Fees Increased Again

The Board of Trustees of the Maryland State Colleges, at their May 3 meeting in Tawes Hall, increased the curriculum materials fee from $45.00 per semester to $95.00 per semester. This fee raise will be effective July 1, 1973. During the present school year, this fee was $20.00 but at their May 11, 1972 meeting, the fee was raised to $45.00, to be effective June 1, 1973. This means that in the space of one year, the fee has gone from 20 to 95 dollars per semester. The total fees for 1973-1974 will be $218.00 per semester, an increase of $108.00 (this includes a raise of $33.00 from $20.00 to $85.00, for the Student Union.)

The raise of the curriculum materials fee is meant to help cover general educational purposes, including financial aid, library acquisitions, and salaries. The increase was necessitated by the cost of living raise.

Also passed by the Board of Trustees on May 3 was an article stating that all funds administered by the Student Governments at the State Colleges be supervised and maintained by the College. The president of each college would determine the cost of the maintenance of these accounts, and he could charge the Student Governments for the cost of this maintenance. This could mean that, while no one new would be hired to take charge of these funds, the S.A. could be charged the salary of someone already working in the business office for this purpose.

Three F.S.C. students addressed the board. Joan Brooke, S.A. President, expressed the concern of the students about fee increases. She told the Board the increase was disfavored and that it was putting a financial strain on many students.

S.A. Vice-President, Martin Welch, spoke about the need for a compensatory education program for students in the Other Race Program. Many students in the program have received less college preparation than other students and a compensatory education program is needed for them to achieve college standards. Welch pointed out to the Board that, although the state provided funds for the Other Race program, it did not establish a compensatory education program.

Philosophy student Max Robinson requested of the Board that a Major in Philosophy be instituted at Frostburg. Robinson said that many students here would pursue such a major and that no costs would be involved to add it to the list of majors.

Nelson Guild, as President of the hosting State College, welcomed the Board of Trustees. Their last meeting on this campus was held in September of 1971. He spoke of construction of the new student union building as one of the Campuses "most exciting and most needed buildings." He also pointed out that with recent fee increases F.S.C. would have "one of the highest student union fees in the U.S." He referred the Board to the present poor condition of the campus landscape and its "obvious ravages of the lowest bidder." As one of the hallmarks at Frostburg, President Guild listed the development and continuing change of a tri-part student government.

FINAL COMMENCEMENT PLANS

Two major changes are being attempted this year in the Commencement format as a result of the continuing increase of graduating seniors and graduate students and the cancellation of an honors convocation on campus. Students who have distinguished themselves by their scholarship will be awarded their degree from the platform, while all other degree candidates will have their degrees conferred en masse.

The obvious advantage of these changes will be to shorten the entire graduation ceremonies by as much as one hour and at the same time provide special recognition to those students of high academic success. In the latter case, there is currently no honors convocation to focus attention on those students who should be recognized for their scholastic achievement. The changes in the commencement format is an attempt to provide proper recognition to these outstanding students before the entire college community. Along with these changes all students who will be participating in commencement should be aware of the following information concerning graduation.

Graduation invitations are available in the Student Association Office and may be picked up at any time. The invitations are free and contain the reservation reply card for the Senior Luncheon. It is assumed that seniors will mail the graduation invitations to their homes for purposes of establishing the number of family and guests who will be attending the luncheon.

Comptroller of the Treasury for the State of Maryland, Louis L. Goldstein, was the featured speaker for the Department of Political Science Public Affairs Lecture Series in Government on Monday, May 7th. This was Mr. Goldstein's second visit to the campus this year. He delivered a lecture sponsored by the History Club last September.

The topic of Mr. Goldstein's lecture was concerned with the economic outlook for the State of Maryland in the coming months of '73. "I believe 1973 will be a bright year for Maryland," he stated. He briefly outlined the state's previous economy, pointing out the 4 per cent state unemployment rate compared to 5 per cent nationally, no tax increases, except a 9 cent tax increase on gasoline, over the past four years, and a credit rating higher than that of the federal government. "I think we've done pretty good," Mr. Goldstein said. He stated that income tax revenue continued to climb and that this year the state had funded 99 million tax dollars.

"You have to talk fast because the predicament's always changing," Comptroller Goldstein said as he referred to the state receiving revenues from the federal government. He brought up the fact that Senator Mason, as head of Social Services in the State Legislature, is filing suit with the federal government for 27 million dollars which was supposed to come to Maryland for social services. "We've been seriously affected by the government impounding of funds," he remarked.

Mr. Goldstein was introduced to the audience by Ms. Gail Carter, a F.S.C. Political Science intern who has been working in the Comptroller's Office this past semester. He took the floor with down home wit and anecdotes which were continued throughout the presentation, and indeed his facts and figures backed up his optimistic economic outlook for the state.

A question and answer session followed, and the Frostburg audience, made up of students, professors, administrators, and members of the community, questioned Mr. Goldstein avidly.

When asked why student fees were increasing, Comptroller Goldstein pointed out that the State of Maryland could only afford to supply so much money. "I wish the State could afford to give you a free education," he said. Mr. Goldstein also answered questions about state aid to private education institutions, student integration programs, teacher retirement funds, birth control legislation, college control over student association funds, a $100 a plate dinner in Baltimore later this month, and Alpha International. "You're always going to have a bad egg," Mr. Goldstein remarked when told about the last situation.

President Nelson Guild spoke briefly about Alpha, International. He said that for the first time in history, a contract was suspended by the State because "Alpha's performance of the contract was of such low quality."

During the question and answer period, Mr. Goldstein pointed out several times that he wished more state funds could be provided for education. "I'm here because I wanted to be. I'm interested in higher education," he remarked. But he explained that education was only one of many receivers of state funds.

Mr. Goldstein has been an annual visitor to the Frostburg campus for almost twenty years. It is hoped that his visits will continue as lecturer for various campus organizations and as a friend to the college.

Speech Tournament

Twenty-two members of fundamentals of speech classes at Frostburg State College participated in the Sisyphus contest, Monday, April 30.

Kathy Stupka won first place, Paul Tompros won second place, and Larry Palm won third place in the annual freshman event.

Student judges were David Edgerley, Dan Bace, Ken Braitman, Pat McKoen, Susan Sprinkle, Debbie Holt, Peggy Wood, and Jack Mitchell. Final judges were Edward Eyer, Kirk Hurley, and Miss Ann Williams.

The tournament was conducted by M. Lee Wiltrout, instructor in the speech department, and Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, acting head of the speech and theatre department.

Proposal to President Guild

To facilitate communication at F.S.C., an Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Communications was formed by legislative action of the House of Representatives. Attempting to represent all the major links in campus communications, the committee is composed of representatives from the S.A. Communications Committee, College Center Board, College Center Office, radio station, Office of Public Relations, Artist Series, and State-to-Date.

In a proposal to President Guild, the Communications Committee recommended "to discontinue State Lines and the Weekly Calendar of Events and that the in-

EDITORIAL

Judicial Board Policy

This past semester the FSC Judicial Board policy was revised by a committee set up by the College administration. In March the Student Association appeared before this committee. It was of the SA's opinion that students represented on this committee were merely "puppets" of the administration and therefore the student body did not have an effective voice on the committee.

At this meeting Henry Smith, Director of State Affairs for SA, Joan Brooke, President of SA, and Ed Newman, Vice-President of CCB, presented the committee with what they considered to be a judicial policy more concerned with protecting student rights than the revision previously written. The SA's policy was based mainly on the constitution of Salisbury State College and the National Bill of Student Rights. Unfortunately, the policy written by SA did not reach the committee in time for the deadline of the Pathfinder, which was to print the revised policy for its next issue. This gave the committee an excuse for not accepting SA's policy on the grounds that not enough time was left to make any considerable changes. Furthermore, because their policy was written in two days, the committee charged that the SA could not come up with any plausible and deliberate alternative to the existing revision.

In a previous State-to-Date editorial, we commended SA for attempting to defend and expand student rights. The policy written by them was for this purpose. We feel that for this reason it should have been given more deliberation by the committee instead of being disregarded because of a publication deadline, one under SA control at that. If SA was interested enough in preserving student rights to write a judicial policy in such a short period, they should have been represented on the policy revision committee. But more importantly, as official representatives of the student body, they should have been notified of the policy revisions made by the committee in time for SA to express opinions and suggest changes.

State-to-Date is pleased that two minor changes were made in the revised judicial policy by the suggestion of SA. They are examples of constructive major changes that might have been made if more time had been available. One suggestion changed the policy allowing the administration to appropriate disciplinary action on all matters of misconduct on and off campus, stated in the revision by the committee, to only off campus activities which are college related.

A second change regards search of student's dormitory rooms. Unfortunately, although the change has only added phrases such as "only under emergency circumstances" and "under authorization given in writing by the President of the College", and "If possible, the student should be present during the search," it is an attempt to uphold students rights.

We hope that in the future the administration will attempt to attain a satisfactory student representation on committees dealing with matters as important as Judicial Policy revision.

National Student Lobby

- How important to you is Federal Financial Aid?
  - ☐ I feel that increased funding is crucial.
  - ☐ I feel that current funding is adequate.
  - ☐ I don't have an opinion on this.
- Legislation is now being considered for students (regardless of age) and youth (under 20) to be paid 80% of the full minimum wage (that is, $1.60 when the minimum wage is made $2.00).
  - ☐ I feel that students/youth should be paid the full minimum wage.
  - ☐ I feel that students/youth should be paid 80% of the full minimum wage.
  - ☐ I feel that students/youth should be paid 80% when the Department of Labor feels an employer is making jobs.
- In regard to Presidential war-making powers...
  - ☐ I feel there should be Congressional approval before U.S. troops are committed more than a 30-day emergency period.
  - ☐ I do not favor Congressional curtailment of Presidential authority to commit troops.
- In regard to womens' issues...
  - ☐ N.S.L. should confine its activities to sex discrimination in higher education.
  - ☐ N.S.L. should also work on child care issues and the Equal Rights Amendment.
  - ☐ I feel sex discrimination is not a major problem.
- In regard to collective bargaining between faculty and students.
  - ☐ Students should participate in collective bargaining in an official capacity.
  - ☐ Students should not participate in collective bargaining in an official capacity.
- In December 1972, the C.A.B. cancelled air line "youth-fares".
  - ☐ I feel that students should pay full fare.
  - ☐ I feel that Congress should retain standby fares for persons under 22 (Provided that regular fares are not affected).
- I feel that N.S.L. should work on behalf of students in the following additional areas.

For years, politicians and educators have been speaking for students. Now, students are speaking for themselves. If you want to determine the priorities of the NATIONAL STUDENT LOBBY at its convention this month fill out this form and return it to the student association office.

REMEMBER, 8.5 MILLION STUDENTS DO HAVE POWER!

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:

I have noted with great appreciation, the efforts of several students and organizations recently planting I believe, several hundred trees and shrubs around the FSC campus, which surely needs them in many places. I wonder though, if during the upcoming summer vacation, could not the college's maintenance department place some protecting stakes and chicken wire (or something!) to insure that these plants grow straight and unmolested from passing humans, hungry grass mowers, or drifts of snow? Often I've seen shrubs and trees torn up, trampled, overrun, or bent into uselessness. Hopefully with some extra effort this fine project will not go entirely in vain.

Sincerely,
Duane E. Tressler

Dear Editor and staff of State-To-Date,

Your cartoon on page seven of your last issue of State-To-Date definitely showed a lack of common sense and basic intelligence. It should have been apparent to you as journalists, that the statement "hidden" in the picture was defamatory and that there was no reason for printing such a statement.

It is my understanding that the editorial staff of the paper thought that the statement that referred to me would shrink and become illegible once it was printed. Obviously, you were in error. I have been approached by many people concerning your cartoon. I am disturbed that State-To-Date could not find a better and less libelous method to put my name in the paper.

Sincerely, Ed Newman
(Editor's note: State-to-Date would like to apologize for any editorial oversight.)

Dear Editor,
I wish to apologize for any transgressions I may have directed toward Mr. Edward Newman in the last issue of State-to-Date.

Review: Let Us All Together Praise Niemann Son Of Mozart

by Thaddens

For some time, I looked forward to seeing "The Impresario," for none other than the simple reason that operatic performances are terribly rare at the F.S.C. campus. When I ran into the director, Vince Niemann, I jokingly promised to attend, and to write a favorable review. I most definitely attended, but my favorable review is no favor to Niemann. I actually enjoyed the show, and am sorry for all of you who missed it.

We were treated, in this opera, to performances by two very creditable actresses and outstanding singers, Christine Schoenemann and Karen Bauman. They played their respective characters with good humor and understanding, and sang their arias in such a way as to stun the musician and the nonmusical theatregoer alike. Even in larger operas than this one (which ran, by the way, no more than forty-five minutes) it is rare to hear two performances of such high calibre: clear executions of obviously difficult material.

Supporting these two ladies was Dr. Howard Adams, who gave his comic role a degree of wit and vitality that would make one wonder if, instead of being a faculty member, he might really be a student in disguise. His singing, too, was good, and it followed his character in lending ample support to the leading ladies. Aside from Dr. Adams, Niemann himself darted about the stage with a delightful sense of mischief that I'm sure Mozart himself would envy, and he lent his voice creditably, if not notably, to the singing of the finale. Last but not least, Ken Hudson gave the title role a realistic but hilarious sense of all the pomp and bombast that one might expect of a person who lets himself be called "The Impresario" and takes the title seriously.

My compliments to the cast as a unit fall to Vince Niemann, who obviously had a unifying influence on the group, who seemed at once happy to be with each other and eager to entertain an audience.

On the technical side, let me say with pleasure that the set very clearly depicted a room, as did the lighting (to the great delight of my archaic tastes). Costumes, while not being too elaborate, were well in keeping with the period of the play. Make-up was strictly functional: we saw the characters' faces pretty much as they are, with a little emphasis here and there to indicate such basic as age and attitude. All in all, there was an illusion created on Niemann's stage, and few, I think, would argue with my pleasure at taking it in.

The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Thomas Yeager, made an impressive operatic debut in this production. They were obviously well rehearsed, and displayed a collective enthusiasm for Mozart's lovely score. Their intonation was unusually good, and they were always very present with smooth entrances and generally good balance with the singers. Their presence lent the show an impressive dimension that is new to the Frostburg opera stage.

Now that it is over, I wish to thank Vince Niemann for an evening of good humor and fine music. Frostburg will miss him when he graduates, but the comic opera will continue here. I would say that if you missed "The Impresario," you missed a treat. The next time you see an opera announced in the coming season, don't miss it! I surely won't.

Spaghetti Dinner Draws 315

The pungent odor of rich Italian spices captured the noses of the residents and lured over 315 people to Allen Hall's Fifth Annual Italian Spaghetti Dinner on Sunday afternoon, April 29. Over three months of planning and preparation had been given to the Italian ordeal by custodian Nick Quartucci, his family and members of Allen's House Council. Tableware, furniture, and cloths were ordered, publicity began several weeks in advance, waiters and dishwashers were assigned to shifts, and tickets were distributed to all Allen Hall residents. Over $180 worth of ground beef, Italian bread, vegetables, spaghetti, sauce and other groceries were purchased ahead of time. The evening before the affair saw the making of over 1500 meatballs and the elaborate decorating that transformed the Allen Hall TV Room into the envy of any restaurant.

The crowd of students, faculty, administrators, and service workers, swelled by Parent's Weekend visitors, were served a heaping amount of spaghetti and meatballs covered with a thick rich sauce, tossed salad with homemade Italian dressing, buttered bread, and a choice of coffee, milk, or soda for a modest $1.50 investment. The evening was made even more enjoyable by the soft music and candle-lit atmosphere of the dinner.

Originally advertised as the Fourth Annual Dinner, it was later discovered that the festivity was actually the Fifth, since the first one held in 1967. The final tally proved the dinner a great success once again despite the huge increases in food costs; the dorm took in $490 in ticket sales and grossed over $222 after expenses.

Chef Quartucci cited the tireless efforts of his wife and family without whom the work would be impossible, plus two of his supervisors and the girlfriends of several residents. Most of all, Nick thanked the men of Allen who worked to make the Fifth Annual Dinner the best organized and coordinated of all. The special relationship between Nick and the men of Allen was expressed by a huge poster on a wall during the affair wishing Nick "arrivederci" on his upcoming summer visit to Italy which was signed by the residents and diners.

Focus on Politics '72 Contest Winner

NEW YORK-- With more than 30 winners in attendance, Newsweek and Konica Camera Corporation celebrated the official closing of their joint photo contest, "Focus on Politics '72", at a special awards party, on April 13, at Newsweek's Top of the Week.

Open to any photographer, professional or amateur, "Focus on Politics '72" ran throughout 1972. The contest was designed to capture the mood and spirit of election year '72 in photos, and the winning entries did just that. The entries recorded almost every aspect of the electoral process-- from people and places, to issues and events.

The winners at the party reported that the contest had in various ways, changed their lives. One young woman, a nurse, attended a demonstration on abortion reform strictly for the purpose of taking pictures for the contest. She became involved, and as a result, is now active in the movement. A young lawyer entered a photo of an elderly woman at an anti-war rally and through his chat with her, is now doing legal work for senior citizens. And another young struggling, professional photographer, Holly Bower, of New York City, commented that her winning has already helped her in her career as a still photographer. Women won 14% of the prizes.

From the more than 1000 entries, the judges selected 105 finalists. The first prize, a 1973 American Motors Gremlin, was awarded to Kenneth Conklyn of Miami, Florida; second prize, a Pan American 15-day Eastern European tour, to Ron Smith of Bloomington, Indiana; and third prize, a one-week Pan American tropical island vacation, to Bob Coyle of Dubuque, Iowa.

"TRANSPARENCIES"

An exhibition of contemporary paintings by Frostburg State College senior art major Becky Kingsolver will be on display for public viewing in the college's Fine Arts Gallery through May 17.

"Transparencies," as the show has been called by the artist, concerns itself with the exploration of the translucent qualities of acrylic paints and how these paints relate to acetate plastic as well as the traditional canvas as a painting ground. Through a process of overlapping colors and layers of painted acetate, Miss Kingsolver achieves the effect of an inner luminosity which enhances her non-objective "field paintings."

The gallery is open on Tuesday and Wednesday from 1 to 4 p.m. and on Thursday from 5 to 9 p.m.. There is no admission charge.

AAUW Scholarship

Jane K. Wendelin of Wheaton, Maryland and Betsy D. McCarney of Hagerstown were awarded $100 scholarships recently by the Frostburg Branch of American Association of University Women. Based on scholarship, leadership, and personality, the local awards are one part of an extensive scholarships-fellowships program operating at state, national, and international levels in which the local organization participates.

Jane, a sophomore French major with a cumulative point average of 3.979, plans to teach French or Spanish following graduation. She was elected to Pi Delta Phi, national honorary French fraternity, during her freshman year and has served as secretary this year. She has been active in residence hall government, Choral Union, and Lambda Phi Delta, academic-service sorority. She has played the guitar a number of times for the Mustard Seed Friday night coffee house. In addition to tutoring, she works summers for the Montgomery County Public Schools in the central office as an experienced typists.

An Early Childhood Education major, Betsy transferred to FSC from Hagerstown Junior College and has a cumulative point average of 3.55. During her 17 months or work with the Brethren Volunteer Service she was involved in medical research at the National Institute of Health, and worked in a migrant labor camp and a private kindergarten. At Hagerstown Junior College she was a member of the chorus, of Phi Theta Kappa, and was employed in the reading center. She is a member of Student Education Association and participates in SEA's tutoring program. She is a desk attendant in her dormitory and sings in the choir at the Welsh Memorial Baptist Church.

Jane and Betsy will be guests of the Frostburg AAUW at the annual anniversary luncheon to be held May 19 at Penn Alps restaurant.

Reading Courses

Two special courses in reading that are of particular interest to area teachers will be offered at Frostburg State College during its upcoming summer studies program.

A reading clinic course, (Education 26.650), will be offered during the second semester. The course involves the diagnosing and tutoring of children.

Also offered will be a course on teaching reading in secondary content areas, (Education 26.617). The course is of particular value to social studies and English teachers who need a reading course for certification renewal.

Detailed information on the courses and registration information may be obtained by calling the Office of Graduate Studies at Frostburg State College.

The reminder of this last chord pervaded the phantom silence before the din of dismantling began.

FSC Receives Pipe Organ

Due to the recent demolition of St. Paul's United Church of Christ in Pittsburgh, the large three manual pipe organ which had provided St. Paul's congregation with music for almost fifty years is now the property of Frostburg State College. When the church officials realized that their building was to be razed in order to make room for a new highway, they generously consented to donate the organ to the college, which at present has no suitable recital instrument. The organ, built in 1926 by the Tellers Organ Company of Erie, Pennsylvania, contains over 1200 pipes ranging in size from sixteen-foot tall wooden pipes to metal pipes one-half the size of an ordinary lead pencil.

Immediately following the last service on May 21, 1972, a crew of student volunteers under the supervision of Dr. George R. Plitnik, Assistant Professor of Physics at Frostburg State College, began disassembling the organ and loading the parts into moving vehicles provided by the Frostburg Foundation. This non-profit organization absorbed all cost incurred during the dismantling effort. Two weeks later, the weary crew returned to Frostburg driving three large trucks filled with pipes, wind chests, and a plethora of assorted organ components. Several of the returning students expressed surprise at the profuse number of parts, and all had a new respect and appreciation for the labor involved in dismantling a pipe organ. "I never worked so hard in my life!" gasped music major Will Gilliam as he and Fred Burton lugged the 300 pound motor up a rickety flight of stairs from the basement. Meanwhile, John Ault, Steve Vincent, Randy Sherwood, Jim Gaff and Thad Paulhamus strained at a block and tackle which had been rigged in order to bring a 400 pound windchest down ten feet to the floor. Robin McGill, Dale Evans and Howard Wilkerson busily packed the pipes carefully extracted from the windchests by Dr. Plitnik. The volunteers not only worked, but ate and slept within the church for the duration of their stay.

Returning to Frostburg on June 2, the organ was removed from the trucks and transferred to a large unused room above the Fidelity Bank on Main Street. After the renovations scheduled for Compton Auditorium have been completed, the organ will then be housed there for use as a recital instrument. Meanwhile, Dr. Plitnik, again with the aid of student enlistees, plans to completely rebuild the organ, enlarging it to a multipurpose instrument of approximately 1800 pipes in four divisions with a replacement value in excess of $70,000.

Miss Margaret E. Hamilton Retires

FROSTBURG- Miss Margaret E. Hamilton, associate professor of mathematics at Frostburg State College who retires this spring after 22 years of service to the college, was honored Saturday, May 5, by her colleagues and friends.

The special occasion at the Penn Alps Restaurant was sponsored by the college's department of mathematics and was attended by over 70 members of the faculty, administration and friends.

As a special tribute to Miss Hamilton the department of mathematics dedicated to her its fourth annual Mathematics Symposium which was held Friday, May 4.

In its salute the department said Miss Hamilton "is remembered by former students and colleagues for her devotion to excellence in teaching and her concern for the individual student. Trends in education may come and trends may go, but her success in teaching over the years points up the importance of the instructor in the educative process. Indeed, within the past few years, she has been teaching the "new math" to students whose parents learned the "old math" years ago under her able guidance. We extend our thanks to Professor Hamilton for the splendid service she has rendered to the teaching profession over the years, and we wish her good health and much happiness in her years of well-earned retirement."

Miss Hamilton is a native of Lonaconing and was graduated with honors from Western Maryland College in 1931. She earned a M.Ed. degree from the Pennsylvania State University in 1951 and also participated in mathematics institutes at Duke University and the University of Virginia.

Service to education by Miss Hamilton spans more than 40 years. In addition to teaching at Frostburg State College since 1951, she also taught mathematics at Oakland High School from 1931 to 1932, the Penn Avenue-Fort Hill High School from 1932 to 1949, and at Central High School in Lonaconing from 1949 to 1951.

During her career, Miss Hamilton held several offices including president of the mathematics section of the Maryland State Teachers Association and state president of the Alpha Beta organization of Delta Kappa Gamma, an international honorary fraternity for women educators. She also served as an advisor to the FSC Alumni Association from 1951 to 1963.

Miss Hamilton also holds membership in the Maryland State Teachers Association, Higher Education Council at Frostburg State College, National Education Association, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, Cumberland Branch of the American Association of University Women, Council of the Alleghenies, Eta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, and the Martha Washington Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Beall To Speak

U.S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, (R-Md.), will deliver the address at the 70th annual Commencement ceremonies at Frostburg State College on Sunday, May 27, it was announced today by Dr. Nelson P. Guild, president of the college.

On the Labor and Public Welfare Committee he serves on the subcommittees on Health, Education, Aging, Railroad Retirement, Migratory Labor, and Children and Youth.

Sen. Beall was educated in the public schools in Frostburg and Frostburg State College will confer nearly 650 undergraduate and graduate degrees at the public ceremonies scheduled for 2:30 p.m. on the college's quadrangle.

A native of Frostburg, Sen. Beall began his career in politics in 1962 when he was elected to the Maryland House of Delegates. He was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1968 and then to the U.S. Senate in 1970, a seat once held by his father, the late Sen. J. Glenn Beall, Sr.

In the Senate, he is a member of the standing committees on Commerce and Labor and Public Welfare, and on the Select Committee on Small Business. On the Commerce Committee, Sen. Beall serves on the subcommittees on Aviation, Surface Transportation, Merchant Marine, Consumer Affairs, and Foreign Commerce and Tourism.

Symposium

The Student Artist and Lecture Series Committee is planning a symposium on THE AMERICAN INDIAN for October 22 through November 22. This will involve speakers, displays of Indian crafts and art, movies, discussion, music and programs which will bring Indians to campus. This topic was the one receiving the most responses on our recent student-faculty poll. Any campus organizations and especially faculty members and departments who wish to become involved should contact John Lowe as soon as possible. We strongly encourage each department from Music to Biology to Sociology to include aspects of this symposium in their Fall curriculum. The resources we can furnish are virtually unlimited. A detailed Symposium schedule will be available in August.

at Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and then attended Yale University where he received an A.B. degree in 1950.

The Senator is married to the former Nancy Lee Smith and they have one daughter. He also has two brothers, George, the U.S. Attorney for Maryland, and Richard, a consulting engineer.

Proposal To Pres. Guild

(continued from page one) formation be dispersed throughout the college community by weekly editions of State-to-Date. Information from the Public Relations Office which deals directly with the College Community shall be channeled to State-to-Date where it will be printed. Also, the information for a Weekly Calendar, presently published by the College Center Office, shall be submitted weekly to State-to-Date.

The State-to-Date staff has agreed to take this responsibility providing that the information is turned in by their deadline, which is printed in each paper.

The Committee also recommended that all notices and announcements be directed to the proper vehicle of dissemination on campus. This is intended as a control for the mimeograph room, which is frequently acting as an advertising agency in fulfilling requests for abundant quantities of memorandums and flyers.

Rene Atkinson, of the Office of Public Relations, has agreed to publish a semester calendar of events from the dates submitted to the College Center by August 1.

With the Student Association's purchase of two new bulletin boards for the library and Chesapeake Dining Hall and the open-

by Pat Loftus

At the last regular meeting of the Student Association House of Representatives, Steve Hartley and Martin Welch introduced a motion which prohibits any chartered campus organizations (including fraternities and sororities) from using any of the facilities at Maplehurst Country Club in Frostburg because of the Club's denying membership to two Black applications on the basis of race.

Student Association President Joan Brooke explains this motion when she said, "Starting today, May 15, 1973, chartered organizations are not to use the Club until such time that they (the Club) drop their racially discriminatory membership policy." She added that the SA's position is in line with President Guild's decision to cut off all funds and official use by the College.

In a memorandum dated May 7, 1973, to the principal administrative officers and all the department heads, President Guild notified them that "I have found it necessary to prohibit the encumbrance or expenditure of any College funds, including activity and athletic fee funds, for events (whether or not sponsored formally by the College) at Maplehurst Country Club." He went on to say that Maplehurst's policy even though made by a private club, is directly in conflict with the policies of the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges and of this College itself.

Dr. Guild himself was offered an invitation to join when Maplehurst initiated a new membership drive last February. The first indication of a racial problem came about when a Black FSC Admissions Officer, Mr. William Atkinson was delayed an invitaing of the Lane College Center, it is hoped that communication will be further enhanced. A large activity board with the week's events will cover one wall of the new snack bar. An information desk will centralize campus-wide ticket sales, and the dialing of a phone number will provide information concerning all events on campus. There will be 600 mailboxes for use by off-campus students, which should aid the often-discussed problem of reaching the commuting students. In addition, the campus radio station may be piped into all areas of the Center.

Future objectives of the committee include proposing new legislation to the Student Association to decrease the visual pollution on campus. This includes regulations as to where flyers and notices may be placed, if a limitation should be established, and whether or not all material should be approved before it is posted. Finally, the committee intends to thoroughly investigate the issuing of unnecessary memorandums.

FSC To Boycott Maplehurst

tion until about a week later due to his racial background. When Mr. Atkinson did not receive his application, Dr. Guild became disturbed about it and called the Vice-President of Maplehurst and requested that Mr. Atkinson be sent an application. After Mr. Atkinson received his application Dr. Guild dropped the issue.

Eventually Maplehurst sent out invitations for membership to some other interested Black families and later received two Black applications. Word spread rapidly among members of the club that two Black applications were at hand and a "public" meeting of the Club's stockholders was held to discuss the issue where half of them spoke in favor of the applicants and half against. In the days that followed the meeting, a well-organized vocal minority of the membership got busy recruiting members of the Board of Directors at Maplehurst who believed as they did, they brought sufficient pressure by threatening to withdraw their support and individuals threatened to withdraw from the club; to boycott club room services and social events if the Board accepted the Black applicants. Pressure built to such an extent that a majority of the Board members became concerned and ultimately voted down the acceptance of the two Black applicants in order to continue the existence of the club.

One member of the FSC faculty who no longer actively participates at Maplehurst, Dr. Alan Rose feels, "deeply disappointed that what is perhaps a minority should have caused the Club to take this position."

When asked how he felt, Mr. Atkinson, who has been with Admissions since 1969 remarked,

"I was surprised that anything like this happened, because this was the first racial incident that I have encountered since being here in Frostburg."

The President of Maplehurst, Mr. George Hankins clarifies that the Board of Directors was aware that the Club could receive Black applications, and he as a member of the Board was strongly in favor of accepting these applications. He feels that Maplehurst is being overly penalized... "in spite of the fact we failed, even though we tried." "We are of the opinion," says Hankins, "that there has been an over-reaction on the part of the College. We feel that we were in the fore-front of any private clubs by granting applications to Blacks and considering their admittance."

Mr. Ron Fautz and Mr. Wayne Carlisle of the College's Office of Financial Aids were in the process of joining and withdrew their applications, requested and received refunds when they heard about the Club's racial policy.

"While I realize the club has a right to determine its own policy," says Carlisle, "I feel it's extremely unfortunate to base membership on a racial basis rather than on an individual's merits."

Both the SA and the Administration have written to Maplehurst explaining the official boycott of the Club facilities by the College. In spite of this, Mr. Hankins says the membership drive was an overall success with 61 new members to this date.

This prohibition, according to President Guild and the SA, will remain in effect as long as the discriminatory membership policy at Maplehurst remains in effect.

Pol Sci Lecture

"The third force (upon the Maryland General Assembly) up to this year has been the most powerful force-- that is Marvin Mandel." This was the theme of Del. Donald P. Hutchinson's (D., 5th, Baltimore County) remarks from his opening anecdote to the main body of his speech. Delegate Hutchinson of Baltimore county appeared in Gunter Hall on April 30 at 7:30 p.m. as part of the department of Political Science's Public Affairs Lecture Series.

De. Hutchinson cited the press and the lobbyists as the other two forces that were being exerted upon the members of the General Assembly. The subject of his speech was his reflections of the 1973 Maryland General Assembly.

The extraordinary occurrences of the 1973 session according to Del. Hutchinson were as follows: the arrest of Delegate James A. (Turk) Scott (D., 2d Baltimore) in the closing days of the session, the indictment of State Senator Clarence Mitchell, also of Baltimore, shortly after the session adjourned, and the "hands-off policy" that the Governor exhibited toward the General Assembly.

The Disclosure Bill introduced by State Senator Julian Lapidus was explained in great depth to the crowd of some sixty students, faculty and administration. Del. Hutchinson used the passage of this bill as an example of the influence that the press plays upon the General Assembly. He explained that Senator Lapidus introduced his bill involving only the disclosure by Maryland elected officials of land holdings. In its editorials the Baltimore Sun backed this bill plus full disclosure. This led to various Baltimore delegates, to whom the Sun's endorsement is important, to add various amendments making the proposal a full disclosure bill for all elected Maryland officials.

Del. Hutchinson, a 1967 F.S.C. graduate, is the first Political Science graduate from Frostburg State College to be elected to public office. In 1967, shortly after graduation exercises, he was elected to the Maryland Constitutional Convention. The following year he was appointed to serve the unexpired term of his father in the Maryland House of Delegates from Baltimore County. In addition to his seat in the Maryland House of Delegates, Del. Hutchinson is presently serving as the Executive Assistant to the Vice-President at Towson State College.

Del. Hutchinson remarked that he was "very discouraged by the General Assembly because it is not independent of the Governor." He further expressed the belief that "the legislature does not have the leadership--- to exert itself."

Doings In Sociology

by Dr. L.L. Kohler

One of the most functional and relevant courses on campus is the newly introduced "Introduction to Social Service" course under Dr. Kohler in the Department of Sociology.

This past semester, more than 40 F.S.C. students have been serving part time in numerous social service agencies in the greater Cumberland area.

The Department of Social Services and the Department of Juvenile Services have each accommodated large numbers of students. Other agencies involved are the Allegany County Home, Salvation Army, Department of Health, Allegany County Department of Probation and Parole, new Hope Center (mentally retarded), Frostburg Health Department, Victor Cullen School, Frostburg Counseling Center, and many others.

This summer, the Frostburg sociology staff will be not only busily occupied teaching summer sessions, but will be taking advanced courses themselves in various parts of the U.S. Dr. Hebert, Chairman, will be at U.C.L.A., Dr. Kohler will be taking post doctoral courses at the University of North Carolina, Mr. Crosby will be beginning his doctoral studies at the University of Kentucky.

Currently, Dr. Kohler and Mr. Bremseth have returned from meetings of the Eastern Sociological Society at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, New York, N.Y., and Mr. Crosby is attending meetings of Ohio Valley Sociological Society in Cincinnati, Ohio.

During the previous semester, field trips were made to Victor Cullen School, Hagerstown Correctional Institutes, Pennsylvania early settlements, Women's Correctional Institute in Jessup.

As a newly introduced major, sociology now enrolls more than 100. F.S.C. students as majors while servicing a great many more numerous elective courses.

Mayor's Task Force Advises Legalizing Marijuana

Washington Post, March 6, 1973
A 40-member task force appointed by Mayor Walter E. Washington to study narcotics use in Washington recommended yesterday that use and possession of marijuana be legalized in the city.

The mayor's Advisory Committee on Narcotics Addiction, Prevention, and Rehabilitation also suggested that the growth and distribution of marijuana could be regulated by the federal government.

There is "no demonstrable medical evidence to support the assertion that marijuana is hazardous to detrimental to the physical or mental health of the user," said the committee after four months of study.

Among the committee members are Superior Court Judge Harold H. Greene, D.C. School Supt. Hugh J. Scott, Assistant U.S. Attorney Harold H. Sullivan and D.C. Corrections Director Kenneth L. Hardy.

Congressional action would be needed to legalize marijuana use and possession in the District.

The committee said existing marijuana possession laws are "unduly severe" and recommended far-reaching changes in the federal policy concerning use of the drug, both here and elsewhere.

It suggested that the government develop a "control scheme" whereby the growth, manufacture and sale of marijuana could be regulated as to assure quality control and eliminate the possibility of commercial exploitation and underworld involvement.

The committee said that the cultivation and sale of marijuana could be controlled by licensing or by "direct government participation," similar to the operations of liquor outlets by some state alcoholic beverage control commissions.

The group urged an immediate study of the consequences of such a regulatory scheme.

Of particular significance to the recommendations is the composition of the committee. Its roster includes a cross section of the city's legal and medical professions, the judiciary and the local government and business establishments.

Chairman of the committee is Frank H. Rich, a business man and member of a number of civic organizations. Vice chairman is Charles T. Duncan, former D.C. corporation counsel.

According to Rich, only three members asked to be publicly listed as dissenters to the legalization proposal. They are Police Chief Jerry V. Wilson, Attorney Edward Bennett Williams, and William Dinsmore, of the White House Office of Management and Budget. Dr. James L. Jones, the mayor's director of youth services, abstained from taking a position on the proposal.

Rich said two other members raised objections to parts of the committee's report and dissented privately. He declined to identify them.

A District Building spokesman said the mayor would not comment on the recommendations until he has studied the report.

However, some congressional sources predicted stiff opposition to any legislation to legalize the use of marijuana and doubted that such a measure would ever be sent to Capitol Hill by the mayor.

"I can't believe this is going to be put forward by the city government," said a source in the Senate District Committee. "If it is, it will have extremely tough sledding."

One of the members of the narcotics task force, Attorney Roderick Boggs, said that the Federal Controlled Substance Act would have to be amended by Congress to permit legalized marijuana use here. He noted that only one other city—Ann Arbor, Mich.—has decriminalized simple marijuana use and possession by making it a civil offense punishable by a $5 fine.

The task force cited what it termed a "vast difference" between the use of marijuana and the use of heroin, amphetamines, barbiturates and hallucinogenic drugs. "It is our opinion that the law should reflect in its penalties, the reality of the difference," the task force said.

However, it warned that without accompanying regulation of the growth, sale and advertising of marijuana, there is a danger of "unrestrained commercial exploitation."

Rich said he anticipated law enforcement opposition to the recommendation, but, describing the task force as a "representative voice of the community," he said the issue should be debated publicly.

Thinclads Perform Well

The Frostburg State Track Team pushed its dual-meet record up to 4 wins and 3 losses last Saturday by defeating California State College in its last home meet of the season. The meet also marked the end of the regular dual-meet season for Frostburg.

When asked of his reaction to the season as a whole, Track Coach Robert Lewis replied, "I wasn't as satisfied with our season record this year, but I was pleased with a lot of the freshmen and sophomore performances." He went on to note the numerous class records which were broken, particularly in the distance - running and field events.

One new school individual record was set by sophomore Dave Stuckwisch, who turned in a swift 4:26 mile. School relay records were set in the two mile, by a foursome made up of Ray Lackey, Bruce Appleton, Dana Cunningham, and Denny Green, with a time of 7:59.2. In the four mile relay, Lackey, Stuckwisch, Stan Fletcher, and Rick Woods teamed up to break the old school record by posting a time of 18:37.8. ( All new records set this season can be found elsewhere on this page.)

At the beginning of this season, Coach Lewis, who has never had a losing season at Frostburg, expressed concern about the probabilities of a winning season, because of the number of seniors lost to graduation. However, some unexpectedly good performances were turned in by underclassmen which helped the team tremendously. With only two seniors graduating this year, ( Denny Green & Kent Zimmerman ) next season's squad will be more experienced and better rounded.

Coach Lewis expects, perhaps, the best crop of incoming freshmen ever next year, and as a result, he feels the Cross Country Team will also be strengthened.

On Saturday, May 12, the Frostburg thinclads will compete in the Pitt Invitational, thus ending the season. There are excellent facilities at Pitt so there should be even more records broken before the team calls it quits for the season.

JV Baseball Team Looks Impressive

The JV Baseball team, the first since 1968, has a record of 5-1 through May 6. On April 14, the JV split a double header with Catonsville Community College, winning the 1st game 6-4 on a Jim Thompson grand slam home run, and losing the nightcap 16-0. In other games this season, victories were recorded over Garrett Community College and Bishop Walsh High School. On May 6, the JV traveled to Slippery Rock, Pa., for a double header, but Slippery Rock's team did not show. As a result of these two forfeits, the JV record was upped to 5-1.

The team consists primarily of Freshmen and two or three Sophomores. Leading the hitters is Freshman Jim Thompson, who has an average of .380. Providing additional power are John Bateman, John Tegetoff, Craig, Wengerd, and Rick Johnson. Johnson has two homers this season.

The defense is led by second-baseman Tom McMahon, and outfielders Marty Harris and Chuck Everly.

The brunt of the pitching is being handled by Doug Colletti. The little left-hander could be a valuable addition to the varsity next year. Rounding out the mound corps are Wille Monroe and Ron Miller.

As with the varsity, the JV have a number of games rained out this season.

The JV team is coached by Senior Jeff Middleton, who feels that a good number of those players will definitely contribute to the varsity in the upcoming season.
