REMEMBER ME.

By P. M. Wetmore.

Things no chain of rarest worth
No cord from the deep sea—
No gem, long and within the earth,
To shine where it is those treasure waves;
To shine where it is those treasure waves;
A gift more precious far is mine
That sparkling gem from earth or sea,
The treasury of thought—'tis thine
The boon it asks—Remember me!
I may not here usurp the page,
To count the breath of flowing fame;
Enough for me in after days,
If in my memory dwell my name.
In after years, in distant climes,
When'er my future fate may be—
A cord to call back bygone time,
To gleam in memory's shrine—
Remember me! how few—how strong—
Those smiling words, that little specks
Which thought's uprose, what visions bring
To mind's eye's light—how strong—
May every chance bring joy to thee,
In life's bright, or sorrow's gloom,
In bliss or woe—Remember me!

PARENTAGE OF ROBERT BRUCE.

This great man—the saviour of Scotland—
Independence at a most dangerous crisis—
The son of Bruce, Lord of Anandale, by a lady who was Countess of Carrick in her own right. It appears that the first acquaintance of his parents and their subsequent marriage
took place through fortuitous circumstances,
so that his existence, and consequently the independence of his country, may be said to have depended upon more accident. The particulars are thus related by Mr. P. F. Tyt-er, in his late work, entitled "Scottish Worship," published as part of Murray's Family Library:—It appears that a short time after his return from the crusade, Bruce was riding
along the beautiful domain of Furnberry
Castle, the property of the widowed Countess of Carrick, who in consequence of the death of her husband, and become a ward of the crown. The noble Baron, however, if he were alive, an ancient historian, cannot be accused of having visited Furnberry with a view of throwing himself in the way of the Countess of Carrick; and, indeed, any idea that those days of jealous war ships
could have been highly dangerous. It happened, however, that the lady herself, whose pious and unassuming temper was not much
altered with the seclusion of a feudal castle,
came out to take the diversion of the
chase, accompanied by her women, huntsmen,
and falconers; and this day, a cavalier came suddenly upon her, as he pursued his way through the forest alone unarmed. The lady would have spurred his horse forward,
and would the encounter, but he found himself surrounded by the attendants; and the Countess herself riding up, and with a gentle violence, taking hold of the horse's reins, approached him in so sweet a tone for his
want of gallantry in flying from a lady's casualty, that Bruce, enamoured of her beauty,
forgot the risk which he ran, and suffered
himself to be led away in a kind of triumph
to Furnberry. He here remained for fifteen days, and the adventure concluded, as might have been anticipated, by his private marriage with the youthful Countess, without having obtained the concurrence of the king or any other relations. Alexander III., however, though at first indignant at this bold interference with the rights of the crown, was a merciful prince, and on the payment of a large feudal fine, extended his forgiveness
to Bruce. The eldest son of this marriage was the younger Earl of Carrick, and afterwards King of Scotland. The second was Edward Bruce, Lord of Galloway, who was killed at the battle of Bannockburn in 1314, and his son, the Countess of Carrick, who appears to have proved a faithful and affectionate wife, bore her husband three sons and seven daughters.

A PRETTY LARCENY.

Translated for the New York Times.
The art of appropriating to one's self the things of others, has some years past advanced to immense strides. Robbery is now
asked under forms so polite, and manners
so delicate, that the utmost prudence and attention are necessary to the merchant, stranger and traveller, and a deep course of study
is required to discover under masked appearances, ever threatening dangers. The following anecdote is illustrative of that degree of refinement to which the science of thieving
has attained.

Dr. —, one of our physicians, most celebrated for his knowledge, concerning the secrets of the mind, was visited one morning by a lady bordering upon forty years, pretty, and still blooming.
The equipage of the Countess of —
was rattling into the Dr.'s court yard.
She was immediately introduced, and entered in tears, sobbing out, "You behold, sir,
an unfortunate woman a prey to the deep-
anguish, I have a son, he is dear to me,

and as much so to my husband—he is our only son—

Hereupon came an additional flow of tears,
tears more plentiful than the classical A-ton-
ia shed over the tomb of Mausoleus. "Yes,
sir, and for some time past we have had terrible fears.... He has arrived at that age when the passions develop themselves.... Although we satisfy him upon every point—money, freedom—already has he shown at different periods, signs of derangement.... His monoma-nia is the more distressing as he is ever talking, in the midst of the incoherence of discourses, about jewels and diamonds which he has disposed of or given away. We imagine that he is madly smitten with some female,
but of little character no doubt, and in order
to satisfy her caprices, has contracted sundry heavy engagements.... This is at the same time nothing more than mere conjecture; his father and myself cannot light upon the means to divine his motive for this folly...."

"Well! Madam, bring your son here!"
"To-morrow, then, sir, at twelve o'clock!"
The Doctor smiled away, to conduct the Countess to her carriage. He noticed the coat of arms and the liveries.
The following morning the Countess alighted from her carriage at the shop of a celebrated jeweller, and after having for some time
looked at the price of a set of diamonds
worth 20,000 francs, she at last decided upon the purchase.

Then taking them up, and carefully drawing a purse from her reticule, she finds in it
no more than 10,000 francs in Bank notes;
these she at first displays, then returns to her purse again—Permit some one to accompany me home, I will show him the way, and my husband will pay, for I have not the entire sum about me at present."

The jeweller made a sign to a young man who jumped from behind the counter, vastly proud to enter the carriage of a Countess.
They arrived at the Doctor's.

The lady enters in a great hurry, and says,
to the man of the house, "I am, my son, I shall leave you." The lady enters, the Countess resumes her seat, the carriage rolls quietly along, and the horses are soon forced into a gallop.

"Well! young gentleman," spoke the Doctor, you are acquainted with the nature of this interview—what is the result—what is the matter with your countess, is passing in that young head of yours?"

"What is passing in my head? nothing, Sir;
but here is the countess, made out for that set of diamonds."

"I shall examine into that.... 'Tis right,"
said the Doctor, gently pushing aside the account, "I know, I know."

"If you are acquainted with the signature
it remains then not to pay me."

"There, there! be quiet! your diamond—
where did you obtain them? what have you done with the countess? speak, don't be afraid—Countess?"

"Your business, Sir, is to count me down 30,000 francs!"

"And indeed, why?"

"How, why? exclaimed the young man, his eyes glistening."

"Yet why should I pay you?"

"Because the Countess herself received the diamonds from our shop."

"Good! we shall see into it; who is this lady, the Countess?"

"Your wife!" and he again thrust forward
the villainous account.

"But young man, learn then that I am a physician and have the happiness to be a widower!"
On hearing this the young jeweller became infatuated, and the doctor summoning his domestics sat him down hard and fast. The poor youth then went into a towering passion.
He called out thieves! murder! assassination!
&c.

In about a quarter of an hour he again became calm and explained matters as precisely as possible. The son of Esculapius was soon enlightened. From any search made to discover this most singular, so ingenious,
and finished, no clue has ever transpired.
The equipage, Countess, liveries, all have disappeared. Will not this account remain as an immortal among the annals of jewelry and petty larceny?

DIS-ORDANT TESTIMONY.

P has there is truly an aspect under which human nature can be viewed, much more revealing than the discordance of testimony given in Courts of Justice, under all the same forms, and with all the solemnity of an awful appeal to the Omnipotent Ruler of the Universe. James acting under the most conscientious motives, are hence liable to give a verdict which may not be innocent and upright
men, not merely of property, but of life.
They have no means of detecting perjury, unless in cases of gross contradiction—and it is too awfully true, that a hardened wretch,
with a front of Freristes, will narrate a story,
totally false, with more apparent consistency
and correctness, than a timid, inexperienced man can give to a narrative of facts, that have, even recently, passed under the examination of the senses, and still more so of events long past and gone.

I was struck with this melancholy train of ideas, by the perusal of the trial of General Goussell, a British officer, for an assault, in which evidence was brought forward of the most contradictory kind. And the contradiction was not of that description to which honest men are liable, through incorrect

views, or from regarding an object through totally different media. No. There were on one side or the other, the most absolute and unqualified perjury.

The general was greatly embarrassed in his circumstances. A warrant had been taken out against him, for a debt of £130. Five sheriff's officers went to execute the writ.
The General fired two pistols at them, and
was knocked down and disabled, while he was preparing to fire the third. For this assault upon the officers, he was prosecuted.
The point at issue was, whether the General's room was locked, or whether he had been outside the door, and on his retreat to the room, had been so closely followed by one of the officers, that the latter had prevented him
from locking the door. All the officers swore positively that the General had come to the top of the stairs—Hyde, the first of their bodily, had informed him of the warrant, and had followed him so closely as to get his leg and thigh inside the door—that Hyde had in this situation, seized him by the shoulder, and that the General had fired his pistols in succession thro' the door—that after the second
had been fired, Hyde forced his way in, and seized him—and moreover, that the officers
had no other weapons than sticks.

But mark the other side of the story.—The General's servants, who were in his room
when the officers wrapped at the door, and who left it one after the other, swore positively, that each time the door was locked after them; that the Gen. did not leave his room; that the door was broken open, and the box which contained the butt of the lock forced away.—In addition to this evidence, Mrs.
May, the lady with whom the General had been, deposed that Hyde had taken a domestic by the collar, and had taken her to the purpose of employing it on the General; and the servants swore that they threatened them
with that pistol when they attempted to stop him and his colleagues on the stairs. Several persons who had carefully examined the hole
made by the ball in the door and in the wall,
deposed, that from the direction of the ball,
it was impossible the door could have been open.—The General was acquitted.

GERMAN LEGENDS.

We have before drawn copiously from the European correspondence of the Albany
Evening Journal, which is known to proceed
from the pen of the Hon. William A. Sewall, the wing commander for governor of N. York.
The following legend, illustrative of the German love of the marvellous, is contained in his last published letter.

Legend of the Dachenfels.

An old woman, says the tradition, the cavern
which is seen on the summit of Dachenfels
was the retreat of a monstrous dragon
to whom the neighbouring inhabitants respected their human and animal sacrifices.
For centuries they selected prisoners of war.

One day they found among the captives a young lady of one of the best families of the country and who had been educated in the Christian religion. So great was her beauty that the two rival chiefs of the victors arranged a dispute between them as to the reward
of their valor. The senators of the council decided that she should be offered to the dragon, to the end that her beauty might no longer
produce dissension among the chiefs.—
The intended victim was clothed in white,
crowned with flowers and conducted to the side of the mountain and bound to a tree, before which a stone served for an altar. A great multitude assembled to witness the terrible spectacle of the maiden decouped by the dragon. But among them all there were very few so insensible as not to compassionate the hard fate of the maiden who remained calm
and collected, with her eyes steadfastly fixed on high. At the dawn of day the animal left the cavern and extended his claws towards the altar where he was accustomed to find his horrible sacrifice. The young Christian was unmoved, she drew from her bosom the image
of her Saviour upon the cross and presented it at the first approach of the beast. The animal fled affrighted and uttering dreadful cries
threw himself into the most profound retreat
of the woods whence he never returned.

The people astonished by the miraculous
deliverance, pressed around the young Christian, broke her bonds and regarded with admiration the crucifix. The captive instructed them in her firm reliance upon the cross
and the power of the God whom she adored.
They prostrated themselves at her feet and prayed her to return to her own people, and send them a priest who could instruct and baptize them in her miraculous faith. Thus, (adds the tradition) the Drapenche (or cave
of the dragon) became the first receptacle
of the true faith in these Cantons, and a chapel
was erected in the place where had stood the stone which served as an altar to the Dragon.

This tradition, if genuine, is one among a thousand evidences that the early preachers
of christianity availed themselves of the superstitious credulity of the Pagans; and relied upon other miracles besides those well authenticated in the holy gospels. The Legend of the Stromberg is less improbable if not equally instructive.

Legend of the Stromberg.

Didier de Schwarzeneck was a chevalier
of the olden times, who resided not far from the seven mountains. He set out for the crusades in the Holy Land and went to Spire, where he met St. Bernard. In passing he entered the Argensfels, and was well received by its Lord, an old Knight, who had two daughters. Bertha the youngest, immediately won his heart by her beauty, grace and sweetness of temper. She appeared by no means insensible to the mien and person of Didier, and it was early discovered that she was melancholy when he had left the Argen-fels. Didier's heart was no longer as light as when he entered the Castle. He carried engraven upon his memory the traits of his young beloved, and under the palm trees of Asia
thought only of the oaks of the Rhine, and the fair Bertha of Argensfels. At length he was taken prisoner, and during his captivity
he made a vow that he would build a church
if ever he should regain his liberty and see again his native land. The town of the Saracens was at length taken after a long siege,
and Didier was delivered from his chains.

Then he desired nothing so much as to fulfil his vow and see once more the fair Bertha.
His happiness was at its height when he landed at Venice and retraced his way along the Bank of the Rine, measuring without delay
the road to Argensfels. But he saw at a distance only mouldering ruins in the place of the high towers and walls of the castle. His heart beat as his eyes rested only upon those melancholy traces of the castle. Grass was already growing upon the ruins, and birds of prey had built their nests in the crevices of the half fallen walls. A cold peasant emerged from the neighbouring grove and recommended to him now the entrance of the old knight
had supposed and burned the castle, whilst its superannuated lord, fell bravely defending it; but the peasant could not tell how the daughters had escaped, and no person knew whither they had gone. On hearing this ac-cusal, Didier returned to his own castle, when now seemed to him even more gloomy than the ruins of the Argensfels. He regretted that he had not found death in the holy wars
of Palestine.

At length he resolved to search out the most gloomy retreat in the waste country, and there to build the church which he had made
a vow to erect, and then to construct a cell
in which he would spend his days as a hermit.
Bent on this purpose, he traversed the thickest recesses of the forest, and reached, without knowing how, the Stromberg, crowned with trees to its very summit. In the deepest recess he discovered a small cell. Near it was a cross of stone, and before the cross
a recluse knelt in profound meditation and prayer. It was Bertha. He could with difficulty contain the joy which he felt at this unexpected interview. The unfortunate hermit of the Stromberg had, with her sister, escaped the clutches of her father given as the commencement of the siege, under the safe conduct of an old squire had escaped by a subterranean path unknown to the enemy,
and found an asylum in the cabin of a collier.
Having learned the death of their father and
the sinking of the castle, the daughters sold their jewels, built this cell, planted a garden
around it and gave themselves up for the remainder of their days to lives of solitude and devotion. Didier's eloquence was so successful that Bertha in a short time threw aside
her weeds, became his wife, and accompanied him to his castle. But her sister refused to follow them, and ever again upon the world.
Didier caused a more convenient dwelling to be built for her and a small church, where yet rest the ashes of the pious recluse.

I omit with much regret other legends of the Seven Mountains and proceed with my slow voyage up the Rhine. But you must be content to give me time. Adieu.

INTERESTING RELIC.

It is not generally known that the remains of Capt. Cook's ship, the "Endeavour," are now lying in the harbour of Newport. This was the ship which carried out the celebrated Sir Joseph Banks, and the great Swedish naturalist Dr. Solander, a well known scientific gentleman of New York. Dr. John Francis,
during the last summer, obtained a piece of one of her timbers with the view of having it made into small boxes to be distributed among the most eminent scientific societies in Europe and America.

The history of the old "Endeavour" is as follows:—In 1768, Captain Cook was appointed to her command, and she was destined to convey Sir Joseph Banks and Dr. Solander to the Pacific Ocean, to make observations on the transit of Venus. She sailed in June of that year. The transit of Venus (1769, June
3) was advantageously observed at Otaheite;
the neighbouring islands were explored, and Cook then sailed for New Zealand, where he arrived in October. After an examination for six months of the shore of the islands, he took his departure for New Holland, the eastern coast of which he surveyed, and on his return to England was promoted from Lieutenant in the Navy to the rank of Master and Commander. The "Endeavour" was purchased for a whaling vessel, and her ultimate destiny
was to deposit her bones in the waters of Newport harbour, where they still lie as before observed. Their place of deposit is opposite to, and not very remote from, the wharf of Mr. Charles Thurston, and they constitute one of the many interesting associations connected with the ancient capital of Rhode Island. The subject is deserving the attention of our Historical society.—*Prov.

A NEWPORT VISITER.

A BURMESE DRAWING ROOM.

This was the day appointed for the ladies of the Burman grandees to pay their homage to the Queen, to make presents, and "ask pardon" for past transgressions, in the same way
as their husbands had before done of his majesty. We were anxious to see a part at least of the ceremonies of a Burmese drawing room
and accordingly passed by the palace on our return home. A great number of state equipages, that is to say, of palanquins, were waiting at the gate, and with them the ladies'
female attendants, scarcely any of whom were admitted into the palace. These were all in dresses of ceremony for the occasion,
and accommodated under temporary sheds thrown up for their reception. Some of the gentlemen who stayed longer than myself saw
a number of the ladies themselves coming out
in their court dresses, the most remarkable
part of which is a coronet of gold and black velvet. In all this every thing was public and open. The ladies wore no veils, and in short no attempt was made at concealment in any way, a circumstance in the manners of the Burmans which distinguishes them in the Western India, but in which they agree with the Siamese, and in a good measure with the Cochin Chinese also. I am not sure after all that the Burmese ladies gain much by this freedom, for I strongly suspect that the sex
is upon the whole treated with less delicacy
and consideration than in Mohammedan and Hindoo countries, where the most absolute seclusion is insisted upon.

A SHORT RIDE.

A ride to the city now, is a thing so common, it is hardly mentioned. A few years ago, it was not so; then we had the stage two or three times a week; with drivers and horses, par excellence, that would carry us to the city between sunrise and sun setting—
over a road elegantly diversified with hills, pragurines and mud-holes. Now, you jump
into splendid rail road coaches, and singing,
talking or sleeping, are whirled into the city
in about three hours and a half! So much for the progress of improvement.

At 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning, the 23d instant, we mounted the top of a rail road coach, for Philadelphia. The bell over the car house, 3 minutes before, had told the hour for starting had arrived. Jehu cracks his whip, the horses stretch their chains, and swift as the wing, or as fast as a breeze of gallant horses can carry us, we are out of sight
in a flash. Every thing moves regular as clock work, and the car skims over the earth,
like a swan on the bosom of the waters. In fact and mild weather, the outside seats are the most pleasant; to those, at least, who have to catch a view of the country through which the road passes. The scenery in many places is picturesque and beautiful; in some, however, granite and to some extent, does not lose its interest from being seen frequently. The country is ever changing—some hills or valleys—the same fields and woods, are alternately packed off in the green waves of spring,
the mellow openness of autumn, or the sombre age of winter. There is one view of the Great Valley, about 3 miles from our borough, which is surpassingly beautiful. While our car passes rapidly along, you catch a noble
view of extensive fertile farms for 3 or 4 miles, rising with a gentle ascent up the southern side of the Valley Hill, crowned with white houses, large barns, with flocks of sheep cattle browsing on the thousand hills;
Gouk's mill, and his large white house,
down in the depth of the Valley, are distinctly visible.

An hour brings you to the Green Tree, kept
by ex Sheriff Jones, and ten minutes more to the Paoli; at each of which places, old acquaintances rarely fail to stop—sure of meeting with a familiar and hospitable reception.
Fifteen miles from West Chester, changed
horses; met passengers car going towards Lancaster; and between this place and Philadelphia, met a dozen others, bound for West Chester, Lancaster and Columbia; some of them having loads and several on their cars.

At 11, arrived at the Inclined Plane. Here is stationed an engine for letting the cars up and down. The horses were unhitched and the cars attached to a huge rope, which carried them gradually down, apparently with the greatest ease. Numerous—the road or nervous—through fear, walk down the plane, but this seems unnecessary. The engine is a beautiful piece of mechanism, and kept in excellent order. The view of the Schuylkill, of the lofty trees and houses on its banks, is elegant, from the top of the plane.
The length of the plane is about half a mile,
and the rise, we believe, nearly 300 feet.

From the plane, the rail road winds along the banks of the Schuylkill. The scenery is very interesting, you have a view of the summer houses of Pratt's Garden, of the Penitentiary, and of the approaching city. At 11 o'clock, you are landed in Broad street,
crowned with cars—and from thence, in an omnibus, are taken to various parts of the city. The Exchange is truly a superb building. There are few such in the Union. It is

ESCAPE OF BONAPARTE.
It is generally known that a vessel was
...to be built at Batavia, by the re-
...Johnson the smuggler, for the pur-
...Bonaparte from the Isle of
...The vessel was about ninety
...and of the burthen of one hundred
...was built of half inch plank, the
...two-inch planks was placed in a
...position. These planks were so
...and cemented together, that the
...of the sides of the vessel did not
...of an ordinary washing tub. Th-
...was so contrived that they could be
...to a level with the deck, and th-

...whole might be sunk in shallow water with the
...crew on board without danger. Ample means
...were provided for supplying the vessel with
...fresh air. The plan was, to sail up at night,
...within a short distance from St. Helena, and
...sink the vessel until the next or subsequent
...night: when Bonaparte would be enabled to
...make his escape to the beach, at which time
...the vessel was to be raised, Bonaparte to get
...on board, and sail away in the dark. It hap...pened, however, that Bonaparte died before
...the vessel was quite finished, and it is a cu...rious coincidence that the vessel was to be
...coppered the very day the news of his death
...arrived. Johnson was to receive £40,000 as ...soon as the vessel got into blue water, exclu-
...sive of the reward to be given in case the en...terprise succeeded.
...This Johnson had previously offered his
...services to the Admiralty, and affirmed that
...he could blow up any ship without doing any
...hurt. Accordingly, a trial was given him in
...the Thames accompanied by a boatwain of
...one of his Majesty's ships who had been married
...only a week before, in a boat of similar con...struction to the one before described, to a
...barge moored in the middle of the stream.
...They sunk their boat, made fast the torpe-
...do to the bottom of the barge, and lighted the
...match. Johnson then perceived that his vessel
...remained fast, having got (as the sailors
...express it) athwart hawse of the barge. Up-
...on which he pulled out his watch, and having
...looked at it attentively, told the boatwain
...that he had only two minutes to live. Upon
...this the boatwain began to make lamenta-
...tions: "Oh my poor Nancy!" said he, "What
...will she say?" "A vast blundering," said John-
...son, "I'll give your jacket, and be ready to stuff
...it into the hawse hole, while I cut the cable."
...Upon saying this, Johnson seized a knife, and
...cut the cable. The boatwain studied his jack-
...et into the hole, and they got out of the torpe-
...do, which blew up the barge.

...Turks are beginning to lose their prejudices
...with respect to sanitary precautions. They
...have recourse to European fumigation which

...opted, at least by the higher circles and
...most of the ministers of the Porte. The num-

...indicates, it will, nevertheless, contain all
...articles of interest to its patrons which appear
...in foreign Magazines.
...Extensive preparations have been entered
...into, both with artists and authors, to furnish
...from all parts of the Union, drawings and il...lustrations of every subject of interest, which
...the publishers confidently believe will enable ...them to issue a work honourable to its title,
...and acceptable to the American People.
...The first number of the American Maga...zine, illustrated with upwards of twenty
...splendid engravings, will appear on or before
...the first of September, and be continued
...monthly containing between forty and fifty
...imperial octavo pages, and be furnished at the
...low price of two dollars per annum. It will ...comprise—
...Portraits and Biographical Sketches of dis-
...tinguished Americans; Views of Public Build-
...ings, Monuments and Improvements; Land...scape Scenery; the boundless variety and
...beauty of which, in this country, will form an
...unending source of instruction and gratifica-

TOWN MEETING.

At a meeting of the citizens of Baltimore, convened at the Exchange, in pursuance of public notice given by the Mayor, at the request of "The Convention appointed to promote the trade and commercial interests of Baltimore," for the purpose of considering the proceedings of a meeting held in Cumberland, Allegany county, in relation to the extension of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal:

JESSE HUNT, Esq. Mayor of the city, was called to the Chair, and JOHN S. HOLLINS and BENJAMIN I. COHEN, appointed Secretaries.

The objects of the meeting were then stated by CHARLES F. MATER, Esq. with appropriate and impressive remarks, expressive of the deep interest which the citizens of Baltimore feel in the progress and completion of the Canal and such other works of national character as will advance the welfare of Maryland and her sister States; and at the conclusion of his remarks he submitted the following preamble and resolutions, which, being considered, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, it has been declared to be expedient by a meeting of the citizens of Allegany county, recently convened at Cumberland, that a Convention should be held in the city of Baltimore, at 10 o'clock, A. M. on the second Monday, the 8th day of December next, for the purpose of considering and adopting such measures as may seem most likely to cause the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to be soon finished, and such other works of national character to be undertaken as may advance the welfare of Maryland and her sister States; and whereas the inhabitants of this city feel that they have a deep and direct interest, in common with the people of Virginia, Pennsylvania, and the Western States, in the construction of such works, and the completion of that Canal, and desire that the opinions and wishes of the citizens of so large a portion of this Union should be expressed in a manner as explicit and authentic as to entitle them to the highest and most deferential consideration by all persons in authority—and to insure the triumph of those opinions and the early fulfillment of those wishes: Therefore it is by this meeting

1. Resolved, That we highly approve of the proceedings of our fellow citizens of Allegany county, and cordially unite in recommending that a Convention be held in this city, at 10 A. M. on the 8th day of December next, to be formed of three or more delegates from the towns, cities and counties of the District of Columbia, and several States that may find it convenient to be represented therein, and that feel an interest in the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and the construction of such other works of National character as may advance the welfare of Maryland and her sister States, for the purpose of considering and adopting such measures as shall seem most likely to ensure the early completion of the Canal, and the construction of such other works.

2. Resolved, That a delegation of twenty-five citizens, the Mayor to be one, be appointed by the chair to represent this city in said Convention, and that they have power to fill any vacancy, to add to their number, and to provide suitable accommodations for said Convention.

3. Resolved, That a committee of correspondence, to consist of said delegation and fifty citizens, to be named by the chair, be appointed and charged with the duty of publishing and communicating these proceedings to such persons as may be zealous and influential in promoting the views of this meeting, and of inviting their prompt and cordial cooperation.

4. Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be forwarded for publication, in the several newspapers printed in Maryland, the District of Columbia, the States of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi and the Territories of Michigan and Arkansas.

DELEGATION.

The following citizens have been appointed and constitute the Delegation, to represent this city in the proposed general convention: Wm. Patterson, S. C. Jenkins, Robert Oliver, Wm. Krebs, R. B. Taney, J. V. L. McMahon, James Corner, Charles F. Mayer, George Winchester, John S. Hollins, P. E. Thomas, Samuel Jones, Matthew Bennett, Rezin Wight, Jacob Albert, Joseph Toddhunter, U. S. Heath, Samuel Moore, Wm. Hubbard, B. C. Howard, J. I. Cohen, Jr., David Stewart, Solomon Etting, James Carroll, B. I. Sanders.

COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

The following citizens have been appointed and constitute the Committee of Correspondence:

Isaac McKim, Samuel House, James P. Heath, Charles M. Keyser, Alex. Friddle, Isaac Reynolds, Joseph Taylor, John Nelson, Archibald George, Hugh Boyle, James Biays, Wm. H. Marriott, J. P. Erskine, George Brown, Felix Jenkins, Isaac Tyson, Walter Price, Nathan Sheppard, Basil S. Elder, Archibald Stirling, Andrew Aldridge, J. W. Keirle, A. Miltenberger, James Power, John Gibson, Saml. D. Walker, Jacob G. Davies, G. B. Wilson, William Jenkins, Joseph K. Stapleton, A. G. Cole, Samuel Hoffman, Hugh Birkhead, John C. Rau, William Boas, Chas. D. Slingloff.

Wm. Crawford, Jr., John Landstreet, Christian Keener, Thomas Baltzell, George R. Mosher, Wm. Stewart, John Kettlewell, H. Niles, Wm. Ponder, The delegates above named, and

The Committee of Correspondence are requested to meet at the City Hall on Monday, the 10th inst. at 4 o'clock, P. M. JESSE HUNT, Chairman.

JOHN S. HOLLINS, } Secretaries.
BENJAMIN I. COHEN, }

Baltimore, 8th Nov. 1854.

From the New York Times.

We have the gratification of presenting our readers with further returns, which are of the same cheering tenor, with those before received. It seems that the good cause has everywhere prospered, and opposition has been overthrown at all points. The causes which at the spring elections deluded so many sincere and upright republicans have ceased to operate, and as the clouds of error were dissipated, they returned to their former political attachments, and now once more united, the party enjoys its wonted ascendancy. It will be undisputed for years to come. The principles of republicanism must and will always prevail.

MEMBERS OF CONGRESS.

New York City and County.

Cambreleg, 19,019
C. P. White, 18,983
John McKeon, 18,870
Ely Moore, 18,552
O. Hoffman, 16,822
G. Verplanck, 16,806
J. G. King, 16,642
D. Selden, 16,598

Majority of our lowest Candidate, over the Bank Candidate's highest 1720.

Mr. Cambreleg's majority over Selden, 2,421.

In the 58 counties heard from, and given below, Gov. Marcy's majority is 19,629. In the remaining 17 counties (including the unfilled district) Mr. Seward may have a majority of 4000, probably 5000. So that Gov. Marcy's majority in the state will be from twelve to sixteen thousand.

Of the twenty-seven members already ascertained to be elected to the next Congress, (exclusive of Messrs. Morgan and Ferris, elected to fill vacancies in the present Congress) twenty-five are democratic friends of the administration, the firm advocates of the measures by which our patriotic President has rescued the country from the thrall of an Aristocratic Moneyed Power, and the uncompromising opponents of the Bank or of any Bank.

In the remaining districts the election of four additional republican members may be counted upon; and possibly three others.

The election of the republican candidates for the senate in the 1st, 2d, 3d, 5th, 6th and 7th districts we believe is not questioned. In the 4th with the returns already received, the prospect is in our favour. Montgomery, Warren, Saratoga, and Clinton have given an aggregate democratic majority of about 20,500; the only offset is Washington, 15,000; which leaves the republican candidates 559 ahead, and St. Lawrence estimated to give 500 republican majority, and Essex and Franklin estimated at 750 federal, to be heard from. So that in all probability the republican candidate will be elected in seven of the eight senate districts.

We have only at this moment time to say, that upon a result so auspicious to the true interests of the country, and the permanent ascendancy of the democracy, we congratulate our republican friends throughout the State, to whom the cause of correct principles and of free government, every where, owes so much.

THE CHOLERA.

We are happy to learn from several respectable physicians that the cholera has greatly abated in this city since Sunday last. It is certain that it has proved fatal in most cases, and that we have lost some of our most respectable citizens; but rumour so much exaggerated the number of cases as to have created great alarm for the last week. The board of health report twenty-nine deaths by this disease during the past week, most of which occurred on Friday and Saturday. We have great hopes that our unwelcome visitor has finally departed, as we yesterday heard of no new case, and the atmosphere is bracing and apparently healthy. But, it is absolutely necessary that people should yet be careful in their diet, and abstain from all excesses.

FOREIGN.

From the New-York Journal of Commerce.

SEVEN DAYS LATER FROM FRANCE.

By the packet ship Francis Dupau, Capt. Robinson, we have Paris and Havre papers both to the evening of Oct. 7th.

In Nykoping, Sweden, official accounts give 15 deaths by cholera, out of every 100 inhabitants. Entire families have been swept away.

On the 29th September, the tower at Avignon, called La Vice-Gerence, fell with a tremendous crash. It was anterior in date to the Palace of the Popes, and for a long time had been in a very dilapidated state.

The Berlin State Gazette of the 24th inst. states that at a calamitous fire which entirely destroyed the small Prussian town of Tutz, in the Marienwerder district, twenty-one men fell a prey to the flames, and thirty others are now lying in a state of great danger from severe burning. The population of the town consisted of 1,000 persons who have only escaped with their lives, all their goods and property having been consumed.

PARIS, Oct. 6.

The following telegraphic despatch from Bayonne, dated Madrid, Sept. 30, was received yesterday:

The Ambassador of France at the Court of Spain to the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

The Chamber of Procuradores in its sitting this day has, contrary to the recommendation of its Committee, divided the debt into active and passive, in the proportion of two thirds for the active part, and one third for the passive.

A telegraphic dispatch from Bayonne, received on Saturday, announces that there was expected shortly at Pampeluna, a reinforcement of 10,000 men, composed of three battalions and two regiments of the Royal Guard.

Bayonne, Sept. 29th.
We learn from an unquestionable authority, that the Queen's troops attacked the Carlists yesterday near the town of Almandaz. The latter were put to the rout, and closely pursued. The Queen's troops took several prisoners. Every thing seemed to be going on badly at Elisondo for the Queen's cause.

In another quarter the Queen's General, Espartero, who, by his position before Bilbao, had prevented the Carlists from entering that town when it was otherwise without the means of defence, defeated the Biscayan band of insurgents at Mengua, on the 25th and 26th of Sept. He has likewise taken several of their chiefs prisoners; among others, the parish priest Garey, who was brought before a Court-Martial, but the result is not yet known.

All the booty of Villarcayo were retaken, as well as the papers of Junta, which dared to call itself Junta of Castille. Being continually pursued, the Junta of Navarre has returned to Etchalar. Another battle has been fought not far from the Bidassoa, with 400 insurgents, who endeavoured to carry off a convoy of 500,000fr. sent towards Pampeluna. The Carlists were put to flight. However, in order not to be exposed to danger during the rest of the way, the convoy returned, and is now at Irun, whence it will set out again to-morrow with a numerous escort. Lorenzo has committed a fault if he really collected the town of Saldias to a few troops, the environs of which are filled with Carlists bands. We are assured that the insurgents have recaptured and burned Saldias. This, however, is not certain; but deplorable as it would be, it would be of little importance in a military point of view.

PORTUGAL.

Lisbon, Oct. 4.

Lieutenant West, the Commander of the African steamer, landed at Falmouth on Thursday with a mail and despatches from Lisbon, having left the steamer of the Manacles in a dense fog. He left Lisbon on Saturday last, and brings the particulars of the death of Don Pedro. Some assassinations had taken place, but the country was quiet when the African left. The African brings home 115,000 sovereigns.

From the Private Correspondence of the Times.

Lisbon, Sept. 27.

A marked improvement in health, the general precursor of death in such maladies, was visible to most of his attendants early that morning, and even the empress indulged a hope that he might get through. The Royal sufferer himself thought differently, because, about 8 o'clock, A. M. he sent for the Queen, and told her that as a dying father, he had a request to make to her, viz: that after he should have paid the debt of nature a decree should be issued, setting at liberty all prisoners confined for political and civil offences, without exception; which, of course, she faithfully promised to do. He was quite sensible nearly to the last, and appeared to be perfectly resigned to his fate, and happy at the actual position of affairs, and tranquility of the country.

He requested that his funeral might not be that of a royal personage, but simply that of Commander-in-Chief of the Portuguese armies, and that of his remains, or, at all events his heart, might be conveyed for interment to Oporto, the scene of his glories. It appears that, ever since the 29th of August he had a presentiment that he would not live the month of September out, and that, most likely, he would expire on the 21st; so much so, that he communicated it to the Empress, and made her promise that she would not leave him a minute, and that she should attend him as his only nurse, etc, which her Majesty has done with exemplary and soothing assiduity. The people seem to regret him much. Every respectable person whom you meet is voluntarily attired in mourning.

GREECE.

A letter from Nafplia, dated September 3d, says—It is all over with the rebels; a single battalion has entirely destroyed their whole army. It is true that this battalion made use of their bayonets and swords, which is an unusual mode of fighting in Greece. The Romeliste dalicari attacked the Moreots, killed 80, wounded 70, and took 50 prisoners with three standards, and we have just received positive intelligence that one of the chiefs of these armed bands has been arrested.

FROM ENGLAND.

The North America, Capt Dixey, arrived from Liverpool, her day of sailing the 1st of October, and subsequently the London packet ship Philadelphia, Capt Morgan, which sailed from Portsmouth on the 8th of October. Our files are to the 7th of that month, inclusive.

[N. Y. Com.]

ENGLAND.

The failure of Mr. Raikes Governor of the Bank of England, (mentioned yesterday via Paris) is attributed to speculations on the Stock Exchange, but it is said that this failure is not of any importance whatever, and that beyond the mere holding of the great official situation of Governor of that Bank, it has been a misfortune of every day occurrence. He was not at all indebted to the institution over which he presided nor did he ever avail himself of a single opportunity to receive pecuniary accommodation or assistance from that corporation.

Our Minister to Russia, the Hon. W. Wilkins took his departure from London to Hamburg on the 1st of October, in company with Mr. Canning and the Marquis of Douro, son of the Duke of Wellington.

A large quantity of certificates of stock in the Bank of the United States, to the amount of £18,000 sterling was lately missing from the counting house of the Messrs. Rothchild. They were subsequently discovered, says the Times in Paris, in a parcel of French Rentes which in the hurry of leaving London for Paris, a short time since, they travelled, being of very small bulk, in the pocket of the head of the house himself.

LONDON, Oct. 7th.—The investigation into the affairs of Mr. Raikes, the late Governor of the Bank, which must necessarily be conducted by his creditors is looked forward to with much curiosity in the city. The qualifications for governor is 4,000l. Bank Stock, nearly 9,000l. and an explanation will have to be required how a man notoriously incompetent for some years, could contrive to hold such qualification, of whom it was purchased in the first instance, and to whom he sold it on his resignation, which is the formal mode of disqualifying. On these points the directors cannot decline to give information, to which their access is so easy, and which is current in some quarters, of having been connived at the retention of so important an office by Mr. Raikes without a legal qualification. If they knew of this, which is not however to be affirmed without due investigation, they have made themselves parties to a species of fraud on the public, and may be said to be the cause of these losses sustained by persons not in the secret, and who gave credit to Mr. Raikes entirely through their credence in his official character. The mode of proceeding which the creditors intend to adopt has not yet transpired.

Mr. Green who made his 100th accession more than seven years ago, and has been looking ever since, together with a friend, descended again from Sunderland, the last week in September. The were aloft about an hour, and descended in the water three miles from land. Being seated in the car covered with oil cloth, they remained some time until a pilot boat relieved them. The balloon was inflated, and the wind being on the boat was towed by the balloon, and landed a little south of Shields.

IRELAND.

Great ravages have been made by the cholera in the neighbourhood of Kilkenny. The Mayo Constitution says that entire families had been carried off, and the havoc had been so dreadful that the place was totally deserted. The corn and potatoes were neglected, and as there was no person to look after anything, the cattle were allowed to roam indiscriminately and to destroy every thing. The solitude, awe, and consternation gave the country the appearance of a place deserted or repopulated by the plague.

FRANCE.

The most important intelligence from the country is the commercial embarrassment caused by numerous failures of commercial houses. The Courier Francais announces that within the last two days the commerce of Paris has been greatly agitated by the failure of three first-rate commission houses. The amount of their debts is said to be nearly three millions of francs. In consequence of these disasters, which must have an effect on secondary firms, the bankers in the habit of discounting commercial bills, have very much circumscribed their discounts, and a complete crisis is expected at the end of the year. The panic is come to such a pitch that several of the first banking houses have almost entirely refused to make any advances upon bills which fall due in December.

The Journal des Tissus says on this subject—"The whole of the merchants in the quarter of the Rue du Sentier and the Rue du Gros Chenet, have, for the last two days, been seriously occupied with the failure of a house which carried on a very extensive business with England and America. Its debt in Paris amount in all to 1,000,000 fr. and the quarters above mentioned to 300,000 fr. One house alone in the Rue du Sentier, being in painted cloths, is a creditor for 500,000 fr. The rest of the sufferers in Paris are divided between the Quarter of the Rue de la Bourdonnais and the Rue St. Denis. The whole amount owing by this house is said to be not less than two millions of francs, half of which is due at St. Etienne and Lyons. It is at the same time reported, that the assets are next to nothing in comparison with its debts."

The inauguration of the Statute of Cornillon was to take place at Rouen on the 10th of October.

SPAIN.

The Queen Regent of Spain is likely find a much more formidable enemy in authority in her so much vaunted Cortes, than in the arms of her son Don Carlos. Christine's fate is here a question of life and death. She, it would seem, has no chance but surrender of her power to the Pretender, a tenure of it under the full control and vigilant surveillance of the Chamber of Procuradores—an alternative in which we cannot see she has far too much of the Bourbons in her to relish. If she does not count herself, she will do better than we expect her. So truly has it been said of Spain, there should be no medium in its government between absolute despotism and ultra liberalism.

Translated from the Gazette de France, October 7th.

"There has not arrived to-day any news from Navarre. The public await with anxiety the result of the definitive vote of the Cortes, relative to the loans. All the letters which arrived yesterday, speak of the integral recognition by the Cortes of the 5 per cents, and the perpetual rent."

"The friends of Christine are extremely uneasy about the conduct of the Chamber of Procuradores, which is becoming more hostile to the ministry, and which is not at all seem disposed to content itself with the financial legislation will be terminated. It is feared that it (the Chamber) designs to assume constituent power, and to render the Council of Regence subject to its authority."

SACRED CLASSICS, OR
CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY.
With an original introductory essay to each author. Edited by RICHARD COTTERMOLE, B. D. and the Rev. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.
The following is the Advertisement of the London Publisher:

UNIFORM IN SIZE WITH DR. LARDNER'S CYCLOPEDIA, THE SUNDAY LIBRARY, &c.
PRICE ONLY THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.
On the 1st of January, 1834, will be published Vol. I. of a Series of the Standard Theological Works of England, under the general title of

THE SACRED CLASSICS, OR, CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY:
With an original Introductory Essay to each Author.
EDITED BY
THE REV. RICHARD COTTERMOLE, B. D.
AND
THE REV. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.

Other country is such as England in Sacred Literature. Her greatest Poets and Philosophers have shared with her Divines, in seeking forth and establishing the truths of Revelation; while her Divines have been distinguished alike by the copiousness and the depth of their learning.
The soundness of character thus given to the standard Theology of England has, through a variety of circumstances, been happily preserved from degenerating into the harshness of scholasticism; and thus the whole series of our Sacred Classics, is a work of truth and candour, open to the general reader as to the most learned student.

It is intended to comprise in this collection, the best works of all the most celebrated writers, whose labours have been devoted to the sacred and practical enforcement of the principles of revealed truth, whether in their application to the immortal interests of individuals, or to the order and well being of society. Treasures on the Doctrines, Morals, and Duties of Christianity, which have received the permanent stamp of general approbation; select Sermons of the most eminent Divines; the most interesting specimens of Religious Biography; and the choicest examples of Devotion and Sacred Poetry, will succeed each other in the order which may be judged most conducive to the benefit and gratification of the reader.

The productions of each author, or to each separate production, as the case may seem to require, will be prefixed an Introductory Essay, pointing out their characteristic excellencies; and, in some instances, comprising a biographical sketch of the Author, and remarks on the state of religion in his country.

It is the desire of the Proprietor, in undertaking this CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY, to present the collection to the public, such a price, that he who purchases at present the most expensive of ephemeral publications, may, for a few pence, possess himself of works which cannot fail to afford him guidance and support in the highest exercises of his faculties, and under every vicissitude of life.

The work will be handsomely printed in Faintcap 8vo, on good paper, cold-pressed, neatly bound in Morocco Cloth, lettered, and published (in Volumes of about 400 pages each) on the 1st of every month.
Price, Three Shillings and Sixpence.

Forming the cheapest series of works ever offered to the public.

The following names of Authors whose works are intended for publication is submitted to you as a mark of the impartiality of the selection.

WALDIE'S CIRCULATING LIBRARY.

BUBBLES FROM THE BRUNNENS OF NASSAU,

A description of the fashionable watering places in Germany, by an old man, will form the commencement of the fourth volume of Waldie's Library.

This will be followed, at an early day, by the Memoirs of Henry Mares de la Tude, who was confined for thirty five years in the different State Prisons in France, now first translated into English.

The works published in the current volume, now on the point of completion, are the following:—

Kreutzer, or the German's Tale, a novel by the author of Canterbury Tales.

Memoirs of Sir James Campbell, of Ardkinglass; written by himself; a very piquant book, containing anecdotes of most of the distinguished individuals of the last sixty years.

Good Sir Walter; a tale by the author of Family Portraits.

The Broken Heart; a dramatic sketch, from the Italian.

Rome in the Nineteenth Century; in a series of letters written during a residence in that city, by a Lady.

The Deaf and Dumb Page; a Tale.

Anecdotes of the Court of Louis the XIV. by the Duke of St. Simon.

The Black Watch; an Historical Novel, by the author of the Don Quixote; &c. &c.

One of the best novels, say the London Magazine, of the present day.

Taylor's new book of Travels in Mexico and Cuba.

Allen Cunningham's Biographical and Critical History of Literature for the last fifty years.

Helen, a Novel, by Maria Edgeworth.

Journal of a West India Proprietor, kept during a residence in the Island of Jamaica, by the late Matthew G. Lewis, Esq. M. P. author of the Monk, &c.

The Curate's Tale, or Practical Joking; from a new work entitled Nights of the Round Table.

The Three Westminster boys, or Cowper, Lord Chancellor, Thurlow, and Warren Hastings, connected from the same.

A Narrative of the Shipwreck of the Antelope, in 1783, and a brief but accurate account of Prince Le Bon.

All the above cost in the "Library" but $2.50!!!

Office No. 207 Chesnut street, below 7th.

Subscriptions to Waldie's Select Circulating Library which is published every week, at $5 per annum, thankfully received by ADAM WALDIE, Philadelphia.

Subscriptions for the above valuable work received at this office.

FUNERALS.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends, and the public in general, that he has discontinued the Cabinet Making Business, and intends to confine himself to the future altogether to that of an UNDERTAKER.

All orders for Funerals will be attended to at the shortest notice, either in the usual manner, or according to special direction.

He returns his thanks to the public for their patronage during the last twenty years, and hopes that his promptness and attention will continue to merit their favour.

PATAPSCO HOTEL,

With all the new improvements, and a highly ornamental Garden, a beautiful Gothic Cottage, and other dwellings. Twenty valuable building Lots, with numerous other shares, of personal property, consisting of Plate, Carriages, Horses, Piano Fortes, Books, Rich Furniture, and Old Wines, all valued at $58,450, and divided into FOUR HUNDRED SHARES, subject to no discount.

It is to be drawn upon the plan of the old Maryland Lotteries, viz. The numbers will all be put into one wheel, and the prizes into another, and all drawn in one day, under the superintendence of the Trustees, according to the Act of the Legislature. They will certify the same when drawn.

The property has been valued by three Commissioners appointed by the Treasurer of Maryland, that no speculations should be indulged in, and bonds with approved security given to the State for double the amount, that the law may be faithfully complied with. It is simply a distribution of property at its value, to reimburse the expenditure. It is well worth risking TEN DOLLARS for such a Capital as this small scheme presents; it is larger than a mined Capital, with twelve times the number of Tickets to contend with, and no 15 per cent off.

Many of the small shares will be paid in cash, if required.

SCHEME:

1 Share, consisting of the PATAPSCO HOTEL, with the new addition upon the Rail Road, the large stone Stable, Carriage House, Ice House, and the splendid Garden, forms the grand capital prize, valued at $56,500

1 Share, a new and convenient three-story dwelling, under rent of $222, 3,000

1 Share, Angelo Cottage, a beautiful Gothic building, situated upon a ledge of rocks, commanding a delightful view of the village and factories; 2,050

4 Shares, valuable building Lots at $800 each 3,200

6 do. valuable Building Lots, at $750 each 4,500

10 do. valuable Building Lots, at $200 each 2,000

377 do. of Personal Property, ranging in value from $250 down to $10, 6,600

400 Shares, all free from discount $58,450

Those who wish Tickets are advised to make early application. The scheme is quite simple, containing but 5845 tickets, and this will be the only distribution offered.

The price of a share is not $0.0, which may draw property now worth $50,300, increasing every day in value, free from discount, and with an unquestionable title.

A. McLaughlin invites all his friends, far and near, to venture a small amount in this distribution of his property, which is a solitary case, and includes all his estate. Do not wait, delays are dangerous. He is anxious to close the scheme and return to Baltimore.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE GLOBE.

PROSPECTUS
FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE.

THE Congressional Globe, which we commenced publishing at the last Session of Congress, will be continued through the approaching one. It will be published in the same form, and at the same price; that is, on a double royal sheet, made up in quarto form, at ONE DOLLAR per copy, during the session. When any important subject discussed, we propose to print an extra sheet, four extra sheets. At the close of the session, an Index will be made for the 1st and 2d sessions, and sent to all the subscribers. We shall pay to the reporters alone, for preparing the reports that will be published in this paper, more than one hundred dollars per week, during the session. In publishing it, therefore, at one dollar for all the numbers printed during the session, we may be said to afford the most important information at the cheapest price.

Editors with whom we exchange, will give this Prospectus a gratuitous insertion, and those friends to whom we may send it, will please procure subscribers.

TERMS.
1 copy during the session, $1.00
11 copies during the session, $10.00
Payment may be made by mail, payable at our risk. The notes of any paying Bank will be received.

No attention will be paid to any order unless the money accompany it.

MEDICAL PUBLICATION:

THE REGISTER AND LIBRARY OF MEDICAL AND CHIRURGICAL SCIENCE, edited by GRANVILLE SHERAT PATTERSON, M. D. professor of Anatomy in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, assisted by James Hagan M. D. Washington City, published by Haff Green

CONTENTS OF THE RECENT NUMBERS.

No. 36. Treatment of Hemorrhoids; the abdominal aorta; case of poisoning by arsenious acid with dissection; case of hydrophobia, by Baron Dupuytren; a general table of morbidities within the city of London, and mortality from December 1832, till December 1833; Brodie on diseases of the joints, concluded.

No. 37. Operation for fistula in ano; use of sulphur baths in the treatment of the 1st; Mr. Riley's portable apparatus for the calculation of sulphurous acid gas; case of typhoid; Belladonna in obstruction from calculi; Philip on minute doses of mercury.

No. 38. Observations on the theory of spiration; observations upon ulceration of cartilages of joints, and on anchylosis, by Mr. Mayo before the Medical Chirurgical Society; protaps of the uterus covered by four; fungus of the bladder; Lithotrity; instruments; Dr. Hannah's improvement in regulated hernia with perforation of the tunic; scarlatina simulating Rubella of the meninges; general Ramollissement of the whole cerebral mass; altered state of the lateral lobe in which the lateral ventricle communicated with the internal auditory canal; two cases of chronic angina tonsillaris, cured by making incisions in the tonsils; chloroform; ascites tapped thirty times; efficacy of antimonial powder in emphysema of the face; colica pictonum successfully treated by sulphate of morphia in large doses; amputation of the penis by a new process; necrosed veins, successfully treated by the application of caustic issues; Philip on minute doses of mercury concludingly; Whistock principles and practice of obstetrics, commenced.

A glance at the contents of the Register and Library, will satisfy medical students of the great advantages which it affords, independent of the matter of the Register, containing the current improvements in medical science, there have been already published in the Library the following new and standard works:—

Sir Charles Bell on the Nerves, with illustrative engravings. Macintosh's Pathology and Practice of Physic. O'Brien's Dissection. Lawrence on Diseases of the Eye. Mayo on Injuries of the Rectum. Blake's Delirium Tremens. Brodie's Pathological and Surgical observations on Diseases of the Joint. Philip on the influence of minute doses of mercury. Blundell's principles and Practice of Midwifery.

Velpeau's great work on Operative Surgery, with notes by Professor Pattison, and anatomical plates, will succeed Blundell.

These works, exclusive of the Register, would cost upwards of sixty dollars at the book store. One year's subscription to the Register and Library, embracing 52 numbers, is ten dollars.

The great advantage, which this work affords to Medical Students attending Lectures, and Physicians desirous of enriching their libraries with the standard works of the most eminent authors must be apparent.

The entire work being stereotyped, subscribers will be promptly supplied with the numbers.

PRINTED AT THE BRICK WORKS, BY JONAS M. JONES, AT THE CORNER OF THE BRICK WORKS, BALTIMORE, MD.

The Maryland Gazette.

VOL. LXXXIX.

ANNAPOLIS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1834.

No. 47.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY
JONAS GREEN,
THE BRICK BUILDING ON THE PUBLIC CIRCLE.

—THREE DOLLARS PER ANNUM.

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LIBRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded the agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we are reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietors to give that gratuitously as an evidence of their acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the "Companion" is designed to supply. While reading for the "Library," a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magazines, intermingled with the Reviews from the English quarters. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the "Library," designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret.

To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. the "Companion to Waldie's Library" will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the "Library," the "Journal," and the "Companion," such acquaintance with the literature of the day may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The "Companion" will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.
2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the "Library"—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the "Library" at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the "Library" itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for two—and clubs five and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will evidence a sufficiency of patronage.

The proprietor of the "Select Circulating Library," fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others it were useless here to enter upon, the "Library" itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the "Library" and "Companion" both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, on the two, will be one dollar and ninety-five cents, divided into seventy-eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia, while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

Subscriptions to the "Companion" will be taken either with or without the "Library."

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the "Library," will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.

GREAT NATIONAL WORK.

AMERICAN MAGAZINE

Of Useful and entertaining Knowledge. To be illustrated with a variety of Engravings.

By the Boston Book Company.

THE success which has attended the publication of the best Magazines from the Boston Press, has led in preparation of a new and more perfect work, particularly adapted to the wants and tastes of the American public. While it will be the object of the proprietors to make the work strictly what its title indicates, it will, nevertheless, contain all articles of interest to its patrons which appear in foreign Magazines.

Extensive preparations have been entered into, both with artists and authors, to furnish from all parts of the Union, drawings and illustrations of every subject of interest, which the publishers confidently believe will enable them to issue a work, more valuable to its title, and more acceptable to the American People.

The first number of the American Magazine, which will appear on the 1st of December, will contain an original and beautiful engraving, with an account of the first of September, and its continued monthly, containing between forty and fifty beautiful plates, and be furnished at the low price of two dollars per annum. It will contain—

Portraits and Biographical Sketches of distinguished Americans; Views of Public Buildings, Monuments and Improvements; Landscapes; Scenery; the boundless variety and beauty of which, in this country, will form an increasing source of instruction and gratification; Engravings and descriptions of various characters, habits &c. of Beasts, Birds, Fishes and Insects, together with every subject connected with the Geography, History, Natural and Artificial resources of the country, illustrated in a familiar and popular manner.

FREEMAN HUNT, Agent of the Boston Book Company, 47 Court St. Boston, July 17.

* Editors throughout the United States who will give the above Prospectus a few insertions in their respective papers, shall be entitled to one year's subscription to the same.

TO RE-PRINT THE

LONDON, EDINBURGH, FOREIGN AND WESTMINSTER

QUARTERLY REVIEWS.

FOR $8 PER ANNUM.

THE above Journals are already so well known to the public, that little need be said of their respective merits.

The well sustained reputation of the LONDON QUARTERLY, not only as an abridgement of Core principles, and the old order of things, but as the widest and most entertaining of Reviews, will always command the attention of all literary and scientific.

The EDINBURGH, celebrated for the vigor, learning and acuteness which its articles display, conducted by some of the principal literary men of the modern Athens, is an equally powerful champion of the moderate Reform party.

The FOREIGN QUARTERLY occupies a new and original ground in Politics, and is devoted to continental literature.

The WESTMINSTER is but little known in this country. It may be considered as the advocate of the Radicals, and the mouth-piece of Benthamism. It represents the principles of a party already numerous in England, and fast increasing in the United States.

The numbers will be put to press immediately after they shall be received from Europe; and will contain the entire matter of the above work, making four annual volumes of upwards of six hundred pages.

They will be executed in a good style, and be printed in a shape but little differing from that of the European editions.

The price will be $8 per annum, payable three months after the delivery of the first number. The English copies cannot be had for less than $30. Of the three at present republished, two of them alone cost $10.

Any individual procuring four subscribers, and remitting $30 on the receipt of the first Number, will be allowed an additional copy.

Subscription papers to be returned, and all communications to be addressed, post paid to Theodore Foster, Albany, N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From a London Paper.

Lines by a YOUNG LADY BORN BLIND.

If this delicious grateful flower,
Which blows but for a little hour,
Should to the sight so lovely be,
As from its fragrance seems to me,
A sigh must then its color show;
For that's the softest joy I know:
And sure the rose is like a sigh,
Born just, to soothe, and then—to die.
My father, when our fortune smiled,
With jewels deck'd his sightless child,
Their glittering worth the world might see,
But, ah! they had no charms for me:
A trickling tear bedew'd my arm—
I felt it—and my heart was warm:
And sure the gem to me most dear,
Was a kind father's pitying tear.

From the New York Mirror.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS, OR NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY S. P. WILLIS.

Bring all the shops of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, together around the City Hall, remove their fronts, pile up all their goods on shelves facing the street, cover the whole with a roof, and metamorphose your trim clerks into bearded, turbaned, and solemn old muscivores, smooth Jews, and calpack'd and racy Armenians, and you will have something like the grand bazaar of Constantinople. You can scarcely get an idea of it without having been there. It is a city under cover. You walk all day, and day after day, from one street to another, winding and turning, and trudging up hill and down, and never go out of doors. The roof is as high as those of our three-story houses, and the dim light so favorable to shopkeepers, comes struggling down through skylights, never cleaned except by the rains of heaven.

Striding through the bazaar is an endless amusement. It is slow work, for the streets are crowded as a church aisle after services, and pushed aside one moment by a bevy of Turkish ladies, shuffling along in their yellow slippers, muffled to the eyes, the next by a fat slave carrying a child, again by a kerwan armed to the teeth, and clearing the way for some coming dromedary, you find your only policy is to draw in your elbows, and under the motley crowd to shove you about at their pleasure.

Each shop in this world of traffic may be two yards wide. The owner sits cross-legged on his broad counter below, the height of a chair from the ground, and hands you all you want without stirring from his seat. One broad bench or counter runs the length of the street, and the different shops are only divided by the slight partition of the shelves. The purchaser, seated on the counter, to be out of the way of the crowd, and the shopman spreads out his goods on his knees, never condescending to open his lips except to tell you the price. If he exclaims "what a noble" (the only word a real Turk ever knows in another language), he is stared at by his neighbors as a man would in Broadway, who should break out with an Italian bravura. I've to one, while you are examining his goods, the bearded trader creeps through the hole leading to the kennel of a dormitory in the rear, washes himself and returns to his counter, where, spreading his sacred carpet in the direction of Mecca, he goes through his prayers and prostrations, perfectly unconscious of your presence, or that of the passing crowd. No vocation interferes with his religious duty. Five times a day, if he were coming from the plague, the Mussulman would find time for prayers.

The Frank purveyor attracts a great deal of curiosity. As he points to an embroidered handkerchief, or a rich shawl, or a pair of gold-worked slippers, Turkish ladies of the first rank, gathering their yashmaks securely over their faces, stop close to his side, not minding if they push him a little to get nearer to desired article. Feeling not the least timidity except for their faces, these true children of Eve examine the goods in bazaar, watch the stranger's countenance, and if he takes off his gloves, or pulls out his purse, take it up and look at it, without ever saying "your leave." Their curiosity often extends to your dress, and they put out their little henna-stained fingers and pass them over the sleeve of your coat, with a gurgling expression of admiration at its fineness, or if you have rings or a watch guard, they lift your hand, or pull out your watch with no kind of scruple. I have met with several instances of this in the course of my rambles. But a day or two ago I found myself rather more than usual a subject of curiosity. I was alone in the street of embroidered handkerchiefs (every minute article has its peculiar bazaar) and wishing to look at some of uncommon beauty, I called one of the many Jews always near a stranger to turn a penny by interpreting for him, and was soon up to the elbow in goods that would tempt a female angel out of Paradise. As I was selecting one for a purchase, a woman plumped down upon the seat beside me, and fixed her great, black, unwinking eyes upon my face, while an Abyssinian slave and another white woman, both apparently her dependants, stood respectfully at her back. A small turquoise ring (the favorite colour in Turkey) first attracted her attention. She took up my hand, and turned it over in her soft, fat fingers, and dropped it again without saying a word.

looked at my interpreter, but he seemed to think it nothing extraordinary, and I went on with my bargain. Presently my friend's friend pulled me by the sleeve, and as I leaned towards her, rubbed her forefinger very quickly over my cheek, looking at me intently all the while. I was a little disturbed with the lady's familiarity, and asked my Jew what she wanted. I found that my rubicund complexion was something uncommon among these dark-skinned orientals, and she wished to satisfy herself that I was not painted! I concluded my purchase, and putting the parcel into my pocket, did my prettiest at an oriental salaam, but to my mortification, the lady only gathered up her yashmack, and looked surprised out of her great eyes at my freedom. My Constantinople friends inform me that I am to lay no "unction to my soul" from her notice, such liberties being not at all particular. The husband exacts from his half dozen wives only the concealment of their faces, and they have no other idea of propriety in public.

In the centre of the bazaar, occupying about as much space as the body of the City Hall in New York, is what is called bezeesteen. You descend into it from four directions, by massive gates, which are shut, and all persons excluded, except between 7 and 12 of the forenoon. This is the core of Constantinople—the soul and citadel of oriental-ism. It is devoted to the sale of arms and to costly articles only. The roof is loftier and the light more dim than in the outer bazaar, and the merchants who occupy its stalls, are old and of established credit. Here are subjects for the pencil! If you can take your eye from those Damascus sabres, with their jewelled hilts and costly scabbards, or from those gemmed daggers and guns inlaid with silver and gold, cast a glance along that dim avenue and see what a range there is of glorious old rag-bearers, with their snowy turbans! There are the Turks of the old regime, before Sultan Mahmoud disfigured himself with a coat like a dog of a Christian, and broke in upon the customs of the orient. These are your opium eaters, who smoke even in their sleep, and would not touch wine if it were handed them by Hottentots! These are your fatalists, who would scarce take the trouble to get out of the way of a lion, and who are as certain of the miracle of Mahomet's coffin as of the length of the pipe, or of the quality of the tobacco of Shiraz!

I have spent many an hour in the bezeesteen, steeping my fancy in its rich orientalisms, and sometimes trying to make a purchase for myself or others. It is curious to see what perfect indifference these old cross-legs attend to the wishes of a Christian. I was telling round one day with an English traveller, whom I had known in Italy, when a Persian man of singular beauty, leaning on one of the stalls attracted my companion's attention. He had with him his Turkish dromedary, and as the old merchant was smoking and looking right at us, we were to the bezeesteen, over his head, and the interpreter asked to see it. The Mussulman smiled calmly on, taking no more notice of us than of the white clouds curling through his beard. He might have sat for Michael Angelo's Moses. I am to be calm, and of a statue-like repose of countenance and posture with a large old-fashioned turban, and a curling beard half mingled with gray, his neck bare, and his fine but enveloped in the flowing and bright coloured drapery of the east—I had never seen a more majestic figure. He evidently did not wish to have any thing to do with us. At last I took out my snuff box, and addressing him with "fede" (the Turkish title of courtesy, and my hand on my heart) and offered him a pinch. Tobacco in this unaccustomed shape is a luxury here, and the ancient mountaineer emerged from his mustache, and putting his three fingers into my box, he said "pekkeh!" the Turkish ejaculation of approval. He then made room for us on his carpet, and with a cloth measure took the robe from its nail, and spread it before us. My friend bought it unhesitatingly for a dressing gown, and we spent an hour in looking at shawls, of prices perfectly startling, arms, chalices for incense, spotless amber for pipes, pearls, bracelets of the time of Sultan Selim, and endless variety of things rich and rare. The closing of the bezeesteen gates interrupted our agreeable employment, and our old friend gave us the parting salaam very cordially for a Turk. I have been there frequently since, and never pass without offering my snuff box, and taking a whiff or two from his pipe, which I cannot refuse, though it is not out of his mouth, except when offered to a friend, from sunrise till midnight.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS
Corn Starch, we are advised by an excellent house keeper, is no wise inferior to wheat starch, while it can be made with half the labour and expense. As this is the season for making it, we have obtained from our informant, for the Cultivator.

Directions for making it. Take 30 good ears of green corn, fit for eating, grate the corn with a large grater, a lantern will do, into a pail of water; turn the whole through a fine metal colander, or a coarse cloth strainer, to separate the hulls, &c.; then change the water two or three times, to render the starch, which settles to the bottom, white and clean; and after the last water is removed, the starch may be cut in slices, laid out a few days to dry, when it is fit for use, and may be kept any length of time. This quantity will suffice a year for a small family.

To Boil Meat.—Let the following rules govern. After the water begins to boil, it should be kept boiling till the meat is cooked. Put the meat into cold water, sufficiently only to cover and to keep it covered during the cooking process. More water than this renders the meat less savory, and weakens the broth. The water should be heated gradually according to the thickness of the article boiled; the larger the piece of meat, the more moderate should be the fire. If the water boils before the meat is heated through, the latter will be hardened, and shrink up as if it were scorched. When the water boils, the tenderer, plumper and whiter it will be. Fresh killed meat requires longer boiling, than that which butchers call ripe, and is withal more tough and hard.

To Steam Potatoes.—Put them clean washed, with their skins on, into a steam sauce pan, and let the water under them be about half boiling; let them continue to boil rather quickly till they are done. If the water once relaxes from its heat, the goodness of the potatoes is sure to be affected, and to become sodden, be the quality ever so good. A too precipitate boiling is equally disadvantageous: as the higher part to the surface of the root begins to crack and open, while the centre part continues unheated and uncomposed.

To Make Potatoe Bread.—Boil the potatoes not quite so soft as common, then dry them a short time on the fire, peel them while hot, and pound them as fine as possible; next put a small quantity of pearl ash to new yeast while it is working briskly, add as much rye meal or flour as can be worked in. Mix the whole well together, but do not add any water to it. After the dough is thus prepared, let it stand an hour and a half or two hours before it is put into the oven. Ourselves it will not require so long baking as regular flour bread.

Apple Jelly.—Take of apple juice strained 4 lbs., sugar 1 lb. Boil to a Jelly. Cul.

Purifying Water.—Purified Alum possesses the property of purifying water. A large table spoonful of pulverised alum, sprinkled into a hogshead of water, (the water stirred briskly round at the time) will after the lapse of a few hours, by precipitating to the impure particles, so purify it that it will be found to possess nearly all the freshness and clearness of spring water. Four gallons, it is said, may be purified by a single tea spoonful.

Cooking Potatoes.—Of all the good things which our people eat, through the patient industry of farmers, there is nothing which is so agreeable to the palate as the potatoe, nor any one vegetable so esteemed; yet this is so frequently rendered unpalatable by the manner of cooking it, that but comparatively few are acquainted with the real flavor of this excellent root. Lovers of neatly put pots will do well to attend to the following method communicated to us by a lady of this town, whereby potatoes a year old may be rendered as delicious as new ones boiled in the common manner.—Peel them, put them into cold water, and let them remain 2 or 3 hours; then boil them in water which has been salted, observing that it boils when they are put; pour off the water when they are done, shake them well for a short time, then dump them on the fire again, and at the expiration of 10 or 15 minutes they will be ready for the table.

Lancaster Gaz.
Vinegar in Cream.—The difficulty and labour frequently attending the churning of butter, led me to try a variety of experiments to ascertain if a method could be discovered for making butter come quicker than the usual mode. After trying several things, I found that by adding a tablespoon full of good vinegar to 4 gallons of cream when put into the churn, I obtained butter in from 7 to 8 minutes. If this information will be of any service to your subscribers, you are at liberty to publish it.

ASTONISHING CURIOSITY.

On the evening of the 20th inst. a gentleman in this village found in his wine cellar a live striped snake, nine inches long, suspended between two shelves by the tail, by a spider's web. The snake hung so that his head could not reach the shelf below him by about an inch, and several spiders were then upon him, sucking his juice. The shelves were about two feet apart, and the lower one was just below the bottom of a cellar window, through which the snake passed into it. From the shelf above there was a web in the shape of an inverted cone, eight or ten inches in diameter at the top, and concentrated to a lucus about six or eight inches from the under side of the shelf. From this focus there was a strong cord made of the multiplied thread of the spider's web, apparently as large as a common sewing silk, and by this cord the snake was suspended.

Upon a critical examination through a magnifying glass the following facts appeared. The mouth of the snake was fast tied up, by a great number of threads being wound around it so tight that he could not run out his tongue. His tail was tied in a knot, so as to leave a small loop or ring, by which the cord was fastened; and the end of desired that the cause of the death of the individual should remain unknown. He required that the duel should take place without witnesses, but each of the adversaries was to have a writing in his pocket, stating that the death of the person who might be lying on the ground was not to be considered an assassination. They repaired to the wood of Romainville; pistols were chosen weapons, and it was agreed that the adversaries should walk towards each other and fire when they thought proper. M. Lehoullier (the husband) states, that having attention called off by seeing a woman coming on the public road hard by, he stopped, and M. Vaudebant continued to fire, and fired when at a short distance. M. Lehoullier fell, and, according to his account, he implored the aid of his adversary, but his cries were unattended to. M. Vaudebant, believing he had killed M. Lehoullier, took to flight, carrying off the two pistols. However, the unfortunate husband was mortally wounded, but as his profile was not in his adversary when he fired, the bullet had carried away both his eyes, but he had not been touched. He crawled as well as he could out of the wood, and succeeded at length in gaining the high road, where he met with assistance. When Mr. Lehoullier was quite cured of his wounds, brought an action against M. Vaudebant, and rendered voluntarily.

From the Delaware Gazette. THE ELECTION.

The contest is over, and it only remains for us to lay the result before our readers. The Bank partisans, have not been routed, but defeated in this state, as they have been in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York, they have made a narrow escape, even in Delaware—such an escape we again could not question be tried over. If any one doubted, what we repeatedly asserted before the election, that the Bank in this county had it in its power to carry the state, they certainly must doubt it now.

204 Jack. maj. in New Castle county.

We learn by an express from the lower part of the state, that Kent has given Milligan a majority of 49, and Sussex 202.

204 maj. 49 maj. 302

204 maj. 49 maj. 302

Thus it will be seen, had New Castle county given its usual majority for the administration, to give, and which would have been given, which no one can doubt, it was our power and it not been for the local question of St. James, which divided our party, Mr. Bayard would have been elected.

We ask the few Jackson men who attempted to defeat the election of Mr. Vandever as Sheriff, to look at the result they have produced. They have not succeeded in defeating him, but they have defeated our representative to Congress by reducing his majority in this county. Our friends in Kent have done nobly, much better than we had anticipated. Could they have polled about 50 more votes, or changed 25 from the other side, they would have carried the county, and secured the election of a U. S. Senator, friendly to the administration. How frail is the hold of Bankism, even in Delaware—one more election and the state is regenerated. In Sussex the majority against us is about what we anticipated. Sussex and Kent have more than done their duty. New Castle has lost its state—and this has been effected by a division among our friends, relative to the election of Sheriff.

THE CHOLERA.

A Medical Correspondent of a London paper says—The causes which especially predispose to an attack of cholera are a weakened state of the living membrane of the stomach and alimentary canal. This state is so decidedly caused by eating freely of common salt with our meals, that I believe fall two-thirds of the cases which occur, might be prevented by having recourse to this simple preservative remedy. The quantity taken should be exactly what the stomach will bear without after inconveniences from one-quarter to one-third of an ounce during the day is sufficient. Salted meats and other preparations into which salt enters or is dissolved, are totally different in their action to salt in a pure state. The chemical change produced on salt by heat, and its long admixture with other matter, not only entirely destroys its preservative character, but renders substances or fluids thus impregnated in many respects prejudicial. If cholera be contagious or infectious, I have, from my avocation, been frequently exposed to its influence, and the above is the sole preventive measure I have adopted. Permit me, incidentally, to remark, how absurd it is to suppose that eating fresh fish, fresh vegetables, or ripe fruits, predisposes individuals to attacks of this horrible disease. On sound stomachs, when taken moderately, they produce a beneficial influence, which lessens the susceptibility to all disorders.

THRONE OF PORTUGAL.

Who would have believed, a few years since, that the throne of Portugal would have been shared by one of the Princes of the Bonaparte dynasty? Yet such is the fact.—The Cortes has ordained that the Queen, Donna Maria is to be wedded to the son of Eugene Beauharnois, who was the only son of the Empress Josephine, by her first husband, who fell a victim to the Revolution, on the scaffold. Prince Eugene was the favorite, and almost the only one, among Bonaparte's general officers; all the others, even his own brothers, were made use of to suit his temporary purposes, and were cast aside when no longer wanted; but Beauharnois, in every situation, enjoyed the Emperor's confidence, and from the establishment of the kingdom of Italy, in 1804, held its vice-royalty till the abdication at Fontainebleau. He was one of the most accomplished men and chivalric officers of his day. Of his son we have heard nothing; but, if he inherits a spark of his father's spirit, the ancient house of Braganza will not be likely, during his reign, to be shaken.—N. Y. Com. Adv.

VERY LATE FROM ENGLAND.

By the packet ship Caledonia, Captain Graham, at New York from Liverpool, the editors of the Commercial Advertiser have received London papers of October 20th, and Liverpool of the 21st.

CONFLAGRATION OF TWO HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

The most interesting item of intelligence furnished by this arrival is the destruction of the House of Lords, and of the Chapel of St. Stephen, by fire on the 16th of October. This event had naturally excited great sensation in the British metropolis. It is not (the London Courier observes) that the buildings were valuable in an architectural sense, for a less slightly and more inconvenient place for business can scarcely be conceived, that the loss is of such painful interest; but because on that spot in those halls, have passed some of the most memorable events in the history of our country. They were hallowed in our hearts by a long train of associations, and we could have better spared a more splendid work in them had been tendered to victorious Generals the thanks of the assembled nation—and in them had resounded those patriotic words which hurried on the people indignantly to a national contest, or directed their energies to improve the national institutions. In them sprang forth the germs of all our civil wisdom, and in them was cheered when the peace-maker took his seat, the end of our wars. They may be said to have been themselves an epitome of our history by recalling all its striking features.

They are now at an end, never, we presume, to be restored; for, interesting as they were, they had become particularly the People's curse, no longer fit for their intended purpose, and like the institutions framed or advocated in them during many centuries, they required to be adapted to the growth of the nation.—What the ornaments of orators could not achieve, accident has accomplished. But there must now be a new, and we hope, a convenient House of Commons.

The antiquity of the House of Lords we do not recollect—but the House of Commons was originally a chapel built by King Stephen and dedicated to St. Stephen the Martyr. It was rebuilt in 1374 by Edward III, and assigned by Edward VI, after the reformation, for the Session of the Commons House of Parliament, to which purpose it has ever since been applied. Both these edifices which have stood for centuries, are now in ruins. As in most cases of conflagration, rumor attributed it to incendiarism. The latest London papers, however, generally concur that there is not the slightest reason to suppose that its origin was other than accidental.

On receiving intelligence of this national disaster, the King immediately placed the palace newly erected in St. James' Park at the disposal of the nation.

The Sun gives the following account of the origin of the fire. In the removal of papers from the Exchequer to the House of Lords, some men were employed in burning a great number of old documents unnecessary to be kept. In doing this, the chimney caught fire and communicated with the timbers of the house.

The loss, considered as an ordinary business affair, is estimated at half a million sterling.

FRANCE.

Mr. Livingston, our Minister to the Court of France, arrived in Paris, on the 13th of October. It was reported that Mr. L. was authorized by the American government to reduce its claims by one-third. The Paris Constitutional, however, of the 14th Oct. states that it has been authorized by Mr. Livingston, to declare that he has received instructions from the Government of the United States, to agree to any compromise whatever, relative to the 25,000,000, claim of France, and further that Mr. Livingston is sure so such instructions will ever be transmitted to him.

Intelligence was received yesterday from Marseilles of the cholera having broken out at Oran on the 10th, and some of the soldiers had already fallen victims to it. Notice of this lamentable event had been communicated to the Boards of Health at Marseilles and Oran, in order that they may take the necessary precautions.—French paper of Oct. 17th.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF LAND.

BY virtue of a decree of the Court of Chancery, dated the tenth instant, in a case wherein Joseph Ward and others are complainants, and John A. Whittington and others defendants, the subscriber will sell at public sale, in the village of Friendship, on MONDAY the 8th day of December next, at twelve o'clock, noon, all the title and estate of the parties, in the said suit, in and to a tract of land formerly the property of Jacob Pattison, deceased, called "Stationers Hall," containing about more or less lying in Carter's county. This estate is now in the occupancy of William Shuck and others, and the lands of F. Emerson, Esq., and of the late Daniel Kent, and lies about four miles from Friendship, three from All Saints Church, two from the Bay and about one from the main Road through the county. The soil is well adapted to the growth of Corn and fine Tobacco, and may be easily improved by Clover and Plaster. About one fourth of this tract is in Wood and timber, and about twenty acres of it make an excellent meadow.

The improvements are a Dwelling House and the usual farm houses, and a valuable Apple Orchard.

TERMS OF SALE—Cash in cash, or to be paid on the ratification of the sale, and the balance in three equal instalments of six, twelve and eighteen months credit from the day of sale—the purchaser to give bond with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money with interest thereon from the day of sale.

BY virtue of a decree of the Chancery Court, the subscriber, as trustee, will of- at Public Sale, on MONDAY the 8th day of December next, at 10 o'clock A. M. on the premises, all that tract or parcel of Land ly- ing and being in Anne Arundel county, on which the late William D. Merriken lived previous to his death, being part of three tracts called Roper Grey, Happy Choice, and Penn's Purchase, together with certain articles of personal property, consisting of Beds and Bedding, Horses and Cattle. It is deemed unnecessary to give a particular description of the land, as persons disposed to purchase are invited to visit it. The terms of sale are, Cash to be paid on the day of sale or ratifica- tion thereof by the Chancellor. The subscri- ber, upon payment of the whole purchase mo- ney, is authorized to convey the property to the purchaser or purchasers in fee simple.

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S

BRARY.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Libra- ry had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communica- tion and supply the desideratum, the Jour- nal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage ex- tended to the Library induced the proprie- tor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown o- ther desiderata which the "Companion" is intended to supply. While reading for the "Library" a large mass of material accumu- lates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive de- scription, such as would properly come un- der the designation of Magaziniaria, inter- spersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would en- croach too much on the columns of the "Li- brary" designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret. To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. the "Companion to Waldie's Library" will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the "Library," the "Journal," and the "Companion," such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little fur- ther to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for sub- scribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the pub- lication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submit- ted.

1. The "COMPANION" will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Lib- rary—each number containing sixteen pa- ges—thus, every six months, giving thir- teen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for two—and clubs five and upwards will be supplied at two dol- lars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will e- vince a sufficiency of patronage.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF LAND.

BY virtue of a decree of the Court of Chan- cery, dated the tenth instant, in a case wherein Joseph Ward and others are com- plaintants, and John A. Whittington and others defendants, the subscriber will sell at public sale, in the village of Friendship, on MON- DAY the 8th day of December next, at twelve o'clock, noon, all the title and estate of the parties, in the said suit, in and to a tract of land formerly the property of Jacob Pattison, deceased, called "Stationers Hall," contain- ing about more or less, lying in Calvert county. This estate is now in the occupancy of William Shurlock and adjoins the lands of P. Emmer- son, Esq. and of the late Daniel Kent, and lies about four miles from Friendship, three from All Saints Church, two from the Bay and about one from the main Road through the county. The soil is well adapted to the growth of Corn and fine Tobacco, and may be easily improved by Clover and Plaster. About one fourth of this land is in Wood and timber, and about twenty acres of it make an excel- lent meadow.

The improvements are a Dwelling House and the usual farm houses, and a valuable Apple Orchard.

THE TERMS OF SALE ARE.

One fourth of the purchase money in cash, or to be paid on the ratification of the sale, and the balance in three equal instalments of six, twelve and eighteen months credit from the day of sale—the purchaser to give bond with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money with interest thereon from the day of sale.

A. RANDALL, Trustee,

Annapolis, Nov. 20.—1a.

Died, at Nicholas, on or near the Black Sea, Thomas MURDOCH, one of the Aids-de- Camp of the Emperor of Russia, aged thirty six years. His death was rumored about two months previously, but he was afterwards at Odessa, in an improved state of health; and authentic accounts received thence by his fa- ther in this city, not only proved the rumor to be premature, (though founded on severe, and then almost hopeless illness,) but gave encouragement to expect his recovery. On his return to Nicholas, however, his malady (of the pulmonary nature) rapidly increased, and ended his existence in a few weeks.

The deceased was known to all the popu- lation of the city, and respected and beloved by all to whom he was known. Of his char- acter and standing, the high rank and esti- mation which he had reached in the Russian army, (which he entered some fifteen years ago) is indisputable evidence. His death has clothed in mourning his family, and filled with sympathy the bosoms of his friends.

Anne Arundel County, To wit:

I HEREBY CERTIFY, That George C Stewart of said county, brought before me as a stray trespassing on his en- closures, a Grey GELDING, a bout 7 or 8 years old, about fifteen hands high, no perceivable marks, shod all round, except one of his shoes lately off, trots and canters, has a switch tail. Given under my hand one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said county, this 24th day of November 1854.

The army was so well armed towards the present state of the continent, that not the slightest apprehen- sion of disaffection existed, should Don Mi- guel make the rash attempt to enter the coun- try.

The harvest has been abundant. On the 8th of October, Prince Metternich celebrated a magnificent entertainment, to cele- brate the 25th anniversary of his official life as the Austrian minister for foreign affairs.
