PRINCESS ANNE, MARYLAND, JULY 6, 1920

Vol. XXII No. 48

SOMERSET TAX RATE OVER $2.31

Commissioners Strike Levy—County Rate $1.95 On The $100

The County Commissioners for Somerset county—Messrs. Geo. A. Somers, Frank L. Porter and Robt. J. Maddox—met at their office in Princess Anne last Tuesday and struck the levy for 1920. The county rate is $1.95 on the $100, and the State tax is $6.31-72 on the $100, a total rate of $2.31 31-72. Among the appropriations are:

Public Schools.....$87,000.00
Lateral Roads.....19,725.00
Roads and Bridges.....30,000.00
Hospitals for Insane.....5,625.00

This is the highest county tax rate ever declared in Somerset county, but it is largely accounted for in the increase of $34,000 for public schools over the amount provided last year, and $19,725 provided for the construction of lateral roads in the county. The incidental expenses of the county are approximately $6,000 more than last year. The total amount provided by the levy is $189,463.69.

The total incidental expenses of the county was $17,149.65. The levy will be published in full in the Marylander and Herald on August 3rd.

To Seek Somerset War Records

Lieut. Col. Stuart S. Janney, chairman of the Maryland War Records Commission; Dr. Karl Singwald, secretary of the commission, and Mrs. E. Stanley Toadvin, secretary of the commission from Wicomico county, were present at the meeting held in the Court House last Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Somerset county division of the War Records Commission, at which Col. Henry J. Waters, chairman of the local branch, presided.

The meeting was well attended and was addressed by Col. Stuart S. Janney, chairman of the State commission, and Dr. Karl Singwald. The purpose of the meeting was to aid in obtaining the war records of the men and women from Somerset county. The speakers outlined the scope of the work being done and emphasized the importance of having the service records filled out and returned to State headquarters. Dr. R. R. Norris, of Crisfield, commander of the American Legion of Somerset county, also made an address, in which he told of the work being done by the American Legion.

Dog Days—Must License Canines

Dog days are here! Not the real, old fashioned dog days, when canines develop hydropobia, and malaria lurks in the swimming pools and other dire and dreadful things happen, according to ancient beliefs. But these dog days are very real, very vital days. For they mean that friend poodle either continues on this mundane sphere by virtue of the existence of a collar around his neck, with a legal, certified tag appended thereto, or shuffles off this mortal coil because of the absence of it.

These are genuine dog days, because all dogs must be licensed. The law defines in accents bold and sentences that are very clear-cut and understandable that all dogs must be registered, licensed and wear a tag. And it further states that dogs without these tags may be put out of existence. Better call at the County Commissioners' office and get your tag to-day.

Breaks 145 Clay Birds Out Of 150

On last Thursday Messrs. Frank D. Layfield, Earl B. Polk and Dr. H. A. Barnes, of the Princess Anne Trap-shooting Club, attended the registered clay bird tournament at Hurlock, Md., where Mr. Layfield led the shooters with the fine score of 145 breaks out of 150, topping his closest competitor by five birds. It is the best shooting Mr. Layfield has ever done and it is seldom that such a fine score is seen at a "Shore" meet. It is hardly necessary to say that Mr. Layfield is proud of his accomplishment, of which the other members of the Princess Anne Trap-shooting Club take some pride.

The weather report for the month of June, as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer, of Princess Anne, is as follows:

Maximum temperature, 89 degrees on the 12th, 16th and 17th; minimum temperature, 50 degrees on the 1st; total precipitation 5.13 inches. Clear days, 7; partly cloudy, 19; cloudy, 4; thunder storms on the 4th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 16th, 17th and 25th. The prevailing wind was southwest.

The estate of the late William Forbes Adams, bishop of the Diocese of Easton, was before the Orphans' Court of Talbot county last week, when the court approved the distribution made and reported by T. Hughtett Henry and Leonard Adkins, executors. The estate amounted to $31,081.76.

WAR ORGANIZATION ENDS

State Defense Council Writes Its Final Chapter

General Francis E. Waters, chairman of the Maryland Council of Defense, last Wednesday turned over to John E. Dennis, treasurer of the state, a check for $7,907.30, being the balance in full in the treasury of the Maryland Council of Defense. At the same time notice was given that there remains in the hands of the Comptroller $99,905 of the first million dollar war loan. General Waters also reported that the council had paid over to the War Records Commission, as directed by the General Assembly, the sum of $14,151.68. The total returned to the state by the council is therefore, $121,978.98.

In his letter to Governor Ritchie, General Waters says: Following your esteemed letter of June 9, 1920, dissolving the Maryland Council of Defense on June 30, 1920, the executive committee held a meeting June 15 and wound up its affairs. We have this day turned over to the Treasurer of Maryland a check for $7,907.30, on the Union Trust Company of Maryland, being the balance in full remaining in treasury of the Council of Defense, as shown by the report of the state auditor accompanying our communication. There remains in the hands of the Comptroller the sum of $99,905 of the first million dollar war loan. The second loan of a million dollars was not issued.

We have paid over to the War Records Commission, as directed by the Act of 1920, Chapter 92, the sum of $14,151.68. We have disposed of our records as directed by you and by Chapter 92, Act of 1920. The only accounts due the council are balances from the War Camp Community Service and from the Seed Fund, both of which have been turned over to the Board of Public Works.

The historical work of the council that had been carried on by Dr. George L. Radcliffe is now being handled by the War Records Commission, which has $14,151.68 that was turned over to it, as directed by an act of the last Legislature. Col. Stuart S. Janney is chairman of this commission and Mr. Radcliffe is a member.

W. C. T. U. Meet in Berlin

The eighth annual convention of the Tri-County Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in Stevenson Methodist Episcopal Church, Berlin, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. Three general officers, six local presidents and 38 delegates, an unusually large number, were in attendance, besides the State president and quite a number of visitors. The tri-county president, Mrs. H. M. Waller, of Delmar, presided, and beside her on the platform on Tuesday was Mrs. Mary R. Haslop, the faithful and efficient state president for 25 years.

Cordial addresses of welcome were given by the pastor of the church, Rev. John J. Bunting, and the local president, Mrs. M. E. Grise, which were responded to by one of the visiting delegates.

Tuesday evening, the Rev. J. J. Bunting conducted the devotional services and Miss Minnie Thawley, of Crisfield, sang very sweetly the solo, "Rock of Ages." The principal speaker was J. Bibb Mills, of Baltimore, the attorney for the State Anti-Saloon League. He paid a tribute to the W. C. T. U. as one of the pioneers in the temperance movement, deserving much of the credit for the great victories won.

A Convention Story

The best story told by any of the speakers at the Democratic Convention at San Francisco last week was that of a woman, Mrs. Julian Brown, of West Virginia, who seconded the nomination of John W. Davis. She told the story of the boy who had been to Sunday School and was telling his mother the story of the Creation as he had learned it. He recounted the making of the world, the birds and the beasts, and went on to tell how God had made man, who promptly went into the garden and laid down to sleep. And, added the boy, while the man slept God appeared and took out his brains and made woman. The convention howled with glee over that and Mrs. Brown was rewarded by the band rendering "Oh, You Beautiful Doll."

New Wheat Brings $4 A Bushel

The record price of $4 a bushel was obtained last Wednesday on the floor of the Chamber of Commerce for the first new wheat to reach Baltimore. The receipts, however, were of an exceptionally fine quality and had been well handled by the grower.

The second lot of new wheat was received in Baltimore Thursday and sold at $2.85 a bushel. It came from Virginia, as did the first lot, which brought $4 a bushel.

The grain merchants say the price paid for the second lot more than represents the market price than did the extreme price paid for the first receipts.

Teachers' Association Adjourns

The fifty-third annual meeting of the Maryland State Teachers' Association, one of the most successful in the history of the organization, closed last Wednesday.

The meeting closed with addresses by Emory L. Coblenz, of Frederick, and Frank B. Peterson, superintendent of schools, of Columbus, Ohio.

Superintendent Albert S. Cook called the county superintendents together Wednesday for a conference. Mr. Cook stated that he outlined plans which will be taken under consideration for inauguration in the rural educational system. One of the most important things which it is thought Mr. Cook will do in the first part of his administration will be the launching of a plan to determine the rating of county pupils.

Everything in connection with the meeting indicated that a broadening out of the whole system is inevitable and that a new era has dawned both for education and the educators.

The following committees for next year were announced by Mr. Palmer: Legislative—Superintendent Orem, James W. Chapman, president Baltimore School Board; A. Leroy McCordell, Frederick county; Miss Ellen Logan, Baltimore county, and Wilmer J. Falls, Cecil county.

Educational Progress—Superintendent M. S. H. Unger, Carroll county; Principal E. C. Fontaine, Pocomoke City, and Dr. E. F. Buckner, Johns Hopkins University.

Resolutions—Miss Sarah E. Richmond, Maryland State Normal School; Superintendent M. S. Wright, Harford county, and Superintendent Raymond Staley, of Hagerstown.

Superintendent George Fox, of Anne Arundel county, was selected chairman of the auditors, and Dr. David E. Weglein, of Baltimore; William J. Holloway, Baltimore county, and Miss Eader named for three-year term on the reading circle committee.

Married Under Big Oak

Miss Sula Sterling and Mr. Isaac Lawson, two prominent residents of Lawsonia neighborhood, were married last Wednesday evening beneath the celebrated "Big Oak" at King's Creek. Dr. W. F. Corkran, pastor of Asbury M. E. Church, motored the bridal party to King's Creek and performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Lawson are residing at the groom's home on the Johnson Creek road.

BACK FROM THE PHILIPPINES

Lieutenant Maddox Says This Country Must Watch Out For Japs

Lieutenant Robert F. Maddox, of the Philippines Scout Service, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, formerly of Princess Anne, but now of Baltimore, has just returned from the Philippines after serving two years in the Islands. He has resigned his commission to accept a lucrative position with one of the largest financial institutions in the East. His last post was at Zamboanga.

In an interview with a Baltimore daily last week he said: "The United States must look out for the Japs. This country must sooner or later realize the fact that the Japanese are wide awake, and have their eyes on certain parts of Uncle Sam's possessions." While at Zamboanga he heard of the greed of the Japs for more territory and greater power.

A governor of one of the islands in the Philippines told the lieutenant that, while he (the governor) was away from the island on a visit, a Jap ship put in there and surveyed the island without the slightest molestation.

"Even at Honolulu," continued Lieutenant Maddox, "the Japanese are often overheard telling the natives that they will soon be working for them (the Japs). This, to my mind, would indicate that the Japanese are just waiting a suitable time when they intend to make trouble for Uncle Sam, and it is time that we should wake up to this belief and be prepared. Japs own and operate many stores in Honolulu. The Filipinos hate the Japs, and express themselves openly to this effect. They do not want Jap domination, but they are at times fearful lest they might try and gain the islands by invasion. Why, even on the Pacific Coast—in California, Washington and Oregon, all of which states I visited on my way East, I found store after store operated with capital furnished by well-to-do Japs."

"We must not let them get a foothold in this country, and by all means must keep them from spreading their business activities and ramifications to the East and the South. The people of this country must take a stand against the invasion by this race into our business and political life, otherwise, we will regret it some day."

Lieut. Maddox is an Eastern Shoreman by birth, having been raised in Princess Anne, Md. He was graduated from St. John's College in 1917. When recruits were called for in the World War, Lieut. Maddox, who was the commandant of a military school in Minnesota, came East and enlisted as a private at Camp Meade. He went to France with the famous 79th Division and fought in the Argonne. It was while he was fighting in the trenches that he was promoted to second lieutenant, and was ordered back to this country, and then to proceed to the Philippines for service. He was the first member of the 79th Division to come back to Baltimore. This was in November, 1918, and he sailed the following month for the Philippines.

Now University Of Maryland
Last Thursday morning the Maryland State College of Agriculture passed out of existence, so far as its name is concerned, and entered upon its new history as the University of Maryland.

The change from College to University was effected quietly and the celebration which will mark the event will be delayed until the arrival of the student body in the fall when appropriate exercises will be held either there or in Baltimore and will be participated in by the faculty of both institutions affected. All the legal requirements in connection with the Act of the last State legislature which authorized the consolidation of the Maryland State College and the old University of Maryland in Baltimore have been completed. The resolutions of acceptance have been attested by Secretary of State Perlman and a new seal has been adopted.

It is probable that the first improvement which the new University of Maryland will witness will be the athletic field at College Park for which the Alumni Association of the Maryland State College will raise a fund of $50,000. Headed by M. E. Tydings, of Havre de Grace, president of the Association, the Alumni are already at work on subscriptions toward the fund. Other improvements next year will consist of a number of more urgently needed buildings for which President Woods has an appropriation of $203,000, available next spring.

Miss Mary Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, of near Marriner's section, and Mr. Guy C. Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Long, of Hopewell, were married last Tuesday morning by the Rev. R. H. Wilson at the home of the bride.

DEMOCRATS IN SCRAMBLE TO BREAK DEADLOCK

McAdoo, or Cox, or Both—Possible that One or Other May Be Put Over, with Rival as Running Mate

The Democratic Convention at San Francisco yesterday (Monday) at 10 o'clock a. m.—1 p. m. Eastern time—to take its twenty-third ballot for the nomination of a Presidential candidate may remain in session until it breaks the record of 47 ballots, established by the 1912 Convention, which nominated President Wilson.

When adjournment was taken shortly after midnight Saturday conditions were almost as chaotic as when the convention first met. On the original ballot Friday night the "big three" stood:

McAdoo.....266
Palmer.....256
Cox.....134

On the twenty-second ballot the standing was:

Cox.....430
McAdoo.....372
Palmer.....166

In spite of Palmer's progressive weakness on each succeeding ballot he stubbornly refuses to give up hope of winning.

McAdoo remains silent; Cox is smiling and confident. Political observers say none of the three can win now.

The Convention appears to be without definite leadership; without definite purpose and without definite ideal—"each for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

New Jersey has given up the fight for Governor Edwards, but stands firmly by Cox, while Maryland and Delaware are wasting their votes by dividing up on each ballot.

Lice On Tomato Plants

Plant aphids have been noticed the past week on Fordhook lima beans, early potatoes and tomatoes. Potatoes are too far advanced for the lice to do much damage, but it is possible for the lice to go from the potatoes to the tomatoes.

Plant lice are soft, bad-bodied insects about 1/8 inch long when full grown. They cluster on the underside of the leaves, along the stems and on the buds and blossoms. It sucks the juices from the plant, totally destroying it or at least reduces the yield materially.

Control is effected by thorough and timely spraying with Black Leaf 40, one part to 50 parts of water, plus two pounds of laundry soap to every 50 gallons of solution. Fels-Napha soap weighs approximately one-half pound to the bar, therefore, 4 bars would be required for 50 gallons. Other soaps are frequently lighter. It is essential that enough soap be added to insure thorough wetting of the lice.

Any kind of spray pump may be used, but the nozzle must be arranged to spray up under the leaves. Use an L and nipple on the end of an extension rod with the nozzle screwed on the nipple so that the nozzle makes a 45 degree angle with the rod. Use as much pressure as possible and spray thoroughly. One application will not kill all aphids, two or more at intervals of several days will be necessary.

However, frequent sprayings and cultivations to keep the plants in good thrifty growing condition will be of considerable value in controlling this insect. Additional information can be obtained by consulting County Agent C. Z. Keller.

Fountain Wants Purple Death Robe

Isaiah Fountain, colored, convicted of criminal assault upon 13-year-old Bertha Simpson, of Trappe, has requested that he be permitted to wear a crown of thorns and a purple robe when he goes to his death on the gallows here on July 23rd. Fountain says he is a much persecuted man and wishes to die garbed in the manner of Christ.

Sheriff C. M. T. Soulsby, of Easton, to whom the queer request was made, is in a quandary. It is in the power of the official to give his consent, but he does not know what effect it will have. The sheriff has decided to make the hanging public, feeling that this will prevent any possible mob violence and will serve as an object lesson.

Huntmen Take Warning

State Game Warden LeCompte is preparing to send out 56,700 cards to county clerks to be issued to licensed hunters this year. Every hunter will have to wear one on his arm or stand liable to arrest. The cards are for three classes of hunters—those who hold county license, those who hold State-wide license and those who hold non-resident license. There are 50,000 county license tags, which will cost $1.10 each; 5,200 State-wide tags, costing $5.10 each, and 1,500 non-resident tags, costing $10.25 each.

Mr. and Mrs. Levin E. Layfield, of Wilmington, Del., spent the Fourth with the former's brother, Mr. F. D. Layfield.

CHIEF POINTS OF PLATFORM

The Democratic platform, submitted to the party's national convention last Friday, like Chairman Cummings' keynote speech, is a fighting document. The spirit of red-blooded controversy breathes in it. It is much more vigorously worded than the platform of the Republican party, and for that, as for other reasons, gives a better effect of frankness and sincerity and convictions. The platform was submitted by Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, and its outstanding features are:

1. Complete silence upon the wet and dry question.
2. Emphatic indorsement of the League of Nations covenant, with a demand for prompt ratification without nullifying reservations, but with an expression of willingness to accept reservations clarifying the covenant or making it more specific with respect to American obligations.
3. A simple expression of sympathy for Irish aspirations without any reference to American recognition of the Irish republic.
4. Rejection of the Administration plank recommending acceptance by the United States of a mandate for Armenia.
5. Pledge of support to a plan aiding American veterans of the World War to acquire farms and homes, but no promise of a money bonus.
6. Strong planks on labor, agriculture, the interests of women and woman suffrage.

Outbreak Of Hog Cholera Near Town

Hog cholera has appeared on the farm of Mr. Alex. Noble on the Ridge road, near Princess Anne. Farmers in this community are warned to keep their hogs under quarantine.

Other preventative measures to keep this disease from spreading are to have the hogs in this locality inoculated and use plenty of disinfectants around the pens and hog lots. Serum for inoculating hogs can be obtained by ordering through County Agent C. Z. Keller.

Electrically Elevated

By Ruby Douglas

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Doris Greene had lived in New York for a short time only. She had been brought up in a small town in which she had seen almost none of the modern city conveniences for handling crowds, eliminating labor and making work in general less expensive and less laborious.

The first time she rode on a moving stairway, which she afterward learned was called an escalator, she was so thrilled that she repeated the journey four times.

"I think I've seen almost everything, now," she told her mother one night when she returned from her daily trip to the office where she earned a living filing letters for a big corporation. "I feel quite like a New Yorker."

"Well, daughter," her mother remarked with a touch of wistfulness in her tone, "I hope you will never be more of a typical New Yorker than you are today. Not—" she hastened to add, for Mrs. Greene did not wish to speak ill of any one—"not that they are not entirely all right, dear, but—well, I like my sweet small-town girl as she is."

"Don't worry, mother," Doris laughed. "I'm from the country still—in my heart. But the green has been washed off the outside, I think."

Perhaps Doris spoke too soon. Perhaps it was just her destiny to have it proved to her the very next Sunday that she still had something to learn.

An invitation to visit a friend who had a charming new apartment in Fifth avenue had come to Doris. She was invited to tea in the afternoon, and the thought of a party in an apartment on Fifth avenue had made Doris expectantly joyful.

She put on her prettiest little afternoon frock, her flowered hat in which her face looked as if it were trying to rival the artificial blossoms. Thus she walked forth to seek the number on the famous avenue.

At last she found it and entered a doorway which was quiet and unostentatious. She saw what she supposed was an elevator and she pushed the button, to hear, inside the shaft, something moving which she knew must be the lift.

She waited until after the noise stopped and eventually, since the door did not open and no elevator boy appeared, she peeked through the spacious hole which was where a handle would naturally be placed. There she saw a perfectly lighted small elevator.

"Oh, it's one of those electric elevators that Helen's brother makes. You just push the button and it works itself," thought Doris, remembering having heard her new-found chum speak of the manufacturing business of her big brother.

After some moments of investigation, Doris found that by inserting her fingers in the hole she could push back a lever which released the outer door. This done, the opening of the lattice-work iron door was simple.

Then she stepped inside, a bit nervous but still anxious to master the situation. She saw a list of numbers and a button for each number. Also there was one marked "Stop."

Doris closed the doors of the lift and said a short prayer as she found herself alone in the tiny boxlike room.

"I'm sure Mrs. Moore said third floor," she recalled. "I suppose I should press the button marked three."

And so thinking she did push the third button. Presently she began to ascend. The elevator made some noise and did not rise very fast and Doris became so frightened before she reached the floor where it would have stopped automatically that she pushed frantically at the button marked "Stop."

The lift stopped. And Doris began to tremble and weep quietly. Here she was, in mid-air, in an electric elevator in a strange building on Fifth avenue, New York. Could anything be more terrifying to a girl from a small town? She remained for some time and finally she felt herself beginning to move and stop. Then the elevator door was flung open and a bright-looking young man, about to step in, removed his hat and said: "Oh, I beg your pardon—I did not know there was any one using the lift."

"I'm not," said Doris, trying to regain her self-composure.

"Oh—I thought you were. I—I beg pardon again," stammered the young man.

"I was trying to get to the third floor and I got frightened and stopped the car and—everything," Doris said, tamely.

"Well, these elevators are confusing to one who isn't accustomed to using them," the young man explained politely. "And as it happens, I, too, am going to the third floor to see my aunt, Mrs. Moore."

"Mrs. Moore?" exclaimed Doris, "I'm going there, too. To tea."

"Are you Miss Doris Greene, from Keokuk, Iowa?"

Doris nodded.

"Then let me get in. I'll take you up and we'll get ourselves properly introduced. I've heard a lot about you."

On the way up the young man explained the working of the elevator to Doris, and all during tea he seemed to be greatly interested in her. When she was ready to go home he found it advisable to take her safely down in the elevator and to see that she got home without further predicament.

From that memorable Sunday he called, from time to time at the little apartment where Doris and her mother lived so quietly, and on an occasional Sunday the two went to see Mrs. Moore in her apartment on Fifth avenue.

One afternoon when Herbert Davis thought he had waited quite long enough to tell Doris that he had loved her from the very moment that he saw her, he took her to call on his aunt.

When the elevator was half way up he stopped it. "Doris, dear, I love you. I've loved you—always."

"Why—Herbert, what a place to tell me," was all the girl could say, but it was enough to give the young man courage, and he took her in his arms for a moment before sending the little lift on its way up to the third floor.

"We've—we've been electrically elevated, auntie," he remarked pointedly as his aunt greeted them. "We—we're engaged, too," he added. "Doris has just told me that she would marry me and—and that elevator of yours is the cause of it all."

"You dear sentimental children," Mrs. Moore said, hugging them both.

"I have always hoped for this, but I did not know it would come about so soon."

DRILL TOO MUCH LIKE WORK

Afghan Soldiers Make Good Fighters, but They Are Not Remarkable for Their Discipline.

The soldiers in the Afghan army would not stand for too much drilling. The colonel in command of the garrison at Jabl-us-Siraj, a cousin of the amir, got too enthusiastic about drill and the men sent word to him that if he did not let up they would kill him. Drill slackened. The officers wore smart uniforms and leather garters, and on full dress occasions were resplendent in gorgeous uniforms covered with gold braid and crowned with plumed helmets. There were "kaptans," "journalists," "committees" and "generals" galore, most of whom had little or no knowledge of military tactics. There was always a brass band. They had European instruments and they blew their heads off. I have counted 144 beats to the minute on the bass drum, writes A. C. Jewett, in Asia. The members of the band were about the hardest worked of the troops. The government troops were a lazy, chillum-smoking lot. They never stood when on guard duty, except in the presence of the amir. About the hardest work they did was to sit on the sheltered side of a wall, pull their shirts over their heads and look for "shipish." It was a common sight to see them reading their shirts. They were a lazy, truculent lot, who bullied and blackmailed the people and added thieving to their soldiering profession.

Not So "Funny"

A ludicrous error in common usage is the employment of the word "funny" in the sense of odd or strange or curious, when the context shows that the occurrence to which reference is made is anything but funny. Funny means affording fun; provoking laughter; comical; ludicrous; facetious. (Standard dictionary), but frequently one hears such sentences as the following: "Isn't it funny that Robinson, who was born on Lincoln's birthday, should have died on the same day as the president?" and "It was funny that he escaped all dangers here, and was killed in another city." Certainly there was nothing "funny" in the tragedy. "It was curious that he escaped," etc., would be the proper form. Instead of the word "funny" use in such cases curious, odd, strange, peculiar, or unusual.

Calcium Chloride for Damp Cellars.

Take old preserve cans and put in them calcium chloride, one pound of this salt sufficing for a large cellar. Calcium chloride attracts the water from the air which collects in the cans. This, however, is not poured away, but is evaporated on a strong fire, whereby the salt crystallizes again. It then becomes fit for renewed use. Especially for potato cellars this process is very serviceable since the sprouting of the potatoes, though not entirely prevented, is considerably retarded thereby.

A STREAK OF LUCK

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

A thousand dollars was not much, but it fairly dazzled Mark Seaton. He had led a happy-go-lucky existence for over five years exploiting mining prospects and real estate booms, had lived from hand to mouth and the unexpected legacy of what to him seemed to be a substantial sum of money brought new ambition and dreams of opulence.

It was William Morse, an old-time partner, who had remembered him thus strangely after they had not met for ten years. The money was paid promptly to Seaton, who emerged from the threadbare vagabond into a quite presentable and well dressed man.

"I'll make the thousand real capital, no wasteful living it up," decided Seaton. "There's chances down in the new oil fields near Elmore. I'll be careful, wary and economical until I get on my feet. And this time I'll stay there."

Seaton put up at a hotel at Elmore and began looking around for business chances. At the end of a week he decided that $3 a day was too steep for him. He had been told that a widow, a Mrs. Alma Bryce, had room and board for a respectable guest who was good pay. Seaton one morning walked up to her little home. He found her absent, but her two little children were playing in the yard. Handsome, hearty Mrs. Bryce came home to find the trio the very best friends in the world. Seaton presented his plea for housing, and cleanliness and prime cooking made his new home a palace to him.

"You are the kind of a woman I've always pictured in my mind as pretty high perfect," he declared one day. One day Seaton came home to find a stranger seated on the porch enjoying its coolness and shade.

"Been waiting for you, Mr. Seaton," announced the visitor crisply. "I'm named Burt Talbot and I'm a speculator. I heard you were to be in Elmore and I wanted to have first chance at that oil land of yours down at Herkimer Forks."

"Aren't you mistaken?" inquired Seaton. "I own no land anywhere."

"I expected that—natural for a tenderfoot to be cautious. All right, I'm square. I happen to know that a certain tract is registered in the name of Mark Seaton and have some parties who might be prevailed upon to give a snug sum for it."

Now Seaton was clever. Could it be possible that William Morse had added to his benefaction and included some property? He decided to consult the records and find out. Meantime he would be duly polite with his visitor.

"You see," Talbot enlightened him effusively, "I'm only a go-between. Ten per cent commission is all I'm offered. My buyers have all the equipment to handle your land and capital enough to stand a risk. Shall I feel my way on a $20,000 basis, say?"

"Too little," dissented Seaton. "All right, if I get your figure and there is a sale will you see that I am paid for my services?"

"Oh, sure!" acceded Seaton, and after the man had left, hurried to the record office. Sure enough, there was the document on file showing that over five years ago a "Mark Seaton of Denver," had owned the property in question.

"That settles it—some other Mark Seaton," soliloquized Mrs. Bryce's boarder and went and played with the children to forget his shattered dream.

But two days later a letter was sent to him which had been delivered at the hotel. Seaton read it to find that it was from "Your wife, Nella," at Denver to "Mark Seaton" of the same place. It hoped that her husband would make a sale of his oil land at any price, as the mortgage on their home was due, and she advised him to make any sacrifice to get a needed $4,000.

"Ah! here is something to think about, indeed," meditated Seaton. "Evidently this namesake of mine is on his way to Elmore to sell his property. Four thousand dollars! Why! that fellow Talbot mentioned five times that, first move."

Two days later Talbot appeared with an offer of $30,000 cash for the land. The very next morning, going to the hotel, Mark Seaton of Elmore found that Mark Seaton of Denver had registered there. He went at once up to the room of the new arrival.

"Mr. Seaton," he said, "we happen to bear the same name and this letter to you was delivered to me by mistake. Come on to sell your land down at Herkimer Forks, I understand."

"Why, yes, I've got to, as I am hard pressed financially. Is there any chance of getting rid of it somewhere around $5,000?"

"Will you authorize me to take double that?"

"Yes, and I'll divide all over $10,000 50-50."

He was true to his word and within 48 hours Seaton the landless possessed $15,000 minus $4,000 commission paid to Talbot. He sought out his landlady, "Mrs. Bryce," he said, "if I had been sure I could support you and these dear little ones, I'd have asked you to marry me the first day I saw you."

"Oh! money isn't everything in the world," fluttered the handsome widow. "I've found out I can," proceeded Seaton. "What say, eh?"

And Mrs. Bryce replied with the simple affirmative so gladly spoken when love inspires its utterance.

SLANG IN CLASSIC

Pages of Cervantes Full of Colloquialisms.

Variety of Terms by Many Thought to Be Modern Can Be Found in "Don Quixote" and in Rabelais' Works.

"They now spurred on toward the inn, and soon overtook on the road a young fellow, beating it on the hoof pretty leisurely." "No, no, it shall never be said of me, the eaten bread is forgotten, or that I thought it working for a dead horse, because I am paid in advance." Extracts from a recent western novel? By no means; quotations from a world classic written 400 years ago.

In a recent reading of "Don Quixote" I have been struck by the fact that it is a vast storehouse of what we fondly believe to be American slang. And this is not by any twisting of the sense; the terms are used strictly in their modern significance. It is true that I do not read the book in its original tongue, but the translation is that of Peter Anthony Motteux, and was made more than 200 years ago, so that it has a fair degree of antiquity. This Huguenot merchant, who settled in London after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, picked up a remarkable knowledge of homely, idiomatic English, and his language is always racy of the soil.

"Take it from me, you will lose your labor," says the Knight of the Sorrowful (not Rueful or Woeful in Motteux) Countenance to Donna Rodriguez, and this is one of his favorite phrases. "I had a mind to cabbage some of his cloth," confesses the tailor brought before Sancho as governor of his island of Barataria for judgment. When Altisidora sang her mock serenade to the incorruptible and unyielding knight, she declared herself a "virgin pullet," a "tender chicken," and thought that Dulcinea "well may brag of such a kid." "I had not cared a pin though she had died of the pip," was Sancho's philosophy, and he begs his master not to "die merely of the mulligrubs."

The squirrel complains that he had been "ribroasted by above four hundred Moors," and admitted that it was not for "such scrubs as myself" to be mentioned the same day with knights-errant.

Although by his own admission a mere clown, Sancho says, "I know what's what, and have always taken care of the main chance." He tells his master that the latter "had the wrong sow by the ear," his "belly cries cupboard," he is "cocksure," he believed that the giant in the adventure of the wine skins had "gone to pot," and he reproached the knight for not "going snacks" in his beatings. One of the galley slaves would have gone free for 20 ducats "to have greased the recorder's fist." The don chides his niece that she should "presume to put in her oar and censure the histories of knights-errant."

Motteux finished Sir Thomas Urquhart's partial translation of Rabelais. The Frenchman and the doughty Scottish cavalier had equal knowledge of Anglo-Saxon colloquialisms, and where can one find more racy, pungent, downright English than in these two master translations?—Frank W. Hoyt in New York Evening Post.

Flying Fox Australian Pest.
The flying fox has appeared in South Australia as a new fruit pest. Farmers have killed quite a number of these creatures. A correspondent at Port Wakefield writes: "This morning some crows, while marauding amongst the bushes near the rifle target, put up a flying fox, which took a direct course for the river, about a mile distant. The crows followed, but when the fox looped the loop amongst them they quickly flew in another direction. The flying fox appeared to be nearly 3 feet wide across the wings. It had a fair amount of speed on the wing and much resembled a bat." The flying fox, so-called because of its fox-shaped head, has been previously found in other parts of Australia and is sometimes known as the fruit bat.

An Everlasting Memorial.
Nature has a great part in this lasting and beautiful memorial, that is to be erected to the local service men in the city of Santa Monica, Cal. It is to be a large open-air theater, and will take the conventional Greek form, with seats arranged in concentric tiers, the orchestral area in the center and pillared stage at the bottom of the slope. As in the conventional theaters of ancient Greece, the site and background will be a beautiful wooded hillside.
The level area in the center will be floored with mosaic stone work. This beautiful tribute to the service men will, no doubt, be the pride of the citizens of this city for many years to come.

Division of Income.
"In my opinion," writes a wife, "there is only one satisfactory arrangement which a young couple can make, and that is to take the weekly income and divide it into separate sums, something on the following lines—rent and taxes, charities and church collections, doctor, dentist, etc., holiday fund and savings, an equal sum for pocket money for each of the young couple, an equal sum for dress for each. My husband and I have been wedded over six years, and have two bonny children, but we always divide our weekly income in this way."—Happily Married.

VILLAGE OVERRUN BY DOGS

Housewives of Silver Lake, New York, Had to Guard Kitchens From the Hungry Animals.

The hamlet of Silver Lake, on the outskirts of White Plains, N. Y., is all "het" up because of the large number of dogs that have migrated to that section, according to the New York Evening Sun. In the daytime they forage through the town and at night they make sleep impossible by their howling.

Silver Lake has a population of about 500 persons, and it is said that there are 141 dogs, one lap poodle and half a dozen hounds by actual count.

A staid old resident says that there is every kind of a dog imaginable in Silver Lake—small ones, big ones, short ones, long ones, dogs with no tail and one eye, lean ones and fat ones, but mostly lean ones.

This great influx of dogs to Silver Lake has created many nuisances. In fact, the housewives don't dare leave their kitchen doors unlocked or half a dozen hungry mutts will be roaming around trying to find something to eat. The story is told of how one woman baked a raisin pie for supper for her husband. She left it on the kitchen table to cool while she went about her household duties. A little later she heard a great commotion, and when she went to the kitchen she found half a dozen hungry canines, big and little, fighting for the last raisin of her pie. She struck them with a broom, but that did not do any good, because they had her pie.

Consumers who buy economically constitute an effective though unofficial fair price board.

More "propaganda." A shipment of 3,000 German canaries has just arrived at New York.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady.

Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Price, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child, I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time....

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. Cardui about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble,' so he got me 5 bottles....After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved....before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

Peculiar Fish.

Very common in the mud flats at the mouth of rivers in tropical Africa, Asia and northwest Australia are the mud-skippers, or jumping gobies, which leap about quickly, using their tails and the strong base of their fore fins as a sort of double-hopping instrument. Sometimes they rest on a stone with their tails in the water, as they are able to breathe by their tail fin as well as by their gills! Sometimes they sit perched high and dry on the roots of the mangrove trees, looking round and round with their strangely protruded, mobile eyes, which are close together on the top of the head.

Elephant's Sense of Humor.

Men close to the minds of elephants who sway back and forth hour after hour while their restless trunks roam around the hay believe that they appreciate children, and the difference between children and their elders, more than some other inmates of tent or zoological house. They seem to have a sense of humor behind their strange little eyes when they stretch for the peanut or go round and round in the inclosure bearing youngsters on their swaying backs.

Screw Is Modern Invention.

Shears were invented in 400 B. C., the "snauffers" referred to in Exodus having been merely a small knife with a pair of tweezers to trim the wicks of lamps, with a point to part the strands. The screw was a Greek invention, and greatly used by the Romans as a means of producing motion. Centuries passed, however, before the nut and screw, for fastening, was invented. The common screw came into use less than 200 years ago.

Teaching Music to the Young.

Children are now taking in the musical work in the Roman choir as early as seven years of age, says a writer in the Etude in discussing the importance of early training in music for church purposes. They are not merely taught in the music they are to sing, but are given a very thorough drill in solfeggio, and, when necessary, at the proper time in harmony and in music in general.

"Shin Plaster" Currency.

The name "shin plaster" was applied to all forms of currency issued by the United States government during the Civil war, but more especially to the notes for less than $1. They were and are redeemed by the government on presentation. Several million dollars of them are still outstanding and are carried on the national treasury books as part of the debt bearing no interest.

"The Mule."

Being told to write a brief essay on "The Mule," Howard turned into his teacher the following effort: "The mule is a harder bird than the guse or the turkie. It has two legs to walk with, two more to kick with, and wears its wings on the side of its head. It is stubbornly backward about coming forward."

Origin of Coal.

After an exhaustive study of a number of coal seams, James Lomax concludes that almost all had their origin in vegetable matter deposited on the spot, the coal substance being formed by the dropping of leaves, twigs, barks and fruits, in the shape of seeds and fructiferous cones mainly from large trees.

Richness of the Sea.

Every ton of water contains one grain of gold. There are over four thousand million tons of water in a cubic mile, and the oceans are estimated to contain three hundred million cubic miles of water. Thus it is easy to reckon the amount of gold in the sea. It is about 90,000,000 tons.

Old-Time Famous Dishes.

The swan was formerly a great favorite for the table. The young cygnet is tender and good. The flesh is dark in color and tastes like goose, with a suggestion of hare. The peacock also was one of the most famous dishes at royal feasts in the Middle ages.

For Garden Culture.

The bloodroot, common in rich woodlands where it has not been exterminated by professional root diggers for its reputed medicinal value, says the American Forestry Magazine, is in bloom with the crocus and readily adapts itself to garden culture.

Heat Brings Out Inscriptions.

Inscriptions nearly obliterated by age and wear from old silver coins may be rendered visible by placing the coin upon a piece of red-hot iron, by which means the inscription is made to assume a greenish hue, whereby it becomes readable.

Nearly All Water.

Mushrooms generally consist of 90 per cent water, but the remaining 10 per cent is more nutritious than bread.

The Arrival.

The Baby—As a protest against the high cost of clothing, I didn't bring anything at all.

Many Victims of Mania.

Six hundred women were executed for witchcraft in France in 1606.

REMAINED SLAVE OF CUSTOM

Augusta Housewife was "Set" in Her Ways, and Nothing Was Going to Change Her.

A man in an Augusta car seat talking to another man who appears to be his friend:

"Persistent! Say, my wife is that and some more. She is the most tenacious to habit of any person I ever saw. Once that woman has become addicted to a habit there's no breaking her. Honest, I think that if my wife should ever by accident start sweeping with the wrong end of a broom she'd never sweep any other way, and no law of heaven and earth could change her habit."

"Some persistent, I'll say," agreed the other.

"You bet," said the first speaker. "Why, here last summer I put a bay window on the front room of our house. There was a week while we were doing it that the whole end of the house was open as a hay field in August; there wasn't a single thing to prevent man or animal entering our house at any hour of daylight or darkness. Fact! But what do you think; I couldn't make my wife understand that it was, under those conditions, a waste of time to lock the doors. Every night and every time she went down-street she made a complete circuit of the house, carefully locking doors and windows, so's to keep the wicked folks out."—Kennebec Journal.

ETHEL'S MEMORY WAS GOOD

Sweet Child Remembered Only Too Well Remark That Her Mother Had Let Drop.

Cousin Robert from the country, had come to dinner, and little Ethel had been allowed to sit up as a great treat.

Now, Ethel is one of those children one meets nowadays who hear a great deal too much for their years, and moreover, who don't believe in the saying about children not being heard. You can't stay near dear little Ethel without hearing quite a lot.

Which all gets on with the story of the night when Cousin Robert came to supper.

"Do have another helping of the potpie, Robert!" said Ethel's mother, after Robert had already caused two platefuls to disappear.

"Well, Cousin Mary, I think I will, since you are so pressing," replied the guest.

"You win, mother!" exclaimed Ethel suddenly; and mother, caught napping, turned to her with a smile and asked:

"Win, dear?"

"Yes, I heard you say to father this morning that you bet a dollar that Cousin Robert behaved like a pig!"

Individual Airplanes.

Whether or not the average citizen welcomes the idea of individual airplanes jaunting about in the air over his head, the inventors are busy enough trying to invent them. Several small planes are already more or less on the way to such use in England, Italy and France. One reads of planes already perfected, and that "small and light, and capable of being landed at low speed, they are just the type for fitting about the country, from one club to another." Italy is said to have produced the smallest, a tri-plane only 11½ feet wide, and requiring for its operation "about as much skill as the attachment of a side-car to a motorcycle." Seeing, says the adage, is believing; and the pedestrian who takes scant pleasure in this notion of a gentleman fitting about the country from one club to another may well wonder how soon he will have to believe in them.

Peanut Oil Gaining Favor.

The production of peanut oil, including both the cold-pressed and the hot-pressed, in the United States has increased from 454,000 pounds in 1912 to 95,984,000 pounds in 1918, an increase of more than 21,000 per cent. The importation of peanut oil increased from 7,626,000 pounds in 1912 to 68,466,000 pounds in 1918. Practically all the imported peanut oil is hot-pressed. Complete statistics for 1919 are not yet available.

It is apparent, say specialists, that cold-pressed peanut oil is winning for itself a place on the American table, justified by its flavor, nutritive value and digestibility.

Nothing There.

Before the consolidation I held an agency for one of the old express companies. One day several patrons were in the office when the superintendent and two other officials of the company came in unexpectedly. A woman had just asked for a package, and evidently the unexpected visit of the officials flustered me, for, after looking over the on-hand register and not finding anything listed for her, I returned to the counter, took down the receiver from the telephone, and said: "Hello, there is nothing here for you." My customer was standing right near the telephone, and every one laughed.—Chicago Tribune.

Reckless Regale.

Nephew—That was a pretty good dinner we had; shall we have a drink now?

Uncle—Man, ye ken A'm teetotal.

Nephew—A cigar, then.

Uncle—A dinna smoke.

Nephew—Oh, do something reckless—remember my firm is paying all the expenses!

Uncle—Weel. A think A'll ha'e my boots cleaned here then!—The By-stander.

Democratic Ticket

For United States Senator: JOHN WALTER SMITH
of Worcester County

For Representative in the Sixty-Seventh Congress
THOMAS ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH
of Caroline County

It didn't take so many days to celebrate the nation's birthday as in the good old wet times.

Formerly people used to boast of how much work they did and now they brag of how little they do.

Farmers with a cider barrel in their cellar have not so far offered any complaint of shortage of help.

A lot of people don't need any vacation as they have been taking one most of the time for several years past.

It is not probable that Mr. Hoover would refuse the gift of a bushel basket to hold all the college degrees he is getting.

Being told that they must keep their eyes open a lot of folks obey the injunction by watching the clock to see if it isn't most quitting time.

The people who won't rent houses to families having babies have not yet offered any theory as to how the population of the world is to be maintained.

If large quantities of oil should now be struck in Armenia a lot of people would be convinced that it was the duty of this country to intervene and protect these poor sufferers.

The Republican party is largely responsible for the remarkable tribute paid to President Wilson by the Democratic National Convention at its opening session. Whatever quarrel Democrats may have with the President, they resent as party men the attacks of the opposition on their leader. These attacks were never so bitter or ill-natured as when the President lay stricken with a grave illness in the White House.

BUSINESS FAILURES

During the past year the number of business failures has been small. In a time when prices are rising there are not usually many failures. The more reckless a man is the more money he makes on a rising market. But what rises always has to fall sometime.

When the time of deflation comes,
when the banks call the loans, prices start on the down grade and credit is hard to get, then comes the test. The man who has been working on a shoe string finds that to move his goods and pay his debts he must close out stock at such a loss that his business is in an insolvent condition.

Everyone is glad to see prices coming down. But the people should not demand a process of deflation so rapid that a lot of merchants will be made bankrupt. The country was several years climbing up to the peak of inflation and it will take several years to recede safely from this artificial condition.

THE GOVERNMENT AND PRICES

The old economic theory was that the law of supply and demand, insured reasonable prices. If sellers charged too high, more people went into the business and increased the supply, and prices went down automatically.

That theory still works in the long run. It is the only permanent method in reducing the cost of living. But many trade customs have arisen that seriously obstruct the working of this economic law.

The time came when producers and dealers began to associate themselves in big combines and trusts that could artificially limit supply, or otherwise keep prices at an abnormal figure. As the result, many articles like sugar have been selling for three to five times as much as formerly. The people of this community feel these burdens keenly and they demand relief.

It used to be the prevailing sentiment that the government should keep entirely out of private business. But emergencies arise when the government has to take a hand. Government operation of most industries would result in less efficient methods and much higher cost of production. Nevertheless, when you have to pay 28 cents for sugar that you could formerly buy for five, it is time for the government to take a hand.

Had the government gone in last fall and bought the entire Cuban sugar crop at such a price that the people could have got it for 10 or 12 cents a pound, so could probably have been done, very few people would have criticized such action or would have called it socialistic.
These are times when people do not stand on definitions. They want results. If producers adopt a policy of radical profiteering the government will have to act.

Problems For The Wiseacres

Besides the election of a President and Vice-President there are other incidental matters that the electors of the country will be called on to settle.
Four hundred and thirty-five representatives in Congress are to be selected.

At present the majority in the lower branch of Congress is Republican, but most of the time during recent years it has been Democratic. It will be a fight in every Congressional district to turn the balance. Thirty-three senators are to be chosen. At the present time the party strength stands 49 Republicans, 46 Democrats and one vacancy. Based upon the complexion of party control in the 32 States having elections the Republicans appear to have the best of matters, but the Democrats, who have been "sorter laying low" have quit conceding anything. The results of next November may look easy to political partisans, but the wiseacres who wear out leadpencils and smash adding machines in making their calculations are free to admit that the contest throughout the country does not give any assurance of a walk-away to either side.

Public Hanging Again

By the law of the State, sheriffs are required to inflict the death penalty "in as private a manner as possible." The sheriff of Talbot county, having received the warrant of the Governor to put into effect the judgment of the court of Baltimore county that Isaiah Fountain shall "be hanged by the neck until he is dead" on July 23, announces that the hanging will be in the yard of the jail of Talbot county and that he will place no screen around the gallows, on the assumption that the crowd which will gather to witness the execution would demolish any inclosure of boards or canvas.

There is only one way in Maryland to have executions private and that is to change the place and method of inflicting the death penalty. The News has repeatedly urged upon the Legislature that the law governing executions be amended so as to provide for removal of condemned prisoners to Baltimore when the prescribed penalty cannot be carried out in private within the jurisdiction where the crime was committed.
It is to be hoped the next Legislature will see fit to do so.

But, notwithstanding the difficulties now in the way of preventing executions in the counties from being made a spectacle for the morbid and the mob, there are ways in which a sheriff, if so disposed, could avert some of the consequences of public hangings. He could do something to keep the hour secret, just as he might carry out the execution at a time not fixed, as is often the case, to subvert the convenience of the crowd.—Baltimore News.

Electrifying The Railroads

About 150,000,000 tons of coal were consumed by the railroads in the year 1917. If the roads were all electrified this consumption would be cut down to 50,000,000 tons. And if water power could be substituted for power generated by burning coal, the whole 150,000,- 000 tons could be saved, and one of the great costs of production and of living would thus be reduced.

With the growing cost of coal and the increased cost of labor to mine it, the country must consider more seriously the need for rapid advance in electrifi-cation.

The cost of such an improvement would be enormous. With capital as scarce as it now is, it is impossible to make any rapid progress in this direction. Only through increased savings by the people can this great step toward conservation of resources and lower cost of living be made.

Suffered Intense Pain

"A few years ago when visiting relatives in Michigan something I had eaten brought on an attack of cholera morbus," writes Mrs. Celesta McVicker, Macon, Mo. "I suffered intense pain and had to go to bed. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and one dose relieved the pain wonderfully. I only took two or three doses but they did the work."

This price was exclusive of the package, which brought the price up to $2.85, when packed ready for shipment.

Milk Testers To Hold Certificates

The examinations to be held in compliance with the recent regulations passed by the State Board of Agriculture which requires those engaged in the testing of milk to hold certificates of competency, have been announced for the various sections of the State by the examining officer, J. A. Gamble, Professor of Dairy Husbandry at the Maryland State College of Agriculture.

The new regulations of the State Board of Agriculture will affect testers at milk depots, creameries and at cheese and condensing factories. All classes of persons engaged in testing milk for inspection or as a basis for payment, except farmers and dairymen who test their milk for their own information, will come under the provisions of the regulations.

For the convenience of those who come under the provisions of the law, a series of examinations extending over a period of several days will be held in different parts of the State. The last examination will be for operators in Wicomico, Dorchester, Somerset and Worcester counties at the Homestead Farm Laboratory at Salisbury.

TOWNS' NEED OF WOODLOT

Would Be Paying Proposition In These Days of Railroad Strikes and Coal Shortages.

Is there a little woodlot in your town? Zurich, Switzerland, has had one working for it for six centuries and it is still paying big dividends. There is a great big lesson in this, the American Forestry association of Washington says, in these days of railroad strikes and coal shortages.

Many travelers are familiar with the "town forests" of Europe. One of the best known of these is the communal forest belonging to the city of Zurich, in Switzerland, which has an area of 2,940 acres, yielding on the average an annual income of nearly $20,000, or about $7.00 per acre; and this is the most remarkable because most of this income is derived from the sale of firewood, which is perhaps, the cheapest product of a forest.

This tract of forest land has been under management since the year 1800, and it has been steadily increasing in value during these six centuries, writes Prof. John Bentley, Jr., of Cornell, in the American Forestry Magazine. In this country the number of towns and cities that are practicing forestry is still small, and their efforts have been confined chiefly to the protection of watersheds from which the city's water supply is drawn.

Billboards Versus Beauty.

Thus it comes about that people who ride out into the country, eager for the rest and refreshment which only the open country can give, find every field and every little hill dotted by V-shaped signs, erected in the most approved fashion, and ornamented with the approved moldings and machine-made cornices, while the beautiful vistas that might otherwise make each turn in the road a new delight are cut short by successive examples of the approved "head-on" "showings." One needs but to test his own sensations on such a motor ride to know how completely the billboard men are stifling his power to enjoy "natural scenic beauty spots." All their scruples have not preserved to him his native rights in the open country.—Christian Science Monitor.

Where Did the Colors Go?
John's mother was washing some of his garments. Holding up one of his new wash suits, she exclaimed: "Oh, dear, dear, John, the colors in your pretty new suit ran." John, who was having much trouble in controlling a fiery steed in the form of a broom handle, apparently paid little attention. A little while later, he came to his mother, and said in a much puzzled manner: "Mother, I can't find 'em any place." "Find what, dear?" asked the mother. "Why, the colors," answered John. "You said they ran. Where did they go?"

Blight Appears In Potatoes

A number of potato fields in the county have been attacked during the week by early and late blight. Late blight causes the leaves at the bottom of the plant to turn yellow, then brown and die. It soon affects the entire plant. It also causes the potatoes to rot.

This disease can be controlled by several applications of Bordeaux mixture during the growing season. In the northern potato growing States spraying has given an increased yield of potatoes.

Four South American Animals of Great Utility.

The Llama in Particular, Well Called "Ship of the Desert," Is Prized—Alpaca Is Bred for Its Splendid Fleece.

When first seeing a llama, an alpaca, a vicuña or a guanaco, in their native habitat your first comment would be: "Too big for a sheep, too small for a camel, yet looks like both," while you might add mentally, as did the yokel when he saw the giraffe at the circus: "There ain't no such animal." These extraordinary creatures, little known outside of the southern Andean region of South America, have their range from southern Ecuador through the elevated plateaus of Peru and Bolivia southward along the high Andes to the plains of Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego. All are of the very highest utility for men's needs for food and clothing.

The four are merely different breeds of the same race, varying only as they have been bred in domesticity for certain specialized purposes, or modified by their environment when left unhindered in their native wilds. Possessing a head like a sheep, a swaying, curved neck like a camel, without the camel's hump but drawn in at the withers like the camel and with the camel's "wobbly" look, apparently insecurely braced upon its tall, slender legs, with the camel's cushion-like spray feet, the llamas undoubtedly belong to the camel family. They have the camel's nature, for though more vigilant than the camel, they possess the same dull imperturbability, and their identical stubborn, morose disposition, and seem to consider man their hereditary foe, only to be obeyed by compulsion and with spiteful splittings and groans.

The llama family in prehistoric times had a much wider range than at present, their fossil remains being found from the republic of Colombia northward to Central America and even as far north as central Colorado. The llama and alpaca are domesticated, the guanaco and vicuña are still in the wild state, and this is one of the instances where domesticated animals range co-existent with their wild congeners. Of the four kinds, the guanaco is the most numerous, and is found in bands of 5 to 500, and while confined to the high table lands elsewhere, in Patagonia their range is over the plains and lower lands as well.

Both the guanaco and vicuña are easily tamed and readily take to captivity, and from the wild guanaco and vicuña have sprung the domesticated llama and alpaca. The alpaca is kept upon the wild uplands near the eternal snows and is only driven in to be shorn of its beautiful fleece of black or brown wool, which is so long that it often falls over its sides and back like a curling cascade reaching to the ground.

When Pizarro and his fellow conquistadores conquered the aboriginal Peruvians they found the llama the only domesticated beast of burden. Under Spanish domination more than 300,000 llamas were used to carry silver from the mines to the seacoast, but the coming of the horse, the burro, and more than all else, the railway is gradually running it out, as it is timid and slow, and can travel with its 100-pound pack only 12 to 15 miles a day; yet it retains a certain advantage, as it is never fed on the trail, but forages its own living.

Baboons and an Airplane.

Writing of the passing of an Avro biplane over Uitenhage en route to Port Elizabeth, a South African newspaper has the following to say: "Mr. Norman Chase relates a peculiar experience he had in connection with the plane. He was bathing at Kamekha, when he noticed a number of baboons which were in the vicinity showing unmistakable signs of fear. They crowded together and whimpered, giving every indication that something unusual had disturbed them. Mr. Chase's dog, a well-trained Alsatian, also became uneasy, and appeared to be in dread of something. On looking round for the cause of all the trouble, Mr. Chase observed the airplane flying overhead at a comparatively low altitude. The sound of the engine and the huge birdlike appearance of the plane no doubt upset the equilibrium of the baboons."—Scientific American.

Danger in Improper Cooking.

In the Italian experiments indicating that much of our food is uncooked, or at least not cooked enough to destroy bacteria, a large joint of corned beef that had been boiled three and a half hours showed a temperature in the center of less than 140 degrees Fahrenheit. This is harmless to most disease germs, including tubercle bacilli, with which beef is believed to be especially liable to be infected. A meat pie eaten by a number of people caused two deaths, and while this appeared to be well baked outside, the middle gave evidence that it had not been heated above 105 degrees Fahrenheit.

A Politician.

A woman later I knew was quite a politician and once while running for a much coveted office, was desirous of getting the women's votes. He suddenly became courteous to all women of voting age and not only was successful in getting their votes but managed to—Chicago Tribune.

HOME TOWN HELPS

NUT TREES FOR ROADWAYS

Walnuts Bring Eight Dollars a Bushel, Says Writer in Making Suggestions for Planting.

Maples, poplars, elms, willows and the alantus are seen along roadways and in parks wherever public ambition for shade has been sufficient in degree to induce authorities to put in trees of one sort or another. For the most part our northern highways are unshaded except by such trees as may accidentally spring up by the roadside, and, after competition with various enemies, finally reach above the fences, writes Robert T. Morris, a member of the American Forestry association of Washington, in The American City on "Nut Trees for Roads and Parks." Trees for city roads and parks, particularly in the larger cities, are often enough selected by some nurseryman favored by the political powers that be, and the nurseryman furnishes what he wishes to supply the uncritical purchaser. The time for this sort of procedure is passing, and people are beginning to awaken on the subject.

Progress in civilization along this line will mean that we are gradually to dispose of the kind of trees that furnish nothing but bunches of leaves which in due season litter the ground and when swept up contain nothing more than incidental trash. Now, if these trees were to give place to nut trees and fruit trees, there would be very much besides leaves to be swept up in the autumn. One of my friends in Illinois told me that in 1918 he received $8 per bushel for his black walnuts of a particularly good kind, and that some of the trees bore as many as 14 bushels to the tree.

BESTOW THOUGHT ON GARDEN

Promiscuous Planting of Flowers, Trees, and Shrubs Is Not to Be Recommended.

The main planting of any country place should be of trees and shrubs. Flowers should be used as decorations. They may be thrown in freely about the borders of the place; not in beds in the center of the lawn. They show off better when seen against a background; this background may be foliage, a building, a rock or a fence.

Where to plant flowers is really more important than what to plant. In front of bushes, in the corner by the steps, against the foundation of the residence or hothouse, along a fence or walk—these are the places for flowers. A single petunia plant against a background of foliage is worth a dozen similar plants in the center of the lawn. Too many flowers make a place overgaudy. Too much paint may spoil the effect of a good building. The decoration of a yard, as of a house, should be dainty.

The open-centered yard may be a picture, the promiscuously-planted yard may be a nursery or a forest. A little color scattered in here and there puts the finish to the picture. A dash of color gives spirit and character to the brook or pond, to the ledge of rocks, to the old stump or to the pile of rubbish.

Well-Kept Lawns in East.

Persons travelling through the cities and villages of Connecticut and other New England states often comment on the beautiful lawns there, the Oklahoma remarks. Even out in the country the yards are covered with a fine growth of grass, well watered and neatly trimmed.

It is said New Englanders are so careful with their lawns that they will not use rakes in gathering the cut grass after a mower goes over it. Instead they sweep the cut grass away. They assert that rakes tear the roots of the grass and otherwise damage it.

Famous Pennsylvania City.

In the belfry of the ancient courthouse at York, Pa., hung a bell given by Queen Anne to St. John's Episcopal church. This bell was rung when the Declaration of Independence was signed, when Cornwallis and Burgoyne surrendered and when Washington passed through York. The bell is now on view in the vestibule of St. John's church. In the Presbyterian cemetery in York is buried James Smith, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and captain of the first military company organized in Pennsylvania to fight Great Britain.

Faith Before Doubt.

As a general thing, the reason a man thinks he's having a good time when he is spending a lot of money is because he knows he will doubt it next day.—Dallas News.

An Average Man.

"What is your idea of the average man?" "In a city he's a fellow who's always waiting for the rales that never comes; takes his meals off the arm of a chair until he gets married and after that eats in the kitchen with his coat off; never spends more than 50 cents on amusements in one day, until after he's married, and then never spends more than a quarter, and whenever there's a street parade downtown he's always somewhere along the line of march."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Gold in Adobe Walls.

The Mexican city of Guanajuato, built near the oldest gold mines in the country, was originally constructed of adobe made of the refuse of these mines. As the early processes of extraction were very imperfect, the walls and floors of these buildings were thus full of gold. Things would have continued thus for an indefinite time, and the inhabitants would have been living yet in these valuable buildings, if the passage of a railway line nearby had not made necessary the demolition of about 100 houses.

Anne Boleyn's Clock.

The weights of a clock at Windsor castle bear on them "The Most Happy," and the clock is further inscribed with the motto, "Dieu et mon droit," and the letters "H. A." entwined in true-lovers' knots. This exquisitely-made clock—only four inches deep and ten inches high—was a gift from Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn on her wedding day. It was in the possession of Horace Walpole, and Queen Victoria paid $351 for it when the contents of Strawberry Hill were sold in 1842.

Unpleasant Bedfellows.

In California and on the staked plains in Texas where the nights are cold, it is the rattlesnake's custom to crawl between a traveler's blankets and snuggle up close to him till morning. Numbers of them are killed in camp every year by soldiers campaigning in that section; but as the rattlesnakes seldom abuse hospitality by biting the sleeper, few accidents happen. Still, there are men who, when out on a hard march, prefer to sleep alone.

Content With Little.

"It seems to me," said Marthe, with the wisdom that the simple in heart acquire with pain and travail, "that in this world a woman's only chance of happiness is if she loves. Being loved doesn't make her so. . . . Love's a fire, so it must have fuel to keep it alive, but a woman's fire needs very little, and that is rather a good thing perhaps, for she seldom gets much." "The Journey Home," by Sybil Lethbridge.

Sea Serpents Numerous.

There are plenty of sea serpents, and of all snakes they are the most venomous. In tropical waters they are vastly numerous, especially in the Indian ocean, where they are often seen literally by hundreds, swimming at the surface of the water. They are six to eight feet long, very fierce and will commonly attack human beings. Their bodies are flat, and almost wholly filled by the lungs.

Tactful Youngster.

Mother bought a box of candy, but it was nearly dinner time so would not give any to Sonny. While waiting for the dinner bell to ring Sonny said: "Mamma, let's play store." Mother was willing, so the child went on with his game of make-believe. Said he: "This room will be the candy store. You be the clerk and I'll be buying, but, oh, mamma, let's have real candy!"

Why High Noon Weddings.

All of us frequently use expressions of which we do not really know the meaning. Did you, for example, know that noon is the traditional hour for a wedding ceremony because in the olden days in England the bridegroom could not be relied upon to be sober any later in the day than this hour?

Be Truthful Always.

He that is habituated to deceptions and artificialities in trifles, will try in vain to be true in matters of importance; for truth is a thing of habit rather than of will. You cannot in any sudden and single effort will to be true if the habit of your life has been insincere.—F. W. Robertson.

Bad Temper.

It is an almost inviolable rule that complaints are mutual. There are two sides to every bad temper. The truth is, bad temper is due less to the occurrence of irritating things than to the occurrence of things to irritable people.

Maggie Sacred in Norway.

The magpie is, or was, held to be sacred in Norway, and whoever lifted a hand against it promptly brought down a curse not only upon himself, but on his family, relations, intimate friends, live stock and household goods.

Napoleon's Height.

Historians say that at the time of his coronation Napoleon Bonaparte was a little under five feet, three inches, but he became stooped later in life and at his death measured scarcely more than five feet.

Awful Possibility.

Edward was talking cannibals to his sister. Rather frightened, the little sister said: "Oh, I hope they don't come here. If they do, they'd eat us up and then we won't have ourselves."

Tempered With Mercy.

Even the girl who gets mad when she is kissed by a man is always merciful enough to remember that "perhaps the poor fellow couldn't resist such a temptation."—Houston Post.

EXPLAINS ORIGIN OF "JAZZ"

At Last the Secret (?) Is Given to the World, and by an Englishman, Too.

Writing about the jazz reminds me that the subject is of such importance that a long cablegram was recently sent from London concerning the origin of the word. According to the cablegram, the secret is out, and it is an Englishman who gives us the valuable information.

He tells us that, while Englishmen should not be held responsible for the vernacular of their brethren in the Western continent, the word jazz, he admits, is now as much a household word in England as in America. And then he goes on to say that the word came from the South and from the negroes. Now in the South, he tells us, there is a germ known as the hookworm, which affects all true southerners. Some unkind employers call it "loaferitis." The white employer, according to the erudite Englishman, in the South has many thousands of negroes working for him, and consequently many overseers. So, not being able to remember the names of all his foremen, he generally names each man Jasper, which, according to this Englishman, is a term of the highest esteem. Through the very human love of abbreviation, Jasper became "Jas," and as the overseer's principal means of getting work out of his underlings is through harsh and abusive tongue, he was often requested to "Jass up" the work. The Southern drawl makes "Jass" sound like "Jazz." And there we have the word itself. And jazz music, no matter what classic-loving critics may say about it, at least inspires energy. Hence the derivation. —Musical America.

TRAVEL IN "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Description of Journey Made in Early '50s Recalls the Hardships of the Pioneers.

The hardships of pioneer life in Wisconsin during the early '50s are vividly portrayed by Dr. John C. Reeve, in an article entitled, "A Physician in Pioneer Wisconsin," in the Wisconsin Magazine of History, published by the State Historical society.

The difficulties involved in the practice of medicine in a country almost devoid of roads, and with only the necessities of life, and with practically no money, are related by Doctor Reeve, who practiced in a small village in Dodge county. Of a journey made in January, 1852, he writes:

"Called to Cleveland by the critical illness of a sister, I left home on a Sunday morning in a sleigh, a private conveyance, and reached Milwaukee, about 50 miles away, that night. From there on runners to Chicago. Thence some 30 miles by Michigan Central railroad, and then by vehicle across to the Southern Michigan, at that time building from Toledo to Chicago. The appointments of the road were not yet made, so several times the train stopped, the passengers alighted and chopped fence rails to make fuel for the locomotives. From Toledo, on wheels, to a point on the railroad from Sandusky to Cincinnati; I think the place was Gallon. I reached my destination just at dark on Saturday night. I had traveled during the whole week, passing but two nights in bed."

More Ministers Needed.
It is from the families of the farmers and from the parsonage itself that new preachers come, according to a survey now being taken by the American education department of the Inter-church World Movement. The farms lead. The survey shows that out of every thousand pupils who enter the first grade of our American schools, only 38 enter college and only 14 remain to complete the course.

It is from these 14 that the churches recruit the great majority of their ministers. It is also disclosed by the survey that it requires about 5,000 new men every year merely to replace the gaps in the ranks of the ministry at home.

Possibly He Had.
As I was passing a yard where some children were playing I saw a little fellow fall from a high porch rail. He did not move for a minute so I ran to his assistance, but when I reached him he jumped up on his feet apparently unharmed.

"Why, my dear little boy," I said, "I felt sure you must be hurt. I am sure I should have been had I had such a bad fall."

"Oh, but you see," he said in explanation, "I've probably had lots more practice in falling than you."—Exchange.

No Cork Wasted Now.
The best cork has hitherto come from Spain, but the richest forests of fair grade cork are now in Sardinia. High prices are now paid for cork that was not salable a few years ago, for even the refuse is valuable now in making conglomerate for building and for insulating refrigerators, cork being the best non-conductor of heat and sound.

Moving Picture Statistics.
It is estimated that the gross yearly income of moving picture theaters in this country is about $750,000,000. In 20 years' time the public has been educated to spend this huge sum. There are 15,000 theaters, with a total seating capacity of 8,000,000. This year 1,200 more theaters will be built at an aggregate cost of $72,000,000.—Argonaut.

EIGHTEEN APPLES AND A PEACH

"Just thought I would send you a picture of the box of apples I'm going to exhibit," ran the postscript on the photo. If the apples prove as attractive as the owner they will certainly take a prize.

Indications point to an unusually large exhibit at the coming show. Some liberal prizes for horticultural products are offered by the Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, Aug. 31 to Sept. 4, inclusive.

REDUCTION IN EGG BREAKAGE

Matter of Much Importance That Smaller Proportion Than Ever Be Injured in Transit.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

An egg broken accidentally before it leaves the farm usually goes on the farm table, and nothing is lost. Eggs broken at the grocery may be disposed of at reduced prices as cracked eggs and little actual food loss results. But the egg broken after it is packed for shipment is likely to be a thoroughly bad egg before it arrives at its destination and become a total loss. With eggs selling at record prices, it is a matter of importance that a smaller proportion of eggs than ever before are broken in transit. This result was brought about by the co-operative efforts of the United States department of agriculture and the United States railroad administration. Employees of the railroad administration were detailed to the bureau of chemistry, where they received instruction in proper methods of loading and stowing eggs in freight cars. Wherever cars were received at terminals in a badly damaged condition, these employees of the railroad administration paid personal visits to the shippers for the purpose of instructing them how properly to load cars to avoid damage in future shipments. The result, according to the report of the chief of the bureau of chemistry, is a material diminution in the breakage of eggs during transportation.

Home Proof, Here, There and Everywhere

When you see Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in this paper you most always find the recommender a Princess Anne resident. It's the same everywhere—in 3,800 towns in the U. S. Fifty thousand people publicly thank Doan's. What other kidney remedy can give this proof of merit, honesty and truth? Home testimony must be true or it could not be published here. Then insist on having Doan's. You will know what you are getting.

Mrs. H. B. Wherrett, Antioch avenue extended, says: "I had been troubled nearly all my life with kidney complaint and had severe backaches at times. If I did anything that caused me to stoop over, I suffered very much with severe pains through the small of my back, especially when I straightened up. At times I could see black specks and fiery flashes in front of me. During the last attack, I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I have had no further trouble. I cannot recommend this medicine too highly."

Importance of Trees.

When we have once had our interest in trees awakened and have considered their various uses and helpfulness to man, we are glad to learn something of their ways and how their troubles may be remedied. Trees help to keep the soil in place on hillsides. They hold to its course the wayward brook. They furnish shelter, shade and cozy nesting-places for the birds; we should have few little feathered friends if it were not for trees. They are companionable, and like to grow where they can rub branches with their fellows; they give a refreshing shade in the summer and protection in the winter, and they have character and individuality. It is well worth our while to save them from destruction, as well as to help restore the forests which have been ruthlessly cut down.

Good Advice.

An aged Scot told his minister that he was about to make a pilgrimage to the Holy land. "And when I'm there," said the pilgrim complacently, "I'll read the Ten Commandments aloud frae the top o' Mt. Sinai." The minister looked at him with an eye of pity, and said: "Sandy, tak' my advice: Bide at hame and keep them."

American troops are not allowed to cross the Mexican border except on "a hot trail," but no doubt they can use their discretion about what constitutes "a hot trail" in such a warm country.

The prince of Wales spent only $35,000 of the $125,000 allowed him for his trip to Canada and the United States. But he was in the hands of friends who "wouldn't let him spend anything."

We are fast returning to normal. The annual story of the woman in whose stomach the surgeons discovered a choice assortment of domestic hardware is going the rounds of the first pages.

Mrs. Linda Harrod Endorses Chamberlain's Tablets

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and tried everything I heard of but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them from our druggist. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness and pain in the stomach after eating. Since taking two bottles I can eat anything I want without distress," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The Old Order Changeth

And among the things that change, chalk down agricultural fairs. The old county fair was too little concerned with farming and too much with Flim-Flams, Mid-Way Spielers, and the Great Percy Who Eats 'Em Alive. But now, says we're going to have some real fairs—fairs that build up an agricultural community. In a coming series, Big Country Fairs, Mr. Taylor tells how it's being done. You'll want to know.

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

The reason for the success of these new community fairs is this: They are farmers' fairs, planned by farmers to suit the needs of farmers. That, too, is the reason why THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is interested in them. There is no side of the farmer's hundred-billion-dollar business that doesn't interest this great farm-service weekly of national vision. It always stands ready to champion any worthy movement to further the welfare of the farmer and to improve his working and living conditions. Over 650,000 readers—including not a few of your neighbors—enjoy and appreciate Country Gentleman service now. You can, too—just $1.00 will bring you the next 52 big issues. Bargain? You bet!

For Wheat and Clover for Hay

Use TILGHMAN'S STANDARD FISH MIXTURE 2-10-2

So that the wheat and clover that you will be planting within a couple of months will yield a fine crop of hay, it is necessary that the wheat and clover get a good start in the fall so that they can successfully live through the winter. Tilghman's Standard Mixture 2-10-2 should be used in planting this combination crop. It gives the wheat and clover a good start in the fall, enables it to survive successfully a severe winter and yield a bountiful hay crop in the spring. Another thing, clover as you know is a wonderful fertilizer, the larger the crop the more wheat stubble and clover there will be to turn under, which means increased productivity turned back into your soil for your next crop. Tilghman's Standard Mixture 2-10-2 will grow the clover in abundance.

Elopers Wed in Crisfield

On Monday afternoon of last week quite a romantic touch was given a supper and festival held on the site of the new Baptist Church, in Crisfield, when four elopers from Saxis, Va., presented themselves before the Rev. Dr. Robert Killgore, pastor of the church, to be married. Having met with opposition at home, the young women, being under the age required in Virginia to be married without the parents' consent, with their fiancés came to Princess Anne and secured the licenses and then drove to Crisfield to be married.

The double ceremony was performed in the open air before an immense crowd. Miss Adeline Marshall was married to Luther Miller and Miss Ezola Miles to Zeddie Lewis. Immediately after the ceremony the crowd swarmed around them extending congratulations and Dr. Killgore invited them to take supper as guests of the church, but they declined and as soon as they could get away drove off in their car.

A discount of 3 per cent. is allowed on county taxes if paid on or before October 31st, 1920, and 2 per cent. if paid during November. The county tax rate is $1.95 on the $100, and the state tax rate is 36 31-100 cents on the $100.

Bryan Grief Stricken

"My heart is in the grave with our cause and I must pause until it comes back to me," said William J. Bryan, Monday of last week, in giving his reason for not making any extended statement on the work of the Democratic National Convention.

"My views on the convention's action in reference to the indorsement of prohibition are known," said Mr. Bryan. "I regard it as a very serious mistake—it opened the door to the nomination of a wet candidate. I need not repeat here what I have said before in regard to the evasion of other issues."

When asked if he would have anything to do with the third party movement which began its convention in Chicago last Saturday, July 10, or would indorse its candidate, he replied:

"I do not care to discuss any other movement. It took the Democratic convention quite a while to decide on a candidate and the individual voters have about four months in which to consider the claims of the candidates. I shall use a part of that four months in considering the question."

"I do not care to say anything about congressional plans, but the question suggests a subject which the public cannot overlook, namely, the importance of selecting a Senate and House that will refuse to increase the alcoholic content in permitted beverages or any other weakening of the enforcement law."

Western Maryland College

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Western Maryland College appearing in this issue. This institution, located at Westminster, Md., begins its fifty-fourth year September 20th, 1920. It has made a record for thoroughness and efficiency not excelled by any in the State. Its beautiful location in the highlands of Maryland, its excellent equipment in buildings and grounds, its well-trained faculty, its up-to-date courses of study, and its charges kept down to reasonable terms make it an attractive place to get an education.

In addition to the usual Classical Scientific and Historical courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, there are supplementary courses in Music, Expression, Oratory, Domestic Science and Education. Completion of this last-named course secures the certificate of the State Board of Education. A regular unit of the Reserve Officer Training Corps is established at the College, the government supplying the Professor of Military Science and Tactics and uniforms and equipment.

We commend this Institution to any of our readers who may be considering the question where is my boy or girl to go to College?

In these days the only things that are worth just what we pay for them are the things we get for nothing.

JAMES MIDDLETON COX.

James Middleton Cox was three times Governor of Ohio—an honor enjoyed by only one other Ohioan, Rutherford B. Hayes.

Born on a farm, educated in the public schools, a printer's devil, a school teacher, a newspaper reporter, a private secretary to a Congressman, owner, manager and proprietor of two newspapers, member of Congress for three years and three times Governor of his State is his record to date.

Mr. Cox was born in Jackson, Ohio, in 1870. He attended district school and held his first position as a teacher of the school in which he took his first lesson. He spent evenings and holidays in a printing office. In a few years he received his first assignment on the editorial staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

In 1898 Mr. Cox bought the Dayton News. In 1903 he bought the Springfield Press-Republican, forming later the Springfield News. These two papers now constitute the News League of Ohio, of which Cox is owner and editorial director.

Mr. Cox represented the Third Ohio district in Congress from 1909 to 1913. In the latter year he began his first term as Governor, his election as a Democrat having been hailed by Republicans as an "accident." In 1915 he was defeated for re-election by Frank B. Willis, Republican. In 1917, however, Cox came back strong and won the election over Willis. In 1919 he was again elected for a two-year term.

Mr. Cox had barely assumed the duties of Governor in 1913 when the great floods of that spring inundated Dayton and the valleys of the Miami and Scioto. Governor Cox has been married twice. His present wife was Miss Margaret Blair, whom he married in Chicago in 1917. They have a little daughter, Ann. Another daughter, Mrs. D. J. Mahoney, lives in Dayton. The sons, John and James, Jr., are in school.

Mr. Roosevelt was born in Hyde Park, a little village near Poughkeepsie, New York, January 30th, 1882, the son of James and Sara Delano Roosevelt. He is a distant relative of Col. Theodore Roosevelt on his father's side, and of the Astor family through his mother. He attended the Groton School and was graduated from Harvard in 1904 and the Columbia Law School in 1907, being admitted to the New York bar during the same year. He practiced at first with Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, of New York, and then became a member of the firm of Marvin, Hooker & Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt married Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, niece of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt and daughter of Eliot Roosevelt, March 17, 1905. They have five children.

Mr. Roosevelt first sprang into political prominence in 1910 when he was drafted by the Democrats of the Twenty-eighth New York State Senator district, consisting of the counties of Dutchess, Putnam and Columbia, in an effort to defeat Senator John F. Schlosser, of Beacon, who was a candidate for re-election. Roosevelt was successful, rolling up a majority of 356 in the Democratic landslide which carried John A. Dix into the Governor's chair. One of the stories still told of Mr. Roosevelt's first campaign by local politicians is that he corralled the farmer vote by running on a platform which advocated uniform apple barrels.

Mr. Roosevelt was re-elected in 1912, but resigned his seat on March 17, 1913, to accept the appointment of Assistant Secretary of the Navy. His most famous exploit in the State Senate was his leadership of the insurgents who opposed the election of William F. Sheehan to the United States Senate. After three months' deadlock James A. O'Gorman was elected with Mr. Roosevelt's concurrence. Since Mr. Roosevelt's appointment to the Navy Department he has spent most of his time in Washington, returning during the summer months and on holiday trips to visit his mother. He has never relinquished his deep interest in Hyde Park, however, and is still one of its foremost citizens and one of the leading parishioners of St. James' Episcopal Church, which the Roosevelt family has attended for years.

Lawn Party Wednesday, July 21st

The ladies of St. Andrew's Guild will hold a lawn party at the home of Mrs. McMaster, Princess Anne, on Wednesday evening, July 21st. The patronage of the public is solicited.

COX AND ROOSEVELT DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES

Deadlock Holding Through Forty-Three Ballots Smashed By Landslide In Forty-Fourth—Roosevelt Named By Acclamation

James M. Cox, three times Governor of Ohio, was nominated for the Presidency early last Tuesday morning by the Democratic National Convention, at San Francisco, Cal., in the break up of one of the most prolonged deadlocks in the history of national political parties. It took 44 ballots to make a choice, and it was not until the thirty-eighth, when Attorney General Palmer withdrew from the race, that the long succession of rollcalls showed any definite trend.

In the turnover of the Palmer delegates Cox gained the advantage over William G. McAdoo, his rival for first place since early in the balloting, and that advantage never was lost.

With the choice made the convention adjourned to noon to name a candidate for the Vice-Presidency.

Supporters of Governor Cox won the way to nomination by persistent battering at the McAdoo and Palmer forces in many States throughout a long series of shiftings and rallies which left now one and then another of the candidates in the lead.

On the opening ballot Friday previous the Ohio Governor was in third place. He soon passed Palmer, however, and on the twelfth ballot went ahead of McAdoo. Then began a see-sawing between the Cox and McAdoo totals which at the end of the thirty-ninth rollcall at midnight found the two virtually the same.

On the forty-second ballot the accession of most of the Palmer strength to Cox put him well ahead, and after that great and little State delegations went into the Cox column in a procession. On the forty-third he got for the first time a majority of all the votes cast, and on the forty-fourth he was plunging toward the required two-thirds when Colorado changed its vote to him and made the nomination obvious. It was made unanimous on motion of Sam B. Amidon, of Kansas, a leader of the McAdoo forces.

Of the 44 ballots, two were taken Friday night, 14 at the first session Saturday and six at the Saturday night session. Twenty-two were recorded Monday, 14 at the all-day session, and eight Monday night.

Cox began the fight with 134 on the first ballot and climbed steadily until the fifteenth, when he had 468 1/2. His lowest vote after that was on the thirty-fifth, the first taken at Monday night's session, when it fell to 367 1/2.

A curious thing in the voting for McAdoo was that he received 266 on the first ballot, the lowest cast for him, and 266 1/2 on the last ballot. His high water mark was 467, on the fortieth ballot. At that time Cox had 490.

Palmer opened with 256 votes. His highest vote was 267 1/2 on the seventh ballot.

As the Cox total passed that of McAdoo and surged upward, the McAdoo managers made a desperate fight to stop it in time. Their candidate twice had held the lead and lost it, however, and many delegates supporting him had given up hope that he ever could be nominated. On the last four ballots McAdoo lost steadily, several solid State delegations deserting his banner for that of the leader.

Besides, the scattering Palmer delegates, who at first had swung to McAdoo, drifted over into the Cox camp in increasing numbers, and he began to take a commanding place in the balloting. Once he had more than a majority the fight was easy. At the end of another day of furious struggle the convention stampeded to Cox, flung aside its rules and made his nomination unanimous with a roaring shout.

Schools Must Sing National Anthem

The late session of the General Assembly of Maryland passed an act, which was approved by the Governor, providing for the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" in the schools of the State at least once each week. The act provides: That it shall be the duty of every principal, headmaster, dean or other person in charge of any grammar school, high school, normal school, private school, preparatory school, college or university in the state of Maryland, giving an academic course, who have morning, afternoon or evening exercises or other gatherings, to open such exercises or gatherings, on at least one day of such school week, whether morning, afternoon or evening, with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," provided, that nothing in this act shall apply to professional schools."

Good goods come in small packages. In fact, the smallest troubles sometimes come in the biggest sighs.

Cox Promptly Accepts

DAYTON, O., July 7.—Governor James M. Cox promptly sent a telegram to the Democratic National Convention at San Francisco, announcing that he would accept the Presidential nomination, and thanking the delegates for their action.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, of New York, was nominated Vice-Presidential candidate by the Democratic convention last Tuesday afternoon.

It was a stampede from the time his name was placed in nomination. The other candidates rushed to withdraw, the rules were suspended and Roosevelt was nominated by acclamation.

When the convention met at noon and proceeded to the completion of the ticket the leaders looked over the field of avowed candidates for Vice-President and the paddock of dark horses and decided that they would select an Eastern man identified with the Administration. That eliminated Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, an Iowa man, at the start.

The choice finally narrowed down to Secretary of State Colby and Mr. Roosevelt. Charles F. Murphy was inclined to prefer Colby and to disapprove Roosevelt, who had been fighting Tammany. Brennan and others, however, finally brought him round to Roosevelt, and that settled the matter.

Gov. J. M. Cox's running mate on the ticket is only 38 years old. He had the support of Tammany and Taggart.

Other candidates placed before the convention were Gen. G. D. Tyson, of Tennessee; former Governor Hawley, of Idaho; W. V. Vaughn, of Oregon; Gov. S. W. Stewart, of Montana, and Edward L. Doheny, of California.

After Roosevelt had been placed in nomination, Governor Stewart appeared personally and withdrew. General Tyson did the same; then Senator Nugent withdrew the name of former Governor Hawley, of Idaho. Doheny and Vaughn pulled out and Roosevelt was the only name left before the convention.

David R. Francis, of Missouri, then moved that the rules be suspended and the nomination be made by acclamation. It went over with a crashing chorus of ayes and three deafening cheers for Cox and Roosevelt.

Cox Advises Prompt Ratification

If the legislature of Louisiana acts in accord with the opinion of Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee for president, women will be enfranchised to vote at the November election and the Democratic party may get the credit for making universal suffrage a fact.

In a telegram to Frank J. Looney, chairman of the Louisiana state central committee, Governor Cox expressed it as his opinion that the Louisiana legislature owes it as a duty to the Democratic party to ratify at once. Mr. Looney had wired the Governor, asking him to express his views to the legislature on ratification of the amendment. The Governor's reply was:

"I have your wire as chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Louisiana on the subject of the ratification of the suffrage amendment by the General Assembly. I can only express my opinion. It is that the legislature owes it as a duty to the Democratic party to ratify at once."

In his official capacity as governor of Ohio, the Democratic candidate has repeatedly placed himself on record as being in favor of giving the vote to women. He has signed a number of bills intended to enfranchise women in the state of Ohio, and in a special message to the legislature transmitting the federal amendment for ratification he urged favorable action. Consequently his frank opinion expressed last week on the subject was not unexpected.

3,375 Strikes In 1919

Strikes and lockouts in the United States during 1919 totaled 3,375 and affected more than 4,000,000 workers, according to a review issued by the Department of Labor. Approximately one-half of the strikes occurred in five States—New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois.

Although there were 37 more labor conflicts reported last year than in 1918, the total for 1919 was materially under that of 1916 and 1917. On the other hand, no strike in 1918 involved as many as 60,000 workers, while no less than nine walkouts last year interrupted the labor of more than 60,000.

The department's review attributed the absence of violence in labor controversies during 1919 to less frequent use of strike-breakers.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL PLATFORM

San Francisco, July 2.—The resolutions committee draft of the platform was adopted by the Democratic national convention without change. The document is as follows:

The Democratic party, in its national convention now assembled, sends greetings to the president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, and to the people of the United States, and expresses its pride in the great achievements for the country and the world wrought by a Democratic administration under his leadership.

It salutes the mighty people of this great republic, emerging with imperishable honor from the severe tests and grievous strains of the most tragic war in history, having earned the plaudits and gratitude of all free nations.

It declares its adherence to the fundamental progressive principles of social, economic and industrial justice and advance, and purposes to resume the great work of translating these principles into effective laws, begun and carried far by the Democratic administration and interrupted only when the war required the national energies for the single task of victory.

League of Nations.

The Democratic party favors the League of Nations as the surest, if not the only, practicable means of maintaining the peace and health of the world and terminating the insufferable burden of great military and naval establishments. It values peace as the most precious possession of the people and broke away from traditional isolation and spent her blood and treasure to crush a colossal scheme of conquest.

It was upon this basis that the president of the United States, in prearrangement with our allies, consented to a suspension of hostilities against the Imperial German government; the armistice was granted and a treaty of peace negotiated upon the definite assurance to Germany, as well as to the powers joined against Germany, that "a general association of nations must be formed, under specific covenants, for the purpose of affording mutual guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity to great and small states alike."

Hence we not only congratulate the president on the vision manifested and the vigor exhibited in the prosecution of the war, but we also congratulate his associates on the exceptional achievements at Paris involved in the adoption of a league and treaty so near akin to previously expressed American ideals and so intimately related to the aspirations of civilized peoples everywhere.

We commend the president for his courage and his high conception of good faith in steadfastly standing for the covenant pressed to by all the associated allied nations at war with Germany, and we condemn the Republican senate for its refusal to ratify the treaty merely because it was the product of Democratic statesmanship, thus interposing partisan envy and personal hatred in the way of the peace and renewed prosperity of the world.

By every accepted standard of international morality the president is justified in asserting that the honor of the country is involved in this business; and we point to the accusing fact that, before it was determined to initiate political antagonism to the treaty, the new Republican chairman of the senate foreign relations committee himself publicly proclaimed that any proposition for a separate peace with Germany, such as he and his party associates thereafter reported to the senate, would make us "guilty of the blackest crime."

On May 15 last the Knox substitute for the Versailles treaty was passed by the Republican senate; and this convention can contrive no more fitting characterization of its obliquity than that made in the Forum Magazine by the late Mr. F. B. by Henry Cabot Lodge when he said:

"If we send our armies and young men abroad to be killed and wounded in northern France and Flanders with no result but this, our entrance into war with such an intention was a crime which nothing can justify."

The intent of congress and the intent of the president was that there could be no peace until we could create a situation where no such war as this could recur. We cannot make peace except in company with our allies. It would brand us with everlasting dishonor and bring ruin to us also if we undertook to make a separate peace."

Lodge's Proposals Condemned.

Thus to that which Mr. Lodge, in saner moments, considered "the blackest crime" he and his party in madness sought to give the sanction of law; that which eighteen months ago was of "everlasting dishonor" the Republican party and its candidates today accept as the essence of faith.

We endorse the president's view of our international obligations and his firm stand against reservations designed to cut to pieces the vital provisions in congress for voting against resolutions for separate peace which would destroy the nation. We advocate the immediate ratification of the treaty without reservations which would impair its essential integrity; but do not oppose the acceptance of any reservations making clearer or more specific the obligations of the United States to the League of Nations. Only by doing this may we retrieve the prestige of this nation among the powers of the earth and recover the moral leadership which President Wilson won for which Republican politicians at Washington sacrificed. Only by doing this may we hope to aid the restoration of order throughout the world and to take the place which we should assume in the front rank of spiritual, commercial and industrial advancement.

We reject as utterly vain, if not vicious, the Republican assumption that ratification of the treaty and membership in the League of Nations would in any wise impair the integrity or independence of our country. The fact that the covenant has been entered into by 21 nations all as jealous of their independence as we are of ours, is a sufficient refutation of such charge. The president repeatedly has declared, and this convention repeatedly affirms, that all our duties and obligations as a member of the league must be fulfilled in strict conformity with the constitution of the United States, embodied in which is the fundamental requirement of declaratory of the chief magistrate before this nation may become a participant in any war.

Conduct of the War.

During the war President Wilson exhibited the very broadest conception of liberal Americanism in his conduct of the war, as in the general administration of his high office, there was no semblance of partisan bias. He invited to Washington as his counselors and coadjutors hundreds of the most prominent and pronounced Republicans in the country. To these he committed the responsibility of the gravest import and most confidential nature. Many of them had charge of vital activities of the government.

And yet, with the war successfully prosecuted and gloriously ended, the Republican party in congress, far from applauding the masterly leadership of the president and felicitating the country on the amazing achievements of the American government, has meanly requited the considerate course of the chief magistrate by savagely defaming the commander in chief of the army and navy, by assailing nearly every public officer, and every branch of the service intimately concerned in winning the war abroad and conserving the security of the government at home.

We express to the soldiers and the sailors of America the admiration of their fellow countrymen, evoked by the genius of such commanders as Gen. John J. Pershing the armed force of America constituted a decisive factor in the victory and brought new luster to the flag.

We commend the patriotic men and women who sustained the efforts of their government in the crucial hours of the war and contributed to the brilliant administrative success achieved under the broad-visioned leadership of the president.

Financial Achievements.

By the enactment of the federal reserve act the old system, which bred panics, was replaced by a new system which insured confidence. It was an indispensable factor in winning the war and today it is the basis of the nation's business. Indeed, one vital danger against which the American people should keep constantly on guard is the abandonment of this system its partisan enemies who struggled against its adoption and vainly attempted to retain in the hands of speculative bankers a monopoly of the currency and credits of the nation.

Under democratic leadership American people successfully financed their stupendous part in the greatest war of all time. The treasury wisely insured the continuance of this system an adequate portion of the war expenditure from current taxes and the bulk of the balance from popular loans, and, during the first full fiscal year after fighting stopped, upon meeting current expenditures from current receipts notwithstanding the enormous and unnecessary burdens thrown upon the treasury by the delay, obstruction and extravagance of a Republican congress.

The nonpartisan federal reserve authorities have been wholly successful in their maintenance of the system and, in their own time and their own way, have used courageously, their disposal to prevent undue expansion of credit in the country.

We commend the sound treasury and federal reserve policies, the inevitable war inflation has been held down to a minimum, the cost of living has been prevented from increasing here in proportion to the increase in other belligerent countries and in result the United States is the one great country in the world which maintains a free gold market.

We condemn the attempt of the Republican party to deprive the American people of their legitimate pride in the financing of the war, and to prevent without parallel in the financial history of this or any other country, in this or any other war, and in particular, we condemn the pernicious attempt of the Republican party to create discontent among the holders of the bonds of the government of the United States and to drag our public finance and our banking and currency system back into the arena of party politics.

Tax Revision.

The Republican congress persistently failed, through sheer political indifference, to make a single move toward a readjustment of tax laws which it denounced before the last election and was afraid to revise before the next election.

We advocate tax reform and a searching revision of the war revenue acts to fit peace conditions so that the wealth of the nation may not be withdrawn from productive enterprise and diverted to wasteful or nonproductive enterprise.

We demand prompt action by the next congress for a complete survey of existing taxes and their modifications and simplification with a view to greater equity and justice in tax burden and improvement in administration.

Public Economy.
Claiming to have effected great economies in government expenditures, the Republican party cannot show the reduction of one dollar in taxation as a corollary of this false pretense. In contrast, the last Democratic congress enacted legislation reducing taxes from $1,000,000,000 designed to be raised in 1919 to $1,000,000,000 for the first year after the armistice, and to $4,000,000,000 thereafter, and the Republican party has undiminished by our political adversaries. Two years after armistice day a Republican congress provides for extending the stupendous sum of $5,400,327,300.

Affecting great paper economies by reducing departmental estimates, the sums which would not have been spent in any event, and by reducing formal appropriations, the Republican statement of expenditures omits the prominent fact that congress authorized the use of $1,500,000,000 in the hands of various departments and bureaus which otherwise would have been covered into the treasury, and which should be added to the Republican total of expenditures.

High Cost of Living.

The high cost of living and the depreciation of bond values in this country are primarily due to war itself, to the necessary governmental expenditures for the destructive purposes of war, to private extravagance, to the world shortage of capital, to the inflation of foreign currencies and credits and, in large degree, to conscienceless profiteering.

The Republican party is responsible for the failure to restore peace and peace conditions in Europe, which is a principal cause of post-armistice inflation the world over. It has denied the demand of the president for necessary legislation to deal with secondary and local causes. The sound policies pursued by the treasury and the federal reserve system have limited in this country, though they could not prevent, the inflation which was world-wide. Elected upon specific promises to curtail public expenditures and to bring the country back to a status of effective economy, the Republican party in congress wasted time and energy for more than a year in vain and extravagant investigations, costing the taxpayers great sums of money while revealing nothing beyond the incapacity of Republican politicians to cope with the problem.

Demanding that the president, from his place at the peace table, call congress into extraordinary session for imperative purposes of readjustment, the congress when convened spent thirteen months in partisan pursuits, failing to repeal a single war statute which harassed business and industry, and the high cost of living without enacting a single statute to make the former afraid of doing a single act to help the latter.

The simple truth is that the high cost of living can only be remedied by increased production, strict governmental economy and a relentless pursuit of those taking advantage of post-war conditions and are demanding and receiving outrageous profits.

We pledge the Democratic party to a policy of strict economy in governmental expenditures and the enactment and enforcement of such legislation as may be required to bring profiteers before the bar of criminal justice.

The Tariff.

We affirm the traditional policy of the Democratic party in favor of a tariff for revenue only and confirm the policy of basing tariff revisions upon the intelligent research of a nonpartisan commission, rather than upon the demands of selfish interests, temporarily held in abeyance.

Budget.

In the interest of economy and good administration we favor the creation of an effective budget system that will function in accordance with the principles of the constitution. The reform should reach both the executive and legislative aspects of the question. The supervision and preparation of the budget should be vested in the secretary as the representative of the president. The budget, as such, should not be increased by the congress, except by a two-thirds vote, each house, however, being free to exercise its constitutional privilege of making appropriations through independent bills. The appropriation bills should be considered by single committees of the house and senate.

Senate Rules.

We favor such alteration of the rules of procedure of the senate of the United States as will permit the prompt transaction of the nation's legislative business.

Agricultural Interests.

Olive oil in Spain has gone up to 50 cents a quart, an unprecedented price. It would be an unprecedented price here, too, if we might ever hope to attain it.

Perhaps it is merely German thrift that leads the Germans to use their ammunition in killing each other rather than destroying it as the allies required.

It is said tight clothes and color organs will not be in evidence in this year's styles for men. In other words, everything will be sane and reasonable except the price.

J. T. TAYLOR, Jr., PRINCESS ANNE, MARYLAND

rule not a sentence was written into the federal statutes affording one dollar of bank credits to the farming interests of America. In the first term of this Democratic administration the national bank act was so altered as to authorize loans of five years' maturity on improved farm lands. Later was established a system of farm loan banks, from which the borrowings already exceed three hundred millions of dollars, and under which the interest rate to farmers has been so materially reduced as to drive out of business the farm loan sharks who formerly subsisted by extortion upon the great agricultural interests of the country.

Thus it was a Democratic congress in the administration of a Democratic president which enabled the farmers of America for the first time to obtain credit upon reasonable terms and insured their opportunity for the future development of the nation's agricultural resources.

Smith-Lever Act Praised.

Not only did the Democratic party put into effect a great farm-loan system of land mortgage banks, but it passed the Smith-Lever act, which extended the act, carrying to every farmer in every section of the country, through the medium of trained experts and by determined methods, the practical knowledge acquired by the federal agricultural department in all things relating to agriculture, horticulture and animal husbandry. It established the bureau of markets, the bureau of farm management and passed the cotton futures act, the grain inspection act, the cooperative farm administration act, and the federal warehouse act.

The Democratic party has vastly improved the rural mail system, and has built up the parcel post system to such an extent as to render its activities and practical service indispensable to the farming community. It was this wise encouragement and this effective concern of the Democratic party for the farmers of the United States that enabled this great interest to render such essential service in feeding the armies of America and the allied nations of the war and succoring starving populations since armistice day.

G. O. P. Condemned.

Meanwhile the Republican leaders at Washington have failed utterly to propose one single measure to make rural life more tolerable. They have signalled their fifteen months of congressional power by urging schemes which would strip the farms of labor; by assailing the principles of the farm-loan system and seeking to impair its efficiency; covertly attempting to destroy the great nitrate plant at Mussel Shoals upon which the government has expended $70,000,000 to supply American farmers with nitrate at reasonable cost; by ruthlessly crippling nearly every branch of agricultural endeavor, literally crippling the productive medium through which the people must be fed.

We favor such legislation as will confirm to the primary rights of the nation the right of collective bargaining and the right of co-operative handling and marketing of the products of the workshop and the farm and such legislation as will facilitate the exportation of our farm products.

We favor comprehensive studies of farm production costs and the uncensored publication of facts found in such studies.

Labor and Industry.

The Democratic party is now, as ever, the firm friend of honest labor and the promoter of progressive industry. It established the department of labor at Washington and the Democratic president called to his official council board the first practical workman who ever held a cabinet portfolio. Under this administration have been established employment bureaus to bring the man and the job together; have been peacefully determined many bitter disputes between capital and labor; were passed the child labor act, the workingmen's compensation act (the extension of which we advocate so as to include laborers engaged in loading and unloading ships and in interstate commerce), the eight-hour law, the act for vocational training and a code of other wholesome laws affecting the liberties and bettering the conditions of the laboring classes.

In the department of labor the Democratic administration has established a woman's bureau which a Republican congress destroyed by withholding appropriations.

Labor is not a commodity; it is human. Those who labor have rights and the national security and safety depend upon the conditions under which those rights and the conservation of the strength of the workers and their families in the home, of sound-hearted and sound-headed men, women and children. Laws regulating hours of labor and conditions under which labor is performed are necessary in recognition of the conditions under which life must be lived to attain the highest development of human nature. Just assertions of the national interest in the welfare of the people.

At the same time the nation depends upon the products of labor; a cessation of production means loss and, if long continued, disaster. The whole people, therefore, have a right to insist that justice shall be done to those who work and in turn that those whose labor creates the necessities upon which the life of the nation depends must recognize the reciprocal obligation between the worker and the state.

They should participate in the formulation of sound laws and regulations governing the conditions under which labor is performed, recognize and obey the laws so formulated and seek their amendment when necessary by the processes ordinarily addressed to the laws and regulations affecting the other relations of life.

Labor, as well as capital, is entitled to adequate compensation. Each has the indefeasible right of organization, of collective bargaining and of equalizing through representatives of their own selection.

Neither class, however, should at any time nor in any circumstances take action that will put in jeopardy the public welfare. Resort to strikes and lockouts which endanger the health or lives of the people is an unsatisfactory and equally unproductive method of settling disputes, and the Democratic party pledges itself to contrive, if possible, and put into effective operation a fair and comprehensive method of composing differences of this nature.

In private industrial disputes we are opposed to compulsory arbitration as a method plausible in the theory but a failure in fact. With respect to government service we hold distinctly that the rights of the people are paramount to the right to strike. However, we profess no hostility to strikes for the conditions of public employment and pledge the Democratic party to instant inquiry into the pay of government employees and equally speedy regulations designed to bring salaries to a just and proper level.

Woman's Suffrage.

We endorse the proposed nineteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States granting equal suffrage to women. We congratulate the legislatures of thirty-five states which have already ratified said amendment, and we urge the Democratic governors and legislatures of Tennessee, North Carolina and Florida, and such states as have not yet ratified the federal suffrage amendment, to unite in an effort to complete the process of ratification and secure the thirty-sixth state in time for all the women of the United States to participate in the fall election. We commend the effective advocacy of the measure by President Wilson.

Women in Industry.

We urge co-operation with the states for the protection of child life through infancy and maternity care; in the prohibition of child labor and by adequate appropriations for the children's bureau and the woman's bureau in the department of labor.

Disabled Soldiers.

The federal government should treat with the utmost consideration every disabled soldier, sailor and marine of the world war, whether his disability be due to wounds received in line of action or to health impaired in service; and for the dependents of the brave men who died in line of duty the government's tenderest concern and richest bounty should be their right. The fine patriotism exhibited, the heroic conduct displayed by American soldiers, sailors and marines at home and abroad constitute a sacred heritage of posterity, the worth of which can never be compensated from the treasury and the glory of which must not be diminished by any such exorbitant expenditures.

The federal board for vocational

...should be made a part of the war-risk insurance bureau in order that the risk may be treated as a whole, and this machinery of protection and assistance must receive every aid of law and appropriation necessary to full and effective operation.

We believe that no higher or more valued privilege can be afforded to an American citizen than to become a shareholder in the soil of the United States, and that we pledge our party to the enactment of legislation which will afford to the men who fought for America the opportunity to become land and home owners under conditions affording genuine government assistance unimpeded by needless difficulties of red tape or advance financial investment.

The railroads were subjected to federal control as a war measure without other idea than the swift transport of troops, munitions and supplies. When human life and national hopes were at stake, profits could not be considered, and were not. Federal operation, however, was marked by an intelligence and efficiency that minimized loss and resulted in many and marked reforms. The equipment was not only not only grossly inadequate, but shamefully outworn. Unification practices overcame these limitations, and provided additional, betterments and improvements. Economies enabled operation without the rate raises found in private control. It would have been the case under private operation. Investments in railroad properties were not only saved by government operation, but government management returned these properties vastly improved in every physical attribute and detail. A great task was greatly discharged.

The president's recommendation of return to private ownership gave the public a majority a full year in which to enact the necessary legislation. The house took six months to formulate its idea and another six months was consumed by the Republican senate in equally vague debate. As a consequence, the Cullen-Cummins bill went to the president in the closing hours of congress, and he was forced to a choice between the chaos of a veto and acquiescence in the measure submitted, however grave may have been the objections to it.

There should be a fair and complete test of the law until careful and mature action by congress may cure its defects and insure a thoroughly effective transportation system under private ownership without government subsidy at the expense of the taxpayers of the country.

Improved Highways.

Improved roads are of vital importance not only to commerce and industry but also to agricultural life. The federal road act of 1916, enacted by a Democratic congress, represented the first systematic effort of the government to insure the building of an adequate system of roads in this country. The act, as amended, has resulted in placing the movement for improved highways in a progressive and substantial basis in every state in the Union and in bringing under actual construction more than 13,000 miles of roads, suited to the traffic needs of the communities in which they are located.

We favor a continuance of the present federal aid plan under existing federal and state agencies, amended so as to include as one of the elements in determining the ratio in which the several states shall be entitled to share in the fund, the area of public lands therein.

Rural Free Delivery.

Inasmuch as the postal service has been extended by the Democratic party to the door of practically every producer and every consumer in the country (rural free delivery alone having been provided for 4,000,000 additional patrons within the past eight years without material added cost), we declare that this instrumentality can and will be used to the maximum of its capacity to improve the efficiency of distribution and reduce the cost of living to consumers and increasing the profitable operations of producers.

Merchant Marine.

We desire to congratulate the American people upon the rebirth of our merchant marine, which once more maintains its former place in the world. It was under a Democratic administration that this was accomplished after seventy years of indifference and neglect. 18,000,000 tons having been constructed since the act was passed in 1914. We pledge the policy of our party to the continued growth of our merchant marine under proper legislation so that American vessels will be carried to all ports of the world by vessels built in American yards, flying the American flag.

Inland Waterways.

We call attention to the failure of the Republican national convention to recognize in any way the rapid development of barge transportation on our inland waterways, which development is the result of the constructive policies of the Democratic administration. And we pledge ourselves to the further development of adequate transportation facilities on our rivers and to the further improvement of our inland waterways, and we recognize the importance of connecting the Great Lakes with the sea by way of the Mississippi river and its tributaries, as well as by the St. Lawrence river.

Transportation remains an increasingly vital problem in the continued development and prosperity of the nation. Our present facilities for distribution by rail are inadequate and the promotion of transportation by water is imperative. We therefore favor a liberal and comprehensive policy for the development and utilization of our harbors and interior waterways.

Flood Control.

We commend the Democratic congress for the redemption of the pledge contained in our last platform by the passage of the flood control act of March 1917, which point to the successful control of the floods of the Mississippi river and the Sacramento river, California. We favor the policy of that law for its complete justification. We favor the extension of this policy to other flood control problems wherever the federal interest involved justifies the expenditure required.

Reclamation of Arid Lands.

By wise legislation and progressive administration, we have transformed the government reclamation projects, representing an investment of $100,000,000, from a condition of immediate failure and loss of confidence in the ability of the government to carry through such large enterprises to a condition of demonstrated success, whereby formerly arid and unproductive lands now sustain 40,000 prosperous families and have an annual crop production of over $70,000,000, not including the crops grown on a million acres outside the projects supplied with storage water from government works.

We favor ample appropriations for the continuation and extension of this great work of home building and internal improvement along the same general lines, to the end that all practical projects be built, and waters now running to waste shall be made to provide homes and add to the food supply, power resources and taxable property, with the government ultimately reimbursed for the entire outlay.

The Trade Commission.

The Democratic party heartily indorses the creation and work of the federal trade commission in establishing a fair field for competitive business, free from restraints of trade and monopoly, and recommends amplification of the statutes governing its activities so as to grant it authority to prevent the unfair use of patents in restraint of trade.

Live Stock Markets.

For the purpose of insuring just and fair treatment in the great interstate live stock market, and thus insuring confidence in growers through which production will be stimulated and the price of meats to consumers be ultimately reduced, we favor the enactment of legislation for the supervision of such markets by the national government.

The United States is the neighbor and friend of the nations of the three Americas. In a very special sense our international relations in this hemisphere should be characterized by good will and friendship from any possible source to our national purpose. REMEMBER the time the first automobile parade was organized? Even the good old torchlight procession had to give way before the advance of progress.

Tires are often sold the same way politics are.

The last people to wake up to what they are getting are the people who pay the bills.

The bills are getting too big these days in both cases. And the man who is feeling it most with respect to tires is the man who owns a moderate-price car.

The idea that the small car owner doesn't need a good tire is rapidly going the way of all mistaken ideas.

He needs it more than anyone else. It's part of our job, as we view it, to see that he gets it.

Our tire service starts with good tires—U. S. Tires. All sizes made to a single standard of quality—none graded down to the price of the car they will go on.

U. S. perfected the first straight side automobile tire—the first pneumatic truck tire.

The U. S. guarantee is for the life of the tire, and not for a limited mileage.

When we recommend and sell U. S. Tires we do so in the interest of greater tire economy. It is our experience that that is the best way to build up a sound and sizable business.

nation and that permanent stability in her government and her institutions could only come from the consent of her own people to a government of their own making. It has been unwilling either to profit by the misfortunes of the people of Mexico or to enfeeble their future by imposing from the outside any rule upon their temporarily distracted councils. As a consequence, order is gradually reappearing in Mexico, and no time in many years have American lives and interests been so safe as they now are; peace reigns along the border and industry is resuming.

When the new government of Mexico shall have given ample proof of its ability permanently to maintain law and order, signified its willingness to meet its international obligations and written upon its statute books just laws, under which foreign investors shall have rights as well as duties, that government should receive our recognition and systematic assistance. Until these proper expectations have been met Mexico must realize the propriety of such recognition, the right of the United States to demand full protection for its citizens.

Petroleum.

The Democratic party recognizes the importance of securing by Americans of additional sources of supply of petroleum and other minerals and declares that such sources, both at home and abroad, should be fostered and encouraged. We urge such action, legislative and executive, as may secure to American citizens the same rights in the acquisition of mining rights in foreign countries as are enjoyed by the citizens of subjects of any other nation.

New Nations.

The Democratic party expresses its active sympathy with the people of China, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Poland, Persia and others who have recently established representative governments and who are striving to develop the institutions of true democracy.

Ireland.

The great principle of national self-determination has received constant reiteration as one of the chief objectives for which our country entered the war, and victory established this principle.

Within the limitations of international comity and usage this convention repeats the several previous expressions of the sympathy of the Democratic party of the United States for the aspirations of Ireland for self-government.

Armenia.

We express our deep and earnest sympathy for the unfortunate people of Armenia, and we believe that our government, consistent with its constitution and principles, should render every possible and proper aid to them in their efforts to establish and maintain a government of their own.

The Philippines.

We favor the granting of independence without unnecessary delay to the 10,500,000 inhabitants of the Philippine islands.

Hawaii.

We favor a liberal policy of home-steading public lands in Hawaii to promote a larger middle-class population, with equal rights to all citizens.

The importance of Hawaii as an outpost on the western frontier of the United States demands adequate appropriations by congress for the development of our harbors and highways there.

Porto Rico.

We favor granting to the people of Porto Rico the traditional territorial form of government, with a view to ultimate statehood, accorded to all territories of the United States since the beginning of our government, and we believe that the officials appointed to administer the government of such territories should be qualified by previous bona fide residence therein.

Alaska.

We commend the Democratic administration for insuring a wise policy as to Alaska as evidenced by the construction of the Alaska railroad and opening of the coal and oil fields.

We declare for the modification of the existing coal law, to promote development without disturbing the features intended to prevent monopoly.

For such changes in the policy of forestry control as will permit the immediate initiation of the paper pulp industry.

For relieving the territory from the evils of long-distance government by arbitrary and interlocking bureaucratic regulation, and to that end we urge the speedy passage of a law containing the essential features of the Lamm-Curry bill, now pending, co-ordinating and consolidating all federal control of natural resources under one department to be administered by a nonpartisan board permanently resident in the territory. For the fullest measure of territorial self-government with the view to ultimate statehood, with jurisdiction over all matters not of purely federal concern, including fisheries and game, and for an intelligent administration of federal control, we believe that all officials appointed should be qualified by previous bona fide residence in the territory.

Asiatic Immigrants.

The policy of the United States with reference to the nonimmigration of Asiatic immigrants is a true expression of the judgment of our people and to the several states, whose geographical situation or internal conditions make this policy and the enforcement of the laws enacted pursuant thereto, of particular concern, we pledge our support.

Postal Service.

The efficiency of the post office department has been vindicated against a malicious and designing assault by the efficiency of its operations to recover its assailants. Their voices are silenced and their charges have collapsed. We commend the work of the post commission on the reclassification of salaries of postal employees, recently concluded, which commission was created by a Democratic administration. The Democratic party has always favored and will continue to favor just treatment of all government employees.

Free Speech and Press.

We resent the unfounded reproaches directed against the Democratic administration for alleged interference with the freedom of the press and freedom of speech.

No utterance from any quarter has been assailed and no publication has been repressed which has not been animated by reasonable purpose, and directed against the nation's peace, order and security in time of war.

We reaffirm our respect for the great principles of free speech and a free press, but assert a just and indisputable proposition that they afford no toleration to enemy propaganda, or the advocacy of the overthrow of the government of the state or nation by force or violence.

"Republican Corruption."

The shocking disclosure of the lavish use of money by aspirants for the Republican nomination for the highest office in the gift of the people has created a painful impression throughout the country. Viewed in connection with the recent conviction of a Republican senator from the state of Michigan for the criminal transgression of the law limiting expenditures on behalf of a candidate for the United States senate, it indicates the re-entry, under Republican auspices, of money as an influential factor in elections, thus nullifying the letter and flouting the spirit of numerous laws, enacted by the people, to protect the ballot from the contamination of corrupt practices. We deplore these delinquencies and invoke their stern rebuke, pledging our earnest efforts to a strengthening of the present corrupt practices and their rigorous enforcement.

We remind the people that it was only by the return of a Republican senator in Michigan, who is now under conviction and sentence for the criminal misuse of money in his election, that the present organization of the senate with a Republican majority was made possible.

Conclusion.

Believing that we have kept the Democratic faith, and resting our claims to the confidence of the people not upon any one promise, but upon the solid performance of our party, we submit our record to the nation's consideration and ask that the pledges of this platform be appraised in the light of that record.

JAMES M. COX

After an extraordinarily long struggle, but one that was a perfectly clean test of strength between the admirers of many eminent men, the San Francisco convention nominated the strongest man who was before it. A Democrat who can be elected Governor of Ohio three times is a man of force of character and popularity, and is more likely to carry that State in the Presidential campaign than any other Democrat is to carry a large State which is usually heavily Republican.

The Governor is 50 years old. He is at the point where the vigor of early life and the experience and maturity that come later meet at their point of highest efficiency. The Governorship of a great State for three terms is the best possible training for the Presidency. He has been successful with everything he has undertaken, and that is not a matter of luck. He has built up two depleted newspapers into very profitable properties, he has been successful in other business enterprises, and is the possessor of a competence made by himself without any adventitious aids.

He has been identified with an uncommon amount of valuable constructive legislation. He has served two terms in Congress, enough to give him a good understanding of national legislation, but most of his work has been done in the Ohio Legislature. The Ohio school code is generally recognized as the best in the country, and it is mostly his work. The budget system, a workman's compulsory compensation system, the rural school code, the initiative and referendum in State legislation, home rule for cities, a country road system, the non-partisan judiciary, widows' pensions and prison reforms are all credited to him; he procured them while he was Governor and in great measure shaped them.

As a good deal has been said about the Governor's attitude toward prohibition it is interesting to recall that he was beaten by the saloon interests in 1914 because he enforced the Sunday closing law. There never had been one. He procured the law and enforced it and lost the election, but his party nominated him again and he was elected, and two years ago he was elected a third time. Governor Cox will enforce any law on the statute books. If a State Legislature or Congress does not want a law enforced it can take the responsibility of repealing it; Governor Cox will not allow a statute to become a dead letter. What he approves of, and what he will advise the enactment of, is another matter. As an Executive the Governor will do his duty and enforce the laws.

For several years he has been the leader of the Democratic party in Ohio, which has been a very good thing for the party and for the State. He is splendidly equipped and trained to be the leader of the Democratic party in the nation and to be the Chief Executive of the United States.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENCY

Franklin D. Roosevelt is a virile, upstanding, able American, with many of the characteristic qualities of his distant cousin Theodore. He adds to the Democratic ticket quite as much strength as the naming of Governor Coolidge brought to the Republican ticket. A quite young man, only 38 years of age, he has already demonstrated the possession of exceptional ability, and what is better, right-mindedness and honest conviction. His first essay in politics was as a member of the New York State Senate, where he led, and led successfully, a fight against Tammany in its efforts to make a United States Senator of William F. Sheehan. That was in 1910. In 1912 he was one of the progressive young Democrats of the country who had much to do with the nomination and election of Woodrow Wilson to the Presidency. For the past seven years he has been the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and has been recognized as one of the influential men in directing the affairs of the department.

The American people are spending $1,000,000,000 a year on candy, but up to date it has not seemed to sweeten their dispositions any.

Some folks' theory of how to get more money for themselves is to make everybody else poorer.

In France they sing to the horses to make them work better, while in this country they swear at them.

The people who are resting on their vacations have ample leisure in which to fret about the hot weather.

A "front porch" campaign is favored by many people for the presidential candidate but the politicians prefer a back door plan.

Formerly the school children used to walk out into the country to gather flowers and now they are willing to go if someone will give them a ride in an automobile.

The millionaires screen their residences now with thick growths of trees, but the tourist will pay down his good money to be able to say he has seen a chimney and a lightning rod.

Some people prefer to sit comfortably on their porches and read how the wicked capitalists are cornering the food supply than to get out in the back yard and raise some vegetables.

The merchants who won't advertise to close out goods on a declining market are likely to have the satisfaction of keeping the goods right on their shelves where they can enjoy looking at them.

The folks who read only the headlines of the political campaign news will often study everyone of the business pointers in the Marylander and Herald which gives them so many good business and household tips.

MEDIUM GRADE GOODS

A review of business conditions prevailing during June, issued by one of the federal reserve regional banks, urges that woolen manufacturers turn out goods mostly of medium and low priced materials.

If stores are filled up with costly goods consumers get the idea that they must pay high prices. Medium priced goods would give about as much service and it would not take so much capital and labor to produce them.

When the public seems willing to pay very high prices, the tendency is to make up goods in the most costly way. Producers put on extras that make goods look a little better and seem to justify the high prices, but which don't add much real value.

Millions of people, according to commercial reports, have been unwilling through the past year to take anything less than the very best. If the person who felt he could buy only second grade stuff when prices of everything were low, will now take only first grade when prices are away up, it is no wonder that he finds an enlarged income inadequate.

People who are good buyers rarely pay top prices for anything. They look over goods and they find lots of stuff at a medium figure that are practically as good as the highest priced lines, except for extra touches and fancy finish.

Producers of all kinds of merchandise should understand that the public has struck on the extremely high prices and the time has come when economies must be introduced and goods sold on close margins. If people buy of the substantial stores they can be sure that they are getting full value for their money.

Mrs. Linda Harrod Endorses Chamberlain's Tablets

"I suffered for years with stomach trouble and tried everything I heard of but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them from our druggist. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness and pain in the stomach after eating. Since taking two bottles I can eat anything I want without distress," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Ft. LONG POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS

It used to seem unreasonable to many people that it should take nearly a year of political debate to elect a president. The campaign for this year's nominations was actively under way last February so that the period of discussion is about eight months. Formerly presidential campaigns were considered to be unsettled business. Many people thought it would be better if the conventions were held in September, rather than June, thus shortening the period of uncertainty and debate.

It takes a long time to focus popular attention on any subject. A well-told lie travels very fast and it may take weeks and months to show it up. The President has enormous power and a poor choice places the country on the wrong track for four years. It is well that the country has been thinking about it since last February and will have three more months of sober second thought.

Will He Get There?

Perhaps. He's in no worse fix than the U. S. Department of Agriculture at this very moment—faced with the biggest program of its history and an appropriation chopped millions short. Will the Department Survive? asks J. Clyde Marquis, in an early issue of

Every farmer needs to know the answer. In his article Mr. Marquis presents truly enlightening conclusions based on months of study of the national agricultural crisis.

He shows, for example, the effect of reducing the appropriation for Farm Management and Cost of Production Work from $280,000 to $80,000, of 12,615 resignations within the department in one year. Such things directly influence the health of your hogs, the efficiency of your dairy, the market for your grain. You need to know about them. And you'll profit by knowing all the other vital farm facts and money-making ideas which fill each of the 52 big issues of this great weekly journal. It overlooks no aspect of your farm business or of the farm home. Let me start your year of Country Gentleman service with this splendid but typical issue.

Use TILGHMAN'S Bone Tankage 2-12-2

Last fall the wheat crop sown in America was much smaller than that of the year previous. It was scarcely up to normal of the years preceding the war. Reports from foreign countries indicate that this year's acreage is below average. Most foreign countries, even including those which are normally exporting countries, will have an insufficient supply of the world's necessity—wheat.

This situation will tend to uphold present prices and in all probability boost them higher. This is the American wheat farmer's opportunity. Increased production is what you should strive for. More bushels per acre are what will count. It is the extra bushels per acre that put the extra dollars in your pocket.

Tilghman's Bone Tankage 2-12-2 is the tried and tested plant food for wheat in this section of the country. Use it this fall when you plant your wheat crop and you will be well repaid with a high quality crop and an increased yield per acre, which will net you more satisfactory profits than you have ever before realized.

That tomatoes will sell this season for at least $30 a ton, or an average of 50 cents for a 20-quart basket, is now predicted in Wicomico county. Growers in great numbers in that and neighboring counties declined to make contracts with the packing houses, and it is now predicted that they will demand high prices for their fruit. Cannerymen and packers, it is also said, will refuse in many instances to pay the $30-a-ton price, with the result that many of the canning factories will not be operated this season.

In view of the fact that the State horticultural laws require all persons desirous of transporting trees, shrubs, vines or plants, commonly known as nursery stock, to have a certificate for so doing, therefore, for the convenience of the tree or plant shipping public, a representative from the State Horticultural Department is expected to be in this county this week to make the necessary examinations preparatory to issuing certificates. All persons interested can procure the services of this representative by leaving their name and address at the office of County Agent Keller. Those who disregard this announcement will likely be put to considerable delay in procuring certificates.

Ex-Senator Brewington Dead

Former Senator Marion V. Brewington died at his home in Salisbury last Saturday morning, aged 56 years. In December of last year he went to the Church Home and Infirmary in Baltimore for treatment after several years of poor health. One of his legs was amputated at the knee. He returned to Salisbury apparently improved in health and it was not until two weeks ago that his attending physician began to have fears that he would not recover.

In 1888 Marion V. and Harry L. Brewington bought The Wicomico News from the late Lee Lankford and W. O. Lankford, of Princess Anne. Senator Brewington represented Wicomico county in the State Senate from 1900 to 1908.

He is survived by one brother, Harry L. Brewington, his widow and two sons, Marion V. Brewington, Jr., and Henry Fulton Brewington.

(Copyright, Western Newspaper Union.)

Convention Hall, San Francisco, Cal.

Emerging from a struggle that has had few, if any, equals in American political history, the Democratic party, assembled in convention in the Golden Gate City, has placed the above ticket before the voters of the country. Governor Cox was nominated on the forty-fourth ballot at 1:45 o'clock in the morning of July 8. The vice presidential nominee was selected at the closing session of the convention, which opened at noon on that day.

For ballot after ballot a deadlock had existed, the leaders being Cox, William G. McAdoo and Attorney General Palmer. Neither of them seemed able to accumulate enough votes to win and no one of them appeared willing to quit the field. At last, after the thirty-eighth ballot, Congressman Carlin, manager of the Palmer forces, mounted the rostrum and announced that Mr. Palmer was unwilling longer to tie up the convention, and therefore he unconditionally released all his delegates. This left the fight to Cox and McAdoo, and, though the supporters of the latter were still confident, the Ohioan gained steadily on each succeeding ballot. When the forty-fourth was nearly completed it was apparent that he was the victor, and in the midst of wild excitement and tumult Kansas moved that he be declared the nominee of the convention by acclamation. The motion was carried with a mighty roar.
And the long contest was ended.

Mighty Eight-Day Struggle.

Without bosses, without real leaders, without any to direct their actions, the representatives of the party, 1,093 in number, struggled for eight days with the great problem of selecting candidates who might be expected to command the entire party vote and whose chances of defeating the rival Republican ticket named at Chicago would be best. Under the time honored rule of the Democratic party, a two-thirds vote was required to nominate, and through session after session it seemed impossible to find the man upon whom so large a proportion of the delegates could unite. The final result was brought about by clever political management, combined with the weariness of the delegates and the fact that many of them were running short of money and were anxious to start back to their homes. Nearly all of them had come a long way and were under heavy expense, and several days before adjournment some of them had tried to break away and go home.

Really, this was an unbossed convention, so far as the nominating of the ticket was concerned. It is true that the administration forces, represented by several cabinet officers and many other federal officeholders, controlled the proceedings of the earlier sessions and the construction of the platform—exercising this control, however, smoothly and a way that usually was devoid of offense to those who were controlled. But when it came to the selecting of candidates the delegates had their favorites, and they stood by them through the long series of ballots with remarkable steady-ness every day. Almost every hour there were rumors that President Wilson was exercising, or about to exercise, his powerful influence in behalf of this or that candidate, but the men who sat beneath the various standards in the Civic Auditorium only smiled and said they were there to select the man they thought best for the party and the country and that they had no intention of receiving dictation from any one.

No White House Dictation.

Each story of attempted dictation from Washington was met with prompt denial, and it was asserted by the administration representatives present that President Wilson was not seeking to influence the convention in this matter. At the Saturday night session a long telegram from him was read congratulating the convention on the League of Nations plank it had incorporated in the platform and predicting that this would insure Democratic victory in November, but it made no least suggestion as to the ticket.

The strategy of the various factions was interesting. The Palmer forces, headed by the attorney general himself, were active from the beginning with entertainments and argument and with the assistance of many charming women, but it was evident all along that many of the instructed Palmer delegates would break away from him when their duty had been performed and when they saw a chance to make a winning combination. The Cox boosters came with music and banners, and noise pervaded the city. They never weakened in their claims that the Ohio governor was the winner and never overlooked an opportunity to impress that idea on the minds of the convention and the city generally. Mr.

McAdoo's methods were declared by veteran politicians to be the cleverest of all. In the first place, he telegraphed his friends that he did not wish his name presented to the convention and that he was not seeking the nomination. He had no regular organization or headquarters here, and the whole McAdoo movement was started and carried on apparently quite without his consent or desire. A few of his admirers began it as soon as they arrived, and they speedily gathered in thousands of others, all of whom worked untiringly, though not obtrusively, for the success of the former secretary of the treasury. The McAdoo boom appealed to the galleries and the people in the street and especially to the women, who campaigned day and night everywhere.

Strategy of Favorite Sons.

As for the favorite sons, the strategy in their behalf generally took the form of quiet determination to keep on voting for them until the rest of the convention, finding none of the leaders could win, should come to one of them as a welcome compromise. Of course, in many cases the favorite son was dropped after he had received the proper number of complimentary ballots. As has been said, the administration forces controlled the organization and early doing of the convention. It was called to order by J.
Bruce Kremer, vice chairman of the National Committee, at noon Monday, June 28, and in his address he was so voluminous that it seemed there would be little left for the temporary chairman to say. That official, who was Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the National Committee, did find that Mr.
Kremer had anticipated many of his points, but he delivered a speech, nevertheless, that won the hearty praise of all who heard or read it. Of course, he devoted the usual amount of time to denouncing the Republican party and its doings, and he did it in fine style; also he naturally extolled all that his own party has done. The vast audience listened to all this with interest, but it evidently was awaiting the speaker's pronouncement on the great issue of the League of Nations.
This may be epitomized by the quotation of three sentences:

Cummings on League of Nations.

"We will not submit to the repudiation of the peace treaty or to any process by which it is whittled down to the vanishing point."

"It is not reservation that the President stands against, but nullification."

"The trouble with the treaty of peace is that it was negotiated by a Democratic President."

Every time Mr. Cummings slammed the Republicans, praised Democrats or mentioned President Wilson there was a demonstration that brought delegates and galleries to their feet and started the band or pipe organ. Finally, however, he was permitted to finish his speech, and the formal preliminaries of the first day were concluded with the naming of the members of committees.
Then, on motion of Governor Gardner of Missouri, a telegram of congratulations was sent to the President and the convention adjourned.

A Few Contested Seats.

The Committee on Credentials got busy at once, with only two important contests to settle. One of these was the case of Georgia. The Palmer delegation from that state was seated as regular despite the tremendous protests of the delegation representing the Hoke Smith-Tom Watson combination. This did not take long. Then came the fight over the seat claimed by

MRS. JAMES M. COX AND HER DAUGHTER, ANNE.

Senator James Reed of Missouri. For three hours the debate raged, and a resolution was adopted that Reed is not legally elected and is not entitled to a seat in the convention. There was little effort to conceal the fact that Mr. Reed was excluded because of his opposition to the President and his policies, but there were few who mourned his fate. On Tuesday, when the Credentials Committee reported to the Convention, Joseph B. Shannon, the other delegate from Reed's district, took the platform to protest formally against the "steam-rolling" of the senator. He was greeted with a storm of hisses and derisive howls to which he replied with some vigorous language, of Nations.

Effecting Permanent Organization.
The second day of the convention was again devoted largely to oratory, or the program included the installation of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Appointed City as permanent chairman and the delivery of his address. Robinson was the administration's choice for the position and at no time was there reason to regret the selection. He presided throughout the many sessions with dignity, firmness and fairness. In his speech he went over most of the ground covered by Mr. Cummings, but he put more "pep" into his denunciations of the Republicans and aroused greater enthusiasm in the audience. More routine business including the adoption of the rules and the convention was ready to adjourn again. First, however, came the first woman to speak from the platform. She was Mrs. George C. Ormsby, of Oakland, and she had a telegram which she asked should be sent to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, thanking her for nursing the President through his illness. This was approved with three cheers for the first lady of the land, and every one went out to find something to eat.

Making the Nomination.
Because the Committee on Resolutions was having so complicated a struggle with the platform, it was decided that the nominating speeches for President should be heard before that committee reported. Therefore those oratorical efforts began Wednesday and ran through a part of Thursday's session. On the roll of states, Arizona yielded to Oklahoma, therefore the nomination of Senator Robert L. Owen was the first heard. His name was presented by D. H. Linebaugh, in well chosen phrases, but the small demonstration showed Owens' following was inconsiderable. Next appeared U. S. G. Cherry, of South Dakota, full of strange language and bearded like the pard, to offer the name of James W. Gerard, who had the distinction of defying the German Kaiser, and not much else. Connecticut was the next state heard from, John B. Crosby offering the name of that state's "greatest son," Homer S. Cummings. Mr. Cummings' popularity is unquestioned and he was given a flattering oration. As Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska had won the preferential primary in his state it was necessary that he be placed in nomination, and this was done by Governor Shallenberger, after which the heavier guns came into action. Florida yielded to Pennsylvania and Palmer was presented by John H. Bigelow in a vehement speech which was frequently interrupted by the friends and the opponents of the attorney general. He emphasized especially Palmer's successful work as alien property custodian and defended him against the attacks of a section of the labor party because of his course during the coal and steel strikes. The demonstration that followed was long continued and fairly well sustained through the efforts of cheer leaders, but it lacked genuine spirit.

Cox Placed Before Convention.
Cox came next on the list and the supporters of the Ohio governor fully sustained their reputation as noise-makers. Simeon M. Johnson was the nominator, and after he had told the fine points of his state and its chief executive, the Coxites began their hullabaloo. The band they had brought with them from Ohio was stationed in one gallery and a group of singers in another, and whistles, bells and other noise producers helped make bedlam in the hall for more than half an hour while the state standards were carried through the aisles in endless procession. One of the Cox seconding speeches was made by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and the crowd liked so well his lively sentences and his attack on local newspapers which he said were trying to dictate the nomination that an incipient boom for Harrison for Vice President was started. Bourke Cochran, beloved orator of the Democracy, now eulogized Governor Al. Smith of New York and when he closed, there was a demonstration which was rightly interpreted as an ovation to the speaker rather than to Smith, and the band played "The Side Walks of New York."

McAdoo's Brief Introduction.
"Missouri!" called the reading clerk and Rev. Burris Jenkins of Kansas City stepped to the platform in the midst of wild yells. He explained that William McAdoo had insisted that he be not placed in nomination but his admirers had decided that he should be drafted for the service of the country and he promised that if the convention saw fit to select Mr. McAdoo, that gentleman would not decline the high honor, all reports or telegrams to the contrary being false. Then he retired, and Mr. McAdoo's boom was in the hands of his friends. They certainly did their part, for the demonstration was extraordinary, both on the floor and in the galleries.
It was difficult to get the crowd quiet after all this riot of enthusiasm, and Charles F. X. O'Brien of New Jersey, found it hard to get a fair hearing for his candidate, Governor Edward I. Edwards. The galleries were restive and the speaker was frequently interrupted, especially by those who resented the supposed "wet" policies of Edwards.

This closed the nominating speeches for the day but Thursday morning the grind was resumed. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Ambassador John W. Davis of West Virginia and Francis B. Harrison, Governor General of the Philippines, being offered for the votes of the delegates.

Battle Over the Platform.
The platform committee was not yet ready to report, so a recess until evening was taken. Again word came that Glass and his associates had not completed their task, and after music to appease the audience, the gathering adjourned until Friday morning. At that time the platform was submitted to the convention and the great battle between William Jennings Bryan on the one hand and those who opposed

I Owe My Life to PE-RU-NA

Mr. McKinley's letter brings cheer to all who may be sufferers as he was. Read it:

"I can honestly say that I owe my life to Peru-NA. After some of the best doctors in the country gave me up and told me I could not live another month, Peru-NA saved me. Travelling from town to town, throughout the country and having to go into all kinds of badly heated stores and buildings, sometimes standing up for hours at a time while playing my trade as auctioneer, it is only natural that I had colds frequently, so when this would occur I paid little attention to it, until last December when I contracted a severe case, which through neglect on my part settled on my lungs. When almost too late, I began doctoring, but, without avail, until I heard of Peru-NA. It cured me; so I cannot praise it too highly."

his idea on the other, was staged. Mr. Glass read the platform entirely through and moved its adoption, and at once Mr. Bryan took the speaker's stand to present a minority report. This included dry planks drafted by himself and Richmond Pearson Hobson, Bryan's planks on the peace treaty on an official bulletin, on military training and on profiteering. He spoke on all these topics, devoting himself mainly to the treaty and dry planks, and from the start he showed he was in fine debating form and thoroughly in earnest. His prohibition plank called for a pledge to enforce the amendment and Volstead law in good faith, without any increase in the alcoholic content of beverages or any weakening of its other provisions. In another minority report Bourke Cockran offered a plank for cider, light wines and beer for home consumption. The committee report was silent on the subject of prohibition. So it was a three sided battle, and the committee won. Bryan's plank got only 155 1/2 votes and Cockran's got 356.

Bryan-Cockran Debate Enjoyed.
The debate between Bryan and Cockran was hugely enjoyed by the audience and was well worth the price of admission. The Nebraskan played on the emotions of his hearers most skillfully and brought them to their feet time after time. And when he closed there was a tremendous demonstration in which most of the delegates joined. They were rendering a tribute to the sincerity and eloquence of the Commoner rather than to his plan, as their subsequent votes showed. Cockran, too, received their plaudits and incidentally more of their votes, but not enough. Other debaters there were on the dry side, among them Mrs. Peter Oleson of Minnesota, a little bit of a woman who was all fire and earnestness and who spoke with a rapidity that charmed Mr. Bryan, for the time of his side was limited. In closing the debate Mr. Bryan turned again to the League of Nations plank, pleading for his plan of accepting reservations as the only way in which peace can be concluded, and urging against making this a main issue of the campaign. When it came to vote his league plank was defeated without roll call.

Irish Republic Plank Rejected.
A plank pledging recognition of the Irish Republic, offered by E. L. Doherty, was rejected by a vote of 675 1/2 to 402 1/2. Bryan's profiteering and national bulletin planks and one in favor of compensation for soldiers were lost by viva voce vote. Then Mr. Glass and Secretary of State Colby spoke at length for the committee report and it was accepted with only one opposing vote. This brought the convention to the balloting. And two ballots were taken Friday evening. There were fifteen candidates and on the first ballot they stood as follows: McAdoo, 268; Palmer, 256; Cox, 184; Smith, 109; Edwards, 48; Owen, 88; Marshall, 37; Davis, 82; Meredith, 27; Glass, 26 1/2; Cummings, 25; Simmons, 24; Gerard, 21; Hitchcock, 18; Harrison, 6.

Before many ballots had been taken Saturday the contest had narrowed down to Cox, McAdoo and Palmer, with about a hundred scattering votes, but no one of the leaders was able to command anywhere near a two-thirds vote. At times efforts were made to start a switch to some dark horse. But these were futile. All day and until a few minutes of midnight the voting continued, and it was necessary to adjourn until Monday. After the Sunday rest the struggle was resumed with the final result told above.

The Platform.
Because there were several great issues on which the party leaders and the party generally were sharply divided in opinion the committee on resolutions had an unusually difficult task in building a platform that would, in all its parts, command a majority vote of the convention. For several days and nights the committee, which included an unusual number of very eminent men, struggled and debated and at times quarreled. Every one who demanded it was given a hearing whether he wanted to tell what to say about the League of Nations, the liquor question, the Irish republic, or any of the many minor matters under discussion. The administration forces made it clear from the start that what they desired was virtually a reproduction of the Virginia platform, so far as it went, and with Senator Glass as chairman, the administration forces were in control of the committee.

William Jennings Bryan as chief protagonist of the bone dry plank and the plan to advocate ratification of the treaty with reservations, fought manfully through many sessions of the platform builders, but got nowhere. When it was presented to the convention Friday afternoon the platform represented in almost all respects the ideas of Senator Glass and his administration associates.

Starting with greetings to President Wilson, the platform promptly tackled the League of Nations, favoring it as the surest, if not the only practicable means of maintaining the permanent peace of the world, and terminating the burden of great military and naval establishments. It commends the President for steadfastly standing for the covenant agreed to by the allied and associated nations, and condemns the Republican senate for "its refusal to ratify the treaty merely because it was the product of Democratic statesmen." The words of Senator Knox in 1913 condemning the idea of making a separate peace are quoted to confound him in his later attitude. The party advocates the "immediate ratification without reservations which would impair essential integrity; but do not oppose the acceptance of any reservations making clearer or more specific the obligations of the United States to the league associates."

The insertion of the latter clause was the only point yielded to the opposition. It was drawn up by Senator Walsh of Montana.

Concerning the conduct of the war, the platform gives praise to President Wilson for entire lack of partisan bias and scores the Republican party because, notwithstanding that it "has meantly required the considerate course of the chief magistrate by savagely defaming the commander in chief of the army and navy, and by assailing nearly every public officer of every branch of the service intimately concerned in winning the war abroad and preserving the security of the government at home."

Due admiration is expressed for our soldiers, sailors and marines, and all men and women who aided in winning the war.

Those "reds" who were deported to Russia are reported to be hard up and without friends, which should be a warning to others in this country inclined to ruddy-hued actions.

With the economic law of gravity exerting a gentle downward pull on prices and arbitrary wage demands pulling the other way we shall be lucky if something doesn't crack!

King George may have decided to crease his trousers on the sides as a compliment to Lloyd George, his promoter, as nobody seems to be able to determine which way he is going either.

Vernon district. The Board still awaits applications for scholarships in the State Normal School, Blue Ridge College and the Maryland Institute of Art and Design.

It was ordered that the public schools of the county should reopen on Wednesday, September 1st, and the colored schools on Monday, October 4th.

On account of the small attendance during the past school year, the following schools were ordered to be closed for the present: Jason, No. 5, district 5; Palmetto, No. 4, district 15; Pleasant Grove, No. 6, district 15, and Green Hill, No. 1, district 13. It was also ordered that the Oriole school should be conducted by two teachers instead of three and the Dames Quarter school by one teacher instead of two and that the sixth and seventh grade pupils at Monie, Champ and Wenona should attend the graded schools at Oriole and the Deal's Island Central School, respectively. Schools Nos. 1 and 4 of Mt. Vernon district will continue open until the new central school for that district shall have been completed, when the teachers for those schools will be employed as assistants in the central school.

The Board also ordered that in order to equalize the expenditures for fuel to conform to the amount granted by the county commissioners, a sum not to exceed $40 per room should be granted to schools using coal and a sum not to exceed $25 for those using wood. An order was also passed that teachers and trustees should be notified that the Board of Education will pay no bills unless authority for purchases comes from that Board.

Resignations were accepted as follows: Miss Carrie G. McNamara, principal of Ewell school; Miss J. Frances Moore, teacher of domestic science at Princess Anne High School, and Miss Dorothy Bissell, principal of Westover school.

John E. Spriggs was appointed trustee of Ewell school in place of Clarence Evans, deceased.

The Board appointed Mrs. Addie E. Dashiell clerk and attendance officer and Herbert S. Wilson supervisor of colored schools. The superintendent recommended Mrs. Wilsie Smith Gibson, of Talbot county, for rural supervisor, but the recommendation was not confirmed as the county commissioners had not allowed funds for the salary of such an officer and also because, during the next school year, there will not be one hundred teachers employed, the number required by law for such an official.

The list of teachers has not yet been completed. It will be published later.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. MORRIS

Died Suddenly At Her Home Last Wednesday Afternoon

Mrs. Anna Seibert Morris, wife of Mr. H. Edwin Morris, died suddenly at her home on Broad street about 4 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon of heart trouble.

Mrs. Morris was 34 years old and had been in practically good health and had not indicated in any way to her husband that she was ill or feeling badly. She was upstairs when her little daughter, Audrey, discovered her lying prostrate on the floor. The little girl had called her mother from a lower room of the house, and failing to get a response went upstairs to look for her. She then gave the alarm, saying her mother was asleep and she could not wake her.

Mrs. Morris was a daughter of Mr. Whitten J. and Henrietta L. Seibert, formerly residing in Somerset county, but now of Blackstone, Virginia. In 1907 she was married to Mr. H. Edwin Morris, member of the firm of John W. Morris & Sons, of Princess Anne. She is survived by her husband, three sons (James, Henry and Emerson) and one daughter (Audrey), the oldest being only 12 years of age.

Funeral services were held in St. Andrew's Church last Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. O. H. Murphy, and the interment was in Manokin Presbyterian Church cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Omar J. Crowell, George W. Colborn, Jr., L. Creston Beauchamp, Mark Costen, Rufus Dashiell and Herbert Holland.

Among those who attended the funeral from out of town were, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Seibert, of Blackstone, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Morris, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. William E. Colons, of Newport News, Va.; Mrs. Annie Morris Pusey, of Baltimore; Mrs. James L. Morris, of Salisbury; Mrs. S. P. Cropper, Miss Vera Cropper and Mr. Wallace Cropper, of Berlin, Maryland.

Trying To Oust Councilman Pierce

Former Attorney-General Isaac Lobe Straus and Gordon Tull, attorneys for a number of citizens and taxpayers of Crisfield, have filed in the Circuit Court for Somerset county a petition for a mandamus against William H. Pierce, alleged councilman-elect, for the purpose of ousting Pierce from the city council of Crisfield on the ground of ineligibility. Judge Duer signed the petition and set Wednesday, July 28th, as the date on which the defendant must show cause why the mandamus should not issue as prayed.

The mandamus proceedings grew out of the candidacy in the last municipal election of Mr. Pierce for a seat in the city council of Crisfield. Pierce was returned elected, but Benjamin F. Somers filed with the outgoing council a contest of his seat on the ground that he was not a taxpayer and was, therefore, not eligible to have been elected or to serve in the city council. After an examination of the tax books, by which it was shown that Pierce was not a taxpayer, directly or indirectly, the outgoing council declared him disqualified. Despite this action, however, Mayor Wyatt proceeded to qualify Pierce for office by swearing him in on June 14th. The following day—June 15th—Pierce filed what purported to be an appeal from the decision of the old council in the Circuit Court.

Rainy Weather For Forty Days

St. Swin's Day, if thou dost rain,
For forty days it will remain;
St. Swin's Day, if thou be fair,
For forty days 'twill rain as main.

Last Thursday was St. Swin's Day and so it is that we are in for 40 days of rain, for that afternoon we had a thunder storm accompanied by a heavy rain. The total rainfall during the afternoon and evening was 2 1/2 inches.

The tradition regarding the 40 days' rain originated 'way back in the Tenth Century. Before his death St. Swin asked that he be buried in the open ground of the churchyard. The monks thought that so great a saint should not be buried in the ground, but should be given a resting place in the chancel of the church. July 15 was the day for the removal of the body to the church, but on that day a mighty rainstorm burst forth and continued for 40 days. The monks took as a sign of heavenly displeasure, and it resulted in the tradition.

Reports from the United States Department of Agriculture are to the effect that by the time canned fruit is used next winter sugar will be plentiful. Lack of sugar should cause no curtailment in canning the various fruits as they come into season. The department says that the rise in the price of sugar has encouraged increased plantings.

POCOMOKE BRIDGE WORK HALTED

Fisher & Carozza Bros. Company Start Injunction Proceedings

The construction of the proposed Pocomoke bridge at Pocomoke City under a contract with the McLean Contracting Company was held up last Tuesday by injunction proceedings instituted in Circuit Court No. 2, Baltimore. The Baltimore Sun of last Wednesday says: The suit was filed by the Fisher & Carozza Brothers Company, which claims the right to the contract, against John N. Mackall, Omar D. Crothers and D. C. Winebrennen, composing the State Roads Commission, through Brownley & Murphy, attorneys. Upon the bill of complaint an order was signed by Judge Stanton requiring cause to be shown in 10 days why the injunction should not be granted.

In November, 1919, the bill of complaint states, the State Roads Commission awarded a contract for constructing the bridge to the Fisher & Carozza Brothers Company for $67,153, after advertising for competitive bids. It alleged that alterations were made by the commission in the plan for the construction of the bridge and that the additional compensation for this extra work was agreed upon, but the commission desired to insert unreasonable conditions in the supplemental contract.

While negotiations were pending between the commission and the contractors, it is also alleged, the commission took the contract away from the Fisher & Carozza Brothers Company and awarded it to the McLean Contracting Company for the lump sum of $85,000, without advertising for competitive bidding and without requiring unit prices to be stated in the bid. The McLean Company bid was based on the original plans, it is alleged, and did not cover the cost of doing the work under the revised plans.

An injunction is asked restraining the McLean Company from proceeding with the work and requiring it to remove all its material and machinery from the site of the proposed bridge. The court is also asked to restrain the commission from paying the McLean Company any of the money appropriated for constructing the bridge and to direct the commission to correct the supplemental agreement and permit the Fisher & Carozza Brothers Company to proceed with the work.

Juvenile Tomato Growers

Prizes amounting to $600 will be distributed this year among the members of the boys' and girls' clubs of Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey by the Tri-State Cannery Association for meritorious work in growing tomatoes. At a recent meeting of the Association an allotment of $200 was made to each of the three States and regulations for the awarding of the prize money were announced.

Both boys and girls will be permitted to compete for the prizes and a partial list already received by E. G. Jenkins, State boys' club agent, shows that 96 boy club members have planted a quarter acre of tomatoes, following the cultural methods outlined by the University of Maryland Extension Service. No report has yet been received of the number of girls who will enter the contest.

The first prize in Maryland will be $50; second, $25; third, $15, and fourth, $10. The remaining $100 will be prorated among the demonstrators. Prizes will be determined largely by the low cost of production and the size of the yield. The competitors will grow their quarter acre of tomatoes under supervision of the county or home demonstration agent.

Ohio Is The Battle Ground

Ohio, "Mother of Presidents" state, will be the battleground of the greatest political campaign in her history this summer, with two of her native sons contesting for the presidency of the United States.

While Marion, the home of Senator Harding, Republican nominee, and Dayton, home of Governor Cox, the Democratic standard bearer, will come in for their share of prominence, eyes of the nation will be centered on the capital city of Ohio, where much of the campaign work will be carried on.

It is the first time that two newspaper publishers have been pitted against each other for the presidency of the nation. It will be the first time a newspaper man has ever been elected president, if either Harding or Cox is elected.

Lawn Party Wednesday, July 21st

The ladies of St. Andrew's Guild will hold a lawn party at the home of Mrs. McMaster, Princess Anne, on Wednesday evening, July 21st. The patronage of the public is solicited.

TO ENFORCE NEW STATE DOG LAW

County Commissioners May Appoint Constables

At a meeting of the county commissioners last Tuesday it was decided that if dog licenses were not paid more promptly they would be compelled to appoint constables to conduct a dog census of the county, with the view of enforcing the provisions of the State-wide dog license law, which was designed chiefly to prevent worthless canines from running at large and destroying sheep and fowl, and otherwise making themselves a nuisance.

The pay of the census-taking constables would be upon the basis of 25 cents for each and every dog licensed, and the name of the owner returned; and a $10 bonus for every 100 dogs licensed and returns made thereof. The law, among other things, provides that owners of dogs, in cases where damage has been done to livestock, poultry, etc., shall kill the animals, or the county commissioners, in their discretion, may have special officers or constables to dispatch them. Some of the important amendments of the new State-wide law follows:

"The County Commissioners of the several counties are authorized to provide for the employment of special officers or constables whose duty it shall be to enforce the payment of the dog license fees or taxes provided in this act, and the said Commissioners are authorized by law to pay such special officers out of the money arising from the said dog license or taxes in the respective counties."

"These constables of the several counties may also receive and receipt for necessary blanks and tags, may issue such dog licenses and tags in like manner as prescribed for the issuance of licenses by a County Treasurer or a Justice of the Peace. Every constable shall at the end of each month report to the County Treasurer or Clerk to the County Commissioners in counties having no Treasurer the number and character of licenses issued and remit all money received for these licenses. Also every constable shall deliver the book or books from which he issued license, together with the stubs therein, properly filled out and showing the name and number of the license issued to him by the County Treasurer or Clerk to the County Commissioners in counties having no Treasurer before the first day of July of each year."

Concerning appraisement for damages to be awarded, the law states:

"Provided, however, that the sworn report of the appraisers shall be deemed prima facie evidence of the fairness of the award of damages in each instance; and provided further, that the County Commissioners shall not change such an award unless they shall have personal knowledge of its unfairness, or shall receive competent testimony to the effect that the award is in excess of a fair commercial valuation of the sheep, poultry or live stock injured or destroyed by dogs."

It shall be the duty of the State's Attorney, the Sheriff and the constables of the several counties of the State to prosecute all persons found violating the law by refusing to comply with its provisions."

Death Of Mrs. James Gordy

Mrs. James W. Gordy died suddenly at her home in Indiantown, Worcester county, Tuesday night about half after nine o'clock. Mrs. Gordy, whose maiden name was Evelyn Rowe Pusey, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington P. Pusey, of Snow Hill. She was born October 28th, 1867, in Atkinson's district, Worcester county, near Nazareth M. P. Church.

Mrs. Gordy survived her husband by a little more than two years, and leaves seven children to mourn their loss. These are as follows: Mrs. Chester Parsons, George, James, Walton, Minnie, Avery and Mabel Gordy. She is also survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Washington P. Pusey, and by the following brothers: Lawrence Pusey, of Baltimore; Walter and Norman Pusey, of Philadelphia, and Oscar Pusey, of Snow Hill.

Funeral services were held at Mt. Olive M. P. Church, Snow Hill, Thursday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. Joseph Lynch, of Baltimore, a former pastor, assisted by the present pastor, Rev. H. L. Murphy. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pusey, and daughter, Miss Marie, of Baltimore; Mr. Norman Pusey and son, Courtland, and Mr. Walter Pusey, of Philadelphia, attended their sister's funeral.

SHOTS FROM JOURNALISTIC GUNS

Comments From The Papers Of Editors Cox And Harding

The Democratic and Republican presidential candidates each own a daily newspaper in Ohio. What these papers are saying politically just now is of general interest. The following extracts from their editorial columns of Friday, July 9th, are given:

From the Dayton News (owned by Governor Cox): Mr. Harding is nominated for the Presidency because he will help in the unconstitutional grasping for power by the Senatorial oligarchy of which he has been a faithful member.

Between now and November the people of the United States, never in recent years particularly friendly to Senatorial arrogance, will realize the significance of the statement in the Outlook, which is supporting Harding, that if he is elected "in place of a Government administered by a Chief Executive held in some restraint by a Congress, we shall have a Government administered by a committee of whom the President will be chief. The President will not be the distinguished figure in either national or international affairs."

Previous to the convention Senator Johnson openly admitted that the platform did not furnish the standard around which to fight, but that personality of the candidate would be the dominating factor in the campaign. The tenor of his statement would seem to indicate that he expects the Republican Presidential nominee to repudiate the treaty and league just as Borah and Johnson previously have done. Or failing in this the Senator from California might be satisfied if the nominee simply ignored the whole thing. Either Johnson is due for a shock or the rank and file of the party is to be keenly disappointed.

From the Marion Star (owned by Senator Harding):

Maybe Democracy praised Mr. Burleson's handling of the mails to inject a bit of humor into its platform.

Perhaps the best line to be had on the merit of the Democratic platform is its endorsement of Mr. Burleson's administration of the Postoffice Department.

We are told that the Administration is getting rid of the super-numeraries added to the payroll during the war. Well, isn't it about time?

Until Vice-President Marshall sprung that one about getting a good cigar for 5 cents, we never imagined that he was a victim of the dreaming habit. There's no use talking, some associations are dangerous.

"In the absence of any information to the contrary," remarked the fellow who lives next door, on the way downtown this morning, "it is reasonable to assume that the various fist fights on the floor of the Frisco convention were pulled off under London rules."

An exchange says: "Democrats are again talking about bringing down the cost of living." Hasn't the public yet been punished sufficiently for its folly?

FUSION PARTY PICKS TICKET

Christensen And Hayes, Presidential And Vice-Presidential Nominees

The Farmer-Labor Party, born of a fusion of numerous political groups, has a platform and had its candidates in the field for the coming election last Thursday.

Its work was completed at 4 o'clock that morning, when its convention, after an all-day and night session, at Chicago, chose Parley Parker Christensen, Salt Lake City attorney, and Max S. Hayes, Cleveland labor leader, as its Presidential and Vice-Presidential nominees, respectively.

The strength of the new movement remains to be seen.

The new party's Presidential nominee is a native of the West. He was born at Weston, Idaho, forty-nine years ago. From early life on a farm, Christensen, the eldest of five children, plugged away at an education until he graduated in law at Cornell University. He since has spent most of his time in Salt Lake City. Prior to 1912 Christensen was ranked as a "Dolliver" Republican, but allied himself with the Bull Moose in that year. The death of that party set him adrift and, he said, he "sided into the stall and voted for Wilson in 1916."

The platform, as adopted by the Farmer-Labor group, contains nine planks, summarized as follows:

Americanization: Demands the right of free speech, amnesty for political prisoners, repeal of espionage, sedition and "criminal syndicalist" laws, referendum and recall; for Federal Judges and equal suffrage to all.

2—Demands withdrawal of the United States from participation under the Versailles Treaty in the reduction of conquered peoples to economic or political subjugation, recognition of Ireland and the new Russian Government, abolition of secret treaties and withdrawal of the United States "from the dictatorship" of its insular possessions.

3—Demands democratic control of industries.

4—Calls for public ownership of all public utilities and natural resources and immediate repeal of the Esch-Cummins Railroad Law.

5—Demands favorable laws for farmers, establishment of public markets and extension of Federal farm loan system.

6—Advocates Government economy to replace "extravagance that has run riot under the present Administration," denounces the system that "has created one war millionaire for every three American soldiers killed in France," and recommends steeply graduated income taxes for Federal revenue, and sharply graduated inheritance taxes for State and local Government.

7—Urges reduction of the cost of living by stabilization of currency, Federal control of meat packing industry, and enforcement of laws against profiteers, "especially the big ones."

8—Favors "justice to soldiers of the World War as a matter of right and not charity."

9—Labor's bill of rights, which includes declarations for: The unqualified right of all strikers, including Government workers, to strike. Freedom from

The cab on the engine of a passenger train on the Crisfield branch of the N. Y. P. and N. Railroad caught fire when the train was nearing Kingston last Tuesday night and was destroyed. Another engine was dispatched from Crisfield and took the train there. No one was injured.

The towns through which State road links are soon to be constructed are Princess Anne, Pocomoke City, Snow Hill, Sharptown, Denton, Elkton, Belair, Emmittsburg, Taneytown and a section in Frederick. Most of these stretches are short, the longest being three-fourths of a mile.

Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles and Mrs. Miles were among the Marylanders who arrived in Baltimore last Thursday night from San Francisco, Cal., where they attended the Democratic Convention. Mr. and Mrs. Miles returned to their home in Princess Anne Friday night. They reported a fine trip.

During the heavy rain last Tuesday night, a big truck belonging to Loreman & Bro., of Crisfield, skidded on the State road at a sharp turn at Marion Station and struck a large touring car owned by John R. Wilson, of Philadelphia, which was standing along the road. Although there were five persons in the car, the body of which was demolished, none were seriously hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Layfield and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Rue and daughter, of Westover, returned last Wednesday night from an automobile trip to Sheppardstown, West Virginia. While there they were the guests of Mrs. Layfield's mother, Mrs. Mary A. Harwood. Misses Ada and Nannie Shaul and Alice Harwood, Mrs. Layfield's three little nieces, accompanied her home for a few weeks' visit to Princess Anne.

Dr. Alfred P. Dennis, United States Attaché, American Embassy, Rome, is again in the minds of not only the American people but the people of the civilized world, in that he is a contributor to the Saturday Evening Post, the largest circulated periodical in the world. Capital Stock Tax Due

The large number of corporations doing business in Somerset county will be required to make returns for the "capital stock tax" during July, according to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The collection of this tax marks the opening of the tax-gathering work for the new fiscal year, starting July 1st. The tax on domestic corporations is $1 "for each $1,000, or so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year, ending June 10th, as is in excess of $5,000." The penalty for failure to file a return before July 31st is an added assessment of 24 per cent. of the amount due.

All Make Mistakes

When a plumber makes a mistake, he charges twice for it.

When a lawyer makes a mistake, it is just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

When a carpenter makes a mistake, it's just what he expected.

When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it.

When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land.

When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference.

When an electrician makes a mistake, he blames it on induction, and nobody knows what that means.

But when an editor makes a mistake—good night!—Exchange.

Important To Former Service Men

Information has just been received at the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Baltimore, that any man re-enlisting in that branch of the service may be transferred to any post in the United States that he may select.

Captain B. M. Coffenberg, who is in charge of the district, stated that "prior to receipt of this order it was necessary for me to procure authority to transfer a re-enlisted man to a post in the far South or West of the Mississippi river, but now I will transfer any former service man who was discharged with character good or better to any post in the United States that he may select."

"This is an exceptional opportunity," continued Captain Coffenberg, "which will give former service men an opportunity to see the various parts of the United States and pick out the part of the country they desire to live in."

TAXES INCREASED FOR COUNTIES

Kent Has Highest Assessment And Washington The Lowest

Increased cost of local government is shown in the county tax rates for the current tax year, a table of which was completed last week by Charles C. Wallace, secretary of the State Tax Commission. In nearly every county of the State there has been a jump, but Baltimore city has, of course, a much higher rate than any county. The county which has fixed the highest rate is Kent, the rate for which has been set at $2.51, an increase of 19 cents over the rate of last year. The lowest rate is enjoyed by Washington county, which is paying only $1. The only county showing a decrease is Anne Arundel, whose rate is reduced from $1.54 to $1.52.

The following table shows the rates for last year and the rates fixed for this year:

Suffered Intense Pain

"A few years ago when visiting relatives in Michigan something I had eaten brought on an attack of cholera morbus," writes Mrs. Celesta McVicker, Macon, Mo. "I suffered intense pain and had to go to bed. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and one dose relieved the pain wonderfully. I only took two or three doses but they did the work."

Law Saw More Love Than Reason in Man's Kiss.

Substantive Legal Opinion by British Judge Laid Down Fine Distinction Between the Salute Amatory and the Salute Religious.

The Islanders of Lewis, the island in the western Hebrides, off the coast of Scotland, which is coming so much into prominence since its recent purchase by the soap king, Lord Leverhulme, have many quaint customs, one of which was strikingly revealed in an action for divorce tried in court at Edinburgh. The story is well told in the judgment pronounced by Lord Sands.

The action was at the instance of Alexander Matheson, fisherman of Portnaguran, Stormaway, against Mrs. Isabella McLean or Matheson, 8 Portnaguran, and against William Campbell, merchant, 9 Portnaguran, as co-defender. His lordship granted a decree of divorce and found the co-defender liable in expenses and $40 damages.

His lordship said he thought it was proved that, considering their previously distant relations, there was a remarkable intimacy between defender and codefender. The codefender kissed the defender both when they were alone and in her house before her children. This in itself would have been conclusive had it not been for one circumstance. The defender and the codefender were both members of the United Free church. There was evidence that could not be disregarded that there was a certain practice of kissing between communicants, though, in deference probably to British ideas, the prohibition seemed to pass only between persons of opposite sexes. The existence of such a practice seemed somewhat startling, but his lordship thought it was explained by the evidence taken in relation to what was a matter of public knowledge among those conversant with religious conditions in the highlands.

It had been the practice for only a mere handful of the adherents of the church to participate in communion, although the communion season was a far more solemn action in the highlands than in the lowlands.

Since the split in the Free church, however, in 1800, the sections which adhered to the United Free church had tended to become much more like their brethren in the south, and thus it manifested itself among other ways in many younger persons becoming communicants. This caused an awkward complication as regarded the kissing custom. It might be all very well for elderly saints to greet one another with a chaste oriental salute, but it was a different matter when it came to young married women being promiscuously kissed by casual male acquaintances who happened to be fellow communicants. This extension of the custom was therefore disapproved of by many, but to a certain extent the custom prevailed. Such being the state of matters, the kissing indulged in by the parties to this case had not the conclusive character of unique familiarity.

It was proved that the codefender did more than kiss the defender; he also put his arms around her, a fact which he admitted. His lordship felt that religious custom did not justify this extension of the embrace.

Egyptian Women Are Sorts.

The treatment of women in Egypt is the darkest phase of Egyptian life, says G. N. Barnes, British member of parliament, who recently returned from a tour of that country.

The men in Egypt, says Mr. Barnes, so far as sex relations are concerned, think themselves the lords of creation. They can divorce their wives at will, without whim or reason, and it is not uncommon for a man to have three wives.

"In many houses," continues Mr. Barnes, "I never saw a woman, and you can take it from me that the position of the women in Egypt is absolutely one of serfdom and dependence. They spend their lives in miserable hovels, in working in the adjoining fields or in getting water."

"They are the serfs of the men and as much beasts of burden as the donkey and the camel. A people which uses women folk in that way are destined to be a subject race and do not deserve to govern."

Honors Remained With Mule.

While a circus parade was in progress at Kane, Pa., one of the elephants, thinking possibly to relieve the monotony of the occasion, gave its trunk a toss in the air and brought it down with a resounding smack on a mule that had been standing at the curb quietly watching the sights. In spite of the handicap of being hitched to a delivery wagon, the mule promptly wheeled about, took quick aim, and delivered two kicks with lightning swiftness. The kicks caught the elephant squarely on the knees. It stopped for an instant, but if it even momentarily contemplated further interchanges with the mule, it gave up the idea, and dashed the parade with a decided bump.—Philadelphia Record.

Friend Turns Up.

"It seems to me I have already heard some of the stories told by this man."

"Perhaps you have."

Home Town Helps

BEAUTIFY THE FARM YARD

No Reason Why Grounds Surrounding House Should Not Be Made and Kept Attractive.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For over a decade the home demonstration agents in the South have been teaching farm women easier and better methods of doing their housework, caring for their families, and conducting home industries. During the past years, they have been teaching, in addition, the beautifying of the farm yard.

The country woman, like every other normal woman, is hungry for beauty, but in the past she has had less of it in her life than her city sister. Too many farm homes inside and out are unattractive, yet beauty in a country yard costs little except effort, for the finest effects can be obtained by the use of native trees, shrubs and vines. A demand for information on the beautifying of the home by the Southern women in the rural districts is the reason that it has been taken up definitely as a part of the extension work in the South. The response and results in every state have been more than were looked for.

In Donley county, Texas, an impromptu meeting of this kind recently brought out 88 country women, all intensely anxious to learn what the home demonstration agent could teach them about making the surroundings of their homes more attractive.

The demonstration was given at the home of one of the women who had recently built a new house and who wanted to have the setting for it right.

After Proper Treatment.

The importance of planting and arranging perennial vines as a background on the porches and fences was one point stressed by the extension worker. Instruction was also given in arranging shrubbery so the low-growing kind would be in front of the taller. Where flowering plants were to be used the necessity of planting colors which would harmonize well was emphasized. In fact, an intensive course in landscape gardening on a small scale was given to the women.

Plant Nut Trees.

Suppose that we were to supplant willows and poplars along the roadside with trees which would give us bushels of product worth many dollars per bushel when the leaves were swept up in the fall. It is no more difficult to set out a black walnut than it is to set out a willow or poplar. The first cost is no greater if we set out seedling trees, although, if particularly good kinds of grafted black walnut are set out, the first cost is something more—yet negligible in view of the return. Investment in a nut tree differs from an investment in an industrial enterprise, for the reason that the plant of the industrial enterprise is decreasing in value from wear and tear the moment after it is completed. A nut tree, on the other hand, is increasing in value from the moment it is set out.

Town Planning.

During the war the housing developments undertaken by the government in the United States, as in England, were very frequently based upon a complete physical plan. This was possible because many of the communities were created in places where no previous community had existed. The field was a virgin one, and the opportunity was not lost. This aspect of the work was always referred to as town planning, the name adopted and used in England. Thus, at the present time in the United States one is apt to find both names used, and it is perhaps well to remember that generally they mean the same thing; but it is also true that their meaning is as yet very far from having acquired a concrete definition.

THE WAY TO BUSINESS

Historic London Churches May Have to Give Way to the Demands of Modern Progress

Nineteen historic churches in the heart of London, England, have been marked for destruction by a commission appointed by the bishop of London to consider the whole question of the city churches. In seven cases it is proposed to preserve, for their architectural and historic value, the towers of the churches. In the other cases these old monuments, dating back to the seventeenth century and the great fire of London, would disappear.

This is the recommendation of the bishop's commission, but already strong protests have arisen and the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings has announced that it will take every possible step in making the strongest protest.

The value of the sites of these churches is placed at nearly $3,500,000, situated as they are in the great business center of London, between St. Paul's and the Tower and a little to the north of that line. In addition to this enormous return from the church property, the commission expects to realize an income of $120,000 a year from the bonuses after setting aside $31,000 a year for the salaries of certain of the clergy concerned. For the site of a single church, that of All Hallows, Lombard street, Barclay's bank has offered $2,500,000, and the value of the site of St. Dunstan-in-the-East has been estimated at $1,250,000.

NO HELP FROM THE DOCTOR

Abundant Reason for the Depression This Was Manifested in the Golf Bug's Attitude.

The golf bug has a sad face. He is plainly out of sorts. Something is the matter with him. He has just come from the doctor's office where he has undergone a thorough physical examination. He is sore and depressed, but not from what the doctor found, but from what he refused to find.

"You are all right," said the learned physician. "You are as sound as a nut."

That was a little joke the golf bug did not enjoy.

"Are you sure that I am in first-class condition?" he asked.

"Absolutely,"

"Is my blood pressure normal?"

"Perfect."

"Heart regular?"

"Heart O. K."

"Lungs clear?"

"As a bell."

"Liver in good working order?"

"Splendid."

"No trace of neuritis?"

"Not a bit."

"Am I not bordering on a nervous breakdown?"

"See no indication of it."

"I'm sorry."

"Sorry, man, what for?"

"I thought surely you'd dig up some good excuse for me to go away. Now I have to be honest and say I'm going South simply because I want to play golf."

—Detroit Free Press.

Ancient Cornerstone Laying.

The custom of laying the cornerstone of a public building with ceremonies was practiced by the ancients. At the laying of the cornerstone when the capitol of Rome was rebuilt a procession of vestal virgins, robed in white, surrounded the stone and consecrated it with libations of living water. A prayer to the gods followed, and then the magistrates, priests, senators and knights laid hold of the ropes and moved the mighty stone to its proper position. In a hollow cut in the stone were placed ingots of gold, silver and other metals which had not been melted in any furnace.

With the Jews the cornerstone was considered an emblem of power, and they also performed ceremonies at its laying. In medieval times the rite was taken up by the order of Freemasons and has by them been brought down to modern days, the Masonic ceremony of laying a cornerstone being symbolic.

Out of Place.

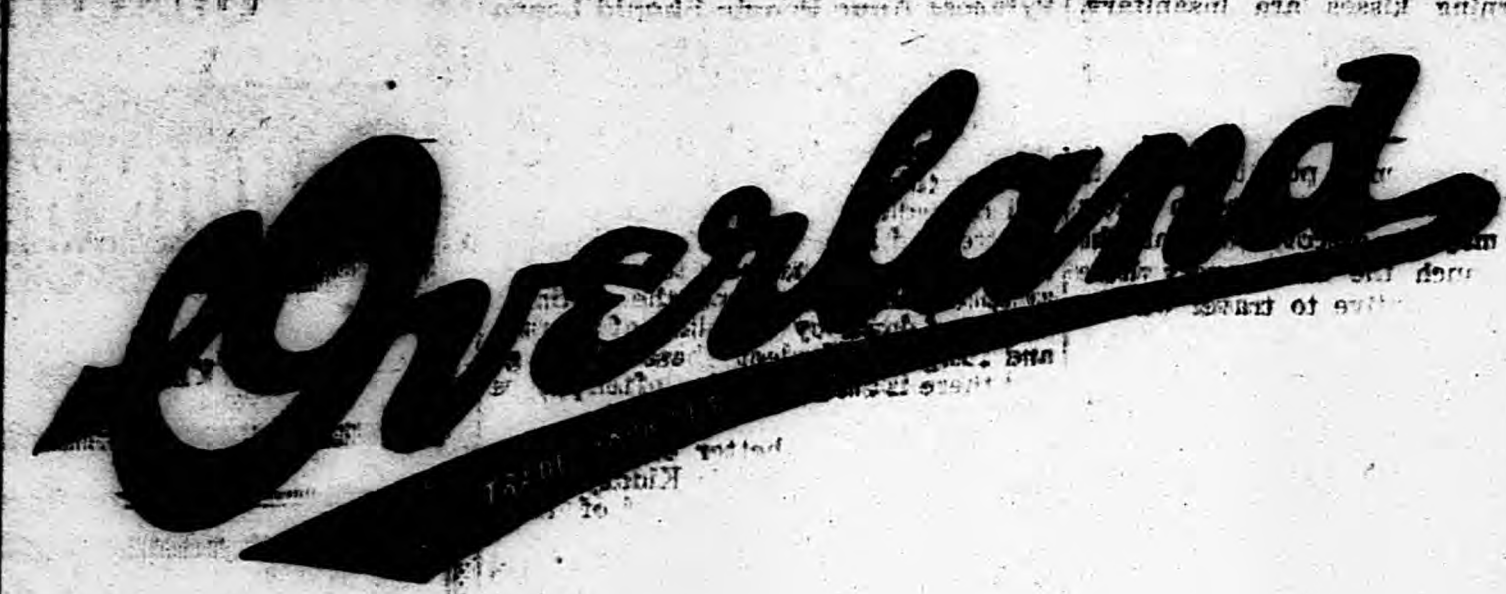

Aunt Hannah came home from church the other Sunday morning distinctly out of sorts. When asked what was wrong she answered that she thought there was not the proper reverence in that church. Pressed to give further explanation she finally did so. "I didn't like any of the choir," she complained. "They were too fickle looking to sing hymns and I thought it perfectly sacrilegious when that soprano got up in those slippers with the high, thin heels and sang, 'How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord.'"

The family she was visiting smiled but later admitted to themselves that it was indeed incongruous although not exactly sacrilegious.

Work Poor.

Charles M. Schwab at one of his Loretto dinner parties was talking about a man who was vainly beseeching the banks for a loan. "He's a rich man, too," said Mr. Schwab; "but he's work poor." "Work poor?" said a guest. "Yes, work poor," Mr. Schwab repeated. "You see, he's always got so many operations in hand that he's always short of money to finance them. Work poor, I call it."

Then he smiled and added: "He's one of those fellows who dig so much that they're always in a hole."

YOUNG LADIES OF THE WIRE.

The "hello girls" are receiving compliments on the part they played in the recent capture of a criminal on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. Newspapers and newspaper men are praising their intelligence and ability and the assistance they rendered.

The funny papers carry a regular quota of jokes about the telephone girls, and writers of letters-to-the-editor take their accustomed number of "digs" at the service. But every now and then a news story appears that shows the real mettle of these loyal servers of the public.

Sometimes, it's true, it may take them longer than we consider necessary to get a number. It may be annoying, once in a while, to have one's bell ring by mistake. It's downright nerve-racking to have them cut us off in the middle of a conversation.

But when you come to think of it, the young ladies of the wire represent a pretty high class of the country's womanhood. In normal times and fair, they perform their duties efficiently, courteously and well. When the unusual takes place, their courage, energy and common sense usually prevail when older and more experienced minds become distracted.

Sometimes it is a burning town; sometimes it is a flood, and sometimes, as in our present case, it is the escape of a desperate criminal. Almost without exception the telephone girls and the telephone service come to the front as dependable, invaluable agencies of humanity.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, it takes internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

VISITING BY PHONE

Remedies Suggested For The All-Too-Frequent "Line's Busy."

How would you like to be cut off in the middle of a telephone conversation with the information from the operator that "your time is up," and that you had been using the line as long as was permissible for any one message?

You'd probably burn out the fuse, or the generator, or the lightning rod—or whatever it is that burns out—telling the operator just what you think about it.

That is the remedy, nevertheless, suggested by one of the telephone company's most prominent subscribers for the ever-recurring delay and annoyance of "line's busy." It cropped out at a meeting of the City Club in Baltimore, where the telephone service and the company's request for increased rates were being discussed.

The Telephone Co. Says The Ladies ("God Bless 'Em") Are Among The Worst Offenders In Telephone Visiting.

A member of the club told of the difficulties he had been experiencing and cited one instance in which he tried for half an hour to reach his own office. Each time the line was busy. He knew that the stenographer and office boy were the only ones there to use the telephone. Finally, in desperation, he asked the manager of the telephone company if there wasn't some way the operator could break in on the wire and tell his "help" that the "boss wanted a chance to say a word."

Of course, the telephone people could not do it. A telephone conversation cannot be broken off at the request of a third person.

The problem of reducing the length of unimportant calls is a serious one, and one that directly affects the service given by any telephone company. An executive of the C. & P. Company has stated that eleven per cent. of the calls placed do not reach their destination because the number called is busy. In Baltimore alone more than 40,000 busy reports are given every day.

Busy lines affect two of the three parties to every call. To the one making a call, they are a source of annoyance, meaning delay and the bother of calling a second or third time. To the operator, they mean extra work. It is claimed that it is easier for her to make a connection than to report that the line is busy.

To the person called—well, he's using his own telephone, which he has a perfect right to do—that's all there is to it. And, of course, if you are on a party line, it is manifestly unfair to pay a prolonged wire visit and thus prevent other telephone users on the line from either making calls or receiving them.

If every user of the telephone would remember, say the telephone officials, that an idle conversation can keep an important message away from two telephones; if they are on a party line, from a larger number of telephones; and if every person would hold talks down to a reasonable time limit, there would be considerably less cause for complaint and a real improvement in telephone service. Telephone visiting may be cheap, but that's the best you can say of it.

Of the Dead Past.
A Long Time Since—Can you suggest a nice inexpensive car I can get?" "No, nor an inexpensive wife, nor an inexpensive house. Those things are out of fashion."

Busy Life.
"You think eight hours a day is enough work for any man?" "Plenty," answered Cactus Joe. "That leaves him only sixteen hours to play poker and get a little sleep."

Naturally.
"What book in your library is a pronounced favorite with the family?" "Now that you come to speak of it, I guess it is the dictionary."

Illustrations.
"Trouble never comes single." "You bet it don't. Last year we had double pneumonia in the family, and this year we had twins."

Great Execution.
"The violinist's execution was simply marvelous." "Wasn't it, though? You could see the audience hanging on every note."

Educational.
"Is this an educational film?" "Well, you might call it so. Has some very interesting studies in feminine anatomy."

THE DESTRUCTION BY FIRE OF THE HOTEL CHAMBERLAIN, AT OLD POINT COMFORT, BRINGS ATTENTION TO HAMPTON ROADS, WHERE SO MUCH HAS HAPPENED WITH WHICH THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES IS INSEPARABLY COUPLED. THE PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER SAYS:

It was Capt. John Smith, of Pocahontas fame, who first visited Hampton Roads and gave name to Old Point Comfort. When the ship in which he was taking the English colonist to the New World in 1607 arrived at the sandy point at the extreme eastern end of the bay (Chesapeake bay) he opened the sealed letter which had been given him by the London Company and learned that the settlement was to be made considerably farther inland. However, the colonists anchored for a while at that point and called it Cape Henry. Later they sought a place further westward toward the mainland, and finding there a splendid channel and excellent anchorage, called it Point Comfort. Later other good safe anchorages were found and similarly named, but to distinguish the first one from all others the adjective "old" was prefixed to its name, and it has retained it ever since.

Eighty-four years later a lighthouse was erected at the sandy point first reached by the colonists, and it is still standing, with a tablet commemorating their arrival; but a new and more commodious and serviceable lighthouse has been put up near it to meet the demands of modern navigation. In connection with the map of Virginia which Captain Smith published on his return to England, he described Hampton Roads very enthusiastically, saying: "There is but one entrance by sea into this country and that is at the mouth of a very goodly bay." Although New York and Boston—and shall we add, Philadelphia—may take issue with what Captain Smith asserted with such positiveness in regard to the "goodly bay's" water-way monopoly, certain it is that Chesapeake bay and Hampton Roads have held their own as a water rendezvous for big vessels, and especially for ships of the United States Navy, as far back as the memory of history runs.

In Hampton Roads two of the most memorable naval battles of the Civil War were fought—both of them with the redoubtable Merrimac, the ironclad of the Confederates. In the first of these battles the Merrimac rammed and sank the sloop-of-war Cumberland and destroyed the frigate Congress, the other ships of the Union escaping; in the other battle, the following day, the Merrimac met her match in the Monitor and was defeated by her.

In February, 1865, President Lincoln and Secretary of State Seward as a tentative peace commission, met a similar Confederate commission aboard the River Queen at Hampton Roads. The members of the Southern commission were Vice-President Alexander H. Stephens, Senator M. T. Hunter and Assistant Secretary of War John A. Campbell. Although "Honest Abe" Lincoln gave assurance that he would "exercise the power of the executive with the utmost liberality" and promised that if the seceding States would return at once to their allegiance to the Union, the former slave-holders should be indemnified in full for the loss of their slaves, nothing came of the conference.

At the conclusion of the war Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, was confined for a while at Fortress Monroe, which is one of the two strongholds guarding Hampton Roads. The other one is Fort Wool.

During the recent world war Hampton Roads sustained its fame as a factor in great crises. From there transport after transport went forth silently to contribute to the tremendous concentration of men, supplies, horses and munitions.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE Princess Anne People Should Learn To Detect The Approach Of Kidney Disease

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

Oscar Long, Route No. 1, Antioch avenue extended, says: "Several years ago I had severe attacks of backache, and, in fact, had been troubled more or less all my life. Whenever I did anything that required stooping, I had sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions and was in very bad condition. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was cured. I have enjoyed good health ever since and I can heartily recommend Doan's to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Long had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOUNTAIN HANGED AT EASTON

Negro Goes To The Gallows Protesting Innocence

Isaiah Fountain, colored, who was convicted twice of assaulting Bertha Simpson, a young white girl, April 1st, 1919, was hanged at Easton, Md., for the crime at 3.12 last Friday morning. The hanging took place in the corridor that separates the home of Sheriff C. M. T. Souleby, of Talbot county, from the jail portion of the building. The only witnesses to the hanging were 20 men, who were the official witnesses; the jail attendants, Dr. James B. Merrick and the newspaper representatives.

An hour before his execution he was found to have twisted his bed clothing into a rope, one end of which he had placed about his neck. He was attempting to tie the other end to a bar of his cell when the death watch observed him. On unwinding the rope it was found that the negro had gashed his throat with an old safety razor blade, which later was found in his cell. The negro went to his death protesting his innocence of the crime.

The corridor in which the scaffold was erected is 20 feet long and 5 1/2 feet wide. The scaffold itself was 14 feet high. When Fountain stood over the trap that sent him to his death his head was only a few inches from the ceiling of the corridor. Sheriff Souleby pulled the lever that released the bolt on the trap.

None of Fountain's relatives were present at the hanging. They refused the invitation offered by the sheriff. They also notified the sheriff that they would not bury the body. The body was taken to Fountain's farm, a short distance from the scene of the attack, immediately after he was pronounced dead by Dr. Merrick, and buried in a lot just behind the house where he lived with his wife and two children. The grave was dug Thursday afternoon by a local undertaker, who had charge of the burial.

Fountain was convicted first at Easton in May 1919, and in May, 1920, at Towson. The attack on Bertha Simpson took place April 1, 1919, near Trappe, Talbot county. From the time of his arrest he had protested his innocence, but there was strong circumstantial evidence on which the convictions were based.

Fountain twice escaped from the Easton jail after being sentenced to death. He was captured June 22 on the farm of Calvin Anderson, fourteen miles north of Easton.

PROHIBITION CANDIDATES

Party Nominations Watkins And Colvin As Standard Bearer

Ohio has got its third presidential candidate for the 1920 campaign when the Prohibition National Convention in session at Lincoln, Neb., last Thursday nominated Aaron S. Watkins, of Germantown, Ohio, after learning from William J. Bryan that he would not accept the nomination voted him on Wednesday.

Mr. Watkins won on the second ballot after he and R. H. Patton had each received 85 votes on the first. The vote was Aaron S. Watkins, 108; R. H. Patton, 74; D. A. Poling, 24; C. A. Randall, 2. It took 105 votes to nominate.

On the first ballot the result was: Aaron S. Watkins, Germantown, Ohio; 85; R. H. Patton, Springfield, Ill., 85; Dan A. Poling, New York, 23; C. A. Randall, California, 9.

Mr. Watkins is a professor of literature in a Germantown military academy. He was a professor in Ada College, O., for several years and was vice-presidential candidate on the Prohibition ticket in 1904 and 1912.

D. Leigh Colvin was nominated on the first ballot for Vice-President. He, too, was born in Ohio.

The convention adjourned shortly after midnight after naming Mr. Watkins and Mr. Colvin.

Both the Prohibition candidates last Friday issued statements condemning the stand on prohibition taken by Senator Harding, the Republican nominee, in his speech of acceptance Thursday.

"We notice with regret that Senator Harding mentions and even emphasizes the fact that many dissent from the law and he will if possible, think, secure its repeal," said Mr. Watkins.

"It is all right for Senator Harding to speak of law enforcement," said Mr. Colvin's statement. "Any one would do that. But his broad statement about repeal makes his stand absolutely unacceptable."

Bishop-elect George W. Davenport, recently chosen to be Bishop of Easton, has notified the presiding bishop of his desire to be consecrated in Trinity cathedral, Easton, and has also notified the trustees of the cathedral to the same effect. From present indications it would seem that the service can be held during the last week in September, and that the bishop-elect will be receiving the 75 standing committee members.

Death Claims Mrs. Lovett

Mrs. Edward Lovett died at her home in Monie neighborhood last Tuesday night, aged 53 years. Mrs. Lovett was stricken with paralysis three years ago and had been in poor health since that time. On Monday night of last week she was again stricken with paralysis which was the cause of her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovett came to Somerset county nine years ago from Fairbury, Ill., and purchased the "Waller farm" at Monie. She is survived by her husband and one son, Mr. Hugh Lovett, of Birmingham, Ala. She is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Hannah E. Moore, who resided with her, and one brother, Mr. J. E. Moore, of Princess Anne.

Her remains were brought to Princess Anne Wednesday night and, accompanied by her husband, Mr. Edward Lovett, and brother, Mr. J. E. Moore, taken to her former home, Fairbury, where the funeral services were held.

The Shore a Great Tomato Center

It may not be generally known, but the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware is a tomato packing center of unusual distinction, and it is stated that one-third of the tomatoes of the country are canned in this section. There are 284 canning houses on the Eastern Shore. Most of these canneries have been in operation for some time and millions of cases of fruit and vegetables have been put up for folks to consume during the winter months.

In these days of reform even the crook may find himself in straitened circumstances.

Somerset Farms Good Investments

Mr. Lee Porter, who resides near Loretto station, has had an exceptional large yield of potatoes and wheat this season. From 22 acres he dug 235 barrels of potatoes and the gross returns for the same were $1,601.42. His yield of wheat, recently thrashed, was 29 bushels to the acre. The above goes to show that thorough and intelligent work means large returns to the farmer.

There was a time when the Eastern Shore of Virginia was considered the greatest potato-growing section in the United States, but it is now being demonstrated that land in Somerset county will produce a large yield also. The farmers in Somerset county dug, in many instances, 75 barrels to the acre. These potatoes were sold at the local depots for $10 and $11 a barrel. The best potato land in the county extends through Dublin, Westover, Fairmount, East and West Princess Anne and Mt. Vernon districts.

Fruit Growers Meeting Friday

Fruit growers from all parts of the State and from the nearby sections of Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware will be present at the mid-summer meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society at New Windsor, Thursday, July 29th, when they will be the guests of the Carroll county orchardists.

This will be the first summer meeting of the Society in two years and Secretary S. B. Shaw has taken special pains to arrange a program that will attract the fruit growers despite the busy season of the year and the probable hot weather. The problems of marketing which are enlisting the attention of producers, consumers and economists everywhere will be discussed by the speakers who have been secured to address the meeting.

Mr. Charles M. Atkinson, who resides in Somerset county, near Pocomoke City, dug from 3 1/2 acres of ground 286 barrels of round potatoes.

Federal Board Awards An Increase Of 21 Per Cent

Whether the spectre of a nation-wide railway strike has been laid by the $600,000,000 wage increase granted last Tuesday by the United States Labor Board, in session at Chicago, to more than 1,800,000 railroad employees, remains to be seen.

Brotherhood officials, after conferences, made no attempt to conceal their disappointment that they did not get all of the billion dollar increase they asked. The belief grew, however, in the absence of any talk of an immediate strike, that the union officials would submit the award, probably without recommendation, to a referendum of the men.

Railroad representatives accepted the award philosophically and immediately set about plans for passing the $600,000,000 addition to their wage budget along to the ultimate consumer—in this case the man who pays the freight. Armed with reliable advance knowledge as to what the award would provide, the railroads had their figures ready. Judge R. M. Barton, chairman of the United States Railway Labor Board, had hardly handed down his decision when E. T. Whiter, representing the more than 40 railroads involved, announced that the roads would need an increase of 18 per cent in freight rates to meet the wage boost.

The $600,000,000 award represents a 21 per cent increase in the pay of the railroad men. For the first time in history the roads' payrolls this year will pass the three billion mark. Mr. Whiter estimated the 1920 payrolls at $3,344,000,000, more than double the $1,468,586,394 paid in 1916.

The increases allowed by the United States Labor Board in the railroad wage award follow:

Passenger Service—Engineers and motormen, firemen and helpers, 80 cents per day.

Freight Service—Engineers, firemen and helpers, $1.04 per day.

Yard Service—Engineers, firemen and helpers, 18 cents per hour.

Passenger Service—Conductors, ticket collectors, baggage men, flagmen and brakemen, $30 per month. Suburban service passenger service employees, $30 per month.

Freight Service—Conductors, flagmen and brakemen, $1.04 per day.

Superseding rates established by the Railroad Administration, the Board fixed the following schedules:

Yard Service—Foremen, $6.96 per day; helpers, $6.48; switch tenders, $5.04.

Section Foremen will now receive $130.60 per month, and track laborers 48 1/2 cents per hour.

The following increases were authorized for shop employees:

Supervisory Forces—Machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, power men, moulders, cupola tenders and coremakers, including those with less than four years' experience, all crafts, 13 cents an hour. Regular and helper apprentices and helpers, all classes, 13 cents an hour. Car cleaners, 5 cents an hour.

Telegraphers, telephone operators, agents, towermen, levermen, tower and train directors, block operators and staff men, 10 cents an hour. Agents at small non-telegraph stations, 5 cents an hour.

The Gypsy Law a Good One

We have probably seen the last of the roving bands of gypsies in the counties of Maryland, and few people will be sorry. These wanderers have been a tax on the generosity of the public for many years, and they have been quite expensive. They have taken away many things—beggings or stolen them, whichever was found to be necessary. And the fortune-tellers—the old women of the nomads—have flourished on the credulity of the young folks who were eager for a glimpse into the future, showing so often that the American public dearly loves to be fooled. The gypsy band, under the new law, has to pay over to the authorities one thousand dollars for the privilege they formerly enjoyed of going about the country camping for awhile, wherever they considered prospects for business, horse trading, fortune-telling and thieving, favorable. This practical present time has disposed of another age-old nuisance.

The remains of Mrs. Charles H. Packard, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William McAllen, at Cape Charles, Va., were brought to Princess Anne last Friday afternoon and interred in the Manokin Presbyterian Church cemetery. Mrs. Packard was 79 years of age and was a former resident of this town. She is survived by one son (Mr. John Packard, of Crisfield), and one daughter (Mrs. William McAllen, of Cape Charles).

HARDING SOUNDS BATTLE CRY

Rejects Nations' League In Speech Accepting Nomination

Rejecting President Wilson's League of Nations, Senator Warren G. Harding declared in accepting the Republican Presidential nomination last Thursday that if elected he would stand for establishment of peace by a resolution of Congress and then propose an international "understanding" to promote world harmony without impairing American sovereignty.

He did not directly advocate or oppose ratification of the treaty with reservations, and declared it useless "to discuss in detail the league covenant, which was conceived for world super-government and negotiated in misunderstanding."

He made a plea for government by party, rather than by individuals; declared for industrial peace attained by inspiration, rather than force, and advocated economy, increased production and deflation of currency to relieve the high cost of living.

High points in Harding's speech of acceptance:

Government by party under the Constitution; not government by one man.

Negotiated in misunderstanding. We do not mean to hold aloof, but must speak the truth to Europe. A free untrammelled America offers her friendship to the world, but will defend her rights and independence.

For an understanding which would make us a willing participant in the consecration of nations to a new order. Would welcome popular referendum on League.

As soon as a Republican Congress sends a peace declaration to a Republican President to sign.

Despite divided opinion there must be no evasion in the enforcement of the laws. Modification or repeal is the right of a free people.

Declares his sincere desire ratification of the amendment be completed to permit women to vote this fall in every State.

Understanding between labor and capital; Federal co-operation in the rehabilitation of the railroads; co-operation among farmers and aid for agricultural interests; free speech but repression of disloyalty; genuine gratitude for all veterans of the World War; an ample navy; a small army, "but the best in the world;" intelligent deflation of the currency.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who was chairman of the Chicago convention, delivered the address formally notifying the candidate of his nomination. He praised Senator Harding's character and qualifications and commended the part he had taken in the Senate fight against unqualified ratification of the peace treaty.

The acceptance speech sounding a keynote for the Republican Presidential campaign, was delivered at the formal notification ceremonies at Marion, Ohio, after the nominee had spent the greater part of the day reviewing a riotous procession of delegations that came from many States to honor him. From early in the morning until the notification program began he was kept busy waving his greetings to the visitors as they filed past his residence by the thousands.

The notification ceremonies were held in a circular chateau pavilion on the outskirts of Marion, in the presence of many of the leading figures of the party and a crowd of 4000, while many thousands more tried unsuccessfully to push their way within hearing distance of the speakers.

Senator Harding spoke for nearly one and one-half hours and when rounds of applause had spent itself the ceremonies came to an end with the singing of "America" and a benediction by Father Joseph M. Denning, of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Marion, Ohio.

While Republicans were celebrating a few miles away, Governor Cox, the Democratic standard-bearer, and his chief aides last Thursday rounded out the opposition program at Columbus, Ohio. Announcement that Saturday, August 7th, had been fixed definitely for Governor Cox's notification at "Trail's End," his home, near Dayton, was made.

The following Monday, August 9th, was chosen for similar ceremonies for Franklin D. Roosevelt, Vice-Presidential nominee, at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Governor Cox declined to discuss the acceptance address of Senator Harding, his Republican antagonist. The Governor announced that he would leave at 2.40 o'clock Friday for "Trail's End," to devote himself to his acceptance speech. He does not plan to return to Columbus until August 2nd.

CAPT. McNULTY GOES TO SING SING

Convicted Of Bigamy And Sentenced To Five-Year Term

John F. McNulty, of Baltimore, a captain in the merchant marine and during the war a senior lieutenant in the navy, was sentenced in New York to a maximum of five years in Sing Sing for bigamy Monday of last week.

The charge was brought by Frank J. Finkler, of Brooklyn, father of Miss Martha R. Finkler, whom McNulty married, although he had a wife, Ruth Ennis McNulty, and three children in Baltimore. In addition to the bigamy charge Finkler alleged that McNulty had tried to poison members of the Finkler family and to burn their home when they accused him of being a bigamist.

McNulty pleaded guilty to the bigamy charge, admitting that he had married two women while his first wife, from whom he had been divorced, was living.

According to Mrs. Fannie Ennis, 1727 North Payson street, Baltimore, mother of Mrs. Ruth Ennis McNulty, who, with her three children, lives at 1321 Madison avenue, in that city, McNulty was born in Crisfield, and after moving about the Eastern Shore counties with his parents was committed to an institution in Baltimore.

When about 16 years old he entered the navy, and on a trip to Crisfield a year or so later he met and married Miss Mary Ward, whom he afterwards divorced and who died later. While still in the navy he met Ruth Ennis at Crisfield, and married her there on November 8, 1911. Three children resulted from the union, Catherine May, 6 years old; John E., Jr., 5 years old, and Doris Madeline, who is nearly 3.

In 1918 McNulty was assigned to secret service work at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where he met Miss Finkler, who had left Barnard College to enlist in the Women's Motor Corps. He married her in April 1919. Later he went to Pittsburgh with his new bride, to whom a girl baby was born last November.

Early last February a detective called on the Baltimore Mrs. McNulty and questioned her in detail as to her marriage. Later, Mr. Finkler, father of the Brooklyn bride, called and told of the duplicity of McNulty.

BALTIMORE HAS BIG FIRE

Wagner's Point Swept By Flames—Six Fires At One Time

Last Tuesday will go down into Baltimore history as the most grueling day for the city fire department since the days of the great fire in 1904.

For the first time since that disaster every piece of fire apparatus the city possessed was in action at one time. Men and engines fought six fires at once—the virtually unquenchable blaze in the oil tanks at Wagner's Point, three fires in the neighborhood of Howard and Saratoga streets, a clothing factory blaze at Hopkins Place and Redwood street and a fire in an East Baltimore dwelling.

Hundreds of residents of East Brooklyn fled from their homes in panic Monday night when two great oil tanks at the plant of the United States Asphalt Company, Wagner's Point, which had been burning since afternoon, caved in, scattering burning oil in every direction.

Without warning, the immense tanks caved in under the tremendous heat. Thousands of gallons of burning oil poured down toward the river. Rivers of blazing oil flowed down Third, Fourth and South streets, firing 100 frame houses on all three of these streets, from which many occupants who had not sought safety earlier rushed, carrying babies and personal effects in their arms.

The losses include three huge steel tanks belonging to the Asphalt Refining Company and their contents, estimated to be 90,000 barrels of crude and fuel oil; three large and two small steel tanks of the Texas Oil Company and their contents, one of them said to contain 2,000 barrels of gasoline; the laboratory of the asphalt company, a brick structure, 12 dwellings destroyed, 10 dwellings badly damaged and the headquarters of the East Brooklyn Volunteer Fire Company, together with its chemical engine, destroyed.

At the Corner

By Dwight Tingle Scott

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"He's a new man, this Officer Mulvane, but he's got a head on his shoulders and a smile that never stops working. Two bad smashups in one day. There has got to be a change." So the captain sent Mulvane to Catastrophe Corner.

No mechanical director for him. He held it in contempt, as he did the inverted tub platform and the big umbrella.

At Catastrophe Corner, where the rush of the whole city met and clamored for right of way, his broad shoulders and alert, happy face bobbed confidently above the surge—a Triton of traffic holding the human flood in check by the blasts of his chiming whistle.

"Since Mulvane has had Catastrophe Corner it has quit furnishing cops," commented one of the papers a few weeks later. And hundreds of old ladies and uncertain gaited old gentlemen had cause to love Terrence Mulvane, while scarce a motor passed but the driver acknowledged his efficient good nature with a friendly nod.

But there was one to whom every gesture of Terrence Mulvane was perfection, one to whom his smile meant more than happy good nature. For sometimes in a full he would glance up at the third floor of the great office building at the corner and big brown eyes would laugh back down at him. How he had done it, even the closest spectators could not tell, so swiftly

he had sprung forward and swung the girl safely from under the very wheels of the truck.

"Grady drunk," he growled. "Grady—got your number? Good. Watch the crossing." His relief had come on. "My! You're all trembly." He looked down at Rosetta May, who was half laughing, half crying. "Where do you live? Then I am going to go with you up to your car."

Rosetta May really felt very faint and very glad of his steady hand at her arm. But the next night and the next and many an evening thereafter, Terrence Mulvane waited after relief and walked that single block with Rosetta May.

Presently he learned that her father was from County Limerick and from there had come the sparkling flow of words that kept him fascinated; and her mother from sunny Messina had given her the marvelous hair and eyes that drove him to distraction.

Rosetta May had studied mathematics at Central High and then as secretary to the chief engineer of the Marvin Construction company she had added practically to that knowledge.

"It comes pretty slow for me," Terrence confided. "You see, I had to stop school two years this side of algebra."

"I'd love to help you. I wonder if I could?" So it came about that Terrence took his books often out to Rosetta's home, and the brown head and the sandy one were bowed close together under the soft evening lamp.

Then Mrs. Pilcher, joy of the Sunday editor and bane of traffic officers' existence, motored into Terrence Mulvane's life. She motored in, in a great lilac-hued car, disregarding all rules of love and the regulations laid down by the common council. At first it was: "Oh, Mr. Mulvane, I thought you meant for me to go through." And then it was a nod and a little wave of the hand, and Mrs. Pilcher began to cut corners and drive through at will.

The change from behind a packing machine in Pilcher's Cigar Factory to an upholstered seat behind fifty horse power of luxurious speed had been, in Mrs. Pilcher, more apparent than real. The brazen beauty that had hypnotized old Pilcher in his doddering age now turned its full powers against the frailty of youth.

The eyes of love are sharp. And Rosetta May could look down upon Catastrophe Corner.

Mr. Fenton signed a letter. "Don't open do this without seeing for myself. Remember, young lady, I'll hold you responsible. I hope he has the right turn in him. Friend, did you say?"

The girl assented. Rosetta May went and looked out on the street to hide her confusion. But what she saw on Catastrophe Corner made her clench the letter tight in a convulsive fist.

Mrs. Pilcher was at it again. Terrence had just been relieved, and the woman's car was drawn up to the curb. Even at the distance the girl caught the look in the Pilcher woman's eyes—a look of pleading cajolery. Terrence was hesitating—holding back, but, sick within her, she saw that he was yielding. Yes, he got into Mrs. Pilcher's car and they drove away.

Eight o'clock and he had not come. Tonight of all nights—not coming. In her own room the hot tears sprang out, hot to the eyes but cooling to the heart.

Then it was his laugh, clear and boyish, in the downstairs hall. The red eyes and the timid reserve did not escape him as she came slowly down to meet him.

"Why, my little signorina-colleen, what in the world?"

"You were so late. I thought you were not coming."

"Not tonight—and you said you had a big surprise for me? It was that fool kid tonight. I just had to take her in. And then she insisted on my taking her down to the station and introducing her to the sergeant. And she kept us there arguing for half an hour. Then I had to go up home with her, because she didn't have her purse, and according to law we can't take a check."

"Oh, Terry, forgive me. I saw you ride away together, and I thought—" "What—that woman? Forget it. Say you know all day I have been mulling over that 'trig' problem we were working on."

"In the car she asked what made me so quiet. I told her trigonometry and asked her if she had it when she went to school. She looked blank at me under all that rouge and then said she supposed so, because she took almost everything that was going round and had almost died last winter with the 'flu.' Gee, think of having to talk to that all your life. No wonder old Pilcher died right away."

"But the surprise?" Rosetta timidly handed him the letter.

"Oh, my," gasped Terry. "You wonderful little tramp—how did you ever manage it? Monday next? And this last paragraph: 'The salary is only an initial one. To a man who really wants to take up engineering it offers, we believe, a fine chance. Miss May tells me you are serious about this. If so we can assure you that the opportunity will prove just as big as the man.'"

But there was another surprise—a surprise for Rosetta. And Terrence Mulvane lost his poise fumbling about searching for it. And there was a moment of tense silence, broken by Rosetta May's "Oh—h" when he found it. For he did find it at length. It was in his right-hand vest pocket in a push-covered box.

LEARNS IN HOURS OF PLAY

Childish Pastimes Really Serious Factors in the Development of the Adolescent Human.

The child has a right to play. Fred, "unbossed" play is the most serious business of the child. It is the way in which his faculties are best brought to their highest capabilities. A child, like a kitten, is a play-formed animal. The kitten follows the string or ball because nature has implanted certain instincts which make it necessary for the kitten to learn to follow moving objects with accuracy. Practice in following moving objects, which we call play, is the serious business of a kitten. On the same principle the play of the child develops his muscles, his mentality, and in the team play of later childhood, his sense of justice and of right social relationships. Practically all the work of a child should be undertaken in the play spirit and should be the result of his inner desire to do this or that thing. To those who feel that this modern principle of education, if strongly emphasized, will result in a lack of principle on the part of a child, it may be said that the child will constantly impose upon himself harder tasks, requiring concentration and attention to detail, exercise of the imagination, and constructive ability, than the severest educator of the old school would dare to impose on him.—Exchange.

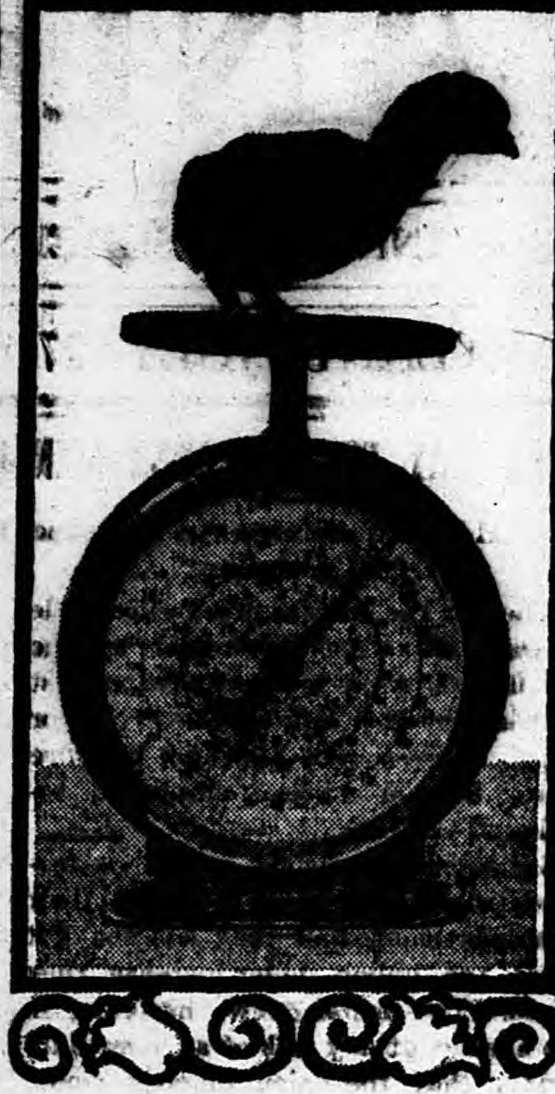

Superstition Protected Animals. Europeans never eat dogs as all Astetics do, says Andre Tridon, psychoanalyst, because of a pact our prehistoric ancestors made with their feared and ferocious wild dog neighbors. It was a habit with those ancestors of ours to hold sacred and inviolate what they feared, provided the fear-some thing was too powerful to be exterminated. Custom has held us to that ancient alliance through the ages since. Savage wild buffalo once ranged India, probably outnumbering the human population six to one. Propitiation, the Hindus figured was their cue. The Indians never eat buffalo or cattle, the cousins of the buffalo.

As Usual. "Oh, Mr. Mark, please buy a ticket to our entertainment! It is for a most worthy cause, I assure you." "Certainly, Mrs. Clatter. And what is that cause?"

"Paying the expenses of the entertainment we gave last week for a worthy cause."—Kansas City Star.

Lamp for Each American. The production of electric lamps in the United States now approximates 180,000,000 annually, or about one for every inhabitant of the country.

GOOD MORNING!

The poultry industry is one of the biggest agricultural industries in the world. Few persons appreciate its importance until figures are presented showing that its products sell for hundreds of millions of dollars annually. In many parts of America the poultry industry is of more value than the horse, cattle, swine or sheep business. For several years a big campaign has been conducted to interest the children in poultry-raising. Many thousands of boys and girls are being instructed in flock improvement and the care and marketing of eggs. In order to assist in popularizing poultry-raising liberal prizes for poultry are being offered by the Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, Aug. 31 to Sept. 4, inclusive.

Price and Percentage. Increase of price when measured in percentage is very often incorrectly given. When the price doubles the increase is 100 per cent, but many people describe it as an increase of 50 per cent.

Cement Substitute for Lead. Cement as a substitute for lead in connecting the joints of cast iron water pipes is employed in Portland, Ore., with great success.

AN OBLIGING NEIGHBOR

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

"A man and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Warren, two small children and a young lady about nineteen. Miss Editha Morse, I believe is her name."

Thus Mrs. Barth from the next block, general gossip of the neighborhood. She had come purposely to the home of Mrs. Alma Hampden to start her rounds discussing the new people who had moved into the house immediately adjoining that of the latter lady.

Mrs. Barth proceeded to discuss the Warrens. The man dressed shabbily and did not look very ambitious, his wife dowdy. The two children, however, were neat and well behaved, and—

"They seem to look to their aunt for direction and training," rambled on Mrs. Barth, "and I must say she is a very superior-looking girl."

"I hope they are companionable," remarked Mrs. Hampden. "It has been very lonesome living here since my husband died."

After her visitor departed Mrs. Hampden could not resist the temptation to seat herself near the window and take in the prospect of the new people. The head of the household was a tired-looking, shiftless-looking individual and carried things into the house as if work was a stranger to him. His wife mostly ordered. The two little children wandered about the yard with frequent looks in the direction of their aunt, as if they missed her company. The latter at once attracted Mrs. Hampden's attention.

"Tall, graceful, rather naughty in her bearing—or is it a sort of self-consciousness?" meditated Mrs. Hampden.

Miss Editha Morse had put on an old pair of gloves and a covering apron and was doing most of the work in moving things into the house. Only light articles had been left on the porch and lawn by the movers, but it took her an hour to get them under cover while her brother-in-law made a feat at assisting her by spells.

It was just at dusk when there was a rap at the kitchen door and going thither Mrs. Hampden was confronted by the lady from next door.

"You'll excuse me, I know you will," spoke Mrs. Warren, "but the movers have put our tea canister in some barrel or box and we are all famishing for a bite to eat."

Mrs. Hampden graciously attended to the needs of her neighbor, asked to be of assistance and even invited them over to tea.

"No, I thank you, but I won't do that," said Mrs. Warren. "It would spoil my husband. His dream of life is to have money enough to take us all to board at some hotel where there won't be anything to do but eat."

The lady departed, very grateful and very tired, she said. There was another summons at the door five minutes later. It was Mr. Warren.

"Sorry to trouble you, ma'am," he said, "but the sugar is missing, too, and if you'd loan us a cupful—"

"All you need," replied Mrs. Hampden and settled down to her lonely meal to be interrupted once more by the reappearance of Mr. Warren. This time it was matches and just before bedtime a fourth call for kerosene, "our own supply having given out."

By noon the following day Mrs. Hampden was perturbed and disappointed as to her new neighbors. Half a dozen times the children or their parents came in quest of this or that article.

She expected the usual application for the assistance that evening when a knock came at the door, but going thither it was pressed in almost as soon as she had unlocked it.

"Quick! I don't care to be seen by the people next door," said Ronald Pierce, her brother. He proceeded to impart an enlightenment that considerably astonished his sister.

"I noticed the vacant house next door and am responsible for directing the Warrens there," he said. "I want you to be kind and indulgent to them, supply their needs, no matter what the cost, and I will make it all up to you. The fact is, Alma, I am Warren's lawyer in a case where he will either recover a fortune or nothing, but as I have a dearer object than that in view, be my helpful friend, won't you?"

"Why, certainly, but—" "I love Editha Morse, but I have never told her so. She's proud, sensitive, troubled greatly about these shiftless relatives. I only await the opportunity to offer her a home, but it cannot be until those she is loyal to are able to care for themselves."

The Warrens did not change their borrowing tactics. The father even asked for the loan of money. He dashed in upon Mrs. Hampden one morning a month later, a fluttering telegram in his hand.

"You dear, kind lady," he cried, "I've good news from my lawsuit. 'I am rich, think of it, and oh, won't we make up to you for all that you have done for us!'"

So within a week the Warrens were able to arrange to spend the rest of their lives in ease at a hotel. Having won the suit, Pierce visited the family pretty often, and now that Editha Morse was relieved from her duty of helping the family she had time to note and analyze his attentions.

"I am going to borrow Editha from her borrowing relative for an auto drive tomorrow," Pierce told his sister one day. "Oh, only long enough to tell her how I love her," he added. "After that I hope she will be mine entirely."

HOME TOWN HELPS

ALL SHOULD HAVE A GARDEN

Health and Profit in the Cultivation of the Ground, Even Though Plot Is Small.

The "city farmer," as they humorously called him, was a very great help, not only to himself, but to the country, during the war-garden time, and the experience he gained from his war-garden activities then has since helped him in the fight to win out against the high cost of living.

He has profited by that experience in every beneficial way, and the best of all is that he fell in love with his garden, and has been in love with it ever since.

He found health there, and more of home happiness; and the profit was then, as it will be now, that he didn't have to take the market basket from home.

To the town dweller, who perhaps hasn't given much attention to gardening, the Albany (Ga.) Herald says:

"It's great to have a garden, even though it produce few vegetables. It's great to have a place for outdoor exercise—a place in which to turn up the fragrant earth with a spading fork, level it with a rake and lay it off with a trench hoe. Some folk say it's better exercise than golf or tennis, though on that question we do not presume to sit in judgment. A man can work in his garden before sunrise, when golf links are too wet with the dew to be used, and his garden is a whole lot nearer home than the golf club.

"And there is no reason why Mr. Towndweller cannot have a garden with real vegetables in it if he will give a little practical thought and diligent application to its preparation and care."—Atlanta Constitution.

STRAIGHT ROWS AID GARDEN

Utilize Space to Best Advantage, and Add Greatly to the Appearance of the Plot.

It will add considerably to the ease of gardening as well as to the looks of the plot if the vegetables are planted in nice straight rows instead of helter-skelter. Besides, it will utilize the space better.

Where space is restricted, it is best to have the rows run the long way of the garden—north and south if possible—planting several kinds of similarly grown vegetables like green onions, carrots and radishes, in the same row.

If you plant such crops as beets, radishes and onions in beds these can be made four to six inches high by digging narrow paths around the beds with a hoe and throwing the soil upon the beds.

If the drainage of your garden is not good it is well to grow cabbage, cauliflower and similar crops on small ridges thrown up with the spade or hoe. Other crops, among them early peas and celery, should be planted in shallow trenches scooped out with a hoe. When these plants grow the soil is gradually worked back around the roots.

SEES BILLBOARDS AS WASTE

Eastern Authority Gives Excellent Reason Why Unsightly Structures Should Be Done Away With.

Attacking the American billboard from a new angle, Mr. Joseph Pennell declares that "the lumber expended in unnecessary and unsightly billboards in this country would rebuild nearly everything destroyed abroad. The paint wasted here would cover all the new buildings, and the labor would be of incalculable benefit in what we hear is the great essential of producing more." The argument should do much to help the anti-billboard campaign, for, although many will hesitate to believe that Mr. Pennell's arithmetic is altogether correct in so nice a balance between billboards in America and "everything destroyed" in Europe, there will be plenty to agree that the unnecessary erection of American billboards consumes a vast deal of material that would be very helpful in the erection of buildings in Europe. Meantime the billboards multiply, and by so doing add constantly to the evidence of their own undesirability.

His Fears Realized.

Jane and John, twins, are exceptionally fond of each other, John seemingly much the older with the proprietorial solicitude for Jane's welfare. Jane had spent the week end out of town and as the train drew into the station, John was there to meet her. Quickly noting the newly bandaged finger, he exclaimed, "I just knew you'd get hurt if I wasn't along to take care of you!"

Luck and Labor.

Luck is ever waiting for something to turn up. Labor, with keen eyes and strong will, will turn up something. Luck lies in bed, and wishes the postman would bring him the news of a legacy. Labor turns out at six o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation of a competence. Luck waits. Labor whistles. Luck takes a chance. Labor on character.

Why Suffer?

Mrs. J. A. Cox, of Alderson, W. Va., writes: "My daughter... suffered terribly. She could not turn in bed... the doctors gave her up, and we brought her home to die. She had suffered so much at... time. Having heard of Cardui, we got it for her."

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"In a few days, she began to improve," Mrs. Cox continues, "and had no trouble at... Cardui cured her, and we sing its praises everywhere. We receive many thousands of similar letters every year, telling of the good Cardui has done for women who suffer from complaints so common to their sex. It should do you good, too. E-7"

True Eloquence. "That was a great speech your lawyer made when he got you acquitted." "So it was," said the confidant man. "It was the most eloquent oration I ever heard. Why, my lawyer not only convinced the jury that I was an innocent and much abused man, but there were times when I almost believed it myself."

A Belief. "I hope Bliggins has to make speeches on behalf of some candidate next summer," remarked the man who can be disagreeable. "Think it'll help the candidate?" "Not much. But it'll compel Bliggins to talk about somebody besides himself."

All Fixed. "Gabe, I hear you are about to commit matrimony. Got your house furnished yet?" "Yep, got a pair of deer antlers for a rifle rack. And when my seven coon dogs are home the place looks as cozy as a picture."

Paradox. Matherson surprised his friends at the club one evening by rising to leave much earlier than usual. "Why this haste?" said one of his friends. "The night is still young." "I know," replied Matherson; "but I promised my wife to be home by ten-thirty tonight and if I miss the last train I shall catch it!"

Washington's mother was living in Fredericksburg, Va., when the father of his country was inaugurated, but she did not witness the ceremony, which took place in New York.

Riches of the Incas. The image of the sun, which the Incas worshipped, "was engraved on a massive plate of gold of enormous dimensions, thickly powdered with emeralds and precious stones." An effigy of the moon, the sun's supposed wife, was a vast plate of silver.

Cannot Praise this Remedy too Highly

THE WAY ONE LADY FEELS AFTER SUFFERING TWO YEARS

Judging from her letter, the misery and wretchedness endured by Mrs. Charlie Taylor, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 144, Dillon, S. C., must have been terrible. No one, after reading her letter, can continue to doubt the great healing power of PE-RU-NA for troubles due to catarrh or catarrhal conditions in any part of the body. Her letter is an inspiration to every sick and suffering man or woman anywhere. Here it is: "I suffered two years with catarrh of the head, stomach and bowels. Tried two of the best doctors, who gave me up. I then took PE-RU-NA and can truthfully say I am well. When I began to use PE-RU-NA, I weighed one hundred pounds. My weight now is one hundred and fifty. I cannot praise PE-RU-NA too highly, for it was a Godsend to me. I got relief from the first half bottle and twelve bottles cured me. I advise all sufferers to take PE-RU-NA."

As an emergency remedy in the home, there is nothing quite the equal of this reliable, time-tried medicine, PE-RU-NA. Thousands place their sole dependence on it for coughs, colds, stomach and bowel trouble, constipation, rheumatism, pains in the back, side and loins and to prevent the grip and Spanish Flu. To keep the blood pure and maintain bodily strength and robustness, take PE-RU-NA. You can buy PE-RU-NA anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

A stitch in time may save many a pair of overalls.

The farmer was the original discoverer of the stock dividend.

One kind of garden that will not bloom this year is the beer garden.

Nowadays it's a dillard husband who does not praise his wife in calicoes.

Rye is $2 in spite of the fact that you can do nothing with it but make bread.

Do they mean a scarcity of lumber for building houses or for outjia boards?

It will be funny to see the girls wearing calico. They wouldn't need much, anyway.

This year's run of shad has made fishes abundant, but the loaves are still expensive.

About the only thing for an intelligent person to do about the weather is to quit worrying.

Sweden has devised faucets that will not leak. But the plumber is by no means discouraged.

A cynic suggests significance in the overalls boom starting in the south, where cotton reigns.

Some of these days the women will be asking why there is no training school for men voters.

By the time they get those 7 and 8-cent coins minted there will be nothing left that costs that little.

Under the present peace conditions, war gardens will be once more in order; in fact, imperatively so.

The prices of hair cuts and shaves are going up and there are other signs that we are a growing nation.

But what is the fellow who all along has been a victim of the high price of overalls going to do about it?

Women are now liable to jury service. Hitherto the judge has always expected to have the last word.

However they may be regarded otherwise, nothing is more chic for a home garden costume than overalls.

The coal shortage does not affect the political situation, as the politicians have an unlimited supply of natural gas.

If the wear-your-old-clothes movement progresses much farther the chap with a new suit will feel painfully out of fashion.

Using gas to commit suicide is an other violation of the company's express stipulation that gas should not be wasted.

There are so few substitutes that a raise in the price of water might seem in accordance with the law of supply and demand.

An overallsite ought to get through the summer pretty comfortably, especially after the weather becomes warm enough to conserve underalls.

The department of justice has planned to abandon its campaign against the high cost of living, whereas few of us knew it had started.

The white-collar man who joins the overall movement has the satisfaction of looking like a prosperous mechanic, even though he doesn't get the wages.

Chemists believe that chlorine gas is an influenza preventive, but any of the boys who sniffed it overseas will just as soon take their chances with the flu.

It is regretfully admitted, surprising as it may seem, that no new name is added this morning to the list of aspirants for the presidential nomination.

Bull fighters' strike in Madrid was quickly called off. This incident, however, does not contribute materially to the production of necessities of which the world stands in need.

The overall wearing idea is spreading. If it brings along the suggestion of work in its wearers to break strikes, it will be one of the best that ever struck the mind of the country.

It is reported that 150 prisoners escaped from a Chinese jail, and they all look so much alike, too, that it will be very difficult to pick them out of the crowds once they are back in the cities.

Form-fitting coats for men are going out. The experience of having them was discomfiting but salutary. They proved to proud man that the less he reveals his form the less he offends for the landscape.

A judge has decided that a wife cannot obtain a divorce because her husband hits his mother-in-law. There are a few rights yet left which the down-trodden sex are going to uphold to the death.

SEA FURNISHES MUCH FOOD

United States Has Perhaps the Most Valuable Fishery in Which All Coast States Share.

The United States has what is said to be the most valuable fishery in the world, but probably not one person in ten can name it. It is conducted in every seacoast state from Cape Cod to the Rio Grande, and from Puget sound up to San Francisco, and it yields annually about 115,000 tons of food as prepared for consumption, an equivalent of 400,000 dressed steers. It employs about 87,000 persons, and its annual product, as it comes from the water, is valued at over $15,000,000. There are other fisheries that possibly exceed it in the ultimate value of their products, but in such cases much labor and material and a heavy investment of capital have been concerned in manufacturing operations to prepare the product for the consumer; as, for example, the canned-salmon industry of the Pacific coast. The American fishery for codfish on the Atlantic coast, which has been the cause of much diplomatic discussion and of grave international negotiations, appears almost insignificant in comparison, its value in normal times before the great war being about $3,000,000 yearly; and the shad fishery, the prospects of which each spring call forth much comment in the public press, produces not one-tenth as much food. The most valuable fishery is that which furnishes us with oysters. The bureau of fisheries has more than once called attention to this vast food resource and the possibilities for increasing it and using it to better advantage.

CHINESE TURNING TO SPORTS

Necessity for Physical Culture Is Beginning to Be Recognized in the New Republic.

Physical culture and all types of athletics were, until very recently, held in contempt by the Chinese, and consequently the Shanghai boys did not know what the joy of indulging in baseball and other sports meant, says Boys' Life. Ages ago chariot driving, archery and the other classic sports played an important part in Chinese education. With the dawning of China's literary golden age, however, the scholars could not see how mental perfection could be attained if there was any thought of athletic prowess. Muscles and brawn, they said, belonged to the peasant, and the gentleman of culture should show his good breeding by a scholarly pallor, stooped shoulders and a general unhealthy appearance.

This attitude toward physical development persisted for centuries, and it has been only within the last few decades that interest has been vouchsafed in sports. With the introduction of new educational methods and the entrance of occidental theories into the orient, athletics once more came into their own and the Chinese student tucked up his cue and his dignity and went in for pole vaulting and hurdling.

China has now the idea that a nation's economic progress depends largely on the healthy bodies and minds of its citizens, and missionaries find little difficulty in winning subscriptions for athletic fields for the schools.

First Jap Woman Journalist.

The first Japanese woman to edit a woman's page in her country, Miyo Kohashi, is studying journalism at Columbia university in preparation for teaching journalism in the Tokyo Union college next year. A decade ago women journalists were unheard of and unthought of in Japan. Now many women are growing interested in the profession, but very few of them have had special training for the work. That is why Miss Kohashi is preparing to teach the subject. "Women in Japan are liking the newspaper profession," says Miss Kohashi, "and already in Tokyo we have a club of twenty women journalists." Miss Kohashi is the Japanese representative of an interesting group of women students of 33 nationalities who form the International Foyer of the Y. W. C. A. at Columbia university.

Simple Logic.

The earl of Portarlington, who was one of the first to volunteer for service during the railway strike in England, relates the following story: A boy scout on duty at one of the London termini, feeling the pangs of hunger about eleven o'clock one morning, began a vigorous attack on a substantial lunch he had brought with him. A gentleman passing by was moved to remark: "My boy, if you eat much now you won't have any appetite for your dinner." To which the smart little fellow replied: "Well, I guess if I haven't any appetite I shan't want any dinner." The gentleman had no more to say.

Season of Peril.

At this season of the year it is folly to enter your bedroom without turning on the light. Also do not attempt to sit on the edge of the bed unless you are sure the bed is there, for this is house-cleaning time and the women folks may have decided to put the bed on the other side of the room this year, so it is well to be careful, for you never can tell.—Knox Messenger.

A woman gets suspicious when a man shaves off his moustache while she is away on a visit.

It is no wonder a man loses his power of speech when talking to a girl who is "too sweet for words."

The man who thinks the country is being run just as good as he could run it himself can be safely classed as a conservative.

When you hear a woman has educated her husband, it may merely be meant that she has been giving him "pieces of her mind" at various intervals.

If Christian Science succeeds in making us believe there is no such thing as pain, it will rob a lot of people of the pleasure they take in being miserable.

PICKING A TEACHING FORCE

Superintendents of schools are having a busy time nowadays. Many teachers are resigning to take jobs in business offices. It is a hard job to find suitable applicants under present conditions.

The old-time horse trader used often to be fooled on a horse, but probably not so many times as school authorities are disappointed in their teachers.

Many a quiet girl who does not look as if she would amount to much, yet has a reserve of force that establishes her authority. And some girls who have style and fine manners, and who might be charming women in other circumstances, yet lack those solid qualities of patience and affection for children that are essential in good teaching.

SEE MARYLAND FIRST

"See America First" has been a popular slogan. It has persuaded some people who had contemplated very costly trips to Europe to learn about their own country before they familiarized themselves with another continent.

See Maryland is also a good slogan.
People will travel all over the country to see famous places and will never have visited some remarkable sight in their own neighborhood.

There are many very interesting things in Maryland. There are scenes of great natural beauty, fine cities and towns, centers of historic association, industries known all over the world. A man is a better citizen of his State and a better booster for its interest when he knows its resources and achievements.

PARK DEVELOPMENT

If American towns could only be laid out over again most of them would be developed on a different plan. A park space would be the community center, with business buildings around it. In most places this dream is now impossible except at prohibitive cost. However, opportunities for good development at moderate cost exist to-day in a town like Princess Anne. By 1930 or 1940 the people will be blaming the lack of foresight that did not take advantage of them in 1920. Almost any town could undertake a moderate park development which in most cases would follow these lines:

- 1-Open spaces obtained by taking vacant lots or tearing down buildings of small value—these to be as near the business centre as possible.
- 2-Playgrounds for children in some section of the town.
- 3-Reservation of large and attractive spaces on the outskirts of a town for tree growth and athletic sports.

A park spot near a business district, handsomely planted with trees and shrubs, make real estate near it much more valuable. It is an advertisement of the culture, progress and high standards of the town.

Some of the newer communities developed after these plans, with central park spaces now grown up to handsome trees and shrubbery, have a marvellous charm and attractiveness. Also in some of the old Eastern towns the pioneers had sense enough to save commons in their center, which are now grown into wonderful elm shaded parks. No other form of public improvement does more to make a town seem desirable than this. There need not be much expense in the purchase of land, as development work can be done by volunteer effort if the community recognizes the money.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS

The few deaths from football that occur every fall are often discussed as being a great national issue. Yet thousands of deaths occur from drowning each summer and the subject attracts no general attention.

The vacation season brings to the summer resorts many people who never had a chance to learn to swim in their home towns. They sail boats, paddle canoes and go in bathing without knowledge of the perils of the water and many fatalities result.

The majority of these accidents could be avoided if parents did not permit a lot of irresponsible children to go bathing without any competent person to look after them. The best safeguard is to see that children are given instruction at an early age by some good swimmer.

THE CAMPING HABIT

It costs a good bit of money to buy, build or keep up a summer cottage or bungalow in these days. Hotel prices are very high. Hence a multitude of people are returning to first principles and the simple life by "camping out."

The tent-makers must do a tremendous business.

Last summer 1,000,000 campers were declared to have camped in the national forests of California alone and in a few years it is hoped that 5,000,000 will have enjoyed outings in these reservations.

In England they solve the high cost of summer homes question by "caravans," or little house on wheels, trundled along the roads by horses. Probably the motor caravan will yet come in.
That method is slow for this swift country. Our people prefer to dump a tent into the back of an automobile or ship
it by express into the nearest region where pure air and wild nature can be enjoyed.

Modern camping is not as rigorous as of old. The days of sleeping on pine boughs have gone by for most folks.
You need a spring bed to suit many campers, though others subsist comfortably on cots.

It does people good to cast off the superfluities of living. Many hard-working women find in this way that their burdens are largely of their own making and the simplifications of life relieve much strain.

Some people of course prefer their cooped up quarters in a city street where there is noise and the sense of something doing all the time, to the free, open-air life of a camping excusion and the quiet solitudes of the forest and stream. But the tide of town dwellers who go out on these jolly trips for our door life increases every year.
Multitudes find it a renewal of physical vigor and relief from nervous fatigue.

Food Prices Stay Up

The extraordinary price which is still being charged for sugar—far in advance of the war levels—together with the high range of meat prices, also at a peak that was not reached during the war period, have much to do with the maintenance of the high average of the food list which is reported by the Department of Labor's Bureau of statistics.

A drop in wheat and the wholesale flour market has not as yet been transmitted to the retail trade, and although there are local variants in the supply of vegetables and other farm products for the table, the scarcity of farm labor and the high rate of wages which is made necessary by the competition of urban industries, tend to keep these prices at an abnormal level, with little hope in sight of any early relief.

Save in the case of sugar, there does not appear to be any condition of famine or shortage of supply underlying these high prices, but they are to be related rather to the higher costs of production, transportation and distribution and to be subject to the general condition of inflated values, rather than to any local or individual factors. Therefore remedy or relief can be looked for only through and coincident with the general readjustment which is continually being looked for and always remaining just out of sight.

With housing costs standing pat and even going up, and no material reduction in food prices, old H. C. L. seems to be pretty well entrenched for another winter.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Future Rubber Supply

Rubber has assumed in the world demand an importance that approaches that pertaining to cotton. It is a demand that is growing larger constantly and at a very rapid rate of progress.
The continuously expanding demand would be beyond the supply and would threaten the exhaustion of the world's rubber resources but for the fact that rubber is more and more becoming a farm product. There are great rubber orchards in South Africa, India and South America—planting rubber trees is getting to be as standardized as planting apple or orange trees.

In 1900 only four tons of plantation rubber was marketed. In 1919 there was 285,000 tons of crude rubber from the plantations, and for this current year, according to the estimates, there will be 310,000 tons. The United States Rubber Company, it is said, now has a rubber plantation in British India that includes thousands of acres, and the British government has promoted the development of many such rubber orchards. The wild rubber supply from along the Amazon holds annually at from 30,000 to 40,000 tons, but now cuts
a minor figure in the world supply.

Development of rubber plantations along the Amazon is entirely practicable. A great surplus of rubber was produced in 1918, and this surplus has not yet been entirely absorbed. It seems to be in the demonstration that, as a farm product, rubber is on a sure demand basis. As to the future supply the whole equatorial zone may be shown upon for automobile wheels, gum shoes and baby rattlers.—Baltimore American.

No Campaign Work Being Planned

Republican and Democratic headquarters throughout the State are lacking in campaign activities. No preparations for the coming fight have been made,
and none will be made until September,
when the vacation season will be over,
and when men's thoughts will begin to look ahead to the election. The fact has long been discovered that hot weather and politics do not mix.

Democrats as well as Republicans are at sea because of their fear that Tennessee will ratify the Woman's Suffrage Amendment, thus adding the thirty-sixth state to those which have already ratified, and making the proposition operative in all the States. The Democrats declare that colored women will register and vote automatically, while white women will hesitate in large numbers to visit the registration offices, and, even if they register, it is declared that they will not vote in the same proportion as colored women. Both parties will be compelled to revise their campaign methods, if the voting privilege is bestowed upon women.

Somerset county farmers are destined to face a further increase in the cost of production this fall. Announcement was made last week that prices of all fertilizers will advance about twenty-five per cent. Fertilizers have been high for several years, and this additional increase will place an extra burden of expense upon farmers who are already facing increased labor costs. Fertilizer dealers are of the opinion that prices may go even higher as the season advances.

We certainly feel very much pleased at the response our subscribers have made to our subscription notices and bills, paying for the paper up to 1920 and 1921. The plain white paper on which the Marylander and Herald is now printed costs, together with the postage, about $1.20 a year, so we do not believe any one will fail to act promptly in sending their subscription if in arrears. Look at the pink label on your paper and if it is 1919 send or bring your subscription at once. The subscription price is now $1.50 a year in advance. All subscribers who are in arrears will be removed from our list July 31.

History of 29th Division

The Twenty-ninth Division Historical Committee, of which George Scott Stewart, Jr., is chairman, is now actively engaged in preparing the official history of the Twenty-ninth, or Blue and Gray Division. The committee expects the volume will be ready for publication this fall. Unusual interest centers in this history, as it will give in minute detail the official happenings of the Blue and Gray Division from its creation at Camp Annapolis until its mustering out last June a year ago. Four or five thousand Marylanders were members of this division, which was made up of the National Guard troops of Maryland, Virginia, District of Columbia and New Jersey.

Help The Near East Relief

Harold F. Pellegrin, State Secretary Near East Relief headquarters in Baltimore, has sent out a circular, in which he states that as the result of the clothes drive two hundred and fifty thousand garments were sent to New York City from various parts of the country. He cautions the senders of packages against sending heavy allotments wrapped insecurely in flimsy brown paper or paper boxes. By the time these arrive in New York there is very little left of them.

He also urges all people throughout the country to immediately forward all garments which they can spare and to begin knitting as during the war for those in such dire distress in Bible Lands.

Governor Names Racing Commission

Last Wednesday Governor Ritchie announced the appointment of the three members of the Racing Commission. These are:

Stuart Olivier, publisher of the Baltimore News.

Joseph P. Kennedy, of the Kennedy Foundry Company.

E. Clay Timanus, former Mayor of Baltimore.

Mr. Olivier has been named as the chairman and his term fixed at six years. He is a Democrat.

Mr. Kennedy, the second Democratic member, is to serve two years.

Mr. Timanus, the minority member of the commission, is appointed for a term of four years.

The successors to Kennedy and Timanus, to be named at the expiration of their respective terms, will be appointed for six years, so that there will be a new member named every two years. This commission is not subject to confirmation by the Senate.

The appointees, upon being notified by the Governor, held an informal conference Wednesday, at which they decided to elect J. Ferd Hayward, a well-known newspaper man, secretary to the commission. His salary is to be fixed by the commission.

The salary of the chairman is fixed by law at $4,000, and that of each of the other members at $3,000.

The commission will exercise supervision over racing, issue permits and fix the dates. A meeting is to be called by the chairman in the near future, when an organization will be effected. Permanent headquarters have not yet been selected.

SOME SMILES

Handicapped.
"Didn't young Grabco go away to college last year?"
"Yes. He went to Harvard."
"Fine institution."
"So it is, but young Grabco carried along a Japanese valet, a motorcar and a bulldog. He may have picked up a few crumbs of knowledge, but I doubt it."

Hard to Judge.
"Has Blithers a sense of humor?"
"I don't know whether he has or not," replied Johnson. "But I am convinced of one thing."
"What is that?"
"He's never laughed enough at one of my jokes to justify me in asking him for a loan."

News Item.
"Pearls have gone up."
"What's that?" inquired his wife.
"The pearl necklace that cost $1,000 four years ago now costs $5,000 or more."
"There, now, John. You see what you missed by not buying me one then."

Considerate.
"I hope the movie stars you employ try to make your business as pleasant for you as possible."
"Oh, yes," replied the producer, ironically. "They seem to have an idea that the larger the salaries they demand the easier it is for me to figure out my income tax."

A Clash of Methods.
"You say that you often find your work confusing," said the visitor.
"I do," replied the discouraged weather forecaster. "Frequently when my scientific calculations point to fine weather, my corns tell me it is going to rain."

HER IDEA.
He—How would you like to live in a cottage by the sea?
She—By the sea, yes, but why a cottage?

American.
He has no need of greater pride
Nor bigger work to brag
Who keeps his conscience for his guide
And serves his country's flag.

Why Not?
"What are you working on?"
"You remember those old remedies advertised as good for man or beast?"
"Yes."
"I'm working on an anti-freezing mixture, good for man or motor."

His Argument.
"Why have you turned footpad?"
"Your honor, I used to be a panhandler."
"I know that."
"But nobody would listen to a hard-luck story in these times."

Heard on State Street.
"Our dentist friend has purchased a mining prospect?"
"Yes."
"Well, he ought to win out. That fellow can hit a pay streak with the least drilling of anybody I know."

Domestic Problem.
"Have you ever considered what would be the result of a serious break in China?"
"Well, according to my experience, you wouldn't dare to take it out of the cook's wages."

Real Joy.
"Was Maude really glad to see you when you came home?"
"Glad? Why, when she came rushing in to greet me I saw at once she'd forgotten to powder her nose."

Always a Way.
"My husband won't buy me a jeweled dog collar."
"There's a way to get it."
"How?"
"Keep growling."

Always Happens.
"Sometimes I bring my lunch with me."
"Well?"
"Those are the days you get invited out."

Maybe.
"The cherry tree was once revered."
"And is yet, I trust. What you drive at?"
"Maybe in these days we pay too much attention to the plum tree."

Depends on Value.
"How would you class the deferred payment for a navy?"
"I suppose, according to the kind of a navy, it would be either a sinking fund or a floating debt."

Ride on Goodyear Tires in That Sturdy Small Car of Yours

It surprises certain users of small cars to find that they can obtain Goodyear Tires at a first cost ordinarily not greater, and sometimes less, than that of other tires.

This initial value, as well as the very low final cost, results from the application of Goodyear experience and care to their manufacture in the world's largest tire factory devoted to 30x3-, 30 x 3 1/2- and 31 x 4-inch sizes.

Such facts explain why more cars, using these sizes, were factory-equipped last year with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

If you drive a Ford, Chevrolet, Maxwell, or Dort take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy real Goodyear value and economy; equip your car with Goodyear Tires and Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Service Station.

30x3 1/2 Goodyear Double-Cure
Fabric, All-Weather Tread . . . $23.50

30x3 1/2 Goodyear Single-Cure
Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread . . . $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost no more than the price you are asked to pay for tubes of less merit—why risk costly casings when such sure protection is available? $4.50

Ideals and Happiness.
Lasting happiness results from building ideals into concrete structures that minister to human happiness. The material things of the world have their worth, but even that depends upon the uses they are put to. Many a log valuable for furniture building has been used to fill swampy places over which cord-wood was hauled. And the same is true of ideals. To really count they must be fitted to good ends. Joy comes from projecting yourself into the future and the welfare of the race.

Mankind's Wastefulness.
Macquarie Island, sought by Sir Douglas Mawson as a sanctuary for the Antarctic fauna, is nearly 400 square miles in area, lying 900 miles from Tasmania, in latitude 55 degrees south. Penguins of various species, sea elephants and seals exist here in vast numbers, but are being ruthlessly slaughtered for their oil. A flightless parrot, living on the island when it was discovered in 1810, has been exterminated by cats turned loose and allowed to run wild.

Appreciated Lover's Tribute.
When Jenny Lind was in Vienna, years ago, a lover learned millinery and floristry so that he might sew in her hat daily three red roses as a tribute to her art. He might have sent huge baskets to her over the footlights. But his method was more delicate and Jenny Lind was pleased. Princess Metternich, too, used to wear flowers in her hat, according to a prominent florist, who trimmed exotic millinery for her daily.

Ancients Used Wire Rope.
In Egypt thick beaten wire was made into chains as far back as the second dynasty, 5200 B. C.; and links doubled and looped through one another appeared in the sixth dynasty, 4200 B. C. Yet chains were not commonly used until much later. The Gauls excelled in such work, as they used chain cables and rigging in place of rope to resist the Atlantic gales.

Childish Reasoning.
Elizabeth's mother died three years ago. Recently her father also passed away, leaving ten-year-old Elizabeth the eldest of three little girls. She was placed in a girls' school, where she was telling the sister of her misfortune. "God needed them," was the sister's only consolation. To which Lizzie exclaimed: "Maybe he did, but I think we kids needed them worse."

Amazons in Uganda.
The women of Uganda are Amazonian in their methods and do not hesitate to secure an acknowledgment of their rights by force, if necessary. A visitor to that land declares that frequently women working by the roadside will capture a passerby and, in pain of a severe chastisement, will make him take a turn with the hoe while they have a smoke.

Closely Related.
Rob was born the same day as his cousin, Helen. Both children started to public school at the same time and the teacher was a family friend of Helen's, but did not know Rob. On asking Helen if Rob were her cousin, she replied: "Yes, ma'am; Rob and I are twins."

Home Scissors Sharpener.
By accident one day a certain housewife discovered that cutting sandpaper sharpened her scissors. Now she does not have to wait for the scissors grinder to come around, for she always keeps a sheet of sandpaper in her machine drawer to sharpen her scissors with.

Businesslike Hotel Man.
To provide exercise for his guests, the manager of a string of California tourist hotels has furnished at each a common, old-fashioned woodpile, well equipped with axes of various weights and not too sharp. Guests are welcome to chop to their heart's content.

The Unchangeable Circus Ring.
While a circus aims to introduce as many innovations as possible, there is one of its most important features has remained unchanged from time immemorial. This is the size of the ring, which is always forty-two feet nine inches in diameter.

Love Tokens.
When a New Guinea woman falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister, or, if he has no sister, to his mother. Then the lady who receives the string tells the favored man the particular woman is in love with him.

Morality's Foundation.
A Bible and a newspaper in every house, a good school in every district—all studied and appreciated as they merit—are the principal support of virtue, morality and civil liberty.—Franklin.

Lumber Yard Out of One Log.
One of the largest mahogany logs ever marketed turned out 17,000 feet of solid wood.

Man and Work.
It is far better to give work which is above the man than to educate the man to be above his work.—Ruskin.

YIELDS TO MARCH OF TIME

Old Hotel in Quincy, Mass., Associated With Famous Men, Is to Become Business Block.

The old Hancock house, situated in City square, Quincy, has ceased to be a hotel. The present owner of the property, Henry M. Paxon, is to have the upper part removed and the first floor converted into a large business block. The hotel has only provided sleeping quarters for a number of years.

In the days of the old stage coach the Hancock house was one of the leading hotels of southeastern Massachusetts and the first place to which travelers resorted for refreshments. Among the distinguished men who have been entertained there was Daniel Webster, going to and from his home on the old Plymouth coach. On account of Mr. Webster's liberality in dispensing good cheer it was frequently a long time before the coach was able to proceed on its trip. Mr. Webster was always generous in his tips to the stable boys and bell-hops of those ancient days and history says that he often threw $5 goldpieces to the scrambling boys in the hotel yard.

The present structure was built in 1887, but several years ago the ground floor was remodeled into stores and only the upper part was used as the hotel proper. When Adams' academy was in its prime the place was used as a boarding house for students who came to Quincy from other cities and states and were obliged to make their abode in the city of presidents.

TURNING TO HOME GARDENS

Indications Are That People Are Beginning to Realize the Danger of a Food Famine.

A local seed store was crowded with customers.

"What does this mean?" the proprietor was asked.

"I guess it means that other people are thinking what I do," he said, "that unless food production is speeded up there'll be famine conditions in this country in 1921. Farmers say they can't get help in order to produce our food as usual, and it's up to every man to help himself. We run as high as 1,200 customers a day here. This is in addition to a big mail-order business. It's going to keep up like this all through the month, too. It did last year."

The seed man said that sales indicated that persons who decided to retire from the home-garden business, now that the war is over, have changed their ideas, and that the number of home gardens is increasing instead of diminishing.

He added that it is strange that while there was much crop shortage last year seeds of all kinds, with the probable exception of peas, are in ample supply.—Indianapolis News.

Stenographer Extraordinary.

Two members of the bar were trying a replevin suit in the superior court recently and in the course of the trial got into a sharp wrangle—as lawyers sometimes do—over the admission of a certain piece of evidence. The wrangle resolved itself into an oral battle in which both lawyers tried to talk at once.

They spoke in loud tones and at a rapid-fire gait. When the smoke had cleared away and the case was over they were quite surprised to learn that the court stenographer had been able to get down in his book every word they had said, despite the fact they were both talking at the same time. The clerk of courts commented on the feat.

"Oh," remarked one of the lawyers, "that little chap could take down a hailstorm and never miss a stone!"—Portland Express.

Fading Shrines of Oriental Splendor.

To me, after revisiting the East after an absence of ten years, it seems as if all its splendid past and all its present discontent were recorded and symbolized in the imperial palaces of Peking, Seoul and Tokyo. Ten years ago all three were the habitations of emperors, sacred spots from whose mysterious depths issued the edicts whereat men trembled and obeyed. Today the Son of Heaven and the Lord of the Morning Calm have gone their ways, to join the mournful company of kings in exile. Only his majesty of Tokyo remains, a dim, mysterious figure in the medieval seclusion of Chiyoda, a picturesque survival of old Japan, like an idol in a shrine, a sort of living Buddha in the great new city throbbing with machinery.—J. O. P. Bland in Asia.

Unconscious Cerebration.

Apocryphal of the popular interest in the ouija board, a correspondent says: "An experiment in unconscious cerebration may be made in this way. Take a 5-cent piece and to it attach a fine silk thread with a bit of sealing wax. Then take an empty tumbler and suspend the nickel in the center of the glass, holding the thread tightly between the thumb and finger and resting the elbow on the 'funny bone.' Then, without conscious volition of the muscles, think of its movement east, west, north or south, or returning to the center. You will find that the coin will obey the thought, although you give consciously no direction for the movement."—From the Outlook.

Short-Sighted Mortals.

The golden moments in the stream of life rush past us, and we see nothing but sand; the angel came to visit us, and we only know them when they are gone.—George Eliot.

I will be at WESTOVER, at Long Brothers store, on Thursday morning, July 29th, and at CRISFIELD at W. Jerome Sterling & Co.'s store on Friday morning, July 30th, 1920, for the purpose of receiving and collecting State and County Taxes.

CANNING EVERY WOMAN'S DUTY

The canning of fruits and vegetables by the housewives of the country has become a national duty. It is just as necessary in the near future, to prevent waste of millions worth of food products annually. That is why such an effort is being made to stimulate canning locally by offer of liberal prizes at the big Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, Aug. 31 to Sept. 4, inclusive.

CAKE THAT'S WORTH A PRIZE

You can almost hear her say, "Well, this will give them all a run for the blue ribbon at the coming show!" Judging from its appearance it is almost certain to win a premium. Many inquiries about the culinary prizes are being received by the coming Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, Aug. 31 to Sept. 4, inclusive.

IT'S HIS FAVORITE VEGETABLE

It is the utter joy resulting from the raising of such a pumpkin that makes the old man smile. And, again, he's probably thinking of the pies it'll make. Or, maybe, he's thinking about the prize it'll take at the show. Both the pumpkin and owner are coming to the Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, Aug. 31 to Sept. 4, inclusive.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Water on Two Sides.
Yeast—I see some one has suggested stocking a boat and having a floating saloon on the river to get over the bone dry law.
Crimsonbeak—Well, that certainly would give us an opportunity of having a little water on the side.

Strictly Literal.
"Why do they want to get a surgeon from another place for that operation?"
"Because there is no specialist here."
"That's strange. I thought they said the trouble was strictly local."

LARGE APPLE AND PEACH CROP

More Apples and Peaches in Maryland This Year Than Last

Maryland has prospects for 171,000 more barrels of apples and 87,000 more barrels of peaches this fall than last year, according to the July 15 report on fruit conditions issued by S. B. Shaw, secretary of the Maryland State Horticultural Society in cooperation with the University of Maryland Extension Service and the Bureau of Crop Estimates, Department of Agriculture.

The prospects for the apple crop in the State have improved decidedly since the June forecast and the estimated yield for this fall is 397,000 barrels. Reports received from the counties indicate particularly large crops of York Imperial and Ben Davis varieties and almost without exception the fruit is said to be free from disease and in fine growing condition.

Maryland growers, however, will have sharp competition in marketing their crops from other apple growing sections in the East. The State of New York is leading the country in prospects for a bumper crop and it is estimated that 6,494,000 barrels of apples will be picked from the orchards in the Empire State this fall. Pennsylvania also is expected to produce a crop almost double that of last year and Virginia has prospects for more than 2,000,000 barrels. The big increase in the East, however, is largely offset by the setback in the large apple producing states in the West. In the State of Washington alone the forecasted yield will be more than 2,000,000 barrels short of the 1919 crop and in Idaho, Colorado and Indiana large reductions are noted.

The forecasted peach crop for Maryland is 818,000 bushels. Leaf curl and brown rot is reported from some of the counties but generally the predictions are favorable. Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina will show big increases over last year in their peach shipments while Georgia and California, the two leading peach growing states, will show considerable losses.

Up to July 3, early fruits and vegetables shipped from Maryland indicated substantial increases in production over last year. The State shipped 763 cars of strawberries, 152 cars more than 1919. White potatoes from other points than the Eastern Shore filled 88 cars as against 25 up to the same time last year. Mixed vegetables amounted to 88 cars this year while up to the same time last year but 11 cars had been shipped.

A Candid Confession.
"The world owes us a living," said Meandering Mike.

"Maybe it does," rejoined Flooding Pete, "but I can't see what we've been doing most of our lives to put the world under any obligations whatsoever."

Experience.
"A man who has been employed in a piano factory wants to know if we can't give him a job as a film actor."
"How is he qualified?"
"He says he has had plenty of experience in the movie business."

Anything Else?
Snapp—Ah, there, bright eyes, is the boss in?
Snapp—No, he is not.
Snapp—Will he be back after lunch?
Snapp—No, that is what he went after.

Save Enough.
"I know a man who is continually taking hush money and never getting into trouble about it."
"How is that?"
"He sells optates."

Hardly Flattering.
She—I appreciate the compliment, but I'm afraid I could never make you happy.
He—Oh, yes, you could. You don't know how easily pleased I am.

Extreme One.
"Pa, what is an optimist?"
"An optimist, my son, is a man who sees hope for the country no matter who is elected."

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Princess Anne People Should Learn To Detect The Approach Of Kidney Disease

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Princess Anne proof of their merit. Oscar Long, Route No. 1, Antioch avenue extended, says: "Several years ago I had severe attacks of backache, and, in fact, had been troubled more or less all my life. Whenever I did anything that required stooping, I had sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times at night to pass the kidney secretions and was in very bad condition. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was cured. Have enjoyed good health ever since and I can heartily recommend Doan's to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney trouble."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply suffer from a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the name that Mr. Long had. Foster-McMillan Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Sustained.
"I am going to black that motorist's eyes."
"Then he'll have you arrested."
"He can't. The law says he must have his lamps dimmed."

An Indication.
"Do they take children in this apartment house?"
"They must. Some of the rooms aren't large enough to accommodate anybody but a child."

Divining.
Seers—You are going to meet with some dark obstacles in your way through life.
Visitor—I know. Those confounded coal-cart holdups.

Peculiarities of Poultry.
The foraging habit of domestic poultry illustrates some of the differences observed in the manners of wild birds. Place a brood of ducks in a field and they will generally pursue one course, marching in a body over the field with great regularity. A brook of chickens, on the contrary, will scatter, occasionally reassembling, but never keeping close together unless they are following a hen. Turkeys scatter themselves less than chickens, but do not equal ducks in the regularity of their movements.

Suffered Intense Pain

"A few years ago when visiting relatives in Michigan something I had eaten brought on an attack of cholera morbus," writes Mrs. Celesta McVicker, Macon, Mo. "I suffered intense pain and had to go to bed. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and one dose relieved the pain wonderfully. I only took two or three doses but they did the work."

She: "Last night was the first time I ever heard you talk in your sleep, and you kept saying, 'Four kings,' and once in a while, 'Full house.'"
He: "Well, you see I was down to the club last night playing checkers with a crack player and there was a full house watching us."

A Shower.
Jinks—You look dreadfully battered. What's happened?
Binks—Wife has been pelting me with flowers.
Jinks—Why, that wouldn't mark you up in that manner.
Binks—Oh, they were in the pots.

OLD FASHIONED.

"Is he old fashioned?"
"Sure thing. He still waits for his teeth to ache before going to a dentist."

Empty Speech.
I wonder why that man doth bring Unto my bliss a blot Who says some foolish little thing And then exclaims, "Ah, what!"

Enthusiasm Wins.
The great deeds of the world, the triumphs of the race, have not been accomplished by men who were content merely to hold their own or "just to get along," but by men who were dominated by their purpose, filled with an overmastering enthusiasm which swept everything before it as a mountain torrent sweeps aside or overleaps every obstacle that would bar its progress in its mad rush to the sea.—New Success.

Utilizing Pea-Pod Fiber.
The fiber of pea-pods is separated for industrial use in a process covered by a recent patent. The outer layer is dissolved away by fermentation or by treatment with hot water or steam, the inner fibrous layer being left in a form adapted for spinning or utilization in other ways. The solution of the outer layer, containing sugar, is not necessarily a waste, as it can be made to serve some such purposes as preparing marmalade.

Fashion Traced to Moreau.
The nick in a coat has been a puzzle to many. It is said to date back to the time of Napoleon. A general named Moreau had many followers, but they were afraid to openly express sympathy with him. It was therefore agreed to put a nick on their coats as a secret sign. The letter M can be seen in the lapel representing the initial letter of the general's name.

Chemists know

KIRKMAN'S BORAX SOAP

CHEMISTS know which soaps are best for washing.

Their tests show that most soaps are "loaded" with inexpensive fillers which have no washing value.

These same tests show there is nothing but honest washing quality in every cake of Kirkman's Borax Soap.
