

THE VILLAGE HERALD.

BY S. T. GILLHEIN, PRINCESS ANNE, SOMERSET COUNTY, MARYLAND.

Vol. X—Whole No. 485.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 26, 1866.

VOL. II. NO. 9.

VILLAGE HERALD.

Journal of Information.

Price, $1.00 a year, to be satisfied by $1.00 if paid in advance, or $1.00 per quarter six months.

Subscriptions paid within 10 days of delivering the first number, of the year subscribed for, will be considered as paid in advance.

Subscription is said to have always been paid in advance.

No paper will be discontinued unless

the editor's discretion, until all arrears

are paid, and no paper will be disconnued on account of the expense of the paper, except as far as may be expenient to the editor.

Subscription will be taken for less than one year.

No paper will be discontinued unless

the editor's discretion, until all arrears

are paid, and no paper will be discon-

nued on account of the expense of the

paper, except as far as may be expe-

nient to the editor.

Subscription will be taken for less than one year.

All communications addressed to the editor will come over him.

Editorial correspondence will be addressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

Editorial correspondence will be ad-

dressed to the editor.

THE HERALD.

Princess Anne, Md.

TUESDAY, JULY 10, 1836.

We are authorised to announce
EDWARD LONG, Esq.,
As an Electrical Candidate to elect the next Senate of Maryland.
July 26, 1836.

We are authorised to announce Lambert W. Hyland, Esq.
As a Candidate to represent Somerset county in the next General Assembly of Maryland.
July 26, 1836.

From the Baltimore Chronicle of Tuesday last The meeting of the Stockholders of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, called for the purpose of declaring the action of the Company in reference to the Improvement Bill, passed at the late session of the Legislature, took place yesterday. The meeting was so numerous that it was found necessary to adjourn it to the Assembly Room in Commerce street.— The Hon. Nicholas Biddle was called to Chair and John J. Donaldson, Esq., appointed Secretary. Upwards of twenty-two thousand shares of stock were represented at the meeting. J. H. B. Latrobe, Esq., read the act which the meeting was called to consider, and a resolution declaring the act accepted by the Company was submitted by Charles F. Mayer, Esq., and adopted, with us before, by one dissenting voice. The meeting was then adjourned on motion of Gen. Geo. W.
Williamson, who moved on Thursday next at nine o'clock, in Committee of the whole, Gen. Williamson suggested that this day was appointed for the Stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company to meet and decide on the said question, which had just been decided here; and that if their decision should contain any conditions, which it might be necessary to submit to the consideration of the Company, it would be advisable that this meeting should not be dissolved but adjourned over to some early day.

It is necessary to perceive, however, from the Georgia Journal, that the Canal Company will probably adopt some such decided action upon the subject, until the survey of the upper route of the Crosscut Canal have been completed.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FROM ENGLAND.

London and Liverpool papers to the 11th of June have been received at New York, by the ships Ontario and Shakespeare.

The Ontario has on board one hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds sterling in gold, besides a valuable cargo. The Shakespeare has on board, it is said, the largest and most valuable cargo ever brought from Liverpool.

There were rumors of approaching changes in the French Ministry. It was said that Marshal Mollien was about to retire, and would be succeeded by General Villeminot, or Marshal Moncey. Also, that M. Duval, late Minister of Commerce, had been appointed Minister of Finances.

Mollien's accounts are received of the famine prevailing in the northern counties of Ireland. In the Highlands, also, great distress is said to exist. A person from the Isle of Skye has reported that the state of the country was such that there was reason to fear that before August, more than one hundred people would die in the parish of Slane alone.

Mrs. Dundas introduced a motion in to the House of Commons, calling upon his Majesty's Government to give full assistance to the Emperor of France to ensure the release of Pagan and other ministers of Charles X., confined in the castles of Ham. Much sympathy was expressed by different speakers, and the motion was then withdrawn as inopportune.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, on the same day, moved a resolution declaring that the navigation of the Mississippi to which the Jews were exposed. It was agreed to.

FROM FRANCE.

By the Normandy packet ship from Havre, the editor of the New York American has Paris papers to the 11th ult.

In a discussion which took place in the Chamber of Deputies, June 9th, the President of the Council said it was the intention of the French Government to persevere in its efforts to retain the French possessions in Africa. He remarked that if France should abandon Algeria, "the rest of Africa would immediately be exposed to another great power now, —by England, the United States, or Russia—or else would become the prey of pirates, who would suddenly infuse the French trade in the Mediterranean."

M. Bouet, a large manufacturer near Rouen, has just seen some twist from cotton grown at Algiers, and the specimens he has produced are not inferior to any produced from American cotton.

The Paper pieces, which have access to Cabinet records, assert that they are every where growing.

Government of France is displeased with that of Turkey for its conduct in relation to Tripoli, and has threatened, should the latter again so act towards the ally of France, to send a squadron to repeat the scene of Navarino. A letter from Toulon says, "we are assured that the great armament prepared here is not for the Levant, but for the Mediterranean, and that the report is the order of Admiral Hortig, not to quit these coasts. The equipment is to cruise between Toulon and the Gulf of Mexico, and troops will always be ready to be embarked on our ships and carried wherever they may be wanted."

GREECE.—The absence of King Otho has emboldened the insurgents to return the country from the frontier to which they had driven. The two English Generals, Gordon and George, in command of Otho's troops, have not yet been able to subdue them. The insurgents are expected to rise in mass in Athens, Messina, Argos, and Attica.

SPAIN.—Martial powers of the 3d of June announced that a junta had been formed at Malaga; but that the attempts at insurrection have proved vain, and that the junta dissolved itself on the 25th.

On the 2d of May serious disturbances arose at Cartagena, which lasted three days.

The Metropolitan is speaking of the work that is soon to be published, from the pen of the late Mr. Madison, says—

But why this common practice of eminent men keeping all the valuable information which the experience of their friends enriches their memory, in reserve for posthumous publication? We have another example, Ex-President of the United States, & living, possessed in his library, and famous among his descendants, of the paper of his father, and indeed of the most valuable and interesting information unprinted by any other human being. We hope that he does not also intend that his countrymen shall purchase the pleasure and profit of being admitted to partake of these treasures, at the expense (far distant be the day!) of the painful regret that must be excited by the intelligence of his departure by the world.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original transcript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Wash. Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.
Madison's posthumous memoirs, now about
to be published, will set forth the question as
to the authorship of Gen. Washington's
Farewell Address. It is stated that the
original was prepared by Mr. Madison, at
the expiration of Washington's term, but
left aside in consequence of his re-
election. It was adopted afterwards, with
slight alteration, and the original trans-
cript is now among the papers of Mr.
Washington. The story conflicts with the
testimony of Mr. Madison, who maintains that
the outline of the address was given by the
pen of Washington himself, and that the
idea of the speech was communicated to him
by the General.

Washington's Political Address.—It is
intimated in some of the papers that Mr.<

