Hints About Flowers.

The art of arranging bouquets is very simple. Having collected the flowers to be used on a tray all the superfluous leaves should be stripped from the stems, and by placing the flowers side by side you can easily see the order in which they can be most advantageously displayed.

A very pretty hand bouquet can be made to make a small straight stick, not over a quarter of an inch in diameter, tie a string to the top of it, and begin by fastening on a few delicate flowers, or one large, beautiful one for the center piece, putting a cord about each stem as you add the flowers and leaves the bouquet. Always attach the flowers with the shortest stems at the top, preserving all those whose long stems are the base, and finish off the bouquet with fringes of finely cut foliage. Then cut all the stems evenly, wrap damp cotton around them, and cover the stems with a paper cut in pretty lace designs.

In making bouquets from garden flowers, which are so much easier to procure, the flowers can be arranged flatly and background made from sprays of evergreen.

How Women should Dress.
Woman, by her physical structure, is made to be draped, not to be dressed as if not in a mold. Whatever departs from the wing skirt and approaches to tight-fitting is unattractive. In male attire a woman is no longer a woman; she is not a man; she is drossyguine—that is to say something infinitely less troublesome than odious. This aberration, while abolishing the sex, also annuls the effect of putting into prominence those charms which a slight indication could render more desirable, of brutally of which that tech would leave to be heeded, for, and of making that an easy prey which should be a slow cognate full of de-ous episodes. In a word, as a modern realist says, woman's great charm lies in suggestion, almost in the illusion. The we have for her, and which should be, the dearest object, feeds on nothing else, the greatest attraction of what we see that we don't see.

The Postmaster-General is now busy at work filling the offices in fourth-class Post-offices. He is also making some remarks, but principally of a partisan nature. Many are earnestly laboring under the impression that all these appointments must be confirmed by the Senate—the republican Senate, when it convenes next December. The law provides that only the President's appointments shall be subject to confirmation by the Senate.

The R. & O. R. seems to be meeting with considerable opposition in getting a right of way into Philadelphia. The Pennsylvania R. R. is throwing every obstacle possible in its way. The test movement seems to be to purchase all the real estate on both sides of the proposed route. This proposed line is up a small street between Chestnut and Market and terminates one square from the Pennsylvania depot. There can be no more desirable position than this.

The impression in business circles is that business will soon begin to look up. A great and sudden revival is not expected or hoped for or specially desired, as it would be followed by a reaction. The city banks report large surpluses of money lying idle in their vaults waiting for investment as soon as confidence is thoroughly restored. The quantity of manufactured goods in the market has been gradually diminishing for some time, till there is now but little surplus. This is especially true of the canned goods trade. The indications are that there will be a revival of business on a solid basis.

GREEN HILL CHURCH.

The Old Church to be Repaired—Interesting Description of the Interior.

SALISBURY, Md., May 25.
MR. EDITOR:—I see that an endeavor is being made to raise funds wherewith to repair the "Old Green Hill Church" and open it again for divine service. This is truly a worthy undertaking and one that should meet with the earnest support of all residents of Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties for it is the oldest Church in these three counties, having been built in 1783, and therefore is now over 150 years old.

It may be interesting to some of your readers to know that this old Church is the Parish Church of Steeple Parish, which was the Northernmost of the four parishes (Steeple, Somerset, Coventry and Snow Hill or All Hallows) into which Somerset (then embracing the territory now belonging to Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties) was divided by the Parish Act of General Assembly in 1692. The services of the church or of the parishes were held in this Parish as early as 1685, but the Churches then were small, wooden structures, the people being poor and the settlements scattered.

The old county of Somerset was made a county in Aug. 26th, 1666 and named "Somerset" in honor of Cecil Calvert's (Lord Baltimore) sister Mary Somerset.

As the county became more thickly settled and the people became more prosperous, regular commercial intercourse having been established between this section and the old county, the old wooden Churches being decayed, better, larger and more substantial Churches began to be built.

Thus the old Parish Church at Green Hill and the Churches of "East-Called" Spring Hill and "Godsland Chapel" were replaced by larger and more substantial edifices.

We learn from a letter written in 1711 by the Rev. Alexander Adams, who styles himself the second rector of Steeple Parish, to the Bishop of London, that, at that time, there were in his Parish (Steeple) a Parish Church and a Chapel of Ease; and later, in 1724, he reported to the Bishop that there were in his Parish, "a Church and two Chapels of Ease, that upon the Lord's Day and Holy Days, in the Summer time some hundreds attend divine service, but in Winter the congregations were small at the Church and both Chapels as the ways were very deep and the season very cold, that his Parish was 50 miles long, 16 miles wide, and contained 40 families, that there were Indians and Negro slaves in the Parish, some of the latter had been baptized after instruction in the Church Catechism and attended public worship, but the language of the former was not understood.

The Lord's Supper was administered sometimes twice a year, or oftener, if wine could be had. At the Church there were about 50 communicants and about 40 in one of the Chapels; the youth were catechized on Sundays; that they had no furniture for the communion table or pulpit; that his living arose from 40 pounds of tobacco per fall; there was a glebe, but so poor no one would live on it, and houses; that there were several private schools and some books, &c. This report gives us an insight into the condition of Steeple Parish in 1724.

And right here it is interesting to state that the above Rev. Alexander Adams was rector of Steeple Parish from 1704 to 1760, when he died being 90 years old, a period of 56 years; a record, I dare say, unparalleled in Maryland history.

During his rectorship Green Hill Church was rebuilt (in 1738) in its present shape. His material interests had so improved in 1728 that he presented the Parish with a massive silver communion service, consisting of a flagon 30 inches high, 10 inches diameter, two chalices and two patens, inscribed "The gift of the Rev. Alexander Adams, second rector of Steeple Parish, 1728."

In 1768, the year before Mr. Adams' death, the General Assembly passed an Act levying 100,000 pounds of tobacco (the then currency) upon the taxables of the Parish for the purpose of buying "two acres of land on the South side of Wicomico, above the branch whereon is the mill of William Venables" (the present site of the Church at Salisbury) whereon to rebuild "Godsland Chapel" which the petition stated to be "old, out of repair, unfit for divine service and inconveniently situated."

The same Act also authorized the purchase of two acres of land near Spring Hill upon which to rebuild Spring Hill Chapel, which was also greatly out of repair. These two Chapels, at Spring Hill and Salisbury, being more favorably situated, have, in the course of time, prospered, the one at Salisbury being now one of the handsomest Church edifices in the State, while the mother Church at Green Hill has been neglected and except for the solid and substantial workmanship of our ancestors, would long since have been in ruins.

The names of the Vestry of Steeple Parish, in 1695, were James Weatherly, John Bouda, Philip Carter, Robert Collyer, Thomas Holbrook and Philip Askew.

Most of these names and many others of those who worshipped at the old Church are still among us. The associations of many families of this county are closely connected with it. Should we not see that something is done to preserve it?

WILL WHEAT.

Maryland Wheat Crop.

The May report of the department of agriculture furnishes the following statement of the condition of the wheat crop in Maryland on the first of the month; Queen Anne's—Generally looks badly, owing to drought last fall and winter-killing. Saint Mary's—Some fields entirely naked. April very dry, and what wheat withstood the winter made a poor growth. Prince George's—Has improved last two weeks. Frederick—Looking healthy and vigorous, but very small for this time. If weather is favorable may have a fair crop. Montgomery—Only about one-half a crop will be raised. Caroline—Looks well, but not so good a stand as last year; winter-killed. Talbot—Improving rapidly, but dry. Calvert—In March wheat looked badly, much having been winter-killed, but the favorable April has caused what is standing to come out very well. Harford—Very much improved since last report. Somerset—Owing to the drought which prevailed here during the whole of our seeding time last fall, a very large proportion of the seed wheat never germinated at all, or perished after germinating. Very poor condition. Kent—Very backward, and though somewhat improved is looking badly. Carroll—Improved somewhat, but though late-sown will not raise half crop; winter-killed. Garrett—Thin on ground and backward.

More Than a Million.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—A reporter of the Times-Democrat, who recently completed a tour of this and neighboring States, visiting every city, town and hamlet, states that he interviewed all the wholesale and retail druggists and storekeepers, as well as transportation companies, with a view of learning the volume of trade in certain articles. The statistics thus gathered show that during the past two years over one million two hundred thousand bottles of St. Jacobs Oil were sold in this section alone, and that this quantity largely exceeds the total combined sales of all other similar remedies during that period. He adds that dealers, as well as the public, continue unanimous in their praise of the wonderful pain-relieving powers of this unapproached remedial agent.

Mr. Beckford Mackey, United States Consul at Rio Grande do Sul, is now under arrest at the above named place for shooting the editor of the local paper.

Mr. Mackey acted only in self defense, and is upheld in his act by many of the best citizens as well as by all the other foreign consuls.

I have been very much benefited by a 50 cent bottle of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I began using it my Catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since to amount to anything. Please send me two more bottles. John H. Summers, Steeple, Conn.

Victor Hugo, the celebrated French writer, died last week at an advanced age. He was much respected and beloved by the French people, and his reputation was by General Assembly in 1692. The services of the church or of the parishes were held in this Parish as early as 1685, but the Churches then were small, wooden structures, the people being poor and the settlements scattered.

The old county of Somerset was made a county in Aug. 26th, 1666 and named "Somerset" in honor of Cecil Calvert's (Lord Baltimore) sister Mary Somerset.

As the county became more thickly settled and the people became more prosperous, regular commercial intercourse having been established between this section and the old county, the old wooden Churches being decayed, better, larger and more substantial Churches began to be built.

Thus the old Parish Church at Green Hill and the Churches of "East-Called" Spring Hill and "Godsland Chapel" were replaced by larger and more substantial edifices.

We learn from a letter written in 1711 by the Rev. Alexander Adams, who styles himself the second rector of Steeple Parish, to the Bishop of London, that, at that time, there were in his Parish (Steeple) a Parish Church and a Chapel of Ease; and later, in 1724, he reported to the Bishop that there were in his Parish, "a Church and two Chapels of Ease, that upon the Lord's Day and Holy Days, in the Summer time some hundreds attend divine service, but in Winter the congregations were small at the Church and both Chapels as the ways were very deep and the season very cold, that his Parish was 50 miles long, 16 miles wide, and contained 40 families, that there were Indians and Negro slaves in the Parish, some of the latter had been baptized after instruction in the Church Catechism and attended public worship, but the language of the former was not understood.

The Lord's Supper was administered sometimes twice a year, or oftener, if wine could be had. At the Church there were about 50 communicants and about 40 in one of the Chapels; the youth were catechized on Sundays; that they had no furniture for the communion table or pulpit; that his living arose from 40 pounds of tobacco per fall; there was a glebe, but so poor no one would live on it, and houses; that there were several private schools and some books, &c. This report gives us an insight into the condition of Steeple Parish in 1724.

And right here it is interesting to state that the above Rev. Alexander Adams was rector of Steeple Parish from 1704 to 1760, when he died being 90 years old, a period of 56 years; a record, I dare say, unparalleled in Maryland history.

During his rectorship Green Hill Church was rebuilt (in 1738) in its present shape. His material interests had so improved in 1728 that he presented the Parish with a massive silver communion service, consisting of a flagon 30 inches high, 10 inches diameter, two chalices and two patens, inscribed "The gift of the Rev. Alexander Adams, second rector of Steeple Parish, 1728."

In 1768, the year before Mr. Adams' death, the General Assembly passed an Act levying 100,000 pounds of tobacco (the then currency) upon the taxables of the Parish for the purpose of buying "two acres of land on the South side of Wicomico, above the branch whereon is the mill of William Venables" (the present site of the Church at Salisbury) whereon to rebuild "Godsland Chapel" which the petition stated to be "old, out of repair, unfit for divine service and inconveniently situated."

The same Act also authorized the purchase of two acres of land near Spring Hill upon which to rebuild Spring Hill Chapel, which was also greatly out of repair. These two Chapels, at Spring Hill and Salisbury, being more favorably situated, have, in the course of time, prospered, the one at Salisbury being now one of the handsomest Church edifices in the State, while the mother Church at Green Hill has been neglected and except for the solid and substantial workmanship of our ancestors, would long since have been in ruins.

HALL'S

Vegetable Silethian

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure disease of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements essential for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire absence of its poison.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Notes for the Farmer.

If you want quick returns and full prices on Hides, Furs, Wool, Bones, Butter, etc., send for our Price Current, Consignments Solicited, R. L. Williams, Ac., General Commission Merchants, Office, 160 William St., New York.

Perhaps it is not known to every stockmaster that if sheep are running on good pasture during the summer there will be a break or weak place in the wool, which renders it of little value for manufacturing purposes. Wool merchants and manufacturers understand this, and their keen eye will at once discover it, and down goes the price.

James O. Chappell, Halifax Co., Va., says he used the fertilizer made of Powell's Prepared Chemicals for tobacco, 150 lbs. to the acre, and found it as good as fertilizers which cost him more than three times as much. This economical fertilizer cost only $8 per barrel, which is sufficient to make one-half ton complete fertilizer. Write for pamphlet to Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Unthinking farmers will sometimes place a colt or young horse by the side of a horse of more mature years, and expect it to do an equal amount of work without injury. Such a thing is not only unwise, but unkind. Many promising horses have been ruined by such treatment. No young horse should be expected to stand the work that horses which have been accustomed to hard usage are able to undergo.

The chemist says that if a little chloride of lime be sprinkled on the soil, rats, mice and insects will soon desert it. Plants may be easily protected by it from insect plague by simply brushing over their stems with a solution of it. Fruit trees may be guarded from their attacks by attaching to the stems pieces of tow smeared with a mixture of chloride of lime and hog's lard. Ants and grubs already in possession will then rapidly vacate their position.

No farmer should neglect to look after his garden at this time. No one can afford to be without this home luxury. Many a village, or even a city, man will have a better garden on a square lot of ground than farmers who have ample acre at hand. Our farmers should supply their families with fresh fruits and vegetables every month in the year. In planting new stock, get only the best seed of fruits or vegetables, and you will never regret the outlay.

The strawberry fields of the West and South have suffered considerably from the prolonged and severe winter, and especially where the ground or plants were not mulched. Where covering or mulching was practiced, the plants are reported coming out of winter quarters in splendid order. Where no protection was afforded, the action of the frost played havoc with a portion of the plants, in some cases throwing them out entirely, and the average yield from such fields will be very light.

The proper time to let meadows be soon after frost is out of the ground as the turf will bear horses' feet without punching deep holes in the soil. The roller serves a double purpose, in compacting the earth about grass roots loosened by frost, and to press loose stones into the earth so as to be out of the way in cutting grass. The larger stones should first be picked up and removed. They are not the most dangerous to the mow as a small stone on its edge and up in the grass, may break a mower's knife, which would roll over a large round stone without much injury.

Orchard grass is a robust grower, and very tenacious of life. It masses its roots so as to resist the encroachment of other grasses, covering much of the ground with its large pendant leaves that spring out near the base of the plant, to shade, nourish and enrich the soil not occupied by the plant itself. This, perhaps, accounts largely for its ability to endure excessive drought. It will produce two large crops of good hay on rich soil, and submit to more than any other forage plant, except blue grass, which is of little value in a very dry season.

An Ohio sheep breeder says in the Country Gentleman: "For many years past I have made it a point to have clover hay for my breeding ewes during the latter part of the winter, and for spring feeding. When properly handled it is almost as nice as when cut, and ewes feed on it all year. It will not require any other milk-producing food, and there is nothing they will eat with a better relish. This clover hay is coming out of the mow rather browner than usual, and there is not much brightness in the blossom; but still the sheep are doing well on it, and the ewes have an abundance of milk for their lambs."

Dr. Groeman has called the attention of farmers to the important fact that the use of a liberal quantity of manure will not only enable them to secure larger crops but also crops of much better quality, and in all respects it will be more satisfactory to the grower. But there is no need of choosing the alternative, for the heavy manuring which does so much to insure a fine quality of products, will also produce a large yield per acre.

The Merino sheep originated in Spain, probably 3000 years ago, from a cross of African rams with the native ewes. The fact that Australian wool is liable to be excessively tender from long-continued droughts, and in certain seasons more burry than in others, is against it. American wool possesses a stronger staple than that grown in milder climates. To compete with Australian wool the Texas sheep growers should abandon the practice of shearing twice a year. Cotton is esteemed a superior food for producing heavy fleeces of wool. Proper grading of wool makes no less than eight grades of wool from a fleece. Sheep men in each region should combine and grade their wool to suit any market, and thus secure top prices.

In getting the cows into the pastures do not make the change too suddenly from dry feed to grass. Give them a good feed of the best hay in the barn in the morning, then let them out for a while. Put them out early in the afternoon, and at night give another feed of good hay. This will be much better than allowing them to starve in the barn until they find enough in the pasture for a hearty feed, and much better also than making the change from plenty of hay to half-grass enough. Those which are to calve soon might be kept in the barn later, as they often injure themselves by their avidity at frolicking when first turned out, or are injured by other animals. There is also some danger from the green food causing an undue stimulation of the milk production before calving, but this can be overcome by milking whenever the udder is noticed to be distended with milk.

A good criterion is no real consolation to a man when appearances are all against him.

Timely Topics.

Plow deep, much reap.

Use the roller on sowed crops.

Firming the soil is not enough practiced. Clear loose stones off the plowed ground. Put some manure around the young trees.

Keep both eyes on the look out for worm troubles.

Practice selling your cattle this season if the pasture gets dry.

Much injury has been done by the cold to fruit buds in the East.

Among the best selling crops are rye, corn, oats and peas sown together.

Do not feed too much green food to cattle at the out-set, if you practice selling.

Keep a strict farm account, and see if it doesn't help you to make money by saving it.

One cow may be very profitable; another may not pay her keep. See that you know "which from 't' other."

If you can keep sheep in your apple orchard, do so. They are the best crop you can raise there, besides the apples.

How do you actually know which cows pay you best, unless you keep some individual record of what they produce.

When New York State can find a better potato for all purposes, than the White Elephant, it will be cultivated. It don't know of any now.

Farmers can save money in purchasing prepared fertilizers by buying in companies of three or four, and having it all shipped at once. In fact, this is true in many things that we all must use in common.

It seems almost impossible that sufficient food to produce 40 lbs. and more of butter in a week could be digested and assimilated by a cow. But it shows the wonderful milk capacity of Jerseys.

Farmers should bear in mind, the fact, that thorough preparation of the soil and thorough tillage of the crops, is becoming a positive necessity. Manure and chemical fertilizers cannot do everything alone; and good soil poorly tilled cannot produce its best.

A screen of home manufacture may be made by joining two clothes-horses together forming two four panels, over one side stretch cretonne of a quiet pattern and cut in tiny bits, set on ice until thoroughly chilled. Serve this with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Household Notes.

MOONSHINE.—Beat the whites of six eggs to a very stiff froth, add gradually six tablespoonsful of powdered sugar, beating it a long time, and then beat in about a heaping teaspoon of preserved peaches cut in tiny bits, set on ice until thoroughly chilled. Serve this with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

POURBAKE SAVORY.—Chop and fry brown in a tablespoonful of butter one carrot, one onion and one head of celery in small bits; put them over the fire with two slices of fat bacon cut in half-moon dice, a sprig of every sweet herb available except sage, a blade of mint, and ten peppercorns, a sprig of parsley, a bay leaf, two glasses of wine, or one of vinegar, and reduce the liquid one half by rapid boiling, then add a teaspoonful of gray, brown or boiling water; heat and use.

DELICIOUS DESSERT.—Peel eight oranges, cut them in thin slices, lay them in a baking dish and cover them with one cup and a half of powdered sugar. Place a pint of milk in a saucepan on the stove and, when cold, add a tablespoonful of corn starch, cut into small pieces, and the yolks of three eggs. Stir constantly, and when thick, pour over the oranges. Beat the whites of the three eggs to a stiff froth, sweeten and pour over the custard. Brown in a quick oven. Serve cold.

CHEESE FRITTERS.—Put about a pint of water into a saucepan with a piece of butter the size of an egg, the least bit of cayenne and plenty of black pepper. When the water boils throw gradually into it sufficient flour to form a thick paste; then take it off the fire and work it into it about a quarter of a pound of ground Parmesan cheese, and then the yolks of three or four eggs and the whites of two beaten to a froth. Let the paste rest for a couple of hours, and proceed to fry by dropping pieces of it the size of a walnut into plenty of hot lard. Served sprinkled with very fine salt.

SALAD DRESSING.—Beat one raw egg in an earthen cake-dish until it is smooth; then add olive oil, a very little at a time, carefully stirring it into the egg with your right hand, as you drop it in with your left.

When the egg and oil make a thick mixture, pour a little vinegar over it, then stir in more oil, and so on in this way until you have the desired quantity of dressing; season with lemon juice, pepper, mustard, pickles or onions chopped very fine, or with celery, watercress, parsley, olives, or with any flavor you choose. Hard-boiled eggs may be added also.

CONSUMPTION CURED.—An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.
