problem. The drummer entered a conversation with the minister and entertained them amazingly with his brilliant observations on men and affairs. Gradually the top-changed, until at last the talk was of Mr. Talmage and his visit to the city.

"Speaking of the Holy Land," said the graceless commercial man, "I was interested to read in a New York paper that a party of Americans had discovered a huge human skeleton, much from their size and stony, are supposed to be of the Chaldean race, and that the bones were found in a cave which had been used for centuries, which accounts for preservation."

"The reported finding of the clergyman," replied the "Liberal," "is a of it. It certainly is surprising discovery.

"I continued the drummer, "oddly enough, while nearly half the bones were bleached white, the rest were black as ebony."

"Remarkable," ejaculated the circle of on-lookers, "and when they all looked at the drummer suspiciously."

"What is your theory?" he continued.

"You think it possible that bleached bones could be of male and black of female?"

"Possibly," replied the more conservative. "I am not an expert, however, and can't say what is long exposure has on the bone sections."

"And you," persisted the drummer, "are another."

"What is your opinion?" I thought it possible that the white belong to male infants and the black to female, or vice versa? That is the question, and now excites the curiosity of the circle."

"Since then I have had numerous reports that the same number of number of species of these animals in the West Indies, and that the loss of eyes and nasal organs, of the head and neck, in fact, apparently were the same in all the species. In particular, this is a family characteristic, so far as I have been able to find, is not alluded to in any works on the subject."

The same singular ability may be serving in certain species of water ferns, quercus snake. The common water snake, Hydrophis, is said to be "water moccasin," almost invariably finds its way to the water, if not to the water, when its head is cut off.—Louis Republic.

La Fontaine's Opinion of Himself

La Fontaine," said one of the brilliant critics of his faults of the famous writer's time, "is such a fool that he does not know he has more gentleness than most people."

It is true, he was a severe critic of his own work. He attended the first presentation of his "Astree," and sat near some ladies who were laughing and talking about certain passages he claimed. "That is wretched," they exclaimed. "That is wretched." "That is absurd!"

When they protested that it was good, and that it was by the great La Fontaine, he rejoined:

"That makes no difference. The piece is bad. I know that La Fontaine wrote it. It's a stupid fellow. Now, he says, 'I'."

there was anything to do. "Yes," replied the proprietor, "a car load of por-

THE TEMPERAMENTS.

The Fourfold Classification That Was Made Two Thousand Years Ago.

It is interesting to find that so thoroughly scientific a man as Professor William Brewster has adopted the fourfold classification of temperaments made nearly 2,000 years ago—namely, the choleric, sanguine, melancholy and lymphatic. The existence of one or the other of these temperaments may be discerned, he says in his work on "The Infant Mind," very early in the great majority of children—in the second quarter of the first year, beyond a doubt. Nearly every one who has written about temperaments has got up a classification of his own. Galen had nine, Haycock gave six, Graham Brown seven, and others have got down as low as two. Modern writers on the nervous for choleric, and bilious for melancholic temperament. With these verbal modifications, the old classification seems to answer all practical purposes, and individuals can build up combinations as needed.

Hutchinson divides temperaments as the sum of the physical peculiarities of a man exclusive of his tendency to disease. This is not very satisfactory, but, though perhaps temperaments is a thing a little too vague to be satisfactorily defined. In modern terms it may be said to be the peculiar way in which the individual reacts to the stimuli of his environment. There is no doubt that one class of persons reacts quickly and easily, expending energy profusely and often needlessly in the effort to overcome the stimuli of his environment. Others react more slowly and with less waste. We can thus distinguish the nervous, the sanguine, the melancholic and the choleric to recognize and appreciate the importance of temperament used to be considered part of a sound medical training. It has been too much neglected in our pursuit of minute with microscopes and test tubes. Our teachers of practical medicine might well revive its study.—Medical Record.

The Seat of the Brain.

At a certain point to the other day one dashing creature demanded: "Do tell me, Mabel, what organ do you think with? I know we love with the heart and hear with the ears, but I entirely forgotten how it is about thoughts."

Mabel's pretty face was suspended over the answer. "Papa says I think with my tongue."

"Impossible!" breaks in a college sophomore. "It is done with the mind."

"Oh, I know," says the sophomore, "the mind is what you make up when you want to do things."

"The head, then," insists the sophomore, "if you like that better—the seat of the brain."

"Oh, dearie me!" sighs she at the answer. "That explains something. I didn't know brains had a seat. It must be, then, that mine never got up."

What a Word Will Do.

Byron reminds me that a word is enough to rouse mankind to mutual slaughter. Yes, there is power in a word—Marathon, for instance, Waterloo, Gettysburg, Appomattox. Great battles, too, but what a great battle is going on in many a sick and suffering body. In yours, perhaps. Take courage. You can win. Call to your Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts powerfully upon the liver, cleanses the system of all blood poisons, restores the system of humors from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in all diseases caused by bad blood.

Dr. Pierce's Pills are purely vegetable. A new pen point often refuses to work. Stick the point into a raw potato, and it will then write easily and smoothly.

Women's Gloves.

Where does a fine Glove tear? At the thumb, four times in five.

Where does a fine Glove bind? At the thumb, if anywhere.

No one knows this better than Glove makers. They've worked and worried over it, tried this and that, and in the end come back to the old way—oval cut thumb base.

All but one. He hit upon an idea that the others had missed. Simple of course—all these things are.

He just carried the thumb-piece down to the button opening—and the riddle was read.

Courvoiser, the name—an old name. For years it has stood for the best quality of French Gloves. Now it stands for as near to Glove perfection as the manufacturing world has got.

Thanks to the new thumb Courvoiser Gloves are Better in fit, better for wear, Easier in use, more shapely, than any others in the market. And the new excellence adds nothing to the cost!

Impeachment Cases.

AN ANIMATED NEWSPAPER.

There have been seven such in the United States.

The first was in 1797 and the latest in 1876. The memorable attempt at the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson—Two Previous Cases.

The removal of federal officers by impeachment proceedings, under section 4 of article 2 of the constitution, has been attempted seven times.

The Blount case was the first. William Blount, United States senator from Tennessee, was charged in 1797 with conspiring with British officers to steal part of Louisiana from Spain for England's benefit. The house prepared articles of impeachment. The senate expelled him, but putting him under arrest. Blount fled to England, and a senator was not a civil officer liable to impeachment, and on the question of jurisdiction only he was acquitted.

Judge John Pickens of the federal district court for New Hampshire was impeached in 1803 for drunkenness and profanity on the bench. The defense was insanity. On trial before the senate, Pickens was convicted by a party vote of 10 yeas and 9 nays. He was removed from office.

In 1804, Samuel Chase of Maryland, a justice of the supreme court of the United States and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, was charged with improper conduct on the bench; among other things, with having indulged in "highly indecent and extrajudicial remarks" in the course of a charge to a Maryland grand jury. The impeachment proceedings, instigated and managed by Chief Justice Marshall, were political in their origin and animus. Judge Chase was acquitted through the failure of the prosecution to produce evidence to the required amount of 2/3 of the senate on any one of the eight articles of impeachment. He resumed his seat on the bench and held it as long as he lived.

About a quarter of a century later, James H. Peck, a federal district judge in Missouri, was impeached for oppression and partiality in the trial of a case. He was removed from office.

Thirty years afterward, at the beginning of the war of the rebellion, West H. Humphreys of the federal district court of Tennessee joined the Confederacy and accepted judicial office in the rebel government. He was removed from office.

One of the witnesses against him was a man named Johnson, then governor of Tennessee, destined himself to be the next senator from that state. He was removed from office.

Andrew Johnson was impeached on March 3, 1868, the articles charging him with violation of the constitution, with conspiracy to prevent the execution of the laws, and with conduct unbecomingly a senator.

FREE BOOKS TO COME.

From a private telegram received Friday morning we learn that the Free School Book bill passed the House of Delegates last Thursday by the decisive vote of fifty-one to twenty-seven.

It now goes to the Governor for his sanction or disapproval. It is to be hoped that he will approve the bill. To veto it would close the work of the session where it began.

The Free School Book bill is really one of the most important bills that has been before the Legislature for years, in the interest of the poorer classes of the state.

It is argued that text books will cost the State more if furnished in this manner than if furnished by individuals. This is probably true, but the increased facilities will more than compensate for this. The effecting of the schools will be immeasurably increased.

The Advertiser has always favored the bill, believing that it would not only increase the efficiency of the schools, but knowing that it would lighten the burden of the poor, who have heretofore been called upon to buy books for large families of children, in whom the state has as much interest in making good citizens as it has in any other class.

It is to be hoped that Governor Brown will realize the fact that the state is decidedly in favor of the bill. The people should and will have what they want. Their servants should bear this in mind.

The Governor vetoed a similar bill two years ago. The people now serve notice upon him that they did not approve his action. It remains to be seen what lesson he will draw from these facts.

NOW FOR THE TARIFF.

The Wilson Bill Reported to the Senate by Mr. Voorhees—Discussion Will Begin April 26.

Washington, March 20.—The long quiescent Wilson tariff bill was reported to the Senate this afternoon by the full finance committee. The bill passed the House February 1st and on the following day it was reported in the Senate and referred to the finance committee. That nearly two months ago. The long interim has been occupied first by the subcommittee or democratic and then by the full democratic membership of the finance committee in the discussion of the tariff. It is now the time when the subcommittee or democratic members of the finance committee with the exception of Senator McPherson, been unwilling to bring the bill before the Senate, but discussion have been obstructed and the unnecessary considerations of special interests. That the bill was reported today was no surprise. Had it not been reported there would have been no surprise. The friends of the Wilson bill, because of post paid promises, staked themselves against disappointment. Now that the bill is really before the Senate, the next question is when will the discussion begin? Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, who, if he had had his way, would have passed the Wilson bill without change upon the day of its receipt from the House, is stickier to senatorial courtesy, and today he announced after the introduction of the measure that it would remain in the calendar subject to inspection for ten days before discussion would begin. Then he announced that on Monday April 26, two months after the receipt of the bill from the House, he would ask for the discussion to begin. He will lead off with the debate, but will make no extended argument. By agreement the democratic and republican members of the committee have refrained from a statement as to their respective attitudes toward the bill, a pastime in which the House ways and means committee indulged, but which amounted to nothing but campaign literature. The republican criticism of the measure will, therefore, be wholly confined to the speeches on the floor.

WHEN WILL THE BILL PASS.

Now that the bill is actually before the Senate, though its consideration is delayed ten days, the important question arises, "When will it pass?" If Senator Gorman voices the sentiment of the Senate, as recently expressed in a speech that discussion will be most protracted. No one knows when it will end. There was a shadow of the coming event today when Senator Peffer announced that when the discussion of the bill begins he will offer a substitute. No one knows when Mr. Peffer begins a speech, when it will end. Senator McPherson announced that he would prove that the bill was right in assuming his antagonistic attitude to the bill as first reported. This requires a great deal of time, and other Senators are situated similarly to Mr. McPherson. Then the republicans demand, by senatorial courtesy, a full discussion. The real friends of the measure will not discuss it much. They will only answer objections brought against it. Senator Quay has said the bill will not pass before August 1st, if it passes at all, and he has his doubts. It is impossible, therefore, at this time to make any calculation as to the time of the enactment of the bill. If the opponents and assessors of the bill had a due regard for the wants of the country and the demands upon them as servants of the people, the bill would pass at any early date. But such demands are disregarded.

CHANGES IN THE BILL.

The bill presented by the full finance committee as compared with the bill presented by the subcommittee does not differ materially. The changes are folly set forth in the Sun. There is a change in the sugar schedule by the introduction of the Dutch standard test as well as the test of the polariscope, under which the American Sugar Trust is said to receive additional benefits to those conferred by the original bill.

Free School Books.

Annapolis, March 21.—The preliminary struggle over the free school book bill came up in the House and resulted favorably to the advocates of the measure. It has been made the special order for 8:30 o'clock Thursday night. The bill came in on a favorable report from the ways and means committee, to which it was referred from the education committee. When the report was made Mr. Wolfe asked that it be recommitted to the committee on education in order that a report might be made from the proper committee of the House to consider the measure. In this he was seconded by Mr. Taylor who made a strong speech without, however, committing himself as to what position he will take when the bill is on its passage. The discussion developed a strong opposition to the bill, and the debate is expected to be prolonged and heated. What will be the fate is now problematical, but it can be safely said that its support in the House will be by no means in proportion to the vote by which it passed the Senate. The motion to recommit the bill was lost by a vote of 45 to 34. The fact that so many of the school authorities in the state oppose the measure will have a decided effect on the final vote. In the debate the views of the State board of education is expected to be effectively used by the opponents of the measure, as will also be the effect of the operation on the state finances. It is said that many of the voters against recommitment was influenced by the fear that its consideration in the committee might be prolonged and prevent the bill from being considered on its merits by the House.

The Different London.

The story of London is somewhat indefinite, but may be said to cover about a square mile. The postal district covers an area of 250 square miles. The police district extends still further, covering an area of 450 square miles. On the other hand, the parliamentary London is much narrower. It consists of 10 boroughs, of which the city of London, although the smallest, having 30,262 inhabitants in 1881—is represented by four members on account of its commercial and financial importance, while each of the other nine, although larger, is represented only by two: Westminster, 256,418; Chelsea, 358,011; Marylebone, 477,355; Hackney, 362,437; Finsbury, 483,216; Tower Hamlets, 391,338; Lambeth, 372,112; Southwark, 307,333; Greenwich, 167,632.

Put together, these 10 boroughs represent a population of about 3,000,000, and the remainder of the inhabitants of the city belong to non-metropolitan electoral districts. Generally, however, the size of the city is determined by the area under the operation of the metropolitan local government act, which is also adopted by the registrar general of the census. According to the definition, London covers an area of 122 square miles, forming parts of the counties of Middlesex, Surrey and Kent—Baltimore American.

Costly Meals.

The costliest meal ever served, as far as history shows, was a supper given by Aelin Verno, one of the most lavish of the latter day Roman aristocrats. The supper was given in 450 A.D. to 100 persons, and cost was 6,000 sesterces, which would amount to 275,000 in English money, or nearly a quarter of a million dollars.

The celebrated feast given by Vitellius, a Roman emperor of the second century, to his brother Lucius cost a fraction over $200,000. Loutenous at that banquet consisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 different fowls, besides other courses in proportion. The feast was furnished by the world, did not reign very long; otherwise the game preserves of Latvia, Spain and Britain would have been exterminated. According to the definition, London covers an area of 122 square miles, forming parts of the counties of Middlesex, Surrey and Kent—Baltimore American.

"The Blood is the Life."

Runs the old saying, and everything that ever makes part of any organ of the body must reach its place therein through the blood. Therefore, if the blood is purified and kept in good condition by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, necessarily follows that the benefit of the medicine is imparted to every organ of the body. Can anything be simpler than the method by which this excellent medicine gives good health to all who will try it fairly and patiently?

Wouldn't a salary come handy? See advertisement of a "Chance to earn."

THE MORNING HERALD Clothing! Did You Say? FURNITURE!

FOR 1894.

The publishers take pleasure in announcing that "THE MORNING HERALD" has recently been enlarged from four to eight pages, and that while the price remains at one cent per copy, or $1 per year to mail subscribers, each edition contains as much as ever and more general reading matter than is printed by the Baltimore two-cent dailies.

The telegraphic service of "The Morning Herald" is successful by any other Baltimore paper.

Its news service in the counties is thorough and reliable.

Its Market Reports are full, complete, and accurate.

Its Illustrated Woman's page is a feature that will not be found in any other Baltimore daily.

A verbatim report of the sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage—the celebrated Brooklyn preacher—appears in Monday morning's edition.

"THE MORNING HERALD" will continue to be an independent newspaper—fair and impartial in its statements and fearless in the expression of its opinions.

Persons wishing to avail themselves of this opportunity will apply to the undersigned for order on Agent at this station to secure these tickets or to the preacher in charge at the different places, or to Station Agent. A. J. Benjamin, General Passenger Agent.

DEATH OF A PROMINENT CITIZEN.

Mr. Alexander G. Towdine Dies at the Shovel Cottage Ocean City.

Mr. Alexander G. Towdine of this city, died at Ocean City last Wednesday morning about 10 o'clock. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. Early last winter Mr. Towdine had an attack of grip which greatly debilitated him, and he was kept in the house for some weeks but sufficiently recovered to be out and attend to his business. About the first of March he went to Ocean City hoping to be benefited by the mild climate and salt air. For the first week or two he seemed to improve and gave promise of recovery.

On Saturday, the 17th, he came home for the day to attend some business engagements, and returned in the evening. After his return he was seized with violent stomachic attacks, accompanied with heart failure. His physicians think these attacks were simply the result of nervous prostration. From this attack he rallied during the week succeeding. His family could get no encouragement from the sick man's physicians, however, that he would ever recover.

A second attack in the form of heart failure came on last Wednesday, with fatal result. His family were at his bedside when death came.

The remains were brought over on a special train Wednesday evening, and were laid to rest in his residence where funeral services were held, Friday afternoon, Dr. Reigart officiating.

The interment took place Friday afternoon at the old homestead, in Rockaway.

On this homestead Mr. Towdine was born September 7th 1851, 1 parents being the late Matthias and Loretta Towdine. Like most of the sturdy business men of Salisbury, Mr. Towdine spent his early life on the farm where he developed physically and mentally into that kind of manhood that our country is so much in need of.

He was for many years a merchant in this city, correct, straight forward and upright in all his dealings. As a merchant he accumulated a fair competency and retired from business in the early eighties, and devoted himself again to the pursuit of his early life, farming.

After the fire of 1886 he began the insurance business, which he conducted with ability and success for many years.

Mr. Towdine has been a member of the Presbyterian church from early life, showing always great devotion to the church in his preference and contributing of his time and means. He was for many years an elder of Wicomico Presbyterian church.

Mr. Towdine was elected first Mayor of Salisbury and served in that capacity for two years.

Mr. Towdine was twice married, his first wife being the daughter of the late Humphrey Humphreys, by whom he had one child, Mr. Gordon H. Towdine, who survives him. His second wife is a sister of ex-Congressman Covington of Snow Hill, she with three children, Miss Annie, Miss Dora and Mr. Alex. D. Towdine, survives.

A New Building & Loan.

A charter, in which Jas. Cannon, Allison A. Gillis, Noah H. Rider, Thos. Perry, Jesse D. Price and J. Cleveland White, are named as incorporators, was granted by the court to the Wicomico Building and Loan Association, last Tuesday afternoon. The incorporators were also named as directors, and in addition Wm. M. Cooper. Immediately after the articles of incorporation had been signed and filed the board of directors named in the charter met at the office of E. Stanley Towdine, Esq., and organized by electing James Cannon, Esq., president; N. H. Rider, vice-president; W. M. Cooper, secretary; J. Cleveland White, treasurer, and E. Stanley Towdine, attorney, and the general understanding of the unanimous sentiment of the board that the organization should be formed upon exactly the same principle as the Salisbury Permanent Building and Loan Association and not in any way to conflict with it, but to work in union and harmony with it—nearly all the directors being stockholders in the Salisbury Permanent Building and Loan Association. The office of the new company will be in the office of the Salisbury Association, in the Humphreys building, head of Main street, but the office will not be open till the secretary elect, Mr. Cooper, gets home from Annapolis to take charge of it. In the meantime stock books will be open at the store of Mr. J. D. Price, on Main street. Mr. Price is authorized by the board to take subscriptions to stock.

It is generally believed that there is ample business in the city and county for two local associations and that there is no need for any conflict between them. The stock books of the Salisbury P. B. and L. Association have been closed now a year, and many persons have gone out of the county to invest in this class of securities, which have become very popular with our people.

An opportunity will now be given these people to withdraw their money from the foreign companies and invest it at home.

The personnel of the directory gives the public all reasonable assurance of safe and conservative management.

Although the books were not opened till Wednesday, between twenty and thirty thousand dollars worth of stock has already been subscribed. Among the stockholders are all the Judges—Messrs. Page, Hall and Lloyd, and Clerk of the Court, Mr. J. E. Pruitt.

CHURCH PRIMARIES.

In answer to a call from the mayor, a citizens meeting was held for the purpose of nominating a municipal ticket, mayor and three councilmen. The meeting was presided over by Mr. W. A. Cress and Mr. Harry Kioff acted as secretary.

CONFERENCE ADJOURNS.

Completes its Work and Adjourns After Hearing the Appointments.

BUT FEW CHANGES.

The Conference supplied the city with preachers last Sunday. At Asbury M. E. church the seat of the conference, Bishop Vincent preached and ordained a class of deacons and a class of elders. The ordination service was more elaborate than is usual and was very impressive. Thos. B. Cooper, M. S. H. Williams, Thos. F. Beachamp and Goldborough S. Hastings were ordained to the diaconate, and Melvin D. Netter, Wm. H. Benford and J. W. Fogle were ordained elders. At the close of the service Bishop Vincent gave to each of the elders a handsome Oxford Bible. He was assisted in the service by Presiding Elders Corkran, Barrett and Smith. Rev. Robert Watt, J. W. Easley, J. P. Otis, A. R. Mowbray and Rev. C. T. Wyatt.

BISHOP VINCENT'S SERMON.

The Bishop's sermon was addressed particularly to the ministers, and was an eloquent discourse on the lessons of the crucifixion. His text was the reply of Pilate, "What I have written I have written," when besought by the leaders of the Jewish sanhedrin to change the inscription on the cross. He contrasted the special train Wednesday evening, and the eloquent discourse on the lessons of the crucifixion. The Roman, who represented the materialistic tendency—the desire for wealth and power; the Greek, representing the culture of the day, and the Jew, who was the religiousist.

"And you have these types in Salisbury," said the Bishop, "There are men whose sole ambition is wealth and power, others who delight in culture and the refinements of life and others who care for neither of these, but who are religious, who reverence sacred days and sacred places and this religion is just as much a natural element as the others. A man can be a thoroughly worldly man and yet be religious, his religion meaning to him what wealth, power, influence and culture mean to the worldly man. Some of the most narrow and selfish men in the world are religious men, men who always attend the prayer-meetings, who are in their places in church every Sunday. A man may lead a crude, worldly life, yet an intensely religious one. I have known men to go into rapture at a class-meeting, yet for the support of a minister because they did not happen to like him. I want to correct the fancy that all men who are religious are good fellows. Some of the most powerful forces for harm in this country are religious forces."

In the afternoon the anniversary of the Freedman's Aid and Southern Educational Society was held. Addresses were made by Bishop Fitzgerald, A. H. Heller, vice-chancellor of the American University, and Dr. F. J. Wagner, of Morgan College, Baltimore. At night the missionary anniversary was held, and Dr. J. O. Peck, missionary secretary, made an address.

In Washon's Series.

Washington street is one of the gay "terrace," of Salisbury at all times, but it was brilliant last Wednesday evening, especially.

The Medallion Club met at the residence of Mr. R. D. Ellegood (in his absence). This club is an organization of ladies whose by-laws and constitution prohibit them from giving to the world any information of its doings or even of its place of meeting, but fortunately there are some married ladies, belles and old maids in the organization, so there is no great difficulty in obtaining the news of its doings. The invitations to the grand demonstration Wednesday night were issued by Mrs. Amy Tropnevud Doogelle and in honor of Mrs. G. R. Rider, who was a member of the club before she moved to Washington. On the back of each invitation issued was a poetical effusion. By the way the club has a poetess, as well as any number of songsters, musicians and dancers—dancers on the line, on the corner, set-to and set-to; round, square and triangular.

The poetess made a special effort on the invitations on this occasion. For instance to a widow she wrote:

Widow, modest, lovely, shy,
At the gates you wait your eye.
And on a married ladies invitation was written:

If the baby should keep awake,
And you do not get to come,
Get something sharp for him to take,
And be sure to give him some.

Another sample of what might be looked upon as a little personal, ran something like this:

Oh! sharp things of tongue or pen
Your bones are sharpest of any of them.
The dressing on this occasion covered a period from the discovery of America to the close of the 19th century, efforts that would have been in vain without the aid of the inventor.

It was our intention to be more specific on this point, but the cold wave and Coxey's army doings made great demand upon our space.

A Great Circus.

Hunting's railroad circus, museum, and menagerie are highly entertaining; they were the center of attraction on Monday last, and attracted two immense audiences, absolutely filling the large tents. The superior splendor of this really first-class organization reflects much upon its proprietor, Mr. Huntings, and amuses, entertains, edifies and pleases the vast multitudes who daily crowded its tented temples. The numerous features are of a very superior order, and meet with the approbation of all, as the roots of this very popular show through out the state has been one vast series of multitudes. The entertainment is first-class, and fully deserving of the immense good-will which seems to follow in its footsteps—Meadville, Pa., Tribune and Republican.
