SELECT READING.
SOLOMON SWALLOW.
"Rule a wife and have a wife."
Solomon was a bachelor, and a rusty one too, but nevertheless he had made up his mind to one thing, that he was the only man living who had acquired any knowledge of the art of taking care of a wife.

"All married men are dolts," was Solomon's constant assertion.—"There, for instance, is my neighbor, Tom Tangible; his wife makes a sort of three-legged stool of him; she moves him in one corner, and then in another, and sits on him, and walks on him and looks on him as if he was nobody in the house, while he, poor man, takes it as easy as though it was the most natural thing in the world. Now that I write a series of matrimonial articles, and if Mrs. T. didn't abide by them, I'd submit her to the whole-some discipline of bread and water and a padlock; and might, perhaps, brighten her ideas concerning her conjugal duties by the application of a good cowhide. And there, again, are Evert Easy, Dick Snooks; and a host more of them in the same condition, but I—I'm the boy that will set them all right, if they only follow my example after I have condescended to endow some fortunate female with the legal claim to the title of Mrs. Swallow."

Brave Solomon Swallow! "Well, Solomon," said a neighbor to him one morning, "as you are always boasting of your skill in managing a wife, how come it that you are not married?"

"Why, because I have not perfected my system. You poked your head in the nose without making any preparation; and hence Mrs. Evert makes what she likes of you. But I go to work logically. I begin by studying the erudite works of Zinggrabson on the 'Philosophy of Woman' holding her tongue. I then read several treatises on 'the effect of bread and water discipline in making good wives.' Shakespeare's 'Taming the Shrew,' furnishes me a few excellent practical lessons. And now I am generalizing all the systems into one, which will carry the way in all future generations, and convert 'the plague of matrimony' into a blessing. In the course of a year or so," added Solomon, "My Rules for the Regulation of Women, (I intend to publish it) will be completed and then I shall take me a wife."

And Solomon was as good as his word, for at the age of thirty-five, feeling himself prepared to give battle to any woman in or out of the land of Amazons, he got married. At this important period Solomon was a puffy comfortable looking little fellow as you'd meet in a day's walk, for albeit the crown of his head never stood full five feet from the heels of his boots, he was of proportion that would have done honor to an alderman or even a Lord Mayor; and his gait, especially when walking with anything in the likeness of a woman, was as pompous as a Sultan's, while at such times his countenance always assumed an expression that could not have brooked the approach of female familiarity.

Now Solomon had the forbearance to interiere with his lady, or her things and doing on the night of the wedding, nor is it recorded that he had brought either; but about six o'clock next morning he softly insinuated his sleeping partner that it was time to get up.

"Breakfast and toast," exclaimed Swallow, "why, what do you say, my dear—I mean, madame, I began my system."

"And won't you get up, too?" "Yes, when breakfast is ready and my stockings aired."

Mrs. Swallow was about to reply, but she checked herself, as she was ashamed to say much to him on so short an acquaintance; but though in the present instance she did precisely as she was bid, she resolved in her heart that it was the last time she would get up at six in the morning to prepare breakfast.

At eight o'clock everything being ready, Mrs. Swallow called Mr. Swallow.

"Breakfast is ready for you, Mr. Swallow."

"Is the toast made?" "Yes."

"Not burned?" "No."

"Are my stockings aired?" "Yes."

"You'll do," quoth Mr. Swallow, and to breakfast he went, having received the services of the bushing Mrs. Swallow to assist him in dressing.

"TRUTH WITHOUT FEAR."

MARYLAND, SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1874.

The lady whom Solomon had chosen for his worse half, was apparently a lamb like creature, so that the chances were very fair that she would not only be a tractable wife, but that Solomon principal could require no help from his system to make her so.

Now Solomon had the forbearance to interiere with his lady, or her things and doing on the night of the wedding, nor is it recorded that he had brought either; but about six o'clock next morning he softly insinuated his sleeping partner that it was time to get up.

"Breakfast and toast," exclaimed Swallow, "why, what do you say, my dear—I mean, madame, I began my system."

"And won't you get up, too?" "Yes, when breakfast is ready and my stockings aired."

Mrs. Swallow was about to reply, but she checked herself, as she was ashamed to say much to him on so short an acquaintance; but though in the present instance she did precisely as she was bid, she resolved in her heart that it was the last time she would get up at six in the morning to prepare breakfast.

At eight o'clock everything being ready, Mrs. Swallow called Mr. Swallow.

"Breakfast is ready for you, Mr. Swallow."

"Is the toast made?" "Yes."

"Not burned?" "No."

"Are my stockings aired?" "Yes."

"You'll do," quoth Mr. Swallow, and to breakfast he went, having received the services of the bushing Mrs. Swallow to assist him in dressing.

The breakfast, however, did not turn out to be the thing it had been cracked up. The toast was done a little too much, and the tea wasn't done quite enough; the slop bowl was at the wrong end of the table, and there were several crumbs on the carpet.

"The servant hasn't been here this morning," observed Mrs. Swallow.

"Servant?" returned Solomon, "I discharged her yesterday. You don't think I can afford to keep servants and a wife too?"

The lady again was poised, and she said nothing, but the day wore to its close before she could bring herself to the belief that Mr. Swallow had actually made use of the words servant and wife in the same sentence.

The next morning at six o'clock, Mr. Swallow again informed his wife that it was time to get up, coupling the remark with the suggestion that in the future she must save him the trouble of reminding her of so necessary a duty.

Mrs. Swallow, however, benefited nothing by this soft insinuation; for at the moment she either was, or pretended to be, fast locked in the arms of Morpheus.

"Don't you hear, Mrs. Swallow!" quoth Solomon.

But alas! a slight consciousness was the only response from Mrs. Swallow.

Now this was a ticklish point with Solomon, but he was prepared for it. "What says my system on this head?" said he to himself musingly. "It says that a lazy wife who lies abed in the morning may be very properly reminded of her duty by the judicious application of a coercion pin." And this magnificent idea had scarcely crossed the threshold of his brain, than he inserted the point of a huge pin in the right arm of the sleeper. As might be expected the intended effect instantly followed the cause, for the astonished Mrs. Swallow sprang from the bed as through she had been thrown from it by an earthquake! But alas! her agility was too strikingly manifested, for she not only annihilated poor Solomon in rolling over him, but she dashed his patent lever to the wall, and broke the dial into a thousand pieces.

"What a dreadful reality," shouted Mr. Swallow, contemplating the fragile ruins of his demolished bed piece.

Here we pass over the interval between this occurrence and the time when the happy pair in question were seated at breakfast.

"Now, Mrs. Swallow," said Solomon, "seeing that I can't awaken to call you up in the morning, or eat burned toast or drink raw tea, etc., it is time I should begin to instruct you in your duties."

"And what are those, Mr. Swallow?" "Be silent, madame, if you please; not to talk, but listen, is one of the most important of them."

ADVERTISER.

MARYLAND, SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1874.

ow had torn every one of his linen shirts (that on his back excepted), into pieces to make a rope to let herself down from the window; nor was this all, for upon further examination, he discovered that she had also thrown a variety of chair cushions, bed linen, &c., into the dirty yard to make her descent safe.

O, chop fallen Solomon Swallow! The archives of the Swallow family are silent as to the remaining occurrences of that eventful day, but on the very next morning, about seven o'clock, Mr. Swallow popped his head from under the blanket and said, "Mrs. Swallow, dear isn't it time to get up?"

"Yes," returned the lady, "and you may call me when you have lit the fire and put on the kettle."

Poor Solomon! There was no alternative. So he set about the work with an alacrity which showed that he had the terror of a broken head and demolished body linen running strongly in his memory. In short, Solomon was a conquered man. That he had to prepare breakfast, sweep the room, etc. Then next, his assistance was required in the rubbing of the furniture, and making of beds, and before the end of the week he was initiated into the mystery of washing towels.

Degenerate Solomon Swallow! Nay, in after times, when the Swallows begin to gather about him, it is whispered that his better half used to employ him at yet more deeply conjugal offices.

About five years after the celebration of his nuptials, a friend called to see him.

"You must go with me to the theatre, Mr. Swallow," said the friend.

"He shan't," said Mrs. Swallow.

"He must," said the friend, "and so must you."

"I may, but he can't," replied the dame, "for he must stop home with the children."

And Mrs. Swallow did go to the play, and Solomon stopped at home.

O, hen-pecked Solomon Swallow! The moral—Served him right.

A PROMISING YOUTH.
A Sacramento gentleman lately saw a little boy leaning against a post in the eastern portion of the city, puffing energetically at a full-grown cigar, and succeeding to draw from it quite a volume of smoke. He felt such an evident interest in the job he had undertaken, that the citizen concluded to interview him, and accordingly, drawing a cigar from his pocket, went up and asked for a light. The boy acceded to the request with an assumption of 'manly courtesy, which he probably studied carefully, and seem to feel gratified at attracting attention. Then ensued the following conversation:

"Well, young man, where do you buy your cigars?"

"I buy 'em down town; pay ten cents apiece for 'em."

"Do you buy many at a time?"

"No, not many; I buy one at a time most oftenest."

"Does your father know you smoke?"

"Oh yes."

"How old are you?"

"Six years."

"And how long since you learned to smoke?"

"About five years, I guess."

"I say, old fellow, what are your politics?" asked a witty Aberdeen man quizzing another.

"Conservative—my father was conservative," he replied.

A new definition—A nun is now set down as an organized old maid.

A little boy was asked about the story of Joseph, and if he knew what wrong his brethren done in disposing of him, when he replied, "I suppose they sold him too cheap."

A greenhorn sat a long time very attentively musing upon a cane-bottom chair. At length he said, "I wonder what fellow took the trouble to find all them air holes and put straws around 'em."

A Virginia Sheriff asked a murderer if he wanted to make a speech on the gallows, and the man replied:—"Guess not. It looks like rain, and I don't want to get wet; go on with the hanging."

An interesting little boy, timid when left alone in a dark room, was overheard recently by his mother to say in his loneliness, "Oh, Lord, don't let any one hurt me, and I'll go to church next Sunday, and give you some money."

"What a temper that boy has!" exclaimed a mother to her husband. "I don't see where he got it; not from me, I'm sure."

"No, my dear," replied the meek husband; "he didn't get it from you, for I'm sure you've never lost any."

One of the peculiarities of the colored people down South is said to be the singular alacrity with which they go to law. Suits involving amounts ranging from two dollars downward are numerous, and slender cases, based on the most trivial provocation, are equally plentiful.

An exchange says that at a revival in Jamestown a short time ago, one of the brethren got the "power" and made a very impressive prayer, a part of which was the following: "Oh, Lord, I feel like giving every poor man in this place a barrel of flour, a barrel of pork, a barrel of salt, and a barrel of pepper—oh, but that's too much pepper!"

A popular German song just now runs as follows: "Oh, woman, in our hours of ease, you know we'll do what'er you please. We'll promise to renounce the sin of Bourbon, brandy, rum and gin; and go so far as to refrain (except when tempted) from champagne; but have some mercy, do, my dear, and leave, oh! leave us larger beer!"

A modest young husband sent the following message over the wires to a friend the other day: "See ninth chapter of Isaiah, sixth verse." The dusty old Bible was hauled down in an instant, and the above chapter and verse were hunted out and found to explain all. The verse reads, "For unto us a child is born—unto us a son is given."

A neat turn to a sermon often produces a more lasting effect than either logic or theology. Instance this: "My brethren, a man cannot afford to lose his soul. He's got but one and can't get another. If a man loses his horse he can get another; if he loses his wife he can get another; if he loses his child he can get another; but if he loses his soul—good by, John."

The husband of Mrs. Whipple, the prominent temperance woman had a narrow escape from a most ludicrous accident. He had been to one of the neighbors to borrow some bread, and was going up the stoop of his house on his return, when a ten-penny nail used to fasten his pants and suspenders together gave way, and he had but just time to spring through the door as the pants came down.

There is nothing a woman is more deeply concerned in than her white-washing, or nothing she is so conscientious about as her own efforts in that line, if it does not "streak." To keep it from "streaking" is her highest ambition and when she has succeeded, every woman within a mile is dragged in to see it, and her unfortunate husband is forced to admire it until he warts his neck. She has a natural desire to see her husband white-wash. When she has a job of it on hand she invariably proffers to him some expression of doubt in his ability to do it.

"Well, grandmother, I've come it over the hump this time," said a mischievous boy. "I threw them your gold beads, one by one; and they don't they were coral, and gobbled them down quick."

If a man dreams the devil is after him it is a sure sign he had bet or settle his subscription bill.

TRUTH WITHOUT FEAR.

POETRY. FORTUNE.

Trust not Fortune. She will be Everything but true to thee; False and fickle all her life;

Next morning, at breakfast, the young wife was quite prepared to expect the way might be easier for the establishment of peace between them.

ALICE felt more than ever grieved, and could not settle herself about her usual employments.

SELECT READING. TOO LATE.

"What do you want?" "I did want to see my husband, but I beg pardon, for I perceive he is not here!"

The question was curt, rude, rough even; and the reply impetuous, cuttingly sarcastic, and with a hot dash of anger in its tones.

When evening arrived, and Mr. Mallard came home to dinner, Alice met him as usual with an affectionate greeting, and put up her lips for the customary kiss.

It certainly was an unpleasant and unfortunate mood the merchant was in that evening.

It was in this mood, his brows knitted with perplexity, that his girl-wife came upon him in the quiet library, whether he had retired after dinner, and stealing softly up behind him, had playfully blinded his eyes with one of her white hands.

In an instant the quick, rough question, that spoke of annoyance, burst from his lips; and in an instant more the white hand was snatched away, the little graceful head tossed high, and the cutting sarcastic answer was flung back.

In a few moments more the merchant was left alone, his handsomely shaped head, covered with thick, iron grey locks, bent again over his books, but with a compression of his lips and glitter in his eye seldom saw there; while the girl-wife was sitting in the parlor, quiet as a statue, but with the same high color and excited manner with which she had left the library.

For some minutes Alice Mallard sat thus, perfectly motionless, looking straight before her; then her mind softened—a groined, wounded look crept over her eyes; her shut lips relaxed and quivered with feeling, and she burst into tears and sobbed as though her very heart would break.

"I am sorry I spoke so," she said, confessing her fault to herself with as much earnestness as though her husband was a listener.

"I will go and apologize," and, rising, she left the room, and walked through the hall to the library. But, laying her hand on the knob of the door she was surprised to find it fastened. The key was turned.

"Unkind!" she said now, the red spots deepening again on the cheek; and noiselessly as she had come, she returned to the parlor.

Two hours crept away; lonesome enough felt the solitary Alice, striving to pass the time with her work, upon which now and then, a tear dropped silently.

For an instant, the ice-flow, driven into the gulf-stream feeling, checked its tropic current; then it swept on again, but not so warm as before.

"I am unhappy because I have suffered—am suffering. I wish a reconciliation. You know, William—those words spoken in the library the other night. I was sorry the very minute afterwards."

"And I was sorry also, Mrs. Mallard. Any exhibition of impetuosity—temper, I might say—disgraces me. I think any wife ought to know that and avoid such occasion. But I forgive you."

the hall. But they did not pause at the parlor, though the door was partly ajar; they passed on, and he ascended the staircase to their chamber.

Mr. Mallard said this as loftily as though he were a judge pronouncing sentence—as though he himself, were not the cause of it all.

Mr. Mallard sat for perhaps a half-hour ere he left the parlor, buried in a reverie.

"I intended to let her suffer, and I intend that she shall suffer more. It is not a man's place to yield. A wife's spirit should be broken to her husband's. When I think she is sufficiently punished, I shall take her to my heart again."

And the poor girl above was taking her first lesson in that bitterest knowledge that ever comes to a woman's heart—the realization that she is treated unfairly and unkindly.

Days, and weeks, and months followed that first rupture between William Mallard and his wife; and in society as happy as ever, yet Alice felt that the gulf between them had never been bridged.

The truth was, his imperious will, pampered by that first entire submission on the part of his wife, had grown with what it fed upon until it overshadowed his whole nature.

Situated as she was now, Alice grew daily more unhappy. Week after week, month after month went by and she hungered after the word of love that never came.

"It was late when Mr. Mallard returned, and he did not expect to find the watcher who sat in the parlor; and a little surprise was in his glance when he entered, but he made no comment.

"It is after twelve, I know, William—but I sat up for you. The truth is, I wanted to speak to you about—"

There was but little encouragement in the cool monosyllable that Mr. Mallard uttered—and the eyes upon which his wife were turned appealingly held no glance of tenderness to lure her on the step that was now growing painful to her, although he very well knew what was going on in her mind.

He had many excellent traits; and he had not really felt comfortable himself since that affair in the library; but he had a strong passionate nature and an iron will that had never been subdued; and, like many of his proud and imperious type, he would neither bend to acknowledge himself in error to encourage, by any tenderness of manner, his wife's.

Meanwhile Alice—affectionate and sensitive, with her whole heart in her eyes, and those eyes eagerly beseeching his stood near him, whose she had advanced as she spoke. At first, it had been easy for her to utter those words; but that one unimpassioned monosyllable checked further utterance and froze her lips.

"What makes you unhappy, Mrs. Mallard?" Yes, that man actually asked this question—he, who knew just how that noble, sensitive, affectionate girl was suffering. Not an embrace, no opening of his arms to draw her to his breast—no kiss on the quivering lips, no tremor in his own tones, but, instead that impassive question:

"What makes you unhappy, Mrs. Mallard?" For an instant, the ice-flow, driven into the gulf-stream feeling, checked its tropic current; then it swept on again, but not so warm as before.

"Hester, do you think William Mallard makes Alice happy?"

"Certainly—why not, Horace? What a question! No one could fail to see how attentive he is, and I wonder such a thought could enter your mind."

"Good Hester's answer was quickly rendered; but a line that corrugated her own brows betrayed what she would not allow her lips to utter, even to her brother."

"They say that twins have a magnetic sympathy for their mates. I seem to feel that Alice is not so light-hearted as when she left us. Nineteen to-morrow, and she looks five years older than when she left us, a year and a-half ago. If Mallard don't make her happy, I shall have him!"

"Why, Horace, how strangely you do talk!" persisted Hester. "Of course, she wouldn't seem so usual—Mother's death you know—"

"Horace's own deep hazel eyes filled. The boy had a tender, womanly heart. It may be my fancy only. I hope so, Hester!"

After their return home, Mr. Mallard's mien softened towards his wife. He could not see her, going about in her mourning, with her pale, sad face, and quiet ways, without relaxing from his old manner.

Days, and weeks, and months followed that first rupture between William Mallard and his wife; and in society as happy as ever, yet Alice felt that the gulf between them had never been bridged.

POSTPONEMENT!

FIFTH AND LAST GIFT CONCERT IN AID OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY. DAY FIXED AND A FULL DRAWING ASSURED

Monday, 30th November, 1874.

LAST CHANCE FOR AN EASY FORTUNE!

A postponement of the Fifth Concert of Public Library of Kentucky has been so generally anticipated, and it is so manifestly for the interest of all concerned, that it must meet the approval of all. The day is now absolutely fixed and there will be no variation from the programme now announced. A sufficient number of tickets had been sold to have enabled us to have had a large drawing on the 31st July, but a short postponement was considered preferable to a partial drawing. Let it be borne in mind that

THE FIFTH GIFT CONCERT IS THE LAST WHICH WILL EVER BE GIVEN UNDER THIS CHARTER AND BY THE PRESENT MANAGEMENT.

That it will positively and unequivocally take place as announced on Monday, 30th November, that the music will be the best the country affords, and that

AGRICULTURAL.

From the American Farmer. WORK FOR THE MONTH—AUGUST.

With the incoming of this month there is some respite to the farmer from the severer toil in the heat of summer.

PLOWING FOR WHEAT.—As soon as possible this work ought to be done, and the more thoroughly the soil is pulverized the better will be its yield.

GRAPE VINE.—Some of the best farmers of this State endeavor to get this crop in the latter part of this month.

BUCKWHEAT may still be sown and escape early frost, and for a green manure up to the middle of the month will do so well.

TURNIPS may be sown at any time this month. The strap leaf, white or purple top, is the general favorite here.

TIMOTHY MEADOWS.—These of our readers who intend setting out this month should make up their minds to the most liberal treatment.

LATE POTATOES ought to be kept clean, and the soil light. At the last working, if a mixture of salt and plaster (one bushel of each to the acre) is sown over them it will pay for the trouble.

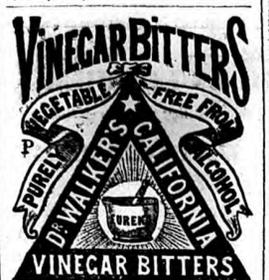

ROOT CROPS.—Sugar Beets, Mangels and Ruta Bagas, ought to be frequently worked and thoroughly thinned out.

DRAINING AND DITCHING.—The present month is a good time for attending to this very important work.

MAKING MANURE AND COMPOSTS.—The hot sun aids very much in the fermentation of the manure piles and compost heaps.

TOOTHACHE DROPS.—One ounce alcohol, two drachms cayenne, one ounce kelpene oil, let it stand twenty-four hours after mixing.

GEO. W. HUGHES, COMMISSION DEALER IN FRUIT BUTTER, FISH AND EGGS, AND POULTRY PRODUCE, OYSTERS.

Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a pure vegetable preparation, made chiefly of the native herbs found on the low ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful and invigorating tonic.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Stomach, Constipation, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation, etc.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Painters, Grinders and Miners, who advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the bowels.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

APPLETON'S AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with 80,000 Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of The New American Cyclopaedia was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and the discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucidity and force to the explanations in the text.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming, in fact, a new Cyclopaedia, with the same plan and compass as the former, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Salisbury, August 24, 1874. Mr. Editor: We had a fine drive down to Quantico camp Sunday. The roads were in excellent condition, the dust being laid by the rain of the previous day.

At the camp we were much gratified to find such a small number of paupers, for it speaks well for the country, they all seemed to be as contented as possible under the trying circumstances in which they are placed.

Mishler's Herb Bitters is not a beverage but a strictly medicinal preparation, more thoroughly adapted to the wants of the general public than any other in the market.

At the season of the year, when Diarrhoea, Colic, Cholera, and kindred diseases are being excited by eating unripe fruits, immoderate indulgence in cold drinks, etc., are prevalent, a certain, speedy and effectual remedy will be found in Mishler's Herb Bitters.

We regret to learn that our subscribers have considerable difficulty in getting their paper at the Post Office. Post Masters are careless and allow persons to take out papers belonging to our subscribers. We have been informed of several instances of this kind and shall be compelled to look after the matter in a more substantial manner if it is not attended to and remedied at once. We make it a point to send the paper to every subscriber at each post office, so that if the bundle reaches them, it contains a paper for each subscriber at that P. O.

Mr. John D. Johnson yesterday showed us a beet raised by his brother Mr. Elijah Johnson, which weighed six pounds. Mr. J. thinks this is hard to beat. We think otherwise and can readily show him several, many times as big. They are of the genus known as the "dead beat."

The weather has been remarkably cool for some days past, for the month of August, and the late corn will not be so good in consequence, still a fine crop will reward the farmer for his toil in 1874. Wisconsin will raise a larger crop than she has done for many years past. Farmers are preparing their fallow ground for wheat seeding, and we hope their labors will be rewarded by an abundant harvest the coming year.

Sydney Morris, for letting his mule stand on the sidewalk was yesterday fined fifty cents by bailiff Taylor. Morris at first swore that he would not pay the fine, but on the bailiff starting to get a writ for his arrest he backed squarely down and forked over the needful. He talked big about licking the bailiff, but if he has any regard for his physiognomy he will let Taylor alone.

NOTICE.—Don't forget that the officers of Registration will set in the several election districts on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday the 7th, 8th, and 9th days of September for the purpose of Registering the voters of Wicomico county. F. C. Todd will sit at his store in Salisbury for the 9th district. Joshua Johnson, will sit at his office, opposite the Post office in Salisbury, for the 5th district or Parsons, see advertisement in another column for all the districts, and tell your neighbors to go forward and be registered.

THAT STRANGE ANIMAL.—It seems that the mysterious animal seen some time since in Hungry Neck, Somerset county, mentioned in this paper, is still at large, and that the dog caught and supposed to be the mysterious animal, proved not to be it, as it has been seen again, and seems to be larger than in early spring.—Some think it is a fawn. We are unable to conjecture what it is, unless we could see it.

Sunday a gay and festive crew from Baltimore while under the influence of the ardent fell from the second story window of Wilson's Hotel, in Crisfield, striking fairly on the sloping side of a bed of oyster shells, from whence he rolled beneath the briny waves. When he recovered his prescient of mind he was standing well under the wharf, with the water up to his shoulders. A light was brought to the window he had fallen from, and guided by it the soon reached terra firma. He says his first impression was, that he was in h—l. According to the orthodox doctrine, he will not find water in such abundance there.

Wednesday night John W. White and Miss Annie S. Brumley, having "got up" a sufficient number of nights concluded to hitch up and in future travel life's journey in double harness. This resolve was executed and the happy pair repaired to their new home in that part of the town known as California. It is a trait of the good little boys of this community to show their appreciation of the marriage contract by giving all who indulge their propensities in that line a rousing serenade of the Calhounian order. John could not be slighted, and if noise can be taken as a criterion of success, the pair should feel satisfied. After the serenade was over, the fellows concluded to have some fun, and going to the residence of Captain Elish Hitchens asked him to be one of the number. He consented, and in company with Bud Crew, James Huston, George Cantwell and George Wilson came to town. Here their local opinion tendencies got the better of them, and they concluded to indulge in a gladiatorial exhibition. First Hitchens and Cantwell wrestled. First fall for Cantwell. In the second round Cantwell went to earth, and Eihui, wishing to make the sport interesting to the lookers on, proceeded to freelo the face. At the present time Cantwell has more lip than any man in town. Crew interferred to restore peace, and got his countenance bruised as a consequence. Wilson attempted the same thing, and the marks on his face make him look as if he were just out of the small pox hospital. Huston, being busy looking for the comet, could not interfere either way. Finally outsiders came up and put a stop to the show.

Thursday morning, concluded to see what the fun should be rated as.—Eihui was tried on three separate and distinct cases, viz: assaulting and beating George Cantwell, assaulting Bud Crew, and committing an assault on George Wilson. Evidence was against him and fines and costs amounting to something over thirteen dollars, will probably cause him to remember John White's wedding night.

Moral.—Don't fight.

On Wednesday, the 25th inst., we visited the Parsonsburg campmeeting, where we were permitted to hear a good sermon in the morning, delivered by the Rev. P. H. Rawlins, from a text found in the 7th chapter of Revelations, 18th to the 17th verses inclusive. "What are these," &c. He said:

"The book of Revelations is a mysterious one. Much of it is sealed to human understanding; and all comments on great portions of it will probably fail to arrive at the true meaning. Much may be learned from it, however. Many things to warn and much to encourage."

"The pit of perdition sometimes opened. Again the gates of heaven appear to be left ajar, through which we may look and see what God has in reservation for his people. The text directs our attention to the multitude of the saved and their condition before the throne of God."

H. D. SPENCE.

"The question and answer of the text—'What are these,' &c. A multitude no man can number. Of the tribes of Israel 44,000—a definite number named. But of those gathered out of all nations a multitude no man can number."

"I. All nations are represented. They are gathered from the east and west, north and south, and from all lands. 2nd. All classes—kings and peasants, rich and poor, young and old. 3rd. They came through tribulation. The way of the cross the way to the crown. Temptations and trials sow, &c."

"II. Their purified state and the means of their purification. In white robes, emblematical of pure characters. Sin impure, unbelief, unclean. 3rd. 'Enriched by means of the blood of the Lamb. This the only efficacious means. No name but the name of Jesus by which sinners can be saved."

"III. Their favored position in consequence of their pure condition. 'Before the throne,' &c. 1st. The place of princes and favored friends. 2nd. Engaged in serving God in his temple day and night. Nothing wearisome. No feeble mortality to weary. 3rd. He that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. Jesus says, 'Where I am there ye shall be also.' 4th. Exemption from all earthly ills. 5th. Because of their changed nature. 2nd. Freedom from trials, tribulation, &c. There no painful labor. It will be the delight of the saints to serve God. In heaven alone no sin is found."

"3rd. God shall wipe away all tears. 1st. Tears of sorrow. We have all wept here. I remember my own first deep sorrow. It was years ago in my boyhood. You have had your sorrow and have wept bitter tears. No death in heaven, the great cause of sorrow. 2nd. No tears of joy even—no tears at evidence of our weakness. God will give us the ability to bear the glorious revelations without tears. The joy will be pure."

"V. The perpetuity of their delights—led by Christ, the Lamb, to living water. Old delights shall not fall and new ones continually arising."

LOST !!

No Tuesday, August 25th, in Salisbury, a roll of money, containing $45.90 in $5 and $10s.

The finder will be liberally rewarded by returning the same to me.

GEO. W. MERRICK, Pittsville, Md.

Come one, come all and examine my stock of watches, clocks, jewelry, silver ware and optician goods. For making repairs and keeping good time. I can equal any one in that line. Persons in want of fine pocket watches, clocks or jewelry or wishing repairs of any sort, could do better than call upon A. W. Woodcock, Main St.

That name is quite familiar in town and country still. He only asks the public for trial of his skill.

Repairing watches, and clocks Making them keep time It is allowed by far excels All others in his line.

He begs to call attention To his stock of goods so true Selected from the choicest With accuracy and care.

I wish those in particular who have watches and clocks that cannot be made by any one else, to call on me, as my long experience in watchmaking warrants me success in the most difficult job.
