SMALL BRIM HATS

M'Lady's Headgear This Fall Will Have Larger Crown.

Like the sheath gown and other novel creations for women's wear, the peach-basket hat, which commanded so much attention this summer because of its size, is doomed. At the fall opening of a big millinery house recently handsome hats of many forms and designs, but with smaller brims than the peach-basket variety, were shown as the styles of women's headgear that will be worn this fall.

The new hats are large, but there is an appreciable decrease in the size of the brims, while the crowns are higher. The brims "mushroom" from the crown and roll at the edge, creating a very pretty effect. What has been taken off in the brim of the peach-basket is added on in the crown of the fall hat, with a pleasing result.

A distinctive novelty in fall headgear is the chamouis hat, a smart creation of chamouis, faced in black velvet and of a sensible size. Another new feature is the use of ambré ornaments, resembling hatpins, which are placed on the sides of the hats, with ribbons running through them.

The paradise aigrette on small hats of turban shape will be one of the smart styles. The hats are made of velvet, beaver and plush, and the aigrette form of feathers gives a chic touch to the daintily shaped hats.

A style that promises to be very much in vogue is the large silk hat with rolled brim, flat crown, trimmed with white kid and ornamented with a natty flat bow on the side. This creation will be much used for general use, and will give the wearer a rather distinctive air and credit for appreciation of a sensible new style, which will prove very popular.

In ornamentation, coque feathers will predominate, although fancy feather will be largely used. Coque feathers with large wings show up to decided advantage on some of the larger hats. A great deal of ribbon will embellish the appearance of the high crowned hats, and especially those having soft velvet crowns.

Great liberty will be allowed in the use of colors, but the flashier shades will not be much in vogue, prunelle, various shades of green, especially olive green, nutmeg brown and anemist being the most popular colors.

SALISBURY FAIR

Begins Tuesday Of Next Week Lasting Four Days. Thousands Expected. Will Open At Night.

The Fair to be held at Salisbury next week promises to be one of the largest fairs ever held in this section. The entries for the races are all in and will run up to over 300 entries. A race that is being looked forward to by lovers of horses is the race in which General Mack and Dry Donk, the two horses which raced here in July, are entered. Both of these horses are entered in the 2-15 pace and the free for all and if both start in the same race as is now expected, an exciting race may result.

The Association has made arrangements to accommodate 100 horses which will accommodate the horses expected.

The Grand Stand accommodation has been increased from 2600 to 3600 and other buildings have been put up. Special attention is being paid to the exhibit end of the Fair and from the present outlook one of the largest exhibits of this section will be on the grounds. The various departments have been placed in the hands of competent parties who are making a big effort to make it a success. It is the intention of the Fair Association to make the agricultural and other exhibits a main feature of the Salisbury Fair, and liberal premiums are being offered in order to induce people to make an exhibit.

The Association hopes to get the farmers interested in pure bred poultry and stock as well as other agricultural features. All owners of pure bred stock are invited to bring them in and help the cause.

This is the first Fair held in Salisbury and all should join in making it a success.

A feature of the Fair will be the opening of the grounds at night. The grounds are to be lighted up, and the attractions booked for the Fair will be of a variety to suit almost any taste. The Midway will be lighted up throughout and be lined with attractions of all kinds. The Association has booked a big wild West show which will be open at night and will well be worth seeing in itself in addition to the scores of other attractions on the grounds.

There will be exhibits of other character, such as machinery, vehicles, etc., which will probably have a frontage of 1000 feet.

Those in charge of the various departments are as follows:—

Division A., D. W. Perdue, superintendent, G. R. Collier and D. J. Ward, asst. superintendents. This division will embrace standard and trotting bred horses, general utility horses, coach horses, road and carriage horses. The first premiums amount to $112.00; second premiums, $62.00.

Division B., J. McFadden Dick, superintendent, embraces cattle of all kinds, short horn, hereford, holstein, jersey, dairy cows. First premiums amount to $108; second premiums, $54.50.

Division C., W. M. Cooper, superintendent, embraces swine and competition is open to the world. First premiums amount to $141; second premiums, $20.50.

Division D., J. M. Tolson, superintendent, embraces poultry of every description. Premiums, $1.50 to first, $1.00 to second, in each kind of exhibit.

Division E., W. F. Allen and W. M. Cooper, superintendents, embraces agricultural and horticultural products. First premiums aggregate $122; second $66.

Division F., Graham Gunby, superintendent, embraces machinery and implements, for which large space will be devoted. It is expected that this division will contain an expensive exhibit.

Division G., Bernard Ulman, superintendent, is the household department, with liberal premiums. It is hoped that the people of this county, especially, will make liberal exhibits.

Division H., Mrs. George R. Collier, superintendent, Mrs. M. V. Brewington, Mrs. F. P. Adkins, Miss Carrie Peters, Mrs. D. W. Perdue, assistants will embrace all kinds of fancy work. Liberal premiums are offered.

Division I., W. J. Holloway, superintendent, embraces art and school exhibits. It is hoped to have large exhibits from the manual training departments of the various high schools of the county and from the colored industrial school in Salisbury. First premiums aggregate $26; second, $12.

The people of Wicomico County, especially, should take an interest in the success of the Fair this year, so as to give it a boost and insure its success for future years. Such interest can be manifested by preparing exhibits for the various departments, so that visitors from the other counties may see that Wicomico can give a good Fair second to none in this State.

Let everybody get to work to make this Fair a "howling success."

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Suffrage Amendment Declared The Main And Vital Issue. City Representation Plank.

The platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention is as follows: "We, the representatives of the Democratic party of Maryland in convention assembled, heartily endorse the present progressive business like and zealous Democratic State administration, and confidently appeal to the people for a renewal of the control of our State's affairs which, for years past in Democratic hands has given us the blessings of good, economical and efficient government.

"The Democratic party pledged the people of Maryland in the campaign of 1907, that if given the power it would again submit for their adoption an amendment to our Constitution for the purpose of excluding the illiterate negro vote. That campaign resulted in a great Democratic victory, and in the redemption of our pledge a suffrage amendment, reared by a conference of eminent and public spirited lawyers, was adopted by a Democratic General Assembly and is now before the people.

"We declare that the adoption of this amendment is the main and vital issue of the coming election. Proposed as a measure of Democratic policy in obedience to the deliberately expressed sense of the masses of our white people, its adoption is urged upon Democrats and Republicans alike as a distinctly nonpartisan reform imperatively demanded by a just consideration of the best interests of the State. We here emphasize with all possible force that the proposed amendment with the utmost care fully protects the right to vote of the foreign-born citizens of this State, and that all statements which have been made to the contrary are absolutely untrue. The Democratic party is today, as it has always been, and especially so in Maryland, the firm and faithful protector of all the civil and political rights of the naturalized American citizens, and we emphatically assert that they will not and cannot be distracted by any conceivable method whatsoever under this amendment.

"We favor the creation by appropriate legislation of a public utilities commission applicable to all our public-service corporations.

"We express our hearty endorsement of the policy and principles of the Corrupt Practices Act adopted by the last General Assembly, noting with great gratification its splendid effects upon our elections, both primary and general.

"We favor such amendments to the existing Primary Election Law as shall correct defects in its practical operation.

"We express our gratification at the legislation enacted by the last General Assembly, and at the measures and proceedings taken in pursuance thereof, to build and improve a modern up-to-date system of good roads and highways at the expense of the State, and we pledge ourselves to the enactment of all legislation which may be proper and necessary to secure and extend the benefits derived therefrom.

"We advocate the passage of a pure food law for the State of Maryland, guaranteeing pure food for the people, and framed along the lines of the Federal Law on the subject, adjusted, however, to the needs and conditions of this State.

"Declaring again our conviction that in the minds of the great majority of the Democrats of Maryland the paramount issue at the approaching election is the question of the adoption of the franchise amendment submitted to the people by the last General Assembly in pursuance of the solemn pledge of the Democratic party in the platform of 1907, and realizing that the most serious obstacle in the way of the adoption of said amendment is the honest fear in the minds of many patriotic citizens of Baltimore that its adoption would not insure to the general welfare of the people of the whole State, without the submission to the people of an amendment to the organic law of the State, providing for Baltimore city representation in the General Assembly of Maryland, in accordance with the theory upon which our republican institutions are founded, we, the representatives of the Democratic party in convention assembled, hoping that we may thereby secure a united city and county Democracy on the one great issue of white manhood suffrage in Maryland, do solemnly declare that we favor the passage by the next General Assembly of Maryland of a law proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the State, granting to the people of Baltimore city representation in the House of Delegates of Maryland in accordance with the population of the city, and representation in the Senate of Maryland of one Senator for every unit of population in said city equal to the population of the largest county in the State, without reducing the present representation of any county.

"Upon this declaration of principles, which is purposely confined to issues relating to our State government, we earnestly invite the support of our fellow citizens."

EVERYBODY GOES TO FAIR

Go And Have A Good Time At The County Fair.

Ho for the county fair! The folks will all be there, and Cousin Jane and Uncle Sam, and the pigs and the cows and the big prize ram, and the bale of hay and the bands that play—why, the folks they just can't keep away; you miss a lot if you don't go—say, will you be at the county fair?

It's time to harness up the horses and put all the family in the carriage, the buggies and the big wagons, and drive them right up to the spot that for several days is the center of the country.

If you have never been to a county fair you have missed your share of life's fun. But it cannot be possible that you never have been. Everybody goes, everybody and his wife and all the children. And they do have one good time. The exhibits are interesting, and range all the way from the rams—on which it is whispered that some of the reckless but real money—to the close contest between Mrs. Williams' blackberry jam and Mrs. Jones' quince preserves. There you see the melons, the pumpkins, the tomatoes and corn and turnips that look as fine as the pictures on the seed packages. The prize ball and the 400-pound Berkshire hog divide interest with the pet ponies and the trim thoroughbreds. And down the midway there are all kinds of shows, exciting enough to keep the crowd in a state of constant amusement. After going into the moving-picture tent, and seeing the snake charmer and hearing the lady with the cracked-toe voice sing and dance, after trying to toss rings around the oases and throwing a few baseballs at the "niggers' head, buying peanuts and popcorn and drinking a glass or two of red lemonade, you and your girl can go over and get your picture "took" or taken, just as you like.

The county fair is a lively institution, and it flourishes in Maryland as though native to the soil. From Pocomoke to Hagerstown from Frederick to Upper Marlboro, it calls its thousands. It has made Prospect Park interesting; it has made Tipton famous. The show itself is more than worth the money. But the real fun is in the crowds, and one reason the county fair has survived and prospered is that it furnishes once a year an opportunity for all the neighbors and kinspeople from a wide section to get together in a gathering in which good feeling reigns supreme. It is a great time for the renewal of old friendships and the formation of new acquaintances. It is the one time when the rich and the poor all mingle together in an amiable democracy at that is beneficial to both. That is why you will find it profitable to go to the fair, wherever it is held—at Rockville or Eastern, on the Eastern Shore or in the Cumberland Valley. For you will find the same crowd of good people enjoying themselves. The fair in Maryland has in it the spirit of good fellowship and neighborliness that have made the State famous for its hospitality and warm heartedness.

Large Real Estate Sale.

A large sale of real estate was transacted last Monday afternoon in this city, in which some of the most valuable property in this city changed hands, when the progressive and energetic firm of Kennedy and Mitchell bought the three story brick building owned for the last seventy five years by the White family, from Miss Hannah White. This property has a 46 foot frontage on Main Street. The entire first floor is now occupied by this firm while the second and third story floors are utilized at present as a boarding house. Since 1896 Kennedy Mitchell has occupied the first floor or one room of it until about three years ago, when their business and trade took on such gigantic proportions that they were compelled to run both rooms on the first floor.

They removed the partition on this floor and have been doing rushing business ever since, and now we see this firm, practically an infantile business twelve years ago, increasing to such an extent that they will have to arrange the front by having one that will conform to the styles and customs of the merchants on that street and also to thoroughly renovate the interior, which although now not of the worst appearance possible, can be much beautified and much more space utilized by putting in proposed new shelving and fixtures. The sale of this property which had been owned by the White family for the last seventy years involved several thousand dollars.

Paul's Third Missionary Journey.
Place - Ephesus.
Time - A. D. 53: Acts 19: 1-23.
After remaining at Corinth for a year and a half, St. Paul went to Cenchrea, a seaport some nine miles distant, where before embarking for Caesarea, he was on his way to Jerusalem, he took upon himself the vow of a Nazirite. Those who desire to look up this vow of a Nazirite may do so by turning to Numbers 6; but we need not trouble our brains seeking to discover a reason for this strange behavior of the Apostle. St. Luke, who wrote this account, knew and did not tell us, hence we really know nothing about it and we are probably none the worse off for our ignorance. Accompanying the apostle, were the two friends with whom he had lived and labored in Corinth, Aquila and Priscilla and probably others. They crossed the Aegean sea, and landed at Ephesus, where Paul preached in the synagogue to the delight of the congregation and where he left Aquila and Priscilla while he and the others went up to Jerusalem, where he saluted the brethren and completed his vow in the temple. Leaving Jerusalem Paul visited the church at Antioch. This was the last visit that the faithful Apostle to the Gentiles visited the home church which had blessed him and sent him forth on his missionary career. He must have spent several months here at this time, probably resting from his long and arduous labors in Philippi, Thessalonica, Berea and Corinth. Not that he was entirely idle for it was during this visit he wrote the Epistle to the Galatians. Now before we start with Paul on his third journey, it might be well for us to know that the Apostle planned his work with the direct intention of covering the Roman Empire. The Eastern Empire was at that time divided into four great provinces, Asia Minor into two, Galatia on the East and Asia on the West. Eastern Europe into two, Macedonia and Achaia. In the two former missionary journeys, Paul covered three of these provinces. During the second journey, after he had preached throughout the region of Galatians, he desired to go into the province of Asia, but the vision of the man of Macedonia called him across the sea into the two European provinces which he evangelized from Philippi and Corinth. Only "Asia" of the four great provinces remains to hear the gospel message of salvation. After a few months Paul left Antioch to revisit the churches of Asia Minor, which had been greatly disturbed by Jewish emissaries and were wavering in their faith in Christ and loyalty to Paul. When he had finished the round of Apostolic visitation and had strengthened the churches, he was ready to fulfill his promise and return to Ephesus. Ephesus was the capital of the province of "Asia." It was a more populous, wealthy and prominent city than Corinth. It was the great commercial center of the province and at this period of history, under Roman rule, Ephesus held the undisputed supremacy of the sea and of the great Eastern highway. The inhabitants of the city were mostly Greeks of fine artistic and literary tastes and the city excelled in sculpture and painting. It possessed one of the greatest amphitheatres, and its great temple of Diana was one of the wonders of the world. The church which was founded here became as illustrious in Christian annals as was the heathen temple. For more than a century the most powerful churches and most distinguished witnesses came out of this province. Paul and Timothy resided here for a long season; and after the fall of Jerusalem, John came to Ephesus to live. Here he wrote the gospel that bears his name, labored faithfully for the spread of the gospel and from here he passed to his reward. Aquila and Priscilla had not been idle during the absence of Paul, so when he returned he went with them into the synagogue and preached "The Way" unto them more perfectly. But after three months preaching it became evident here as it did in Corinth that the new wine of the gospel could not be contained in the old wine skins of the synagogue service and that a separation must take place. St. Paul therefore secured a lecture hall of our Tyrannus and continued his preaching daily for two years. They were trying, strenuous years as we learn from his address to the Ephesian elders, (Act 20: 17 to 38); but they were fruitful and successful years, "so that all they which dwell in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus both Jews and Greeks." Among the first converts in Ephesus was a distinguished man of letters from Alexandria named Apollas - a Jew of the dispersion. He was learned in the scriptures and could use them with the eloquence of a finished rhetorician, but he knew nothing of the Pentecostal blessing, the power of the Spirit in the life of the church until better instructed in "The Way" and converted and baptized. He then went to Corinth where his ministry made profound impression, not because of his eloquence but because he preached in demonstration of the power of the spirit. St. Luke, in this narrative, emphasizes the wonderful manifestation of the power of God through the many miracles wrought by the Apostle upon the sick folk of Ephesus. The reason of this emphasis is because Ephesus was full of "superstition" and "idolatry" and was full of traveling magicians who claimed supernatural power. They played upon the credulity of their heathen neighbors. They claimed to work miracles by certain cabalistic signs just as the modern fortune tellers. Here then spurious miracles abounded, magical arts prevailed to the delusion of the people. God therefore gave peculiar power to the Apostle, such as he possessed at no other place, that he might overcome the magicians and thus demonstrate the truth of the gospel and distinguish it from the false and spurious magic of the vagabond Jews, and many believed and were converted. Among them were many who had formerly been magicians and these, to demonstrate the aliority of their profession, bought their books with their formulas for incantations and exorcisms and "burned them before all men." The books were afterward computed to have been worth about $8,000. Not all however were converted but some of them seeing the wonderful works of Paul and having heard him use the words "I adjure you by Jesus," they thought that they might use this formula and thus become miracle workers. Among these were the "seven sons of our Soava, a Jew, and chief among the priests, which did so. But when they attempted to use the formula, the man or demoniac leaped on them and overcame them and drove them out of the house so that they barely escaped with their lives, while at the same time he acknowledged the power of Christ and the ministry of St. Paul. The news of this event soon spread throughout the city and made a profound impression. This the genuineness of the gospel as demonstrated and the spuriousness was cast out. The power of the gospel prevailed over Jewish prejudice and exorcisms, also over pagan credulity and superstition, and became the power of God to salvation to all who believed.

Resolutions of Respect.

At the last regular session of Blue Ridge Lodge No. 50 Independent Order of Mechanics, the following resolutions were adopted.
Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from this life to the life above our beloved brother, Ernest F. Hastings, therefore be it Resolved, That we extend to his wife and family our heartfelt sympathy in their hour of bereavement and recommend them to the love and care of Him who is a friend to the widow and a father to the orphan. It must alleviate their sorrow somewhat to know that he died professing faith in Jesus Christ, the noblest death a man can know.
Resolved, That we ever keep in heart and mind the noble character he bore in his Lodge, finding his great joy in assisting some brother to hear his burden.
Resolved, That these resolutions be recorded on the Minutes of the Lodge, and copies sent to the family of the deceased brother and to the county newspapers for publication.

ARMY DRUM LONG OUTGROWN

Its Abolition in Russia For War Purposes Follows Example of Other Countries

MERELY SENTIMENTAL ADJUNCT

Col. Heistand Points Out that it Belonged to the Old Days of Bright Uniforms and Noisy Phalanxes—The Drummer Boy of Fletton.

If there has been but little comment in army circles here over the news that the Russian government has just decided to do away with its army drummers in time of war, it is because Russia, instead of introducing an innovation in the art of warfare, has merely followed in the footsteps of many another civilized nation. The United States army, according to officers in the service, abolished its drummers years ago, and there are few countries to-day which continue to maintain a drum and fife corps for purposes of warfare.

To be sure, there are drummers in our army to-day, but their services are designed for use in times of peace. So, too, in the Russian army.

An order signed the other day by Czar Nicholas provided that Russian drummers hereafter should be trained in marksmanship, so as to be prepared to become active combatants in time of need. These conditions, new to Russia, have prevailed in this and other countries, it is said, for many years. Ever since modern methods began to be introduced in military tactics it was a foregone conclusion that the drum and the fife must sooner or later go the way of many other antiquated implements. Like the pyramids of neatly piled cannon balls which decorate the yards of army garrisons throughout the land, they are to-day relics of a past that has played its part in history and is now outgrown. Army men, however, are perhaps inclined to bestow a little sentiment on the corps of musicians who were once regarded as an indispensable adjunct to every military organization. But from a purely practical point of view, they admit that the institution has no longer any reason for existing.

Perhaps, also, the "drummer boy" of story-book notoriety, who was ever to be relied on to turn the tide of battle when his comrades were about ready to throw down their arms and beat a hasty retreat, was not quite as picturesque in reality as might be supposed.

The army drummer had his shortcomings, according to Col. H. O. Heistand, adjutant-general of the Department of the East, who is stationed on Governor's Island.

"For one thing," said the colonel to-day, "the drum required as much care as any rifle. When the weather was at all bad, the sheepskin would get wet and the next thing you knew your drums were out of commission altogether."

"Besides, he only gives his army's whereabouts away. You see, he belongs to the age of bright, gaudy uniforms, helmets, and the like, when men marched out into the open and fired volleys at another body of men all drawn up in martial array. But the time for such things has passed. Nowadays, we wear dull-colored uniforms, for concealment, and everything is done on an entirely different principle."

"The Russians have only done what most other countries have done, but I would not like to say that they had been backward about making the change."

"From what I know of them, the Russians are good soldiers. I saw a good deal of them over in China during the Boxer campaign, and they left a very favorable impression."

Col. Heistand added that, despite the changes which had been responsible for the abolition of the drum and fife corps, there was still a demand, in time of war, for the bugler. The bugler, he said, served a useful purpose because he could communicate official orders over a great territory.

But the drum and fife no longer fill a place in the machinery of warfare. In most instances, they have been incorporated in the band and are now heard only when the troops are on parade.

Endurance of a Guide.

An Alpine guide, Philippe Allmand, of Baz, has gained publicity in the Swiss papers by a marvelous pedestrian achievement. He started on a Monday from Emsach and ascended by the Walshorn hut, whence he returned to the valley to fetch a member of his party who had been left behind. There was time for only three hours' sleep after that, and then the Walshorn had to be climbed. It was in bad condition, and the ascent took nearly eleven hours. No sooner had he reached the top than Allmand hastened down and proceeded to Zermatt to join another party who had engaged him for the Matterhorn. He overtook them in the hunt at four o'clock on Tuesday morning, went up the Matterhorn at once, and did not get back until eleven o'clock on Wednesday night, having been forty-four hours without sleep, walking and climbing all the time. Even then he took only a day's rest before leading a party up the Dent Blanche.

YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE

This Coming Fall

A CHANCE TO BUY AND WEAR THE BEST CLOTHES IN THE WORLD

THEY'RE THE KIND OF CLOTHES WELL DRESSED MEN ARE ALWAYS GLAD TO BUY

are to be the feature of our line the coming season; and we want every man of you to know it early, and keep it in mind for the time when you next think of buying clothes.

We are making a specialty of these goods because we want you to get the greatest possible value for your money. You want value; that's the only real way to economize in clothes; and value means the sort of quality Hart Schaffner & Marx put into their goods. They're all-wool, in every thread of the fabrics; they represent the products of the best weavers in the world, and they offer a greater variety for your selection than you'll find in any half dozen other makes put together.

But all-wool, vitally important as it is to your interests as a wearer, is not the only thing we know about Hart Schaffner & Marx quality. These clothes are designed right; the whole question of fit depends on that; and it's important to you to know that you can be correctly fitted without trouble here. They're correct in style, of course; and perfectly tailored; these makers know their business well enough not to spoil good all-wool fabrics, fine linings and trimmings by designing and tailoring that are wrong. Hart Schaffner & Marx are the best clothes makers in the world; and every dollar of value they put into the goods is there for you to get out in the wear.

There's a lot of inferior, cotton-mixed clothing in the market; pretty poor stuff, some of it. It looks pretty good; enough so to enable dealers to charge a good price for it; it isn't as a rule worth what it costs.

THE STATE CONVENTION. The Democrats in their State Convention held in Baltimore this week showed a proper spirit of getting together.

The question of forming a commission to handle the public utilities of the State was taken up and the plan endorsed.

The corrupt practice act was endorsed and commended and the party again paid itself on record as being opposed to bribery or corruption in any form.

The primary law is to be corrected as to its way of working. An out and out endorsement of the Crawford County plan of holding the nominations would have met the approval of most of the Democrats in the State.

Another endorsement that of making a pure food law will be well received all over the State. That manufacturers can put up anything they please practically sell it to the public, as pure goods should not be allowed in Maryland.

The platform on the whole is one that the party can go on and make its fight this fall with confidence that the people will be with it in the fight.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Proceedings Of The Board At Last Tuesday's Meeting. The Board of County Commissioners in session Tuesday with all members present except Mr. Wright, transacted the following business:

President Cooper reported that he, Commissioner Truitt and Engineer Clark as a committee appointed to investigate the road from Nassawango Bridge had looked into the matter and ordered the work done.

Mr. A. W. Hopkins on behalf of the residents on the road from Walnut Trees to the Upper Ferry asked the Board to have the road worked. The work was ordered done.

The City Council of Salisbury, through its City Solicitor, Mr. Toadvine, asked the Board to co-operate with them in having the bridge over Lake Humphreys replaced.

Joseph B. West Has Narrow Escape. Joseph B. West, Sheriff of Sussex County, narrowly escaped being killed at the county jail Thursday.

Joseph B. West, Sheriff of Sussex County, narrowly escaped being killed at the county jail Thursday. Four colored prisoners, including Henry Carter, Sussex County's famous desperado, who were allowed access to the jail yard, it is said had plotted to murder the Sheriff when he entered with the noon meal.

Luckily for the Sheriff a trustworthy prisoner, who refused to take part in the affair, managed to conceal himself near the gate, determined to apprise West of the waiting danger or die in his attempt.

When the approach of the officer was heard the four would be assassians stood with heavy clubs ready to crush out his brains. The Sheriff had the gate about one third open when he noticed the other prisoner concealed behind the tree, who signaled him not to enter.

The Sheriff retreated and returned with four deputies. The four prisoners were handcuffed and chained to the floor of a steel cell and will not be allowed in the yard during the balance of their confinement.

Carter alias "Texa," who was the "ring leader" in the attempt is the man who shot and nearly fatally injured "Boss" Walker, colored, of Seaford, and escaped to Baltimore, where he was captured three weeks later.

Sheriff West seemed much surprised at the affair and summoned another officer to help care for the prisoners.

What Delayed Him. "You're an hour late. What delayed you?" "Some unlucky cuss dropped a dollar in the gutter and I was getting it out."

That Was Something. He had never been to sea before. "Can you keep anything on your stomach?" the ship doctor asked.

THREE MORE WEEKS
Then the Whole Interior of Thoroughgood's Clothing Store Will Be Torn Out and Made New.

Last spring Lacy Thoroughgood said a whole lot about some new show windows that he intended to put in his clothing store: they are in, and they are the best in the State of Maryland. That was only a starter. Now, in three more weeks the whole interior will be torn out of this same clothing store. Thoroughgood is going to give Salisbury what she is entitled to—A FIRST CLASS CLOTHING STORE in every sense of the word—a store that will be a credit to the city—a store that will carry as good goods as money can buy, and sell them at prices that most any of us can afford. You don't care for all this only as it benefits the city as a whole, but you do care for what Thoroughgood is doing to get the stock in shape for the new built store. We have now on hand several hundred Kuppenheimer Suits; we don't intend to pack them up, we intend to sell them to somebody, for some price. They're grand clothes and now's your chance. The cloth alone in many of them cost more than our present selling price. We have several hundred Suits for Children; g-and clothes, at about half price. The plainer you see them the better you'll like them. We want you to see them. We're selling Shirts at cost. We've got shirts to sell, too; at least fifteen hundred dollars worth on hand now. Just think, selling Manhattan Shirts at actual cost right in the height of the season. Everybody wants shirts now and nobody objects to getting them at wholesale prices. Don't be mulish and refuse to take advantage of the many good bargains we are throwing in your way. This is a REBUILDING SALE.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with indigestion.

A great many people who have suffered with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having dyspepsia. Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol. When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating food, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, giddiness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. But what you want, let Kodol digest it. Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is only AT ALL DRUGGISTS

Her First Sorrow

The big house stood on the corner of one of the best residential streets and its great glass windows, its heavily carved entrance, the massive porch, the tall palm waving upon the steps and the well appointed surroundings indicated unambiguously that the owner was a person of means and consequence in affairs of the world.

The door opened and a white-robed nurse descended the steps and carefully inspected the street and then looked at the cloudless sky apparently to detect any lurking rainstorm that might interfere with the pleasure of Dorothy, whose six years of life amid every luxury that wealth makes possible had not been marred by the knowledge that the world contains aught but joy and happiness.

Satisfied that the street held no dangers and that the sky contained no fog and that she returned to the house and a moment later there came down the steps the tallest girl, a little lady whose very presence upon the thoroughfare seemed to brighten it and give to the brown-stone mansions a cheerier tone.

Such a dainty, charming little girl as she was. The blue skies were reflected in her eyes and the sunbeams played at hide-and-seek among the curls that rebelliously escaped a restraining ribbon and fell upon her shoulders. The daisies upon her diminutive hat bobbed a pleasant greeting to the passerby, and the grizzled old street sweeper, on whom she bestowed a friendly smile as to an old acquaintance, rested upon his broom and followed her with an admiring gaze as if contrasting the meagre pleasures of his own little ones with those of this pretty child of luxury.

Sharing all her joy and brightness, there capered by her side a fox terrier, the whiteness of whose coat indicated the care given him and the pink bow on his neck plainly marking him a dearly beloved treasure of his little mistress. His sharp, black eyes twinkled and danced as his playmate and he made their way along the street. When the two friends came to a crossing, the gruff, red-faced man in the delivery wagon shouted a hoarse "Whoa!" to his horses, and, tugging on the reins, brought them to a stop, and even the chauffeur who always delighted in witnessing the antics of the impatient rick of his own and other people's lives or in making pedestrians scurry out of his way lessened the speed of his big automobile to a snail's pace that the little girl and her companion might reach the next curb in safety.

The terrier pranced about, now and then bounding up to his mistress in the sheer exuberance of his joy, and when he threatened her spotless dress, was gently reproved and remained obedient at her heels only to jump forward a few moments later, and then, in answer to her call, return to her, usually with a twig or stick in his mouth as if to offer it in token of apology for his disobedience. It was unfortunate that the young man who walked briskly up a side street did not obey his impulse to put in leash the devoted four-footed companion that trotted by his side. The English bull dog came of a long line of ancestors whose names were carefully registered and in whose blood was the lust of battle. Indeed, his owner had laughingly remarked that he could name from memory more of his pet's forefathers than he could of his own.

Gentle and affectionate to his master, the sight of another dog aroused in him the demon that dozed fitfully, and his heritage—the love of strike—became uppermost. As the young man reached the corner, he was the first to note the approach of the two little friends and he instinctively turned to grasp the collar of the bull dog. At the same instant the terrier, with the bravado of puppyhood, gave a short, sharp bark.

There was a flash of white past the young man as the bull dog, heedless of command, ended his master's outstretched hand, and a moment later, a series of pitiful yelps as the bull dog seized the terrier by the throat and shook him furiously. The frightened screams of his mistress, who, in her ignorance of the danger, rushing forward to protect her pet, brought on a run the burly policeman from the next block. The bull dog's ribs almost cracked as the officer kicked him with his heavy boots and beat him unmercifully with his club, but the dog seemed only to kindle the dog's desire for the life of his innocent victim, and there was a tightening of his jaws as the agonized yelps of the terrier grew fainter.

The young man, heedless of his own safety, finally secured a grasp upon the jaws of the bull dog, and exerting all his strength, endeavored to pull them asunder. The muscles of his arms hardened and as the cruel teeth slowly drew apart, the terrier fell in part upon the street. Gathering in her arms his poor isolated body and hugging it to her breast, unmindful of the blood that stained her dress or the dirt that covered the white hair and the pink ribbon she had lovingly tied around his neck, she gave way to such grief that the officer could only stand silently and pityingly beside her while the young man muttered an imprecation against his dog, the cause of the tragedy.

Bobbing as if her heart was broken, the little girl turned toward her home, where she had groped with her only playmate. The great shadow had come into her life. Her little friend was dead.—ANNA MODEROTT.

CACTUS STILL MINUS THORNS.

Burbank's Experiment Will Make the Plant Useful as Fodder. Los Angeles, Cal.—Official reports on the first summer's field cultivation of the Burbank thornless cactus were made public. The average results are pronounced successful. The report says that the thorns that the thornless varieties would revert to the old habit of growing thorns have been dispensed. The use of the plant as a fodder for cattle seems to have been established.

HORSES KILLED IN BATTLE.

Fine Memorial to Them Erected in South Africa. Horses killed in battle now have a monument to their honor. It recently has been erected at Port Elizabeth, South Africa. When Lord Byron put up an elaborate monument to his dog, Boson, everyone regarded it as a mad caprice, but now a general public subscription has been raised by English people for the purpose of perpetuating the memory of "the services of the gallant animals which perished in the Anglo-Boer war, 1899-1902." Pictures of this monument are being sold in great numbers, mostly among army officers, though the animal-loving public is also buying them largely.

The first horse monument ever raised by public subscription consists of an oblong pile of granite on the top of which are two figures—a life-sized bronze horse and a kneeling soldier offering the animal its food. The figures are beautifully executed. The granite base of the statue serves a utilitarian purpose by forming a fine drinking fountain, both for man and beast, a huge granite block being hollowed out into a trough, into which water flows from three spouts in the form of lions' heads.

On the base of the monument is the significant inscription: "The greatness of a nation consists, not so much in the number of its people, or the extent of its territory, as in the extent and justice of its compassion." The services of horses in the South African campaign were quite as essential as in winning the battles where cavalry engagements, and troops had to be moved rapidly from one part of the country to another. Enormous numbers of horses were requisitioned from all parts of the world, and the mortality among these animals was very great, though there are no definite figures at hand. The monument to these "gallant steeds" has been raised by small subscriptions from all parts of the British empire; a large portion of the funds coming from various "humane societies" and from officers and men in the army.

Freaks of Wireless.

Wireless telegraphy has many apparently mysterious qualities for which scientists have been unable satisfactorily to account to the layman. Failure to operate on account of the conditions of the atmosphere has been the chief source of annoyance. Another fault, which has recently been remedied, is in the absence of secrecy in transmitting messages. Lightning and other electrical disturbances have also caused some inconvenience, but in the event of a storm the apparatus is now usually grounded in order to prevent injury. It is reported that lightning will seriously injure if not entirely destroy instruments, even though it might strike at a point five or ten miles distant.

Why the wireless has worked better at night or in cold weather rather than hot, why transmission is better on the Pacific Ocean than on the Atlantic, or why communication is better in one direction rather than in another, have been puzzling questions. These elements of unreliability and disappointment are now disappearing, however, and the confidence of the public has been won.

Originator of the Base Ball Field. Our veteran base ball writer, Mr. T. H. Murnane, declares that to Alexander J. Cartwright, of New York, belongs the credit of conceiving and mapping out the ball field just as it remains to-day. In fact, the bare lines that he laid down at the foot of Murray Hill, New York, in 1844 have never been changed an inch. Speaking of the great Duke of Devonshire, New York, once said: "Well do I remember the afternoon that young Cartwright came up to the old field and unfolded his pet game, then practically without rules. Never do I remember noting the sunbeams fall with a more sweet and mellow radiance than at that particular afternoon in May." The game still depends largely on the weather.—Boston Globe.

Clipping the Finger Nails. Clipping the finger nails was one of the most important services the ancient barber rendered to his patrons. Martial, chaffing a fellow who had tried to dodge the barber by using plasters to remove his beard, asks sarcastically, "How about your nails?" And the miser in Plautus collects the parings of his nails to make something out of them, seemingly, never dreaming that he could have clipped them himself. The nail clippers of to-day, or manuring, has passed from the barber to young women from whom radiates a perfume strong enough to help in the work, and whose modern coiffure gives the highest touch to the art.

Good Dry Mash.

A mixture of bran, shorts, and corn meal in equal parts kept in the kitchen makes the preparation of a mash for laying hens easy. While the dinner is cooking throw all table waste, vegetable and apple parings into a kettle and boil till done, season as for the table with salt and pepper, and thicken with the mixed meal. If there are no meat scraps add a teaspoonful of beef scraps for each hen every other day.

The New Clergyman.

Isn't he lovely! I thought his first sermon was splendid!

"Well, I did all I could to prevent his coming. You wait and see. He isn't at all the man for us."

"To bad, isn't it? Anyone can see at a glance that he has no manners."

"Charming, isn't he? I'm just in love with him. I think his reserve is, oh, so inspiring."

"Seems a pity he cannot preach a better sermon. Such a poor delivery."

"What a fine presence he has! And his sermons! I'm in love with them."

"You can tell he is a worker! Wonderful power!"

"Between you and me, I don't like him at all. I'm greatly surprised at the vestry getting such a man. Why, he's really quite common. And so brusque!"

"Don't you adore his sermons?"

"What wonderful eyes!"

"Not at all up to our standard. Oh, dear, and I did so hope that this time we would get some one really worth while."

"I shall give up my pew."

"I've taken another pew in front. I want to be as near to him as possible."

A Drunkard's Dog. The difference between a dog and a man is that man is most faithful to the rich and the powerful. Dog serves loyally wherever he is enlisted, caring nothing for either the class or the condition of his master. An old seafaring friend of Tip, returning to his ship in Philadelphia on a bitter cold night, noticed a man lying on a pile of lumber at the end of the pier. He was drunk and my friend tried to rouse him, fearing he would freeze to death, but a spaniel by the side of the sleeper would not allow him to be touched. Nor when the watchman tried to approach the pair, was he permitted to disturb the dog's charge and he did not have the heart to drive off the faithful animal. When the steamer was preparing for departure in daylight, with the propeller churning the water, up came the body of the man, in his arms his dead dog. The drunkard had rolled overboard in his drunken stupor, and a watery death with him was the choice of his faithful guardian.

Infancy and Civilization. In "Excursions of an Evolutionist," page 316, Fiske states his doctrine as follows: "As helpless babyhood came more and more to depend on parental care, the correlated feelings were developed on the part of parents, and the feeling sexual relations established among mammals in general exchanged for permanent relations. It is not difficult to see how infancy, extending over several years, must have tended gradually to strengthen the relations of the children to the mother, and eventually to both parents, and thus give rise to the permanent organization of the family."

With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is quite important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

Consequently, the Company's Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna gives general satisfaction. To get its beneficial effects buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. A Salisbury citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

William H. Nicholson, 400 Loomis Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I was troubled the greater part of last summer by my back and kidneys. I was in pain all the time and I could not sit down or stand still without having a severe backache. In the morning when I got up I was lame and stiff and it really seemed as though I would be unable to endure the misery much longer. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I obtained a supply at White & Leonard's drug store. I used two boxes and since then I have not been bothered by my back or kidneys. I willingly give my testimonial in favor of this excellent remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

GILA MONSTERS INCREASING.

Whether Bite of this Lizard is Fatally Poisonous to Man Unsettled.

"Naturalists who recently visited the Mojave desert in Arizona say that there has been an increase in the number of gila monsters in that region," said Dr. A. B. Cedron of Prescott, Ariz.

"These lizards are of great interest to naturalists, for in spite of investigations authorities still differ as to whether the bite of a gila monster is fatally poisonous. I have had several instances come under my observation where men have been bitten by gila monsters, but none ever died. In the case of a gila monster biting a guinea pig, however, the poison was fatal a few minutes after the guinea pig had been bitten. The natives of the Southwest, particularly the Indians of Mexico, sincerely believe that the bite of a gila is fatal to a human being and the lizard is held in much awe by them.

"It is likely, however, that this fear is occasioned largely by the repulsive appearance of the reptile. The head is very prominent, comprising about one-fifth of the total length of the body and like the back it is thickly covered with yellow and black tinted tubercles. Its skin is very tough, and although the bones of the tail are fragile this part of the reptile is very strong. It being possible for the monster to raise itself and balance the body on the tip of the tail, thus enabling it to climb rocks and steep ascents. There is no doubt that the teeth lead to glands containing poison. It is very slow in its movements, but it is not timid like other reptiles. If one attempts to strike the gila with a stick it will grasp the weapon in its jaws like a dog does, and when angered it emits its breath in a succession of quick gasps. It is supposed that the breath of the gila has a drug-like effect on insects, and as it can be detected at a considerable distance it is believed that this is the way it catches its food."

Captured Monster Shark of the World.

Along the ocean waters of southern California, the "man eating" sharks often attain an immense size. Very recently two fishermen succeeded in capturing what was beyond question the largest "man eater" ever killed in the world.

This marine monster was caught in San Pedro Bay and was engaged in robbing the fishermen's net, when it became hopelessly entangled. After being stranded, and killed with harpoons, the huge fish weighed 14,000 pounds; it measured 32 feet from tip to tip, while the circumference of the body, just forward of the high dorsal fin, measured 15 feet. The fearful mouth of this voracious monster was 2 1/2 feet wide horizontally—and 3 1/2 feet vertically—from tip of snout to point of lower jaw.

So large was the mouth when opened that two children had ample space in which to sit comfortably. After being killed, the monster was carefully skinned, stuffed, and placed on exhibition at Los Angeles. Subsequently, the shark was purchased by an eastern museum.

When ripped open, the shark's capacious maw was found full of fish. The sharks of southern waters are great net-robbers, and give the fishermen no little trouble. This huge fish gave the two fishermen a long and savage fight before it was killed.

Several years ago an immense shark was caught and killed at Port Los Angeles Bay, which was then considered the largest prize of the kind in the world. Its total length was 22 feet, and it weighed 9,000 pounds. But the San Pedro Bay "record smasher" was ten feet longer and weighed 5,000 pounds more.

Did Job Have Influenza? Bishop Thornton, vicar of Blackburn, has been suffering from influenza, and he writes in his parish magazine:

"One needs to pass into the depths of influenza to understand some of the verses in Job, Lamentations and the Psalms!

"I have sometimes been conscious of an almost comical incongruity in watching, say, on a sunny morning in a crowded church a healthy, well-fed, bright-faced choir boy warbling from his cushioned stall, "I am withered like grass." My days are consumed like smoke." By reason of groaning my bones cleave to my flesh."

"But the exhaustion of the sickbed can eliminate all sense of exaggeration in such phrases as we have quoted."

Coquelin's Memory.

"How many parts do you know well enough to play to-night if need be?" somebody asked Coquelin. He took a sheet of paper and wrote down the names of fifty-three plays of his repertoire. His friends laughed.

"You're boasting, surely, mon ami!" said the Viscount de Lovenjoul. "You have every one of these plays in your library," said Coquelin quietly. "Get them all out and put them on the table." The Viscount did so.

"Now," said Coquelin, "let anybody select a cue from any one of these plays at haphazard and give it to me."

"They tried him with sixteen plays out of the fifty-three and he never missed a single cue or made one mistake."

Congo Free State.

The Congo Free State in mid-Africa has 900,000 square miles of territory. At present its imports amount to only about $4,000,000 a year, consisting mainly of cotton-wool, coffee, rubber, and other food products, steamers and boats, machinery, clothing, arms and ammunition, hardware and metals. The chief products of the country are rubber, ivory, gum copal, palm kernels and palm oil.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., One of the largest and oldest drug stores in the world, 233 North Second Street, Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

TO EASTERN SHORE

New Trolley and Ferry Line To Be Incorporated Soon. Cost $3,000,000

Articles of incorporation for a company to operate a trolley line on the Eastern Shore, with connection by ferry with Baltimore, will be filed at Chestertown, Kent county, within the next few days and subscriptions to the stock of the concern may be invited shortly thereafter. The present plan of the promoter is to offer the stock to the public, in the belief that small investors will welcome the opportunity of backing the enterprise. The company will be called the Baltimore and Eastern Railway Company. On conservative estimates the promoters believe that the road can be completely equipped at a cost of $2,500,000 to $3,000,000, this to include rolling stock, power houses and all the requisites of a first class road, and "there is to be no water," said a promoter. As yet the names of the incorporators and officers have not been divulged, nor will be until the papers are filed. At the same time it may be said that practically all will be found in the membership of the Travelers and Merchants' Association, the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association being described as "in no way interested in the enterprise."

Whether grain elevators will be built in connection with the new roads has not yet been determined, although such a move is anticipated if a demand for them be advanced. At present, say many grain raisers of the Eastern Shore, they are practically "frozen out" of the elevators of the Pennsylvania Railroad, while the Baltimore and Ohio elevators have also been described as far from hospitable.

How Philadelphia is Favored.

Furthermore, said a leading local business man yesterday, the inspection of goods at Philadelphia is far more liberal than in Baltimore, wheat being graded one point higher in the former city than here, and, therefore, bringing a better price in the Philadelphia market.

Still another instance of the unfairness to Baltimore business was cited by this same authority in the case of a hotel manager who wished to equip a house on the Eastern Shore, and who went to Philadelphia for the furniture. "I not only made up my fare from Baltimore and all traveling expenses, but I also saved $100," he said. "And," he added, in conclusion, "I actually believe that the stuff I bought was made in Baltimore; but the freight rates sent me to Philadelphia."

While the Travelers and Merchants' Association is backing the new line, the Merchant and Manufacturers' Association is still at work on plans for the erection of a bridge across the bay to the Eastern Shore, and is said to be negotiating with several companies to that end. As soon as the company to undertake the enterprise is selected, the intention is to begin work at once and to complete the structure as soon as possible. According to estimate the bridge should be finished within five years.

Plans for New Line.

The plans of the Baltimore and Eastern Railway Company, as laid out in its papers of incorporation, are as follows: To convey passengers to and from Bay Shore Park, probably over the lines of the United Railways which are at present running direct to that point, a distance of 16 miles, in one hour. From here fast ferry steamers will cross the Chesapeake to a point in Kent county, nearly opposite a distance of 10 miles, in 45 minutes. From the Kent county ferry terminal a trolley line will be built to Chestertown, 10 miles; Centerville, 11 miles; Easton, 21 miles, and to Cambridge Ferry, 14 miles, at which point power or other boats will connect for Cambridge. The total distance from Baltimore to Cambridge Ferry is about 82 miles. The trip from Baltimore to Easton, a distance of 65 miles, will take about two and a half to three hours.

The road will pass through Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot counties, and it is also proposed to maintain a fast steamer ferry service between Rock Hall and Bay Shore, which will be a valuable addition to the main line.

The construction of the road and its connections is expected to increase land values to such an extent that Eastern Shore property owners can well afford to give it the right of way. A number of towns situated on the Choptank river such as Secretary, Choptank, East New Market, Windy Hill, etc. can also be connected at Cambridge Ferry by means of power boats. Branch lines are proposed from Easton through the lower counties of both Maryland and Delaware, all of which are great trucking counties.

The proposed line will make connection with the Chestertown branch of the Pennsylvania railroad to Chestertown, with the Centerville branch to Centerville and with the Oxford branch to Easton. It will also connect with the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia lines at Centerville and with the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic at Easton. The cost of building this line complete from the Kent Ferry terminal to Cambridge Ferry, including powerhouses, rolling stock, terminal stations on each side of the bay and at Cambridge Ferry is estimated at $2,500,000 to $3,000,000.

Advantage To Baltimore.

According to the promoters the new line will put Baltimore on even a better basis than Philadelphia and bring this city within three hours of the center of the Eastern Shore, and by a "clean, delightful route at low fares." The same will apply to the bringing of produce to this city. It is proposed to connect with the lines of the United Railways at Bay Shore Park which are at present running direct to that point, and by this connection passengers can be landed directly in the commercial, shopping and theatrical districts of the city. A new pier will be built between the present Bay Shore pier and the lighthouse for the passenger ferry, and also a railroad ferry.

The organization of the new company is the first practical step toward a connecting link of rapid transit between Baltimore and the Eastern Shore, and the means of bringing that rich territory in direct communication and quick access of the markets of this and other nearby cities. It will bring the Eastern Shore farmer and merchant to Baltimore quickly and cheaply to purchase his goods, and also afford him a ready means of getting his produce to market in the very best condition for ready sale at the best prices. It will serve to open up and develop the Eastern Shore.

MADAME DEAN'S FRENCH FEMALE PILLS.

For His Old Partner

By HAYDEN CARRUTH

We were proud of that tree when we got it ready a half-hour before the exercises were advertised to begin. It was the first Christmas tree the camp had ever known.

Everything was going smoothly when a man came in leading an immense mongrel dog of sinister expression.

"Gents," he said, with a manner which was a mixture of the impertinent and the diffident—"gents, are you going to do a favor for an old man?"

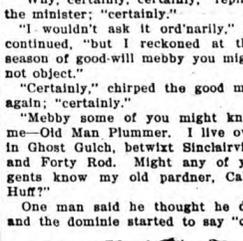

"Why, certainly, certainly," replied the minister: "certainly."

"I wouldn't ask it ordinarily," he continued, "but I reckoned at this season of good-will mebbe you might not object."

"Certainly," chirped the good man again; "certainly."

"Mebbe some of you might know me—Old Man Plummer. I live over in Ghost Gulch, betwixt Sinclairville and Forty Rod. Might any of you gents know my old pardner, Caleb Huff?"

One man said he thought he did, and the dominie started to say "certainly," but checked himself when he realized it was not the truth.

"What I want to do, if it ain't going too fur," he went on, smiling, "is to put a little Christmas gift on your tree for my old pardner Cale."

We all said we'd be delighted to have him do so, and he went on:

"Cale will be tickled to death to find that his old pardner has remembered him at this year holiday season. He's soft that way, Cale is."

"It's the dog, gents, what I want to give to my old pardner Cale. Can you handle a dog on your tree for a poor old man, gents?"

"Why, certainly, Mr. Plummer," said the minister, quickly, "and be very glad indeed to do so."

"Thank you, Parson. That dog comes from the heart, that dog does, and my old pardner Cale will feel it. It ain't the money value of a gift what counts, gents, but the heart what's in it."

The minister made the usual semi-humorous remarks and then turned to begin taking of the presents. The dog jumped at his throat. The chain saved the dominie, but the jerk on it was so severe that half the popcorn and most of the candles came tumbling off the tree. There were sounds of indignation in the audience.

Then Harley Brown volunteered to shoot the creature, at the same time producing an implement for the purpose.

At this point we noticed agitation in an unshaven citizen standing on the other side of the church. Then the head of the man slowly began to rise, and we saw our mistake. When some five feet of him had become visible above the heads of those seated about him we realized that he had at first been sitting. The uplifting had been performed slowly, and with slight pauses, and even now we were not sure that he was all up; he might you'll just remove him, please, we can go on with our exercises as planned."

"My old pardner!" cried Mr. Huff. "That dog comes to me in the name of friendship. I accept him in the spirit in which he is given." He sidled out into the aisle, and slowly advanced toward the front. His hand had advanced reluctantly almost to the dog's collar. The animal flew up like a steel spring. Mr. Huff went backward over a pew.

"In my opinion," said Harley Brown, rising, "the only way is to shoot the critter, as I said before. We want our presents sometime to-night."

"Young man," replied Mr. Huff, "don't talk of such violent proceedings at this year time of peace on earth. The dog is mine, and I'll have the law on any man what touches him. No; we'll get them gifts, precious remembrances from loved ones, by mild ways. If no one will come forward with a shank bone, will somebody lead me an umbrell?" He was accommodated in this respect, and again advanced cautiously toward the tree. The dog stood up and growled. "There, now, young man," he continued, "you see these things can be removed easily with this year umbrell." Come forward, my young friend, and show that your dorges for them them gifts is genyooine, and that you are not accoated merely by a thirst for the blood of a feller-critter." Harley Brown stepped up and took the umbrell, but his efforts met with rather meagre reward. The dog constantly tugged at his chain and made the most frantic efforts to reach the throat of Harley. After ten minutes' work he succeeded in hooking off a china doll and a meerschaum pipe, but as the labels had been lost from both articles the situation was not materially improved.

"Gentlemen," began Caleb, keeping at a safe distance from the tree, "we must try other tactics. We must not be discouraged. Set down and remain calm. I will now propose a plan myself. We will rope off them gifts. Is there any cow-man here who knows how to sling a lariat?"

The stock-growing interests did not seem to be represented, probably from the fact that there was also a Christmas entertainment that night down at South Fork.

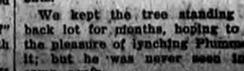

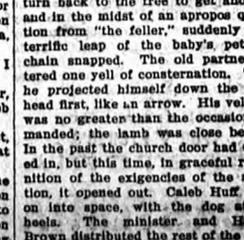

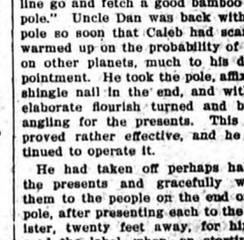

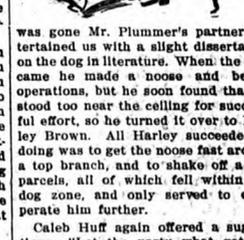

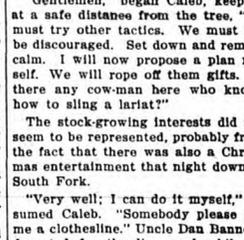

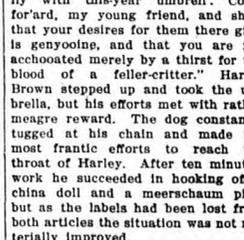

"Very well; I can do it myself," resumed Caleb. "Somebody please get me a clothesline." Uncle Dan Hancock departed for the line, and while he was gone Mr. Plummer's partner entertained us with a slight dissertation on the dog in literature. When the line came he made a noise and began operations, but he soon found that he stood too near the ceiling for successful effort, so he turned it over to Harley Brown. All Harley succeeded in doing was to get the noise fast around a top branch, and to shake off a few parcels, all of which fell within the dog zone, and only served to exasperate him further.

Caleb Huff again offered a suggestion: "Let the party what got the line go and fetch a good bamboo fish-pole." Uncle Dan was back with the pole so soon that Caleb had scarcely warmed up on the probability of dogs on other planets, much to his disappointment. He took the pole, affixed a single nail in the end, and with an elaborate flourish turned and began angling for the presents. This plan proved rather effective, and he continued to operate it.

He had taken off perhaps half of the presents and gracefully waved them to the people on the end of the pole, after presenting each to the minister, twenty feet away, for him to read the label, when, on starting to turn back to the tree to get another, and in the midst of an apropos quotation from "The Teller," suddenly at a terrific leap of the baby's pet the chain snapped. The old partner uttered one yell of consternation. Then he projected himself down the aisle head first, like an arrow. His velocity was no greater than the occasion demanded; the lamb was close behind. In the past the church door had opened in, but this time, in graceful recognition of the exigencies of the situation, it opened out. Caleb Huff went into space, with the dog at his heels. The minister and Harley Brown distributed the rest of the presents.

We kept the tree standing in a back lot for months, hoping to have the pleasure of laughing Plummer at it; but he was never seen in our camp again.

THE RUSSIAN POLICE

The Powerful Instrument by Which Autocracy Rules.

The Russian police is a rather complicated army with its generals, officers, etat-major, soldiers and spies. At the head of this powerful institution stands the Minister of the Interior, or Home Secretary. The police regulations practically form his sole occupation, and all questions relative to the internal government and welfare of the country, such for instance as social hygiene, rural economy, justice, position of the peasantry, etc., only in so far concern the Minister of the Interior as they are more or less closely related to the movement of Liberalism and the emancipation of the people. In special cases, when the maintenance of order becomes imperative, the Minister is invested with unlimited power.

The general as well as the political and secret police are under his orders, governors and even general governors are his subordinates, and he possesses the undoubted right to dismiss any police officer, even the highest, informing only the imperial Government of the step taken through the council of Ministers. The heads of the provincial and district police are the governors and general governors, the lapravniks and their assistants. At the head of the town police stand the police master and his assistant or adjutant. The Minister of the Interior is also virtually the head of the political police, which has a police department with the safety and secret police sections and a corps of gendarmes at its disposal. The police department attached to the Ministry of the Interior, and to which all the lower police are subordinate, extends its active duties over the following fields:

Prevention and detection of crime and criminals.

The watching of the frontiers of the empire.

Supervision of and issue of passports.

Emigration.

Supervision of drinking establishments.

Measures preventing fire.

Statutes regulating the establishment of various societies and permission to hold exhibitions and to give public entertainments.

The government of Russia is based upon its police. Now western Europe has long ago broken the chains of autocratic and absolute government. Social and individual powerlessness, to which the jealousy of absolutist rulers had condemned their subjects, has gradually disappeared or is beginning to disappear. Not so in Russia. Here police and society represent two hostile camps engaged

In a continuous war against one another, and the former, far from being the servant of the latter, is practically its master. Society is always being suspected by the police department and its officials. Suspected of what? Suspected of gradually awakening to political consciousness, of gaining the conviction that a radical change from the political and economic points of view is absolutely necessary for the welfare of the country; but the Government, convulsively clinging to the status quo, is desperately fighting against society, crushing all the latter's attempts to gain political liberty.

ARMY MULES OBEY ORDERS.

Success in Handling the Animals Consists in Knowing How.

Horse and mule men at the Kansas City stock yards stood in admiration on a recent afternoon, while the soldiers of Battery A and B, Second United States Artillery, under Lieut. R. O. Mason, loaded thirteen cars of mules in twenty-five minutes. It was a new record on the loading docks, and it wasn't accomplished by any unusual methods either. Nor was the mule driver's vocabulary resorted to. How did they do it? The lieutenant simply called the roll and the mules responded to their names.

"Nigger," called an officer, and a little black gun mule ambled up.

"Now, Mollie, you're next; now Cyclone," and Cyclone came like a cyclone.

His Tributes.

The essential difference between the signification of words and terms in the English tongue which are almost the same in etymology and origin is a great element of difficulty to a foreigner who is learning the language—a fact to which a certain attaché of a foreign mission at Washington recently testified.

When the budding diplomatist in question arrived at our national capital a year or two ago, he soon capitulated to the charms of a young woman of the official set, and they speedily became the best of friends. A month or so ago the attaché returned to his country after a lengthy leave of absence passed in his own land. About the first thing he did on reaching Washington was to seek a mate in the lady of his admiration, whom he had established and indisposed in many expressions to this country.

"Once more, my dear," said the young woman, "I have

WHITE WIVES LEAVE CHINATOWN

New York Police Order Them to Pack Up and Quit the District at Once

WHERE THEY ARE BOUND FOR

It was a Curious Sight, the Exodus of the Pell Street Women—The Police Made a Room-to-Room Search Through the Five Tenements.

New York City.—Not content with stopping gambling in Chinatown, Capt. "Mike" Galvin, of the Elizabeth street police station, ordered all white "wives" of Chinatown to "move on."

By nightfall all but a few of the "wives," who have done more than even the opium joints and plegow and fan tan to make the quarter "picturesque," had gone away.

"Where are they going?" replied Capt. Galvin, to a questioner. "I can only tell you, as President Taft told a questioner in Cooper Union when he was asked what a man was to do who wanted to work and could find no work, 'God knows.' Many of them say they are going to the country for the summer to be waitresses in summer hotel and boarding houses. A few say they are going home. Some of them admit that they are going 'up town.' That means to the Tenderloin, but even then they will be better off than they are down here. Their lot, if they don't reform, will be hard enough anywhere, but at least they will have a chance for their lives if they get away from Chinatown."

"Please let me stay until Saturday night," begged a fair-haired girl who looked as if she had left her mother's roof only a few months ago.

"How much do you need to get away?" Three dollars would be enough," she told him. "That would pay the

THE WALRUS AN EQUINE

But He Prefers an Exclusive Fish Diet.

A drop of the blood of a walrus shows no relation to a drop of whale's blood, or of the blood of any other oceanic animal, such as seals or porpoises, which, like the walrus, are mammals that have taken to the sea. Instead of that, the blood of the walrus immediately reacts with the blood of horses, asses and swans, thus proving that he is an equine that no longer crops grass, but goes where he can live on an exclusively fish diet. Likewise, the hippopotamus is shown to be a modified pig.

Where a blood relationship exists, but is distant, these reactions are proportionately faint, but where no reaction occurs there is no relationship at all. Thus, geology indicates that birds are descended from reptiles, and, oddly enough, the blood of a bird shows a distinct though very faint reaction with the blood of a snake, but none whatever with that of the winged bat or the flying squirrel, for these are mammals.

On the other hand, the marsupials, once such a great family, but now reduced to the kangaroo, the opossum and a small creature in South America, have now not a single blood relationship left. As to man, he has no relationship to monkeys, but the blood of anthropoid apes shows a very faint reaction with his. Meaning, all the races of man are unmistakably of one blood, whatever their color or shade.

Hence the blood is by far the most hereditary thing about us. Neither the shape of the skeleton, nor the contour of the body, nor brain, heart, lungs, stomach, intestines, liver or kin, nor even ancestral habits about the great Food Question—Darwin's only creator—how to eat or keep from being eaten—are comparable to a single drop of blood for telling the correct story of descent. All this gives a new meaning to the words, "For the blood thereof is the life thereof." Likewise, the old saying that insanity runs in the blood now wears a scientific look, since blood and family are so inseparably associated.

"Thou" and "You."

Americans have reason to be thankful that, in their country, everybody addresses everybody else as "you," regardless of the degree of familiarity between them, for otherwise, tragic occurrences might happen like the following, told in a Mexican newspaper.

Two Mexican workmen were employed in the building of a house. Although they had known each other quite a while, they did not feel exactly intimate. So there was much mutual respect and Castilian bowing and scraping as the two worked side by side.

But suddenly one of the workmen addressed the other as "thou." The other, dropping his load of "adobe," stared in polite amazement. It was a breach of etiquette. The "thou" stage had not yet been reached—by no means. But the first man again brazenly called his fellow-laborer "thou."

Of course, that was beyond Mexican endurance. The insulted party drew a knife and stuck it violently into the offender. The latter was removed to the hospital, where he promptly expired.

It is hoped that this will be a lesson to others of his kind.

Up to the Editor.

The country editor kept nagging at his new apprentice and finding fault with his work, until the criticism became wearisome.

Finally the worm turned.

"Dye expect to get a second Horos Greeley for five plunkers a week?" he demanded, sarcastically. "If you do you are backing up the wrong sagging can't set type or sling ink with Ben Franklin or Horos Greeley, not on my present recompense, but you make the salary six simoleons, cash down every Saturday night, and I'll pitch in and set the journalistic piastrels sizzling in Punksville and vicinity, even if I have to stay up seven nights a week to do it."

"There's my offer, blast yer stinky hide! And now if you don't get out a half way decent journal hereafter, it is the fault of your own meanness!"

Crusty Old Gentleman.

Some people are so queer, "Now, I think there is nothing that should be more appreciated than a generous child."

"What are you referring to, my dear?" asked her neighbor.

"Why, the baby. I had him in the car yesterday and right in front sat a crusty old gentleman with a white beard. Four times the baby offered him a stick of candy and each time he only frowned. When the soft candy got stuck in his side whiskers he became very fery and told the conductor, 'Wasn't he rude?'"

An Orphan.

A well-known professor has a bright boy, who one day at the age of four appeared in his father's study, clasping in his hands a forlorn-looking little chicken, which had strayed from a neighboring incubator.

"William," said his father, "take that chicken back to its mother."

"It hasn't any mother," answered William.

"Well, then, take it back to its father," said the professor, determined to maintain parental authority.

"It hasn't any father," said the child. "Hasn't anythink but an old lamp!"

Was Ready.

Here is a charming bit of obituary sentiment from an eastern newspaper: "He had been married 46 years and was prepared to die."

The Gullible Uncle.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "it 'pears to me like de public was composed of people hangin' round waitin' to be fooled. An' dars allus no less competition among de smart men of de country 'bout who's gwinter hab de pleasure of tendin' to de job."—Washington Star.

fare and give me dinner and breakfast; but I'll bet more than that."

"Where are you going?" asked the Captain.

"I'm going home, Mr. Galvin; I've had enough of this. I never smoked but once and never took cocaine, and maybe I can get on my feet again. I'm going to try anyway."

Capt. Galvin gave her the $3 and had to put on his sternest manner to keep her from throwing her arms about his neck. She promised to leave at once.

Many stories have been written of beautiful white girls who were virtually prisoners of Chinatown. Probably the writers did not believe them, much less the readers, but it is a fact that in Chinatown there are many women who would put some of the Broadway chorus. Many have taken the names of their Chinese "husbands," or are more picturesquely known as "Boston Annie," "Chicago May," "Chinatown Mabel," "Montana Mame," "Sadie, the Lady," or by some personal peculiarity, as "Blondy Bess" or "Cuban Sue."

If one asks them how they came to fall so low, they will say that Americans, not Chinamen, are responsible; that they were taken to dives in Pell or Mott street when hardly more than children and taught to smoke opium; and that once they had not the courage to face even their fallen sisters in the upper strait of half-world society.

No vans were required to move the women. The best of them could get together only enough property to fill a small express wagon. One woman had a parrot in a cage, another a small monkey. Most of them had dogs or cats. Some wept when taking leave of their Chinese friends. All the while the Orientals walked up and down Pell street thinking much, but saying little.

Most of the women in Pell street who have been evicted are from the South and West. The police say there are in Chinatown comparatively few women born and brought up in this city. They are girls who drift here in misfortune from other places and finally get to Chinatown.

GREAT CROWDS ATTEND

The First Salisbury Fair—They Enjoy The Four Days And See The Sights.

Yesterday closed probably the largest attended Fair ever held on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, covering the Peninsula between Wilmington and Norfolk.

Around twenty five thousand people witnessed the four days of recreation, an average of over 6000 each day.

The order throughout was exceptionally good, the officers having scarcely any difficulty with, as well behaved crowds as a Law and Order League could wish to see.

Fine displays marked the booths in Exhibition Hall and Salisbury firms figured prominently in the large and varied wares. In comparison the exhibits were really notable considering that this was the first year.

A most flattering feature to the management and Wicomico generally is the feeling of appreciation and expressions of good will on the part of the thousands of visitors.

That the future of Salisbury's Fair is firmly assured is well borne out by the gratifying success of its initial debut. In the racing it was manifest that the track is one of the fastest, if not the fastest on the peninsula, and the free for all race on Thursday gives it the lowest mile time 2:10 1/4 of any track on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia.

Exhibitions And Midways.

Among the exhibits you find that of the Salisbury Hardware Company, next down the hall is the Fancy work Department. This display was exceedingly elaborate and exquisite. The piano companies are well represented, there being exhibits of fine pianos by Steff and Knabe, of Baltimore and W. T. Dabell, of Salisbury. Among the other exhibits are, Harper and Taylor's Jewelry booth; Household Department, Ulman Sons, two booths furniture, etc.; Kennerly—Shockley Co.; Singer Sewing Machine; Art Department, which contained an elaborate display; Floral Department, containing a large display of potted plants, palms, ferns, rubber plants, etc.; L. W. Gundy Hardware Co.; Farm Products, composed of mammoth water melons, pumpkins, cymbalings, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, beets, onions, corn, etc.; the Salisbury Light, Heat and Power Co.

The entire grounds were illuminated by electricity, and the beaux and their sweethearts, husbands and wives, an joyed promenade down "midway" and visiting the many attractions along this Avenue. On this stretch besides the different shows, ice cream, hot sausage, sandwiches, popcorn, candy, soft drinks, and exhibits by Perdue and Gundy, of Salisbury, J. T. Taylor, of Princess Anne, and T. A. Vasey, of Delmar, of vehicles and harness of all kinds; Dorman and Smith's exhibit in their house of corrugated iron which they erected; Salisbury Hardware Co.; Farmers and Plaster Co. farm machinery; exhibit by R. McKenny Price of a windmill to advertise this part of his business. Then the tent of the Glass Blowers, one of the most interesting exhibits on the ground.

Mr. R. H. Phillips proprietor of the Peninsula Hotel says that he has accommodated on an average 700 people per day at table and roomed about 170 and is convinced from what some of the biggest horsemen say in regard to the management that he can handle any amount of people who may come to Salisbury. The crowds have been accommodated there without the slightest hitch this week.

HAD GOOD CAMP

At Parnassusburg. Two Suit Cases Of Liquor With Carriers Arrested.

Parnassusburg camp closed Sunday night after ten days of excellent and highly gratifying meetings. The camp was largely attended and Sunday, August 22, was a record breaker in attendance for the first Sunday of any camp held on the Peninsula for several years.

The order was excellent throughout, as has been the record of the camp during its existence. The pastor was assisted by the following ministers: G. P. Jones, District Superintendent; F. M. Faulkner, G. P. Smith, D. F. McFaul, J. W. Fogie, T. F. Beauchamp, J. H. Wilson, J. M. Mitchell, G. W. Hastings, G. S. Thomas, C. E. Williams, Thos. Laverly, J. R. Wilson, Mr. Humphreys, of Salisbury. The people were delighted with Miss Swain, the Deaconess, of Washington, D. C., and will gladly welcome her again.

On Sunday night, Chas. Bunting and Harvey Hastings came from Ocean City, with two suit cases full of liquor, but the trustees had been informed and were on the lookout, and before they had time to dispose of their wares they were arrested and lodged in the county jail. They were released Thursday by paying $60 and costs. It is reported that the men have been running a "speak easy" at Ocean City. It might be well for Ocean City officials to send for the Parnassusburg trustees.

Report of District Nurse.

The report of the District Nurse for the period of one month—from July 15th to August 15—shows that she made a total of 451 visits. First week, 54 visits; second week, 70; third, 89; fourth, 88; fifth, 70. The patients numbered 30, only two being pay patients. The cases consisted of abscesses, burns, typhoid fever, cancer, malnutrition, cholera infantum. Eight patients were discharged, there was one death.

Misses May and Maud Cannon, of Morris Mills, Somerset County, and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Matthews, of Salisbury, Del., are the guests of Mrs. L. T. Hearn, Poplar Hill Avenue, this city.

PATTISON AND JONES

Named At Ocean City By First District Democrats As Judicial Candidates.

John B. Pattison, of Cambridge, was unanimously nominated a chief judge of the First Judicial Circuit of Maryland, and Robley D. Jones, of Snow Hill, associate judge, by the Democratic judicial convention of the First district, in session Wednesday afternoon at the Atlantic Hotel, Ocean City.

Ex-Senator John P. Moore, of Snow Hill, called the meeting to order, and named Henry S. Lankford as temporary chairman, and L. Atwood Bennett, as secretary. Later these officers were made permanent.

Mr. Pattison was nominated by T. Sangston Linsley, of Dorchester. The nomination was seconded by F. Leonard Wallis, of Wicomico.

Robley D. Jones was nominated as associate judge by J. Shiles Crockett, of Dorchester and the nomination was seconded by H. L. D. Stanford, of Somerset and E. Stanley Towbin, of Wicomico.

There was no opposition and the secretary was instructed to cast a unanimous vote for the parties nominated. The committee to notify Mr. Pattison consists of Sangston Linsley, of Dorchester; Henry Waters of Somerset, F. Leonard Wallis, of Wicomico, and J. Shiles Crockett, of Worcester.

Mr. Jones will be notified of his nomination by John W. T. Webb of Dorchester; Luther T. Miles, Jr., of Somerset; E. Stanley Towbin, of Wicomico, and Edgar W. McMaster of Worcester.

REPUBLICANS POSTPONE

Nomination Of A Ticket Postponed Until August Thirty-First.

The Republican Convention for Wicomico County met at noon Tuesday for the purpose of nominating candidates to be voted upon at the election this fall. This part of the program of the Convention was postponed, however, and the ticket will be nominated at an adjourned meeting to be held August 31st, at the courthouse at ten o'clock. Levin A. Parsons was chairman, and H. W. Owens, secretary of the Convention.

The following were elected delegates to the State Convention: Charles Wilson, W. R. Wilson, W. F. Langrell, G. A. Parsons, L. A. Parsons, E. H. Walton, J. T. Snook, H. J. Bonnds, Fred Collins, W. E. Miller, J. P. Cooper, V. R. Duan, Harry I. Larmore, M. A. Humphreys and B. W. Richardson.

Elected members of the Republican State Central Committee to serve for the next two years: Hon. W. H. Jackson, W. H. Knowles, Joseph L. Trist and A. L. Wingate.

FEVER AT REHOBOTH

Mild Case Of Scarlet Fever At Delaware Seaside Resort.

Dr. A. E. Francis, secretary and executive officer of the Delaware State Board of Health, has been at Rehoboth where he went to inquire into conditions resulting from a prevalence of scarlet fever there. There is no abatement of the fever at the Sussex County seaside resort. There have been several new cases in the past week, and there are now about twenty cases. A week ago there were twelve cases.

All of the cases are of a mild type, however, and many of the patients have almost recovered. The general belief among the physicians attending the Rehoboth cases is that the disease was brought there by some of the summer visitors. They point out that none of the all-year-round residents of Rehoboth are afflicted, and hence argue that it is not due to sanitary conditions.

The crises in many cases were over Thursday.

Horse, Buggy And Occupants Go Over Embankment

On Saturday last, a fatal accident was narrowly averted on the mill-dam across Parson's Pond.

Mrs. L. D. Collier, Mrs. George B. Collier, and Mr. C. C. Dorman, while going over this dam en route to the Fair Grounds, had just crossed the bridge at the West side of the dam, when their horse became frightened and backed over the embankment on the east side of the bridge, overturning the buggy and throwing the occupants out. The embankment is about eight feet high, and it is marvelous how the party escaped serious injuries to themselves. All sustained bruises, but Mrs. Geo. B. Collier received the most painful one, having her head sprained considerably. She was able to get out again Sunday evening.

Temperance Topics

GERMAN WOMEN AND DRINK
The increase of intemperance among the women of Germany is being promptly brought to public attention. Among the higher and more educated classes the drink habit is more conspicuous.
Authoritative statistics show that not less than 10 per cent of alcoholics in Germany are women, and of recent years the ratio has tended to increase. Yet there is no public institution in the empire for their special treatment, although many appeals have been made by medical practitioners to the authorities to deal with the evil.

Abstainer as a Good Samaritan.
And it came to pass as a certain man journeyed from the cradle to the grave he fell among saloonkeepers, who robbed him of his money, ruined his good name, destroyed his reason, and then kicked him out worse than dead.

Despite some surface indications which cannot hide the actual fact, it may be set down as incontrovertible that there are to-day millions of total abstainers from alcoholic drink who were only a few years ago practically none at all a century ago. Says a well-known authority on this topic: "A hundred years ago nearly everybody took something. Liquor was to be found on every sideboard. Besides the grogshop, every grocery sold it, and no tavern was without it. Freer was its use than water by the human species."

Refuses to Be Hit.
"The temperance question has reached the stage in every state where it refuses to back up and is hit. The sentiment is gaining ground that a business that has to have thrown about it all the restraints and protections of the law is a business that is not respectable enough to exist unrestrained in a civilized community, and it makes it necessary for the man behind the bar and vat to go slow."—Denver Times.

How Produces Criminal Insanity.
"Beer-drinking in this country produces the very lowest forms of insanity, closely allied to criminal insanity. The most dangerous class of tramps and ruffians in our large cities are beer-drinkers."—Scientific American.

"NECKLING" JEROME
New York City.—When William Travers Jerome, District Attorney of New York County, appeared before the people of New York at Cooper Union to answer for his stewardship, he passed through an ordeal unique in the city's annals. The announcement that the District Attorney would answer questions submitted to him drew the greatest crowd the historic forum has seen in many a day. Long before 8 o'clock the police closed the doors and turned their attention to fighting a great crowd of men and women who struggled to gain admission.

William Travers Jerome.
The District Attorney's account of his stewardship was received with varied sentiments on the part of the crowd, which agitated repeatedly from hisses to shouts of approval and back again. The aisles between the rows of seats were lined with policemen and force was used by them repeatedly to quiet particularly insistent interrogators of Mr. Jerome.

TOBACCO SENDS WOMAN MAD
Mrs. Alice Mullens Used the Weed from Childhood, Chewing Two Pounds a Week.
Alton, Ill.—Driven insane by the excessive use of tobacco, Mrs. Alice Mullens of this city has taken to her wardsville after being pronounced insane by the Madison County Court. Mrs. Mullens, who is 35 years old, used tobacco from childhood, chewing it in great quantities. At times, it is said, her supply has reached two pounds a week. She began using the weed when a girl of 16, and at 30 she was a physical wreck. Since that time she has lived in Alton township and given the county authorities all sorts of trouble.
Mrs. Mullens is an attractive woman and her case is one of the strangest the officials have yet had to deal with. Persons who visited her in her home say that the often went to bed with tobacco in her cheek. She also smoked occasionally, a pipe preferred, although cigars did not come amiss when proffered to her. Scrap tobacco is her favorite, and six big packages were an average week's supply for her. A police matron who investigated her case reported she had not a bite of food in her house, but had a big market basket full of tobacco scraps on hand.
Mrs. Mullens is somewhat of a mystery to the police, who have been unable to ascertain if she has any relatives or where her home was before she came to Alton. She rented a house in East End place, a respectable neighborhood, and lived there alone.

WORLD'S YOUNGEST COLLEGE PRESIDENT.
There had been a boy, four years her senior, of whom she had been fond, and who had always been her escort to these affairs. What good friends they had been! But later when they had grown older and he had asked the privilege to become something dearer than a friend she had said no and sent him away.
Then her heart's wish had been to become a great singer, and she had been willing to sacrifice love for her art, but though the years had brought her at first success and then fame, she was not entirely happy. Often she had felt a sense of loneliness, and yearned to see her home and Stanley Roberts again. Now, she had seen her native town, but she did not know where her girlhood's sweetheart was. She had heard of him only a few times since they had met, but she had been glad to learn that he was earning money as an illustrator. Until this season she had spent the years abroad, and it was there she had gained her laurels.
She listened mechanically to the first recitation. Then after that she suddenly became conscious that something had gone wrong. From those near her she soon learned that the pupil who was down on the programme to sing had sent word that she could not come. Acting upon a swift impulse the woman made her way to the platform and volunteered to sing for the school. She was greeted with delight, although they doubted a little among themselves that she could sing as well as Milly Brown. Still it was much better than to be obliged to omit the singing.
A hush stole over the villagers as the rich contralto voice filled the little room. They had heard "Home, Sweet Home" many times in their lives, but never like this.
The woman was singing as the European public had never heard her sing. If it could have listened now to its idol it would have gone wild with admiration. She was singing to one person in the world—the did not know where he was. She had not seen the man who had quietly slipped into a seat in the corner.
When she had finished this song, the people broke into an applause which fairly shook the building. Their enthusiasm pleased her, and after this she sang to them—her people—all the home songs that she knew would please them, and they listened, entranced, with undried eyes.
At the glorious voice sobbed into silence, and the woman stepped quickly from the platform. In the excitement that followed she stole from the room. The man saw her go, and after a moment he, too, left the school-house.
The woman walked slowly along with bowed head. She was saying to herself that she would gladly give up the adulation that was so sweet to her—everything—if she could only hear him say that he loved her, when she heard her name spoken very tenderly.
She turned to confront the one of whom she had been dreaming. For an instant it seemed to her as if they were in a dream world and that her singing had been the means of bringing him to her side. But the next moment she recovered herself, and she greeted him in a collected manner.
"I've been longing to see you all these years," he said, "and now we meet here. Something impelled me to leave the city this morning and come back to the village. I persuaded myself that it was because I wanted to see the old place again, but now I know that I came to see you. I heard you sing; it was wonderful. I shall always love you, dear, but now I understand that I should not have expected you to give up that glorious gift."
"There is a gift which is greater," she interposed, softly.
The man looked down into her eyes, and the love light which she had told him what she meant. TRICE F. HARMON.

He has written a book called "The Problem of Evil."

SOCIAL SLAVERY.
Mrs. Howard Gould Could not Dress Properly on $40,000 a Year.
New York City.—Mrs. Howard Gould's admission that she "could not dress properly on less than $40,000 a year" is interesting as showing how severe are the sartorial obligations which the possession of wealth imposes on women.
Under this gilded martyrdom to fashion she was obliged to change her costumes three times a day at Palm Beach—lingerie, gowns, shoes, hats, parasols and all—not because of an extravagant taste but merely because "it is bad form to wear a gown twice

PHOSPHORESCENT SNAKE.
Reptile Glows Off Glowing Light When in Dark Place.
Richmond, Va.—Morgan Gordon, a farmer of Henrico County, brought to the City Hall, a six-inch worm or snake on which were scales.
When the worm was taken into the darkness of the city vaults its body glowed like a string of pearls, the light being sufficient to enable the officials to recognize one another in the darkness of the vault. The thing seemed to be harmless, though an opportunity to sting or bite was not afforded it.

A Modern Reason.
Back—What would you do if elect of President?
Myran—Y'd let the Vice-President run the country, and I'd go on the Chamquaqua lecture platform. There's lots of money in it.
Where Two Are One.

Second Man (sitting down).—That's all right, old fellow. She's my wife.

The Greater Gift
A chill wind blew from the north, and the woman drew her furs closer around her. Just ahead of her was the small school-house, ablaze with light. Quickening her step, the woman followed the neatly shoveled path up to the door and entered. She checked the exclamation of surprise which rose to her lips as she looked around. Nothing was changed, from the prim rows of desks with their knife-docked tops to the old rusty, wheezy stove in the corner. The Clarksville folk were not progressive. They believed that what had been good enough for their parents was good enough for them.
The woman took a seat at one side of the room and quietly removed her furs. Many curious looks were sent in her direction by the villagers, who were apparently surprised to see a stranger in their midst. But no one would recognize her, she said to herself, as she observed their curiosity. She had counted upon them when she had left their company at Clinton, and stolen away to take the train for this little out of the way village. She had come to the one hotel in the town, and made her plans to spend the following day in visiting familiar scenes, but when she had overheard the proprietor mention that the pupils of Clarksville Hollow were to give an entertainment at the school house this evening, although she was very weary from her journey, she had not hesitated a moment before deciding to come.
It did not seem possible that 18 years had passed since she had left the village, and that only about 15 had elapsed since she had been a pupil in this same tiny schoolhouse.
There had been a boy, four years her senior, of whom she had been fond, and who had always been her escort to these affairs. What good friends they had been! But later when they had grown older and he had asked the privilege to become something dearer than a friend she had said no and sent him away.

THE SALISBURY FAIR.

The first year of the Salisbury Fair is now history and there is room for honest congratulations to its officers for the splendid showing made.

When it is considered that 25,000 people turned out for a holiday and a good time the cases of intoxication were exceedingly rare.

Salisbury has done itself justice in its accommodations, the great crowds having been handled with comparative ease.

A favorable impression has gone forth among many erstwhile strangers from all parts of this and contiguous states, of the growth and prosperity and attractions of progressing Salisbury—the busy, humming metropolis of Maryland's splendid Eastern Shore.

CASTORIA

OYSTER CROP

Will Be Bumper. Month of R's Will Open New Supply of Prosperity On Eastern Shore.

The busiest man on the Eastern Shore during the month of August is the oysterman. The tonging season opens September 1, and he is as busy just now as anyone can well be, getting his craft in perfect working shape for the months of "r's," and having his tongs repaired or new ones made to replace those that are beyond repair, as well as looking after the wherewithal which is sure to bring the license from the clerk's office.

The outlook for the Eastern Shore oysterman is very bright this year, in fact, they are expecting to reap a bumper harvest. They have become reconciled to what they once termed "the nefarious Haman Oyster Law," and seem to understand it and its purposes almost thoroughly and can expatiate upon its virtues with an eloquence that would be apt to bring blushes of pride to its father, B. Howard Haman, could he hear them.

But such is not the case. If these are any favors in the Haman law the oysterman, and other oyster packers are the beneficiaries. With all their money the oyster packers can only lease so much bottom—not a foot more than the oysterman can—and as there are very few oystermen in the State who would work the beds of the packers for love or money, it would hardly pay the latter to invest their money that way.

Now that the oystermen have fallen in line with the Haman law they are preparing to fall in line behind the oyster this fall. The law they believe to be the best one for the oyster industry that has been passed since Maryland has been "burdened with Legislatures." The bivalves were never more plentiful than they are this year, and it is all due, so the oystermen declare, to a rigid enforcement of the Haman law and the provisions contained therein for their protection against what is known in this section as the "oyster pirate."

August 30th I am going to tear the very guts out of the in-terior of this store. It begins to dawn on the minds of a good many men that Lacy Thoroughgood is doing busi-ness on a trifle different plan from the usual run of merchants. That he not only claims to sell things to wear cheaper than anybody else but that he does sell them that way; that when he makes a statement in a newspaper about a piece of goods, about a price, he always has it exactly as he said he would—every suit he sells he guarantees, every article that goes out of his store is guaranteed, every suit he sells has a guarantee label sewed on the outside of the inside coat pocket which says GUARANTEED—A NEW SUIT WITHOUT CHARGE IF THIS ONE PROVES UNSATISFACTORY. Take advantage of this RE-BUILDING SALE, you'll make money.

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength. You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you. It would bankrupt us.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR
M'GUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

A handsome young soldier of fortune, a princess of enchanting beauty, two eccentric adventurers who leave wills disposing of the island of Japat and its ruby mines, two heirs who must marry within a year to inherit the property despite the fact that they are already married, a shrewd American lawyer, a scheming British solicitor, a pretty stenographer, a prince who is musical and profligate and a horde of fanatical Moslems who will inherit the riches of Japat provided the heirs do not marry each other—these are the leading characters in a romance which for genuine novelty, thrilling and unusual situations, live American humor and the pathos of a great but apparently hopeless love has rarely been equaled and never surpassed.

CHAPTER I

THE LATE MR. SKAGGS was stimulating, to say the least, inapplicable though the expression may seem. He attained the end of a hale old age by tumbling aimlessly into the mouth of a crater on the island of Japat, somewhere in the mysterious south seas. The world had quite thoroughly forgotten him during the twenty odd years immediately preceding his death. It was, however, noticeably worth while to remember him at this particular time. He left behind a last will and testament that bade fair to distress as well as startle a great many people on both sides of the Atlantic.

In Boston the law firm of Bowen & Hare was puzzling itself beyond reason in the effort to anticipate and circumvent the plans of the firm of Bosworth, Newnes & Grapewin, London, E. C. while on the other side of the Atlantic Messrs. Bosworth, Newnes & Grapewin were blindly struggling to do precisely the same thing in relation to Messrs. Bowen & Hare.

Without seeking to further involve myself I shall at once conduct the reader to the nearest of these law offices.

"Pretty badly tangled, I declare," said Mr. Hare, staring helplessly at his senior partner.

"Hopelessly," agreed Mr. Bowen, very much as if he had at first intended to groan.

Before them on the table lay the contents of a bulky envelope, a long and stupendous letter from their London correspondents and with it a copy of Taswell Skaggs' will. Mr. Bowen recently had been named as joint executor of the will, together with Sir John Alencroble of London, W. C. one time neighbor of the late Mr. Skaggs.

A long and exasperating cablegram had touched somewhat irresolutely upon the terms of the will, besides notifying him that one of the heirs resided in Boston. He was instructed to apprise this young man of his good fortune.

There was one very important, perhaps imposing, feature in connection with the old gentleman's will—he was decidedly sound of mind and body when it was uttered.

When such astute lawyers as Bowen & Hare give up to amazement, the usual forerunner of consternation, it is high time to regard the case as startling.

"Read it again, Bowen."

simply because there is no Miss Rutledge. She's Lady-Lady—what's the name?"

"Deppingham."

"And Browne already has one Mrs. Brown, so his credit, don't you see, Well, that settles it, I'd say. It's hardly probable that Browne will murder or divorce his wife, nor is it likely that her ladyship would have the courage to dispose of her inheritance in either way on such short notice."

"But it means millions to them, Hare."

"That's their unfortunate lookout. You are to act as an executor, not as a matrimonial agent."

"But, man, it's an outrage to give all of it to those wretched islanders. Bosworth says that rubies and sapphires grow there like mushrooms."

"Bosworth also says that the islanders are thrifty, intelligent and will fight for their rights. There are lawyers among them, he says, as well as jewel diggers and fishermen."

"Skaggs and Lady Deppingham's grandfather were the only white men who ever lived there long enough to find out what the island had stored up for civilization. That's why they bought it outright, but I'm hanged if I can see why he wants to give it back to the natives."

"Perhaps he owes it to them. He doubtless bought it for a song, and, contrary to all human belief, he may have resurrected a conscience. Anyhow, there remains a chance for the heirs to break the will."

"It can't be done, Hare; it can't be done. It's as clean an instrument as ever survived a man."

It is by this time safe for the reader to assume that Mr. Taswell Skaggs had been a rich man and therefore privileged to be eccentric. He came of a good old country family in upper England, but seems to have married, a bit above his station. His wife was serving as governess in the home of a certain earl when Taswell won her heart and dragged her from the exalted position of minding other people's children into the less conspicuous one of caring for her own.

Their only son was killed by a runaway horse when he was twenty, and their daughter became the wife of an American named Browne when she was scarcely out of her teens. It was then that Mr. Skaggs, practically childless, determined to make himself will-less as a man.

He magnanimously deeded the unentailed farm to his wife, turned his securities into cash and then set forth upon a voyage of exploration. It is common history that upon one dark, still night in December he said goodby forever to the farm and its mistress, but it is doubtful if either of them heard him.

my part, I'm never going back to England."

"No, I. It would be just like me, Jackie, to 'ave a relapse and never get out again."

The old friends took an inventory. Jack Wyckholme, gentleman's son and ne'er-do-well, possessed £9 and a fraction, an appetite and excellent spirits, while Taswell Skaggs exhibited a balance of £1,000 in a Shanghai bank, a fairly successful trade in Celestial necessities and an unbounded eagerness to change his luck.

"I have a proposition to make to you, Tazzy," said Mr. Wyckholme late in the night.

"I think I'll listen to it, Jackie," replied Mr. Skaggs, quite soberly.

As the outcome of this midnight proposition Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme arrived two months later at the tiny island of Japat, somewhere south of the Arabian sea, there to remain until their dying days and there to accumulate the wealth which gave the first named a chance to make an extraordinary will. For thirty years they lived on the island of Japat.

Wyckholme preceded Skaggs to the grave by two winters, and he willed his share of everything to his partner for thirty years' standing. But there was thirty years' standing. But there was just as there was in that of Skaggs. Each had made his will some fifteen years or more before death, and each had bequeathed his fortune to the survivor. At the death of the survivor the entire property was to go to the grandchild of each testator, with certain reservations to be mentioned later on, each having by investigation discovered that he possessed a single grandchild.

The island of Japat had been the home of a Mohammedan race, the outgrowth of Arabian adventurers who had fared far from home many years before Wyckholme happened upon the island by accident. It was a British possession, and there were two or three thousand inhabitants, all Mohammedans. Skaggs and Wyckholme purchased the land from the natives, protected and secured their rights with the government and proceeded to realize on what the natives had unwittingly prepared for them. In course of time the natives repented of the deal which gave the Englishmen the right to pluck and sell the rubies and other precious stones that they had been trading away for such trifles as silks, gewgaws and women. A revolution was imminent, whereupon the owners organized the entire population into a great stock company, retaining four-fifths of the property themselves. This seemed to be a satisfactory arrangement despite the fact that some of the more warlike leaders were difficult to appease. It is only necessary to add that the beautiful island of Japat, standing like an emerald in the sapphire waters of the orient, brought millions in money to the two men who had been un- lucky in love.

And now, after more than thirty years of voluntary exile, both of them were dead, and both of them were buried in the heart of an island of rubies, their dead and their deeds remaining to posterity with reservations.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache. Merely symptoms of kidney ills.

A Salisbury citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

William H. Nicholson, 400 Locust Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I was troubled the greater part of last summer by my back and kidneys. I was in pain all the time and I could not sit down or stand still without having a severe backache. In the morning when I got up I was lame and stiff and it really seemed as though I would be unable to endure the misery much longer. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I obtained a supply at White & Leonard's drug store. I used two boxes and since then I have not been bothered by my back or kidneys. I willingly give my testimonial in favor of this excellent remedy."

A DAUGHTER OF THE TROPICS

The pavilion was built upon a shelving rock that overhung the waters of the bay. Pendleton and the girl sighed in unison as they gazed down by the railing and admired the beauty of the scene.

"A beautiful night," murmured the girl in liquid Spanish.

"A bewitching night," corrected Pendleton in a whisper, his eyes glowing ardently as he turned and let his gaze meet that of the girl. For a moment both were spellbound; their lashes were lowered and they sighed again as they turned their glances seaward.

For a time the pair sat in silence, entranced by the splendor of it all; then Pendleton moved along the seat a little nearer to his companion. The gentle breeze stirred the delicate perfume in her hair and wafted it across tantalizingly to his nostrils. The down of her fan brushed his hand as it lay upon his knee. He turned his eyes to her again and, as if magnetically compelled, hers turned to meet his own. At what he read in them, Pendleton's senses swam.

"Lola," he whispered, and gathered her into his arms. For a moment the girl yielded and lay passive in his embrace, submitting to his kisses; then with a frightened cry she wrenched her hand on his breast and pushed him from her.

"Senor! Senor!" she panted, "we forget. She of the North—that other of whom you told me—what of her?" Pendleton laughed bitterly. "I pinned my faith to the wrong star; she has thrown me over."

The girl averted her head and repressed a smile; then turned away to Pendleton, her lips pouting.

"And so," she said after a short silence, her voice simulating reproach, "the senor comes to me with his wounded heart."

"No! no!" protested Pendleton hastily. "Do not think so, senorita; I—I think I cared for you before I knew that."

But the girl detected a lack of ardor in his words. The mention of the Northern girl had broken the spell. With every moment his manner became more constrained, and it was a relief to both when someone was heard approaching the pavilion, calling Pendleton's name.

"A message for me, very likely," he said, rising. "You had better remain here while I see who it is." When he had gone the girl sat, chin in hand, gazing out to sea. And so it had been accomplished, she mused, and after all with not very much trouble. The confiscation of a few letters—but that was easy with her cousin, Felipe, in the postal service. And then, after a time, a most condoling letter to the girl in the North, signed with the name of one of Pendleton's nearest friends, regretting, oh, so much, that Pendleton had proved perfidious. And then the letter from the North that Felipe had brought to her, the flap of whose envelope she had steamed open, whose contents she had read. Oh! it had worked so beautifully. But she of the North was proud. Not one hint of her knowledge of Pendleton's supposed baseness; only a request that their engagement terminate because she found she cared more for someone else. And then the envelope had been resealed and Felipe had returned it to the mail, and behold! the result!

But there still remained the bitter with the sweet. The mention of the Northern girl had effectually damped Pendleton's ardor. What if it should be so always—not necessarily the mention of her name, but the thought of her which would come to him in the future? Now she thought he had tortured her. And this—Lola was convent-bred—there was heaven to be reckoned with. Al! Dios! yes, how would she live at the hands of heaven? She buried her face in her hands and wept. Suddenly she straightened; she must undo the evil she had brought about. She shuddered at the thought of facing Pendleton and telling him the shameful story.

After a minute or two she raised herself and taking up her dance order, began writing on the blank surface of its back, hastily, feverishly, so as to finish before Pendleton's return.

Meanwhile Pendleton had met the servant who was searching for him, and his chief was waiting for him. When he returned to the pavilion he had been absent at least half an hour. He sprang up the steps with a contrite apology for his neglect, then halted suddenly; the pavilion was deserted. Pendleton spied the dance order fastened to the railing by a jeweled pin. He picked it up and read what Lola had written. It was brief, but it told him the whole shameful story.

For a moment he was stunned; then a startling suspicion entered his mind. He leaped over the rail and peered searchingly out upon the bay. Was it fancy or did he really see something—an arm—a face—gleaming white on the shimmering surface of the water? "Lola! Lola!" he called, his voice so husky he could barely speak.

"Madre de Dios comes—now—my soul—to—thee," came faintly to his ears.

A cloud swept over the face of the moon and blotted the scene from sight. When it had passed the ripples were widening where the white had gleamed.

"Lola! Lola!" called Pendleton again, but everywhere was silence; silence save for the sighing of the sea where the bar reached across the entrance to the bay.—ELIZABETH W. GREENTHORN.

Congo Free State. The Congo Free State in mid-Africa has 900,000 square miles of territory. At present its imports amount to only about $4,000,000 a year, consisting mainly of cotton-pieces goods, liquors and beer, canned meats, vegetables and other food products, steamers and boats, machinery, clothing, arms and ammunition, hardware and motifs. The chief products of the country are rubber, ivory, gum copal, palm kernels and palm oil.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, trick-draw or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and get the book, or something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

BACK TO ASYLUM CELL

Insisting He's Sane, And That Judge Errod, White's Slayer Returns to Mattawan.

Harry K. Thaw was taken from the Westchester county jail to his old quarters in the Mattawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane, New York, Wednesday afternoon.

He bade good-bye to his mother in the consultation room of the jail, waved good-bye to some of the jail attendants and, accompanied by William H. Moore, one of his personal employees, left the jail in custody of Dr. Baker and two attendants from the asylum. Thaw appeared to be fairly cheerful. His mother bore up well. She will move to Mattawan Friday to resume her residence near the asylum. Before leaving Thaw said:

"I don't question Justice Mills' honesty, but surely his opinion is not as good as that of Dr. Adolph Meyers or Dr. Schmidt and all the other alienists who examined me or the Judge or laymen who know me well. I wish to express my appreciation of the respect showed my mother, but if my mother breaks down or the bad conditions at Mattawan should ruin my health Justice Mills will be responsible for sending me there, for his decision is not supported by lawful evidence. It was hard to be acquitted by 12 men and then looked up by one."

Dr. Baker and his charge reached the asylum soon after seven o'clock tonight.

Thaw's mother today made a statement, in part as follows:

"The only request made for my son was that he be transferred to the Bloomingdale Asylum, although as a sane, acquitted man he should have been liberated altogether.

"The thought was suggested that the Judge would surely order this change if a personal appeal was made to him. Quickly and gladly my daughter offered to go, but her hard journey was fruitless. Harry goes with his courage undaunted by this outrageous decision, and we all look forward confidently to the action of the Court of Appeals.

Letter to A. J. Schneck, Salisbury, Md.

Dear Sir:—There are thousands of people saying "That's what I call a good job of paint, it has won three years. I'm going to repaint before it needs it; three years is enough."

Those people are a long way behind the times. There are two reasons for painting: those people know only one; they are thinking only of wear; of keeping out water. Three years may be too long for the looks of paint; it isn't half long enough for the wear. If all you want of paint is to keep out water, Devco is good for a dozen years in average places. And that isn't all.

The cost of the job is the first thing to think of, and, if you think of it right, you needn't bother with wear. The paint that takes least gallons makes the least bill for both paint and painting; people forget the labor bill; it's the biggest bill in the job. A gallon saved is about $6. Five gallons saved is $30. The paint that saves gallons that's the paint to wear.

Geo. W. Brown, Union, S. O. painted B. F. Arthur's house there twelve years ago with 30 gallons; repainted five years ago lead and oil with 26 gallons; last year Devco with 14 gallons. There's $30 saved on paint and labor; don't know what he paid for that 30 gallon stuff; no matter.

Go by the gallons,
Yours truly,
F. W. DEVCO & CO.
P. S.—L. W. Geary Co., sells our paint.

Georgia Negroes Can't Mimic Whites.

Governor Brown has affixed his signature to the recent act of the Georgia Legislature which prohibits the use by negro secret societies of the insignia, ritualistic work, grips, etc., of orders composed of whites. It legislates out of existence the negro organization of Elks and nights of Pythias, but the negro Masonic and Odd Fellows organizations may continue in operation by changing their badges, rituals, grips, etc., as the latter have names slightly different from the White Masonic and Odd Fellows organizations.

Yet the price remains $1500. By increasing our output and retaining our chassis, we save enough to make these improvements.

SUBSCRIPTION BILLS

Should Be Strictly Regarded And Promptly Attended To.

The following article taken from the Democratic Messenger, published at Snow Hill, Md., shows the means taken by the editors of that paper to collect such of their subscriptions as are in arrears. There are many persons who receive and take a paper year after year, without apparently ever realizing the fact that they are under some obligation to pay for it. Such persons would not think of going to a store and taking a dollar's worth of goods without paying for them, and the only reason that they take a paper without paying for it is because they do not think of it in this way. They forget that it costs money to run a paper. The editors of the Messenger do not intend to let such persons off, if the money can be collected they intend doing so as will be shown by the article.

"We recently placed in the hands of the Newspaper Collection Agency the names of those subscribers stricken from our list in May, 1908, because of their being delinquents. We have waited patiently for these delinquents to settle with us and they apparently expected that we would give them the amounts they owe. We are not doing that kind of business. It costs a great deal of money to run this paper and in the future we will place no name on our list unless the subscription is paid in advance and it must be paid promptly every year thereafter. We are getting our list as near to this requirement as possible. It is not very pleasant for us to resort to legal methods to collect what is due us but we do not intend to be unjustly deprived of that which properly belongs to us. If you owe for the Messenger do not allow yourself to be placed in the delinquent class but promptly bring or send us the amount you owe. We shall begin sending out bills to subscribers very shortly. We will not send these bills as a mere formality but as a notice that we want our money and we expect it from all who owe us."

PROSPERITY STARTING

Again Think Some Of Baltimore's Business Firms. Era Of Good Times Returning.

John R. Sherwood, president and general manager of the Baltimore Steam Packet Company, Old Bay Line, agrees with President Oscar G. Murray of the Baltimore and Ohio, Joseph D. Baker, Frank A. Farst, Franklin P. Cator, Richard H. Edmonds and other leading business men of Baltimore, with whom interviews have recently been published that the county is on an era of prosperity.

"Not only is prosperity coming," said Mr. Sherwood, "but the advance ways is already here. I know this from the amount of business the Bay Line is doing and from my talks with other men identified with transportation interests.

Carrying More Passengers.

"We are carrying more passengers and hauling more freight—much more. I first noticed the change in April. May was better. June still better, and July the banner month of them all. August promises to excel July, and for September and the fall months prospects are most encouraging.

"I have observed for some years that the business of our line could be taken as an index of what was on in the country, and I can just tell you that something is doing." There is no mistake about that. We serve as a gateway between the North and the South. When people are buying goods and shipping them times are not so bad. Goods are being shipped now, and in large quantities. They say that crops have been fine and that the revival of business is due largely to this fact.

South Very Prosperous.

"The South is certainly very prosperous and the Southern people are bustling. We are hauling North all of the products of the South—cotton, much of it in manufactured form, in great quantities; tobacco, pig iron, tar and other things. Formerly the cotton raised in the South was shipped North in the raw state and came back to the South in manufactured form. Now much of it goes to the North in bolts. It is grown in the South and goes through all of the stages there making it ready for the consumer. This is but one of the ways in which the South has developed and advanced in recent years.

"Then we are carrying a large amount of traffic—merchandise of every description—from the North to the South. Some of it comes from points north and east of us and much of it is shipped from Baltimore direct, indicating that the wholesale houses and jobbers are doing business. People are also traveling extensively. This is an indication that money is being circulated."

What Randolph Barton Found.

Major Randolph Barton, the prominent lawyer, who numbers among his clients men of large interests, was asked how he found the business situation.

"The outlook appears very encouraging," he said, "and I think the country is on the eve of a prosperous era. I recently returned from a vacation spent in the North, and while there I met some business men, who took a very optimistic view of the future. I was also much gratified to hear one gentleman, who is a very large manufacturer of hosiery, speak highly of Baltimore as a wholesale market. He said that the wholesale dry goods houses here did a tremendous business, in excess of that of Philadelphia, and that they had a trade that New York could not take from them. This gentleman told me that he sold his hosiery—I think it was to 17 Baltimore firms—and that he was astonished at the great quantities disposed of by them. It is encouraging to hear these things about Baltimore from outside sources when we go away from home.

Acadia Butter Has Large Sales.

Acadia Butter, a product of Middletown Farms at Middletown, Del., is finding its way into many homes in this neighborhood, the excellent quality of the butter commending it to most every family who appreciates the real article. Acadia Butter is as well known in Philadelphia, Atlantic City, and New York as on the Peninsula, having for sometime enjoyed a large sale in these cities.

Letter To W. S. Gordy.

Dear Sir: Here's the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth: Devoe takes less gallons for a job than any other paint. If any one doubts this statement, here's the proof. He may paint half his job Devoe, the other half any other paint. If Devoe half doesn't take the least gallons and cost less money, no pay. Yours truly F. W. DEVOE & CO. P. O.—The L. W. Gunby Co. sells our paint.

VALUABLE SALISBURY

Property Sold At Private Sale. Doctor Graham's Residence And The Hooper Building.

Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Graham sold their handsome home on Division Street this week to Dr. Lewis Morris. This is one of the prettiest sites on Division Street and has one of the finest residences on this Avenue of handsome homes. The property is located on the corner of North Division and Parsons Streets and has a depth of nearly 200 feet. Dr. Morris will take possession of the property within the next two weeks and will have his medical office in his new home as soon as he moves. The deal was made through R. Frank Williams, real estate broker. Dr. Graham will occupy the home of Mr. N. T. Fitch Camden Boulevard.

Main Street Property Sold.

Mr. Elmer C. Williams has sold the Hooper property on Main Street to Mr. J. G. McOronery, who is the owner of the "Laws building," adjoining. Mr. Williams bought this property a year ago of Mr. Gordon Hooper paying $800 for the property and while the price it sold for is not stated, it is understood that Mr. Williams realized a handsome profit on his investment.

The property sold is a handsome three story brick building, fronting 88 feet on Main Street, and extending back 108 feet to West Church Street. The present building only occupies about 50 feet of this depth. It is said that Mr. McOronery the purchaser, will extend the building back so as to occupy the entire lot. The store rooms are now occupied by Lucy Thompson and Harry Dennis.

Mr. McOronery is the owner of the five and ten cent store and it is believed that it is his intention to occupy both stores for his business.

DIG A WELL
MILES DEEP
Scientific and Mineral Discoveries of Great Importance Are Predicted

NIGHT YIELD GREAT TREASURES
M. Camille Flammarion Proposes Digging Geothermic Hole Several Miles Down—Would Have Army Do Work.

On December 30 last I brought up again the idea which I had expounded a long time ago of digging a geothermic well to explore the internal constitution of the globe, writes Camille Flammarion, the great astronomer. Now that the catastrophe at Messina has calmed a little, requests have come to me from many quarters to exactly describe my plans.

The plan is to dig as deeply as possible straight down from the earth's surface to find an economic and almost inexhaustible source of heat, to verify the rate of calorific increase, to find out if the materials constituting the terrestrial globe are in a state of fusion—in a word, to do rationally and directly what has been done slightly and a little by chance up to the present time in mines.

Suppose that this work were undertaken. As the well must be very deep it must also be very wide, and I imagine that a circle of 200 metres in diameter would be sufficient. Where should the earth be taken out to throw? Into the sea. However, this well must not be dug on the seacoast, on account of the danger from marine infiltration, but on a plain at a distance of several kilometres and approximately at the level of the sea. For this reason Belgium, Holland or the French district of Les Landes might be chosen. As for the debris, it could be taken away by rail to the place destined for dumping it.

Admitting the classic rate of heat increase—one degree Centigrade for every thirty-three metres of depth—we would find, doubtless, a temperature equal to that of boiling water at a depth of three kilometres. That would be a wonderful source of heat which could be utilized on the spot or elsewhere.

But, for different reasons, it would be interesting to descend further. First, the geothermic rate of old theories is to-day a moot question. Soundings in different districts have proven that it varies according to the nature of the ground. In one place the heat increases one degree each thirty-three metres, while in another fifty, sixty, or even 120 metres are necessary to produce this increase. In other places, especially in the neighborhood of volcanoes, the thermometer rises one degree in a descent of fifteen, or even ten metres. Thus the temperature of boiling water would be met in some places at a depth of 3,000 metres, in others at 10,000 metres, in still others at 1,000 metres. It would all depend on the kind of land where the experiment was made.

The idea of digging a well to a depth of four, five or six kilometres or deeper appears, without doubt, a little foolish. What about the money for the realization of this foolish project? This prodigious undertaking should not increase by even one cent the budget of the civilized countries which would take part in this work. Soldiers could be employed and a foreign legion of a new order could be established, whose mission it would be to explore the interior of the earth. Soldiers are fed, clothed and housed for exercise with the rifle and cannon. This would change the kind of exercise, that is all. Squads would be organized to dig and others to shovel out the earth. Other squads would be employed in taking away the debris, others in making and placing in position the immense iron structure of hoops to support the sides of the well and others would construct the necessary workshops and labor in the foundations.

Such a work would require years and years, but what matter? Our permanent armies are always there. Gradually also we would see that the millions thrown every year by the nations into the bottomless abyss of the war budget might be utilized in a less barbarous abyss. On the other hand, the earth taken out from this immense hole might be used to make small islands, the exploitation of which would produce, in the long run, a profit not to be underestimated. And who knows what riches, what curiosities geological and paleontological might not be revealed by this investigation into subterranean depths from mines, mines of precious metals, seams of gold, platinum and silver, radium, fossils from the most ancient times, without speaking of all the unknown world which lies in those abysses. And, above all, geology would thus follow in the footsteps of her elder sister, astronomy. If it not a little humiliating to have brought the stars into our range of vision by the power of the telescope, to have measured their distances, to have weighed and analyzed them, and yet to remain in ignorance of what lies at a few kilometres under our feet?

We may think what we please of this geothermic well; but our conclusion will be this—Let us get to the bottom of the problem; let us work, let us seek.

The French Method.
The excellence of the French road is due not to the superior quality of the material used in their construction, as the same materials exist most everywhere, or to the perfection of the French method of construction, for their roads are built according to the Macadam plan, which is also used in this country, but to the superiority of the French method of administration, which places all roads under constant and intelligent supervision.

THE QUEER MUTTON BIRD
Keeps Miners in Australia from Starvation.

"Did you ever hear of the mutton bird?" asked a man of the group he was lunching with at the Mariners' Club. "I thought so," he went on as they all shook their heads. "Yet it is the one thing that keeps the miners in Australia from starvation year after year. It is to them what salt pork and bacon are to such people in the North.

"I was in Tasmania last summer—a year ago now; summer south of the line, you know—and out of curiosity went over to the Furzeau group of islands in Bass Straits to watch the 400 inhabitants doing their six weeks' work killing a million of these young mutton birds. The proceeds from this brief season of labor are sufficient to keep them in idleness the remaining ten and a half months of the year.

This bird is about the size of a sea gull, and its plumage is black when it is full grown. Every year, on the 20th day of September to the very day, these birds come in vast numbers to their rookeries. They lay their eggs in nests burrowed in the ground. There is but one egg in each nest. The young birds are as fat as they are big enough to take care of themselves as forsaken by their parents. By that time they are very fat. It is only these newly hatched birds that have any commercial value. The people catch them, break their necks and later extract the oil by squeezing the bird's body until the oil exudes from the beak. That is the best oil. Later the layer of fat is taken of each bird and tried out. The remainder—the lean meat—is salted and packed away in barrels for the Australian miners, who consume nearly a million of the birds. Eating mutton birds is an acquired taste, but one soon grows to like them. They bring about $2 a hundred. A diet of mutton birds is said to be a sure cure for consumption and other wasting diseases. The oil from these birds is used in tanning leather and to put on machinery.

"Mutton birding is a dangerous business, for the islands are full of poisonous snakes and a man doesn't know when he puts his hand into the bird's burrow whether he is going to pull out an snake instead and be bitten into the bargain.

"The mutton birds are growing fewer in numbers, although the government of Australia is trying to preserve them and even to transplant them elsewhere. Where they go when they leave their breeding grounds or where they come from no one knows. Probably from far away beyond the Antarctic Circle. I was told by a sea captain once—he was in the royal navy—that he had seen a flock of them forty miles long."

What Happened to Worm.
"Dear about the peculiar accident that happened to Maxine Elliott's press agent, A. Tonia Worm, up at Rye the other day?" asked Actor No. 1.
"No; what was it?" demanded Actor No. 2.
"Well, you see, Mr. Worm was visiting a friend of his on a small poultry farm, and while strolling about the place he started to climb a fence and—

"And fell?"
"Yes; his foot slipped and he fell over with a crash into the poultry yard and—

"Fell" eagerly. "What then?"
"A chicken pounced on his nose and swallowed it!"
Much Like Demosthenes.
"Woman," he said, "really ought to be a better orator than man."

"Why so?" she asked.
"Because," he replied, "to a certain extent at least she follows the methods of that famed orator Demosthenes."

"In what way?" she inquired, still busy with the finishing touches of her toilet.
"You remember," he answered, "that Demosthenes used to practice talking with his mouth full of pebbles."

She hastily took the pins out of her mouth and informed him that he was a mean old thing, any way.

Lovers' Perjuries.
"So," she cried passionately; "so you did not mean what you said in that valentine when you called me your 'only love' and implored me to be your 'mate forever'?"
"Nein, nein, nein!" he chuckled coarsely. "Why, don't you know, Jove or somebody else laughs at lovers' perjuries!"

"So does a breach of promise jury," she hissed triumphantly, "but the plaintiff always gets a verdict just the same."

Refuses to Be Hitched.
"The temperance question has reached the stage in every state where it refuses to back up and be hitched. The sentiment is gaining ground that a business that has to have thrown about it all the restraints and protections of the law is a business that is not respectable enough to exist unrestrained in a civilized community, and is making it necessary for the men behind the bars and vats to go slow."—Denver Times.

SELECTING MOTHER-BEETS.

Care Must Be Taken to Pick Out Only Perfect Types. The all-important thing in beet-growing is good seed. In selecting mother beets—that is, beets from which seeds are to be grown, the greatest care must be taken to pick out only perfect and typical types. They must conform to many requirements. They must not be too large, or the sugar contents will be too low. They must not be too small, since small beets are not profitable. They must have a divided tap root or large side roots, since the richest part of the beet is in the lower part of the root. It follows that a mother beet must not be slim, with a long, slowly tapering root that grows deeply into the ground, as such roots are sure to break in harvesting, leaving the best part below ground. The beets must grow entirely below ground, as the part that grows above, must be cut off and wasted in topping. But it is not possible to select mother beets entirely by the characteristics just given. Of the two beets shown in this cut, the one on the right appears to be the better. But also for appearance! Upon chemical analysis the one on the left is far and away above the other in desirability. The one on the left carries 24.8 per cent. sugar in the beet, while the other has only 14.3 per cent. Thus the first is better by over 10 per cent. This leads up to the next step in the selection of mother-beets for seed-production.

Notes by a Working Farmer. To make a success of farming avoid expense. In selecting animals food given to unprofitable animals is wasted. With a variety of stock one can utilize all foods. Best breeds do not insure most profit without proper treatment. All foods for plants must be soluble to be available. It is the little economies that count up most in the end. A high selling price does not lessen the cost of production. Concentrated foods should always be fed with those more bulky. It needs faith in your occupation to bring about complete success. It rarely pays to feed for a merely possible increase in price. Underfeeding stunts growth and overfeeding is a waste of food and of time. There is more profit in growing an animal than in fattening one already grown. Profitable feeding consists in giving an animal that it will eat and digest properly. It is not the hardest labor, but the best directed labor, that accomplishes the best results. The nearer an article is put in condition to suit the purchaser the better it is for the seller. Good food and shelter pay well in either case, but always best when given to the best stock. Profit in farming depends upon three factors—the cost of production, the time consumed in producing, and the price received.

Oats on Rich Ground. A Grundy County (Ill.) farmer asks whether oats will do well on a field which was in corn last year and on which the fall previous a rank growth of clover was turned over. He says that his crop crop was not what might have been expected from a rich clover sod. He also asks whether the oats are likely to lodge on this ground. If our correspondent has read my articles on oats, published in this paper during the last three or four months, he will have observed that I recommend sowing oats on good ground, and not relegating it to the poorest pieces of ground on the farm. This soil, no doubt, in Grundy County is a sandy loam. On account of the stores of nitrogen which this field probably contains I should sow one of the early ripening varieties of oats. These early oats grow rather a short, stiff straw and will stand rich ground much better than the taller varieties. I should not sow over six pecks to the acre, drilled in. I believe that if two hundred pounds of ground rock phosphate was drilled in here ahead of the oats good results would follow. One other thing I wish to speak of here—farmers in Grundy and adjacent counties are practicing this seeding of oats, usually five or six pecks of the small berry varieties and not over eight pecks of the large berry straw. They claim that they get stiffer straws, less rust and less chaffy oats. This thing seeding is usually followed where clover seed is sown with the oats.

SEEMING THINGS AT NIGHT.

Why Objects Appear Fantastic and Alarming. Every one must at times have asked himself why familiar objects in a dim light tend to assume fantastic and oftentimes alarming appearances. The explanation is to be found in the special conditions of night vision. The pupils are widely dilated and, as in the photographic lens with a large diaphragm, the apparatus of accommodation can only focus for one plane. As the faculty of estimating distances is in great measure lost in the obscurity we cannot focus with precision, and a blurred, uncertain outline is thrown upon the retina. Then, too, colors viewed in a fading light lose their distinguishing hue in a fixed sequence until a point is reached at which everything becomes of one uniform gray tint.

It follows that the images which are transmitted to the visual centers are profoundly modified in color and outline, and as they enter the eye through the widely dilated pupil at an altogether unusual angle the movement of locomotion gives them a peculiar mobility.

Now, one relies on experience for the interpretation of sensational impressions, and when these present themselves suddenly in an unusual form they create a feeling of insecurity which finds expression in mental perturbation and more or less violent motor impulsion. In fact, the subject finds himself in the position of a horse which sees a rapidly advancing automobile for the first time and does not know what to make of it.

Imagination aiding, these blurred, mobile and uncertain images are susceptible of the most phantasmagoric interpretation, and in persons who are not accustomed to control sensorial impressions by the exercise of the intelligence the impressions are accepted as realities and acted upon accordingly.

Gamekeepers and others who are accustomed to night work make allowance for phenomena of this class and correct the visual deficiency by the aid of other senses, such as hearing, which are not dependent on light.

SPRINGS AT BOTTOM OF SEA.

How Inhabitants of Hottest Place on Earth Get Fresh Water Supply. Bahrain Island, in the Persian Gulf, is said to be the hottest place on earth. It is usual there to find the thermometer at 140 degrees Fahrenheit. On the coast of this island, where practically all of the people live, there is no fresh water, which is needed above all things in so scorching a temperature.

And it is to be had from the bottom of the sea. Here and there scattered over the floor of the harbor of Bahrain are springs of pure fresh water. These waters well up through the sand to mingle with the salt water of the sea. It would seem a difficult task to find these threads of fresh water amid the ocean's volume, but the thirsty islanders are thought to have found them ages ago and to have passed on their location from generation to generation.

A diver equips himself with a water bag made of skins, the mouth of which is closed, and descends to the bottom of the harbor at a point where one of the springs issues. The bag is carefully inverted over the current of fresh water as it flows up from the sand, the mouth is shut fast and the diver returns to the boat awaiting him on the surface.

One scientist gives it as his belief that at some period in the shadowy past that which is now the harbor's bottom was not touched by the sea. Little springs were on the shore and ready for the islanders' needs. Little by little the sea encroached on the land, but the location of the wonderful springs was not forgotten.

The Tee-Tee Fly, the pest of East Africa. This insect is about the size of the Ordinary American horsefly.

Disappointed. Negroes, even more than white people, perhaps, are given to counting their chickens before they are hatched. A correspondent of The Youth's Companion reports a laughable instance.

Gus, a young colored boy, grew sentimental one Friday evening. "I'm goin' to marry the miter next Sunday, Miss Mary," he said. "But, Gus, that is a long walk. You know it is more than four miles." "Oh, I'm not a-goin' to walk. I'm goin' to ride."

"How is that, Gus? Has your father bought a carriage?" "Naw; but I'm goin' in a kerriage to my uncle's funeral."

All day Saturday Gus could talk of nothing but the coming festivity. To a young "darky" a Sunday funeral is a great event. Law jurisdiction in said Sunday I gave him a holiday, and on Monday expected a full account of the funeral, but Gus appeared with a melancholy face. In answer to my inquiry, he said: "I didn't go, Miss Mary. He ain't dead yet."

A Modern Reason. Back—What would you do if elected President? Myra—I'd let the Vice-President run the country, and I'd go on the Chautauqua lecture platform. There's lots of money in it.

Where Two Are One. In Car—Look here, sir, I got up to give my seat to that lady! Second Man (sitting down)—That's all right, old fellow. She's my wife.

Proclamation

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight, an Act was passed proposing an amendment to Section 1 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State, which said Act is in the following words, to-wit:

CHAPTER X. AN ACT to amend Section one of Article one, title, "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said Amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring, that the following section be and it shall be the duty of the Governor to amend to Section one of Article one, title, "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of this State, and it shall be the duty of the Governor to submit the same to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Sec. 1. All elections shall be by ballot, and every male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, who has been a resident of the State for two years and of the Legislative District of Baltimore City or of the county in which he may reside for one year next preceding the election, and who, moreover, is duly registered as a voter in the county or city in which he shall be entitled to vote, in the ward or election district in which he resides, at elections heretofore to be held in this State, and in case any county or city shall be so divided as to form portions of different electoral districts for the election of Representatives in Congress, Senators, Delegates or other officers, then to entitle a person to vote for such officer, he must have been a resident of that part of the county or city which shall form a part of the electoral district in which he offers to vote, for one year next preceding the election; but a person who shall have resided in any such county or city, entitling him to vote at any such election, shall be entitled to vote in the election district in which he resides, until he shall have acquired a residence in the part of the county or city to which he has removed.

HUMPHREYS DAM PROPOSITION. It has been several months since the dam broke over Lake Humphrey and during all the time the people in that section of the town have been put to considerable inconvenience in getting to and from town.

It is appreciated by all, the difficult problems which the City and the County Commissioners have had to solve in order to get this dam rebuilt so as to do justice to tax payers and all, and no fault is being found with any, but this bridge and dam should be fixed some way and that as early a date as can be done.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM. As expected the Republican platform makes the enfranchisement of the negro the main issue, and as the Democratic party has in its platform made the dis-franchisement their main issue, this question is as was expected, clearly drawn between the two dominant parties of the state and a campaign of education on both sides will be conducted.

On the question of representation of Baltimore City the Republican platform seems to have given the city what she has been asking for. The Advertiser has always believed that it would be for the best interests of the state as a whole as well as for Baltimore City if her representation was not so increased as to give her a dominating influence over the law-making bodies of the state and has given its reasons for this and now feels that the Democratic party went as far as ought to have gone in its promise of this question.

As far as the Public Utility Bill is concerned there does not seem to be very much difference in the promises of the two parties—both promising to pass such a bill as will do justice to both the people and the public service corporations.

The fare food bill seems to be in the same position as is the Public Utility question—both guaranteeing the passage of a bill which will protect the consumer from impure and adulterated foods.

On the question of Direct primaries the Republican platform is silent, and spends some little time in denouncing the Wilson Ballot law, while we believe the majority of the democrats are in favor of a bill making direct primaries compulsory and that such a bill will probably be passed if the Democratic control the next legislature.

ALL DEBTS PAID

At Re-Opening of Riverside Church. Have Good Field Day.

For more than four weeks the Riverside M. E. Church was closed for needed repair and was reopened August 23. Sunday School at 1.30 p. m. was the first service held and this was attended with unusual interest.

I want to express my greatest thanks to the good people of Salisbury and Fruitland for their liberal help in this our time of need. I trust this little church, with its beautiful new tower and bell to toll the hour of service will ever stand as the beacon light to West Salisbury. All the old windows have been replaced with new ones, and with one exception, these were all taken and paid for by individual members.

Official Proceedings of The School Board.

The School Board appointed Prof. Albert V. Collins, of Whitman, Mass., instructor in mathematics in the Wicomico High School. Mr. Collins is a graduate of Boston College, Boston, Mass., in the class of 1901, attaining the degree of A. B. For the past year he has been teaching mathematics and science in Frederick College at Frederick, Md., where he was awarded the degree of M. A. by the board of directors.

Miss Maud A. Bishop, of Everett, Pa., was appointed instructor in the Commercial Course in the Wicomico High School. Miss Bishop graduated from the public schools of Pennsylvania and taught several succeeding terms therein. She graduated from the Tri-State Business College, Cumberland, Md., in shorthand and typewriting, and taught these branches in that college.

The Board decided to open the public schools in Salisbury on Monday, September 20, two weeks later than usual, owing to the fact that two new schoolhouses will not be completed before that date and there will not be room to house all the pupils until the buildings are finished.

By this arrangement ample time will be given for the assignment of the various grades to the different buildings, so that everything will be in readiness for the opening on Monday, September 20.

All the schools outside of Salisbury will open on Monday, September 6, except those of the county schools as failed to have the legal average last year; these will open on October 4.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. A Salisbury citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

William H. Nicholson, 400 Locust Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I was troubled the greater part of last summer by my back and kidneys. I was in pain all the time and I could not sit down or stand still without having a severe backache. In the morning when I got up I was lame and stiff and it really seemed as though I would be unable to endure the misery much longer. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I obtained a supply at White & Leonard's drug store. I used two boxes and since then I have not been bothered by my back or kidneys. I willingly give my testimonial in favor of this excellent remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

WHEN THE TABLES TURNED

Willie Walker was a little 12-year-old chap with red hair and a "crossed" eye. And Willie Walker's father was just a poor carpenter, whose family lived in a simple cottage with unpretentious surroundings. Therefore, Willie, being a poor boy and not of very pronounced good looks, fell under the ridicule of most of his fellows at school and about the streets. Whenever Willie went he was sure to hear some boy's voice call out to him: "Hello, Bunk-top!" or "Hello, Sandypata!" or "Hello, there, Crooked Lamp!" And, again, some tormentor would yell out to him as he went along: "Say, does the world look on the bias to you, Sandy Kid?"

And Willie, being but a child, had not learned to turn a deaf ear to his tormentors. In fact, he was very much hurt by the epithets hurled at him and was quite unhappy by being the object of ridicule.

But in the town where Willie lived were two brothers—Byd and Tom Jackson—who felt the kindest sympathy for the carpenter's little cross-eyed son and who braved the jeers of the other boys to play with him. To be sure, Willie was not entirely ostracized by his fellows, but was often made the butt of their ridicule and coarse, painful personalities that he felt he had no genuine friends save Byd and Tom Jackson. And often he refused to go on a picnic—where he had been invited by Byd and Tom, knowing that some of the boys would surely spoil his day by poking fun at his red hair and crooked eye.

One day Willie was lying on the grass under a tree, watching the clouds floating overhead and wishing that both his eyes were straight like other boys' eyes, when he heard a man's voice call from the gate: "Is this the home of William Walker, carpenter?"

Willie quickly rose and replied that it was and that his father was William Walker but was at his shop in town busy with some work. "Well, I can wait till he comes home for dinner," said the man, coming in through the gate. "And while I'm waiting I'd like to speak with your mother."

Willie called to his mother, who came upon the porch. And as soon as her eyes fell on the stranger she cried out in a happy voice: "Why, if it isn't my dear brother Jim!" And then Uncle Jim took Willie in his arms and really kissed him frowzy red head, declaring that he was a fine boy and worthy of his relationship. But that day, after dinner, Willie heard his parents in earnest conversation with his Uncle Jim and heard his uncle say: "Of course it can be done as slick as a ribbon and no harm done. And I've got the money to pay for it, too." And it turned out that it was Willie's crossed eye of which they were speaking, and on the following day they took him to the doctor's office, and, after being there a little while, Willie came away with two straight eyes. But, of course, he could not use his eye that had been operated on for some days, and had to have it closely bandaged. But when the bandage was at last removed by the doctor Willie was the happiest boy in town, for now he had two eyes exactly alike and as fine and straight as any other boy's eyes, too. As for his red hair—bah, he didn't care a fig about that. And to cap the climax, good, jolly Uncle Jim bought the finest pony for Willie, two new suits and a saddle and bridle to go with it, or, as he said, "I should say."

Then you should have seen the way all these ugly, tormenting boys did say to get into Willie's good graces, for they coveted a ride on the pony. Besides, the report had been circulated about town that Uncle Jim was a very rich man (which was true) and that he meant to give his nephew all sorts of schooling and travel (which was true, also).

And to do Willie justice—for he was not a bad boy at heart—he did not resent the way the boys had treated him in the past; but he never quite trusted any of them save Byd and Tom. But he treated them as his former tormentors with kindness, and made them feel quite ashamed of themselves. And to this day they regret having made fun of the kid-dest and most generous boy in the world, Willie Walker.—Washington Star.

Author's Name. For a man of letters a strong name of striking originality is a precious possession; it is a pearl beyond price, the attainment of which is well worth a resolute effort. An author is fortunate if it is given to him by decent and by baptism—John Milton, for example, or Francis Parkman, names combining vigor with a certain distinction. He is lucky if he can achieve it by arbitrary prescription of a superior given name, as Bret Harte did and Mr. Rudyard Kipling.

Mexican Canal Open. More than one-half of the 120-mile canal which is to connect Tampico with Tuxpan has been completed by the Mexican government; boats are running as far as Tamblin. The soil of this region is exceptionally rich, but has remained undeveloped for lack of transportation facilities.

Congo Free State. The Congo Free State in mid-Africa has 900,000 square miles of territory. At present its imports amount to only about $4,000,000 a year, consisting mainly of cotton-wool, goods, liquors and beer, canned meats, vegetables and other food products, steamers and boats, machinery, clothing, arms and ammunition, hardware and metals. The chief products of the country are rubber, ivory, gum, copal, palm kernels and palm oil.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fall to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

Many are claiming just now that arbitration will stop all war. The same advocates of arbitration, and all sane men advocate arbitration, admit that it should not apply where questions of national honor or interest are at stake.

And therefore, since war must come, the Nation should be prepared to fight. And indeed this very preparedness is one of the very best guarantees of peace.
