It's 'Your' Student Congress

As a student of the State Teachers College at Frostburg, what have you contributed toward the organization and functioning of the Student Congress, your own official representative government? The majority of you, apparently, are familiar with this body in name only. If so, the guilt is yours when unsatisfactory conditions or problems arise.

To state briefly the purpose of Student Congress, one may use the term "service." This means that it is designed to meet the problems of the students, that is, to either resolve them or take them to the administration.

Each student is represented in the Congress by at least three persons, and by four if he is a member of the Junior College Association. This includes two representatives from each class, one from each of the resident men and women groups, one from the Day Student Association, and one from Junior College. Regardless of the frequent complaints heard around the campus, few students take advantage of airing their grievances through these representatives or by personal appearance.

The activities of the Congress are not secretive. Students should, and can, keep posted on these activities by reading the minutes of each meeting, which are on display in Old Main.

Special events and projects are another of the Congress' duties. Planning committees are composed of the college students, but are headed by a member of the Student Congress. Included among these events are Freshman Week; Campus Day; Homecoming, with its parade, tours, and queen election; all-college elections; and the annual meeting of the Student Association.

The Pathfinder, an official student handbook, is compiled by a committee appointed by the Congress, and the allocation of funds to various organizations from the student activities fees is the responsibility of the Congress Finance Committee. Preparing this budget requires great diligence and concern, for which the Congress is seldom given credit.

Thus, we see the skeleton of the Student Congress. But it takes strong student backing and active participation to make it a strong government. Then, and only then will the Congress be less of a figurehead, and more of a student power, as was intended.

Your Influence Builds Men

Have you ever considered that the role you assume in life is a significant influence that may be compared to one of the huge building blocks needed to erect a public building? Without your share of importance, the entire construction would come tumbling down upon us all.

As educators you may well be termed the builders of young minds. The design has already been determined by a Divine Architect who asks you to execute His work. Each mind, like the construction block, must be properly fitted for the space it is to occupy in the lives of others.

You represent a builder of men, and for this reason your labors must be accepted with humility, and with an awareness of the growth you must accomplish in order to be fitted for this position. Any of us can perform a task insensitively if we are acquainted with the terminology and formula involved. Will this much satisfy your needs? To fulfill your job well is to be more than acquainted with the tools of your trade; it is to know them so well that you are able to use them confidently, skillfully.

We cannot build lives until we know what things men need to understand and appreciate in order to achieve their purposes in life. We must not force or impose our thinking upon others, but present knowledge and ideas so liberally that those we teach may be deeply influenced.

☆ Laurels To Two Leaders ☆

Students, we feel, should not be the only members of a "college family" to receive Laurels. For that reason, State-to-Date this week salutes two members of our illustrious faculty—namely Dr. Martin Hamrick and Dr. Robert Novak.

Dr. Hamrick, a faculty member here at State for the past twenty-seven years, was recently honored by Nemacolin, when the staff voted to dedicate the college annual to him. In reference to the outdoor assembly at which the dedication was made known, Dr. Hamrick said, "It was a complete surprise; I didn't know what was going on until I heard them call my name." When asked his reaction Dr. Hamrick smiled. "I was delighted to receive such a great honor," he said.

We, too, are delighted to see you receive such an honor and wish you much continued success in your teaching here at "State" which, we understand, will continue throughout the summer as a part of the summer school program.

Dr. Novak, on the other hand, has been a member of State's family for only three years, but he has in that time, accomplished much. In March of last year he received his doctorate from Columbia University. Here on campus Dr. Novak has been active in both A. T. A., which he served as co-advisor, and in Newman Club.

Now he has accepted a position as dean of the new junior college to be formed in Prince George's County and plans to leave immediately following commencement, June 6.

"Although I regret leaving F. S. T. C. and geography," Dr. Novak says, "I'm extremely happy that I'm not leaving the state of Maryland, which I have come to like very much. It has always been my ambition to someday move into administration and though I did not realize it would be so soon, the opportunity was too challenging—too much to turn down."

The position, according to Dr. Novak, involved both the direction and organization of this educational center which is being built primarily to meet the needs of both high school graduates and adults within the county.

Of the student body, Dr. Novak had this to say, "I hope that my new students are as willing and eager to learn, and are as friendly and wholesome as my students at Frostburg have been."

After these kind words about us, what more can we say except, "Congratulations, Dr. Novak." Although we are sorry to lose you we wish you much success in your new position.

Festival Of Fantasy Focuses On Faculty

It was May 15, 19—(way back), the official May Day at F. S. T. C. Everyone was in an expectant mood as the royal fanfare announced the approach of the queen and her court.

Amid the clamor and excitement, a small figure appeared, diligently rolling out the red carpet. A cheer arose from the waiting crowd as they recognized that it was little Ivan C. Diehl. Leading the procession was the freshman class princess, Hazel Ramsay, accompanied by "Howie" Briggs. Following closely behind were the sophomore representatives, Helen Silverthorne and Johnny Fischer, who was attired in the newest Ivy League fashion. Princess Carrie French, escorted by Bob Novak, shyly made their way to the platform. Under young Novak's arm, a brand new textbook entitled Essentials of College Geography, bearing his name, was proudly carried.

Another fanfare blared forth as Queen Dorothy Harlowe, attended by "Lennie" Luzenski, ascended to her throne. The vivacious queen was robed in a flowing orange sash, the newest fad of the roaring twenties. The fashionable ensemble was complimented by several long strands of multi-colored beads.

The two crown bearers, Jimmy Hosack and Bobby Jones, stepped forward, holding the satin covered pillow on which the bejeweled crown rested. The May Queen of the year before, Lilly Wellner, placed the crown upon the gleaming blonde head of Queen Dorothy.

White Rat Colony Proves Fascinating

The white rat colony at State has long held the interest of a junior, Sue Silcox. During her recently completed stint in the field of teaching, Sue put her knowledge of white rats to use by incorporating them into a proposed unit on nutrition.

The rats, according to Sue, were used as a practical approach, along with vast amounts of resource materials, to enable the children to understand more clearly the seven basic foods, balanced diets, calories, vitamins, proteins, carbohydrates and minerals.

The children named the rats "Snoopy," "Ricky," "Snowball," and "Possum," and each day a child took his or her turn at caring for the animals, feeding them, cleaning the cages and making daily entries on the charts describing day to day progress.

In connection with the unit, Sue escorted the children on a supervised tour of the Schmidt's Bakery in Cumberland where they saw how bread, one of the seven basic foods, is made.

The rats used in the experiment were obtained from the Maryland Society for Medical Research, Inc., 522 West Lombard Street, Baltimore 1, Maryland.

Sue did her practice teaching at Mt. Savage in the combined fourth and fifth grades under the supervision of Mrs. Helen Caldara.

New Library Exhibit Displays Shryock's Art

An exhibit of art work submitted by Mr. John Carter Shryock, a successful free lance artist, is on display in the college library.

Mr. Shryock's exhibit includes twelve paintings: two lithographs and ten oil paintings. Some of the paintings are of the Western Maryland scenes. The large painting depicting a bridge over a river in Pittsburgh is one of a series of river scenes on which Mr. Shryock is currently working.

Mr. Shryock attended the college Laboratory School and was graduated from Beall High School in 1933. He later studied at the Art Students League in New York City.

Goodby Senior Love; Parting Day Arrives

Little Darlin', I've been meditating for almost an hour, and it's nearly Twilight Time. Soon, the Sugar Moon will shine down upon Lonesome Me. Your Graduation Means Goodbye, and I'll be left with Memories of You.

You probably have never noticed me, or, maybe, if you have, you think I'm just another Lazy Mary or a Skinny Minnie. I may not be a Kewpie Doll, but Don't You Think It's Time you noticed your Young Love?

I Dreamed I saw you in a White Sport Coat and, Big Man, you looked Just Like Paradise. I wanted to tell you to Dance Only With Me, but you were too busy dancing to Chanson D'Amour with your Little Biddy Pretty One to notice me.

Now is the Hour to tell you! For Your Love, I'd even crawl on my knees to Old Cape Cod. Maybe, Baby, I should go All The Way and consult the Witch Doctor who lives on Blueberry Hill.

You'll Never Know who I am, but I hope Someday you'll Return to Me. 'Till Then, take care of yourself, good luck, and—Bye, Bye, Love.

Interrupting Rains Bring Higher Grades

Dewey Raindrop and his entire herd of relatives started dropping in on us last week, and you know, I think they are going to be permanent house guests of this campus!

(Maybe it's all for the best. Remember those long ago days when the sun was unhampered by big, heavy rain clouds? Well, I couldn't get one thing done. If it wasn't playing badminton, it was taking a hike; if it wasn't hiking, it was doing anything at all just so it wasn't school work.

It was absolute murder trying to keep my mind on anything as concrete as "Current Events" (is Nobusuki Kishi a "who" or a "what"?) and the construction of an "Ideal Bulletin Board" (what do you do if you read three references and these three disagree with one another?)

Modern European History was the knockout punch—it slipped through my head as if my brain were a sieve. (Let's see, is "Reparations" a separate heading, or is it number five in section "C" under heading "IV?")

Since it's been raining, I've half-way caught up on the reading of my social studies references. (I had to do them—there wasn't anything else to do!)

Can it be true? After all those rain-drenched days? Good-bye, Dewey. Goodbye to studies, too, until the night before the exam.

Where did you say we're going on that hike? OK. Badminton? Sure, what time?

Graduating Seniors Face New Horizons

To people everywhere, graduation holds various meanings. Some believe this occasion marks the end of a phase of life.

But to many more, graduation is as spring—the beginning of a new life, the opening of doors to new horizons, the search for a new and better kind of life. To the graduates here, it means the ending of an apprenticeship to teaching. Teaching now becomes to them a way of life, the guidance toward higher ideals for a younger generation.

With this graduating class lies the task of molding the ability of future generations to live, participate constructively, and meet the problems in an exciting and rising atomic age. Their job will not merely be the application of small and local knowledge but the spreading of a vast brotherhood, necessary because the world and the universe is being drawn ever more tightly together.

To this class belongs the responsibility of instructing its students to lead structural, tolerant, and appreciative lives in the realm of the community, nation, and the world. They must shape leaders, train the youth to be intelligent citizens, to be patriotic, and to share their thoughts and achievements with the rest of the populace.

Junior-Senior Prom Has Movie Theme

The junior class will sponsor the Junior-Senior Prom which will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club on Friday, May 16, from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m., according to the general chairman of the dance, Oliver Wittig.

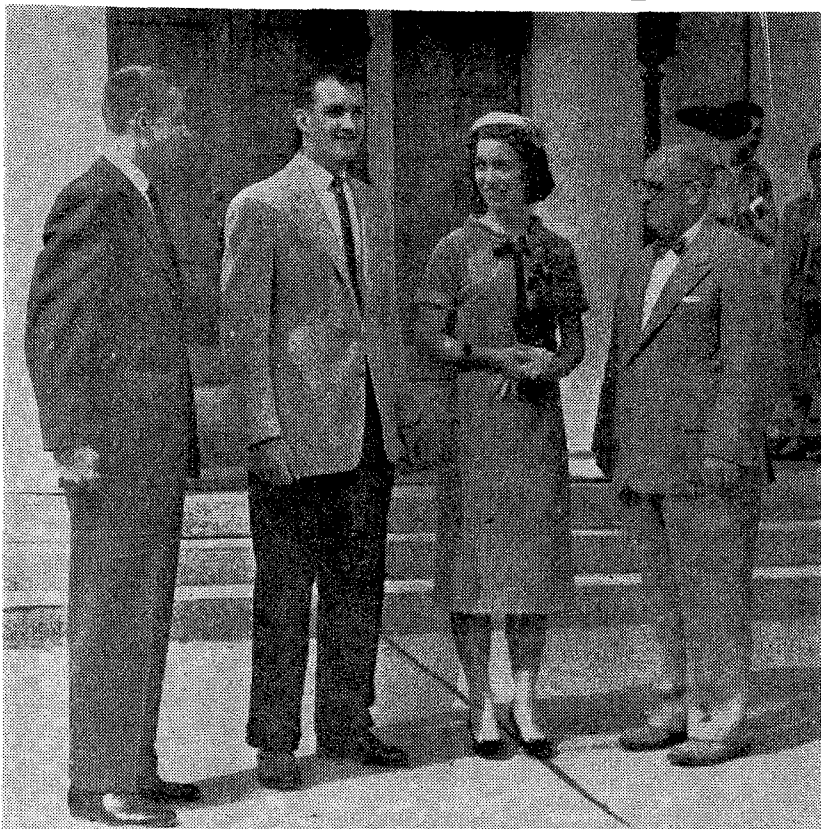

The theme of the dance is "An Affair to Remember." Music will be provided by Tommy Smithem's orchestra, according to Joanne Tomlinson, orchestra chairman.

The decorations committee is headed by Joy Swett and Sylvia Hilliard. Mary Frances DeLuca, Amelia Deihl, Susan Eader, Marietta Gaudio, Mary Ann Hesson, Russell Heyde, Norma McLuckie, Beverly Reynolds, Sue Silcox, Judy Snyder and Joyce Thorpe will assist them.

Eleanor Minke and Sabra Hast are co-chairmen of the publicity committee. They are assisted by June Bush, William Fair, Louise Graham, Robert Grimes, Douglas Sullivan, and Joy Swett.

The invitations and programs committees are headed by Mary Jo Rowan and Toby Morrissey. Jeannine Bock, Dorothy Elrick, Jean Nave, Nancy Parker, Joan Sweeney, and Catherine Watson are assistants.

Blossom Princess Departs Amid Fanfare

James Rankin and Dean Ivan Diehl bid farewell to Princess Sabra Hast and escort, Oliver Wittig.

Sabra Hast, a junior from Cumberland, was the princess representing F. S. T. C. at the Apple Blossom Festival held in Winchester, Virginia May 1-3.

On April 30 a special farewell ceremony was held in front of Loundes Hall in her honor. After a fanfare played on trumpets by James Duffy, Wanda Tate, Lloyd Neilson, and Ralph Nelson, the princess and her escort, Oliver Wittig, came out to their waiting car.

Dean Ivan C. Diehl pinned a corsage on Sabra while photographers from the Cumberland newspapers and from State-To-Date took pictures of the event.

On Wednesday afternoon after her arrival in Winchester, Sabra, with the other princesses, practiced for the pageant. That evening they attended a reception at the George Washington Hotel.

The first performance of the pageant was held at 2 p. m. on Thursday. In the evening a ball was held at the armory.

On Friday at 10:30 there was a repeat performance of the pageant followed by a luncheon. The grand parade was held at 2 p. m. that afternoon. All the princesses rode on one huge float to the reviewing stand where they remained to view the rest of the parade.

At 9:30 Friday the Queen's Ball was held at the Armory. Sabra returned to Frostburg on Saturday. She had the honor of meeting Daphne Fairbanks who was the queen of the festival and Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House.

Mr. Charles I. Sager conducted a vocal clinic for the featured soloists, which was followed by Dr. Martin Rothstein's talk about the physiology of the vocal instrument and a film.

Dr. Oermann Speaks At MAC Awards Dinner May 22

Keister To Get Soccer Award For Fine Play

Dr. Karl Oermann, Director of Teacher Education in Physical Education for Men at the university of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker at the Men's Athletic Council banquet, which will be held May 22 at Happy Hills Restaurant.

The main event of the evening will be a presentation made by coach Kenneth Babcock to the most outstanding senior soccer player.

This year, the award goes to John Keister, center halfback and team mainstay for four years. This year John was selected as third choice for the All-Southern soccer team.

The banquet is an annual affair, honoring State's athletes who have either won a jacket or letter.

The qualifications for a jacket are that one must win a letter in any one sport for three years. He may also win a jacket if he wins six consecutive letters, regardless of the sport, that is, a person lettering in soccer, basketball and baseball for two consecutive years is eligible for a jacket.

This year there are six athletes who have completed one of the above qualifications. This group includes Joe Carter, Bill Preston, Dorcil Kline, John Horine, Doug Sullivan and Gene Wiltson.

Carter receives his jacket for lettering three years in basketball; Preston and Wiltson for track; Sullivan and Kline for baseball, and Horine for soccer.

The jackets will be presented to the winners at the banquet.

First year letter winners in soccer, who will also receive them at the banquet include Ed McCormick, Terry Miles, Johnny Johnson, Ronald "Butch" Young, Larry Shafferman, Ed "Sapp" Truly, Norm Nightengale, Dick Gilpin, and Howard Gilpin.

Young and Johnson will also receive letters for basketball.

The qualifications for receiving a letter are as follows: soccer, participation in at least half the total number of quarters played; basketball, playing in at least half the total number of quarters played; baseball, playing in at least half the total number of innings played; and track, averaging at least two points per meet.

Weather Slows Varsity Teams

In the last two baseball games played, Coach Waldon Skinner's team has recorded one win and absorbed one defeat.

The win was registered over Hagerstown Junior College 6-4 in eleven innings.

John Keister, who relieved starter Hugh Nolan in the tenth frame, received credit for the win.

He aided his own cause with a single in the top of the eleventh inning and proceeded on to third on a throwing error. Arch Lennox doubled him home and John Horine singled Lennox to third. Then Terry Miles sent out a sacrifice fly to score Lennox and that was all the scoring.

Keister and Dorcil Kline each had three hits in the winning cause. Newport News defeated State by a 4-0 score.

The locals were held to four hits, the only extra base blow being Kline's double.

Hugh Nolan gave up nine hits to the winners, two of which were garnered by the pitcher, Donald Moore.

State's track team, under the direction of Coach Ken Babcock, was scheduled to travel to Buckhannon, West Virginia, last Wednesday for a dual meet with a strong West Virginia Wesleyan team.

The thinclads also opposed Towson State Teachers at Towson on Friday of last week to complete their season.

Fairmont defeated the locals in the only meet thus far, with a return match being rained out.

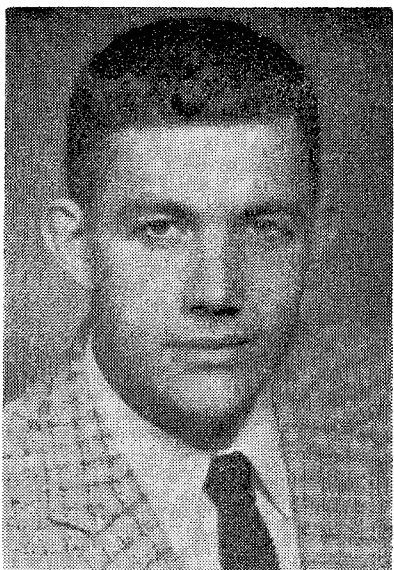

Blazer Winners

John Keister, Class Of 1958, Casts Mold Exemplifying Pattern Of Model Athlete

There is a member of this year's senior class, who, through his unsung athletic efforts, has cast that mold, or pattern, if you prefer, that any college team would be desirous of fitting around its members.

John Keister

That senior is none other than John Keister. "Big John" will be completing four years as a three-sports star when the last baseball game of the year is played.

Although John is married and lives in Salisbury (he commutes every day), he found time to partake in soccer, basketball, and baseball.

John received All-Southern recognition in soccer in this fourth year, lettered twice in basketball, and received the "F" for baseball, also playing that sport for four years. Keister was awarded his State jacket last season.

The closing of a brilliant collegiate sports career will be capped May 22 when John receives the Most Valuable Soccer Player Award. John was voted that honor by his teammates—ones who realize the big fellow's value to a team and his true team spirit and ability.

Fair Or Foul

By Bill Fair

Every June graduation brings with it mixed feelings of joy and sadness. Many of this year's graduation class will long hold in memory many cherished experiences enjoyed here at State. And quite a few of those experiences have arisen from State's athletic functions.

Since this is the last issue of State-to-Date for the year, let's look back and see what has been accomplished—things that will be remembered by the Class of 1958.

September rolled around and found the soccer hopefuls drilling daily on the soccer field. Soon they were to find out that because of scheduling difficulties, every soccer game was to be played away from home. A bit of brightness loomed over the squad when, after registering a 3-5 record, six of its members were chosen for All-Southern honors. The six, John Horine, Ed McCormick, "Diz" Nightengale, Carl Emerick, John Keister, and Dick McPartland, were to be outdone by the Naval Academy only.

Then November crept into the picture and brought with it, basketball. If ever Frostburg brought wide acclaims through sports, it was the basketball team of 1957-58 that turned the trick.

The seniors that will be leaving us are Dave Marple, Jim Cave, Joe Carter, Bill McCall, John Keister, and Hugh Nolan. These men scored a "first" in Frostburg cage history by compiling a school record of 16 wins and three losses.

During the basket season, Marple and Cave received state-wide recognition by leading college players in Maryland, and erased and established individual records that will stand for some time to come.

After winter's long and over-stayed welcome, spring athletics made their appearance. The baseball squad had many experienced veterans returning for the diamond wars, but early season found the squad with only two victories.

Among the seniors on the squad who will be missed when the call of "Play Ball" rings out next year are Hugh Nolan, John Keister, Carl Emerick and Arch Lennox.

The track squad ventured to the scene, facing a five meet slate. After the opener with Shippensburg was postponed, the thinclads prepared for Fairmont. Being short-handed, State dropped the opener, but had high hopes for remaining meets.

Spring also saw the innovation of State's fifth varsity sport—golf. Still in the neophyte stage, the golf team has captured the eyes of golf enthusiasts on campus and could develop into a prominent phase of the varsity program. Dave Marple, Myron Wotring, and Hugh Nolan are senior members of the "duffers" squad.

Coach Kenneth Babcock and coach Waldon Skinner, tutoring their respective teams, have formulated many memories which the 1958 Senior class will entertain for many future years.

PAN HANDLE

The Women's Recreation Association is finally closing another active season with the annual spring banquet, held yesterday at Anton's Big Savage Inn. There were approximately 90 members in attendance at the banquet.

The outstanding feature of the program was the presentation of awards. Those who completed eight sports credits and attended three-fourths of the meetings received a "major" award (picture); minor awards were presented to those girls who held credit for four sports and attended three-fourths of the business meetings.

These award winners included Jane Glatfely and Marietta Gaudio, juniors; Carolyn Angle, Jane Bollinger, Freita Mueller, Marilyn Mueller, Dorothy Sensenbaugh, Lois Spring, and Patricia Weicht, all sophomores.

The festivities also included other gaieties such as group singing and simple games, while Miss Lillian Wellner and Miss Elizabeth Hitchins made contributions of short talks.

The officers for the coming year gave their formal acceptances of their respective offices. These are Co-presidents, Sylvia Hillard and Jane Bollinger; vice president, Judy Snyder; corresponding secretary, Cathy Joyce; recording secretary, Mary Angle; and treasurer, Dorothy Sensenbaugh.

Aside from the annual banqueting the girls also concluded their athletic season in badminton. This sport officially ended last Wednesday, May 7, but some "make-up" practices are still scheduled. Those at the top the "singles" ladder are seniors, Joan Buskirk and Marina Tuya, juniors, Louise Graham and Pan Minke, and sophomores, Alice Gaither and Jane Bollinger. Those leading in "doubles" have not been placed because of several "make up" games yet to be played.

California State Tops Golfing Bobcats, 12-0

State's golf team dropped its second match of the year on the Maplehurst links, May 2, to California (Pa.) Teachers by a 12-0 score.

Although a close match was played, closer than the score indicates, California again excelled in golfing techniques.

Comparing scores of the first match, Dave Marple, Joe Pratt, Myron Wotring, and Hugh Nolan bettered their performances.

A meeting of the Tee Club was held May 6, at which time Mr. Reposkey, Maplehurst "pro," demonstrated skills of the game.

Future plans include a tournament for members, with medals to be awarded.
