PROSPECTUS.
The Subscriber proposes to publish, in Upper Marlboro', Prince George's county, Maryland, a weekly journal, to be called

THE BULLETIN.

In undertaking to supply this acknowledged desideratum to the populous and intelligent district in which the subscriber has the pleasure to reside, his hope of ultimate success leads not its origin in sanguineousness of temper, but proceeds from the eminent advantages of its location. Published in the metropolis of a large and wealthy county, situated equidistant from the State and National capitals, facilities of an early communication of whatever may interest its patrons, particularly afforded to the Editor, and which he may not hope to present to his readers much foreign information through the medium of his columns, not derivable from other journals, it is still certain that intelligence of a local nature, interesting to all, and important to many, and otherwise unobtainable, will by this means be communicated.

It will also offer to those whose means are inadequate to the expense of the larger journals, at least a synoptical view of all the important information they contain; and he trusts that those of literary taste may sometimes find in its columns, articles not unworthy of the employment of their leisure. As the plan of every publication which is to find success in popular support, must first be approved by public patronage can be expected, the Editor would here mark the outcome of his design, with the full knowledge that it will constitute an ordeal, by which, to emerge with its merit and the fidelity of its execution.

The Editor proposes to adapt his paper to the wants of those by whom he is immediately surrounded, and among whom he must naturally find a majority of his patrons: he knows them to be intelligent and inquiring.—The literary department, shall, therefore, be as judiciously regarded, and the most approved domestic and foreign periodicals resorted to for the latest letters notices. He knows them to be patriotic, and that they feel a deep interest in the welfare of our common country. To gratify this sentiment to the extent of his ability, his columns shall afford whatever intelligence of a political character may be calculated to interest them. No man, with the faculty of thought, is at this crisis neutral in regard to the party distinctions now prevalent in this country, and the Editor does not wish to disguise his political sentiments—they are in opposition to the measures of the present administration. But having neither the temerity nor the motive of a partisan, his comments on party movements shall be characterized by candor, and shall be free from abuse, as it never has been his practice, so shall he become, his habit to deal in political violence or party violence. He will cheerfully aid the aid of his columns to communicate from all parties—reserving to himself the privilege of rejecting such, as are, obviously, for personal allusion or indecorous language. In addition to the advantages of appearing in the Bulletin, the Editor offers to his patrons, the opportunity of having their names inserted in the Bulletin, and here take the opportunity to do so, as he wishes to be remembered to his editorial labors.

The Bulletin will be published on Thursday each week. Terms of subscription $3 per annum.

LITTELL'S MUSEUM

FOREIGN LITERATURE, SCIENCE AND ART.

PAID.—Six Dollars a year, in advance—seven dollars and a half, if not in advance.

POSTAGE.—Five sheets, under 100 miles 25 cents; over 100 miles, 125 cents.

This work will be sent to any Post Office in the United States, carefully wrapped up, upon receipt of five dollars in part payment. A few complete sets are for sale.

ENLARGED SERIES OF THE MUSEUM.

MR. LITTELL has much pleasure in announcing to the patrons of the Museum, that he has made arrangements for the future publication of the work in a style much superior to the present—and nearly approaching what he has always desired that it should appear in. The circulation of the work is now so large, as to make it important to the proprietor that he should be able to give his whole attention to it. This has hitherto been prevented by the care and labour attendant upon a multifarious and widely-extended business. With the view of completing more quickly the publication of Lodge's Portraits and Memoirs of Illustrious and Noble Characters, (a splendid work now in hand)—of effecting a settlement of accounts extending over the whole of the United States—and of making arrangements in all parts of the country for the vigorous prosecution of the publication of the Museum, he has made a contract with Mr. Adam Waldie of this city to print the work, attend to its distribution, and manage all the financial concerns appertaining to it after the present year.

Mr. Waldie is a practical printer, not surpassed in taste by any other in the country; and as he is advantageously and generally known as the publisher of the Select Circulating Library, it is supposed that he will have it in his power greatly to promote the sale of the Museum. He has contracted to issue it promptly, and thus will be corrected the greatest fault which has heretofore attended its management. The changes in the appearance of the work will be as follows:

1. It will be regularly and promptly published.

2. Will be uniformly and handsomely printed.

3. On better paper.

4. Will be considerably enlarged.

As the sale of the work has increased, Mr. Littell has always been desirous of devoting the enlarged profits to its improvement—and although he does not wish the appearance of the next volume to be considered as entirely carrying out his plan, he trusts that the subscribers will be convinced, upon comparing it with any other work, that it is richly worth the price asked for it.

We shall not have satisfied our own wishes, in respect to this work, until it shall be so far enlarged and improved as to make it clear to every purchaser that he will herein receive all that is desirable to an American reader from all the Foreign Periodicals. That we can do so in a single work, by making it contain four or five times as much matter as an ordinary periodical, we have no doubt.—A great part of most of the Reviews and Magazines is composed of inferior articles, and we confidently appeal to those readers of the Museum who have been in the habit of looking over the British Journals, whether we have not already, in a very great degree, succeeded in copying all that was worth preservation.]

As the work will now be considerably enlarged, we shall be able more fully to accomplish this object.

In order that he may, by frequent journeys from home, be the earlier able to finish all other business, and devote himself exclusively to the Museum, Mr. Littell has made arrangements with the Editor of Waldie's Library to edit this work after December, 1834. However deficient the proprietor may be in other qualifications, he has always felt so zealous an affection for the Museum that he would not be willing to commit it, even for a moment, to the care of another, were he not confident that the facilities, the experience and the ability of the new Editor, will render it more worthy of the patronage of the public than it has heretofore been. No change takes place in the Proprietorship.

POETRY.

(From the American Monthly Magazine.) THE GREEN BIRD OF DEATH.

A WELSH LEGEND.

There is a legend current in South Wales, to the following purport, which the writer of the subjoined stanza first learned from a native of that romantic land. It was supposed that at the death of the virtuous, the soul of some departed relative—a mother, sister, or lover, now glorified—returned in the shape of a beautiful green bird, giving warning to the beloved dying, with its wild, sweet song, and calling on the parting soul to be its companion in flight to the Spirit-Land. This beautiful, though sorrowful visitant, was there called the "Green Bird of Death."

Their loud hymn of triumph the night winds were swelling.

And deep lay the snow on the blossoming heath,
When around the low roof of a desolate dwelling,
Was heard the wild song of the Green Bird of Death.

Within that lone cottage a maiden lay dying—
Consumption's chill palm on her bosom was pressed;
And over her still slumber a mother was sighing.

When the notes of the Death-Bird awoke her from rest—
"Ah! heard I aught?" came that wild lay of sadness
From the Bird of sweet promise? Is Death then at hand?"

Said the maid—"hast thou come from the bowers of gladness,
To waft me away to the fair Spirit-Land?
Spread, spread thy green pinions! my faint soul is pining."

To bathe in the breezes that fan thy bright wing,
And bask in that summer, eternally shining.
O'er which dreary winter no shadow can fling.

"Oh, breathe not thy song in the accents of sorrow,
For why shouldst thou tempt the soul of Cuthullin's queen,
When, long ere the slow-dawning beams of to-morrow,
My spirit shall mingle in rapture with thine?"

Come, like my last sigh then, thou soul of my lover,
And bear me away from this cold world of pain,
To that bright music shore which an eye may discover,
But his who hath sailed over Death's gloomy main.

"Spread, spread thy green pinions! life's poor lamp is wasting.
Its oil hath run low—can the flame longer live!
Its fetters are burst, and my spirit is tasting
The breeze of that blissful shore Death only can give."

No more said the maiden, with gentle emotion
Her soul with her lover's hath taken its flight,
Like two fond birds of Spring, they now cross the dark ocean—
Before them the day-dawn—behind them the night.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE RESCUE.

From Carey and Hart's edition of "Ross's Narrative in search of a Northwest Passage."

There are many pages in this narrative, written in a plain, unpretending style, which we would gladly find room for, but must content ourselves with that describing the falling in of these forlorn navigators with the ship which rescued them. It is simple and impressive.

26th March, 1833.—At four in the morning, when all were asleep, the look-out man, David Wood, thought he discovered a sail in the offing, and immediately informed Commodore Ross, who, by means of his glass, soon saw that it was in reality a ship. All hands were immediately out of their tents and on the beach, discussing her rig, quality and course; though there were still some desperadoes, who maintained that it was only an iceberg.

No time was however lost; the boats were launched, and signals made by burning wet powder; when, consulting our embarkation, we left our little harbour at six o'clock. Our progress was tedious, owing to alternate calm and light airs blowing in every direction; yet we made way towards the vessel, and had it remained calm where she was, should soon have been alongside. Unluckily, a breeze just then sprang up, and she made all sail to the southward, by which means the boat that was foremost was soon left astern, while the other two were steering more to the eastward, with the hope of cutting her off.

About ten o'clock we saw another sail to the northward, which appeared to be lying to for her boats; thinking, at one time, when she hove to, that she had seen us. That, however, proved not to be the case, as she soon bore up under all sail. In no long time it was apparent that she was fast leaving us; and it was the most anxious moment that we had yet experienced, to find that we were near to no less than two ships, either of which would have put an end to all our fears and all our toils, and that we should probably reach neither.

It was necessary, however, to keep up the courage of the men, by assuring them from time to time that we were coming up with her; when, most fortunately, it fell calm, and we really gained so fast, that at eleven o'clock we saw her hove to with all sails aback, and lower down a boat, which rowed immediately towards our own.

She was soon alongside, when the mate in command addressed us, by presuming that we had met with some misfortune and lost our ship. This being answered in the affirmative, I requested to know the name of the vessel, and expressed our wish to be taken on board. I was answered that it was "the Isabella, of Hull, once commanded by Capt. Ross," on which I stated that I was the identical man in question, and my people the crew of the Victory. That the mate who commanded this boat, was as much astonished at this information as he appeared to be, I do not doubt; while, with the usual blindness of men on such occasions, he assured me that I had been dead for two years.—I easily convinced him, however, that what ought to have been true, according to his estimate, was a somewhat premature conclusion; as the bear-like form of the whole set of us might have shown him, had he taken time to consider, that we were certainly not whaling gentlemen, and that we carried tolerable evidence of our being "true men no impostors," on our backs, and in our starved and unwholesome countenances. A hearty congratulation followed of course, in the true seaman style, and, after a few natural inquiries, he added that the Isabella was commanded by Capt. Humphreys, when he immediately went off in his boat to communicate his information on board, repeating that we had long been given up as lost, not by them alone, but by all England.

As we approached slowly after him to the ship, he jumped on the side, and in eloquent the rigging was manned; while we were saluted with three cheers as we came within a cable's length, and were not long in getting on board my old vessel, where we were all received by Capt. Humphreys with a hearty seaman's welcome.

Though we had not been supported by our names and characters, we should not the less have claimed, from charity, the attentions we received; for never was seen a more miserable looking set of wretches, while, that we were but a ragged looking people, none of us could doubt.—If to be poor, wretchedly poor, as far as all our present property was concerned, was to have a claim on charity, no one could well deserve it more; but if to look so to be frightened away the so called charitable, no beggar that wanders in Ireland could have outdone us in exciting the repugnance of those who have not known what poverty can be. Unhappily since I know not when, dirty, dressed in the rags of wild beasts instead of the tatters of civilization, and starved to the very bones, our gaunt and grim looks, when contrasted with those of the well-dressed and well-fed men around us, made us all feel, I believe, for the first time, what we really were, as well as what we seemed to others. Poverty is without half its miseries, if it be contrasted with wealth; and what we might have known to be true in the past days, we had forgotten to think of, till we were thus reminded of what we truly were, as well as seemed to be.

But the ludicrous soon took place of all other feelings; in such a crowd and such confusion, all serious thought was impossible, while the buoyancy of our spirits made us abundantly willing to be amused by the scene which now opened. Every man was hungry and was to be fed, all were ragged and were to be clothed, there was not one to whom washing was not indispensable, nor one whom the world did not deprive of all English semblance. All, every thing, too, was to be done at once; it was washing, dressing, shaving, eating all intermingled; it was all the materials of each jumbled together, while in the midst of all, there were interminable questions to be asked and answered on all sides; the adventures of the Victory, our own escapes, the politics of England, and the news which was now four years old. But all subsided into peace at last. The sick were accommodated, the seamen disposed of, and all was done, for all of us, which care and kindness could perform. Night at length brought quiet and serious thought; and I trust there was not one among us who did not then express where it was due, his gratitude for that interposition which had saved us. It from a despair which none could now forget, and had brought us from the very borders of a not distant grave, to life and friends and civilization.

Long accustomed, however, to a cold bed on the hard snow or the bare rock, how could sleep and the comfort of our new accommodations. I was myself compelled to leave the bed which had been kindly assigned me, and take my abode in a chair for the night, nor did it fare much better with the rest. It was for time to reconcile us to this sudden and violent change to break through what had become habit, and to insure us once more to the usage of our former days.

HOPE AND MEMORY.

A little babe lay in the cradle, and Hope came and kissed it. When its nurse gave it a cake, Hope promised another to-morrow; and when its young sister brought a flower, over which it clasped its wings and crowed, Hope told of brighter ones, which it would gather for itself.

The babe grew to a child, and another friend came and kissed it. Her name was Memory. She sat behind her, and told her what she had done. The child answered, "I see a little book." And Memory said, "I will teach thee how to get honey from the book, that will be sweet to thee when thou art old."

The child became a youth. Once when he went to his bed, Hope and Memory stood by the pillow. Hope sang a melodious song, and said, "Follow me, and every morning thou shalt wake with a smile, as sweet as the pretty lay I sung thee."

But Memory said, "Hope, is there any need that we should contend? He shall be mine as well as thine. And we shall be to him as sisters all his life long."

So he kissed Hope and Memory as he was beloved of them both. While he slept peacefully they sat silently by his side, waving rainbow tresses into dreams. When he awoke, they came with the link, to bid him good morning, and he gave a hand to each.

He became a man. Every day Hope guided him to his labour, and every night he supped with Memory at the table of Knowledge.

But at length Age found him and turned his temples gray. To his eye the world seemed altered. Memory sat by his elbow chair, like an old and tried friend. He looked at her seriously and said, "Hast thou not lost something that I entrusted thee?"

And she answered, "I fear so; for the look of my casket is worn. Sometimes I am weary and sleepy and Time purloins my key. But the gem that thou didst give me when life was new—I can account for all—see how bright they are."

While they thus mullily conversed, Hope put forth a wing that she had not worn, folded under her garment, and tried its strength in a heavenward flight.

The old man laid down to die, and when his soul went forth from the body, the angels took it. And Memory walked with it through the open gate of Heaven. But Hope lay down at its threshold and gently expired, as a robe given out its last odour.

Her parting sigh was like the music of a searaph's harp. She breathed it into a glorious form and said:

"Immortal happiness! I bring thee a soul that I have led through the world. It is now thine, Jesus hath redeemed it.—Mrs. Sigourney."

ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

The distance of the Rocky mountains from the Pacific, is said to be about the same as that of the Alleghanies from the Atlantic, but the extent and height are far greater than those of the Alleghanies.—The area of their base is immense. They have not been thoroughly explored; but they are said to be of primitive formation. It is supposed that some of the peaks are volcanic; but it has not been ascertained that this is the fact. The distance from St. Louis, at the junction of the Missouri with the Mississippi, to the Rocky mountains, is two thousand and five hundred miles, and from the western settlements of Missouri, eight or nine hundred. There is a belt of woodland for two hundred and fifty or three hundred miles from the Mississippi, and then begins extensive plains reaching to the foot of those mountains. These plains are mostly a barren desert, like some parts of Arabia, and are visited or possessed by the buffaloes, elks, and other wild animals.

Some branches of the Missouri river run a great distance among the mountains; and the gates of the river, so called, seem to have been formed by the rushing of the water from the higher parts of the mountains to the plains below. The banks of the river in the mountains are twice the height of the mountains on the North river, near West Point. The chasm is one hundred and fifty yards wide.

The range is frequently called the Oregon mountains. It is nearer to the Pacific ocean than to the Mississippi river; and the Oregon has its rise on the western slope. Their black and precipitous appearance has given them the name by which they are generally known in the United States. The sources of the rivers running into the Mississippi east, and the Oregon west, are not very distant; and in some parts there are low places or valleys; which has led to the belief that a canal will be made to connect the eastern and western rivers, within half a century.—Amer. Mag.

A BEAUTIFUL REFLECTION.

It cannot be that earth is man's only abiding place. It cannot be that our life is a bubble; cast up by the ocean of eternity, to float a moment on its waves, and sink into nothingness. Else why is it that the high and glorious aspirations, which leap, like angels, from the temple of our heart, are forever wandering about unsatisfied? Why is it that the rainbow and the cloud come over us with a beauty that is not of earth, and then pass off and leave us to muse upon their faded loveliness? Why is it that the stars hold their festival around the midnight throne, and set above the grasp of our limited faculties, for ever mocking us with their unapproachable glory. And finally, why is it that bright forms of human beauty are presented to our view, and then are taken from us—leaving the thousand streams of our affections to flow back in Alpine torrents upon our hearts? We are born for a higher destiny than that of earth.—There is a realm where the rainbow never fades—where the stars will be spread out before us like islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beautiful beings which here pass before us like shadows, will stay in our presence for ever.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

It is strange that any one should be opposed to Sunday schools. It is strange that any parent should neglect to send all his children to such schools. We know that idle objections are so solemnly adduced against them, and political fears are felt or affected at their extent. Nonsense! Will our country ever suffer because her sons are intelligent? Will she ever have reason to regret that they are pious? These unostentatious schools may be the instruments of her salvation.—Give us light—and liberty is safe. A nation of men ignorant, vicious and intemperate—cannot long be otherwise than a nation of slaves.

Sunday schools are doing incalculable benefit to this country. They are dispensing from ten thousand points the saving influence of truth and virtue. Let them be cherished.—Phil. Gazette.

BONES.

Considerable excitement was produced this morning within a small circle by the discovery of a quantity of human bones in the earth, just beneath the floor of the house No. 73 William st. which together with all the block from Cedar to Liberty, is being pulled down. The bones were in a mass, the feet, ribs and skull mingled together, and the sides of the cavity as originally formed in the earth for their interment are still quite distinct. The house was built in 1823, but whether the bones were deposited before or since the building was erected is not yet determined.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

With an original introductory essay to each author.

EDITED BY
THE REV. RICH'D. COTTERMOLE, B. D.
AND

THE REV. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.
No other country is so rich as England in Sacred Literature. Her greatest Poets and Philosophers have shared with her Divines, in setting forth and establishing the truths of Revelation; while her Divines have been distinguished alike by the copiousness and the depth of their learning.

The soundness of character thus given to the standard Theology of England has, through a variety of circumstances, been happily prevented from degenerating into the harshness of scholasticism; and thus the whole series of our 'Sacred Classics,' is a well of truth and consolation, as open to the general reader as to the most learned student.

It is intended to comprise in this collection, the best works of all the most celebrated writers, whose labours have been devoted to the elucidation and practical enforcement of the principles of revealed truth, whether in their application to the immortal interests of individuals, or to the order and well-being of society. Treatises on the Doctrines, Morality, and Evidences of Christianity, which have received the permanent stamp of general approbation; select Sermons of the most eminent Divines; the most interesting specimens of Religious Biography; and the choicest examples of Devotional and Sacred Poetry, will succeed each other in the order which may be judged most conducive to the benefit and gratification of the reader.

To the productions of each author, or to each separate production, as the case may seem to require, will be prefixed an Introductory Essay, pointing out their characteristic excellencies; and, in some instances, comprehending a biographical sketch of the Author, with remarks on the state of religion in his times.

It is the desire of the Proprietors, in undertaking 'THE CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY,' to present the collection to the public at such a price, that he who purchases at present the cheapest of ephemeral publications, may, for the same money, possess himself of works which cannot fail to afford him guidance and support in the highest exercises of his faculties, and under every vicissitude of life.

The work will be handsomely printed in Foolscap 8 vo. on good paper, cloth-bound, neatly bound in Morocco Cloth, lettered and published (in Volumes of about 400 pages each) on the first day of every month.

Price, Three Shillings and Sixpence; Forming the cheapest series of works ever offered to the public.

PROSPECTUS TO REPUBLICANS LONDON, EDINBURGH, DUBLIN AND WESTMINSTER. QUARTERLY REVIEWS, FOR 35 PER ANNUM.

THE above Journals are already so well known to the public, that little need be said of their respective merits.

The well sustained reputation of the London Quarterly, not only as an able defender of Tory principles, and the old order of things, but as the witty and most entertaining of Reviews, will always command the attention of the literary and scientific.

The Edinburgh, celebrated for the vigor, learning and acuteness which its articles display, conducted by some of the principal literary men of the modern Athens, an equally powerful champion of the moderate Reform party.

The Foreign Quarterly occupies a neutral ground in Politics, and is devoted to continental literature.

The Westminster is but little known in this country. It may be considered as the advocate of the Radicals, and the mouth piece of Benthamism. It represents the principles of a party already numerous in England, and fast increasing in the United States.

The numbers will be put to press immediately after they shall be received from Europe; and will contain the entire matter of the above works; making four annual volumes of upwards of six hundred pages.

They will be executed in a good style, and be printed in a shape but little differing from that of the European editions.

The price will be $8 per annum, payable three months after the delivery of the first number. The English copies cannot be had for less than $50. Of the three at present republished, two of them alone cost $10.

Any individual procuring four subscribers, and remitting $30 on the receipt of the first Number, will be allowed an additional copy.

Subscription papers to be returned, and all communications to be addressed, post paid, to Theodore Foster, Albany, N. Y.

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LIBRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the 'Companion' is intended to supply.

While reading for the 'Library' a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magaziniaria, interspersed with the Reviews from the English Quaterlies. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the 'Library' designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret.

To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. the 'Companion to Waldie's Library' will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the 'Library,' the 'Journal,' and the 'Companion,' such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quaterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The 'COMPANION' will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Library—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for two—and clubs five and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will evince a sufficiency of patronage.

The proprietor of the 'Select Circulating Library,' fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others it were useless here to enter upon, the 'Library' itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the 'Library' and 'Companion' both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, on the two, will be one dollar and ninety-five cents, divided into seventy eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia, while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

Subscription to the 'Companion,' will be taken either with or without the 'Library.'

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the 'Library,' will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.

PROSPECTUS.
Subscriber proposes to publish, in Upper Marlboro', Prince George's county, Maryland, a weekly journal, to be called

THE BULLETIN.
In undertaking to supply this acknowledged desideratum to the populous and intelligent district in which the subscriber has the leisure to reside, his hope of ultimate success finds not its origin in sanguineness of temperament, but proceeds from the eminent advantages of its location. Published in the metropolis of a large and wealthy county, situated equidistant from the State and National capitals, facilities of an early communication of whatever may interest its patrons, are particularly afforded to the Editor; and though he may not hope to present to his friends much foreign information through the medium of his columns, not derivable from other journals, it is still certain that intelligence of a local nature, interesting to all, and important to many, and otherwise unattainable, will by this means be communicated. It will also offer to those whose means are inadequate to the expense of the larger journals, at least a synoptical view of all the important information they contain; and he trusts that those of literary taste may sometimes find in its columns, articles not unworthy of the employment of their leisure. As the plan of every publication which is to find success in popular support, must first be approved before public patronage can be expected, the Editor would here mark the outline of his design, with the full knowledge that it will constitute an ordeal, by which, to determine both its merit and the fidelity of its prosecution.

The Editor proposes to adapt his paper to the views of those by whom he is immediately surrounded, and among whom he must naturally find a majority of his patrons: he knows they are to be intelligent and inquiring. The literary department, shall, therefore, be as judiciously regarded, and the most approved domestic and foreign periodicals resorted to for bulletins and notices. He knows them to be patriotic, and that they feel a deep interest in the welfare of our common country. To gratify this sentiment to the extent of his ability, his columns shall afford whatever intelligence of a political character may be calculated to interest them. No man, with the faculty of thought, is at this crisis neutral in reference to the party distinctions now prevailing in this country, and the Editor does not wish to disguise his political sentiments—they are in opposition to the measures of the present Administration. But having neither the temper nor the motive of a partisan, his comments upon party movements shall be characterized by frankness of argument, not violence or abuse, and as it never has been his practice, so shall he never become his habit to deal in political invective or party virulence. He will cheerfully lend the aid of his columns to communication from all parties—reserving to himself the privilege of rejecting such as are objectionable for personal allusion or indecorous language. In addition to the advantages of appropriate political and literary selections, he trusts also to tempt into exercise whatever of native talent may surround him, and with such aid he may not presumptuously hope to render his paper useful and interesting. He asks the patronage of his friends longer than he asks their efforts and repay it, as he wishes not to be denied to his editorial labors. The Bulletin will be published on Thursday in each week. Terms of subscription $3 per annum.

LITTELL'S MUSEUM OF FOREIGN LITERATURE, SCIENCE AND ART.

Patron.—Six Dollars a year, in advance—seven dollars and a half, if not in advance.
Postage.—Five sheets, under 100 miles 75 cents; over 100 miles, 125 cents.
This work will be sent to any Post Office in the United States, carefully wrapped up, upon receipt of five dollars in part payment. A few complete sets are for sale.

ENLARGED SERIES OF THE MUSEUM.

MR. LITTELL has much pleasure in announcing to the patrons of the Museum, that he has made arrangements for the future publication of the work in a style much superior to the present—and nearly approaching what he has always desired that it should appear in. The circulation of the work is now so large, as to make it important to the proprietor that he should be able to give his whole attention to it. This has hitherto been prevented by the care and labour attendant upon a multifarious and widely extended business. With the view of completing more quickly the publication of Lodge's Portraits and Memoirs of Illustrious and Noble Characters, (a splendid work now in hand)—of effecting a settlement of accounts extending over the whole of the United States—and of making arrangements in all parts of the country for the vigorous prosecution of the publication of the Museum, he has made a contract with Mr. Adam Waldie of this city to print the work, attend to its distribution, and manage all the financial concerns appertaining to it after the present year.

Mr. Waldie is a practical printer, not surpassed in taste by any other in the country; and as he is advantageously and generally known as the publisher of the Select Circulating Library, it is supposed that he will have it in his power greatly to promote the sale of the Museum. He has contracted to issue it promptly, and thus will be corrected the greatest fault which has heretofore attended its management. The changes in the appearance of the work will be as follows:

1. It will be regularly and promptly published.
2. Will be uniformly and handsomely printed.
3. On better paper.
4. Will be considerably enlarged.

As the sale of the work has increased, Mr. Littell has always been desirous of devoting the enlarged profits to its improvement—and although he does not wish the appearance of the next volume to be considered as entirely carrying out his plan, he trusts that the subscribers will be convinced, upon comparing it with any other work, that it is richly worth the price asked for it.

We shall not have satisfied our own wishes, in respect to this work, until it shall be so far enlarged and improved as to make it clear to every purchaser that he will herein receive all that is desirable to an American reader from all the Foreign Periodicals. That we can do so in a single work, by making it contain four or five times as much matter as an ordinary periodical, we have no doubt. A great part of most of the Reviews and Magazines is composed of inferior articles, and we confidently appeal to those readers of the Museum who have been in the habit of looking over the British Journals, whether we have not already, in a very great degree, succeeded in copying all that was worth preservation.

As the work will now be considerably enlarged, we shall be able more fully to accomplish this object.

In order that he may, by frequent journeys from home, be the earlier able to finish all other business, and devote himself exclusively to the Museum, Mr. Littell has made arrangements with the Editor of Waldie's Library to edit this work after December, 1834. However deficient the proprietor may be in other qualifications, he has always felt so zealous an affection for the Museum that he would not be willing to commit it, even for a time, to the care of another, were he not confident that the facilities, the experience and the ability of the new Editor, will render it more worthy of the patronage of the public than it has heretofore been. No change takes place in the Proprietorship.

"A MAN OVERBOARD."

The following extract, giving a graphic description of a storm at sea, and the thrilling sensation produced by the rending cry of 'a man overboard,' is from Reynolds's Journal of the cruise of the Potomac:

It was on Tuesday, the 15th of November, in latitude 34 south, and longitude 30 east. The morning opened with strong gales from the northwest, which increased in violence until the afternoon. Sail after sail was taken in, or reefed, until the Potomac wore little else than a storm dress. The sea was exceedingly high, rough, and unpleasant; and the ship rolled and laboured heavily. The white spot was seen in the south, but experience alone could tell the power it contained. In an instant the gale from the north 'let go its hold,' the little canvass that remained spread flapped loosely on the yards; and, ere there was time for thought or action, a gale from the southwest struck the vessel with such a power, and with a change so sudden, that it required the utmost exertion of professional skill to prepare her to meet the fierce encounter.

"It comes resistless, and with foaming sweep
Uplifts the whitening surface of the deep;
In such a tempest, borne to clouds of death,
The wayward sisters scorn the blasted heath."

The high and combing waves, running quick from the northeast, thus met and resting in their course by violent gusts from the southwest, created upon the whole extent of the ocean's surface, at least as far as the eye could reach, sheets of flying foam, as the water was carried from the cap of each rolling billow in masses to leeward. This sudden encounter of the wind and the waves caused the latter to mount up into vast and moving pyramids of angry foam.

It is in such a moment as this that the profession of a sailor becomes really sublime! It is a contest for mastery between the elements and the intellectual daring of man! At such a moment all hands are called, and, fore and aft; from the fore, main and mizzen top—each officer and sailor stands in death-like silence, to receive and execute whatever order the commander in a low and subdued tone, through the officer of the deck, may see fit to give. He is the master-spirit whose coolness, experience and intellectual energies can alone control the demon of the tempest.

"True to his trust, when sacred duty calls,
No howling storm the master's soul appals."

On the present occasion, every requisite order had been given, and each of them had been executed with a prompt and fearless obedience. The gallant Potomac, recovering from the unexpected shock she had received in a sudden change of wind, and raising herself with graceful majesty from the sullen and involuntary obsequiousness which she had paid to the blast, began to obey the impulse of her helm, when the appalling and terrific cry of 'a man overboard!' resounded fore and aft.

The usual orders in such an emergency are 'hard down the helm! cut away the life buoy! and stand by to lower the life-boat!' which is always suspended from the ship's quarters, with suitable and appropriate lashings. But the commodore very properly hesitated to give such orders on the present occasion; for it was but too evident that no boat could live for a single moment, among the turbulent billows which were beating round and climbing up the sides of the frigate. The feeling that pervades one at such a crisis is painfully intense—we know of no excitement on shore that can possibly be compared with it. It is such emergencies that the thorough-bred sailor exhibits traits of character which should cover a multitude of sins. The fury of the storm—the tempest-tost ocean—the certainty of death before them, could not restrain the generous impetuosity of the crew. They had gathered en masse on the ship's quarter, with hands upon the ratlines, ready to leap into the boats on either side, to rescue a shipmate from destruction, or share with him a watery grave.

The suspense which had now become insupportable, was seen relieved by the cheerful exclamation from the larboard gangway, of 'there he is! here he is!' and the man was borne aloft as one snatched from the very portals of death. It appeared that he had been sent into the fore chains to clear the foremast; and the ship rolling at the time very deep, he was washed from thence into the sea. Fortunately, he had done his work so well, by overhauling the sheet, that a bite had fallen into the water; so that when the ship rolled again towards him he succeeded in seizing it, and but a moment elapsed before the welcome exclamation of 'here he is! here he is!' relieved the feelings of all.

After the autopsy on Sunday, the Prince's body laid in state in that part of the Palace where the Cortes formerly held their sittings. Immediately after his appointment as Commander-in-Chief, he had a new uniform of that grade, with all the corresponding ornaments and trappings made, which was completed, and brought to him whilst he was lying ill of that malady, which terminated in his death, and whilst the Opposition in the Cortes was wrangling about the illegality and unconstitutionality of the appointment, which he was, alas, doomed so soon to vacate, not by a vote of the deputies, but by the fiat of fate, the inexorable hand of death. His Royal Highness tried on the splendid garments—they fitted his elegantly moulded limbs delightfully. In the pride of youth, and with the buoyancy of spirit belonging to his age and exalted station—he said he should wear this dazzling uniform for the first time on Sunday, the day fixed for the review of the National Guards, and his debut as Commander-in-Chief, and being in his arms with the sword of the Liberator, left him by Don Pedro's legacy—a sword connected with as brilliant recollections perhaps as that of Alfonso Henriquez, the conqueror of Lima, and five Moorish Kings, at Campo d'Uribes (25th July, A. D. 1139.) Prince Augustus meant to wear his new Commander-in-Chief's uniform, Marshal's staff, and the Liberator's sword on Sunday. But, alas, 'man proposes, and God disposes.' He intended to wear those trophies, and did wear them, but in a way far different from that intended, for they were placed upon his body while lying in state, after having undergone dissection. The scene of grandeur had closed. Lord Byron said, 'Princes live like gods, but die like men.'

Short was the Prince's life—short his career as Royal consort, expectant King and quasi Sovereign—shorter his Peersage, and shorter still his sharply-contested functions as Commander-in-Chief or as his epitaph describes him—'Lunatic Exeritus Superbus Imperator,' which he assumed on a bed of sickness, and exercised (if exercising it can be called) in his chamber for one short week. The Empress performed the last duties of her beloved dying brother. She closed his eyes with her own hands, and said, 'This is my duty.' She had never left his bedside during the whole of his illness. The grief of the youthful, Royal, and Imperial widow—his bride, wife, and sister, was inexpressible—in-describable. Yet Portugal—enquinte compelled them, as the nearest relations on the departure of the funeral procession, to take leave of the corpse on the threshold of the palace—painful ceremony they had but six months before performed at Queluz to the remains of Don Pedro.

Three days after Prince Augustus, Commander-in-Chief, died on Friday, the 20th March, but not before he had been to the Palace of the Governor till Monday the 23d. On the 24th of March, Sunday, the Queen and Prince arrived at the Palace of the Governor, to the races at Campo Grande; but the Prince, being known then, and he having been appointed to the army as Commander-in-Chief, was not permitted to appear in public. He was taken to his apartment, and never left his apartment alive again.

OFFICIAL.

Copy of a letter from the Surgeon General of the Army of the United States to the Secretary of War, dated

WASHINGTON GENERAL'S OFFICE,
June 18, 1835.

Sir: The Medical Board convened in New York in pursuance of an order of March 26, 1835, report that they have examined and approved seven persons, who are recommended for appointment in the following order of merit, viz:

- J. C. REYNOLDS, of Maryland.
- C. M. HUTCHINSON, of Ohio.
- W. W. HORTON, of Maryland.
- E. F. WOLCOTT, of New York.
- H. F. NOURSE, Ohio.
- W. M. MAFFITT, of Virginia.
- THOS. LEE, of New Jersey.

The first named gentleman has been appointed by the President Assistant Surgeon, to take rank from the 1st May, 1835.

OUR AFFAIRS WITH FRANCE.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, July 1st, 1835.

In consideration of the many important interests connected with the relations between the United States and France, the President has directed the publication of the following documents:

[Mr. Livingston to the Duc de Broglie.]
LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES,
PARIS, APRIL 25th, 1835.

Sir: About to return to my own country, I am unwilling to leave this without adding one more effort to the many I have heretofore made to restore to both that mutual good understanding, which their best interests require, and which probable events may interrupt, and perhaps permanently destroy.

From the correspondence and acts of His Majesty's Government, since the Message of the President of the United States was known at Paris, it is evident that an idea is entertained of making the fulfilment of the treaty of 1831 dependent on explanations to be given of terms used in the Message, and of withholding payment of an acknowledged debt until satisfaction be given for a supposed indecorum for demanding it. The bare possibility that this opinion might be entertained and acted upon by His Majesty's Government, renders it incumbent on me to state explicitly what I understand to be the sentiments of mine on this subject.

Erroneous impressions arising from the want of a proper attention to the structure of our Government, to the duties of the Chief Magistrate, to the principles it has adopted, and its strict adherence to them, in similar cases, might raise expectations which could never be realized, and lead to measures destructive to all harmony between the parties. This communication is made in full confidence that it is the wish of His Majesty's Government, as it most sincerely is that of the President, to avoid all measures of that description, and it is hoped, therefore, that it will be received in the spirit by which it is dictated—that of conciliation and peace.

The form of our Government, and the functions of the President as a component part of it, have, in their relation to this subject, been sufficiently explained in my previous correspondence, especially in my letters to the Comte de Rigay of the 29th of January last. I have, therefore, little to add to that part of my representation which is drawn from the form of our Government, and the duties of the President in administering it. If these are fully understood, the principles of action derived from them cannot be mistaken.

The President, as the chief executive power, must have a free and entirely unfettered communication with the co-ordinate powers of Government. As the organ of intercourse with other nations, he is the only source from which a knowledge of our relation with them can be conveyed to the legislative branches. It results from this, that the utmost freedom from all restraint in the details into which he is obliged to enter, of international concerns, and of the measures in relation to them, is essential to the proper performance of this important part of his functions. He must exercise them without having continually before him the fear of offending the susceptibility of the powers whose conduct he is obliged to notice. In the performance of this duty he is subject to public opinion, and his own sense of propriety for an indiscreet, to his constituents for a dangerous, and to his constitutional judges for an illegal exercise of the power; but to no other censure, foreign or domestic. Were any foreign powers permitted to scan the communications of the Executive, their complaints, whether real or affected, would involve the country in continual controversies; for, the right being acknowledged, it would be a duty to exercise it by demanding a disavowal of every phrase they might deem offensive, and an explanation of every word to which in improper interpretation could be given.

The principle, therefore, has been adopted, that no foreign power has a right to ask for explanations of any thing that the President, in the exercise of his functions, thinks proper to communicate to Congress, or of any course he may advise them to pursue. This rule is not applicable to the Government of the United States alone, but, in common with it, to all those in which the constitutional powers are distributed into different branches. No such nation, desirous of avoiding foreign influence or foreign interference in its councils; no such nation, possessing a due sense of its dignity and independence, can long submit to the consequences of other interference.—When these are felt, as they soon will be, all must unite in repelling it, and acknowledge that the United States are contending in a cause common to them all, and more important to the liberal Governments of Europe than even to themselves; for it is too obvious to escape the slightest attention that the monarchies of Europe, by which they are surrounded, will have all the advantage of this supervision of the domestic councils of their neighbors, without being subject to it themselves. It is true that in the Representative Governments of Europe, Executive communications to Legislative Bodies, have not the extension that is given to them in the United States, and that they are, therefore, less liable to attack on that quarter but they must not imagine themselves safe. In the opening address, guarded as it commonly is, every proposition made by the Ministry, every resolution of either Chamber, will offer occasions for the jealous interference of national punctilio, for all occupy the same grounds. No intercommunication of the different branches of Government will be safe, and even the courts of justice will afford no sanctuary for freedom of decision and of debate; and the susceptibility of foreign Powers must be consulted in all the Departments of Government. Occasions for intervention in the affairs of other countries are but too numerous at present without opening another door to encroachments; and it is no answer to the argument to say that no complaints will be made but for reasonable cause, and that of this, the nation complained of being the judge, no evil can ensue. But this argument concedes the right of examining the communications in question, which is denied; allow it, and you will have frivolous as well as grave complaints to answer, and must not only heal the wounds of a just national pride, but apply a remedy to those of a morbid susceptibility. To show that my fear of the progressive nature of the encroachments is not imaginary, I pray leave to call your Excellency's attention to the enclosed report from the Secretary of State to the President. It is offered for illustration, not for complaint. I am instructed to make none. Because the Government of France has taken exception to the President's opening message, the Charge d'Affaires of France thinks it his duty to protest against a special communication, and to point out the particular passages in a correspondence of an American Minister with his own Government, to the publication of which he objects. If the principle I contest is just, the Charge d'Affaires is right; he has done his duty as a vigilant supervisor of the President's correspondence. If the principle is admitted, every diplomatic agent at Washington will do the same, and we shall have twenty censors of the correspondence of the Government and of the public press. If the principle is correct, every communication which the President makes, in relation to our foreign affairs, either to the Congress or to the Public, ought in prudence to be previously submitted to these ministers, in order to avoid disputes, and troublesome and humiliating explanations.—If the principle be submitted to, neither dignity nor independence is left to the nation. To submit even to a discreet exercise of such a privilege, would be troublesome and degrading, and the inevitable abuse of it could not be born.—It must therefore, be resisted at the threshold, and its entrance forbidden into the sanctuary of domestic communications. But, whatever may be the principle of other governments, those of the United States are fixed—the right

THE SACRED CLASSICS

OR, CABINET-LIBRARY OF DIVINITY. With an original Introductory Essay to each Author.

EDITED BY THE REV. RICH'D. COTTERMOLE, B. D. AND

THE REV. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.

NO other country is so rich as England in Sacred Literature. Her greatest Poets and Philosophers have shared with her Divines, in setting forth and establishing the truths of Revelation; while her Divines have been distinguished alike by the earnestness and the depth of their learning.

The soundness of character thus given to the standard Theology of England has, through a variety of circumstances, been happily prevented from degenerating into the barrenness of scholasticism; and thus the whole series of our 'Sacred Classics,' is a well of truth and consolation, as open to the general reader as to the most learned student.

It is intended to comprise in this collection, the best works of all the most celebrated writers, whose labours have been devoted to the elucidation and practical enforcement of the principles of revealed truth, whether in their application to the immortal interests of individuals, or to the order and well-being of society. Treatises on the Doctrines, Morality, and Evidences of Christianity, which have received the permanent stamp of general approbation; select Sermons of the most eminent Divines; the most interesting specimens of Religious Biography; and the choicest examples of Devotional and Sacred Poetry, will succeed each other in the order which may be judged most conducive to the benefit and gratification of the reader.

To the productions of each author, or to each separate production, as the case may seem to require, will be prefixed an Introductory Essay, pointing out their characteristic excellencies; and, in some instances, comprehending a biographical sketch of the Author, with remarks on the state of religion in his times.

It is the desire of the Proprietors, in undertaking 'THE CABINET-LIBRARY OF DIVINITY,' to present the collection to the public at such a price, that he who purchases at present the cheapest of ephemeral publications, may, for the same money, possess himself of works which cannot fail to afford him guidance and support in the highest exercises of his faculties, and under every vicissitude of life.

The work will be handsomely printed in Foulcap 8vo. on good paper, collated, neatly bound in Morocco Cloth, lettered and published in the following manner:

PROSPECTUS

Of the Extra Globe.

THE undersigned propose to issue the first number of a new series of the EXTRA GLOBE, on Monday, the 25th of May next, and to publish it weekly for 12 months, making twenty six numbers; the last to contain an Index to the whole. It will be printed upon fine double royal paper, made up in quarto form, like the Extra and Congressional Globe published by us last year. The 26 numbers will make 416 quarto royal pages.

It will contain the principal original articles of the Daily and Semi-Weekly Globes, notices of the public meetings, the elections, and public proceedings in every State in the Union, in relation to the canvass for the next Presidency—a contest which the indications of the present year will go far to decide.

The first number will contain the Proceedings of the Democratic National Convention, to be held at Baltimore on the 20th of next month. An excellent Reporter has already been engaged to report the Proceedings of the Convention, and the Speeches which may be made on the occasion.

We request the favour of those friends to whom this Prospectus may be sent, to calculate it for the purpose of obtaining subscribers. A copy of the work will be sent to the newspapers that copy this Prospectus.

Subscribers should forward their names in time to reach us before the 25th May. If they do not, we may not be able to furnish them with all the numbers; because the work is put at so low a price, that we cannot afford to reprint any number that may be exhausted.

TERMS:

One Dollar per copy, in advance. Eleven copies will be furnished for Ten Dollars; twenty-two copies for Twenty Dollars, and so on in proportion.

The price of this paper is so low, that we cannot afford to open accounts with those who subscribe for it. Therefore, no attention will be paid to any order, unless the money accompanies it.

NENS OF NASSAU.

A collection of the fashionable watering Germany, by an old maid, from the commencement of the fourth volume of Library.

It is published in the current volume,

and is the point of completion, are the following:

THE PROPOSALS

TO ESTABLISH THE

LONDON, EDINBURGH, FOREIGN AND

WESTMINSTER

QUARTERLY REVIEWS,

FOR $8 PER ANNUM.

THE above Journals are already so well known to the public, that little need be said of their respective merits.

The well sustained reputation of the LONDON QUARTERLY, not only as an able defender of Tory principles, and the old order of things, but as the witliest and most entertaining of Reviews, will always command the attention of the literary and scientific.

The EDINBURGH, celebrated for the vigor, learning and acuteness which its articles display, conducted by some of the principal literary men of the modern Athens, is an equally powerful champion of the moderate Reform party.

The FOREIGN QUARTERLY occupies a neutral ground in Politics, and is devoted to continental literature.

The WESTMINSTER is but little known in this country. It may be considered as the advocate of the Radicals, and the mouth piece of Benthamism. It represents the principles of a party already numerous in England, and fast increasing in the United States.

The numbers will be put to press immediately after they shall be received from Europe; and will contain the entire matter of the above works; making four annual volumes of upwards of six hundred pages.

They will be executed in as good style, and be printed in a large but little differing from that of the European editions.

The price will be $8 per annum, payable three months after the delivery of the first number. The English copies cannot be had for less than $30. Of the three at present republished, two of them alone cost $10.

Any individual procuring four subscribers, and remitting $30 on the receipt of the first Number, will be allowed an additional copy.

Subscription papers to be returned, and all communications to be addressed, post paid, to Theodore Foster, Albany, N. Y.

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LI-

BRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the 'Companion' is intended to supply. While reading for the 'Library' a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magaziniaria, interspersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the 'Library' designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret. To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. the 'Companion to Waldie's Library' will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the 'Library,' the 'Journal,' and the 'Companion,' such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facilities for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The 'COMPANION' will contain the earliest possible reprint of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Library—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for a club of five and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, and free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the 15th of the month payment will be expected, as the appearance will evince a sufficiency of patronage.

The proprietor of the 'Select Circulating Library,' fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work; and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others it were useless here to enter upon, the 'Library' itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the 'Library' and 'Companion' both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, on the two, will be one dollar and ninety-five cents, divided into seventy eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia, while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

Subscriptions to the 'Companion,' will be taken either with or without the 'Library.'

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the 'Library,' will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.

PROSPECTUS.
The Subscriber proposes to publish, in the month of March, a new County, a weekly journal, to be called
THE BULLETIN.

It is intended to supply this acknowledged want to the populous and intelligent community in which the subscriber has the pleasure to reside, his hope of ultimate success in this enterprise is founded on the fact that its origin is in a genuine want,
and proceeds from the eminent advantages of its location. Published in the heart of a large and wealthy county, situated distant from the State and National Capitals, facilities of an early communication of whatever may interest its patrons, particularly afforded to the Editor; and it may not hope to present to his readers much foreign information through the medium of his columns, not derivable from other sources, it is still certain that intelligent and local nature, interesting to all,
will be by this means be communicated,
and also offer to those whose means are impaired to the expense of the larger journal, at least a synopsis of all the important information they contain; and he trusts that those of literary taste may sometimes find in its columns, articles not unworthy of the employment of their leisure. As every publication which is to find success in popular support, must first be clear before public patronage can be expected, the Editor would here mark the outstanding design, with the full knowledge that it will constitute an ordeal, by which, to prove both its merit and the fidelity of its execution.

The Editor proposes to adapt his paper to the wishes of those by whom he is immediately surrounded, and among whom he must naturally find the majority of his patrons: he knows that the intelligent and inquiring—The Department, shall, therefore, be assuredly regarded, and the most approved and foreign periodicals resorted to for letters and notices. He knows them to be of the state of our common country. To this sentiment to the extent of his columns shall afford what is intelligent and political character may be easily perceived. No man, with the influence of thought, is at this crisis neutral in respect to the party distinctions now prevailing in the country, and the Editor does not wish to become a political character—they are opponents to the measures of the present Administration. But having neither the temperament of a partisan, his comments on party movements shall be characterized by argument, not violence or abuse and he never has been his practice, so shall he become his habit to deal in political truth or party violence. He will cheerfully aid his columns to communication from all parties—reserving to himself the privilege of rejecting such as are obscure or personal reflection or indecorous language. In addition to the advantages of approaching political and literary selections, he will attempt to exercise whatever of talent he may surround him, and with such talent may not presumptuously hope to render his paper useful and interesting. He asks the patronage of his friends longer than he can merit and repay it, as he wishes not that favor to personal feeling, which he is denied to his editorial labors.
The Bulletin will be published on Thursday each week. Terms of subscription $3 per annum.

ENLARGED SERIES OF THE MUSE- UM.

MR. LITTELL has much pleasure in announcing to the patrons of the Museum, that he has made arrangements for the future publication of the work in a style much superior to the present—and nearly approaching what he has always desired that it should appear in. The circulation of the work is now so large, as to make it important to the proprietor that he should be able to give his whole attention to it. This has hitherto been prevented by the care and labour attendant upon a multifarious and widely extended business. With the view of completing more quickly the publication of Lodge's Portraits and Memoirs of Illustrious and Noble Characters, (a splendid work now in hand)—of effecting a settlement of accounts extending over the whole of the United States—and of making arrangements in all parts of the country for the vigorous prosecution of the publication of the Museum, he has made a contract with Mr. Adam Waldie of this city to print the work, attend to its distribution, and manage all the financial concerns appertain-ing to it after the present year.

Mr. Waldie is a practical printer, not surpassed in taste by any other in the country;
and as he is advantageously and generally known as the publisher of the Select Circulating Library, it is supposed that he will bring to his power greatly to promote the sale of the Museum. He has contracted to issue it promptly, and thus will be corrected the greatest fault which has heretofore attended its management. The changes in the appearance of the work will be as follows:

1. It will be regularly and promptly published.
2. Will be uniformly and handsomely printed.
3. On better paper.
4. Will be considerably enlarged.

As the sale of the work has increased, Mr.
Littell has always been desirous of devoting the enlarged profits to its improvement—and although he does not wish the appearance of the next volume to be considered as entirely carrying out his plan, he trusts that the subscribers will be convinced, upon comparing it with any other work, that it is richly worth the price asked for it.

We shall not have satisfied our own wishes, in respect to this work, until it shall be so far enlarged and improved as to make it clear to every purchaser that he will herein receive all that is desirable to an American reader from all the Foreign Periodicals. That we can do so in a single work, by making it contain four or five times as much matter as an ordinary periodical, we have no doubt.
A great part of most of the Reviews and Magazines is composed of inferior articles, and we confidently appeal to those readers of the Museum who have been in the habit of looking over the British Journals, whether we have not already, in a very great degree, succeeded in copying all that was worth preservation.

As the work will now be considerably enlarged, we shall be able more fully to accomplish this object.

In order that he may, by frequent journeys from home, be the earlier able to finish all other business, and devote himself exclusively to the Museum, Mr. Littell has made arrangements with the Editor of Waldie's Library to edit this work after December, 1854.
However deficient the proprietor may be in other qualifications, he has always felt so zealous an affection for the Museum that he would not be willing to commit it, even for a time, to the care of another, were he not confident that the facilities, the experience and the ability of the new Editor, will render it more worthy of the patronage of the public than it has heretofore been. No change takes place in the Proprietorship.

POETRY.

From the American Monthly Magazine.
WHAT IS SOLITUDE?

Not in the shadowy wood,
Not in the rock-ribbed glen,
Not where the sleeping echoes brood
In caves unlit by time;
Not by the sea-swept shore
Where loitering surges break,
Not on the mountain's brow,
Not by the breezeless lake,
Not on the desert plain Where man hath never stood,
Whether on isle or main—
Not there is Solitude!

There are birds in the woodland bowers,
Voices in lonely dells,
And streams that talk to the listening hours
In earth's most secret cells.
There is life on the foam-flecked sand
By the ocean's curling lip,
And life on the still lake's strand
Mid the flowers that o'er it dip;
There is life on the rocky pine,
That sighs on the mountain's crest,
And life in the corner's mass that shines
As he scours the desert breast.
But go to the crowded mart,
Mid the busy haunts of men,
Go there and ask thy heart,
What answer makes it then?
Aye, go where wealth is flinging
Her golden lures around,
Where the tramp of Fame is ringing:
Where pleasure's wiles abound;
Go—if thou would'st be lonely—
Where the phantom love is wooed,
And then there—there only—
Mid crowds is Solitude.

TRUTH AND FALSEHOOD.

BY L. H. WILDE.
There's a tangle river,
In Erin's Isle,
Where the sunbeams quiver
In silvery smile;
Where the leaves that fall
'Neath the Autumn sky,
Grow gem-like all,
And never die;

And such is truth, by Truth enlightened,
That leaves the heart by Vision brightened,
Where even the joys that to storms discover,
Are turned to gems that flow for ever.

There's a darkling tide
In the Indian clime,
By whose hazardous side
There's a sulphury slime—
To the flower that it touches,
A scorching wave—
To the bird that it approaches,
A withering grave—
And such are the waters of bitterness rising
In the desert bosom of dark Disguising;
And the birds of Joy, and the flowers of Feeling,
Must perish, wherever that wave is stealing.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE INDIANS IN ALABAMA.

Rumors have been for some time in circulation of difficulties between the whites and Indians, and of outrages committed by the latter.

The accounts, however, came in such a questionable shape, that we have not thought it worth while to notice them; but they are now confirmed to some extent, by an official communication of Governor GAYLE to the Secretary of War, dated May 27th, 1853. It is written apparently with candor and impartiality, and may probably be relied on, as giving a true description not only of the misconduct of the Indians, but also of the oppressions endured by them, to which their aggressions must be ascribed. We extract the most important passages.

"At this time, a state of things exists in parts of the country ceded by the Creek Indians to the United States, that requires the immediate presence of a respectable military force. In the counties of Macon and Russell, the Indian population is greatly larger than that of the whites; and, confiding in superior numbers, they have placed the laws, and civil magistrates at defiance.
They are in the daily habit of committing the most lawless depredations on the property of the settlers, and within a few weeks past, have murdered and robbed several innocent travellers on the highway leading from Columbus, Ga., to Montgomery. The white inhabitants are alarmed to such a degree, that they offer no resistance, and the civil officers, for want of assistance, themselves, will neither issue nor execute process, for their apprehension.

"An agent whom I despatched several days ago, to inquire into the cause and extent of these difficulties, has just returned, and states that many Indian families are destitute of the means of subsistence, and will inevitably starve if provision be not made for them. Whether their present situation, and the disturbances complained of, are to be ascribed to the improper treatment of the whites, it is certain that order cannot be maintained, and the laws executed, unless a military force be sent to afford prompt assistance to the civil authorities.
I therefore respectfully request that a detachment of the troops of the United States be ordered to Fort Mitchell with all convenient despatch, and that the soldiers in whose charge they may be placed, whenever called on by the proper authority, may be directed to aid in the arrest of the offenders.

"I beg leave to call your attention to the frauds, the infamous and unprincipled frauds, which organized bands of speculators have practised and are still practising on the Indians, in first obtaining their lands, and then, the small and inconsiderable sums they have paid as a consideration for their purchases. These impositions have acquired great notoriety, and are subjects of universal complaint. I entertain no doubt, that the outrages which have been committed by the Indians, upon the innocent settlers and innocent travellers, have been provoked by the injuries they have received from the speculators, and if they alone could be selected as the victims of revenge, they would meet but little sympathy from the honest part of the community. But they are as ingenious and as successful in diverting from themselves the hostility and indignation of the Indians, as they have been in defrauding them of their property."
In a subsequent communication to several gentlemen of Russell County, who had addressed him on the subject Governor Gayle, after informing them of his application to the War Department, states that the Indians are starving, and must of necessity prey upon the property of their neighbors, and that nothing short of their removal to the country which has been provided for them, can render a residence in that part of the State tolerable for the white man. We think too, and how ever unjust may be the compelled emigration of the Indians, we believe and admit that, in the existing state of things, it is an indispensable measure both to them and to the whites. They cannot live together, and if attempted, the Indians must perish. Governor Gayle, in his letter to these gentlemen, again adverts to the impositions practised on the Indians, and especially urges the suppression of grog-shops, of which great numbers are opened throughout the country for the particular

"accommodation" (that is, ruin) of the Red Man.—Com.

From the Plymouth Memorial. REVOLUTIONARY ANECDOTE.

Almost every one is acquainted with the circumstances of the taking of General Prescott, the then commanding officer of the British forces on Rhode Island, by Captain Barton of Providence. He was exchanged for General Lee, who was previously captured by the British.

Shortly after his exchange he returned to Rhode Island, and was invited to dine on board the Admiral's ship, with many other officers of the highest grade. General Prescott was naturally a haughty, imperious man, and as a commander, was very unpopular with his officers and soldiers, and with the citizens of Newport,
but was a brave and skillful officer.

It was often that boys as well as men were sent from the town on board the Admiral's ship for any offence, and confined there for some time, by the arbitrary authority of those in power. Marshal law was the law of the place. A small lad about 13 years of age was placed in this situation, previous to General Prescott's return, and was on board, with many others, at the time the General dined there. He did not know General Prescott.

After dinner the wine circulated freely, and a toast and song were repeatedly called for.—
In the course of the evening the first Lieutenant observed to the Admiral, who was a jolly son of Neptune, that there was a Yankee lad on board who would shame all the singing.—"Bring him up here," says Prescott. The boy was accordingly brought into the cabin. The Admiral perceived him to be a sailor. The little fellow being somewhat intimidated by gold-laced coats, epaulettes, &c., replied, "I can't sing any songs but Yankee songs." The Admiral perceiv-ing that he was embarrassed, ordered the steward to give him a glass of wine, saying, "Come my little fellow, don't be frightened, give us one of your Yankee songs." General Prescott spoke in his usual haughty imperious manner, you'd—
"I'll give you a song, or I'll give you a dozen."
A brutal interjection and assured the lad that he should be set at liberty the next day, if he would give them a song, any one he could recollect.

The following ditty, written by a sailor of Newport, was then given, to the great amusement of the Company.

"Twas on a dark and stormy night
The wind and waves did roar,
Bald Barton then, with twenty men,
Went down unto the shore.
And in a whale boat they set off
To Rhode Island fair,
To catch a red-coat General
Who then resided there.
Three British fleets, and guard boats strong,
They held their dangerous way,
Till they arrived unto their port;
And then did not delay.
A tawny son of Africa's race,
Then through the ravine he led,
And entering then the overing-house,
They found him in his bed.
But to get in they had no means,
Except poor Cutler's head,
Who beat the door down, then rushed in,
And seized him in his bed.
Stop, let me put my breeches on,
The General then did pray;
Your breeches, Massa, I will take,
For dress we cannot stay.
Then through the ravine he led him,
With shoes and breeches none,
And placed him in their boat quite snug,
And from the shore were gone.
Soon the alarm was sounded loud,
The Yankees there have come,
And stolen Prescott from his bed,
And him they've carried home.
The drums were beat, sky-rockets flew,
The soldiers shouldered arms,
And march'd around the grounds they knew,
Fill'd with the most dire alarms.
But through the fleet, with muffled oars,
They held their devious way,
And landed him on Gannett shore,
Where Britain held no sway.
When unto land they came,
Where rescue there was none,
A bold bold push, the General cried,
Of prisoners I am one."

There was a general shout of all the company, during the whole song, and at the close, one who was a prisoner on board at the time, observed, "he thought the deck would come through with the stamping and cheering."

General Prescott joined most heartily in the merriment. Trusting his hand into his pocket, he handed the boy a guinea, saying "here, you house which was occupied by Prescott.

young dog, is a guinea for you." The boy was set at liberty the next morning.

The following vivid description of the unparalleled emigration to Illinois, is taken from the 9d number of the Chicago American, of 13th inst. published in the village of Chicago, by Thomas O. Davis, recently of this city. Indeed the "Chicago American" is itself a striking evidence of the rapid growth, and increasing importance of that country, as it is but a few months since its enterprising proprietor was an apprentice, and more recently a journeyman in this city; in both of which stations he did himself credit; as we are confident he will in his present capacity, as proprietor, publisher, and editor of a journal in this miniature city of the "far West."

The paper is handsomely printed on good paper, with new type, and evinces both talent and industry. A specimen of number one and two may be seen at the store of Messrs. T. & C. Wood, Stationers, next door to this office, who are agents to receive and forward subscriptions and advertisements.—N. Y. Amer.

"The day is still, they come."—The tide of emigration which is flowing in, this season, far exceeds that of any former period. The flood-gates of enterprise seem to be let loose upon us, and multitudes are crowding on to this young land, as if the pestilence were behind, eager to find a better home, where they can build their fortunes and their wives, and enjoy the plenty which our fat fields yield to the hand of industry. In addition to the actual emigrants that are now pressing into this region, the approaching land sale is bringing into our town a crowd of strangers, and capitalists ready to avail themselves of the benefits of the rapid rise in value of the real estate of the country. The actual population of Chicago, we cannot estimate with any degree of accuracy, but it is now supposed to be between 2500 and 3000. Strangers, to the amount of some hundreds more, fill our public houses and streets, our wharves are covered with men, women and children, just landed from the vessels, and even some store houses have been thrown open to receive the unsheltered emigrants, who had else remained under the open sky upon the wharves.
Some build tents upon the spot where they are landed from the boat, in the middle of streets, then raise them and move on. The cry is "Westward Ho!" and they press on still deeper in the interminable prairie; history seems to be filling up the prophecy of the Bishop of Cloyne, the "Star of Empire is taken up its way westward, and in its last ascendant shall shine upon the noblest kingdom. The emigration to Illinois this season is chiefly crowding into the northern part of the State.
Cook county, which two years ago exhibited a few scattered dwellings, along the groves or the streams, is now rife with thriving settlements; and some smart villages have arisen too, as by enchantment. The solitary inhabitant of a grove, has seen a community suddenly gather around him. Schools are actually in successful operation, where a year since was but a solitary emigrant. But we have land enough yet when offers itself to the moulding hand of the emigrant—yet untouched, and invites the hand of cultivation.

La Salle, and other neighbouring counties at the north, are receiving a similar influx of emigration, though perhaps less abundantly than Cook. We are informed that they are rapidly settling in the Rock River country—a beautiful, fertile, and healthy region, and that hundreds have within the last few months, occupied the region before inhabited by a dozen or more.
We rejoice in the fair prospect and rapid growth of our State. Our fat fields will soon be reduced to culture; and we trust, too, that our rivers will be deepened and brought into communication with each other and with the great commercial marts of the nation, by artificial channels or roads; and thus our produce be made valuable by the convenience and facilities of good markets. Let emigrants come—we have an immense domain for them. More than twenty millions of acres of land in Illinois are spread out before them. Richer fields were never bared to the sun.

We welcome them to our young home of enterprize and prosperity. We welcome them to partake with us the pleasure as well as the hardships of a new country, and to enjoy with us the fond hopes in prospect.

Power of the English Law.—The Mayor of London was lately fined 20 shillings for placing drapery goods on the footway in front of his shop.

Wealth of London Editors.—The office of the London Morning Chronicle was lately robbed of £200 in gold and silver, and £250 in checks and bank notes. We are very sure it would be difficult for any thief to find so much ready money in the coffers of American editors.

The "No plus ultra" of all strikes we have ever heard of, has at last taken place at Bedford.
The paupers there struck, and demanded wages in money; after which they attacked the house of the guardians, broke the windows, &c., and were not put down until an effective police was sent up from London.

The gross weight of the petitions sent out from Canada to Parliament is 1500 pounds! We did not know there was so much paper in all Canada.

The money market in England is represented to be in a very embarrassing condition in consequence of the prospective curtailment of the issues of the Bank of England.

The editor will spare no pains to obtain correct and early information of public occurrences at the seat of the Federal Government; and his editorial comments will be as much as possible, free from party or sectional bias. If the Washington Mirror should continue to be liberally patronized, the publisher will continue to make further improvements.

He respectfully announces the following new arrangements: 1st. The Washington Mirror will continue on its present size and price without any change or alteration in the ensuing volume. 2d. Country subscribers will have their papers regularly mailed on the day of publication. 3d. During the session of congress, a weekly article will be prepared and invariably appear under the head of 'Sayings and Doings in Congress.' 4th. During the recess the political rumors and on-dits at the seat of the General Government, will be noted for the information of distant subscribers. 5th. The names of all the subscribers to the Mirror in Washington, Georgetown and Alexandria, will be published, once every six months, in an advertising directory, with the profession and residence of each subscriber. 6th. For the information of commercial readers, a selection will be made and published every week, from the New York Journal of Commerce; also a price current, adapted to the Washington and Georgetown markets and carefully corrected for the Mirror by intelligent mercantile gentlemen. This information will be given under the head 'Commercial.' 7th. For the Ladies' and Literary Department of the Mirror, good original, and well selected matter will be constantly provided. Being already nearly seven hundred subscribers in the city of Washington alone, and a very handsome subscription in Georgetown and Alexandria, the Mirror will, it is presumed, obtain a fair portion of advertising patronage. Communications, whether containing orders or remittances, must be addressed (postage free) to W. Thompson, editor of the Mirror, Washington city, D. C. We shall be much obliged to the editors with whom we exchange, if they will aid us in making known these arrangements and the enlargement of the Mirror.

EDITED BY

THE REV. RICH'D. COTTEMOLE, B. D.

AND

THE REV. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.

No other country is so rich as England in Sacred Literature. Her greatest Poets and Philosophers have shared with her Divines, in setting forth and establishing the truths of Revelation; while her Divines have been distinguished alike by the copiousness and the depth of their learning.

The soundness of character thus given to the standard Theology of England has, through a variety of circumstances, been happily prevented from degenerating into the harshness of scholasticism; and the whole series of our 'Sacred Classics,' is a well of truth and consolation, as open to the general reader as to the most learned student.

It is intended to comprise in this collection, the best works of all the most celebrated writers, whose labours have been devoted to the elucidation and practical enforcement of the principles of revealed truth; whether in their application to the immortal interests of individuals, or to the order and well-being of society. Treatises on the Doctrines, Morality, and Evidences of Christianity, which have received the permanent stamp of general approbation; select Sermons of the most eminent Divines; the most interesting specimens of Religious Biography; and the choicest examples of Devotional and Sacred Poetry, will succeed each other in the order which may be judged most conducive to the benefit and gratification of the reader.

To the productions of each author, each separate production, as they are received, will be printed in an introductory Essay, pointing out the chief excellencies; and, in some instances, presenting a biographical sketch of the Author, with remarks on the state of religion in his times.

It is the desire of the Proprietors, in taking 'THE SACRED CLASSICS' to present the collection to the public at such a price, that he who purchases at present the cheapest of ephemeral publications, may for the same money, possess himself of works which cannot fail to afford him guidance and support in the highest exercises of his faculties, and under every vicissitude of life.

The work will be handsomely printed in Foolscap 8vo. on good paper, cloth pressed, neatly bound in Morocco Cloth, lettered; and published (in Volumes of about 400 pages each) on the first day of every month.

Price, Three Shillings and Sixpence.

Forming the cheapest series of works ever offered to the public.

Of the Extra Globe.

THE undersigned propose to issue the first number of a new series of the EXTRA GLOBE, on Monday, the 25th of May next, and to publish it weekly for six months, making twenty six numbers; the last to contain an Index to the whole. It will be printed upon the double royal paper, made up in quarto form, like the Extra and Congressional Globe published by us last year. The 26 numbers will make 416 quarto royal pages.

It will contain the principal original articles of the Daily and Semi-Weekly Globes, notices of the public meetings, the elections, and public proceedings in every State in the Union, in relation to the canvass for the next Presidency—a contest which the indications of the present year will go far to decide.

The first number will contain the Proceedings of the Democratic National Convention, to be held at Baltimore on the 20th of next month. An excellent Reporter has already been engaged to report the Proceedings of the Convention, and the Speeches which may be made on the occasion.

We request the favour of those friends to whom this Prospectus may be sent, to circulate it, for the purpose of obtaining subscribers. A copy of the work will be sent to the newspapers that copy this Prospectus.

WALDIE'S CIRCULATING LIBRARY.

BUBBLES FROM THE BRUNNENS OF NASSAU.

A description of the fashionable watering places in Germany, by an old man, will form the commencement of the fourth volume of Waldie's Library.

This will be followed, at an early day, by the Memoirs of Henry Masses de la Tuile, who was confined for thirty five years in the different State Prisons in France, now first translated into English.

The works published in the current volume, now on the point of completion, are the following:

Knutzner, or the German's Tale, a novel, by the author of Canterbury Tales.

Memoirs of Sir James Campbell, of Ardkinglass; written by himself: a very piquant book, containing anecdotes of most of the distinguished individuals of the last sixty years.

Good Sir Walter; a tale by the author of Family Portraits.

The Broken Heart; a dramatic sketch, from the Italian.

Rome in the Nineteenth Century; in a series of letters written during a residence in that city, by a Lady.

The Deaf and Dumb Page; a Tale.

Anecdotes of the Court of Louis the XIV.; by the Duke of St. Simon.

The Black Watch; an Historical Novel, by the author of the Donnie's Legacy; &c. &c. One of the best novels, say the London Magazines, of the present day.

Tudor's new book of Travels in Mexico and Cuba.

Allan Cunningham's Biographical and Critical History of Literature for the last fifty years.

Helen, a Novel, by Maria Edgeworth.

Journal of a West India Proprietor, kept during a residence in the Island of Jamaica, by the late Matthew G. Lewis, Esq. M. P. author of the Monk, &c.

The Curate's Tale, or Practical Joking; from a new work entitled Nights of the Round Table.

The Three Westminster boys, of Cowper, Lord Chancellor Thurlow, and Warren Hastings, contrasted from the same.

A Narrative of the Shipwreck of the Antelope at Pelow, in 1785, and a brief but accurate account of Prince Le Bo.

All the above cost in the 'Library' but 82 50!!!

Subscriptions for the above valuable work received at this office.

PROSPECTUS TO PUBLISH THE LONDON, EDINBURGH, FOREIGN AND WESTMINSTER QUARTERLY REVIEWS, FOR $8 PER ANNUM.

THE above Journals are already so well known to the public, that little need be said of their respective merits.

The well sustained reputation of the LONDON QUARTERLY, not only as an able defender of Tory principles, and the old order of things, but as the witty and most entertaining of Reviews, will always command the attention of the literary and scientific.

The EDINBURGH, celebrated for the vigor, learning and acuteness which its articles display, conducted by some of the principal literary men of the modern Athens, is an equally powerful champion of the moderate Reform party.

The FOREIGN QUARTERLY occupies a neutral ground in Politics, and is devoted to continental literature.

The WESTMINSTER is but little known in this country. It may be considered as the advocate of the Radicals, and the mouth piece of Benthamism. It represents the principles of a party already numerous in England, and fast increasing in the United States.

The numbers will be put to press immediately after they shall be received from Europe; and will contain the entire matter of the above works; making four annual volumes of upwards of six hundred pages.

They will be executed in a good style, and be printed in a shape but little differing from that of the European editions.

The price will be $8 per annum, payable three months after the delivery of the first number. The English copies cannot be had for less than $50. Of the three at present republished, two of them alone cost $10.

Any individual procuring four subscribers, and remitting $30 on the receipt of the first number, will be allowed an additional copy.

Subscriptions papers to be returned, and all communications to be addressed, post paid, to Theodore Foster, Albany, N. Y. Oct. 16.

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LIBRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan.

To establish a fuller medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the 'Companion' is intended to supply. While reading for the 'Library' a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magaziniana, interspersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the 'Library' designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret.

To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. the 'Companion to Waldie's Library' will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large.

It is believed that with the 'Library,' the 'Journal,' and the 'Companion,' such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The 'COMPANION' will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Library—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for a club of five—and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will evince a sufficiency of patronage.

The proprietor of the Select Circulating Library, fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others it were useless here to enter upon, the 'Library' itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the 'Library' and 'Companion' both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, at the two, will be one dollar and ninety-five cents; divided into seventy eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia, while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

Subscriptions to the 'Companion,' will be taken either with or without the 'Library.'

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the 'Library,' will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.

WILLIAM L. BATHURST.
London, June 10.

An order was received last evening at the Customs House, from the Treasury, authorizing the exportation of arms and ammunition to Spain, and remission also, of the export duty. When these demonstrations in favour of the Spanish cause have been made too late, it is not too late to speculate; but the present political state of affairs is becoming truly more interesting to a large body of people here. The position of affairs in the Foreign Market is of a very gloomy character indeed, and what in ordinary circumstances would have been termed excellent news, has been completely paralyzed by the actual state of the account in the Foreign House, and the difficulty in making sales without tremendous sacrifices. In the arrangement of the account nothing further has been accomplished, and one party of a highly respectable character was declared to-day, we believe, as a matter of policy, to save property. It has been strongly circulated here to-day, that there has been a complete change in the administration of the House of Portugal, and consequently it has created a very great impression upon the minds of those most interested in the affairs of that kingdom. With regard to the Order in Council suspending the Portuguese Ballment Bill in so far as the Queen Regent's armies may go, will be announced in an extraordinary Gazette this evening.

WRECK AT SEA AND HEROIC CONDUCT.—A motley of characters broke out in Nov. last on board the Queen Mary, Capt. Davis, a whaler, while at sea. The classification of the crew was originally excited by the captain refusing them a double allowance of grog. On the 21st Nov. the captain having been informed of what was going on, prepared for the worst, and secretly removed six barrels of powder and 1500 rounds of cartridges into his state room. The following day White, the chief officer, one of the mutineers, entered the cabin, and was told by the captain that if they attempted to take the ship, he would blow her up. On Sunday White told the crew of this and said they had better assist him. The captain then determined, rather than the ship should be taken, to perish with all on board. Shortly afterwards he looked up the companion, and observed the three mates, one of whom had a rope in his hand, ready to secure him. The captain then, holding the muzzle of one pistol into a barrel of powder, and the other pistol in his right hand, prepared to meet them. White first came down, but appeared thunderstruck when the captain (directing his pistol towards his head) declared if he moved an inch he would blow his brains out, and discharge the other pistol into the powder. White appeared petrified with fear, and the captain remained in this position several minutes, with the pistol cocked, observing that the slightest pressure on the trigger would send them all into the air. White begged for mercy, and the captain drove him into a stateroom, and locked him in.

The second mate came down soon afterwards to look for White, and on receiving a similar reproof, ran up the companion. The captain finding the ship was going on at her course, went on the deck with the steward, and threatened to shoot the first man that disobeyed orders, and restricted the crew to a particular part of the vessel. Hearing, however, that they were all disposed to seize the ship, he thought it best to run before the wind, which was accordingly done. The British Consul there, the three officers (George White, William Barrow, Joseph Barrow) John Bryman, and Henry Hunt, were placed under arrest, and the North Star, whences they are shortly expected to arrive in time to take their trial at the Admiralty Sessions.

AWFUL SHIPWRECK.
A passenger who was one of the 15 saved from the wreck of the Plutarch of Liverpool, Captain Jackson, states that there were 240 souls on board, and that they were six days on their way to New York when she struck about midnight on Thursday, the 25th ult. being they thought of the water, who was intoxicated. Two hundred and twenty five souls perished; the Captain, three sailors and 11 passengers were picked up by the Francis Mary, Flynn master, brought into Dublin. The passengers were mostly from the county of Limerick; there were only a few from Tipperary, amongst whom were persons of the name of Kenchin, Dick, Mayher, neighbourhood of Cashel.—Liverpool Chronicle.

Married on Tuesday evening last, by the Rev. Mr. McMillan, Dr. WILLIAM S. McTear, son of Frederick City, to Mrs. HARRIS NORTON, of this city.

IN CHANCERY.
14th July, 1835.

On the petition of John A. Reigle, John Clayton, and John Randall, trading under the name of Clayton & Randall, and Richard Estep and Benjamin M. Hodges, surviving partners of Wm. M. Lansdale.

George Cruse, and others, heirs at law of Solomon Sparrow, Senior.

THE object of the petition in this case is to obtain an order for the distribution of the sum of three hundred and nineteen dollars and nineteen cents, deposited in this court to the credit of the mortgaged estate of Solomon Sparrow, Senior, among the petitioners, creditors of the said Solomon Sparrow, Senior, or for payment of the same to Richard Estep, the administrator of the said Solomon Sparrow, Senior.

The petition states that certain mortgaged estate of Solomon Sparrow, Senior, was sold in March, 1819 by Solomon Sparrow, Junior, a trustee under a decree of this court, in a case in which Cornelia Lansdale was complainant, and Solomon Sparrow, Thomas Sparrow, John Sparrow, Isabella Nicholson, George Cruse, and Ann his wife, and Joseph Harwood, and Matilda his wife, were defendants. That after the ratification of the sale the proceeds of sale were applied to the extinguishment of the complainant's claim, and a claim due to Benjamin M. Hodges, and the residue was allotted to the above named defendants, the heirs at law of the said Solomon Sparrow, Senior. That the said sum of money, although so allotted, has never been drawn from this court, into which it has been paid by the trustee. That the petitioners are creditors of the said Solomon Sparrow Senior, and their claims are exhibited with the petition. The petition also states, that Ann Cruse, Joseph and Matilda Harwood, John Sparrow and Thomas Sparrow, are dead.—That John S. Sellman is the administrator of Joseph Harwood, Ann Sparrow the administratrix of John Sparrow. That there has been no administration on the estate of Thomas Sparrow. That Maurice Sparrow, John B. Sparrow, Sarah Sparrow, Mary C. Sparrow and Michael C. Sparrow, are the heirs at law of Thomas Sparrow. The petitioners, by way of amendment, state that they have since their petition ascertained that Maurice Sparrow and George Cruse, do not reside in the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon ordered, that the petitioners by causing a copy of this order to be published in some newspaper once in each of three successive weeks before the 14th day of August next, give notice to the absent defendants of the substance and object of the petition, that they may be warned to appear in this court in person, or by a solicitor, before the 14th day of November next, to show cause, if any they have, why an order should not pass as prayed.

Nathan Waters, Nathan J. Waters, Margaret Ratcliff, John Waters, Ratcliff and Mary Ann Ratcliff.

THE object of the bill filed in this cause is to obtain a decree to set aside and declare void the deeds hereinafter mentioned, and to compel the defendants to deliver up to the complainant the possession of the lands purchased by him, and for an account of the rents, issues and profits thereof.

The bill states, that on the 30th day of December, 1826, the complainant attended a sale of certain lands and tenements, the property and estate of a certain Nathan Waters of Prince George's county, which sale had been advertised by the sheriff of said county, and at which sale the complainant became the purchaser of said lands and tenements, for the sum of thirteen hundred and fifty dollars. That said sale was made at the instance of a certain Samuel Peach of said county, who at the April Term of the County Court of said county, in the year 1824, obtained a judgment against the said Nathan Waters for the sum of fourteen thousand four hundred and eighty-five dollars, to be released on payment of seven hundred and forty-seven dollars and eighty-seven and a half cents, with interest and costs of suit. That notwithstanding the said sale, the possession of said lands and tenements is now withheld from complainant by said Nathan Waters, and by a certain Nathan J. Waters the son of said Nathan Waters, and a certain Samuel Ratcliff, during the lifetime of said Samuel Ratcliff, who married a daughter of said Nathan Waters, and since his death by his widow and children, under a pretence that they the said Nathan J. Waters and Samuel Ratcliff had purchased said lands and tenements of said Nathan Waters previous to the rendition of said judgment, and paid him a valuable consideration for the same, which pretence on their part is utterly false and dishonest, and fraudulent as against complainant, and the then creditors of said Nathan Waters, and especially as against said Peach. That during the pendency of said suit against said Nathan Waters, and a long time after the cause of action had occurred, and but a short time previous to the rendition of said judgment, the said Nathan Waters, and said Nathan J. Waters, and said Ratcliff, knowing that judgment must be had against said Nathan Waters by said Peach, and intending to cheat and defraud said Peach, and subject him to the total loss of the said sum of money due to him by said Nathan Waters, and confederating together to deceive and cheat said Peach, and the other creditors of said Nathan Waters, on the 17th of February, 1824, caused the said Nathan Waters to execute a conveyance to them the said Nathan J. Waters and the said Samuel Ratcliff jointly, of all his the said Nathan Waters' interest and right, title, claim and demand whatsoever, of, in or out of a large quantity of land in said county, combining several distinct and separate tracts, which were then and ever since have been in the possession and under the control and management of said Nathan Waters, and which contains together between seven and eight hundred acres, and which complainant charges is some lands sold to him under the said judgment of said court, and he also conveyed to said Nathan J. Waters and Samuel Ratcliff, by the same deed, all his the said Nathan Waters' interest and right, title, claim and demand whatsoever, of, in or out of a large quantity of land in said county, combining several distinct and separate tracts, which were then and ever since have been in the possession and under the control and management of said Nathan Waters, and which contains together between seven and eight hundred acres, and which complainant charges is some lands sold to him under the said judgment of said court, and he also conveyed to said Nathan J. Waters and Samuel Ratcliff, by the same deed, all his the said Nathan Waters' interest and right, title, claim and demand whatsoever, of, in or out of a large quantity of land in said county, combining several distinct and separate tracts, which were then and ever since have been in the possession and under the control and management of said Nathan Waters, and which contains together between seven and eight hundred acres, and which complainant charges is some lands sold to him under the said judgment of said court, and he also conveyed to said Nathan J. THE SACRED CLASSICS,

OR, CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY: With an original Introductory Essay to each Author.

Edited by THE REV. RICHARD COTTELMORE, B. D. and the Rev. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.

THE Rev. HENRY STEBBING, M. A. has been a Philosopher and a Theologian. His great labours have been devoted to the truths of Revelation; while his Divines have been distinguished alike by the copiousness and the depth of their learning.

The soundness of character thus given to the standard Theology of England has, through a variety of circumstances, been happily prevented from degenerating into the harshness of scholasticism; and thus the whole series of our "Sacred Classics," is a well of truth and consolation, as open to the general reader as to the most learned student.

It is intended to comprise in this collection, the best works of all the most celebrated writers, whose labours have been devoted to the elucidation and practical enforcement of the principles of revealed truth, whether in their application to the immortal interests of individuals, or to the order and well being of society. Treatises on the Doctrines, Morality, and Evidence of Christianity, which have received the permanent stamp of general approbation; select Sermons of the most eminent Divines; the most interesting specimens of Religious Biography; and the choicest examples of Devotional and Sacred Poetry, will succeed each other in the order which will be most conducive to the benefit and gratification of the reader.

To the productions of each author, or to each separate production, as the case may seem to require, will be prefixed an Introductory Essay, pointing out their characteristic excellencies; and, in some instances, comprehending a biographical sketch of the Author, with remarks on the state of religion in his time.

It is the desire of the Proprietors, in undertaking "THE CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY," to present the collection to the public at such a price, that he who purchases at present the cheapest of ephemeral publications, may, for the same money, possess himself of works which cannot fail to afford him guidance and support in the highest exercises of his faculties, and under every vicissitude of life.

The work will be handsomely printed in Foolscap 8 vo. on good paper, cold-pressed, neatly bound in Morocco Cloth, lettered; and published (in Volumes of about 400 pages each) on the first day of every month.

Price, Three Shillings and Sixpence: Forming the cheapest series of works ever offered to the public.

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LI-

BRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—it many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan. To establish a fuller medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was added; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the "Companion" is intended to supply. While reading for the "Library" a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magaziniana, interspersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterlies. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the "Library" designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret. To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. &c. the "Companion to Waldie's Library" will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the "Library," the "Journal," and the "Companion," such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The "COMPANION" will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Library—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for two—and clubs five and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will evince a sufficiency of patronage.

The proprietor of the "Select Circulating Library," fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others is were useless here to enter upon, the "Library" itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value, or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the "Library" and "Companion" both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, on the two, will be one dollar and ninety-five cents, divided into seventy eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia, while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

Subscriptions to the "Companion," will be taken either with or without the "Library."

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the "Library," will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.

OFFICE.

NO. 31.

for his life about three years ago, for shooting his colored boy, and it was some pleasure to meet a man who knew how things should be done.

While Jack was delivering himself of this laudatory notice of the short commander, he was very adroitly concealing the pistol-case under his cloak—the phaeton was sent round to the yard—and, after issuing due directions to his servant touching the greys, we started for the scene of action.

"I wonder who it is we are to shoot!" said Jack the Devil.

"Or be shot by?" I responded with a sigh.

"No fear of that, John. Has there been an accident in our family these thirty years but two? and everybody knows that our grand-uncle, long Dominick, would have shot Clancy, if he had not forgot his spectacles. Luck's everything—never take your eye from your man—pull when you come to the present, and I'll bet a hundred we give the coroner a job."

"Heaven forbid, Jack! It would ruin me;—if I killed him I should be disinherited."

"Then level low and hit him in the legs. Heigh ho! I should like to get an inventory of the articles I smashed at Pauline's. Zounds! it would make a saint swear, to think that for a petty squabble, you will have the pleasure of shooting at a scoundrel that only elbowed you in the street; while I, under such provocation, must be contented with brooking a footman's bones, and demolishing a room full of trumpery."

As he spoke we mounted a stile; and, in the corner of a large grass-field, observed two persons in waiting, who we concluded were the aggrieved one and his friend. We were not astray; for, on approaching them, the little commander advanced uncovered, and Jack was equally polite. For my part, I felt no fancy to exhibit a bare head to a gentleman I intended laming for life; and indeed my opponent appeared equally unsocial, for he turned his back and walked slowly off. I strove to catch a glimpse of his features, but he was so closely enveloped in a boxcoat that it failed me totally.

Our companions were not idle, but went to work like men of business. The amenity of manner that marked their intercourse was delightful, while their politeness would have put a master of ceremonies to the blush.

"I think this is as sweet a spot," said the little man, "as we could find upon the field,—small we mark the distance from this glove!" and he laid one of his white kid-skins on the ground.

"We'll place the gentlemen, if you please, colonel," responded Jack the Devil, "across the ridge, and not leave any line to direct the eye."

"Precisely so." And the commander smiled graciously.

"Do you fight at ten or twelve?" inquired my cousin, and his bow was superbly.

"Why, faith!" said the colonel, "personally, I prefer ten; but I fancy twelve is the favorite distance,—and one must go with the world, you know." And the gentlemen interchanged an innocent laugh.

"Allow me to tell off the ground," said my kinsman, "and you can correct the paces after me."

"Lord, by no means!—quite certain of your accuracy," and Jack stepped over the grass as gingerly as a dancing-master. Confound him! he seemed crippled; I had seen him take a stride of twice the length in crossing a dirty sweeping.

The colonel turned to me.

"Perfect gentleman your friend there,—au fait at his arrangements. With a little more experience, there would not be a prettier second in England.—We may regulate the tools," he continued, as my cousin returned after sticking a twig into the turf, twelve paces from the colonel's kid-skin; and the commander proceeded to unlock a mahogany-box, hitherto concealed under an opera-cloak.

"What a nice fellow that major is John!—regular trump. I'll take my oath he's the man that was tried for murder." And he opened his case, and the friends extracted a weapon each from their respective depositories. The colonel handed a pistol to my kinsman, who in return presented his to the short commander.

"Could you execute with that Sturgeson?" said the little man.

"Beautifully balanced!" responded Jack the Devil.

"But I am more accustomed to the saw-handle!"

"Sweet look that of Mortimer!" and every click went through me like a smallsword. There they were, bandying compliments, and criticising "back-sights," as coolly as if chaffing in a shooting-gallery.

"Shall we load the case?" quoth Jack.

"I think we had better, as your friend is not disposed to apologize; it will save trouble, and bring the affair sooner to an end."

From the extent of their preparations, it was quite evident that it would not be any fault of theirs, if the sulky gentleman or myself, was not, as they say in Connaught, "left quivering on a daisy."

I never saw men more expeditious. The pistols were loaded—the firing signal agreed upon,—and a sovereign tossed for choice of ground and word.—Jack won that honor, and he placed us with my right too directly behind the commander's white kid-skins.

The colonel was equally attentive to my adversary; he assisted him to take off his great-coat, and then put him on his ground.

"Be steady, now," said Jack the Devil, in a whisper. I fixed my eyes upon my opponent. Holy Saint Patrick! the first glance showed me a man I had never differed with in my life—it was Neville of the Guards!

Jack broke silence. "Stop, colonel; there's some mistake."

"None in the world, my dear fellow," replied the short commander.

"Why, those gentlemen have no cause of quarrel!" exclaimed Jack.

"Oh, abundant! said the soldier."

"I tell you they have not."

"Why, sir! was there not a kicking-match in Curzon-street?"

"Ay; but there was another in Coventry-street."

"For honor, gentlemen, the thing is most incomprehensible. Will you, sir,—and he addressed himself to me,—inform me if it be your intention to fire at my friend?"

"I assure you, sir," I replied, "I have not the most remote intention of doing so."

"Then, sir, whom did you come out to fight?"

"Nobody that I see here, sir."

"Are you, sir, Captain John Blake?"

"I am,—and there is another,—and I pointed to my kinsman."

"That is the person who insulted me," said Neville to his friend.

Well, well; the thing is easily remedied. Had it been half an hour later, we might have had a shot or two, before we found the true man. Ah! that puts all right, for Jack and I had changed places. And now you know, are you ready?

Both answered in the affirmative. The little man took out his snuff-box, and nodded politely to me. I gave the word.—Pop—went the pistol—and down went Mr. Neville of the Guards!

Communicated.

Mr. J. A. Smith closed his course of instruction in Dancing at this place, by a numerous attended Exhibition Ball on Wednesday, the 22d inst. The progress which his Pupils have made during the very short period of his residence among us, was matter of high gratification to every beholder, and peculiarly pleasing to the parents and friends of the graceful young beings, upon whom Mr. Smith's attention has been so successfully bestowed. We hope that a due share of public patronage will continue to reward the diligence and ability of that gentleman, whether he intends to revisit us next season, or select a different theatre for the teaching of his elegant and useful art.

AFFECTING SCENE.

This morning, Mrs. Sarah Taylor, wife of Ernest Taylor, corner of Spruce and Water streets, was found dead in her bed. When her niece went to call her, she was lying in her bed with her four children asleep or playing around her, unconscious of the calamity which made them orphans. Her appearance was natural, her countenance calm. Death had visited her with equal gentleness and suddenness. Two of her children are twins under ten years of age; the other two are younger. Her husband is down the river at present pursuing his vocation.—Phil. Gaz.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM HANGING.

On Thursday night week the feelings of the audience at the Garrick Theatre, in London, were painfully excited by the following circumstances:—During the performance of Signor Plimmeri on the slack rope, he suspended himself in the centre of the stage by forming a noose in the rope, through which he passed his head, so that the whole weight of his body rested on the back part of his head and chin. That part of the rope which pressed on his chin accidentally slipped underneath, and on to his throat, and having lost all power to relieve himself from his painful and perilous situation, strangulation was rapidly going on. The audience perceiving from the convulsive state of his body, that a few moments must have terminated his existence, gave vent to their feelings. Some shrieked loud, others fainted, and the scene altogether may be more easily conceived than described. In consequence of the difficulty of getting a ladder at a moment to reach the rope, the unfortunate man's sufferings were protracted for nearly two minutes; and when he was cut down there were scarcely any signs of life. By the prompt attention of two surgeons in the neighbourhood, who instantly bled him and administered strong restoratives, he partially recovered, and is now quite well.

SLAVE CASE AND RIOT.

Yesterday afternoon our streets were thronged by a mob, under considerable excitement, produced by the arrest of a slave family, and their subsequent rescue. As far as we can learn the facts, they are as follow. One Tant, a slave agent from the South, having learned that a family of slaves, consisting of a man, his wife and child, were living at St. Catharines, U. C. went over and brought them away in the night. They were followed to this city, when a party of blacks organized, and pursued the kidnappers as far as Hamburg, when they effected a rescue, and bore the liberated individuals off in triumph, with the intention of placing them again on the Canadian side; but when at the ferry at Black Rock, a rencontre took place between them and several citizens who had been called by the police to assist in arresting them, which resulted in somewhat severe injuries on both sides. One young gentleman named Fremont, attached to Mr. Duffy's Theatre, received a dangerous contusion on the temple, from an iron ball in the hand of one of the blacks, during the melee.

The slaves succeeded in making good their escape. Eight or ten of the blacks engaged in the riot have been committed by Justice Grosvenor for trial.

TROUBLE AT THE SOUTH.

From the Nashville Banner of July 15.

INSURRECTION OF THE SLAVES IN MISSISSIPPI.

A merchant of Nashville received a letter this morning, from a gentleman of respectability in Mississippi, giving an account of an extensive insurrection of the slaves in that State, which was, fortunately discovered a few days before the intended massacre took place. The letter is evidently written under strong excitement, and perhaps, with some exaggeration; but the account given is, no doubt, substantially true.

The writer says:—I take a few moments from the awful distress and confusion existing here, to inform you that this (Hinds) and several adjoining counties, have been under arms day and night, in our own defence, expecting every moment to be burned up or have our throats cut, by the negroes. A dreadful alarm exists, particularly among the females.

An insurrection has, it appears, been on hand among the negroes, for the last six months, headed by white men. The massacre was to have commenced on the 4th of July. Their plans were well laid, and, no doubt but that thousands of the whites would have been murdered, had we not been saved, only a week before the time, by a faithful negro man, who was in all their secrets, and was to have been high in command, and who revealed to his master the whole plan; and to convince him of its reality, placed his master in a position where, from his place of concealment, he could overhear one of their night meetings, at which the whole scheme was discussed.

A great many negroes were, in consequence, taken up in Madison county, from whom the committee found out who the white leaders were. About ten negroes and five or six white men have been hung without any form of law or trial, except an examination before the examining committee. They are still going on trying and hanging. It appears from a confession that Dr. Cotton made, that their route was to have commenced from some place above this, and proceed thence through the principal towns, to Natchez, and then on to New Orleans, murdering all the white men and ugly women—sparing the handsome ones and making wives of them—and plundering and burning as they went. Dr. Cotton after being condemned upon negro testimony, made a confession, and disclosed the whole plan. He is an old confederate of a man by the name of Murrell, now in the Nashville Penitentiary.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Clinton, Mississippi, to a gentleman in Lynchburg, Va. dated the 24th July, 1834.

"Our community is in a state of excitement, on the subject of an insurrection of the slaves. It seems probable that they contemplated it pretty generally, and that last night was the time fixed on for the purpose. In Madison county, they have hung two white men (both steam-doctors,) and seven negroes at least. About Livingston, the excitement was greatest. The summary justice, however, of Mississippians, has probably quieted the spirit for years. Acting on the principle of 'salus populi suprema est lex,' the good people of that place, and its vicinity appointed a committee to pass on the guilt or innocence of the accused, and they acted accordingly. The two whites were pronounced guilty on yesterday, and after the sentence was announced, an hour was allowed them for preparation, when they were swung off.—One of them under the gallows, acknowledged the justice of his fate, and stated that the plan was for a general rising that night, from Beattie's Bluff in Madison to Natchez: that the discovery there would probably defeat it as to this part of the State, but that there would be a rising that night so sure as the night should come, &c. The whites appear to have been at the head of it, and with the foolish hope of getting and carrying off plunder.

"We have heard nothing further this morning. The Postmaster at Livingston sent notice to this place, so soon as there was a surmise of the apprehended agitation among the slaves, and it is possible it may be suppressed over the State. We are, however, uneasy here about the large plantations below; a day or two will remove or confirm those fears. Other white persons and slaves were under examination [or trial,] before the court at Livingston, last evening. We have not yet heard their fate."

FURTHER PARTICULARS OF THE AFFAIR AT VICKSBURG, AND THE CONTEMPLATED REVOLT IN MISSISSIPPI—TWENTY-SIX PERSONS HUNG.

Extract of a letter dated

JACKSON, July 8.

"Twenty miles from this place, in Madison county, a company of white men and negroes were detected before they did any mischief. On Sunday last they hung two steam doctors, one named Cotton, and the other Saunders, also seven negroes, without law or gospel, and from respectable authority we learn there were two preachers and ten negroes to be hanged this day. Cotton confessed every charge made against him, and that their object was to murder all, and to get as much property and cash as they could travel with—he also confessed that he and Ballance, who is since taken, belonged to the celebrated Mansel's company, of Tennessee, who is in the penitentiary. The last words he spoke, he remarked, the citizens from Madison county to Natchez would get H—ll. The whole country is in arms, and assembled at different points to protect their families.

"I am, very respectfully, &c."

(Postscript from the Natchez Courier, July 10.)

More news from Madison Hinds, and Warrens. A gentleman from above brings us the following news. While at Spring Hill on the sixth, from fifteen to twenty gentlemen rode up from Madison county. They stated that they had hung at Livingston several negroes, and two white men, Cotton and Saunders, both steam doctors, and occasionally preachers. They had obtained from Cotton a list of about fifty white men who were concerned in the conspiracy to excite the negroes to rebellion, fourteen of whom they had already caught, and had them in chains at Vernon and Livingston. They had but few minutes previous caught another named Rawson, and said they were near four others that they meant to have before morning. The next morning our informant went to Squire Sharkey's where a number had assembled. Squire S. said that the Madison men should not take the prisoners out of the county—a disagreement was the result, and they were discharged. This same company caught and confined a man by the name of Blackman.

Having reached Vicksburg, our informant inquired the particulars respecting the affair there, and was informed that that city had been a rendezvous for gamblers, murderers and swindlers, who had hitherto bid defiance to the law, and decent citizens. Since the alarm of an intended insurrection, well grounded suspicion had rested on many white men, as instigators and originators of the plot, and the gamblers, itinerant preachers, steam doctors, and clock pedlars, were generally considered the guilty leaders. Some of the negroes when first apprehended implicated them, and the two white men hung at Livingston made similar confessions. The citizens of Vicksburg formed an anti-gamblers society on the 4th, and at night lynched one of the fraternity. The next morning they gave public notice, that all gamblers must leave the town in twenty-four hours.

That night another was lynched. The next morning the citizens understood that a noted gambler, named North had defied them, barricaded his house and had employed several of his fellows to guard him, his house, and themselves. The volunteers were immediately assembled, and the citizens en masse united, marched to the residence of North and demanded admittance, and an unconditional surrender of the inmates. They were refused, and told that those within could protect themselves. The front door was forced, the occupants fired, and Dr. H. S. Bodley, a gentleman of great worth, was instantly killed. This unexpected reception aroused the citizens to madness and desperation. A rush was made, the gamblers were secured—4 in number. North and a notorious confederate not being found in the house, one of the most worthless of the four informed where they were to be found, and they were soon secured. The miser was immediately, and the fire was set to the common gallows.

While at Vicksburg, the citizens of that place, seized the names of the persons who were in connection with the intended insurrection, and would be hung.

Elram Perkins, of Madison, was shot from opposite Shawansaw, near Queen's Hill, county, by a gang of confederates, they were marked to take the guilty. Capt. Doyle with volunteers from Vicksburg, left on the 6th, in iron.

Mr. Dixon arrived at Vicksburg on the 8th, and stated that Perkins was alive and unharmed, and that another of the party, Mr. H. slightly shot. More had been hung in Madison, how many could not be ascertained. About twenty had been apprehended.

The New Orleans Bulletin of the 13th contains the following paragraph in addition to those above:

"The steamer Freedom confirms the report of the execution of the Vicksburg gamblers, and also on the 4th instant a quarrel originated on the Washington County, Mississippi, between a negro and Chaney, and that on the 6th, Chaney was attacked by Hashburger and friends, and resulted in the death of two of each, Chaney, and Wm. Chaney, Mr. Howard, belonging to Hashburger, and Richard Chaney wounded. It was reported at Vicksburg of this in consequence of difficulties among the insurrectionists, and others, twenty six persons and black, suffered death in the State of Mississippi on the 6th inst."

NEW ORLEANS.

The steamer Mogul reports that she saw at Natchez, several boats crowded with persons who had been ordered from that place, in consequence of their abandoned character; and also saw, at 18 miles below Natchez, one or two flat boats with the same description of persons, but females—all bound down the Mississippi. The boats of Natchez had driven every suspicious person a part of their towns known as "Natchez Hill."

HOUSE OF LORDS—June 12.

SPAIN.—Lord Stanford asked what was intended to burthen the public provision for the widows and children of subjects who might fall in the Spanish war. Lord Melbourne replied in the negative.

The Duke of Wellington gave notice Monday next he should move that a copy of the Order in Council be laid before their Lordships in order to afford the Noble Viscount (bourne) an opportunity to give a more explanation upon the subject to which it related.

The Marquis of Londonderry thought the issuing of this order in Council was the most important question that could be before Parliament, and he hoped the Noble peer would persevere in giving the House an opportunity to take this matter into consideration.

CANADA.—Lord Aberdeen moved for a copy of the appointment of Lord Gosford as Governor and Commander in Chief of the Province of Canada, and New Brunswick. He put the question with the intention of bringing his Majesty's Government, but met the purpose of learning from them their having departed from the plan of appointing a Lord Commissioner—a departure in consequence of the delay that had occurred he looked upon with serious apprehension, danger to the colony and to the interest of Great Britain.

Lord Glenelg said, in consequence of queries which he had instituted since he came into office, himself and his colleagues had necessary to change the plan of proceeding sanctioned by the late Government, but it was to depart from it. The late Government contemplated the appointment of a Lord Commissioner; the present Government intended to appoint a commission of three of whom the Governor was to be chief.

Lord Aberdeen regretted that Government had seen any necessity for departing from original design. He however felt obliged to the Noble Lord for the explanation given.

Adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, June 11.

Church of Scotland.

Sir William Rae brought forward his motion for referring to a select committee the petition that had been presented to the House relative to the proposed grant to the Church of Scotland.

Mr. Pringle seconded the motion.

The Lord Advocate said that as to the public money, he maintained that it was most unjust towards the Dissenters, who were reasonably object to be called upon to contribute towards the enlargement of a church from which they dissented. [Cheers.]

learned Lord concluded by moving an amendment to his Majesty, for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the means of religious worship afforded to the people of Scotland, whether belonging to the Church or to any denomination of Dissenters, and also into the existing law relative to building and repairing Churches in Scotland, as the only course could lead to any satisfactory result. [Cheers.]

After some further discussion, it was agreed upon the motion of Sir W. Rae, to adjourn debate.

IN CHANCERY.
4th July, 1835.

On the petition of John A. Reple, John Clay-tor, and John Russell, trading under the name of Clayton, Randall, and Richard Bishop and Benjamin M. Hodges, surviving partners of Wm. M. Lansdale, vs.

George Cruise, and others, heirs at law of Solomon Sparrow, Senior.

THE object of the petition in this case is to obtain an order for the distribution of the sum of three hundred and nineteen dollars and nineteen cents, deposited in this court to the credit of the mortgaged estate of Solomon Sparrow, Senior, among the petitioners, creditors of the said Solomon Sparrow, Senior, or for payment of the same to Richard Bishop, the administrator of the said
Solomon Sparrow, Senior.

The petition states that certain mortgaged estate of Solomon Sparrow, Senior, was sold in March 1819 by Solomon Sparrow, Junior, a trustee under a decree of this court, in a case in which Cornelia Lansdale was complainant, and Solomon Sparrow, Thomas Sparrow, John Sparrow, Isabella Nicholson, George Cruise, and Ann his wife, and Joseph Harwood, and Matilda his wife, were defendants. That after the ratification of the sale the proceeds of sale were applied to the extinguishment of the complainant's claim, and a claim due to Benjamin M. Hodges, and the residue was allotted to the above named defendants, the heirs at law of the said Solomon Sparrow, Senior. That the said sum of money, although so allotted, has never been paid from this court, into which it has been deposited by the trustee. That the petitioners are creditors of the said Solomon Sparrow, Senior, and their claims are exhibited with the petition. The petition also states, that Ann Cruise, Joseph and Matilda Harwood, John Sparrow and Thomas Sparrow, are dead.—
That John S. Sellman is the administrator of Joseph Harwood, Ann Sparrow the administratrix of John Sparrow. That there has been no administration on the estate of Thomas Sparrow. That Maurice Sparrow, John B. Sparrow, Sarah Sparrow, Mary C. Sparrow and Michael C. Sparrow, are the heirs at law of Thomas Sparrow. The petitioners, by way of amendment, state that they have since their petition ascertained that Maurice Sparrow and George Cruise, do not reside in the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon ordered, that the petitioners by causing a copy of this order to be published in some newspaper once in each of three successive weeks before the 14th day of August next, give notice to the absent defendants of the substance and object of the petition, that they may be warned to appear in this court in person, or by a solicitor, before the 14th day of November next, to shew cause, if any they have, why an order should not pass
as prayed.

NOVEL MODE OF CLUBBING.
WALDIE'S LIBRARY, PORT FO-LIO AND MUSEUM.

AS the publications now issued from the office of the Select Circulating Library are of a highly popular cast, and of a character to be appreciated by the educated portions of the community, and to circulate everywhere, by concert with the proprietor of the Museum, that work, the Port Folio and Library, are offered to those who take the three on the following conditions, viz:

The Museum, Port Folio and Library, if paid for in advance and addressed to the same individual whether in town or country, will be supplied for $12, thus enabling every individual to benefit by the clubbing system, without the necessity of applying to others.
Those who have made a payment for the current year to either of the works, of whatever amount, will be privileged to avail themselves of this arrangement, by paying the balance—thus

1. Those who have paid or now pay $5 for the Library, shall receive the Museum and Port Folio, the price of which separate is $9,
on the payment of $7.

2. Those who have paid or now pay $6 for the Museum, shall receive the Library and Port Folio, the price of which is separately
$8, on the payment of $6.

3. Those who have paid or now pay for the Port Folio, shall receive the Library and Museum on paying such a sum as will be equal to $12 on the whole.

4. The Circulating Library and Museum, will be sent to the same address on the payment of $10.

REMARKS.—The three works thus issued together, comprise a greater amount of the current literature of the age, than is issued in a periodical form from any other office in the United States, and will, the proprietor believes, with the addition of a good newspaper, supply to families all the advantages which could be furnished in a most extensive reading room in one of our Atlantic cities.
In the Library the newest and best books are regularly published; in the Museum and Port Folio it has been found by experience that every thing we could wish to copy from the entire British literary periodicals, omitting mostly the political articles, can be rapidly issued. These publications embrace so much that is desirable to be known, and are so generally perused in the best circles in America, that to be without either is to drop a link in the literary chain. They are all under the control of one mind, and therefore the reader will very rarely indeed be compelled to pay for the same matter twice, as they are independent of each other, complete in themselves, and free in general from any repetitions of the same articles.

These views the proprietor respectfully throws out for the consideration of the friends of sound and wholesome literature.

THE SACRED CLASSICS,

CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY.

With an original introductory essay to each author. Edited by RICHARD COTTERMOLE, B. D. and the Rev. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.

The following is the Advertisement of the London Publishers

UNIFORM IN SIZE WITH DR. LARDNER'S CYCLOPEDIA, THE SUNDAY LIBRARY, &c.

PRICE ONLY THREE SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE. On the 1st of January, 1834, will be published Vol. I. of a Series of the Standard Theological Works of England, under the general title of

THE SACRED CLASSICS,

OR, CABINET LIBRARY OF DIVINITY: With an original Introductory Essay to each Author.

EDITED BY THE REV. RICH'D. COTTERMOLE, B. D. AND

THE REV. HENRY STEBBING, M. A.

NO other country is so rich as England in Sacred Literature. Her greatest Poets and Philosophers have shared with her Divines, in setting forth and establishing the truths of Revelation; while her Divines have been distinguished alike by the copiousness and the depth of their learning.

The soundness of character thus given to the standard Theology of England has, through a variety of circumstances, been happily prevented from degenerating into the harshness of scholasticism; and thus the whole series of our "Sacred Classics," is a well of truth and consolation, as open to the general reader as to the most learned student.

It is intended to comprise in this collection, the best works of all the most celebrated writers, whose labours have been devoted to the elucidation and practical enforcement of the principles of revealed truth, whether in their application to the immortal interests of individuals, or to the order and well-being of society. Treatises on the being of God, and Evidences of His Existence, Morality, the Law of Nature, and the Christian Religion, will be selected. The most interesting specimens of Religious Biography; and the choicest examples of Devotional and Sacred Poetry, will succeed each other in the order which may be judged most conducive to the benefit and gratification of the reader.

To the productions of each author, or to each separate production, as the case may seem to require, will be prefixed an Introductory Essay, pointing out their characteristic excellencies; and, in some instances, comprehending a biographical sketch of the Author, with remarks on the state of religion in his times.

It is the desire of the Proprietors, in undertaking "THE SACRED CLASSICS," to present the collection to the public at such a price, that he who purchases at present the cheapest of ephemeral publications, may, for the same money, possess himself of works which cannot fail to afford him guidance and support in the highest exercises of his faculties, and under every vicissitude of life.

The work will be handsomely printed in Folscap 8vo. on good paper, cold pressed, neatly bound in Morocco Cloth, lettered and published (in Volumes of about 400 pages each) on the first day of every month.

Price, Three Shillings and Sixpence: Forming the cheapest series of works ever offered to the public.

The following names of Authors whose works are intended for publication is submitted in evidence of the impartiality of the selection:—

COMPANION TO WALDIE'S LIBRARY.

The cheapest reprint from English Periodicals ever offered to the public.

BEFORE the Select Circulating Library had been long in existence, it was discovered that there was still something wanting—that many occurrences in the literary world must pass unknown, as regarded our agency, without an extension of the plan.

To establish a medium of communication and supply the desideratum, the Journal of Belles Lettres was selected; which we have reason to believe has afforded general satisfaction. The very liberal patronage extended to the Library induced the proprietor to give that gratuitously as an evidence of his acknowledgments.

More extended experience has shown other desiderata which the "Companion" is intended to supply. While reading for the "Library" a large mass of material accumulates on the hands of the editor, of an interesting, entertaining, and instructive description, such as would properly come under the designation of Magaziniaria, interspersed with the Reviews from the English Quarterly. To publish every thing of this nature which we deem desirable would encroach too much on the columns of the "Library" designed for books, and yet to pass them by is constantly a subject of regret.

To concentrate, therefore, the publication of Books entire, Reviews, lists of new works, the choicest contributions to Magazines, &c. &c. the "Companion to Waldie's Library" will be offered to the patronage of the present subscribers and the public at large. It is believed that with the "Library," the "Journal," and the "Companion," such an acquaintance with the literature of the age may be cultivated as to leave little further to be desired. Being all published from the same office, more facility offers for subscribing, and having fewer people to deal with, mistakes are less liable to occur, and more readily corrected when they do. The short interval of two weeks between the publication of each number, it is thought too, will be an advantage over monthlies and quarterlies.

The following plan is respectfully submitted.

1. The "COMPANION" will contain the earliest possible reprints of the best matter in the British periodicals.

2. It will be issued every fortnight, and the form will be the same as that of the Library—each number containing sixteen pages—thus, every six months, giving thirteen numbers, which can be bound with the Library at little or no more expense, and making a better sized volume; and to those who do not take the Library itself, a volume every year, of 416 quarto pages of the size of the present.

3. The price will be three dollars for a subscriber—five dollars for two—and clubs five and upwards will be supplied at two dollars each.

4. As the work will not be commenced, unless a sufficient patronage be obtained, no payment is required at present, only the name, sent free of postage. Those wishing to support the publication will be pleased therefore to announce their intention as early as possible, as it is intended to commence the work on the first of January next. On the issuing of the second number payment will be expected, as its appearance will evince a sufficiency of patronage.

THE PROPRIETOR OF THE "SELECT CIRCULATING LIBRARY."

Is fully aware from experience of the advantages to the public of the rapid diffusion of cheap and select literature, has been induced to add the important feature to the work, and of course leaves it optional with the present subscribers and others to take it or not.

It is confidently believed, that, with the attention on the part of the Editor, who has already at hand the material for such a work, all the really valuable matter of the English literary and amusing publications may be comprised in this form at a rate of subscription and postage, so trifling as scarcely to be felt. It will form the cheapest reprint of reviews and magazines ever attempted in any country; a comparison with others is unnecessary here to enter upon, the "Library" itself being the best test by which to judge of the difference between an octavo and a quarto page. It will be the study of the Editor to embody a record of the day, adapted to the wants of this country, which can have no competitor for value or cheapness; how far he is likely to do this he must leave at present to the decision of his readers.

Clubs of five individuals, who subscribe to the "Library" and "Companion" both, will obtain the two for six dollars, the postage (a very important consideration) to the most distant post office, on the two, will be one dollar and ninety-five cents, divided into seventy eight payments, and half that sum for 100 miles or a less distance from Philadelphia, while the same matter, in the usual American reprints of reviews and magazines in octavo form would be eighteen dollars, and the postage as three to one. We make this assertion advisedly.

Subscribers to the "Companion," will be taken either with or without the "Library."

The proprietor trusts that his punctuality and exactness in executing his part of the contract in the publication of the "Library," will be considered a sufficient guarantee of the completion of his proposed undertaking.

ON application to the subscriber, a Justice of the Orphans Court of Anne Arundel county, by petition in writing of James Mills, of Anne Arundel county, stating that he is now in actual confinement, and praying for the benefit of the act of the General Assembly of Maryland, entitled, an act for the relief of sundry Insolvent Debtors, passed at December session 1805, and the several supplements thereto, on the terms therein mentioned; a schedule of his property, and a list of his creditors, on oath, so far as he can ascertain the same, being annexed to his petition, and the said James Mills having satisfied me by competent testimony that he has resided two years within the state of Maryland immediately preceding the time of his application, and the said James Mills having taken the oath by the said act prescribed for the delivering up his property, and given sufficient security for his personal appearance at the county court of Anne Arundel county, to answer such interrogatories and allegations as may be made against him, and having appointed James Iglehart his trustee, who has given bond as such, and received from said James Mills a conveyance and possession of all his property, real, personal and mixed. ON application to the subscriber, a Justice of the Orphans Court of Anne Arundel county, by petition in writing of James Mills, of Anne Arundel county, stating that he is now in actual confinement, and praying for the benefit of the act of the General Assembly of Maryland, entitled, An act for the relief of sundry insolvent debtors, passed at December session 1805, and the several supplements thereto, on the terms therein mentioned; a schedule of his property, and a list of his creditors, on oath so far as he can ascertain the same, being annexed to his petition, and the said James Mills having satisfied me by competent testimony that he has resided two years within the state of Maryland immediately preceding the time of his application, and the said James Mills having taken the oath by the said act prescribed for the delivering up his property, and given sufficient security for his personal appearance at the County Court of Anne Arundel county, to answer such interrogatories and allegations as may be made against him, and having appointed a trustee, who has given bond as such, and received from said James Mills a conveyance and possession of all his property, real, personal and mixed. I do hereby order and adjudge, that the said James Mills be discharged from imprisonment, and that he give notice to his creditors by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Anne Arundel county, once a week for three months, before the 4th Monday in October next to appear before the said County Court, at the Court House of said county, at ten o'clock of the forenoon of that day, for the purpose of recommending a trustee for their benefit, and to show cause, if any they have, why the said James Mills should not have the benefit of the said act and supplements, as prayed.

Given under my hand this 31st day of February, in the year of our Lord, eighteen hundred and thirty-five.
