MR. M. A. HUMPHREYS BEGINS THIRD TERM.

Officially Notified of His Appointment As Postmaster At Salisbury—Has Been An Efficient And Popular Official.

Postmaster Marion A. Humphreys was this week officially notified of his appointment to the office of postmaster at Salisbury for the third term. Mr. Humphreys' second term expired several weeks ago and while it was generally conceded that he would eventually receive the appointment, because of the fact that he had no opposition for the place, he was not officially notified until early in the week.

The fact that Mr. Humphreys had no opposition when it became known that he was a candidate for reappointment is, in itself, the greatest compliment. He has brought the local office up to a standard which is not excelled by any office in the same class in the State and the office and delivery service could hardly be improved upon. Mr. Humphreys begins his third term with the best wishes of all the people of Salisbury.

Local Champion Defeated.

Mr. J. Roscoe White, the champion tennis player of Salisbury, spent a portion of last week at the Oatonsville Country Club, contesting for the State Championship. The finals in doubles were played Thursday afternoon, Clarence Fisher and Harry B. Davis defeating John S. Kerr and J. Roscoe White for first honors and a pair of handsome silver cups.

The match took four sets to decide the superiority of the teams. The score was 9-11, 10-8, 6-2, 6-1. The first two sets were hard fought and closely contested, the first going to Kerr and White after 20 games of sparring for points, while it required 18 games to decide the winner of the second set, Fisher and Davis winning. The third and decisive sets were easy for Fisher and Davis 6-2. In these sets the winners fairly ran away from their opponents, who had made such a gallant stand in the beginning of the match.

Kerr and White at times played excellent tennis, but they could not bunt their points. Kerr by spells did good work at the net, but wavered under the assaults which Fisher and Davis made upon him at close range. Mr. White, it is said, put up a splendid game.

Motored To New York.

Mr. Walter B. Miller left Salisbury last Thursday with his driver in his big Buick touring car for New York. He carried a party of lady friends with him, Miss Anna Graham, Mrs. D. Jarman and Mrs. Dr. Pritchett, making up the party. While in New York Miss Graham and Mr. Miller will be entertained at the homes of the two New York ladies accompanying them on the trip. They will return this week. Jarman and Mrs. Pritchett have summer homes on the Wicomico Creek and are frequent visitors at the Miller home in Salisbury.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD AEROPLANE RACES

AVIATION WEEK AT ATLANTIC CITY

It is not a far cry back to "Darius Green and his flyin' machine" when aerial navigation was considered impossible.

To-day Atlantic City is preparing for a great Aviation Meet from July 2 to 11, when three of the greatest flyers of the modern world will demonstrate their mastery of the air.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the holder of the world's record for speed, will fly daily from July 4 to 11.

Walter E. Brookings, who holds the record for high flying, will give exhibitions July 7 to 11 in a Wright aeroplane.

This is the first contest between the Wright and Curtiss machines.

It is also expected that Charles K. Hamilton, the great long distance aviator, will be present and race from July 7 to 11.

There will be prize events each day, including a fifty-mile flight over a five mile circular course, and prize high flying, July 7 to 11, directly over the beach front and ocean.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route to Atlantic City, and excursion tickets are on sale from all points. Connections are made in Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, with trains over the Delaware River Bridge, all-rail route.

MR. N. H. RIDER DIES IN PHILADELPHIA TUESDAY.

Well Known Salisburyman Passes Away After Brief Illness—Had Come To Quaker City For Treatment.

The sad news of the sudden death of Mr. Noah H. Rider reached this city Thursday and was a severe shock to his many relatives and friends here. Only a few weeks ago Mr. Rider left Salisbury for Philadelphia where he could be under the constant care of his physician. His health did not improve however and his condition resulted in his death Thursday morning. When this paper went to press the arrangements for his funeral had not been completed, but it is thought that his remains will be brought here for interment.

Mr. Rider is survived by his wife, Mrs. Caroline Rider and one daughter, Miss Nellie Rider, of this city. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. E. E. Jackson and three brothers, Mr. William H. Rider and Mr. John B. Rider, of the South, and Mr. Cranville R. Rider, of this city. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Rider, also survives him. At the time of his death Mr. Rider was 47 years old. He had been connected with the E. E. Jackson Lumber Company and for a number of years was located at Riderville, Alabama.

More Street Improvements.

The City Council has given notice that they will meet on Monday night, July 26th, for the purpose of passing an Ordinance to curb, drain and grade Main Street Extended from Fitzwater street to the line of Delaware street with reinforced concrete curbing.

The property owners along said street are given notice to meet on Monday night, July 26th, to voice protest if any they have against such improvement, which must be paid for by the property owners and the city half and half. This street has needed improving for some time, it is not likely that the work will be done this year, but the proper Ordinance will be passed and everything going ready to improve the street in the proper turn. The Mayor and Council are having requests at every meeting for the improvement of streets in the city by curbing and draining. The News started a fight for this kind of improvement several years ago and has kept up the fight continuously ever since. It is gratifying to note that everybody now wants the improvements.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a humming sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Her Fault.

The teacher in charge of the primary department at a school in West Philadelphia was talking the other day about her work and her pupils.

"They are dear youngsters," she said, "but they sometimes make curious remarks. Several times I have had occasion to reprove a little boy who isn't bad, but who is very mischievous and annoying. He is always getting into trouble and making a disturbance."

"One day he had been more than usually uproarious, and I was very tired. Instead of scolding or punishing him I began in rather an exasperated tone to talk to him."

"Tom," I said, "I'm afraid I'm never going to meet you in heaven."
"He looked up with the most shocked face. 'Why, teacher,' he said, 'that just too bad? What have you done?'"—Philadelphia Times.

A Modest Request.

An impeccably dressed gentleman the other day when walking along Piccadilly felt a movement in his pocket and, clapping his hand thereto, seized the wrist of the thief. He drew forth the erring member, and, looking at it with supreme disgust, he released it, saying, with a grimace of disgust, "For heaven's sake, my good man, go and wash your hands before you put them in a gentleman's pocket again!"—London Tatler.

Made Him Feel Old.

"What's the matter?"
"Oh, nothing much."
"But you look as if you had something serious on your mind."
"Well, if you insist on knowing, a boy who was named after me has just become engaged to be married. How time flies!"—Chicago Record Herald.

The Dollar Mark.

"Have you seen the Washington monument?"
"Yes," replied the New Yorker. "It's a pretty tall building, but what's the good of it without any office on top?"—Washington Star.

John Aborn's Disappearance

A Story of Kentucky When It Was a Wilderness.

By GERTRUDE B. WALKER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

One hundred years ago a young couple left Virginia, crossed the Allegheny mountains and settled in Henderson county, Ky. It was a wild country in those days, but very beautiful, nature seeming to tempt the pioneer with its virgin scenery, its immense trees, its profusion of wild flowers. And such temptation was necessary. The settler never knew at what moment the yell of the savage would break the stillness of the wilderness or when he and his family might be cut down by a tomahawk without even a whisper of warning.

John Aborn and his wife Mary journeyed to their new home down the Ohio river on the only means of land navigation known at that time, a flatboat, and on reaching their destination went ashore, "entered" a quarter section of land, built a log cabin and proceeded to make a living by the cultivation of the soil and hunting. Children were born to them, and other families settled about them. As more room was needed their cabin was extended, and within a few years the location assumed the semblance of civilization.

Aborn brought with him to Kentucky a few slaves and bought others from time to time, for we must remember that in those days the only hands a farmer could obtain were his own negroes. The community lived on game, of which there was abundance near at hand; the grain they raised and oats and berries, which grew plentifully on tree and bush. Each family was a unit bound together by the strongest ties.

But after a time the game was not so plentiful about the settlements on the river bank, and the hunters were obliged to go farther inland to provide meat for their families. Then it was that Mrs. Aborn's troubles commenced. In the wilderness still inhabited by the deer and the wild turkey were many dangers. Besides the Indian, there was the wolf, and there were desperadoes, who, whenever a new country is settled, on account of the absence of government find it a fine field for their lawless operations. Nevertheless every autumn John Aborn was obliged to go into the unsettled regions in order to bring back a supply of meat for the winter consumption. Sometimes he would go with a party of his neighbors, sometimes with a single friend and sometimes alone.

One October morning he set out on his annual hunting tour in company with Alexander Swift, the neighbor with whom he was most intimate. When Aborn embraced his wife and children before departing they clung to him with unusual reluctance to let him go. Whether this was due to a presentiment that evil might happen to him or that he must now go farther and remain longer than ever before, the fact remains that he and his family were loath to part. Finally, tearing himself away from them, he sprang into the wilderness with his rifle.

When it came time for the husband and father's return his wife and children watched for him eagerly. He had usually been away two weeks, but on this trip he purposed to be gone three. This was because with the settling of the country he was obliged to go farther from home. He had set out on a Monday and had promised to be back on Saturday, two days before the third Monday following. All that day his wife and children watched for him, but he did not come. The next and the next day they felt sure would bring him, but he disappointed them. The wife and mother began to be troubled, but repeated her anxiety as well as she was able from her children. When another week had passed and neither Aborn nor his companion returned, Mrs. Aborn felt sure that both had met with misfortune. The most reasonable supposition was that they had been killed by Indians.

A month passed, and still neither Aborn nor his companion returned. Then the other hunters of that region organized a band to go and look for the missing men. A week later they returned, reporting that they had come upon the body of Alexander Swift pierced with arrows and scalped. They had found no trace whatever of Aborn. It seemed probable that the two men had been attacked by Indians; that Swift had been killed and Aborn captured, in which event he must have met a worse fate than his companion. The rains had washed out the trail of the redskins as well as that of their captive.

The party before their return debated what report to make to Mrs. Aborn as to the probable fate of her husband and agreed that it would be best to tell her that her husband had doubtless been killed by the Indians, not mentioning that he had been first tortured.

As the Aborn family had increased the father, who at times had been troubled with insomnia, had slept in a room by himself. Mrs. Aborn, who did not relinquish all hope that he would return, kept this room always ready for him. But she kept it locked and never mentioned it to whom it had belonged. After her husband's capture by the Indians she sold her household negroes, feeling that she could not afford to keep them, buying a strong woman who would serve all domestic purposes. To this woman the bedroom that was never opened was a mystery. She once mentioned the room to her mistress, asking why it was kept locked, but received no satisfaction. After that she speculated a great deal about the room, telling the field hands that she "spected Missy Aborn had a bit 'n locked up in dat room." The settlers, or, rather, their wives, who knew of the closing of this room pitied the poor woman, whose husband had been doubtless tortured and burned at the stake by the savages and would never return. They assumed that she hoped her husband would come back to her and she wished him to find his room ready for his occupation.

Two years passed, during which Mrs. Aborn worked her farm as well as she could, and her neighbors on their return from their hunting expeditions always supplied her with meat for the coming winter and spring. But it was a forlorn country in which to bring up children, and she was often tempted to remove to Indiana or Ohio, where she would have facilities for giving them an education. Finally she resolved one autumn that if no tidings came from her husband during the winter she would sell her plantation and her negroes, keeping her horses, and, mounting her children and herself on them, would go to some point on the river bank opposite Ohio, cross the river and make a home in one of the villages of that state.

The winter passed without the return of her husband or any news of him. Friendly Indians came and went to and from the settlement, and the widow never failed to inquire if any of them had knowledge of a white man she described to them. But none of them could give her any news of him. In the spring she began her preparations for removal.

One night when she had put her children to bed she concluded to ride over to the house of a neighbor to whom she hoped to sell her plantation. It was a stormy night, but she was anxious to get an offer for the property and was not deterred by the weather. During the evening a band of friendly Indians came into the settlement and were soon wandering about in search of what they could steal. One of them appeared at the kitchen, where Martha, Mrs. Aborn's maid of all work, was at work, and, turning, she saw him standing in the doorway. She was wiping a plate, which she straightway dropped on the floor, and it broke in pieces. The savage in a guttural tone peculiar to the Indian said:

"Me want bed. Me good Indian. Me no hurt anybody."

Martha got up enough courage to tell the redskin that every room but one was occupied by the children and that was locked. The Indian horrified her by walking into the kitchen, taking up a tallow dip and proceeding to examine the house. Seeing the children sound asleep in their beds, he held the candle over each one of them in turn, giving a grunt of satisfaction at the sight of their rosy faces. Martha followed him at a distance, her complexion wearing the sickly light yellow of a frightened negro. She saw him go into her mistress's bedroom, and when he came out he had a key in his hand. Going to the empty chamber, he unlocked the door and said to the woman:

"Me sleep here. You no tell."

He accompanied his words with a savage look that tied her tongue completely. She wished to tell of the Indian who had gone into the only vacant room, but did not dare. He would surely know that she had told and would tomahawk her. When her mistress returned it was evident that the negro had experienced a great scare; but, though Mrs. Aborn tried to induce her to tell what had frightened her, her efforts resulted in failure. As soon as Mrs. Aborn had gone to her room Martha went out and reported the Indian's presence in the house. But she was either not believed or, those she told, considering that the group of red men who had come to the village were friendly, did not think the matter worthy of their attention, especially as the Aborn house was closed for the night.

Oblivion finally reigned over the settlement. Martha slept in one of the negro cabins and early in the morning returned to her mother's abode, dreading to find both her and her children murdered. Entering the kitchen, she went from there into the other portions of the house, and, finding everything quiet, the older children asleep in their beds and her mistress slumbering with the smaller ones, she made up her mind that the savage was less murderous than she had supposed him to be and set about getting breakfast.

Presently she heard a cry. Terrified lest the Indian, after all, was about to tomahawk her mistress, she ran out of the kitchen into a passage-way. There she saw Mrs. Aborn in the arms of the Indian, whose face had lost its coppery hue during the night. Mrs. Aborn's head was hanging limp on the Indian's arm, it being evident that she had fainted. Martha, supposing it to have been from fright, sought support against the wall to avoid collapsing herself.

The Indian was none other than John Aborn. And this was his story: He and his companion hunterman had been set upon by Indians. Swift had been killed and Aborn made a prisoner. He was taken far to the south and adopted into the tribe. No opportunity had occurred for some time to return north, and even then he had been obliged to delay going to his home. Those with whom he had entered the settlement were ignorant that he was a white man, and he did not wish them to know it. He remained concealed till they had left.

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort. Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards—but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none in outside heating.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nicest finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

THE Salisbury Building & Loan and Banking Association
The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $14,500.00, makes loans secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 30c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1897.
The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to set apart $25,000.00 of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes, receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. Dean's Kidney Pills
Work in Season
Most Salisbury people know that in some straits of fortune—besides constant riding on jolting wagons, long laborious hours, reaching or pulling, or in a hundred and one other ways these strains tend to wear out the kidneys until they find in their work of filtration, one from the blood, Dean's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys, strength in bad backs. Salisburians prove it.
A. R. Lobner, 318 William Salisbury, Md., says: "I am saying that anyone who uses Kidney Pills according to the directions will find relief from kidney trouble. For at least thirty years my kidneys were disordered and as I am now working in a draught and do no lifting, it was hard for me to get on my feet. My back aches very weak and lame and the erections annoyed me by their frequency in passage. It was finally my fortune to hear of Dean's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply of Leonard's Drug Store. They gave me prompt relief. I have not had on during the past few weeks finding great benefit."
For sale by all dealers.

Ready For the Next One
A generous and brave but eccentric Virginia planter named Carter, who had once been in the United States navy, and to hand battle at Antietam with his plantation overseer and off second best. He therefore, lashed the overseer to a fence, but the latter declined on the spot that, being a husband and father, was under obligation not to risk his family's destitute. Carter once removed that objection by killing upon the family a court-annuity. Then everything was ready for the fight, but just as two men faced each other the overseer arrived on the scene, took them into custody and had them bound to keep the peace. Mr. Carter, however, changed the deed of violence which he had provided for the overseer's family, remarking that he wished some time to resume the interrupted fight and hence would keep everything in readiness for prompt action.—New York Post.

Consult King David.
This amusing anecdote of Lamer is related by the Baroness Bower volume of letters. Shortly after the revolution of February he was on the bank leaves of his pocket the names of his proteges and a list to be provided with places immediately. Previously, however, it was he had scribbled "David" on the end of the head of the cabinet appointment, the said David consul at Bremen postulant, however, never came forward, and though the post did not being disturbed, M. Hétel was asked to ask who was the David on list.
"He who danced before the was the answer."
"Oh, dear! I have gossiped him Bremen!"
"How very singular! I mention for a subject for meditation, nomination. But you can cancel it." The minister registered the but few knew that the last consul pointed to Bremen was King David.

Economy.
Husband—Excuse me, dear, but you cook much more for dinner than we can use?—Wife—Of course, didn't how could I economize by leaving leftover dishes?—Cleveland Leader.
Not New.
"Electricity isn't a modern discovery. It is as old as the flood."
"How do you make that out?"
"Why, didn't Noah have to have lights?"

The Misfortune And Loss Of The News.

Readers, especially those who are at all interested in the make-up of the News, will notice a striking difference between this issue of the News and the latest issue of the Wicomico News.

Readers, who are subscribers to the News will notice reading both papers that the stories and news published in this issue are word for word. In justices and in most appreciation of what the News of that paper have done this week, we beg to state that the resemblance is more than a large part of the matter published in this issue is printed in the same type used by the News.

To speak the whole truth, the type for the articles previously mentioned was most graciously loaned us by The Brewster-Company at a time when we would have been entirely unable to publish this issue if not so kindly come to our assistance.

It is a fact that any industry, no matter how small, is confronted with difficult conditions which we are bound to contend with this week. It sometimes happens that employees leave without giving the slightest notice, and this is the fate that was meted out to our paper as published last week ago. On Monday, with the shop full of work and with employees short the man who was holding the position as man took French leave—even going to make his exit through back door and it was not until he had been away from the shop over an hour that the associate editor and manager knew he had been absent. Another employee, evidently taking a chance to make a hold-up, higher wages because we were short handed left later in the evening without notice when we refused to pay him more than he was worth. After his untimely departure, the Courier's second editor, Mr. Gorman Hastings, a three-year-old boy and the associate editor and manager (the last mentioned is not a printer) constituted the working force of THE COURIER.

At a crisis like this that the large quantities in men come to the surface. Printers—good men—are not easily found, especially at a moment's notice. Fully convinced of this fact and also aware of our advertising contracts which we had to publish the paper last week, we determined to get the regular weekly issue at all costs and although it has been seemed at the start an utter impossibility we are extremely glad now that the paper is in the hands of its readers.

It was because we were unable to set up the type ourselves, even if we had written the articles, that we borrowed the type which was set by the News, and we state, frankly, that but for the kindness of the publishers of that paper THE COURIER could not have been published this week, at least not with the news items that it now contains. We fully appreciate the courtesy that has been extended to us and if ever the occasion requires it we may be depended upon to return the kindness.

SHOOTING OF REVOLVERS WILL NOT BE TOLERATED.

Mayor Bounds Prohibits Use Of Cap
Pistols Also—Big Events Will Be Held On Grounds Of Wicomi-co Fair Association.

Everybody is getting ready for the big Fourth of July in Salisbury. The Directors of the Wicomico Fair Association have everything in shape and there will be nothing left undone to make the day a great one. The races at the Fair Grounds will be an attractive feature and the big balloon ascensions in the afternoon and evening will certainly be a drawing card.

Secretary S. King White has been at work for three weeks to get the attractions together for a big day and when Mr. White goes after the attractions he generally gets them.
Everybody seems to have gotten a move on them for this day and it is expected that at least ten thousand visitors will be in Salisbury to help celebrate the occasion.

The fireworks at night and the illuminated balloon ascension will certainly be worth seeing. It is proposed to let the small boys have his fun with the exception of shooting the dangerous cap pistols and fire arms loaded with bullet or shot.

Mayor Bounds requests us to say that innocent shooting of fireworks will not be molested, but that the shooting of revolvers will not be tolerated and the small boys must not use the cap pistols on account of the danger of lock-jaw resulting from the powder entering cuts on the hand of the children. He will instruct the police to arrest every man caught firing off a revolver and to take the cap pistols from the children found using them. His only object is to save the children from accidents and possibly death.

It is to be hoped that the residents of the city will decorate their houses and business places and let us make this a glorious day in Salisbury.

Board Awards Scholarships.

The School Board had a busy session last Friday. The following business was transacted:

Permission was granted the teacher of Oak Grove School to add the seventh grade to the curriculum.

Reports are still coming in to the County Superintendent of money raised by teachers the last scholastic year by means of entertainments. The amounts up to Friday totalled $637.

The examination for the vacant scholarship in Western Maryland College resulted in Clifford Ryall, of Fruitland, getting the highest mark.
There were four applicants. Young Ryall was one of the graduates of the Wicomico High School this year.

The vacant scholarship in the Maryland Institute was awarded to Miss Dorothy Mitchell, of Salisbury a graduate of the 1910 class of the Wicomi-co High School.

Three scholarships are vacant in the State Normal School, Baltimore, and up to Friday these was but one applicant, Miss Mary Pusey, daughter of B. S. Pusey, Esq., who was appointed. Miss Pusey was a member of the 1910 graduating class of the Wicomico High School.

The board having decided to change the location of Jones' School house, in Parsons district, changed the name of the school to Mt. Hermon School.

Twenty-eight teachers took the examination last week, with this result:
8 earned new certificates, 4 full certificates, 4 earned renewals, 4 failed, and 10 raised their general standing.

The contract to paint the Chestnut street and Bell Street school buildings was awarded Clifford H.
Adkins, his bid being $210.00 for both buildings.

No Report On Census.

Supervisor of Census White has about completed his work for this district and most of the reports have been forwarded to Washington. As yet he has not been allowed to give out any figures as to Salisbury's population, and people are still anxiously guessing. News from Washington Thursday stated that within a few days the Census Bureau will begin to make public the population of the larger cities of the country.

The figures for the cities containing 75,000 or more persons will be given out first. They will be followed later in the summer by the population of the States by counties, and which will also include the cities of 8,000 or more persons. From this it is apparent that we will have to wait until late in the summer to learn the population of Salisbury.

An innovation in church work in this State will be the Summer Conference which is to be held at Pen Mar, July 18 to 23 under the auspices of the Maryland Christian Endeavor Union. This Conference will be an entirely new feature in the religious work of Maryland and the many Christian Endeavor Societies in this County are interested in having representatives attend these sessions. The County Union is making a special effort to get out a large crowd for all the other Unions are working to the same end and the officers of this County want a good representation.

From present indications there will be peaches for everybody this year. The dreaded June drop has been very light and the trees all over the State are heavily laden with fruit. This condition also exists on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. This means that there will be enough peaches for everybody—that is, peaches plentiful enough and cheap to be within the reach of everybody. The prospect of a large peach crop on the Eastern Shore is glad news to the people of this section, for they had begun to believe that the fruit was a lost luxury. Unfortunately for the Eastern Shore, the expected crops have been failures for so many years that whole orchards have been chopped down and the land devoted to other crops.

The language of Paradise. Every tongue has its admirers. In "Lords," the author, Owen Meredith, maintained that when he heard French spoken as he approved he "found himself quietly falling in love." Edward Burton is another instance of this unusual fascination. In stating his preference in his enchanting "Cities of Spain," he recalls an interesting anecdote. He says:

"And as I listened to the splendid syllables of the Castilian tongue that rang eloquently through the twilight, I remembered the saying of that old Spanish scholar of whom I have heard. He told us in his instructions for 'Lords of the World' to wit, that Spanish and French, these three things of the Latin language, were spoken in Paradise, that God Almighty created the world in Spanish, the angels in French, Eve in Italian and Adam began his first sin in French."

Taste is Localized.

Taste is curiously localized in the mouth. Put a lump of sugar on the tip of your tongue and you will find it distinctly sweet. Then try it halfway back on the tongue and you will find it tasteless. All sweet or aromatic substances, such as wine, sugar and coffee, can be properly appreciated by the front half of the tongue, a piece of knowledge that every true connoisseur applies when he sips instead of taking a mouthful. With most other substances, however, the reverse is true. In these cases the tip of the tongue serves only for touching—it is the back part that tastes. The sides of the mouth, too, are quite insensible to certain substances not tasteless. Put some salt or vinegar between the teeth and the cheek and you will find them absolutely flavorless.—London Standard.

Wrestling For Rent.

In several cantons of Switzerland the custom prevails of holding wrestling matches and other exhibitions of physical strength at their choral, gymnastic and rifle festivals. The champions taking part in these athletic sports belong to the most diverse ranks in the social scale. Thus at a recent festival at Grenchen, a little town in the canton of Solothurn, a wealthy property owner and his tenant a carpenter, stepped into the arena to wrestle according to the rules of the art. There were to be four rounds, or "falls." The stake for each "fall" was one quarter's rent. After the carpenter had thrown his landlord four times the victor's prize was awarded to him, and he accordingly found himself entitled to live in his house rent free for a whole year.

MR. ROOSEVELT MAKING HIS FIRST SPEECH.

During his tour of Africa and Europe Colonel Roosevelt has lost none of his strenuousness in speechmaking. In his first speech on American soil after his return, on June 18, his oratory was distinguished, as usual, by earnestness, vehemence and vigorous gestures.

His Deduction.

The Sunday school teacher had just explained to the juvenile class that the first parents were made from dust. "Now, Edgar," she said to a bright little fellow, "can you tell me who the first man was?" "Henry Clay," was the prompt reply. —Chicago News.

As to Truth Telling.

There is an eastern saying which runs: "It is good to know the truth and to tell it. It may be better, knowing the truth, to talk of date stones." —London Truth.

As Bill Nye Saw It.

Bill Nye described a five shot Colt's revolver as "Professor Colt's five volume treatise on the ventilation of the human system." —Kansas City Times.

Settling the Barber.

"Hair's a bit thin on the top, sir," remarked the barber. "Won't you try a bottle of our hair restorer?"

The victim squirmed. "You made the same observation last week," he said, "and I expressed my desire to see you try the stuff on the doorman."

"Sorry, I didn't know you had been here before, sir," replied the barber as he went on shaving. "I didn't recognize your face."

"No," was the growling reply; "my face has healed since then." —London News.

His Suggestion.

Wigwag—I never knew such a fellow as Jones. He is always looking for trouble. Henpecked—Then why doesn't he get married? —Boston Courier.

Why the Wind Waits.

In his book on "The Picturesque St. Lawrence" Clifton Johnson tells of the curious superstition of Montreal which explains why the wind is always blowing at the point where St. Sulpice and Notre Dame streets meet, close by the towering cathedral.

It seems that one day, while the church was in process of building, the Wind and the Devil were walking down Notre Dame street, and the Devil after regarding with a frown of disapproval the graceful outlines of the new edifice rising before him exclaimed:

"What is this? I never saw it before."

"Very likely not," responded the Wind, "and I dare you to go in there."

"You dare me to do that, do you?" cried the Devil, with a sneer. "Well, I will go in if you will promise to wait here until I come out."

"Agreed," said the Wind.

So his satanic majesty went in. But he has not come out yet, and the Wind is still waiting for him at the corner

MR. LEWIS J. HAYES GETS BIG PROMOTION.

Made Superintendent of Prudential Insurance Company for Enlarged Territory With Offices At Delaware's Capital.

Mr. Lewis J. Hayes, who has been superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company with offices in the Masonic Temple this city for nearly two years, has been transferred to the Superintendency of the entire Peninsula of Maryland and Delaware and will leave on Monday for Dover, where he will make his headquarters. When Mr. Hayes was made superintendent of the Salisbury district, the original territory, which was known as the Dover district was divided, Mr. Hayes being placed in charge of this district and Mr. Frank V. Simpkins was superintendent of the entire territory. The territory has again been consolidated and Mr. Hayes, who only a few years ago was an agent, working under Mr. Simpkins, succeeds him as superintendent of the entire territory. Mr. Simpkins has been transferred to Chestertown as an agency organizer.

Mr. Hayes' territory now embraces all of the State of Delaware except the city of Wilmington and nine counties in Maryland on the Eastern Shore. He will have under him in the neighborhood of forty men. The offices in Salisbury will be continued and will be in charge of Assistant Superintendents H. L. Murphy and A. Hearn.

Mr. Hayes has made an enviable record since he assumed charge of this territory and his promotion is his reward for his untiring efforts.

Oldest Officer Dead.

Mr. James W. Kennerly died at his home on Poplar Hill Ave., on Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, of general debility. He was born in Somerset county, October 27, 1833, his parents being prominent residents of that county. In early life Mr. Kennerly was a farmer. Forty-five years ago he married Miss Addie White, daughter of the late James White, of Salisbury, who survives, with two children, Messrs. W. Arthur and George E. Kennerly. Deceased is also survived by two brothers, Samuel W. Kennerly, of Orisfield, and Wm. L. Kennerly, of Harrington, Del., also one sister, Mrs. Octavia E. Messick, of Orisfield.

In 1878 Mr. Kennerly was appointed Chief of Police of Salisbury, which position he filled for several years. He was afterward made Street Commissioner, and at the time of his death was an assistant bailiff, stationed at the N. Y. & P. N. depot. He thus served in an official capacity 31 years. Mr. Kennerly was a faithful and efficient officer.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, services at his late home.

PROPERTY OWNERS MEET AND PLAN FOR WHARVES.

Committees Appointed to Make Negotiations And Get Estimates Preparatory To Building Of North Branch Docks.

Pursuant to a call issued by former Mayor Harper, most of the property owners along the North Branch of the Wicomico River from the pivot bridge to the head of the stream, met at the City Hall Wednesday evening and arranged to go actively at work on the matter of building their wharves and dykes preparatory to the digging out of the stream.

Mayor Harper had a letter from Col. Casey, of Baltimore, who will have charge of this work, saying it would be necessary for the property owners to give the Government deeds covering any land which may be taken in doing this work and to also give the government the right to deposit the mud on their lands. There is no objection to either of these requests for the reason that the lines as laid down by the government engineers takes but a very little strip here and there for the purpose of straightening the harbor lines and as far as the dirt is concerned every property owner will be glad to have his land covered with it so as to make solid ground.

At the meeting Wednesday night Messrs. Charles E. Harper, W. U. Polk and B. Frank Kennerly were appointed a Committee to act for the property owners. This Committee will be empowered by the joint property owners to make negotiations and get estimates for the wharf building. It is thought that if a contract is given out for the entire work to one firm that it can be done a great deal cheaper and at the same time have a better job, as it would be practically a continuous wharf from the bridge to the mill dam on both sides of the river.

Mr. Polk was appointed a committee of one to go to Baltimore to see Col. Casey regarding the work and to ask him to have the Government engineers stake out the lines from the bridge up so that property owners could see just where the lines will come. From Col. Casey's letter it is the intention of the Government to ask for bids for the work just as soon as the property owners have passed up the proper deeds for any property which might be taken and have agreed to erect their bulkheads and wharves. If the Committee appointed get busy at once, it is thought that everything can be gotten in shape so that the dredging can be done this year.

All the property owners are enthusiastic to have the work started as soon as possible so as to get the wharves built and the dredging done during the present year. It is a big job, however, and may take a longer time. This will be one of the biggest things that has been done for Salisbury for many years.

Lee Morris Buried.

Mr. Lee Morris, son of Mr. William Morris, of Fruitland, died Wednesday at Catonsville, Maryland, where he was an inmate of the asylum for the insane. Mr. Morris was 81 years old.

DECISION OF INTEREST TO LOCAL INVESTORS.

Application For Reorganization Of Seaboard Portland Cement Company Not Granted Under Plans Submitted To Court.

The following item which was published in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal will be of unusual interest to the people locally, especially those who had invested money in the Seaboard Portland Cement Co. The article:

"Decision has been reserved by Judge Ward of the U. S. Circuit Court upon the application of the Seaboard Portland Cement Co. for reorganization of that corporation under certain plans submitted to the court. The Seaboard Portland Cement Co. was organized about twelve years ago by George A. Beaton, and went into the hands of William F. Allen of No. 49 Wall street as temporary receiver, in February last. The appointment was made upon the application of George A. Beaton, who also at the same time asked for a receiver for the Atlantic Concrete and Clinker Co., as subsidiary of the Seaboard corporation.

"A plan of reorganization is now proposed by Charles J. Hardy, as counsel for Beaton, and Noble, Jackson & Hubbard, as counsel for a group of bondholders headed by the Fidelity Trust Company. It transpired from the arguments that bonds to the amount of $1,818,000 were sold to people of small means; that an initial payment had been made for a tract of land on the Hudson river near Catskill, and that a balance of $87,500 remains unpaid upon this purchase. It was also shown that $318,000 was invested in the construction of a plant on the property, and that about $450,000 was paid to those who marketed the bonds. Counsel for Receiver Allen has made every effort to find out what had become of the large balance between the amounts accounted for and the total returns from the bonds sold, but they admit that their search has been entirely unsuccessful. The question which Judge Ward is considering before rendering his decision is as to whether the receiver shall be made permanent or his permission granted under the proposed plan of reorganization which entails scaling down the assets of the company and the possibly levy of an assessment upon the bonds."

Cardinal To Officiate.

The church premises and buildings formerly owned by the trustees of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, South, which were purchased by the Catholics in this city, have been opened and the new parish has been entrusted to the Oblates of St. Francis de Sales, whose provincial house is in Wilmington, Del.

The new parish is attended to by two priests, the Rev. L. Jaquier, pastor, and Rev. J. B. Borel, assistant.

The parish extends over three counties—Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset. The church building purchased has been rebuilt, and is one of the most comfortable edifices of worship in the city.

The church will be dedicated in September, and his Eminence Cardinal Gibbons will visit Salisbury and grace the ceremony.

SAVE AND SANE FOURTH ENJOYED BY THOUSANDS.

Crowds From All Neighboring Towns Visit The City And Participate In The Festivities—Rain Spells Evening's Fun.

The Fourth of July was a big day in Salisbury. Every train and boat entering the city from early morning until afternoon brought great crowds of people. The streets were packed with sightseers and the hotels and boarding houses were taxed to accommodate the visitors. The weather during the morning and early afternoon was ideal and everybody seemed to enjoy the day.

The Wicomico Fair grounds was the mecca for the crowd and many automobiles and busses were engaged carrying the 'crowd' out to the grounds. The races were highly enjoyed, but on account of the storm which struck the city about 5 o'clock the races could not be completed. A band of music furnished entertainment for the crowd and vaudeville performances and the balloon ascension on the big field was also highly entertaining.

The great feature which was to attract the crowd at night, the fireworks, had to be abandoned and the entire evening's program had to be given up on account of the big storm which passed over the city at six o'clock. The rain continued most of the night and the people were much disappointed at not being able to enjoy the night on the fair grounds.

During the day the Independent Order of American Mechanics held a big fair at the steamboat wharf, celebrating the 35th anniversary of the Order. A big crowd was in attendance all day.

The business houses and private residences were decorated and the town made a beautiful appearance during the day. One of the distressing features of the day was the fire at the residence of Dr. J. McFadden Dick, on W. Church street. It was supposed that lightning struck the house during the storm and it was soon in flames. The fire department responded and did effective work, but the house and its contents were ruined with water and smoke. The library and instruments of Dr. Dick were saved from serious damage. The doctor and his family were away at the time and fortunately no one was injured by the lightning. The loss is considerable, as most everything in the house was ruined. The big crowd in the city was attracted by the working of the fire engines and the police had difficulty in keeping the crowd back sufficiently to give the firemen room to work.

Result Of The Races.
More than 6,000 spectators witnessed the races Monday afternoon at the Wicomico Fair Grounds. The races were very spirited and closely contested, with the following result:

2:40 Trot, purse $250.00—Edwin G. 1; Richard Prince, 2; Obeso, 3; Dreamer Girl, 4. Time 2:39½, 2:37¼, 2:39½, 2:31.

2:40 Pace, purse $250.00—King of the Manor, 1; Bell C., 2; Sidney Collins, 3; Lady Hilton, 4. Time, 2:39½, 2:38½, 2:38, 2:28½.

2:18 Pace, purse $250.00—Lena Directly, 1; Peter Case, 2; Little George 3; Little Jim, 4. Owing to the rain, but two heats were paced, and the owners, not wishing to finish the race next day, decided to let the two heats stand as a finished race.

In the second heat Little Jim would probably have taken second place had not his harness broken. The time of the heats was 2:30½, 2:31¼.

The Farmers' Race, one heat of which was trotted Monday, was finished Tuesday afternoon. White Tips was 1; Dan, 2; Lady Golden, 3; Harry Redwood, 4; Rover Queen, 5; Sadie Pooks, 6. Time, 2:42½, 2:38, 2:41, 2:36½, 2:38.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Study For To-morrow, "Book of Matthew." Ably Discussed by A Local Writer.

Golden Text:—"The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."

REVIEW.

We have been studying very interesting and practical lessons during the past three months. In space of time in history they have covered the greater portion of the Saviors Galilean ministry, and are crowned with practical demonstrations of his great life work. The central thought has been the kingdom of heaven upon earth. Every act and word of the master has been to impress upon us just relation to mankind in its immediate and remote effects.

There is one unquestionable statement concerning Christianity, that is, in the history of mankind, there has never been anything that has effected effected man's physical, moral, intellectual, and spiritual being as has Christianity, nothing so universal in application. It is the recognized force behind the most remarkable reforms the world has ever known.

Japan, who is rising with her sister nations in higher idealism sends her bright mind to us for training. One of her bright men, visiting our country recently, said in effect, "While I do not recognize the divine origin of your bible, and the divinity of its chief character, I recognize in your Christianity an ideal and force above anything in its nature, and the force underlying the greatest nation the world has known."

Christianity, as it exists in America was that which demanded the creation of an America. It is the power that has kept America American. It came with the country's founding and has reached out to meet every new-comer, and has made itself felt. It has entered into the spirit of our organic law, and when it has failed to predominate originally it has subsequently demanded change. It is the force of truth and righteousness that to-day reaches out farther than organic law, and demands of her servants an ethical standard, the result of an ideal such as cannot be the result of fear of organic law.

We are well aware that this is not yet so universal or complete in its application as to preclude all wrong doing in society, but the results of inquiry into and demand for relief from social wrongs are now so productive of good that it bespeaks a complete relief from wrongs unavoidably implanted in the social political system, demanded and called into existence by this ideal.

Do we recognize this, and give credit were due?

Individually and collectively we benefit by it; do we, in any adequate measure, give return value to this great leavening force?

The pictures of this new kingdom, the redeeming reclaiming force, the coming of God to man to redeem him unto himself, as we have been studying them must open to our minds great things. In it we see God, and reach out to him through Christ, and in his truth and righteousness begin to live after the laws of the new kingdom. And thus man changes, and the world changes. Our lessons have been of words and works of the master as he established this kingdom upon earth, now about nineteen hundred years ago. It began as a mustard seed, it has developed as heaven, and become the pearl of great price. The prophesy of the kingdom spoken of that time can be best appreciated by a study of the fulfillment thus far. We cannot be too optimistic as we study, for great things are spoken of this Zion. By our lives we can make it a power felt and more effective for good.

Israel, the chosen people of God, were always an example before the world and His dispensations to them, their prophecies, and the great thing achieved in His name through them, challenged the world and still challenges it in their fulfillment. The greatest study of man is man and his relation to God. This is an era of study of history and prophesy as based upon the scriptures. It is thus that the kingdom spreads until "earth's remotest nation shall sound Messiah's name." C. B.

A Few Short Weeks.

Mr. J. S. Bartlett, Edwardsville, Ill., writes: "A few months ago my kidneys became congested. I had severe backache and pain across the kidneys and hips. Foley Kidney Pills promptly cured my backache and corrected the action of my kidneys. This was brought about after my using them for only a few short weeks and I can cheerfully recommend them." Sold by John M. Toulson.

Is Life Worth Saving.

Mrs. Mollie McRaney, Prentiss, Miss., writes that she had a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble, and that four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured her sound and well. She closes her letter by saying: "I heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to any sufferer of kidney disease. It saved my life." Sold by John M. Toulson.

BOWSER'S WHIMS

He Complains of the Vapidity of Human Nature.

SWAGGERS WITH A GROUCH.

While He Reverts to Events in History, Others Talk About the Weather. Mrs. Bowser About Cats—Moist by His Own Petard.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1906, by Associated Literary Press.)

THAT Mr. Bowser had a grouch was plain to Mrs. Bowser as soon as he entered the door, and she had the policy not to add to it. During dinner she had very little to say, leaving him to his thoughts, but nevertheless as they reached the sitting room he turned on her with:

"Mrs. Bowser, as I went to the office this morning at least six people observed to me that it was a fine morning."

"On the car at least six more predicted a hot summer."

"At the office three or four different men said they thought they should take a vacation next month."

"Coming home this evening five men spoke to me about its having been a fine day. I reach home. During the forty minutes we consumed eating dinner you told me of a dog fight."

"You said you saw ten cats on the back fence at once."

"You said Mrs. Green had stepped on a tack."

"You said a tramp with a black eye had been here."

"You said your mother had written you that she had a tooth filled."

"Well, what about it all?" asked Mrs. Bowser as he paused for breath.

"What about it? Nonsense, froth, vapidity, things to interest old grandmothers and young children, things to discourage and disgust a man of intelligence—a man with any thoughts in his head to think."

MR. BOWSER IS ASKED ABOUT HIS JAG.

"But we must talk about something."

"Yes, about the weather, tramps, cats, tacks, Mrs. Green, an old hollow tooth! Heavens and earth, woman, the vapidity of it all! On this day 100 years ago Alexander began the first real reform in Russia, and you talk about cats and tacks to me! Men of supposed intelligence sit in a street car and talk about the weather! It makes me tired. No wonder that men of thought became hermits and recluses. It is to get away from this infernal vapidity all around one."

"Isn't seeing ten cats all at once in a row worth talking about?"

"What has ten old cats got to do with the progress of this world? Here are a score of great questions affecting the welfare of mankind, and you talk to me about cats! Oh, to meet just one thoughtful man or woman!"

Mrs. Bowser Accused of Twaddle.

"Can't I say the gas bill came in to-day?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"No, no! What is our gas bill compared to the worldwide movement to save millions of lives by stamping out the white plague?"

"Well, the last butter we got wasn't good."

"Butter! Great Scott, but you talk of butter when the whole world is interested in the problem of flying!"

"Can't I say that I need a new pair of shoes?"

"No, no! Ten thousand women can go barefoot while the world hears of a new cure for deafness. Heavens! Must a thoughtful man always be surrounded by such twaddle and twitery?"

"Perhaps you could find some one on the street who wouldn't twaddle and twitery," was suggested.

"Perhaps I can, and I'll try it. If I can get even one suggestion with sense in it I shall return a happy man. Gas bills, cats, hollow teeth!"

Mr. Bowser took a walk. Halfway up to the corner he met his butcher.

"Fine evening, Mr. Bowser," was the salutation.

"Here! Stop! You have said that it was a fine evening. It is a fine evening. The biggest fool in America knows that it is a fine evening. Heavens, man, don't be a parrot! Why not say to me that seventy years ago to-morrow a comet with three tails was discovered and the world made better and wiser?"

"I just thought—you know—I just thought—"

"Yes, and a jackass would have done the same thing! Froth, foam, vapidity!"

The butcher went on, and at the corner Mr. Bowser found a well dressed, intelligent looking man. He hoped to hear him say that just ninety years ago the sausage stuffing machine was pronounced a success and Germany at once took rank as a great nation of earth, but he didn't say any such thing. He said he thought from the looks of the sky that it would get around to rain to-morrow.

"Sir, you are an ass!" shouted Mr. Bowser.

A Personal Observation.

"Got your jag on pretty early, eh?" replied the man as a car came along and he swung aboard.

It was the grocer who saw Mr. Bowser standing there and crossed the street to say to him:

"Bowser, from the looks of things I am afraid the cucumber crop is going to be a dead failure this year."

"You idiot! You blithering jackass!" was shouted at him!

"Why, what's the matter?"

"Matter? Matter? One hundred and seven years ago tomorrow vaccination against smallpox was discovered—one of the greatest boons of humanity up to date—and you come across the road to talk to me about cucumbers! S'death!"

"But I supposed—"

"Get on! Get on! Cucumbers, cucumbers! Isn't there a man in this city with the sense of a grasshopper in his head?"

Then Mr. Bowser walked along to the drug store and entered. He had some little hopes of the druggist, but disappointment awaited him.

"Fellow just in here who had the end of his nose shot off, while looking down the muzzle of a revolver," remarked the druggist.

Mr. Bowser choked up, but hung on to himself.

"Two cases of measles on your block." Mr. Bowser got red clear around to the back of his neck.

"I was off fishing yesterday and caught two suckers."

The storm was about to break.

"Fine weather for this time of year."

"You man of drugs! You blamed fool! You empty headed thing with a necktie on! Exactly eighty-seven years ago Napoleon crossed the bridge of Lodi, and here you are talking to me about some fool of a man who shot the tip of his nose off! Yesterday settled the fate of three nations, and yet you throw two cases of measles at me today! Thousands fell at the bridge of Lodi, and yet you went out and caught two suckers! Sir, you ought to be sent to an idiot asylum!"

Gets His Own Medicine.

With that Mr. Bowser bounded out and returned home. Mrs. Bowser was holding her jaws. She couldn't think of any great question to ask, and she was afraid to ask any small one. He sat down and stared at the wall and thought tremendous thoughts for a few minutes and then went down the hall to answer a ring of the bell. The ring looked like a tramp, but he didn't talk like one. He said:

"Sir, I have called to inform you that just ninety-nine years ago today the nutmeg grater was invented and the state of Connecticut was saved to the Union."

"And, sir, 224 years ago tomorrow the first buckwheat cake was turned out in New England and the first pumpkin pie in New Hampshire."

"And further, sir, 905 years ago this very evening the discovery was made that the reason the frog didn't have a tail was because it would get tangled up with his hind legs when he jumped. I bid you good evening. No use for you to chase me, for I can run two rods to your one."

"By thunder!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he returned to the sitting room.

"Mr. Bowser, you forget yourself," corrected Mrs. Bowser. "Seventy-four years ago today the coffee mill was invented. Previous to that they had to pound coffee in a bag. Don't talk nonsense, froth, vapidity to me!"

And he glared at her and never said a word.

How About It?

"Something is wrong with our modern country life."

"Think so?"

"Sure. Up to date farmers take more interest in a squatty automobile shed than they do in a big barn."

Cures Colds; Prevents Pneumonia

Miss Whitehead is thirty and home-

"I am not a judge of beauty. You might think her fairly good looking."

"It takes two to make a bargain. What do you think Miss Whitehead would say to your plan?"

"She favors it."

"Favors it?"

"Yes, sir. She has told me several times that it's the only way of making a satisfactory permanent settlement."

"Oh, I see. Miss Whitehead, having such an opinion, prefers to let it be known through another. I'm inclined to think she went away on purpose to enable me to get it through you."

"You're right, sir. The story about her aunt was made up."

"Well, upon my word. You're very frank about it. But, while Miss Whitehead, you say, favors a settlement by marriage, it doesn't mean that she would settle it in that way without seeing me, and if she sees me she might decide that no such settlement is possible."

"I think that part of it would be all right, sir."

"Why so?"

"Well, Miss Whitehead is a very sensible and a very practical woman. She is also peculiar and has some strange notions. She thinks that love often blinds us to our best interests. She went away resolved that if this settlement by marriage be agreed to by you her consent would depend entirely on my report of you."

"The dickens she did! That beats anything of the kind I ever heard of as coming from a woman."

"Miss Whitehead, as I told you, is very peculiar."

"I should think she is, leaving the question of her acceptance of a life partner to her maid."

"But under the circumstances, don't you think, sir, that it shows a certain depth of wisdom?"

"I don't know but it does."

"Well, sir, since my mistress has left her part in the matter to me it is settled. Now, what shall I say to her as to your part?"

"You can say that I am so astonished at this remarkable method of bringing about a settlement that I don't know what to say. It's my opinion that you have furnished the brains to concoct such a plan. If you were making the proposition on your own behalf I would say, 'It's a go.'—As it is I must see Miss Whitehead before giving an answer."

"Very well, sir; I will telegraph her to come at once."

"How long will she be coming?"

"She will be here for dinner."

With that the maid arose, remarked that the periodicals on the table were of the latest issue and left him. Instead of reading them he got up and walked about the grounds. He saw nothing, however, his mind being entirely taken up with this remarkable turn in his affairs. The maid had doubtless been instructed to say that Miss Whitehead was older than she was and plain looking. It would not do for her as her mistress' spokesman to say that she was young and beautiful. He was very impatient to see this practical and peculiar lady and sincerely hoped that he would find her prepossessing since much depended upon whether he could bring himself to marry her. But he could not divest himself of admiration at the way her maid had acquitted herself of so delicate a mission. Indeed, he was remarkably pleased at both the plan and the manner in which it had been carried out. But the as yet unseen Miss Whitehead—would her appearance correspond with her talent for diplomacy or her maid's diplomacy?

Every ten or fifteen minutes he took out his watch to note the time, which dragged heavily. Between 5 and 6 o'clock he went to the house and asked a servant what time dinner would be served. He was informed that Mrs. Whitehead usually dined at 7. Then he inquired if Miss Whitehead had returned. There was no need for him to ask this question, for he had been watching all the afternoon to see her drive up. When he received a negative reply he sent for the maid-secretary and asked her if she were sure her mistress would return in time for dinner.

"She will surely be here, sir," was the reply. "I think it is time for you to dress for dinner, sir. Miss Whitehead always expects her guests to wear evening dress for dinner."

With that Mr. Jurnegan went up to his room. It was in the rear of the house, so that he could not see Miss Whitehead's arrival, but since her maid had so definitely informed him that she would come in time for dinner he dismissed the matter from his mind. At half past 6 he heard carriage wheels grinding on gravel. His heart throbbed. She had come.

A few minutes before 7 Mr. Jurnegan went downstairs. At 7 punctually the butler announced dinner.

"But where is Miss Whitehead?" asked the guest.

"You will find her in the dining room."

Thinking the lady had naturally put off their meeting till the last moment from motives of delicacy, Mr. Jurnegan went into the dining room. A young lady in evening dress advanced to meet him. He stopped and looked upon her, surprised. He saw the maid-secretary in the costume of her mistress.

"Your mistress has not arrived after all, I suppose, and you are to take her place."

"Are you disappointed?"

"Disappointed? I'm delighted!"

"I will not deceive you any longer. I am Miss Whitehead."

Jurnegan stared at her in mute astonishment for a few moments, then when he found his tongue said:

"Your proposition is accepted."

Diplomacy

How a Maid Proposed Marriage For Her Mistress.

By F. A. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A gentleman, handsomely dressed, alighted from a railway train at a suburban station and, going out to where carriages stood waiting, looked about for one he expected to meet him. Passing a landau in which sat a young woman in the costume of a maid, she called to him:

"Beg pardon, sir. Are you Mr. Jurnegan?"

"I am."

"I've been sent by Miss Whitehead to meet you."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, sir. Miss Whitehead was intending to come herself, but she was called away suddenly this morning."

Since it was a four hour journey each way Mr. Jurnegan decided to stay. But what was he to do to amuse himself till tomorrow? He and Miss Whitehead were both interested in an estate that was in litigation. Mr. Jurnegan's father and Miss Whitehead's uncle had been partners in business and had left their affairs in a tangle. Mr. Jurnegan seemed to have the best of the legal situation, and Miss Whitehead's attorney advised her to meet Mr. Jurnegan, whom she had never seen, and endeavor to effect a compromise. He strongly recommended her to marry him if she could. She had invited him to her home for a conference. As he rolled along he concluded to pump the maid.

"Does Miss Whitehead live alone?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, with a housekeeper for chaperon."

"Good mistress?"

"Very good—in some ways, sir."

"In what way?"

"Well, sir, there's nothing mean about her. She pays good wages and gives us days out quite often, besides lots of fine castoff clothing. But she's very independent, does things her own way, and the neighbors call her freaky."

There was nothing in this to help Mr. Jurnegan to an opinion as to whether he would be able to make a compromise favorable to his own interests or not, though the fact that Miss Whitehead was not mean looked well. On reaching her residence he alighted and was shown to his room by a manservant. There he made his toilet and went down to luncheon. After that he had a whole afternoon before him with nothing to do. Going on to the piazza, he lit a cigar. The maid came out with periodicals, which she placed on a table near him.

"Miss Whitehead told me I was to do my best to make your waiting as easy as possible, sir."

"I don't know how you can do that better than by telling me about Miss Whitehead," he responded. "Sit down and tell me what she is like."

The girl demurred at seating herself near a gentleman, but agreed that if he would permit her to get her needlework she would answer any questions he might ask. He gladly consented and on her return began his inquiries.

"How old is Miss Whitehead?"

"I don't know, sir. She might be thirty."

"Thirty! I heard she was not more than twenty-two."

"She looks it anyway."

"Good looking?"

"Oh, no, sir! Miss Whitehead is not good looking."

"Then she's very stupid to have so pretty a maid. The contrast is detrimental to her own appearance."

Naturally the maid was pleased at this compliment. She bent her head over her work and said nothing.

"I fancy," pursued Jurnegan, "that your mistress must rely on you for more than the duties of a maid or she would not have entrusted you with keeping me here till her return?"

"I sometimes act as secretary for her."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, sir, and she likes to talk over her business affairs with me. You see, she has no one else to talk with about them."

"She wouldn't talk with you very long about them if she didn't get valuable hints from you."

At this moment a telegraph messenger boy came in at the gate and delivered a dispatch. The maid opened and read it.

"It's from Miss Whitehead," she said. "She is uncertain about her return and would like you to make her a proposition through me."

"I told you so. She has recognized in you a head for business."

Mr. Jurnegan was a clear headed man and one who acted on broad and liberal principles. He laid down the business situation between himself and Miss Whitehead showing that their interests were identical, that they must manage harmoniously the property in which they were jointly interested. He was proceeding when the maid interrupted him.

"It seems to me, sir," she said, "that by far the best arrangement to be made is for you and Miss Whitehead to marry. I hope you'll never tell her I proposed such a thing. If you do I'll lose my place."

"I had often thought of that myself," said Jurnegan, naturally surprised.

"But I am opposed to marrying a woman older than myself. You say that

WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Salisbury.

Most Salisbury people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk—riding on jolting wagons or cars—doing laborious housework; lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in back aches. Salisbury cures prove it.

A. R. Lohner, 318 William Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I feel safe in saying that anyone who uses Doan's Kidney Pills according to directions will find relief from kidney trouble. For at least thirty years my kidneys were disordered and as I am obliged to work in a draught and do much heavy lifting, it was hard for me to escape kidney ills. My back often became very weak and lame and the kidney secretions annoyed me by their irregularity in passage. It was finally my good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at White & Leonard's Drug Store. They brought me prompt relief. I have used them off and on during the past ten years, always finding great benefit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Saved by His Wit

Lord Justice Fitzgibbon, at the time when he was one of the justices of appeals of Ireland, was holding assizes in Tipperary county when a man was brought before him on indictment for murder. The case was proved that the victim came to his death by being hit with a stick in the hands of the defendant, but the doctor testified that he had what they called in medical parlance a "paper skull."

The case looked dark for the prisoner, however, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty. As the man was brought before the court for sentence it was noticed that his lordship had his black cap in his hand.

"Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?" demanded Lord Fitzgibbon.

The man looked for a moment and then said, "No, your lordship, I have nothing to say, but I should like to ask one question."

"What is that, my man?" said Fitzgibbon.

"I should like to know what a man with a head like that was doing in Tipperary?"

The black cap was put away and a prison sentence imposed.

"If"

Joseph Chamberlain, the English statesman, was once indebted to a nursery rhyme for a great oratorical hit. In one of his speeches he was criticizing Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury on their return from Berlin, where they had been carrying on negotiations with Bismarck. Both had made speeches explaining their actions, and one of them in the course of his oratory used the word "if" so many times as to give Mr. Chamberlain a chance in his reply to make one of those popular allusions which are remembered longer than any logic.

"What the honorable gentleman has said," he remarked, "remind me of a rhyme I learned from my nurse:

"If all the seas were bread and cheese,
If all the rivers were ink,
If all the lakes were currant cakes,
What should we have to drink?"

The effect on the audience was tremendous. No one ever forgot that "if."

Marriage Marts

The famous Tunis marriage mart is held twice a year, in the spring and in the autumn. The Tunisian girls attend by the hundreds, each with her dowry in coin and jewelry disposed about her person. The "golden girdle of maidenhood" encircles her waist, and in it is an unsheathed dagger. When the dagger is gently removed by a passing gallant and presently returned, it means that a proposal has been made.

A prettier custom prevails among the Omani maids, who, at stated intervals, assemble in the market place. In front of each is a lighted lamp, an emblem of conjugal fidelity. A young man feels attracted and gently blows upon the flame, extinguishing it. When the girl relights it, it is a rejection; if she allows the

Why Is This Appointment Indefinitely Postponed?

Although the name of Josephus G. North was submitted to the members of the City Council several weeks ago with the recommendation that he be appointed to the office of Chief of Police for the city of Salisbury, no action has been taken by that seemingly deliberative body up to this time. The fact that all of the other names that were submitted to the council by Mayor Bounds at the same time have been confirmed is, in itself, significant. We are at a loss to understand the cause of the delay and because of our ignorance of the subject (no reason has ever yet been made public by the authorities) we are totally unable to inform our many interested readers in the matter.

It is for this reason that we now ask for a public explanation of the delay. We know of no reason why the appointment of Captain North should not be confirmed. And as far as we can learn his appointment seems to meet with the general approval of the public. Is there some good reason, known only to the members of the present council, why his name should not be confirmed? Is he not qualified in every particular to faithfully discharge the duties of the office? If so, are the things, whatever they are, that disqualify him, of such a nature that they must be so secretly guarded? Has not the public the right to know the full particulars and the reasons which have retarded the confirmation of the apparently satisfactory recommendation?

We think it has, and the numerous inquiries we have had is, we believe, conclusive proof that the appointment would meet with the unqualified commendation of tax-payers of the community.

If Captain North is to be appointed to the office of Chief of Police his appointment should be confirmed without further delay. If his appointment is not looked upon with favor by the municipal authorities, he should be informed of the fact. In any event, the cause for the long delay should be made public. A little more light is needed on this important matter.

CHURCH BUILT IN ROCK.

Traditional Murder Cause of German Curiosity.

In the quiet old German town of Oberstein an ancient church stands, built in the great rock rising from the river. The front of the building is of stone, but the church itself is hollowed out of the rock and penetrates far into its heart.

Tradition says that in the fourteenth century the Count of Oberstein, one of the old robber barons, fell deeply in love with a beautiful young lady, the daughter of a neighboring knight. His brother also sought the fair maiden's hand, and the two suitors had a violent quarrel. The upshot was that the count flung his hapless brother from the top of the castle wall, high up the precipitous cliff.

Repenting of his deed, the count vowed that he would build a church where his brother's body first touched the ground. He did so, excavating the church in the rock, and tradition goes on to say a miraculous spring of clear water sprang from the crag as a token that heaven was appeased.

GOTHAM TO HAVE HUGE NEW PORT

Jamaica Bay Is $70,000,000 Harbor of Future.

MAY BE FINISHED IN 1950.

Double Area of Manhattan Island to Be Utilized For Docks, and Long Island Cutoff Will Connect With State's Thousand Ton Barge Canal With Lake Erie.

They're going to give the port of New York room to grow!

It's all settled. Congress, the legislature, the city council, the board of estimate and apportionment and Mayor Gaynor have all agreed upon the plans for the Jamaica Bay improvement; most of the red tape has been unwound, the first installment of a series of appropriations that may ultimately aggregate $70,000,000, more or less, has actually been made, and in a very short time the dirt will begin to fly, or, to put it literally, the mud will begin to flow.

When it is all over the metropolis of the western hemisphere will be the world's greatest seaport, with the most extensive harbor, the most liberal allowance of docks and wharfs and the most up to date facilities for the economical handling of freight to be found anywhere.

To Help City's Growth. Incidentally these things will help materially to make the city, the major part of which by that time will have moved over to Long Island for lack MAP SHOWING SITE OF NEW YORK'S NEW HARBOR AND PROPOSED TO BE SPREAD OUT OF ANY OTHER PLACE IN WHICH TO SPREAD OUT, THE METROPOLIS OF THE WORLD, FOR BY 1950 OR SOONER IT IS EXPECTED TO HAVE AT LEAST 10,000,000 INHABITANTS. SOME OF THE MORE ENTHUSIASTIC PROPHETS MAKE IT 20,000,000.

At present there is not much to suggest a great world harbor at Jamaica Bay. The bay itself is a shallow sheet of water covering an area of 16,170 acres, or twenty-five and a half square miles, in which a few oysters are grown and a few unsophisticated minnows are caught by holiday fishermen. Adjacent are 8,500 acres of salt marsh, the present home of untold billions of mosquitoes. There are 4,200 additional acres of marsh land apart from the main body, making the total area of bay and marshes 28,970 acres, or forty-five and a half square miles, double the area of Manhattan Island.

Terminus of New Canal.

The new harbor is to be the tide-water terminus of the thousand ton barge canal now being built by the state at a cost of $101,000,000 from Lake Erie to the Hudson river, which is expected to bring 10,000,000 tons of freight to New York annually.

Plans are already afoot to provide a short cut for the barges from the Hudson by way of the Harlem river to Flushing bay and thence by a canal eight miles long across the western end of Long Island to Jamaica Bay, thus avoiding the congested waters of New York harbor and incidentally avoiding also possible rough water in the lower bay.

FIND USES FOR SAWDUST.

Alcohol, Fuel and Powder Ingredient Among Discoveries.

Spruce and pine sawdust, thrown aside by American millmen as worthless, commands a steady price in Norway. There it is ground into holzmehl, or wood flour, kiln dried, packed in sacks and sold to America for the purpose and sold to linoleum and blasting powder manufacturers. It sells for about $12 a ton, and in 1907 the exports of this material from Norway were valued at nearly $80,000.

In France a new process, which is said to have proved successful, is employed in extracting an excellent grade of alcohol from sawdust. About twenty-seven and a half gallons of alcohol and forty-two pounds of acetic acid are extracted from each long ton of sawdust, while the residue is sold for fuel in briquet form.

As the latter process is patented in the United States it is hoped that it will be placed in operation here and that the sawdust now thrown into trout streams will be utilized for a more worthy purpose.

Wireless to Connect Islands. The governments of Australia and New Zealand will connect various groups of British Pacific islands by wireless.

American Overlooks Chance. Galvanized corrugated sheet iron is extensively imported into Siam, yet none of it enters from the United States.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT IN CONVERSATION WITH MR. E. MONT REILY ON BOARD THE KAISERIN AUGUSTE VICTORIA.

During his return voyage to America on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria Mr. Roosevelt did a great deal of literary work and answered a bushel of letters. He was very approachable and talked with many passengers each day. He was very noncommittal in his answers to political questions of a leading character. In the picture he is shown talking with E. Mont Reily, a business man of Kansas City.

Language of Switzerland.
It is a curious fact that the people most celebrated for love of country should in a manner be without a language—that is, a mother tongue. The Swiss have three official languages—German, French and Italian. About three-fourths of the population of the mountain confederation speak German, while the remainder divide four other languages among them, chiefly French and Italian, these languages being found, as a rule, in districts in close proximity to the countries where in those languages are the principal tongue. In Switzerland documents and notices are printed in both the French and German languages. In the national assembly members deliver their speeches in either French or German for nearly all members understand both tongues. The decrees and proclamations of the president are translated by an official interpreter and furnished to the press in both languages.—New York Press.

To Take No Chances.
Hamlet—Why in the dickens have you got that string tied around your tooth?

Absentee—To remind me that I must have the tooth removed.

Hamlet—But, goodness gracious, why don't you do as ordinary people and have the string tied around your finger?

Absentee (stiffly)—Because, sir, I don't care to have my finger removed.—Chicago News.

Mistake of a Comma.
This instance of what a mistake of a comma can produce has been noticed: "Lord Palmerston then entered upon his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a dark menacing glare saying nothing."—Circle Magazine.

Estimated in Money.
"Tommy," said the boss, "you quit smoking two or three months ago, didn't you?"
"Yea, sir," answered the office boy.
"How much have you gained in weight?"
"Well, sir, countin' it in nickels, I reckon I've gained about four pounds."—Chicago Tribune.

Diplomacy.
She longed for a new hat. So she began to worry her husband for a new dress.
"He—A new dress! Can't afford it. If you wanted gloves or a new hat I wouldn't mind. But a new dress!"
"She—Well, don't get hurried, dearest. You know I always give in. So just buy me a new hat."

Wise Elephants.
Elephants, those animal sages that are constantly changing keepers, become so wise and know so much about the tricks of the trade and human nature in general that they finally will not work for any man. It is doubtful if there is a bull/elephant more than fifty years old performing in this country. They have not "gone bad," as the showmen say, but have learned too much, picked up from their keepers, and they cannot be worked with safety. An elephant that is going to make trouble turns his back on his intended victim and begins to swing his great body from side to side. Then in a flash he wheels, catches the offender with his trunk and buries him perhaps twenty feet away, following swiftly to crush the life from his body with his mighty knees.

The Language of Paradise.
Every language has its admirers. In "Lucile" the author, Owen Meredith, maintained that when he heard French spoken as he approved he "found himself quietly falling in love." Edward Button is another instance of this lingual fascination. In stating his preference in his enchanting "Cities of Spain" he recalls an interesting medieval legend. He says:
"And as I listened to the splendid syllables of the Castilian tongue that rang eloquently through the twilight I remembered the saying of that old Spanish doctor of whom James Howell tells us in his 'Instructions for Foraine Travel'—to wit, that Spanish, Italian and French, these three daughters of the Latin language, were spoken in paradise; that God Almighty created the world in Spanish, the tempter persuaded Eve in Italian and Adam begged pardon in French."

Taste is localized.
Taste is curiously localized in the mouth. Put a lump of sugar on the tip of your tongue and you will find it distinctly sweet. Then try it halfway back on the tongue and you will find it tasteless. All sweet or aromatic substances, such as wine, sugar and coffee, can be properly appreciated by the front half of the tongue, a piece of knowledge that every true connoisseur applies when he sips instead of taking a mouthful. With most other substances, however, the reverse is true. In these cases the tip of the tongue serves only for touching—it is the back part that tastes. The sides of the mouth, too, are quite insensible to certain substances, not tasteless. Put some salt or vinegar between the teeth and the cheek and you will find them absolutely flavorless.—London Standard.

Wrestling For Rent.
In several cantons of Switzerland the custom prevails of holding wrestling matches and other exhibitions of physical strength at their choral, gymnastic and rifle festivals. The champions taking part in these athletic sports belong to the most diverse ranks in the social scale. Thus at a recent festival at Grenchen, a little town in the canton of Soleure, a wealthy property owner and his tenant, a carpenter, stepped into the arena to wrestle according to the rules of the art. There were to be four rounds, or "falls." The stake for each "fall" was one quarter's rent. After the carpenter had thrown his landlord four times the victor's prize was awarded to him, and he accordingly found himself entitled to live in his house rent free for a whole year.

Hairs Upon Man's Lips.
The fine hairs about the mouth of the horse are organs of touch of extreme delicacy. They serve to a certain extent the same purpose as our finger ends, the whiskers of the cat or the trunk of the elephant. Sensitivity is due to specially developed endings of nerves in the skin, which are continually sending messages to the brain. The lip hairs of the horse first receive the stimulus, which is communicated to the end organs and so pass on to the brain. They come into play when the horse samples a new article of food. He first smells it and, having so far satisfied himself, touches it delicately with those sensitive hairs. The upper lip moves softly in quick sympathy and confirms the opinion suggested by the hairs. The tongue judges finally as to the fitness of the food. When the horse wishes to drink these hairs assure him that the water is free from foreign matter on the surface, for he drinks from the surface only. They detect the smallest particle of dirt and guide him to the purest place.

The Simple Diet.
There is a certain banker and broker doing business not a hundred miles from the bank, says a London weekly, whose health for some time has not been all that he could desire. Not long ago he was complaining to his brother, when the latter after a careful survey of his brother's countenance said:
"What you need, old man, is plain country food. Come to my place in the country and we'll soon set you up. This rich food is proving too much for you. Take breakfast, for instance. All I have is two cups of coffee, a bit of steak with a baked potato, some light mufins or a stack of buttered toast, together with a bit of water-cress or lettuce. What do you have?"
For a moment the city banker gazed in hearty admiration at his brother.
"A cup of hot water and two slices of dry toast," he replied soberly. "But, Jim, if you think a simple diet like yours will set me up, why, I'm perfectly willing to try it."

The Spirit of Liberty.
It was in the town that modern democracy had its rise. Despite all the efforts of the kings and barons to prevent it, the spirit of liberty began to assert itself in the larger towns in the shape of the charters which guaranteed to the people certain commercial and political rights—rights which, once obtained, were never to be surrendered. Before the middle of the eleventh century there were many of these "chartered" towns which possessed the right of electing their own magistrates, sheriffs and judges and regulating their own taxes. The wretched serfs from the country were welcomed by the townspeople and added to larger freedom. These free towns were first known in Spain, from which country they slowly spread over Europe. The bourgeois naturally offered protection and freedom to all who would flee to them from the feudal estates, and thus slowly, but surely, the good work went on until the ancient despotisms were destroyed.—Arens.

The Brahman Funeral Pyre.
After the body of a Brahman has been anointed with saffron oil the two toes are bound together and the two thumbs. It is then lashed to a litter made of two long parallel poles, to which are fastened seven transverse pieces of wood. The shroud is very simple, a large piece of cloth wrapped round the body and bound with ropes of straw. If the dead Brahman leaves a will his face is not covered; other-wise the shroud is brought up over the head. The burning ground, or ghat, is usually near a river, that those who have taken part in the ceremonies may purify themselves as quickly and as easily as possible. Before erecting the funeral pyre a shallow pit is dug and partially filled with dry wood; the body is covered with splinters of dry wood and sprinkled with panchagaria, an inflammable liquid, and placed on the pyre and covered with branches and roots, like a hut. The nearest relative or heir then takes a lighted taper and sets fire to the four corners of the pile and leaves at once to perform the ceremony of purification. The carriers, being of the lowest caste, remain until the body is entirely consumed.

Love, Honor and Obey.
The controversy about including the word "obey" in the marriage vow is probably as old as the marriage ceremony itself. When Marion Harland's parents were married in 1825 (as she tells us in her autobiography) the bride had "laughingly threatened that she would not promise to 'obey' and that a scene would follow the use of the obnoxious word in the marriage service. The young divine, with this in mind or in a fit of absentmindedness or of stage fright, actually blundered out, 'Love, honor—and obey in all things consistent!' The costumes worn on this occasion were hardly as modern as the unfortunate amendment. 'The bride wore a soft sheer India muslin, a veil falling to the hem of the gown and white brocade slippers embroidered with faint blue flowers. The bridegroom's suit was of fine blue cloth with real silver buttons. His feet were clad in white stockings and low shoes with wrought silver buckles.'

The Vampire Bat.
The true vampire bat is a quite insignificant creature, not unlike our noctule bat in general appearance and size, but with a small "nose leaf" and no web between the hind legs. The really remarkable thing about it is its perfect adaptation for secret and painless bloodsucking. Most bats have teeth very like those of the carnivora, with long canines and small incisors, but in the true bloodsucking vampire bat the incisors are very large and broad and exceedingly sharp edged, thus being able to inflict a shaving surface cut which causes no pain, but a great deal of bleeding. Indeed, not only does the sleeper very rarely wake under the winged bloodletter's attentions, but a bite may be inflicted un-felt on a person who is awake at the time.—London Graphic.

Rosetti Liked Odd Words.
Dante Rossetti, like Signor d'Annunzio, took infinite pains to extend his vocabulary, says the London Chronicle. W. M. Rossetti relates that his brother used to hunt "through all manner of old romances to pitch upon stunning words for poetry" and make lists of them. The words thus noted were of a miscellaneous character, such as euphrasy, fat kidneyed, fat witted, flesh-quake, foolhappy, gorbellish, groggram, lam lorn, instral, primeroles, recreandise, angelot, cherubance, trifurcate, laureole, poveries, sexuous, lumber-world and jobbernowl. Some of these explain themselves, but how many people could say offhand what "gorbellish" means? It does not figure in the English Historical Dictionary. And yet a good mouth filling epithet surely deserves to live.

Completing the Circuit.
Uncompromising integrity voiced with irony was a marked characteristic of the Duke of Wellington. When he was in India after the British victory at Assaye the envoy of the pizam offered £70,000 for some information as to the districts to be assigned to his master, General Wellesley, as the duke then was, listened to the proposal with great gravity and when the Indian had ceased to speak said to him, "Can you keep a secret?"
"Certainly, sahib," said the envoy eagerly.
The general made a low bow, "And so can I," he said dryly.

A Way Out.
"She insists that her paternal ancestor came over on the Mayflower."
"But I thought they proved to her that there was no such name on the Mayflower register?"
"They did. And now she says he was a stowaway."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Story Needed Confirmation.
"Georgie, did you know that I was going to marry your sister?"
"Well, I heard her say so, but she's had that idea about so many other fellows that I didn't feel sure about it till you told me."—Brooklyn Life.

Poor Product.
"I'm a self made man, I am."
"Well, there is one thing you needn't worry about."
"What is that?"
"Taking out a patent."

The Heaviest Meal.
"When do you take the heaviest meal of the day?" asked a bachelor of a married man.
"When my wife cooks it," came the reply.

DOG ACTS AS DRUM MAJOR.

Leads Indiana Band by Using Tail as Baton.

Ruger's band of Goshen, Ind., a musical organization nearly half a century old, has bred a fine St. Bernard dog as drum major. The dog first attracted attention one day when the band was marching to a park. It broke away from the small boy that was leading it and took its position at the head of the band. It climbed into the band pavilion at the park and lay outside the double circle of musicians. When the band began to play a selection it at once strode to the center of the circle and gravely sat up and took notice.

The dog's tail beats time to the music now, and the animal manages to keep perfect time when marching.

NEW OIL FIELD IN SOUTH.

Alabama Shows of Rich Strike of Petroleum.

Oil fields recently have been discovered in Fayette county, Ala., which will probably rival the celebrated Beaumont (Tex.) fields, it is said. These fields were discovered only a few months ago quite by accident, and now there are four wells spouting oil in the center of a great tract of marsh lands known as the Slippy swamp.

A great rush to the new oil fields has been started by Alabama people and from the Texas and Caddo (La.) oil fields. The latter have been gradually playing out in the last few years.

Siam Exports Much Rice.

Siam has forty-seven rice mills, exporting 1,000,000 tons of milled rice a year. Only $2,538 worth of American rice milling machinery was sold there last year, though American engineers built the first of the mills. Rice production is the chief resource of Siam.

NEGRO MURDERER ENDS HIS CRIMINAL CAREER.

Slayer Who, With Four Other Prisoners, Escapes from Georgetown Jail Drinks Carbolic Acid Before Capture at Seaford.

Seaford, Del., July 14.—Eluding the entire force of State authorities and numerous organized posses, William J. Turpin, the negro murderer, who with four other prisoners, made a sensational escape from the county jail at Georgetown Sunday morning, returned to Seaford and ended his life here early this morning by drinking crude carbolic acid.

Turpin, who was being held in the prison to await trial for the murder of Joseph Elliott, a Seaford negro, was a notorious gambler and "speakeasy" operator, who, it is said, was wanted in South Carolina for crimes, including murder. Turpin came to Seaford about two years ago and immediately engaged in running gambling dens and "speakeasies." He was arrested several times on various charges, but always managed to escape punishment.

His career of unlawfulness suddenly culminated here in April, when, after being relieved of $900 by Joseph Elliott in a big poker game here one night, he secured a shotgun and early next morning went to the winner's home and emptied the contents of both barrels in Elliott's stomach. Death resulted immediately, and the desperate negro made his escape.

Later he appeared at Oak Grove, a little village six miles west of Seaford and surrendered himself to an officer. He was brought here, given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate George S. Parks and committed to the Sussex County Jail, at Georgetown, to await the next session of court.

Since his confinement in the prison he has been continually planning to murder Sheriff Joseph B. West. His last attempt to escape from the prison was successful, when shortly before noon Sunday he, with four other prisoners, chiseled a hole in the wall surrounding the jail and, leaping 22 feet to the ground, risked life and limb in a desperate escape.

According to statements from several Seaford negroes, Turpin had been in Seaford since Monday night, and was being harbored by his friends, but early this morning he went to the home of Jerry Coulbourn and forced entrance to the woodhouse through a back window. Mrs. Coulbourn, who recognized the figure, ran and notified Constable Curtis J. Steen.

Steen, with his brother, secured the key, but just as they entered the house Turpin dropped an empty pint bottle and told them he had taken carbolic acid. He told the officer he was tired of living, did not want to be hanged as a murderer and was glad he could end it all.

Attempted Suicide At Crisfield.

Crisfield, July 14, Mrs. Mary Tull, wife of Frank H. Tull, proprietor of Hotel Chesapeake, this city, is in a critical condition at the Crisfield General and Marine Hospital, as the result of taking poison.

After taking a walk this afternoon, Mrs. Tull returned to the hotel and disappeared. When a summons was sent to her room more than an hour later she could not be found and a search of the building followed. Some time later the woman was found in a room with the door locked, and as she did not answer the summons the room was broken into. Mrs. Tull was unconscious on the bed. Dr. W. F. Hall succeeded in reviving her.

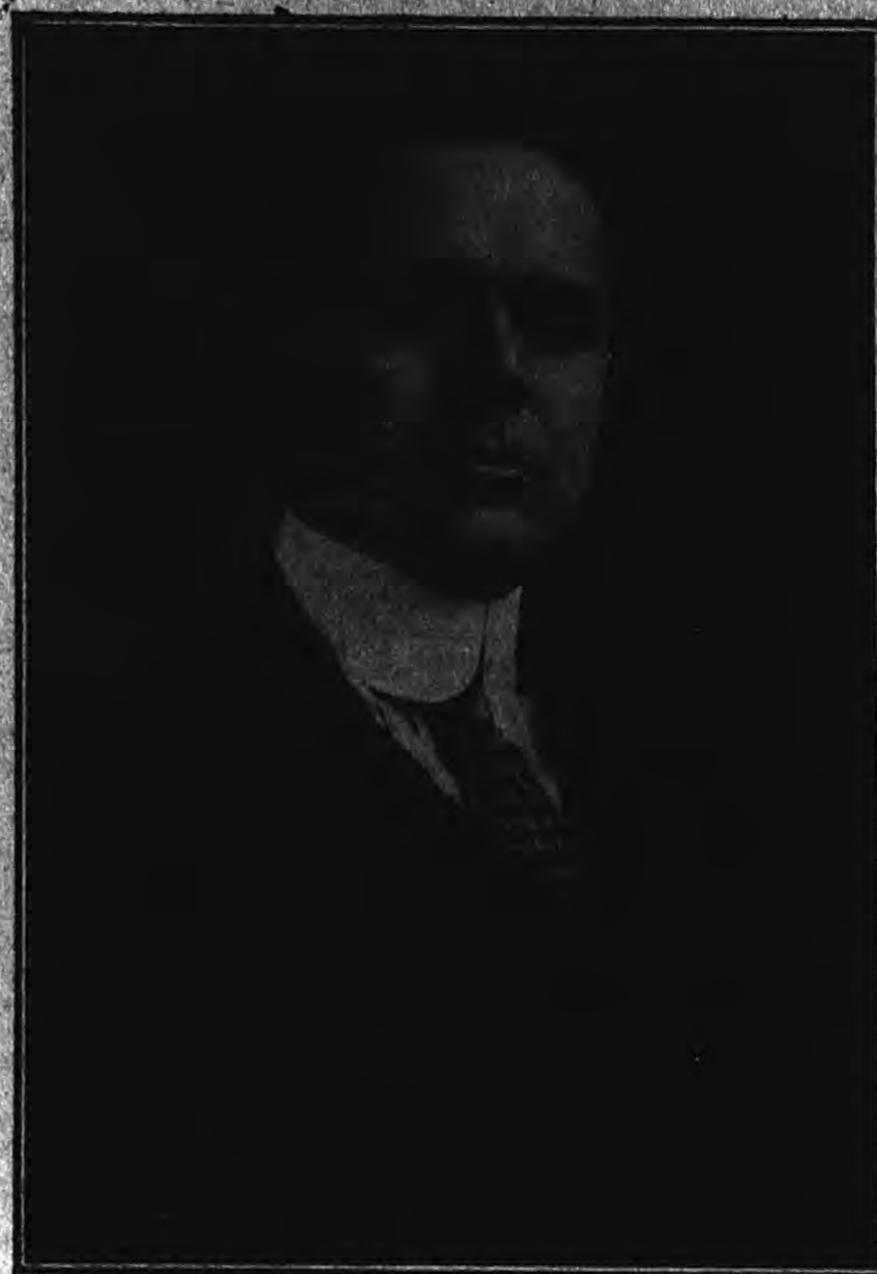

Some months ago Mrs. Tull began proceedings for divorce, but later, when a temporary reconciliation was effected, dropped the suit. According to a member of the hotel staff, fresh trouble broke out between the Tulls a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Tull had written a note declaring her intention of taking poison, and when revived she confessed those about her for saving her.

Her Death a Sad One.

Mamie Ruark, wife of Mr. Orlando M. Ruark, of near Friendship, died Monday at the Peninsula General Hospital after an illness of about a month. Her death is particularly sad one, leaving as she does two little children, the younger being only seven months old. About four weeks ago she was operated upon for appendicitis but complications set in and she never recovered. Her remains were interred Wednesday at Friendship after funeral services at the village church. Mrs. Ruark, who was the daughter of Mr. William Bailey, of this county, was 37 years old.

UNCLE SAM DRAWS LINE ON "DRY TOWN" MEDICINES.

Two Hundred Stimulants Previously Sold As Medicines Can Now Be Handled Only After Liquor License Is Paid.

Those people of Salisbury who receive their intoxicating stimulants in the guise of perfumes, essences and medicines, were delivered a blow yesterday by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Cabell. He gave out a list of over 200 preparations which hereafter may be handled by drug stores only after the Government liquor license is paid.

These preparations, including many well-known, were examined by the chemists of the Treasury Department and held to be insufficiently medicated to render them unfit for use as a beverage, or to take them out of the class of alcoholic beverages.

Treasury Department officials said they believed that many of these preparations were concocted mainly for sale in "dry" territory, where the prohibition laws made it impossible to obtain legally anything with a liquor flavor.

It is estimated there are 40,000 druggists in the United States, a few more than half of whom pay the $25 yearly special tax, which permits them to sell the preparations involved. Other stores which continue to vend these mixtures now will be required to pay the tax, and the United States Treasury will be enriched accordingly.

Secretary MacVeagh has issued an order fixing a standard of medication to govern the chemists of the Internal Revenue Bureau in passing on the question of the amount of alcohol that may be used in medicinal preparations in the future, so that they may come within the requirements of law. Alcohol will be permitted only to the amount necessary to hold in solution all medicine used or to extract or preserve the same. Each prescribed dose of a mixture must contain a normal dose of an adult of drugs or medicines of recognized therapeutic value.

PLANS FOR LIBRARY UNDER CONSIDERATION.

Members Of Travelers' Club Propose Organization Of Public Institution For This City—May Be Started This Fall.

If the present plans of the Travelers' Club are carried out it is reasonably certain that in the Fall the city of Salisbury will have a free library.

There is nothing which so helps a community as a good free library, where all the best books can be secured by the citizens of the town who are not able to afford private libraries in their homes. A good library instills studious habits in the minds of the young and helps to furnish information to many people who not only wish to enlighten themselves but who have not the means to buy books.

The Travelers' Club has had this under advisement for some time and has been laying its plans looking towards taking up the work. It is a big proposition and one which will entail considerable money to carry forward but the women who form the club have determined to tackle the job and when the club meets again in the Fall for the annual work they will take this matter up with a determination to carry it forward to a successful culmination.

It is to be hoped that the people of Salisbury will lend the ladies all the aid possible in getting this work started and be liberal with them in donations of money for the work. It is thought that a start can be made with a capital of one thousand dollars and this sum should easily be raised among the business men and families of means in this city. With the active management of the ladies of the Travelers' Club, the library can be maintained and kept open all the time and be of great service to Salisbury and its inhabitants. The city will be under great obligations to this organization if it succeeds in getting the library started.

Tri-State Packers' Association.

The Tri-State Packers' Association comprising nearly all the canners of Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey, held an important meeting at Wilmington, Del., last Thursday.

The primary purpose was to receive reports of the amount of canned tomatoes in the hands of packers unsold and the acreage planted for this year's yield.

It was announced that 75,000 cases of canned tomatoes are now held by packers in the three States, including the quantity remaining unsold in Baltimore city. Last year at this time the amount on hand was more than 1,000,000 cases. The acreage is about 25 per cent less than that planted last year in Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey. The reduction is due to the low prices obtained last season.

GENERAL AND LOCAL ASSESSORS INSTRUCTED.

Schedules To Be Filled Out By Property Owners Now Being Delivered—And Twenty Days Are Allowed To Fill In Forms.

The four general assessors and the 14 local assessors who will make the new assessment for Wicomico County met the County Commissioners in the Court House Monday morning and received their final instructions regarding the work of making the assessments.

The blanks for the work arrived from the State Tax Commissioners office last week and the assessors were notified to meet Thursday so that the work could be started at once. The local assessors will start to deliver the blanks at once in every district in the County. The taxpayers will have twenty days to fill out their blanks when the local assessors, together with the General Assessors will come to collect them. If a man refuses to list his property, then the assessors have the right to list it and place their own valuation upon it. If the person lists his property and makes oath to it and the assessors think it is too low the assessors have the right to change the assessment and then the County Commissioners sitting as a Board of Control and Review have the last chance to make changes.

Under the law a man must list all his possessions of every character whether it be stocks, bonds, personal securities, real estate or household furniture. While some of the stocks of corporations are not taxable direct to the individuals, the Corporations paying the tax, such as bank stock, and stocks of corporations formed under the Laws of Maryland, the owner thereof is forced to list everything he owns and then claim exemption for that portion of it that is paid direct by the corporation.

The stocks and bonds of foreign corporations held by residents of the State are also subject to taxation such as Railway Stock, Gas Companies, Electric Companies or in fact any stock of any corporation whose plant and business is outside of the State. The holder of the stocks and bonds within the State must list them and pay taxes on them himself.

Several hours were consumed on Monday in going over the full instructions and in making suggestions for the work. It is estimated that under this new assessment the taxable basis of the County will be greatly increased, but the Commissioners do not propose to make the assessment a burden on anybody. It would be impossible to attempt to assess much of the farm lands at the price they are bringing on the market as the prices are extremely high at present, but there are hardly any cases where they will not be advanced over the old assessment made 14 years ago.

The local assessors as well as the general assessors are all capable men and will no doubt get through the difficult work in an easy and graceful manner.

New Candy Concern.

The E. G. Davis Candy Company has succeeded to the business of the Salisbury Candy Company. The new concern is composed of Hon. E. G. Davis and son, Grover L. Davis, of Willards, and Mr. Virgil Bailey, of Bailey Brothers, Powellville. The active managers of the business will be Messrs. Grover Davis and Virgil Bailey.

The new concern takes over the stock of the Salisbury Candy Co. which was recently put in the hands of a receiver, Messrs. L. Atwood Bennett and F. L. Waller being named as receivers. The new concern purchased the stock of the old company and will add largely to its present capacity.

Mr. E. G. Davis said the new company will have enough salesmen to cover the entire Peninsula and that the business would be pushed to the utmost. The members of the new firm are all well known business men on the East side of the County. Mr. E. Davis and son, Grover, having established and built up the town of Willards.

Collar Demonstration.

An expert demonstrator has been secured by Kernerly & Mitchell who was at their store on Main street yesterday and will demonstrate again today, July 16th. In connection with the demonstration this firm is showing one of the largest stocks of shirts and collars on the Peninsula.

AFTER SHORT POTATO BARRELS

Asked To Meet The Commissioners Of Weights And Measures Next Tuesday—Physically Impossible To Comply With The Law.

New York, July 8.—Commissioner of Weights and Measures, Clement J. Driscoll, sent an important letter last night to these commission merchants: W. J. & S. H. Davenport, Jas. Nix & Co., Phillips & Sons, Chas. Pape & Co., J. H. Bahrenburg Bro. & Co., G. J. Westcott & Co., S. H. & R. H. Frost, J. H. Killough & Co., Inc., N. Voorhees and A. B. Young & Co. Mr. Driscoll says that he and his inspectors had visited the produce district, examined a large number of barrels of potatoes and were unable to find a single legal barrel. He states that it is his determination to have potatoes sold in legal barrels or not at all. He has invited Carl Kimball, the Vice president of the National League of Commission Merchants and Ward W. Smith, manager of the Credit Bureau of this city to be present at his office Tuesday, that they may understand the situation and be able hereafter to influence growers and shippers to use standard packages for this city. The letter summoning the representatives of the commission named, follows:

Upon investigation by myself and my inspectors, I find that potatoes are being sold wholesale, in the city of New York in a manner other than the one prescribed by statute. I call your attention to chapter 25, laws of 1900, chapter 20 of the consolidated laws, general business law, article 2, section 9, which reads as follows:

Barrels of apples, quinces, pears and potatoes—a barrel of pears, quinces or potatoes shall represent a quantity equal to 100 quarts of grain or dry measure. A barrel of apples shall be of the following dimension: Head diameter, 17 1/2 inches; length of stave, 28 1/2 inches; bulge, not less than 64 inches, outside measurement, to be known as the standard apple barrel. or, where the barrel shall be made straight or without a bulge, it shall contain the same number of cubic inches as the standard apple barrel. Every person buying or selling apples, pears, quinces or potatoes in this State by the barrel shall be understood as referring to the quantity or size of the barrel specified in this section, but when potatoes are sold by weight, the quantity constituting a barrel shall be 174 pounds. No person shall make or cause to be made, barrels holding less than the quantity herein specified, knowing or having reason to believe that the same are to be used for the sale of apples, quinces, pears or potatoes, unless such barrel is plainly marked on the outside thereof with the words "short barrels" in letters of not less than one inch in height. No person in this State shall use barrels hereafter made for the sale of such articles of a size less than the size specified in this section. Every person violating any provision of this section shall forfeit to the people of this State a sum of $15 for every barrel put up or made or used in violation of such provision.

The result of my investigation was that I was unable to find anywhere in the produce district a barrel of potatoes which measured up to the standard. You are hereby advised of the law, and requested to have a representative of your firm at this office at 2 o'clock on Tuesday, July 12. In the meantime I advise you to comply with the section of the law, and to mark every barrel that you have in your place with a stencil or otherwise, which does not conform to the standards, in letters not less than one inch high, the words short barrels, the same to be placed in a conspicuous places upon the barrel.

Should commission merchant be obliged to comply with this law it would impose a hardship unmerited, if not an impossibility. Receipts of potatoes are 40@60 cars a day, and they are not unloaded until they are offered for sale. It would be a physical impossibility for receivers to stamp every barrel a "Short Barrel." The trouble is at the loading end, and receivers ought not to be held responsible for shippers' errors. Until there is a national law, fixing a standard barrel and enforcing its use, there is certain to be trouble in every market where an effort is made to regulate weights and measures.

The Spider.

Of all the solitary insects I have ever seen the spider is the most sagacious, and its actions to one who has attentively considered them seem almost to excel belief. The spider is formed by nature for a state of war, not only upon other insects, but upon its fellows. For this state nature seems to have formed it with singular perfection. Its head and breast are covered with a strong natural coat of mail, which is impenetrable to the attacks of every other insect, and its lower parts are enveloped in a soft, plantain skin which eludes the sting even of a wasp. Its legs are terminated by strong claws not unlike those of a lobster, and their vast length, like spears, serves to keep every assailant at a safe distance. Not worse furnished for observation than for attack or defense, it has several eyes, large and transparent, covered with a horny substance, which, however, does not impede its vision.—Scottsman.

Selling Their Nicknames.

"A traveler from Liverpool got home the other day because some one called him a Liverpoolian," said the city salesman. "I couldn't blame him, but the man who unwittingly offered the insult declares that that is the proper name for people who live in Liverpool."

"He pointed out that it isn't easy to designate the inhabitants of all cities by euphonious names. New Yorker, Londoner, Parisian, Chicagoan, are so obvious that it would be difficult to say anything else, but how about cities that do not affiliate so readily with 'er,' 'an' or 'ito'?"

"Those are the suffixes most commonly used to designate a set of natives. Take Cork. A man from Cork may be a corker, but that doesn't apply to a whole city full of people; neither does Corkie nor Corkan sound right."

"Then there is Memphis. What do you call a man from Memphis, anyhow, or from Amsterdam, or Dallas, or Bruges, or Bath? By the time you have studied out the proper appellations for inhabitants of all cities you will be apt to strike something that sounds funnier than Liverpoolian."—Washington Post.

Grim Music.

"On one occasion," said a London actor, "I decided to take a house in the suburbs and after a good deal of hunting about found one that suited my purse. Indeed, it was so excessively cheap that I was on the point of signing the lease at once, when it occurred to me that I had better take another look at it by gaslight. That night I was making a second tour of inspection and went into the dining room. It was a balmy summer night, and as I threw open the window I heard a peculiar tapping sound."

"Knock, knock, knock. There was silence for a moment, and then the noise continued. I turned to the caretaker and laughingly said:

"See here, my friend, I know why this house is cheap. There's a ghost on the premises."

"Oh, no, sir," he answered by way of reassuring me. "That's only the noise from the coffin factory across the way, sir. They hoften works there nights."

He did not sign the lease.

Caught the Jury.

"Oratory is, indeed, a lost art," said a Cleveland man the other day. "I used to go down to the courts just to hear the lurid speeches. Nothing doing in that line any more. The lawyers do not talk about flowers, rainbows and sunbeams any more."

"There was a lawyer in Cleveland years ago—Bill Robinson was his name—whose addresses to a jury always attracted a crowd. I will forever remember one of his sentences. The man he was fighting in the suit had a reputation as something of a miser."

"Who is this man, who is he?" thundered Robinson. "You know and I know that he boils his potatoes in widows' tears."

"This phrase caught the jury, and Robinson won his case, but one doesn't hear any such 'oratory' as that nowadays."

The Barebone Family.

The celebrated name of Praise God Barebone was borne by a member of the Cromwell parliament called together after the dissolution of the long parliament in 1653. The royalists called the assembly "Barebones' parliament." At the time when General Monk was in London Barebone headed the mob that presented a petition to parliament against the recall of Charles II. Of the Barebone family there were three brothers, each of whom had a sentence for a name—Praise God Barebone. Christ came into the world to save Barebone and if Christ had not died thou hadst been damned Barebone.

Poison In Young Rattlesnakes.

Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon inoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of chronic poisoning.

The Value of Doors.

When a man is cross there isn't anything in the world more aggravating than a house with all the connecting doors down or one that has doors that close noiselessly. A man likes to slam a door. He gets more good out of slamming a door, in his opinion, than any one could get out of religion. It is his protest against everything in the world that is wrong, and it means that he isn't much older than the child that beats its head on the floor.—Acheson Globe.

Hard on Him.

"Hello, Ned, old boy! Writing home for money?"

"No." "What are you making so much fuss over? You're been fuming over that letter for two hours."

"I'm trying to write home without asking for money."

The Usual Quantity.

Train passenger (to porter, who is welding whisky)—Much debt on me, porter? Porter—"Bout 50 cents' worth, sah."—Boston Transcript.

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

For a Public Library.

The publishers of the THE COURIER note with considerable interest the announcement made this week to the effect that there is a possibility of the establishment of a free circulating library in the near future. Too much credit cannot be given the members of the Travelers' Club for the undertaking. Although a public library has been one of the greatest needs of the city for a number of years there has been manifested practically no interest by the public. This lack of interest is not only local but it seems to be general in all sections of the State. The latest report of the Maryland State Library Commission shows an exceedingly small number of public libraries and Wicomico county makes decidedly the poorest showing of any in the list. With the exception of the small Sunday School libraries in the city, there is only one institution in the county and that is an inadequate library at Mardela, established in 1906 through the efforts of Rev. R. P. Perry.

In every other respect Salisbury has ever shown itself to be abreast of the times and it has made almost remarkable strides along the line of progress in the past decade. Yet there has been nothing done with the view of improving the minds of its people.

The need of a public library in this city is two-fold. With the exception of the local theatres Salisbury affords no place of amusement or for diversion from daily labors, either for the young or old. The result is that every evening large crowds congregate on the street corners—wander aimlessly about with nothing to do—and it is this having nothing to do and a natural desire for amusement that causes many young persons to seek resorts that are the stepping stones to evil doing.

A public library will, in a great measure, remove this danger—a danger which parents seldom realize until it is too late—and at the same time will provide a place for the intellectual and moral improvement of the younger minds. An institution of this kind will have the greatest tendency to reduce the number of young people who, with unoccupied minds, now promenade the thoroughfares of the city.

The ladies of the Travelers' Club will undoubtedly be confronted with many obstacles before their undertaking is completed but their task can be made much easier if they are supported in their endeavors by the citizens generally and the men of affluence particularly. We sincerely hope that the present plans of the Travelers' Club will materialize and that in the near future a free public library will be founded as the result of the efforts of this organization.

PNEUMATIC TIRE MARKS LOCOMOTION'S PROGRESS.

But Edinburgh Cannot Decide Who Was Inventor.

The dispute arose about a statue. Who invented the pneumatic tire? To whom should Edinburgh give honor in bronze or marble—to R. W. Thomson, who patented an air filled tire in 1845, or to John Dunlop, who invented the pneumatic tire in 1888? The dispute carries the imagination back over one of the most astonishing episodes in industrial history.

It was in 1845 that Thomson patented the idea of affixing a "belt" filled with compressed air to the rim of a carriage wheel, and, although his invention never came into practical use, he showed great knowledge of the good effects which would follow from the use of the pneumatic tire.

Forty-three years later John Dunlop, without any knowledge of the Thomson invention, patented a pneumatic tire. The safety bicycle had then come into vogue, but its wheels were shod with solid rubber tires. Mr. Dunlop's little son possessed a tricycle, and as the Dunlops then lived in Belfast and the Irish roads were of very bad surface this veterinary surgeon applied a rubber tube filled with compressed air, and it afforded such comfort to the rider that Mr. Dunlop brought the idea before adult cyclists, and some enthusiasm was aroused. But Mr. Dunlop would have hardly been more successful in 1888 than Thomson in 1845 had not another man appeared on the scene.

Harvey du Cros was at that time a prominent figure in Irish sporting circles, and his sons were famous for their prowess in cycle racing. With true business instinct Mr. du Cros saw the immense possibilities of the pneumatic tire for cycles, and he threw himself heart and soul into the work of making this crude invention practicable. His early efforts were greeted with derision.

Then Mr. du Cros took a band of Irish cyclists, including his sons and B. J. McCreedy to England, and they gained sweeping victories with the pneumatic tire on the racing track. But for the enterprise and ability of Harvey du Cros Mr. Dunlop's invention might have lain dormant for many years.

Had this been the case the whole progress of modern locomotion from motoring to airmanhood would have been checked, for we can trace the direct influence of the air filled tire in all the astonishing developments of the last twenty-two years. So from the bad state of Irish roads, from the solitude of a fond parent to make smooth progress for his son's cycle over rough roads, Thomson's idea was recreated, and this time the right man was at hand to develop the idea.

NEW VEGETABLE IS SOUGHT.

England Investigates Possibilities of Ground Nut.

English horticulturists are turning attention to the possibility of finding a new vegetable in the ground nut, which, though of excellent flavor and wholesome for food, is disregarded by all but "pigs and children."

Ground nuts, otherwise called "jar nuts" or "earth chestnuts," have been from time immemorial a favorite delicacy with village boys, who are now generally barred from searching for them in the English woods, where they grow best, by killjoy gamekeepers. In Gerard's time their merits were well known, and they grew profusely "almost everywhere" around London, but especially in a field adjoining Highgate, on the right side of the village, and likewise in the next field to the conduit heads by Marylebone, near the way that leads to Paddington from London.

MUSKRAT NEW DELICACY.

Chicago Promoters Start Farm For Market Supply.

Loins of Chicago grown muskrat with bulrush sauce will appear on bills in Chicago restaurants if the plans of three pioneer "muskrat farmers" succeed.

The first muskrat farm has been started. Its products are to be food and fur. Its market will be Chicago, as a beginning, at least, but success may broaden its scope.

Its location is in the "Sag," in the towns of Worth and Palos, twenty miles southwest of Chicago. It comprises 190 acres, is more than a mile long and consists of the fairest stretch of swamps and shallow lakes to be found in this section of the country. It already has a large muskrat population.

Cossack Girl on Long Ride.

A Cossack girl named Kudashoff has started to ride from Harbin to St. Petersburg, some 5,420 miles. Her mount is a light gray Mongolian pony, and she is riding astride on an ordinary Cossack saddle. She carries a hunting knife and a revolver, and her only companion is a pure bred St. Bernard dog. The plucky horsewoman was formerly a railway employee and during the Russo-Japanese war was awarded the gold medal "for zeal."

Middlemen's Days Numbered.

Cotton Importers at Prague, Austria, want to buy of American exporters direct instead of through middlemen in certain European cities. They complain of inferior qualities being sent when better qualities have been ordered and paid for in advance. Interior Chinese merchants also want to buy American cotton goods direct and not through Shanghai or Hongkong.

Art of Horse Trading Proved Still Extant.

NOVEL WAGER DECIDES IT.

Farmer Starts Out With $30 and in Two Days Brings Back a Stead and Profits of $125 and Routa Scoffer Who Says Auto Has Banished Swap-ple of Olden Days.

With his face as red as the sun that was sinking behind the horizon, his shoes dusty and his collar wilted, but with a smile on his wrinkled visage as broad comparatively as the before mentioned horizon, T. E. Turner, seventy years old and revivalist in horse trading, entered Greenwich, Conn., in triumph a few days ago, leading a spirited chestnut colored horse, on whose back in barking glee rode Happy, the old man's pet spaniel.

Turner is the owner of a large stock farm near Albany, N. Y., and in days gone by was a horse trader on the road and a showman as well. Entering Greenwich, he had just won a wager of $100 made to show that the art or science of horse trading was still a live one if the right man with the right shrewdness and activity got into it.

Takes Two Days For Test.

The conditions of his bet were that he should start from Stamford, Conn., with a capital of $30, tramp about the country in the old fashioned way and return to Stamford in two days with $100 profit to show in horse trading.

A guest asserted that with the automobile and trolley interest in horse-dash was almost dead and that the old fashioned trader would find pickings so dry he'd starve if he tried his vocation in these days. Turner denied that, and the wager was laid.

Turner left Stamford with Happy at his heels and the $30 in a money belt round his body, under his clothing. In the fashion he had used to carry his money a generation ago. He walked eighteen miles to Mount Kisco, looked over horses and bought one for $20. He moved on to Millwood with the horse and there met Harry Gedney. He traded the horse with Gedney for another animal and $10 to boot.

Going back to Mount Kisco, he sold his new possession for $85 to a Mr. Williams. Then he moved on to Tarrytown and there bought a horse for $40. At Pleasantville he sold that steed to a Danbury man for another horse and $50.

Trades Back and Forth.

Next he exchanged his latest acquisition for another nag that the head of the Bruce Farm School for Boys desired greatly to lose. Turner valued this animal at $300 and wanted to keep him, but the provisions of his wager called for him to keep on trading. He laid his plans accordingly, and in the course of four more dickers he traded his "find" away and traded him back again.

And this was the horse that Turner led into Greenwich. He had cleared $125 and had the good horse besides. He put the animal up at a livery stable, tucked Happy under his arm and went to demand his $100 winnings and a retraction of the statement that horse trading wasn't as lively and profitable as ever if a man knew the game.

DICTIONARY AMUSES CAPITAL

Turkish Ambassador's Secretary Troubled by American Slang.

"The man with the book" Washington has dubbed the secretary to Hussein Kiazim Bey, the newly arrived Turkish ambassador. The book is a large Turkish-English dictionary, with a pronouncing glossary, and is like Mary's lamb—everywhere the secretary goes the book is sure to go.

Some one referred to one of Washington's most popular dachshunds as a "lady killer." The secretary took out his dictionary and soon got into close communication with "lady" and "killer."

"Is it possible," he asked gravely in excellent Ottendorf-English, "that that most excellent gentleman with the so kind looks and the so benevolent words is already yet a murderer?"

DIME NOVELS ANGER RED MEN

Indians to Protest Against Murderous Reputation.

Frank Sero, who calls himself Ojibwa and is a full blood Mohawk, has declared war on the publishers of the penny dreadful literature in Germany, which depicts the American Indians exclusively as a race of bloodthirsty scoundrels and horse thieves. He is furnishing the Berlin newspapers with vivacious interviews describing his fellow redskins as a malignant, misunderstood people.

At their forthcoming congress at Muskogee, Frank Sero says, the modern generation of American Indians intends to take vigorous action in the direction of clearing up the world's dime novel conception of the noble red man.

BOY OF SKINNERS'

Humpty Gets the Job of Carrying a Hat For the German.

HIS CHANCE TO MAKE A DIME.

Meets Curious People Who Peep Into the Box—Man With Grudge Against Owner Gives It a Punch—Boy Lands in Woodshed.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1918, by Associated Literary Press.)

THAT Skinner boy had been sent to the store to get a yard of cambric lining, and he had bought the goods and got outside the store when a man with a hatbox came along and stopped to say: "Boy, do you know where Gold street was?"

"It's a mile from here," was the reply.

"I don't mean Silver street, nor Brass nor Nickel street, but Gold street."

"Yes, sir. I can go there."

"But, first, I like to know what sort of a boy you was. Were you about eight kinds of boys?"

"I am an honest boy, sir."

"Vhelli, you look dat way, but if you play me any tricks you vvas in state prison for a thousand years. In dis box vvas a hat. She vvas a plug hat. I buy her off a man for a dollar. He vvas a millionaire und lose all his money. I like to give some boy 10 cents to take dis hat to my house."

"I'll do it, sir," said Humpty.

"You see, on der box vvas my name, Peter Schmidt. She vvas to go to 220 Gold street. If you kick on her door my wife comes out mit a club and asks you what you vwant. You hand her der box?"

"I see, sir."

"But you listen to me. When you have a plug hat in a box you must carry him carefully. He vvasn't like a sack of potatoes. If you sling him around he vvas damaged."

"But I won't, sir."

"Mebbe some man vhill ask you vhot you got in der box, und he vhill like to try der hat on. He can't do it. You must run, avhay. Nopody can try my hat on."

"I will run."

"Vhelli, I trust you. Here vvas der money und der box. You look like a nice boy, but it vvas a thousand years in state prison if you fool me. Peter Schmidt vvas an awful man if you make him mad. He don't have no mercy."

Meets a Curious Man.

Humpty took the box and set off, carrying it at arm's length. He had gone two blocks when the driver of a milk wagon who had been delivering at a house caught him by the arm and exclaimed: "Ah, ah! Getting away with some body's canary bird, are you? It is my duty to investigate. Open the box."

"It's a hat, sir," replied Humpty.

"Oh, ho! Lifted somebody's hat, have you? Worse and worse. Milkmen are not policemen, but they run with the detectives more or less. We'll see about that hat."

"Let it alone. It's Peter Schmidt's hat, and I am taking it to his house on Gold street. Can't you see his name on the box?"

"Ah, the mystery deepens. Peter Schmidt robs a house and sends his plunder home by a small boy. Let go of the box or I'll have you in shackles!"

The cover was removed. It was a plug hat. The milkman took it out and tried it on. He walked about it. After five minutes he handed it over with the remark:

"My son, the day will come when every milkman in town will be wearing these things, but it's too early yet. They won't let us put enough water in our milk. Go thy way."

At the next corner a policeman was talking with a servant girl over the gate. He could talk with a servant girl and look out for boys carrying hatboxes at the same time. It came natural for him to be a sleuth. Humpty was passing when he was caught by the neck and whirled around and accosted with:

"You young thief, your race is run!"

"I'm no thief!"

"We shall see about that. Don't make the slightest move to get away. A storage warehouse was robbed of a piano last night!"

"But I didn't do it. Nobody can carry a piano in a hatbox, can he?"

"Careful, boy—careful! What you say can be used as evidence against you. Don't undertake to tell me that a piano can or can't be carried in a hatbox. Remove the cover."

The Cop Takes a Peep.

"You can see it's a hat," said Humpty as he exposed it.

"Lift out the hat. Who knows what may be concealed under it?"

"There's nothing."

The officer took the cover and read the name and address written thereon and for a moment seemed to be thinking deeply. During this moment the servant girl whispered to him that she could attend a moving picture show with him that evening. This aided him to think, and he mused:

"Do the police regulations forbid a small boy to carry Peter Schmidt's plug hat home for him? They may and they may not. I'll chance it and let the kid and the hat pass on, but they must beware of me in future. I am no man to be trifled with. Boy, get out of this!"

Humpty took his departure. He was halfway to Gold street and making good time when a woman drammed on the window of a house for him to stop and then came to the door to say: "Here is the place, bubby. What were you going past for?"

"I'm going to Gold street, ma'am."

"But haven't you got a shirt waist for me in that box?"

"No, ma'am."

"You haven't? I bought one at Brown & Green's late yesterday afternoon, and they said they'd send it up first thing this morning. I think you must be mistaken."

"No, ma'am. This is a hat."

"I want to see. If Brown & Green have lied to me I'll never buy another thing there. It was a six dollar shirt waist reduced to 98 cents to show there was no hard feelings."

She removed the cover from the box and found the hat. She looked at the address and found Peter Schmidt's name.

"This settles it for life!" she exclaimed in great indignation. "Brown & Green lied to me, and Peter Schmidt is probably glad of it, and so are you!"

Wrath of Shirt Waist Purchaser.

And she gave Humpty a cuff on the ear, kicked the hat halfway across the street and retired into the house. The hat was badly mugged, and Humpty had tears in his eyes as he replaced it in its nest and continued his way. Peter Schmidt's wife would have something to say to him. He was within a block of the house when he came to a livery stable. A man stepped from the door and took him by the arm and said:

"Right inside, sonny—front seat waiting for you!"

"But I'm in a hurry."

"So am I. I had a horse stolen last night, and I'm in a hurry to catch the thief."

"But you don't think I've got the horse in this hatbox, do you?"

"Sonny, this is a bad, deceptive world, and there's no telling what a hatbox may conceal. If I find my horse inside I shall say that you are the victim of the senate ring at Albany and let you go; if I don't find him there I shall believe that the sugar trust's got him."

The cover was removed and the hat lifted out. No horse.

"I told you," said Humpty.

"But whose hat is this?"

"Peter Schmidt's. You can see his name there."

"Well, this is funny. Only yesterday Pete Schmidt called me a liar and ran away. I told him I'd punch his head some day. I don't believe I shall ever have a chance, and so I'll punch his hat."

His fist went through the crown, and Humpty fled. His mother was waiting for that cambric. She looked at him with a tender smile and said:

"Humpty, Mrs. Tompkins was asking why I didn't send you to dancing school. I think I will. Come out into the woodshed and I'll teach you the first steps myself."

A Doubting Thomas.

The Terrier—Won't you come over to my yard, Tommy? We'll have lots of fun playing a new game I learned yesterday.

The Cat (on the fence)—Thanks, awfully, old scout, but I have no faith in new dog and cat games. I never yet played one that didn't finally turn out to be puss-in-the-corner—Sunday Illustrated Magazine.

The Indiana Cook.

"Your cook has been with us six months, you say?"

"Six months and two weeks," answered the Indianapolis man.

"Quite a long time for a cook to remain."

"Well, she's got to stay until she finishes her novel. She's using us for types."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Considerate Host.

"You have sold everything except one cow and one pig?"

"Yep," replied Farmer Cornutssel.

"Why didn't you let them go with the rest?"

"Well, we thought we ought to have some sort of a menagerie to keep the summer boarders interested."—Washington Star.

THE Salisbury Building & Loan and Banking ASSOCIATION

The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $1,500,000, makes loans secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 30c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1897.

The Banking Department was founded in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to accept and manage the assets of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes. It receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. A Strange Pirate Story.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some tattered ship's papers, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the strangest pirate story ever told. In 1799 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccaneering trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain. Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the spot, and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprang up, sailed into Kingston harbor, found the Nancy brig there and had the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

Payment in Kind.

French novelists are occasionally paid in kind instead of cash. Many of the best known Paris newspapers manage to supply their readers with contemporary fiction for which the writers do not receive a penny. For instance, a novel is published in serial form for which the payment at three half pence a line would amount to $80. This payment is always made in space, not in money. That is to say, the newspaper inserts for the author, free of charge, a certain number of advertisements or press notices relating either to his own books or those of other authors. If he can succeed in obtaining any money from the latter he is at liberty to do so. The space varies considerably in value, a "pull" on the front page being worth 20 or 30 francs a line, on the second page 10 francs and in other portions of the paper still less.—London Scraps.

Origin of the Bowery.

When the city of New Amsterdam, now New York, sprang into existence many farmers from Holland came over to seek their fortune in the new world, among them old Peter Stuyvesant. They settled outside the town and proceeded to develop the land by clearing away the woods and planting it with grain, fruit trees and ornamental shrubs they had brought with them. Peter Stuyvesant called his residence and ground the Bouwerie, and the lane connecting it with New Amsterdam became known as Bouwerie lane, the settlement itself taking the name of Bouwerie Village. Stuyvesant's farm extended from the junction of what are now Third and Fourth avenues to Seventeenth street and eastward to Second avenue, where at the corner of Tenth street his home was located.

A Mysterious Race.

Ever since Pizarro's conquest of the Indians there had been rumors in the interior of South America of the existence of a strange tribe, said Major P. H. Fawcett, R. A. "The evidence was necessarily weak, yet he had met half a dozen men who swore to a glimpse of white Indians with red hair. Other statements had been made as to the existence of such a race with blue eyes. Plenty of people had heard of them, and they had even a name—"Morphogon," or bats, meaning the people who hunted by night and hid during the day. Even in Paraguay, he was told, there was a tribe so shy as to be quite beyond communication and another where the men talked in one language and the women in another.—London Mail.

Easy Divorce in Old Times.

The code of King Khannurabi of Assyria, whose date is approximately 2200 B. C., which has been deciphered from a pillar discovered at Susa, deals exhaustively with the subject of divorce. One of the most interesting clauses is the following: "If the wife of a man has set her face to go forth and has acted the fool and wasted his house and impoverished his house, they shall call her to account. If the husband shall say, 'I put her away,' he shall put her away. She shall go her way. For her divorce he shall give her nothing."

Too Careful.

An old man was brought up before a country judge.

"Jethro," said the judge, "you are accused of stealing General Johnson's chickens. Have you any witnesses?"

"No, sah," old Jethro answered haughtily. "I hab not, sah. I don't steal chickens befo' witnesses, sah."—Minneapolis Journal.

Consider the Trees.

The trees are lovely in summer; so are the women. But how different are the women and the trees as to their clothes! To be sure, both are delightfully clothed, yet, with the abundant rainfall with which the trees are supplied, they require but one trunk to hold it all.—Smart Set.

The Path of Peace.

"My wife and I always settle our little disputes by arbitration, and our plan never fails."

"But who arbitrates?"

"My wife."

A Pocket Piece.

Willie—Say, pa, what is a pocket piece? Father—A pocket piece, my son, is a coin you can't pass off on any one.—Chicago News.

The Third Derelict

A Halfbreed's Escape From Death

By BRADFORD L. DANIELS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

As the Yang rounded the headland I noticed them off to the starboard, two hulks, red with rust, upwash under the branches of the big trees that grew in a dense forest far out into the shallow water of the lagoon. One steamer was wedged in between great boulders, the tops of its masts showing oddly above the overhanging greenery. The other lay well over upon its side, like some portly marine monster that had taken shelter there from the tropic sun. How any person not a positive idiot could have blundered into such a place passed my comprehension.

The repeated blasts from our whistle had roused the owner of the cocoanut grove that was to furnish us our cargo, and presently the white drill suit and pith helmet, which we always associate with the white man in the tropics, appeared in the stern of a boat which glided out from under the trees. Before our gangplank was fairly lowered a tall, rawboned young Englishman, distinctly of the "gentleman" type, came over the ship's side and introduced himself as Shackelford, the man with whom I had contracted to carry a load of nuts to Liverpool.

"No, I haven't a black on the place," he explained in response to an inquiry of mine as we took our places in his flat bottomed boat, manned wholly by Chinamen, and started for his bungalow, whose corrugated roof blazed in the intense sunlight through a rift in the cocoanut grove. "It costs three times as much for Chinese labor, but for some reason I can't get a nigger to come near the plantation."

"That's strange."

"Wait till tonight and you'll hear as horrible row as you ever heard. Then you'll know. The mountains back there are alive with apes. That is why I put up a twenty-five foot high barbed wire fence."

That evening we were sitting in the bungalow, sipping whisky and soda and swapping yarns about Penang, when a volley of barks, sharp as the rattle of musketry, made me spring up in alarm.

Shackelford put down his glass and haw-hawed. "It's only those blasted apes," he explained when he had managed to control his mirth. "Take down that rifle and come along."

Armed with Winchesters, we made our way to the edge of the grove nearest the spur of the mountain. As we approached a chorus of snarls greeted us, and in the clear starlight I saw a host of infuriated apes hurling themselves against the barbed wire fence.

For a time the brutes paid little heed to our fusillade. Then, under the leadership of a large gray ape, they broke and made for cover.

The great grizzled brute was the last to retire, and at the edge of the jungle it turned and gibbered at us in a way that made my flesh creep. It seemed to voice the fathomless hatred of the whole jungle world for the usurper man.

The next morning on our way back to the steamer I asked Shackelford about the two wrecks.

"Oh, I fancy the fool captains could not steer straight," he replied lightly. "Longstreth—that's the chap I bought the grove from—said that both ships were loaded with cocoanuts. He would not talk much about it, though—too sour to talk about anything."

Later, to satisfy my curiosity, I rowed over and had a look at the hulks, and as I examined them I noted two facts that kept me speculating for days. Before either steamer went into its present position the boats had been hastily slashed away, and there wasn't a single cocoanut to be seen in either hold.

That night I spent ashore again with Shackelford, and when I returned to my ship the following morning I found it in an ominous state of excitement. Usually the Chinese portion of it occupied the forward part of the main deck, eating and sleeping in the corners among the steam winches. The lascars had always claimed the forecastle head, where their tall, gaunt bodies and swathed heads seemed an inseparable part of the ship. Now, however, race and caste were forgotten, and turbans and pigstails mingled promiscuously in groups that whispered eagerly in a dozen corners.

At sight of me they quickly disappeared, but with those two rusty hulks loomed up yonder as object lessons I took prompt measures to forestall a possible mutiny. Summoning the first mate—a half caste from Calcutta that I had picked up in Penang when MacPherson died of cholera—I locked the door behind him, left my revolver on the table, where he could meditate upon its use as we talked, and then asked him a few pointed questions. He turned white under his dinky skin, but soon pulled himself together and began to lie to me. I knew it by the way his eyelids flickered. The day was too hot for even a Chinaman to live on; the lagoon was full of sharks; the typhoon season was coming on;—these and a dozen other reasons for leaving at once slipped from his oily tongue and left me more puzzled than ever.

Shackelford followed by a score of bedraggled Chinamen, crawled out stiffly from his involuntary but lucky imprisonment and looked ruefully at his blood spattered clothes. "They ripped and tore at the netting like a lot of mad devils," he continued, "and the blood from their lacerated feet came through on us like a shower of warm rain, but none of us was hurt except Ah Cong over there. He was a bit careless and let his pigtail stick out through the netting. Lucky thing I had a knife, you saw old heathen!" turning to a grizzled Chinaman whose cue had been severed close to his head, "or that big ape that got hold of the end of it would have pulled it out by the roots." And Shackelford laughed uproariously as he reached for his pipe, examined the coloring with the eye of a connoisseur and then began to dig the dirt out of the bowl. "But I don't understand what made the brutes all quit and go tearing away toward the bay," he added thoughtfully as he opened his tobacco pouch.

For answer I led him down to the third derelict and showed him the empty hold.

Taking on cargo occupied a week, and during that time I never left the ship's deck farther than the cabin. The following evening we put out to sea, the men working like demons to get away before night shut down; Shackelford laughing all the while at their eagerness to be rid of what he declared to be "the finest spot east of Suez." His Chinamen—I shall never forget that last glimpse of them—squatting upon the empty bamboo rafts, their cues wound about their unshaved heads, the sweat still streaming down their naked bodies to the slimy cotton pantaloons corded about their waists, and viewed our departure out of their narrow eyes with features as impassive as those of a stone Buddha. What did they know about the two rusty hulks, the gray "thing" that haunted them, and what had they told my crew? I wondered. Worn out with a trying week, I turned in.

A shock hurled me from my berth, and as I groped about in the darkness for the key of the door the sound of crashing timber and of branches trailing across the cabin window made me guess my surroundings. Springing on deck, I turned instinctively to the wheel, and there, bowed over it like an old man and clutching the spokes with hairy hands, was a huge gray ape—the very monster Shackelford and I had failed to bring down the night of the raid upon the cocoanut grove!

At sight of me it relinquished its hold upon the wheel and sprang at me, baring its teeth in sudden rage. Whipping out my Colt, I began to fire and back away and brought it down with a shot in its gaping mouth just as it was reaching out its horrible corded arms to seize me. As it collapsed with a gasping shudder at my very feet I sprang backward from sheer repulsion and in doing so fell into the lagoon through a hole in the railing that the thick branch of a tree had carried away.

Not till then did I feel the full significance of what had transpired down upon me. Crew there was none, but apes from the surrounding trees and the two rusty hulks that had so puzzled me and that now lay on either side came swarming upon the steamer till they covered everything—winches, forecastle head, the empty davits, the spare anchors, the very rigging—with a gray, writhing mass that struggled and fought and screamed in a wild rush for the cocoanuts, which could easily be reached through the main hatch, left open to prevent overheating. Swimming round to the rudder, now completely out of water above the madly racing crew, I climbed up beyond the reach of sharks and listened to the appalling pandemonium till the last cocoanut must have been removed from the hold, when the brutes gradually dispersed through the forest.

Afraid to venture back on deck, at daylight I mounted a piece of the round house that had been swept overboard and made my way on the incoming tide up the channel which led to the plantation. On the edge of the grove I paused in incredulous wonder, and then the truth came home to me. Under a fierce attack of the apes the wire fence had at last given way, and the cocoanut grove was in ruins. Shackelford's bungalow I found in a state of pillage so complete that only the four upright posts remained, and the flimsy huts occupied by the Chinese laborers were scattered about as if struck by a typhoon.

Not far from the ruins I found Shackelford's beautifully stained mess-sachem pipe trampled into the earth by a host of passing feet, and protruding from under a tattered cocoon at least was a Chinaman's cue, streaked with gray, but no Celestial at the severed end. Prepared for the worst, I was hastening down the newly beaten path toward the jungle, when a grove to my left attracted my attention, and rushing over, I found Shackelford and his Chinamen neatly trapped under the barbed wire fence.

"You see," Shackelford explained when I had pried up the edge of the deadly netting which they were unable to raise with their bare hands because of the inch long barbs, "we were joking the badly brutes off the fence with sharpened bamboos and having no end of fun when their weight doubled the whole thing over and shut us into as fine a little fort as a fellow could wish for. Ha, ha!"

Shackelford, followed by a score of bedraggled Chinamen, crawled out stiffly from his involuntary but lucky imprisonment and looked ruefully at his blood spattered clothes. "They ripped and tore at the netting like a lot of mad devils," he continued, "and the blood from their lacerated feet came through on us like a shower of warm rain, but none of us was hurt except Ah Cong over there. He was a bit careless and let his pigtail stick out through the netting. Lucky thing I had a knife, you saw old heathen!" turning to a grizzled Chinaman whose cue had been severed close to his head, "or that big ape that got hold of the end of it would have pulled it out by the roots." And Shackelford laughed uproariously as he reached for his pipe, examined the coloring with the eye of a connoisseur and then began to dig the dirt out of the bowl. "But I don't understand what made the brutes all quit and go tearing away toward the bay," he added thoughtfully as he opened his tobacco pouch.

For answer I led him down to the third derelict and showed him the empty hold.

Council Holds Back.

The City Council seems determined to hold up the appointments of Mayor Bounds as far as the police officers are concerned. Having refused to confirm the appointment of Captain J. G. North for the office of Chief of Police, after deliberating over the matter for about a month, Mayor Bounds recommended Irving Russell for the place at Monday night's meeting. At the same time the name of W. D. Long was sent to the Council with the recommendation that he be appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Officer James Kennerly. Both of these appointments were held up by the Council.

Plans New Office Building.

Dover is probably to be the headquarters of one of the largest Corporations on the Peninsula, that is of the Board of Trade and other spirited bodies can help in the matter of a suitable and not too costly a site for an office building.

The Delaware Produce Exchange, at its Directors' meeting, where the audit showed that the corporation had handled $200,000 worth of the farmer's produce and had received top prices for it in the city markets, all in three months, and with practically only the the spring crops heard from, has decided to build permanent headquarters. The new building will have to be constructed at once, in time for cold weather to house the working staff to get ready for a greater volume of business next year.

An outline of what was wanted was gone over—a five room equipment on the first floor for business offices, reception room for those having private business with the officers, and a directors room. A. H. Hardesty, the secretary and treasurer, and Ebe Walter, general manager, report that one-fifth of the entire Delaware strawberry crop, or 375 cars, was bought and sold by the corporation. All this work required some privacy, and yet in the corporation's present two-room quarters in the Priscilla Building, Dover, the work must go on publicly and in the midst of unavoidable confusion.

The exchange has appointed a finance and building committee, consisting of David Pennewill, President, J. T. Shallcross, Vice-President, H. N. Marvin, P. Emerson and S. M. Harrington, Directors, relative to the proposed exchange office building. Such a home would also give the corporation a standing and permanency and credit with the banks.

To raise the required capital, the committee figures, it will be necessary that all the present stockholders holding five or more shares double their subscription, and at least all stockholders holding less than five shares increase to five. It is pointed out as an excellent investment for a man to subscribe five dollars for every one hundred dollars worth of produce he has to market.

Health Certificate For Hair.

Any woman who changes doctors no doubt has her own reasons for making the change. The woman in this case was threatened with fever. Her first question was, "Shall I lose my hair?"

"Most likely," said the doctor. The next day he found a man with a pair of shears standing at the bedside.

"Doctor," said the man, "I wish you would write out a certificate that this hair is healthy. The lady wants to sell it. She says if she's bound to lose it anyhow in this spell of sickness she is in for she might as well get rid of it now while it will bring a good price. If she waits till it falls out nobody will buy it. Women with nice hair and not much money are smart enough nowadays to sell their hair as soon as they fall ill. Most dealers take it and no questions asked, but I'm too conscientious. I want a doctor's certificate every time in a case like this. I hope you'll be obliging."

The doctor was not obliging, and the next day a new doctor was called in—Philadelphia Ledger.

Wood Pulp Paper.

Wood pulp paper is made from wood—poplar, spruce or pine usually—which has been reduced to a fine pulp either by grinding while wet or through chemical means. The pulp is kept diluted with water while fed on to the bed of the paper machine; this bed being a continuous band or wide belt of finely woven wire. It is supported by rollers set close together and in rapid motion, the latter to set the fibers of the paper. The sheet forms almost at once, as soon as the water drains through the wire cloth, though it is then moist and weak. Successive rollers and vacuum boxes press and dry out more moisture, big rollers heated by steam finally render it perfectly dry, and then it is run between finishing rollers, varying according to the exact kind of paper to be made.—London Standard.

Late one afternoon, when the lagoon was aglow with the wonderful copper hues of a Papuan sunset, some one pointed out to me a huge dark streak moving swiftly across the water 200 or 300 yards away, and in the streak just the slightest spark of black. It was an alligator at last.

"Now you see why you can't go swimming in the lagoon," I was told. "They are worse than sharks. They don't show themselves and give you a chance. They just come down underneath you and pull you down, and that's all you or any one else knows about it. They don't eat you at once, only hold you under the water until you are drowned or half pulled to pieces and then store you away somewhere under a bank or in a hole till you are 'high' enough to be savory—just as you would do with a pheasant, you know. He's a knowing beggar, the alligator. The shark isn't in it with him for brains and savvy."—Wide World Magazine.

SENATOR JESSE D. PRICE

SENATOR PRICE GIVEN OVATION BY THE CITIZENS OF SHARPTOWN.

Wicomico's Representative In The Upper Branch Of Maryland Legislature Lauded For His Efforts Which Resulted In An Appropriation For Bridge Across Nanticoke—A Gubernatorial Boom Launched Amid Cheers.

The old biblical saying that "Man is without honor in his own country" was shown to be completely wrong on Thursday at Sharptown, when over 2000 people from all sections of Wicomico County gathered to do honor to the Senator from Wicomico County—Hon. Jesse D. Price. The big Camp Ground at this place was a living mass of people, gathered from all sections, regardless of politics, to do honor to this man for his successful efforts in having a bill passed at the last session of the legislature to build a drawbridge over the Nanticoke river at that point, which will connect up the State Highways from Wicomico county to Dorchester.

From early morning to late in the afternoon people were arriving in Sharptown in carriages, wagons, automobiles and some who lived near by even walked to be present when the exercises were started. Sharptown was in gala attire for the occasion. Every house and store in this little city was thoroughly decorated with flags, bunting, etc., and the citizens were all extending an open hand to the thousands of visitors present. Over 50 automobiles, decorated, were used to transfer the people from all sections of the county to Sharptown, which gathered together about a mile from Sharptown; and with the automobiles from Delaware and other sections outside of the county, in all numbering over 75, paraded through the streets of this little city. It was indeed a red letter day in the history of Sharptown.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Mr. Joseph P. Cooper, President of the Board of Town Commissioners, of Sharptown, bid the visitors welcome, and told them that the town was wide open to receive and entertain in "Good Old Eastern Shore Style." This was responded to by Mr. William M. Cooper, President of the Board of County Commissioners, who said that Sharptown was indeed doing itself honor as well as honoring. Then followed an address by Mr. Purnell T. White, cashier of the Sharptown Bank, who struck the popular keynote of the occasion, when, after summing up the record made by Senator Price and the ability of the man, urged him as a candidate for Governor. This was greeted with tremendous applause. The next feature on the program was an address by the Hon. Walter B. Miller, of this city, on the subject of "Citizenship," which was looked to with considerable pleasure by those present on account of the fact that Mr. Miller was the Republican nominee for the Senate at the time that Senator Price was elected. But they were due to a disappointment on account of the illness of Mr. Miller, who was confined to his home in this city. Congressman Covington was introduced to fill his place and gave a very interesting and learned address on the subject. He paid Senator Price some very high compliments on his rapid progress as a leading citizen and public official, and said that he was sure that his future would be a very promising one in public life. He received tremendous applause when in his closing remarks he said "when it's all over and all has been said and done, it can be placed in a few words 'He's a man!'" Senator Brewington was the next speaker and he dwelt upon the development of Wicomico County and more especially showed the benefits that will be received from the permanent road system and the bridge that will span the Nanticoke, what it would mean to the citizen of the county and state. He spoke in glowing terms of Senator Price and said that for years the Senator from this county had been trying to get a bridge at Sharptown and that while they were working, time was raising the man who would accomplish the purpose on which all other had failed.

Senator Gorman, the president of the last Senate, was greeted with loud applause when he arose to address the large audience. After giving the history of the passage of the bill which made the bridge possible at Sharptown, in which he gave all honor to Senator Price for his ability and untiring efforts in this direction he took up road construction in the state and the question of state aid to the counties in the way of intercommunication and highway travelers. He paid a high compliment to the energetic people of Sharptown, and said that he felt completely at home among them as he had heard so much about them in the last session of the legislature from Senator Price in his fight for the passage of the Bridge Bill. He said that he foresaw a great future for Senator Price and he assured the people of Wicomico County that his ability was not confined to the Eastern Shore, nor was his popularity, as he was considered a high-class citizen throughout the State. He also said that Senator Price's ability to lead was demonstrated during the last session of the State Senate and would unquestionably be considered whenever the people were looking for a man to fill a public trust without fear or favor. He said that the Senator's star was still shining, and would continue to shine until it placed him in the highest office it was in the power of the state to give—Governor.

Senator Price followed with an address in which he thanked the people of Sharptown and the surrounding country for the large reception, and said that while he would be less than human if he did not appreciate it, that he would have enjoyed the reception better if it had been in honor of some of his friends. He spoke at length upon the question of good Colored Business Men Organize League—Berlin Editor Charged With Libel—Train Service To Annual Camp Meetings.

The meeting of the Negro Business League, Local Chapter, No. 213 of this city was held Monday evening, July 18th, in John Wesley M. E. Church for the purpose of bringing before the people the important work and necessary means to accomplish the same undertaken by the League. Melville Chiam, a successful banker and bank president was present. Among many good things told, the speaker said success followed his effort in establishing a negro bank, in Hair Valley, Md. This man is the only negro out of 2500 graduates of New York Business Institution of Banking. He is also a member of the Local Negro Business League of this city. The officers are well known colored men as follows: J. F. Steward, Pres.; Dr. J. W. Roberts, Sec.; C. W. Johnson, Cor. Sec.; U. G. Langston, Treas.

This organization will endeavor to co operate to establish a County Organization for permanent work.

Editor Under Arrest.

The editor of the Berlin Advance, Mr. J. W. Tucker, was arrested last Friday afternoon, charged with libel against State's Attorney William F. Johnson and Judge B. D. Jones, and put under $1,000 bonds for appearance at Court. The violation of the local option law at Ocean City, calling forth a letter from that place blaming the officials of the county for alleged inaction, was the complaint in the suit.

roads, the construction of connecting links in the form of bridges, and how it would prove a benefit to every community, county and state. He discussed other state questions, and gave his views on many of them.

Next followed the supper—and what a supper it was. The posters for the occasion stated that supper would be served in "Good Old Eastern Shore Style"—and it was. If anybody realizes the hospitality and the goodness of the Eastern Shore people, they know what that meant. Otherwise they can never realize. Over 1000 people were served with supper, which comprised of all of the good things from the land and water of the "Eastern Shore" with plenty of Maryland fried chicken, oysters, soft crabs and many beautiful "Eastern Shore" girls to care for the wants of the happy visitors. The menu for the occasion was as follows: Ham, Chicken a la Price, roast beef, cream potatoes, oysters fried, soft shell crabs, trout, tomatoes, sliced sweet potatoes, pickles, bread, butter, iced tea, coffee, ice cream, fruit and cake. On account of the long drives many of the citizens took to be present on this occasion, it is reasonable to expect that the time arrived and supper was served they were in proper condition to do full justice to such a supper. At night several addresses were made to a large crowd who had remained for the evening exercises.

On every hand can be heard words of praise for the hospitable manner in which every visitor was treated by the good citizens of Sharptown. Many had never been in the little city before, and could hardly realize that there was such a community, lying as it is, back on the waters of the Nanticoke, almost completely cut off from the outside world, in which lived such hospitable people. It is easy for a public servant to hear words of commendation for their little mistakes, but it remained for Sharptown to show in a public manner their appreciation and gratitude for the faithful fulfillment of a trust and a service well rendered by a public official.

In the words of Senator Brewington in the closing remarks of his address on this occasion "Would to God that the people of the world would take a lesson from little Sharptown in this respect, and give honor where honor belongs while the man is alive and not wait until he is dead before giving him praise."

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone." MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER, 803 1/2 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind.

A Woman Passes Two Existences In One House

By EDITH V. ROSS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

My love for Edward Lane began when we were both so young that neither of us could remember a time when it did not exist. His father's place was but a short distance from ours. Indeed, the rear line marked the limits of both places. On one side of this line was the playground of the several children, boys and girls, including Edward and myself, who lived in the neighborhood. I can remember as far back as when I was seven years old and Edward nine that in playing keep house he and I always played the part of husband and wife. There was a swing on this playground, and Edward's father put up articles for a boys' gymnasium. A little house four or five feet high was built for us girls and furnished with toy furniture. At times we would leave our dolls there all night, first putting them to bed.

When I grew taller I could not understand how I could have stood upright in that little house. And what seemed more remarkable to me was that Edward could have done so, for he was always a large child. And I remember that when he had been away to school for a long while and came back he was taller than the house.

By this time we were growing out of childhood into that intermediate period when, though boys and girls may feel love, they are not likely to express it. It is a period of transition from child love to real love. The boy mind is taken up with athletic sports, while the girl hides her secret almost from herself. Indeed, so nebulous is this period that in my own case it is difficult for me to recall my exact feelings. I remember them faintly and as existing at intervals. They were rather a small portion of my girl's existence than the whole of it.

When I was sixteen I was awakened to the true condition by the marked preference displayed by another girl for my Edward. From that time my love became the principal instead of a minor part in my life. I failed to conceal my jealousy from him, and this brought out his own consciousness of what was between us. There was no formal declaration, no conventional giving of the hand, not even the lovers' kiss. He merely said something about the other girl. I know not what, but it assured me there was no change in our position since the days when we played husband and wife at keeping house—no change in the position, but a great change in the condition. It had then been like a winter bud, but it was now swollen under a spring sun, ready to put forth leaves.

I sometimes wished that I could have experienced the proposal that other girls seemed to regard the next most important moment in their lives to their marriage. Edward and I had no occasion for a proposal. Our love was rather, as I have said, an unfolding of a bud than the birth of a butterfly. The only abrupt part of it was when he gave me the first kiss. I have always treasured that in lieu of a proposal.

When we were married great changes had occurred. I was left alone in the world. So it was arranged that we should occupy my house. Our living room was on the second floor, overlooking the playground where we had pretended to be husband and wife. The faint dream of childhood had been developed to a realization of almost perfect happiness. If there could be a perfection on earth, these five years of my life, from twenty to twenty-five, were such a condition. Two children were born to us, a boy and a girl. What seemed strange to me was that, though I gave them a boundless love, that which I bore their father, instead of being diminished, was increased. Truly love must be, like space, infinite.

Up to this point there had been an expansion of happiness. Suddenly there came a check. Our youngest child sickened and died. I have described with some minuteness what I have likened to the gradual unfolding of a flower. I have no heart to give more than a brief mention of its blighting. Within a few months after the first death a second occurred, and within another year I lost my husband. For a time I was in a sort of collapse, in which I did not take enough interest in my surroundings to be affected by them. After one has been operated upon by a surgeon the senses are deadened; then comes the beginning of pain. It was so with me. When I became myself my surroundings were painful to me. Some persons similarly situated nurse their grief by living in such surroundings. I longed to get away from them. Friends advised me to seek recovery in the many new scenes and interesting objects that are to be found abroad. I took their advice. I sailed for Europe, leaving the place where I had been so happy in the hands of an agent for sale. One thing I was resolved upon—never to return to it.

It may be considered that my story is one of coincidence. It is more than that. It is an illustration of the very different conditions that may occur in the life of a single person. Masters of romance have maintained that there should not be in song or story but one love. Playwrights never bring a second one to the stage. They portray rather romance than real life and do not give all that real life needs. They are of the same order as the people of India who believe that the wife should die on the funeral pyre of her husband.

I may be weaker than some women, or I may be stronger. Possibly I may have less depth of feeling, though that I will not admit. I saw only in nursing my grief a dreadful life before me. I recognized the principle that no two absorbing ideas can occupy the brain at one time. I did all that I could to interest myself in what was about me. True, I did not at first succeed, and when I did only partially so. I dreaded the word forget, and yet I realized that to avoid suffering I must temporarily forget. I forced myself to feel that after a time I would be reunited with my loved ones and that meanwhile I must, except occasionally, put them out of my mind.

I made my home abroad. Three years after my bereavement I married again. I did so partly because I was lonely, partly because I wished for a man to rely upon, as is natural to any woman, partly because the man I married assured me that I could give him an interest in life and last, because I became attached to him. He was an American, like myself, and, being wealthy, gave himself up to study. He lived abroad that he might write books which required his presence among the subjects of which he wrote.

For five years after our marriage we continued our residence abroad. During this period children were born to us. There was a tacit mutual agreement between us that I should not talk about the world in which I had lived. I saw that he would rather leave that to me, considering himself as having no part in it, and I had no desire to make him a part of it. He was absorbed in his literary work, and if I ever told him even where I had lived he soon forgot it.

Then he was called to America on the matter of some property that needed his attention. It was agreed between us that he should leave me and our children in Lucerne, where we were then living. He expected to be absent not more than two months, but soon after his arrival in America he was induced to write for a publisher a work necessitating his presence in America. He suggested my coming home with the children, but left me to consult my own feelings in the matter.

I had never intended to return to the United States, dreading lest it would awaken me to my lost world. But with a husband and children that world had receded further and further from me till the consciousness of it had grown very dim. I wrote my husband that I would go back to the western hemisphere and remain there. I was tired of moving about from one place to another and the children were coming to that age when they should have steady instruction at school. Our boys I preferred to bring up in America. I therefore suggested to my husband that he buy a place in which we might settle. He replied that he agreed with me and would carry out my suggestions. Later he wrote me that he had bought a place in the suburbs of the city wherein it would be necessary for him to do his work.

We arrived after dark. I was delighted at our reunion, as were the father and the children. I did not ask where our home was to be. I intended to be satisfied with it, pleased with it, wherever it was. We took a train and in less than an hour alighted at a station, where a carriage was waiting for us. It was very dark when we reached our home and I saw nothing of it till I stood in the hall. Then I caught at a banister to prevent my falling.

I was in the house I had left more than ten years before with a blighted heart.

"My dear!" exclaimed my husband, starting toward me. But in a twinkling I had recovered myself. And what had enabled me to do so? The sudden appearance of an object. Ah, those objects that come to us! How much more valuable often than realization! I must at least for the present spare my good man the inexpressible pain of knowing what he had brought upon me.

"Nothing," I replied. "A little giddiness at having been so long rolling at sea."

"Nothing you don't like, is there?" he asked anxiously. "On the contrary, I am very well pleased. Let us see the rest of it."

He took me into every room in the house, a house that had been sold twice since I had parted with it and both times with the furniture included. Not for the world would I have betrayed that these rooms, closets, corners, with every bed, table, bureau, had been familiar to me from childhood. But when it was over I passed the night alone in a room opening into one occupied by the children.

No tongue or pen can describe what that night was to me. When morning came I found that if I could endure the first shock I could endure more. I deferred from day to day telling what had happened. My husband was delighted with his purchase, and before I had gained heart to tell him my secret he had become a fixture in it. Months passed, then years. My husband is now an old man and my children are grown. None of them know that their mother has been living in her second earthly world.

And yet, after all, this coincidence has not brought me unhappiness. I have been living two existences, both of which are dear to me, the one near by, the other in the far past and future; the one of flesh and blood, the other of spiritual form. In time it will be a spiritual mingling of the two.

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Been Given

Service For People Who Work In Salisbury.

Most Salisbury people work every day in some strained, unnatural position—bending constantly over a desk—riding on jolting wagons or cars—doing laborious housework; lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills enter sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs. Salisbury cures prove it.

A. R. Lohner, 318 William Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I feel safe in saying that anyone who uses Doan's Kidney Pills according to directions will find relief from kidney trouble. For at least thirty years my kidneys were disordered and as I am obliged to work in a draught and do much heavy lifting, it was hard for me to escape kidney ills. My back often became very weak and lame and the kidney secretions annoyed me by their irregularity in passage. It was finally my good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at White & Leonard's Drug Store. They brought me prompt relief. I have used them off and on during the past ten years, always finding great benefit."

She Was So Literary.

She was a charming debutante, and he was a somewhat serious chap. Conversation was rather stilted, so he decided to guide it into literary channels. "Are you fond of literature?" he asked. "Passionately," she replied. "I love books dearly." "Then you must admire Sir Walter Scott," he exclaimed, with sudden animation. "Is not his 'Lady of the Lake' exquisite in its flowing grace and poetic imagery? Is it not—'It is perfectly lovely,' she assented, clasping her hands in ecstasy. "I suppose I have read it a dozen times." "And Scott's 'Marmion,'" he continued, "with its rugged simplicity and marvelous description." "It is perfectly grand," she murmured. "And Scott's 'Perivale of the Peak' and his noble 'Bride of Lammermoor'—where in the English language will you find anything more heroic? You like them, I am sure?" "I just dote on them," she replied. "And Scott's 'Emulsion,' he continued hastily, for a faint suspicion was beginning to dawn upon him. "I think," she interrupted rashly, "that it's the best thing he ever wrote."—Cosmopolitan Magazine.

No Fear of Them.

"George, I don't like your gestures. They are not appropriate to your oration. For instance, where you say 'fate impels us forward' you shouldn't jump as if a Missouri mule had kicked you, and in that other place where you speak of 'the ceaseless round of the centuries' you ought not to grind an imaginary automobile crank."

"Aw, the arm stunts are all right, dad. I ain't trying to put up any prize poses."

"But, George, those gestures are calculated to make your schoolmates, the other boys, roar with laughter. 'Don't you think it, dad. Little Willie will be watching out for the roaring lads. And if he can spot one he'll beat him up good and proper when the show turns loose. The boys know your husky hopeful, and they won't laugh not on your life, dad?'—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Preserving a Balance.

Weatherby—How is it that your son has to study so much in summer? Featherby—That's the only time he has to improve his mind. His college course is taken up with athletics.

Query.

"Pop?" "What is it, son?" "Is an osteopath an end man in a minstrel show?" "Gracious, no, child! What put such an idea into your head?" "Well, they told us at school he was a specialist in bones."—Pittsburgh Post.

Gentle Hint.

She—I like the way the men talk in Shakespeare and the books of that time. He—What do you like particularly about their talk? She—They had such a pleasing way of saying "Aye, marry will I!"—Rehebeboth Sunday Herald.

Unfair.

"Why are the ladies of your set so down on Mrs. Gadsdill?" "She got herself appointed census enumerator of this district, and we'll have to answer her questions or go to jail."—Washington Herald.

Good Work Appreciated.

Seldom in the course of any man's life is he tendered such an ovation as that given Senator Jesse D. Price at Sharptown Thursday by the people of that thriving little village. Acts of kindness or special efforts are too apt to go unnoticed. And while the act of effort is generally appreciated to the fullest extent, there is too often no demonstration of the fact. Some one may do for us what we could not have done for ourselves and we may be duly thankful and yet we are prone to allow the kindness or the effort to pass by without even an expression of gratitude. To encourage a man to bring out the best there is in him, it is not necessary to compliment or flatter. Simply show a man that his work is appreciated and you will instill in him a desire, coupled with the determination, to do even greater things.

It is one thing to have our efforts appreciated but it is quite another when that appreciation reaches the proportions of the public demonstration at Sharptown in recognition of the efforts of Senator Price. It may be that he did nothing that could not have been done by any other man occupying the same position but this evidently made no difference to the people of Sharptown. They asked him, during the latest session of the General Assembly to secure, if possible, an appropriation from the State to erect a bridge across the Nanticoke at that place. By special effort and his natural ability he was able, after a hard fight, to secure what they asked, and by so doing he so ingratiated himself in the hearts of people of that little village that Thursday's demonstration was the result. The beginning and end of the public celebration lies in the one fact—the people of Sharptown appreciated what had been accomplished for them and, unlike many of us, expressed their appreciation publicly.

That the people of Sharptown are ambitious has been demonstrated on many occasions, principally when the public meeting was held in this city at which the route of the new State road through this county was decided, but now an entirely new phase of their character has developed—they are appreciative; and because of this it is safe to state that Sharptown is destined to become a larger and more important city.

The reception Thursday was but a tribute to a man who had rendered faithful service and who had done his duty and Senator Price should, in turn, be duly grateful.

Any man who by special effort accomplishes good in his community is a public benefactor. Senator Price has done this, and to know, as he does now, that his work is appreciated, is his greatest reward.

Now is the accepted time to get a seashore home site at your own price. Don't forget the date, Ocean City, July 29th, 10 a. m.

LESSONS FROM A WORLD TRIP

General Le Fevre Says Americans Spend Too Much.

EXTRAVAGANT IN EVERY WAY.

Former Ohio Congressman, Who Has Been Globe-Sirring, Contends That We Ought to Eat More Rice—Also That India's Architecture is the Most Beautiful of All.

General Benjamin Le Fevre, for many years a representative in congress from Ohio, who arrived at New York recently from a ten months' trip around the world, made some interesting statements concerning his tour. Having covered the western part of Europe, the general went to Vienna and Budapest and thence went through Bulgaria, Roumania and Servia.

"I found Hungary beautiful," said General Le Fevre, "but the Balkan countries are the most desolate I ever visited. The soil is poor, and the people seem poverty stricken. My next stop was in Turkey. I spent two weeks in Constantinople and was impressed by the devoutness of the people. When I was there it was the month of religious services, and everybody was praying. Next I went to Smyrna and into Palestine, where I spent several weeks visiting most of the places of interest. In Jerusalem I stopped three weeks, getting a peep into the wonderful cave from which Solomon took out the stone for the temple. Next I went to Port Said.

American Works in Parsee Libraries.

"Bombay was my next objective point, and I must say that I found India very interesting indeed. There is no question to my mind that the architecture of that country is the finest in the world. The Taj Mahal hotel at Bombay is certainly one of the most beautiful structures of the kind anywhere. It is owned by a Parsee. I got to know some Parsees, and I was admitted to some of the libraries in private houses, where I found the works of Mark Twain and some other American authors. The Parsees truly lead the simple life. Of course I visited the Tower of Silence, where the Parsees dispose of their dead. There was a flock of 400 or 500 vultures about waiting for bodies to be put on the tower. There had been a funeral two hours before I reached the place, and I was told that within from two to ten minutes after a body is exposed not a shred of flesh is left. The Parsees, I was informed, are now investigating cremation, and there is a possibility that they will adopt it instead of the ancient method of disposing of their dead.

"Of course I journeyed to Delhi and at Agra saw the wonderful Taj Mahal. Lucknow and Cawnpur I visited on my way to Benares, the sacred city, where I stayed several days. I saw them taking corpses and dipping them into the Ganges and then burning them on piles of wood near the river bank. It costs about $2.10 for the wood, which is a tremendous sum for the ordinary Hindoo, and when the flames have consumed the major portion of the corpse its father or son or other near relative takes a long pole and reverently pushes the head and feet upon the coals.

Families Living on Five Cents a Day. "In Calcutta, which is a wonderfully beautiful city, I took a great deal of interest in looking into conditions in the great jute mills, which employ 57,000 people. These mills are said to furnish the most permanent work that is to be had in India. Of the number employed the experts receive wages of 12 cents a day. The others draw 8 and 10 cents.

"In spite of these wages I found that a family of five or six persons can live on 5 cents a day. Their food, of course, is rice. Their houses are of mud and bamboo, and those I looked into were clean and comfortable. The workman puts aside half of his wages, his ambition being to own his own house.

"Now, what I saw in my trip, and especially in India, impressed me with the extravagance in living in our country over any other. We are extravagant in every respect. In every phase of our life we have gone to the very extreme. I think it is not too much to say that one-half of the people of the world are living upon rice. A man can live upon from 1 to 2 cents' worth of rice a day. When on my trip through Louisiana and Texas I saw warehouses all piled full of rice and no sale for it and asked why it was. I was told there was no demand for it. If we would use one-half or even one-third as much rice for food as do the people of the east the whole question of the higher cost of living would be solved. The Japanese, who live upon rice, demonstrated in their late war their great powers of endurance.

Sample of Extravagance. "As for our extravagance, why, take the farmer. A few years ago one buggy was considered sufficient for him to keep on his place. Then it came to pass that every son must have a buggy of his own, and the farmhouse got to be like a big livery stable. Now the farmers have all got orders in for automobiles. The village butchers used to have trouble selling their choice pieces of meat. Now nobody will eat

The man who pursues in his honesty wants little of being a villain.—Martin

Not What They Seemed.
A marquis who was in residence for a few days at a Parisian hotel discovered that her pearl necklace, worth $15,000, had disappeared from her room. Suspicion fell on a messenger boy, who admitted his guilt, but declared that the necklace had been taken from him by his mother. The mother corroborated her son's statement, expressing astonishment that so much trouble should be made about "a trashy little trinket," which, she explained, looked so cheap and tawdry that she had given it to her daughter-in-law. This young woman, in her teens, displayed an equal contempt for the "bits of things." She told the police that she had given the necklace to her little girl to wear, but she had removed about half the beads. All the missing pearls were found in a box among buttons and hooks and eyes.

A Glean of Hope.
They were evidently from the country and had wandered into the first place of amusement they found. A performance of "Richard III." was in progress, and after buying tickets they went squeaking down the aisle, led by the usher, to seats well toward the front.
They watched the stage at first with hope of some excitement, but with steadily decreasing interest. At last the young woman touched the young man.
"Let's go out, Jim," she said. "It's more interesting out in the street."
"Let's hold on a minute longer," returned her escort. "It cost considerable to get in, and, besides, that fellow has just called for a horse. I shouldn't wonder if the show's really going to begin now, Emma."—Youth's Companion.

Behold the little busy bee,
And yet—pray ponder on it—
It's not so busy when he's free
As when he's in a bonnet.

FIFTY YEARS OF HORROR
IF EUROPE GOES TO WAR.

Scotch Peace Advocate Proves Direful
Prophecy.

"Europe will be swept by devastation that will last for perhaps fifty years if any two European powers become involved in war."

This statement was made by the Rev. Walter Walsh, city councillor of Dundee, Scotland, and one of the world's foremost advocates of peace, recently before the City club of Chicago on the military situation in Europe. Dr. Walsh deplored the prevalence of war, basing his assertion more on utilitarian than on humanitarian principles.

"It is impossible to believe that any two of the great powers would be allowed to remain alone in a war," he said. "Europe would be drawn into two parts arrayed against each other. For instance, Great Britain might be allied with Russia and France in opposition to the German and Austrian empires and perhaps Italy. If a war should begin the result would be bankruptcy for every nation concerned and a devastation of the continent from which the nations might not recover in half a century."

"All the powers are ready to fight, and yet every one of them welcomes the idea of an agreement that will prevent war. The German empire is the strongest individual nation, but it would be confronted by a mighty alliance if it should attempt violence to one of its enemies. Its army is the best in Europe, but I believe that the resources of Great Britain would hold out longer than those of the Germans. The remedy for this situation is to be found in the establishment of an international court of arbitral justice, probably at The Hague, in the Netherlands. Mr. Knox, the secretary of state, has promised that this court shall be in existence when the next Hague conference meets in 1913."

"All Europe is eager to see the court in working order. Every nation has been waiting to see the United States, the only disinterested nation, start the work. Both the late King Edward and the Kaiser have said that they were heartily in favor of the plan."

Pascal's Early Observation.

Blaise Pascal, who wrote a remarkable treatise on the laws of sound, was constantly observing the familiar occurrences about him even as a boy. When he was only ten years old he sat at the dinner table one day striking his plate with his knife and then listening to the sound.

"What are you doing with that plate, Blaise?" asked his sister.
"See," he replied. "When I strike the plate with my knife it rings. Hark!"

Again he called forth the sound.
"When I grasp it with my hand so," he continued, "the sound ceases. I wonder why it is."

To Avoid Telling Secrets.

A New York theatrical manager was advising a friend to be cautious in an undertaking he had in view.

"You can't take too many precautions," he asserted. "An ounce of prevention," as the copybook used to say, "is better than seven pounds of allopathic, homeopathic or hydropathic cure." One of the most contented men I ever knew was the most cautious. He was deaf and dumb, and he never went to bed without putting on boxing gloves.

"Boxing gloves? What for?"

"So that he wouldn't talk in his sleep."

Gold Filled.

What does "gold filled" mean? Probably most people who buy gold filled watches fancy that they are mysteriously impregnated with gold. The term is misleading. Gold filling consists in taking two sheets of gold, between which is placed a section of solder coated base metal. This metallic sandwich is heated and pressed, so that the three parts are welded together, with the gold outside.—Chicago News.

PEDDLERS' CRIES SWEET MUSIC
IN EARS OF BOSTON CULTURE

An outdoor school for instructing musical ragmen, hawkers and street vendors is the novel undertaking established in Boston by Miss Caroline E. Wenzell, a Hub settlement worker and college graduate.

Miss Wenzell believes that if the voice of the ragman and the hawker must be tolerated it should issue from the throats in tones of harmony. It should be operatic. The reformer has and musically their customers would be doubled and trebled. Miss Wenzell got their attention and then and there gave her "class." Four peddlers were at the first lesson.

Gradually the size of her class increased. Miss Wenzell goes to her school three times a week. She arrives about 10 o'clock in the morning, seats herself on a box, and the men stand in front of her. There are always one or organized an outdoor school and for several months has been teaching ragmen, hawkers and street men how to cry their wares.

Miss Wenzell selected an alleyway through which many peddlers pass daily and waited. As fast as the peddlers appeared she stopped them. Each was asked his nationality, how long he had been in the country, whether he was married or not and how much English he knew.

Gradually getting their confidence by arguing that if they spoke better English and cried their wares more plainly

MOTORBOAT ON LONG CRUISE

Explores Mississippi, Mexican Gulf, Atlantic and Great Lakes.

When the Catherine M., a seaworthy thirty-five foot cruising launch, came alongside a Chicago dock recently she had finished a remarkable cruise of 6,812 miles on river, ocean and lake in the exact running time of 855 hours and 58 minutes.

Ralph M. Pearson, twenty-five years old, who is in the newspaper delivery business, built the boat and navigated her the entire distance. He and his mother were passengers. Their cruise took them down the old Illinois and Michigan canal, through the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, along the Gulf coast, through the Keys of Florida to Miami, thence partly by inland waterways and partly on the ocean to New York, up the Hudson, through the Erie canal and back to Chicago by way of the Great Lakes.

The start from Chicago was made May 3, 1909, and only in two instances did the young navigator encounter serious difficulty. The first was on July 17, 1909, off Cape Romano, Fla., when a hurricane carried the boat twenty-five miles out to sea, where it struggled with the storm during the greater part of the night, but finally got safe into anchorage among the keys.

In the middle of Lake Erie the craft sprung a leak in a choppy sea and for a time threatened to go to the bottom.

ROULETTE TO PAY OFF DEBT.

Sir Hiram Maxim Wants Britain to Become Monte Carlo.

Sir Hiram Maxim has been preaching the fallacy of trying to win money betting on the races. Maxim has figured out mathematically there is no system to beat the races. Admitting that some people must gamble, Maxim suggests the establishment of national roulette wheels, a percentage of the winnings to go to the treasury.

"As people will gamble, I would have national roulette substituted for betting on the races," he says. "Betting on the races should be penalized so that ultimately racing would cease except between genuine horsemen."

"Organizing roulette with minimum odds against the players would mean that about $10 out of every $500 passing over the tables would go to the state. The latter thus could pay off the national debt in a few years."

PHILIPPINES ARE HEALTHY.

Government Report Indicates Americans Stand Climate Well.

Any idea that the Philippines are unhealthy as an abiding place for Americans would seem to be dispelled by the statement issued from the bureau of insular affairs that the death rate among the more than 8,000 government employees in the islands for the quarter ended March 31 was only 6.9 per 1,000 a year. These employees, of whom some 2,700 are Americans, include all the officials and employees of the insular, provincial and municipal governments and the police and fire departments of Manila.

two new recruits, and these she takes in hand at once.

The instruction itself is very simple. Miss Wenzell first finds out what the man is selling and suggests what expression he use to call out his wares. She then tells him how to pronounce the words. The third and last instruction is that when calling out on the street he must hollow the roof of his mouth as much as possible, keeping the tongue as flat as possible—in other words, the usual instructions of a singing teacher for the production of a good ringing "head tone."

STRUP MAKES GOOD ROADS.

Montana Tennis Players Find Economical Hardener.

A scheme for improving the roads of Montana by sprinkling them with a strup which is a refuse in the manufacture of granulated sugar from sugar beets will be submitted to the good roads convention and is being widely discussed in Billings.

The idea of using refuse strup on roads grew out of an experiment made by a tennis club. When the court was laid out the dust caused considerable annoyance; also the fact that with every rain the soil was picked up by the shoes of the tennis players.

In looking about for a cheap binder one member suggested refuse strup. It answered the purpose admirably. When mixed with salt and poured over the ground to a depth of several inches the ground was rendered impervious to water and the dust was entirely eliminated. It worked virtually as well without salt.

It is believed that if the country roads are properly graded, rolled and copiously sprinkled with this refuse strup they could be kept in fair condition with two such treatments a year at a cost trifling when compared with oil.

PARIS IS ROSE CRAZY.

Form Parts of Garb of Men and Women at Parties.

A wonderful collection of roses is the chief feature of the international flower show in Paris. The collection is named "The Rose Through the Ages" and contains the complete history of the rose in all its forms and in its effects on literature and art.

There are two sections. The first consists of living plants showing the origin of the rose from the rose of the Magi (twelfth century B. C.) to the rose of today. The second section deals with the rose in science, literature, art and decorative pottery.

The show has introduced a new kind of entertainment. Rose parties are the craze of the moment.

Women have special gowns made, and they are covered with fresh roses. Men wear court dress of the palest shades with wreaths of roses to match around the neck and on the shirt front as a kind of decoration.

IMPORT NEW ZEALAND DEER.

Vancouver Sportmen Make Novel Experiment in Game.

Vancouver sportmen are going to make endeavors to bring red deer from New Zealand, which are to be located in the mountainous districts of Vancouver Island upon arrival. An attempt was started last year to import some of the deer species from England but owing to the heavy freight rate the plan fell through.

It is proved that the red deer will thrive in the climate of that section of the coast, the only handicap to their life being the usual necessity of having to graze in sheep country, the sheep making short work of the grass available.

Mexican Railway Branch Progresses.

The Southern Pacific railway, building along the Mexican west coast, is expected to reach Guadalajara in about eighteen months. It has reached the Santiago River, and the line from Acapulco to the river is being opened to traffic.

LIMEKILN REFORM

Brother Gardner Expatriates His Ideas For Paradise Hall.

NEW RULES FOR DEBATES.

All Discussions Appertaining to High Prices Are Tabooed—Mottos For the Walls—Dreams and What They Mean to the Club.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

At the last regular meeting of the Limekiln club Brother Gardner arose in his place and said: "My friends, a little bit of a wave of reform has started to sweep over the kentry. Dat wave hain't knee high yet, but we hope to see it grow and grow until it is higher'n a house. 'Dis Limekiln club has allus stood for reform. We has allus aided it in every possible way, and we shall continue to do so. We am libin' in hopes dat de day may come when we can count up as many as twenty honest men in high places. It may be a pipe dream to look forward to any such thing, but when reform starts in you can't nebbet tell when she will stop. 'Tis de purpose of assistin' reform I have made changes in our rules and regulations as follows. Please gib me your closest attention:

HAD TO DREAM OF PICKING UP GOLD.

"Doorin' de comin' summer de temperature of Paradise hall am not to go above 125 degrees widout a special order.

"From dis date on no member of dis club will be allowed to remove his brogins doorin' a meetin' to scratch his chilblains. Scratchin' betwixt and arter de meetin'.

"All meetin's will open at 7 o'clock and close at 10. De windin' of watches must be done befo' or arter.

"Any member dislikin' roastin' sweet taters in de stove will be deemed guilty of Pittsburg graft and fined accordingly.

"No one will be allowed to sell tickets to church fairs except in de sunny room, and in every case de seller must inform de buyer dat he don't guarantee no prizes, and dat he can't see but mighty little difference between a church grab bag and a lottery.

Rules About Debates.

"All discussions regardin' poetry, prizefights, astronomy, pumpkin pie, politics, Jonah and de whale and de new tariff is ruled out of de hall.

"No member of dis club shall put forward a presidential candidate for 1912 on pain of bein' fined $50.

"I am hereby announced and understood dat dis club am de friend of any friend of de people sellin' milk at 8 cents a quart.

"If dis club ever disklbers dat water-millins has been kept in cold storage for twenty years and den unloaded on innocent cul'd people it pledges itself to raise de biggest row ever heard of in America.

"Dis club will not appoint a committee of three to assassinate de heads of de beef trust. It will hold on and let dem pussons die in de greatest agony of accusin' consciences.

"Dis club hain't gwine to fool away no time tryin' to find out de cause of high prices of libin'. De high prices am yere, same as de tater bug and de whoopin' cough, and what's de use of kickin'?

"Dis club, as a club, has not and will not take sides in de no'th pole controversy. As individuals, Givendain Jones can stick to Dr. Cook and Waydown Beebe can stick to Peary."

The president then announced that the following new mottoes would be hung on de walls during de coming week and would be expected to last until de beginning of winter:

"Truth will come out on top if you can afford to wait a hundred years for it."

"We build our poorhouses to take care of our honest men in deir last days."

"Progression am de watchword. As a nation we have been uplifted till a prizefighter can aim mo' cash and reputation in an hour dan a president in a year, but de end am not yet. Keep it up."

"Dar am heaps of honest, upright men in de world, but dey am all lost in de woods, and we can't spare de time to find 'em."

Office Cripples Integrity.

"We am full of integrity until sent to de legislature as a reward. Den de insurance companies come in wid deir tables of mortality and show us war we have been wrong all along."

"Every man has at least ten good traits of character, but we forget all about 'em when he makes $10,000 a year out of an office payin' only $1,500."

"Gray hairs am a sign of wisdom, but wisdom nebbet did have much of a show in guessin' which boss would come in ahead."

"What we intend to do tomorrow won't bring home any bacon and taters today."

"You can't find a man in any prison who won't sorrowfully tell you dat he has lost all confidence in humanity and wouldn't believe in his own brother."

"When a judge who am 'lected by de votes of a party makes a decision from de bench dat you can't understand he don't intend you to understand it. He's payin' a political debt."

"We hold dat truth am mighty and should allus be spoken, and yet when we lie and when a man says we lie we am humiliated and made indignant."

"De campaign speech was invented to get ahead of de odder feller and tell about his corrupshun befo' he can tell about ours."

"If you die in your bed de doctors will differ about de ailment dat carried you off. If a policeman cracks your skull it's impossible to identify him. If you am sandbagged on de street de coroner may call it a case of heart disease. If you am smashed up on de railroad dey call it an act of providence. Pears to us dat de best and cheapest way am to sot down 'longside a big red cored watermillin' and let de world dodge past your cabin."

Dreams and Signs.

The president likewise announced that for de purpose of pushing honest reform tle following new signs and tokens would be hung up:

"Dreamin' of a black cat signifies dat a policeman am watchin' de wood pile whar you have been in de habit of stealin' your fuel. Hunt some odder place and preserve your reputation for integrity."

"To dream dat you am pickin' up gold in de road signifies dat a policeman am gwine to pick you up next day. If you can't show dat you wasn't up dat alley you'll git thirty days."

"To hear a hen crowin' at midnight signifies dat you'd better git into line on de woman's suffrage movement if you want an office. Dey am crowin' at all hours of de day."

"To dream dat you have been turned into a wild boss signifies dat when de next campaign comes you'll be a bigger jackass dan ober. You'll do all de work and let de white man get all de offices."

"To see seben white crows sittin' on a rail fence in line signifies anodder beef trust raise in prices and dat you've got to git a bigger hustle on it pork am fur you."

"To dream dat cucumbers am sellin' fur a cent apiece, wid a great big to-mater frowed in, signifies dat you'll have to pay $4 apiece fur beef livers befo' de year am out."

"To dream dat Mr. Rockefeller founded his foundashun by handlin' you $20,000 and a lemon signifies dat you'll git de lemon right 'nuff and be turned outdoars fur your rent. Better dream dat Mr. R. wasn't in when you called."

Strictly Prohibited.

Some Washingtonians went out to Hyattsville, Md., to a wedding. "Jim," said one of de Washingtonians to de aged negro butler who was fussing around, "can't you get us some confetti?"

"What's dat?" asked Jim.

"Can't you get us some confetti?"

"No, sah, I can't, boss; I suah can't. This yere's been a dry town for more'n a year, an' they ain't a drop in de house."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Her Hard Task.

"That's a beautiful girl you have in your store," said de man acquaintances. "I've seen her in de window several days as I passed."

"She isn't an employee," the milliner answered wearily. "She's a woman trying to decide on a new hat."—Buffalo Express.

THE RIGHT COMBINATION

Bachelor's Inquiries Concerning Wife Wisely Answered by Manager.

"His young bachelor passed leisurely before de window of de matrimonial establishment. As de sign 'No Trouble to Show Goods' he brightened up and went inside. The manager came forward.

"Good morning, sir. Something in our line?"

"Well, I thought—"

"Would you like to look at some of our regulars?"

"Yes. Plain, ordinary wife; stays home and mends clothes, always lives within income, never cares to go out, devoted to children, domestic. Have some fine specimens."

"N-no, thank you."

"Possibly something a trifle gayer—dashing figure, plays bridge, loves automobiles and is—oh—at de same time—well, you know—all right in every respect; capable of great love and affection."

"No, thank you."

"How would a nice roly poly strike you? We have some exceptional values in adipose tissue. You know they are capable of a world of affection and are always good natured. Many prefer them in spite of weight. Not necessarily more expensive to clothe than de thinner varieties. Move slower and cost less."

"I guess not."

"Something quite gay and exciting? Lead you a life of continuous hysteria, distract you with love and jealousy, leading to probable divorces? Some prefer this sort, as they like to be amused."

"Not for me."

"Maybe you'd like an intellectual lady—several lovely specimens, speaking, of course, allegorically. Cultured to finger tips, high brows, blue blood, cold as marble, but very uplifting."

"No, sir."

"Possibly a soul mate might interest you. Have some remarkable offerings. Best line of blond affinities, all shapes and sizes, ever put on de market; also some odd brunettes, with depth of love guaranteed for one year; or I can give you a combination of fer—a regular, steady going matrimonial side partner and a soul mate thrown in at a slight extra cost."

"I think not."

The manager paused somewhat impatiently. He was beginning to wonder.

"Maybe you can suggest something," he said.

"Yes. Can't you let me have some one who combines all of de good points dat you have mentioned?"

"You want all of them in one woman?"

"That's it."

"I think I could manage it, on one condition."

"What's dat?"

"That you agree to fall genuinely in love with her."

The bachelor smiled.

"What's dat got to do with it?" he asked.

"Only this," replied de manager, "that then it wouldn't make much difference. If you really loved her you would think she had all of those qualities anyway."—Life.

Elderly Flippancy.

It was de morning of de Sunday school picnic, and they were about to start for de train.

"Well, what are we waiting for?" demanded de father of de large family. "We're all ready, aren't we?"

"Of course not," responded de mother. "Can't you see dat Elizabeth hasn't come down yet?"

"That's so," grunted paterfamilias. "I've overlooked a Bet."—Chicago Tribune.

A Corner For Husbands.

"Why do you suppose so many women sue for divorce?"

"I have a somewhat novel theory about it."

"What is it?"

"I imagine they like to get their husbands in court and get a good look at them. You know they never see anything of them."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Couldn't Tell It Quickly.

Morlarly had been badly hurt by falling from a scaffold, and after the ambulance had carried him away the question of breaking de news to Mrs. Morlarly came up. "Send Hannigan," suggested one of de gang. "He's just de man to break de news gradual. Look how he stutters."—Argonaut.

any but the best cuts and won't touch the meat of a bullock over two or three years old, and the commoner parts are sent to the cities to make bologna out of. Then in the country towns everybody used to keep chickens and have his own eggs and raise a few vegetables. Today you can drive through a dozen country towns in succession, and while you may find that half a dozen houses have flowers in their front yards, there won't be any that has a vegetable garden or a chicken coop. Men who are working by the day are raising nothing. Everybody wants to be a millionaire and is doing only a special kind of work. He won't keep chickens or a pig. Why, in Canton, China, where half a million people live on boats, you will find a family on a craft from twenty to thirty feet long, while on one end of the boat is a nest coop with chickens and ducks in it, a little pen in which is a pig and a little box with earth in it, in which they are raising lettuce or some other vegetable. You will see the same thing on the boats of the 80,000 Hollanders who live afloat.

"I have a farm out in Ohio. You have to kill pigs when they are mere shots and weigh only 250 pounds. Formerly you used to be able to let them grow to 400 pounds, but now the meat is not considered quite as good. Then you have got to kill a beef at two years old instead of waiting until it weighs 1,200 pounds.

"But to get back to my trip. From Calcutta I went to Burma. It is a wonderfully interesting country. Everybody connected with the teak-wood industry seems to have made a fortune out of it. The rice they raise there is of so fine a quality that they export it and import a cheaper quality from India to live on. The country is being developed by the Americans and the English. I next went to Singapore, and then I went to Java, and

NEXT I WENT TO

LOVER OF FIGHTING COCKS.
"From what I saw of the islands I believe that the Philippines will prove as valuable an acquisition as Alaska. I went to live in a peasant's mud house, as I like to study economic problems. I found that the assets of a laborer in the Philippines usually amount to between $25 and $50. Of this sum $1.50 to $2 represents the value of the pots and kettles and mats in the house. The rest is represented by a fighting cock. There is not a native man in the Philippines, so far as I could see, who does not own such a fowl. He massages him, carries him about under his arm and fairly worships him. I visited Hongkong and Canton and then Japan. There can be no question as to the character of the feeling of the Japanese toward Americans when the little children are so enthusiastic over every American they see. Of course I stopped at Honolulu. Fifty years from now that will be the greatest bathing place in the world. There are said to be no fewer than 150 millionaires living in palaces there today.

"After I reached San Francisco I took my first look at southern California and was amazed at the country. Then I came along by the southern route by way of Texas and Louisiana."

Got the Job.

"You need a boy?" queried now as he stepped inside the ice dealer's office.

"In the ice business?"

"Nothing about arithmetic?"

"And twenty pounds of ice for 2 cents a pound?"

"Come around in the afternoon to go to work."—Chicago.

Ways of the Alligator.

Late one afternoon, when the lagoon was aglow with the wonderful copper hues of a Pagan sunset, some one pointed out to me a long dark streak moving swiftly across the water 200 or 300 yards away, and in the streak just the slightest speck of black. It was an alligator at last.

"Now you see why you can't go swimming in the lagoon," I was told. "They are worse than sharks. They don't show themselves and give you a chance. They just come down underneath you and pull you down, and that's all you or any one else knows about it. They don't eat you at once, only hold you under the water until you are drowned or half pulled to pieces and then store you away somewhere under a bank or in a hole till you are 'high' enough to be savory—just as you would do with a pheasant, you know. He's a knowing beggar, the alligator. The shark isn't in it with him for brains and savvy."—Wide World Magazine.
