KEEP OUT OF SUSSEX COUNTY

Marylanders Warned of The Prevalence of Smallpox in Delaware

That the citizens of Maryland, and especially those living on the Eastern Shore may be warned of the smallpox existing in Sussex county, Delaware, which adjoins Wicomico, Worcester and Dorchester counties of Maryland, the State Board of Health of Maryland has posted in all postoffices and railway stations of the Eastern Shore large notices, a copy of which follows:

"WARNING—Until further notice all citizens of Maryland are warned of the prevalence of smallpox in Sussex county, Delaware, and are strongly advised not to visit Sussex county until the disease is under control. It appears that Sussex county is without any health organization, and without men, means or authority to form a health organization. Moreover, the authorities in Sussex county have refused the aid of the State Board of Health of Delaware. Under such conditions of anarchy the smallpox may continue indefinitely.

"Persons who have urgent business in Sussex county may go there without great risk if they have been vaccinated recently. Visits to Maryland by persons living in Sussex county should be discouraged, though no great risk would attend such visits if visitors and visited were protected by vaccination. Until the times mend, keep out of Sussex county. By order of The State Board of Health. J. S. FURROW, State Health Officer."

Our citizens would do well to heed this warning and discourage intercourse between Maryland and the southern part of Delaware.

Parents should keep the fact clearly in mind that chickenpox resembles a mild case of smallpox very greatly and that the two are often confused even by those who have had much experience. In every instance where it is believed that the child or adult even has chickenpox, don't take any chances, but call a physician at once and have him decide.

Ex-Senator Dennis Dead

A telegram was received last Thursday morning announcing the sudden death from apoplexy of former State Senator L. E. P. Dennis at St. Petersburg, Florida, where he was spending the winter with his wife and daughter. In recent years Mr. Dennis, who was about 77 years old, had not been enjoying the best of health, but his sudden taking off was wholly unexpected.

For a number of years Mr. Dennis was in the fertilizer business at Crisfield, and was regarded as one of Somerset's most progressive as well as one of its wealthiest citizens. He was an ardent Republican and always took an interest in politics. He was a delegate to the Maryland Convention which ratified the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, giving the franchise to the negro. In 1903 he was the Republican candidate for comptroller, Stevenson A. Williams then being the party's candidate for governor. He was also at one time postmaster at Crisfield and collector of customs at that port.

He is survived by one son, Mr. E. Benson Dennis, and two daughters, Mrs. James H. Sterling and Mrs. William M. Wooster, all of Crisfield.

His remains were brought to Crisfield last Friday evening and funeral services were held in Immanuel M. E. Church Sunday afternoon.

Young-McNaghten Wedding

Mr. John Walter Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young, of Princess Anne, and Miss Margaret McNaghten, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McNaghten, were married on January 22nd. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents at Pleasantville, Ohio. Because of the feebleness of the bride's father the marriage was a quiet one, only members of the immediate families of the contracting parties being present.

Miss McNaghten is a member of Delta Gamma sorority of Ohio State University. For the past fifteen months she has been in government work at Norfolk, Va. Mr. Young is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and was a lieutenant in the United States Navy. During the war he made six trips to France on the Zelandia.

The newly wedded couple, accompanied by the groom's parents, who attended the wedding, arrived in Princess Anne Saturday, January 24th. They left the following Sunday for Norfolk, Virginia, where they will make their home.

Farmers Institutes

An interesting program has been arranged for the Farmers' Institutes which will be at Princess Anne on Tuesday, February 10th, and Marion Friday, February 20th. Both morning and afternoon sessions will be held.

Farmers should arrange to attend these institutes as subjects of interest will be discussed by prominent speakers.

NEW BOND ISSUE FOR SCHOOLS

General Meeting To Be Held February 10th To Discuss Question

A meeting of the Board of Education of Somerset County was called in special session last Tuesday. Dr. Atkinson and Dr. Wainwright, president and vice-president of the board, were present, as well as a number of interested citizens from various parts of the county, who took part in the general discussion.

The object of this meeting was a get-together one of the County Board of Education, the Board of County Commissioners and tax-payers of the county, in an effort to secure a bond issue for new school buildings and for general school improvements over the county.

Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford, attorney for the Board of Education, explained the various phases of a bond issue. It developed that the opinion of the citizen delegation was that it would require a bond issue of approximately $200,000 to carry out the proposed plan of improvement.

The members of the Board said improvement in the county schools was urgently needed. The Board proposes out of a bond issue of $100,000 to expend as follows: New school buildings in Princess Anne, $19,000; Mt. Vernon, $5,500; Kingston, $8,000; Marumco, $9,000; Crisfield, $25,000; colored schools, $15,000; miscellaneous and anticipated improvements, $17,000; painting buildings, $3,000.

After thoroughly discussing the school needs and the advisability of bonding the county for said needs, Col. Henry J. Waters made a motion that the Board of Education consult a practical architect and ask him to make drawings of and estimate the probable cost of the buildings named in the budget, this estimate to be presented before the tax-payers of the county at a general meeting to be held in the Court House for that purpose on Tuesday afternoon, February 10th, to which taxpayers in general are invited.

Among those present were: Messrs. Aden Davis, Marion Station; W. F. Carver, Marumco; W. E. Dougherty, E. L. Quinn, Warren Sterling, C. P. Lankford, of Crisfield; L. C. Beauchamp, H. Fillmore Lankford, H. J. Waters, H. C. Dashiell, Geo. W. Myers, W. A. N. Boland, C. H. Hayman, of Princess Anne. The County Commissioners were represented by Frank L. Porter, the only member of that board present on that date.

Would Put End To Questionnaires

Senator George Arnold Frick last Friday introduced a bill in the form of an amendment to the Corrupt Practices act which, if passed, will put an end to the circulation of questionnaires by "wet" labor and "suff" organizations among nominees for political office in this State.

The bill provides that any individual or organization soliciting pledges from candidates in primaries to support or oppose any legislation will be guilty of corrupt practices unless the promise be published in two newspapers 40 days before the election if all the people of the State are voting, or 30 days before the election if it is a county or city election.

After a candidate has become a duly elected nominee it shall be unlawful to obtain from him any such pledge or promise. The bill imposes a penalty of fine or imprisonment upon the candidate giving the pledge as well as upon the organization soliciting it. The bill, however, does not make it unlawful for a candidate to make such pledges and promises on the stump as he may desire.

Death Of Ota F. Bounds

Mr. Ota F. Bounds died at his home, about three miles from Princess Anne, Monday morning of last week after a lingering illness of six months, of hydrovocalitis or cankered sore throat. He was 52 years of age and was a son of the late Whitta F. Bounds, of Worcester county.

He is survived by his widow, four daughters (Mrs. Thomas J. Stevenson, of Fruitland; Misses Ruth, Ruby and Nannie Bounds) and two sons (Messrs. Hubert and Artley Bounds). He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Jennie J. Briddell, of near Princess Anne, and Mrs. Ruth D. Townsend, of Edep.

Funeral services were held at Olivet Christian Church last Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. I. S. Hankins, pastor of First Baptist Church of Princess Anne. Interment was in the church cemetery.

The pallbearers were Messrs. A. C. Pusey, George U. McAllen, J. S. Dennis, Warren Pusey, of Princess Anne; E. G. Bounds, of Allen, and Geo. A. Bounds, of Snow Hill.

Even the Leap Year girl should remember that it is a good plan to look before you leap.

TO ABOLISH STATE COMMISSION

Tidewater Senators Claim Discrimination In The Cull Law

An attack on the Conservation Commission, of which Wm. H. Killian is chairman, will be launched in the Senate shortly by Senator Gibson, of Dorchester county, who will introduce a bill to abolish it.

Feeling among the tidewater Senators against what they allege to be unjust discrimination in the enforcement of the oyster cull laws is running high. Senator Robins, of Somerset, is backing up Senator Gibson, and it is said that practically all the tidewater Senators will rally to his support. More important still are the reports to the effect that Senators from the inland counties are being lined up against the Commission. Senator Speicher, of Garrett, Republican minority floor leader in the Senate, and Senator Egpler, of Allegany, are said to be part of the opposition.

Senator Gibson's bill would transfer the functions of the Commission back to the Board of Public Works. His supporters are pointing to the fact that the Commission is not self-sustaining. But their main grievance is against the alleged discrimination in favor of Baltimore city in the enforcement of the cull laws.

Discussing this aspect of the situation, Senator Robins, of Somerset, said: "The oystermen of Somerset are up in arms over the Conservation Commission. They contend that the cull law is enforced strictly in the counties and loosely in Baltimore city. Captains of oyster boats report that when they brought their catches to Crisfield they were arrested and fined for violating the cull laws. This drove them to the Baltimore market, where the same grades of oysters, culled to the same extent, were accepted by the inspectors."

"This can only mean that Crisfield is being discriminated against, and as Crisfield is entirely dependent upon the resources of the water to support its people during the winter months the diverting of oysters to Baltimore during these months means that the packers cannot get enough to fill their orders and the shuckers cannot get enough oysters to shuck to keep them busy half the time."

Present indications are that the bill will have a good chance of being passed in the Senate. Its fate in the House is problematical. It also seems equally certain that if passed by both legislative branches and sent to the Governor it will be vetoed. The matter is said to be causing the Governor no little uneasiness, as he is loath to abolish the Commission but yet is cognizant of the strong feeling against it in the tidewater counties.

Bill Against Uplift Organizations

A bill introduced into the House last Tuesday places uplift organizations which employ persons to seek information on violation of laws, on a par with detective agencies. The bill reads:

"Every corporation or association, ecclesiastical or lay, which shall maintain an organization or committee thereof, for the purpose of habitually or regularly gathering information of violations of any law, or regularly informing upon persons by them supposed to have violated any law, shall be deemed to maintain a 'private detective agency' and shall take out a license and pay therefor as provided by existing law. Any corporation or association, ecclesiastical or lay, acting as a 'private detective agency,' without a license, is hereby declared to be a public nuisance, and upon bill in equity, filed by any taxpayer or resident of city or county, when such nuisance exists, the court shall, upon proof in ordinary course, forever abate and dissolve such corporation or association."

If the bill should become a law the Lord's Day Alliance, the Anti-saloon League and possibly the Federal Prohibition Commissioner of Maryland would be required to take out licenses as "private detective agencies."

M. V. Brewington Ill

Former State Senator M. V. Brewington, of Salisbury, is confined at the Church Home and Infirmary, Baltimore, and doctors say that there is little hope for his recovery.

Diabetes, from which he has been suffering for 20 years, is hastening the end. Mrs. Brewington, who went from their home in Salisbury to the Hospital with him, spends most of her time at his bedside. The doctors said Friday that while there is no immediate danger of his death, they are sure that he will not be able to withstand a recent relapse.

"Keep out of crowds. Eat lightly. Observe the rules of simple and wholesome living. If feverish or otherwise ill, go to bed and call a physician." These, briefly, are the rules put out by Boards of Health for avoiding the "flu."

THANKS!

We certainly feel very much pleased at the response our subscribers have made to our subscription notices and bills, paying for the paper up to 1920 and 1921. The plain white paper on which the Marylander and Herald is now printed costs, together with the postage, about $1.20 a year, so we do not believe any one will fail to act promptly in sending their subscription if in arrears. Look at the pink label on your paper and if it is 1919 send or bring your subscription at once. The subscription price is now $1.50 a year in advance.

Suffrage Amendment Nearing Goal

Twenty five states, ending with Oregon, have now ratified the Woman Suffrage Amendment to the Constitution. Eleven more are required.

In five states that have not ratified the Legislatures meet this month, and the Suffragists are concentrating their energies upon them. These States are Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, South Carolina and Virginia.

A statement just issued from suffrage headquarters says that there are 28,000,000 women old enough to vote and 17,000,000 of them either have the presidential ballot already or live in States that have ratified the Amendment.

As in the case of the Prohibition Amendment, there seems to be a race of States to get on the list of thirty-six necessary to ratify. The Governors of Idaho, New Mexico and Wyoming are represented as having agreed to call special sessions of their Legislatures for the purpose of ratifying. If these three ratify, eight more states will be needed. The Suffragists hope for Arizona, Connecticut, Indiana, Nevada, Oklahoma, Vermont, Washington and West Virginia. In these states it will be necessary to call special sessions of the Legislature if the Amendment is to be put through in time to give all women the right to vote for President next November.

Farmers Take Soil Samples

Farmers throughout Maryland yesterday took samples of their soil and will have it tested by the Experiment Station for lime requirement, free of charge. Farmers who have not taken the half pint samples should do so at once and send the samples this week to County Agent Keller, who will forward the samples to the Experiment Station. This information concerning the soil should be known by all farmers.

Greed should beware lest it perish of congested liver.

BILL TO RAISE TEACHERS' SALARY

Measure Introduced Has Support Of Governor Ritchie

Senator Disharoon, of Wicomico county, introduced last Tuesday night the administration's bill to redeem the Democratic platform promise to increase the county teachers' salaries and provide reasonable relief from the cost of subsistence to students at the State Normal Schools.

Governor Ritchie gave out a statement explaining the terms of the measure. He said that the minimum increases provided average about 33 1/2 per cent, and represent the judgment of the State Board of Education, the normal school principals, the alumni associations, the county authorities and others. The burden of paying the increases is divided equally between the State and the counties. Of course, as the increases provided are the minimum, the counties are at liberty to add to them. Continuing, the Governor said: "In the past the State has recognized, aided and standardized only those high schools in places large enough to conduct four-year high schools. This policy has left a number of smaller communities with enough pupils to justify the organization of a two or three year high school, without any school advantages beyond the elementary grades."

"In the bill introduced machinery is provided for setting up 60 or 75 one-teacher high schools to do two years of standard high school work, which will be accredited in any larger institution. It is hoped that this provision will result in affording increased educational opportunities to many small communities."

"It may not be inappropriate at this time to give a summary of the appropriations which the budget bill will recommend for public schools for 1921 and 1922."

"The amount expended for public schools in 1919 was $2,000,000 and in 1920 it will be the same. This sum now represents 17 cents in the tax rate. The amount that will be recommended for 1921 and 1922 will be $2,750,000, an increase of $750,000, which will be divided as follows: Administration expenses of the State Board of Education, $10,000; increase in pension fund, to take care of additional teachers entitled, $2,000; vocational and physical education, $5,000; colored industrial schools, $3,000; high schools, increases in existing salaries and supplying teachers for new high schools, $45,000; normal schools, increases in salaries, necessary new teachers, reasonable relief to students from cost of subsistence, and summer extension work, $61,500; elementary schools, increases in salaries, $325,000; special allotments to Calvert, Charles, St. Marys and Garrett counties, in view of their small assessable basis, to aid them meet their minimum, $7,500; total $750,000."

"It is estimated that these increases will represent a sum which, on the new assessable basis, will represent two cents on the tax rate, but whether the amount should be raised in this way or through new sources of revenue is, of course, a matter of future consideration."

Churches Add 2,779,667 Members

America's churches have gained nearly 3,000,000 members since the last church census was taken in 1916, but there has been a marked decrease in the number of Sunday-schools and Sunday-school pupils, according to "The Year Book of the Churches," which was issued last week by the Federal Council of the Churches in Christ in America, of New York.

The total church membership has increased 2,779,667, the announcement says, with an increase of 3,519 ministers and 5,350 church organizations. The total number of churches is now 233,834. There are 195,513 ministers, priests and rabbis, with 44,709,521 members of their various organizations. The decrease in Sunday-school membership is estimated at more than 3,500,000.

The total Protestant church membership is given at 25,980,456, and the Roman Catholic figures as 17,549,324. It is explained that the Protestant figures include only adult communicant members of a family, while the Roman Catholic statistics represent the entire family. Estimating four persons to a family, the Protestant constituency would be more than 50,000,000, the book says.

An estimate of members of Jewish synagogues is 280,000, and the two Mormon bodies report a membership of 494,888.

The largest Protestant body reporting was the Methodist Episcopal Church, with 4,175,502 members, and the smallest the Primitive Friends, with 50 members and 2 ministers. The National Baptist Convention (colored) is the second largest Protestant organization, with 2,938,679.

"FEED THE BIRDS" CAMPAIGN

Warden LeCompte Wants Farmers And Sportsmen To Be Interested

State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte has sent out a letter to his district deputies in connection with the "Feed the Birds" campaign. He says weekly reports from the deputies show that many of them have been very active in covering their territory locating quail and putting out feed for them, which is very essential at this time, and unless the public co-operate with this Department in feeding the birds, due to the unprecedented spell of snow and sleet, the birds of this state will suffer seriously.

Therefore he urges the deputies to still further interest farmers in the campaign.

"As you are aware, we have been using our best efforts to have the public 'feed the birds,' especially bob-white quail. It is requested that you get in touch with reliable farmers throughout your district either by phone or postal cards, requesting them to try and locate flocks of birds and feed same, and if they do not wish to do this gratis, tell them we will pay for the feed used."

"You undoubtedly know there is a heavy sleet covering the earth throughout the state, which is very unusual to continue as long as it has this season. The proper way to go about feeding the birds is to locate the birds, take a spade and clean off the earth and put out some feed (most any kind of grain will answer the purpose), then each day return to that place, and see if the birds have fed on same."

"A great many farmers do not take an interest in the sport of hunting, and for this reason, would possibly not grant your request, although they should be interested, as the quail are of more advantage to agricultural interests than any species of birds we have in our state."

"If you can get in touch with the sportsmen throughout your district, and request them to feed the birds, stating if they do not care to feed them gratis we will pay for whatever feed they purchase within a reasonable amount."

Revision Of Telephone Rates

With reference to the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company's advertisement on the telephone situation in Maryland, which appears on the 7th page of this issue of the Marylander and Herald, Mr. H. W. Carty, District Manager of the company, gave out the following statement:

"Our advertisement headed 'The Telephone Situation in Maryland,' is the first of a number of similar announcements which we expect to make in the press. We are now before the Public Service Commission with an application for certain rate increases throughout this state, and our idea is that it is only fair, to the public and to ourselves, that we should present the salient facts of our case to the public through the columns of the newspapers."

"We simply want to make clear our reasons for asking the Public Service Commission for a revision of telephone rates; and the outstanding reason is, of course, the fact that in 1919 we did not even earn enough to pay our operating expenses and interest charges."

"We are confronted with great demands for service from a plant more or less exhausted by the burden that has been placed upon it during the past several years. We are anxious to meet all of these demands, to maintain the service at a high standard and expand our plant to meet the growth of the communities we serve. It cannot be done, however, if we are to continue operations under the handicap of insufficient revenues."

Governor Firm On "Wet" Legislation

While Governor Ritchie stands firm for his wet platform of the last campaign, he is determined to go slow in urging legislation by the State that would smack of nullification. With a set purpose to avoid any step by the General Assembly that would place the State in direct conflict with the Federal Government on enforcement of prohibition, he will closely examine all laws bearing on the subject, and, at the same time, will seek the views of eminent lawyers of other States, in which, as in Maryland, there has been a reversal of sentiment on lawful prohibition. If possible there will be a concert of action by these States in taking a stand on prohibition, if it is upheld by the United States Supreme Court on the suit instituted by Rhode Island.

Attention has been called to the attempt by the Maryland Legislature, through what was known as the Digges amendment to the Constitution, to ignore the Federal amendment giving colored men the right to vote. The proposition was halted by Democrats as a pander to eliminating the colored vote. It was received with applause in Democratic quarters.

You never can tell. It's a wise weather prognosticator who knows just when to borrow an umbrella.

PHANTOM'S SOLD

Effort to Salvage Spanish Galleon Goes Merrily On.

Treasure Seekers Refuse to Give Up Hope of Securing Wealth From Wreckage of Spanish Galleon.

Little did the duke of Medina-Sidonia, admiral in chief of the invincible armada, dream, as with high hopes he set sail from the Tagus on May 29, 1588, that his great galleon, the Florida, would be sunk off Tobemory, on the coast of Scotland, and would be supplying treasure trove to adventurous spirits more than three centuries later in the year of grace 1919.

The Florida, which was popularly reported to be filled with gold, jewels and silver plate, fled northward with her sister vessels in frantic attempt to get back to Spain by rounding the north of Scotland after the fateful war council had decided to abandon the unequal fight in the narrow seas of the English channel. This was the decision which caused Sir Francis Drake to write jubilantly to Walsingham on July 31: "There was never anything pleased me better than the seeing the enemy flying with a southerly wind to the northward. We have the Spaniards before us, and mind, with the grace of God, to wrestle a pull with them."

The doomed ship had reached Tobemory when MacLean of Morven by a well-directed shot succeeded in setting fire to her powder magazine. The resultant explosion scattered the vessel and her contents far and wide over the sea bed. The immense wealth which she was believed to have on board has from that time to this excited over many minds as potent a fascination and spell as ever was wielded by dreams of discovering the treasures hidden by the buccaneers who sailed the southern seas.

At length, after several desultory attempts at reaching her, a salvage company was formed in 1903, and operations, begun then, have been continued intermittently ever since. Enough was discovered to encourage perseverance, though not to reward enterprise—blunderbusses, swords, scabbards, a bronze cannon and a few doubloons. Several recent signs, however, indicate that the searchers are at last on the right track and will soon strike the main haul. Then, if ever, should the ship's stronghold yield up its long-lost treasure and add one more to the romances of the deep.

Mixup in Relationships.
Adoption proceedings before Judge Raymond Dobb presented a complex situation that lawyers are trying to figure out, writes a Syracuse (N. Y.) correspondent. James and Lucy Loatwell were born six years ago. Their mother, Mrs. Lucy Loatwell, wife of James Loatwell, died shortly after their birth. Their father married again and then Percy McDonald, brother-in-law of the deceased Mrs. Loatwell, adopted Lucy. Charles Singer, brother of the deceased Mrs. Loatwell, adopted Jimmie.

Lucy must now call her own brother Cousin Jimmie. Her own father becomes Uncle Jim. Her hitherto Uncle Percy now becomes papa. While she will always revere the memory of the departed mother, she must regard her maternal parent as a deceased aunt, at least in the law. Her own cousins, the children of her adoptive parents, become her brothers and sisters, and the same holds true of little Jimmie. Lucy's now legal father becomes uncle to her own brother, while her stepmother she must address as auntie.

Historic Inn to Be Sold.
The famous Saracen's Head inn at Southwell, Eng., in which many American tourists have found entertainment, is to be sold at auction. Its history as a hotel runs back through 500 years.

In its early days the house was called "The King's Arms." King Charles I. stayed at the inn during the Civil Wars. Charles surrendered himself to the Scottish Commissioners on May 6, 1646, in the coffee room. The bedroom which that monarch used on the night before he gave himself up is well preserved. Other English kings also stopped at the ancient house.

Arts and Crafts in Australia.
Determined to revive interest in arts and crafts work, the executive of the Arts and Crafts Society for Victoria has invited the craft workers of the commonwealth to send exhibits without entrance fees to the annual exhibition in Melbourne in November. The exhibition will include examples of pottery, toy-making, metal work, stained glass, modeling, lace and leather work, engraving and etching, and design of poster work. Designs must be original, and if possible have an Australian motif. The fact that a number of disabled soldiers have taken up arts and crafts work will add additional interest to the exhibition.

Grand Old 100 Years Old.
Christ church of Rio de Janeiro, which soon will celebrate its centenary, is said to have been the first Protestant church to be built in South America.

It was erected to provide a place of worship for the English community. Two restrictions were placed on the church, the exterior was to resemble a dwelling house and not a temple, and no bells were allowed. Out of this concession grew the religious liberty which now exists in Brazil.

Today there are two Anglican dioceses and 40 churches in South America.

Jack of All Trades.
Although President Emeritus Elliot of Harvard university no longer takes an active part in the conduct of the institution he has been characterized as "Professor of Everything." A man of his acquaintance overheard the following conversation of two rural folk at Bar Harbor a few days ago:

"There goes Professor Elliot."

"Who?"

"Professor Elliot of Harvard college."

"What's he professor of?"

"Well, I dunno, but I guess he's professor of the whole darn thing."

At His Age, Too!

Best Thing to Do.
The theater was in an uproar. "They're calling for the author," said the stage manager.

"Oh, I can't make a speech," replied the man responsible for the play.

"Well, just go in front and tell 'em you're sorry."

Famous American Patriot.
In 1832, on the 14th of November, Charles Carroll, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence, died at the age of ninety-six. He studied law in France and England and returned to America at the age of twenty-seven, where he soon became known as an able political writer and a strong advocate of liberty. Twenty-two years before his death he retired to private life.

HER LIFE FOR HER PUPPIES

Airedale Never Hesitated When Called Upon to Make the Supreme Sacrifice to Duty.

Again a mother has given her life for her young.

This time the setting is the San Francisco waterfront, down where whistles scream, hoists squeal and rattle, engines chug and there is a mechanical ensemble of industrial noise the long day through. The principals are dogs—a wiry-haired Airedale mother and her four puppies.

A scow was home to the canine family. One day a swell overturned the basket in which the pups lay, and overboard they went. There was no human aid near. But the mother leaped to the rescue of her drowning offspring. One by one she brought the little pups to safety. But before she could reach the last one it drowned.

Men found her on deck, still holding the body of the dead puppy, and with the three others scrambling and whining around her. The mother was too exhausted to move. They sent for a physician, but when he arrived the rescued pups were orphans.

To the burden of her own six pups, an Irish setter who lives aboard the same scow, has added the care of three foster children, the orphans of the Airedale mother.

DIDNT QUITE GET THE IDEA

Japanese Geisha Girl Meant Well, But American Traveling Man Remained Hungry.

Baron Kempel Kondo, president of the Japan Mail Steamship company, said at a dinner that he gave recently in New York:

"The Japanese are a very clean people. I know an American traveler who will testify to this.

"The traveler, half famished, made his way one day into a teahouse in a remote Japanese village. The geisha girl ushered him into a spotless, airy room, and brought him a cup of unsweetened tea. As he could speak no Japanese, he tried to explain by signs that he wanted a full meal, but the girl, though she smiled politely, failed to understand.

"So the traveler thought he would resort to another means. He took out his notebook and pencil, drew a fish and an egg, and handed the drawing to the geisha. This time she laughed delightedly, clapping her hands and ran from the room.

"The traveler was pleased. He waited contentedly for his meal. Five or ten minutes passed. Then the door opened, and two attendants staggered in with a portable bath, brimful of hot water, and a cake of soap."

Startled Even New York.

Mrs. Carl Lamb, of Philadelphia, wife of Lieutenant Carl Lamb, U. S. N., recently startled New York by walking down Fifth avenue with a rag doll about twelve inches tall tied to her arm by a silken cord of about the same length—not a pretty doll at all. "Just cute," Mrs. Lamb said herself. "Of course, he's got a name," she said. "He's Patsy Dooley. His brother, Thomas Squeelix, is in Philadelphia with my sister. I have no intention of starting a Fifth avenue fad. I made Patsy to take to China and keep me company when I go there within a few months."

Strike Oil in Morocco.

Important petroleum developments are expected from the French districts of Morocco where one small well, located at Dgecel, is producing three tons of oil a day. Twelve more wells are being drilled. Government committees supervising supplies of gasoline for France are considering leasing the petroleum springs at Pechelbrown, Alsace, a short distance northwest of Strasbourg. Exemption of petroleum from import duty is contemplated, and many important industries are transforming their furnaces so that oil may be burned instead of coal.

Chinese Masons Celebrated.

A sea lion, a fusillade of crackers, a banquet, and the raising of the Chinese flag, indicated to the Victorian town of Echuca that a branch of the Chinese Masonic society had been formed. Chinese from all parts of Victoria attended the ceremony and the mayor and councillors of Echuca were guests. The Chinese master of ceremonies was interviewed by returned soldiers who objected to the flying of the Chinese flag alone. Australian and British flags were at once hoisted to the top of the flagpole.

Soldiers Left Books Behind.

Mystery surrounds the "dumps" of books which are said to be lying in various camps in France, awaiting disposal.

At one camp 400,000 volumes are said to have accumulated, and there are reported to be still larger collections at other camps.

Inquiries in official quarters and among the organizations which sent out books to the troops during the war have failed to trace the owners of these derelict volumes.

To Develop French Water Power.

A bill for the canalization of the Rhone and the employment of water power was introduced in the French chamber of deputies on August 9. The cost of the scheme is estimated at 2,500,000,000 francs ($482,500,000) and the total power to be obtained will not be less than the equivalent obtained from 5,000,000 tons of coal, or one-fifth of the coal production of France for 1918.

TO DEVELOP CHINA

Development of China is facing China in transportation. The American commercial attaches at Peking, Mr. Julian Arnold, has laid emphasis on this in an article in the Chinese Recorder—

"China's Economic Problems and Christian Missionary Effort." Mr. Arnold deals with the necessity of preparing the Chinese people for the great economic change which is upon them. Railways will mean much to China, but the necessity for the training and preparation of which Mr. Arnold speaks is shown to be distinctly urgent when Prof. Middleton Smith's views on the use of airplanes in China are known. China is a land of waterways, and these waterways afford the necessary existing lines of transportation along which to secure the success of commercial aviation, air-dromes and supply depots should be established. Schools of technical training should supply the necessary Chinese skilled labor, and with these aerial services established, Professor Smith foresees such an incalculable increase in the rapidity of communications as completely to revolutionize the country internally and add to its deep importance as a world factor.

HAD AN OBJECT IN POSING

A moose out in the wilds does not stop to pose for her picture. There is generally a reason for the peculiar actions of wild things. In the current issue of the Hunter-Trapper, published in Columbus, O., hunters write of their experience.

"We had an early start Thursday and Sam soon proclaimed that his pipe foretold moose. The first bend was rounded and knee-deep in the water stood a fat sleek cow. Our canoe advanced toward her, the camera set for an exposure. Sam called softly and she advanced a hundred feet toward us, ears erect, with a curious 'what are you' manner.

"At 75 feet she stopped and posed for the picture, and then waited until we were 50 feet away before she turned into the woods. At the top of the bank she waited for us to pass before crashing into the timber.

"Her action was explained when we turned the bend and at the water's edge saw her calf, a fine four or five months' old fellow, which climbed the bank and was away after her at once."

New Cloth for Hard Wear.

A new textile fabric which, it is claimed, will tend to lower the present high cost of men's clothing is being placed on the market by a Pudsey (Yorkshire) manufacturer, writes United States Trade Commissioner Henry R. Grady from London. The London agents of the manufacturer state that the new cloth is made entirely of silk noll (or short fibers); and that, while superior in wearing properties to a pure worsted, it can be sold at the price of shoddy cloth, or one-fourth the price of the best wool fabrics. It is said to be strong and almost untearable, very suitable for hard wear, and can be obtained in grays, browns and blacks.

No Novelty.

"As I came from the station just now," said a recently arrived guest, "I noticed a crowd in front of the Right Place store and heard considerable yelling. What was the excitement?"

"A farmer and the storekeeper were telling what they thought of each other's internal hogishness in wanting five prices for the stuff they had to sell," replied the landlord of the Pefunia tavern. "But there wasn't any particular excitement—it happens every day. The crowd merely gathered in the hope that they might accidentally say something new and interesting."—Kansas City Star.

Week During His Lunch Hour.

How to be married through working was the title of a little sketch staged the other day by E. W. Grieder, a printer employed on the St. Paul Dispatch.

Grieder faced a problem. He was slated as a principal in a marriage ceremony. His only spare time was a half hour for lunch.

So he called his fiancée, Miss Clara Lovitt, by telephone, arranged with her to meet him in the office of Henry Gallick, court commissioner, and the ceremony was performed. Grieder then took lunch and returned to work.

Valuable Parasitic Fly.

A recent agricultural department bulletin states that a parasitic fly, comptosia vivipara, has been used with great success to destroy gypsy moth and brown-tail moth in New England. It will also aid in the control of other insect pests. A few years ago the white-marked tussock moth was a serious pest in New England, but has practically disappeared since comptosia became established. The cabbage worm, the celery worm and the fall webworm have all been reduced by the activities of the new parasite.

Quick Action.

"The war made exceptional opportunities," said a fellow who began at the end of the war time to go on.

HANDY RACK HANDLES EVERYTHING ON FARM

Especially Useful in Carrying Crops to Market.

No Danger of Load of Produce Slipping After It Has Been Placed Inside of Boards—Big Saving Made in Hauling Seeds.

Several farmers here have a handy rack for handling almost everything on the farm. Especially are they meant for crops which are taken to the market or cellar in crates or boxes. The best and cheapest one I have seen is 14 feet long, 6 feet wide, with sideboards 14 inches high, writes H. E. Rogers of Ohio in Farm and Home. The floor is solid of matched lumber one inch thick. The two stringers which run lengthwise are 4½ by 6½ inches and 14 feet long.

Around the outside there is a piece 2 by 2 which is used for holding the sideboards in place when they are wanted. Along the sides there are four holes in the floor next to the strips, which take one-half inch iron bolts fastened to the bottom of the sideboards. This makes everything hold solid and there is no danger of a load of produce slipping after it is inside the boards. The side and end boards are held together by a short rod bolted on the end boards with a ring in the end. Another bolt comes through the side board with a hook in the end of it. These two join and are easily turned up tight.

On this rack, with no sides on, we hauled onions, and put on 78 bushel crates. This rack on a low wagon is hard to beat. There is hardly a place where either a rack or a box is used that this sort of rack will not do the business of both. When thrashing there is a rack with no holes to let your legs down through when you don't look where you step. In hauling seeded grain, such as clover, a tight rack means a mighty big saving in the seeds that are bound to shell.

ATTENTION TO DISK HARROW

Implement Should Be Gone Over Carefully During Winter Months and Put in Order.

(By L. B. BASSETT, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.)

The disk harrow is a tillage tool found on nearly every farm. Its useful life is about 20 years, as shown by carefully compiled statistics. Thus it is a long-lived tool. There is very little about a disk to wear out. It has few moving parts and, if given good care, should cause little bother.

Disks should be gone over carefully every season. During the winter months the boxes should be taken apart, carefully cleaned and, if badly worn, replaced. See to it that the oiling system works and that the bearings are getting oil. Keep the arbor bolt tight. This holds the disk firmly in place.

If the disk is used much it should be sharpened at least once each season. This greatly increases the penetration and decreases the draft, as it will do more work with less set. It will also do better work; and because it does not need so much angle or set, there is less strain and wear on the boxes. While a dull disk will cut, it is like a dull ax, inefficient and expensive to work with.

FEEDING SKIM MILK TO PIGS

Resume of Many Tests Made for Purpose of Ascertaining Most Economical Method.

A good many tests have been made for the purpose of ascertaining the most economical way of feeding skim milk to hogs. A resume of the work done along this line at the Indiana, New York, Iowa, Wisconsin and Ontario experiment stations shows that young pigs, that is, pigs weighing less than 100 pounds, may be fed as much as three pounds of skim milk per pound of grain, and by grain we mean any one of the cereals fed singly, or a number of them together. As pigs grow older the amount of skim milk should be reduced to about two pounds per pound of grain. The reason for this is that less protein is required as the pigs grow older and still less is required during the fattening period.

KEEP DAIRY COWS SANITARY

Appearance of Animal is Accurate Measure of Owner's Cleanliness Should Be Safeguarded.

Pride should compel every dairyman to maintain his cows in an attractive and sanitary condition every day in the year. In a way the appearance of the cow is an accurate measure of the owner. In the same degree that neglected fences, over-run fence rows, tumble-down buildings and abandoned machinery typify the careless ne'er-do-well farmer, dairy cows which are dirty indicate the milk farmer who does not safeguard his customers.

ON THE FUNNYSIDE

Thriftless.

"You don't seem to have much respect for those chaps painters refer to as 'the old masters'."

"None whatever," said Mr. Dustin Stax. "They slighted their opportunities. Think of the money they could have made merely by painting into each picture a package or a bottle of something that was being advertised."

Mortal Superiority.

"If you will make three wishes," said the old-fashioned fairy, "I will see that they all come true."

"You're a little slow," responded the rustic. "Any feller that runs for office out this way will promise to make wishes come true faster'n you can think 'em up."

Not for Such.

"No doubt about it," exclaimed the physician; "by means of this wonderful discovery old men can be made young."

"Why don't you try it on yourself?" "It's no good for a doctor. A doctor spends half his life trying to look old enough to be regarded as highly erudite and experienced."

Suggestive.

The minister who made the following announcement seems to have been prepared for untoward results from his preaching:

"There are some flowers here," he said, "for those who are sick at the close of this service."—Youth's Companion.

The Reason.

Mrs. Longwed—What a well preserved man your friend Mr. Blinks is. No one would ever take him to be as old as you are.

Mr. Longwed—True, but then he's only been married a short time.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

THOSE DEAR GIRLS.

"Jack says there isn't another girl in town with a complexion like mine."

"And you still speak to him."

Hard Going.

Life is a journey all secure. As over level roads we slip. And then Fate calls for a detour That spoils the pleasure of the trip.

Follower of Fashion.

Parker—Is your wife a woman to look forward to something to worry about?

Tucker—Yes, yes, indeed she is—if it is in style.—Judge.

Apprehensive.

Friend—You saw the doctor, did you? I suppose he started to regulate your diet.

Dyspeptic—No; I think he started to eliminate it.

A Mad World.

Jack—I have noticed that some fellows act like fools when in love.

Edith—And I have noticed that it is not even necessary for some to be in love.—London Answers.

Leisure.

"Why can't you keep a servant?" "Think," replied Mr. Crosslots, "that it's because she draws so much wages for the first week that she feels ready to take a two-week vacation."

Financially Speaking.

"Did Mayme accept the college professor?"

"No; she wanted an automobile and a diamond necklace, so she married the skilled day laborer."

Again Clock Watchers.

Parker—Your new stenographer is as homely as a clock.

Tucker—More so. The men in the office keep their eyes on the clock nearly all the time now.—Judge.

The Particulars.

"Has Bangs a leg to stand on in his claim to the authorship of that article?"

"Oh, yes; his footnotes."

The Reason.

"And you haven't any friends, poor man?"

"No, no, am, and it's because I am a poor man that I haven't any."

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here.

There's a World of Solid Comfort In the Rich, Red Tin

YES, sir, we mean that same warm red and gold tin that smiles a welcoming "Howdy" to you in every tobacco store. Know what those colors mean?

The red is for the friendly warmth, the mellow cheeriness, that Velvet puts into your old pipe. And the gold is where the Kentucky sunshine, that ripens good old Velvet, has just sort of soaked through.

Remember what Velvet Joe said about it?

"You've met canned meat and canned music. Ever see any tinned sunshine? Well, look into any Velvet tin."

And think this over:

We don't have to hide Velvet's taste or smell with a lot of this, that and the other thing. Because Velvet has naturally what pipe smokers want—real simon-pure tobacco taste and fragrance. It's just good, honest Kentucky leaf, made still more friendly and mellow by two years' ageing in wooden hogsheads. Just good tobacco. That's all. But it's mighty near enough for the man who wants a pipeful of tobacco and not a box of bon bons.

How's the Velvet holding out in your old red tin?

TUESDAY MORNING, FEB. 3, 1920

There are to drop, say the experts. Drop on to toast, please, and be quick about it.

Many a man is all right in his way, but unfortunately it happens to be the wrong way.

Nothing new in community singing as the cats in the back yard have provided it for many years.

Holland won't give up Kaiser Bill. The thrifty Dutchmen can't spare a good wood sawyer in these times.

In view of the scarcity of wool it seems too bad to ship all these Reds to Europe with their whiskers unclipped.

While the wives are deciding how the family should vote, the husbands would better get dinner and clear up the kitchen.

Laughing by the emotion and depth of feeling manifested, the late John Barlow left a large number of very near relatives.

Formerly the women used to exhibit with pride their home made garments, but now they brag on not knowing how to use the needle.

The jazz orchestras are not mentally unbalanced. O no, they have merely invented a kind of noise that extracts cash from many people.

While Princess Anne does not believe in guzzling anyone, it has not much use for the people who talk 23 hours a day and only work one.

If the undertakers aren't given the job of bringing home the soldiers' bodies from France, there is still a chance of an influenza epidemic.

A lot of the people who have always claimed they never had a chance, are now putting money into silk stockings and silk shirts and fur coats.

The boys of Princess Anne manifest their deep interest in the cause of education by taking the pretty school teachers around to the entertainments.

Claimed that plug hats are coming back. Bank men and society swells will now be scarcely distinguishable from the circus agents and Indian doctors.

When a young lady begins to take vocal lessons one of the first signs of her artistic improvement is that you can't understand any of the words of her songs.

Conferences over peace treaty at Washington all broken up, as the senators can't agree what color of peckies shall be worn at the sessions of the League of Nations.

The Bolsheviks who claim they can produce a better government than the genius of man has evolved in 30 centuries are usually the fellows who have proved themselves unable to hold down an ordinary day labor job.

Now it is suggested that Venus, and not Mars, may be calling the earth by wireless. The theory is much more agreeable than the former one. The earth would far rather listen to the planet of the goddess of beauty than to that of the god of war.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

The American Newspaper Publishers Association is opposing certain features of the anti-entertainment bill now pending before Congress. Section 6 of this bill would apparently authorize federal officials to refuse mailing privileges to a newspaper without a hearing, provided the official finds some statement which in his opinion falls within the statute.

It is not easy to frame a law in general terms that will define just where the line of legitimate criticism ends and preaching of violence begins. A fair minded man can make the distinction in any particular case, but the law might be used by politicians to suppress newspapers which were too aggressive in denunciation of their schemes.

It would seem that no such judgment should be passed by any one man. There should be an appeal to some higher authority capable of interpreting the statute in a broad-minded way.

The country is anxious to suppress the vapors of inflated understanding which might mean a dozen different things, are not always to be taken seriously. Sometimes you only spread the vapors by giving them a name. A man has a right to advocate things in the government unless he is guilty of some violation to law.

The Maryland and Herald feels that freedom of the press is a very precious thing. It was won after centuries of struggle with kings and emperors. It is a freedom that should be guarded as carefully as the world into destruction. Various structures of government have been built, but none have been able to

SPRITUALISTIC INVESTIGATION

In former years the people who became interested in spiritualistic investigation were largely of a simple minded and credulous type. Many of them were credulous, easily misled by alleged mediums who had a vivid imagination and ready guessing powers.

During recent years many scientific men have taken up this form of study. Some of them believe they have had genuine spirit messages. Among them is Sir Oliver Lodge, whose lectures are drawing great crowds in this country.

The reported messages of spirits seem often to be too trifling to be characteristic of the friends who have passed on. Yet the subject is of profound interest, worthy of the most scientific investigation. If additional proof can be established of life beyond the grave it will comfort many aching hearts.

GRINDING THE SEED CORN

In many places the taxpayers have become so desperate over cost of living and rise of public expenditure that they are failing to maintain community standards.

An illustration has been seen at Middletown, N. Y., where the voters for 10 years turned down school bond issues. Over 300 children have recently had to attend school on half time. Finally the Chamber of Commerce organized parades of school children who carried banners saying, "We want a seat in school." By a whirlwind campaign it carried the school appropriations on a two to one vote.

Whatever else falls off the schools must never be allowed to go backward. The taxpayers of Somerset county may grumble at their assessments, but the Maryland and Herald has faith to believe that the school children will never have to parade home to get their school houses. Skimping on education is grinding the seed corn.

UNEMPLOYMENT

At the present time but few able bodied men are out of work. Nevertheless times will come again when great numbers will be idle. Also the unemployment of the past affects present social conditions. Workers are haunted by dreary and hungry days when they tramped the streets and found nothing. It has made them feel that something is wrong with a social system that cannot provide tasks for every willing worker. And in that they are right. So when the getting is good it makes them still more demanding in anticipation of days when idleness will again prevail.

The theory of the present industrial system is that in return for permission to retain his profits and have the fruit of his enterprise, the employer of labor is to assume the risks of business. The worker is supposed to be content with a moderate wage on the ground that he is spared the risks assumed by the employer. But if the worker gets only a moderate wage and if at the same time he must take the risk of frequent periods of unemployment, he loses both going and coming.

If industrial unrest is to be quieted, society will have to find some method of finding work for all who desire it. A free use of newspaper advertising will accomplish wonders in helping workers to find jobs. But to shift labor around on a nation-wide scale, will take a very extensive and thorough system of public employment bureaus.

There has been complaint because the United States Employment service has asked for a $14,000,000 annual appropriation. Such a service should of course be conducted in an efficient manner, and if this has not been done, the bureau should be reorganized. But it is worth all that to get the work done right. Widespread unemployment could cause social disturbance that would cost the country billions.

NOTICE

To The Tax Payers Of Somerset County

I will be at WESTOVER, at Long Brothers store, on Thursday morning, Feb. 19th, and at CRISFIELD at W. Jerome Sterling & Co.'s store on Friday morning, Feb. 20th, 1920, for the purpose of receiving and collecting State and County Taxes.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY

The old timers had their period of high prices after the Civil War. Some of the old folks of Princess Anne will tell of prices that would look fairly high even in these ballooning times. But family life was built on a different system then.

The old fashioned family carried thrift to small details. Many old households never used many matches. They twisted strips of paper to make lamp lighters. They never bought soap, depending on the grease kettle and annual soap boiling spree. Their conscientious little economies built fortunes.

Time would now be considered too valuable to fuss with these antiquated frugalities. But the present women's movement to cut down high costs, does well to emphasize such points as the making over of clothes and more economical use of inexpensive foods. If scientific efficiency is applied to the home many needless costs can be cut out.

Trouble is mighty stubborn. It will never get out of the way of the fellow who is looking for it.

Chronic Constipation

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have brought that condition on themselves by the use of mineral waters and strong cathartics that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels that you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their use is not so likely to be followed by constipation.

FAIR PRICE ORGANIZATIONS

The campaign against H. C. of L. has now reached the point where many communities are being canvassed to enroll the people who are willing to co-operate actively in fighting high prices and extravagance. Boycotting honest dealers who are doing their best to check prices will accomplish nothing; but discouraging extravagance and questioning prices may accomplish much.

If the public pays high prices cheerfully and without objection, jobbers and retailers supply the demand accordingly. If the public enters serious objection to prices producers see that they must content themselves with closer margins and simplified styles. They should not be encouraged, however, to cheapen the quality of goods.

Dollars And Cents

Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself, in fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

PUBLIC SALE

OF LARGE TRACT

OF VALUABLE

PINE TIMBERLAND

The undersigned will offer at public auction in front of the Court House in Princess Anne, Somerset county, Maryland, on Tuesday, February 3rd, 1920

At the hour of 2.00 o'clock p. m., all that tract of Timberland situated, lying and being in Somerset County, Maryland, in St. Peter's Election District, known or called "Chance," George's Adventure or "Belfast," or whatever name or names the same may be known or called, together with other lands adjoining the same, containing in the aggregate more or less, and adjoining the lands of Alphonso Wooten et al., formerly owned by John Dorman et al., and being the same land which was conveyed to John S. Cooper et al. by Samuel E. White et al. by deed dated December 28th, 1913, and recorded among the land records of Somerset county, Maryland, in Liber S. F. D. No. 56, folio 223, etc., reference to which is hereby made for further description, together with all rights, ways, privileges and appurtenances thereto, belonging or in any wise appertaining.

This is an unusually attractive Timber proposition and should appeal to any one interested in timberland. This tract of Timber is estimated to contain 1 1/2 million feet of Timber and is growing fast. It is located convenient to transportation by water.

TERMS OF SALE—One-half cash on day of sale, balance to be secured by the bond of the purchaser, with approved security, payable in 6 months thereafter, with interest from date. Title papers at the expense of the purchaser.

social in the late Jas. L. Morris' store building, on Monday evening, February
9th. Ice cream and cake will be served.
If Monday night is stormy go Tuesday night.

The season for shooting wild fowl and other migratory birds closed Jan.
31st. The closed season, during which it is unlawful to shoot, hunt or kill wild fowl and migratory birds, remains in force until November 1st. Violators will be severely dealt with.

A meeting of the teachers of Somerset county will be held at the Auditorium, in Princess Anne, on Friday, Feb.
13th. State Supt. M. Bates Stephens and Prof. Thomas L. Gibson, supervisor of music, are expected to be present.
Checks for January salaries will be handed to teachers at that time.

Cities throughout the country report an increasing number of cases of influenza. Somerset has but few cases, we are glad to state. There is an ordinance in Princess Anne warning all persons from spitting on the sidewalks. If this ordinance is observed it may, in a great measure, prevent the spreading of the "flu" in our town.

Last Thursday on motion of Senator Robins, of Somerset county, the flag on the State House at Annapolis was flown at half mast in respect of the late L.
E. P. Dennis, who died in Florida on Tuesday. On motion of Senator Frick the order was amended so that the flag should not stay at half mast after sunset, but should be lowered.

The real "good fellow" is the fellow who knows something good about everybody and tells it. He never knocks his neighbor or digs up the past. He always lends a helping hand to the fellow who is up against it and gives him a chance to make good. He never forgets to do and say the little things that make his wife happy. His children find him a jolly chum and an ever-ready playmate. His home is a haven of love, happiness and contentment. The real "good fellow" is the world's greatest asset.

Other counties will join Somerset in asking the relief from encampments of roving gypsies who are proving to be nuisances. Mr. Hall, of Somerset, started the movement against the bands by a bill last Wednesday to increase their annual license fee for staying in the county from $50 to $1,000, the sum being so large as to be prohibitive. The movement against the gypsies was prompted by recent troubles in this county, for which they were in a way responsible.

January Weather
The weather report for the month of January as compiled by Mr. James R.

Postpones Opening Oyster Season

Serious consideration is being given by Senators Robins of Somerset, Bartlett of Talbot and Gibson of Dorchester, to the drafting and introduction of a bill in the Senate to postpone the opening of the oyster season from September 1st to October 1st. Before finally framing the measure, however, the Senators will again sound public sentiment in their communities.

The tentative plans would make the state-wide opening of the season October 1st. No general law fixing an opening date now exists, such dates being fixed in different localities by laws applying to the localities individually, and which have been passed by the General Assembly from time to time.

For instance the season now opens on the Talbot side of the Great Choptank on September 1st and on the Dorchester side on September 15th. Talbot, Dorchester and Somerset, however, appear to be a unit in favor of the October opening. Opposition is expected from Queen Anne's and Anne Arundel.
Should the Senators from the three counties above become convinced that it will be impossible to push through a state-wide law they will doubtless concentrate their energies upon a law applicable to their own counties.

The Maryland Legislature

Among bills introduced in the House last week were: By Mr. C. T. Gladden, of Somerset county—Repealing the Senatorial Primary Election Law.

Mr. Speaker—Amending the marriage license so that the clerks of the courts shall receive a fee of 25 cents for sending records of marriages and divorces to the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

Mr. Speaker—Providing for issuing of dog licenses by clerks of courts instead of justices of the peace.

Mr. Speaker—Increasing fees for recording legal papers by clerks of courts.

Mr. Powell—To require the opening of schools with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Mr. Coblentz—Amending the State
number of assistants to the State Bank Commission.

Elected Bishop of Delaware

Rt. Rev. Nathaniel Thomas, Missionary Bishop of the State of Wyoming, has been elected Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Delaware, to succeed Bishop Kinsman, recently resigned. Notice of his election was wired him, and in reply he wrote that he could not make a decision until he shall carefully consider the outlook of the church. He is expected to visit Delaware the latter part of February, after which he will make known his decision.

Must Wait Years For Low Prices

Recognizing that the inflation of credit growing out of the war loans is a chief cause of the high prices, Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board tells the bankers that these conditions cannot be corrected except gradually, and that the process will take several years.

Not till a considerable portion of the Liberty bonds has been paid off, and the rest absorbed by the public as permanent investments, will the proper balance be restored between the volume of credit and the volume of goods.

Another way, which would help, would be to make more goods and consume less.

Marriage Licenses

The following is a list of the marriage licenses issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County:

White—John R. Bozman, 24, and Ada
White, 18, both of Dames Quarter.
Wm. G. Mister, 27, and Mildred P.
Hornor, 21, both of Cape Charles, Va.

Colored—John A. Johnson, 22, and Sadie White, 18, both of Somerset county. Wm. Bailey, 21, and Mary Smith,
18, both of Belle Haven, Va. David Disharoon, 19, and Sarah Miles, 17, both of Princess Anne.

For The Children

Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting a cough medicine for children.
It should be pleasant to take, contains no harmful drug and most effectual in curing their coughs and colds. Long experience has shown that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets these conditions. It is a favorite with many mothers.

POULTRY FEED

Especially Relished by Turkeys and Guinea Fowls.

Feeds Consume Millions of Destructive Insects During Course of Year With Minimum Amount of Trouble to Farmers.

Grasshoppers are beginning to pay big dividends in North Dakota, through the medium of poultry, especially in turkeys and guinea fowls. The experiment has been successfully tried at the state agricultural college and numerous farmers have taken the cue.

Fattened Turkeys Being Driven to Market.

Wherever there are green fields, there are grasshoppers and other insects. G. R. Greaves of the agricultural college, who has conducted the experiments, says:

"It seems the inexorable law of nature that wherever there is something good to eat there is something to eat it, and man's existence is a continual struggle for supremacy over the creatures that are determined to consume the food he requires."

During past years in North Dakota, prairie chickens, sage hens and grouse held the grasshoppers in check, and their plumpness and the delicious quality of their meat attested to the superiority of their food.

Now the prairie chickens especially are going the way of the buffalo, and Mr. Greaves was assigned to find a substitute that would keep down the insect pests with a minimum of trouble and expense to the farmer. The answer is turkeys and guinea fowls.

Mr. Greaves declares that flocks of turkeys and guinea fowls consume millions of grasshoppers and other insect pests, and naturally do their own foraging. Early in the season the experimental flocks at the agricultural college have grown fat and strong on the young insects.

Later in the season they have received the abundant exercise necessary for their proper market conditioning by chasing the elusive hoppers, have saved the field crops and provided a new, big source of income.

"Three old turkeys kept through one winter," said Mr. Greaves, "produced a flock of young turkeys the following season which kept the fields near their house clear of grasshoppers, and fulfilled their destiny by gracing Thanksgiving tables."

BEST PRACTICE IN PLOWING

According to Minnesota Expert It Is Best to Deepen Furrows Gradually Each Year.

The nature of the soil and the crop to be grown should determine the question of whether to plow deeply or more shallow. As with most other farm problems, the farm operator's judgment and experience must be called into play in determining which practice is best on any farm.

Andrew Boss, vice director of the Minnesota experiment station, believes that deep furrows turned on edge, or "three-quarters over," furnish the best conditions for pulverizing and sweetening the soil. "It is not good practice," he says, "to deepen the plowing greatly in any one year. It is better to deepen it by one-half inch or an inch each year until a sufficient depth has been reached. Rarely is it necessary to plow deeper than seven or eight inches, except for certain deep-rooted crops like sugar beets, carrots, potatoes and like crops."

"Where it is desirable to incorporate in the soil water-holding material, such as a green manure crop or a dressing of coarse barnyard manure, deep plowing is wise. Either a very sandy or a very heavy dense clay would be benefited by such treatment periodically."

FALLACIOUS IDEA OF SHEEP

Animals Will Consume More Weeds and Shrubs Than Other Animals, but Need Some Food.

Many farmers who have failed with sheep have gone into the business with one fallacious idea that sheep will eat anything, simply because some misinformed person started the tale. Sheep will consume more weeds and shrubs than any other class of animals, but to turn them into the woodlot and expect them to thrive on sprouts and dry leaves is asking too much of their digestive system. However, there is one place where sheep may be kept with profit, and that is in the pasture.

HAD BATTLE IN OPEN GRAVE

Obsequies Postponed While Terrier and Wildcat Settled Their Little Quarrel.

Alfred Searcy is to Australia what Buffalo Bill and the other scouts and pioneers of our early West are to America. Life, too, in the Australian northwest was no less rough than upon our own Indian plains. Searcy tells this story of a burial in the "early days" at Port Darwin:

"At the grave it was discovered that a wildcat had taken refuge in it. The woman of the paddock, who was to conduct the service, requested the removal of the animal, but this was objected to by the owner of a terrier with a reputation. This 'sport' thought the opportunity to see a fight too good to be lost, and the majority of those present quite agreed. Moreover, as one 'old gentleman' remarked, 'I'm sure Dick won't mind waiting a bit. Indeed, it's himself would like to be standing up to see the fun. God bless him!'"

"As he uttered what was intended to be a compliment to the deceased the terrier saw the cat, and in a moment flying high attested the reality of the battle. Both animals had their backs, and numerous hits were made by the crowd as it surged around the grave. The contest was short, sharp and decisive, the cat going under, but not until it had inflicted severe punishment upon its adversary. The dog was then hoisted out of the grave, the fellows immediately became fittingly solemn and the burial of poor Dick was proceeded with."

SUN'S RAYS FOUND HELPFUL

Beneficial in the Treatment of Tuberculosis and of Great Value in Other Diseases.

The simplest treatment for tuberculosis, which is nothing more than exposure to the rays of the sun in the open air, which has been practiced successfully in Switzerland for many years, has recently received an impetus in this country by the suggestion of Dr. Guy Hinsdale, calling attention to the great value of this treatment and urging the establishment of a sanatorium in southern California, Colorado or New Mexico where the greatest amount of sunshine is to be found. Some seashore locations are almost, if not quite, as suitable as far as the amount of sunshine is concerned, but there are some other favorable features in the southern and western locations. Sunlight has been found to be one of the best cures for torpid wounds, gangrene, frostbite and other similar lesions. It is not the heat in the rays that is beneficial, but the blue and violet rays, and they are strongly bactericidal. But the sunlight is not merely bactericidal; it is a powerful stimulant to every act of animal life, particularly the oxidation which gives the blood its power to eliminate disease.

Cloth From the Pineapple

The pineapple, naturally, gets its chief notoriety from its excellent fruit, but there is another use widely known in the Philippine islands and other torrid lands. The same species, or perhaps a near ally, can be so grown as to produce leaves eight feet long and containing a fiber of such strength and beauty that its cultivation has long formed an important industry in these countries.

But no machine has yet been found by which the fibers can be cheaply extracted. The outer skin is remarkably tough and a force strong enough to crush it spoils the fiber, so it has to be peeled off with a knife and the fibers pulled out by hand.

This is a long process, and, however cheap labor is, the fiber is still expensive. But it is greatly prized for making cloth, because of its silky luster. Europeans visiting the Philippine islands often bring back, as a souvenir, a piece of this "pine cloth," so greatly prized by the Filipinos.

First Use of Word "Jingo."

Jingo was coined in the Russo-Turkish war. The apprehension in England over the outcome of that struggle found vent in the patriotic song whose refrain was:

"We don't want to fight; but by jingo, if we do, we've got the men; we've got the ships; we've got the money, too!"

The song became popular, was heard on every street corner and from every organ grinder, and was whistled by every bootblack. Shortly after this the election campaign began, in which Gladstone, the head of the Liberals, attacked the Tory party, then led by the Earl of Beaconsfield. The Tory foreign policy was ridiculed by the Liberals as one of "bloodshed, glory and jingle." Since that time the word jingo has been used to designate an individual or section of a party prone to rush, without mature consideration, into the horrors of war.

This Medicine Recommended by a Doctor

DR. J. H. WAGNER

When a doctor uses a medicine himself besides prescribing it to his patients, he must know that it has merit.

This is what Dr. J. H. Wagner, a prominent physician of State, Kentucky, has to say about Dr. Hartman's well-known remedy, PE-RU-NA: "I have used PE-RU-NA myself for catarrh and have given it to others for catarrh, bloating after eating and other ailments. It has proved a success in all cases with old and young men and women. All speak well of PE-RU-NA. It is the best of all tonics."

Dr. Wagner, out of the fullness of his own personal experience, for the good of all sick and suffering, recommends a medicine which he knows to be good. You may be sure a doctor would not endanger his professional reputation by endorsing PE-RU-NA unless satisfied beyond a doubt of its value.

Whether your trouble be a cough or a cold, or a more subtle catarrhal affection of the stomach, bowels or other organs, give PE-RU-NA a trial. The immediate improvement which you will see will satisfy beyond a doubt that PE-RU-NA is what you need.

PE-RU-NA may be purchased anywhere in tablet or liquid form.

Goodyear Leadership— and Tires for Small Cars

Enormous resources and scrupulous care have produced in Goodyear Tires for small cars a high relative value not exceeded even in the famous Goodyear Cords on the world's highest-priced automobiles.

In addition to its larger sizes, Goodyear manufactures an average of 20,000 small car tires a day in the world's largest tire factory devoted solely to the 30x3-, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes.

Last year more small cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

Their extreme worth is available for your Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell, or other small car, at the nearest Goodyear Service Station. Go there for these tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes.

GREEN FEED DURING WINTER

Poultryman Should Have Supply to Last Through Season to Keep Fowls in Condition.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Green feeds for poultry contain only a small percentage of actual food nutrients, but are important because of their succulence and bulk, which lighten the grain rations and assist in keeping the birds in good condition. The poultryman should secure a sufficient supply of such feeds to last through the winter months in sections where growing feeds cannot be obtained. When chickens are fattened without the use of milk, green feed helps to keep them in good condition.

Cabbages, mangel wurzels, clover, alfalfa, and sprouted oats are the green feeds commonly used during the winter. Cabbages do not keep as well in ordinary cellars as mangel wurzels, so where both of these feeds are available the cabbages are fed first. They are often suspended, while the mangel wurzels are split and stuck on a nail on the wall of the pen. Clover and alfalfa may be fed as hay, cut into one-half to one inch lengths, or may be bought in the form of meal. Alfalfa meal has a feeding analysis equal to bran, but is not as digestible on account of its larger percentage of fiber. Clover and alfalfa should be cut while slightly immature, if they are to be cured and fed to poultry. The leaves and chaff from such hay are especially adapted for poultry feeding.

Sprouted oats make a very good green feed and are used quite extensively in this country. The oats can be soaked for 12 hours in warm water and then spread out in a layer of from one-half to one and one-half inches deep on a floor, or in a tray or tier of flats, which have openings or holes or a three-sixteenths inch mesh wire bottom, so that the water drains freely. They may be stirred daily, sprinkled, or allowed to sprout without stirring, until ready for feeding. They are usually fed when the sprouts are from one to one and one-half inches long, although some poultrymen prefer to allow the sprouts to grow to two or three inches long. Oats need a moist and warm atmosphere in which to sprout quickly, so that it is necessary to furnish heat or to keep them in a warm room during the winter, while they may be sprouted out of doors during the rest of the year. It takes from six to ten days to sprout oats, depending on the temperature of the room.

MITES REMAIN IN FEATHERS

Night Pest of Chickens May Stick to Fowls in Sufficient Numbers to Scatter Themselves.

Chicken mites, the night pest of poultry, may not always leave the fowls before daylight, as commonly supposed, but may remain in the feathers in such numbers as to make poultry possible carriers of this pest to unfested places. This fact was brought out recently by an entomologist of the United States department of agriculture in the course of a study of the life history and habits of the chicken mite, undertaken to discover principles on which combative measures might be based.

COMFORT IN COLD WEATHER

Hen House Should Have Plenty of Fresh Air and Sunlight—Make It Warm as Possible.

Be sure that the poultry house is comfortable during the cold weather—that it has plenty of air and sunlight on bright days, that it is made warm as possible, while furnishing enough fresh air, during the cold nights when the hens are on the roost.

THE CORN BORER IS DESTRUCTIVE

Estimated Loss of Million Dollars
Daily If Insect Once Gets Established.

FOUND IN EASTERN STATES

Larva is Dirty White Caterpillar,
About One Inch Long, With Brown
Head—Ears of Corn Are Bored Through.

A million dollars' worth of damage a day is conservatively estimated as the effect of the European corn borer if it once gets established in the corn belt of the United States. This is the statement of George A. Dean, head of the entomology department in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

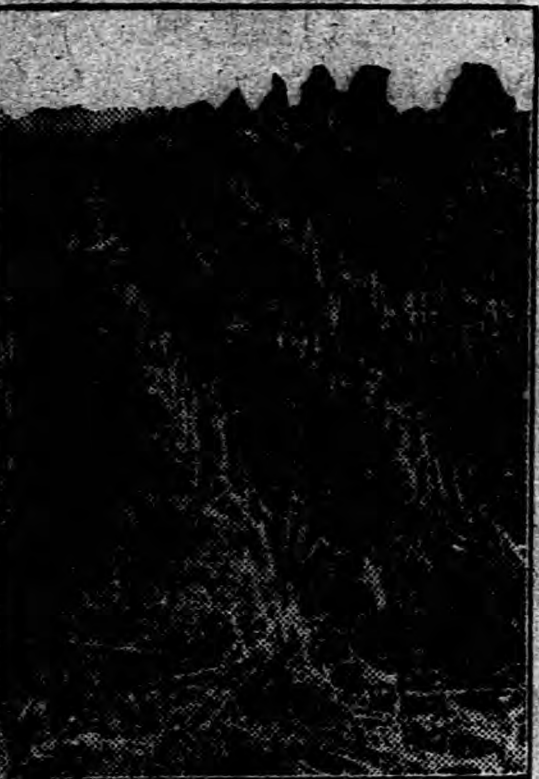

The insect, which has done tremendous damage in Europe and Asia, has been introduced into New York and Massachusetts and is looked for in other regions.

Larva is White Caterpillar.
The larva of the European corn borer is a dirty white caterpillar, about an inch long, with a brown head. It passes the winter in a nearly full-grown condition within its food plants. In the spring its growth is completed and it then bores its way to the surface of the food plant, where it makes a slight hole to serve as an exit for the resulting moth.

The larva now forms a cocoon in the burrow, passes into the pupal stage, and in about two weeks the adult moth emerges. The moth, which lives about two weeks, deposits 300 to 700 eggs on the food plant. In about five days the eggs hatch, and the young larvae at first feed on the tender shoots of the plants, but finally bore their way into the main stem of the plant. In about six weeks, after burrowing through all parts of the plant, the larvae pupate as before and emerge as moths about the middle of summer.

The female moths of the second brood do the greatest damage to corn, since they attack not only the stalk, but also the tassel and the ear, and continue feeding until cold weather.

Destroy Ears Completely.
The ears of corn are bored through from bottom to top and from side to side, the borers feeding on the kernels while they are soft. Complete destruction of the ear is generally accomplished either by the borer or through decay which follows the injury. One moth, which emerges in the spring may be responsible for from 100,000 to 300,000 larvae later in the same season.

A Good Harvest of Corn, With Good Organic Matter Left, Which, If Plowed Under, Will Make Next Corn Crop a Better One.

INSULATE HIVES IN WINTER

Ample Protection Should Be Supplied to Keep Out Cold Winds—Leave Entrance Open.

Protect hives from prevailing cold winds, and insulate hives to retain the heat generated by the bees. A grove of trees, an adjacent hill, or nearby fence may serve as a windbreak. The packing usually done should completely surround the hive, including the bottom, but the bees' entrance should remain open, though reduced in size. Cork chips, sawdust, fine shavings, dry leaves, chaff, and similar material should be used and packed tightly in a box built about the hive, allowing from six to eight inches space for the insulation.

QUARTERS FOR YOUNG STOCK

Preferable to Have Calves Separated From Main Part of Cow Barn—Mothers Not Disturbed.

Some dairymen fail to consider housing the young stock when they build their barns. It is preferable to have the young stock separated from the main part of the cow barn because of disease and because calves near their mothers will cause the cows to become nervous. The quarters for the calves should be separated from the main part of the barn.

Vast Waste Desert.
The great Sahara desert covers the major part of northern Africa, consisting of 3,500,000 square miles—an arid region as large as the whole of Europe. From 100 feet below sea level it rises in one instance to 8,000 feet above, and some of its elevations are covered with snow for three months of the year. Most of it, however, is a dry, sandy waste, dotted here and there with an oasis where "drink" may be secured. The winds are all very hot and dry, while rain is almost unknown.

Scored a Success.
My four-year-old nephew was perfectly delighted with his grandfather's car and always cranked all his toys, and even himself, when sent on errands. He is particularly interested in anything mechanical and never misses any such conversation. One day he cranked the cat's tail, and was delighted when it turned and spat at him, for, he said, "There, I got an explosion that time."—Chicago American.

Paying Federal Officials.
The president of the United States is paid by settlement warrant, which is practically the same as a check. This warrant is sent to him by messenger from the treasury twice a month. Senators and representatives are paid either by check or cash as they personally desire through congressional disbursement checks. When they are paid in cash they receive crisp, new bills, as does nearly every one who lives in Washington.

Business of Criticism.
Its business is simply to know the best that is known and thought in the world, and, by in its turn making this known, to create a current of true and fresh ideas. Its business is to do this with inflexible honesty, with due ability; but its business is to do no more, and to leave alone all questions of practical consequences and applications—questions which will never fall to have due prominence given to them.—Matthew Arnold.

Anglo-Saxons Used Slang.
An ancient use of a modern slang idiom, was mentioned by T. E. Peet, the lecturer in Egyptology at Manchester university, according to the Manchester Guardian. He said that the Egyptians always used the verb "to do" in referring to a visit to a country just as an American today speaks of "doing" Paris or London. After this it will not surprise us to learn that Hannibal considered his expeditions as nothing more than "stunts" or that the Roman populace was rather annoyed when Julius Caesar was "done in."

His Theory.
"How do you suppose Henry VIII looked on the marrying habit?"
"That a man could stand it, but it made a woman lose her head."

EXPLAINED.

"I tell every girl I meet she is the only girl I ever loved."
"How can you do it?"
"Well, why not? They're only girls."

Export of Cattle.
Live cattle were first exported to England from America in 1861. But it did not become a regular business until several years later.

LAMBS FATTENED FOR MARKETING

From 3 to 5 Months Is About Right Age Under Ordinary Farm Conditions.

MAKE HIGHER RATE OF GAIN

During Heat of Summer They Are More Liable to Losses From Parasites—Breeder Also Gets Use of His Money Earlier.

Under ordinary farm conditions lambs should be made ready for market at from 3 to 5 months of age. When young they make a higher rate of gain and will put on the same amount of flesh for less cost than when they are older. Then, too, they will make but small gains during the heat of summer, and at this time parasites are most troublesome and they are thus more liable to losses from this cause. Risk of accidents is always higher when the lambs are held for a long time. More feed is saved for the breeding flock, and less labor is needed if the lambs are sold early. Better prices are obtained in the spring because of not having to meet the competition of the western lambs that are marketed during the summer and fall, and in addition the grower gets the use of his money sooner by pushing the lambs to a marketable condition as fast as possible.

Teaching Lambs to Eat.
Every effort should be made to keep the lambs growing from the start. The first essential is to teach them to eat. Liberal feeding of lambs dropped before pastures are ready is profitable under any ordinary grain prices. This is best done through the use of a small inclosure known as a "creep," to which the lambs have access at all times, but into which the ewes can not come. The creep should contain a rack for hay and a trough for grain, so arranged that the lambs can not get their feet into them.

All feed given, especially ground feed, should be clean, fresh, and free from mold. The lambs will begin to nibble at the feed when from 10 to 16 days of age. Pea-green alfalfa of the second or third cutting is one of the most relished feeds. Flaky, sweet bran probably ranks next. For the first few days these are the ideal feeds. A little brown sugar on the bran at first will make it more palatable. Linseed meal is also good when mixed with bran. Until the lambs are 5 to 6 weeks old all their feed should be course ground or crushed.

Corn Ration for Lambs.
The Ohio experiment station has found that for young lambs that are to be marketed a grain ration of corn is of about the same value as one of corn 5 parts, oats 2 parts, bran 2 parts and oil. Oil meal is especially relished by lambs at this time and would be especially valuable in promoting growth rather than fat.

Such feeds as middlings are too floury for extensive use. Rye is less palatable than oats or barley. Soy beans may replace the linseed meal if they cost less. Cleanliness is an important factor in keeping the lambs growing. Always feed to an empty trough, and if it becomes soiled scrub it out with limewater.

SERIOUS NEW PEST OF WHEAT

Eelworm Has Done Much Damage in Virginia and Other States—Plant Only Clean Seed.

The eelworm is a serious new pest of wheat which has recently done much damage in Virginia, and to a lesser extent in West Virginia, Maryland and California. The disease may be recognized in the threshed grain by the presence of hard, dark-colored galls, about one-half the size of a wheat kernel, which are easily overlooked or mistaken for bent, cockle seed or bin-burnt wheat. Plant only clean seed wheat from fields which have not been infested. The loss in some Virginia fields amounted to as much as 40 per cent.

HORSERADISH IS GOOD CROP

Quite Profitable if Farmer Can Prepare Grated Article and Sell at Retail.

Horseradish is a profitable crop to grow if one can prepare the grated article and sell it to retail customers. In this way the entire profit remains with the grower. The preparing and bottling may be done during the winter when outside work is at a standstill.

THE TELEPHONE SITUATION IN MARYLAND

WE ARE SUBMITTING to the Public Service Commission a petition for increased rates throughout Maryland. These rates, if authorized, will yield only a fair return on our investment.

LIKE ALL OTHER INDUSTRIES, we have been seriously affected by increased costs. At the present time our earnings are not sufficient to pay operating expenses and interest charges.

WE DO NOT ASK for an excessive return. We recognize our obligation, as a public utility, to give the public good service at reasonable charges.

WE ARE STRIVING to give good service, but to do so we must have a reasonable return on our investment. Without it we cannot provide the property and working force that make good service; nor can we secure the new capital necessary to keep pace with the growth of your community.

WE ARE SUBMITTING to the Public Service Commission all the facts and figures pertaining to our operations in Maryland in order that it may make a thorough investigation.

WE ARE ANXIOUS that our patrons and the public generally should know the situation confronting us, because we believe that with a knowledge of these facts you will endorse our efforts to earn a fair return. In this way only can we fulfill completely our obligations to those we serve.

New Rule On Income Taxes

Abolishment of tentative returns on income taxes in use for several years was announced last Thursday night by Commissioner Roper, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, Washington. In making a report on 1919 incomes, taxpayers will not be permitted to estimate their incomes or their taxes. The correct amount of taxes, Mr. Roper warned, must be in the hands of revenue collectors by March 15th.

Internal Revenue officials have arranged, however, to take care of exceptional cases. If the taxpayer is unable to complete his tax return within the specified time limit either because of illness or absence from the country, authority has been given for a 30-day extension of time.

Census Takers Use Aeroplanes

Everything from aeroplanes to snowshoes is being used by the agents of Uncle Sam in taking the 1920 census of the United States. About the only modern method of transportation either on, over or below land or water that has not been employed in enumerating Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews seems to be the submarine. Aeroplanes have come in handy in enumerating the dwellers on the islands off the coast of Florida; yachts and rowboats have been used in the harbors of the country; native canoes have been in demand among the Hawaiian Islands; "flivvers" are being used everywhere; the tried and trusty mule team has carried the census takers out on the desert regions, and snowshoes have become the trusted aides of the census gatherers in the northern states and Alaska.

Dad's Part in the Game.
One day when Herbert was riding with his father in his machine, he told Herbert not to forget to remind him of a certain errand. After going a little further his father thought of another thing he wished to be reminded of. Herbert thought seriously for a moment and then turned to his father and said, "Well, dad, I guess you'll please have to remind me to remind you."

Warns of Mine Danger.
The United States bureau of mines has developed a novel means of giving an alarm of danger in all mines where compressed air is made use of throughout the workings. An ill-smelling substance is injected into the compressed air line, and in a few minutes the odor has been spread through all parts of the mine, and will be instantly recognized by the workmen.

Walking Sticks and Canes.
The general use of canes was at one time forbidden in Rome by Imperial edict, except to persons of patrician rank. The women of that time carried them also. The cane appeared in England as the badge of aristocracy in about the fifth century. Later came a period of decoration and canes of exquisite design resulted.

The White Deer of Cozac Forest.
In the Cozac forest in Glen Cannell, Inverness, Scotland, a white fawn has recently made an appearance in a herd of red deer. The animal has been observed closely through a telescope, and is said to be pure white with the exception of a slight bluish mark on the neck.

Oysters by Measure.
Edward was asked to go to the store for oysters. He went and asked the man for two pounds of oysters. "We don't sell oysters by the pound, my boy, only by the measure," said the dealer. The boy thought a moment, then said: "Then let me have two yards."

Dr. Johnson's Dictionary.
Dr. Johnson is commonly reckoned as a successful author, yet he received for many of his compositions a comparatively small sum. His most profitable undertaking was the dictionary, for which he asked $7,875. The task occupied his time for seven years.

Maybe Right.
A lion tamer who bought liquor from a bootlegger stated afterward that whisky was a necessity for one of his calling. At that there may be something to his argument. We can't imagine a stone-sober man deliberately walking into a cage of lions.

Small Things Really Count.
Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir Humphrey Davy.

Important in Daily Use.

High Cost of Extravagance

Congress must be more economical, Senator McCumber tells his fellow Senators, or there will be a deficit of three billion dollars at the end of this fiscal year.

Alarmed by these figures, Congress started to slash the appropriations. The State Department, which had asked for over $8,000,000 for expenses of the diplomatic and consular service, was cut down to $3,000,000. From the Americanization bill $42,000,000 was cut. It was unanimously voted to appropriate nothing for public buildings this year.

"We have gone mad on appropriations," said Senator McCumber, "and the only thing that will stop it will be when we get to the end of the rope and have to bond the country to meet expenses."

Senators of both parties joined in cutting the appropriations. The votes were nearly unanimous.

Maryland Industrial School for Girls

Directors of the Maryland Industrial Training School for Girls, one of the most useful institutions taken under state control, will appear before the Joint Committee of Finance and Ways and Means, when hearings are granted, to urge an appropriation of $250,000.00 toward the purchase, equipment and maintenance of a farm for the use of this school.

It is now located in Baltimore, and the buildings as well as the location are wholly unsuitable for their purposes. There are now cared for nearly 100 girls committed to the institution by the courts. If these are to receive the care and attention required to wean them from an undesirable life, the state must furnish the means and the surroundings.

Governor Ritchie's attention has been directed to the importance of making the environment more attractive if satisfactory results are to be obtained, and he has promised to give the matter consideration.

The plan is to acquire a farm with cottages, where gardening, stock and poultry raising can be carried on. Under existing conditions the managers have done remarkably well, but they are handicapped. This is the only state institution for the care and uplift of wayward white girls and deserves encouragement.

Hoover for President?

The New York World, one of the leading Democratic papers of the East, comes out in favor of Herbert C. Hoover for President. The World says he is "the best equipped and best qualified man to succeed Woodrow Wilson." The fact that the World has been regarded as an Administration organ leads some politicians to surmise that Mr. Hoover is President Wilson's choice.

PRINCESS ANNE TESTIMONY

Home Proof, Here, There and Everywhere

When you see Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in this paper you most always find the recommender a Princess Anne resident. It's the same everywhere—in 8,800 towns in the U. S. fifty thousand people publicly thank Doan's. What other kidney remedy can give this proof of merit, honesty and truth? Home testimony must be true or it could not be published here. Read this Princess Anne recommendation. Then insist on having Doan's. You will know what you are getting:

Mrs. H. B. Wherrett, Extension Antioch Ave., says: "I had been troubled nearly all my life with kidney complaint and had severe backaches at times. If I did anything that caused me to stoop over, I suffered very much with severe pains through the small of my back, especially when I straightened up. At times I could see black specks and fiery flashes in front of me. During the last attack, I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I have had no further trouble. I cannot recommend this medicine too highly."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Wherrett had. Foster-Milburn, Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Abolition Of Grade Crossings

After lying dormant for several years the effort to abolish railroad grade crossings in Maryland was revived in Annapolis last Tuesday in a bill introduced by Mr. Holzknecht, of Baltimore county, which authorizes a loan of $2,000,000, the proceeds to be devoted to the contemplated improvement. The railroad companies operating within the state are required to contribute a like sum to the state treasury. The work is to be done under the supervision of the State Roads Commission and must be completed within two years. The proposed bonds are to bear 4½ per cent. per annum.

No! The Banker Wouldn't Quit!

When the sawmills moved out of a certain Northern woods town it looked like the finish of business there for everyone—farmers, merchants, banker. But the banker refused to quit. "If I can make dairying and poultry-keeping profitable my bank will make money," said he. The story of his efforts and the money-making prosperity that has come to his community is told in the current issue of

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

This bank aims to extend the same sort of service to this community. We should like to know every farmer hereabouts —to help every farmer make money. Come to us with your problems and let us see if together we cannot boost your bank account. As a step towards that prosperity, we urge you to read each week THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN. Whatever line of farming you are following—livestock, dairying, poultry, grain, fruit, truck, corn, bees—there is something for you each week in the many pages of the Great National Farm Weekly. If you authorize us, we shall be glad to charge your account $1.00 for a year's subscription. Or, better still, come in; let's talk it over personally and get acquainted.

HIGH DEATH RATE FOR 1919

Total For The Year Nearly Million And A-Half

The death rate in the United States for 1919 was the highest on record, according to the Census Bureau's annual mortality statistics issued last week, which shows 1,471,387 deaths for the year, representing a rate of 18 per 1000 population in the death registration area of 30 States and 27 cities, with a total estimated population of 81,868,104.

Of the total deaths 477,467, or over 32 per cent., were due to influenza and pneumonia, 380,996 having occurred in the last four months of the year, when an epidemic of these diseases prevailed. Influenza caused 244,681 deaths and pneumonia 232,786, showing rates of 238.9 and 284.3 per 100,000, respectively, the highest rates which ever have appeared for these causes. The rates in 1917 for influenza was 17.2 and for pneumonia 149.8.

The other principal causes of death were organic diseases of the heart, tuberculosis, acute nephritis, Bright's disease and cancer, which, together, were responsible for 391,391 deaths, or nearly 27 per cent. of the total during the year.

Good Program For Farmers' Institutes

Arrangements have been made by County Agent C. Z. Keller to hold the Annual Farmers' Institutes the 19th and 20th of this month at Princess Anne and Marion.

The Institute will be held on Thursday, the 19th, morning and afternoon, at Princess Anne, in the Courthouse, and at Marion, on Friday, the 20th, in the Hall, morning and afternoon sessions. Meetings will start promptly at 10 and 1. Prominent speakers from the United States Department of Agriculture and Extension Service of the Maryland State College of Agriculture will give one of the best programs ever presented at Farmers' Institutes in this county. All the talks will be practical and will be of interest to the farmers of the county.

The following subjects will be discussed: Hog Growing, Better Sire Campaign, Legumes, Soil Improvement, Lime and Fertilizers, Control of Strawberry Insects, Potato Growing and Poultry.

Special meetings on Home Economics and Canning will be held in connection with the Farmers' Institutes for the housewives. Farmers are urged to attend these meetings as an interesting program has been prepared and subjects of interest to the farmers of the county will be discussed.

Miss D. Virginia Spencer Dead

Miss Dollie Virginia Spencer died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Emma Bishop Spencer, in Snow Hill, Tuesday night, aged 38 years. She had been in poor health for several years, and for two years preceding her death she had been a great sufferer.

Besides her mother she is survived by a sister, Mrs. J. Arthur Powell, of Princess Anne, and four brothers—Messrs. Charles B. Spencer, of Snow Hill; Walter B. Spencer, of Philadelphia, and Geo. P. Spencer, of Chicago.

Funeral services were held at her late home last Thursday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. L. E. Poole, assisted by the Rev. C. R. Strasburg. Interment was in the family burial lot in Whatcoat M. E. cemetery.

Hobbs & Longendyke Minstrels

Hobbs & Longendyke Minstrels will appear at the Auditorium, Princess Anne, Wednesday night, Feb. 11th. The show is directed by Mr. Charles Van Leer, for 25 years director of Ford's Opera House, Baltimore, and it is said to be one of the best minstrel shows of 25 people on the road. Fred Leicester, the funny end man, will bring tears of laughter to your eyes when he sings "Everybody wants a key to my cellar." George Earl Donohoe will entertain you with "There's a lot of blue-eyed Marys down in Maryland," and the Melody Lane Quartette will hold you spellbound during their entire repertoire. The newest and best attractions will be presented by the company.

Commission Is Created

In a bill prepared by Secretary of State Periman under the direction of Governor Ritchie and introduced last Friday in the House by Speaker Tydings the War Records Commission is created to collect and compile the records of Marylanders in the war just closed. The Council of Defense had this work in hand. It is about to disband and the Governor wishes its work to be completed. The Commission is to consist of an unpaid board of five men who are authorized to spend such money as may be necessary to have the work done, the expenditures to be made only on the approval of the Governor.

FARM INDUSTRIES FAVORABLE

Maryland Keeping Ahead Of The Times Report Shows

The progress of Maryland's farm industries is shown in the biennial report of the Maryland State Board of Agriculture of the Maryland State College of Agriculture just made public. The state's showing in farm products during the war period as shown by the report, was among the most favorable in the country. While progress has been demonstrated, the report points out the need of improvements at the college.

Included in the report are the reports of the several departments of the college. E. N. Cory, in charge of the department of zoology, in speaking of the development of the water resources of the state, says:

The department has been endeavoring to develop a course dealing with the biology, catching, marketing and conservation of Maryland's wonderful resources in aquatic life. There are approximately six hundred and forty thousand acres of tidal bottoms in the state which should be as productive, or more productive, than an equal area of land, and it is the intention to develop its aquatic resources to the fullest capacity. With this end in view, cordial relations have been established with the Conservation Commission and the United States Bureau of Fisheries. A course of lectures has been outlined for the midwinter term on Maryland's water resources. It will consist of lectures on the oyster, crab, diamond back terrapin, fish and fisheries; conservation and legislation by Drs. Churchill and Coker, Mr. Snyder, of the Bureau of Fisheries; Mr. Truitt, of this institution; Dr. Nelson, of the New Jersey Experiment Station, and Mr. Killian, of the Conservation Commission. The prospects for a state hatchery on Point Branch are very bright, and the movement has been started to secure an appropriation from Congress with which to establish an experimental station in fish culture for the Bureau of Fisheries at that place.

Important Event For Salisbury

One of the largest fraternal assemblies ever held on the Eastern Shore of Maryland will take place in Salisbury on April 24th, when the Masonic Order will hold a Shrine Ceremonial.

Over three hundred Shrines from Baltimore, in addition to the Bands and Patrol of the Order in that city will go to Salisbury on the date mentioned to participate in the event. The Baltimore delegation will leave their home by special chartered steamer, and upon arriving at Claiborne will be met by special train to take them to Salisbury. Arriving at Union Station they will parade through the city, which parade will terminate at the Armory.

A banquet will be held in the Armory at 6.30 o'clock in the evening, following which approximately seventy-five men will be conferred with the Shrines Degree. Potentate William L. K. Barrett will be the chief speaker at the banquet, and there will be other Masons of national-wide prominence to address the meeting.

LATEST EVENTS AT WASHINGTON

The fact that Lord Grey did not see President Wilson or get into communication with him prior to sending to the London Times his letter virtually giving his approval to the Lodge reservations to the treaty of peace was made known at the White House in an interview which the newspaper correspondents had with Secretary Tumulty.

The illness of many senators and the absence of others from Washington slowed up treaty activities. Republican members of the House Rules Committee decided to give early consideration to the bill authorizing new government loans of $50,000,000 to European countries for food relief.

Seizure of the former German passenger liners seized at the outbreak of the war was forced on the Shipping Board by the operation of the national prohibition law, Chairman Payne is understood to have told President Wilson.

Ships $10,000,000 in Gold Coin

Gold coin valued at approximately $10,000,000 was shipped to South America from New York last week. Most of the metal was consigned to banks in Argentina. Gold shipments to South America during the last two months have exceeded $10,000,000. In 1919 gold valued at $55,500,000 was shipped to Argentina alone.

Present shipments are believed to be for the purpose of stabilizing exchange. Exchange on Argentina is now quoted at 1.0220 Argentine gold pesos per one American dollar, as against par of 1.0000 pesos.

FIERCE WINTER STORM SWEEPS ENTIRE COAST

Hotels, Bathing Pavilions, and Bungalows Battered to Pieces and Floated Away.

New York.—Winter's worst storm, a downfall of sleet and snow driven by a forty-mile wind and falling on ice already snow covered, brought death, disaster, danger and confusion to the entire territory between Maine and Virginia.

New York faces an immediate coal famine for its public utilities. The federal authorities have been asked for aid.

Commissioner Nixon made an earnest plea to all citizens to save coal and gas. At the same time he authorized, with Health Commissioner Cope-land's sanction, the running of unheated cars and gave permission for the curtailment of service in subways and on the elevated lines for the purpose of coal saving.

The Pennsylvania railroad reports the freight movement toward the city not more than 25 per cent. normal.

At Rockaway 50 bungalows and 100 other buildings were damaged or set adrift, the loss approximating $1,500,000. At Coney Island $500,000 damage was done in like manner. On Staten Island 20 small houses were driven off their shore moorings, and similar occurrences were reported from the Jersey and Maryland coasts.

In New York harbor a record tide, rising 8.23 feet, set barges and other small craft adrift, submerged low piers and bulkheads and tied up shipping generally, including coal barges most urgently needed. Six sound steamers were ice-bound off Execution Light, one of them, the Malpe, striking the reef and being severely damaged.

Thousands of children were unable to reach schoolhouses and many schools were closed. Business houses had to manage with depleted forces and the telephone company reported that approximately 3,500 operators were unable to report for work.

All coast cities from Maine to Virginia reported conditions similar to those prevailing in New York city. Boston had 12 inches of snow and many Massachusetts coast towns were isolated. In Cape May and Atlantic City damage was done in much the same way as to Rockaway. Atlantic City reported damage of $500,000.

OCEAN CITY DAMAGED BY STORM

Northeast Gale Causes Destruction To Seaside Resort

The severe northeast storm which prevailed along the Atlantic coast last week has done thousands of dollars worth of damage at Ocean City. The waves rolled in with a fury never before witnessed by those long acquainted with the beach, and ocean and bay have met and done more damage than was ever before seen at Ocean City. The new State Bridge has withstood the storm.

Six cottages were completely wrecked on the ocean front, where the worst damage was done. The pier was partially wrecked and washed away, and practically every cottage and hotel along the ocean front sustained damage to some extent.

For the first time in years the Coast Guard men were unable to make their beach patrol. The whole beach for a distance of 40 miles was under water.

A buoy drifted in from the Delaware Bay Wednesday night, adding to the difficulties under which the town is laboring by breaking the water main, so that the town is without fresh water, except such as can be obtained from wells.

The city property—streets and walks—have been damaged, Mayor Scott says, $50,000 or more, and hotels and cottages, $200,000. The board walk on the ocean front which cost many thousands of dollars is wrecked. Captain Purnell of the U. S. Coast Guard Service has had his men on duty all day and night rendering assistance wherever it was needed.

About 1,000 people have been more or less marooned in the town by the storm. Most of the fishing industries established below the town suffered heavily too. Of the 12 plants all were damaged. Their combined losses in boats, equipment and small houses, most of which, built close to the beach, were washed away, will be between $12,000 and $15,000.

Not a single building in the town escaped damage. The cottages were completely wrecked and the boardwalk torn and twisted all along the beach. Of the larger hotels the Atlantic, toward the lower end of the boardwalk, where the storm damage was most severe, and the Hamilton, near the upper end of the beach, suffered most. The heavy seas crashed in over the protecting piers, over the boardwalk and tore away the foundations.

Shall All Our Boys Be Trained?

The Senate Committee on Military Affairs has reported favorably the bill for universal compulsory military training. So far the House has seemed opposed to it, largely because of the expense.

The vote in the Senate committee was 9 to 5 on this universal training feature. All the votes against it were cast by Senators from the West and South.

Compulsory training would not mean compulsory army service in time of peace; that is not provided in the Senate bill. But the bill does require four months' military training for young men between 18 and 21 inclusive. A boy would have his choice between Army and Navy. In this short time he would be expected to get at least the rudiments of military practice so that his training could be finished quickly if war should suddenly come.

With the present very poor prospects for any League to Enforce Peace, it is perceived that there must be prudent preparation for new and perhaps more terrible wars. We now have no allies, but two or three powerful and ambitious enemies hoping for revenge and envious of our national wealth.

WORLD NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

NEW YORK.—"There will be history made in Wall street before my return," was the cryptic remark by Henry P. Davison, the banker, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., just before he sailed on the Cunard liner Mauretania for England. It is believed he hints at curtailment of foreign markets for American goods through the tremendous drop in foreign exchange and the expected drop in the cost of living as a direct and almost immediate consequence.

CHICAGO.—A further drop in the value of the British pound brought demoralization in the hog market.

LONDON.—The Czechs have retaken Irkutsk. Their troops are returning westward to relieve the Rumanians, Serbs and Poles.

NEW YORK.—Although there were 379 deaths from influenza and pneumonia Wednesday—a new high mark for 1920—Health Commissioner Cope-land for the first time stated definitely that the end of the epidemic is in sight.

THANKS!

We certainly feel very much pleased at the response our subscribers have made to our subscription notices and bills, paying for the paper up to 1920 and 1921. EX-GOVERNOR FRANK BROWN DEAD

End Comes After Long Illness—A Noted Figure In Politics

Ex-Governor Brown was born near Sykesville, Md., August 8, 1846.

Related to Patterson family by marriage of his aunt to Mr. Patterson.

Rearred on a farm. Clerk in an agricultural implement house in Baltimore when 18 years old. Later a clerk in State tobacco warehouse.

Member of House of Delegates in 1876 and 1878.

Appointed Postmaster of Baltimore in 1886.

Nominated for governor and elected in 1891.

President of old Baltimore Traction Company, 1896.

Instrumental in naming Democratic candidates for mayor of Baltimore in 1899, 1903 and 1907.

Appointed city collector in 1907 by Mayor Mahool.

Supported Mayor Mahool for renomination. Married Mrs. Mary R. Preston (nee Ridgely) in 1879.

One child survives (Mrs. Alfred Elliott-Dietrich, of New York).

In addition to a lifelong interest in politics, he was interested in sports, horse shows and farming.

Frank Brown, Governor of Maryland from 1891 to 1896, and for many years a powerful factor in the Democratic party, died early last Tuesday morning at his apartments, 900 North Charles street, Baltimore. He had been ill since October 28th, when he suffered an attack of heart trouble. This was followed by a general breakdown.

Though 73 years of age, Governor Brown was active up to the time of his last illness. He maintained an office in Baltimore, where he looked after his business interests and seldom was away from it for any length of time. Some 10 days ago, thinking himself much improved, he spent several hours at his desk. Whether or not this exertion was responsible for his relapse or not is difficult to say, but this visit was followed by a sinking spell from which he did not rally.

At his bedside, when the end came, were Mrs. May R. Brown-Dietrich, of New York, his only surviving child; C. F. Benton, manager of several of his properties; John F. Berry, his secretary, and Dr. Fred. Hall, manager of the drug store in which the former Governor was financially interested. Death came without suffering, it was stated by those who were with him, and he was conscious up to the last.

U. S. Debt Is $25,668,389.95.

Washington.—The total gross debt of the United States was $25,668,389.95.56 at the close of business on January 31, secretary of the treasury announced.

The debt was reduced $168,639.710.82 during January.

Interest has ceased on $8,828,342.07 of the debt.

FARM LOANS HELD UP.

Suspended Until Supreme Court Decides Status of Law.

Washington.—Further loans from federal loan banks have been suspended until the constitutionality of the farm loan act has been determined by the United States Supreme Court.

Instructions to this effect have been sent out to the farm loan representatives by Commissioner Norris, who explained that the order did not affect loans for which applications already have been received.

170,000 ARMY LIMIT OFF.

Peace Strength Could Be Raised to 300,000 Now.

Washington.—In passing the army appropriation bill the senate repealed the limitation of the national defence act which fixed the peace strength of the army at approximately 170,000 officers and men, it developed during a hearing before the House Military Committee.

Secretary Baker said the repeal left the war department free to recruit the army to 300,000 men.

CUT OUT STRIKE CLAUSE.

Measure Calls for Competitive Private Operation With Guaranteed Earnings of 5 1/2 Per Cent.—Bill Provides Final Court.

Washington.—Legislation for the turn of the railroads to private ownership and operation on March 1, when the period of federal operation will end, has been agreed upon. The conferees of the senate and house who have been meeting daily for a month in an effort to compose the differences between the Esch bill, passed by the house, and the Cummins bill, passed by the senate, concluded their work, and will report the Conference Committee's bill to the two houses of Congress at once.

The measure will be given the right of way in both houses, the conferees declared.

Briefly, the Conference Committee's bill provides for competitive private operation of the roads, under control of the Interstate Commerce Commission, with a guaranteed earning on actual property values of 5 1/2 per cent and with present rates standing for a definite period, after which the commission is given power to revise them. Voluntary instead of compulsory consolidation of the roads in competitive systems is provided for.

A revolving fund of $300,000,000 is appropriated to aid the roads during the period of transition. The conferees also provided for the refunding of the roads' indebtedness to the federal government during a period of 10 years.

The drastic anti-strike provisions of the Cummins bill were eliminated, and in their place a clause was adopted creating regional wage and labor adjustment boards, with a central board to be named by the President and approved by the senate having the final decision. No penalty is provided for failure to abide by the decisions of the labor boards.

The senate was forced to yield on many important points in the Cummins bill and to consent to numerous modifications of its original program. Senator Cummins, however, did not yield on the much disputed Section 6, which provides for a fixed guaranteed operating income to the railroads during the transition period following federal operation.

Section 6 remains virtually as adopted by the senate. Provision is made for readjustment of freight and passenger rates by groups on such a basis as will guarantee to the roads in each rate-making group an annual guaranteed net operating income of 5 1/2 per cent on the value of the actual property used or held for the transportation service. The period during which the existing compensation paid the carriers by the federal government as rental shall continue was changed from one year to six months.

The first rate revision necessary to maintain the 5 1/2 per cent return is to take place, either one year after the expiration of the guaranteed compensation now being paid or two years after the passage of the bill. The conferees have yet to agree on this point.

While the anti-strike provision was erased, the conferees did not eliminate all labor clauses, as had been forecast in some quarters. The bill sets up a series of regional adjustment boards and a central tribunal to which all appeals will go. Whenever the regional boards are deadlocked the disputes will go to the appeal board automatically and when there is an agreement the decisions as to wage increases will have to be approved by the central tribunal. The regional boards will be composed of representatives of the employers and the classified workers. The appeal board will be an official federal commission selected by the President and approved by the senate. It probably will be composed of five members. This detail has not been worked out.

The boards will have power to investigate and to render decisions on controversies relating to wages and working conditions.

JAPAN AND ARGENTINA AGREE.

Treaty Provides for Free Interchange of Prime Necessities.

Buenos Aires, Argentina.—The Japanese minister notified the foreign office that Japan has approved the proposal made by the Argentine government to all nations that treaties be negotiated for free interchange throughout the world of articles of prime necessity in order to reduce the cost of living. Japan is the third nation to approve the project, the others being Italy and Peru.

THE BUTTERFLY

By JACK LAWSON.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

The sun room of the great hotel was filled with guests upon a certain fall morning.

When the black-haired girl in dark clothes, there was, for a moment, a full of expectancy in the murmured voices.

"Who," asked a certain one-looking man, "is that?" He leaned forward slightly as the crimson-clad figure passed the couch upon which he and a fair companion were seated.

The girl questioned raised supercilious eyebrows. "That," she replied, "is the grand dowager's new companion-secretary. Rather dubious for her position, don't you think? And at present the sensation of the hotel. Mrs. Mills-

Forbes, it seems, accepted hastily this unknown young woman's service. Marietta May—charmingly unusual name, you see—presented herself in answer to Mrs. Forbes' advertisement with but one recommendation—that of the daughter of a former family of unquestioned standing. This temperately well-known young woman has been, since the death of her father and the unfortunate ending of his business career, in humble circumstances. In fact, no one knows, or perhaps no one has troubled themselves to ascertain,

just what has become of Celia Sanders.

But her word still imbues confidence.

So—Mrs. Mills-Forbes engaged Marietta May upon the strength of that recommendation, which may have been, for all we know, a forged letter. However, the companion-secretary is at present under suspicion of having stolen—not only a valuable necklace of her employer's but a wonderful string of pearls as well, belonging to another habitué of this hotel. The jewelry was found missing from the guest's room

one evening, having been taken during a ballroom affair when Miss May was the only person remaining upon that floor of the building. A plainly marked handkerchief of hers, crumpled and lying in the very secret drawer

from which the pearl necklace was taken, was the first clue to the culprit.

As there was no actual proof as to the beautiful Marietta's guilt, it was declared not to put her upon her guard with an accusation, but to have her se-cretely watched.

His eyes followed the dark-eyed, attractive face of the girl suspected, regretfully as his chatty informant left him with a nodded, "Good morning."

Beneath all the bravery of the companion's attire, her eyes seemed to gaze wistfully from her white face. "A pity!" John Calvert muttered, while for the first time he became aware of a small, brown-clad figure, seated upon a wide-cushioned hassock almost directly at his feet.

"You are sorry for Miss May?" she asked in a swift, soft tone. "You doubt the evidence of her guilt?"

"I am inclined to doubt it," Calvert replied. "Her face seems to express patient suffering, a sort of resigned

martrydom to misunderstanding."

Impulsively the little figure before him arose, the girl held out her hand.

"It is true," she said breathlessly,

"Marietta May is misunderstood, misrepresented. All her life has been that way. She is good. She tries to do her best, even that scarlet dress which she wears and which attracts so much unkind criticism, is worn to gratify old Mrs. Forbes' whim. She likes gay colors about and cannot wear them herself, but do you think that she troubles to explain this? No."

When he returned from business that evening the hotel was in commotion.

"What is it?" he asked of the girl who had been his former informant, and she told him.

"Such a surprising document," she began. "You remember about the lost jewels and the companion-secretary under suspicion? Well, she has been proven innocent and the culprit—whom do you think? No less a person than the great Mrs. Forbes herself. She possessed an insane desire, it appears, for the pearl necklace of her friend, and after having taken it, decided to allow the blame to fall upon Miss May. For this reason she gave the hue and cry about her necklace also, and left a handkerchief belonging to her companion lying in plain view in the drawer where her friend's necklace had reposed.

Isn't it scandalous?"

"Shameful!" Calvert emphatically agreed.

"But who," he asked, "discovered

the real culprit?"

The girl pointed across the room to where a small creature sat at work upon a golden butterfly.

"This is the climax of the sensation," she said. "When Celia Sanders-son heard of the accusation of her friend, she came here and begged to be allowed secretly to unravel the mystery. So she has sat among us, listening, waiting, absorbed apparently in her embroidery, yet ever alert for a clue. She found it yesterday when

Mrs. Mills-Forbes boastfully exposed her knowledge of pearls and her passion for them. When madame was absent from her room it was searched and the pearls found, concealed in a hidden pocket. The discovery was unbelievably simple, but it took little

Celia Sanders to catch the clue."

"Sanders?" said John Calvert briskly.

He walked across the room to where the small girl sat weaving her golden threads.

"Sanders," he said gently, "I want to know more about you."

His Fan.
The young man brought some verses to his father. "Father, I have written poems." "What? Let me see them instantly." The father read them over carefully, the tears slowly welling to his eyes as he did so. Finishing the last one, he threw down the manuscript, folded the boy to his breast and sobbed: "Oh, my poor, poor son!"
"Are they so bad as that, father?"
"Bad! They are excellent. They are real poetry. My boy, my boy, you will starve to death!"—Indianapolis Star.

Would Spare Grandma's Feelings.
The other day my aunt was writing to her mother, and she said to her little boy, who had recently learned a few of his letters at school: "Gene, don't you want to write your letters to grandma and show her how much you have learned?" Gene thought a few minutes and then replied: "O mother, grandma is so old and it's been a long time since she went to school, she probably wouldn't know what they are."—Exchange.

No Need to Repeat It.
Raymond had played until he was overly tired, and when he went upstairs to bed his mother called after him not to forget his prayers. Listening, she overheard the following, uttered in a sleepy voice: "Dear God:
I'm awfully tired; so my prayer tonight is the same as last night and you remember what that was, Amen."

About Wood Engraving.
Wood engravings of high class are made almost exclusively of boxwood, and the large blocks are made of small pieces fastened together. The engraving is done across the end of the grain.
Japanese wood prints are made on lengthwise sections of cherry wood parallel to the grain.

Again, Swat the Fly.
The number of bacteria capable of being carried by one house fly varies from 550 to 6,000,000. Hence a crusade against this pest which is most numerous during the season of the year when epidemics are likely to occur will play a great part in prevention and spread of any malady.

Tidiness of the Ant.
No creature is more tidy than an ant. A well-known authority says their toilet articles consist of coarse and fine toothed combs, hair brushes, sponges and even washes and soaps.
Their combs, however, are the genuine article, and differ from ours mainly in that they are fastened to their legs.

Chickens' Neglected Duty.
Laura Jane was in the habit of going with her mother to feed the chickens. Sometimes she would find a pretty feather in the park. One day we went and she could not find a feather and she exclaimed: "Why, mother, the chickens did not lay me a feather today."

BLOWN FROM 'GATOR'S MOUTH

Swimmer's Presence of Mind Saved Him From a Particularly Horrible Death.

In the spring of 1880, when I was learning how to grow and cure coffee and pepper in the sultanate of Johore, writes a contributor to the Wide World Magazine, the plantation manager and I one evening rowed across the river to a new clearing to see how the work progressed. We wore our swimming clothes, and as we drew into the beach I dropped overboard.

I had been swimming for a short time when suddenly I was grasped by the waist and flung into the air. The next moment I discovered that I was the prey of an alligator that had mis-judged its grip. When I fell back into the water the brute closed his jaws on my right leg and shook it as if trying to wrench it off.

The manager and the coolies came running to the edge of the water, but the manager dared not use his rifle lest he should shoot me, or launch the boat lest my captor should carry me off.

Suddenly an idea came to me. Bending forward I pushed my right hand into the alligator's throat and groped among the hot, soft folds of flesh.
Managing to get a grip on them, I pulled with all my strength. The flesh in my hand hardened, then the brute choked, gave a cough like a blast from an air valve, and literally blew me out of his mouth. Needless to say I lost no time in reaching the shore. My right leg was so badly injured that I could not stand, and the coolies had to carry me to the manager's bungalow.

HAVE HIGH SENSE OF HONOR

Chicago Banker Pays Tribute to Chinese for Their Thrift and Honesty in Business.

The manager of a Chicago savings bank made an examination of his accounts on racial lines and had the surprise of his life. He discovered that about the most desirable customers the bank had and the most profitable were the Chinese. Their average balance was far above the average of all accounts. In fact, the Chinese came pretty near to having the largest deposits of any patrons of the institution. Moreover they were the easiest of all to please, made the least complaint and never in the history of the bank had there been a legal difficulty over a Chinaman's account.

This is not surprising when you come to consider it. No people have a higher sense of honor than the Chinese. They will gamble; till the cows come home, and their ways are peculiar, but they are scrupulously honest. For a Chinaman to die in debt to anyone means that his relatives must and will assume the obligation.
The Chinaman is a shrewd trader, but an honest one. You never see a Chinese mendicant—never. You never see a Chinese loafer. The Chinaman is not work-shy, never was and probably never will be. He is peculiar in more ways than Bret Harte had in mind, and in one particular, that of thrift, it would be well if the white

THE PEOPLE OF MANY NATIONS

On Street of New York Almost Every Type of the Human Race May Be Met.

Walk through Grand street from Third avenue to Clinton street, which is not a long distance, and you have seen types of the whole world before you. They are not in concentrated form; they are diluted. But if you analyze, even hurriedly, you will soon be able to know the components of each one of them, according to "Dust of New York," by Konrad Berovic.

A remote Tartar ancestor of one of the pushcart peddlers is plainly seen in the small, sunken black eyes. In another the straight line of the back of the head tells you that his mother or his grandmother had lived once in Hungary. In another one the Slav type, the flat, fleshy nose is mixed with the Wallachian strong chin. Tenton blood calls out through the heavy cast of an otherwise typical Austrian Jew. A Spanish grandee, as if come out of a page of Cervantes, is selling shoe laces and cut buttons. And a Moroccan prince, ill at ease in his European garb, is offering to the passer-by some new Burbankian fig-plum-orange combination.

The vendors call out their wares in what seems at first a tongue all their own. But a trained ear soon discovers that it is English, or, rather, that English is the essential component of the chemistry of their language; the rest being words of their own creation, or scraps from a dozen other languages which stuck to the people of woe in their 2,000 years' peregrination from land to land.

PROVED BY HAMMER STROKE

Human Character Frequently Welded Under Blows, Much as Workmen Weld the Iron.

There are metals which improve in quality all the time you stamp and hammer them. Just the same is true of a man, if he have the true heat in him, and makes himself master of the circumstances, instead of slave. Precisely as you may have seen different strands of iron wire brought together in a "bloom," heated red, and struck and struck under a trip hammer till they are made one, so all the different experiences of human life are fused and welded in the process of the formation of character. A man's habits, his methods of reasoning, his imagination and memory, his faith, his hope, his love—are blended together in his character. And the hammering becomes no unimportant part of the process. Certain traits there are which show themselves all through the pounding. Thus, all the hammering of an eternity would not make iron into gold. But a very little hammering will make pig-iron into wrought iron, if you give it heat enough; and so hammered, it will bear a very different strain.—B. E. Hale.

The Scottish Girl of Lucknow.

History cannot dig up her name. But history holds up, as were it the planet of morning, her shining cry in the relief of Lucknow. In the Sepoy mutiny of India hundreds of wounded and dying Englishmen and Scotchmen and their families were shut up in the residency of Lucknow. Nana Sahib was marching on to put them to the sword, reserving a worse fate for the women. Nearer and nearer that Indian tiger bounded. The jungle roar of his forces could be apprehended on the breeze. Sobs of women filled the residency. Men had drawn their swords to slay their wives with their own hand. A Scottish girl who was in the garden with her ear bent to the ground suddenly sprang up into the air; she rushed; she jammed open the door into the mansion with the cry, "Dinna ye hear it? The pipes of Havelock sound!" It was. And now the Campbell's call and the pibroch of Scotland droning. Nearer came the shrill skirling. And men fell on their faces. And the roar of Havelock broke in, outmarching the Nana Sahib! Havelock and his pipes saved Lucknow.—Chicago Journal.

San Francisco Hills.

On the steepest side streets of San Francisco strips of wood or indentations are placed in the sidewalks to help the casual climber. An easterner, sojourning in such a neighborhood for his first winter, may often forget for the instant where he is and say to himself that these will indeed be grateful to the feet when the snow and ice come. Straightway, then, he realizes that the snow and ice never come; so the only slipperiness is that of the rainy days, together with that due to the declivity itself, so sharp that neither horse nor automobile could find a footing on the grass-grown cobbles. One or two of the sidewalks deserve, indeed, to be considered among the famous stairways of the world, with actual steps cut in cement, as many as 200 or more to a single series.

Tricks of Fishermen.

Hardlines are a very shy fish, and the ones used to catch them are of a very fine thread and mesh.

Now fishermen often cut their nets by making them in coffee, and so making them less visible. Acting on similar lines, the modern fishermen have taken to dyeing their nets blue, and thus causing them to be less conspicuous.

These fishermen, again, are learning to swim under water and currents for the purpose of being able to catch a line of fish between the currents will catch more fish than one set in a di-

There's a World of Solid Comfort In the Rich, Red Tin

YES, sir, we mean that same warm red and gold tin that smiles a welcoming "Howdy" to you in every tobacco store. Know what those colors mean?

The red is for the friendly warmth, the mellow cheeriness, that Velvet puts into your old pipe. And the gold is where the Kentucky sunshine, that ripens good old Velvet, has just sort of soaked through.

Remember what Velvet Joe said about it?

"You've met canned meat and canned music. Ever see any tinned sunshine? Well, look into any Velvet tin."

And think this over:

We don't have to hide Velvet's taste or smell with a lot of this, that and the other thing. Because Velvet has naturally what pipe smokers want—real simon-pure tobacco taste and fragrance. It's just good, honest Kentucky leaf, made still more friendly and mellow by two years' ageing in wooden hogsheads. Just good tobacco. That's all. But it's mighty near enough for the man who wants a pipeful of tobacco and not a box of bon bons.

How's the Velvet holding out in your old red tin?

MINISTERED TO THE SELECT

Pastor's Congregation Might Be Few in Numbers but Their Gentility Was Unquestioned.

Nearly every one of about 800 churches that we have in Philadelphia is peculiarly interested at present in the problem of getting people—particularly men—to attend the services.

Some one cited yesterday a conversation with the pastor of a dwindling flock in Virginia.

The good old man was making a poor fist of it as a preacher, or even as a shepherd of his flock, it was plain; but he was not discouraged. Had he cared to count heads from the pulpit he might have felt concerned, but apparently he was content as long as anybody came to hear him, for his church was endowed and was independent of the collection plate.

The Philadelphia sojourner, however, was bold enough to hint that the congregation might be larger in view of the size of the town.

"Some of the other churches here appear to be pretty well filled," he remarked.

The clergyman made a deprecatory gesture with both hands, as if repelling the false doctrine, heresy and schism that flourished in the neighboring churches.

"Of course there are other ways of seeking salvation," he said, "but no gentleman would take advantage of them."—F. L. W., in Philadelphia Ledger.

MADE WEALTHY BY TUNGSTEN

Colorado Prospector Had the Laugh on Men Who Had Previously Derided His Notion.

Without the discovery of its utility for making the filament used in electric lighting, tungsten would still be a produce regarded by gold and silver mining prospectors as a nuisance, because it so often interrupted their search for the precious metals. Before that discovery tungsten, when found, was immediately thrown away; but now the tale is told of a young mining engineer, looking for gold in the mountains of Colorado, who struck tungsten instead, and decided to make the best of his discovery, in the hope that it would increase in value. The price when he made his decision was about $8 for 20 pounds; at the beginning of the war in Europe, it rose to $56, and his ore was worth $3,850 a ton, or as much as gold ore. In the spring of 1915, the price had gone higher, and his neighborhood in the mountains was alive with other men looking for tungsten, often the same men who, a few years earlier, had laughed at him and nicknamed him "Tungsten Tim." So, at least, runs the story, which is believable enough in view of the statement that, in 1917, there were sold in the United States, 165,000 tungsten-filament lamps, to say nothing of 75,000,000 smaller ones.—Exchange.

Persimmon Juice Valuable.

All over Japan flourishes the persimmon tree, although the best specimens grow in the warmer parts of the empire, and the belief is current that the juice of the persimmon is destined to cosmopolitan importance, says the Christian Science Monitor. So far the use of persimmon juice in pigments is hardly known outside of Japan, but such is its proved value in that country that it is expected to become an important article of export, valuable alike to those who paint pictures and those who paint houses. The juice of the persimmon is especially useful in mixing paints in damp countries. More than that, it makes an adhesive which is affected neither by heat nor by water, and is therefore valuable in making packing paper, umbrellas, raincoats, paper boxes, waterproof cloth, and for producing gloss on silk, tortoise shell and other smooth substances.

Lacquer Secret Well Kept.

The Japanese have succeeded in keeping the knowledge of their famous lacquer a national secret. A great number of native workmen are familiar with the details, but especial care is taken to prevent any foreigner from securing any information about lacquer except that which is of the most general nature and of no value to one who desires to engage in its manufacture. Its basis is the simple sap of a tree, but as lacquer, when applied to wood or metal, it is quite indestructible. A coat of lacquer is proof against alcohol, against boiling water, against almost all known agencies. The lacquer tree of Japan is very large. It is always cut down at the age of forty years, as thereafter it begins to dry up. Each tree yields on its demolition about six barrels of lacquer sap.

Mark of Egotism.

Boastfulness is by no means the only way in which egotism is revealed. There are numerous little telltale signs, knowledge of which is distinctly useful in social and business relations.

An egotist, for example, is commonly a poor listener in a conversation.

Because of undue eagerness to express his ideas he is prone to interrupt anybody who may be speaking. Whether he assent or dissent from what is being said, he finds it hard to let the speaker finish.

Often this is charitably ascribed to mere lack of good manners, overenthusiasm or a nervous uneasiness. But nine times out of ten egotism is at the bottom of it.

Massachusetts Under Fire

A western congressman was joking with a congressman from Massachusetts. "My congressional district," said he, "is several times as big as yours. In fact it's bigger than the whole state of Massachusetts."

"Well, well, that explains something I have never understood," replied the Bay State man.

"What is that?" asked the Westerner.

"It explains how you happened to be elected to congress," replied the politician from Massachusetts. "I suppose that most of your constituents have never even seen you!"

No Tonic Needed.

"Your hair is getting thin," said the barber as he ran his long fingers through the stray hairs of his victim. "Now, we have the greatest tonic in the world, guaranteed to—"

"Oh, but I put something on it every morning!" said the customer.

"May I inquire what, sir?"

LUCK

"Say Hubby I had great luck today. Found a place where I could buy two pounds of sugar all at once."

Decorum.

Children should be good, they say. And kind and gentle, too. And not conduct themselves the way their parents sometimes do.

Discord Ahead.

"This artist married his lovely model, eh?"

"Yes."

"And they are happy now?"

"I'm afraid not. He has hired another model who's even better looking than the one he married."

Just What Did She Mean?

Hewitt—My wife is a cheerful sort of companion.

Jewett—How is that?

Hewitt—I told her that I had taken out a 20-year endowment on my life, and she said that she hoped I wouldn't mature before the policy did.—Life.

Speaks Truly.

Cora Coolington—I don't see any harm in kissing Harold Hugamore. I've kissed him ever since we were children.

Aunt Lucy—I know, but when a boy is old enough to wear a mustache kissing is ticklish business.

Had It on Solomon.

Mr. Weekend—Yes, my dear; when I come to think of it, it is a pleasure to pack your trunk.

Mrs. Weekend—Why the pleasure? Mr. Weekend—To think that I'm not Solomon and have to pack 700 trunks for my wives.

Bearing Up Well.

"Can't get much work out of that hired man of mine," said Mr. Cobbles.

"Maybe he's troubled with dolce far niente."

"He may have it, but it don't seem to trouble him none."

Its Agility.

"How on earth could my watch have gotten from the side of the bureau, where I laid it, to the other?"

"Why, dear boy, have you never seen a watch spring?"

Sizing Up a Town.

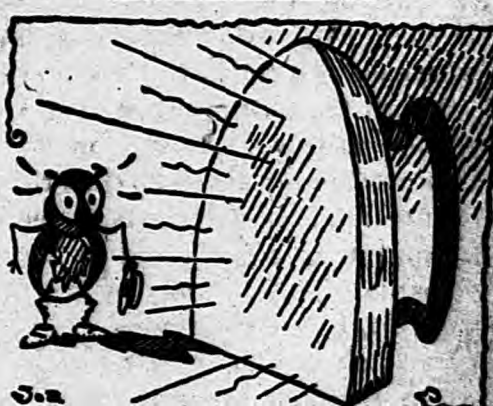

"I size up a village by its bank and its hotel."

"Old stuff. Give the local picture palace the once over."

Defects.

Knicker—A defeat is when the enemy drives you back home.

Outlate—Or else when you don't dare to go home.

THE HEAT WAVE.

Bug—I always heard there were such nice cool breezes around the lat iron building!

As Theories Revive.

Each generation tests its wit On various public questions, And coins new phrases that will fit Some very old suggestions.

Coming to Facts.

"How was the reverberation in the cave?"

"I don't know anything about that, but the echo was fine."

Proper Things.

Reporter—What shall I do with this article on "A Leaders Party?"

Editor—Give it to me and I'll put a head on it.

Exact Instrument.

"I hear your son has taken up music as a study. Does he play con amore?"

"No, sir. He plays the fiddle."

TUESDAY MORNING, FEB. 10, 1920

An appeal is issued to charity-minded women to give two of their narrow skirts to make over into a pair of trousers for a worthy citizen.

Large number of people ready to cooperate with the nation-wide drive against the "flu" by applying to the drug store for some stimulant.

It is claimed that some planet is trying to signal us, but the earth is too busy to stop and go to their relief, even if they have got out of bully beef.

People who have had their wages raised 200 to 300 per cent. and are now clamoring for more are prominent in denunciation of the wicked profiteers.

Any residents of Princess Anne who feel any symptoms of influenza can confer a lasting benefit on the community and humanity by remaining strictly at home.

The modern employer expects to have the help wash up on his time, but he protests against their taking working hours as their time for eating and sleeping.

The people who consider it unlucky to begin work Friday, February the 13th, probably won't be able to begin Saturday, the 14th, and Monday, the 15th, they will be too tired.

No one in Princess Anne need think that his society is so delightful, or his work so valuable, that any one wishes him to stir outside of the house if he has the least sign of influenza.

An editor has been appointed secretary of agriculture. Well, the scissors always were useful in trimming the grape vines, but you can't mend a broken plough with a paste pot.

In view of the incorruptible honesty and scrupulous conscientiousness of all income taxpayers they are earnestly cautioned not to estimate their losses too lightly, or to exaggerate their profits too generously.

As the first rush of Leap Year proposals is now over the hunted bachelors may now perhaps venture out on Main street, but they should keep firmly in mind the prevailing figures for rents and the cost of outfitting a kitchen.

SAINT VALENTINE

Valentine's Day was some day among the young folks of years ago. It was approached with serious consideration in the early long trouser age. Suitors considered very thoughtfully how far along the sentimental line they dared go. There was nothing reticent about the emotions expressed by the missives of Cupid then placed on sale. These offerings were delivered to the United States mail with bated breath. The sender watched with trembling heart for the next sight of his innamorata to see how she took it.

The boys and girls of to-day may play the same game on the quiet, but one doubts it. They are too much on their dignity and too fearful of being laughed at. Probably these lovey dovey valentines with which the stores abound are mostly used by the kiddie element, which still says what it thinks.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY THOUGHTS

Perhaps the two qualities in Abraham Lincoln's life that win the most interest were his broad tolerance and his democracy. If he could have lived through his presidential term the bitter estrangement between South and North would never have developed.

Most people see only the viewpoint of their own locality and can not grasp that of some other environment. Lincoln's broad sympathy was able to imagine how he would have felt under other circumstances. He would have found means to win back promptly the affection of the southern people.

To-day sectional spirit has gone. But there are other bitternesses that run on different lines, creating class feeling and separating friends and neighbors into hostile groups. Only by the Lincoln spirit, the comprehension of the point of view and circumstances of those living under other environments, can this country avoid social chasms. The great marvel of Lincoln's career has always been his rise to such heights of eminence and achievement from the most lowly and humble origin. It is for all time a matchless example to the youth of humble homes.

The youth who would climb in this country from a lowly home will find far more helping hands than ever assisted Lincoln. Every school house may be a path to greatness if one can but grasp the opportunities. The boy who, like Lincoln, spends spare time in reading the Bible and Shakespeare and the great wisdom of history will not be disappointed.

Sometimes it seems as if the earnest youth from the humble home had a better chance than the son of wealth, since he is not so much the victim of work and worry as the latter is.

"EVERYBODY BUYING DIAMONDS"

So reads a newspaper headline. It tells how though diamonds are becoming higher priced every year, yet it was never so easy to sell them. The wage earner, without a dollar saved, is just as likely to buy one as anybody. In his buoyant heart he knows he is going to get there. He thinks his bride will then look queer, in her automobiles and furs, if she has no diamond to match their luxury.

There is something rather fine in this spirit of self confidence, yet there is a certain falseness of basis when a young couple are betrothed with a diamond ring and yet are paying for furniture on the installment plan, as must often be the case. Buying expensive things when there is no reserve on hand for sickness, no nest egg of future capital accumulating, has an element of insincerity. It is trying to pass for something different than what you are.

LAW OR FORCE?

It has taken the human race some 8,000 years of evolution to establish the principle that it is better to do things by lawful and constitutional methods rather than to resort to force. When such a party as the Bolsheviks, therefore, propose to overthrow government by force they propose to destroy the long and painful effort of 30 centuries and return to the days when violence controlled the world.

The Socialists of America, who claim to stand for a higher order of civilization, have as a rule expressed sympathy for the Bolshevik movement in Russia. It is now up to them to make clear whether they stand for a similar revolution in this country. Or, are they willing to submit to majority rule, like good citizens, and obey the laws until they produce a majority vote to have them changed?

The American people believe in a government of law and order and constitutional rights, determined by majority rule of the people. If the Socialists are willing to give a sincere adherence to this principle they can agitate all they want lawful changes in the government. No one will interfere with them.

The Bolshevik element, in despair of obtaining a majority vote of the people, has hoped that a minority could rise and by brute force get control of the government. That will never happen in this country. If the minority attempts to seize the government by force there will be a civil war. The American people will not tolerate it. Unless the Socialist party clearly disavows this attitude and takes it stand for lawful methods of propaganda it will find itself outlawed. The reaction against Red propaganda has in some cases gone to unreasonable extremes, but the American people demand a clear answer on this question. Law or force, which, Mr. Socialist?

CONSERVATION COMMISSION OF MARYLAND

Hoover Boom Grows

Herbert Hoover's Presidential boom is gaining strength with the public in widely separated sections of the country. Except in a few states it is not yet making any appreciable headway among the organization leaders of either party, and without their support it will be hard sledding to express whatever public support Mr. Hoover may have in terms of delegates to the nominating conventions. This is the substance of reports which have reached Washington during the last week.

Judging from reports reaching there the real enthusiasm that Hoover's candidacy has created has been found almost entirely within the Democratic ranks.

Rural Mail Crisis Near

Rural mail carriers are resigning at the rate of 50 a day, W. D. Brown, representing the National Rural Mail Carriers' Association, told the Senate Postal Committee last week, adding that the service faced serious difficulties unless financial relief was accorded the employees soon. He asked a permanent increase of approximately 60 per cent. over the present base pay of $1200 per annum, with a minimum base of $1920. The increased annual expense would be about $78,000,000, he said.

Chronic Constipation

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have brought that condition on themselves by the use of mineral waters and strong cathartics that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels, and you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their use is not so likely to be followed by constipation.

PUBLIC SALE OF TWENTY

Horses and Mules
Saturday, February 14th, 1920

BEGINNING AT THE HOUR OF 1:30 P. M.

These Horses and Mules range in age from 4 to 12 years, and were selected with a view of meeting the needs of the farmers of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia. They are good sound stock and every farmer in need of Horses and Mules should take advantage of this opportunity of securing them at a reasonable price. Call at my stables in Princess Anne and look them over on Friday before offering it at public sale on Saturday.

TERMS OF SALE to suit purchaser.

HARRY T. PHOEBUS

Mules! Mules! Mules!

Some people show their appreciation of a raise in pay by cutting down the amount of work they do.

Dollars And Cents

Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself, in fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Powell returned home from Snow Hill last Friday afternoon where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Powell's sister, Miss Dollie Virginia Spencer.

The Ground Hog took full advantage of his opportunities on Monday of last week and must have basked in the sun all day long, judging by the perfectly atrocious weather we have been having since.

Lent comes much earlier this year than last. Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent, falls on February 18, and the first Sunday in Lent on February 22. Palm Sunday falls on March 28, and Easter Sunday on April 4th.

Last Friday Mr. Robins, of Somerset county, introduced a bill in the Senate fixing the time for the taking and tonging of oysters. Mr. Hall introduced a bill in the House the same day, changing the open season for quail in Somerset county.

Winter may endure for a while, but spring is coming. Even now the confectioners are making chocolate Easter eggs, and all the straw hats for next summer are made up. It will not be long until we will be putting next winter's coal in the bin.

Mrs. Louise M. Bowland-Kerman, wife of Mr. Charles H. Kerman, died at her home in Tiffin, Ohio, on February 5th. Mrs. Kerman is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Bowland, formerly of Somerset county, and a sister of Mr. W. A. N. Bowland, principal of Washington High School, Princess Anne.

Mrs. T. Jacob Smith entertained at cards last Wednesday afternoon Mrs. H. L. Brittingham, Mrs. Wm. B. Spiva, Mrs. A. N. Bowland, Mrs. W. A. N. Bowland, Mrs. George H. Myers, Mrs. Oliver H. Murphy, Mrs. William H. Dinkell, Mrs. George W. Maslin, Mrs. Euse B. Palk, Mrs. John E. Holland, Mrs. Edward F. Fitzgerald and Miss

Mrs. Stanley Phillips and little daughter are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Roberts.

Mr. Harry Carter, of Perryhawkin, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. J. S. Bradley, at Westover.

Mr. Gladden, of Somerset county, last Friday introduced a bill in the House prohibiting the catching of trout less than seven inches in length in the waters of Somerset county.

Mr. W. S. Miles is now acting postmaster at Marion Station, having been placed there by the bondsmen of former Postmaster E. A. Lankford, who was taken in charge last Friday by a United States officer and carried to Baltimore to answer charges preferred against him.

Bishop William Forbes Adams, of the Diocese of Easton, Protestant Episcopal Church, has received an invitation from Bishop Sarum to attend the seven hundredth anniversary of the building of the Salisbury Cathedral, at Salisbury, England, which will be held on June 24th of this year.

As a result of the heavy rainstorm of the past week, together with the highest tide in years, Crisfield was practically inundated. Yards and streets were flooded and some of the railroad tracks were submerged. High winds caused damage to property. Trees were uprooted. Shipping was to a standstill, but no serious damage to vessel property has yet been reported.

The pupils of Westover primary school who took the mid-year examination received the following marks in their general average: Philip Elliott, 81; Eunice Layfield, 90; Roselyn Mills, 85; Leroy Carter, 76; Arthur Poleyetto, 82; James Beauchamp, 89; Margaret Beauchamp, 90; William Rue, 64; Gladys Dorsey, 70; Alfernia Rue, 88; Francis Brittingham, 85; Mary Poleyetto, 90; Dorothy Butler, 92; Bessie Hastings, 93; David Sterling, 88; Columbus Dorsey, 80; Edward Chamberlin, 94; Violet Rue, 89; Bert Hastings, 88; Esther Schmeading, 84.

The records of the Navy Recruiting Station, Baltimore, show that the applicants for enlistment in the Navy from the Eastern Shore average about 75% higher in physical standing than from other sections of the State and West Virginia. The Southern counties of the Eastern Shore hold the record. From Salisbury alone, before January 1st, there had been 21 applicants, all of whom passed the physical examination and were taken into the Navy. Since January 1st, 9 Salisbury men have made application, all of whom passed and are now on active duty in the Navy.

Two Sets Of Triplets In 15 Months

Six children—two sets of triplets—within 15 months is the birth record in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Posey Livingston, of Albany, Ala. The second trio of children was born February 2nd, and all are well.

Warning On Social Disease

In a campaign to stamp out social disease, Dr. John S. Fulton, secretary of the State Board of Health, is calling upon physicians, druggists and superintendents of institutions to report all cases coming to their attention. Dr. Fulton points out that such reports are in accordance with State law on the subject.

In connection with the campaign Dr. Fulton yesterday made the following statement: "In point of high mortality rate, great infectiousness and wide prevalence, social diseases claim a major place in any city's or state's health program. They are communicable as well as infectious, and insidiously attack the fertility of the race, making parenthood impossible. This compels their recognition as a danger to the public health and places them under the jurisdiction of the State Board of Health."

It is now possible, Dr. Fulton said, to give the community the same protection as given against smallpox, yellow fever and other plagues whose causes and modes of spread are known.

Upper Fairmount
Feb. 7—Miss Mollie Furniss is visiting relatives in Baltimore.

Miss Mary Ellen Curtis is very ill with pneumonia.

Mrs. D. B. Maddox is visiting her sister, Mrs. Arthur King, in Baltimore.

Mrs. Clarence Wheaton, of Baltimore, is a visitor at the home of Mrs. W. T. Sudler.

Mr. Francis Merrill, who has been quite ill with typhoid fever, is convalescent.

Mr. Robert B. Curtis, of Baltimore, visited relatives in this neighborhood for a few days this week.

Miss Elizabeth W. Mitchell, who was recently operated upon for appendicitis in Baltimore, is home for a brief time before returning to Western Maryland College.

Woman In Almshouse 76 Years

An inmate of the Sussex County (Delaware) Almshouse for 76 years, Martha Stanford, who was blind from childhood, has died at the age of 85 years. She was sent to the almshouse from the western part of the county when 9 years old, and lived there ever since until the time of her death.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, Rosa F. Wheatley, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 9th, 1919.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a vacant chair
The world can never fill.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our hearts
That never can be filled.

Rest on, dear mother, thy labor's o'er,
Thy willing hands will toil no more,
A faithful mother, both true and kind,
A truer mother you could not find.

Yea, we miss you, oh, how we miss you,
When we see your vacant chair,
But how sad the home without you
For there is no mother there.

BY HER DAUGHTER ROSA.

Flags for Soldier Dead

One American flag for each soldier grave in the American Expeditionary Forces and one large flag for each cemetery have been ordered by General Rathens, of the American Graves Registration Service in Europe, according to an announcement from the War Department.

These flags are to be forwarded for display, commencing Memorial Day of this year, at all cemeteries in France. Eighty flags of large size, known as post flags, have been ordered for the large cemeteries and 350 flags, known as storm size, have been ordered for the smaller ones. Eighty thousand five hundred flags, 8 inches by 12 inches, have been ordered for decorating the individual graves of American soldiers who lie buried in Europe.

Colored—John A. Johnson, 22, Marion, Md., and Sadie White, 18, Wenona, Maryland.

For The Children

Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting a cough medicine for children. It should be pleasant to take, contains no harmful drug and most effectual in curing their coughs and colds. Long experience has shown that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets these conditions. It is a favorite with many mothers.

GOODMAN'S

WHEAT-UP PERSISTENT FIGHT ON TAKE-ALL

Claiming Attention of Federal and State Authorities.

Plagues Thought to Exist Only in Few Counties in Illinois and Indiana
Now Found in Virginia and Washington.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.
Identification of the take-all disease of wheat and other small grains, which was first discovered in the United States last spring, claims close attention from federal and state agricultural authorities. When the take-all and flag smut conference was held in Washington at thrashing time, the diseases were thought to exist only in a few counties in Illinois and Indiana. Two other infested areas suspected of being take-all have since been discovered, one near Roanoke, Va., and the other in Mason county, Wash. Necessary control measures have been inaugurated. Field experiments on two farms in Madison county, Ill., one of the infested areas, have been undertaken to determine how long soil infestation will continue, the efficacy of different rotations in controlling the disease, the degree of immunity and susceptibility of different crops and crop varieties, the effect of fertilizers on development of the disease, and other related facts. A comprehensive series of milling and baking experiments is being conducted in Washington to determine the effect of formaldehyde disinfection on milling quality and baking value. The Illinois and Indiana experiment stations are co-operating in rotation and similar experiments.

NECROBACILLOSIS OF SWINE

Disease Is Becoming More Prevalent in Some Sections of Country—
Plan for Control.

Necrobacillosis of swine is becoming more prevalent in certain sections of the country and is assuming considerable economic importance, says C. P. Fitch, University Farm, St. Paul, in a paper reprinted from the annual report of the United States Live Stock Sanitary association. While the germ which causes the disease is of special interest by reason of its effect on swine, it also affects other domestic animals. It is found chiefly in filth, and the prevention of necrobacillosis, according to Doctor Fitch, must be based on cleanliness. Pig pens, he says, should be cleaned daily and the floor sprinkled with three per cent solution of any coal-tar disinfectant. The manure, especially from affected animals, should not be spread on pastures intended for swine. The key to the control is prevention based especially on the proper disposal of manure.

FRESH WATER IS ESSENTIAL

Cheap Material for Making Pork and Important to Supply It Liberally to Hogs.

Farmers who are careful on other matters of feeding sometimes neglect an important item, that of placing before the hogs at all times a good supply of good, clean drinking water. For this purpose an automatic device or home-made convenience is best. Water is the cheap material in making pork, and the importance of having it supplied in quantity and quality cannot be overestimated. Hogs should not be forced to drink from an unclean tank, nor should they be provided with only a limited supply once or twice a day.

WINTER SHELTER FOR SHEEP

Need as Much Protection in Some Districts as Do Larger and Stronger Animals.

Sheep have a better reputation for hardiness than their power to resist adverse influences can justify. It is true that they can withstand severe cold if the air and ground are dry, and that if sheltered at the proper time they can endure a good deal of heat in the summer. But it is equally true that they need as much protection in some districts as do the larger and stronger animals.

WHERE THE DON HELD SWAY

Palace of Santa Fe for Three Centuries Housed High Representatives of Spanish Power.

One of the interesting buildings at Santa Fe is the old palace of the governor, and from this building for 305 years Spain ruled a large part of North America now a part of the United States—Montana, part of Texas, part of Kansas, and part of Oklahoma. It was built in 1606 by Juan de Onate, who was the great grandson of Montezuma, the Aztec emperor of ancient Mexico, and the grandson of Hernandez Cortes, the Spanish conqueror who subdued and took over the Aztec or Indian civilization of Mexico and, with the sword in one hand and the cross in the other, substituted Spanish civilization. The palace, as the building is termed in Spanish, was originally designed for a palace, castle and fortress.

Its vicissitudes during more than three centuries, under Spanish, Indian, Mexican and American rule, formed a most dramatic and thrilling chapter in the history of the nation. For three centuries it was not only the seat of government, but also the home of captains general and governors, their retainers and families, and from time to time it housed the dungeon, the jail, the post office, the legislature, the supreme court, the territorial secretary and family, the territorial law library and law offices. On every page of the history of the venerable edifice one finds romance, stirring incidents and important episodes, in which the figures of Spanish conquerors and Franciscan monks, Indian chieftains and American adventurers, soldiers, statesmen, authors, scientists and dainty society ladies step into the spotlight to vanish again as Father Time, grim and inexorable, swings his cycle.—Exchange.

MAN REALLY KNOWS LITTLE

Even the Wisest of the Human Race
Amazingly Ignorant, Asserts a Writer in Boston Paper.

The wisest man in the world knows only tiny fraction of what there is to be learned, and the mass of human knowledge, painfully acquired and handed on since our far-off ancestors came down out of the trees, is only a faint glimmer in the midst of the dark unknown.

Much of the unknown is unknowable; a little of it, the human mind laboriously takes possession of as centuries pass.

Most of us are amazingly ignorant. We are like the classic example of the school children, conning their books, who couldn't tell what kind of wood their desks were made of.

Actually, we are afraid of seeming to know too much outside of the trodden ways; we despise the "high-brow."

And at the same time how contemptuous we are likely to be of some one who seems to be more ignorant than ourselves.

The man who has stopped learning is living at a standstill. Make every one you meet your teacher, if you would get the most out of life. That boy scout, that venerable farmer, that sharp young salesman—each has a bit of special knowledge for you.

Be a student, even though your schooldays are in the remote past, and not a mere book student.—Boston Herald.

Sale of Apples Barred.

In the sixteenth century there was a curious law in England whereby street peddlers were forbidden to sell plums and apples, for the reason that servants and apprentices were unable to resist the sight of them and were constantly tempted to steal their employers' money in order to enjoy the costly delicacies.

Equip Your Small Car With Goodyear Tires

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or any other car using 30x3, 30x3 1/2, or 31x4-inch tires, you can well take advantage of the high relative value built into all Goodyear Tires.

You can well do so because you can secure in the small Goodyear Tires the results of such skill and care as have made Goodyear Tires the preferred equipment on the highest-priced automobiles of the day.

You can well do so because these small Goodyear Tires are easy to obtain, being produced at the rate of 20,000 a day, and because their first cost usually is as low or lower than that of other tires in the same types and sizes.

Go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires, and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He supplies many other local owners of small cars.

MARKED REDUCTIONS IN VEGETABLE LOSS

Result Brought About by More Careful Handling.

Suitable Temperature in Refrigerator Cars and Storage Houses Have Helped—Decay of Strawberries Avoidable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Decay in the transportation of potatoes, cantaloupes, lettuce, tomatoes, spinach, strawberries, and onions is primarily due to faulty methods of handling and refrigerating, according to the bureau of markets. Marked reductions in losses have resulted from more careful methods of dis-ging and grading potatoes, suitable temperature in refrigerator cars and storage houses, and by improvements in the handling of lettuce, such as the more complete removal of the lower leaves of each head in harvesting, and shipment in ventilated crates instead of closed hampers. It was found that the decay of strawberries in transit results largely from avoidable injuries inflicted in picking and washing and from inefficient refrigeration. Vegetables from the South, shipped in properly constructed cars, cooled one degree an hour faster than those forwarded in cars of the ordinary type, and deteriorated less than one-third as much, the bureau reports.

MAKING FARM IMPROVEMENTS

Iowa Farmers Are Putting Profits into Houses for Hogs and Poultry and Water Systems.

"The farmers of Iowa are putting their profits into farm improvements," says John S. Glass of the agricultural engineering department of Iowa State college after visiting thousands of farms in all parts of Iowa this year.

"An average of 30 new hoghouses in every county, or nearly 3,000 in the entire state were erected last year. New poultry houses rank next in popularity with the builders. There is an average of about 15 modern poultry houses that have been constructed or are under construction in every county.

"Three out of every four farms I visited asked for plans for water systems. Every one interested in a new water system also wished to construct a sewage disposal plant. Many farmers are installing light plants on their farms or connecting farmers' lines. In Des Moines county every main road has a farmers' electric line, and the farmers are making use of them."

SKIMMILK COSTLY FOR HOGS

Demand for It Increasing Rapidly Because of Food Value, Although It Contains No Fats.

Skimmilk for hog feed will soon be a thing of the past, in the opinion of E. O. Hanson, member of the staff of dairy division at university farm.

"Skimmilk," Mr. Hanson says, "is already being sold in various forms such as milk powder, caseln and cottage cheese. Demand for it is increasing rapidly because of its food value, although it contains no fats. About 17 pounds of cottage cheese can be made from 100 pounds of skimmilk. An analysis will show that cottage cheese is as nourishing, pound for pound, as lean beef.

"Suppose beef to be worth 18 cents a pound and cottage cheese to be of equal value; this would then make the value of one quart of skimmilk 6.12 cents. At this rate, skimmilk is too valuable to be used for hog feed."

MANY USES FOR APPLE WOOD

Manufacturers of Tool Handles and Other Small Articles Find It Quite Satisfactory.

Wood from old apple trees is occasionally in demand by manufacturers of tool handles and other small articles. The wood is also valuable for making furniture but it is difficult to get logs of any length. Apple wood also makes excellent fuel for the fireplace and is in demand at a small premium in towns and cities where fireplaces are fashionable.

Special Care Should Be Taken to Prevent Freezing to Avoid Serious Loss.

CAR LINING IS IMPORTANT

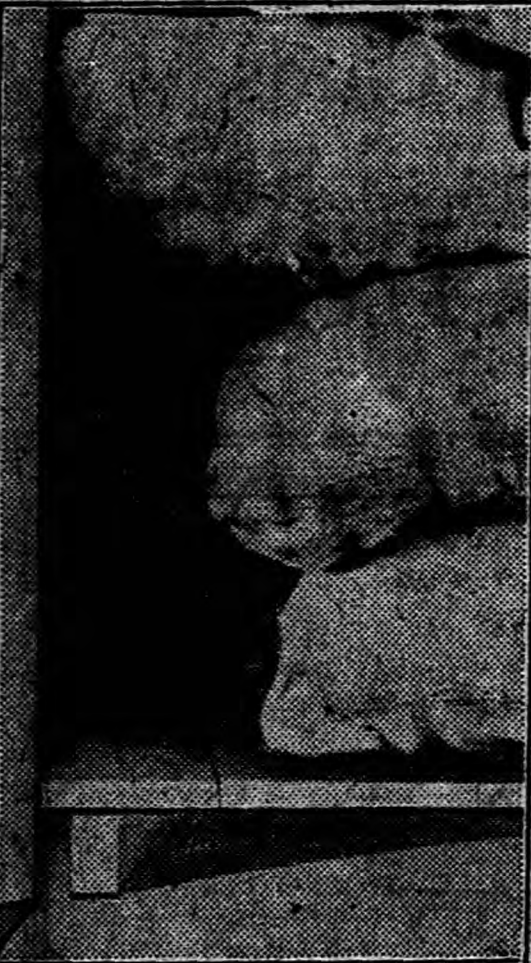

Recommended that Floor, Walls and Ceiling Be Covered With Building Paper and False Floor for Ventilation.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In loading potatoes for shipment in cold weather, special care must be taken to prevent freezing if the shipper is not to suffer losses that may wipe out profits for an entire season's work. It is not enough that insulated walls and floors and means for heating be provided without regard to the proper methods of installation. Approximately 75 per cent of all cars prepared to protect potato shipments in cold weather are lined or loaded incorrectly, according to an investigation made last winter by the bureau of markets.

Make Box Car Safe.

To make a box car safe for shipping potatoes in weather that is below freezing, the bureau of markets recommends that the floor, walls and ceiling of the car be covered with building paper, held in place with laths. After papering, a false floor should be laid on supports running lengthwise and allowing a free air channel, four to six inches deep, below the false floor and extending from the center of the car to either end and connecting with vertical air passages formed by false walls, built four to six inches from the car ends. False walls, also, should be built a few inches from the sides of the car. The false floor should not cover the area between the doors. Here a stove is installed, if the shipment is likely to pass through severe weather. A false door should be built on one side for a stovepipe and bulkheads put across the car at either side of the doors to form a "well" for the stove. These false walls as well as the center bulkheads rise well toward the ceiling, and with the false floor form two large bins, around which the air continually circulates.

Line Bins With Paper.

The bins should be lined with paper—the same as the car walls, ceiling and floor. The longitudinally-arranged floor supports permit the cool air to settle below the false floor and to move toward the base of the stove, whence it rises as it is heated and moves out toward the ends of the car, between the top of the load and the ceiling.

In loading, care should be taken not to allow sacks to hang over the upper edge of the end partitions, as that will cut off the circulation. The bags next to the outside walls and near the floor should be set a few inches from the outer walls, thereby lessening the chance of their being frost bitten if the car cools.

CORN SILAGE IS EXCELLENT

Cheapest Form of Carbohydrates, One of Two Great Food Elements Needed by Stock.

Corn silage is our cheapest form of carbohydrates, one of the two great food elements most needed by stock, and clovers and alfalfa, or the legumes, furnish protein, the other element, in the cheapest form.

PROFIT PERIOD OF POULTRY

Period of Heavier Breeds Outlive Usefulness When They Pass Second Laying Year.

Flocks of the heavier breeds cease to produce a profitable number of eggs in the first or second laying year. The birds are then with the lighter breeds, which lay for a longer period.

Plymouth was the first permanent white settlement in New England and dates its founding from the landing of the Pilgrims, December 21, 1620. The first white on the banks of the Saguenay river, established in 1668, were the first iron workers in America. A small iron pot cast there in the first forge in America is now the property of the city of Lynn and is in a glass case in the Lynn public library.

Well-Preserved Water Pipes.

Wooden water pipes that were used from the time of the Revolution until the fire of 1872 to carry water into Boston have lately been unearthed and are found to be in a good state of preservation. A coin of the date 1803 in an almost perfect condition was found near one of the pipes, establishing, it would seem, the date at which the pipe was laid.

Surely a Great Man.

Henry had just started to school and was filled with the patriotic spirit of the times, as well as kindergarten wisdom. "Was Francis Scott Key a great man?" he asked one day of the folks at home. "I think he was, why?" "Cause I think a fellow that writes a song what everyone has to stand up to, must be a great man."

London's Rapid Growth.

Paris was the largest city in the world for several hundred years until about the end of the seventeenth century, when London overtook it. The population in Paris in 1680 was 500,000, while London had reached 530,000, the latter figure showing the rapid growth of trade and commerce during the Tudor period.

By means of a magnetic lever rotating a delicately poised astatic needle that actuates a small mirror, the cyclograph can give a magnification of 1 to 1,000,000,000. Its inventor, Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, has used it to show the actual "crescent" process of plants. Like the movement of a glacier, the growth of a plant is an actual process, difficult, maybe, to measure, but measurable nevertheless, and there is no reason why Sir Jagadis' invention should not be turned to very important uses. He showed on the screen that the use of alcohol had a curiously erratic effect in the growth of the plant and by so much was out of all harmony with the plant's "natural" that is, normal and harmonious, processes. How far the inventor has pushed his investigations is not told. At all events, by his logical research he has thrown a curious light on those Indian jugglers that were believed to make a flower grow before the eyes of the spectator.

Honor May Go to Africa.

Ancient Egypt, sharing with ancient Babylonia and Crete the distinction in the world's thought of being, one or the other of them, the first seat of a flourishing civilization, may yet yield the distinction to some spot in Africa, perhaps the city of Benin, or perhaps some ruin yet undiscovered. Benin, whose great stone buildings surprised Portuguese explorers in 1482, has of late years given archaeologists a vivid interest in this part of British West Africa. Objects found there show a method of casting bronze that was practiced by the early Egyptians, and evidence accumulates that the civilization of Benin may have fore-run Egypt or Babylon, to say nothing of Crete.

Pricking a Pimple Fatal.

A man died recently from the effects of pricking a pimple with his scarf pin. Blood poisoning set in. He might have avoided all danger if he had held the point of the pin for a few seconds in a gas flame.

DIVE WITH WOUNDED WHALE

Japanese "Ride" Their Quarry if It Sinks After the Harpoon Has Done Its Work.

Japanese whalers are skilled and daring in their profession, often encountering a great many dangers. Many give up their lives to accomplish the main thing at issue—the capture of the whale. The expert of the whaling crew must prove his mettle after the whale has become exhausted from being harpooned.

The skilled Japanese jumps on the whale's back, cutting two gashes in the head. Often the animal makes a deep dive, but the little Japanese must hold fast to his quarry and dive also, trusting to his fate that the air supply in his lungs will last as long as the whale's.

The Japanese is safer from being drowned than from being crushed by the infuriated animal's tail. If the hunter lets go it usually means death, so he hangs on to the diving quarry. Frequently these whalers lose their lives from drowning, but the members of their crew look upon this misfortune with something of a fatalistic regard.

When the animal is finally caught and towed to shore the Japanese make huge excavations, penetrating inside the animal's body as though entering a mine shaft or gallery, and eventually making their exit covered with blood. This gruesome sight is looked upon as a matter of course among Japanese whalers.

Russia's Small Museums.

The study of natural history is encouraged in some Russian cities by means of miniature museums. They are nothing more than large glass showcases, located in public squares, vacant storerooms and other places where people in large numbers congregate or pass. These are filled with specimens taken from the larger exhibition places. Pedestrians with a few moments to spare find it profitable to loiter in front of the convenient displays to study the stuffed birds and animals under the glass. The contents of the cases are changed weekly, thus providing new and interesting exhibits at frequent intervals. Lectures are given at the small museums at noon hours and on holidays.

Ancient Egyptian Confectionery.

The invention of confectionery, an English writer guesses, is due to Noah, who "first hit on the idea of boiling down the starch of the wheat and the juice of the grape. The result was a paste, said to be the original of our present day 'Turkish delight.' Among the ancient Egyptians whole fruits, particularly figs and dates, were used for flavoring purposes, the latter especially for preserves and cakes. In old tombs date sweetmeats have been found, also records of honey jellies. The making of confectionery, in fact, goes back 3,400 years, proof of which is to be found on the walls of Egyptian tombs."

Prepared for the Worst.

Snap Judgment

By S. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When John Leonard took the place of the old cashier at the bank the girls frankly criticized him, after the manner of their kind. They decided he was too "quiet" to be any fun, and Cynthia Merrill, who knew through a friend of her cousin's aunt that he came from Burtonville, put it down to the fact that he was from the country.

When they quizzed him he told them that there were as many as 300 people in his home town—when they were all at home that is. He, for instance, now made the census one less. All of which the girls took with a grain of salt. However, he was grave, he was taciturn and he was "no dresser."

Cynthia Merrill was his feminine opposite. Chubbiness and daintiness summed up her clothes, summer and winter. Leonard feasted his eyes on her daily through the grill of his inclosure as she sat at the typewriter in the adjacent room. He was by no means sure she would be at all desirable. "These independent business girls," he said to himself as he sat late one night, chasing an elusive dime which kept his books from balancing, "are all right for a man whose income is steadily increasing. They take it as a matter of course that the whole of a man's salary is theirs to spend upon their backs, but for me, who will never amass a fortune—nothing doing."

As for Cynthia, she would have been amazed at any one so insignificant as John Leonard daring to think of her in terms of a future partner, much less refusing her! Cynthia had plans in her pretty head—several of them. For one thing, some day she wanted to travel. She didn't care how, she laughingly told the girls, "not if I have to ride the bumpers!"

As summer days approached the buzz of conversation busied itself with the annual outing "down the river," at which the directors of the bank and the members of the office force mingled on terms of easy sociability.

There would be a baseball game, the men against the girls, a three-legged race and other sports. The clam-bake at noon would be supplemented by a picnic lunch at supper, for which the girls provided the "eats."

On the appointed day seven automobiles carried the merry crowd to its destination. Cynthia, trimly shod and alluring in a sport skirt of soft silk, her dainty blouse open at the neck (for a good "burn"), wearing what appeared to Leonard's masculine eyes as an imported Paris outing hat, was easily the most popular of the girls. Leonard, sitting on the bench, his knees hunched under his chin, watched her exchanging airy persiflage with young Greaves, the president's son.

After the huge clam-bake there were naps of the sand and strolls over the rocks. Then came a swim in the water and it was time to draw partners for supper. The custom of the outings had always been to draw lots the men partaking of the company and basket lunch of the girls they won.

And Cynthia fell to Leonard! Unseen by him she made a little face for the benefit of the other girls. Yet she really wasn't quite as sorry as she pretended. In some way this silent man interested her.

Sitting apart, their backs against a great boulder on the sand, Cynthia opened her basket. Wrapped in folds of spotless napkins was a lunch such as to gladden the heart of any man, delicious sandwiches, a little jar of pickles, sections of flaky pie, and a rich melt-in-your-mouth chocolate cake.

Not much conversation at first passed between them. Cynthia was busy observing slyly that Leonard's eyes were really fine, widely set and sincere. If only he were more—well, sophisticated!

"This is wonderful cake, Miss Merrill," he complimented, wondering as he did so where such stuff could be bought nowadays or if she had a mother who baked it for her.

"I'm glad you like it," murmured Cynthia. "Here—have another piece." "If I could have had a piece of this cake when I was held up without food once in Alaska!"

He didn't have a chance to finish. "Alaska!" exclaimed Cynthia. "Have you been in Alaska?"

"Why, yes," said Leonard, and added carelessly, "I ran up there on my way back from Hawaii."

Cynthia looked at him in amazement. This country fellow from Burtonville! "I guess you have traveled," she said. "Well, I guess I have, some," he returned modestly. "I had an uncle who was captain of a New Bedford whaler. He took me with him a number of times and I sort of got the fever."

"You've never been around the Horn?" asked Cynthia hopefully.

"All of three times," he laughed. "Around the Horn three times! Nothing could impress the girl more. That was enough. Unconsciously she sighed. "You don't mean to say a girl like you is interested in that sort of thing?" he said in surprise.

"Well, rather," she said emphatically. Then, shifting the subject from herself to him: "But tell me, what are you doing cooped up in a little cage at the bank?"

"Well, I got word that my only relative, an aunt, had died in Burtonville, where I was born and there was some little difficulty in settling up the estate. I was the only heir, and when it is finally fixed up, I shall have—well, enough to let me wander about the world a bit more before I die. Until then—well, I had to do something or starve. Therefore, my cage, as you call it," he said and smiled.

Cynthia looked very soft and young sitting with her feet folded up under her, her eyes fixed on him dreamily.

"Do you know," said he impulsively, "I don't know that I shall ever marry, but when I find a girl who likes the place I've picked out for a honeymoon, a little clearing on the Peace river in Canada, where the stillness of the wilderness is only broken by the sound of the rapids above—well, maybe I will then. I suppose that most girls would much rather go where they could show off their trousseaus," he added lightly.

"She'll be a lucky girl," said Cynthia briskly. "But come, Mr. Leonard have this last piece of cake. It is the favorite cake I make."

"Did you make that cake?" he asked.

"Why certainly," she smiled. "I made the cake—and the sandwiches and the pickles and the pie and, yes, I made my clothes and hat."

"Well, I'll be jiggered!" Leonard ejaculated, "and I humbly beg your pardon."

"And I yours," laughed Cynthia, but neither asked the other for what.

A year later Leonard sat in the shadow of a little tent. Breaking the stillness of early dusk came the distant roar of rapids. From the fire nearby rose the enticing smell of bacon crisply fried, of cornbread delicately browned and of aromatic coffee. "Girl," he said, apparently apropos of nothing, to his tanned companion in flannel blouse and corduroy knickers untangling a fish line beside him, "snap judgments aren't worth much."

"Emphatically not!" said Cynthia.

SWALLOWED UP BY THE CITY

"Little Britain," Once Known as Heart's Core of London, Has Undergone Great Change.

"In the center of the great city of London lies a small neighborhood, consisting of a cluster of narrow streets and courts, of very venerable and dilapidated houses, which goes by the name of Little Britain. Christ church school and St. Bartholomew's hospital bound it on the west, Smith-field and Long lane on the north, Aldersgate street, like an arm of the sea, divides it from the eastern part of the city," says Washington Irving in his "Skeetch Book." "Little Britain may be truly called the heart's core of the city," observes a writer in the London Times.

Long ago the district began to change. The Misses Lamb, whose early objections to the lack of fashion in Little Britain are described by Irving, used to invite "genteel company" from Theobald's road, Red Lion square, Gray's Inn lane and Hatton garden. Christ church school has gone, and so have the "dilapidated houses." They have given place to offices and showrooms, such as that which are now for sale, "producing £570 gross per annum, held for thirty-five years at £210." A single building now brings in as much as a whole street formerly yielded, and Little Britain, hemmed in by the extension of the post office, enjoys the reputation of being a very valuable area for commercial purposes. Irving's description of Little Britain clearly includes references to Cloth Fair. Little Britain, according to Stow, was so called because the earls of Britanny formerly lived there. It was at one time the chief city market for second-hand books.

Obvious Occupation.

"Have you been following up clues?" inquired the man who reads detective stories.

"Clues!" rejoined the regular detective. "A live man has all he can do to take notice of what's going on under his nose, without workin' with a microscope."

Tax Blanks Being Sent Out

Thousands of income tax return blanks for net incomes of not more than $5,000 were sent out last Friday by the Collector of Internal Revenue at the Custom House. This form of income tax blank, officially known as Form 1040-A, is the one which most interests the average man and woman in this area and their delay in reaching the office of Mr. Miles has simply delayed the return of these blanks for at least two weeks, and the time has been extended for the length of office of the Internal Revenue Collector not a day later than March 15th.

When you see Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in this paper you most always find the recommender a Princess Anne resident. It's the same everywhere—in 8,800 towns in the U. S. fifty thousand people publicly thank Doan's. What other kidney remedy can give this proof of merit, honesty and truth? Home testimony must be true or it could not be published here. Read this Princess Anne recommendation. Then insist on having Doan's. You will know what you are getting:

Mrs. H. B. Wherrett, Extension Antioch Ave., says: "I had been troubled nearly all my life with kidney complaint and had severe backaches at times. If I did anything that caused me to stoop over, I suffered very much with severe pains through the small of my back, especially when I straightened up. At times I could see black specks and fiery flashes in front of me. During the last attack, I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I have had no further trouble. I cannot recommend this medicine too highly."

Urges Change in Oyster Law

Changes in the oyster laws to permit expansion of the industry are advocated in the annual report of the State Conservation Commission. The oyster beds need replenishing, it is stated, but the expense should be borne by the industry. Amendments to present legislation advocated are as follows:

Fixing a State-wide date for opening the tonging season on September 20, or even October 1.

Making the Oyster Cull law applicable to oysters found anywhere within the State.

Applying inspection tax to all oysters about to be shipped out of the State, and also to those purchased for use as seed oysters on leased areas.

Providing minimum sizes of fish to prevent destruction of undersized specimens.

Periodic Bilious Attacks

Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks will observe that their appetite fails them just before an attack. That is, they do not really crave food but eat because it is meal time. If they will eat only a light meal and no meat, then take two of Chamberlain's Tablets the attack may be avoided.

An Ideal Stationary Gas Engine

WHAT would you give for a "horse" that never ate, never had to be curried, watered or bedded, and never required the services of a veterinarian?

You would gladly give $345 for such a "horse," especially if it embodied a practical, self-propelled gas engine of the finest type for stationary work.

Every farmer, truck raiser, fruit grower, florist, gardener, golf club, or estate owner in America actually needs the Midwest Utilitor. It is the logical and practical substitute for animal power.

An absolutely dependable and satisfactory substitute for one horse, minus the waste and worry of keeping a horse, with the self-propelled gas engine thrown in —that, in a sentence, is the Midwest Utilitor.

No utility in recent years, to our knowledge, has created such a profound impression—wherever its usefulness is demonstrated people accept it.

TWO PRISONERS BREAK JAIL

Red Wilson and James Jones Escaped From The "Gray Eagle"

Last Wednesday night two prisoners escaped from the county jail, both colored. They were Ned Wilson, of Pocomoke City, charged with stealing turkeys, and James Jones, of Crisfield, charged with the theft of a watch.

The alarm was given about 11 o'clock. The alarm was given by a third man—James Bailey—who also attempted to escape. The men are supposed to have heated one or more iron rods in a stove in the room and with the rods in a red hot condition to have burned away part of the window facing. This made a hole between the side wall and the iron grating in the window about eight inches wide, through which the two men crawled, feet first, dropping to the ground below.

When Bailey attempted to escape he got his feet through the hole but then he became fastened and could neither get his body through the hole or get back in the room. His suffering became so intense that he cried for help, which aroused Jailor Lewis Dryden, who was sitting in the dining room on the first floor. Mr. Dryden went to the man's assistance and then discovered what had happened. A carpenter had to be sent for to cut away more of the woodwork before Bailey could be released.

The large room where the prisoners were confined has an inner iron cage. The men are allowed to be out in the larger room during the day, but are locked up in the cage at night. Mr. Dryden stated that he had not put the men in the cage after supper, but was about to lock them in for the night when he heard Bailey's cry for help. The men who escaped have not yet been apprehended. This is the second jail delivery within the past six months.

Public School Notes

Professor Thomas L. Gibson, State Supervisor of Public School Music, spent last Wednesday and Thursday visiting the schools of Somerset county. Mr. Gibson expected also to address the teachers at their county meeting which was to have been held last Friday, but which was postponed on account of the death of Dr. H. G. Alexander, of the Somerset Board of Education. Dr. M. Bates Stephens, State Superintendent, was also expected to be present, but was notified of the postponement. The meeting will probably be held sometime in April.

Professor Gibson was much pleased with his visits to the schools of Princess Anne and Crisfield and he states that the outlook for better attention to the musical course is very encouraging. At the April meeting the subject will be further discussed and every effort will be made to secure from the teachers more interest in this important class of school work.

At a session of the Board of Education last Monday a scholarship to the Maryland Institute of Art and Design was granted to Mr. Paul May, of Baltimore, subject to the approval of State Senator Robins. The scholarship had been advertised, but there were no applicants from the county.

Farmers Institutes This Week

The Annual Farmers' Institutes will be held Thursday and Friday, Feb. 19th and 20th.

The meeting will be held Thursday at Princess Anne, in the Court House, and Friday at Marion, in the hall. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held at each place. Morning session will begin promptly at 10 a. m. and the afternoon session will be called at 1 p. m. An interesting program has been prepared which should appeal to the farmers of this county.

Prominent speakers from the United States Department of Agriculture and Extension Service of the Maryland State College will discuss the following topics: Hog Growing, Better Size Campaign, Poultry, Farm Crops, Legumes, Potato Growing and Control of Insects of Strawberries.

The discussion on the Control of Insects of Strawberries will be of special interest to the farmers of this county, as a considerable saving of money was made by strawberry growers who dusted their strawberries in the spring for the weevil, which has been causing a loss to the growers the last few years.

In addition to the Farmers' Institutes, meetings on home economics and canning will be held for the housewives in the library in the Court House at the same time as the Farmers' Institutes.

Last Thursday, February 12th, was the 111th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, and has come to be known as Lincoln Day. A number of meetings observed the day with appropriate exercises in Baltimore.

DR. HARVEY ALEXANDER DEAD

A Prominent Democrat and Member Of The Board of Education

Dr. Harvey G. Alexander died at his home on Deal's Island last Wednesday night, of pneumonia, after an illness of about one week.

Dr. Alexander was born at Tarwell, Tarwell County, Virginia, May 10th, 1869. He was a graduate of Withville Military Academy at Atlanta, Georgia, and of the Medical School of the University of Maryland. He was appointed a member of the Board of Education of Somerset County by Governor Harrington in June, 1919, to succeed Dr. Alfred P. Dennis, in which capacity he was serving at the time of his death. He was connected with the work of the local board as Government Appeal Agent during the early part of the war in 1917.

Dr. Alexander was a Democrat in politics and was very active in the political and civic life of the county. He was a staunch supporter of former Governor Harrington, and was the leader of the Harrington forces on the Island in the memorable primary fight of 1918 between Governor Harrington and Senator Blair Lee, at which time Harrington carried Deal's Island district by about 200 majority.

Before coming to Somerset county, Dr. Alexander was engaged in the practice of medicine at Romney, W. Va., and at Holland's Island, Dorchester county, Md. He moved to Deal's Island to engage in practice 21 years ago, succeeding the late Dr. Monmonier Rowe, who had prior to that time been the practicing physician on the Island for a number of years. Dr. Alexander enjoyed a large and lucrative practice on the Island and his death leaves the people there in a stricken condition, as the citizens at that place are now without a physician.

He is survived by his wife, Nancy H. Alexander, three sons (Messrs. James Sheets, John David and George Alexander), and four daughters (Misses Myra, Margaret, Lucille and Nancy Alexander).

Death Of Miss Nellie Phillips

Miss Nellie Frances Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Phillips, formerly of Princess Anne, but now of Chester, Pa., died at the home of Mrs. S. E. Wheeler, in Baltimore, Sunday evening, February 8th.

Miss Phillips was 24 years old and had not been in the best of health for the past three years. On Wednesday, February 4th, her condition became serious and on Saturday pneumonia developed and she sank rapidly until the end came. Miss Phillips was born in Princess Anne and attended Washington High School and Beacom Business College, Salisbury. She finished her education in Baltimore where she has resided for the past seven years. At the time of her death she was private secretary of the Fidelity Finance Corporation in that city.

Besides her parents she is survived by three sisters (Misses Ada Adella, Margaret Elizabeth and Anna Hitch Phillips, of Chester, Pa.), and three brothers (Messrs. Wm. Roger Phillips, James Weldon Phillips, of Chester, Pa., and Clarence Wilson Phillips, of Princess Anne).

Her remains were brought to Princess Anne last Tuesday and taken to the residence of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Long. Funeral services were held in St. Andrew's Church last Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. O. H. Murphy. The interment was in Manokin Presbyterian Church cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Mark L. Costen, Harold A. McAllen, Roy P. Stagg, Jessie M. Pollett and Clarence Wilson and Wm. Roger Phillips, her two brothers.

Another Soil-Testing Day

County Agent C. Z. Koller has arranged with the Soil Department of the Maryland Experiment Station to hold an additional soil-testing day, Monday, February 23rd. A number of farmers took advantage of the first soil-testing day, February 2nd, nearly one hundred soil samples being sent to the Experiment Station for a time requirement test.

The unfavorable weather during the week of the 2nd probably prevented a large number of farmers from taking soil samples. Soil samples will be received during the week and sent to the Experiment Station.

If your soil needs lime you should know it and supply the need. If, on the other hand, you have been using lime and have already satisfied the lime requirement, you should know it, and invest your money in fertilizers rather than in additional lime. It will be not only money in your pocket, but also a source of satisfaction to have this information about your soil before time for spring planting.

Rev. Dr. Wyatt Dies Suddenly

Rev. Clinton T. Wyatt, D. D., pastor of Denton M. E. Church for four years past, died suddenly at the parsonage there Saturday evening, February 7th, shortly before 9 o'clock, and it was thought that heart trouble was the immediate cause of his demise. He had the day before reached his home after spending some time in the Methodist Hospital, at Philadelphia, where he had been receiving treatment for liver trouble.

Dr. Wyatt was born in Caroline county, and was 66 years old. He joined the Wilmington Conference in 1886 and served pastoral charges as follows: Chincoteague, Va., 1886; Westover, Md., 1887; Berlin, Md., 1888-9; Roxana, 1890-3; Deal's Island, 1893-5; Asbury Church, Crisfield, 1899-1901; Middletown, 1905-4; Harrison Street Church, Wilmington, 1902-10; Cambridge, 1911-12; Middletown, 1913-15; Denton, 1916-20. He had received a pastoral invitation from Easton, Md., and expected to go there next month.

He is survived by Mrs. Wyatt, who before her marriage was Miss Elmira P. Atkins, of Berlin, Md. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Nettie W. Thomas, of Denton, Md.

Funeral services were held last Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Dr. W. A. Wise, district superintendent, in charge. At the home prayers were offered by Revs. W. E. Gunby, of Cambridge, and W. L. White, of Easton. Service at the church followed and was conducted by Rev. W. B. Guthrie, of Denton. Interment was in Greensboro Cemetery.

Name 100 Women Delegates

Nearly 100 women were included in the list of about 800 delegates chosen Monday night of last week from 28 assembly districts of Brooklyn borough, New York, to attend the Republican State Convention there February 19th and 20th. The convention will name four delegates at large to the Republican National Convention. It was reported that the women, who are the first to represent Brooklyn districts in the convention, will support one of their sex as one of the delegates at large to the National Convention.

Liberty Bonds Below 90

For the first time, Liberty bonds went under 90 last week. This was confined to the second loan 4s and 4 1/2s. The fall was caused by large offerings, mainly from corporations that subscribed for bonds for patriotic reasons and now wish to turn them into working capital.

This government must not be deterred from driving out enemy airmen.

MARYLAND FARMS IN DEMAND

Settlers From All Sections Attracted By Good Roads

During 1919 one farm agency with headquarters in New York sold 225 Maryland farms. The agency sold a total of 3,668 farms in the country, valued at $17,986,400.

The record of sales of Maryland lands by one concern, while only a small showing, reveals the fact that Maryland farms are in great demand by residents of other states. If the record of sales could be collected the number would probably mount into thousands. To good roads is attributed the demand which will grow in proportion with the extension of the system. To meet the increasing demand large tracts must be divided into smaller areas. This is notably true of Southern Maryland, which is awaiting greater development. Its proximity to markets makes it the most attractive section of Maryland, a land of large opportunities.

Farmers from 31 states, as well as from Cuba and Canada, were represented among the purchasers of the 225 farms sold by the New York agency in Maryland. At the same time it shows that only 37 residents of Maryland were among the purchasers of the 3,448 farms sold by the agency in other states during the same period.

The largest number of farm families brought to Maryland from any single state came from Pennsylvania. The Keystone State's contribution of 38 families was followed in order by Virginia, which sent 17; West Virginia, with 16; New York, 13; Illinois, 12; Michigan, 11, and Ohio, 10.

Eight farmers brought their families down from Canada to take advantage of the warmer climate, longer growing season and generally more favorable conditions in Maryland. Seven others came all the way across the continent from Washington State, while seven made the shorter journey from New Jersey. Five families came from Missouri; three each from Indiana, Kentucky and North Carolina, and two each from Arkansas, Colorado, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Montana and Alabama.

One farmer came to Maryland from Cuba, another from Maine and there were others from Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and from Tennessee and Wisconsin.

Of the 37 Maryland farmers who brought through the agency into other states during the year, nine went to Pennsylvania, eight each to New York and New Jersey, three to Delaware, two each to Vermont and New Hampshire, and one each to Florida, Maine, Michigan, Ohio and Virginia.

Tired of Somerset

An interesting but amusing report recently circulated is to the effect that a number of residents of Eden, Somerset county, have grown tired of what they term the "negligent Republican rule" of their county and have employed counsel to devise ways and means of seceding from Somerset and becoming a part of Wicomico county.

As the story goes, these citizens do not believe that they are being accorded the proper treatment in governmental matters by their County Commissioners and other local authorities. Having grown tired of being ignored in matters of good roads and improved conditions, they have organized to shake themselves of the dust of Somerset and, having reached this conclusion, they very naturally determined to join Wicomico.

Sad to say, however, it is further reported that their attorney advised them it would require lengthy, tedious and expensive litigation to emancipate themselves from their paternal land and consequently the would-be "rebels" are bemoaning their fate, condemning their county officials and casting longing glances at their adjoining county.—The Wicomico Courier.

Revenue Officers Sent Out

Revenue officers are being sent out by the Internal Revenue office, Baltimore, to assist taxpayers in making up income tax returns. This force is being put into the field especially in the interest of persons who need assistance in filing individual returns, but will also render assistance to any other taxpayer.

The schedule showing places to be visited and the dates follow: Princess Anne, February 16th, to Feb. 21st; Crisfield, Feb. 25th and March 3d to 8th; Salisbury, Feb. 16th to February 24th and March 1st to March 15th; Snow Hill, Feb. 18th to Feb. 21st, and Pocomoke City Feb. 18th and Feb. 23d to Feb. 28th.

Maryland's lawmakers believe in taking their own time about it.

CITIZENS VOTE DOWN BOND ISSUE

Tax-Payers Prefer To Get Money For School Purposes By Levy

A meeting was held in the Court House, Princess Anne, last Tuesday afternoon to determine upon the question of bonding the county for school purposes. About 800 taxpayers of the county attended the meeting. There was also present the Board of Education, Superintendent W. H. Dashiell and the Board of County Commissioners.

Among those who made short addresses at the meeting were: Messrs. C. C. Gelder, Charles H. Speights, Vance Miles, Gordon Tull, E. B. Lankford, E. Herrman Cohn, Egbert L. Quinn, C. H. Hayman and Frank Miles. It was entirely clear from this meeting that the taxpayers of Somerset county are opposed to bonding the county for any amount. The Board of Education had proposed a bond issue for school purposes of $100,000 and as a result of a motion adopted at the meeting held here to consider the matter two weeks ago, an architect had been engaged to give an estimate of the cost of the proposed buildings. The architect submitted his estimate at the meeting showing that the buildings proposed to be erected would cost $100,000.

There was a resolution submitted by the Board of Trade of Crisfield in favor of a bond issue of $200,000. This resolution was voted down overwhelmingly, only the Crisfield delegation being in favor of its adoption. There was likewise voted down a resolution for a bond issue of $100,000.

The following resolution was offered by Judge Robert F. Duer and was adopted:

"First—That it is the sense of this meeting that no building operations shall be undertaken except such as are absolutely necessary to take care of the school situation.

"Second—That a committee of five be appointed, two by the County Board of Education, two by the County Commissioners, and the four so chosen shall choose the fifth member, who shall advise with the said Board of County Commissioners and said Board of Education, and make a survey of the needed improvements for school buildings in the county. And said committee, after said survey, shall recommend to the County Commissioners the amount necessary to be levied and the purpose for which any amount so recommended is to be levied in order to furnish adequate school facilities for the schools of the county and shall further recommend to the County Commissioners whether said amount so to be raised shall be levied during the coming year or divided and extended over a period of the next several years."

Mr. George H. Myers offered a similar resolution to the meeting, except that Mr. Myers proposed that of the amount found to be necessary the sum of $50,000 should be raised by a small bond issue. He argued that the expenses of the county were already so great, with every prospect of having to levy a larger amount this year than ever before, that he thought it would be wise to take care of a part of the amount to be expended on school buildings, especially the brick building in Princess Anne, by a bond issue. This resolution was also opposed and was voted down.

It was clearly the consensus of opinion of the meeting that no building operations should be commenced now except such as are absolutely necessary. Everybody agreed that every essential facility for carrying on the schools should be provided but that the amount of money to be so expended should be provided for by the County Commissioners.

Ocean City Glad To Get New Inlet

The inlet, four miles south of Ocean City, which was cut through the beach by the recent storm, remains open and is cutting deeper and wider. The people of the community are hopeful of its remaining open by which they will realize the benefits for which they have spent so much money and labor for 40 years, during which time there has been a half dozen inlets dug by the people near the shores of Sinepuxent Bay.

In the attempt to open an inlet ten years ago, a dam was built across the Bay and a half-mile south of Ocean City, and a sand blower worked for months in an effort to cut through the beach. This project cost the community thousands of dollars, and the inlet closed two days after it was opened.

State and Federal authorities have long been interested in cutting an inlet across the narrow sand beach separating the Atlantic Ocean and the Sinepuxent Bay—the mouth of which is closed—so that salt water would enter the bay and promote the growth of oysters. The project figured for years in Congress.

MORE PAY FOR STATE OFFICIALS

Warden Of House Of Correction Is Raised To $6,200

Governor Ritchie's budget, while cutting down the tax rate and holding the expenses within bounds, so that no additional indirect taxes will be necessary to meet the appropriations proposed by him, raises the salaries of many of the State officials and gives increases to subordinate officials and clerks. He apparently went as far as he could in giving those in public employ more money to meet the higher costs of living.

One of the increases occasioned general surprise when it was discovered that the salary of the warden of the House of Correction is to be raised from $3,000 to $6,200. The warden at this time is William E. Lankford.

It has been the gossip that the Governor was not friendly to Mr. Lankford, and that it was likely the latter would walk the plank before very long, although he is a political lieutenant of Senator Smith. Before the Board of Prison Control was created, and when the House of Correction was governed by a board of directors, the Governor, then Attorney-General and ex-officio a member of the board, refused to vote for Lankford.

The budget statement as to the warden is a little queer. It states that his salary allowance in 1919 and 1920 was $3,000 a year, but that in 1919, there was expended $5,200. The amount stated to have been asked for the next two fiscal years was $6,200 annually, which is what was granted.

Warden John F. Leonard, of the penitentiary, was allowed an increase from $4,000 to $5,000. The chairman of the State Board of Prison Control was increased from $3,000 to $3,600. The salaries of the other members of the commission was left at $3,000. The salary of the secretary to the Board, Robert Case, was raised from $2,250 to $3,000.

Among other increases were the superintendent of the State Board of Education, M. Bates Stephens, from $3,000 to $4,000; principal of the Frostburg Normal School, from $2,000 to $2,500; chief inspector of the tobacco warehouse, William J. Frere, from $3,600 to $4,000; bank commissioner, George W. Page, from $3,000 to $3,600; automobile commissioner, E. Austin Baughman, from $3,000 to $4,000; secretary of Advisory Board of Parole, Harry Hartman, from $1,500 to $1,800; chief clerk of the Tax Commission, John F. O'Malley, from $2,400 to $2,750; secretary of Industrial Accident Commission, W. B. Wachter, from $2,500 to $3,000, and chief clerk of the Conservation Commission, from $1,575 to $1,800; chief of the Board of Labor and Statistics, Chas. J. Fox, from $2,500 to $3,000; executive of the Department of Legislative Reference, Horace E. Flack, from $1,000 to $1,200 in 1921 and $1,800 in 1922; secretary of the Board of State Aid and Charities, William J. Ogden, from $2,200 to $2,500; Dr. John S. Fulton, health officer and secretary to the State Board of Health, from $3,750 to $4,000; State insurance commissioner, Thomas J. Keating, from $2,500 to $3,600, and deputy state insurance commissioner, Wilson L. Couden, from $2,250 to $3,000.

The Governor also made several increases in the salaries of men connected with the executive departments. The salary of the secretary of the Board of Public Works was raised from $500 to $1,500. Philip B. Perlman, Secretary of State, fills that place. With his salary of $2,000 as Secretary of State Mr. Perlman will have a total salary of $3,500. Harry J. Hopkins and John Z. Bayless, chief clerks, respectively, in the offices of the Comptroller and State Treasurer, were raised from $2,400 to $3,000. Carl Hardy, chief clerk in the Governor's office, was raised from $2,400 to $3,600, and W. Oscar Anderson, Jr., secretary to the Governor, was given $3,000 in place of the salary of $2,400 hitherto paid.

Dennis Leaves $100,000 To Family

The will of former State Senator L. Edward P. Dennis, of Crisfield, has been filed in the Orphans' Court of Somerset county and letters testamentary have been issued to his widow, Rebecca S. Dennis, and son, E. Benson Dennis, as executors. The will disposes of an estate estimated at $100,000.

Sensor Dennis left his home at Crisfield to his widow for life, then to his children. He also left his widow the income for life from two notes each for $6,000. The widow also is made legatee. To each of his children, E. Benson Dennis, Margaret D. Sterling and Ellen G. Wooster, he left $5,000 absolutely. In addition, the testator set aside a trust fund for each of the three children of $5,000.

THE MATCHMAKER

BY ADELAIDE R. KEMP.

(© 1933, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Margaret leaned forward in the seat of the buggy. "Come, Ned," she said in a pleading voice. "Do go ahead, there's a dear. Don't you know you are making an exhibition of yourself?"

This last followed by a clucking sound and two slaps from the driver's reins. But Ned had succumbed to stubbornness and proved obstinate to even her pleasant voice. Margaret sighed.

"Why didn't I listen to Aunt Mary and take Dick when I knew perfectly well what might happen with Ned? Now I am probably doomed to stay here for several hours." It was at this moment that she was startled by the voice of a young man who had come along the road unnoticed.

"Can I be of any assistance?" he asked.

"I don't know," said Margaret frankly. "Do you know anything about bumpy horses?"

Before he could answer there was a sudden move on the part of the stubborn one.

But to Margaret's admiration the rescuer carried the war into the enemy's country. With a quick jerk he forced that obstinate animal to philosophically accept defeat and amble along.

Margaret was delighted and thanked her knight errant warmly.

"I don't dare stop," she said, "but if you are going my way perhaps you could jump in and ride too."

He quickly accepted the invitation and they were soon chatting like old friends. In the interchange of confidences Margaret learned that his name was Robert Mason, that he had just returned from overseas hospital, and was here in the little town of his father's boyhood for a month to recuperate.

"This is my aunt's," said Margaret as they stopped before a fine old-fashioned house sheltered from the ocean breezes by a row of tall pine trees. "If you ever want to win Aunt Mary's favor," she continued, "just mention those trees."

"Thank you for the valuable tip," answered Robert, laughing, as he stepped down from the buggy. He mustered all his courage. "Do you think your aunt knew my father enough when he was a boy to warrant my calling and talking about him?"

They were close to the porch now, and a stately white-haired lady was in the doorway.

"Aunt Mary," called Margaret, "here is a young man who says he would like to meet you for old-time's sake."

Robert stood hat in hand, on the lower step, as Margaret's aunt came nearer and looked at him intently.

"Come closer, young man," she said. "You look like a boy I once knew. What is your name?"

"Robert Mason," answered the young fellow, flushing.

"That's it. You are James Mason's son. You are very like him. We have heard some wonderful things about his success. Is he well?"

"Yes, thank you," answered Robert. "He wished me to spend a vacation at his boyhood's home. He said Southport was famed for its beauties of all kinds." He was quite astonished at his temerity, but Margaret only laughed softly.

The days passed very pleasantly after this. Robert was a welcome visitor at the old house with its beautiful row of trees. Many dainty letters passed between father and son, and at last, after one happy evening on the old porch Robert wrote of his great happiness. Margaret had promised to become his wife.

"You'll be sure to like her, Dad. She is a real country girl. She lives with her aunt, Mrs. Mary Winslow, in such a quaint old house. Her name is Margaret Dunton."

By return mail came an answer to Robert's letter.

Robert could almost hear his father's chuckle between the lines.

"Your little country girl is an aristocrat on the very top social shelf, the niece of the very finest family in Southport."

"I don't care," said Robert to himself, hurrying on toward the house in the pines. "She's the dearest in the world. I can never be grateful enough to old Ned for his obstinate introduction."

Historical Tree Felled by Wind.

A huge and venerable tree closely connected with two wars, although in quite different ways, was blown down by the wind, recently.

It stood near the main entrance of Walter Reed hospital, was a landmark at the big government institution and a favorite with the thousands of crippled men. On its trunk was a sign stating that during the time of Jubal Early's determined and almost successful attack on the national capital Confederate sharpshooters used its heavily leaved branches as a base of operations.—Washington Star.

First Worsted Stockings in England. It was during Elizabeth's reign that Sir Thomas Gresham introduced the manufacture of fine and ribbons. Knitted worsted stockings, too, were first made about the year 1555, by a London merchant named William Eyder, who having seen some that came from Italy, imitated a pair exactly, and presented them to William, earl of Pembroke.

WAR CRIMINALS TO FACE GERMAN COURTS

Accepting List of Accused May Be Interpreted as Admitting Guilt.

Paris.—Article 228 of the treaty of Versailles will never be enforced as it stands. Field Marshal von Hindenburg will not be tried by an allied military tribunal. General Ludendorff will not be haled before a court in Paris. Admiral von Tirpitz will not be imprisoned in the Tower of London. Ex-Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg will not be sentenced by an allied judge, and Baron von der Lancken will not be shot at sunrise, as Edith Cavell was.

Despite the righteousness of their cause, the allies know that they will never try in Paris, London or Brussels the 800 Germans whose names are on the list Von Lersner would not take to Berlin and which the allies have now sent there. There will be an execution of the spirit of Article 228, but not of the letter. The sword of allied justice is dulled against a wall of realities, for the article in question cannot be enforced as it was written and signed. Here is the allied plan:

First, the German government must accept the list of accused Germans and thus recognize in principle that they did offend against the laws of war. That done, the allies will consider the exigencies of the situation.

These decisions were reached at a meeting of the Committee of Ambassadors. They were incorporated into the draft of the proposed note to Berlin which was cabled to London and Rome for the approval of the English and Italian premiers. The note will be telegraphed to the French charge in Berlin, and with the list will be handed to the German government.

The allied statesmen have no wish to overthrow the German government, nor do they wish to let Article 228 become wholly a dead letter. Indications are that a crisis in Berlin will be avoided for the present.

The new allied plan can mean nothing less than that the allies will consider the difficulties confronting the Ebert government in meeting the demands of the entente, and if Berlin exhibits good faith, or, rather, if Berlin does not exhibit bad faith, the allies will not exhibit any precipitate haste.

Information comes from a high diplomatic source that the allies will give attention to Germany's professed willingness to try the accused men before a high German court with allied prosecutors.

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

Pocketed the Insult.

"Mr. Grumpus thought he would cure a borrowing neighbor of a bad habit."

"Proceed."

"When the neighbor sent over one morning to borrow a hammer, Mr. Grumpus sent him a check to buy one."

"How did the scheme work?"

"The neighbor expressed his thanks, and the next day wanted to borrow a lawn mower."

Got Off Easy.

His car had collided with a telegraph pole. A crowd gathered round. "I think my collarbone is broken," he said to the policeman who bent over him.

"If that's all, yer in luck," growled the officer. "Shure, 'twas break-neck speed ye was goin' at."

His Position.

"What is your position on this great question?"

"My position," replied Senator Sorghum, "is somewhat like that of a tight-rope walker. I don't want to stop to argue or show off. What I want to do is to get across to solid ground."

Making Careful Inquiry.

"Those ladies are smoking."

"Quite the thing at an affair of this kind."

"Answer me one question, friend."

"Well?"

"What's the etiquette about asking a lady for a light?"

Precedent.

"Of course," observed the man with a ponderous intellect, "we must show the deepest respect for precedent."

"Of course," assented the man with a fountain pen. "But that's no excuse for going ahead writing '1919.'"

A Champion.

"What's Cholly doing since he graduated?"

"He's a bank runner."

"He ought to make good at that. He took many interscholastic prizes for running."

Reasonable Fear.

"Do you think Biggins is afraid of work?"

"Shouldn't be surprised. Anybody who has slighted work as much as he has shouldn't expect any favors from it."

A POOR COUNTER.

"He's an expert accountant."

"I don't believe it. I played golf with him the other day and the score he handed in convinced me that he had never studied arithmetic."

SENATE SWAYED BY YOUTH

Commons Example of Progress
Illustrated by the British Government, the House of Commons

For a long time it has been a British boast that the house of commons is the most widely representative of all legislative bodies, since it includes not only all social grades, but numbers among its membership men of all ages, from the mere youth to the octogenarian.

So long ago as the year 1615 there were 40 legislators in the commons who had not attained their twentieth year, and, incredible as it may seem, certain of these were only sixteen years of age.

Edmund Waller, the poet and courtier of Stuart days, was a schoolboy of sixteen when he qualified as a M. P. He was, an Clarendon says, "nursed in parliament," and probably furnished the only instance of a man who could look back upon two-thirds of a century to his debut as a legislator.

Charles James Fox was but nineteen when he was "returned" to parliament for the "pocket borough" of Midhurst. He was not many weeks older when he made one of the finest "maiden speeches" ever heard at Westminster. "I heard it spoken of by everybody as a most extraordinary thing," his father wrote to a friend, "and I am not a little pleased with it."

Chesterfield was a legislator at twenty, when he entered the commons. His first speech is said to have "electrified the house." His triumph was, however, undiminished by the circumstance that as he was not yet of age he was liable to a heavy fine for speaking in the house.

More precocious yet was William Pitt. Although he had passed his twenty-first birthday when Appleby sent him to parliament, he had within a few weeks after the taking of his seat established himself as the keenest debater and the finest speaker in the commons. Upon the conclusion of his "maiden speech" a member of the opposition was reported to have observed to Fox: "Pitt will be one of the first men in parliament." "He is so already," replied Fox.

Pitt was scarcely twenty-three when he was made chancellor of the exchequer. At twenty-four he was prime minister.

End to "Hotel of Kings."

The Hotel Bristol, nicknamed "the hotel of kings," and considered the most select in Paris, is now no more but the remembrance of a brilliant and picturesque past. Founded in 1867 by a British subject, Mr. Morlock, whose son is still the head of the firm, the hotel soon after the war of 1870 was patronized by King Edward VII. then prince of Wales, whose photographs with autograph signatures can be seen in the hotel's salons, none from his early youth when he wore a square black beard, and others belonging to a later period with the small pointed beard which gave so much finesse to his humorous smile.

King George of Greece, King Leopold of Belgium, both dubbed "old Parisians," Queen Alexandra, King George and Queen Mary, the king of the Belgians and many others have been among the royal guests of the Bristol. And there it was, too, that Don Carlos, king of Portugal, was introduced to his future bride, Princess Amelie, by the then prince of Wales. An American bank is now moving into the historic building.

Trees for Hall of Fame.

A popular tree at Spartansburg, S. C., the top of which was shot off during the Fourth of July celebration in 1832, has been entered in the hall of fame for trees which is being compiled by the American Forestry association. From Lisbon, O., comes the nomination of the tree under which the Indians and white settlers came to an agreement regarding iron ore to be used in making kettles. Ralph G. Smith of Circleville, O., enters the Logan Elm in that city. C. C. Royce nominates the Sir Joseph Hooker Oak at Chico, Cal. General Sherman estimated that 7,000 men could stand in the shade of this tree.

A. D. Dart nominates the "Largest Live Oak" in the South, at Brunswick, Ga., known to be a veteran in 1763. It has a circumference of 28 feet.

Fatal Famine After Feast.

A play, a dance and a feast, winding up a season of plenty, was responsible for the near extermination of the Quigilligook tribe of natives last winter and spring, according to John H. Kilbuck, superintendent of schools for the Kuskokwim River (Alaska) district.

The famine following the feast, Mr. Kilbuck said in his annual report to the bureau of education, caused the deaths of at least 42 of the natives, and would have wiped out the entire clan had not missionaries come to the rescue with a meager supply of food.

It will be years, Mr. Kilbuck declared, before the Quigilligooks recover from the effects of their generosity.

Mint Established Record.

The Philadelphia mint shattered coinage records in 1918. Domestic coinage totaled 500,915,000 pieces, as compared with 367,845,000 in 1915. Coinage for foreign countries amounted to 20,523,105 pieces, compared with 22,490,000 in 1915.

Now All You Good Fellows, Come Fill Up Your Pipes

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

15c

IF ever men are "Tom" and "Bill" to each other, it's when good pipes are a-going. If ever good pipes go their best, 'tis when Velvet's in the bowl.

For Velvet is a mighty friendly smoke.
Kentucky Burley is the leaf that Nature made for pipes. Wholesome and hearty, honest as the day. And Velvet is that same good Burley leaf, brought to mellow middle age.

For eight long seasons Velvet "meditates" in wooden hogsheads, throwing off the rawness of "young" tobacco—truly "ageing in the wood." Out
Velvet comes—cool, calm and generous—the tobacco
Nature made good, kept good and made better.

Velvet's sweetness is the sweetness of good tobacco, not "put on" like "frosting" on a cake. Its mildness comes from natural ageing, not from having the life baked out. Its fragrance is true tobacco fragrance, not a perfume. And Velvet makes an A Number One cigarette. Roll one.

As good old Velvet Joe says:

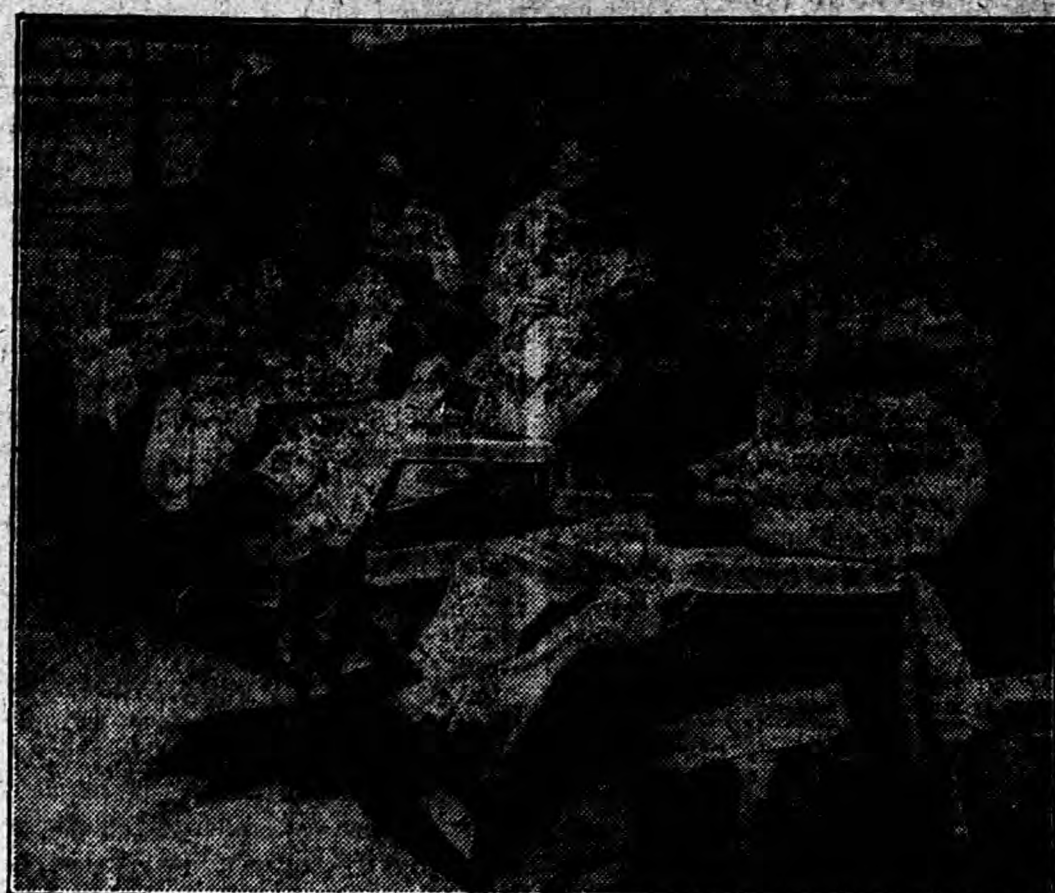

"Fill yo' heart with friendly thoughts,
Yo' mouth with friendly smoke—
An' let the old world wag."

U.S. NAVY

Barber Shop.

Some hotel! Everything at cost, and done with the very finest equipment. Join the Navy, and forget the tips.

Can you imagine a first class shave for a nickel, a hair cut for a dime and a massage, shampoo, and all the trimmings in proportion?

It's almost luxurious, and now that the electric potato peelers have come in, Jack finds himself with a lot more time to improve himself. He doesn't need to wash his own clothes any more either, an electric laundry will take care of them at a price which is almost ridiculous.

This view of the busy barber shop on board one of the U. S. dreadnaughts will give us all some idea of the way the men in the Navy live.
Only the best is good enough for our sailors.

The U. S. Navy is the Forearm of the Nation.
It is your property, your first line of defense.
Know about it; read about it; see it. If possible, serve in it. It builds real men who do men's work.

MAKE THE DOLLAR SAFE
Is the motto and guiding principle of the R. L. Dollings Company in financing industrial companies and in the sale of their securities

THE R. L. DOLLINGS COMPANY makes its own investigation of the company to be financed, and absolutely guarantees the statements it makes concerning the financial condition of the company being financed.

THE R. L. DOLLINGS COMPANY is the only investment house that maintains the right of supervision and absolute control over the companies it finances. SUPERVISION includes expert engineering service, expert accounting service, expert sales management and advertising service. This method of financing by the Dollings Company has resulted in the financing of twenty-five companies with a total capitalization of $45,000,000 and these securities sold to over 30,000 customers, not one of whom has ever lost one dollar in principal or interest.

This record is what led us to cast our lot with The Dollings Company and to offer to our friends and the good people of Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester Counties securities that represent safety protection and an income of 7 per cent. per annum.

to 3382, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County. In Equity

Whereas, a certain R. Mark White, County Treasurer for Somerset County, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that certain William J. Tankersley, Deaf's Island, Maryland, and all that lot or parcel of land in Deaf's Island Election District, Somerset County, in the State of Maryland, containing 74 acres of land, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of W Wallace and assessed to Good Samaritan Baptist Church, in the year 1917 and sold for the old election district for the year 1917 and sold for the permanent taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto; and whereas, upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular and that the provisions of the law in relation thereto have been complied with;

Now it is therefore ordered, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, this 18th day of December, 1918, that the publication of this order once a week, for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a newspaper published in Somerset County, Maryland, from 1710, and containing all persons interested in said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 17th day of January, 1919, to show cause why the same should not be ratified and confirmed, and that the amount of sale to be $10.00.

Farmers Will Not Back Labor's Fight

Farm organizations will not join the American Federation of Labor in its non-partisan campaign to elect this year only friends of the trades union movement, according to T. C. Atkeson, representative of the National Grange, which has 700,000 members.

Mr. Atkeson said last week that his organization had decided not to support organized labor's political activities and pointed out that representatives of the Grange, National Farmers' Union, International Farm Congress, American Farm Bureau Federation, Farmers' National Congress and National Milk Producers' Federation, recently met in Washington and formulated a platform of principals, but decided that individual members should be allowed to exercise their right of personal preference in voting.

The program has been sent to every member of Congress, Mr. Atkeson said, and it may be expected that farmers will observe the attitude of legislators on bills affecting their interest.

"We decided," Mr. Atkeson said, "that the interests of the farmers and of organized labor were not identical, in fact, were diametrically opposed on some questions. The union man wants shorter hours and higher pay, which means higher prices to the consumer. A similar attitude on the part of the farmers would mean curtailment of production of food until the people were so hungry they would pay exorbitant prices rather than starve. Instead, it is our policy to encourage as much work as possible to stimulate production, so that normal conditions may be restored."

Champions $2.26 Wheat

A resolution urging Congress to continue the present price of wheat—$2.26—for three years and asking that the Federal Grain Corporation be supplanted by one more friendly to the farming interests was introduced in the Senate last Wednesday by Senator Miah, of Washington county. This resolution was passed last Thursday afternoon.

The preamble of the resolution says that it seems, according to the newer political economy, wise and beneficial to fix minimum prices for wages, salaries and farm products, and continues:

"Under the scale of prices heretofore fixed for wheat and pork, the American farmer suffered a loss of not less than $2,000,000,000 during the past three years.

"The price of wheat has begun to advance and is now selling in the open market at from $2.75 to $3.00 per bushel.

"With the dark and threatening financial clouds that are beginning to arise it seems probable that wheat may soon fall not only from its present price of $3 a bushel, but may sink to even lower levels than the price fixed by the United States Government, and which may spell disaster to many millions of true American citizens.

"The said price of $2.26 a bushel has been during the past three years a tremendous but patriotic sacrifice for the millions of American farmers, and it now seems probable that the said price fixed for the next three years may not only stabilize the greatest American industry, but may save from bankruptcy and distress that large and patriotic class of American citizens who stood so true and unflinchingly by the side of the Government in the dark hours of the great World War."

Rhodesdale Cannery Burned

The canning plant and warehouses of Winfield, Webster & Co., at Rhodesdale, Dorchester county, eight miles east of Cambridge, were destroyed by fire last Wednesday. The loss is estimated at $100,000, partly covered by insurance. Guy L. Webster, a member of the firm, says the plant will be rebuilt. The origin of the fire is not known.

The plant was one of the most complete in that section and capable of packing many sorts of fruits and vegetables raised here. Several thousand cases of canned goods were burned. A car of seed peas on a side track and a few hundred cases of canned goods in a warehouse were saved.

New Jersey For Suffrage

The New Jersey Assembly early last Tuesday morning by a vote of 34 to 24 adopted the resolution ratifying the equal suffrage amendment to the Federal Constitution. As the resolution had been adopted by the Senate, New Jersey joins the column of suffrage States. This is the twenty-ninth State to ratify the amendment enfranchising women.

For The Children

Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting a cough medicine for children. It should be pleasant to take, contains no harmful drug and most effective in curing their coughs and colds. Long experience has shown that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets these conditions. It is a favorite with many mothers.

LITTLE RODENTS DO MUCH INJURY

Mountain Beaver or Swellel and Cotton Rat Gain Prominence
as Crop Destroyers.

Small Fruits and Market Produce Damaged in Humid Regions of Northwest Coast—Sugar Cane
Industry Is Menaced.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Two animals not much spoken of previously have gained prominence as destructive rodents during the past year, reports the chief of the biological survey. One is the mountain beaver or swellel, a curious rodent living in the humid regions of the northwest coast. It was formerly considered harmless, but with the development of agriculture in its region it has become increasingly injurious to crops, particularly small fruits and market produce.

Control Measures Devised.
Control measures have been devised, and representatives of the department have given demonstrations in Oregon and Washington, where active measures were needed.

The other animal that has come into prominence as a destroyer is the cotton rat, a small rat-like rodent limited to the South Atlantic and Gulf states. Its depredations are principally in connection with sugar cane in Florida, where experimental plantings within the past two years gave promise of very profitable development.

Serious Damage by Rats.
So serious has been the damage by cotton rats, however, that the principal company interested in the development of the sugar cane industry in Florida has written the department that the success of the industry will be impossible unless some method can be found for successfully controlling the cotton rats. Losses of from 40 to 60 per cent of the growing cane have been reported. The bureau of biological survey, however, announces the determination of successful poisoning methods, and it is believed that, through demonstrations and advice, the growers will be able to control the rats and reduce the losses to a negligible amount.

RIGHT CARE OF DAIRY COW

Animal Cannot Continue Normal Production If She Is Exposed to Severe Weather.

The high-producing dairy animal is a delicate and well-balanced piece of machinery, and consequently she cannot continue normal production if she is exposed to severe winter weather. It is, therefore, essential that the discomforts incident to cold weather be eliminated, if possible. The comfortable cow will repay in milk the necessary labor for her protection. Dairy men as a rule are more careful with their cows than the average farmer who merely produces the milk for family use.

GOOD FERTILITY IS WASTED

Burning Straw Stack, Stubble or Stalks Is Bad Practice—Few Insects Destroyed.

Burning straw stacks, stubble, or even stalks, will destroy only a few insects at best and will destroy much valuable fertility. Now that it is possible to spread straw on fields economically with a straw spreader there is really less excuse than ever for burning straw stacks.

WINTER BEETLE IN WINTER

Time During Cold Weather Spent as Winter Grub Inside Egg Pod of Grasshopper.

The old-fashioned potato beetle or winter beetle spends the winter as a winter grub inside the egg pods of a grasshopper and it will be seen that any action that tends to destroy grasshopper eggs will at the same time destroy numbers of the winter beetle.

Some of the employees are more than eighty years old, he said, and long ago reached the age of zero efficiency.

PE-RU-NA Worth Its Weight in Gold

You cannot mistake the words of Mr. W. W. Northrup, of 908 Fourth Street, Sioux City, Iowa. He is enthusiastic about his present health and the merits of PE-RU-NA and wants everyone to know it. Here is a recent letter from him:—

"PE-RU-NA is worth its weight in gold and then some. I used to think it only a woman's remedy but have changed my mind. I had a cough, especially in the morning. After using half a bottle of PE-RU-NA was much better. I would cough up chunks of phlegm and mucus, my eyes itched and bothered me. Judging from the symptoms given in your almanac it was catarrh. My stomach is in much better condition since using your medicine."

"Use this testimonial, if you wish. Don't hesitate to advertise the merits of PE-RU-NA."
(Signed) W. W. NORTHROP.

There are thousands just like Mr. Northrup, skeptical at first but convinced by a trial of PE-RU-NA. DON'T BE AN UNBELIEVER.

If your trouble is of a catarrhal nature, try PE-RU-NA, then tell your friends. It is fine after an attack of grip or Spanish Flu.

FESTIVAL OF THE EPIPHANY

Three Events Included in the Celebration, Which Is Observed by Three Great Churches.

The word "epiphany" is from the Greek tongue and means "to be evident." It is used by the church to designate the festival which is celebrated on January 6 by Roman Catholic, Eastern and Anglican churches in commemoration of the manifestation of Christ.

Three different events are included in the celebration: As early as the third century it was observed as the commemoration of the baptism of Christ and his revelation to the world as the Son of God. Later in the East it was taken also as a manifestation of divine power in Christ's first miracle at Cana. In the western church the adoration of the Magi was principally put forward, the baptism being especially mentioned in the services for the octave, and the Cana miracle on the following Sunday. In the fourth century the birth of Christ was also connected with it by some writers.

Many special observances are or have been connected with it under the name of Twelfth day. Twelfth night was a time of special merry-making in England, and closed the Christmas festivities. The date for Easter is announced, and in many places the blessing of waters takes place. Sovereigns commonly offered gold, frankincense and myrrh at the altar, a custom still maintained by England.

MYTHS OF SEA "MONSTERS"

Remarkable Denizens of the Deep Said to Be Merely Creatures of the Imagination.

The appearance of wandering herds of sea lions along the shores of southern California reminds of the perennial stories about monsters of the deep. Some scientists have believed the rare specimens of "oar fish," which sometimes reach the surface, might be mistaken for sea monsters. Some of these fish are twenty feet long. Unfortunately, they are so adapted to lives at great depth they cannot live at the surface. Records show that two have been washed upon California beaches.

Many stories of sea monsters are the fruits of some excitable person's imagination. There are many things about the sea which might readily start such an imagination working. The sea is so large, and hides so many secrets, that such a person might readily believe that, if anyone objected to his story, he could say the monster disappeared. Then who could prove he had not seen it?

Various people have had traditional myths and legends about sea monsters and those probably have helped in keeping general interest in such stories now. The Norse tales are the most numerous and vivid.

Vegetable Poacher of Fish.

One of the most curious enemies of fresh water fish in many parts of the world is a small floating water weed, the bladder wort. Along its branchlets are a number of small green vesicles or bladders, which, being furnished with minute jaws, seize upon tiny fish, which are assimilated into its substance. This is a subtle poacher, the true character of which has only lately been detected. Bladder wort is a fairly common aquatic plant, and no very special interest attached to it ere its fish eating propensities were discovered. Its tiny vesicles were known to contain air, and the only use of these, so far as was known, was to keep the plant afloat—a belief, be it remarked, all the more reasonable because many aquatic plants actually have such air receptacles for that very purpose. The tiny bladders attached to the leaves and leaf stalks are each acting on the eel trap principle, entrance being easy, but exit impossible.

Object Lesson in Thrift

An ingenious professor of mathematics has figured out that one cent invested at the beginning of the Christian era (1,919 years ago) at a rate of interest equal to the government Liberty bonds, that is, 4½ per cent, with interest compounded to date, would make 100,000 globes of solid gold, each the weight of the earth. The earth weighs six and twenty-one ciphers tons. But the 1 cent, with its accumulations, reduced to a minimum weight in gold at the rate of $20 in the ounce, would, he says, make 100,000 planets of the earth's weight! The moral is: Save the pennies!—Omaha News.

Malaria and Quinine.

Many cases of "malaria" are really quinine poisoning. The amount of quinine administered is often large, and the smaller doses are continued for too long. In consequence, a condition of debility is induced, which, as its cause continues, also persists. Such is the conclusion of Drs. J. Cowan and R. H. Strong of London. All drugs, they say, are of little value if attention is not paid to rest and, next, to protection from the sun and chill.

Different Views.

"I think Mr. Bolt is quite an intellectual young man," the girl remarked. "Oh, do you?" sneered his rival. "Why, yes. It seems to me he is quite a hard thinker on many important subjects." "Well, now that I come to consider it," he returned, "I believe you are right. I never knew a man who thought with so much difficulty."—Boston Transcript.

Big Value in Tires for Small Cars

Back of the manufacture of Goodyear Tires for small cars is the same purpose to supply high value in the product that is behind the manufacture of the Goodyear Tires that equip the most expensive automobiles built.

This purpose is expressed by the enormous resources, extraordinary skill and scrupulous care applied to the manufacture of Goodyear Tires in the largest tire factory in the world devoted solely to the 30x3, 30x3½, and 31x4-inch sizes.

The effect of this endeavor is noted in the fact that last year more cars using these sizes were factory-equipped with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

It is also noted in the fact that, if you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car requiring the sizes mentioned, you can secure Goodyear Tires and Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Goodyear Service Station.

ARMY TRAINING BILL

Shows That a 275,000 Maximum Peace Force, Costing $475,000,000, Is Enough.

ECONOMY PLEA MEETS FAVOR.

Mondell Calls Minimum Expenditures of $1,500,000,000 Unthinkable. Would Wait Until Nation Is Stronger Financially.

Washington.—Republican house leaders, determined to keep down expenditures so as to make another loan unnecessary, have decided that there shall be a small sized army and that universal military training shall be eliminated from the military bill. They say that the country, in the present state of finance, is opposed to expending $700,000,000 a year for compulsory training, or about $1,250,000,000 to maintain an army with compulsory training in operation.

Representative F. W. Mondell, Republican floor leader, is leading the opposition to compulsory training, and indications are that even though the committee should report a military bill containing provision for compulsory training it would be defeated in the house.

In a speech in the house Mr. Mondell renewed his opposition to universal military training, and the applause indicated that he had struck a popular note when he opposed the proposition at this time on the plea of economy.

"The secretary of war has recommended an army of 570,000 men, to cost nearly $1,500,000,000," said Mr. Mondell. "Nobody outside of the general staff and the administration is considering any such establishment. The committee of the house and senate are likely to provide for a regular establishment somewhere between 225,000 and 275,000 officers and men, line and staff. At the present cost this would involve appropriation of from $425,000,000 to $475,000,000. This force could not be reduced by any system of military training. The tendency would be to increase it, as I have suggested. A system of universal compulsory military training, such as has been proposed, would cost at least $700,000,000 per year after the first year.

"Add to this the cost of the regular establishment at the lowest figure suggested, $425,000,000, and we have a total of $1,125,000,000 as the lowest annual cost of a moderate, regular establishment and system of universal, compulsory military training such as is proposed without taking into consideration the expenditure of at least $500,000,000 to prepare the camps for the system of training.

"This estimate is, however, much below the cost of the regular establishment proposed by the bill now before the senate and the universal, compulsory military training system which it provides. The regular military establishment provided for in that bill, without any military training whatever, will cost at least $600,000,000. Add to this $700,000,000 as the cost of the universal compulsory military training system which that bill provides and we have a total cost of $1,300,000,000 as the minimum cost of the military program outlined in the senate bill.

"This total is much more than our entire average annual federal expenditures for all purposes prior to our entry into the European war. At a time when, on the basis of present estimates, we are facing a deficit of nearly $3,000,000,000, such expenditures are, of course, unthinkable. As no one anticipates carrying any kind of a training system into operation at this time, there is no reason why the matter should be determined upon one way or another until we shall find ourselves in better financial condition."

Archaeologist Describes Sensation on Entering Egyptian Tomb More Than 3,000 Years Old.

In February, 1906, an American explorer in Egypt, T. M. Davis, discovered the tomb of Yusa and Thusa, father and mother of that Queen Tyi whose influence played a great part in Akhenaten's religious reformation.

The tomb was intact and the objects it contained were as perfectly preserved as if they had been shut up only a few weeks. One of the archaeologists described his sensations on entering the place as being very much like those of a man who enters a town house which has been shut up for the summer. Armchairs stood about, beautifully carved and decorated with gold, the cushions on one of them, stuffed with down and covered with linen so perfectly preserved that they might have been sat upon or tossed about without injury. Two beds of fine design, decorated with gold, occupied another part of the chamber, while a light curtain in perfect preservation stood in a corner. Most startling of all was the discovery of a jar of honey, still liquid and still preserving its characteristic scent after 3,300 years!

Glass Statues.
Evidence that the manufacture of glass in Ceylon is so novelty has been discovered by Dr. P. B. Pieris in the Jaffna peninsula. The doctor discovered on his discoveries at a recent meeting of the Ceylon branch of the Royal Asiatic society. He declared he had found glass beads and glass fragments which proved the antiquity of the Ceylon glass industry and which, by their greenish hue, explained, in his opinion, the constant references in ancient Sinhalese works to emerald statues of Buddha. It was quite clear from Dr. Pieris' description that the statues were not emerald, but were made of green-tinted glass, which must have been of local manufacture. The glass beads which he had discovered were all of palpable antiquity, for he had found not only the beads which were bored with three holes converging inward in the usual fashion, but also beads which were not so perforated.—Christian Science Monitor.

PLANS TO AVOID TUBER DISEASES

Several Measures Open to Farmers to Prevent Disorders of Potato Plant.

ELIMINATE ANY WEAK PLANT

Seed Selection in Bin at Time of Cutting Removes All Specimens Showing Any Ailment—Spraying Controls Blight.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The principal control measures available to all farmers for use against potato diseases are plant selection in the seed plot, tuber selection in the bin, seed treatment, field spraying, and prevention through soil sanitation and modification of cultural practices.

Plant selection in the seed plot aims at the elimination from the grower's seed stock of the progeny of all plants that are weak or diseased from any cause. Each year a sufficiently large area is set aside for the grower's own seed production. It is planted with the best stock obtainable, is properly but not excessively fertilized, and special care is bestowed upon it. All objectionable plants, with their tubers, if any have formed, are removed from time to time as the indications of weakness or disease appear. At digging time further selection may be employed to remove the progeny of hills having normal tops but giving undesirable or unsatisfactory returns.

Seed plot selection is directed against those tuber-borne diseases which cannot be detected by inspection of the seed stock, but at the same time it is effective in such troubles as black leg and wilt, and it is a very efficient means of removing varietal mixtures and the poor yielding, though not necessarily diseased, hills. It cannot be depended upon to restore productivity quickly in stock containing a high proportion of degenerate or run-out hills. A new start with vigorous stock is the only practical course in such cases.

Selection in Bin.
Tuber selection in the bin is best carried out at the time of cutting. It removes tubers showing decay, serious mechanical injury and necrosis, either external or internal, and is aimed primarily against the "Wilt" diseases, net necrosis, black leg, and other decay-producing diseases from those constitutional weaknesses frequently developing from the use of partially decayed or seriously injured seed. It is not a satisfactory substitute for the seed plot selection but supplements it to good advantage.

Seed treatment is employed to destroy (1) the sclerotia of Rhizoctonia or black scurf, (2) the scab-producing organism present in common scab spots, and (3) surface infection with the black leg organisms which may have resulted from contact with tubers decaying from this cause. It is also of value in destroying the germs of some other minor diseases on the surface of seed potatoes. Seed treatment does not reach black leg or other types of infection within the tuber and of course has no effect on Rhizoctonia or scab organisms in the soil. Two solutions are in common use. The one most generally recommended contains four ounces of corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury) dissolved in 30 gallons of water. The other contains one pint of formalin (40 per cent formaldehyde) in 30 gallons of water. In either case the treatment consists in immersing potatoes in the solution for an hour and a half to two hours either at planting time or at any convenient earlier date. Corrosive sublimate dissolves with difficulty in cold water, amalgamates with metals, is a deadly poison when taken internally, and deteriorates with use. It must therefore be handled with great care, used in wood or cement containers, and renewed frequently. Sacks employed as dipping containers use up the chemical more rapidly than crates. The formalin solution is cheaper than corrosive sublimate, easier to make up, does not change strength on standing as is frequently stated, but it is less efficient and seems sometimes to injure the seed slightly, though usually this is not the case.

Spraying Controls Blight.
Spraying when properly done controls both the early blight and the late blight. By far the best mixture for this purpose thus far devised is properly prepared and properly applied home-made bordeaux mixture. Intelligently and effectively used, it is capable of controlling almost completely the most serious outbreaks of late blight, with a large margin of profit. As to the advisability of its use against early blight, local conditions must determine. The mixture has at least minor value as a plant stimulant, acts as a protective covering, and exerts a mildly repellent action against such insects as flea beetles.

The essential requirements regarding the sprayer are that it should have a pump which delivers the mixture under a constant pressure of from

A Potato Affected With Common Scab. 120 to 200 pounds and that it should be equipped with an adequate number of nozzles of a type that will throw the spray in a fine mist in sufficient force to cover all parts of the plant.

Soil sanitation measures, such as crop rotation and the removal of infection-bearing material, tilling for drainage and aeration, and various other means of influencing the biological processes of the soil are the means resorted to for removing disease germs from soil in which they have become established.

Physiological Disorders.
Modified cultural practice is one of the means by which the soil-inhabiting parasitic organisms and such troubles as malnutrition, tipburn, and various other physiological disorders are dealt with. Obviously the special modification advisable in any case depends upon the trouble and the specific condition; for example, tipburn results from the inability of the root system to supply an adequate quantity of water to the tips of the leaves. Frequently this is the result of shallow rooting, which in turn may follow from too hard a subsoil, too shallow plowing, a layer of dry soil at the bottom of the furrow, concentration of plantfood at the surface, and so on. The remedial practice must aim at removing the cause or so improving the conditions that the natural strength and vigor of the plant will carry it through. Disregard of soil sanitation and careless cultural practices account for a very large proportion of the unprofitable crops of potatoes produced every year in the United States.

FIX UP HENHOUSE IN WINTER

Poultryman Has Most Time at His Disposal Then to Make Things Convenient for Flock.

Winter is the season when the poultry keeper has most time at his disposal to use his hammer, saw and nails in behalf of his flock. Many conveniences for the henhouse require only a little lumber and time for construction.

If new nests, feed troughs, drinking fountains or dust boxes in the biddies' domicile are needed, now is the time to make them.

Perhaps the roosts need replacing. United States department of agriculture specialists recommend as a satisfactory perch a 2 by 3 inch scantling set edgewise with the upper edge slightly rounded.

Allow 7 to 10 inches of perch for each fowl; that is, a perch 16 feet long would furnish room enough for 20 fowls. A smooth platform should be placed under the perches to catch the droppings. The perches should be from 6 to 10 inches above this platform so as to allow the droppings to be removed without removing the perches. It is usually desirable to have the platform some distance from the floor, from 2 to 2½ feet, in order that all the floor space may be available.

BEST WAY TO CONTROL LICE

Complete Eradication Is Best Secured by Dipping—Medicated Wal-lows Are Good.

"Lice on hogs can be controlled in various ways, but complete eradication is best secured by the use of dipping vats, as experiments conducted by the United States department of agriculture show," says W. E. Schneider, co-operative extension specialist in swine production for Arizona.

"Medicated hog wallows and rubbing posts," he states, "keep the number of parasites reduced so that they cause little or no damage, but neither do these methods destroy all the lice. Crude petroleum is used on the rubbing posts and the wallows medicated with coal tar creosote dips, pine tar, crude petroleum and bland oils. Crude petroleum and coal tar creosote dips prove to be more effective when applied from an ordinary sprinkling can than when used in wallows or on rubbing posts.

A PUBLIC UTILITY MUST CARRY ON

MANY INDUSTRIES, if confronted with a condition similar to that encountered by this Company in Maryland—revenue insufficient to meet expenses and interest charges—would shut up shop until more favorable times returned.

BUT WE CANNOT DO THIS. The Bell System has undertaken an obligation to provide a nation-wide, a universal service. As a part of this undertaking, this Company has accepted an obligation to serve the State of Maryland.

WE HAVE OBLIGATED OURSELVES to serve the villages as well as the cities; to link every community with every other community; to bring the isolated rural home in touch with the activities of the cities and towns. How well we have succeeded is shown by the 122,000 telephones which comprise the Bell System in Maryland.

EVERY COMMUNITY MAY NOT contribute its full share of the necessary revenues. But to fail to serve the small villages and rural communities would deprive them of communication with the outside world. And it would deprive those in the towns of the privilege of communicating with the smaller communities.

IN AN EFFORT SUCH AS THIS, affecting the comfort, the safety and convenience of the entire people, we cannot neglect our obligation.

WE ARE ANXIOUS not to neglect it—and all we ask is that the public support our application for increased rates, so that we may be able to pay expenses and earn a fair return.

Princess Anne People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

Feb. 14—Mrs. Laura Murray is visiting in Baltimore.

Mr. S. E. Mason has returned from a trip to Baltimore.

Mrs. George Layfield is visiting relatives at Cambridge.

Mr. Harry Dashiell spent the week and at Norfolk, Va.

Miss Nellie Somers, of Nanticoke, is visiting Miss Anita Windsor.

Capt. Geo. E. Mason and son, John E., of Baltimore, spent last week with relatives here.

From last reports, Mr. M. Fillmore Beach, who is a patient at Salisbury Hospital, is improving.

Mr. Mason Webster, of Baltimore, spent last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. David Webster.

Miss Ella Fisher, who has been spending some time in Baltimore, is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Fisher.

The Valentine social, which was held at John Wesley Hall on February 12th, under the auspices of Rev. and Mrs. O. E. Rice, was largely attended and netted quite a neat little sum.

Mr. William Grayson Mayne, of this place, and Miss Clara Gladden, of Baltimore, were married in Baltimore on Saturday, Feb. 7th. They are spending a few days with relatives here, after which they will make their home in Chester, Pa.

Mrs. William Fisher died at the home of her son, Mr. Jesse Fisher, last Tuesday, aged 71 years. Funeral services were held at Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, conducted by Rev. O. E. Rice. Interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church. She is survived by two daughters (Miss Granville Simms and Mrs. George Bloodworth, of Baltimore), and two sons (Messrs. Jesse and Charles Fisher, of Mt. Vernon). She is also survived by two brothers, Messrs. Charles Simms, of Allen, and William Simms, of this place.

Feb. 16—Mr. William Reynolds and family, of Chester, Pa., are visiting relatives in this community.

Mr. W. A. Riffin returned home from his brother, Mr. Herman Riffin, in Philadelphia.

Mr. Milton Marriner and family, of Chester, Pa., and Mr. A. J. Marriner and family, of Baltimore, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Marriner.

Mrs. Albert Reynolds died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Marriner, Friday afternoon. Funeral services were held in Perryhawkin Christian Church Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. P. D. West. Interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church. Beside her husband and parents, Mrs. Reynolds is survived by two little sons, one about two years old, and one, an infant, about one week old. She is also survived by two brothers, Mr. Arthur Marriner, of Baltimore, and Mr. Milton Marriner, of Chester, Pa., and one sister, Mrs. Carl Gibbons, of this place.

National Thrift Stamp Week

State superintendents of schools in every state in the Fifth Federal Reserve District have been notified that National Thrift Stamp Week will be observed, beginning Monday, March 1st, and ending Saturday, March 6th.

The War Loan Organization for this territory is sending out instructions, literature and pledge cards to superintendents, and will co-operate in every way to awaken new interest on the part of parents and pupils in practicing everyday thrift. The effort is intended to emphasize the value of saving regularly in small amounts.

It is likely that the celebration of Thrift Stamp Week in the schools will culminate on Friday, March 5th, with an entertainment featuring the number of Thrift Stamps each child has bought during the week, and the presentation of a program based on those prepared by the Treasury Department for this purpose.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Princess Anne People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headache and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

Oscar Long, Route No. 1, Extension Antioch Ave., says: "Several years ago I had severe attacks of backache and, in fact, had been troubled more or less all my life. Whenever I did anything that required stooping, I had sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times in the night to pass the kidney secretions and was in a very bad condition. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was cured. I have enjoyed good health ever since and I can heartily recommend Doan's to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney trouble."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Long had. Foster-McMillan Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Can I Make Cider and Vinegar Under the Prohibition Law?

Because there is a lot of misunderstanding regarding what one can do under the Prohibition law, known as the Volstead Law, the following questions are answered, and the answers are based on the law itself:

Can I make apple, pear or any other fruit cider?

Yes. (Section 3 of law.)

Can I keep this cider until it becomes hard or intoxicating for beverage use for myself and friends?

No. (Section 3.)

Can I keep cider until it turns into vinegar and use the vinegar for my own consumption or to sell?

Yes, provided a permit is obtained from the Prohibition Commissioner, which permit will be issued upon request and for which no charge will be made.

Can I make sweet cider to sell without securing a permit?

Yes.

Can I make and use cider without obtaining a permit and use and sell the same if I add to it benzoate of soda or other substances which will prevent a fermentation?

Yes.

Can whiskey (distilled spirits, alcohol, rum, brandy, etc.) be used or bought or sold for medicinal purposes?

Yes.

If I own whiskey or other intoxicating liquor, can I keep the same on my premises for my own use and for that of my bonafide guests?

Yes, provided it is consumed on the premises.

Can my home be searched at any time to see if I have any liquor stored on my premises?

No, unless it is proven that you have been selling intoxicating liquors in which case the same right to search homes is in effect as the right to search anyone's house if stolen goods are thought to be hidden in it; but, in the case of liquor, it must first be proven that you have sold it before search can be made.

If the Legislature of Maryland does not pass a law providing for the enforcement of the prohibition act, what will happen?

The Government will enforce the law, with the aid of special officers to be appointed by them and upon conviction the guilty parties are subject to a sentence to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta or Leavenworth.

If Maryland should pass a law enforcing the prohibition law, what would be the condition?

The regular state authorities, such as the police, sheriffs, and constables would enforce the law and the case could be tried in our local courts instead of in the Federal Courts and the punishment would be the same as that of any offense against any law in the State.

What would happen if the Maryland Legislature passed the 5 per cent. beer law?

Nothing would happen except to make the State and the 1920 Legislature look ridiculous for passing a law which would be unconstitutional, and which the Government officials would entirely ignore, by prosecuting those who manufacture 5 per cent. beer against the provisions of an Act of Congress.

The Power of Money

When William Payne, the banker at Bisonville, decreed that no farmer who did not raise cows as well as wheat could borrow money from him, the angry grain growers almost lynched him. But they had to do as he demanded—and today his county is an oasis in a blowaway desert, his depositors and borrowers are prosperous farmers, his bank is looked upon as the agricultural father of the whole countryside. Such is The Power of Money for Good. Herbert Quick, formerly a member of the Farm Loan Board, tells the story in the February 7th issue of

Good Attendance At Institutes

The Farmers' Institutes held at Princess Anne and Marion Station last Thursday and Friday were well attended and the farmers present showed considerable interest in the discussion of the subjects. The following program was rendered at the morning and afternoon sessions:

"Soil Fertility," Mr. F. W. Oldenburg; "Home Curing of Meat," Dr. S. S. Buckley; "Control of Strawberry Insects," Mr. W. C. Travers; "Use of Dynamite on Ditching," Mr. C. J. Cohee; "Soybeans," Mr. F. W. Oldenburg; "Hog Production," Dr. S. S. Buckley.

It was announced at the meetings that another soil testing day had been arranged by County Agent C. Z. Keller, and all soil samples received this week will be tested for lime requirement by the Soil Department of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It was also stated that farmers desiring to inoculate soybeans can receive inoculation for one bushel from the United States Department of Agriculture by making application to the county agent.

Death Of Mrs. Emma Haines

Mrs. Emma Haines, wife of Mr. Peter Haines, died at her home in Chester, Pa., last Tuesday, aged 72 years. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. James Noel, and three granddaughters, Mrs. James Sterling, Mrs. Marrinar and Mrs. Dykes.

Her remains were brought to Princess Anne and funeral services were held at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. James Sterling, last Thursday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Leonard Jackson, pastor of Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church. Interment was in the church cemetery. The pallbearers were: Messrs. A. P. Mills, G. W. Brown, Charles S. Dryden, George Colborn, Z. W. Townsend and James S. P. White.

Walker-Chelton Wedding

Miss Emily Vaahiti Chelton, daughter of Mrs. Jennette Chelton, of Fairmont, became the bride of Mr. Martin Guy Walker, of Princess Anne, last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the Methodist Protestant parsonage, Pocomoke City, by the Rev. V. E. Hills, only members of the immediate families of the contracting parties being present. Among whom were Mrs. Chelton, mother of the bride, and Mr. Malcolm D. Walker, brother of the groom.

The bride was attired in a seal brown travelling suit with hat and gloves to match, and carried bride's roses. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Walker will reside in Crisfield, where the groom is engaged in business.

Funeral Services At St. Andrew's

Funeral services will be held in St. Andrew's Church every afternoon during Lent except Saturday, at 4.30 o'clock. Burial will be at 10.30 o'clock there by a celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

CANNERS HOPE FOR BIG CROPS

Urging Peninsular Growers To Increase Acreage This Year

Plans to protect the canning industry of the East against the inroads of Western competition were made by the executive committee of the Tri-State Canners' Association at a meeting held in Wilmington the first of last week. To accomplish this the canners discussed methods of assisting growers in Delaware, New Jersey and Maryland, the three States represented, to extend acreage and enlarge their yield.

During the last five years, it was said by a member of the committee, the canning industry in the States mentioned has slumped 50 per cent. By greater co-operation and scientific methods it is hoped to restore the production to its former status.

It was denied that the Tri-State Association had taken up any discussion on the fixing of prices. Another meeting of the committee will be held at Wilmington in about ten days.

Fifteen crop experts from the Department of Agriculture at Washington and from Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey colleges attended the session. It was decided to begin a campaign of education among the farmers of the three States. The Tri-State Association will work in co-operation with the National Canners' Association conservation committee, of which State Senator Aas Bennett, of Frankford, Del., is the Delaware member.

Experts will be sent to farms in Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey to make suggestions and give advice on soil improvement, use of fertilizers and methods of planting and caring for tomatoes. While the canners appreciate the work of the Department of Agriculture and of the colleges they feel they can supplement it with good effect by field demonstration agents.

Canners on the Peninsula are offering four cents a pound for hulled peas and $20 a ton for sugar cane with a pro rata share of pea ensilage, vines, shucks and cobs to the growers.

Lankford Reimburses Government

As the result of a recent overhauling of his books and accounts by United States Postoffice inspectors, Mr. Eugene A. Lankford, postmaster at Marion Station, Somerset county, has been indicted by the Federal Grand Jury for the alleged embezzlement of postal funds.

Irregularities, as alleged, in connection with the money-order operations of the Marion Station office aroused the suspicion of the postal authorities some time ago. When the inspectors investigated Postmaster Lankford's more recent transactions in both money order and war savings stamp business at his office, according to their statement, they discovered a shortage in funds of this class, amounting approximately to $466. As the postmaster, they claim, could give no satisfactory account of this alleged shortage, he was placed under arrest and taken to Baltimore.

On his arrival there, Postmaster Lankford waived a hearing before United States Commissioner Supplies and gave bail in the sum of $1,000. Assistant United States Attorney Latane stated that through the assistance of home friends, the postmaster has reimbursed the government for its alleged loss of the amount of money above stated. Mr. Latane also said that in making this reimbursement, the indicted postmaster admitted having appropriated the missing money to his own use.

E. Earl Pruitt Dead

Friends and relatives were shocked and grieved to learn of the sudden death of Mr. E. Earl Pruitt, of Mt. Vernon, on Thursday, February 19th. He was 28 years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Pruitt, of that place.

He was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and was popular with his superior officers, as was evidenced by the many attentions given him by them during his illness. He is survived by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James Pruitt, and one brother, William Pruitt.

Funeral services were held last Saturday, conducted by Rev. O. B. Rice, assisted by Rev. Vaughn Moore, a cousin, of New York, in Asbury M. E. Church, where he was a member, and concluded at the grave by the Jr. Order United American Mechanics, of which order he was a member. He was also a Mason. Miss Pauline Dashiell sang "The Old Rugged Cross," one of his favorite hymns.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Rufus and Harvey Dashiell, G. W. Colborn, of Princess Anne; Howard Price, of Marion; H. Talmage Dashiell, of Baltimore; and Mr. Paul White, who represented the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, of Wilmington, Del.

EDUCATORS MEET AT ANNAPOLIS

Schools Losing Best Instructors—Salary Bill Urged

Representatives of the State Board of Education, County Superintendents, teachers and others appeared before the Education Committee of the two Houses in the Senate Chamber, at Annapolis, last Thursday morning in advocacy of the administration bill for increasing teachers' salaries all over the State. Senator Disharoon presided.

The prevailing opinion was that the schools were losing their best teachers and that it was extremely difficult to get good ones because of the low salaries paid; that these should be increased even more than provided in the Disharoon bill, and that the people generally were clamoring for better schools and were quite willing to pay increased taxes to secure them.

Senator Goodell, of Frederick, asked State Superintendent Bates Stephens whether it might not be wise to divert some of the money spent on what he called "aesthetic instruction," such as the teaching of dietetics to girls and manual training to boys, and use it in the primary schools for teaching the rudiments of education. Mr. Stephens thought not and explained the value of demonstration in addition to mere book instruction. The county school authorities are understood to have the option of following Senator Goodell's suggestion.

The hearing was opened by Dr. J. M. T. Finney, a member of the Board of Education, who explained the provisions of the bill and the necessity for increasing teachers' pay. He was followed by Superintendent Stephens; Clayton Purnell, a member of the Board; Assistant State Superintendent G. H. Reavis; Dr. H. S. West, principal of the Towson Normal School; G. Lloyd Palmer, County Superintendent of Frederick; H. W. Caldwell, County Superintendent of Cecil; Miss Sarah E. Richmond, Mrs. I. D. Davis, of Elkton, and others in advocacy of the bill.

Mr. Reavis, in discussing the lack of incentive for men or women to become teachers, said the pension law for teachers was inadequate and that eventually there would have to be a provision for retirement of teachers.

Dr. Stephens spoke of other legislation which the board hoped for. He will urge a bill to repeal the legislation of two years ago, which left it to the option of a county whether it should have an attendance officer. He found, he said, that every county needed such an officer. The board has some other plans, one to have the State spend a million to make safe and sanitary rural schools, but this will not now be pushed.

Mr. and Mrs. Young Give Reception

One of the most enjoyable social events of the winter season was the reception given last Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Young, the bride of their son, Mr. John Walter Young, of Norfolk, Va. The house was tastefully decorated with evergreens and potted plants and music was rendered by Falkner's orchestra, of Salisbury. Those assisting Mr. and Mrs. Young in receiving were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Young, Miss Olga Young, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. B. O. Fullman, of Baltimore. Mrs. George H. Myers presided at the punch bowl and those assisting in the diningroom—where refreshments were served—were Misses Amanda Lankford, Emily I. Dashiell, Dorothy Jones and Nell Dashiell. Those invited were:

Judge and Mrs. Robert F. Duer, Col. and Mrs. Henry J. Waters, Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Robertson, Dr. and Mrs. Harry M. Lankford, Mr. and Mrs. E. Herrman Cohn, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Spiva, Jr. and Mrs. L. Creston Beauchamp, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dashiell, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gelder, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Holland, and her sister, Mrs. William Clayton, of Augusta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tull, Mr. and Mrs. S. Frank Dashiell, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wallop, Mr. and Mrs. Omar J. Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua W. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Dashiell, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Maslin, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. C. Z. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. T. G. Polk, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Krause, Mr. and Mrs. Earle B. Polk; Mrs. Charles T. Fisher, Mrs. Franklin Waller, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. C. C. Waller, Mrs. Denwood Jones, Mrs. W. S. McMaster.

Misses Irene Taylor, Nannie Fontaine, Elsie Long, Dorothy Jones, Ellen D. McMaster and Messrs. Stewart Fitzgerald, Walter Long, B. H. Dougherty, Mark Costen, James Taylor, Morris Adams, Samuel Sudler and Vernon White.

THE MARYLAND LEGISLATURE

What The Lawmakers Are Now Doing At Annapolis

In the Senate last Tuesday the following bills were introduced:

By Mr. Robins—Selling property for taxes in Somerset county.

In the House last Tuesday Mr. League, of Baltimore, introduced a bill to abolish the Public Service Commission. Mr. League declares that he will push the bill to the limit. He also introduced a bill providing for uniform street car fare in Baltimore. The bill provides for a single fare from any section of the city to Curtis Bay, Sparrows Point and other points.

A delegation headed by Senators Harrison, of Worcester, and Disharoon, of Wicomico, called upon Governor Ritchie last Tuesday and urged him to support an appropriation for the erection of a wall along the ocean front at Ocean City as a protection against the encroachments by the sea in storms similar to that which recently carried destruction in its wake. The visitors did not seek compensation for losses to municipal utilities, including sewerage, streets and electric lights, but confined their recommendations to the adoption of a policy by the State to protect its own property.

Among the important bills introduced last Tuesday was one prepared by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles and introduced by Senator McIntosh, which makes a number of material changes in the rules and regulations governing all motor vehicles. It deals with tags, lights and traffic generally, including in those affected trailers and others that may be drawn by motor or other power.

Senator Nuttle introduced his bill, which takes from the county commissioners the appointment of supervisors of assessments, and provides that the clerk to the Board of County Commissioners shall serve as the supervisor of assessments under the direction of the State Tax Commissioner. The mayor of Baltimore is to submit, as heretofore, a list of five persons to the State Tax Commission, from which number a selection is to be made. His salary is fixed at $2,400. No pay is fixed for the county assessors.

On Wednesday the following bills were introduced in the House:

By Mr. Eppler—Providing a fixed salary for the clerks of the Circuit Courts.

By Mr. McIntosh—Increasing the representation of Baltimore city in both houses of the General Assembly.

By Mr. Crothers—Providing for the election of vestries in the Protestant Episcopal churches of Maryland.

By Mr. Wolfe—Increasing the costs of marriage licenses in Maryland to $2.

By Mr. Gladden—Providing for the erection of fences by livestock owners on Deal's Island.

Dr. Bevan Says Wilson Should Resign

President Wilson, because of his illness, should retire from office now "under the advice of his physician, family and friends," Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, former president of the American Medical Association, and professor of surgery at Rush Medical College, Chicago, stated last Tuesday. In a statement Dr. Bevan said:

"The President's stroke, with the resulting paralysis of one side of his body, is due to a disease of the arteries of his brain, with a plugging-up of the arteries which supply that part of the right side of his brain which controls his left arm and leg.

"The disease of the arteries is a permanent and not a temporary condition. In other words, the President has a permanently damaged brain. He is evidently slowly recovering from the paralysis of his arm and leg, and may recover fairly well, although never completely the use of his limbs. But the diseased arteries, which were responsible for the stroke, and the damaged brain remain and will not be recovered from."

Dr. Bevan stated that a patient in this condition, "under no circumstances should be permitted to resume the work of such a strenuous position as that of President."

Death Of Mrs. Thomas E. Spencer

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Long were called to St. Michaels, Md., Monday of last week by the death of Mr. Long's sister, Mrs. Thomas E. Spencer, who died on the Sunday previous.

Mrs. Spencer was 36 years old. She is survived by one son (Mr. Nicholas Spencer), and one daughter (Mrs. Joseph Fairbank). She is also survived by one brother, Mr. S. C. Long, of Princess Anne; two half brothers, Messrs. George and John Long, of Somerset county, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from her late home Wednesday afternoon. Interment was in the Methodist Episcopal cemetery, St. Michaels.

SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT DEFEATED

Both Houses Send The Ratification Amendment To Its Grave

Federalized woman suffrage, as represented in the Susan B. Anthony amendment, was decisively rejected last Tuesday by both houses of the General Assembly.

In the Senate the vote was 18 to 9 against ratification and in the House 64 to 36.

The test votes came after a day of suffrage parades, band playing and oratory before the Senate committee, the Governor and both houses. There was a committee hearing in the morning in the Senate chamber, at which former Judge J. Harry Covington and the Hon. "Tom" Parran were the suffrage stars and Mrs. Henry Zollinger and Judge Oscar Leser represented the anti.

Then the suffragists descended, or ascended, upon Governor Ritchie. More oratory.

The rejection resolution was the special order in the House at the early session. Delegate Cobourn offered an amendment substituting his resolution of ratification for the one reported favorably by the committee. After much speaking the Cobourn resolution was lost, 64 to 36.

The legislative procedure in the Senate was the same. The committee on Federal Relations reported favorably the Frick resolution for rejection. Senator Metzgerott moved to amend by striking out the Frick resolution and substituting his own. Speeches in favor of ratification were made by Senators Metzgerott, Gibson and Robins and against it by Senators McIntosh, Parran and Legg.

Senator Robins, of Somerset, an advocate of the amendment, paid a glowing tribute to the women of this country, dwelling on the work they did during the war and contending they would discriminate more intelligently than many men when they voted. He thought it would be a disgrace to Maryland if the women were given the right to vote and this State had not given its assent.

Judge Harry Covington, at the committee meeting, said he did not approach this committee with illusions. He hoped, however, that there were enough members who would experience a change of opinion. He wanted to clear misconceptions that exist. He knew of the planks of platforms adopted by both parties.

The National Democratic Committee had declared for suffrage and its action was just as binding as a promise in the State platform. The question, he claimed, was a National one. Replying to Mr. Marbury, he said there may be a question that the prohibition amendment is a departure from fundamental law. This, however, is different. When the Constitution was originally framed it decreed that males only should vote, but it is foolish to argue that they cannot go further and include women. Speaking of the Constitution, he held that it was not a finished product, but constructed according to the best intellect of the day, and while he had not approved of all the changes since made, especially the Fifteenth Amendment, there had been changes made to perfect it.

They say there are a lot of women against suffrage. Probably there are. But it is illogical for the anti to say the other women shall not vote because they do not want the franchise.

The women, he admitted, had made mistakes. They were wrong in picketing the White House and also when they dropped a banner in the House of Representatives, but these constituted only a small band, and the great body should not be held responsible for their actions.

Judge Covington closed for the suffragists and when he concluded he was given round upon round of applause.

Want School Law Enforced

The Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs have circulated a number of folders throughout the State with the hope of stimulating sentiment in the enforcement of the present school laws.

It is felt by the members that the Maryland school statutes are probably as good as any in the country, but that the State has been lacking in the enforcement of them and has allowed politics to play too big a part in this respect. They are particularly concerned that the power of appointments to the State and County Boards of Education solely vested in the Governor should be made "solely because of character and fitness."

The circular also deals with compulsory school attendance; sanitary school buildings and grounds; trained teachers; adequate supervision; thoroughly qualified school officials and carefully thought-out program of school improvement.

LeCOMPTTE TELLS OF GAME FARM

Counties Should Keep United Behind State-Wide Hunters Licenses

The question has been asked, what is the State Game Department doing? Last week State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte pointed out that a return to the old system whereby the counties "went it alone" in game protection and propagation would be a step backward. He gave this account of what the Department is doing:

"Under the Acts of 1896, the Governor of Maryland was authorized to appoint a State Game Warden and deputies, their duties to be the vigorous enforcement of the game and fish laws of this State. Therefore, the Game Department of Maryland was established for the better protection of game and fish.

"At the session of the General Assembly in 1918 Chapter 468 was enacted, which is known as the hunters' license law, and became effective on June 1, 1918. Prior to that time the State Game Department received no funds for the enforcement of the game and fish laws, except a meager appropriation at each session of the General Assembly, said money being appropriated from the taxpayers of the State. With the enactment of the State-wide hunters' license law the department was enabled to employ 17 salaried wardens, who have patrolled their territory and enforced the game and fish laws for the protection of native game and fish. The public has co-operated with these district deputies, and through their efforts violations of the game and fish laws have been reduced considerably.

"The main object of the State-wide law has been the protection of our game and fish supply. The State Game Warden and each deputy are required to enforce and assist in enforcing the game and fish laws. Under this system of salaried deputy wardens throughout the State our game and fish have had more protection than ever heretofore, and when game and fish receive protection from violators and pot hunters propagation will take care of itself to a great extent. The better protection of game and fish can be accomplished only through the means of revenue derived from hunters' licenses. The State Game Department is, therefore, self-sustaining and is not requesting an appropriation from the taxpayers of this State of one cent for the maintenance of this department.

"Owing to the fact that it is absolutely impossible to purchase outside game for propagation at any price, this department, in the name of the State of Maryland, has purchased 290 acres of land at Gwynnbrook, Baltimore county, and has established thereon a State game farm solely for the purpose of raising game for propagation and for distribution in the various counties of the State.

"There are a number of States in the Union which have established State game farms, and same have proved successful. The establishment of a State game farm can be done only by all counties of said State contributing their share through the sale of hunters' licenses for the maintenance of said farm, since no county can raise enough funds from the sale of hunters' licenses to operate an individual game farm for its own use. Therefore, it becomes very necessary to make this movement a success that each and every county of the State should stand behind the State-wide license act of 1918. No county can be exempted from this act without destroying its virtue as a State-wide measure. Forty-five States out of the 48 in this Union have a State-wide hunters' license system, and there is not a county in anyone of these States which is exempt from the operation of same.

"Popularity of the State game farms is best shown by the result in New York State, where they have recently established the fourth State game farm for the propagation of game. This department expects to raise considerable game on the game farm during the season of 1920; however, the results of 1921 should show considerable increase over 1920, which is the first season. We have constructed holding and breeding pens and have some brood stock on hand for this season's propagation. The property was acquired at a very reasonable figure, for the commission was offered 10 per cent. advance of the purchase price within 90 days after the purchase by a real estate broker of this State.

"The department has kept in close touch with the United States Department of Agriculture and game brokers throughout the United States and Mexico, and has secured all game birds possible. After careful investigation and experience relating to the importation of game we decided that the game farm was the only dependable way to increase the supply of game for the sportsmen of the State.

"The department through the press and co-operation of the public has taken good care of the game throughout the State during the severe winter months by feeding same whenever found and offering to pay for feed when same was not furnished gratis. Reports from all sections of the State show there is a bountiful supply of game left in the covers."

HOW HE CURED COLD

Phenacetin Passed on Remedy Which He Declares Does Away With Ailment.

It is now Dr. L. Duncan Bullard of New York cures his own colds and those of other people. Doctor Bullard tells the story in the Medical Record, as follows:

"Yesterday I had about as severe a cold as possible, which had been coming on several days, and had been simply neglected, and I sneezed and coughed all day, using any number of handkerchiefs. In the afternoon I took one or two doses of soda, half a teaspoonful, and in the evening took two more. At midnight I took one of the grip powders I have so long prescribed, ten grains of phenacetin with 20 of soda, with hot water, and went to bed with two handkerchiefs under my pillow. I dropped to sleep very soon and slept soundly until called at 7:30, when I took another of the phenacetin and soda powders and found the cold entirely gone; exactly the experience which I reported before and which I have had many times.

"Last year from October to last spring I wrote for the phenacetin and soda powder, ten grains and 20, at most every day, and sometimes at least four times in the day, for patients threatened with grippe, and although I questioned many patients at subsequent office visits I have yet to learn of any failure to arrest the trouble."

TO WORK OLD COPPER MINES

American Company, With Modern Machinery, Will Reopen Shaft on the Isle of Cyprus.

Equipped with modern mining machinery purchased in the United States with California money, the rich copper mines of the Isle of Cyprus, which centuries ago furnished copper for the civilized world, may in a few months be turning out thousands of tons of that metal.

According to an announcement made yesterday, a syndicate of California capitalists has secured a long-term purchase lease on a score or more of the most valuable workings on the island, and engineers are now on the ground outlining plans for installing modern mining machinery to replace the crude plants maintained by the Phoenicians centuries ago. While the names of members of the syndicate were not given out, D. C. Jacklin, multi-millionaire copper magnate of San Francisco, is the recognized head of the corporation.

When the war first broke out the syndicate had about completed plans for perfecting their lease of 22 claims on the island, but complications brought about by the conflict forced abandonment of the plan until after the signing of the armistice.

Art Criticism.

One day a German subaltern who had been ordered to find billets presented himself at my house, writes a Belgian woman in the World's Work. I showed him among others the room occupied for more than two years by the American delegates of the relief commission, in which a reproduction of an ancient work of art—a bust without arms—stood on the mantelpiece. The subaltern thought the room appeared to be comfortable, but, seeking to make himself disagreeable, he raised his eyebrows, after looking at the reproduction, and said in a rude voice:

"Why, madam, did you cut the arms off this bust in a room destined to be occupied by a German officer?" Words failed me. What could I say? He left the house with an offended air. But the incident had no sequel, which was most extraordinary.

Lived Long in Seclusion.

Forty years in the District of Columbia without having set foot on the streets! Such was the record of several of the sisters of the Visitation convent, formerly located at Connecticut avenue and L street Northwest. I am told on authority. For forty years these sisters lived in the school, taking their exercise in the spacious grounds back of the building, surrounded by a high wall. As you go past the building now you see it almost razed to the ground by wreckers, the building and site having been sold recently for a big price. So the good sisters at last came forth from their cells and trod again the streets of the national capital for the first time in forty years.—Washington Star.

Prizes for English Weavers.

A gift of $10,000 from John Crompton of Manchester, England, will provide rewards to the designers and weavers of original cotton fabrics designed and woven in technical colleges or weaving schools in the British empire. One-half of the fabrics sent in for competition must be entirely of cotton, and the remainder may contain 70 per cent of cotton threads. A special committee of the Textile Institute of Manchester will take care of the collection of the samples.

On Venice Canal.

The main entry to Venice from the railway station is by the celebrated Grand canal by means of gondolas or cushioned steamers. The latter constitute a regular service along the Grand canal and across the lagoon to the Venetian lido. There are many beautiful views of the Grand canal and the lagoon from the Venetian lido.

Felt Neglected.

Little Eva was invited out to dinner with her father and mother. Before starting, her parents made her understand that she must not speak unless spoken to. All went well at first, but after some time, no notice being taken of her, Eva began to get uneasy. Finally, the hostess, seeing that something was wrong, asked her what she would like next. "I would like to have you begin to ask me questions!" was the polite reply.

What Dropped.

The dining room of a very exclusive residential hotel. Dinner in full swing. Clatter of knives and forks and the usual buzz of conversation. Suddenly, a crash at one end of the room, a sound of falling dishes. An abrupt pause in the conversation, attention concentrated on the scene of the calamity. Then, suddenly, soaring above a rising murmur of inquiry, one clear voice with the desired information, "Squash, my dear, of all things!"

The Weakest Finger.

The finger on which the engagement and wedding rings are worn is anatomically the weaker of the ten. Planners have to give the third finger twice as much drill as the other. The explanation is that the tendon of the extensor muscle of the third finger is attached by a cross-slip to that of the second.

Famous Woman.

Catherine of Sienna is a woman who consecrated her days to good works and deeds and poured them all into the melting pot of divine love. This saint organized peace between frantic states in the fourteenth century. She brought the pope back to Rome. Canonized, she is "Saint Catherine."

Hooped Pots and Jack Cade.

In the Middle Ages in England many drinking pots were made with hoops so that when two or more persons drank from the same pot or tankard, no one of them should take more than his share, each hoop marking a half, a third or a fourth of the contents of the pot, according to its make.

"Give" and "Get."

The two little words "give" and "get" sum up the differing creeds of earth and the ambitions of mankind. Those who are eager to bestow, to enrich the world around them, to bless, to help, to uplift, constitute the one class. The other crowd grasps everything for self, only its own.

Traits of the Grizzly.

The grizzly rarely hibernates, preferring to prow through the forests in the winter months. He is a meat eater, as well as being fond of honey, roots and eggs, and usually kills his own food. Two cubs come to the mother bear in her den among the rocks, and she is insanely courageous in defense of them.

Reasons for Feeding Birds.

By feeding the birds in cold weather one provides ammunition against the mosquitoes of June, explains a member of the Animal Protective league. It seems that birds feed their young on mosquitoes, thus destroying great numbers of the pests. Little natural food is available for birds in the winter except in the extreme South, and even there less can be found by them at this season than in the summer. So when the table or pantry shelf is cleared of crumbs if the contents of the crumb tray are scattered outdoors instead of being put in the garbage can, the birds will be thankful, and will show their gratitude by saving the food-giver many a mosquito bite next summer.

Mosquitoes are only one of the many excellent reasons why birds should be fed during the winter. The others are all the other insects which hamper the production of the garden, and all pleasures of song and plumage.—St. Joseph Gazette.

Get After the Pest.

Mosquitoes always pass the early part of their life history in water. Adults do not travel very far unless carried by wind. If you are bothered by them, look around for some stagnant water. Put a little kerosene on this and effect a control.—Exchange.

Bottled Manpower

Coughs and colds are weakening. Get rid of them as quickly as you can. Catarrh in any form saps the vitality. Fight it and fight it hard. There is a remedy to help you do it—a medicine of forty-seven years' established merit. Try it.

PE-RU-NA

For Catarrh and Catarrhal Conditions. It purifies the blood, regulates the digestion, aids elimination, tones up the nerve centers and carries health to all the mucous linings. For the relief of those pains in stomach and bowels, belching, sour stomach, rheumatism, pain in the back, sides and joints, PE-RU-NA is recommended.

PE-RU-NA restores to healthy action the vital organs which are so intimately related to the strength and vigor of the nation.

There are fourteen ounces of health giving punch and pep in every bottle. PE-RU-NA is a good medicine to have in the house, ready-to-take for emergencies. It is a good remedy to use any time.

Carrying a Ton a Mile for less than a Cent

Freight rates have played a very small part in the rising cost of living.

Other causes—the waste of war, under-production, credit inflation—have added dollars to the cost of the necessities of life, while freight charges have added only cents.

The average charge for hauling a ton of freight a mile is less than a cent.

A suit of clothing that sold for $30 before the war was carried 2,265 miles by rail from Chicago to Los Angeles for 16½ cents.

Now the freight charge is 22 cents and the suit sells for $50.

The cost of the suit has increased 20 dollars.

The freight on it has increased only 5½ cents.

Other transportation charges enter into the cost of the finished article—carrying the wool to the mills and the cloth to the tailors—but these other charges amount to but a few cents more.

The $10 pair of shoes that used to sell for $5 goes from the New England factory to the Florida dealer for a freight charge of 5½ cents—only one cent more than the pre-war rate.

Beef pays only two-thirds of a cent a pound freight from Chicago to New York.

American freight rates are the lowest in the world.

Hobo Now Scorns the Breadline

Survey Made by Interchurch World Movement Shows That Even the Cheap Lodging House is Going Out of Business.

The old "bread line" is gone from its accustomed place in the cities. In the slums throughout the country huddled queues of men no longer wait to be fed. Their passing is a symbol of the passing of the hobo.

Everywhere, for lack of guests, the cheap lodging houses are being abandoned. Only a few old, decrepit men remain in the Salvation Army Industrial Homes. In Kansas City the once crowded dormitories of the "Helping Hand" building are closed. In Lincoln, Neb., in 1915 there were 1,756 non-resident single men who applied for aid, while in 1918 there were only 183. The hobo, the wandering worker who went to the lodging house and the bread line between his seasonal jobs has been lifted from his old plane by the war. A study of the conditions of migrant labor is now being conducted by the Interchurch World Movement that may lay the facts before the Protestant Churches of America, whose closer co-operation is its larger purpose. This study shows that the hobo has found a closer succession of jobs, a higher return for his labor. He has become almost a "steady" worker. He no longer needs his old refuge.

Beyond the reach of these agencies, he offers the Protestant Churches an opportunity to provide new means of influencing his life and maintaining his standards of living, and the Interchurch World Movement survey is determining how this may best be achieved.

GOV.-GENERAL OF PHILIPPINES FOR FREEDOM

Declares It Not Right That Freedom Should Longer Be Withheld.

By FRANCIS BURTON HARRISON,
Governor-General of the Philippines.
(First Article.)

Gov. Gen. Harrison

My six years' experience as governor-general of the Philippine Islands have convinced me that the Filipino people are ready and fit to have their independence. I have recommended to Congress, as well as to the executive administration, that independence be granted.

As to the question of the stability of government, I wish to say to the American people upon my responsibility as the governor-general that in my opinion there exists today in the Philippine Islands a stable government, which I think should answer the requirements laid down by Presidents Grant and McKinley, and as I understand it, also by Mr. Root—namely, a government elected by the suffrage of the people, which is supported by the people, which is capable of maintaining order and of fulfilling its international obligations.

I am very glad to go on record as being entirely in sympathy with the aspirations of the Filipino nation for independence.

I have recommended to Congress that in granting independence some provision be made similar to what is known as the Platt amendment in the treaty with Cuba, which restricts the ability of the new republic in borrowing of foreign governments and also permits the United States to interfere with the affairs of the new republic in case conditions of disorder should be found to prevail. Such recommendation does not come as an expression of the views of the Filipinos; it is my own view of what would be desirable to secure a feeling of confidence and satisfaction on the part of all persons who have already invested money in the Philippines or who contemplate doing so in the near future.

But it is not right that independence itself should longer be delayed.

By temperament, by experience, by financial ability, in every way, the 11,000,000 Filipinos are entitled to be free from every government except of their own choice. They are intelligent enough to decide for themselves.

I have found the native Filipino official to be honest, efficient and as capable of administering executive positions as any men I have met anywhere in the world.

These officials are today governing 1,000 municipalities and forty-two provinces, economically, efficiently and for the good of the entire people. They have a native congress, including many graduates of Yale, Princeton, Harvard and other American universities. Other members are graduates of Santo Tomas and other Philippine universities, and in education and ability they compare favorably with any I know.

They have leaders like Speaker Osmena of the House of Representatives and President Quezon of the Senate who would adorn any office.

The Philippines are away ahead of the United States in successful government ownership and operation of public utilities.

The government took hold of the steam railways and made them pay a profit of 1,000,000 pesos a year more than under private ownership.

It took hold of the highways, and we have 7,000 miles of the best macadamized roads in the world. The Manila city government is about to take over the street railways and the gas and electric plants, while the territorial government is arranging for ownership and control of the coal supply.

The movement for independence is a peaceful one. No territory was more loyal to Uncle Sam during the war. It offered an armed and equipped division to our government, gave it a submarine destroyer and oversubscribed Liberty loans and Red Cross funds.

Two million natives speak English fluently, and there are 700,000 English speaking children in the public schools. I am more than willing to retire if the Filipinos can be granted what they deserve—a government like that of the United States.

A MISREPRESENTED RACE.

The Filipino people are a much misrepresented race. The frequent publication of pictures of semi-naked Mindanao Moros and Igorotes has caused a great many Americans to believe they are typical of the inhabitants of the Philippines. Such is far from the case, however. Of 11,000,000 inhabitants of the islands, 10,500,000 are a Christian, civilized people with a culture and refinement that will compare very favorably with that of other nations. The Filipino women are exceptionally modest. A street flirtation in Manila, so far as a Filipino woman is concerned, is something that is almost unknown, as any American that has visited Manila will testify.

Quite a number of Princess Anne people attended the Automobile Show in Salisbury last week.

Mrs. William Clayton, of Augusta, Georgia, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John E. Holland, on Main street.

Mrs. J. D. Wallop, after a visit of several days to friends in Horntown, Va., returned home last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Joseph G. Scott, after a short visit to the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. W. J. Scott, in Pocomoke City, returned the first of last week.

Miss Emily R. Waters, who has been ill with influenza for the past week, has partially recovered and will soon be able to return to her office on Main street.

Miss Gertrude Flurer, a teacher in the public school at Reisterstown, Baltimore county, is spending a short vacation with her mother, Mrs. Henry Flurer.

Mr. H. Talmage Dashiell, of Baltimore, and Mr. Paul White, of Wilmington, were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hamp Dashiell, Beckford avenue.

Mr. Frank Branford, who had been confined to his home, "The Willows," suffering from influenza for some time, was able to return to his work at Norfolk, Va., the first of last week.

Messrs. Barnes Brothers, by advertisement on our 8th page, give notice of a special sale of automobiles until March 10th. Until that time they will give one tube free with each Pennsylvania Vacuum Cup tire you buy.

Lent, the season of the forty days prior to Easter Day when the people of many churches set aside certain social activities and pay a closer attention to things more spiritual, began last Wednesday. At St. Andrew's Church there was morning prayer at 10.30, by Rev. O. H. Murphy, and litany at 4.30 p. m.

Miss S. Madors Turpin and Mr. A. T. Dashiell, both of Kingston, were married at St. Andrew's Church, Princess Anne, last Wednesday morning at 10.30 o'clock, by the Rev. O. H. Murphy. The newlyweds left for Baltimore and Washington on a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside at Kingston, this county.

Miss Emily Waters Hart, of Baltimore, is spending sometime at her home at "Beechwood."

Mrs. William C. Hart, of Baltimore, is visiting her sister, Miss Emily R. Waters, at "Beechwood."

Miss Gladys Lawson and Miss Emma Dashiell, of Mt. Vernon, were week end guests of Miss Sallie Dashiell.

Miss Madeline Hayman left yesterday (Monday) for a visit to friends in Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shockley, of Salisbury, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bounds, of Mt. Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bounds motored to Princess Anne on Sunday last, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hamp Dashiell.

A meeting of the Civic Club will be held at the Washington Hotel tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Dr. H. A. Barnes, of Mt. Vernon, was called suddenly to Connecticut at the bedside of his father, who is seriously ill.

Sunday was Washington's birthday and yesterday (Monday), in this case, was a legal holiday for banks and other public institutions.

The Rev. S. A. Potter, of Berlin, Worcester county, conducted services at Grace Church, Mt. Vernon, last Sunday morning and evening.

Miss Lou Mills, who is engaged in Home Extension Work in Somerset county, spent the first of last week in Snow Hill as the guest of Misses Sallie and Dorothy Bishop.

Col. Thos. S. Hodson, who has been confined to his home in Crisfield for the past two weeks, though not considered seriously ill, left last Thursday for Baltimore where he will undergo treatment under a well-known specialist at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Dr. Paul Jones, Health Officer of Worcester county, on Monday of last week ordered all the churches, schools, places of amusement and pool rooms closed to prevent the spread of influenza, of which there are a hundred or more cases in Snow Hill and adjacent territory.

Mr. Richard S. Dodson, former State Senator from Talbot county, was appointed by Internal Revenue Commissioner Daniel C. Roper to be Probation Commissioner for Maryland. The appointment becomes effective immediately and the position carries with it a salary of $4,500 a year.

Mr. Henry J. Nelson, of Westover, had a very thrilling experience one day recently, when a small sail boat, in which he was sailing down the Manokin river, was suddenly caught in a whirlwind and capsized. No one being near to go to his rescue, he managed to cling to the overturned craft until it drifted into sufficiently shallow water for him to wade ashore. Mr. Nelson says this is an instance when his height of six foot two helped him out wonderfully.

Crisfield is assured of a company of National Guardsmen. At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Dr. Stephen P. Fuller, who was commanding officer to the old Company L, of the First Maryland Regiment, was requested to take the matter of organization up with Colonel Reckord, and at a meeting last Tuesday night Lieutenant Colonel A. W. W. Woodcock made an address appealing for support and co-operation in the organization, and Dr. Fuller reported that he had more than enough applications to complete the quota of 65 members.

Linwood C. Marriner, a clerk in the postoffice at Rehoboth, this county, was arrested on Wednesday, by Deputy Marshall Hickman and Post Office Inspector Geo. W. Lumpkin, of Baltimore, on the charge of rifling the mail and appropriating to his own use certain checks and money being transmitted through the mail. Marriner was taken before Deputy United States Commissioner Edward P. Wyatt where he pled guilty to the charge and was held under $1,000 bail for the action of the United States Grand Jury, which meets in Baltimore in the near future.

Postmaster Examination

At the request of the Postmaster General the United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Crisfield, Maryland, on March 17th, 1920, for the position of postmaster at Marion Station, Maryland. This office has an annual compensation of $1100.

To be eligible for this examination an applicant must be a citizen of the United States, must actually reside within the delivery of the office and have so resided at the time the present vacancy occurred. Applicants must have reached their twenty-first but not their sixty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination.

Application Form 2241 and full information concerning the requirements of the examination may be secured from the postmaster at the place of vacancy or from the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. Applications should be properly executed and filed with the Commission at Washington, D. C. in time to arrange for the examination of the applicant.

Fountain To Be Tried At Towson

The second trial of Isalah Fountain (colored), once convicted and sentenced to death for criminal assault on Bertha Simpson, of Trappe, Md. Fountain will be placed on trial at Towson tomorrow, February 25th.

The negro was captured soon after the crime was committed on April 1st last. Soon afterward he was convicted at Easton during a stormy trial in the course of which he escaped from jail while being pursued by a mob and was at large for three days.

Eugene O'Dunne and Col. James C. Mullikin, his counsel, asked for a new trial, which was granted by the Court of Appeals, and the Easton court granted a change of venue to Towson.

Dorchester Wants Loan

A meeting called by the Commissioners for Dorchester county to discuss the practicability of having the Legislature authorize a bond issue for schools and roads was held at the Court House, Cambridge, last Tuesday. The proposition suggested was for a bond issue of $150,000, $75,000 of which will be used to erect a high school at Cambridge, $30,000 for the high school at Hurlock and the remainder to be used to build new houses where needed and repair the old ones. The tax for State and county is $1.65 at present. The addition will add about 40 cents, making the new rate a little over $2. C. M. Phillips, who laid one of the first State roads in the State, said that the first concrete road he constructed cost $7,500 per mile, and that he built the same kind of road three years ago for $15,000 per mile, but now it would cost $150,000. A resolution was unanimously adopted requesting the Senator and delegation at Annapolis to urge a measure to bond the county for a sum not more than $300,000 for school and road improvement and building a bridge over Cambridge Creek.

Syrup Plant For Baltimore

One more step in the industrial development of Baltimore was marked by the purchase of the interests of the Baltimore Pearl Hominy Company by the General Food Product Company, of New York. The New York concern operates a series of food factories throughout the United States, and realizing the many advantages of the port of Baltimore, have succeeded in locating there.

The Baltimore Pearl Hominy Company is one of the old institutions of that city, and was organized about 75 years ago. It is admirably located at the foot of Howard street on the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and has excellent railroad facilities. The present plant will be entirely remodeled and additional railroad sidings laid. It is also planned to extend the present pier to admit the loading of products direct on steamers at Spring Gardens.

In addition to the products now being made by the company a plant to manufacture a new sugar syrup is being erected. Contemplated additions to the initial syrup plant is expected to bring the ultimate capacity up to about 1,000 barrels of syrup per day. When these additions are completed it will undoubtedly be the largest plant of its kind on the Atlantic seaboard.

The exact purchase price of the stock was not given, but is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

Every Town On Shore A "Queen"

In a recent article The Baltimore News says of the Eastern Shore towns: "On the Eastern Shore every town is its own queen. Cambridge writes herself down as the 'Queen City of the Peninsula.' Salisbury, nothing daunted, does the same. Easton is also the 'Queen City' of the Eastern Shore. Centerville is also a 'Queen City,' we are informed, while Chestertown claims a like honor. No county is complete without one. Even Princess Anne calls herself a queen, which is going some for a princess. There are about a dozen 'queens' scattered over the Eastern Shore, from Cecil to Somerset, which is pretty fair for a democracy."

Col. Page Recuperating

Col. Henry Page, commanding officer of Fort McHenry, left Monday of last week for Raleigh, N. C., where he will spend about two weeks at the home of his sister, Mrs. H. A. Royster, recuperating from a recent attack of influenza. He felt that a rest would be necessary before his departure for Denver, Col. Col. Page is the son of the late Judge Henry Page, of the Court of Appeals, and Mrs. Henry Page, of Princess Anne.

It is denied that the umbrellas now being sold are no good, as you can always rip off the cover and use it for a strainer.

For The Children

Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting a cough medicine for children. It should be pleasant to take, contain no harmful drug and most effectual in curing their coughs and colds. Long experience has shown that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets these conditions. It is a favorite with many mothers.

GOODMAN'S Country Produce Taken in Exchange for Groceries

Interchurch World Movement National Growth of Tendency to Eliminate Waste.

AVOID USELESS COMPETITION Religious Financing Revolutionized by Success of Men and Millions Movement and Co-operation in Result.

The Interchurch World Movement of North America is an attempt by forward-looking leaders of the various evangelical denominations of the United States and Canada to co-ordinate the resources in men, money and material of Protestant America.

Historically it is the logical outgrowth of a tendency of the national boards in each denomination to form working alliances among themselves, in which each board shall preserve its identity and control its own personnel and treasury.

In former times, the home mission society, the foreign mission society, the church extension society and the various philanthropic and eleemosynary agencies of any denomination conducted their affairs independently of one another. Each surveyed its own restricted territory, prepared a budget of money and workers for its own purposes and made its own appeal to its constituency for support.

This could only mean that these agencies were more or less in competition with one another; that there were waste and duplication of work and money; and that among them all some work was neglected and some denominational resources were entirely overlooked. Because of their specialized training, the leaders of each agency regarded themselves as peculiarly fitted for their tasks, and jealously regarded attempts at outside interference.

Decide an Experiment. After decades of such haphazard methods, the leaders of one denomination decided on an experiment. They thought it would be possible for the agencies to get together for a common study of all the opportunities and resources of their brotherhood, to make out a unified budget of men and money, and to conduct a concerted appeal for funds. It was made clear that each constituent board should preserve complete autonomy.

When the board representatives met they found it possible to eliminate a great amount of organization expenses. They ultimately worked out a budget and plan of campaign that was satisfactory to all. This resulted in the famous "Men and Millions Movement" of the Disciples of Christ, which brought in what was then considered the staggering sum of $3,800,000 for a five-year program. The members of the communion were so pleased with this business-like method of conducting affairs that they contributed even more generously than had been expected.

The success of this enterprise revolutionized the whole business of church financing. The other great denominations immediately adopted the plan. The denominational associations have come to be known as "forward movements," and some thirty of them are in existence today. Each one has clarified all the information in relation to enterprise within the denomination, and has reduced the business of collecting and spending money to a science.

World-Budget Formed. The Interchurch World Movement is simply a plan to do interdenominational work. It means that every denominational budget will be made in the light of world needs instead of in the semi-obscure of incomplete information. It means that contributions to one denomination will not be in wasteful competition with contributions to another, because all the fellowships will have worked out their program together.

The functions of the Interchurch World Movement are threefold. First, it collects, by means of world surveys, all the pertinent facts on which denominational programs may be built. Second, it sets up the practical machinery of co-operation. Third, it acts in an advisory capacity whenever its advice is requested.

The Movement has nothing to do with organic church union or matters of creed or doctrine. Each constituent unit preserves complete autonomy, and is bound only so far as it wishes to be bound. Financial appeals are made by each denomination to its own constituency. Any surplus in undesignated funds, over and above the actual cost of administration, will be prorated among the denominations engaged in a given financial undertaking.

An illustration of one thing the Movement can do is to be found in a western community of 1,000 persons in which thirteen denominations have been supporting separate churches with missionary funds, while an adjacent territory of 50,000 persons has only three churches. By seeing that all missionary boards are supplied with information in such cases, the Movement will make possible a wiser distribution of funds.

The first goal is to reduce unnecessary duplication and overlapping of a mission and to bring about an intelligent division of labor in unoccupied fields. The Movement is, at bottom, an attempt to put church business on the sound business-like foundation which the great commercial houses of America are built.

GET PUBLICITY ON CALENDAR

That Form of Advertising is the Most Popular With the Merchants of China.

It has been known for a long time what a relative task it was to go visiting in China—that is, if you happened to be a lofty dignitary and must therefore carry along a card of uncomfortable dimensions. Advertising, it seems, shows a corresponding divergence not only from occidental methods, but from those of nearby Japan. There are thousands upon thousands of newspapers in China, but they are not very firmly established, and when they do not soon disappear altogether, they are almost sure to change name frequently, as has been known to happen with certain American products. Newspapers of the republic have an average daily circulation of 3,000, which is larger than it looks, since the papers are carefully passed from hand to hand. There is, then, to be sure, newspaper advertising as well as posters. But the most popular form of publicity for merchants is—the calendar! Nowhere is that humble domestic article more important than in China. Advertisements here placed are looked upon every day. And after all, when you look at the calendars that begin to arrive about this time of the year, isn't it possible to imagine that China is not so far from the West as it might be?—Christian Science Monitor.

TO OPERATE AIRSHIP FLEET

Ambitious Plans Credited to English Company Well Within the Realm of Possibility.

A company has been formed in England for the purpose of operating a fleet of airships to various parts of the world. The syndicate desires to acquire ground near Southampton, where it proposes to erect a tower 120 to 150 feet high to which airships may be moored, and an elevator will take the passengers up the tower and into the gondolas of the ships. The syndicate intends to have a fleet of non-rigid airships in commission next spring; the smaller will carry 32 passengers and crew and the larger 40 passengers and crew. The company also anticipates running some of the larger rigid airships now in course of construction. These will have a carrying capacity of 150 passengers and be able to travel to any part of the globe. It is proposed to use the smaller non-rigid airships to feed the larger ones and meet them at the principal centers. The cost per mile is put at about half the cost of a taxicab fare today, approximately about 18 cents per mile. —Scientific American.

Little Maid in the "Moon Door" Symbol of the Hope of New China

Ginling College, at Nanking, is Girls' School in Five Provinces With Population of 110,000,000—Interchurch World Movement to Aid Institution.

The way to all things at Ginling lies through the moon door. And through the moon door on the way to wisdom pass and repass, every day the 70 Chinese maidens of the "gung-gwan."

The moon door at Ginling is round as the full moon whence it has its name. And the Chinese maiden, as she steps over its high sill, may spread wide her arms and still not touch its rim with the tips of her fingers.

Some times across the court yard is another moon door, and beyond it, like a smaller concentric circle, still another, leading on through that Chinese puzzle of a house, the "gung-gwan" or official residence at Nanking, China, which is now the home of Ginling College for Chinese girls—one of the three women's colleges in all China.

The moon door is but a single feature of the old place. Once inside the high stone walls that enclose it one is lost in a maze of courts and galleries and covered passages and isolated rooms. The whole is China, old China and new. The moon doors and the architecture as a whole lend the dignity and the greatness of old China. But the laboratories and dormitories, libraries and studies made from the old rooms of state and ceremony are modern, just as the spirit of the Chinese girls who use them is modern; just as the force of America is behind it all, represented by the five American missionary organizations and the American Smith College which maintain Ginling, is modern.

One pushes ajar the halves of a moon door, latticed over paper in plum blossom and honeycomb design, and enters a chemical laboratory set up in a room with 20 windows, each framed in dragon tracery. And from the flagstones of the laboratory floor, often is scraped fungi and mould for use under the microscope.

These are typical contrasts of Ginling College, revealed through the survey of the Chinese field now being made by the Interchurch World Movement, which seeks to promote the closer co-operation of Protestant Churches of America in attaining their world aims.

Ginling College the survey shows, is at the heart of five Chinese provinces with a total population of 110,000,000—and is the only woman's college in that great area. Yet its capacity to receive young Chinese girls is limited by the capacity of the old "gung-gwan," rented since the beginning of the institution, four years ago.

Fund of $500,000. Ginling owns 37 acres of land on the hills beside the Yangtze river. In the Interchurch World Movement survey of China, there is a budget item of $500,000. It is there to show the Churches of America how they can place upon that land on the hill the library, administration building, recitation buildings, chapel—all that are needed for a modern college. Unless the fund is available by 1921, many young women of China seeking college education must be denied admission to Ginling, because the old "gung-gwan" is too small.

WAGES OUR GREATEST ITEM OF EXPENSE

SALARIES AND WAGES constitute our largest single item of expense. This money, cheerfully and regularly paid to our men and women—working in the service of the public, all of them—is equal to approximately one-half of our total expense. Since 1915

THE AVERAGE WAGE PAID OUR EMPLOYEES HAS INCREASED 77 PER CENT.

THIS, OF COURSE, is as it should be. Every single item of their living expenses has increased. It is one of our first duties to see that they are paid a living wage and are fairly compensated for the important work they do.

WE HAVE MET THE NECESSITY for higher wages as we met all other higher costs—without waiting for an increase in rates.

OUR JOB IS TO SERVE THE PUBLIC! In keeping the service going during the war and the critical reconstruction period, we did so, not as efficiently as we desired, but as well as the stress of the times would permit.

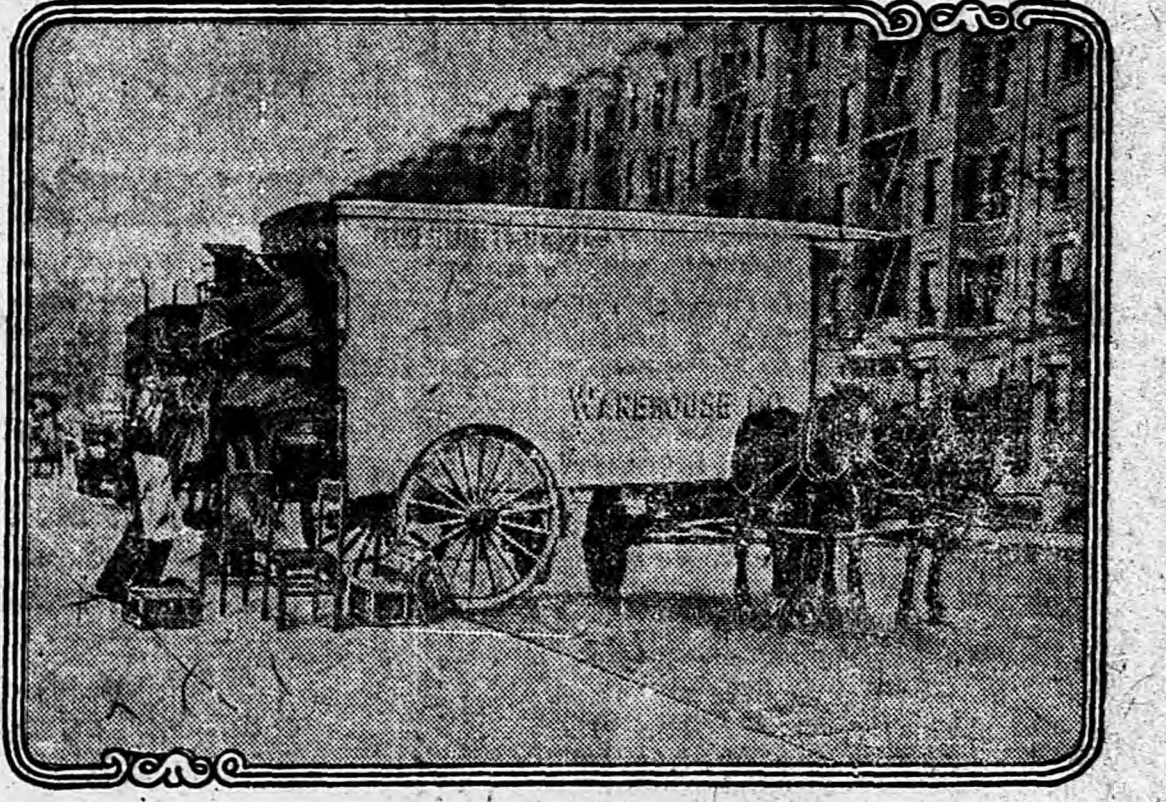

HAVING BORNE THE INCREASED COSTS of wages and material without permitting any interruption in our service to the public,

OUR REVENUES ARE NOW NOT SUFFICIENT TO PAY OUR EXPENSES AND INTEREST CHARGES.

WE ASSUMED THE BURDEN of rising costs—without waiting for increased rates—because we believed that in the end the public would not deny us the right to earn a fair return. This is all we ask in our petition for relief now pending before the proper authorities.

THE CHESAPEAKE & POTOMAC TELEPHONE COMPANY OF BALTIMORE CITY

City Folks Becoming Wanderers Due to Increasing Cost of Homes

More Than 54 Per Cent of Nation's Population Are Paying Rent, Interchurch Survey Shows—New York City Leads Country, With 97 in Every 100 in Manhattan Giving Monthly Tribute to Landlord.

More than 88 per cent of the homes in New York City are rented. In the Borough of Manhattan the percentage rises to 97.

Nor is this condition limited to the Metropolis. It is common to most cities. The people of the United States who live in rented homes are in excess of 54 per cent of the population, according to the latest government returns. About 45 per cent own the houses in which they live.

These statistics have been collected for the survey of city life now being conducted by the Interchurch World Movement to provide a practical program for closer co-operation of Protestant Churches in America. And the survey already reveals one of the gravest problems now confronting the Church.

Rented homes, the survey shows, mean migrant families, for the day of the long lease is passing, and increases in rent cause increases in moving. The migration of families has shifted and changed the congregations of urban churches. And too often the family that moves beyond the reach of one church does not transfer its membership to another, even though it attends that other.

by which membership is transferred, and the family cat behind. If the church did not have more lives than a cat, these survey workers are beginning to think, it would have been dead long ago, for, just as the family "loses" its cat, a church loses members, although another church does not gain them.

One preacher in a pastorate of 13 years noted 3,000 changes in his congregation.

The present generation of the city, the survey reveals, is a generation of wanderers because of the growing number of rented homes and the rising rents. As a result, the family church is becoming an urban rarity. The family in which the father is a founder of the Church he attends, married to a member of the congregation, and with children baptized by the family minister, is more and more seldom found, the survey workers report.

Too often the increase in rent has sent the family to another neighborhood. One purpose of the Interchurch World Movement survey of the cities is to determine how, through that efficient co-operation of churches which is the major aim of the movement, migrant families may not be lost to the membership of their respective denominations.

U. S. INCOME TAX EXEMPTS NOBODY

Every Person Who Had Income in 1919 Must Determine Own Liability.

MARCH 15 LAST FILING DATE.

Smart Way is to Follow Form 1040A.

Free Advice in Doubtful Cases.

Severe Penalties in Law.

Nobody is exempt from Income Tax. An obligation is laid directly on the shoulders of each citizen and resident to consider his own case and to get his return in on time if one is due.

With each return showing a tax due a payment must accompany the return in the full amount of the tax or at least one-quarter of the tax.

All returns for 1919 must be filed on or before March 15.

Must Show True Figures.

In figuring up his earnings for income tax purposes a person must take into consideration all items of taxable income, and each item itself must be accurate in amount. Guesses and estimates must be avoided, for the return is made under oath.

Everybody who had an income during 1919 must now determine whether his or her net income was sufficient in amount to require an Income Tax return. The best way to find out is to get a Form 1040A and follow the instructions printed on it. That form will serve as a reminder of every item of income; and if a return is due, it tells how to prepare and file it.

One of the important points to keep in mind is that a person's net income is found by a computation prescribed in the law, and that each item of income from every source must be considered, unless specifically exempted.

Another thing to remember is that the personal exemption allowed taxpayers by law has no relation whatever to the requirement to file return. This exemption is not to be considered until a person has figured out his net income and determined whether it was sufficient to require him to file a return. Then, if a return must be filed, he should read carefully the instructions for claiming exemption, and complete his return.

If in doubt on any point as to income or deductions, a person may secure free advice and aid from the nearest Internal Revenue office. Many banks and trust companies are also furnishing similar service during banking hours.

Heavy Penalties in Law.

For failing to make a return on time the penalty is a fine of not more than $1,000 and an addition of 25 per cent to the tax, if any. For making a false or fraudulent return the penalty is a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both; and, in addition, 50 per cent of the tax. There are other penalties for failing to pay tax when due and for understatement of the tax through negligence.

Many Sources of Income.

Aside from what one may earn by his services, there are many other sources of income. If he sold any property during 1919 he must figure out the gain realized. If he rented buildings, land, apartments or rooms such rents must be considered taxable, and he may claim deductions for necessary expenses incidental to rents.

Bank interest is a common source of income and is taxable whether withdrawn or not. Any amount of interest credited to a depositor is income to the depositor.

Interest on mortgages and notes is taxable; also bond interest received from corporations.

A taxpayer who cashed his insurance during 1919 must report as income any excess received over the total of premiums paid.

Members of partnerships or personal service corporations or beneficiaries of an estate or trust must report their shares of income distributable to them whether or not actually withdrawn.

Dividends of domestic corporations must be reported. Many other forms of income are taxable, unless specifically exempted.

INCOME TAX IS DUE MARCH 15

Penalties for Delay and Failure to Make Returns—Early Compliance Urged.

All income tax returns covering the year 1919 must be filed by Monday, March 15. Each taxable return must be accompanied by check or money order for the full amount or at least one-quarter of the amount of tax due.

Cash payments are accepted only at the collector's main office; if sent by mail, they are at the sender's risk.

Residents of Maryland should file their returns with, and make payments of Income Tax to, Joshua W. Miles, Collector of Internal Revenue, Baltimore.

Those who must file returns but have not done so are warned that the revenue law imposes heavy penalties for failing to get returns in on time or to make payments on time.

Early filing and early payments are urged in order to relieve the Internal Revenue office as much as possible of the burden on the last day, March 15.

Lost Mining Camp.
Silver Mountain, once a famous mining camp of Idaho, is now deserted. Thirty years ago a syndicate decided the place had a wonderful future. Money was poured into the enterprise. The mill ran just ten days. The "mine" gave out.

Flying Money.
The oldest bank note is in the Asiatic Museum of Petrograd. It was issued 1890 B. C. According to Chinese chroniclers, bank notes were current in China 2600 B. C. under the name of "flying money." They were probably written.

Life's Principal Business.
Half the business of life is concerned with knowing how to use men and women, how to understand them, how to get on with them, how to turn their faculties to the best account.—Viscount Bryce.

Princess Anne People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headache and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Princess Anne proof of their merit.

Oscar Long, Route No. 1, Extension Antioch Ave., says: "Several years ago I had severe attacks of backache and, in fact, had been troubled more or less all my life. Whenever I did anything that required stooping, I had sharp pains in the small of my back. I was forced to get up several times in the night to pass the kidney secretions and was in a very bad condition. After using several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was cured. I have enjoyed good health ever since and I can heartily recommend Doan's to anyone suffering from backache or other kidney trouble."

"Yes," remarked a conceited young bachelor, "I have the greatest admiration for the fair sex, but I never expect to marry—oh, dear, no!" "Indeed," a lady remarked. "Then I am to understand that you not only admire women, but you have a sincere regard for them as well."

Periodic Bilious Attacks
Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks will observe that their appetite falls them just before an attack. That is, they do not really crave food but eat because it is meal time. If they will eat only a light meal and no meat, then take two of Chamberlain's Tablets the attack may be avoided.

Dorchester Farmers Organize
The four farmers' organizations in Dorchester county, at Hurluck, East New Market, Vienna and Cambridge, held a joint meeting in Cambridge last Thursday and formed a county organization to be known as the Dorchester County Farmers' Association. The object of the organization is to promote the interest of the farmers of the county in growing and marketing farm crops.

Dollars And Cents
Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself, in fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR
Every Ford Owner Should Know

Just what Ford Service is, and why it is different from ordinary garage service, and why it is more profitable to patronize the Authorized Ford Dealer?—the Ford Dealer is a part of the Big Ford Family. He carries a large stock of genuine Ford parts for repairs and replacements so you don't have to wait while he sends for them, and he uses only genuine parts because he knows the imitation parts aren't dependable and don't wear.

He has a thoroughly equipped up-to-the-minute garage with tools that enable his Ford Mechanics to efficiently and properly make any repairs—from a minor adjustment to a complete overhaul. And when the work is finished, his bill represents the reasonable, standard Ford prices.

Now, we are Authorized Ford Dealers—a part of that great Ford Service organization which was formed chiefly to put within each community a dealer who would have more than a passing interest in Ford repairs and adjustments. We are prepared and equipped to render prompt, careful Ford service. Drive in or 'phone and we'll come after your car.

Thoughts On Thrift

ABRAHAM LINCOLN said: "Economy is one of the first and highest virtues. It begins with savings."

GEORGE WASHINGTON said: "Economy makes happy homes and sound nations. Instill it deep."

And many others before and after the days of these great leaders have exhorted to thrift and deplored extravagance.

A savings account is the emblem of thrift. This institution will welcome yours.

Roads Seem Pressed Flat By Wonderful New Triplex Springs

THE wonderful Triplex Springs of Overland 4 effect such a change in riding comfort that bad roads now seem to ride like good roads. Overland 4 has the steadiness of larger cars of long wheelbase, with the light weight, ease of control and low fuel and tire expense of 100-inch wheelbase. Equipment, including Auto-Lite starting and lighting and three-speed transmission, is high class, in keeping with the general character of the car.
