'Everyman' Pays Visit

"Everyman" Tevye in the person of actor Jerry Jarrett will be bringing homespun wisdom and a lesson in humanities to the Frostburg State College campus on October 3, 1975 at 8:15 p.m. in the Multi-use Room of the Lane College Center.

Jarrett stepped out of his role as Tevye, Jewish father of three daughters in the Broadway musical "Fiddler on the Roof," but the character lives on in his performances of "An Evening With Tevye." Jarrett, a first generation Jewish-American, is interpreting of Sholom Aleichem, from which the "Fiddler" story comes. He calls Sholom Aleichem, the "Jewish Mark Twain" (and Mark Twain the "American Sholom Aleichem!")

Sholom Rabinowitz chose the pen name Sholom Aleichem, Jarrett says, because it means "peace be with you," a phrase used frequently by the Jews of his time. "He wants his name on everyone's lips," explains Jarrett with a smile.

The Tevye stories derive from a dairyman who with other Russian Jews living in a Jewish ghetto would come to market before Sabbath to sell his milk and buy enough supplies to see his family through the Sabbath. It was there, apparently, that Rabinowitz came to know the man who inspired his

Career Information

The Change Magazine of September 1975 has a fascinating article entitled: "The Declining Value of College Going," by Richard Freeman and J. Hubert Holloman and for those students presently enrolled in college and wondering about the significance and value of a college education, the article may be of relevance. The authors' credentials are credible: they are both professors at M.L.T.'s Center for Policy Alternatives, which objectively assesses alternative policies and practices of education, government and industry.

The basic thesis of the article was stated: "As a result of the decline in relative incomes and starting salaries and in the face of continued increases in tuition and fees, the rate of return on the college investment has fallen. . . from 11-12 percent in 1969 to 7-8 percent in 1974." Factors contributing to this marked decline are the economic downturn at the onset of the 1970's and the stories. It became a habit with the marketers to purchase a Tevye story before returning home.

Jarrett explains the popularity of Tevye as being because he is "an everyman" facing the perplexities of human relationships.

Jarrett, who identifies with the role because he is a first generation American Jew, says Tevye brings a lesson about relationships which transcends Jewishness, Catholicism and all differences in humanity. Most of the college audiences he has performed for have not been Jewish.

"An Evening With Tevye" is the second event scheduled in this semester's Student Artist & Lecture Series. It promises an evening of fine entertainment.

Parents' Weekend

by Jessica Gesang

By this time you know whether your parents will be here for Parent's Weekend, October 3, 4, and 5 to participate in the many activities planned for the weekend. To find out about them, you can read this newspaper article, or get a special calendar of events for the weekend or read the signs that will be posted around campus.

Beginning Friday evening, the Student Artist & Lecture Series will have "A Night With Tevye: Fiddler on the Roof" in Lane Center.

Sports events Saturday include the soccer game against Towson State College at 11:00 a.m. on the soccer field and at 1:30 p.m., FSC will try their hardest to defeat Juniata College on our field. Tickets for guests and parents are $2.00 apiece. Please note that this is a 50¢ reduction.

The bookstore will be open all day on Saturday for browsing, and the snack bar will be open for lunch.

The art department will have an exhibition in the Fine Arts Gallery, and the Physics Club will have an exhibit in Tawes Hall.

Highlighting the weekend Saturday night is the dinner-dance. I am sorry to say that we could only accept the first 500 paid reservations and unfortunately, close to 300 persons had to be turned away from the dinner. However, the dance can still be attended and is open to all parents, beginning around 10:00 p.m. Parents can also go to the Coffee House upstairs in Lane 201 where Keely West and Harry Traynam will

House Meeting Report

The Student Association had its second meeting of the semester on Thursday, September 18th, at 8:00 p.m. which began with President Doug Pranski's giving the executive report. The following items were covered in this report:

1) A letter was sent by Doug to Dr. Harold Cordts inquiring why faculty are receiving fringe benefits at the expense of students. An answer is awaited.

2) Presidents of 32 chartered organizations met with Doug and the following were agreed upon:

a) a Student Interest Day for Thursday, October 23rd from 2-5:00 and 7-9:00 in the Lane Center Multi-use Room,

b) to run the "On Our Campus" columns again in State-To-Date, and

c) hopefully to begin another Greek Council. The Greeks on campus are trying to make this deadline.

3) Jay Aubuchon and Doug Pranski attended a meeting with Senator Mason and two delegates. At this time Pranski expressed his disapproval of the Rosenberg Commission's final report. This disapproval stems from fact that the Commission did not include students in its study and it acknowledged the financially grave situation of Maryland Colleges but passed no means for evaluation of the problem.

The Board of Trustees and five of the six Presidents of the state colleges are against the implementation of the Rosenberg Commission Report. A copy of the report is in the S.A. office for anyone interested in reviewing it. But please do so in the S.A. office.

4) The following appointments were approved by the House:

To the College Judicial Board were appointed Rick Napalaton, Brian Deitz, Barry Hoyle and Karen Umbrant.

Seven freshmen representatives were appointed: Gene Beall, Edie Beard, Terri Curbeam, John Lindenmuth, Vicki Lowery, Donna Thomas, and Mike Shapiro.

Greenburg Co-Compiler of Survey

A comprehensive review of all known studies on energy-rich organic compounds has been compiled by two Maryland chemistry professors.

Dr. Arthur Greenburg of Frostburg State College and Dr. Joel F. Liebman of the University of Maryland-Baltimore County prepared the survey of studies over a four-year period. It is scheduled for publication under the title "A Survey of Strained Organic Molecules" in Chemical Reviews, the primary review publication of the American Chemical Society.

The 160-page document represents the most comprehensive review ever compiled in the field and includes 1,000 footnotes.

An experimental chemist, Dr. Greenburg is an associate professor of chemistry at FSC, while Dr. Liebman, a theoretician, is an assistant professor of chemistry at UM-BC. The two met as graduate students at Princeton University and joined their respective faculties in 1972.

Department Head Has Book Published

Dr. Gordon E. Kershaw, head of the history department at Frostburg State College and a specialist in colonial and revolutionary American history, is the author of a major new book on the activities of a speculative land company during the settlement of colonial Maine.

"The Kennebeck Proprietors, 1749-1775," is the only published study of a speculative land company in northern New England, claim its publishers, the New Hampshire Publishing Company and the Maine Historical Society and "offers a unique picture of the role greed and ambition played in the settling of this country."

Gerald E. Morris, director of the Maine Historical Society, says that of the dozens of books that roll off the assembly line every year, few add such "an enormous quantity of fresh information to our knowledge of Maine's past."

The Kennebeck Proprietors actually were the heirs of four men who had purchased for 400 pounds in 1661 from the Plymouth Pilgrims a 30-mile wide strip of land straddling the Kennebec River between Gardiner and Vassalboro. Some 14 years later, when King Phillip's War reached Maine, they were forced to abandon the property and their business plans for it.

In 1749, taking advantage of an uneasy peace following a period of Indian raids, their descendants, principally from the Boston area, gathered to incorporate the tract under the title, "The Proprietors of the Kennebec Purchase from the late Colony of New Plymouth." It was

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Due to the unusually large number of comments I have received regarding Joe Fan (including last week's letter to the editor) I feel it is only fitting to offer this rebuttal.

Joe Fan does not typify all fans, merely those who are perpetual complainers in the crowd. Certainly not every Bobcat fan is there to bitch but far too many are. No one is supposed to sit in the stands with their hands folded, as you stated I implied;

there is nothing wrong with loud applause. Certainly the team would love support.

You claim that I do not hear the comments during the halftime show since I am performing. However, surely you have enough sense to realize that people do not stop talking about football games as soon as halftime shows. Plenty is said about halftime performances, and since I do have ears I can even hear what is said. And, believe it or not, when performing we band members can also hear what is going on. We can tell by the reaction of the crowd whether we are doing a good job. May I remind you that the football team is not deaf either. A little spirited support never hurt anybody. All I said is let's cut with the bitching, okay?

Cut me some slack, Joe, and while you're at it, read a little more carefully next time before you start blowing up a hurricane of your own.

Guest Editorial

by DIXI

Now that another college year has begun, there are many important issues confronting the student at Frostburg State College. One of these important issues is the idea of the absence--excused or unexcused.

At a recent faculty-staff meeting, it was decided by most of those present that excused absences do not exist. Those interviewed with this opinion said that they would not excuse a student even if he or she was excused by the Dean of the College.

It is a policy of this college that, in order for students to be excused from a day of classes which they missed, a written excuse to the Dean of Students must be presented. Then it is at the discretion of the instructor to accept or reject the excuse, even though the student has been excused by the Dean.

Those who were available for comment in favor of excused absences were few and far between. However, they did state to me that they would accept excused absences which had been accepted by the Dean. Those who expressed this opinion also stated a fact which apparently has been overlooked. This was the opinion that the student is the employer and the instructor is the employee. Given this opinion, it is a rarity that an employee criticizes or does not accept his employer's absence. But at Frostburg, this is not the case.

I have been blessed by a healthy and absence-free semester thus far. However, one of my instructors was absent on two occasions. When arriving at class, the students in my class found a note on the blackboard stating that class had been cancelled. During the class following the absences, the instructor offered no "excuse" for his absence.

The point I'm trying to get across is that the system is either unfair or backward. It is unfair because the student must seek an excused absence from the instructor, but the instructor does not have to seek an excused absence from the student. It is backward because the employer must seek an excused absence from the employee, but the employee does not have to offer an explanation to the employer.

Therefore, the faculty members who refuse to accept an excused absence from a student should consider these following facts: 1) without the student, you would not have a class, therefore no job, 2) the student paid for your precious time and I submit that if he or she chooses to be absent, you should excuse them, 3) students have the freedom of choice to do with their time what they want, so they can be absent with a good excuse; after all, it's their money they would be wasting by missing a class and 4) by being absent, they are not wasting your precious time, but theirs!

Dear Editor,

In last week's State-To-Date, the new College Judicial Policy was released and became effective at that time. In general, the policy is a good one, however, there are a few areas that directly effect students that I am concerned with. The foremost is the section on "Search and Seizure". There is no way I can agree that the College has the right to put aside a student's constitutional right to privacy. Essentially, this is what this section can do and because of this, I have formally requested Mr. Jim Mingle, Assistant to President Guild, to obtain an Attorney-General's ruling on the constitutionality of this section. I will keep the student populous aware of how this subject progresses.

Statistically speaking, the job outlook for college graduates is pessimistic. "In October 1972, the unemployment rate for graduates in the class of 1972 was 9.3 percent, which was far in excess of the national average of 5.6 percent for all workers." Another problematic factor for college graduates is the length of unemployment. "In the 1970's the length of unemployment for college graduates exceeded that of all other workers."

An economic analysis of the decline in the college graduate job market by the authors, revealed that it will probably be a long range trend, and not merely temporary. Simply, the explanation lies in the demand-supply idea. While the supply of college graduates has been increasing since the mid-1960's, the demand for college graduates has leveled off. "As a result of the shift in the composition of output and employment, the long term growth of demand for college workers declined substantially in the seventies." If Freeman and Holloman's analysis is reasonably correct, then the economic value of a college degree and the use of college for upward social mobility will be considerably decreased.

7) The S.A. received the following letter from George Zubrod:

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank Jay Abuchon and the students who helped put the telephone directories together. Without the students' help, distribution of the directories would have been delayed several more days and probably a week. Thanks again for all the help and a job well done."

Following the executive report, Howard Cohen of the College Center Board announced that the Autumn Weekend will be held October 17 & 18, with two dances, a concert and a football game highlighting the weekend. Anyone interested in working on this weekend please contact Howard Cohen.

The Student Education Association was allotted $73.00 to attend a leadership conference in Ocean City and $15.00 was allotted to the Caving and Climbing Club to present a movie which will be open to the campus. After a considerable amount of discussion, I.V. was granted $15.00 for supplies and $175.00 for a leadership conference which four of its members attended in June.

NOTICE!! Any Senior wishing the Student Association to not release their home address to the photographer for the yearbook please notify Doug Pranski by October 3rd.

Student Education Association Meeting

On September 17th, the Student Education Association (SEA) held its first meeting of the semester. The main activity of the session was a creativity workshop led by Dr. Bill Dudley, an assistant professor of the Frostburg Education Department.

SEA is the Frostburg chapter of the National Educational Association. It is concerned with developing skills and attitudes that the student needs as a professional teacher. The organization holds meetings at least once a month.

The first meeting began with several items of new business. First, the new members of the SEA executive committee were introduced. They included:

President: Debbie Picek
Vice-President: Karen Brake
Treasurer/Secretary: Keith McQuay

Members-at-large: Diane Brake, David Canron, and Betty Bennett

The organization is looking for a fourth member-at-large in order to complete the membership of the executive committee.

Other items of new business included the distribution of the recently revised Constitution, which will be voted on at the next meeting. In addition, a raffle is planned for the beginning of October; the chances are for a van and are $1.00 apiece.

The most recent activity of SEA was sending three representatives to the Maryland State SEA Leadership Conference on the weekend of the 28th. Other activities have been planned, involving guest speakers. The schedule is as follows:

Oct. 22--Mr. E. Joseph Picek will talk about middle schools

Nov. 12--A representative from the Institute of Behavioral Research will speak. This activity is being co-sponsored by the Psychology Club.

Both meetings are free and open to all interested students.

FSC in Ride-Along Program

Twenty Frostburg State College students are currently enrolled in the Maryland State Police "Ride-Along Program," a program designed to bring the college community closer to the state law enforcement agency, according to Bill Grab, Assistant Director of Housing at FSC.

The program involves students accompanying on-duty State Troopers for the purpose of observing police procedure at work. After meeting several eligibility requirements and signing a liability waiver, the students are invited to ride with participating troopers as often and as long as they wish.

"Ride-Along" is a concept which grew out of the student activism and unrest on college campuses across the country in the late sixties. "This particular program was created," Mr. Grab recalled, "at the University of Maryland several years ago. The idea was to reduce some of the alienation between students and police and establish a more positive relationship."

The first attempt to organize a Ride-Along program at FSC was made in the fall of 1972. Upon reinstatement of the program in January 1975, when the final approval came from the State Police by way of Cumberland Barracks Commander, Lieutenant Turnbull, student interest appeared a great deal stronger. Mr. Grab commented, "Now the interest is there. Students are interested and they're doing it. Once we got started, the program built upon itself."

Although the public relations rationale for the program remains, it is no longer the major thrust. The emphasis has shifted to familiarizing the public with the possibility of choosing police work as an alternative in the now shrinking job market. Ride Along's student coordinator, Kevin Inskeep noted, "Very few people realize how wide open this field is, especially for women and minority groups." Appropriately, a little over twenty percent of the participants are women.

The only difficulty with the program presently is one of transportation. Since the students, like the officers with whom they ride, are required to sign in and out at the barracks, they must find their own rides to Cumberland.

Now in its second full semester of operation, the program is still open to new participants. Interested students should contact Kevin Inskeep at 7606 or Bill Grab at 4121.

Residence Life Study

A study has been conducted by the Residence Life Office of Frostburg State College in an effort to discern what enduring effects are accrued from college residence hall living, according to Lloyd E. Greene, assistant director of residence life of the College.

The study, based on a poll taken of 1,100 men and women who have graduated from Frostburg State College in the last five years, is novel, according to Mr. Greene, in that college alumni is a source of information heretofore untapped in previous studies of this nature. It was designed to gather some retrospective impressions of residence hall living and provide data for a value-in-residence life series, thereby determining ways to improve services offered.

While the effect of residence hall living on vocational choice and influence on choice of spouse seems to be minimal, according to the survey, there seems to be impact from other aspects of the residence life program which is positive and/or long lasting. The experiences provided, especially through dorm social structure, were indicated to be useful not only to the undergraduate's daily life, but also

Autumn Weekend News

It's that time of year, when the trees show their colors and one season is born into another. Like the changing leaves, C.C.B. is changing too. The traditional idea of Homecoming has grown into Autumn Weekend and it's time for the students to harvest the fruits of these great days.

Friday, October 17th, there will be two dances from 9:00 p.m. till 1:00 a.m. One dance will be held in the Multi-use room of Lane Center will 1,000 tickets available. The only Moonshine available here will be B.Y.O.B. The other dance will be located at the Clarysville Inn with 600 tickets available and Cash Bar only, so don't bring your jugs! Musical pleasures will be provided by two great bands, "Lemon-Lime" and "Smoke-stack Lightning." Tickets for dances are free, but are limited two per student I.D.

For this year's Autumn Weekend, both dances will be open to all of us, freshmen thru alumni. Also there will be no traditional Queen and Court. There will be a Window Decorating Contest to brighten up the Snack Bar.

Saturday, October 18th is old home day with all home games including: the rugby team vs. Navy, Bobcat football vs. Madison, and a soccer game against Shippensburg. More musical delights are promised for Saturday night at the concert in Lane Center. Tickets for all events will be available one week prior to Autumn Weekend.

C.C.B. has planned a weekend to help make this Fall a very good season. We work for you and through you, so we need your support and help--from ticket takers to head counters--so please let us know if you can help. Stop by the C.C.B. office in Lane Center and leave a note if no one is home, or contact Lynn Mann at 7739.

Saturday Mornings and Art

The Department of Art and Art Education of Frostburg State College has announced that it will offer a Saturday Art School program for boys and girls of public school age starting next month. The seven week program, which will run from October 11 to November 22, is designed to give public school students new or additional experiences in art.

The classes will be taught by undergraduate art education majors preparing for careers in teaching, under the supervision of experienced instructors. Elementary level classes grades 1-3 will be held from 11 a.m. to 12 noon, and grades 4-6 will be held from 10:30 to 12 noon. Instruction in these classes will concentrate on a wide range of concepts, materials and activities especially designed for the elementary school child. The program for grades 7-9 (9:30 a.m. to 12 noon) and 10-12 (9 a.m. to 12 noon) will stress the development of skills in drawing, painting, sculpture, ceramics and print-making.

Because of the necessity of limited enrollments, those interested are urged to apply by October 6. Notification of acceptance/non-acceptance will be forwarded as soon as enrollments are filled. A supply and materials fee of five dollars for each student must be filed with each application. Checks should be made payable to Frostburg State College. Completed applications and checks should be returned to Accounts Receivable, Business Office, Frostburg State College, Frostburg, Maryland 21532.

Any inquiries should be directed to Robert J. Parker, assistant professor of art and art education, 689-4320.

Delta Alpha Iota is chartered as a women's service sorority on campus. The goal of the organization is the pursuit of personal fulfillment through service activities within the bond of sisterhood. The sorority strongly encourages interest and involvement in the areas of culture, leadership, and scholarship along with special emphasis on service.

The sisters of DAI have participated in numerous activities for the college and community. These activities include visits to Sylvan Retreat and area hospitals, adopting an area

Common Cause to Meet

The Western Maryland organization of Common Cause, a national citizen's lobby, will be meeting on the FSC campus on Friday, October 3rd.

Founded in 1970 by John Gardner, who is perhaps best known as a former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, the lobby has now grown to a membership of 280,000. Using newsletters and telephone chains, the lobby mobilizes its members to contact congressmen on crucial reform issues. This technique combined with work by its full-time lobbyists has resulted in several successful campaigns. Common Cause has been generally credited with the passage of the Campaign Finance Reform Act of 1974, with the changing of the seniority system in the House of Representatives, and with obtaining public hearings for almost all congressional committees.

The meeting, to be held in Lane Center 202 at 8 p.m., will be addressed by Mr. Lee Perlman, Executive Director of Common Cause-Maryland, which now has a membership of 10,000.

All members of the college community are invited to attend. Students are particularly urged to do so in order to learn about this highly successful grass-roots political movement.

meaningful in the context of their present postgraduate living. Furthermore, the study showed that students who participated in hall government, the judicial system, etc., would be much more likely to be involved in avocational or community affairs in their present lives than those students who did not.

In addition, residence hall living seemed to contribute to the respondent's ability to get along with a wide range of people and to foster long lasting acquaintances. Also, the living experience was involved directly in causing some kind of personal change to the residents. The latter was strongly emphasized by the respondents. A high degree of satisfaction was also expressed with regard to the living experience in general.

As a final note, it is interesting that the more recent alumni, with few exceptions, indicated a stronger favorable influence from residence hall living than an older alumni group. The residence life program and policies, the study concluded, must therefore be maintaining and strengthening its effectiveness regarding the experience of residence hall life.

Reflection: Festival of Frostburg Day

by Carol Pfeffer

Although threatened by rain for most of the day, the Festival of Frostburg went as planned. There was a gathering of people of all ages--moms, dads, oldsters and youngsters. What may have seemed like a little rural bazaar was truly a celebration! It was a celebration of a mountain people, with a heritage all their own, who are beginning to take pride in their culture and differences. Although not a great city, and probably not known as well as the old turn-of-the-century Frostburg, this town of seven thousand three hundred twenty-seven people is growing not only in population but in awareness of the outside world.

With many set-up booths and gaily colored tables, the Festival offered a wide variety of crafts and purchasable items. Indeed, most of the crafts and artistic works that were displayed showed much talent and growth in the knowledge of what art is and can be. The ceramic pieces were especially well-executed and some of the hand-sewn, hand-crocheted items were exceptional. There has been a steady improvement in all the arts and crafts of this area. Slowly, but surely, the people are gaining new knowledge of what goes on outside of this secluded mountain community.

With live music to set the feet tapping, and hands clapping, the people were entertained by Mrs. Florence Taylor, Jim Gittings, Steve Baker, Keely West, The Mountain Top 4H Bicentennial Chorus and Don Gibson and The Gibsonaires, plus a fantastic group of gentlemen, who got together to play some "good, down-home blue grass" music. They were Red Ogden, Earl Eisler, Clayton Oster and Sloan Staggs. Although they don't play together professionally, these men played as though they had a couple of gold albums! The music was one of the better attractions of the Festival.

No one had many complaints. In fact, most people seemed to have enjoyed themselves. When asked what they thought of the Festival or how they liked it, these people responded in the following manner:

*The concession girls said there were too many bees but the people were nice.

* FSC Bookstore cashier, Mrs. Mary Brodt: "It's just great: I like the country music and purchasing things."

* Two freshmen, Carol Patten and Karen Waesche, said: "It's well organized. We like the open, friendly atmosphere and people!"

* Two seniors, Dave Sumney and Amy Sanford, said, "There's a good variety of things...it's a nice way to spend a Saturday." Dave added, "It's more organized than last year."

Some festivals can "come off" great when there's a large number of people. However, some crowds can't be as free or as personable as a lower number of people. By far, these smaller festivals can be terrific. By the happy smiles on the faces of the people and the laughter and screaming excitement of the children, one could tell that a good time was had by all.

Delta Phi Omega

The First 'Non-hazers'

by Debbi Maloid

Delta Phi Omega, a recently chartered men's social fraternity on campus, is proud to be the first "non-hazing" fraternity at FSC. In spite of recent claims by others, Delta Phi was originally chartered as just that--a fraternity in which individuals would not be subject to public (and private) scrutiny in order to become a brother. Loyalty to one's particular frat does not require physical and/or mental punishment as Delta Phi Omega has always believed.

Other fraternities on campus have recently decided to follow in Delta Phi's footsteps, and I heartily commend them for finally waking up to 1975--the year of non-hazing. Thanks also to Delta Phi Omega, for beginning it all. Delta Phi officers for 1975 are: Steve Beale (Pres.), Al Goldey (V.P.), Dave Sherman (Sec.), and Gerry Bush (Treas.). Information on pledging for Fall 1975 will soon be available.

at this moment, according to Professor Kershaw, that the Kennebec Valley came alive.

The proprietors first mapped out plans to establish a new township out of undeveloped and unprotected land. They named the new community Frankfort (now called Dresden), built their own fort for protection, and attracted displaced Huguenots from Germany who had arrived in the spring of 1751 to form the population base of the colony.

Next the land company skillfully conspired with the combination of representation on the General Court, individual friendships with Governor William Shirley and a timely series of rumored Indian attacks to bring about a decision to construct a new provincial fort (Fort Halifax) at the confluence of the Kennebec and Sebasticook Rivers. Their cost: construction of a storehouse (Fort Western) at the head of tide (Augusta).

A few months later they would reward the governor with a gift of land for attempting to strengthen the legal standing of their patent, an object of constant attack by the Pejepscot and Clark and Lake companies of Brunswick, Wiscasset, Woolwich and Georgetown.

The proprietors over a long period of time sought but failed to receive, either from the Massachusetts provincial government or the Crown, the clarification they desired for their title. Instead, they found it necessary to work out compromise agreements with the competing land groups to arrive at boundaries of their holdings.

In the end, the company membership split divisive factions both religious and political. Going their separate ways during the Revolution, the proprietors when they re-assembled in 1783 "could do little but preside over the dissolution of their shattered empire."

An important feature of the book is that it further substantiates several provocative historical theories, such as the conjecture that the burning of Governor Hutchinson's mansion during the Stamp Act crisis might have been manipulated by the Kennebec Proprietors for the sake of personal profit, instead of for the traditionally accepted political reasons.

Dr. Kershaw, also a member of the Frostburg State College Bicentennial Committee, is currently collaborating with three of his colleagues in the FSC History department on a history of Allegany County. Drs. David Dean, Harry Stegmaier and John Wiseman are working with Dr. Kershaw, who is writing the chapters on the colonial period.

Freshman Point of View

by Gary Bennett

What do you remember about your freshman year here at Frostburg? If you are a senior or a junior, probably not much. If you are a sophomore or a freshman, hopefully everything. It's a pretty remarkable experience, whether you remember it or not.

Let me refresh your memories: Here you are, suddenly thrust away from family and friends for the first time. You're in a strange town, among strange people. You know why you're here, but you don't know if anybody realizes it or if anybody cares.

That senior year of high school was something else, right? You were at the top and you enjoyed it. You never had to study very seriously...getting your grades was simple. Friends and social life were the biggest part of school. Well, you can forget about all that now. Social life is practically non-existent at this time; not a word is said as you pass by hundreds of people on your way to class. You know what I'm talking about. Have you gotten used to all the backpacks and briefcases?

You'd better. How about all the smoking in class? Did you ever imagine that smoking in a class would be the rule instead of the exception? You'd also better be ready to meet that person who can't get satisfied in one seat and tries them all--including yours. Getting grades isn't easy, is it? In four weeks you have more notes than you know what to do with. That first exam is just around the corner, and you're dreading it.

All of these things make for an irritating and alienating atmosphere. But you can take it; after all, it's not really so bad. You like the relaxed atmosphere, don't you? You like Lane Center, right? Sure you do. It's sort of an oasis in the middle of a desert. Words like Lounge, Gameroom, and Snack Bar never existed in high school.

But above all, what makes these first few weeks of the freshman year bearable is the 'no-hassle' treatment everyone enjoys. Thank you, upperclassmen, for not giving us a hassle. You must all remember your freshman year after all. We must all be in the same boat, I guess, so let's enjoy it.

Freshman, if the above paragraphs sound familiar to you, don't worry--you're normal!!

Bowie Bombs Bobcats

by Milholland

For the third straight time in as many games, the football Bobcats have walked off a field without a win. This time the villain, Bowie State, defeated FSC 37-0.

Trailing 13-0 seconds before the first half ended, Frostburg had the ball on the Bowie one-yard line; however, the Bobcats could not penetrate to score before time expired.

Bowie came out and again began to put points on their side of the scoreboard. Bulldog kicker Aubrey Waddy kicked a 41-yard field goal to up the score to 16-0.

Also in the third quarter, the Bowie quarterback threw a six-yard touchdown pass to make the score at 22-0. An extra point try was good and the score at the end of the third period, Bowie led, 23-0.

In the fourth quarter, the Bulldogs scored twice on runs by Milton Carr and Richard Kelly of 39 and 11 yards respectively. Besides scoring a touchdown, Carr also was the game's leading rusher as he gained 100 yards in 17 carries.

Brad Walters was the leading rusher for Frostburg with 26 yards gained in 10 carries. In addition, the Bobcats had but 50 yards gained passing, and a total of 33 yards rushing, amounting to 83 yards total offense.

Bowie, on the other hand, gained 63 yards by the pass and 161 yards rushing for 224 yards total offense.

The Bobcats to date have scored but 7 points compared to the 84 which their opponents have scored. Although they are having a disappointing year thus far, the enthusiasm expressed by the fans in the stands is not lacking, therefore giving the football team that all-important backing which they so desperately need.

Frostburg State Athletic Director, Dr. Harold J. Cordts attended an international conference of the International Council of Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Rotterdam, The Netherlands, on August 18-22. Dr. Cordts was one of twelve U.S. delegates at the conference, at which more than 200 representatives from 30 nations were present. The ICHPER Conference is held annually for an international exchange of ideas, including teaching procedures, curriculum development and research activities.

Cordts presented a paper, "Styles in Exchange Programs" to the conference, emphasizing student and faculty exchange programs.

FSC has, in the past, exchanged students and faculty members with St. Mary's College of the University of London.

While in Europe, Dr. Cordts also met with Czechoslovak basketball officials in Prague to discuss future program possibilities with Frostburg State College.

FSC Physical Education instructor Barbara Surgent recently returned from a two-week visit to the International Federation of Women's Hockey Associations (IFWHA) first World Cup in Women's Field Hockey championships in Edinburgh, Scotland. The two week double elimination tournament, in which 22 nations participated, was won by England when they defeated Wales, 5-4, in the title game. The U.S. squad, 11th seeded, finished tenth.

Mrs. Surgent attended IFWHA games and meetings during her stay and came back with a better knowledge of field hockey. "In the U.S., we have traditionally taught a hockey-systems approach to field hockey. But international trends today are leaning toward the soccer-systems approach, where offensive and defensive strategies are more similar to those employed in soccer than in hockey."

Coach Surgent has begun to implement these strategies with the FSC women's 11 game schedule which opened September 26th against visiting Fairmont State College.

Cats Drop Home Opener

Frostburg's varsity soccer team brought their season home Wednesday, September 24th, to face West Virginia Wesleyan. The team record of FSC moved to 1-2 as WVW handed the Bobcats a 4-1 loss.

During the first half of play, about eighty rain-soaked Frostburg fans saw the 'Cats dominate totally, taking ten on-goal shots compared to three by WVW. And although only one of the ten shots resulted in a goal, it seemed that the 'Cats were in complete control.

After ten minutes of second half action, the Bobcats began to appear sluggish. It was then that Wesleyan penetrated the Frostburg defense for the first time, scoring the tying goal. Moments later, the Wesleyan club scored again with a low shot to the right side from about 18 yards away. Two more WVW goals were scored before the end of the half, making their final margin of victory over the local favorites 4-1.

At this point in the season, the Bobcats are in a position similar to that of the same time last year; they seem traditionally unable to put together two halves of fundamentally sound soccer. This year's team, even more than last season's, has enormous potential, but seems far too erratic to win consistently against their 1975 competition.

The Bobcats' next home game is against Towson State College, Saturday, October 4th.
