Selected Poetry.

THE AGUE.

Once upon an evening bleery,
While I sat me dreaming dreary,
In the sunshine. thinking o'er
Things that passed in days of yore;
While I nodded, nearly sleeping,
Gently came in something creeping,
Creeping upward from the floor,
"'Tis a cooling breeze," I muttered,
From the regions neath the floor;
Only this and nothing more.

Ah! distinctly I remember
It was in the wet September,
When the earth and every member
Of creation that I bore,
Had for weeks and months been soaking
In the meanest, most provoking
Foggy rain that, without joking,
We had ever seen before,
So I know it must be very
Cold and damp beneath the floor—
Very cold beneath the floor.

So I sat me nearly napping
In the sunshine, stretching, gaping,
And a feeling quite delighted
With the breeze from 'neath the floor,
Till I felt me growing colder,
And the stretching waxing bolder,
And myself now feeling older,
Older than I felt before
Feeling that my joints were stiffer
Than they were in days of yore—
Stiffer than they'd been before.

All along my back the creeping,
Soon gave place to rushing, leaping
As if countless frozen demons
Had concluded to explore
All the cavities—the varmints—
'Twixt me and my nether garments,
Through my boots into the floor;
Then I found myself a shaking—
Gently shaking more and more,
Every moment more and more,

'Twas the Ague, and it shook me
Into heavy clothes, and took me
Shaking to the kitchen—every
Every place there was warmth in store,
Shaking till the china rattled;
Shaking till my molars rattled;
Shaking, and with all my warming,
Feeling colder than before;
Shaking till it had exhausted
All its powers to shake me more—
Till it could not shake me more,

Then it rested till the morrow,
When it came with all the horror
That it had the face to borrow
Shaking, shaking as before,
And from that day in September—
Day which I shall long remember—
It has made diurnal visits,
Shaking, shaking, oh! how sore!
Shaking off boots, and shaking
Me to bed if nothing more,
Fully this if nothing more.

And to-day the shadows flitting
Round my cottage see me sitting
Moodily within the sunshine
Just inside my silent door
Waiting for the ague, seeming
Like a man forever dreaming,
And the sunlight on me streaming,
Sheds no shadows on the floor,
For I am too thin and shallow
To make shadows on the floor,
Nary shadow—any more!

The Dark Hour.

A True Romance.

BY OLIVER.

I can't stand it any longer, Jane, I'll go out, and perhaps something will turn up for us."

"It's a cold night Robert."

"Cold, yes! But it's not much colder outside than in. It would have been much better for you if you had married John Tremain, he said bitterly.

"Don't say that, Robert; I've never regretted my choice"

"Not even now, when there is not a loaf of bread in the house for you and the children?"

"Not even now, Robert. Don't be discouraged. God has not forsaken us. Perhaps this Christmas eve the tide will turn; better days may dawn upon us tomorrow."

Robert Brice shook his head despondingly.

"You are more hopeful than I, Jane. Day after day I have been in search of employment. I have called at fifty places only to receive the same answer everywhere."

Just then little Jimmy, who had been asleep, woke up.

"Mother," he pleaded, "won't you give me a piece of bread? I am so hungry.

"There is no bread, Jimmy darling," said the mother, with an aching heart.

"When will there be some?" asked the little child piteously.

Tears came to the mother's eyes. She knew not what to do.

"Jimmy, I'll bring you some bread," said the father, hoarsely, and he seized his hat and went to the door.

His wife alarmed, laid her hand upon his sleeve. She saw the look in his eyes she feared to what step desperation might lead him.

"Remember Robert," she said solemnly it is hard to starve, but there are things that are worse."

He shook off her hand, but not roughly, and without a word passed out.

Out in the cold streets! There would be their only home next. For a brief time longer he had the shelter of a cheerless room in a cold tenement house, but the rent would become due at the end of the month, and he had nothing to meet it.

Robert Brice was a mechanic, competent and skillful. Three years since he lived in a country village where his expenses were moderate, and he found no difficulty in meeting them. But in an evil hour he grew tired of his village home and removed to the city. Here he vainly hoped to do better. For a while he met with very good success, but he found his tenement house in which he was obliged to live, a poor substitue for the neat cottage which he had occupied in the country. He saw his mistake, but was too proud to go back.

"Of course I can't have as good accommodations here as in the country," he said but it is something to live in, and be in the midst of things."

"I'd rather be back again," said his wife; "somehow the city doesn't seem like home, there I used to run in and take tea with a neighbor, and have a pleasant social time; here I know scarcely anybody."

"You'll get used to it after a while," said her husband.

She did not think so, but did not like to complain.

But a time of great depression came, and with it a suspension of business enterprises. Work ceased for Robert Brice and many others. If he had been in his old home, he could have turned his hand to something else, and, at the worst, could have borrowed of his neighbors till better times. But the friendly relations arising from neighborhoods do not exist in the city to the same extent as in the country. So day by day he went out to seek work, only to find himself one of a large number, all of whom were doomed to disappointment. If he had been alone he could have got along somehow, but it was a sore trial to come to the cheerless room, and pale wife and hungry children with no relief to offer them.

When on that Christmas eve Robert Brice went into the streets, he hardly knew how he was going to redeem the promise he had made little Jimmy. He was absolutely penniless and had been so for three days. There was nothing that he was likely to find to do that night.

"I will pawn my coat," he said at last.

"I cannot see my wife and children starve.'

It was a well worn overcoat, and that cold winter night he needed something more to keep him warm. Weakened by enforced fasting, he was more sensitive to the cold, and shivered as he walked along the pavement.

"Yes." he said, "my coat must go. I know not how I shall get along without it, but I cannot see the children starve before my eyes."

He was not in general an envious man but when he saw sleek, well-fed citizens buttoned up to the throat in warm overcoats come out of the brilliant shops, provided with presents for happy children at home, while his were starving, he suffered some bitter thoughts upon the inequality, of fortune's come to his mind.

Why should they be so happy, he so miserable?

There was a time, he remembered it well when he, too, suffered not the Christmas eve to pass without buying some little gifts for Jimmy and Agnes. How little he dreamed then that they would ever want bread.

There was one man shorter than himself, warmly clad, who passed him with his hands thrust deep into the pockets of his overcoat. There was a pleasant smile upon his face. He was doubtless thinking of a happy circle at home.

Robert knew him as a rich merchant, whose ample warehouse he often passed.

He had applied to this man only two days before for employment and been refused. It was, perhaps, the thought of the wide difference between them, so far as outward circumstances, that led Robert Brice to follow.

After a while the merchant—Mr. Grimes—drew his handkerchief swiftly from his pocket. As he did so, he did not perceive that his pocket-book came with it and fell to the sidewalk.

He did not perceive it, but Robert did, His heart leaped into his mouth, and a sudden thought entered his mind. He bent quickly down and picked up the pocket-book. He raised his eyes hastily to see if the movement was noticed. It was not. The merchant went on unheeding his loss.

"This will buy bread for my wife and children," thought Robert, instantly.

A vision of the comfort which the money would bring that cheerless room lighted up his heart for an instant, but then—for he was not dishonest—there came another thought; The money was not his, as much as he wanted it.

"But I cannot see my wife and children starve," he thought again. "If it is wrong to keep the money, God will pardon the offence. He will understand my motive."

All this was sophistry, and he knew it, In a moment he felt it to be so, There were some things worse than starvation. It was his wife who said this just before he came out. Could he meet her gaze, when he returned with food so obtained?

"I've lived honest so far," he thought, "I won't turn thief now."

It was with an effort he came to this decision, for all the while there was before his eyes that vision of a cheerless home, and he could hear Jimmy vainly asking for food. It was with an effort that he stepped forward and placed his hand on the merchant's shoulder, and extended the hand that held the pocket-book.

"Thank you," said the merchant turning round, "I hadn't perceived my loss."

"You dropped it when you took out your handkerchief."

"And you saw it and picked it up. I am much obliged to you."

"You have reason to be," said Robert in a low voice. "I came near keeping it."

"That would have been dishonest." said Mr. Grimes, his tone altering slightly.

"Yes, it would, but it's hard on a man to be honest when he is penniless, and his wife and children without a crust."

"Surely you and you family are not in that condition," said the merchant, earnestly.

"Yes," said Robert, "it is only too true."

"And you are out of work?"

"For two months I have vainly sought for work. I applied to you two days since."

"I remember you now. I thought I had seen your face before. You still want work?"

"I should feel grateful for it."

"A porter left me yesterday. Will you take his place for twelve dollars a week?"

"Thankfully, sir, I would for half that."

"Then come to morrow morning, or rather, to-morrow will be holiday the day succeeding. Meantime take this for your present necessities."

He drew from his pocket a bank note and put it into Robert's hand.

"It's fifty dollars!" said Robert, in amazement.

"I know it. The pocket-book contains a thousand dollars. But for you I should have lost the whole. I wish you a merry Christmas."

"It will indeed, be a merry Christmas," said Robert, with emotion. 'God bless your, sir. Good night."

"Good night."

Jane waited for her husband in cold and cheerless room, which for a few days longer she might call her home.

"Do you think father will bring some bread?" said little Jimmy, as he nestled in her lap.

"I hope so, darling," she said; but her heart misgave her. She feared it was delusive hope. She feared it was a step on the stairs—her husband's It could not be. for this was a cheerful, elastic step. coming up two steps a time. She looked eagerly to to the door,

Yes, it was he. The door opened.—Robert, radiant with joy, entered with a basket full of substantial provisions.

"Have you got some bread, father?" asked little Jimmy, hopefully,

"Yes, Jimmy, some bread and meat from a restaurant, and here's a little tea and sugar There's a little wood left Jane. Let's have a bright fire and a comfortable meal, for please God, this shall be a merry Christmas."

How did it happen? Tell me Robert.'

So Robert told his wife and soon a bright fire lit up the before cheerless room, and there were four happy hearts that waited in joyful hopeful hope for the dawn of a "Merry Christmas day."

The next week they moved to a better home. They have never since known what it was to want. Robert found a firm friend in the merchant, and has an account in the saving's bank, and has reason to remember, with a greatful heart God's goodness on that Christmas eve.

The Creation of Woman.

A Prince once said to Rabbi Gamaliel: "Your God is a thief; He surprised Adam in his sleep, and stole a rib from him."

The Rabbi's daughter overheard the speech and whispered a word or two in her father's ear, asking his permission to answer this singular opinion herself. He gave his consent.

The girl stepped forward, and, feeling terror and dismay, threw her arms aloft in supplication, and cried out, "My liege, my liege! Justice! Revenge!"

"What has happened?" asked the Prince.

"A wicked theft has taken place," she replied, "A robber has crept secretly into our house, and carried away a silver goblet, and left a gold one in its stead."

"What an upright thief!" exclaimed the Prince. "Would that such robberies were of more frequent occurrance!"

"Behold, then, sire, the kind of thief that our Creator was; He stole a rib from Adam, and gave a beautiful wife instead."

"Well said!" avowed the Prince.

A LEOPARD SHARK.—A shipmaster at Honolulu reports that, during a recent visit of his vessel at Jarvis Island, a "leopard shark" so-called because its skin is covered with dark spots was washed ashore, which measured twenty-six feet in length. The distance between the eyes of this monster, he asserts was four feet, and the length of the jaws nearly three feet.

PERICLES.

So great was the disinclination of the great Pericles to the receiving of gifts, so utter his contempt for riches, that though he was the means of raising Athens to the richest and most flourishing of all the Grecian states; though his power had surpassed that of many tyrants and kings; though he had long disposed in the most absolute manner of the treasures of Greece, he did not add a single drachm to the estate which he inherited from his father.

Pure as was his conduct in this respect, however, it did not escape the envenomed shafts of faction. He was audaciously charged with embezzling the public money during his administration, and a decree was procured, by which he was ordained to give in immediately his accounts. Although Pericles had no real cause to fear the strictest scrutiny into his conduct, he could not but be under some apprehensions for the decision of the people, when he reflected on their great levity and inconsistency. He prepared, however, to give obedience to the decree, and but for a hint given him by Alcibiades, then a very young man, would probably have subjected himself to the risk of a popular trial. Alcibiades, calling at his house one day, was told that he could not be spoken with, because of some affairs of great consequence, in which he was then engaged. The young man inquiring what these mighty affairs might be, was answered, that Pericles was preparing to give in his accounts. Alcibiades smiling, remarked, that were he in Pericles' place, he would not give in any accounts. The observation being repeated to the statesman, it induced him to consider seriously, and at last to adopt the policy thus incidently suggested to him. In order, however, to divert the public attention from the subject, he resolved to oppose no longer, as he had done, the inclination which the people had expressed for the Peloponnessian war; but giving it every possible encouragement, turned their thoughts into a new channel and made them forget the call they had made upon him, on a suspicion, the injustice of which was ere long abundantly manifest.

ANECDOTE OF THE ELDER BOOTH.

The elder Booth was a man who threw into his impersonations an amount of heart and soul which his originals could scarcely have equalled. He did Richard III to the life, and more. He had made human passions, emotions, and experiences his life's study. He could not only act, but feel rage, love, despair, hate, ambition, fury, hope and revenge, with a depth and force that half amazed his audience. He could transmute himself into the hero of his impersonation, and he could breathe a power into men's written words which perhaps was never surpassed. And what is rather remarkable, when he was inclined to give illustrations of this faculty to private circles of friends, he nearly always selected some passages from Job, David, or Isiah, or other holy men of old. When an aspiring young professor of Harvard University went to him at night, to ask a little advice or instruction in qualifying himself for an orator, the veteran tragedian opened the Bible and read a few verses from Isaiah, in a way that made the Cambridge scholar tremble with awe, as if the the prophet had risen from the dead, and was uttering his sublime visions in his ears. He was then residing in Baltimore, and a pious, urbane old gentleman of that city, hearing of his wonderful power of elocution, one day invited him to dine, although strongly deprecating the stage and all theatrical performances.

A large company sat down to the table, and, on returning to the drawing-room, one of them requested Booth as a special favor to them all, to repeat the Lord's Prayer. He signified his willingness to gratify them, and all eyes were fixed upon him. He slowly and reverentially arose from his chair, trembling with the burden of two great conceptions. He had to realize the characteristic attributes and presence of the Almighty Being he was to address. He was to transform himself into a poor, sinning, stumbling, benighted, needy suppliant, offering homage, asking bread, pardon, light, and guidance. Says one of the company present:

It was wonderful to watch the play of emotions that convulsed his countenance. He became deathly pale, and his eyes, turned tremblingly upwards, were wet with tears. As yet he had not spoken.—The silence could be felt; it had become absolutely painful, until, at last the spell was broken as if by an electric shock, as his rich toned voice, from white lips, syllabled forth, "Our Father, which art in heaven," &c., with a pathos and fervid solemnity that thrilled all hearts. He finished; the silence continued; not a voice was heard nor a muscle moved in his rapt audience until, from a remote corner of the room, a subdued sob was heard, and the old gentleman (the host) stepped forward with streaming eyes and tottering frame, and seized Booth by the hand. "Sir," said he in broken accents, "you have afforded me a pleasure for which my whole future life will feel grateful. I am an old man, and every day, from boyhood to the present time, I thought I had repeated the Lord's Prayer; but I never heard it before, never."

"You are right," replied Booth, "[illegible] read that prayer as it should be re[illegible] me the severest study and labo[illegible] years, and I am far from be[illegible] with that wonderful productio[illegible] one person in ten thousand [illegible] how much beauty, tenderne[illegible] dear can be condensed in a [illegible] and in words so simple. THE UNION—IT MUST BE PRESERVED

Railroad Enterprise.

We have heard much talk recently about a new rail road to be built from Delmar, on the line of Maryland and Delaware, to Georgetown, Sussex county, Delaware. It is asserted that the celebrated Jim Fisk, of New York is to have the entire control of the matter. His object in operating in rail road affairs on this Peninsula, is, to have a through line from Norfolk, Va., to the city of New York. If this be true, the Eastern Shore Rail Road will be greatly benefited—and, notwithstanding the fact that the stock of this road is at present valueless, yet by this arrangement it might eventually become marketable stock. If Fisk builds a road between Delmar and Georgetown, it will be for the purpose of having a line of Steamers between Lewes, the terminus of the Delaware and Breakwater railroad, and New York city. Then it follows as a matter of course, that the nearest and most available point on the Chesapeake Bay is Crisfield, the terminus of the Eastern Shore road. Thence by Steamer to Norfolk. Such an arrangement would be highly beneficial to our road, and that it may be made in the near future is devoutly to be wished.

We see advantages that would accrue by having direct communication with New York other than the mere increase of value in our railroad stock. We could then throw our early fruits and vegetables into the New York market at a cost far less than we now do, and avoid the delays and drawbacks on the slow moving Delaware road. The land of this Peninsula is well adapted to raising fruits and vegetables—and our climate being two weeks sooner than New Jersey, our market stuff would go into New York early and command the best prices. But owing to the difficulty of shipping fruits and vegetables to that city now, over the Delaware road, and the exorbitant freights demanded by that road, our people have poor encouragement to turn their attention to trucking. We sincerely wish Jim Fisk success in this enterprise, for we need just such a road to develope the country. Give us a safe and speedy means of transit from the Eastern Shore to New York, and those who now laugh at our country, will very soon have occasion to land it for its thrift and prosperity.

REOPENING OF THE WAR—A SEVERE BATTLE—THE SPANIARDS DEFEATED.

[Special to the Herald.]

Havana, March 1.—Letters received here state that a battle was fought on the 16th between 600 insurgents, under Mattino Gomez, and 400 Spaniards near Masari. The Spaniards fought with great bravery, but their ammunition becoming exhausted, they were obliged to retire. The loss was heavy on both sides. The Spaniards had 100 men killed. The number of insurgents killed is not known. An intrenched tower of observation, nine miles from Puerto Principe, was attacked by 4000 insurgents, under Benbota and Jose Mendoza. The tower was defended by only twenty-five men. The attack was kept up two hours, but the insurgents failed. The Spaniards lost three killed and twelve wounded. The insurgents destroyed the plantation San Jose, twenty-five miles from Santiago, on the 25th, and five negroes were killed and buildings were burned. The same day the insurgents destroyed the cane fields of the plantation La Perseverancia.

THE LEGISLATURE AND GOVERNOR—AFFAIRS STILL IN A FOG.

Memphis. March 1.—The Avalanche's Little Rock special last night says the session of the Senate yesterday was consumed in bitter personal discussion on remarks made by Caroloff, that some skulking Senators had been seen in a graveyard with prostitutes. A cloud is still hanging over the movements of Clayton. Nothing whatever, has been done with the impeachment articles. It is said Clayton's friends will hold a caucus to-night, to determine whether or not he shall go to the Senate. All parties feel confident he will go yet considerable doubt rests in the matter. A bill prohibiting trains running on Sunday, was defeated by the Mississippi Legislature yesterday.

The San Domingo Prospect.

The statements from St. Domingo as to the disposition of Hayti in regard to St. Domingo annexation are contradictory, one account representing her as hostile and another as manifesting no opposition. It is not easy to understand how her sentiments—one way or the other—could be ascertained in so short a time, and there is no evidence, indeed, that any of the commission or correspondents have yet been in Hayti.—There seems to be great unanimity, however, as to the beauty of the Island and the charms of the climate. This is the season when the climate of that region is on its good behavior, and the time for the visit may have been selected with a view to that fact. Perhaps if the expedition had gone in July it would have sent home a less agreeable impression. The climate, indeed, would play an important part were Hayti to be hostile to annexation, and compel the United States to make an armed occupation. Whilst the whole military force of Hayti could, probably, on a fair field, be routed by a single brigade of American soldiers, yet neither France nor Spain has been able to make headway against the climate of that "sanitarium." A pertinent piece of history in regard to this matter is revived by Dr. F. Quizano, a correspondent of the New York Sun, who declares his entire indifference as to annexation, but writes to combat the notion of Rev. Dr. Viston, that St. Domingo is desirable as a resort for invalids. On the 19th of May, 1861, the Spanish government issued a royal decree, in which it declared that the territory of the Dominican republic was once more incorporated into the Spanish monarchy. This was the result of a sale of the country by Santana, who was President at the time. In February, 1863 the people revolted against the Spaniards, and shortly after the correspondent was appointed a surgeon in the Spanish army operating for the suppression of this revolt. This gave him an opportunity to acquire a thorough knowledge of the climate of the island. In less than one year Spain sent about forty thousand soldiers to San Domingo of these scracely twelve thousand left the island, when, in 1865 the Spanish government abandoned the war, in consequence of a vote of the Cortes repealing the act of annexation; the others, twenty eight thousand in number, met their graves through the effects of the malarial fever there. The records of the French sanitary board during the war of France against the Republic of Hayti show that out of fifty thousand men whom France lost in that inglorious strugle, over forty thousand perished from the malarial fever. The physical character of the country, its mountain ranges and dense forests, afford an unusual opportunity for protracted defense, during which multitudes of lives may be sacrificed by the climate. It is, perhaps, a glimmering of these facts which gives the commissioners pause, and is very likely to induce Congress to think twice before it commits itself irrevocably to annexation. Irrespective of all this, however, if we really wish and mean to possess not only San Domingo, but the whole Island of Hayti, we have only, in the winter season to send troops enough to kill off all enemies and then—supposing national strategical and commercial importance demands it—we can hold this "patch of the earth's" surface with a small force and at small cost of life and treasure during the remainder of the year, leaving in the island, indeed, little for food disease. It is not a very humane idea, however for our humanitarians to carry out.—from the Baltimore Sun

Family Difficulties of the Emperor of Germany.

A correspondent of the London Daily News, at Versailles, communicates some of the things he heard there:

The old King, it appears is by no means happy as an Emperor. He was only persuaded to accept this title for the sake of his son, "Our Fritz," and he goes about much like some English squire of long descent who has been induced to allow himself to be converted into a brand new peer, over persuaded by his ambitious progeny. William is one of that numerous class of persons endowed with more heart than brains. Putting aside, or regarding rather as the delusion of a diseased brain, his notion that he is an instrument of heaven and that he is born to rule over Prussian souls by right divine, the old man is by no means a bad specimen of a good-natured, well-meaning, narrow-minded soldier, and between Bismarck and Moltke, he has, of late had by no means an easy time. These two worthies, instead of being, as we imagined in Paris, the best of friends, abominate each other. During the siege, Moltke would not allow Bismarck to have a seat at any council of war, and in order to return the compliment, Bismarck has not allowed Moltke to take any part in the negotiations respecting the armistice, except on the points which were exclusively military. Bismarck tells the French that had it not been for him, Paris would have been utterly destroyed, while Moltke grumbles because it has not been destroyed—an achievement which this talented captain somewhat singularly imagines would fittingly crown his military career. But this is not the only domestic jar which destroys the harmony of the happy German family at Versailles. In Prussia it has been the habit from time immemorial for the heir to the throne to coquette with the liberals, and to be supposed to entertain progressive opinions. The Crown Prince pursues this hereditary policy of his family. He has surrounded himself with intelligent men hostile to the present state of things and who understand that in the present agrarian country can be great and powerful where all who are not country gentlemen, chamberlains or officers are excluded from all share in its government. Bismarck, on the other hand is the representative, or rather the business man, of the squirearchy and of the vons much in the same way as Mr. Disraeli is of the conservatives in England. As both are men of genius they in all probability both despise their own friends and scoff at their prejudices, a pretended belief in which has served them as a stepping-stone to power. The consequence of the divergency of opinion is that Bismarck and "Our Fritz" are very nearly what schoolboys call "ents," and consequently, when the old King dies Bismarck's power will die with him, unless he is wise enough to withdraw beforehand from public life. "Our Fritz" I hear, has done his best to prevent the Prussian batteries from doing any serious damage to Paris, and has not concealed from his friends that he considers that the bombardment was, in the words of Fouche, worse than a crime—an error.

MR. L. H. MILLER,

Dear Sir:—In justice to you we add another testimonial to the superiority and just reputation of your Safes. The unfortunate fire of Friday night last, was so destructive as to leave nothing of our entire stock or business property, except the safe and its contents, which was in the back part of the second floor in the hottest part of the fire, and was severely tested. The appearance of the Safe shows the ordeal through which it has passed, and when opened this morning, in presence of a number of gentlemen, its contents, all my valuable books and papers, were handed me as good as put there before the fire. The test was a severe one, and I am surprised that my books and papers did not show some damage; but the perfect condition they are in shows plainly that the powers of endurance you claim for the Safe had hardly been called into requisition. Your Safes are justly entitled to the confidence of the business community, and we shall take pleasure in recommending them to all wanting a perfectly reliable article.

Remain, yours truly,

One Thousand Dollars is offered for a Safe that has been as severely tested as the above, and the contents in as perfect condition. Sale-room Miller's Safe and Iorn Works, 265 Baltimore Street.

LOCAL ADVERTISER.

SATURDAY MORNING, Mar., 4, 1871.

That very popular fellow with the people of this county, known as CASH, is accused of being tight.

If a cannon ball shot through a wall causes a breach, how many cannon ball holes will make a pair of—good gracious!

The recent mild weather has started the buds on some of the hardy shade trees in this part of the county.

March weather is like unto the affections of a silly girl—subject to sudden changes.

County Business.—The County Commissioners met last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Notice.—The Rev. Dr. Hamner of Baltimore, is expected to preach in the Presbyterian Church, on Sunday, March 5th.

The Salisbury correspondent of the Delaware Tribune is quite a smart writer but a very poor judge of music.—REPORTER.

At Work.—The surveyors have arrived in Salisbury and are surveying the Wicomico river. They expect to complete the task in about ten days.

At Last.—The town Commissioners are having oyster shells put on some streets in Salisbury. This is a move in the right way—they are greatly needed.

Co-partnership.—G. R. Rider Esq., and E. L. Willirms Esq., have formed a copartnership. The new firm will henceforth carry on business at the stand for many years occupied by Mr. Rider.

Did Not Appear.—The Becheler failed to appear last Wednesday.—Cause—head type and roller did not arrive from the city. The paper will come out next Wednesday.

Gardening.—Many persons are preparing their gardens for planting seeds. If, as some assert, the first three days of March are indicative of the condition of the weather for the three following months, it is fair to assert that gardening will be especially delightful and profitable this spring.

Religious Revivel.—Rev. J. Garland Hamner, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Salisbury, after preaching one week to the citizens of Whaleyville, received twelve or fifteen persons into the church on profession of faith.

Land Sales.—Lemuel Malone, Trustee, sold last week, in Tyaskin District, the farm formerly the property of Perry L. Horsman—containing 26 acres, for $600.00, James Dunn, purchaser.

Improved.—We are glad to see that the Bailiff has cleaned up the street lamps and now keeps them in first rate condition. He has also been busy about some other little matters of importance—such as mending holes in the streets &c. "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Royal Gem.—Success is the best test of superiority; the wonderful demand for the Diamond State segar is one of the convincing proofs that this brand is fully appreciated by those who enjoy the delicate oder of a fragrant segar.

E. W. Humphreys, at the Drug Store, Main Street—sole agent.

Breaking the Lamps.—We are informed that some persons maliciously inclined, are in the habit of smashing a street lamp occasionally. Now this may be fun for them—but if they are not very cautious, they will realize the force of the homely proverb, "What's sass for the goose, is sass for the gander," and have the pleasure of paying five or ten dollars for indulging in their pleasant pastimes.

Personal.—It gives us pleasure to announce to the many friends of Dr. S. P. Dennis, that he has returned from Philadelphia, where he has been under medical treatment, to his old quarters on Main Street, Salisbury. The Doctor has been a great sufferer, and it is gratifying to welcome him home so greatly improved in health and spirits.

Government Appointment.—Dr. L. D. Collier of Salisbury, has been appointed United States Assistant Assessor for Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties. The district formerly had two Assistant Assessors; Mr. Wm. Farrow of Snow Hill, and Mr. E. F. Duer of Princess Anne.—But the changes in the law rendering it necessary to reduce the number of Assessors, the two assistants mentioned above, resigned, and Dr. Collier has been appointed to perform the work for the three counties.

The New County Bond.—The Commissioners of Wicomico County have passed a resolution to indemnify the the Trustees of the New County Bond for the cost of the suit, that will soon be instituted against the signers of the bond. The resolution excepted attorneys' fees and only promises indemnity for court expenses. This is what the Trustees of the bond have long been asking for, and we presume since they have got what they desire, they will at once institute suit, and the vexed question will be settled.

We have received from the publishers, the State Gazette for Maryland and District of Columbia. This valuable and nicely bound volume is replete with important information, useful to persons of every profession and business. It gives the name and address of the entire business community of Maryland, and an accurate description of the State, as it is divided into counties, cities, towns and hamlets. Sadler, Drysdale & Purnell, Publishers. No 8 North Charles St. Baltimore Md.

Cure for Love.—Take 12 ounces of dislike, 1 pound of resolution, 2 ounces of the powder of experience, 1 large sprig of time, 14 drachms of the guilt of dishonor, 1 quart of the cooling water of consideration.

Set them on a gentle fire of Love. Sweeten it with the sugar of forgetfulness, skim it with the spoon of melancholy.

Cork it with the cork of a sound conscience, and there let it remain and you will instantly find ease, and be restored to your right senses again.

These things are to be found of the apothecary, at the house of Understanding, next door to Reason, in Prudent street, in the parish of Contentment.

Festival & Supper.—The ladies of the M. P. Church of Salisbury, will hold a supper and festival in the Court Room, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week. The proceeds of which, will be appropriated towards defraying the expences of the new church on Broad Street.

We have not been furnished with a programme—and therefore cannot state what the price of admission will be—but judging from the success achieved by the ladies of Salisbury in getting up suppers and festivals in the past—we would advise our citizens to turn out liberally; for we verily believe they will be well treated.

Just here we wish to say to the people of our community, that if they desire us to give publicity to entertainments, &c., it is but little trouble for some one of the leading spirits to furnish us with the main features of the projected entertainment, so that we may be able to make a correct report. It is hardly fair to expect us to do full justice to a subject of which we know nothing but what we catch from the conversation of uninterested parties.

Beautiful Light.—There is an apparatus now being introduced for burning oil that surpasses, in our estimation, all lamps ever made. It has all the conveniences of a modern gas burner and chandelier, and gives a clear beautiful light at one eighth the cost of gas. The burner is very ingeniously constructed. The flame is produced by applying heat to the burner, causing a gas to be generated from the oil in the tube, which, when ignited, burns brilliantly. The flame heats the tube sufficiently to generate a good supply of the gas, and at the same time consumes it. The oil used is perfectly non-explosive, and can be bought for about one half the price of good coal oil. We have not space for further remarks on this new light, but we advise those who desire a cheap and beautiful light, to examine its merits. Mr. Tracy has burners in the bar room and reading room of his hotel—where all who will may see it. We understand that J. Tracey & Co. have bought the right for Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester Counties, and desire active agents.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

Pittsville.—The merchants of Pittsville are buying pine lumber quite largely. The health of the place is remarkably fine at present.

Tyaskin.—We learn that a petition is being circulated in Tyaskin, asking the Commissioners of Wicomico county to sue the "New County Bond" holders.

The oyster business is brisk.

Sharptown.—We do not hear much news from Sharptown. Everything is moving along there in the accustomed groove.

Sharptown always gives very small Democratic majorities. It is no wonder; the people there don't take the Advertiser.

Nutter's.—This little stronghold of Democracy is all O. K. and "right side up with care," and the people out there don't care how "school keeps" so that the pot is kept boiling and the Democratic eagle keeps his feathers plumed.

Parson's.—Many persons in Parson's District are very fond of fox hunting, and have recently been remarkably successful.

Barren Creek.—We are pleased to state that our friends report "everything lovely in this District. Well—well—we pray it may ever be thus. Barren Creek is decidedly the pleasantest place in Wicomico county in the summer time. Well do we remember our pleasant visit there last summer, when the scorching heat and malarial vapors induced us to quit our sanctum, and accompanied by a friend, seek an asylum with friend Jackson. We remained there one week, enjoying the mineral waters and our host's excellent fare, and came back to business and dust.

FORKTOWN, March 1, 1871.

MESSRS EDITORS:—

Having time and again noticed your valuable paper, and ever finding new and spicy articles together with fresh loaves weekly baked and sent around—being of excellent flavor, pleasing to the taste, and withal a herald of good news to the public, I herewith hail it as a welcome visitor and recommend it to my neighbors—many of whom having subscribed for it, join me in my opinion of its excellence.

Quite a number of articles signed Macbe'h have appeared in your columns and been read with much interest. Learning that he had declined to write for a season in consequence of pressing duties that occupy the time devoted by him to your paper; and presuming you desire the Forktown correspondence to continue, I write in his stead, and hope my reports may prove interesting and by no means detrimental to the wide circulation of your paper.

The genial rays of the Sun for several days past have imparted their mild and life giving influences to old mother earth, and the tender plants of vegetation are being gently brought into existence.

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Wilmington Conference for Snow Hill District, was held in the M. E. Church here on Sunday and Monday 19th and 20th inst.. Rev. V. Smith presiding. The weather of Sabbath was inclement, in consequence of which the congregation was unusually slim. The business of Monday in regard to financial matters was tolerable. Some of the appointments paid up promptly, and it is expected that the remainder will be forthcoming by the next session of Conference; which will soon be held at Dover, Delaware.

The citizens of this neighborhood have manifested considerable interest in debating societies. The first debate held after the lecture on "Woman's Rights," was attended with disappointment on account of one of the champions not appearing as expected. Yet it turned out well in the end, as other gentlemen of ability were present and engaged in the work. Messrs Jenkins and Townsend were the gentlemen who did justice to both the subject and themselves They spoke on the much vexed Indian question. After the decision, the two gentlemen were appointed to discuss "In which is there the most pleasure—Youth or Old Age?" The evening appointed for the debate arrived, and much to the disappointment of the audience, the gentlemen were among the missing. However, in due time Mr. Jenkins' report was received—he was sick, and Mr. Townsend had been called away on professional duty. Yet this difficulty was soon surmounted by two gentlemen who took the places of the absent, and the debate went on. The question was decided in favor of old age. The debates are held in the school house near the Church.

WE ALL CONSIDER IRON the embodiment of strength and power. but how few are aware that it is this some element in the system, that gives us strength and vigor, and that an insufficiency of it causes weakness and debility. The Peruvian Syrup, a protoxide of iron, is prepared expressly to supply this vitalizing element.

CALOMEL at a discount Defiance to Southern Fevers. Good digestion secured by using Simmons' Liver Regulator.

DO NOT DO IT in fact you must not do it. It would be wrong for any lady to attempt to purchase clothing for her sons, or gentlemen for themselves, without first examining the large and superior stock at Rockhill & Wilsons, and if they do not find it superior in quality, cut, make and trimmings, and at lower price than any other clothing establishment in the city, don't purchase. Our beautiful and substantial all-wool heavy cloth and cassimere suits, for fall and winter, which are going off by thousands, both in the city and country, all for $15, coat, vest and pants. They astonish the trade to understand how we furnish them at the price. It is hardly necessary to say anything in regard to our customer department that is so well and favorably known that every gentleman in the city is posted.

W. W. GORDY

DIVISION STREET,
Salisbury, Md,

Dealer in Dry Goods, Groceries, Hats and Caps, Boots & Shoes, Notions, Lamps &c., has now on hand a full supply of everything in his line, and invites the attention of the public to the fact that he is selling his goods cheap for cash. He is also agent for the patent non-explosive Coal Oil Lamp—which is certainly an elegant piece of mechanical skill and ingenuity, apart from its value as an illuminator.

It gives a better light than gas—Consumes less oil than any other lamp, and it cannot be exploded with coal oil or Benzine. It is decidedly the best lamp ever invented, and will pay for itself in a few months by the more saving of oil. We would advise our readers to pay Mr. Gordy a visit and examine this lamp.

OCTOBER, 15th, 1870.

WM. GORDY,

Dear Sir:—I have been using the Non-explosive lamp for several months in my family, and think it even excels what it is recommended to be.

Yours Respectfully,
GEORGE RIALL.

Dr. SCHENCK advises Consumptives to go to FLORIDA IN WINTER.

Having for the last thirty-five years devoted my whole time and attention to the study of lung diseases and consumption, I understand fully the course that ought to be pursued to restore a tolerably bad case of diseased lungs to healthy soundness. The first and most important step is for the patient to avoid taking cold, and the best of all places on this continent for this purpose in winter, is Florida, well down in the State, where the temperature is regular, and not subject to such variations as in more Northern latitudes. Palatka is a point I can recommend. A good hotel is kept there by Peterman. Last winter I saw several persons there whose lungs had been badly diseased, but who, under the healing influence of the climate and my medicines, were getting well.

One hundred miles further down the river is a point which I would prefer to Palatka, as the temperature is more even and the air dry and bracing. Mellonville and Enterprise are located there. I should give a decided preference to Mellonville. It is two miles from river or lake, and it seems almost impossible to take cold there. The tables in Florida might be better, and patients complain at times but that is a good sign, as it indicates a return of appetite, and when this is the case they generally increase in flesh, and then the lungs must heal.

Jacksonville, Hibernia, Green Cove, and many other places in various parts of Florida, can be safely recommended to consumptives in winter. My reasons for saying so are that patients are less liable to take cold there then where there is a less even temperature, and it is not necessary to say that where a consumptive person exposes himself to frequent colds he is certain to die shortly. Therefore my advice is, go well down into the State out of the reach of prevailing east winds and fogs. Jacksonville, or almost any other of the localities I have named, will benefit those who are troubled with a torpid liver, a disordered stomach, deranged bowels, sore throat or cough, but for those whose lungs are diseased a more southern point is earnestly recommended.

For fifteen years prior to 1869, I was professionally in New York, Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia every week, where I saw and examined on an average five hundred patients a week. A practice so extensive, embracing every possible phase of lung disease, has enabled me to understand the disease fully, and hence my caution in regard to taking cold. A person may take vast quantities of "Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills," and yet die if he does not avoid taking cold.

In Florida, nearly everybody is using Schenck's Mandrake Pills, for the climate is more likely to produce bilious habits than more northern latitudes. It is a well established fact that natives of Florida rarely die of consumption, especially those of the southern part. On the other hand, in New England one-third at least of the population die of the terrible disease. In the Middle States it does not prevail so largely, still there are many thousands of cases there. What a vast percentage of life would be saved if consumptives were as easily alarmed in regard to taking fresh colds as they are about scarlet fever, small pox, &c. But they are not. They take what they term a little cold, which they are credulous enough to believe will wear off in a few days. They pay no attention to it, and hence it lays the foundation for another and another still, until the lungs are diseased beyond all hope for cure.

My advice to persons whose lungs are affected even slightly is, to lay in a stock of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Schenck's Seaweed Tonic and Schenck's Mandrake Pills and go to Florida. I recommend these particular medicines because I am thoroughly acquainted with their action. I know that where they are used in strict accordance with my directions they will do the work that is required. This accomplished, nature will do the rest. The physician for cold cough or night sweats, and then advises the patient to walk or ride out every day, will be sure to have a corpse on his hands before long.

My plan is to give my three medicines, in accordance with the printed directions, except in some cases where a freer use of the Mandrake Pills is necessary My object is to give tone to the stomach—to get up a good appetite. It is always a good sign when a patient begins to grow hungry. I have hopes of such. With a relish for food and the gratification of that relish comes good blood, and with it more flesh, which is closely followed by a healing of the lungs. Then the cough loosens and abates, the creeping chills and clammy night-sweats no longer prostrate and annoy, and the patient gets well, provided he avoids taking cold.

Now there are many consumptives who have not the means to go to Florida. The question may be asked, is there no hope for such? Certainly there is. My advice to such is, and ever has been, to stay in a warm room during the winter, with a temperature of about seventy degrees, which should be kept regularly at that point, by means of a thermometer. Let such a patient take his exercise within the limits of the room by walking up and down as much as his strength will permit, in order to keep up a healthy circulation of the blood. I have cured thousands by this system, and can do so again. Consumption is as easily cured as any other disease if it is taken in time, and the proper kind of treatment is pursued. The fact stands undisputed on record that Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Mandrake Pills and Seaweed Tonic have cured very many of what seemed to be hopeless cases of consumption. Go where you will, you will be almost certain to find some poor consumptive who has been rescued from the very jaws of death by their use.

So far as the Mandrake Pills are concerned, everybody should keep a supply of them on hand. They act on the liver better than calomel, and leave none of its hurtful effects behind. In fact they are excellent in all cases where a purgative medicine is required. If you have partaken too freely of fruit and diarrhœa ensues, a dose of the Mandrakes will cure you. If you are subject to sick headache, take a dose of the Mandrakes and they will relieve you in two hours. If you would obviate the effect of a change of water, or the too free indulgence in fruit, take one of the Mandrakes every night or every other night, and you may then drink water and eat watermelons, pears, apples, plums, peaches or corn, without the risk of being made sick by them. They will protect those who live in damp situations against chills and fevers. Try them. They are perfectly harmless. They can do you good only.

I have abandoned my professional visits to Boston and New York, but continue to see patients at my office No. 15 N. SIXTH Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged five dollars. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not. But I desire it distinctly understood that the value of my medicines depends entirely upon their being taken strictly according to directions.

In conclusion, I will say that when persons take my medicines and their systems are brought into a healthy condition thereby, they are not so liable to take cold, yet no one with diseased lungs can bear a sudden change of atmosphere without the liability of greater or less irritation of the bronchial tubes.

Full directions in all languages accompany my medicines, so explicit and clear that any one can use them without consulting me, and can be bought from any druggist.

Building Paper.

This is a hard, compact paper, like an ordinary [illegible] book cover, and is saturated with tar and used on the outside of frame buildings, under the clapboards, also under shingles and floors, to keep out damp and cold. It is also used on the inside, not saturated, instead of Plastering, and makes a warm and cheap wall. It costs only from $5 to $20 (according to size) to cover a house on the outside. DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE,
LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW
UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER.

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cog-wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

The former Editor of this paper, who purchased a Washer and Wringer, thus testifies as to their value:

"We can knowingly recommend these machines to be just what their manufacturer represents them. We have had them in regular use in our own family for over six months, and we find that all the really hard labor and drudgery of washing is entirely dispensed with by their use. Washing is a neat and pleasant employment for a lady with one of Doty's Washing Machines and Wringers, and we have thought that a millionaire, with no dependent heirs on whom to bestow his fortune, would become one of the greatest benefactors of his race by endowing a fund with which to give one of these Washing Machines to the thousands of overtasked washerwomen which we have in our land." Notice the liberal offer made by Mr. Browning in his advertisement. There is no deception in this offer, and we would be willing to guarantee its fulfilment to the letter. Let every family which can possibly do so buy Doty's Washing Machine and Wringer.

PRICES.—A Fair Offer.

If the Merchants in your place will not furnish, or send for the Machines, send us the retail price, Washer $14, Extra Wringer $9, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer and a Universal Wringer.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.

WIT AND HUMOR.

A Scull-race—A college course!

The Balloonist's Motto.—Air or naught!

Isn't it queer that contractors are engaged to widen streets?

Delightful chastisement.—The waves beating at your feet.

Why is a grain of sand in the eye like a school-master's cane? Because it hurts the pupil.

Why is the letter D like the marriage service? Because it makes "we" into "wed."

What is the difference between a glass of water and a broken engagement?—The one is not filled full, and the other is not fulfilled.

Conclusion.—"The court orders you to conclude," said a judge to a tedious lawyer. "Very well, your honor, then I conclude that the court shall listen to me."

Mr. Jones called upon a gentleman advertises to restore oil-paintings, and requested him to restore a valuable landscape which was stolen from him two years ago.

A rich man asked a poor person if he had any idea of the advantages arising from riches. "I believe they give a rogue an advantage over an honest man;" was the answer.

Chandelier.—A good sort of man was recently asked to subscribe for a chandelier for the church.—"Now," said he, "what's the use of a chandelier? "After you get it, you can't get any one to play on it."

A gentleman who had a very deaf servant was advised by a friend to discharge him. "No, no," replied the gentleman, with much good feeling, "that poor creature could never hear of another situation."

The Turkish ambassador was at a public dinner, in company with some of the magnates of the land, the President gave the toast, in compliment to his Excellency, "The Sublime Porte and the Turkish Ambassador." The waiter echoed it down the table, "A supply of port for the Turkish Ambassador."

"John," said a poverty-stricken man to his son, "I've made my will to-day." "Ah," said John, "you were liberal to me, no doubt." "Yes, John I came down handsome. I've willed you the whole State of Virginia to make a living in, with the privilege of going elsewhere if you can do better."

Belle's Lettres.—Love-letters!

Saturday Notes—Our salaries.

When is water like fat?—When its dripping.

What color is a bucket?—A rather pale (pail) color.

Why do schoolboys having their ears boxed resemble captured house-breakers? Because they are handcuffed.

Under the head of "Crimes and Casualties" a rural paper mentions the fact that a rival editor has just published a book.

A young man charged with being lazy, was asked if he took it from his father. "I think not," was the reply; "father's got all the laziness he ever had."

The power of the judicious editor extends into even the realms of nature. He can transform all species of leaves into the single class, Eu-clypt-us.

Hymns and Hers.—"I have a great love for old hymns," said a pretty girl to her masculine companion. "I am much fonder of young hers!" was his reply.

A gentleman who has unfortunately broken his word, is anxious to procure some cement that will repair it. The same composition with which people mend their manners may possibly answer.

A lady who has been reading law is in the most fearful and agonizing doubts regarding the legality of her married condition. She says "Lotteries are illegal and marriage is the greatest lottery in life!"

A physician being asked by a patient if he thought a little spirits now and then would hurt him much, replied, "I do not know that a little occasionally would hurt you much; but if you don't take any, it won't hurt you at all."

A miller had his neighbor arrested under the charge of stealing wheat from his mill, but being unable to substantiate the charge by proof, the court adjudged that the miller should make acknowledgement to the accused. "Well," says he, "I have had you arrested for stealing my wheat. I can't prove it, and I'm sorry for it."

A woman went to a circus in Terra Haute, Indiana, accompanied by eleven children, and when a neighbor asked her where the old man was, she said he was at home, taking care of the children. Another neighbor called at the house, and seeing the old man trying to amuse nine young ones asked where the old lady was. He said he had let her go to the circus with the children.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for Throat and Lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city which will be without it it possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no care of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Blood Spitting, Hoarseness, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used, according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to be, and invite a trial from the afflicted every where. Price, 50 cents, medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by

Natures Gifts

Scientifically Developed.

As mankind, from indiscretion or other causes, has been doomed to suffer from disease, so also has remedy for disease been provided. Our hills and valleys abound with roots and herbs, which if scientifically prepared and compounded, will restore health and vigor to the invalid. To find such a remedy we should seek one that has stood the test of age.

HOOFLAND'S

German Bitters.

Sure Cure for Liver Complaint.

Sure Cure for Dyspepsia.

Sure Cure for Debility.

Sure Cure for Jaundice

Sure Cure for Marasmus.

IMPURE BLOOD,

And all diseases arising from it. The great preventive of

FEVER AND AGUE.

It is an impossibility for any one to have Fever and Ague, if they will use a few bottles of this remedy each spring and fall.

$100 $100 $100

Will be given for any case of this disease that occurs to any one that uses the Bitters or Tonic as a preventive.

H

Those who have the Fever and Ague will find, after the chills have stopped, that by using a few bottles of the Bitters or Tonic, that the disease will not return.

These remedies will rebuild their Constitution faster than any other known remedy.

The remedies were placed before the public thirty years ago, with all the prejudices of so-called "patent medicine" operating against them, but gradually their virtues became known, and now, to-day, they stand at the head of all preparations of their class, with the indorsement of eminent judges, lawyers, clergymen and physicians.

Read the following symptoms, and if you find that your system is affected by any of them you may rest assured that disease has commenced its attack on the most important organs of your body, and unless soon checked by the use of powerful remedies, a miserable life, soon terminating in death, will be the result.

O

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant imagining of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

All indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

O

HOOFLAND'S

German Bitters,

Is entirely vegetable and contains no liquor It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots Herbs and Barks from which these extracts are made, are gathered in Germany; all the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of this Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters; hence it is free from all the objections incident to the use of a liquor preparation.

F

HOOFLAND'S

German Tonic

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters with purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Oranges [illegible]. It is used for the same diseases as the Bitters, in cases where some pure alcoholic stimulus is required.

To Physicians

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation; to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by the druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle); leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of the ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added to prevent fermentation upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopea, nor is it a syrup—and therefore can be used where fever or inflamation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,

I am, very respectfully,

The Constitution once affected with organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does.—If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or retention, Painfulness, or suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceding those dangerous remedies, Copavia and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of however long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions; procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of Diuretic. HELMBOLD' EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. Price $1 25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6 50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

MASON & HAMLIN CABINET ORGANS.

Important Improvements.

Patented June 21st, and August 23, 1870.

Reduction of Prices.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing important improvements in their Cabinet Organs, for which Patents were granted them in June and August last. These are not merely meretricious attachments, but enhance the substantial excellence of the instruments.

They are also enabled by increased facilities for manufacture, to make, from this date, a farther reduction of prices on several leading styles.

Having completed and added to their former facilities a large new manufactory, they hope hereafter to supply all orders promptly.

The Cabinet Organs made by this Company are of such universal reputation, not only throughout America, but also in Europe, that few will need assurance of their superiority.

They now offer FOUR OCTAVE CABINET ORGANS, in quite plain cases, but equal according to their capacity to anything they make, for $50 each. The same, Double Reed, $65. Five Stops, with Knee swell and Tremulant, in elegant case, with several of the Mason & Hamlin improvements, $125. The same Extra, with new Vox Humana, Automatic Swell, &c., $160. Selected Poetry.

SUNSET.

A wintry eve and a dappled sky
With dim clouds rolling swiftly by,
Far in the East a beacon light,
The crescent moon foretells the night—
With silver horn hung low.

A bright and sudden flash, and lo!
To crimson turns the gleaming snow;
The skies with varied tints are lit—
And clouds like golden chareits, flit
Athwart the western glow.

Far to the zeinith streams the light
In fleecy folds and radiance bright,
While to the northward, fold on fold,
Like banners strung with molten gold—
The clouds are floating fast.

Through broken gleams of rifted light
The glowing sun bursts on the sight;
And all the heavens with mystic might
Crown every mountain's purple height
With splendors rolling past.

A thousand cubits up, and more—
They rise, like battlement of yore,
And rosy radiance ripples o'er
Each snowy path, as low and lower
The crimson lights descend.

They glow and gleam from brow to base,
And glisten for one moment's space,
Like far Olympus' line of grace,
When gods uprose, with threatening face,
Their temples to defend.

A transient gleam, and brief as fair!
The shifting shadows, here and there,
Creep softly on, and twilight lends,
A gorgeous gloom as night descends
On purple pinions low.

The clouds have lost their rosy gleams,
And float away like shattered dreams
To gloom and silence; up the sky
The young Moon climbeth silently,
And bends her silver bow.

Through drifting clouds a single star
Emits a trembling radiance far,
And like some fair, translucent gem,
Glows softly on night's diadem,
In splendor, all alone.

The last swift arrows tipped with light
The day sent forth, in realms of night
Are lost forever; earth and sky
In sable garments sadly lie,
And Night ascends her throne.

Marland State Lines—Some Interesting Facts.

MESSRS EDITORS:—Knowing that your paper sheds a light on the hearth of the majority of homes in Wicomico County, I have long thought that some remarks as to the State we love so tenderly, would be acceptable to many of your readers. Aggressions never had an eye to Mathematical lines, and the story of Conquest is read in the facial lines of its boundaries. Cast your eye over any map, ancient or modern, and your first impression will be the irregularity of its outlines. To this general rule the Atlantic States of the Union, are no exceptions and are traceable to the same cause—the spirit of conquest.

Perhaps no colony has spent more money or wasted more time in ascertaining its boundaries, than Maryland, and yet no State has been subjected to more difficulties, or been robbed of more valuable territory, than our State. History defies the citation of a record where such flagrant seizures have been made, except in the legendary traditions of Barbarism. As laid down in the charter of Maryland, the extent of the colony is as follows: Begining at a point on the Chesapeake Bay, near the river "Weicho," (Pocomoke.) and running East, to the Ocean, then by the Delaware Bay under the 40th degree, then by and with that degree due West, until it reaches the meridian of the first fountain of POTOMAC, then by that Meridian to the first fountain, and lastly by the Southern Shore of that river to the Bay and across to Watkins' Point. What is the true position of Watkins' Point, can never be definitely settled. It is now supposed to be Watt's Island, but by the constant washing of the bay, that peninsula jutting out has been severed and washed entirely away.—Thus the boundaries of Maryland were curtailed by every tide.

The emigrants had hardly placed themselves on amicable terms with the Indians, before the incursions of the Virginians commenced. This first dispute was natural enough. The Virginians settling on the tongue of land, now comprising Accomac and Northampton, gradually intruded on the soil of the Catholics of Maryland, and so great had the disputes become, that it had attracted the attention of Gov. Calvert, who readily perceived the importance of settling this question.

He accordingly in 1661, appointed Commissioners to meet those of Virginia and adjust the difficulty. Among them, were John Elzey and Edmund Scarborough. The prudent foresight of the Governor of Maryland readily made itself apparent. In a few years the districts of Annamessix and Manokin, became populous, and paid a fair tax to the Colonial Treasury.—But this measure, though pregnant with justice and good faith, served only to arouse the more sordid and dormant passions of Scarborough.—Disputes about the land ran high and at last Scarborough arrogated to himself the right of determining the boundary by force. This cool, daring man possessed by inheritance of a large fortune, was the petty chieftain of the Eastern Shore of Virginia.—He entrapped Elsey in Accomac and imprisoned him, until through duress he obtained a promise of acquiescence in his nefarious designs upon the Maryland settlers. Escaping he laid the scheme before Gov. Calvert, and the two States re-adjusted the position of Watkins' Point. The tyranies of Scarborough and the wiley and quarrelsome proclivities, are traditions now in those regions, and have sent his name to posterity as one "who used" his wealth "abusing" it, threw upon posterity, the leaden weights of hereditary shame. From this, results the trouble between the two States at present—generally known as the "Oyster War," which was precipitated by the unjust and flagrant arrests of the Maryland Oystermen, by the Virginia Oyster Police Force.

In the compact between the Commissioners appointed by the two States, made at Mt. Vernon, in 1785, and afterwards ratified by the Legislatures of the respective States, was the following:

Sec. 8.—All laws and regulations which may be necessary for the preservation of fish or for the performance of quarantine in the River Potomac, or for preserving and keeping the channel and navigation thereof—or of the river Pocomoke, within the limits of Virginia, by preventing and throwing out of ballast, or giving any other obstruction thereto, shall be made with the mutual consent and approbation of the two States. The River "Weicho," is conceded to be the Pocomoke—and the momentum given to the present controversy has its beginning in the grammar of Sec. 8, above. The Virginians, intollerant, and deny that the words "for the preservation of fish and the performance of quarantine" in the first clause of the Section is to be construed as to read in the last clause. The Marylanders affirm that the first, as to fish and quarantine, is included in the latter clause and that the words preventing the throwing out of ballast is only supplemental thereto. Thus stands the dispute narrowed down from the bullying landact of the Virginia Land-grabber to the petty contest over the construction of a sentence. These two counties, isolated from Virginia proper are the living monuments of their avarice. They have rarely had any share of the loaves and fishes of office, and will ultimately fall within the limits of Eastern Maryland. So situated as not to be able to protect themselves and calling over the waters of the Chesapeake, are answered as they were during the war—"we are not able to protect you."

In my next, I will give an account of how we lost Delaware.

ANTENOR.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS.—An Italian bishop, who had struggled through many difficulties without repining, and been much opposed without manifesting impatience, being asked by a friend to communicate the secret of his being always so happy, replied, "It consists in a single thing, and that is, making a right use of my eyes." His friend, in surprise, begged him to explain his meaning. "In whatsoever state I am, I first look up to heaven, and remember that my great business is to get there. I then look down upon earth and call to my mind how small a space I shall soon fill in it. I then look abroad in the world, and see what multitudes are, in all respects, less happy than myself. And thus I learn where true happiness is placed, where all my cares must end, and how little reason I ever had to murmur, or to be otherwise than thankful. And to live in this spirit is to be always happy."

VERY DRUNK.—A young sprig of a doctor once met at a convivial party several larks, who were bent on placing in his hat a very large brick—or, in plain language, make him gloriously drunk—which they accomplished about ten o'clock at night. The poor doctor insisted on going, and the party accompanied him to the stable, to assist him to mount his horse, which they at length did, with his face to the animal's tail.

"Hallo," said the doctor, after feeling for the reins, "I am inside out on my horse, or face behind, I don't know which—something wrong, anyhow."

"So you are," exclaimed one of the wags: "just get off, doctor, and we'll put you on right."

"Get off?" hiccupped the doctor—"No, you don't. Just turn the horse round, and it will all come right—you must all be very drunk."

A MAN who wanted to buy a horse, asked a friend how to tell a horse's age "By his teeth," was the reply. The next day the man went to a horse dealer who showed a splendid black horse. The horse hunter opened the animal's mouth, gave one glance, and turned on his heel. "I don't want him," said he; "he's thirty-two years old." He had counted his teeth!

JACK AND THE LADY.

The following story is quite romantic, and founded on circumstances that will not by any means warrant every youth's watching for a fortune in just the way described. One has opportunities to be courteous, however, ever day, and nothing is ever lost by it.

A sailor, roughly dressed, was strolling through the streets of New Orleans, then in rather damp condition from recent rain and rise of the tide. Turning the corner of a much frequented and narrow alley, he observed a young lady standing in perplexity apparently measuring the depth of muddy water between her and the opposite side-walk, with no very satisfied countenance.

The sailor paused, for he was a great admirer of beauty, and the fair face that peeped out from under the little chip hat might tempt an admiring glance. Perplexed, the lady put forth one little foot, when the gallant sailor, with impulsiveness exclaimed.—

"That pretty foot, lady, should not be soiled with the filth of the; wait for a moment only, and I will make you a path."

So, springing past her into a carpenter's shop opposite, he bargained for a plane board that stood in the doorway, and coming back to the smiling girl, who was just coquettish enough to accept the services of the handsome young sailor, he bridged the narrow black stream, and she tripped across with a merry "Thank you," and a roguish smile.

Alas! our young sailor was perfectly charmed. What else would make him catch and shoulder the plank, and follow the little witch through the streets to her home. She twice performed the ceremony of walking the plank, and each time thanking him with one of her pretty smiles.

Presently our hero saw the young lady trip up the marble steps of a palace of a house, and disappear within its rosewood entrance. For a full minute he stood looking at the door, and then, with a big sigh, turned away, disposed of his draw-bridge, and went back to his ship.

The next day he received notice of promotion from the captain. Poor Jack was speechless with amazement. He had not dreamed of being exalted to the dignity of a second mate's office on board one of the most splendid ships that sailed out of the port of New Orleans. He knew he was competent, for instead of spending his money for amusement, visiting theatres and bowling alleys on his return from sea, he purchased books, and had become quite a student, but he expected years to intervene before his ambitious hopes would be realized.

His superior officers favored him and gave him opportunities to gather nautical knowledge, and in a year the gentlemanly young mate had acquired unusual favor in the eyes of the portly commander, Capt Hume, who had first taken the smart little black-eyed fellow, as the cabin boy.

One night the young man, with all the other officers, was invited to an entertainment at the captain's house. He went, and to his astonishment, mounted the same steps that, two years before, the young lady had passed over—a vision he had never forgotten. Thump, thump, went his brave heart, as he was ushered into the parlor, and like a sledge hammer it beat again when Capt. Hume brought forward his daughter, and with a pleasant smile, said, "This young lady was once indebted to your kindness for a safe and dry walk home."

His brown cheeks flushed hotly as the captain sauntered away, leaving Grace at his side. And in all that assembly was not so handsome a couple as the gallant sailor and the "pretty ladie."

It was only a year from that time that the second mate trod the quarter deck, second only in command, and part owner with the captain, not only in his vessel, but in the affections of his daughter, who had always cherished respect for the bright eyed sailor.

His very homely but earnest act of politeness towards his child had pleased the captain, and though the youth knew it not, was the cause of his first promotion. So that now the old man has retired from business, Henry Wells is captain, and Grace Hume is, according to polite parlance "Mrs. Capt. Wells." In fact, the honest sailor is one of the richest men in the Crescent City, and he owes in part his prosperity to his politeness in crossing the street.

Said an old preacher once, "Fellow sinners, if you were told that by going to the top of those stairs yonder (pointing to a rickety pair at one end of the church), you might secure your eternal salvation, I really believe hardly any of you would try it. But let any man proclaim that there was five hundred dollars up there for you, and I'll be bound there would be such a getting up stairs as you never did see."

The Critical Period of Human Life.

From the age of forty to that of sixty, a man who properly regulates himself may be considered in the prime of life. His matured strength of constitution renders him almost impervious to the attacks of disease, and all his functions are in the highest order. Having gone a year or two past sixty, however, he arrives at a critical period of existence, the river of Death flows before him, and he remains at a stand still. But athwart this river is a viaduct, called "The Turn of Life," which, if crossed in safety, leads to the valley of "Old Age," round which the river winds, and then flows beyond without a boat or causeway to affect its passage. The bridge is, however, constructed of fragile materials, and it depends upon how it is trodden whether it bends or break. Gout, Apoplexy, and other bad characters are also in the vicinity to waylay the traveler, and thrust him from the pass, but let him gird up his loins, and provide himself with perfect composure. To quote a metaphor, the "Turn of Life" is a turn either into a prolonged walk or into the grave. The system and power, having reached their utmost expansion, now begin either to close like flowers at sunset, or break down at once. One injudicious stimulant, a single fatal excitement, may force it beyond its strength; whilst a careful supply of props, and the withdrawal of all that tends to force a plant, will sustain it in beauty and in vigor until night has nearly set in.

Anecdote of Dr. Webster.

In 1774, Dr. Webster was a popular preacher of the Kirk of Scotland, in Edinburgh. Business brought him to London, and one day, when passing the House of Lords, his curiosity induced him to make an effort to step in and see them. None were admitted without an order, except noblemen's servants. Webster, being ignorant of the rule, requested admittance.

"What lord do you belong to?" asked the doorkeeper.

"To the Lord Jehovah," replied Webster.

"To the Lord Jehovah?" queried the doorkeeper. "I have kept door here seven years, but have not heard of such a lord. Jack," said he to his fellow-keeper on the front steps, "here's chap who says he belongs to the Lord Jehovah; do you know such a lord?"

"Never heard of him," said Jack.

"But," said the doctor, "there is such a lord."

"Pass' im in," said Jack, "I s'pose its some poor Scotch lord."

This occurred at a period when there was not one in twenty of all the manufacturing and rural districts in England, who could read the Bible or write his own name. Sabbath schools were introduced in 1773. Now the people are very intelligent, and can not only read and write, but have found out who the "Lord Jehovah" is.

ONE of the high callings of journalism, Mrs. Stowe writes thus: "This constant daily self-asserting literature of newspapers and periodicals is acting on us tremendously for good or for ill. It has access to us at all hours, and gets itself heard as a preacher cannot, and gets itself read as scarcely any book does. It ought to be entered into solemnly in any pulpit, for it is [illegible] a great power."

A NEW YORK schoolmaster, in trying to explain passive verbs to a class, said to one of the boys "Now observe: if I say John was beaten," what is John's relation to the verb?"—"John gets licked," answered the boy. "No, no, you blockhead; what does John do?" "I dun know unless he hollers!"

DEMOCRACY
THE UNION MUST BE PRESERVED

More Thieving.

Steal, steal, grab, grab, is the motto of that bleared eyed specimen of debased humanity, Butler, sirnamed the "Beast." He plundered the widows and Orphans of New Orleans, and made himself rich by imprisoning wealthy men, whom he pleased to term rebels, and then made them pay heavy ransoms. He did everything that was mean and rascally to fill his coffers while in the United States Army, and when the war went up, transferred himself with all his reeking, hideous venality to our modern Sodom, Washington—where he now reigns, the pet of the nation, the friend of Grant, the champion of cadet peddling, the protector of thieves and the chief of all. His latest exploit is the purloining of a couple of mirrors from the Treasury Department. He borrowed them (see his mode of doing things) to decorate his parlor for an evening entertainment and forgot to return them. Oh! matchless man! he is the very quintessence of Radical progress and the prototype of his party.

Mr. Conkling For War.

It is as well that it should be known that Senator Conkling, of New York, was the special henchman of the administration in forcing the bayonet election bill through the Senate on the midnight of Friday week. This Senator, since his prospect of a re-election by a fair vote is departed, has shown himself a carpet-bagger at heart. He would reconstruct the Empire State, stuff its ballotboxes, injure its trade, and shoot down its people to air his platitudes and twiddle his forelock in the Senate for another form. In such men as Drake and Brownlow malignity is to be expected—apart from them there would be no such men—and in the carpet-bag tribe proper it is not surprising that the same low and gross natures which make them pilferers should convert them into the advocates of violence at need; but that a Senator lawfully elected, of a State so illustrious and patriotic as this, should at one bound reveal himself as bad as the worst of these creatures is astounding. Fancy how little a thing in a large city may precipitate a collision with a menacing armed force, what an instant and wholesale disruption of order and destruction of property would ensue, and how fast and far the turmoil would spread, and then consider the moral guilt of the man who heaps up the provocation and hammers away with all his strength to strike out the fatal spark. Senator Conkling does this. He is the avowed enemy of the Empire State, irrespective of party; for the trouble he has done so much to bring about, though it is prepared for party ends, will not stop with party lines. He is a carpet-bagger at heart, and Senator Blair well told him as much in the Senate debate on the bayonet election bill.

The Senator from New York, the chosen champion of this measure, is a most appropriate person to urge this bill, he having, against the wishes of his own people voted to propose the fifteenth amendment, knowing as he did that the people of his State had decided against it. He practically disfranchised the vast majority in his State who voted against negro suffrage. They were defrauded of their votes. He might with equal propriety have denied and abridged their right to the suffrage. He ought to be the first to suffer under the penalties of his own bill for defrauding his own constituents of the right to vote against the fifteenth amendment. In effect their ballots were fraudulently counted against their own wishes. What does he care about the sanctity of the ballot-box? How nearly does it touch him or any of those Senators who stained their hands with a similar transaction?

Mr. Conkling is not so old but that he will live to regret, all the more poignantly [illegible] needlessly, that he ever gave occasion to so well merited a rebuke as [illegible].—N. Y. World.

Here is where the shoe pinched the Prussian foot. The battle of Jena, fatal to the Prussian monarchy, was fought on October 14, 1806. About twenty thousand Prussians were killed in the battle, and more than thirty thousand taken prisoners. The King fled from the field, the Duke of Brunswick received his death-wound upon it, all the principal fortresses surrendered to the victorious French, who, on the 25th of October, 1806, entered Berlin, into which Napoleon I. made his triumphal entry on the following day. History has thus repeated itself, with inversions, and the Germans lie upon their laurels and chant orisons to St. Gambrinus now that Jena has been avenged.

Washington Astonished.

A FAMOUS TEAM AND A FAMOUS DOCTOR ON PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE—THE DRILLED BAYS—OVER $1,500 A DAY FOR ADVERTISING.

From the Washington Chronicle.

Perhaps one of the greatest novelties which greet the eye of the pedestrian passing along Pennsylvania avenue is the daily appearance of a beautiful Oxford coach drawn by five elegant bay horses gaily caparisoned. One can but gaze, as far as the eye can reach, and feel filled with admiration at the movement and precision of the horses and the manner in which they heed the ribbons held evidently by the prince of drivers. This team belongs to Dr. Helmbold, of New York, and cost him years of trouble and much expense to fit out. All are bays, of the same height, movement, and grace. As the lead horse places his foot so do the rest, and when he starts off the others follow. Should his left foot take the first step, the left foot of the entire team keeps pace therewith reminding one of a well drilled veteran regiment of many years service.

The team is driven five-in hand, three tandem and two at the wheel, and was brought hither by the Doctor at much expense, to take part in our Grand Carnival festivities.

Those who witnessed the open avenue scene, cannot but call to mind this beautiful turnout as it passed up and down the thoroughfare and really was the feature of that portion of the exercises. Dr. Helmbold left Washington city some twenty years ago, with scarcely the means to secure him transportation to New York. A resolute will to succeed, energy and perseverance in business, and the free use of printer's ink, enables him to return and secure for himself and wife the most sumptuous and elegant apartments at the Arlington Hotel. He is also accompanied by his child, Miss Aldama of Cuba and Gen. Ryan of Cuban notoriety, in addition to these, his drivers, footmen, grooms, and body-servants, forming a retinue fit to accompany a crowned head.

One would imagine Helmbold's vanity, perhaps induced him to make this show. Not so, however. He is a plain rather handsome and social man of the world, has an acute and keen perception of human nature, is easily approached, genial and good natured, and just such a man as those making his acquaintance would at once set down as a whole-souled, jolly good fellow. He makes money fast and spends it like a prince; entertains his friends sumptuously; takes pleasure in showing them his handsome team, and is keen enough to appreciate the value of advertising, his daily expenses for this item alone amounting to the almost incredible sum of $1,500 per day.

The Doctor likes the city of Washington and declares the capital shall never be moved. He seems well pleased with success of our carnival, and predicts that at the next held a grander success than even the one which has just taken place will be the result. And yet, amid all his pleasures, and the endeavors to please those who visit him he never neglects his business. Daily he is in receipt of telegrams from his mammoth stores in Philadelphia and New York, and gives the personal direction of the shipping of his goods to all parts of the world. He has agencies established in Europe South America, and Asia, and hardly a vessel sails for a foreign port without taking out large invoice of Helmbold's Buchu.

Yesterday, the Doctor, with a few friends visited Mount Vernon and to day propose to visit all the points of interest in and around Washington. He will leave for his home in New York on Monday, and in the meantime is always ready to extend a cordial and hospitable welcome to all who call upon him; and give them an opportunity to ride behind his twenty thousand dollar team.

That full occupation for the mind, without overtaxing it, is a good preventive of suicide, has long been held by investigators. In corroboration of this is the fact now stated that only five suicides were committed in Paris during the siege—an unparalleled falling-off of self-murder in that city.

Payment of the Paris War Indemnity.

Paris (February 18) Cor. London Daily News.

The war indemnity exacted of the city of Paris, amounting to 200,000,000 francs (£8,000,000 sterling), is in course of liquidation, Last Monday the sum total was conveyed to Versailles, according to agreement. It was composed of drafts upon Berlin to the amount of one-half, and the other half of notes of the Bank of France, inclosed in two iron chests. The Prussian receivers wanted to check the amount, notwithstanding that the seals were intact, a fact to which their attention was directed, as a guarantee of the integrity of the contents. In return a sum of 50,000,000 of francs in notes was handed over to the French Commissioners, to be exchanged—still according to the Convention—against 30,000,000 in gold and 20,000,000 in silver. The French Commissioner insisted upon the verification of the 50,000,000 returned into his hands. On Tuesday the Bank of France remitted 7,000,000 in silver. The Prussian agents proceeded to count out the amount; but perceiving the operation would require too much time (at the rate of 1,000 a minute a man would need 116 consecutive hours to perform this arithmetical feat), they contented themselves with weighing the coin. On Wednesday last, 7,000,000 more were handed over to them, which the Prussian controllers were condescending enough to take upon trust. On Thursday, the balance of 6,000,000 was paid and to-day the 30,000,000 (francs always) in gold will pass into their hands. This enormous sum has been drawn by the Bank of France its branch at Brest.

MISSOURI.

TERRIBLE AND DESTRUCTIVE HURRICANE—

FEARFUL LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

St. Louis, March 8.—A terriffic hurricane passed over a portion of East St Louis between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. The wind first came from the southeast, accompanied by a brisk shower but suddenly veered to the southwest.

It came with a fury and force never before witnessed in this latitude. It first struck the elevator on the bank of the river, and took part of its roof off and passing in a due northeast direction it totally demolished the freight depot of the St. Louis and Vandalia Railroad, eight hundred feet long by one hundred high, the freight and passenger depot of the Northeastern Railroad, two freight depots, a portion of the passenger depot and ticket office, and the large round-house of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, the car house scale office, freight office and part of one of the freight depots of the Ohio and Mississippi Road, the freight and passenger depots of the Toledo and Wabash Road, and a number of dwelling houses in the vicinity.

A portion of the roof of the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Depot was blown off, and nearly all the derricks and other appliances used in the construction of the bridge were torn from their places and blown into the river. Everything, in fact, within a space of from 200 to 300 yards wide was actually torn to pieces. A train of cars, including a 30 tons locomotive, was blown from the track and hurled about forty feet into a slough. Another train of thirteen cars, laden with grain, was overturned and smashed, and one car blown into the river

A train coming in on the Terre Haute Road, when at Brooklyn, three miles north of East St. Louis, was blown from the track, and about forty cars standing on a side track of the Toledo and Wabash and Chicago and Alton Railroad about nine miles out, were overthrown. The large round-house of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, after being blown down caught fire from an engine inside, and was burned. The engineer of the locomotive was burned to death. The number of killed and wounded cannot be stated to-night, but seven are known to be killed, and between thirty and forty seriously wounded, some dangerously, and a good many more slightly injured. It is believed a number of persons still buried beneath the ruins The scene is frightful. Houses are torn to fragments, others are unroofed and upset, and still others are carried bodily from their foundations. Scarcely a building, or tree, or anything else within the track of the storm is standing The wreck and rain is complete. The pecuniary losses are estimated as follows:—

Chicago and Alton Railroad, $500,000: Ohio and Mississippi, $200,000: Toledo and Wabash $125,000, St Louis and Vandalia $50,000; South Eastern $30,000; Wiggins Ferry Company $25,000.

The steamboats lying on the eastern side of the river are seriously damaged.

MR. L. H. MILLER,

Dear Sir:—In justice to you we add another testimonial to the superiority and just reputation of your Safes. The unfortunate fire of Friday night last, was so destructive as to leave nothing of our entire stock or business property, except the safe and its contents, which was in the back part of the second floor in the hottest part of the fire, and was severely tested. The appearance of the Safe shows the ordeal through which it has passed, and when opened this morning, in presence of a number of gentlemen, its contents, all my valuable books and papers, were handed me as good as put there before the fire. The test was a severe one, and I am surprised that my books and papers did not show some damage; but the perfect condition they are in shows plainly that the powers of endurance you claim for the Safe had hardly been called into requisition. Your Safes are justly entitled to the confidence of the business community, and we shall take pleasure in recommending them to all wanting a perfectly reliable article.

Remain, yours truly,
EBHART, LOWENBACH & CO.

One Thousand Dollars is offered for a Safe that has been as severely tested as the above, and the contents in as perfect condition.

Carbolic Tablets.

PREPARED BY DR. WELLS.

The most important discovery of the age is this wonderful Healing and Cleansing agent for all diseases or weakness of the Respiratory organs, Sore Throat, Sudden Cold, Hoarseness, Catarrh, Asthma, Dryness of Throat or Windpipe, diseases of the Lungs and for all irritation of the mucous membrane.

All vocalists and public speakers who speak and sing without effort, use these Tablets; their effect in clearing the voice is simply astonishing as can be shown by numerous certificates.

DR. WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

act directly on the mucous membrane and should be promptly and freely taken in all exposure or violent change of weather, as they equalize the Circulation of the Blood and thus ward off all tendency to colds and Lung difficulty.

The proprietors would say, all first class medicines have their imitations, and they would CAUTION the public against imposition by having other medicines thrust upon them in place of these admirable Tablets.

LOCAL ADVERTISER.

SATURDAY MORNING, Mar. 11, 1871.

This classicussical town now has five human bipeds called by courtesy, Editors.

The Bachelor tells of a fellow who laughed like a mule at the Concert on the 20th of last February. We thought it was a calf.

Tumbling—the water over the dam at Mr. Humphreys' mill, and the price of eggs.

If you want to please a newspaper man, learn the art of making a long story short, before calling upon him.

The Chattanooga Times asks:—"Where are we drifting?" It would be profane in us to say.

An "Improved Nursing Apparatus" is advertised. We don't believe the old way can be improved much. There are some things that were about complete at the beginning.

Circuit Court.—The Circuit Court for Wicomico County will meet on the 27th instant. We are informed that the Docket is unusually large, and the session is likely to prove a long one.

What's the matter with Dipthong Æ? Who's got your marbles sonny? Poor fellow—he has a load on his stomach. Take a dose of Ipicac Dipthong, and throw it up—if you don't it might kill you.

An Item.—We will state for the benefit of those who may not be aware of the fact, that we have been favored with beautiful moon-light nights recently.

Farming.—The recent mild weather has induced many of the farmers in this County to begin plowing their grounds. Many are sowing oats and planting early potatoes.

Maryland State Lines.—We call the attention of our readers to the well written communication published on our first page to-day, on the State lines.

The Horse.—Prof. Reardon was in town this week lecturing on the horse, and giving instructions for the cure of diseases incident to that noble animal.

Baptizing.—Last Sunday a large concourse of people assembled on the banks of Humphreys' mill pond to witness the immersion of two persons. The solemn right was performed by Rev. O. F. Flippo of Dover, Del.—The ceremonies were very impressive.

Found Dead.—Last Tuesday evening, Mr. Arthur Lankford, residing with Mr. Gillis Anderson near Forktown, went out to the stables to feed the horses, and remained so long that it excited the surprise of the inmates of the dwelling. They accordingly went in search of him and found him in the fodder house cold in death.

Distinguished Visitor.—Hon. Geo. Vickers, our worthy Senator, paid our town a visit this week. To his credit it may be said that he is "instant in season" in upholding the doctrines under which our prosperity flourished, and in combatting the venality now existing. His speeches show the fruits of his deep and laborious work. He has been true to himself and country.

Explosion.—About nine o'clock on Wednesday morning, the new patent Fan, used to free the saw and planeing machines from the accumulated dust, exploded and completely demolished the case in which it was located. The explosion was of great violence. The machine was only put up for an experiment and if it succeeded, was to be adopted. The engine was running at the time, under 80 lbs of steam and the explosion is attributable to great centrifugal force of the blade loosening the bolt by which it was held.

The New Paper.—The Bachelor put in its appearance on time last Wednesday morning. The paper is quite neat in appearance and the matter contained in it is interesting. The motto is "Free and Fearless"—we trust they may be able to fight it out on that line. The columns of The Bachelor, according to the Salutatory, are open to free discussion of both sides of political questions.

The editors, G. W. M. Cooper and C. F. Holland Esqrs., are gentlemen of ability, and we take pleasure in welcoming them into the editorial ranks.

Steam Mill Enterprise.—The mill business, which has long been one of the principal branches of industry in this county seems to be increasing rapidly. For quite a number of years, water mills were, with two or three exceptions, only employed to cut lumber—but of late years quite a number of Steam Mills have been put up.—Among these we will mention the large saw and planeing mill erected last year by Mrs. M. E. Williams.—This mill is now entirely finished and is said to be one of the most complete and valuable mills on the Peninsula. Messrs S. & F. Hitch, we learn, are now building a Steam Mill at Rockawalking, about four miles from Salisbury. This certainly looks like progress, and argues well for the enterprise of our people.

The little boys in Salisbury are amusing themselves with tops.

Banquet.—Last Wednesday evening a banquet was given in the Peninsular House in honor of Mr. Popp.

Town Commissioners.—The third day of April next is the time set apart for the election of Commissioners for the Corporation of Salisbury. As yet we have not heard much talk about a ticket.

Completed.—Mr. Popp, U. S. Engineer, has completed the survey of the head waters of the Wicomico river, and departed. His report will be very favorable, and it is quite probable that we shall get the appropriation, though it may be a long time coming.

Festival.—The festival held in the Court Room on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, was well attended and proved a success. The tables were beautifully decorated, and the viands well prepared. A considerable sum of money was realized.

Brought Suit.—The Trustees of the "New County Bond" have instituted suit against the signers of the bond. We cannot say when the trial will take place. Able council has been retained by both sides and the trial will probably be very interesting.

Rum Bridge.—There is a bridge near the Trappe in this county that bears the oderous appellation of "Rum Bridge" It took its name from the dropping of a bottle of rum by an old toper who was passing over it one day. The bottle was broken and the sot lost his liquor. It became a standing joke, and the bridge has been known by that name ever since.

In behalf of the ladies of the M P. Church, I desire to thank the public for their kind and liberal patronage of the Festival. The gross proceeds of which, amounted to about $200. I will also take occasion to express their regret at not being able to procure Crisfield oysters, as published on the handbills, as the oysters were bought and empty barrels sent to Crisfield per agreement, but neither barrels or oysters have come to hand.

L. J. CATHELL,
Chairman of Building Committee.

PENINSULAR ITEMS.

SOMERSET COUNTY.

Mr. Hance Lawson has been appointed Collector of Customs at Crisfield.

Among the several gentlemen who have been mentioned as candidates for the gubernatorial office next fall, the name of Dr. George R. Dennis, of this county, is quite prominent.

On the 5th inst., Mr. Williamson, living near Princess Anne, was attacked with an epileptic fit, and fell in the fire, inflicting a serious burn on the hand and arm.

WORCESTER COUNTY.

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the judgment below, in the "ditch case," in favor of Peter L. Davis.

An adjourned term of the Circuit Court was held in Snow Hill on the 6th inst.

DORCHESTER COUNTY.

The Democrat & Herald has been purchased by the Editor of the News. We understand that the two will be consolidated.

A meeting of the friends of the Seaford and Georgetown Railroad, took place last week, in Cambridge, the object being to obtain subscriptions to the stock.

CECIL COUNTY.

On the 1st inst., James E. Murdock, gave an entertainment of his readings at Elkton. His selections were from Othello, Pickwick and miscellaneous pieces.

On the 6th inst., Miss Grace Greenwood delivered a lecture at Elkton.—Subject—"The Aeroic in Common Life."

Charles Cutler, residing at Pilot Town, while engaged in shelling corn on Saturday last, had his left arm broken.

Correspondence.

SHARPTOWN, March 9, 1871.

MESSRS EDITORS:

Thinking that a little news now and then from Sharptown, might be acceptable, I have mustered my pen and ink and paper, and propose to give you an inkling of the state of affairs in this neighborhood. I shall necessarily be brief, for I have not much to chronicle.

From present indications, the Sharptown Circuit of the M. E. Church, will be divided at the next meeting of the Wilmington Conference, which will convene at Dover, Delaware, on the 8th instant.

The raging Nanticok is just now becoming an object of deep interest to the inhabitants of this region. Cause—shad and herring are beginning to be taken in considerable numbers.—Our fishermen expect to do a good business this season.

The Marine Railway is doing a thriving business at this time. Several vessels are up for repairs, and a new schooner is being built.

The health of the people is good, and to use that familiar but very expressive pair of initials, everything is O. K. More soon.

Yours &c.,
PERIT.

FORKTOWN, March 9, 1871.

MESSRS EDITORS:—

The time before me is very limited, consequently I must be brief. The beautiful spring has opened—the golden sun rays are adorning the Earth—vegetation begins to put forth, and all nature seems animated with the soft and genial influences. This leads us to think that the Spring will be forward, and doubtless heavy crops will be reaped this year. The few years previous have given us meagre crops—we now trust a kind Providence will smile on our efforts, and fill our barns with plenty.

The health of our citizens, with a few exceptions, continues favorable, yet in the midst of life we are in death.

Last evening, Mr. Arthur Langford, residing at Mr. Gillis Anderson's just after eating a hearty supper, went to the granery as usual to feed the stock, and remaining longer than usual, was looked after, and found dead in the granery loft. Died, as many suppose, from heart disease.

The citizens of Sharp's Point, are beginning to feel quite buoyant again. Rock and shad are in the river, a few of which have been captured.

The debates in the School House at Zion, are flourishing. The gentlemen are very actively keeping up a sharp fire. A late challenge was accepted and bravely fought—rather hard to decide who were the victors—much credit due to both sides.

THE LIVING AMONG THE DEAD.

It is a shame to see the miserable condition of the M. Church yard here. The ground is literally ploughed up by hogs—which have daily access to the yard, and are committing ravages, such as rooting the graves &c. It is to be hoped that the friends of the buried dead will come forward and remedy this evil. How many wives, fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers have we buried there, shame to suffer such ravages to pass unnoticed.

CHASE.

LLOYD—BAILEY.—On the 8th inst. at Green Hill by the Rev. Ker. Mr. George W. Lloyd to Miss Annie E. Bailey, both of this county.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DO NOT DO IT in fact you must not do it. It would be wrong for any lady to attempt to purchase clothing for her sons, or gentlemen for themselves, without first examining the large and superior stock at Rockhill & Wilsons, and if they do not find it superior in quality, cut, make and trimmings, and at lower price than any other clothing establishment in the city, don't purchase. Our beautiful and substantial all-wool heavy cloth and cassimere suits, for fall and winter, which are going off by thousands, both in the city and country, all for $15, coat, vest and pants. They astonish the trade to understand how we furnish them at the price. It is hardly necessary to say anything in regard to our customer department that is so well and favorably known that every gentleman in the city is posted.

DIVISION STREET,
Salisbury, Md,

Dealer in Dry Goods, Groceries, Hats and Caps, Boots & Shoes, Notions, Lamps &c., has now on hand a full supply of everything in his line, and invites the attention of the public to the fact that he is selling his goods cheap for cash. He is also agent for the patent non-explosive Coal Oil Lamp—which is certainly an elegant piece of mechanical skill and ingenuity, apart from its value as an illuminator.

It gives a better light than gas—Consumes less oil than any other lamp, and it cannot be exploded with coal oil or Benzine. It is decidedly the best lamp ever invented, and will pay for itself in a few months by the mere saving of oil. We would advise our readers to pay Mr. Gordy a visit and examine this lamp.

OCTOBER, 15th, 1870.

WM. GORDY,

Dear Sir:—I have been using the Non-explosive lamp for several months in my family, and think it even excels what it is recommended to be.

Yours Respectfully,
GEORGE RIALL.

"TIRED NATURE'S Sweet Restorer, Balmy Sleep." But there are times when this "Renewer of Strength" is denied us, times when our minds and bodies have been so over-worked and are so worn out that we "woo the drowsy God in vain." The Peruvian Syrup, (an Iron Tonic,) renews our strength and makes our rest sweet and refreshing.

ADVERTISING will not sell worthless medicines long, as many persons have doubtless discovered, but a medicine that recommends itself, as Simmons' Liver Regulator does on trial, only requires to be kept before the public to insure success.

Dr. SCHENCK advises Consumptives to go to FLORIDA IN WINTER.

Having for the last thirty-five years devoted my whole time and attention to the study of lung diseases and consumption, I understand fully the course that ought to be pursued to restore a tolerably bad case of diseased lungs to healthy soundness. The first and most important step is for the patient to avoid taking cold, and the best of all places on this continent for this purpose in winter, is Florida, well down in the State, where the temperature is regular, and not subject to such variations as in more Northern latitudes. Palatka is a point I can recommend. A good hotel is kept there by Peterman. Last winter I saw several persons there whose lungs had been badly diseased, but who, under the healing influence of the climate and my medicines, were getting well.

One hundred miles further down the river is a point which I would prefer to Palatka, as the temperature is more even and the air dry and bracing. Mellonville and Enterprise are located there. I should give a decided preference to Mellonville. It is two miles from river or lake, and it seems almost impossible to take cold there. The tables in Florida might be better, and patients complain at times but that is a good sign, as it indicates a return of appetite, and when this is the case they generally increase in flesh, and then the lungs must heal.

Jacksonville, Hibernia, Green Cove, and many other places in various parts of Florida, can be safely recommended to consumptives in winter. My reasons for saying so are that patients are less liable to take cold there then where there is a less even temperature, and it is not necessary to say that where a consumptive person exposes himself to frequent colds he is certain to die shortly. Therefore my advice is, go well down into the State out of the reach of prevailing east winds and fogs. Jacksonville, or almost any other of the localities I have named, will benefit those who are troubled with a torpid liver, a disordered stomach, deranged bowels, sore throat or cough, but for those whose lungs are diseased a more southern point is earnestly recommended.

For fifteen years prior to 1869, I was professionally in New York, Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia every week, where I saw and examined on an average five hundred patients a week. A practice so extensive, embracing every possible phase of lung disease, has enabled me to understand the disease fully, and hence, my caution in regard to taking cold. A person may take vast quantities of "Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills," and yet die if he does not avoid taking cold.

In Florida, nearly everybody is using Schenck's Mandrake Pills, for the climate is more likely to produce bilious habits than more northern latitudes. It is a well established fact that natives of Florida rarely die of consumption, especially those of the southern part. On the other hand, in New England one third, at least, of the population die of the terrible disease. In the Middle States it does not prevail so largely, still there are many thousands of cases there. What a vast percentage of life would be saved if consumptives were as easily alarmed in regard to taking fresh colds as they are about scarlet fever, small pox, &c. But they are not. They take what they term a little cold, which they are credulous enough to believe will wear off in a few days. They pay no attention to it, and hence it lays the foundation for another and another still, until the lungs are diseased beyond all hope for cure.

My advice to persons whose lungs are affected even slightly is, to lay in a stock of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Schenck's Seaweed Tonic and Schenck's Mandrake Pills and go to Florida. I recommend these particular medicines because I am thoroughly acquainted with their action. I know that where they are used in strict accordance with my directions they will do the work that is required. This accomplished, nature will do the rest. [illegible] or cold, cough or night sweats, and then advises the patient to walk or ride out every day, will be sure to have a corpse on his hands before long.

My plan is to give my three medicines, in accordance with the printed directions, except in some cases where a freer use of the Mandrake Pills is necessary. [illegible]

[illegible]

So far as the Mandrake Pills are concerned, everybody should keep a supply of them on hand. They act on the liver better than calomel, and leave none of its hurtful effects behind. In fact they are excellent in all cases where a purgative medicine is required. If you have partaken too freely of fruit and diarrhoea ensues, a dose of the Mandrakes will cure you. If you are subject to sick headache, take a dose of the Mandrakes and they will relieve you in two hours. If you would obviate the effect of a change of water, or the too free indulgence in fruit, take one of the Mandrakes every night or every other night, and you may then drink water and eat watermelons, pears, apples, plums, peaches or corn, without the risk of being made sick by them. They will protect those who live in damp situations against chills and fevers. Try them. They are perfectly harmless. They can do you good only.

I have abandoned my professional visits to Boston and New York, but continue to see patients at my office, No. 15 N. SIXTH Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged five dollars. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not. But I desire it distinctly understood that the value of my medicines depends entirely upon their being taken strictly according to directions.

In conclusion, I will say that when persons take my medicines and their systems are brought into a healthy condition thereby they are not so liable to take cold, yet no one with diseased lungs can bear a sudden change of atmosphere without the liability of greater or less irritation of the bronchial tubes.

Full directions in all languages accompany my medicines, so explicit and clear that any one can use them without consulting me, and can be bought from any druggist.

DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cogwheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

The former Editor of this paper, who purchased a Washer and Wringer, thus testifies as to their value:

We can knowingly recommend these machines to be just what their manufacturer represents them. We have had them in regular use in our own family for over six months, and we find that all the really hard labor and drudgery of washing is entirely dispensed with by their use. Washing is a neat and pleasant employment for a lady with one of Doty's Washing Machines and Wringers, and we have thought that a millionaire, with no dependent heirs on whom to bestow his fortune, would become one of the greatest benefactors of his race by endowing a fund with which to give one of these Washing Machines to the thousands of overtasked washerwomen which we have in our land. Notice the liberal offer made by Mr. Browning in his advertisement. There is no deception in this offer, and we would be willing to guarantee its fulfilment to the letter. Let every family which can possibly do so buy Doty's Washing Machine and Wringer.

PRICES—A Fair Offer.

If the Merchants in your place will not furnish, or send for the Machines, send us the retail price, Washer $14, Extra Wringer $9, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to place where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.

THE TWO-HEADED GIRL.

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH.

[From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

[NOTE—Any trifling irregularity that the reader may observe in the following biography, regarding the occasional mixture of the singular and plural numbers, is to be accounted for on the ground that the author himself is uncertain which is correct—the subject being of such an excessively bewildering nature—and therefore uses both numbers, sure, at least, of one of them being right.]

These remarkable girl are a native of Africa. A land where, if Bishop Heber is to be believed, "sunny fountains" are in the constant habit of "rolling down on golden sands," and a variety of other phenomena too numerous to mention are likewise visible to the naked eye of a careful observer.

At their birth she were the wonders of the peaceful Caffir village on the banks of the Congo river, where their parents resided. The aged chief who patriarchally presided over this truly rural town, when he first beheld her wonderful forms, observed, "If she don't Caffir her heads off with croup in the days of her infancy, they Congo to every quarter of the globe, charging a quarter for people to look at her."

As might have been supposed, the enraged populace rose en masse and slew the hoary sinner who thus desecrated their most sacred instincts with his depraved and dreadfully bewildering puns. In India at least, in the Punjaub, such conduct might have been overlooked, but the Africans were relentless.

Of the youth of our precious heroine little is known. A rumor has reached us that a young African Prince (supposed to have been the Bey of Bengal), undeterred by fear of a possible action for bigamy, proposed for her hand. The rumor adds that he was so confused by her answer—one head saying "yes," and the other "no,"—that he retreated from her presence in a state of semi-insanity, and rushing to the residence of his bosom friend who happened to bear the name of Albert, said, with wild and uncouth gestures, "Albert, n'answer could have been more perplexing!" and straightway drowned himself in the lake of a somewhat similar name.

When they heard of the Bey's sad fate, our heroines is reported to have given herself up to the wildest grief (the head that said "no," meant "yes" all the while, it seems), and they wandered about the village weeping and wringing her hands, repeating in heart-rending tones, "Ah, me! we can never have a Bey, to love and honor!"

While in this state a slave-dealer met her, and being naturally surprised by their appearance, and seeing at the same time a chance for turning an honest penny, entered into negotiations with their parents for their purchase. As her grief had made them utterly useless for assisting in chores about the house, the parents readily consented to sell out at a comparatively low figure. The dealer joyfully closed the bargain, became the owner, and bore them off in triumph!

In due course of time she came into the possession of the proprietor of a museam, and they now has been for some years the wonders of the civilized world.

—One pound of gold may be drawn into a wire that would extend around the globe. So one good deed may be felt through all time, and cast its influences into eternity. Though done in the first flush of youth, it may gild the last of a long life, and form the brightest and most glorious spot in it.

—The Rev. Dr. Cheever, in a sermon upon the duties of magistrates, says that Nehemiah, who, with Ezra, led the Jews back to Jerusalem from the captivity of Babylon, was the last mayor that Jerusalem ever had and a model for mayors of all other cities—for he ordered all the spirit shops to be closed on the Sabbath, and all who hung about their doors to be indicted.

—Religion is not a duty, it is a necessity. You might as well talk of the duty of breathing, or the duty of being religious. It is a duty to breathe, to be sure, and it is a duty to have the pulse beat; but we do not talk of these things as being duties. It is one of the indispensible necessities that we should breathe, and that our pulse should beat. And I regard religious life as not only a duty, but a necessity. You can not be a man and not be a Christian. And yet everything that makes you relatively better that your fellow-men is an indication that you are so far on the way toward a Christian manhood.

—Train is indifferent as to who leaves the hall while he is speaking. Like Tennyson's Brook, men may come and men may go, he runs on forever.

—Why does a pretty girl need no mirror? Because she is a good looking (g)lass herself.

—A talking match came off at New Orleans for $5. It continued thirteen hours, the rivals being a Frenchman and a Kentuckian. The bystanders and judges were talked to sleep, and when they woke up in the morning they found the Frenchman dead, and the Kentuckian whispering in his ear.

—We are told "the evening wore on," but we were never told what the evening wore on that occasion. Was it the close of a summer's day?

—A gentle heart is like ripe fruit, which bends so low that it is at the mercy of every one who chooses to pluck it, while the harder fruit keeps out of reach.

There is no care of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Blood Spitting, Hoarseness, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used, according to directions. Read the following symptoms, and if you find that your system is affected by any of them you may rest assured that disease has commenced its attack on the most important organs of your body, and unless soon checked by the use of powerful remedies, a miserable life, soon etrminating in death, will be the result.

To Physicians

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation; to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by the druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle); leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of the ingredients, The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added to prevent fermentation upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a syrup—and therefore can be used where fever or inflamation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. . HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist,
of 16 Years' Experience.

[From the Largest Manufacturing Chemist in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. HELMBOLD; he occupied the Drug store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

Firm of Powers and Weightman,

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

Is the great specific for Universal Lassitude; Prostration, &c.

The Constitution once affected with organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or retention, Painfulness, or suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceeding those dangerous remedies, Copavia and Mercury, in all those diseases.

Use Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of however long standing. It is pleasant in taste and oder, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions; procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of Diuretic. HELMBOLD' EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE $1 25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6 50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Patented June 21st, and August 23, 1870.

Reduction of Prices.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing important improvements in their Cabinet Organs, for which Patents were granted them in June and August last. These are not merely meretricious attachments, but enhance the substantial excellence of the instruments.

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Selected Poetry.

THE PORTRAIT OF POE.

BY SARAH HELEN WHITMAN.

From Appleton's Journal.

Slowly I raised the purple folds concealing
That face, magnetic as the morning's beam;
While slumbering memory thrilled at its revealing,
Like Memnon waking from his marble dream.

Again I saw the brow's translucent pallor.
The dark hair floating o'er it like a plume;
The sweet imperious mouth, whose haughty valot
Defied all portents of impending doom.

Eyes planet calm, with something in their vision
That seemed not of earth's mortal mixture born;
Strange mythic faiths and fantasies Elysian,
And far sweet dreams of "fairy lands forlorn."

Unfathomable eyes that held the sorrow
Of vanished ages in their shadowy deeps,
Lit by that prescience of a heavenly morrow
Which in high hearts the immortal spirit keeps.

Oft has that pale poetic presence haunted
My lonely musings at the twilight hour,
Transforming the dull earth-life it enchanted,
With marvel, and with mystery, and with power,

Oft have I heard the sullen sea-wind moaning
Its dirge-like requiems on the lonly shore,
Or listened to the autumn woods intoning
The wild sweet legend of the lost Lenore.

Oft in some ashen evening in October,
Have stood entranced beside a mouldering tomb
Hard by that visionary Lake of Aubur,
Where sleeps the shrouded form of Ulalume.

Oft in still, starlit nights have heard the chiming
Of far-off mellow bells on the keen air.
And felt their molten-golden music timing
To the heart's pulses answering unaware.

Sweet, mournful eyes, long closed upon earth's sorrow,
Sleep restfully after life's fevered dream!
Sleep, wayward heart! till on some cool, bright morrow,
Thy soul, refreshed, shall bathe in morning's beam.

Though cloud and sorrow rest upon thy story,
And rude hands lift the drapery of thy pall,
Time, as a birthright, shall restore thy glory,
And Heaven rekindle all the stars that fall·

A NIGHT OF STORM.

It was a private parlor of a hotel in the Provinces. Two men sat at a well spread breakfast table. The younger had just pushed back from the table with an impatient movement.

"No," he said abruptly, "I cannot eat—I cannot drink. If I believed in presentiments, I should say I felt a warning of something disagreeable, if not horrible."

"Well, then my dear nephew," said the elder "as you do not believe in such things, why not make yourself comfortable and enjoy your breakfast! You are not to start until to-morrow, anyway, you know."

The young man arose from his seat and walked to the window, throwing it open and looking out into the frosty, brilliant, sunshine. The air was intensely cold, and reddened his cheeks instantly. He drew in his head, saying:

"I shall start this morning. There's going to be a storm, and I must go. Will you accompany me to the station The train starts in an hour."

The uncle shivered, and drew his dressing gown closer.

"No," he said, "I'll not leave the house unless I am obliged to, I did not leave England to get frozen by a Canadian winter. I did not know you were so sentimentally foolish. Alice will not thank you for coming a day sooner. Women don't like a bridegroom around when the wedding preparations are going on, no matter how much in love they are. Take my advice and stay here until the time appointed for you to start."

Robert Russell, the young man addressed, listened with grave civility to his companion's words.

What was such advice in camparison with the urgent cries of his whole nature? He had left England three weeks before to claim the woman of his choice, who had been a year in Montreal, whither she had emigrated with her paren's, carrying with her the love and promise of one in whom she believed with utter devotion.

Russell's uncle and adopted father had accompanied him, and now sat smiling at the impatience, the whims of youth.

"There is a storm in the air in spite of this sunlight." Russell said still standing by the window. "I should not enjoy being blockaded in by snow on my journey."

'Probably not, but you might as well accept it in this climate."

"Well, I shall take Alice back to England as soon as possible," Russell said, with his hand on the door. "Good bye, uncle, then—good bye."

Russell was soon speeding from the town, his eyes looking eagerly forward over the vast stretches of snow, as if he would outstrip even the steam which bore him.

He was not half through his journey by rail when from the West, where it had lingered throughout the sunny morning, rose the filmy white veil that is the herald of snow Weather-wise people looked out of the car-windows and shook their heads, saying:

"This will be a hard one. It's just a year ago since the terrible snow that blockaded this train.

Russell, looking, felt his face grow pallid, in spite of his hopes, his youthful energy.

He did not fear the storm while on the cars. He knew they would go to their destination before the storm would be sufficiently advanced to retard them much: but he remembered the twenty miles he must go in a cutter after the last station, for Alice awaited him at the residence of a relative beyond Montreal. Her aunt had persuaded her to have the wedding there, where wealth could give its glow to the ceremony, and what girl could resist such an invitation?

"If she were only in Montreal!" murmured Russell, and the first few flakes began to drift downward.

Soon the air was filled with fine sharp particles. It grew colder instead of apparently so, for the wind rose and whirled the snow fiercely.

It had snowed two hours when Russell alighted at the station in Montreal. It was already dark, save that the gloom was mitigated by a full moon.

He was half be-numbed by cold and sitting so long, but he could not wait. Reason told him that he was a day early, and might easily stay in the city until to morrow; but some feverish, morbid haste urged him on—it was impossible for him to rest quiet a moment.

He stood a few moments by the bright fire in the waiting-room. Then he decided to go to the house occupied by Alice's parents.

Arrived at the house he learned with dismay that Alice had left two or three hours previous. Oppressed with fearful foreboding, he hurried on. taking the road which the servant supposed her driver had selected. As he emerged into the open country the runners of the cutter sank deep into the snow. The horses struggled desperately through the drifts, while the blinding storm and benumbing cold almost overpowered him. To arouse himself from the lethargy which he felt was the precursor of death, he stepped out of the sleigh and plodded on beside it. For hours it seemed to him, he travelled, alternately walking and riding, the animals he drove being almost exhausted

Suddenly with a snort of surprise or alarm, his horses stopped and threw up their heads, their eyes started in their sockets at something indistinct in the gloom ahead.

There is something infecting in the alarm of an animal, and Russell felt his cheeks pale as he moved slowly forward leaving the horses standing there.

A shudder like the first chill of an impending doom, shook the young man as he came upon a cutter overturned in the snow. He was close to it before he could make out what it was. There were no horses attached—that he saw at a glance. but the tugs, cut short off, were fastened there. The snow had blown away from one side of the sleigh, while the other side was deeply imbedded. He leaped upon the runner, and hurriedly pulled the buffalo robes away A fear came upon him such as he had never known before.

At last—it seemed to him so long, though it was hardly a moment—in that snowy moonshine he saw the pallid face of a woman lying motionless among her furs.

With a surprising cry he lifted that beautiful form to his shoulder, and sat down on the cutter. bending his lips to the cold one that could not respond to his caress. And yet she was not dead—a faint breath just sighed across her cheek.

Was it thus he had thought to greet his promised wife? He could not think—he knew nothing but that he had found Alice—and his whole being rose to the resolve that he would save her—that neither snow nor ice, nor cold should take her from him. She was his and he claimed her despite everything.

But he could not linger there; he must be moving on, though ever so slowly.

He bore his burden to his own cutter, taking with him the furs that could not save her after that fearful sleep had begun. His horses walked on again—they needed no guiding—they could find their way better than man could direct.

Anything but intense love would have depaired in that tempest of snow, with that pittiless wind freezing across the earth, raising no glow on the blue-white face against his own.

He roughly chaffed with snow her hands and face, but he soon saw that severer measurers must be tried; that the lethargy was too deep. She dimly felt the deep friction, for she moaned and seemed to shrink from it—a wordless request to be left alone.

Russell had forgotten the cold for himself the snow swept by him unheeded. Again he lifted her in his arms and—stepped out into the snow, letting her stand beside him then trying to make her walk on, knowing that if once she could be roused. she was saved.

At first she fell down helplessly, sank inanimately, with no wish to stir. But in a moment his ceaseless efforts had some effect, and he could compel her to use her muscles slightly, though her head drooped in an unknowing stupor.

Russell felt that he had never suffered before. He thought the pain and sorrows of all his life were crowded into that one night. By slow degrees, almost hopelessly slow, consciousness and horrible suffering returned.

His face was pale and sick, as he know the agonies she endured. But pain was the signal of life, and not now would he despair.

At last she looked at him with recognizing eyes. and when everything else had failed, love reached the fountain of crimson, and sent a wave of its red to her face.

weak, suffering, she reclined upon his arm, unable to move or to speak. Could he keep the life he had saved, through a much longer journey?

When he left the city there were a few houses scattered by the roadside for two or three miles. The dim glimmer of their lights he had seen; but since then he had noticed nothing—it was wide waste through which he was siding, with no lamp of hope held out to him. And the delicate girl but half resuscitated, he thought—oh, how many miles before safety?

An half our passed, and through Russell's brave soul had already darted the first doubt. Human endurance could not last forever, and it was more than he could do to preserve the life he had recalled. In another half hour ice and cold might conquer him. He would die with her; he could not live when that dear face was beneath the sod.

A qurater of a mile further on, and he saw through the storm a dark object by the road side. It was a building of some kind, and it could shelter them. He turned his horses' heads that way and plunged through the snow to the door. There was no door. It was a dismantled log hut with its door gone, and its one little window broken out. But it was better than the fury without, and in another five minutes Alice was sheltered from the wind. With painful and patient fumbling he succeeded in fastening the buffalo skins in front of the doorway, thus forming an insufficient barrier. Then he drew from his pocket his cigar case and matches, and lighting one of the latter looked eagerly around the room in the flickering light. The glance told him that there was an immense fireplace at the side of the hut, and a divine light streamed into his soul at the sight.

As his horses had dragged the cutter to the house, the runner had grated over the top rail of a fence, and the unseen post had nearly upset the light cutter.

The white fingered, fair faced Englishman worked with a power that was like fury; and when at last a ruddy blaze flew up the broad chimney, tears of joy actually started from his eyes.

Exhausted, happy, he knelt at the feet of Alice and hid his face in her hands. With that reviving warmth came a little of strength to her weary soul. She leaned forward, a smile upon her lips and in her eyes, and murmured:

"It was Heaven itself who sent you here. Russell"

Two hours later a gray dawn was struggling through the clouds; a broad strip of blue encircled the west, the wind moaned in lower tones. The old hut was golden with the wood fire; it threw its radiance over the two horses that had been led in, and stood mild and grateful in a corner, their eyes staring at the fire.

Renovated, though weak. with a happiness beyond words, warm in heart. Alice Malcolm greeted her wedding day. She had told her story to Russell—the story of her desertion in the snow. As the storm had come on more furiously, her driver whom she believed trust worthy, announced his intention of returning. She had discovered that he was in a semi-intoxicated state, but she refused to return, and he would not go a step further, and had cut the traces, and, mounting one of the horses left her to her fate.

She did not know when she spoke that miles back, within a few miles of the city, he lay frozen to death; the eddying snow drifting over his body. He had found a fate which his mistress had escaped.

Backward through a vista of happy years, looked Russell and his wife to that night of horror in Canda, when peril revealed to them the full depth of their devotion—the infinitude of their love.

"I'M sitting on the style, 'Mary," as the fellow said when he coolly sat down on his sweetheart's new bonnet.

THE old gentleman whose memory carried him a long way back, is requested to return to his disconsolate friends.

Winter on Mount Washington.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE "FROST WORKS."—AN ENCHANTING SPECTACLE.

The "Frost Work" is one of the most remarkable phenomena of this high altitude. As few have ever seen it, and none have attempted to describe it, and as the causes that produce it are but imperfectly understood, we shall, perhaps, be pardoned if we present some rather crude ideas in regard to it. It is difficult, also, to convey in words any idea of its wonderful form and beauty. From the study given to it last winter, and the opportunities we have had of observing its formation now, we are able to give what seems to us a plausible if not correct theory to account for this, the most plastic of all handiwork of nature.—At our very first observation we see that it forms only when the wind is northward, i. e, at some point between north and west and north and east, and never when the wind is southward. It begins with mere points, on every thing that the wind reaches, on the rocks, on the snow, on the railway, and on every part of the buildings, even on the glass. On the south side it is very slight, as the wind reaches there only eddying gusts. When the surface is rough, the points, as they begin, are an inch or more apart; when smooth, it almost entirely covers the surface at the very beginning; but soon only a few points elongate, so on whatever surface it begins to form, it has very soon the same general appearance, presenting every where the same beautiful, feathery-like forms.—In going up the mountain we do not see it until we get some distance above the limits of the trees; it is nearly a mile before it is seen in its characteristic forms, and it is only immediately about the summit it presents its most attractive features. We notice, also, that it always forms toward the wind, never from it; and the rapidity with which it forms, and the great length of the horizontal masses, are truly wonderful. We placed a round stick, an inch in diameter, in a vertical position, where it was exposed to full force of the wind, and, in less than 2 days, some of the horizontal icicles (we call them icicles for the want of a more appropriate name,) were two feet in length, and scarcely any thicker than the stick itself. They formed on every part of the stick that was exposed, but, of course, some points were much longer than others. They remained several days, but with a change of wind they were blown off. On some of the piles of stones, south of house, these horizontal masses are now more than five feet in length. On the southern exposure, instead of the "Frost Work," there are only masses of pure ice, which have always a peculiar hue of greenish blue. In the early part of December, when the thermometer reached from 25 to 29 degrees, and the wind was southward, the ice formed to the thickness of a foot or more on the telegraph poles near the house. These icy masses are formed evidently by the condensation of the vapor of the atmosphere, as it is not uncommon for it to be above the point of saturation. The "Frost Work" is also formed by the condensation of vapor, but besides the vapor the air must be filled with minute speculæ of ice. As the vapor condenses, these are caught, and thus the horizontal feathery masses are formed. This accounts for the facts that we have observed, namely, that it forms when the wind is northward, and always toward the wind.—Boston Journal.

GENTLE WORDS.—There is a magic power in gentle words, the potency ot which few natures are so icy as wholly to resist.

Would you have your home a cheerful, hallowed spot, within which may ever found that happiness and peace which the world denieth to its votaries? Let no harsh word be uttered within its walls. Speak gently to the wearied husband, who, with an anxious brow, returns from the perplexities of his daily avocations, and let him, in his return, speak gently to the care-worn woman and wife, who amid her never-ending round of little duties, finds rest and encouragement in the sympathy of him she loves. Speak gently to the wayward child; a pleasant smile and a gentle word of kindness will often restore good humor and playfullness. Speak gently to the dependent who lightens your daily toil; kind words insure respect and affection, while the angry rebuke provokes impertinence and dislike.—Speak gently to the aged; many are the trials through which they have passed, and now a little while and they will be missed from their accustomed place; the spirit will have passed to its rest. The remembrance of an unkind word will then bring with it a bitter sting. Speak gently to the erring one; are we not all weak and liable to error?

Temptations of which we cannot judge, may have surrounded him.—Harshness will drive him on the sinful way; gentleness and love may win him back to virtue.

AN illiterate negro preacher said to his congregation: "My bredren, when de fust man Adam was made, he was made ob wet clay, and set up agin de palings to dry." "Do you say," said one of the congregation, "dat Adam was made ob wet clay, an' set up agin de palings to dry?" "Yes sar, I do." "Den who made de palings?" "Sit down, sar," said the preacher, sternly, "such questions as dat would upset any system ob theology."

FREENY & RICHARDSON, Editors & Proprietors.

Saturday, March 18, 1871.

BEN WADE, as all the world knows, visited San Domingo, in company with divers other gentlemen, who were sent down there by Grant, to inquire into the practicability of annexing that Kingdom to the United States. Well, Mr. Wade took a notion one day to take a ride on an ox. Accordingly he mounted his cousin and proceeded through the streets. He finished by having his photograph taken by a native artist—and we presume, the picture will be hung up in some art gallery at Washington, so that all the world may see how a Jackass can ride an ox.

The New Hampshire Election.

The Democrats in New Hampshire have elected a Governor and three Congressmen. They also have a majority in the State Legislature. This is good news indeed, and proves conclusively that the Radical party is fast going "where the woodbine twineth." When New England is turning her back upon Radicalism, it is safe to predict that the better portions of our Country are also preparing to put the knife to the throat of that party. We hopefully look forward to the good time coming, when Grant and his family will leave Washington, and a Democrat shall do the honors of the White House.

Where we are Drifting.

It needs no prophetic eye to see that the American people are on the eve of a political revolution. Every week but strengthens the chain of evidence that has been forming link by link to bind and cast out forever the miscreants who now rule us. This revolution is coming—though slow its course—and we are drifting onward to brighter, happier days. The tide upon which we are drifting, is the tide of Right, Truth and Justice, and the Democratic Ship floats upon its bosom manned by stout hearts and willing hands. This tide is being constantly swollen too, by numerous rivers and streams flowing from all parts of this broad and beautiful country. New Hampshire is the last stream that poured itself into the torrent, and the flight of a little less time than two years will reveal this tide swollen to an overwhelming flood that shall submerge carpet baggers, thieves, land-grabbers, cadet-ship pedlars, bribe takers, military tyrants and the whole mass of rotten corruptionists who now pillage the people,—and they shall be heard of no more forever. With this broad, grand tide we are drifting—and men may come, and men may go—but we'll drift on forever.

But we desire to mention one peculiarity about this tide upon which we are drifting. It never admits a reflux current into its bosom—neither will it mingle its waters with a current that crabs along the shore and deposits its freight bestride a fence built on the treacherous edge of a marsh. No, as well try to mix oil and water as to mingle the waters of this noble and fast rolling tide with a current that moves sluggishly along, carrying with it drift wood, such as Neutrals, Independents, Conservatives and Radicals.

Where are you drifting Mr. Bachelor?

Canada.

MORE TROUBLE IN THE RED RIVER COUNTRY.

Chicago, March 13.—Pembina dates of the 28th ult., give news of another outbreak on the reserve. The First Battalion of Canadian volunteers are in open revolt, and put at defiance their officers and the civil authorities. The present indications are that the Government is defunct, and that all authority has passed into the hands of the Canadian troops stationed at Upper Fort Garry, of whom Dr. Schultz is recognized as the head and leader. Within a few days nominations will be made for members of the Dominion House of Commons. A rising of a soldier's mob is apprehended. All law-abiding citizens look forward with dread to the 5th of March, when the soldiers and Schultz and party propose to celebrate the anniversary of Scott's execution. We are absolutely without law, as the volunteers have taken it into their own hands.

Another letter says the country people cannot visit Winnipeg without a fear of being insulted and abused by the lawless soldiers, and unless an immediate improvement is made in the condition affairs, many people will abandon their farms and fly for refuge to the American side of the boundary. "The village of Pembina is frequently visited by parties of drunken volunteers, who terrify, and frequently abuse the citizens. On the night of the 24th an American citizen, named Andrew Nault, was chased across the international boundary by a party of infuriated soldiers, and who, some distance from the line, was knocked down and savagely beaten by them, left for dead. Mr. Nault was one of the supporters of Riel's Provisional Government of last winter, which is the reason for the assault.

OPENING OF NAVIGATION.

Toronto, March 14.—Telegrams from the lake ports indicate the early opening of navigation. The rivers and harbors are free of ice. Lakes Erie and Huron open well, and the canal is expected to open by the 10th of April.

Steamers are running regularly on the St. Clair river.

Maine.

GREAT FRESHET IN THE ANDROSCOGGIN.

Lewiston, March 14.—The river rose rapidly until midnight, but the flood is now abating. The ice in the river, from Bethel to the rapids, two miles above the city, is jammed into one mass. For two miles from this point the ice field is, in some places, twenty feet thick, and is piled up for many feet at one point in the highway. The subsidence of the water renders it likely that the jam will not break. The bridge over the river here is unsafe, though still travelled. The Mayor of Auburn has issued a notice declaring it unsafe.

The boom of Packard and Conant, on Little Androscoggin, broke yesterday. No logs thus far have slipped out of the Androscoggin above this point. A large number of logs, belonging to the Lewiston Steam Mill Company, were running out of Swift river yesterday.

Cuba.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

Havana, March 13.—A proclamation was issued by Cespedes in January, and one by Igraire Agromarte, February 5. The former signs himself President, and the latter General-in-Chief of the Cuban forces.

Marquis Santa Lucia, who was wounded in the attack on the tower at Pinto, has had an arm amputated.

Dr. Francisco Argilogos, one of the principal promoters of the insurrection, has surrendered.

The steamer Zodiac sailed to-day for New York.

The Diairo, in a leader, says it hopes the preparatory steps toward holding an election in Cuba for Deputies to the Cortes are not far enough advanced to admit of an election. It deprecates the injury done by elections in Porto Rico, and adds that the stability of Spain is insufficient to permit the sending of Cuban Deputies to the Cortes.

GRANT'S FAMILY—TWENTY-SIX ALREADY PROVIDED FOR—HOW MANY MORE IN SIX YEARS?

The Cincinnati Times, a paper that has always identified itself with the Republican party, thus goes for.

"THE TRUCKLING SENATE.

What a truckling Senate! It dare not disobey its master in the White House. Another member of the Grant family was confirmed on Saturday. Cramer, of Kentucky, brother-in-law to his Excellency, was confirmed as Minister to Denmark. It was a nomination unfit to be made—even setting aside the fact that the Grant Family are ruling the whole country—or will likely do so should he go for another term. Just twenty-six members of the family have been provided for in two years. How many more would the six coming years bring to light.

NEW ILLUSTRATED FAMILY PAPER.—We have received the first number of "For Everybody," a new monthly paper, published by Henry H. Sage, Buffalo, New York.

As its name implies, it contains matter of interest to all, young old; Novels and History. Agriculture and Fine Arts Humor and Burlesque, all have their allotted spaces. It is an illustrated paper, and the engravings are carefully selected and admirably executed.

The publisher offers such startling prizes direct to subscribers, and on so new and novel a plan, that few would believe it genuine, were it not so satisfactorily explained and so strongly vouched for by some of the oldest and most responsible houses in the country. Sample copies will be sent on receipt of fifteen cents, and the subscription price is only one dollar and a half per year. Agents are wanted in this vicinity, but to shield the public from imposters, no application will be considered unless well recommended, after which each agent will be furnished with a certificate and a liberal commission allowed. Address Henry H. Sage, 26 Allen street, Buffalo, New York.

A Question of Taste.

The French Relief Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, having applied to the churches for aid, Bishop Whittingham declined, in the following terms:

Messrs. Charles H. Marshall, Chairman; Anson Phelps Stokes, Secretary of the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of New, York, &c.:

Gentlemen—I have the honor to acknowledge your communication of the 9th instant, covering a copy of the pastoral letter of the Bishop of New York to his diocese.

While very heartily sympathizing with the movement for the relief of the suffering French, by contributions from the citizens of the United States, I am not able to perceive, in the past relations of the two countries a justification of special appeal to Church action in the matter, such as might be adduced in behalf of the claims of suffering families and bereaved widows and orphans in the almost equally afflicted German nation. Very respectfully, your friend and servant,

WILLIAM R. WHITTINGHAM,
Bishop of Maryland.

Baltimore, March 10, 1871.

Bishop Whittingham may be quite right in deciding that this is not a case for special appeal to the Church, but that is no reason why he should take the opportunity to manifest his own political feelings or his personal hostility to the French. It is in bad taste, and shows, at least, want of tact, if not a spirit of intolerance. Every one knows the extreme opinions of Bishop Whittingham during the late war. Yet at a time when so many Germans have shown true charity, it would not have been amiss for one, whose profession it is to teach us to love our enemies, and do good to those which despitefully use us, to decline his aid without a sneer.—Baltimore Gazette.

This is a hard, compact paper, like an ordinary book cover, and is saturated with tar and used on the outside of frame buildings, under the clapboards, also under shingles and floors, to keep out damp and cold. MR. L. H. MILLER,

Dear Sir:—In justice to you we add another testimonial to the superiority and just reputation of your Safes. The unfortunate fire of Friday night last, was so destructive as to leave nothing of our entire stock or business property, except the safe and its contents, which was in the back part of the second floor in the hottest part of the fire, and was severely tested. The appearance of the Safe shows the ordeal through which it has passed, and when opened this morning in presence of a number of gentlemen, its contents, all my valuable books and papers, were handed me as good as put there before the fire. The test was a severe one, and I am surprised that my books and papers did not show some damage; but the perfect condition they are in shows plainly that the powers of endurance you claim for the Safe had hardly been called into requisition. Your Safes are justly entitled to the confidence of the business community, and we shall take pleasure in recommending them to all wanting a perfectly reliable article.

Remain, yours truly,
ELHART, LOWENBACH & CO.

One Thousand Dollars is offered for a Safe that has been as severely tested as the above, and the contents in as perfect condition.

Correspondence.

SHARPTOWN, March 10, 1871.

MESSRS EDITORS:

I have a few leisure moments today and will send you a few jottings.

They have in contemplation the building of a brick lime kiln in our place, similar to the one in Seaford, Del. The kiln is designed for the burning of oyster shells.

The office of Dr. J. H. Manns was broken into last Monday night, by some unknown person, and the trunk of R. B. Price was robbed of eighty dollars in greenbacks. This is an unusual occurrence for our quiet village.

We have only one negro resident in this place—an old negro woman. She is the only one that has lived here for several years, except indeed a few hired servants.

The farmers are very busy in this vicinity plowing, grubbing, fencing and planting. We think there is a better prospect of raising a crop than usual.

Yours,
PERIT.

FORKTOWN, March 16, 1871.

Shades of the mighty! can it be
Woman's Rights is after me?

What—ho! Mr. A—— is denouncing his own speech. Has he forgotten the large respectible audience before whom he exploded in wild phantazes of amazing love for the women. Oh lovely woman! Oh Mr. Gillis Anderson Susan B. Anthony! The cold contracted at the Bee robbing has affected your heart and memory. What shall he take Mr. Editor? Shall I apply Croton Oil to his breast or dose him with Ipecac? Perhaps it would be better to blister him, if an emetic be given he might throw up more falsehoods.

Now Mr. Editor, I just desire to recapitulate some of Mr. A's oratorical exploits, and if you will be patient to the last, I will be as brief as possible.

The S. S. Anniversary at Forktown M. E. Church last Christmas, was particularly grand, and continued so, until Mr. Programme called for Anderson in regular order, who responded immediately. As soon as he mounted the stage a great commotion and laughter commenced. Why? the majority of the audience had heard him before, and were satisfied that his speech would come to subracting oughts from oughts, leaving nothing as the remainder. But as regards the Anniversary, it is very gratify to reflect that a large audience were present, and can satisfy the public as to the success of the entertainment. Mr. Programme, Bell Sheep and Doodle Yankee are all among the living, and are well known to the people hereabouts.

As regards the lecture on Weman's Rights—Mr. A. first proposed to speak, and tried to secure the Church for the purpose, but J. B. refused on the ground that he could not speak on any subject without having politics or some trash mixed up with it, which would not do in the Church. He then advised with Mr. Dulany—who told him he could have the School house. "I have something great and grand in this heart of mine that I want the women to hear," says he, how then could Mr. Dulany do otherwise than urge him to let them hear it? But he needed no urging, for Mr. A. considers himself a tremendous orator, and jumps at every opportunity to hold himself up an object of ridicule—though of course he don't know it.—Mr. D—— did not stir, or try to raise a muss—on the contrary he used his influence to prevent any disturbance. "He who will publish a falsehood" says our champion, "would steal." Be careful friend. "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones." Every word published purporting to be your speech was true. This you know—but you are ashamed that such a harrangue ever appeared in print. The audience will bear me out in this and to them I submit my case. Those ugly appellations Mr. Anderson indulges in are hard words to issue from a christian. Deception indeed! It is a strange delusion that so engrosses his mind that he can neither see nor smell. If he could, to-day he would be in possession of good qualities that long since passed from his cranium.—Mr. Anderson is very indignant with me for reporting his speech correctly—and says it is false &c. Why Mr. Editor, at a Sunday School Anniversary held in this village six years ago, he attempted to speak and caused such laughter and uproar that the minister in charge was compelled to request him to take his seat. He says I am trying to deceive the world—not a bit of it. My character stands unimpeached before all honorable and honest men.

The foundation of many of Mr. Anderson's points of attack upon me, is hearsay—now I write from facts and tell the truth about him. Mr. Bell Sheep's political proclivities seem to have quite a place in his memory. It is gratifying to know that Bell Sheep has a political opinion—but I never heard that Mr. A. had an opinion of his own—except indeed, Woman's Rights, and any old doty woman might make that a hobby. I would recommend Mr. A. to send Mr. Creswell a copy of "Woman's Rights," it might be that he at some leisure time would advise him how to get a wife, and save him the vast labor of lecturing for one.

Now Mr. Editor, I might write many things about Mr. A. that would burn into his heart, but I pity him and will not bring up the past. His article, pointed at Mr. Dulany has not injured that gentleman's character in the slightest, and I will not seek in defending Mr. Dulany, to lay open old wounds in the heart of Mr. Anderson.

Now Mrs. Gillis Anderson Susan B. Anthony, don't take on any more.—Be patient—you know the good book contains the biography of a good man named Job, who was a monument of patience. Try then to imitate his example. Don't speak in public any more my dear Mrs. G. A. B. A. you are certainly a failure as a speechist, and from the style of the article in the Bachelor, I should also say as a writist.

TALBOT COUNTY.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL.—On Thursday night the six negroes in room number one, in the Easton jail, attempted to break out, by cutting through the wall under the window next to the street. Sheriff Bennett was at Church at the time, but they were discovered by his man Wash Rogers, who threated to shoot if they did not desist. Wash guarded the prison till Mr. Bennett's return, when the men were put in irons for the night. On Friday morning the jail was repaired and made more secure. The names of the prisoners that occupied that room are, Reese Kennard, John Cavalier Jenkins, Henry Tilghman, Rollins Newman, Jacob Davis, and Robert skinner. Kennard and Jenkins declare that they were not engaged in the attempt to break out.—Easton Star.

DIED.

WARREN.—At his residence on Sunday the 12th inst., Rev. P. Warren, formerly of the Eastern Shore of Va. and late pastor of the 2nd Baptist Church, Washington, D. C.

The deceased was born in one of the counties of Eastern Virginia, where he spent the greater portion of his useful life. He entered the Baptist Ministry at an early age and labored zealously in his holy calling, in the counties of Accomac and Northampton until two years ago, when he accepted a call at Washington. Mr. Warren was a man of stern integrity—possessed a sound, clear mind, and had the reputation of being a thorough theologian. Of his character as a christian and gentleman, we can testify that he possessed all the qualities of mind and heart which characterize the righteous man. He was a fond father, a good husband, and an earnest and successful preacher. During his life he accomplished great good in the Master's service, and many will rise up and call him blessed at the last day. He leaves a large family of children to mourn his loss—two of whom, Mr. L. Dix Warren and Mr. Wm. H. Warren, have resided in Salisbury for the past four or five years.

We deeply sympathize with our afflicted friends—but would remind them that he who has left this world has gone to be with Jesus.

DO NOT DO IT in fact you must not do it. It would be wrog for any lady to attempt to purchase clothing for her sons, or gentlemen for themselves, without first examining the large and superior stock at Rockhill & Wilsons, and if they do not find it superior in quality, cut, make and trimmings, and at lower price than any other clothing establishment in the city, don't purchase. Our beautiful and substantial all-wool heavy cloth and cassimere suits, for fall and winter, which are going off by thousands, both in the city and country, all for $15, coat, vest and pants. They astonish the trade to understand how we furnish them at the price. DIVISION STREET,
Salisbury, Md,

Dealer in Dry Goods, Groceries, Hats and Caps, Boots & Shoes, Notions, Lamps &c., has now on hand a full supply of everything in his line, and invites the attention of the public to the fact that he is selling his goods cheap for cash. He is also agent for the patent non-explosive Coal Oil Lamp—which is certainly an elegant piece of mechanical skill and ingenuity, apart from its value as an illuminator.

It gives a better light than gas—Consumes less oil than any other lamp, and it cannot be exploded with coal oil or Benzine. It is decidedly the best lamp ever invented, and will pay for itself in a few months by the mere saving of oil. We would advise our readers to pay Mr. Gordy a visit and examine this lamp.

OCTOBER, 15th, 1870.

WM. GORDY,

Dear Sir:—I have been using the Non-explosive lamp for several months in my family, and think it even excels what it is recommended to be.

Yours Respectfully,
GEORGE RIALL.

CONSUMPTION,

Its Cure, Its Preventive.

BY J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

MANY a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure.—Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderful efficacious medicines they would not have fallen.

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions of their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. IT is self-assuring self-convincing.

The Sea-weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here then comes the culminating result, and the setting in with all its distressing symptoms of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they.

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver like a clock is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting at last.

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent Father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased but it must be prevented, or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words.

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time."

"As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with great difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength and have grown in flesh ever since.

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton, my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds And for years have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5.00. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions and kind Nature will do the rest excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows; the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a curer of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, $1 50 a bottle, or $7 50 a halfdozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE.

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cog-wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

The former Editor of this paper, who purchased a Washer and Wringer, thus testifies as to their value:

We can knowingly recommend these machines to be just what their manufacturer represents them. We have had them in regular use in our own family for over six months, and we find that all the really hard labor and drudgery of washing is entirely dispensed with by their use. Washing is a neat and pleasant employment for a lady with one of Doty's Washing Machines and Wringers, and we have thought that a millionaire, with no dependent heirs on whom to bestow his fortune, would become one of the greatest benefactors of his race by endowing a fund with which to give one of these Washing Machines to the thousands of overtasked washerwomen which we have in our land. Notice the liberal offer made by Mr. Browning in his advertisement. There is no deception in this offer, and we would be willing to guarantee its fulfilment to the letter. Let every family which can possibly do so buy Doty's Washing Machine and Wringer.

PRICES—A Fair Offer.

If the Merchants in your place will not furnish, or send for the Machines, send us the retail price, Washer $14, Extra Wringer $9, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to place where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.

FARMERS COLUMN.

How to Apply Manure.

Observation and experience should determine the mind of the farmer in regard to the best plan of applying manure, whether to plow it under deep, or leave it on the surface. The advocates of surface manuring speak against manure being turned under too deep, while the advocates of deep manuring charge surface manuring with fertilizing the atmosphere. But there is a medium course, and each theory supported by plausible arguments. However, there are true philosophical principles against burying manure too deeply in the earth. The loss of the saline matter of the manure, by solution and infiltration, will be great in porous soil, and the evaporation, to which so much loss is attributed by those holding opinions adverse to surface manuring, would be only a small drop in the bucket, compared to the loss by solution. In porous soils, it is well known that manure will penetrate to a great depth, and much animal matter may descend beyond the reach of surface-growing plants. Humus is formed by the decay and decomposition of vegetable matter, which, in the philosophy of nature, is manipulated on the surface; hence the rule in the application of manure should be taken from the indications of nature and science. The decay and consumption of one for the nourishment of another. the droppings of animals and defoliation of trees and plants, are all left on the surface.—This seems to contradict the idea of any loss by any evaporation. It will therefore be best to adopt the plan of deep cultivation, but to keep the manure and vegetable matter as near the surface as possible. There is always some loss by evaporation, but much less than by infiltration.—But it should be a leading idea with farmers to be close observers of such natural operations, in the growth of spontaneous and cultivated vegetation, and accommodate their practice so as to imitate nature as nearly as possible.—"Agrila," in Journal of the Farm.

Notes on Potatoes.

The following article, by "J. M.," in the Gardener's Monthly, expresses our ideas exactly in relation to the manner of cutting the seed, and quantity to plant. The great "Potato Mania" which raged so furiously during 1868 and 1869, induced experiments which have proved, at least the majority of our farmers, that too much seed has always been planted, and this to the serious injury of the crop. Instead of planting from ten to fifteen bushels of seed to the acre, and these in pieces containing from four to six eyes, and in many cases whole tubers, our most intelligent potato-growers have learned that from four to six bushels of seed, cut into pieces with one or two eyes, will produce potatoes of a finer quality and size, and also more bushels to the acre. Another desirable result attained by this mode is, the absence of so many small, unmarketable potatoes, and, as a natural consequence, the higher price for which the crop may be sold:

"Great difference may be observed in the raising of potatoes. In planting my sets, last spring, of Eary Goodrich, I was compelled, from scarcity, to use some very small ones, and some made from what is called a second growth. The yield was very poor, and the quality inferior. Very many of them were knotty, and showed a disposition to make many additional growths, lessening the value of the crop very much. My slight experience will lead me to the selection of sets made from potatoes of fair size, and cut into one or two eyes. It is no matter if they are cut small, so that the cut is from a good sized potato.

SMALL FARMS.—Small farms make near neighbors; they make good roads; they make plenty of good schools and churches; there is more money made in proportion to the labor; less labor is wanted; everthing is kept neat; less wages have to be paid for help; less time is wasted; more is raised to the acre, because it is tilled better; there is no watching of hired men; the mind is not kept in worry, a stew, a fret all the time. There is not much fear of drouth, of wet weather, of a frost, of small prices. There is not so much money to be paid out for agricultural implements. Our wives and children have time to read. to improve their minds. A small horse is soon curried; and the work on a small farm is always pushed forward in season.

WHAT MANURE DOES.—Mr. Lawes, of England, who has been conducting a series of experiments for twenty-seven years in the wheat culture, has produced the following results: One piece has had no manure; another has had a very plentiful supply of barn yard manure, and the the other has had a liberal allowance of ammonia and other artificial manures. Each of these plats has been cultivated in wheat every year. The first piece, with no manure, produced in 1844 fifteen bushels per acre, and this year (1870) the yield was precisely the same. The second piece yielded in 1844 twenty-two bushels per acre, and in 1870 thirty-six and a half bushels per acre. The third plat yielded this year forty-five and a half bushels per acre—the first yield of this plat not being given. In 1863, (one of the best wheat years in England,) the pieces yielded respectively 17, 44, and 55½ bushels per acre.—Kansas

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for Throat and Lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois. writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no care of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Blood Spitting, Hoarseness, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used, according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere, Price, 50 cents, medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by

FEVER AND AGUE.

It is an impossibility for any one to have Fever and Ague, if they will use a few bottles of this remedy each spring and fall.

$100 $100 $100

Will be given for any case of this disease that occurs to any one that uses the Bitters or Tonic as a preventive.

H

Those who have the Fever and Ague will find, after the chills have stopped, that by using a few bottles of the Bitters or Tonic that the disease will not return.

These remedies will rebuild their Constitution faster than any other known remedy.

The remedies were placed before the public thirty years ago, with all the prejudices of so-called "patent medicine" operating against them, but gradually their virtues became known, and now, to day, they stand at the head of all preparations of their class, with the indorsement of eminent judges, lawyers, clergymen and physicians.

Read the following symptoms, and if you find that your system is affected by any of them you may rest assured that disease has commenced its attack on the most important organs of your body, and unless soon checked by the use of powerful remedies, a miserable life, soon etrminating in death, will be the result.

O

Constipation,
Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant imagining of Evil. and Great Depression of Spirits.

All indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

To Physicians

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

Preparation of Compound Extract u'Buch

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation; to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by the druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle); leaving a dark and glutinous decoction Mine is the color of the ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added to prevent fermentation upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a syrup—and therefore can be used where fever or inflamation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ngredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. . HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist,
of 16 Years' Experience.

[From the Largest Manufacturing Chemist in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. HELMBOLD; he occupied the Drug store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN,
Firm of Powers and Weightman,

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

Is the great specific for Universal Lassitude; Prostration, &c.

The Constitution once affected with organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system. which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or retention, Painfulness, or suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceeding those dangerous remedies, Copavia and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of however long standing. It is pleasant in taste and oder, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions; procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of Diuretic. HELMBOLD' EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE $1 25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6 50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Maryland State Lines—Loss of Delaware to the Province of Maryland.

MESSRS EDITORS:

I gave you in my last the origin of the Oyster War, not a misnomer by any means, and I promised this week to give some account of the loss of Delaware to the Province of Maryland.

The first settlements of Delaware were made by the Sweeds. a few years after the settlement of New York by the Dutchmen. No historian has yet presumed to say, whether the colony was planted knowingly within the limits of Lord Baltimore's patent. or by neglect on the part of the Sweeds to ascertain the true position. Neither they nor the Dutch discovered any land on the borders of the Atlantic. In time the inhabitants of New York cast a wishful eye to the fertile plains of the Delaware and the "smoking Parliament" of Peter Stuyvesant, like that of Frederick William, were not too much engaged to have an eye to acquisition.

The deplomatic correspondence between these two nationalities was not protracted, but pungent, Prohibitions from the Dutch, were treated with the contempt deserved and the angry war of words, was succeeded by the throwing of the Gauntlet, which was easily excepted as thrown. Knickerbocker hath related with great moral painting, the assembling of the mighty forces of Stuyvesant.

Finally the Dutch besieged Fort Christiana, the stronghold of the Sweedes on the Delaware, with a determination to utterly annihilate and destroy. The renowned Peter Stuyvesant led the van, flourishing his wooden leg and sword at the same time, urged like Henry IV, his followers, once more to the breach—until a retreating Sweede let fly a parthean blow and laid the gallant Dutchman low with a stoughton bottle.—Sealing the works, they carried the Fort and freely administered to the flying Sweedes the "logic of the pike."

Thus collapsed the Sweedish Colony in embryo with the fall of Fort Christiana.

They had remained here but a short time, when Lord Baltimore, disclosed through ambassadors, that they were infringing on his patent. They indignantly denied his claim and the affair was laid before the "States General" of Holland. By this time, the incursions provoked the wrath of the English in the Connecticut Valley, and New Amsterdam surrendered to the English and had its name changed to New York.

Before the capture of New York and the surrender of the settlements on the Delaware to the English, a party of Marylanders had established themselves on the banks of the Schuylkill and were compelled to vacate by the violence of the Dutch—now began that quarrel anew between the Catholics and the Penns. William Penn after being thrown in the tower had been liberated, and purchased a a patent of land in North America and named it Pennsylvania—"Penn's Woods." His patent was drawn by one of the greatest of English Jurists Lord C. J. North, and was so drawn as not to touch or in any manner effect the patent of Lord Baltimore. He supposed New Castle to be the limit of the 40th degree, so arranged the new patent. That bordering on Maryland, was a circle of nine miles around New Castle to the beginning of the 40th degree.

Then "by the 40th degree Westward." But the 40th degree was found nearer the Schuylkill than New Castle. The dispute was in a way that could not be readily adjusted. The intrigues of Penn at the dissolute Court of Charles II. continued, when the Duke of York ascended the throne as James II. and he finally succeeded in obtaining a decree for New Castle and twelve miles around in radius and even to Cape Henlopen. This grant was necessarily void. The patent of Lord Baltimore was with the "south shore of the Delaware Bay." This grant to Lord Baltimore had rested and could by no means be divested except by "failure of condition." He further procured a decree, granting that the territory between the two bays be divided in a straight line to Cape Henlopen and that portion now called Delaware be given to the Penns. The dispute harrassed the declining years of Lord Baltimore, and afterwards his son Frederick caused the line, now called "Mason & Dixon's" to be run in 1860, up to where it touches the arc forming the northern boundary of Delaware, nine miles in radious around New Castle. This line has ever been memorable in history. It was the great dividing line between Slavery and the Abolition and the position of its latitude is known the world over as 36 degrees and 30 min.

Thus you see in these boundaries, the dark story of Fraud and land-grabbing conceived by the cool brain of a Quaker. The same William Penn, who followed the infamous Jeffries on his life destroying Circuit, and collected the penalties to pamper to the taste of the lewd and debauched court maids of James II. What place History assigns him has always been held in dispute but the intelligent readers of English History and of that of the the Colonies place him in no enviable light. In the darkest characters of mankind their virtues may preponderate over their virtues and if the purchase of the site of Philadelphia be viewed from a moral point of view, it is her redeeming trait, but while Marylanders accept this they give him the epitaph of Byrons Corsair.

He handed his name down to other times linked with one virtue and a thousand crimes.

Widow Jones Cow.

Widower Smith's wagon stopped one morning before Widow Jones, and gave the usual signal that he wanted somebody in the house, by dropping his elbows on his knees. Out tripped the widow, lively as a cricket, with a tremendous black ribbon on her snow-white cap. Good morning was soon said on both sides, and the widow waited for what was further to be said

"Well, ma'am Jones; perhaps you don't want to sell one of your cows, no how, nothin,' no way, do you?"

"Well there, Mister Smith, you couldn't have spoken my mind better. A poor, lone woman like me does not know what to do with so many creatures, and I should be glad to trade if we can fix it.

So they adjourned to the meadow—Farmer Smith looked at Roan—then at the widow—then at the Downing cow—then at the widow again—and so on over the whole forty. The same call was made every day for a week, but Farmer Smith could not decide which cow he wanted. At length on Saturday, when widow Jones was in a hurry to get through her baking for Sunday—and had ever so much to do in the house as all farmers' wives and widows have on Saturday—she was a little impatient. Farmer Smith was as irresolute as ever.

"That Downing cow is a pretty fair creature—but"—he stopped and glanced at the widow's face and then walked around her—not the widow, but the cow.

"That ere short horn Durham is not a bad looking beast but I don't know"—another look at the widow.

"The Downing cow I knew before the late Dr. Jones bought her." Here he sighed at the allusion to the late Mr. Jones She sighed, and they both looked at each other. It was a highly interesting moment.

"Old Roan is a faithful old milch, and so is Brindle—but I have known better." A long stare succeeded this speech—the pause was getting awkward, and at last Mrs. Jones broke out:

"Law! Mr. Smith, if I'm the cow you want do say so!"

The intentions of Widower Smith and the Widow Jones were duly published the next day, as is the law and custom in Massachusetts, and as soon as they were "out published," they were married.

Atlantic Telegraphy.

How it is done.—The press despatches from Europe to New York for four weeks recently numbered about 100,000 words. Here is a man sitting in a darkened room at Heart's Content. The ocean cable terminates here. A fine wire attached thereto is made to surround two small cores of soft iron. As the electric wave, produced by a few pieces of copper and zinc at Valentia, passes through the the wire these cores become magnetic enough to move the slightest object. A looking glass, half an inch in diameter, is fixed on a bar of iron one-tenth of an inch square, and half an inch long. On this tiny glass a lamp is made to glare so that its light is reflected on a tablet on the wall. The language of the cable is denoted by the shifting of this reflected light from side to side. Letter by letter is thus expressed in this manner in utter silence on the wall. There is no record made by the machine except as the patient watcher calls out to comrade the translated flashes as they come, and which he records. It seems a miracle of patience. There is something of awe creeps over us as we see the evidence of a human touch 2,000 miles away, swaying that line of light by such a delicate process as this.

CHEERFULNESS.–Nothing so adorns the face as cheerfullness. When the heart is in flower, its bloom and beauty pass to the features.

---GOD'S word is like God's world—varied, very rich, very beautiful. You never known when you have exhausted all its secrets. The Bible, like nature, has something for every class of mind. Look at the Bible in a new light, and straightway you see new charms.

—There are many fruits which never turn sweet until the frost has lain upon them. There are many nuts that never fall from the bow of the tree of life till the frost has opened and ripened them. And there are many elements of life that never grow sweet and beautiful till sorrow touches them.

A woman lecturer says women's sphere is bounded north by her husband, on the east by her baby, on the south by her mother-in-law, and on the west by a maiden aunt.

A Wicked Fraud.

PERPETRATED ON MARK TWAIN.

It is seldom pleasant to tell on one's self, but sometimes it is a sort of relief to a man to make a sad confession. I wish to unburden my mind, now and yet I almost believe that I am moved to do it because I long to bring censure upon another man. than because I desire to pour balm upon my wounded heart. [I don't know what balm is, but I believe it is the correct expression to use in this connection—never having seen any balm.] You may remember, that I lectured in Newark lately for the young gentlemen of the Clayonian Society. I did, at any rate. During the afternoon of that day, I was talking with one of the young gentlemen just referred to, and he said he had an uncle who, from some cause or other, seemed to have permanently bereft of all emotion. And with tears in his eyes this young man said—

"Oh, if I could only see him laugh once more! Oh, if I could only see him weep!

I was touched. I never could withstand distress. I said—

"Bring him to my lecture. I'll start him for you."

"Oh, if you could but do it; if you could but do it, all our family would bless you forevermore—for he is very dear to us. Oh, my benefactor, can you make him laugh? can you bring soothing tears to those parched orbs?"

I was profoundly moved. I said—

"My son, bring the old party around—I have got some jokes in that lecture that will make him laugh if there is any laugh in him—and if they miss fire, I have some others that'll make him cry or kill him one or the other,

Then the young man blessed me, and wept on my neck, and blew his nose on my coat tail, and went after his uncle. He placed him in full view, in the second row of seats, that night, and I began on him. I tried him with mild jokes; then with severe ones, I dosed him with bad jok s, and riddled him with good ones, I fired old jokes into him, and peppered him fore and aft with red-hot new ones; I warmed up to my work, and assaulted him on the right and the left, in front and behind; I foamed and sweated, and charged and routed, till I was hoarse and sick and, frantic and furious—but I never moved him once—I never started a smile or a tear!—Never a ghost of a smile, and never a suspicion of moisture! I was astounded. I closed the lecture at last with one despairing shriek—with one wild burst of humor—and hurled a joke of supernatural atrocity full at him. I never phased him. Then I sat down bewildered and exhausted.

The president of the society came up and bathed my head with cold water, and said—

"What made you carry on so toward the last?"

I said, "I was trying to make that confounded old fool laugh in the second row."

And he said. "Well, you were wasting your time—because he is deaf and dumb, and as blind as a badger."

Now, was that any way for that old man's nephew to impose on a stranger and an orphan like me? I simply ask you as man and a brother, if that's the way for him to do?

COUNT OVER THE MERCIES—Count the mercies that have been quietly falling in your history. Down they come, every morning and evening, as the anged messengers from the Father of Heaven. Have you lived these years wasting mercies, renewing every day, and never yet realizing whence they came? If you have, Heaven pity you. You have, murmured under afflictions, but who heard you rejoice over blessings? Ask the sunbeam, the raindrop the star, or the queen of the night. What is life but mercy? What are health, strength friendship, social life? Each would say, "I am a mercy." Perhaps you have never regarded them as such. If not you have been a poor student of nature and revelation. What is the propriety of stopping to play with a thorn bush when you may just as well pluck sweet flowers and eat pleasant fruits?

—MAN was not made to live alone, and despite his pretended cynicism and dislike of women, he often yearns for a quiet home, irradiated by the smile of some chosen one, as the sunshine illumines the lonely vale, and his soul is sad and lonely without the congenial mate that Heaven designed should be his from the beginning. I in the hour of troubles, of sickness—what is a man without the gentle ministrations, the soothing presence and gentle voice of an house-hold angel, her confiding ways, her tenderness, her helplessness, all render her inexpressibly dear, and the true husband feels in the depths of his heart, that life would have no charm without her society. Ah I thank God for woman! This is the utterance that springs involuntarily, to every heart that has felt the holy power of her love and presence. With her to lead one away from the vices and vanities that beset us, our hearts will grow tenderer, purer and better, day by day.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Cattle are dumb beasts, but by getting together in large numbers they make themselves herd!

"Now is the winter of our discontent." as the old maid said, when, turned forty, she found herself without a suitor.

Josh Billings uttered a great truth when he said: "He who by his biz would rise, must either bust or advertise."

Josh Billings says "that one ov the hardest things for enny man to do is tew fall on the ice when it is wet, and then get up and praze the Lord."

"Vill you dake sumding?" said a German tetotaller to a friend, while standing near a tavern.—"I don't care if I do," was the reply.—"Vell, den, let us dake a valk!"

"How is your husband this afternoon, Mrs. Squiggs?" "Why, the doctor says as how if he lives till mornin." he shall have some hopes of him; but if he don't, he is afeard he must give him up."

Two sextons meeting the other day, one of them remarked on the vast increase of mortality. "Well," replied the other, "you're luckier than me: for I haven't buried a living soul these three weeks."

"Wife, I don't see how they send letters on them'ere wires without tearin' 'em all to bits." "They don't send the paper," said the wife, "they just send the writing in a fluid state."

"Customer: "Waiter, do you call this a butter toast? why, there's no butter to be seen!" Waiter: "Butter all gone into the toast, sir." Customer: "But there's no toast to speak of." Waiter: "Toast all gone into the butter. sir." Customer; "Ah, ha! there's a new idea in that, by Jove! I'll go straight home and write a pamphlet upon the new theory of mutual absorption."

A nigger servant sweeping out a bachelor's room, found a sixpence on the carpet, which he carried to his master. "You may keep it for your honesty," said he. A short time after, he missed his pencil-case, and inquired of his servant if he had seen it. "Ees, massa" "And what did you do with it?" "Keep it for 'im honesty, massa!" replied Sambo, exhibiting his ivories. His master exploded.

A slip of the tongue "Martha. my dear," said a loving husband to his spouse who was several years his junior, "what do you say to moving to the Far West?" "Oh, I am delighted with the idea! You recollect when Mr. Morgan moved out there; he was as poor as we are, and in three years, he died, leaving his widow worth a hundred thousand dollars."

A quaint writer says, "I having seen women so delicate that they are afraid to ride, for fear of the horses running away: afraid to sail, for fear the boat should overset: and afraid to walk. for fear the dew might fall but I never saw one afraid to get married.

A learned clergyman was accosted in the following manner py an illiterate preacher who despised education; "Sir you have been to college, I suppose?" "Yes, sir." was the reply. "I am thankful," rejoined the former, "that the Lord opened my mouth without any learning." "A similar event," retorted the clergyman "took place in Balaam's time, but such things are of rare occurrence at the present day."

A new effect from guano. A Yankee lad whose father was a farmer, went into a barn to play, a short time ago; and being detained a prisoner by a thunder-storm, he fell asleep upon a bag of guano. The old gentleman when the storm was over, went into the farm-yard to look for his son, and met a giant, eight feet high, coming out of the barn. "Hullo! Who are you?" he cried. "What are you doing here?" Why, father," squeaked the Goliah, "its me; don't you know Tommy?" You!" the astonished parent exclaimed. "Why, Tom, how on earth did you get stretched out so long in so short a time?" "Why, father," replied the boy, looking down upon the gaping old man, "I slept upon them bags of guano as you put into the barn; and that and the lightning together, just did the busines."

—TIME is the only gift in which God has stinted us; for He never entrusts us with a secondmoment till He has taken away the first, and never leaves us certain of the third.

—As the humming bird extracts sweets from the flowers while still upon the wing, so the child of God receives the benefits of worldy pleasures without resting his affections or hopes upon them.

A LAZY dyspeptic was bewailing his own misfortunes, and speaking with a friend on the latter's hearty appearance. "What do you do to make you so strong and healthy?" inquired the dyspeptic. "Live on fruit alone," answered the friend. "What kind of fruit?" "The fruit of industry: and I am never troubled with indigestion."

THE truest heroism is that which is unseen unknown. Public martyrdom of every shade has a certain eclat and popularity connected with it, that will often bear men up to endure with courage its trials; but those who suffer alone, without sympathy, for truth or principle, those who, unnoticed by men, maintain their post, and in obscurity, and amid discouragement, patiently fulfil their trust, these are the real heroes of the age, and the suffering they bear is the truest martyrdom.

The Salisbury Advertiser.

FREENY & RICHARDSON, Editors & Proprietors.

Saturday, March 25, 1871.

The Tide is Turning.

The Radical Journals all over the country are trying to mend the breach recently made in the Radical party by the deposition of Senator Sumner from the Chairmanship of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and the quarrel between Ben Butler and Mr. Blain in the House of Representatives last week. Many influential Radical papers frankly acknowledge, that unless these quarrels are plastered up, and good feeling restored, the party will certainly be defeated at the general election in 1872. President Grant is being censured in unmeasured terms, by some journalists, for his share in helping to promote the family quarrel, and from what we can gather, there is great dissatisfaction throughout the party. Indeed, we have noticed in one or two journals, threats of an impeachment trial for the President.—It is hinted that sufficient evidence can be produced to insure his impeachment, and it would be better for the party if he were thrown overboard and a statesman put in his place. The San Domingo job is denounced, and Grant is accused of lending himself to the schemes of adventurers and speculators in this business.

The Radicals now see their folly in picking up a man like Grant and placing him at the head of the Government. They knew he was a man with no politics, statesmanship, no principle and no brains. Yet they bowed to expediency, took him with all his known weaknesses, and elected him on his war record. They are now reaping the bitter fruits of their folly.—They supposed that he would be a piece of wax in their hands, and could be shaped and moulded at will. But, when it is too late, they discover that if he has no brains or executive ability, he possesses at least an obstinate will—a will that must be obeyed even though the heavens fall. Thus it may be seen that the Radical President, whom everybody thought would be a Lilliputian in his party, has turned out to be a Brobdignag, and swings Gullivers, like Sumner, about as wisps of hay in a wind storm—and is likely to prove in the end, the rock upon which the Radical party will be broken.

This is just what we have been longing for, and we cannot but rejoice that the quarrel over the loaves and fishes is growing serious. We sincerely believe that the day which witnesses the downfall of the Radical party will be the beginning of a new and brighter era in American history.

Affairs in France.

The fires of revolution have been kindled in France. Paris is in the possession of a mob, and the blood of the innocent is being wantonly spilled. The Government is making every effort to restore order, but has not yet accomplished much. The insurgents have condemned and executed two or three Generals who fought gallantly during the recent war with Germany, and perpetrated many other outrages characteristic of a Paris revolutionary mob.

Frenchmen will never learn to govern themselves. They must be compelled by the bayonet to respect law, or they engage in mad revolution the very first opportunity that presents. Perhaps the best way to quell the revolution, is to plant cannon in the streets of Paris and give them a good dose of grape and canister. Napoleon Bonaparte tried this plan and it succeeded admirably.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND SEAL FISHERIES.—A telegram received in New York city announces the first arrival from the seal fishery in Newfoundland. The steamship Walrus, which left the port of St. Johns, Newfoundland, on the 1st inst., arrived there on Monday morning with a full cargo of young seals (15,000) taken off the Funke Islands about a week ago. The captain reports thirty sail of vessels as having been in the same ice in company with the Walrus, all of which were loaded and had borne up for home. The captain also stated that he had been for days surrounded by seals, as far as the eye could see and predicts an unusually prosperous voyage. The weather during the seal-hunting expedition was very moderate, and the larger masses of ice lay along the shore thus enabling the fleet to avoid the dangers which are generally encountered there. This will be the earliest sealing season ever known in Newfoundland.

MARRIAGE OF THE PRINCESS LOUISE—A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Windsor, March 21.—The weather is charming, and the marriage of the Princess Louise has been celebrated with brilliancy. At 11 this forenoon Ministers Embassadors, nobility and clergy and the bridegroom's family were admitted to the Royal Chapel. At 12 o'clock ten royal carriages, with all the members of the Queen's family, and other royal personages left the Queen's gate, at Windsor Palace, and proceeded to the south entrance of the chapel, where they were received by the Lord Chamberlain and conducted to places on haut pas.

At 12:05 the bridegroom arrived, accompanied by Earl Percy and Lord Gower and they were conducted to seats on haut pas. At 12,15 the bride, accompanied by the Queen and suite in five carriages, arrived at the west entrance of the chapel, where they were joined by the bridesmaids, and moved up the nave amid music by the choir. The bride was supported by the Queen, Prince of Wales, and the Duke of Saxe Coburg. The bridesmaids were Ladies Campbell, Cecil, Butler, Moutague, Gordon, Lennox, Gordon Seymour and Fitzgerald.

The bride was seated on the left of the altar, with the Queen near at hand. The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of London in the choral style, the Queen giving the bride away. At the end of the last prayer a royal salute was fired from the artillery in Windsor Park, and the guests repaired to the Castle for luncheon. The bride and bridegroom departed at 3 o'clock for Claremont for the honeymoon. About a thousand guests witnessed the ceremony. The grounds of the Castle are filled with immense crowds, and Windsor is en fete. The Marquis of Lorne wore the uniform of the Argyleshire Artillery and not the Highland costume. The Bishop of London was assisted by the Bishops of Oxford Winchester and Worcester. To-night there will be a grand banquet, and the Castle will be illuminated. The festivities will continue two days.

EXTRACTS FROM REVISED REGULATIONS FOR MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE, JUST ISSUED BY THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

1. Collectors of Customs are instructed that tax of forty cents per month is to be collected from and after the 3d day of August 1870

From the last payment of tax to the 1st day of August inclusive the tax will be collected at the old rate of twenty cents per month.

3. The term seaman embraces the officers of the vessel and all persons employed in navigating or in the care and preservation of the same.

5. Upon the renewal of the enrolment or license of any vessel, the master shall exhibit to the Collector by whom the new papers are to be issued a true account under oath, of the number of seamen and the time they have been respectively employed on board said vessel, since the issuing of its last papers, and pay to the said collector the sum described by paragraph 1.

6. These accounts are not to be prepared in any instance by the Collector, or any of his officers. Blanks shall be furnished by him but they must be filled up, signed, sworn to and delivered by the master.

7. In order to verify these accounts, the Collector is authorized to demand of the master an inspection of his books and papers. The penalty for a false account is fifty dollars.

8. No deductions from these accounts are to be made upon the pretext that the vessel was unemployed during any portion of the time embraced in the account, nor upon any other pretext. The account simply charges for the time each person was actually employed in keeping, tending or working the vessel, whether the vessel was in commission, or laid up, or undergoing repairs, and for such time the tax is legally due.

9. Captains of enrolled and licensed vessels will hereafter be required upon arrival in port, to furnish the boarding or other custom officers first applying a true list of the names of the seamen employed on board at that date, with the date of their shipment. In the event of no such application, that master, or other officer in command, shall lodge such list at the hospital-desk, in the custom house within twenty-four hours after arrival in port. Captains and owners of steamboats plying regularly between ports of entry and interior places, on rivers or other navigable waters shall furnish such lists monthly on the expiration of each and any month.

ARRIVAL OF THE SAN DOMINGO COMMISSIONERS—WHAT THE REPORT WILL CONTAIN.

Key West, March 21—The United States steamer Tennessee, with the San Domingo Commissioners on board, arrived this morning, five days and six hours from Kingston. The whole party, the officers and crew is in excellent health. Mr. Wade has the report finished, to which Mr. Howe has agreed. The report is about two columns long. Mr. White wishes to add considerable to it, but may agree to it with a few amendments. The report is, in the main favorable to annexation. The chief features deemed somewhat unfavorable are connected with the questions of debt boundary and grants.

SUCCESSFUL ENGAGEMENT WITH THE INSURGENTS.

Havana, March 21.—In the engagement in Cinco Villas the insurgent leader, Antonio Villejas, surrendered, and the insurgent leader, Capote was killed. Antonio Villejas, previous to surrendering killed his companion, Fernandez, who tried to surrender.

SUICIDE OF A PHYSICIAN.—Dr. Geo. Mudd residing in Bryantown, attempted, it is said, to take his own life on Sunday last, by cutting his throat, and it is reported here to-day that he has since died of the wound. Dr. Mudd was one of the oldest physicians in that county. At the time of his death he had been married to his second wife only about a month.—Wash. Star, March 21.

THE SCHOEPPE CASE.—A despatch from Carlisle, Pennsylvania, to the Philadelphia Inquirer says,

The petition, signed by several thousand citizens of Cumberland county, praying Governor Geary to pardon Dr. Schoeppe, now confined in the jail at Carlisle, and all the other papers pertaining to an application for pardon, were presented to his Excellency the Governor on last Thursday, the 16th instant, by Rev. Mr. H. Eggers and Dr. J. J. Fitzer, of this place. The Governor received the gentleman kindly, and conversed with them in an affable manner. He referred all the papers to the Attorney General, to make a report thereon.

The counsel of Dr. Schoeppe, acting under the supposition that the papers would be presented sooner, had already on the 8th of this month, sent a written argument to the Attorney General, Hon. F. Carroll Brewster respecting some important after-discovered evidence in the case. The petition, which on last Thursday was presented to the Governor was a very large one, larger than any former that has ever been presented from Cumberland county to the Executive in this case. It is endorsed by the best citizens of Cumberland county, among them by many who heretofore believed Dr. Schoeppe guilty,

Baltimore, November 15th, 1860.
MR. L. H. MILLER,

Dear Sir:—In justice to you we add another testimonial to the superiority and just reputation of your Safes. The unfortunate fire of Friday night last, was so destructive as to leave nothing of our entire stock or business property, except the safe and its contents, which was in the back part of the second floor in the hottest part of the fire, and was severely tested. The appearance of the Safe shows the ordeal through which it has passed, and when opened this morning, in presence of a number of gentlemen, its contents, all my valuable books and papers, were handed me as good as put there before the fire. The test was a severe one, and I am surprised that my books and papers did not show some damage; but the perfect condition they are in shows plainly that the powers of endurance you claim for the Safe had hardly been called into requisition. Your Safes are justly entitled to the confidence of the business community, and we shall take pleasure in recommending them to all wanting a perfectly reliable article.
Remain, yours truly,
ELHART, LOWENBACH & CO.

One Thousand Dollars is offered for a Safe that has been as severely tested as the above, and the contents in as perfect condition.

Carbolic Tablest.
PREPARED BY DR. WELLS,

The most important discovery of the age is this wonderful Healing and Cleansing agent for all diseases or weakness of the Respiratory organs, Sore Throat, Sudden Cold, Hoarseness, Catarrh, Asthma, Dryness of Throat or Windpipe, diseases of the Lungs and for all irritation of the mucuous membrane.

All vocalists and public speakers who speak and sing without effort, use these Tablets, their effect in clearing the voice is simply astonishing as can be shown by numerous certificates.

Dr. WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

act directly on the mucuous membrane and should be promptly and freely taken in all exposure or violent change of weather, as they equalize the Circulation of the Blood and thus ward off all tendency to colds and Lung difficulty.

The proprietors would say, all first class medicines have their imitations, and they would

CAUTION the public against imposition by having other medicines thrust upon them in place of these invaluable Tablets.

LOCAL ADVERTISER.

SATURDAY MORNING, Mar. 25, 1871.

George P. Cannon sells Books, Periodicals and Papers. Give him a call.

The Peach Crop.—If the weather continues mild, the peach crop of 1871 will be the heaviest ever known in this part of the county.

Prof Reardon, who has been giving lectures in our town on horsemanship, has recnetly purchased a fine blooded mare from a gentleman in Newtown, for the sum of $500.00.

Circuit Court.—The Circuit Court for Wicomico County will meet Monday the 27th instant. There is a full Docket and the session will probably last several weeks.

Town Clock.—We understand that the Machinery for the Town Clock, to be placed in the steeple of the M P. Church of Salisbury, has been purchased, and the Clock will be completed in a short time.—Long have we felt the necessity of such a Chronometer in our midst, and we are sure it will prove an invaluable aid to all classes of people in heralding the correct hour of the day.

Land Sales.—On Thursday last, Mr. Thomas Humphreys, as Trustee, sold a considerable number of building lots in Salisbury. The net proceeds of the sale will approximate five thousand dollars. The property belonged to the heirs of the late Mr. John D. Williams, and Mr. William Birckhead, and Mr. Joshua Johnson; and was sold for the purpose of division.

Accident.—Mr. John Wimbro, residing nine miles from Salisbury, met with a very painful accident last Saturday. He was engaged in rolling logs in a saw mill, and by some means fell to the ground and twisted his foot in such a manner as to cause the fracture of a bone of that member. Dr. F. M. Slemons, of Salisbury, was called and rendered the necessary surgical attention. When last heard from, Mr. Wimbro was recovering as rapidly as could be expected.

Fire.—On the night of the 22d inst. a saw mill about five miles from Salisbury, belonging to Mr. John Williams, was entirely destroyed by fire. The mill is supposed to have been fired by an incendiary. Mr. Williams' loss is about one thousand dollars. There seems to be a strange fatality attached to this mill. It was burned in 1841 and rebuilt—then in 1851 and rebuilt—the same sills being used both times. This time the mill was totally destroyed.

Improvements.—Several gentlemen in Salisbury are beautifying the grounds attached to their residences. Would it not be a good plan for this sort of thing to be practiced by all owners of property in the town? A few dollars spent in improvements somtimes greatly increases the value of property—and in all cases augments the pleasure of ownership. If the people would go to work with the shovel, paint brush and white-wash brush, our town would look quite pretty when the flowers of May put forth.

Pluck will do it.—"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, if taken at its turn leads on to fortune." We were never more forcibly impressed with the truth of this than when examining the stock of Messrs Brewington & Wroten the other day. These gentlemen, a few years ago, commenced in a very small way the tin business—and by close attention to business, coupled with pluck and energy have succeeded in building up a handsome and remunerative trade. They now have a splendid stock of Tinware, Hardware, Lamps &c., and it is worth any man's time to go in their store and look over their goods. May fortune continue to smile on their efforts, and pour bounteous supplies of tin into their pockets.

A Fox Hunt.—Some of our friends had a very exciting fox hunt in the lower part of the county last Wednesday. It is said to have been the most interesting chase of the season. The best running dogs in the county were engaged in the chase, and nearly all lovers of the sport in the country hereabouts were in the saddle. The first fox started, was captured after running twenty five minutes. The second fox led the dogs fifty five minutes and yeilded. This is the best running we ever heard of, and we would be disposed to think that Reynard was sick, were we not assured that this extraordinary running on the part of the dogs is due to the careful and superior training they have received.

Air and Exercise.—Now that Spring has come with its balmy air and warm bright suns, and nature is beginning to put on her dress of green, it is well to remind our readers that exercise in the open air is particularly delightful and healthy. Following the plough strengthens the muscles, sharpens the appetite and greatly assists digestion. Wielding the hoe, spade, shovel and rake drives away the lassitude induced by early spring, and causes the blood to circulate freely. To those who have not opportunities for handling the implements mentioned above, we would recommend walking both morning and evening. It will cause the [illegible] of health to mantle the cheek and the light of life to sparkle in the [illegible] women young men, take this delightful spring [illegible] prepare your constitu[illegible] the heats of Summer, by [illegible]ly and without stint of [illegible] exercise.

Appointments.—The following are the appointments for the Snow Hill District. M. E. Church: Presiding Elder, Rev. John L. Taft. Snow Hill Revs. J. W. Pierson. Geo. A. Campbell, Berlin, Rev. P. H. Rawlins; Frankford, Rev. J. Brandreth, Gumborough Rev. Joseph Arters, W. Murray; Centreville, (supplied by the Presiding Elder,) Rev. Joseph Lewis; Princess Anne, Revs. Joseph Cook, Levin Layfield; Fairmount, Rev. C. M. Pegg; Salisbury, Rev C. W. Busy, Annamessex. Rev W. F. Talbot, Atlantic, Accomac and Northampton, Rev. James Carrol; Newtown, Revs. W. Potter E. J. Ayers; Crisfield Rev. W. H. Hutchin; Sharptown, Rev. A. A. Fisher; Quantico, Rev. E E White, Chincoteague Island, Rev. A Stengle.

Strawberry Culture.—The cultivation of strawberries seems to be growing in favor with the enterprising citizens of our town and county. We have heard of quite a number of gentlemen who are engaging in the business this Spring, and from the amount of land being prepared for the reception of plants, the business bids fair to become heavy. S. D. Conover Esqr., who recently moved here from Westover Station, Somerset County, has leased ground beyond the Depot, and designs planting down eight or ten acres. J. J. Morris and Wm. H. Cathell Esqrs., have leased a ten acre lot on the south side of Humphreys' mill, and are preparing the same for plants. Jehu T. Parsons Esqr., has purchased four acres of ground on the road leading to Delmar, on which he intends to cultivate strawberries. All this land is situated on the near suburbs of Salisbury, and within easy distance of the Depot. We learn that T. F J. Rider Esqr., also intends engaging in the business on one of his farms near Quantico. We trust these gentlemen may have abundant success.

A Nocturnal Concert—Marvelous Imitations of Nature.—Last Saturday night the good citizens of our quiet town had the rare pleasure of listening to an extraordinay musical Concert. It was novel in all its appointments, and doubtless possessed the charm of originality; for no man in this community, old or young, can recall a time when the souls of the people were ravished by such delicious melody, or their ears confused by the rapid succession of new and startling bursts of sweet sounds.

The entertainment was conceived and executed by twenty or thirty youths, who certainly are entitled to the thanks of the musical world for the introduction of an entirely new style of music. We will try and describe this concert—but we warn our readers in the beginning that words cannot accurately describe the performance—it must be heard to be properly appreciated.

As it was expected that the audience would be too large for any hall in town to hold, the Concert-ists very properly decided to hold forth on Main Street, in open air. Accordingly every arrangement being completed, the curtain rose about 10 o'clock P. M. "Der Dutchman's Dorg" came first on the programme—this piece was rendered in fine style and the audience applauded stoutly. Then the sweet low notes of a flute, in the hands of a skillful artist, stole out on the still night air—now murmuring in plaintive measures the beautiful and tender air of "Susanna," then dying away in the pathetic breathings of the soul ravishing "Yankee Doodle."—Then when the soul of the performer had exhausted itself, and the dulcet tones of the flute had melted in liquid melody into the bosom of the night, the mellow voice of a calf trembled in rich waves of sweet plaintive music on the ambient air, calling for his maternal relative. A lamb sympathizing with the veal, introduced his voice into the song, and in a warbling alto sang for his mutton. The duet continued some minutes in this plaintive style until the calf became impatient and bellowed energetically, This inspired the lamb with confidence and he too struck out boldly. The duet ceased. All was still for a moment—but only for a moment—a mule struck up a bass solo and sang with powerful effect. At the conclusion of the mule-ish effort, a quintette of cats, that had hitherto kept in the background, broke out in a wild shrill treble, and piped "Pussy's Lament" in fine style. A couple of chicken Cocks then sounded the bugle call, and an old hen cackled the grace notes. A dog howled "The Puppy's Dream," and a couple of good sized hogs squealed "The Porkers are Coming." After all the solos were disposed of, preparations were made for the "Grand Finale." This last proved to be the most astounding medley of sounds that ever greeted human ears. The calf and lamb performed the first five measures or introductory to the chorus, and then came the grand crash. Cats mewed and screeched—a brace of mules brayed in thunderous tones, the cocks sent up their clarion notes, the old hen cackled, the dog howled, the hogs squealed and the poor little lamb nearly killed himself trying to make himself heard in the general din. The whole performance was as extraordinary as it was marvelous, and did we not know beyond the possibility of a doubt that the performers were human beings, we would be willing to make oath that the music was rendered in their native tongues.

Sickness.—Chicken Pox (not chicken cholera) is raging among the children in Salisbury. Young ladies who have not had this trifling disease had better mind how they kiss the little boys; for the disease is contagious; and sometimes leaves marks that mar the beauty of the face.

MESSRS. EDITORS:

I send you a sample of wheat grown on a lot of three acres, I shall claim the premium until you are shown something to beat me, at date.

Truly yours, &c.,
A. J. CRAWFORD.

The sample sent us by Mr. Crawford is now in our office and may be seen by any of our readers who will call. It measures 30½ inches. This beats anything we have ever heard of this early in the season, and we challenge the Eastern Shore to surpass it.

Correspondence.

[illegible], March 22, 1871.

MESSRS EDITORS:

This beautiful weather gladdens the hearts of the people and begets an uncommon industrious habit. We feel that a kind Providence is saluting us with gentle smiles notwithstanding our ingratitude.

Some visible marks of prosperity seem to lie just ahead, and I hope our citizens will pull together and obtain the prize.

It gives me pleasure to state that the Church yard, alluded to in a letter from your correspondent, has been repaired, and a lock put on the gate. This is gratifying and it leads us to hope that the premises will be more closely watched and attended to in the future—thus showing a proper respect for the departed.

Divine Service is held in the M. E. Church here once in every two weeks by Rev. J. Brinkly.

It is rumored that a new store and steam mill will be started here in a short time. I hope the report will prove true, as it will be a source of improving every man's pocket, and giving an impetus to the business of our village which is very much needed indeed.

The time is at hand for the old cows to peg out—yet apparently they enjoy excellent health.

The unmannerly ponies are becoming quite docile. The plough and wagon has tamed them.

Some few cases of chicken cholera yet disturbs the neighbors. But the cholera is less contageous than chicken stealing.

Some of our friends here have garden peas growing finely—a good prospect for an early dish. Young chickens are running about quite lively—The rains have raised the springs to a height that will prove advantageous to our millers.

The peach crop bids fair to yield an unusually heavy harvest if we do not have more frost.

I am glad to say in closing my letter, that perfect harmony seems to prevail in our little village.

Yours very truly,
CHASE.

AS THE season for new Clothing is now at hand, we would specially call the attention of our readers to the facilities offered by Messrs. Rockhill & Wilson the well-known clothiers of Philadelphia, whose card will be found in another column. Messrs. R & W. have secured a stock of Spring Goods which, for cheapness of price and quality, stand unrivalled. Their supply of ready-made Clothing, suitable for men and boys, is the most varied of any establishment in Philadelphia. Their custom department is under the charge of the most skilled and expert operators. Messrs. R. & W have such perfected arrangements that parties residing at a distance can have their clothes made to order merely by sending for samples of goods and directions for self-measurement, by which a perfect fit is guaranteed to the customer without rendering it necessary for him even to visit the establishment.

DO NOT DO IT in fact you must not do it. It would be wrong for any lady to attempt to purchase clothing for her sons, or gentlemen for themselves, without first examining the large and superior stock at Rockhill & Wilsons, and if they do not find it superior in quality, cut, make and trimmings, and at lower price than any other clothing establishment in the city, don't purchase. Our beautiful and substantial all-wool heavy cloth and cassimere suits, for fall and winter, which are going off by thousands, both in the city and country, all for $15, coat, vest and pants. They astonish the trade to understand how we furnish them at the price. It is hardly necessary to say anything in regard to our customer department that is so well and favorably known that every gentleman in the city is posted.

He is also agent for the patent non-explosive Coal Oil Lamp—which is certainly an elegant piece of mechanical skill and ingenuity, apart from its value as an illuminator.

It gives a better light than gas—Consumes less oil than any other lamp, and it cannot be exploded with coal oil or Benzine. It is decidedly the best lamp ever invented, and will pay for itself in a few months by the mere saving of oil. We would advise our readers to pay Mr. Gordy a visit and examine this lamp.

WM. GORDY,

Dear Sir:—I have been using the Non-explosive lamp for several months in my family, and think it even excels what it is recommended to be.

Yours Respectfully,

CONSUMPTION,
Its Cure, Its Preventive.
BY J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

MANY a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proven means of cure.—Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted.

DR. JOSEPH H SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT

and availed themselves of his wonderful efficacious medicines they would not have fallen.

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions of their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. IT is self-assuring self-convincing.

The Sea-weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here then comes the culminating result, and the setting in with all its distressing symptoms of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they.

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver like a clock is wound-up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting at last.

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the great test Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent Father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased but it must be prevented, or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased, and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words.

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time."

"As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with great difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton, my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds And for years have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5.00. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions and kind Nature will do the rest excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows; the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousand of families. As A laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a curer of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, $1 50 a bottle, or $7 50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

DOTY'S WASHER

DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE,
LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW
UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cog-wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

The former Editor of this paper, who purchased a Washer and Wringer, thus testifies as to their value:

We can knowingly recommend these machines to be just what their manufacturer represents them. We have had them in regular use in our own family for over six months, and we find that all the really hard labor and drudgery of washing is entirely dispensed with by their use. Washing is a neat and pleasant employment for a lady with one of Doty's Washing Machines and Wringers, and we have thought that a millionaire, with no dependent heirs on whom to bestow his fortune, would become one of the greatest benefactors of his race by endowing a fund with which to give one of these Washing Machines to the thousands of overtasked washerwomen which we have in our land. Notice the liberal offer made by Mr. Browning in his advertisement. There is no deception in this offer, and we would be willing to guarantee its fulfilment to the letter. Let every family which can possibly do so buy Doty's Washing Machine and Wringer.

PRICES—A Fair Offer.

If the Merchants in your place will not furnish, or send for the Machines, send us the retail price, Washer $14, Extra Wringer $9, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to place where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.

The Turkish Harem and Salamlik.

Turkish houses are always divided into two distinct habitations, one called the "Salamlik," where the men reside and receive their male visitors and the other the Harem, where the mistress or mistresses of the house with their female attendants reside, and receive their lady-visitors.

The rich have their eunuchs to guard these wives in that part of the building. No other man ever enters there. The sons of the house, if above thirteen years, cannot come there as long as the other wives of their father reside there. The husband equally may not enter his wives' room when a pair of yellow slippers outside the door indicates the presence of a strange woman. In consequence of the rigorous custom neither Christians nor Jews are permitted to reside in the regular Turkish quarters, as it is not expected that they would turn their heads another way if, by chance they should meet the unveiled face of one of their Turkish wives. The conscientious Turk would invariably do so.

When in the week of mourning for one of their relatives they receive, sitting on the ground, visits of condolence, the sexes are then separated, although delicacies are frequently handed around in the shape of mocha coffee and cigarettes, which in itself would look strange and irreconcilable with our Western Jewish notions of mourning visit.

It is a Turkish Custom that a visitor, when once admitted within the door curtain, without further ceremony, saluting or noticing anybody, he enters the room, and jumps at once on the immense long sofa; then spreading himself out in a cross-legged sitting posture, he makes his salam, or salutation, to the master of the house; next he repeats the same to every one separately in his turn, who are all obliged to return this salutation, so that, with a goodly number of visitors, it is a rather ludicrous scene to see all this mimicking and waving of hands going on for some minutes, and to be repeated as each visitor enters.

It is notable that the Turks have a more rational way of greeting than we do. Our way is certainly an unmeaning fashion, to show our curls or bare craniums to our friends. The Turk and Arab, on the contrary, never uncover their heads, not even for the Sultan. In fact, there is nothing more insulting than when a Turk in his anger bares his head, and throws his turban or fez to the ground. They salute generally by moving their right hand to their heart; then they touch their forehead and afterward their lips indicating therewith that their hearts and brains are cheerfully at your service.

A Little Judicious Praise.

No heart is insensible to words of praise, or the kindly smile of approbation; and none are utterly above being affected by censure or blame.—Children are particularly sensitive in this respect. Nothing can discourage a child more than a spirit of incessant fault-finding; and perhaps nothing can exert a more baneful influence upon both parent and child.—If your little one, through the day, has been pleasant and obedient, and you say to him, "My son, you have been good to-day, and it makes me very happy;" and if, with more than a usually affectionate embrace you say, "Good-night, my dear child," a throb of suppressed feeling fills his breast, and he resolves on always earning such approval. If your grown son, or daughter, have accomplished some difficult piece of work, rendering you essential assistance; or have climbed some steep in the daily drill of study; or have acquired some new accomplishment, or added grace; or, better than all, have gained the victory over some bad habit or besetting sin—acknowledge it, see it, praise them for it. Let them see by your added tenderness, the deep joy and comfort it gives you. Thus you will create a great incentive to right conduct, and lay a broad foundation for a character which shall be redolent with succulent fruit and fragrant blossoms.

A son of Erin, who lives on the Boston & Woonsocket Railroad was recently telling of a water wheel that he had seen in Ireland, which was fifty feet in diameter, with a rim ten feet wide. "O! that is nothing to what I saw at the White Mountains," said a Yankee bystander. "There they had a wheel one hundred feet in diameter, to be used at a four hundred foot fall." "And what will they do with such a wheel as that?" said Patrick. "O," returned Jonathan, "it was bad hay weather, and the farmers put a gear on one of the mountains, and were going to turn the world the other way with the wheel, so that the sun would not set for a week. But the chinese found out what was going on, and they went down to dedham and got an injunction from the supreme Court.—They did not want to be left in the dark, and so the great wheel stands still until this day." "Arrah! said Pat, "and what won't the Yankees do next?"

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for Throat and Lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois. writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no care of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Blood Spitting, Hoarseness, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used, according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to be, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price, 50 cents, medium size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by

Natures Gifts

Scientifically Developed.

As mankind, from indiscretion or other causes, has been doomed to suffer from disease, so also has remedy for disease been provided. Our hills and valleys abound with roots and herbs, which if scientifically prepared and compounded, will restore health and vigor to the invalid. To find such a remedy we should seek one that has stood the test of age.

FEVER AND AGUE.

It is an impossibility for any one to have Fever and Ague, if they will use a few bottles of this remedy each spring and fall.

$100 $100 $100

Will be given for any case of this disease that occurs to any one that uses the Bitters or Tonic as a preventive.

H

Those who have the Fever and Ague will find, after the chills have stopped, that by using a few bottles of the Bitters or Tonic, that the disease will not return.

These remedies will rebuild their Constitution faster than any other known remedy.

The remedies were placed before the public thirty years ago, with all the prejudices of so-called "patent medicine" operating against them, but gradually their virtues became known, and now, to day, they stand at the head of all preparations of their class, with the indorsement of eminent judges, lawyers, clergymen and physicians.

Read the following symptoms, and if you find that your system is affected by any of them you may rest assured that disease has commenced its attack on the most important organs of your body, and unless soon checked by the use of powerful remedies, a miserable life, soon etrminating in death, will be the result.

Constipation,
Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or suffocating sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant imagining of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

All indicate disease of the Liver or Digestive Organs, combined with impure blood.

HOOFLAND'S

Is entirely vegetable and contains no liquor It is a compound of Fluid Extracts. The Roots Herbs and Barks from which these extracts are made, are gathered in Germany; all the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific chemist. These extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of this Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in compounding the Bitters; hence it is free from all the objections incident to the use of a liquor preparation.

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

Preparation of Compound Extract u'Buch

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation; to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by the druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle); leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of the ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added to prevent fermentation upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a syrup—and therefore can be used where fever or inflamation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. . HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist,
of 16 Years' Experience.

[From the Largest Manufacturing Chemist in the World.]

NOVEMBER 4, 1854.

"I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. HELMBOLD; he occupied the Drug store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise."

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

Is the great specific for Universal Lassitude; Prostration, &c.

The Constitution once affected with organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu.

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or retention, Painfulness, or suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceeding those dangerous remedies, Copavia and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of however long standing. It is pleasant in taste and oder, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions; procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of Diuretic. HELMBOLD' EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE $1 25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6 50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Reduction of Prices.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ Co., have the pleasure of announcing important improvements in their Cabinet Organs, for which Patents were granted them in June and August last. These are not merely meretricious attachments, but enhance the substantial excellence of the instruments.
