Dennis-Harmonson Wedding

Miss Margaret Atkins Harmonson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace F. Harmonson, of Berlin, Wor-cesster county, and Philip Crisfield Den-nis, of Pocomoke City, were married last Wednesday afternoon in the Buck-ingham Presbyterian Church, Berlin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas Kerr, pastor.

A dinner followed the wedding, after which Mr. and Mrs. Dennis left on the afternoon train for Baltimore and from there sailed for Boston Mass. They will return home about September 1 and will live at Pocomoke City, where Mr. Dennis is engaged in the lumber busi-ness.

Those present from out of town were as follows: Alfred P. Dennis, of Pocomoke City, Mrs. Luther A. Oates and son, of Princess Anne, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Harmonson, of Wilmington, Mrs. T. M. Purnell, of Snow Hill, Miss Grace Rowe, of Pittsburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Evans, of Salisbury, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Reis, of Wilmington, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Lofland, of Lewes.

Mr. Dennis is a son of Mrs. Samuel K. Dennis, of Princess Anne.

Littleton T. Justice Dead

The funeral of Littleton T. Justice was held in Immanuel Methodist Epis-copal Church, Crisfield, at 2.30 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Charles A. Hill, pastor of the church, con-ducted the service.

Mr. Justice was one of the pioneer citizens of Crisfield. He was one of the best known captains of the bay and later engaged in mercantile and sea-food business in Crisfield. He died Saturday night after attending a class meeting of Immanuel Church. His body was found in a sitting position on the steps. He is survived by a large number of children, among them being Sidney J. Justice, Edward L. Justice, W. B. Justice, Charles T. Justice, Mrs. John Pruitt and Mrs. Edward Mason, all of Crisfield.

Rev. I. G. Fosnocht Very Ill

Rev. I. G. Fosnocht, pastor of the M. E. Church at Millington, Md., is critically ill at his home, in that town, having been stricken with paralysis a few days ago.

Mr. Fosnocht, who is about 65 years of age, was in excellent health until he was stricken. He was originally a member of the Philadelphia Conference, but came to the Wilmington Conference at the time of the division, in 1868.

Mr. Fosnocht was pastor of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church of Princess Anne about 12 years ago. As we go to press we are pleased to learn that his condition is improved.

KILLED AFTER CRAP GAME

Simon Robinson Shoots and In-stantly Kills Joe Gardner at Hopewell

Last Friday an altercation between two colored men—Simon Robinson and Joseph Gardner—at Hopewell, Somer-set county, resulted in the killing of Gardner by Robinson.

The shooting is said to have been the outcome of a crap game earlier in the morning. Robinson's statement of the tragedy is that he and Gardner had always been good friends, but they and several others had been drinking and shooting crap; that he had sent Gar-dner to his home for two dollars and upon his return where the parties were, Robinson asked for the money and Gardner, who at the time was sitting on the ground, replied, "I will give you this," and reached into his pocket and procured a razor when Robinson drew his revolver and shot downward with no intention of shooting him. Gardner came on toward him with the razor in his hand in a threatening manner, when Robinson shot a second time to frighten him, over his head, but instead the ball struck Gardner in the forehead and killed him instantly.

After the shooting Robinson went to the home of Captain Joshua Thomas, nearby, where they both had been employed, and notified Mr. Thomas of the killing and requested that Sheriff Tull be informed of it. This was done and, after the arrival of the Sheriff and an inquest, the Sheriff brought Robinson to Princess Anne and placed him in jail.

Robinson is a son of William Robinson, of Marion Station. He is married and has one child. Gardner is a native of St. Mary's county and has been working around Hopewell since last fall.

Harold M. Smith Arrested

When a stubborn juror lifted the veil that for 10 days had shrouded in mys-tery the death of Florence Wainwright at her desk in the office of the Home Gas Company, in Salisbury, Harold M. Smith, general manager of the company and prominent in social and political circles of the State, stood accused of felonious homicide. He was arrested at 2.35 Monday afternoon of last week upon a warrant sworn out by Justice of the Peace Charles Covington, acting coroner, after the jury of inquest had returned its verdict, placing the responsi-bility for the girl's death upon Smith. As bail did not seem probable, he was taken to jail, but was released at 5 o'clock under bond of $5000 for his ap-pearance for trial in the county court next September.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was that "the said Florence Wainwright came to her death on the 20th day of June, 1913, at about 6.30 o'clock p. m., by a criminal operation, performed in or about the Home Gas Company's office, in which operation Harold M. Smith was implicated as an accessory thereto, both before and after the fact."

The accused man is about 40 years old, married and has two children, the oldest a girl of 10 years old and the other a boy of 8. His wife was a Miss Pres-ton, related to Mayor James B. Preston, of Baltimore. Smith is also related to United States Senator W. P. Jackson, president of the Home Gas Company, for which Smith has for the past five years been general manager.

Samuel C. Beauchamp Dead

The funeral of Mr. Samuel C. Beau-champ, a former resident of Baltimore, who died Monday of last week in At-lanta, Ga., at the age of 53 years, took place Thursday at 2.30 o'clock from the home of his cousin, Mrs. Mary Pugh, 1027 North Eutaw street, Baltimore. Rev. William F. Venables, of Mount Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, conducted the services.

Mr. Beauchamp was born in Somerset county, Md., but spent most of his life in Baltimore where he was connected with the Friedenwald Printing Company for nearly 30 years. He went to At-lanta 18 months ago to become a fore-man for the Byrd Printing Company. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emma Beauchamp; three daughters, Misses Florence and Jane Beauchamp and Mrs. George Conn, and five sons, Frederick, Samuel C., Jr., George C., Andrew J. and Milton B. Beauchamp. He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias.

—Governor Goldsborough Thursday went to Ocean City, where he has taken a cottage for the summer. He expects to spend about ten days there before returning to Baltimore. The Governor's family has been at Ocean City several days and will spend the summer there.

GIFT TO PUBLIC LIBRARY

N. Y. P. & N. Railroad Company Donates Old Railroad Station To Local Institution

Those who are interested in the Prin-cess Anne Public Library will be glad to learn that the New York, Philadel-phia & Norfolk Railroad Company has donated to that institution the old rail-road station in this town. It had been the purpose of the library officials to buy the station but this expenditure will now be unnecessary and the amount that would have been thus expended can be used towards moving the build-ing and fitting it up for its new purpose.

The building, as soon as released from railroad use, will be moved to the rear of the Bank of Somerset lot on Church street, opposite St. Andrew's Church, the bank having agreed to lease that part of their lot at a very low rental. The library will thus have a permanent and attractive home.

The Princess Anne Public Library is still in its infancy but it has had re-markable success thus far. There are between 1500 and 2000 books and the number is being increased. Miss Amanda Lankford is the efficient librarian. The annual meeting of the members will be held next Thursday afternoon. A meet-ing of the lady managers was held last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. C. M. Dashiell, at which all kinds of plans were discussed to secure financial support.

The donation by the railroad company is much appreciated and it is a pleasure to acknowledge, on the part of the library officials, the courtesy and gen-erosity of the N. Y. P. & N. officials.

Governor Addresses Veterans

Governor Goldsborough, accompanied by his staff, motored out from Gettys-burg to the Maryland encampment just before noon last Wednesday. On Con-federate avenue, on the knoll overlook-ing the camp, the Governor made a short address before the 250 veterans who braved the hot sun to listen to him.

"I'm glad to meet men who fought on both sides for principles they con-sidered justifiable and worth fighting for," he said.

"But the day of recognition has come, and today, under this flag, men from both sides show their loyalty to the best Government on the face of the earth. My duty and my aim in my position is to elevate the standards to a plane of civic righteousness of which all of us may be proud. I feel com-mented by the presence before me of men who fought on this field and who are today standing, as I observe, the gray rabbling against the blue, emble-matic of the feeling 50 years after the struggle of men who know no North, no East, no West, no South."

"The man who wears a gray or blue uniform is a citizen to be honored by the whole nation."

After the address Governor Golds-borough came down from his automob-ile and shook hands with every one of the veterans. He was accompanied on the trip by Adjutant-General Mack-lin, Col. Bladen Lowndes and Gen. William M. Gill, all members of his staff, and by Colonel Mullikin, of the Maryland commission.

Delaware's Early Apple Crop

Dover apparently leads the entire country in the production and ship-ment of early apples, although Wyo-ming is the principal shipping station for the apple belt.

The shipments of early apples up to date have reached 12,171 baskets over the Delaware Railroad. The season is much earlier than 1912 as during the corresponding week of last year there had been shipped, up to date, but 4,425 baskets.

In view of the fear that the apple crop was seriously damaged, this is re-garded as most encouraging. There is no doubt, however, that late apples are hurt because of the severe and wet weather around pollination in the Spring.

Potato shipments, too, are ahead of last year, the Delaware Railroad hav-ing carried, from the Delaware ship-ping stations, thus far, 4,692 barrels of new potatoes in comparison to 3,027 barrels shipped last year.—Delaware State News.

Smink-Long Wedding

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Long, Westover, on Monday of last week, when their daughter, Miss Lillian Long, became the bride of Dr. Claud C. Smink, of Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Freund, pastor of Manokin Presbyterian Church, Princess Anne.

A dinner was served immediately af-ter the ceremony, and the bride and groom left for Atlantic City and other points. They will reside in Larraville, Baltimore county, Maryland.

LAWYERS AT CAPE MAY

State Bar Association Enjoys the Sea Breeze—Interesting Ad-dresses To the Members

The annual meeting of the Maryland Bar Association opened at Cape May, N. J., last Tuesday and the president, Chief Judge A. Hunter Boyd, of the Maryland Court of Appeals, delivered the address, "Twenty years on the bench."

The greater portion of Judge Boyd's address was a resume of the laws of Maryland. He then gave a history of the more important code acts of Mary-land. He said that Judges should not "play to the galleries," nor talk from the bench to please the public, as such talk was liable to injure the litigant as well as the Judge.

That evening Congressman David J. Lewis, of Maryland, spoke on the par-cel post.

Wednesday the Association adopted a resolution favoring the creation of an additional judge of the Court of Ap-peals of Maryland, the new member to come from Baltimore city. The bill providing for the additional judge will be offered at the next session of the Gen-eral Assembly of Maryland. County members of the association opposed the measure on the ground that the coun-ties were jealous of the power already wielded by the city.

The county lawyers contended that if another judge should go to the Court of Appeals he should be elected by the voters of the whole State. William Sheppard Bryan said that such a course would throw the matter into politics. Speaking in support of the resolution, he declared that Baltimore city had more business before the Appellate Court than the counties and should have larger representation than the counties. If the measure becomes a law the voters of Baltimore will vote on the additional judge in the autumn of 1913. Wednesday afternoon the mem-bers of the association, with their wives and daughters, went on an outing.

Judge George Gray, of Delaware, of the United States Circuit Court of Ap-peals, who was the principal speaker on Thursday, addressed the meeting on "The Democracy of the Constitution." He denounced the recall of judges and recall of judicial decisions as a "propa-ganda of anarchy." He referred to Col-onel Roosevelt's advocacy of those doc-trines as dangerous because of his prom-inence.

Edgar H. Gans also addressed the Association on the orphans' court pro-cedure.

Without opposition the officers nomi-nated for next year were elected as follows:

President—Walter I. Dawkins, Balti-more.
Vice-President—First circuit, Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Cambridge.
Secretary—James W. Chapman, Jr., Baltimore.
Treasurer—R. Bennett Darnall, Balti-more.
Executive Council—Henry A. War-burton, Elkton; Edward C. Peter, Rock-ville; W. Irvine Cross, Baltimore, and Charles W. Field, Baltimore.

Oldest Man in World Dead

Dr. Cho Choy, late of China and Cuba, died at the Ellis island immigrant station Monday of last week in his hundred and fiftieth year. With a party of Chinese he was en route to Canada under bond, having arrived there only the day before from Havana. His health was excellent, he said, and he resented suggestions that stories of his age were exaggerated. He became suddenly ill Monday night.

Dr. Choy was undoubtedly the oldest man in the world, if his claim to long-evity is true. He was really angry with the skeptics among the newspaper reporters, who thought he might possi-bly be a few years younger than 149, and stoutly declared that he was born in 1746 at Shan Hai Kwan, on the bor-ders of Manchuria, where the great wall of China runs down to the sea-shore on the Gulf of Pe-Chi Li.

The aged Manchu arrived in bond with seven other prosperous Chinamen, the youngest of whom was 70. Dr. Choy was the leader of the party in every particular. He was more than six feet tall, notwithstanding a slight stoop, and bald, while his features were a web of gray wrinkles. He lived for 50 years in his native land and claims to have spent nearly 100 years in Cuba practicing medicine among the Chinese there, where he acquired considerable wealth. While on Ellis Island the doctor par-took of no nourishment except a few tableds of dried fruit, which he always carries with him, and a little water.

—About 125 delegates from the Bat-tist Young People's Union of Maryland will attend the national convention, which will be held in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 10th to 13th.

SEE MOTHER SHOT DEAD

Nelson Baker Blows His Wife's Head Off and Dies Same Way In Presence of His Sons

Presumably frenzied by jealousy, ex-cited by a gypsy's warning that a dark man who often passed that way would take his wife from him, Nelson A. Bak-er, a well-to-do farmer living about two miles from Pittsville, Wicomico county, early Friday morning blew off the head of his spouse, Mrs. Annie Bak-er, with a shotgun in the presence of his children. When the children, fear-ing that he would also kill them in his murderous fury, sought safety in flight, and a neighbor, coming along in a wagon, was attracted by the shot, Bak-er walked out into the open field a short distance from the house, dropped on one knee, extracted the empty shell from the gun, put in a loaded one and blew out his own brains. Part of the man's head was torn away by the charge. In both instances death was instantaneous.

The youngest son, Frank, aged 10 years, was standing beside his father in the kitchen door when he shot the mother, while the four older boys, ranging in age from 12 to 20 years, were making ready a large lunch bas-ket which the family were packing to take with them on an outing to Ocean City.

Baker owned a farm of about 100 acres and was in very comfortable cir-cumstances. He was twice married, having a son, now 20 years old, by his first wife and four others by the second.

Charles Baker, the eldest son, who lived at home, was in the barn when the shooting occurred. He ran to the house and found his step-mother lying in a pool of blood. He declares that there was no quarreling during the night and is at a loss to explain the act of his father, except that his mind had become affected by brooding over his jealousy.

Owens All Peninsula Lines

By the purchase of the entire capital stock of the Farmers and Merchants Telephone Company, operating in Queen Anne, Caroline, Talbot, and part of Kent counties, The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company assumes control of this company. The Public Service Commission has approved this purchase.

The Farmers and Merchants Com-pany has for a number of years suc-cessfully operated the telephone service on the Eastern Shore, with exchanges at Denton, Easton, Centerville, Ridgely, Federalsburg, Greensboro, Henderson, Hillsboro, Millington, Oxford, Preston, Queenstown, St. Michaels, Tilghman, serving about 1500 subscribers.

At a meeting Monday of last week the following officers were elected: President, M. H. Buehler, who is also 2nd vice president and general manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Tele-phone Company; Vice President, S. M. Greer, who is general commercial su-pintendent of the Chesapeake & Po-tomac Co., Secretary and Treasurer, A. P. Crenshaw, at present assistant secretary and treasurer of the Ches-apeake & Potomac Co. These, together with the following, constitute the new board of directors: G. S. Rainigh, of Renton; D. K. Crouse, of Queen Anne, and D. P. Holsinger, of Ridgely, all of the old board of directors, and W. A. Tower, general plant superintendent of the Chesapeake and Potomac Co., of Baltimore city.

Mr. Buehler stated that he believes the counties in which the F. and M. Company is not operating are capable of a much greater telephone develop-ment and a larger scope of service than at present, and that it is the intention of his company to use every means to bring about the fullest usefulness of the telephone plant and develop it to its highest efficiency. It is understood that a study of the present conditions will be made at once with the idea of making any necessary improvements.

200 Were Killed By Hot Wave

Lowering clouds that threatened to deluge half the States of the Middle West Tuesday forecast quick relief from the four days' heat wave that has taken a toll of 200 lives and nearly 1,000 prostrations since the mercury first began to mount the Friday pre-vious.

The torrid spell reached its climax on Monday and before midnight the tem-perature was reported to be dropping in nearly all the cities of the heat belt. Locally cooling breezes from the lake caused a drop of nearly 20 degrees in 12 hours, the thermometers registering from 81 to 85 degrees Tuesday. Chi-cago's list of dead in 24 hours was 38. The mercury went to 96.6 degrees.

MANY LIVES SACRIFICED

Pennsylvania Railroad Gives Sta-tistics How Deaths Occur From Trespassing

On the doctrine of averages, fourteen people will be killed by American rail-roads tomorrow. An average of four-teen people, trespassers on railroad property in violation of the law, are killed in this country every day. Of all the 10,446 people killed on American railway property in 1912, 5,449—more than half—were trespassers.

But it is a mistaken idea that all trespassers are tramps; so, to find out really the class of people who trespass on railroad property in violation of the law, and in the face of probable death, the Pennsylvania Railroad conducted an exhaustive investigation of every case where a trespasser was killed or injured last year. The records show that only about one-half of the 267 trespassers killed and the 276 injured on the Lines East of Pittsburgh were classed as unidentified, mostly tramps. The others were useful citizens.

All trespassers' deaths which occur on the Pennsylvania Railroad are classi-fied in the Interstate Commerce Com-mission reports as "killed in railway accidents."

Among the 267 who lost their lives while trespassing on Pennsylvania Rail-road property were blacksmiths, farmers, carpenters, a cemetery sexton, clerks, a coal dealer, employees of other rail-roads, glass workers, laborers, a mail carrier, miners, a slack wire perform-er, a sailor, steel workers, students, a superintendent of gas well, a soldier, and others from probably a dozen more vocations.

While only figures for the Pennsyl-vania Lines East of Pittsburgh have been analyzed, complete returns from every one of the roads of the system show that 490 trespassers were killed in 1912. The system's reports for the last thirteen years show 9,013 trespass-ers killed and 8,777 injured. The records for the past six years are as follows:

Year	Killed	Injured	Total Killed and Injured
1907	916	775	1691
1908	743	691	1434
1909	633	683	1316
1910	565	562	1127
1911	527	447	974
1912	490	432	922

3894 3670 7564
The above figures are pointed to as emphasizing the contention of the rail-roads that laws should be enacted pro-viding substantial punishment for per-sons trespassing on the private right of way of any railroad. The renewed and diligent efforts the Pennsylvania Rail-road is making to stop trespassing will be measurably influential, the Manage-ment believes, in arousing the public to a realization that in accidents to trespassers it is the individual who loses his life, than which there can be no greater sacrifice. Society loses the individual.

The loss to the Nation in the money value of human lives sacrificed in tres-passing is most serious. It is a constant and continuing drain—one which the railroad, supported by active public sentiment, is powerless to stop.

The Moody Bible Institute

Much is made of the open air work during the summer at the Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago. It has been found an opportune time to reach the mul-titudes. During six days of each week, the Gospel Wagons go out with the students, both men and women, to the street corners, parks, etc. There the crowds gather round to listen to the Gospel message and enjoy the Gospel songs.

The Institute employs a man, who has had many years experience, to direct this work and train the students to do it, and also seeks to stimulate and en-courage the churches of the city to engage in it.

This, together with other forms of practical work, are a vital part of the free training in the English Bible, and Gospel Music provided at The Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago.

Husband Kills His Wife

With a knife wound in her throat and several bruises on her face, Mrs. Anne Mattingly Owens, twenty-five years old, was found dead by the side of a lonely road near River Spring, about fourteen miles from Leonardtown, Md., Monday night of last week.

Tuesday Benson Owens, an oysterman, husband of the dead woman, surren-dered himself to the county authorities and admitted that he had killed his wife in an altercation while the couple were on their way to River Spring, where Mrs. Owens was to testify against Frank Owens, her father-in-law, on a charge of assault and battery laid against him by Mrs. Owens. Owens refused to tell why he killed his wife, but it is be-lieved it was because she refused to withdraw the charges against his father.

Heroic Treatment

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

My friend Rogers was forty years old and a bachelor. He had no taste for society, and his life was solitary in the extreme.

I had been to his room occasionally, and his landlady knew my name. One day Rogers had worked himself up to such a condition that she feared he was going to commit suicide. They hunted my name in the telephone register and called me up to say that she wished I would come round and take charge of him. I went to his room and found him walking the floor with a desperate look in his eye. I took him out with me for dinner, after which we went to the theater, and he spent the night in my room. Before going to bed I said to him:

"Rogers, the thing for you to do is to get married."

"Who would marry me?"

"I know several young women who would be glad to get you. I'll introduce you to the one that I think would be the most likely to suit you if you like."

"Anything to relieve me of myself."

The young person to whom I introduced Rogers was twenty-seven years old. Not having thus far fulfilled the condition for which she was made—a wife and mother—she was beginning to get dissatisfied with herself and those about her. I told her of Rogers' case, and she confessed that it was much like her own. She, too, said "anything but the life of an old maid."

It was understood when I brought them together that it was for the purpose of matrimony, and they didn't pretend to what they did not feel—that they were in that delirium commonly called love. They made short work of the preliminaries and, being very much pleased with each other, became engaged and were married.

I think their honeymoon was as happy as it is with married couples usually. Both seemed to have taken laughing gas. There was no attention too great or too trivial for Rogers to pay his wife, and she seemed disposed to suffer any inconvenience rather than put him to the slightest discomfort.

I called on them soon after their marriage. Then I did not see them again for six months. I met Rogers and, grasping him by the hand, said: "How are you, old man? How goes married life?"

"Oh, married life is well enough, I suppose."

"Well enough? Why I thought at first you considered it delightful."

"That was in the beginning, when we hadn't really settled down to the business of married life. I find double harness pretty hard to work in some times."

"Have any company?"

"All we want."

"Well, I'm coming round to see you pretty soon."

When I called Rogers had been detained at business, and I was entertained by his wife. Being an old friend of mine, I did not hesitate to ask her how married life suited her.

"Oh, I don't suppose," she said, "that Ed is any harder to live with than most men."

"He isn't somber, is he?"

"Oh, no; he is cheerful enough, but I surprise him every now and then by not being what he has always supposed a woman to be, and if all men are what he is sometimes they must be."

While we were talking in came Ed. He saw by his wife's expression that she had been pouring her troubles into my ear, and he didn't like it. He sat down with a very ugly look on his face.

"Well," he said to me, "I suppose she's been making me out a pretty hard nut."

"See here," I said, flaring up, "I did the best I could for you two in bringing you together. If you want to quarrel I would prefer that you leave me out."

"Who's drawing you in?" asked the husband, with a snarl.

"He's drawn himself in," snapped the wife. "He tried to pump you when he met you the other day, then came around here to pump me."

"Pump you! What interest have I in whether you get on or don't get on together? I did you both good evening."

I seized my hat and got out of the house as quickly as I could, followed by more caustic remarks from both of them and making to myself more caustic remarks still.

"What a fool I was to try to do anything with a bachelor and an incipient old maid! One might as well try to make a crooked tree grow straight. Catch me trying to help any one that way again."

When we do a kindness we don't know whether it will turn out such or an injury. I thought I knew that in this case I had done the latter. But I was mistaken. The two needed heroic measures to bring them together and heroic measures to get them fused. After the heyday of wedlock had passed they needed a blowpipe. I was that blowpipe. When they both turned and fought me they found a common vent for their irritation, and its flow upon each other was directed in another channel.

Rogers came to see me, apologized for himself and his wife and begged me to dine with them the next Sunday. I went, and we have been excellent friends ever since.

A baby took up the case where I left it.

THE MAN IN THE ORIENT.

He Walks Ahead of His Wife to Guard Her From Danger.

When husband and wife go traveling together in the orient the man walks in front, careless and free, and the woman walks behind, carrying the bundle. Therefore you say: "The oriental cares not for his woman. He despises his wife and uses her as a beast of burden." Most occidentals never get further than that. But if you are observant you go out in the jungle yourself, and you discover things. When you walk abroad there are difficulties and dangers. The paths are overgrown and thorny, creepers must be driven off, and buffaloes are ugly creatures.

In the villages are village dogs which snarl and snap. You are a man, yet you will be glad of some one to go in front of you with a hatchet to clear your way. No woman would walk in front, and the man must be free. Now you see the reason why the man walks in front. If you want to confirm it, you inquire and find that this is true. Thus the Japanese, the Burman, goes in front of his wife for the same reason that the occidental goes behind—from courtesy. If he continues to do so when it is unnecessary, as in towns where there are roads, it is because a convention once formed is hard to break, east or west.—H. Fielding-Hall in Atlantic Monthly.

A DOG IN A GALE.

Able to Keep His Feet Where a Man Would Be Blown Away.

A gale that blows a man off his feet does not bother a dog at all. He will run about unconcernedly while his master walks with the greatest difficulty. This is for the same reason that a high building is more affected than a low one by a gale. It is also because the dog has four legs to support his body, while a man has only two.

With topsails set a yacht would capsize in a gale which it would ride out with safety if only its lower sails were set, for the leverage exerted by the wind increases in proportion to the height at which the sails are set. A man by reason of his height receives far more force from the wind than does a dog.

Then, again, a dog's center of gravity is much lower in proportion to his height than is a man's; consequently he is not nearly so top-heavy. And it is obvious that any object supported on four legs is more stable than if supported on two.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sheraton's Influence.

Thomas Sheraton, although a cabinetmaker by trade, it is quite probable during his life in London, did not actually produce any furniture, as his time was too much taken up by his occupation as Baptist preacher, tractarian, drawing master, designer, and publisher to bestow any attention on the manufacture or superintendence of cabinet work. His "Cabinetmaker and Upholsterer's Drawing Book" was published first in 1791 and again in 1793 and 1802. He was possessed of keen critical insight in matters pertaining to high class cabinetmaking, combined with an excellent sense of proportion, sound judgment and purity of taste, and his influence on the style of furniture in the latter part of the eighteenth century was exercised through his designs and criticisms, which had no little weight with the cabinetmakers of his day.—Suburban Life Magazine.

Exercise and Health.

There was a bank clerk who saw the men of his own age losing health year by year through overwork, indoor sedentary life and lack of daily exercise. He saw them growing yellow and flabby and unfit and the spectacle didn't attract him. He decided that success had better come late or even not at all rather than at the price of a ruined body. Health became to him the choicest of the mercies, the best of life's comrades. Up and away the person in health can dash—to another job, to another clime, master of his fate. Ill health is a chain that ties to the dreariness of what is nearest at hand. After a youth of weakness and fatigue the man was happy in finding that an hour of exercise a day changed the aspect of the outer world and removed him for all time from the ranks of the unfit.—Collier's.

Honored by Precedent.

A well known Washington minister tells of a couple who came to him to be married. The bridegroom was upon his third matrimonial venture, the bride upon her second.

"Please stand up," said the clergyman, prepared to pronounce the necessary words.

The bride looked at the bridegroom. The bridegroom looked at the bride. Then he said politely but firmly:

"We have generally sat."—Exchange.

"Why should they?"

"Because to see him is good for sore eyes."—Baltimore American.

Norway and Trotting Horses. From tales of travel and other sources of information it appears that Norway was one of the first countries to develop speed in the trotting horse, which centuries ago seems to have been common to the nations of northern Europe. Sigfried Petersen says that as early as the beginning of the eighteenth century there were informal trotting races in Christiania. The principal name in the history of the sport is that of Jacob Meyer, chief of the royal mounted militia, who was born in 1781. He owned the noted horse Sleijner-Varg that on March 15, 1829, trotted an English mile in 2:37 and repeated in the same time. This was faster than any horse had then trotted in America, so far as is known. In Sweden and in Finland the sport of trotting horses dates back, it is said, to prehistoric times. With long winters and nothing else to do the people raced their horses to sleighs on the ice. Sunday morning was the great occasion, men and horses coming from miles around to take part in or witness the sport.—New York Herald.

Her Early Life in Germany. In her book entitled "Scenes and Memories" Walburga Lady Paget has tried to say of her early life in Germany: "We ran about without shoes or stockings in the grass; we wore a minimum of clothes; in summer we were plunged into the river, a wide and rushing mountain stream; in winter we had to break the ice in our tubs and our nurses dashed basins of icy water over our backs. I can still feel the thin bits of ice mixed with the water slithering down over me. A fire in our bedrooms was never thought of, and the schoolroom was never more than 9 degrees Reaumur (52 F.). I was fourteen or fifteen before I knew what it was to have something to drink at breakfast, as I did not like milk. Bread, with a little butter, was all I ever had. An egg for a child, if it was not ill, was considered quite absurd. Between meals we were given abundance of fruit."

Romance of a Picture. Half a century ago a medical student lodging in London so ingratiated himself in the eyes of his landlady that on his departure for Hobart to practice she asked him to accept a souvenir of his London home, and he took a picture which had been in his sitting room. This picture remained in his house for upward of forty years without attracting any particular notice, but then its hour struck, for a visitor detected merit in it and advised the owner to forward a description of it to London. He did so, and the picture, which turned out to be a Romney, fetched 3,500 guineas. The best of the story is that the Tasmanian editor who printed an account of the matter gave the price as 350 guineas, saying that he did so because he did not believe that any picture could be worth the larger sum.—London Sphere.

Crime and Penalty. When Mrs. Wiffles recently meted out punishment to Master George, Wiffles with a carpet beater that young gentleman gave vent to such weeping and wailing that the lady next door was constrained to perk her head over the back yard fence and inquire what was the matter.

"Got about a couple o' 'undred feet o' gas inside him, that's wots the matter," Mrs. Wiffles replied.

"Couple o' 'undred feet o' gas!" echoed the lady somewhat incredulously. "Wot on earth's 'e been doin' 'akkin' the gas pipe for a feedin' bottle?"

"No, 'e ain't!" snapped Mrs. Wiffles. "'E's been swallowin' the stillin' wot I laid by for the gas meter."—London Tit-Bits.

Alpine Egg Dance. A curious eastern custom has been observed for many centuries in the western Alps. One hundred eggs are distributed over a level space covered with sand and the young men and women perform a dance around them. If a couple are fortunate enough to finish the dance without breaking an egg it is taken as a token of the compatibility of their temperaments and they are betrothed.

Montenegro's Stones. Montenegro has, after all, some reason to be grateful for its stones. "It is in these stones," writes William Miller, "that the Black mountain has found its best fortifications—for artificial forts it has none—and it was not till the time of the present prince (now King Nicholas) that the Napoleonic idea of making a road across the country was carried out. Even now it is not by any means certain that this improved means of communication will not be a source of danger in the future."

Napoleon in the early years of the nineteenth century offered to construct a roadway across the principality at his own expense, but his overtures were summarily rejected. He then threatened to lay waste the country with fire and sword till his name became Monte Rosso ("the red mountain") instead of Montenegro. The threat, however, was never carried out.—London Chronicle.

Sightseeing. The visitor from Wyoming was seeing New York under the guidance of his friend Washington Square.

"I'd like to see the Bronx zoo," he said. "I have read about it for years. How do we get to it?"

"Search me," said Mr. Square. "I've never been there."

"And you have lived in New York all your life? That's humorous."

Later the New Yorker confided to his friend that one of his fondest ambitions was to see Yellowstone park. "It must be glorious out there among all those mountains and geysers and lakes," he said. "You know all about it, of course, coming from Wyoming as you do."

"To tell the truth," replied the westerner, "that's a place where I have never been."—Newark News.

London's First Steam Bus. Lady Dorothy Nevill, who remembered when sedan chairs were used, remembered also and mentions in her reminiscences the first London steam-bus, which ran for the first time in 1825. The inventor was Walter Hancock, and the first appearance of the vehicle, a cumbersome affair named the "Era," created much excitement. It carried fourteen passengers and ran from Paddington to the bank at a charge of sixpence all the way. Its success led to the introduction of several other busses, but they were withdrawn in consequence of the turnpike acts of 1840.

Pictureque Importance. Dumas was in an artist's studio once when a lady asked his advice about two famous pictures she had. She could not make up her mind whether to sell them or not, and she consulted Dumas.

"My good lady," said the novelist, "while you have these pictures you are an interesting personality. If you sell them you will be nobody. Keep them!"—Cris de Paris.

YOU CAN HELP PURE FOOD CRUSADE

By HOLLAND.

EVERY ONE appreciates the importance of pure food. All appreciate the danger in adulteration, the risk in substitution.

You can aid the pure food movement and at the same time aid yourself. How? Merely by buying articles that are of known purity and merit.

How can you know these articles? By watching the advertising columns in this paper and in other papers. Manufacturers who advertise have confidence in their goods and are willing to have themselves and their products known. Makers of substitutes and "just-as-goods" usually hide behind anonymity or use a meaningless firm name or brand.

PROTECT YOURSELF BY PROTECTING THE PUBLIC

There can be no better guarantee of the purity and merit of an article than the fact that it is widely advertised.

On What Happiness Depends.

A little thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends on the way other people bear themselves toward you. The looks and tones at your breakfast table, the conduct of your fellow workers or employers, the faithful or unreliable men you deal with, what people say to you on the street, the way your cook and housemaid do their work, the letters you get, the friends or foes you meet—these things make up very much of the pleasure or misery of your day. Turn the idea around and remember that just so much are you adding to the pleasure or misery of other people's days. And this is the half of the matter which you can control. Whether any particular day shall bring to you more of happiness or of suffering is largely beyond your power to determine. Whether each day of your life shall give happiness or suffering rests with yourself.—George S. Merriam.

The Beautiful Lyre Bird.

The largest and handsomest of all the song birds is the lyre bird. Its home is in Australia, where its song is heard morning and evening. It is heard oftener in winter than in summer. The chief beauty of the lyre bird is in the plumage of its tail, which is elegant and in the form of an ancient lyre. While singing the lyre bird spreads its tail over its head like a peacock and droops its wings to the ground. This bird is not only a fine songster, but can imitate the songs of all birds. One living near a wood sawyer's but even imitated the sound of the filing of saws. The crowing of cocks, the cackling of hens, the barking of dogs and the meowing of cats are within its range. Its own song is also different from that of other birds, being a louder and fuller tone.

A GLIMPSE OF SMYRNA.

Its Greatest Business Street is Only Fifteen Feet Wide.

Let us in imagination go ashore at Smyrna from one of the great black steamships of the Messageries Maritimes. We land on a noisy, bustling quay alongside of which runs a little one horse railway. Great ships from most of the leading ports of the world are tied up to the quay by their sterns. On the other side of the broad street, the only one in Smyrna to which this adjective can be applied, are large warehouses and one or two pretentious hotels.

Passing through a cross street, we come to the great business artery of the city, the so-called "Frank street," which has doubtless obtained its name from the fact that so many Franks, a generic name for foreigners, do business on it.

This street is only fifteen feet wide, and yet it is the chief business thoroughfare of a city of a quarter of a million inhabitants. Two people stretching out their arms and touching hands in the middle could span the street, and yet through it hurries a constant stream of foot passengers, dashing cabs, stately camels, donkeys and donkey boys, beasts of burden and men of burden, carrying every conceivable article that people of the orient or the occident might want, for this is one of the chief cities in the world where east and west meet on a common footing.—Christian Herald.

GERMS IN THE BLOOD.

Why Fever and Chills Alternate When a Person Has Malaria.

When the germs of malaria—real live animals these, belonging to the order protozoa—enter the blood with the saliva of the biting mosquito they instantly attack the red corpuscles. Each one eats its way into a corpuscle and after a brief rest divides itself into sixteen. What is left of the corpuscle is now dead. It breaks down, and the sixteen new germs—plasmodia, as the doctors call them—are set free in the blood. Each of these instantly seeks out a new red corpuscle, which it attacks in the same way.

This process, in the ordinary malaria, takes just forty-eight hours. When the germs are eating the red corpuscles the temperature of the body is increased, causing fever. When the multiplied germs are discharged into the blood the whole body feels as if chilled. This causes the shivers and shakes that usually come every alternate day and that have given us the common name "chills and fever."

So when you have the chill you may know that your broken down red corpuscles are discharging myriads of germs into your blood, and when the chill gives way to fever you may know that these germs are busy attacking your red corpuscles.—New York World.

Mother Had the Failing Too.

The visitor had dropped in "just for a minute," but she remained about three hours after the minute was up. Little Freddie had formed several plans, the execution of which must be postponed till the departure of his mother's guest. So he sat quietly thinking things.

"Dear little man," gushed the visitor. "And what is he thinking about so deeply?" "I was wondering if it wasn't time for you to be going," said Freddie. "Hush!" said his mother. Then, turning to her guest: "You mustn't be offended, Mrs. Smith. Children will go blurring out the truth without thinking. But they don't mean anything by it."

Strangely enough, it was just then that Mrs. Smith recollected that she had only three minutes in which to catch the last car home.—London Telegraph.

Exhumation of Milton.

One of the most curious instances of exhumation was that of Milton's remains at the parish church of St. Giles, Cripplegate. Doubts having been expressed as to the exact position of the grave, the ground was opened in 1790. A struggle for relics followed, bones, teeth and hair being seized by the parish officials. Crowds flocked to the church and paid the gravedigger 6d per head to see the remains, while the workmen engaged there shared in the plunder by refusing admission to any one who would not pay the price of a pot of beer. And finally the poor rector, who had not shared in the spoils, brought an action "for the recovery of dues unjustly withheld from him."—London Chronicle.

Unappreciated Help.

The doctor was once called in to treat the spoiled child of the family. After his departure the mother returned to the room and told the child that the doctor had complained that he had been very rude to him.

ANCIENT SKYSCRAPERS.

Roman Houses Were Tall and Flimsy, the Streets Narrow Lanes.

The tenement house is no new thing. So great was the number of such houses and so badly were they put up in ancient Rome that in 69 A. D. the Emperor Otho, who was then marching against Vitellius, found his way barred for twenty miles by the ruins of buildings that had been undermined by an inundation. The spontaneous collapse of tenement houses was so common an occurrence that little attention was paid to it.

The tenants of these houses have been described by a writer of the time as fearing to be buried or burned alive. Companies existed for the purpose of propping and sustaining houses.

In comparison with the tenements of most modern cities, those of Rome were excessively high. Martial alludes to a poor man, a neighbor, who had to mount 200 steps to reach his garret. That garret must have been perched nearly 100 feet above the level of the street.

It is possible that Martial exaggerated, but it is certain that Augustus, to make less frequent the occurrence of disasters, limited the height of new houses that opened upon the streets to about sixty-eight feet. As this was a remedial regulation and referred only to new houses fronting on the street, it follows that some houses must have exceeded that height.

This, moreover, was irrespective of the breadth of the street. In Berlin the medium width of the streets is twenty-two meters, and in Paris the narrowest streets are nearly eight meters wide, while the streets of Rome extended only five or six meters, and on these narrow streets the tall houses were built. Light and air must have had some difficulty in penetrating those narrow, walled-in passages.

SARDOU AT REHEARSALS.

He Worried the Actors to Scowls and the Actresses to Tears.

Sardou, the great French playwright, knew how to profit by the views of other people. Jerome A. Hart writes in his book "Sardou and the Sardou Plays":

"Like Alexandre Dumas pere, Sardou was extremely sensitive to the opinions of the less subtle spectators of his rehearsals. He closely watched and heeded the impressions and comments of the stage carpenters, scene painters, firemen, supers and other humble people behind the scenes. They represented to him the average mind of the average audience. To the opinions of actors of his unproduced pieces he paid little heed; to the opinions of critics, none at all. At rehearsals no details escaped him. He would seat himself on the stage chairs and sofas, open and shut the practicable doors, go to the back of the parterre to study the perspective of the scene, climb to the highest gallery to see if the audience there could hear, and then hasten back to the stage.

"There he would seat himself, jumping up during the rehearsal thirty or forty times to show the actors his idea of the action. In doing this he would laugh, would cry, would shriek and would even die a mimic death. Coming to life again, he would call for his overcoat and hasten to muffle himself up as before. He was very sensitive to cold and always came on the stage with a heavy coat, a muffler and cap to protect him from drafts.

"He would rehearse from 10 in the morning until 3, when he would take a sandwich and a glass of wine. After this he would resume his work until 5, at which hour he would go blithely forth into the street, smiling and humming, 'followed,' as one resentful player put it, 'by scowling actors and weeping actresses.'"

The Idler Works Hard.

Work, ideally, should be congenial, fruitful, and the worker aware of his worth to the world. Nobody works harder than the idler. He has on his hands the dire task of killing time. Knowing the awfulness of vacuity, he fills the day with a semblance of activity and while gnawing at his peace is conscious of the barren folly of it all. The finest argument for real work is the spectacle of its counterfeit presentment—Richard Burton in the Bellman.

A Secret

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

The day I was twenty-one years old I was walking in the street when a gentleman accosted me, saying:

"You are Joseph Stirling, I believe."

"I am," I replied, surprised, for I had no knowledge of the man whatever.

"If you will call on me at my office you will hear something which you may or may not consider to your advantage. But I warn you to say nothing about this meeting until you have heard what I have to say."

Handing me a card with his name, Francis Doyle, and his address on it, he turned away and was soon lost in the crowd.

I was naturally much disconcerted. I walked about aimlessly for an hour, then went to the address given me.

"Today you come into an inheritance of $300,000," he said to me.

"What?"

He repeated.

"You don't mean it?"

"But I have something else to tell you that you may not wish to hear."

I paled and waited.

"You are not the son of either of your parents nor the brother of your supposed brothers and sisters."

This was indeed a blow. I dearly loved all of those he had mentioned. I had no heart to ask him to proceed, but he did.

"When your supposed father and mother were first married no children were born to them. This was a great disappointment to your father especially. Friction came between them, and they separated. In time your supposed mother, believing that the birth of a child would bring back her husband, took you from your mother when you were born and wrote him that a child had been born to her and him. He returned to her, and a reconciliation was established.

"Those whom you have considered your brothers and sisters came on, the real children of Mr. and Mrs. Stirling. Only Mrs. Stirling knows that you are not her son. Your own mother was of good family who made a runaway match with your father. He was unable to take care of her and died, the cause of his death being his poverty. You were born shortly after his death, and at that time it occurred to Mrs. Stirling to offer an adopted son to her husband instead of a real one.

"Your own mother placed with a law firm a record of your birth and the persons who had adopted you. That was twenty-one years ago. I was then a clerk in the employ of the firm and am now the firm myself. Cousins of yours who would have inherited certain property have died, and you are the heir. It has become my duty to notify you of your inheritance. This has involved giving you the other information concerning your birth. If you accept the fortune the secret must come out, for your supposed father must necessarily know whence came your fortune. What change this may make in the present relations between husband and wife it is impossible to tell."

He had given me the situation in a nutshell. I was like a weather vane in a changing wind—two air currents disputing for the mastery. On the one side there was the possession of $300,000, on the other the revelation of a secret that would give my dear mother pain—I could not at once consider her as not my mother—make trouble between her and father and make known to my brothers and sisters that I was of a different family.

But all this was not in complete possession of my mind. The shock I had received on learning that I did not really belong to those I loved was uppermost. I dreaded the first meeting with them all after the information I had received. I should certainly give away the fact that there was something on my mind, and doubtless mother would suspect what it was. What a life she must have led, dreading always that her secret would come out!

"Well," said the attorney, "I presume you will take time to recover from the information I have given you; and devise some means of softening the blow to Mr. Stirling?"

"I will think over what is best to be done in the premises," I replied, "and let you know."

I left him a different man from what I had been when I entered his office. Going to a telephone, I called up my home and informed the household that I was going somewhere with a friend and could not tell just when I would be at home. How I wished I could go to father or mother for advice! This being obliged to settle so important a matter without any one to consult with, was, to say the least, trying.

The next day I went home. For the others it was the same home it always had been, but an invisible gulf had come between them and me. Father welcomed me; mother kissed me with her wonted affection.

The same afternoon I gave in my decision to the attorney. My fortune went into a hospital, the name of the donor being kept secret. I signed a lot of papers and departed somewhat relieved. The evening I spent at home trying to analyze the madness I felt. It was not for the loss of a fortune, but for the knowledge that had come to me.

The secret has been kept. Mother does not know that I am aware of it, and she shall never know. We are the same happy family, but I wish that lawyer could have got rid of my patrimony without my knowledge.

The County Levy

On our first page will be found a synopsis of the levy made by the County Commissioners last Tuesday. The levy in detail will be published in a succeeding issue.

The county rate for 1913 is 98 cents on the $100. The State rate is 31 cents making a total of $1.29. The taxable basis of the county is $7,772,180. The levy for this year gives a rate a trifle less than that for last year which was $1.30.

The Commissioners have endeavored to discharge their arduous duties in a faithful manner and to save the tax-payers at every point possible. In the matter of the two largest items, the public schools and the roads, they have leveled all that they thought the people of the county could stand, that for the former being $22,000 and the latter $30,000. The State rate being unusually high and the Commissioners having no control whatever over this, they have endeavored to adjust the county rate to a sum that would compensate for such an increase. The State rate being 71 cents higher than last year, the county rate has been reduced from $1.07 to 98 cents.

Taking the whole levy into consideration, the Commissioners are to be commended rather than criticised. The county basis is not large and for that reason it takes a good high rate to produce sufficient money to run the county. That the Commissioners have been able to reduce it all, is a matter of congratulation.

Paste Pot and Shears

The Crisfield Times in its last issue takes the MARYLANDER AND HERALD to task for an article of current news gleaned from several Baltimore dailies. The MARYLANDER AND HERALD published the excerpts for what they were worth and made no attempt to editorialize upon them, or to express an opinion pro or con.

Our esteemed neighbor, The Crisfield Times, knows full well the value of those newspaper assistants, the paste pot and shears, and uses them rather freely itself. If The Times had spent part of its valuable time in publishing the MARYLANDER AND HERALD's denial of the story about Hon. Joshua W. Miles having "barely missed" a big Federal job, gobbled from the Baltimore American, it would have been more to the purpose than chasing around for something else. Steam has to be blown off sometimes, but it certainly seems a waste of that article to direct it to a topic of current news.

The Crisfield Times should be more discriminating, and as an adept in the art of country publishing with the aid of paste pot and shears, ought to know newspaper clippings when it sees them.

Is Love a Form of Lunacy?

We hope all the true, romantic lovers in Maryland will pounce upon the "clergyman" who in The Sun's letter column denounces love as a species of lunacy. It is a slender old as the moon, but none the less outrageous for all that. Love is a sign of insanity, indeed! It is the only condition of real sanity. It is the only condition of real happiness. It is the only condition of real life. The man who has never experienced it has never lived. The man who relapses from it has lost his mental and moral balance. The man who has never tasted it has missed the supreme bliss of existence. The man who never to himself hath said, "This is my own, my only one, my precious tootsy-wootsy," or the girl who never to herself hath said, "This is the king of men and chief among ten thousand," is fit only for treason, stratagems and spoils, and will go down to the congenial soil from which he or she sprung, unwept, unhonored and unused by the masses as well as by the poets and novelists.

Ask any June bride if every word of this is not true; ask any June groom and see how many stacks of Bibles he will swear his fervent affirmations on. Love insanity, quotha! We hear once more the word "scur" from the cynical and disappointed fox who could not reach the grapes. We feel sorry for this unhappy man. But he cannot mar the happiness of the world with his philosophic refrigerating processes. Be happy, fond lovers everywhere, and may you never awake to the "sanity" of the iceberg. If love be lunacy, you might well wish, for sweet charity's sake, that all the world were mad.—Baltimore Sun.

Corporation Tax From Maryland

The prosperity of those corporations in the State of Maryland which are subject to the annual corporation tax under the business excise feature of the Payne tariff law of 1900, is clearly reflected in the reports made to the Treasury Department on the collection of the corporation tax for the fiscal year 1913, which closed on the 30th ulto.

The reports from the internal revenue district of Maryland, received at the Treasury Department—Tuesday, show that the amount of corporation tax collected from Maryland during the fiscal year of 1913 was $695,693.44. This tax is paid at the rate of 1 per cent. on the net income from the business done by corporations subject to the tax. It is paid on the net income of the corporation over and above the exemption of $5,000, which is allowed to each corporation. So that the amount of tax collected in the fiscal year 1913 shows that the taxable income of the corporations in the Maryland districts for that year was $69,569,344. During the fiscal year of 1912 the corporations paid from the Maryland district a total tax of $558,574.37 on a total taxable income during the year amounting to $55,857,437.

According to this showing those corporations in the State of Maryland, which are subject to the federal income tax, enjoyed a net taxable income during the fiscal year 1913 of $13,711,907 greater than their net taxable income of the year before. This was an increase in their business of about 24 per cent. in a single year.

The showing for the entire country in the corporation tax collection is very remarkable. The amount of corporation tax paid during the fiscal year was $94,948,970.58, which means that those corporations subject to the tax had a net income of $3,494,897,058 for the year just closed. In the previous fiscal year of 1912 the corporations of the country paid a tax under this law of $28,583,259.81, which shows that their taxable income during that year was $2,858,325.981. From these figures it is apparent that those corporations which were subject to the tax had an increase of $66,365,720.57 in their net income in a single year.

The Salisbury Verdict

Whether the coroner's jury in the Wainwright case has fixed the blame for the young woman's death upon the guilty person only a jury of his peers can determine after prosecution and defense shall have had their day in court. The coroner's jury has at last made progress, however, in bringing the case to a definite head by asserting the guilt of the person to whom, it is necessary to assume, the evidence pointed most strongly.

Whether the charge of "felonious homicide" is the proper one the grand jury will determine. Doubtless the indictment, if returned, will take more careful account of the circumstances. Where the charge of homicide might fail, even in the event of proof of the accused's complicity in the girl's condition from which her death resulted, a charge of aiding and abetting a criminal operation or of practicing medicine without a license might insure substantial justice. These are questions for the grand jury faithfully to determine upon the preliminary evidence.

The whole state expects, however, a determined prosecution on whatever charge of the person who shall be named in the indictment, and that there shall be no suggestion of a disposition in official circles to hush up any feature of the case.

Someone is guilty of direct complicity in the death of Florence Wainwright. The case has attracted wide attention, largely because of the hesitancy which marked the proceedings before the finding of the verdict of the coroner's jury. Maryland may be said to be on trial as to the equality of her public justice as between having "influence" and those who lack it.—Baltimore Star.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Finds Wealth in Cabbage

Charles M. Hammond, one of the best known real estate dealers in lower Delaware, tried the experiment of growing cabbage in large quantities for the city markets this year. Up to the present time he has shipped to Philadelphia alone 600 crates, for which he has received prices ranging from $2.25 to $2.65 per crate. The largest part of his cabbage crop is yet to be harvested, and Hammond expects to realize $1500 on it.

When "Old Sol" Gets Fierce

The complaint of shivery cold weather has hardly passed our lips when "Old Sol," who seemingly loves a grim joke, hot or cold, puts the whole country under a sweating blanket. There is a peculiar vindictiveness about heat when it searches us out. However bitingly cold the weather every movement of the body tends to afford some relief. Exactly opposite is the case when the heat wilts mind and body and puts us strangely out of tune with anything that comes to disturb our native and perfectly forgivable laziness.

When the thermometer mounts in close proximity to the hundred-degree mark we begin to hunt for some draughtily avenue or sigh dolefully for the sight and sound of the foamy breakers. We want the preacher to take a cool text and our neighbor to bury his talent for argument. And it is all brought about by just a few units more of solar heat landing down upon our little suffering earth. Then there comes the usual list of prostrations and some loss of life by the sizzling wave that parches the gardens, makes the leaves hang limp, and drives the nimble cricket to cover.

It is best not to think about the heat, but rather in thought, in diet and in habit to keep as cool as possible. But as was long ago remarked—"nature is a rum un, sir." Only yesterday it seems the house-dog was whining to get indoors away from the chilly blast. Today we envy him his chosen spot under the shade trees. Those inclined to grumble at the weather should reflect that one touch of frost would more than kill out their argument against the heat. Meantime, court every breeze that blows.—Philadelphia Press.

Origin of Irish Lace

Irish lace originated from the failure of the potato crop that caused the famine of 1846. The abbess of a convent in County Cork, looking about for some lucrative employment to help the half-starved children who attended her schools, unraveled, thread by thread, a scrap of point de Milan, and finally mastered the complicated details. She then selected the girls who were quickest of needlework, and taught them what she had painfully learned. The new industry prospered, and one of the pupils, in a pardonable "bull" declared that "if it had not been for the famine we would all have been starved."—From the Westminster Gazette.

No. 2,889, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situated in said Somerset County, of which William Robertson, late of Somerset County deceased, died seized and possessed, to pay the debts of said William Robertson. The bill states that the said William Robertson, at the time of his death, was indebted to Herschel V. Maddox on two judgments and an open account, and to the Peoples Bank of Somerset County, on a promissory note, all of which since the death of the said William Robertson, having been assigned to the plaintiff, she having fully paid the same, that the said William died on or about the 3rd day of September, 1912, intestate, leaving no personal property of any value, but being seized and possessed of a lot or parcel of land situate in Fairmount Election District, and lying and binding on a private road leading to the Home Place of the late John H. Fontaine; that the said William left surviving him a widow, Rose Robertson, who has since died, and the following children and grand-children, as his sole heirs at law: Sarah Robertson, Montford Robertson, who married Nellie Robertson, Grace Robertson, Oassie Robertson, and Anna Johnson, who married Daniel Johnson, Mary Maddox, who married Reuben Maddox, all of whom are of full age; also Elizabeth Robertson, an infant daughter of a deceased son, William Robertson, Clarence Robertson and Susie Robertson, both infants, children of another deceased son, Melvin Robertson, all of said children and descendants being non-residents of the State of Maryland except Sarah Robertson, Elizabeth Robertson, Mary Maddox and Reuben Maddox.

It is thereupon this 3rd day of July, 1913, ordered by the clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of August, next, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 27th day of August next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed, as prayed.

Prohibition and Consumption of Liquor

Territorially, the tide of prohibition has been steadily rising during the past two decades. County after county, state after state, has passed under prohibition until now fully one-half the population of the United States are under prohibition. The population under prohibition territory through Local Option is 25,128,689, and the States that are under prohibition represent a population of 14,685,952, a total of 39,812,641. This is a wonderful showing for the cause of prohibition.

But, strange to say, the consumption of distilled liquors in the United States keeps on increasing, despite the large increase in prohibition territory and prohibition population. The increase during last year was 847,580 gallons, the largest in any year of the country's history. It is predicted that the increase for the fiscal year ended June 30 will be even larger.

Evidently, prohibition does not prohibit. If it did, the consumption of liquors would decrease with the increase of prohibition territory and population, not increase. The paradoxical presentation made by the facts and figures we have quoted prove that our brand of prohibition is very much of a farce.—Wilmington Evening.

Political Announcements

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND
A Candidate for Sheriff
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County, Maryland:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Somerset County, Maryland, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held during the year 1913, in Somerset County, Maryland.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND.

JOHN W. WEST
A Candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic Primary.

While it is an honor to become a member of the General Assembly, I care but little for the honor. Any man who is worthy to be called a man is ambitious. My chief ambition in this matter is to serve with time and thought the whole people of this county and to be of service to the State. To me it will be a greater pleasure to help others than to be helped, to serve rather than to be served.

With a knowledge of the opportunities in other States, I believe I should be able by contrast to see the opportunities on the "Shore" for greatly increased business activities. The Peninsula is within five hundred miles of about half the population of this country. The possibilities for development are great and very much may be done by legislation that should result in launching a great forward movement of progress. If I win in the primaries and at the regular election, you may be assured that my time, best thought and energy will be devoted to the best interests of the people.

I shall be pleased to hear from any one interested in my election and desire workers in every community. I am opposed, however, to voters making unqualified pledges to support any candidate in the Primary, for often by undue influence men have been led to make positive promises to support a particular candidate and on or before the day of election regretted they were bound. I wish to see men free to obtain all the information possible up to the day of the election, and then guided with knowledge and conscience cast a ballot for what they believe to be the best interest of the people.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset County by one who has a vital interest in the greatest good to the greatest number.
JOHN W. WEST.

—Miss Mildred Dashiell, of Baltimore, and Miss Lulu Huntmann, of Washington, are visiting Mrs. C. M. Dashiell, on Beckford Avenue.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wier, of Baltimore, were guests over the Fourth at the home of the latter's uncle, Hon. Joshua W. Miles, on Main street.

—Mr. F. Stanley Porter, of Somerset county, director of athletics at Washington College, Chestertown, has resigned to take up the study of law.

—The appointments of Registration and Election Officers made by the Board of Election Supervisors last week will be found on the 8th page of this paper.

—Mr. Irving T. Hastings, aged 25 years, died Wednesday at the home of his father at Nassawadox, Va. He was agent of the N. Y. & N. R. R. at Maspigono.

—Both the Banks of Princess Anne closed for the Fourth and did not reopen until yesterday (Monday) thus giving the officials the benefit of the double holiday.

—Mr. John A. T. Holland, of Dublin district, makes his announcement, in another column, of his candidacy for sheriff of Somerset county subject to the Democratic primaries.

—Mr. Herschel Ford, Treasurer of Maryland Agricultural College, was in Princess Anne last Thursday on his way to Fairmont, where he expected to spend the national holiday.

—Dr. John Robinson, of Onancock, Va., Dr. George Coulbourn, of Marion, and Miss Lulu Price, of Snow Hill, attended the Smink-Long wedding at Westover on Monday of last week.

—The N. Y. P. & N. R. R. will operate its first Special Moonlight Excursion from Pocomoke, Crisfield, Delmar and intermediate points to Ocean City, and return on Thursday, July 17th. Train leaves Princess Anne at 2 o'clock p. m. Returning leaves Ocean City at 9:30 p. m. Fare for round trip $1.00.

—On and after July 10th freight rates on packed ice cream will be as follows: B. C. & A. Ry., P. S. C. Md.—Baltimore to points on Nanticoke, Pocomoke, Potomac and Wicomico river lines advanced to 8 cents a gallon. N. Y. P. & N. R. R., P. S. C. Md.—Crisfield to various local stations 35 cents cwt.

—The Blue and Gray celebrated the anniversary of the battles of Gettysburg at that famous Pennsylvania battleground last week, and the scenes, the dells and the groves, the wide sweep of meadow and the woodlands that were once the cannon-scarred arena of a mighty carnage, were the tented cities of peace and the spirit of unity and fraternity.

—The Fourth of July was rather a quiet day in Princess Anne. The morning was somewhat lively with the firing of crackers, the outgoing of picnickers and excursionists, but the afternoon was almost as quiet as Sunday. The colored people had a parade in the late afternoon headed by their band. At night fireworks were displayed in many sections and a number of balloons of curious designs made their ephemeral ascensions.

—Another complaint against the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company was filed with the Public Service Commission last week, the complainant being Manager W. B. S. Powell of the Atlantic Hotel, at Ocean City. Manager Powell alleges that the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic "dumps" —that's the term used—its excursionists on the property of the hotel company. Prior to this season the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic, says the complainant, paid the hotel $500 for the privilege of "dumping" the excursionists there. This year there has been no payment. Hence, the complaint.

Summer School's Big Attendance

With an attendance of 200, far exceeding that of the last two years, the third session of the Johns Hopkins Summer School opened last Tuesday morning in McCoy, Hall at the university. The session closes August 12. It is expected that the present enrollment will be increased to 300 students.

Prof. E. F. Buchner is head of the department of education and philosophy of the school. The staff of teachers includes educators from different parts of the country.

A "demonstration school," and original idea of Dr. Buchner's, which will be a part of the summer school, has attracted unusual interest among teachers and educators, due, perhaps, to the reason that this is the first experiment of the kind to be made. Under the direction of Miss Florence M. Lane of the State Normal School of Missouri, 45 children from rural schools will be used for the experiment. The instruction thus gained, it is said, will be of large value to teachers, especially first-year teachers, in obtaining discipline among the children in the primary departments of schools.

A number of housewives have enrolled for the course of domestic science. Instruction in woodwork, carving and leather has been added to the manual training course, which has attracted a number of students.

In conjunction with the Johns Hopkins Summer School in several courses of lectures and entertainments is the summer session at the Peabody Institute which also began its classes that morning. More than 90 students, twice the number of last year, are enrolled for the session, which Frederick R. Huber, director of the school, says will be the most successful ever held of this kind.

KUKLUX, the 3-year-old

The Price of a Week's Board

By RUTH GRAHAM

Tom Burns, a farmer's boy, who didn't like farm work, went from Illinois into the wild west. There he wandered about, making a living as best he could, but there was little for him to do, except kill the animals of the wilderness either for their meat or their skins. During his wanderings Tom married the daughter of a settler who had come from Ohio. She wished to get back to that state as much as her husband wanted to return to Illinois. But instead of drifting eastward they drifted farther westward, for as civilization encroached upon them the wild animals, by which Tom made a living, became scarce, and they were obliged to find new hunting grounds.

So at last they found themselves in a gulch where game was plenty and neighbors were few. It was a desolate life, especially for the woman. Tom offered to take her wife east, but she knew he had never fitted himself for the work to be done there, and she preferred to remain where they were rather than run the risk of starving in her former home.

One day a man came trudging up the gulch and, stopping at the Burns cabin, asked Mrs. Burns if he could be accommodated for a short time. She told him that her husband would be home soon and then she could give him an answer. The stranger said he would pay well for his board. When Tom returned it was agreed between him and his wife that they would take the stranger in, though there was only one room in the cabin, and they were obliged to sleep in the same room, divided into two parts by a curtain.

The man went out every morning prospecting for something—he didn't say what—and every night returned to the cabin. He remained with the Burns couple a week, then said to them:

"I'm going away from here, and I can't pay you any board. I have been told that an article is to be found in this region that is very valuable. Had I found it I could have paid you thousands of dollars for my keep. As it is I can't pay you anything."

"That's all right, stranger," said John. "We wouldn't have felt warranted in charging you over $4 a week, so it doesn't matter much."

"It matters more to me than to you, it may be that I've missed the deposit I've been looking for, and some day you may stumble on it. But you won't recognize it if you do. I'm going to leave you some chemicals, and if you ever come across the article I refer to and mix it with the chemicals and burn the compound it will give a green flame."

It gave them some idea of what the substance looked like in its crude form. John, pouring the chemicals from his rock into bottles, left them with him, took his address, telling them if they ever found the article to write him and he would make them rich.

A month passed after the stranger's departure and the Burnses would have almost forgotten his coming had it not been for the bottles he had left them that stood in the cupboard. One day John, instead of hunting in the gulch and the region thereabout, went down to its mouth and, rounding a mountain peak, entered a valley. He encountered a trapper, who told him that nothing could live there, not even animals, and there was no use for him to try to get any game there. So desolate was the place that it was called Death Valley. John had heard of it and concluded to have a look at it before going home. So he wandered about in it, he hadn't gone far before he saw scattered about a substance that answered the description his boarder had given him. He gathered some of it and took it home with him.

After supper, while his wife was washing the dishes, he took a piece of the substance he had brought from Death Valley and, putting it in a tin can, he poured the chemicals over it and set fire to it. As he did so his wife, seated in wiping a dish and watching him. As the flame burst forth the two looked at each other with surprise and pleasure.

It burned green.

The couple talked that night over anxious plans to secure what value there might be in their find to themselves. They thought of presenting a claim for the ground where they had found the substance, but realized that they were too poor and too ignorant of the subject to handle it themselves, so they wrote to their lodger that they sought they had found what he had been looking for. He came to see them, and John showed him a specimen of the find and also that it burned green. The stranger uttered an exclamation of delight.

"That is borax," he said, "used for washing purposes in every household in America."

He told John that if he would tell him where it lay he would form a company to take the ground, work it and would give John half of all he got out of it himself. John accepted the proposition, and an agreement was written out and signed by both according to the terms.

It turned out the stranger had a large sum of money behind him with which he retained 20 per cent. of the stock. Of this he assigned one-half to John, which gave him more money than he and his wife could spend. They went back to the east, where they lived in comfort for the rest of their lives.

Modern "Antiques"

There is a class of traveling Americans who put not their trust in the dealers in antiques in European cities, but go prowling about in castles and peasant houses seeking to discover for themselves rare and ancient bits of furniture, pottery and the like. So persistent and large has this class grown that the dealers, feeling the trade in spurious antiques was falling off, have resorted to the plan of stocking some of these chateaux and peasant houses with modern "period stuff." And they say that the amateur discoverers are perfectly happy in their ignorance.

One of these collectors had "discovered" and bought from a farmhouse in the Elbe, that picturesque volcanic plateau in western Prussia, a wonderfully carved cabinet. The farmhouse was at the top of a steep hill, and the American walked close to the husky porter as he carried the cabinet carefully down. The "treasure" was heavy, the day was warm, and the porter grunted at every other step.

"That's a pretty heavy load—to carry that cabinet down the hill," said the American.

"Yes," agreed the porter, stopping to rest a moment, "but it was heavier still when I took it up the hill a week ago."

A Surprising Cure of Stomach Trouble

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't imagine that your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. G. Stengle, Plainfield, N. J., writes: "For over a month past I have been troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate upset it terribly. One of Chamberlain's advertising booklets came to me. After reading a few of the letters from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to try them. I have taken nearly three-fourths of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." For sale by all dealers. [Advertisement]

The Castor Oil Plant

The rapid growth of the castor oil plant has become proverbial. Some commentators have declared that the plant known as Jonas' gourd was the castor oil plant. There are vast plains in Bengal covered with the oil producing vegetable. Immediately after the monsoon, when the water has receded, the peasant takes the mire and puts the oil plant seeds in the ground two by two. The plants rapidly develop their great leaves and produce their fruit, which grows in groups of capsules, acquiring a coppery green color mottled with purple and rich carmine. When the hot sun has dried the pods they burst. The women and children watch the pods, and when the first crack appears they are ready to catch the precious seeds within. When the seeds have dried a few days the natives toast them, crush them in a mortar and plunge them in boiling water. When the oil rises to the surface—Excerpt.

Jade

Jade is regarded by the Chinese as the most precious of precious stones. You can buy a small piece in white for $10, but a similar specimen in emerald green would cost you from $35 to $50. The value of the stone depends on the coloring and especially on transparency, luster and brilliancy of the beautiful emerald green, usually distributed in splashes through the matrix, which may be white or greenish, or even tinted with lavender. Rarely indeed does it occur in sufficient quantity to furnish a large example. Sometimes small pieces are selected to be made into beads of the purest emerald tint, free from those flecks which depreciate their worth. In the sunlight, if you examine such beads, you will find that they approach the emerald in purity of tone.—J. F. Blacker in London Opinion.

England's First Coffee

Coffee, like tea, was from an early date welcomed as a rival to alcoholic liquors. Writing in 1659, shortly after its introduction into England, Howell makes the comment "that this coffee drink hath caused a great sobriety amongst all nations. Formerly clerks, apprentices, etc., used to take their morning drafts in ale, beer or wine, which often made them unfit for business. Now they play the good fellows in this wakeful and civil drink. The worthy gentleman, Sir James Muddiford, who introduced the practice thereof first in London, deserves much respect of the whole nation."

Between Girls

"Why the cogitation?"

"I dislike to take my engagement ring to a jeweler, and yet I should like to know what it cost. But it would embarrass me to take it to a jeweler."

"You needn't. There are at least two girls in our set who have had it valued."—Kansas City Journal.

The Human Voice

A contributor to the Paris Gaulois claims that the human voice is becoming lower. He says that ten generations ago our ancestors hardly knew what a bass voice was. Today the average male voice is a baritone. A lowering of pitch is also noticeable among women. Sopranos are becoming rarer.

They Do Not Speak Now

Rid Your Children of Worms

You can change fretful, ill-tempered children into healthy, happy youngsters, by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A. Brislin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for years, and entirely rid my children of worms. I would not be without it." Guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price 25c. Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Stringent Austrian Building Laws

Austrian laws require that dwellings and business houses be built of solid material from interior to exterior. Building regulations in Austria are very strict and are rigidly enforced. Interior walls there are chiefly of plaster and concrete, but bricks and laths are much used.

Japanese Food Boxes

"Japanese dishes fail to satisfy American cravings," says an officer in the United States army. "Imagine a diet without milk, bread, butter, jam, coffee, salad or any sufficient quantity of nicely cooked vegetables without pudding, stewed fruit and with comparatively little fresh fruit. The European vegetarian will find as much difficulty in making anything out of it as the ordinary meat eater. Along the main railroad artery neat little boxes of Japanese food (bento) are offered for sale at the principal stations at a cost of 7 1/2 cents; also pots of tea, including teapot and earthen teacup, for 2 cents. The bento may contain in neat separate compartments prawn fish, chicken, rice, preserved ginger, Johnny cake, omelette, a broiled mushroom, a slice of radish, glazed beans, kind of sweet pickle, tripe, a slice of cooked chestnut, licorice, etc. The bento is inviting to the eye. It is garnished in green, is neatly wrapped and the contents varied as the resources of the locality admit."—New York Mail.

A Famous Window

York minister. In addition to its many other notable features, contains one of the most remarkable windows in the world—the east window, which is the largest in England, except that in Gloucester cathedral. It is seventy-five feet high and thirty-five feet broad. The window is divided into 200 compartments, all of which illustrate leading events in sacred history. Each pane of glass is three feet square, the figures measuring two feet four inches high. The upper part is filled with beautiful tracery and is divided from the lower by the narrow stone gallery which runs across. John Thornton of Coventry began the window in the year 1408. The ancient glazing, all of which he executed with his own hands, stands unequalled to the present day, and for this enormous task he received as wages 4 shillings a week for three years and £10 on completing his work to the satisfaction of the cathedral authorities.—London Graphic.

When Photography Was New

When photography first began they used wet plates and a sitting required eight or nine minutes. A man once went to be taken, and the photographer put in his wet plate, demanded perfect immobility and took off the cap.

During the long exposure the photographer left the room a moment. On his return everything seemed to be going all right. But when the exposure ended he rushed to his closet to develop the wet plate there was nothing on it but a blur.

Very much disgruntled, he showed this blur to the sitter.

"You must have moved," he said.

The sitter looked at the spoiled plate and laughed in amazement.

"Well, I declare," he said; "who'd have thought that just running over to the window for a minute to see a drunken man would have done all that? I sat right down again."—Minneapolis Journal.

Baldness

Men get bald more frequently than women, according to Dr. Guelpa of Paris, because they wear hard, heavy hats, they cut their hair too short and they eat more than women. Dr. Guelpa says the scalp is like soil and the hair like the vegetation that grows upon it. When the scalp is neglected the hair does not grow and its roots die, just as grass dies when the soil is poor. A heavy, hard hat constricts the blood—vessels that nourish the scalp. Clipping the hair short leaves its tender roots at the mercy of cold, heat and dust. The oil that exudes from around the roots of the hairs and keeps them nourished is conglobated by the cold and chokes up the matrix in which the hair is formed.—New York World.

Cautious Courtship

A Scottish farmer's son had the misfortune to fall in love with two young ladies at once. The one was a tall, strapping girl, while the other was small and slim. The puzzled lover at last asked his father's advice. "Well," said his father, "there's sae muckle machinery used in farmin' nowadays that a big, active wife is no' o' muckle use, so I advise ye to tak' the little one. She'll eat less, onyway!"

RAILROADS IN GERMANY.

Fine Discipline Because Employees Are All Ex-Army Men.

It is well known that practically all of the railway employees of Prussia have served in the army. When they enter the railway ranks from the army certain credits are allowed for their military service, and certain positions are reserved for army men. This military experience shows its influence on their deportment and discipline in railway service. There is a noticeable orderliness and precision about every thing connected with German railways. In respect for authority and strict observance of the rules the German railway employee has no superior.

The traveler will not fail to notice the red capped station master standing at attention on the station platform as the train passes through each station. He will also find the senior signalman, gatemen and other employees connected with the train service always in evidence, standing like sentries as the train passes. The operating official, while riding over the line, can thus take a census of all employees in positions of responsibility. When he alights at a station his rank is at once recognized. The station master immediately salutes and gives a verbal report of the situation at his station. If the official goes into a signal tower the signalman in charge salutes and reports. If he goes into an engine house the foreman salutes and gives a brief report of the work in progress.—Railway Age Gazette.

FORKS OF TREES.

They Stay Where They Develop and Never Grow Any Higher.

Some people through careless observation believe that the fork of a forest tree will gradually grow higher from the ground. If they would investigate it would be found that the forks and "heads" of fruit trees are exactly the same point where they were when first noted.

The state forester in inspecting locust and catalpa groves throughout the state has found owners who have not removed one part of the fork of those trees that have formed forks below the fencepost length, believing that in years the fork would grow up and a fencepost could be cut below the fork. This erroneous belief is the cause of so much of the delay and neglect of pruning in early life of street and roadside trees.

It should be remembered that the base of a fork or a branch of a tree will always remain at the same distance above the ground. The side branches of some trees, such as the elms, usually continue to grow upward while those of other trees, such as the maples, incline upward when young, and as the tree grows older the weight of the branches gradually brings it to the horizontal. The latter often makes the removal of large branches necessary, which not only spoils the symmetry of the tree, but usually starts decay, which soon kills the tree.—Ludiana Farmer.

The Wide, Wide World

"It's awful how easy some folks get weighted down with a new experience," began the postmaster of Woburn in the Hills, with a significant glance at "Boosey" Frazer's bowed form in the Concord wagon at the door. "That's what bent him over like that, yes," after a glance of interrogation from the only listener who was really listening. "He began to bow over soon's he realized the size of this globe of ours. You see, from one of the northern counties up 'bove here Boosey went all the way to the state capital. When he come back he looked solemn with the weight o' what he'd garnered."

"I tell you what," he says to us right here, scarcely speakin' above a whisper, 'if the world's as big 'tother way as 'tis this it's a whopper!'"—Youth's Companion.

Took Him Down

A supercilious lawyer, cross examining a young woman whose testimony was likely to result unfavorably to his client, inquired, "You are married, I believe?"

"No, sir."

"Oh—only about to be married?"

"No, sir."

"Only wish to be?"

"Really, I don't know. Would you advise such a step?"

"Oh, certainly! I am a married man myself."

"Is it possible? I never should have thought it. Is your wife deaf or blind?"—St. Louis Republic.

Didn't Have to Lean

Perhaps one of the best stories which Lady Dorothy Nevill has told about Disraeli is that concerning the occasion when a photographer asked him to pose for a photograph leaning on a chair. This at once aroused the indignation of Mrs. Disraeli. "I soon settled that," she said afterward to Lady Dorothy when relating the incident, "for I said, 'Dizzy has always stood alone, and he shall continue to do so.'"

A Good Student

"Is your boy a good student?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Wealthy. "To a certain extent he is. The way he gets his mother and me to put up with his expense accounts shows that he is a wonderful student of human nature."—Cleveland Leader.

Old Potatoes

In respect to the high cost of living, the middleman pleads "not guilty." And in many particulars he has a good defense. But the potato has recently come to the front as a witness in the case.

The new crop of potatoes is beginning to come in. The old potatoes are a drug on the market. Middlemen who have been hoarding them up for the purpose of maintaining the high prices at which they were sold during the winter are trying now to get rid of them.

In some places they are being thrown away. In others they are given away or sold for a few cents a bushel. In Kansas City last week efforts were made to save a few score carloads from rotting in the railroad yards by offering them for sale at ten cents a bushel. They failed and then the housewives' league of the city opened negotiations for 29 carloads at six cents. The railroads were ordered to sell them at any price, the proceeds to be applied upon the freight charges.

Do the middlemen lose in such cases as these? Not necessarily. A good many thousand bushels have been sold by them at fancy prices since last summer. —Cleveland Leader.

Frog Culture Profitable

The increasing demand for the bullfrog as a market commodity has led the Federal Government to investigate whether their wholesale propagation can be made a generally profitable business. The Federal fish station at Edenton, N. C., is now attempting to settle the question by experiments on a large scale, although it will be some time before the results can be definitely announced, as it takes three seasons for the bullfrog to attain its full majority.

The frog happily is quite prolific in his propagation, raising a family of several hundred during a season. The eggs are laid during the early part of June, and require about three weeks for hatching.

Father and mother frogs do not appear to be very loving parents, for scarcely has the little frog outgrown the tadpole stage, when his slightest acts of disobedience are punished by death. This death always takes the form of a sacrificial offering to the appetites of the parents. In addition, birds and some fish prey upon the young frogs. At present there are several frog farms in the United States, but these at yet are in a tentative stage. On the farm at Edenton, N. C., artificial propagation is a factor in the experimentation, and in addition the attempt to offset the parent frog's voracity is being made by keeping only frogs of the same size together.

Best Newspaper For the Family
We have no hesitancy in recommending the "Sunday Record" as ideal for home reading. No newspaper that comes to our office has more or better news—it is always clean and wholesome.

In the wide range of its feature articles we can always find many that concern us and our locality. There are articles and illustrations from all the world, stories by the best authors, jokes, cartoons, fashion and household news—everything that goes to make "good" reading. That's why we think the "Sunday Record" unsurpassed at any price, though it costs only three cents.

For Cuts, Burns and Bruises

In every home there should be a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, ready to apply in every case of burns, cuts, wounds or scalds. J. H. Polanco, Delvalle, Tex., R. No. 2, writes: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve saved my little girl's cut foot. No one believed it could be cured." The world's best salve. Only 25c. Recommended by Omer A. Jones, druggist. —Advertisement—

July 7—The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Durant West Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Leroy Long, and little daughter, of Baltimore, are visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Misses Pearl and Myrtle Noll left Monday to spend some time with relatives in Harrisburg, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow, after visiting at the home of their uncle, Mr. T. J. Adams, have returned to Baltimore.

Mr. Josephus Miller, an aged and highly esteemed citizen, died at his home on Thursday afternoon, after a lingering illness. Funeral services were held in Emmanuel M. E. Church Sunday afternoon conducted by Rev. Mr. Truitt and the interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church. Surviving Mr. Miller besides his widow (Mrs. Leah Grace Miller) are five children—Messrs. O. H. Miller and Charles Miller, of this place; Mrs. Sidney Smith, of Champ; Mrs. Nathaniel Parker, of Pocomoke City, and Mr. Calvin Miller, of the United States Navy. Mr. Miller is the son of the late Rev. James Miller and is survived by one brother, Mr. Henry Miller, of Pocomoke City, and one sister, Mrs. Matilda Dykes, of Cokesbury.

More Whiskey Drunk Than Ever

The American people drank more whiskey and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarettes and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the federal government for the 12 months ended June 30. The drinkers of the country consumed the enormous total of 143,300,000 gallons of whiskey and brandy, an increase of 7,500,000 gallons over the previous year and breaking the former high record of the fiscal year 1907 by 7,800,000 gallons. Sixty-four million five hundred thousand barrels of beer flowed down the throats of lovers of the amber brew, exceeding 1911's great record by more than 1,000,000 barrels. Smokers puffed into space 7,107,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes during the year just closed. This was 217,000,000 cigars and 2,790,000,000 cigarettes more than ever before had been consumed in a single year. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco, or 9,400,000 more than the consumption of 1912. Chewers of snuff likewise held their own, disposing 33,200,000 pounds, an increase of more than 3,000,000 pounds over the previous year. Despite the high record consumption of intoxicants, returns to the internal revenue bureau show, without explanation, that the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering only about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the federal government, brought into the United States Treasury $344,428,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

Overgrazed Stock Ranges Can Come Back

The improved condition of the national forest range after regulated grazing is pointed to by experts of the department of agriculture as a demonstration that areas which have been severely damaged through overstocking by sheep and cattle can be brought back to their former carrying power through a system of sufficiently intelligent use.

When the government took charge of the livestock ranges within the national forests some of them were so badly overgrazed and otherwise injured from reckless handling of the stock that their grazing value appeared to have been almost entirely destroyed. Many of these ranges, however, have been restored and made as valuable as ever. On several of the forests results have more than justified the expectations and the range is in better condition than it ever was.

An example of this improvement is cited in the Nebotational forest, Utah. In 1903, when that forest was created, the ranges within the forest boundaries were found to be badly overgrazed and trampled because there was a lack of any control or supervision over the areas. One of the areas was at that time estimated to be capable of carrying only 3,000 head of cattle. Now, through conservative management and judicious distribution of the cattle over the ranges, and improvements in water conditions, the carrying capacity of the range has been increased until, in the present grazing season, 3,000 head of cattle are using this particular area, and forest officers feel that a few hundred head more can be safely grazed there without injury.

Unsightly Face Spots

Are cured by Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment, which heals all skin eruptions. No matter how long you have been troubled by itching, burning, or scaly skin humors, just put a little of that soothing antiseptic, Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment, on the sores and the suffering stops instantly. An Interesting Discovery

The original copy of the Declaration of Independence with its ink fading and its paper slowly crumbling to pieces in the archives of the State Department at Washington, and other similar precious documents, may yet be preserved to a distant posterity through a discovery by Prof. Nathan A. Cobb, of the Department of Agriculture.

While experimenting with the big vacuum tubes, in which the department was storing samples of the various grades of cotton, Professor Cobb discovered that indefinite preservation of printed matter may be made in vacuum.

About a year ago he cut a newspaper in two, placing half of it in one end of a cotton tube, which was pumped until it was an absolute vacuum, and wrapping the other half around the outside end of the tube. For six months it was left lying in a dark closet at the department. Then Professor Cobb took it with him to his Virginia home and suspended it in the sunlight in an attic window. The paper on the outside is a deep yellow, and the ink also shows the effect of light and air, while the paper on the inside is still white; no change that can be discovered having taken place in it.

"I intended to take this over and show it to Secretary Bryan," said Professor Cobb last Wednesday. "Precious documents then could be placed on public view with no danger of light affecting them. If this paper shows no change after a year, why would it not keep in the same condition for 3,000 years or more?"

Here's Luck for You in Summer Clothes

Ready-to-Wear Suits with all the distinctiveness and usually made garments. There are putting suits made of the breeziest sort of materials—serges, chevots, worsteds and other popular fabrics, just as light and cool as can be.

When it comes to making they're tailored as skillfully and sturdily as fingers, thread and brains can produce. For shapeliness and grace they can't be beat—and their price is mighty little for such a standard.

Progressive Mass-Meeting

Announcement is made in a highly displayed notice in the Crisfield Times calling for a big mass-meeting of all Progressive Democrats, to be held at 2 o'clock in the Auditorium in Princess Anne, Wednesday afternoon, July 23rd. It is proposed, as stated in the call, to consider candidates at this meeting and to prevail upon those best fitted in all respects, to make their announcements and enter the primary election to be held early in September. The call for the meeting is signed by Aden Davis, Jr., chairman, and Charles B. Morris, secretary.

The call for this meeting appears to have been the outcome of a conference held at Crisfield last Wednesday and its purpose is stated to be that of opposing "the election of a machine-made ticket in the coming Democratic Primaries, and to wrestle from the grip of the machine the affairs of the county government and return them to the people."

Those prominent at last Wednesday's conference were: Charles B. Morris, William J. Phillips, Chas. H. Speights, A. E. Goodrich, Western Starr, Aden Davis, Jr., Lorie C. Quinn, Sr., Wm. F. Byrd and Lorie C. Quinn, Jr.

MARYLAND CONVICT FARM

Penitentiary Directors Contemplate Asking Legislature for An Appropriation

If the directors of the Maryland penitentiary can induce the next Legislature to appropriate $200,000 or $300,000 for improvements, it is likely that they will establish a penal settlement in the country with part of the money. This is one result of the report made by Warden John F. Leonard on the management and conduct of prisons he visited on his recent trip.

The next meeting of the directors will be held August 6th, when the question will be taken up. It is proposed to have an appropriation bill introduced in the next General Assembly. Should it be decided to ask for funds to establish a country colony, where the convicts could be employed at agricultural pursuits, the present buildings would be used as a receiving station, where deserving prisoners could be separated from the unmanageable and sent to the farm.

Warden Leonard has abolished many of the punishments formerly administered to unruly convicts. The only punishment now in vogue is that of depriving the unmanageable convicts of liberty and the regular prison food. They are placed in solitary confinement and fed on bread and water.

The directors, it is also understood, contemplate abolishing the stripes from the convicts' garb.

Celebration and Dinner

A delightful little celebration and dinner was given at "The Maples," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campeau on July 4th, followed by a lawn fete in the evening. The dinner guests were: Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Nock, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Dougherty, Misses Cora and Jane Landon; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar B. Landon, of Crisfield; Misses Ina and Cinderella Smock, of Salisbury; Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett, and Miss Mildred Bennett, of Fairmount; and Mr. E. I. Brown, of Princess Anne.

The guests sat down at 5.30 p. m. to a table beautifully decorated with the national colors. The American eagle fashioned from paper and made to look very real, spread its protecting wings over the favors in the center of the table. Each guest drew their favor from under the eagle by red, white and blue ribbons fastened to the favors one end at each place card.

Mayor and Mrs. L. C. Quinn, of Crisfield, who were to have been the guests of honor found it impossible to be present and Mr. George Bennett kindly took the Mayor's place as master of ceremonies and gave us a delightful little discourse on the spirit of patriotism.

The dinner was followed by a lawn fete in the evening. Guests at the lawn fete, in addition to those mentioned, were: Mr. and Mrs. G. Applegarth, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. C. Adams, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Long, the Misses Tobey, Miss Mollie Miller, Mr. C. Miller and Mr. Shores, of Westover, and others.

The house and lawn were beautifully decorated with flags, bunting and lanterns and the display of fireworks was beautiful making the whole seem quite like fairyland. Refreshments were served on the lawn at individual tables. Games and music formed part of the entertainment. The guests departed at eleven o'clock declaring they had spent a delightful evening.

Maryland State Normal School—Miss Elizabeth Thomas and Miss Ethel V. Thomas, of Fairmount; Miss Marie Davis, of Crisfield; Miss Lettie Long, of Princess Anne.

Maryland Institute of Art and Design—Miss Aline Wallop, of Princess Anne.

Terrific Storm in Ohio

A terrific rain and hail storm swept parts of Columbus and Franklin county, Ohio, last Wednesday afternoon, breaking plate glass by the hundreds, destroying many greenhouses in the city and doing great damage in the country. Every glass was broken in many greenhouses, one concern alone suffering a loss of $20,000. In that locality hailstones as large as walnuts were shoveled up after the rain, which lasted less than 10 minutes. Fruit trees were stripped bare and truck farms were short of the growing crops.

SOMERSET STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR BLAIR LEE

A Mass-Meeting will be Held in Princess Anne on Tuesday Afternoon, July 22nd, to Help Him Secure the Nomination for United States Senator

Friends of Senator Blair Lee in this county, aroused at the effort that is being made to bring out a candidate against him, in the Democratic Primaries for United States Senator, have arranged to start the campaign for Senator Lee in this county by a monster meeting to be held in the Auditorium, Princess Anne, Tuesday afternoon, July 22nd, at three o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by prominent speakers.

It is believed that the sentiment among the people generally is so strongly for Lee, especially in the counties, that opposition to him is useless, and it is desired to demonstrate this fact to those politicians who seem to determine to defy popular sentiment. The Senator's friends in Somerset hope to see him get the nomination for Senator without opposition. They think that this would be a compliment due him because of his great popularity, and his eminent fitness for the office. They think he should be spared the annoyance of a fight in the primaries, especially as any opposition that he might have now, would have to be artificially created.

It is also generally known that Senator Lee is heartily in sympathy with the principles and policies of President Wilson, in both State and nation, and an endorsement of his candidacy is an endorsement of the National Democratic Administration.

LETTER TO C. H. HAYMAN

OFFICE OF Roads Engineer of Somerset Co.
L. N. WHITCRAFT,
Roads Engineer

PRINCESS ANNE, MD.
July 12th, 1913.

Mr. C. H. HAYMAN, Princess Anne, Md.
Sir:—I am reliably informed that on Tuesday last, the 8th inst., you approached Mr. Wm. J. Coulbourne, President of the Board of County Commissioners for Somerset County, and absolutely retracted the charge you had previously made against my official conduct, but unwilling that the incident should be closed by you in this manner, as you apparently intended it should, I now write you relative thereto.

The facts pertaining to the charge made by you, as you will readily recall them, are as follows:

On Thursday, June 19th last, you stated to Mr. Coulbourne on the street in this town that I had paid a cent or a cent and a fraction more per bushel for oyster shells for this county than Worcester county had paid, both buying at the same time, and further, more boldly stated that you could prove the charge.

On the following Tuesday, June 24th, you were called before the County Commissioners in session and requested by them to repeat the charge. This, you will remember, you did, further stating that the information had been given you by a most responsible party. You affirmed your belief "in all sincerity," as you stated, in its truth and expressed the greatest confidence that it could and would be proven. When requested by the Commissioners to give the name of your informant you refused then to do so but promised that at their next meeting you would comply with their request. You would also recall on that occasion I demanded of the Commissioners a full investigation of the charge, telling them that if proven, the charge was so serious that I should be discharged from office, and defied you then and there to produce your proof. At the next meeting of the Board on July 1st, you appeared before the Commissioners and gave the name of Mr. Wm. F. Byrd, of Crisfield, as the man who had given you the information.

Mr. Coulbourne addressed Mr. Byrd a letter setting forth the charge which you had made upon information alleged to have been furnished by him, and telling Mr. Byrd that "in the interest of the taxpayers of Somerset county, if you have proof of this fact, this Board would like to have your proof." On Tuesday, July 8th, a week later, Mr. Coulbourne advised me that he had not heard from Mr. Byrd either in person or by letter and much to my surprise, considering the bold assurances you had given the Commissioners on June 24th, Mr. Byrd did not appear before them that day.

I learned, as stated above, that later on the same day, July 8th, you approached Mr. Coulbourne (I presume as the spokesman of Mr. Byrd) and not only retracted the charge but made Mr. Coulbourne the most astounding statement that Mr. Byrd had in fact told you just the opposite of what you had represented him as saying, that is, that I had purchased shells for this county for a cent or a cent and a fraction less than was paid by Worcester county.

Presumably you intended by this retraction of your charge to "hush up" the matter, and you evidently thought to get yourself out of a hole by a complimentary "so" to me, viz: That I had bought shells for a cent or more less than Worcester county, which is as ridiculous on its face as was the original charge. I submit however, that, having boldly and publicly made the charge before the Commissioners in session, you were in honor bound to appear before the Board in session to make your retraction, for the charge was a serious one and, if proven, would have shown, to say the least, that I was guilty of gross and inexcusable negligence.

I need only say here that several weeks ago I received a letter from the Roads Engineer of Worcester county advising me of the price paid by them for shells purchased in this county, and which shows conclusively that your charge was entirely and absolutely false. The average price paid by this county for shells purchased at Crisfield during the period referred to by you was one and four-fifths cents per bushel, and I have never entertained the least fear that

A Boy Bather Drowned

Leonard Hiden Abrams, aged 12 years, son of Mrs. Margaret H. Abrams, of Trower, Va., was drowned in Machipongo Creek Monday afternoon of last week while bathing. Young Abrams left his home in company with his oldest brother, Rufus Abrams, and told his brother that he was going away, never to return, but the brother thought he was joking and paid no further attention to him. The two brothers, with some other small boys, while in the water for some time, discovered young Abrams had disappeared. It is thought that he ventured beyond his depth and his cries for help could not be heard. The body was found a few hours afterward.

EDITORS MEET AT BERLIN

July 31st and Will Effect Organization of Delmarvia Press Association Then

Arrangements are being made by the executive committee of the Delmarvia Press Association to meet in Berlin, Md., on July 31st, to effect permanent organization, and the publishers of all the newspapers on the peninsula will be communicated with in a few days and urged to be present at that time.

At the meeting following the Chamber of Commerce dinner to the peninsula editors, in Wilmington, Del., recently, the suggestion was made that the next meeting be held at Berlin, and this is the program which will be carried out. The publishers are very much in earnest regarding permanent organization and it is believed that much good can be accomplished by an effective press association.

Since the demise of the old Peninsula Press Association, the newspapers of the peninsula have not been organized and the meeting at the Hotel du Pont was the first of many years which brought the publishers together. It is felt that if the dinner given by the Chamber of Commerce accomplished no other purpose than the organization of the Delmarvia Press Association it will have served a very good end.

Indications at this time point to a large attendance of newspaper publishers at Berlin. Announcement will be made later direct to the publishers relative to train accommodations, etc.

Wilbur Colborn Dies at Hospital

Mr. Wilbur Colborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Colborn, of this town, died at the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, Md., on Sunday afternoon last. Mr. Colborn had been taken to the hospital on July 3rd, to be operated on for appendicitis and after the operation, his condition was supposed to be most hopeful. A sudden change for the worse, however, occurred the latter part of last week.

Mr. Colborn is survived by his wife, who is a daughter of Mr. J. A. T. Holland, of Dublin district, and a small child; also by several brothers and sisters. He was 23 years of age.

Funeral services will be held this (Tuesday) afternoon at 3 o'clock from his late home and will be conducted by Rev. J. Howard Gray and Rev. C. H. Weaver. Interment will be in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Library Meeting

The members of the Princess Anne Public Library, Inc., met in the Library Thursday afternoon for their annual business. Mr. Cassius M. Dashiell was made chairman and Mr. Chas. B. Morris, secretary.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The following directors were elected for the year: Messrs. Thomas H. Bock, H. J. Waters, H. L. D. Stanford, R. F. Duer, W. H. Dashiell, C. M. Dashiell, C. B. Morris, W. O. Lankford, J. T. Taylor, Thomas Dixon, S. F. Dashiell, H. F. Lankford and Dr. Wainwright.

Resolutions of thanks were voted to the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad Company for their gift of the railroad station to the library and to the Bank of Somerset for their generous lease of a suitable site for the building.

Grange Meeting July 26th

The Pomona Grange will meet at the home of F. M. Heminger, near Crisfield, Saturday, July 26th. This meeting will be of special interest. President Patterson, of College Park, has promised to be present and Marion Landing, late graduate of Chestertown College, and Dr. Somers will deliver addresses. There will also be a bee demonstration—the keeper will enter an inclosure and demonstrate the handling and care of bees. The occasion will be interspersed with recitations and vocal and instrumental music. All who have a friendly attitude to the farmers and their homes should spend the afternoon and all Grangers the day

Wesley Thomas Dead

Mr. Wesley Thomas died at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. R. W. Miles, in Upper Fairmount, last Thursday of paralysis. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. O. Hurst and interment was in Miles' burying ground.

He is survived by a widow, (Mrs. Alice Thomas), six daughters, Mrs. Mary Hoffman, Mrs. George Cox, of Jersey City, N. J.; Mrs. William Kimberly, Mrs. R. W. Miles, Mrs. George W. McGrath, of Fairmount; Mrs. Edward Heath, of Hebron, Wicomico county, and one son, Mr. J. W. Thomas, of Jersey City, N. J.

SEPTEMBER PRIMARIES

Democratic Committee Expected To Meet Next Month and Name The Ninth

Murray Vandiver, as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, is expected to call a meeting of that body in the early part of August. Plans will then be made for holding the Statewide primaries at which nominations will be made for State Comptroller, for Clerk of the Court of Appeals and for the "short term" in the United States Senate. Primaries will be held in Baltimore city and the counties of Maryland for the nomination of city and county officials on the same day that the primaries are held for the nomination of officials chosen for the Statewide offices.

Under the primary election law Democrats and Republicans nominate on the same day, the chairmen of the respective parties agreeing on the date provided it is not later than September 15th. Messrs. Vandiver and Hanna, the State chairman of the parties, conferred Tuesday afternoon. They have practically decided that September 9th is a convenient date.

Some questions have been raised concerning the time that Governor Goldsborough should issue a writ for the "short term" senatorship. He has already announced his intention of issuing one, and this issuance is regarded as necessary if an election is to be held. It is claimed by some that it should be prepared before the primaries, otherwise the authority needed to put the names of the candidates for the "short term" on the official primary ballot would be lacking. No uneasiness is felt over the situation, as it is supposed that the Governor will take whatever steps are necessary, relying on the Attorney General for the proper legal advice.

Institutes For Women

Arrangements have been made by the Department of Farmers' Institutes of the Maryland Agricultural College to hold three weeks of women's institutes during July—one week on the Eastern Shore, one in Southern Maryland, and one in Western Maryland. For some 17 years the institute work has been almost entirely confined to work for the men and farm. Now some attention is to be given to the women and home. Dr. Richard S. Hill, the director, will have charge of this new work and will have on the program such well-known specialists as Miss Burnite, in charge of domestic science in the Caroline county public schools, and Miss Winslow, domestic science teacher and lecturer in Vermont and Massachusetts and assistant editor of Good House keeping, who will have charge of domestic science and home economics work and will give practical demonstrations in canning and cooking.

Poultry on the Farm, an always popular subject with Maryland women, will be treated by Judge George O. Brown, who is recognized as a leading authority on this subject. The following are the places and dates for the Eastern Shore meetings: Cordova, Monday, July 14th; Church Hill, Tuesday, July 15th; Fairlee, Wednesday, July 16th; Goldsboro, Thursday, July 17th; Hurlock, Friday, July 18th.

May Put Humphreys Out

Complaints have been made against Postmaster Humphreys, of Salisbury, which may result in the Postmaster-General asking for his resignation.

It was learned Saturday that an inspector of the Postoffice Department had recently made an investigation of Mr. Humphreys' conduct of the affairs of the office and has found that his administration was not satisfactory.

No charge involving Mr. Humphreys' personal or official integrity has been made, but the postal inspector found that the postmaster had not given the attention to the duties of his office that the department officials regard as necessary.

At Head of Dorchester Schools

Arthur R. Spaid, of Wilmington, Del., Tuesday afternoon was elected superintendent of the Dorchester county schools in place of A. Stengle Marine, resigned. His election was unanimous. Mr. Spaid is a native of Ohio. He holds a master of arts degree from Haverford College, Haverford, Pa. For the past 10 years he has been superintendent of the schools of New Castle county, Del. He is a writer and lecturer. The Dorchester School Board voted to raise the salary of the county school superintendent to $1,800 per annum.

Plans have been drawn for a new theatre in Elkton, to seat 800 people.

PERFECT SPHERES

With All His Scientific Skill Man Cannot Produce Them.

THE CURVING OF A BASEBALL.

It is Possible Only Because the Ball is an Imperfect Globe and In Comparison With Its Size Much Rougher Than the Surface of the Earth.

The real reason why a baseball can be thrown so that it will describe wonderful curves during its progress through the air is that every such ball has a surface made up of mountains, valleys, craters, canyons, gorges, plains and other irregularities of the surface that, when the difference in size is taken into consideration, makes the surface of the earth seem like plate glass.

If it were possible to make a perfect sphere—if it were possible to make a baseball with an absolutely smooth surface and an exact sphere—no pitcher in the world could make it curve. The very best pitchers baseball has ever known or probably ever will know could not make the ball deviate a hair's breadth in its flight.

And so while it is partly in the art or knack the professional pitcher has in holding and releasing the baseball as he throws it, it is also due to the fact that a baseball has a wonderfully rough surface against which the air catches and turns it that gives it the curve.

If you pass your hand over a plate glass it moves smoothly with nothing to retard it. If you pass your hand over an unplanned board you can feel the roughness—splinters we call them. You cannot move your hand as easily over the board. This is the same principle with the baseball. There is a roughness in its surface that catches in the air and forces one side about or retards that side. This has but one result—to make the baseball leave its straight course, and in doing this it describes a curve.

This does not detract in the least from the cleverness of the pitcher who can so accurately judge his muscular control as to make the baseball curve up or down, right or left. But the fact remains that it is the roughness of the baseball that makes all its pitching cleverness possible.

Take a brand new league ball in your hand. It looks to be a perfect sphere—that is, absolutely even and uniformly round and as "smooth as glass." And it may be as smooth as glass, for glass also has a rough surface.

Put a baseball under the most powerful microscope, enlarge it microscopically 10,000 diameters, and what do you see? The very thing mentioned in the first paragraph of this article. The surface is rough. It looks like the landscape in the Alps or Yellowstone park or any other rough section of the earth. It has peaks, ranges, ridges, valleys, plains and holes, gulches and all sorts of uneven places, and if the earth could be made as small as a baseball it would be practically a perfect sphere and absolutely smooth. This is because the highest mountains of the earth and the deepest valleys would be millions upon millions of times smaller in comparison with the rough uneven places on a baseball if either the earth were reduced to the size of a baseball or a baseball enlarged to the size of the earth.

If this were not true the earth would not revolve so regularly upon its axis. It would perform an "in shoot" or "out shoot" and curve off through space.

Even the billiard ball has a surface much rougher in comparison to its size than the surface of the earth, and we refer to a billiard ball as about the "smoothest thing known." As smooth as a billiard ball is a well known simile. For the same reason that a perfectly smooth baseball could not be curved, a perfectly smooth and perfectly round billiard ball could not be made to curve on the table. It would not take "English," as billiard players call it when they make a ball go forward and then roll backward or in any direction just by the manner in which they strike it with the chalked cue.

This fact of roughness causing it to spin becomes all too evident when a player forgets to chalk his cue and plays several shots thereafter. If the leather tip of the cue becomes shiny it will slip on the ball. There is no purchase with which it can take hold. But chalk is sticky stuff, and the granules are large, so that a well chalked cue has a very rough surface, and this rough surface of the tip of the cue fits into the rough projections on the ball, and thereby a ball can be given a lot of twist. In order to accomplish this successfully, moreover, the billiard cloth nap must be new and therefore rough.

During recent experimentation with regard to the kinetic theory of gases a Belgian scientist desired to find out how perfect a sphere could be made in order that by the clashing of these together an idea might be secured of the effect of the collisions of the spherical atoms that make up a gas. The project had to be abandoned at last, because no machinery could be constructed that would turn out a perfect sphere artificially, and nature has no perfect sphere of large size in all her many forms of matter. Perfect disks could be made, but a round ball was beyond the limits of human accomplishment.—New York American.

The greatest pleasure is the power to give it.

Cobblers' Wax.
Shoemakers' and cobblers' wax is made by melting together the best Swedish pitch and tallow in a vessel over the fire. The quantity of tallow must be determined by experiment. Roll into balls. The right kind of pitch is of a brown color when broken.

Oldest Flower.
The rose is the oldest flower of which there is any record. So great is the antiquity of the rose that all account of its origin has been lost. In Egypt the rose is depicted on a number of monuments believed to date from 3000 to 3500 B. C.

Largest Carriage, Wagon and Harness Dealer
In the State of Maryland

Don't buy old style rigs, shop-worn and rusty; buy nice fresh painted up-to-date brand new jobs. We are unloading two cars each week, and selling them as fast as our factories can rush them to us. Never before was there such a demand for Wrenn Buggies, Runabouts and Surreys.

Mr. Wrenn was here April 6th. I gave him the largest order the factory ever entered on their books. We will sell over 50 car loads of Wrenn's Vehicles this year. We have the goods and make the price that shuts out all competitors.

I have in stock for your selection:
The Lightest Surrey made in the United States for one horse
The Lightest Runabout with 4 styles axels
The Lightest Novelty Wrenn Buggy with 4 style axels
The Lightest Speed Cart on the market

My Farm Wagons cannot be equaled for $10.00 more. We don't only guarantee our steel axles but we guarantee every part of the wagon. Our rims are deeper, our spokes and hubs are larger. Look them over, you can see the difference.

We have 3 car loads of different styles of BERRY WAGONS—our pices suit you.
We bought over $6,000.00 worth of Harness before the advance in price. Our customers are more than satisfied with their purchase.

The Wonderful ALADDIN Lamp

Wonderful because it produces a luxurious, soft, white light, excelled only by sunlight. Burns ordinary kerosene or coal oil, the cheapest of all illuminating fuels. Burns Less Oil than Any Other Lamp of Equal Candle Power. Aladdin Lamps are most durable in construction—easiest to take care of—simplest in operation. The light is brighter and easier on the eyes than gas or electricity. Occultists declare the Aladdin Gives The Best Artificial Light Known. Users declare it is not only the best light, but the best Lamp known. There is No Equal. The Aladdin is superior by test and best by comparison. It appeals to those who want superlative excellence for its own sake—appeals to those who consider economy a first essential. Odorless, noiseless, simple, safe and clean—The Ideal Lamp for the multitude. Don't be bamboozled by an imitation. There is only one Aladdin. Insist on having it. The name is on every burner.

Investigation is the keynote of progression. Let us show you Aladdin

COMBINATION

Publishers, Advertisers and Manufacturers Unite

By HOLLAND.

IN union there is strength. Did you ever write this in your copybook? Well, it is true, anyway.

One of the effective combinations of the business world is composed of publishers, advertisers and manufacturers. They are united in the effort to see that the public gets value received. Their interests are identical.

No one of the trio can make money without the others share it. And they cannot make money for themselves without making money for the public. The interests of all are interwoven so closely as to be practically identical.

You should join this combination and enjoy the benefits to be derived from it. Take full advantage of the advertising columns and be sure of getting a dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

ADVERTISEMENTS
WILL KEEP YOU
FULLY INFORMED.

They will tell you where to buy, when to buy, what to buy. It is true economy to read the advertisements, for they will insure your getting the greatest value when you spend your money.

Monarchs in Mourning.

Periods of court mourning are apt to be regarded with something akin to alarm by people in the official-social world, for court mourning means to them submission to published rules and regulations, from which there is no appeal.

In most eastern capitals white garments are the usual sign of mourning, and purple is frequently in Europe given preference to black. Mourning, of course, is strictly enforced in the court of St. James; also in that at Madrid and in the Austrian court. At the latter, by the way, etiquette is exaggerated to an extreme.

At the court of Berlin, where ceremony is regarded as the language of power, the blackest of mourning is worn during the day, but not in the evening. The empress objects to black evening frocks and insists on her ladies wearing white dresses trimmed with black.

In Denmark also black is not allowed, but the wives of high officials and of noblemen are permitted to wear a high-peaked headdress when in mourning.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Cynical Selection.

At a "book dinner," at which the guests were asked to wear clothes suggestive of the title of a popular book, a certain nobleman appeared carrying a petticoat over his arm. The title he was suggesting was "Life's Handicap!"—London Opinion.

Generous.

Father (visiting at college)—My son, these are better cigars than I can afford. Son—That's all right, father. Take all you want. This is on me.—Exchange.

GIGANTIC WATER WHEELS.

Creaking, Groaning Monsters That Enliven a City in Syria.

Hama, in Syria, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, is famed for its huge water wheels, locally known as naura. There are four of them, and they are driven by the river Orontes, which flows through the town. Each of the wheels bears a distinguished name, and the visitor to the city is made aware of their presence long before he sees them by the creaking and groaning noise which greets his ear. At first it suggests a pipe organ and later a brass band practicing.

The wheels are built of a dark mahogany, which gives them at a distance the appearance of iron. The largest of them boasts of a diameter of seventy-five feet and is declared to be the biggest water wheel in existence. The naura are erected on what is known as the undershot principle—that is to say, they are driven by the water striking them at their base. They serve not only to supply the town with water, but also irrigate the adjacent gardens.

The wheels never stop, summer or winter, and day and night their creaking and groaning are heard. In the summer months small boys may always be seen bathing in the river in the neighborhood of the wheels, and for a small coin they will get in between the spokes of the wheels and allow themselves to be carried around many times or hang on the outside of the wheel and drop back into the water when halfway up.

BUILDING A RAILROAD.

What It Means When the Contractors Begin Operations.

With the right of way established, a great army of men enter into the field. The company does not build its own road. It is turned over to contractors and is usually let in sections of from 200 to 300 miles.

The contractor must live up to certain specifications, just as though he were building a house, and he furnishes everything—men, teams, machinery, food and material. Few people realize what this means. A contractor must be very near to a king.

For instance, there is the Hazelton section in the mountains. It is less than 200 miles in length. Before a single shovel or pick was engaged in the building of this section the contractors had to equip themselves with a fleet of steamboats at a cost of $200,000. They had to build scores of camps at from $2,000 to $4,000 a camp. Each of these centers had to be stocked with provisions, supplies and materials almost before a builder was brought in. Before these contractors moved a shovelful of earth or fired a single blast they had spent over $6,000,000.

Each contractor's camp is like a small city, with its stores, hospital, scores of sleeping shacks, kitchens, dining rooms, warehouses and barns. James Oliver Curwood in Leslie's.

The Russian Frontier.

One feature in which the Russian frontier differs from others is the complete ignorance of those living near the border of what lies beyond.

A correspondent of the Autocar says that he called at the Automobile club in Breslau, hoping to gain some information. "The members received me most kindly and did all they could to help, but explained that they never crossed the frontier and had no first hand knowledge. The German customs officer, living for ten years within yards of Russia, spoke no word of Russian, and the Russians, beyond the chain spoke no German."

"There is a neutral strip some three or four yards wide between Russia and Germany, along which many Russian sentries are posted, and mounted Cossacks pass at short intervals, riding the boundary."—New York Sun.

The Word "Poultry."

Poultry, according to the definition given in one standard encyclopedia, includes "the whole of the domesticated birds reclaimed by man for the sake of their flesh and their eggs." The word comes from the Latin "pullus," which could mean a young horse or donkey as well as a chick (the English "foal") is akin to this, through the French "poule," a fowl. But it is curious that "poultry" has no French version, the nearest equivalent being "volaille," or "oiseaux de basse cour," birds of the low yard. German in its descriptive way knows poultry as "federvieh," feather cattle.

A Vanished Shrine.

"What of your trip abroad?" "My wife was deeply disappointed in one thing. She visited Shakespeare's home all right."

"Well?"

"But she also wanted to pay a visit to the tub of Diogenes."—Kansas City Journal.

Important.

"Dobbedley seems to think himself a very important person."

"Why, he can't even stand on a street corner and wait for a trolley car without putting on as many airs as if he were laying a cornerstone."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Hard to Beat.

"This," said the man of the house as he mournfully surveyed three carpets and ten rugs hanging on the clothesline, "this is a combination hard to beat."—Princeton Tiger.

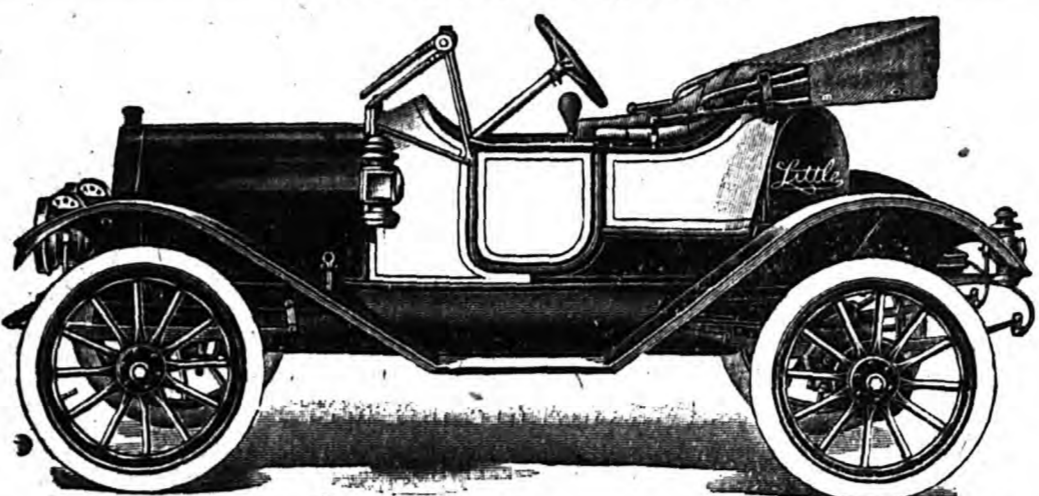

Lucky Horseshoes.

Only the Necessities?

Do you buy only the absolute necessities of life? If so, then you must limit yourself to something to eat, something to wear, and something to live in. Or do you demand some of the things which go to make a higher life?

The Bell telephone may not be an absolute necessity to you; but it is a comfort, a convenience, a safety, a friend and companion, an aid to better living.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN PEST.

Poisoned Bran and Clean Cultivation
Two Ways of Fighting the Cutworm.

The most satisfactory remedy for cutworms, which do much damage in garden and orchard, is a homemade material known as poisoned bran mash. It is prepared as follows:

If a large amount is needed mix thoroughly one-half pound of paris green with twenty-five pounds of dry bran. Then prepare some sweetened water by mixing one quart of cheap molasses or two or three pounds of sugar with two gallons of water. Moisten the poisoned bran with the sweetened water. Use just enough of the water to make the bran fairly moist.

If a small quantity is needed mix one teaspoonful of paris green with a quart of dry bran. It is not really necessary to measure the paris green accurately; simply use enough to give the bran a slightly greenish tinge. Then prepare a pint of sweetened water and moisten the bran with this.

Fill a pail with this material and scatter the poisoned bran over the surface of the ground so that small chunks half as big as a walnut or larger will be distributed every foot or two. Do this just before the plants are due to come up.

Poultry must be kept away from the garden for a few days. After a week or two or after one or two rains the bits of bran usually disappear sufficiently so that there is little danger of poisoning poultry.

Often cutworms cause excessive damage by cutting off newly set tomato plants or cabbage plants that have just been transplanted from seed boxes. Such plants may be rather easily protected by wrapping a small square or strip of paper around the stem when setting them out, so that the stem near the ground will be protected by a cylinder or collar of paper. This paper protector should extend into the ground half an inch and above ground two or three inches. If soft paper is used the collar should make two or three turns around the stem.

If land is kept in clean cultivation in late summer, keeping down weeds, especially if it is in a crop such as potatoes or tomatoes in which there is only one plant to considerable area of soil, there will be few eggs laid there by the moths.—Circular New Hampshire College and Experiment Station.

Some way a neat farm home with buildings well painted always goes with a good farm and good farming. Does anybody wonder why?

Turning Alfalfa Into Pork.

At the Kansas experiment station 800 pounds of pork were made from one ton of alfalfa hay and 770 pounds from an acre of alfalfa pasture. At the Nebraska station hog ration consisting of one-fourth alfalfa hay showed the alfalfa hay worth its weight in cornmeal and superior to the same weight of bran. The Iowa station made pig pork at $3.84 per 100 pounds and realized 71.1 cents per bushel for corn. With alfalfa and corn, pork cost $2.88 per 100 pounds, and corn returned 86.6 cents per bushel, a difference of 33.1-3 per cent in favor of alfalfa.

How to Handle Blackberries.

When picking blackberries get them out of the sun as soon as possible or they'll turn red in spots and not be so salable. Hurry them into the crates and then into a cool cellar until time for shipping or selling. Fill the boxes full and pack neatly in clean packages. If you want a fancy price make the crates look attractive.—Farm Journal.

To Kill Burdock.

To kill burdock put crude carbolic acid on the roots after cutting close to the ground with a hoe. This method is effective and probably as cheap as anything. The carbolic acid may be applied with a small oil can. A few drops poured into the crown of the plant will be found effective.—National Stockman and Farmer.

Be Merciful to Your Dog.

Unless there is a running stream near by, so that the dog can get a drink when he is thirsty, fix him a dish and see that it is regularly supplied with fresh water. A dog is a dog; he is your dog and your friend; treat him as such.—Farm Journal.

A LITTLE FARM.

Bill Acres bought a farm that was the largest one for miles around. He couldn't till it well because

"Twas scattered over too much ground

He could not keep the weeds cut down,

Nor could he keep the fences up. He had to sell and move to town

And now owns nothing but a pup.

That he is rich now and about as free from care as he could be

And leads a life that's full of charm.

He tilled the soil so well that he just made it pay—that little farm.

—Charles H. Meiers in American Agriculturist.

TYING UP A FLEECE.

Directions For the Proper Care of the Wool Grower's Crop.

First, all the tag locks must be removed, whether they be dung or grass or dirt, writes W. C. Coffey of the Illinois station, describing the proper way to tie up a fleece; second, the fleece should be carefully rolled up by hand (not in wool box), with no ends or stray locks protruding and with the flesh side out; third, the fleece should be tied with a hard, glazed twine, not larger than one-eighth inch in diameter. In tying the ends of the twine especial care should be taken to make a firm, hard knot that will not slip.

Tag locks are not so common that their presence in fleeces from farm flocks is the rule rather than an exception. The total effect of leaving them on fleeces is bad. It puts our wools in bad standing with wool houses and manufacturers. Long continued, it has led to the only logical result—namely, discrimination in price against our wools.

Careful rolling, with the flesh side out and no ends or stray locks showing, adds greatly to the appearance of the fleece. It also prevents mixing the wool from different fleeces, and, by the way, each fleece should be tied to itself. In the wool warehouse it is a pretty sight to see the heaps of graded wool faced with a tier of carefully rolled and tied fleeces.

GOOD FOR THE GRUNTERS.

This Handy Swill Barrel Doesn't Need Much Material or Labor.

A very handy swill barrel for feeding a lot of hogs when they come crowding around the trough is made as follows, says the Iowa Homestead, from which article and illustration are reproduced.

The barrel A is set on a small platform immediately above a trough, B, next to the hydrant D, which has a goose neck so that water can be drawn into the barrel directly from the hydrant. In the center of the bottom of the barrel is bored a two inch auger hole which is kept closed by means of a plug, C, the handle of which is made of an old broom handle and long enough to reach to the top of the barrel.

Swill is made of ground feed, and when it is desirable to feed the hogs all the operator has to do is to stir the swill and pull the plug, and the swill runs out into the trough without any trouble.

When enough has run out the plug may be returned to its place, and in this way there is no spilling or handling of swill. The trough may be of any convenient length.

Spring Culture of Wheat.

Harrowing wheat in the spring is a practice that is receiving considerable attention of late years. Where the ground is compacted hard from beating rains of early spring, followed by rather dry weather, the harrowing of wheat with a drag harrow is good practice.

So far experiments have shown at the Missouri station, however, the harrowing of wheat is not always sufficiently beneficial to pay for the work, although where one harrows in clover seed at the same time the practice is usually a paying one.

Where the wheat is badly "heaved" the use of a heavy roller in the early spring is a good practice. All depends, however, upon the extent of the "heaving."

Kill the Rats and Save Chicks.

In answer to a subscriber who complains of rats getting away with his young chicks and requesting a remedy for exterminating the rodents, a correspondent of the Kansas City Farmer says that if powdered sulphur and cayenne pepper are scattered around the rat holes the vermin will disappear. Another remedy is to scatter powdered lye around their holes. The lye will stick to the rat's feet. He commences to lick them, which causes death.

Why Rely on Corn?

In sections where corn has not proved a success it is folly to rely upon corn. In such sections there are crops which do succeed, and it is the part of intelligence to plant them. Kaffir, mello and other crops grow and do well where corn fails. Then why rely on corn?—Farm and Ranch.

Some Somerset Samsons

Conversion means a complete change of heart, based on true repentance, and is never complete unless reinforced by a better life. An apparent conversion, sudden in its birth and dictated by a spirit of self-love has no place in the Heavenly records. Men know true converts and respect them; they have an opposite opinion of those whose conversion savors of pretence.

This doctrine is not only true in the matter of religion, but also in the affairs of every day life. It is even true in the political world. The attitude of a sudden political convert is usually viewed with suspicion. When questioned as to his new course of proceeding, such a convert ordinarily can give no better account of himself than his belief that everybody else is wrong. Such a position mars old friendships and alliances and suggests a policy of demolition rather than of upbuilding.

In reading about the conference of politicians who assembled in Crisfield last Wednesday one can not but inquire "Why this thushness?" Have not the men who talk of "organization" candidates and "machine" politics been themselves the recipients of party favor and that through the very organization that they now denounce? Why now must they, like Samson of old, be ready to pull down the temple upon their old friends and themselves as well?

It is our opinion that right thinking Democrats will hardly be misled by the hue and cry put up at Crisfield, certainly not by the resonant voices of some very recent and sudden converts. There is usually a reason and those to whom the Crisfield appeal is made will certainly stop to consider what that reason is. It will certainly not take long to find out. If the reasons are good and bona fide, then well and good; but if not, and the apparent political converts have only selfish ends to serve, the public would do well to find some method of testing their political sincerity. Human nature is human nature and men are not slow to size up their fellow men and place them in their true category.

The whole movement in which the old and new converts are taking part, is admitted to be against the leadership of Hon. Joshua W. Miles. For ourselves we believe in fair play and righteousness even in politics. The very men who are fighting Mr. Miles are the very ones who have heretofore profited by his influence and their turn against him is ingratitude of the gravest kind.

The people of Somerset county, however, are aware of Mr. Miles' strength and his sagacity as a political leader. For years past he has unselfishly given his time and influence, and when necessary, liberally of his money, to promote Democratic harmony and success. It is all nonsense to believe that the coterie that assembled at Crisfield can undermine that influence or substitute for him anyone who can do half so well as a leader. The cat being out of the bag and the Baltimore dailies having been apprised of the true motive of this fight, as one of Mr. Miles' upholders, it will give us pleasure now, as it has in the past, to stand by him to the end and in this we believe we shall have the cooperation of the true Democracy of the county.

Our brother editors are welcome to items of news from our columns, but when it comes to our editorials we think it but courtesy that due credit should be given. Our recent editorial entitled "News" seems to have gone the rounds and in some cases no credit was given the MARYLANDER AND HERALD for what the editor had thought out and written.

Blair Lee

The announcement in another column of a mass-meeting next Tuesday in behalf of Hon. Blair Lee, candidate for the short term senatorship, can not fail to stimulate interest in this gentleman's campaign. It has been our pleasure to help to promote Mr. Lee's candidacy and it gives us equal pleasure to continue our support.

We have had no sympathy with suggested movements to secure an "organization" candidate, as it is termed, against Blair Lee and we are glad to know that such a movement is likely to be abandoned. We can see nothing in such a policy but short-sightedness with adverse possibilities for those favoring it. The situation at present is the selection of the late Mr. Rayner's successor and the long term bridge can be crossed when it is reached.

As we stated some months ago, we believe Mr. Lee has deservedly won the honor to which he is aspiring and we further believe that not only on the Eastern Shore but throughout the State, he holds a vantage ground that could not be easily overcome. We think Mr. Lee's turn has now come and so far as we can now see he is stronger than he was when he ran the gauntlet for the Governorship. Too much credit can not be given him for his efforts to secure the election of his opponent, Mr. Gorman, and the vigorous campaign he helped to wage in the latter's behalf. His attitude then makes him stronger now.

In our opinion Mr. Lee is one of the strongest candidates, from both an intellectual and popular standpoint, that has been before the people for a long period. More than this, as a skillful politician and tactician he has exhibited qualities that eminently fit him for the responsible office to which he aspires. So that taking everything into consideration, we believe that any effort to offset his candidacy will meet signal defeat.

So far as this county is concerned, it stands where it has always stood and, for a great many years, doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it unconstitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. "A Propaganda of Anarchy"

In his address before the Maryland Bar Association, in session at Cape May, N. J., last week, Judge Gray of this city fittingly denounced the Roosevelt doctrine of applying the Recall to the judiciary as a "propaganda of anarchy." And he was not sparing in his denunciation by any consideration for the high station of the man by whom it is being so urgently advocated.

Judge Gray also expressed his opposition, in general, to the system of alleged popular government through the Initiative and Referendum, pointing out its danger by reason of the indisposition of the people to vote at frequent elections, thus virtually placing legislative power in the hands of a small body of citizens. In such a system he could see no good and large possibilities of evil.

It is well for public men of ability and high station to raise their voices in protest against the adoption of these wild and impracticable agencies of government. The recall of the judiciary would be a positive menace to the country, while the Initiative and Referendum system has been conclusively proved to be "government by the minority through the agency of petitions."

—Wilmington Evening News.
The Democratic Senators will pass the tariff bill. It has been made a party measure, and this is a case where suited party action is justified. It is simply impossible in a tariff bill to suit every locality. You can't make an omelet without breaking eggs, and some interest will get hurt, though we believe that not even wool and sugar will be hurt as much as they fear. Three or four Democratic Senators may bolt, though it is doubtful. Two or three who did not vote for the caucus resolution say they will vote for the bill. The bill will be passed by Democratic Senators without requiring the vote of the Vice-President, out the Constitution gives him the power to veto when it is necessary, and he was elected as a part of the Democratic Administration to execute Democratic policies. If the bolting of any Senators should make the vote a tie it will be the duty of the Vice-President to give the casting vote in favor of the Democratic tariff bill. —Philadelphia Record.

Public Sale OF Church Property UNDER MORTGAGE

By virtue of the power contained in a mortgage to Robert J. Waller from Levi Jones and others, trustees of Mount Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, in America, dated the 8th day of May, 1899, recorded among the land records of Somerset county in Liber O. T. B., No. 25, folio 325, etc., assigned by the said Robert J. Waller to Henry B. Phoebus, and assigned by the said Henry B. Phoebus to the undersigned for the purpose of foreclosure, I will sell at public auction at the Court House door, in Princess Anne, Maryland, on at or about the hour of 1.30 o'clock p. m., all that lot of land in Saint Peter's district, Somerset county, Maryland, on the west side of the county road leading from Crisfield to Crab Island, which was conveyed to the said Levi Jones and others, trustees as aforesaid, by Philip R. Dwyer and Annie E. Waters by deed dated the 26th day of October, 1896, recorded among said records in Liber O. T. B., No. 20, folio 322, etc., containing ONE-HALF ACRE, more or less, improved by a FRAME CHURCH BUILDING in good condition.

Tuesday, July 15th, 1913,

TERMS OF SALE—As prescribed by the mortgage—Cash. Title papers at the expense of the purchaser.

In the matter of the tax sale of real estate in Mt. Vernon District of Somerset county, assessed to Thomas Beckett, made and reported by Robert F. Maddox, County Treasurer for Somerset county, for the year 1910. Asbury Henderson, purchaser, ex parte.

No. 2941 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity.

Whereas a certain Robert F. Maddox, county treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, for the year 1910, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, a sale made by him to Asbury Henderson, of all that lot or parcel of land in Mt. Vernon District of said county, in the State of Maryland, containing 1 acre, more or less, with the improvements thereon, situated on the "Ridge Road," adjoining the lands of Charles Waters and William T. Holland, and assessed to Thomas Beckett on the assessment books of said Election district, for said year 1910, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the proceedings are regular and that the provisions of the law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now it is therefore ordered, by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, this 5th day of July, 1913, that notice be given by the publication of this order, once a week for three successive weeks in the MARYLANDER AND HERALD, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, before the 12th day of August, 1913, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 20th day of August, 1913, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report states the amount of sales to be $6.50.

HENRY L. D. STANFORD, Judge.

No. 2,839, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of the sale of certain real estate situated in said Somerset county, of which William Robertson, late of Somerset county deceased, died seized and possessed, to pay the debts of the said William Robertson, the personal estate being of no value. The bill states that the said William Robertson, at the time of his death, was indebted to Herschel V. Maddox on two judgments and an open account, and to the Peoples Bank of Somerset county, on a promissory note, all of which since the death of the said William Robertson, having been assigned to the plaintiff, she having fully paid the same, but the said William died on or about the 3rd day of September, 1912, intestate, leaving no personal property of any value, but being seized and possessed of a lot or parcel of land situated in Fairmount Election District, and lying and binding on a private road leading to the Home Place of the late John H. Fontaine, that the said William left surviving him, a widow, Rose Robertson, who has since died, and the following children and grand-children, as his sole heirs at law: Sarah Robertson, Montford Robertson, who married Nellie Robertson, Grace Robertson, Cassie Robertson, and Anna Johnson, who married Daniel Johnson, Mary Maddox, who married Reuben Maddox, all of whom are of full age; also Elizabeth Robertson, an infant, daughter of a deceased son, William Robertson, Clarence Robertson and Susie Robertson, both infants, children of another deceased son, Mortin Robertson, all of said children and descendants being non-residents of the State of Maryland except Sarah Robertson, Elizabeth Robertson, Mary Maddox and Reuben Maddox.

It is thereupon this 8th day of July, 1913, ordered by the clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of August, next, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 27th day of August next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed, as prayed.

Summer Necessities Refrigerators and Ice Boxes

There is no satisfaction in having a refrigerator that keeps your food just half cool. It is expensive and aggravating to pay big money for ice bills and then fail to secure desired results.

OUR REFRIGERATORS and ICE BOXES are the most perfect distributors of cold air on the market. Through their patent and scientific construction every nook and corner is kept at the same low degree of temperature at the most trivial cost for ice.

They are food savers, ice savers, money savers. The coldest refrigerators made—absolutely odorless and easily kept clean.

Conductors Contemplate Strike

If the 100,000 railroad conductors and trainmen in the Eastern territory carry out their threat to strike because the railroads will not grant them an increase in wages of $17,000,000, or 20 per cent. per annum, some 50,000 miles of railroad in the United States will be tied up.

More than 50,000,000 people depend on these railroads. These same railroads pay annually for labor over half a billion dollars—more than one and one-half millions of dollars every working day.

There are about 680,000 employees on the railroads in the Eastern territory. Everyone of these will be affected by a strike, not to speak of the serious effect upon the public, which is of even greater importance.

Commoner to Be a Monthly

The report that the Commoner, Mr. Bryan's paper, would be made into a monthly publication instead of remaining a weekly was confirmed by Secretary of State Bryan last week.

With Mr. Bryan holding down the position of premier in President Wilson's Cabinet and R. I. Metcalfe, associate editor, as Civil Governor of Panama, the editorial staff of the Commoner seemed quite badly crippled.

Mr. Bryan expects to do most of the writing for the paper from now on, and it is believed that in order to permit him to do this the change from a weekly to a monthly was decided upon. The last weekly issue appeared last Friday. In it Mr. Bryan outlined the policy of the paper editorially.

Work of School of Horticulture

The School of Horticulture of the Maryland Agricultural College and Experiment Station, is arranging to conduct as much demonstration work as possible in the various phases of horticulture throughout the State this summer and fall. Fruit packing demonstrations will be held wherever there is a request for same from growers. It is the aim of the Institution to show by practical demonstrations how our horticultural products can best be handled for the greatest income to the growers. Demonstrations in summer pruning of fruit trees will also be held where requested by a group of growers.

In the Vegetable Department, special work is being done on the tomato, potato and cantaloupe crops. Several lines of work in spraying, fertilization and seed selection are being conducted as well as both demonstration and investigation with these crops in various sections of the State.

In the Landscape Department, rural schools and country homes are being decorated as demonstrations for the community. There is much that can be done in beautifying our rural schools and country homes at a minimum cost. Every farmer should aim to have the appearance of his home made as attractive as possible.

The School of Horticulture is also commencing a thorough survey of the horticultural industries of the State. Any person who is interested in promoting these lines of work, and desires to co-operate with the School of Horticulture, should communicate with this department of the Maryland Agricultural College and Experiment Station, College, Park, Md.

Paul Armstrong Ordered To Pay Referee $1518

Paul Armstrong, the playwright who formerly lived near Princess Anne and later at Annapolis, has been ordered by Supreme Court of Justice Goff of New York city to pay $1,518 referee's fees in his wife's recent divorce suit against him.

Mrs. Armstrong, though her lawyer, Edward Sanford, declared that her husband has a guaranteed income of $15,000 a year, but the attorney for the playwright denied this statement, saying that his client could not pay the referee's fees.

When Armstrong's lawyers told the court that the playwright was in California, and therefore out of the court's jurisdiction, Mrs. Armstrong's lawyer declared that Justice Goff's order would enable Mrs. Armstrong to get her share of the alleged $15,000 annually.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of Mamie J. Buark, who departed this life three years ago, July 11th, 1910.

Although she is absent from us, And three weary years have fled Since we stood by her bed in sorrow, And knew our darling was dead.

We love her to-day, yes we love her— Just as well as we did years ago; And we miss her, oh! how sadly we miss her, And our hearts are still aching so.

But one thought comes to us in our sadness, She is free from all sickness and pain; And we trust when our journey is ended We will meet our loved one again.

My job would have cost last year about $25.50; it is going to cost this year $55 $2.50 gone. I suppose it'll be the same again, if I wait again.

What if paint goes down to $1.75 a gallon? $2.50 on the job.

FRUIT FED RATS OF UGANDA.

By the Natives They Are Regarded as a Dainty Dish.

The idea of eating rats is so repulsive to us that we cannot imagine such a thing unless one were driven to it by starvation. The people of Uganda, however, eat rats not from necessity, but because they like them. The rat of Uganda, however, is very different from the little creature that gnaws holes in our cupboards. This rat is much larger. It is more than a foot long and is therefore quite a substantial animal and as well worth cooking as a rabbit.

The wonderful thing about this rat is that it has two mouths, one behind the other. The first mouth has a pointed ratlike nose and is furnished with two rows of sharp white teeth, with which it bites off its food and passes it on to the second mouth, which is placed just above the throat. This mouth also has two rows of teeth, but one long slender tongue serves for both sets of grinders. Rats are not only eaten in Uganda but they are regarded as a delicacy. The king among his many retainers has one whose duty it is to furnish the royal table with rats. A rat catcher is not an exalted person usually, but in Uganda he is looked upon with respect and walks with an air of dignity. He goes out rat hunting daily and generally finds his game among the young banana trees, or in any place where fallen fruit or berries may be found for this is what the rat lives on. Slender shoots of bamboo or banana or fruit and leaves are his food, and this diet makes his flesh tender and whole some.

A CRESCENT OF RUINS.

The Curious Old Cliff Dwellings of the National Mesa Verde.

In the Mesa Verde National park, in southwestern Colorado, are 300 cliff dwellings, of which only the three largest have been repaired. The largest ruin, called Cliff Palace, stands about a thousand feet above the bottom of the canyon and 300 feet below the top of the ledge. All the houses connect and open into one another, the entire settlement forming a crescent about 300 feet in length from end to end.

As we contemplate these silent ruins it is hard to believe that at one time they resounded with the hum of industry, the laughter of children, the dropping of pots and pans, the strident cry of the sentinels calling the warriors to battle. The dwellers of these abandoned communities have left no written record, but the shape of the structures and the relics that have been dug from the debris of centuries give some idea of how these people lived and moved and had their being.

The main houses were built on a ledge close to its front, and back of this was an open space that answered the purpose of a court, a street, a playground or a place for industrial pursuits, such as weaving and pottery making. At intervals along the front were towers and bastions, and in the interior were kivas or secret chambers used for religious ceremonies. In every village were storehouses to provide a supply of provisions in times of war or failure of crops.

Leigh Hunt's Chaotic Home.

A curious description of Leigh Hunt's house, where the poet lived with his wife and six children, is that given by Carlyle, as recorded in "Bulletin and Review of the Keats-Shelley Memorial Borne."

"Hunt's house excels all you have ever read of a poetical tinkering without parallel even in literature. In his family room, where are a sickle, a large vase and a whole host of well-conditioned, wild children, you will find half a dozen rickety chairs rattled from half a dozen different hucksters. On these and around them are over the dusty table and ragged carpet all kinds of litter—books, papers, eggshells, scissors and, last night when I was there, the torn heart of a half quarter loaf. His own room is keeps cleaner."

A Real Born Lady.

The word "lady" has been variously defined. Perhaps the best test, however, of "ladylike" is that cited by G. W. E. Russell in one of his books: "A good woman who let furnish apartments in a country town describing a lodger who had apparently known better days said: 'I am positive she was a real born lady, for she hadn't the least idea of how to do anything for herself. It took her hours to peel her potatoes.'" The admiration of the worker for the "out of work" is one of the strangest phenomena of our modern civilization.—London Graphic.

Elegant Discourse.

"I want to be prostrated at the next corner," said Mr. Ernestus Pinky. "You want to be what?" demanded the conductor.

"Don't lose your temper. I had to look in the dictionary myself before I found out that 'prostrate' means 'put off.'"—Washington Star.

The Jaws.

Mrs. Henpeck—Shame on you for growling about Dr. Bolus. Didn't he just bring you back from the jaws of death and—Henpeck (wearily)—And back to the jaws of life.

Pretty Close.

"Well," was the guarded reply, "you might say that he carries his money in a purse that shuts a good deal easier than it opens."

Cynicism is intellectual dandyism without the coxcomb's feathers.—More dith.

Advice to the Aged.

When the Bugle Was a Gong.

When John E. Wilkie, formerly chief of the secret service, was young he served with distinction among the border fighters of the west in their raids on bands of insurgent Indians and cattle rustlers.

On one occasion, according to Mr. Wilkie, the posse on which he was serving ran out of available horses, and car horses had to be forced into commission. These animals were unaccustomed to any command other than that of the car bell and refused to obey the customary bugle calls.

Accordingly the posse found it necessary to procure a large gong, which was struck once for the troop to stop and twice for it to advance. In this manner they kept fairly good order. One of the company, a bit of a wag, composed a parody on "Barbara Frietche," a portion of which ran: "Who touches a hair of you gray head Dies like a dog! Ding-ding!" he said. —Youth's Companion.

The Nelson Golden Cenotaph.

One of the most valuable relics of Nelson in existence is a small golden cenotaph constructed to the order of Alexander Davison, the army contractor, who made Nelson's acquaintance at Quebec in 1782 and thenceforward until his death remained on the closest terms of intimacy with him. This cenotaph was cast in the form of a pyramid out of the eighty-four guineas found after Nelson's death in his escutcheon on board the Victory. When Davison came to grief it was sold by auction, together with some other Nelson relics, of which the most interesting was a miniature of Lady Hamilton, with a lock of her hair at the back, taken from his neck after he received his death wound. In April, 1875, the cenotaph was announced for sale by a Pall Mall dealer, but where it is now appears difficult to discover.—London Graphic.

FOR HOW LONG?

Princess Anne Raises A Pertinent Question

When a neighbor tells us that he has recovered from a serious illness, the first question that naturally arises is, "How long will he keep well?" Temporary relief is one thing but a lasting cure is altogether different. There is nothing temporary about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills as the following Princess Anne evidence proves beyond a doubt.

Mrs. Lena A. Hastings, Princess Anne, Md., says: "For nearly seven years I was afflicted with disordered kidneys and was made miserable by backache. Sometimes I was taken with severe headaches and pains in my loins. Finally the kidney secretions became disordered. Reading about the cures Doan's Kidney Pills had made, I got this remedy at Omar A. Jones' Drug Store. The first box cured me and I am now in perfect health. The statement I gave at that time still holds good. The cure Doan's Kidney Pills made has lasted for over five years."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Dog Was Going Fast.

A Maine man tells a story of a friend of his in the west who was induced by a stranger to buy what was claimed by the latter to be the best wolf dog in the country. A few days later the man took his new purchase and started out early in the morning to try him out. The dog soon picked up the scent and started off, the man following on horseback. The dog was soon out of sight, but the man could hear him bark occasionally and followed on. About noon he met another man coming from the opposite direction and inquired if he had seen a wolf and a dog anywhere, to which the man replied that he had.

"And how were they going?" queried the man. "Was the dog nearly on to him?"

"Well," answered the other, "if I remember correctly the dog was just a trifle ahead."—Harper's Magazine.

Choir Boys of Grace Church.

From 100 to 300 boys with voices are always waiting to be admitted to the choir of Grace church, New York. They are enrolled thirty or more at a time and come from all over the country. Practically every one lives at the school for nine months of the year, says the Churchman. The boys' family find his books and clothing. Grace church does the rest—boards him, teaches him and employs him in its choir until he has outgrown the service. The choir boy is unpaid, and all money earned by him from musical engagements is kept by the choirmaster until he earns his honorable discharge. Parents must sign an agreement that their boys shall not be withdrawn from the school. The only musical requirements are a correct ear and the promise of a good and powerful voice.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

SANCTUARY IN ENGLAND.

The Principle Still Survives to a Limited Degree.

Much water has flowed under London bridge since the British criminal could defy the strong arm of the law by the single expedient of escaping to the nearest church or hospital and claiming the protection of the "sanctuary," for down to the early Stuart days Great Britain had thousands of just such refuges for the criminal. From cathedrals and royal palaces to scores of towns and cities, where the man guilty of felony could laugh with impunity at the officers of law and justice for a period ranging up to forty days. If within that time he chose to go before the coroner, clothed in penitence and sackcloth, and confess his guilt, he was free to quit the realm without any hand darning to stay him.

Although no such asylum exists today for the criminal, the principle of the "sanctuary" still manages to survive. This privilege refers only to civil offenses and not to crimes as in the olden days, and yet the privileges are of considerable value.

No clergyman can be arrested within the walls of his church or while he is going to or returning from his duty. Bishops and archbishops are still more protected, for not one of them can be haled before a magistrate even though the cause is a crime, unless the king especially commands it. Nor even up to the present time has any warrant an effect within the precincts of any of the king's palaces.—Chicago Tribune.

COLORS OF THE SKY.

And Their Connection With Stormy or Sunshiny Weather.

In "Our Own Weather" Edwin C. Martin, after noting the indications of weather shown by barometric readings, the variations of the winds and their meaning, the ever changing forms of the clouds, shows how the colors of the sky act as weather signs.

Ordinary observation has gathered a great number of weather signs from simply the ever varying colors of the sky. Among the more familiar and reliable ones are:

A bright blue sky is the sky of day weather.

A bright yellow sky at sunset promises winds, a pale yellow sky rain and a "sickly greenish" sky both wind and rain. A rosy sky at sunset promises fair weather, but a dark red sky at sunset promises rain. A red sky in the morning promises wind or rain. "A red sun has water in his eye."

"If the sun sets in dark, heavy clouds, expect rain the next day." Even a gray sunset indicates rain. But a gray morning indicates a fine day.

"When the sun draws water rain follows soon."

And, finally, what in this connection it would be perhaps the most reproachful of all possible omissions not to mention:

Rainbow at night. Sailor's delight. Rainbow in the morning. Sailor's warning.

The Great White Shark.

The man eating fish par excellence is the great white shark. It is otherwise known by the name of man eater. Occasionally specimens are seen on both coasts of the United States, though its more customary habitat is in tropical waters. This frightful creature attains a length of nearly forty feet, and it is able to swallow a man whole. This fact is proved by an experiment which sailors are fond of making when such a shark is captured. The skull being preserved, they amuse themselves by crawling one after another through the distended jaws. It would be unsafe to do this, however, when the head has been freshly cut off, because under such conditions the jaws will snap together fiercely for some time afterward if anything is placed between them.

Legend of the Moss Rose.

A German tradition gives the origin of the moss rose as follows: An angel came to earth in mortal guise. He sought a place of shelter and repose after his labors of love, but every door was shut against the heavenly visitor. At length the angel, being very weary, sank upon the ground and over him a rebus spread like a tent. It caught upon its outspread leaves the falling dew which would otherwise have drenched the messenger of love. Waking, the angel said to the rose: Thou hast yielded the shelter that man denied; A proof of my love shall with thee abide. And the green moss gathered about the stem. While the dewdrops shone like a diadem, Crowning the blushing flower.

Naturally.

The teacher had been reading to the class about the great forests of America.

"And now, boys," she announced, "which one of you can tell me the pine that has the longest and the sharpest needles?"

Up went a hand in the front row.

"Well, Tommy?"

"The porcupine."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Only Explanation.

"Remember," said the fair visitor to convict 2323, "that stone walls do not a prison make nor iron bars a cage."

"Well, den, lady," replied 2323, "de warden's sointy got me hypnotized."—New York Times.

AN ESKIMO DINNER

It Was Not Very Dainty, but It Was a Satisfying Feast.

REAL MEAT AND BLOOD SOUP.

The First Course Was Served Out of Hand, and the Second in Musk Ox Horn Drinking Cups—The Hospitality Extended to Explorer Stefansson.

An interesting description of the hospitality of Eskimos is given by Vilhjalmur Stefansson in his paper, "My Quest in the Arctic," in Harper's Magazine. At one stage of his adventures the writer found himself among Eskimos who had never before seen white people. He says:

"Like our distant ancestors, no doubt, these people fear most of all things the evil spirits that are likely to appear to them at any time in any guise, and next to that they fear strangers. Our first greeting had been a bit doubtful and dramatic through our being mistaken for spirits, but now they had felt of us and talked with us and knew we were but common men. Strangers were, it is true, but we were only three among forty of them and were therefore not to be feared. Besides, they told us they knew we could harbor no guile from the freedom and frankness with which we came among them; for, they said, a man who plots treachery never turns his back to those whom he intends to stab from behind.

"Before the house which they immediately built for us was quite ready for our occupancy children came running from the village to announce that their mothers had dinner ready. The houses were so small that it was not convenient to invite all three of us into the same one to eat; besides, it was not etiquette to do so, as we now know. Each of us was therefore taken to a different place. My host was the seal hunter whom we had first approached on the ice. His house would, he said, be a fitting one in which to offer me my first meal among them, for his wife had been born farther west on the mainland coast than any one else in their village, and it was even said that her ancestors had not belonged originally to their people, but were immigrants from the westward. She would therefore like to ask me questions.

"It turned out, however, that his wife was not a talkative person, but motherly, kindly and hospitable, like all her countrywomen. Her first questions were not of the land from which I came, but of my footgear. Weren't my feet just a little damp, and might she not pull my boots off for me and dry them over the lamp? She had boiled some seal meat for me, but she had not boiled any fat, for she did not know whether I preferred the blubber boiled or raw. They always cut it in small pieces and ate it raw themselves, but the pot still hung over the lamp, and anything she put into it would be cooked in a moment.

"When I told her that my tastes quite coincided with theirs, as in fact they did, she was delighted. People were much alike then, after all, though they came from a great distance. She would accordingly treat me exactly as if I were one of their own people come to visit them from afar.

"When we had entered the house the boiled pieces of seal meat had already been taken out of the pot and lay steaming on a sideboard. On being assured that my tastes in food were not likely to differ from theirs, my hostess picked out for me the lower joint of a seal's foreleg, squeezed it firmly between her hands to make sure nothing should later drip from it, and handed it to me, along with her own copper bladed knife. The next most desirable piece was similarly squeezed and handed to her husband, and others in turn to the rest of the family.

"As we ate we sat on the front edge of the bed platform, holding each his piece of meat in the left hand and the knife in the right. This was my first experience with a knife of native copper. I found it more than sharp enough and very serviceable.

"Our meal was of two courses—the first, meat; the second, soup. The soup is made by pouring cold seal blood into the boiling broth immediately after the cooked meat has been taken out of the pot and stirring briskly until the whole comes nearly—but never quite—to a boil. This makes a soup of a thickness comparable to our English pea soup, but if the pot be allowed to come to a boil the blood will coagulate and settle to the bottom. When the soup is a few degrees from boiling the lamp above which the pot is swung is extinguished and a few handfuls of snow are stirred into the soup to bring it to a temperature at which it can be freely drunk. By means of a small dipper the housewife then fills the large musk ox horn drinking cups and assigns one to each person. If the number of cups is short two or more persons may share the contents of one cup, or a cup may be refilled when one is through with it and passed to another.

"After I had eaten my fill of fresh seal meat and drunk two pint cupsful of blood soup my host and I moved farther back on the bed platform where we could sit comfortably, propped up against bundles of soft caribou skins, while we talked of various things."

Adversity has the effect of eliciting talents which in prosperous circumstances would have lain dormant.

Ten Farms

have changed hands through the efforts of this agency since January 1st, 1913.

I have a great many inquiries for both large and small farms. I will have a great many buyers here this season, and confidently expect this to be the greatest year that the agency has yet experienced.

I want your farm on my lists, whether large or small. A card will bring me to your home.

Yours for efficient service,

The best weather vanes are made with the greatest nicety and precision, so that they balance perfectly and turn with the least possible wear. The vane is, of course, longer on one side of the socket than on the other, but its weight is the same on both sides. If it is a narrow vane, for instance, the weight of the solid head is easily made equal to that of the longer, projecting but thinner feather end, and all vanes, whatever they may be, are balanced as to weight and so adjusted that they turn easily and with the least possible friction.

Understanding.

A well known artist tells of an amusing colloquy in an art gallery where two young women were viewing a copy of Millet's "Gleaners."

One of the young women was carried away by her enthusiasm. "How beautiful! How wonderful! What art!" she exclaimed. "Above all, how natural!"

Then, after a pause, she said, "But what are those people doing?" Drawing nearer to read the title, she was enlightened. "Oh, now," she added, "I see! Gleaning millet! How wonderful! How beautiful!"—Exchange.

A Surprising Cure of Stomach Trouble

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't imagine that your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. G. Stangie, Plainfield, N. After reading a few of the letters from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to try them. I have taken nearly three-fourths of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

A CAMPAIGN OF ODDITIES.

When the Log Cabin and Hard Cider Enthusiasts Rejoiced.

Political enthusiasm has taken many forms during the lifetime of this nation. The Harrison-Van Buren presidential campaign of 1840 was in some respects the most remarkable the country has ever seen. "From May till November," says one historian, "it seemed as if all able-bodied citizens attended mass meetings."

The great oddity of the campaign was the log cabin, the coon and the cider barrel. The log cabin idea originated with an opposition paper which had said slightly that "William Henry Harrison better go back to Indiana and stay there in his log cabin drinking hard cider."

The faunt was taken up by Harrison's followers. Log cabins sprang up all over the Union. In every town there was a house warming, and the log cabin was thrown open to the public amid general rejoicing. On the roof of a live coon, and a barrel of cider stood before the door, where any one who desired might drink all he chose.

It was a campaign of oddities. Some of the symbols have never been surpassed for genuine absurdity.—Magazine of American History.

SIMPLICITY IN THE HOME.

There is Such a Condition as Having Too Many Furnishings.

Many nervous, irritable, dissatisfied, unhappy women would become calm and contented if they would store, give or throw away half of their belongings. Some have abandoned elegant residences and taken their families into hotels or boarding houses who could have continued to keep up their homes if, instead of giving up their houses themselves, they had done away with the superfluous furnishings.

Some one, often the mistress herself, must clean and care for every article of furnishing, no matter how humble its use or how ornamental its function, and this round of duties proves many times to be a grievous burden on delicate shoulders.

There is such a thing possible as having too many utensils and tools to work with, so that taking out, replacing and keeping them clean and in order add to the daily labor. Too much furniture in a room, so that walking through it seems a perilous attempt to steer a course without disaster, too many garments to wear, for time is consumed in caring for them, and even in choosing what to put on.—Suburban Life Magazine.

A Widow's Curious Cap.

A very curious cap forms the "widow's weeds" of the Australian aborigine in one part of the great island continent. Near the northeast bend of the Murray river it is the custom for widows to attend upon the tombs of their departed lords. Then after shaving their heads they cover them with pipe clay kneaded into a paste. The head is first covered with a net to prevent the clay from sticking too tightly to the skin, a misfortune which is partly averted by the amount of grease with which every Australian native is anointed. A layer of this clay several inches in thickness is plastered over the head and when dry forms a sort of skullcap exactly fitting the head on which it was molded. As it weighs several pounds, the widow's cap cannot be comfortable.

Rid Your Children of Worms

You can change fretful, ill-tempered children into healthy, happy youngsters, by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A. Brislin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for years, and entirely rid my children of worms. I would not be without it." Guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price 25c. A FIGHT IN THE DARK

It Resulted in a Narrow Escape

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The continuous thieving of merchandise from the Shanghai warehouse of Gordon & Co. had finally resulted in an active investigation of the matter by the efficient young manager, Philip Newton.

He had worked on the matter for several weeks before he decided that Lennon, his foreman on the wharf, was in conspiracy with the captain of a handsome Chinese junk that had lain at anchor near the wharf at intervals that corresponded with the date of the robberies.

So it was that one rainy night Philip Newton made his way down to Punderson's jetty, where he found Peter Cook, his trusted young assistant, waiting for him in the tiny little launch which belonged to the company.

Punderson's jetty overlooked Gordon's wharf, and Philip had scarcely seated himself in the launch when Peter leaped cautiously toward him.

"The junk went up about a half hour ago, sir," he said.

"Good! We'll go right along too." The Meteor sputtered out into the river and pointed her nose up stream.

After her engine was fairly started and the specially patented muffler had been applied the noise died down until at last she glided in utter silence through the water.

The drifting rain had ceased, and the harbor was jeweled with the radiance of hundreds of lights from the gathered shipping. Each tiny sampan and fishing boat bore its softly gleaming paper lantern, and as the launch threaded her way out of the anchorage she seemed to glide over waves of molten gold where the current broke the reflection into a thousand shimmering lights.

The boat was going very slowly, feeling her way, now and then avoiding a rapidly moving sampan, and but for the occasional meeting of one of these small craft their journey was without incident until suddenly, without warning, Peter brought the launch to a standstill and Philip realized that the fender chafed the side of some huge craft which was moored in the middle of the river.

There was a slight jar of impact, an almost imperceptible listing of the larger craft to starboard, and as she righted herself the launch was tossed gently away and again brought up with a slight rub against the black bulk.

There was dead silence in the launch, but all about them in the fog were the staccato murmur of Chinese voices and the swish of water as though myriads of tiny boats might be darting between the junk and the shore, for sometimes the sounds were near, as if approaching them and then diminishing.

Occasionally there was a muffled thud as though some heavy object had been transferred from one vessel to another, but the encompassing fog concealed the mysterious happenings from the eyes of the Americans in the launch.

"It is the junk," said Philip, in a whisper.

"I guess you're right, sir."

"Put her under shore now, Peter. There should be a landing and some stone steps along here. Perhaps we can find what they are taking ashore. Gently now!"

The swift flow of the river drowned the pant of the engine, and in a few minutes they had drawn up under the high, muddy bank, just beneath the black wall of masonry.

From his seat in the bow Philip thrust one leg over the rail, groped with his foot and discovered what he was looking for—a flight of broken slimy stone steps leading from the river to the bank above.

Quite by accident Peter had brought the launch to a standstill at the foot of this flight of steps.

Philip was undetermined as to what he would do next. His object had been to gain the next landing beyond them, where he suspected the stolen merchandise was unloading the cargo boats.

Although he did not doubt that the mandarin, San Yuen, chief magistrate of the province of Szechuan, was the instigator of the plot and likewise the chief benefactor in the returns, he knew it would be a difficult matter to bring the man to justice owing to the corrupt practices in vogue at the courts, especially where a high official was concerned.

And San Yuen was not an ordinary mandarin—Fuler of a small province. He was rich and powerful, a mandarin of the coral button of high rank, and much in favor near the throne.

He could command the richest offices within the gift of the rulers, yet he preferred his position as potentate of a prosperous province, which he ruled with a cruel hand that could wring the last copper cash from a poor farmer or extract silver jagots from a merchant's treasure chest.

San Yuen was a gentleman bandit, a pirate, a terror to his enemies or those he preyed upon. To the polite Chinese world he was a splendid gentleman, with the instincts of a true sportsman.

Philip was tolerably familiar with the ways of the yellow man, and he realized that such an elaborate plot as the roundabout method of stealing stuff from the bulk must appeal to the stratagem loving Chinaman.

A plot of such magnitude necessitated the employment of many confederates, and when each grade of villain had received his share there must be a goodly portion for the chief plotter; hence business must be done on a large scale.

As Philip pondered these things his ears were strained toward the upper landing, where a confused murmur rose and fell. Presently it increased to a roar, and it was apparent that whatever had been transpiring in the fog had been interrupted and intense excitement was rampant among the coolies and boatmen.

Then there was silence for several moments while they sat listening. Suddenly Philip uttered a warning cry:

"Let her go, Peter! Great Scott, we're in for it! Look out!"

There was a hurried rush down the stone steps, the dull thud of many bare running feet, and then a score of phantom hands seemed to take possession of the launch and its occupants.

While the two men in the launch had expected an attack of some kind if their presence in that vicinity should be discovered, they were unprepared for such a sudden and fierce onslaught.

For an instant only were they disconcerted; then they sprang to meet their assailants halfway—nay, three-quarters way—for that is an American trait.

Peter Cook grabbed a wrench and laid about him lustily among heads and hands that he could only guess were bobbing about in the darkness which surrounded the launch.

Philip was wrestling silently with a pair of strong, half naked coolies, who had seized upon him and were endeavoring to pinion his arms.

As he struggled Philip was conscious that numbers were being added to the attacking party. He heard the breathing of men, and he was aware of the presence of many human beings about him—in the water, on the stone steps and on the wharf above him.

Philip knew that he and Peter would soon be overpowered by the increasing numbers, and so, with a great and desperate effort, he thrust aside the clinging hands that were menacing him and, bending down to the engine, opened the valve and in a breath's time had returned to his fight, and now he found three coolies to deal with instead of two, and the fighting was hard.

With a sudden swish the launch backed violently away from the landing, overturning the swarming coolies and cutting a swath through the crowd which had gathered in the water about them.

Philip struggled with his three assailants, expecting every moment to receive a knife thrust or to feel a garrotter's cord encircle his throat. The odds were much against them, but it was evident that it was the intention of the attackers to take the foreigners alive—to make them prisoners, but not to harm them.

The launch cleared herself from the swarming coolies, leaving a wake of broken heads and angry yelps.

With a final effort Philip dealt a vigorous blow through the darkness to the man on his left. The coolie doubled limply, poised on the gunwale and then disappeared into the inky blackness. As he struck the rail the boat lurched, and this sudden shock knocked the two remaining coolies from their feet, and, with jabbering shrieks, they, too, vanished.

Then Philip turned his attention to Peter Cook, whose prostrate form he could dimly discern in the bottom of the boat.

He took a small dark lantern from a locker and turned its ray on the face of the boy.

Peter opened his eyes, blinked and stared curiously at Philip.

"Are you all right, Peter?" asked Philip anxiously.

"Sure thing!" said Peter briskly, as he struggled to his feet and took the wheel. "I hope I wouldn't squeal for a damned chunk. Whe-e-e, but that fellow gave me a clip! I expect I'll be dizzy the rest of my life!"

The lantern disclosed a knob-like bunch on the back of the boy's head.

"I am glad it's no worse," said Philip as he dipped his handkerchief in the water and applied it to the injured spot. "What's that?" he asked sharply.

"That" was the crack of a revolver and, together with the sharp spat of a bullet in the water near by, testified that they were still pursued.

They were dashing through the water at top speed now and, aided by the current, would soon be abreast of the foreign quarters. Although the thick fog still encircled them, the blurred dimness of houseboat lights along the shore indicated that they were well in the middle of the stream.

Suddenly a dark shape loomed before them, and the launch crashed into an obstruction and then rebounded, only to fill at once and sink out of sight.

Philip and the boy jumped at the instant of impact, and when the launch disappeared with hissing gurgles beneath the river's surface they sought each other in the dimness and together swam toward the shore.

It was Peter who first found a footing and clambered up the muddy bank.

"See where we are, sir!" he called.

Philip Newton reached his side and looked down the winding length of the lighted Bund. Just beyond them was Punderson's jetty, from which they had started a couple of hours ago.

A junk loomed out of the night and teetered on the current.

"She will go up the Yangtze tonight. We will get her the next time," said Philip grimly.

And they did.

Guide to Yellowstone Park

The various methods of seeing the wonders of Yellowstone Park are fully described in a comprehensive circular on that great reservation just issued by the Department of the Interior entitled "General Information Regarding the Yellowstone National Park, Season of 1913." This Circular gives full information regarding the hotels, the permanent camps, and the movable camps that are operated for the accommodation of visitors. The terraces, geysers, hot springs, Yellowstone Lake, and the Grand Canyon may all be seen on a circuit of 143 miles that require 5 1/2 days travel by coach. Full data are given regarding the distances between all the principal points of interest and there is detailed information regarding side trips, opportunities for fishing, and the best camping places.

During the season of 1912 over 3,000 of the visitors to the park traveled in their own or specially hired conveyances, coming and going as they desired and making their camps at any convenient point. This circular, which may be obtained free from the Department of the Interior, contains a tourist map of the park, maps of the geyser basins, lists of books and magazine articles, as well as the regulations in force for the protection of the natural curiosities, the game, and the forests.

Blight Killed Chestnut Trees

The inroads of the chestnut bark disease, or chestnut blight, on the chestnut trees of New England and the Middle Atlantic States is resulting in the death of a great deal of chestnut timber. Officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture recommend, to prevent the spread of disease, that shipments of chestnut timber should include only material from which the bark has been removed and from which the diseased spots have been cut out.

In the region affected there is a good market for all chestnut products except cordwood. The demand for poles and timbers absorbs all that are offered, and lumber finds ready sale in local markets. Cordwood, however, is often a drug except within shipping distance of tanning extract plants, brass foundries, lime kilns, brick yards, and charcoal plants.

The question has arisen as to whether the disease killed timber is less valuable than that from green trees. Strength tests made by the Forest Service indicate that sound wood from chestnut killed by the bark disease is as strong as that from green timber.

The bark disease kills the tree by girdling the trunk, and does not cause unsound or decayed wood, which is the result of attack by fungi or insect. Until two years after the death of the tree the wood generally remains sound, though at the end of that time insects have commenced working in the sapwood. Three years after death the sapwood is honeycombed with insect burrows; in four years it has decayed, and begins to dry and peel off in the fifth year. After this the heartwood checks badly. To avoid loss, therefore, all timber should be used within two years after being killed.

At a recent meeting in Trenton, N. J., foresters were present from most of the States in which the chestnut bark disease is prevalent. Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and the Forest Service and the Bureau of Plant Industry were represented. Representatives of the States approved the investigations undertaken by the Forest Service, and recommended that the individual States give particular attention to the development of local markets for stands of blight killed chestnut. The Forest Service should apply to the State foresters or to the Forest Service for further information upon the uses and markets of chestnut.

Political Announcements

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND
A Candidate for Sheriff
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County, Maryland:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Somerset county, Maryland, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held during the year 1913, in Somerset county, Maryland.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND.

JOHN W. WEST
A Candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic Primary.

While it is an honor to become a member of the General Assembly, I care but little for the honor. Any man who is worthy to be called a man is ambitious. My chief ambition in this matter is to serve with time and thought the whole people of this county and to be of service to the State. To me it will be a greater pleasure to help others than to be helped, to serve rather than to be served.

With a knowledge of the opportunities in other States, I believe I should be able by contrast to see the opportunities on the "Shore" for greatly increased business activities. The Peninsula is within five hundred miles of about half the population of this country. The possibilities for development are great and very much may be done by legislation that should result in launching a great forward movement of progress.

If I win in the primaries and at the regular election, you may be assured that my time, best thought and energy will be devoted to the best interests of the people.

I shall be pleased to hear from any one interested in my election and desire workers in every community. I am opposed, however, to voters making unqualified pledges to support any candidate in the Primary, for often by undue influence men have been led to make positive promises to support a particular candidate and on or before the day of election regretted they were bound.

I wish to see men free to obtain all the information possible up to the day of the election, and then guided with knowledge and conscience cast a ballot for what they believe to be the best interest of the people.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one who has a vital interest in the greatest good to the greatest number.

JOHN W. WEST.

You have heard that nice little phrase of the mail order houses, "Privilege of return, if unsatisfactory."

A precious privilege! The privilege of re-packing bad goods, expressing them back to some far-off city, and then fighting to get your money returned. Does it pay?

Why not buy nationally advertised goods right at our store? That gives you the "privilege" of looking at the goods without any bother, and buying only when they look right. And as they are all guaranteed by the manufacturers, by the periodicals that advertise them, and by ourselves, you have merely to telephone our store in case they do not please you when delivered. We take them back without a murmur.

This is a Good Housekeeping Store. That means we sell advertised goods and treat patrons fairly. Come and see us.

Amalgamation Committees Meet

The first official steps to unite the Republican and Progressive parties were taken in Baltimore last Tuesday, when a joint meeting of the amalgamation committees of the two parties was held at the Hotel Bennett. The committee agreed upon the following:

To hold a joint mass-meeting in Baltimore of the two parties, then acting as one, on the evening of August 14th.

To unite under the banner of the Republican party and to fight on a platform to be formulated by a committee which was appointed and which will submit its declaration to the mass-meeting.

United States Senator William P. Jackson (Republican) presided. Robert Burton (Progressive) was secretary.

Former Congressman Schirm (Progressive) offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted after commendatory speeches had been made by several Republicans and Progressives:

Resolved by the last amalgamating committee of Republicans and Progressives, That a mass-meeting be held in Baltimore on August 14, 1913, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of reuniting the Republicans and Progressives under the banner of the Republican party, and for enlisting the strength and support of all persons interested in preventing the State of Maryland from degenerating into a one-party state, and in wresting Baltimore city and the state from the control of the Democratic ring.

Resolved, That a committee of eight shall be appointed by this joint committee, to be known as a committee on platform, to prepare and submit a declaration of principles and a platform for the new Republican party, four of said committee to be appointed from among Republican members of said committee, to act with the four already appointed by the Progressive members of said committee.

Wireless Storm Warnings

Wireless storm warnings and general weather forecasts for ships at sea, covering conditions 100 miles off shore all along the Atlantic Coast, is the latest innovation of the Agricultural and Navy Departments. The plan was inaugurated Tuesday last and hereafter every night, a few minutes after 10 o'clock, bulletins will be sent broadcast from the great naval wireless stations at Radio, Va., and Key West, Florida.

The messages will reach mariners hundreds of miles at sea, telling of conditions existing along the coast from Sidney, N. S., to Bermuda and Pensacola, forecasting the weather for 48 hours and giving special warnings of severe storms.

A poor excuse is better than none; but the same rule doesn't apply to relatives.

OUR ROADS JUST AS GOOD

But France Beats Maryland in Number and Length, Says Weller

That the much-talked-of and highly praised roads of France, the delight of automobilists who have toured Europe in their machines, have nothing on the roads of Maryland, except in their length, is the opinion of Chairman Weller, of the State Roads Commission, who is now abroad studying European roads and methods of road building. Writing under date of July 1 from Blois, France, to Assistant Chairman Zouck, of the commission, he says that he and Commissioner Miller had been motoring for four days and had covered nearly 500 miles.

"The roads around Paris," he writes "are generally of macadam, apparently well constructed but not well maintained, and are rapidly going to pieces under the automobile traffic, although this is not so heavy, correspondingly as in America, and these particular roads have been oiled. This is not true of the country districts we have traversed, for we have not seen a mile of road with a top dressing since leaving Paris. These highways are fine, and no such mileage of continuous excellent roads can be found in the United States. On the other hand, geological, climatological and industrial conditions are much more favorable here for the roads than with us. Traffic is lighter, automobiles are fewer, loads are not so heavy, the subsoil is better and heavy rainfalls and droughts are much rarer. There are practically no drainage problems to be considered, labor and material are cheaper and traffic is better regulated.

"These roads are constructed chiefly of a soft limestone and a local flint and, with an ever-increasing number of American tourists in automobiles, they will rapidly disintegrate if more efficient modern methods of protecting them are not soon adopted. We have as good roads in Maryland as there are in France, but not so many of them.

Messrs. Weller and Miller went abroad to attend the International Road Congress, which was held the latter part of last month in London. He described it as such a large affair that one was at a loss to get the best out of it. He felt that it was a striking object lesson to the effect that the interest in modern road building was world-wide, there being large numbers of delegates and roads engineers from all parts of the globe.

To Fight Oyster Planters

At a meeting of the Crisfield Oystermen's Protective Association, held in the Majestic Theatre, at Crisfield, Monday, July 14, plans were discussed looking to the formation of a State-wide oystermen's protective association for the purpose of uniting the different bodies for the battle against the alleged encroachment of private planters.

Thomas Webster, of Baltimore, State chairman of the oystermen, delivered a stirring address, outlining a program which, among other things, embraced the organization would be held in Baltimore Saturday, and urged that every association have a representative present to assist in the movement.

He stated that he attended a meeting at Deal's Island, at which the plans under consideration were discussed and delegates elected to represent the island at the Baltimore meeting. He also said that other associations in the State had communicated with him and would send delegates.

W. Wallace Evans, of Smith's Island; Isaac T. Ford, of Fairmount, and others likewise spoke.

Report All Neglected Orchards To F. E. Matthews

The officers of the State Horticultural Department have designated Mr. F. E. Matthews, as county representative for the department in Somerset county.

All growers in the county should report to Mr. Matthews any cases of neglected orchards in their vicinity. This is sometimes easier than communicating with the department at College Park. The control of San Jose Scale and Peach Yellow is generally recognized in this county and there is only a few who allow their orchards to be a menace to the neighborhood. Growers should not hesitate to report any cases that come under their observation.

There are not sufficient funds to inspect and reinspect the trees in the county, and the department must depend upon the growers to report cases of neglect, which will be given early attention. The Department feels by having county representatives and conducting as much demonstration work as possible, the promotion of the horticultural industry can best be served.

HON. JOSHUA W. MILES' BRILLIANT RECORD

Conspicuous Service Rendered President Woodrow Wilson By the Hon. Joshua W. Miles—Baltimore Sun Acclaimed Him "The Hero of Somerset."

He supported Woodrow Wilson in the Democratic Presidential primary and Wilson carried Somerset county at the primary election by an overwhelming majority.

He was the first member of the Maryland delegation in the Democratic National Convention to vote for Wilson, thereby precipitating one of the wildest demonstrations of the great Convention. Upon his return home from the Convention he was given a most enthusiastic welcome by his fellow townsmen, irrespective of factions, in recognition of the most conspicuous part he had played in the nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

He was loudly acclaimed by the daily press of the State for the bold and courageous course he had pursued in the Convention, the Baltimore Sun, editorially, hailing him as the "Hero of Somerset."

He was the first man in the State to raise a campaign fund by popular subscription, amounting to more than $500 dollars in Somerset county alone, to aid in the election of the Democratic nominee.

He was selected by the leading progressive Democrats of the State as Vice-Chairman of the Wilson Auxiliary Committee for the whole State, later becoming Chairman of the Committee, thereby being highly honored with leadership in the campaign in which the nominee of the Democratic party carried the State by the unprecedented plurality of more than 30,000 votes.

His loyal support of Wilson in Somerset county resulted in the county being carried by the nominee of the Democratic party for the Presidency for the first time since the campaign of Samuel J. Tilden. This result caused great rejoicing among the Democrats of the county. The day after the election a large delegation of enthusiastic Democrats from Crisfield came to Princess Anne to do honor to the "Hero of Somerset." Mr. Lorie C. Quinn was the spokesman of the delegation and in a public speech congratulated Mr. Miles upon the conspicuous part he had played in the nomination and election of Wilson, declaring him to be the real leader of progressive Democracy in the county and State.

He has since publicly declared through the press for the election to the Senate of the United States of two men known to be in sympathy with the National Administration.

Library Directors Meet

The board of directors of the Princess Anne Public Library met at the office of H. Fillmore Lankford last Wednesday afternoon, present, H. Fillmore Lankford, C. M. Dashiell, Robert F. Duer, W. O. Lankford, W. H. Dashiell, Henry J. Waters, S. Frank Dashiell, H. L. D. Stanford and Columbus Lankford.

The board reorganized by electing Thomas H. Bock, president; H. Fillmore Lankford, vice-president; Charles B. Morris, secretary, and Henry J. Waters, treasurer. The board of lady managers was re-elected as follows: Mrs. C. M. Dashiell, Mrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, Mrs. Wm. Dashiell, Mrs. Wm. C. Hart and Miss H. Nancy Page. H. Fillmore Lankford and Columbus Lankford were appointed a committee to supervise the moving of the old railroad station, which was donated by the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. to the library, to the site in the rear of the Bank of Somerset, on Church street. The general interests of the library were also discussed.

Six Amendments To Be Ratified

On the official ballot this year will be six proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State. They were passed by the Legislature of 1912, receiving the required three-fifths of the voters in each branch. They provide as follows: Permitting property in Baltimore city to be taken for public use on payment of award made by court appraisers, the regular condemnation proceedings to follow if the awarded price is not satisfactory.

Providing that bills may be passed by the General Assembly when they have been printed or engrossed. (The Constitution now says they must be engrossed.)

Providing for an additional associate judge in the Third circuit, which includes Baltimore and Harford counties. Placing all the penalty on the vote-buyer and excusing the vote seller.

Increasing the pay of the State's Attorney of Baltimore city to $5400 a year; providing for a deputy at $4000, and allowing all other assistants $2500 a year. Specifying the duties of the Attorney General and forbidding the chief executive of the State to employ outside counsel.

Maryland Editors Meet

The semi-annual meeting of the Maryland Press Association was held at the Atlantic Hotel, Ocean City, Md., Tuesday afternoon. In the absence of Col. William S. Powell, the president, the meeting was called to order by C. O. Melvin, of Pocomoke City, vice-president.

On account of retiring as a publisher, Colonel Powell tendered his resignation, and W. Meade Holladay, of Annapolis, was elected president, with John E. Raine, of Towson, as a member of the executive committee to succeed Mr. Holladay.

Resolutions of regret on the resignation of Colonel Powell were unanimously adopted after eulogistic addresses by Mr. Raine, C. L. Vincent, of Snow Hill, and P. Watson Webb, of Cambridge.

A number of committees were appointed and other business was transacted.

Primaries on September 8th

Primaries will be held on Monday, September 8th. Both parties will make their nominations on that day by direct vote in Baltimore city and the various counties.

Chairman Murray Vandiver, of the Democratic State Central Committee, has stated that he would issue a call for a meeting of the committee on August 6th, at which arrangements would be made for the primary and all necessary party actions would be performed.

The coming primary in the Democratic party will be the most important ever known in an "off" year. For the first time a candidate for the United States Senator will be selected in a legalized primary under the same safeguards as prevail at regular elections. The vote for Senator will be direct in each county and legislative district in Baltimore city for delegates to the State convention. The delegates will be instructed and will vote in the convention in accordance with such instructions, the candidate having the majority of the convention votes being the nominee. There probably will be no opposition to Blair Lee, and in this event, however, the Supervisors of Elections will certify his nomination.

In the same way candidates will be nominated for State Comptroller and Clerk of the Court of Appeals. Thus far there is no opposition to either Comptroller Emerson C. Harrington or Clerk C. C. Magruder, both of whom seek re-nomination.

Fake Consumption Cures

Three kinds of consumption cure frauds are distinguished by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, the first being the "institute" fraud, where a pseudo-hospital or dispensary is established and the wily "doctor" or "professor" administers "treatment" at so much per head. These concerns also carry on a mail order business with great profit. The second group of cures contains over a hundred different kinds of drugs and "patent" devices, any of which may be purchased at a drug store. Usually the consumptive is charged from $1.00 to $5.00 for these and the institute "cures," when he could make them up himself in exactly the same form for from one to five cents.

The third group of "cures" includes home-made remedies, which certain self-deluded individuals believe will cure tuberculosis. Among them are such things as onions, lemons, coal smoke, pig's blood, alcohol, dog oil, teas of various kinds, and a variety of diets, including goats' meat, clabbered milk and a score of other articles. These are not usually advertised for profit, but are usually given publicity in various ways.

The consumptive is the most hopeful individual in existence when the question of a cure is suggested. The National Association has stated that no specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered, except the well-tried hygienic, dietetic method of fresh air, rest and good food.

A soft answer may turn away wrath, but it's different with a book agent.

GAME WARDEN "FIRED"

Franklin E. Cox Is Removed for Incompetency, Misconduct and Neglect.

Governor Goldsborough Saturday removed from office Franklin E. Cox, of Somerset county, State Game Warden, for incompetency, misconduct in office and neglect of duty.

The removal came at the end of a long conference held by the Governor with Attorney General Poe in the latter's office, during a great part of which Mr. Cox was present.

Mr. Cox was questioned concerning the charges shown in the special report of State Auditor Ray, who examined his accounts, and his answers were not satisfactory.

After Mr. Cox left Mr. Poe's private office he took a seat in the room to await the Governor's visit. Finally he was called in and the Governor handed him the following letter:

"July 19, 1913.
"Franklin E. Cox, Esq.,
"State Game Warden,
"Union Trust Building, City.

"Dear Sir—After careful investigation of the charges made against you of misconduct in office, and after full hearing accorded you at the office of Attorney General Poe, and you having stated that no further hearing was desired, it is my judgment that a number of the specifications in said charges have been clearly proved, justifying your summary removal from office.

"I hereby notify you, therefore, that I have this day removed you from office for incompetency, neglect of duty and misconduct in office, and direct you to send to me at Annapolis all of the books, accounts and effects of your said office. Very truly yours,

Deputy Collectors To Go

Republican deputy collectors of internal revenue of the district composed of Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, as well as of Virginia and West Virginia collecting districts, who were placed under civil service by President Roosevelt in 1906 will not have a stranglehold on their jobs under the present administration.

Civil service examinations for the creation of an eligible list for appointment to the internal revenue service in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia districts have been ordered for August 16th. It has been held by the Department of Justice that the terms of office of the present deputy collectors expire with that of the collector, and that the new collector is not compelled to retain the old deputies unless he desires. The men the new collector does appoint as deputies, however, must be taken from an eligible list, which the civil service examinations will create.

The present deputy collectors will top the list of eligibles, but the collectors are not compelled to select the first man on the list. The ruling of the administration in regard to deputy collectors of internal revenue prevents the collectors from naming any man who is not on the eligible list, but it gives the collector an opportunity to change the personnel of his working force should he desire.

Sheep Go Four Months Without Water

Sheep on the Nebo national forest, Utah, go four and a half months without water except for such moisture as they get from the dew and the juices of forage plants.

Grazing sheep on a range entirely destitute of water is a recent innovation due to the increasing demand for forage and the efforts of the officers to find a place on forest ranges for all the stock that can safely admitted. The area on the Nebo which has now proved usable by sheep is high and rocky, a portion of it being above timber line, and it has neither springs nor streams of sufficient size or accessibility to be used for stock watering purposes. The grazing season lasts from June 15 to October 31, and during this period of four and a half months the animals do not get a drink.

Under such conditions, however, the sheep have done extremely well, and last year's lambs from this range had an average weight at the close of the season of 68 pounds on the Chicago market, which was rather above the normal weight from that vicinity.

In one area on the Targhee forest in Idaho sheep get water only twice during the four-months summer grazing season. There is no water on the range, but the sheep are driven to a nearby stream lower down the mountain side. Lambs from this range weighed 65 pounds on the Chicago market.

HOT FIGHT IN SOMERSET

Expected Between Miles Organization and Waters-Quinn Faction at the Primaries

A staff correspondent of the Baltimore Sun sums up the political situation in Somerset county as follows:

Indications in Somerset county point to a hot primary fight between the Miles organization and the Waters-Quinn faction for nominations on the county ticket. Both sides claim to be progressives and both are openly committed to the candidacy for the Senate of Blair Lee and to his program in State politics.

Two years ago the Waters-Quinn people espoused the cause of Lee in his candidacy for the nomination for Governor. At that time the Miles people were primarily interested in the nomination for judge of Henry L. D. Stanford, then the law partner of Joshua W. Miles. They kept hands off in the fight between Lee and Arthur P. Gorman. The anti-Miles people carried the county for Lee and they insist that the thereby became the progressive faction.

In that fight they also made a contest for the local offices, Henry J. Waters heading their ticket as a candidate for the nomination for the State Senate. They were defeated and ran an independent ticket in the election in the fall, there being no Republican candidates.

This year the Miles people incline to the re-election of S. Frank Dashiell as Clerk of the Court and Robert F. Maddox for county Treasurer, the two principal offices to be filled. The opposition claims that Dashiell and Maddox are spokes in the Miles organization, assert that the Miles people are reactionary in county affairs and that the time has come for a new deal. Whom they will back for these places does not seem determined as yet, but at a conference of the Waters-Quinn leaders held in Crisfield last Wednesday it was practically decided to make a strenuous fight.

It is also possible that the fight will reach the nomination for Sheriff, although there are so many mentioned for this place that a definite factional line-up may be found impossible. There are four candidates in the field now, and more may come. They are Robert S. Jones, of Princess Anne; William J. Tankersley, of Deal's Island; Ellwood Sterling, of Crisfield, and J. A. Holland, of Dublin District.

Generally, it is thought the Waters-Quinn people will make a fight for control of the county State Central Committee. The present members are S. Frank Dashiell, Edward B. Lankford, Southey F. Miles, all of whom are followers of Joshua W. Miles. No Candidates have been brought out by the other factions so far.

Among the Republicans there is strong effort to effect a working agreement with the Bull Mooseers, who polled about 300 votes in the last election and materially aid in carrying the county for Wilson. Col. Thomas S. Hodson, of Crisfield, and H. Fillmore Lankford, of Princess Anne, were the leaders in the Bull Moose movement. Both seem inclined toward allying with the Republicans along some line.

Colonel Hodson favors maintaining the Bull Moose organization, but agreeing with the Republicans as to candidates. Mr. Lankford has said little to indicate his view as to method of association with the Republicans, but it is thought he rather inclines toward amalgamation if that can be obtained with progressive principles.

Many of the Republicans and Bull Mooseers hope there will be a split among the Democrats, whom they seem to fear when united, despite the great negro vote in the county. So far, however, there is no evidence that either faction of the Democrats will bolt the regular nominated ticket.

Henry J. Waters, who led the independent movement two years ago, is understood to feel that with the adoption of the direct primary in the county at that time there was established a condition which removed all necessity for fights outside for the party.

When the Direct Primary law was passed it was provided that it should be submitted to the voters at the next general election in Somerset county. The vote was taken in connection with the election of 1911 and the direct primary was adopted for the county.

All hands are concerned about the effect of the repeal of the Wilson Ballot law. In past years the Democrats in the county availed themselves of this law to the utmost. Now that it has been repealed, the Republicans claim that the great mass of negroes in the county will be able to vote the ballot better than the poorly educated whites, because the blacks have been trained at picking out names for the past 10 or 12 years. The Democrats say they will be able to teach their voters the ballot.

WHY HE SOLD IT

By RUTH GRAHAM

"I hear," said Jones to Rogers, "that you have sold your automobile."

"I have."

Jones was surprised at the man giving up the auto sport, for he had been an enthusiastic automobilist.

"Had an upset?"

"No."

"Found it cost too much to keep the machine in repair, I reckon."

"Not that, either."

"Well, then," looking at a handsome collier that was evidently in Rogers' company, "you've set up a dog instead of a car as less expensive and more amusing."

"I sold my auto for $600, and you couldn't buy the dog for $6,000."

"Did you pay that for him?"

"No; I didn't pay anything."

"Come; what does it all mean?"

Rogers asked Jones into the house and told the story:

"My friends always supposed from the speed I put on while traveling through the country on good straight roads that I was perfectly fearless. It wasn't so at all. I realized the danger of fast traveling, but I enjoyed the sport so well that I was willing to take the risk. Fact is, danger always adds to the zest of sport. The very thought that I might burst a tire at any moment and serve into a telegraph pole or a stone fence gave me a pleasurable thrill. Besides there was the danger of some drunken driver coming along with a wild yelp and knocking me into the middle of next week."

"Well," interrupted Jones, "which was it that cured you of automobilizing?"

"Who's telling this story—you or I?"

"You. Go on."

"Nothing broke in my machine and nobody ran into me. My auto was as good as ever except for several years' use, and I never had a spill while I drove her. I don't know for certain, but I think if I had been tested through the wind shield and shot a dozen yards forward without getting killed I would have been all the better for autoing."

"But I'm not getting on with my story. I was driving along one day at a forty mile gait when, looking ahead, I saw a pile of what the road ran through a narrow cut. It wasn't a turnpike by any means, but one of those country roads in which, when teams meet, one must pull up in the best place to let the other pass. The narrow bit I was telling you about was just wide enough to get through without scraping. On either side the ground sloped at an angle quite capable of overturning a car, no matter how slow it was moving. I craned my neck to see if any one was coming that I would meet in the cut. I didn't see an auto or a wagon, but I did see something that sent a cold chill through me—a little child toddling about right in between the two banks."

"It was near dark, and I didn't see what was in the way till I was almost on it. I gave a warning toot, but it didn't even attract the child's attention. It was so young that I couldn't tell whether it was a boy or a girl, but by its dress I concluded it was a girl. She was making a dirt heap in the road. As to age, she must have been between two or three years old."

"So much went through my mind in a few seconds that it seems there wasn't time for it all. I knew there must be a house near by or the child wouldn't have been there. I glanced to the right and the left and on the left saw a small cottage about 200 feet from the road. How I did long for some one to run from the house to get the child out of my way! But when I saw her there wasn't time for any one to go over half the distance. I looked at the right bank to see if it would be possible to run up over it without my machine turning turtle. There was no possibility of climbing it without going over on the child, if not on myself. The left bank was worse than the right."

"I've heard what an awful strain it is on a locomotive engineer to run down a human being, but had no conception of the horror of it till now. I put on my emergency brake, or tried to, but I was so rattled that I lost time in getting my foot on it. By the time I was pretty near the child I was going slow enough, but—great Scott!—what difference does it make how slow you're going when you run over a soft little bundle of flesh like that?"

"I had given up all hope when of a sudden I saw a yellow streak making from the house to the child. It was a dog, and I've never seen a train or an auto that seemed to get over the ground so quick. He made a bee line for the child, who was between the middle and the side of the road, fixed his teeth in her dress and yanked her toward the bank, getting her just on to it as I went by at the rate of about four miles an hour and stopped not twenty feet away."

"The child's mother came out, and when she learned how near death the little thing had been she pretty near fainted."

"You'll never get me into an auto again. It's one thing to get tossed over a telegraph wire yourself, but when it comes to killing a little child I'm not in it."

"I don't blame you," said Jones, "but it usually requires killing some one rather than just missing it to give a man the horrors."

LEVY FOR 1913

KNOWLEDGE

Is a Better Guide Than Instinct When Buying :

By HOLLAND.

KNOWLEDGE is more widespread today than ever before. Twenty-five years ago much buying was done by instinct—done in a haphazard way that is a thing of the past like the spinning wheel and the tallow candle.

Your grandmother trusted largely to luck—you depend on knowledge when it comes to spending money. What causes the difference? Advertising.

Publicity has revolutionized business. It has increased business honesty, has advanced business ethics and has ended slipshod methods.

To gain the advantage of these changed conditions you must have knowledge. You must know values. You can learn them only by studying advertising. In no other way can you learn what is best and what the best is worth.

CARELESS BUYING
OFTEN MEANS
DISAPPOINTMENT.
Equip yourself with the knowledge necessary for economical buying. If you have money to spend you owe this to yourself and to those for whom you buy.

Varlet and Valet.

"We have only ourselves, or, rather, our forefathers, to blame for the trouble about the pronunciation of 'valet,'" says the London Chronicle. "If they had stuck to 'varlet' there would have been no difficulty. 'Valet' and 'varlet' are the same word, meaning originally just a boy, the diminutive of 'vassal,' a man. Unfortunately when our ancestors applied a word meaning a boy to signify a servant they went on to make it bear a scornful sense. And so 'varlet' degenerated hopelessly, just as did 'knaves,' which is simply the German 'kneave,' boy."

Indisputable Evidence.

"Say, father," said little Fred, "did you ever have another wife besides mother?"
"Why, certainly not," said the father.
"How do you happen to ask such a question, my boy?"
"Well, father," continued the boy, "I saw in the family Bible that you married Anne Domini, 1892, and I know that wasn't mother, for her name was Mary Parsons when she was a girl."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not Too Pushing.

"Madam, I must congratulate you on having such a pushing young fellow for a husband."
"Yes; George does very well with the lawn mower, but I have a time with him about the baby carriage."—Baltimore American.

Eating and Talking.

We all eat too much, and it is little wonder—there is so much to eat. And we all talk too much, because there is so much to talk about.—New Orleans Picayune.

Farm and Garden

DO YOU GROW SWEET CORN?

No Crop Responds Better to Good Treatment Than This One.

Every truck farmer knows that the first early sweet corn in the market pays as great a profit as any crop grown.

It is usually sold by the hundred and marketed in sacks containing that number of ears. The fodder remaining after the crop is sold is nearly as valuable as timothy hay. The best profit comes from the earliest acres, says a writer in the Farmer's Review. Sweet corn cannot be shipped a great distance, as it deteriorates rapidly;

SWEET CORN AND LIMA BEANS.

therefore the local grower does not have such competition as does the grower of less perishable products.

Sandy or light loam soil, with an open subsoil, is best for this crop.

The very best seed of the best and most popular varieties should be provided. Home grown seed, well selected and well cured, will pay big profits on the cost of labor employed for this work. The first plantings must be made early in the season, and seed only of the greatest vitality will withstand the unfavorable weather conditions that are likely to prevail at this season.

The cultivation of this crop should be thorough, and no crop will respond sooner to good treatment.

To succeed in growing sweet corn for the early market a liberal amount of plant food must be provided at the right time and in available form. This means cover crops and an increased use of commercial fertilizers.

Roosters not needed, loafing hens, boarding cows, small litter sows, run down soil—these are what hold a farmer down—lowa Homestead.

Dry Feed or Wet Mash?

The wet mash of cornmeal and bran that used to be the standard morning feed of the farm flock seems to be going out of style in favor of the hopper full of a mixture of dry ground grain. The new plan is better for large flocks, but for a small flock the wet mash has advantages. For one thing it is easier to keep up the water supply than where the fowls are given all dry grain. Another point is that the constant presence of dry feed attracts rats, while the wet mash as usually fed will be eaten up clean.—American Cultivator.

Handle Manure Once Only.

It should be the rule never to handle manure more than once. When removed from the barn or feeding shed, it should be loaded at once into the spreader and hauled to the field. If the farm is small and the amount produced is only at the rate of one or two loads a week, the convenience and improvement of taking it directly from the stable and spreading it at once on the field will certainly justify driving the manure spreader slowly.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ALL AROUND THE GARDEN.

As soon as the cutting of rhubarb stalks is over give the ground a good dressing of manure.

Cauliflower can be grown more easily than cabbage. It is always in demand at good prices.

Wild strawberries have the most delicious flavor. They are easily transplanted to the garden.

Do not neglect to mark the wild flowers now which you wish to transplant later in the border.

In some sections of the country the practice of mulching potatoes is followed by a number of growers.

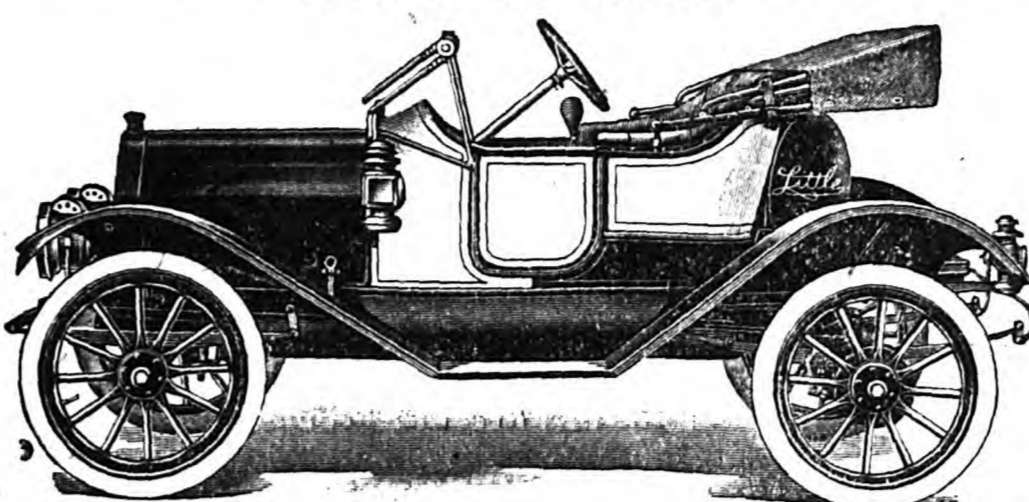

Pick the blossoms of pansies, nasturtiums and sweet peas every day. If allowed to seed they cease to bloom.

Very fine fruit and large yields can be secured from tomatoes by setting posts and running horizontal wires similar to the grape trellis.

Where the soil is strong a good crop of vegetables may be raised between the rows of trees in the young orchard. This means cultivation and manuring.—Farm Progress.

BOSOM FRIENDS

An Episode of the Mexican Revolution

By RYLAND BELL

On the outskirts of the City of Mexico lived two friends, Manuel Cusio and Enrique Coral.

Both Cusio and Coral were acquainted with Pepita Reyes and were making love to her at the same time. Cusio, who had no idea that his friend was favorably disposed to the girl, confided his own feelings with respect to her, but Coral did not reciprocate the confidence. The latter had an idea that he could by perseverance win Pepita from Manuel and proposed to her after he knew that she had engaged herself to his friend.

While Pepita was a girl of very deep feeling, she possessed a good understanding and plenty of solid sense—that is to say, she had both brains and tact.

"Why do you set so much store by your friend Enrique Coral?" she would say. "You are his superior in every way. You have in you the makings of a more prominent citizen. You are more trustworthy."

"You women," replied Manuel, "are influenced by your feelings. Men judge by facts. Enrique will one day be one of the most influential men in Mexico."

Pepita knew that Enrique was aware of his friend's love for her and that she had promised to be his wife, but so great was Enrique's influence over Manuel that she dare not tell her lover what Enrique had done. Should Enrique deny it Manuel would believe that she had a personal grudge against his friend and had brought a false accusation against him. Indeed, Manuel had once said to her, "Why is it that when a woman gets a lover she at once tries to separate him from all his old friends?"

On this account Pepita thought it wiser to keep the secret, realizing that if Manuel's eyes were ever opened to his friend's true character he must find it out through some one else than herself. Possibly after marriage she might venture a warning, but not now. Enrique, she believed, had it in his power to separate her from Manuel, whom she dearly loved.

When Manuel and Pepita were married Enrique was called away on business and was not present at the wedding. This cast a gloom on the festivities, for the groom was bitterly disappointed. Indeed, Enrique was to have been his "best man." His bride was tempted to tell him the reason of his friend's absence, but shrank from bringing the accusation at such a time. After the wedding she put off speaking of the matter, and when again she met Enrique he expressed his appreciation of her good sense in not having told Manuel that he had been his rival and begged that she would never break up their friendship by doing so. Since he excused himself for his act by his infatuation for her and seemed to regret having spoken, she yielded to a request that she would promise him to keep the secret always.

Ten years passed. While Cusio and Coral were naturally not thrown together as much as they had been when they were both bachelors, there seemed to be no change in their intimacy. Coral had achieved prominence as an agitator. He was a fluent speaker and was always ready to show the people why they should pull down rather than why they should patiently plod on in building up. Cusio was an unambitious man and unaware of his talents. He had inherited a hacienda and was content to cultivate it, spending any time not required for the purpose in his library.

Such was the status when the uprising against President Porfirio Diaz began to show itself. Cusio was satisfied with the existing conditions and remained quietly on his hacienda. Coral, while pretending to support the government, was secretly working with the supporters of Madero. The revolution was a long while developing, and during this period Cusio and Coral had frequent discussions upon the political aspects of national affairs, and when they had parted after one of them Cusio would say to his wife:

"There's a man for you. The president has no such staunch supporter as Enrique Coral. When the revolution is ended he will occupy one of the most important positions in the cabinet."

"Nevertheless, my dear," replied the wife, "remember that in politics friendship does not count. When it becomes necessary for the politician to sacrifice his friend he has no alternative, especially during these governmental changes we have in Central America. To keep your own counsel is not to distrust your friends. You don't know but that circumstances may arise which will compel him to sacrifice you."

"When Enrique sacrifices me," replied the infatuated man, "I shall consider the world too dishonorable for me to live in."

Pepita turned away, with a sigh, saying to herself: "The world is too contemptible for him to live in. He is so honorable himself that he can't realize the dishonor of others."

When the uprising was completed and President Diaz was leaving Mexico, Coral went over publicly to the side

he had been secretly fostering and became one of the chief beneficiaries of the Madero government. His friend Cusio was surprised at this, but Coral convinced him that he was simply doing his duty, as it was the duty of all good men to support the existing government. Mexico was in a transition state, and her more influential citizens must do what they could to prevent anarchy.

In stating the causes for this change to his wife Manuel Cusio added: "Enrique always decides right. For me, I cannot go with the Maderists. I cannot take that comprehensive view of the situation that Enrique is capable of taking. I am too narrow. I cannot see the good of the people as Enrique sees it."

Pepita said nothing. She was thinking that Enrique was now a man of influence in the dominant party, and if it became his interest to sacrifice her husband he had the power to do so. Not that she foresaw any such sacrifice. Indeed, she realized only the desire of Coral's younger days to possess his friend's wife, and doubtless that had died out long ago.

One day a body of troops rode into Cusio's hacienda and arrested him. Astonished, he asked by what authority they acted, but the officer in command only shrugged his shoulders and said that the arrest was by order of the government. Pepita saw her husband taken away from her with a sinking heart.

"Do not worry, sweetheart," he said. "I shall notify Enrique Coral, who will surely have the power to beat off this enemy, whoever he may be, who has doubtless taken this means of being renege upon me for some fancied injury."

She did not care to discourage him, but she failed to share his confidence in his friend. If Enrique could help him without too much sacrifice to himself she believed he would do so. But Enrique was not the president, nor the vice president, nor a general, nor one of the cabinet. When her husband had passed out of sight she turned away and gave vent to her fears.

The next day the blow fell. A messenger came from Enrique Coral to say that her husband and his friend had been shot the night before while trying to escape from his guards. Coral had applied to the president for Manuel's release, and the application had been granted. He was going himself to the jail with the order when he heard the sad news. He begged Pepita if there was any way by which he could lighten her affliction to let him know.

The young widow did not leave the hacienda after her husband's murder. Coral came occasionally to see her. She received him with neither cordiality nor coldness. What she felt toward him he was unable to divine; what she showed was not different from her bearing toward him when her husband lived.

During the incumbency of Madero Coral ventured to show to Pepita that the love he had borne her still lived. He met with a simple turning away. He was a man who did not consider anything impossible. He spoke his love and asked the widow to be his wife. He met with a refusal, as he had expected, but believed that he would at last succeed.

Not long before the revolution that deposed Madero Senora Cusio left her hacienda to make several visits to the City of Mexico. What she was doing there no one knew. Indeed, some of her visits were made secretly, and no one who knew her was aware of her presence there. She met several government officials and gained access (by bribery) to certain documents. Among others there was a letter from one in authority to a military officer, stating that, on the information of Enrique Coral, Manuel Cusio was known to be plotting against the government. The officer was ordered to arrest the said Cusio and confine him in the city prison.

When Enrique Coral called again on his old love he was received in a manner that seemed to warrant another proposal. He asked her to reconsider her former decision, and she consented. But he was to have no lover's privileges, not even a kiss, till the revolution that had been started to depose Madero had come to a head.

Coral was bound to Madero in interest and had nothing to hope from the other side. He therefore stuck to his chief and, after the latter's fall, instigated by his fiancée, began to plot for the downfall of the Huerta government. This plotting was undertaken in the provinces, Coral keeping away from the capital. One day he received a letter from Senora Cusio saying that she was in the city and if he would come there she would marry him.

It was a risky step for him to take, but love tripped. He arrived on the day set for the nuptials and had scarcely entered the city before he was arrested by order of the Huerta government and lodged in jail. Soon after his arrest he was visited by his bride elect. She had with her documents proving conclusively that it was through him that her husband had been arrested and murdered under the Mexican law that exonerates any one shooting a prisoner trying to escape—a pretext under which so many persons were murdered at the fall of the Madero government. What further occurred between them is not known. But the fact remains that the same evening at the hour Coral was to have been married, while being removed to another prison, he was shot "while trying to escape."

Senora Cusio is still a widow, and there is no prospect of her again marrying. The only occasion of her leaving her hacienda was when she was seeking the evidence by which to avenge her husband's death and to meet his murderer.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 22 1913

Now that Lorie C. Quinn has joined the ranks of the opposition, a conference has been proposed to be attended by the friends of Joshua W. Miles for the purpose of singing the long meter doxology, the first line of which is as follows: "Praise God from whom all BLESSINGS flow."

Mr. Quinn Will Have to Explain

We read with great amusement the high sounding editorial, appearing in the last issue of the Crisfield Times, of which Mr. Lorie C. Quinn is senior editor, and which is headed "The Passing of the Boss."

How short indeed must be the memory of Brother Quinn, for we vividly recall an occasion less than nine months ago, after the election of Woodrow Wilson, when Mr. Quinn, at the head of a large delegation of Democrats, came to this town, seeking out Joshua W. Miles and went so far as to deliver a speech from the steps of the law office of Mr. Miles in which he congratulated him upon the conspicuous part he had played in the nomination and election of the President and hailed him as the real leader of progressive Democracy in the county.

We recall also reading an editorial appearing in the "Times" within the last five months, in which Mr. Quinn urged that Mr. Miles was entitled to occupy a place in the President's cabinet. We also know it to be a fact, that since the inauguration of the President Mr. Quinn has repeatedly sought and held political conferences with Mr. Miles, whom he now contemptuously likens to a Russian monarch, in order to obtain his endorsement for a federal job. Rumor has it, indeed, that his failure to obtain such endorsement is responsible for the zeal now shown by Mr. Quinn in the cause of reformation. In any event, the public is entitled to know which of the two different courses which Mr. Quinn has pursued recently, represents his real opinion of Joshua W. Miles. If the sentiments expressed in the last editorial are sincere, then there is only one phrase which properly characterizes his previous efforts to curry his favor, viz, duplicity of the rankiest kind.

Generalizing Not Sufficient

When a party of men organize for the purpose of overthrowing another organization, the public is not always assured that the proposed one will be any better than the other, if as good. On the contrary, there is usually the suspicion that the proposed dethronement is based on some crooked policy. It takes facts, and plenty of them, to show the opposite.

One of the chief troubles with men interested in putting everybody else down is that they usually want to get up themselves. To do this, there is too often the absence of specific charges and reliance is on mere generalization. When a line of procedure, supposed to be a broad one, is aimed at one man, there is more reason than ever for specifying the why's and wherefore's.

Applying this principle to the recent "Progressive" conference at Crisfield, the call for a new deal is upon too general lines. The true meaning of that call seems to have been an attack upon one man and for that reason its object, as that of a band of disinterested patriots, will be discounted far in advance of the proposed mass-meeting. If the men who feel that they owe a duty to the county to supplant Mr. Miles as a political leader, desire to get popular support in such a movement, they will certainly have to clear their own skirts and at the same time be clearly specific as to their reasons for such supplanting.

Some men are like Oliver Cromwell, who, in dismissing the English Parliament, proclaimed, "The Lord is done with you." It is an easy thing, thus to dispose of matters and to lay responsibility upon others, even if Divine Providence has to be invoked to share it. It has always been a question whether Cromwell was a true patriot or a zealous fanatic. Many adhere to the latter opinion. It is not always easy to distinguish men and their motives. As to the Miles hunt and those pursuing it, we fail to see any signs of patriotism in the movement. It looks selfish and crooked from beginning to end.

Mr. Miles really needs no defense for there is nothing to defend against; on the contrary his career has been a most brilliant one and one that none of his opponents dares to assail and beside which their own accomplishments are most insignificant.

It would be well for the majority, if not all, of those who are claiming to be performing a patriotic and unselfish duty in denouncing Mr. Miles, to turn the glass upon themselves. The reflection might not be specially agreeable, but it might be amazingly instructive.

Fair Inez Succumbs

More or less consternation seems to have been caused in the ranks of both the suffragists and the "antis" by the bold decision of Miss Inez Milholland, pronounced by many to be loveliest of all America's Amazons, to take unto herself a husband.

We confess that we are unable to see why. It is true that some of both sexes have maintained that only the unattached females, those to whom domesticity or even the thought of it was hateful, wanted to vote. But it is easily susceptible of demonstration that not all suffragists, at least in this country, are man-haters. Such of them as are married—and some of them are—have not yet discarded the man of the house.

Our belief is that nothing but good can flow from this proof that even suffragists are human—and feminine. If this particular bride develops more interest in looking after her husband's socks and meals and in keeping him as happy as he is to-day than she does in furthering "the cause," then the antis will have no cause to grieve; and on the other hand the as yet unattached militants will be able to proclaim without fear of contradiction that devotion of the highest to "the cause" does not make woman immune to the joys or averse to the duties of matrimony.

In the meantime, groping man will have an unusual opportunity to discover just what is the relation between love and suffragism and whether it is only the lonely and the unsought who think that men are tyrants and brutes.—Philadelphia Press.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. What Causes Insanity?

Count a dies non that day on which no alienist gives a new reason why the human race, or at least that portion of it which inhabits the United States of America, is rapidly approaching insanity in toto. But do not attempt to classify, and far less to credit the various causes of this mental degeneration which is so apparent to alienists professional and amateur.

The latest of these is "home life"! Modern home life, we are told by a speaker before the national Congress of Alienists and Neurologists, which met lately, begets spoiled children, who become "egomaniacs" and undergo a nervous mental breakdown which lands them in asylums for the unbalanced.

This merely provides a contrast for the earlier diagnosis of much insanity as the result of flat dwelling, with its incitement to "gadding" or a life in lobster palaces, according to the "flat-terers" means. You can also go "dippy," if the various alienists are to be believed, whether you sleep too much or too little, become attached to animal pets, or don't wear red, or any other color; if you eat meat, or if you cultivate the prejudice of the herbivora; if you overwork, or overplay; if you cultivate the convolutions of your gray matter, or acquire brain rust; whether your disposition is active or phlegmatic, your affections readily engaged or an Arctic chill inhabits your heart; if you marry, or remain unwed. In short, no matter what your habits, you can find some alienist who will discover in you unmistakable tendencies toward the madhouse.

The most inexact of sciences is, we fear, also the most fruitful source of that sort of mental bias which led somebody to remark that the world is to each man as he sees it—his own creation.—Baltimore Star.

—Some people never put off until tomorrow the unpleasant things they can say today.

Hailed As The G. O. P. "Moses"

Senator Wm. P. Jackson arrived at his home in Salisbury last Wednesday fresh from the Baltimore amalgamation meeting of the two wings of the Republican party and the Senator spent the day in the business centre of the city receiving congratulations from his Republican and Bull Moose friends for his efforts in bringing about a reconciliation in the party lines.

He was hailed on all sides as the new "Moses" of the Republican party in Maryland and he was especially emphatic in saying that the party would be prepared to present a "battle front" against the common enemy in Maryland the coming year.

Select Good Seed Wheat

The result of wheat harvest shows very irregularly this year—some farmers claim they will not get much more than enough for seed.

The Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station will be of great assistance to farmers in the selection of wheat for seed. The best varieties pretty generally throughout the State and, later, will have prepared a list of those who have good seed for sale, so it will be well for those who will require seed wheat to get in correspondence with the Experiment Station, that they be put on the list of prospective buyers.

Centaur Company Wins Suit

A permanent injunction restraining the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Company from imitating the wrappers used by the Centaur Company of New York, manufacturer of "Fletcher's Castoria," was granted by Judge F. A. Geiger in United States district court.

The complainant company charged the local agent with using wrappers which infringed upon their copyright for the labels of their well known preparations. The judge upheld its claim and ordered the defendants to pay damages of $200 as well as the costs of the action.

The decision handed down by Judge Geiger applies to between 400 and 500 Wisconsin retail druggists who are stockholders in the defendant company.—Milwaukee, Wis., "News" [Advertisement]

In the Circuit Court for Somerset County. No. 2844, Chancery.

Whereas a certain James E. Dashiell, collector of State and County taxes for the Second Collection District of Somerset County, in the State of Maryland, for the years 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, a sale made by him to William J. Phillips, of all that lot or parcel of land lying and being in St. Peter's Election District of Somerset County, Maryland, containing 2 1/2 acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, bounded on the east by the county road leading to Crab Island on the south by the land of George Wallace, on the west by the land of W. W. Tyler, on the north by the land of Jno. Smith, which was conveyed unto Fannie Chelton by E. B. Phoebe, Jr., by deed dated the 23rd day of April, 1900, recorded in Liber O. T. B., No. 28, folio 44, etc., assessed to Christopher Chelton on the assessment books of said Election district for the years 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1909, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of the law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now it is therefore ordered, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, this 19th day of July, in the year 1913, that notice be given by the publication of this order once a week for three successive weeks in the MARYLANDER AND HERALD, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset County before the 15th day of August next, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to appear in this Court on or before the 22nd day of August next, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report states the amount of sales to be $28.60.

Treasurer's Sale 1911 TAXES

By virtue of the power and authority vested in me as County Treasurer for Somerset County, by the provisions of Chapter 10 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1910, I hereby give notice that on at the hour of 1.30 o'clock p. m., at the Court House door in Princess Anne, Maryland, I will sell at public auction for cash all lots or parcels of land hereinafter severally mentioned and described to pay and satisfy the State and County taxes, levied against the said hereinafter described lots or parcels of land for the year 1911, or charged to and due from the several persons to whom the same are assessed, which said taxes are now due and in arrears for said year, together with the interest and costs thereon and costs of sale.

No. 1—All that lot of land in Mt. Vernon district, Somerset County, Maryland, containing 1/4 acre, more or less, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of Isaac Harris and John and Nathan Elzey, conveyed to Lester Waters by deed recorded in Liber T. B., No. 27, folio 80, and assessed to said Waters for said year.

No. 2—All that lot of land in Mt. Vernon district, said county and state, containing 2 acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, situated on the road leading from White Haven to the Head of the Creek, adjoining the lands of Sidney Nutter and Susan Gosler, conveyed to Lucy Smith by deed recorded in Liber S. F. D., No. 48, folio 22, and assessed to Daniel E. Smith for said year.

No. 3—All that lot of land in Fairmount district, said county and state, containing 300 acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, called "Cow Quarter," situated on Horrold's Cove and the Annamess river, conveyed to Carol Crockett by Fred W. Culbertson and wife by deed recorded in Liber S. F. D., No. 58, folio 501, and assessed to Fred W. Culbertson for said year.

No. 4—All that lot of land in Deal's Island district, said county and state, containing 2 1/2 acres, more or less, with the improvements thereon, situated on the county road to Wepona, adjoining the lands of Herod Armstrong and Mrs. Thomas Thomas, conveyed to W. J. Tankersley by deed recorded in Liber S. F. D., No. 58, folio 478, and assessed to Arnold Wallace for said year.

ROBERT F. MADDOX,
Treasurer for Somerset County.

Order of Publication

Sarah Robertson vs. Montford and Nellie Robertson, his wife, et al.

No. 2,839, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situated in said Somerset County, of which William Robertson, late of Somerset County deceased, died seized and possessed, to pay the debts of the said William Robertson, personal estate being of no value. The bill states that the said William Robertson, at the time of his death, was indebted to E. B. Phoebe, Jr., on two judgments, and to open account, and to the Peoples Bank of Somerset County, on a promissory note, all of which since the death of the said William Robertson, having been assigned to the plaintiff, she having fully paid the same that the said William died on or about the 3rd day of September, 1912, intestate, leaving no personal property of any value, but being seized and possessed of a lot or parcel of land situate in Fairmount Election District, and lying and binding on a private road leading to the Home Place of the late John H. Fontaine; that the said William left surviving him, a widow, Rose Robertson, who has since died, and the following children and grand-children, as his sole heirs at law: Sarah Robertson, Montford Robertson, who married Nellie Robertson, Grace Robertson, Cassie Robertson, and Anna Johnson, who married Daniel Johnson, Mary Maddox, who married Renbott, all of whom were at full age; also Elizabeth Robertson, an infant daughter of a deceased son, William Robertson, Clarence Robertson and Susie Robertson, both infants; children of another deceased son, Melvin Robertson, all of said children and descendants being non-residents of the State of Maryland except Sarah Robertson, Elizabeth Robertson, Mary Maddox and Renbott Maddox.

It is thereupon this 3rd day of July, 1913, ordered by the clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of August, next, give notice to the said non-resident defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person, or by solicitor, on or before the 27th day of August next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed, as prayed.

—It is reported that the Queen Anne's county wheat crop is proving to be a failure. A week ago farmers believed the prospect fine, and many were expecting large yields. This week threshing machines are busy in scores of fields, and many growers are getting only 10 bushels to the acre. Other wheat is turning out better, but the crop, taken as a whole, is disappointing. The general opinion is that the crop prospects were blighted by the frosts, which blackened the head.

—Col. Jos. R. Baldwin, treasurer of the Bull Moose organization, is making commendable efforts to put his party straight in the matter of its financial obligations. The treasurer, at the close of the 1912 campaign, found upon his desk advertising bills throughout the State to the amount of about $16,000, with no funds with which to settle. He frankly admitted the fact, but stated that in time he hoped his party would be able to settle. Last week the Colonel, after diligent personal effort, began a policy of settlement, and we are glad to state that the MARYLANDER AND HERALD was not overlooked.

—Oriole was the scene of one of the largest crowds of people seen there for many years, on Wednesday last. The occasion was a festival held in connection with two very interesting games of ball. The Oriole team, under the leadership of Mr. Harry Phoebus, of that place, played the first game with the White Haven team, the score being 7 to 3 in favor of the White Haven boys. The second game was played by Deal's Island and Oriole, the score being 1 to 0 in favor of Oriole. After the game, supper and refreshments were served in the grove near the church, following which a most interesting address, entitled "Home," was given by the Hon. Joshua W. Miles. The attendance included persons from Princess Anne to Deal's Island and from Fairmount to White Haven.

—Fire destroyed a stable in the rear of Mr. W. T. G. Polk's home, on Main street, last Sunday morning about 10 o'clock. Mr. Polk saved his horse and carriage but lost a lot of fodder which had been recently stored. The origin of the fire is unknown.

—Mr. Dixie D. Dryden, who some weeks ago broke his left arm by falling off the porch at his home, had the misfortune to fall from his bicycle yesterday morning and break the same arm a second time. Dr. Henry M. Lankford rendered the necessary surgical attention.

—Former Attorney General W. S. Bryan is leading the movement to test the validity of the Governor's ruling that candidates for the short term in the United States Senate can be nominated and a senator elected under the existing primary and general election laws.

—A suggestive incident occurred last Wednesday, when several well known citizens of Crisfield, who are prominent in the effort to depose Hon. Joshua W. Miles as Democratic leader of Somerset county, made a visit to Princess Anne and were observed to make their way to Republican headquarters. What the result of this significant visit was, is a matter of conjecture, but it is evident that the way is being paved for some of the same class of performances that were witnessed here two years ago. Republicans, of course, disclaim the idea of combination or overtures—but then who knows? Actions sometimes speak louder than words.

—The thunder storm of last Thursday night was a mild affair around this section. At Crisfield and vicinity, however, it was a very different affair. Lightning struck the home of Mr. W. J. Wharton, on North Somerset avenue, setting fire to the house, which was completely destroyed by the flames. The bolt entered near a chimney, stunned Mrs. Franke, Mrs. Wharton's mother, and soon the building was in a blaze. A small quantity of furniture was saved. Lightning struck the home of Mr. R. H. Sterling, Lawsonia, stunned Mr. Sterling and almost wrecked the building. Shingles and bricks were found 100 feet away. The barn of Mr. R. B. Somers was struck and a valuable horse killed. A batteau owned by N. B. Sterling, at anchor in Ape's Hole, was struck and badly damaged.

Foot Crushed in Motorboat

While returning to Crisfield from Hunting Creek, Va., in a gasoline boat on Saturday, July 12th, J. Elkton Moore's foot caught between the bottom of the boat and the propeller shaft, the ankle and lower part of the leg being badly mangled.

The boat turned back to Hunting Creek, and Mr. Moore was placed in a wagon and carried to Parkersburg, Va., where first aid was given. Later he was sent to Crisfield, arriving there Monday afternoon.

At the General and Marine Hospital Tuesday morning it was found necessary to amputate the foot about four inches above the ankle.

In Memoriam

Pennington—In sad but loving remembrance of our only and beloved darling, Winifred, who departed this life one year ago, July 22d, 1912.

In a casket white as snowflakes,
Nestling all among the flowers,
Lies our dainty blue-eyed darling,
Who such a little while was ours.
Oh! may we meet our darling
Where friends no more shall weep:
For those who die in Jesus,
Their death is only sleep.

Into sweet rest he has entered,
No more to wake or to weep;
He is smiling upon us from Heaven,
Our dear Winifred has fallen asleep.

May the flowers grow around the grave
And the birds make music there,
For no one knows as we do,
What it means for our Winifred to be there.

Goucher President Named

It was announced last Wednesday by Sumnerfield Baldwin, Sr., president of the board of trustees of Goucher College, that Rev. Dr. William Wesley Guth, president of the College of the Pacific, San Jose, Cal., had accepted the presidency of Goucher, which was offered him several weeks ago.

A telegram from Dr. Guth, announcing his acceptance, was received by Mr. Baldwin.

Forty-two years old, Dr. Guth is a native of Tennessee. He received his preliminary education at the College of the Pacific, California, and took the bachelor's degree at Leland Stanford University. Later he did graduate work in Boston and in Germany, where he studied both at Halle and the University of Berlin, and upon returning to America was ordained a Methodist Episcopal clergyman. Prior to this he had taken a law course and received a degree from Hastings College of Law, and practiced for some time in San Francisco. He has been an extensive traveler, and has written one book.

PAINT NOW

If you ought to have painted last year and waited for paint to come-down, how much do you think you made?

You'll buy an extra gallon this year. There's $5 or $6 for paint and labor. You think you won't, but you will; you can't stretch paint.

It is always so: the longer you wait, the more paint and wages. Besides what paint is for. What is it for?

DEFENDED HIS COTTON.

Andrew Jackson Showed He Had a Grim Sense of Humor.

A Virginian veteran used to tell how Andy Jackson used bales of cotton in the ramparts that he threw up in defense of New Orleans, and it was naturally a matter of indifference to him whose cotton he employed.

Some of the cotton happened to be long to a rich merchant. The merchant followed his bales with doglike devotion. He could not bear to tear himself away from them. He was standing over them when Jackson happened to draw near, and, running up to the chief, he said: "Monsieur, it is damage for your men to take my cotton. All property is sacred and must be protected."

"But," said Jackson, "are you sure this is your cotton?"

"Oh, sure, most sure," said the merchant. "I know the marks, all of them. Et puis, alors, this cotton, sir, must be defended."

Jackson turned to a private and told him to fetch a musket at once. The musket being brought, the general laid it in the merchant's arms and said with a grim smile:

"My friend, you are the most proper person I know of to defend your own property. Stay here, then, and do so. Sir at your peril."

ENERGY OF RADIUM.

One Ton of It Would Equal in Power 1,500,000 Tons of Coal.

If one could utilize the energy of a ton of radium through a space of thirty years it would be sufficient to drive a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horsepower, at a rate of fifteen knots throughout the whole thirty years. To do this 1,500,000 tons of coal are actually required, says the Chicago Tribune.

These are not fanciful figures, for the energy is there, though, as a matter of fact, it is unlikely that man will ever produce much more than half an ounce of radium a year.

Still, the fact is important for this reason—that science is convinced that the radium in radium bromide is not the only element which possesses this marvelous store of energy, but that the calcium in gypsum and the sodium in common salt contain also this energy content.

The evidence of the wonderful atomic energies in the common elements of everyday material is rapidly accumulating, and scientists are of the opinion that perhaps these same discoveries may in time alter the whole future of the human race.

The Kitchen Sink.

It is a statistical fact that farm women die earlier than do farm men and that those who survive the years of drudgery break in health sooner than do the men. The opposite is true in town. There is no doubt in my mind that the biggest factor in the development of this state of affairs is the woeful lack of labor saving contrivances in the farm woman's home. Many houses in the country are still without that greatest of labor savers—a kitchen sink, a sink with a pump or faucet and with a drain leading out from it. The carrying in and out of water is the most laborious and back breaking task of all the hard tasks belonging to the housekeeper. There is no substitute for a kitchen sink. If you can add but one thing to your home this year and if you have no kitchen sink let that be the addition.—Farm and Fireside.

Why People Travel.

Because they think they are going to learn something, and it is only by traveling that they can discover that knowledge does not come by travel.

Because it helps them to get better acquainted with their neighbors—some of whom they are bound to fall in with on their travels.

Because the doctor tells them they ought to.

Because it gives them the illusion of superiority and furnishes them with topics of conversation.

Because it costs more than they can afford.

Because they don't know all the disagreeable things that will happen to them.

Because it is the only way in which they can discover how comfortable they are at home.—Life.

Hum of the Wires.

Anything that is stretched is apt to be thrown into vibration by the force of the air blowing against it. If it vibrates so fast as to produce the air waves that our ears can hear then that is what we call sound. This is what happens to the telegraph wires when they hum, and if we put our hand on the telegraph pole we shall feel that the wires vibrate strongly enough to set the whole pole trembling too. But when the air is quite still the telegraph wires do not hum.

Very Attentive.

"I can't get old Snip the tailor to pay any attention to me," remarked Dubbleigh.

"That's strange," said Slathers. "He's most assiduous in his attention to me. Sends me three or four bills every month."—Harper's Weekly.

Easily Explained.

Elder—If you believe that everything that takes place is foreordained why did you wallop the man you caught stealing your wood? Deacon—Because I couldn't help it. I felt that it was foreordained that I should wallop him.—Boston Transcript.

HIS QUEER SENSE OF HUMOR.

It Found Relief in Practical Jokes Upon the Clergy.

Some thirty odd years ago a young man came to New York from England (I have forgotten his name), and for a year or so he posed as a very ardent churchman. He had a mania which seemed to be the making of trouble for other people, with no particular object except that and certainly with no advantage to himself, as he very naturally remained "inco."

As illustrative, he would send out a hundred or more postal cards addressed to as many different plumbers in New York, asking them to call on a certain day, at a given hour, at the residence of the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity church. Another time it would be an army of bakers, and so on. On one occasion he sent invitations to a dozen of the clergy to dine with Dr. Dix on a given date. Imagine the good doctor's consternation when his unexpected guests arrived!

One of his bits of "funny" work, in which he used the name of the late Bishop Jaggard, was as follows: Dr. Cornelius B. Swope was the vicar of Trinity chapel, in Twenty-fifth street, at the time, and Dr. Horatio Potter the bishop of New York. Dr. Dix had become so exasperated as hardly to know what to do, and one day he went to consult Dr. Swope and to ask his advice as to what could be done, taking with him one of the cards that he had received. On looking at it Dr. Swope said:

"I recognize that handwriting because I received a card some time ago in the same hand, which I have kept as a curiosity."

This was the card:

Cincinnati, Ohio.
Dear Cornelius—It is rumored out here that you would like to be a bishop. If this is true please let me know at once. I have great influence with Morg. Dix and will see old Potter about it, so—
If you would like to be a bishop And with the bishops stand.
A miter on your forehead
And a crozier in your hand, please write me immediately. Faithfully yours,
THOMAS JAGGAR,
Bishop of Southern Ohio.

New York became rather too "hot" for our friend shortly after that, as the police got on his track, and he disappeared. He turned up later at his old tricks in Pittsburgh, I think, where he was exposed, and I don't remember what became of him.—Rev. Dr. W. W. Holley in Living Church.

FOR HOW LONG?

Princess Anne Raises A Pertinent Question

When a neighbor tells us that he has recovered from a serious illness, the first question that naturally arises is, "How long will he keep well?" Temporary relief is one thing but a lasting cure is altogether different. There is nothing temporary about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills as the following Princess Anne evidence proves beyond a doubt.

Mrs. Lena A. Hastings, Princess Anne, Md., says: "For nearly seven years I was afflicted with disordered kidneys and was made miserable by backache. Sometimes I was taken with severe headaches and pains in my loins. Finally the kidney secretions became disordered. Reading about the cures Doan's Kidney Pills had made, I got this remedy at Omar A. Jones' Drug Store. The first box cured me and I am now in perfect health. The statement I gave at that time still holds good. The cure Doan's Kidney Pills made has lasted for over five years."

FROZEN COAL MINES.

The Way They Manage to Reach Their Fuel In Holland.

It was not until 1883, when Poetsch invented the "freezing method," that Holland's coal fields became of any practical value.

Where coal is encountered immediately under the solid rock there is a stratum of drift sand that contains great quantities of water. This condition of things made it practically impossible to build the shafts. The freezing method, however, has successfully solved the problem, and Holland now has a flourishing mining industry.

On the spot where the shaft is to be dug from twenty-five to thirty borings are made down through the drift sand to the solid rock in a circle five feet larger in diameter than the projected shaft. Pipes are then sunk into these bore holes, and through these is circulated by powerful freezing machines a chemical solution cooled down to below zero.

In this way the drift sand containing the water is frozen as hard as a rock after the freezing machines have been working day and night for two months. In this frozen cylinder of sand a shaft is then dug and lined from bottom to top with strong segments of cast iron securely soldered together with lead.—Chicago News.

ALLAH'S HUNDRETH NAME.

Only the Camel Knows It; Hence the Sneer on Its Face.

The 999 widows of the mosque of Sultan Selim remind one of the ninety-nine names of Allah. These ninety-nine names, the Arabs say, are written in the palms of the hands of all true believers. The explanation is interesting, and even an unbeliever can test it.

The Arabic numeral 8 is written like an inverted V of the English alphabet. By holding up your left hand, with the thumb and fingers bent slightly inward the lines of the palms will be seen to take the form of a rough A1, which makes the Arabic figures 81. Placing the right hand under the left in the same way makes the figures 18 (18). The total is 99.

There ought really to be 100, but the hundredth is lost to every creature but one.

Why does the camel wear such a supercilious expression? The heavy pendulous under lip and the snarling curl of the upper give an expression of sneering contempt which can hardly be equalled in the brute creation.

No wonder. The camel alone knows the hundredth name of Allah, and he won't tell it.—Manchester Guardian.

Consider the Dew.

The question is often asked, Does the dew rise or fall? Dewfall is as admissible an expression as sunrise or sunset. In both cases the expression is at variance with scientific fact. Meteorologically, the formation of dew is not accompanied by motion in the vertical plane, hence there can be no question of rise or fall. Under certain conditions of wind, cloud and temperature various dew is produced. Warm air charged with moisture comes in contact with a cooler surface. When in this contact the heat is subtracted from the air and the saturation point for that temperature is reached, the moisture, which in the air has existed as water vapor, is condensed upon the cooler surface at the point of contact. The dewdrop, also good English, although false physics, has no existence in the air, but comes into being upon the surface bedewed. It does not fall nor does it drop.—Harper's.

Like a Hen's Toe.

The back to the solers know all about farming before they tackle it. But their hired men, having been born on the farm, are often silly about the real science of agriculture. Have you heard about what Danny Young's factotum told him about the new horse? No? Then listen.

"That boss you bought has come," announced the servant.

"Ah," cried Danny; "I'm glad of that. Is he right?"

"Fine."

"How are his teeth? We must always look at a horse's teeth. Are his teeth all right?"

"Boss, his teeth are as perfect and sound as a newborn babe's."

"Fine! I have a bargain, by hen?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Lawrence Took His Time.

The dispute about an unfinished Lawrence portrait recalls a story of that painter's dilatoriness. The Lord Melbourne of that time, after much letter writing about the portrait of his wife and child, said he could wait no longer. Lawrence pleaded for more time; he was well forward with the lady, but the baby wanted finishing; could he not have one more sitting? "My wife will be happy to give you another sitting whenever you like," was the answer, "but the baby is now in the guards!"—Dundee Advertiser.

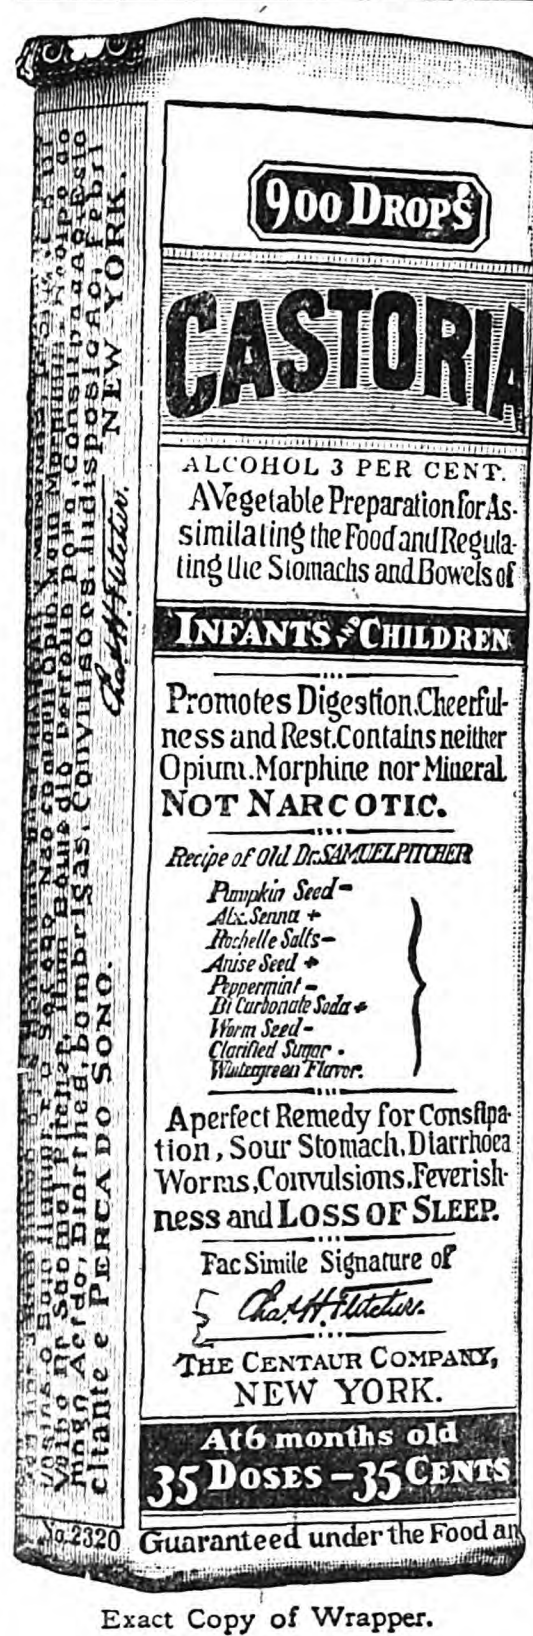

The Quest of Health.

"I suppose you take excellent care of your health?"
"No," replied Farmer Courtissol. "I tried every kind of medicine I could get hold of for awhile. Then I gave up and forgot about my health, and I've felt better ever since."—Washington Star.

Generous.

"Man, how you do look! Why, you have a full beard."
"Yes; I have raised it for a birthday present for my wife."—Ulk.

CHAIN OF FAME.

Barrier Washington Erected Across the Hudson.

ARNOLD REMOVED ONE LINK.

Ull the Monster Cable, in Spite of the Traitor's Act, Served Its Purpose and Blocked the Progress of the British Ships Up the River.

Somewhere in the bed of the Hudson river just off of West Point lies buried a larger part of a great iron chain, one of several ordered by General Washington during the Revolution to be constructed to prevent the enemy from ascending certain rivers to accomplish strategic points of vantage. The British were making strenuous efforts to get hold of the Hudson in order to keep free communication with Canada by the additional channels of the St. Lawrence and Lake Champlain, and so it was determined to obstruct the Hudson by a great chain crossing from Fort Montgomery to Anthony's Nose.

But this was a failure. The chain started within a week after it had been stretched, and, although subsequently raised and again placed, it was destroyed by the British.

Finally Washington decided to forge another and obstruct the river between West Point and Constitution Island, for here there was an abrupt change of course, and a heavy tide reduced the speed of any ship encountering it. Besides, the channel was 300 feet narrower at this crossing.

The forging of a chain such as was contemplated was then no small undertaking. Requests were secretly sent to various iron companies, and among the bids the most favorable came from the Sterling Iron works, situated in one of the most beautiful regions of the east, now within the fashionable domains of Tuxedo Park.

It was originally organized by Lord Sterling in 1781, a well known officer in the Revolutionary army, and continued in operation for more than a hundred years, meanwhile passing into the possession of Abel Noble, who married a niece of Peter Townsend and who now in association with the latter increased the capacity of the works which eventually came into the entire possession of Peter Townsend, a patriot and filled with the spirit of the time.

He finally obtained a few Welsh miners from Pennsylvania for the heavy handling in the forging and a number of men from Connecticut with their teams to do the hauling, and when the chain was ready it was drawn over the rough mountainous roads and through forests that had to be purchased out in many places and so on to New Windsor, the nearest river point, and towed to West Point.

It was a strenuous undertaking from the very start. Each link weighed 300 pounds, was two feet in length and two and a quarter inches square, and each 100 feet was secured by a swivel, a twisting link, and at every thousand feet there was a clevis. The whole of this weighed 155 tons. When it was stretched across from West Point to Constitution Island it was buoyed up by large sixteen foot logs, and these were in turn held in place by the anchors.

The British made no specific attack on this then invincible obstacle, for it must be remembered that, in those days there was no dynamite nor torpedoes, and none of the enemy's prowess would have pushed their way through such a barrier.

Although the British did not succeed in passing the big Hudson river chain, the American traitor Arnold gave it his particular attention and removed a link of it under the pretense of having it repaired for weakness at a nearby smithy. He wrote to Major Andre that it would not be replaced until the forts were surrendered to the British. But somehow the chain stood for its purpose, and Sir Henry Clinton did not attempt to relieve Burgoyne.

Parts of this celebrated chain are to be seen among the historical curios of prominent societies. A number of years ago Mayor Hewitt of New York, then the owner of a mine near the Sterling properties, became interested in finding out the whereabouts of the remaining portions of the chain. A large part of it lies at the bottom of the river, about thirty tons were in various possessions, and at West Point there are thirteen links, and a staple placed near the spot where the chain was anchored and a plate tells of the date and place of forging.—Boston Herald.

No Primaries For Her. "Are you going to the primaries tonight, Ethelinda?" asked the husband of his suffragette wife. "Indeed I am not!" replied the lady. "Do you suppose that after I have attended the postgraduate courses in political science for two years I'm going to waste my time on those primary classes? I guess not! They're good enough for you men, but we women have progressed beyond that!"—Harper's Weekly.

Two Failures. "I married for beauty alone," said a presumably happy benedict to an old chum. "And yet you remind me of a friend of mine who married for money," was the rejoinder. "How's that?" "He didn't get it," said the chum sarcastically.

The preservation of health is a duty few seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical morality.—Spencer.

Conflict of the Stars.

Every young star, such as our sun, attracts and gathers to itself quantities of impalpable cosmic dust which it encounters on its journey through space. Therefore every youthful heavenly body is increasing in size. But on the other hand every old and worn-out star reverses the process and instead of gathering in new supplies discharges its accumulations. In the end the old star is utterly disintegrated and dissolved back into primordial dust which reassembles somewhere on the outskirts of space where a new star is organized. This process of tearing down old worlds and rebuilding new ones goes on perpetually. Some of the forces which nature employs for this work are light, electric currents and gravitation.—Kansas City Star.

His Master's Politics.

During a general election in England a canvasser called at the house of the late Professor Froude, the historian. Mr. Froude was out, so the canvasser had to content himself with interrogating the butler as to how Mr. Froude would vote. Books From Unexpected Places.

Not only art, but literature, has been produced in unexpected places. There was, for instance, Robert Bloomfield, who produced his "Farmer's Boy" while working so hard as a shoemaker (in a garret with five or six others) that he frequently had to carry a hundred lines in his head through lack of leisure to write them down. James Hogg, too, "the Ettrick Shepherd," wrote his earliest verses while tending his sheep in the Perthshire highlands. And Taylor, "the Water Poet," combined the very different offices of literary man and Thames waterman.—London Chronicle.

The Third Hand.

How often the little things in life make impressions that linger in our memories long after the larger events are forgotten! Several years ago I was making a visit in a family where there were several daughters. One of the girls brought a hat into the sewing room one morning and prepared to trim it. Before doing anything else she took a hatpin and pinned the hat firmly to her skirts at the knees, so that she had both hands free and held the ribbon and flowers in place with her left hand while she sewed with her right.—Philadelphia North American.

It's Easy to Learn.

Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, hit on his marvelous discovery while studying and while teaching the deaf.

Professor Bell once said, apropos of this fact:

"Yes, we can learn valuable secrets from the most unlikely sources. A Persian poet, famed for his wisdom, was once asked by his king where he had learned his philosophy.

"From the blind, sire," the poet replied—"from the blind, who never advance a step until they have tried the ground."—New York Tribune.

Diamonds and Glass.

The diamond, instead of being a real solid, is a mass of atoms all in rapid and violent motion. The edge of the stone is formed of these moving molecules as well as the body. Now, glass is also made up of moving atoms, though they do not move so rapidly or so violently as the diamond atoms. When the diamond edge, therefore, is applied to the glass surface the diamond atoms drive the glass atoms out of the way and force a passage.

Merely a Microbe.

"Do you believe that love is due to a microbe?" "I know it is." "How do you know?" "One calls on my daughter four times a week, and she is beginning to fall in love."—Houston Post.

Partially Successful.

"Didn't I hear you fire something at that yowling cat early this morning?" "Yes; I threw the confounded alarm clock at it." "Hit the beast?" "No, but I got rid of the alarm clock."—Boston Transcript.

Rid Your Children of Worms.

You can change fretful, ill-tempered children into healthy, happy youngsters, by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A. Brislin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for years, and entirely rid my children of worms. I would not be without it." Guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price 25c. PACKING GOLD LEAF.

It is "Handled," So to Speak, by the Aid of a Puff of Breath.

The gold reaches the "beaters" first in wide bars or nuggets. It must be weighed, melted and made into inch wide ribbons before the "beating" begins. The ribbon is then cut into inch squares and beaten with a hammer wielded by a stalwart workman. When each leaf has been beaten thin it is transferred to a mold, where it is beaten again for a period of four hours. The beating is accomplished by means of a wooden hammer weighing from seven to eighteen pounds on a sheepskin cushion resting on a granite block. The gold beaten is usually 22 or 23 carats fine. A little alloy of copper or silver is added to make it spread. It would be impossible for the beaters to handle perfectly pure gold.

Gold leaf is packed more by the aid of the breath than that of the hands. The operation of transferring a sheet of almost transparent gold leaf from one place to another is of such delicacy that it is possible to accomplish it only by a slight puff of the breath. The packers are for the most part girls, to whom, after beating, the gold leaf is handed.

The girls lift the unshaped leaf from the mold with a pair of wooden pinners, flatten it out on a sheepskin cushion by gently blowing on it, cut it into a perfect square, replace it between the leaves of the book and flatten it out with the breath. A "book" consists of twenty-five leaves, and a skilled girl operator can pack seventy books in a day.—Harper's Weekly.

LAYING A GHOST.

A Simple Solution to the Mystery of a "Haunted" House.

The mystery of a "haunted" house was explained in a recent number of Science. It was a large, handsome structure in Boston's Back Bay district. The trouble centered in the third and fourth stories, where the slumbers of servants and children were disturbed by strange sensations.

It was a common occurrence for them to awake in the night with a feeling of oppression, "as if some one were tapping upon me." Sounds also were heard, as if some one were walking about or overhead. Once a child screamed into the nurse's room, crying that a man was waking him up and asking why she let him frighten him so. In the morning the children were pale and sluggish, even cold water lacking its usual power to enliven them.

Investigation at length revealed a comparatively simple, mechanistic solution in the escape of a large amount of furnace gas. Often the sulphur in it was so strong as to make the eyes water and to hurt the throat, while the sensations of oppression were typical of carbon monoxide. The noises may have been actual sounds coming from an adjoining house, although any noises at all would probably be exaggerated in the minds of persons awakened in the night while suffering from poisonous gas.

The Mother-in-law in France.

It is enough to chill one's passion for newspapers to read the mother-in-law gals, as they are said, sad jokes. A mother-in-law is not funny afterward; she is only funny beforehand. In France, where they do so many things neatly, this is understood. Listen! Young Raoul had gone down on his knees to madame, the Widow Lemoine, and begged leave to marry himself with her daughter. "But no!" said the widow firmly. "It is impossible!" Desolated, Raoul burst into tears. "Don't take it so hard, mon gosse," said she. "The petite Yvonne is exquisite, she is ravishing, yet there are many others in the France. A little of patience!" "But, madame! my dear madame!" howled Raoul. "It is you that I regret!"—New York Tribune.

Buried In Installments.

A well known local character of Townsend, Mont., lost a leg in a switching yard on the railroad. The railroad boys raised a little purse for the victim, who was rather down on his luck in other ways aside from the accident. After paying his board and hospital bills he went down and bought a coffin and a lot in the cemetery, and had his amputated leg buried in good style.

"Now," he said, "when I cash in all they will have to do will be to dig up the coffin and put me in with the leg!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Resurrections.

The world is full of resurrections. Every night that folds us up in darkness is a death, and those of you that have been out early and have seen the first of the dawn will know it. The day rises out of the night like a being that has burst its tomb and escaped into life.—George Macdonald.

RUSHED TO THE RESCUE.

Then They Made a Tactful, if Ignoble, Retreat to Safety.

An amusing story of the adventure that four men had with an irritable bull is told by a correspondent of the London Field. It contains a hint that may be useful to some reader who shall hereafter find himself in a similar disagreeable situation.

A farmer had a bull that he thought perfectly docile. One day he was quietly walking behind the herd when without any warning the bull turned and came straight at him. He had a heavy club in his hands, and he struck the animal with all his might over the head and eyes several times, when the club broke. For the moment he did not know what to do and thought it was all over with him, when he remembered that some one had told him that a bull would not attack you if you lay down, so he threw himself flat on his face and shouted for help, and three of his men who were not far off came running to the rescue.

When they got within about twenty yards he told them to come on their hands and knees, and in this way they came up alongside of him. The question then was what to do. They came to the conclusion that the only thing left was for all of them to retreat backward on their hands and knees. This they did, and the bull, never more than a yard off, followed them up with his head slightly on one side. Meanwhile he snorted and bellowed, and his eyes, showing all the whites, looked, the farmer said, as if they would come out of his head. At last the men reached the river bank, slipped over the edge and so escaped.

CUT THE RED TAPE.

Sarah Bernhardt's Lesson to Belgium's Customs Officials.

In the bad old days not so very long ago travelers, when they reached the Belgian frontier, were compelled to leave their compartments in the middle of the night in order to be present at the customs examination of their luggage.

A train in which Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was traveling reached the frontier at midnight, and the customs officials made their customary raid into her compartment. Roughly awakened from her beauty sleep and not in the best of humor, Mme. Bernhardt refused to descend.

The officials uncoupled the actress' carriage, dumped her luggage on the platform and went through it with conscientious vigor.

By this time the train was about ready to start.

"You are not going to leave without me!" cried the actress. "Be so kind as to couple my carriage at once."

"When we have completed our examination," replied the inspector aptly, "we will be back with redoubled zeal. But he did not know with whom he had to deal. The actress took up a portmanteau, placed it between the rails a few yards in front of the engine and calmly seated herself.

"And now," she said, "you can go on if you please."

The officials were helpless, and the Bernhardt car was attached to the train. This lesson in manners soon afterward produced a change in the Belgian customs.—London Telegraph.

Incidental Music.

One afternoon a couple from an adjoining town presented themselves to a Boston divine and asked to be married just as he was about to enter the pulpit to conduct an afternoon service. The minister replied that he regretted that he could not at that moment comply with their wish, but that immediately upon the conclusion of the service he would take pleasure in performing the ceremony. The lovers after denouncing seated themselves in the rear of the church. When the minister had finished the service he made the following announcement: "The parties who are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves at the chancel immediately after the singing of Hymn 415, 'Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven.'"—Exchange.

Spelling by Ear.

The young French stenographer, whose progress in English had not kept pace with her proficiency in shorthand, was puzzling over some notes she had taken of a recitation at a public entertainment.

As she transcribed them the recitation began like this:

La fanth wuria swidheu.

Oui panju oi pelone.

"That's easy," said the expert to whom she submitted the notes. "It is part of a poem that begins:

"Laugh and the world laughs with you.

Weep and you weep alone."

To Owners and Managers of Canning Establishment

Referring to the regulations issued by the State Board of Health under date of April 3d, 1913, the Food and Drug Department of said board desires to call attention to the following additional suggestions and to urgently recommend their adoption:

1. Tables, buckets and other utensils should be kept in a clean and sanitary condition by the frequent use of steam and hot water.

2. Living quarters, if provided by the canner, should have water-proof roofs and tight board floors, and should be provided with ample light and ventilation; provision should also be made therein for the proper separation and privacy of the sexes.

3. Occupants of living quarters provided by the canner, should be required to keep the same in a clean and sanitary condition.

4. All employees while at work in canning establishments should be required to wear suitable clothing that must be frequently washed; female employees to wear clean aprons and dresses, and men, washable overalls. Both should be required to wear clean, washable caps over the hair.

Maryland Ranks Ninth in Ship Building

According to statistics given out by the Department of Commerce, the shipbuilding industry in Maryland is on the decline, and it now ranks ninth among the shipbuilding States of the Union. In 1904 it ranked eighth. The statistics are based on figures for the year 1909, which are the latest obtainable.

In this year the total products manufactured in Maryland amounted to $3,584,575 which was a decided decrease compared with the amount produced in 1899. An interesting feature of the figures disclose the fact that while Maryland has but 46 ship establishments, as compared with 156 for Maine, the former produced $500,000 more products in 1909.

In 1909 there were 1,353 establishments engaged in the shipbuilding industry in the United States as a whole which gave employment to 40,506 wage-earners, to whom $25,267,686 was paid in wages. The value of products was $73,360,315, while the cost of material was $31,214,358, equal to 42.5 per cent. of the value of the products. The value added by manufacture was $42,145,957.

While the number of establishments engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel ships was comparatively small in 1909, they gave employment to more than two-thirds of the total number of men employed in this business and contributed 67.6 per cent. of total output. The average value of products per establishment for the industry as a whole in 1909 was $54,220, but for iron and steel shipbuilding the average was $936,175, as against $18,264 for wooden shipbuilding and boat-building.

The decrease in shipbuilding during the five-year period between 1904 and 1909 is clearly brought out by the fact that for all classes of vessels of five tons and over there was a decrease, with the exception of motorboats, which formed a small part of the total number reported. The decline in the iron-and-steel branch of the industry is no doubt due to the decrease in Government work done in private shipyards.

The increase in the number of small boats constructed is perhaps the most noteworthy fact. Motorboats of more than five tons increased 189.9 per cent. in gross tonnage from 1904 to 1909. The number of small boats of less than five tons launched by private establishments in the shipbuilding industry was 8,577 in 1909, as against 1,687 in 1899, an increase for the decade of 408.4 per cent.

In the manufacture of sailing ships a marked decline is noted during the past decade. In the year 1899 648 ships of this type were launched, against 119 in 1909. The gross tonnage of these ships was also decreased about 78 per cent. With the exception of Maryland, Washington and Florida, every State showed a decrease in number and tonnage of sailing vessels.

New York was the most important State in the shipbuilding industry, ranking first in number of wage-earners, value of products and value added by manufacture. In 1909 the industry of this State gave employment to 5,644 wage-earners, or 13.9 per cent. of the total for the United States, and reported products valued at $11,417,189, or 15 per cent. of the total, while the value added by manufacture amounted to $7,492,523, or 17.8 per cent. of the total.

Star-Spangled Banner Celebration in Baltimore

Preparations for the National Star-Spangled Banner Centennial to be celebrated in Baltimore in September, 1914, have progressed so far that a tentative program has been announced. Committees have been appointed by Mayor Preston with Prof. A. Barnveld Bibbins, of Goucher College, as executive chairman and the movement starts with a determination to make the celebration the greatest in the city's history.

Bills are drawn up for introduction in Congress providing for the participation of the national government and appropriating $250,000, for erecting at Fort McHenry, a Defenders' Memorial Hall, to be a permanent museum of relics of the War of 1812. The original Star-Spangled Banner which waved over the Fort during the bombardment, and which inspired Key's song, is in the National Museum at Washington and, it is expected, will be transferred to the new museum. Another relic likely to be obtained is the original manuscript of the poem. A statue of Key will likely be erected at the Fort.

Robert E. Lee, secretary to Mayor Preston, of Baltimore, who is also executive secretary of the Centennial Committee has visited Governors Mann, of Virginia; Sulzer, of New York, and Tener, of Pennsylvania, and extended to them formal invitations on behalf of Mayor Preston to attend the celebration. Each of them accepted the invitation and promise hearty co-operation.

Almost every one is familiar with the story of how Baltimore repulsed the British fleet, and army which captured Washington in 1814. Some of the best troops who had fought under the Duke of Wellington, and sailors who had shared the honors of Lord Nelson's victory, had to acknowledge defeat from the citizen soldiers of Baltimore, when Key, on the last night of the bombardment of Fort McHenry, strained his eyes to see if the Fort held out and the flag still waved, his brain formed the words of the wonderful song which was soon afterwards recognized through the length and breadth of the land, as the national anthem.

Appropriations for Charity

Few people realize the amount of money which the State appropriates for charitable purposes. The last Legislature authorized the payment during two years for which it legislated of the sum of $4,368,187.72 for charitable purposes. Of this vast sum, $1,600,000 is in the form of bonds, the proceeds of which will go for the erection of buildings to be used by eleemosynary institutions. One half the remainder, or $1,389,187.72 is the State's annual donation for the maintenance of these institutions. The Comptroller's estimate of the probable receipts for the present fiscal year is $12,184,802. It will thus be seen that the above donations amount to about 24 per cent. of the State's total income, including the proceeds of bonds sold.

The taxable basis of the State is $979,309,976; the $1,389,187 spent for maintenance alone is therefore equivalent to about 14 cents on the hundred dollars. The present day rate is only 23½ cents. It will thus be seen that the State is spending for charitable purposes considerably more than one-half of all it gets from the tax payers.

No one can deny the State's obligation to take care of its criminals, its insane, its indigent orphans, aged, and its sick. A large part of the money appropriated goes for these purposes. This year, for instance, the care of these classes will cost the State $1,052,700. Much of the remainder pays just claims on the tax payer, but a great deal of it goes to sources which have no proper claim on the tax-payers' money and is given to institutions which, while they are doing a very laudable work, are doing work of such a nature that the State is under no obligations to support them.

Need No D. C. License

Good news for Maryland automobile owners is contained in the announcement from Washington that the recent police regulations imposing the same tax on non-resident machines as is assessed by their respective home States has been rescinded.

These regulations, to which there has been widespread objection by Maryland automobile owners, were passed several months ago when a controversy between the Maryland and District of Columbia authorities started as the result of the Maryland authorities deciding to impose a tax upon the District of Columbia car owners.

The District tax has been avoided by a great many Marylanders going to Delaware to obtain a license, which license was recognized in the District of Columbia.

Political Announcements

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of Wm. J. Shores, of Chance, as a candidate for one of the Democratic nominations for representative in the Maryland Legislature from Somerset county, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary Election.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND
A Candidate for Sheriff
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County, Maryland:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Somerset county, Maryland, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held during the year 1913, in Somerset county, Maryland.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND.

JOHN W. WEST
A Candidate for the House of Delegates
To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic Primary.

While it is an honor to become a member of the General Assembly, I care but little for the honor. Any man who is worthy to be called a man is ambitious. My chief ambition in this matter is to serve with time and thought the whole people of this county and to be of service to the State. To me it will be a greater pleasure to help others than to be helped, to serve rather than to be served.

With a knowledge of the opportunities in other States, I believe I should be able by contrast to see the opportunities on the "Shore" for greatly increased business activities. The Peninsula is within five hundred miles of about half the population of this country. The possibilities for development are great and very much may be done by legislation that should result in launching a great forward movement of progress.

If I win in the primaries and at the regular election, you may be assured that my time, best thought and energy will be devoted to the best interests of the people.

I shall be pleased to hear from any one interested in my election and desires workers in every community. I am opposed, however, to voters making unqualified pledges to support any candidate in the Primary, for often by undue influence men have been led to make positive promises to support a particular candidate and on or before the day of election regretted they were bound. I wish to see men free to obtain all the information possible up to the day of the election, and then guided with knowledge and conscience cast a ballot for what they believe to be the best interest of the people.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one who has a vital interest in the greatest good to the greatest number.

JOHN W. WEST.

Does It Pay?

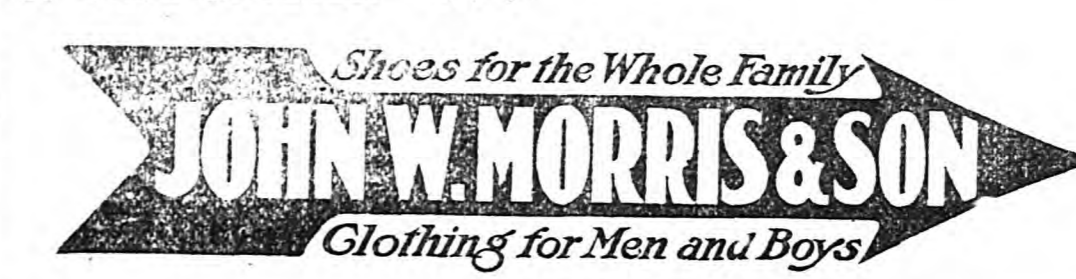

You have heard that nice little phrase of the mail order houses "Privilege of return, if unsatisfactory."

A precious privilege! The privilege of re-packing bad goods, expressing them back to some far-off city, and then fighting to get your money returned. Does it pay?

Why not buy nationally advertised goods right at our store? That gives you the "privilege" of looking at the goods without any bother, and buying only when they look right. And as they are all guaranteed by the manufacturers, by the periodicals that advertise them, and by ourselves, you have merely to telephone our store in case they do not please you when delivered. We take them back without a murmur.

This is a Good Housekeeping Store. That means we sell advertised goods and treat patrons fairly. Come and see us.

Talbot Not To Run

Congressman Talbot made a brief statement on the short term Senatorship recently which was taken to mean that he has definitely eliminated himself as a possible candidate against Blair Lee.

"I have received offers of support which I think would have been sufficient to warrant my entering a fight for Senator," said Mr. Talbot, "but I said in February that I would not be a candidate and there has been no change in my position."

It has been generally felt that Mr. Talbot was the strongest of those mentioned as candidates against Senator Lee, but he has not been favorably regarded by the city organization. The collapse of the candidacies of Mayor Preston, William Cabell Bruce and others who would have liked to make the fight turned attention in the last day or two to the possibility that a final effort would be made to rally behind the Baltimore county veteran.

A. P. DENNIS FOR SENATE

Urged by Friends to Accept Nomination—Personal Friend of Senator Smith

Reports from Worcester county according to the Baltimore Sun, indicate that Alfred P. Dennis, a brother of Samuel K. Dennis, the intimate personal political friend of John Walter Smith, may be the Democratic nominee for the State Senate.

Mr. Dennis, it is said, is not a candidate for the office, and it is not known whether he would accept the nomination, but considerable sentiment has developed for him, and in some quarters it is said he may be requested to take the nomination. This is equivalent to an election. He has been in the lumber business in Pocomoke City for some years and is one of the leading business men in the county.

There are a number of others who are spoken of for the nomination, among them being Calvin B. Taylor, of Berlin, a member of the last House of Delegates; W. Lee Carey and the incumbent, State Senator John P. Moore—all Smith men—and Orlando Harrison, of Berlin, a progressive.

Next to Mr. Dennis, the name of Mr. Taylor is oftenest mentioned by politicians from the county. Like Mr. Dennis, it is said, he seems to care little about the nomination. Mr. Taylor is in the banking business at Berlin and is said to desire giving it his undivided attention.

Mr. Carey has been mentioned from time to time, but he has said nothing to indicate that he will make a genuine effort to win. He is one of the closest men in the State to Senator Smith, and it is generally believed that he would not go after the nomination unless it were entirely agreeable to the Senator.

Progressives Hold Meeting

Agreeably to a call through the Crisfield Times of a recent issue, the Progressive wing of the Democratic party held a mass meeting at the Auditorium in Princess Anne last Wednesday afternoon, which was quite well attended from the various sections of the county.

The meeting was called to order by Aden Davis, Jr., cashier of the Farmers' Bank of Somerset county, at Marion, and Henry J. Waters, of Princess Anne, was called to the chair. I. Samuel Lawson, of Crisfield, and Dr. I. A. B. Allen, of Marion, were made secretaries. One vice-president from each district of the county was selected.

Mr. Waters declared it was principle and not place, measures and not men, official integrity and not office, for which every genuine progressive Democrat was contending. He referred to the splendid leadership which President Wilson had displayed since his induction to the presidency and spoke of the great satisfaction which progressive Democrats felt over the fact that Senator Blair Lee, who carried Somerset county two years ago in his contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor, would have no opposition for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

The committee upon resolutions, consisting of Edward W. Cluff, Western Starr, William T. G. Polk, L. C. Quinn, Jr., and Capt. Z. Webster, reported resolutions endorsing and commending the administration of President Wilson, endorsing the candidacy of Blair Lee for the United States Senate and advocating a change in party management in Somerset county, but pledging to support the results of the coming primary. The resolutions also congratulated the county upon the repeal of the Wilson ballot law. Whilst the committee was out, Mr. Tobey of Westover, entertained the audience with some eloquent selections and songs. Some enthusiasm in the audience, evidently impatient to hear the resolutions, wanted to know what kind of a meeting this was anyway, a question for which the interrupted eloquist did not appear to have a ready answer.

Mr. Starr, of Westover, read the resolutions and in moving their adoption, made a lengthy speech. In his address he commented upon the present administration of Somerset county and emphasized the fact that the gathering of the afternoon meant a general political housecleaning. He claimed that the Progressive organization would have won out two years ago except for the unscrupulous use of money by its opponents. Mr. Starr discoursed upon peanut politics, Caesarism, bond issues, county expenses, office holders, the oyster problem, harmony and a host of other matters. The speaker disclaimed the idea of being personal in his remarks, but nevertheless his web was so skillfully woven that few failed to see at whom the thrusts were being made.

The resolutions were adopted. Mr. P. D. West then offered a resolution, in writing, which was referred to the committee on resolutions, but the committee failed to report thereon.

MASS-MEETING OF SOMERSET DEMOCRATS

The Administration of President Woodrow Wilson and the Candidacy of Blair Lee for the U. S. Senate Endorsed—Large Crowds From All Sections of the County Attend.

One of the largest, most representative and enthusiastic meetings of Somerset Democrats ever held in the county was held at the Auditorium, Princess Anne, last Tuesday. The mass meeting was called to pay a tribute to Senator Blair Lee and to endorse his candidacy for the short term in the United States Senate, as the successor to the late Senator Rayner. Every section of the county sent fine delegations. It is estimated that about 300 attended the meeting. A feature of the meeting was the attendance of about 50 prominent Democrats from Crisfield.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Thomas Dixon and upon motion Senator Lewis M. Milbourne was called upon to preside. On taking the chair Mr. Milbourne made a brief but interesting address in which he alluded to his personal relations with Mr. Lee and paid a high tribute to his worth. He urged the Democrats of Somerset county to emulate Mr. Lee's example exhibited in the late gubernatorial campaign, alluding to the gracious way in which he accepted his defeat as the gubernatorial nominee and his generous support of his Democratic opponent. The Senator further dwelt upon the importance of harmony and diligent work in the present campaign.

On motion, Messrs. Herschel Ford, of Fairmount, and H. L. Brittingham, of Princess Anne, were made secretaries of the meeting.

Mr. Alonzo L. Miles, formerly of Baltimore, but now of Salisbury, was introduced as the orator of the occasion. Mr. Miles is a very pleasing speaker and his address, whilst brief, was of a high order. The speaker laid the greatest stress upon the importance of harmony and the avoidance of personalities. He also emphasized the fitness of Blair Lee for the United States Senate and his unblemished career.

After Mr. Miles' address, a motion to adjourn was made and carried. The audience, however, would not adjourn before hearing from Mr. Joshua W. Miles and loud calls for him were heard all over the hall. Mr. Miles, in a brief address, acknowledged the compliment and stated that he held himself always in readiness to yield to his party's call. "I am yours to command," he said. He also spoke in the highest terms of Senator Lee.

All the addresses had allusions to President Woodrow Wilson and emphasis was laid on the effectiveness of his administration.

Red Men Hold Reunion

The second annual field day and reunion of the Red Men of Maryland was held at St. Michaels Monday of last week under the auspices of the Grand Lodge.

Fourteen tribes from Baltimore and others from the Eastern and Western Shores were represented. Fully 2,000 Red Men and their friends attended.

Upon the arrival of the steamers a parade was formed at Navy Point Pier, headed by the bands of Juniata Tribe, of St. Michaels, and Washatella Tribe, of Oxford, and band of mounted Red Men in full regalia and war paint. After parading the principal streets of the town the crowd went to St. Mary's Square, where luncheon was served.

This was followed by an interesting program opened with prayer by Rev. George Q. Bacchus, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church. Mayor Ernest H. Burns welcomed the visitors. Rev. V. P. Northrup, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a member of Hiawatha Tribe, of Wilmington, Del., delivered the address of welcome in behalf of Juniata Tribe. Other addresses were made by Frederick O. Downs, of Boston, of the Great Council of the United States; Oliver A. Ridgeway, of Oxford; Dr. J. C. Littleton, of Baltimore; John W. Walker, of Baltimore; Thomas H. Blades, of St. Michaels, all members of the Great Council of Maryland, and M. Getz, of Battle Creek, Michigan.

Not To Debate Tariff Bill

Democratic Senators have declared that few set tariff speeches would come from their side of the chamber.

"We are not going to take up time debating this bill," said Chairman Simmons of the Finance Committee. "If the bill proves not to be of benefit to the country, it will demonstrate that our ideas of the tariff are wrong; if it proves to be good for the country, it will demonstrate that the opposition is wrong. That is all there is to this proposition, and we are ready and anxious now to pass the bill. It is going to pass."

THE BLIND MADE HAPPY

Princess Anne Chapter of Maryland Workers for the Blind Hold Meeting

The Executive Committee of the Princess Anne Chapter of Maryland Workers for the Blind held a meeting at the Court House last Tuesday evening. Mr. George Conner, who himself is blind and one of the most efficient workers connected with the Maryland School for the Blind, gave an interesting report of the work that has been accomplished in the county. Miss Cavanaugh, who has spent a number of months in the county and who is also blind, was also present at the committee meeting.

The executive committee, consisting of Mrs. O. T. Beauchamp, Judge H. L. D. Stanford and W. H. Dashiell, with J. Arthur Powell secretary and treasurer, as a member ex officio, instructed the treasurer to pay over to Mr. Conner the amount in hand that has been raised by the local chapter, to assist Miss Cavanaugh in prosecuting her work.

The report shows that a great deal of effective work has been done in this vicinity in assisting blind persons to learn occupations and especially has this been the case with elderly persons, adding much to their contentment and happiness. Miss Cavanaugh desires through these columns to thank the people of the county for their assistance and numerous contributions. At present both she and Mr. Conner are at work in Salisbury and vicinity.

Mr. Conner is a native of Somerset county, being a member of the well known family of that name at Marion. He has proved himself to be a most indefatigable worker and his influence has been of the most beneficial kind. Both he and Miss Cavanaugh will be glad to hear, through the Princess Anne Chapter, of blind persons, so that relief may be extended to them.

Miss Cavanaugh's report from January 10th to July 22d, 1913, follows: Visited twenty-three blind, or partially blind, in Somerset and heard of four others. Visited sixteen in Wicomico and heard of three others. Gave knitting to twelve, reading to twelve, netting or hammock making to seven, chair caning to four, and visited twelve others who did not feel able to do anything, but liked to have me call and cheer them up. Met five who would not be helped. Total number of visits, 430; expenses, $231.

Report from October 1st to December 15th, 1912: Visits, 130; expenses, $59.70.

Hicks' Forecast For August

With a regular storm period covering the 2d to the 7th, having its center on the 4th, we may expect all the phenomena usually attending such periods at this season of the year. The influences of the Mercury and Venus periods will also be felt in the storm and changes at this time. The Moon will be new, or in conjunction with the Sun and the Earth, on the second, in perigee, or nearest the Earth, on the 3rd, and on the celestial equator on the 5th, all of which will, to a marked degree, intensify storm and seismic disturbances during this period. On and touching the 3d, 4th and 5th, dangerous storms are probable. Destructive hail, and probable tornadoes will be natural consequences especially in northern and northwestern parts of the country.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 10th, 11th and 12th, being at the center of the Mercury period.

A storm period is central with the full Moon on the 16th, covering the 14th to 20th. Marked rise in temperature and falling barometer will be advancing from the west on the 14th and 15th and threatening, August thunder storms will strike many and wide sections, as they move eastward across the country. Heat, with rain, hail and thunder will reach a maximum over central to northwestern states on and touching the 19th.

A reactionary storm period will center on and touching the 22d and 23d, leaving but little intermission between this and the preceding period. Cloudy and threatening conditions will continue into this period, increasing into more decided and general storms of rain, thunder and wind on and about the 22d and 23d. The regular change to rising barometer and cooler will succeed these storms.

A regular storm period extends from the 25th to the 30th, has its center on the 27th. We will name the 27th, 28th and 29th as dates on which disturbances will culminate, being preceded and followed by the usual first and last stages of a regular storm period. There are three eclipses from August the 31st to September the 29th—a partial eclipse of the Sun on August the 31st, a total eclipse of the Moon on September the 15th, and a partial eclipse of the Sun again on September the 29th.

COUNTY IN GOOD HANDS

Honesty and Efficiency Shown in Democratic Management of County Affairs

The facts with which to confront and confound the political "blow-hard," are so ready at hand, Mr. Tax-payer, that you need hardly resort to the records in order to answer the reckless charge, that your Democratic public servants, for the last twenty years, have made debts and expended your money, but have given you "nothing to show for it."

Bear in mind, in the first place, that for six years prior to 1902, the Democratic party was not in power in Somerset county. Indeed, its first long lease of power, since the enfranchisement of the negro has been the period elapsing since 1902. It is therefore important that you recall the splendid events, constituting the record of the past eleven years, during which time the Democratic party has had full control of the county government, and has managed its affairs with fidelity and honesty.

Here are some of the things accomplished within the last eleven years which are within your own knowledge and have been under your own observation:

The appropriations for public schools have been increased from an annual levy of $6,000, in 1901, to a levy of $22,000 in 1913.

A new jail has been erected at a cost of $8,200, and there is an outstanding indebtedness on this account of only $1,000.

A new Court House has been erected and furnished with modern equipments and furniture, at a cost of $35,000. Bonds are outstanding for $30,000 of the indebtedness created by the erection of this handsome public building.

A new brick High School building has been erected at Crisfield at a cost of $25,000. Bonds are outstanding for this improvement.

A new brick school building has been erected at Marion at a cost of $6,000. There is no indebtedness outstanding for this improvement.

A levy of $3,800 was made and collected, as required by the Shoemaker law, to assist the adjoining land owners to construct one mile of new stone road near Pocomoke City.

Between 1901 and 1907, three substantial iron bridges were erected in Somerset county, at a total cost of $2,000. There is no outstanding indebtedness on account of these bridges.

Fifty miles of new shell road has been built in the county in the last six years, and the total expenditure in that time for the construction and maintenance of these roads, has been about $80,000, or an average cost per mile of $1,200.

The amount spent for lumber for the construction and maintenance of bridges during the last six years has been $10,000.

The amount spent in terra cotta pipe for culverts to replace old wooden bridges has been $5,000 for the same period of time. From five hundred to six hundred of these culverts have been laid throughout the county in this period.

The amount spent for concrete bridges at Jenkins Creek and large corrugated iron culverts has been $2,300.

The five items last mentioned show a total expenditure for permanent work and materials of $77,300. In other words, out of the total levy for road purposes, of about $120,000 covering a period of six years, $77,300 has been expended, as shown above, for permanent improvements, leaving $42,700, the amount which has been expended on 700 miles of roads in Somerset county, for all other purposes during the last six years.

The amount spent for public school purposes, of every kind, in Somerset county, since 1902, has been spent by the direction and under the supervision of such well known citizens and tax payers as Thomas H. Bock, the late John S. Sudler and Mr. Charles Wesley Fontaine, and other well known citizens of your county. Does any one charge incompetency, mismanagement or dishonesty on the part of such men?

A committee of tax payers, composed of Messrs. Cassius M. Dashiell, Thomas Dixon and Joshua W. Miles, after investigation of the fiscal affairs of the county, in a statement published and made to the whole public, in the Fall of 1911, said:

"We have no hesitation in saying, after making allowances for all mistakes, which may have been committed, and which are likely always to be committed by men striving to do well in the public service, but having human limitations, we believe that Somerset county's Democratic County Commissioners have shown a degree of faithfulness, efficiency and honesty, which entitles the Democratic Party as a whole, to the commendation of all good citizens for its management of Somerset county's affairs."

Compare the dispassionate statements of these men, made after careful investigation, with the reckless and misleading statements of the mischievous notoriety, without regard to truth and fairness, and determine for yourselves to whom to give your confidence and support.

FATE OF A WORLD

Its Course From Chaos to Its Hopeless Death Struggle.

THREE ACTS IN THE TRAGEDY

The First is Shown by Jupiter, the Second by the Earth and the Third by Mars, While the Moon Shows the Empty Stage After the Play Is Done

No stage was ever set for such a tragedy as the planet Mars presents.
It is the last act in the drama of a world's history!

The first act in such a drama consists of scenes from chaos. The huge planet Jupiter offers as a spectacle of that kind in its streaming belts of thick clouds and its whirling vapors, glowing like steam above a furnace.

The second act is represented by the earth, with its fertile crust, its cool, invigorating atmosphere and its life sustaining clouds that give birth to the mountains, furnish the rains and set the rivers flowing.

The closing act is the role of Mars, where the scenes have vanished, the atmosphere has thinned out, the rivers have disappeared, the continents have turned into deserts, and life, driven into a corner, is battling against final extinction.

That there is yet intelligent life on Mars is the universal belief of all the observers whom Mr. Lowell has gathered about him at his Flagstaff observatory, where the extraordinary phenomena of that wonderful planet are studied as nowhere else in the world.

More than that, they tell us of ever increasing emphasis that the people of Mars, compelled by necessity, have developed a command over natural forces which would seem miraculous if exhibited upon the earth.

With them it has become simply a question of brain power against the inanimate powers of nature.

They have nights and days of the same length as ours. They have seasons almost precisely corresponding with ours, except that they are each twice as long. But their oceans are dried up, no rains fall (though there may be dews), and nearly all the atmospheric moisture is alternately locked up in one or the other of the polar snowcaps.

In such a situation no vegetation can flourish unless artificially stimulated by a gigantic system of irrigation. And without vegetation animal existence is impossible.

But whence can the inhabitants of Mars derive the water needed for irrigation? The answer given is that they get it periodically from the melting of the polar snows. Being without seas and rivers they have no other source of supply.

On Mars the reign of universal peace must have begun ages ago, introduced not by moral or sentimental considerations, but by the necessity of uniting all the engineering skill, all the inventive powers and all the physical forces of the entire population of the planet in a common battle for life.

The only thought of their inventors is of improved means for controlling the slowly lessening supplies of moisture that once in about two of our years may be drawn away from one of the poles while the summer sunshine is dissolving its thin snows.

This universal concentration of mental energy upon a single aim is conceived as having developed upon Mars a knowledge of the hidden forces of nature such as has up to the present merely been dreamed of on the earth.

We have just begun to learn how to use electricity in the mechanic arts, but they may have unlocked the secret forces hitherto in the atoms of matter which our science has recently assured us exist without showing us how to utilize them.

Only by such suppositions can the "canals," hundreds of miles wide and thousands of miles long, be accounted for, if, as the Flagstaff observers insist, those objects are really of artificial origin. It should be said, however, that in Mr. Lowell's opinion the bands called canals are, in fact, irrigated belts.

The real canals within them are invisible, while the progressive darkening of these belts, as the polar melting increases, is due to the growth of vegetation, stimulated by the water.

After the world life drama closes there is left an empty stage, and this is represented by the moon. The lunar world has lost all its water. Its tragedy is finished. The actors are all dead.
Millions of years ago there may have been a battle for life there like that which now appears to be raging on Mars. And millions of years in the future the stage of the earth will probably be set for a similar tragedy. For, to the eyes of the overlooking gods (to change a little Shakespeare's figure):

All the sky's a stage.
And all the worlds and suns are merely actors.

—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

Folding a Coat.

Here is the way to fold a man's coat when you want to pack it in a box or a trunk. Lay the coat out perfectly flat, right side up. Spread the sleeves out smoothly, then fold them back to the elbow until the bottoms of the cuffs are even with the collar. Fold the revers back and double the coat over, folding it on the center seam.
Smooth out all wrinkles and lay it on a level surface in the trunk.

Half the joy of life is in little things taken on the run.—David Starr Jordan

Evil of Too Much Haste.
In the east and in tropical countries tomorrow is made use of in an indolent way. It is for us to make use of it in a way that is scientific. Hurried legislation, rash enterprises, poorly constructed buildings—superficial work of all kinds—is due to our making a sort of fetish of haste. We are overhastened, overburdened, overan-xious. It is the broader vision of life that takes into consideration tomorrow and the day after, that enables us to do well the essential work of today.

Belief in Luck Harmful.
Belief in luck retards progress, dulls the intellect, deadens the wits, de-bases the body and keeps its votaries ever behind in the race of life. The man who believes that his luck is against him—good luck—has cast over himself an insidious spell and soon will feel that it is useless to knock at the treasure-room of fame and fortune, that a deaf ear will be turned to him because he comes to believe that door to be open only to its favored children.

Largest Carriage, Wagon and Harness Dealer In the State of Maryland

Don't buy old style rigs, shop-worn and rusty; buy nice fresh painted up-to-date brand new jobs. We are unloading two cars each week, and selling them as fast as our factories can rush them to us. Never before was there such a demand for Wrenn Buggies, Runabouts and Surreys.

Mr. Wrenn was here April 6th. I gave him the largest order the factory ever entered on their books. We will sell over 50 car loads of Wrenn's Vehicles this year. We have the goods and make the price that shuts out all competitors.

I have in stock for your selection:

The Lightest Surrey made in the United States for one horse

The Lightest Novelty Wrenn Buggy with 4 style axels

The Lightest Speed Cart on the market

My Farm Wagons cannot be equalled for $10.00 more. We don't only guarantee our steel axles but we guarantee every part of the wagon. Our rims are deeper, our spokes and hubs are larger. Look them over, you can see the difference.

We have 3 car loads of different styles of BERRY WAGONS—our pices suit you.

We bought over $6,000.00 worth of Harness before the advance in price. Our customers are more than satisfied with their purchase.

The Wonderful ALADDIN Lamp

Wonderful because it produces a luxurious, soft, white light, excelled only by sunlight. Burns ordinary kerosene or coal oil, the cheapest of all illuminating fuels.
Burns Less Oil than Any Other Lamp of Equal Candle Power.
Aladdin Lamps are most durable in construction—easy-est to take care of—simplest in operation. The light is brighter and easier on the eyes than gas or electricity.
Occultists declare the Aladdin Gives The Best Artificial Light Known.
Users declare it is not only the best light, but the best Lamp known There is No Equal. The Aladdin is superior by test and by comparison. It appeals to those who want superlative excellence for its own sake—appeals to those who consider economy a first essential. Odorless, noiseless, simple, safe and clean—The Ideal Lamp for the multitude.
Don't be bamboozled by an imitation. There is only one Aladdin.
Insist on having it. The name is on every burner.

KNOWLEDGE

Instinct When Buying ::

By HOLLAND.

KNOWLEDGE is more widespread today than ever before. Twenty-five years ago much buying was done by instinct—done in a haphazard way that is a thing of the past like the spinning wheel and the tall candle.

Your grandmother trusted largely to luck—you depend on knowledge when it comes to spending money. What causes the difference? Advertising.

Publicity has revolutionized business. It has increased business honesty, has advanced business ethics and has ended slipshod methods.

To gain the advantage of these changed conditions you must have knowledge. You must know values. You can learn them only by studying advertising. In no other way can you learn what is best and what the best is worth.

CARELESS BUYING
DISAPPOINTMENT.

Equip yourself with the knowledge necessary for economical buying. If you have money to spend you owe this to yourself and to those for whom you buy.

Matthew Arnold and the Girls.
Of Matthew Arnold as a school examiner a tale is told by a fellow inspector of a class of girl pupils teachers that he asked Arnold to examine for him. Arnold gave them all the excellent mark.

"But," said the other inspector, "surely they are not all as good as they can be. Some must be better than others."

"Perhaps that is so," replied Arnold. "But then, you see, they are all such very nice girls."

Professionally Considered.

"The Declaration of Independence is a wonderful document," said the patriotic citizen.

"Yes," replied the legal expert. "It's one of the ablest documents I ever saw. And the most remarkable thing is that with all the ability it represents, nobody appears to have received a cent for drawing it up."—Washington Star Present Troubles.

"Ah, pretty lady," said the fortune teller, "you wish to be told about your future husband?"

"Not much," replied Mrs. Gailey. "I've come to learn where my present husband is when he's absent."—Philadelphia Press.

Turning the Phrase.

"They used to call him a bonehead." "That was before he succeeded."

"Yes. Now they express it differently. They call him a man of hard, solid sense."—Washington Star.

Distantly Related.

"Say, isn't Swardie, the banker, a relative of yours?"

"Yes; he's a cousin—about $4,000,000 removed."—Chicago Tribune.

A Detective Story

By ALBERT KENYON

What makes the detective business so fascinating is that it is a perpetual puzzle. Then there are so many ingenious methods of perpetrating swindles and concealing all kinds of crime. A detective never knows when he is going to light on a new and ingenious device.

But it is not in such cases that I, now twenty years a detective, have found the keenest relish. The murderer is not in a condition of mind to think out a problem coolly. He is in an abnormal condition. For my part I could never understand how any one could commit a crime the discovery of which would bring a dreadful punishment. Nevertheless criminals often work out very intricate problems.

It is when two or three persons above the average in the social scale and in education conspire together that the most ingenious devices develop. Perhaps this is because each gives the other courage. That is what makes hunting down a gang of counterfeiters so interesting. They are usually intelligent men and work together. Yet there is one thing they all lose sight of or disregard—the fact that they are always caught in the end.

The most interesting surprise I ever encountered was in unearthing one of these counterfeiting gangs. I say surprise, for it was no credit to me that I made the discovery. Indeed, had I not made a criminal of myself I should never have got on to them. I was put on the case in this way: Some counterfeit twenty dollar bills were being put into circulation. They seemed to come to the surface in a small town in Kansas and drift eastward. At any rate, one of them was traced to this place, and I was sent out there to investigate. There is always a difference in towns, some being inhabited in the main by good, religious people, others being notoriously bad. N., the point where the counterfeit bill came from, was neither good nor bad, but not long before my arrival a party had begun to assemble every evening to play poker. The game or series of games had been started by two or three men who had recently come to the town, and a number of citizens had gradually come to take a part in the proceedings. They were played in the room sometimes of one, sometimes of another, member of the party.

I went into the town ostensibly to buy cattle. A day or two after my arrival I was informed by a man whose acquaintance I had made that there was a poker party in a room up stairs. He said he was going up to look on, and I told him I would go with him if he would introduce me. The truth is I have suffered all through my life from the gambling passion. Having a fortune, I lost it, and that was what threw me into the detective business. I should not have gone to watch this game, for I ran a great risk of being drawn into it.

I found a party of good fellows, who received me cordially, and it was not long before I called for some chips. I soon lost what good money I had about me and to recoup yielded to a temptation to use a counterfeit bill that I had brought with me for a sample. The moment I laid it on the table I saw two of the players give each other a meaning look; then both turned their eyes on me. A cold chill ran down my back, for it looked as if I were detected on the spot. But my business had schooled me in concealing my feelings, and I returned the men's glances with a blank stare. Doubtless it was this that caused one of them to make a mistake. He gave me a crafty look. I returned it with one equally crafty.

I had no idea what this meant. It happened to win the bill I had put up, and something besides. Then caution got the better of my passion, and I played only so long as I could play on what I had won. I saw the men who had noticed the bill go on the table watching me. Evidently I didn't tell the bill of what they had expected of me, for I got no more confidential glances. One thing I noticed—several twenty dollar bills came out from those men on the same bank as the one I had used for a stake and passed into the hands of other players. One of them fell to me. The man who had given me the meaning glance at once asked me for it, offering four "fives" for it. But I told him I would rather keep it. However, knowing some game was going on other than the open one on the table, I gave it to him. This seemed to allay a slight suspicion of me that had come to him.

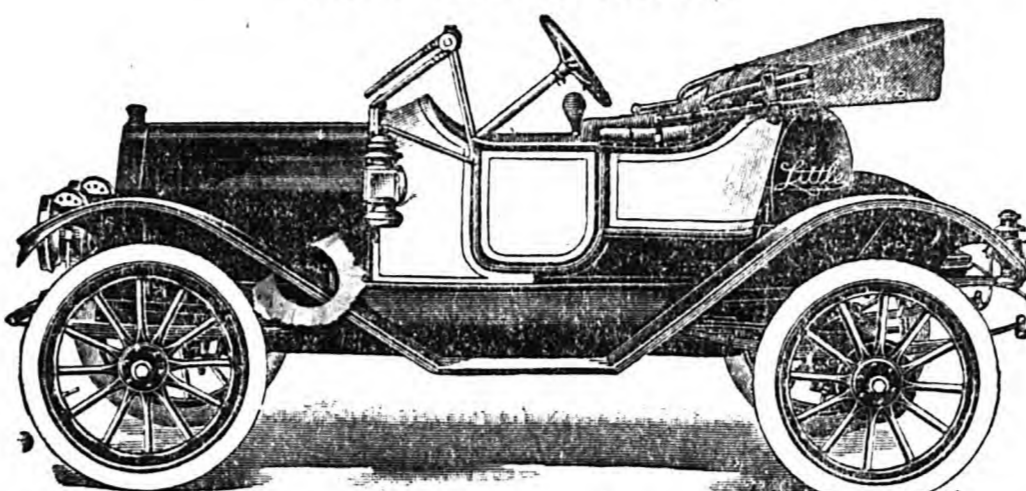

It was the producing of these twenty dollar bills, all on the same bank, and their passing into the hands of others that gave me an explanation of the mystery. Counterfeiters were using the game to shove the spurious money on to such citizens of the place as were drawn into their poker game. Immediately I put out all the bills I had brought with me as samples, and this won me the confidence of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless they seemed puzzled, and I determined to act at once. I always go about armed, and drawing a brace of pistols, I covered the two men I suspected and said: "You are under arrest."

There was the usual pretended astonishment, but I held them to their seats and directed a waiter who had just brought in some drinks to tell the landlord to summon the police. He did so, and within half an hour I had my men in jail.

The Better Man

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

A year after his marriage to a farmer's daughter Jacob Anson, farmer's son, removed to town and opened what he proudly termed a commission house. It was in this way. It was an old building at the railroad depot, and Jacob bought butter and eggs of the farmers for a price and shipped them to the city and sold them for a higher one. He made as much as 4 cents a dozen on eggs and 6 cents a pound on butter. Jacob Anson had always said that he wanted to be a business man when he grew up, and here he was. He had a place, and he had a sign and letterheads and cards. He did $4 worth of advertising in the country papers, and the whole town congratulated him on his business enterprise. Jacob had always patted himself on the back as some pumpkins, and now he became very chummy. One day when he had shipped enough butter and eggs to return him a profit of $6 he went home with his head held so high that it was two minutes before he saw his wife.

"I am glad business is so good," she said, "but there are other things needed in the city besides butter and eggs. You have the room to store them and the time to handle them, and why not add potatoes, beans, turnips and other things?"

"This thing was my idea in the first place, wasn't it?" he half demanded in a voice not at all pleasant.

"Of course."

"Well, I believe I have the gumption to carry it through to success without advice from anybody."

"But it was a suggestion, Jacob."

"Yes, I get lots of them and would make a failure in a week if I heeded them. Leave business to men, Mary."

"That is to say that the women have no brains?"

"There isn't one in a hundred that can take care of herself when she becomes a widow."

There was no further talk of business between husband and wife, but in her earnestness of belief the wife did a rather foolish thing that caused some neighbor now and then to say: "Take, that wife of yours has some smart ideas."

"Oh, I dunno."

"She was telling my wife the other day that you could handle more stuff just as well as not and thus increase your income."

"And do you think so yourself?"

"Why, I've thought it over and feel sure you could."

And Jacob went home to dinner to say to his wife:

"So you are still determined to meddle with my business, are you?"

"I have said to two or three women that I thought you could increase it."

"Should there be a separation you would probably go into the commission business yourself?"

"I might."

"And show me how to make a small fortune?"

"That might come too."

Foolish talk, of course, but every day Reno produces something just as foolish. It was a bone that was gnawed at until separation finally came.

Ten days after Mrs. Anson went home to her mother Dame Fortune smiled on her. A relative died and left her $2,000. Her husband said to everybody that he was glad of her luck and at the same time sorry for the likelihood that she would lose every dollar of it in some wildcat investment.

"Got ideas and no experience, you know," he added in a patronizing way.

Before the wife had decided just what she would do it was the talk of the town that it would be something foolish, whatever it was. One day she went to the city, and all the knowing ones whispered, "Millinery."

Mrs. Anson didn't go to the shopping districts nor enter any of the wholesale houses on Broadway. On the contrary, a carriage took her to the produce commission district, and she made many inquiries and transacted considerable business. Her husband had never even seen the merchant he shipped to, and a few inquiries proved that he had a poor standing as to character and amount of business done.

Not a word of explanation when Mrs. Anson arrived home. The villagers had selected the store she would rent for her stock, but she passed it by. Opposite her husband's place of business was an empty building much larger than his quarters. When the villagers came to know that it had been taken on a five years' lease they all most shouted out:

"Is Mrs. Anson crazy? What a location for a millinery store!"

While the building was being put in shape Mrs. Anson drove about the country for a distance of six or seven miles in every direction and had a talk with farmers and their wives. She gave them information that astonished them. She signed contracts with many of them that made them see lots of money ahead.

"She is drumming up trade for her millinery store," was the general verdict, and some went so far as to say that she was a hustler. One morning a sign painter began work, and at the end of three days, watched by a gaping crowd most of the time, the man had produced the following:

"Mrs. Jacob Anson, commission merchant. Spot cash for potatoes, beans, peas, beets, carrots, turnips, berries and cabbages. Also butter, eggs, cheese and smoked hams. We ship to New York twice a day. The highest prices paid."

WAS HAMLET FAT?

With His Own Words He Doth Proclaim the Fact Quite Pat.

The traditional Hamlet of our stage is a pale, ascetic young person, an idealized, etherialized, heroic creature evolved for the delectation of the matinee girl. He is a horrid sham. Is it credible that such a man would have lacked the determination, the purposefulness, to put his revenge into operation pat upon the discovery? It is all very well to argue about his mental balance. It was his sluggish liver that stayed him and hampered him. Hamlet's father was a fat and lethargic man by his own account.

Sleeping within my orchard, My custom always of the afternoon, he says in his ghostly interview.

We may then look for some clew to Hamlet's character as soon as he is alone on the stage. What are his words?

Oh, that this too, too solid flesh would melt!

It is a keynote that may not be glossed over as a beautiful thought, for the same idea bursts out some lines farther on, where he says of the world: Things rank and gross in nature Possess it marvellously.

Is it credible that such thoughts are there for any purpose save to guide us as to the nature of this prince? They serve a double purpose. Not merely do we learn that Hamlet was a fat man, but also that he was an unhappy fat man. Hamlet was a man to whom his bulk was an affliction. He was handicapped by it and knew that he was. Some such idea is discernible in every one of the great soliloquies. He scorns himself for a sluggard:

What's a man? If his chief good and market of his time Be but to sleep and feed?

His mind, unbidden or not, is obsessed by fatness, and in the mad turmoil of emotions after he has slain Polonius his thoughts run:

We fat all creatures else to fat us, and We fat ourselves for maggots.

It bursts out again in the "Oh, what a rogue and peasant slave!" harangue

Ere this I should have fatted all the region's kites With this slave's offal.

And who but a fat, lethargic man would have said in the "To be or not to be" speech:

Who would fardels bear To grunt and sweat under a weary life.

Does not the phrase bring to mind at once the picture of a fat man telling at some loathed task?—London Express.

A Gift That Brought the Rebellious Apaches to Terms.

Major Bourke, as aid to General Crook, once showed himself an effective peacemaker. He persuaded a band of Apaches to go back to their reservation by presenting a doll to a papoose. The incident was as follows:

General Crook had been trying to put these Apaches back on the reserve, but could not catch them without killing them, an action that did not appeal to him. One day his forces captured a papoose and took her to the fort. She was quiet all day, but her black eyes watched everything. When night came the child broke down and sobbed just as any white youngster might.

The fort was in despair until Major Bourke had an idea. From the adjutant's wife he borrowed a doll that had come to her little girl the previous Christmas. When the young Apache understood that it was hers to keep her sobs ceased and she fell asleep.

When morning came the doll was still clasped tightly in her arms. She played with it all day, and seemingly all thought of ever getting back to the tribe had left her.

Several days passed with no sign of overture being made by the tribe, and finally in despair the papoose, with the doll still in her possession, was sent back. When the child reached the tribe with the prize grasped in her chubby hands it created a sensation among the native Americans, and her mother later went back to the post with it. She was received in a hospitable manner and kindly treated, and the effect of her visit was such that through her overtures were made, with the result that soon afterward the entire band moved back to the reservation.—St. Louis Republic.

The Money Tennyson Made.

Lord Tennyson made a great income from his poems. When Strahan & Co. took over the publication of the poems in the sixties they agreed to pay Tennyson $25,000 a year in respect to the books already issued and pay the poet all profits on new work, less a modest 10 per cent commission. This second item generally meant $30,000 for each new volume. For many years before his death Tennyson drew a steady $50,000 per annum from his publishers.

Nailed

At the Progressive mass meeting last Wednesday Mr. Starr, the speaker of the occasion, by implication stated that the Hon. Joshua W. Miles was not a Wilson Democrat because he did not vote for Wilson until the last ballot was taken in the Democratic National Convention. This was news to us. The official report of the proceedings of the convention states on page 275 that Mr.
Miles voted for Wilson on ballot No. 26, which was taken on Saturday, June 29th, 1912, and the same report further states that Wilson was not nominated until ballot No. 46 was taken on the following Tuesday, July 2d, 1912; and the same report shows furthermore that Mr. Miles voted for Wilson on every ballot after said ballot No. 26.

We stand by the record. Mere dema-gogic opinion, based upon prejudice, never proved any case.

"Gentlemen of The Jury"

The jury system is an aged one. It has survived many attacks and efforts to overthrow it. To have justice dispensed by one's peers is a valuable legal right. The effectiveness of the system, whilst tied to the number 12, might be just as valuable with any other, unless perhaps 13 should be excluded by the vagaries of superstition.

As an example of the favor attached to the jury system, the slip of Mr.
Alonzo L. Miles into his professional vernacular last Tuesday and the plunge of Mr. Western Starr into a similar expression, at Wednesday's mass meeting have attracted more or less attention. Mr. Miles having made his utterance declined to recall it, believing he had before him an audience fully capable of deciding the important issues of this campaign as affecting the interests of Somerset county; following his example, Mr. Starr concluded that he, too had a set of men who could also decide some of our public matters.

An important oversight of Mr. Miles was that the same case had been tried two years ago and decided favorably to the county's administration. For that reason a second trial on the same charge was hardly admissible. On the other hand, Mr. Starr overlooked the fact that he was giving to his audience the powers of a grand jury, a body which institutes charges, and those of a petit jury as well.
The Progressive party is the one making charges and it certainly is hardly in keeping with justice that its representatives should try the charges as well as make them.

Be all this as it may, the appeal to citizens of a county as "Gentlemen of the Jury" is not such a bad resort. The matter of the second arraignment on the same charge will have to be overlooked although its institutors have lawyers as their leaders and spokesmen.
None are better able to say whether charges are sustainable than those who have lived long in the county and who are identified thoroughly with its people and the county's conduct, and even if they have to pronounce a verdict a second time they will no doubt be just in dispensing justice to their fellows.

In other articles we have nailed some of the Progressives' charges and had we the space and time we could easily dispose of the whole array. Charges founded upon prejudice, disappointment or ill-will do not set well with people who believe in fairness and justice. It is not for us, however, to undertake to disprove ill advised statements or erroneous ones; it is for those who make them to prove them and to prove them conclusively.

Whilst we believe it to be an arrogant assumption on the part of the Progressive party to undertake to berate the administration of this county, at the same time we do not fear to let the entire body of citizens of this county hear the issue and determine it. We can well say, with the two legal lights,
"Gentlemen of the Jury."

One gentleman who attended the "Progressive" meeting, when asked why he was a "Progressive" replied that last year he was an election official and this year he was not. The amount of his levy was about $11. Genuine progressive Democracy is all right but some species of it is very cheap.

The Crisfield Times quotes an article from this paper alluding to the visit of several prominent citizens of Crisfield to the office of a well known Republican in Princess Anne and injects the name of Mr. Elwood Sterling. The MARY-LANDER AND HERALD called no names.
How, therefore, does the Times know who went? If the Times men wish to put the cap on let them do so; but they have no right to place it on the head of anyone else.

"We congratulate the Democracy of Somerset county upon the repeal of the Wilson Ballot Law," so read the so-called Democratic resolutions at the Progressive meeting on Wednesday.
We well recall the time when no Democrat in Somerset county would have endorsed such a resolution. We make bold to ask if this was one of the results of the visit of certain county Democrats to the office of a prominent Republican in this town about ten days ago.

The Status Quo In Politics

The election of the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Sixth New Jersey district, according to expectations, does not afford much encouragement to those hopeful folk who have been seeing signs here and there of the reconstruction of the Republican party and its restoration to the point of effective action. The Progressives failed to respond to proposals for a get-together plan, and the Republican leaders nominated a candidate who was not calculated to attract any voters with Progressive leanings, and who was unfortunate enough to have come within the reach of the Mulhall taint. The majority of the voters stayed away from the polls, and the Democratic candidate won by a comfortable plurality of the minority who took the trouble to vote.

The New Jersey district is not necessarily typical of the rest of the country, but the conditions that are indicated in this bye-election can be recognized on all sides. Democratic mistakes will not avoid to drive the voters back to Republican standards, so long as the Republican party continues its blunders, for which it has been disciplined, in the choice of leaders and policies. The Republican party must move forward.
Public opinion is not likely to turn back for the purpose of rescuing it.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Cost of Progressivism

The session of the California Legislature, this year, was marked by "pro-gressivism" in full swing. All sorts of measures designed to make people comfortable and happy by law were proposed and many were enacted. The result was the passage of 1,100 new laws and an addition of $3,000,000 per year to the expenses of the State government.

Nor was this all. The Legislature provided for 31 commissions, at a cost of at least a million dollars, to investigate various things and make report at the next session. That the sum total of human happiness in California will be increased the slightest extent by these commissions is gravely doubtful. On the contrary, they are likely to prove a nuisance.

And how many citizens of California today could give an idea of what 10 per cent. of these 1,100 new laws call for?
But they will have to bear the burden of their operation and pay the penalties of those they may unwittingly violate through ignorance of their existence.
In this way, perhaps, they may get their fill of "progressivism."—Wilmington Evening Evening.

Delmarvia Peninsula

The Chamber of Commerce of Wilmington, Delaware gives out the following which is taken from the agricultural year book for 1912, and which it would appear is of the utmost importance to the people of Delaware and the eastern shores of Maryland and Virginia.

In the absence of detailed soil surveys of the counties of eastern Virginia and southern Delaware, it is not possible to give a detailed statement of the unused but available trucking lands of the Virginia, Maryland, Delaware Peninsula.

Yet it is known that not one acre in fifty available for vegetable and small fruit products is yet utilized for growing these crops. The soils are well adapted to trucking, and the climate is fairly favorable, while the transportation facilities are excellent, and both the time and distance of the haul to the great city markets are small.

This paragraph comes at the end of an article exploiting the possibilities of the Atlantic coast lands from the point of view of the market gardener and it is pointed out that the statement that there is an absence of a detailed soil survey of the lands of eastern Virginia and Southern Delaware is a very vital matter indeed to the people of this peninsula.

The article in the year book gives an illustrated exploitation of the trucking lands of North Carolina and in a general way makes a review of the possibilities of the low lands along the Atlantic seaboard from Savannah, Georgia, to New York.

The publicity department has taken the matter up and will endeavor to have the needed survey made as soon as possible.

Treasurer's Sale —FOR— 1911 TAXES

By virtue of the power and authority vested in the County Treasurer for Somerset County, by the provisions of Chapter 10 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1910, I hereby give notice that on Tuesday, August 12th, 1913,

at the hour of 1.30 o'clock p. m., at the Court House door in Princess Anne, Maryland, I will sell at public auction for cash all the lots or parcels of land hereinafter severally mentioned and described to pay and satisfy the State and County taxes, levied against said hereinafter described lots or parcels of land for the year 1911, or charged to and due from the several persons to whom the same are assessed, which said taxes are now due and in arrears for said year, together

Sarah Robertson vs. Montford and Nellie Robertson his wife, et al.

No. 2,839, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

The object of this suit is to procure a degree for the sale of certain real estate situate in said Somerset county, of which William Robertson, late of Somerset county deceased, died seized and possessed, and the pay the debts of the said William Robertson, his personal estate being of no value. The bill states that the said William Robertson, at the time of his death, was indebted to Reuben Maddox on two judgments and an open account, and to the Peoples Bank of Somerset county, on a promissory note, all of which since the death of the said William Robertson, having been assigned to the plaintiff, she having fully paid the same that the said William died on or about the 3rd day of September, 1912, intestate, leaving no personal property of any value, but being seized and possessed of a lot or parcel of land situate in Fairmount Election District, and lying and binding on a private road leading to the Home Place of the late John H.
Fontaine; that the said William left surviving him, a widow, Rose Robertson, who has since died, and the following children and grand-children, as his sole heirs at law: the said Reuben Maddox, all of whom are of full age; also Elizabeth Robertson, an infant, daughter of a deceased son, William Robertson, Clarence Robertson and Susie Robertson, both infants, children of another deceased son, Melvin Robertson, all of said children and descendants being non-residents of the State of Maryland except Sarah Robertson, Elizabeth Robertson, Mary Maddox and Reuben Maddox.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray received a number of valuable and useful presents. Refreshments concluded the interesting occasion.

Mr. C. H. Hayman Speaks

EDITOR MARYLANDER AND HERALD, Princess Anne, Md.
Dear Sir:—I had intended making some reply to the unwarranted and vicious attack made upon me by L. N. Whitcraft in the issue of your paper of the 15th, inst., but upon reflection and consultation with my friends, I have concluded that it does not merit any reply, and is not worthy of serious consideration, and therefore I shall pay no more attention to it.

Respectfully
July 25th, 1913. C. H. HAYMAN

(COMMUNICATED)
EDITOR MARYLANDER AND HERALD, Princess Anne, Md.

Dear Sir:—I want all Democrats to understand that I am not fighting any leader or leaders of the Democratic organization, and that I deplore any effort to stir up disorganization or factionalism in the party; but ask for the aid of all Democrats on my record as a regular party man who has always supported its candidates and always believed in upholding its constituted leaders, who are deserving.

Mileage Book Reform

The travelers' Protective Association has named a railroad committee, with instructions of campaign for a uniform mileage book, good on all railroads in the United States. R. R. Boggs, of Philadelphia has been appointed to look after the New England and Middle States district.

The trunk lines east of the Rocky Mountain district have been divided into four additional districts, each represented by a member of the committee. Other districts are the South Atlantic States, the states of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan; Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Missouri; Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas.

At present about 40 mileage books are required by traveling men who have business in all sections of the country.

According to Mr. Boggs, some of the railroads favor the project, while others oppose it vigorously. The association hopes to have the uniform book established in the Eastern part of the country within the next two years.

President Gives Hint

That President Wilson does not look with favor on any suggestions of raising funds with which to purchase wedding presents for his daughter, Miss Jessie Wilson, who is to be married in the fall to Francis R. Sayre, is evident from a letter received by Mayor Preston of Baltimore last Thursday from J. P. Tumulty, the President's secretary.

Some time ago E. E. Nordenholz suggested to Mayor Preston that a fund be raised in Baltimore for the purchase of a wedding present for Miss Wilson, offering to head the subscriptions with a generous contribution. This having reached the eye of the President he asks Mayor Preston to notify the public that he prefers no fund to be raised for the purpose.

A Good Investment

W. D. Magli, a well known merchant of Whitewater, Wis., bought a stock of Chamberlain's medicine so as to be able to supply them to his customers. After receiving them he was himself taken sick and says that one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was worth more to him than the cost of his entire stock of these medicines. For sale by all dealers. (Advertisement)

A very interesting horse race took place at Mr. Howard Anderson's race track Saturday, July 19th. Those taking part were Messrs. T. H. Fitzgerald, Preston Phoebus, Lone Murrell, Ellis Bozman and Mace Smith. According to track rules, the first heat was won by Murrell, time, 3 minutes; second and third heats by Phoebus in 2.55. Mr. Smith claims he won. I offered to drive him another heat alone but he declined to do so. I still will drive. I am not afraid to, and if he is not scared too bad he will come again. I hope to hear from him soon.

MAD AT PAINT

25c a gallon for paint is about $2.50 on the average job, and lots of men waited last year for that; but they didn't reckon; they got mad; wouldn't pay it. There are times to get mad and refuse to pay; but when one's property needs protecting is no time to get mad and not paint.

Besides, it costs more to get mad and wait than to paint. Getting mad doesn't do any good to your property; paint does it good by keeping-out water; no water no rot; no paint, some water and rot; and a little rot is more than enough to make a man liberal toward his painter and paint. Paint costs not a cent. All the paint in the world, so long as it keeps-out water, costs not a cent.

A Blighted Hope

By WILLIAM BLAKEMAN

Here is a story suggested by the present interest in eugenics.

There are a number of elements that enter into the condition of criminality but they are inextricably mingled. For instance, heredity plays an important part, but since there are two parents, the ancestors of each reaching back indefinitely, it does not necessarily follow that a child begotten by them will inherit a criminal tendency. Moreover, criminality may be a disease or an imperfect working of the bodily functions. Then there is environment, which many experts in criminology consider by far the most important of all causes.

In England many years ago there dwelt a family named Ball. John Ball, one of these people, at twenty years of age became a parricide. That was the time when the English government was sending criminals to Botany Bay, in Australia. Those transported were treated according to their condition, some of them being allowed full liberty within bounds, to live in their own houses and earn their own living. John Ball, to all outward appearances, was a perfectly good man and soon earned the right to be treated as such within the limits of the law.

In the penal colony was a young woman named Mary Coolidge. She had stolen money to keep her widowed mother and younger brothers and sisters from starving. It would seem that this act was only on the border of crime and should have met with a light punishment. But the act was committed at a time when there was but little mercy under the English law, and Mary was sent to Botany Bay.

These two, John Ball and Mary Coolidge, met after they had been members of the colony eight years. There was an inclination among John's associates to consider his crime as the result of a temporary insanity. As for Mary's, it was simply an overstrain of human endurance. The two became attached to each other and were married, each obtaining a ticket of leave to go anywhere on the island and build a home for themselves.

Each had saved some money and, putting their funds together, had capital enough to go into sheep raising. At that time land was cheap in Australia, and they were enabled to buy what would now be considered a large tract. They prospered and as they accumulated more capital put it into sheep and what was required for their flock's protection. A son was soon born to them, and he was followed by two daughters.

John Ball was a fine little fellow and the apple of his father's eye. At an early age he learned to ride on horseback and made frequent trips with his father over his ranch. They were enjoyable rides over acres that they owned, well stocked with their sheep. The family was a happy one notwithstanding the reason for their being where they were, though the children were brought up in ignorance that their parents had been criminals.

John Ball, Sr., became quite wealthy, and his wealth and his sterling qualities did much to eradicate the effect upon his fellow men of his having been transported for crime. He had excellent judgment, and before important ventures were entered upon by his associates they usually consulted him.

Ball's family grew up under entirely different conditions from other descendants of criminals, who even today constitute a class by themselves. They are called harridins and are noted for their worthlessness and furnish their full quota of Australian criminals. Those who were observing claimed the case of the Ball children indicated that heredity was more important than environment. Their father had been enabled to raise them far above that association which produces criminals.

John Ball, Jr., grew up to be a man with the same judgment, the same character, as his father. It was believed that he would furnish an example of the son of a criminal who, far from being the usual harridin, would be an honor to Australia. While he manifested a disposition to continue sheep raising, at which his father had been so successful, he also showed an inclination to enter the political field.

But one morning this optimistic structure that was being built upon the case of the Ball family fell with a crash. The mother and the children, except John Junior, who was now twenty-two years old, were away on a visit, leaving father and son in the ranch house. In the morning a servant went to their rooms to call them to breakfast and found the father murdered in his bed and the son gone.

The matter cast a gloom over those who had drawn such hopeful conclusions from a case which it seemed had been proving, and would continue to prove that hereditary crime was of minor importance and could be overcome by an improved environment. The widow shut herself up with her younger children and never appeared in public again.

An Australian friend of this unfortunate family who was interested in the scientific points connected with the crime committed by both father and son, on making a trip to England, investigated the record of the Ball family. He found that two different generations back of the subject of this story had furnished a murderer and both were cases of parricide.

RED TAPE AND A TUB.

A Bath in Senegal Was Something Like a Surgical Operation.

Some years ago, when the capital of the French colony of Senegal was a dull, unprogressive town where officialism and red tape prevailed, a French traveler, with a friend, had a most amusing experience when he wished to obtain a bath. There was no bathing establishment in the capital of Senegal at the time, but rumor had it that it was possible to purchase baths at the hospital.

Accordingly the travelers repaired to the hospital, where they stated the purpose of their visit.

"Certainly," said the official, "take seats. Your names, surnames and birthplace?"

"But we merely want a bath."

"Exactly. What is your name, and where and when were you born, and are you government servants, soldiers or officers? No? Well, the rules do not provide for this. Just a moment. I will read them again. Yes, here is your case. You must first make out on stamped paper an application to the governor of the colony. After favorable notice from the governor you send another application to the chief colonial doctor, who will send for you and examine you."

"But we are not ill."

"It is the rule. Having examined you, the doctor will give you two non-commissioned officers' bath tickets, to be delivered to the assistant doctor."

"Why the non-commissioned officers' bath?"

"For the reason that in our accounts we recognize only two categories of persons—officers and civil servants, the latter taking rank with officers or petty officers. You are not official at all. If officers were to find you in their baths they would probably make a row."

"What period of time will all these formalities consume?"

"Two or three days, provided your application is approved at the government house."—Chicago Record Herald.

Francis T. Brown, Main St., Princess Anne, Md., says: "I have the same high words of praise to-day as I did several years ago when I publicly testified to the great benefit Doan's Kidney Pills brought me. You may continue the publication of my former statement. For five or six years I suffered from a severe ache across the small of my back. I had rheumatic twinges and as my kidney's grew weaker, the kidney secretions became too frequent in passage. Having read of Doan's Kidney Pills, I decided to try them. They did me a world of good."

Nettle Potage.

Mr. Pepps was regaled with nettle porridge at the house of a friend and found it "very good." The same delicacy is referred to by Evelyn in his diary. The nettle in fact, which the ignorant dismiss as an unpleasant weed, is capable of doing all sorts of things for man. A Scot was able to boast that he had eaten nettles, slept in nettle sheets and dined off a nettle tablecloth. Spring nettle tops boiled in potage, according to an old authority, "consume the phlegmatic superfluities in the body of many that the coldness and moisture of the winter leave behind."—London Standard.

Candor Gone Mad.

An English labor agitator and ex M. P. denied in New York that he advised murder as a strike weapon.

"Such advice on my part," said he, "would be candid indeed, wouldn't it? It would be candid gone mad. It would be like the well dressed lady in the department store who approached the doorwalker and said candidly: 'I have kleptomania. What would you advise me to take for it?'"—Exchange.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A Case of Overreaching

By DOROTHEA HALE

Herman Gottz was a very old man. He had received no education in his youth; consequently he had been obliged to do very ordinary work, which had paid him very little. He had had children, but they had died, and he and his wife had no one to rely on in their old age, when they were unable to work. There seemed nothing for them to do but go to the poorhouse, and there is something so melancholy about it that many would rather die than resort to it.

One day Herman while walking along the street found a large pocketbook, one of that kind that will hold a bank bill without its being folded. Herman opened it and saw that it contained $270. He looked about him to see if any one was near who might have dropped it, but there was no one at all in sight. So he put it in his pocket and took it home to his wife, Maria, to consult with her as to what he should do with it.

Maria asked her neighbors how one could find the owner of a pocketbook lost on the street and was told to look in the newspapers, for the owner would doubtless advertise it and would offer a reward for its return. So the next morning Herman went to a reading room for poor persons and looked through all the morning papers, for he could read and write also, though very badly. In one of the papers he found the advertisement he was looking for. It stated that a pocketbook had been lost near where Herman had found it and if returned a third of the contents would be given the finder.

The habit of honesty was firmly fixed on the old man. Indeed, he had never in his life taken anything that did not belong to him, and it was too late for him to begin. If he should keep the money it would trouble him and it would not likely last him as long as he lived anyway. If he returned it he would get a third of it, which would keep him and Maria for several months.

He took the pocketbook to the owner, who at first praised him very highly for his honesty. Indeed, he was so loud in his praise that he forgot to count out the money for the reward. When Herman asked him for it he opened all the different compartments as though looking for something, then began to abuse the old man, saying that there had been much more money in the pocketbook than he now found there. Herman denied having taken anything out of it, whereupon the man began to curse and to swear at Herman, calling him a thief, and hustling him to the door, but him out, giving him a kick at the same time.

It happened that a policeman was going by the house at the time and asked what was the matter. The owner of the pocketbook told his story, and Herman charged him with refusing to pay the reward he had offered, besides assaulting him. The policeman took them to the station, where he entered a charge of disorderly conduct against both of them in order that the matter might be thrashed out in court.

The next morning they were brought into court with other prisoners, and when their case was called the judge asked for a statement of facts. It was soon made evident to him that Herman had been beaten out of his reward. He also got from the old man that he was too old to work and that he and his wife were about to go to the poorhouse. Honesty under such circumstances made a very favorable impression, while the conduct of the owner of the pocketbook appeared very reprehensible.

"You say," said the judge to the latter, "that there was much more money in the pocketbook than was returned?"

"Yes, your honor."

"How much more?"

"There were seven $1,000 and four $500 bills, in all $9,000."

"How did you happen to have so much money in such a place?"

"I have carried it there for several years. I don't put money in bank. I don't like banks."

"Wasn't it rather an unsafe way to carry bills?"

The prisoner saw that he was getting tied up by the judge in his statements and looked confused.

"Were these bills in the same part of the pocketbook," asked the judge, "as the money returned?"

"No, your honor; they were in a compartment by themselves."

"Which compartment?"

The man looked more confused than ever at this. The judge called for the pocketbook and asked the prisoner to show him just where the bills had been kept. The man then confessed that they were in a part which was sewed together. He examined the pocketbook closely and, feeling a thick part, took out a knife and, ripping it open, extracted the bills exactly as the prisoner named them.

"You are a truthful fellow," said the judge. "What reward did you offer for the return of your property?"

The man did not reply, and the judge called for the advertisement, which Herman produced.

"You offered one-third of the contents of the pocketbook," continued the judge. Then he handed Herman $3,000, being one-third of the whole contents of the pocketbook, at the same time telling the other that if he troubled the old man and came into court again he would find a way to punish him.

ORIGIN OF QUARANTINE.

Dr. Richard Mead's Action During the Plague of 1721.

To Dr. Richard Mead, who was in consultation at the deathbed of Queen Anne and became physician to George I., was due the credit of having first established quarantine.

In 1721, when the plague ravaged Marseilles and its contagious origin was discredited, Dr. Mead declared the plague to be "a contagious distemper," and a quarantine was enjoined. He also proposed a system of medical police, which finds its counterpart in the health officers of today. It was he who declared, "As nastiness is a great source of infection, so cleanliness is the greatest preventative."

He it was who said nearly 200 years ago: "If there be any Contagious Distemper in the Ship the Sound men should leave their Cloaths, which should be burnt, the men washed and shaved and having fresh Cloaths, should stay in Lazaretto—that is, quarantine—thirty to forty days. The reason for this is because Persons may be recovered from a Disease themselves and yet retain matter of Infection about them a considerable time."

In practice Mead was without a rival, his receipts averaging for several years between £6,000 and £7,000, an enormous sum in relation to the value of money at that period. He possessed a rare taste for collecting. But his books, his statues, his medals, were not to amuse only his own leisure. The humble student, the unrequited foreigner, the poor inquirer, derived as much enjoyment from these treasures as his owner. At his table might be seen the most eminent men of the age. Pope was a ready guest, and the delicate poet was sure to be regaled with his favorite dish of sweetbreads.

A Dampier. Marion—I showed papa those verses you wrote me, and he seemed pleased. Harry—He did? Marion—Yes. He said he was so glad to see you were not a poet.

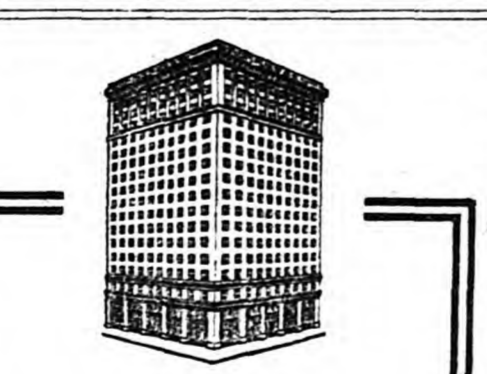

A Surprising Cure of Stomach Trouble

When you have trouble with your stomach or chronic constipation, don't imagine that your case is beyond help just because your doctor fails to give you relief. Mrs. G. Stengle, Plainfield, N. J., writes "For over a month past I have been troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate upset it terribly. One of Chamberlain's advertising booklets came to me. After reading a few of the letters from people who had been cured by Chamberlain's Tablets, I decided to try them. I have taken nearly three-fourths of a package of them and can now eat almost everything that I want." (Advertisement)

Zones of Silence.

Zones of silence such as that discovered in the Alps have been known to scientists for a long time. Some years ago a committee conducted a series of experiments in the English channel with the loudest and most ear piercing sirens, whistles and hooters they could procure. It was found that sometimes on the clearest and quietest day a sound was unaccountably inaudible at a short distance. This demonstrated conclusively the existence of soundless zones and incidentally suggested an explanation of certain ocean disasters.

PROCLAMATION

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Maryland.

WHEREAS, at the January Session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twelve, Acts were passed proposing amendments to Section 3 of Article 1; Section 5 of Article 3; Section 9 of Article 5; Section 3 of Article 5; Section 21 of Article 4; and adding a proposed new Section to Article 3; of the Constitution of this State, which said Acts are in the following words, to wit:

CHAPTER 402.

AN ACT to propose an amendment to Article 3 of the Constitution of this State by adding a new Section, to be known as 40A; and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following new section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Article 3, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State, the same to be inserted after Section 40 and to be numbered 40A, and if adopted by the legally qualified voters thereof, as herein provided, said section shall become a part of Article 3 of the Constitution of Maryland.

40A. The General Assembly shall enact no law authorizing private property to be taken for public use without just compensation, to be agreed upon between the parties or awarded by a jury, being first paid or tendered to the party entitled to such compensation, but where such property is situated in Baltimore City and is desired by this State or by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, the General Assembly may provide for the appointment of appraisers by a Court of Record to value such property, and that, upon payment of the amount of such valuation to the party entitled to compensation, or into Court and securing the payment of any further sum that may be awarded by a jury, such property may be taken.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing section, hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, shall at the next ensuing general election, to be held on Tuesday next after the first Monday in the month of November, 1913, be submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof, for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Approved April 8, 1912.

CHAPTER 497.

AN ACT to amend Section 27 of Article III, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 27 of Article III, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 27 of said Article III.

SEC. 27. Any bill may originate in either House of the General Assembly and be altered, amended or rejected by the other, but no bill shall originate in either House during the last ten days of the session, unless two-thirds of the members elected thereto shall so determine by yeas and nays; nor shall any bill become a law until it be read on three different days of the session in each House, unless two-thirds of the members elected to the House where such bill is pending shall so determine by yeas and nays, and no bill shall be read a third time until it shall have been actually engrossed or printed for a third reading.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall be at the next general election for members of the General Assembly of Maryland, to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article XIV of the Constitution of this State, and at said general election the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against the proposed amendment as directed by said Article XIV of the Constitution.

Approved April 8, 1912.

CHAPTER 515.

AN ACT to amend Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III, Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all the members of the two Houses concurring, That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 21 of Article 4, title "Judiciary Department," sub-title "Part III, Circuit Courts," of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 21 of said Article 4.

SEC. 21. For each of the said circuits (excepting the eighth and third) there shall be a chief judge and two associate judges, to be styled Judges of the Circuit Court to be elected or appointed as herein provided, and for the third circuit there shall be a Chief Judge and three associate judges to be styled Judges of the Circuit Court to be elected or appointed as herein provided.

And no two of said associate judges for any of the said circuits, except the third circuit shall, at the time of their election or appointment or during the term for which they may have been elected or appointed, reside in the same county. If two or more persons shall be candidates for associate judge in the same county in any of the circuits, except the third circuit, that one only in said county shall be declared elected who has the highest number of votes in the circuit. In case any two candidates for associate judge in any of the circuits, except the third circuit, residing in the same county, shall have an equal number of votes greater than any other candidate for associate judge in the circuit, it shall be the duty of the Governor to order a new election for one associate judge; but the person residing in any other county of the circuit and who has the next highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The said judges shall hold not less than two terms of the Circuit Court in each of the counties composing their respective circuits, at such times as are now or may hereafter be prescribed to which jurors shall be summoned; and in those counties where only two such terms are held, two other and intermediate terms, to which jurors shall not be summoned; they may alter or fix the times for holding any or all terms, until otherwise prescribed, and shall adopt rules to the end that all business not requiring the interposition of the jury shall be, as far as practicable, disposed of at said intermediate terms.

One judge in each of the above circuits, including the third circuit, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business; and the said judges, or any of them, may hold special terms of their Court, wherever in their discretion, the business of the several counties renders such terms necessary.

The additional associate judge for the third circuit herein provided for, shall be elected by the qualified voters of Baltimore and Harford Counties, at the first election that shall be held in said counties subsequent to the adoption of this amendment, and the judge so elected shall be subject to the same constitutional provisions, hold his office for the same term of years, receive the same compensation and have the same powers as are herein provided for the other associate judges in the third circuit.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State, and at the said general election, the vote on the said proposed amendment shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election, due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by said Article 14 of the Constitution.

Approved April 8, 1912.

AN ACT to amend Section 3 of Article 1, title "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of this State, so as to permit the General Assembly to excuse the vote seller from any penalty for selling his vote and place the penalty for the purchase of votes upon the vote buyer alone, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 3 of Article 1, title "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal and qualified voters thereof as herein provided, said section shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 3 of said Article 1 of the Constitution of Maryland.

SEC. 3. If any person shall give, or offer to give, directly or indirectly, any bribe, present or reward, or any promise, or any security, for the payment or delivery of money, or any other thing, to induce any voter to refrain from casting his vote, or to prevent him in any way from voting, or to procure a vote for any candidate or person proposed, or voted for as an elector of President and Vice-President of the United States, or Representative in Congress or for any office of profit or trust, created by the Constitution or Laws of this State, or by the Ordinances, or authority of the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, the person giving, or offering to give and the person receiving the same, and any person who gives or causes to be given, an illegal vote, knowing it to be such, at any election to be hereafter held in this State, shall, on conviction in a Court of Law, in addition to the penalties now or hereafter to be imposed by law, be forever disqualified to hold any office of profit or trust, or to vote at any election thereafter.

But the General Assembly may in its discretion remove the above penalty and all other penalties upon the vote seller so as to place the penalties for the purchase of votes on the vote buyer alone.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next election for members of the General Assembly of this State to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in the month of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen (1913), be submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said election the said proposed amendment shall be printed upon the official ballot and the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot shall be printed the words, "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law with an appropriate box to vote for and against the same as the voter shall select. And upon said ballot the new words proposed to be added to said Section 3 of said Article 1, namely, the words: "That the General Assembly may in its discretion remove the above penalty and all other penalties upon the vote seller so as to place the penalties for the purchase of votes upon the vote buyer alone," shall be printed on the official ballot in italics so as to plainly indicate to the voter, the said proposed change in the Constitution, and immediately after said due election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment as directed by the said Article 14 of the said Constitution.

approved April 11, 1912.

CHAPTER 624.

AN ACT to amend Section 9 of Article 5, title "Attorney General and State's Attorney" of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Section 9 of Article 5, title "Attorney General and State's Attorney" of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted by the legal qualified voters thereof, as herein provided, said section shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 9 of said Article 5 of the Constitution of Maryland.

9. The State's Attorney shall perform such duties and receive such fees and commissions or salary, not exceeding three thousand dollars, as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law; and if any State's Attorney shall receive any other fee or reward than such as is or may be allowed by law, he shall, on conviction thereof, be removed from office; provided, that the State's Attorney for Baltimore City shall receive an annual salary of fifty-four hundred dollars and shall have power to appoint one deputy at an annual salary not exceeding four thousand dollars, and such other assistants at such annual salaries, not exceeding twenty-five hundred dollars each, as the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City may authorize and approve; all of said salaries to be paid out of the fees of the said State's Attorney's office, as has heretofore been practiced.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said foregoing section hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution shall at the next election for members of the General Assembly of this State, to be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in the month of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen (1913), be submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of this State; and at the said election the vote on said proposed amendment to the Constitution shall be by ballot, and upon each ballot there shall be written or printed the words "For Constitutional Amendment," and "Against Constitutional Amendment," as now provided by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment, as directed by the said Article 14 of the said Constitution.

Approved April 11, 1912.

CHAPTER 663.

AN ACT to amend Section 3 of Article 1, title "Elective Franchise," of the Constitution of this State, and to provide for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of this State for adoption or rejection.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the Houses concurring, That the following section be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to Article 3 of the Constitution of this State, and if adopted, by the legal and qualified voter thereof as herein and by law provided, it shall supersede and stand in the place and stead of Section 3 of said Article.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the Attorney General to prosecute and defend on the part of the State all cases which at the time of his appointment and qualification and which thereafter may be depending in the Court of Appeals, or in the Supreme Court of the United States, by or against the State, or wherein the State may be interested; and he shall give his opinion in writing whenever required by the General Assembly or either branch thereof, the Governor, the Comptroller of the Treasury, or any State's Attorney, on any legal matter or subject depending before them or either of them; and when required by the Governor or General Assembly he shall, as any State's Attorney in prosecuting any suit or action brought by the State in any Court of the State, and he shall commence and prosecute or defend any suit or action in any of said courts, on the part of the State, which the General Assembly or the Governor, acting according to law, shall direct to be commenced, prosecuted or defended, and he shall have and perform such other duties and shall appoint such number of deputies or assistants as the General Assembly may from time to time by law prescribe; and he shall receive for his services an annual salary of three thousand dollars, or such annual salary as the General Assembly may from time to time by law prescribe; but he shall not be entitled to receive any fees, perquisites or rewards whatever in addition to the salary aforesaid for the performance of any official duty; nor shall the Governor employ any additional counsel in any case whatever, unless authorized by the General Assembly.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the foregoing section, hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State shall, at the next general election for members of the General Assembly, to be held in this State, submitted to the legal and qualified voters thereof for their adoption or rejection, in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution; and at said election the vote on said proposed amendment shall be by ballot and upon each ballot there shall be printed the words "For the Constitutional Amendment," and "Against the Constitutional Amendment," as now prescribed by law, and immediately after said election due returns shall be made to the Governor of the vote for and against said proposed amendment.

as directed by the said fourteenth Article of the Constitution.

Approved April 11, 1912.

Now, Therefore, I, Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Governor of the State of Maryland, in pursuance of Section 1, of Article 14 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, do hereby order and direct that a copy of each of said Acts proposing said amendments and additional section to the Constitution of Maryland, be published in at least two newspapers in each of the counties of the State and in three newspapers published in the City of Baltimore, one of which newspapers, in the City of Baltimore, shall be published in the German language, once a week for at least three months next preceding the next General Election, which election will be held on Tuesday, November 4, 1913, and at which election the said above proposed amendments and additional section to the Constitution shall be submitted, in the form and manner prescribed by the General Assembly, to the legal and qualified voters of the State, for their adoption or rejection.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, Done at the City of Annapolis, on this 15th day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

PHILLIPS LEE GOLDSBOROUGH,
By the Governor:
ROBERT P. GRAHAM,
Secretary of State.

In European Russia this year's winter wheat crop is estimated at 277,583,000 bushels or 13.8 per cent. more than last year's production, and the winter rye crop 917,168,000 bushels, or 8.9 per cent. less than last year's production.

The fact that Japan's importation of raw cotton in 1912 amounted to over 810,000,000 pounds, valued at $100,010,453, and that at the same time the country exported cotton goods and cotton yarns valued at $44,303,365, in addition to supplying the extensive cotton cloth and cotton yarn needs of 52,000,000 inhabitants in Japan proper, may serve to indicate the future manufacturing possibilities of the empire.

The Sebastian, stated to be the first Diesel motor-driven oil-tank vessel to be built in the United Kingdom, was recently launched at Dundee. It is a twin-screw motor vessel, fitted with long poop bridge and forecastle; length over all, 321 feet; breadth (molded), 45 feet; depth (molded), 36 feet 3 inches; gross tonnage, about 3,400. It has been designed for the carriage of oil in bulk, and is divided into 28 oil-tight compartments by longitudinal and transverse bulkheads.

sometimes reduces her strength to the depths of weakness—her devotion to household cares prevents sufficient rest and recreation. Thousands of women in this condition find Scott's Emulsion exactly what they need; it is predigested body-food so medically perfected that every drop yields direct returns in strengthening the organs and tissues and in making healthy, life-sustaining blood. Scott's Emulsion is devoid of alcohol or any harmful drugs, and overcomes tiredness and nervousness in a marvelous way.

Sleep and Altitude.

Some Swiss doctors maintain that the amount of sleep should be regulated by altitude. Too much sleep, they say, is as harmful as too much food or drink. In low lying districts seven hours' slumber may be enjoyed with impunity, but up in the mountains five hours is enough.

Rid Your Children of Worms

You can change fretful, ill-tempered children into healthy, happy youngsters, by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A. Brabin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for years, and entirely rid my children of worms. I would not be without it." Guaranteed. All druggists, or by mail. Price 25c. Stiff Tax on Automobiles

The assessment on automobiles was discussed again at a special meeting of the Newark, Del., Board of Education, Monday night of last week. Some weeks ago the Superior Court handed down a decision to the effect that the board had a legal right to assess machines for school tax purposes. Last week the board fixed the school tax rate at $3 on the $100 of assessed value. At the same time the board decided that the assessment on automobiles should be 40 per cent. of their retail cost for new machines; 30 per cent. for machines two years old; 25 for three years and 20 for four years old and succeeding years. This would have made the school tax $60 on a new car purchased this year for $5,000.

There were some complaints against this assessment, those owning high price cars claiming it was too high. The suggestion was made that the board assess all machines at 20 per cent. of their retail cost for the first four years, but it was voted down. President Richards made it plain that additional money had to be raised for school purposes.

The board eventually compromised by the assessment 25 per cent. of the retail cost for the first year; 20 per cent. for the second and third years, and 15 for the fourth year. It is understood that some car owners are still dissatisfied with the adjustment.

Protect The Meadow Lark

Protect and encourage the meadow lark, for its principal diet consists of cotton boll and alfalfa weevils, grasshoppers and predaceous ground beetles, advises the Department of Agriculture. While the bird, it is acknowledged, does some damage to sprouting grain, its value as a destroyer of injurious insects is shown to be far greater.

Furthermore, the department calls attention to the fact that the birds go most vigorously for the insects which are most abundant, thereby increasing their efficiency at the time of an insect outbreak.

Kills Negro Assailant

Otho Kilman, while returning to his home from the railroad station at Birdnest, Va., Saturday night, July 19th, was approached by two negroes who requested that he give them a ride for a short distance. Kilman refused to help them.

One of the men, known only under the alias of "Nine," took hold of the horse and stopped the horse, while the other, Allen Griffin, climbed over the tailboard of the wagon and attempted to choke Kilman.

Kilman drew a revolver and shot Griffin just below the heart. In the meantime the other negro opened fire on Kilman, firing three shots, all of which missed their mark. Griffin jumped from the wagon and tried to run, but fell dead a short distance away.

The negro "Nine" also was shot through the breast and was taken to the Salisbury Hospital, where no hopes are held out for his recovery.

Fifty Girls Perish in Fire

Fifty persons were killed, according latest estimates, and as many injured, a dozen of them mortally, in a fire which swept the four-story factory building of the Binghamton Clothing Company Binghamton, N. Y., Tuesday afternoon last. The victims were chiefly women and girls.

Early in the night twenty-two bodies had been recovered. In the city hospital and in private institutions are thirty injured. Some two score persons are known to have escaped from the building, which burst into flame like a tinder box and became a roaring furnace almost in no time after the first alarm was sounded.

About 125 persons were in the factory when the fire broke out. Those unaccounted for, or most of them, are believed to be still in the ruins of the structure.

Around the scene of the catastrophe, the greatest city has ever known, thousands watched the rescuers work in the glare of three big searchlights, many in the great throng being restrained only by the close-drawn police lines from rushing into the ruins to seek the bodies of relatives or friends. The money loss is estimated at $250,000.

Must Pay or Resign

Clerks in the government departments either must pay their debts or relinquish their jobs. The latest department to emphasize this order is the War Department, and an order signed by Secretary Garrison is being handed to all the employees. The order says "creditors and collectors will be denied access to employees" during office hours and adds:

"But while the department will not permit itself to be used as a collection agency it will not consider as a fit employee anyone who contracts a debt and without sufficient excuse neglects to make payment."

Political Announcements

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of Wm. J. Shores, of Chance, as a candidate for one of the Democratic nominations for representative in the Maryland Legislature from Somerset county, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary Election.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND

A Candidate for Sheriff To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County, Maryland:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Somerset county, Maryland, subject to the Democratic Primary, to be held during the year 1913, in Somerset county, Maryland.

JOHN A. T. HOLLAND.

A Candidate for the House of Delegates To the Democratic Voters of Somerset County:

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic Primary.

While it is an honor to become a member of the General Assembly, I care but little for the honor. Any man who is worthy to be called a man is ambitious. My chief ambition in this matter is to serve with time and thought the whole people of this county and to be of service to the State. To me it will be a greater pleasure to help others than to be helped, to serve rather than to be served.

With a knowledge of the opportunities in other States, I believe I should be able by contrast to see the opportunities on the "Shore" for greatly increased business activities. The Peninsula is within five hundred miles of about half the population of this country. The possibilities for development are great and very much may be done by legislation that should result in launching a great forward movement of progress.

If I win in the primaries and at the regular election, you may be assured that my time, best thought and energy will be devoted to the best interests of the people.

I shall be pleased to hear from any one interested in my election and desire workers in every community. I am opposed, however, to voters making unqualified pledges to support any candidate in the Primary, for often by undue influence men have been led to make positive promises to support a particular candidate and on or before the day of election regretted they were bound. I wish to see men free to obtain all the information possible up to the day of the election, and then guided with knowledge and conscience cast a ballot for what they believe to be the best interest of the people.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one who has a vital interest in the greatest good to the greatest number.

JOHN W. WEST.

CHARLES W. MARSH

A candidate for the House of Delegates To the Democratic voters of Somerset County:

I am persuaded by my many friends in Somerset to make this announcement of my candidacy for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic primaries. It is important that you know the position of each candidate on all questions that affect the public before casting your ballot at the coming primary, therefore, I will briefly state my position on some of the questions affecting your interests.

I am in sympathy with those measures which point toward the progress and prosperity of our manufacturing industries, the advancement of our commercial interests, the increase of our agricultural advantages, the husbandry of our great natural resources. I am utterly and unequivocally opposed to monopoly seizing any of our great natural resources under the guise of "law."

I am against the enactment of any measure favoring encroachment upon any right which the people have, and will, if selected at the primary and elected at the general election, fight to the last ditch for the rights of those who are at present obtaining a livelihood from the natural oyster bars of the county and State.

Any measure adversely affecting the moral tone, or the forward movement of any one of our domestic interests will receive my unqualified disapproval.

I shall be pleased to hear from all who are interested in my candidacy, and as I promise a square deal to every interest in my county, I invoke the co-operation of every one who believes in a "square deal" for all.

Respectfully submitted to the Democratic voters of Somerset county by one whose best interest is best served by best serving yours,

CHARLES W. MARSH.
