Trophy Trains Sure Winners

From all parts of the Fifth Federal Reserve District come letters and telegrams and long-distance telephone messages saying that the Victory Liberty Loan War Trophy Trains are "sure winners." They are not only stirring up zealous enthusiasm among the people but they are selling bonds—Victory Liberty Bonds—and by the thousands and tens of thousands of dollars.

Those who meet the trains see the murderous weapons with which the Hun tried to destroy civilization—and lost at Chateau-Thierry, at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne Wood. And on the train with the trophies are men who were in the heaviest fighting and who are anxious to tell the people what war is and why the Victory Liberty Loan must be fully subscribed to finish the job.

This train, with a party of 30 people, is scheduled to arrive in Princess Anne on the morning of Saturday, May 10th, and leave for Pocomoke at 12.30 p. m.

Lankford-Pilchard Wedding

Miss Beatrice Pilchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Pilchard, of Pocomoke City, and Mr. Stanley Lankford, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lankford, of Somerset county, were married last Saturday afternoon, at 1.30 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. O. Alderson at the home of the bride. Only a few intermediate friends were present.

The bride was attired in a becoming suit of midnight blue with hat, gloves and shoes to match. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Dorothy Wigton.

A reception followed the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Lankford left on the afternoon train for North Carolina where they will remain for two weeks, and on their return will reside in Somerset county.

Overseas Unit Leave Camp Meade

One thousand men, the first unit of the Overseas Replacement Depot, left Camp Meade last Friday night for service in France and the men were in New York on Saturday to take part in the Victory Loan campaign. They sailed on Sunday.

Four companies comprise the unit, and they are headed by Colonel Harold L. Jackson. The other officers to go with the detachment are Lieut. Colonel Albert C. Dalton, Col. Cyrus A. Dolph, Lieut. Colonel Matthew H. Tomlinson, Major John R. Brooks, Major Spencer A. Townsend, Major Richard R. Taylor, Major Lockwood and Captain Carl R. Perkins.

The men in the unit number among them many Marylanders, and among the recruits are some who enlisted at Camp Noyes. The unit has been well trained, and among the soldiers are many veterans who already have seen some service in France. Many soldiers who were in service in this country for months but had no opportunity to get overseas also are in the detachment.

"Human Hearts"

"Human Hearts," with many seasons of success to its credit, will be the attraction at the Auditorium Wednesday night, May 7th, and will give seekers after popular amusement an opportunity to laugh, cry and applaud the many pathetic and laughable scenes of the grand old play. The scene of Tom Logan's cross roads blacksmith shop, the interior of the Little Rock, Arkansas, prison, and the cottage on the Logan farm with its bush of roses at the corner, are all pretty stage pictures and will be produced in an excellent manner. The company that is playing the piece this season is said to be the best seen in it for several seasons and much more comedy has been added to it, giving it more light and shades than heretofore, a bright vein running through the piece from first to last.

Sergt. W. J. Butler Decorated

Sergt. William J. Butler, of Salisbury, Md., has received the Distinguished Service Medal and the Croix de Guerre for gallantry while on duty at 2 a. m., August 18th, 1918, at a listening post on the Champagne front. He was armed with a light machine gun when he discovered a German raiding party returning to its lines with five American prisoners, one a lieutenant. Sergeant Butler attacked the patrol single-handed and by his skill, audacity and courage killed five German soldiers, captured a wounded German lieutenant and rescued his comrades.

Wednesday Clean-Up Day

Tomorrow (Wednesday) is "Clean-Up Day" in Princess Anne. The Civic Club has made arrangements to have all trash hauled away free of charge. Have all rubbish gathered up and placed along the street or yard so that when the cart arrives there will be no delay in having it loaded and hauled away.

29TH AT CAMP MEADE MAY 18TH

Marylanders Of Blue And Grey Due Not Later Than That Date

Information from an authoritative source was received last Tuesday morning announcing that all the Maryland soldiers and replacement troops of the Twenty-ninth Division would arrive at Camp Meade not later than May 18th. It was learned also that the entire Seventy-ninth Division will go there for demobilization. However, the date of its arrival was not made known. This news is the most interesting and important concerning troop movements that has been received in many months.

It means on the face of it that the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, the One Hundred and Tenth Machine Gun Battalion, the Maryland Batteries in the One Hundred and Tenth Field Artillery, the members of old Troop A, the members of the ambulance corps and other divisional trains and the men from Maryland in all other units of the Twenty-ninth will be back on Maryland soil within the next three weeks.

It means that some of these Marylanders will be on the ocean bound for home within the next few days. This news will be heralded with joy by relatives and friends of the whole National Guard organization throughout the city and State.

Baltimore will see thousands of returning heroes then, where heretofore she has seen them only by the dozens or a few hundreds. The reception given the One Hundred and Seventeenth Trench Mortar Battery Wednesday indicates what may be expected in the way of a turnout when the Twenty-ninth comes home.

While all units that have served over there are equally dear to Baltimore, there are many thousands of relatives and friends particularly interested in the homecoming of the Marylanders of the Twenty-ninth.

After nearly a year of service—real service—in France, Maryland's National Guardsmen sailed for home last Sunday. This information was conveyed to Mrs. Milton A. Reckord, of Baltimore, wife of the colonel of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, in a cable she received from her husband last Wednesday morning. The cable simply stated that the Maryland boys of the old First, Fourth and Fifth Regiments, who trained at Anniston, Ala., and who are members of the Twenty-ninth Division, were due to sail about May 4th.

United States Breaks Meat Record

American dressed meat production, including lard, amounted in 1918 to 20,122,800,000 pounds—a quantity never before approached in magnitude by the live stock industry of this or any other country, the Bureau of Animal Industry announced last Thursday. The corresponding figure for 1917 was 16,317,300,000 pounds. Three-fourths of this increase was in pork and one-fourth was in beef.

The meat surplus in 1918 was so great that extra export shipments of meat and lard nearly doubled the 1917 figures raising from slightly less than 1,175,000,000 pounds to slightly more than 3,000,000,000 pounds, and these figures do not include shipments to American military forces abroad. The aggregate consumption of dressed meat and lards in the United States was approximately 14,500,000,000 pounds, but in 1918 it rose to 17,250,000,000. This means, after allowing for increase in population, an addition of 23 pounds for every man, woman and child in the United States, despite the food conservation campaign in 1917 caused consumption to decline accordingly.

Let This Paper Be Your Salesman

The only two mediums through which one's thoughts are conveyed to another are the ear and the eye. Type may sometimes convey things to the public that you can say in no other way. It is the impression made through the eye that lingers longer than through the ear.

The voice may suffer through intonation and volume, but the type can never be mistaken. Speak your thoughts to your patrons in clear, clean type and you say concisely just what your customer wants to know.

Tell it. Tell it over and over, and the inside of your store becomes as familiar to the public as it is to yourself. Make our type do your talking.

You may not make yourself understood orally, but even a poor salesman can talk with type. We offer you our training and experience and our type will perform for you if you only give it a chance.

Our advertising columns tell the town's commercial story. Let this paper be your selling medium. One merchant who recently did some special advertising said to us: "Those ads certainly did the business. They brought results." We want to hear that kind of language from every one of you.

BANKING HOME REMODELED

Bank Of Somerset Now In Modern And Efficient New Quarters

The opening of the Bank of Somerset on Thursday last in its newly remodeled banking home marks a long step forward in the progress of that enterprising institution. Viewed incidentally from the exterior of the building as a purely architectural advancement, the improvements to the building testify to the prosperity and expansion of the Bank of Somerset's business.

The interior of the banking room speaks convenience and modernity, being spacious and skillfully arranged for the expeditious transaction of routine duties. The principal change made to the old room was to change the location of the directors' room which is now on the mezzanine, leaving more space available for working quarters on the main floor.

The public space, which will afford plenty of room for the transaction of business, is arranged across the front of the area, immediately accessible from the vestibule. The officers' space is located on the north side, in easy access to the public, yet separated by a low rail and therefore semi-private. A private consultation room has been installed adjoining it to the front of the building.

The working space has been scientifically arranged with due consideration to the co-ordination of the various branches of the bank's activities. This space occupies about six hundred square feet, with up-to-date equipment and facilities, and is enclosed by a handsome counterscreen whose base is of verde antique marble. The floor is of terrazzo marble with mosaic border, while the decorations harmonize with the color scheme of the counterscreen. A determined effort has been made on the part of the owners and the builders to avoid over-decoration, and the result is an interior attractive and pleasing, yet in harmony with the exterior. The comfort and convenience of patrons have been considered in the plans, careful attention having been given to the inter-relation and co-ordination of the units.

Ample provision for future requirements as well as for present needs has been made in the safe deposit department, which is reached by means of a passageway at the south end of the public space. To the rear of the safe deposit department are located the committee and extra work room. The owners' vault has been retained and has been supplemented with a new book vault, giving plenty of room for safe deposit boxes, funds and books.

Twenty Millions Off

On March 6th, the City of Baltimore struck twenty millions off its assessment rolls when the ordinance exempting all personal property used in manufacturing was formally approved. By thus encouraging industrial activities, the city will increase its land values and so abundantly make up the apparent loss to its taxable basis.

The City of Pittsburgh has long exempted all merchandise and personal property, and for several years past has been successfully reducing the taxation on buildings. The more profitable commercial and building activities are made, the higher land values become. Land in Pittsburgh is now about double the price of similar land in Baltimore.

All Maryland towns were recently granted the power to relieve buildings and personal property from local taxation by increasing the rate upon land. A number of town boards have already taken advantage of this. Two municipalities—Capitol Heights and Perryville—have completely exempted buildings and personal property and raise all their revenue from land or site values. Hyattsville, Garrett Park and Tacoma Park are levying lower taxes upon buildings than upon sites. The suburb of Roland Park, which has been called a model residence community, has always levied for its maintenance charges upon land alone.

Webster To Be Sentenced Thursday

Carlyle P. Webster, of Deal's Island, who late Tuesday was refused a new trial on the charge of the murder of his bride, Mrs. Bernice Chaney Webster, at the Hotel Belvedere last October, will be sentenced by Judges Dawkins and Heuveler in Part 2 of the Criminal Court, Baltimore, on Thursday of this week.

Webster was convicted of murder in the first degree, the penalty for which is either hanging or life imprisonment. It is probable that after sentence his case will be taken to the Court of Appeals by former State Senator Edward M. Hammond and Attorney W. Trickett Giles.

TAX IMPOSED ON LUXURIES

Ice Cream, Soft Drinks, Etc., Must Yield Tariff To Government

Last Thursday the federal government again dug deep into the pockets of all American citizens, especially the rich and women, when the so-called luxury tax went into effect. Now, when the head of the house takes the family to the corner drug store for sodas, ice-cream and other non-alcoholic beverages, the law will exact a cent for every 10 cents he spends. On ice cream there will be collected a tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof. The same tax will apply to all drinks known as soft drinks, ice-cream sodas, sundaes, and other articles of food and drink.

Brother and sister must do without bonnets, purses, fans, parasols kimonos, silks, or contribute 10 per cent. of the purchase price to the treasury of the United States.

Under the "luxury" tax, 10 per cent. is assessed above a certain figure. An abbreviated list showing the non-taxable price follows:

Cereal beverages containing less than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol are taxed 15 per cent. of the purchase price. Grape juice and other soft drinks, 10 per cent. Sparkling mineral and table waters costing more than 10 cents a gallon are taxed one-fifth of their price.

Carpets and rugs costing more than $5 a yard; picture frames over $10; trunks, $50; valises, traveling bags, suitcases, hat boxes and toilet cases, $25; purses, pocketbooks and handbags, $7.50; portable lighting fixtures, lamps and lamp shades, $25; umbrellas, parasols and sun shades, $4; fans, $1; house coats, smoking jackets, bath or lounge robes, $7.50; men's vests, $5; women's hats and bonnets, $15; men's and boys' hats, $5; caps, $2; men's, women's, boys' and misses' shoes, slippers and pumps, $10; shoes made for crippled or deformed persons are exempt; neckties, $2; men's and boys' silk stockings and hose, $1; women's and misses' silk stockings, $2; men's shirts, $3; pajamas, nightgowns and underwear for both sexes, $5; kimonos, petticoats and waists, $15.

Any articles included in this list which are made of precious metals, or imitation metals, or of furs or hides, are exempted from the payment of this tax, as they are already subjects of special taxes. Suits, coats and overcoats are also exempt from any tax. You cannot evade the silk stocking or hose tax on the ground that your purchases are only partial silk. If silk comprises the major portion of the hose you pay.

All toilet articles except soaps are taxed 1 cent for each 25 cents of the purchase price. Patent medicines are also exempt.

Roll Of Honor Of Marylanders

The Historical Division, Maryland Council of Defense, some time ago sent out a form of "War Service Record" to the family for each name on the roll of Marylanders who lost their lives in the service. A great many of these records have not yet been returned. The Historical Division requests that the records be returned now. If further information is obtained later it may be sent in and will be added to the record. Do not write to Washington for information, but fill out the records as well as possible from information otherwise obtainable; the Historical Division at the proper time will use the records in Washington to complete the State records.

The "Roll of Honor" must be made complete and correct, for the State war history records and for inscription on a memorial. Prompt return of the records is particularly desired in order that presentation of the State certificate of honor may be made to the family. These certificates, engraved on parchment, are ready, signed by the Governor and by the chairman of the Maryland Council of Defense.

The Historical Division mailed a "War Service Record" for every name on the roll of honor if there was a sufficient address known. In any case where no form of "War Service Record" has been received, it will indicate that the Historical Division has not the name or has no mailing address. It is earnestly requested that omissions be reported at once, with name and address of next of kin. The address of the Historical Division is 725 Fidelity Building, Baltimore, Maryland.

REV. J. S. MILLER DIES AT NEWARK

He Was Born In Princess Anne Seventy-Six Years Ago

The Churchman, published in New York city, gives the following account of the death of the Rev. John S. Miller. As Father Miller is well known in this town the item will be of interest to many of our readers.

A priesthood more than fifty-two years was ended April 24th by the death of the Rev. John S. Miller, rector of the House of Prayer at Newark, N. J. Father Miller was stricken with appendicitis at 4 o'clock Easter morning at the rectory. He was removed to St. Barnabas Hospital, where, after the Holy Communion had been administered, an operation was performed. This was pronounced successful and for two days following the priest's condition was regarded as satisfactory. His advanced age, however, made it impossible for him to withstand the shock, and he died on Thursday morning.

Throughout Holy Week Father Miller conducted the services at the House of Prayer. He spent all of Saturday in the church but when evening came the strain of the day made itself felt and appointments had to be abandoned.

Father Miller was the senior clergyman in Newark where his rectorship extended over thirty years. He was loved not only by those to whom he ministered and with whom he associated in diocesan activities but by the many who came under the influence of his personality. He exerted at times a powerful influence in civic life, and for his simple, whole-hearted and self-sacrificing devotion to the members of his church, and his loyalty to Christian standards, he gained the admiration and esteem of clergymen of all creeds. His own ideal for a priest was expressed in his attitude toward his people.

Born seventy-six years ago at Princess Anne, Maryland, Father Miller was educated in that state, studying for the ministry in Baltimore under the late Bishop Whittingham. His father, the late William Miller, was for thirty-seven years senior warden of St. Andrew's Church, Princess Anne. In 1864 Father Miller was ordained a deacon and in 1866 advanced to the priesthood. He served as curate in Mt. Calvary Church, and old St. Paul's Church, Baltimore, and in All Saints' Church, Pittsburgh. Later he became rector of Mt. Calvary Church and chaplain of the Church Home and Infirmary. In 1889 he was called to Newark and under his leadership the House of Prayer has steadily gone forward.

Father Miller had served the Diocese of Newark as examining chaplain. He was a member of its standing committee, was for years an active trustee of St. Barnabas' Hospital, and chairman of its executive board, and was also secretary general of the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament for the Province of New York and New Jersey.

Bombs Mailed To Prominent Men

Postoffice inspectors at New York city reported last Wednesday the discovery there of 17 infernal machines put into the mail addressed to prominent officials, including Cabinet officers.

All were similar to the bomb sent to former Senator Hardwick, of Georgia, which, when opened at the Hardwick home, blew off the hands of a negro maid and injured Mrs. Hardwick.

Among those to whom the deadly packages were addressed were Postmaster General Burleson, Secretary of Labor Wilson, Attorney General Palmer; Commissioner General Caminetti, of the Immigration Bureau; Mayor Hyland, of New York; Governor Sproul, of Pennsylvania; John D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan, Solicitor General Lamar, of the Postoffice Department and F. C. Howe, immigration commissioner at New York.

The discovery followed an investigation ordered after news came of the Hardwick bomb explosion. The packages bore labels of Gimbel Brothers' store and were sealed, but did not have sufficient postage. This caused postal officials to notify Gimbel Brothers, who disclaimed ownership of the packages and said the labels were forged.

The New York police last Thursday received information from the naval intelligence officers that the construction of the bombs sent in the mails to prominent persons showed a startling resemblance in operation and principle to the type of German mines found by the navy off the coast.

Agents of the Department of Justice expressed their belief that the infernal machines were of German origin and possibly imported from Germany. They said that anarchists in this country could not obtain the fulminate of mercury used in the manufacture of the bombs.

Figures never lie. You can prove anything by statistics, provided you make them yourself.

Front!

By Floyd Hamilton Hazard

(Copyright.)

Somewhere within the diminutive body of Cyrus Caesar Jones there lived a spirit which flourished like a green bay tree, in spite of all untoward circumstances.

It was at least a third larger than Jones himself, and, for this reason, the greater part of the time, he had a firm conviction that Jones was quite a man, and equaled almost any high achievement.

He was an alert, practical, business man, with a large store of knowledge dearly purchased at the University of Hard Work; and there was brick dust in his hair. His eyes were of a deep, comprehending blue, and when there was anything worth seeing he seldom closed them. His trim appearance was greatly in his favor; but for the past week it had availed him nothing.

Was it his fault that the old firm had failed?

"No, it was not!"

Was it his fault that his weary search for another position had so far proved utterly fruitless?

Again no!

Was he to blame because his savings had melted away?

Well, hardly!

He was standing on the curb, at the intersection of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, in New York, moodily rehearsing in his mind his recent experiences, as he abstractedly watched the people in the dining room of the enormous hotel opposite.

"What a week!"

His search for similar work had degenerated into a frantic scramble for any kind of work at all. And how, on nothing, pay rent and doctor's bills and acquire food and cash to go on?

"Great heavens!" he thought. "If only I had some cash!"

Cash! Cash! Cash! beat in on his brain.

"Got to have it! Can't get it!" said Jones.

"Can get it!" answered Jones' spirit. "Keep a-going. Can and will get it."

"I'm hungry," complained Jones.

"Shucks!" scoffed his friend. "Pull in your belt a couple of holes!"

At the edge of a pile of gutter-rubbish near Merry's, he noticed a string of pinkish beads.

"The little girl that lost them won't mind if I give them to Helen," he mused, as he slipped them into his pocket. "A trifling present and a doubtful one, but a big help at that. It isn't her fault that she doesn't know I'm out of work."

He cleaned them in the fountain and placed them in the lonely security of his empty purse.

A copy of the morning's paper was stuck between the slats of the bench on which he sat. He was too tired, too harassed by doubt and fear and hunger, to read; so he carried it with him.

This spirit of his made him stop to sympathize with a little girl on roller-skates, who had fallen and bumped her nose, near his home. It also nerved him to greet the doctor at the entrance to this up-to-date tenement.

"Hullo, doc! How's my wife?" he genially inquired, with a sinking heart.

"All right," was the reply. "The crisis came at noon today, and she will recover, if you can manage the diet. But how about my bill?"

"Again was Jones prompted.

"How about your bill? Why! Aren't you Doctor Bill?" he laughed. "Can't let you stop treatment yet, you know. See you tomorrow."

Satisfied, the doctor left him; but there was another touch needed to almost complete his misery. Jones met the agent.

"Your rent has been overdue five days," was this individual's pleasant salutation.

"I know it," answered Jones nonchalantly. "Would a check on the First Commercial do you right now?" he queried in a bantering tone.

"It would, if I could get it," was the reply in forbidding tones.

"Well!" said Jones cheerfully. "Don't look so grumpy! Let's be happy. Come round and see me tomorrow night."

His feet seemed fastened to the steps as he slowly dragged them up the five flights of stairs, but after the click of the latch-key his heavy heart was lifted by a glad cry as he entered the little three-room flat.

"Cyrus! Oh, you dear! Come quickly and let me press you close! The doctor says I will soon be well. Well! Yes! Completely and soundly well! What do you think of that?"

"Think!" he choked, as he bent over the bed and kissed his invalid wife. "Why, Helen, darling! I can't think for the glory of it!"

"Hooray!" shouted Jones and his spirit. "Hooray!"

There was a wall from the crib by the bedside.

"Hullo, son!" he cried, as he caught up the baby and kissed him. "Mommer is a goin' to get well! Dye hear that! Yes, sir! Listen to that and quit it—you dear little Indian!"

He drew up a chair and sat heavily upon it, the child in his arms.

"What is it that you need tonight, dear heart?" he inquired.

"Two prescriptions, some more port wine, milk and eggs," she answered.

"Oh, dear! Sickiness is so terribly expensive. I just know it is costing more than your income, even with all that the people in the house have done for me."

"Well, I'm a long way from being poor yet," he countered. "Poor? Well, I should say not! Can anyone call me poor, with you and the baby, and a job, and a roof over it all? Poor? With me managing things? Not! Cheer up, girlie, and see what I've got for you. It's just a little something for you to wear the next Sunday you're able to go out."

She took the necklace and admired it. Then she held out her arms to him. "You thoughtful, noble boy," she whispered.

"Oh, Cy, dear! I forgot to tell you. The man was here today and turned off the gas. He said the bill hadn't been paid."

"Well, what a stupid oversight on my part! I'll stop in there and make them have it turned on again tonight."

"How have things gone with you today, sweetheart? Dear me! You look completely worn out."

"Fine!" he lied, and turned away his face. "Now I must go, and I won't leave you alone a minute longer than I can help. Here is today's paper. You can read it tomorrow."

He tossed the copy he had picked up in the park upon the bed.

When the door closed behind him, Jones collapsed. He was all in. Not so, however, with Jones' spirit. It took him, willy-nilly, to the druggist's, the grocer's, the dairy, and the gas office; and it forced Jones to make the four greatest "talks" of his life.

"The grand smash for mine tomorrow night!" said Jones to himself, on his way back to the house.

Half famished as he was, Jones managed to control himself and to cook his supper before he ate it. By the time he had devoured it his whole being was shouting for relaxation and rest. So, after rapid preparations for the night, he sought his cot, which had been set up in the little dining room, stretched himself upon it, and immediately fell into deep sleep.

From a phantasmagoria of doctors, sick persons, hospitals, babies, sour-faced men who refused him work, house agents, tradesmen, children on roller-skates, little girls who had lost things, restaurants where he had eaten but could not pay, the police, jails, and the like, he was released by a cry from his wife. He awoke, and with a bound was on his feet.

It was early morning.

"What is it, Helen, darling?" he cried, as he rushed into the next room, fear gripping him.

She was propped up by a pillow and was excitedly reading the copy of the newspaper he had given her the night before.

"My beads, Cyrus! My beads!" she exclaimed. "Where did you get them?"

He sat weakly down upon the foot of the bed.

"Down-town," he faltered.

"Did you buy them or did you find them?" she questioned eagerly.

"I found them near Merry's on Fifth avenue," he replied shamefacedly, certain that all his perfidy was now discovered.

"Oh, splendid! I just knew it! I was certain of it. Here, read that."

He took the paper and saw:

$1,000.00 reward and no questions asked upon the return of plain necklace of sixty-nine (69) rose-tinted pearls, recently lost on Fifth avenue, Forty-second to Fifty-ninth streets.

H. T. LEFFINGWOLD, Hotel Shropshire.

"Helen, it can't be true!" he gasped as the two gazed at each other, wide-eyed.

"Let me see them, quick!"

She withdrew the necklace from its hiding place under her pillow.

His sleep-laden eyes brightened as he beheld it. He examined the beads carefully and counted them.

"Pearls!"

No doubt of it whatever in the light of his present information.

Jones' home-coming on this day of all days was a triumphal progress. He and his spirits were making holiday.

When his latch-key again admitted him he had receipts in full from the doctor and from his creditors of the previous night.

There was also a slip which recorded the fact that he had paid two months' rent in advance, properly signed by the astonished agent.

In the inner pocket of his vest there was also, reposing snugly, a bank-book.

"Was it true?" she called anxiously as he entered. "Was it really and truly true?"

"As true as ever was, sweetheart," he answered chuckling, as he came into her presence. "And here is another present."

"What! A bank-book!"

"Nothing less, my dear. And it records the wealth of Helen Jones."

"Not all of it," she answered, flushed with joy. "It is the very least of my possessions."

She cuddled her baby closer and gave Jones a long, fond look through wet eyes.

"But that isn't all, dearest," said Jones. "I've secured another position, a much better one."

"You have? How is that?"

"The man who owned the fifteen thousand dollars' worth of pearls paid the reward and refused to ask any questions; but I insisted in making a full explanation. We finally had a long conversation and he incidentally mentioned that he had long needed a capable manager. He said, however, that he had searched in vain for a man of spirit and was about to give up the task in despair."

"And what did you say to that, Cy, dear?"

"I said 'I am the man,'" answered Jones truthfully. "And, what is more, I succeeded in proving it to him. But that is another story."

Velvet is a friendly tobacco in the truest sense, because, like friendship, it has been allowed to ripen naturally—nothing forced or unnatural.

There are "hurry up" ways with tobacco but only patient aging (two years in wooden hogsheads) can bring out the mellowness that sets Velvet apart.

PLANT MORE CHERRY TREES

Good Reasons for Urging Increased Cultivation of Useful and Pretty Bearers of Fruit.

Although in at least two states, Pennsylvania and Ohio, there are more than 1,000,000 cherry trees and nearly as many in several other states, the commercial interests are relatively small compared with several other fruits in which the number of trees is considerably less.

In the south the summers are too long and hot, as a rule, for cherries to do well, and they do their best at the higher altitudes.

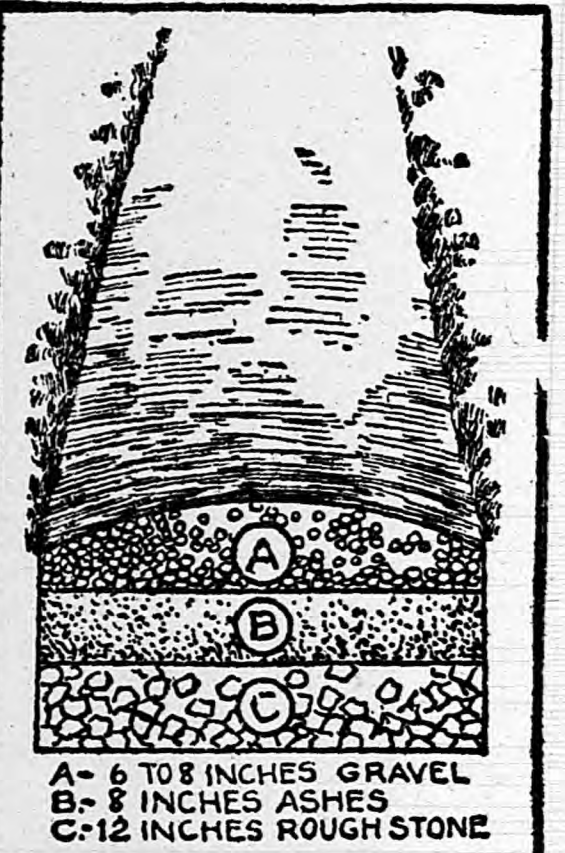

In their endurance of low temperatures sour cherries compare favorably with apples. Sweet cherries are less hardy than sour sorts. Their endurance of cold corresponds more nearly to that of the peach.

Cherries are sensitive to a poorly drained soil. Clay soils, extremely retentive of moisture, give the poorest results, and the lighter, better drained soils the best. Soils that dry out excessively are also unsatisfactory. Moderately productive soils give better results than those which represent either extreme in fertility. Cherries blossom comparatively early, the sweet sorts earlier in most cases than the sour varieties; therefore sites that are subject to spring frosts during the usual blossoming period should be avoided.

MAKES GOOD GRAVEL WALK

Directions for Building Pathway That Will Last for Years and Always Be Dry.

To make a good gravel walk first dig a deep trench the full width of the walk. Fill up the first, or bottom, 12 inches of the trench, with stones, including those found in digging it. On this have a layer of ashes 8 to 12 inches deep when well rolled. Finish off with about 6 inches of gravel, shaped so as to give a rounded surface, highest in the center.

This will soon pack down into a hard surface that will always be dry.

Many Factors in Tree Planting.

In places the trees along the roadside form screens so as to break up the long stretches of views and allow openings here and there which frame and make more attractive the roadside scenery. Again, certain varieties of trees are more suitable for highway planting than others, according to the use to which they will be put. The factor of planting for the protection afforded the pavement through shade during the hot summer months, thereby adding many years to its life, and the assistance given by the proper planting of shrubs and trees in keeping the drifting snow from the roadside during the winter season should be likewise considered.

Business and Residential Streets.

Keeping business off residential streets means keeping it on business streets. Haphazard development hurts business property as much as it does residence property. The sporadic store invading quiet home streets not only demoralizes residential values; in decentralizing the shopping district it also disintegrates business values.

Viewed in every way the experience of New York has clearly demonstrated that no large city can afford to do without zoning.—American Architect.

Character and Careers.

Some one has said that character is greater than any career, and nothing that you will ever accomplish compares in importance to the making of yourself. To be noble, pure and strong, with courage for every misfortune, a helping hand for whoever needs it, and kindness for all, is worth more than to write one's name high in the list of those the world counts great.—Girl's Companion.

The Way to Save Time.

The only way to save time is to use it. We can put our money into the savings bank to be kept for us till we are ready to use, but there is no such thing as putting by our leisure moments till we need them. If you would save time, use it, for you cannot hoard it.—Girl's Companion.

DAIRY

CLOVER FOR EARLY PASTURE

Highly Valued by Dairymen as Substitute for Silage and for Green Feed in Spring.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Excepting rye, crimson clover is the earliest pasture available. In the spring in the Middle Atlantic states from New Jersey to North Carolina crimson clover is grown mostly for soil improving and for hay.

Crimson clover pasture is especially valuable for hogs and sheep, which relish this clover quite as much as they do red clover and alfalfa. It is highly valued by dairymen as a substitute for silage and as a means of obtaining green feed very early in the season. Many dairymen pasture their cows on crimson clover in order to save their silage for dry spells during the summer. An average acre of crimson clover furnishes dry pasture for two or three cows and reduces the amount of silage that must be fed by about one-half.

Hogs, sheep and light cattle can be run on upland pastures throughout the winter and early spring except when snow is on the ground. Heavy cattle must not be turned on the fields when the ground is soft, although crimson clover is not injured by trampling as much as permanent blue grass sod. Crimson clover is not as likely to cause bloating as other clovers, but cattle, and especially young cattle, should not be allowed to graze when the clover is covered with frost.

DEFECTS IN BUTTER MAKING

Cooling Too Quickly or Working at Too Low Temperature Makes Butter Brittle.

Butter that possesses a perfect texture has a flinty appearance. If the grain is destroyed it is usually the result of overworking or of too high temperatures. Such butter has a weak, greasy body. Cooling too quickly or working at too low temperatures, makes butter brittle and crumbly. If milky brine is present, it shows the lack of thorough washing. Leaky butter results from lack of thorough incorporation of wash water through washing in a fine granular form with cold water, then working insufficiently. A dry body is due to excessive churning or high churning temperature.

PROVIDE CALF WITH SALT

Supply of Clean, Fresh Water, Always Available is Another Simple Requisite.

By the time the dairy calf is old enough to eat roughage it should have either access to or small daily offerings of salt. Plenty of clean, fresh water, constantly available, is another simple and inexpensive requisite of good calf care that is too often neglected. Because a calf receives milk to drink is no reason why it does not require water. After the calf is two weeks old it needs water in small amounts at a time, though often.

NEW MILK FOR YOUNG CALVES

They Should Have It for First Two Weeks and Gradually Be Weaned to Skim Milk.

Young calves ought to have new milk for the first two weeks of their lives, then they can gradually be weaned from new milk to skim milk, and at three or four weeks of age you can take the skim milk away from them by substituting a combination of grains and hay, or any other dry forage that they will consume. Then gradually teach them to eat whole grain, like oats and corn, and give this to them extra besides their porridge.

Remarkable Women Rulers.

Remarkable in many ways was Elizabeth Petrovna, empress of Russia, and daughter of Peter the Great. She died 157 years ago, after a reign of 20 years. While history knows her chiefly for her immortality, she left behind her monuments to her better nature the University of Moscow and the Academy of Fine Arts in Petrograd. Empress Elizabeth's mother was the Empress Catherine, who had been the wife of a Swedish dragoon, and became the mistress of several men before Peter the Great married her. Her daughter, Elizabeth Petrovna, when she ruled Russia, once became so mortified by one of the jests of Frederick the Great that she made war on the witty Prussian king, and until her death Russia was one of his most dangerous enemies.

Ant's Sweet Tooth

One of the greatest pests that haunt our orange groves is the Argentine ant, and yet it has a very sweet tooth. Every bit of damage it does indirectly. It seems that it has a very sweet tooth and is abnormally fond of a honey dew that is secreted by certain mealy bugs and scales that are most injurious, and it will go to any lengths to protect them from being destroyed or harmed in any way.

In Louisiana they have discovered a way of trapping these ants. They construct nests and when they all congregate there, as they will in rainy weather, they can destroy them.

In California they poison them with poison syrup. When they are once gone it is easy enough to deal with their friends.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 6, 1919

The kickers who knock the home town couldn't be hired or driven to move away from it.

The people who go from church to church looking for one that satisfies them are sort of steeple chasers.

Under Daylight saving the sports have to get up and go to work by clock time, but they stay up at night by sun time.

In spite of the fact that invariably at this time of year the peach crop is killed off by the newspapers, some reckless and imprudent people will continue to plant peach trees.

The Germans are reported singing the Star Spangled Banner, but not with the same enthusiasm with which they toasted the men who drowned the women and babies on the Lusitania.

As usual a large number of people who are living in comfort and luxury, expressed entire confidence in the ability and willingness of George to put up the money to bring the soldiers home.

There would be more sympathy for unemployed women if there weren't some millions of people who desire domestic helpers, but can't find anyone who will disgrace herself by doing housework.

No particular reason why the Huns should sign the peace treaty if they don't want it, as a refusal on their part would give the United States an excuse for giving its food to those who deserve it.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR SPRING TIME

It does not take long to clean up a town and it does not take long to get it in disorder again. One of the worst features of the modern community center is the habit of littering up the streets with waste paper.

The people are buying large quantities of candy, fruit, chewing gum and various little eatables. Most of these things are sold in bags and little paper containers. A large part of this stuff is eaten on the street. And three-quarters of the people immediately throw the wrapper away. People throw away torn newspaper fragments, handbills are scattered and waste come from many other sources. A town cleaned up one day may be all in disorder again by the next night.

The larger cities and towns keep street cleaners who spend their time picking up the needless litter which people leave. It seems folly that the people should spend their hard earned money hiring workers to pick up the needless waste that they leave about the street.

This condition can only be improved by a campaign of popular education. The Marylander and Herald would like to begin right here and now. It asks every citizen of Princess Anne and every visitor to consider these streets as your home and to be ashamed to litter them up as you would be to leave dirty waste kicking around your parlor.

No matter how attractively maintained the roadways and the private grounds may be, if there are a lot of waste papers blowing around the town, there is going to be an air of neglect and dirt. It will injure the good name of the community and tend to discourage people from improving their own property as they naturally would at this time of year. Don't throw waste paper on the streets. Take it home and sell it to the junk man or burn it.

MORE ABOUT ADVERTISING

In a non-advertising town, the easy going merchant would live a comfortable life unless he spoiled his peace of mind by cherishing ambitions. If he kept a clean looking store in a good location he would get his share of the trade. Business would go by luck and chance and personal friendship and habit.

The store that had the best location would get the most trade. People would buy at the store where they could save the most steps. They would not go around a corner to get better values because they would not know those values were there.

Retail trade would come down to a dead level of uniformity. A man who did his best and gave good values would be pretty sure of a meagre living, but there would be no chance for him to get ahead. He could not get any public support to back him up when he showed a spirit of enterprise.

THE DEHYDRATING INDUSTRY

The Civil war is said to have given a great impetus to the industry of canning fruits and vegetables. Soldiers who previously would have thrown canned stuff into the garbage pail, learned to use it as the result of camp conditions. Since then the canning industry has been greatly developed and has become one of the big enterprises of the nation.

Now some are predicting that the dehydrating industry, the drying of fruits and vegetables, will become equally popular as a result of the war experiences. Many women are attempting it in their homes and efforts are being made to market the product on a big scale. It is no new thing.

People brought up in country homes of 30 or more years ago, can remember the long strings of dried apples and other fruits that were swung to the rafters of many farm homes. And they were a great food resource to carry over the winter.

The dried product is very advantageous in these days of congested railroads. It takes comparatively little space and does not weigh much. One railroad car will carry dried vegetables containing all the nutrient carried in six cars of the original product, which is expanded and weighed down by the enormous bulk of water contained.

The dehydrating industry is still in the experimental stage. It will take much technical skill to turn out a product that will sell at the stores as readily as canned foods. The government warns the public before buying stock in such companies to make sure that the particular enterprise is started on a sound basis.

It will take a lot of advertising to popularize this produce. But a tremendous future can be predicted for this business. It will provide an inexpensive food and market vast quantities of perishable products now wasted.

THE SUCKER CATCH

The United States has many valuable fisheries. But all the salmon and cod and mackerel may not equal the great catch of suckers to be made this year. The pursuers thereof have their eyes firmly fastened on the $20,000,000,000 which the American people have invested in Liberty bonds. They propose to transfer a large portion of that amount to their own pockets.

Many Liberty bond holders who know little or nothing about investments are being told by smart talkers and wily circularizers, that the Liberty bonds pay too little interest. They are informed that they can swap them off for securities sure to pay very large interest and yet have their capital perfectly safe. These golden dreams are enticing a great many people. Those who are not familiar with investments should realize two facts:

1—There is an organized effort of dishonest promoters to issue securities of either worthless or very doubtful value and exchange them for Liberty bonds.

2—A great many visionary and impractical people who may be honest but have never made a success of anything yet, will try to get hold of some of this money to put into their wildcat speculations.

A vast amount of this Liberty bond money is going to be lost in these schemes and projects. This will be a damage to the country because every dollar of existing capital is needed for the development of legitimate enterprises. Of course it is not true that all new enterprises are either fraudulent or dangerous. A great many of them are sound and should have financial backing so that the country can be developed. But in the main these should be left to the bankers and business men accustomed to dealing with this class of propositions. Small investors with little financial experience do well to hang on to their Liberty bonds.

Do Your Best

Everyone should do all he can to provide for his family and in order to do this he must keep his physical system in the best condition possible. No one can reasonably hope to do much when he is half sick a good share of the time. If you are constipated, bilious or troubled with indigestion get a package of Chamberlain's Tablets and follow the plain pated directions, and you will be feeling alright and able to do a day's work.

Order of Publication

Granville P. Webster, et al. vs. William D. Webster et al., heirs of John P. Webster, and of Martha W. Webster, both deceased

No. 3305 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate of both John P. Webster and Martha W. Webster, his wife, both deceased, for the purpose of partition among their heirs-at-law after subjecting the proceeds of the interest of Martha W. Webster to the payment of her debts.

The Bill in substance states that John P. Webster, late of Somerset county, died intestate in the year 1897 leaving a lot of land in the said Tangier District, Somerset county, Maryland, which he purchased from Levin Anderson, and that the said Martha W. Webster, late of Somerset county, died intestate in February, 1918, leaving a lot of land in Tangier District, Somerset county, containing two acres and twenty poles of land, which she purchased of Robert J. Waller, executor of Robert J. Waller, deceased, and which is subject to a lien in favor of the United States and assigned to Granville P. Webster, that the said John P. Webster and Martha W. Webster were husband and wife and left the following children and grandchildren as their only heirs-at-law, viz: Granville P. Webster, who intermarried with Lillie E. Webster; William D. Webster, who intermarried with Ursula Webster; Eva Price, who intermarried with John S. Price; Eva Kelly, Addie Horseman and Elma Webster, widow and daughters of J. Elmer Webster, deceased; John E. Webster, who intermarried with Mamie A. Webster; Harvey O. Webster, who intermarried with Sophia Webster, all of full age and reside in Somerset county, except John P. Webster and wife and Harvey O. Webster and wife, who reside in Baltimore city, and Edith K. Cassidy, who intermarried with Samuel Cassidy, adults who are non-residents of this State and reside in Keyport, N. J., and that said children and grandchildren are seized in fee simple, in equal shares as tenants in common of the said two lots of land, subject to the lien of the said mortgage against Martha W. Webster's interest; that said land is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein; that Martha W. Webster left no personal property whatever, at least none sufficient to pay her debts due at the time of her death; that all the land herein mentioned should be sold and the proceeds divided among the parties entitled to interests therein after subjecting the interest of Martha W. Webster to the payment of her just debts, and especially the judgment lien aforesaid.

It is thereupon this 8th day of April, 1919, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in equity, that the plaintiffs, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset county once in each of four successive weeks before the 7th day of May, 1919, give notice to the said defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 15th day of May, 1919, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Never Lose Hope.

Hope is something to be busy with. It is something of which we should accumulate a store. Always have plenty of hopes, and have them so that they will reach out and last away into the years of the future.

There is really something mysterious about a hope. If you will cherish it faithfully and keep it warm in your heart, you will be almost sure to some time realize it. It is said that we are what we believe ourselves to be. But, perhaps, we might better say that we are what our hopes are.

By HORTENSE CALDWELL.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Three days after Marion Holt returned home from the seashore, she received a letter written in an unfamiliar hand.

"Now who do you suppose this is from?" she inquired, as she waved the letter in front of her mother's eyes. "I presume the best way to find out is to open it," her mother replied smiling.

Marion opened it eagerly and gave the contents a hurried glance. "Listen to this, mother," she said as she unfolded the entire sheet.

"My Dear Miss Holt—I am anxiously hoping you will not feel offended at my writing to you in this manner, but as I expected you were to stay at Sea Crest the remainder of the summer, I was counting on having an introduction to you sooner or later. When I heard that you had gone back to the city yesterday I saw how slow I had been in not abiding by that old proverb, 'don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today.' I am at Sea Crest recuperating from a severe illness, and if you would spare me a few minutes of your most valuable time, I should be more than delighted to hear from you.

"Sincerely,
"TED NORTON."

"Oh, mother, isn't that a nice letter?" Marion exclaimed as she laid it down on the table.

"Why, yes, it's nice enough, but you shouldn't write to a stranger like that," objected her mother.

"But the poor fellow has been sick, and I'm only going to cheer him up. I shall probably never see him anyway," Marion argued.

After more debating, Marion finally won her side of the question and sat down to write him a little note.

"I won't be able to write so often now," he wrote, "but I shall be waiting for mail from Marion Holt always."

The weeks flew by, bringing Christmas and all its joys. Marion observed it by sending Ted her photograph, and within three weeks' time had his in return.

One day a letter came telling Marion he had been granted a furlough. Of course, she lived on excitement until the time came when she should see her "adopted soldier." But fate had doomed her to disappointment once more, as on the morning of his appointed arrival a telegram came to the house. "Furlough canceled. Write later," it read. Marion tried her best to hide her disappointment, but her mother could read it in her face.

"Never mind, Marion," she said, comfortingly, "he'll be home for good soon, we hope."

"That doesn't do any good now—this very day," Marion said despairingly.

In order to bear it better she sat down and wrote Ted a long letter, telling him how disappointed she had been when that telegram had come. She wrote on and on, writing things she never would have dreamed of saying had he been sitting beside her. At the end she related some funny experience she had had since the last letter, and then ended with the hope of seeing him soon.

Seven months more slipped by without so much as a glimpse of Ted Norton, and then one day the whole country was in an uproar of joy. Agreeable terms had been found and hostilities had ceased in the war-stricken land. The camps at home had begun to demobilize and soldiers and sailors had already begun to start on their way homeward.

The morning of the last day of the last month of the year dawned bright and sunny. The telephone rang jerkily and Marion ran to answer it before her mother could reach it before her.

"Hello, Miss Holt—Marion," a voice said in a musical tone.

"Hello, who is this speaking, please?" Marion answered back.

"This is your very grateful friend, one who is too grateful to tell you over the telephone. May I call this evening?"

"Certainly," she replied; "I'm so glad to hear from you."

After a few words he shut off and Marion lost no time in telling her mother the joyful news. The anticipation had been very pleasant, but now the time had come when she was really to meet him. His voice sounded like a flute, mother," she added when she finished her story.

Her mother smiled. Oh, the joy of youth, the ever-softening spirit of youth! She thought of how she had met Marion's father years ago, and how her head was just as care-free then as was her daughter's now.

Promptly at eight o'clock the bell rang, and a rather excited Marion went to answer the call. What she saw that night on the step did justice to her mental picture.

After that Ted was a frequent visitor at the Holt house, much to the delight of all the family. One evening three weeks later Ted called at his usual hour, but with a very different expression on his face. As he looked into Marion's eyes, he said: "My dear, your letters were like the angels themselves sent down from above to cheer me when I was away. I just know we were made for each other—and I'm going to prove it to you," he added as he slipped a sparkling diamond on her third finger. "Will you let me show you, Marion, dear?"

Marion smiled bewitchingly and gave him her answer in that smile.

No Farm Too Large or Too Small for a Cleveland

CAPABLE of doing a great volume of work; yet so designed and so easily operated that it gets into the corners.

The owner of a small farm can use the Cleveland just as profitably as the owner of a big one. And another advantage is that it works on all kinds of soils. It lays its own track as it goes along and does not pack the soil.

The Cleveland tractor has proven itself able to plow from 8 to 10 acres per day in medium soil, with a two-bottom Oliver plow.

Use it with an Oliver Plow for best results!

Oliver plows were designed especially for tractor service. The rolling coupler and jointer bury all trash and weeds at the bottom of the furrow. The stop device maintains an even depth of furrow. A trip rope enables the operator to control the plow from his seat on the tractor. The plow points enter and leave the ground first, affording good clean furrows clear to the ends of the field.

Come to our salesroom any time and I will show you many other good features of the Cleveland tractor and Oliver plows.

LIGHT ON UNKNOWN LANDS

Explorer Added Greatly to World's Knowledge of Customs of Peculiar Peoples and Tribes.

Returning in April, 1917, from one of his trips, Capt. Theodore de Booy, the archeologist and explorer of previously unknown regions of Santo Domingo and Venezuela, who died in New York, brought with him a "swallow or regurgitating stick" from the Virgin Islands.

The "swallow stick" was believed to have been used in worship by a West Indian priest more than 400 years ago. It was about five inches long, and carved from the rib of a sea cow, in the image of one of the West Indian tribal gods. It was said that there were only three other such sticks in existence.

Previously unknown regions in the mountains between Venezuela and Colombia were explored by Captain De Booy. No white man had ever before entered the high and cloud-capped mountains of that country, which are inhabited entirely by Indian tribes. It took many days of difficult mountain climbing to reach the heights—where the tribes live in a land of perpetual mist and cold, although within ten degrees of the equator. Captain De Booy reported that for the most part he had found the natives friendly. At the start he was chosen to lead a campaign against a neighboring tribe to obtain women and other booty. All the material results of the expedition save the women were offered him, but he declined.

Captain De Booy conducted archeological investigations in the Bahamas, Cuba, Jamaica, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Turks and Caicos islands, Margarita, Trinidad, Martinique, Venezuela and the Virgin islands of the United States.

CITY OF GREAT FINANCIERS

Frankfort-on-Main Celebrated for Remarkable Men of Genius It Has Given to World.

Frankfort, the famous German town on the River Main, is the birthplace of the world's greatest millionaires. It is a wealthy commercial city, and quite disproportionately famous in comparison with its actual size.

The Rothschilds, whose ancestral home is now the solitary relic of the once famous Jewish quarter of the city; the Sterns and the Speyers in England, and the Kahns, the Kuhns, Loeb & Co., in this country, would alone suffice to make it remarkable as the birthplace of international financiers.

Even more extraordinary is the number of successful financial firms which had their birth or whose founders were born on the banks of the Main. The reason which is usually given for this seemingly strange coincidence is that the geographical position of Frankfort is such that a mixture of races is fostered, and that has been proved to be specially favorable to financial genius.

What Every Man Expects.

Oh, yes, it is perfectly easy for any woman to learn to cook, writes Helen Rowland.

All in the world you need is the "right spirit, my dear."

And a stove and a cook book, and a bungalow apron. And—the genius of a Newton, the science of a Savarin, the patience of a Griselda, the agility of a Charlie Chaplin, the judgment of Solomon, the skill of Ariel, the imagination of Jules Verne, the persistence of Delilah, the versatility of Mrs. Fiske, the sure aim of Christy Mathewson, the coolness and composure of "Central," the calm decision of Haroun-al-Raschid, the thumbs of a blacksmith, the skin of a salamander, the batting average of Ty Cobb, the bluff of Cagliostro, the nerve of Jess Willard, the self-assurance of a Kaiser, the faith of Joan of Arc, and—the meekness of a worm!

Happiness in Work.

"Only regular, happy, productive work can give life its full savor," said Jules Payot in the "Education of the Will." "That upwelling sense of energy which we call the joy of living can only arise and be made part of daily life by work. He who does nothing at all has plenty of time to chew the cud of petty annoyances. The mind 'gnaws itself,' to use a popular French expression."

"When a soldier or laborer complains of the work he has to do let him be put to doing nothing," says Pascal, and Darwin testifies to the wretchedness of idleness with the remark, "During my stay at Maer my health has been poor and I have been scandalously lazy. The impression that this has made upon me is that nothing is so unbearable as laziness."

Webster's Log Cabin.

It did not happen to me to be born in a log cabin; but my elder brothers and sisters were born in a log cabin, raised among the snowdrifts of New Hampshire at a period so early that when the smoke first rose from its rude chimney and curled over the frozen hills there was no similar evidence of a white man's habitation between it and the settlements on the rivers of Canada. Its remains still exist; I make it annual visit. I carry my children to it, to teach them the hardships endured by the generations which have gone before them. I love to dwell on the tender recollections, the kindred ties, the early affections, and the touching narratives and incidents, which mingle with all I know of this primitive family abode.—Daniel Webster.

PROTECTION OF FEEDER HOGS

Department of Agriculture Conducts System of Vaccination Against Hog Cholera.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In an effort to protect the swine industry of the country against the possibility of introducing sick hogs into well herds, and at the same time to permit the shipment from stock yards of stocker and feeder hogs, the United States department of agriculture conducts a system of vaccination against cholera as a part of its inspection service at the various stock yard centers. More than 324,000 hogs were immunized for shipment as stockers, and feeders from stock yards of 18 cities during the six months from July to December, 1918, inclusive. To accomplish this without spreading disease, in the face of all the attendant dangers, required, of course, such close care that the wisdom of some phases of the inspection system may not have been always apparent to all concerned.

With swine moving by railroads and trainloads from producing areas into public stock yards of the country, says the statement, the pens of such yards are inevitably infected with the common swine diseases, of which cholera is the most important. Owing to this condition federal regulations formerly required the slaughter of swine received, but after the serum and virus treatment against hog cholera was standardized the possibility of reshipping immature hogs for further feeding resulted in a modification of the rules. Under the plan now in force swine properly vaccinated and disinfected may be reshipped for any purpose, including breeding.

Immunizing hogs against cholera is a veterinary procedure, including the preventive-serum treatment, taking of temperatures and observing the condition of the animal during the test period. Necessarily the official regulations are of technical character, and it has come to the attention of the department of agriculture that in some cases the rules have been misinterpreted so as to make them appear responsible for fluctuation in the stock-hog market.

For the information of the public, the bureau of animal industry outlines briefly the method of inspection:

All public stock yards are considered to be infected and swine are, therefore, exposed to the contagion from the time of their entry into the yards; consequently it is important that they be immunized promptly after arrival at such yards, to protect them against contracting the disease.

For that reason the department opposes the immunization of swine that have been so exposed for more than five days. Hogs, though they may not show physical symptoms of cholera, may in some instances be affected with the disease to such an extent that immunization will not protect them.

It is not permissible to immunize swine for immediate shipment interstate if they show symptoms of contagious or infectious disease.

If a considerable percentage of the animals in a lot is found to have high temperatures, the possible presence of such disease is indicated and the animals are not immunized or permitted to be shipped interstate. It is possible to have hogs with high temperatures as a result of conditions surrounding the shipment to market, in which case they will return to normal within a short time.

Counties Making The City Hustle

Baltimore Spurred To New Endeavor In Putting Over The Victory Loan.

From all over the State there come to the Maryland Victory Liberty Loan Committee reports of the most encouraging nature, forecasting an early clean-up of the quota of the loan assigned to each county.

The first counties that had the honor of going over the top were Garrett, Carroll and Frederick, and they are being followed quickly by others.

Stimulated by the example set by the rest of the State the city workers have gone to their task with renewed efforts.

When the word went along the line that the counties appeared to be outstripping the city in subscribing their quotas there was a general hustling around the city headquarters and the result of redoubled exertions was soon in evidence.

In some quarters it was feared that individuals would not have an opportunity to share in the purchase of bonds and would be without the honor of wearing buttons and displaying the loan emblem in their homes as the Maryland boys are coming home.

The boys are coming soon and they will be able to readily know which homes stuck to them to the last by the display of the Victory Loan emblems. This will be a far more encouraging sign than all the "welcome" posters that could be plastered over the side of a house.

Of course, it is universally known that this Victory Liberty Loan is, from the point of the investor, the best of all the war-time propositions. It is a short term—five year loan, and the interest rate is especially attractive.

But above all it stands for the success of the American arms in war. It represents the difference between Victory and defeat, and surely every one wants a share in the Victory.

Lone Tree of 1849.

There was an immense cottonwood, four feet thick and very tall, which stood in Nebraska almost in the center of the continent, half-way between New York and San Francisco, which was within one mile of that center. Under its branches rested thousands of forty-niners en route to the Eldorado of the Pacific coast. It was the best known camping ground on the old California trail. From 1849, when the gold seekers rushed across the great plains down to the completion of the Union Pacific railway, the great tree was a guidepost to the wagon trains going West.

After the railway was completed there was no further use for the old tree and it eventually rotted away and died. In 1910 a monument was erected on the spot that the tree had occupied. It represents the trunk of a giant cottonwood and bears this inscription: "On this spot stood the original Lone Tree on the old California trail."

OBSTACLES MET BY AGENTS

Extension Workers Exercise Patience and Tact in Overcoming Much Resistance.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In boys' and girls' club work prejudice and preconceived opinion, founded on lack of knowledge or misrepresentation, are two obstacles that county agents and demonstrators meet every day. To surmount them is not the easiest task; to convert opposition into hearty support is an achievement calling for unusual patience and tact. That both of these virtues are possessed in large measure by a majority of the extension workers may be adduced from the reports constantly coming to that bureau.

A farmer in Maryland had no use for "book farming." He upbraided his son, a member of a boys' club, for following the agent's instructions in seed-corn selection. He called the test for 100 per cent germination "foolishness," and walked off in utter disgust. The boy, encouraged by his instructor, kept at it, demonstrated the proposition, grew the selected seed, and got a typical high-grade crop, a decided contrast to dad's. That settled it. The "foolishness" turned out to be "a good idea." The farmer has become an enthusiast.

At the very outset a woman demonstrator in a northern county of Texas was opposed by the parents of a bright village girl, anxious to become a member of a boys and girls' club. The mother was not a believer in "these new-fangled ideas" and the father had no sympathy with any "crazy theory stuff." In spite of the absence of any form of invitation, the demonstrator spent the night with them. Before the family awoke in the morning she went into the kitchen, made biscuits according to the "new-fangled idea," helped in the preparation of the breakfast and—well, the biscuits conquered.

Today that little girl is the leading member of a club. During the past season her garden was such a success that she will have a bigger one this year, and the co-operation of her parents. And, according to them, "any time that agent comes this way she'll find welcome on the door."

One more instance, the three covering some of the important phases of agent work in the South: The colored farmers of a certain county in a far Southern state used to pay no attention to crop rotation or diversification. They grew the same crops in the same fields, only such produce as suited their particular whim. Nor did they see any necessity for home sanitation. They didn't know anything about the necessity for either, and cared less. As for the county agent, he was an intruder. They have different ideas today. Not only do they grow the right crops, but also they take pride in the appearance of their fields and buildings. There is a friendly rivalry among them now, and the one-time intruding agent is besought to set them right in all their problems.

Thus opposition can be overcome today more than ever through the proper approach, the stick-to-it attitude, and the tact of the county and field agents and demonstrators of the extension service.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

When barley is fed to live stock, the grain should be crushed.

Quality is more important than size in selecting the breeding stock.

At present prices there is no cheaper grain feed for breeding ewes than oats.

No intelligent sheep raiser, no matter if he owns a large or small flock, will breed ewe lambs.

Both barley and oats should be ground for pigs, and a high protein feed like ground soy beans, tunkage or linseed oil meal fed with them.

BANKERS TO MEET AT SEASHORE

Maryland Association Will Go To Atlantic City May 21 and 22

The Maryland Bankers' Association, of which W. S. Gordy, cashier of the Salisbury National Bank, is president; Charles C. Homer, Jr., president of the Second National Bank, and also president of the Savings Bank of Baltimore, is vice-president, will hold its annual session on Wednesday and Thursday, May 21st and 22nd, at Atlantic City, N. J.

At this session a special amendment to the constitution providing for a state bank group—which comprises all banking systems other than national banks—will claim the attention of the association. This movement will prove of great benefit to the banks of the state, and the promoters of the amendment are eager that it shall be adopted by the association at this time.

Secretary Hann, of the association, said last week that members of the association were looking forward to the meeting with cherished anticipations that would mark a new and more prosperous era than had been possible at any previous session. Some 150 to 175 representative Maryland bankers will attend the meeting this year. Each bank sends one delegate or more.

An attractive program for the occasion has been arranged with speeches by Hon. James B. Beck, of New York, who was the United States Attorney General under President William McKinley; Hon. John Barrett, of Washington, director of the pan-American Union, and Hon. Judge Lobdell, of Washington, of the Farm Land Bank. The Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel will be the association's headquarters during its stay in Atlantic City.

Maryland Gave $160,000

Maryland went over the top to the tune of $160,000 for the aid of the Armenian-Syrian Relief in the Near East. John W. Mace, director for the State, made the announcement just before leaving for national headquarters in New York, where on Monday of last week he made a report to the American Committee for Relief in the Near East.

Baltimore city and the counties have tied in the amounts raised, each with approximately $80,000. In both cases the bulk of the contributions were in cash, which has enabled the American Committee to place the full funds in supplies in this country for immediate transportation to Constantinople and other ports for general distribution among the refugees.

During last week the fifth ship to leave Baltimore with supplies for the Near East sailed, with Gibraltar and Constantinople as the first ports of call.

Big Profits From Two Fowls

In Caddo Parish, La., one of the members of a poultry club organized by the United States Department of Agriculture and the State college is a rural school teacher. A talk early in 1918 by the home demonstration agent of the county on the superior value of pure-bred fowls so impressed the teacher that soon she purchased a pair of Rhode Island Reds. During the spring and summer of last year the hen laid 121 eggs. All of these eggs were set under brooder hens of the "common garden variety," and the hatching percentage was high. In January their owner sold for $150 the pullets and cockerels this one pure-bred pair had produced. The small size of the enterprise and the consequent individual care which could be given the chickens were the reasons for the unusual profits.

About Rheumatism

People are learning that it is only a waste of time and money to take medicine internally for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and about ninety-nine out of a hundred cases are one or the other of these varieties. All that is really necessary to afford relief is to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. Try it. It costs but 35 cents per bottle. Large size 60 cents.

The True Meaning Of Value

VALUE—not what you put into the clothes, but what you get out of them—not what you pay, but what you're REPAID—that kind of value means satisfaction.

In the old days, when a man bought a suit of clothes for $15.00 or $18.00 he wasn't especially concerned about it—$15 or $18 wasn't a whole lot of money, anyhow. But nowadays if he has to $25 or $35, he wants to know what he is getting for that much investment. This is one big reason why WE are doing such a tremendous early Spring business—thinking men are spending their money where they get VALUE.

FARMERS FAVOR LEAGUE

Twelve Million Want America To Join It

An overwhelming majority of the 2,000,000 farmers of America "favor the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations," according to an announcement in New York last Tuesday by officials of the League to Enforce Peace.

Resolutions have been adopted by 193 organizations, it was said, including the American Agricultural Association, Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, Farmers' Equity Union, Farmers' National Reconstruction Conference, Farmers' National Council, National Board of Farm Organizations, National Federation of Gleaners, National Grange and the Non-partisan League, declaring in favor of the Paris project. At the same time, it was stated, 55 prominent agriculturists, representing every state in the Union, are mobilizing the farmers of the country for a "drive" on the United States Senate when the League of Nations treaty is presented for ratification.

Death of S. Ashton Tull

Mr. S. Ashton Tull, a prominent and highly respected citizen of Tull's Corner, died at his home last Thursday night about 8 o'clock, aged 63 years. Death was caused by diabetes, from which he had been suffering for the past 6 years, and which confined him to his home for the past 3 months.

Mr. Tull was born at Tull's Corner February 6, 1856, and was a son of the late Samuel L. and Catherine Tull. Mr. Tull was engaged in the mercantile business and was postmaster at Tull's Corner for a number of years, having received his appointment under President Harrison's administration. In politics he was an Independent Democrat.

In January, 1894, Mr. Tull married Miss Sarah Mather, daughter of Rev. A. W. Mather, a member of the Maryland Conference, who survives him. He also leaves five children—two sons (Webster Tull, who is with the United States Marine, now in France, and S. Ashton Tull, Jr., at Tull's Corner) and three daughters (Misses Margaret, Caroline and Fannie Davis Tull, all of Tull's Corner). He is also survived by six brothers (Messrs. A. E., E. W., Gordon, Roland, Francis H. and Clifford Tull) and four sisters (Mrs. Stella K. Tull, Mrs. Arzah Davis, Mrs. Minnie Horsey and Mrs. Aden Davis).

Funeral services were held last Saturday afternoon at his late home, conducted by the Rev. E. L. Bunce, of Trinity M. P. Church, of Marion, and his remains were interred in St. Paul's cemetery.

The pallbearers were his five brothers, Messrs. A. E. Tull, E. W. Tull, Francis H. Tull, Gordon Tull, Clifford H. Tull and Mr. Arzah Davis, a brother-in-law.

Enrollment of Boys in Club Work

This county has one of the largest enrollments in the State in boys club agricultural work. There are about 175 boys in the county who have enrolled in the various agricultural projects to be carried on this season. Thirty-five boys have enrolled in the corn contest, and will be provided with good seed corn by the county agent; 45 boys in the late potato contest, and 55 boys will raise pigs for fattening.

A boys' registered Duroc pig club has been formed with about forty members. These boys will be provided with registered, Duroc pigs 8 and 10 weeks old through the cooperation of the local banks, who will finance the project. The pigs will be obtained from the Pocomoke, Somerset and Worcester Boys' Registered Duroc Club, of Pocomoke City. The pigs will be registered and will be worth $15.00 and delivered to the boys early in June.

The club boys have been receiving instructions, which they are to follow in the contest, at their meetings in the schools of the county.

Several hundred dollars were awarded in prizes last year, and the winners in the contests will receive a trip to the Maryland State College the first week in June. The boys who will take the trip are Howard Jones, of Kingston, winner of pig contest; Norman Landon, of Marion, winner of potato contest; and Wilfred Froelich, of Crisfield, winner of corn contest.

OCEAN CITY BRIDGE COMPLETED

Formal Opening And Celebration On July 4—Public Using Bridge

Senator Orlando Harrison drove in his car last week over the newly completed bridge. He was accompanied by P. E. Burroughs, resident engineer; Josiah A. Boston, president of the board of county commissioners, of Worcester county; Edward M. Scott, mayor of Ocean City, and G. C. Day, superintendent of road construction.

This bridge spanning the Synepuxent Bay and connecting the mainland with Ocean City, is built of concrete, up-to-date in every respect and is a credit to Ocean City, to the State Road Commission, to Worcester county and the State of Maryland. It will add more to the convenience and safety of the public in reaching Ocean City, Maryland's only seashore resort, than any permanent improvement which has been made for forty years.

A Committee from Ocean City and the Eastern Shore counties of Maryland, together with the State Roads Commission, will arrange a program for the formal opening and celebration on July 4th, and the Governor, the Mayor of Baltimore, all of the members of the General Assembly of Maryland and the county commissioners, mayors and councilmen of all the towns and counties in Maryland will be asked to take part. All of the citizens of Maryland, Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Virginia will be invited. It will be remembered that Senator Harrison, during the session of 1916 made a strong appeal for the appropriation which made the construction of the bridge possible and it is the Senator's especial desire to have present the men who were loyal in supporting him in obtaining this needed public improvement.

Everett J. Carey Dead

Mr. Everett J. Carey died suddenly at his home in Norwood, Pa., last Friday night, about 8.30 o'clock, of acute indigestion, aged 63 years.

He was a member of the Circuit Court of Somerset county for a number of years, and well known by the denizens of the county. He and his family moved to Norwood last summer.

He is survived by his widow and seven children, (Mrs. W. Upshur Dixon, Mr. Raymond M. Carey, of Princess Anne; Mrs. Harold Mumford, of Philadelphia; Mr. Joshua E. Carey, Misses Marie E. and Florence Carey and Francis L. Carey, of Norwood, Pa.)

His remains were brought to Princess Anne last Saturday night and funeral services were held in Manokin Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Martin, of Princeton, N. J. Interment was in the cemetery adjoining the church. The pallbearers were, Messrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, S. Frank Dashiell, Columbus Lankford, B. H. Dougherty, W. O. Lankford, G. W. Brown.

Webster Sentenced For Life In Prison

Carlyle P. Webster, of Deal's Island, convicted of murder in the first degree of his wife, Bernice Chaney Webster, in their bridal chamber at the Hotel Belvedere, Baltimore, last October was sentenced to life imprisonment last Thursday by Judges Dawkins and Heuser in Part 2 of the Criminal Court, Baltimore. The Court had the option of imposing life imprisonment or the death penalty.

The sturdy Eastern Shoreman heaved a sigh of relief as the dread of the scaffold was lifted from his mind. He turned from the witness stand and walked hurriedly to the door that leads to the lock-up.

Following the sentence Attorney Edward M. Hammond, who, with Attorney W. Trickett Giles, represented Webster at the trial, said that he had not determined whether the case would be taken to the Court of Appeals. Later Thursday Webster was taken to the Penitentiary to start his life term.

Robert F. Brattan Killed In France

Mrs. Robert F. Brattan, of Princess Anne, received information last Sunday of the death of her only son, Robert F. Brattan, Jr., in France.

He was killed instantaneously in a motor truck accident on April 20th, and was buried in the Great Morayne Cemetery by an Army Chaplain.

Mr. Brattan was the son of the late Robert F. Brattan and a grandson of the late James U. Dennis. Mrs. Chas. C. Gelder is his only sister.

The Next Governor Of Maryland

Only twice in more than fifty years has Maryland had a Governor from the western counties. One of these was the Democrat, William T. Hamilton, of Washington county, nominated and elected in 1879, and the other was the Republican, Lloyd Lowndes, of Allegany, whose term was in its last year a decade ago. There have been fifteen Governors since the close of the Civil War, one from Prince George's, Oden Bowie; two from Baltimore City, William Pinkney Whyte and Robert M. McLane; two from Howard, John Lee Carroll and Edwin Warfield; one from Washington county, William T. Hamilton; one from Wicomico, Elihu E. Jackson; one from Carroll, Frank Brown; one from Allegany, Lloyd Lowndes; one from Worcester, John Walter Smith; one from Cecil, Austin L. Crothers; two from Dorchester, Phillips Lee Goldsborough and Emerson C. Harrington.

One of the two Governors who succeeded to vacancies by reason of being presidents of the Senate and were elected by the Legislature, was also from Dorchester—Henry Lloyd—the other being James B. Groome, of Cecil. Lloyd, Brown, Smith, Warfield and Goldsborough are the surviving ex-Governors.

The Cumberland Times, although published at the home of Comptroller Hugh A. McMullen, who is regarded as a tentative candidate, disclaims any other propaganda in discussing Western Maryland's claims than that "the present is an opportune time for citizens to discuss what section of the State is logically entitled to the Governorship, provided, of course, a citizen of proper qualifications is presented at the proper time."

MEETING OF ASSOCIATED BANKS

Representatives From Three Counties In Princess Anne Wednesday

The semi-annual meeting of the Associated Banks of Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties was held in the Auditorium in Princess Anne last Wednesday afternoon. Practically every bank in the three counties was represented by from two to five delegates each. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mr. Omar J. Crosswell, of Princess Anne, and the address of welcome made by Mr. Gordon Tull, president of the Farmers Bank of Somerset County, of Marion, in which he gave a history of the association which was formed in Princess Anne eight years ago. The response to the address of welcome was made by Mr. John W. Ennis, cashier of the Pocomoke City National Bank. After the transaction of the usual routine business and the approval by the convention of several resolutions looking to the improving of banking conditions in the three counties the meeting adjourned at 5.30.

At 6.30 a banquet was tendered the visiting delegates at the Washington Hotel by The Bank of Somerset, Peoples Bank of Somerset County, Farmers Bank of Somerset County, Bank of Marion and the Deal's Island Bank. The menu was:

League To Enforce Peace

The Maryland Branch of the League to Enforce Peace, of which Edwin Warfield is president, has requested the publication of the following quotation by Henry W. Williams, chairman of the Maryland Branch of the League to Enforce Peace, who, in discussing the amended covenant of the League of Nations as published, said:

"The covenant of the League of Nations as amended seems to fully meet the criticisms of the Republican Senators, especially those of Senator Lodge. In fact, so closely do the amendments follow the suggestions of Senator Lodge that it seems as though the President must have had such suggestions before him when the amendments were adopted."

"The great difficulty with the original covenant was the failure to recognize specifically the Monroe Doctrine; this has been fully met by the incorporation of an entirely new Article No. XXI, which provides that 'nothing in this covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace.' This more than recognizes the Monroe Doctrine as the policy of the United States, for it recognizes its validity and therefore makes it binding upon the Courts of Arbitration, the Council, the Assembly and the members of the League. It makes it part of the international law of the world."

"This amendment also meets one of the objections of Ex-Senator Root that the original covenant abrogated treaties of arbitration."

"The criticism that the decisions of the Council might be by majority vote and therefore the United States might be morally committed to actions over its protest is met by the express provision that except as otherwise provided all decisions of the Council and of the Assembly must be unanimous. Provision for the withdrawal of members is made, any member being permitted to withdraw on two years' notice, provided it is not in default."

"All seem to have been removed by the textual re-writing of the covenant. Under the circumstances it is to be expected that the majority of the Republicans will now support the treaty."

Miss Elizabeth Patterson, of Westover, who was recently graduated from the Beacom Business College at Salisbury, has accepted a position with the Dupont Powder Company, of Wilmington, Delaware.

ATTRACTIVE NEW QUARTERS

Bank Of Somerset's Re-Arranged Rooms Not Surpassed In Cities

The attractive new quarters of the Bank of Somerset will provide ample facilities for the rapid expansion which is expected as a natural result of adequate facilities and emphasizes the achievement of a desired business growth which has been long anticipated by the officers, directors and customers of the bank. The culmination of that business advance which spells success is a source of congratulation to the interests which are responsible for that success, as well as to the community which has made this particular phase of commercial development possible.

The Bank of Somerset, with keen foresight, had long anticipated the development of their institution to the point where they might with confidence enter upon the work of modernizing their banking home, which today they see achieved. They recognized that the community in which they conducted business was sound financially and commercially, and that its demands called for banking facilities equal in proportion to those enjoyed by the greater cities.

With that purpose in mind, careful consideration was given to a re-arrangement of the banking rooms in other cities and the best thought was given to the planning of adequate quarters, so that, when finally completed, they should stand as a monument to the foresight of the officers and directors, and be so arranged that future years might find the banking home still ample for the growth which previous experience had led them to believe they might reasonably anticipate.

Thus it was that some months ago the preliminary steps were taken which led to the modernizing of their former banking home. Slowly but surely each step was made thereafter and no advance was marked as progress until it was reviewed from every angle and the best selected.

Princess Anne is to be congratulated upon having a group of business men whose keen discernment of the needs of the community has been endorsed by a determination to carry out a long recognized need.

The Bank of Somerset is a strong financial institution, having been organized June 4th, 1889, with a capital of $25,000, which has since been doubled. The last statement shows surplus and profits of $119,000 and deposits of about one million dollars. The bank has had only four presidents, the present incumbent, Joshua W. Miles, having been elected in 1900, at which time the present vice-president, H. Fillmore Lankford, was also elected to office. At the end of the first year there were approximately four hundred depositors, who have grown to nearly thirty-three hundred at the present time. The cashier, Wm. B. Spiva, has served the institution faithfully for thirty years, having entered the bank as a clerk in 1889. He was appointed assistant cashier in 1895 and took his present position in 1900. Credit is due to these public-spirited men for their part in the development of the community.

Special Session of Congress May 19th

Last Thursday President Wilson issued a call by cable for a special session of Congress to meet on Monday, May 19th.

Secretary Tumulty, in making the announcement, said it would be impossible, of course, for the President to be here on the opening day. The date fixed for the special session was much earlier than Democratic leaders had expected.

White House officials said that in naming an early date for the session President Wilson was guided largely by the advice of Secretary Glass as to the necessity of passing annual appropriation measures which failed in the closing days of the last session.

The new Congress will be faced with a mass of legislation, immediate action on which will be urged by several government departments. Besides the seven appropriation bills, aggregating more than $4,000,000,000, which failed to pass at the last session, the list of unpassed measures included all reconstruction legislation and bills defining the shipping policy, general railroad legislation and dealing with unemployment, labor and illiteracy questions.

An entertainment will be held at the church hall, Manokin, this (Tuesday) evening, May 13th, beginning at 8.30 o'clock. There will be vocal and instrumental music. Captain J. W. Green, who has recently returned from France, will give a talk on the late war. Admission, 15 cents. Ice cream and cake will be for sale. Proceeds for the benefit of Salem Methodist Protestant Church.

EASTERN SHORE Y. M. C. A.

District Secretary E. J. Judd Explains The Work To Be Performed

The establishing of an office recently and the securing of a district secretary by the Eastern Shore District Young Men's Christian Association Committee show that plans, which have been taking shape since about February 1st for county and rural Y. M. C. A. work in Maryland, are soon to be a reality. This work has been successful and productive of much good in many states and has passed the experimental stage during the past twenty years and is now so well recognized that a total of thirty-three states have endorsed the work and are proceeding with organization as old or new fields. The Young Men's Christian Association has been eminently successful throughout the United States for years past.

A considerable number of business men of Eastern Shore counties are back of this undertaking. Fred P. Adkins, of Salisbury, is chairman, and Edwin G. Cover, of Easton, is secretary and treasurer. Some weeks ago the chairman appointed the following additional gentlemen on the district executive committee. Frank E. Williams, Elkton; Fred G. Usilton, Chestertown; Clayton Wright, Centerville; T. A. Goldsborough, Denton; Geo. W. Woolford, Cambridge; Walter S. Sheppard, Salisbury; E. Herrman Cohn, Princess Anne; F. Lee Bonville, Pocomoke City. These men will serve as an executive committee during the period of reorganization of the counties.

The real inception of the organization began with a morning and afternoon conference of about thirty-five Eastern Shore business men held at Easton, February last. The whole matter was thoroughly discussed and at the close of the conference unanimously endorsed. It was voted that a district budget be provided and a district secretary be called. Conferences to discuss the work have been held with groups of business men in Talbot, Dorchester, Caroline, Queen Anne's, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties.

On March 10th, E. T. Judd, of Freehold, N. J., accepted the position as district secretary for the Eastern Shore. Mr. Judd has been a secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for over twelve years, two years at the Trenton Y. M. C. A., three years at the West Side Y. M. C. A., New York, and about eight years as county secretary of Monmouth county, N. J., which position he resigned to accept the district secretaryship of the Eastern Shore, for which he was recommended by the international office of the Y. M. C. A. Marion W. Harris, of Centerville, is expected later on to take up work as assistant secretary.

The district office has been established at Room 304, Building and Loan Building, Salisbury. Both secretaries began preliminary work on Monday, April 21st.

The object of the movement is to do a work and render a real service. One fundamental principle is to avoid duplication of any existing organization's effort. The keynote of the county and rural Y. M. C. A. movement is full recognition of the fundamental character and place of the home, the church and the school, plus cooperation with them and other institutions doing work in a given community.

The county and rural Y. M. C. A. work has to do largely with county-wide activities, small towns and rural communities; and specialized in work among junior and older boys, using local leaders under county and district supervision. A great deal of the work of the organization is done entirely outside of its membership, based on community and rural conditions. Eventually each county will have its own organization with a county committee and a county secretary.

The Eastern Shore people have done great things in Maryland's history, and certainly will give the heartiest cooperation in an enterprise which is in behalf of each county's own boys and men. The district committee has confidence that the wide-awake Eastern Shore people will recognize the value of this work and make it a success.

Dairy Farmers Meeting

County Agent Keller has arranged to have C. E. Wolcott, dairy specialist of the Extension Service, attend a meeting of dairy farmers to be held Wednesday afternoon, May 21st, at 3 o'clock, in the Court House, at Princess Anne.

The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the proposition of obtaining shipments of high grade dairy cows into this community. Prices on dairy cows have been obtained from a number of breeders in various Eastern States. All farmers interested in the future of dairy cattle and the marketing of dairy products should attend this meeting.

BEHIND THE CLOUDS

By CHARLOTTE LONG.

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Be still, sad heart, and cease repining; Behind the clouds is the sun still shining."

Thus spoke a voice rather severely in Margaret's ear. "Really," it continued, "you ought to be ashamed! You haven't taken one bit of interest in anything since John Stevens went away ten years ago. Then you were the belle of the town, Margaret, and now at thirty-two look at you! Supposing he should come back suddenly; do you think he would be pleased with the present appearance of the girl he used to know?"

"Mary, you're my sister; I suppose you have a right to say such things," returned Margaret wearily, although the bright color flamed in the usually pale cheeks. "John and I loved each other, and if only I knew what sent him away without a word—" "Don't say any more about it," broke in Mary. "I know it's been hard, but you haven't done a thing to make it easier. You must begin now to put the past behind you. Come down to the church tonight—there's a fair, you know—and help me in the apron booth. Wear something besides black and gray—and a smile, too; and now I warn you, if you fail to come I shan't trouble you again for a long time."

Mary bustled off rather noisily leaving Margaret alone with her thoughts. Her sister's words had stung, and resentment burned in her breast.

Choosing a simple white dress of soft, clinging material, she looked very lovely as she adjusted the last fold; but the pink in her cheeks cried aloud for a touch of blue. Opening a bureau she deftly fashioned a girdle for her slim waist, and with a pink rose plucked fresh from the rose vine outside her window, she made her way to the church. Divested of her wrap, Mary came rushing towards her. "Margaret, is it you?" she exclaimed. "You look like a dream." Soon they were stationed behind a mass of aprons of all sizes and descriptions, and Margaret was soon busy, and interested, too. Presently a stranger entered the church vestry. Almost as soon as Margaret had caught sight of him, Mary nudged her and said: "Look! Margaret, there is Mark Andrews. He's been away for years. Poor fellow! he looks sick. How determined he once was to marry you—" Here a customer claimed Mary's attention, much to Margaret's relief.

Sure enough, it was Mark—he was coming towards her now. After a hand-shake and a brief conversation with the two sisters, he disappeared; but when the evening was over and Mary and Margaret were ready to go home, they were surprised to find him waiting outside the door.

"I have something to say to you, Margaret," he said in a low tone. "I have no objection to Mary's hearing it. I will tell you as we walk back over the old road where years ago we all romped and played together on our way to school. You would always let me carry your books, Margaret, when John wasn't there," he said, as they started forth, "and the idea got stuck in my boyish brain that if he wasn't around at all I might always have the pleasure of serving the little girl of my choice. That idea grew with the years, and while outwardly John and I seemed friends, no one knows how I longed for a clear field in which to press my suit with you."

"It was the winter that John's uncle in the West came home for a visit that I lost all hope and began to get morbid. I could see the love growing steadily between you two, and my heart was as icy in those days as the frozen millpond where we used to skate. I was walking home one evening when John overtook me. 'Hello! Mark,' he said. 'How would you like to go West on short notice with Uncle Bill?' His uncle had received a telegram calling him back at once, and he wanted some young man to go along with him. John had refused to consider going—you can guess why. He was on his way then to you, Margaret. Then and there I played my last card. 'No,' I told him. 'I don't care to go West at present. Margaret has promised to marry me, and our plans for the future are still unsettled.' John was too honest to suspect deceit in an old friend. With white lips he asked, 'Is that true, Mark?' and when I assured him that it was, he simply said, 'Good-by, old chap, and the best of luck to you both. I go West tonight with my Uncle Bill.' I tried hard enough to win you after that, Margaret, but I am glad now that I failed, and at this late hour I am trying to make what reparation I can. Before John sailed for France I told him all, and when he comes back he'll come straight to you. He has never ceased to love you; nor have I—it has been my punishment." He turned abruptly and was gone.

Margaret was weeping softly in her own little home when her sister finally bade her good-night, but they were tears of joy. In her heart she felt glad. Womanlike, she was already planning a wonderful new wardrobe in which black and gray had no part. Throwing open her shutters the next morning she looked out upon a world which seemed to be all blue sky, golden sunshine and pink roses. "Behind the clouds," at last, she thought happily to herself as she rested two plump arms on the window sill and watched for a moment the humming birds flitting in and out among the blossoms below.

HIS OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE

Old Soldier Could Not Fight in Ranks, But Could Prove He Was of Some Use.

A year ago Americans were saying that this was not an old man's war. And the old men, many of whom had been soldiers in their younger days, were feeling the same way and suffering over it, too. Old women could knit, roll bandages, and do a hundred other things quite as well as the younger women. But what could the old men do? And because there seemed to be nothing for them to do, they suffered more keenly than most people knew.

But as the young men left there began to be work for the old men. Retired farmers were needed to teach boys how to farm. Retired bankers were put on Thrift stamp and finance committees. All carpenters, whether young or old, were needed. And there came a new look—one of usefulness and happiness—on the faces of the old men.

But one of the most patriotic of all was noted the other day. "I'd like to buy your old rubber and rags," he said courteously, "or if you'd give it to me it would be still better."

The woman of the house glanced out at his push cart which was almost full of junk. "I'll try to find something," she began.

The old man's face was radiant. "You see, lady," he explained, "I'm an old soldier and I'm on a pension so I'm giving all my time to my country. I get this junk for the Red Cross. You just go down and ask them how much I've turned in and you'll decide that I'm not a worn-out plug after all."—Indianapolis News.

BUILT FOR PIETY OR LUCK

Two Reasons Assigned for the Construction of Pagodas in Countries of the Far East.

The word pagoda is a Portuguese corruption of the Persian "but-kadah," meaning "but," an "idol," and "kadah," "temple." In the far East, as in India, China and Burma, they are regarded as sacred towers, usually more or less pyramidal in outline, richly carved, painted or otherwise adorned, and of several stories, and are sometimes connected with a temple. Such towers were originally erected over relics of Buddha, the bones of a saint, etc., but are now built chiefly as a work of merit on the part of some pious person, or for the purpose of improving the luck of the neighborhood. In China pagodas are from 3 to 13 stories high (always an odd number). Their Dravidian shape indicates that they originated with the earliest races of India, who inhabited the country previous to the advent of the Aryans. The date of the great pagodas at Tajore is not certainly known, but it, with much probability, referred to the beginning of the fourteenth century. The so-called "Thousand Pagodas" of Brambanan in Java are obviously modeled on Hindu originals, either Jain or Buddhist.

Expect India to Export Sugar.

Sugar making is one of India's most ancient industries, but the loss of three-fourths of the sugar value of the cane by use of primitive machinery and the muddy character of the product, because religious prejudices prohibit the use of animal charcoal for refining, have confined India's sugar to local consumption, says World Outlook. With nearly three million acres under cane, producing considerably more than a third of the world's total, India nevertheless exports no sugar. On the contrary, in addition to her own stupendous production, she spends $25,000,000 for sugar annually.

With new methods of refining, there is now a steady development of centralized plants, and soon India—the aboriginal home of the cane—will doubtless take a place as a sugar-exporting land commensurate with the size of her cane crop.

Submarine is Blind and Slow.

In spite of the fact that the British have some steam-driven 2,700-ton submarines, capable of a surface speed of from 23 to 25 knots, the submarine, as a weapon of war, is too slow and too blind when it is submerged to be considered a serious weapon of naval warfare. When it can see, electrically, to a distance of 10 to 15 miles, while it is submerged so deeply as to be invisible to the aircraft, and when it can steam 20 knots submerged, it will dominate the naval situation.—Scientific American.

New Synthetic Milk.

A recently patented synthetic milk, that can be made into butter and cheese, is produced by boiling separately, in three quarts of water for each, a grated coconut and three ounces of a mixture of rice and oatmeal. When the water is reduced to one-half, the two liquids are mixed together and filtered. The process seems to admit of variation, and other vegetable material rich in oil may be substituted for the coconut.

A Budding Inspector.

Little Harold had been thinking things over, and at last burst out:

"Pop."

"Yes, my son."

"Why does a cow chew at night?"

"Well, my son, a cow takes food during the day, and then chews her cud at night."

"But, pop, isn't that hoarding food?"

Origin of the Monocle.

The monocle has never had a very strong hold on the American eye, and let us hope, probably never will become a prominent feature of the American face. Americans regard it as one of the identification marks of the staid Englishman, who bears the same relation to the real Englishman as the stage Irishman, with green whiskers, forever biting pieces of his clay pipe, to the genuine son of Erin. But the monocle has played its shining part in certain very respectable elements of English society. It had quite a vogue at one time; then its popularity waned. Now reports are that it seems again to be coming to favor.—San Francisco Chronicle.

FARMERS' DAY AT STATE COLLEGE

Commencement Exercises and Victory Celebration

CULTIVATOR DEMONSTRATION

Farmers' Day and Commencement exercises at the Maryland State College will be held as usual on May 30, Decoration Day. Plans for the day are now being worked out by President Woods and all arrangements have been completed except for the setting of some of the details. Doctor Woods states that he is extremely anxious to have a big gathering of the farmers and public officials this year as one feature of the day will be a commemoration of the part the farmers have played in winning the war.

Doctor Woods says: "It seems to me to be particularly fitting for a great gathering of the farmers of the State this year. Farmers' Day at the State College also seems to be the most appropriate time for such a gathering in commemoration of the splendid achievement of Maryland farmers in helping to win the war. Great problems have been encountered and solved. The State, through the State Council of Defense, has borne its share of the burden and the farmers in turn have responded nobly to every effort they have been asked to put forth."

"To my mind probably the greatest achievement of the whole war was the wonderful record made in increasing food production. The splendid organizations and agencies through which this increase of production was effected deserve great credit, but after all it was the farmer who actually got in and did the work of production. The war is won, thanks to the efforts of all; and it is indeed very fitting to pay tribute on Farmers' Day, which very appropriately this year is to be held on Decoration Day, to the splendid efforts that have met with success."

All visitors are requested to bring with them picnic lunches. The college is arranging to serve sandwiches, coffee, ice cream, and fruit at cost price to those who do not care to go to the trouble of bringing their lunches.

The annual meeting of the State College Alumni Association will not take place this year on Farmers' Day but will be held the afternoon and evening before, May 29. The annual banquet of the association is to take place the evening of May 29 and will be served at the college. A game of baseball with Virginia Polytechnic Institute is to be played also on May 29 as a part of the alumni program.

This year will mark the last in which the Commencement exercises of the graduating class of the college will be held on Farmers' Day. When the war began State College cut short its school year and began holding a brief and informal Commencement. Next year the school year will be lengthened out until the middle of June.

Two features will be the main attractions of Farmers' Day. One is to be a demonstration of modern cultivating machinery in which all labor-saving devices of this character will be shown. The other feature will be a farmers' victory celebration, a commemoration of what Maryland farmers have accomplished in their efforts to help win the war.

Governor Harrington probably will deliver the address in connection with this part of the program. The subject on which he has been asked to speak is "The Farmers' Contribution to Victory and Their Reconstruction Program."

Besides these things there will be an exhibition of all the buildings, laboratories and the farm. Demonstrations in home economics and canning and drying of fruits, vegetables, etc., will be carried on. Moving pictures are to be shown in the auditorium from 11 o'clock until 1. A band concert is to be held and the annual Commencement exercises of the graduating class of the college also will take place. Besides Governor Harrington, two of the country's most prominent public men have been extended invitations to speak.

Despite the exigencies of war, 24 men are in the senior class to receive degrees and six are to finish the two year course and receive certificates. Those who receive degrees are Joseph Letter Aitchison, Kenneth Warren Babcock, Homer Sidney Berlin, Chester Frederick Bletsch, Milton Carroll Brown, Howard Owen Coster, Edwin Walker Hand, Walter Roberts Hardisty, Grace Bruce Holmes, Paul Valentine Horne, Ransom Rush Lewis, Erston Vinton Miller, George Wesley Norris, Charles Edwin Payne, Kenneth Carlisle Poyer, Earle Milton Sawyer, Robert Lee Sellman, James Wilmer Stevens, George Ray Stuntz, Cecil Harlow Bacon.

Those who will receive certificates for the two-year courses in agriculture are: Emory Bryan Cockran, Thomas Dall Holter, Kurt Frederick Menzel, Phillip Stevens Richardson, Henry Lafayette Umbarger, Hugh Robert Wilmer.

Special arrangements have been effected for a trolley schedule from Washington, and several express trains from Baltimore to Washington and from Washington to Baltimore will stop at College.

THE FRIENDLY TOBACCO

THERE may be some things that can be done well in a hurry, but pickin' a wife an' agein' a tobacco ain't amongst 'em.

Velvet Joe.

We put away millions of pounds of fine Kentucky Burley tobacco every year, stored in wooden hogsheads. It ripens two years. When we take it out it's different—Nature has improved it, good as it was—made it friendlier, more fragrant, cool-smoking, long-burning.

Nature has given it a delicious quality of mildness and fragrance that no artificial means can ever equal.

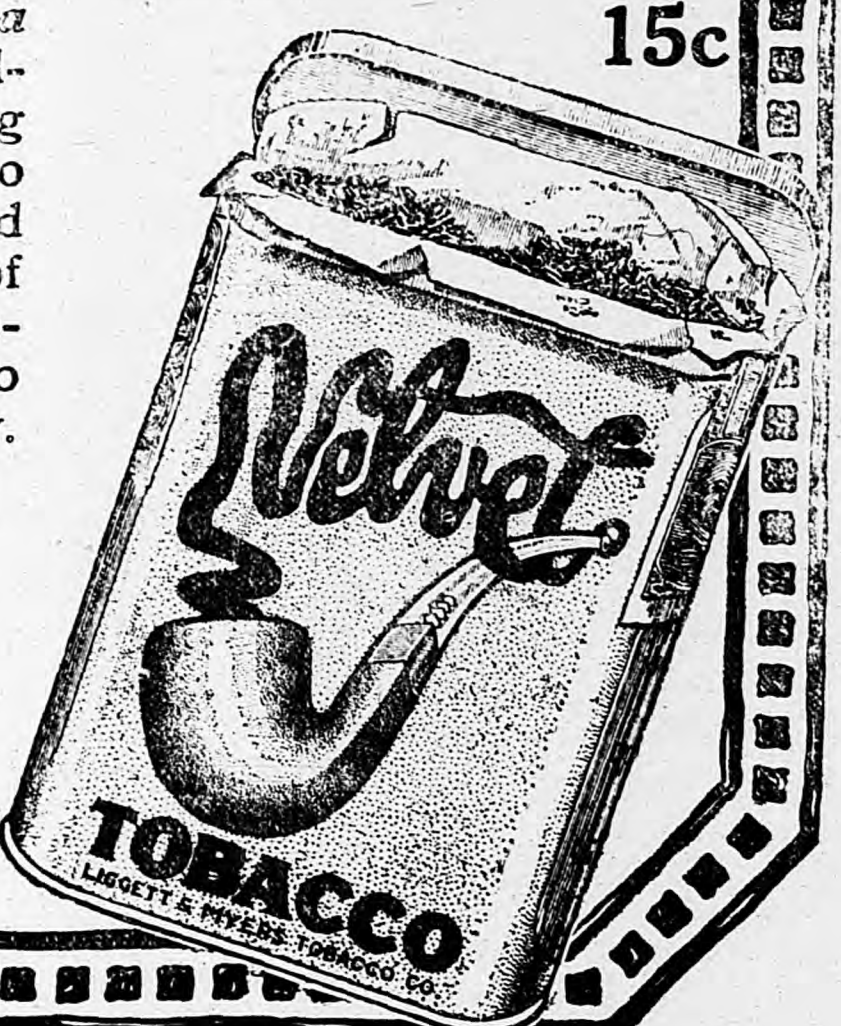

It's just that extra touch of friendly goodness that is building up VELVET Tobacco into the favor and good will of thousands of pipe smokers who prefer to smoke tobacco cured in Nature's way.

You would notice the difference.

TIME TO FEED YOUNG CHICKS

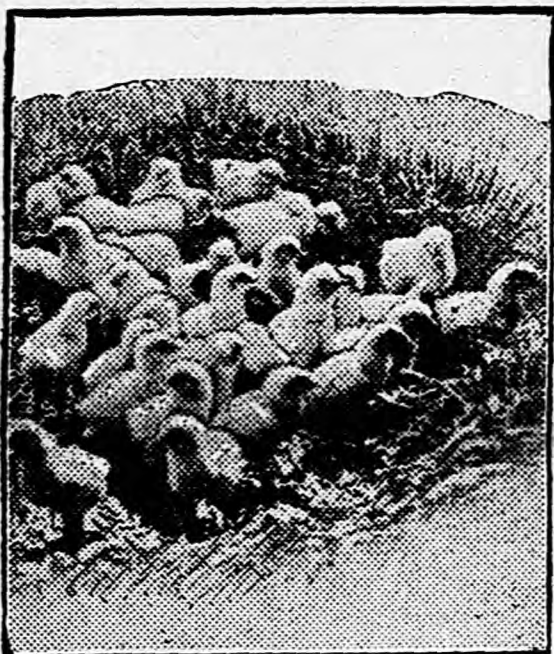

Mashes Mixed With Milk Are of Considerable Value in Giving Youngsters Good Start.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Young chicks may be fed any time after they are thirty-six to forty-eight hours old whether they are with a hen or in a brooder. Some good feeds for the first feeding are moistened hard-boiled eggs, johnnycake, stale bread, oatmeal or rolled oats, which may be fed separately or in combination. Mashes mixed with milk are of considerable value in giving the chicks a good start. The mixture should be fed in a crumbly mash and not in a sloppy condition. Johnnycake composed of the following ingredients in the proportion named is a very good feed for young chicks: One dozen infertile eggs or one pound of sifted beef scraps to ten pounds of cornmeal; add enough milk to make a pasty mash and one tablespoonful of baking soda and bake until done. Dry bread crumbs may be mixed with hard-boiled eggs, making about one-fourth of the mixture eggs, or rolled oats may be used in place of bread crumbs.

It is a good plan to give these feeds about five times daily for the first week, then gradually substitute for one or two of these feeds a mixture of finely cracked grains of equal parts by weight of cracked wheat and finely cracked corn and pinhead oatmeal or hulled oats, to which about 5 per cent of cracked peas or broken rice and 2 per cent of charcoal or millet or rape seed may be added. A commercial chick feed may be substituted if desired. This ration may be fed until the chicks are two weeks old, when they should be placed on grain and a dry or wet mash mixture.

Young chickens should be fed from three to five times daily, but if care is given not to overfeed chicks will grow faster when fed five times per day. Young chicks should be fed not more than barely enough to satisfy their appetites and to keep them exercising except at the evening or last meal, when they should be given all they will eat. There is danger in over-feeding, particularly if the young chicks are confined and do not have access to free range, as too much feed under such conditions is apt to cause leg weakness.

GRIT NECESSARY FOR FOWLS

Hopper Feeding Saves Labor and Furnishes Desirable Supplementary Feed for Hens.

Ground feeds are necessary for most efficient digestion in poultry. Hopper feeding saves labor and furnishes the necessary supplementary feed at all times. There is no danger of poultry overeating on ground feeds fed dry in a hopper. The University of Missouri college of agriculture is recommending the hopper as a labor saver in the poultry yard.

Limestone grit or oyster shell is also necessary for laying hens. A laying hen requires large quantities of shell-making material. Nearly all of this must come from the grit and shell she eats. It is poor economy not to keep a liberal supply accessible. One extra egg a year will pay the bill. It returns the money invested a hundred fold.

Chickens raised on range can be produced much more economically than those kept closely confined around the farm buildings. Not only is less feed required, but the danger from disease is reduced. The edge of the cornfield makes an ideal poultry range. Chickens grow best on plowed ground and the corn furnishes shade, which is essential during the summer. Under such conditions, a pound of chicken can be produced from three to four pounds of grain.

POULTRY NOTES

Skim milk is good for the chickens.

Pumpkin is of value in the cold weather poultry ration.

Wheat, oats and corn are good grains to feed the laying hen.

Ducks are among the most profitable of all domesticated fowls.

Parent turkeys should be full grown and mature. If the gobler is related to the hens, get a new one.

Music Not His Strong Point.

The leader of a volunteer orchestra was greatly annoyed by the 'cellist, who repeatedly at a rehearsal was in error; finally he stood near him, listening. "Why, man," he exclaimed, "your 'cello is not in tune!" The player screwed at the pegs, but a few moments later the discord was repeated. "Can't you tune your instrument?" demanded the conductor irritably. "No-o!" said the stout 'cellist, "not always." Then his face brightened. "But you should see how I can skin fish!" The skinning of fish was his trade, the orchestra his side line.

Oldtime News Service.

In 1832 James Watson Webb, of the New York Courier and Enquirer, established an express-rider service between New York and Washington which gave his paper valuable prestige. In the following year the Journal of Commerce started a rival service, which enabled it to print Washington news in New York within 48 hours of its occurrence. The most notable express-mail service of all was the "pony express," which carried messages by relays of riders across mountains and deserts and through hostile Indian territory from St. Louis to San Francisco, covering 1,966 miles in 10 days.

Fish Fights in Malay.

The Malay is a sportsman. Any kind of a fight draws a great crowd. One of the queerest sports is fish fighting. The combatants are two very small fish about one and one-half inches long. Before the fight commences the fish are kept in separate bottles and exhibited by their respective owners to the onlookers, who bet on their favorite. Frequently the fish are heroes of many battles. When the bets are made, the fish are placed together in the same bottle and the battle commences. Two dogs aren't in it. The little fish fight and dart at one another until one succumbs and sinks to the bottom of the bottle.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 13, 1919

It is not true that the tax on perfume applies to the phosphate fertilizer which you smell in the rural districts.

The people who kick on ball playing in the vacant lots are often the same ones who kick on taxes for public playgrounds.

Among the reasons for the continued high price of meat is perhaps the high cost of constantly being investigated by the government.

Instead of ordering a ship to come to take him home, President Wilson would have shown better judgment to have sent for his summer clothes.

Some men will never make any effort to own their own homes, as wherever they are they find the chances are so much better somewhere else.

The high cost of house construction discourages home ownership, and anyway the boy who supplies the drinking water to the builders should never be paid more than $5.00 for a six hour day.

Many of the people who find fault because school teachers are scarce, are the same ones who never take the least pains to include them in the social life of the community and help them get acquainted.

Some people have always complained that there was nothing doing in Princess Anne, but mighty few of these knockers are to be found among those who have put over the Victory loan and the other war drives.

A lot of these anarchists should be given jobs opening the parcel post packages sent to prominent officials. But if the bomb senders keep on, they will no doubt be able to blow a lot of arms and legs off the servants and porters who take in packages at the front doors.

HOW TO BEAUTIFY A TOWN

No matter how neatly a town may be kept it will always have a bare and hard look unless it is well planted with trees and shrubbery. Every street should be lined with shade trees. A new street should have its young saplings set the first season it is laid out.

Few people realize how much they could add to their home places by a small expenditure for trees and shrubbery. It changes a house into a home, a sweet center of beauty which will remain a cherished memory even though future years take you far away. A house well surrounded by natural beauty will always sell and rent for more.

When you set out trees and shrubs, the slight cost and labor is soon forgotten. The beauty remains as a permanent possession. It gives you pleasure ever day that you make the place your home.

Setting out shrubs is sometimes called the lazy man's scheme of beautification. The work is performed once for all and they require no effort succeeding seasons except a little watering, but a well chosen setting of shrubs makes a nest of verdure and a setting of nature's loveliness for your dwelling. Flowers require more work. But they give a note of good cheer and festivity and make a marvelous addition to the home place.

Private grounds that are beautified in this way add wonderfully to the total impression of the beauty of the town. A simple little home carefully beautified, passed for a place of greater culture and distinction than the elaborate mansion that cost three times as much but shows no taste and imagination.

FIRST RESULT OF ADVERTISING

If in a town where the merchants had never advertised much, they should form the practice of using publicity, what changes would take place?

On a non-advertising basis, if store buyers did find some special lot having exceptional worth for the money, they would not be able to attract public attention to it and it might take them a long time to work it off.

On an advertising basis, if a store buyer had a chance to pick up a large lot at a reduced price, he would have confidence to go ahead. He could buy very largely in excess of the usual demand, depending upon advertising to bring in a lot of customers who would buy in advance of actual needs.

The first result of advertising, then, is to make it possible for merchants to do business in a bigger way, to buy in larger lots at lower prices, to take advantage of special opportunities and give their customers the benefit.

AFTER THE ANARCHIST

Anarchy is raising its ugly head and it is time to face it and put it down. Police forces everywhere should give their first attention to discovering the men who recently sent bombs through the mails at New York and elsewhere, as well as the authors of many other like crimes. People observing suspicious circumstances should report them. A persistent search for these miscreants should lead someone to squeal.

Such acts are the deeds of dirty cowards. To clamor for more rights for the people and at the same time attempt to destroy the men whom the people have chosen to represent them, indicates a mind poisoned to its depths.

The close resemblance in chemical composition showed between these bombs and those used on German floating mines, is a starting point from which to work. A likely theory would be that the German spies had a considerable quantity of chemicals stored in this country, which they used on the many explosions occurring during the war. Now they are perhaps venting their spite by using some of this material in acts of terrorism. If so, they are showing very slight intelligence. The effect of such outrages will be to promote sentiment for getting rid of undesirable aliens and for sifting immigration more closely. It will make the American people determined to rid themselves of elements that spend their whole time trying to wreak mischief.

According to a representative of the Labor party, these bombs are probably a "plant" set by the "hirelings" of the capitalists to discredit the radical elements. But the ordinary citizen will not take stock in such far-fetched theories. He will attribute the thing to the same gangs that burned wheat and storehouses, freight cars and munition plants. The tracks of anarchism, radicalism and pro-Germanism are indicated.

"The" Kelly Is Dead

"The" Kelly is dead politically. The voters saw to that last Tuesday. The message was one full of import to the people of Baltimore who desire good civic government.

There were other results of import last Tuesday, but the killing of Kelly was the greatest. It served notice on the Democratic state machine that it could never hope to control Baltimore city by owning a representative in the city itself.

The election was probably also the closing factor in deciding that the state Democratic ring, as now constituted, must give way to a new class of Democrats if that party is to have a say in the affairs of the state in future years. The group, as now headed by a senator whose age and past record is such that he cannot hope to ever again rise to true leadership; a governor, whose accomplishments have failed to prove that he can represent a united party; a state leader in the city now utterly discredited; other leaders of past years having suffered defeat before the people, and with the one big figure of the group, John E. George, dead—such a group can not ever come before the people as the representatives of a true party of Democratic principles.

Oddly enough, the Democratic city organization, defeated by its own party in the primary, is today the largest figure in the Democratic party of Maryland. With Kelly dead there can be no further doubt that the only true Democratic strength today lies around the city organization. Defeated in a primary election, the defeat of their party in a general contest has left them the only Gibraltar to which the Democrats of Maryland may cling until a new Moses arises to lead the party out of the wilderness of public disapproval. —Baltimore Star.

A Political Upset For Baltimore

From the Baltimore News of last Wednesday:
Never in recent years has there been an election with such far-reaching political effects as the one of Tuesday in which Wm. Broening, a republican, was elected Mayor of Baltimore with a plurality of 9,512, while on the same ticket the Democrats elected sufficient City Councilmen to control both legislative branches, giving the members of the First Branch an aggregate plurality of 3,296 votes.

Peter E. Tome, Republican, defeated Joseph M. Smith, Democrat, for City Comptroller by 3,190 votes. Hence Broening's plurality, more than 6,000 in excess of the one given Tome over a very popular Democrat, represents the minimum of the personal vote he brought to the Republican party in the Mayoralty contest. The achievement had much in it of a personal triumph.

No charges have gone forth of disloyalty on the part of the city organization that backed Mayor Preston in the primary contest and the Mayor himself voted for George Weems Williams, the defeated Mayoralty candidate; but standing out is the conspicuous fact the State Democratic organization that rode supreme through the primary contest today stands discredited, its fate hanging in the balance on the eve of a gubernatorial election, while the city organization, which yesterday morning was down and out with "The" Kelly astride its neck, is enthroned today at the City Hall.

Broening will be the next Mayor, but 8 of the 11 members of the Second Branch City Council, the branch that must confirm all appointments made by the Republican Mayor, are Democrats.

Fate has certainly played queer pranks with the State Democratic machine. It sits at this moment on a keg of dynamite of its own manufacture to which it seems only necessary for a Republican gubernatorial candidate of the right sort to apply the match.

"PYROX Is Surely Good"

"PYROX is the best thing I have ever tried," writes Mr. R. Daron, Wrightsville, Pa. "I used it on fruit and vegetables, including melons, potatoes, apples and plums, where it gave good results. Bowker's Pyrox is surely good."

You can profitably use Pyrox for destroying all leaf eating insects, also most fungous growths, rots, scabs, blights, etc. You not only protect your crop but increase the yield by using Pyrox. It is easily applied; does not clog the sprayer nozzle and sticks like paint. Ask for the new and interesting Pyrox booklet.

GOODMAN'S

THEIR EDEN

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

As Billy Towne drove up the narrow road, he spied a blur of scarlet at the edge of a wood. And as he came nearer, Billy whistled, for the scarlet blur proved to be a silken sweater, with a girl's brown head above it.

Billy's wonderment was caused by the fact that the road at this point was almost impassable, no human habitation for miles, and no vehicle of any sort in sight. How then had this small, white-slipped creature chosen this wilderness in which to continue her knitting? For Billy could see that she was knitting. The needles gleamed in the sunlight as the isolated girl hummed a song.

Billy had been sent up in his little car by the chief engineer and the new-made way was precarious.

The girl, raising dark eyes from her knitting, regarded him coldly, then resumed her work.

"I thought," he blundered, "that you might need assistance."

She raised her pretty brows. "Why?" she asked. "I am comfortable here."

"You're not lost then?" Billy questioned.

The girl shook her head. "I know just where I am," she answered decidedly.

There seemed nothing to do, after that, but to continue his way, but Billy felt strangely loath to depart.

The young engineer puzzled over it during the wakeful hours of the night. So you may see what had, in one flash of dark eyes, happened to Billy. It was idiotic, of course, to expect that the perverse girl would be at her solitary post upon the following day. But an overwhelming desire took Billy to the chief engineer.

"Want me to go up top again?" he asked eagerly, and the great man absently assented, so Billy went. And far up the trail his joyous searching gaze discerned the red blur which grew into that same scarlet sweater. Exactly in the same spot sat the haunting girl, still calmly bending over her knitting and humming what seemed to Billy a most appropriate song, "You'll Be Coming Back Again to Me, My Dearie."

Deliberately Billy stopped his car. "I wish," he said, "that you would satisfy my very natural, though maybe, impertinent curiosity. How do you manage to come here? The road is closed—save to employees—and is positively dangerous. There is no other path—and the woods, of course, would be out of the question."

The girl looked frowningly at him. "Why you should concern yourself—" she began, then as suddenly broke off in a smile. "Perhaps an airplane brought me," she said. "At any rate, I did not come here seeking companionship—you will excuse me—I came in the hope of being for a time, alone."

Billy excused her. Inwardly fuming he rode on his way without one backward glance. But the mocking words of the girl's low song followed him. "You'll be coming back again to me, my dearie," she sang, and in his raging heart Billy knew that the song was true. His great anxiety was that he might not find her there when he came. So, the next day he did not risk awaiting an order from the chief; he hastened on in his car.

Billy had no intention of speaking to the girl. Even the love which had found him in one flashing glance could brook no such evident snubbing. Mischievously she had laid across her sweater and Billy could not tell until close, that she was there. When the discovery came to him his heart beat maddeningly and the surprising girl raised her face in a frank smile.

"Good morning," she greeted. "Morning," answered Billy, "where is your airplane?"

"Oh! that—" murmured the girl, and laughing softly, "was a foolish remark. I ride up here every morning in a car like yours, and am called for at noon. I might have told you," she studied her knitting, "that I await my husband."

"Your husband!" muttered Billy. He had never thought of that. All the sunlight left the mountain air. It was queer, how quickly one could come to think a lot of a girl! Poor Billy gulped.

"Good-by," he said.

"Good-by," the girl replied slowly. Onward rode Billy. But his mournful meditation was interrupted by a piercing scream. Looking back, he saw the girl perched high on a bit of broken fence by the roadway. Violently she beckoned him. Billy, leaning from his car, ran to her.

"Oh!" she gasped, "a snake! A big snake there by the wood!"

Billy could not see the snake, but he caught the girl in his arms and ran with her toward his car. Safely ensconced on the seat she sighed in relief.

"Drive me down to father's shack, please," she requested. "Father is chief engineer. It is he for whom I wait every day."

"You told me," said the bewildered Billy, "that you awaited your husband."

The chief's daughter smiled. "You looked so flirtatious I had to tell you something," she said, "and anyway, most girls do await a husband, you know."

Then Billy grinned rapturously into the guileless eyes upraised to his.

A Judge's Joke.

In reading reminiscences of the British bar, one sometimes thinks it exists for nothing more than the manufacture of good stories. A budget of them has been appearing in recent issues of Blackwood's magazine, told by J. A. Strahan. He begins with a tale of Chief Justice Coleridge hearing a case in which the counsel was trying to reconcile the evidence of the witnesses with some of the indisputable facts of the case. Impatiently, Coleridge intervened to say that surely the real explanation of these inconsistencies was so-and-so. "If we adopt that view, my lord," replied Mr. Smith, "it will no doubt explain them; but the difficulty is that to adopt it we must assume that all the witnesses on both sides have perjured themselves." "If that is the only difficulty," answered Coleridge, suavely, "I do not think it is insurmountable."

Trouser Lore.

When trousers became universal they varied greatly in size. They went through many mutations of cut and shape—sometimes close fitting and called tights, sometimes baggy. Then they were funnel-shaped at the ankle only. They were plaited at the waist and side into absurd fullness, and even had tucks around the bottom. An old chronicler tells of his first dress pantaloons: "The first pantaloons over which I wore boots were of non-elastic corduroy. It would be unjust to the tailor to say that they fitted me like my skin, for they sat a great deal closer. When I took them off my legs were like fluted pillars grooved with the cords of the pantaloons." A gentleman ordering breeches in the latter part of the eighteenth century is said to have told his tailor, "If I can get into 'em I won't wear 'em."

BEYOND ALL OTHER DEBTS

Leaning Turrets of Benares Recall to Men Their Deep Obligation to Their Mothers.

You can repay all services, all kindnesses, either by money, or service, or love, or devotion, but a mother's debt you can never repay. Bhupendranath Basu writes in the Journal of the Royal Society of Arts. Those of you who have been to India and visited Benares must have noticed the leaning turrets on the banks of the Ganges. Benares is the holiest city of the Hindus, and temples erected there were considered as earning great merit for both those who built them and those in whose memory they were built.

Tradition says these turrets are the remnants of a Hindu temple which a dutiful son erected to the memory of his dead mother, believing that he would thereby repay the debt which he owed to her. When the temple was completed after several years—for you can even now see it was a great temple of stone—and was about to be consecrated, the son was filled with the pleasure which comes of a duty discharged, and he cried out: "Now, mother, I have after all been able to repay my debt to you," and lo! and behold, the temple began to lean toward the earth, and was about to fall, when the pious builder, remembering his blasphemy, exclaimed: "Oh, mother that art in heaven, truly I am sinful, for how can I think of repaying my debt to thee!" and the fall of the temple was arrested, but the leaning turrets still preach a great lesson to devout Hindus who visit Benares.

SHEEP CLUB BOY'S PROFITS

Investment Paying 200 Per Cent Induced Farmers to Take Renewed Interest in Industry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Late in the fall of 1917, George Irwin of Henry county, Indiana, and nine other boys in his neighborhood organized a sheep club. A few interested stockmen and the local bank made it possible for the club boys to secure one pure-bred ewe apiece. Each boy gave his note to the bank for the purchase price of his sheep.

In the summer of 1918 George Irwin presented the following statement of his work and investment:

Disbursements.
Cost of 1 ewe	$18.00
Feed	6.25
Interest on note72
Total cost	$24.97
Receipts.
1 ewe (inventory)	$18.00
1 lamb (sold)	25.00
1 lamb (sold)	22.50
Wool (sold)	6.50
Total receipts	$72.00
Total cost	$24.97
Profit	$47.03

Investments paying 200 per cent were worth looking into decided the farmers who lived in the locality of this club, and interest in sheep raising increased.

Another boy in the Henry County club has developed a flock of 30 ewes, and plans to have more. His father has become so interested in his son's work that, although the boy is rather young, he is allowed to go to sales and to do his own bidding on prospects for his flock. Practically all the boys engaged in the sheep-club work are keeping their foundation animals and at the same time are adding to their stock.

Previous to 1918 there were but few boys and girls organized into sheep clubs under the supervision of the department of agriculture and the state agricultural colleges. With the high price of wool and mutton, the sheep project, however, has become increasingly popular. Last year 257 such clubs were organized with an enrollment of 3,613 members. During the year 8,005 lambs were raised by these young people and 2,006 pounds of wool were marketed. The total value of the flocks at the end of the year was $131,173.40; the initial cost of the sheep, together with the expense of feeding them, was $37,082.82; the total profit made by the boys and girls who were members of the sheep clubs and who continued the work throughout the year was $94,090.58. The results the boys have been getting have opened the eyes of their fathers. The boys and girls in the sheep clubs are demonstrating in every state that sheep are profitable if well handled.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

A self-feeder assists in economical pork production because it prevents waste.

If there are no trees in the hog lots, it will be necessary to provide artificial shade.

There is no way we can make pork faster than to turn the hogs out into a field of clover.

A permanent, well-built dehorning chute is much more satisfactory than a portable one.

When pigs are kept free from parasites it is not hard to get them to grow at weaning time.

It would be a good idea for each farmer to raise a few calves and get the benefit of higher prices likely to prevail.

Tobacco dust or stems chopped fine and placed where sheep and lambs can always have access to them will help prevent stomach worms.

DAIRY FACTS

TO ELIMINATE SCRUB BULLS

Campaign Started by Wisconsin Farmers to Use Only Purebred Sires—Record in One County.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Wisconsin dairymen and farmers, desirous of increasing their profits and adding still greater honors to their already famous dairy state, have joined in a state-wide campaign to eliminate the scrub bull and use only purebred sires. The record made last year in the Brown County Cow-Testing association typifies the merits of purebred bulls and illustrates why farmers and dairymen will not tolerate the scrub. In this association 12 cows qualified for the register of production. All of these cows were daughters of purebred sires, six of them being daughters of one sire. The five best herds in the association are headed by purebred sires, while the five poorest herds are all headed by grade or scrub sires. The herds of those farmers who used purebred sires averaged 85 pounds more fat a cow than those using grades or scrubs. Last year eight of the members purchased purebred sires of known breeding to replace their scrubs.

KEEP DAIRY COWS ON FARM

For Farmer Who Has Good Market for Products Dairying Is Most Profitable Business.

Keeping dairy cows will help the average farmer to overcome three main drawbacks to the one-crop system of farming: A cash income but once a year, a depleted soil, and unequal distribution of labor, according to C. H. Staples, dairy specialist, extension division, Louisiana State University.

"For the farmer who does not have a ready and accessible market for dairy products, a few dairy cows will provide the cheapest and best of human food for the family," says Mr. Staples. "The cows will consume much of the rough feeds that usually go to waste and the expense of keeping them is almost negligible."

"For the farmer who has a good market for dairy products dairying is a most profitable business, is always a safe and sound line of farming, is least affected by sudden changes of weather and seasons, gives a steady cash income, builds up the soil, and provides employment for labor at all seasons."

MAKE BETTER FARM BUTTER

Trouble Incident to Home Production May Be Decreased by Using More Careful Methods.

The adoption of more careful methods of handling milk and cream and improved practices in the making of farm butter will reduce rather than increase the trouble incident to home production of this food, say dairy specialists, and will result in a superior product which can be sold more easily and for a better price than the average farm butter.

DAIRY HERD IS FOUNDATION

Not Hard to Raise Calves, Pigs and Lambs if Skimmed Milk Is Easily Available.

The dairy herd is the foundation for the stock farmer or even for the general farmer who keeps several kinds of stock. With skimmed milk it is easy to raise calves, pigs and lambs, but without it one may find a substitute rather expensive and unsatisfactory. Keep the dairy cows and then these others may be added.

FEED DAIRY COWS ROUGHAGE

Outline Given of Two Grain Rations to Be Fed With Clover or Alfalfa Hay.

When the roughage for dairy cows is clover or alfalfa hay, the grain rations may be 200 pounds corn-and-cob meal, 100 pounds ground oats and 100 pounds gluten feed; or 250 pounds corn-and-cob meal, 100 pounds wheat bran and 100 pounds gluten feed.

MOORS HAVE NOT LOST HOPE

Despite Long Disposition, They Still Hope to Return to Granada and the Alhambra.

At Granada, I remember, that the guardianship of the Vela (or Watch) tower at the extreme western point of the Alhambra, directly overlooking the city, has been in the hands of one family for several hundred years—practically since the conquest, in 1492! During a stay of several weeks at Granada, I cultivated that family, consisting of an aged crone, a middle-aged daughter and a scapegrace grandson called Escamillo.

Upon the top of that tower hangs the famous "wishing bell" that is believed to insure a husband to any girl who can knock it with her knuckles sufficiently loud to make it ring. The bell is about seven feet above the nearest perch, and that is where Escamillo comes in. He allows the anxious girl to climb upon his back and then stands erect so she can reach the object of her hopes. The gratuity is never less than a peseta (19 cents), and the fees often equal $1,000 a year. That bell is supposed to be rung hourly throughout the night to appease the sleeping people in the city below that the Moors have not come back; but across the Strait of Gibraltar, absolutely every night, the coffee houses of Tangier resound with the droning, haunting song of "Yerga," the Arabic word for "We shall return!"—meaning to Granada and to the re-possession of the Alhambra.—Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Swinburne Called War's Poet.

Nelson Collins, writing in Century, puts forward Swinburne as the poet of the world's war, and to prove his point he quotes liberally from Swinburne's "Songs Before Sunrise," published in 1871. "It is the greatest single volume of poetry in the last 50 years," Mr. Collins continues. "Swinburne was writing against King Frederick of Naples and Napoleon III and Francis Joseph, and for Italy in the birth of a new freedom and a betrayed France and a Europe disturbed, if not always demonstrative, throughout its length and breadth. Mazzini and Carducci were akin to him in abstract international mood. The poems are nearly 50 years old; but, then, he was a 'forward looking' man. And, anyway, what's in a date? The best book on the way the great war stamped the men who fought in it, 'The Red Laugh,' was written in 1905."

POULTRY FACTS

CHICKS REARED IN BROODERS

No System Ideal for All Conditions—Success Depends on Individual Handling.

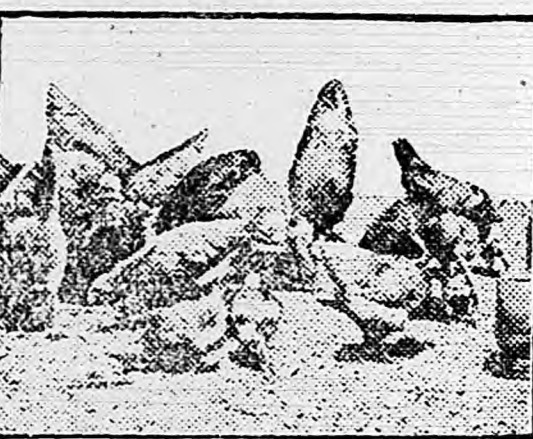

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More difference of opinion exists than in any other part of poultry rearing, which shows that no system is ideal for all conditions, but that success depends largely on individual handling and care. Many failures in brooding are due to weak chicks which may be traced to faulty incubation or weakness in breeding stock. Successful chick raising depends primarily upon having healthy, vigorous breeding stock.

Some of the most important faults in the management of brooders are overcrowding and lack of ventilation, while the chicks fail to get sufficient exercise. The brooder should supply the proper temperature, be readily adapted to change in weather conditions, be easy to clean and well ventilated. The capacity should not be overestimated. One-half to two-thirds of the number of chickens commonly advised will do much better than a larger number. Brooders and hovers should have from one-half to two inches of sand, dry dirt, cut clover or chaff spread over the floor, and in case they are kept in the brooder house, over the floor of this also. The hovers should be cleaned frequently, as cleanliness is essential in raising chickens successfully.

The best temperature at which to keep a brooder or hover depends upon the position of the thermometer, the style of the hover, the age of the chickens, and the weather conditions. Aim to keep the chickens comfortable. As the operator learns by the action of the chickens the amount of heat they require, he can discard the thermometer if he desires. When too cold they will crowd together and try to get nearer the heat. If it is found in the morning that the droppings are well scattered over the hover it is an indication that the chickens have had enough heat. If the chickens are comfortable at night they will be spread out under the hover with the heads of some protruding from under the hover cloth. Too much heat will cause them to pant and sit around with their mouths open.

It is impossible to state for each case at what temperature the brooders should be kept to raise young chickens; however, it will run from 90 up to 100 degrees in some cases, as some breeds of chickens seem to require more heat than others, an average being 93 to 95 degrees for the first week or ten days, when the temperature is gradually reduced to 85 degrees for the following ten days, and then lowered to 70 or 75 degrees for as long as the chickens need heat. This depends somewhat on the season of the year and the number of the chickens, as it can be readily seen that the heat generated by 50 chickens would raise the temperature under the hover to a higher degree than the heat given off by a lesser number, consequently the amount of heat furnished by the lamp or stove will have to be regulated accordingly. As the chickens grow larger and need less heat the lamps may be used only at night, and later only on cold nights. The heat is usually cut off at the end of four or five weeks in March or April in the vicinity of Washington, D. C., while winter chickens have heat for eight or ten weeks, or until they are well feathered. Care should be taken to prevent chilling or overheating the chickens, which weakens them and may result in bowel trouble.

When chickens are first put into the brooder they should be confined under or around the hover by placing a board or wire frame a few inches outside (this would not apply to the small outdoor colony brooders).

POULTRY NOTES

Ducks need the grit for their digestion just as chickens do.

Clean houses, nests, runs, drinking and feeding vessels are important.

Old hens that are not needed for breeders should be fattened and marketed.

There is still a good demand for capons, and all on hand should be marketed.

You should have tight coops for the hens and chickens to prevent rats, weasels and skunks from getting in nights and killing little chickens.

At the hour of midnight Wednesday the cry of fire was heard in our community when the meat house of Mr. Ponder Culver was discovered to be on fire, from some unknown cause, and but for the dampness of the weather and the heroic work of young Mr. Culver and his father, Mr. George A. Culver, the dwelling also would have been burned. The burned building contained about five hundred pounds of meat and many other articles of value, which were also destroyed.

Suggestion For A Camping Trip

Buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy before leaving home. As a rule it cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamships and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you.

Third Term For Mr. Wilson?

Woodrow Wilson will be nominated for a third term next year and will have but little choice but to accept; he will be "drafted." This is the opinion given by Mr. Norman E. Mack, formerly chairman of the National Committee of Mr. Wilson's party.

The trouble with a dark horse is that he doesn't always come to light.

Dynamiting the Clams.

The little pholas or boring clam is a great delicacy on the Pacific coast. Its meat is juicy and tender and is excellent in chowder. Consequently, fishermen are not content to dislodge the clams slowly with pick and crowbar. They use dynamite, one blast of which dislodges hundreds of clams, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

A LITTLE TALK TO MEN

(BUT THE WOMEN MAY READ IT)

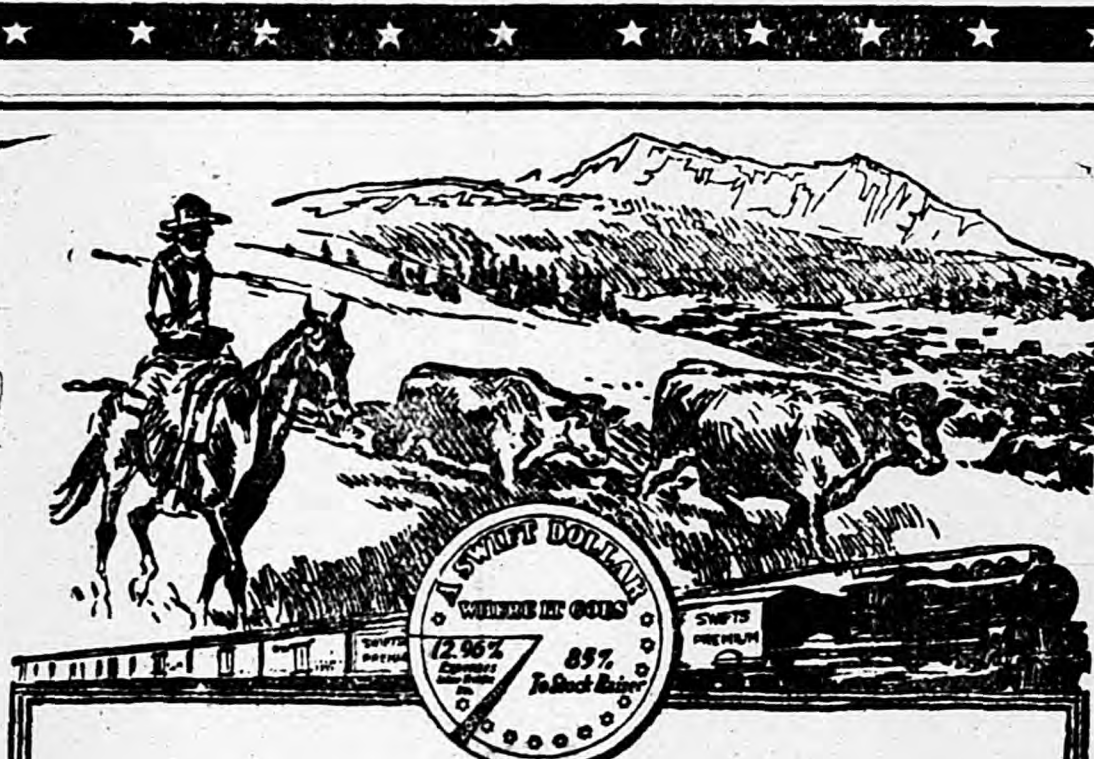

You men are so absorbed in your daily business affairs that sometime the home affairs become of secondary interest.

You know the cost of living is high. You wonder at the end of the month where all the money has gone for home expenses.

If friend wife doesn't make an itemized report, don't blame her. Perhaps the fault is your own. Do you give her an allowance—deposited in this bank—upon which she can check for all household expense?

It's the ideal way to keep a record of home buying. It helps keep down expenses. Isn't it worth trying, men?

The Flow of Meat

Two-thirds of the live stock in the United States has to be raised in the West.

One-half of the consumers of meat live in the East.

In other words, most of the live stock is one or two thousand miles distant from most of the people who need it in the form of food.

Fifty years ago, when live stock was raised close to every consuming center, the country butcher could handle the job after a fashion.

But the job got too big.

Now millions of animals have to be moved hundreds of miles to millions of people. Somewhere on the way they have to be turned into meat.

The packers solved the problem. They set up plants where the "live haul" and the "meat haul" were in the right balance. They built up distributing systems—refrigerator cars, refrigerating plants, branch houses. They saved time, money and meat everywhere. The stockraiser benefited in better markets and higher prices; the consumer, in better meat and lower prices.

As the country grew, the packers had to grow, or break down. Because of its present size and efficiency, Swift & Company is able to perform its part in this service at a fraction of a cent per pound profit.

OLD HOME PRIZE WINNERS

Misses Baum, Lankford and Smith The Successful Young Ladies

The Old Home Prize, presented by Mr. John S. McMaster, of Jersey City, N. J., to high school students for essays on "The Eastern Shore of Maryland," were awarded this year to two pupils of the Washington High School, and one special prize was awarded by the examining committee. The winners of the first and second prizes were: Miss Dorothy Berrien Baum, "Teackle Mansion, a Home of the Eastern Shore," and Miss Clara Morris Lankford, "The Eastern Shore, the Garden Spot of the World." The special prize was presented to Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Smith.

As there were three young ladies who handed in prize essays, the committee—Messrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, George H. Myers and George W. Maslin—considered all the papers excellent and consequently volunteered a special prize to Miss Smith.

Mr. McMaster has presented to the library of the Washington High School or the Public Library of Princess Anne, as may be elected, a copy of the Life of William Claiborne, of Virginia, written by Dr. J. H. Claiborne, of New York City. This work will give data to high school students who compete for the Old Home Prize, upon the subject of the Eastern Shore.

Board of Education Organized

The Board of Education met on Tuesday last and proceeded to reorganize as follows: President, Dr. G. T. Atkinson; vice-president, Dr. C. W. Wainwright; clerk and attendance officer, Mrs. Addie Bond Dashiell; counsel to the board, H. Fillmore Lankford; supervisor of colored schools, Herbert S. Wilson. There is no vacancy in the office of county superintendent as the present superintendent's term has not expired. After attending to routine business the Board made the appointments of trustees.

Notice has been received by the Board of Education that the annual examinations for teachers' certificates will be held at the high school building, Princess Anne, on Thursday and Friday, June 13th and 14th, beginning at 8 o'clock a. m. each day. All applicants for their first certificates are expected to take the examinations. An opportunity will also be given to teachers who desire to raise their certificate from second grade to first and from third grade to second, as provided in the school law.

A notice has also been received that a scholarship for female applicants for this county will be vacant this year at Western Maryland College. A competitive examination will be announced early in the summer by advertisement in the county papers.

Meetings in Interest of Dairy Cattle

County Agent C. Z. Keller has arranged to have G. E. Wolcott, dairy specialist of the Extension Service, speak at several meetings of farmers' clubs in the county in the interest of dairy cattle and silos this week. At Costen and Cokesbury, at Quinton Hall, Tuesday, May 20th, at 8.30 p. m. (new time); Princess Anne, at the Court House, Wednesday afternoon, May 21st, at 3 o'clock (new time); at Jamestown, at Guild Hall, Wednesday, May 21st, at 3.30 p. m. (new time).

The object of these meetings is to encourage the keeping of more and better dairy cows on the farms of the county. The proposition of obtaining several carloads of high grade milk cows will be considered at the meeting Wednesday afternoon at Princess Anne. The organization of a thoroughbred calf club and bull association will also be considered in several communities of the county. Farmers interested in the future of dairy cattle and the marketing of dairy products should arrange to attend this meeting.

Dynamite To Be Used On Tax Ditch

The managers of the Tonies Branch Tax Ditch have ordered 3,000 pounds of dynamite to blow a ditch through a mile of low and swampy land in the course of the tax ditch.

At the series of dynamite demonstrations conducted in the county several weeks ago by County Agent Keller, co-operating with an explosive representative, it was shown that dynamite could be used economically in ditching low wet land. County Agent Keller has arranged with the managers of the Tonies Branch Tax Ditch to have a representative of the explosive company present to supervise the dynamite work. This demonstration will be held early next month and farmers interested in the use of dynamite in ditching land should be present at this time.

Elwood Lankford Arrested In Salisbury

Acting for the Department of Justice in Baltimore, Miss Coen ordered the arrest of Elwood Lankford, who has been residing on Locust street at the home of Isaac Matthews, Salisbury, Tuesday morning, and had him locked up in jail awaiting the arrival of a Department of Justice agent who took him to Baltimore for trial.

It is said that Lankford is connected with a long list of various crimes dating back for several years, any of which it is said would indict him for a long time in a penal institution.

Miss Coen says the records in her office show that Lankford entered the army February, 1917, as a member of Company L, Pioneer Division, and was discharged the 14th of November, 1918. Since that time, he has been using Government checks mailed to his common law wife, some of which he is said to have forged her name to and used the money. When arrested he had one of these checks drawn to the order of his wife on which he had made the endorsement ready to be cashed.

The records in the office of Miss Coen are said to show that Lankford has at least two, if not three, wives living in various parts of the country and that the wife in Salisbury is a common law wife by whom he has had one child. One of his other wives is said to live at Spartansburg, S. C., and the authorities believe he has one in Philadelphia and another in New Jersey.

THE FIREMEN'S MINSTREL SHOW

Big Two-Part Performance Last Friday Night By Local Talent

The Firemen's Minstrel Show, given by home talent last Friday night in the Auditorium, was a brilliant success. The show hall was crowded to its utmost capacity and, because of the full house, there were many people who could not enter. The entire performance was replete with bright and breezy dialogue and the snappy 'coon songs and local hits by the end men brought forth continued encores.

The music, furnished by Mrs. J. D. Wallop, pianist; Messrs. Charles C. Evans, cello; Adolph Beyne and W. Wedelin, violinists, was highly creditable and added much enthusiasm to the entertainment.

Those who took part in the entertainment were: Interlocutor, Milton M. Holden; Messrs. George W. Colborn, Jr., Charles Carrow, Paul A. Walker, Elwood Wilson, Hamp Wilson, Joseph Goodman, end men. In the chorus were Messrs. Frank D. Layfield, Earl Waller, Charles Matthews, Harry Wherritt, Harrel Richardson, Olie Pichard, Everett Cannon and Edwin Hayman.

The program of the first part was: Opening choruses by the company, "Dark Town Strutters Ball" and "How are You Going to Keep them Down on the Farm"; solo, "Sing, Sister, Sing," Hamp Wilson; solo, "All Bound Around the Mason and Dixon Line," Joseph Goodman; duet, "A Little Lump of Sugar Down in Dixie," Wilson Brothers; solo, "You'll Find Old Dixieland in France," George W. Colborn, Jr.; solo, "Goodbye Alexander," Paul A. Walker; solo, "Till We Meet Again," Olie Pichard.

Part second was: Violin solo, W. Wedelin; drill and song, "I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," eight boys; solo, "Banjo Solo," Warren Pusey; "Those Alcoholic Blues," Joe Goodman; violin solo, Adolph Beyne; "The Rose of No Man's Land," (a novelty act, quartette), Wilson Brothers, Goodman and Colborn; cello solo, "Asleep in the Deep," Charles Evans; show-chow specialty, Wherritt, Brand and Pusey, followed by a song by the members of the fire company.

Mr. George W. Colborn, Jr., on behalf of the fire company, made a short address thanking the public for the patronage extended and impressed upon the audience the necessity of giving the Volunteer Fire Company of Princess Anne financial aid in order that modern fire-fighting equipment can be purchased with which the company could give protection from fire to the property of every property owner in our town.

Victory Loan A Success

Alarm caused by the slow progress of the Victory Loan in the first two weeks of the "drive" proved to be needless.

In the last few days subscriptions poured in at a rate which put the loan "over the top." The amount of the surplus is not yet known, but the total amount subscribed has reached $6,000,000. Only $4,500,000,000 was called for.

The number of subscribers is about 15,000,000. This compares with four, nine, seventeen and twenty-one millions to the first, second, third and fourth loans respectively.

The success seems the more remarkable when it is remembered that at the same time business men had to raise eight billions to pay their last year's federal taxes which were not assessed until this year. At the same time they are expected to set aside four or five billions from this year's earnings to pay this year's taxes. These are hard times for the rich. Never before were they taxed at anything like the present rates.

Southern Convocation Meets

The Southern Convocation of the Diocese of Easton met in St. Mary's Church, Pocomoke City, last Tuesday and Wednesday. Tuesday night a sermon was preached by Rev. Douglas I. Hobbs, of St. Luke's Parish, Church Hill. Wednesday morning an essay was read by the Rev. W. D. Gould, of Great Choptank Parish, Cambridge. At the service following the discussion on the essay, the sermon was preached by the Rev. Herbert D. Cone, of Salisbury. In the afternoon an address was made by Mr. Fred E. C. Webb, of Salisbury, and Rev. J. A. Brown, of the Congregationalist Concordat, proposing the Episcopal Ordination of Non-Episcopal Ministers, after which the addresses were discussed by those present. At night a sermon was preached by Rev. F. H. Hunt, of Quantico. The Convocation accepted the invitation to meet at Spring Hill Parish, Quantico, September 30th.

MARYLANDERS NOW ON WAY HOME

The 115th Infantry Expected At Newport News This Week

Many Maryland heroes are now on the seas speeding homeward. At this time are the 115th Infantry, the 110th Field Artillery, as well as practically every unit of the 29th Division. Already the 114th Infantry, composed mostly of New Jersey National Guardsmen, have landed at Hoboken. The Headquarters Company of the 29th Division and the Military Police of the 29th, which includes the former members of Troop A, are expected about May 18th at Newport News.

The War Department has just issued the following statement on the units of the 29th:

The 115th Infantry, made up for the most part of the old First, Fourth and Fifth Maryland Regiments of Infantry, sailed from St. Nazaire May 11th on the transport Artemis, with its complement of 91 officers and 2,986 men. The Artemis is due to arrive at Newport News May 24th. On the same transport is the 112th Machine-gun Battalion complete, 14 officers and 671 men, most of whom hail from Maryland and Virginia.

The 110th Field Artillery is on the transport Orizaba, which sailed from St. Nazaire May 12th for Newport News. The date of her arrival was not given, but she is expected in on the heels of the Artemis. The regiment's personnel of 39 officers and 1,284 men is on board, along with the following units:

Fifty-fourth Field Artillery Brigade Headquarters, 8 officers and 62 men. One Hundred and Twelfth Field Artillery complete, 40 officers and 1,399 men. One Hundred and Fourth Ammunition Train, less Company E, 22 officers and 981 men.

On the transport Manchuria, sailing from St. Nazaire May 11th for Boston and due to arrive May 22nd, are the following additional units of the Twenty-ninth Division:

Fifty-eighth Infantry Brigade Headquarters, 5 officers and 19 men. One Hundred and Fourth Supply Train complete, 10 officers and 442 men. One Hundred and Fourth Engineers complete, 10 officers and 1,557 men. One Hundred and Fourth Sanitary Train complete, 18 officers and 843 men. One Hundred and Fourth Mobile Ordnance Repair Shop, 2 officers and 46 men. One Hundred and Fourth Train Headquarters, 3 officers and 28 men.

Elaborate plans to receive the men of the different units are being completed by the auxiliaries in Baltimore and delegations will be at the ports to greet the men when the ships dock. Major Barrett, of the 115th Infantry, and Walter Brooks, of the 110th Artillery, are planning to be in the delegation.

It is stated that the 115th Infantry would parade with all the other units and that, although the date of the parade has not been set, the 115th will afterward be entertained by the auxiliary in the Fifth Regiment Armory, to a buffet luncheon and at night to a dance. In the evening the Knights of Columbus will give the men a dinner. With the 115th, the 112th Machine Gun Battalion will also be entertained. The other units, being smaller, will be entertained in the other armories.

New Feature of Income Tax Law

Hon. Joshua W. Miles, collector of internal revenue, has issued a statement calling attention to the fact that under the present income tax law all partnerships are required to make a return of income regardless of the amount of gross or net income. This return must be made on a blank form furnished by the collector's office and known as Form 1065.

This is a new feature of the income tax law and Collector Miles issues this statement at this time in order that all persons liable to file a partnership return may be apprised of the necessity for doing so. He said:

"Partnerships as such are not subject to taxation under the statute, but individuals carrying on business in partnership are taxable upon their distributive shares of the net income of such partnerships, whether distributed or not, and are required to include such distributive shares in their returns. The larger business concerns are probably aware of the necessity of filing the partnership return, but it is the great number of small concerns which I fear will fail to make this statement because the necessity thereof is unknown to such concerns.

"These returns must be filed in the office of the collector of internal revenue at Baltimore, Maryland, not later than June 15th. Every partnership, without regard to the amount of its gross or net income, should apply to the collector's office promptly for a blank form upon which to file its return."

Come, let us worry about the Egyptian and Korean riots, and massacres in distant places.

BOY SCOUT WEEK JUNE 8 TO 14

President Wilson Calls On Americans To Help Organization

President Wilson, in a proclamation, recommended that the period beginning June 8th to Flag Day, June 14th, be observed over the country as Boy Scout Week for the purpose of strengthening the Boy Scouts of America. The President urged that in every community a citizen's committee be organized to co-operate in carrying out a program "for extending the Boy Scout program to a larger proportion of American boyhood."

Under plans announced by James E. West, chief scout executive, a nationwide campaign will be conducted for 1,000,000 associate members to act as scoutmasters, assistants and other leaders of the scout troops. The country will be divided into 12 districts, with headquarters for each at Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco. Each district will be given a quota of associate members to enroll.

President Wilson's proclamation, fixing the campaign week, follows:

"The Boy Scouts of America have rendered notable service to the nation during the world war. They have done effective work in the Liberty Loan and War Savings campaigns, in discovering and reporting upon black walnut supply, in co-operating with the Red Cross and other war work agencies, in acting as dispatch bearers for the Committee on Public Information and in other important fields. The Boy Scouts have not only demonstrated their worth to the nation but have also materially contributed to a deeper appreciation by the American people of the higher conception of patriotism and good citizenship.

"The Boy Scout movement should not only be preserved but strengthened. It deserves the support of all public spirited citizens. The available means for the Boy Scout movement has thus far sufficed for the organization and training of only a small proportion of the boys of the country. There are approximately 10,000,000 boys in the United States between the ages of 12 and 21. Of these only 375,000 are enrolled as members of the Boy Scouts of America. America cannot acquit herself commensurately with her power and influence in the great period now facing her and the world unless the boys of America are given better opportunities than heretofore to prepare themselves for the responsibilities of citizenship.

"Every nation depends for its future upon the proper training and development of its youth. The American boy must have the best training and discipline our great democracy can provide if America is to maintain her ideals, her standards and her influence in the world.

"The plan, therefore, for a Boy Scout Week during which a universal appeal will be made to all Americans to supply the means to put the Boy Scouts of America in a position to carry forward effectively and continuously the splendid work they are doing for the youth of America should have the unreserved support of the nation.

"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby recommend that the period beginning Sunday, June 8, to Flag Day, June 14, be observed as Boy Scout Week throughout the United States for the purpose of strengthening the work of Boy Scouts of America.

"I earnestly recommend that in every community a citizens' committee, under the leadership of a national citizens' committee, be organized to co-operate in carrying out a program for a definite recognition of the effective services rendered by the Boy Scouts of America for a survey of the facts relating to the boyhood of each community, in order that with the co-operation of churches, schools and other organizations definitely engaged in work for boys, adequate provision may be made for extending the Boy Scout program to a larger proportion of American boyhood.

"The Boy Scout movement offers unusual opportunity for volunteer service. It needs men to act as committeemen and as leaders of groups of boys. I hope that all who can will enlist for such personal service, enroll as associate members and give all possible financial assistance to this worthy organization of American boyhood. Anything that is done to increase the effectiveness of the Boy Scouts of America will be a genuine contribution to the welfare of the nation."

For Self and Wife

By IZOLA FORRESTER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The night clerk at the Barclay house was sleepy that night. It was about 11:30 when the boat train got in, and the bus met it on time, more from habit and precedent than any actual gain in patronage.

Few guests ever wandered to the island after the first spring rush up the river. A rambling tramp steamer from Seattle or Vancouver would sometimes bring a few belated passengers up, who, finding themselves marooned at Barclay's, with no chance of getting any farther up the river, would take the next steamer down.

But tonight there was an expected guest. Reservations had even been made for her, special privileges requested, and a new fire built in the little low-celled north room next the office. And on the old canvas-bound registry was written in a bold, splashy hand:

"Craig Fallon and wife."

Fallon had arrived on the river boat the day before, a big good-looking youngster who had spent the past two years up around Nome, and had finally taken a steady position, he told Jimmy, the clerk, with a trading company.

"Soon as I was sure I sent for the young lady I'm going to marry," he added confidentially. "Coming way up here from Nebraska. Miss Kendall's her name. Who's the minister here?"

"I don't know where you'll find any, unless it was Sandwiche's," Jimmy meditated in friendly fashion. "He's got a little shack over the south shore, if you can catch him to home."

"He's out with the Injuns most of the time teaching them. We call him Sandwiche 'cause he hands you out a feed before he tries to give you any dose of religion. He was the worst one up here when he first come out, and then he got a sudden light. That's the way he puts it. Says the Lord shone on him, and he's walked straight ever since. Wish a lot more were like him."

Walked for hours along its lonely shores.

Fallon had not returned when the bus drew up before the hotel, and Chuck handed down the lone passenger, a girl in a brown cloak and veil. Chuck tried to see past the veil, but failed, and had to be content with a glimpse when she threw it back at the desk and asked rather tremulously if Mr. Craig Fallon was there.

"Well, miss, he is and he ain't," Jimmy told her, trying to break it to her gently. "He came and engaged the rooms and then he went after a minister, and that's the scarcest article we have up here. Only one in the whole district, 'ceptin' the priest down the river, but he's gone after Sandwiche's. Guess you had better get to bed and make yourself easy. He'll be back."

That was the end of April. Day after day passed by and the little bride-elect waited. Rosalie Kendall, she gave her name. Amakeaug Island got used to seeing her when she walked for hours along its lonely shores, gazing over at the far-off mainland or up the vast Yukon in silent questioning.

There was no mystery about her. She told Jimmy's mother, the landlady, all about herself. She had gone to school with Craig Fallon and they had been sweethearts before he had gone away. She had waited for him to send for her so they could be married.

"Oughter hev married him before he started out," advised Mrs. Barclay, sagely. "Never let them outer your sight. Ain't any stability in any of 'em, not a one. I had three husbands and I know what I'm talking about. Here you are, stranded dead on this forsaken dab of earth in the middle of nowhere and land knows where he is. You may stay here till you're as old as I be before they ever find his bones."

The words struck Rosalie oddly. There was the old fearlessness of pioneer women, and she had a good part of the money that Craig had sent her for her outfit, right with her. "Get me a guide and supplies," she said suddenly. "I'm going after him." They found her Chakomo, a silent, rather dumpy Indian who made his way unerringly to the house of the minister, twenty-four miles up the river on the south shore. And arriving there, they found it buried under mud and debris. Chakomo shrugged his shoulders at sight of it.

"River rise too much," he said grimly. "Mebbe kill."

He struck at the pile of earth with his toe idly, and Rosalie turned away with a shudder.

"We go on," she ordered.

"No go on. Go back," said Chakomo, starting for the boat. She tried to run after him to call out, but the utter hopelessness of the quest swept her, and she stood by the ruins, her hands pressed across her eyes. And here Sandwiche's found her when he made his semi-weekly trip after supplies cached in the shack.

He was like a scarecrow, she thought, as she watched him in the gloom, striding up from the landing, his head thrown back, his voice ringing out in an old gospel hymn, "Pull for the Shore, Sailor." And there in the mass of wreckage he found her, a slim, wide-eyed girl from "below," her hands clasped before her tightly as she waited to see whether he was friend or foe.

"I'll bet two cents to a collar button," said Sandwiche's, "that you're Rosalie! There's a young man two miles from here that's been singing about you in his delirium for about three weeks. But I never thought the Lord would bring you down the river and set you right here for me to find."

Later that night, in the Indian tent where she found him, Rosalie was married to Craig Fallon, with a couple of Indians as witnesses; and Sandwiche's, having finished his work, smiled down at them in the brilliant May moonlight that shone in through the lifted fly.

"He trailed me all over here trying to get me to tie this knot, and couldn't locate me," he explained. "I'd gone up the river to be with some Siwash that had the measles, and when I got here he'd come down, too, and was out of his head. All he did was beg me to marry him to Rosalie right off the bat, and I'm mighty glad to do it, ma'am; that's all I can say."

They heard him singing all the way down to the water's edge where his boat was waiting and Craig's arms reached hungrily for his bride.

"You must have heard me calling for you," he whispered. "Know what Sandwiche's kept telling me?"

"Many waters do not quench love."

"Love is stronger than death."

"I reckon I've said that a million times, dear, and here you are."

BUMPS ARE SURE TO COME

One's Success in Life Depends Very Much on the Way in Which We Receive Them.

We were watching a little two-year-old boy climb up a chair—as children are wont to do. The first two times he tried it he fell back kerbang and hit his head a resounding whack. But he never uttered a cry—just got up and went at it again. That boy will succeed in life unless some friend persists in "making a big fuss" over the little fellow every time he gets a bump. From the time we are laid in our crib by the nurse to the time the undertaker reverently puts us in our last resting place we are bumped about in the world. Sometimes the bumps are spiritual; sometimes they are physical.

But, whichever they are, the important thing is—keep going. The man or woman who stops to shed tears will get shoved to the side of the road by those coming up who push on even when their eyes are blinded with tears. And our reaction to bumps will depend a great deal upon the way we are taught to receive them as children.—Wisconsin State Journal.

"Congress Gaiters" Again.

There has been a very decided revival of the old "congress gaiter," with its elastic insert at the sides, which were very generally worn more than a century ago. The explanation rests in the fact that American shoes are now being extensively worn by the natives of Japan. The more rapid adoption of the Western styles of lace and button shoes is made difficult by the native custom that requires that shoes be removed before a person enters a home or inn. In some cases it is even required that the shoes be removed, or at least covered with cloth protectors, before entering shops, theaters and similar public buildings. This custom has led to the quite general adoption of the old-fashioned but convenient "congress" boot by those who wear occidental footwear during business hours.

"Le Doughnut."

The younger children of the French peasants have taken very kindly to corned beef and chewing gum of the Yanks, but cornmeal mush is beyond a Frenchman's conception. Perhaps, however, the chef-d'oeuvre of the American culinary art, the masterpiece that has won its way into the heart of the entire population, is the doughnut. There is no possible translation for the name of this savory morsel, and so the native term has been adopted, and time and again I have heard youngsters who were hanging round a mess kitchen implore the good-natured cooks, "Monsieur, un doughnut, please! Monsieur Jimmy, pour quand les doughnuts?"—Frances Wilson Hurd, in the Youth's Companion.

Forcing Plants by Light.

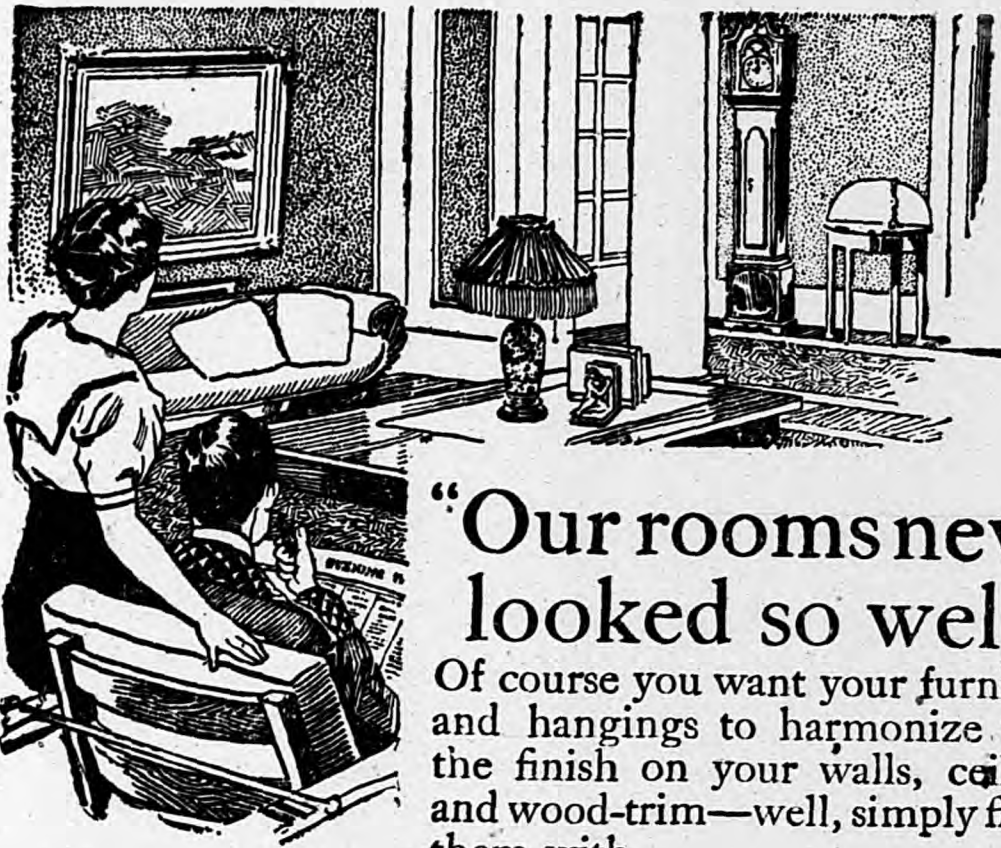

To force the growth of plants by the use of artificial light is not a new idea, but the system hitherto has been too expensive in proportion to obtainable results.

Recently a man engaged in horticulture discovered an efficacious method of applying light for this purpose. Arranging in winter quarters his plants as he wished them to grow, he supplies a lamp with mercury vapor for fuel and the seeds germinate in less than half the ordinary time, while the vigor and intensity of the color of the flowers is superior to that of the product grown naturally.

Another curious phenomenon noticed in connection with this action of light is an infinite multiplication of the downy substance commonly found on stems. Those grown in shadow have the stems relatively bare. Very good practical results have been obtained by this system.

THE FRIENDLY TOBACCO

Horse Sense About Tobacco

Good tobacco ought to be like a well-bred hoss—all th' kick taken out but all th' sperit left in.

You see, half the secret of makin' a good hoss is in the breedin' an' half in the breakin'. Selectin' tobacco that's grown right is only half of makin' Velvet. The agein' is the other half.

Thar's only one kind of agein' that gets th' right results—Nature's own. Nature's no clock watcher. She does a job right whether it takes two years or two thousand.

So when she gets through with the fine Kentucky Burley that we put away in wooden hogsheads for two years, it's just right.

It ain't been hurried none, or short-cutted. It's a Nature-done job.

All kinds of things are packed in tobacco tins, but your good neighbor will tell you "Velvet is the real pipe tobacco." Prove it for yourself.

MARJORIE'S ONE HUNDRED.

Marjorie, aged 9, had not been having very satisfactory reports from school. Her father finally said: "Marjorie, for the first 100 you get I'll give you a quarter." Time went on, and the reward could not be claimed. One day the child was taken violently ill. Her mother sent for the doctor. When he had gone Marjorie said: "Mamma, am I very ill?"

"No, dear; your temperature is a little over 100, but the doctor thinks you will be better in a day or so."

Smiles broke through Marjorie's tears.

"Now, mamma, I can have my quarter. Papa said he would give it to me if I could get 100 on anything."—Christian Advocate.

More What?

Mr. Downe-Towne—Not entirely, old chap. There are still a few strange faces.

POOR CAT

Mr. Newwed—I always claimed that the cat was one of the wisest of animals.

SEES BILLBOARD AS EYESORE

Writer Denounces Monstrosity as Destructive to Every Standard of Civic Beauty.

Reasonable people no longer expect to take a railroad journey without having to look at billboards advertising shaving soap or toothpowder, set in the midst of the choicest scenery.

It lends a shudder to the thought of man's conquest of the air that soon, perhaps, we shall see the sky plastered over with chewing gum ads, a writer in the Boston Globe laments. With what regret shall we look back to the days when we could lift up our eyes to the clouds as a relief from the grievous handiwork of man. But not much longer. The dark underside of a good black storm cloud is too good a billboard to be neglected. Directly the art of throwing letters of light against the heavens is perfected we shall need a "blue sky" law with a vengeance.

Within certain limits the billboard has its proper function, one which no one need resent. It is largely a question of "the eternal fitness of things." We do not resent a screeching monstrosity of lumber and paint which defiles the serenity of a placid landscape or the privacy of a residential street by attempting to blackjack our intellects into buying some particular brand of some particular article which we do not want. A public opinion which tolerates this wholesale disfigurement must be in a somewhat rudimentary state as regards its standards of civic beauty. Eyes which are forced to grow accustomed to such physical ugliness grow desensitized to ugliness of all sorts and are prone to tolerate ugly speech and thought and action.

CITY LOOKS TO THE FUTURE

Cleveland Planning Not Only to Provide Homes, but Wholesome Amusement for Citizens.

Cleveland, O., which has been one of the first cities to begin building on an extensive scale, will not only provide for the needs of its homemakers who must have dwellings, but will make sure that all its residents have amusement during the summer months. As a means of making the city a better place for returning soldiers as well as more attractive to its other citizens recreation centers will be established at various convenient places.

According to information sent to the United States department of labor Cleveland has set aside $500,000 for the purpose of providing these recreation centers when the city goes dry. Six of these will be opened on principal corners and will be fitted up in a most inviting and artistic style. A $10,000 log cabin has been erected in Garfield park, and a boathouse costing $150,000 is to be built in Edgewater park. New parks will also be opened.

This enterprise is suggestive of the development of the idea of community life, for the recreation centers have great possibilities as clubhouses of the future, where citizens may assemble to pass evenings in healthful relaxation.

Advertisements on Trees.

Already in nine states the nailing of advertisements onto trees, sides of barns and fences within the limits of highways and on property of persons owning land, without the owner's permission, is prohibited by law. Col. Edward S. Cornell, secretary of the National Highways Protective society, stated at Boston when commenting on the work his society is doing to beautify and preserve the highways of the United States.

Aside altogether from the standpoint of beauty, said Colonel Cornell nailing of advertisements onto trees is harmful to the trees themselves and also the fact that heavy nails are left embedded in the wood renders the work of sawing them into lumber dangerous to the workers later.

Colonel Cornell added that a bill to prohibit unlawful signs on highways had recently been introduced in the lower house of the Illinois legislature.

Workers' Home Urged.

The war provided a great impetus to the movement for decent homes for employees, said Noble Foster Hoggson, president of Hoggson Bros., builders of New York.

"Under governmental auspices and with government money," he added, "plants engaged in war work undertook to create villages designed along model lines to house their workmen, and so reduce shifting of labor from place to place."

"To ignore our housing needs in our future calculations will be no less than a calamity. A man holds his home sacred above all things. Take his home away or the right to create a home and you will produce wanderers living under conditions not fit for animals. The result is new members for incipient bolshevists."

Two Important Questions.

No questions are of greater importance to the family than the water supply and the disposal of its sewage. The prospective builder should make certain that these problems are solved before he does anything else, for they lie at the foundation of the entire household's health and comfort.

Games of Chinese Children.
Chinese girls do not play much with dolls, but both they and the boys spin tops, which are made of bamboo, and hum loudly. The children get much excitement over Punch and Judy shows. They also dearly love to keep pets, such as goldfish, rabbits and birds. They have many riddles, nursery rhymes and games that they play together. Some of the games are very much like those that the children of America and Europe play, such as blindman's buff and puss in the corner. Hide-and-seek, too, is the same as in this country, but they have many games that we know nothing about. Sometimes they make themselves into a centipede—which means a creature of one hundred legs—by all joining hands, from the tallest down to the smallest tot. Each one then puts her head under her arm and all follow the movements of the tall one at the head of the line, winding in and out in a very funny way.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Keep Sweet.

Losing the temper takes all the sweet, pure feeling out of life. One may get up in the morning with a clean heart, full of song, and start out as happy as a bird, and the moment he is crossed and gives way to temper the clean feeling vanishes and a load as heavy as lead is rolled upon the heart. Be the master of your temper and you hold the key to joy and contentment.

Whence "Dutch."

The name Dutch is derived from Dietsch, meaning the vernacular, as distinguished from Latin. It is the same word as the German Deutsch. Dutch belongs to the Frankish division of the Low German, and is closely related to the Flemish, with which it is now practically identified in its written form. The Dutch language is one of the Germanic group of dialects, and is practically the same in its structure.

Evidently No Lover of Cards.

It is very wonderful to see persons of the best sense passing hours together in shuffling and dividing a pack of cards with no conversation but in different figures. Would not a man what is made up of a few game- phrases, and no other ideas but those of black or red spots ranged together laugh to hear any one of his species complaining that life is short?—Addison.

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 20, 1919

Many gasoline saving devices are advertised for motorists, but the surest one is the walking habit.

The boy who last year had to have his mother wash his ears, is now begging for white flannel trousers and patent leather shoes.

When the girls get sick of the present style of brimless hats they can always use them for corn meal scoops or huckleberry baskets.

Not merely are some people agitating for the six hour working day, but they are figuring how they can spend that six hours in the most restful way.

The people who complain about high insurance rates are often the same ones who run fires with chimneys all sooted up and who throw lighted matches into waste baskets.

Anyone who reads the reports of the new spring wheat crop and yet continues blue about business, should ask his family physician to give him a good spring tonic.

It is denied that the stocks for which the suckers are swapping their Liberty bonds are worthless, as the junk man will pay 30 cents a hundred pounds for the certificates.

The men who think that women's place is in the home didn't file any objection to their going ahead and assuming the work of raising a big part of the Victory Loan.

The following prophecy from Job, first chapter, and fifth verse, will again be fulfilled on July 1st in this country: "Awake ye drunkards, and weep; and howl, all ye drinkers of wine—for it is cut off from your mouths."

Anxious Inquirer is informed that these advanced young women with ears carefully covered are not protecting their ears from getting torn off in a football game, but are merely following the present style of hair dressing.

The sucker catchers who are persuading the people to swap off their Liberty bonds for worthless or speculative securities, are hampered by the inability of the printers to turn out their beautifully engraved certificates fast enough.

About now lovely nature calls upon one to come out into the open and drink in the loveliness of the landscape, but unfortunately lovely nature fails to offer any practical suggestions as to how last month's household bills are going to be paid.

THE PEACE TREATY.

Some soft hearted people think the peace terms as stated to the Germans at Versailles, are too severe. Yet Germany is much better off today than was the Southern Confederacy after the Civil War. Today the South is very prosperous. If Germany will quit whining and go to work, accepting her defeat in good faith, she can satisfy all demands of the allies and regain prosperity before the present generation passes on.

The German people must remember that to attain any prosperity they have got to obtain the good will of the rest of the world. They will never get that until they make frank confession of the wrongs they have committed and set to work to atone for them in good faith.

The German people will now be clear of the tremendous burden of their military and naval establishment, which cost them an enormous sum. The savings they make on this will be a large item toward the work of reparation. They are in a position where they can make their landed and commercial aristocracy pay very heavy taxes out of the enormous profits made during the war. They can collect the bulk of their indemnity from this source alone.

Food will be cheap there and wages higher than ever before. They can support themselves after they have imported a few materials like cotton and rubber which their lands fail to produce.

If conditions of misery continue in Germany after this season's crops, it will be because of the follies and evils still existing in unrepentant German nature, not because of harsh terms imposed by the allies. The suffering which they have brought upon the world is immeasurable, now let them pay what they can to help alleviate a little of it. If they show sincere repentance and sorrow, they will find it at human nature is generous.

SMALL PAY FOR GREAT WORK

In a popular play now touring the country, cutting satire is leveled at the way the public undervalues some of the best work done for the community. One character in this play is a scientist who has discovered some remedy that will save innumerable lives. It is represented that he is paid but a meagre salary. The idea is conveyed that men like him are apt to fare very poorly at the hands of a world that distributes its rewards with little discrimination.

The men who win the great rewards are not usually those who confer the greatest blessings. Teachers, college professors, physicians, ministers, social workers, these are some of the types of people apt to be paid far below their deserts. Many editors have earned a place in this category by long and unselfish service to the community and public causes.

It is a question worth study as to who is to blame for this disproportion and if there is any way to distribute the rewards of life more fairly. Of course if these services were paid for at their full value to the world, selfish men would crowd into such callings and lower the quality of the work done. But it is not just that grand service should be appreciated only when obituaries are written. Such men should be given due recognition while they are fighting life's battles here with their fellowmen.

This discrepancy will never be wholly removed in this life. Men who have learned the happiness that comes from rendering service to the world are not very keen about money. That is one reason why they don't earn more. They find their rewards in other ways. They would be glad enough to get money but haven't time and don't bother themselves much to concentrate their thought on the ways of obtaining it.

THE INCREASED MEAT PRODUCTION

The returns of the bureau of animal industry show that meat production increased in 1918 by over 2,000,000 tons over the previous year. Now the question rises, can this level of production be kept up? The prosperity of the nation depends upon it. The masses of the people need a fair amount of meat as the backbone of their working power.

No doubt the patriotic motive led many producers to increase their herds. If they can do it for patriotism, why not for personal profit? It is not claimed that the producers lost money as the result of their enterprise.

Bigger herds will be raised if they can be financed. The men who sit on the money bags control the situation. The business of accommodating all the big and little producers out in the back country is one calling for much effort and investigation. Financial men would probably lend money nearer home. But the business is sound, if understood. The financial centers must aid the back country if they want production permanently increased.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh of Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

Order Nisi

John T. Hopkins and others vs. John T. Hopkins, Jr., Mary W. Dashiell and others.

No. 3221, Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Ordered, by the subscriber, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, this 19th day of May, 1919, that the report of H. Fillmore Lankford, the trustee mentioned in the above cause and the sale of real estate by him reported, being the real estate of which Emma Arnold died seized, be and the same are hereby ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary appear by exceptions filed before the 12th day of June, 1919, provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper printed in Somerset County, once in each of three successive weeks before the 12th day of June, 1919.

WHAT ADVERTISING ACCOMPLISHES

The efficiency of a business depends largely on the speed with which the capital is turned over.

Take the case of a store with a capital of $20,000. At 6 per cent. it must charge $1,200 against its goods for interest each year. If it is selling 10,000 articles annually it must add 12 cents to the price of each article sold as an interest charge. But if by turning its stock more rapidly, it can sell 20,000 articles annually, it only has to add six cents to the price of each article for interest.

Advertising accomplishes this reduction of interest costs. By advertising a lot of goods can be quickly marketed and turned into cash. The money can be at once used to buy more instead of having the goods lie idle in a store. As a general rule, non-advertisers keep their goods a longer time than advertisers. So the public has to pay a heavy interest charge on goods lying idle a long time before they can be worked off in non-advertised stores.

Do Your Best

Everyone should do all he can to provide for his family and in order to do this he must keep his physical system in the best condition possible. No one can reasonably hope to do much when he is half sick a good share of the time. If you are constipated, bilious or troubled with indigestion get a package of Chamberlain's Tablets and follow the plain printed directions, and you will soon be feeling alright and able to do a day's work.

The Jitney Still Jits

Recent articles on the war tax just levied on soft drinks, confections, etc., have given rise to some misunderstanding, and the Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Company issues a statement to the effect that the 3 per cent. tax on chewing gum does not affect the retail dealer or the consumer. Mr. Wrigley explains that the manufacturers stand this tax, and there should be no change in the price charged you for your package of Wrigley's Spearmint, Doublemint or Juicy Fruit. In other words, the jitney still jits. Thanks, Mr. Wrigley.

His Friends

By BEVERLY MARSTON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

When Drury Paine died, leaving his fortune divided among some 20 heirs, his second cousin, Wilbur Tyrrell, shared in the same to the extent of over $4,000. Young, prodigal, possessed of a rollicking, generous spirit, he gave up his position as clerk in the general store of the village and proceeded to spend his little fortune royally. He bought an automobile, fine raiment, moved from his humble boarding house to the most expensive suite in the local hotel, and proceeded to loan, or waste his money upon any old friend he came across.

It was only a day to a year when Tyrrell one gloomy afternoon sat, in the office of his lawyer, fidgety and worried. Having always seen to it that his fees were kept closely collected, and assured that there were no more feathers to pluck from this extravagant spendthrift, the attorney did not hesitate to inform Tyrrell bluntly that he was a ruined man.

"Worse than that," added the lawyer, "they levied on your auto at the garage this morning, and as you know attached your account at the bank. Gregory is making some big threats as to his hotel bill. He says if you don't pay it he'll lock you up."

"What does he mean by that?" inquired Tyrrell, a trifle anxiously.

"A mean, grasping man with money and influence can just about wear out the soul of a debtor, if so inclined," declared the lawyer. "I advise you to slide. It's husks and a far country for you, if you want to preserve about all you've got left—your liberty."

Wilbur Tyrrell made a wry face and swallowed a lump in his throat. Cold facts confronted him and he had to act quickly. He was aware that the hotel bill included charges not at all appertaining to himself individually, but contracted by the group of hangers-on who had helped him waste his inheritance. He reflected a few moments, his lips closed firmly and he placed his watch and a diamond ring on the desk before the lawyer.

"That about strips me," he observed with an uneasy laugh. "Settle as far as you can. As you advise, I am going to—slide."

Obscurely Tyrrell left the town at nightfall. He shrugged his shoulders lightly as he found less than a dollar in his purse. A wayward impulse seized him to drift whither fate might lead him. The quiet moonlit beauty of the woodland road fascinated him.

He tried to forget the year he had wasted. He must have tramped 20 miles when, wearied and sleepy, he climbed a fence and lay down to the sweetest sleep of his life beside a haystack.

"You don't have to do that, stranger," aroused him at early dawn, and looking up he met the pleasant glance of an old man with a pitchfork over his shoulder. "We'd have given you a comfortable shakedown up at the house. As it is, you're welcome to a free breakfast."

"Why, thank you," answered Tyrrell, his heart warming to the kindly impulse of a man he had never met before. He was hungry, and as he was ushered into a bright, wholesome looking kitchen with a radiant young girl of about eighteen bustling about, whom his host called Althea, he drank in a vast sense of comfort and homeliness.

Tyrrell might not have reached a permanent goal, but certainly here was an oasis, blooming, inviting, offering a warm welcome. Mr. Burton read clearly that he was no tramp, but discerned the attire of a young man out of sorts and luck. Within the hour Tyrrell was at work, within a week a well-liked member of the household.

Althea Burton had a berry garden which was her especial care, and from its product she received quite an income. Her pleasant ways and the geniality of her father won upon the exile and at the end of a month he was like a new man. Then came discovery. Tyrrell was busy near the house one day, when a passing automobile halted suddenly. Its driver stared steadily at him and then urged up full speed.

"He'll be after me as soon as he can get out the papers," mused Tyrrell disconsolately, and that night stole away from his cherished haven of peace and plenty. He had recognized his persecutor, the hotel man.

He decided to go to the former home town of his uncle, and see if among his relations he could not borrow the $150 due the persistent and avaricious Gregson. A vast surprise awaited him. A heavy insurance policy of his uncle had been discovered, and as one of the heirs Tyrrell received $2,000.

"I wish to pay the money I don't owe you," he said curtly to the hotel man two days later.

"Oh, that's been all settled," he was advised. "I told the people you were working for about it, and Miss Burton paid the bill. She's hoping you will come back."

And Tyrrell, realizing that he had found the truest, most unselfish friend of a lifetime, went back to the humble home of the Burtons.

And stayed there—for a time at the old task, but nurturing the love awakened in his heart by gentle, true-souled Althea, until one day it blossomed forth into ardent expression and he knew that he had found home and wife.

Endurance.

Endurance, not fleetness, wins the race. Never give up. Keep pegging away even though everything looks hopeless. Many a man has failed to achieve both fortune and fame because he lost courage just as he was within reach of them. What you desire may be only one step ahead. Keep going.

Curiosities of the Calendar.

It will be found that January always begins on the same day of the week as October, and the same is true of April and July, September and December. Again February, March and November also begin on the same day of the week. This, however, is only true in years of 365 days.

FARM POULTRY

HOW TO OPERATE INCUBATOR

Machine Should Be Placed in Fairly Warm Room and Protected Against Outside Changes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One difficulty in setting eggs as early in the spring as is necessary for early hatching, if the natural system of incubation is followed, is in finding broody hens at the proper time. If natural incubation be depended upon exclusively the poultry raiser must wait until the hens are ready to set. This is not true, however, if an incubator is available, for if the eggs are fertile they can be started at any time the operator desires.

The incubator should be operated in a fairly warm room, preferably a cellar, as a protection against outside temperature changes. Sudden changes in temperature in the room are to be avoided. The machine should be disinfected thoroughly before being used with a solution of reliable coal tar disinfectant.

Instead of using such a solution a small receptacle containing one-half ounce of permanganate of potash on which one-half ounce of formalin has been poured may be shut up in the incubator. The resulting gas will thoroughly disinfect the machine. After disinfecting the incubator should be run empty for several days to get it into good operating condition. After the eggs are in place the temperature should be held at 101½ to 102 degrees Fahrenheit the first week, 102 to 103 degrees the second week, and 103 the third week.

The eggs usually are turned for the first time at the end of the second day, and twice daily through the eighth or ninth day. The eggs are cooled outside the hatching chamber once daily after the seventh and up to the nineteenth day. Moisture should be furnished in artificial incubation

Removing Hatch From Incubator.

In the South, in high altitudes, and when the incubator room is dry. This may be done by sprinkling the eggs with warm water or by placing a wet sponge or pan of water under the egg tray.

During the hatching period carefully fill the lamp and trim the wick each day. It is best to trim the wick by scraping off the burnt portion rather than by cutting the wick. The lamp should not be filled entirely. After the lamp is filled it should be closely observed for a time to make sure that the flame does not get too high.

SPRING CONDITION OF HENS

Lack of Exercise and Too Much Feed of Dry Kind Often Cause of Constipation.

In the spring fowls often show up in constipated condition. It is usually caused by lack of exercise, green stuff, grit and too much feed of a dry kind. You notice it first on the soiled feathers, next the clogging of the vent. This immediately calls for a physic. One tablespoonful of castor oil or half-teaspoonful of epsom salts to each fowl, and the last may be continued in broken doses in food or water for several days after. Feed them boiled potatoes, all the cabbage and other green stuff at hand, and make them hunt for their grain. These constipated fowls are no good as breeders until you get them toned up.

POULTRY NOTES

Carelessness in purchasing hatching eggs retards flock improvement.

After all, it is the little things that count for most in poultry raising.

Experience teaches us that great care is needed to prevent poultry parasites and poultry diseases.

The fresher the eggs are when used for hatching, the better, and eggs over 15 days should be discarded.

If it is worth your while to set any eggs at all, it surely is worth your while to set the eggs worth while.

When the parent birds lack vitality the chicks are naturally weak, not worth raising, and it is time, patience

HOW TO SET A HEN PROPERLY
Nest Should Be In Some Quiet Place Where She Won't Be Disturbed—Handle Carefully.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The first sign of a hen being broody (wanting to set) is that she stays longer on the nest when laying, and on being approached will quite likely remain and make a clucking noise. When it is noted that a hen sets on a nest from two to three nights in succession and that the feathers are disappearing from her breast which should feel hot to the hand, she is ready to be transferred for setting to a nest which has previously been prepared. The normal temperature of a hen is from 106 to 107 degrees F., which varies slightly during incubation.

The nest should be in some quiet, out-of-the-way place, where the sitting hen will not be disturbed. Move her from the regular laying nest at night and handle her carefully in doing so. Put a china egg or two in the nest where she is to sit and place a board over the opening so that she cannot get off.

Toward the evening of the second day quietly go in where she is sitting, leave some feed and water, remove the board from the front or top of the nest, and let the hen come off when she is ready. Should she return to the nest after feeding remove the china egg or eggs and put under those that are to be incubated. If the nests are slightly darkened the hens are less likely to become restless.

At hatching time they should be confined and not be disturbed until the hatch is completed, unless they become restless, when it may be best to remove the chicks that are hatched first. In cool weather it is best not to put more than ten eggs under a hen, while later in the spring one can put twelve to fifteen, according to the size of the hen.

Dust the hen thoroughly with insect powder, and in applying the powder hold the hen by the feet, the head down, working the powder well into the feathers, giving special attention to regions around the vent and under the wings. The powder should also be sprinkled in the nest.

Guineas, like geese and pigeons, pair when the number of males and females is equal.

The turkey does not fully mature until two years old, and is at its best at three years.

Sometimes the old hens of the heavy breeds will not need fattening, as they have a tendency to take on fat with age.

The poultry house should have no draughts; it should be clean and kept clean and no damp floors should be tolerated.

A fowl consumes about three ounces of mash in the morning, two ounces of grain at noon, and four ounces of grain at the evening feed.

Proper equipment in the poultry-house often is the deciding factor in successful poultry keeping and should be given due consideration.

Hens lay best in damp weather, even during winter. It will be noticed that they are more prolific during showery spells than they are when it is dry. The theory is that moisture produces expansion and growth, whereas dry, cold weather contracts.

YEAR RICH IN CENTENARIES

Natal Day Celebrations of Many Famous People Will Take Place During 1919.

This year of grace 1919 is rich in centenaries. To begin with, it is a hundred years since Queen Victoria appeared on Mother Earth—a centenary concerning which the monthlies will presently be waxing eloquent, London Tit-Bits states.

Another noted centenary of the present year is that of the famous old sea-dog, Admiral Rodney, the man in whom for years the French found so persistent an assailant, so doughty an adversary. 'Twas way back in 1819 that this old gentleman first delighted his friends with his presence. The centenary of W. E. Foster, the statesman, will also be celebrated this year. Few greater authorities on education than this gifted son-in-law of the great Doctor Arnold of Rugby ever breathed. Among other worthies whose names must also be mentioned are:

HAS NEW IDEA IN SCULPTURE

Tennessee Girl Uses Dried Apples to Fashion Her Models of the Human Form Divine.

Down in Knoxville, Tenn., lives Miss Isabel Millon, who has created a new and distinct art. To be brief, she has developed dried apple sculpture with remarkable results.

For years Miss Millon has been interested in the various types of mountaineers who come down to her father's store to trade. Having artistic ability, she tried a good many times to model their quaint and weather-beaten faces by the conventional methods of sculpture, but the results did not satisfy her. One evening, while cutting apples to dry them for the future, she picked up a piece of partially dried apple and noted its striking resemblance to the wrinkled face of the usual elderly mountaineers, whom she was endeavoring to portray.

Taking up a sharp knife, she did a cutting so as to fashion the dried apple into a human face. The same was most successful; she saw billies in this newly discovered and she set to work experimenting in dried apple sculpture. Little little she became quite expert in making dolls whose heads are simply dried apples, cleverly cut before they dried.

Miss Millon has found a satisfactory preservative with which she varies the dried apple heads when they reach the desired state of dryness. The costumes and accessories carefully copied from life; in fact, Miss Millon always has some peculiar person in mind when she gives a little doll with a dried apple face.—Scientific American.

ME OF FAMOUS ORATORS

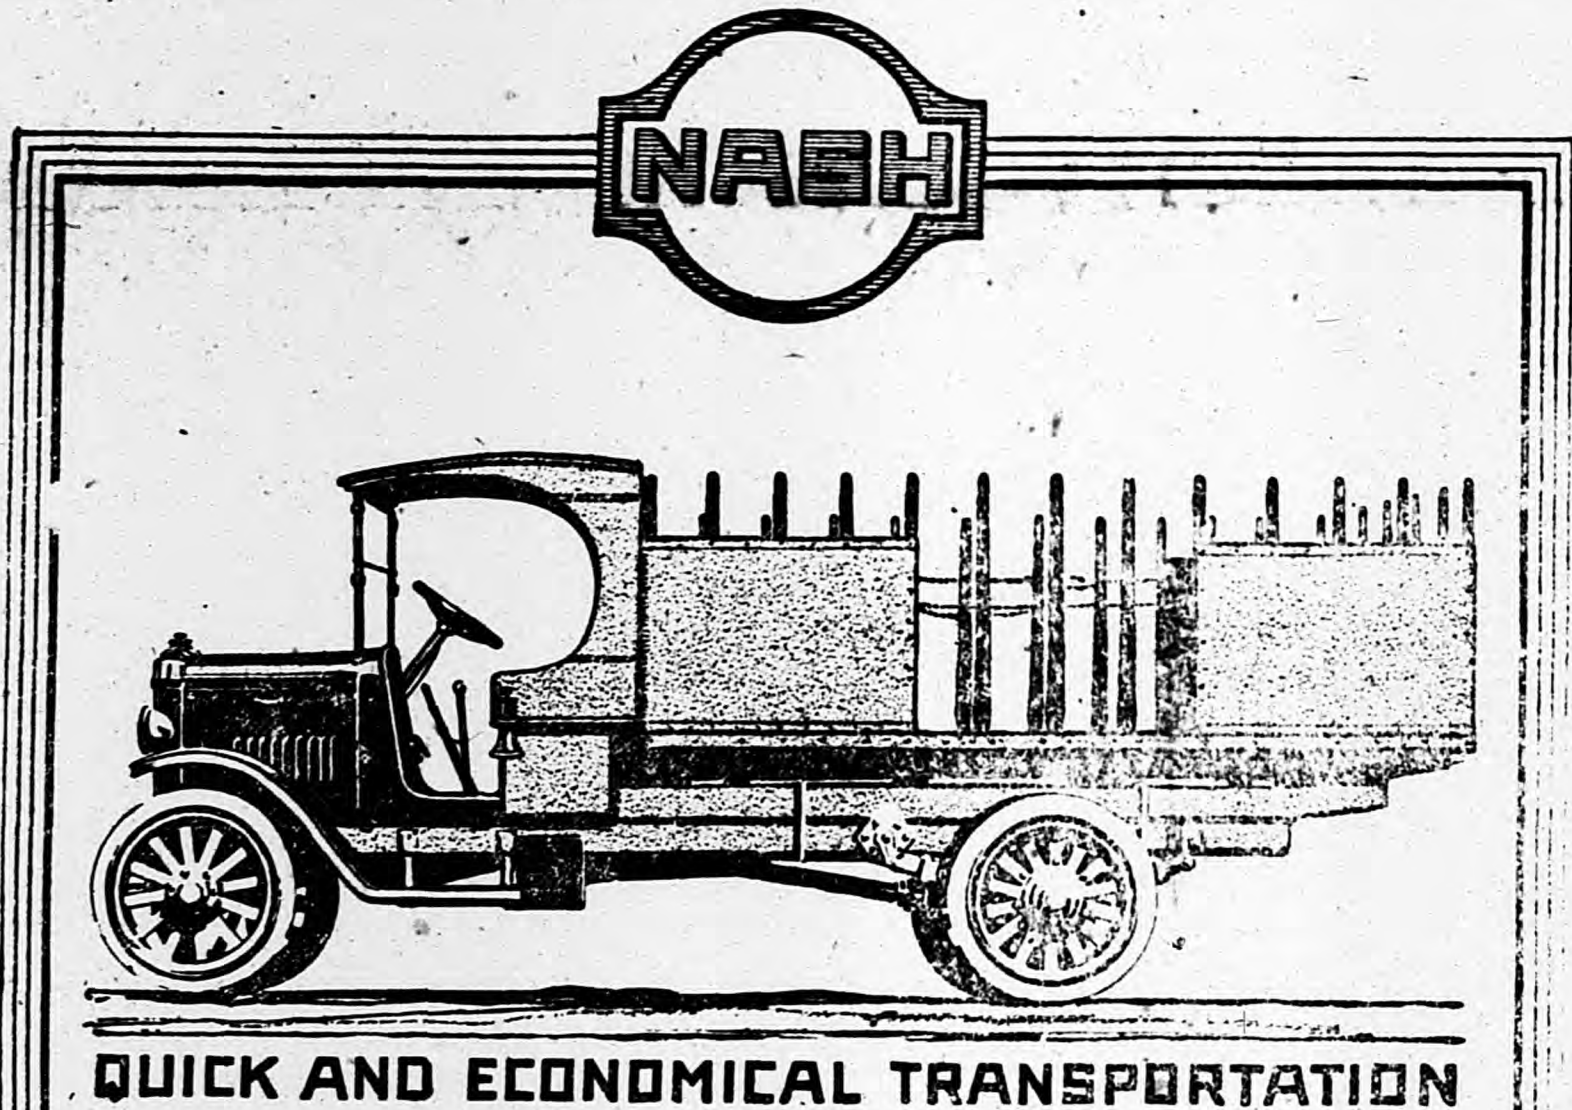

Men Who Have Occupied the Pulpit of "Spurgeon's Tabernacle," London, England.

Commenting on Dr. A. C. Dixon's mention of the pastorate of the "Spurgeon's Tabernacle," London, which is probably known to the end of the world as "Spurgeon's Tabernacle," a man in the London Christian World to some of the eminent men who occupied that pulpit in the past—John Keach, John Gill, John Rippon, and others—and gives the following interesting incident: "Coming to recent days, it is just thirty years ago since a trustee of the tabernacle spoke to Spurgeon about an American preacher named Dixon, who had preached at the world's Sunday-school convention. Spurgeon at once invited him to speak at the tabernacle. It is interesting to recall the fact that they might easily have been associated long before. Dr. Dixon's father, who sustained a pastorate of nearly 60 years in a church in a wood, in front of which he is buried, thought Spurgeon was the greatest preacher since Paul. He longed for his son to have a course of study at Spurgeon's college. Young Dixon sent in his application. Spurgeon's reply was: 'My dear sir, you can find institutions in your own country better adapted to your case. Please accept this as final.' Of course, it was in that way that the great preacher tested the persistence of his candidates. A. C. Dixon took him at his word, and never applied again. He was, however, destined to more than fulfill his father's desires, and following men like Spurgeon, and A. G. Brown, he has thoroughly maintained the tabernacle's great traditions."

Use of Metals in the War.
A German expert has been compiling some statistics of the use of metals in the war. He says that if the iron and steel used by Germany alone in 45 months of war were forged into a ring which went round the equator, each meter would weigh 90 hundredweight. If the mass of metal were made into a wall along the battle fronts—or 2,500 miles—a yard high and a yard thick, each yard would weigh 200 hundredweight. Germany sent to the front every week more guns than were used in the whole of the Franco-Prussian war. Twenty-four hours consumed more than did the whole of the earlier war. The moral he draws is that such things were only possible because Germany had been wise enough before the war to conquer the world's markets and oust her enemies.

Microbes in Our Clothes.
Appropos of the liability of demobilized soldiers to contract colds as soon as they get into "civies" a correspondent suggests that probably the civilian clothes are the cause, whether they be warmer than the uniforms or not. Sir Ernest Shackleton had something to say about this matter on his return from the antarctic. Notwithstanding the intensely low temperatures and almost incessant blizzards experienced, colds were quite unknown until a bale of clothing brought from England was opened. The next day there was an epidemic of colds in the party, and Sir Ernest's explanation was that the trouble was caused by microbes that had been hibernating, as it were, in the closely packed clothing.

Longest British Strike.
The longest strike which Britain has experienced was that which broke out at Lord Penrhyn's slate quarries at Bethesda in October, 1900, and lasted until November, 1903. During these three years more than one and one-half million dollars was lost in wages alone; and whereas at the beginning Britain imported no slate, at the end ships were taking more than 1,200 tons of foreign slate a week to British markets.

Prosperity and the Farmer

What business man would be satisfied with a return of 3% on his investment if he had to work from 14 to 16 hours a day to earn it?

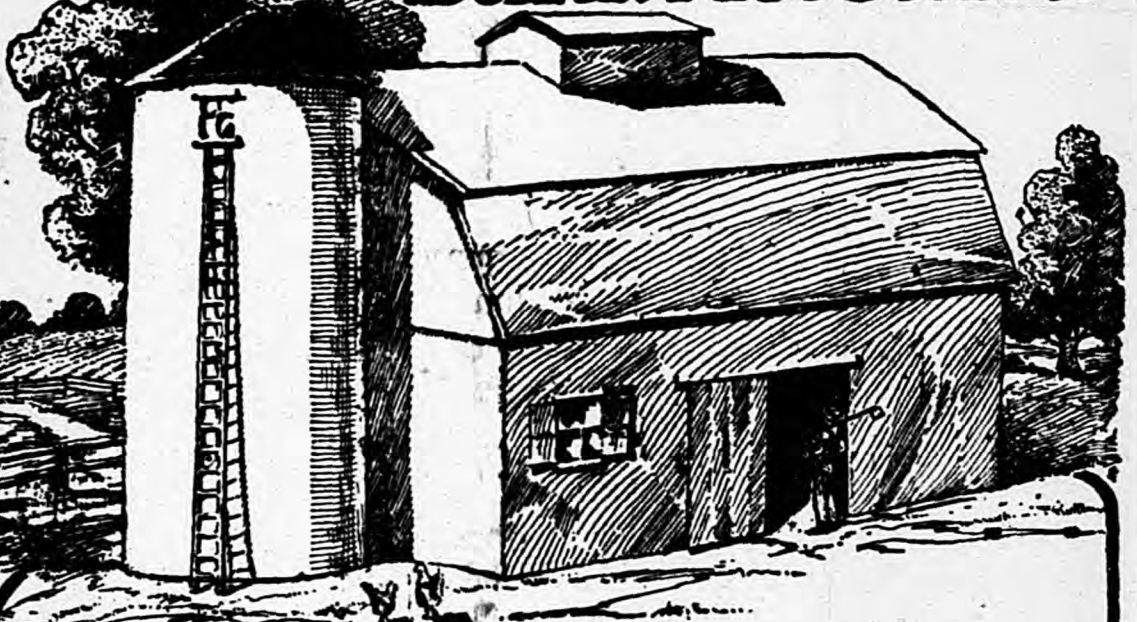

Yet, according to government statistics, 3% is all the farmers of this country have made for the past generation.

Some people are complaining about the prosperity of the farmer, but these complaints are not coming from those who know anything about the farmers' problems.

If the farmers make 10% or even 20% on their investment this year they are entitled to it. They have certainly waited a long time for even a fair profit.

Learn How a Silo Can Increase Your Bank Account.

In a West Virginia community droughts and hot weather "burnt up" the crops three years in succession. One farmer built a silo and bought a few cattle. The results were so satisfactory that the next season there were fully a half dozen silos on different farms and more stock appeared.

Today this West Virginia community is studded with silos and is one of the most prosperous farming communities in the state.

The moral is this: That the greatest profits of farming are in feeding part of the crops to live stock. The silo makes it possible to feed the stock at little cost, and you derive profits both from dairying and then selling the stock for market.

Write for our free silo booklet. It tells you all about silos and how one on your farm will greatly increase your profits.

The local Red Cross Home Service section has a list of all checks misdirected to addresses in Somerset county. All persons who have not received their allotment checks, and who believe they may be among those misdirected, are advised to call at or write to the Home Service office, which is located at Princess Anne, and which will assist them in securing their money.

At Work On Allen Road

The work of making the improvements to the State road through Allen and across the dam to connect up the Wicomico and Somerset State roads, is being pushed along at a rapid rate. The dam is being widened several feet. The plan to relieve the Allen pond of water will be by putting in three concrete culverts, each three feet in circumference, which, the engineers say, will carry off the flow of water at all times.

Maryland Boys Land At Hoboken

Amid cheering and waving of flags by members of Governor Harrington's committee of welcome and with the band playing "Maryland, My Maryland," the transport Manchuria bearing between 400 and 500 Maryland troops formed out of the fog which showed New York's water-front last Tuesday morning and was slowly warped into her pier at Hoboken. As the familiar strains were wafted to the men on her decks they took up the refrain and when the band burst suddenly into "Hail, Hail, the Gangs All Here," more than 4,000 khaki-clad stalwarts joined lustily.

On board was Gen. Frank S. Cocheu, commander of the Fifty-eighth Infantry, and a number of the band and quarters staff, and the following units, composed in large part of Marylanders, with a sprinkling of men from New Jersey and Virginia: One Hundred and Fourth Supply Train, One Hundred and Fourth Engineers, One Hundred and Fourth Sanitary Train, One Hundred and Fourth Mobile Ordnance Train and the One Hundred and Fourth Train Headquarters.

Most of the Maryland men were formerly members of the old First, Fourth and Fifth Regiments, Maryland National Guard, who were transferred to their present units at the time of the reorganization of the guard regiments at Camp McClellan.

1919 Is No Year For Idle Acres

Regardless of temporary market fluctuations, and no matter how much live stock the farmers in America are able to put on the market next Fall, the demand will undoubtedly continue so great that the prices will be extremely profitable.

This is true because, regardless of the fact that peace is supposed to reign now in Europe, brotherly love is far from being a habit as yet and one of the little nations created by the Peace Conference are so keen to keep on fighting that they haven't time to settle down and enjoy their new independence.

Besides this the milk herds and the breeding stock, among the swine, beef cattle and sheep, have been killed off for food, so that it will take at least another season before Europe will be able to produce anywhere near enough meat and other foodstuffs to affect seriously the prices that America's farmers are getting for everything that they can raise.

Under these conditions, it is the limit of folly for any farmer to let a single acre lie idle that can be made to produce crops this year. The man who uses on his farm a tractor with which one man can plow from 8 to 10 acres a day and disc from 25 to 30 acres a day still has time to put in corn or oats or some other profitable crop and thousands of farmers throughout the middle West are buying such tractors right now so that they will be able to get in cultivation acres which they would not otherwise use this year.

Decision On Inheritance Tax

By a decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of J. Mauley Smith et al., trustees, vs. the State, thousands of dollars will eventually be added to the state treasury. The decision was on the question whether the inheritance tax was payable by collateral receiving property under a deed of trust, where the income was paid to the maker of the deed until her death and the principal went to such collateral appointed under her will. The court decided that the tax was payable. The amount of the tax involved was about $10,000.

It has heretofore been the custom not to require the payment of the collateral tax in such cases, but both Judge Dobler in the Circuit Court of Baltimore City, and Judge Stockbridge, in the Court of Appeals, held that this was a misconception of the intent of the law and that the tax was payable.

RED CROSS TO ASK MORE

Another Money-Raising Campaign To Start In October

Another Red Cross money-raising campaign will be inaugurated next fall. Announcement to this effect has been made at the national headquarters following the return from Europe of Dr. Livingston Ferrand, chairman of the central committee of the organization.

Dr. Ferrand has found that the demands upon the Red Cross, as a result of appalling conditions in Europe, will exhaust the resources of the society and that its work must not be permitted to lapse for want of funds.

The next drive will commence late in October. It will run for two weeks and will end on November 11, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice. The amount of money which the country will be asked for has not been determined, but will be within the next few weeks it is stated. The announcement of the Red Cross is as follows:

"Appalling conditions in the countries of Eastern Europe, imposing on the American Red Cross obligations additional to those assumed during the period of the world-war, and the continuance of activities in connection with the already outlined domestic program of the Red Cross make necessary an appeal to the people of America for further funds to carry on the work for the relief of humanity."

It has been decided to make this appeal in the autumn, in a period of two weeks culminating on the 11th of November, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice—a season when the American people may properly give manifestation, through contributions to their Red Cross, of their thankfulness for deliverance from added horrors of war which have fallen upon nations less fortunate.

"At present the American Red Cross is bringing to a close its activities in the countries of Western Europe, and with the withdrawal of American troops from the war zone its work for the relief and suffering of the most heart-rending character, however, are calling for aid in other fields. The new international organization of Red Cross societies is preparing to deal with relief and health problems throughout the world in future years, but there are immediate emergencies which require the aid of the agencies already established. Foremost among these agencies is the American Red Cross. At present emergencies are being met with all the resources available, but it is apparent that the imperative calls for assistance for the next year or more will make additional funds necessary."

"It is anticipated that the generous heart of the American people will respond to the appeal to the full extent of the needs that will present themselves."

Historic Versailles

The famous palace of Versailles (where the Peace Congress is meeting) is situated about eleven miles southwest of Paris. Louis XIII built the oldest portion as a country residence for himself, but later sovereigns added greatly to it and some did not improve it. Louis Philippe was the worst offender.

The largest and most costly additions were made by Marie Antoinette, the ill-fated queen of Louis XVI, who was afterwards beheaded. Her extravagance in adding to the splendors of the palace was one of the causes of the Revolution of 1789, for it provoked just popular discontent.

After spending hundreds of millions, Marie Antoinette tired of the monotonous splendor of her palace. She then went to the other extreme and built a simple little cottage on the grounds. The cottage, thatched-roofed, still stands. There it pleased her for a time to live a make-believe life as a shepherdess and milkmaid. She had observed that milkmaids were happier than queens, and wished to be as happy as they.

The great palace is now used as a government museum of history and contains hundreds of interesting historical paintings. The Peace Congress is not held in this great palace, which is a quarter of a mile long, but in one of the smaller palaces on the same grounds, called the "Grand Trianon" and the "Petit Trianon." These were built by Louis XIV and Louis XV, who, like the unfortunate Marie Antoinette, found that a splendid palace could not be made a homelike place in which to live. They longed for greater simplicity. The "Petit Trianon" was indeed Marie Antoinette's favorite abode when she was not playing milkmaid. It is neither larger nor more splendid than many a private residence owned by a moderately rich man.

Many a man gives himself away and then spends the rest of his life trying to get himself back.

SIXTY-SIXTH CONGRESS MEETS

Representative Gillett Elected Speaker To Succeed Champ Clark

The Sixty-sixth, or "Reconstruction" Congress, called into extraordinary session by President from Paris, convened at noon Monday of last week and Republican majorities in Senate and House organized both sides. Representative Gillett, of Massachusetts, was elected Speaker of the House over Representative Champ Clark, of Missouri, Democratic candidate and former Speaker, by a vote of 227 to 172.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, the Republican candidate, was chosen President pro tempore of the Senate over Senator Pittman, of Nevada, Democrat, 47 to 42. Several Democrats were absent, but all Republicans were in their seats, two withholding their votes.

The Republicans of both sides also elected full slates of other officers and, thus, for the first time since 1911, returned to control of the American National legislature.

Routine affairs of organization comprised the opening day's proceedings, both bodies adjourning until noon Tuesday, when President Wilson's cabled message was read separately in the Senate and House by clerks. In his message the President declared:

"That he would return the railroads to their owners at the end of the calendar year."

That the telegraph and telephone lines will be returned to their owners as soon as possible.

That in the case of both the wires and the railroads there should be legislation to develop a more uniform and co-ordinated system of operation.

The wartime prohibition act should be amended or repealed so far as it applies to wines and beers.

There is no occasion for "any general revision" of the present system of import duties, with the exception of the necessary protection for the new dye industry and against possible trade discrimination by foreign powers.

Revision of federal taxes to simplify administration, elimination of minor taxes such as excise upon various manufacturers and taxes upon retail sales and adjustment of incomes, excess profits and estate taxes as the mainstay of revenue sources is necessary.

That a new organization of industry, with labor participating in its control, is necessary to make operative a community of interests between capital and labor.

The United States Employment Service should be continued and several agencies of conciliation and adjustment co-ordinated by setting up of new federal agencies of advice and information similar to those created for internal counsel and suggestions under the League of Nations.

That undeveloped land should be allotted to returning soldiers. That woman suffrage should be adopted.

What About The Dog Law?

There is a State-wide dog law requiring the owners of dogs to license same either through the County Treasurer's office or Justice of the Peace.

Conscientious citizens of Somerset county complied with the law last year and paid the required fee. But they will not do so this year if they know that others got off scot-free from any penalty last year.

State Game Warden LeCompte has issued the following statement regarding the law:

"The dogs of this State which are allowed to run at large, during the whole year, destroy more game than all the hunters of our State, as they destroy the eggs of birds and catch young rabbits before they are of age to take care of themselves. The Dog License Act of 1918 was passed primarily as a sheep protective measure, and if enforced properly would be a great benefit to the public of the State. However, I am very sorry to state from reports received throughout the counties of this State the County Commissioners under whose supervision this law was placed, have made very little effort in the enforcement of same. In some counties I understand practically no effort has been made to compel persons to secure license for their dogs, and furthermore the officials of some of our counties have advised the public not to pay the license on dogs owned by them. I find this Dog Law is popular with the public throughout the State. The only complaint I have ever heard against same, was that in the case of a dog being killed the owner has no redress."

"If the Dog License Law could be so amended as to place its enforcement under the supervision of the Conservation Commission of Maryland, the revenue would double from same the first twelve months. Each county could well afford a good paid officer to look after the enforcement of this law and rid the State of worthless curs on which no one would pay the tax, and at the same time saving vast amount of game."

Half the world, not knowing how the other half lives, is usually the better half.

RITCHIE IN FIGHT TO FINISH

Announces His Candidacy For Governor of Maryland

"I'm in and I'm in to stay, and I'm the candidate of no faction," declared Albert C. Ritchie last Tuesday, following the announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Maryland. Mr. Ritchie is now serving the State as Attorney General, having been elected four years ago on the ticket with Governor Harrington and State Comptroller McMullen, carrying Maryland by a majority approximately 25,000.

In announcing his candidacy Mr. Ritchie said:

"I have decided to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Maryland. In making this decision it is my hope that all the factions in the party will give me their support so that if I am elected I can be the means of uniting the Democrats in the counties and in the city of Baltimore for the entire good of the state."

Since Governor Whyte's term expired 45 years ago there has been only one governor from the city, Governor McLane, who served for only one year, and that was 33 years ago. The people of Baltimore are entitled to ask that the next governor be a city man, one who has lived in Baltimore all his life, who knows her needs and who can be relied on implicitly to advance her interests.

The plurality of over 18,000 votes which I received in Baltimore city alone when elected attorney general justifies, I hope, the belief that the people of Baltimore feel that I will, to the full extent of my time and ability, render them faithful public service, just as I tried to do as people's counsel of the Public Service Commission and as I have since tried to do as attorney general. I hope that the plurality of nearly 7,000 additional votes which I received from the counties indicates a similar confidence among the county people and a belief that I would use my most earnest efforts in bringing the city and the counties into the closest possible harmony and business association.

The addition of the new annex makes more than ever evident Baltimore's right to increased representation in the legislature, and if nominated and elected I will use my best efforts to secure for her such increase in representation as is justly her due.

I will co-operate in securing whatever legislation or other aid may be needed for increasing our harbor facilities, and our coastwise and foreign trade, so that Baltimore may realize to the full the wonderful commercial advantages to which her position on the Atlantic seaboard entitles her. I will co-operate also in securing such legislation as may be necessary for the development of the annex, the attraction of additional industries to Baltimore and for other municipal needs.

My four years' service as attorney general has given me an intimate knowledge of what many of the state's future problems will be, and six months' work in Washington as general counsel of the War Industries Board gave me a close view of many of the great industries of the country and of their transition from a peace to a war basis and then back to a peace basis again. That association also gave me considerable knowledge of the labor situation, as one of the ablest and best known labor leaders in the country was a member of the board. I hope that this knowledge will be of benefit in helping to solve the industrial and labor questions which are sure to arise in this state during reconstruction, including employment for the returning soldiers and a just wage and proper working and living conditions for the laboring man and woman.

I recognize the supreme importance to the state of our state roads system. Much yet remains to be done to complete it, and its maintenance will continue for always. Some adequate permanent source of revenue must be provided which will take care of all maintenance and repair work, so that it will be forever unnecessary to use a dollar from any bond issue for maintenance purposes.

The State Tax Commission is now nearing the completion of the general tax reassessment. When that has been completed, no new general assessment should again be necessary in this state.

I have carefully considered the needs of the penal institutions of the state, and expect shortly to outline a comprehensive plan for bringing them up to the highest standards, to the end that prisoners may be afforded an opportunity to be economically independent when their terms expire. The solution of this problem also includes the question of terminating the system of contract prison labor and the substitution thereof of some other system, which must not involve competition with free labor.

The war has left serious educational problems on our hands. The draft disclosed both mental and physical defects in the youth of the country, which should not exist, and it is for the public schools to remedy this for the future. The increased cost of living has seriously depleted our teaching force and made existence difficult for those teachers who remain. The public school is the foundation of our citizenship, and the teacher is the foundation of the public school, so that means must be devised for giving the teacher that living wage which is not only just, but without which one's very best work can so often not be done. Federal aid as a means of supplementing state appropriations is now being considered, on the theory that the nation as well as the state owes a duty in the education of the young. If federal aid is given, probably no increase in the state's appropriation would be necessary.

Which One Would You Marry?

By LILLIAN HALL CROWLEY

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Jane, dear, I wish you wouldn't spend so much time with Jim Higgins. He's a rattle-headed young fellow and not at all the steady-going man that Walter Brewer is."

"There's nothing wrong with Jim, mother; he hasn't settled down, that's all."

"Well, it's high time he did settle down. My opinion is that he never will be serious. When he was a little boy he played truant from school—going fishing and wandering around in the woods when he ought to be studying. Remember the time when he and the Kettering boy almost killed Bud Martin's cow?"

"Yes, mother, but don't you understand? The boys were playing that a wild animal was pursuing them in the dense forest and Jim meant to shoot over the cow's head. It was only buckshot anyway, and although the cow was terribly frightened, she only suffered a skinned knee. Bud exaggerated that story."

"That's no excuse! You never heard of Walter Brewer doing things like that. He always went back and forth to school as good as could be, never fighting or getting into mischief. His mother never had a bit of trouble with him and he is just as good a man as he was a boy."

"People oughtn't to keep on remembering a boy's pranks," said Jane.

"I wish, dear, you'd take Walter instead of Jim."

"Don't worry, mother, I'm not taking either of them just now. I like them both, but I'm not thinking of marrying. Anything you want at the store?" asked Jane putting on her hat. "Nothing, dear." The mother sighed as her gaze followed her beautiful young daughter as she went out the door.

Mrs. Seymour had lost her husband ten years before, when Jane was eleven years old. She had had to be both father and mother to her only child and she felt the weight of her responsibility.

What if her daughter should marry the wrong man? How could she guide her so as to avoid heartache for the present as well as the future? She liked Jim Higgins well enough if he only would not come to see Jane so often. He was so light-hearted and care-free that Mrs. Seymour feared he was thoughtless and selfish. He was never serious.

Jane was easily the prettiest and sweetest girl in town, and as such had her choice of Randolph's eligibles, but she was in the full enjoyment of her youth and freedom and had not looked very far into the future.

As she walked gracefully and vigorously down the street many an eye rested on her with pleasure and admiration.

When she neared the business part of Main street she noticed a group of excited men in front of the office of the Weekly Star. She hurried on to discover the cause of the excitement. In the window was hung the president's declaration of war against Germany.

Jane was thrilled to the very soul. Her country at war! Here was work for her to do—something better than bothering about beaux. "They will want nurses for the Red Cross," she thought. "I must find out at once when I can begin work."

Every one she met was full of the spirit of the war. The president was right. Every man and woman must uphold him by helping in every possible way.

When she arrived home, expecting her mother to oppose her plan of work, she was overjoyed to find her beloved parent filled with the same spirit of patriotism.

"You'll just have to help, Jane, dear; it's in the blood. Both of your grandfathers fought in the Civil war and your father was in the Spanish war. All the women of our family helped, too."

Several days went by with Jane making plans for her work of nursing, while her mother was organizing the first local Red Cross workroom. Everything else was subordinated in every way to their work. Mrs. Seymour spent the largest part of the day in the workroom, while Jane ran errands and routed out the workers.

Jane had been very busy with her plans—then one evening Walter Brewer called. Mrs. Seymour, after greeting him most graciously, left the two young people together while she went on an errand.

"Jane," said Walter, when they were seated in the cozy living room, "I've been waiting to ask you something for a long time, but I hesitated until I got another promotion from the firm. I have been with them three years, and this is my third promotion and I see my way clearly now to rapid advancement. I love you, Jane, and want you to marry me."

"But—aren't you going to enlist, Walter?"

"No, I'm not, Jane. I shall let the fire-eaters enlist if they want to. You see I would jeopardize my place with the firm. The chances are that they would not keep my job for me."

"But our country?" gasped Jane.

"I figure it this way," Walter went on, a little surprised at Jane's attitude: "Ours is a meat packing business, and we need lots of tinned stuff for our army. I can do just as much for my country working hard in the office as I can by enlisting. There's a lot to be done here as well as in France."

"I see," said Jane; "and if you stay here while the other boys are gone you may have a better chance of advancement."

"That's it," eagerly replied Walter. "I knew you'd see it the way I do. Now will you marry me, Jane?"

"No, Walter. I see it all very plainly, and my answer is that I can never marry a slacker," Walter started.

"Yes, a slacker," said Jane, the bright color hot in her cheeks, "for you are only fooling yourself about helping your country in the packing plant. Men over age can take your place—or married men with families to support. I'm disappointed, Walter. I expected more of you."

She marched out of the room and Walter stunned by the unexpected blow, dazedly left the house. The happy evening he had looked forward to had turned out the wrong way for him.

Next day, as Jane was about to leave the house to join her mother at the Red Cross rooms, there came a ring at the door bell.

She opened the door. There stood Jim Higgins with a broad smile on his handsome face and a merry twinkle in his blue eyes.

"May I come in a minute?" he asked.

Surprised, Jane opened the door wider, but did not speak. Why was Jim calling during business hours?

Jim closed the door. Then taking Jane's unresisting hands in his and looking down into her soft brown eyes, he said:

"Jane, dear, I couldn't go away without telling you that I'll have something to ask you when I come back—if I come back—but it isn't fair to say it now. You won't forget me, dear?"

"Where are you going, Jim?"

"Why, I've enlisted, of course, just as soon as I knew we were in the war."

"Oh, Jim, you've enlisted? You've enlisted! Oh, how proud I am of you—oh, Jim—and Jimmie don't wait to say what you have to say—say it now, Jim, for I am going over, too."

"Jane, my darling."

"Jim, my big, splendid soldier!"

Kindly Switzerland.

The treasures of human kindness which Switzerland has showered on prisoners of war during the last four years has placed Europe more than ever in her debt. The king of England has not been slow to express to the president of the Swiss confederation his deep appreciation and gratitude for what she has done, an acknowledgment of benefits received which will be pleasing to the Swiss people in England. One of them, who remembered 1871, remarked that it would have been strange if Switzerland had not shown herself kind as before; "for," she said, "I remember as a child my parents taking every bit of bread in the house to give to the poor, famished soldiers of Bourbaki's army. We were only a small community, but nobody dreamed of keeping anything in their home which could relieve those soldiers."—Christian Science Monitor.

Honor to English Woman.

Florence Nightingale was the first woman to carry mercy to battlefields. After her work in the Crimean war, Queen Victoria of England presented her with a cross of red enamel; it lay in a box on a pillow of white satin—whence comes the emblem of the Red Cross. Henri Dumant, the Swiss physician, to whom the Red Cross society owes its inception, has said: "Though I am known as the founder of the Red Cross and the originator of the convention of Geneva, it is to an English woman that all the honor of that convention is due. What inspired me was the work of Miss Nightingale in the Crimea."

Make the Most of Yourself.

It pays to make the most of yourself, to develop your powers, to do the best work of which you are capable. Whether it increases your earning capacity or not, it enlarges your power of enjoyment, widens your influence, gives your spiritual nature a wider expansion, and transforms the world before your eyes. Making the best of yourself is one of the things that always pay.—Girl's Companion.

Hot Blast of Volcanoes.

Writing in the Monthly Weather Review George N. Cole sets forth detailed arguments to prove that the hot blast which swept over the city of St. Pierre during the eruption of Mont Pelee, as well as similar blasts in connection with the eruption of Vesuvius that destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum, the eruption of Taal, Sakurajima, etc., derived its heat from the sudden compression of the air surrounding the volcano, and not from conditions in the volcano itself. In other words, it was not, according to this hypothesis, an outpouring of hot crater gases that caused the destruction, but the dynamic heating of the air attending the propagation of the explosion wave.

Admiralty's Humor.

The British admiralty has a sense of humor, and occasionally displays it in official documents.

An old sea captain wrote to the department complaining, more in sorrow than in anger, of the way in which his ship had been dazzle-painted: "First you make me look like a parrot, and then you make me look like a haystack, and I don't want to look like either." He got back the official reply:

"We don't want you to look like either a parrot or a haystack, but we do want you to look like as if your stern was where your head ought to be."

Mines Threaten Shipping.

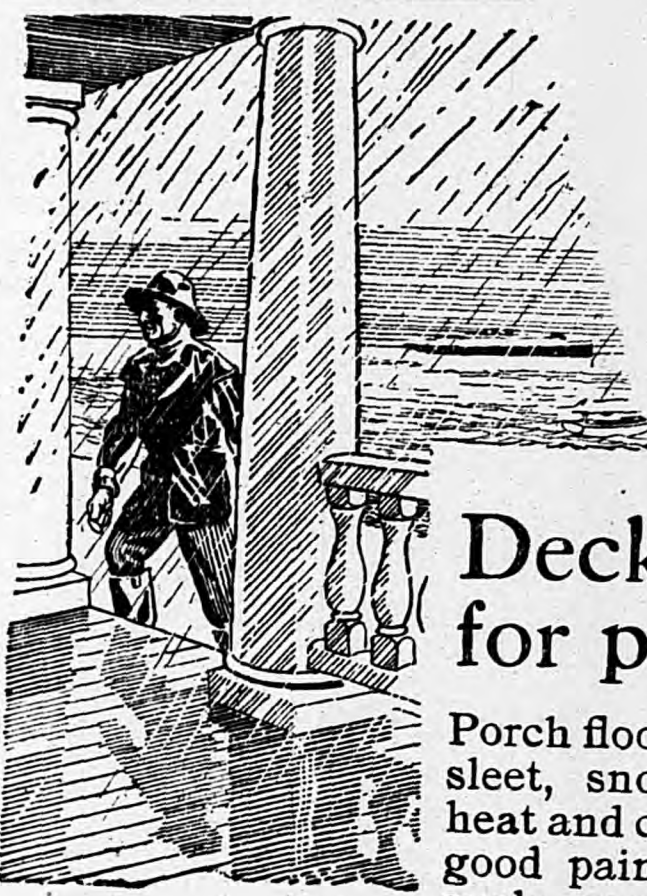

Naval authorities say it will be several years before the waters of Europe are entirely free of floating mines. Many of the German mines destroyed by allied trawlers were found to have been moored by ropes. When the rope rotted the mines broke from their anchorages and drifted in many cases to the main line of steam travel.

"Friendly" is a very good word to describe the positively pleasing quality that sets VELVET tobacco apart.

There is that indescribable something about VELVET that is associated in men's minds with the thought of a friend.

It is a satisfying smoke—never harsh; without a bite. Like a friend it "agrees" with you no matter how much you use it.

Long, patient ageing—in wooden hogsheads—does it. Friendship must ripen slowly. Good tobacco the same way. An army of men have learned this through VELVET.

ARK

Consid-
lans

Shitche's Ideal of park for every ants, there is no guide to a town of 5,000. It is evident that an acre, more or less, would not be a determining factor in its value. The problem of relative size is really a local one, its answer depending on the community's facilities for outdoor enjoyment, on the benefits that will accrue to it by the acquisition of a park, and on the specific idea which lies behind the desire for a park.

Camping and picnicking, two legitimate park uses, both suggest an appeal to the motorist. A good camp site is pre-eminently adapted to the attraction of strangers, thereby bringing some added trade to the town merchants. For the campers good drainage is essential.

A fitting entrance is the first important consideration. If the park is near the business section of the town, extending the approach to the main street by means of a parking strip planted to trees is very effective. Such a strip, extending for one block along the middle of the street from the park entrance, with pillars of suitable design at the end, will cost not less than $500. Formal park entrance pillars of brick or stone may be elaborated to a vine-draped pergola on each side, costing complete at least $350. Or a rustic entrance, to harmonize with a wooded area, may be constructed of timber from the clearing of the site. Only sound logs and limbs of durable wood should be used. For such an entrance of appropriate size, 200 hours of labor must be allowed.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

BUILD ON RIGHT PRINCIPLES

United States Housing Corporation Gives Outline of Plans Made for the Future.

Women are to be consulted in the planning of homes in after-the-war building, according to the announced policy of the United States Housing corporation.

"When our men want to find out what plan to follow in building a workman's home they usually talk it over with headquarters," according to a statement by the United States Housing corporation. "Headquarters they find invariably in the kitchen. The greatest housing experts are the housewives themselves. They know when arrangements are convenient and where steps may be saved in the daily routine of work. Many of our standards representing the greatest convenience and the greatest beauty that the money invested will buy are the result of home-need suggestions from women."

"In all building projects the government's standards have been placed on a high plane. The women of the country will see to it that in future private development must measure up to these standards. All specifications for drainage, ventilation, lighting and kitchen fittings must be maintained on the present level. No slump back into the prewar tenement will be tolerated by the workers. In all future building projects, whether sponsored by the government or by individuals, every house will be required to have a maximum of light and air."

Municipal Forest Parks.

That municipal forests could profitably be established by many cities is the opinion of Edmund Secrest, forester at the Ohio experiment station. His opinion is based upon the fact that there are many municipal forests in New England and that such woodlands have been established in Europe for 500 years.

"Many municipalities have areas of rough or hilly lands near their limits, which in many cases may be already partially covered with native forests. In other sections planting could be done to reforest cleared land, which could easily be converted into a forest park."

Building Workers' Dwellings.

As many workers in Galt, Ont., are compelled, owing to the dearth of houses, to have their homes in surrounding towns and villages, the city council is applying to the government for a loan of $250,000 under the conditions named in the provincial housing act. The appropriation will be used to build a hundred dwellings.

JAPS HONOR BRITISH SAILOR

Still Revere Memory of William Adams, Who Led Expedition to Their Country in 1600.

Two memorial stone lanterns near the Japanese port of Yokosuka are the people's tribute to the memory of William Adams, an English sailor who was the first of his countrymen to settle in Japan, and who is credited with opening the way for commerce between Britain and Japan. In 1600 Adams led a trading expedition bound for the West Indies. His fleet consisted of five vessels symbolically named Faith, Hope, Charity, Fidelity and Good News. The expedition met with many misfortunes of weather and sickness. Their adventures included the loss of eight men who were eaten by cannibals on one of the Pacific islands.

The ship carrying Adams finally reached the coast of Bungo, in the eastern part of Kyushu, Japan. The Englishmen made friends with the natives until the arrival of some Portuguese Jesuits who told the Japanese leaders the strangers were pirates and had them imprisoned. The emperor heard of their plight, and had them brought to his palace at Osaka. The ruler finally decided that the men were harmless and released them, retaining Adams at court to teach shipbuilding and other arts to the natives. In 1613 another English sea captain arrived in Japan with letters from the king of England to the emperor of Japan. Through Adams' influence the Englishmen and the oriental ruler signed a treaty giving Britain the perpetual right to enter any ports of the empire and trade freely throughout the country.

VARIOUS KINDS OF CHARITY

And Greater Far Than the Giving of Alms is the Practice of Charity of Thought.

Someone has said that "Charity is the highest tree in heaven." It is a saying that we can well believe, for not only does charity cover a multitude of sins but it also covers its devotees with its solace and comfort.

It is to be feared, however, that there is a misconception as to the full meaning covered by the word charity. Many people seem to understand that charity consists solely in the giving of alms. And the fact is that almsgiving is merely one form of charity.

There is a charity that we can practice toward those of our fellow men who stand in no need of alms. There are, indeed, many who are well provided with the goods of this world who stand in great need of charity. The charity of our thoughts is what we stand in need of.—Los Angeles Times.

Diamond Cutters.

There are 25,000 diamond cutters and polishers in the world. Of these only about 675 are in the United States, and these have come mostly since the outbreak of the European war, which crippled the industry in Amsterdam and Antwerp, the world's greatest centers. There were at the beginning of the present year 36 diamond-cutting establishments in this country. This is exclusive of shops where all kinds of precious stones are cut.

The number of Germans employed as diamond cutters did not exceed 600 before the war, and of these only 75 per cent worked for establishments in Germany. During the war 600 or 700 Belgian cutters emigrated to England and organized as a branch of the London Diamond Cutters' union. They did work principally for Belgian and Russian houses.

Protecting Airplane Propellers.

An aluminum plating for airplane propellers has been devised for the purpose of protecting the wood from the influence of the weather, which has been a serious problem heretofore. The plating is a thin leaf which is incorporated in the finish of the propellers, and the idea was developed by the forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis., and placed in production by the war department. The process is practically 100 per cent effective in preventing absorption of water, particularly in the storage stage. A French authority states that 80 per cent of the French propellers produced are rejected by the pilots mainly because they are out of balance. This difficulty is due largely to unequal absorption or distribution of moisture and can be greatly reduced by an effective water-proofing coating.

Stopping a Great Waste.

Millions of dollars' worth of fruit have been wasted in Florida during the quarter of a century. Hereafter nothing will be wasted as the drops, culls and ripes will all be utilized by new processes evolved by a clever chemist and scientist. The growers and the public generally will be helped by these processes, as the former will reap a benefit from the sale of their waste products and the latter will have the benefits of the manufactured products which are greatly in demand.—Florida Times-Union.

Electrocute Leopard to Save Pelt.

A leopard used by a motion-picture concern recently took to sulking, which made him a disagreeable companion for the actors in the jungle scenes, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Shooting him with a high-powered rifle was first considered, but was objected to, as it would disfigure the valuable pelt. To avoid this, electrocution was decided upon, using power from a near-by station.

Workers Go Ahead of Shirkers.

Most of us are unwilling to give ourselves to our work for ten hours out of the day, much less 20—indeed, five hours of work is as much as most of us really accomplish, and many of us far less than that.

There is no royal road to success any more than there is to learning. It is said that there is no such thing as an average man or woman, but if each of us would live up to our possibilities there is no limit to what we might accomplish. In any business office you will find the workers and the shirkers, and very often it may seem that the shirkers get just as far ahead as the workers, but the probability is that, should you go back after a year and a day to any one of these same offices, you will find that those who had labored had forged away ahead of those who had idled.

FREE HERD OF TUBERCULOSIS

Satisfactory Progress in Plan of Eradication Made During First Year of Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The tuberculosis-free accredited herd plan, inaugurated in December, 1917, and worked out in co-operation with the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, was slightly changed at the twenty-second annual meeting of the United States Live Stock Sanitary association held at Chicago in December. It was agreed to strike out the word "purebred" so as to admit to certification grade herds in addition to registered cattle.

The annual conference between representatives of the United States Live Stock Sanitary association and the Purebred Cattle Breeders' association resulted in the further endorsement of the tuberculosis eradication campaign and a recommendation that the work be extended as rapidly as possible.

The accredited-herd plan is to test cattle with tuberculin at the request of the owner, eliminate any reacting animals either by slaughter or by following prescribed sanitary measures, repeat the test at prescribed intervals, and list as tuberculosis-free accredited herds all herds entitled to that distinction.

Very satisfactory progress has been made during the first year of the work, and prospects for the future are bright. During the year 296 herds, comprising 9,284 cattle, have been fully "accredited" as free from tuberculosis, and 1,462 herds, having 35,052 cattle, passed one successful test in preparation for certification. In addition 4,622 herds, both purebred and grade, totaling 98,002 animals, have been under supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis. Each month additional herds are added to the list.

HEIFERS DROP FIRST CALF

According to Experiment Carried on at Maryland College Thirty Months Is Best Age.

About thirty months was found to be the best age for Ayrshire heifers to drop their first calf, according to an experiment carried on at the Maryland Agricultural college. If the calves were dropped six months earlier, the milk flow was lessened considerably, but if dropped six months later the decrease was slight. This will vary for the breeds according to size; the smaller the breed type, the shorter the time. Eckles of Minnesota found that this variation would be three to five months which would bring the minimum age for Jerseys and Guernseys about twenty-five months and for Holsteins, thirty months. This is for well-developed animals.

PASTEURIZED CREAM IS AID

It Yields More Uniform Article of Butter and Helps to Improve Keeping Qualities.

The relation of pasteurized cream to butter is now recognized as follows: It yields a more uniform product, aids in producing a higher scoring butter, improves its keeping qualities; avoids undesirable fermentations and gives protection from disease germs; overcomes questionable odors, increases value of skim milk and creates a steadier market. The slight increase in cost of production, per pound, when butter is made from pasteurized cream, is more than over come by the benefits derived from this process.

WHAT THE MEN OF '61 HAVE DONE

The veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic have complained for many years that the exercises of the National Memorial Day did not attract the attention that they ought to. While they were upholding the lessons of patriotism in poorly attended meetings the crowds were going to the ball games. Men who had placed their lives at the service of their country felt this apparent neglect very keenly.
 Yet these veterans in an unostentatious way have been conducting a patriotic work that has had profound results. As they spoke to the children in their schools, as they delivered their fervent speeches at camp fires and encampments, they emphasized a certain ideal. The men who served in the Confederate forces expressed the same conviction.
 The two great and grey bearded armies stood for this idea, that a man who has respect for himself must cheerfully give up the security and the peace of his home when the call of duty and patriotism comes and must be prepared to defend his principles to the death if need be.
 Fifty years of peace followed the terrific onslaughts of 1861 to 1865. The little Spanish war seems today but a slight interruption. Many people thought that the spirit of '61 had died out of the American heart. But all through these years the veterans of the Civil war on both sides of the old line of division had been sowing seed. They communicated their conviction to a new generation. When the call came, that generation rose and acted with the spirit that had been handed on to them.
 These veterans, then, are entitled to special honor on this year's Memorial Day, not merely for their great sacrifices and service 50 years ago, but for the quiet, patient labor of years in upholding a national standard of devotion and service. Their spirit fired the young America of today and made it unconquerable.

THE NATIONAL MEMORIAL DAY

Thirty years ago the Decoration Day celebration on May 30th was one of the most impressive of the national holidays. Crowds followed the line of veterans to the cemeteries. While the patriotic exercises and speech making were not as well attended as the veterans wished, yet millions of people heard many noble orations.
 Today but a small remnant is left. In many places they have had to give up their organizations and formal exercises. Elsewhere their observances are too often overlooked in these stirring times. Yet the country has not forgotten these men. It entertains the warmest admiration for all who offered their lives in that terrific struggle. It is glad that so many are still in good health able to participate in patriotic and civic movements. Above all, it rejoices that animosity between sections has died out, that the blue and the grey meet today in loving harmony and loyalty to common tradition.

MORE ABOUT ADVERTISING

When as the result of advertising a business is doubled, the rent is not commonly increased very much. It is not probable that the item of clerk hire is doubled. Nor have other expenses increased in like proportion.
 If a man is selling 5,000 articles annually at $1.00 each, and if rent, clerk hire and other expenses amount to $2,500, he must add 50 cents to the price of each article sold to cover expenses. Now if by advertising he increases sales to 10,000 articles, and if costs of doing business have risen only to $3,500, the expense charge which he has to add to price of each article is reduced from 50 cents to 35 cents. He can still add five cents per article as additional profit and then sell 10 cents per article under prices on a non-advertising basis.
 Thus advertising reduces cost of goods by enabling a merchant to increase business and cut down expense charge on each article sold.

THE SALVATION ARMY'S FUTURE

The good support which has been given the Salvation Army in its campaign for funds, marks the warm place this organization has acquired in the hearts of the public. Most people can remember when the lads and lassies were regarded as mere cranks. Conservative folks scoffed at the sometimes discordant music of their drums and cornets and tambourines.
 Newspaper reporters assigned to cover their meetings use sometimes to remark scornfully that they found no one there but the very dregs of humanity. Yet that was just the class the Army wanted to get hold of. They cannot be touched by the ordinary methods of church work. If they could be aroused from their despair and apathy by a little drum beating and cornet tooting, that style of music was serving a purpose that the most highly paid choir would not be able to accomplish.
 The Salvation Army won the entire respect of the soldiers by the devotion with which they faced the horrors of the trenches. They were fearless of danger and they never thought of fatigue. Having shown this splendid stuff that is in them, the Army should be given warmer support than it has ever had before in its efforts in this country.
 The Army's noble work of relief feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, finding work for unemployed, is familiar in all large centers of population. But it has had to beg for small coins from door to door. Its work for relief of poverty has been hampered by very limited means.
 It should have substantial buildings in all towns having a submerged class of people and a sufficient regular support so that it can carry on its work for discouraged and despairing people for whom it has a special appeal. It has proved its sincerity and business capacity so nobly that it can well be trusted with a very generous money support.
 There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward if offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
 We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

MR. RITCHIE'S CANDIDACY

Attorney General Ritchie's announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor is in response to a widespread desire in his party that he make the race. It has been manifested in many ways, and Mr. Ritchie's friends may properly declare that in his case the office is seeking the man. His candidacy is of interest and importance to the citizenship of the State, regardless of party, because Mr. Ritchie is of gubernatorial caliber. Besides being personally popular, his record in office is highly creditable. It will take a strong candidate to defeat him for the nomination and though this is concededly a Republican year, only a strong Republican candidate could defeat Mr. Ritchie in the general election.
 It is cause for congratulation that political conditions are so developing as to seem to guarantee to the electorate of Maryland next fall an opportunity to choose between gubernatorial candidates selected on account of fitness and on account of their appeal to public confidence, and not as a result of wire pulling and political maneuvering.—Baltimore News.

Last Friday a party from Snow Hill motored to Princess Anne, took supper and spent the evening at the Washington Hotel. Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Cordrey, Mrs. James B. Whaley, Misses Wilson and Carolyn Hargis, Lucille Collins, Major R. P. Tawitt, Messrs. George W. Upshur, V. M. Cordrey, J. Marshall Wilson, C. W. White and H. H. Payne.

The smallest crop and the highest prices for strawberries in this section for many years, due to the discontinuance of their cultivation, are the results this season. Last week berries brought from $6.00 to $9.00 for a 32-quart crate. At Marion Station some were sold at $11.00 per crate, and plenty of them brought $10.00 per crate. Some years ago $3.00 was considered a good price for a 32-quart crate of berries.

Suggestion For A Camping Trip
Buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy before leaving home. As a rule it cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamships and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you.

Community Club Entertainment

The ladies of the Fairmount Community Club gave a very successful dramatic entertainment on May 2nd, at which they cleared $46.00. The Junior Homemakers Girls' Club served refreshments and made $8.00 with which they propose to buy cooking utensils to be used in a domestic science course and canning during the Summer and for the preparation of hot lunches at the school next winter. A club song composed by Miss Esther Broughton, of Kingston, tune, "Marching Through Georgia," follows:

Come along for now's the time to join this happy bunch,
A million little girls or more, all waiting for a punch;
Sewing, canning, hoeing or preparing a little lunch,
While Miss Mills is assisting.

CHORUS:
Hurrah, Hurrah, for the J. H. C.
Hurrah, Hurrah, it will help you and me;
And we'll do it again as we have done, you see,
While we're working together.

Besides these things, we raise little chickens, too;
Work awhile, then keep account of all that we do;
Watch them very safely the whole season through,
While Miss Mills is assisting.

And we have some parties, very often too,
Have a very fine time, and show what we can do;
Picnics or fishing or anything that's new,
While Miss Mills is assisting.

FARMERS TO CELEBRATE VICTORY

Governor Harrington And U. S. Commissioner Claxton, Farmers' Day Orators. Largest Cultivator Demonstration In The Country Scheduled.

Farmers from all sections of the State and bordering counties of sister States will gather at College Park on the morning of May 30th, to participate in the great Victory celebration and commencement exercises to be held under the auspices of the Maryland State College, as a part of the annual Farmers' Day program for this year.

Governor E. C. Harrington and Dr. P. P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, will be the principal speakers of the day. The Governor's subject will be "The Farmers' Contribution to Victory and Their Reconstruction Program," and Commissioner Claxton's will deal with the theme of "The New Spirit In Education." Both men possess unusual ability to develop their subject and their addresses will form one of the delightful features of the day.

For the first time probably in the history of the country, a large cultivator demonstration will be held as a special feature of Farmers' Day. The best horse cultivators, garden tractors and motor cultivators will be shown in actual operation in a field of growing corn. Nine implement companies have already entered the demonstration and they will operate seventeen different styles of cultivators.

The purpose of the demonstration is to give farmers an opportunity to study the various types of modern cultivators in actual operation, so as to enable them to form some intelligent opinions regarding the efficiency horse and motor-drawn cultivators. One interesting feature will be the comparison of obsolete cultivators with modern implements of this type.

There is no question but what the cultivator is the most neglected tool on the farm today; this is true in the corn belt as well as in the Eastern States, and every farmer can well afford to attend this or any other similar demonstration which seeks to point out the way to progress and improvement in the cultivation of crops. Any farmer who so desires will have the opportunity of operating the different cultivators used.

Good things have been planned for the women as well as the men. The Home Economics Division of the Extension Service, have made arrangements with Mrs. Max West, of the U. S. Department of Labor to address the women on the subject of "Child Welfare." The talk will be given in the rooms of the Home Economics Division, which are located on the first floor of the new agricultural building at 10.30 in the morning. Plans have also been completed for holding an exhibit of infants' clothes which will include wearing apparel suitable up to three years of age, together with a display of children's clothes made from discarded adult suits, which have outlived their usefulness. The exhibit of infants' clothes will be furnished by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor and be open for inspection during the entire day.

In addition to the cultivator demonstration and other exercises, visitors will have an opportunity to inspect the many lines of investigational work in crops, live stock, etc., which are being carried on at the Experiment Station. Each important experiment or test will be in charge of some member of the staff who is familiar with the work and he will be glad to explain the details to all interested parties. There are something like 3,000 plots in the wheat investigations alone, which gives the reader some idea of the nature and extent of the work of the Experiment Station.

It is planned to carry out some actual tests of soil for lime requirements and samples of soil brought by the farmers on that day will be given this test immediately. An explanation of the Pure Seed Law is to be carried on, and explanations of investigations of tomato diseases, brown rot, experiments with fruits, hog cholera serum experiments, and many other kinds of research being developed in connection with agriculture, will be for observation by visitors. Some of the numerous experiments have to do with winter oats, soy beans and cow peas, variety tests of strawberries, grape training, dwarf orchards and pruning of bush fruits, growing of asparagus, Irish potatoes, fertilizer tests and poultry.

Comprehensive plans are being made for the accommodation and comfort of the visitors. Sandwiches and refreshments will be sold on the campus, but all who can conveniently do so are urged to bring picnic lunches. There will be special train service on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, trolley service from Washington and Laurel, and for those who own automobiles it is sufficient to say that the College is located on one of Maryland's famous stretches of State roads, which connects Washington and Baltimore.

A Marital Suggestion.

Hubby—The literary critics agree there is a great dearth of good fairy tales.

Wife—Why don't they ask the married men to write some of them?

No Matter If The Season Is Late You Can't Afford Idle Acres In These Times Of High Prices

With hogs selling above $20.00 a hundred.

—and every indication of continued strength.

—it is practically certain that corn will bring at least $1.50 next Fall.

These prices mean real money.

They mean that no farmer can afford to let either the weather—the lack of help or anything else keep him from putting in a crop on every available acre.

And There Is Still Time To Plant Corn This Season IF YOU OWN A

The Cleveland Tractor

With the Cleveland you can plow from 8 to 10 acres a day and fit from 25 to 30 acres a day with a double disc harrow and pulverizer in a tandem hitch.

The Cleveland motor was designed for fast work and this sturdy tractor pulls two 14 inch bottoms at 3 1-2 miles an hour under practically all conditions.

Furthermore the Cleveland is the tractor that can be used for drilling oats, planting the corn and even for cultivating the latter until it is 16 to 18 inches high.

When the corn has reached this height one team can finish the job while the Cleveland is kept busy at the hot horse-killing job of pulling binders and making hay.

In July, writes Mr. F. H. Johnson of New Augusta, Indiana, "I used the Cleveland in loading hay and got in the crop from 140 acres at the rate of about 35 tons a day.

"Besides getting the hay into the barn in such good time I made a substantial saving by being able to handle my hay quickly during the hay season. On harvesting work I cut 150 acres of wheat and oats with an 8-foot binder covering about 25 acres in a ten-hour day."

Can you afford to give up the extra income that the Cleveland will make possible for you?—Can you afford to be without it during the busiest time of the year?

Let Us Deliver Your Cleveland From Our Stock Today

Our service men will help you get started tomorrow on actual work getting your land ready for corn or oats—or maybe you prefer barley or buckwheat or alfalfa.

What you plant is not so important just so you don't let the land lie idle.

Put every one of these high priced acres to work—make it yield an income this year.

You can do it with the Cleveland. Write, phone or call today.

DEHORNING OF CATTLE URGED

Use of Caustic, Clippers and Saw to Prevent Growth and Remove Horns Is Favored.

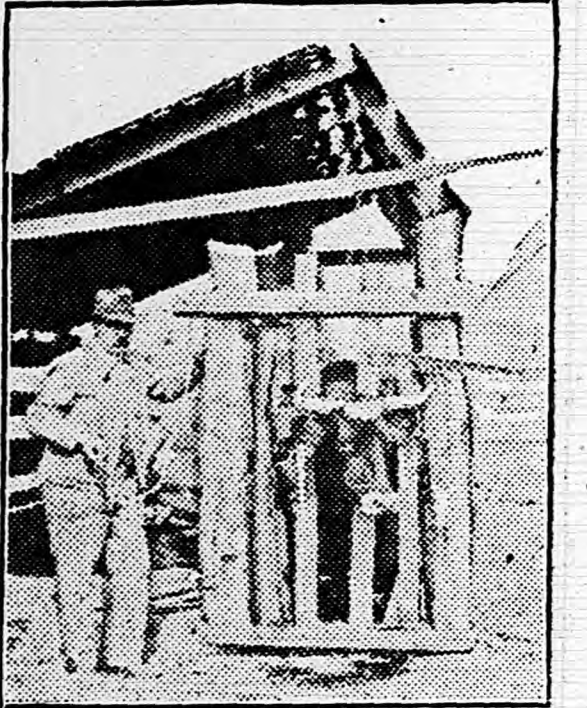

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Dehorning makes an animal more easily handled.

It renders the animal less dangerous to attendants.

It prevents the goring of other cattle in the feeding lot or in transit to market.

It adds uniformity to the appearance of cattle and thereby adds to their value.

Methods of dehorning cattle have been the subject of unusually interesting demonstrations held by cattle specialists of the United States department of agriculture co-operating with other extension forces. The demonstrators showed how to remove horns with clippers and saws, and with the use of caustic soda and caustic potash to prevent the growth of horns on calves. Dehorning chutes, for holding cattle while being dehorned, were also constructed by the demonstrators, who emphasized the importance of using them instead of resorting to such practices as throwing the animals with ropes, tying them to fences or similar methods which are unsatisfactory. In a number of cases farmers were permitted to dehorn one or two animals to become familiar with the operation.

The method of dehorning depends in each case upon the age of the cattle, specialists of the department say. Demonstrations with young calves showed how the growth of horns can be prevented by properly applying caustic soda or caustic potash. Older calves and other cattle were dehorned either with the saw or clippers. While clippers remove the horn more quickly and with less pain to the animal, the saw has the advantage of not crushing the horn, especially in the case of old animals whose horns are hard and brittle. Neither does the saw cause as much bleeding, since by lacerating the blood vessels it causes a clot of blood to form quickly.

NO PLACE FOR SCRUB STOCK

Animal Is Wasteful of Feed and Owner's Labor—Pure-Breds Are Worth More to Keep.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Scrub live stock is no longer fit for perpetuation in the United States. A scrub is wasteful of feed and wasteful of its owner's labor. The scrub animal has served its purpose as a connecting link between the old obsolete method of farming and new progressive methods. Thousands of farmers in this country already have discarded scrub stock and are better off because of that decision. Pure-breds are worth more to keep and are worth more to sell. The scrub animal has been useful as a connecting link, but our aim from now on should be to make the scrub extinct and to make it the missing link so far as live stock is concerned. That cannot be done immediately, but it is the goal toward which we should work.

FEEDING SILAGE TO HORSES

Limited Quantity May Be Given if Care Is Exercised—Cannot Consume Large Amount.

Silage may be fed to horses in limited quantity if care is exercised, but a horse cannot consume the large quantities of roughage used by the steer or cow, and the amount of silage given to horses on full feed must be very limited.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

More beef cattle might be raised profitably on many farms.

Heavy feeding does not always produce proportionate gains.

Cornmeal, boiled potatoes and buttermilk make a splendid ration for the growing pigs.

The first requisites in raising stock is a good feeder, let us say, a judicious feeder, and a well-born calf.

FARM POULTRY

EARLY HATCHING IS FAVORED
Poultryman Enabled to Get Chicks Started Before Hot Weather—Rapid Gains Insured.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In order to have eggs when eggs are scarce begin operations in early spring to plan for early-hatched chicks. Early hatching enables the poultryman to get his chicks started before hot weather, which retards their growth and which, with the presence of lice, causes millions of late-hatched chicks to die each year. Pullets hatched early produce eggs in the fall when hens are lighting. Early-hatched cockerels bring the best prices and early layers will brood early the following spring.

Early-Hatched Pullet—Mature and Laying on September 26.

Contrary to general belief chicks do not grow or thrive as well during warm months or hot summer days as they do earlier in the spring. Chicks hatched early are stronger, thrive better and have the advantage of a longer growing season. Early hatching not only insures more rapid gains in the growth of chicks but has a favorable influence on the size of the individuals of the flock. Late-hatched chicks rarely if ever attain the size of those hatched early.

Given the same feed, care and attention, chicks hatched in March and April will weigh more when they are four months old than those hatched in May and June. The early-hatched chick, having the advantage of a more favorable growing season, makes greater gains during the first four months of its life than the late-hatched chick. During the early spring months when the temperature is not so varied the growth of chicks is more uniform and constant than it is during the summer. If for no other reason chicks should be hatched early so their growth will not be interrupted by the presence of lice, which are much more plentiful and destructive in hot weather than in the cooler days of spring.

Many farmers and poultrymen realize considerable money each spring from the sale of broilers, the price of which is usually governed by their size when sold and the time marketed. Thus it would seem that in order to increase the amount of money from the sale of broilers and fryers early hatching would be employed so as to have a marketable-sized fowl early in the spring when prices are highest.

WASHING WILL HELP DECAY

Many Eggs Are Spoiled Each Year Because They Have Become Wet Before Reaching Market.

It is estimated that more than 5,000,000 eggs are spoiled every year because they have been washed or in some way have become wet before reaching market. The shell of an egg contains a gelatinous substance which prevents air and germs from entering the eggs. Washing destroys this substance and promotes decay.

A system of cleanliness in poultry raising is desirable.

Hens must have things to eat that contain egg-making elements.

The hen as a rule is a better sitter than the pullet for the incubation of eggs.

When mites, lice, ticks, fleas, etc., once get a start they are very troublesome.

Egg testers are to be easily had from manufacturers and dealers in poultry supplies.

To successfully hatch chicks great care should be exercised in the selection of the sitting hen. Any old hen seldom does in these matters.

There are four common breeds of geese, the Toulouse, African, Embden and the White China. Of these the Toulouse is the most popular and most generally raised.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers, the purifiers, of your blood.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately.

The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

Undoubted Proof.
An eminent pianist was about to give a recital in a large hall. As the audience was filling in a man staggered up to the door and presented a ticket. "You cannot go in," said the official in charge; "you are not in a fit condition." "Didn't I pay for my ticket?" asked the man. "Isn't it in order?" "It's all right," was the reply, "but you—you are all wrong—you are intoxicated!" "Intoxicated? Of course I'm intoxicated! If I wasn't do you think I would come to a piano recital?"

Doomed to Wretchedness.
Let a man choose what condition he will, and let him accumulate around him all the goods and gratifications seemingly calculated to make him happy in it; if that man is left at any time without occupation or amusement, and reflects on what he is, the meager, languid felicity of his present lot will not bear him up. He will turn necessarily to gloomy anticipation of the future; and unless his occupation calls him out of himself, he is inevitably wretched.—Pascal.

A Great Man.
A great man is he who chooses the right in invincible resolution, who resists the sorest temptations from within and without, who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully, who is calmest in storms and most fearless under frowns, whose reliance on truth, on virtue, on God, is most unflinching. I believe this greatness to be most common among the multitude, whose names are never heard.—W. E. Chan-ning.

CLEVER.

"Jimmy, what are the advantages of living in the temperate zone?" asked the teacher at the close of the geography lesson.

"None," answered Jimmy, bluntly. "Why, Jimmy!" expostulated the teacher. "You know we live in the temperate zone."

"Yes, I know," declared Jimmy. "An' it takes all father can earn to buy ice in summer an' coal in winter."

A few weeks later Jimmy was going into the third grade, having successfully passed the holiday examinations, and his parting with his beloved teacher was tearful.

"Oh, teacher!" he wailed, "I wish you knew enough to teach the third grade, so you could come along an' teach me next year."

Jimmy is getting along well in these days.

Considering Her Feelings.

Mr. Hussel—Why don't you get a job so your wife won't have to kill herself working over the washtub as she's doing?

Mr. Neversweat—Well, you see, she seems to enjoy her rest after a hard day's work so much I hate to take away the only pleasure she's got.

Safety First.

"You boys have been using that same deck of cards for months."

"Yes," replied Three-Finger Sam. "It's fur the perfection of home industry. We know all the bent corners an' finger marks by heart and any extra act that a tenderfoot tries to ring in is detected immediately."

AN APT COMPARISON.

Mr. L. M. III—Doc, you remind me of a bird.

Doc—How so?

Because you're forever sticking your bill in my face.

Unusual.

A curious cuss is Henry Gores. He publicly admits he snores.

His Exhibit.

"I heard the romantic young man you were interested in departed from his lady's presence inspired like a true knight."

"How was that?"

"Well, her father was booted and he was spurred."

Additional Data.

Young Hopeful—My teacher told us today that the tongue is the organ of speech.

Henpecked Father—But did she tell you that in women it is an organ without any stops?

Must Have Been Bad.

"Did the editor accept your manuscript?"

"No, returned it."

"Declined with thanks, I presume?"

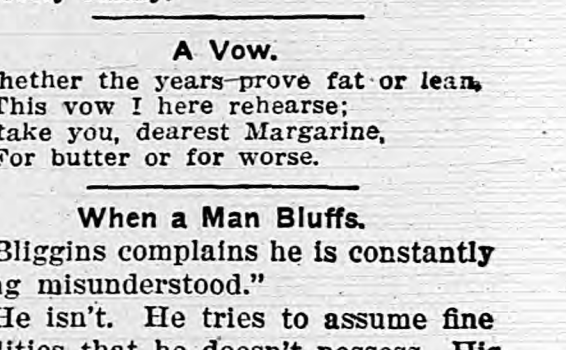

"Worse than that. He didn't even include the thanks."

Very Uncertain.

"It is hard to tell whether Jim prefers blondes or brunettes, he is so illogical."

"How is that?"

"If he likes brunettes he keeps it a dark secret, and if he prefers blondes he makes light of it."

THE MAIN POINT.

"Phil, what are you laughing at?"

"I heard a funny story today."

"How did it go?"

"I don't just remember, but it was terribly funny."

A Vow.

Whether the years prove fat or lean, This vow I here rehearse: I take you, dearest Margarine, For butter or for worse.

When a Man Bluffs.

"Bliggins complains he is constantly being misunderstood."

"He isn't. He tries to assume fine qualities that he doesn't possess. His troubles arise from the fact that he is too easily understood."

The Way of It.

"I was held up by a woman once."

"Did she hold you up as a victim of robbery?"

"No," she held me up as an example."

Defended.

"Mr. Smith has a great deal of acerbity in his conversation."

"Indeed, sir, I never heard him say anything but what was perfectly proper."

The Nasal Clue.

"I see where a whole case of whiskey has disappeared the authorities were very anxious to trace."

"I should think the detectives could easily smell out a case like that."

More Soy Beans For County

The farmers of this county are planning to greatly increase their acreage of soy beans. Soy beans are becoming one of the most popular forage and hay crops and is being used as a soil improver on the poorly drained and heavy clay lands.

Soy bean hay is slightly superior to alfalfa hay in protein. Cow pea hay has a larger amount of digestible protein than soy bean hay, but when the loss of leaves and the rapid deterioration in curing, due to rain, are taken into consideration it is doubtful if cow pea hay is ever superior to soy bean hay, except where cow peas are cured under the most favorable conditions. The hay is relished by all classes of stock and is an excellent winter ration for growing cattle, sheep and horses. Even hogs will relish the leaves and smaller stems.

Ground soy beans are slightly better than cottonseed meal for milk production. They are equal pound for pound to cottonseed meal after the oil is extracted from the beans.

Soy beans make a desirable pasture for livestock. It is better suited for hog pasture than for cattle or sheep pasture. While a considerable part of the growth of young pigs may be made by soy bean pasture alone, far better results are secured when the pasture is supplemented with corn or other grain.

Soy beans will give an average yield of about two tons of hay to the acre on land capable of producing thirty to forty bushels of corn per acre, providing, of course, that the soy beans are inoculated and properly planted. They will also yield twenty to thirty bushels of soy beans to the acre. As the chief source of protein in hog pasture they are excelled only by alfalfa. When their fertilizing value, as well as their feeding value, is taken into consideration, soy beans are superior to any other crop grown in this section.

When grown for hay soy beans can be drilled in with a grain drill at the rate of one and one-half bushels per acre; for seed they can be sown in rows 28 to 36 inches apart at the rate of one-half to one bushel of seed per acre, depending upon the size of the variety of seed used. They can also be grown for seed by sowing broadcast as for hay, using a smaller amount of seed per acre. Soy beans should not be covered more than three-fourths to one inch deep in the heavier soils. On light loams slightly deeper, but not to exceed three inches in the lightest sandy soil.

From the many uses that can be made of soy beans it has become one of the most economical crops that can be grown by the farmers of this county. Farmers should plan now to grow a small acreage of soy beans, either for seed, hay or pasture. They should be planted when the weather becomes warm, the latter part of May or early June, for seed and as late as the latter part of June for hay.

Soy beans should be inoculated before planting, in order to obtain a good growth and improve the soil. Farmers can obtain inoculation for one bushel of seed free from the United States Department of Agriculture by making application to County Agent C. Z. Keller.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS State Scholarships in Engineering Courses

Entrance Examinations for the Department of Engineering, as well as for the College of Arts and Sciences, will be held in Gillman Hall, Homewood, Monday to Saturday, June 16th to 21st, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m., each day, under the auspices of the College Entrance Examination Board.

Applications for Scholarships in the Department of Engineering, established under the provisions of the Laws of Maryland, Chapter 90, 1912, will now be received. If there is more than one applicant for a particular scholarship, a competitive examination must be taken Friday, September 19th, 1919, beginning at 9 a. m. Appointments will be made soon thereafter.

Each Legislative District of Baltimore City and each county of the State, with the exception of Harford, Howard, Queen Anne's and Somerset counties, will be entitled to one or more scholarships for the year 1919-1920, in addition to those which have already been assigned. In the four counties mentioned above, all the available scholarships have been awarded.

Under the provisions of the Act of Assembly, the County and City Scholarships in the Department of Engineering are awarded only to deserving students whose financial circumstances are such that they are unable to obtain an education in Engineering unless free tuition be granted to them. The scholarships entitle the holders to free tuition, free use of text-books and exemption from all regular fees. One of the scholarships in each county and each Legislative District of the city carries also the sum of $200. The expense of attendance for those who do not receive scholarships is not greater than at other Maryland institutions.

Scholarships may be awarded to graduates of Loyola College, St. John's College, Washington College, Western Maryland College, Maryland Agricultural College, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rock Hill College. (One scholarship will be awarded "At Large.")

Applicants should address the Registrar, The Johns Hopkins University, for blank forms of application and for catalogues giving information as to examinations, award of scholarships, and courses of instruction. The next session begins Tuesday, September 30th, 1919.

Private Control 'Phone Lines Asked For

Mr. T. N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Mr. G. W. Robinson, president of the United States Independent Telephone Association, have sent the following letter addressed to members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives:

"On midnight July 31st, 1918, under the authority of Congress for war purposes, the President took supervision, possession, control and operation of the telephone systems of the country and has since operated them. The war has practically ceased. The public press is strongly demanding, the general public and the owners of the telephone properties are urging, that they be returned as speedily as possible, that former conditions may be restored and more satisfactory service be afforded. The President and the Postmaster-General have announced that this will be done as soon as adequate arrangements be provided for receiving and advantageously operating them. It remains only for Congress to enact such legislation as speedily as possible.

"The expenses of these systems have largely increased during the past year, for wages alone at the rate of more than $20,000,000 per annum. This was inevitable and necessary by reason of larger proportional increases by the railroads and industries of the country. The revenues are inadequate to care for such increases, and the deficit of the Government on that account to date is large and steadily increasing. The Postmaster-General ordered that steps be taken to secure adequate revenues, but contentions with the regulatory authorities of the States, not yet settled, have prevented such adjustments.

"If such conditions continue, necessarily the credit of the operating companies will be impaired, proper expenses cannot be met, the best operating forces cannot be retained, needed extensions and satisfactory service cannot be provided. A deterioration will ensue which in some localities may threaten a recurrence to public ownership or operation in order to care, even inadequately, for public needs. By prompt action Congress can prevent this contingency.

"Just and speedy settlements should be made for all properties taken under the existing law, that such balances now in the possession of the Government may be restored to assist in the upbuilding and extension of the various systems for better public use. The conditions and regulation of operation should be clearly defined so as to permit the companies to re-establish and maintain a satisfactory service with reasonable rates without discrimination and procure the benefits of legitimate competition. The principal operating companies of the United States are vitally interested in co-operating with Congress and the officials of the Government to accomplish these results."
