INVASION DANGER LOOMS TO GERMANS

Defenseless Position Now Openly Admitted—Faith in Leaders Going.

Amsterdam, Sep. 3.—German newspapers no longer try to keep the terrible secrets of the Western front from the public. News of the disaster is allowed to leak through every day, and the people's confidence in the leading men is decreasing.

The possibility of ousting General Ludendorff from power would be seriously discussed were any substitute for him available.

For the last three weeks the people have been fed by the spoonful with vague reports of territory of no importance being abandoned in order to save the lives of German soldiers. Now the military expert, Captain von Salmann, admits the Germans have lost enough territory and that further loss would bring the enemy almost to Germany's doorstep and from the doorstep into the house.

A personal friend of Hindenburg says, "We must fight hard this time, it is for our lives."

Geographical conditions made it impossible for Germany to fight once the Rhine and the Rhine basin are in the hands of the invader, whereas France, even with the Germans invading some ten of her departments, can continue, as she has the Atlantic, the mastery of the sea and can help from without.

This admission, which has never before been permitted to appear in a German paper, shows the strides the Germans are making in judging the present situation.

While the Allied armies under General Foch are hammering away and breaking down the German front, another series of Allied air raids has plunged the exposed towns, especially Frankfurt and Bonn, into a state of panic.

A Dutchman just returned from Germany tells me the situation along the Rhine is such that thousands of people are leaving their homes to seek shelter in the central districts of the Empire.

Frankford suffered severely at the hands of the Allied bombers. Many of its military factories no longer exist. My informant was amazed at the extraordinary precision with which the airmen, in spite of terrible difficulties arising from atmospheric conditions as well as the energetic German defense, manage to hit the targets.

Two munition trains near the Frankfurt station under a well-camouflaged shelter were blown up as they were about to start westwards. Many soldiers and some civilians working near-by were killed. The famous railway station itself suffered serious damage.

UNCLE SAM WANTS

Thousands Of Stenographers—Registration Quarters in Washington.

Washington, D. C., August 24, 1918. —Notwithstanding the fact that thousands of stenographers and typewriters have been appointed in the Government service in Washington, D. C., since our country entered the war, the United States Civil Service Commission announces that there is pressing need for several thousand more workers of this class. Women especially are urged to offer their services for this office work and thus help in a practical way in the nation's great undertaking.

Entrance salaries range from $1,000 to $2,000 a year. Most appointments are made at $1,100. Higher positions are usually filled through promotion, original appointments at salaries in excess of $1,200 being rare.

Examinations are held every Tuesday in 550 cities, and the Commission states that an examination will be held in any city, day or night, when there is prospect of assembling a class of as many as three competitors. Eligibility for appointment may be obtained through passing an examination in practical tests in shorthand and typewriting, or in typewriting alone. It is practical to complete such an examination in one hour. Representatives of the Civil Service Commission at the post offices in all cities are prepared to furnish definite information to persons interested.

The Room Registration Office of the District of Columbia Council of War maintains a list of rooms in homes in Washington which are available to newly appointed Government clerks. All rooms are carefully inspected before being listed. The Room Registration Office states that the Government is prepared to

GEN. CROWDER WORKING OUT PLANS THAT WILL PREVENT DISRUPTION OF COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISES.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Much broader grounds for the establishment of claims for exemption from military service are provided in new regulations now being worked out by Provost Marshal General Crowder to govern the classification of men between 18 and 45, who will register on September 12.

Important modifications are based upon the change of a few words in the original draft law made in passing the new man-power act. The term "industrial occupation" is eliminated, and the law now provides persons may be given deferred classification when engaged "in occupation or employment," including agriculture, which can be established as necessary to the military establishment or to the maintenance of the national interest.

This section, officials pointed out today with the regulations constraining it, will definitely allow district exemption boards to exempt bankers and essential bank employees, men engaged in necessary commercial enterprise and necessary workers for Red Cross and kindred organizations.

No Specific Classification.

The regulation will not attempt specifically to define the status of registrants who shall be entitled to exemption but will allow the boards to work out the details, after the authorization has been given them.

It was said that the regulations would straighten out completely a situation arising since district boards in various localities have ruled, under the old law, that railroads and banks are not industries and that an importer of necessary war materials and his staff are not engaged in industry.

Since the requirements that a man exempted because of his occupation must be of such importance as to threaten the continuance of the enterprise to which he is attached, has been retained, however, the sum total of exemptions is not expected to seriously affect the net man power which will finally be placed in Class 1.

District boards in applying occupational exemption regulations will have the assistance of three advisers, industrial, commercial and agricultural, who are now being nominated in every district.

Must Make Exemption Claim.

Only minor changes are incorporated in the revised questionnaire which the registrants of September 12 will be required to fill out. It strikes out the requirement that city police and firemen be in service three years before being entitled to deferred classification and allows them to be placed in Class 3 without regard to their length of service. It establishes also three new divisions in Class 5, exempting automatically persons discharged from military or naval service upon ground of alienage or upon diplomatic request; persons who are citizens of countries co-belligerent with the United States who come under treaty arrangements entailing their service at home and citizens of neutral countries who have withdrawn declarations of their intention to become citizens.

The questionnaire still requires that each registrant desires exemption to make formal claim and present detailed facts substantiating it.

MAN ARRESTED IN N. J.

Charged With Slaying Carey, The Wicomico Boy Killed At Camp McClellan.

Accused of the murder of Private Walter Carey of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, whose home was in Salisbury, Md., John Musa, a soldier, is under arrest in Newark, N. J., according to a dispatch to The Baltimore News from Camp McClellan, Annapolis, Ala. Musa will be returned to the camp for trial by court-martial on the charge of first-degree murder.

Carey was guarding four prisoners, one of whom is said to have been Musa, when he was killed. All of the prisoners escaped. The murder occurred early last spring, and since that time military authorities and civil police have been hunting for Musa.

REGISTER NEXT THURSDAY

FROM 7 A. M. TO 9 P. M.—NEW AGES, 18 TO 45, "VICTORY OF ARMS."

Washington.—Thursday, September 12, was set Saturday, by President Wilson as the date for registration for the army draft of all men in the United States between the ages of 18 and 45 inclusive who have not already registered or who are not now in the military or naval service.

In a proclamation issued immediately after he signed the new man-power bill authorizing extension of the 21-31 draft ages the President called on the younger and the older men to enroll on that day with local draft boards where they make their permanent homes.

"We solemnly purpose a decisive victory of arms," said the President, "and deliberately to devote the larger part of the military manpower of the nation to the accomplishment of that purpose. . . . It is the call to duty which every true man in the country will respond with pride and with the consciousness that in doing so he plays his part in vindication of a great cause at whose summons every true heart offers its supreme service."

Hours From 7 P. M. to 9 P. M.

The hours of registration will be from 7 A. M. to 9 P. M., and all State and local officials are called on to make immediate arrangements for maintenance of registration places on that day.

All men within the new ages, whether citizens of the United States or not, must register, unless they are diplomatic or Consular representatives of foreign nations.

LAFAYETTE DAY OBSERVED

Friday Night.—Salisbury And Near-By Towns Turn Out.

A large crowd of Salisburyans and people from the surrounding country and towns met at the First Regiment Armory Friday evening to celebrate the 161st anniversary of the birth of Lafayette, the great French hero—Washington's friend—and our American Colonies' friend.

The place was decorated with French and American flags, and a chorus of selected singers rendered the National song of France, the Marseilles, leading in other patriotic numbers, in which the vast audience enthusiastically joined their voices.

Mrs. Harry Houston sang "Joan of Arc"; Mr. Raymond K. Truit sang, "Lafayette, We Are Here!" The Salisbury Cornet Band was in attendance and were up to their usual standard of excellence.

Mr. Eglee made a very forceful address on "The Life of Lafayette, and the Battle of the Marne", that held his hearers completely.

This also being the anniversary of the battle of the Marne in 1914, when the French General, Joffre, won such a memorable victory against the Germans, an event in which this country was intensively interested, made it altogether one of the most interesting meetings held this season.

Charles Stewart Davison, Chairman of the American Defense Society, in issuing this call for this great National celebration, said:

"It seems right, and fitting that Americans should honor the name and memory of Lafayette on September 6th out of the gratitude that is strong that will never wither or die in the heart of Americans. Through Lafayette's devotion to our cause, France and the United States fought shoulder to shoulder at Yorktown, and through their co-operation the independence of the struggling colonies was realized and the liberty of a whole continent assured.

"Today, as we plan to celebrate the birth of Lafayette, his country is taking part once more in a war of independence, a war which will save, and has already saved, civilization and free institutions from the menace of autocracy and militarism.

"The battle of the Marne, fought and won by Lafayette's countrymen, Joffre, makes the 6th day of September a date memorable, not only in the history of our country but in the annals of civilization. In this year we are preparing in some modicum to pay the immeasurable debt we owe to France and Frenchmen."

man has registered for military service is going to be absolutely necessary after September 12 to the peace of mind of all men between the ages of 18 and 21 and 31 and 46, just as the classification card is now necessary to the peace of mind of all men between the ages of 21 and 31 years.

Every man who is required to register under the Manpower bill just made a law by Congress should be sure when the registration ends at 9 o'clock Thursday evening of next week that he has his card in his pocket.

The man who walks abroad now is likely to be stopped and asked to show his classification card. If he cannot show it, he may be arrested. The same will be true after September 12 of those required to register on that date. And it will be interesting to the men between 45 and 46 to know that they must register.

"The regulations issued by Provost Marshal-General Crowder are absolutely clear on that subject," he said. "A man must register unless he is 46 years old before September 12."

There will be this difference between the registration next week and that of June a year ago. All the machinery for this is organized and has been working actively for over a year.

The machinery for the first registration was and had not been adjusted, to its work. It is expected that, in spite of the much larger registration that this is, the work will be done much more smoothly.

Keep Draft Cards Handy.

SALISBURY COAL SITUATION SERIOUS

Given Less Than 5,000 Tons, While Cambridge Gets 8,000.

Coal is not coming into Salisbury in sufficient quantities to relieve the uneasiness of our people in regard to the coming winter's fuel. Nor is this all, it is said that the total allotment for Salisbury is to be but 4,900 tons, while other towns on the Shore are given much more. Cambridge is to get 8,000 tons with a population less than Salisbury, while Easton is credited with 6,000 tons.

It is hard to understand why Salisbury, the largest city on the Eastern Shore should receive from one half to one third less than other places. Salisbury is perfectly willing to do its full part in everything pertaining to the war and if the scarcity of fuel is such as to make her people go without their normal supply all right, but she is entitled to her fair part of the State's distribution and should not be given a less tonnage than other places of smaller populations.

It is time for our business men to act if the facts are as stated above, and bring the matter before both the State and National Fuel Administrators.

Mrs. Stella Tull of this city received a telegram Monday from her daughter, Miss Ethel Tull, who has been at Camp Beauregard, La., for several months, stating that she was leaving for overseas. Miss Tull has been engaged in Red Cross work for several months. She is well-known to many of our young people, having attended the Wicomico High School, Salisbury.

GERMANS RETREATING ON LONG BATTLE LINE

ALLIED OFFENSIVE STILL HITTING HARD. BRITISH CAPTURE 16,000 PRISONERS IN FOUR DAYS.

In their retreat from the Vesle river east of Soissons the Germans have crossed the Aisne on a wide front. Near Soissons the French have crossed the Aisne in pursuit, and further east Americane and French have reached the river. The Germans are not expected to make a stand there, as the pressure against their right wing is increasing. The crown prince's withdrawal is being made on a front of thirty miles.

Meanwhile the French and British are breaking down the German stop-gap line east of the Canal du Nord and the Somme, on the line running north and south.

The French are driving hard on La Fere and St. Quentin. In Flanders the British and American forces have made further progress. Armentieres is threatened.

"Allies On Last Lap And Close To Post"

(By Cable to the Associated Press.)

London (Via Montreal), Sept. 4.—Paris newspapers today print the following semi-official statement:

"The hour seems close at hand when the superb efforts of the Allies will begin to bear fruit. One of our great chiefs said yesterday: 'We are on the last lap and close to the winning post.'"

LONDON NOW BREATHLESS

Whole British Nation Watching Great Drive With Intense Eagerness.

(By Cable to the Associated Press.) London Sept. 4.—The progress of tremendous events on the battle front in France is being followed with all most breathless eagerness by the whole British nation.

The most significant feature of Tuesday's developments was that the expected German attempt to restore the position of the broken Wotan line did not materialize.

The failure of the enemy to make such an attempt apparently is attributable to the speed and energy with which Field Marshal Haig's armies were able to press the advance on the retreating enemy. Informed observers, however, continue to speculate on when and where the enemy will pull himself together.

No Early Collapse Expected.

Disastrous as the blow already has been to German prestige and seriously as the German position is endangered, experts here are not expressing anticipation of an early debacle, and admit the probability of some defenses being organized behind the enemy lines in an attempt to check the Allied advance. Some German prisoners taken in the battle talk confidently of the impending arrival of a great reserve army under General von Mackensen, who will turn the tables on the Allied forces, but obviously it is impossible here to throw any light on such reports.

May Leave Flanders Coast.

Whatever the future may hold, the actual situation is regarded as one of extraordinary promise for the Allies and containing the possibility of the compulsory abandonment of the entire northern German front, including the Flanders coast.

While featuring the dramatic developments on the British front commentators do not neglect to emphasize the great importance of the operations on the southern end of the battle line, where the French and Americans are holding against large enemy forces and making progress. French official communiques deal almost laconically with these operations, but their value as a contribution to Germany's defeat are not overlooked here. Recognition equally is given to the incalculable bearing on the entire situation of the presence of the rapidly growing American Army.

Leaving Andrews, Republican Candidate Unopposed In The Primaries.

It is said that Mr. Augustus Ward of Somerset County has withdrawn from the fight for the Republican nomination for Congress. This leaves the field open for Senator Andrews, who being the only other republican to file his papers, will become his party's candidate. As Congressman Price is unopposed for the Democratic nomination, a primary election is un-called for. Whether or not Mr. Ward's withdrawal is early enough to avoid the contest is the subject of much discussion.

Mr. Jacob Phillips who has been visiting his daughter in New York has returned to Salisbury. He has spent the summer vacation in Maine.

in discussing the possibility of the Germans organizing reserves for a counter-blow dismisses the subject with the remark that "the counter-mance of the American reserves will bind the German reserves like a spell." Commenting on the same subject the Daily Mail's critic says: "In previous successes the lack of strong reserves prevented victories being exploited to the utmost. On this occasion Marshal Foch has in our American armies ample forces available if he determines to press the blow.

"We are witnessing the collapse of the prestige of the Prussian military machine. We have the whip hand as we never had it before in this war and we hold it with a constantly increasing reserve of power, both in men and material, against which the enemy has nothing comparable.

Weight Of U. S. Not Fully Felt.

"The weight of the American Army has not yet been thrown into the scale, but it is there waiting to be released in positions which fill us with the highest expectations and the enemy with the deepest concern."

The Express says: "The hearts of the Allies are properly elated and the Germans are heavy with foreboding. Retreatments, repulses and losses and with all of these the fear of the American Army, young, fresh and eager for battle and ready and waiting for the word from Foch to strike, furnish cause for anxiety."

50 DAYS' STEADY ADVANCE

Allies Have Been Going Ahead Month And A Half.

(By Cable to the Associated Press.) Paris, Sept. 4.—Between Ypres and Rheims, with General Mangin making the St. Gobain forest and the Chemin des Dames, with Generals Humbert and Debeney advancing on St. Quentin and the Franco-Americans on the Vesle, with General Rawlinson before Peronne, General Byng before Lens and General Plumer before Armentieres, the enemy feels the soil of France slipping from under his feet.

Commentators point out that in the present offensive continuity has been maintained lasting 46 days without a break and that not since the beginning of the war has such an extended series of hammer blows been directed, throwing the adversary into complete dismay. The enemy apparently is unable to reorganize his forces to make a stand capable of arresting the onward march of the Allies.

The Doll Wife

By REGINALD BARTLEY

Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.

"Did you like Allen's wife, Rufus?" The seared, plain face of old Mrs. Blair showed eagerness and anxiety as she addressed her oldest son, on his way to his home in the West from attendance at the wedding of his brother, Allen, in the city.

"Was mother," replied Rufus, "Florence is pretty as a picture, pleasant and smiling all the time to everybody, but she ain't like Hester, my wife, though—husky enough to split a cord of wood between noon and sundown if need be. Truth is, Allen has got a doll wife."

The widowed mother sighed, for the phrase sank deep. "Allen is worthy of the finest lady in the land," she declared. Still, the hint of Rufus brought a persistent picture to her mind of a dainty, useless household ornament.

For Allen had written his mother that Florence and he wished to make their home with her.

She had an excellent helper, a buxom, tireless girl named Lucy Davis. It was when the whole place had been made almost new and the heavy work over with, that Lucy came to her. "My folks up in Wisconsin want me to come home for a spell," she said. Mrs. Blair was dismayed. She had so exaggerated the needs and whims of her daughter-in-law that she was made unhappy with worry and suspense.

"You will surely manage alone," consoled Lucy. "If you had half a dozen helpers you'd do the bulk of the work, just the same."

"But I wanted someone to sort of help me with the dainties and all that," mourned Mrs. Blair.

"Perhaps I can find someone to suit you," suggested Lucy, and the day that she left for her journey home she apprised the widow of the fact that a Mary Brooks would call later in the day, in the hopes of sitting in her place.

"I happened to speak to the hotel man about your needing somebody," explained Lucy, "and he said he had found just the person."

Mrs. Blair, seated on the porch the following morning, had time to study closely a neatly dressed girl of about twenty, carrying a satchel. She was pretty and modest-looking.

"If you please," spoke Mary Brooks, "you must make allowances if I don't quite come up to your ideas at the start. I am anxious to please and willing to learn."

"I shall certainly be glad to teach you all I know," smiled Mrs. Blair. "You mustn't mind my insisting on help. I'm sure you'll be a great help."

A SALISBURY REPORT

Fully Corroborated And Easily Investigated.

Do you need a good kidney medicine. Then read the reports in these very columns of Salisbury persons cured or benefited with Doan's Kidney Pills. You won't have to go far to find out if they are true. This Salisbury case is an example. Others will follow.

W. A. Kennerly, prop. City Hand Laundry, E. Camden St., says: "I was troubled by a lame back, caused by stooping a great deal. The pains I had were sharp and severe and always caught me in the small of my back when I tried to straighten up after bending over. The kidney secretions were scanty and highly colored and contained sediment. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at White & Leonard's Drug Store, I was cured. There is nothing too good for me to say about Doan's and I recommend them to every kidney sufferer."

ning came. Mary, brave and smiling, seemed supremely happy at the encomiums bestowed upon her by her satisfied mistress.

More and more Mary won praise and tenderness from the lonely widow. She did make the mistake of using corn-starch in one washing and blued the clothes. She made up for it, however, in some special cake and salad cookery.

"There is where you shine, my dear," Mrs. Blair declared delightedly, "and it is in just such fancy cookery that I wanted a younger hand."

One evening Mrs. Blair was dozing on a lawn settee when she sat bolt upright with a shock. There was a leafy screen between her resting place and an open space where the moon shone down, and there were two figures, man and woman—Mary Brooks and her own son, Allen.

His arm was around her and he was kissing her. To the prim, particular Mrs. Blair this was simply scandalous! She could only conjecture that Allen had come home unexpectedly, that the city had spoiled him, and that he had succumbed to the lure of her pretty-faced helper. Mrs. Blair came out into the moonlight.

"Allen!" her voice as stern and censorious as when in earlier years she had arraigned him for some boyish misdemeanor. Instantly the careens flew apart, Mary Brooks with a cry of dismay, but Allen approached his mother with glad, shining eyes and arms extended.

"My own mother," he greeted. "Oh, I see you don't guess yet."

"Guess what?" challenged Mrs. Blair, still condemning of face and voice.

"Why, the deception. Don't blame me, mother—it's the work of this scheming little wife of mine. Come, Florence, make a confession."

me, mother—it's the work of this scheming little wife of mine. Come, Florence, make a confession."

Which Florence did, timorously, apprehensively, but this gave way to a cry of delight as Mrs. Blair smiled upon her and opened her arms, the welcoming mother complete.

"You see," explained the daughter-in-law, with humility and penitence, "Allen was away on one of those horrid engineering trips of his and I just could not wait to see the old home he had told me so much about. And I am such an ignorant, untrained little simpleton, I hoped to become a real housekeeper before we took up our home with you."

"Bless you, my darling!" interrupted Mrs. Blair, pressing her close, her face radiant with joy and pleasure. "You may be what Rufus calls you—a doll wife—but, if you are, you are just the kind I would have had Allen select."

Yankee Pep Worries Boches. The Yankees are making things mighty uncomfortable for the German troops. A Boche officer, taken prisoner the other day, expressed the situation thus: "It's this way: The men of the European armies are tired of war and are willing to take things easy whenever they can. But you Americans are fresh and anxious for trouble. You are always trying to start something and you make us damned uncomfortable."

Observation Will Enable One to Determine the Qualities Which Will Make Him Valuable.

The qualities that go to make up a man are tremendously complex and yet it is possible by close scrutiny and keen observation to analyze a man and understand him more clearly than he sees himself. There are certain cardinal mental and physical characteristics which can be determined by a visual examination made by an expert. In like manner can be determined the mainspring of the man as exemplified in what we ordinarily consider the various parts of his will, or those factors which govern his actions. The practical application of the studies taken together with his experience and history is then apparent. Knowing his various physical and mental characteristics and his experience, we know what sort of work he is able to do. Knowing his will and what might be termed spiritual characteristics, we know what he will do, provided surrounding circumstances permit. With this in mind we would place each one of our present or new employees at such work as he is best able to do, and we see that this is not necessarily that which he has always done, although in general it does have a more or less close relation with that indicated

The Loving Heart

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1914, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Oh, you wretch—you inhuman monster."

Striking her dainty hands against a rickety door, locked on the inside next to a window looking into a wretched room, Eunice Barbour flashed glances of indignation upon a ragged, unkempt old hag, who was slapping a forelock little mite of a girl not more than three years of age, as she dragged her across the floor. The heiress hastened her steps, brightened, and washed. Eunice Barbour, a widow at twenty-two, and one of beauty's daughters, had come to the old tenement in quest of a seamstress she had once employed, but had found no trace. Now, overstrained, she stepped through the doorway of a room further on where a wholesome looking woman was bustling about.

"Please let me rest for a moment," pleaded Eunice, sinking to a chair. "I have been all upset from witnessing a mother mistreat her little one terribly. Oh, how can such cruel hearts exist! It reminded me of my dear little one who died a year ago," and the tears gathered in those gentle, yearning eyes.

"Do you mean the red faced, one-eyed woman at the end of the hall?" questioned her hostess. "Sure, it's not her child, that poor little thing. She's a farmed out one."

"What does that mean?" asked Eunice. "Why, its father, a widower, left it with a Mrs. Dallas, who treated the child half decently. But she gave up the business and got the woman here to take the child at a low price."

"But its father?" "He is in a traveling business and don't come back only once a year."

Eunice arose and left the house. As she penetrated a narrow passageway she paused suddenly. Seated upon a heap of dirt and cussing and chattering to the wreck of a rag doll was the little victim of abuse. She bore across one dirt soiled cheek a cruel blue mark, one eye was quite discolored. A daring impulse came to Eunice.

"Sweet darling!" she whispered, wrapping the auto cloak upon her arm around the child, "will you come with me?"

The tiny arms reached up and clasped about her neck, a seraphic smile illumined the woman's face. Eunice bore her swiftly to the street and to her waiting automobile.

"Home, quick!" she ordered the chauffeur, and within an hour they were safe in her pretty city flat. Oh, the tender maternal love that sprang up within her lonely heart like some sweet flower!

Still, Eunice was haunted with the fear that a search might be made for the child and the little one taken away from her. At the end of a month she ventured to revisit the old tenement and seek the woman who soon told her all she knew of little Una's history.

"You need not worry, ma'am," she answered Eunice, when the latter had disclosed her share in the abduction. "That old hag is glad to get rid of her."

"But when the father returns—" "Oh, she will probably claim she died."

"Mrs. Drake," said Eunice, earnestly, placing some money on the table, "I want you to notify me at once should the father appear."

A new glory seemed to have come into her life. She had married a man she did not love, though she respected him. He had left her well provided for, but when their little child died Eunice felt as though existence was barren and motiveless.

She was quite agitated one day when the maid told of observing a stealthy figure peering in at the window the evening before. Then a new element came into her life. Her lawyer sent a gentleman named Roscoe Brooke. The avowed purpose of the visit of the latter was to negotiate with Mrs. Barbour for some land she owned in another state. He called several times on business. Then, as he seemed to enjoy her company and would spend half the evening with little Una on his lap, Eunice grew to cherish his company as a welcome panacea for her solitude.

He was at the flat one evening when there was a caller whom the maid had shown into another room. Eunice went thither, leaving the communicating door open. It was Mrs. Drake.

"I've come to tell you," she said, "I should have done it before, but I have been sick in bed for two weeks. The father of the little girl came inquiring for her and I told him about you—why, that's him now!"

Mrs. Drake had caught sight of the visitor through the open doorway. The truth flashed through the mind of Eunice at once. The father of Una had chosen to rejoin his child by forming an acquaintance with her "new mother." When Mrs. Drake had gone Eunice rejoined parent and child.

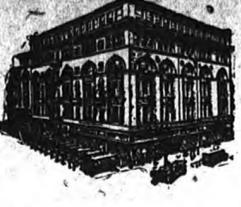

"I have learned who you are," she spoke tremulously. "You won't take my darling away from me, will you?" "You have made her happy with your kindly interest," answered Roscoe Brooke. "It is in your power to bless my lonely life as well. Eunice," and his tones were earnest and pleading. "become to our cherished treasure a mother. Indeed."

Stir in the fish mixture, pour in a chilled mold, and set in a cool place to harden. Cut in slices, and serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing. The gelatine and the fish may be arranged in layers if the housekeeper has time to spend in preparing the dish.

CORN COMES INTO ITS OWN. Corn, rightly used, will help materially to win the war; moreover, it is a real American product, and it ought to be our national dish. Not so many years ago corn and cornmeal formed the basis of only a few foods and dishes. Now corn is a breakfast cereal, the basis of nearly 100 sorts of bread and muffins; it's a sugar, a syrup, a salad oil, a cooking oil, a dessert material and even a candy, and being such a distinctly American food it should rank with the Thanksgiving turkey and ice cream in our affections.

THE COAL SITUATION. We admit that we cannot understand the coal situation as it applies to the City of Salisbury.

While we have not the figures or facts, yet it is generally understood that coal is not coming to this community as fast or in quantities as even the circumstances would indicate it ought.

Salisbury is larger than Cambridge, she has as large a rural population depending upon her, as many industries using fuel, then why instead of less should not our people receive more than does Cambridge.

A DAILY DUTY. Each day every American soldier in France is confronted by a great duty. Our Army there has a great task to perform for our country, for the world, for civilization, and for humanity.

Each day every American citizen at home is confronted by a great duty, a duty as imperative upon him or her as the duty of our soldiers is upon them. The American people have a great task to perform. It is to support to the limit of their ability our Army, our Navy, our country at war.

THE RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION. Director General McAdoo has issued a circular to all employees of the railway lines operated by the Government in which he enjoins upon them in emphatic terms the policy of courtesy and efficiency.

the United States is running the railroads is not an excuse or justification for the shortcoming of either the employees or the Railroad Administration. "The people have accepted cheerfully and patriotically the burden of increased railroad fares that war conditions have imposed upon them, part of which is due to the increased expenditures caused by the raise in the wages of the railroad employees," says the Director General.

Railroads are just as much public servants under Government administration as under private control. The change of management was made for the purpose of making the railroads more efficient servants of the people, more especially in the great work of winning the war.

The Director General has also issued a statement to the public regarding the overcrowded conditions of passenger trains, which he admits, and expresses regret for the unsatisfactory condition in some sections. The great number of troops now being handled over the railroads, it is stated, has caused a shortage of day coaches and sleeping cars, which can not immediately be remedied, and, further, the increased demand upon the transportation of the country by the tremendous amounts of coal, food supplies, war material, and other things required for war purposes forces a curtailment of passenger train service.

In the last 14 months the railroads of America have transported 5,377,468 soldiers, of whom over 2,000,000 were transported prior to December 31, 1917; 3,377,000 between Jan. 1, and June 30, 1918. Patriotic co-operation by the people will greatly help the solving of our transportation problem under the strain of war.

GERMAN VIEW OF CHRISTIANITY.

Frederich Wilhelm Nietzsche was one of the most noted of modern German philosophers. How much has his philosophy affected the views and character of the Germans of to-day? Is not the answer written in the blood of the women and children, the old men of occupied France and Belgium? Are not the Lusitania victims witnesses to German adoption of Nietzsche's faith?

Here is his indictment of Christianity: the richest thing in the world. "With this I conclude, and pronounce my sentence: I condemn Christianity. To me it is the greatest of all imaginable corruptions. The church is the great parasite; with its anemic idea of holiness it drains file of all its love, and its hope. The other world is the motive for the denial of every reality. I call Christianity the one great curse, the one great intrinsic depravity, the one great instinct of revenge, for which no expedient is sufficiently poisonous, seeret, underhand, to gain its ends. I call it the one immortal shame and blemish upon the human race."

As the result of a meeting of the State Board of Education on August 15 and of a conference held on the following day, it was decided to ask county boards of education to permit boys to remain out of high school until October 14, with the permission in each case of their parents, to assist in relieving the serious labor shortage. It is understood that such excuse is to be granted only when the boys are actually engaged in agricultural pursuits or in some form of industrial war work. The State Board is anxious that the boys be given this opportunity, if they desire, to work without jeopardizing their standing in school of decreasing their chances of promotion. This recommendation does not apply to the elementary schools.

FILLING ENGLAND'S LARDER.

The food situation in England is greatly improved within the last month or so, declare travelers just returned. Bacon may now be bought without a meat coupon, as may trips and certain other kinds of food. An enormous acreage of the fertile English farm lands is under cultivation this year, and the heavy crops would amaze the average American farmer. The wonderful success of the allotment system whereby householders on the outskirts of towns and big cities were given plots of land rent free or for a nominal rental on which to grow garden truck has resulted in a vast increase of these family vegetable plots this year.

England experienced her most trying time between the months of November and February. Those were the days when famine's ghastly face loomed near. But, thanks to the efforts of the British Food Controller, this terrible danger is done with forever. What with the food being grown in England and the vast stores accumulated from the United States, Great Britain could carry on and feed the fifty millions of population till next winter, even supposing that not another ship load of food reached her shores during that period of time. This allows America still further to concentrate her efforts upon feeding the other Allied countries as well as her own fast-growing army overseas.

BOYS WHO DO THEIR BIT.

When the movement to have city boys help out on the farms first was started, there was a great deal of comment to the effect that no city boy could do such work; that, first of all, they wouldn't like the life, and, secondly, they hadn't the stock-toddliness to prove valuable.

That idea has been exploded. Mr. Frank B. Cahn, Director of the U. S. Working Reserve for Maryland, says he found the boys working under ideal conditions and that the vast majority of them had actually grown to like their jobs. As indicative of how the boys are "taking" to the life and how they feel about the services they are rendering, two postals recently received by R. H. Beck, welfare director of the boys' farm army, or "reserves," as they like to style themselves, are typical. One was from a boy on a farm in Baltimore county. It read: "I think farm life is great, and I think I voice the sentiments of all of the boys. We are well treated and are happy in the thought that we are doing our bit."

Another, from a boy at Camp Ednor, where there are a score of boys, reads: "The work is rather hard on the hands, as there are so many long weeds, but I don't mind when I think of our boys in the trenches 'over there.' Any boy anywhere is glad to do his share to help his Uncle Sam win the war."

CITY TREASURER RESIGNS

His Successor Will Be Appointed By The Mayor.

City Treasurer Marion S. Huston, one of the eight men called for limited service by the government, and who left Thursday for Fort Humphreys, Va., will leave a vacancy to be filled by appointment by Mayor Jones and it is expected the appointment will be made next Monday night. Mr. Huston has made a most efficient clerk and collector and leaves his work in splendid shape for his successor.

Among the others called for limited service are Mr. Howard H. Ruark, assistant cashier of the Salisbury National Bank, and Mr. Harvey A. Kolloway, book-keeper for the Jackson-Weisbach Co. These young men will also fill clerical positions under the government and will be valuable acquisitions to the clerical forces of the government.

GOVERNOR PLANS BAY FERRY

Says Negotiations Are On For Boat Between Claiborne And Annapolis.

Cambridge, Md., Sept. 4.—Governor Harrington stated today that he is negotiating for the establishment of the Claiborne ferry, from Claiborne to Annapolis, to connect the State road systems of the Eastern and Western Shores.

THROWS POLLEN OVER BEES

Nature's Use of the Mountain Laurel Is One of Her Many Remarkable Devices.

Flop! and away go the little stems of the mountain laurel and throw pollen over the bee which alights upon them. The naturalist sees here one of the most remarkable devices in all nature for compelling an insect to carry pollen. The lover of nature sees in the mountain laurel one of the most beautiful of the common woodland flowers, says Edward Bigelow in "Boys' Life."

The corolla is saucer-shaped, with ten little pits near the edge, and lightly caught in each of these little pits is the anther at the end of the elastic filament. This natural thing seems to grow in an unnatural manner, but do you know of any other plant that actually grows in distorted or strained position, or puts its own self in an uncomfortable and strained position from which it is glad to be released when the first insect comes along and sets it loose?

The whole mechanism is like a hair trigger. It is so carefully adjusted that even a slight jar will sometimes set it loose. Shaking an entire bush releases great numbers of these filaments, and flop, flop, flop they leap out of the pits and the anthers throw their pollen everywhere. The bee which visits the mountain laurel must feel that the times are prosperous, since he is showered with golden pollen which

Wear-Ever Aluminum Utensils are different. Of course, aluminum is aluminum; but utensils may differ in purity, in thickness, in handles, in finish. Purity. "Wear-Ever" utensils are 99 per cent. pure. Thickness. They are made thick enough to prevent denting readily; thick enough to guarantee a lifetime of satisfactory service. Handles. The handles of "Wear-Ever" utensils are made of the best tinned steel. Aluminum handles would be too hot—wooden handles would burn off or break. The handles of "Wear-Ever" utensils are gripped to the utensils by aluminum rivets with large heads. The heads are not sunk into the side of the utensil—the side remains of uniform thickness, strong enough to hold the handle on firmly for years. Finish. The outside is polished. The inside is hardened by an electrical process which makes the metal harder, smoother, less liable to be discolored by food or water containing alkali or iron, and more easily cleaned than would be possible if the utensils were not so finished. ALLIED CALL FOR BEEF
SPLENDIDLY MET BY U. S. A.

During the fiscal year, 1917-1918, the United States shipped to allied destinations 3,100,100,000 pounds of meats and fats, an increase of $44,800,000 pounds over the shipments of the preceding year.

In June alone $2,173,000 pounds of beef and 169,331,000 pounds of pork went overseas, though the pre-war monthly shipment of those two meats averaged only 1,066,000 and 41,831,000 pounds a month.

This shipment to our Allies was made possible because of the splendid response of the American people to the appeal of the Food Administration. As a result it was possible to lift the restrictions on beef a month sooner than had been calculated. Thrift is still asked for, but it is no longer required of public eating places to serve beef at only one meal a day or for householders to limit their week's purchases to 30 ounces of clear beef per person.

Extreme drought in the southwest has resulted in bringing a lot of cattle to market and therefore Marylanders are requested to turn their attention to the lighter grades of meat in order to save the heavier qualities for overseas shipment.

The recent survey made by the Food Administration of the Allied countries people fighting Germany shows that to maintain sufficient supplies and necessary reserves against possible disaster there must be maintained in the entire Allied world, a conservation of wheat flour during the coming year.

It has been agreed that the wheat bread of our Allies shall contain 20 per cent. of other grains than wheat, and it is only fair that we should bear our share in this saving.

For this purpose, regulations have been formulated, effective September 1st, providing for the preparation and marketing of mixed flours. These flours will be labeled "Victory Mixed Flour" and sold without offsetting cereals.

Standard wheat flour may still be purchased, however, at the rate of four pounds to each pound of corn flour, barley flour, or cornmeal, thus repeating the fifty-fifty order.

This repeal, however, is not intended to convey the fact that wheat thrift may now be discontinued. The Food Administration still depends upon the loyal co-operation of the American people to purchase in moderation and continue the economy which has made possible this list up in the regulations.

More precious than gold or silver are the minerals found in fruit and vegetables. They keep up the credit side of your physical bank account.

The British Food Controller warns the public that though existing supplies are adequate for present needs they must not be taken as a guarantee of permanent security. The food difficulties of the world, he declares, are increasing.

All Cans and Beet Sugar is included in the two-pound-a-month regulation. Brown sugar must be saved just the same as white.

LOYALTY'S LONG TEST. When women are willing to face the facts, then, surely, will they begin to save in earnest, to save the food for our soldiers and for our allies. It is easy to economize for a day, when one hears a pathetic story about hungry little French children, but to systematically forego the extra spoonful of sugar, the extra piece of butter, the second muffin or slice of bread, is more difficult of accomplishment.

"Our wheat shipments to allied destinations represent approximately eight months' savings from our own wheat bread," wrote Mr. Hoover to the President. America is the victor with both the quick punch and the long pull.

All the food elements are found in a fruit salad, apples, pears, peaches served on lettuce with an oil dressing. This, with war bread, makes a satisfactory meal. Salads are healthful to household and helpful to Hoover.

Though only two pounds of sugar are allowed for each person's monthly consumption, it will still be easy to make that supply suffice if it is remembered that one cup of sugar can be replaced with one cup of either molasses or honey or by one and one-half cups of syrup.

MOCK SHRIMP SALAD. (Official Recipe.) Grate two large carrots and one medium-sized apple. Combine with diced, cold cooked potatoes and a few nuts; marinate with mayonnaise dressing for a few hours before serving. It is preferable to use lemon juice in place of vinegar in the mayonnaise.

Most Vegetables are cooling. They supply the moisture for which the system cries during the sultry months.

Americans are using this year twice as much cheese as they used to. Luckily there is lots of it.

One might as well be a Hun as a hoarder.

FOUR KINDS OF FOOD SLACKERS. 1. The woman who from laziness or lack of patriotism lets good food either in her home or in nearby groceries or gardens go to waste.

2. The woman who beats the food regulations just because she can get hold of the restricted articles.

3. The woman who buys for herself or her friends luxuries which might be done without.

4. The housewife who reduces the efficiency and morale of her family by serving poorly cooked food substitutes.

FARM STOCK

INCREASED FLOCKS ON FARM

Ways Outlined of Hastening Development of Sheep Business—Source of Wool and Meat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Though much is yet to be done to improve the carrying capacity of the western range lands and to furnish facilities for increasing the production from those areas that should always be used for grazing, and though the possibilities of sheep raising on cut-over timber lands are very great, neither of these advances can be made to contribute so extensively and so quickly to market supplies as an increase of flocks on the farms of all parts of the country. Only one-tenth of all holdings now classed as farms maintain sheep. The establishment of flocks on as many as possible of the other farms that are suitable for sheep offers the greatest opportunity for quick results.

This is not wholly a war matter. When peace comes it will still be necessary for farmers to accord greater importance to live stock. The requirements of the country and the most economical use of farm crops and farm labor call for a much more general keeping of farm flocks of sheep, entirely aside from the war situation. The magnitude of such an undertaking argues against large results in a short time, but if the true facts and prospects can be adequately realized by farmers, within a space of two years it can be expected that the supply of both wool and meat will be increased materially.

An obstacle to any increase in the number and size of farm flocks is found in the prevalent idea that wool and meat prices, after the war, will recede quickly to low levels and cause a loss to those who have invested in higher-priced stock for breeding purposes. The statistics of the world, supplies and requirements, however, and the trend of prices prior to the war indicate that we already had entered a new era with regard to the live stock industry. While it is not possible to give a guarantee as to future values, the great use of wool by all countries at war undoubtedly will deplete stocks rapidly, and this will tend to influence the market for some time to come.

The belief that sheep do not have a place upon high-priced, highly productive land also is inapplicable at present. It is true that the development of the sheep industry on the rougher, cheaper, or drier types of land has prevented and in some cases destroyed the business of sheep raising upon farms of high productive capacity. Conditions now are changed. The sheep today provides a profitable source of meat no less than an income from the sale of wool.

The large use of forage and pasturage and the small use of grain favor the keeping of a flock on the farm. Sheep are most profitable and most healthy when kept upon pasture lands or used for grazing off such forage crops as cereal mixtures, rape, cowpeas, etc. Where large grass pastures are available the forage crops may not be required, but under common farm conditions the forage crops will have a part in the best flock husbandry.

With good roughages, made up in part of leguminous hays, little grain is needed for wintering breeding stock, and if ewes do not lamb until they go to pasture grain may be wholly eliminated from winter rations. Lambs are most in demand and most profitably disposed of when weighing from 65 to 90 pounds. Ordinarily the lower weight will be reached at from four to five months of age and without the use of grain if stock is of good breeding and kept upon good pasturage. The lamb carcass requires less fat to render it suitable for the table than is necessary in any other class of meat. This fact particularly adapts sheep raising to sections that are not adapted to production of grains but can furnish good pasturage and forage crops. It also enables the flock to produce a cash return from forage crops and other grazing included in a diversified plan of cropping. The rapidity with which lambs attain marketable weight insures very quick returns at a low cost. The comparatively small amount of labor required in caring for sheep is another argument in favor of the farm flock.

A battery may seem to be doing its job nearly as well as usual—may turn the engine over strongly enough to "get by"—may supply enough current for light—may produce a fairly hot spark—and may go on doing so right up to the point where the spark of life goes out.

your battery's in good health, you're taking chances.

MAKES HANDY SEWING SCREEN

Frame Covered With Suitable Material, Provided With Pockets for Various Articles.

A convenient piece of furniture for the household sewing room is a sewing screen, and if the house is not large enough to permit of setting aside one room for sewing activities a sewing screen is a still greater convenience for the room of the woman who has her own or the family mending to attend to or who just likes to sew.

First of all, unless one has an aptitude for carpentry it is well to have a carpenter make the frame. A three-ply screen is a convenient size and it should be low, so that all that it contains may be within easy reach of the woman who likes to sit in a low chair to sew.

The screen may be covered with chintz or cretonne to match the hangings of the room. Then it will seem to take up even less space in a small apartment, for it will fall back into line with the other furnishings rather than stand out as an individual demanding special space privileges.

A good scheme is to cover the screen frame with a flat layer of the cretonne on each side of each section, reaching to within six inches of the floor.

Tack the cover on securely with small brass-headed tacks. Then make ever so many little pockets of various sizes and fasten them securely. They will hold thread and mending materials and all sorts of sewing paraphernalia.

Larger pockets will be useful for holding small pieces of work or mending.

The pockets, of course, should be cut larger than the space which they are to cover and be either gathered or platted on. It is a wise scheme to use a narrow elastic as a running string for the tops, as that gives a neater, tidier appearance, especially when the pockets are well filled.

EFFECT OF LATEST NECKLINE

Delta Has Superseded the V and White Collars Seem to Be Doomed, Writer Asserts.

In the settlement of fashions there is one predominant feature that interests the majority as well as the minority. It is the new arrangement of the neckline, observes a fashion writer in the New York Sun.

Those who were not observing fashion closely went about with their shirt-waist collars pulled out over the coat collars or the wide collars of gumpie pulled out over the bare edge of a one-piece frock.

Then suddenly the whole process seemed to be wrong. The careless public observed that the fastidious crowd had abandoned white collars. They also noticed that the neckline of a one-piece frock was not outlined by a collar except at the back. They noticed that sailor collars had disappeared from fashionable garments.

They realized that the neckline instead of being V-shaped was square and deeply decollete, or delta-shaped—the decollete that we associate with Dresden shepherdesses, Dolly Varden styles, Mozartian opera and Janice Meredith. This kind of neckline was accepted only for frocks.

But whatever the garment, its neckline was no more hidden and enveloped by a white collar. It is quite probable that this somersault in fashions disturbed the minds of more women than even the incoming of the tight skirt.

TWO-PIECE, SLENDER LINES

Slender lines that are almost severe in their straightness are emphasized in this charming two-piece frock in blue and white. Jersey, the popular material this spring, is used in this frock, and a girle marks the waist-line.

Don't Sleeves. Fancy suit sleeves, such as splitting them horizontally above elbows and inserting vertical tabs giving a box-plated effect, or crossing underarm sections over the upper of an envelope embellishing the triangular inset formed thereby with silk braid, are two ideas on misses' models.

DAIRY

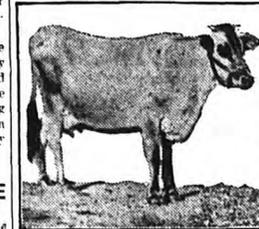

BEST DAIRY CATTLE BREEDS

In Making Selection Dairyman Should Take Local and Market Conditions Into Consideration.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Breeds of dairy cattle differ in both conformation and general characteristics. Each has been developed for certain ends. To make the greatest success a dairyman in selecting a breed should take local conditions and marketing requirements into consideration in connection with the characteristics of the various breeds. He should not allow personal preference to influence his selection if his favorite breed is unsuited to local conditions, but should give careful consideration to the breed or breeds already established in his community. In such a selection he is benefited in many ways.

Jersey Cow in Pasture.

For instance, a market is established, surplus stock may be disposed of to better advantage, co-operative advertising may be used and bulls may be bought co-operatively or exchanged readily among breeders.

Jersey cattle, the most numerous breeds in the United States, originated in the island of Jersey. Jerseys and Guernseys probably had the same foundation stock, but have been developed toward different ideals so that the breeds now differ in a number of particulars.

Jerseys vary considerably in color. Shades of fawn, squirrel gray, mouse color and very dark brown are common. Jerseys have a highly organized nervous system and are usually somewhat excitable, responding quickly to good treatment and good feed. Cows average about 900 pounds and bulls 1,500 pounds in weight. The Jersey cow gives rich, yellow-colored milk. In the Jersey breed, the average of 5,244 cows that had completed yearly records for the register of merit was 7,702 pounds of milk, testing 5.85 per cent, making 417 pounds of butterfat. The ten highest milk producers ranged from 19,604.8 to 18,688.2 pounds, an average, for these ten, of 17,708.4 pounds of milk. The ten highest butterfat producers range from 999.1 to 873.3 pounds, an average, for these ten, of 943.1 pounds of butterfat.

Most of the substitutes bear little more than a general resemblance to the genuine wood, but skillful finishing makes them very much alike. Experts can usually distinguish between them by the aid of an ordinary pocket lens. The efforts of the superficial, however, to judge the wood by its appearance, weight, grain and color often lead them astray.—Popular Science Monthly.

HINTS ON MILK PRODUCTION

Cows Should Be Kept Clean and Milked in Clean Surroundings into Covered Pail.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

After any foodstuff is produced one of the important things is to see that it is put on the market in good shape so that it will keep for a reasonable length of time without loss through spoilage. In this time of need for food every effort should be made to prevent milk from spoiling. Cows should be kept clean and should be milked in clean surroundings into a small-top or covered pail. All utensils which come into contact with the milk should be thoroughly sterilized with steam for at least five minutes, and milk should be cooled promptly to 50 degrees Fahrenheit or less and maintained at that temperature. Whenever these conditions are met, little milk will be wasted. In this time of terrible destruction of human life it is particularly necessary that milk be produced under such conditions as to insure a safe food for babies. This must be done by a decreasing number of men trained to do it. A great task and a great opportunity for dairymen are involved.

ONLY BUSINESS THAT OF WAR

Paralyses in Every Walk of Life Have But One Thought, to Defeat the Hated Enemy.

In Paris one realized at last the meaning of the "business of war." It had entered into every phase of life. As our men commute to business, so the Pollux commute to the trenches, each trip of uncertain length; and in place of competition, financial or otherwise, they go to a business of life and death, writes William Beebe in the Atlantic Monthly.

Few men could show the same vigor and enthusiasm as do these Pollux. For years they had faced high adventure that most men know, if at all, only in an annual vacation. To myself and to others whose life work carries them to dangers from the elements and from savage men, war held no absolute novelty. (The writer is a famous naturalist.) But think of the gunner, formerly a traveling salesman for women's hosiery, of the stretcher bearer who was a floorwalker in a department store! Did the forist whom I met ever conceive that he would be removed from sausage-balcon duty because of unconquerable air sickness?

Think of the children in Paris old enough to talk and walk, who have never known a world free from universal war, and it will be easier to realize the daily, monthly, yearly labor and worry which have worn for themselves ruts deep into the life routine and emotions of this Latin people. As the medical student loses all sensitiveness concerning the handling of human fingers and feet and hands, so the participants in the war, without being really callous or insensitive, come to take danger, wounds, disability, as incidents, not finalities.

One's geography of Paris would read: The city is bounded on the north by supply depots, on the south by hospitals and on the west by air-dromes. Its principal imports and exports are bandages, craps, wooden legs and Colonnals; its products are war bread, war literature, faith and hope.

IS YOUR DESK MAHOGANY?

More Than Fifty Different Woods Are Put on the Market and Sold Under That Name.

The name "mahogany" is applied commercially to more than fifty different woods. Perhaps half the lumber now sold under that name is not true mahogany, for the demand greatly exceeds the supply.

The tree is only native to the limited area between southern Florida and northern South America. Nowhere else does it really flourish. But the public will have mahogany. Women want it for furniture, business men prefer it for office fixtures, and teak and mahogany are rivals in the attention of ship-builders. Therefore substitutes flourish.

It is not surprising that the real wood is so expensive when it is learned that it takes from 100 to 150 years for a mahogany tree to reach merchantable size.

Most of the substitutes bear little more than a general resemblance to the genuine wood, but skillful finishing makes them very much alike. Experts can usually distinguish between them by the aid of an ordinary pocket lens. The efforts of the superficial, however, to judge the wood by its appearance, weight, grain and color often lead them astray.—Popular Science Monthly.

SUSPENSION RUMORED

Of The B. C. & A. And The M. D. & V. Railroads.

A rumor was prevalent this week that the B. C. & A. R. R. and the M. D. & V. R. E. would with the steamboat connections, be abandoned during the war. No verification of any such step being contemplated could be obtained. As such a move would isolate the entire lower Eastern Shore as well as the Eastern Shore of Virginia, it would be a catastrophe to the people living therein.

Other cities and towns on the Shore took similar action.

NO DEARTH OF NURSES

27,000 Volunteer In Response To Call For 25,000.

New York, Sept. 4.—There will be enough of nurses to care for the sick and wounded of America's army of 5,000,000 next year, according to a statement made here today by Miss Adelaide Nutting, chairman of the committee on nursing of the Committee of National Defense.

A survey of the nation's nursing strength, she declared, showed a reserve of 100,000, not more than 25 per cent. of whom would be ineligible for service because of age, marriage, disability or other causes. Moreover, she said, 14,000 nurses had been graduated this year, and "the yearly increment may be expected to be greater as long as the war lasts."

FEED FAT TO THE GUNS WHILE ALLIES USE MAKESHIFTS

All fats are jealously hoarded in Great Britain these days. Butter is a treat to be rarely indulged in. Margarine, once the butter of the poor, has become universal in the British Isles. Rich and poor alike spread it on their bread. Both butter and margarine are doled out in very small weekly allowances.

Lard is just as carefully husbanded by the Food Controller. Dripping is naturally more extensively used for cooking than any other form of fat. In fact, dripping, long used in place of butter on bread by the poor of Great Britain, is now actually served spread on slices of bread at popular London restaurants corresponding to Child's restaurants in American cities.

Canadian military camps in England are models in this saving of grease. Every ounce from the slop tins, every drop of the dishwasher is strained and skimmed. The purified fat is used over again for food; the residue sent to munition factories. So scanty are the allowances that local pig keepers are delighted to get camp swill for their grunting porkers, now scarcely consider it worth while to call.

Home-made fruit juices take no sugar, and may be used during the winter months in a variety of ways. One important use for fruit juices is in the making of jellies at a time of fear when sugar or its substitutes may be more plentiful, and when it is more convenient to do the work. In this way freshly made jellies may be available all through the winter.

LONE SOLDIER HOLDS TRENCH FACING GERMANS

Tells How Companions Succumbed To Shell Shock.

A weird vigil in a bay, or forward-jutting angle of a trench, facing the German army, during which his companions one by one succumbed to shell shock and went to the rear, leaving him alone, is described by Nicolai Achman-Hansen, of Haddon Heights, N. J., in a letter to friends.

Hansen is a member of Company B, 103rd Engineers, formerly the First Pennsylvania Engineers, of this city. He is a young Dane, who had been in this country but a few years when he heard the call to "beat the Hun" and enlisted just before Company B was sent to lay out the engineering lines for Camp Meade.

"Well I have been under fire at last. We were called out in the beginning of this week to take over the trenches—first line, too. They needed the men in a hurry, and as we were the nearest troops, it was up to us to make good, and of course you know that we did make good."

"We found out that our one battalion held the trenches against two enemy divisions. As soon as we got in the trenches, the German artillery started to bombard them very heavily, in hope that we would leave them, but nothing doing. We stuck it out to the last, though the shells were bursting over us and on all sides of us and it kept up all through the day."

"I was sent up with three men to take care of the last bay on the right flank. Two got shell-shocked and I had to send them back. One got scared and ran away before I could stop him. The men in the next two bays on the left had to go, too, on account of the shelling, so I was all alone there for four hours to watch. I was so exhausted that I simply couldn't keep awake any longer, so I sent word to the sergeant to get me a couple of men. He brought a couple up himself and I got a little nap for one hour, after which I watched again until we got relieved at 9 o'clock."

"Then we went back to a little wood, where we had to dig ourselves in with our mess pans and bayonets to protect us from the shrapnel and lived in holes six feet by two feet by two feet for three days."

GOVERNOR'S WIFE SERVES

In Y. W. C. A. Cafeteria Many prominent women are serving in the various hostess houses conducted by the young Women's Christian Association in the military camps throughout the country, and among the number can be counted the wife of at least one Governor.

Among the women who have been most faithful in service at the Hostess House cafeteria at Camp Meade, Maryland, is Mrs. Emerson Harrington, the beautiful wife of the Governor of Maryland. Once a week from the little historic town of Annapolis, a committee of women go to Camp Meade to wait upon the soldiers who patronize the Hostess House there, and Mrs. Harrington is often a member of this committee.

"It is very interesting," she remarked recently in talking of this work, "and I have met such a lot of dear interesting boys in this way. Very often they come over to Annapolis the Governor is as interested as I am in them and we go automobileing, or we get up little dances—several times we have turned the Governor's House over to committees for dances for the Camp Meade boys."

This is only one of Mrs. Harrington's many interests. She is a diligent worker in the War Camp Community Service and recently has been very busy measuring and weighing babies in the Child Welfare campaign. Red Cross work also claims much of her attention, and last but not least the charming wife of the Governor of Maryland is NEVER seen without her knitting.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Minutes Of The Council Session Last Monday Night.

Councilman Smith reported that a small light could be placed on Phillip Alley to be connected with street light system, but the light would have to be 100 candle power. Mr. Smith was instructed to suggest to Mr. U. C. Phillips that a small light be placed on the Alley, connected with some of the houses, and report this to the next meeting.

Permit was granted Mr. Herbert Riff, to erect garage on the north side of North Boulevard. A petition was received from several property owners on Poplar Hill ave. asking that a light be placed on said Poplar Hill Ave. between Broad and Williams streets. After careful consideration the Council decided to have the light at the intersection of Williams Street, and Poplar Hill Ave. placed on a long arm to extend to the center of the intersection, which is thought sufficient for lighting Poplar Hill Ave.

On motion, City Clerk M. S. Huxton was granted leave of absence from his duties to serve in the U. S. Army for so long as he may be needed. It is understood that Mr. Huxton will continue to hold the position until his return. It was further agreed by the Council that Mr. E. J. C. Parsons will act as Clerk and Tax Collector.

WICOMICO MEN PROMOTED

Among the list of Marylanders who have won commissions at Camp Gordon during the last few days, we notice the names of Sergt. Elijah Vaughn Gordy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn S. Gordy of this city, and Sergt. Jas. E. Purnell, whose post office address was given as Salisbury, Md., Route 2. Both these young men were sent from Camp Meade in a selective number for training in the Officers' Corps at Camp Gordon, and both won their commissions without trouble. It is certainly a gratifying fact to know that wherever the Salisbury boys go after a commission in the army, they generally land it without trouble.

Several more young men who have gone from this city to Camp Meade for training, and who have advanced to non-commissioned positions, will be sent to the Officers' Training Camp within the next few weeks to try their hand at winning a commission in the army, and we feel certain that most of them will be successful.

For instance—Your kitchen clock stops suddenly some night, without the least warning. You can't coax it to go. It's on strike.

Now, it is plain that there are only two things to be done: lay the old clock aside for good and all, or let us fix it for you.

Of course, in some cases a new clock is preferable—but the right thing to do would be to let our repair department decide what is best to be done. We mean the best from your way of looking at it.

More than likely a cleaning, a renewal of a worn part, and a little general adjusting would out new life into the old timepiece. Bring it to us.

SAND HILL TURNED INTO REAL MONEY

An Investment in a College Education Brings Quick Returns.

BY DAVID C. GALE.

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

"I've lived on this farm the biggest part of my life," grumbled Mr. Whitcomb, "and what have I got to show for it? It's growing worse every year, if anything. I thought 'twould be different after you went to the farming college, but what you got out of books don't seem to help it any."

"Blame the farm, father, don't blame the books. This soil is hardly good enough for pasture. That sand hill lot is worse than nothing. You can't expect science to do it all—there must be something to start with."

"But other farms have been brought back into shape again. They say there's a way to make 'em over when they're all run down," persisted Mr. Whitcomb.

"To make them over, yes, but not to make them. This place isn't run down—there never was anything here to run down. It was worthless in the beginning."

"Then you think I'd ought to sell it and buy another?"

"You couldn't do it. What you could get for it wouldn't buy another one that you want, I mean. Good farms are high these days."

Mr. Whitcomb could think of nothing to say in reply, so he pulled the barn door together and walked off toward the house. There was an almost pitiful stoop to his shoulders, a stoop which told of years of fighting with the rocks and sand. He paused in the middle of the yard to ask another question.

"When are you going away?" he called out.

"In about a month," replied the younger man.

There had been a position waiting for Don Whitcomb at the end of his course in college. It was a good position, too, and he felt confident there bring him out of it. I hope so. Tell him all the good news you can. That's the kind of tonic he needs."

That afternoon Don drove to Weldon for the weekly supply of groceries. Weldon was a town built around the marble quarries. Indeed, it seemed that the people there could see or talk about nothing but marble. It was piled up on all sides of them—tons of it—in an inconceivable variety of shapes and sizes.

Nevertheless, Don made his way to the store without once giving a thought to the marble industry. As he set out to return home, the horse began to dance at sight of the tramway, with the moving chain of buckets.

"I'm ashamed of you, Gyp," he mumbled. "Think how many times you've seen this thing. Strange how they never get used to it," he said to a man beside the road.

"It won't scare horses a great while longer. That's one sure thing."

"Why?"

"Because there won't be anything to run it for. This can't hold out more than two years, at the most. It's getting poor now."

"That's what I should like to know," returned the man. "It's hard stuff to pick up when you want it."

"Hard stuff to find, is it?" mused Don as he drove away. "Well, there's plenty of it up our way—too much of it. The whole thing is for sale, too."

Late that night Mrs. Whitcomb went upstairs to see if her son had fallen asleep and had left his lamp burning. She found him sitting at a table, bending over a mass of figures.

"What are you doing up so late?" she asked.

"I'm trying to find a way to build up the farm," came the evasive reply.

"You'll never do it by breaking into the night, this way," she murmured.

"It is rather late, isn't it?" he said smilingly. "I guess I'll go to bed."

A whispered goodnight floated back to him from the hallway. He turned the lamp lower and sat down at the table again. His bed was unoccupied that night.

Daybreak found him ready for a second trip to Weldon. In order to gain added information, he visited the shops and mills during the early part of the day. Then there were more figures and a final survey of the facts at his command. The afternoon was nearly half gone when he entered the president's office.

"I called to see you about your sand supply," he said, as Mr. Gordon turned in his chair.

"What's the matter with it?" The president thought there must be something wrong with the tramway.

"It's running out, isn't it? What you have in sight will soon be exhausted. I have two or three million tons of it for sale, if you would care to consider the matter."

"Where is it?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"Up on our farm."

"You mean that sand hill? Will you deliver it?"

"No, but you could extend the tramway. It's in almost a direct line up over the hill. Our thirty-acre lot would keep you supplied for 15 years at least—probably longer."

"And how about the price?"

"Two hundred dollars an acre."

"Six thousand dollars!" ejaculated the president. "I shouldn't consider your whole farm to be worth more than half that amount."

"Perhaps not as a farm, but how about the value of the sand? Wouldn't you be getting it at a pretty low price?"

"There may be something in the scheme," continued the president, apparently unaware that anyone had been speaking. "I am not prepared to say at present. I should want to have our engineers look into it. Perhaps you may hear from me later."

The days traveled by without bringing any word. The engineers had come and gone, leaving nothing to sustain the hope which their arrival had kindled. There was only silence and uncertainty.

On the eighth morning, however, the tension was relieved by a call at the door, and a thin, impressive-looking envelope was ushered in. Don, trusting it into his pocket, he swung open the door of his father's room.

"Do you want to sell the thirty-acre lot?" he said.

WHEATLESS PLEDGE AT END BUT OLD RULES STILL HOLD

The Maryland Food Administration Adds Its Name to Those Called From England By Mr. Hoover to the Hotel and Restaurant Proprietors Who Voluntarily Pledged Themselves Not to Keep Within the Maximum of Flour Allowed by the Government but Actually to Abstain From Serving any Wheat Whatever Until the New Harvest Came.

A number of hotels, particularly in Baltimore, were their word to the Maryland Administration that they would make this vital contribution to the Allied cause and scores of others took a pledge to out down their wheat consumption to the utmost limit within their powers. Only the proprietors, the bakers and the Food Administration knew of the thought and time that were expended to turn out a bread that would be acceptable to patrons and still use no wheat even for binding purposes.

Those who played this game are now congratulated upon the performance of a truly national service. Through their efforts Maryland was able to add to the overseas store of foodstuffs thousands of bushels more than Mr. Hoover's rules and regulations actually demanded. It was a free-will offering that will stand to the credit of the State.

The release from the wheatless pledge, however, does not mean that the existing regulations are at an end. By no means. It is essential that a big reserve be built up both here and abroad in case of emergency. War is not a game to trifle with.

Mr. Hoover's cable releasing the hotels from their voluntary wheatless pledge does not mean for a moment that the hotels and public eating places may go back to the serving of whole wheat bread," explained Mr. W. H. Malthe, Assistant Food Administrator of Maryland. "They may serve only Victory Bread, which means bread that is 75 per cent. wheat flour and 25 per cent. substitute. And only two ounces of such bread may be served to a customer at one meal, as formerly."

Mr. Hoover's cable doesn't lift the necessity for the conservation of wheat. It merely releases the hotel men from their voluntary pledge to go the limit and use no wheat at all. The baking regulations haven't been changed and they will continue to be enforced as they stand."

THEN IT CAME HOME TO HER

Moment When Henrietta Realized That There Were Dishonest People In the World.

Henrietta Weir looked at the change the conductor had just given her—a quarter and five nickels.

"Goodness," she thought excitedly, "he's given me a nickel over! I'm riding for nothing!"

And she quickly closed her hand over the change, and then she remembered that the conductor had rung up her fare and that probably the nickel would have to come out of his own pocket.

"Oh, dear!" she thought remorsefully. "Perhaps the poor man has a large family and perhaps a nickel a day is all he can afford to feed them with. I suppose I really ought to return it to him. But no, he has a bad face—I shouldn't be surprised if he beats his wife every day, and it would serve him right to suffer for his own carelessness! Still, of course, I wouldn't like to feel that I am depriving his baby of its daily bucket of milk—no, I'll keep it—a man in his position has no moral right to have a large family. Goodness, what if he should suddenly find out he gave me too much and demand it back again? I think I'll get right out—I'm only ten blocks from home, anyway."

And at the next stop she hurriedly left the car, still clutching the quarter and five nickels in her hand.

"I'd better look again—perhaps there are only four nickels after all," she thought. And she opened her hand and looked. No, there were five, but, as she looked, the quarter slipped through her fingers and fell on the pavement—with a hollow, leaden sound.

"Oh!" she gritted through her teeth. "The dishonesty of this world!"

CARE FOR FARROWING SOWS

No Feed Should Be Given for Twenty-Four Hours—She Must Have Water at Frequent Intervals.

The sow should have no feed whatever for 24 hours after farrowing. She must have water at frequent intervals; that drawn directly from the well is about the right temperature. Increase the feed gradually for ten days, when she may be got onto full feed.

That splendid company of France's famous "Blue Devils" has just completed a triumphal progress through the United States. Their two months' tour was marked by banquet after banquet, feast after feast. But, though courtesy demanded that they should eat the dainties which were set before them on public occasions, only those who came in closest touch with these battle-scarred heroes from France know what it cost them to do so. For they could not but contrast the overflowing tables here with the empty benches they had seen in France.

At one private home in Maryland at which night of the "Blue Devils" were guests it was noted that they ate another meal, for the reason that they were better things ahead of him. The old people had never taken very kindly to his ideas concerning scientific farming. It was only after long-continued argument that they ceased to oppose his plans.

Even then they could lend him no aid. The family pocketbook was hardly able to supply the necessities; there was no provision for the cause of education. Consequently, the success which came as a result of his four years' work gave him the right to believe that he had chosen wisely.

"I suppose father thinks I ought to stay here," he mused, "but it's asking too much of a fellow. The only thing I can do is to save up money and send it home."

Mr. Whitcomb was unusually silent at the supper table that evening. Don noticed something in his face that he had never seen before. It was the expression of a man who wears when he is about to give up the fight. His eye was listless, his head bowed, his short, his whole attitude suggested defeat.

The following morning Mrs. Whitcomb appeared in Don's room at an early hour.

"You'll have to see to things today," she said. "Your father is sick."

"What's the matter?" he queried, sleepily.

"I don't know," replied his mother. "I can't find out as he's in my pain, and he don't seem to be feverish. He just says he's sick."

A week passed—two weeks—the third one began to unfold itself drearily. It found Mr. Whitcomb still in bed.

"Physically, he's all right as far as I can see," the doctor had told them. "He's just lost his grip, that's all. Keep him quiet and try to encourage him all you can."

"You mean that medicine won't do him any good?" asked Don.

BROUGHT TO TIME

One Way to Help Man in His Woeing.

By JEANNE O. LOIZEAUX.

Orpha did not lift her eyes from her embroidery, but she was all ears to Mrs. Healy's chatter. That lady rooked, did complicated Irish crochet—and gossiped, each performance perfect of its kind, and a refutation of the adage that only one thing at a time can be done well!

Orpha's sister had left her to entertain her guest for an hour on the wide, vine-covered veranda, with its rugs, tea table, easy chairs and other paraphernalia of summer idleness, and the girl found her duty best performed by a system of listening. The young matron had discussed fashion, the lake society, the latest novel, and finally launched into a running commentary on love affairs. Safe herself in the haven of a happy marriage, she considered herself a judge of storms on life's sea, and wise unto the matrimonial salvation of all who would accept her advice.

Mrs. Healy swung a pretty tan pump below her narrow skirt, and audibly considered the case of Rose Danison and George Saint.

"They've been engaged forever, and nobody knows why they don't marry and be out of their misery! I say it is her fault that he doesn't insist on her choosing the day. She makes him too content as he is. A man has to be brought to time occasionally. He gets too complacent, too sure of a girl, and needs to be waked up. She ought to make him jealous, or go abroad a year, or even break the engagement! Instead, she waits ten years and acquires a patient look and great sweetness of character, and some day, being only an average man, he will prefer mere pink cheeks, bright eyes and impatient! Don't you think so?"

Orpha lifted her dark head, and her calm eyes rested a moment on the plump little matron, glad that her secret was safely hidden in her own heart, and that people could not thus discuss her and Stanley Long. For the first time she was glad that she and Stan were not engaged, though she was as she had been all summer, miserable because he neither declared his love nor went away. Mrs. Healy, being a stranger, of course knew nothing about Stanley, and the girl hoped her natural reserve had kept it from her own world.

"Don't you think so?" persisted the older woman.

Orpha rose in her deliberate way, folding her embroidery, and stood, tall and slender in the dying light of afternoon. Unnoticed by them, the young man of the house, had sprang along to the rose-wreathed railing, and was listening quizzically to the girl's answer.

"I—hardly think I do," said Orpha. "I don't see how a girl with any self-respect could purposely make the man—she—cares for—jealous, or send him away when she doesn't mean it, or pretend to leave just to see if he will follow. It doesn't seem sincere, somehow. If a man does not care enough to say so, that's one thing. But he might have a real reason, and she might trust him. If she doesn't trust him, she couldn't love him, anyway, could she? Perhaps, Rose and George don't tell everybody all their secrets!"

Perhaps she is patient because she—understands? It might be like that, you know." She suddenly saw her nephew, only five years her junior, and blushed deeply. Wise with his twenty years, he regarded the girl with favor.

"Good for you, auntie! You've got sense! A fellow would hate to be brought to time like that, if he had any self-respect and—"

"If he knew what was being done to him, which he never does," finished Mrs. Healy, with her ripple of a laugh. "You are two solemn, sentimental children, and know nothing whatever about love. Just you wait, Steve; and as for you, Orpha—"

Steve's mother came along just then, taking off her gloves and dropping into the first chair, regarding first her son and then her sister with favor.

"As for Orpha," she said, "she is a dear, and I'm glad she's here for her vacation, and since she is, I want her to go out to the lake and see the sunset. She loves it, and she looks a little solemn. You might go along, Steve."

The boy bowed with mock ceremony to his mother. "I'm not wanted. Auntie loves her own company. Besides, it makes me feel like a silly little boy to be nephew to a girl so pretty that everybody turns to look at her. If she wants me to follow as a bodyguard I'll go—"

Orpha, already on the way, laughed him to scorn over her shoulder. "No, I don't want you. You're too young and silly! Besides—"

"Besides, she has other fish to fry, mother. She is not the only sun-set-lover that dawdles about the cliffs of a summer's evening! Most romantic, I call it!" She fed his impudence, her sister and Mrs. Healy, and took refuge across the garden, down the path through the woods toward the pretty lake. This time she hoped Stanley would not be there. She wished that she herself did not know she loved him before he had in words declared his love for her. Sure at heart of him, she wondered wistfully at his silence, her maidenly dignity up in arms the while.

As she straightened back to the brick lake bridge, striding off on her lithe, healthy fashion, her mind reverted to Mrs. Healy and her talk, which she hated. The girl's nobility rose high and above subterfuge and stratagem. She would never help a man with his woeing, nor hurry him, by word or act, or even by thought. If love were less than free and spontaneous, it was not real love, and she would have none of it.

Then at the turn of a cliff she saw Stanley, and it came to her that, unasked, she was going to meet him. He had not seen her yet, and she slipped back behind a great rock and out of sight, ran swiftly down to the sandy strip of beach and away from him, her cheeks on fire, her heart beating hard. If he did catch her, did want her, he could seek her out and say so, and until he did this, she would not dawdle about alone on the veranda; but neither would she stoop to an attempt to make him jealous—she would not encourage Hal Porter. As she turned toward home she vowed a mental and spiritual vow of loyalty to Stanley, and to him alone. She would trust her love and leave it to his manliness and discretion to show her heart when the fullness of time should have come.

The sun had quite gone down, and the first dusk came, and with it great peace and comfort to the girl after the unrest of the past few weeks. In this mood, Orpha came hurrying up the wood path, aware that she should not be alone, when she heard rapid steps behind her. She quickened her own pace, a little fearful, but in a moment the steps came closer and she heard her name.

"Orpha! Orpha, wait for me?" Another instant and Stanley was close at her side, a little out of breath. She turned, smiling slowly at him in the dim light, looking up at the big, fair man as he took her by the arm with a deep breath of relief.

"Why are you running away from me?" he demanded. "Can't you see that some day I am bound to tell you that I love you? You have eluded me for weeks, Orpha! Does that mean that you don't—care?" He waited, and she shook her head in denial, joy surging in every vein.

"Can you love me?—do you?" He caught both her hands in his and bent over them, kissing them gently. She did not withdraw them. There was no pretense, no dissimulation of love like hers.

"I—love you—dearly," she replied firmly, but in a low tone. He put an arm about her shoulders and drew her to him.

"Oh, my dear," he said, "my dear!" (Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Simple Bath for an Elephant.

During the recent heat wave in Paris the proprietor of a great managerie, noticing that his favorite elephant, Jimmy, was weak and listless, thought that a bath might do him good, so a bath was prescribed. First, six men soaped Jimmy all over, not forgetting—and this was the most delicate part of their task—the multitudinous folds of his ears. Then hoses played on this pachyderm from every quarter of the compass. Now came the drying, which was performed by throwing quantities of fine sand over the animal. Jimmy was then rubbed down and anointed with pure cocoa oil till his skin was smooth and shining. He appeared very much better for his bath, and well he might, for this seemingly simple prescription had cost his owner $300.

Moth Larvae Poisonous.

The human skin is pierced by hairs of larvae of the precessionary moth, caterpillars that sometimes swarm over Europe. In great numbers, and painful swelling, itching and great irritation result. A Belgian investigator, C. Pittier, has found that the effects are not merely mechanical, but are due to chemical poisoning. On soaking the hairs in either they lost their irritant properties, but the substance dissolved out. This substance, of which 0.28 per cent was extracted, has the chemical and physiological properties of cantharidin, the poisonous principle of cantharides.

ON THE MID-SUMMER MENU.

Fish, vegetables, fruits and the dairy products, with barley, rice flour and cornmeal, are the foods that must be drawn upon just now, and if they are carefully combined and correctly cooked a varied and nutritious set of menus can be furnished that are not only particularly adapted to the summer season, but also help to conserve these articles of food that we must all learn to do without.

DIVIDING THE GARBAGE

TWIXT HOGS AND HUNS

Twenty-nine large American cities are in the Food Administration's bad books because they are throwing away garbage instead of getting out of it shells to whip the Huns and greases to work our guns.

These cities, with a combined population of over 5,000,000, are charged with wasting the following:—4,400,000 pounds of nitro-glycerine, 40,000,000 twelve ounce cakes of soap, 60,000,000 tons of tankage, with sufficient fertilizer element to produce 3,000,000 bushels of wheat. Value of material wasted is put at $5,000,000.

Even the solitary little home which utilizes enough odd bits of fat to take the place of a bar of soap and releases that much grease from the market for military use may proudly boast that it is operating a miniature munition plant. Fats and grease are in such tremendous demand that every ounce counts.

THE SUGAR EQUATION.

Hoover says, THREE POUNDS OF SUGAR A MONTH.

Three pounds—150 teaspoonsful—228 lumps.

As substitutes for white sugar there are these seven varieties of sweeteners—brown sugar, maple sugar, maple syrup, honey, molasses, corn syrup, and such dried sugar fruits as figs, prunes and dates. The first three are a little less sweet than white cane sugar, but have more flavor and may be substituted cup for cup in recipes.

"FANK U MERIKA"

School Tot Writes Hoover London.—When Herbert Hoover, the U. S. Food Administrator, reached this country he was overwhelmed with tokens of British appreciation of what the civilians of the United States have been doing to support the Allied cause through an unflinching food supply. But by none was he more touched than the little not-so-called "school tot" written by twelve hundred pupils of the London County School, at Harlesden. The school children of Maryland may well be proud of what their patriotic sacrifice has done to keep hunger away from their far-off school mates. Here are some of the notes:

"Fank U Merika." (Author aged four.)

"Please thank everyone in America for helping us to win the war by eating less food." (Author aged eight.)

"We British children think you American men, women and children are just splendid." (Author aged nine.)

"We should have gone hungry to school if it hadn't been for Mr. Hoover. (Author aged twelve.)

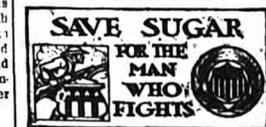

"President Wilson has chosen the most capable man in the world to be the Food Controller." (Author aged thirteen.)

Sir William Goods, Mr. Hoover's representative in London, says: "These little letters from British school children will make an excellent impression upon the children of America and their parents. They will further help to draw closer the ties that unite the two great democracies."

CONCERNING CHEESE.

Cheese contains about one-third water, one-third body-building material, and one-third fat, as well as valuable mineral salts.

Its advantages as a war food are: Cooking is unnecessary. Appetizing flavor. Absence of waste. Good keeping qualities. Small storage space required.

LENTIL SAUSAGES.

(Official recipe.)
Lentils, one-half pound; potatoes, boiled and mashed—three pounds, onions chopped and fried, milk or white of egg, fat for frying.

Wash, strain, and place lentils in boiling water, boil them about 30 minutes just covered with water; when soft mash them, add the potatoes and chopped onion, and mix well. Form into sausages, dip into white of egg and fry.

These ingredients also make a good potato pie.

FULL REGISTRATION IN WICOMICO COUNTY

All Man Power Now Enrolled—No Day Observed in Patriotic Manner.

Wicomico's men, fathers and sons, flocked to the various registration booths in the county and enrolled themselves among the fighting forces of this country.

The full registration was not obtainable at this early date but it is believed that a full registration was obtained, and that the number registered will be higher than the estimates made before-hand. Wicomico was expected to register around twenty eight hundred men or about one-third more than in the registration of those between the ages of 21 and 31. It is believed that the total number registered will reach the three thousand mark.

The day was observed as one of great patriotism. The church and school bells were rung at stated intervals, the steam whistles blew, flags were flying and in Salisbury the band playing from morning until late at night. Prayer meetings were held in the churches, and various patriotic gatherings held.

Uncle Sam has now a force of over twenty three million men to draw from in order to get an army big enough to put the Kaiser and his hand of liberty and freedom destroyers out of business.

It is expected that some of these registered on Thursday will be called to service in a very short time. It is necessary to keep up the steady stream of soldiers that we are now pouring daily into France, and in order to do this the supply must come from those registered on Thursday.

PERSHING VALUES PRAYER

Power Of It Regarded As Invaluable By American Army Leader.

General Pershing believes strongly in the efficacy of prayer.

Replying to greetings sent him by the Protestant churches of the United States through Dr. Charles S. McFarland, the commander of the American forces in France writes:

"The invisible and unconquerable force let loose by the prayers and hopes and ideals of Christian America, which you are representative of, is incalculable. It furnishes the soul and motive for the military body and its operations. It steadies us to resist manfully those temptations which assail us in the extraordinary conditions of life in which we find ourselves.

"In the name of the American Army in France, as well as in my own name, I thank you for your kind and stimulating message. It is the consciousness that the soldier has behind him an undivided Nation which enables him, whatever his rank may be, to face his task with courage.

"We dare not claim that, as an army, we have yet achieved that high standard of manhood and conduct upon which the largest human effectiveness should be built; but the ideal of the Nation and of the church is constantly before us. With sincerity and firm purpose we set our faces toward the goal. After all, it is a common fight—yours there and ours here. What is necessary for the manhood of the soldier is necessary for the manhood of the citizen."

Dr. McFarland was appointed a commissioner to visit France by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America which embraces practically all the Protestant denominations in this country.

GROCERS ATTENTION

That Flour Must Contain Substitutes.

It appears that many of our grocers are confused by newspaper articles as to the new flour regulations and think that the substitutes are no longer necessary.

The present regulations call for one pound of substitute for each four pounds of flour sold and the substitutes must in every instance be bought with the flour if it is straight flour. This rule applies equally to millers who sell flour to consumers or when exchanging flour for wheat. No certificates by millers are to be given and none accepted by grocers.

The rule of no substitutes applies only when the flour bought contains one per cent of substitutes put in flour at the mill. At this little or no substitute flour is sold in this section.

In every instance when in doubt ask for information from my

THREE SALISBURY BOYS PROMOTED

Many Boys From Here Winning Commissions.

We feel great pride in our Wicomico boys now in the service, and are glad to note how rapidly they are advanced after entering the service. One of the latest to be promoted is Howard S. Bennett of Sharptown, who was made a Sergeant in the Signal Corps last week. He is now stationed at the barracks in Jersey City.

Private Sterling Smyth, of Salisbury, has received a deserved promotion in the service of Uncle Sam, being promoted to Sergeant in the Financial Department, Quartermaster's Corps, at Camp Meade. Sergeant Smyth has been at Camp Meade for several months, and having had several years' experience in the Farmers & Merchants Bank, Salisbury, before being called to the army, was assigned to the financial department soon after his arrival at Camp Meade.

Private Franklin Woodcock, of Salisbury, was last week commissioned to be a Second Lieutenant in the Quartermaster's Corps, in Washington. Lieutenant Woodcock was one of the draftees sent to Camp Meade several months ago. Later he was transferred to Camp Humphreys and Washington, D. C., and later still to Camp Travis, Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex. Where he now is.

Lieut. Woodcock attended the St Johns College, for nearly two years which probably stood him in good stead for rapid advancement when ushered into service.

TO FIX GASOLINE PRICE

Dr. Garfield Says Cost To Domestic Consumers Will Be Lowered.

Fuel Administrator Garfield announced Monday that he expects soon to fix a price of gasoline for domestic consumers as well as the Government and the Allies at a figure lower than the present market price. He is awaiting further reports on the situation before taking definite action. No intimation was made as to what the fixed price will be.

Dr. Garfield's announcement disclosed that for some time consideration had been given the problem of bringing the price of gasoline to a lower level. Several reports already have been made to Mark L. Requa, director of the Oil Division of the Fuel Administration, and it was intimated that upon completion of the investigation now being conducted immediate action would be taken.

The disclosure of Dr. Garfield's purpose came during an informal talk with newspaper correspondents in which the stocks of gasoline in the country and the stated shortage east of the Mississippi river, which caused the Administration to request that no passenger automobiles be operated on Sundays in that section were discussed.

Dr. Garfield would not discuss reports that his request was based on information furnished the Administration by the oil industry for the alleged purpose of maintaining the present price of gasoline in the face of a reported large supply in the country.

The Senate today displayed its interest in the automobileless Sunday request by adopting a resolution offered by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, asking the Administration for information as to the country's production, consumption and exportation of gasoline, with separate figures of the amount used by passenger cars.

Death Of Mrs. Porter

Mrs. Sarah Newman Porter, wife of Mr. George T. Porter, died at her home Tuesday afternoon last. Deceased was 67 years of age on June 8th. She is survived by her husband and two children, Wilber Newman and Miss Frances Stewart Porter, and two grandchildren, Mrs. Preston Short and Miss Dorothy Porter. The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 3:30 from Allen Church.

Mr. Harry Ulman of Wilkesbarre, Pa., came to Salisbury Friday to be present at the celebration of the Jewish New Year on Saturday with his mother and the other members of the two Ulman families. The occasion also afforded opportunity for Miss Sarah Ulman to receive congratulations on the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Sol Cohn, of Cynwyd, Pa., who holds a very responsible position with the American

MAJOR FOOKS WRITES INTERESTING LETTER

About Our Troops "Over There" Red Cross And Other Work Appreciated.

Major Herbert C. Fooks, 16th Inf. U. S. A. has written a very interesting letter to the Salisbury Advertiser in which he speaks with pride about the great work our soldiers are doing on the battle-fields of France, and how the boys over there appreciate the work being done at home to help win the war.

Major Fooks is a Wicomico County man, and is the son of Ex-Sheriff Geo. W. Fooks. He entered the regular army prior to the declaration of War with Germany as 2nd. Lieut. His promotion through the various grades of 1st. Lieut., Captain and recently to that of Major have been rapid and won by meritorious services.

Major Fook's letter is as follows; American Postoffice Number 729, In France, via New York, 30th Of July 1918. The Salisbury Advertiser, Salisbury, Maryland.

Enclosed please find my check for one year's subscription to your paper. I enclose a copy of the Daily Mail which may be interesting to you because it is published over here. I know that you people will be proud of our soldiers when you hear how they fought and are fighting in the Battle of the Marne. The German forces are retreating daily to save their army down in the pocket which they made in another vain effort to reach Paris. There is much fighting to be done yet. Every real soldier appreciates the manner in which our people are taking hold of the proposition to bring about an early and permanent peace. Tremendous forces must be brought to bear and immense amounts of war material provided to insure terms of peace that are really worth while. But our people are doing all this in a willing manner and we fellows over here are encouraged to do our part with a better spirit. Your Red Cross work is helping us out and on every side one hears of the wonderful service it is giving and at the exact spot where it is needed most, to the soldier wounded on the battlefield or in and near the trenches. My regiment has distinguished itself again by the determined manner in which it has met the enemy and driven him back regardless of its own losses. It fills one with pride as one fellow put it to be an American and to see how our fellows uphold the high standards of valor that has been seen on numerous occasions by the men who have fallen on the field of honor. They realize that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty and we all hope that we may never be caught asleep.

Very truly yours, HERBERT C. FOOKS.

An interesting meeting of Salisbury Grange was held September 7. Plans were made to make this winter a banner Grange season. Interesting programs will be rendered throughout the fall and winter.

Together with the farmers necessity for business organization, his social necessities should not be overlooked. The Grange furnishes both. Begin early to attend your Grange this fall.

MRS. SIDNEY JOHNSON

Had Been An Invalid For More Than Four Years.

Mrs. Agnes Johnson, wife of Mr. A. Sidney Johnson, died Monday at her home on East Church Street, aged 47 years. Mrs. Johnson had been an invalid for four years suffering from Bright's disease.

Deceased was a daughter of the late John H. Bacon of Mardela Springs, and is survived by her husband and two children—one daughter who resides in Salisbury, and one son, who is with the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Mrs. Johnson was a great sufferer, but she bore her affliction with great patience. Her death is a source of great sorrow to a large circle of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of the deceased.

YOUNG HEBRON MAN LOSES LIFE

In Bad Automobile Accident—Strikes Telephone Pole, Ocean City Road.

A bad accident occurred on the Ocean City Road, about three miles from this city early yesterday morning in which one young man Mr. Victor Phillips of Hebron, Md. lost his life and his two companions, Messrs. Paul Phillips and Samuel Dennis of this city had a very narrow escape.

The car was coming from the direction of Ocean City and it is supposed that young Phillips who was driving the car lost control of the machine at the bend in the road opposite the residence of the Rev. Mr. George Morris; the machine plunged ahead and ran into a telephone pole breaking it into. The machine turned turtle and pitched on its top pinning its occupants in their seats.

Victor Phillips, the driver, was crushed in the fall, probably by the steering wheel, his two companions escaping with slight injuries. Rev. Mr. Morris brought the other boys into town and reported the accident.

Mr. Victor Phillips who was killed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Phillips of Hebron, where Mr. Phillips is a partner of the G. A. Bounds & Co., and one of the prominent and influential men of his section.

HUN CRIED "KAMERAD"

Held Up Hands, Treacherously—Dragged Guns By Belt.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept.—Grim-faced, begrimed and stained after several days of desperate, continuous battle, a platoon of Marines was firing rapidly but calmly and accurately at the Hun ranks.

The foe's numbers were in the majority but the Sea Soldiers' fire was proving speedily evening.

Suddenly the Huns dropped their rifles and cried "Kamerad."

The Marines waited for the surrendering enemy to approach. When the foe came within 200 yards their first lines dropped. They had been dragging machine guns by ropes attached to their belts.

About 30 Marines fell before their comrades with a yell of rage and revenge surged forward. The bayonet let not a Hun survive.

This is another example of Teuton treachery. It is told by an officer and two members of the platoon now in a hospital.

LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT RIGGIN

Who Is Serving His Country In France, Addressed To His Mother.

The ADVERTISER is glad to be able to publish the following letter from Lieut. C. H. Riggins to his mother, a resident of this County. Though barely touched on by the Lieutenant, one can read through the lines that our boys are meeting hardships in the great struggle, and are meeting them with no murmur of complaint but with a spirit to overcome anything that is in their way of winning this war;

July 30, 1918.

Dear Mother:

I am awfully sorry I did not get to write you the past two weeks. I have been so busy, chasing the Hun that I wasn't at any place where there was any paper to write on. I suppose from all reports this was about as bad as any drive the Germans attempted and thank God, it was a complete failure and turned out to be a successful offensive for the Allies. I am proud to say I was in it and it is only thru the grace of God that I am able to write you today. Don't ever worry about me mother, for "I'll be back." Somehow I feel a guiding hand from above and I think more of my God every day—not the Kaiser's, for he is the devil himself. Any man that can manufacture such deadly machines and say—Got mit uns—I want nothing to do with him, nor his God. Give me H—in preference to such a hypocrite.

I cabled Lillian yesterday, so all of you might know I am among the living. Lillian will have written you before you receive this letter. I am getting your letters pretty regularly now. I was very happy to get two from you this week. No doubt, they are all anxious to hear from me, but I can assure you I am more than anxious to hear from home and from my sweetheart.

At present I am back quite a ways, for a deserved rest, in a day or so, I'll be able to think straight again. You know I was unable to pull off my shoes—shave, wash, or anything for two weeks, so you can imagine what a handsome son you had. Once again, I am beginning to look civilized. Tomorrow I expect to connect with my good uniform—then I'll dress up once more.

Awfully sorry I was unable to write you, but I—glad I was where I could help run the dirty bunch back. With love to all, I am

Your son,
Lt. C. H. Riggins.

Louise Harlan Twiley

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Twiley, is saddened by the death of their little girl, Louise who died last Monday morning of that dread disease, infantile paralysis.

She was about seven years of age. On entering school at the beginning of the fall term she did not appear to be well, crying the greater part of the first day. After going home she rapidly grew worse until her death last Wednesday morning.

She was buried at Mardela Springs the funeral services were conducted by the M. P. Pastor, Rev. Irving S. Owens.

Perhaps Decisive Battle Of War, Washington View

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—With French and American troops striking on a wide front south and east of Verdun today, the greatest battle, perhaps the decisive struggle of the war, may have begun. Early reports show that this first employment of General Pershing's new army is on a wide front, the joint French and American thrust covering twenty miles.

Victory Is Certain And Not Far Off; Says Lloyd George

MANCHESTER, England, Sept. 12. "Nothing but heart failure on the part of the British nation can prevent our achieving a real victory," said Premier Lloyd George speaking today at Manchester. "To end all wars," the premier added, "we must impose a durable peace from our enemies. The Prussian military power must not only be beaten but Germany itself must know and the German people must know that their rulers have outraged the laws of humanity and that Prussian strength cannot protect them from punishment."

War Department Will Train Military Units At Well-Known Institution.

The War Department has added another Maryland college to the training units for young men of 18 years. Western Maryland College has not had military training hitherto, but its trustees ordered last June that this should be inaugurated with the opening of the year 1918-19. Then came the decision of the War Department to establish students army training corps at the colleges. President Lewis secured authorization for Western Maryland to be so recognized.

This means that a regular army officer will be detailed as commandant at Western Maryland, and students of proper age will be enlisted in the regular Army. They will be taught, boarded, uniformed and equipped at the expense of the government, and will be given regular soldiers' pay. The government will outline their course of study and determine how long they may remain at college.

The corps at Western Maryland will have the same academic and military training as at other college units, and the same privileges. It is understood to be the intention of the government to give such training to these young men as will best fit them for active service.

Mrs. Oliver T. Beauchamp received telegram last week from War Department informing her that on August 17, a grave had been found in France marked Oliver T. Beauchamp.

It is supposed that Lieut. Beauchamp fell within German lines and that his grave was discovered and ground recovered by the Allies in their advance since August 1st. He wrote his mother late in July, reporting his participation

DRUGHT CUTS CORN CROP

Estimated Yield Reduced To 2,672,000,000—Spring Wheat Improves.

Heavy loss in the prospective corn crop, but a considerable increase in the forecast of Spring wheat production featured the September crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture.

Lack of rain during August in the corn belt caused a reduction of 517,000,000 bushels in the crop forecast, bringing the loss in prospective production since July 1 to 487,000,000 bushels, representing more than $800,000,000.

A corn crop of 2,672,000,000 bushels this year was forecast today from September 1 conditions. That would be almost 600,000,000 bushels less than last year's crop and slightly smaller than the average crop of five years from 1912 to 1916.

The Spring wheat crop shows pure improvement and there was an 4.1 per cent of 21,000,000 bushels in the crop of production, bringing the total crop to 343,000,000 bushels. A snap of the winter wheat crop of 556,000,000 bushels, previously announced, this year's total wheat crop will be 899,000,000 bushels. That is almost 250,000,000 bushels more than was harvested last year and 90,999,000 bushels more than the 1912-1916 average.

Estimates of production of other crops compared with these made a month ago showed various changes. Oats had a 19,000,000 bushel increase; tobacco, a 20,000,000 pound loss; hay, a 13,000,000 tons loss and white potatoes at 6,000,000 bushels loss.

Other changes were: Barley, 4,000,000 bushels increase; sweet potatoes, 3,500,000 bushels decrease; flax 1,000,000 bushels increase; and rice 700,000 bushels decrease.

Heaviest reduction in the corn production forecast came from Kansas with a loss of 62,000,000 bushels; Nebraska with 60,000,000 bushels; Missouri with 57,000,000 bushels; Illinois with 37,000,000 bushels and Iowa with 32,000,000 bushels.

SELECTION OF ORCHARD SITE

Great Importance Is Attached to Favorable Location—Peaches Favor Light Soils.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon a suitable location and site of the peach orchard, because a faulty choice of either may be fatal to future financial success. Some mistakes in planning an orchard may be overcome as the trees develop, but a poor location or site cannot be changed.

It is the current opinion that the peach should be planted on sandy or some of the lighter types of soil. Excellent results may follow the planting of orchards on such soils, but peaches do well also on a wide range of soil types, including even some of the moderately heavy clay loams and clays. But whatever the type, a soil must be thoroughly well drained. Peaches will not succeed on poorly drained soils. The heavy clay types which are so hard and impervious that water does not percolate through them readily are to be avoided. Moreover, the soil should be moderately fertile. One very rich in nitrogen is not desirable as a general rule, since it may induce an excessive growth of foliage.

Where alkali soils occur, they should be avoided. While the peach tree can be grown where there is a limited amount of the alkali salts, they cause disaster if present in large quantities. It is safer, therefore, to avoid them as far as possible.

Generally a site that is elevated considerably above the surrounding areas is to be preferred for a peach orchard. Cold air settles to the lower levels. For this reason it is often colder at the lower elevations than it is at higher points. The occurrence of frost in low places when there is none on elevated areas is thus explained. During the past few years the importance of selecting relatively high sites for peach orchards in order to avoid the effects of unfavorable temperatures has been emphatically demonstrated in many different parts of the country.

When an orchard has a site adjacent to a body of water of sufficient size and depth to have an appreciable influence on the local climate, the importance of a relatively high elevation largely disappears. Because water warms up in the spring more slowly than the atmosphere, it acts in effect as a refrigerator, making the tem-

Vegetation within the limits of this influence advances more slowly in the spring than it does outside of that zone. The tendency is for the blossoming of peach trees within the zone to be delayed until after the season of spring frosts is past.

In the fall, frosts are delayed. The water, having absorbed much heat during the summer, cools off in the fall more slowly than the atmosphere and tends to keep the temperature within its zone of influence warmer than it would otherwise be.

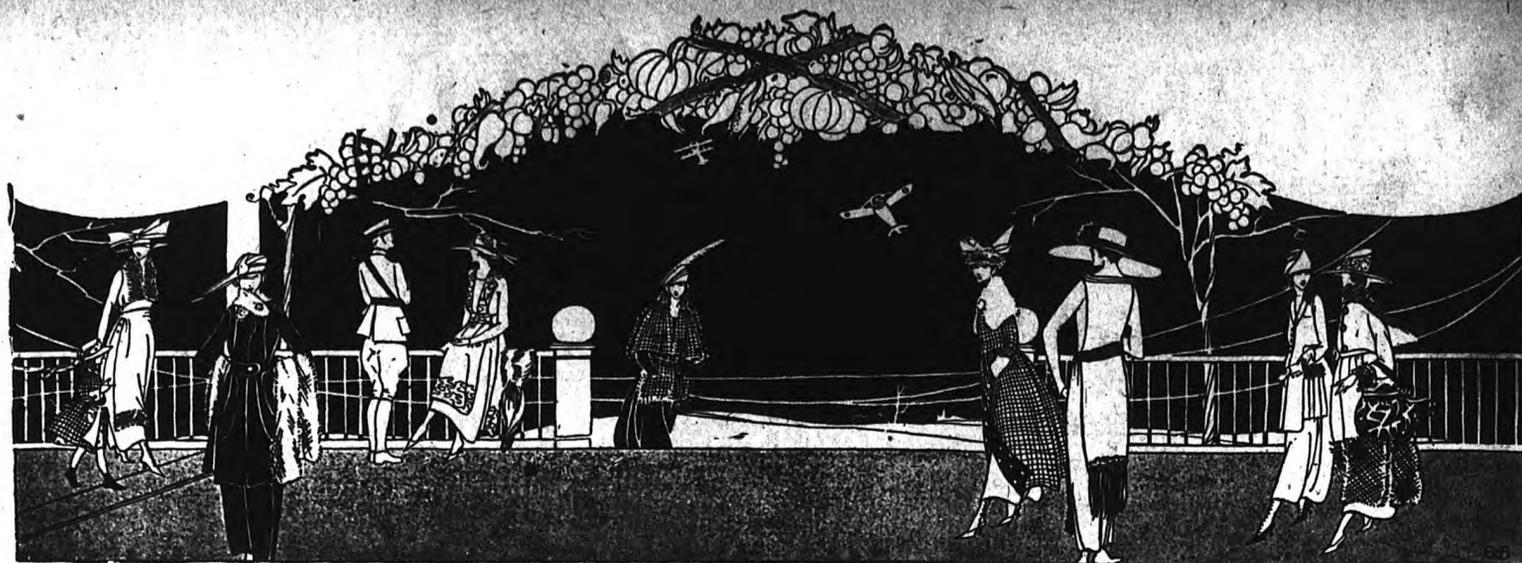

The slope factor is largely one of degree. Peach trees on a site having a very steep southern slope will usually blossom and the fruit will ripen somewhat earlier than on a corresponding northern slope, but where the differences in slope are only moderate their relative influence on the time of blossoming and ripening is not very marked.

Aside from economic factors, temperature probably is the most decisive limiting factor in the distribution of commercial peach growing. Usually the fruit buds are the first to suffer injury. No absolute minimum temperature which the peach is able to withstand without injury can be given. The condition of the buds with regard to their strength, vitality, and perfect dormancy, the duration of the critical temperature, the climatic conditions following the cold period, perhaps the amount of moisture in the air during the period, and other factors all have an influence.

Fall Opening

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19, 20 and 21.

Truly A Remarkable Fashion Pageant, Arranged In Spite Of Most Disheartening Difficulties, But a Pleasurable Occasion Full Of Delightful Surprises And Assured Fall Fashion Facts.

At last the style conceptions from the most brilliant fashion brains in the world are ready to greet you! France and America, allies in style creation as well as war, have combined to produce these Fall garments and accessories, with the easily foretold result—fashions of surpassing beauty. If the war has influenced the trend of styles toward simplicity, the skill of the creators has made capital of this by making this simplicity more smart and chic than ever!

In bringing together such a comprehensive assortment of Fall apparel and accessories, we modestly claim a little more credit than usual. For, as you know, the labor situation is serious, there is a shortage of wools, dyestuffs are none too plentiful and there is a genuine scarcity of good apparel. But large assortments are here for your inspection and gratification. We have accomplished our avowed purpose of obtaining the largest amount of the best Fall merchandise the markets could afford.

May we tell you of wholesale prices—briefly? They are going up almost daily and are considerably higher now than when we contracted for the great majority of our Autumn stocks. You will benefit by our foresightedness in buying early.

Delightfully Plain are the New Suits

In these new Suits, the straight line silhouette has reached its highest point of development. Coats are about three-quarters length. Skirts are somewhat narrower and longer than last season. Many have no trimmings—others have fur adornments. Oxford cloths, evora, duvet du laine, duvyteen and velour are the favored fabrics. You're bound to like these new suits.

Prices range from $21.50 to $75.

Fancy Frills Are Absent From the New Coats

Simple straight lines characterize these beautiful coats of velour, bolivia, suede-finished cloths, velvets, plush, silk velour and other pile fabrics. Knee to shoe-top lengths, slightly flared skirts, large collars, fur trimmings, big pockets, buttons and belts are features. You'll find that one of these new coats is a delightful necessity.

Prices range from $20.50 to $85.

What Smartness There Is In the New Skirts!

Models for every occasion, developed in many ways but all attain one object—smartness. The new silhouette is followed faithfully, with trimming features in the form of pockets, overskirts, sashes, panels and tunics. These new skirts are made of satin, taffeta, poplin, twill tricotine, velveteen, wool jersey and serge. Our displays make inspection unusually easy for you.

Prices range from $5.00 to $15.00

The New Dresses Strongly Favor Simple Lines

And they are strikingly graceful with a leaning toward youthfulness, particularly in neck designs and bell shaped sleeves. Jersey, velour, gabardine, georgette, crepe de chine, tricollette and taffeta are the approved fabrics. Pleats, drapes, gathers, sashes, embroidery, beads, braid and buttons give handsome trimming effects. It will be a distinct pleasure to see these garments.

Prices range from $14.50 to $37.50.

The New Fall Waists Are Rather Plain But Very Colorful

The approved trimmings are beads and embroidery but these are not used lavishly. Color is the feature that makes these models striking. Navy, taupe, and ecru, are favorites. Fabrics are China silk, voile, taffeta, georgette and heavy crepe de Chine. Round and V-necks, roll and Buster Brown collars, big sleeves and novel cuffs give a pleasing variety of effects. You'll want immediate possession of several of these waists now on display.

Prices range from $3.50 to $7.00.

Distinctiveness Characterizes These New Dress Goods and Silks

Exclusiveness and originality of design, and the rich effects produced by color blending, have combined to produce fabrics of extraordinary charm. The poplins, crepe de Chine, georgettes, serges, velours, etc., now on display will forcibly demonstrate this fact. Many women will make more apparel this year than ever before—you'll probably like to.

Children's Coats and Dresses for Fall Wear

Most of these charming coats are miniature reproductions of women's Fall coats and dresses—very beautiful and very practical. Of course, women's styles have not been followed absolutely—they have been changed just enough to make them most appropriate for the little folks.

There are also many original models created specially for misses and children. Certainly there are styles aplenty for even the most fastidious mother. Prices are pleasing.

Furs Have Never Been So Popular

Three classes are featured—the all enveloping garments such as long coats and large caps; the short coats and coat effects; and stoles, collars and animal scarfs. Short coats and vestees generally have small collars. Large coats and capes generally show deep yoke and large collar effects. The favored furs are Hudson Seal, mole, squirrel, nutria, muskrat and mink, with Fox leading for scarfs and

TAL DAIRY

TREATMENT FOR MILK FEVER

All Dairymen Should Be Prepared to Administer Simple and Successful Remedy to Cows.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In view of the fact that milk fever is a very common disease afflicting cows, particularly the heaviest milkers in the large dairy district, it is of great importance that dairymen acquaint themselves with the present extremely successful methods of treatment.

The disease more frequently attacks well-nourished, fleshy, heavy-milking cows. It occurs during the most active period of life (fourth to sixth calf), and is characterized by a sudden onset and complete paralysis. One attack does not render the animal immune. It generally follows closely the act of calving and terminates in a short time (usually from 18 to 72 hours) either in recovery or death. While the disease may occur at any time during the year, it is seen principally during the warm summer season. It is rarely, if ever, met with in pure beef breeds.

At the commencement of an attack there is usually excitement, the specialists say. The cow is restless, treads with the hind feet, switches the tail, and walks about uneasily. These symptoms are followed within a few hours by partial paralysis, indicated by a staggering gait, especially in the hind legs. The animal then becomes quieter, more weak, and finally falls down, unable to rise. While down the animal assumes a very characteristic position, which is a great aid in diagnosis. The head is turned around to the side (usually the left) and rests on the chest. On the day following the onset of the disease, and in some cases even within a few hours, the animal may be up eating and drinking in a normal manner. In fatal cases the animal may remain perfectly quiet, being completely paralyzed, until death.

The treatment consists of injecting air through sterile absorbent cotton, preferably impregnated with carbolic acid, into the teats by means of a specially designed syringe. Soap and water should first be applied to the teats and udder, after which they should be carefully disinfected with a five per cent solution of carbolic acid (three tablespoonfuls to one quart of water). Then insert the syringe in the teats and force air in each quarter of the udder. After one-fourth of the udder is well distended with filtered air a broad piece of tape should be tied about the teat to prevent the air from escaping. In case the air becomes absorbed and no improvement is noted within five hours, a repetition of this treatment should be made under the same antiseptic precautions as the first, each quarter of the udder being filled. The air should be left in the udder for 24 hours, and when the recovery is assured it should be gradually milked out. It is best to secure the services of a veterinarian for this treatment, but this is not necessary if the dairymen or farmer has proper equipment and takes due precautions.

France. This breed has maintained a steady growth in numbers and popularity in the country, and its largest numbers are found in the Eastern and middle Western states.

The characteristic colors of Guernseys are some shade of fawn and white. Cows average about 1,050 pounds and bulls about 1,600 pounds in weight. Guernsey milk is noted for its extremely yellow color and high percentage of butterfat.

In the Guernsey breed the average of 6,200 cows that have completed a year's record for advanced registry is 8,094.44 pounds of milk, testing 4.99 per cent, amounting to 446.01 pounds of butterfat. The best highest producers of this breed range from 24,008 to 17,297.51 pounds of milk, with an average, for these ten, of 19,337.9 pounds of milk. The ten highest Guernsey butterfat producers range from 1,098.13 to 910.87 pounds, an average, for these ten, of 973.75 pounds of butterfat.

LIVE STOCK

SHEEP REQUIRE LITTLE CARE

Big Value of Wool and Mutton Gives Boost to Industry—Business Now in New Light.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The development of the sheep industry will contribute materially to the nation's food and clothing supply. War conditions have brought about a renewed interest in sheep growing in the United States and the high value of both wool and mutton will place the farm sheep business in a new light.

The mutton sheep is a necessary instrument in highly intensive and self-supporting agriculture. The still more intensive use of land in farms, an effort to secure the more economical use of every acre, every facility, and available labor, all of which are necessary under the present conditions, necessitate the general inclusion of sheep in our system of mixed farming and live stock production. This gives the raising of sheep a new appeal in older farming areas.

The main factor in determining the cost of other animal products is the value of grain and mill-feeds; pasturage and roughage are important, but both beef and pork require a considerable use of concentrated feeds. The production of lambs and mutton require a very much smaller proportion of fat and therefore a smaller use of grain than is required in these other meat animals. Sheep are able to get a good portion of their feed from rough, permanent grass pasture and at the same time keep it clean of weeds.

This increases rather than decreases the cattle-carrying capacity of the pasture. As sheep require comparatively little of the owner's labor, the labor cost per dollar's worth of wool or lambs is lower than in any other farm animal product. While the labor required in raising sheep is not heavy it is continuous and somewhat different from that required in the care of other stock.

Many of the obstacles that have hindered the progress of sheep raising in intensive farming districts have been or are being overcome. The competition given sheep growing on farms by the production of sheep on lower-priced range land is being removed. A second but only temporary obstacle is the quick increase in sheep production lies in the fact that comparatively few farmers are as well qualified to care for sheep as for other classes of stock. The needs and habits of sheep differ from those of horses, and swine, but present no problems that will not be met by interested study and observations supported by satisfactory returns.

GOVERNOR PLANS BAY FERRY

Says Negotiations Are On For Boat Between Claiborne And Annapolis.

Governor Harrington stated recently that he is negotiating for the establishment of the Claiborne ferry, from Claiborne to Annapolis, to connect the State roads systems of the Eastern and Western Shores.

He wishes the plan to be tried out during his administration and believes that because of war conditions its chances of success are particularly bright. He feels that if there should be any such calamity as the withdrawal of the steamers of the M. D., and V. or B. C. and A. that the ferry would be an absolute necessity.

CLOCKS TO BE MOVED

BACK ONE HOUR OCT. 27.

The hour which dropped from the life of every man, woman and child in this country at 2 o'clock on the morning of March 31 last, will be handed back by the United States Government at 1 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, October 27 next, when the "daylight-saving" plan comes to its official and practical demise.

The plan has been a success. There was much and diverse objection to it when it was first suggested. Even after it became a legal actuality, there were some folks, living in outlying sections, who refused to get in line with the new order of things and who manifested their contempt for that new order of things by keeping two clocks in their homes—one set up an hour, as per Governmental orders, and the other giving the old or solar time.

Now that the outdoor weather is about on the wane, the return to the old schedule of things will not be any more of an inconvenience than was the adoption of the new one. At 1 o'clock on the morning of October 27 all the official clocks in the country will be turned back to midnight, and thus the hour which was lost on March 31 will be restored. No revision of working schedules, meal schedules, train schedules, etc., will be necessary. The whole time-schedule system will merely be shoved back an hour, and solar rather than governmental time again will reign.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Make the housework as light as possible, getting every member of the family to do his share. Thus all may enjoy the lovely summer and have recreation and pleasure instead of burdening the house-mother with tasks others should do. Mothers often remark: "It is easier to do a thing myself than to see that others do it," but it is not right to herself nor good training for others to be allowed to shirk.

Iron only the hems of the sheets when they are to be placed on the beds. No one will know that a half hour has been saved from such ironing, a half hour for rest, reading or a walk—how much more important than a perfectly ironed sheet.

Gloves which need cleaning may be quickly cleaned by moistening flour with gasoline and washing the gloves on the hands until clean.

Stains on linen should be moistened with peroxide then placed in the sun. If the stain is obstinate a second application may be necessary with the addition of a little soap.

Scald a dish or utensil in which fish has been cooked with vinegar and water.

Wood skewers with a bit of cloth wrapped around them make fine cleaners. They will remove dust from corners in windowpanes as well as in dishes.

If windows stick, grease the rope with a little fat and put a little around the casing. This is good treatment for a stubborn drawer.

Fresh blood stains will be quickly removed by rubbing well with dry starch which absorbs it, and then brushed no stain will be left.

Put a glass of warmed jelly over the mutton roast or chops, just before serving.

Glossy clothing may be rubbed with a piece of emery paper, using a light touch.

Scorched places on linen will be taken out if moistened and put into strong sunshine. On woolen cloth rub with a piece of bread.

Hot milk with a teaspoonful of sulphur used as a gargle will relieve a sore throat.

"Wear-Ever" Aluminum Utensils are different.

Of course, aluminum is aluminum; but utensils may differ in purity, in thickness, in handles, in finish.

Purity. "Wear-Ever" utensils are 99 per cent. pure.

Thickness. They are made thick enough to prevent denting readily; thick enough to guarantee a lifetime of satisfactory service.

Handles. The handles of "Wear-Ever" utensils are made of the best tinned steel. Aluminum handles would become too hot—wooden handles would burn off or break. The handles of "Wear-Ever" utensils are gripped to the utensils by aluminum rivets with large heads. The heads are not sunk into the side of the utensil—the side remains of uniform thickness, strong enough to hold the handle on firmly for years.

Finish. The outside is polished. The inside is hardened by an electrical process which makes the metal harder, smoother, less liable to be discolored by food or water containing alkali or iron, and more easily cleaned than would be possible if the utensils were not so finished.

HIS FIRST PATIENT NOT AN INVALID

Wonderful Revelations of the Stethoscope When Placed Over Girl's Heart.

BY BELLE KANARIS MANIATES.

(Copyright, 1918, by Associated Literary Press.)

The doctor sat in his office at the sanitarium of the sulphur springs contemplating a telegram in a perplexity which lifted at the entrance of a young man with laughing brown eyes and a complexion of deep sea tan.

"Well, Fred, for once you are on hand when wanted. What brought you here?"

"I was on my way north to spend my fortnight's vacation. Missing connections, I ran up to see you."

"Just in time to make yourself useful. It is imperative that I run down to Brighton for the day. I want you to take my place here."

"Great Scott, Uncle Walter! I haven't practiced for two years—not since I went into the manufacturing business."

"Well, you haven't forgotten how to examine hearts, have you? For the next two hours that is what you must do, and fill out these slips for the attendants. I do not keep the office open in the afternoon, and there are no patients here at present requiring much medical attention. I must leave at once."

He was gone before the young doctor could expostulate further.

His first caller was a young woman whose grace and beauty made him change his attitude of mind toward his uncle.

"I wish to see the doctor," she said.

"I am the doctor," he replied.

"We just arrived," she explained, "and I came to see about arrangements for the bath."

He took one of the slips from the desk.

"What is your name, please?"

"My name is Elinor Grayson."

When he had filled out the slip with the exception of temperature for bath, he placed the stethoscope to her heart and began to listen to the fluttering beats of that organ.

"Oh, wait! Stop!" she cried in laughing confusion, as she arose from her chair. "I am not ill—"

"But," he expostulated, a puzzled pucker in his brows, "didn't you come to take the bath?"

"No!" she protested. "I came with my aunt, Miss Amantha Webb, who has rheumatism."

His discomfiture was soon relieved by his boyish mirthful laugh which rang out heartily and wholesomely.

"I beg your pardon!" he apologized.

"You see I expected no one but invalids, and—well, I am glad that you are not one."

"Your mistake was very natural," she acknowledged.

He was about to explain that he was only a substitute doctor when the door opened and a patient entered.

Miss Grayson at once left the office.

"Bring your aunt down at any time this morning," he said, holding the door for her to pass out.

For an hour and a half, he mechanically listened to hearts and filled out slips, while his own heart beat quickly at each opening of the door in expectation of seeing again his first caller.

At 11 o'clock he closed the office and hurried to the grounds, confident that she would be out of doors. He finally found her sitting on the wooden bank of a little brook.

"My aunt is asleep," she said looking up with a charming smile. "She will come in the morning to see you."

He seated himself beside her, and from disclosures of her aunt's rheumatic tendencies, they drifted into matters of the day, and presently she discovered with astonishment that it was the luncheon hour.

He walked up to the sanitarium with her and left her at the elevator. Having determined to offer his professional services to his uncle for a fortnight, he did not inform her that he was not the regular physician.

When he went into the dining-room, he saw Miss Grayson sitting at one of the tables chatting with a man whose face seemed familiar to him. As he passed, he heard her explaining to her companion that he was the doctor. During the meal his memory succeeded in identifying the man as one with whom he had placed a large order for goods a couple of weeks before.

After dinner, he was unfortunate in not being able to get a glimpse of her, and he returned to the doctor's office from where he was summoned to the bedside of patients who were confined to their rooms with slight ailments. After this he strolled again through the grounds. When near a little vine-clad pergola, he heard her voice. In answer thereto he heard another voice saying: "No, there is only one doctor in the institution, Doctor Morgan, a kindly elderly gentleman with white hair."

Morgan reflected, in consternation, that the girl's companion at breakfast had doubtless informed her that he was manager of an automobile company, and now this person was confirming her suspicions. At this moment a bellboy came to inform him he was wanted to prescribe for a new patient.

By the time he was at liberty, it was the dinner hour. When Miss Grayson came into the dining-room, she gave him an odd look, and a rather distant bow. Again she finished her meal before he had left the room. As he came out he gladly welcomed his uncle who had returned.

"Well, Fred, how did you make it?"

"Fine! Uncle, don't you want me to remain a couple of weeks and help you out?"

"Indeed I do! I thought your love for the profession would return. But I must go in to dinner."

"Come with me a moment first."

His uncle followed his swiftly striding nephew to the veranda.

"Uncle, do you know that white-haired woman, the one next to the beautiful girl?"

"Surely. She has been here all summer."

"Then introduce me to her and explain that you left me in charge today."

Together they approached the two women.

"Mrs. Benson," said the elder physician, "let me present my nephew, Dr. Frederick Morgan. I left him in charge today as I was called out of the city."

She in turn presented Miss Grayson and then announced her intention of dining. She was accompanied by the older doctor, and Morgan slipped into the vacated chair.

"The stethoscope is a wonderful instrument," he said gravely. "In that half moment I listened to your heart I learned that you jumped too readily to conclusions."

"I didn't need a stethoscope," she smiled demurely, "to tell me that you did the same. Think how you mistook me for a patient!"

"We are certainly quits," he laughed. Then, as the notes of a waltz floated out from the wide hall, he continued:

"The stethoscope told me something more—that you were fond of dancing. And I am to be here two weeks and help my uncle. Tomorrow, you may bring your aunt to the office. But, come! Can you resist that music!"

"Do you think," she asked sweetly, as they went inside, "that tomorrow you will know all of Aunt Amantha's characteristics?"

"I wish to see the doctor."

"I am the doctor," he replied.

"We just arrived," she explained, "and I came to see about arrangements for the bath."

SPREAD TERROR IN ALASKA

Earthquake Shocks, Though Little Damage is Reported, Were Cause of Intense Alarm.

The most violent upheavals of the earth's surface since the terrible earthquake which destroyed San Francisco are those which took place in Alaska on July 6. The earth rocked continuously for 40 seconds, and although the disturbance is not reported to have caused much loss of life, it has filled the people with terror.

Following so quickly after the eruption of Mt. Katmai, in the Kadiak island, which covered the whole island with a foot of volcanic ash, the earthquake is supposed to have been the result, and damage and ruin of the most far-reaching nature are among the dread forebodings.

The bottom of the sea is also reported to have been considerably elevated, seriously affecting the climate of the Alaskan coast through shifting of the warm ocean currents, and also creating new fishing banks which may become of incalculable value.

Some geological experts believe that the eventual closing of the Bering straits is among the possibilities. After this, perhaps, one may travel all rail from Halifax, N. S., to Lisbon, Portugal, by way of Canada, Alaska, Siberia, Germany, Spain, etc.

AYRSHIRE IS GOOD RUSTLER

Animal is Quite Useful in Sections Where There is Much Rough Land in Pasture.

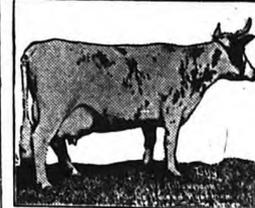

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Ayrshire breed originated in the county of Ayr, in southwestern Scotland. In that region, which borders on the Irish Sea, the surface is rolling and has much rough woodland. Pastures, therefore, are somewhat sparse and it is necessary for animals to graze large areas in order to obtain sufficient feed.

It is only within the last hundred years that Ayrshires have had a type well enough established to be entitled to the designation of breed.

This breed is not well known in many sections of the United States—New England, New York and Pennsylvania probably contain the largest number of its representatives. There is a small distribution in the Middle Atlantic States, the Pacific Northwest and other scattered sections.

The color of this breed varies from the medium red to very dark mahogany—brown and white. The cattle have long horns which turn outward, then forward, then upward. Quick, brisk actions are characteristic of the animals which seem always to have an abundant store of energy, and to be exceptionally alert. Ayrshires have a highly nervous disposition, which is useful both for production and self-support. Probably none of the other dairy breeds can compare with the Ayrshires in ability to obtain a livelihood on scant pastures. Their ability as "rustlers" has made them very useful in sections where there is much rough land in pasture. Cows of this breed average 1,000 pounds in weight, and bulls average about 1,600.

Another point of which breeders of the Ayrshire are very proud is the uniform, square, level udder with long body attachment which is common among these cows.

Milk from Ayrshire cows contains comparatively little color and has the fat in uniformly small globules which average smaller in size than for any other breed. The milk stands shipping well without churning, and in other respects it is well adapted to the market milk trade.

For Ayrshires the average of the 2,598 cows that have completed yearly records for advanced registry is 9,555 pounds of milk testing 3.95 per cent of butterfat, amounting to 377.51 pounds of fat. The ten highest milk producers of this breed range from 25,329 to 18,745 pounds of milk and the average of these ten highest producers is 21,533.8 pounds of milk. The Ayrshires range from 955.56 to 744.73 pounds, with an average, for these ten, of 855.4 pounds of butterfat.

INCREASED MILK PRODUCTION

Supplies Food Material More Economically Than Meat or Eggs—Efficient Dairy Cow.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Two facts stand out prominently as reasons for the increased production and use of milk. The first is that milk as purchased on the market usually supplies food producing elements more economically than either meat or eggs.

The second reason is that the dairy cow is the most economical producer of animal food. One great law of food conservation is to turn inedible feeds into edible foods in the cheapest possible manner. The dairy cow will utilize coarse materials, inedible by humans, such as grass, cornstalks, hay, etc., and will turn them into milk, which is suitable for human food. Other farm animals also are converters of coarse roughage into edible foods, but are not so efficient as the dairy cow.

OUR ADS ARE OUR SOLICITORS

We send them to your home to tell you about our goods, and how we can be helpful to you.

For instance—Your kitchen clock stops suddenly some night, without the least warning. You can't coax it to go. It's on strike.

Now, it is plain that there are only two things to be done lay the old clock aside for good and all, or let us fix it for you.

Of course, in some cases a new clock is preferable—but the right thing to do would be to let our repair department decide what is best to be done. We mean the best from your way of looking at it.

More than likely a cleaning, a renewal of a worn part, and a little general adjusting would out new life into the old timepiece.

Bring it to us.

Not a truth has art or to science been given. But brows have ached for it, and souls toiled and striven.

FISH WAYS FOR FISH DAYS.

One must learn how to judge a fish in the market and be able to tell a fresh one from the stale variety. The fish must be firm, eyes bright, as well as the gills. The man who likes fish soft may have taste, but it is all bad. The sooner a fish is scaled after coming from the water the easier it is done. Take a small sharp knife and scale from the tail to the head. Pouring boiling water over the fish is recommended as an easy way to loosen the scales, but the fish must not lie in the water more than an instant. Hold knife in a slanting position while scaling and the work will be easier. One old fisherman uses a common curry comb to remove the scales; it hastens the process.

Fish, after scaling, should be split and the entrails removed, washing thoroughly; but not allowing it to lie in the water, as it will soon lose its flavor. Those of us who have eaten brook trout which have been caught, cleaned and fried within an hour, know how delicious fish can be.

When fish is to be boiled, lay it in a thin piece of cheesecloth, tie it well and put into a kettle of water. A bay leaf, pepper corns, onion or parsley may be used for seasoning. Simmer gently, allowing ten minutes to the pound for cooking. Lift out carefully, remove the cloth and garnish with lemon quarters and parsley.

To fry fish, dip it in seasoned cornmeal, then fry in any sweet fat, seasoning it well while cooking. Salt fish should be soaked in water and softened by slow cooking; if boiled rapidly the fiber will be toughened. Fish Salad—Cut the pieces of boiled fish in bits, or flake with two forks, season with lemon juice and arrange lightly on a bed of watercress. Peel and boil three large potatoes; drain, mash and beat until light, season with salt, two tablespoonfuls of corn oil, the yolks of two eggs well beaten and a tablespoonful of vinegar, beating well while adding. Pour this over the fish and serve. Salt codfish, served in a white sauce, using sour cream in place of the usual milk, is a most tasty dish.

SUMMER DISHES.

When vegetables are so plentiful one need not fear monotony in the diet.

Green Peas Cooked With Lettuce.—Have ready a quart of fresh peas and a head of lettuce. Shred the leaves coarsely and place the peas over the fire in boiling water; add a small onion and a bunch of parsley, cover and cook for 25 minutes, or until the peas are tender. Remove the onion and parsley. Cream a fourth of a cupful of fat. Add a teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a cupful of flour (corn flour) and pepper to taste; add a little hot liquor from the peas and when smooth add to the dish of peas and simmer six minutes. Just before serving add three tablespoonfuls of butter substitute and turn into a vegetable dish. Serve hot.

Rochester Soup.—This is a rich dinner soup. Blanch two-thirds of a cupful of almonds, chop and pound in a mortar. Add gradually while pounding four tablespoonfuls of milk and a half teaspoonful of salt; then add three cupfuls of chicken stock, one sliced onion and three stalks of celery broken in bits. Simmer an hour then rub through a sieve and bind with three tablespoonfuls of butter substitute and three of flour well blended. Cook until the starch is well done and serve hot.

Asparagus Salad.—Tie a bunch of asparagus tips together and steam until tender. Cut rings of tomato or red pepper, slip the stalks into the rings, lay on a lettuce leaf and serve with salad dressing.

Creamed Onions.—Take two bunches of young green onions, cook and serve in a butter or white sauce as one does asparagus, making a most tasty dish; serve on toast. A few young onions with asparagus will help out when there is not enough of the asparagus to serve, and the combination is especially good.

BOYS WHO DO THEIR BIT.

When the movement to have city boys help out on the farms first was started, there was a great deal of comment to the effect that no city boy could do such work; that, first of all, they wouldn't like the life, and, secondly, they hadn't the stick-to-it-ness to prove valuable.

STUDY OF FAIR PRICE LIST MAKES GROCER THE MARK

It is the business of the American housewife to see that her grocer keeps faith with her. The Fair Price Lists should be studied carefully.

Every woman in war-time should gauge to market with patriotism as well as purse. By studying these published prices she can know what the fair price is, and if her grocer asks more he should be reported to the local Food Administrator.

But there is another side of this Fair Price List. Patriotism demands that housewives should market more intelligently than they ever have before. They should keep in touch with the constantly changing conditions and suggestions of the Food Administration and know why they are being asked to do this, that and the other thing. Much of this information can be found in the printed matter accompanying the Fair Price List.

Since the heavier cuts of beef are needed for foreign shipment, housewives are just now being urged to use the lighter cuts for home consumption. Steer beef should be saved for the soldiers and that from cattle dressing under 475 pounds be used by civilians. In those markets where heavier beef has been sold the housewife should receive the benefit of lower prices in buying the lighter cuts.

It becomes, then, one of her war-time marketing duties to compare prices, to help create a public demand for these lighter cuts, and to see that these demands are being met by the local retailers.

PRICES HERE AND ABROAD.

"There is much bitter complaint abroad at the prices of our food products. It is necessary to remember that the working people and soldiers' families of the Allied countries are upon a much lower average income than our own. The average wage is not over $10 per week. On the other hand allowance to the average soldier's family is considerably less than this. American bacon at 50 cents per pound is very difficult to them. Their governments have found it necessary to sell our breadstuffs at a great loss in order to help the people out. On the other hand the higher wage level in the United States renders our production costs higher in any event." From statement of Herbert Hoover following his survey of the Allied food situation.

The present sugar regulations, if faithfully carried out, will cut down consumption almost half a million tons between August 1st and the end of the year.

FOR SUMMER WEAR

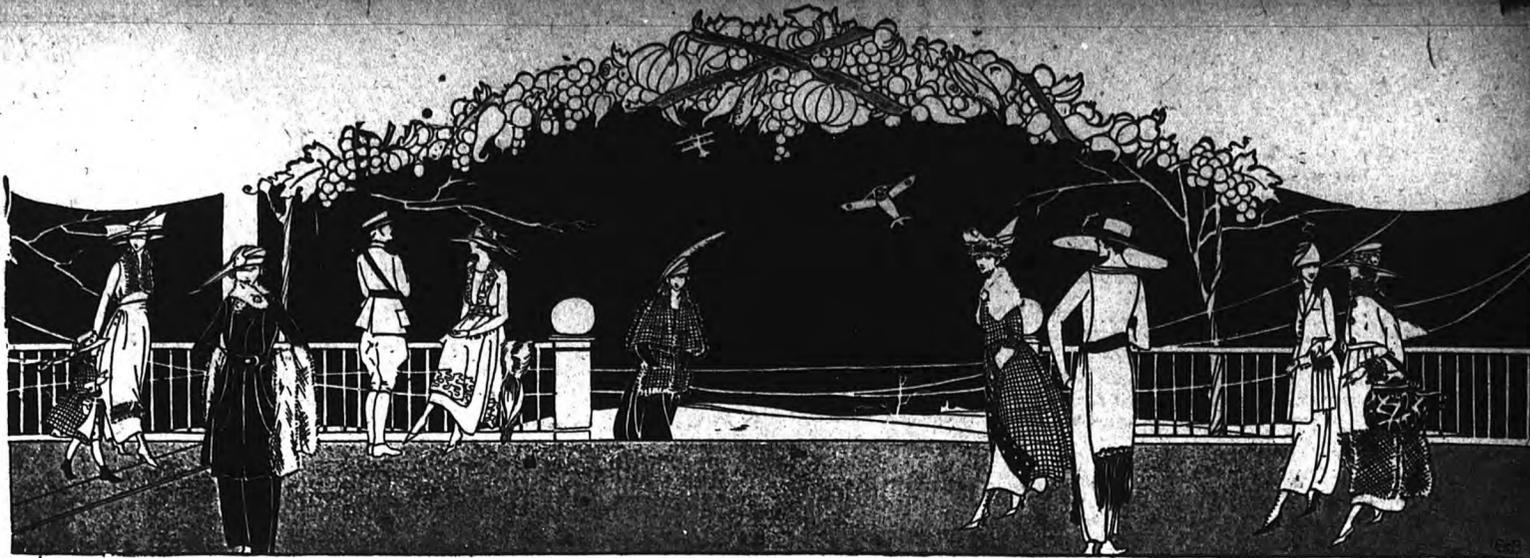

Warm Weather Frock Is of Plain and Figured Voile.

Charming for Afternoon, Garden or Porch Party—Fashioning of Gown a Simple Matter.

Plain and figured voile are combined in the dainty little summer frock shown in the sketch. Simplicity continues to be the keynote of all apparel developed, and it is likely that this ruling will hold good for several seasons to come, with fabrics scarce and rapidly growing more so. The dress shown would be charming for an afternoon garden or porch party in warm weather, and it is so plain that no great effort will be required for its fashioning. The little gown fastens in the center back, skirt and waist being joined all around. Pink voile may be selected for the frock, with the flowered fabric harmonizing, and if possible the sash should be of navy blue ribbon.

Yellow is also a very much approved shade this season. Plain-color voile may be selected, with bands or ruffles of yellow and blue, with blue ribbon sash. Note especially the short sleeves, and bear in mind that sleeves, elbow length or even shorter, appear on a great many summer dresses of the best designers.

The skirt of this frock may be drawn in at the bottom, in a modified

Fall Opening

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19, 20 and 21.

Truly A Remarkable Fashion Pageant, Arranged In Spite Of Most Disheartening Difficulties, But a Pleasurable Occasion Full Of Delightful Surprises And Assured Fall Fashion Facts.

At last the style conceptions from the most brilliant fashion brains in the world are ready to greet you! France and America, allies in style creation as well as war, have combined to produce these Fall garments and accessories, with the easily foretold result—fashions of surpassing beauty. If the war has influenced the trend of styles toward simplicity, the skill of the creators has made capital of this by making this simplicity more smart and chic than ever!

In bringing together such a comprehensive assortment of Fall apparel and accessories, we modestly claim a little more credit than usual. For, as you know, the labor situation is serious, there is a shortage of woolsens, dyestuffs are none too plentiful and there is a genuine scarcity of good apparel. But large assortments are here for your inspection and gratification. We have accomplished our avowed purpose of obtaining the largest amount of the best Fall merchandise the markets could afford.

May we tell you of wholesale prices—briefly? They are going up almost daily and are considerably higher now than when we contracted for the great majority of our Autumn stocks. You will benefit by our foresightedness in buying early.

Delightfully Plain are the New Suits

In these new Suits, the straight line silhouette has reached its highest point of development. Coats are about three-quarters length. Skirts are somewhat narrower and longer than last season. Many have no trimmings—others have fur adornments. Oxford cloths, evora, duvet du laine, duvyteen and velour are the favored fabrics. You're bound to like these new suits.

Prices range from $21.50 to $75.

Fancy Frills Are Absent From the New Coats

Simple straight lines characterize these beautiful coats of velour, bolivia, suede-finished cloths, velvets, plush, silk velour and other pile fabrics. Knee to shoe-top lengths, slightly flared skirts, large collars, fur trimmings, big pockets, buttons and belts are features. You'll find that one of these new coats is a delightful necessity.

Prices range from $20.50 to $85.

What Smartness There Is In the New Skirts!

Models for every occasion, developed in many ways but all attain one object—smartness. The new silhouette is followed faithfully, with trimming features in the form of pockets, overskirts, sashes, panels and tunics. These new skirts are made of satin, taffeta, poplin, twill tricotine, velveteen, wool jersey and serge. Our displays make inspection unusually easy for you.

Prices range from $5.00 to $15.00

The New Dresses Strongly Favor Simple Lines

And they are strikingly graceful with a leaning toward youthfulness, particularly in neck designs and bell shaped sleeves. Jersey, velour, gabardine, georgette, crepe de chine, tricollette and taffeta are the approved fabrics. Pleats, drapes, gathers, sashes, embroidery, beads, braid and buttons give handsome trimming effects. It will be a distinct pleasure to see these garments.

Prices range from $14.50 to $37.50.

The New Fall Waists Are Rather Plain But Very Colorful

The approved trimmings are beads and embroidery but these are not used lavishly. Color is the feature that makes these models striking. Navy, taupe, and ecru, are favorites. Fabrics are China silk, voile, taffeta, georgette and heavy crepe de Chine. Round and V-necks, roll and Buster Brown collars, big sleeves and novel cuffs give a pleasing variety of effects. You'll want immediate possession of several of these waists now on display.

Prices range from $3.50 to $7.00.

Distinctiveness Characterizes These New Dress Goods and Silks

Exclusiveness and originality of design, and the rich effects produced by color blending, have combined to produce fabrics of extraordinary charm. The poplins, crepe de Chine, georgettes, serges, velours, etc., now on display will forcibly demonstrate this fact. Many women will make more apparel this year than ever before—you'll probably like to.

Children's Coats and Dresses for Fall Wear

Most of these charming coats are miniature reproductions of women's Fall coats and dresses—very beautiful and very practical. Of course, women's styles have not been followed absolutely—they have been changed just enough to make them most appropriate for the little folks.

There are also many original models created specially for misses and children. Certainly there are styles aplenty for even the most fastidious mother. Prices are pleasing.

Furs Have Never Been So Popular

Three classes are featured—the all enveloping garments such as long coats and large caps; the short coats and coat effects; and stoles, collars and animal scarfs. Short coats and vestees generally have small collars. Large coats and capes generally show deep yoke and large collar effects. The favored furs are Hudson Seal, mole, squirrel, nutria, muskrat and mink, with Fox leading for scarfs and harem silhouette, or it may hang entirely straight.

In the line-up of summer fabrics all the old-time favorites have appeared again—dotted swiss, organdie, cotton and silk voile, both in plain color and in printed designs; gingham galore and calico—and for each a great run is predicted. Considering the fabric subject, it is interesting to note that separate skirts, once regarded as utility garments, are also running the entire fabric gamut. Charming models are shown in dotted swiss, organdie and georgette, three of the sheerest materials imaginable.

PROGRAM FOR THE CONSERVATION OF TELEPHONE SERVICE

AUGUST 15, 1918, the Postmaster General issued an order to all telephone companies "to confine extensions and betterments to imperative and unavoidable work to meet war requirements and the vital commercial needs of the country."

ALL COMPANIES were directed to "adopt and enforce such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper to accomplish this result because of the difficulties incident to war conditions of securing adequate supplies, labor and transportation."

IN COMPLIANCE with this order, this company will undertake to provide service as promptly as conditions will permit for essential war work and vital commercial needs.

WHERE IT IS NOT OBVIOUS that applicants for service fall within these classes, evidence will be required that the service requested is of such importance in war production work or is of such vital commercial necessity as to warrant service being established.

POSSESSION of government contracts, priority shipping privileges or a letter or other form of advice from the chief of a government department certifying to the necessity for the establishment of service, will be accepted as evidence.

NO APPLICATIONS for service except those permitted under the order of the Postmaster General will be accepted.

IN VIEW OF CONDITIONS brought about by the war, it is particularly desirable that telephone service be conserved in every possible way for use by the government and essential war industries and activities.

YOUR COOPERATION WILL BE OF GREAT HELP TO THIS COMPANY IN COMPLYING WITH THE ORDER OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

GOOD HOG FEED FROM WASTE

Utilization of Garbage Possible in Production of Pork and Fats During War Period. (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Feeding garbage to hogs is in keeping with the national movement for the utilization of waste products and for increasing the production of pork and fats, at least during the war. There is reason to believe, however, that many of these emergency enterprises will prove to be sufficiently remunerative to remain permanent after the war, especially if hogs are fed on garbage from cities of 10,000 or more, from which, doubtless, the garbage will be disposed of and utilized in this manner. Already this method of feeding has produced good results, and many who have entered the field probably would not have engaged in the production of pork under any other conditions, owing to the amount of capital necessary and the small probability of getting satisfactory returns on the money invested. So far as can be ascertained in cases in which failure has been met with the trouble has been mostly due to the fact that hog cholera was allowed to claim a large portion of the animals; in other words, the owners failed to immunize their stock in a proper manner. The belief that hogs fed on garbage are exposed daily to the danger of cholera infection is well founded. There is always the possibility that garbage contains scraps of pork, such as rinds and trimmings from hams and bacon, or products of cholera carcasses that have been prepared for markets at small local slaughtering houses where no inspection is maintained. These pieces of choleraic pork, without doubt, will reproduce the disease if consumed in the raw state by susceptible animals, besides creating a source of infection which may be retained on the premises under garbage-feeding conditions.

The hog raiser who feeds garbage in a limited way only to supplement in part other classes of feed can readily arrange to cook the garbage thoroughly before feeding and in this way eliminate, to a large degree, the danger of cholera infection. If, however, large herds are fed on garbage entirely, cooking is not practicable and from the feeder's point of view it is not advisable. Therefore, in all such cases it is of the utmost importance that the animals be immunized and thus protected from hog cholera; in fact, owners of such enterprises should be sure that hogs are permanently immune before they are placed on such feed.

Pigs farrowed from immune sows have a natural resistance to hog cholera during their suckling period. When they are about to lose this degree of immunity, about weaning time, they should be given the simultaneous inoculation (serum and virus). Even with this method of treatment a few individuals may become again susceptible; therefore the herd should be observed closely at all times and treated again if any of the animals show signs of infection. Considering the income derived from hogs and the reasonable rates at which garbage has been obtained, the extra expense of treating the animals must be viewed as part of a business proposition, such as insuring against destruction by fire or against accidents of any kind; and feeders of garbage cannot consider their business as safe unless they protect it against all possible reverses, of which the most serious is hog cholera.

WOMEN GOOD WORKERS, SAYS ADMIRAL EBERLE

The invasion of the Land of Men on this side of the water that is presenting such a wide problem to the Young Women's Christian Association, an organization planning to take care of this great army of women, has extended to the dignified and conservative limits of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis.

The invading army in this vicinity, has not been a very large one so far, according to Admiral Edward Eberle, the Commandant of the Naval Academy.

"So far," responded Admiral Eberle in reply to a question upon that subject, "we have only a few women on our staff—perhaps thirty in all, but it is possible that we will have to enroll a greater number—the new draft will doubtless reduce our masculine staff as it will reduce every other staff. Of course the demand for women workers here is not to be compared with that in Washington, where there is no doubt that there is ample work for such Associations as the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Women's Christian Association. Here we have a few women over at the Experiment Station, and several clerks and stenographers in the Administration, as well as a few who are registered as yeomen. But the majority are from homes in Annapolis."

"Yes, the woman worker, so far as I have seen, gives absolute satisfaction, and she has no easy job down here. We work all the time—and if either a man or woman is incapable he or she would not last very long; the work to be done is too great for us to worry along with incompetents. The appointments are made, of course, in accordance with the civil service rules—sometimes the endorsements are slow in coming through—then the appointment is made subject to endorsement. If civil service requirements have not been fulfilled of course their appointments prove only temporary, but as a rule I have found that the women are thoroughly capable and in earnest about the work they attempt."

NO COVENANTED P E A C E WITH GERMANY.

America, unless we repudiate civilization and abandon humanity and put a premium on savagery and brutality, can make no covenanted peace, no peace by agreement or negotiation with Germany. It would be a covenant with hell, a partnership with infamy.

Nor would such a peace secure peace, except so long as it suited Germany. We can judge the future only by the past, and to Germany sacred treaties are scraps of paper only. Germany's whole history is a record of national treachery, national bad faith, national dishonor, national murder, and national infamy.

Article 56 of The Hague Convention, to which Germany solemnly subscribed is: "Family honor and rights, the lives of persons and private property, as well as religious convictions and practice, must be respected. Private property can not be confiscated."

The world knows how Germany has observed this article. There are millions of individual witnesses to her flagrant breaches of it. Every acre of foreign soil Germany has occupied bears mute, but unimpeachable evidence of it. There is plenty of German evidence of it, too.

"The goods of different sorts seized in the enemies' territories are in such large quantities that the difficulty of knowing where to put them increases day by day. At the request of the Prussian minister of war, all chambers of commerce have been asked to give all possible information with regard to storehouses, sheds, etc., which could be used temporarily to ware-house the spoil." (From the Frankfurter Zeitung, January, 1918.)

The German papers have been crowded with advertisements of sale of property taken from France and Belgium. Members of the Reichstag have boasted of, others have censured, the amount of booty brought to Germany from the occupied territory, and the destruction has been far greater than the confiscation.

Of the old men and children murdered, of the women and girls ravished, of the non-combatants taken from their homes and deported to work for their conquerors, of the merchant ships sunk and passengers and crews murdered, of the hospital ships sunk, the hospitals and unfortified cities bombed, of the mutilation and murder by crucifixion and otherwise of wounded and captured soldiers—of all this beastliness there is plenty of evidence, evidence that no one can disbelieve.

The best answer to German peace propaganda is sinking more U-boats, sending more men to France, speeding up our work along every line, and a heavy subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan. Peace must mean the triumph of right and justice, the defeat of Germanism, not a truce with it, not a compromise with it.

Our soldiers in France are gloriously doing their part toward victory; the Liberty Loan subscription must show them that the people at home are doing theirs.

Representatives of the Walter L. Main Fashion Plate Shows have completed all arrangements for the appearance of that World-Famous enterprise in Laurel, Sat. Sept. 28.

For more than a decade the Walter L. What then may be expected when it is announced that we are to be treated to such an exhibition. Surely the patrons of tented amusements will be justified in expecting an unusually meritorious performance and they will see surprising exhibitions of trained animals and skillful performers such as they have never before witnessed.

The Walter L. Main Fashion Plate Show will exhibit in Laurel on Sat. Sept. 28, giving two complete performances at 2 and 8 P. M. Also a grand spectacular Street Parade at 12 o'clock noon—Adv.

PROCLAMATION

Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution of the State, Providing For Absent Voting.

Whereas, at the January session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1918, a Bill was passed, with Chapter 20 of said Acts, proposing an additional section to Article 1 of the Constitution of Maryland, to be known as Section 1A and relating to Absent Voting, and which said Bill is in the words and figures following:

CHAPTER 20
 An Act to propose an amendment to Article 1, title, "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, by adding a new section thereto, to be known as Section 1A, the same relating to absent voting; and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring, that the following new Section and the same is hereby proposed as an Amendment to Article 1, title, "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, to be inserted after Section 1, and to be known as Section 1A; the same if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State as herein provided, to become a part of Article 1 of the Constitution of Maryland.

Section 1A. The General Assembly of Maryland shall have power to provide by suitable enactment for voting by qualified voters of the State of Maryland who are absent and engaged in the service of the United States at the time of any election from the ward or election district in which they are entitled to vote, and for the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent voter may vote, and for the canvass and return of their votes.

Approved March 22, 1918.
 Now, therefore, Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of the direction contained in Section 1 of Article 14 of the Constitution of Maryland do hereby order and direct that this Proclamation, containing a full and correct copy of the text of said Chapter 20 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, Session of 1918, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State where so many may be published, and where not more than one may be published, then in that newspaper, and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which shall be in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the General Election to be held in the State of Maryland on Tuesday, November 5, 1918, at which election the said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be submitted in form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legally and qualified voters of the State for their adoption or rejection.

A RELIEF MEASURE

Effective: Sunday, September 22, 1918

We believe you want to do your part in giving your city the best possible telephone service. Here is one way in which you can help. Please don't ask for the time of day, the location of fires, and other information not a necessary part of telephone service.

In normal times this Company, wishing to give its patrons the widest use of its facilities, cheerfully furnished a certain amount of this special service. But war times are with us, with an inevitable shortage of labor and materials, and a tremendous increase in telephone calling.

Our lines are crowded with important messages. Our operators are busy as never before.

Every second given to handling calls for the time of day and similar information means a second taken away from calls of real importance.

We must ask, therefore, that on and after Sunday, September 22, 1918, you relieve us of this burden. We assure you that your co-operation will be appreciated.

FIVE COWS, A GIRL AND A BIG AUTO

Romance of a Young Lawyer's Scorchless Scorch on a Highway.

BY ADA NIXON.

(Copyright, 1917, by Associated Literary Press.)

Young Harold Imlay of Chester had graduated in law and been taken into partnership with his father. He was having what he called a little fling before settling down to the stern business of law, and he had an auto to help him out. The auto revolved around the country at various speeds, none of which was less than forty miles an hour.

On a certain morning when it was taken out to scorch up the highway it refused to scorch. In fact, it "went dead." That's not so very rare a case. There is a little something out of kilter and the man that knows how can remedy it in a few minutes. The trouble in this case was that nobody in the village knew how. The clock tinker, the blacksmith, the cobbler and the doctor all diagnosed and prescribed, but without avail. Then a tin peddler came along and hopped off his wagon and fussed for a minute and hopped on again and drove off.

The auto was now all right. The young lawyer offered free seats, but they were declined with thanks. It wasn't their day for dying. The decliners saw man and machine disappear down the highway like a cannon ball and felt that it was good to be alive and have dinner coming to them.

Very few lawyers take any man's word for anything, and not one in ten would believe a peddler under oath. Young Imlay hadn't cut his legal eye-teeth yet, and he fondly believed. He would have said to a jury that the peddler could have no possible motive in lying to him, and the absence of a motive always raises a big doubt of the guilt of the accused. Perhaps the man did not knowingly lie. Perhaps he thought a balky auto could be fixed as easily as a balky wheelbarrow. At any rate, after a run of three miles, young Imlay discovered that he was flying, and that the machine was beyond his control to stop.

Five miles from where the auto started out and half an hour before it did start, a saddled pony was led around to the door of a manor house, and Miss Irene Galbraith mounted and galloped away. Something of an artist she was, and she had her sketch book with her. Two miles down the road she found her subject. Five cows which were running at large contrary to the highway laws were standing in the middle of the dusty road with half-closed eyes and their tails lazily switching at the flies. They had arranged themselves as if for a photograph and the girl dismounted and got out her materials. "Honk! Honk! Honk!"

Miss Galbraith had heard the sound a thousand times before, but there was a note in this to make her rise to her feet. That honk was a danger signal.

Five rods down was the river. On the other side the highway ascended for a mile, and at its crest she saw an auto. In ten seconds she made up her mind that it was a runaway machine. It honked at every fifty feet. Those blasts could only mean: "Look out—clear the road!"

Young Imlay had put in the fastest half mile he ever expected to before reaching the crest of the hill, but he instantly realized that there was a mile a minute pace before him. Straight down over the crazy old bridge, and—

"Cows in the road!" he said to himself.

That settled it. There must be a smashup. "And a girl there! She must know I'm in trouble. If she's got good sense she'll scatter those cows and give me a clear road. If she does I'll marry her; if she does not—"

"Here you cows, get out of this!" cried the girl as she picked up a stick and ran forward and belabored them. The surprised cows moved. They didn't hustle, but they didn't have to so far to clear the road. A long blast and a rumble, and the girl caught sight of a white-but-determined face through the haze of dust. That was simply one peril avoided. Further up the road others must be encountered. She threw aside her sketching and mounted her pony and set off in chase. Half a mile away the auto had plowed its way into a bank and was at rest.

Young Imlay had been thrown out by the collision and suffered a broken leg. He was unconscious until some time after a doctor had looked him over at the manor house. No one knew who he was until his pockets had been searched, and then the father was telephoned to. By the time he arrived the son had gathered up the threads of the case and was ready to say to the jury:

"No use talking, governor, I've got it had!"

"Anything beside the leg?"

"My heart."

"Why—why, I don't understand that the fall had affected your heart."

"But it has. It's a case of love at first sight, and the first sight didn't last more'n half a second."

"And where is the girl?"

"Right here in the house. It was she who found me in the road and boasted the job of getting me here. Say, governor, she's a girl of sense! I haven't had a fair look at her face yet, but I know from her voice that she's good-looking. I'd have smashed up five cows as well as myself, and the machine if it hadn't been for the girl."

"We must now get you home," said the father in very sober tones.

"Can't be done, governor. Here I stay 'till the leg mends and I've got the promise of that girl to be my wife."

"Young man, this seems to have affected your brain."

"It has affected me all over. Say, governor, I'm a lawyer, am I not?"

"A very young and tender one."

"But I know what a breach-of-promise suit is, and I don't propose to stand in the dock."

"Harold Imlay, what can you mean?"

"Governor, when I saw those cows blocking the narrow highway and realized what a butcher shop it would be if the girl didn't move them on, I vowed to marry her if she did the right thing. She did it, and I'll keep my word."

"Um! Um! I think I can arrange for you to be cared for here for a few days, but my boy, don't get any fool notions in your head. Remember that you are just entering upon your career as a lawyer."

It was three days later before the patient caught sight of Miss Irene. The doctor had said that it would be better if the young man could remain there for a few days, and Mr. and Mrs. Galbraith had readily consented. A professional nurse had taken charge and the family was not to be put out to any extent. When the young man expressed his thanks in appropriate words he asked of the girl:

"How many cows were there?"

"Five."

"And how fast was I going?"

"It looked like two or three hundred miles a minute to me."

"And if I'd struck that bunch of beef at that gait?"

"Why—why—"

"My father would have had a dead son to bury, wouldn't he? I just want him to look at the case on its merits, you know. As a lawyer, he is naturally biased. If there had been only one cow, now, and she in poor condition, but there were five, and all fit for beef. Father must see that—that—"

Miss Irene thought the young man's mind was wandering and called the nurse. His mind was all there, however, though it was six long weeks and he was crutching around before he finished the sentence by saying:

"Yes, you must see that having saved my life—and having been bothered with me here so long—and as this leg will be weak for some time to come—and as I have fallen in love with you—and as your father is in the library—and as I'm going to crutch in there and ask him—"

"That marriage won't take place until next Christmas day."

The World's Wheat Crop.

Statistics from abroad recently compiled give the comparative production of the world's wheat crop as follows: United States, 200; Russia, 194; France, 98; British India, 77; Italy, 52; Hungary, 34; etc. As to the yield per acre of territory, the order is quite different, this being: Great Britain, 21; Germany, 19; France, 14; Austria, 13.2; Canada, 12.4; etc. The United States occupies the ninth place, with a figure of 9.2.

Cost of Producing Milk.

The Massachusetts experiment station has found that the total cost of producing milk satisfactory in sanitary quality and containing from four to five per cent. of butter fat will usually amount to from four to five cents per quart. The cost of keeping a cow for one year is estimated at $137.07. Milk produced under more than average sanitary conditions of certified milk will naturally cost considerably more.

The Electrometallurgical society, which has its factory at Neuchatel, has received an order to construct a certain number of body shields (bucklers) for the police of Paris. NATION NEEDS DAIRY CALVES

Dairyman Will Be Doing Patriotic Duty by Developing Helpers—Hints on Care Needed.

No dairy calf that gives promise of a profitable milk producer should be sent to the market to be made into meat. Although meat is in demand, these calves will serve the nation better if allowed to grow and produce milk and more calves. The dairyman, too, will be doing a patriotic duty by developing the helpers, and in addition he will be building up a more profitable herd if he uses good judgment in caring for his young stock. Careful attention during the first two weeks often means the difference between a sickly, undersized, stunted animal and a large, well-developed one, when it enters the herd as a milking cow.

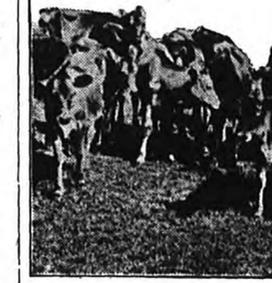

Immediately after birth the navel of the calf should be washed with an antiseptic solution and tied with a silk thread in order to prevent infection. For the first feed the calf should have the first milk from the cow after calving, and should have its mother's milk for a week thereafter. The sooner the weaning takes place the better, but ordinarily it should not be postponed later than the fourth day. The sooner the calf is weaned the more easily it is taught to drink. When first fed from the pail eight to ten pounds, or four or five quarts, of milk a day, fresh and warm from the cow, and divided into two feeds, are sufficient. The feeding times should be as nearly regular as possible, and at first it is advisable to feed more than twice a day. The amount fed should be constant, and to insure this, scales or measuring cups should be used, as variation tends to get the digestive organs out of order. At all times the utmost care should be taken to prevent any digestive disorder, as all such troubles hinder the thrift and development of the calf. Calf scours is the most common indication of indigestion.

The following named precautions, to a great extent, tend to prevent scours:

Feed regularly.
Be sure that the milk is always sweet and warm.
In feeding use only clean pails.
Feed the calf a little less than it wants.

Should the calf become sick, reduce the amount of milk one-half, until the animal has recovered.

The amount of milk fed can be gradually increased until at the end of the second week the calf receives from 15 to 16 pounds, or three-fourths to two gallons of milk a day. This time the gradual substitution of skim milk for whole milk may commence. Hay and grain should be placed before the calf at this period, and it will be found to nibble at them a little. At the end of the third week the substitution of the skim milk will be complete. By slow changes milk can be increased thereafter until 20 pounds or 2 1/2 gallons a day are fed; this amount will be found sufficient when fed with the grain and hay. If skim milk is plentiful more may be fed, but the added amount will give proportionately better results.

Cornmeal, bran, and linseed oil meal, mixed in the proportions of three, two, and one, make an excellent grain mixture. This grain when fed with plenty of fine clover or alfalfa hay makes an ideal supplement to skim milk for balancing the ration. Calves should be allowed all the grain that they will eat until they consume three pounds a day; from this point the feeder should use his judgment as to whether an increase is justified.

The calf, from the time it is two weeks of age, should always have clean, sunny quarters, abundance of exercise, and access to plenty of clean, pure water.

The general practice is to feed calves skim milk from two to six months. In the latter case, with full calves the time of final weaning from milk comes in the spring, when pastures are ready, under this system the calves usually make excellent growth during the entire period without any break in gain.

COULDN'T USE MOTOR CARS

Etiquette Would Not Allow Driver to Sit in Presence of Chinese Dowager Empress.

When the dowager empress of China died in 1908 she left 48 motor cars, among other things, to her heirs. Most of these had been made specially for her, many were gifts from high Chinese potentates and all were gorgeous, palatial, expensive cars. Her favorite was an eight-passenger French machine with its body painted deep orange and its seats upholstered in violet satin brocade edged with round flat blue turquoise stones.

But the dowager never rode in a motor car in her life and not one of the 48 varieties ever left the imperial garage.

It was not because there were no embryo chauffeurs in China. The young Chinese who had been in England and America imbibing Occidental college educations had learned to joyride and dozens of them might have qualified as high chauffeurs of the wheel in the dowager empress' buzz wagon.

But—no one may sit down in the presence of a Chinese monarch! And how could any one stand up straight and drive a high-powered motor car?

In 1908 there were not more than a dozen motor cars in all China besides the collection in the imperial garage; today there are about 400, at least 60 per cent of which are driven by Occidental traders, commercial agents and members of the various Western legations. Driving is restricted to a very few of the largest coast cities, where it is rough going at best, and there is not a road in China fit for a motor ride.

I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."
—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 108 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

S. LABOR DEPARTMENT

Representative Here To Speak At The Fair. Dr. William Jennifer, from the Employment Division of the U. S. Labor Department is in the city to speak at the Colored Fair. During an interview he said:

The Employment Division of the U. S. Department of Labor has done much to readjust and simplify the complex labor conditions thrust upon this country by the war. Plans have been successfully worked out for an equitable distribution of labor so that congestion of labor at one point is improbable, uniform industrial activity is now being sought and the effort of the Department in this direction have been crowned with some degree of success.

The desire is to draw labor of both men and women from idleness, and from occupations of small usefulness into more useful industry.

This is the most crucial period of the world's history and to pass it successfully this government must conserve its energies and direct its economic forces. The individual citizen is now called upon to take his place in the front trenches of domestic endeavor and there do his bit. Every ounce of American energy must be concentrated into one great force for winning the war. The war and circumstances incident there to have reduced our labor force and made idleness intolerable. The idle man is inimical to the success of our coveted democracy and a menace to the well-being of our commonwealth.

The new draft will, of necessity, further reduce our already limited labor supply. But this latter reduction will not be so sweeping as the circumstances seem to warrant, as thousands of laborers whose records for continuous service are good will, doubtless, be placed in the deferred class.

Mr. J. B. Densmore, of Washington, D. C., is Director General of the U. S. Employment Service; Mr. Ralph Ezard, with headquarters at Richmond, Va., is District Superintendent of the U. S. Employment Service.

If one wants to see the newest creations for fall and winter, in millinery, suits coats, etc., in fact every thing necessary to the well dressed woman—she will find it this week by visiting the Benjamin Quality Store. It is a well proven fact that you do not have to go to the city to find the newest styles, or the best values for your money, as many a woman has found out when she sat down and counted the cost.

So, why not patronize our own home department stores, where you get the very best service, and the best values, and also save yourself the fatigue and expense of city shopping—Adv.

The Questionnaire

Soon after Thursday's registration the questionnaire will be mailed to registrants by the local board.

This questionnaire is a printed pamphlet of sixteen pages, and is accompanied by a single sheet containing a "key list of occupations."

Men between the ages of thirty-one and thirty-six, inclusive, and eighteen and twenty, inclusive, who registered Sept. 12th will receive their questionnaire first, and many are expected to be called to the service during October. Older men will receive questionnaires later.

There are nearly 200 questions in the questionnaire, but forty-four come under the heading of "agricultural occupations."

Persons who will ask for deferred classification for industrial reasons may attach affidavits to their questionnaires, giving information in addition to that asked for if they think the information will strengthen their cases. The employer may aid in this matter.

Most registrants who ask for deferred classification, ask for it on the grounds of dependency. This may be on account of a wife, children of his own or toward whom the registrant stands as parent, brothers or sisters and mother or father, or both.

History Of The Draft

The original Selective Service Act was enacted by Congress on May 10, 1917, a little more than a month after "Uncle Sam" declared war on the Kaiser.

It gave President Wilson extensive power in the matter of raising an army by selective service. It called for the registration of all men twenty-one to thirty-one years of age, inclusive, and President Wilson set June 5, 1917, as the first registration day.

As soon as the big new cantonments throughout the country had been filled with about 500,000 men under the first calls, the questionnaire system of classifying registrants

Standers, Walkers, "Gets-It" for Corns

World Has Never Known Its Equal. "What will get rid of my corn?" The answer has been made by millions—there's only one corn-remover that you can bank on, that's absolutely certain, that makes any corn was adopted. To gain time while the plan of the military experts for expanding the Army was being worked out and the amendment for the new age limits of eighteen to forty-five years was framed, the President ordered another registration of men who had passed twenty-one on August 24, 1918.

The amendment changing the age limits to the present figures also provides for the education of about 150,000 men of college age and a course hinging on military training has been worked out for the colleges which will school the men.

On earth peel right off like a banana skin—and that's magic "Gets-It" Tight shoes and dancing even when you have a corn need not disturb you if you apply a few drops of "Gets-It" on the corn or callus.

Corn-Pain Is Ended—the Corn Is Doomed!

you want a corn-remover, not a corn-remover, you don't have to fool with corns—you peel them right off with your fingers by using "Gets-It." Cutting makes corns grow and bleed. Why use irritating salves or make a bundle of your toe with tape or bandages? Why putter and still have the corn? Use "Gets-It"—your corn-pain is over, the corn is a rotten rye in the nut case.

INFLUENZA STOPS FLOW TO THE CAMPS OF DRAFTED MEN

Crowder Cancels Calls For 142,000 Due To Prevalent Epidemic.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Because of epidemics of Spanish influenza in army camps, Provost Marshal General Crowder tonight cancelled calls for the entrainment between Oct. 7 and 11 of 142,000 draft registrants. During the twenty-four hours ending at noon today, 6,139 new cases of influenza in army camps had been reported to the office of the Surgeon General of the army. One hundred and seventy deaths, resulting chiefly from pneumonia following influenza, and 723 new cases of pneumonia also were reported.

Two More Camps Infected.

Two camps, Kearny, California, and Eustis, Virginia, were added today to the list where influenza had made appearance, leaving only thirteen camps free from the disease. The total number of cases of influenza in all camps was placed at 35,146, with 3,036 cases of pneumonia. One out of every four men at Camp Devens, Massachusetts, has contracted influenza, it was announced, and 10 per cent of the cases have developed into pneumonia.

In canceling the call for the entrainment of the draft registrants early next month, General Crowder acted upon instructions from General March, Chief of Staff. Every State and the District of Columbia had quotas assigned, and the men were to have gone to practically all of the camps in the country. The men probably will not be entrained until after the influenza epidemic has been checked.

AMERICANS AND FRENCH SMASHING THRU ON 40-MILE FRONT IN FLANDERS

U. S. PUT "PEP" INTO WAR, SAYS SENATOR

America Started Ball Rolling Toward Berlin.

Describing his recent visit to the Western front, Senator Thompson of Kansas, Democrat, says, that while in some quarters there is a belief that the war can be ended this year, the general opinion abroad is that another year will be required to bring Germany to her knees. America, he declared, had "put pep into the war" and started the "ball rolling toward Berlin."

Senator Thompson said he opposed "a makeshift compromise or half-way peace," and declared it must be "final and conclusive and decisive for Kaiserism and militarism throughout the world forever."

German morale was never lower than at the present time, he said, while the Allied Armies are convinced they are fighting a winning cause and that "victory is all but within their grasp." The United States' entrance into the war is primarily responsible for this change, he added.

Letter From Co. I Boy Now In France

A later letter received from Wilson Booth speaks of being in the trenches and picking out a German sniper 600 yards away:—

August 10th, 1918, Somewhere in France.

Dear Mother:—
Have not had the opportunity to write to you for several days on account of being in the front line trenches fighting the "Boches" I am now resting but expect to go in again soon, we have had no casualties so far and don't think we will have any time soon if the boys are careful. I have had the pleasure of picking off a German sniper 600 yards away with my first shot, the only one having been put out of commission by our company so far, the "boches" took a shot at us first but he was a poor shot. Its the general opinion over here that we will be home with in a few months for the Germans are getting licked to a frazzle, the boys are right on their heels.

There is not the fear or dread of going into no man's land as you might think, just so you have a few hand grenades in your pockets you are all safe.

The Frenchmen like us and are real comrades they think more of the Americans than they do of any one of the other allies. Capt. W. is not with us at present but I think he will be here within a few days. Several changes have been made in the company some Corporals and Sergeants have been busted and transferred. Have received three letters from you but all were addressed to E. R. O. T. C. so they were old but enjoyed reading them just the same.

I can tell you only that I like the trenches pretty well its some experience and the hard ships are not so great as you might think.

Your son,
WILSON.

Melons Help Pay For Farm

Sharptown, Md. Two years ago Ithel H. Rider bought 200 acres of land near town for $2,000. None of the land was cleared and there was but little timber on it. Last year he cleared several acres and had some of it tilled, but crops were light. This spring he planted 16 acres in melons and his son Horace G. Rider put melons in three more acres.

Several days ago I. H. Rider sold his melon crop, to be delivered at Mardela Station, seven miles away, for $1,700, while his son Horace sold his melons for $300, making a total of $2,000, the cost of the farm. Only a small quantity of fertilizer was used and the tilling required but little time.

Third Gasless Sunday

The third gasless Sunday was more generally observed than the two previous Sundays' despite the fact that a week ago the inclemency of the weather kept several home who would have dared to be a slacker.

It is thought that there will be fewer cars to be seen next Sunday than last, as persons are beginning to feel the sting of being classed as slackers, and are realizing what this means to the country.

SHOULD CLAIM EXEMPTION

Crowder Says Those Entitled To It Will Aid Draft Boards If They So Declare.

(By the Associated Press.) Washington, Sept. 24.—Provost Marshal General Crowder again today, by formal statement, asked men registered under selective service law, who are now engaged in answering questionnaires, not to let motives of chivalry prevent them from claiming deferred classification if their occupation or the status of their dependents entitles them to do so. He again pointed out that such claims can be made by a third person, and that, through local boards are endeavoring to ascertain the true condition even where a claim is not made, the necessity for expediting the work makes it incumbent upon registrants to assist.

"It should be borne in mind by the individual registrant," said General Crowder, "that the military program of this country, built around the desires of all concerned to win victory for our cause as quickly as possible, demands of the selective system the utmost speed in classifying the 13,000,000 approximately who registered on September 12. If all these 13,000,000 registrants were to decline to aid the boards by indicating their own attitude regarding deferment and were to rely entirely on the ability of the boards to perceive propriety of making deferments the whole process of raising the army would be seriously hampered and delayed.

"This applies equally to those entitled to deferment on the ground of dependency and those on the ground of necessary occupational employment. Either the claim should be made by the registrant or by a competent third person in his behalf."

Negro Shot Merchant

Seaford officers have been notified by the Dorchester county, Md., authorities to be on the lookout for John Smith, a negro, who on Sunday shot and killed George W. Jones, a negro merchant of Mt. Vernon, Md., at Roland Webster's cannery house between Federalsburg and Hurlock. Smith shot Jones when the latter demanded that he pay a store bill which he had contracted at Jones' store at Mt. Vernon. The bill is said to have been $4.

When Jones demanded the money Smith whipped out a revolver and shot Jones in the throat. Smith escaped across the Delaware line. Jones was started for Salisbury hospital, but died before reaching there.

- Porter M. Deal, Fruitland.

- Josh Dashiell, Salisbury.
- James Waters, Nanticoke.
- Roy R. Hughes, Salisbury.
- Sterling K. Pinkett, Quantico.

- Marvin L. Dashiell, Salisbury.
- Clarence Chester Jones, Salisbury.

Notice has also been received by the Board to have 17 white men who will be ordered to report sometime between October 7th and 11th. The Board has not yet made a selection of these men but will do so very soon and issue the notices to them.

Iowa Regiment Lost 1400 In 8 Day's Lorraine Fighting

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 26.—During eight days, fighting ending Aug. 3 the 168th infantry, Iowa's unit in the Rainbow division, lost 1400 officers and men, or about 50 per cent of the effective combatant strength," according to Colonel E. R. Bennett, its commander.

This information is contained in a letter from the colonel received today by former Senator Lafayette Young. Fighting in the Baccarat sector of the Lorraine front, the Iowans participated in a twelve mile advance, the

GREAT PROGRESS IN OFFENSIVE ON ALL FRONTS BY THE ALLIES

American and French armies began one of the greatest offensives of the war Thursday today, by formal statement, asked men registered under selective service law, who are now engaged in answering questionnaires, not to let motives of chivalry prevent them from claiming deferred classification if their occupation or the status of their dependents entitles them to do so.

Brief dispatches say the allies have advanced several miles. The Germans abandoned their first-line trenches at many places.

Foch's smash is full of peril for the whole German army in France. It threatens railway lines supplying the Germans around Laoh, and a deep advance would outflank Laon and the southern end of the Hindenburg line, where Ludendorff is making a stand against the allied offensive from the west.

General Pershing's forces are attacking as an independent American army east of the Argonne forest, while the French are attacking to the west of it, both driving northward.

The German war office declares the allies have failed to "break thru," which is the usual German apology for a serious setback.

In southern Serbia the allies have now advanced more than fifty miles and have trapped the Bulgarian First army, while to the east the British and Greeks are invading Bulgaria.

In Palestine the British have cut off a Turk army east of the Jordan river. The number of prisoners taken has reached 45,000.

Yankees and Poilus Loosed By Foch, Advance Six Miles

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The Americans, who attacked this morning on a twenty-mile front in conjunction with the French, have advanced at some points to a depth of six miles. They are still advancing.

LONDON, Sept. 26. (By the Associated Press.)—French and American troops launched an attack this morning against the German positions on a front of forty miles between Suppe and the River Meuse. The Germans voluntarily abandoned their forward positions. There was not much artillery or infantry resistance to the Franco-American drive.

The Americans attacked on the right wing and the French made their assault on the left. The allied forces penetrated the German positions for some miles.

4th Turkish Army Surrounded.—45000 Already Captured

London, Sept. 26.—The Fourth Turkish Army on the Palestine front is virtually surrounded in the region east of the Jordan and faces annihilation by General Allenby's forces, today's advices show.

The total of prisoners already taken was increased today to 45,000. The annihilation of the Fourth Army, now hoped for, would complete the clearing up of the Turkish forces in Palestine, accounting for about 80,000 men.

Washington Sees Great Strategic Possibilities.—Big American Army In It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The keystone of the great German defensive arch in France is under assault in the Franco-American offensive launched this morning in the Champagne over a front of more than forty miles. Because of the place of attack selected by Marshal Foch military officials here regarded the new blow as one of wide strategic possibilities. It was not until General Pershing's official statement arrived late tonight that a definite idea was given of the extent and success of the initial rush. The Americans advanced on a front of twenty miles to an average depth of seven miles, taking more than five thousand prisoners and twelve towns. The French War Office previously had reported that the French troops further west had advanced nearly four miles at certain points.

BIG FIRE FRIDAY MORNING

T. H. Mitchell Lumber Plant Destroyed.—Loss Estimated At $100,000. A fire broke out in the T. H. Mitchell, Co., lumber plant early Friday morning, destroying the mill, machinery, lumber and several thousand dollar's worth of stored furniture, amounting to about one hundred thousand dollars, very small insurance.

Many complaints were heard about the little courtesy received from the telephone company.

A number of firemen, among them the engineer, the mayor, and others directly concerned could get no information promptly, as to the location of the fire. Any thing so important as fire department service surely needs the promptest attention, as a minutes delay means increasing loss of property and greater time and labor for the firemen who volunteer their services.

The feeling is so strong among the members of the Fire Department, that they are sending in a petition next Monday to the City Council, that unless they get more courtesy from the telephone company, in future, when information is wanted that they will resign.

Rumors Circulated That Jackson Brothers Co. Would Shut Down

It has been currently reported that Jackson Brothers Company would shut down for the winter. On taking this matter up with Mr. Jackson we were informed that no such action was contemplated nor would it be possible for the company to shut down without great loss, as they already have enough orders booked to last through the winter and spring.

We were also informed by Mr. Jackson that a recent ruling of the War Industries Board would entitle their employees to deferred classification, and he said their men have been instructed to file this claim on their questionnaire.

This would insure the employees of Jackson Brothers Company continuous work and should set at rest all rumors to the contrary. This should be very welcome news to not only the employees of this big concern but also to the business men of this community, as this concern has one of the largest pay rolls in Wicomico County and the fact that they have sufficient orders on hand to run the entire winter and spring, will insure no lack of employment to several hundred men of this community.

Merchants Fined

The following country merchants contributed $5.00 each to the local Red Cross Society for failing to sell substitutes with flour:—

- White Bros., Powellville.
- Thomas E. Baker, near Willards.
- The American Store Co., contributed $5.00 to the Red Cross for selling old sugar at 10 1/2 cts per lb.

The reason for the small amount contributed by White Bros. and Baker for their serious violation is because of the confusion produced by the new regulations of flour sales. The fact that the retail merchants does not have to buy his substitutes from the wholesalers or the mills at the time of purchasing flour has led many to believe that no substitutes are required.

This is an error as each sale of four pounds of flour must be accompanied with one pound of substitutes when straight flour is sold. No exception to this rule is permitted. It applies equally to the farmer who may have his own meal as it does to the purchaser who has no extra substitutes. No certificates are required on the part of the purchaser, but he has substitutes will not be sold at present in this

STREET PRAYER MEETINGS CLOSED

Hundreds Attended The Services At Nine Each Morning.

Monday morning marked the close of the praise and prayer meetings on Main street which have been conducted without interruption each morning since the early part of last June.

It is a matter of deep regret to hundreds of our people that the cool weather has brought to a close these outdoor meetings which have attracted on an average 200 to 300 men and women each morning.

The program included the singing of one national air, one hymn, and a short talk and prayer by our ministers and others. The bugle call summoned the people promptly at 9 o'clock and the service was over usually at 9.15. These services were very impressive and elicited the highest praise especially from strangers coming to Salisbury.

Many will miss the inspiring music and the fervent prayers for the safety of the boys "over there," and for the triumph of the Allies over the brutal Hun.

A Fourth Liberty Loan Suggestion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Thomas A. Edison has suggested that every letter written in the United States during the next five weeks shall close with the words "Yours for the Fourth Liberty Loan."

The suggestion has been adopted by the Liberty Loan Committee, and is being sent broadcast throughout the country.

If every person, business firm, or corporation follows the suggestion, the Postoffice Department estimates the slogan "Yours for the Fourth Liberty Loan" will be uttered more than 40,000,000 times every twenty-four hours.

New Telephone Ruling

The C. & P. Telephone Company, which has heretofore been giving the correct time over the telephone to any one who cared to call for it, now announces that it is obliged to stop this practice.

When times were normal, according to District Manager, H. W. Carly, the company was glad to furnish a certain amount of special information service of this kind, including calls for the location of fires, football and baseball scores, and the time of the day. But now that the lines are everywhere congested with Government calls and war business, he states that it has been found necessary to reduce the operators of this

DAIRY FACTS

Essential to Well-Being of Nation and Effort Should Be Made to Maintain Supply.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The shifting demands due to the war have called for important changes in the dairy industry. Dairying is one of the largest of the agricultural enterprises of this country and the demands upon it will be in proportion to its importance. Dairy products are essential to the well-being of the nation and every effort should be expended to maintain the supply of this country and so far as possible to meet the increasing demands of the allies. Some of the principal advantages of dairying are:

1. The sale of dairy products furnishes a steady income throughout the year. The farmer who depends upon crop sales for his income usually makes the bulk of his sales during one or two months of the year, while during the rest of the year he has no cash income. Such a system requires long credits in the community.

2. The market for dairy products fluctuates very little year by year as compared with other farm products.

3. Through the return of manure to the land the fertility and physical condition of the soil may be maintained at a high level and crops increased. Even after many years a properly maintained dairy farm has constantly increasing crop yields instead of decreasing ones.

4. In dairying, labor may be utilized at a more uniform rate throughout the year, for example, may have to employ much additional labor at harvest time, but so far as the dairy is concerned the dairyman has about the same duties to perform every month of the year. Thus less help is required seasonally and permanent employees may be kept.

5. Through the dairy cow many undesirable roughages may be transformed into products from which cash may be realized. Grass, hay, corn-fodder and other roughage which may not have a ready sale are economically utilized by the dairy cow. Land which is not suitable for cultivation can be utilized for pasturage for dairy cows.

DUTIES OF DAIRYMEN GIVEN

Use Best Methods of Breeding and Management and Utilize All Products to Advantage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The duties and responsibilities of dairymen are especially important in the maintenance of the dairy industry for the good of the nation. An opportunity is presented to dairymen to serve humanity by the conservation of the best methods of breeding and management, feed wisely and economically, and utilize all products to the best advantage. The fuller utilization of by-products for human food brings an added financial return that will do much to help maintain the industry. We are depending upon the ingenuity and efficiency of the American people to play a large part in the winning of the war. This same ingenuity and efficiency must be used in the productive industries as well as in destructive ones. If, after putting into effect the best methods and practices for economy and efficiency, it still is necessary to dispose of dairy cows, the dairymen should endeavor to sell them to other dairymen, better situated, in order that the supply of milk may not be reduced.

On the small farm, and it is from such farms that the bulk of our dairy products come, most of the work is done by the farmer and his family. Would it not be possible on many of these farms to keep one or two or three more cows without great inconvenience? This and increased efficiency will meet the situation. We shall have milk for our babies; we shall maintain our industry; we shall have dairy products for our armies, and, in addition, shall be able to share liberally with our friends across the sea.

Proper Feeding for Calves.
Calves should be fed on food that will develop a strong, vigorous constitution and a large frame, with a healthy appetite—the milk veins and udder manipulated, or rubbed to increase capacity early in life and up to the time heifer drops her first calf.

TIPS FROM TEXAS

As a general thing, the kind of man who is too good for this world hasn't got much of this world's goods.

Our idea of a pacifist is the man who climbs a tree while his wife's is fighting the wolf at their door.

Another reason why a man is a man is because he thinks things are going badly when they are not coming his way.

And as a general thing, a man ought to kiss his wife good-by when he leaves home even if he intends to come back.

It has just about got so in this country that when a man talks too much he has to tell some of it to the judge.

As a general thing, the papa who has to buy shoes and stockings for four or five daughters dreams of feet and legs.

Our idea of a model husband is one who would rather get his breakfast in the garden than try to coax his wife into the kitchen.

Maybe you also have wondered why the lawyers named it alimony when they had just as good a chance to call it punitive damages.

One reason why a girl can't rest contentedly in a hammock is because she is always wondering how she would look if it spilled her.

Our observation is that after a woman gets past fifty-five it is almost impossible for her to giggle herself back to girlhood, even if she dresses that way.

Of course, it is different now, but a year ago when you began talking to a married man about Liberty bonds he thought you were kidding him.—Dallas News.

THE LIBERTY LOAN FEEDS AND CLOTHES OUR SOLDIERS.

Since the beginning of the war, we have spent for Army use $37,000,000 for flour; $14,000,000 for sugar; $43,000,000 for bacon; $12,000,000 for beans; $9,000,000 for canned tomatoes, and $3,000,000 for rice. These are only some of the large items in our Army's bill of fare. We have spent $126,000,000 for shoes; over $500,000,000 for clothing, winter and summer; nearly $150,000,000 for blankets.

Our axes for the Army have cost over $6,000,000; our rolling kitchens $47,000,000 and field ranges $1,500,000. The Army is using 2,500,000 shovels costing $1 a piece. Our motor trucks to carry supplies and ammunition cost $240,000,000, and for horse-drawn wagons and carts we have spent $37,000,000. Our 279,000 horses and 132,000 mules have cost us nearly $100,000,000; to feed them has cost over $60,000,000, and the harness for them nearly $30,000,000.

These figures are large, but we have nearly 2,000,000 men in France and nearly as many in cantonments here, and the United States and the people of the United States, through the Liberty Loan are making these soldiers as safe and as comfortable, as powerful and effective as possible.

Every subscriber to the Liberty Loan has helped, and every subscriber to the Fourth Liberty Loan will help to win the war.

FACTS ABOUT FIRE

South Sea Islanders in the remotest days got their fire by the friction of dry wood.

The primal Aethiopian Islanders rub sulphur over quartz, make a rude match, and so strike a light.

"Isaac spake unto Abraham," in the twenty-second chapter of Genesis, "and he said: Behold the fire and the wood."

But we have no history of any race of men who didn't know about fire. The earliest Bible records speak of fire.

For stealing fire from the gods and giving it to man Prometheus was chained to the rock. That was Greek mythology.

Living in the shadow of the north pole, the far-off Eskimo strikes quartz against a piece of iron pyrite and gets a flame.

The most sequestered tribes of Africa and Central Asia knew about fire when the white men first made their acquaintance.

When Columbus came to America he found Indian fires burning. The Indian rubbed dry sticks together and quickly got a spark.

How Adam learned about fire we know not, but apparently Eve cooked food, although the famous apple was doubtless eaten raw.

It was said that when Magellan first sailed around the world he did find among the Ladrone people who never saw fire. When the Spanish adventurer burned their huts the natives thought the flames were a beast which ate up wood.—Glard's Talk of the Day in the Philadelphia Telegram.

WAR DON'TS

Don't criticize, unless your criticism is constructive, and will help.

Don't be discouraged. Faith is not a sentiment, but an act of will.

Don't listen to what ex-President Taft calls "whispering traitors."

Don't sit down, and wish the war were over. Start out and work to get it over.

Don't grumble at being asked to do something you have never done before. Fall into line.

Don't wish you were serving in some different line from that you are in. You are needed where you are.

Don't forget that we are fighting for right, and therefore must win. Insert in your morning prayer the now immortal words, "They Shall Not Pass!"—Jane Dransfield of the Vigilantes.

Over 300,000 loads of sawdust and other mill waste were used during last year in the United States for making paper pulp.

On the Isle of Man fresh herrings are packed in ferns and arrive at the market in as fresh a condition as when they were shipped.

Thunder and moderate rain, such as we have had here, is the most effective means of clearing the atmosphere.

THE PRAISE CONTINUES.

Everywhere We Hear Good Reports Of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Salisbury is no exception. Every section of the U. S. resounds with praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. Fifty thousand persons are giving testimony in their home newspapers. The sincerity of these witnesses, the fact that they live so near, is the best proof of the merit of Doan's. Here's a Salisbury case.

Geo. T. Jenkins, policeman, 628 W. Main St., says: "About two years ago I was troubled with a lame back and my kidneys were out of order. The kidney secretions were scanty. When I did any work that obliged me to stoop, it seemed as if a knife had been stuck in my back and I was certainly in bad shape. One day I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and got some from White & Leonard's Drug Store. After using three boxes, I was cured!"

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Jenkins had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Works Like a Hoe

Covers 8 Acres A Day

It does as good work as you can do with a hoe—it cuts every weed—none can dodge it—keeps the surface in condition to readily absorb rain and produces a mulch or dirt blanket of fine soil which prevents the escape of soil moisture. One trip to the row, whether narrow or wide.

With one man the Fowler does as much work as you can do with a two horse cultivator—and better work—because it cultivates shallow—has no prongs or teeth to destroy or disturb the crop roots. You can work right up to the plant with a Fowler. By removing plow foot you can cultivate astride the row. You need this now.

Order direct or through your dealer. We give service that counts.

Why Putter With Corns? Use "Gots-It"

Common-Sense, Simple, Never Fails. You can tear out your corns and suffer, or you can peel off your corns and smile. The joy-peeling way is the "Gots-It" way. It is the only happy, painless way in the world. Two drops

"Get the Drop" on That Corn—Use "Gots-It" and the Corn is a "Goner"!

"Gots-It" on any corn or callus dries it at once. The corn finally loosens off from the toe, so that you can peel it off with your fingers in one piece, painlessly, like peeling a banana. "Gots-It" stuff, wish I'd done that before. There's only one corn-peeler—"Gots-It." Toes wrapped up big with tape and bandages, toes squirming from irritating salves, it's all so barbaric. Toes wounded by razors and knives, that's butchery, ridiculous, unnecessary, dangerous. Use "Gots-It," the liberty way—simple, painless, always sure. Take no chances. Get "Gots-It." Don't be misled by imitations. See that you get "Gots-It," "Gots-It," the guaranteed, money-back corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'd by E. HEROES' DAY
PROCLAMATION

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, ANNAPOLIS, MD.

For more than a year the United States of America has been a participant on the side of liberty and civilization, in the great world war that within the space of a few years has menaced and threatened to destroy the best that mankind has struggled for centuries to build up. While millions of men have made the supreme sacrifice for the salvation of the world, since the awful struggle began, until recently these martyrs for the cause of justice have been drawn from the heroic armies of our Allies of Europe. Now, however, the situation has changed, and our own splendid men in arms are now standing firmly and fighting valiantly beside their Allied brethren of foreign lands, and doing their noble part to repel the cruel oppressors of mankind. Already over ten thousand of our brethren have made the supreme sacrifice on foreign battle fields in defense of principles for which they were proud to die, and while conscious that to memorial that we can frame can add glory to the record of their holy service, we deem it fit and appropriate that we should formally take cognizance of the sacrifices they have made, believing that while we can add nothing to their glorious fame we may by so doing increase the patriotic flame within our own hearts as we contemplate the sacrifices they have made, and that in thought of them we may make a new dedication of ourselves to the service for which they died.

Now therefore in memory of our sacred dead of this great world war, and of the loved ones they have left behind, whose service and sacrifice is second only to that of those they have loved and lost, I, Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of the State of Maryland, do set apart and proclaim

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29th, 1918, as Heroes Day, and I call upon all the people of Maryland to observe it with appropriate services and ceremonies as a tribute of honor and appreciation of the heroic men of our own land who have given their lives in this great struggle for the freedom of mankind.

Given under the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, Done at the City of Annapolis this 19th day of September, nineteen hundred and eighteen.

EMERSON C. HARRINGTON,
By the Governor:
THOMAS W. SIMMONS,
Secretary of State.

HEROES' DAY PROCLAMATION.

CITY HALL,
BALTIMORE, MD.

To the Citizens of the City of Baltimore:

During the past year the great war, now being prosecuted by the nations of the world, has been brought home to all of us. We have been called upon to make many sacrifices, by all of these into insignificance when we think of those of our neighbors and friends who have paid the greatest tribute of all. They have given their sons to the cause for which we stand, and many of these young men have answered roll call for the last time.

The memory of their heroic sacrifices will always be with us. There is nothing that we could say or do that would enhance the value of their gift to the nation. We can only in an humble way endeavor to express our sense of obligation.

To that end it is proposed that Sunday, September 29th, shall be set apart as Heroes' Day, in order that we may think better, and in some tangible form, give expression to the sentiments which dominate us, and so keep sacred to remembrance the names of those who have taken their places on the nation's honor roll.

And, therefore, I, as Mayor of the City of Baltimore, do request all our people to observe the said day in fitting manner and with services or exercises worthy of the occasion, and which shall be hall-marked and stand for a small part of a tribute which is beyond power of expression.

JAMES H. PRESTON,
Baltimore, September 20.

HEROES' DAY.

To the Citizens of Maryland, and the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese of Baltimore:

At a time when our Country is in the midst of so many trials, and when we are all being put to the test for our common welfare and the preservation of our ideals, it is imperative that we should face courageously all the problems confronting us.

Through the greatest goodness of our Lord and Master, our eyes have been opened and we see our way clear before us. Our citizens have been asked the supreme question and they have answered it. They have given freely of their treasures, and of the results of their labors, these and more too.

Because many of our friends and neighbors have made the most supreme sacrifice of all, they have added to the material offerings the priceless gift of their souls, the blood of their blood, the bone of their bone, and on some of these fathers and mothers the hand of affliction has been heavily laid. Some of these boys who marched away to war will never come back. Their names are inscribed on the nation's roll of honor as heroes who died for the cause. And now it has been suggested that Sunday, September 29th, should be set apart as a day of solemn memorial in Maryland, so that our State may pay fitting tribute to the memory of her sons, and I do accordingly make request to all the citizens of the State of Maryland that said day shall be observed in fitting manner, and that special exercises shall be held so that the record of heroism shall be preserved and that the names of those who pledged their all for patriotism and freedom shall not perish or be forgotten.

HEROES' DAY PROCLAMATION

My dear BRETHREN—Sunday, September 29th, has been officially designated as the day on which we shall revere and honor in our churches the memory of the gallant soldiers of our State who have gone out from our homes and given their lives in the cause of liberty and "peace with justice."

Their names are written on the roll of immortal fame, and, in commemoration of this, the day will be known as "Heroes' Day." As it surely is our desire, so will it be our privilege, with all our countrymen, to observe this occasion in a manner which shall express our supreme realization of the debt we owe to, and our affection and admiration for, those who have thus finished their course after having fought the good fight and kept the everlasting faith of the fathers of this Republic.

Our dear ones gone have made the supreme sacrifice for God and humanity. It is granted us to catch something of the spirit which animated and sustained them, in our loving observance of this occasion; and I know that the pews of our churches will be filled with our people, appropriate services rendered in our churches and pertinent messages delivered from our pulpits.

"Deep calls to Deep." Our response will be spontaneous, individual and universal.

Affectionately yours,
JOHN G. MURRAY,
Baltimore, September 20.

HEROES' DAY.

DEAR BRETHREN:

Sunday, September 29th, has been set apart as a day of memorial to the soldiers of Maryland who have given up their lives fighting for the cause of Liberty and Justice.

The war has made many changes amongst us. We have been called upon to make many sacrifices, but these brave young men have made the greatest of all, and there is no tribute we could pay which would be in any sense adequate to manifest our gratitude to those heroic spirits.

We can, however, at least gather together, and in some measure express to our State and Nation how deeply we feel our losses, and how sincerely we regard our sense of obligation. Let us exemplify both by action and words that the memory of their heroism is always with us, and above all let us go upon record that we are standing solidly behind those who are now fighting, and that these boys who have already passed to the beyond have not died in vain. Were it necessary I would say more, but I cannot think that any of our people would need further urging to make this day memorable.

CHICKEN LUNGS ARE SERVED BY WORLD-FAMOUS CHEF

Toronto.—Because of the close cooperation in food saving between the United States and Canada, John Bowman, chief of the Hotel Division of the U. S. Food Administration, sent a famous chef here to demonstrate his thrift menus. It is said he can almost make an entree of a pig's squeal; certain it is that Leon Deroche started visitors at the Canadian National Exhibition with his culinary use of such oddments as ducks' feet and chicken's livers. A number of newspaper women lunched on such titbits—and they are all still on the job.

When one of them inquired what he thought of the cooking, he shrugged his Gallic shoulders and said, "They teach the girls too much about cakes and pastry and not enough of economy and the study of foods and the reason they do things."

Asked why he soaked the blood out of meat and yet gave recipes of dishes made with that of poultry or pigs, Chef Leony said the latter was nutritious, the other was too coarse.

Here is the "goose blood with onions," so beloved in Central France: In killing the goose, receive the blood in a clean bowl, strain it and let it coagulate. Fry onions, cut in small slices, in butter; when they are well done add the goose blood, already cut in small pieces. Let cook with the onions for four or five minutes; add fresh parsley and season well.

It looks as if National need was going to cause reform in American cooking methods. One of the first changes will be to eliminate the slipshod wastefulness which is almost universal on this side of the Atlantic. If housewives will imitate to the best of their ability the famous chef's utilization of odds and ends, the garbage pail will certainly be in for a hard winter.

HOOVER POINTS TO NEW GOALS.

After one victory a general does not rest on his laurels but looks around to see what his next objective must be. Similarly Herbert Hoover, commander-in-chief of the Allied Food Army, having successfully triumphed over one year's obstacles has calculated that successes must be won next year, and he tells his discovery to the American people whose place is in the forefront of the Food Fight. The shipping problem has not been so far soved that any considerable help can yet be expected from far off lands such as India and Australia where vast but immovable wheat reserves are piling up.

The total food that must be imported by the Allies for human consumption in the year beginning September 1st, Mr. Hoover reports is in round numbers as follows:

Fats (pork products, vegetable oils), 4,000,000,000 pounds.
Sugar, 1,500,000 tons.
Beef products for civilian consumption, 900,000,000 pounds.
In addition to this, beef must be imported for army needs and oats for army horses.

If this program is fulfilled there will be no need for drastic rationing of their food as during last year except in beef and sugar. The world shortage in these two commodities makes it hopeless to satisfy their whole need. On the other hand this program provides an ample supply of bread and fats, without the rationing of either, and together with their own production gives sufficient supply. The restrictions on the consumption of pork products in Allied countries have already been removed and bread will be in full supply by September 1st, and of better quality than last year, and it has been pretty bad in France the last few months.

Patronize the fruit vender instead of the candy man.

Can all you can. This releases commercially canned goods for our soldiers and sailors.

MAKE THE FAIR PRICE LIST AN ALWAYS OF YOUR POCKET BOOK.

The man who won't take the trouble to check up what he pays for food products with the Fair Price List is the one who suffers. But seldom does he suffer in silence. Instead he chatters at random about "protesting" instead of helping the Food Administration get down to brass tacks and straighten things out. All instances of extortion should be reported to headquarters so that the "sheep" may be publicly separated from the "goats."

BAKED WINTER SQUASH.

(Official recipe.)
Cut in pieces two inches square, remove seeds and string portion, place in a dripping pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and allow each square one-half teaspoonful of molasses or sorghum and one-half teaspoonful of melted butter or butter substitute. Bake 50 minutes or until soft. In a moderate oven, keeping covered the first half-hour of cooking. Serve in the shell.

HOW TO SALT VEGETABLES.

The U. S. Food Administration is urging that vegetables be kept by the "salting" method. Here is the way to handle green tomatoes:
Choose well developed green tomatoes, wash them, pack them in a container, cover them with a ten per cent brine, place a layer of oard leaves on the top and weight the tomatoes down under the brine. Green tomatoes similarly prepared and packed in salt vinegar solution the same as that used for peppers are good for salads and relishes.

Cottonseed oil or melted paraffine poured over the surface of the brine to form a layer sufficiently thick to make a seal will prevent the growth of mold, and aid in checking rapid evaporation of the liquid. The surface of the brine should not be covered, however, until a bubbling has ceased, which may be a week after the vegetables are packed. The container should be stored in a cool place and examined once or twice a week for several weeks.

4,800,000 ARMY BY JULY

Intention To Call 2,700,000 In Nine Months.

Washington, D. C., Wednesday.—An army of 4,800,000 by next July after all deductions have been made for casualties and rejections is what the enlarged American military programme calls for. General March explained this to the House Appropriations Committee to-day in discussing the new seven billion dollar army estimates.

There are now about 3,200,000 men under arms, General March said, and the intention is to call 2,700,000 of the new draft registrants to the colors between now and July.

General March said that cash appropriations for the whole $7,000,000,000 would be necessary as practically all of the additional money would be expended in the next year.

Provost Marshal Crowder explained the need of $23,617,000 for classification and other work due to extension of the draft.

General Crowder estimated that half of the 2,700,000 men to be called in the next year will be obtained from registrants of nineteen to twenty years and thirty-two to thirty-six years. General Crowder informed the committee regarding the monthly call of men into the army, but the quotas were withheld from the record for military reasons.

PLANT TREES.

The State Forest Nursery, at College Park, on the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard, has been distributing trees for forest and roadside planting to land owners, in the State at cost, for the past four years.

The fall planting season is now on, and the stock available at the State Forest Nursery, is larger, and of a greater variety than ever before. There are small trees for forest planting, as low as $4.00 per thousand, or less than half a cent each, and large trees for roadside planting, for 15 to 40 cents each. The varieties include among evergreens; white pine, loblolly pine, Scotch pine, and Norway spruce. Among the hard woods are red oak, walnut, elm, ash, tulip poplar, locust and box elder.

This nursery has been the means of enabling people of the State to plant forests, and to beautify roadsides with state grown stock, at small cost.

The State Board of Forestry, 532 North Howard Street, Baltimore, will furnish nursery lists, upon application, and is prepared to assist any Maryland land owner in handling his planting, or woodland problems.

I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial." BLACK AND WHITE AND RED CURRANTS.

Currants are a favorite fruit with nearly everybody. The red currant is most commonly used for jellies, although many use the combination of red and white, making a light colored jelly. Currant juice is so very delicious and the seeds often quite objectionable, so that the juice is used in combination with orange, cherry and other fruits to make a most dainty conserve.

The black currant is not as common as it once was, but makes a most delicious jam for those who are sufficiently old-fashioned not to have forgotten grandmother's garden where the dear old black currants were always found.

The delicious bar le duc currants may be prepared at home, using the large cherry currants, carefully removing the seeds with a large needle.

Cook the seeded currants very carefully and stir into glasses of jelly. Put away in a cool, dry place for winter use. This conserve being very rich, is used only in small quantities as a garnish.

For jelly making currants as well as other fruit should not be too ripe, nor picked after a heavy rain. Pick over the currants but do not remove the stems. Wash and drain and mash in a preserving kettle with a wooden potato masher, adding more until there is enough to cook in the receptacle. Cook until the currants have a white appearance, strain through a colander, or put into a jelly bag at once. Measure the juice and boil five minutes, then add an equal measure of heated sugar unless one wishes a sour jelly. Boil three minutes. Try a little in a cold saucer; if a thin skin forms, pour at once into the glasses. Jelly should be firm enough to keep its shape when turned from the glass, clear, of good flavor, and when cut leave sharp edges. Store in a cool, dry place for winter.

Red currant and red raspberry makes a most deliciously flavored jelly.

RIGHT PLAN FOR MARKETING

Better Understanding Between Farmer and Commission Merchant is Mutually Beneficial.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Teamwork between the farmer and his agent, the commission merchant, will clear up many a cloud of misunderstanding that frequently results in needless losses for which the middleman is held responsible.

While many striking cases have proven that too often there have been betrayals of trust on the part of city dealers to whom farm products have been consigned, it is doubtful if it could be demonstrated that all the shortcomings of the commission business as now conducted are the fault of the merchant. Marketing farm products through the commission house is a partnership affair, and no partnership can be a complete success unless each partner does his best and is willing to make it possible for the other to work to best advantage.

Too often the commission man is used as a last resort and products undesirable on the home market, either because of their low grade or because of a weak market, are dumped on the city market.

For those who contemplate the use of commission men as marketing agents the following suggestions are offered:

1. Know your agent. Select one who has a reputation backed by experience, an advantageous location and competent help. A personal visit will help the farmer in deciding these points.
2. Know your market. From your carefully selected agent learn the needs of the market, most desirable varieties to raise, proper containers in which to pack a ship, style of pack most desired, the use of labels or brands, proper amounts and time of shipment, and local preferences.
3. Make regular shipments. Keep your city agent regularly supplied with what his trade will take, thereby helping him to stabilize the business in which you are both concerned.
4. Keep each other informed. Successful shippers make frequent use of the telegraph or long-distance telephone to keep agents posted as to changes in shipments. The agent should also keep the shipper informed as to any changes in requirements of the market.
5. Avoid frequent changes in agents. While it may be wise under certain conditions to check one agent by the sales of another, the most successful consigner is the one who selects an agent with great care and then sticks to him, co-operating in every possible way and carefully scrutinizing all settlements. The honest agent is glad to do his part in such teamwork and welcomes the most exacting examination of his methods.

TWO BOYS ARRESTED

And Held in Jail Over Night—Justice Turner Delivers Lecture To Parents And Boys.

Two boys were found in the warehouse of the Farmers & Planters Co., supposedly looking for money last Monday night. Officer Williams detected the lads carrying a flashlight about, and arrested them locking them up in jail over night.

In the morning they were arranged before Justice Turner, but the officers of the Farmers & Planters Co., feeling sorry for the families of the two boys, refused to press the case.

Judge Turner took occasion to deliver a lecture to the children and parents in which he said:

"As this is the first offense of these two boys, I propose to parole them in the care of their parents, with the injunction that the first time these boys are caught on the streets after nine o'clock at night, the officer will be authorized to arrest the officer will be authorized to arrest a second hearing, and if they are so unfortunate as to be caught out again after nine o'clock, I shall give them the full penalty of the law."

Addressing the parents, Judge Turner said:

"It is surprising that parents will allow boys of this age to be out on the streets as late as 12 o'clock at night, without knowing their whereabouts, and I want to say to you that I consider such discipline very poor home training, and I warn you that if you expect these boys to become useful citizens, you should exercise your right as parents to a better discipline of their behavior. Most often, young crooks are led astray because of the lack of discipline and pleasant home surroundings, and in these cases, the parents are to blame for the downfall of their children, and I want you to take this warning from me to pay more attention to the raising of your boys and see that they are trained to be useful and honest youth and citizens. I also hope that other parents who allow their boys to run the streets at night, will also stop for a moment and think what they are doing, and consider that their boys are liable to be caught as young thieves just the same as these poor unfortunate children have been caught, and that those who have the custody of children should know their whereabouts after dark, keep them home, to study their lessons, rather than letting them roam the streets, smoking cigarettes and getting into all kinds of devilry."
