COUNTY AND CITY WILL DIVIDE EXPENSE.

Iron Bridge To Be Built Across The Humphreys Mill Dam And Street
To Be Widened To About 40 Feet—Decided Friday.

That the roadway across the Humphreys mill dam will be fixed and fixed at once is now an assured fact. The committees appointed by the City Council and the County Commissioners met yesterday morning in the office of City Solicitor E. Stanley Toadvin and after considerable discussion decided to erect at once an iron bridge across the opening. There was some talk of building a stone or cement culvert but this idea was laid aside because the building of a culvert would make it practically impossible to erect a dam and fill the pond with water later if it were so desired either by property owners or the city authorities. With an open bridge, however, the passage way to South Salisbury will be open to the public, and if it is ever the desire of the property owners to fill the pond it will be much easier than if a culvert were built now.

It was also decided at the meeting yesterday to widen the roadway across the dam to about 40 feet and the work of filling in is to be started at once.
Engineer Clark was also instructed to prepare plans and specifications of the bridge so that bids may be advertised for promptly. It was stated that no time would be lost and that the repairs would be completed as quickly as possible. The cost of the bridge and the repairs is to be borne equally by the County Commissioners and the City Council. The meeting yesterday was the result of the conference at the meeting of the City Council Monday night when the Commissioners and the City Council reached the decision to each pay one-half of the expenses of the repairs.

It has now been over three months since the bridge across Humphreys mill dam was swept away when the dam which held that body of water gave away. During that time the street has been closed to vehicles.

Must Have The Best.

Not satisfied with having the prettiest store front in Salisbury Mr. Lacy Thoroughgood is having the interior of his lower Main Street store entirely remodeled. New oak shelving to match the store front is being installed to replace the old white fixtures.
This shelving extends from the floor to the ceiling. A thirty two foot oak hat case will also be installed, and with these changes the entire interior fixtures will be hard wood, thus giving Thoroughgood one of the handsomest stores in this State. The shelving and hat cases are being made by Salisbury Wood-Working Company.

School Children To Report.

County Superintendent Holloway, of the public schools, hereby gives notice that all school children in the city of Salisbury are expected to report next Monday, September 6th, at the same building and in the same room where they attended school last term. It is absolutely necessary that this be done so that the number of students may be ascertained in order that the children may be properly assigned to their respective buildings. The public schools of Salisbury will not be opened for instruction until the 20th of September.

A Card To The Public.

The undersigned, whose names have been used in connection with the Colored Fair to be held in Salisbury next week, September 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th, desire to announce to the public that they are in no way connected with it nor responsible for it; that their names were used without their authorization and entirely without their knowledge and consent.

Prohibition Convention.

The Prohibition Convention for Wi-comico county will be held in the Court House at Salisbury next Friday, September 10th, at 10.30 o'clock. The members of the Prohibition party contemplate placing a full ticket in the field and will make a hard fight during the campaign. Mr. Edwin Higgins, of Baltimore, will attend the convention here.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS PLEASE VOTERS OF WICOMICO COUNTY.

Dr. William G. Smith The Standard Bearer
For Wicomico—Candidates Carefully Selected And Will Make A Splendid Showing.

The adjourned meeting of the Republican Convention for Wicomico county was held at the Court House, in this city, Tuesday, and a full ticket to be voted on next November was nominated. After an enthusiastic address by Chairman Levin A. Parsons and the unanimous adoption of a set of most excellent resolutions, the following well-known Republicans were placed in nomination for the different offices to be filled at the approaching election:

For Clerk of the Circuit Court, Dr.
William G. Smith, of Salisbury.

For Register of Wills, Mr. Alan F.
Benjamin, of Salisbury.

For House of Delegates, Messrs.
Ernest W. Townsend, of Camden; George W. Truitt, of Willards; and Harry I. Larmore, of Tyaskin.

For County Commissioners, Messrs.
John T. Wilson, of Barren Creek; W.
S. Disharoon, of Quantico, and Granville A. Parsons, Pittsburg district.

For Sheriff, Mr. Joseph P. Cooper, of Sharptown.

For Surveyor, M. Thomas W. English, of Barren Creek.

There was no wrangling, no arguing, and no opposition to the candidates as they were placed in nomination and all nominations were made by acclamation. The convention was harmonious from start to finish.

In his remarks before placing the name of Dr. Smith in nomination for the office of Clerk of the Court, Mr.
Walter B. Miller called attention to the fact that the present incumbent, who is a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket, has been in the office the greater part of his life and that he believed that the time was at hand when the people of Wicomico should take steps to bring about rotation in office. He also called attention to the existing sentiment against the present incumbent because of his long connection with the office for which he is again a candidate.

The resolutions contain a slap at Mr. William M. Cooper, who is now president of the Board of County Commissioners and a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket. It is claimed by a large number of people throughout the county that road improvements are being made only in sections of the county where the present Commissioners will be benefitted.
There is a plank in the Republican

"The Girl Of The Sunny South."

That the public will appreciate a clean, wholesome and interesting play, devoid of "blood and thunder" that are considered essential to a successful play, is amply exemplified in the manner in which Travers Vale's latest successful romance, "The Girl of the Sunny South," is being received. As sweet as magnolia blossoms and as pure as snowy cotton is the heart of the South. At Ulman's Opera House, on Monday, September 6th.

There are many strong stirring dramatic climaxes cleverly woven in this welcome production, and the scenic investiture will be a revelation to many of the theatre goers.

City Council Proceedings.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held Monday evening, September 20th, to hear objections, if any, from the property owners as to the ratification of the report of the commission appointed to open a new street to be known as Light street, extending from Newton street to Maryland avenue. The report of the commission was accepted by the Council at its meeting Monday night.

An ordinance was passed at the meeting of the City Council Monday night regulating the approach to and driving over the bridges in this city.
This ordinance provides that all teams and automobiles must keep to the right on approaching and crossing the bridges, and makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than $1.00 nor more than $10.00 for violations of the provisions of the ordinance.

platform for Wicomico county which provides that all sections of the county shall be benefitted by the expenditures which are made for the improvement of the public highways.

The resolutions follow:

"We, the representatives of the Republican party of Wicomico county, Maryland, in convention assembled, do hereby reaffirm our allegiance to the national platform of the Republican party adopted in 1908 and the Maryland State platform recently adopted in Baltimore.

Believing that one of the most important local issues is the building and maintenance of a system of modern highways, we declare ourselves in favor of good roads and believe that the expenditure should be properly proportioned throughout the county, so that all sections shall have the benefit of the expenditures which are made, and that one section of the county shall not receive all public improvement at the expense of less favored sections whose inhabitants are compelled to pay their share of the public taxes without receiving any benefit from the county administration.

We believe in the firmly established American doctrine of rotation in office and do not believe that any man or set of men should control indefinitely the affairs of the county or any of its public offices.

We record our unalterable opposition to the proposed Straus Amendment as a violation to the principles of American government and discrimination against the rights of certain of its citizens. It is un-American and vicious in principle and we respectfully invite the co-operation of all of the citizens, irrespective of party affiliations, in securing a majority against it in Wicomico county.

We favor a liberal and progressive policy in dealing with the public affairs of the county and pledge the nominees of this convention, if elected, to carry out the promises hereby made.

Taken as a whole the ticket is considered to be one of the best ever placed in nomination by the Republicans of Wicomico county. Each candidate is well-known throughout the county and each man is held in high esteem by both Democrats and Republicans in the community in which he lives.

Miss Goslee's Appeal Sustained.

The appeal of Miss Pauline Goslee, who had been dismissed by the Board of School Trustees of Delmar District, No. 3, was heard at a special meeting of the School Board last Friday. Miss Goslee claimed that she had never heard any report from the patrons of the school to the effect that her services were not in every way satisfactory and refused to send in her resignation when asked to do so by the trustees shortly after the close of the recent school term. She was then dismissed by the trustees. There being no specific charges stated in the letter of dismissal, the board sustained the appeal. Shortly afterward, however, Miss Goslee tendered her resignation as it is expected she will teach in Caroline county during the next school term. Miss Goslee was represented at the hearing Friday by her father, F.
Grant Goslee, Esq., as counsel.

Will Erect Garage.

Mr. J. Waller Williams, who has met with great success this year in the automobile business has purchased this week from John T. Ellis & Son a lot on Camden street facing Dock street and will erect a garage on the site. Automobile appliances of all kinds will be kept in stock. A gasoline tank will be installed on the curb for the convenience of supplying automobiles. An air pump will also be installed so that owners may have their tires inflated without inconvenience.
Mr. Williams this week closed a contract with the Maxwell Bros. Company for twenty of the well-known Maxwell cars to be delivered at the rate of two each month. The first delivery will be made about the middle of September.

SHOT CRAPS SUNDAY. PAID FINE MONDAY.

Fourteen White Boys Caught in The Act Of Rolling The Dice By Officer
Disharoon—Two Of The Gang Take French Leave.

It has always been thought that the game of "craps" was a gambling game indulged in only by negroes, but that white people occasionally seek their fortunes by rolling the bones was evidenced Sunday afternoon when Chief of Police Disharoon roped in a gang of fourteen white boys who were shooting the dice on the river bank just below Stratton's cannery house.

The boys were so intent on making a pass that they did not notice the officer of the law until he was within a few feet of them. But when they did finally see him there was a general scramble for safety. Chief Disharoon had been watching them, unnoticed, for some time, however, and had secured the name of each member of the gang. The result was that writs were immediately issued and the following were placed under arrest: Tommie Kelley, Ollie Bailey, Ernest Dore, Raymond Adams, John Price, Marion Adkins, Clifford Adkins, Charlie Adkins, Austin Moore, James Harris, Robert Revell and George Disharoon.
Two of the gang of young gamblers were missing the next morning and it was learned later that they had taken French leave and gone to Norfolk.
They were Henry Porter and Archie Richardson.

As fast as the boys could be arranged before Justice of the Peace W. A.
Trader they plead guilty and paid the fine and costs which amounted in each case to $3.75.

A Correction.

Through a mistake it was announced in your paper last week that the ### Negro Wife Beater.

William Sturges, a colored resident of Main street, extended, was placed under arrest Wednesday night for wife beating. He was given a hearing Wednesday evening before Justice Trader and was fined $5.00 which he paid rather than go to jail.

—All Porch Rockers, Hammocks, Go-Carts and Lawn Furniture are going at cost at Ulman's.

—The colored residents of Salisbury have completed arrangements for a Fair to be held at Salisbury Sept. 6, 7, 8 and 9, commencing on Labor Day. There will be merry-go-rounds, Punch and Judy shows, and The Davis Howe Company in their plantation show. The object of the Fair is to exhibit the resources and products of this section of the State which are handled by the colored people. The Fair will be held at Lakeside Park on Lake street above the B. & C.
& A. Railroad. The gates open at 2 o'- clock and close at 11 o'clock. A general admission of 10 cents will be charged.

—At Monday's meeting of the School Board requests came from numerous patrons of the county schools that the schools be not opened until early in October, because the children in many instances will be needed in farm work until that time. It was decided by the Board in view of the fact that the attendance in many rural schools would be small—not to open the following schools until October 4: Melson, Royal Oak, Deep Branch, Gordy's, Hammond, Wango, Powell's, Oakland, Water View and Quakelon.

SAND CLOSES INLET.

Defects Allow Sand To Wash In And Current Insufficient To Carry It Back.

That immediate steps will be taken to remedy defects in Sinepuxent inlet, connecting Sinepuxent bay with the ocean just below Ocean City, which is rapidly being closed up by sand washes, was announced by Orlando C. Harrison, president of the Sinepuxent Salt Water Inlet Company. Mr. Harrison said that while considerable difficulty has been experienced in keeping the inlet from becoming closed up the project has already proved itself of so much value to the oystermen and fishermen along Sinepuxent bay that any suggestion to abandon the enterprise would undoubtedly be met with a storm of protest.

The Sinepuxent inlet, or channel, was constructed for the purpose of allowing the salt waters of the ocean to flow into the comparatively fresh water of the Sinepuxent bay, thereby making the bay a salt water body. That it has performed and is performing that function Mr. Harrison declared, although he admitted that the inlet has been a failure so far as navigation is concerned.

"The inlet has not entirely closed up," said Mr. Harrison, "although it can no longer be termed a navigable channel, and the sand was washed in and caused an obstruction on the bay side of the inlet. The whole trouble arises over the fact that the dyking of jetties was not tight and that the Government demanded that a 50-foot space be left clear. The jetties did not accomplish what was desired, consequently, there was not a sufficient current to carry back the sand forced in by the sea. The Company has asked the Government to grant a permit to close the 50-foot gap, and as soon as this is done work will begin at once in opening up the channel."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

"The Girl Of The Sunny South."

Like a fresh breath from the Cotton Fields is "The Girl of the Sunny South," the glorious southern romance and which is being presented this season with a cast of superior merit. It is a play that has been accepted as a drama of the highest standard, because of the intense interest which characterizes it from curtain raise to curtain fall.

The many characters in the play are worthy of Dickens that unmitigated creator of types, and the successful interpretation of the various roles demands as a requisite ability to deftly make a change from the deeply earnest impetuous hot blooded southerner to the farcical vein almost instantly. This quality the members of the company bring to the impersonation of the various characters and invest them with a note of distinction softened and mellowed by true Southern hospitality. It is a triumph of character acting.

The company includes a number of widely known players of ability, and the play is mounted with the greatest of care to insure an absolutely perfect performance here on next Monday at Utman's Opera House. Tickets now on sale at box office. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Topic for Tomorrow, "Paul's Third Missionary Journey Farewells." Discussed By Local Writer.

When order had been restored, following the riot at Ephesus, which was recorded in the lesson of August 22, Paul left Ephesus to visit Macedonia and Greece, as far as Corinth. He had gathered some faithful companions about him and they accompanied him on his trip around the sea and back again, and finally to Jerusalem.

Upon his return from Macedonia around the coast of Asia he tarried at Troas seven days and taught. A very notable incident occurred here. As Paul preached late in the night, a young man, seated in the window of the upper chamber, having fallen asleep fell to the ground and was supposed to be dead, killed by the fall. But Paul brought him to life again, much to the joy and encouragement of the people.

Paul had many experiences during his visits to these churches, glimpses of which we may observe in reading some of his epistles, but a full record is not given to us. Only the important incidents and teachings for our guidance are given.

Passing down the coast, Paul was not desirous of visiting Ephesus, but the vessel being detained at Miletus for some (four) days he sent to Ephesus and called the elders or rulers of the church to him; and to them delivered our lesson. It is very much like a letter and could be repeated to the church at Ephesus. Luke, the writer of the Acts, was present here and bears witness to the statement of Paul as to his labors at Ephesus.

Here we get a glimpse of what Paul's real work was, and his feelings while he was doing it. He, also, has a premonition of what is in store for him in the future. I fear that we can little appreciate, in this day, just what Paul felt at Ephesus. It had been a great work preaching in Asia, teaching these Gentiles the new gospel, and trying to persuade the Jews that in the fullness of time they should now receive salvation through repentance and faith in Christ, and he felt that he had done his full duty. He was free of any man's word, and he charges the rulers and elders to be mindful and teach the full, complete doctrine, shirking nothing. And it is the duty of pastors and teachers to do the same to-day. Also, his council concerning false teachers is most applicable among ourselves. We are to guard the principles of the gospel zealously. Paul repeatedly declares that he has taught the whole doctrine, withholding nothing.

It is in the word of God's grace that we find the plain doctrine. No new philosophy is needed—just God's plain words of grace, through His inspired writers. Paul commended these elders to the study and teaching of the word of grace, saying that it would build them up. A double reward is here intimated. First, that the more wide-awake they are, and the more study and practice they have, then the better able to work, the more good accomplished, and the more honor won. The second reward is the inheritance of eternal life, and a place among the sanctified, the title fully established, more usefulness, purer, holier, nearer to God. It is not earning, but entering into, putting our minds and hearts into the condition to accept light, until we are temples for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. It is both a present and a future joy.

We are connected to support the weak. Our blessings are most enjoyable because they are abundant and free, and can be extended to others and the enjoyment thus be multiplied. Christ says, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Has there been joy in receiving this gospel, and all its benefits? Then get more joy by passing it on—multiply the joys greatly. Christianity is spreading and gaining. The per cent. of gain to christianity far exceeds the gain in population, then the world is better and happiness is on the increase.

Where is the power by which we can accomplish so much? In Christ. In the golden text, Paul says, "I can do all things through Christ, which strengtheneth me." It was hard to get the people to accept this Christ. He did not come in a way that appealed to their vanity. The proofs of His Messiahship were not such as appealed to worldlings, but we can behold the application of salvation, and in these lessons we want to think of the world as it was then, and its continued history, of its condition today, of the changes wrought and of the success of mankind and God's relation to it, by and through Christ. The great study of man is that of God and man. It is only in this direction that man grows and expands. In any other way he becomes less. We learn of God by the lives of those who have been close to Him, and by His revelation through them, and prove the truth of His being by living and practicing the precepts set forth there and by enjoying the experience of the blessedness derived therefrom. We are studying one of the greatest lives lived before God in the new dispensation, and there is not an unimportant moment of study in it. It is light, the light of man. C. B.

An acetylene gas plant has been installed in St. Andrew's Church, Princess Anne, during the last few weeks. Services will be resumed in the church on Sunday, September 5th.

Any skin itching is a temper-tester. The more you scratch the worse it itches. Doan's Ointment cures piles, eczema—any skin itching. At all drug stores.

There were 138,818 barrels of Irish potatoes shipped from Cape Charles in June and 143,265 in July, making a total of 282,083. These were all shipped by the N. Y. P. & N. Railroad.

Dyspepsia is our national ailment. Burdock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

Millions of crabs are moving up the Delaware river from the sea. This is due to the protracted drought, which has reduced the downward strength of the current in the river and caused the saline waters of the Atlantic to reach the harbor. For the first time in many years the Delaware river is brackish as far as Gloucester, the result of which is that mullet, sea bass and porpoises may be seen every day above Chester.

"I have been somewhat coactive, but Doan's Regulents gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George B. Kruse, 305 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

The Tri-County Institute, composed of the teachers of Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties, held its organization meeting at Ocean City Monday afternoon of last week. Few absentees were noted. The teachers of each county assembled in their respective rooms and information was given bearing upon the general work of the Institute and upon the action each teacher was expected to attend. The subjects embraced have already been published in our columns with other information in regard to the Institute work. The sessions closed Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Dr. Abernethy, the great English physician, said, "Watch your kidneys. When they are affected, life is in danger." Foley's Kidney Remedy makes healthful kidneys, corrects urinary irregularities, and tones up the whole system. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

The smallest woman on the Eastern Shore and, it is believed, in the entire State, is Miss Ruby Somers of Rock Hall, Md., who can boast of being but 3 feet 4 inches in height and tipping the beam at only 60 pounds. Miss Somers was born at Oriole, Somerset county, August 15th, 1885, and therefore was 24 years old a short time ago. With her parents she removed to Kent county "when quite small" to use her own words, and her diminutive size has made her a great favorite with every one who knows her. Intellectually Miss Somers is well able to hold her own with any of her larger Kent county sisters, and she can converse in length upon most any subject of national or local import. She is the youngest of a family of four children. Captain John Davis Somers, her father, is a man of towering height, being over 6 feet tall; her mother is a large woman and the three other children also are of a more than ordinary size.

Many people delude themselves by saying "It will wear away," when they notice symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble. This is a mistake. Take Foley's Kidney Pills, and stop the drain on the vitality. They cure backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, and make every trace of pain, weakness, and urinary trouble disappear. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

Death Of Aged Resident.

Mr. William Moore, one of Salisbury's aged residents, died suddenly Saturday. Mr. Moore was one of the inmates of the Home for the Aged and on Saturday morning walked out to Mr. Joshua Dryden's, a few miles from town, to spend the day. The weather was excessively warm Saturday and on returning home Mr. Moore was suddenly taken ill while passing the home of Mrs. Holloway near town. He was immediately carried into the house and given medical attention by Miss Bertha Holloway, a trained nurse, but soon passed away. He leaves two children—Mrs. Bafford, widow of late Edward Bafford of Baltimore, and Charles Moore of the same city. Mr. Moore was a faithful member of the Division Street Baptist Church. His funeral took place Sunday afternoon from the Home for the Aged, services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Hewitt. Interment was in Parsons Cemetery.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS.

Are You Sure Your Kidneys Are Well?

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive.

Don't dally with "uric acid solvents." You might go on till doomsday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Salisbury testimony to prove it.

Mrs. William E. Wells, 410 Martin street, Salisbury, Md., says: "For almost six months I was in poor health and my housework was a burden. Rheumatic pains between my shoulders caused me much suffering and my head ached nearly all the time. I was also subject to dizzy spells and I felt all out of sorts. Before I had finished one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at White & Leonard's drug store, I was entirely relieved, and I have been in good health since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Roll Call After the Fourth.

"Reginald Grant!" the principal read. "Here!" was the answer, loud and clear. Reginald Grant had lost an ear. But stood in the line with bandaged head.

"Andrew Blakes!" Then a silence fell. Many an eye had watched him fall. Clinging fast to a rocket's tail. Had he alighted? None could tell.

There they stood in the morning sun. Lads who answered the call by turns. Marked with poultices, scars and burns. Another glorious Fourth was done.

A cottage and barn were blackened coals. The shreds of crackers were every where. An odor of brimstone filled the air. And coats and trousers were full of holes.

"Herbert Peters!" a voice said low. "Herbert Peters was standing near. When the cannon burst, and the doctors fear. He won't be up for a month or so."

Harold Judd and his brother Tom. Found their places with halting tread. William Cabot was home in bed. Badly scorched by a sudden bomb.

Endroit Milliken lacked a thumb. A pistol had taken him by surprise. Sparks from a pinwheel had scarred the eyes. Or Anthony Collins. He could not come.

Look at the record! Year by year. Powder and folly take their toll. Adding names to a mournful roll. 'Tis a glorious Fourth, but it costs us dear! —Life

A Narrow Escape.

Edgar N. Baylis, a merchant of Robinsonville, Del., wrote: "About two years ago I was thin and sick, and coughed all the time and if I did not have consumption, it was near to it. I commenced using Foley's Honey and Tar, and it stopped my cough, and I am now entirely well, and have gained twenty-eight pounds, all due to the good results from taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

A Hint and a Hump.

A woman there was, and she wrote for the press, as you or I might do. She told how to cut and sew a dress and how to cook many a savory mess, but she never had done it herself, I guess, but none of her readers knew. She told how to comb and dress the hair and how out of a barrel to make a chair—"twould adorn any parlor and give it an air—we thought the tale was true. Oh, the days we spent and the nights we spent, with hammer and saw and tack, in making a chair in which no one would sit, in which no one could possibly sit, without a creak in the back.—Economic Housewife.

A Legal Query.

Tired of the long winded oratory of the attorney for the defense, the judge interrupted him. "Mr. Sharke," he said, "may I ask you a question?" "Certainly, your honor. What is it?"

"Language," said the judge, "we are told, is given to conceal thought or words to that effect. Inasmuch as you don't seem to have any thought to conceal, I would like to know why you are talking?"

Not Misfits.

Mrs. Crimmonbeak—It seems strange to me, if matches are made in heaven, that there should be so many unhappy marriages. Mr. Crimmonbeak—Oh, you forget it, it is the matches that are made there, not the misfits.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Fall.

"Satan wuz once a angel in heaven, wuzn't he?" "Yes, but, like de rest of us, he des couldn't stand prosperity." — Atlanta Constitution.

Foley's Kidney Pills cures headache, rheumatism, kidney, bladder and urinary trouble. Do not risk having Bright's disease or diabetes. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

I wish to announce to the public that I am prepared to take care of the dead and conduct funerals with the latest and most up-to-date equipment, which I will be glad at all times to render my services; and my charges shall be the lowest.

Salisbury Building & Loan and Banking
ASSOCIATION

The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $154,500.00, makes loans, secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 30c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1897.

The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to set apart $25,000.00 of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes, receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. ## Round About Dorking.

The neighborhood of Dorking, where George Meredith lived, has many literary associations independent of its connection with that famous novelist. It was at Burford Bridge, near Dorking, that Keats completed "Endymion" in November, 1817; close by, at the Rectory, was born Father Malthus, the popular economist, and at West Humble Frances Bury, after her marriage with General d'Arby, built Camilla cottage with profits of her novel of that name and settled down. Sheridan resided at Polestead and John Stuart Mill at Mickleham, while other illustrious residents in the locality in earlier times were John Evelyn and Daniel Defoe. To most people, however, the chief literary association of Dorking is with Dickens, for was it not at the Marguls of Granby's, variously identified with the White Hart and the Old King's Head, that Mr. Weller, Sr., made the fatal blunder of proposing to a "vilder"—Westminster Gazette.

Tonsorial Triumph.
"What was the best job you ever did?" inquired the first barber.
"I once shaved a man," replied the second ditto.
"Well," then I persuaded him to have a hair cut, singe, shampoo, face massage, sea foam, electric buzz, tar spray and finally a tonic rub."

"What then?"
"By that time," concluded barber No. 2, "he needed another shave."—London Answers.

Live Spiders Feed For Young Wasps.
The young of some wasps can live only on live spiders, and the mother wasp therefore renders the spider powerless by her sting, after which it can live a month, and then deposits it in the cocoon where she has laid her egg. On hatching out the wasp grubs feed on the bodies of the living spiders. Another wasp deposits her egg in the body of the spider, which is then buried alive and is fed upon by the wasp grub.—London Standard.

On the Fence.
"That woman won't take either side of the social dispute until she is reasonably sure which one is going to win. She's a cat!"
"Ah, then that accounts for her being on the fence!"—Baltimore American.

The Drawback.
"Elsie says there was only one drawback to her wedding."
"What was that?"
"She says her father looked too cheerful when he gave her away."

His Provisions.
Bootmaker to arctic explorer just returned:—How did you like those boots I made for you, sir? Arctic Explorer:—Excellent! Best I ever tasted.—London Tatler.

DRY FARMING DEBATE

Features of Congress to Be Held at Billings, Mont.

EXPOSITION FOR VISITORS.

Delegates Will Confer on Methods by Which Arid Land Can Be Profitably Utilized—Plan to Make the Meeting International in Scope.

The official call for the fourth annual session of the dry farming congress to be held at Billings, Mont., Oct. 24, 27 and 28 next is addressed to the president of the United States, diplomatic representatives of foreign nations, ministers and secretaries of agriculture of all countries, governors of states, presidents of agricultural colleges, state land boards, state engineers, state boards of agriculture, hundreds of national, state and county agricultural associations or grange lodges, live stock associations, horticultural societies, county commissioners, mayors of cities, presidents of towns, all commercial bodies, railroad and immigration companies and members of the dry farming congress. In addition to these, the call is sent to about 30,000 individual farmers and others interested in agriculture in the west.

What the Congress is Called For.
The call outlines the objects of the congress as follows:

To discuss and compare methods by which the great area of arid land can be profitably utilized under thorough tillage, by which the natural rainfall can be conserved.

To encourage the use of methods by which in districts where rainfall is slight or irrigation water is limited the actual productive acreage can be increased.

To create closer co-operation between the government and state experts in charge of dry farming experimental work and the actual farmers of the arid districts.

To enlarge the plans for carrying on a great educational propaganda by which eventually the arid districts of the entire world can be populated by prosperous and contented agriculturists.

To encourage legislation looking to increased federal and state appropriations for the establishment of more experimental stations, the employment of more field experts and the actual co-operation of all these stations in fixing and maintaining a certain recognized standard of methods for obtaining results from the operation of farms in the arid districts.

To study methods and results of dry farming operations in the various western states and in foreign countries which are represented in the congress.

To bring to the attention of active farmers the various theories and working plans whereby each farmer may assist in the general commercial, social and political uplift of the western states.

"This will be strictly an agricultural and development congress," states the call. "All irrelevant matter will be eliminated. There will be technical, practical farming, horticultural, live stock and development sections, and it is expected that the world's best experimental authorities and actual commercial farmers will be present. The program will give ample time for open discussions, and one session will be devoted to talks by farmers. A notable feature will be governors' day, when the chief executives of many western states will address the congress. The personal representatives of many foreign nations will participate in the program."

Exposition of Dry Farming.
In connection with the congress will be held the second international dry farming exposition, Oct. 25-29. The exposition committee, with members in all western states and foreign countries represented in the congress, has begun elaborate preparation for assembling exhibits of dry farmed products representing the arid districts of the world. The call invites the appointment of twenty delegates by each governor of a state, territory or province, ten delegates by mayors of cities and county commissioners, five delegates by agricultural organizations, commercial, forestry, horticultural and national or state live stock associations, two delegates by local live stock associations, grange lodges or farmers' associations, chambers of commerce, boards of trade or other commercial bodies. Railroad companies are entitled to four delegates. Chief executives of nations, ministers or secretaries of agriculture, United States senators or congressmen, agricultural college or experiment station officers or faculties and various public officials engaged in or whose duties bring them in contact with agricultural work by virtue of their position are entitled to seats in the congress.

The call announces elaborate preparations at Billings for the entertainment of delegates and visitors during the congress and the organization of a general information bureau. The secretary of the congress is John T. Burns, Billings, Mont.

Reports received at the headquarters of the dry farming congress indicate that about 5,000 homestead entries have been filed in Montana during the first six months of 1909. This means an increase in the population of the state of considerably more than 5,000 persons. Nearly 1,000,000 acres of the public domain were appropriated in all the entries and selections made, $87,000 acres being included in the homestead entries. Reports have been received from the land offices at Glasgow, Helena, Great Falls, Lewiston and Miles City. The volume of business done at the Billings, Mont., Knispel and Missoula land offices has not been reported, but is known to have been heavy and would largely increase the total of public land disposed of.

Special Effort to Interest Settlers.
By far the larger proportion of the homestead entries are in the so-called dry farming sections of the state. At Glasgow 108,545 acres, at Great Falls 387,567 acres, at Lewistown 201,672 acres, at Miles City 213,100 acres and at Helena 45,723 acres were taken up. The bulk of these lands is now in the hands of settlers who come within the scope of the educational influence of the dry farming congress, because the development of these lands can be made certain only by the application of the so-called dry farming principles. In the preparations for the coming congress at Billings the Montana board of control is making a special effort to interest these settlers in the work of the congress and will endeavor to induce as many of them as possible to attend the congress and the international dry farm exposition, which will be held in connection therewith at Billings next October. At this congress the settlers will be able to obtain practical instruction from the experience of actual farmers who have faced the same problems that will confront these new citizens of Montana, many of which have been scientifically solved by the discovery of methods of cultivation and crop selection which have made dry farming the greatest feature of the present day in the development of the west.

F. F. Irvine, member of the Montana board of control of the dry farming congress and one of the successful dry land farmers of Caldwell, Mont., is now harvesting forty acres of wheat, which he estimates will yield about thirty bushels an acre. This grain was planted in September on sod ground that had been plowed in May and June. Mr. Irvine says the field has been attracting attention and people have been coming in from miles around to see for themselves what can be accomplished by conscientious application of dry farming principles.

PLEA FOR CROSS OF RACES.
Sociologist Believes That Indian Blood Would Improve American.

"I believe that a little of the blood of the American Indian mingled with that of our own race would produce a strain of manhood which would be hard to equal."

So declared Professor William I. Thomas of the department of sociology and anthropology of the University of Chicago in a lecture at Chicago the other day. The subject of his talk was "Race Prejudice."

"As people travel and become better acquainted with conditions as they exist," the speaker continued, "the prejudice against the races will gradually disappear and intermarrying will be common. The prejudice of the future, then, will not be bound up with the tint of the skin, but with the degree of intellectual development and occupation."

"In recent years a number of marriages have been recorded between the Japanese and the Americans. I see no reason why this should not go on, and I do not believe the result would be harmful to our standard of life. The Japanese have shown themselves to be our equals in many ways, and a little mixture of their blood with that of our countrymen would be a good idea. I believe, however, that the talk of cross between the negro race and the American would be too violent and that it would not meet with success."

RECEPTION FOR A MONKEY.
Mrs. Zeggio Introduced to Lenox Pet That Sleeps in Gold Cage.

Camellion Zeggio, lady in waiting in the court of Queen Margherita of Italy, gave a reception at the Aspinwall, in Lenox, Mass., the other evening in honor of her marmoset monkey. Society was out in force to meet the diminutive creature, which rested lightly on the arms of its mistress. The monkey, which was bought in South Africa for $1,000, sleeps in a gold cage which cost $5,000.

The marmoset acquitted himself creditably, looking grave when he should be chattering affably at the attempted pleasantness of the guests. The affair was such a decided success that it is understood that an effort will be made to prevail upon Mrs. Zeggio to accept an invitation to a reception in Newport in honor of the monkey which has mingled with royalty.

Noncommittal.

"A capable salesman could tell by the buyer's appearance," she answered haughtily.—Cleveland Leader.

The Republican Ticket.

The Republican ticket nominated on Tuesday last by the Republican party is in general a most excellent one, and composed of representative men throughout. In many respects it is one of the best ever presented to the voters of Wicomico, and appeals not only to the party which nominated it, but to that strong independent element which has been manifesting itself with increasing power in the last few years in this County. For sometime the Democratic leaders who have been in control of the destinies of the party have keenly realized the great amount of antagonism there was to their leadership which has seriously threatened on several occasions the defeat of at least a portion of the ticket, and only the most vigorous and determined struggles for control have been able to secure for them victory at the polls. Even with the perfect organization which they have in Wicomico, with the district leaders spurred to the highest activity by promises of future political plums, they have been securing only a small majority from time to time, and they know that that majority is threatened this Fall with utter extinction and in its place a Republican majority for at least a part of the ticket. Even as far back as 1897 when Dr. W. G. Smith formerly ran for the same position for which he is now nominated he was only defeated by 388 votes, by Mr. James T. Truitt and those who understand the situation at all know that Mr. Truitt was much stronger at that time with the people than Mr. Toadvine is now, so it can be clearly seen why so much apprehension is being felt in Democratic circles at this time. There is no probability that Dr. Smith will come off the ticket—such reports are merely the heartfelt breathings of the Democratic organization as defeat stares them in the face for the head of their ticket.

What is true of the nomination for Clerk of the Circuit Court is largely true of the rest of the ticket—notably that of Register of Wills and County Commissioners. Mr. Benjamin is well and favorably known throughout the County and he is eminently qualified for the position. While nothing of a personal nature can be said against Mr. Dashiell, the present incumbent, for whom we have the highest regard, he represents as does Mr. Toadvine, the continuance in power of what is popularly known as the "Court House ring," which for years has been growing more distasteful to the people at large. If the people of an independent character who have for so long a time been growing more restless under the domination of the present regime in the Democratic Party ever intend to exert their influence no finer opportunity can be offered than at this time when men of the character and ability of Dr. Smith and Mr. Benjamin are placed before the people for these important places.

While the rest of the nominees are good, representative men, too much stress cannot be laid upon the County Commissioner ticket. Messrs. John T. Wilson, W. Scott Disharoon and Granville A. Parsons are admirably qualified to discharge the duties incumbent upon them should they be elected. Geographically the selections were wisely made and all three are men of the highest character and good business qualifications. Those who are dissatisfied with the present policy of the Board can turn to men of this kind with assurance that the interests of the whole County will be carefully and conscientiously taken care of. A stronger County Commissioner ticket has not been named in this County by either party for many years and it has been universally recognized that such is the case from the time the nominations were made.

Of the legislative ticket, Messrs. George W. Truitt and Harry I. Larmore are men who are quite popular in their home districts and will make a splendid showing this Fall. Mr. Townsend is well known in Salisbury where he has been engaged in the commission business for several years. Mr. Cooper and Mr. English are well and favorably known and will make good and acceptable officials if chosen in November. Mr. Cooper was a candidate for County Commissioner two years ago and made a splendid impression throughout the County and will make an excellent official if elected.

The Republican party goes into the present fight with unusual prospects for success and it is certain that the people of Wicomico have the opportunity presented this year of making wise and judicious selections for the local offices to be filled in the County.

Caused No Change In The Ticket.

The Wicomico News is taking itself entirely too seriously—much more so than any one else—and its assurance is positively startling. For sometime it has considered its voice so important and its commands so potent with the Democratic hosts that it cannot imagine a party move being made without its authority and sanction. But now it is reaching out its powerful arm and sending forth its bugle blasts in other directions and having tucked its own party safely under its protecting wing, it sounded last week the call for a new Republican Party which was no doubt to be built up under the fostering care of its own creative and dominating brain. This week it viewed its handiwork with complacency and self assurance and under the striking caption "Caused Changes in Ticket," coolly credited itself with having affected the make-up of the ticket nominated on Tuesday by the Republican party. It is presumed that it was merely an oversight which prompted it to omit the important fact that it was also responsible for the general ton of the Republican platform in Baltimore and that it brought about the nomination of Rev. Frank E. Williams as the Republican candidate for Comptroller.

It is unfortunate that the writer of the "New Republican Party" theory did not have some prophetic vision, for the article which appeared last week is more than ever amusing in the light of recent developments. He was very much exercised over the fact that the "Grahams, the Turners, the Adkins, the Leonards, the Benjamins and the Owens" had been pushed to the rear and relegated to the junk heap. Just how and when all this occurred is not made apparent nor is the public informed as to the details of so important a matter. The imagination displayed by our reportorial friend seems to have been extremely vivid and he expatiates upon the subject with fearful solicitude. "The Grahams!"—only two years ago the sole survivor of that family in our midst—Dr. Samuel A. Graham—was himself a candidate for public office and took an active interest in the campaign. Of the Turners who were active for a long time, death has claimed A. Frank Turner who was prominently identified with the party for years and Capt. E. S. S. Turner so long a member of the State Central Committee has been for quite a while identified with interests outside of the County, and unfortunately for the local organization has been compelled to spend most of his time elsewhere. As to the "Adkins" until recently Mr. E. S. Adkins, one of the honored men of Republicanism in Wicomico County, has been active in its ranks and only failing health has kept him from taking a prominent part in the affairs of the party. Personal and business reasons alone prevented the name of one of his sons from appearing upon the ticket this Fall, and he was urgently requested to allow the use of his name at this time. It is about as difficult, therefore, to find where they have been relegated to the rear, as in the case of the "Leonards." A higher power than the local party removed Colonel Leonard years ago and the only surviving sons relegated themselves by removing from Wicomico long since. As to the "Benjamins" the only one of whom we have knowledge is on the ticket and of the "Owens," one of the two in Wicomico was Secretary of the nominating convention on Tuesday.

But such is life and the fertility of an active brain!

The Recent Fair.

That the Salisbury Fair must have been more than usually attractive and successful is evidenced by the large number of complimentary things which are still being said and written about it by persons who visited it who are in the habit of attending other fairs of the same kind. It is decidedly gratifying to Salisburyans that at the very beginning, the fair should take first rank, as it seems to have done, in the Eastern Shore Circuit, and too much credit cannot be given President D. J. Ward, with whom the idea originated, and his brother, Mr. W. P. Ward. Both of these gentlemen worked incessantly for the success of the Association and the excellent track which was so much admired by the visitors was largely the result of the efforts of Mr. W. P. Ward and Surveyor P. S. Shockley. The immense amount of detail work which was principally handled by Mr. S. King White, the Secretary of the Association, was responsible to a great extent for the smooth manner in which everything passed off. That no accident or disturbance of any character should have happened during the entire time to mar the pleasure of those in attendance upon the fair constitutes a splendid record, and reflects decided credit upon all who were officially connected with it.

MRS. BOWSER had just got ready to go downtown and do some shopping when there was a ring at the bell and she opened the door, to find a strange man on the steps. He was a workman, and he held in his hand a little box which he opened, showing a breastpin, and said:

"Lady, I am out of work and my wife is ill, and I want to sell you this article to raise a little money."

"But you should go to a pawnbroker," was the reply.

"He will only loan on it, and that not half its value. I want money for medicines and food."

"The pin may be brass for all I know," said Mrs. Bowser after looking at it.

"Lady, I pledge you my word that it's solid gold. It was a wedding present to my wife. It's worth $10, but you may have it for three."

"It may have been stolen."

"I ask you if I look like a thief? I'll give you my name and address and you can find out that things are as I tell you. Take it for $2, for I must have money. The doctor has left a prescription that I must have filled."

Mrs. Bowser had heard so much about fakers that she was afraid, and yet she had to admit that the man looked what he claimed to be. After a brief mental struggle she handed over the money and said she would keep the pin simply as security. When the man had departed it struck her to take the pin along and ask a jeweler.

"I want money for medicines and food."

"I will."

"It was a gold breastpin, was it?"

"For sure."

"And this is a diamond ring?"

"It is, sir."

Mr. Bowser walked the man into a police station and up to the desk and said to the sergeant:

"Officer, here is a man I want to give in charge. He's a swindler."

"Aren't you mistaken?" asked the officer. "I have known the man two or three years. He's a hard worker and out of luck. He was asking me to buy a breastpin this forenoon."

"But he sold it to my wife, and it's brass. The diamonds in his ring are only glass."

The sergeant sent for a jeweler across the street, and when the man had made his examination and report, Mr. Bowser stood with open mouth and might have remained an hour longer had he not been told:

"Better run home, now, and try to lose some of your sharpness on the way."

"Well?" asked Mrs. Bowser, as he arrived.

"Fools and jackasses, the whole pack of 'em," he replied as he sat down with a grunt. And that's all she got out of him.

Mere Nonsense.

"I wish," she complained, "that you wouldn't talk so much nonsense to me."

"I didn't know that I talked nonsense to you."

"You're always telling me about yourself and what you have been doing,"—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Ordeal.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is an expert witness?"

"In many cases, my son, an expert witness is a man who is willing, for a consideration, to go on the stand and let the lawyers give him the third degree."—Washington Star.

True to Principle.

"Why don't you want the singer who was so highly recommended for your concert?"

"Because, sir, her advertisements said she had such liquid tones, and this is a dry town, sir."—Baltimore American.

All Marriages Are Love Marriages.

"Was it a love marriage, do you think?"

"Certainly. All marriages are love marriages."

"Isn't that rather a sweeping statement?"

"Not at all. There is a love of adventure, you know; love of luxury, love of advertising and various other kinds of love. There is no need of going into details when one speaks of a love marriage."—Chicago Post.

As to Luck.

"I wonder if anybody's as unlucky as I am," grumbled the first pessimist.

"I never have any luck at all."

"High," started the other. "You're lucky. It's better to never have any luck at all than to be always having it and losing it."—Chicago Post.

Wonders of a Japanese Hamlet.

Perhaps the most astonishing presentation of "Hamlet" ever seen on any stage was a Japanese version given by native actors at Kobe. The Kobe Herald describes it as "a wonderful mixture of the beautiful and the grotesque. With an Ophelia sometimes in graceful kimono and sometimes in western evening costume and a king who at one time appears in the picturesque costume of a Japanese nobleman and at others dons a silk hat and a swallowtail coat, the effect is so kaleidoscopic that a spectator has the sensation of being perpetually transferred from one phase of civilization to another. The climax is reached in Hamlet himself, who in the earlier scenes wears the uniform of a student of the Imperial university, in the third act makes his appearance on a bicycle, clad in a bright blue cycling suit and striped stockings, and at the finish is seen in conventional evening dress with a flower in his buttonhole."

The Sixteenth Century Carver.

At the formal banquet of the sixteenth century the man who carved the meat was bound with the red tape of precedent. When carving for distinguished guests he had to remember that certain parts of the birds or meat must be set aside. In carving for his lord and lady he was expected to exercise great discretion in the size of the pieces he sent round. "For ladies will be soon angry and their thoughts soon changed, and some lords are soon pleased and some not, as they be of complexion." He was expected to have the rules both of the kitchen and the peerage at his knife's end. A pike, for instance, must be sliced up whole for a lord and in slices for commoner folk. The rank of his diners, too, determined whether a pig was to be served up whole, sliced, plain or with gold leaf or whether new bread or bread three days old should be eaten.

A Hungry Rabbit.

"I do not think I was ever so nonplused in my life," said a conjurer, "as once when performing my card and rabbit trick. I ask a member of the audience to tear a card into small pieces and give them all to me except one. Later in the trick I produce a rabbit from a box, and tied round its neck is a card with a piece missing. It is then found that the piece which the member of the audience holds exactly fits and completes the second card. On this particular occasion I allowed the rabbit to remain in the box too long, and when I produced him found that he had chewed the card round his neck to bits. Needless to say, the laughter when the audience grasped the trick the animal had played on me was loud and long."

As Walter Saw It.

Walter, aged seven, is a wise son who knows not only his own father, but his own mother likewise.

"Now, Walter," said the teacher, "if your father could do a piece of work in one hour and your mother could also do it in one hour, how long would it take both of them to do it together?"

"Three hours!" replied the scholar without hesitation.

"Wrong!" said the teacher. "How do you make that?"

"Three hours," repeated Walter stolidly, "counting the time they'd waste arguing about how it should be done."—London Scraps.

The Restful Life.

"We must live rhythmically if we would live healthfully," writes Grace Dawson in "How to Rest and Be Rested."

"To live, rhythmically we must not always strain tense nerves and muscles. We must learn to relax, that we may know how to economize our nervous and muscular power, so that some part of us will always be resting while another is at work. This is living by the law of rhythm. It is the secret of working tirelessly, restfully, resisting disease, throwing off morbid feelings, of living healthfully and feeling zest and enjoyment in our lives."

We are living unhealthfully "when we lie awake in the night with harassed, with anxious, worrying thoughts; when we rush to the station in great anxiety and reach it in such good time that we catch the train before the one we want for; whenever we get a feeling of being 'rushed' or 'driven' or 'tied to time.'"

Seldom Wear Out

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain—not only once, but as many times as it is necessary to take them. Many persons who suffer from chronic ailments find in them a source of great relief from the suffering which they would otherwise be compelled to endure. Their soothing influence upon the nerves strengthen rather than weaken them.
For this reason they seldom lose their effectiveness.

"I am 55 years old and have suffered for 43 years from nervous troubles, rheumatism and neuralgia, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, sleeplessness and pain around the head. The Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have been a blessing to me. I don't know what I should do without them, and they are the only remedy I have ever used that either did not wear out in less time than I have been using them, or else the injurious results were such that I would be obliged to cease their use."

MRS. S. C. ROBINSON,

MISS LAVINIA'S LOVER

The Result of the Search For the Man Who Went Away.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.
[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

"Well, of course," Miss Lavinia confided. "I am glad to have it, but it's unsettling."

Mrs. Briggs sniffed. "It wouldn't unsettle me if any one left me $10,000.
I would know what to do with it."

Miss Lavinia leaned forward eagerly.
"What would you do, Jane?" she demanded.

"Oh, well," Mrs. Briggs heitated.
"I'd get some new clothes right away and fix up the house, and entertain my friends, and take a trip and have an automobile."

"I have thought of those things, but they don't seem to be just what I want, after all. Maybe I'll just put it out of interest."

"Now, look here, Lavinia Latimer," Mrs. Briggs said solemnly, "don't you do any such thing. You've got enough to live on, such as it is, and my advice is to take some of the money and have a good time. Goodness only knows you haven't had many good times."

"No, I haven't," Miss Lavinia admitted somewhat wistfully. "Well, I'll think it over, Jane."

And after Mrs. Briggs had gone Miss Lavinia picked up her big yellow cat and told him her innermost wish. "I'm going to use some of that money to find out where John Forbes is," she whispered, "but I wouldn't tell Jane."

But to look for the man who had left town ten years ago was not an easy matter. And Lavinia Latimer was not wise in methods. But she wanted to know the fate of her old lover, and so it happened that ten days after her talk with Jane Briggs, Miss Lavinia went to town.

"I'm going to buy clothes," was the reason she gave, but when she came to the big town it was not to the stores that she made her way, but to a dusty, musty little office in a squalid street.

"McDermott, private detective," said the sign.

Miss Lavinia was all pink and white and pretty as she stated her case. But Mr. McDermott set her at once at her ease. He was a brisk little man with curly white hair and red cheeks.

"So you want to find John Forbes," he said. "Is he a relative?"

"Oh, no!" And Miss Lavinia blushed.

"Owe you any money?" McDermott demanded.

"Oh, no, no!" Miss Latimer cried distressfully. "We were engaged fifteen years ago, and I couldn't marry him, because I had to stay with my old father and mother—and he—he went away—and I promised that when I was free I would let him know."

"Oh!" McDermott ejaculated, and after a pause, "Were you expecting to find him still single?"

"I—I'm not sure."

McDermott tugged at his mustache.

"The chances are that he'll be married."

"Of course," Miss Lavinia agreed.

"But I should like to be sure."

"Surely," said McDermott. "You just let me have the case, and I'll bring you news of John Forbes before you know it."

McDermott reported regularly once a week by letter to Miss Lavinia and as regularly received her answers.

Miss Lavinia wrote on pale violet paper that gave forth a perfume of fresh flowers in the stuffy little office.
McDermott found himself laying those letters in a little drawer by themselves, and one day in early spring, when he had traveled out into the country on a case, he spied some violets by the wayside. He picked them and brought them home and laid them with the letters in the drawer.

McDermott had money of his own, so that Miss Lavinia's little fortune had no charms for him, but the thought of her delicate presence in his home often came to him with a sense of irresistible attraction.

"But if she finds John Forbes single she will marry him," he would say with a sigh, and the temptation to overlook clues was great.

In June he called on her and found her in her garden with a little low table in front of her on which was set forth a lemonade service. Miss Lavinia was in pale mauve with a hat wreathed with violets. "When you wrote you were coming," she said to McDermott, "I thought you would enjoy it better here in the garden—it's cooler."

"Well, if you knew what a nice change it was from that office in town," sighed the little man.

After that he came often, and gradually it began to be rumored in the town that Miss Lavinia was "keeping company" with a man from the city.

"Well, I must say that I like his looks," Mrs. Briggs told Miss Lavinia when she came over one morning after McDermott had called.

"He is just a business acquaintance," Miss Lavinia protested.

Mrs. Briggs sniffed. "I guess you wouldn't be dressing up in those pretty clothes and waving your hair just for

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR stops the cough and heals lungs a business man?"

Miss Lavinia blushed and sighed.
"You don't know how many things I have to look after since I got my money."

To tell the truth, the search for John Forbes began to weigh on her. She realized that with the coming of John Forbes would end the visits of John McDermott.

McDermott continued doggedly with his search. He didn't want to find John Forbes, or if he did find him he hoped that he would be married. But if Lavinia Latimer wanted anything, she should have it.

And as all things must have an end, the time came when John Forbes was located in a small western town.

"It's your John Forbes, all right," McDermott wrote to Miss Lavinia.

"He was born in your town and everything tallies. But I don't know whether he is married. I'll find out. I leave on Monday for the west."

"Please," Miss Lavinia wrote back.
"don't look him up. Come out and see me before you go—to supper Sunday night, if you will."

It was the first time that she had invited him to a meal, and her preparations were beyond the ordinary. She had in her days of prosperity hired a competent maid, and they brought out the silver and glass, and when McDermott sat down in the dim, fragrant dining room the feast that was set before him on the old mahogany was of broiled chicken and salad and delicate biscuits and strawberries and cream and cottage cheese and all the wonderful gastronomic triumphs of Maryland cooks.

And when he had finished he sat with Miss Lavinia on the front porch.

"I want to ask you a somewhat delicate question," he said, out of the silence of the dusk. "If I find John Forbes is single, what am I to do about it?"

"I don't know," Miss Lavinia faltered.

McDermott hitched his chair forward slightly.

"You love him very much?" he asked suddenly.

"I'm not sure," Miss Lavinia murmured in the darkness.

"Well, there's one thing I would like to say right here," the little man stated. "I wish to withdraw from the case, Miss Lavinia."

"Oh," she gasped, "but I can't do without you!"

"Can't you?" he cried radiantly. "Do you mean that you could love me?
I've wanted to tell you how much I loved you for a long time—only there was John Forbes!"

"Oh, I didn't dream!"—Miss Lavinia flattered.

"It's more than human nature can stand," McDermott went on, "to expect a man who loves you to go and bring back another man to marry you."

"Yes," she agreed timidly, "it is. I—I think if you wish it—we will drop the case of John Forbes, Mr. McDermott."

But McDermott didn't drop the case.
He went west and looked up the old lover and found him neither single nor married nor dead. But he was divorced and of doubtful reputation.

"He isn't worth another thought," McDermott said hotly when he came back. "And I'm not saying that because I'm prejudiced, either."

"Well, it relieves my mind to know," the lady confessed, "and, anyhow, if I hadn't tried to find him I wouldn't have met you—and—"

"You have promised to marry me in October," said her lover triumphantly.
"so who cares for John Forbes or any other man—when you are going to be Mrs. McDermott?"

Remarkable Power.

A dear old lady was taken one day to a musical service in a Boston church. She had heard much about the fine voice of the soprano and was prepared for a treat.

She sat in rapt enjoyment until the service was over and then turned a radiant face toward her escort, who was a young grandson.

"Dear boy," she said, "you've given me a great treat. Her voice is perfectly beautiful. It made cold chills run all up and down my spine."

"It's too bad, grandmamma," said the boy, "but she didn't sing today, though she was there. The gentleman next me says she's been suffering from a bad cold, and one of the chorus had to sing the solos for her."

"What, dear?" said the old lady, looking momentarily distressed. Then her face cleared, and she patted his arm reassuringly.

"Never you mind," she said. "We can come again some time. But, after all, if she can make me feel that way without singing I don't know that it would be wise for me to hear her.
Now, would it?"—Youth's Companion.

A Widespread Hope.

I've never crossed the wide blue sea.
No touring car is mine.
I have to figure carefully
When I sit down to dine.
But some day my large house shall be
The finest on the block;
I'll be among the leading men
And live in independence when I sell my mining stock.

I have to labor, wet or dry,
And skimp and save with care;
I always am compelled to buy
The cheapest things to wear.
But some day I will cease to sigh,
And I will travel far;
In easy luxury I'll dwell
And quit my job when I can sell My mining stock at par.

—E. B. Kline in Chicago Record-Herald.

A Woman's Age? Forget it.
Man has no right to question woman's age—no even think about it. A woman, bless her, is as old as she makes out or makes up and not a day older. Man is out of his latitude when he begins trying to locate woman's age longitude. It is her privilege to conceal her age in any form or manner she may choose, and it is man's prerogative to assist her as much as possible rather than blinder or question her in any way. Man owes it to himself to see that she is supplied with every means of concealing her age or any new wrinkle which she chooses to keep from the gaze of the overcurious public. Man is not supposed to be young or beautiful. He couldn't be if he wanted to be and wouldn't be if he could. With woman it is different. She wants to be and can be and is, whether she wants to be or not, and it is a whole lot better for her and for her admirer or admirers, as the case may be, that her age be carefully guarded under that charming veil of mystery which should ever be hers by right of possession.
Forget that she has an age, brother, and you will be happier, and so will she, but don't, for heaven's sake, forget that she has a birthday.—Boston Herald.

The Fighting Editor.

The fighting editor is no joke in Paris. There, if a paper calls a man a liar or a thief, the man takes it seriously, and, visiting the office, he demands a retraction or a fight. It is the fighting editor who receives him.
The fighting editor sits in a Louis XV. study, smoking a cigarette and reading a new novel with a yellow cover. He is faultlessly dressed in deep black—the duelist's color. The ribbon of the Legion of Honor is in his buttonhole. His brilliant eyes and clear skin proclaim his perfect condition. His alert, supple carriage shows his military training. The fighting editor never writes a line, but is responsible personally for every word in the paper every day. On a plain, outspoken sheet like Le Matin, which keeps him pretty busy, his salary is very large—$40 a week or so. A conservative journal like Le Temps, having little use for a fighting editor, pays the man no more than $20.—Exchange.

Buttered Bread With His Thumb.

Cat's meat is the only survival of a way of serving meat that prevailed in this country before the introduction of forks. For it was the custom in medieval times to serve roast meat on a spit and to pass it around the table for each guest to cut off what he liked, a method that did not allow one person only to secure the carver's tit-bits. In France one still finds chicken, livers and bacon served on small spits, and to the Britisher it always suggests at first sight the food of the domestic cat. It is probable that many people continued to prefer fingers to table utensils, even after these were perfected and in general use, for knives were certainly invented at the period when Charles XII. chose to butter his bread with his royal thumb.—London Chronicle.

A Wave of Water.

There is no necessary connection between the advance of a wave and the forward movement of the water composing it, as may be seen by running the fingers along the keys of a piano.
An inverted wave travels along, but the keys merely move up and down.
Similarly a wave may often be observed running along the ribs of ears of golden grain, while the stalks are firmly rooted in the soil. The onward progress of a sea wave is easily perceptible, and by watching some light substance floating on the surface the fact is revealed that the water is not moving with the same velocity.— Chambers' Journal.

She Gave Herself Away.

Judge Davis was one day in his private office when he was president of the senate and acting vice president.
A woman came into the room to see him. He turned and said, "Well, madam, what can I do for you?" She was neatly dressed in black, with an air of extreme poverty. She told a wretched tale of sorrow and suffering, winding up with the climax that she and her little family were actually starving and had not tasted food for two days. The judge seemed deeply moved. He excused himself for not attending to the case for the moment, as the senate was nearly ready to open. He looked at his watch with an air of vexation, as if it were not going, and said, "Can any one tell me what time it is?" His visitor pulled out a gold watch and told him the time. The judge said, "Can it be true that your children have been without food for two days when you have a gold watch in the house?" The woman saw the point of the judge's question and called out, "You are a hateful old thing!" and flounced out of the room.
She was a professional deadbeat.

BOY BADLY BURNED IN BOILING WATER.

Percy Price May Die From Scalds Received When He Fell In Process Kettle At Canning Factory—Scalding An Accident.

An accident which may result in the death of Percy Price, a colored boy 18 years old living near Quantico, occurred Thursday morning when he was seriously scalded in a large kettle of boiling water at Mr. Orlando Taylor's canning house at Wetipquin.
During an idle hour at the factory three older negroes, Alonzo McBride, Willard Williams and Upshur Wright, thought they would frighten the Price boy by placing him on the large crane which is used to lower the cans into the boiling water in the process kettle. They were all enjoying a hearty laugh at the expense of young Price as he swung over the water when the unexpected happened. The boy in some unknown manner slipped from his position and was completely submerged in water at the temperature of 212 degrees.

The boy was at once taken out and medical aid was immediately summoned but he was so badly scalded that the accident may prove fatal. He was removed to the home of his mother where he is lying in a critical condition.

New Auditorium A Success.

The New Auditorium of Messrs. John T. Green and Carroll L. Brewington has been attracting large crowds every night since it was opened last week. The building will accommodate seven or eight hundred and its beautifully decorated and well lighted with electric lights. It has been built in accordance with modern plans of the kind so frequently seen in the large cities and is a distinct addition to North Division Street. The "moving picture" business has gone beyond the stage of a "fad" and has taken its place as a distinct and permanent source of amusement. The pictures have been interesting and novel, and up-to-date artists have been making their appearance nightly adding interesting features to the performance.

Death Of Mr. Robertson.

Mr. Elias J. Robertson, one of Salisbury's most respected and best known citizens, died at his home in this city Sunday morning, of Bright's disease, aged 60 years. Mr. Robertson was a native of Nanticoke, this county, but moved his family to Salisbury about seven months ago. He taught in the public schools of the county for about 25 years and later he was a Justice of the Peace.

He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Ella Parker of Baltimore, and seven children. They are Dr. H.
C. Robertson and Capt. R. Wert Robertson; Dr. Lawrence J. Robertson and Luther M. Robertson, of Baltimore; Mrs. George S. North, of Tilghman, Md.; Mrs. E. B. Claxton, of Georgia and Miss Lottie W. Robertson, of Salisbury. The funeral was held Monday afternoon.

Advertised Letters.

WICOMICO GRANGERS WILL HOLD MEETING SATURDAY.

Local Farmers Are Requested To Meet And Discuss Agricultural Problems At A Meeting To Be Held September 18th.

There will be several topics of interest discussed at the Salisbury Grange which meets in the Odd Fellow's Hall, Salisbury, Md., Saturday evening,
Sept. 18, at 8 o'clock.

All the members are requested to be present and each brother and sister come with something to say that will help and encourage some one else.

We feel glad that our Grange has enrolled such a large number of our best farmers and their families, and we are encouraged to believe that our Grange will be a social, intellectual and moral, as well as a financial benefit to the farmers of this section of the county.

One of the great objects of the Grange is the social meeting together of the farmers and their families and discussing the problems and ways of farming, and exchanging views, one with another, relative to the betterment of farm life.

The Grangers of this county have grown to enormous numbers and have by their united efforts accomplished some grand things for the county at large.

We cheerfully invite the farmers and their families to join us in our Salisbury Lodge.

WM. P. WARD.

Dr. Wallis To Return.

Dr. Harry S. Wallis, of Cumberland, will move to this city about Nov.
1st, and will reside in the Main St. property formerly occupied by Drs. F. M.
Slemmons and Louis W. Morris, where he will open an office. Dr. Wallis is a native of Salisbury and is well and favorably known here. He is a graduate of the public schools of this city and the University College of Medicine of Richmond, Va. As soon as he received his diploma he began the practice of medicine at Cumberland and has built up a lucrative practice.
For several years he has been on the surgeical staff of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

Notice.

I wish to express my gratitude to the people of Salisbury who have so kindly assisted us in our misfortune by fire February 27 and for the kind help during the illness and burial of my wife who suffered so long but is now at rest.

W. T. Watson and children.

FORMER SALISBURIAN NOW COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

Mr. H. Crawford Bounds Elected To Important Position By Directors Of Front Royal College—Had Successful School Year.

The many friends of former Superintendent of Schools H. Crawford Bounds will be glad to learn of his recent progress in the educational world. This week Mr. Bounds accepted the presidency of the Front Royal College, of Front Royal, Virginia, and will take up his new important duties upon his return to that city Monday.
The directors of the institution tendered the office of president to Mr.
Bounds several weeks ago but the proposition was held under advisement until this week when he wired his acceptance. Mr. Bounds resigns his position as supervisor of the Front Royal public schools after a most successful year. The institution of which he has been made president was founded under the name of the Eastern College in 1900 and has been successful from the beginning. The people of Virginia have highly complimented Mr. Bounds in placing him at the head of this institution after only two years' service in the department of public schools of that State.

Mr. Bounds left a splendid record behind him in this county and his advancement to his present position has been brought about by a continuation of the same methods which made him prominent in public school affairs in this county.

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Holloway celebrated their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary Sunday last, at their home near Quantico. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hearn, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando W. Taylor, Mrs.
Maria Gordy, Mrs. Lizzie Hearn, Mr.
Mr. Jack Overton, Mr. James T. Waller, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bailey, Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Holloway and children and Mr. A. M. Holloway. All expressed themselves as having spent a very pleasant day.

Will Nominate Ticket.

The Prohibitionists of this county did not meet in convention at the Court House yesterday morning as had been previously announced. It was given out that the convention will be held next Thursday at the Court House at 10:00 o'clock and that a full ticket will be nominated at that time.

E. H. HARRIMAN DIES
AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS.

World's Greatest Railroad Organizer Succumbs To Unknown Malady At His Palatial Residence At Arden, New York.

Mr. Edward H. Harriman, the greatest railroad organizer the world has ever known succumbed to a lingering illness at his home, Arden, New York, Thursday afternoon. The exact cause of his death has so far been kept from the public and the news of his death was withheld for two hours.

Mr. Harriman leaves behind him a life record that has seldom, if ever, been equalled by other great men. He was born February 25th, 1848, at Hempstead, L. I., being one of six children born to a poverty stricken minister. After two years schooling at a church school he entered the office of a stock broker on Wall street.
In 1870 he bought a seat on the New York stock exchange and began his career as a broker. At the age of 40 he was made vice-president of the Illinois Central Railroad. Twenty years later he was in control of an ocean-to-ocean railroad system.

He had amassed a tremendous fortune. Mr. Harriman's personal wealth is estimated at from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. He had large personal holdings in the Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Erie, New York Central and many other roads. He was the largest individual stockholder in the Wells-Fargo Express Company.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Topic for Tomorrow, "Closing Scenes of Paul's Third Missionary Journey," Discussed by Local Writer.

In our last lesson, Paul and his companions in travel, resting at Miletus, called the elders from Ephesus and bade them farewell.

Leaving Miletus, they reached Coos (Coo), an island and town off the coast of Asia Minor. It was a town of interest, and we should study these towns in connection with Paul's travels. They are Turkish territory now. Coos has been of importance, being noted for its silks, perfumes, wines, etc. It contained one of the very ancient medical schools, to which Esculapius was attached. It was the birth-place of Hippocrates, the ancient Greek physician, and here his school was founded, and some of his writings are still in existence. So we are interested in Coos.

Another day brought them to Rhodes, where there had been the great "Colossus of Rhodes." It was one of the seven wonders of the world, and in a class with the temple of Diana. It was made of brass, over the entrance to the harbor, and was one hundred feet high, so that vessels passed under it.

From here, Paul went to Patara on the coast. At this town, situated in Lycia, there was a famous oracle of Apollo. Leaving Patara, Paul sailed south past Cyprus, where Paul and Barnabas had preached, and landed at Tyre, in Phenicia, on the east coast of the Mediterranean Sea. We know something of Tyre. It was one of the famous ancient cities, during the reign of the Kings (1000 B. C.) King Hiram, of Tyre was very friendly with King Solomon of Israel, furnishing cedar timber from Lebanon Mountain to build the temple. Tradition connects him very closely with Israel's King. Ezekiel prophesied concerning Tyre, which prophecy was fulfilled literally. Christ visited Tyre and the surrounding country, and it was now the home of many Christians.

This journey was through historical grounds, which brings to our minds the local conditions, just as this group of travellers found it, and Caesarea was very close to these Christians. Peter had first preached to the Gentiles here, and the centurion and his household were converted. Phillip, an evangelist lived here, and Paul and his party stopped with him. Very little is said of Paul's visits to Caesarea, but they are of great interest. Phillip had four daughters, who taught the Gospel, and as they taught and studied in the spirit of truth, and understanding the truth, they revealed it to those about them. To this group of teachers came another teacher from Judea, Agabus, who, considering Paul's journeys and position before the world, made known his prophecy of what would befall Paul if he went to Jerusalem. This matter must have been considered very gravely by these teachers and Paul's companions, and they implored him not to go, but Paul, withstanding their pleadings, made the decision, which, from this time on, governed his life. Not long after he was returned to Caesarea, where he suffered two years imprisonment, and no doubt the happenings at this place were ever fresh in his mind. It was a place of decision, and he, no doubt, forming this resolution, had a glimpse of what was in store for him. He had borne witness to the world, and to seal his work and make it effective, he must bear witness in high places. He had stirred up the world for a great reform, and he dared not now to refuse to complete the duties of the reformer. He must stand up and be questioned, and vouch for his teachings. The reformer may suffer, but, if the reform is good and lasting, it is labor justified and life immortalized.

When we see danger and difficulties in the way of a just, honest and pure life it does not mean that we are to abandon the way. It is the overcoming of difficulties and obstacles that brings reform. It is very hard to decide as to one's course in life, and to feel sure as to just what is right. Decisions should not be made without due consideration, and we can listen to the advice of our friends and then, at last, considering the result of our action as the outgrowth of our decision, we cannot fail to know the right way. In the Christian life, the Holy Spirit will guide, if, in prayer, guidance is sought.

And when Paul's great decision had been made, his friends did not wag their heads and withdraw their friendship and support, but received him gladly, and still assisted him in his labors. Paul must have felt that his labors had been complete, and that he had performed his Lord's imposed duties to the utmost, when he was willing to go before the greatest courts of the world to bear witness to its results, and still further make known its teachings. We have not followed Paul many years, but his days have, in the proper time, been as a "thousand years." It seems as though a long life could barely accomplish these journeys which meant so much to the world.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin.

HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION NEW YORK CITY.

Three hundred years ago, Henry Hudson, an Englishman in command of a Dutch expedition, with eighteen men, explored the Hudson River from Sandy Hook to Troy in his small craft, the "Half Moon."

One hundred and ninety-eight years later, Robert Fulton established, with his steamboat, the "Clermont," a regular water service between New York and the towns along the Hudson river to the North.

This year, New York City, with sister cities and towns along the Hudson, will celebrate these two achievements by a series of imposing observances, religious, historical, military, naval, musical and literary, extending from September 25 to October 9.

Replicas of the "Half Moon" and the "Clermont" have been built and will play a large part in the celebration. They will be the center of attraction in the great naval pageant on Saturday, September 25. The United States Government will have fifty-two war ships anchored in the Hudson, and Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, Italy, Germany, Argentina, Guatemala, Mexico, and Cuba will be represented by war vessels.

Two great parades of water craft will escort the "Half Moon" and the "Clermont" in triumphal procession past the war leviathans, first in the morning and again in the evening, when all the vessels will be illuminated.

On September 28 there will be a grand historical pageant, and on September 30 a big military parade in New York City.

On October 1, the "Half Moon" and "Clermont" will proceed up the Hudson to Troy escorted by hundreds of river craft, including torpedo boats.

A magnificent carnival parade will be held in New York on Saturday evening, October 2, which promises to eclipse all previous attempts.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, the direct line to New York, with its unsurpassed service of fast express trains, will sell excursion tickets to New York for this period at reduced rates of fare.

Full details concerning specific fares, dates of sale, return limits, and train service may be obtained of Ticket Agents.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

HOWE'S GREAT LONDON SHOWS

Acknowledged By Competitors To Be Worth Their Imitation.

Acts many and novel, have been added to the repertoire of Howe's Great London Shows this season, and as the management registered a vow to equal any test show, the result is a plethora of attractions fitted to evoke an enthusiasm from a performance where hundreds of skilled performers vie with each other in friendly contests for supremacy and public appreciation. So successful has this effort been that visitors from other shows acknowledge that a competitor has entered the lists and demands their recognition. Although this has cost a lot of money, the public are the gainers, and Howe's Great London shows are classed at the outset among names more familiar to circus goers in the past.

This show will visit Salisbury with all its attractions, to please and educate the old and young alike. In case of inclement weather the water-proof tents insure perfect protection and comfort.

Don't forget the date, Saturday, Sept. 18.

A Narrow Escape.

Edgar N. Bayliss, a merchant of Robinsonville, Del., wrote: "About two years ago I was thin and sick, and coughed all the time and if I did not have consumption, it was near to it. I commenced using Foley's Honey and Tar, and it stopped my cough, and I am now entirely well, and have gained twenty-eight pounds, all due to the good results from taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

Smallest Man Weds.

Frederick W. Meyerclark, of Baltimore, who has the distinction in point of size of being the smallest Mason in the State of Maryland, and one of the smallest Elks in the world, was married Wednesday morning in Wilmington, Del., to Miss Rose M. Holland, of Baltimore, after a very romantic courtship and elopement. Meyerclark's exact height is 4 feet 6 inches. Miss Holland is described as being several inches taller.

Testifies After Four Years.

Carlisle Center, N. Y., G. B. Burhans, writes: "About four years ago I wrote you that I had been entirely cured of kidney trouble by taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and after four years I am again pleased to state that I have never had any return of those symptoms, and I am evidently cured to stay cured." Foley's Kidney Remedy will do the same for you. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

MARYLAND HAPPENINGS.

Doings in The Counties—News Items Of Interest To The People All Over The State.

A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 25 years.

Snow Hill is to have new quarters for the postoffice. It will be located in the building of Mr. Oliver D. Collins, corner of Market and Pearl streets. The office will be furnished with modern letter cases and other fixtures. Steam heat, electric lights and water will be installed in the building.

Any skin itching is a temper-tester. The more you scratch the worse it itches. Doan's Ointment cures piles, eczema—any skin itching. At all drug stores.

Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford, of Plainfield, Vermont, has accepted a call from the vestry of Coventry to fill the rectorship of that Parish, composed of St. Marks church Kingston, and St. Stephens church Upper Fairmont. Mr. Ockford arrived on last Friday and held services in both churches last Sunday.

Foley's Kidney Pills cures headache, rheumatism, kidney, bladder and urinary trouble. Do not risk having Bright's disease or diabetes. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

The residence of Mr. Woodland Tyler, near Habersburg, was completely destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning. The furniture and all the contents of the house were lost as none of the family had been at home for several days. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Tyler had a small insurance on the property.

Dyspepsia is our national ailment. Burdock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

The remains of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Jesse, of Lancaster County, Va., were carried to Princess Anne Thursday and interred in the Presbyterian cemetery. Mrs. Jesse before her marriage was Miss Laura Dashiell, daughter of the late Dr. R. W. Dashiell, of Princess Anne. Mr. Jesse accompanied the remains to Princess Anne.

"I have been somewhat constive, but Doan's Regulents gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

The whiskey people of Worcester county who have been searching desperately for a candidate with which to oppose Judge Jones, waited upon Mr. Gordon Tall, of Somerset county, at Ocean City on Friday and undertook to persuade him to become a candidate. Mr. Tall promptly notified them that as a regular Democrat he favored the election of Judge Jones and was going to vote for him.

Dr. Abernethy, the great English physician, said, "Watch your kidneys. When they are affected, life is in danger." Foley's Kidney Remedy makes healthy kidneys, corrects urinary irregularities, and tones up the whole system. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

The commissioners of Princess Anne have ordered forty street lamps of the style known as the Boulevard Arc, and similar to the one located at the corner of Main and Prince William streets, and expect to have them installed as soon as possible in suitable locations throughout the town. In the meantime the Commissioners request that property owners trim their trees in such a way that the light may have no interference. The proposed lighting is a decided improvement over the old system and the Commissioners are to be congratulated upon its inauguration.

Many people delude themselves by saying "It will wear away," when they notice symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble. This is a mistake. Take Foley's Kidney Pills, and stop the drain on the vitality. They cure backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, and make every trace of pain, weakness, and urinary trouble disappear. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

The first oysters of the season were sold in Baltimore last Wednesday morning. Three small buxeye loads arrived and the stock from 35 to 65 cents. A Baltimore paper says: In no case were the oysters of select quality, the bulk of them ranging fair to poor. To Captain Harris Howes belongs the honor of getting the first load of oysters to market and making the first sale. He brought the Mary Eva up from Holland Point and had on board about 100 bushels. His two nearest competitors, who were but an hour behind him, were the Delmay, Captain Wilde, and the Margie, Captain Benning, both from West river.

I wish to announce to the public that I am prepared to take care of the dead and conduct funerals with the latest and most up-to-date equipment, which I will be glad at all times to render my services; and my charges shall be the lowest.

The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $124,500.00, makes loans, secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 30c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1887.

The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to set apart $25,000.00 of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes, receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. Open an account with us, no harm can possibly result.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS.

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive.

Don't daily with "uric acid solvents." You might go on till doomday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Salisbury testimony to prove it.

Mrs. William E. Wells, 410 Martin street, Salisbury, Md., says: "For almost six months I was in poor health and my housework was a burden. Rheumatic pains between my shoulders caused me much suffering and my head ached nearly all the time. I was also subject to dizzy spells and I felt all out of sorts. Before I had finished one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at White & Leonard's drug store, I was entirely relieved, and I have been in good health since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Fatal Results Of A Row.

A case of murder or justifiable homicide among the colored people took place at the home of William Monday, colored, near Helen schoolhouse, about three miles from Easton, late Wednesday night. Monday, it seems, was holding a party or festival at his home, and had a number of friends present. They were playing games when Robert Ellis, Jr., and a number of other negroes from Easton arrived. Ellis commenced to make a fuss.

Monday ordered him off and took him to his carriage. Ellis came back with a razor in his hand. He was again ordered off and taken away. He came back the third time and made a rush for Monday, who picked up his gun, which was standing in a corner of the room, and fired he claimed in self-defense, the load entering Ellis' left leg above the knee, tearing all the flesh away and breaking the arteries. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital at Easton where Dr. C. F. Davidson operated upon him to try to save his life. He died about nine o'clock Monday morning.

SOCIETY PLANS BIG EVENT.

Maryland Horticultural Association To Meet In Baltimore In December.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the Maryland Horticultural Society will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, Hoffman Street, near Linden Ave., on December 2 and 3, 1909. The help of every member is desired to make this the best meeting and exhibition in the history of the society.

Every member is urged to save his best products for the exhibits. The premiums are liberal and no one should hesitate to bring the best his orchard, garden or greenhouse produces. A good exhibit of both wild and cultivated nuts is also wanted.

The National Horticultural Congress will hold its annual exhibit at Council Bluffs, Iowa, November 15 to 20, 1909. Last year the Society sent the Secretary with a splendid exhibit which won a large number of premiums. Write to the Secretary at once stating what varieties you will furnish.

The affiliated organizations which will meet in the Fifth Regiment Armory during "Farmers' Week," Nov. 29 to Dec. 4, are the State Grange, the Cereal and Forage Crop Breeders' Association, the Maryland Bee Keepers' Association and the Farmers' League of Maryland.

The Society offers more than $500 in premiums, and several generous friends offer liberal prizes for special exhibits. It is worth your while to push along the good work of the Society and do everything in your power to make the coming annual meeting and exhibit the best we have ever had. The Society needs your help and you are partly responsible for its success. Do not fail to do your part yourself and do not wait for someone else to make the start. Get busy at once and interest others in making up exhibits of fruit, vegetables, flowers, and other horticultural products. The Society must have the help of you, and you, and you, and please remember that it cannot do as well without you as it can with you. Send along the best horticultural products you have.

Health And Beauty Aid.

DIG FIRE AT EASTON.

Ten Buildings Destroyed Entailing A Loss Of About $20,000—Started From Livery Stable.

Easton, Md., September 6.—[Special] Easton was visited this afternoon by a fire that wiped out nearly an entire block. The alarm was given about 2:30 o'clock, when a high wind was blowing from the northwest, and the fire company was soon on the scene, but the force of the water was so feeble that a stream could hardly be thrown. 20 feet high, and not until the steam fire engine got to work could the fireman accomplish anything.

The fire, which originated in the left of the livery stable of Lewis K. Edgell, on Federal street, is said to have been caused by a negro boy smoking a cigarette. The fire at first burned slowly, and had the force of water been sufficient at that time it is possible to have confined it to that building, but the flames leaped to the farmers' sheds owned by William Griffin, which adjoined it on west and south, and to John McHale's livery stable on the east.

After the farmers' sheds were burned, the flames leaped to the stables of Samuel Norris, on Court street, which were quickly consumed. Then followed the destruction of Dr. McMillan's blacksmith shop and the stove and tin store of Joseph Hall. Then a storehouse belonging to Mrs. Geo. Warrington was burned, and from there the flames leaped to the dwelling house of Michael McGinn on West street, and from there to the storehouse of ex-Sheriff Oliver H. Henry, adjoining, and thence to the feed stable of Medford Andrews, corner of West and Court Sts., making a total 10 buildings destroyed.

Weinberg's stables on Federal street, W. Griffin's residence on Court street, and Mrs. George Warrington's residence on West street, were partly burned. Music Hall was on fire several times. The wind was so high that sparks and pieces of wood were blown two blocks away, setting fire to buildings in the rear of the Farmers & Merchants' National Bank, on Washington street, and to the stable of Shannahan & Wrightson, on Harrison street, and several other places, but men were stationed upon the roofs of houses in that part of the town with buckets of water at their command, and they extinguished the fire as soon as it caught to a building.

The county jail, which is located on West street, opposite Andrew's livery stable, was safe several times, but the blaze was put out before any damage was done. Sheriff Welsh and deputies had all the prisoners in readiness to be moved to a place of safety. One horse, which was fastened in a box stall in Edgell's stables, perished.

This is the second time within the past 12 years that this block has been burned out, and this fire originated in the same stable. The loss will be about $20,000, covered by insurance.

The losses are as follows:
Oliver Henry, $5,000; Medford Andrews, $3,000; William Griffin, $3,000; Louis K. Edgell, $1,000; John H. McHale, $1,500; Lee Weinberg, $300; W. Griffin, $150; M. McGinn's residence, $2,000; Mrs. Geo. Warrington, $2,000; Samuel Norris, $500; Joseph P. Hall, $600; Dr. W. G. McMillan, $500.

Big Oyster Supply.

Assurance of an abundant supply of wholesome oysters during the season just opened is given by Dr. H. F. Moore, expert on oysters and assistant of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, who has returned from an extended and exhaustive investigation of the Oyster beds of Maryland and Virginia.

"The state boards of health are taking active interest in the supervision of the beds to insure cleanliness," said Dr. Moore, "and the Pure Food Bureau of the Department of Agriculture is maintaining strict supervision on all interstate shipments. Many cases of typhoid fever are unfairly charged to the oyster. While some cases may be traced to the mollusk, the oyster is not responsible for as many cases of the fever with which it is credited. Every precaution is being taken, though, and the boards of health of the several states in the East are prohibiting the planting and replanting of oyster beds in impure water."

The natural beds of Maryland and Virginia are well stocked with the oyster growth and the planters of these states have a considerable supply of the bivalve.

City Council Proceedings.

The City Council in session Monday evening, granted the following building permits: To Ella C. Williams dwelling on Main street, extended; to John W. Windsor, dwelling on Smith street; to W. J. Tabbs, a dwelling on Main Street, extended.

The ten-days limit for hearing objections to the assessments for street improvements on South Division Street and Main Street, extended having expired and no objections having been filed, the council ratified the report.

The County Commissioners And The River Road.

While the Republican nominations made last week have been exceptionally well received, the County Commissioner ticket has secured unusual attention and commendation, in view of the unsatisfactory policy of the present Board in regard to the highways of the County. While a large number of improvements have been made, still the money expended has been largely placed in certain favored localities without any reference whatever to the general good of the people at large.
Those who have been fortunate enough to reach the source of power have obtained without any difficulty the necessary attention, but those who for any reason were not on the inside of the innermost circle, no matter how deserving their claims may have been, were absolutely turned down.

This is clearly shown in the attitude of the commissioners toward the proposed River Road and even though large numbers of the most prominent and progressive citizens of the town were frequently before the officials in the matter, they received no encouragement whatever and all petitions and applications were tossed aside with utter flippancy. The parties interested even went so far as to file a regular petition in due form under the Schumaker Act and with it a bond signed by parties worth hundreds of thousand dollars, which petition was forwarded to the High-Way Commission of Maryland with an adverse report.
This action was taken notwithstanding the direct promise of the President of the Board that something would be done toward improving this road, so in addition to their utter failure to do anything for these people, they added the violation of a distinct and definite promise. The people interested in this road are entitled to better than that which has been accorded to them by the present officials and it is certain that they can hope for nothing by re-electing the President of that board, who has been the most active opponent of the River Road project, and those in sympathy with him.

The Republican nominees are men who will undoubtedly carry out the platform of their party in relation to the public high-ways and are men of unquestioned ability and of the highest standing in this community.

The North Pole Controversy.

The striking coincidence that after a futile search of four or five hundred years, two Arctic Explorers should electrify the world within five days of each other with messages of final success in the discovery of the North Pole, is evidently the beginning of what is destined to be probably the most protracted and bitter controversy ever started in the realm of scientific research. Even before the receipt of Commander Robert E. Peary's startling wireless message throwing grave doubts upon the claims of Dr. Frederick A.
Cook, the partisans of each explorer had already started an unwarranted controversy with regard to the relative merits of their respective claims without any attempt, however, to actually discredit that of either.

It is decidedly unfortunate that Dr. Cook seems to be in a position where he is practically unable to prove, except by his own records and his own statements, the authenticity of his assertions, while on the other hand Commander Peary was accompanied by several members of the expedition party, including, it seems, the Captain of the "Roosevelt". It is also to be regretted that though Dr. Cook affirms having discovered the Pole practically one year before the Naval Officer yet he reported the fact less than five days before the Commander sent his thrilling message to the World.
Not only is this true, but the plain, unequivocal statement is sent out by Lieutenant Peary that his party talked with the two Eskimos who accompanied Dr. Cook upon his perilous journey and the distinct and direct announcement is made that "he went no distance North" nor was he "out of sight of land".
In view of these positive declarations as well as the corroborating circumstances against him, it will be extremely unfortunate for Dr.
Cook should he be unable to produce such convincing record as will absolutely satisfy the scientific world beyond the shadow of a doubt as to the genuineness of his data.

It is inconceivable that a man of the high standing and renown of Dr. Cook throughout the world should make a bold claim of this character unless he had actually accomplished the feat and it is sincerely to be hoped that he will be able to produce such proofs as will entirely remove all doubts and relieve him from the shadow which to a certain extent has been thrown around him by the statement of the Eskimos as reported by Commander Peary. So far there seems to have been practically no effort to controvert the latter's claim and it is generally believed that his proofs are of such nature as will admit of no question.

Mr. Harriman's Death.

Edward H. Harriman is dead.
Two days ago, the most potential and colossal figure in the railroad world, he is today but a memory and a shadow, and the vast influence which he wielded and the mighty power which he controlled has been scattered with a single stroke of Fate into a million fragments. The sweep of years and decades will probably be required to produce in all the word of finance and industry another whose towering, overpowering overmastering mind shall be able to gather within his grasp a power equal to that so recently held by the one whose lifeless and inert form rests today amid the picturesque shadows of Tower Hill. And yet, rich as he was beyond the dreams of avarice, powerful beyond the conception of the ordinary mind, the burning ambition of a lifetime fails in its realization, and Edward H. Harriman goes to his grave with the yearning and longing of an intensely ambitious life unsatisfied and unfulfilled.

Thus are we constantly confronted with the ever-present, ever-impressive fact that neither opulence nor power, renown nor position can satisfy the longings of the human mind, and after all, the life work of the great financier will, in the last analysis, be judged, not so much by his successes or failures in his own chosen sphere, as by the qualities of heart and mind which formed the bedrock of his being and constitutes character. The glamour and tinsel of wealth and power are dissipated by the shaft of death, and by this element of character and this alone will be stand or fall before the final judgment of One whose unerring decision will sooner or later determine the value of every human life and test the quality of every earthly deed.

Editorial Jottings.

So "Politics Are Warming Up" this year, according to an eminent authority. The situation must be complex.

Salisbury should have more industries and concerted action on the part of the business men of the town will eventually secure them.

Good for the City and County officials! South Salisbury is soon to be in connection with the rest of the town by direct route over the dam. The sooner the better!

Commander Peary should have gone South instead of North and he and Dr. Cook could each have undisputed right to a Pole without any interference on the part of the other.

Next year will tell the story of Salisbury's increase. Those who are in a position to know, believe the town now has a population of 8,000, and it will be interesting to ascertain the exact figures.

If the County Commissioners will not give the people of Shad Point a proper road, they might inaugurate an airship line. They are entitled to a shorter route and if promises amount to anything they should have had it long ago.

It's about time for the rumor that the junction is to be changed from Delmar to Salisbury to be making its appearance. It is due about this time. Perhaps some day, patience will have its own reward and rumor will become a fact.

What's the matter with raising a popular subscription for the building of gates at the dam so that the water can be again restored to the Lake. This has been one of Salisbury's prettiest spots and the present unsightly condition is in sharp contrast to its former beauty.

According to The News there can be nothing much worse than an Ex-Democrat. As long as a man is in the fold, he is all right, but let that spark of Democracy die and the germ of Republicanism be born and he at once becomes a "renegade" and deserter.
The trouble with our Democrat friends is that the "Ex's" are all on one side, and the large number in existence is rather troublesome.
The Ex-Republicans are few and far between.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Alexander, of Philadelphia, who have been spending their vacation with Mrs. Alexander's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Downing, have returned home.

—WANTED—Light draught, 35 to 50 foot Sloop or Schooner. Must be sound, and at a bottom price for cash. Describe at once to A. MUNSON, Salisbury, Md.

—Mr. H. Winter Owens, holding ticket No. 271, won the pony which was raffled off at the Lowe & Kent stables Thursday afternoon. The pony cost Mr. Owens twenty cents.

—Mrs. Amanda B. Lewis, wife of Mr. William S. Lewis, of Snow Hill, died at the Peninsula General Hospital Monday night. The body was shipped to Snow Hill Tuesday for interment by Undertaker George C. Hill.

—"The Girl of the Sunny South" was well received at Ulman's Opera House on Tuesday evening and a large audience was present to welcome the return of this pretty drama which was so favorably commented upon last season. Miss Maxine Roseberry did not play her part as well as did Miss Geraldine Godley who was with last year's production. The same might be said of Mr. Will Rennie, as Seed Pumpkin, who fell far short of coming up to Frank Mackey's portrayal of the same character last season. The balance of the cast was exceptionally clever. Taken as a whole, however, the play was well rendered and pleased the audience.

—Rev. W. A. Cooper announces that for the next four Sunday nights he will preach on "Four Successful Men of the Bible," as follows: Sept. 12—"Joseph, Shepherd, Slave, Prince, Empire Builder." Sept. 19—"Moses, Prince, Shepherd, Statesman, Lawgiver." Sept. 26—"David, Shepherd, Prince, Fugitive, King." Oct. 3—"Isaiah, Idealist, Court Preacher, Prime Minister." The qualities that made these men famous and successful are the qualities that make men so today, hence all young men are especially invited to hear these sermons. All the regular services will begin Sunday. Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; Preaching 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.; Epworth League 7 p. m.

Lacy Thoroughgood told a man the other day that he stood back of every garment, every suit and every overcoat he sold, with his name and his capital. He said: "How long?" Lacy Thoroughgood told him: "There's no time limit to the backing he gave his clothes." Thoroughgood guarantees that they will keep their style and shape and give right service as long as any man could possibly ask of the best clothes made, and here's a further hint—if long wear interests you! Two suits worn, change about, will last as long as three suits bought one after another and worn continuously. You'll like Lacy Thoroughgood's showing of fine suits and overcoats this season. They're down-to-the-minute in style, beautifully designed and fashioned; the fabrics are distinctive. The choicest showings of fall and winter suits and overcoats you'll find anywhere, and prices are $10.00 up to $25.00.

Women can now vote in New Zealand, Australia, Finland and Norway. They have suffrage rights in Great Britain in all except parliamentary elections. They can cast a ballot in school elections in most of the states of this country and have full suffrage in Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah. In the state of Washington a constitutional amendment is now pending before the people which, if adopted, will add a fifth suffrage state. Wherever the experiment has been made the result has been neither a retrogression to barbarism nor a flying leap into the millennium. On the con-

Nor is Mrs. Belmont the only woman of the Four Hundred who wants to vote. Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Miss Caroline Duer and other whose names are sufficient to make finkies of two hemispheres know are also enlisted. If this keeps on, the thing will become as fashionable as the peach basket hat. Then there will be no stopping it. Every woman on the land will be talking for it, and every man will be compelled to grant her request if only to stop the din. A certain section of the unmarried set, tragedists have even gone to the length of resolving that they will not wed a man unless he is in sympathy with the cause. This ought to make so converts, also a lot of masculine hypocrites. When a man really wants

One thing can be said—that very little fraud has been discovered in their exercise of the ballot. Nor are they insulted at the polls. Nor, again, are they degraded or made unwomanly by taking their part in politics. These are not questions of opinion, but of fact. They are bugaboos that have been banished, but with them disappeared the fond dream that woman suffrage would bring Eden back to earth. On the whole, perhaps, the effect has been good and yet not so glaringly good that there is any cause for wild excitement. I am neither arguing for nor against the proposition, you understand, but am giving the results of my own observation of suffrage as it actually works.

Don't Neglect It

It is a serious mistake to neglect a weak heart. It is such a short step to chronic heart disease.
When you notice irregularity of action, occasioning short breath, palpitation, fluttering, pain in chest or difficulty in lying on left side, your heart needs help—a strengthening tonic. There is no better remedy than Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. Its strengthening influence is felt almost at once.

"I have used 16 bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and can truthfully say it has done me more good than anything I have ever used, and I have tried nearly everything that I know of. The doctor who attended me asked me what I was taking and I told him Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, he said it was not going to do me any good, but it did. I have not taken any for a year now, and while there is occasionally a slight symptom of the old trouble, it is not enough for me to continue the use of the medicine. If I should get worse I would know what to do. Take Dr. Miles' Heart Cure as I did before.
I consider myself practically cured of my heart trouble."

er was eloquent, and the congregation sent her to a theological college in Boston. Her church, the Methodist Episcopal, refused regularly to ordain her because she was a woman. Then she went to the Methodist Protestant and received her ordination papers. For years she occupied a Massachusetts pulpit, being one of the first women preachers in America. She also worked in the slums of Boston and, in order that she might be of more service to the poor, studied and took the degree of M. D., never charging a penny, however, for her medical services. She became widely known as a pulpit orator even before she became promi-nently identified with the suffrage movement. Now she is regarded as one of the most effective speakers on the platform. Perhaps her greatest power lies in her deep religious sentiment, but she is also a wit and can tell stories. Her voice is rich and musical, and her white hair and rosy face add to her charm. More than all else, she believes in her message. With such a leader and with such financial and social backing as that furnished by Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Mackay and others, the American suffragist movement may be heard from during the next few years.

The Descending Scale.
"The first letter John ever wrote to me," said a married woman to her friend, "was shortly after we had become acquainted and before there was really anything like an understanding between us. This is the way he signed
it:

"Yours, my dear Miss Weston, most sincerely,
JOHN HAMILTON EASTON.
"There, you see, were ten words—enough for a telegram—just to bring a commonplace friendly letter to an end.
But after we became engaged his first letter to me was signed in this way:

"Yours, my darling, affectionately, JOHN.
"That, you will observe, was a reduction of 50 per cent from his conclusion as a mere friend. The first letter he ever wrote to me after we were married was signed:

"Yours,
JOHN."

Settled the Duel.
Lord March, afterward the Marquis of Queensberry, was not accustomed to view a duel with unbecoming apprehension and usually attended an affair with an air of enjoyment that often was decidedly displeasing and embarrassing to his adversary. But he was served at last with that sauce which the proverb explains is for the gander as well as for the goose. It was when he was challenged to fight an Irish sportsman. Lord March appeared on the ground accompanied by a second, surgeon and other witnesses.
His opponent arrived soon afterward with a similar retinue, but added to by a person who staggered under the weight of a polished oak coffin, which he deposited on the ground, end up, with its lid facing Lord March and his party. Lord March became decidedly uncomfortable when he read the inscription plate, engraved with his own name and title and the date and year of death, and peace was patched up.

Bearing the Conscience.

Of all her curious customs London cannot boast of a more singular one than that formerly so strictly adhered to at Holland House, one of the most historic old mansions in the British capital. The last of the Lords Holland shot himself during a fit of despondency. Everything pointed to a clear case of self murder, yet the Holland family could never be dissuaded from the notion that the old man had been murdered by some unknown assassin.
Accordingly every night for years it was the custom for one of the family to go to the rear of the house punctually at 11 o'clock and fire a gun for the purpose, it is said, of "bearing the conscience" of the murderer. This curious practice is a relic of mediæval superstition in continental Europe, and the case in point is probably the only instance where it has been noticed since the days of the crusades.

Pigeons' Air Sacks.

The air sacks of the pigeon, says Bruno Muller, constitute a system of interspaces the value of which lies in their emptiness—that is, absence of weight and resistance. Flying is possible only to a body of high mechanical efficiency, and we attain this with machines divested of all superfluous material. Just so the original reptiles, which by evolution became birds, were divested of superfluous material, and the body spaces thus obtained were filled with air sacks. The body wall, adapting itself to the mechanical requirements, became a hollow cylinder serving as a support for the organs of movement, the mobility of whose parts was assured by the surrounding air sacks. The air cavities in the bones of birds are similarly explained.

SPAIN-MOROCCO WAR

Cause of the Trouble With Moors at Melilla.

KABYLE TRIBES TO BLAME.

Their Attack on Some Spanish Mines Near Melilla Before the Spaniards Were Ready Precipitated the Crisis.
Spain's Foes Are Born Soldiers.

The immediate cause of the trouble at Melilla, Morocco, which has cost Spain so dear, occurred on July 8, when some Moors laid an ambush at the Spanish mines on the railroad near Melilla for the purpose of making some prisoners in order to exchange them for Moors who had recently been arrested for an assault on a policeman.
Four of the miners were killed. Thereupon a detachment of the Melilla garrison went out under General Marina and routed the Moors, though not without difficulty, as the bayonet had to be used, and the Spaniards lost twenty-nine killed and wounded.

Spanish Mines Raided.
The remote cause of the Melilla trouble dates back about a year and a half, when two Spanish mining companies, one of them operated with French capital, began work at a point about fifteen miles from Melilla under the protection of Roghi Kaid, who then was supreme in that region. In October of last year the tribes revolted, defeated Roghi and raided the mines, which then ceased work. The Spanish government proceeded to protect them; but, although some of the tribes did not object, others were hostile, and the

MULAI HAID, SULTAN OF MOROCCO.

whole district became much disturbed, so that it was not till last June that the miners were able to resume work.

Under the treaty of 1860 between Morocco and Spain the sultan is under obligation to furnish regular troops for the protection of the Spanish possessions of Ceuta and Melilla against the always more or less unruly Riff tribes.
But he has never done this, and when Spain recently sent Minister Merry del Val to Fez to call Mulai Haid's attention to this fact the sultan not only refused to listen, but insulted the minister. He refused to acknowledge the mining concessions at Melilla and also demanded that the Spaniards withdraw from points where they had posted troops to prevent contraband traffic in arms as a condition prior to any discussion of the matter. Then the Spanish government voted $700,- 000 for the strengthening of the garrisons of Melilla and Ceuta and no doubt would have soon been much better prepared to deal with a Moorish attack, but the incident above related precipitated a crisis before the Spaniards were ready for it.

Born Soldiers.

The Kabyle tribes, which are of Berber origin, are the people with whom the soldiers of Spain are contending for supremacy on the Riff coast of Morocco. These tribesmen, who are Sunni Moslems, are born soldiers.
Those of the plains have been recently engaged in carrying out public works connected with Spain's mining interests on the coast, while those of the mountains by sudden raids have periodically undone the work of their brothers of the plains.
The present revolt is due to the inspiration of the new sultan of Morocco, who recently, it is said, ordered the Spaniards to evacuate the Riff coast. The Kabyles, in carrying on the revolt, are using some Mauser rifles which were sold to them for his personal profit by General Margaolio, governor of Melilla, who recently was killed in a sortie.

Spanish Forts in Ruins.

The Riff coast came into possession of Spain after the Moors had been driven out of Europe in the fifteenth century and were pursued into Africa.
To prevent a second Moorish invasion, Spain began at once to fortify this coast, and by the middle of the seventeenth century from Ceuta to Melilla and eastward as far as the Algerian frontier was a strong line of fortifications. Most of the forts are now far advanced in ruin, and all are obsolete. Some had been evacuated even as early as the beginning of the nineteenth century and, with the continuance of successive Spanish governments, became the stronghold of pirates until the latter were swept from the sea by the combined efforts of France, England and the United States.

Be wise to-day, 'tis madness to defer.—Young.

Coleridge's Imagination.

From his early youth Coleridge lived in a world of books and dreams, yet his favorite walk seems to have been the Strand, the last place in the world for a poet to lose himself in reverie.
As he strolled down the street he imagined himself swimming the Hellespont, the feat of which other poets had written and which the poet Byron was to accomplish later. Once while the mind of Coleridge was thus far from the busy Strand he absently thrust his hands before him in the manner of one swimming. Suddenly one hand came in contact with a gentleman's pocket.

The gentleman, thinking to capture a thief, seized the hand and exclaimed:
"What! So young and so wicked!" He accused the poor, poetic boy of an attempt at pocket picking.

With some fright and a few tears the boy explained, and we can imagine that words did not fail him who was to become the most brilliant talker of his age. The gentleman was delighted with Coleridge's imagination, which could turn the Strand into the Hellespont. The intelligence of the young Leander made the stranger inquire into Coleridge's tastes, and when he found the boy liked books he opened for him a subscription at the circulating library in Cheapside.—Westminster Gazette.

The Facetious Traveler.

"How did you like Pittsburgh?"

"It soots me."

"Do you think Boston is a great city?"

"It has bean."

"Did you find Philadelphia the place of sleep they say it is?"

"Not for me. Everybody else snored so loud I couldn't."

"Is Washington a good place to live in?"

"Capital."

"How did you find Chicago?"

"Didn't have to. It was there when I arrived."

"How were the mountains back of Denver?"

"Rocky."

"How did they treat you in New Orleans?"

"All the time."

"Well, I'm glad to see you're back."

"How does it look?"

"How does what look?"

"My back. I've never seen it."

It was then that the assault took place, but the court on hearing the evidence decided that it was justifiable.— Judge.

An Organ Recital.

A dozen or more women had gathered at a home on Walnut street to attend a business meeting of a society to which they belonged. Before they commenced to talk business one of the women had to tell everybody about her recovery from a recent operation for appendicitis. After she got through it reminded another of an operation she had gone through a few years ago for the same thing, and it took some time to tell about it. That reminded a third of an operation she had once gone through, and when she finished telling it another of the visitors started to tell her experience on the operating table.

At this moment a quiet little woman in one corner of the room arose to go.

"I thought," she explained to her hostess, "that this was to have been a business meeting, but it seems to be an organ recital."—Philadelphia Times.

The Key of Death.

The "key of death" is apparently a large key which is shown among the weapons at the arsenal at Venice. It was invented by Tibaldo, who, disappointed in love, designed this instrument for the destruction of his rival.
The key is so constructed that the handle may be turned around, revealing a small spring, which being pressed a very fine needle is driven with considerable force from the other end.
This needle is so very fine that the flesh closes over the wound immediately, leaving no mark, but the death of the victim is almost instantaneous.

Strong Paper.

A single United States treasury note measures three and one-eighth inches in width and seven and one-quarter inches in length. It will sustain without breaking lengthwise a weight of forty-one pounds, crosswise a weight of ninety-one pounds. The notes run four to a sheet, a sheet being eight and one-quarter inches wide by thirteen and one-half inches long. One of these sheets lengthwise will suspend 108 pounds and crosswise 177 pounds.

Evasion.

"See here, you, sir," cried her father "Didn't I tell you never to enter my house again?"
"No, sir, you didn't," replied the persistent son. "You said not to 'cross your threshold,' so I climbed in the window."—Exchange.

GAS FOR BATTLESHIPS

May Be Coming Power For Vessels of American Navy.

GREAT BENEFIT TO A FLEET.

Experiments in Wisconsin and Indiana Give Promise of the Smokeless Warship—How Its Fighting Efficiency Will Be Increased and Coal Saved.

As a result of investigations recently made in Wisconsin and Indiana officials of the navy department at Washington are convinced that the time is not far distant when the American battleship fleet will be propelled through the water by means of gas engines. If the expectations of the experts are realized it will mean an increase in the fighting efficiency of the modern man-of-war and a great saving to the government for the maintenance of its fleet and will have a decided influence upon naval strategy.

Commander W. W. White, retired, and Lieutenant Commander John K. Robison, representing the bureau of steam engineering of the navy department, recently made an investigation at West Allis, Wis., and Gary, Ind., into gas plants with a view to ascertaining to what extent the same system can be applied to ships of war. Their report indicates that they entertain some hope of a revolution in that branch of engineering. There has been a steady development for several years in the use of gas as a motive power, confined largely, however, to stationary engines ashore. The experts say that the time is not far off when it will be possible to install a number of gas engines giving in the aggregate the required horsepower to drive the largest vessel of the American navy through the water.

Reduce Weight of Machinery.

When this is accomplished there will be an absence of smoke, which now obscures observation and interferes with the recognition of signals and what is more important, indicates the location of a fleet to the enemy. It will mean also a reduction in the weight of the machinery, thus enabling constructors and ordnance officers to use the weights in other directions, probably by increasing the thickness of the armor or adding to the armament. This latter feature will require a general overhauling of the arrangement of the main battery of a battleship and a probable increase in the number and caliber of the guns.

Another factor which attracts the favor of the experts is the prospect that there will be a saving in coal consumption, which will enable the ship to go farther on the fuel in its bunkers than is now the case. This increase in steaming radius means much in the efficiency of a battleship in time of war and a great economy in coal consumption in time of peace. In the language of naval experts, it means that a "warship will be longer in pursuit and more elusive of capture, as the case may be."

Steam Bureau to Conduct an Inquiry.

The naval engineers do not wish it to be understood that they look for any immediate change which shall bring about this desirable condition. It is a fact, however, that they have been profoundly impressed with the situation as it is developing in the west and think the time is coming when warships will be propelled by a fuel which does not create smoke. It will be some years before the full effect of all this is realized, and in the meantime the bureau of steam engineering will conduct an inquiry which will put the service in possession of the latest information and give it the benefit of the advance of science.

DUCAL STREET SWEEPER.

Omaha "White Wings" Got Papers Saying He's a Russian Duke.

Sweeping the streets of Omaha, Neb., at $1.75 a day, John Panuska recently received papers purporting to show that he is a duke of the Russian empire and is the owner of vast estates in the country of the czar.

"I believe I had just about as soon sweep the streets of an American city as to be a Russian duke," said Panuska as he went on with his work. The papers came from a firm of lawyers in Prague. The Panuska family was driven from its estates more than a hundred years ago and took refuge in Austria. The estates were usurped by others, and the Panuska family sank into nothingness and became peasants, according to the history.

John Panuska emigrated to America years ago, leaving younger brothers in Austria. Some years ago one of these, remembering the tradition that his great-grandfather's family was entitled to great wealth in Russia, began an investigation which resulted in the papers. The American Panuska is the oldest member of the family. Whether he will return to Russia or remain in America is a question with Panuska.

Then He Wouldn't Have It.

WHY WHITE PREFERS KANSAS

Emporia Editor, Back From Europe, Glad We Are "Unfinished."

A smiling, stocky man left the Santa Fe's California limited train at the Union station in Kansas City, Mo., the other morning, and for a moment he was almost obscured from view by a mountain of baggage that tumbled off after him.

"As between Europe and Emporia," the man said as he emerged from among the suit cases, "I am strong for Emporia."

And William Allen White was back from Europe with his family.

Mr. White told of the things that had impressed him on the continent. He came back with a duke who lapsed and believes that the stock of dukes needs "grading up." The courage of English politicians who wear "plugs" hats incessantly astonished him greatly.

"I can tell you why things are more finished in Europe than in America," Mr. White said. "It's because labor is the greatest bargain in Europe. And that's a poor bargain in any country. But the cheap labor of Europe builds for them a finished country, which the idle rich enjoy. Thank heaven, we are not a finished country over here."

"I saw no kings or queens or nobility of any sort except an accidental glimpse of Queen Wilhelmina in a carriage in the streets. I did not see anybody who had any kind of title that I know of. I was in crowds where I knew there must have been dukes and princes and where the papers said afterward there were all sorts of high nobility, but I couldn't pick them out from the ordinary run of folks. They wore the same kind of clothes and, so far as I could see, were like the ordinary run of two legged men and women."

"Can you imagine," Mr. White asked, "a self respecting Kansas farmer going around grabbing for his hat all the time to a man who has no other distinction except that he happens to have on a white shirt? No? Neither can I. That's one of the things that make a man proud of America—the fact that there is no peasant class here."

NATIONAL MARATHON.

Many Classy Entrants For Big Race at Lowell, Mass.

From recent indications the Marathon race that will be contested over the Merrimac valley motorcar circuit at Lowell, Mass., on Sept. 9 will have a field of prominent long distance runners.

The event will be held in connection with the automobile speed carnival races at Lowell. The race will be known as the national Marathon, and a purse of $250 will be given to the winner.

Included in the entries already received for the race are the names of men who have made Marathon history. Among them are Johnny Hayes of New York, who won the London Olympic; Bill Davis, the Canadian Indian, and Little Mike Spring of New York, who won the B. A. A. Marathon in 1904 and the Canadian Marathon in 1905 and who has been running professionally for a couple of years. Then there are Tom Morrissey of Yonkers, winner of the B. A. A. run in 1908; Al Paines, who earned an enviable reputation about New York, and Jimmy Lee, the ex-Somerville boy, who won additional laurels since taking up his residence in New York. John Goff of Cambridge, one of the best known of the local amateurs will probably be a contestant, and rumor has it that Charlie Muller, the Mohawk Athletic club great cross country runner, will be found among the professionals on Sept. 9. Pat Dineen of South Boston and Ted Crooks, the Fall River man, are also expected to be in line.

VIOLIN OF TOOTHPICKS.

Indiana Workman Values His Novel Instrument at $3,374.

Three thousand three hundred and seventy-four dollars is the sum asked for a violin which is constructed of exactly that number of white birchwood toothpicks. This unique musical instrument is the handiwork of Thomas Atkinson, genius and expert maker of freak articles. Mr. Atkinson lives in Greenfork, a small village near Hagerstown, Ind., where his home is stocked with many articles made by him from time to time.

The violin, which he was more than a year in completing, has been tested by musicians and pronounced high grade in every respect. Its quality of tone is seldom surpassed. Its lines are graceful and the finish perfect.

Before he started to work on this instrument he discovered that the glue which enters into the construction of violins has much to do with their sounding properties.

Special Ball Game For President Taft. President Taft, who is to be the guest of the Hamilton club, in Chicago, Sept. 16, from 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon until he leaves the city the following morning, has forwarded his acceptance of an invitation from officials of the club to attend a special baseball game in the afternoon. The day is an open date for the west side team. A special game has been arranged for between the Cubs and the New York Giants.

DOWN IN AN ACTIVE VOLCANO

Professor Rodger Performed Hazardous Feat in Japan For Science.

Professor Jay Rodger, president of the American University union, who has been in Tokyo lecturing on scientific evidence of Biblical truths, has accomplished a hazardous undertaking never attempted heretofore. For the purpose of investigation he descended 100 feet into the crater of the active volcano Asama, using a chair and pulley, worked through the assistance of several stalwart missionaries. The Japanese were astounded at the daring feat, which they had thought impossible of execution.

The Asama volcano is about eighty miles northwest of Tokyo. It is 8,315 feet high, and, though it is still active, its last great eruption took place in 1783.

ATTEMPT TO CIRCULATE STORY WITHOUT TRUTH.

Dr. Smith Has Not Withdrawn His Name From Republican Ticket As Has Been Reported Throughout Sections of County.

From some unknown source the report has gone out that Dr. Wm. G.
Smith will not be a candidate for the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court on the Republican ticket. This report is false and was probably originated in the minds of the Democrats throughout the county who are fearful as to the results of the election and would reassure themselves by an attempt to establish the idea that Dr. Smith would not accept the nomination.

While it is true that, when he was notified of his nomination he expressed a desire that his name be dropped from the ticket, he has since been prevailed upon to accept and he has done so notwithstanding the great sacrifice he will be obliged to make.

In all Wicomico county there is perhaps no man who is more popular than the Republican candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court. This fact was proven in 1897 when he made his phenomenal run against Mr. James T. Truitt. It was by scarcely a hairsbreadth that the Democratic nominee was elected that year and were it not for the fact, as it is generally believed, that hundreds of dollars were used at the polls late on the afternoon of election day in that year, there would have been a vastly different story to tell the morning after.

At that time, it will be remembered, the same circumstances which are influencing the public mind today as far as the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court is concerned, did not exist.
There was not then nor is there now a more popular Democrat in the county than Mr. James T. Truitt.
Twelve years ago the idea of "rotation in office" had not taken root in the minds of the people regardless of party affiliation as it has today, and the Republican party, upon whose ticket Dr. Smith was a candidate that year did not have the strength by several hundred votes that it has now.
Despite all these conditions the Democrats elected Mr. Truitt by a very small majority.

This year the conditions are vastly different. The cry for rotation in office has become the paramount issue in the local campaign. The cry has been taken up by many Democrats as well as Republicans and the words, "Rotation in Office" promise to be the slogan of the people in the fight which is brewing in this county. If Dr.
Smith could make the splendid showing he did, against such odds, in 1897, is there any reason to believe that he cannot be elected with a handsome majority under the reversed conditions of 1909?

The popularity of Dr. Smith has not diminished, but on the other hand, if such a thing is possible he is better known and better liked throughout the county now than he was then.
These things, together with the announcement that he has accepted the nomination should be the means of causing every Republican in the county to work individually for his election. The time has arrived when the people of this community will no longer allow their public records to be handled by any one man, or any set of men, throughout an entire lifetime.

As to the other candidates on the Republican ticket, each one of them has accepted and will enter the campaign with the avowed determination to take advantage of the popular cry for a change in the management of this county's affairs. The outlook was never as bright for Republican victory in Wicomico as it is this year and the fact that the Democratic leaders are preparing for an unusually vigorous campaign gives credence to the fact that a nomination on the Democratic ticket is no longer considered as good as an election, even by the leaders of Wicomico's democracy.

VACATION DAYS OVER, SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY.

Division Of Territory Announced After Yesterday's Meeting Of The Board.
Children Will Be Assigned To New Buildings.

At yesterday's meeting of the Wi-comico County School Board arrangements were completed for the opening of the public schools. The division of territory for the two new school buildings in this city were made as follows: All children living in the part of Salisbury embracing Camden and South Salisbury, from the first to the fourth grades, inclusive, will attend the new building on Locust street. All children living East of the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk Railroad, from the first to the fifth grades, inclusive, will attend the new building near R. D. Grier's machine shop.

Children living in California, Newtown and beyond the Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway, from the first to the fourth grades, will attend the Central Primary School on Chestnut street. The building on Bell street which was formerly used as the intermediate school will be known as the Salisbury Grammar School and will be attended by children from all sections of the city who are in the fifth and six grades.

In the High School on Upton street the seventh grade and all of the high school grades from the eighth to the eleventh, inclusive. Pending the completion of the two new buildings, all children up to the fourth grades will be taken care of for the first few weeks at the Central Primary building on Chestnut St. The schools will be opened Monday and all children will be expected to report at the building which they attended last year where they will be met by their teachers and assigned to the different buildings. The colored industrial school will be opened October 4th and all other colored schools October 18th.

The list of teachers for the Salisbury schools was completed yesterday as follows:

Camden—L. Cora Gillis, 4th grade and principal; Margaret Anderson, 3; Grace Darby, 2nd; Belle Smith, 1st.

Central Primary—Ada L. Scott, 4th grade and principal; Elizabeth Woodcock, 3rd; Mildred Dougherty, 2nd; M. C. Smith, 1st.

East Salisbury—C. Nettie Holloway, 3rd and 5th and principal; Edna Windsor, 4th; Julia Waller, 2nd; Mollie Betts, 1st.

Salisbury Grammar School—Alice Toadvine, 6th grade and principal;
Ruth Powell, 6th; Mary Toadvine, 5th; Nina Venables, 5th.

City Council Proceedings.

The City Council met Monday evening when it was expected that the joint committees would report on the plans for widening and rebuilding Humphrey's dam and bridge, but Engineer Clark stated that he could not get his plans ready before next Monday night.

Permits to build were granted as follows: To T. J. Cleary, house on Isa-bella street; to Mrs. Ella C. Williams, house on Main street, extended; to Mrs. Clara Farlow, house on E. Church street.

A committee of property owners on Winder street was before the City Council with the request for the widening of Winder street to a width of 85 feet. Surveyor Shockley was instructed to make a survey of the street and report to Council.

Recent Deaths.

Mr. George W. Mills, aged 69 years, died at his home near Mt. Herman last Monday. After funeral services were held at his late home Tuesday.
His remains were interred in the family burying ground at Mr. E. Q. Walston's.

Mr. T. R. Layfield, a former resident of this county, died at a sanito-rium near his late home, Newport News Sunday. His remains were shipped to this city for interment Thursday afternoon. The funeral services were conducted at Bethesda Methodist Protestant Church by Rev. Dr. Graham, with interment in Parsons cemetery.
At the time of his death Mr. Layfield was 60 years old. He is survived by five children, and was a brother of Mrs. B. J. Dryden, Mrs. Milton Parker and Mr. George Layfield, all of Wicomico county.

PROHIBITIONISTS MEET AND NOMINATE TICKET.

Well Known Prohibitionists Throughout Wicomico County Secure Places On Ticket To Be Voted On At The November Election.

The Wicomico County Prohibition Convention assembled in the Court House Sept. 16, 1909. The convention was called to order by the County Chairman, Rev. John H. Dulany was elected Chairman of the convention, and Mr. Chester S. Sheppard, Secretary.

The following ticket was nominated:
For Clerk of the Circuit Court—Rev.
Henry S. Dulany.

For Register of Wills—Uriah C.
Phillips.

For House of Delegates—John H.
Melson, Clayton G. Jackson, Luther F. Messick.

For County Commissioners—James R. Freeny, Harvey P. Elzey, James W. Williams.

Rev. John H. Dulany was elected county chairman, Mr. Chester S. Sheppard, county secretary, and Mr. Uriah C. Phillips, county treasurer.

A resolution was adopted that the county chairman, county secretary and county treasurer be made a committee to fill any vacancies that might occur.

The following were elected as county executive committee. Rev. John H.
Dulany, Mr. Chester S. Sheppard, Mr.
Uriah C. Phillips, Mr. Sampson P.
Downing and Mr. Marion S. Pryor.

Show Failed To Please.

If ever Barlow & Wilson's "famous" minstrels come to Salisbury again it is reasonably certain that they will be greeted by a house full of empty seats.
It is not enough to state that the performance Tuesday night was bad.
That word that is often used in speaking of decayed cabbage is the only one which could be used. The minstrel was decidedly amateurish from start to finish and there was not even one redeeming feature. So far this year Manager Ullman has been fortunate in securing attractions which have been up to the standard, and it is extremely unfortunate that such a company was booked. Inquiry reveals the fact that Mr. Ullman is in no way to blame for booking the Barlow & Wilson attraction. The performance was represented to him as being first class in every particular.
The show has never been a strong one but the booking agent with the show laid particular stress when he was in this city upon the fact that the performance had been wonderfully improved and that the show would be above the average.

Important To Republicans.

Republicans who have moved into Maryland from any other State during the past year and are not familiar with the Maryland laws providing for the registration of voters, are requested to call at the Republican Headquarters, rooms 10 and 11 Masonic Temple, and the provisions of the law will be fully explained to them.
Many newcomers who have taken up their abode in Maryland have been denied suffrage because of their ignorance of the Maryland laws. Under the law as it now stands on the statute books of the State a man could move into Maryland, live there in any number of years and still be robbed of his vote each election unless he complied with certain peculiarities of the law. Information regarding this registration law will be given cheerfully to all newcomers into the State if such persons will call at Republican Headquarters, or address the Republican Campaign Committee, Salisbury, Maryland.

Taft Condemns Amendment.

In a frank straightforward statement in a letter written to the Baltimore News from his summer home at Beverly, Mass., President Taft denounces the franchise amendment now before the people of Maryland as being "vicious". The letter follows:
"Editor Baltimore News,
"My Dear Sir:

"I have your letter concerning the franchise amendment which it is proposed by the Democratic party in Maryland to adopt. I have already, in another letter, expressed my opinion in regard to its vicious character. It is deliberately drawn to impose educational and other qualifications for the suffrage upon negroes and to exempt every body else from such qualifications. This is gross injustice and is a violation of the spirit of the Fifteenth Amendment. It ought to be voted down by everyone, whether Democrat or Republican, who is in favor of a square deal.

"Sincerely yours,
"William H. Taft."

ILLUSTRIOUS CITIZEN SUCCUMBS TO DISEASE.

Mr. John Huffington, Of Allen, Died Sunday And Funeral Services Were Held Tuesday—Had A Great Civil War Record.

The funeral services over the remains of Mr. John Huffington, who died at his home in Allen Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock after an illness of several months, were held at Asbury M. E. Church, South, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Revs. S. E. Lucas and John C. Rosser, officiating. One of the largest concourses of people which has ever assembled in this place gathered to pay a last tribute to friend, neighbor and citizen. Mr. Huffington was born on a farm near Madeira Springs in June, 1838, and was therefore in his 71 year. The son of a slaveholding parent at the outbreak of the Civil War he espoused the cause of the South and running the blockade to Virginia enlisted in Company F, Second Maryland Regiment and served with great gallantry until the close of the war. He participated in every pitched battle fought by the army of Northern Virginia after the Seven Days Battle around Richmond. He was twice wounded, slightly at Gettysburg, where his regiment in a desperate charge on Culp's Hill lost over half of its members; and again in the trenches around Petersburg he was severely wounded, and for a time it was thought he was fatally wounded on the 2nd day of April, 1865. On the evacuation, he though painfully suffering, took up the line of march with his comrades and was shortly afterward lodged in a hospital at Farmville on the line of Lee's retreat, where two days afterward he was made a prisoner by Sheridan's command. Coming home on a furlough in August he visited both here and at Quantico and was secreted in Taintor's barn when the Yankee soldiers rode by to guard the election polls at Quantico in the State election of that year. No love for home could keep him back from the cause he had espoused and surmounting all difficulties he made his way back South and followed the falling fortunes of the Stars and Bars until they were forever furled. Mr. Huffington was married in 1870 to Miss Carrie Hayman who with three children survive him.
Prof. J. Walter Huffington, formerly principal of Wicomico High School and now principal of the High School at Front Royal, Va., and Misses Carrie and Martha Huffington of this

SAYS MEN DIE TOO YOUNG.

Writer From Allen Would Lengthen The Life Of Man—Four Score Years Are Not Enough.

Allen, Md.
Mr. Editor:—
A line, if you please, to the serious-minded reader.

Where are the cities of ancient times, built at a cost of so much life and treasure? Where are the countless thousands who walked the streets and enlivened with their merry voices those cities of antiquity? There eyes were as bright, their voices as cheery, and their hearts as warm, no doubt as ours. Where are they? Did some one say, in heaven? Will that one inform a dying and crying world whom Heaven is, and confer an unrequitable blessing upon the race?

Has anyone ever seen or heard from one of those personages since their exit from the visible world? Has anyone any proof of their continued existence, anywhere. Produce it, please, and you will confer a favor of inestimable value upon the perishing world.

I look about the earth for lessons worthy of attention. I behold men pushing, rushing, pulling, straining, sweating. I ask myself, what for? I see men building much larger houses than they need; again, I ask, what for? I see men piling up wealth they do not need, again the question, what for?

From the question, what for, I turn to the more serious one, whither, friend. Ah! this is the question of questions. This is the question the race has been asking for ages and ages.

The solemn sound of the tolling church-bell strikes my ear. I listen. It seems to answer the question of questions. But does it? Putting the mournful sounds together, what do they spell? Alas! Graveyard. Is this answer to the great question whither? I look over the grave-yard and see long and short graves. I read the epitaphs on the tombstones. I fall to find one which records the age of the occupant of the grave as much as a hundred. Some only a few days old. Shame! Pity! I exclaim that man should die so young. He is even called old at fifty. Why is this? Simply because we know no better. Our parents and friends and the tombstones teach us that we must die, at most at four-score years. This, we now know to be a colossal falsehood. Telling man from the cradle to the grave that he must die, and die at an age when he should just be getting ready to live, is a grave mistake—a graveyard mistake.

Pull up the tombstones, level all the graves, put every man or person who says you must die, into a cave, and get ready to live as long as you wish—live to live, mind you, and you will begin to realize your desire, continue to live to live, teaching your progeny the same doctrine, and, mark you please, man will, in a comparatively short time, live to be two hundred years old, and, in time, older.

As it is, what is man's history? Eat, grow, propagate, die, all within sixty years, I may say.

Would like to say more, but,—
WILL O' THE WISP.

A Narrow Escape.

Edgar N. Bayless, a merchant in Salisbury, Del., wrote: "Two years ago I was thin and coughed all the time and did not have consumption, it was near to it. I commenced using Foley's Honey and Tar, and it stopped my cough, and I am now entirely well, and have gained twenty-eight pounds, all due to the good results from taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

Spent 15 Cents—Found $100.

Georgetown, Del., Sept. 14.—Fifteen cents invested by Ralph Green, a carpenter, netted him something over $100. He bought an old trunk at a sale of household effects of the late Mrs. Clara Davis for the 15 cents.

After the sale Green broke open the trunk and began distributing its contents. To one he gave a pair of pants, to another a shawl, until finally at the bottom a small paper package was found. Green was about to give the package to someone when the torn paper revealed a glimpse of green paper.

Walking away from the crowd, he opened the package and found more than $100 in bills. Green will not say just how much money he did receive, but he confesses that he got a roll of a hundred or more.

It is probable that Mrs. Davis died before she could tell where she had hidden the roll for a rainy day.

Dr. Abernethy, the great English physician, said: "Watch your kidneys. When they are affected, life is in danger." Foley's Kidney Remedy makes healthy kidneys, corrects urinary irregularities, and tones up the whole system. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

Any skin itching is a temper-tester. The more you scratch the worse it itches. Doan's Ointment cures piles, eczema—any skin itching. At all drug stores.

The Presbyterian church in Hagerstown will be reopened next Sunday after being closed for six weeks to undergo extensive improvements. The pipe organ has been rebuilt, a new lighting system has been installed and auditorium refrescoed and otherwise beautified. Rev. R. A. Boyle is pastor of the church.

Foley's Kidney Pills cures headache, rheumatism, kidney, bladder and urinary trouble. Do not risk having Bright's disease or diabetes. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

The first receipts of new yellow corn were exhibited on the floor of the Chamber of Commerce, Baltimore, Tuesday morning. The consignment was received by Steven Bros. of South Charles Street from J. W. Stevens, of Kent County, Maryland. There were 30 bags in the lot, and the corn was in fine condition.

Dyspepsia is our national ailment. Burdock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

The biggest shipment of oysters to reach Baltimore so far this season was carried there Tuesday morning by the Charlotte of the Chesapeake Steamship Company, which steamed up the harbor from York River and Richmond with a consignment of 600 barrels of the bivalves. Most of these were obtained from points on the York River.

"I have been somewhat costive, but Doan's Regulets gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George B. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Altoona, Pa.

The Frederick District Preachers' Meeting of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, has unanimously endorsed "the action of the Ministerial Association of Cumberland in protest against the proposed appointment of John J. Stump, of Cumberland, Md., to be supervisor of the census of the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland."

The protests are based on Mr. Stump being a wholesale and retail liquor dealer of Cumberland and alleged objectionable advertising matter used by him.

Many people delude themselves by saying "It will wear away," when they notice symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble. This is a mistake. Take Foley's Kidney Pills, and stop the drain on the vitality. They cure backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, and make every trace of pain, weakness, and urinary trouble disappear. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

Three New Beacons.

Navigators who ply the Potomac river are elated over the news that the Government is soon to establish three new lights along that waterway. It is expected to have the lights in position by October 1, and it was announced at the office of the Fifth District Light-house Board that the lights would be used for the first time on that date. The lights are to be designated as Persimmon Point Shoal Light, Port Tobacco River Flats Light and Matomkin Point Middle Ground Light.

The first is to be placed in position at Persimmon Point and will be a fixed red-lens light standing 16 feet above water, on the westerly side of the channel, upon a black and white screw pile structure.

The second will be a white-lens lantern light 20 feet above water, on the northerly side of the channel, upon a red and white screw pile structure located in 2 1/2 feet of water.

The third mentioned light will be erected off Manokin Point, on the southerly side of the channel, and will be similar in every respect to the Persimmon Point Light.

Health And Beauty Aid.

Cosmetics and lotions will not clear your complexion of pimples and blotches like Foley's Orino Laxative, for indigestion, stomach and liver trouble and habitual constipation. Cleanses the system and is pleasant to take. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

NOT SACRILEGIOUS.

"The Holy City," Which Will Be Given In This City Next Wednesday, Said To Be Good.

It is with profound delight that Salisbury learns of the coming engagement of "The Holy City", with its author, Clarence Bennett playing the dual role of John the Baptist and Judas. This city has a surfeit of the popular melodrama of the day, plays depicting modern conditions with more or less realistic manner, and yet reeking with coarse sentiment and leaving false impressions of life, especially with the younger element. The performance of this genuinely wholesome play, "The Holy City" will be welcomed here by all church-goers and theatre-goers alike. As the title indicates, it is the story in a dramatic form of The Man of Sorrows and of the conditions of Jerusalem at the time of three years ministry and ultimate crucifixion of our Lord. There is nothing in the whole course of the play which borders on the sacrilegious—nothing which could cause an instant's uneasiness to the most devout. It is said that with the possible exception of Ben Hur there is absolutely no play extant which can be compared with "The Holy City". In grandeur of theme it stands alone. From what can be learned through newspaper criticisms given this performance in other cities, the play is mounted in superb style and the acting comprises artists of more than average ability.

Testifies After Four Years.

Carlisle Center, N. Y., G. B. Burbanck, writes: "About four years ago I wrote you that I had been entirely cured of kidney trouble by taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and after four years I am again pleased to state that I have never had any return of those symptoms, and I am evidently cured to stay cured." Foley's Kidney Remedy will do the same for you. Sold by John M. Toulson, druggist.

County Commissioners.

The County Commissioners were in session last Tuesday.

Commissioners Truitt and Johnson were appointed to inspect the route for a new road from Powellville to and across Givans Mill branch to Parsons Hill and report to the Board.

The Board requested Undertaker Hill to furnish clerk with the names and dates of the deaths of all non-residents who die at the Peninsula General Hospital, so that the clerk can notify officials of the counties from whence they come of the cost of burial, so that Wilcomco county can be reimbursed.

Engineer Clark was instructed to examine Dr. Conway's property in Hebron relative to putting down tilling to drain the road, and report same to Commissioner Wright.

Engineer Clark reported that the work done the public roads under the Schumaker Law had been paid for by the county and that bills had been sent to the State Roads Commission for the part due from the State.

The board passed an order that hereafter county would pay undertakers $8 each for burial of adult paupers and $5 for children.

Engineer Clark was authorized to advertise for bids for building the Middle Neck and Meadow Bridge roads under the Schumaker Road Law. Bids to be in by noon, Tuesday, September 28.

Nanticoke And Beyond.

While spending Sunday at the very pleasant home of Capt. Horace H. Cox, of Stump Point, enroute to Fishing Creek, the writer had the privilege of attending a Union Class Meeting at the Nanticoke M. E. Church North, whose very live members were ably reinforced by an enthusiastic band of the good people of Rock Creek, who loaded Capt. Ed. Shores' launch Oriole down. Some of the noted strong men of Rock Creek, and their equally famous and genial "Hand-shaker" was present, who, with the ladies of the party, made a delightful addition to the working force, and the success of the meeting.

Among the visitors were, Capt. John Tyler, Capt. Gustavus and Mrs. Price, Capt. B. C. and Mrs. Edith Todd, Miss Alice Todd, Capt. Jim and Mrs. Jennie Hewitt, Master Russell Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Gladden, Mr. Davis James, Mr. Thomas James, Mr. and Mrs. Woodland Disharoon, Miss Lottie, Disharoon, Mr. Henry Disharoon, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Jones, Capt. and Mrs. Ed. Shores, Capt. Archer Jones and Mr. G. W. Webster.

The Nanticoke Church has a Sunday School membership of about one hundred and fifty, superintended by so able a man as Mr. W. F. Turner, and is doing a lot of good. The visiting stranger had the impression that people's hearts are in their right places, from the courtesies extended him.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Topic For Tomorrow, "Paul's Second And Third Missionary Journeys," Discussed By A Local Writer.

It is necessary to have a fair knowledge of the geography of the world as it was known A. D. 30 to A. D. 100 in order to fully enjoy and profit by a study of the acts.

Paul and Silas were at Antioch, in Syria during the spring of A. D. 50. Paul had returned there from the first Church Council at Jerusalem, and had arranged for his second journey. From Antioch he passed up through Syria, and turned westward, north of the Mediterranean Sea through Cilicia, through his native city Tarsus, and west to Derbe. This had been the most eastern point reached in his first journey, which had been across the sea, through Cyprus to Pamphilia, and then north to Antioch in Pisidia, by land, and east to Derbe. In this second journey he passed rapidly through the towns Derbe, Syra and Iconium to Antioch, and thence west to Troas on the Aegean Coast. Here he was called to Macedonia (Europe,) and, by boat reached Neapolis, and, by land, to Philippi. He then travelled around the Aegean Sea, south to Thessalonica, Berea, Athens, and Corinth, (Greece.) The return trip was made by crossing the sea eastward touching at Ephesus, to Caesarea, to Jerusalem, and to the home church at Antioch, (Syria.)

The third missionary journey was practically over the same route as the second except that after reaching Antioch, in Pisidia, he continued southwest to the Aegean Coast, where he spent three years at Ephesus. Then taking up the route of the second journey he visited the churches in Europe and Greece and returned, as we studied in our last lesson, to Tyre and Caesarea, on his way to Jerusalem.

During the first three quarters of this year we have been studying the history and the doctrine of the Christian religion. We have studied the Acts of the Apostles, and, most prominent of all, are the works of Paul. There have been others who hold no mean place in the work of spreading the Christian doctrine, but the labors, life and character of Paul stand out in bold relief when compared with those of others. He has made three arduous journeys, covering A. D. 47 to 57. No man has ever undertaken a like mission and we, today, can better understand the outcome of his labors than the labors themselves.

What had Paul undertaken? God, in His relation to man, had, in the fullness of time, and of His own good pleasure fulfilled the promise of a Messiah who would redeem man-kind and that Messiah through a chosen people who had been so honored by Him for that purpose. This Messiah was not without question by these people, and His acceptance by them has never been as a people. But there were other peoples of the earth who knew of God's dealing with Israel, and were giving heed to the signs of the times. After the completion of Christ's mission, and the command to "go into all the world and preach the gospel," it was necessary that the gospel be preached to the Israelite and Gentile alike. And Paul, so eminently fitted for the labor, became missionary (of the cross) to the world. What a task! Think of all the places visited by him and the work done; does it impress you as successful? What do you think of his character, after studying ten years of his life? And after it is done, of which do you see the most, Paul or the great cause he represented?

And we are to prepare ourselves for further study of Paul's work. He has preached the gospel, has done his whole duty to every one with whom he has come in contact, and the teaching has been called in question, and his friends predict trouble ahead. Not that he has done wrong, or wrongly interpreted his teachings, but this radical change, great reform in spiritual things, the breaking of light to the entire world, must be questioned by man, who, in his ignorance knows not God, and in the foolish imagination of his own mind questions the judgement, mercy and love of God.

And since this gospel has been preached, and so broadly to the whole world, and having reached the hearts of thousands upon thousands of those who sat in darkness, and was about to unseat the powers that believed (falsely) that they were so secure in their relation to God, it is necessary that the sponsor for this great movement must stand up boldly in high places and answer for his championship of this great cause.

The character of Paul's labors now change, and though different before, are more so now. There is a difference between giving up one's time, friends, means, etc., to teach a great reform, and being called upon to surrender oneself to attest to the rightness of the cause. It is then that devotedness changes into heroism, and Paul takes that step. Since the great uplift of the gospel among men, there have been many such examples. Let us follow Paul during the next quarter, and get a full insight into how he substantiates the claims of the gospel, and makes it applicable to the redemption of man.

I wish to announce to the public that I am prepared to take care of the dead and conduct funerals with the latest and most up-to-date equipment, which I will be glad at all times to render my services; and my charges shall be the lowest.

ASSOCIATION

The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $134,500.00, makes loans secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of $30, $40, $50, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1887.

The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to set apart $25,000.00 of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes, receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and currently solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. ### He Dodged Cold Mutton.

Green, the English historian, one day asked a friend which of all the inventions of their day had done the most for the people as a whole. His friend guessed this and that, but the answer was:

"Beyond doubt, sixpenny photographs." A reply involving quite as great an absurdity as that was made by Cecil Rhodes in answer to a lady who, seeking to draw him out, suggested that he owed his phenomenal rise to the impetus of noble sentiments.

"Madam," returned Mr. Rhodes, "I owe my fortune simply and solely to cold mutton."

"Cold mutton!" gasped the lady. "Oh, Mr. Rhodes, what do you mean?" "When I was young," continued the South African millionaire, "I was so dosed with cold mutton and I hated it so cordially that I resolved to grow rich in order to put it on one side for the rest of my life. Yes, madam, cold mutton was at the root of my success. Noble sentiments had nothing to do with it."

HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION NEW YORK CITY.

Three hundred years ago, Henry Hudson, an Englishman in command of a Dutch expedition, with eighteen men, explored the Hudson River from Sandy Hook to Troy in his small craft, the "Half Moon."

One hundred and ninety-eight years later, Robert Fulton established, with his steamboat, the "Clermont," a regular water service between New York and the towns along the Hudson river to the North.

This year, New York City, with sister cities and towns along the Hudson, will celebrate these two achievements by a series of imposing observances, religious, historical, military, naval, musical and literary, extending from September 25 to October 9.

Replicas of the "Half Moon" and the "Clermont" have been built and will play a large part in the celebration. They will be the center of attraction in the great naval pageant on Saturday, September 25. The United States Government will have fifty-two war ships anchored in the Hudson, and Great Britain, France, the Netherlands, Italy, Germany, Argentina, Guatemala, Mexico, and Cuba will be represented by war vessels.

Two great parades of water craft will escort the "Half Moon" and the "Clermont" in triumphal procession past the war leviathans, first in the morning and again in the evening, when all the vessels will be illuminated.

On September 28 there will be a grand historical pageant, and on September 30 a big military parade in New York City.

On October 1, the "Half Moon" and "Clermont" will proceed up the Hudson to Troy escorted by hundreds of river craft, including torpedo boats.

A magnificent carnival parade will be held in New York on Saturday evening, October 2, which promises to eclipse all previous attempts.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, the direct line to New York, with its unsurpassed service of fast express trains, will sell excursion tickets to New York for this period at reduced rates of fair.

Full details concerning specific fares, dates of sale, return limits, and train service may be obtained of Ticket Agents.

PRESIDENT HAS RETIRED.

John B. Parsons Retires From Head Of Rapid Transit Co.

President John B. Parsons, of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, tendered his resignation to the Board of Directors last Thursday.

Two years ago Mr. Parsons expressed his intention of retiring from active life as soon as the Subway was completed and in operation. Yet, in the face of persistent rumors that he intended to resign, financial circles were surprised when the announcement was made public Thursday.

Denials of his intention to vacate the position were circulated on the streets almost up to the time of the meeting of the directors. The meeting was a brief one lasting scarcely over 15 minutes. No other business was transacted except that of the announcement and the creation of a new position, that of chairman of Board of Directors, which is to be filled by the retiring president.

The retirement of President Parsons is not accepted as indicating a change in policy in management of affairs of the company. That he is to be made chairman of the Board of Directors is taken to indicate that he will still be the directing head of the policy of the company. He is to be relieved of the active detail work of the presidency and yet retain a directing influence.

Mr. Parsons is a native of Salisbury, where he spent his boyhood. His success in life has been almost phenomenal, and he is now rated several times a millionaire. Mr. Parsons spent a few days in Salisbury during August visiting old friends.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS.

Are You Sure Your Kidneys Are Well?

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive.

Don't dally with "uric acid solvents." You might go on till doomsday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Salisbury testimony to prove it.

Mrs. William E. Wells, 410 Martin street, Salisbury, Md., says: "For almost six months I was in poor health and my housework was a burden. Rheumatic pains between my shoulders caused me much suffering and my head ached nearly all the time. I was also subject to dizzy spells and I felt all out of sorts. Before I had finished one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at White & Leonard's drug store, I was entirely relieved, and I have been in good health since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Volunteer Balloon Corps. According to recent announcement by a group of Boston aeronauts, Massachusetts is to have the first volunteer balloon corps in the world. Plans are being made for organizing and equipping the aeronautic cohort at once, and official recognition by the state militia is expected. The volunteer corps will consist of men interested in aeronautics and will be made up of two divisions, pilot and meteorological. The pilot division will include leading balloonists now making ascensions in Massachusetts for pleasure. In the meteorological division will be prominent scientists.

The Gypsies of the Gasoline Age. Arrayed in khaki, weather stained and full of grease and oil; Their faces tanned with sun and wind. Their hands begrimed with toil. With honk and hoot and siren shriek They come from near and far And travel in a cloud of smoke, The gypsies of the car.

In limousine and touring car And lively runabout, They laugh at indigestion, nerves, Insomnia and gout. No dreams of dark and evil things At night their slumbers mar. They keep eternal holiday. The gypsies of the car.

The wanderlust is in their blood. They answer to the call Of open road and azure skies, Green fields and forests tall, And leave a trail of gasoline Around this earthly star. Those happy souls to the tramp, The gypsies of the car.

PEARY'S CONQUEST OF THE FAR NORTH

Explorer's Own Account of His Wonderful and Successful Dash to the Pole.

Copyright, 1909, by the New York Times Company.

BATTLE HARBOR, Labrador (via Marconi wireless, Cape Ray, N. F.), Sept. 3.—The steamer Roosevelt, bearing the north polar expedition of the Peary Arctic club, parted company with the Erik and steamed out of Etah Ford late in the afternoon of Aug. 18, 1908, setting the usual course for Cape Sabine.

We had on board 22 Eskimo men, 17 women and 10 children, 228 dogs and some forty odd walrus.

We encountered the ice a short distance from the mouth of the harbor, but it was not closely packed and was negotiated by the Roosevelt without serious difficulty. As we neared Cape Sabine the weather cleared somewhat, and we passed close by Three Voort island and Cape Sabine, easily making out with the naked eye the house at Hayes Harbor occupied by me in the winter of 1901-2.

From Cape Sabine north there was so much water that we thought of setting the lug sail before the southerly wind, but a little later appearance of ice to the northward stopped this. There was clean open water to Cape Albert and from there scattered ice to a point about abreast of Victoria head, thick weather and dense ice bringing us some ten or fifteen miles away.

From here we drifted south somewhat and then got a slant to the northward out of the current. We worked a little farther north and stopped again for some hours. Then we again worked westward and northward till we reached a series of lakes, coming to a stop a few miles south of the Windward's winter quarters at Cape Durville. From here, after some delay, we slowly worked a way northeastward through fog and broken ice of medium thickness through one night and the forenoon of the next day, only emerging into open water and clear weather off Cape Fraser. From this point we had a clear run through the middle of Robeson channel to Lady Franklin Bay. Here we encountered both ice and fog and were forced across to the Greenland coast at Thank God Harbor.

The fog lifted there and enabled us to make out our whereabouts, and we steamed north through a series of leads past Cape Lupton and thence southward toward Cape Union. A few miles off that cape we were stopped by impracticable ice, and we drifted back south to Cape Union, where we stopped again.

Twice Forced Aground. We lay for some time in a lake of water and then to prevent being drifted south again took refuge under the north shore of Lincoln Bay.

Twice we were forced aground by the heavy ice. We had our port quarter rail broken and a hole stove in the bulwarks, and twice we pushed out in an attempt to get north, but we were forced back each time to our precarious shelter.

Finally on Sept. 2 we squeezed around Cape Union and made fast in a shallow niche in the ice, but after some hours we made another short run to Black Cape and hung on to a grounded bit of ice. At last, a little after midnight of Sept. 5, we passed through extremely heavy running ice into a stream of open water, rounded Cape Rawson and passed Cape Sheridan.

Within a quarter of an hour of the same time we arrived three years before—7 a. m., Sept. 5—we reached the open water extending beyond Cape Sheridan.

We steamed up to the end of it, and it appeared practicable at first to reach Porter Bay, near Cape Joseph Henry, which I had for my winter quarters. But, the outlook being unsatisfactory, I went back and put the Roosevelt in to the only opening in the ice, being barred close to the mouth of the Sheridan river, a little north of our position three years prior.

The season was further advanced than in 1905. There was more snow on the ground, and the new ice inside the ice bergs was much thicker. The work of discharging the ship was commenced at once and rushed to completion. The supplies and equipment we stowed across ice and sea and deposited on shore. A house and work shop were built of boards, covered with seals and fitted with stoves, and the ship was snug for the winter in shoal water, where she touched bottom at low tide. This settlement on the stormy shores of the Arctic ocean was christened Hubbardville.

Moving the Supplies. On Sept. 15 the full work of transporting supplies to Cape Columbia was inaugurated. Marvin, with Dr. Goodsell and Borup and the Eskimos, took sixteen sledges loads of supplies to Cape Belknap, and on the 27th the same party started with loads to Porter Bay. The work of hunting and transporting supplies was prosecuted continuously by the members of the party and the Eskimos until Nov. 5.

On Oct. 1 I went on a hunt with two Eskimos across the field and Parr Bay and the peninsula, made the circuit of Clements Markham Inlet and returned to the ship in seven days with fifteen musk oxen, a bear and a deer.

Professor McMillan went to Columbia in November and obtained a month of tidal observations, returning in December. In the December moon Borup moved the Hecla depot to Cape Colan. In the February moon Bartlett went to Cape Hecla. Goodsell moved some more supplies from Hecla to Cape Colan, and Borup went to Markham Inlet on a hunting trip. On Feb. 15 Bartlett left the Roosevelt with his division for Cape Columbia and Parr Bay. Goodsell, Borup, McMillan and Hansen followed on successive days with their provisions. Marvin returned from Bryants on Feb. 17 and left for Cape Columbia Feb. 21. I brought up the rear Feb. 22.

The total of all divisions leaving the Roosevelt was 7 members of the party, 59 Eskimos, 140 dogs and 23 sledges. By Feb. 27 such of the Cape Colan depot as was needed had been brought up to Cape Columbia, the dogs were rested and double rationed and harnessed and the sledges and other gear overhauled.

Hewing Through Ice. Four months of northerly winds during the fall and winter instead of southerly ones, as during the previous season, led me to expect less open water than before, and I was prepared to hew a road through the jagged ice for the first hundred miles or so and then cross the big lead.

On the last day of February Bartlett, with his pioneer division, accomplished this, and his division got away due north over the ice on March 1. The remainder of the party got away on Bartlett's trail, and I followed an hour later.

The party now comprised 7 members of the expedition, 17 Eskimos, 183 dogs and 19 sledges. One Eskimo and seven dogs had gone to pieces.

A strong easterly wind, drifting snow and temperature in the minus marked our departure from the camp at Cape Columbia, which I had christened Crane City. Rough ice in the first march damaged several sledges and smashed two beyond repair, the teams going back to Columbia for other sledges in reserve there.

We camped ten miles from Crane City. The easterly wind and low temperature continued. In the second march we passed the British record made by Markham in May, 1876—82.20—and were stopped by open water, which had been formed by the wind after Bartlett passed. In this march we negotiated the lead and reached Bartlett's third camp. Borup had gone back from here, but missed his way, owing to the faulting of the trail by the movement of the ice.

Marvin came back also for more fuel and alcohol. The wind continued forming open water all about us. At the end of the fourth march we came upon Bartlett, who had been stopped by a wide lake of open water. We remained here from March 4 to March 11. At noon of March 5 the sun, red and shaped like a football by excess of reflection, just raised itself above the horizon for a few minutes and then disappeared again. It was the first time I had seen it since Oct. 1.

I now began to feel a good deal of anxiety because there were no signs of Marvin and Borup, who should have been there for two days. Besides, they had the alcohol and oil, which were indispensable for us. We concluded that they had either lost the trail or were imprisoned on an island by open water, probably the latter.

Across Eighty-fourth Parallel. Fortunately, on March 11 the lead was practicable, and, leaving a note for Marvin and Borup to push on after us by forced marches, we proceeded northward. During this march we crossed the eighty-fourth parallel and traversed a succession of just-frozen leads from a few hundred yards to a mile in width.

On the 14th we got free of the leads and came on decent going. While we were making camp a courier from Marvin came and informed me he was on the march in the rear. The temperature was 59 below.

The following morning, March 14, I sent Hansen with his division north to pioneer a trail for five marches, and Dr. Goodsell, according to the program, started back to Cape Columbia. At night Marvin and Borup came "spinning in with their men and dogs steaming in the bitter air like a squadron of battleships. Their arrival relieved me of all anxiety as to our oil supply.

In the morning I discovered that McMillan's foot was badly frostbitten. The mishap had occurred two or three days before, but McMillan had said nothing about it in the hope that it would come out all right. A glance at the injury showed me that the only thing was to send him back to Cape Columbia at once. The arrival of Marvin and Borup enabled me to spare sufficient men and dogs to go back with him.

Announcement As To Courier Changes.

With the last issue of THE COURIER, the Peninsula Publishing Company passed into history, and by virtue of a bill of sale recorded during the week, this publication together with the entire plant, equipment and good-will of the company became the absolute and individual property of the present editor. This change in the proprietorship of the paper involves, however, no change whatever in the general policy which has been pursued under the present management, in view of the fact that at the time we succeeded Mr. Alan F. Benjamin as Editor and Manager, we purchased from him and have since held a controlling interest in the stock of the company.

In view, however, of the increasing demands upon our time of our law practice, we have decided to secure the services of an associate editor and manager, who will have general charge and supervision of the paper and the printing business. From the time we took charge of THE COURIER in June, 1906, up to the present, we have rigidly adhered to the policy that its editorials should be absolutely what they purported to be, nothing more and nothing less—matter personally written by the editor of the paper. The strict and unvarying adherence to this rule, in view of other pressing matters and frequent absence from town, has caused, as can readily be seen, exactions of a trying and burdensome nature. It is for this reason that, while the entire property now comes into our hands and while we shall retain the editorship of the paper and the general control of its policies, we have concluded to secure an associate editor who will not only largely assume the active management of the business and the paper, but will also relieve us of a portion of the editorial work as well. As is generally known, there has been no position of this kind in connection with the paper since Mr. William Wirt Leonard was its associate editor and he was connected with it only a short time under the editorship of Mr. Benjamin.

We take pleasure in stating that the new position will be filled by Mr. Frank A. Robertson, editor and proprietor of the Delmar News and he will assume his new duties on Monday next. Mr. Robertson has been publishing a newsy and spicy sheet, and in view of his experience of several years and the success which has attended his efforts, we feel certain that he is unusually well equipped for a position of this character. He is well and favorably known in Salisbury and we believe that his relations with the people here will be of the most pleasant and cordial character.

Mr. Clarence A. White, the news editor of THE COURIER leaves the paper after having been connected with it for the past two and one-half years. He will have charge of the Republican Headquarters during the present campaign and has secured a suite of offices in the Masonic Temple, which will be constantly kept open until after the election. Mr. White has rendered THE COURIER faithful and efficient service and leaves with our best wishes that abundant success may crown his efforts and attend his pathway.

Forcible Addresses.

Unusually strong speeches were made on Wednesday last in Baltimore at the time of the notification of Mr. Frank E. Williams as the nominee of the Republican party for Comptroller. The closing sentence of Gen. Allison Wilmer was a beautiful and stirring peroration, and he closed the notification speech with these telling words: "Satisfied, of the integrity and fitness of our candidates, in party unity, encouraged by the support already promised by a large number of nonpartisan and intelligent citizens, inspired by hope and believing in the righteousness of our cause, and trusting in Him who directs and shapes the destinies of states and nations, we shall wage a determined fight all along the line for victory, and may God defend the right."

The speech of Mr. Williams was equally notable and is well worth the perusal of every voter and citizen of Maryland. On the great question of negro domination he used language which was strong and forcible as will be seen by the following excerpt, taken from his speech:

"Talk about the 'negro peril.' It is not the negro peril which threatens us. When gentlemen of the opposition undertake to handle that subject they are palpably disingenuous and, in the former opinion of so good an authority as the Baltimore Sun, are simply appealing to race prejudice for a political capital. Will these gentlemen undertake to tell intelligent and unprejudiced hearers that the negro vote in this state (17 per cent of the whole) is or ever has been so influential a factor in our governmental affairs as to call for a constitutional amendment which beclouds the whole subject of the suffrage? Is there a cloud on our political horizon so big as a man's hand from the prospect of negro domination? Limit the suffrage, lest the black peril destroy us. Are we children to be frightened by such ghosts? Are the people of this state going to be 'fooled to the top of their bent,' at this late day, by such a political scarecrow? It is not the black peril that threatens us; it is the 'ring peril.' That ring would be glad enough to 'drag a herring across the trail' as the chase gets hot. We will not have it so. The cause at bar is well. As is generally known, Ring, and it is no time for any man to doubt or falter. I, for one have not only drawn the sword, but flung away the scabbard. I hail the firing line with joy. I give no quarter in the coming controversy, and I ask none. An insolent oligarchy may shackle our suffrage, but it shall put no gag between our lips. I say to you, here and now, that I will never file my tongue to smooth the meaningless phrases; I will never, so help me God, stop to count the cost of what I may dare to do or say so long as the political destinies and, a fortiori, the material and moral interests of this good old state lie in the hands of an unscrupulous political cabal, be it Democratic or Republican."

The One And Only Sun.

The SUN is a regular thermometer and barometer for Maryland's Democracy. When it declares for republican candidates or platforms, the temperature drops to zero and the barometer indicates all kinds of horrible weather. If it becomes lukewarm and uncertain in its position, the clouds become lighter, the temperature rises and the barometer indicates fairer weather. But just let it suddenly announce itself in favor of democratic candidates or favorable to a democratic measure and democracy basks under a cloudless sky. We are perfectly willing to admit the force of a great daily's influence, but we have never believed, as some of our democratic friends seem to do, that the Baltimore Sun—or any other paper—holds within its grasp the political destinies of a sovereign state.

Four years ago no words of execration were strong enough nor scathing anathemas harsh enough to characterize the feelings of the democrats against the Sun because of the attitude of that journal toward the proposed Poe Amendment, but now it is the "great home paper of Maryland," the greatest sheet of all sheets, and the only newspaper published in the United States, and all simply because it has decided to support the Straus Amendment. Strange isn't it, that there should be so much rejoicing because a democratic paper has decided to support a democratic candidate and a democratic platform. That the influence of the Sun will be felt is unquestioned but that it can secure the defeat of the amendment is impossible. The Sun's position upon the question of proposed disfranchisement amendments in Maryland and upon general political theories and policies has been too uncertain in recent years for it to have the effect it would otherwise have, and only last year the democratic hosts of Maryland repeatedly declared that it had long since lost all the influence it ever had in Maryland politics. But then of course it was supporting a Republican candidate for the Presidency and naturally according to the democrats—it makes a vast difference as to whose "ox is being gored."

Editorial Jottings.

The suggestion in THE COURIER last week that steps be taken to secure by popular subscription a sufficient amount to build gates at the dam so that the Lake can be refilled has met with decided favor. Now that the bridge is assured, the sooner the other matter can be attended to the better.

Do not forget registration days this year—September 28th, and October 5th. Unless your name is upon the books, you cannot vote. If you have changed from one district to another since last year, a certificate must be procured by you from the board in which you formerly resided and personally presented to the one in the district in which you now live. It should be attended to the first day without fail.

—The Salisbury Transportation Company, Capt. J. G. North, Manager, has secured the gasoline steamer "James Denison" and will begin regular trips upon the Wicomico River on Monday, September 27th.

—"The Holy City" will be the attraction at Ullman's Opera House Wednesday evening, September 22nd. This is said to be an exceptionally strong play. Tickets are now on sale at the box office. Prices 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents.

—The County Commissioners will publish next week their annual statement. This statement will include the levy for 1909, statement of the County's assets and liabilities, and an account of the receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 1, 1909.

—The patrons of Fruitland School will hold a Festival Sept. 22nd, 1909 on the vacant lot opposite the station. Among the other interesting features there will be a fishing pond and boxes of home made candy to be sold at auction. Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the school.

—Miss C. K. Swartz, Field Secretary of the Deaconesses of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will deliver an address at Asbury M. E. Church on Sunday evening, upon department church work. Miss Swartz is an unusually interesting speaker and the public is invited to be present.

—Munson, the sign writer, has bought a fine model thirty-six foot launch, which he will remodel into a cruising cabin sloop that will have some new and attractive features for that kind of craft. She was towed up from Fishing Creek by Capt. Cox Monday, and will soon be in commission.

—On Sunday, the 26th, a large class of probationers will be admitted to full membership at Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church. In the afternoon, the Sunday School will have its annual rally day services. Interesting exercises are being prepared and there will be special music. All scholars and friends of the school are requested to be present.

—The lawyers of the local bar are indebted to Mr. Ernest A. Toadvine for an innovation at this term of Court by which he has furnished to each a complete docket of the September cases ten days in advance of Court. The dockets are enclosed in handsome cases, and are so arranged that the sheets can be removed, and new dockets inserted at each ensuing term.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of Wicomico Presbyterian Church will hold a Rally Service at its regular meeting Sunday evening, September 19th, at 7 o'clock. Plans have been made for an especially interesting hour of worship. The subject of the meeting will be "Vanity Fair" of the Pilgrim's Progress Series. Besides the regular singing a vocal solo and duet will be rendered.

—Miss Adamson, the new Superintendent of the Peninsula General Hospital, arrived last week and assumed charge of the Hospital work and she will no doubt fill the bill at the Peninsula General. She has already made several changes in the working force and will make some more innovations as she becomes better acquainted with the surroundings. Her idea is to make this Hospital second to none in the State, and the directors have all confidence in her ability.

—Rally services will be observed at the regular sessions of both the Sabbath School and the Christian Endeavor Society of the Wicomico Presbyterian Church tomorrow and the sermons of the regular morning and evening hours of worship will be appropriate to these rally services. In the morning at 11 o'clock the pastor, Mr. Beale, will have as his subject, "Our Children's Rights" and in the evening he will speak upon "What our Church is doing for its Young People."

Thoroughgood Is Making His Good Clothing Store Better

Copyright 1909
The House of Kuppenheimer
Chicago

You've got to bring up a store as you bring up a human being: watch for weaknesses—develop its good points. Lacy Thoroughgood is building this business that way—holding fast to the idea that his success is in your satisfaction. No department is strong enough if he can make it stronger; no value good enough if he can make it better. Nowadays any good business is really a partnership, proposition, a place where values are shared between buyer and seller—and profits divided up. That's Lacy Thoroughgood's idea of good storekeeping. Let this be your home store. You like to buy in a chery good-natured home place—where you feel welcome, where there's genuine courtesy. This is that kind of store, and there's no "PUT-ON-NESS" about it. Lacy Thoroughgood likes the business he is in, and shows it. His salesmen, too, like it. Everybody in the store likes the business. We are all enthusiastic over our new Fall and Winter Clothes and Hats. It's just such a display of clothes as you'd expect to find at Thoroughgood's New Store. You see in the illustration a clean cut style and one of Thoroughgood's best sellers. Just come look—I want you to see them for yourself and be convinced.

The best sledges and dogs were selected and the sledges loaded brought up to the standard. The sounding gave a depth of 325 fathoms. We were over the continental shelf, and as I had anticipated, the successive leads crossed in the fifth and sixth marches composed the big lead and marked the continental shelf.

On leaving this camp the expedition comprised 16 men, 12 sledges and 100 dogs. The next march was satisfactory as regards distance and character of going. In the latter part there were pronounced movements in the ice, both visible and audible. Some leads were crossed, in one of which Borup and his team took a bath, and we were finally stopped by an impracticable lead opening in front of us.

We camped in a temperature of 50 below. At the end of two short marches we came upon Hansen and his party in camp, mending their sledges. We devoted the remainder of the day to overhauling and mending sledges and breaking up our damaged ones for material.

The next morning I put Marvin in the lead to pioneer the trail, with instructions to make two forced marches to bring up our average, which has been cut down by the last two short marches. Marvin carried out his instructions implicitly. A considerable amount of young ice assisted in this.

At the end of the tenth march, latitude 85.23, Borup turned back in command of the second supporting party having traveled a distance equivalent to Nansen's distance from this far to his farthest point.

From this point the expedition comprised 13 men, 10 sledges and 70 dogs. It was necessary for Marvin to take a sledge from here, and I put Bartlett and his division in advance to pioneer the trail.

The continual daylight enabled me to make a moderate pace that brought my advance and main parties closer together and reduced the likelihood of their being separated by open leads.

After Bartlett left camp with Henderson and their division Marvin and I remained with our divisions twenty hours longer and then followed. When we reached Bartlett's camp he broke out and went on and we turned in. By this arrangement the advance party was traveling while the main party was asleep, and vice versa, and I was in touch with my advance party every twenty-four hours.

I had no reason to complain of the going for the next two marches, though for a less experienced party, less adaptable sledges or less perfect equipment it would have been an impossibility.

Last Words to Marvin.

At our position at the end of the second march Marvin obtained a satisfactory sight for latitude in clear weather, which placed us at 85.48. This result agreed very satisfactorily with the dead reckoning of Marvin, Bartlett and myself. Up to this time the slight altitude of the sun had made it not worth while to waste time in observations.

On the next two marches the going improved, and we covered good distances. In one of these marches a lead delayed us a few hours. We finally ferried across on the ice cakes.

The next day Bartlett let himself out, evidently for a record, and reeled off plump twenty miles. Here Marvin obtained a satisfactory sight on latitude, which gave the position as 86.38, or beyond the farthest north of Nansen and Abrazzi, and showed that we had covered fifty minutes of latitude in three marches. In these three marches we had passed the Norwegian record of 86.14 by Nansen and the Italian record of 86.34 by Cagni.

From this point Marvin turned back in command of the third supporting party. My last words to him were, "Be careful of the leads, my boy." The party from this point comprised 9 men, 7 sledges and 60 dogs.

The north march was over good going, but for the first time since leaving land we experienced that condition, frequent over these ice fields, of a hazy atmosphere in which the light is equal everywhere. All relief is destroyed, and it is impossible to see for any distance.

In the next march we encountered the heaviest and deepest snow of the journey, through a thick, smothering mantle lying in the depressions of heavy rubble ice. I came upon Bartlett and his party, fagged out and temporarily discouraged by the heart racking work of making a road. I rallied them a bit, lightened their sledges and sent them on, encouraged again.

A Narrow Escape.

During the next march we traveled through a thick, low lying, smoky haze drifting over the ice before a biting air from the northeast. At the end of the march we came upon the captain camped beside a wide open lead, with a dense black water sky northwest, north and northeast. We built our igloos and turned in, but before I had fallen asleep I was roused out by a movement of the ice and found a startling condition of affairs. A rapidly widening road of black water ran but a few feet from our igloos. One of my teams of dogs had escaped by only a few feet from being dragged by the movement of the ice into the water.

Another team had an equally narrow escape from being crushed by the ice blocks piled over them. The ice on the north side of the lead was moving around eastward. The small force on which were the captain's igloos was drifting eastward in the open water, and the sides of our igloos threatened to follow suit. Kicking out the doors of the igloos, I called to the captain's men to pack their sledges and be ready for a quick dash when a favorable chance arrived. We hurried our things on our sledges, hitched the dogs and moved on to a large floe west of us. Then, leaving one man to look out for the dogs and sledges, we hurried over to assist the captain's party to join us.

A corner of their raft impinged on the ice on our side. For the rest of the night and during the next day the ice suffered the torments of the damned, surging together, opening out, grinding and grinding, while the open water belched black smoke like a prairie fire. Then the motion ceased, the open water closed, the atmosphere to the north was cleared, and we rushed across before the ice should open again.

A succession of laterally open leads were crossed, and after them some heavy old ice, and then we came to a layer of young ice, some of which buckled under our sledges, and this gave us a straight way of six miles to the north. Then came more heavy old floes covered with hard snow.

This was a good long march. The next march was also a long one. It was Bartlett's last hit. He let himself out over a series of large old floes steadily increasing in diameter and covered with hard snow.

During the last few miles I walked beside him or in advance. He was very solemn and anxious to go farther, but the program was for him to go back from here in command of the fourth supporting party, and there were no supplies for an increase in the main party.

In this march we encountered a high wind for the first time since the three days after we left Cape Columbia. It was dead on our faces, bitter and insistent, but I had no reason to complain. It was better than an easterly or southerly wind, either of which would have set us adrift in open water, while this was closing up every lead behind. This furnished another advantage of my supporting parties. True, by so doing it was pressing to the south the ice over which we traveled and so robbing us of a hundred miles of advantage.

Bartlett's Far North.

We concluded we were on or near the eighty-eighth parallel unless the north wind had lost us several miles. The wind blew all night and all the following day. At this camp in the morning Bartlett started to walk, five or six miles to the north to make sure of reaching the eighty-eighth parallel.

Bartlett returned in time to take a satisfactory observation for latitude in clear weather and obtained for our position 87.48, and that showed that the continued north wind had robbed us of a number of miles of hard earned distance.

Bartlett took the observations here, as had Marvin five camps back, partly to save my eyes, but largely to give an independent record and determination of our advance. The observations completed and two copies made, one for him and the other for me, Bartlett started on the back trail in command of my fourth supporting party with 2 Eskimos, 1 sledge and 18 dogs.

With the disappearance of Bartlett I turned to the problem before me.

As for my party, my equipment and my supplies, I was in shape beyond my most sanguine dreams of earliest years. My party might be regarded as an ideal which had now come to realization.

Four of them carried the technique of dogs, sledges, ice and cold as their heritage. Two of them, Hansen and Ootam, were my companions to the farthest point three years before. Two others, Eglugwah and Sigloo, were in Clark's division, which had such a narrow escape at that time. The fifth was a young man who was as fit as possible even more willing and eager than the others for the princely gifts—a boat, a rifle, a shotgun, ammunition, knives, etc.—which I had promised, for he knew that these riches would enable him to wrest from a stubborn father the girl whose image filled his young heart.

He Plans Five Marches.

I had no fault to find with the conditions. My dogs were the very best, the pick of 122 with which we left Columbia. My sledges, now that the repairs were completed, were in good condition. My supplies were ample for forty days and, with the reserve represented by the dogs themselves, could be made to last fifty. I decided that I should strain every nerve to make five marches of fifteen miles each, crowding these marches in such a way as to bring us to the end of the fifth long enough before noon to permit the immediate taking of an observation for latitude.

Weather and leads permitting, I believed I could do this. If my proposed distances were cut down by any chance I had two means in reserve for making up the deficit:

First, to make the last march a forced one, stopping to make tea and rest the dogs, but not to sleep. Second, at the end of the fifth march to make a forced march with a light sledge, a double team of dogs and one or two of the party, leaving the rest in camp.

Underlying all these calculations were a recognition of the ever present neighborhood of open leads and impassable water and the knowledge that a twenty-four hour gale would knock all my plans into a cocked hat and even put us in imminent peril.

At a little after midnight of April

1, after a few hours of sound sleep, I hit the trail, leaving the others to break up camp and follow. It was a fine morning. The wind of the last two days had subsided, and the going was the best and most equable of any I had had yet.

I set a good pace for about ten hours. Twenty-five miles took me well beyond the eighty-eighth parallel. While I was building my igloos a long lead formed by the east and southeast of us at a distance of a few miles. A few hours' sleep and we were on the trail again. The weather was fine and the going like that of the previous day, except at the beginning, when pickaxes were required. This and a brief stop at another lead cut down our distance. But we had made twenty miles in ten hours and were halfway to the eighty-ninth parallel.

Again there was a few hours' stop, and we hit the trail before midnight. We marched something over ten hours, the dogs being often on the trot, and made twenty miles. Near the end of the march we rushed across a lead 400 yards wide, which buckled under our sledges and finally broke as the last sledge left it.

We stopped in sight of the eighty-ninth parallel in a temperature of 40 degrees below. Again a scant sleep and we were on our way once more and across the eighty-ninth parallel.

This march duplicated the previous one as to weather and going. The last few hours it was on young ice, and occasionally the dogs were galloping.

We made twenty-five miles or more, the air, the sky and the bitter wind burning the face till it cracked. It was like the great interior ice cap of Greenland. Even the natives complained of the bitter air. It was as keen as frozen steel.

A little longer sleep than the previous ones had to be taken here, as we were all in need of it, then on again. Up to this time, with each successive march, our fear of an impossible lead had increased. At every inequality of the ice I found myself hurrying breathlessly forward, fearing that it marked a lead, and when I arrived at the summit would catch my breath with relief, only to find myself hurrying on in the same way at the next one.

But on this march, by some strange shift of feeling, this fear fell from me completely. The weather was thick, but it gave me no uneasiness.

Before I turned in I took an observation which indicated our position as 89.25. A dense, lifeless pall hung overhead. The horizon was black, and the ice beneath was a ghastly, chalky white, with no relief. A rise in temperature to 15 below reduced the friction of the sledges and gave the dogs the appearance of having caught the spirits of the party. The more sprightly ones, as they went along with tightly curled tails, frequently tossed their heads, with short, sharp barks and yelps. In twelve hours we made forty miles. There was no sign of a lead in the march.

"The Pole at Last!"

I had now made my five marches and was in time for a hasty noon observation through a temporary break in the clouds, which indicated our position as 89.57. I quote an entry from my journal some hours later:

"The pole at last—the prize of three centuries, my dream and goal for twenty years, mine at last! I cannot bring myself to realize it." The first thirty hours at the pole were spent in taking observations, in going some ten miles beyond our camp and some eight miles to the right of it, in taking photographs, in planting my flags, depositing my records, studying the horizon with my telescope for possible land and searching for a practicable place to make a sounding.

Ten hours after our arrival the clouds cleared before a light breeze from our left, and from that time until our departure in the afternoon of April 7 the weather was cloudless and flawless. The minimum temperature during the thirty hours was 33 below, the maximum 12.

The Return Journey.

We had reached the goal, but the return was still before us. It was essential that we reach the land before the next spring tide, and we must strain every nerve to do this.

I had a brief talk with my men. From now on it was to be a big travel, little sleep and a hustle every minute. We would try, I told them, to double march on the return—that is, to start and cover one of our northward marches, make tea and eat our lunch in the igloos, then cover another march, eat and sleep a few hours, and repeat this daily.

As a matter of fact, we nearly did this, covering regularly on our homeward journey five outward marches in three return marches. Just as long as we could hold the trail we could double our speed and we need waste no time in building new igloos.

In the afternoon of the 7th we started on our return, having double fed the dogs, repaired the sledges for the last time and discarded all our spare clothing to lighten the loads.

Five miles from the pole a narrow crack filled with recent ice, through which we were able to work a hole with a pickaxe, enabled me to make a sounding. All my wire, 1,500 fathoms, was sent down, but there was no bottom. In pulling up the wire parted a few fathoms from the surface, and lead and wire went to the bottom. Off went reel and handle, lightening the sledges still further. We had no more use for them now.

Three marches brought us back to

Can't Miss It

So many ailments are purely nervous affections, that you can hardly miss it if you try Dr. Miles' Nervine. It restores nervous energy—and through its invigorating influence upon the nervous system, the organs are strengthened. The heart action is better; digestion improved; the sluggish condition overcome, and healthy activity re-established.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine is worth its weight in gold to me. I did not know what ailed me. I had a good physician but got no relief. I could not eat, sleep, work, sit or stand. I was nearly crazy. One day I picked up a paper and the first thing that met my eyes was an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Nervine. I concluded to try it and let the doctor go, and I did so. After taking two bottles I could dress myself. Then I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and now I can work and go out, and have told many the benefit I have received from these remedies and several of them have been cured by it since. I am fifty-nine years old and pretty good yet."

ANNA R. PALMER, Lewistown, Pa.

the igloos where the captain turned back. The last march was in the wild sweep of a northerly gale, with drifting snow and the ice rocking under us as we dashed over it.

Traces of Marvin.

South of where Marvin had turned back we came to where his party had built several igloos while delayed by open leads. Still farther south we found where the captain had been held up by an open lead and obliged to camp. Fortunately, the movement of these leads was simply open and shut, and it took considerable water motion to fault the trail seriously.

While the captain, Marvin and, as I found out later, Borup had been delayed by open leads, we seemed to bear a patent alarm, and at no single lead were we delayed more than a couple of hours. Sometimes the ice was fast and firm enough to carry us across; sometimes a short detour, sometimes a brief halt for the lead to close, sometimes an improvised ferry on an ice cake, kept the trail without difficulty down to the tenth outward march.

Igloos there disappeared completely and the entire region was unrecognizable. Where on the outward journey had been narrow cracks there were now broad leads, one of them over five miles in width, caught over with young ice.

Here again fortune favored us, and, no pronounced movement of the ice having taken place since the captain passed, we had his trail to follow. We picked up the old trail again north of the seventh igloos, followed it beyond the fifth and at the big lead lost it finally.

From here we followed the captain's trail, and on April 23 our sledges passed up the vertical edge of the glacier fringe a little west of Cape Columbia. When the last sledge came up I thought my Eskimos had gone crazy. They yelled and called and danced themselves helpless. As Ootah sat down on his sledge he remarked in Eskimo:

"The devil is asleep or having trouble with his wife or we never should have come back so easily."

A few hours later we arrived at Crane City, under the bluffs of Cape Columbia, and after putting four pounds of pemmican into each of the faithful dogs to keep them quiet we had at last our chance to sleep.

Never shall I forget that sleep at Cape Columbia. It was sleep, sleep, then turn over and sleep again.

Two days we spent here in sleeping and drying our clothes, then for the ship.

We reached Hecla in one march and the Roosevelt in another. When we got to the Roosevelt I was staggered by the news of the fatal mishap to Marvin. He had been either less cautious or less fortunate than the rest of us, and his death emphasized the risk to which we had all been subjected, for there was not one of us but had been in the sledge at some time during the journey.

The rest can be quickly told. McMillan and Borup had started for the Greenland coast to deposit caches for me. Before I arrived a flying Eskimo courier from me overtook them with instructions that the caches were no longer needed and that they were to concentrate their energies on tidal observations, etc., at Cape Morris K. Jesup and north from there.

The Roosevelt's Cruise.

These instructions were carried out, and after their return in the latter part of May McMillan made some further tidal observations at other points. The supplies remaining at the various caches were brought in, and on July 18 the Roosevelt left her winter quarters and was driven out into the channel pack of Cape Union.

She fought her way south in the center of the channel and passed Cape Sabine on Aug. 8, or thirty-nine days earlier than in 1908 and thirty-two days earlier than the British expedition in 1876.

We picked up Whitney and his party and the stogs at Etah. We killed seventy odd walrus for my Eskimos, whom I landed at their homes. We met the Jeanie of Saunders Island and took over her coal and cleared from Cape York on Aug. 26, one month earlier than in 1906.

On Sept. 5 we arrived at Indian Harbor, whence the message, "Stars and stripes nailed to north pole," was sent vibrating southward through the crisp Labrador air.

Praise for His Men.

As to the personnel, I have again been particularly fortunate. Captain Bartlett is just Bartlett—tireless, sleepless, enthusiastic.

Dr. Goodsell, the surgeon of the expedition, not only looked after his health and his own specialty of microscopes, but took his full share of the field work of the expedition as well and was always ready for any work.

Professor Marvin and McMillan have secured a mass of scientific data, and their services were invaluable in every way.

Borup not only made the record as to the distance traveled during the journey, but to his assistance and his expert knowledge of photography is due what I believe to be the unequalled series of photographs taken by the expedition.

Hansen in the field and Percy as steward were invaluable in their respective lines. Chief Engineer Wardwell, also of the last expedition, aided by his assistant, Scott, kept the machinery up to a high state of efficiency. Mr. Gushue, the mate, who was in charge of the Roosevelt during the absence of Captain Bartlett and myself, and Bos'n Murphy, who was put in charge of the station at Etah for the relief of Cook, were both trustworthy and reliable men, and I count myself fortunate in having had them in my service.

The members of the crew and the firemen were a distinct improvement over those of the last expedition. Every one of them was willing and anxious to be of service in every possible way.

As for my faithful Eskimos, I have left them with ample supplies of dark, rich walrus meat and blubber for their winter, with currants, sugar biscuits, guns, rifles, ammunition, knives, hatchets, traps, etc., and for the splendid four who stood beside me at the pole a boat and tent each to requite them for their energy and the hardship and toll they underwent to help their friend Peary to the north pole.

But all of this—the dearly bought years of experience, the magnificent strength of the Roosevelt, the splendid energy and enthusiasm of my party, the loyal faithfulness of my Eskimos—could have gone for naught but for the faithful necessities of war furnished so loyally by the members and friends of the Peary Arctic club. And it is no detraction from the living to say that to no single individual has the fine result been more signally due than to my friend the late Morris K. Jesup, the first president of the club.

Their assistance has enabled me to tell the last of the great earth stories, the story the world has been waiting to hear for 300 years—the story of the discovery of the north pole.

Practicing on Wooden Legs.

Of the five cases in the accident ward that were pronounced cured at the same time three remained in the hospital more than a week after the other two had gone home.

"They had to stay," said an interne, "to get used to their wooden legs. It takes some time to learn to manage them, and most men who will have to peg along with them for the rest of their natural lives stay in the hospital several days after they get well to practice stumping around on their new legs. Of course they can learn outside, but the man who has just acquired a wooden leg feels so awkward and is so likely to fall down and break the other leg or an arm or maybe his neck that we prefer to keep him here so he can take his first lessons under our supervision."—New York Press.

Thousand Islands.

The Lake of the Thousand Islands is forty miles long and varies from four to seven miles in width. It is both a continuation of Lake Ontario and the beginning of the St. Lawrence river. The Thousand Islands are really about 1,700 in number, big and little. Many of them are favorite summer resorts, with hotels and boarding houses of rich Americans and Canadians. The voyage through them is picturesque, and many of the islands are illuminated at night.

Sunset in "the Red City" of Bavaria.

The numerous entrances to the old town of Rothenburg are guarded by beautiful watchtowers, which are inhabited by impoverished old women, who rent their airy lodgings for a nominal sum. The red twinkle of their lamps high over the dusky streets of Rothenburg at night—for it is as mediaeval in its lighting as in many other ways—is very charming in effect. The walls of Rothenburg are a constant delight to visitors, who, by dint of much squeezing through narrow passageways and groping in darkness, are able to make a circuit of the city, getting glimpses on the way through loopholes of the green country outside. Wondrous views of the town are also to be had from many of the distant hills. At sunset the sight of its graceful towers and cluster of red roof tops is like a fair vision of romance. The city blazes for a moment in a fiery mist, then suddenly melts, mirage-like, in the gathering dusk, leaving a sense of something born of dream, the illusion of an enchantment's wand.—Rothenburg Letter to Vogue.

Thought She Had Arrived.

"I have moved into a perfect gem of an apartment on the sixth floor of one of those new houses," said the woman who paints china, "and am reveling in its liberal supply of fresh air and sunlight."

"But don't you find the stairs an overbalancing disadvantage?" asked an acquaintance.

"The thought of the cozy quarters at such moderate cost colors my climb with the roseate hue of optimism," laughed the artist, "but one of my customers, middle aged and filled with good food and the joy of living, evidently found it a harrowing experience."

"It seemed ages that I waited in the hall after the ringing of the lower bell, and upon hearing the labored breathing of my ascending visitor I ran back for the appalling salts."

"When I had administered all the means of resuscitation at hand she managed to articulate between gasps: 'I thought St. Peter always opened the door!'"—New York Times.

MODEL CHINESE CITY

Professor E. D. Burton Declares Chengtu Has No Graft Nor Dirt.

STREET BEGGING STOPPED.

Vagrants Arrested Made to Work. Wonderful Municipality Found in Western China by Chicago Savants While on Tour of Research.

Chengtu, a city lying deep in western China, but more modern than New York or Chicago, was recently described by Professor E. D. Burton of the University of Chicago. The city was taken by the professor as an excellent illustration of the new impulse toward civilization in the far east.

According to Professor Burton, Chengtu is far ahead of both New York and Chicago. A chief of police who has ordered all beggars from the streets and who teaches the indolent to work according to the precepts of modern sociology, a head of the street cleaning department, who keeps the city cleaner than New York or even Paris, a superintendent of schools who is instilling modern education in law and mining and engineering as rapidly as possible—these are features of the strange story. The narrative sheds a new light on China and her people.

"Cleaner Than Chicago."

Dr. Burton was sent by the University of Chicago about a year and a half ago to study educational conditions in the far east. A short time thereafter Professor T. C. Chamberlin was dispatched as a fellow commissioner, but he ended the globe, going in the opposite direction. The two met in eastern China and thence went together into the little known western region, where they found the remarkable city. Dr. Chamberlin returned to Chicago by way of New York the other day. Dr. Burton reached Chicago several days ago.

"We found that the head of the street cleaning department of Chengtu is a man who has traveled and who has ideas," said Professor Burton. "He had organized an efficient corps of sweepers, and once a day the pavements were gone over carefully with brooms. The dust was carted away in bags on the backs of coolies. The city is far cleaner than New York, and, as for Chicago, there is no comparison."

No Graft in Chengtu.

"There is no police court in Chengtu. The head of the department could give the New York guardians of the law many pointers on how to suppress vice and put down lawlessness."

"One of his recent reforms is the stopping of street begging. Vagrants who were arrested he sent to the workhouse and kept them there until they learned a trade. It seems that there is no effort made to help this class of citizens in either New York or Chicago."

The city has also instituted a system of compulsory education. Unlike New York and Chicago, it is the plan to make each child a producer of wealth. The schools teach only those branches of literature that will be of benefit in making a living.

"In almost every department of municipal government Chengtu could be well studied by the cities of America."

Give More Milk, Too, After Their Teeth Are Brushed.

Two novel methods for dairy farming, originated and tried by W. Kelsey Schoepf, a wealthy traction man, are now a part of the routine on his farm in Glendale, a suburb of Cincinnati. Each one of the Schoepf's twenty-four full blooded Jerseys, the herd valued at $75,000, wears a one piece cream colored linen coat every day to keep off the flies, and thrice daily their teeth are brushed carefully by two farm hands.

Mr. Schoepf has always been of the opinion that if a cow's teeth were cleaned and its disposition kept unruffled better health and better milk would result. Accordingly when it was reported that the cows wearing the coats and having their teeth cleaned produced two gallons of better milk daily the orders became permanent. Ninety pounds of butter are sold each week after the Schoepf's residences in Cincinnati and New York are supplied. Mr. Schoepf's first innovation in farming was to order a daily bath for each of his Jersey cows.

Discovery of a New Island.

Captain Quatrevaux of the French steamer Thiers, who recently arrived at San Francisco from Newcastle, in Australia, announced that he has discovered a new island in the Pacific waters near the Galapagos group. According to the captain, navigation in the latitude of these islands is most dangerous. It was only with the greatest trouble that he navigated them in safety and that his vessel escaped being dashed on the rocks. The island is situated in 25 degrees 25 south latitude and 122 degrees 00 west longitude.

CURTISS, THE AVIATOR.

American Flier Who Has Broken Speed Record at Rheims Aviation Meet.

Glenn H. Curtiss has again made the world sit up and take notice of American ingenuity, daring and progressiveness. His record breaking exploits at the great aviation meet at Rheims, France, will live long in the fast increasing history of the air. His victory in the contest for the Prix de la Vitesse, value 10,000 francs ($2,000), was a splendid climax to his week of endeavor. He covered the course in this thirty kilometer race in 25 minutes 49 seconds, corrected time.

Curtiss, now the lion of Europe, is really a gasoline engineer. Aviation is merely a side line with him, in which he differs from the Wrights, who have given their lives to it. Curtiss eats lubricating oil and drinks gasoline. He began life in Hammondport, N. Y., about thirty years ago and became a newsboy because he needed the money. One day he traded a lot of old junk for an old bicycle. Oddly enough, that trade made his fortune and determined his vocation. It has been stated that Glenn Curtiss is lazy, but the fact remains that Hammondport is mostly on edge and that he got a cramp in the calf from pedaling his rusty old machine up and down hills. Then he caught sight of one of the early editions of the gasoline engine.

"Why not tie that engine on my bicycle and save me all this trouble?" he reasoned. He collected more old junk. When he had enough, he traded it for the parts of an antiquated gasoline engine. A few weeks of seclusion in the paternal barn followed, until one day Hammondport was almost interested by seeing young Curtiss fly up and down its angular street on his old bicycle, propelled by a gasoline engine he had in some occult manner attached to the frame. He kept on at that enterprise until by and by he began to build motorcycles. Eventually he had a factory that employed several hundred men, which made him a rich man.

When our best aerialists began wearing dirigible balloons some of them went to Curtiss for a motor that would push their gas bags. It naturally followed that the trying out process took place at Hammondport, and Curtiss in time became identified with the manufacture of flying machines of one sort and another. Then he tried his hand at it for himself and produced the June Bug, that famous pony built little contraption that won the first prize offered in America for a flying machine that would really fly.

Mr. Curtiss is a gasoline engineer first and an aviator second. He is chiefly interested in the performance of the motor. As the motor is the very heart of the aeroplane, his American friends and French rivals may be pardoned for the interest with which they watched his performances at the international flying races at Rheims. And the joke of it all is that it started when he traded for that old two dollar bicycle twenty years ago.—New York Globe.

OFFERS $20,000 TO AVIATORS

Paris Newspaper Would Encourage Practical Voyages.

The Matin, in view of the results at Rheims, which have shown the aeroplane's capabilities as never before realized, even by aviators, believes the time ripe for these machines to leave the race track and make real voyages from town to town. It therefore offers a prize of 100,000 francs ($20,000), to be awarded to the owner of the machine which makes the fastest time in a circuit from Paris to Dijon, Belfort, Nancy, Lille and Paris before Aug. 31, 1910.

All the French newspapers are enthusiastic over the great success of aviation week (last week), holding that it constitutes the greatest landmark in the history of the conquest of the air. They praise the enterprise and daring of the aviators, paying special tribute to the American, Glenn H. Curtiss, as a modest, consistent and patient worker, whose efforts have been crowned by the blue ribbon of the air.

Wanted All Three Wishes.

An Irish legend has it that a good fairy once visited an old couple and promised them that any three wishes they would make would be granted. After racking their brains for some time in an endeavor to discover what they desired most the couple decided to visit the county fair to see if something there would suggest what they wanted. They did so, and, after rambling around all day and not seeing anything that exactly suited them, toward evening they found themselves before a display of kitchen utensils. Among them was a soup ladle, cheap, but likely to appeal to a woman, as the old woman in an absent moment said, "Oh, I wish I had one of those," and immediately she had it. The old man was so enraged because his wife had thoughtlessly thrown away one valuable wish that he retorted, "I wish that was stuck down your throat," and immediately this was done. Thereupon he was at once sorry at what he wished, and the only thing left to do was to wish the ladle out again. So all three wishes went for naught.
