J A S S Y, July 2.

A COURIER is just arrived in this city with dispatches from admiral Ushakov, commander of the Russian fleet in the Black Sea, which inform us of a considerable victory gained by the Russian admiral over the Turks. Admiral Ushakov having got information that 15 large Turkish vessels were on their voyage to Sinope, he ordered a detachment of his squadron to pursue and attack them, which was done with such success, that above half of them were taken, burnt or sunk, as they were entering the port. The Russian artillery was at the same time served with so much skill and effect that the magazines of the Turks, at Sinope, were wholly destroyed, and about three hundred men made prisoners.

COPENHAGEN, July 13.

The captain-lieutenant Fabricius, commanding the cutter le Hellefnyder, who arrived yesterday from the Baltic, has brought intelligence, that the two divisions of the small fleet of Russian galleys having joined, under the command of the prince de Nassau, attacked, on the third of the month, the small Swedish fleet in the Gulf of Blofko, which they entirely defeated and destroyed.

A part of this fleet, composed of more than a hundred vessels of different sizes, has been burnt, and captain-lieutenant Fabricius saw from 35 to 40 strike their colours, and submit to the victors.

During the engagement the great Swedish fleet, commanded by the duke of Sudermania, took advantage of a favourable gale to extricate itself, and got out of its perilous situation; but as only 29 sail could be counted after they got out, instead of 35, they appear to have left some ships behind them in their retreat.

The Russian fleet immediately pursued them; the Swedish fleet attempted to gain Swensborg, and, on the 5th, made manœuvres, though the wind was contrary, to enter that port; but this attempt consuming much time, the Russians were almost up with them.

The 5th, in the evening, when our cutter quitted these parts, there were only two hours distance between the Swedes and Russians, and an engagement must have taken place next day, if, during the night, the Swedes were not fortunate enough to make good their entry in Swensborg in safety.

The loss they sustained must be very considerable—they reckon there were more than 8000 men on board the small fleet, the greatest part of whom have been taken prisoners, the remainder have perished.

With respect to the king, who commanded, they have probably been fortunate enough to save his person. A little after the engagement which took place between Wybourg and Petersburgh, they saw two small ships, which had escaped, display the royal flag.

This defeat had been preceded by circumstances very distressing; and it was impossible that either the ships of war or the small fleet could remain longer shut up in the Gulf of Wybourg, having on one side an enemy's country, and on the other superior force; they were for several days in want of water, ammunition and provisions; the men began to murmur, and desertion increased to an alarming degree. The detachments which they sent on shore for water or provisions did not return—being either taken prisoners, or having voluntarily remained with the Russians.

W A R S A W, July 14.

The Turks have obtained a considerable advantage over the Russians beyond the Cuban; 1300 Muscovites, it is said, have been carried to Constantinople.

The Turks, it seems, have also opened the campaign very successfully against the Austrians; and we are assured that they still continue disposed towards a war at Constantinople, the account of the above defeat having raised their spirits amazingly.

It was some time ago reported that Russia had secretly made advances to the king of Sweden, to conclude a separate peace on conditions the most advantageous to that monarch. It is now even said that there is a Swede at Petersburgh for the purpose of carrying on the negotiations; but the honour and interest of the king of Sweden will, we are assured, prevent him from coming to any agreement without the previous knowledge of his allies.

V I E N N A, July 21.

In consequence of the high opinion his majesty entertains of the experience, loyalty and fidelity, which has been manifested by field-marshal count de Laszky towards the state, he has been pleased to appoint him commander in chief of all the troops assembled in Moravia, Bohemia and Galicia.

The field-marshal count de Laszky and count Colledoro have strongly recommended the nephew of the late field-marshal Laudohn, who was till now lieutenant-colonel and aid-de-camp; and his majesty, willing to give a proof of the great regard he had for his deceased uncle, has been pleased to appoint him, the said baron Laudohn, to be second colonel to the regiment which bears his uncle's name.

The body of the late field-marshal was carried on the 17th to his estate at Haberfeld, in order to be deposited in the tomb he caused to be erected near his garden.

B R U S S E L S, August 1.

The people here are clamorous for the release of their champion, the duke d'Urfel, whom two sentences from the council of Flanders had declared innocent of all accusations; but, notwithstanding this, the states, without alleging any cause, have refused to liberate him. A party of the people went to the convent where he was confined, and set him free. In the mean time the states dispatched a corps of regular troops to seize him in his carriage, and escort him to Antwerp or Brussels. A skirmish ensued between this party and the people; the duke too, and his lady, who were in the carriage, made a valiant resistance, and were both wounded;—nor did they surrender till overpowered by numbers.—They were then conducted onwards; but a reinforcement arriving to the people, another skirmish ensued, just without the gates of the town, and they were at length effectually released.—The duke was immediately declared generalissimo of the volunteers, though he desired to be enrolled as a private man.

L O N D O N, July 18.

A letter from Memel, dated the nineteenth of June, from a respectable merchant there, says, that all the lighters and floats of timber are stopped from getting down, the king of Prussia having ordered temporary bridges to be laid over the rivers, that his troops which are now on their march may meet with no detention, and, till they are over, no goods can come down; part of the cavalry is within an English mile of Memel, and more on their way; it is said they will have 20,000 men round Memel in a few weeks.

Advice is said to have been received at a Swedish house in the city, that the king of Sweden, with the fleet under his command, had formed a junction with the duke of Sudermania, and was then at a single anchor 20 leagues from Cronstadt, hourly expecting that the Russian fleet would come out, so that another engagement may be expected.

The last letters from Florence advise, that the tumults in that city begin to subside, none but the lowest classes of the people being engaged in them. On the first alarm, the English families, and travellers of distinction, were preparing to leave the place; but the better kind of citizens having taken up arms to quell the riots, which they had nearly accomplished, a deputation from the magistracy waited on lord Hervey, the British envoy, to assure his excellency of the perfect safety of the lives, and security of the property of the English. They also waited on lady Hervey, to request her influence with the English ladies not to depart the city, and to quiet their fears.

Letters from Paris state, that accounts had been received in that city of a mutiny amongst the mariners in the ports of Brest and Toulon; whether a mutiny has or has not taken place, it is very well known that much disorder has for a long time prevailed at both places, and that the same symptoms of disobedience and want of subordination is evident in the marine of France as in the army.

The last dispatches from Brussels bring accounts of several skirmishes betwixt the Patriots and Imperial troops—some of them very bloody, and marked with that spirit of revenge which ought not to subsist among civilized nations. A very desperate engagement happened very lately at the bottom of the mountain Belair, between the Patriots, and three companies of infantry and the Hussars of Wurmsfer. Both sides claim the honour of the day. Another affair happened near Ardennes, where the Patriots were completely defeated, and four of the prisoners were killed in cold blood by the hussars. The congress learning from some deserters, that major baron de Bleckem had given orders for this cruel act, have set a price upon his head of 1000 florins. The congress continue to amuse the people with fine declarations and professions; and the people on their side are, from the suggestions of the priesthood, very ready to believe them. Parties of the peasantry are incessantly pouring in to all the great cities, offering their services. They will probably not be long before their valour will be tried; as, from every appearance, it seems to be the intention of the Imperial troops to pass the Meuse, as soon as they are in sufficient force to do it with a prospect of success.

The fire which happened at Carlsrone on the 22d ult. has destroyed 1087 houses and warehouses, two churches, and nearly all the military hospitals and cafernes.

The following are the particulars of the attempt to assassinate count Florida Blanca, the Spanish minister:

The count, in his way to his official apartments in the palace, about ten o'clock in the morning, was attacked by a man, who made a stroke at him behind with a dagger. The force of this stroke was fortunately parried by the count turning suddenly round. This movement, with the resistance the dagger encountered from his cloaths, contributed to save him. The villain, however, not satisfied with one stroke, aimed a second at the count, though surrounded with centinels and his own servants; but, before he had effected his last purpose one of the count's servants seized the monster by the hair, and brought him to the ground. The minister's wounds were immediately examined, and found to be without danger. The assassin being laid flat, and having lost the arm with which he committed the daring act, drew out his other hand from his pocket, and gave himself two blows, which are not mortal. The account given of the man is, that he had been formerly a surgeon at Buenos Ayres, from whence returning poor, he had formed many impracticable schemes, which he had submitted to the minister, who had uniformly rejected them, as visionary and absurd. These disappointments had affected his intellects. His vengeance was not, it seems, levelled against the count in particular, but against all the ministers; and the count happening to come first in his way, became the object of it. The least vestige of a conspiracy has not been traced; and from the assassin's known character before, he is pronounced a maniac. It is not certainly known whether he is a Frenchman or a Spaniard. Some say his name is Paul Perret, others Paul Perez.

A suit of armour from Botany-bay, which belonged to a distinguished native of that country, has been lately presented to a member of the royal society, and is reckoned a great curiosity by all those who have examined it. It is composed of the skins of wild beasts, so dried as to be almost as impenetrable as steel, exceedingly light, and well fitted to all the parts of the human body, which it is calculated to defend. It is accompanied by a spear, though made of wood, so polished and pointed as to do execution equal to iron.

A letter from Dublin, dated July 3, says, "Yesterday a most melancholy circumstance happened in Chancery-lane: A lady, in adjusting some flowers in an upper story window, the flower-pot fell into the street, and in endeavouring to prevent its fall, the lady over-reached herself, fell out of the window, and was unfortunately killed on the spot, to the inconsovable grief of a large family."

The following may be depended upon as a fact—A journeyman ship carver, for sake of the bounty, informed the other day against a brother journeyman of the same trade, and who worked in the same shop. The lieutenant accordingly went, and found the person informed against in a neat little room in Wapping, at dinner with his wife and eight children, the eldest of whom was not more than ten years old. Struck with the sight, and having a feeling heart, he desired the carver to eat his dinner, for no harm should happen to him, and when he had finished to step down stairs.

The man accordingly finished his dinner, and went to the lieutenant, who told him that he had been informed against by a young fellow who was a brother chip, and to whom he meant now to pay a visit, desiring the other to accompany him. When the lieutenant came to the informer, he asked him how he could inform against a man who had so large a family to support? and before he could reply, said, "But my good fellow, as I shall not take this industrious man from his children, yet a man I must have in his room, and as you are unmarried and have been at sea, I must insist on your taking the situation you intended for him;" and so saying he gave the informing money to the married man, and took the other with him on board the tender, with the approbation of every person who has heard the story.

July 24. A general war at length seems wholly unavoidable. The connections between the two Imperial courts and the Spaniards, with the natural allies of the Dons, render this the more certain. The language of Russia is haughty in the extreme; and though France is at present apparently in an undecided state, there remains no doubt into which scale they will cast their whole force, when the proper period for the king and the national assembly declaring themselves, arrives.

That we shall soon see a renovation in the government and police of Canada, there is little room to doubt. The last dispatches sent thither were of the most important nature; they contained outlines to the foregoing purpose, which have been maturely considered, and were sent out to the experienced nobleman who governs that province, for his previous approbation. Indeed, if we may judge of the wisdom and prudence of those who framed them, the certainty that society at large must derive lasting benefits from them must naturally arise.

The cause of the citizens becoming labourers in the amphitheatre at Paris, was as follows—The 30,000 work-people, who were paid 30 sous a day, demanded 40; upon which an invitation was given to all good citizens to come and assist; M. de la Fayette, and M.

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1790.

J A S S Y, July 2.

COURIER is just arrived in this city with dispatches from admiral Ushakow, commander of the Russian fleet in the Black Sea, which inform us of a considerable victory gained by the Russian admiral over the Turks. Admiral Ushakow having got information that 15 large Turkish vessels were on their voyage to Sinope, he ordered a detachment of his squadron to pursue and attack them, which was done with such success, that above half of them were taken, burnt or sunk, as they were entering the port. The Russian artillery was at the same time served with so much skill and effect that the magazines of the Turks, at Sinope, were wholly destroyed; and about three hundred men made prisoners.

COPENHAGEN, July 13.

The captain-lieutenant Fabricius, commanding the cutter Helleflynder, who arrived yesterday from the Baltic, has brought intelligence, that the two divisions of the small fleet of Russian galleys having joined, under the command of the prince de Nassau, attacked, on the third of the month, the small Swedish fleet in the Gulf of Bothnia, which they entirely defeated and destroyed.

A part of this fleet, composed of more than a hundred vessels of different sizes, has been burnt, and captain-lieutenant Fabricius saw from 35 to 40 strike their colours, and submit to the victors.

During the engagement the great Swedish fleet, commanded by the duke of Sudermania, took advantage of a favourable gale to extricate itself, and got out of its perilous situation; but as only 29 sail could be counted after they got out, instead of 35, they appear to have left some ships behind them in their retreat.

The Russian fleet immediately pursued them; the Swedish fleet attempted to gain Sweaborg, and, on the 5th, made manoeuvres, though the wind was contrary, to enter that port; but this attempt consuming much time, the Russians were almost up with them.

The 5th, in the evening, when our cutter quitted these parts, there were only two hours distance between the Swedes and Russians; and an engagement must have taken place next day, if, during the night, the Swedes were not fortunate enough to make good their entry in Sweaborg in safety.

The loss they sustained must be very considerable; they reckon there were more than 8000 men on board the small fleet; the greater part of whom have been taken prisoners, the remainder have perished.

With respect to the king, who commanded, they have probably been fortunate enough to save his person. A little after the engagement which took place between Wyborg and Peterburgh, they saw two small ships, which had escaped, display the royal flag.

This defeat had been preceded by circumstances very distressing; and it was impossible that either the ships of war or the small fleet could remain longer shut up in the Gulf of Wyborg, having on one side an enemy's country; and on the other superior force; they were for several days in want of water, ammunition and provisions; the men began to murmur, and desertion increased to an alarming degree. The detachments which they sent in more for water or provisions did not return—being either taken prisoners, or having voluntarily remained with the Russians.

W A B S A W, July 14.

The Turks have obtained a considerable advantage over the Russians beyond the Cuban; 1300 Muscovites, it is said, have been carried to Constantinople.

The Turks, it seems, have also opened the campaign very successfully against the Austrians; and we are assured that they still continue disposed towards a war at Constantinople, the account of the above defeat having raised their spirits amazingly.

It was some time ago reported that Russia had secretly made advances to the king of Sweden, to conclude a separate peace on conditions the most advantageous to that monarch. It is now even said that there is a Swedish plenipotentiary for the purpose of carrying on the negotiations; but the honour and interest of the king of Sweden will, we are assured, prevent him from coming to any agreement without the previous knowledge of his allies.

V I E N N A, July 21.

In consequence of the high opinion his majesty entertains of the experience, loyalty and fidelity, which has been manifested by field-marshal count de Lascy towards the state, he has been pleased to appoint him commander in chief of all the troops assembled in Moravia, Bohemia and Galicia.

The field-marshal count de Lascy and count Colloredo have strongly recommended the nephew of the late field-marshal, who is still now lieutenant-colonel and aid-de-camp; and his majesty, willing to give a proof of the great regard he had for his deceased uncle, has been pleased to appoint him, the said baron Laudohn, to be second colonel to the regiment which bears his uncle's name.

The body of the late field-marshal was carried on the 17th to his estate at Habersdorf, in order to be deposited in the tomb he caused to be erected near his garden.

BRUSSELS, August 1.

The people here are clamorous for the release of their champion, the duke d'Orléans, whom two sentences from the council of Flanders had declared innocent of all accusations; but, notwithstanding this, the states, without alleging any cause, have refused to liberate him. A party of the people went to the convent where he was confined, and set him free. In the mean time the states dispatched a corps of regular troops to seize him in his carriage, and escort him to Antwerp or Brussels. A skirmish ensued between this party and the people; the duke too, and his lady, who were in the carriage, made a valiant resistance, and were both wounded;—nor did they surrender till overpowered by numbers. They were then conducted onwards; but a reinforcement arriving to the people, another skirmish ensued, just without the gates of the town, and they were at length effectually released. The duke was immediately declared generalissimo of the volunteers, though he desired to be enrolled as a private man.

L O N D O N, July 18.

A letter from Memel, dated the nineteenth of June, from a respectable merchant there, says, that all the lighters and floats of timber are stopped from getting down, the king of Prussia having ordered temporary bridges to be laid over the rivers, that his troops which are now on their march may meet with no detention, and, till they are over, no goods can come down; part of the cavalry is within an English mile of Memel, and more on their way; it is said they will have 20,000 men round Memel in a few weeks.

Advice is said to have been received at a Swedish house in the city, that the king of Sweden, with the fleet under his command, had formed a junction with the duke of Sudermania, and was then at a single anchor 20 leagues from Cronstadt, hourly expecting that the Russian fleet would come out, so that another engagement may be expected.

The last letters from Florence advise, that the tumults in that city begin to subside, none but the lowest classes of the people being engaged in them. On the first alarm, the English families, and travellers of distinction, were preparing to leave the place; but the better kind of citizens having taken up arms to quell the riots, which they had nearly accomplished, a detachment from the magistracy waited on lord Hervey, the British envoy, to assure his excellency of the perfect safety of the lives, and security of the property of the English. They also waited on lady Hervey, to request her influence with the English ladies not to depart the city, and to quiet their fears.

Letters from Paris state, that accounts had been received in that city of a mutiny amongst the mariners in the ports of Brest and Toulon; whether a mutiny has or has not taken place, it is very well known that much disorder has for a long time prevailed at both places, and that the same symptoms of disobedience and want of subordination is evident in the marine of France as in the army.

The last dispatches from Brussels bring accounts of several skirmishes between the Patriots and Imperial troops—some of them very bloody, and marked with that spirit of revenge which ought not to subsist among civilized nations. A very desperate engagement happened very lately at the bottom of the mountain Belvoir, between the Patriots, and three companies of infantry and the Hussars of Wurmsier. Both sides claim the honour of the day. Another affair happened near Ardennes, where the Patriots were completely defeated; and four of the prisoners were killed in cold blood by the hussars. The congress learning from some deserters, that major baron de Blockem had given orders for this cruel act, have set a price upon his head of 1000 florins. The congress continue to amuse the people with fine declarations and professions; and the people on their side are, from the suggestions of the priesthood, very ready to believe them. Parties of the peasantry are incessantly pouring in to all the great cities, offering their services. They will probably not be long before their valour will be tried; as, from every appearance, it seems to be the intention of the Imperial troops to push the Meuse as soon as they are in sufficient force to do it with a prospect of success.

The fire which happened at Carlsrone on the 22d ult, has destroyed 1087 houses and warehouses, two churches, and nearly all the military hospitals and cafeterias.

The following are the particulars of the attempt to assassinate count Florida Blanca, the Spanish minister

The count, in his way to his official apartments in the palace, about ten o'clock in the morning, was attacked by a man, who made a stroke at him behind with a dagger. The force of this stroke was fortunately parried by the count turning suddenly round. This movement, with the resistance the dagger encountered from his cloaths, contributed to save him. The villain, however, not satisfied with one stroke, aimed a second at the count, though surrounded with centinels and his own servants; but, before he had effected his last purpose one of the count's servants seized the monster by the hair, and brought him to the ground. The minister's wounds were immediately examined, and found to be without danger. The assassin being laid flat, and having lost the arm with which he committed the daring act, drew out his other hand from his pocket, and gave himself two blows, which are not mortal. The account given of the man is, that he had been formerly a surgeon at Buenos Ayres, from whence returning poor, he had formed many impracticable schemes, which he had submitted to the minister, who had uniformly rejected them, as visionary and absurd. These disappointments had affected his intellects. His vengeance was not, it seems, levelled against the count in particular, but against all the ministers; and the count happening to come first in his way, became the object of it. The least vestige of a conspiracy has not been traced; and from the assassin's known character before, he is pronounced a maniac. It is not certainly known whether he is a Frenchman or a Spaniard. Some say his name is Paul Perret, others Paul Perez.

A suit of armour from Botany-bay, which belonged to a distinguished native of that country, has been lately presented to a member of the royal society, and is reckoned a great curiosity by all those who have examined it. It is composed of the skins of wild beasts, so dried as to be almost as impenetrable as steel, exceedingly light, and well fitted to all the parts of the human body, which it is calculated to defend. It is accompanied by a spear, though made of wood, so polished and pointed as to do execution equal to iron.

A letter from Dublin, dated July 3, says, "Yesterday a most melancholy circumstance happened in Chancery-lane: A lady, in adjusting some flowers in an upper story window, the flower-pot fell into the street, and in endeavouring to prevent its fall, the lady over-reached herself, fell out of the window, and was unfortunately killed on the spot, to the inextinguishable grief of a large family."

The following may be depended upon as a fact—A journeyman ship carver, for sake of the bounty, informed the other day against a brother journeyman of the same trade, and who worked in the same shop. The lieutenant accordingly went, and found the person informed against in a neat little room in Wapping, at dinner with his wife and eight children, the eldest of whom was not more than ten years old. Struck with the sight, and having a feeling heart, he desired the carver to eat his dinner, for no harm should happen to him, and when he had finished to step down stairs.

The man accordingly finished his dinner, and went to the lieutenant, who told him that he had been informed against by a young fellow who was a brother chip, and to whom he meant now to pay a visit, desiring the other to accompany him. When the lieutenant came to the informer, he asked him how he could inform against a man who had so large a family to support? and before he could reply, said, "But my good fellow, as I shall not take this industrious man from his children, yet a man I must have in his room, and as you are unmarried and have been at sea, I must insist on your taking the situation you intended for him;" and so saying he gave the informing money to the married man, and took the other with him on board the tender, with the approbation of every person who has heard the story.

July 24. A general war at length seems wholly unavoidable. The connections between the two Imperial courts and the Spaniards, with the natural allies of the Don, render this the more certain. The language of Russia is haughty in the extreme; and though France is at present apparently in an undecided state, there remains no doubt into which scale they will cast their whole force; when the proper period for the king and the national assembly declaring themselves, arrives.

That we shall soon see a renovation in this government and police of Canada; there is little room to doubt. The last dispatches sent thither were of the most important nature; they contained outlines to the foregoing purpose, which have been maturely considered, and were sent out to the experienced nobleman who governs that province, for his previous approbation. Indeed, if we may judge of the wisdom and prudence of those who framed them, the certainty that society at large must derive lasting benefits from them, must naturally arise.

The cause of the citizens becoming labourers in the amphitheatre at Paris, was as follows:—The 30,000 work-people, who were paid 30 sous a day, demanded 40; upon which an intimation was given to all good citizens to come and assist; M. d'Arny, and M.

ROLAS BLAKE

jects may have formed, or should be desirous of forming, in future, at the same bay of Nootka.

In witness whereof I have signed this counter-declaration, and sealed it with the seal of my arms.

At Madrid, the 24th of July, 1790.

The terms of the above declaration are so plain and specific, that we presume it is unnecessary to add any comments of ours.—The cause of the intended war is now completely done away. What negotiations may now be pending relative to a settlement at Nootka Sound, will, we have no doubt, be concluded amicably. Treaties of this kind may be concluded, as they frequently are, in time of profound peace.

With regard to our fleet, orders will not perhaps be immediately issued for disarming, nor will the whole be at any time disbanded. There are reasons to think that a Squadron in the Baltic will yet be a measure of necessity, although, as to a war with Spain, the question is now fully decided. To those who weigh the advantages and disadvantages of even the most prosperous wars, this intelligence will not be unpleasant.

On the 9th of July last the king of Sweden gained a complete victory over the Russian coasting fleet in Swenik Sound. The king commanded in person, and took, run ashore or destroyed, forty-two Russian frigates and gallees. The Swedes also took 110 officers and 2000 men.

CHARLESTON, September 13.

Captain Antonio, who arrived here on Saturday last, in 12 days from Cape François, informs us, that when he left that place every thing was in the utmost confusion—that the governor was seized and beheaded at Aux Cayes—that 250 soldiers went in a frigate, accompanied by some transports, to Port-au-Prince, to assist the troops stationed there, who had for some time been besieged by the militia, assembled from Aux Cayes and other parts of the island, and had had several skirmishes with them at Lugan, where a party of the regulars were encamped; in short, that the order of government was entirely subverted.

N. B. He also again takes the liberty of calling on those who have been long indebted to him for former dealings, by bond, note or open account, to come and settle their respective balances, to prevent the trouble of suits, or an assignment of their obligations, which must inevitably happen, unless due attention is paid to this request.

THE proprietor of which has for his object the disposal of a very valuable PLANTATION, containing 250 acres, or thereabouts, of choice land, beautifully and conveniently situated on the river Severn, within five miles of Annapolis, and eighteen of Baltimore town, valued for the fertility of its soil, and adapted to every species of country produce. The event has shown their founded; for baron Stiernbald, who arrived here yesterday, has her majesty, containing the having gained a complete victory of galleys at Schwenksund.

The king having re-fitted his dispatch, after his retreat to again in quest of the prince of Ne came up with on the 9th of July.

The action commenced about morning, and continued without clock at night, maintained with firmness on both sides. The fleet only take aim at each other, by that quarter where they saw the discharge of the other's guns.

The men were ordered immediate refreshments, and to lose no time pairs as were practicable in a the king was determined not to separate with any appearance of its battle.

Accordingly the attack was a two o'clock in the morning with as continued till nine. The command, the king, who commanded in support he received from lieutenant at last determined the victory in Russians were entirely defeated.

We lost on our part, two gun b one, Udemia, a large vessel, which bomb, the crew were saved.

We consider it as a good omen on which we gained this important Russian, was the 28th anniversary of Russia's accession to the throne.

The following is an official account of frigates and galleys taken or destroyed of July.

Maria frigate, 38 guns, overboard; ditto, ditto; ground, but can be repaired; ditto, ditto, Alexander; ditto, Nicholas, ditto, ditto, sunk; Pet between wind and water, but captured; one sunk, four taken; three 18 pounders, taken, and repaired; No. 5 galley, one 24 pounders, stranded; one galley, with three 12 pounders; ashore, but repaired; one galley, with three 18 pounders, ditto; one ditto, sunk; one hemispha, repairable; one ch galleys, one repairable; one brig galleys, one sunk, and three repaired; two floating batteries captured each; four cutters, taken; two advice shuttles, taken; and the greatest part carrying 30 calibres. BERLIN.

In regard to our military operations they remain in the same situation as past. The most intelligent people certain, and this opinion is confirmed the prince royal of Prussia to his brother. The letter is as follows:

"MY BROTHER!

"It is not a very usual circumstance to be much acquainted with negotiation; but I will acquaint you. A peace with King Leopold concluded; his majesty has given up principal objects in dispute, and amicably settled. We expect to August, but the king will first see some grand entertainments will be of the coroner's inquest was, "that as far as was able to judge, she came to her end by some accident, or by the immediate act and providence of God."

We hear from Stamford, in the county of York, that on Wednesday the 8th instant, as two young children, sons of Dr. Abiel Hall, were playing near a well, the youngest of them, about three years of age, leaning against the curb of the well, the upper board of which was nailed on the inside, it gave way, and the child pitched in and fell twenty-three feet, when his head struck the water into which he plunged, and immediately rising received instantaneous assistance: Captain Ebenezer Hall descending into the well by the pole, seized the child before it could sink again, and taking it into his arms was drawn up and restored him to his distressed mother; the child having not received the least bruise or wound. The well was less than two feet in diameter, and stood to the bottom. The parents and friends of the child, sensible of the goodness of Divine Providence, desire that this remarkable preservation may be made public. Let this serve as a caution to all persons to see that the curbs of their wells be properly secured.

NEW-YORK, October 11.

Captain Barnes, who arrived at Boston, on Wednesday last, in 36 days from Ferrol, in Spain, informs, that the British consul there, communicated a letter to him, which he had received from the British ambassador at the court of Madrid, in which was mentioned the concession the Spanish court had agreed to, viz. to make restitution for the property captured in Nootka. The ambassador mentioned that he was doubtful whether this concession would effectuate a reconciliation, between the two courts. Captain Barnes further informs, that at the time he left Ferrol there were very great preparations making for war—and that every thing in fact wore the appearance of an immediate rupture.

A gentleman of veracity lately from Niagara, acquaints us that when at that post, the garrison were repairing the works, and putting them in the best state of defence, that it was there reported the half pay officers in the Indian department were put upon the war establishment of full pay, and that there was no talk of the western posts being given to their lawful proprietors (both by nature and treaty) the United States of America. (Albany Gazette.)

NEGOTIATION.

The commissioners of Vermont and New-York, are now convened in this city, to transact the important business for which they were appointed by the respective legislatures.—They commenced negotiations on Wednesday last, but nothing has yet transpired respecting their progress.

Oct. 4. A London paper of the 19th of August, received by the ship Birmingham, from Bristol, says, that the British fleet, consisting of thirty-one sail of the line, under the command of Lord Howe, had made the signal for sailing; as the wind was favourable, it was supposed they had cleared the Channel at the date of the paper.

The captain of the above ship positively asserts that the fleet had sailed.

Extract of a letter from Madeira, to a gentleman in this city, received by the brig Anne, dated August 26.

"I have only to add that a fifty gun ship and a frigate, are arrived in eleven days from Portsmouth, and say that the British fleet were ordered out in spite of the dispatches from Spain, and that war was thought certain. The above two vessels saw the Spanish fleet off Cape Finisterre, consisting of thirty-two or thirty-three sail of the line."

BURLINGTON, September 28.

A parson, preaching some time since in Montmouth county, in this state, said, that the wicked and ungodly, when they should come before the great tribunal, would have their mouths shut up like the frogs in dog-days.—A gentleman present examined frogs at that time, and really found their mouths shut up so fast that it was impossible for them to croak or make any noise.

HARRISBURGH, (Penn.) September 21.

The following affecting accident happened a few days ago, near this place, in the family of Mr. Wormley. His son about ten years old, and another boy, went to a neighbour's for a barrow. In coming home, the horses ran away, and the foot of Mr. Wormley's son, catching in the chains, he was dragged to death.—The first intelligence the unfortunate mother received of this melancholy scene, was the horses running to the door with her little son dragging at their heels, deprived of life, and torn in a shocking manner.

PHILADELPHIA, October 5.

On Sunday last arrived the ship Apollo, captain Billings, from London, in a passage of 37 days from the Lizard.

Captain Billings informs us, that, on August 27, in lat. 48, 0, N. the Lizard bearing N. E. by E. distance 83 leagues, he fell in with the British fleet, and was boarded by the Berkeley's barge, in which came an officer to solicit a supply of poultry for Sir John Jarvis, as their departure from Torbay was unexpected, and notice for sea short. Captain Billings supplied them with what he could spare. It being almost a calm when in the centre of the fleet, was boarded and examined by the boats belonging to all the flag-ships.—One of the officers informed captain Billings that they had been from Torbay ten days, and that the fleet consisted of thirty-one sail of line of battle-ships, nine frigates, two fire-ships, four cutters, and two brigs, the whole 48 sail, all under the command of Earl Howe, his flag then on board the Queen Charlotte; the fleet all day standing nearly S. W. the wind at N. Capt. Billings saw a signal pass through the fleet, at which all the ships immediately double-reefed their top-sails, and at sunset another, when they all wore to the northward and eastward; he left them steering to the eastward under easy sail; was likewise informed they expected hourly to be joined by the Dutch squadron. Captain Billings anchored at St. Helens, and saw four Dutch line of battle-ships at Spithead. Left St. Helens August 21.

LIST OF FLAG-SHIPS.

Queen Charlotte, earl Howe; London, Sir Alexander Hood; Berkeley, Sir John Jarvis; Royal George, admiral Barrington; Princeps Royal, admiral Hathorn; Impregnable, Sir Richard Baggot.

September 7, in lat. 39, 55, N. long. meridian of Philadelphia, 47, 10, E. fell in with the ship Argo, of Bermuda, from Waterford, and bound to Bermuda, 28 days out, Jeremiah Bett, master, who informed that he had sprung his mast, in the partners, and bowsprit outside the stem.—Captain Billings supposes he went into Fayal, as he saw him close under the land next day.

September 13, in lat. 40, 33, N. long. meridian of Philadelphia, 38, 52, E. fell in with the schooner Columbia, Elijah Ponter, master, from Liverpool, bound to South-Carolina, 30 days out, all well, who informed captain Billings he spoke a ship from Bilbao, bound to New-York, who informed him of there being 42 sail of line of battle-ships, with frigates, fire-ships and cutters, manned and ready for sea, laying at anchor in the bay of Cadiz.

By captain Corren, of the brig Mary, who arrived here yesterday in a short passage from Corunna, we have been favoured with the following intelligence:

That on the 18th of August, between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, a fire broke out in Madrid, and continued with such progress, in spite of all efforts to prevent it, that, when the post left Madrid at twelve at night, there had been then burnt to the ground above 800 houses, and the fire continued.

Same day was executed the Frenchman that attempted to kill the prime minister the 13th June last.

The 17th August a messenger arrived at Madrid from London; nothing had transpired on the departure of the post; but its conjectured, with some authority, that matters are near being amicably settled between both courts.—The affair of Nootka Sound is settled to Great-Britain's satisfaction.

The Spanish fleet consists of 35 sail of the line, 16 frigates, 2 cutters and 6 brigantines.—They sailed from Cadiz the 21st of July, and were seen off Cape Finisterre.

Oct. 7. Intelligence has been received here, from a channel that can admit of no dispute, that there are twenty-five sail of the line, with three admirals flags, ready for sea at Brest. Ten more are getting ready with all possible dispatch, and a very short time will convince the world that France is determined to take a decided part in the approaching war, that cannot be avoided.

Extract of a letter from London, August 12.

"We are at present neither at peace nor war, notwithstanding that Mr. Pitt announced appearances of peace, still very large contracts are within this day or two entered into for the navy; and the preparations are redoubled in all the ports."

Extract of a letter from London, dated August 12.

"Pressing does not discontinue, though negotiations advance in favour of peace. It continues in order, probably, until peace is more certain, or to give more weight to negotiations on the continent. Spain consents to restore the ships taken, and to give compensation to the parties for losses, when ascertained. The question of right remains as undecided as ever. Spain has at last sent a requisition to the national assembly, to demand on what terms subsisting treaties between the two countries are to be understood—a decided answer is not yet given.—Spain intimates that she must seek other connexions than the French if they do not come forth. Prussia and Hungary are come to some terms; and it is imagined that Russia will, ere long be obliged to listen to terms of peace.—The late rally of the king of Sweden in the Baltic, after his defeat of July 4, has been much spoken of; on the 9th July, the Russian galleys attacked him, the engagement lasted 24 hours, and the Swedes were victorious. It is not imagined that the fleets will engage again this season."

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, dated August 20.

"Our disputes with Spain are, in our opinion, far from being settled, although a preliminary basis is formed, and one or two of the principal ones already acceded to by the Spaniards; yet, as our demands will be numerous, and probably recur to former ones, which have lain too long dormant, and as the Spaniards still continue arming, and have now at sea, off Cape St. Vincent, a fleet of about 25 sail, and we perfectly ready to commence hostilities, it is more than probable that war may turn up; in that case the want of agriculture will be felt, and the prices of wheat and flour may again take a rise in different quarters."

Extract of a letter from Vienna, July 16.

"You would no longer know Leopold. When he first ascended the throne, he was the sweetest and most affable prince; he is now become a king, sad, gloomy, nourishing chagrin, and inquietude; who keeps himself concealed from his subjects, and when he appears, presents a spectacle of silent sorrow."

"It is not without cause that he is thus altered. Since his accession to the sovereignty, cares of every sort beset the steps of his throne. His vast dominions are a prey to the most alarming divisions. In the interior parts, already the blood of the citizens begins to be shed; abroad, a destructive war consumes his treasures and his army, and he is at present threatened with the invasion of an enemy still more formidable than all the others.

"It is estimated, that the present war has cost Austria not less than two hundred millions, and 20,000 men, carried off by the sword and by disease."

"Such are the motives of that profound melancholy which possesses our sovereign."

Extract of a letter from Lisbon, to a merchant in this city, dated September 25.

"A vessel is arrived here in 39 days from Cadiz; by which we are informed that war is actually declared between England and Spain. The Spanish fleet, in number 70, is actually at sea."

FREDERICK-TOWN, September 25.

On Thursday the 2d instant, as captain John Hant, an inhabitant of New-Orleans, was proceeding on his journey to that place, about 40 miles this side of Staunton, he was instantly struck dead by a flash of lightning. He was seen immediately after he fell from his horse, (who escaped unhurt) by some people who lived in a house on the side of the road, and was procured a physician in a short time afterwards, but every effort proved in vain.

A few days ago, a boy belonging to an inhabitant of this town, took it in his head to pay a visit to some of his neighbours, in order to procure, (what, perhaps, he had gone without for a long time) a belly full of victuals—but, not meeting with success in his travels, and a hungry gut pressing hard to be relieved, (no matter with what) he made a snatch at a little boy's cat, one half of which he immediately eat up, and left the other half as a warning to his neighbours—to be more generous with their beef, and take better care of their cloaths.

LOTTERY.

THE proprietor of which has for his object the disposal of a very valuable PLANTATION, containing 250 acres, or thereabouts, of choice land, beautifully and conveniently situated on the river Severn, within five miles of Annapolis, and eighteen of Baltimore-town, valued for the fertility of its soil, being adapted to every species of country produce.—There is about one hundred acres of said land cleared, and under good fence, on which is a good dwelling-house, with some useful out offices, a good orchard in full bearing, and a fine stream of water running through the same. The remainder of said land abounds with heavy hickory, black oak and walnut.

It must be obvious to every person, that this scheme holds out more advantages to adventurers than any yet offered to the public, as no sum is lost, but the purchase of said plantation, which sum constitutes the capital prize.

The proprietor further assures the public, that the said plantation, together with the house and out offices, cost him one hundred and fifty pounds, and upwards, over and above the sum annexed to it in the scheme; and he offers himself to make a good and lawful title of said land to the fortunate adventurer as soon as the drawing of said lottery is over: the remainder of the prizes to be paid as soon as drawn. MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1790.

BERLIN, August 7.

It is confirmed that a strong Prussian army is marching against the Russians, in order to operate for making peace with the Turks. The reigning duke of Brunswick has the chief command, and his brother Frederick a corps under his orders.

PARIS, August 10.

A society of Printers, of this city, lately assembled in the Hall of the Cordeliers, to celebrate a funeral feast to the memory of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.—On a column in the middle of the Hall was placed the bust of that great man, bearing a civic crown. Underneath appeared a printing press, and other implements of the art he so much honoured and cultivated. While an apprentice was pronouncing the eulogy of Franklin, the compositors and others were occupied in printing and distributing copies of it to a numerous body of citizens, who honoured this interesting ceremony with their presence.

Among the tombs placed in the church of Neufchâtel, there is one that presents a singularity quite of the aristocratic kind. A nobleman of the Chatelet family had a nich scooped out of one of the pillars of the aisle, and there ordered a clause in his will, that he should be interred upright—assigning as a reason, that he did not choose plebeians should walk over his body.

PLYMOUTH, August 3.

Last night arrived the Betsey, of Jersey, Francis Jerneaux, master, from l'Orient, with cotton, hides, &c. for Liverpool, who brings an account of 35 sail of the line lying in Brest harbour, completely ready for sea, and that three more are to join them from l'Orient. Sailors are repairing to the fleet in droves, wearing the national cockade in their hats, and a large boarding-pike, by way of staff, in their hands. There is no period fixed for their sailing, nor is their destination known.

Aug. 7. The Leopard, of 50 guns, captain Blaker, and Thames frigate of 32 guns, captain Troubridge, failed yesterday morning, but are still in the offing, for Nootka Sound. They are victualled for eight months, and have a great quantity of stores on board.

LIVERPOOL, August 12.

A seaman, a few days since, fell over the side of the Alligator frigate at Spacemel:—Captain Coffin, the commander, beheld, from the man's situation, that he must perish if not instantly relieved; and, we must add, to the honour of this officer, that he did not pause a moment, but leaped from the quarter deck, with his boots on, and rescued the poor fellow from being drowned—at the imminent risk of his own life!

Well may a sailor boldly dare,

And ardent follow martial strife;

For when with death himself at war,

He in a Coffin meets with life.

LONDON, August 12.

An American gentleman arrived in London yesterday from the Cape of Good Hope, where he suffered shipwreck by the gale of the twelfth of April, when seven out of seventeen sail were drove on shore. Among those that remained afloat was his majesty's ship the Guardian. The violence of the sea was such that the writer saw the Guardian lift many times, till her fore foot cleared the water full fourteen feet along the keel, when he could not but admire to see her situation below; her fore ground gripe, and her keel, for eight or ten feet, were entirely out off, and so close that it was astonishing she was kept afloat; and still more so, that the management of her was preserved so as to bring her into port. Captain Riou's conduct is the admiration of every stranger; his earnest solicitude to act with propriety in such a complication of unfortunate events, merits a grateful return from his country. His magnanimity and serenity are unequalled. The writer was also on board the Guardian a few days before he left the Cape, where he had the pleasure to see in good health the young gentlemen who remained on board with captain Riou, particularly one, whom he was informed is related to the British minister, young Mr. Gore, son of captain Gore, of the navy; and young Mr. Polhill, Mr. Frier, late master of the bounty, and a young gentleman called Tinecker, from that ship, were also, when the writer left the Cape, on board the Guardian.

Extract of a letter from Dublin, August 3.

"Saturday last two more West-Indians arrived here, one from Jamaica, the other from Antigua, with rum and sugar.

"On Friday evening, twenty-seven poor haymakers attending at the Pidgeon house, in order to be put on board a ship for England, were seized by a preface-gang, and put on board a tender—the commander of the gang telling them at the same time, that if they were able to row away, they could have no objections to move the chains of their country, and they should have passage, diet, &c. gratis."

In the engagement on the 4th of July, the Galere le Scaphin, with the king of Sweden aboard, was burnt to the waters edge, his majesty was on the point of perishing, but he got on board the frigate l'Amphion and this also was so disabled, and so near sinking, that he was again forced to change his position, and go on board a chaloupe.

Aug. 13. A sea-faring gentleman of Leith, has lately invented a kind of false keels, by means of which, a flat-bottomed ship or boat has every advantage possessed by one of a deep and sharp form, when sailing to windward, and at the same time meets with no additional inconvenience when in shoal water; as these keels, which consist of two pieces of plate-iron hung on hinges at the bottom of the main-keel, may be lifted up at pleasure, in such a manner as to produce no more effect than if they were not there; and it gives us great pleasure to inform the public, that this invention has, on trial, exceeded the most sanguine expectations entertained of it.

General Clark is to go out to Canada in the room of lord Dorchester, who wishes to come home.

Aug. 14. The marching of the Austrians through France—the 20,000 Sardinian troops now hovering on the confines of that kingdom—the fears of the national assembly, and their inconsiderate conduct in permitting the troops of their queen's brother to enter their territories—the arising of the Spaniards—the perilous state of the Netherlands—all present such a crisis as fills the mind with awe, and leaves room for the bold, and speculations with respect to its consequences!

A man was buried out of Shoe-lane last Thursday, whose character was very extraordinary. He had always made it a practice to hire some upper room in houses of obdurate situation, where he lived on bread and cheese, onions, and now and then a salt herring. He was never known to have acquaintance or friendship with any man, and although he died worth upwards of 8000l. was never known to do a good action therewith. It is discovered that he kept a strong rope constantly fastened to his bedstead, that he might lower himself down into the street, in case of the under part of the building taking fire. A blind fiddler in the Strand falls heir to the strong box, out of which, in his life-time, this watchful dragon had never been known to allow himself a comfortable existence. He was buried privately in Moor-fields by six beggars.

Monsieur Volney, speaking of imprisonment for debt, observes, that "this is a refinement in cruelty which which even the Turks are unacquainted. There the debtor is obliged indeed to give up all his property to the last farthing, but here his mortification ends: he is not cooped up in an iron cage, as with us, merely for being unfortunate." There seems to want a reform in this particular through all the nations of Christendom—but it must originate with those who have power, character and influence, in the world, and cannot be expected to be brought about merely by a few speculative philosophers, over the midnight lamp. Such may indeed point out the way of reforming abuses, but it must be men of the world to carry their plans into execution. It is indeed surprising how those whom we call great men, who are wallowing in riches and affluence, can pass daily by these abodes of sorrow in their splendid equipages, without once taking into consideration the miseries of their fellow-creatures, the victims of savage barbarity, who, in these dismal retreats, at a distance from their families and friends, are suffering the consequences of a mean and pitiful resentment.

Vander Noot is said to have fled to Holland, but not without something that was worth the troubles of carriage, and the loss of which "has done the congress no service." Vander Merich is said to be at liberty, at the head of 18,000 men.

To involve their country in a war, was the only expedient which the Spanish ministers could adopt, to check the fermenting ardour of freedom which daily spreads in that country. In the frontiers of Spain, particularly in Biscay, Catalonia and Aragon, the people are ripe for throwing off the yoke of tyranny; and all the efforts to prevent them only stimulate their energies towards its completion.

Before the fleet of Spain can meet that of England, it is highly probable that the flames of civil war will be laying waste the territories of the former kingdom.

Vienna, besides the approaching blessings of peace, will shortly be the scene of much splendour, besides the presence of the reigning family, their Sicilian majesties are expected on a visit on the intended intermarriages.

A new drinking game was introduced the other evening at Brighthelmston, with no inconsiderable effect. After a pretty free circulation of the bottle at a festival board, a pool of fifty guineas each was proposed to be waded for in the sea, immediately over the Steine, with their cloaths on; who adventured farthest was to be declared the winner. This novel diversion being announced, drew together, as may be supposed, an immense concourse of spectators. There are said to have entered the list; but, on approaching the beach, three, of the Liberman style, parred off; the contest, therefore, lay between a royal duke and the earl of Burrymore; when, after a hard struggle, it appeared, that the noble earl possessed the art of holding his head above water longer than his princely competitor: Victory, therefore, declared in his favour—and his lordship was received on shore with all the honours due to such a heroic achievement.

Aug. 19. There was a strong report yesterday, at the well end of the town, of an unavoidable rupture between this country and France, who are said to have it seriously in meditation to adhere to the terms of the family compact, and support Spain in her present dispute with this country.

Extract of a letter from Petersburg, July 16.

"It is said that our cabinet have lowered the conditions upon which they will agree to a general pacification: They no longer insist upon lessening the royal preponderance in Sweden, nor do they require the prince to rule over the provinces of Moldavia, Wallachia and Bessarabia, shall be appointed by Russia.

"The following preliminary points are proposed to the Porte:

"1st. A clear and concise renewal of the old treaties and agreements entered into between the two powers, since the peace of Kamardgi, and the last breach of peace, and fixing a new limit of territory between the two crowns, the boundaries of which to be the Dniester, and Akierman to be ceded to Russia.

"2d. The provinces of Moldavia, Wallachia and Bessarabia, to be declared free principalities, independent of both powers; by which means those countries will form such boundaries, both to Russia and Turkey, as will prevent any future misunderstanding.

"3d. The acceptance of the above two articles facilitates the proposal of another for the establishment of a permanent and lasting peace.

"With respect to Sweden, the emperor only requires the renewal of the old treaties of Nistadt and Abo, promising to forget all that had passed."

It is expected that the king of Hungary will immediately proceed to Frankfort, to be elected emperor, now he has got the load of foreign war off his shoulders. It is also understood, his majesty designs to sit out for the Low Countries, for the humane purpose of endeavouring to conciliate, by his presence, his revolted subjects, rather than expose them to the further ravages of war.

ARTICLES of CONVENTION between PRUSSIA and AUSTRIA, signed at Reichenbach, in Silesia, on the evening of the 27th of July.

Article 1. Austria renounces its alliances with Russia.

Art. 2. Austria concludes a separate peace with the Turks, and renounces all its conquests made during the war.—It shall, however, retain its ancient provinces of Galicia and Ludereria.

Art. 3. Should Austria be enabled to procure, by means of a friendly negotiation with the Turks, any exchange of territory, Prussia shall obtain from the court of Vienna, in order to preserve the balance of power, as many square miles of land belonging to the Austrian possessors in Upper Silesia, as Austria shall obtain from the Turks on the side of the Aluta.

Art. 4. The king of Prussia engages to give king Leopold his vote, at the approaching election, for the Imperial throne, but under this express condition (fine qua non) that the emperor of the Romans shall never enter into alliance with Russia, in order that he may be enabled, as chief of the Germanic empire, to resist any attack which Russia might, at a future period, be induced to undertake against it.

Art. 5. Austria shall have full liberty to enforce obedience from its revolted subjects in the Netherlands, under condition that the king of Hungary restores to them all the privileges they enjoyed under the government of Maria Theresa. (This article is guaranteed by all the mediating powers.)

Art. 6. The king of Prussia does not expect any compensation for the expences of his warlike preparations, nor does he enforce his claim to the territory of Thorn and Dantzick.

Art. 7. Should Russia persist in carrying on the war against the Porte and Sweden, and the latter powers demand assistance of Prussia, according to the subsisting treaties, his Prussian majesty shall have full liberty to accede to their demands, and the court of Vienna shall not interfere in the dispute.

Unhappy Effects of Novel Reading.

A young lady near Chester, not long since married to a gentleman of considerable fortune and private worth, but rather advanced in years, was observed for some weeks past in a very gloomy and perturbed state of mind; every effort was used to discover the cause, and every means was also tried to remove the effect, yet all to no purpose.

A few days ago, however, she appeared to recover her usual spirits, and her friends fondly imagined they had accomplished their wishes; but on Sunday last night, after breakfasting with her family, she retired to her bed-chamber, and desired the maid to call her at twelve o'clock; as her head ached, she would lie on the bed.

The servant left her on the bed, and departed; in a short time the house was alarmed with the report of a pistol; the servants ran up stairs, found the bed-chamber door bolted, which they forced open, and there saw their mistress in the last agonies of death; the pistol still in one hand, and an old novel, called "Constant, or the Happy Choice," in the other, a leaf of which was turned down, enclosing the picture of a gentleman in her father's neighbourhood, formerly an admirer.

KINGSTON, August 28.

The Alexander, captain Miller, which arrived here last week, fell in with a large sloop under Dutch colours, on the morning of the 30th of July, in lat. 13, 11. long. 31; W. who after hailing the Alexander, asked the usual questions of latitude, longitude, destination, &c. Being answered, he was asked what he wanted? His only reply was, "back your fore-top-sail and come under my stern, or I'll fire into you." Captain Miller not choosing to obey him, he immediately hauled his wind and fired several shot, which fortunately did no harm, though many of them passed over the ship.—Captain Miller having no guns, and only twelve men, was under the mortifying necessity of continuing his course, and in a short time was a considerable distance a head of the sloop, who finding she had no chance at a chase, hauled her wind and stood to the southward. She appeared to be about 100 or 120 tons burthen, with black sides and a white bottom, very full of men, amongst whom several blacks could be distinguished; said they were bound to the Cape de Verde. She was, however, suspected to be one of the American pirates, which the Fairy sloop of war was sent in pursuit of by commodore Inglefield, on his arrival at St. Jago, in October last, they having attacked and plundered the Mr. Braithwaite, who were sent out by the court of directors, to attempt the recovery of the dollars, lost in the Hartwell Indianman, at Bona Vista, some time ago.

BOSTON, October 1.

INTELLIGENCE RELATIVE TO WAR.

An English paper, of August 16, mentions, that the press among the seafaring people was as great as since the first notion of war.

SPANISH INTELLIGENCE.

Capt. Skinner, who arrived here on Saturday last, in 40 days from Cadiz, informs, that the Spanish fleet, consisting of 26 line of battle ships, sailed the 20th of July: That, at the time of his sailing, August 23, there were ten more ships of the line, besides frigates, at anchor in Cadiz bay; and that the most unremitted exertions were making to fit and man others.

Captain Skinner likewise informs, that, two days before he left Cadiz, a ship of the line and three frigates, with troops, sailed to reinforce the garrison at Ceuta, the Moors having laid siege to it.

SALEM, October 5.

Captain Roche, late from Trinidad, informs, that the Spaniards are fortifying that island with great industry, and also their possessions on the main.

WHITEHAVEN, July 7.

A very remarkable and happy instance of resuscitation occurred at Maryport a few days ago. The subject was a boy between eight and nine years of age, (son of captain Anthony Harris) who had been in the water a quarter of an hour, before the discovery was providentially made by a servant maid belonging to Mr. Burns, of the Ropery; there being none but children near him at the time of his sinking. After being taken out, a person was carrying the body, apparently dead, on his back, towards the house of the father, when he was fortunately met by Mr. Christopher, surgeon of that place, who instantly breathing very forcibly into the mouth, occasioned a plentiful discharge of water. The body was then taken into the nearest house and Mr. Christopher (assistance being speedily procured) proceeded in the rules laid down by the humane society, which he persevered in, notwithstanding every discouraging appearance, till his labours were successfully completed.

NEW-YORK, October 11.

The commissioners of New-York and Vermont have amicably adjusted the important business of their mission; the result is, that Vermont is dismembered from the state of New-York, and the New-Hampshire Grants, so called, are acknowledged to be valid. Thus the way is open for the admission of Vermont into the federal union. (United States Gazette.)

A farmer in a neighbouring state, of a philosophical turn and fond of silence and quiet, being perpetually disturbed with the monotonous music of the dasher of his butter churn in the dairy room, has, after long study, discovered that the operation of churning is incredibly accelerated by pouring a small quantity of distilled-vinegar into the churn. It has since been repeatedly made use of for this purpose, and always attended with the same success.

PHILADELPHIA, September 29.

The French artists, resident in Rome, says a letter from that city, dated July 14, having insisted on wearing the national cockade, orders were given to force them to take it from their hats, which occasioned a conflict, in which many lives were lost. A young woman of extreme beauty, wife to one of the Frenchmen who fell in the fray, with dishevelled hair and distracted looks, ran through the city, exclaiming, murder!—assassins!—to arms!—to arms!—The signal operated like a charm; the people armed themselves, and, adopting the French cockade, forcibly brought the pontiff from Fieschi to the capital, where they addressed him in very free terms, and afterwards having extorted from him a promise to grant all their demands, they left his holiness, and spent the remainder of the day and night in demonstrating their joy by carousals, illuminations, &c.

Oct. 12. Captain M'iver, of the brig Mary, from Kingston, Jamaica, arrived here, informs, that on Wednesday the 11th September at Kingston, a gale of wind came from E. N. E. to S. E. at 7 o'clock in the morning, and continued with considerable violence until about half past 1 o'clock; during which, one ship, the London, and two brigs, the Fame and Dispatch, with four sail of sloops and schooners, were driven ashore, but most of them got off soon after. At Martha Brae, a ship was drove ashore, and at Savanna la Mar, two ships and one drogher, Hardy, commander, from Port-Morant, with all hands, except one negro, were lost. Several French vessels which had put to sea shortly before the gale, suffered much, and were obliged to put back, and one French schooner foundered, and all hands lost. No damage done to the town of Kingston, but the plantain walks and some of the coffee plantations suffered considerably.

Extract of a letter from Kingston, dated September 2.

"Yesterday we had a very severe gale of wind, from the N. E. and a great deal of mischief has been done to the shipping in the harbour,—and as the plantain-trees must have suffered, I think there is a prospect of captain —, returning to a favourable market."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Liguania, (Jamaica) to another in this city, dated September 8.

"Not having the pleasure of seeing you immediately on departure, induces me to embrace the earliest opportunity of dropping these few lines to acquaint you, that we are still in the land of the living, after being threatened with a violent hurricane on the 1st instant. It continued to blow for twelve hours, varying from different points, with great force, and did considerable damage to the country in general, the particulars of which you will have in due time, when the same is properly authenticated and ascertained."

Extract of a letter from Port-au-Prince, to a person in this city, dated September 24, 1790.

"This, in fact, is the land of confusion: the people are dividing against each other, and have been at loggerheads. The loyal party have the advantage, and are daily imprisoning some of the citizens. I fear the fire is only smothered, to break out with fresh fury. Lettres de cachette and files of musqueteers are daily parading the streets: Business is almost at a stand: The harbour is crowded with American vessels, which have been waiting here, some two months, others longer, and cannot procure loading."

Extract of a letter from Lexington (Kentucky) dated September 9.

"I retire a short time from the bustle of a campaign's preparation, to address a few lines to you, expressive of a wish that this may meet you in health and good spirits, the latter of which is at present particularly my portion, from the pleasure I promise myself in attending the troops in their expedition over the Ohio for sixty days. We start to-morrow from this town, with high hopes and small apprehensions."

"One thousand men march from this district, which added to the Pennsylvanians and regulars, we suppose will amount to near two thousand men. What is to stand against this force, well appointed as it will be? Cannon are to be taken along also."

"The devastations and murders of the Indians upon our frontiers, in every direction, ought not any longer to be submitted to.—But how inconsistent are mankind,—what insolent and abusive reflections have not, till lately, been made against congress, for their supposed neglect of us? and now that they have directed offensive operations, the greatest, general, and most positive backwardness has been shown by the country.—I do myself the honour of a voluntary tender of my services."

The national assembly of France have passed a decree, to have a monument erected, with the stones of the Bastille, to the memory of doctor Franklin.

Oct. 13. The decree of the 19th of June, obliged the French nobility to strip themselves of their titles, and efface their arms, and to return to the rank of citizens. A nobleman enveloped the arms on the pannals of his carriage in a cloud, and wrote under it, It will only pass over: The commissaries of the district of Bonne Nouvelle, went with the national guard to his house, when a painter whom they had taken with them effaced the whole, and in the place of the motto, wrote—It has passed over.

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, dated August 28.

"The emperor of Morocco is collecting ammunition and stores with an intention to besiege Ceuta, a fortress of the Spaniards in his dominions in our neighbourhood. His repeated insults to the Spaniards plainly shew he will soon break with them. The prime minister, or effendi of his father, a great friend to the Spaniards, and a professed enemy of the English, he lately caused to be beheaded, his head to be fixed on the front of the Spanish consul's house at Tangiers, and another on the gate of the town, all the differences he had with his father in his life time he imputes to the intrigues of the Spaniards. By the latest accounts from the Levant, the Russians and Imperialists carry every thing before them, and notwithstanding the diversion in the Baltic, they are likely to carry their point. They are now within a very few days march of Constantinople."

Extract of a letter from Sunbury (Georgia) dated September 20.

"A firm peace being now, to all appearance, restored between the United States and the Creek Indians, we may reasonably expect that the state of Georgia will soon begin to feel the good effects. The immediate beneficial consequences are already at this moment taking place. The vast tracts of fertile land on both sides of the Altamaha river are rapidly rising in value, and nothing is wanting here (to compensate for the scarcity of slaves) but a hardy industrious race of men, who instead of being mere lookers on, in quality of overseers and drivers, would condescend to put their own hands to the axe or grubbing-hoe, and make this extensive territory one of the most desirable in the habitable world. The country round Sapola Sound and the mouth of the Altamaha, is one of the most beautiful you can imagine, abounding with every thing that can make life comfortable, besides an excellent navigation and easy bar at the north end of Sapola, with rather more water than that of Charleston. Several vessels are hourly looked for from France (one in particular of eight hundred tons from Bourdeaux) to load with live oak ship-timber and spars, in the river of St. Mary's."

IGNATIUS MIDDLETON, Executor.

Charles county, October 12, 1790.

Curse be that removeth his neighbour's landmark, and all the people shall say, AMEN. Deuteronomy, ch. 28, ver. 18.

SOME time in the year 1779, or 1780, I commenced a suit of trespass and ejectment, in the general court of the western shore, against a certain James Howard, son of Henry, of Anne-Arundel county, whose land adjoined to mine. The said Howard pretended to claim part of my land, but the deed he claimed under, wherein the beginning was described to be at a certain heap of stones, made by his said father Henry, on running the lines of my land, in the year 1750, or thereabouts, the said James died before the suit was ended, after his death it went off the docket. I have very lately discovered that the aforesaid deed, by which the said Howard claimed part of my land, has been erased, and the beginning altered from the aforesaid heap of stones to a red oak tree within my lines, from the said heap of stones about 75 or 80 yards. If he the said James could have established his boundary at said red oak, he would have taken the water of my land, secured him from the trespass, taken away my improved meadow, thrown my lines to the south-west into a worn out old field, not worth one shilling per acre, and made a trespasser, for which he had a suit against me at the same time. I have also examined the records of the county wherein his deed was recorded, and find that the said record is also erased, and the beginning made at the said red oak instead of the aforesaid heap of stones. Part of the letter S, on the county records, is still perceivable. NOTICE is hereby given, that I intend to petition the general assembly of Maryland, at their next meeting, to pass a law to amend the said records and deed agreeable to the original grant to the said James.

BROKE GAOL, last night, the two following negro men, viz. THE proprietor of which has for his object the disposal of a very valuable PLANTATION, containing 250 acres, or thereabouts, of choice land, beautifully and conveniently situated on the river Severn, within five miles of Annapolis, and eighteen of Baltimore-town, valued for the fertility of its soil, being adapted to every species of country produce. There is about one hundred acres of said land cleared, and under good fence, on which is a good dwelling-house, with some useful out offices, a good orchard in full bearing, and a fine stream of water running through the same. The remainder of said land abound with heavy hickory, black oak and walnut.

It must be obvious to every person, that this scheme holds out more advantages to adventurers than any yet offered to the public, as no sum is sunk, but the purchase of said plantation, which sum constitutes the capital prize.

The proprietor further assures the public, that the said plantation, together with the house and out offices, cost him one hundred and fifty pounds, and upwards, over and above the sum annexed to it in the scheme; and pledges himself to make a good and lawful title of said land to the fortunate adventurer as soon as the drawing of said lottery is over; the remainder of the prizes to be paid as soon as drawn. MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1790.

ROME, August 7.

ROME Frenchmen are arrested almost every day in this metropolis. The order extends to every rank, strangers, priests or hermits; they are immediately conducted to the frontiers, and wished a good voyage, after being first strictly enjoined to appear no more in the pope's dominions.

MADRID, August 22.

War between England and this country appears inevitable—it seems resolved upon in the cabinet of our despot.

In consequence of his discontent that Great-Britain should still, after his declaration, continue to equip more vessels, and pursue her impels with greater vigour, he has embarked even the troops that were in garrison at Cadiz, and with such celerity is the operation effected, that the bourgeois of the place are its only remaining guard.

It is rumoured here, that the Spanish court resentful of disgraced honour, meditates the capture of the homeward bound British Indiamen. The cabinet is in the utmost disorder; couriers succeed each other with incredible dispatch.

Communications with the French have thrown our frontiers into extreme disorder.

Every advice from our colonies speak of them as ripe to throw off all allegiance to the mother country. We expect an engagement, if your fleet should fall in with ours, to a certainty.

FRANKFORT, August 10.

The fermentation in the different districts of Hungary, still continues. The peasants have leagued together against the noblesse, and the violence which have already commenced inspire a universal inquietude and fear.

From the LOWER ELBE, August 20.

We are assured that the Prussian courier, who lately passed through Thorn in his way from Reichenbach to Petersburg, was bearer of the following intelligence to the court of Russia: "That the king of Prussia having brought about a peace between Austria and the Turks, he had reason to hope that her majesty the empress would put a stop to all hostilities with the Turks, as well as with Sweden; that the empress must be aware of the heavy expences the king has been at to keep the five armies on foot, and all indemnification which he wishes for this is, the settling of a general peace; in consequence of which his majesty declares, that if Russia continues hostile, he shall think himself obliged to assist his allies."

LIVERPOOL, August 24.

Yesterday different accounts were received at Lloyd's, stating the Spanish fleet to be at sea. A letter from the captain of the Lisbon packet, which arrived on Thursday last, was produced, in which the captain says, that he saw the Spanish fleet 40 leagues S. W. of Cape Finisterre the 14th instant, and that he also fell in with the English fleet, commanded by lord Howe, off Scilly, on Sunday last. Captain Hopkins too, of the Hope brig, arrived at Dover, reports that the fleet of Spain spoke him in lat. 42, 3, North, long. 12, West, steering before a brisk gale for Cape Finisterre. Their force consisted of 37 sail, including six frigates, two of which were of 40 guns, and the others 36; with a brig mounting 18 guns, and a reinforcement of six ships, they said, was expected to join them from Ferrol. From the above accounts, a meeting of the two fleets is not improbable; should it take place, we trust it will be to the honour of this country.

Accounts from Elsinour, dated the 17th instant, by the mail of yesterday, mention that the Louis Ulric, Swedish man of war, was lost through starting a plank, and that 300 of her crew certainly perished.

We learn, that among other resolutions of the French cabinet, a general embargo has been laid on all shipping, evidently with a view, among other purposes of manning their fleet.

PLYMOUTH, August 25.

Last evening, after post, arrived the Narcissus, from a cruise.

She saw the Spanish fleet off Cape St. Vincent; and, from what could be learnt, they expected to be joined by several French men of war.

The Narcissus fell in with our fleet, under earl Howe, west of Ushant, all well, and in high spirits.

There is not the least abatement in the preparations for war in this port.

LONDON, August 17.

The abbe Fauchet, has pronounced in the presence of the deputies of the national assembly of France, and all those of all the confederated departments within the kingdom, a civic eulogium on doctor Franklin; which the representatives of the commons of Paris, we learn, have resolved shall be printed and transmitted to the congress of the United States.

During the late press in London, when it was very hot, a person dressed very much in the style of a gentleman, in a blue coat, boots and spurs, went on board one of the tenders, and voluntarily offered himself as a seaman. The regulating officer, seeing his appearance, and observing likewise that he had drank a little, endeavoured to persuade him to the contrary all in his power, but in vain—he was fond of a sea life, and still fonder of assisting to fight the enemies of his country.

His perseverance prevailed, and he was sent under deck, when the Jack Tars, seeing a mess-mate so unlike themselves, assisted in unrigging him, which was to cut off the skirts of his coat and queue, and take away his spurs—all this he quickly submitted to, and afterwards fell fast asleep. In the morning, however, he thought better of the whole proceeding, and wanted to be let ashore, by asserting he was a gentleman, and of considerable family. The officer said if he would prove himself such, or even so much as tell his name, he would let him go; but remaining obstinate in both, he was sent down to the Nore along with the rest of the men.

Whether France will comply with the terms of the family compact is not yet certain. It is a point of great consequence to determine; if, on such a point, therefore, we might be allowed to speculate, we should add, that the moment the French assembly agree to renew the family compact, they destroy the whole fabric they have been rearing, and lay the foundation of civil commotions, which will ultimately end in favour of the king and his friends.

The conduct of captain Marhal, an English gentleman in the service of Russia, during the late engagement, is equal to the most extraordinary efforts in our recollection. He fought his ship till she sunk to the water's edge; when a soldier, flying to the colours to strike them, he shot the soldier dead, and she went down with her colours flying—he next swam to his friend Mr. Travanton's ship, whom he unfortunately found dead; he then took the command, and fought her till she sunk also, and though there are as yet no certain hopes of him, there are great hopes of his having swam ashore, to share the honours and rewards to which, from his conduct, he is so justly entitled.

Aug. 10. A cat, in the neighbourhood of Wapping, who has lately opened a tobacco-shop, has the following notice upon a board in the window:

Full many a gale I weather'd out,

Before the port I made:

And having worn my canvas out,

My anchor here I've laid.

No winds for favour I invoke,

To spare, or fill my sail;

But only beg my friends would smoke,

And blow a pleasant gale.

Sentiments of a French Author.

The Americans, says a traveller, very much delight in puddling. This is the favourite dish, not only of the clergy, but of the people in general. Provided there be a puddling upon the table, no matter what are the other dishes; they are sure to make a feast. They think themselves so happy when they have a puddling before them, that if any one would tell a friend he is arrived in a lucky juncture, the ordinary salutation is, "Sir, I am glad to see you—you are come in puddling time."

Aug. 31. The present high price of the funds is a matter of astonishment to every one. It certainly cannot be justified by the situation of political affairs abroad, nor by the measures of government at home. For if we judge from either, we must conclude, that the continuation of peace is extremely precarious.

Advice has been received through different channels, that the English and Spanish fleets were in sight of each other on Saturday last. The consequence of their interview is impatiently expected by all ranks of people.

An express arrived on Sunday at the M. del Campo's from Madrid. The ambassador has had a conference with the duke of Leeds on the subject of the dispatches.

The same messenger also brought the Spanish minister an account of the proceedings in the national assembly of France on Thursday last.

The French minister has received very authoritative instructions on the intent of his court in respect to the dispute of England with Spain—they are grounded on the resolutions of the national assembly; where on Thursday last, it was agitated and determined, that the reinforcement of their navy should be increased, from the number lately voted, up to 45 ships of the line; and that from the reports of the secret committee, on the policy and justice of adhering to the conditions of the family compact, the support of that treaty was a measure they should keep in view.

The FAMILY COMPACT supported and ratified by the NATIONAL ASSEMBLY OF FRANCE.

P A R I S.

Thursday afternoon, four o'clock.

The national assembly, deliberating upon the formal proposition of the king contained in the letter of his minister of the 1st of August, decrees,

1st. That the king shall be prayed to make known to his catholic majesty, that the French nation, in taking all the measures necessary to maintain peace, will observe the defensive and commercial engagements which his government has contracted with Spain.

2d. Decrees, moreover, that the king shall be prayed immediately to charge the ambassador from France to Spain, to negotiate with the ministers of his catholic majesty, for the purpose and to the effect of strengthening, by a national treaty, the ties and connexions useful to the two nations, and to fix with clearness and precision, all the stipulations which shall not be entirely conformable to the views of a general peace, and to the principles of justice which will ever be the policy of France.

3d. The national assembly, taking into consideration the armaments of the different nations of Europe, their progressive augmentation, the safety of the colonies, and of commerce, decrees, that the king shall be prayed to give the necessary orders, that the squadrons in commission may be augmented to forty-five ships of the line, with a proportionate number of frigates and small vessels.

Sept. 2. Sunday afternoon his majesty's ship Hind arrived at Plymouth from lord Howe's fleet, which she left the day before, a few leagues to the westward of Scilly. The fleet was all well, except some of the ships carrying away their top-masts, which were replaced at sea; but as the Hind had carried away her bowsprit, she was obliged to bear away for this port.

Lord Howe's station is about forty leagues to the S. W. of Scilly, where he was ordered to remain until he received further instructions. These were sent off yesterday evening from the admiralty, where a messenger had been in waiting thirty-six hours to carry them to Falmouth.

The French and Spanish ambassadors, we are well assured, have deposited their plate and jewels at a banker's in St. James's street. The inferences which may be drawn from this circumstance, are too obvious to require a comment.

The Monarch, of 74 guns, has been ordered from Portsmouth to Spithead, from whence she is expected to be immediately ordered for India.

It was reported yesterday that the messenger which arrived on Friday last from Constantinople, brought to our ministers the account that the Ottoman Porte had agreed to the preliminary articles of a commercial treaty with Britain.

The staff promotion of the king of Prussia affords an argument that his majesty has determined on resisting the measures of Russia, and checking her arms. Such a co-operating ally admits of predictions in favour of the measures of England, and promises well to the fleet of Sweden.

There has been more blood spilled in one battle to gratify the ambition of a king or his minion, than has yet been shed to bring about the French revolution.

Letters from Hanover inform us, that the German troops, destined for Gibraltar are ready, but no orders have been sent for their embarkation.

A second requisition has been made for the troops from that electorate, to act as executive troops against the Liegeois, but it is not known whether they will be sent.

There is to be a congress held at the Hague, composed of ministers from the kings of Hungary, Prussia, England and the states general; and it was proposed that commissioners delegated from Brabant and Flanders should be admitted. But to this the king of Hungary objected; as the purpose of the congress is to settle the guaranty of the constitution of those states, he could not consider them as other than his subjects; but he consents that they may be in the way for occasional conference, and to submit their memorials to the congress.

The states of Hungary still persist in their demands: "That the nation only shall have the right of declaring war or peace; that no German shall have any civil or military employment; that there shall be no national troops in the country, and those under the control of the states; that the king shall not have the management of the public treasury; that the succession to the crown shall not in future devolve to the eldest son of the king, but be elective."

To all which demands, the king of Hungary has made answer, that he should except no other articles in his inauguration oath, than those that were taken by the last emperor queen.

By the mail yesterday there are accounts, that there has been a violent insurrection at Vienna on account of the terms of peace concluded at Reichenbach. The people think that peace has been made with no other view than that of enslaving them, and the Austrians are now as eager as the Hungarians for liberty: and several regiments have refused to march to Brabant.

We mentioned a few days since that Lord Howe's fleet had been in a gale of wind; we find by official report, that many of the ships have lost their top-masts; but no serious accident has befallen any of them. The advices from his lordship were brought by the Drake sloop, commanded by Capt. Countess.

S A L E M, October 12. FURTHER OF WAR.

The arrival, yesterday, of the William and Henry, captain Thomas West, in 32 days from Bilbao, strengthens the expectation of a war between Great-Britain and Spain. The preparations for that event, when captain West sailed, were as vigorous as ever; sailers were continually going from Bilbao to ship on board the men of war at Cadiz. France, it was said, had ordered the equipment of 45 sail of the line, to assist Spain; and the merchants, in the expectation of war, had ceased to ship their wool, &c. for England, in any other bottoms than those which would be neutral when hostilities should commence.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Gardequi, to a merchant in this town.

"Bilboa, September 4.

"Our rumours of war, with England increase daily, by the French having confirmed, in their general assembly, the family compact, and in consequence thereof ordered 50 ships of the line to be armed with all speed, so as to join our naval force, which is actually at sea. They are also arming very fast in England, and part of their fleet too is out. What all these preparations will come to at last, is morally impossible to guess."

B O S T O N, October 6. WAR AND PEACE

Seem alternately to be the burden of every account from Europe. Although some have their doubts as to the authenticity of the declarations exchanged at Madrid between the Spanish and British ambassadors, we verily believe that they are correct and true—those declarations, however, do not make peace inevitable.—Our readers will recollect, that in the British king's message to his parliament, he gives as a reason for the armaments, that "he had received information that two British vessels had been captured by Spanish ships of war; that adequate satisfaction had been demanded previous to any other discussion, and that no satisfaction had been offered, but a claim set up to the sovereignty and navigation to the seas in question."

By the above passage it appears, that the British court made a point of insisting upon satisfaction for the insult offered to their ships at Nootka Sound, previous to any other discussion. The Spanish declaration promises satisfaction for the injury, and full restitution of the British vessels captured. This being made, the British ministry, at present, consider it as certain that the remaining part of the business will be settled without going to war. This, the discontinuance of the bounty to seamen, and other circumstances, seem to put almost out of doubt. At the same time the business must be brought to a decisive issue before any measures are taken for disarming, as, until that period shall arrive, it will be impossible to judge with certainty of the ultimate prospect of war and peace. As a proof of this, ships still continue to be put in commission, and made ready for sea, and every step is taking that the artillery and ordnance may be in the best condition possible. Four cutters are stationed between Portsmouth and Torbay to bring and carry dispatches to and from the admiralty.

We are informed, that the account some time since published in the papers, of the death of Capt. Savage, of the federal troops, is premature.

N E W - Y O R K, October 19.

A perfect cure for the small-pox, is discovered by a physician in Lisbon. This medicine is extremely simple, being no other than 48 grains of musk taken inwardly. He has since his first discovery practised this remedy upon a great number of his patients, and finds it to be the most efficacious medicine in that disorder. This is a new proof that there is no disease incident to the human frame but what nature has provided an ample remedy for, could we but discover it; unless we except some of those diseases which are brought on by intemperate and debauched habits.

P H I L A D E L P H I A, October 19.

On Friday last a large French ship arrived here from Havre-de-Grace, with 81 passengers, who are going to occupy a considerable tract of land in Kentucky. This vessel left France the 24th of August, and brings some vague accounts respecting European politics. Fell in with the British fleet in the channel, and counted 42 sail. The Spanish fleet was at sea, but not far from Cadiz. The duke of Orleans, who is very popular, and the elder Mirabeau, a strong republican, had attempted to seize upon the king's person, with the intention of putting the reins of government in the hands of the former. The issue of the prince de Condé's attempt in concert with the comte d'Artois to interest the king of Sardinia in favour of royalty, was not fully determined. Some confused account of an unsuccessful attempt of the younger Mirabeau in favour of aristocracy.

Extract of a letter from London, dated September 1, received by the September packet, arrived at New-York on Saturday last.

"The rumour of war is pretty strong to-day, the national assembly of France having voted their assistance in favour of Spain, as far as 40 sail of the line: Some people look on this as mere galconade; others, who pretend to see deeper, say, the French go to war (if they do so) with a view to bring about a counter-revolution, as it is the opinion that some who have been forward and sanguine in the present revolt, are disappointed and offended—I wish to see an alteration."

OS. 21: A private account by the last packet from England, says, "You may rely upon it as a certainty, that the British fleet now at sea have orders to fight the Spaniards, should they happen to fall in with them."—The same account mentions, that "Great-Britain had set a negotiation on foot with Spain, proffering an exchange of Gibraltar for the island of Porto-Rico in the West-Indies. It is thought that should the Spanish fleet receive a sound drubbing, the Dons will be more ready to make this sacrifice, as our possession of Gibraltar galls them exceedingly, and hurts their national pride more than any other circumstance whatever."

Extract of a letter from Indian Wheeling, dated in August, 1790.

"After a good deal of fatigue and hardship, I arrived at this place, in 21 days after I left you. I planted my corn the 10th of June, and by a remarkable early frost, had it entirely ruined, which has occasioned me still to be on expences for bread. The bears and wolves have been very troublesome since I arrived. I have got about thirty-eight acres of land cleared, under good fence, and about fifteen or sixteen acres in corn this season, which makes a beautiful appearance."

"The Indians have been very troublesome, both on Indian Wheeling and Short Creek, this season; they have cleared this creek entirely of hories, except mine, and one other horie. About the first of June, six of them were within ten rods of my house a little after dark, we set the dogs on them, and drove them out of the field. Immediately on the return of the dogs, I went to see whether they got the horses or not, but found them safe—they crossed the creek, at the upper end of my field; and going on the hills about one mile and a half from the house, they killed a cow, and remained there all night.—On the next morning, crossed the river into Virginia, but there being soon discovered, they returned, and went off, without any further damage being done."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Annapolis, to a correspondent in London.

"A most terrible earthquake has lately been experienced at Gibraltar, which has had a most dreadful effect on the works of that fortification—in a number of places it has fractured the solid rock, and indeed, seemingly some of the firmest parts of the fortification have tumbled with the greatest precipitance down the steep; this convulsion was attended with worse consequences on the water, as a number of shipping in that harbour, either drove on shore or flew against each other; the vessels careening, were not exempted from the horrible commotion, either being sunk by the quays, or flung to pieces by the violence of the surge."

S A V A N N A, September 23.

A letter from St. Mary's, dated the 10th instant received by a mercantile house in this city the 19th, contains the following intelligence, viz.

"We have the pleasure to inform you that the king of Spain has ordered the governors of the Floridas not to receive any negroes from the United States of America. An officer arrived here ten days past from the governor of East-Florida with a proclamation to this purport. Enclosed you have a copy of the governor's orders to his officers commanding on the frontiers, which you may publish, if you see fit, as coming from James Esqgrove, Esq; collector of St. Mary's, lest the information should be doubted."

By a royal schedule of the 17th of last May, his majesty has been pleased to declare, that the practice of giving freedom to the negroes from the United States, who should take refuge in Spanish territories, shall cease for the present; of which I give you notice, that you should so give to understand to any negroes who may seek protection on this frontier. St. Augustine, 23d August, 1790. (Signed)

JUAN NEPOMACENA DE QUESADA,
Governor East-Florida.

Directed,

To the commanding officers of St. Mary's River, Florida.

G E O R G E - T O W N, October 9.

We learn from Winchester, that some time in the last of September, an affray took place, some miles from that town, between a party of the French emigrants and the citizens; and that, contrary to the wish, and in opposition to the exertions of some of the Frenchmen, a few shots were exchanged, and three of each party wounded; though it is hoped not dangerously. However, we are happy to communicate that, as a proof of the concord and friendship which ought always to subsist between well disposed Americans and Frenchmen, the affair has been perfectly reconciled and done away; and the parties now see their folly, and most heartily regret that a contest should have arisen between persons who, in their cool moments, feel themselves allied to each other by the firmest ties of gratitude and friendship.

A letter from a gentleman in Scotland to his friend in Virginia, says—"We have a curious circumstance here of a soldier lass, who dressed herself in men's cloaths, and waited on a gentleman as a man servant one year; but her master having occasion to go near where her relations lived, she was afraid of being discovered—left him, and listed in the army, where she served eight years without being discovered, until she was wounded, when she was discharged from the service, and has a pension of fifteen pounds a year during her life, for the services she has rendered her country. She still wears men's cloaths."

"I will now tell you of two young women who had been disappointed in marriage, and being intimate, they revealed their minds to each other, and resolved to live as man and wife, in some place where they were not known. They drew lots who should be the man, the one it fell on assumed the name of James Han.—They then set out on their journey, and at last came to Epping, leased a house there, and kept an inn. James Han was 16, and his pretended wife 17 years old. They had a servant, but each performed the duties belonging to their station. They traded honestly, gained a good deal of money, were well respected, and lived together 34 years, till at last the wife died, about which time the discovery was made. James Han served in all the offices of the place, except constable, had been often foreman of juries, and was to have been church warden if the discovery had not been made."

A N N A P O L I S, October 28.

Extracts from the letter of a gentleman in London to his friend in this city, dated August 4th and 5th.

"The question of peace or war, partial or general, in Europe, appears just as undecided as it did three months ago."

"Meanwhile all the maritime nations continue to arm; and all except Russia to negotiate. Catherine supported her separate claims, even before her late victory in the Baltic, with a firmness and inflexibility that nothing could shake or move. Since her triumph of the 4th and 8th of July, when 7 Swedish ships of the line, 3 frigates, and 4 gun boats, with 7000 Swedes, and the whole of the baggage of the squadron, were wrested from the king of Sweden in effecting his escape from the bay of Wyburgh, it seems very improbable that her tone will be attenuated."

"From the substance of Mr. Grenville's letter to the lord mayor, one of two conclusions may be drawn—either that Spain means to avoid a war with Britain—or, that desirous to gain time, and finding negotiations for procrastination could not be entered upon, but by giving up the point of partial satisfaction previous to discussion—has given it up for an opportunity and occasion of creating delay, till the assistance she is to expect from France can be ascertained."

At a meeting of a number of the American commanders of vessels, now in the port of London, held at the Maryland Coffee-house, in Cornhill, on the 22d day of July, 1790, for the purpose of consulting upon the measures that it might be prudent for them to adopt, in order to alleviate the present situation of seamen here belonging to the United States of America, the following resolutions were moved and unanimously voted;

1st. THAT an American mariner in Great-Britain, in being exposed to all the rigour of British press-warrants—in being liable to the assaults and outrages of a British press-gang—and in being eventually liable to be compelled into a foreign service, (except such commander of the vessel from which he is thus forced, can trace him to that very ship, whether he is dragged for confinement, and will positively swear that he is native and subject of the United States) must be considered in an unsafe and truly alarming condition—a situation, not only inviting to a temporary violation, but hazarding a total subversion of his most precious rights.

2dly. That the consequences resulting from this unprotected situation of the said citizens, are so injurious to the feelings and detrimental to the interests of American mariners and commanders, that, in the opinion of those present, since no minister or consul of their nation is on the spot, to whom, under such difficulties, they might with more propriety resort with complaints—and for redress—it is expedient that they now have recourse to some other fit person of the same country, desiring him in their behalf to cause their grievances to be made known to the government of the United States.

3dly. That the thanks of this meeting be cordially given to John Brown Cutting, Esq; for those able and patriotic efforts, which have already much contributed, and by being continued, may, in the opinion of this meeting, still materially contribute to soften the disposition or procure the discharge of many American citizens, who have been, or now are unjustly imprisoned as subjects of this kingdom; and that he be, and hereby is, intreated to continue those efforts; and likewise that he be earnestly requested, on the part of this meeting, to convey to the government of the United States those facts touching the past and present situation of the American mariners here, which any of the American commanders have communicated or shall communicate to him for this purpose, together with such other truths pertinent to the subject as he may choose to acquire.

TWENTY DOLLARS Reward.
BROKE out of jail, in Prince-George's county, the 14th instant, two negro men, supposed to be between 25 and 30 years old each—One of these fellows is well clothed, about five feet nine or ten inches high, is very black, and writes a reputable hand; he says his name is ISAAC WHITLO, that he is the property of Mrs. Chapman, of Charles county, from whom he absconded about the 20th of September last, with an intention of going to some one of the northern states, where he should be entitled to his freedom.
The other fellow calls himself IGNATIUS SHORTER, says he was claimed by a Mr. Fenwick, of St. Mary's county, but that he is by birth entitled to his freedom; this fellow is, I suppose, about five feet seven or eight inches high, a very dark mulatto, and tolerable well made. Whoever secures the above two fellows in any jail, or brings them to the subscriber, shall be entitled to the above reward, including what the law allows, and all reasonable charges paid, and in proportion for apprehending either.

Curse be he that removeth his neighbour's landmark, and all the people shall say, AMEN.—Deuteronomy, ch. 28, ver. 18.

SOME time in the year 1779, or 1780, I commenced a suit of trespass, and ejectment, in the general court of the western shore, against a certain James Howard, son of Henry, of Anne-Arundel county, whose land adjoined to mine.—The said Howard pretended to claim part of my land, by the deed he claimed under, wherein the beginning was described to be at a certain heap of stones, made by his said father Henry; on running the lines of my land, in the year 1750, or thereabouts, the said James died before the suit was ended, after his death it went off the docket. I have very lately discovered that the aforesaid deed, by which the said Howard claimed part of my land, has been erased, and the beginning altered from the aforesaid heap of stones to a red oak tree within my lines, from the said heap of stones about 75 or 80 yards. If he the said James could have established his boundary at said red oak, he would have taken the water of my land, secured him from the trespass, taken away my improved meadow, thrown my lines to the south-west into a worn out old field, not worth one shilling per acre, and made me a trespasser, for which he had a suit against me at the same time. I have also examined the records of the county wherein his deed was recorded, and find that the said record is also erased, and the beginning made at the said red oak instead of the aforesaid heap of stones.—Part of the letter S, on the county records, is still perceivable.—NOTICE is hereby given, that I intend to petition the general assembly of Maryland, at their next meeting, to pass a law to amend the said records and deed agreeable to the original grant to the said James.

THIRTY DOLLARS Reward.

BROKE GAOL, last night, the two following negro men, viz. JEM, about five feet nine or ten inches high, well set; and had on, when he went away, a blue sailor's jacket, ofsnabrig shirt and trousers; he has lately been run away, and brought from Baltimore gaol; he then had a pair, and called himself Tom, and it is very likely he will obtain another, and change his cloaths and name, as he is an old offender, and as great a villain as ever lived; (he is the property of the subscriber.) JOE, about the same height of the other, had on an old check shirt, and ofsnabrig trousers, and has sundry other cloaths with him; they are both about twenty-two years of age, and Joe has a father at Saint George's, belonging to the honourable Richard Barnes, Esquire, and a mother, and perhaps other relations, about the mouth of Patuxent river, from whence or some other part of the lower end of this county, they will endeavour to escape by water to the eastern shore, or elsewhere. They were assisted in breaking out of gaol by some person or persons from without. The above reward will be given for bringing them to the gaol of the subscriber, and discovering their accomplices or accomplices, or twenty dollars for the above fellows alone.

P. FORD, Sheriff of St. Mary's county.

LOTTERY:

THE proprietor of which has for his object the disposal of a very valuable PLANTATION, containing 250 acres, or thereabouts, of choice land, beautifully and conveniently situated on the river Severn, within five miles of Annapolis, and eighteen of Baltimore-town, valued for the fertility of its soil, being adapted to every species of country produce.—There is about one hundred acres of said land cleared, and under good fence, on which is a good dwelling-house, with some useful out offices, a good orchard in full bearing, and a fine stream of water running through the same. The remainder of said land abound with heavy hickory, black oak and walnut.

It must be obvious to every person, that this scheme holds out more advantages to adventurers than any yet offered to the public, as no sum is sunk, but the purchase of said plantation, which sum constitutes the capital prize.

The proprietor further assures the public, that the said plantation, together with the house and out offices, cost him one hundred and fifty pounds, and upwards, over and above the sum annexed to it in the scheme; and pledges himself to make a good and lawful title of said land to the fortunate adventurer as soon as the drawing of said lottery is over; the remainder of the prizes to be paid as soon as drawn. The title-deed to be seen by applying to
