SHOPPING IN SALISBURY

A Pleasing and Profitable Task—Buyers Reading The Advertiser Before Making Selections.

This is the season of the year when everyone is looking for something to remember their friends and family—as well as their other dear ones. The children are to be made happy by the many little toys, trinkets, and the other little trifles which do so much to make the Christmas season, one of the happiest in childhood days. The other members of the family are to be remembered by other more costly and substantial gifts. Everyone who can by any means afford to give gifts at all—and some who cannot—are looking around for something that will please those whom they wish to remember.

Salisbury is very different today from what it was a few years ago and the buyers will find that here at home a great variety of goods can be bought. Our merchants are now carrying a line large enough to meet almost any taste or pocket-book and the necessity for making purchases from home is done away with.

Salisbury has long been noted for the enterprise of its business men, and its merchants have always kept well in line with this spirit. Let one walk through our business streets and go through our well filled stores, and if not familiar with the class and quantity of goods being kept in Salisbury, he will be very much surprised and if a native or resident of this city, he will feel proud of the enterprise and push of the merchants of his native city.

Those who are considering a trip to some of the large cities to purchase their Christmas presents, will do well to investigate and see what our home people are offering before they take the trip.

In the columns of the ADVERTISER will be found the advertisements of the leading merchants of Salisbury and a careful perusal of these advertisements will give one some idea of the goods being offered for the holiday season. All of the leading merchants advertise through the ADVERTISER and we recommend to our readers that they peruse carefully what they have to offer and say.

LIGHTS UP PATIENT

Finds A Pin—Surgeon By Daring Feat Drains It From Girl's Lungs.

Little Margaret Van Kleek was taken back to New York by her parents after having successfully passed through a remarkable operation at Pittsburgh, Pa. The child, 14 months old, swallowed an open safety pin and nearly choked to death, but the pin, lodging deeper in the esophagus, permitted her after a time, to breathe. The frantic parents were advised in New York that the only way the pin could be removed was by cutting, an operation that would in all probability mean death.

The parents had heard of a remarkable operation performed by Dr. Chevalier Jackson, of Pittsburgh, and carried little Margaret there. By means of the X-ray the open safety pin was located. The child was placed on the table, and a tube inserted in the esophagus, being passed down until it reached the pin. Through this tube was passed a small incandescent globe, illuminating the passage to the pin.

The point of the pin lay in such a position that to remove it without first manipulating it would have forced it into the lung. With a specially prepared instrument Dr. Jackson finally turned it in such a position that with a slender hook, he caught it by the ringed end and drew it through the tube. The operation required 20 minutes.

The parents of the child were astounded when informed that the operation had not required the knife. The feat is claimed as one of the most daring performed by Dr. Jackson.

Wife Hunting Troublesome.

John N. Furbush, a wealthy farmer residing a few miles from Delmar, Md., who sent out an advertisement for a wife a few weeks ago, in which he promised a wedding gift of $5,000, is having more trouble in obtaining one than he bargained for. Every day brings him hundreds of replies from those anxious to join him in matrimony, but thus far he has been unable to make a selection. Many of the replies he receives contain the photos of beautiful maidens. Mr. Furbush is a widower, 65 years old.

About a week ago he announced that he had decided to marry a woman living in East Oakland, Cal., but since then he has changed his mind and keeps on advertising.

"The girls of the East are not my style," he said. "They think too much about frill, instead of trying to make a home happy. Although I do not expect a wife of mine to do much work, I want her to know how to bring sunshine into a household."

SUICIDE ON MAIN STREET

Another Sad Occurrence Ending Young Woman's Life.

Salisbury was shocked on Wednesday morning to learn that another suicide had taken place in its midst. Mrs. Pearl Briddell, about twenty years of age was found dead in her room in the boarding house conducted by Mr. Thomas Howard, 228 Main Street. A piece of pie lay beside her and an empty bottle labelled strychnine close by. It is supposed that she had taken her life by sprinkling the pie with the poison and eaten it.

A letter addressed to Mr. George Davis, 509 East Vine Street was found in the room. The contents of the letter were "George Darling, goodbye. From your own Pearl."

Mrs. Briddell came to this city about a year ago and had been employed in the different factories of Salisbury, until a short time ago, when she secured work as a domestic in the home of Mrs. E. W. Whayland, at the Maryland Hotel. She left this position last Monday night and Tuesday she applied for board at the Howard house and was assigned to a room there. According to the statement of Mrs. Howard, she called Mrs. Briddell early Wednesday morning. Mrs. Briddell left her room, returning about nine o'clock. It is believed that she had been to the shirt factory here to get employment and had been unsuccessful.

About noon, after rapping on the door of her room several times without any response, Mrs. Howard becoming alarmed, called her husband, who opened the window and found the lifeless body lying at full length on the bed. Mrs. Briddell had probably been dead for two hours. Part of a slice of apple pie on the dresser was filled with strychnine. She had evidently saturated the pie with the poison and then eaten it.

A glimpse into the court records of Wicomico throws light on another phase of the suicide. On April 27 she filed the first papers in divorce proceedings, in which she asks for a separation from her husband, Leroy A. Briddell, on statutory grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Briddell were married at Marion, Somerset county, in March 1908. The decree had not been granted. The coroner's jury, summoned by Acting Coroner W. A. Trader, rendered a verdict of suicide. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Holloway and was later claimed by her father, Charles McGee, farmer, about three miles from Salisbury.

Boy Badly Cut On Street Wednesday.

Homer Jones, about 15 years of age was badly cut by a colored boy by the name of Pete Hearn, on Wednesday of this week. It is rumored that the trouble arose over nothing at all, in front of the Moving Picture show.

According to other reports, the white boy struck the colored one and that the colored boy then cut him. After the cutting Pete left town and could not be found for some time.

On Friday morning the mother of the boy found him and brought him before Police Justice Trader. He was placed in jail pending a hearing and to await the outcome of the cutting.

Homer Jones is in the Peninsula General Hospital and is reported to be in a very serious condition.

—Mrs. R. D. Greer, entertained the 300 club on Tuesday evening.

LOT OF BIRDS SEIZED

This Time They Were To Be Checked As Baggage To Philadelphia—262 Partridges, 28 Woodcocks.

One of the biggest lot of birds ever captured here was taken in hand by the authorities on Friday. The birds were in a trunk which had been checked to Philadelphia. There were 262 partridges and 28 woodcocks in the lot. The trunk had been checked by a boy with a mileage book and not understanding his instructions he had failed to wait for the baggage check. The railroad authorities looked around and tried to find the man to whom the check belonged and failing to do so did not ship the trunk on the express. In handling it was found to be very heavy and unwieldy, so much so that their suspicions were aroused. From the way it felt it was thought a dead body might have been placed in it, so they decided to open and inspect the contents.

On opening the trunk the finest lot of birds ever seen by many of them was brought to view. The railroad immediately notified the county officials of the find, and the birds were brought to Squire Trader's office by Chief of Police Disharoon. Messrs. Miles and Stanford, attorneys for the railroad, were notified, and Mr. Stanford, of that firm, came to Salisbury on the afternoon train.

The confiscated birds were sold in front of the Court House on Friday afternoon.

The only identification the authorities have as to the shipper is in the number of the book of mileage upon which the trunk was checked, and it is understood that they know the man the book belonged to. It is further reported that the railroad authorities have stated that it was some one by the name of "Hearn."

SOUTH SALISBURY GIRL

In Moment of Despondency Takes Bichloride Of Mercury—Saved By Prompt Medical Aid.

A hurry call for quick medical help was made to Dr. H. O. Toll, yesterday afternoon. He answered the summons at once and on his arrival in South Salisbury, found Miss Edna Beauchamp, the eighteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Beauchamp, suffering intense pain.

At two o'clock, believing she had nothing more to live for, she swallowed seven and three quarter grains of bichloride of mercury—which would easily have taken her away from earthly habitation.

Fortunately the physical torture was very great and in good time she saw some of the sunshine that always remains to make life worth living.

Repeating, she told her mother what she had done, and a little after 2.30 Dr. Toll with a good strong stomach pump, soon had her out of danger, gave her relief and outside of considerable soreness caused by the bichloride, the world have been victim in now as good as new.

A love affair is supposed to have been the cause of her rash act.

Salisbury Delighted With Friday Eve's Concert.

A musical concert given by Miss Leonard, of Cambridge, on Friday night of last week, was one of the most artistic and delightful events of this character ever received in Salisbury, and the hearty appreciation of the audience was frequently evidenced by the spontaneous applause and enclosures. To attempt individual criticism would be to invite charges of partiality which could hardly obtain in a musical concert with such a trio of finished artists in their respective repertoires as Miss Nettleton, Miss Freby and Mr. Kaspar.

Salisbury would be glad to welcome them oftener, and Miss Leonard is to be congratulated on her discerning selections.

MARRIAGES IN COUNTY

Several Couples Unite For Better, For Worse.—Jackson—Austin.

Mr. Herman C. Jackson, of Salisbury, and Miss Ada Austin, of Maryland, were married at 8.30 o'clock Thursday evening in the M. P. Church at Maryland by Rev. A. A. Harriman, pastor of the church. Mr. K. Wood S. Bell, of Reeds Grove, acted as best man, and Miss Dora Austin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bride wore a handsome gown of white silk with silver trimmings and carried white chrysanthemums. Her tulle veil was caught up with orange blossoms. The maid of honor wore pink silk and carried pink chrysanthemums. The wedding march from Lohengrin, was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Roland Taylor, of Salisbury. The ushers were Mr. Rodney L. Austin, brother of the bride, Mr. Guy F. Jackson, brother of the groom, Mr. John E. Wallace, of Hebron, and Mr. Chas. W. Bennett, of Salisbury. After the ceremony, the bride changed her wedding gown for a traveling suit of grey with hat and gloves to match, and the happy couple left immediately for a northern wedding trip. After their return they will reside in Salisbury. They were the recipients of many useful presents.

Miss Florence M. Kibbles and Mr. Henry K. Taylor were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kibbles in Salisbury, by Rev. G. P. Jones. They left on the express for a tour north. Upon their return they will reside on Smith St., this city.

Miss Carrie Gayle, of Urbans, Va., was married Thursday, November 26, to Dr. Jones of that place. Miss Gayle is well known in Salisbury, having lived here with her father Rev. R. F. Gayle, who was president elder of the Southern Methodist church.

On Wednesday at the M. E. parsonage, Mr. E. Raymond Elliott and Miss Alice M. Farlow, both of this city, were married by Rev. T. E. Martindale, D. D.

Mr. Tilghman Elected.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Salisbury Building and Loan Association, Mr. Wm. B. Tilghman, Jr., was elected to fill the vacancy in the Board caused by the death of Dr. F. M. Slumons. Mr. Tilghman will also be a member of the Examining Board. Mr. Tilghman is one of Salisbury's active young business men. He is the son of the late Wm. B. Tilghman, who was one of the founders of the institution, and its President from the date of its organization to his death. The vacancy in the Presidency of the Board was filled by the election of Mr. L. W. Gunby. The Vice-president vacancy caused by the election of Mr. Gunby to the Presidency, was not filled.

Humphreys' Dam Opened

The bridge over Humphreys Dam was completed and opened to traffic this week, by contractor Ois Lloyd. This street has been closed to traffic every since the dam over the pond broke several months ago, and has been a great inconvenience to the residents who live in South Salisbury.

The work on Camden Bridge, which was commenced at the time of the overflow, was commenced this week. This work has been delayed until the bridge over the dam was fixed as the Commissioners did not want to stop traffic over both bridges at the same time.

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Salisbury Will Show You Now.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it. But it won't cure it. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it: Reach the cause; relieve the pain. They cure too, Salisbury people say. John H. Connelly, 806 E. Lombard Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and I know of no remedy more suited for kidney complaint than they. When in Virginia, I was obliged to drink impure water and soon after my kidneys became disordered, causing my back to grow very weak. At that time I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I was given relief."

I recently procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at White and Leonard's drug store to have on hand in case of need."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FASHION GOSSIP

From New York. Simple Evening Frocks; Dancing Gowns; Black The Craze Of The Moment; Draped Effects.

Dance Fashion is a lady of many moods and while some of her designs are costly and over elaborate, others are simple and oh! in the extreme. For it is more the way the evening frock is cut and draped that what it happens to be made of that counts this season.

Short Dancing Frocks.

Very many of the newest evening gowns have short skirts. The narrow train of last summer is out of date and rounder lines prevail. This fashion is hailed with delight by many women as short skirts are much more economical and appropriate for dancing than long trailing garments. Some of these dresses made of chiffon or net are prettily trimmed around the neck with garlands of artificial flowers or touches of gold and silver tissue. They are out delectable and have very short sleeves.

A New Idea In Evening Coats.

A charming new idea in evening coats has just been introduced in New York that will most certainly delight the heart of the girl whose last year's coat need freshening a little to bring it up to date. The very newest coats made with collarless necks or with collars turning away from the throat have a long scarf of chiffon or net in the color of the coat or its lining, attached to one side of the neck. This is swathed several times around the throat and falls over the coat in front.

The Vogue For Black.

There is a perfect craze for black in the fashionable world at present. Street frocks, evening gowns, hats and furs are all extremely modish in this sable hue. And to accompany these toilettes are well out shoes of patent leather or calf skin. With these the finest of black stockings are worn. Clever shoppers have discovered that it is possible to obtain dainty fineness of texture in the fashionable black hosiery by selecting Ethiopian Double foot stockings which are sheer from the instep up and have the foot woven so that they outlast heavier hose.

For presents nice fine shapely stockings are very much appreciated and it is not difficult to embroider small scattered designs or since plain styles are popular one can confine all the fineness to the package, making it pretty with ribbons and seals.

A Lovely Frock.

The designers of some of the newest frocks seem to have gone mad over draperies. These naturally do not appear in tailor gowns but run riot in dressy frocks of soft sheer materials. A lovely gown of soft blue woolen had a waist laid in pleats on each side of a plain vest of fancy gold net. The a feature of some of the latest waists. Many artificial flowers are used with evening gowns. These garnitures are worn at the décolletage or waist line. Long hair pins and combs made of shell and imitations of tortoise and amber with square tops are seen in the modish doings. Lucy Carter.

Sermon by CHARLES T.
RUSSELL
Pastor Brooklyn
Tabernacle.

WEeping ALL NIGHT

"Weeping May Endure For the Night, but Joy Cometh In the Morning" (Psalm xxx, 5).

Sunday, November 21.—Pastor Russell, of Brooklyn Tabernacle, preached today to a crowded house from the above text. He said:—

No other book treats the matter of human woe and sorrow in the wise, tender, sympathetic, helpful manner of the Bible. It assures us that however cold, heartless and disappointing the world may be and our friends may be, or those from whom we may have expected better things, we have, nevertheless, a God of sympathy—a God of love. No heathen religion knows anything of such a God. With them God's attributes are merely more or less of ferocity. Their gods are to be placated and worshipped from fear of what they otherwise would do to their creatures. The God of the Bible assures us of his love, his sympathy, in all of our distresses—his interest in our affairs and his provision for the ultimate welfare of all those who will come into the attitude of loving righteousness and hating iniquity—of only proper attitude of heart, the only one which he can approve and bless with everlasting life.

A Night of Sorrow and Death. The Scriptures point out to us what we recognize to be the truth—that the world has been under a veil of blight and curse of death for six thousand years. Appropriately, our text describes this period as a dark time of hard, blighting experiences, a night of weeping—of sorrow. In harmony with this figure it declares that "darkness covers the (civilized) earth and gross darkness the heathen."

Not alone does this condition affect those who are in alienation from God through ignorance and superstition and the power of sin, but it affects also those who have accepted the grace of God, who have turned their backs upon sin and who are seeking to walk in the narrow way, in the footsteps of Jesus. Well does the Apostle say, "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the first-fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption; to wit, the redemption of our Body."—the Body of which Jesus is the head and of which we are symbolical members of an underpriesthood (Romans vii, 22, 23).

There is a difference, however, between the Church and the world in this groaning, as suggested by the Apostle's words. The world groans aloud without alleviation, and even its waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God is a waiting in ignorance; for, being out of touch with the Eternal One, they know not of his gracious purposes and arrangements—for these are kept secret from all except his sanctified ones. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear (reverence) him; and he will show them his Covenant" (Psalm xiv, 14). These who possess the secret of the Lord "sorrow not as others who have no hope" (1 Thessalonians iv, 13). They "groan inwardly" and wait for the glorification of themselves and all the brethren, members of the symbolical Body of Christ, by participation in the First Resurrection. The hopes of these must be realized first, before the blessing can come to the "groaning creation" in general. The latter are waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God; namely, the Church in glory.

A Light in a Dark Place. The Bible represents itself as being the candle of the Lord, the lamp of Divine Truth and enlightenment. But it tells us that its light is not for the world—either now or at any time future. Its light is only for those who by faith and obedience unto consecration seek to walk in the footsteps of Jesus. They need the light. God provides it for them. These are represented by the Prophet as saying to the Lord, "Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path" (Psalm cxix, 105). This light evidently does not shine far into the future, but enough for each onward step as it becomes due.

St. Peter amplifies the same thought. After telling us of the assurance which he himself and his associates had upon the Mount of Transfiguration when they beheld "the vision" (Matthew xvii, 1-9) of the Lord miraculously transformed and with him Moses and Elijah and heard the voice from heaven, it was "forbearance" to their "vision" in the coming of our Lord in glory, in due time. Nevertheless, says the Apostle, honoring the Bible above any vision, "We have a more sure word of prophecy: whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise" (2 Peter i, 19). Indicating that the morning is at hand and that the Sun of Righteousness will soon fulfill its mission of blessing all the families of the earth.

But Why Is This True? Why does God permit the reign of sin and death, injustice, unrighteousness, sorrow, trouble, pain, headaches, heartaches, etc.? Why does he not deal with humanity graciously, kindly lovingly, as a Father—as he deals with the angelic sons of God? Is it just or loving on the part of our Creator to bring forth millions of his creatures under these admittedly unfavorable conditions—beset by weaknesses and sinfulness from their birth and surrounded by others similarly weak, and beset by Satan and his minions—wicked spirits? Is it just that we should thus be in an unequal fight subjected to weaknesses and dying and imperfect conditions on account of the sin of our first parents and then, on the same account, be in danger of an eternity of torture with nine hundred and ninety-nine chances out of a thousand against us? No, thank God, that thought of eternal torture which came down to us from the dark ages, and which we for a time supposed to be Biblical, we now know is quite unscriptural, when judged in the light of the Bible's own testimony. The eternal torment doctrine assuredly is not of God, not of the Bible, but, as St. Paul declares, one of the "doctrines of devils."

The inheritance of weaknesses, blemishes, sorrows, pain and trouble, to which we were born, is quite sufficient, and according to the Scriptures, these are all part of death, and all reach their culmination in death, which is the real penalty for sin prescribed by our Creator. The fact that these blemishes still continue with the race proves that their sins are not yet blotted out, and to this agree the Scriptures which point us to the oncoming glorious day of blessing, a thousand years long, the Millennium, in which Divine blessing will be bestowed upon every member of Adam's race. The merit of Christ's sacrifice, the ransom-price for sinners which he laid down, will by that time be made available "for the sins of the whole world."

The merit of that sacrifice has already been applied to the Church—"The household of faith"—since Pentecost. It has brought to this class very special privileges, though very different ones from those it will bring to the world during the Millennium. The willing and obedient of the world will then get restitution gradually (Acts iii, 20), back to human perfection and a world-wide Edenic home. The blessing upon the Church is different. The promise now made to those who can and will walk by faith and not by sight is a heavenly one. They are to have a heavenly or spiritual reward and in their resurrection become partakers of the divine nature and have no share thereafter in human nature. The conditions of the present time are severe, proportionately to the greatness and grandeur of their heavenly calling. The terms of acceptance to the divine nature include not only faith and love, but a self-sacrificing will. These sacrifice their earthly resurrection rights and privileges for the sake of suffering with Christ, that they may also reign with him in his Millennial Kingdom.

Learning by Suffering. The same thought is elsewhere expressed. Only those who have heard his voice and obey him as the Teacher sent of God will be successful in their endeavor to become members of the "Royal Priesthood," now being selected from the world. Only those who, during the Millennial Age, will hear and obey will there receive this great blessing of eternal salvation—eternal life under Divine favor, free from the curse. The reward to the world in the close of the Millennium and the reward to the Church in the close of this Gospel Age will each be eternal salvation; but the Church's reward will include eternal glory, heavenly glory, and joint-heirship with the Redeemer himself in his great work of administering God's blessings to the world of mankind, as Mediator of the New Covenant between God and men—the world.

It seemed wise to our Heavenly Father that our Lord Jesus should learn obedience through sufferings and be tested in respect to his willingness to endure suffering for righteousness' sake. How appropriate it is that the same Father should make similar arrangements for all of the Church, whom he will receive from amongst the race of Adam to be members of the Royal Priesthood under Jesus, the High Priest of our order. We see a necessity for this, not only as respects our own testings and a thorough proof of our own heart-loyalty to the Lord, but additionally we see a wisdom on God's part in thus preparing a priest-hood of the future. The term priest as recognized amongst the Jews was not merely one who offered sacrifices, although every priest was of necessity a sacrificer. The special mission of the priestly tribe amongst the other tribes was that of instructing, helping, teaching, and so on. And so God is preparing a Royal Priesthood for the Millennial Age to bless, to heal, to teach, to uplift all the willing and obedient of humanity.

The royalty of the priesthood signifies that it will no longer be a sacrificing class, for all sacrificing will be at an end. It will be a glorious class, royal, of the divine nature, and representatives with our Lord Jesus of the Divine power. As priests who will have to do with judging and chastening, healing and helping humanity, how much sympathy do we suppose that these Royal Priests should have? Are they not to be on the Divine plane of glory, "members of the Body" of Messiah, the great kingly priest after the order of Melchizedek? And of him has not the Apostle written that he must be a faithful and merciful High Priest, able also to sympathize with the people in their infirmities? Does he not declare that it was for this reason that our Lord was touched with a feeling for humanity's infirmities? And is it not in perfect keeping with this that all those accepted as "members of his Body" should have such experiences in this sacrificing time as would demonstrate their loyalty to the Lord and guarantee their deep sympathetic interest in the world, then committed to their care? To such will be committed the work of human restoration, uplift, out of sin and death conditions—mental, moral and physical?

The Morning of Joy. How glad we should be that our Heavenly Father's sympathy for us will provide "a morning of joy" to be ushered in, in his "due time." Additionally he sympathizes with us to the extent that he has given us in advance a message, and Revelation and explanation to comfort us, to sustain us in the way? We have already seen that this Revelation is only for those who have the eyes of faith and the ears of faith at the present time. "Blessed are your eyes, for they see; and your ears, for they hear." "He that hath an ear let him hear."

We recognize the wisdom of God in withholding the secret of his plan from the world in general. We recognize that for the world to know the deep things of God at the present time would be injurious rather than helpful to them. It might possibly work an interference with the Divine Program. Nevertheless we are bound to sympathize with the poor groaning creation in its blindness and ignorance. The poor world, knows not why it came into being. In an animal fashion, eating, drinking, etc., it seeks to use the opportunities of present life and, after a few short years full of trouble, it goes down into the tomb, ignorant of the purposes of its creation, and usually considerably enthralled by fear respecting the future beyond the portals of death.

How we may rejoice in spirit as we perceive the length and breadth and height and depth of the Divine Program for the future and the blessings which it will bring to this "groaning creation!" How we long for the time to come when the Church shall be made ready through the sufferings of this present time for the glories of the future—the Kingdom! No wonder the Apostle declares, "He that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as he [the Lord] is pure [1 John iii, 3]. He is our exemplar, our pattern. We seek to copy him, and we cannot hope to be like him in the flesh, we can be like him in the spirit of our minds and thus be of the character-likeness which the Father will be pleased to honor with a share in the "First Resurrection." By that glorious "change" we shall be made like him actually and see him as he is and share his glory.

The morning of joy, the Millennial Morning, of course, cannot be ushered in until the rising of the Sun of Righteousness. His beams of grace and Truth will flood the earth with the light of the knowledge of the glory of God to such a degree that it will drive out, expel, all ignorance, superstition and sin, which have worked such havoc in our race.

But what is this Sun of Righteousness? Whence comes it? The Bible answers the question by telling us that it symbolically represents the Lord himself and the elect Church of this Gospel Age. The Sun of Righteousness is a synonym for the Seed of Abraham, of whom it is written, "In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed." The Mystery hidden for a time from many is the fact that the Church is to share with her Lord in every feature of his glorious work, not only in suffering, but also in reigning. Thus we have St. Paul's assurance that the overcomers will be members of the Seed of Abraham (Galatians iii, 29). And we have our Lord's own words that this faithful class will be represented in the great Sun of Righteousness, the great Messiah, the great Prophet, Priest, King and Mediator between God and men (Matthew xiii, 43).

"What Manner of Persons." St. Peter, in viewing the prospects of the Church, inquires as to "what manner of persons we ought to be in all manner of holy living and godliness." He refers to us, who know that the present order of things is the reign of sin and death from which our Lord died to deliver us. What manner of persons ought we to be, who have heard the Lord's invitation to joint-heirship in his Kingdom, and who know that we are now on trial to determine by our voluntary course our worthiness or unworthiness of that glorious position to which we have been called by God's favor! How paltry, how insignificant, do all the affairs of the world appear in comparison to this great prize set before us in the gospel!

And what should be our attitude towards the world, seeing from this inside standpoint of Divine Revelation the real condition of the world and God's sympathy for it? Its ignorance should make us very sympathetic, and very much disposed to lend a helping hand of relief in every possible manner. We should be ever ready to remove the scales of blindness from the mental vision of all who give indication of a desire for God—any who seem to be "feeling after God," if haply they might find him (Acts xvii, 27). Only such will be ready for the Kingdom, fit for the Royal Priesthood, every member of which must be "touching with a feeling" for earth's infirmities.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address: Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root. If you do you will be disappointed.

"Whoso Findeth A Wife"

By Helen Ellsworth Wright

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Abner Bennet frugally removed his black cotton gloves and thrust them into the folds of his new dress, still crisp in the folds of his newness, into his pocket. From another pocket he drew a time-worn bandana, then he gazed down at the freshly heaped mound, white under its quilt of calla and laurustinus flowers.

"Anne was a good wife," he said, brokenly. "She took good care of me in all the three years that we lived together."

A half-dozen men, awkward in their seldom-used best clothes, were unhitching teams from the scrub oaks in the little cemetery. A group of women closed around the mourner. Their sympathy opened the front of his tears.

"Anne was a good wife," he repeated; "and the house'll seem empty—empty as a mud-dauber's nest in July."

Instinctively his gaze turned to Emmeline Riggs and dwelt there, demanding pity. It was Emmeline who had been his early love. That was in the days before Martha, the first wife, or Cordella, the second; it was Emmeline's commission—her cinnamon bread and lemon-plex—that had turned his widowhood into periods of mitigated mourning.

"Man is of few days and full of trouble," he quoted, his eyes again on the mound. "He cometh forth like a flower and is cut down." A gulping sob interrupted the obituary. "Anne knew that—she knew the enduring strength of women folks. It was Anne who fumigated trees when the orchard got the black scale pest. It was Anne who, when the cook took her with anthrax—He stopped, overcome. "I can't go back there now!" he cried; "I can't do it!"

Emmeline's eyes radiated compassion; she spoke for the company. "No one's planning that you should," she said.

The sun slanted shadows to the east when the teams wound up through acres of sprouting grain, through an orchard pink with petals, in the unpainted house clinging, like a barnacle, to the hill. There were rocks about the back door; there were more rocks at the front. In economy Abner Bennet had selected for the home the one place where nothing else would grow. Emmeline's glance drifted comparingly from the site to a grass-padded knoll studded with white oaks; then she thought of the three worn-out women put away in the cemetery, and a longing came to avenge them.

It was Abner who helped her from the backboard. At the kitchen door he laid his hand on her sleeve.

"Emmeline," he said, impressively, "a prudent wife is from the Lord. Anne was prudent. She always used rubbish for lighting fires and saved the hardwood for baking. She used half a spoonful of coffee to a cup, and the shell of an egg for clearing. If the pearly gates were ajar to-day and Anne was to be peeking out, I'd like to have her see things done her way."

Emmeline's eyes narrowed; she opened her lips and snapped them into a resolute line.

Within the kitchen a box stood behind the stove. It was filled with dried almond-shucks and corn-husks. A patched bonnet still hung on a nail behind the door. On the floor were three rag mats.

Abner tipped in his new shoes uttering Sunday squeaks of complaint. He carried three grain-sacks.

"Anne was a good wife," he sighed. "But she was a little mite extravagant in some ways." He got clumsily down and covered the mats as he added: "It says in Exodus that all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings; but it don't say that they had rag carpets that'd fade! That was one point where Anne was like a stiff-necked and stubborn generation."

Left alone, Emmeline Riggs stared ahead of her, with the coffee pot in her hand. She fancied three patient faces were watching out of the shadow.

"Martha and Cordella and Anne," she breathed, "he's a close-fisted old hypocrite, and if any one of you had had the spunk of an anglerworm you wouldn't have stood it. 'I was his first choice, and his second choice, and his third choice,' she said. 'If I'm his fourth choice I'll say 'Yes' and then you'll see what you'll feel!"

Spring came again. It brought back the working bird and the quail, and long warm twilight full of the scent of apple bloom. To Emmeline Riggs it brought the end of her sewing. She finished the last piece and added it to the pile on the bed of her sister's little spare room.

"There, you zigzaggy old skinkint," she soliloquized; "I'm almost ready now." Then she went to the corner where three mounds, long and thin and neglected, stretched side by side. Emmeline bent over them.

"Martha and Cordella and Anne," she said, aloud, "I want you all to know that I'm going to do just what any one of you would have done if you'd had the spunk. I'm going to do just what I'd have wanted you to have done if I'd been the first wife, or the second, or the third!" Then she drew a pencil and a foot rule from her pocket and took some dimensions.

The next evening, sitting on her sister's porch in the dusk, she heard a familiar squeak of boots on the gravel patch; she saw the spare figure of Abner Bennet emerging from between the budding hollyhocks. Instinctively she knew why he had come.

"Emmeline," he began, sitting down beside her; "behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience."

"Yes, Abner," she answered.

"To everything there is a season," he went on; "There's a time to mourn and a time to dance. A time to keep silent and a time to speak."

"Yes, Abner."

"There's a time to love," he fervently quoted, "and Emmeline, I asked you before I asked Martha or Cordella or Anne. I'm going to ask you just once more, for the Book says it isn't good for man to live alone."

It was late when he rose to go. "Emmeline," he asked, abruptly, as if the idea had just occurred to him, "how much money have you got?"

"I put sixty dollars in the bank last fall," she came suddenly close to him. "Abner," she questioned, "don't the Bible say a man and his wife are one?"

He nodded. "There's only one purse between them, Emmeline."

She seemed reluctant and a suspicion crossed his mind. He remembered that Martha had had thirty dollars which she refused to give him, and that Cordella had had seven dollars that she hid. Then an inspiration came; he dived into his pocket, found an envelope, and divided it into halves.

"Man is of few days and full of trouble," he began. "But his mind is strong. Woman is in wits the weaker vessel. That's why it's man's right to spend and why their purse is one. Let's write that down—that there's one free purse—and sign it."

Emmeline's eyes were dewy with submission. "It shall be as you like," she agreed.

It was after the wedding that Abner had his first surprise. Emmeline triumphantly led him into her sister's small spare room. Two huge trunks stood open. They held frocks—pink frocks and white frocks and blue frocks. There were a hundred other feminine things.

"Whose things are those?" he demanded.

"Ours!" The cheerful plural stung him. She beamed into his eyes. "We'll take them on the trip!" she cried. "Won't that be fun?"

"Trip?" he repeated. The sweat came out on his forehead. "Whose trip? What trip? Where?"

"Oh, you dear!" she gurgled. "Our wedding trip!"

Abner gasped like a fish in mid-air; his throat was dry. "There ain't going to be any wedding trip," he shouted, his voice coming like an unexpected trumpet blast. "There's stock to tend and there's corn to plant!"

Emmeline raised a handkerchief to her eyes. It was bordered with lace and Abner used a word, a strong old Saxon word.

"The tickets are bought," she sobbed. Blood was bubbling in Abner's ears, but he heard her distinctly.

"I was afraid you'd feel you couldn't go—so sister's all ready."

There was the rumble of the town hack; it stopped at the gate. Emmeline instantly stopped crying and began to close the trunks. She was smiling again.

"The clothes are lovely," she cooed, "and I got them for sixty dollars, but you shall see every one of them!"—she shook her finger at him—"when we get home, you dear old man!"

His fourth wife waved to him as she and "sister" drove away. Abner, returning to the desolate house, found no appropriate quotation. Memory was a kaleidoscope of Martha's one best frock—of Cordella's humble thrift—the dog-like devotion of Anne.

A week dragged by—a week steeped in anger and revenge and self-pity. Spring brought an advance sample of hot days; the sun lavished the heat of the tropics on the cornfields, and the continuous bleating of a weaning calf voiced the reigning spirit of discomfort. Abner Bennet, sweating over his hoe, gazed down the county road.

The town hack was rounding a bend, and a handkerchief, fluttered from its window.

The hack wound up through acres of half-wilted grain—through the already parched little orchard, and stopped at the front door. Emmeline paid the driver. Her skirts billowed as she tripped over the rocks and into the unpainted house. Abner followed. She went through the kitchen and threw open the windows of the tiny best room. The sun streamed in on the red-and-green carpet—the carpet that had been cherished by her three predecessors. Abner knew that his shoes were dusty, that his overalls were smeared with tar-weed, but he followed and did not care.

He opened his mouth; it was dry, and he found no words. Helplessly he fumbled in his pocket and produced the half of an envelope. It was their signed agreement that a man and his wife should have one purse between them. Then utterance came.

"—There was the turkey money! There was sixty dollars in the bank!" he yelled.

Her teeth showed a crescent of white. "Why, that was before we were married," she said. "But, I've used the promise! Oh, Abner, I've done such a sweet thing. Just see!"

She opened her satchel and drew out a paper. It was the plan of a monument, a huge pillow of granite. Across it was the inscription, "There the weary are at rest." Beneath that were the names of Martha and Cordella and Anne.

That night the tuneless breathing of his fourth wife stung Abner with murderous thoughts. He rose and went out into the star-strewn blackness of spring. A night-owl hooted in the oak tree, and on the spur of the mountain a coyote howled. The cloak of dawn was trailing the east when he decided what to do. If possible he would cancel that order at the stone-cutter's—it not—At least he would try.

Emmeline prepared the breakfast. It was a good breakfast, but she used a spoonful of coffee to a cup. She neglected to skim all the cream off her butter, and she had muffins and ham and scrambled eggs. Abner, watching in fascination, saw her take the grain-sacks off the rugs and throw the rooms open to the light. It was eight o'clock when he started for town.

At a bend of the county road he met a big load of lumber. There were shingles and scantlings and boards. A half-dozen workmen swung their feet from the rear of the load.

One of them addressed him.

"It's fine weather for building," he said.

Abner drove on, his mind intent on the monument.

In town women smiled at him; men nodded; Emmeline's face glowed; he passed.

"It's a nice day for building," she called.

Abner tied his horse at the post office. He was turning from it when the constable grasped him by the shoulder. The constable was philanthropic and he had once been fond of Emmeline.

"Well, Abner Bennet," he exploded, "I'm glad to see you doing the right thing by that fourth wife of yours! You can afford a good house! And you're giving work to unemployed men! I'm glad to see you do it, Abner. I must say I'm glad!"

Abner stared; he took off his hat; he raised one hand to his head and felt of the scanty hair at its crown.

The editor of the Weekly Courier tapped him respectfully on the arm.

"We want a few items about the new house, Mr. Bennet." He smiled.

"What new house?" Abner roared, his face purpling. "Thunderation, whose new house?"

"Oh, come," coaxed the editor. "We've got the item about the monument in for to-day. Next week we want news of the house. The week after we're going to ask you for a few words on 'progression'—just a sort of stimulus for the town, you know. You enterprising fellows—"

But Abner was unhitching his horse. He went through the town at a pace that Gen. Sheridan might have envied on his memorable ride. The springs of the old buggy creaked and hit to either. Dumb, born of the last hot days, moist face. A wind swept down the canyon; it blew off his hat, but Abner did not care. His heart was an awakening volcano.

The little house, when he reached it, was deserted. The sun blazed down on its unpainted sides, the dazzle of a heat-wave rose from the rocks around the doors.

"Emmeline!" he shouted. "Emmeline!" and then he saw her.

She was coming toward him in a cool print frock; she looked care-free and young. There were men on the knoll behind her. There was lumber under the trees. He tried to speak, but she put up her hand. There was a look in her eyes which he had never seen in the eyes of Martha or Cordella or Anne. It mingled mirth with mastery.

"Abner," she bubbled, "the men think our plan for the home is just perfect."

He dully stared at her, trying to comprehend.

Her face softened as she turned from him and gazed toward the town. A patch of white-flecked green stood for the cemetery.

"I wish they could have had comfort," she whispered. "But—that monument we're ordered is lovely! It's all we can do for them now, isn't it, dear?"

Remedy for a Light Scar.

If the scar is not a very deep one it may be almost banished by gentle daily friction, but no attempt should be made to treat the scar until the tone of the part is thoroughly re-established and before using friction the place should always be bathed in warm water with a bland soap. Here is a remedy which has been used with great success on light scars:

Iodine crushed small, one-eighth dram; pure olive oil, two ounces; agitate them together in a bottle until the solution is complete.

Rub into the scar once a day, making the movement in a contrary direction from the scar. Just such a movement as you would employ in getting the crease out of a piece of silk.

New Sleeveless Coats.

The new sleeveless coat is cut out generously under the arms and the sides are held together by cords instead of bands and straps.

All-over silk lace dyed the color of the costume worn with it is one of the newest.

A FEW PRESERVES

FIVE RECIPES FOR MOST APPETIZING DAINTIES.

Apple Ginger—Something That Will Be Appreciated—East Indian Sweet-Meat—Spiced Grapes and Chili Sauce.

Apple Ginger.—One quart of water, two pounds of granulated sugar. Boil until quite clear, add ten large, sour apples, chopped fine, and one-half pound preserved ginger, sliced. Cook until the consistency of marmalade, then pour in a tumbler and seal.

Tomato Preserve.—Four pounds of ripe tomatoes, four pounds of sugar, one-half pound of preserved ginger and eight lemons. Peel the tomatoes, add the sugar, and let them stand over night. The next morning pour off the sirup and boil until it is quite clear. Skin, add the tomatoes, then the ginger cut fine, and the lemons, seeded and sliced. Cook slowly, and until the tomatoes are clear and transparent. Pour in tumblers and seal.

East India Sweet-Meat.—Seven pounds of hard winter pears, five pounds of sugar, one-half pound of Canton ginger, the rind and juice of three lemons. Slice the pears very thin and boil until tender in clear water, just covering the pears with water; then add the sugar, lemons and ginger. Cook until the sirup thickens and the sweet-meat has a rich, golden color.

Spiced Grapes.—Use one peck of purple grapes. Boil the pulp and rub through a sieve; heat one and one-half pints of vinegar, add five pounds of sugar, then the pulp and skins of the grapes and two tablespoonsful each of clove and cinnamon. Boil for one hour.

Chili Sauce.—Thirty large red tomatoes, ten red peppers, seven onions, five tablespoonsful of sugar, three tablespoonsful of salt, six cupsful of vinegar, one tablespoonful each of allspice, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Skin the tomatoes, add the chopped onion and peppers and other ingredients and cook for three hours.

Gallina a la Mexicana.

Wash and unjoint nice spring chicken and cover with salted water; add one small whole onion so it can be removed after it has seasoned the chicken; let cook one and a quarter hours; take out chicken and put where it will keep warm; boil two eggs in shell until hard; separate whites from yolks, and while yolks are hot mash and mix thoroughly with one tablespoonful of cornmeal, and thicken with liquor chicken has been boiled in; then add one cup prepared chile; let boil five minutes, then add chicken and whites of eggs chopped.

How to Prepare Chile.—Take some dry red peppers, break off tops and remove seeds; cover pods with warm water and let stand five minutes, then work with hands until all soft parts have been removed from the skins; strain.

Spiced Beans.

Materials: One quart of green beans, one-half cup of vinegar, three-fourths of a cup of brown sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one three-inch stick of cinnamon, 12 cloves, one blade of mace and a small piece of fresh horseradish.

Way of preparing: Remove the strings from the beans, but leave them whole. Boil until tender in salted water, then drain. Place the ingredients in a saucepan and boil up once; then stand aside, covered, for half an hour. Add the prepared beans and boil for three minutes. Stand aside in a warm place for half an hour, if they are to be served hot as a side dish, or put them into a glass fruit jar if they are to be served cold, as a relish or as a salad.—National Food Magazine.

Virginia Sweet Pickle.

Mix together two quarts each sliced cucumbers, onions and green tomatoes, two quarts butter beans that have been cooked 15 minutes, and two quarts chopped cabbage. Add one-third cup salt and one pint vinegar and scald for five minutes. Add eight cupsful sugar. Then mix three-fourths of an ounce of tumeric with a cupful of flour, and one-half ounce celery seed. Add a half pint vinegar and stir until it thickens.

Corn Cake.

Sift one cup of wheat flour, one cup of cornmeal, one-quarter cup of sugar, four level teaspoons of baking powder and one-half level teaspoon of salt. Turn back into the sifter and sift again. Beat one egg light, add two cups of milk and two tablespoonsful of melted butter. Turn into the dry ingredients, beat well, and bake in a shallow pan 20 to 30 minutes.

Vermont Rusks.

One and one-half cups sweet milk, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup butter, two eggs, two-thirds yeast cake. Make a thin batter and let rise until light; add flour to mold and let rise again. Mold and make into biscuits and let rise two hours.

Plain Cocoa Iceing.

You can make icing with cocoa. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff, beat in nearly one cup of powdered sugar and one level tablespoon of cocoa, then spread on the cake.

THE PRIDE OF THE PENINSULA

A Few Days Ago, A Prominent Salisbury Man, Showing a Friend of His From Another City Around Town Came in Here to Look Us Over. "THIS IS OUR FOREMOST DEPARTMENT STORE," He Said.

We liked the way he put the emphasis on "our"; there was an air of proprietorship about the word and about his manner of saying it, as if he had a personal pride in such a store, something he was glad to show as one of "our" possession in Salisbury.

That sort of thing does us good; it shows that we're getting the thing we're aiming at; that our idea of service, of doing business in the interest of our customers, our fidelity to high quality and great value for the money, our purpose to give big money's worth in quality, value, service and satisfaction, are establishing this store in the people's heart. We'd like to have all of you feel the same way about it; "our" foremost department store. We're doing our best to justify such a sentiment in your mind.

The Scoop that Removed Little

By CAROLINE LOCKHART

Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

Little was the editor, reporter, compositor and business manager of the Waubensee Weekly Star, out west.

Waubensee was a city of 500 inhabitants, where farmers and stockmen struggled along a few yards of one of the Santa Fe's branch lines. After passing Waubansee, the railroad got discouraged and stopped out in the middle of the prairie. Though everybody wondered how Little lived, he not only got along, but had surplus enough to take the milliner to the ice-cream festival given by the Baptist church. He sang in the choir and called off at the dances in Odd-Fellows' hall. There was nothing stiff about the Star's editorials. Its style of acknowledging a pair of chickens from Sam Buckingham and its compliments to Jim Handler on his Berkshire shoats were graceful and easy, and its demands that congress should appropriate $500 to improve the navigation of the Waukanusha were considered virile.

Little was as happy as the day was long until he happened to secure a pass from Waubensee to Washington "and return," which latter was important, as it proved. At Washington he was pained to observe a slackening in the joy with which his congressman was wont to greet the Star editor when elections were being closely fought. However, Little soon forgot this ingratitude in the pleasure of a trip to Boston, where he went to visit some relatives, who, prior to this, had known only vaguely of his existence.

In Boston it seemed only properly courteous for the editor of the Waubansee Star to call upon the editors of the various Boston dailies, and Little was not the kind of a man to hurt where, after much damage to the magistrate's part, the warrant was issued.

Little wrote it up instantly, coming into the office on the run.

Little's scoop made a real sensation.
Even the night editor said it was not too bad. It appeared on the first page, headed

WARRANT OUT FOR MRS. DUNCAN.

"If a man's got it in him," said Little, meaning genius, "it's bound to come out." He went to bed that night feeling that his feet were firmly planted on the ladder of fame, and that climbing was easy.

Now there was a proprietor of the paper who read the paper very carefully, in Paris. This proprietor had decided social aspirations, though in this he had never taken Little into his confidence. For some time the proprietor had been laying careful siege to Mrs. Duncan's social influence, and at last Mrs. Duncan was beginning to beam; there were prospects, if the beam was carefully fostered, of Mrs.
Duncan extending a gracious hand to the proprietor's family to help them over the wall which divides the merely "nice people" from the "tinner cult."

Mrs. Duncan was a lady of temper-mentous action, and she burned the cable with a scorching message to Paris.
About two hours later the editor received a cable message from Paris which read:

"Remove Mrs. Duncan's cause of complaint."

Only six words, but in as many moments it was a message of complaint found himself a part in the cold, cold world, somewhat dazed. His return pass had not expired, and Little returned to Waubensee to get back the Star, the lively stable man parting with it without much urging.
Its first issue, after the old management resumed the editorial toga, contained a scathing article on the corruption of the eastern press by the money power.

HIS COLLAR A FIRE TRAP

Sergt. Cohen's Celluloid Neckwear Destroyed in a Station Island Blaze.

New York.—Fire destroyed $50,000 worth of property and Police Sergt.
Cohen's celluloid collar at Rosebank,
S. I., the other afternoon. The property consisted of a three-story brick storehouse on New York avenue and five frame buildings adjoining.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but it started in the storehouse at about one o'clock and burned so fiercely that all the fire engines on the south side of Staten Island were called out and two fireboats steamed down the bay and helped.

Sergt. Cohen's celluloid collar was worth about 15 cents and was uninsured. Sergt. Cohen ran to the fire from the Stapleton station, about half a mile away, and went right to work helping to fight the flames. A spark lit on his fine white standing collar.
Then there was a dash and a sputter, and a lot of black smoke enveloped the sergeant's head, while he performed a most extraordinary and picturesque jig and howled things which no newspaper going into right-minded family circles could possibly print.

When the collar burned out the sergeant went to a drug store and showed the druggist how he had got it in the neck, so to speak. Incidentally he hadn't much hair and no mustache to speak of, but he'll be on the

ANGRY ROBINS WOUND MAN

Try to Peck Eyes Out After He Unintentionally Kills Their Young.

Clinton, N. J.—Robert J. McCoubra was so severely injured on the face, neck and hands by two robins that attacked him that it was necessary to call in a doctor.

McCoubra had cut several limbs from a large shade tree in front of his house here and did not see that in a fork made by two branches a robin was trapped. When the limb fell it fell to the ground the young birds fell out of the nest and both were killed.

McCoubra felt sorry and leaped over to pick up the dead birds. As he did so the old robins attacked him.
He tried to beat them off, but failed and was compelled to run for the house. All the way the birds kept up the attack and he had to hold his hands over his eyes to save them from harm. The man had difficulty in preventing the birds from following him indoors, striking at them several times before he could get the door closed against them.

Mrs. McCoubra, who had been in the back yard, heard her husband calling and she ran into the house, where she found him almost exhausted from his efforts. His face, neck and hands were torn and bleeding as the result of the vicious pecking of the enraged birds.

Monkey Cookies.

One egg, one cup of sugar, one fourth cup of milk, two cups of flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one half of soda. Beat butter to a cream, add sugar, then egg well beaten, then milk, with soda and cream of tartar dissolved, then quickly stir in flour, beat well and spread thinly in tin and bake raisins lightly in. Cut in squares or long strips. Of course you put your raisins in so as to cut between them.

To Remove Stains.

To remove stains from furniture, especially dining tables, caused by hot dishes, heat an ordinary fire shovel and hold same above spot within an inch of the stain for about one minute and then apply furniture polish or olive oil, which will restore a glossy finish. Should you fail to remove spot the first time, repeat it and you will be sure to succeed.

Celery and Nut Salad.

Mix one cupful of sliced celery with one cupful of nut meats, add little mayonnaise dressing and serve on lettuce leaves with some mayonnaise spread over top.

The Passing of Evolution

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Rector of the Chicago Ave. (Meady's) Church, Chicago.

There have been two schools of evolutionists, the naturalistic and the supernaturalistic. The naturalistic evolutionist ignores God and virtually,
if not directly, denies his existence.
The supernaturalistic evolutionist believes in God as the great First Cause and regards evolution as God's method of development from the simple to the complex, from the lower to the higher. Dr. Foster in his recent book chooses the naturalistic type of evolution, which places him not only outside the Christian ranks, but also outside the drift of up-to-date scientific thinking. A book by George Paul-lin, recently published by Scribner's, entitled "No Struggle for Existence; No Natural Selection," gives facts and reasons enough to shake confidence in these two basal claims of Darwinian evolution, and within the last few years "mutation" has raised presumption against "natural selection."

Dr. N. S. Shaler, geological professor in Harvard university, wrote in 1908: "It begins to be evident to naturalists that the Darwinian hypothesis is still essentially unverified.
Notwithstanding the evidence derived from the study of animals and plants under domestication, it is not yet proved that a single species of the two or three millions now inhabiting the earth had been established solely, or mainly, by the operation of natural selection."

Dr. Etheridge of the British museum, famous as a fossilologist, has passed the following criticism upon evolution: "In all the greatest evidence there is not a particle of evidence of transmutation of species. Nine-tenths of the talk of evolutionists is sheer nonsense, not founded on observation and wholly unsupported by fact. This museum is full of proofs of the utter falsity of their views."

Prof. Lionel S. Beale of Kings college, London, distinguished in the world of physiology, anatomy and pathology, in an address to the Victoria institute, said: "The idea of any relation having been established between the non-living and living, by a gradual advance from lifeless matter to the lowest form of life and so onward to the higher and more complex, has not the slightest evidence from the facts of any action of living nature of which anything is known.
There is no evidence that man has descended from, or is, or was, in any way specially related to, any other organism in nature through evolution or by any other process. In support of all naturalistic conjectures concerning man's growth, there is not at this time a shadow of scientific evidence."

This unproved and now discredited, if not collapsed hypothesis of evolution is responsible for the conclusions of the Destructive Higher Criticism.
It is robbing the world of its God, man of his Saviour and the church of her Bible. A few years ago it informed us that Moses could not have written the Pentateuch because, according to the laws of evolution, there could have been no written language at the time of Moses. But the discovery of buried libraries with thousands of books written hundreds of years before Moses was born has silenced that claim, and the testimony of the pick and shovel has kept on refuting the conclusions of evolution.

If a layman will accept the dictum of some scientists as authoritative, and in doing so surrender his right to think for himself, he can be an evolutionist; but any man with gray matter in his brain if he will let that gray matter work, must be convinced that the claims of evolution are visionary. On the very threshold we are confronted by the fact that embryonic, even immature, life is not reproductive. Eggs do not hatch eggs.
Babies never bear babies. Only the mature product can reproduce itself.
Even the lowest forms of life are not reproductive till they attain maturity.
Darwin's primordial germ would, therefore, demand a miracle for its preservation and a series of miracles for its reproduction. If the egg was created before the eagle it would require a million miracles to evolve an eagle out of it, and without the care of motherhood. But if the eagle, male and female, were created first, reproduction would be a natural process. God Almighty can create eggs as easily as eggs, while man is as helpless with the one as the other.
The first chapter of Genesis plainly teaches that the mature, reproductive product from grass to man came first and every known fact in nature demands that order. The evolutionist, seeing things about him growing from the germ to the mature product, imagines that in the distant past a germ somewhat came into existence, and from this germ all living things were evolved. But his imagination blinds him to the fact that this germ could not reproduce itself without a long series of miracles. He is doubtless tempted to imagine that the germ came first, because it seems to be easier to account for a germ without a creator God than to account for the mature product. But he is mistaken.

E. Turner, Clarence Robertson, Pocomoke City, Levin Dirckson of Berlin, Mr. Wetter, of Baltimore.

—The world's championship fight between James J. Jeffries and "Jack" Johnson will be held in San Francisco before a club organized by "To" Hickard of Ely, Nev., and "Jack" Gleason probably on July 1910. The bid made by Hickard and Gleason of a purse of $101,000 and the contestants to take 66 2-3 per cent, of the moving picture receipts, was accepted by representatives of Johnson and Jeffries this afternoon.

—These be perilous times for married men. Every head of the household—the financial head, we mean—will read with horror the harrowing story from Rising Sun, Md. A wife—perhaps mother—went to a neighbor's house, so the story runs, and borrowed a loaded revolver. Returning to her home, where her husband rested in the supposed security of his own domicile, she flashed her gun, in true Western heroine style and made him "shell out" all his cash, over $100—probably the accumulation of years of savings from his weekly salary. Having deprived him of all save honor, the woman packed her suitcase and shook the dust of Rising Sun from her heels.

Sheriff Swears In.

On Tuesday, J. Clayton Kelley, the newly elected sheriff of this county, took the oath of office. Mr. Kelley appointed Mr. Roy Smith, of Quantico, as his deputy. Mr. Smith will occupy the jail and has taken charge of the same.

Mr. J. Frank Waller, late deputy sheriff, was appointed constable for Parsons District. Mr. Kelley goes into office with the good wishes of the community, and succeeds Mr. Larmore, who for two years, has faithfully served the people of Salisbury.

Proves By The Pikes Peak Test

No where else in all the world is there such a test of the time keeping quality of a watch as on the famous Pikes Peak Cog Railway in Colorado, where the steep grades of the mountain necessitate the use of cog wheels to control the train, and vibration often so injures ordinary watches that an expert repairman must readjust them.

A conductor on the Pike's Peak road made a ninety-day test of the South Bend Watch last summer. No adjustment of the watch was made for the whole period, but at the end of the test, examination showed a variation of less than one-half second per day. Do you think the watch you carry could stand a test like this?

We will be pleased to show you our line of these guaranteed accurate watches and explain to you how a South Bend Watch adjusts itself to every temperature automatically.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have been afflicted with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nausea, pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headache, dizziness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Kodol is only digestive ailments. Kodol is only digestive ailments.

TOE EXTERMINATES WEEDS

Successful Methods of Destroying Pernicious Milkweed, Horse Nettle and Quack Grass.

BY L. H. PAMMEL, Agricultural Experiment College, Ames, Ia.

Milkweed is a deep-rooted perennial and where abundant in small grain fields it is rather difficult to remove. The plowing should always be shallow.

low, as the roots are deep seated and new plants spring up from where the roots are cut off. The plowing should be followed by disking and harrowing to expose many of the roots as possible and it should be turned into pasture as soon as possible.

Horse nettle is one of the most troublesome weeds to deal with. Like morning glory and milkweed, it is a deep-rooted perennial. The roots are known to extend into the soil as much as three to four feet. Cultivation should be shallow. When the weed is common, disk thoroughly and harrow, exposing the roots. When a field is covered with it it is better to summer fallow, then cultivate thoroughly and hoe during the entire season, or sow with oats, plow when harvested; disk and harrow for the remainder of the season. The same method used for Canada thistle may also be applied.

In wild timothy or dropseed grass the character of these "roots" is so different from that of the roots of quack grass and the other perennial weeds that we have mentioned before that it is not difficult to exterminate. The roots of this weed and the allied species are more or less clustered. By giving a shallow plowing of four or five inches and harrowing to expose the roots to the sun they were killed, no growth making its appearance during the rest of the season.

Quack grass is one of the most persistent of the perennial weeds. The roots of quack grass are shallow, the vast majority occurring within less than six inches of the surface of the ground.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'GUTHCHIEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"I am glad that you understand," he said simply. His gaze was set straight before him, keen, alert, anxious. "I begin to fear, Mr. Chase," she said, with a faint smile, "that Lady Deppingham deceived me in suggesting Japan as a rest cure. It may interest you to know that the court at Rapp-Thorberg has been very gay this winter. My brother, Christobal, has been with us after two years' absence. He came with his wife from the ends of the earth, and my father forgave him in good earnest. Christobal was very disordered in the old days. He refused to marry the girl my father chose for him. Was it not foolish of him?"

"Not if it has turned out well in the end."

"I dare say it has—or will. She is delightful. My father loves her. And my father—the grand duke, I should say—does not love those who cross him. One is very fortunate to have been born a prince." He thought he detected a note of bitterness in this rally.

"I can conceive of no greater fortune than to have been born Prince Earl of Braken," he said lightly. She flashed a quick glance at his face, her eyes narrowing in the effort to divine his humor.

"As I was saying," she resumed after a moment, "Lady Deppingham has lured me from sun showers into the temper. Mr. Chase—and her face was suddenly full of real concern—"Is there truly great danger?"

"I fear so," he answered. "It is only a question of time. I have tried to check this uprising, but I've failed. Last night Von Blits, Rasula and three others came to the bungalow and coolly informed me that my services were no longer required. I told them to—to go."

"I understand," she said quickly. "It required courage to tell them that."

He smiled. "You have protested friendship, but I can read very well as I run. But can't we find something more agreeable to talk about? May I say that I have not seen a newspaper in three months? There must be news that you can give me. I am hungry for it."

"You poor man! No newspapers! Then you don't know what has happened in all these months?"

"Nothing since before Christmas. Would you like to see a bit of news that I clipped from the last Paris paper that came into my hands?"

"Yes," she said, vaguely disturbed. He drew forth his pocketbook and took from its interior a small bit of paper. She read it at a glance and handed it back. A faint touch of red came into her cheeks.

"How very odd! Why should you have kept that bit of paper all these months?"

"You have been married nearly three months," he said reflectively—"three months and two days, to be precise."

She laughed outright, a bewitching, merry laugh that startled him.

"How accurate you would be!" she exclaimed. "It would be a highly interesting achievement, Mr. Chase, if it were only borne out by facts. You see, I have not been married so much as three minutes."

He stared at her, uncomprehending. She went on, "Do you consider it bad luck to postpone a wedding?"

Involutionally he drew his horse closer to hers. There was a new gleam in his eyes. Her blood leaped at the challenge they carried.

"Very bad luck," he said quite steadily, "for the bridegroom."

In an instant they seemed to understand something that had not even been considered before. She looked away, but he kept his eyes fast upon her half turned face, finding delight in the warm tint that surged so shamelessly to her brow. He wondered if she could hear the pounding of his heart above the thud of the horses' feet.

"We are to be married in June," she said, somewhat defiantly. Some of the light died in his eyes. "Prince Karl was very ill. They thought he might die. His—his studies—his music, mean, proved more than he could carry. It—it is not serious. A nervous breakdown," she explained haltingly. "It was necessary to postpone the marriage. He will be quite well again, they say, by June."

"I hope he may be fully recovered for your sake," he managed to say.

"Thank you. After a long pause she turned to him again and said, "We are to live in Paris for a year or two at least."

"He is in Paris now?"

"No," she answered, and that was all. He waited, but she did not expand her confidence.

"It is to be in June," he mused. "In June," she said quietly. He sighed.

"I am more than sorry that you are a princess," he said boldly.

"I am quite sure of that," she said, so pointedly that he almost gasped. She was laughing comfortably, a mischievous gleam in her dark eyes. His laugh was as awkward as hers was charming.

"You do like to be flattered," he exclaimed at random. "And I shall take it upon myself to add to today's measure." He again drew forth his pocketbook. She looked on curiously. "Permit me to restore the lace handkerchief which you dropped some time ago. I've been keeping it for myself, but"

"My handkerchief?" she gasped, her thoughts going at once to that ridiculous incident of the balcony. It must belong to Lady Deppingham.

"Oh, it isn't the one you used on the balcony," he protested coolly. "It's a different one."

"It isn't that one either," she protested. "Then you are exceedingly obtuse."

"I never dreamed that you could see," she confessed pathetically. "It was extremely nice in you and very presumptuous in me. But your highness, this is the handkerchief you dropped in the castle garden six months ago. Do you recognize the perfume?"

"You are very sentimental," she said at last. "Would you care to keep it? It is of no value to me."

"Thank! I will keep it," she said. "I've changed my mind," she said inconsequently, stuffing the fabric in her gaudet. "You have something else in that pocketbook that I should very much like to possess."

"No, not 'X' wrapped in a bit of paper last week and picked it there for safe keeping."

"You mean the bullet?"

"Yes, I should like it to show to my friends, you know, when I tell them how near you were to being shot." Without a word he gave her the bullet that had dropped at his feet on that first day at the chateau.

"Thank you. Oh, isn't it a horrid thing! Just to think it might have struck you!" She shuddered.

He was about to answer in his derision when a sharp turn in the road brought them in view of the chateau. Not a hundred yards ahead of them two persons were riding slowly, unattended, very much occupied in themselves. Their backs were turned to ward Chase and the princess, but it was an easy matter to recognize them. The glance which shot from the princess to Chase found a peculiar smile disappearing from his face.

"I know what you are thinking," she cried impulsively. "You are wrong—very wrong, Mr. Chase. Lady Deppingham is a born coquette—a born trifler. It is ridiculous to think that she can be seriously engaged in a—"

"It isn't that, princess," he interrupted, a dark look in his eyes. "I was merely wondering whether dear little Mrs. Browne is as happy as she might be."

Genevieve was silent for a moment. "I had not thought of that," she said soberly.

Tuesday's Proceedings of County Commissioners.

The old Board met for the last time on Tuesday and finished up the work before them, and then adjourned. Two of the members retire from the Board, Messrs. John P. Wright and John E. Johnson and are succeeded by Messrs. Wm. P. Ward and Orlando Taylor. The two retiring members faithfully executed their duty as Commissioners and retire with the praise of all those who have come in contact with them in their official position. The Board which they were members of will go down as one of progressive and public spirit.

At the meeting Tuesday the following business was transacted:

J. O. Kelly resigned as Constable of Parsons District and Roy Smith, Constable of Quantico District.

Commissioner Wright reported that he had contracted with Geo. E. Bennett to build a piece of road near James T. Wallers in Barren Creek District.

Board signed a contract with the State Road commission modifying the contract for building the State road so that the work can go on from November to April. Under the old contract no work could be done on the road between November and April.

A delegation from Sharptown District consisting of W. C. Mann, G. E. Bennett, Levin and Thomas Taylor and others were before the Board asking for shells to improve the road running towards Weatherly's Mill. It was agreed that the parties named petition at once to have the road straightened and when this is done Board agreed to furnish shells, but could not promise any definite action this season.

Mr. Messick was authorized to purchase the shells for the work at Wiggins at three cents per bushel delivered.

Mr. Lilly was before the Board representing certain objectors to the cutting of a tax ditch in Pittsburg district and asked the Board to reopen the case. The matter was referred to the Board's attorney, Mr. Bailey.

Commissioner Johnson invited the old Board together with the new members to attend a dinner at his home in Nutters District.

On Wednesday morning the new Board met and swore in. Mr. Wm. M. Cooper was unanimously elected president of the Board. Governor Crothers drew the terms of the new members. Messrs. Cooper and Orlando Taylor drew the long terms of four years and Mr. Ward the two year term. After organizing the Board adjourned to meet again next Tuesday when it is thought the question of a new assessment will be talked over. Many appointments of road supervisors and other places will be taken up next Tuesday.

Water and Light Plant.

A new water and light plant is being installed at Ocean City, Md., by Messrs. F. A. Grier & Sons, of Salisbury. The contract covers the installation of a 20-horse power Four Gasoline Engine, a 200 light General Electric dynamo and a big pump for pumping water for the town.

The firm has nearly completed the contract for this plant, which when complete will give Ocean City a first class plant for water and lighting—something it has badly needed for some time. The municipality is having the work done to take the place of the old one recently burned.

Shake off the grip of your old enemy, Nasal Catarrh, by using Ely's Cream Balm. Then will all the swelling and soreness be driven out of the tender, inflamed membranes. The fits of sneezing will cease and the discharge, as offensive to others as to yourself, will be stopped when the causes that produce it are removed. Cleanliness, comfort and renewed health by the use of Cream Balm. Sold by all druggists for 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

SEEING THE BAZAAR

Has Been The Go Since Thursday—This Saturday Last Day.

One of the largest Bazaars held by any church organization in our city for many years is being held by the Sabbath School of the Wisconsin Presbyterian Church at Gunby's garage. The Bazaar opened at five o'clock Thursday afternoon and has been in full swing ever since. There are a great many things of different character on sale and the interest manifested speaks well for the success of the undertaking.

The articles for sale are being displayed in booths all beautifully decorated. There are two fancy work booths and two candy booths, made necessary by the great abundance of the material donated; there is a booth for aprons and one for dolls. The Country Store has a booth to itself and almost anything from a box of Talcum powder to a bag of flour can be bought over its counter. The Peddler's parade and the Christmas tree are a constant source of pleasure to the children. Rather a new feature in bazaar is the opportunity given to the patrons of ordering all their reading matter in the way of Magazines, Periodicals and Daily papers from the C. E. Society booth. Sample copies of the various magazines are on exhibition and information in regard to "Combinations" is gladly given.

You are permitted to look upon a "Life-sized" design of the New Church for the small sum of ten cents and you can buy a brick that will be used in the enlargement of the church. Design 12 feet high by 5 feet wide. It is the work of Owens and Sisco of Baltimore and is a work of art. A fine lunch is served for 35 cents, and a splendid supper for 50 cents. Altogether it is a bazaar worthy the church.

PRODUCTS OF FARM

Must Be Increased—James J. Hill Says This Is Solution Of Impending Crisis.

In his address at the National Corn Exposition, James J. Hill emphasized the necessity of increasing the productivity of the farms of this country. He said, in part:—

"We cannot support our coming population upon the crop yielded per acre that now satisfies us. We have to transform a growing decline in value and productivity of our soil under continued cultivation into a rapid increase in both. If this crisis can be seen moving upon us now, and if it took Great Britain over half a century to raise her wheat yield from about 15 bushels per acre to 32 bushels per acre, we have no time to lose. What has to be considered, the keynote of all present discussion, is not the difficulty but the urgency of the task. The whole argument is one of despair but of reason. It is provided only that we do the obvious, responsible and feasible thing, and do it now."

"Our total agricultural product has been growing so rapidly and so immensely that we find it hard to realize that this may be entirely consistent with failure, at the same time, to keep pace with the growth of national needs. The country, unless there shall be a change, is approaching a time when it must import wheat to meet home needs. Other food products also lag behind the constant new demand. Since that demand cannot be escaped, and since not to meet it means want or a lowering of the standard of life and comfort in this country, which no American would wish to see, there is but one course before the nation. That is to increase the productivity of the farm so that the earth's gifts may year by year equal or exceed the people's requirements."

"It is the more necessary because the great bulk of our foreign trade is made up of these commodities. Food stuffs and articles but one remove from the soil are the currency with which we have paid for what we bought abroad. What we have to do in this country is to apply to farming the scientific knowledge, shaped now to practical uses, that will raise our average product per acre to something like that of countries which lack many of our advantages of soil and climate. When Great Britain, in what her own people regard as an age of agricultural decline, can produce over 32 bushels of wheat per acre, and other grains in proportion, while the United States calls it a big crop when its average rises to 14, it argues more want of intelligence on the part of this country; a failure to grasp the simple reasons for coming hardship and its obvious and natural remedy."

MORE BIRDS SOLD

This Time A Suit Case Is Used For Shipping

On Saturday another nice lot of birds were seized by the officials in Salisbury and were put up at public sale in front of the Court House as were the ones seized on Thursday of last week. These birds were found in a suit case at the N. Y. P. and N. Station. The prices bid for the birds ranged from $1.50 to $1.90 per dozen. It is very evident that a large number of quail is being shipped out of the County, and if something is not done to stop it, our birds will not last long. As it is, the prices paid in the city are so high that the local buyers cannot afford to eat them, at the prices asked.

It is very evident to every one that these prices asked for birds is asked upon what they are bringing in the city and not upon local values. It ought to be easy to detect those who are breaking the law in regard to shipping birds, by the price dealers in various parts of the county are paying for birds, as it is evident some are not intended for local consumption.

Skull Fractured.

Frank Waller, ex-deputy sheriff, is reported as being in a very serious condition, owing to a fracture of the skull on the back of his head, the result of a fall from the trunk of a tree between him and Mr. Crouch of the City Police force. Mr. Waller who has not been well for several weeks, had a fainting spell in one of the barber shops this week, and on calling in a physician it is said that a fracture of the skull was discovered. Mr. Waller accompanied by his physician will go to Baltimore for examination and operation on the fracture. The operation is said to be one of the most delicate and dangerous operations known to surgery.

TWO BOYS HIT

Yesterday By N. Y. P. & N. Railroad Train Fatal Accident Near Prince's Anne.

A fatal accident happened at the crossing just beyond the station at Prince's Anne, Friday when two boys were driving a team over the track at this point. The two boys were sons of Mr. Samuel Barnes, of Kings Creek and had just left the mill, which was running in full force. It is supposed that the noise made by the running of the mill deafened the sound of the approaching train and the boys drove over the track right in front of the approaching engine. The engine struck the wagon throwing the boys out in front of the engine. The eldest, who was about 15 years of age was killed at once, while the younger boy, about 11 years of age was badly hurt. The injured boy was rushed to the Hospital at Salisbury and is not expected to recover. The team was not injured, the engine seemingly striking the wagon after the team had crossed the track tearing it loose from the team.

TRAINS TO VIRGINIA

Committee Partly Successful—Run Through Until Xmas.

The efforts made by the Committee appointed by the Business Men's Association to secure better train service between Salisbury and points on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, have met with some success, and trains will run as far as Onley, Virginia, on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday in the evening from now to Christmas week.

The following letter was received by Messrs. Graham Gunby, W. S. Sheppard and John D. Williams, the committee which has been trying to get better service, from Superintendent Lee, of the N. Y. P. and N. Railroad.

"We have decided to extend our train 45, which now passes Salisbury at 7:04, southward to Onley, Va., on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, from now until Christmas week, beginning Thursday, December 9th, the last day being Saturday, December 25th."

"We give you this information in order that you may get as many people to ride on this train as you can from now until Christmas time."

"This service will permit shoppers from Virginia to arrive in Salisbury at 1:50 and remain there until 7:04. While this does not give you all the service that you desire, yet we hope it will be a temporary relief."

There will be a special meeting of the Business Men's Association in the City Hall Friday night for the purpose of making arrangements to advertise this train service throughout Virginia, so as to attract the Christmas trade from that section. All the members are requested to be present.

Tuesday's Proceedings of County Commissioners.

The County Commissioners in session Tuesday, transacted the following business:

The report of L. Joseph Hearn, Ira E. Hearn and H. D. Powell, commissioners appointed to lay out a tax ditch in Trappe District, was finally ratified and confirmed.

The contract to furnish supplies to the Alms House for the years 1910-1911 was awarded S. B. Langrall.

Mr. Harry Messick, representing many residents of Trappe District, asking the Board to appoint a commission to straighten the public road from Salisbury to Allon, which has been selected as the State Road. The Board agreed to appoint a commission on the same.

Eng. Clark was authorized to purchase tiling for use on the Parsonsburg—Salisbury road where the road passes through the lands of S. A. Graham; also tiling for the road recently built between Quantico and Hebron.

The county was apportioned to the members of the Board for their immediate supervision as follows:—Barren Creek, Sharptown and Delmar districts to Mr. Cooper; Quantico and Trappe to Mr. Taylor; Tysackin and Nanticoke to Mr. Messick, with territory between Quantico and Tysackin to be fixed by Messrs. Messick and Taylor; Salisbury to Messrs. Cooper and Taylor; Notters to Mr. Ward; Camden and Parsons to Messrs. Cooper and Ward; Dennis and Willard to Mr. Truitt.

By resolution it was decided that after January 1, 1910, the Board will discontinue the services of regularly appointed Road Supervisors and that in the future the work will be put directly under the supervision of the Roads Engineer, assisted by the commissioners of the district where the work is to be done, who will have power to appoint foremen to do the work ordered by the Board.

The following resolutions authorizing the revaluation of property were passed: "Resolved, That it is the sense of this Board that it should proceed under the power given by Chapter 330, Acts of 1906, to revise all valuations of real and personal property, and to take steps for the discovery of all unassessed property of any kind in Wicomico County. Resolved, That to this end this Board will meet at its office in Salisbury at a date to be named later to appoint such agents, assessors, and clerks as may be necessary to carry into effect the determination to make a full and complete revision and valuation as aforesaid, in pursuance of the power given under the Act of Assembly."

Dr. Todd Back From Extended Trip.

Dr. Todd, accompanied by his wife and son, Nevins, has returned from a trip to Baltimore, Annapolis, Westminster, York, Philadelphia, and other cities, in his "Maxwell" runabout. Dr. reports a fine trip, absolutely no trouble, except one pangloss. This is the second trip of this kind he has taken in his little car.

HITS THIRSTY STATES

The New U. S. Code Seems To Limit C. O. D. Whisky Shipments—No More "John Doe" Trade.

Tardy recognition for the New Year's resolution, "Not to drink another drop," has come from Congress, but it is confined as yet to the "dry" States. It gives the man who depends upon the express company for his "red liquor" a distinct advantage over his competitor in the "resolution" business, but law experts affirm that it is not in this respect class legislation.

Upon January 1, 1910, there goes into effect a new criminal code. It was passed upon by Congress during a stolen moment from the tariff consideration of the extra session, and the legislators who have not before had time to read it are likely to have their attention called to its provisions in a demand for an "explanation" which will make the Niagara crisis sound like a fairy tale. The prohibition people hope that it will put a crimp in the practice of shipping liquor "C. O. D." into prohibition States and out of that last source of supply, which has been regarded as "inviolable."

There is a touch of finality in the subtle rising to a climax which the Committee on the Revision of the Laws has followed in shutting off the last resort of the tippler. "No railroad company, or carrier," says the code, "shall ship liquor into a prohibition State to other than the bonded consignee. Violation of this section is punishable by a fine of $5,000 and two years' imprisonment or both." Not content with this restriction of the supply the makers of the code have set down that every package which does not bear the name of the person to whom it is shipped, the kind of liquor which it contains and the quantity upon the outside may be seized and condemned.

Here is the climax, which has made the thirsty in the prohibition States wonder if the code committee could have been "packed" against them. It says that it shall be forbidden to collect the purchase price of liquor shipped as interstate commerce, "either before, on or after delivery." If this latter provision has not killed the "C. O. D." package the framers of the code would like to have another opportunity to further amend it.

In the South, where the prohibition wave has submerged several States bordering upon other less afflicted in this regard, the express business has become enormous. In some cities it is represented that quantities of packages of liquor would be shipped to the agent and the man who wanted a quart for Saturday night need not even exercise the forethought which on Wednesday foretells a Saturday night thirst. With almost the convenience of the wholesale liquor depot he could upon ten minutes' warning run over to the express office, ask for a package, for "John Doe" pay the "C. O. D." charges and snap his fingers at the law.

An instance is given in Fall River, Mass., where the city voted local option. Breweries which had been doing a large local business were not affected. Express companies were. The breweries shipped their product into Rhode Island turned it around and sent it back again as interstate commerce and sold it "C. O. D." delivered as express. The law will also have a large mail-order business.

Besides reiterating many laws now enforced in practically their old form the code makes it a misdemeanor for the Government to give out advance information as to the contents of any crop report and fixes the penalty high enough to make it effective. A fine of $10,000, and imprisonment, or both looks like a concession to the protection of the stock market. The issuance of a false statement of statistics from the Government is made punishable by a fine of $5,000 and five years' imprisonment, or they may be combined in the discretion of the court. This legislation is an echo of arrests and disclosures following the discovery that advance information was being used from the Government cotton report to beat the market in New York.

Roller Skating.

As considerable complaint has been made to the City Council in regard to the use of the sidewalks for roller skating, the Council at its meeting on Monday night, passed an ordinance forbidding skating on the sidewalks of the city with roller skates or any other kind of skates and for a violation of the ordinance a fine of not less than one dollar and not exceeding five dollars will be imposed for each offense.

Shotgun Is Ready For Thieves.

Chicken stealing has become so prevalent around Hyattsville, that the County Commissioners have offered a reward of $20 for the arrest of the thieves. The residents have furnished a shotgun club, and a warm reception awaits the next visit of the thieves.

For Coughs—Take This

Do you know a remedy for coughs and colds nearly seventy years old? There is one—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Once in the family, it stays. It is not a doctor, does not take the place of a doctor. It is a doctor's aid. Made for the treatment of all throat and lung troubles. Ask your own doctor his opinion of it. Follow his advice.
No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

You cannot recover promptly if your bowels are constipated. Ayer's Pills are gently laxative; act directly on the liver. Sold for nearly sixty years. Ask your doctor about them.

OF SIGNAL SERVICE.

"You look very sad, little boy," said the benevolent old lady. "Can I be of any help to you?"
The little boy, who had been reading a class of literature beloved of his kind, threw down the book and struck an attitude.
"Hist, old woman," he declared. "Thou canst be of signal service to me an' thou wilt. Seest yon terbaccy shop across the way? Take this bronze coin and command the scurvy knave within to supply thee with two cigarettes and a lucifer. Be secret, mother, and betray me not, or thy life shall pay the forfeit. I will await thee here. Begone!"

Not for Him.
"Edison says he has perfected his storage battery so as to put the horse in the has-been class."
"He need not have troubled so far as I am concerned, the horse has always been in the 'never-was' class for me."

As It Should Be.
"Things are not evenly balanced in this world," remarked the thoughtful thinker.
"How's that?" queried the dense party.
"There should be more leisure for men of business and more business for men of leisure," answered the t.t. Begone!"

FOXY HIRAM.

"Well, now, if that ain't surprising!" ejaculated Mrs. Ryeatop as she shaded her eyes with her hand. "There goes old Hiram Skindint, and rather than step on a poor black ant he picked it up, and I bet he is going to drop it somewhere out of the reach of danger."
Her husband laughed knowingly.
"Not Hiram Skindint, Mandy. He'll go down to Jed Weatherby's general store and order a pound of granulated sugar. Then while Jed is looking another way he'll drop the ant among the grains and tell Jed as long as his sugar has ants in it he ought to sell it at half price. Like as not he'll try to get Jed to throw in two or three raisins and a yeastcake. Yeou don't know Hiram Skindint!"

GRATITUDE.

She came back from the ocean with the sparkle in her eyes and the tan on her cheeks.
"Well! Well!" said the pale little man who had been laboring in the hot, stuffy office. "You are looking fine. I'll wager you didn't worry about me one second while you were down there."
"No, dear," she teased, as she counted her souvenir shells, "that is just the reason I went away."
"What reason?"
"Why, to keep from worrying about trifles."
And he, poor married man, had been sending the weekly checks.
Pleasant for Father.
"It doesn't matter if you are poor," said the dear girl, "we can manage to get along some way. After we are married I can learn to cook."
"Suppose," suggested the prudent young man, "that you learn the cooking stunt before we face the parson--then your father will have the pleasure of supplying the raw material for the experiments."

THE COMING LEGISLATURE.

It is very evident that the coming Legislature will have its hands full if it attempts to carry out the program laid out for it by Gov. Crothers. Many of the commissions appointed by the Governor have been busy and will have many recommendations to lay before him which recommendations it is believed will be laid before the Legislature for their consideration and action.

It is to be hoped that the question of legislative expenses will be taken up and settled as soon as the bodies meet, and that the large and unnecessary cost of running the Legislature be so reduced as to put it on a strict business basis.

The question of forming a commission of Public Utilities along the line of the declaration in the Democratic platform does not seem to have any opposition, but when it comes to actually framing the law then the corporations interested in a measure of this kind can be expected to get busy, and it will be up to the delegates and senators to watch every movement made by them, to see that the measure is framed in the interest of the people and not in favor of the corporations.

While not incorporated in the party's platform, a compulsory direct primary law is regarded as a policy to which the Democrats are practically pledged. That a law of this kind will meet with considerable opposition from certain of the politicians of the State is regarded as likely, and a big effort will probably be made to defeat a law looking toward direct primaries.

The failure of the last Legislature to pass a fair primary law probably lost thousands of votes for the constitutional amendment this year, and a failure to pass one by the coming Legislature will not help the party any in its next State campaign.

The increased representation for Baltimore City is another big question which will have to be fought out at Annapolis this winter, and it is one, judging from present indications, that will be the hardest to solve, owing to the wide difference of opinion among the Democrats of the State upon the extent of the increase which shall be given Baltimore. It is a bad policy for any party to violate its platform pledges, and while opposed to giving Baltimore a controlling voice in the law-making bodies of the State, yet as the Democratic platform has made a definite promise in regard to the increase, we believe the promise should be fulfilled.

In addition to these questions of general interest to the entire State, there will be several matters of special interest to Wicomico County alone, which will probably come up before the Senator and representatives of this County for their consideration and action. One of these will be the repeal of the present mortgage tax, which the ADVERTISER expects to discuss later on, and another will be a new game law for the county. That a change is needed in the game law is very evident from the number of violations now going on, under the present law. Either the present law is not stringent enough, or is not easy enough to enforce, since it is a matter of general knowledge that birds are being shipped out of the county and sold by the thousands. The punishment is not sufficient to deter the men now engaged in the business from taking the risk. As a result, quail are a very scarce article in the local market, and at the present rate of killing, it is fair to be entirely exterminated by the professional hunters and trappers.

Wicomico is sending up excellent men to the Legislature this year and the people of the county look forward to their actions at Annapolis with great deal of confidence, and we hope, as well as believe, that their course on the many questions which will come before them will be such as to merit the confidence which the people have in them.

HOME, WOMAN'S SPHERE

Ex-President of Harvard Believes She Can Get Education There.

Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, believes that home making should be the crowning desire of woman. In an interview he declared that for the normal woman the real intellectual existence was to be found in the exercise of her mind upon the problems presented by home making companionship with her husband and the vital problems of the rearing of children.

"There is a common idea," said Dr. Eliot, "that to procure for herself an intellectual life, as distinguished from a life of sentimental or mechanical routine, a woman needs to have some occupation similar to those of men—that is, she needs to keep a shop, carry on business, have some trade or profession, be skillful in some art which has a commercial use or be a professional artist or writer. The common life of woman in bearing or rearing children and making a home for a family is not thought of as affording the wife and mother the means and opportunity for an intellectual development."

"I do not think this is a rational view. It does not conform to the real experience of a woman of good parts who marries at 24 or thereabouts and brings up a family of five or six children."

"There is no question that a woman who does not pursue the natural and common vocation of women may enjoy an intellectual life in employments similar to those which procure for men a large and enjoyable intellectual development. Many such exceptional women can follow with satisfaction the ordinary professions for men, keep shops, carry on business, labor for churches, schools and charitable societies, and take an active part in the various social movements which are fostered by public opinion; but these exceptional women will, as a rule, contribute far less to the real progress and development of man than the normal women whose intellectual opportunities they are apt to underrate."

"The normal girl, who learns to read and write and cipher at school and acquires there a little knowledge of history and literature and taste for reading, finds her means of intellectual development outside of the school room in her practice of the household arts, in her study of clothes for herself and her family, in her enforced careful expenditure of money, in reading, and in her daily intercourse with father and mother, brothers and sisters, companions and acquaintances. In imparting training to the children the mother herself practices keen observation the comparative study of her different children, patience, and gentle decisiveness, which is quite as much an intellectual as a moral trait. The mother of several children—four or five or six—has better opportunities of developing her own intellectual life than the mother of one child or two children, because in a large family there are always differences of disposition and capacity among the children, and the children react on each other and on their mother in more interesting ways."

WALTZED 14 HOURS

Stopped By Mayor—Dancers Present Fearful Sight—Six In Hospital.

After dancing continuously for 14 hours and 41 minutes without nourishment at Butte, Mont., three of the 53 couples that started in a "Marathon" waltz contest to see which pair could waltz the longest were stopped by Mayor Charles H. Nevin on advice of city and county physicians. Six of the women contestants at the end of several hours were taken to a hospital, one suffering of a ruptured blood vessel and another of muscular paralysis. Several other female contestants were exhausted physically, and all but three pairs had ceased the waltzing grind before officers interfered.

These women presented a fearful sight during the last hours of the dancing, with eyes bloodshot and bodies swaying.

"USEFUL FAD" NOW

Working In Society—Mrs. Longworth Trims Hats And Mrs. Pearsall Designs Gowns.

The "useful fad" has pervaded Washington society. From Mrs. Taft, who likes nothing better than to prepare a special dish for the President's supper, to the latest debutante all are busy.

For instance, if Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth were ever called on to earn her own living, she could do so in making and trimming hats. She has made many for herself and even for intimate friends. Mrs. Paul Pearsall, formerly Martha Hitchcock, is an expert designer of gowns, and Mrs. Jane Cecil Moore, daughter of the late Representative Nelson Dingley, is an excellent accountant.

NO "DRY" PARTY FOR

Jim Now—Has Outlived Its Usefulness, Says Former Candidate.

John G. Woolley, former Presidential candidate on the Prohibition ticket, in an address before the Sunday Evening Club, Chicago, took the ground that the "dry" party has outlived its usefulness and that the saloons can only be driven out by the united efforts of Christian people of both parties.

"The Prohibition party did magnificent work for a while," said Mr. Woolley, "but the trouble got to be that there were five times as many Prohibitionists in the Democratic party as in the Prohibition party, and several more times as many of them in the Republican party."

"We are going to win this fight," he continued, "and if you men are afraid to jump into politics and tackle the saloon, for God's sake enfranchise your women and let them do it."

The October Bride

Would undoubtedly appreciate a piece of Pickard's Hand-Painted China more than anything you could send her, not only on account of its unique beauty, but because she would probably have duplicates of almost everything else that you can find in a jeweler's stock, except PICKARD'S CHINA. Why not drop into Harper & Taylor's Jewelry Store and see the large display of beautiful new shapes and decorations of Pickard's China just got from studios in Chicago?

GRANGE ELECTS OFFICERS

To Further Its Interests During 1910. Next Meeting December 18th.

At the meeting of the Salisbury Grange No. 278 Patrons of Husbandry, last Saturday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

Wm. O. Mitchell, Master, re-elected; Wm. P. Ward, Overseer, re-elected; Grant Sexton, Lecturer, re-elected; Ira Parker, Steward, re-elected; Herman Handy, Chaplain, newly elected; W. H. Parker, Treasurer, re-elected; W. P. Morris, Secretary, newly elected Mrs. Wm. O. Mitchell, Orator, re-elected; Miss Bessie Parker, Roman, re-elected; Miss Alice Parker, Lady Asst. Steward, re-elected; Mrs. Wm. P. Ward, Flora, re-elected; Mrs. Grant Sexton was chosen assistant Lecturer.

During the year just ending the Grange has been making slow growth, but it has been making root preparatory to the extended growth, which we are anticipating in the near future. The outlook for the Grange in this county is very bright. Six new members were initiated in the Salisbury Grange last Saturday evening and several new names were proposed for membership.

The officers have been gaining experience and we look for good and efficient work from them in 1910.

Efforts will be made to organize new Granges at Hammonds, Parsonsburg, Pittsville, Powellville, Hebron, Mardela, Sharptown, Quantico, and at other places where the farmers manifest efficient interest, during the first few months of 1910.

We want the co-operation and support of every farmer in this County. The next meeting will be held in the Odd Fellows Hall, Main Street, Salisbury Md., Saturday evening, December 18th, at seven o'clock.

Proves By The Pikes Peak Test

No where else in all the world is there such a test of the time keeping quality of a watch as on the famous Pikes Peak Cog Railway in Colorado, where the steep grades of the mountain necessitate the use of cog wheels to control the train, and vibration often so injures ordinary watches that an expert repairman must readjust them.

A conductor on the Pike's Peak road made a ninety-day test of the South Bend Watch last summer. No adjustment of the watch was made for the whole period, but at the end of the test, examination showed a variation of less than one-half second per day. Do you think the watch you carry could stand a test like this?

We will be pleased to show you our line of these guaranteed accurate watches and explain to you how a South Bend Watch adjusts itself to every temperature automatically.

A Misunderstanding

By WILLIAM AMORY

(Copyright, by W. G. Chapman.)

But you are not listening." Helen Fairfax turned her eyes back to her lover with a murmured "Forgive me." They were earnest eyes, shining with a tremulous love-light, and she was a clever girl, with keen mind and keener intuition, and he had grown into the habit of talking to her freely of his life, his profession, in a way that surprised himself. But to-night her attention wandered. To-night of all nights! To-morrow he was to sum up his great case. Surely a woman should share the self-denial of a man's destiny. Was Helen, after all, like other women—given to moods, absorbed in the subjective—when the veil was lifted? They had been engaged six months; each day had been a fuller revelation of her nature. Was this the nearer view? Ah, no—banish the thought. Helen was Helen—there was no more to be said.

He took up the lines of the argument of his case and stated them to her, clearly, concisely, as though she were a man. This time her eyes did not wander from his face; they deepened, their pupils growing larger as she gazed. How splendid he looked! How alert! How alive!

How could she keep at this wide distance? How incidental and how futile sounded all that rapid flow of words! When would he have done, that she might throw herself upon his breast?

"Don't you think so?" he asked her, suddenly.

"Oh, Harold, I did not hear what you were saying."

"Not hear what I was saying? Haven't you been following? I never needed your co-operation more, your

"Harold Was Alone with His Letter."

Intellectual sympathy more, than I do to-night. You know how hard I have been working on this case; you know what a notable case it is. You know, also, that the eyes of the legal world are upon me. My summing up to-morrow will be a crisis in the beginning of my career. Could you not follow me—help me by your sympathy—your interest?"

He waited to see the flash of protest in her eyes, for some little lance that she would thrust to cross his own, but instead she nestled her head into the curve of his shoulder and whispered: "Forgive me. I am moody to-night; very moody and absent-minded."

"We have no right to be moody nor absent-minded, dear," he answered seriously. "Where another's interests are involved, it is a sign of weakness. And there is something besides love. A strong woman should keep even love at bay when a man has work to do—not lure him nor tempt him with it. I do not like to say it, sweetheart, but I love you—and the wounds of a friend are faithful. I am disappointed at your failure to sympathize with my work to-night."

Two big tears welled in her eyes, but she said no word. Had Harold been a hero, a knight of chivalry, he would not have stopped in his quest until he had found the source of those two tears; he was, however, only a very busy man of today. Not that the two are altogether incompatible, but that the combination is rare, and Harold did not happen to be both in the fullest sense; furthermore, he was deeply absorbed in an immediate practical affair. It was striking eleven, and time for him to leave her. Though he said no more, and his good-night salutation lacked nothing outwardly, there was a mental reservation which, to the psychic sense of Helen, robbed it of its fullest bliss.

"Six o'clock to-morrow, dear," he repeated, as he went out the door. "Six o'clock to-morrow," she answered.

Did her voice quiver, or was it fancy? He was conscious of saying to himself, as he passed down the steps: "Are all women alike, I wonder—after all—tears and moods?"

her in the gathering dusk, as he waited, her eyes glistening delight! He could hear her vibrant "Harold!" Poor child, had he been harsh last night? Ah, no, only impatient for a moment, and frank—to make her the utmost that she was capable of being. If he had unintentionally hurt her, he knew a potent balm to heal with, to make her rejoice. Why was the servant so eternally slow in opening the door? How long they were making him wait! He rang again.

"Tell Miss Fairfax I am here."

"Yes, sir." The servant stood silent and awkward. Harold wanted to quicken him with a shove; what was the matter with the fellow? He walked into the library; the light was burning low; the servant followed him, and closed the door with an air of mystery that gave Harold a mingled shock of impatience and of fear.

"I was to give you this, sir, when you came," and the man held out a letter.

"Is Miss Fairfax not at home?"

"She is at home, sir."

"Then tell her at once that I am here."

"Yes, sir."

Harold was alone with his letter; he opened it and read:

It is midnight, you have gone, and yet it seems as though you are still here—so close to me that I can see your eyes and feel your touch—Harold. Forgive me that I was not more as I should have been this evening, but I was a coward. Dear, I have not been well for many weeks, and yesterday I saw a specialist. He told me I had a most serious difficulty, and that I must undergo a dangerous operation at once, if I would save my life. To-morrow is the day appointed. I implored him to wait, but he leaves town in a few days, and if I do not have it done to-morrow it could not be performed for two months, and that is too long to wait, he says; so there was no other way. To-morrow—our day—when you are to vindicate my pride and hope in me; the day we have waited for so long. There was but one impulse strong within me, almost overmastering—to fly to the shelter of your arms—to seek your sympathy. But how could I tell you when it might imperil your calm, your peace—undo all you have worked for—hamper your ascent, in which to-morrow will be a stepping stone? No. You must not know. Your heart is too tender. I am too much your own for you to stand up in court and plead for legal abstractions when I am lying under the knife. I half hoped you would make me tell you all my heart—but now I am glad you do not know. You will have no shadow on your way to-morrow, and when you receive this it will be all behind us; it will have been over seven hours, for the operation takes place at 11 o'clock. Good-night—good-by. I love you—it seems to me that I love you in a new way to-night. Harold—Harold—I must call you back and tell you, and feel your strength to make me strong; but no. I am your love; I must be brave. And then—why should I fear? God's in His heaven—All's right with the world.

HELEN. He crushed the letter in his hand, and reached the door with one bound, like an animal in chase. She was his own; his place was by her side; no man could keep him from her. As he opened the door he came face to face with her father.

"Harold, my dear fellow—"

"Let me go to her," and Harold tried to pass. Mr. Fairfax put his arm across the door.

"No, you must not, now; the doctors are with her; they will let no one in, not even me, and I am her father. Harold, my boy, we must be brave and stand by each other."

A withering quiet, like a blight, fell upon Harold. It seemed to paralyze his powers of motion and of speech. After a moment he heard himself saying, in a voice that sounded like a stranger's:

"What—do—they—the doctors—say?"

Mr. Fairfax looked at him pityingly, his own anguish stamped white upon his face.

"Don't lose heart, Harold," he said, gravely. "We are hoping for the best, and McKenzie, the doctor who performed the operation, says the chances are in her favor."

KITE-FLYING CONTESTS. In response to a demand of the times for athletics that lead to high thinking, few sports can take rank with the kite flying. In the open fields the sportsman's every resource is in play while he struggles with the string controlling the big kite tugging at the other end. His thoughts, if he indulges in any, are concerned with immutable laws and lofty affairs of the universe. Kite-flying contests are the excitement of the hour in the eastern states. Not long since 127 boys of Greater New York entered for medals offered by the West Hudson Aero club, and other similar events have been heard from in which both boys and girls exercised ingenuity in kite invention and craft in managing their airships.

Wanted a Handout. "I suppose," began the kind lady, before Mr. Husky Hasbeen got a chance to exercise his voice, "that you want to chop some wood in exchange for a square meal, don't you?"

"I'd like to oblige yer, lady," replied the dusty traveler, "but it's bin mor'n 20 years since I done enny-thing in dat line."

"Well," said the k. l., "here's where you can practice fill you get your hand in."

"Nothin' doin' lady," rejoined the hobo. "Wot I'm lookin' fer is a hand-out, see?"

And the kind lady fell in a faint.

You'll "Warm" to These Styles

AND they'll "warm" to you these "chizzly" days—half-fall, half-winter—when last summer's clothes let the breezes in.

We're always proud to show the sterling styles, the best new things in fine fabrics and smart tailoring, that come from

The House of Kuppenheimer

But we're unusually enthusiastic over the Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats of that make which we're showing now.

Here's one very popular model illustrated, the Regent. It's a long, loose-fitting, comfortable, stylish coat—a style becoming to nearly every man.

We've a great many other desirable styles that we are just as enthusiastic about.

And every man, young or old, gay or grave, who's seen these new models has found our enthusiasm catching.

Because there's a style here, a fabric and a fit for every man of every notion.

You can't get away from right-quality-for-little-price. It's part of the Kuppenheimer creed and part of ours.

An Interlude

FOR MILES and miles, as far as the eye can see, stretches the cornland; heavy golden wheat breaking upon a shimmer of oats, and oats fading to the whiteness of barley, with never a hedge or a fence between to limit the sense of distance. Here and there a clump of willows bends to the breeze; and here and there a mass of rock, scattered and seemed in all directions, rises above the crop. For the rest, all is a glorious blending of gold and silver, bathed by radiant sunshine—a plain of plenty reaching to the southern horizon. On the north a line of dark forest sweeps in a semi-circle, with a little gray village sheltering within one end of its deep curve; and a mile away an avenue of plane trees, seen across the waving corn and bleaching stubble, shows where runs the straight highway—the road that takes one to Paris.

The corn grows up to the walls of the village, only a sandy track dividing them. Here and there a cottage stands on the edge of the crop, embowered in vines that climb to the very chimneys. Over the sun-baked meadows are scattered little orchards of heavily-laden apple trees, and others crimson with plums; and everywhere—at the cottage doors, among the wheat, almost in the dust of the lane—rise the feathery fronds of asparagus. Popples and cornflowers are mingled with the corn, and roystered soapwort and the dainty blue of chicory fringe the path. Here and there the vivid azure of borage gleams above the general tangle of color, varied with masses of pink-spurred blossoms, not unlike columbine, but even more delicately fashioned and tinted. The weather has set in fair and harvest is in full swing. In the great French plains machinery is still the exception rather than the rule, and the rhythmic swish of scythe and sickle mingles with the sigh of the wind among the corn stalks, and makes a gentle music fitting for an August afternoon.

We see a little plot of perhaps half an acre actually enclosed, that is to say, its limits are defined by a waving green belt of asparagus; and within it an old woman, in the spotless white cap which characterizes the peasant of northern France, is slowly gathering together the reaped oats with her curved hook and binding them in little sheaves. Her son cut her oats for her days ago, she says, but it has been too hot for her to work in the field. Only to-day the breeze has come, and by and by, when he has finished carting yonder, Pierre will help her again.

In the next field, if one can say "next" where everything seems to blend indefinitely, carting is in progress. Three big Normandy horses, wearing high wooden collars faced with brasswork, stand patiently under a half-empty wagon from which the men are pitching on to the stack; and the women and children are gleaming in the stubble. As the day wears on and they escape from their household duties more women flock to the fields, big, sturdy women, some of whom turn up their sleeves and bow to the reaping with the strength of men. Others join the gleaners. Here and there may be seen an entire family, the father hard at work loading or pitching, the mother and children gleaming. They do not talk much, these harvesters; their work is too arduous, but the little ones, chattering in unattainable paths, do not take life so seriously.

The sun is sinking in a golden haze that rises like the dust from some tremendous threshing floor, and the white road to Paris is barred with the shadows of the plane trees which Napoleon planted to shelter his marching troops. Motorists ought to bless the memory of Napoleon, for once of the evil powers which surround the towns, there are no roads in the world so good as those he made all over France. Behind the avenue of planes are apple and pear trees laden with fruit, and, although within reach of all

A Well Hint.
If one wants to look ugly and slow, let the veil stretch and hang loose under the chin. No matter how well it is adjusted everywhere else, the appearance of a woman is ruined. A seller of imported veils gives this hint to overcome this difficulty. After the veil is smoothly pinned and fastened on the hat and nape of neck, first try to draw back the objectionable fullness and secure it with invisible hairpins.

Should there still be a pendant, loose and under the chin, give it a little twist and turn it under. The veil holds smoothly in place, is much more becoming and does not come loose until the veil is removed.

As this twisting usually comes in the same place, it does not stretch the lower edge of veil as much as one would suspect. Even though it does, a slight unevenness when the veil is off is much better than lack of trimness when worn.

A Pious Belief.
"My dear woman, is your husband an atheist?"
"Law, no, mum. He and his folks has always been home-going."

ORANGE BASIS OF THIS CAKE

Delicacy for Afternoon Tea Greatly Improved by the Addition of Royal Jelly.

Four ounces of caster sugar, seven ounces of flour, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, half a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda, two ounces of butter, two eggs, one gill of milk, the grated rinds of three oranges. Cream the butter with half the sugar, beat in one egg, then the rest of the sugar and the other egg, then sift in gradually the flour, orange rind, cream of tartar and the soda, adding the milk as required. Butter a tin, line with paper, pour in the cake and bake for about half an hour. Cover with royal icing.

Royal icing is useful for a variety of cakes, and can be flavored and colored to taste. Put the white of an egg into a basin with a squeeze of lemon juice, and stir into it six ounces of icing sugar; work well with a wooden spoon till perfectly smooth. Spread this on your cake or biscuits, dipping your knife into boiling water frequently, so that the surface is smooth.

FOR JELLIED FRUIT SALAD

Delightful Confection on Warm Day—Many Varieties of Fruit May Be Used.

Two pounds mixed fresh fruits, the greater variety the better, brown sugar, one wineglassful of sherry, one pint of lemon jelly. Put the fruit into a basin, having previously peeled it where necessary, and cut all fruit like bananas, pears, peaches, oranges, etc., in slices. Sprinkle it with brown sugar, pour over the sherry and leave in a cool place. Take a pint of lemon jelly—there are many good kinds sold which only need to be dissolved for use. Let it stand till cold, but not set, then whisk it till it looks like snow. Put part of the fruit in a large bowl (stood on ice if possible), add a layer of jelly in rough heaps, then more fruit, and so on till all is used, leaving the whipped jelly on the top. This should be stood on ice till required.

Chicken Baked in Milk. Prepare a chicken as though for roasting. Mix a dressing using crumbed bread, butter, salt and pepper, a cup of seeded raisins and sufficient sugar to make it moderately sweet. Stuff the chicken with this mixture, and if a little of it should be left, reserve it, to be added to the gravy when that is made. Place the chicken in a dripping pan. In the bottom of the pan put two or three quarters of rich milk; cover the pan and bake the chicken slowly until it is very tender, being careful to turn and baste it as often as may be necessary. Thicken the gravy in the pan, seasoning it with salt and, if required, sugar to taste.

Spanish Catsup. Peel and slice one-half gallon green cucumbers and slice enough cabbage to make one-half gallon. Sprinkle with salt and let stand for six hours. Chop one dozen onions and let them stand in boiling water half an hour. Chop one quart green tomatoes, one pint string beans, one dozen ears green corn, scald and strain. Mix all the other ingredients together, then add two small cupsful white mustard seed, one small cupful ground mustard, one pound sugar, three tablespoonfuls grated horseradish, three tablespoonfuls celery seed, two tablespoonfuls olive oil, one tablespoonful each mace, cayenne and cinnamon. Place in a jar, mix well and cover with boiling vinegar.

Eggs with Savory Sauce.

Four eggs (or more, according to your party), half a pint of good gravy, half an ounce of butter, half an ounce of flour, half a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, one teaspoonful each of chopped capers and parsley.

Ponch the eggs nicely in little round tins for the purpose and serve them on pieces of buttered toast of the exact size. Now heat the gravy in a saucepan, thicken it with butter worked into the flour, season with pepper, salt, the capers and chopped parsley, and, lastly, the tarragon vinegar, and boil up. It should be a thick brown gravy and very highly flavored. Four round the eggs.

Ginger Cookies.

One cup of sugar, one cup of molasses, one cup butter, two eggs, one tablespoonful of ginger, one tablespoonful of soda dissolved in a quarter of a cup of boiling water, and a saltspoonful of salt. Mix and knead into a dough as stiff as is required to roll them out, then put away over night. In the morning roll out, and use a little flour if necessary, then bake in a good hot oven.

Kitchen Soap.

Take six pounds of grease, melted and strained, one can of potash dissolved in one quart of water, and wait until thoroughly cooled. Add five cents' worth of borax dissolved in one pint of water. Mix the three ingredients together and stir until it fudges, pour off in large dripping pan, and cut in about sixteen bars. The longer the soap stands the harder it becomes.

Egg in Mince Meat.

A bit of kitchen economy is that cold fried or scrambled eggs, which would seem to be no longer useful, may be chopped and mixed with mince meat to the latter's improvement. A poached egg, too, that was not needed, may, if it is not broken, be returned to the water and boiled hard and used to garnish or mix with a salad.

Weak Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering. If kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and dealer's name, and get something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

Public Sale —OF VALUABLE— REAL ESTATE

The undersigned will sell by public auction on Saturday, Jan. 1st, 1910

at 9 o'clock p. m. in front of the Court House in Salisbury, Wicomico County, Maryland, all that tract of land lying in Nantux District, Wicomico County, Maryland, about one mile from Fruitland, on the East side of the County Road, leading from Fruitland to Saint Lukes' Methodist Episcopal Church, which formerly belonged to Charlotte Cary and which we inherited, containing 115 acres of land more or less.

We will first offer this land in five parcels as per survey and plot made by Henry D. Powell, Surveyor, October 27, 1908.

Lot 1. Contains 68 A. 3 R. 25 P. mostly cleared land, with a dwelling house on same. Grave yard of 1/2 acre of land, with right of ingress and egress to same reserve. This land lies on both sides of new road laid out through this land.

Lot 2. Contains 65 A. 1 P. 36 P., all in thicket timber and fronts on said new road.

Lot 3. Contains 34 A. 0 R. 9 P., all in thicket timber and fronts on said new road and the first mentioned road.

Lot 4. Contains 41 A. 1 R. 8 P., and fronts on both of said roads. In thicket.

Lot 5. Contains 18 A. 2 R. 25 P., and fronts on said new road. Partly cleared land, with small tenant house on same.

We will then offer all of said land as a whole and if the bid received for it as a whole exceeds in amount the aggregate of bids received for it in parcels, then said land will be sold as a whole, otherwise the bids received for it in parcels will prevail and stand. School houses and churches convenient.

No part of this land will be sold to any person of African descent, and all of this land is and will be sold, subject to the restriction that no part of same shall be aliened or conveyed to the purchaser or purchasers, their heirs or assigns, to any person or persons of African descent, or to any person or persons in trust for the use of any person or persons of such African descent. In case any purchaser or purchasers, their heirs and assigns, or any of this land shall disregard the restriction set out above and sell or convey any part of this land, contrary to above restriction, then the said land so sold or conveyed shall revert back rest in and become the property of the undersigned as if they had never sold or conveyed it.

TERMS OF SALE—Twenty per cent cash on day of sale. Balance or purchase money on a credit of one and one-half years to be secured by bond or mortgage of purchaser or purchasers bearing interest from day of sale, with power of sale to be approved by the undersigned. COMING TO SALISBURY

To Interest Wicomicoans in Traveling Libraries.

In these days of free education the public library has come to be looked upon as an important factor in a community as the public school. The Maryland State Library Commission organized in 1903 to further library interests in the State has employed for this year as its field secretary and library organizer, Miss Mary P. Farr, a graduate of the Drexel Institute Library and a librarian of wide experience. Miss Farr is making a complete tour of the State and comes to Wicomico County this week. She will make the county seat her headquarters and will make her home with Mrs. Katharine E. McMackin, 304 E. William Street. She will visit many of the schools in the county. She will visit also the towns and villages to interest them in the traveling libraries which the state will lend to any community upon application of three responsible citizens. The State pays the freight charges each way on these books and the only cost to the community is a registration fee of fifty cents for the whole case. The State now owns ninety one of these traveling libraries, ten of which deals with special subjects, namely; three in "Pedagogy," two on "General History," one dealing with books suitable for the elementary schools and the other for teachers and High School students, two on "Nature," one each on "Maryland State History," "Agriculture" and "Farm Animals." The other libraries are miscellaneous collections of book cases, each containing one half fiction and the other half books of history, travel, biography, etc.

Application blanks may be obtained at its headquarters in the Enoch Pratt Free Library, Baltimore City.

Arrested for Violating Internal Revenue Laws.

Charged with violating the internal revenue laws of the United States by dispensing intoxicating liquors without a license, Asher J. Bailey, a farmer of near Stouton, Worcester County, was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal, Noah T. Sterling, of Oriskany.

The charge on which Bailey was arrested is a serious one. He will not only have to answer to the courts of Worcester County for violating the Local Option law, but will be forced to stand trial before a United States Commissioner for trying to defraud the government of taxes.

The case is one of the first of its kind to occur on the Eastern Shore and has excited a great deal of interest. Internal Revenue Collector, John T. Moore, of Cambridge, is the main witness against Bailey.

PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL

Now Up Over And Electric As Well As Other Public Service Companies Are Made Subject.

Attorney General Isaac Lobe Straus has finished the proposed public utilities bill. This measure has been prepared by Mr. Straus, with some plans tentatively inserted and others subject to revision. After Governor Crothers has gone over the bill with Mr. Straus the measure will be submitted to all the members of the Governor's Cabinet, who will pass upon it. It will then go to the General Assembly for ratification.

Whatever doubt existed over the ability to provide adequate salary for the members of the Commission was solved by Attorney General Straus by providing that the State should pay the maximum allowed by the Constitution—$5000—and Baltimore city should pay the remainder. The salary has not been fixed. Mr. Straus believes it should be made large—not less than $7500 for any member, and an increase over this for the chairman. There are to be three of these commissioners, and their jurisdiction embraces every public service corporation in the State. Provision is made for the employment of such clerical help as they may need, and for the services of counsel.

To Make Reasonable Rates.

The commissioners have the power of all corporations to demand adequate public service at reasonable prices. Such power and privileges as the determination of these matters involve is bestowed upon them in the law.

Corporations must furnish the commission with schedules of all its rates and charges, with the capitalization involved. It has the authority to demand the books of any corporation for the purpose of ascertaining its assets and its liabilities and any other facts they may contain bearing on the duties of the commission. It can also provide for a uniform system of bookkeeping for all corporations so that the facts as shown on the books can be readily ascertained. It regulates the transfer of franchises. It can prevent discrimination in rates. It has a "shortage" clause, providing that the charges for it shall not be in excess of the charges for the longer haul in which the shorter one is included.

The act is applicable both to the manufacture and the supplying of gas, whether natural or artificial, and for electricity for all the purposes for which they are used. Telephone and telegraph service, railroad and street cars everywhere in Maryland come under its provisions.

Must Not Accept Favors.

Neither the commissioners nor those employed by them in any capacity can accept favors or gratuities including passes of any kind from any of the corporations to which the act applies, nor can they seek favors of any kind from them.

Two years ago Mr. Straus went to Annapolis with two bills—the corrupt practices act and the general primary law. The corrupt practices went through without any changes, but the general primary bill was emasculated. It is generally regarded as a failure on the part of the Democrats to redeem the pledge they made to pass legislation along these lines.

The bill as prepared by Mr. Straus was satisfactory to everyone. In view of the fate of the primary election bill, fear is expressed that the Legislature may tamper with the public utilities bill, notwithstanding the care that is being exercised by the Governor and the Attorney General to get it into the desired shape.

Unique Dinner.

Several of the young ladies here entertained at a very unique dinner party on Thursday evening. The dinner which consisted of six courses was served at the different homes of the six hostesses, the guests driving from home to home—in the order of the courses. The first course was held at the home of Miss Rebecca Smyth. For the second course they were the guests of Miss Sara Phillips, and then the guests of Miss Clara Tilghman, and Miss Ruth Gandy. Miss Margaret Woodcock, closing the dinner as the guests of Miss Belle Jackson. The hostesses of the evening were Misses Rebecca Smyth, Sara Phillips, Clara Tilghman, Margaret Woodcock, Ruth Gandy, Belle Jackson. Their guests were Messrs. Marvin Evans, Frank Adams, J. W. Hiron, Wm. A. Sheppard, C. O. Dorman and Walter R. Diaberon.

Boy Killed By Falling Tree.

Archie Collins, who lives close to the Wilcoxon county line, while cutting timber in the woods with his father was accidentally killed. While his father, John Collins, and Archie were in the act of felling a large pine tree the boy got between the tree and another standing tree. In the fall the tree caught the boy, crushing him to death. He was 20 years old.

FIRE IN CAMDEN

Destroys Two Buildings—Blaze Well Under Way Before Discovery.

Fire started in the house on Smith Street on Wednesday night owned by Mr. John W. Windsor, and occupied by Mr. John W. Turner, burning this house and the adjoining one, occupied by Mr. Henry Taylor to the ground. The fire started around nine o'clock in the evening, and was well under way before the alarm was given.

As Camden Bridge was not open to traffic the fire engine had to go over the Humphreys' Dam, and in going from the Hospital, to Newton Street, the horses were stalled in the mud, delaying their work at the fire for a short time, this together with the necessary delay in hose attachment and the delay in giving the alarm resulted in the destruction of both houses as well as endangering the surrounding property.

If there had been much wind it is not believed that the fire could have been checked until a part, at least, of this thickly settled neighborhood had been destroyed. How the fire got out seems to be somewhat of a mystery. Mr. Turner, who lived in the house where it started being out of town with his family on that day and it is understood, says there had been no fire in the house during the day.

The houses were new ones built last spring, costing from $1500 to $2000 to build. Mr. Windsor's loss is estimated to be about $3000 with $2000 insurance. Mr. Turner lost nearly all of his personal effects without insurance. Mr. Taylor succeeded in moving most of his property out. In addition to this, the house adjoining, recently bought by Mr. L. L. Laws, of Wango, was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars.

FOR THE HOSPITAL

Xmas Matinee At Green's And Browning's Auditorium.

The Board of Lady Managers of the Peninsula General Hospital have arranged to give a matinee at Green and Browning's Auditorium during Christmas week. There will be some special features which will be attractive. The program will be as follows:

Pianists—Miss Ruth Gandy and Miss Nina Venable. National Lullaby's, by sixteen children in costume. Place and Dances (a Barlesque) Mrs. M. V. Brewington, Misses Belle M. Jackson, Clara Tilghman and Margaret Woodcock.

Songs by Master Fulton Brewington. Farce—"A Proposal Under Difficulties," by John Kendrick Bangs. Characters by Miss Beale Trader, Mrs. John M. Toulson and Mr. Samuel Douglas. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Hospital fund of the Board of Lady Managers. It is hoped that a full attendance of the good people of the town will be in evidence. Admission, 25 cents.

—Just a few suggestions for Christmas gifts—A Knox or Saxon Hat, Dress or Working Glove, Mothers Tie, Initial Handkerchiefs, Suspenders or Socks. Send the list by getting them at Higgins & Schuler's.

HOME OF SANTA CLAUS

Salisbury Full Of Him This Xmas—Splendid Selection of Pretty And Useful Gifts.

The stores of Salisbury have now put on their full holiday appearance, and their counters are running over with goods of all kinds to suit all tastes. In the stores of Salisbury will be found as large a variety as can be found on the Peninsula, both in regard to prices and quality and number of different articles carried. A child coming here from one of our neighboring towns the other day, entered one of our stores with her mother, and after gazing around for a while with wonder and surprise was heard to cry out "O mother this is Santa Claus home isn't it?", and before all the stores were visited she thought the whole town must be where good old Santa lived.

It matters but little what line one wants it can be found here, and in quantity and quality as well, selected with an eye to the demands of the season. One can buy useful gifts and they can buy plenty of pretty dainty gifts. As far as the children the stores are filled with the various things that go to make the children so fond of Christmas and Santa Claus. And when it comes to the table the appearance alone of some of our grocery stores will make the mouth of an epicure water.

There can be no excuse for the shoppers to go elsewhere to look for their Christmas goods, and we believe a trip through the stores here will convince them that they can get what they want right at home. The trouble with some of our people is that they won't take the time and trouble to go through the stores here, thinking that the same old line which used to be carried, makes up their stock. These people would have one of the surprises of their life if they would go to look at what is being offered to day in Salisbury.

Salisbury merchants have kept up with the pace and as good quality goods can be purchased here as almost anywhere. The columns of the Advertiser are replete with helpful Xmas pointers.

WEDDING CAME OFF

Fire in Somerset At Bride's Home While In Baltimore—Married There.

That the unexpected often runs across Cupid's path and sets his best laid plans ajar was evidenced by the marriage of Miss Sayde Hayman of Westover, to Mr. Engage Mathews of Pocomoke which took place Thursday night at the residence of Mrs. John W. King, 1427 John Street, Baltimore, a cousin of the bride.

The wedding took place several days ahead of time on account of the fact that Miss Hayman's home in Somerset county, where the ceremony was to have been performed on next Tuesday night, was burned to the ground last Monday. She was in Baltimore at the time as a guest of her cousin Mrs. King, when word was received that her home, and with it a large part of her trousseau, had been destroyed.

Consultation was immediately held with the result that Mr. Mathews, her fiancé was at once communicated with in Pocomoke. He went to Baltimore immediately and arrangements were made so that the wedding could take place Thursday night. Warren B. Hayman, a well known citizen of Somerset county, where he has lived for many years, father of the bride, was wired concerning the marriage, and although he was unable to be present, his consent was given.

Only the members of the families were present at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Kingman Handy, pastor of Hampden Baptist Church, a cousin of the bride. Miss Hayman wore a traveling gown and carried bride's roses. She was given away by her uncle F. A. Davis. After a wedding dinner Mr. and Mrs. Mathews left for a wedding journey north. They will reside in Pocomoke.

SLEEP IN THE OPEN

Better For Six Children Than Six Bedrooms Physician Talks At Parents' Club.

Declaring that one small porch, six feet by four feet, was better sleeping quarters for six children than six rooms, one for each child, Dr. Joseph O. Bloodgood, of Baltimore, urged the mothers and fathers of the Parents' Club of School No. 34, to prevent diseases with their children by having properly ventilated sleeping quarters for them. He said that sleeping out of doors was becoming more and more common with Baltimoreans, and that the children of several families in Roland Park habitually slept on porches winter and summer.

While he realized, he said, that out-of-door sleeping might not be feasible in the densely populated sections of the city, he urged that better health would come to children if they slept in rooms in which all the windows were raised. Toxemia and adenoids, he pointed out, were almost invariably the result of improper ventilation and over-heated sleeping and working quarters; that if the teachers and parents of the public school children cooperated in seeking proper ventilation the scholars would be more healthy and much brighter.

"If I had my way," declared Dr. Bloodgood, "I should destroy every thermometer in every school and home in the city."

Dr. Bloodgood's remarks were of an informal character, and he confined himself to answering questions of the parents concerning proper clothing, diet and ventilation for children.

Several women in the audience had children with adenoids, or swollen tonsils. Dr. Bloodgood advised these children with adenoids be sent to hospitals for the removal of the growths.

"The best medical service," he said, "is not the service that is sought. Children with adenoids sent to the public wards of any hospital in the city receive careful attention—just as careful as if the attention were paid for. The operation of removing adenoids is a simple one, and much less serious than the bloodying of a little boy's nose by a companion. Yet parents shrink from the operation, while indifferent to the bloody nose. Be sure, however, that you have confidence in your family doctor, and when he advises an operation of this sort by all means have it done. Untold suffering may be brought to the child through adenoids, for with this disease they breathe through the mouth instead of the nose, and impurities are thus taken into the lungs that might give rise to serious illness.

"The operation for enlarged tonsils is a more serious one, but when it is advised it is the lesser of two evils, and by having the tonsils removed the child may avoid pneumonia. Enlarged tonsils, like adenoids, render the child less able to resist other diseases like scarlet fever, measles, etc." "The best breakfast food for a child is the food he is least likely to care for. Making him eat this food, if it is wholesome and well cooked, nourishes his body as well as his will power. A large majority of the cases of nervous prostration nowadays comes from constant indulgence of children in the things they like."

Good Reason.

I never had a dear gazelle. To charm me with her soft mild eye. If you must know the reason, well, my wife might find it out, that's why.

In 1915.

Suddenly the great game in the summer of 1915 stopped.

"What's the trouble?" shouted the grand stand. "Let the game go on!"

"Make them play!" thundered the bleachers. "Soak the umpire!"

Just then the manager came out and held up his hand.

"Patience, gentlemen, patience! The game will go on just as soon as the fly-cops chase that fleet of airships from over the diamond. Those on them are catching the balls as fast as they are batted upward."

And then the fly-cops began to fly from every direction.

There Was a Difference.

Two weeks after he had faced the parson with the only girl he met one of his bachelor friends.

"I say, old man," remarked the b. f., "you don't look the part of a happy benedict. What's the trouble—have you suffered a disappointment?"

"You have said it," answered the other, sadly. "My wife can't sing."

"Can't sing?" echoed his friend.

"Why, in that case I think you are to be congratulated."

"That isn't the trouble," replied the young husband. "She thinks she can sing."

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by
CHARLES T. RUSSELL
Pastor Brooklyn
Tabernacle.

God's Work and Ours.

Sunday, December 12.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached today from the following text to a packed house:

"Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure" (Philippians II, 13).

The proper relationship between faith and works and between God's work and ours are matters apparently not clearly understood by the majority of Christian people and, of course, not at all comprehended by the world. It is not only worth while, but very important, that each Christian entering into covenant relationship with God should understand distinctly his own responsibilities, the assistance which God is willing to grant him through the merit of Christ, and what is required of him individually in the matter of good works. A great stake, a great prize is involved. Carelessness or ignorance might jeopardize this prize—might lose us a place amongst "the very elect," who shall be joint-heirs with their Redeemer in his Millennial Kingdom soon to be inaugurated for the blessing of the whole world. Mark well that we purposely avoid the error which so long has bedeviled our spiritual vision. Note that we do not say that a failure to be amongst "the elect" would signify to be with damned millions in eternal torture. No such unreasonable proposition is represented in God's Word. The question of this Gospel Age is to gain or not to gain eternal life and glory and honor as members of the Body of Christ. In a word, not pleasure or misery, but life or death, is the alternative.

Who are addressed by the Apostle in the words of our text? He is not addressing the wilfully or ignorantly wicked—the world. He is addressing those who had been such, but who repented, reformed, turned to God and saw a great light. They have seen themselves to be sinners under just condemnation of the Creator, and have seen also that Jesus, the Son of God, has provided reconciliation with the Father through his blood—his sacrifice. More than this they have by faith accepted this proffered grace of God, and through a full consecration of their all, made acceptable through their Advocate, they have been received of the Father as his spirit-begotten children. They have been advised that as children they are "heirs of God, joint-heirs with Jesus Christ" their Lord, their Head, their Redeemer, in the glorious Millennial Kingdom which the Father has foretold shall be his for the blessing of all the families of the earth. But all these blessings they have received through faith and not actually. They must wait for the actualities until they and all of their brethren of the same class, "called of God in the one hope of their calling," shall have been tried, tested, perfected, in character, in heart, "Copies of God's dear Son."

How God Works in Us.
Our text declares that we should work out our own salvation, because it is God that worketh in us. This puts God's work first and ours subsequently. Let us therefore consider the matter in this order. How, in what sense, does God work in his people—not in the world; not in the repentant sinner; not in the merely justified; but in those who have passed those stages of approach to God and, by the begetting of his holy Spirit, have entered his family as children, as sons? "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God" (I John III, 1). "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord" (Romans VIII, 17). How does God work in such as have thus become his children—his sons?

We reply that he works in them through his spirit—the spirit of the Truth; the spirit of holiness; the spirit of consecration; the spirit of sonship. That is to say, a certain holy power or influence operates in and about the spirit-begotten children of God in harmony with this relationship. It has to do with all of their experiences in life—home, family, business, joys, sufferings, pleasures, sorrows.

But God's special way of dealing with his spirit-begotten children is through their intellects—communicating with them through the holy Scriptures. As the Apostle says, "God who spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son" (Hebrews I, 1). The twelve apostles whom the Father specially gave to him, he particularly accepted as his representatives, his mouth-pieces, the channels through whom would come to the family of God the instructions necessary for their development in holiness—the instructions necessary for their attainment of the hope of their calling—glory, honor and immortality in joint-heirship with Jesus their Redeemer as the spiritual Seed of Abraham for the blessing of the world (Galatians III, 29).

Our Lord Jesus refers to this work of God in his people through his Word, saying, "Sanctify them through thy Truth. Thy Word is Truth" (John XVII, 17). St. Paul refers to the Scriptures as the power of God, saying, "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (II Timothy III, 16, 17).

"We Are God's Workmanship."
We have seen that God does a work in his consecrated people, using his providence in connection with the experiences of life, and that he specially uses his Word for their instruction in righteousness. We are to remember,

Incidentally that our Lord Jesus who redeemed us and reconciled us by his blood is still our Advocate with the Father and our instructor as the Father's representative; that through him we may be all taught of God—in the School of Christ. Next we should note the Divine method in this work of grace being carried on in our hearts from the time we fully submitted them in full consecration, in faith. Our text declares that God's work in us is divided into two parts—to will and to do. Let us examine first—

How God Works in Us to Will.

The will is the real person or ego. The body is merely responsible as the agent or servant of the will. With the world the will and the body are usually at one—sympathetically co-operative. But in those begotten of God's Spirit as his children matters are different. Their wills by consecration are developed along lines quite antagonistic to the natural preferences of their flesh, so that the Apostle wrote, "With the mind I myself serve (or desire to serve) the Law of God, but with the flesh I serve (or desire to serve) the law of sin" (Romans VII, 25). Hence every spirit-begotten person has a warfare between his new mind, with its holy aspirations and desires and its opponent flesh with its animal propensities, some good, and some bad. Hence the Apostle exhorts all these New Creatures to "war a good warfare against their own flesh and to bring it into subjection to the New Mind and to the Divine Law. He urges that, we "Bring every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ" (II Corinthians X, 5). This, of course, would mean absolute perfection, so far as the flesh is concerned. With every thought captivated to the Lord the individual would never in any sense commit sin other than the sin of ignorance or imperfection.

God works in the minds of his people not along the lines of enslavement of the mind after the manner of Satan and those who are subject to his delusions—by hypnotism, etc. God's operation is the very reverse of this. He enlightens the mind to do his work. He displays to our minds gradually light and Truth, purity and goodness in their true colors, in contrast with sin, ignorance and delusion. And in the same words he sets before us the great prize of glory, honor and immortality and joint-heirship with our Redeemer in his Kingdom. The power of these hopes working in a consecrated mind is wonderful. It can make the naturally weak strong, the naturally timid bold as a lion.

This operation upon the mind is a gradual one from the time of our getting of the holy Spirit until our change—not all at once, but gradually, little by little, the Lord displays to us one feature after another of his wonderful plan of salvation. Step by step he shows to the appreciative and obedient heart the riches of his grace, his loving kindness, his tender mercy, his boundlessness of his love and the infinite outworking of his Divine powers for the blessing of all of his creatures who will accept his favors on his own terms. All the while he leaves us free agents to will in harmony with his proposition or to reject it. He will coerce no one. Our Lord Jesus expressed the Father's sentiment in this matter, saying, "The Father seeketh such to worship him as worship him in spirit and in truth" (John IV, 23).

How God Works in Us to Do.

Endeavor to do right naturally follows right willing. But this does not signify that God completes a work upon our wills first and then begins a new work upon us, stimulating us to do right to the best of our ability. On the contrary, as through his providence and Word God exercises an influence upon our wills through the knowledge of his Truth, little by little each new point of Truth was expected to be acknowledged by efforts on our part to do God's will to the extent that the new will was able to control the imperfect body. We may safely conclude that each step in right-willing must be followed by a step in right-doing before another item of grace and Truth would be granted as a basis for additional willing and then additional doing. Thus, as we walk by first putting one foot forward and then the other repeatedly, so the New Creature walks or progresses by first willing and next doing the Lord's good pleasure to the extent of his ability.

As surely as the right-willing is the result of Divine operation in the revealing of Truth, so also is the right-doing. Of the Divine influence in our hearts working to us both to will and to do God's good pleasure, St. Peter gives us a word right to the point, saying, "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the Divine nature" (II Peter I, 4).

Work Out Your Own Salvation.

We have heard many improper prayers presented at the Throne of Grace by well-intentioned but misinformed children of God. Many Christians request God to do for them that which he tells them they must do for themselves. The one who asks such sometimes leaves the Throne of Grace convinced that God will do for him what God has never promised to do for anybody, but has told us each must do for himself. Many pray, "Abandon us not in temptation, but deliver us from the Evil One" and then walk straight into temptation, wholly neglecting the directions of God's Word. Indeed, many so neglect the study of that Word that they are not aware what are its teachings, its commands, its promises and the temptations from the world, the flesh and the devil, to which all must be won or lost. We must have their leading and character development.

Some pray to God to save them by his Divine power and expect him to work miraculously in them, while they are giving the best of their time and talent and influence to business or to pleasure or to self-gratification. Such need to learn the meaning of our text, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." They need to learn the meaning of the Apostle's words, "Keep yourselves in the love of God." God absolutely refuses to deal with us as machines. More than this, he refuses to coerce, to push, to pull, to drive, those whom he is now calling to sonship and joint-heirship with Christ in his Kingdom.

During the Millennium the world will receive all sorts of pulling, pushing, driving, "stripes," for their correction in righteousness—to make them all eventually see, to ultimately force all to take their stand for right or for wrong, intelligently. But now it is different. God is "calling," "drawing" and accepting through faith in Christ

Development in heart, in character is necessary to fit us for the future service as "members" of The Church associated in his glorious Kingdom work. Our call is to be kings and priests that we may serve the world of mankind. To prepare us for that service is the object of our present call and the trials of faith and patience, that by all these, character-likeness of Christ might be developed in us. If we do these things we shall never fall and an entrance will be granted us into the everlasting Kingdom of our Lord and Savior. If we do these things heartily they will prove that we are copies of the Lord Jesus and it is the Divine predestination that only such as are copies of God's dear Son shall be his joint-heirs in the Kingdom (Romans VIII, 17), as "members" of the body of Christ, only such as have a willing mind—only such as can be moved to energy and devotion by the enlightenment of the minds through the Truth. Now we are wanted for this, "elect."

It's a Mighty Truth But as Old as Business

THAT real economy in clothes-buying is striking the right average in price.

The penny-wise purchaser who puts price above everything else—to whom the dollar in hand means more than the clothes on his back—he goes wrong every time.

He buys at the lowest price and the value is always less than the price is low.

Other men forget economy entirely. They forget that after a certain price is reached additional money is simply paid for the fictitious value of the tailor's name and standing.

We offer in the new garments we are showing direct from the truest economy in quality clothes. The prices range from $15.00 to $25.00 or $30.00.

And every dollar that you pay for these Kuppenheimer Clothes brings back an actual value in return—a value based on real style, rich worth of fabric, specialized tailoring and expert finish.

Let us show you the clothes and prove this economy for yourself.

SALISBURY 1909.

The year of 1909 draws to a close, and the year of 1910 opens with a new dawn of hope and general prosperity. It is a year of all in close touch with our city, that much progress has been made in many directions and that the population has been materially increased.

One of the evidences of prosperity and increase of population is seen in the country of houses for rent. As a matter of fact it is hard to find property for renting purposes, either business houses or dwellings. No sooner is a house given up, before it is rented or leased to some one seeking a home or place of business, and in most cases the property is spoken for way in advance of the vacancy. There are no empty houses in Salisbury and in spite of the new houses being built, the building does not keep up with the demand, and many more could be built here today if they were built ready for occupancy. The growth of Salisbury has certainly been very rapid during the past few years, and very soon, if this growth continues, the city will hardly know their native city.

A crying need for the town is better railroad facilities than we have at the present time, and it is hoped that the Pennsylvania Railroad will see that it is the best interest of all to give the city what it badly needs. The talk of getting a competing line to ply on our rivers is a good idea and if carried through would result in giving to Salisbury fair rates over the railroad and steamboat lines, all of which are now owned and controlled by one company.

With the water facilities which Salisbury has there is no reason at all why we should not enjoy reasonable freight rates, and a competing line between this point and the cities, would guarantee this.

The development of the Humphreys property along the lines mapped out by those who are interested in the project, will be one of the greatest things that ever happened to Salisbury, giving as it does the needed room for the expansion and growth of our business section. It is understood that this work will be commenced at an early date and carried out in full as fast as it can be accomplished. The turning of this vacant land into a business section giving as it will much better water facilities than the town now possesses, and much to the growth and prosperity of the city, and it is hoped that nothing will interfere to block or stop the improvement temporarily.

Salisbury can look back on the year with pride and forward to the coming years with more hope and confidence than ever before in its history. Faith and enterprise of its citizens, and with their faith in their native city will go far to make Salisbury an important place on the Peninsula.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas of Okonko Tribe No. 117, O. E. M. Mardela Springs, Md. Whereas it has pleased the Almighty Father in his wise providence to remove from our hunting grounds by death our beloved Brother, Rev. Franklin E. Adkins. Therefore be it Resolved, that while we bow in humble submission to the Divine will of our God, we are nevertheless conscious of the loss that our Tribe has sustained. Brother Adkins by his saintly and Christian character was always welcomed when our council was burning.

Resolved that we hereby tender to his bereaved widow our sincere and profound sympathy in her hour of great sorrow.

Resolved that the secretary be instructed to spread the resolutions upon our minutes and forward a copy to the bereaved family of the deceased and have them published in the County papers. By order of Committee A. L. Seabrook, Geo. E. Phillips, Geo. W. Bennett.

MAKES HENS LAY

Cooks Them Up in Nest With Food Prisoners Until They Respond.

Since it became known that he has perfected a nest which makes it impossible for a hen to shirk her greatest responsibility Dr. I. O. Washburn, one of the most prominent physicians near Chatham, N. Y., has been flooded with letters from farmers in all parts of Columbia County begging him to disclose the details of his remarkable contrivance.

With the exception of the hens everywhere up that way is enthusiastic over the physician's discovery which promises to put strictly fresh eggs within the reach of all. The hens cannot be blamed for their lack of enthusiasm.

Birds that were wont to cackle joyously at sight of Dr. Washburn no longer speak when he passes by. His invention means longer hours and an increased mental strain for them, as any hen who does not perform up to standard might just as well lay her head on the block and wait for the axe.

"Lay or starve" is the ultimatum handed to the hens by the physician. For years it has been a battle of wits between the birds and himself, with the birds fooling him at every turn. But at last he has triumphed. With his patent nests in every corner the hens are obliged to choose between swilling the egg census or going hungry.

Hens Go On Strike.

Dr. Washburn demands an egg for every meal and of late has been getting them. When the hens discovered the manner in which he had circumvented them they declared they would starve before they would consent to deliver eggs under a time clock arrangement. They held indignation meetings and announced their intent to force him and characterized the whole proceeding as a shell game.

But when lack of food made them too weak to cackle they returned to work at the physician's terms. Since that time Dr. Washburn has had to have supply help in crating his enormous supply of fresh eggs.

His patent nest is the result of years of earnest study. Each of these nests is a boxlike structure filled with food. The hen enters by a door which snaps behind her, and the minute her foot is planted on the floor, Mrs. Hen helps herself to a seven course dinner and has no idea that she is a prisoner until she starts to leave. She tries the door, but won't budge. Of course it isn't ladylike, but as a last resort she puts her foot against the unyielding panel. She sets up an awful clatter for a few minutes but nobody pays any attention to her. If she is an intelligent hen she whistles away the time by laying an egg.

"This egg drops through a hole in the nest and in its descent strikes a spring which opens the door. Mrs. Hen regains her liberty and the egg, after striking an inverted rubber stamp containing the day and date rolls into a receiving box under the nest."

At first the hens spent hours in the nests before they realized that they were expected to make a deposit, but now they eat their meals lay an egg, and hurry on to work on an appetite for the next performance.

Before Dr. Washburn perfected this contrivance he forced the birds for a short time with an ordinary nest. The nest was a hole in the wall and the eggs the hens dropped disappeared through the opening. When a hen looked over her shoulder and failed to see any visible proof of her activity she would get busy again. One foolish hen dropped an egg in this way one day and she finally slipped through the hole herself.

Have they tried to beat your present system? Dr. Washburn was asked today. "One of the older birds had me at a trot for a long time," said the physician. "Every time I went to the receiving box under one of those nests I found a potato instead of an egg. At first I was inclined to think that one of my birds was laying potatoes, but by watching I solved the problem."

"I caught this wise old hen going into the nest with a potato in her mouth. She would balance the potato on her back while she was eating, and when it came time for her to make good she would drop it through the hole. I hid the potatoes, and since then I have been getting splendid results from her."

FOR AND AGAINST

Allen. Writer Comments: Biennial Elections: State Road Offices At Auction.

Editors:—

When Senator Price remarked that he favored the outting of elections down to biennial elections, he put himself in line and harmony with thousands of patriotic and good citizens of the State of Maryland, and furnished further evidence that he is a practical and common-sense man. It would be superfluous and a reflection upon the good sense of the citizens of the State to argue at length the question. The advisability and importance of the step forward is too palpable. All one needs is to have one's attention called to the matter. Too much time and money are spent in this country and county, in putting somebody in office. We should have fewer elections, and make sure that good men are put in the proper place.

Before closing, I would repeat what I've said several times before, relative to the building of the State road from Salisbury to Allen. Following the old road from the turn in the woods near Brinkley's Corner, would be doing that which all posterity would deride and condemn. The road will be something enduring, will cost much money and certainly should be built where time will approve. Straight through the woods to the corner, near Run Bridge, is the intelligent and logical course for the road. And it is sooner it is built, the harder we will vote for the builders—provided, all suspicion of GRAFT is kept out.

Citizens! Taxpayers! If you are alive to your interests and in tune with the true spirit of reform and progress, you will demand real reforms and real progress. Vote for men who will remember the promises and pledges of the platform, and not for those whose memory is so poor they can't be depended on. Know what you want, and then demand it, and you will get it. Those elected reflect, as a rule, the moral status, and intelligence of those who do the electing. Mark you, The office holders are a sort of index to the citizenship of the country.

Nor am I at all sure that a radical change in our methods of filling offices should not be made. Instead of electing men by vote to office, why not sell the offices to the lowest bidder, requiring bond of course. We doubt not County and State expenses would be materially reduced.

We can't afford to adhere to a system whose sole advantage lies with the office holder. The country doesn't exist that a certain number of men may have a nice fat job.

We mean no reflection upon any office-holder of the County; they are men of character and integrity, but why pay a thousand dollars for work that could be done for half the money?

Benefit the greatest number should be the rule. J. L. T. L.

FLYING REMOVES

Wrinkles—Traveling Two Miles Up Said Also To Improve Woman's Figure.

The first taxi balloon service in the world was established in St. Louis and the local public may ride 500 miles with a skilled pilot for a trifle of 6 cents a mile if the Interstate Commerce Commission does not claim jurisdiction and impose a 2 cent rate.

Morris A. Heilmann, aero club organizer, balloon builder and amateur aviator, has conceived the taxi-balloon service to stimulate interest in air traveling and to give all a change to soar aloft. He has prepared a liberal schedule of rates, based upon the cost of gas, to the general public, with allowance for pilot service and a slight surcharge for wear and tear to the balloon. He disclaims any desire to establish a remunerative business.

Mr. Heilmann predicts that St. Louis women will be the best patrons of the taxi-balloon. The advantage of sailing in the upper air strata as a beauty treatment will be a strong clue to the fair sex, he thinks. Then, to he says women have less hesitation about leaving the earth the first time than their supposedly bolder brothers.

The action of the rarefied air on the skin at an altitude of 10,000 feet has been found to produce wonderful results, and the stimulus to the circulation imparted by breathing the fresh ozone at that height is like a draught at the fountain of youth. Crowfeet disappear, respiration is effected through the skin pores, and fresh oxygen in the lungs brings healthy glow to the cheek and luster to the eye, say Mr. Heilmann.

Pride In Advertising.

How a successful town advertiser is told by the Editor of the Delmar News: The business of the Salisbury merchants is the envy of practically every town on the Eastern Shore, yet the remedy for the greater part of it lies right in the hands of the local merchants themselves.

The Salisbury merchants above all things believe in spending money in advertising their wares, and do it right. They take as much pride in their advertising as they do in displaying their stock in their stores, and give it personal attention. Just take a look at the advertising of the leading Salisbury merchants in the Advertiser, News or the Courier. Practically every clothing store in Salisbury spends on an average of $300 a year for advertising space, and they tell you frankly that the way they use it pays them. One clothing merchant personally told the writer last week that he did a business of $8000 the first six months his store was open and laid the most of it to advertising. These are only a few of the examples of which we have personal knowledge.

The merchants in every line support the papers and as a consequence the papers are only too glad to support the merchants in everything, and the people down there get most anything they want sooner or later. There's no secret about it at all—it's simply common sense boiled down, and the answer the people of this town get their old fashioned notions about doing business out of their heads, and pay some attention to the way other business houses do business, the better it will be for the whole town, because the more business there is the more money there is—Delmar News.

Meeting at Court House.

A public meeting will be held tonight in the Court-room at eight o'clock to discuss the possibility of establishing a free library in Salisbury. The meeting is called by Miss Mary P. Farr, Field secretary of the State Library Commission and all who are interested in the movement are cordially invited to attend.

Miss Farr has held several meetings throughout the County to awaken interest in the traveling libraries loaned by the state. On Wednesday she visited Quantico, Allen and Fruitland, and on Thursday Tyaskin, Bivalve, Nantuxco and White Haven. To-morrow, Saturday, she goes to Hebron, Maryland Springs, Riverton and Sharptown, on Monday to Parnassburg, Pittsville, Willards and Powellville.

On Tuesday she leaves this County to visit East New Market and to attend the Teacher's Institute in Cambridge.

Governor Crothers, the commissioner and treasurer of several counties and their counsel had a heart-to-heart talk yesterday for two hours in the Governor's office. They all agreed that a new assessment of property all over the state would be a good thing, and the next legislature will be asked to enact the necessary law. The Governor made a speech in which he urged a re-assessment and a reduction in the expenses of county governments and elections. A committee was appointed to put these and other recommendations into legislative shape and to have the bills introduced into the next General Assembly. Messrs. Wm. M. Cooper and Thomas Perry were present from Wicomico.

Developments in Democratic circles indicate that there will be no fight over the election of the presiding officers of the State Senate and House of Delegates. It looks as if Governor Crothers' recommendation of Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., of Howard County, for President of the Senate, and Mr. Adam Peoples, of Cecil county, for Speaker of the House, will be unanimous choice of the Democratic caucus on the first ballot at the meeting in Annapolis January, 1910.

Proves By The Pikes Peak Test

No where else in all the world is there such a test of the time keeping quality of a watch as on the famous Pikes Peak Cog Railway in Colorado, where the steep grades of the mountain necessitate the use of cog wheels to control the train, and vibration often so injures ordinary watches that an expert repairman must readjust them.

A conductor on the Pike's Peak road made a ninety-day test of the South Bend Watch last summer.

No adjustment of the watch was made for the whole period, but at the end of the test, examination showed a variation of less than one-half second per day. Do you think the watch you carry could stand a test like this?

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefit from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you. It would bankrupt us. The dollar bottle contains 25 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

Sit up and listen to some questions asked Farmer Jones:
"Have you any farms for sale, and what kind?" Yes; we have large and small stock farms, and large and small truck farms, and a full selection of water-front homes, sizes 20 to 1,000 acres.
"Are they productive?" Yes; the truck farms will net you, clear of all expenses, $125 to $200 per acre, stock farms 20 to 30 bus. of wheat per acre, 14 to 2 tons hay per acre, and 40 to 60 bus. shelled corn per acre.
"Where are the farms located?" On the Eastern Shore of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia.
"Do you sell them?" Yes, this firm has recently sold 18 of them—2,000 acres for $52,000. Do you want one? If so, apply to

By GEORGE BARR
WUTCHERON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

The days passed. Hollingsworth Chase now realized that he no longer had authority over the natives. Raula made the reports for the islanders and took charge of the statements from the bank.

Every morning Chase rode boldly into the town, transacted what business he could, talked with the thoroughly disturbed bankers and then departed his way to the chateau. He was in love with the princess—desperately in love. He understood perfectly for he was a man of the world and cosmopolitan—that nothing could come of it. She was a princess, and she was not in a story book; she could not marry him.

So far as Geneva was concerned, on her part it could mean no more than a diversion, a concession to coquetry, a simple flirtation; it meant the passing of a few days, the killing of time, the pleasure of gentle conquest, and then—forgetfulness. All this he knew.

At first she revolted against the court he so plainly paid to her in these last few days. It was bold, conscienceless, impudent. She avoided him; she treated him to a short season of disdain; she did all in her power to rebuke his effrontery—and then in the end she decided to give him as good as she sent in this brief battle of folly. It mattered little, who came off with the fewest scars, for in a fortnight or two they would go their separate ways, no better, no worse, for the conflict. And, after all, it was very dull in these last days, and he was very attractive and very brave and very gallant and, above all, very sensible.

They rode together in the park every morning, keeping well out of range of marksmen in the hills. Their conflict was with the eyes, the tone of the voice, the intervals of silence; no touch of the hand—nothing except the strategies of eros.

What did it matter if a few dead impulses, a few crippled ideals, a few blasted hopes, were left strewn upon the battlefield at the end of the fortnight? What did anything matter so long as Prince Karl of Brabets was not there?

A dark, saturnine face appeared

One night toward the end of this week of enchanting encounters—this week of effort to uncover the vulnerable spot in the other's armor—Geneva stood leaning upon the rail which inclosed the hanging garden. She was gazing abstractedly into the black night, out of which far away blinked the light in the bungalow. It was the first night in a week that he had missed coming to the chateau.

She missed him. She was lonely. He had told her of the meeting that was to be held at the bungalow that night at which he was to be asked to deliver over to Raula's committee the papers, the receipts and the memoranda that he had accumulated during his months of employment in their behalf. She had a feeling of dread—a numb, sweet feeling that she could not explain except that under all of it lay the proud consciousness that he was a man who had courage, a man who was not afraid.

"How silly I am!" she said half aloud in her abstraction.

She turned her gaze away from the blinking light in the hill, a queer, guilty smile on her lips.

Across the garden from where she was gazing herself bitterly Lady Deppingham's husband was saying in low, agitated tones to Bobby Browne's wife:

"Now, see here, Drusilla, I'm not saying that our—that is, Lady Deppingham and Bobby—are accountable for what has happened, but that doesn't make it any more pleasant. It's a little consequence who is trying to poison us, don't you know, and all that. They wouldn't do it, I'm sure, but somebody is! That's what I mean, d'you see? Lady Dep?"

"I know my husband wouldn't—couldn't do such a thing. Lord Deppingham" came from Drusilla's stiff lips almost as a moan. She was very miserable.

"Of course not, my dear Drusilla," he protested nervously. Then suddenly, in his life eye caught what he considered a suspicious movement of Bobby's hand as he placed a card close to Lady Deppingham's finger. "Deimne, I—I'd rather he wouldn't! But I beg your pardon, Drusilla! It's all perfectly innocent."

"Of course it's innocent!" whispered Drusilla fiercely.

"It's utter nonsense for us to suspect them of—Pray don't be so upset, Drusilla. It's all right."

"If you think I am worrying over your wife's harmless affair with my husband you are very much mistaken."

Deppingham was silent for a long time.

"I don't sleep at all these nights," he said at last miserably. She could not feel sorry for him. She could only feel for herself and her sleepless nights. "Drusilla, do—do you think they want to get rid of us? We're the obstacles, you know. We can't help it, but we are. Somebody put that pill in my tea today. It must have been a servant. It couldn't have been—"

"My husband, sir?" "No; my wife. You know, Drusilla, she's not that sort. She has a horror of death and—"

"If the servants are trying to poison any of us, Lord Deppingham, it is reasonable to suspect that your wife and my husband are the ones they want to dispose of, not you and me. I don't believe it was poison you found in your tea, but it was it was intended for one of the heirs."

"Well, there's some consolation in that," said Deppy, smiling for the first time.

The sharp rattle of firearms in the distance brought a sudden stop to his lugubrious reflections. Five, a dozen, a score of shots were heard. The blood turned cold in the veins of every one in the garden; faces blanched suddenly, and all voices were hushed. A form of paralysis seized and held them for a full minute.

Then the voice of Britt below broke harshly upon the tense, still air: "Good God! Look! It is the bungalow!"

A bright glow lighted the dark mountain side; a vivid red painted the trees; the smell of burning wood came down with the breezes. Two or three sporadic shots were borne to the ears of those who looked toward the blazing bungalow.

"They've killed Chasel!" burst from the stiff lips of Bobby Browne.

All Who Would Enjoy
good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is alike important to present, the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

Consequently, the Company's Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna gives general satisfaction. To get its beneficial effects buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

Electric Bitters

KIND FRIEND:—

YOUR CREDIT IS GOOD

We want to give you a chance to make money with little or no capital. Five dollars, and ten cents a day thereafter, will start you on the road to success. DON'T THROW THIS AWAY. You can make money while you sleep. This is a home offer by a home firm.

AND YEARS TO PAY

The waste of the average person will buy a choice piece of property in the most thrifty village in our land. A boy could do it, and we predict that some bright girl will be among the early purchasers. We have thirty Building Lots to sell in Fruitland Annex, 60x175 feet, and to the first party building a thousand-dollar residence we will give a choice lot in "The Dulany Square."

THIRTY PER CENT PROFIT

Can be made. We will take the lot off of your hands at the expiration of three years, and return every dollar paid for it, with six per cent interest, if YOU ARE DISSATISFIED. Select your lot early and get the choice. Prices low and terms easy. Business and working men can live in Fruitland at a much less cost than in Salisbury, and own their own property. Trains will accommodate you before and after working hours. Our town is on the boom. Get in on the ground floor and buy these.

TOWN LOTS

Good, high streets. Three minutes' walk to depot, post office and center of business, where lots are worth five and six dollars a foot—and hard to get at that price. Come and see, or write for particulars—quick.

A Romance of Progress

By ALBERT PAYSON TERRANCE
GALILEO—The Man Who Would Take Nothing for Granted.

A 19-year-old Italian boy—small almost as a child, and pallid from overstudy—sat dreaming in the gray shadows of the Pisa Cathedral one day in 1582. And from his dreams arose some of the greatest inventions and discoveries ever accomplished. The boy was Galileo, eldest son of an impoverished Florentine nobleman. He had spent his childhood devising clever mechanical toys out of the cast-iron materials he had dabbled in literature and painting as he grew up, had sought to become a monk, and had been persuaded by his father to study medicine instead. The young medical student, as he sat in the cathedral, fell to observing the great bronze chandelier that hung by a long rod from the roof. Instead of remaining motionless, the chandelier vibrated almost imperceptibly to and fro. Galileo wondered why. Ten thousand other things had been troubling him: "Just the same it DOES move!" He was imprisoned in the Inquisition dungeons for an indefinite period, but through the influence of powerful friends, was later allowed to go free.

But, after his troubles with the Inquisition, the inventor's spirit and health gave way. His children died, many of his friends deserted him. He went hopelessly blind. Yet even in his blindness and old age his mind leaped back to the phenomenon of the swaying cathedral lamp that had incited his whole career. Working on the same theory of rhythm, he invented the pendulum, and applied its use to clockmaking. This was his last achievement before, in 1642, he died. He had been born on the day of Michelangelo's death. And the day of his death also witnessed the birth of the great Sir Isaac Newton.

To the cathedral "dreamer" we owe almost wholly the telescope, microscope, thermometer and clock pendulum. To him, above all, we owe our knowledge of astronomy and of the earth's motion.

(Overwhelmed.)
Dad's Dual Role.
"Fathers have been much maligned."

"As to how?"
"About using the boots on suitors. On four different occasions I have referred by a young lady to her father, and every time I found it was for the purpose of letting me down easy."

He Could Not Forget.
"We have now been married 15 years, Archibald, and I have never omitted to bake a cake for you on your birthday."

infy him: He continued grinding lenses at various angles of refraction until he had perfected an instrument that would magnify 33 fold. In other words, he had made a telescope. Turning this on the heavenly bodies, he at once revolutionized all astronomy. Europe went wild at the amazing invention, but it stirred up countless rivals and enemies for the inventor: Galileo's amazing declaration that the earth moved was seized upon by those rivals, who carried it to the Inquisition, with the claim that it tended to deny certain passages of Scripture and was therefore heretical. The Inquisition, always eager to torture or put to death any so-called "heretic," warned Galileo to advance no more such dangerous theories. In reply he wrote a book satirizing his opponents and even hinting that the Inquisition itself lacked the highest intelligence. As a result he promptly found himself in trouble. He was again brought to trial and given the choice of recanting his statement that the earth moved. Galileo was growing old and feeble, and courage usually departs with strength. So he recanted on his knees, admitting that the earth was stationary. But, as he rose to his feet, he shouted in a tempest of words: "Just the same it DOES move!" He was imprisoned in the Inquisition dungeons for an indefinite period, but through the influence of powerful friends, was later allowed to go free.

But, after his troubles with the Inquisition, the inventor's spirit and health gave way. His children died, many of his friends deserted him. He went hopelessly blind. Yet even in his blindness and old age his mind leaped back to the phenomenon of the swaying cathedral lamp that had incited his whole career. Working on the same theory of rhythm, he invented the pendulum, and applied its use to clockmaking. This was his last achievement before, in 1642, he died. He had been born on the day of Michelangelo's death. And the day of his death also witnessed the birth of the great Sir Isaac Newton.

E. HOMER WHITE SHOE CO.

229 Main Street,

SALISBURY, MD.

It was the night before Christmas—and stormy.

"Squash, squash" went the wheels of the carriage in the mud.

"Whew-ew-ew!" whistled the wind.

And it blew Peter's hat out into the middle of the road.

"Whoa!" yelled Peter and climbed down from his high seat.

The princess poked her head out of the window. "What's the matter?" she asked.

"My hat blew off," Peter told her, "and the wheel is stuck in the mud, miss."

"Oh, Peter, Peter!" the princess chided. "You must get that wheel out of the mud at once."

"Which is easier said than done," Peter grumbled. "It's that dark I can't see my hand before me."

"There's a light back there among the trees," the princess informed him. "Perhaps you could get some one to help you."

"I'll go and see, miss, if you ain't afraid to stay alone," said Peter, after bits of gold and blue and scarlet paper.

"We are going to pop some popcorn," Jenny explained. "and string it and hang it on the tree."

"Oh, may I help?" the princess asked. "I haven't popped any corn since I was a little girl."

Jessie clasped her thin little hands. "I think it would be the loveliest thing in the world," she said, "if you would stay."

"Peter is going to find some one to help with the carriage, and I will stay until he comes back."

And when Peter had gone the princess slipped off the long red cloak, and underneath it she wore a shining silken gown, and around her neck was a collar of pearls.

"And now if you will lend me an apron," she said, "we will pop the corn."

But Jessie and Jennie were gazing at her speechless.

"Oh, you must be a fairy princess!" gasped little Jennie at last.

The beautiful lady laughed joyously. "Peter calls me the princess," she said. "He has lived with me ever since I was a little girl. But really I am just an everyday young woman and am going to spend Christmas with some friends in the next town."

She dismissed the subject with a wave of her hand.

"And now to our popcorn," she said. Jenny brought a green gingham apron, and the princess tied the apron on, making a big butterfly bow of the strings in the back, and then she danced over to the dumpy little stove and peeped into the bubbling pot.

"Did you ever smell anything so good?" she asked. "I am as hungry as a bear."

The little girls laughed joyously. "It's bean soup," Jenny said, "and we are going to have it for supper, with some little dumplings in it. I was afraid it wasn't nice enough for you."

"Nice enough!" the delighted lady exclaimed. "I think bean soup and little dumplings are—um—um!" And she sung out her hands expressively.

"I thought," Jessie remarked faintly, "that fairy princesses only ate honey and dew."

"Which shows that I am not a true princess," said the beautiful lady, "for honey and dew would never satisfy me."

Jenny got out three little blue bowls and set them on a table that was spread with a coarse but spotless cloth. There were a crusty loaf and clover sweet butter, and last and best of all there were the bean soup and the bubbling little dumplings served together in an old mulberry tureen.

It was perfectly wonderful to see the princess in her shining gown at some effort succeeding in quieting the plunging horses.

"I am dreadfully afraid," she admitted shiveringly, "but I suppose you will have to go."

Now, in the middle of the pine grove was set a little cottage. Peter knocked at the door.

"Who's there?" asked a childish voice, and a little girl poked her head out of the square window.

"Our wheel is stuck in the mud," Peter answered from the dark, "and I want to get a man to help me."

"There isn't any man here," Jenny informed him. "There is only me and Jessie, and our mother has gone to nurse a sick neighbor, and she won't be home until morning."

So Peter went back to the carriage and reported to the princess.

"I shall freeze out here," said the princess. "I will go up to the house and sit by the fire while you look for some one to help you with the carriage."

She climbed out of the carriage, and with Peter in the lead she plodded through the woods, and the wind blew her long coat this way and that, and at last, wet and panting, she came to the little house.

And once more Peter knocked, and once more Jenny came to the window. Then she flung the door wide open, and so tall was the princess that she had to stoop to enter it. It was a dingy little room, and there was a dumpy black stove in the corner, with a bubbling iron pot that gave forth a most appetizing odor.

"Oh, oh, how nice and warm it is!" said the princess as she held out her hands to the fire.

In all their lives the little girls had never beheld such a wonderful person, for the princess wore a long red cloak and a black velvet hat, with a waving plume, and her muff was big and round and soft, and she had a scarf of the same soft fur about her neck. Her hair was pale gold, and she had the bluest eyes and the reddest lips, and her smile was so sweet and tender that Jenny ran right up to her and cried, "Oh, I am so glad that you came!"

Jessie from her little chair echoed her sister's words. But she did not run, for there was a tiny crutch beside Jessie's chair in the square window.

"And I am glad to be here," said the princess, whose quick eyes were taking in the details of the shabby room. "It's so nice and warm and cozy."

"Isn't it?" said Jenny happily. "And we are getting ready for tomorrow."

On a small round table beside Jessie's chair was a little box, and bits of gold and blue and scarlet paper.

"We are going to pop some popcorn," Jenny explained. "and string it and hang it on the tree."

"Oh, may I help?" the princess asked. "I haven't popped any corn since I was a little girl."

Jessie clasped her thin little hands. "I think it would be the loveliest thing in the world," she said, "if you would stay."

some effort succeeding in quieting the plunging horses.

"I am dreadfully afraid," she admitted shiveringly, "but I suppose you will have to go."

Now, in the middle of the pine grove was set a little cottage. Peter knocked at the door.

"Who's there?" asked a childish voice, and a little girl poked her head out of the square window.

"Our wheel is stuck in the mud," Peter answered from the dark, "and I want to get a man to help me."

"There isn't any man here," Jenny informed him. "There is only me and Jessie, and our mother has gone to nurse a sick neighbor, and she won't be home until morning."

So Peter went back to the carriage and reported to the princess.

"I shall freeze out here," said the princess. "I will go up to the house and sit by the fire while you look for some one to help you with the carriage."

She climbed out of the carriage, and with Peter in the lead she plodded through the woods, and the wind blew her long coat this way and that, and at last, wet and panting, she came to the little house.

And once more Peter knocked, and once more Jenny came to the window. Then she flung the door wide open, and so tall was the princess that she had to stoop to enter it. It was a dingy little room, and there was a dumpy black stove in the corner, with a bubbling iron pot that gave forth a most appetizing odor.

"Oh, oh, how nice and warm it is!" said the princess as she held out her hands to the fire.

In all their lives the little girls had never beheld such a wonderful person, for the princess wore a long red cloak and a black velvet hat, with a waving plume, and her muff was big and round and soft, and she had a scarf of the same soft fur about her neck. Her hair was pale gold, and she had the bluest eyes and the reddest lips, and her smile was so sweet and tender that Jenny ran right up to her and cried, "Oh, I am so glad that you came!"

Jessie from her little chair echoed her sister's words. But she did not run, for there was a tiny crutch beside Jessie's chair in the square window.

"And I am glad to be here," said the princess, whose quick eyes were taking in the details of the shabby room. "It's so nice and warm and cozy."

"Isn't it?" said Jenny happily. "And we are getting ready for tomorrow."

On a small round table beside Jessie's chair was a little box, and

BEN HUR AGAIN

To Be Staged in Baltimore, During Week Of January 3d to 8th. One Of The Best Productions Out.

When the curtain is drawn at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, on Monday evening, Jan. 3, the most elaborate magnificent and historically correct production will be disclosed that has ever charmed and enthralled a theatre audience, for this will be the premier of the Chicago Auditorium production of "Ben Hur," in Baltimore.

"Ben Hur," with its lustrous Star of Bethlehem, its camels, Arabian swords, Oriental trappings, and mimic splendor of the gorgeous East is beyond dispute the most elaborate spectacle ever staged in the history of the world. Its series of scenes present to the eye a feast of multifarious beauty and variety, all set to a symphonic accompaniment of graceful music. The exciting episodes, such as the galley scene with its horde of chained slaves; the sea fight, the rescue in mid sea and the thrilling chariot race, combined with the picturesque scenes illustrating the Wise Men in the desert, the moonlit lake in the Orchard of Palms, where Ben Hur and Iras enjoy seclusion and make love in Iras' barge, the palm waving worshippers on Mount Olivet, and the Grove of Gethsemane, with the nymphs dancing in the skirts of beasts to the music of kith and cymbals, simply en-tivate audiences wherever it is enacted.

"Ben Hur" appeals to all classes, all ages and all denominations of the Christian faith, and draws to it, as to a place of worship, hundreds of thousands who seldom, if ever, set foot within a theatre. The person of the Saviour is never made to appear bodily in the play, yet in the scene in which the healing of the lepers is implied the approach of the Master is indicated by a stream of pure white angels in its effectiveness. This scene is the most remarkable of the play and is heightened in impressiveness by the singing of a chorus of one hundred voices, joining in "Hosanna" of praise to the Lord.

The engagement of "Ben Hur" is for one week, Jan 3 to 8, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.
Prices will range from 50c to $1.50.
Mail orders accompanied by remittances will be filled in order of receipt. All communications should be addressed to the manager of the Academy of Music. Seats will be placed on sale Thursday morning, Dec. 30.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

Several Resignations Are Received. Pupil
Barred On Color.

At the regular session of the School Board the following business was transacted.

The County Superintendent reported the opening of Green Hill School with Miss Amelia Parker as teacher. The enrollment numbers 10.
Miss Lola Larmore, of White Haven daughter of ex Sheriff Larmore, was appointed to the scholarship in St.
Mary's Female Seminary made vacant by the resignation of Miss Stella Walter, Salisbury.

Miss Helen M. Smith, teacher of the First Grade in the Delmar High School tendered her resignation to take effect December 28. Miss Ruth Bennett, teacher of Melson's School, Quantico District, was appointed to fill the vacancy in the Delmar School.
Miss Ida Morris was appointed as teacher of the Melson School.

The action of the trustees of Johnson's School is excluding Clifford Gray from the school on account of his color was sustained. This boy had previously been excluded from the Dorchester county schools on the same grounds.

Messrs. M. B. Willing and others were before the board with the request that their children be allowed to attend Tyaskin School although residents of Deep Branch School district. The trustees of the latter school district had protested to the board against the attendance of the children outside of their own school district and as the law requires the consent of the trustees of both the school districts, the board could do nothing but refuse the request of the delegation.

ENGINEER SAVES 100

Lives. Stopped Train By Braving Scalding Steam To Reach Brake.

The heroism of Engineer Sab Davis, of the Georgia Central fast mail, probably saved the lives of 100 passengers. While hanging to the outside of the cab his engine, which was running at a speed of about 50 miles an hour, Davis struck his hand through a veritable caldron of scalding steam until he found the emergency brake and stopped his train.

Tuesday morning just before the train reached here a driving rod of the engine broke, knocking the fireman unconscious and almost demolishing the cab. Roaring steam poured from the broken pipes into the cab and before Davis could reach the emergency brake he was driven from his seat by the heat.

He clung to the outside of the cab until he had grasped the lever and stopped the train. Then he fell unconscious from his position.

AGAINST SUFFRAGE

For Women. Home Not Place As Character
Builder. The Attorney General Says.
Another Reason Is—She Cannot Fight.

Says the Baltimore News:—Attorney General Straus took his life in his hands today by boldly declaring he was opposed to woman's suffrage. Mr.
Straus is a bachelor. This condition is supposed to be responsible for the statement made in the course of his comments that all women cannot fight.
Mr. Straus makes no pretense, however, of hiding behind this as a reason for objecting to woman's suffrage. He says it is fundamentally wrong.

He admits having read John Stuart Mill on the "Subjection of Women" and the strong speeches of Wendell Phillips in support of woman's suffrage, but in the face of all of it he turns to the pages of one of the Old Roman authors, either Livy or Ovid, and quotes the remarks attributed to one Cato, who boldly faced the outraged matrons of Rome, telling them not to imagine that they had more influence over other men than they had over their own husbands.

Cannot Be Convinced.

"I am opposed to women voting," said Mr. Straus. "I have read the best that has been said in favor of it. Deep down in men is a decided antipathy to the idea of the thing that neither Mills' book, able as it is, nor the fine orations of Wendell Phillips, has been able to remove. Woman's place in life is so high that participation in politics can only belittle it. She is the character builder, the home-maker.
Conditions as portrayed in the world, whether in politics or in business, are not an indication of the success of her work.

"As a matter of fact, the work that a woman does in the world is much too noble, too exacting and too important to have it confused with participation in politics. Man cannot cope with her in it. Apparently he has no ability whatever for the task.

Woman's Real Field.

"He admits his incompetency in a thousand ways, and the general recognition of his lack of ability as a character-builder seems to have saved him from the blunders that appear sure to follow those few who brave the effort.
History seems to have marked this work out as the peculiar field of women and the progress of the world is the monument to her achievements.

"Women advance the idea that their participation in public affairs will help them. This is especially true of those who are forced by circumstances to battle with the world. The working woman is wrong in this. I am convinced that it will only serve to make her battle more harsh than it now is.

"This movement is not a new one, as many women suppose. In the works of Livy (maybe it was Ovid that Mr.
Straus referred to) there is a passage describing an invasion of the Senate by the matrons of Rome—the very best people of the ancient city. They rallied against an order directed at them.

Points Out Cato's Stand.

"The venerable Cato faced the storm. Why, he asked, did they seek to influence the Roman Senate? Was it because they had more influence with other men than they had with their own husbands? This rude comment seemed to have put the women to flight. The demonstration was not unlike the recent one before the English Parliament.

"That women cannot fight is sometimes cited as another objection to woman's suffrage. Some women can.
I am told, give a good account of themselves in a scrimmage, but all of them cannot be mobilized for war. This is an incidental objection. My claim is that the thing is fundamentally wrong and sure in the final results to be harmful to women themselves.

"It has occurred to me that women who pay taxes should be permitted to vote with the taxation-without-representation idea as the basis theory of our Government. I would gladly concede this point if I could know where the movement would stop, when once started. That the woman who goes out into the world to earn her own has a better right to vote than the woman who remains at home doing the trying, difficult and important work that the world has marked out as peculiarly her own. I cannot concede."

EASTON SURRENDERS

To The Fair Sex. Town Council Goes On Record As Favoring Woman's Suffrage.

Woman has captured Easton. The Town Council has surrendered, and in addition has taken up her cause with a promise to fight as valiantly for her as it ever did to secure better fire protection or to pave a new street. The winning over of the men came Monday night, when a large delegation of determined suffragists visited the Council Chamber and asked for support in their efforts to obtain for woman the right to vote at the municipal elections. Without opposition or hesitating the Councilmen promptly yielded and forthwith named a committee to draft necessary amendments to the town charter that will allow the fair sex to go to the polls and vote.

The amendment will carry a proper qualification, and will empower only those women to vote who are of legal age and of lawful birth.

Folkes—Webster.

Miss Grace Genevieve Webster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fletcher Webster, 118 East Twenty-fifth street, was married to Dr. Lawrence Seaton Folkes, of West Point, Va., last evening at St. Michael and All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. P. Allison, the assistant rector. The bride is a member of the class of 1906 of the Woman's College.

Dr. Folkes is a member of a well known Virginia family. The bride wore white duchess satin, trimmed in real lace and hand embroidered in pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her attendants were Misses Helen Bern, of Baltimore, maid of honor, who wore green messaline, hand embroidered in crystals and pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of maiden hair fern and asparagus, and Anna Mabel Winsor, of Asbury Park, and Gertrude L. Gorsuch, of Fork, Baltimore County, who were bridesmaids. Both wore evergreen messaline, veiled with white chiffon cloth and trimmed with princess lace, and shower bouquets of maiden hair fern and asparagus.

The ushers were Messrs. William Wiest Folkes, of Richmond, Va.; R. Pearce Choate, Harry F. Spalding, and Preston Webster, all of Baltimore. Mr. Horace Winfield Webster, cousin of the bride, was best man.

The church was decorated with palms, ferns and asparagus. At the bride's home, where a reception followed the ceremony the same decorations were used combined with white roses.

After a trip to Florida the couple will be at home after January 8th, at West Point, Va.—Baltimore, Thursday.

Deaths

Mrs. Sallie A. Reddish.

Mrs. Sallie A. Reddish, a member of one of the best known families in this County, died at the home of her son, Mr. A. W. Reddish, on Monday of this week, at the age of 83 years. Mrs. Reddish was a daughter of the late Warner Steton, and a sister of the late Jno. W. Steton, of Snow Hill, and Joseph, Thomas and Daniel Steton of this county. The funeral services were held at the late home and were conducted by Elders Poulson and Francis. The remains were interred in the family burying ground. One son, Mr. A. W. Reddish, and four daughters, Mrs. Twilley, Mrs. Alonzo L. Dykes, Mrs. Malone, and Miss Georgia Reddish, survive her.

Miss Lulu M. Taylor.

Miss Lulu M. Taylor, daughter of Mr. Jno. B. Taylor, of near Mardela Springs, died at her home on Tuesday of this week, of Typhoid fever, at the age of seventeen years. Funeral services were held at the church and her remains interred in the family burying ground.

Miss Taylor was popular with her associates and well thought of by all who knew her, and will be greatly missed in her circle of friends and companions.

Mrs. Martha E. Collins.

Mrs. Martha E. Collins, wife of Isaac Collins, died at 4 o'clock Wednesday morning at her home, South Salisbury, aged 64 years. Mrs. Collins spoke a deep cold about seven weeks ago, which confined her to her bed until her death Wednesday morning. Deceased is survived by four children, Mrs. Nettie Coulbourn, wife of J. P. Coulbourn, and Miss Lulu Collins, of Salisbury; Mr. Alex. Collins, of Pittsburg, Pa.; and Mr. Isaac Collins, Lancaster, Ohio.

Deceased had been married at various times to various men, and had several children by each of them.

"DIXIE" PROCLAIMED

First in Popularity: Officially Designated As Leader in American Songs And Music.

"Dixie" has finally been officially proclaimed as first in American songs and music in patriotic popularity. Such is the verdict of O. G. T. Sonneck, chief of the Division of Music of the Library of Congress, who has just issued from the Government press an exhaustive report on four famous American musical compositions. "Yankee Doodle," he says though no longer a national song is still a national air, and second only to "Dixie" in the popularity contest. The origin and evolution of "Yankee Doodle," "Star Spangled Banner," "Hail Columbia" and "America" are treated in full detail in Mr. Sonneck's volume.

He has furnished as far as possible a correct version of both text and music of all four pieces. Facsimiles of the original manuscripts are reproduced in the volume.

The history of "Yankee Doodle" is described as "a perfect mass of conflicting stories" and countless additions to and variations from the original.

As many as fourteen variations of the "Star Spangled Banner," are noted accompanied by a gradual process of polishing and modification.

The year in which "America" was first sung in public is fixed as 1839, but the exact place and date were not definitely ascertained.

"Hail Columbia" is strictly a product of the United States in both words and music, in contradistinction to "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner," both of which, says Mr. Sonneck, partly originated in England.

A Ponderous Porker.

Says an English paper: The biggest hog raised for many years past was recently slaughtered at Elton Wood Manor, near Bray's Cross. The animal was a Jersey Red boar, two and one half years of age, weighing alive 1,608 pounds and dressed 1,386 pounds. This hog which was the property of W. Harris, of West Smithfield, measured nine feet from the tip of its nose to the end of its tail. It measured two and one half feet across the hams and six feet in girth. This makes the hog three feet through.

It is split at the shoulder, and a look into the carcass is like looking into the crevice of a cavern. The carcass spreads across the perspective of the stable like a Titan of pork personified. From hipbone to toe it measures four and one half feet, and about the same from the crest of the shoulder blade to the bottom of the foot. The great jaws extend nearly two feet across. From between the ears to the tail is over seven feet.

The tail is the smallest tail in big proportions; it is a mere point in the air. The race is also small for the size of the animal. It is only sixteen inches long. The hams are monsters in size, and vast stretches of pork in the waist are borne just about the ground by four comparatively small feet. The usual porker is a mere pigmy by its side. The biggest hog heretofore grown weighed 1,524 pounds, dead weight.

Culver—Anderson.

Miss Mattie Ellen Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Florence Anderson, and Mr. Elmer Culver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Culver, of Delmar, were quietly married by Rev. T. E. Martindale at the home of the bride's grandmother in Salisbury, Wednesday evening at seven o'clock.

The bride was dressed in white batiste trimmed in Irish lace, with kid gloves to match. The groom wore the conventional black. Their attendants were Miss Pauline Parker, and Mr. Carlton Culver, brother of the groom. Mrs. Alice Shockley, of Pittsville, played the wedding march, Lohengrin.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride changed her dress to a blue traveling suit, hat and gloves to match. The happy couple took the seven thirty train for a short stay in the northern cities.

CHAPTER XVII.

CHASE COMES FROM THE CLOUDS.

FOR many minutes the watchers in the chateau stared at the burning bungalow, fascinated, petrified. Through the mind of each man ran the sudden, sharp dread that Chase had met death at the hands of his enemies.

Genevra felt her heart turn cold. Then something seemed to clutch her by the throat and choke the breath out of her body. Through her brain went whirling the recollection of his last words to her that afternoon. "They'll find me ready if they come for trouble." She wondered if he had been ready for them or if they had surprised him! She had heard the shots. Chase could not have fired them all. Was he now lying dead in that blazing— She screamed aloud with the thought of it!

"Can't something be done?" she cried again and again, without taking her gaze from the doomed bungalow. She turned fiercely upon Bobby Browne, his countryman. Afterward she recalled that he stood staring as she had stared, Lady Deppingham clasping his arm with both of her hands. The glance also took in the face of Deppingham. He was looking at his wife, and his eyes were wide and glassy, but not with terror. "It may not be too late!" he again cried the princess. "There are enough of us here to make an effort, no matter how futile. He may be alive and trapped up!"

"You're right!" shouted Browne. "He's not the kind to go down with the first rush. We must go to him. We can get there in ten minutes. Britt! Where are the guns? Are you with us, Deppingham?"

He did not wait for an answer, but dashed out of the garden and down the steps, calling to his wife to follow. "Stop!" shouted Deppingham. "We dare not leave this place! If they have turned against Chase, they are also ready for us. I'm not a coward, Browne. We're needed here, that's all. It's too late to help Chase. They've got him, poor devil! Everybody inside! Get to the guns if possible and cut off the servants' quarters. We must not let them surprise us. Follow me!"

There was wisdom in what he said, and Browne was not slow to see it clearly. With a single penetrating glance at Genevra's despairing face, he shook his head gloomily and turned to follow Deppingham, who was hurrying off through the corridor with her ladyship.

"Come," he called, and the princess, feeling Drusilla's hand grasping her arm, gave one helpless look at the fire and hastened to obey.

In the grand hallway they came upon Britt and Saunders, white faced and excited. The white servants were clattering down the stairways, filled with alarm, but there was not one of the native attendants in sight. This was ominous enough in itself. The sound of a violent struggle in the lower corridor came to their ears. Loud voices, blows, a single shot, the rushing of feet, the panting of men in fierce combat and then, even as the whites turned to retreat up the stairway, a crowd of men surged up the stairs from below, headed by Ballo, the major domo.

"Stop, excellencies!" he shouted again and again. Bobby Browne and Deppingham were covering the retreat, prepared to fight to the end for their women, although unarmed. It was the American who first realized that Ballo was not heading an attack upon them. Ballo and a score of his men had refused to join the stablemen and grooms in the plot to assassinate the white people. As a last resort the conspirators contrived to steal into the chateau, hoping to fall upon their victims before Ballo could interpose. The major domo, however, with the wily sagacity of his race, anticipated the move. The two forces met in the south hall after the plotters had effected an entrance from the garden. The struggle was brief, for the conspirators were outnumbered and surprised. They were even now lying below, bound and helpless, awaiting the execution of their intended victims.

Sudden Bruce took in his eyes. "I notice, cause Allah has willed that we should serve you faithfully. We are your dogs. Therefore we fight for you. I am a vile dog which bites its master."

Browne, with the readiness of the average American, again assumed command of the situation. He gave instructions that the prisoners, seven in number, be confined in the dungeon, temporarily at least.

"There will be no other attack on us tonight," said Browne, rejoicing the women after his interview with Ballo. "It has missed fire for the present, but they will try to get at us sooner or later from the outside. Britt, will you and Mr. Saunders put those prisoners through the sweat box? You may be able to bluff something out of them if you threaten them with death. They—"

"It won't do, Browne," said Deppingham, shaking his head. "They are fatalists; they are stoics. I know the breed better than you. Question if you like, but threats will be of no avail. Keep 'em locked up; that's all."

Firearms and ammunition were taken from the gunroom to the quarters occupied by the white people. Every preparation was made for a defense in the event of an attack from the outside or inside. The white servants were moved into rooms adjoining their employers. Britt and Saunders transferred their belongings to certain gorgeous apartments. Miss Pelham went into a Marie Antoinette suit close by that of the princess. The native servants retained their customary quarters below stairs.

Far in the night Genevra, sleepless and depressed, stole into the hanging garden. Her mind was full of the horrid thing that had happened to Hollingsworth Chase. He had been nothing to her. He could not have been anything to her had he escaped the guns of the assassins. And yet her heart was stunned by the stroke that it had sustained. Wide eyed and sick, she made her way to the railing and, clinging to the vines, stared for she knew not how long at the dull red glow on the mountain.

Sharpsburg, Wicomico County, has purchased the handsome residence of Joshua H. Marvil, in Laurel. This residence is located on West St. in a section noted for its pretty homes. Mr.
Marvil, it is said, will move his family to Philadelphia.

—There will be special Christmas music in Bethesda Methodist Protestant Church on Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Graham, will preach Christmas sermons at 11 and 7.30; Sunday School, 9.30; Junior meeting in the afternoon, 2.00; Regular Christian Endeavor service at 6.45. Mid-week service Wednesday evening, 7.30.

—Senator and Mrs. John Parnell Moore have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lola Belle Moore, to Mr. William Rowley
Bishop, at their home in Snow Hill, Tuesday the 28th day of December, at seven o'clock in the evening. Several Salisbury friends of the prospective bride have received invitations to the wedding.

—The following boys and girls who are attending colleges are spending their vacation here:—John Gunby, Angusta Military Academy; Julian
Carey, Everett Williams, George Todd,
St. John's; Vaughn S. Gordy, Jr., Princeton; Clarence Wheaton, Paul Phillips, Western Maryland College; Newton Jackson, Lawrenceville Academy, and Gardiner Springs. Misses Helen Graham and Sara Uiman, National Park Seminary, Washington, D. C.; Laura Ruark, Western Maryland College.

—Asbury Dennis, aged 23 years, son of George Dennis, drank two ounces of laudanum Sunday evening and but for the prompt arrival of Dr. Potter the young man would have "cashed in his chips." Dennis bought the drug from a drug store early in the evening and on going home he showed the bottle to his parents, telling them he was going to drink its contents. He walked across the room and drank the entire contents of the bottle. Dr. Potter was phoned for at 8.45 and by the vigorous use of a stomach pump saved the young man's life.

—Miss Annie C. Chatham, daughter of Mr. Thomas Chatham, of near Pocomoke, and a teacher of Williams School, was married on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock to Mr. Clarence Bailey, of Powellville. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home by Rev. Mr. Conway, of Emmanuel
M. E. Church. Miss Eva Chatham acted as maid of honor. Miss Ida Smullin played the wedding march.
The bride looked charming in a gown of blue messaline silk and carried pink and white roses. Her traveling suit was of sage green. Mr. and Mrs.
Bailey are spending their honeymoon in Philadelphia.

—The Democratic Messenger says:
"Mr. William Green Kerbin and Miss Alice Boehm were quietly married at the home of the bride in Snow Hill last Tuesday evening by Rev. J. F.
Kirk. Mr. Kerbin, who is a well-known member of the Worcester County Bar, is ill, and, as the marriage was set for the middle of January, both parties desired the ceremony to be performed at once so the bride could care for Mr. Kerbin during his illness, which his many friends hope will be of short duration. Mrs. Ker-bin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Charles L. Boehm, of Snow Hill."

—For the balance of December Hicks predicts as follows: A regular storm period is central on the 23rd.
This period is at the center of the winter solstice. In all reason it will bring heavy winter storms on land and sea. These storms are apt to continue over the limits of the period in consequence of the mercury disturbance and the opposition of the moon on the 26th. A reactionary storm period is central on the 27th, 28th and 29th.
On these days runned storms of sleet and snow will sweep over most parts of the country and will be followed by high barometer, blizzards winds and severe cold.

Big Porkers Killed.

One of the largest "killings" of porkers ever heard of in this section took place at Whiton this county, this week. In and around this place 25 hogs were killed whose aggregate weight was 9324 lbs, an average weight of about 375 per hog.

G. B. Shockley, the leading merchant of that locality killed 11 with weights as follows: 275, 405, 375, 405, 415, 425, 435, 404, 329, 341, 325, a total of 4100 1/2 lbs.

P. J. Jones 4 hogs, 311, 334 1/2, 424 1/2, 425 1/2, a total 1595 lbs.

C. J. Jones 3 hogs, 342, 345, 350,
a total 1037 lbs.

W. J. Jones 3 hogs, 342, 345, 350,
a total 1037 lbs.

Building Permit Granted.

The City Council last Monday night again agreed to permit O. A. Meade to erect building to be used as a restaurant on the lot adjoining the Auditorium. Mr. Meade having revised his plans whereby the building is to be constructed of brick and sheet iron. The Council at a previous meeting granted Mr. Meade permit to erect a frame and sheet iron building, but on account of the strenuous objections of property owners near by, the Council reversed their decision and refused to grant the permit. Mr.
Meade came back again with a proposition to use brick and iron, and the permit was granted.

Proves By The Pikes Peak Test

No where else in all the world is there such a test of the time keeping quality of a watch as on the famous Pikes Peak Cog Railway in Colorado, where the steep grades of the mountain necessitate the use of cog wheels to control the train, and vibration often so injures ordinary watches that an expert repairman must readjust them.

A conductor on the Pike's Peak road made a ninety-day test of the South Bend Watch last summer.

No adjustment of the watch was made for the whole period, but at the end of the test, examination showed a variation of less than one-half second per day. Do you think the watch you carry could stand a test like this?

We will be pleased to show you our line of these guaranteed accurate watches and explain to you how a South Bend Watch adjusts itself to every temperature automatically.

WHEN YOU BUY CLOTHES
OUR WAY

You cut out the element of doubt. We've a habit here of using the word SATISFACTION as something more than a mere talking point. It's an existing reality, and it proves out in the clothes. That means a lot of care and knowledge on our part.
We handle only clothes on which we know you cannot fail to get the greatest measure of service.
Our garments from The House of Kupperheimer & Co. and Alfred Benjamin & Co. carry back of every thread of material, every stroke of cutting, and every stitch of tailoring, the maker's guarantee; you'll find it in the pocket of every garment.
On the top of that we give our guarantee. The clothes must prove right in every way, and that double guarantee is your absolute protection. Not only when the clothes are new, but through long months of wear. If there's a risk, we take it; if there's a loss, it's ours.

GETTING "stuck" is a lot of fun under some circumstances; but if you've ever been "stuck" in buying clothes, you know the circumstances under which it isn't any fun at all.

Buying clothes may be a pleasure, but for most men it's no joke; clothes cost something, and few of us can afford to make mistakes with our money. The danger of making mistakes in clothes-buying is greater nowadays than it used to be. Formerly you could tell by looking at them the difference between all-wool and part cotton fabrics.

Now they imitate wool with a cotton weave, and do it so skillfully that the only way you can tell is to wear the clothes; and then it's too late to do anything about it. If you got a cotton-mixture, without knowing what you were getting, you're "stuck." Now, that doesn't happen to the man who buys

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes

Every fabric they use is strictly all-wool—the best fabrics made. The tailoring is perfect, the style correct, the fit right. You can't make any mistake, if you come here and ask for these clothes. We sell them because they're that kind of clothes; because this is that kind of a store; because we're that kind of people; and we think you are, too.
