world everywhere. You do something for me and I do something for you. You make it possible for us to live and do business in lumber, and we will do what we can to make it possible for you to get your square deal from the people of this state. That's the whole thing in a nutshell, Mr. Blount."

"One question," snapped Blount, trying to fix the roving gaze of the hawklike eyes. "With whom did you make this arrangement two years ago?"

"With Mr. McVickar himself."

"And you think you can do it again?"

"I know I can, but I don't want to go over your head. They all tell me that you are handling this end of it for the railroad company, and I'm not going around hunting a chance to make enemies. There's no hurry. Take your own time to think it over and to communicate with Mr. McVickar if you want to. When you get things fixed you can wire me just one word to Aretas. Just say 'Yes' and sign your name to it, and that will be enough."

For a full half hour after the president of the lumber trust had closed the door of the private office in the Temple court, building behind him Blount sat rocking gently in his pivot chair, fighting once more with the soul nausea which was threatening to overwhelm him.

So Vice President McVickar had deceived him after all, and he was merely a fence put up to screen the chicanery and trickery which were going on just the same as before. More, the vice president had let him stultify himself in a thousand ways. All his brave talk about openness and fair dealing would be set down as mere dust thrown to conceal the workings of a corrupt and criminal machine, sending away in the background.

And his father—how did he figure in this despicable business? Had he plotted with McVickar to bring his own son to shame merely because that son had refused to be a tool in the hands of the great machine? It was grossly incredible, and yet—Evan Blount remembered that thus far his father had said no word opposing the course he had taken. Could it be possible that a father could become so much the best as to forget the common ties of kindred?

Blount's mind—but more than his mind, his heart—went groping out in vain reachings for a confidant and an adviser. There was no one to whom he could turn, no whose conscience was not seared and distorted in the fires of political partisanship. No one, did he say? Yes; there was one. Patricia would know and understand. He must find her and tell her. But in the interval—

He got up and shut his desk with a slam. The stenographer heard and came to the door of the anteroom, notebook and pencil in hand. "Anything to give me before you go away, Mr. Blount?" he asked.

"No!" said Blount, almost savagely. Then he reconsidered. "Yes, there is. You may take a message to Mr. McVickar. Are you ready?"

The stenographer nodded. "All right; take this: 'Pending another interview with you, I shall close my office in Temple court and confine myself strictly to the routine legal business of the company. In the meantime my resignation is in your hands if you wish to appoint a new division counsel.'"

"Write that out and send it at once," he said to the clerk. "I shall be at the hotel if you want to reach me between now and closing time."

Failed to Catch the Tron. A professor in an old Pennsylvania college was conducting a review in Latin. Of a sleepy-looking youth he asked the question, "What construction is that at the top of page 12?"

"I don't know," was the prompt reply.

"Why not?" thundered the professor. "I have been harping on that construction all term."

"I soft reply you have, professor," was the sullen reply, "but I haven't caught the tune yet."

$75,000 FIRE AT MILTON

Second Large Fire in The Town Within Two Years.

A second fire, almost equaling in proportion that which destroyed the business section of Milton on the night of August 19th, 1909, broke on there at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon and for a time threatened the destruction of the entire town. The loss will exceed $75,000. By heroic work on the part of the residents, principally the women and a change of wind, saved the new part of the town containing many handsome stores, from total destruction.

It is thought the blaze started from a cigarette some one was smoking in O. A. Vidler's stables. Nearly twenty buildings were destroyed before the fire was subdued.

Hard work saved the Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall and a number of other large buildings. The burned area is estimated to be about three acres, and exceeds that of 1909. The destruction of the counting factories in the town will be a severe blow to Milton's mill-holding population, as one establishment alone gave employment to nearly three hundred persons.

Farmers Need Rain.

The truckers are suffering for rain throughout Wicomico County. The berry growers say that if the drought remains much longer the berry crop will be a failure and the fruit will be small and dried up. Wheat is suffering and all kinds of small fruits and rain very badly.

New corn is coming along slowly, and in many cases replanting has been found imperative. Pasture land looks as if it did last fall, quite dry up from the efforts of the stock to get their fill.

For three years there have been dry seasons. The state, generally, last heavily last year in months of arid weather.

DEMOCRATIC MEET HERE

Nominations By Direct Vote—Other Matters Discussed.

On the invitation of the Democratic State Central Committee, representatives of every district in the county met with this body at the Democratic headquarters on Wednesday of this week. The meeting was called to order by Hon. M. V. Brownington on behalf of the State Central Committee. A number of questions were discussed and settled at this meeting.

One of the first questions brought up was the manner in which our local ticket was to be nominated this year. After some discussion it was decided to call each district and ascertain in this way what the sentiment throughout the county was in this matter. District by district was called upon and all agreed the belief that the people wanted and expected to make out the ticket this year by the direct vote plan. The change in sentiment on this question was very marked, and many who formerly contended for the convention plan of making nominations expressed the conviction what the primary should be open to all under the direct vote plan, because the people wanted it that way, if for no other reason.

As the law provides for the nomination to be made by a convention this year, it was decided that the delegates to this convention from each district were to be selected by the State Central Committee with the direct understanding that all the delegates elected to this convention should be in honor bound to nominate those who receive the highest vote in the direct primaries.

A discussion then followed as to the time our local primaries should be held; some contending that early primaries would be better for our local ticket. It was finally decided to leave this matter open for the present, or until it is determined when the state and judicial primaries are to be held.

Judge Todvin Endorsed.

Hon. J. L. Bailey made a motion that a committee of ten from each district be selected to promote the candidacy of Judge Todvin in the judicial primaries, and to look after the interests of the party in their respective districts. This motion was carried.

A committee of fourteen, one from each district was then appointed to draft a set of resolutions endorsing the candidacy of Judge Todvin. The committee follows:

- No. 1, Barren Creek—Samuel J. Phillips.
- No. 2, Quantico—Jos. L. Bailey, Chairman.
- No. 3, Tynakle—F. B. Culver.
- No. 4, Pittsburg—W. R. Dennis.
- No. 5, Parsons—W. M. Cooper.
- No. 6, Dennis—A. Q. Hamblin.
- No. 7, Trappa—Boscoe Jones.
- No. 8, Netters—John K. Johnson.
- No. 9, Salisbury—Hon. Jesse D. Perry.
- No. 10, Shaptown—Walter Mann.
- No. 11, Delmar—L. B. Kerr.
- No. 12, Nanticoke—Wilfred R. Jester.
- No. 13, Camden—O. M. Brownington.
- No. 14, Willards—E. G. Davis.

A rising vote of thanks was then given to Hon. J. L. Bailey for his course in withdrawing from the judicial fight, as his course in doing this was recognized as saving this county from a primary fight that would probably have greatly injured her chances in the judicial primary.

This motion was unanimously carried and was ordered placed upon the minutes of the meeting.

After authorizing the State Central Committee to levy an assessment on the candidates to defray the expenses of the coming county primary the meeting adjourned.

PENINSULA TRUST COMPANY

Board Directors Elected—Quarters About Completed.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Peninsula Trust Company held this week the following business men were elected as members of the Board of Directors:

- Levin W. Dorman, J. McK. Dick, Jno. H. Dulaney, Wm. K. Leatherbury, W. B. Tighman, Jr., Wm. C. Mitchell, P. H. Doody, Chas. T. Lovings Jr., W. B. Lowe, H. C. McCandlish, T. H. Mitchell and Jas. T. Travis.

After the meeting of the stockholders the newly elected Board organized by the election of Levin W. Dorman as president, and H. C. McCandlish as vice president and treasurer.

The company is having their banking house at the corner of Main and Dock Streets thoroughly renovated and put in condition for an up-to-date banking establishment. This work is being rushed as fast as possible and the company hopes to be in a position to open their doors in a few days.

The Peninsula Trust Company is capitalized at $100,000 all paid in and starts with a $10,000 surplus. The Board of Directors numbers among its Salisbury's most successful business men.

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Monday Night—Requests Made For Extension of Sewer to Home For Aged.

The Committee from the Business Men's Association appointed to take up the question of a sewer from the city limits to Salisbury, was before the Council Monday night and the Council took the matter up promptly and ordered City Solicitor L. Atwood Bennett to draft an ordinance prohibiting the sale of cannon crackers and all other combustible fire works in the city limits. The Council decided to act with the Business Men's Association in this matter and by this means save the children of the city from mishaps and the city from the dangerous fireworks. An ordinance will be drawn at once and made effective.

Mr. M. V. Brownington appeared before the Council asking that the Isabella Street sewer, which has recently been constructed beyond the railroad on East Church Street be carried on out to the Home for the Aged for the purpose of drainage and sewer connection for the Home. The Mayor and Council said it was impossible to construct the sewer at this time on account of the lack of funds and Mr. Brownington then made the proposition that the city and the Board of Directors of the Home construct the sewer in conjunction. The Council agreed to have the street measured and the cost of laying the sewer ascertained and report to the Directors of the Home at once. It was shown that the necessity of sewer for that part of the city was urgent, and it is thought that the city and the Directors of the Home will get together at once and have the sewer constructed.

The matter of providing water mains for California was also taken up at the meeting. Mr. Brownington, as president of the Salisbury Water Company, represented the Company. The Council is very anxious to provide some adequate fire protection for that part of Salisbury and it was stated that some time in the near future Mr. Thomas H. Mitchell might drain his pond which is the old Parsons pond and utilize the land for building purposes, in which event that part of the city would be without fire protection.

Mr. Brownington suggested that the Council appoint a committee to ascertain how many fire plugs the city would adopt for that part of the town and if the city would be at all liberal in this matter he thought the Water Company would lay the mains at a very early date. Mr. Brownington now had under advisement the extension of the Mains out North Division Street, up Isabella Street from Poplar Hill Avenue to Railroad Avenue, up Smith Street and down E. Camden Street to the property of the Salisbury Realty Company.

Several applications for building permits were considered and the following were granted: To D. J. Elliott garage on Park Street; D. G. Farley bakery on E. Church Street; to Fletch West colored, dwelling on Main Street extended.

Handsome New Residence.

State's Attorney Joseph L. Bailey has given out the contract for a handsome new residence, work on which will commence at once. The plans were made by Messrs. Davis Brothers, of Baltimore, and call for one of the handsomest residences in this city.

The building will be of red pressed brick and will front on Camden Avenue sixty five feet. It will be a large colonial house with large halls and big roomy porches all around the house, supported by large columns. All the modern conveniences will be introduced and when completed it will be a splendid home. The building will be erected on the lot facing Camden Avenue near the city limits. This lot, of several acres, has a fine elevation on which the house will be erected. Contractor Thomas M. Slomons will have charge of the erection of the building and Mr. Lee Johnson will do the brick work.

Entertained by Messrs. Bennett and Gillis.

Wednesday of last week Messrs. Isaac S. Bennett and Willie Gillis, the two general assessors for the West side of the county entertained a number of friends at the Peninsula Hotel including the Board of Control and Review, Senator Price, Treasurer Perry, Mr. Jas. T. Travis, Jno. D. Williams and several other business men and citizens of the county, at dinner. The occasion was the completion of the assessment and the closing of the work of the Board of Control and Review, with the exception of a few days more work putting the items on the books and hearing one more delegation.

President Cooper made a few remarks at the conclusion of the dinner in which he complimented the assessors and all the people who had a hand in making the assessment on the faithful manner in which they had performed their duties and said he believed when the work was completed it would be found that all had been treated fairly and the county much benefited.

COMMISSIONER GEORGE

Here—Spends Sunday And Monday Seeing The Town And Hearing The Horks

State Automobile Commissioner John E. George made a sudden and unexpected appearance in Salisbury Sunday and Monday of this week. He was down looking after the new Automobile Law. A number of our local automobile owners were found to be technically without the law. In practically every case this was due to lack of information on the part of the owner or owners of the machine. The cases were for the lack of being properly licensed or because the license number was not properly displayed. While the law may be important points from the standpoint of the Commissioner, they do not touch side or bottom with the local importance of excessive speeding.

With the minute and careful observation given to motor vehicles by the Commissioner while here, it is strange indeed that charges were not brought against some for reckless driving. It is a strange coincidence that the eagle eye, so quick to catch an inverted or missing sign, should fail to run across any one driving too fast.

The Automobile Law in regard to license and sign display should and must be enforced of course, nor do we believe that Salisbury had one in her midst that would not have been glad to comply with the law in this particular had they fully understood the provisions, but for the sake of public safety the law regulating the speed of these machines is of even more importance here, where every machine is shown whether it bears a tag or not. The fact that no one has been killed or seriously injured long ago can not be put down to the credit of our automobile drivers altogether, but to Providence alone. Entores, gentlemen, all the Automobile Laws and enforce them upon all alike.

DROUGHT GETTING SERIOUS

Rain Badly Needed In This Section—Heavy Drainage Otherwise.

Rain is needed and needed badly throughout this State, Virginia, and West Virginia and Delaware, and to a less extent in the border counties of Pennsylvania. In a considerable portion of this territory, if there is liberal precipitation in the next few days, certain crops now in soil will be saved. In many sections, however the damage has already been done. In all the States named the hay crop has been the great sufferer. The most damage has been done in the tide-water districts, where the soil is light and sandy and does not hold moisture. Estimates of damage are difficult to obtain, but the conditions may be judged by the fact that Dorchester county already sees a loss of $100,000 and Carroll farmers will not be surprised if the damage exceeds $100,000. In Wicomico it is hard to estimate, but will be very heavy unless there is a quick relief.

Unless it comes within a week crops will be seriously affected. Streams are lower than ever at this season of the year. Wells are low and springs are only furnishing a limited supply. Cows has just been plucked and it is slow in making an appearance on account of the dry condition of the soil and what has started to grow is turning yellow in some sections. The pea crop is suffering and unless rain comes at once the vines will be short.

FAVORABLE REPORT

Of The Wicomico Building & Loan Association At Annual Meeting.

The statement presented by Auditors Price and Disharoon showed that the association has loaned on mortgages the sum of $173,150.17 and on temporary loans $8,100.00. A gratifying part of the report to the stockholders was the real estate item which showed that the association has only $400.00 in real estate. The common stock of the Association is $108,900.70 and the preferred stock $26,400.00.

After the reading of the Auditor's and Secretary's reports dividend checks were handed out to stockholders present. They followed the election of a board of directors for the ensuing year. The old board was re-elected by a unanimous vote as follows: Thomas Perry, J. Cleveland White, Charles R. Disharoon, Jesse D. Price, A. A. Gillis, H. B. Freese, and W. M. Cooper. This closed the stockholders meeting and the meeting adjourned.

The newly elected officers organized at once by re-electing the old officers; Presidents, Thos. Perry; Secretary, W. M. Cooper; Treasurer, J. Cleveland White; Auditors, Chas. R. Disharoon and J. D. Price, Examiners, A. A. Gillis and H. B. Freese.

Mr. Jay Williams was re-elected counsel to the board.

Miss Mary Hearn was re-elected Assistant Secretary of the Association.

BROWN IS CANDIDATE STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

For Governor—Says Name Surely Will Be On Ticket—Harmolize Party Differences.

Former Governor Frank Brown announced Thursday that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Maryland. His campaign will be made as a harmonizer of the differences that exist between Baltimore city and the counties of Maryland, which are not, he says, real differences at all, and on a pledge to use every effort for the advancement of the State.

"You can say that I will be a candidate," declared the former Governor. "My name will be on the ballot to be voted in the primary election. I have often said that I would be glad to serve the people for another term as Governor of Maryland if a majority of the Democrats desired me as the candidate of that party. I had lost sight of the primary election law which gives every Democratic voter an opportunity to say whom he does want."

Friends Would Know.
With such a law a man must present himself as a candidate, so that the people may have an opportunity to say whether they do or do not want him. I shall therefore, have my name placed on the ballot.

"Men interested in politics and personal friends are continually inquiring what I intend to do. It is necessary that they should know, for in case I do not enter the fight they would desire an opportunity to look about for some other candidate. It is only fair to them that I should state my intention."

"This is final, Governor," he was asked. "My mind is fully made up," he replied. "And your health," was the next question put to him. "It is good," he replied. There is nothing the matter with me. I did have a very bad attack, but I am now as well as I have ever been."

Differences Not Real.
"On what issue will you make the fight," he was asked. "Having once been Governor," he said, "I know the business of the State, and having been connected with the administration of the city for four years, I understand its affairs. Much is said of the difference between the counties of Maryland and Baltimore city. These differences are not real. They can be harmonized. I can point the way and help in the work. I can aid the city, too, without hurting the counties. In fact, their interests are identical. What helps one is sure to help the other."

"Road building has been undertaken by the State. That is already a big project and it promises to be a still bigger one if the new loan that is now referred to is to be authorized by the Legislature. I am a business man. The State needs a man accustomed to handling matters of business to take that work in hand and push it forward to a successful conclusion. I feel that I can handle it in the way it ought to be handled."

"Baltimore has not had a Governor to serve out the full term since Swann's time. Governor Whyte left the State House to go to the Federal Senate and Robert M. McLane was appointed Minister to England after he had served only two years of his term. The Eastern Shore has had never as many Governors and the counties on the Western Shore have had their share. This is Baltimore city's turn."

Frank Brown was elected Governor of Maryland in 1891, serving for four years, from January, 1893, until January, 1896, when he was succeeded by Lloyd Lowndes. Mr. Brown was then a resident of Carroll County in Western Maryland. Since the expiration of his gubernatorial term he has lived in Baltimore and taken an active interest in the politics of the city, backing the movement that was followed by the nomination and election of Thomas G. Hayes as Mayor of Baltimore City and having complete charge of the campaign for the nomination and election of Mayor Mahool, who named him Tax Collector, a position he now holds.

Resolutions of Respect.

Resolved by the Vestry of Salisbury Parish, that we have heard with deep regret of the sudden death in Philadelphia of the Honorable Charles F. Holland, for many years a member of the Vestry.

Resolved, That in the death of Judge Holland, the State has sustained the loss of an invaluable citizen, the legal profession a learned and conscientious member, the church a faithful son, and the Vestry of this parish a zealous and faithful brother, who by a uniformly courteous and friendly bearing has endeared himself to us, and in our bereavement deeply feel our irreparable loss.

Resolved, That the records of these proceedings be entered upon the minutes of the parish, that they be published in the town papers, and a copy sent to the family of the deceased.

Five-Passenger Touring Car

The demand for a car neither too large nor too small, and of medium weight, is responsible for the Abbott-Detroit Five-Passenger Touring. The motor is of ample power to make touring a pleasure, is safe and reliable, at the same time light enough to insure a longer life to tires, a low cost of fuel and maintenance. The material, careful workmanship and attention to details, commend the Abbott-Detroit to those who desire a car which in all respects fulfills the requirements of a serviceable, smoothly-running, mechanically-perfect model. The Abbott-Detroit Touring Car has a seating capacity of five adults—two in front, three in the tonneau—with or without fore-door.

The Buyer who knows the Difference in Automobiles will own a

Our first object in advertising the Cadillac Thirty is to teach the buyer the real essentials of an automobile and to help them become competent to judge the merits of a car. If buyers knew the vast difference in automobiles, we would have three purchasers for every Cadillac we could secure.

Cadillac is Manufactured
There is abundant evidence to prove that no car at $2,500 or under will compare favorably with the Cadillac Thirty. In the first place a dependable, lasting automobile must be a manufactured car. It is foolhardy to claim that a machine assembled from parts secured here and there will give the same quality of service as a car the parts of which are made under one roof, with a thorough knowledge of the relation of each part to every other. The high standard of accuracy required in an automobile cannot be attained in an assembled car. Neither can the parts be made standard, so that the owner can rely on repair parts fitting properly. The buyer who knows automobiles will demand a great deal of the factory behind the car he is considering. And he ought to. It's the best insurance he can secure against high upkeep and troubles.

Cadillac Design
Then the design of the Cadillac affords advantages which no other car offers. No motor will compare with the cooling qualities of the Cadillac, yet less water is used than in any other car of equal power. What car of equal size will travel 17 to 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline? What other car will run 100 miles on a pint of oil? The Cadillac is doing this every day.

Cadillac Dependability
If you were an expert mechanic and had plenty of time to devote to your car, you could get good service from most any well-known machine. But only a few are expert mechanics. When you buy a car you want steady, uninterrupted service. You will get this in a Cadillac, whether you are mechanically inclined or not. And you will get it at lower upkeep expense than with any other car. Truly, the buyer who knows the difference in automobiles will own a Cadillac Thirty.

It Makes No Difference

what Ready-Mixed Paint you buy, or at what price; you pay for the Linseed Oil it contains at paint price, and have to guess whether it is Pure or Adulterated. When you use

DAVIS' 2-4-1

The condition changes, since 2-4-1 is all paint and is made to stand the addition of one gallon or more of Pure Linseed Oil—which YOU BUY YOURSELF at all prices—the result is two gallons Pure Linseed Oil Paint—and in addition, a saving to you of about $1.00 on the transaction.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crusted in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with 12, 18, 24, 30, 36, 42, 48, 54, 60, 66, 72, 78, 84, 90, 96, 102, 108, 114, 120, 126, 132, 138, 144, 150, 156, 162, 168, 174, 180, 186, 192, 198, 204, 210, 216, 222, 228, 234, 240, 246, 252, 258, 264, 270, 276, 282, 288, 294, 300, 306, 312, 318, 324, 330, 336, 342, 348, 354, 360, 366, 372, 378, 384, 390, 396, 402, 408, 414, 420, 426, 432, 438, 444, 450, 456, 462, 468, 474, 480, 486, 492, 498, 504, 510, 516, 522, 528, 534, 540, 546, 552, 558, 564, 570, 576, 582, 588, 594, 600, 606, 612, 618, 624, 630, 636, 642, 648, 654, 660, 666, 672, 678, 684, 690, 696, 702, 708, 714, 720, 726, 732, 738, 744, 750, 756, 762, 768, 774, 780, 786, 792, 798, 804, 810, 816, 822, 828, 834, 840, 846, 852, 858, 864, 870, 876, 882, 888, 894, 900, 906, 912, 918, 924, 930, 936, 942, 948, 954, 960, 966, 972, 978, 984, 990, 996, 1002, 1008, 1014, 1020, 1026, 1032, 1038, 1044, 1050, 1056, 1062, 1068, 1074, 1080, 1086, 1092, 1098, 1104, 1110, 1116, 1122, 1128, 1134, 1140, 1146, 1152, 1158, 1164, 1170, 1176, 1182, 1188, 1194, 1200, 1206, 1212, 1218, 1224, 1230, 1236, 1242, 1248, 1254, 1260, 1266, 1272, 1278, 1284, 1290, 1296, 1302, 1308, 1314, 1320, 1326, 1332, 1338, 1344, 1350, 1356, 1362, 1368, 1374, 1380, 1386, 1392, 1398, 1404, 1410, 1416, 1422, 1428, 1434, 1440, 1446, 1452, 1458, 1464, 1470, 1476, 1482, 1488, 1494, 1500, 1506, 1512, 1518, 1524, 1530, 1536, 1542, 1548, 1554, 1560, 1566, 1572, 1578, 1584, 1590, 1596, 1602, 1608, 1614, 1620, 1626, 1632, 1638, 1644, 1650, 1656, 1662, 1668, 1674, 1680, 1686, 1692, 1698, 1704, 1710, 1716, 1722, 1728, 1734, 1740, 1746, 1752, 1758, 1764, 1770, 1776, 1782, 1788, 1794, 1800, 1806, 1812, 1818, 1824, 1830, 1836, 1842, 1848, 1854, 1860, 1866, 1872, 1878, 1884, 1890, 1896, 1902, 1908, 1914, 1920, 1926, 1932, 1938, 1944, 1950, 1956, 1962, 1968, 1974, 1980, 1986, 1992, 1998, 2004, 2010, 2016, 2022, 2028, 2034, 2040, 2046, 2052, 2058, 2064, 2070, 2076, 2082, 2088, 2094, 2100, 2106, 2112, 2118, 2124, 2130, 2136, 2142, 2148, 2154, 2160, 2166, 2172, 2178, 2184, 2190, 2196, 2202, 2208, 2214, 2220, 2226, 2232, 2238, 2244, 2250, 2256, 2262, 2268, 2274, 2280, 2286, 2292, 2298, 2304, 2310, 2316, 2322, 2328, 2334, 2340, 2346, 2352, 2358, 2364, 2370, 2376, 2382, 2388, 2394, 2400, 2406, 2412, 2418, 2424, 2430, 2436, 2442, 2448, 2454, 2460, 2466, 2472, 2478, 2484, 2490, 2496, 2502, 2508, 2514, 2520, 2526, 2532, 2538, 2544, 2550, 2556, 2562, 2568, 2574, 2580, 2586, 2592, 2598, 2604, 2610, 2616, 2622, 2628, 2634, 2640, 2646, 2652, 2658, 2664, 2670, 2676, 2682, 2688, 2694, 2700, 2706, 2712, 2718, 2724, 2730, 2736, 2742, 2748, 2754, 2760, 2766, 2772, 2778, 2784, 2790, 2796, 2802, 2808, 2814, 2820, 2826, 2832, 2838, 2844, 2850, 2856, 2862, 2868, 2874, 2880, 2886, 2892, 2898, 2904, 2910, 2916, 2922, 2928, 2934, 2940, 2946, 2952, 2958, 2964, 2970, 2976, 2982, 2988, 2994, 3000.

LOVE OF MANKIND.

The true sage is not he who sees, but he who sees farthest, has the deepest love for mankind. He who sees without loving is only showing his eyes in the dark.—Maurice Maeterlinck.

As one lamp lights another nor grows less.
So nobleness enkindleth nobleness.

—Lowell.

Is thy cruse of comfort failing? Scanty fare for one will often make a royal feast for two.—Eliza Charles.

In common things the law of sacrifice takes the form of positive duty.—Froude.

He works with God who works for men.—Heber Newton.

LIFE'S PURPOSE.

No one is useless in this world who lightens the burden of another.—Charles Dickens.

What makes life dreary is want of motive.—George Elliot.

Generations are as the days of toilsome mankind; death and birth are the resper and the matin bells that summon mankind to sleep and to rise refreshed for our new advancement.—Carlyle.

HOW TO LIVE.

It is better to follow even the shadow of the best than to remain content with the worst.—Van Dyke.

Our grand business in life is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand.—Carlyle.

They enslave their children's children who make compromise with sin.—Lowell.

There are two freedoms—the false, where a man is free to do what he likes; the true, where a man is free to do what he ought.—Charles Kingsley.

NO DEATH.

I believe there is no death. I believe that man has a continuous existence and takes on new organism that is no more understood than a caterpillar can understand the construction of a butterfly. What I believe in one single sentence is that man never dies. Death is a launching. Death calls us and says: "Come, come, you are tired; come, you are tired, and sleep." I often look forward to the time when that voice will tell me that I may call over the unknown sea.—Lyman Abbott.

MISFORTUNE.

I never knew any man in my life who could not bear another's misfortunes perfectly like a Christian.—Alexander Pope.

COMMON PEOPLE.

Although some do not agree with me, the common people are very useful to this country and should be treated with more consideration now than ever. The time is coming when the common people will become a great factor in this country, and if the country does not give them more recognition they will make the country give it to them.—William G. McAdoo.

DOING ONE'S DUTY.

What a man does for others, not what they do for him, gives him immortality.—Daniel Webster.

Virtue herself rewards the toils of Virtue.—Socrates.

Our grand business in life is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies already at hand.—Carlyle.

My duty is what no one else can do for me.
Another may do my task better than I, but not my duty.

Short Crop of Cow Peas Prices Are Going Up!

The enormous demand for Cow Peas last year carried the price very high, and as the crop is very short and the acreage is rapidly extending, there are many indications which point to much higher prices as the sowing season approaches.

Whip-poor-will Cow Peas. The Whip-poor-will prior will be generally preferred in the Central and Southern States. They are bush form, early maturing and especially desirable for Peas.

New Era Cow Peas. New Era are a little earlier and make more vine than the Whip-poor-will.

Wonderfuls, Clays and Mixed Cow Peas. For Hay, the Wonderfuls or the Clays are more productive. They should be planted with an occasional grain of Dora, Sorghum Seed, Kamir or Sorghum, which will prevent the vines from getting damaged by coming in contact with the ground.

Black Cow Peas. Black Cow Peas are a little earlier in maturing than Clays; they make a good growth of vine, are exceptionally good for medium or poor land and will stand almost any amount of wet weather without injury.

REMEMBER—Bolignano's Cow Peas are unquestionably the best. If your Local Merchant will not supply Bolignano's Cow Peas, write us direct and we will tell you where you can get them.

HUMAN IMMORTALITY DIVINE IMMORTALITY

The Difference Between These In the Bible.

The One Only a Provisional Gift, the Other an Inherent Quality.

Lynchburg, Virginia, May 14.—Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, N. Y., preached twice here today to a receptive audience. We report one of the discourses, which was preached from the words of the Apostle, "Christ brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel."

The speaker said:—

All around us we see that the Scriptures designate a reign of sin and death. The various forms of life in nature—the grass, the flowers, the lower animals and man—exist for a brief summer time of life, then wither and die. This does not strike us as strange, except in conjunction with humanity, and that because of man's greater intelligence—his appreciation of the value of life, his growth in knowledge and his ability to use life's opportunities with his increased wisdom.

The disposition to shun death is not peculiar to man; it is the law of nature. The smallest creature, by instinct, flees from death. The law of self-preservation is properly said to be the first law of nature. The lower animals, like man, have sensation, an appreciation of pain; but all these things are much more pronounced in human nature than in the lower animals; and the lower the form of life the more slight are these sensations. We are not defending vivisection, but we quite agree with scientists that the pain, the suffering of the lower animals, is as nothing in comparison with that of humanity. We even note the fact that the more refined a human being, the more intense his suffering. Correspondingly, refinement and intelligence bring fear of death and desire for life everlasting.

All mankind seem, instinctively, to hope for a future life. The majority of the hope is accompanied with dread respecting its conditions. However, only the Bible reveals a rational basis for faith respecting a future life—a survival of the general death conditions everywhere prevalent. The heathen hope for a future life, but none of them furnish a logical basis for such expectations. Only in the Bible can this be found.

The heathen hope is represented by their great philosophers, Socrates and Plato. Their hope is, in brief, that, in view of man's great superiority over the beast, it must be he will have a future, even though to all appearances death means the same to the human as to the brute. The Bible explains that man was indeed created in his Maker's image and likeness and granted the privilege of eternal life on condition of obedience, but that he disobeyed and therefore became subject to death; and that death, the penalty, effects him exactly as it does the brute creation. But the Bible does not leave the subject here. It tells of God's pity and love, and of His provision to rescue mankind from sin and from death.

God Meets Man's Emergency.

Since the Divine sentence is that only the perfect may live, Adam and his race, as imperfect sinners, could not have eternal life after a violation of the Divine Law; but to meet this emergency, Divine Love provided a Redeemer, who died, "the Just for the unjust"; "As by man came death, by a Man also comes the resurrection of the dead; for as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive; every man in his own order" (1 Cor. thians xv. 21-23).

Thus God has manifested His character in a way and to a degree which could never have been known to angels or to men had He not permitted sin to enter the world. His Justice has been manifested in the infliction of the death penalty upon our race for six thousand years. Divine Love has been manifested in the arrangement made by which the Only Begotten Son of God, on the heavenly plane, counted it joy to leave His glory and honor and to be made flesh and die for our sins. Before the Divine Plan shall be fully consummated, God's Wisdom and Power will also stand fully revealed through His dealing with sin and sinners.

Through the merit of Christ's death, Adam's transgression will be fully atoned, and the penalty of Adam's sin will be fully paid to justice; and Adam himself and all of his posterity, who have shared his penalty, will be set free from the sighing and crying, the pain and trouble, mental, moral and physical, incidental to the execution of the death sentence against sinners. Thus, through the death of Jesus, Divine provision has been made for a future eternal life for mankind—for so many as will appreciate the privilege and conform themselves to the Divine laws and avail themselves of the privileges which will be granted.

The World's Salvation Waits.

How natural it is for us to be impatient! The few years of our lives, measuring our knowledge and experience, leave us little appreciation of the span of Eternity, from the Divine standpoint. We are inclined to say, "If God designs to do anything for man's aid, why does he not do it immediately? We cry out, O Lord, haste! haste! Behold Adam's children, mentally, morally, physically, in a deplorable condition, unable to help themselves dependent upon Thy mercy, Thy salvation! Like sheep we are laid in the grave; like the brute beast we seem to perish; we have only a promise of a salvation from death through the Redeemer, and a resurrection from the condition of death. But God will not be hastened. He has a wise as well as a gracious purpose. He has a definite time for every feature of His great work. He has allowed four thousand years to pass before He even sent His Son to begin the work of redeeming mankind, by the payment of a ransom-price. He has allowed nearly two thousand years since to elapse without recovering mankind from sin and death conditions. It is for faith to trust; and yet it is but natural that we should inquire, why this delay? For what does God wait so long? The reply is twofold:—

(1) God leaves time for the birth of a sufficient number of Adam's children to people all the earth, purposing that the powers of procreation and the begetting of children shall not continue in the future as in the present. He declares to us that those who attain to that world to come "will neither marry nor be given in marriage," but in this respect will "be like unto the angels," who have no children, who do not propagate their kind.

(2) Incidentally, in connection with man's fall and recovery, God purposes a most wonderful manifestation of His Wisdom, Love and Power in the bringing into existence of a new race of beings, not only higher than human nature, but higher also than angelic nature. God purposes a New Creation whose members will be limited in number and all be made partakers of the divine nature—"far above angels, principalities and powers." This New Creation, the most wonderful exemplification of Divine power ever manifested or ever to be manifested, he has arranged shall be developed during this Gospel Age and in conjunction with the reign of sin and death. It is to be developed from amongst sinners, and is, in rank and time of development, to take precedence over the salvation of humanity from sin, sickness, sorrow and death, to perfection and Paradise, restored, world-wide.

The New Creation Divine.

We have already mentioned the glorious exaltation purposed of God for the New Creation. St. Peter tells us that these will attain the divine nature; and this attainment will be through, or by means of, the power of God working in the heart as the result of faith in "the exceeding great and precious promises" (1 Peter i. 4). These will not be coerced into obedience—they will be voluntary submission to the Divine will. The test upon them will be loyalty and faithfulness to God to the very limit—to the extreme of self-denial, and voluntary humiliation in the service of righteousness, following in the footsteps of Jesus.

Indeed, Jesus is the first and the Head of this New Creation. None could attain it except by and through His aid. He is the Captain of their salvation. He is their Fore-runner in this great "march" to which, with Him, they have been invited of God—the reward of which, to the faithful "overcomers," will be "glory, honor and immortality."

Seeking For Immortality.

The Apostle writes concerning the Church, the elect "little flock" of called, chosen and faithful ones. He tells us that by perseverance in well doing we are to attain glory, honor and immortality; and that this reward, to the faithful, will come in the First Resurrection, when mortality shall be clothed upon with immortality; when the new body, glorious and of the divine nature, will be granted to each of the faithful, as instead of the fleshly and imperfect bodies of the present trial time. In other words, our trial is not to demonstrate the perfection or imperfection of our flesh, for this is already known to God and to us, and to all. "In my nest I dwell, not perfect." The trial is to demonstrate the loyalty of the will and of the heart. It is faithfulness in concerning the will of the flesh and bringing into subjection to the will of God all the powers of the natural body, so far as possible. It is the test of its loyalty to principle, to righteousness, to God.

St. Paul, as one of these loyal ones, declared before his death, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give me at that day, and not to me only, but to all who also will have appeared." This includes all who are hungering and thirsting and striving for that righteousness which Messiah's Kingdom is to bring to the Church through the First Resurrection. Righteousness will eventually be brought to the world through the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom, which will put down all things contrary to the Divine will, and uplift every person and principle loyal to God.

The immortality for which the Apostle declares the Church is to seek is of a different kind entirely from that which the world may expect. It is a different kind even from that which the angels possess. It is the immortality which is a feature or quality of the divine nature. This immortality, the Scriptures assure us, was originally possessed by the Heavenly Father alone. We read, "The Father alone hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach. Whom no man hath seen nor can see." The Only Begotten of the Father, the Logos, when made flesh, revealed the Father to mankind (John i. 18). The faithfulness of the Logos as the Man Christ Jesus was rewarded by the Father with glory, honor and immortality—the divine nature.

And this great privilege has been given to an elect "little flock," the Bride class, to become associated with Jesus in the sufferings of this present time and in the glory to follow. The invitation to the Church is to follow the example of Jesus their Redeemer, to walk in His steps, to sacrifice earthly interests and with Him become partakers of the divine nature—glory, honor and immortality (1 Peter i. 4). Our Lord Jesus corroborates the same thought, saying, "As the Father hath inherent life (immortality in the highest sense of the word—deathlessness), so hath He given unto the Son that He should have inherent life, and that He might give it unto whomsoever He would—the Bride class, the overcomers, "more than conquerors."

Everlasting Life For Humanity.

As we have seen, the Almighty alone possessed inherent immortality until He gave it as a reward to His glorious Son. "The Beginning of the creation of God." By and by, in the First Resurrection, when the elect "overcomers" shall enter upon the same plane of immortality, the opportunity to become of this nature will be closed, so far as the Scriptures declare.

The immortality enjoyed by the angels, otherwise spoken of in the Scriptures as everlasting life, is not inherent immortality, but an eternal maintenance in life by the Creator, subject to the condition of obedience and righteousness.

In this same sense of the word Adam was immortal, but his immortality was dependent upon his obedience. When he disobeyed, Divine provision for his sustenance was withdrawn. He was expelled from Eden that the sentence of death might take effect, "dying thou shalt die." Similarly, Satan and others of the angels, because of disobedience, will be destroyed, hence their immortality was conditional, as was that of humanity.

The redemption to be accomplished by the Redeemer during His reign as Messiah is to "restitute all the things and obedient in human perfection" to the Divine favor, as these were enjoyed by Adam before his transgression. All the willfully wicked, all not desirous of returning to fellowship with God through the Redeemer, will be destroyed in the Second Death. The test will be so thorough, so crucial, that God declares that there shall be no more crying, no more dying; which implies that there will be no more sin—that the lessons connected with human and angelic transgression will be so thoroughly learned that those found worthy of eternal life will have their characters eternally fixed in respect to righteousness and sin, as God's character is fixed and unchangeable.

Life and Immortality.

The Scriptures, as we have already intimated, use the word immortality in a more restricted sense than is common in our general usage. They apply the word to the Father and to the Son, and to the Bride, the Lamb's Wife. The blessing of everlasting life provided for angels and for men found obedient to the Divine will, Scripturally called, immortality, but everlasting life.

Thus the Scriptures explain the twofold work of Christ: (1) The work for the world, in providing for all the willing and obedient of mankind, everlasting life; (2) the work for the Church, in making possible for the willing and obedient of the Bride class, glory, honor and immortality, the divine nature. The Scriptural expression is that "Christ brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel" (1 Timothy i. 10). Everlasting life was intimated in the remote past, but not specifically stated. The declaration that "the seed of the woman" should "bruise the serpent's head" implied a recovery from sin and death, a victory over the Adversary, a release of mankind from the death penalty. But it was not specific. The promise of God to Abraham, that in his Seed all the families of the earth should be blessed, contained an intimation of a Divine provision for the restoration of humanity from death and the present fallen condition, a restitution to eternal life conditions. But there was nothing specific in it. The Prophets also gave intimations of coming blessings through a great Messiah, but failed to say that eternal life would be the grand result.

The Glory to Come.

Not until the Savior appeared and made His consecration unto death, on behalf of the race, was it proper for even Him to give such assurances. But after His consecration, during the three and a half years of His ministry, He declared His mission to be the seeking and recovery of that which was lost, and the giving to His footstep followers of a share with Himself, not only in the sufferings of this present time, but in the glory to come. Now is the time in which, by holiness, faithfulness, loyalty to God and to the truth, and the laying down of life for the brethren, we may make our "calling and election sure" to the highest imaginable reward—glory, honor and immortality, the divine nature.

"O! for that glorious dawning we watch and wait and pray. Till o'er the height the morning light shall drive the gloom away; And when the herald of glory shall flood the earth and sky, We'll bless the Lord for all his works and praise him by and by."

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally sold by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. MARTIAN E. GREARSON, 61 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Anti-Saloon League in Fight

The Anti-Saloon League announces that it intends, if necessary, to take a stand in the campaign for Governor in a statement just issued the League says:

"It will do no good to elect a legislature which will pass the local option bill if we permit the liquor interests to elect a Governor who will veto it. The legislature can be changed in two years but if the liquor traffic gets the Governor it means four years delay.

"The League does not ask either party to declare against the saloons, but earnestly appeals to the leaders of both parties to co-operate with it in preventing a bitter and wholly unnecessary fight on the local option question this fall by nominating men who will declare in favor of handing the liquor question back to the people for decision.

"The League has no candidate in either party and is not trying to dictate either nomination, and if the Democratic party nominates a good man who is satisfactory on this question the League will not oppose him. But of those candidates already mentioned it will especially oppose Col. Buchanan Schley, because in the recent Washington County campaign he stood for the saloons when the question was voted upon, and by standing for the repeal of the Washington County law took away from the people of his home county the right to vote at all. It will also oppose Gen. Murray Vandiver, the Democratic State Chairman, who for two seasons has used his personal and official influence to defeat the local option bill.

"The League has spent four years and $75,000 building an organization in preparation for this year's fight, and the contest will become increasingly bitter until the local option bill is passed."

SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS

Proceedings At The Meeting Of The Board Held On Friday, May 5th.

At a meeting of the School Board held Friday, the secretary presented a statement showing that the colored people of this county spring the sum of $550.18 for the purpose of expanding the term of the colored schools from March 17, the date set for their closing, to April 28, a period of six weeks. This money was sufficient to pay all the school expenses. It is greatly to the credit of the colored people that they have evidenced such an interest in educational matters by contributing their money for the support of the schools. Many who do not pay taxes are thus enabled to give something to help support the schools. We understand that the colored people will continue to collect funds for this purpose throughout the year in every section of the county, and expect to raise a larger amount next year. The amounts raised in the various sections this spring were:

Mardela.....	$30.00
Quantico.....	87.50
Wetloquin.....	80.00
Tyaskin.....	9.85
Head of Creek.....	19.00

Under Chapter 886 of the Acts of 1910, the School Board is required to prepare and submit to the County Commissioners, thirty days before the time for striking the levy an estimate of the cost of running the various High Schools of the County for the coming scholastic year. This statement must present the expense of each High School separately, and not bunch them together. This statement was presented at Friday's meeting as follows: Wicomico High School—total cost, $6,500; State appropriation, $2,300; Deficit, $4,200. Delmar High School—total cost, $1,640; State appropriation, $500; Deficit, $1,140. Sharptown High School—total cost, $2,400; State appropriation, $1,400; Deficit, $1,000. Total cost of conducting these three schools is therefore $10,500, of which the special state appropriations aggregate $4,200, leaving a deficit of $6,300 to be provided by the county for these three schools alone.

The Board occupied a considerable portion of the day Friday in the appointment of district school trustees. Several changes were made by reason of deaths, resignations and renewals. Secretary Holloway will send out lists of the appointments urging the various boards to meet at once and organize by electing a chairman and a secretary.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Sent for list of testimonials.

Testimonial from H. Fillmore Lanford, Attorney-at-Law: "I have a Wrenn Buggy which has been in use twenty years, and it is a good one today. I had the tires cut after using nineteen years."

Wrenn's make of Buggy is a guarantee that you get your money's worth. Why pay $20 more for an imitation when you can buy a Wrenn from $65 up?

Wagons, I have them—not the common ones, but the cheap ones. Cost $10 more, last twice as long.

Mr. Bounds came in last week and said: "Mr. Taylor, I want a Runabout. I bought a Wrenn Buggy for you ten years ago, and I am still using it." He bought another Wrenn. Best by test, cheapest on earth for the money.

THE KING'S GRANT

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

Henry VII., victor in the wars of the roses, having been crowned king of England, was about to march from Bosworth field to London to assume the government of the kingdom. He called to him young Wilfred Boyington, who had fought bravely during the battle, and said to him:

"There is an estate some twenty leagues from here that belonged to one of the staunch adherents of our enemy and is therefore forfeit. Its owner, Sir Charles Beauchamp, lies dead yonder among the slain."

Then, directing the young man to kneel, the king laid his sword on his shoulder and said:

"Rise, Sir Wilfred, and take possession of this forfeited estate."

"Now?" asked the young man, astounded.

"Now if you like, but do not all to join us before we march."

"And that is—"

"Tomorrow at cockcrow."

Furnished with a parchment signed and sealed by the king, Sir Wilfred rode to the Beauchamp estate. The recent owner's widow was overcome by grief at her husband's death, of which she had just heard, that she could not see him. She therefore sent her daughter Ethelreda, a girl of nineteen and fair to look upon. Sir Wilfred showed her the king's grant. Beyond a shiver there was no indication of her feelings.

"The king's will is indisputable," she said calmly. "The estate is yours. The young man was about to withdraw when the girl said to him:

"May I please you to inspect your estate?"

Sir Wilfred had no especial desire to see his new domain at that time, but to be shown about by this girl, whose presence affected him with a desire to know her better, was another matter.

"I must join the king at dawn tomorrow," he said. "Meanwhile I would be pleased if you will show me as much of the estate as there is time to see."

The lady retired and presently appeared in the courtyard, where she mounted a horse that stood ready for her, and the two, followed by attendants, rode away to inspect the estate.

"The estate is very large," said Sir Wilfred after they had ridden miles in one direction.

"It is," she replied. "You possess a noble domain. It belonged to a Saxon baron and was given by the Conqueror to one of his adherents. I have always felt that an injustice was done which some day we would be called upon to expiate."

FOR CRACKED FINGER TIPS.

Astringents That Dry and Heal the Open Sores Must Be Applied.

Cracked finger tips, that most painful affliction due to cold weather, must be both treated and protected to effect a cure.

As a part of treatment preparations of camphor are efficacious. Old fashioned camphor ice is soothing and at the same time beneficial because of its astringency.

A similar cream can be made from two ounces of expressed oil of almonds, one-half dram each of white wax and spermaceti, one and three-quarter drams of spirits of camphor, four and one-half grains of oil of rosemary, two and one-half grains of oil of peppermint and two ounces of rose-water. This is mixed in a china or glass cup set into boiling water after the manner of preparing any cold cream.

More astringent and therefore more efficacious in severe cases is a mixture of three ounces of glyceric acid, five drams of tannic acid and two ounces of rose-water. This preparation may be used on the cracks with bandages. When such method of application is impossible the lotion should be dropped into the sore and then the spot painted with collodion.

It is a question whether collodion has any healing properties for cracked skin, but it is such a valuable protection that many persons believe it to be a remedy. It acts by giving thorough protection, and as it is slightly drying the raw edges of flesh more quickly draw together. It can and should be used freely.

A person who is obliged to have hands much in water must wear rubber gloves at such times if there are chronic cracks in the flesh.

As far as any effort can accomplish it, the skin must be kept dry and in condition to heal. When the sores are so deep they bleed, after taking off gloves collodion should be used, for it will prevent such an opening of the flesh.

Instead of cleansing the fingers with water, grease of any kind must be employed, and carbolic vaseline is excellent for this purpose, as it is healing as well as a dust gatherer.

SPOOL HOLDERS.

A Simple Device That Will Prevent the Thread Unwinding and Becoming Tangled.

Did you ever go hastily to your sewing basket and find all the thread unwound and tangled? If you ever did you will appreciate the very simple holder for spools of cotton and silk described here. In size and scope it may be varied as you please, but the sample described is just about what the average housewife needs.

The foundation is a board 12 by 8 inches and a half inch thick. Into this drive two rows of six long nails, each long enough, that is, for their points to project through to the other side the length (almost) of a spool.

On the board mark in plain letters above the top row "20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70." In the top row put your black thread of the corresponding number. In your bottom row your white.

If you wish to add a row of colored silks, mark them also, the proper color under each.

So that the spools shall not fall off the nails drop a bit of hot sealing wax at the top of each nail. This will prevent huffing the hand on the sharp nails also. When the spool is exhausted it is easy enough to knock off the sealing wax and apply new.

Put screw eyes at the back of the board and hang it up by your work table or sewing machine. You will find it one of the most useful articles in the room.

About Glassware.

When you wash your pretty glass pieces next time try adding a few drops of bluing to the soapuds. Then wash your pieces in the ordinary manner.

You will like the way they will sparkle and how clear the glassware will look from this simple yet most effective treatment.

Sleeping out of doors, especially by consumptives, has become quite a fad of late years—a wholesome fad. Remember that fresh air is good not only for consumption, but for other ailments; also for people that are well.

Moderation in physical exercise is essential, and the seeker after health through calisthenics will do well to avoid these extremes—on the one hand excessively heavy work, which causes the athlete to become muscle bound, and on the other aimless nippy puny exercises.

Employers should insist on thorough ventilation of their work places if only for a selfish reason, because their employees cannot possibly develop their full efficiency when they are starved for lack of oxygen. This, again, naturally leads to a craving for stimulants—tea, coffee, alcohol or something of that kind.

CHAPTER XII.
A WELLSPRING IN THE DESERT.

IN the telephone station at the hotel Blount tried several times, and always ineffectually, to get a long distance connection with Wartrace Hall. Failing in this, he called up Gantry to ask if the traffic manager knew anything about the purpose and movements of his father. Gantry did not know, but he knew something else—a thing which proved the lackness of the telegraph department.

"Come down here and tell me what you mean by sending incendiary telegrams to the vice president," he commanded, with jesting severity, over the phone.

Gantry was busy with the stenographer when Evan entered, but the traffic manager immediately postponed the business of the moment and dismissed the clerk.

"There is nothing to tell—more than you seem already to know," said Blount morosely in answer to Gantry's quest. "I have wired my resignation; that is all."

"But why?" persisted Gantry.

"Because I am not going to be an accessory either before or after the fact—not if I know it," was the prompt rejoinder.

"An accessory to what?"

"To a criminal disregard for the laws of this state and of the nation. Gantry, if you and some others had your just deserts you would be breaking stone in the penitentiary this blessed minute."

"Suffering jehu," laughed the traffic manager, "somebody must have been hitting you pretty hard! Who was it, Evan?"

At another time Blount might have been less angry and more discreet.

"It was Mr. Simon P. Hathaway, president of the Twin Buttes Lumber company," he said.

Gantry drew a long breath, which ended in a low whistle.

"So that's what you were let in for, was it?" he exclaimed. And then he checked himself abruptly and went back to the principal contention: "But you're not going to quit, Evan. You can't afford to do that."

"Why can't I?"

"Because you have committed yourself right and left. No man can walk out of the ranks on the eve of a battle. You don't stop to consider the construction that will be put upon such hasty action on your part."

"I don't stop to consider anything, Dick, except the fact that I was evidently expected to connive at a criminal contempt for the law of the land, the law which as a member of the bar, I have sworn to uphold. That was enough for me."

"But it won't be enough for Mr. McVickar," Gantry interposed. "If you can afford to drop out he can't afford to let you." Then, with sudden gravity, "Hadn't you better let me hold up that telegram of yours for a few hours, Evan, until you've had time to think it over?"

Blount sprang from his chair in a white heat.

"Do you mean to tell me that you are already holding it up?" he demanded.

"I took the liberty temporarily," said the traffic man coolly. "There is no harm done. Mr. McVickar is on his way west now, and he will be here in a day or two. Why not kill the message and have it out with him in person when he comes?"

"But Blount was not to be appeased. "You have given an order to have that telegram held out you can give another to have it sent immediately."

"All right," said Gantry, "just as you say." And he made no effort to detain the enraged one when Blount turned his back and strode away. But after the self discharged political manager was gone the traffic man chuckled quietly and turned up a faced down paper which had been lying on his desk during the short and belligerent interview.

"Humph!" he mused, reading the typewritten lines over again. "The little lady was too fly for you this time, Evan, my boy. She was just prophetic enough to guess where and how you would go off the handle. Great little woman that. I believe she figures out more than half of the fine moves in the honorable senator's game."

Blount walked a half dozen blocks beyond the Inter-Mountain hotel before he had cooled down sufficiently to determine what to do next. As it chanced, the cooling down moment found him at the entrance of the public garage patronized by his father. Acting upon the impulse of the moment, he went in and asked if any of Senator Blount's cars were in the city. The garage manager replied that the big roadster was in, and Blount's decision was taken upon the spur of the moment.

A few minutes later he was behind the steering wheel of the fast machine, picking his way out of town.

Blount reached the entrance to the cottonwood shaded avenue at Wartrace just before the dinner hour, and he was so far recovered from the attack of righteous indignation that he was able to meet his father and the others with a fair degree of equanimity.

In the back part of his mind, however, he held the lightning ultimatum in suspense.

At the dinner table he

"I WON'T HAVE MY COMMUNICATIONS TAMPERED WITH."

held forth dictionarily upon matters pertaining solely to the pilocaine age and never once suffered the table conversation to come within several millions of years of the twentieth century, and at the dispersal—only there was no dispersal—it was his father who led the way to the drawing room and persuaded Patricia to go to the piano.

The young man with the lightning determination in the back part of his brain was willing enough to listen to Greg and Brahm as interpreted by Patricia, but the greater matter was still outweighing the lesser. Later, when Miss Anders had played herself out, the talk went back to the disbursements and the perodactyls, and when Evan Blount finally went away to smoke he did it alone.

The Wartrace den was an annex to the dining room, and through the looped back portieres he could hear the animated hum of the prehistoric conversation, in which Patricia had now joined as a loyal daughter should. Hoping against hope that the professor would some time go to bed and that his father would come to the den for his bedtime whiff, at the long stemmed pipe, Blount smoked and waited. When his patience was finally rewarded it was not the honorable senator who drew the portieres aside and entered the cozy smoking room. It was Patricia, and she was alone.

"I thought perhaps I should find you here," she said calmly, taking the easy chair at the opposite corner of the hearth. "Did we bore you to extinction?"

"Not quite," he laughed. "But since I hadn't got myself born 6,000,000 years ago I can't somehow seem to galvanize a very active interest in the dead and buried periods."

"Nor I," she confessed frankly, "though for papa's sake I do try to. But for us who are living today there are so many problems of really vital importance, problems that the pterodactyls never knew anything about."

"I know," said the young man, half absently. "I am up against one of them right now, and I don't know how to meet it."

"Will it bear telling?" she asked. And he hoped that the sympathy in her tone was personal rather than conventional.

"It will not only bear telling; it demands to be told to some one whose senses are right and whose heart has not been drawn and quartered and flayed alive until it has no longer life or breath left with which to protest."

Thereupon he told her all that had happened to him since the evening he had left the sleeping car at Arctas, concluding almost shamefacedly with the story of the lumber magnate's attempt at corruption, of which he suppressed nothing but the fact that the professor's name appeared in Mr. Hathaway's list of shareholders.

When he made an end her eyes were shining, either at quickened sympathy or indignation—he could not determine which.

"What did you do?" she asked, referring to the incident of the afternoon.

"I didn't do half enough," he fumed. "I am afraid I let Hathaway get away without my telling him plainly enough what a hopelessly irreclaimable scoundrel he is. I made a mistake in not throwing him out bodily."

"You made your greatest mistake in the very beginning, Evan," she said decisively. "You should have made a confidant of your father."

"I did try to at first," he protested. "But the game is everything, and everybody plays it—my father, his wife, the railroad officials and the politicians. Surely you wouldn't say that I should have let my father put me on the state ticket as a candidate?"

"Certainly not," was the quick reply, "not unless you were convinced of the purity of his motive. But if you have been telling me the truth and all the truth it would seem that you didn't stop to inquire what that motive might be."

"What was the use of inquiring? He is the boss of the machine. He would have used the machine to put me into office as attorney general. In other words, I should have owed my election not to the will of the people, but the will of one man, and that man my nearest kinsman. Under such circumstances would it have been possible for me to administer the office without fear for favor?"

"I don't know why not," she returned. "Your 'nearest kinsman,' as you call him, would have been the last man to interfere. Wasn't that the very reason he gave for wanting to put you on the ticket?"

"I know," said Blount, whose mind was beginning to cloud again. "But there are so many other mysteries, I am not sure at this blessed moment that my father hasn't conspired with Mr. McVickar to put me just where I am."

Her smile was gently reproachful.

"It is my poor opinion, Evan, that you don't half appreciate your father," she said. "Worse than that, you don't know him. But that is beside the present mark at all events. What are you going to do?"

"I have already done it. I have wired my resignation to Mr. McVickar, and he will doubtless accept it."

She was looking him fairly in the eyes. "That is the second unwise thing you have done, Evan, you are sadly in need of a balance wheel."

"I know that a good while ago," he rejoiced. "I applied for one, and it was refused when you said 'No.'"

She blushed very prettily. "I can help you now," she said, half hesitatingly, "if only you won't try to drag me over into the field of sentiment. It was just a bit of boyish rage—your sending that telegram to Mr. McVickar. Can't you recall it?"

"Not now; no."

"Then you must do the next best thing—tell him you have reconsidered."

"But I can't strike hands with the corruption that is going on all around me," he objected indignantly.

"Of course you can't, and you mustn't. But the true reformer is not made out of the man who drops things and runs away. You must stay in and fight—fight harder than you ever have before, Evan; if not for the sake of the larger right, then for your own sake. Can't you see the wide door that is open before you?"

"I can see and hear and feel when the door is slammed in my face," he qualified only have you beside me to guide me only have you beside me to give me my battle word I shouldn't mind the odds against me."

"Now you are tempting me," she said slowly, "and it isn't fair. You know my weakness and passion to help. You mustn't tempt me, Evan."

"What he would have said, with what passionate pleadings he would have pressed the advantage gained by his appeal for the larger help, she was not to know, for at that moment the portieres were drawn aside, and the small house mistress appeared in the doorway of the smoking den.

"You two!" she scolded, with light hearted austerity, and then to Evan: "Don't you know that we keep country hours here at Wartrace? The professor will be up and calling for the car at 6 o'clock, and it's past midnight. Shame on you! Run away and get your beauty sleep; both of you!"

SUFFERING.

To love all mankind from the greatest to the lowest (or meanest) a cheerful state of being is required, but in order to see into mankind, into life, and, still more, into ourselves, suffering is requisite.—Richter.

CUPID'S LOSSES.

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd At cards for kisses; Cupid paid. The stakes his quiver, bow and arrows, his mother's doves and team of sparrows; Loses them too. Then down he throws The coral of his lip, the rose Growing on his cheek (but none knows how). With these, the crystal of his brow, and then the dimple on his chin— As these did my Campaspe win. At last he set her both his eyes; She won, and Cupid blind did rise. O love, has she done this to thee? What shall, alas, become of me? —John Lyly.

DELAY DENIES.

It is of the utmost importance that a nation have a correct standard by which to weigh the character of its rulers. But, above all, if we be just men we shall go forward in the name of truth and right, bearing this in mind—that when a case is proved and the hour come justice delayed is justice denied.—W. E. Gladstone.

ADVANCING THE USE

Of Electricity May Prove An Evolution In Modern Power.

At last the storage battery seems to have been developed to a stage of adaptability that renders its introduction as a motive power assured. In fact, it is already in use in street car service to a limited extent, in many cities. For more than a decade there has been an expectant interest in scientific and industrial circles directed toward the experimentation that has been in process in the efforts of inventors to produce a workable storage battery. More than two years ago, Thomas A. Edison announced that he had solved the problem, but not until within the past few months has there been a convincing public demonstration that the battery may be used economically as a driving power. It is yet a matter of doubt just how extensive and comprehensive the demands which the storage battery will subserve may be. Mr. Edison has been enthusiastically optimistic in the interviews which he has given on concerning this invention. He has declared that the time is not far distant when farm wagons and warehouse vans will be driven by stored electricity almost exclusively. For general motive power purposes, the storage battery is now in competition with the gasoline engine and gasoline power has a long lead. That stored electricity will subserve valuable uses there is no reason to doubt. The extent and generality of the uses will be dependent upon the comparative cost. If stored electricity, in ratio to the power represented, can be retailed at a saving over the cost of the same power from gasoline combustion, the stored battery will soon be driving all sorts of vehicles. Otherwise not.

The post office will close Tuesday, May 30, Memorial Day at 12 o'clock. There will be one delivery in the city at 8 a. m. No service on rural routes. M. A. Humphreys, P. M.

MILLIONS FOR GOOD

Roads Well Spent Over The Different States Of The Union—Great Strides.

Maryland is not the only state that is improving its highways on an extensive scale. The movement has swept from one end of the country to the other, and Commonwealths once noted for their almost impassable roads are hastening to improve them. Texas last year, a recent bulletin shows, provided for the expenditure of $7,000,000 for roads, being second only to New York State, which spent $8,000,000 in 1910 and will spend $1,000,000 more this year. West Virginia's expenditure is put down at $1,150,000, Virginia at $850,000. But Georgia heads all its neighbor States by providing $3,000,000. North Carolina is just behind Virginia, with $2,500,000. In Arkansas the farmers turned out and built seven miles of road in a single day.

There is a general disposition to build highways to connect many towns and cities. California has begun to build a monumental State highway system. The Florida Legislature is now considering bills to abolish the convict lease system and use its prisoners in constructing roads, and a bond issue of $10,000,000 is proposed. The suggestion of a "national highway" from New York to Atlanta has been received with enthusiasm. This is to be secured, according to its promoters, by each State building its section connecting with similar roads in adjoining States, giving an automobile track hundreds of miles long. It is now proposed that this be extended into Canada, and the Canadians show a disposition to join in bringing it about.

Maryland's near neighbor, Delaware is soon to have a model highway, if the plans adopted, with the sanction of the Legislature, are carried out. Gen. T. Coleman Dupont proposes to construct a boulevard 100 miles long, stretching from one end of Delaware to the other, with provision for an electric railway, as well as for buggies, wagons, automobiles and pedestrians. Surveyors will begin at once the work of laying out the route, and it will be built as rapidly as is practicable. General Dupont has a number of original ideas in connection with this scheme. He suggests that about every ten miles a station be established where information can be secured in regard to lands, crops, properties for sale; where horses can be fed, gasoline for automobiles secured, horses shod and repairs made. He suggests that each town along the route give a right of way of at least 100 feet, providing for four roads 16 feet wide, two for horse-drawn vehicles and two for motor cars, separated by grass plots and trees or curbing. By making the width 200 feet a fine boulevard would be afforded. This experiment of General Dupont's will attract interest all over the country. He believes it will be of almost incalculable value to Delaware, not only in creating a large amount of traffic and providing better transportation facilities for residents, but in attracting visitors and settlers.

Such a boulevard between Baltimore and Washington might be made a necessary link in a road system that will be in truth as well as in name a "national highway."

Six Things A Boy Should Know.

First, that a quiet voice, courtesy and kind acts are essential to a gentleman; second that roughness, blustering and insolence are not manliness; third, that muscular strength is not health; fourth, that a brain crammed only with facts is not necessarily a wise one; fifth, that the impossible to the boy of fourteen will be easy to the man of twenty; sixth, that the best capital for a boy is not money, but love of work, simple tastes, and a heart loyal to his friends—Selected.

Address by County Superintendent Holloway: Song, "Evening Shadows," by School; Closing Ode, Grace Willing.

GOVERNOR SIGNS

Marriage Law—Numerous Changes Are Made To Abolish The Green Act.

Governor Pennell signed the new marriage law, hereafter restricting and regulating marriages in Delaware so that Wilmington will have to lose the reputation as a Green Act town. The bill provides for consent of parents, either in person or by certificate, it provides for a duplicate certificate, one of which is retained by the parties and the other by the clerk to be recorded as one on open records. The new marriage law seems to be a dangerous obstacle for the unwary or careless, and the author of the bill appears to have left no unburned bridges behind, for he says in Section 9:

"In the event that any section of this Act or part thereof shall be held to be unlawful by the court of competent jurisdiction, such adjudication shall not affect the other portions of this Act." All through the bill nearly every paragraph provides a fine or imprisonment, and the paragraph following the section providing that applicants must be examined under oath by the official, to whom they apply for a license, holds them strictly accountable under the State's severe perjury laws, saying, "And shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to the penalties for perjury by the laws of this State."

Fine or imprisonment is provided for both parties to a marriage which may have been solemnized outside of this State if "the parties thereto live and cohabit as husband and wife within the State." This has reference however only to intermarriages of relatives and of whites and blacks. It will put in the criminal class all whites who cohabit with blacks. For falsely solemnizing a marriage ceremony, $100 or thirty days is the penalty. If the male be under 21 and the woman under 18, the justice or clerk of the peace who shall issue them a license, or if he shall issue one to an intoxicated or insane person, will get $100 or thirty days in the way of a sentence. Consent of parent or guardian, however, shall be sufficient to permit or minors marrying. The act says: "Which consent shall be reduced to writing in the presence of the justice or clerk of the peace and filed with the clerk of the peace of the county in which the marriage license was issued as a part of the records of this office."

Transaction of Business By County Commissioners

The County Commissioners were in session Tuesday and transacted the following business; Engineer Clark reported that he had been in communication with the State Roads Commission relative to some repairs necessary on the Mardela State road, and that the Commission had written him that the repairs would be made at once. Mr. Clark said he had promised the use of some of the county machinery to aid in putting the road to its original shape. It seems that fast driving of automobiles over the road has broken the surface in some places.

The clerk was ordered to notify the Diamond State Telephone Company to relocate their poles to conform to the new road line from Rockwalking to Catox-penny. This road has recently been graded and put in fine shape by Commissioner Orlando Taylor.

The Board named Messrs. James M. Jones, A. W. Gordy and Engineer Clark a commission to extend the public road leading from Hebron through the lands of E. F. Pollitt and others from the old abandoned road to the newly located road.

Death of Mr. Henry.

Mr. James L. Henry, one of the oldest and best known citizens of Hebron, died at his home in that place Friday night. Mr. Henry had been sick for some time with pneumonia, but was feeling better until Thursday when he was taken suddenly worse and died early Friday evening. He was highly respected as a true conscientious Christian and good citizen and will be greatly missed by all who knew him. Funeral services were held from his late residence Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock conducted by Rev. Marshall, of M. E. Church. Interment at the old Wilson homestead in Spring Hill. Deceased is survived by one brother, Mr. Ben. Henry and a number of nieces and nephews.

—Six persons were saved from death by fire in a four story uptown tenement in New York, Thursday by a long slide down a clothes line. The flames cut off the escape of the six and they were marooned on a balcony overlooking the street. Flames were shooting out about them when one of the party, a 6 year old boy with a jack knife, cut down a iron pipe of clothes line which was hanging from a gallery over his head. He tied the ladder rope to the edge of the balcony and one by one, they slid to safety. The boy went last.

LIABLE TO FINE FOR

Corporation Tax—Hundreds Of Incorporated Concerns Failed To Pay It In Time.

Hundreds of corporations in the Maryland district of the Internal Revenue Department, of which Phillips Lee Goldborough is the head, have made themselves liable under the criminal law of the United States by failing to comply with the provisions of the act requiring the tax on the income of corporations to be paid by March 1. The penalty for the violation is a fine ranging from $1000 to $10,000 but the law allows a compromise if acceptable to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The law providing for the tax on the income of corporations went into effect in 1909. When the income in less than $5000 the corporations are exempted, but all corporations with income greater than this amount must pay the Government one per cent, on their earnings, provided settlement is made by March 1st, of each year. Otherwise they must pay one and one half per cent with such penalty within the law as the officials of the Government deem just.

No Penalty Last Year.

In Mr. Goldborough's district there are 31,000 corporations to which this tax applies. He thought it unwise to give the number of delinquents, but he admitted that it is very large. Mr. Goldborough assumes that the delinquencies are not peculiar to his district, but extend to all parts of the country, but on this point he has no information.

"During the first year the law was in effect," said Mr. Goldborough, "the penal feature was not enforced on delinquents, because as a new act it was thought well to give corporations time to become accustomed to it and familiar with its workings. Hence no penalties were imposed."

"I foresaw trouble of the kind that now faces corporations early in the year. The Government makes no provision for formal notices as the people are supposed to be familiar with the laws, but blanks sent out from this office to the corporations in the district should have had all the effect of formal notices. Moreover I sought by newspaper interviews and by every other method in my power to call to the attention of the corporations the provisions of the law regarding the income tax."

Try To Escape Penalty.

"Since the officials of corporations have learned that they are subject to a fine they have been calling at the office claiming in many instances that their money was sent in prior to March 1st. I saved the envelopes of all who failed to send their checks before the date fixed in the law, and these have stamped on them the date when they were mailed. This precaution has saved the office from many disputes with corporation officials."

"When cash is tendered under the law providing for a fine I forward the offer of the delinquent to the Secretary of the Treasury with my recommendation whether the amount tendered should or should not be accepted. The Secretary can accept or reject my recommendation."

Bar Association Meets.

A meeting of the Wicomico Bar Association was held in the Court House on Friday. The following officers were elected:

Jan. E. Ellegood, President; Jay Williams, Vice President; E. H. Walton, Secretary.

The committee on the Library made a report through its chairman, Judge Tomlin. According to this $250 had been spent for law books leaving a balance of $600 in the treasury.

It was decided to hold memorial services in honor of the late Judge Hollans, who, at the time of his death, was President of the Association. These services will be held on the first Monday afternoon of the July term of Court. Resolutions will be presented at this time and addresses made by different members of the Bar.

Jno. Q. Tilghman.

News reached here this week of the death of Mr. Jno. Q. Tilghman at his home, Palatka, Florida. Mr. Tilghman was born in this county and resided here until about twenty years ago when he moved to Florida. He passed away about 56 years of age. He is survived by his father, Mr. Noah J. Tilghman, and leaves a widow and three children. He was a nephew of Mrs. Jno. Handy Tilghman, S. H. T. Tilghman, of this county, and W. S. Tilghman, of East New Market.

Mrs. Mary Coppock.

Mrs. Mary Coppock, aged 78 years, died at the Peninsula Hotel, the home of her daughter, Mrs. K. H. Phillips, Thursday afternoon, following a stroke of paralysis about two weeks ago. The body was taken to Chester, Pa., where the burial will take place Monday. Besides Mrs. Phillips, deceased leaves one other daughter and three sons.

—Mrs. Roberts and two children, of Uhestertown, are guests of Mrs. Jona M. Tooleon.

Short Crop of Cow Peas Prices Are Going Up!

The enormous demand for Cow Peas last year carried the price very high, and as the crop is very short and the season is rapidly extending, there are many indications which point to much higher prices as the sowing season approaches.

Whip-poor-will Cow Peas. The Whip-poor-will are generally preferred in the Central and Southern States. They are bush form, very superior and especially desirable for Peas.

New Era Cow Peas. New Eras are a little earlier and make more vine than the Whip-poor-will.

Wonderfuls, Clays and Mixed Cow Peas. For Hay, the Wonderfuls or the Clays are more productive. They should be planted with an occasional grain of Corn, Sorghum Seed, Kaffir, or other crop which will prevent the vines from getting damaged by coming in contact with the ground.

Black Cow Peas. Black Cow Peas are a little earlier in maturing than Clays; they make a good growth of vine, are exceptionally good for medium or poor land and will stand almost any amount of wet weather without injury. We can also supply Shinney Peas, Red Rippers, Blackeye Peas and Bole Beans.

REMEMBER—Bolignano's Cow Peas are unquestionably the best. If your Local Merchant will not supply Bolignano's Cow Peas, write us direct and we will tell you where you can get them.

FREE—Send us a cent in stamps to pay postage and mention this paper, and we will send you free a 5c package of "My Maryland" Tomato Seed, also our 1911 Catalogue of Seeds and our 1911 Poultry Supply Catalogue.

THE WRECK MASTER.

He Clears the Track Regardless of What Undestroyed but Obstructing Freight Cars May Contain.

When a wreck blocks the line the wreck master is the biggest man on the railroad. Even the president, if by unhappy chance he happens to be there, steps aside and keeps silent after the wreck train halts with a jerk of grinding wheels and hissing air before the indescribable confusion of shattered wood and twisted steel which clutter the tracks. The wreck master's feet are on the ground before the shrieking wheels have ceased turning. There follow at his heels a half score of men, all experts, but of less degree than their leader.

He shouts an order that seems as unintelligible as a drillmaster's command, then another, and another. There is instant action. At one end of the train a locomotive begins to creep cautiously away with the coaches that have stayed on the rails. An express car up toward the forward end of the passenger train is tilted tremulously on its trucks. It is loaded with boxes of silk perhaps or with other costly merchandise. The wreckers do not stop to inquire. To them it is simply an obstacle that has to be removed immediately. There is heaving chorus, and it plunges down the embankment. A hundred yards away a loaded freight car in the opposite train is hanging over the edge. Fifty crowbars give it a tip that sends it down to the foot of the hill. As it lands there is a crash of discordant, tortured strings, an inharmonious outbreak as though a hundred cello had landed simultaneously on half a hundred keyboards. "Pianos," remarks one of the panting workmen to another standing at his shoulder. They do not pause even to grin. An instant later they are heaving away at something else—Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly.

Macaroni Au Gratin.
Cook half a pound of macaroni, broken in pieces, in boiling salted water till tender, assemble in a teacupful of butter. When done, drain and let cool. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, put in the cooked macaroni, add salt, pepper, a good dash of paprika, grate of nutmeg and moisten with one gill of good white sauce. Mix carefully so as not to break the macaroni and add one heaping tablespoonful of grated cheese. Pile the mass in a buttered gratin dish, pour over a little more white sauce, then sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese and the fine bread crumbs. Pour over two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and bake in a hot oven for ten minutes. Serve hot.

Giants and Dwarfs.
In the seventeenth century all the abnormally large and small folks of London were assembled in Vienna in response to a whim of the emperor. All circumstances required that all should be housed in one building, there was a fear that the imposing proportions of the giants would terrify the dwarfs. But the dwarfs teased and tormented the giants so that these overgrown mortals complained with tears in their eyes, and a consequence sentinals had to be placed to protect the giants from their pygmy persecutors, for the smallest men had the biggest brains and the longest tongues.

Corrupted His Style.
"The late Richard Watson Gilder," said a New York poet, "always opposed the reading of light literature. A poet, he said, could not read such literature without corrupting his literary style."
"He once told me that the poet in this respect was like Brown's parrot. "Brown bought a parrot for $20 from a pet stock dealer and a week or two later returned to the shop and insisted that the bird be taken back."
"What the matter with it?" the dealer asked.
"W-w-why," said Brown, "the durned c-c-critter st-stutters!"

Expert Opinion.
"What do you think made Hamlet so suspicious of the ghost?" asked Mr. Stormington Barnes.
"He probably thought," answered the psychic researcher, "that no well-regulated ghost would manifest himself without ringing bells or tipping tables."—Washington Star.

Putting Him Wise.
"I'd like to make you my wife," said the practical young man, "but they tell me you can't keep house."
"Don't you believe all they tell you," rejoined the girl in the case. "You get the house and put it in my name, and I'll prove to you that I can keep it."—Exchange.

The Sybarites.
The Sybarites were the inhabitants of the ancient city of Sybaris, in southern Italy, founded 720 B. C. They were so greatly addicted to voluptuousness and self-indulgence that their name became a byword among the peoples of antiquity. The word "sybarite" is used at the present day to denote a person devoted to luxury and pleasure.

ATHOL

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Donoho and son, Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Hatton and daughter, Lilly, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hatton and son, Lester, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Station Evans Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earline Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Evans and Mrs. Jennie Graham spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wilson.

The young people are very busy getting ready for Children's services which will be May the 28th.

A very pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage at Salisbury, Md., Saturday afternoon at 2:30 May 26th when Miss Daisy Hurley, a very popular young lady of Maryland, became the bride of Mr. Marion Cordrey, of Laurel, Del. The bride was beautifully attired in a white embroidered dress with gloves to match and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and maiden hair ferns. The groom wore the conventional black. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Graham of Salisbury. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for home. They will reside near Maryland.

Strawberries are very scarce in this county.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh—Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that is failed to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

In the State of Maryland

I have 20 carloads of Buggies, Wagons, Runabouts, Surreys and Speed Cars. Come see for yourself. We have new styles other makers cannot copy under a year.

We have over 2,000 Wrenn Buggies in use over six years that did not cost the users over $85 when new. I can save anyone needing a Buggy, Surrey or Runabout, $20. Come look them over.

Testimonial from H. Fillmore Lankford, Attorney-at-Law: "I have a Wrenn Surrey which has been in use twenty years, and it is a good one today. I had the tires cut after using nineteen years."

Wrenn's make of Buggy is a guarantee that you get your money's worth. Why pay $20 more for an imitation when you can buy a Wrenn from $85 up?

Wagons, I have them—not the common ones, but the cheap ones. Cost $10 more, last twice as long.

Mr. Bounds came in last week and said: "Mr. Taylor, I want a Runabout. I bought a Wrenn Buggy from you ten years ago, and I am still using it." He bought another Wrenn. Best by test, cheapest on earth for the money.

I show more vehicles set up than you can find in any city or town in several States.

THE WHITE ROSES

By F. A. MITCHEL

"Edouard," said the countess, "it is high time that you desist from your studies for a long enough period to do the courting necessary to marriage."

"Why can't you attend to the matter for me, mother?" asked Edouard abstractedly.

"I would do so," replied the countess; "indeed, I have already taken steps in the right direction, but I can accomplish nothing without some effort on your part. I have applied in your name for the hand of Mlle. de Cateret. Her parents would be pleased with the match, but the young lady declares she will never marry a man whose fingers are perpetually stained with acids."

"Is she the elder or the younger sister?" asked the young man absently.

"The elder."

"Her name, I believe, is HZO—I mean Caroline."

"Oh, Edouard," exclaimed the countess, raising her hands and her eyes, "you are incorrigible! I do wish you would leave these chemicals for awhile and help me."

Edouard went to his mother, put his arms about her neck and kissed her. "Would you be satisfied, dear mamma," he asked, "if I give up one day to this work?"

"One day! Werkl Mademoiselle needs to be courted."

"Is she romantic?"

"Very."

"You say she is religious?"

"Yes; here is one of those guileless natures that refers every act to a higher power before making a decision."

"The dear creature!" said the young man. "I dare say I should love her devotedly. In us there are doubtless two currents. Could I but utilize them to advantage?"

"Edouard, what are you talking about?"

"Oh, yes, mamma; we were talking about marriage! Forgive me. I will do your bidding. I will go to mademoiselle."

"Caroline! And ask her to be your—I mean my wife."

The countess, fearing a relapse, sent at once for her son's hat and coat. He put them on, walked to the chateau of the De Caterets and sent up a card for mademoiselle. She came down beamingly dressed, but received him not very cordially. She knew why he had come and that it was at the instigation of his mother.

"Mademoiselle," he said, "permit me to offer you my hand and my heart."

"Your heart, monsieur?"

"Yes, mademoiselle. I am sure I shall love you devotedly. Just at present I am absorbed in working out a scientific problem; but this will not always be. Some day I may have time to woo."

"Monsieur?"

"Pardon! I will not speak further on the subject now. We are all in the hands of a higher power, and if that power intends that you shall be my wife he will give you a sign."

"I assure you, monsieur, that I shall require an unmistakable sign to induce me to marry a man who is so infatuated with a science that he has no time to woo a girl."

"Adieu, mademoiselle! I resign myself to the will of Providence."

That night the young lady prayed to the Virgin, that if it was her will that her worshiper should marry the scientist she would give her a sign.

The next morning Edouard called at the chateau with a dozen beautiful white roses.

"Mademoiselle," he said, with his hand on his heart and a pious expression of countenance, "last night I dreamed that the Virgin came to me and said: 'Pluck roses from your garden and take them to Mlle. de Cateret. If within a few hours after you give them to her they turn crimson she will become your wife. If, on the contrary, they are still white she will remain a maid and go into a convent.'"

Having said this, he placed the roses in her hand, bowed profoundly and walked away. After going a short distance he turned and saw her standing regarding the roses with the expression of a saint. The expectation that she would be his wife, taken together with the impressive picture, warmed his heart. Returning, he knelt before her, took her hand, kissed it, arose and returned his own to his own chateau.

In the Chateau de Cateret was a private chapel. Caroline took the roses there and placed them on the altar. She did not go to examine them till just before the set of sun, which sank in a blood red atmosphere. As Caroline stepped into the chapel she saw what she thought to be the sun's rays shining through a window on the roses. She went to them. It was not the sun's rays that colored them. They were really crimson.

Hearing a footstep behind her, she turned and saw Edouard. Approaching, he encircled her with his arms. She raised her eyes and her face to his, and he kissed her lips.

There at the altar they pledged their troth. But a change had come over the young man's heart as well as over his roses.

"Do you love me?" he asked wistfully.

"I do. It is the holy mother's will," she replied.

He did not tell her that the roses were originally red and he had bleached them white by holding them over a pan filled with smoking sulphur. As time they regained their original color.

NEW FRENCH NECKWEAR.

Latest Models Are Unusually High and Elaborate and Are a Good Suggestion For Christmas Gifts.

The new Paris models are showing more high collars than ever, and side frills, plisses and jabots are still in vogue for the tailored blouses of sheer linen. The collars given here show admirably both of these tendencies.

One is a side frill model in hem-stitched sheer linen. In fact, it could be contrived by a clever girl from two handkerchiefs. The high stock collar is hand tucked, and so is the front plait, while the frills are gathered to these, the side frills being double.

A good idea for a collar is a frivolous little bit of ornament for a plain tucked waist, all formed of rows of valenciennes lace, each one-half inch wide, with a band and bow of narrow black velvet at the bottom of the stock. Insertion is used for the stock, edging for the middie collar.

The maid who decides to change the style of her collarless frock should have recourse to another one, which consists of a rather loose stock collar of not too wide ribbon finished with a long Alsatian bow in back and an up-standing ruche of three inch wide lace. The ribbon should match or harmonize with the blouse with which it is to be worn.

Hand tucked tulle forms a severely simple collar with tiny suggestion of a stole. A novel touch is given by using a one and one-half inch wide band of black satin fastened by a little metal buckle at the back.

For a heavy linen or flannel blouse this hint can be taken: Make one of white pique stitched in bands and fastened at the side with tiny pearl buttons. The top band is really a turnover collar of self material, and the collar is hooked at the back, the buttons being only a pretended opening.

Much more elaborate is the other model which is here shown, originally designed for a full afternoon waist. The full jabot is of a deep cream valenciennes lace and tulle, and it is fastened to a plain stock collar of the same materials finished by a band of black satin. The jabot is lace edged and is in fish tail shape.

Any one of these collars contains a suggestion for the needleworker who is already thinking of the fast approaching Christmas tide.

To Avoid Blisters. No blister will form if white of egg and olive oil are mixed quickly in equal portions and applied to a burn. The place should be covered with a piece of soft linen. Bicarbonate of soda is more quickly obtained and is quite as good. It should be used dry, covered with a cloth and kept wet with cold water. A bad blister was covered with a piece of linen wet in a one per cent solution of carbolic acid, kept wet for a day or two, and no scar resulted and there was little pain.

Pressing Centerpieces. When laundering centerpieces the ugly puckering that prevents them lying flat on the table is prevented by tanning the center before the edging. Handkerchiefs are also best tanned in this way, though usually the hem is tanned first.

CHAPTER XIII. BARRIERS INVISIBLE.

BLOUNT drove himself back to the capital the following morning in the big roadster, and there was no opportunity for further confidential speech with Patricia before he left. But with the new day had come a new determination. To the best of his ability he would try to live up to the high standard set for him by the woman he loved, not only preaching the gospel of political righteousness, but doing his utmost to try to make it effective.

With this high purpose in view he drove on past the city garage and made an early call upon Gantry. "Hello, old man! Come back to row me some more about that telegram" was his greeting.

Blount shook his head. "No. If you have sent it, well and good; if you haven't, you may pitch it into the wastebasket. I came to talk about something else."

"Good, sound, sensible second thought," said Gantry, laughing. Then he took out his pocketbook and passed the suppressed telegram across to Blount. "Here it is. You can do the wastebasket act yourself. I couldn't try to commit harakiri without at least trying to get the cutting tool out of your hands. What is the other thing you've got on your mind this early in the morning?"

"It's this, Dick. You know what I've been doing—what I supposed I was hired to do—assuring everybody, right and left, that we were going into this campaign with clean hands?"

"I know," admitted the traffic manager, developing a sudden interest in the figures of the rug at his feet. "I have been doing this in a business way at my office down in season and out of season, and night before last at Ophir I did it publicly. As the campaign progresses I shall doubtless put myself on record many times to the same effect."

"Good man!" applauded Gantry, striving to drag the talk down to some less portentous altitude. "I'm sure we need all the whitewashing anybody can give us."

"That is just the point," Blount went on gravely. "It mustn't be merely a coat of whitewash, Dick. It has got to be the real thing this time. I began by firing the 'little brothers,' as you called them, but I mean to go higher up if I am compelled to. I am here this morning to ask you to give me your word as a gentleman and my friend that you will not, directly or indirectly, do or cause to be done anything that will make me stand forth as a self-convicted liar before the people of this state. I want you to promise me that you will cut out all the deals, all the bribes, all the bargains, all the—"

"Oh, say, see here," protested the man under fire; "you've got the wrong pig by the ear, Evan. I'm not the Transcontinental Railway company."

"I know you are not. But to a greater degree than any other official in the management you have Mr. McVickar's confidence. If you don't feel competent to handle this thing on your own responsibility pass it up to those who can and have it understood that there must be no compromise."

"Great Scott!" murmured Gantry. "And you're on the pay sheets the same as the rest of us! But candidly, as man to man, Evan, the thing can't be done. We've got to play the game. They'll eat us alive if we don't. You needn't figure it in. It was a mistake letting Jim Hathaway go to you, and I said so at the time. But your powers that be said it had to be that way, and I had to let him go and bail you all up. It shan't happen again! I can promise you that much, anyway."

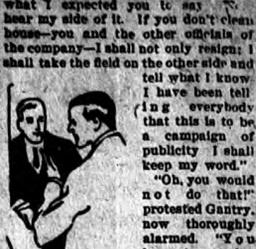

Blount caught quickly at the best-tempered pause. "Who were the powers that be in Hathaway's case, Dick?" he demanded.

"I can't tell you that; honestly I can't, Evan," was the anxious refusal. "Don't ask me."

"All right; then I shall assume that Mr. McVickar was responsible," said Blount calmly, thus proving that he had not taken his degree in the law school for nothing.

"Oh, hold on; you mustn't do that, either," protested the unwilling occupant of the witness stand. "Thank you," said the postgraduate, with the true Blount smile. "Now I know that it was my father, No; don't deny it. But we are wandering from the real issue. I've asked you for a promise, Dick. Will you give it?"

"I can't give it, Evan, and that's the truth." "No; it—"

What I expected you to say. I have been told that this is to be a campaign of publicity I shall keep my word.

"Oh, you would not do that!" protested Gantry, now thoroughly alarmed. "You know too much—a great deal too much!"

Blount got up and relighted his cigar with a match taken from the traffic manager's desk box. "It's up to you," he said, with his hand on the doorknob. "Get into communication with whatever powers that be there are that can give the necessary orders and see to it that the orders are given and that they are put in the way of being carried out. Dick, I mean what I say. It's a clean sheet—or an exposure that will make a lot of you wish that you had never been born."

"Hold on—one question before you go, Evan," pleaded Gantry, "and give me a straight answer. Is this another move of the honorable—of your father's?"

Blount's smile was as grim as any that Gantry had ever seen on the face of the Honorable David. "My father is much more likely to take sides with you, I am sorry to say. No, Dick; you've got only one man to fight, but you mustn't forget that his name also is Blount. Go to it and send me word and let the first word be that you have scotched the head of this lumber company snake. That's all for today. Goodbye."

Returning to his office in Temple court, Blount found that the morning mail had been busy with him also. There were three invitations from widely separated cities in the state, all based upon the newspaper reports of his Ophir speech, and the afternoon mail brought three more.

It was evident that the campaign of education had struck a popular chord, and the young political manager saw what a miraculous opportunity was opening for the railroad if only the "powers" that Gantry had refused to name could be broad enough and high minded enough to seize it.

After that for three weeks Blount scarcely saw his office in the capital. One appointment followed another in rapid succession, and everywhere there was a repetition of the welcome extended by the Ophir miners—a cordial welcome, generous applause and kindly hospitality at every turn.

It was not until he was deep into the fourth week of the hurrying to and fro that he began to admit a suspicion which grew like a juggler's rose when he had once given it place. These invitations, which were now coming from all parts of the state—could it be possible that they were all spontaneous? And if they were not—

If they were so many subtle moves in the great game he could see no possible end to be subserved by them save one—they were effectually keeping him away from the capital, which was the nucleus and center of the campaign activities.

Was there something going on at headquarters that "the powers" did not wish him to find out? Of one thing he was fairly well assured—Gantry was dodging him, was apparently keeping an accurate record of his movements, for whenever the hurrying to and fro permitted a flying visit to the capital Gantry was always out of town.

With the awakening suspicion came a rapid putting together of two and two. Wherever he went there was always the same pressing hospitality, with many urgings to delay his going. At the same time it became evident in many little ways that he was in reality merely skimming over the surface in his campaign work.

That a hot political fight was going on all around him he could not doubt. The newspapers were full of it, and in many sections of the state the fight had become acrimonious and bitter. But, although he was supposed to be in the fight, it began to be apparent that he was little more than an on-looker when it came to the really vital struggle of the moment.

It was as if everything had been carefully prearranged, like a sort of triumphal procession. None the less the invisible barrier, the barrier which was shutting him out from the inner workings of the campaign, was there, and he could neither surmount it nor push it aside.

Notwithstanding the hard work and the hard traveling he was doing he did not let the missionary effort outweigh the sturdier purpose, which was to hold his principals rigidly up to the mirror of a vigilant watchfulness.

Arguing that the opposition newspapers would be quick to seize upon any charge of corruption involving the railroad company, he read them faithfully. As yet there had been nothing more than aptly misdeeds, though many of the editors were charging a secret alliance between his father and McVickar and warning their readers to look out for startling developments later on.

Not content with mere watchfulness, however, Blount got his finger upon the pulse of occasions whenever he could. On his brief stopovers in the capital he kept his eyes and ears open for the earliest hint of any change of chicane, and though he was unable to get hold of Gantry personally, he kept up a steady fire of letters and telegrams, all pointing to the same end—absolute and utter good faith and the upholding of his hands in the public plea for a square deal.
