STRAWBERRY CROP WORTH $20,000,000

Annual Fruit Production Of Country Amounts To $250,000,000

This year's strawberry crop will be worth $20,000,000 to the growers, exceeding all previous records. It is estimated in a summary of the crop's condition published by the educational department of the National City Bank, of New York. The crop will contain some 300,000,000 quarts.

The value of the 1915 crop was estimated at $18,000,000. Maryland held the lead as producing State in that year; but since then Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana have passed that State.

The total annual fruit production of the country amounts to about $250,000,000 annually, the summary says.

Final Notice To Our Subscribers

The greatly increased cost of paper and everything used in the production of a newspaper has forced us to take some action whereby we may make quicker and closer collections. Therefore, after June 1st we will be compelled to discontinue those who keep in arrears. The postal regulations do not permit us to carry those who are more than a year in arrears—look at the date on your paper.

While we know that our subscribers have the best intentions and expect to "pay sometime," we cannot afford, with the present price of printing material, paper, etc., to allow a paper to be mailed after the subscription has become a year in arrears.

We trust that our subscribers will co-operate with us in this matter and send in their remittances promptly so that we may be saved the unpleasant duty of taking their names from our mailing list.

U. S. Todd Off For Santo Domingo

Ulysses S. Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcia L. Todd, of Dames Quarter, this county, is with the expeditionary force of United States Marines now headed for Santo Domingo on board the U. S. S. Salem, for the protection of the American Legation there during the current revolt against President Jimenes.

When insurrection breaks out anywhere to the south of Key West or north of Venezuela, the U. S. Marines are always first on the spot. Preparedness is the motto of the Marine—"soldier and sailor, too"—always prepared for service in any climate—always prepared to move at a moment's notice without previous warning, and always prepared to efficiently hold the "situation well in hand."

Young Todd enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at its Baltimore recruiting station on November 16, 1916.

Leg Fractured By Auto Accident

Edward Bozman, eleven years old, of Westover, was struck by an automobile on the State road near Mr. S. S. Barnes' home last Sunday afternoon and had his right leg fractured below the knee. The boy had been picking strawberries for Mr. Barnes and was living temporarily at the latter's home. On Sunday he and Mr. Barnes' sons started in an automobile to look up the cows. When near a tenant house south of the Barnes home, the car was stopped and Bozman jumped out and was struck by another machine, the occupants of which returned expressing regret for the injury. The owner of the car is not known but the number of it was taken. The injured boy was brought to Princess Anne and the fracture was reduced by Doctors Lankford.

Atwood Jenkins Killed By Lightning

Atwood Jenkins, who last September was the murderer of Mr. and Mrs. Levin Robinson and Alonzo Redden, was instantly killed on his father's farm, near Snow Hill, by lightning last Tuesday afternoon.

Young Jenkins had gone to the chicken yard and was carrying an umbrella. A nearby tree was struck by lightning and a bolt passed through the umbrella carried by Jenkins, tearing it into tiny bits. Passengers on the Pocomoke-Snow Hill bus, which was passing the Jenkins farm, saw the descending bolt, which they described as a wonderful electrical discharge which seemed to envelope the farmhouse and shade trees. The force of the explosion was so great as to jar the passing vehicle, frightening the passengers. The storm was most severe in the southern part of the county and has done considerable damage to the hay crop.

Rapid Transit Co's Good Showing

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Peninsula Rapid Transit Company will be held at the office of the company on South Division street, Salisbury, on Monday, June 12th, at 10 a. m. The notice of this meeting sent to the stockholders was accompanied by a statement showing the financial condition of the company. This statement, covered the period from August 1st, 1915, to May 20th, 1916, (under the present management) shows receipts of $24,714.80 and expenditures of $19,861.10, the net revenue for the period being $4,853.20. This amount, we think is a good showing, considering all things. The company still have outstanding liabilities of $10,745.00, which will soon be materially reduced.

Talk Not Cheap For T. R.

Last Thursday afternoon a private war was strung from Chicago to Colonel Roosevelt's home at Sagamore Hill, and its use for 10 days will cost Mr. Roosevelt—or somebody else—the zippy little sum of $9000. Should the Progressive and Republican conventions in Chicago extend more than 10 days, the operation of the wire will be continued until all, including the shouting, is over.

The figure disposes of the rumor that talk is cheap, for the charge amounts to $900 a day, $37.50 an hour for 24 hours, 62½ cents a minute.

May Weather Report

The following is the weather report for the month of May, as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, co-operative observer, of Princess Anne:

Hail on the 20th; thunder-storms on the 4th, 20th, 25th, 28th, 29th and 30th; light fog on the 5th; high wind on the 9th. The prevailing wind was southwest.

THE PRIZE-WINNING ESSAY, "BECKFORD"

Historical Research Of Miss Fitzgerald Secured For Her The Highest Honor At The Washington High School Commencement

One of the features of the commencement exercises of the Washington High School, Princess Anne, is a competition for the "Old Home Prize" offered the pupil who writes the best essay on local history. The winner this year was Miss Anna L. H. Fitzgerald, who took for her subject "Beckford," a famous old estate on which most of Princess Anne is now located and a part of which and the old colonial house is now owned by Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford. Miss Fitzgerald's paper follows:

There is an ever increasing interest being taken in things which are old. Their romantic associations lend a charm which never fails to fascinate and to please. It is this propensity along with the pride which is felt in our Eastern Shore—more fantastically called "The Land of Evergreens"—that prompts us to investigate the history of many colonial estates located in this section of the state. This Eastern Shore has produced some very famous and illustrious men, who have played a prominent part in both the affairs of state and nation and for this reason, if no other, the history of the broad estates upon which they resided has an absorbing interest. To one who knows this peninsula, its beauty, its wealth, its agricultural advantages and the moral sanity of its inhabitants, to repeat it would be a story twice told and to one not so familiar, with its picturesque, its natural advantages, and the great intelligence and progressiveness of its people, it would be a story of Utopia.

Such an ideal spot is this "Land of Evergreens" that a visitor ever retains the impression of its beauty. To know the many beautiful homes is to be interested in them, as well you may, for they are rich in intensely interesting facts of great historic value. Among the oldest and most beautiful of these homes is that of "Beckford," now owned by Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford and situated at the western terminus of Washington avenue, and adjacent to the corporate limits of Princess Anne. The original tract of land known as "Beckford" contained five hundred acres and was first surveyed in 1679 for Colonel William Stevens. Roughly described, the estate covered the following area: Beginning at a point on the east bank of the Manokin River and on the north side of a small branch called "Indian King's Branch," near the steamboat wharf, thence running up the entire eastward side of the Manokin River for the entire course of the river to a bridge known as "Bombybrook Bridge" and referred to in the original deeds of "Beckford" as "The Wading Place," thence from "Bombybrook Bridge" up the southernmost branch of the Manokin to the right of way of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, thence with the right of way of the railroad to the county road leading by Washington High School, thence with the county road to the land where James M. Bailey formerly resided, thence from the Bailey land to the new county road leading by the mill property of the "Cohn and Bock Company" and thence in a straight line to the place of beginning on the Manokin River.

Colonel Stevens was judge of the county court of Somerset from 1666 to 1687 and was also a member of the provincial court and one of the deputy lieutenants of the province of Maryland. At his death in 1692 he was buried on the farm now owned by Mr. Harry Cluff near Rehoboth, and in recognition of his services to the colony and his position of commanding prominence among the early settlers of Maryland, the Legislature of 1912 passed an act authorizing the County Commissioners of Somerset county to appropriate a sum of money to erect a fitting monument over his tomb.

Although "Beckford" was surveyed for Colonel William Stevens, he never received the patent for the same but assigned the certificate of survey to Edmund Howard, to whom the patent was granted in November, 1681. In 1697 the property was transferred from Edmund Howard to Peter Dent, who was at that time clerk of court and afterward attorney general of the province of Maryland. Dent built the first residence upon it, the structure was of brick and was situated about one-eighth of a mile southwest of the present dwelling. At his death in 1710 Dent bequeathed the property to his wife, Jean Pittman Dent, and his daughter, Rebecca Dent. Rebecca married an Anderson and later their son, John Anderson, inherited the estate. In 1732 an act of the provincial assembly was passed to lay out a town near the head of the Manokin River and on the south side thereof, and to call the town Princess Anne. This act provided that twenty-five acres of land, within the lines of the estate called "Beckford," should be condemned and laid off into thirty lots.

The town was laid off in accordance with the provisions of this law and for many years the thirty original town lots were referred to in all deeds of conveyance by their respective numbers. Princess Anne, as laid off under the provision of this law and known as the old portion of the town, is bounded as follows: On the north by the Manokin River, on the east by Beechwood street, on the south by Washington avenue, and on the west by Green street.

The residue of the "Beckford" estate was conveyed in 1772 to Henry Jackson, a wealthy merchant and planter, and it was he who built the spacious brick mansion now standing.

George Wilson Jackson became the next owner of the plantation by devise in 1794 and in 1802 and 1803 sold to Littleton D. Tenckle the mansion property consisting of about twenty acres. This mansion was made famous by George Alfred Townsend in a book entitled "The Entailed Hat."

George Wilson Jackson conveyed the residue of the estate in 1803 to John Dennis who was a member of Congress during the contest between Aaron Burr and Thomas Jefferson. He resided upon "Beckford" until his death in 1806 when he devised it to his son, Robert Jackson Dennis. Robert Jackson Dennis in 1831, conveyed it to his brother John Dennis. John Dennis died in 1850 but the family remained upon the plantation until 1886, when it was sold under a decree of the court and at that time Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford, a prominent attorney of Princess Anne and formerly Clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, purchased that part of the estate containing more than thirty acres, upon which stands the ancient mansion house.

The residue of the estate, sold under the decree of the court in 1886, was divided into lots and comprised all the west side of Main street, south of Williams street, and all of Beckford avenue south of Washington avenue.

After the town was first laid out into thirty lots in 1732 and before the sale of the estate under decree of the court in 1886, the other sections of Princess Anne, including all the lots on the east side of Beechwood street, the lots on the east side of Main street south of Washington avenue, and the lots on the west side of Main street from Washington avenue to Williams street were sold off of the "Beckford" estate at different times, and thus it will be seen that all the land embraced within the corporate limits of Princess Anne south of the Manokin River, was carved out of "Beckford" and the fact that practically all of the town is located within the heart of this old plantation is undoubtedly the most interesting feature of an historical study of this famous estate.

We have briefly related the principal facts in the history of "Beckford" from the time of the survey in 1679 until today. We have noted the many changes that the estate has undergone in the hands of successive owners. We have seen that out of the very heart of the plantation, as it were, our picturesque and much beloved town has grown up, but we can not close this study without a description of the beautiful and commodious manor house that stands today within the ancient curtilage of "Beckford." This dwelling stands upon the crest of the slope rising from the eastern bank of the Manokin River and faces the town of Princess Anne. It is a two-story brick structure of colonial design and was erected in 1776. It is surrounded by a most beautiful lawn, covering an area of five acres and is approached by a long, well-shaded lane which leads from Beckford avenue to the river bank. An immense grove of shade and nut trees, some of which are more than a century old, cover the lawn. One of these huge trees shades a space of ground one hundred and twenty feet in diameter, while many of them not quite so large offer an inviting retreat on a hot summer's evening.

The spacious rooms of this mansion are well-lighted by numerous large and deep-seated windows. The massive doors with their quaint locks and bars bespeak the customs and manners of an age long since passed.

"Beckford" abounds in the rich and fascinating traditions that have made plantation life in the south land so universally interesting. Upon this estate the most charming and best customs of the south land have been preserved. The history of this famous plantation is intimately entwined with the history of town and county that we love so well and it is our fondest hope and certainly our firm assurance that this historic old manor house with its picturesque lawn may be preserved for many years to come as a symbol to future generations of all that is best and most elevating in the social and civic life of Somerset county.

GREAT NAVAL BATTLE IN NORTH SEA

5000 Lives Lost By British—3000 By Germans In Naval Engagement

The latest reports from the British fleet, from neutral vessels which witnessed parts of the great naval battle in the North Sea and from survivors, cause the British public to believe that the engagement was not so near a defeat as at first appeared, and in no wise a disaster. The British losses, with all the craft engaged accounted for, were three battle cruisers, three cruisers and eight destroyers, a total of 14 ships.

The German losses are believed to have been about the same number of ships, although a much less aggregate of tonnage.

British naval experts maintain that Great Britain continues to hold the supremacy of the sea by a safe margin, and that her enormous navy could better afford the losses it suffered than could the smaller German establishment. Great Britain mourns for more than 5000 of her best seamen and the whole nation is oppressed with sadness, which is reflected in the faces of all the people of London. From the number and character of the German ships lost, it is believed that the loss of German lives cannot be less than 2500 to 3000.

Col. John S. Mosby Dead

Col. John S. Mosby, the noted Confederate guerrilla and commander of Mosby's Rangers in the Civil War, who after that conflict became a warm personal and political friend of President Grant and served under Grant as American Consul at Hong Kong, China, died last Tuesday morning at Garfield Hospital, Washington, D. C., after a month's illness of a complication of diseases. He was 81 years old.

Colonel Mosby's body, borne by six survivors of his famous Rangers, was taken Thursday morning to Warrenton, Va., and there buried amidst the scenes where he won fame as a soldier. One of the pallbearers was Dr. James G. Whitehair, of Baltimore, a member of Colonel Mosby's command. Another was Lieut. John S. Russell, of Berryville, Va., Mosby's right-hand man in the Civil War.

The old Confederate soldier, the last of the dashing figures of the war between the States, is survived by three daughters, one son and two sisters. His daughters are Mrs. Stuart Mosby Coleman, of Washington, with whom Colonel Mosby spent his declining years, and Misses Ada and Pauline Mosby, of Baltimore, the son being Beverly S. Mosby, of Spokane, Wash. Miss Blakeley Mosby and Mrs. Charles Russell, of Washington are sisters. All these, with the exception of the son, were at the bedside when Mosby died. The veteran retained consciousness until an hour before death, and during his final illness he took a keen interest in national and local questions.

Big Turnout Of Farmers

Upward of 3,500 farmers and others identified with the various agricultural interests of the State attended the Farmers' Day exercises held last Tuesday under the auspices of the Maryland Agricultural College and Experiment Station. The grounds about the college buildings had been transformed into an auditorium, with an improvised stand for the speakers, and it was estimated that the crowd which attended the exercises Tuesday was the largest that has ever participated in a similar event. No less than 500 automobiles were parked on the campus. The visitors came from practically every county in the State.

The principal feature of the day was the address of Robert Crain, chairman of the committee appointed at the last Farmers' Day exercises to secure from the last Legislature the assistance greatly needed by the college. The other speakers were Dr. H. J. Patterson, president of the college, and Carl R. Gray, president of the Western Maryland Railway.

Paul Armstrong's House Burned

Belmont, the former home of the late Paul Armstrong, the playwright, two miles from Annapolis, was destroyed on Sunday, the 28th ult., by fire, caused when lightning struck it during a severe electrical storm. The damage was estimated at $8,000.

The house, which was of frame and brick, was only partially furnished. It was owned by Mrs. Rella Abell Armstrong, widow of the playwright, who recently had advertised it for sale. When the fire was discovered the Annapolis Fire Department was asked for aid and two chemical engines were sent to the scene.

Mrs. T. H. Heath and daughter, Miss Etta, returned home Friday after a week's absence.

FLAG DAY PROCLAMATION

President Wilson's Patriotic Address To The People

President Wilson last Tuesday asked that special significance be given the observance of Flag Day, June 14th. His proclamation follows:

My fellow-countrymen: Many circumstances have recently conspired to turn our thoughts to a critical examination of the condition of our national life, of the influences which have seemed to threaten to divide us in interest and sympathy, of forces within and forces without that seemed likely to draw us away from the happy traditions of united purpose and action, of which we have been so proud. It has, therefore, seemed to me fitting that I should call your attention to the approach of the anniversary of the day upon which the flag of the United States was adopted by the Congress as the emblem of the Union, and to suggest to you that it can this year and in the years to come be given special significance as a day of renewal and reminder, a day upon which we should direct our minds with a special desire of renewal to thought of ideals and principles of which we have sought to make our great government the embodiment.

"I therefore suggest and request that throughout the nation, and if possible, in every community, the fourteenth day of June be observed as Flag Day with special patriotic exercises, at which means shall be taken to give significant expression to our thoughtful love of America, our comprehension of the great mission of liberty and justice to which we have devoted ourselves as a people, our pride in the history and our enthusiasm for the political program of the nation, our determination to make it greater and purer with each generation, and our resolution to demonstrate to all the world its vital union in sentiment and purpose, accepting only those as true compatriots who feel as we do the compulsion of this supreme allegiance. Let us on that day re-dedicate ourselves to the cause of the nation, 'one and inseparable,' from which every thought that is not worthy of our fathers' first vows of independence, liberty and right shall be excluded, and in which we shall stand with united hearts for an America which no man can corrupt, no influence can draw away from its ideals, no force divide against itself, a nation signally distinguished among all the nations of mankind for its clear, individual conception, alike, and its duties and privileges, its obligations and lights."

Summer School At Md. Ag. College

Final arrangements were made at the Maryland Agricultural College last Tuesday for the third annual session of the Summer School for Teachers, which will open June 21 and continue six weeks. It is anticipated that the total enrollment will exceed that of 1915, which was 143.

On account of a widespread demand for better work in penmanship in the schools, Miss Goldye Bragg, supervisor of penmanship in the St. Paul (Minn.) schools, has been engaged to conduct the work in the Palmer system of penmanship. Among the other new teachers that have been engaged for the summer work are Dr. Edward Webb, principal of Frostburg Normal School; Miss Annie M. Grace, supervisor in Baltimore county; Miss E. V. Krieg, supervisor in Frederick county; Miss Emma S. Jacobs, supervisor of domestic science, Washington; Miss Mary G. Ingersoll, professor of costume economics, Carnegie Technical Schools, Pittsburgh; Dr. Martha Lyon, Washington; C. J. Pearson, University of California; Miss Lulu Burkett, supervisor of playgrounds, Washington, and specialists from the United States Departments of Education and Agriculture.

Waite Sentenced To Die In Chair

Dr. Arthur Warren Waite was last Thursday sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing some time during the week beginning July 10th.

Before the confessed murderer of John E. Peck, the Grand Rapids millionaire, was sentenced he thanked the court for the manner in which his trial was handled.

"I am willing to give my life in partial payment for the wrongs I have done others," Waite said in a speech to the court. "I only regret that I have nothing more than a life to give them. My soul will go on and on trying to make reparation for the wrongs I have done."

We are in receipt of St. John's Collegian, published weekly by the students of St. John's College, Annapolis, Md. Mr. H. L. D. Stanford, of the class of 1917.

THE PARTS THEY PLAYED

Story of an American in the War in Belgium

By ALAN HINSDALE

Albert Clarke, an American boy, when the great European war broke out, having a desire to take part in it, went to Canada, where he enlisted in a regiment of infantry and in due time was sent to Belgium. In a fight he was taken prisoner, and while being marched to the rear with a number of his comrades, his guard being inattentive, he managed to slip away. Just as he was passing out of sight of his captors he was seen, and they gave chase.

Clarke ran into a yard in the center of which stood a house. The first thing in his path that afforded a hiding place was a well. It struck him that no one would think of looking for a man in the bottom of a well. The arrangement for drawing water was a long pole, the bucket being at one end and a huge stone at the other. This enabled him to descend with less rapidity than if not partly counterbalanced by the stone, though he went down much faster than he would have chosen.

The other end of the balance pole being up in the air was a dead give away, so he emptied the bucket, let go his hold and it went up as fast as it had come down.

Clarke's pursuers, fortunately for him, did not reach sight of the well house till a few moments after the bucket had gone up. As he had hoped, they did not stop to look into the well, but continued on their way. But it soon occurred to Bert that if he had not jumped from the frying pan into the fire he had at least jumped from a German prison into cold water. Although the season was in the early summer the bath was by no means tepid.

All he could do was to get one foot on a stone on one side of the well and the other foot on the other side, stand there above the surface and wait for some one to come to the well for water. His life depended upon some one coming within a reasonable time, for if the arrival were put off too long he would either starve or be chilled to death. Looking up, he examined the circle of stone forming the well and saw that the surface was too smooth for him to climb. It was only at the lower part that the stones afforded a foothold.

Bert had been captured in the morning and escaped about noon. He had stood in his trying position for six hours when he was gladdened by the sound of a bucket striking the ground. In another moment the well bucket was lowered and filled. Bert would have climbed the rod connecting it with the balance pole, but his strength had gone out of him. So when the bucket came to the surface of the water he emptied it and held on to it for an ascent, doing what he could to lighten it by clutching here and there the circling wall.

When he reached the well house there was a shriek, and down he went again to the bottom. A girl, instead of drawing up a bucket of water, had drawn up a man, and the discovery was a great shock to her. She ran away from the well house, but presently, curiosity getting the better of her fright, she turned and looked back. There was the well, the bucket hanging over it, and silence.

It occurred to her that the man had returned to the bottom, and a man at the bottom of a well was not necessarily an object of terror. Then she realized the man's position. Lastly, she went back to the well house and, without daring to look over, called out: "Who's there?"

Bert knew a little French and replied:

"Anglais soldat" (English soldier).

This helped matters amazingly. The girl was a Belgian and knew that the English were fighting for her country. Bert asked her in a mixture of French and English to lower the bucket and help him out. She did not understand him, but common sense suggested that this be done and done quickly. Down went the bucket again. Bert took hold of it and with difficulty was raised to the surface. Once there he took the precaution to catch hold of a support so that he would not go down a third time.

He was a pitiable spectacle, drenched and chilled as he was; indeed, just the object to excite the sympathy of a woman. She helped him out of the well house, and after she had assured him by French, English and pantomime that there were no German soldiers very near, he started with her to the house as fast as he was able, lest some enemy might see him, for there was the boom of cannon all about him.

At the house was a woman—the girl's mother—and several children. The men of the household were all fighting for Belgium. After a few words of explanation the girl went to a cupboard and brought out a bottle. It was only wine, but Bert made up for its want of strength by drinking it all. Then the girl brought out some bread and cheese—there was no meat in Belgium—and the soldier consumed it ravenously.

later other clothes that belonged to the men of the family were provided for him.

Bert did not feel very secure, for he was within the German lines and Germans were liable to come to the house at any moment. He was taken to the garret, where a mattress was placed on the floor behind a pile of discarded furniture, and on this bed he spent the night. In the morning he was at a loss to know whether to put on his khaki uniform or the citizen's clothes that had been provided for him. If he wore his uniform he would be recognized for a soldier; if he wore the citizen's clothes, though he might the better escape attention, if known to be an enemy he would be shot for a spy. He concluded to take the latter risk, and if confronted by enemies undertake to pass himself off for a member of the family that harbored him.

Several days passed without any Germans entering the house or Bert's seeing any chance whatever to go back to the British lines. During those few days he learned more French than he had ever learned before, though he had studied it in school. The girl who had rescued him—Jeanne was her name—he found very attractive. She resembled a Dutch girl, having light hair and complexion, with a rose in each cheek.

One day some German soldiers, stragglers, came to the house and demanded something to eat. But Jeanne saw them coming, and Bert escaped to the garret.

He finally got into trouble through politeness. Water was needed, and since Jeanne was not on hand to get it Bert insisted on going to the well for it. While drawing the water several German officers entered the grounds. It was too late to take to flight, and Bert decided to stand his ground. The officers approached him, and one of them asked for a drink of water. Bert accommodated him, trying the while to fix his own mind on something else than the frightful danger he was running, in order that he might preserve his equanimity.

One of the Germans spoke French and asked him what so lusty a fellow was doing at home when there was war in the land. Bert replied that he was the only man on the premises and had just married a young wife, who would not let him go. He gave this reason knowing that all the world sympathizes with a young married couple.

"Perhaps something of the wedding feast is left," said the officer, "and we may be favored with a bite."

"There can be no wedding feasts in this country now," replied Bert, "but such as we have we will give you."

He led the way to the house. Jeanne had reappeared, and she and her mother, seeing what had happened, pulled themselves together for any part they might be expected to play.

"Ach," said one officer to another in German on seeing Jeanne, "one can't blame the fellow for staying at home with such a pretty bride as that."

The German and French languages are both spoken in Belgium, and Jeanne understood perfectly what he said, and since he looked from Bert to her she knew that he referred to them. She blushed, which under the circumstances was the most natural thing for her to do. Besides, she inferred that she was to play the part of Bert's bride. She brought out the best there was in the larder—it was not much—and there was plenty of wine in the cellar.

The officers had evidently been on short rations, for they ate all that was set before them and drank one bottle of wine after another till they were quite mellow. Then Jeanne said to them:

"Herr officers, I have a request to make of you."

"What is that, pretty one?"

"I was obliged to be married without a trousseau. That is a terrible thing for a bride. Will you give me a pass to go to Paris to buy one?"

"Certainly you shall have a pass."

"One thing more I have to ask—that my husband be permitted to go with me."

"Ach! That is a different matter."

"Do you think a bride just married would consent to leave her husband? If he cannot go with me I will not go at all."

The officers discussed the matter between them, Jeanne persisting in her request till finally one of the officers, who seemed to have the highest rank and had drunk the most wine declared that so pretty a bride who had entertained them so well should have any boon she asked, and, calling for pen and paper, he wrote a pass for the two to go through the lines. Then, demanding a kiss of the bride, which was granted, he led the rest away.

Bert and Jeanne were left alone together. Bert stood looking at her with an expression of gratitude mingled with admiration. She had been playing the part of his wife and by so doing had prevented his being shot for a spy.

"My life is yours," said Bert. "Do with it as you will."

She dropped her eyes to the ground. Bert took her hand in his, and the two stood mute, she with averted face. Presently he said:

"I am a soldier, and if I succeed in reaching the British lines I must serve out my term of enlistment. When that ends, if I still live and I can get back here, I will come to you. My home is in that far country America, which you have heard about, and it has been so protected by oceans that there has been little or no war there. If I return there and you will go with me I will take you. In that case we will make a reality of what has been a pretense."

The response to this was more effective than if it had been spoken in

The Lure of Far Lands.

With a reasonable capital, youth, strength, character and a knowledge of the language fortunes can be made relatively easier on the frontiers of civilization than at home. There are, however, many privations to be borne. You are away from friends. Malls at best come once a week. News is scarce. Daily papers exist only in metropolitan towns, and the data they contain are meager. In many localities fresh vegetables cannot be had. Drinking water is positively dangerous. Fleas, bugs, mosquitoes and a host of winged, stinging, biting insects are present to annoy during day and night. Most hotels are bad and the food strange, unpalatable and poorly cooked.

For women but few real opportunities exist. I know of but two women lawyers in Latin America, and there are perhaps the same number of doctors and dentists. Relatively small proportions of the fair sex follow commercial callings. In the far east and Africa caste, the system of "purdah" and the general belief that woman is inferior to man have retarded her progress.—W. E. Aughtinbaugh in Leslie's.

Keep in the Sunshine.

There are only two kinds of people in the world—the people who live in the shadow and gloom and those who live on the sunny side of the street. These shadowed ones are sometimes called pessimists, sometimes people of melancholy temperament; sometimes they are called disagreeable people. But, wherever they go, their characteristic is this—their shadows always travel on before them. These people never bear their own burden, but expose all their wounds to others. They are all so busy looking down for pitfalls and sharp stones and thorns on which to step that they do not even know that there are any stars in the sky. These folks live on the wrong side of the street. And yet it is only twenty feet across to the other sidewalk, where sunshine always lies.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Divorces in Ancient Rome.

In the earlier period of the Roman republic divorces were quite unknown and were rare right up to the time of the Sullan wars. In the old days the husband and wife who wished to separate appeared for the last time before the common hearth, a priest and priestess being present. As on the day of marriage, a cake of wheaten flour was presented to the husband and wife, but instead of sharing it between them they rejected it. Two instead of prayers they pronounced formulas of a strange, severe, spiritual character, by which the wife renounced the worship and gods of the husband. From that moment the religious bond was broken, and, the community of worship having ceased to exist, the marriage without further ado was forever dissolved.—Exchange.

The Double Ball.

Shuangh chi'er, although the name may sound like a disease, is not a form of writer's cramp. On the contrary, "their" purpose is to prevent it. The words mean "the double balls," and shuangh chi'er are two iron balls an inch or so in diameter, which nestle in the right hand of every Chinese man of letters for hours each day, one being revolved about the other until they are worn bright. They are just large enough to make a handful, and the action of shifting one about the other brings the fingers into play and lends them that suppleness and digital dexterity which are necessary in the manipulation of the Chinese lettering pen or fine pointed brush. Of what a simplicity!

She'd Notice It.

"Look here," said the husband. "You mustn't complain that way. Remember, at least, that I have to foot all the bills."

"Yes, you foot them," retorted the wife. "You kick at every single one of them!"—Street Stories.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says: "No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

Scientific Farming

GEESSE ON THE FARM.

Most Economical of All the Barnyard Fowls.

A few geese should be kept on every Kansas farm. They are grazers and for that reason are the most economically raised of all barnyard fowls, according to N. L. Harris, superintendent of poultry at the Kansas State Agricultural college. A flock of geese will live during the summer on blue grass or clover pasture and will go through the winter on rye or wheat pasture except in snowy weather, when a small amount of ground grain should be furnished.

"I would not advise going into the goose business on a large scale in Kansas, because there is no close market, but for home consumption and feathers there should be a few geese on every farm," says Mr. Harris. "They are not at all profitable for eggs, because a goose will lay only thirty or forty eggs a season."

The hen goose makes a poor mother, points out Mr. Harris. It is better to set the eggs under chicken hens. Until FEEDING GOESLING.

Two weeks old, the goslings are somewhat delicate, but subsequently they are extremely hardy. They have to be kept out of heavy dews and rain until they are nearly twelve weeks old, for during this period "a wet goose is a dead goose."

Mr. Harris advises against feeding whole grain. Under no circumstances, he says, should it be fed unless soaked for at least twenty-four hours. The natural food for geese consists of grass, tender roots and worms.

It is not at all profitable to allow geese to run with other poultry, on account of their quarrelsome disposition. They are easily fenced. A twenty-four inch woven wire is sufficient to keep them in.

"Perhaps the Toulouse and Emden should be the most extensively raised, as they are the so called dry land varieties and require only sufficient water for drinking purposes, which makes them entirely suitable to Kansas conditions," says Mr. Harris.

TIMOTHY'S EFFECT ON LAND.

Old Notion That It Actually Improved the Soil Not Substantiated.

It is an old notion that land seeded to timothy, even though the crop be removed, is being rested and improved. This, however, is not true in any other sense than that a horse that has been driven rapidly may be considered as being rested by being driven more slowly—that is to say, timothy removes the plant food from the soil more slowly than does corn or wheat because a smaller amount of plant food is required to make the crop. While the land is in timothy the soil surface is washed out less rapidly because the surface is bound together throughout the whole year by the roots of the timothy plants. The humus is also burned out less rapidly since there is no cultivation.

The notion that timothy actually improves land doubtless grew out of the fact that when timothy sod was plowed under and the land was planted to some such crop as corn a larger crop was produced than the same land would have borne had it been in corn continuously. This is because the plant has removed plant food from the soil less rapidly than this food has become available in the soil by chemical processes. Investigations also show that a crop of timothy will leave in the soil in the form of roots and stubble over seven pounds of nitrogen to the acre against about two and five-tenths pounds per acre for wheat. All this becomes available for succeeding crops when the meadow is plowed up.

Angoras Need Pasture.
Angora goats are economical products under anything like ordinary farm conditions. They are well adapted to grazing and can be maintained on rather thin pasture. Yet this is not desirable for best results. The goats should have ample pasture, grain and hay as supplements. Mohair has been bringing good prices recently and from goat meat is highly desirable as a

DESTROYING INSECTS.

Missouri College of Agriculture Issues Information For Getting Rid of Pests.

[T. J. Talbert, Missouri station.]
Corn root worms yield best to crop rotation, systematic clean culture and fall plowing.

Garden webworms eat alfalfa, live and spin webs over the plant. If your field is badly infested cut the alfalfa and disk the ground.

Wireworms injure corn and potatoes most, but feed freely on wheat and oats. They thrive best in sod ground and may be controlled by crop rotation, fall plowing and good cultivation. So may the grubworms.

Grasshoppers damage field and garden crops and fruit and shade trees. Poison bran mash sowed early in the morning kills them, and their eggs may be destroyed by cultivating pastures, meadows and waste lands late in the fall.

Corn root lice suck the juices from the roots of corn, grasses and weeds. They depend on colonies of small brown ants for protection and transportation and may be controlled by crop rotation, fall plowing and early spring cultivation to destroy weeds and grasses.

The army worm, which eats the leaves of field and garden crops, may be trapped in dusty ditches or killed with poison bran mash sowed broadcast late in the evening. Badly infested meadows should be cut at once to save as much of the hay as possible.

Heavenly fly grubs feed between the leaf sheath and the stalk at the crown and lower joints of the plant. Destroy the "flaxseeds" which produce next year's crop by disking and plowing stubble as soon after harvesting as possible. Keep down all volunteer wheat, sow late in the fall and get your neighbors to do the same.

The chinch bugs suck the juices of corn, wheat, sorghums and other plants of the grass family. They may be trapped in dusty ditches if they go from wheat to corn, or in rainy weather an oil or tar barrier may be necessary. If they get to the corn spray it with soap suds, emulsion or tobacco solutions. The clump forming grasses by roadsides and in waste land may be burned in late fall and early winter to kill chinch bugs which collect there for the winter.

The poison bran mash recommended by the Missouri College of Agriculture for the control of many insect pests is made of half a pound of powdered lead arsenate or half a pound of paris green mixed with ten pounds of wheat bran. Add two gallons of water into which the pulp of two oranges or two lemons has been mixed, together with a quart of molasses or sirup.

Corn Crops Pay.
A number of experiments made in different states show that a really good corn crop pays from $50 to $100 an acre instead of $15 to $20. In addition to this, expert corn growers often add to their profits by selling a high quality of seed to their neighbors and city dealers. It is evident the crop can be made worth much more than ordinary by skill and care.

Vat For Small Flock.
The illustration shows a good type of small dipping vat of about the right size for the average small farm flock. Its construction is simple and fairly cheap. The place for the vat is dug out in the ground and lined with either bricks or cement. The runways should be floored with pine boards, and the fencing may be of any suitable material. Where it is not desirable or possible to buy some one of the many good metal portable dipping vats for small flock use, a permanent tank like this will meet all needs.—Farm Progress.

Sheep For Weeds.
Sheep are the sworn enemies of weeds. They clear up waste vegetation and turn it into mutton. By eating down and trampling the weeds on the fields and along the fences they destroy many insects which harbor in the weeds. If the sheep merely pay for the extra grain given them it is profitable to keep them as scavengers and insecticides.

GET SOME BEES!

Have you bees?
Why waste a honey crop?
Why let your neighbors' bees get your crop?
Buy bees by the pound with a good Italian queen.
Get a few swarms of your own this spring or summer.
Catch runaway swarms and hive them in good hives.
Buy neglected stands of bees and take care of them and give them a chance. The bee is a faithful and deserving creature.
Furnish a neighbor beekeeper with a few good hives, with frames and comb foundation starters and pay him for hiving a few swarms in them for you.
Buy good strong colonies of bees in hives with straight combs. These should be secured from some one known to be reliable and experienced in beekeeping.
Buy a few nuclei from a reliable bee supply man. A nucleus is a part of a colony of bees secured by dividing up a strong colony into two, three or four parts, putting each part in a separate hive to build up into a full colony.—L. Hagaman, Missouri Station.

VISION OF THE CAPITAL.

Wonderful Foresight of Washington, Jefferson and L'Enfant.

Some time after the preliminary surveys for the future site of the city of Washington by L'Enfant, Washington and Jefferson arrived in Georgetown, staying for several days at the old Suters tavern. Each day, in company with Major L'Enfant, they rode over the country in order that every phase of the topography might be studied with relation to the great work they had in their mind. How splendid it is to think that we had a Washington and a Jefferson at such a moment! With their great vision, their knowledge of the past, their hope for the future, they looked out upon the wide Potomac and the woods and fields and saw the future capital rise like a mirage before their eyes.

That hill, which was later to be crowned by the dome of the capitol, seemed to L'Enfant to be like "a pedestal waiting for a monument." The gentle eminence from which the wide plain sloped down to the Potomac was marked for the site of the "president's palace," not only that it would be distant from the halls of congress nor yet that it might be approached by the "grand magnificent avenue" to be called Pennsylvania, but that, above all, it might forever look out over the broad expanse of the Potomac, with the far hills rising as though to wall out the scene from desecration.

It was one of the splendid moments in the life of the new republic. Unhindered by years of haphazard development, by centuries of unforeseeable mistakes, by the power of vested interests, by the rapacity of private citizens, a nation's capital was to be planned and built, such a capital as the world had never seen. It was to be as spacious as the dream of democracy. As dignified as the spirit of the men who had founded it. As beautiful as the vision of freedom out of which it had been born.—Charles H. Whitaker in New York Times.

FREAKS OF A GENIUS.

The Man Who Smashed Glasses In a London Tavern.

One day a bulky, tall, pale faced gentleman with bushy, restless eyebrows entered a London tavern. The waiter did not ask him for his order, but immediately brought him a plate of bread and cheese and a glass of ale. Having consumed his lunch, the guest sat upright in his chair for awhile, leaning his hands on a heavy walking cane and staring blankly at the opposite wall as if in a dream.

Of a sudden he gave a start. He seized the empty glass and dashed it to the floor with all his might, smashing it to atoms. He then reflected for a moment, laid a coin on the table, got up and left the inn without a word to any one.

After his departure another guest had the curiosity to ask the waiter whether the gentleman who had just gone out was not wrong in his head. Quoth the waiter:

"Oh, no, sir! That's nothink unusual with 'im, sir. 'E's broke maybe a 'undred glasses since 'e's been a-comin' to this 'ouse. 'E don't seem to know it when 'e does it. 'E just gits a-thinkin' and seems to git hangry at somethink 'e's thinkin' about. It's the great Lord Macaulay, sir."—St. James' Gazette.

What Love Is.
Love is a journey into a new country, and, like any other journey, its length depends entirely on what the country has to show. There should be woods with silent undergrowth, where comfort lives; bright rivers of vitality, clean cities, built on foundations of fine tradition and splendor with the towers of learning and religion; green fields, where simple thought and senses play like young cattle, and mountains so high that as one climbs one breathes quickening air not known to ordinary men—so high that by day the earth lies clear beneath like an open map, and by night the stars are just beyond arms' length above. In such a country a man can live forever.—Rebecca West in New Republic.

A Museum Sensation.
There was a sensational incident in the British museum on Feb. 7, 1845—the disastrous attack by a visitor on the priceless Barberini vase, belonging to the Duke of Portland. As there was no law then for the punishment of such an act of vandalism, a fine of £5 (the value of the glass case) could only be imposed. But it led to the passing of an act for the protection of works of art from similar danger.—London Standard.

Man and the Mouse.
Did you ever see a mouse in a revolving cylindrical trap trying to climb up what it thought was an endless wire ladder? Well, that is a picture of man in the universe, and, like the mouse, it is his own active desire that keeps the whirling cylinder forever in motion.—New York Sun.

Easily Explained.
"Jones has been made manager of his company. How do you account for his good luck?"
"I don't know, but I presume the fact that he's been working eighteen hours a day for several years has had something to do with it."—Toledo Blade.

Wrong Diagnosis.
"Get my kit quick," excitedly boomed the doctor. "Some fellow telephoned in a dying voice that he can't live without me."
"Just a moment," interposed his wife. "Call 'is for daughter, dear!"

Of Wicomico County.

PREPARING FOR THE COUNTY LEVY

Preparations are now being made for the county levy of Somerset county. The taxable basis of the county is $7,931,104. This basis, as compared with those of some of our neighboring counties, is small. To raise the necessary funds to pay the county's expenses will accordingly mean a considerable tax rate.

The two matters that absorb much of the county levy are the public roads and the public schools. The amount usually appropriated for roads is $20,000. To this must be added the sum of $10,000, which the Commissioners purpose to raise to help put the road funds upon a cash basis and the further sum of $5000 on account of the Shoemaker road west of Princess Anne, plus the sum of $243.10 unpaid portions of private subscriptions to said road, which should have been paid long since. The incidental expenses last year were over $15,000 and it is likely that the sum will approximate the same in 1916.

The superintendent of public schools has also filed with the commissioners a budget showing the amount necessary to support the school system next year. The amount is $32,689, a statement of which appears in another column. In recent years the public schools have cost much more than formerly and the legal requirements demand the expense.

It will thus be seen that the county rate can not be a small one. To this there can be no valid objection provided the county is getting suitable returns for the money expended. It is true that a high tax rate is far from an inviting suggestion. Good roads and good schools make a strong appeal to the people, but the tax payer has a perfect right to see that he gets a proper return for his tax account.

As to the incidental accounts, those who file bills against the county should do so with the idea of dealing with the county exactly as with individuals and just as honestly. It is presumable that this is generally done and yet criticisms have sometimes been to the contrary. Loading a county with debt helps to load the individual also and his own burdens are thus increased.

The County Commissioners are eager, we are sure, to do the correct thing. In their burden of stating a public account, they have our sympathy. The idea is to make the account absolutely correct and at the same time to have it bear as lightly as possible upon each tax payer.

Mosby

John Singleton Mosby lived for 51 years after the day he disbanded in Fauquier, and seemingly in the shadow of the halberd, his gallant band of partisan fighters, whose surrender as Confederate soldiers the War Secretary at Washington would not receive on the terms Grant gave at Appomattox. Vindictiveness and calumny as to Mosby's part in the Virginia theater of the War of the Rebellion long since gave way to calmness and truth. It is a coincidence that this noted Confederate chieftain should die on the Memorial Day of the Grand Army of the Republic. How few are left on either side of the warriors of the great American civil strife.

In the annals of that conflict, however, Mosby and his men will ever have a prominent place. The "guerrilla" leader often showed flashes of military genius, and the boldness of his operations in annoying the Federal armies was as striking as their success. In his own peculiar methods of warfare his superior was not developed in the war. The Mosby of the Revolution will always live in history as two of the heroic figures of the South whose splendid personalities give added luster to their fame as partisan leaders.—Baltimore News.

While it may not supply a definition of the term, the condition of the British high sea fleet after it struck, and was struck by, the German fleet off the Skagerrak would probably, furnish a very good illustration of what "chaotic humilation" looks like.

What Should We Do in Mexico?

The repetition of the Carranza Government's demand for the withdrawal of American troops from Mexico, with the hint of war in case of refusal which it contains, seems to create an issue that can be met only in one of two ways. We must either accept the Carranza view that we have no right to remain any longer on Mexican soil and must bring our troops back, or we must openly challenge the de facto Government and announce our intention of staying in Mexico as long as we please. The latter course almost necessarily would mean armed conflict, forcible intervention, and the great responsibility, military, economic and political, which that would involve. General Scott's conference with Obregon failed to find any satisfactory middle ground. We refused to fix a time for withdrawal, and Carranza appears now to have made immediate retirement a question of peace or hostility.

It is up to the Administration to make a very serious decision. If Mexico were in a normal condition, we would have no business there. It is only because her state is abnormal that we have disregarded ordinary rights of sovereignty. But our previous recognition of Carranza put us in the embarrassing position of questioning an authority which we ourselves have vouched for. It was, therefore, necessary for us to ask for permission to pursue Villa, and we entered into a reciprocal arrangement for the pursuit of bandits from either side of the border. We have not caught Villa and the object for which we entered Mexico has been practically abandoned. The question which arises is whether we are to play the part of armed peace-maker for the whole of Mexico, to overthrow the Carranza Government and set up our own jurisdiction, or whether we shall retire to our side of the boundary and employ our army and our militia in protecting our own territory and our own citizens. With the regular troops already there and with the militia available, we should be able to hold border raiders in check, and would be in a position to await developments and decide deliberately on our future policy.

The danger of withdrawal is in the United States and not in Mexico; it is political and not martial. The Administration will be tempted to keep our troops in Mexico, not to catch Mexican bandits, but to catch American votes. If they are withdrawn, the whole pack of Republican and Roosevelt critics will at once foam at the mouth and scream themselves hoarse in denunciation of such an abject and un-American policy. And yet, unless we absolutely abandon the theory on which we have hitherto proceeded, what else are we to do? Mexico is either entitled to respectful treatment as a self-governing country or she is not. If she is not, then we must go further than we have gone already; if she is, we must retire. We can take our choice, but we seem at last forced to make it.

We hope the Administration will be able to make this choice with an eye single to the welfare of this country and to the rights of Mexico, and without thought of political consequence.—Baltimore Sun.

One of the troubles which conscientious followers of Terrible Teddy and hard to meet is to determine from month to month, or even from day to day, what they must believe in, so that their political faith and that of their leader may coincide. The violation of Belgian neutrality, which was no concern of ours in the Rooseveltian philosophy a few months ago, has become a casus belli; and that is only one instance out of many. "My policies" and "vital issues" ought to be tagged with the familiar notice on excursion tickets, "good for this day and train only." By the way does anybody know whether "the recall of judicial decisions" is still one of "my policies," or a "vital issue," or whether it has become a derelict?—Philadelphia Record.

On July 1st, 1916, the Standard Barrel Law goes into effect. The Federal law prescribes a standard barrel just as 36 inches is fixed as the length of a yardstick. The size of the barrel for vegetables, fruits and other dry commodities, except cranberries, is fixed as follows: Length of stave, 28 1/2 inches; diameter of heads, 26 inches; circumference of bulge, 64 inches, outside measurement; thickness of staves not greater than four-tenths of an inch. Willful violation of this act will be deemed a misdemeanor and the violator will be liable to a fine not to exceed $500, or imprisonment not to exceed six months.

Harper To Censor "Movies"

From the Wisconsin News.

There is a little old saying that "all things come to him who waits," (or words to that effect) and it certainly has proven true in the case of our friend, Charles E. Harper, who on Monday landed a fat State job by appointment by Governor Harrington. Mr. Harper was named as a member of the Board of Censors of Moving Pictures at a salary of $2,400 per year. His associates are William F. Stone, the well-known Republican leader of Baltimore, formerly collector of the port of Baltimore, and Mrs. Thomas B. Harrison, of Baltimore.

At the very beginning of the Harrington Administration, Mr. Harper was appointed to a position on the State Immigration Bureau, but it was known when the appointment was made that office would be abolished June 1st, and its duties merged with another State department. Mr. Harper served but about a month. His friends at once got busy to land him a good job, and he had the backing of Congressman Price and other State leaders, the result being that Wicomico has landed one good job at the hands of the Governor.

This moving picture censor board was the creation of the late session of the Legislature; a measure fathered by the administration which went into office pledged to abolish useless offices. This department has three members each drawing $2,400, (or $7,200.00 in all) and a force of clerks, etc., which will no doubt run the cost up to $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 annually.

TRUSTEE'S SALE —OF VALUABLE— Farm Property

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, passed in a case in which Lizzie Parkin is plaintiff and Jacob Goble and others are defendants, the undersigned trustee therein named will sell at public auction at the Court House door, in Princess Anne, Maryland, on more or less, of which about 30 acres are high land and the balance marsh land, adjoining the land of Charles C. Goble and the land of William Wetter and wife, whereas the late Peter C. Goble resided at the time of his death, and also a parcel of detached woodland on the southeast corner of said road, containing 6 1/2 acres, more or less, adjoining the land of Charles C. Goble and used in connection with said farm.

TUESDAY, JUNE 20TH, 1916,

79 1/2 ACRES

This farm is improved by a dwelling house, barn and outbuildings. A plat of both parcels will be exhibited on the day of sale and can be seen in the meantime at the office of the trustee, in Princess Anne, Md.

This property will be sold subject to the dower interest of Marie C. Goble, widow of Peter C. Goble, therein, and also subject to the tenancy of Joseph Warwick for the year 1916; possession to be given on the 1st of January, 1917, and all crops to be harvested in the present year are reserved.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on the day of sale, and the balance in two equal installments of six and twelve months from the day of sale, to be secured by the bond of the purchaser with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. Title papers at the expense of the purchaser.

Tommyrot

We are now being treated to the usual spectacle of a murderer and profligate giving good advice to young men. In this country there are thousands of men whose honorable, upright and successful lives would seem to make them the logical advisers of youth, but there is no great desire on the part of some newspapers to seek these men out and publish their views broadcast. Is it necessary that a man place himself so far beyond the pale as Dr. Waite before his advice is worthy of being passed along?—Baltimore Star.

Forethought

People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Obtainable everywhere.

SHERIFF'S SALE —OF VALUABLE— REAL ESTATE

And Personal Property

By virtue of the writ of fieri facias issued out of the Circuit Court for Somerset county at the suit of Charles Henry Thomas and Marcella Thomas against Samuel D. Jones, to me directed, I have levied upon, seized and taken into execution all the right, title, interest and claim of the said Samuel D. Jones in and to all those lots, tracts and parcels of land in Tangier Election District, Somerset county, Maryland, where the said Samuel D. Jones formerly resided, consisting of

First—A lot of land containing ONE ACRE, more or less, purchased by Sylvester Collins from George W. Jones and bounded on the north by land of Henry Jones on the east by Samuel D. Jones on the south by Alex. Burrows and on the west by Wilber Jones, conveyed to said Samuel D. Jones by deed of date the 1st day of June, 1914, and recorded in Liber S. F. D., No. 44, folio 517.

Second—Being a lot of land on the main county road leading through said district, bounded on the east and south by said county road, adjoining the land of Adeline Price on the west, and the lands of James Temple, Sylvester Collins and George Gale on the north, containing ONE ACRE OF LAND, more or less, conveyed unto S. F. Dashiell by deed from J. E. Dashiell, tax collector, made the 6th day of June, 1911, and recorded in Liber S. F. D., No. 57, folio 496, etc., and by the said Dashiell conveyed unto Samuel D. Jones by deed made the 25th day of August, 1914, and recorded in Liber S. F. D., No. 62, folio 419, etc.

Also the following personal property which I have levied upon, belonging to the said Samuel D. Jones, viz: One organ, buffet, 3 lamps, 8 large pictures, lot of glass ware, 8 chairs, 2 stands, one set of vases, lot of books, table, for chess set of dishes, set of iron.

AND I HEREBY GIVE NOTICE THAT ON Wednesday, June 7, 1916,

at the hour of 11 o'clock a. m., on the said premises in Rock Creek, Tangier District, I will sell the above described real estate and personal property to the highest bidder for CASH, to satisfy the said writ, costs and charges.

Order Nisi

In the matter of the tax sale of Real Estate in Deal's Island Election District of Somerset county, assessed to William J. Harris, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset County, Harry T. Phoebus, purchaser, vs. Parte.

No. 3066 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity.

Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer of Somerset County, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, a sale made by him to Harry T. Phoebus, of all that lot of land in Deal's Island Election District, Somerset County, Maryland, as aforesaid containing one and one-half acres of land, more or less, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of Henry Cottman, Elizabeth Kemp and Sallie Tighman, conveyed unto William J. Harris by S. J. Windsor and others by deed recorded in Liber H. F. L., No. 5, folio 405, etc., and assessed to the said William J. Harris on the assessment books for said election district for the said year 1913, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto, and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered this 6th day of May, in the year 1916, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset County, before the 30th day of June, in the year 1916, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 30th day of June, 1916, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report shows the amount of the sales to be $7.50.

Enforcement of Roadside Tree Law Since the Roadside Tree Law went into effect a little more than two years ago the State Board of Forestry, Baltimore, Md., which is charged with its enforcement, has by means of Forest Wardens throughout the State have been engaged in the elimination of advertising signs, supervising the timing of trees and assisting in the planting of other trees along the highway.

This in itself is a big task when there are more than 16,400 miles of roads to cover and more than 2,000,000 trees to be given protection and care.

This law, among other things, makes it a misdemeanor punishable by fine to place any advertising within the right-of-way of a public highway, or on private property without the written consent of the owner. While most of the roads are comparatively free of unlawful signs, there are many violations of the law even after two years of publicity and the constant tearing down of signs by the Wardens and others.

It is the plan of the State Forester, beginning June 1st, 1916, to make a complete canvass of the State to see that all illegal advertisement are destroyed and to prosecute all violators of the law. The law has been generally posted and sufficient public notice has been given of its provisions. Advertisers should lose no time in removing their signs before the State Forester's men find them and use them against the advertisers.

Luke K. Hackett Wins The Court of Appeals, in an opinion prepared by Judge Hammond Urner and filed last Wednesday, ruled that Luke K. Hackett, returned elected as a member of the Board of County Commissioners of Dorchester county, was entitled to the office in spite of the objections as to the alleged irregularities in the conduct of the election in November.

The decision which dismisses the petition, affirms the action of the Circuit Court for Dorchester county. The action was brought by Samuel J. T. Smith, the Democratic opponent of Mr. Hackett, who petitioned the lower court for a recanvass of the votes. The chief contention was that the polling place in the Second precinct of the Seventh district of the county which includes part of Cambridge, was illegally located. The County Commissioners in looking for a suitable polling house, selected a vacant storeroom on Race street, which is the dividing line of the district. The polling place was a few yards beyond the boundary, in First precinct territory, and the contestant claimed that the votes were cast illegally. The Appellate Court held that none of the objections raised as to the legality of the election was justifiable.

LANKFORD'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Now is the Time to Buy

There has never been a time since we have been in business that we could make this statement with such absolute emphasis as now. Merchandise in every department of our store will soon be effected by the rising prices.

Anticipate your wants a little and get what you need from the present stock while the prices are low.

Procrastination is against you. We still have real live bargains in all lines. We do not need to tell you that all lines are going up in price; you hear it and feel it. The merchant that was only lightly supplied when this condition came on can not show you low prices. While we claim to be second to none in the county, we do not want you to overestimate our ability to take care of you for an unlimited time. We can now show you a better stock, that was bought before the advances, than we have ever had the pleasure to offer before.

SHOE DEPARTMENT is stocked with the new Spring and Summer shapes and kinds.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT is as full of the attractive fabrics as the times and styles and demands desire.

CARPET DEPARTMENT is loaded with Matting, Rugs, Art Squares, etc., that you can buy while they last at old prices. LINOLEUM at 35c Special.

FURNITURE in the Higher Class and the Lower Grades is now filling our Furniture Rooms with unusually attractive Beds, Dressers, Dressing Tables, Chifoniers, Mattress, Springs, Chairs, Tables, Trunks, Oil Cook Stoves, Refrigerators, etc.

PORCH GOODS Rugs, Chairs, Hammocks, Settees, Swings, Screens all at lowest possible prices, and a big stock to select from.

GUARANTEE—One Hundred Cent's Worth for $1.00. We have no trading stamps or tricks of any kind, just give you a square deal and your money's worth. Such values you will find well sustained in all departments. You know it—tell your neighbors.

A SWISS MYSTERY

It Looked For a Time as if It Were Beyond Penetration.

BUT IT WAS ALMOST SOLVED.

An American Visitor in the Republic, Who Wanted to Know About Its President, Finally Came Near Getting the Information He Craved.

Switzerland is a republic that runs with the exactness of a Swiss watch, its machinery as hermetically concealed. I had heard that the Swiss republic set the pattern of government for the world, and I was anxious to know something of its methods and personnel.

I was sorry that I was so ignorant.
I didn't even know the name of the Swiss president and for a week was assailed to confess it. I was hoping I might see it in one of the French papers I puzzled over every evening, but at the end of the week I timidly and apologetically inquired of our friendly landlady as to the name of the Swiss president.

But then came a shock. Our landlady grew confused, blushed and confessed that he didn't know it either.
He had known it, he said, of course,
but it had slipped his mind.

Slipped his mind! Think of the name of Roosevelt or Wilson or Taft slipping the mind of anybody in America—and a landlady!

I asked the man who sold me cigars.
He had forgotten too. I asked the apothecary, but got no information.
I was not so timid after that. I asked a fellow passenger—guest, I mean—an American, but of long Swiss residence, and got this story. I believe most of it. He said:

"When I came to Switzerland and found out what a wonderful little country it was, its government so economical, so free from party corruption and spoils, from graft and politics, so different from the home life of our own dear Columbia, I thought, 'The man at the head of this thing must be a master hand; I'll find out his name.'
So I picked out a bright looking subject and said, 'What is the name of the Swiss president?'"

"He tried to pretend he didn't understand my French, but he did, for I can tear the language off all right—learned it studying art in Paris. When I plied him down he said he knew the name well enough, par faitement, but couldn't think of it at that moment."

"That was a surprise, but I asked the next man. He couldn't think of it either. Then I asked a police officer.
Of course he knew it all right, 'Oh,
oui, certainement, mais'—then he scratched his head and scowled, but he couldn't dig up that name. He was just a plain liar—tout simplement—like the others."

"I asked every man I met, and every one of them knew it, had it right on the end of his tongue, but somehow it seemed to stick there. Not a man in Vevey or Montreux could tell me the name of the Swiss president. It was the same in Fribourg, the same even in Bern, the capital."

"I had about given up when one evening in Bern I noticed a sturdy man with an honest face approaching. He looked intelligent, too, and as a last resort I said, 'Could you by any chance tell me the name of the Swiss president?'"

"The effect was startling. He seized me by the arm and, after looking up and down the street, leaned forward and whispered in my ear:
'Mon Dieu! C'est moi! I am the Swiss president; but—ah, non, don't tell any one. I am the only man in Switzerland who knows it.'"

"You see, my friend continued, 'he is elected privately; no torchlight campaigns, no scandal, and only 'for a year.'"

"He is only a sort of chairman, though of course his work is important, and the present able incumbent has been elected a number of times.
His name is—is—is—Ah, yes, that's my tram. So sorry to have to hurry away—see you tonight at dinner.'"

—Albert Bigelow Paine in Harper's Magazine.

Died From Terror.

Perhaps the most remarkable death from fear was that of the Dutch painter Pentman, who lived in the seventeenth century. One day he went into a room full of anatomical subjects to sketch some death's heads and skeletons for a picture he intended to paint.
The weather was very sultry, and while sketching he fell asleep. He was aroused by bones dancing around him and the skeletons suspended from the ceiling clashing together. In a fit of terror he threw himself from a window, and, though he sustained no serious injury and was informed that a slight earthquake had caused the commotion among his ghostly surroundings, he died in a few days in a nervous tremor.

When the Cat Was Sacred.

In the middle ages brute animals formed as prominent a part in the devotional ceremonies of the time as they had in the old religion of Egypt.
The cat Aelurus was embalmed after death and buried in the city of Bubas-tis because, according to Herodotus, Diana Bubastis, the chief deity of the place, was said to have transformed herself into a cat when the gods fled into Egypt.

All things come to those who wait, but it takes a lifetime to prove the truth of this—Philadelphia Record.

SOME GOLF TERMS.

Taken From the Dictionary of a Disgruntled Player.

Bunker—A protuberance on the face of nature rising up out of the side of a sandy depression, designed to ruin the pleasure of golf, to test the patience of the player and to serve as an inspiration for philologists, amateur and professional, in the making of new and original contributions to the world's stores of profane speech.

Luck—The good play of your competitor and the bad play of yourself.

Driver—A contrivance consisting of a long, flexible shaft, at the end of which is affixed a wooden head of the thickness of that of a rural detective, designed to propel a golf ball into the nearest difficulty within reach at a single stroke, whereby the irritation of the player and the risibilities of the spectators may be materially enhanced.

Tee—An elevated bit of earth upon which golfers are expected to stand and make an exhibition of themselves for the delectation of passersby.

Ball—A small white object, sometimes spherical in shape, manufactured and sold in large quantities at a high price, for the purpose of being lost in long grass or on side bets at so much per hole, according to the sporting proclivities of the bettors.—Life.

ZULU ELEPHANTS ALL GONE.

Not One Left in the Land That Used to Be Their Paradise.

There is not a single elephant left in the whole of Zululand, a country that was once a veritable paradise for the ponderous animals. The last of them, once a mighty creature, was found dead some time ago on a farm on the banks of the Unfoloz river, where he had lived since the early part of the reign of the great Chief Cetewayo.

An immense herd once roamed the Dugugugu forest and along the Unfo-lozi, but it was diminished by incessant hunting until Cetewayo one day finally drove it away forever. The chief used to make medicine of certain portions of their bodies.

On the occasion referred to he organized a mighty drive in which two elephants were killed and many wounded.
One of the latter turned and trampled one of his pursuers to a pulp. It was this animal, which was captured then, whose death marked the vanishing of the animals from the country. The remainder of the herd broke away, and thereafter none of them was seen again in Zululand.—New York Times.

Genuine Sardines.

Genuine sardines are the young of the pilchard. Their name comes from the fact that they are most numerous off the coast of Sardina. They swim in the spring in shoals containing millions—fish shaped shoals ten miles long and a half mile wide. The sardines are netted and taken at once to the shore.
There they are washed, scraped and sprinkled with salt. The salt is soon removed, the heads and gills cut off and there is another washing. Then, on beds of green brush, the fish are dried in the sun. Next they are boiled in olive oil till cooked thoroughly. The packers—women always—take them now and pack them in the tin boxes we all know, filling up each box with boiling oil, fitting on the lid and making the box air tight by soldering the joints together with a jet of hot steam.

A Seat in Parliament.

Lord Chesterfield in 1767 lamented
the increased price of seats in the British parliament. There was a boom in trade, and prices went up. Chesterfield was ambitious for his son, and when Chatham's promise of a seat came to nothing he went marketing.
And he failed to find a single bargain.
"I spoke to a borough jobber," he wrote to his son, "and offered five and twenty hundred pounds for a secure seat in parliament, but he laughed at my offer and said there was no such thing as a borough to be had now, for the rich East and West Indians had secured them all at the rate of £3,000 at least, but many at £4,000 and two or three that he knew at £5,000. This, I confess, has vexed me a good deal."

The Dulling Touch of Age.

You can never tell. Perhaps the man who says the most fool things now used to get off something bright and sensible when he was a baby.—Houston Post.

In youth we learn, in age we understand. To grow old is to receive sight.
—Von Eschenbach.

Does Coan's Liniment Help Rheuma- tism?

Ask the man who uses it, he knows!
"To think I suffered all these years when one 25 cent bottle of Sloan's Liniment cured me," writes one grateful user. If you have Rheumatism or suffer from Neuralgia, Backache, Soreness and Stiffness, don't put off getting a bottle of Sloan's. It will give you such welcome relief. It warms and soothes the sore, still painful places and you feel so much better. Buy it at any drug store, only 25 cents.

Philadelphia and Carpets.

More than a third of all American carpets are woven in Philadelphia, which, it is claimed, leads any other city of the world in the volume of production. Wilton, in England, has given its name to one of the most widely known and useful rugs in the world, but now the Wilton rug producing center of the world is in Philadelphia.
Axminster, too, gave its name to a carpet, but it long ago ceased to produce any of it. Brussels likewise is known all over the earth for its carpet, but Brussels does not begin to produce the carpets and rugs which are turned out in Philadelphia. Philadelphia enterprise embarked in the carpet business while Washington was president of the United States, but it was not until more than half a century later that Pennsylvania led all the states in carpet production. As early as 1791 there was a factory in Philadelphia engaged in the manufacture of Axminster and Turkey carpets. China and Russia sent to Philadelphia most of the long, coarse wool used in the manufacture of the finest Wiltons.—Argonaut.

Getting Up in the Morning.

The truth is that there is no time at which it is pleasing to get up. Getting up in the world is a pleasure, but we refer to getting up from anything between a fifty cent cot and a forty dollar mattress after having tried to indulge, to a point of satiety, a normal appetite for sleep.

To get up willingly is, as Lord Dunreary would say, "something no fellow can do." It simply isn't done and can't be done. Absolutely nobody does it.

Early rising is with some persons a sort of religion, like flagellation. But they, like the rest of us, unless they are afflicted with a loss of the normal capacity for sleep, find the moment of rising painful, however compensating the pleasure of boasting their early rising, the joy of ballyragging and be-littling persons who frankly do not like at any time to get up, although they do it heroically every morning.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Flag of Denmark.

In the year 1219 King Waldemar of Denmark, when leading his troops to battle against the Livonians, saw, or thought he saw, a bright light in the form of a cross in the sky. He held this appearance to be a promise of divine aid and pressed forward to victory. From this time he had the cross placed on the flag of his country and called it the Dannebrog—that is, the strength of Denmark. Aside from legend, there is no doubt that this flag with the cross was adopted by Denmark in the thirteenth century and that at about the same date an order, known as the order of Dannebrog, was instituted, in which only soldiers and sailors who were distinguished for courage were allowed to belong. The flag of Denmark, a plain red banner bearing on it a white cross, is the oldest flag now in existence. For 300 years both Norway and Sweden were united with Denmark under this flag.

Ways of the Mole.

No animal is more wonderfully adapted to its kind of life than is the mole.
Mole-skin is famous for its exquisite smoothness and softness. The finest velvet cannot bear comparison with it.
This is evidently a provision of nature for enabling the little animal to pass rapidly through its narrow underground galleries without impediment or friction, going backward or forward with equal ease. It fits its burrow like a piston and pushes itself swiftly with hind feet. The burrows and nests, too, are lined with fine, soft vegetable fibers.—New York Journal.

Making It Last.

Mistress (to chauffeur, who is crawling downhill)—Why are you driving so slowly? Chauffeur (ex-coachman)— Well, ma'am, you told me to be economical as possible, so I was puttin' the brake on to make the down'll last as long as possible.—London Punch.

Banner Carried by Cortes.

In the national museum in Mexico City there is a very interesting relic of the Spanish conquest of this country known as the banner of the conquest.
It is said to be the original standard carried by Cortes in his wars of conquest in the land of the Aztecs.

DO IT NOW

Princess Anne People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due largely to the fact that the little kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious.
The slight symptoms often give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer may slip gradually into some serious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay.
Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney disorders—they act where others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's a case at home:

Mrs. Lena Hastings, Princess Anne, says: "For nearly seven years I was afflicted with disordered kidneys and was made miserable by backache. Sometimes I was taken with severe headaches and pains in my loins. Finally, the kidney secretions became disordered.
Hearing about the cures Doan's Kidney Pills has made, I got this medicine at Omar A. Jones' drug store. The first box cured me of the trouble and toned up my entire system." Over four years later Mrs. Hastings said: "No former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. My cure has been lasting."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mrs. Hastings has twice publicly recommended. Foster-

"The Best Possible Newspaper!"

What sort of a paper is it? In the first place, it must be a Home Paper—the Woman's Friend and a part of her daily life. And it must be a necessity to the Business Man. It must not only tell what is happening in the world, but it must go farther and tell why it is happening and what it means.
The Best Possible Newspaper has a staff of correspondents covering the world of the Associated and United Press, scouring the earth for vital human facts. It has fashions and art, books and music, literature and politics at its right hand. It has the markets for the farmer, the merchant, the broker.

The world has never seen an age of greater constructive significance in politics, in science, in

P. A. puts new joy into the sport of smoking!

YOU may live to be 110 and never feel old enough to vote, but it's certain—sure you'll not know the joy and contentment of a friendly old jimmy pipe or a hand rolled cigarette unless you get on talking-terms with Prince Albert tobacco!

P. A. comes to you with a real reason for all the goodness and satisfaction it offers. It is made by a patented process that removes bite and parch!

You can smoke it long and hard without a come-back! Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

Prince Albert affords the keenest pipe and cigarette enjoyment! And that flavor and fragrance and coolness is as good as that sounds. P. A. just answers the universal demand for tobacco without bite, parch or kick-back!

Introduction to Prince Albert isn't any harder than to walk into the nearest place that sells tobacco and ask for "a supply of P. A." You pay out a little change, to be sure, but it's the cheerfulness investment you ever made!

GREAT VISITING DAY FOR MARYLAND FARMERS

State College of Agriculture Will Be Scene Of Enthusiastic Farmers' Day Celebration, May 30.

Extraordinary preparations are being made for the annual celebration of Farmers' Day at the Maryland State College of Agriculture. Farmers and their families from every section of the State are expected to throng the College and Experiment Station grounds where every possible effort will be made to contribute to their entertainment and instruction in the activities of their institution. In view of last year's record attendance and the increased interest which has resulted from the successful campaign of the friends of the College for adequate appropriations, fully double the attendance of previous years is anticipated, as this year's celebration will be the opening of a new era in the history of the usefulness of the institution to the farming people of the State.

Points of Interest.
The main attraction of Farmers' Day is the opportunity which it gives to visiting farmers and their families to become better acquainted with the work which is being done by the various departments of their State College of Agriculture.

The program of the morning will be devoted to inspection of the College and Experiment Station buildings, equipment and grounds, with the head of each division of work and assistants to explain the particular activities in which each section is engaged. A new feature which it is hoped will appeal to visiting farmers will be the Horse and Calf Show which will be held at the Experiment Station under the direction of the Department of Animal Husbandry.

Free Lunch For All.

Following the Horse Show and inspection of grounds and buildings, a picnic lunch will be served at the College in which it is hoped that all visitors will join. During the lunch period, from 12 to 2 P. M., a number of lectures have been arranged for the benefit of those who care to secure information on topics of special interest to them. These talks will be short and informal in nature, dealing with live subjects relating to agriculture and home economics, and illustrated in a practical and helpful manner. Information regarding these lectures may be obtained on the grounds during the morning inspection.

Noted Speakers Expected.

The program for the afternoon will be of special note, as addresses by Hon. Carl R. Gray, President, Western Maryland Railroad, and Hon. Hoke Smith, U. S. Senator from Georgia are expected to feature the occasion. Greetings to the assembled visitors will be extended by President H. J. Patterson, under whose leadership the institution has been developed during the past three years. Selections by the cadet band of the College will add to the enjoyment of the occasion, the exercises concluding with a baseball game on the athletic field, which the many lovers of that sport will no doubt attend, especially in view of the enviable athletic record made in recent years by the College teams.

A Profitable Holiday.

The Maryland farmer who visits his State College of Agriculture on May 30 next will be well repaid, provided he comes for the purpose of finding out definitely what is being done at the institution along the lines in which he is particularly interested and makes known his interests. His good wife will most assuredly enjoy a day away from the work of the farm home if she not only has the pleasure of the trip but can take home with her as well some helpful thought or idea that will tend to lighten her work or make her labor more effective. Neither should we forget the effect on the farm boy and girl, for they are the ones to whom the greatest benefits of a properly endowed and administered State College of Agriculture will come. Their opportunity of opportunities is this chance to visit the College and come to an understanding of its work and its teaching which would impress on them more than any one thing the opportunity for agriculture in Maryland, and the dignity of the calling when they are getting their first ideas of what they would like to be and do. Farmers' Day at their State College of Agriculture should be the great get-together day for the agricultural interests of the State; the day when the farmer, the farm woman, the country boy and girl, and everyone interested in better farming, better living, and a greater Maryland, should find his or her way to the institution that is going to be the great leading agency of the State for agricultural progress.

Pastures.—Pastures should be carefully looked after. Keep them free of bushes, briars and weeds. If the water supply in the pasture runs low, see that all animals are properly provided for. Every permanent pasture should have ample shade for the live stock. If there is not a sufficient number of trees, temporary sheds should be made.

Farm Animals.—Guard carefully the health of the hogs and poultry. If hog cholera breaks out in the community get in touch with the College of Agriculture at College Park, Md., and prepare to inoculate against the disease. Prompt action is necessary in such cases.

HARVEST YOUR OWN CRIMSON CLOVER

Farmers Advised How To Save Their Own Seed In View Of The High Prices This Season.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

The supply of crimson clover seed for this fall will be limited as well as high priced. Every farmer will do well, therefore, to seriously consider saving at least enough crimson clover seed for his own seeding if not for commercial purposes.

There are a good many drawbacks to saving crimson clover seed for commercial purposes, the principal one of which is the tendency of the plants to shatter their seed as soon as ripe. This makes it necessary to cut the clover in just the right stage, which is usually when the last maturing seeds in the tip of the head have reached the soft, dough stage. This stage is usually reached in a week or 10 days after the first blossoms have begun to fade. There are several methods of harvesting the crop; the most successful is with the self rake reaper, which deposits the newly cut stems with heads all turned one way in small bunches at the side of the reaper out of the way of the horses on the succeeding round. These small bunches are sometimes placed 2 or 3 together in small piles to cure but usually they are left as dropped until the huller comes, when they are loaded one at a time with large tined barley fork on a tight bottom hay rack and hauled to the huller.

A Successful Method.

Another method is to cut with the mowing machine with a bunching attachment fastened to the cutter bar. If an attachment of this kind is not available then the clover may be harvested quite successfully if a little more care is used in cutting at the proper stage. Since the horses and mower will pass over the cut clover it is necessary to cut it before it will shatter readily. If it becomes too ripe it must be cut early in the morning while it is still damp from the dew, or in the evening after dew begins to fall. Some farmers cut after night until stopped by heavy dews. When cutting after dark it is necessary to attach a lantern on the end of the tongue and one on the back of the machine. When cut this way the clover should be raked and bunched while damp to prevent shattering and then handled the same as if cut with a self rake reaper.

Harvesting Small Quantities.

Where a small quantity is harvested a small canvas may be attached to the cutter bar, the two rear corners of which are held by a man walking behind. The cutter bar is set high enough to cut the stems just below the heads. The heads are dropped in piles and placed under clover or hauled direct to the huller.

The seed is generally hulled with a special huller, which is equipped with two cylinders, one for shattering the hulls off the head and the other for rubbing the hulls off the seed. Where it is desired to save only enough seed for home consumption and a huller is not available the seed may be sown with the hulls on, care being taken that a sufficient quantity is scattered over the land to secure a good stand. The only way this can be determined is to weigh a quantity of the hulls, then hull out the seed and weigh again. In this way it can be determined just how many pounds of hulls are required to furnish 12 or 15 pounds of seed per acre, which is usually the rate of seeding.

PROTECT YOUR CHICKS AGAINST VERMIN.

ROY H. WAITE, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Do you know how many head of live stock you have in your chicken house? If you haven't recently looked at the bottom of the roosts or in the cracks around the nests, it is about a two to one shot that you don't. Mites breed very rapidly during the warm weather and always get the start of the neglectful poultry raiser. Mites are worse than lice and anyone knows that they are bad enough. Lice do their damage mainly by annoying the fowls running about on their bodies. Mites not only do this, but they get their nourishment by biting a hole in the chicken's skin and sucking the blood. Lice live mainly by eating parts of the feathers and scales from the skin. Mites do not stay on the bird's body during the day, but stay in little clumps under the roosts and in the cracks about the house. At night they are rested up and pour over the hen's body, sometimes in large enough numbers to kill the hens outright. They injure the hens by disturbing their rest and taking nourishment from their bodies. It is much easier to keep mites out of a house than it is to get rid of them after they get in. A painting of the roosts with kerosene oil once a month will keep them down. It is a much more difficult matter to get rid of them once they get a start.

The kerosene treatment will have to be applied at least once a week for a time in order to subdue them. Some recommend the use of coal tar or gas for destroying mites. One application is said to be sufficient for a period of six months, if a thorough job is made of putting it on. The coal tar should be thinned with kerosene.

HOW BLOTTERS ABSORB INK.

Being a Simple Explanation of Capillary Attraction.

Every student of physics knows that water will run up a narrow tube by capillary attraction. Anything immersed in water has a similar attraction for the water—that is, the object becomes wet by the water that clings to it. The amount is limited by the weight of the liquid itself. Place your hand in water and your hand when withdrawn is wet. The limited attraction between the hand and the water is gauged by the weight of the water that clings to the hand.

Imagine several hands placed close together in water, but not touching one another. If this composite hand were formed of ten single hands it would attract ten times as much water as the one hand would attract and hold on its surface. So a wisp of hay, composed of a hundred spears of dried grass, placed in water will remove a hundred times as much of the fluid as would cling to one spear. Bushes in a marsh will remove a certain amount of water, which will by capillary attraction cling to their submerged parts.

Under the microscope fibrous blotting paper when absorbing ink resembles on a small scale a marsh matted with shrubs and sticks and twigs around which water is flowing, as ink runs about and among the fibers that together form the spongy paper. There is a limit to the amount of liquid which a blotter will absorb, as there is a limit to the amount of water that a marsh will absorb without overflowing. That limit in the blotter is the combined capillary attraction of the fibrous shrubs and sticks and twigs that together form the paper.—Popular Science Monthly.

EQUINE EVOLUTION.

There Was a Time When the Horse Was Only Two Feet High.

The variations which lead up to the formation of a new species are so insensible, they stretch over such a vast period of time, that their survival value from generation to generation is and must be very slight. Take the case of the horse, for instance.

The development of the horse seems to stretch over a period of at least 3,000,000 years, or from the eoliphus of eocene times, an animal less than two feet high and probably weighing less than a hundred pounds, to the horse of late tertiary times, the pliophippus, much like the superb creature we know today, five feet high and weighing 1,000 or 1,200 pounds.

If this animal increased in height only one-quarter of an inch in 10,000 years he would be six feet high in less than 2,000,000 years. So, if we allow him 3,000,000 years to develop in, his increase in height must have been even less than one-fourth of an inch in 10,000 years.

Think of it! Our horse of today might be increasing or diminishing in size at that rate and the fact never be noticed during the whole period. In weight the same—one-eighth of a pound in a hundred years, and he would weigh 14,000 pounds in less than 2,000,000 years, a rate of increase that our scales would hardly detect in a century of time.

The transformations of the other animals have probably been equally slow. Science would feel safe in saying that a flying fish never becomes a bird. But can we conceive how slight the change would have to be in every thousand years to bring it about in geologic or biologic time?—John Burroughs in North American Review.

Don't Whip a Child In Anger.

It is absurd to whip a child who is overcome by anger. The best thing to do is to let him alone and let his passion wear itself out. If he could be taken before the anger gets the upper hand of him he might be controlled.

What the parent should do is to study the things which will arouse the child's anger and then avoid these things. It is the height of folly for a parent to excite anger in a child and then try to control it by punishment. It is worse than folly; it is brutal and is likely to ruin the child.—Mother's Magazine.

Cremation In Ancient Greece.

Cremation obtained among many ancient peoples. Especially did the Greeks find spiritual grandeur in the concept of the soul arising from the ashes of the dead—the natural body—into the empyrean, to dwell thenceforth with the stars. Cremation was, indeed, an honor denied the bodies of suicides, those who had been struck by lightning and others deemed to have forfeited the favor of the gods.—Scientific American.

A Hard Problem.

A certain debating society is discussing the question as to which is the angrier, the husband who goes home and finds that the dinner is not ready or the wife who has dinner ready and whose husband does not come home. It is believed that the debate will end in a draw.

Immune.

Deal's Island

June 3—The strawberry crop has been very poor in our community.

Mr. Dewey Walters has returned from Eddystone, Pa.

Mr. William Shores, of Chester, Pa., is home on a short vacation.

Mr. R. L. Corkran has been visiting friends in Dorchester county.

The soft crab industry has begun with good prospects for a profitable season.

On Saturday, May 20th, from 2.30 p. m. to 9.00 p. m. the Deal's Island schools held Field Day exercises in which there were base ball, centre ball, running races, potato races and toe-bag races.

There was speaking in the afternoon, the president of the School Board, Mr. Charles W. Long, being one of and the principal speaker; he was followed by Rev. G. W. Hastings and Professor Corkran.

In the evening at 7.30 o'clock the crowning of the "May Queen" took place. The "May Queen" was chosen by the honor-for-attendance method, the one having the highest number of days attendance for the year. This honor fell to Miss Jessie Webster, whose attendance, notwithstanding the fact that our schools were closed two weeks on account of scarlet fever, and the first week of the year was lost in order to repair and renovate the school house fit for use, was 154 days. The crown, Miss Dorothea Webster, was second, whose attendance was 151 1/2 days. The scepter-bearer had to be doubled, Misses Florence Webster and Elizabeth Brown tied at 151 days; while the fourth place of honor, then fell to Miss Minnie Gibson, at 147 days. The queen was followed by the crown on coming on the stage, then by the scepter-bearer, the two pages and a number of other attendants. Immediately after the queen took her seat the crown took the crown from the tray borne by the pages and placed it upon the head of the queen. This was followed by a short dialogue.

In the base ball, the Island boys defeated the school boys by a score of 5 to 1. In the game of centre ball, team two defeated team one by a score of 21 to 11.

In the races, the following won blue ribbons: Dashes—Tessie Bond, Cooper Abbott, Bennie Shores, Oscar Webster, Alberta Caster, Virginia Brown, Tilden Webster, Irene Twigg, Reta Tankersley, and Fannie Tyler. The following

The following, white ribbons: Edna Kelly, Gussie Armiger, Ruth Tyler, Clifford Kelly, Edwina Anderson, Evaline Shores, Eben Webster, Lola Twigg and Estella Webster. There was great interest manifested by those present and if these things are continued the zeal will be eventually spread and carried to a greater extent than we now possibly think. We look forward to the day and trust that Deal's Island will rank among the very first in Somerset county in its educational interests and endeavors.

New Silver Coin Designs

Dimes, quarters and half dollars of new design will be minted after July 1. Secretary McAdoo announced last week. For the first time since 1891 a change will be effected in these pieces. The announcement disclosed that the half dollar has fallen practically into disuse. The new design was selected with hope of restoring it to more general circulation, it was indicated. Under the new coinage each piece will be of different design. The half dollar and dime models were made by Adolph A. Weinman and the quarter dollar by Hermon A. MacNeil. Both are sculptors of note.

A PART OF MARYLAND'S SUNDAY LAW

For the benefit of those who are interested in the violations of the Sunday law passed at the recent Legislature we publish the following:

436. No person whatsoever shall work or do any bodily labor on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, and no person having children or servants shall command or willingly suffer any of them to do any manner of work or labor on the Lord's Day (work of necessity and charity always excepted,) nor shall suffer or permit any children or servants to profane the Lord's Day by gaming, fishing, fowling, hunting or unlawful pastime or recreation, and every person transgressing this section and being thereof convicted before a Justice of the Peace shall forfeit five dollars, to be applied to the use of the county.

437. (No person in this State shall sell, dispose of, barter, or, if a dealer in any one or more articles of merchandise in this section mentioned, shall give away on the Sabbath day, commonly called Sunday, any tobacco, cigars, candy, soda or mineral waters, spirituous or fermented liquors, cordials, lager beer, wine, cider or any goods, wares or merchandise whatsoever; and any person violating any one of the provisions of this section shall be liable to indictment in any court in this State having criminal jurisdiction.) And upon conviction thereof shall be fined a sum not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars, in the discretion of the court for the first offense. This section is not to apply to milk or ice dealers in supplying their customers, or to apothecaries when putting up bona fide prescriptions.

438. (It shall not be lawful to keep open or use any dancing saloon, opera house, ten pin alley, barber saloon or ball alley within this State on the Sabbath day, commonly called Sunday; and any person or persons or body politic or corporate, who shall violate any provision of this section or cause or knowingly permit the same to be violated by a person or persons in his, her or its employ shall be liable to indictment in any court of this State having criminal jurisdiction) and upon conviction thereof shall be fined a sum not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, in the discretion of the court, for the first offense; and if convicted a second time for a violation of this section, the person, or persons or body politic or corporate shall be fined a sum not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars; and if a natural person shall be imprisoned, not less than ten nor more than thirty days in the discretion of the court; and in the case of any conviction or convictions under this section subsequent to the second, such person or persons, body politic or corporate shall be fined on each occasion a sum at least double that imposed upon him, her, them or it on the last preceding conviction; and if a natural person shall be imprisoned not less than thirty nor more than sixty days in the discretion of the court; all fines to be imposed under this section shall be paid to the State.

Locating A Thunderstorm

When you see a flash of lightning count the seconds before it thunders and you can tell how far away the storm is. Since light travels 186,000 miles a second, we may for all practical purposes regard ourselves as seeing the lightning the instant it flashed. But sound travels only 1,087 feet a second.

Multiply 1,087 by the number of seconds during the interval between the flash and the thunder and the result is the distance between you and the storm. As a rule, from 12 to 15 miles is the greatest distance thunder can be heard.

The Prices of Shoes Advances

On all shoes, of all grade, prices have advanced, are advancing and will advance more. Business is good, the customer is prosperous and shoes are in big demand. This is no time for long faces, whining and stubbornness. The market is high and no amount of holding back or protesting will put it down.

The shoe dealer has brought into use his best business judgment and has adjusted himself to the new scale just as the manufacturers and wholesalers have done.

The customer is paying higher prices for everything, and he should not think that he is being robbed when he has to pay $3.50 for a good American shoe that previously sold for $3.00 as this is just about as normal a process as is going on in any retail store in the country. And this fact can be born in mind—the shoe dealer has not been making from 60 per cent. to 100 per cent. profit in years past as has the dry goods man, miller, etc. The public may complain a little, but down in their hearts they know the SHOE retailer is giving them a good run for their money.

Just now the prices all over the country are somewhat at a variance—some wholesalers and manufacturers are all sold up and all prices are advanced—others did not sell so rapidly and for a few weeks may have a few shoes at only a small advance, but it is safe to say that by June 15th all lines of men's, boy's, youth's, women's, misses' and children's Shoes will have advanced one full grade over the price prevailing January 1, 1916.

As for ourselves, we did our best to buy as many Shoes as possible before the advance in price. The result is that we have twelve thousand pairs of Shoes which we can sell at a very little advance over the former prices. We would suggest that you buy your shoes now while our stock is complete and the prices reasonable.

Election Supervisors Organize

Last Tuesday the Board of Election Supervisors for Somerset county—Messrs. Edward B. Lankford and Lambert W. Cox, Democrats, and George H. Ford, Republican—met in their office in the Court House and effected a complete organization. Mr. Lankford was made president of the Board and Mr. Harry C. Dashiell was selected attorney to the Board.

There were two nominations for the position of clerk to the Supervisors. Mr. Lankford named Mr. Sherwood Cox, Democrat, of Westover, and Mr. Lambert W. Cox nominated Mr. Lorie C. Quinn, Jr., Democrat, of Crisfield. This tie was broken by Supervisor Ford, who cast his vote for Mr. Sherwood Cox.

The members of the present board of Supervisors were appointed by Governor Harrington during the last session of the Legislature and the meeting last Tuesday was the first held by them since their appointment. Mr. Lankford, who was made president, was selected from the list sent the Governor by the Democratic State Central Committee. Mr. Cox was named as the Governor's personal appointment and Mr. Ford was selected from the list submitted by the Republican State Central Committee.

The retiring members of the Board were composed of Messrs. W. E. Ward and Straughn Williams, Republicans, and George H. Myers, Democrat, and S. R. Sterling, clerk.

Croswell-Cline Wedding

Last Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock a very pretty wedding took place in Strawberry Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, when Miss Margaret A. Cline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Cline, of Baltimore, became the bride of Mr. Omar J. Croswell, cashier of the Peoples Bank of Somerset County, at Princess Anne.

The bride wore a blue faille silk coat suit, with large hat to match, and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. Robert W. H. Weech, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. Miss Aline Wallop, of Princess Anne, was maid of honor and wore a wistaria chapeau, with large black picture hat, and carried a basket of pink roses. Mr. Vernon E. White, cousin of the groom, was best man. The ushers were J. Clay Gilbert, C. Walter Frost, Robert F. Windford and Aubrey J. Shores.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Croswell left on an automobile trip to the North and upon their return about July 1st, will reside at Princess Anne.

Mr. Todd Elected Commissioner

On Monday of last week an election was held in Princess Anne to elect a citizen to serve as town commissioner for six years from the first Monday in July.

The election was hotly contested and Mr. William P. Todd defeated Mr. J. Douglass Wallop by a vote of 123 to 90. Both men are Democrats, but the former is a Smith-Harrington man and the latter a follower of Blair Lee.

Mr. Todd will succeed Mr. Albert E. Krause, who has been president of the Council and also mayor of the town for the last two years, and he will take up his duties July 3. The other members of the council are Messrs. Columbus Lankford and George W. Colborn, Jr., and they will meet on the above date for the purpose of organizing.

The Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md., held its commencement exercises last Wednesday. Governor Harrington delivered the diplomas. Among the graduates was Mr. John Carman Sterling, of Crisfield, who had taken a course in mechanical engineering.

CRAB INSPECTORS APPOINTED

Conservation Commission Explains New Laws to Appointees

After a three-hour conference, at which they were given to understand that in future no unfair advantage is to be taken of the crabs of the State, and that the lady crabs are to have the full protection of the law while they are in that condition which means the increasing of the crab population of Maryland waters, Robert Edward Purnell and Clarence L. Thornton, of Crisfield; Edward W. Moore, of Smith's Island, and Lybrand Thomas, of Deal's Island, last Friday were appointed crab inspectors by the Conservation Commission.

These inspectors are charged with the enforcement of the newly enacted crab laws in Somerset and adjacent waters, and are to assist the deputy commanders of their respective districts. The new laws make stringent regulations for the protection of crabs, which the methods of catching in the last decade have threatened with practical extinction. Instructions to be sent to the crab inspectors and deputy commanders of the oyster navy are to the effect that no hard crabs are to be caught in the State from November to May; that all persons catching crabs for market shall be licensed; that all crab packers, canners, shippers and dealers shall have licenses; that no person may catch or sell or have in his possession any female crabs bearing eggs that are visible (sponge crabs) or any from which the "sponge" has been removed, and that in Somerset county no person may catch or have in his possession any hard crabs except pebbles less than five inches across the shell.

Dames Quarter Church Dedicated

The new Methodist Episcopal Church at Dames Quarter, this county, was dedicated Sunday, the 4th instant. The Rev. G. R. Neese, a former pastor, now at North East, Md., preached morning and night. The afternoon sermon was delivered by the Rev. T. A. H. O'Brien, superintendent of the Salisbury District of the Wilmington Conference.

The indebtedness of $2,000 was raised and the debt canceled. The total cost of the building was $4,000.

The first church was erected about 1855 and the building erected at that time, though remodeled in later years, was in splendid condition when the plans for the new church were first formulated, and forms a part of the present house of worship.

So far as is known, the first church organization at Dames Quarter was formed in 1855. In that year James F. Kelly and Emily K. Kelly, his wife, conveyed to certain trustees the lot of land upon which the former, as well as the present, structure stands. The trustees at that time were James F. Kelly, John W. Carew, Henry P. White, William J. C. White, Hamilton W. White, James T. McDorman, Thomas White, Richard D. Wallace and George N. Messick. All the members of the old board are now dead, the death of the last survivor, the late Henry P. White, occurred in 1900.

The organization however was not incorporated until the present year, the trustees named above, and their successors, holding the church property as individuals in trust for church purposes. During the present year the church was incorporated, the present board of trustees, named in the certificate of incorporation being John C. Owens, Walter C. Carew, C. Thomas Carew, Henry T. McGrath, William F. McDorman, Robt. B. Messick, Charles B. Watson and William O. Simpkins.

Normal School Graduates

Among the list of graduates of the Maryland State Normal School, whose commencement took place last Thursday, were the following:

Somerset county—Ada Beatrice Cochran, Nora Ellen Davis, Meta Bene Horner, Louisa Anne Matthews and Mabel Ward.

Wicomico county—Olive Marie Gilliss, Lulu Rebecca Guthrie, Myrtle Priscilla Jester, Margaret Ann Travers, Ruth Elizabeth Wright.

Worcester county—Mary Frances Gordy, Theodore Louise Mumford, Nannie Holt Selby and Bessie Straughn Riley.

Mrs. R. M. Stevenson Injured

Mrs. R. M. Stevenson, sister of Miss Nora C. Hayman, 1317 Clayton street, Wilmington, Del., while viewing the interior of the new public buildings about a week ago, had a fall which has put her in the Delaware Hospital for treatment. She is said to be improving. Mrs. T. L. Tomkinson, of Cambridge, Md., another sister, called to Wilmington by the accident, is a guest at Miss Hayman's home.

PATHFINDER AUTO TOURING STATE

Forgets Its Mission and Omits Princess Anne From the Route

The Baltimore Sun, supposed to be co-operating with the county agents to furnish pleasure next Fall to the winners of club workers in a tour over the State by automobiles, is somewhat forgetting her mission to help the boy winners, but is being lured away by exclamations that they are the big towns with a mayor, etc., and can furnish the Sun paper with more publicity.

For instance, Monday afternoon of last week, at 4 p. m., the Sun auto was scheduled for a visit to the pretty little town of Princess Anne; but as Salisbury was one of the previous stops having half a day on its program, and thinking the town would be slighted, the Sun willingly cancelled, without notice, the little time it had given to the town of Princess Anne.

County Agent Lippincott had assembled at 4 p. m. in the Court House the best audience the Sun staff would have had on its whole tour—six boy club members and thirty-one enthused citizens with willing hands to help the tour to success. Well, perhaps the town of Princess Anne will some day be large enough to be noticed by the Sun Pathfinder staff.

At this time it might be well to know that the quiet little town of Princess Anne, which has been slighted on this tour, was the promoter of the whole affair of the Sun's trip this year.

Last year the county of Somerset, with the booming little town of Princess Anne for the backer, was the only county in Maryland to send the winning club members to the Baltimore Exhibition Week by auto. Last Fall when the Somerset boys entered Baltimore with flags flying and with hurrahs of merriment, the Baltimore Sun was so well pleased that it planned a similar trip this Fall.

Regardless of the failure of the Sun Pathfinders to visit Somerset, County Agent Lippincott will plan the same trip that he did last year for the winners in his club.

Franktown-Nassawadox High School

The commencement exercises of the Franktown-Nassawadox High School, of Virginia, were held in the school auditorium June 1st to 6th. On the opening night the senior class played "Merchant of Venice" before a crowded audience. The play was repeated at Onley, Va., on Friday evening.

On Saturday night the young ladies of the class read essays. On Sunday evening the class sermon was delivered by Rev. G. W. Ghee, the High School male quartette furnishing special music. On Monday evening class exercises were held.

The final exercises were held on Tuesday morning. Twenty-seven members of the senior class were addressed by Rev. Dunaway, of Accomac C. H., Va., after which medals and other prizes were awarded.

Among those who took part in the various entertainments were Miss Genevieve Walker, who was soloist on the first evening, and who read an essay on "Prohibition" on Saturday evening; and Miss Grace Walker, who prepared and read the class history. Both these young ladies are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Walker, of Nassawadox, Va., formerly of Orle, Md.

Funeral Of Miss Florence Franklin

The funeral of Miss Florence Franklin, daughter of the late Judge Franklin, was held in Makemie Memorial Presbyterian Church, Snow Hill, Saturday morning the 3rd instant, at 11 o'clock, the services being conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. S. Kreger, D. D., assisted by the Rev. Littleton P. Bowen.

Mr. Henry Franklin, of Baltimore, half brother of Miss Franklin, and her nieces, Mrs. Harry F. Covington, of Princeton, and Mrs. Emily Dougherty Hamilton, of Brooklyn, attended the funeral.

Crisfield Municipal Election

In the municipal election held in Crisfield last Wednesday, Charles F. Richardson, president of the city council, was elected mayor, and A. B. Riggins and John T. Bedsworth were elected city councilmen to succeed Thomas Whittington and Walter A. Muir. The contest for mayor was a very close and exciting one, being purely a Democratic faction fight between Charles F. Richardson, backed by the Progressives, or Smith-Harrington forces, and Grover C. Blackstone, backed by the regulars, or the Joshua W. Miles faction.

Among those who will graduate in medicine today at the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, is Miss Margaret Irving Handy, daughter of Hon. and Mrs. L. Irving Handy, of Smyrna, Del. Miss Handy graduated at Goucher College prior to entering the University.

SECOND STATEWIDE OLYMPIAD

List of Somerset Boys Who Took Part in Track and Field Events

The second statewide olympiad conducted by the Public Athletic League for the schools of Maryland was held at Homewood athletic field, Johns Hopkins University, last Friday at 2.30 p. m. Six hundred and seventy-six boys were eligible and took part in the track and field championships as a result of winning the title places in the counties. This meet is unique in the history of athletics, for this is the only state that has organized its athletics for the moral growth of its future citizens. The entries from Somerset county follow:

The boys were accompanied to Baltimore last Thursday by Prof. H. T. Ruhl, of Princess Anne, and Rev. J. Vernon Ashworth, of Crisfield.

Governor Names Personal Staff

Governor Harrington has announced his personal staff and the members of the State Board of Agriculture, the latter created by an act of the General Assembly. His staff follows:

B. Howell Griswold, Jr., banker, judge advocate general; Carl R. Gray, president of the Western Maryland Railroad, quarter-master general; Geo. P. Cator, inspector general; Dr. W. S. Baer, surgeon general.

Colonels—Edmund S. Dickey, Baltimore county; Dr. J. Hubert Wade, Washington county; Harry J. Hopkins, Annapolis; Harvey L. Cooper, president of the Denton National Bank, Caroline county; John Rush Street, Harford county; Henry J. Waters, Somerset county; George W. Rife, Baltimore city; Charles E. McPhail, Baltimore city; Zoro H. Brinsfield, Dorchester county; Charles R. Disharoon, Wicomico county.

The Agriculture Board named is as follows:

Dr. J. Frank Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University and chairman of the commission appointed by the Democratic State Convention last year to recommend greater efficiency and economy in the legislature and other departments of the state government.

Carl R. Gray, president of the Western Maryland Railroad.

Samuel M. Shoemaker, Green Spring Valley, author of the law creating the new board.

Dr. W. W. Skinner, Montgomery county, recommended by the Alumni Association of the Maryland Agricultural College.

Robert Crain, lawyer. He owns thousands of acres of land in Charles county, which he has brought to a high state of cultivation.

John M. Dennis, state treasurer, farmer and dairyman, of Baltimore county.

A. W. Sisk, prominent farmer and canner, of Caroline county.

Harry Holzappel, farmer, recommended by the Alumni Association of the Maryland Agricultural College.

John Black, president of the Maryland State Grange Association and one of the leading farmers of the State.

Mr. Walter E. Leake, of Toledo, Ohio, arrived in Princess Anne last Wednesday and will spend a few weeks at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leake, near town.

Forty-Eighth Session Held In Salisbury Last Week

The forty-eighth annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Easton met in St. Peter's Church, Salisbury, last Tuesday at noon, with Bishop Adams in the chair. An unusually large number of delegates, both lay and clerical were present. The convention re-elected unanimously Mr. S. E. Shannahan, of Easton, secretary of the convention.

The convention sermon was preached by the Rev. Henry Davies, rector of Christ Church, Easton.

The convention was addressed by two prominent divines, the Rev. Dr. Frederick Gardner, of New York, General Secretary Board of Religious Education, and the Rev. Dr. W. C. Hicks, Secretary of the Missionary Province of Washington.

The reports of the Diocesan Treasurers showed splendid financial conditions. The Episcopal fund amounts to about $43,000, the trust funds of the Diocese to about $20,000, the Clergy Relief $14,000, the Diocesan Mission account reported receipts and collections on hand of $4,000, the Home for Friendless Children, receipts and invested funds of $35,000 and the convention fund $1,000.

The annual address of the Bishop at the evening session on Tuesday was especially gratifying, indicating growth in every phase of the church work, a large number of confirmations, new churches and many other improvements, and great liberality in the matter of contributions.

Reports were made also at the Tuesday evening session by the Deans of the three Conventions. The first real discussion of the session occurred at this time. A resolution was introduced to authorize the appointment of a Diocesan Arch-Deacon, to work under the direction of the Diocesan Mission Board. This proposition has several times been discussed by previous conventions. The lead in the opposition to this measure was taken by Judge Stanford, representing Somerset Parish, and Mr. Marion V. Brewington, of St. Peter's Parish. The Bishop also interrogated many of the speakers pointedly. The resolution was lost.

Wednesday morning the following Deputies were chosen to the General Convention of the Episcopal Church which meets in St. Louis for three weeks in October of this year: Rev. Henry Davies, Easton; Rev. Dr. Martin, Chestertown; Rev. S. S. Hepburn, Kent; Rev. W. Y. Beaven, Easton. The lay deputies chosen were Col. W. H. Gibson, of Centerville; E. S. Valliant, Church Hill; Hon. E. W. McMaster, Pocomoke, and Hon. M. V. Brewington, of Salisbury. This convention is considered the most prominent ecclesiastical body which assembles in this country and meets every three years.

American Gas Centenary June 16 and 17

A great historical and educational street parade will constitute the principal feature of the celebration of the American Gas Centenary in Baltimore on June 16th and 17th.

The parade will, it is said, be one of the biggest demonstrations of its kind ever given in the State. It will be four miles long, ten bands will be in line and there will be a remarkable display of floats, 50 now being under construction. These were designed along elaborate carefully thought-out lines and, because of their picturesque nature, will in themselves, make the parade notable. They will include many strikingly novel and original devices portraying various phases of the gas industry and modern industrial development in a way that has never before been attempted.

The parade will take place the afternoon of June 16th and about 2500 men will take part in it. It is being arranged by the Consolidated Gas Electric Light and Power Company, which is directly descended from the Gas Light Company of Baltimore. The latter was founded in 1816 by Rembrandt Peale and other well known men of his day and was the first organization of its kind on the Western continent.

The Centenary celebration is in reality a national event and while it is in progress Baltimore will put in a strong bid for general attention. Many prominent men from different parts of the country will take part in it and the officials of both the State and City governments will be largely represented.

Church Supper Wednesday Evening

The Ladies' Aid Society of Antioch M. E. Church will serve a supper in the new Social Hall on Wednesday, June 14th. The menu will consist of deviled crab, crab salad, hot rolls, coffee etc., all for 25 cents. Ice cream and cake extra. The public is cordially invited to attend.

NO MORE JUNKETS ON BAY

State Steamers To Be Used Only On Official Business

Another good thing gone! No more are the State steamers to be used by politicians and others with "influence" for joy rides over the waters of the bay, for pleasant little junketing parties, for hurry trips of State officials when steamboat schedules are not convenient; and all because the last Legislature created the Conservation Commission and took the State fishery force from the control of the Board of Public Works and put it under the direction of said commission.

The old days of "what's the State's coal between friends" are no more, for the Conservation Commission recently passed an order declaring that the vessels of the oyster navy shall be used only for official work, cutting out the pleasant little summertime excursions at the State's expense of former years, and declared that the rule will be strictly enforced. The Governor alone is excepted from this rule, and when the Executive wants a steamer for a little party of his friends he can get it of course, or when he wants to make a quick run-over to Cambridge, his home, a steamer will be at his disposal, for the Governor is the Governor.

But even at that, it is expected that calls for vessels for other than official business will be few and far between. For the Governor is not much of a junketer himself, and then it is one thing to tip the word to a member of the Board of Public Works that you would like to have the use of one of the State's steamers for a couple of days for a little trip and have that member pass the word along to Captain Howard or Captain Turner to get the Governor Thomas or the McLane ready for the trip for Mr. So and So and his friends and that it will be all right; but it is quite another to make a formal application to the Governor for the use of the vessel, stating the reasons therefore and the necessities thereof, and getting the Governor to write a formal request to the Conservation Commission for the vessel, stating said reasons and necessities, all of which goes into the commission's records.

The Conservation Commission is rapidly getting down to brass tacks, and is tackling its job in earnest. It is now preparing instructions for the enforcement of the new crab law, designed to prevent the enormous waste and destruction of crabs that have been going on for years, and these instructions will be handed out to the deputy commanders of the fishery force within the next few days. The deputy commander for Somerset county, the centre of the crab industry, was ordered to report at the office of the commission last Thursday for his instructions. Four crab inspectors for Somerset county are to be appointed and the men who have been suggested for the places have been asked to go to Baltimore for a conference with the commission and for a plain talk about what will be required of them. If they are appointed, their names will be announced immediately thereafter.

Maryland Enlistment Law Drastic

Far reaching and drastic is the new militia law for Maryland which was enacted by the recent General Assembly, and which went into effect on June 1.

The act gives the Governor the power and authority to put into effect and operation any change that Congress may make in the federal militia law pending the next session of the Maryland legislature.

The act practically establishes compulsory service on the part of Maryland in the National Guard to the extent of furnishing sufficient numbers to complete the requirements, if the voluntary enlistment has failed.

The opportunity for too close social scrutiny of the candidates selected for commission has been practically wiped out, in that the company no longer elects the officers, but each candidate must take an examination before an examination board, which is appointed by the Governor as commander in chief of the militia. This board must certify to the governor a list of the successful candidates within 20 days, from which list the governor shall select those entitled to commissions to fill vacancies.

The militia of the State will be divided into two classes—the active and the unorganized militia. This active militia shall consist of the organized and uniformed military forces of the State, which shall be known as the Maryland National Guard. The unorganized militia shall consist of all those liable to service in the militia, but not serving in the National Guard.

The fellow who always agrees with you generally wants to be paid.

Mr. Dingee's Dinner

Story of a Marriage Anniversary.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The day Silas Dingee married Maud Ball he declared that never before had he known real happiness. He swore that the anniversary of that blessed day which ended his bachelor loneliness would be more to him than all the holidays in the calendar together. A cynical friend at his farewell bachelor dinner the night before had said to him:

"Si, I'm sorry for you. Tomorrow you go to serve your life long term of regulation. Farewell independence. Farewell a jolly night at the club. Farewell cocktails; they'll taint your breath. Farewell cigars; they'll make the curtains smell. Goodby, Si. The matrimonial prison doors will soon close behind you."

"You dried up old bach," was Dingee's reply, "tomorrow will be the happiest day of my life. And let me tell you whenever the anniversary of my wedding comes round I'll have some delicate memento for the dear girl who is to furnish that happiness. I shall on that day remain at home from business and devote it to celebrating my escape from such crusty old bachelorhood as you represent."

When Mr. and Mrs. Dingee were driven away after the wedding festivities, followed by showers of rice and old shoes, it looked as if his promises would be kept. If ever there was a happy man it was Silas Dingee.

One year passed. Mr. Dingee had been made over by his wife from a bachelor to a married man. He had learned to live for some one besides himself. The first anniversary of his wedding had come round, the day that he had vowed he would celebrate above all others.

As Silas Dingee shrugged on his overcoat that morning preparatory to making a dash for the nearest subway station his pretty wife spoke from the dining room door.

"If I'm not at home when you come, dear—"

"Going out this afternoon?" interrupted Dingee peevishly.

"Just to Mrs. Wright's for bridge, honey," she soothed him. "If I'm not here the moment you arrive just get a bite to eat from the refrigerator and read your paper until I come. It won't take me fifteen minutes to get dinner after I arrive—steak and mushrooms, Silas—it's Hilda's afternoon out."

"Seems to be always Hilda's afternoon out and yours, too," grumbled Dingee as he kissed his wife farewell and departed.

As he opened his newspaper on the train he was still thinking of his dislike of being alone. It was one of his peculiarities that he was a restless mortal indeed when Maud was away from the apartment. Maud was an inveterate card player and belonged to two bridge clubs and a band of pinochle enthusiasts. On the evenings when he knew Maud would be late in coming home Mr. Dingee usually went from his office to his club and remained there until his wife's frantic telephone messages assured him that she was home and that dinner was waiting.

On such occasions he usually called a taxi and sped home on the wings of love and rubber tired wheels. Today everything went wrong. In the mail he found several misdirected letters, which had been returned to him. One of them was an important matter, which involved the loss of considerable money.

So he discharged the careless stenographer, scolded his chief clerk, scared the office boy into a state of humility and lunched at his club. After luncheon things went better. He telephoned to Chicago and found that he wouldn't lose the money after all. When the tearful stenographer came for her money he gave her another tri— and the office boy was emboldened to ask for a raise in his pay.

Whether he received it or not is not part of this tale, but at 4:30, when Mr. Dingee crossed his desk, he was feeling in high good humor with himself and the world. He had quite forgotten all about the lonely apartment he must return to and stopped to buy some violets for Maud. While he stood there who should rush up to him with hearty greeting but Tom Finch, Maud's Boston cousin and a particular chum of Silas Dingee's.

"Just going up to your place," remarked Tom.

"Mighty glad to see you!" cried Dingee heartily. "Maud's out this afternoon at some whist bat or other, but she'll be home by 6:30. We can have a bite to eat as soon as we get there."

"Good! I'm hungry. Had a little accident coming down. The buffet car and one coach derailed. Nobody hurt. Haven't had a bite since 10 this morning."

"Man alive, hurry!" Dingee hustled Tom into a taxi, and they whirled up town.

"It's 6 now. Maud will be home in a few minutes," said Dingee as he opened the door with his latchkey. But the rooms were dark until he switched on the lights and revealed the warm coziness of the place.

"We'll have to forage a bit," said Dingee as they left hats and overcoats in the hall and entered the dining room. "I'll make you a cup of coffee, hey?"

"Just the thing. I'm starved, old man."

They entered Hilda's spotless kitchen and investigated the refrigerator.

"Cold chicken! Not bad for a hand-out," commented Tom Finch as he pounced on the platter. "What's that, Silas—makin' of a salad?"

"Yes, and here's the mayonnaise. Take 'em along. Maud certainly has got some goodies put away for me. Let's try the pantry."

The pantry gave up a remarkably dainty loaf of bread and a huge round cake thickly iced with white.

When the men had set the table in the dining room there was a feast indeed.

"This is a regular birthday party," chuckled Tom as he carved the chicken. "Maud needn't bother about getting any dinner. This is good enough for me!"

"Suits me down to the ground," agreed Silas Dingee. "I suppose Maud will scold when she finds I've treated you to a picked up meal when she likes to put on company frills when you come down."

"Humph!" sniffed Tom Finch, who was more interested in the good things before him than he was in the elaborate preparations for any meal. "Seems to me you live pretty high. Didn't I see a steak and mushrooms and some kind of pudding in the icebox?"

"You did," said Silas cheerfully. "Those are for dinner."

"What is all this food for then?"

"Search me!" retorted Silas. "Have a piece of this perfectly splendid birthday cake?"

Tom Finch looked rather startled and laid down knife and fork. "You are sure—sure it isn't anybody's birthday?" he faltered.

Silas meditated. "Not mine or Maud's. It may be Hilda's or the cat's birthday. They don't count, though. What's that?"

"That" proved to be the buzzer from the dumbwaiter, and Silas Dingee hastened into the kitchen and fussed around a bit. Presently he returned and sat down again.

"Ice cream," he explained. "Maud's evidently going to have it for dessert. Funny, though, she should have ordered such a quantity."

A feeling of apprehension settled over the two men as they consumed the delicious cake, which was rich with fruit.

"If ever I tasted a birthday cake"—Tom was beginning when Silas Dingee interrupted impatiently.

"Hang it all, man, can't you stop croaking? What if we have eaten every hanged thing in the house, eh? It's my house, isn't it? I'll eat the ice cream if I want to!" he ended recklessly.

"Let's save something for Maud," grinned Tom Finch as he pushed back his chair.

As he spoke the door opened hastily, and Maud Dingee, flushed and rather excited from her hurried trip home, came in, followed by a remarkably pretty girl with ermine furs snuggled around her neck.

"Tom Finch!" cried Maud, falling on her cousin's shoulder. And over his shoulder her eyes surveyed the remains of the feast.

Silas Dingee looked at his wife and saw horror in her gaze. She came forward and looked at the remains of the chicken, the evidences of salad, the bare half loaf of bread and finally the damaged cake.

The girl in the doorway looked on with friendly, amused eyes.

"Silas Dingee," shrieked Maud at last, "what have you done?"

"Had a bite to eat, as you told me to," retorted Silas defiantly.

"But—but—you've—her voice was close to tears now—"you've eaten all the refreshments!"

"Refreshments for what?"

"For my party."

"Your party? When?"

"Tonight, goose!" she sobbed angrily. "Didn't you know that this is our wedding anniversary and it's Polly's birthday, and I was going to have the loveliest surprise for you? The Campbells are coming and the Lanes and the Treas."

Silas Dingee was pale, but he held his ground.

"How was I to know, Maud?" he explained.

"You might have remembered the day," she reproached him.

"I did," he prevaricated. "Didn't I bring you violets?" Triumphantly he produced the box of flowers.

Still Maud eyed him suspiciously. "You often bring those on ordinary occasions," she said, but her husband's chagrined face quite melted her heart so that presently she smiled and said it didn't matter and remembered to introduce Tom to the pretty Polly in the doorway.

Everything turned out beautifully, after all. Dingee frantically telephoned to a caterer and a florist, and Maud and Polly dashed around and straightened up the rooms for the expected company.

They ate a hurried meal in the kitchen, Tom Finch skillfully making sandwiches for the two girls.

It was a most delightful party. Still, Dingee saw there was one tiny cloud which even the sight of Tom's devotion to Polly could not lift from his wife's heart.

Although he did not ask for an explanation, Silas Dingee is quite sure that Maud was more hurt because he had forgotten that it was their wedding anniversary than she was over the stolen dinner.

However, to be on the safe side, he has carefully noted on his desk calendar the important date for next year, and there isn't any likelihood that he will forget it, especially as Tom and Polly have selected the same date for their own wedding.

FLORAL ARISTOCRATS.

Orchids are Not Parasites, and It Is Difficult to Raise Them.

Aristocrats of the flower kingdom—and probably the least understood. You hear them called parasites, which is only one of the common mistakes made about the orchid. You see a hundred different shapes and a dozen different colors grouped together, each shape perhaps a distinct family and each with a separate name.

In the first place, orchids are not parasites. A parasitical plant is one which gets nourishment from another plant. Certain orchids live on trees, but they get their food and drink from the air by means of aerial roots. We call them epiphytes. Other orchids get their nourishment directly from the ground. They're called terrestrial orchids.

People don't understand, either, why orchids cost so much. They fail to see why a tiny plant is sold for, say, $1,000. If they realized that rare orchids may have cost a long trip into a tropical jungle to obtain and that it takes from eight to ten years to raise a plant from the seed, with patient care and treatment, they could see why these flowers remain in the aristocratic class.

Only the orchid grower can understand all the details of his art, but the flower lover can easily learn to distinguish the various types.—Philadelphia North American.

THIS FISH IS A BUTCHER.

And He Carries His Saw in His Ugly Mouth at All Times.

Moral of this fish story is: The value of anything depends on how it is used. A safety match used to light a beacon lamp and another match used to set fire to a city have widely separated ranks in the realm of utility. On the same principle of values the sawfish belongs near the bottom rank in the ocean kingdom.

His saw, the presence of which you may have guessed already, consists of a long, beaklike mouth decorated with many sharp, firm spines. It varies in length with the size of the fish, some monsters twenty feet long carrying saws six feet long and a foot wide.

A saw, like a match, varies in value according to the way it is used. That's where the sawfish makes a fizzle of life. Think how much good he could accomplish by using his saw on harbors choked up with weeds, channels blocked with logs and lagoons crowded with trees and undergrowth.

Instead of a carpenter, a road builder, a farmer, the sawfish becomes a butcher. He swishes his saw this way and that quite recklessly and dops up smaller fish into steaks and sausage; then he eats the pieces.—Philadelphia North American.

The Better Way.

Let it be said once for all that it is better for both body and soul to be obliged to go hungry sometimes than to be full always; it is wholesomer to be weary frequently from hard work than to keep on a dead level of comfort or to know weariness only from the spinning dance and the daily pleasure; it is cleaner to be dusty and bathed in the blood and sweat of battle than to be so sheltered as not to know the meaning of a hand to hand conflict with a real problem or fierce temptation; it is grander to break the shackles of exclusiveness and walk free in the dingy city of social unpopularity than to be the idol of men and women who do not count for, but rather against, the progress of the race.—From "The Inspiration of Responsibility," by Bishop Charles H. Brent.

Meteors.

Meteors had an unusual influence on the Greeks and Romans, who in a way worshiped the falling bodies of luminosity. It is declared that the Palladium of Troy and the image of Diana at Ephesus were erected to meteors. At times the fall of these mysterious strangers has been accompanied by disastrous results, for it is on record in China that ten persons have been struck and killed by them. The Smithsonian institution has among its meteoric collections one which weighs in the neighborhood of 500 pounds, whose composition is nearly pure nickel. There have been discovered by chemical analysis twenty-nine elements in meteors, all of which are found on and in the earth.

Cats and Needles.

Cats seem to have a habit of swallowing needles. When a cat is brought to a veterinary hospital suffering with a cough the doctor always looks for a needle. In one instance Dr. Childs of New York operated on a cat to remove what he thought was an ordinary needle. He found a hatpin nine inches long. But the cat's life was saved.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Modern Moses.

"And then gives it to them?"

"No; promises it."—Washington Star.

RADIANT HEAT.

It Is Not Real Heat, but Only a Form of Wave Motion.

When a fire is lighted it throws off what we call heat rays or waves. These waves are very much like the waves of light which come from a light or fire or the air waves which produce sounds. The rays of light and heat which come from the sun are like the rays of light and heat from a fire.

Heat is of two kinds—heat proper, which is resident in the body, and radiant heat, which is the kind which comes to us from the sun or from a fire. This radiant heat is not heat at all, but a form of wave motion thrown out by the vibrations in the ether. The heat we feel is the sensation produced upon our skins when it comes in contact with the waves created by the fire.

Heat was formerly thought to be an actual substance, but we know now that radiant heat is known to be the energy of heat transferred to the ether which fills all of space and is in all bodies also. The hot body sets the particles of ether in vibration, and this vibrating motion in the form of waves travels in all directions.

When these vibrations strike against our skin they produce a heat sensation. Striking other objects these vibrations may produce instead of a heat sensation either chemical action or luminosity. This is determined by the length of the vibratory rays in each case.—Philadelphia Press.

WHEN A SHIP TURNS TURTLE.

Often the Bottom of the Vessel Is Blown Out as She Goes Down.

To "turn turtle" means in nautical language that a ship rolls too heavily, fails to recover herself and after a brief period on her beam ends turns topsy turvy, so that her keel points skyward. Then, of course, she goes down.

Frequently the compressed air imprisoned in her hull blows her bottom out as she goes down, or if she is a steamer her boilers burst, with similar results.

As a rule, ships turn turtle because they are burdened with too much "top hamper" or from lack of sufficient ballast or both causes combined.

Rarely does it happen that there are any survivors, but there is one notable exception in the case of the battleship Captain, which was lost after this fashion in the bay of Biscay. In her case exactly three minutes elapsed from the time she first turned turtle until she finally sank, and forty of her crew of 500 men clambered up her side as she rolled over and on to her keel. Of these eighteen men were eventually rescued and were able to describe later on precisely what occurred.—Pearson's Weekly.

How Gold Plate Is Made.

There is practically no solid gold plate. The so called gold plate services are silver gilt, and only a few pieces of pure gold are owned by the English crown or any other crown. It may interest our readers to learn how this fire, mercurial or water gliding—for it is known by all of these three names—is done. Pure gold and mercury are mixed into a paste. The silver article to be gilded has been chemically cleaned, is rubbed all over with this paste, which has been placed in a silk bag, just as the blue used in washing is put in a bag. When the piece of plate has been rubbed over it is perfectly white. It is then put into an oven, and gradually the mercury goes off in fumes, leaving on the article a deposit of pure gold, which has practically become one with the piece of silver and will last for centuries.—New York Post.

He Got Valuable Information.

The story is told of the times of Aretas Blood and the old Manchester locomotive works that a student came to Mr. Blood once and wanted to study the business of locomotive building in his vacation days. The student came well recommended, and Mr. Blood, who never had much use for these "tech" people, sent him down to the boiler shop and placed him in charge of the old foreman. The old man took the course of the inspection of the shop they came across one boiler on the inside of which was a man at work.

"How does that man get out?" inquired the "tech" man.

"Oh," said the venerable pilot, "he doesn't get out. We always count upon losing at least one man in building a boiler."—Manchester Guardian.

Surface Heat of the Sun.

We think the sun is pretty hot in summer when the thermometer goes up to 90 degrees in the shade or out. We begin to get sunburned a long time before it reaches that high. But right on the sun's surface it is between 10,000 and 15,000 degrees hot. That is, of course, a degree of heat which we cannot conceive. How much hotter still it is on the inside of the sun we do not as yet know.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says:
"No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

The Co-operative Plan

A Farmer Tries It on an Auto

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

I was driving across the country with a horse and buggy when I came to the wreck of an auto in the ditch, and a farmer was tinkering at it. He had a sledge, crowbar, an ax, a cold chisel and a screwdriver and had worked up a nice little state of perspiration.

"You appear to have a wreck here," I said as I drew in my horse. "Appear!" he shouted as he looked up. "If this isn't the durndest wreck anybody ever saw I'll eat my hat!"

"How did it happen?" "How does anything happen to an auto with a fool driving it?"

"Was it yours?" I asked, scenting a story.

"One-fifth of her was mine up to last night. Now the whole sad remains belong to me. Did you ever hear of the co-operative plan among farmers?"

"Lots of times." "Well, then, this was co-operation in buyin' and runnin' an automobile, and this is one of the results of it. The other result is that I am about $300 out of pocket and have lost a widdler who was goin' to be my wife. If you want to hear all about it I'll tell you, for I guess it ain't any use to tinker any more at this blamed old thing."

The farmer took a seat on the mortal remains of the auto and drew a long breath and proceeded to say: "There was Tom Evans, Joe Baxter, Jim Williams and St. Perkins. They are all farmers and live about here. They are all married men, and each one has a gang of children. As for me, I am an old bachelor, but I was a-spurkin' of the nicest widdler woman in this county. The four men I have mentioned come over to my house one evenin' a month ago, and Tom Evans he asks if I would go in with 'em on the co-operative plan to buy an auto."

"How much?" says I. "A thousand," says he. "That's $250 each."

"Just so, Sam."

"And the auto was bought?" I queried.

"She was, sir. She arrived here glisterin' like a star, and she excited the wonder of folks for ten miles around. We got a feller from town to show us how to run her, and in about a week we was all ready to glide around the country. Bein' I was a single man and mightily in love with a widdler, they said I might take the auto out first, which was very decent of them. I felt sure I could run the machine as good as any man in the state. It was a bright moonlight night, and the whippoorwills were singin' and the katydids chirpin', and that widdler woman should promise to be mine before we returned."

"And did she?" was asked as the farmer heaved a long sigh.

"She didn't, stranger, and I'll tell you why. We had gone about a mile as steady as an old horse when the auto shied at a stone in the road, ran through a rail fence, wrecked the auto, and the widow gave me fits."

"It gets interestin'," I said.

"Kinder interestin', stranger—kinder so. We got a machinist to tinker $20 worth of tinkin', and the old machine could run again. Then it was Tom's turn. He has a wife and five children, and they all piled in. They was clip-pin' along as happy as larks when they came to a crossroad. The auto was for keepin' straight ahead, Tom wanted to turn to the right and his wife to the left, and the result was that the machine run into and knocked over the guildestop and then tried to climb a fence. The whole family took a spill and was scattered for twenty rods around. No one was killed, and there was no broken bones, but the bruises are yet blue, and Tom still walks bent over like an old man on account of the jar to his spine. By this time we had all got skeery of the machine; but, it bein' now Jim's turn and he not wantin' to be called a coward, he took out his family for a promenade. As the other accidents had occurred at night, Jim went out in the afternoon. He thought there might be somethin' in the night air that affected the old critter. There was seven in the family, and they was climbin' the hill beyond the red ridge when all at once the auto gave a snort and stopped in her tracks."

"What's the matter?" asked Jim's wife.

"Durned if I know, but she's got to go!" he answers.

"And she did go, sir—she went backwards. There was screamin' and yellin' and swearin', and Joe's wife slapped his face, but nothin' did any good. That auto kept on goin' backwards until it dumped them all in the river, which was about three feet deep at that time. They was shook up and bruised and half drowned, but they were lucky for all that. They waded ashore and left the old auto lyin' on its back in the river."

"But you got it out again?" I asked.

"Yes. We had to," was the reply. "It was in tryin' to get the old critter home ag'in that she suddenly bolted and run into a telegraph pole and wrecked herself as you see her."

"And she won't be tinkered up again?"

"She can't be. There's nothin' left to tinker, unless the blacksmith thinks he can make five wise men out of the five fools who bought her and lost about $230 apiece. I used to think co-operation of farmers was a beautiful thing, but darn my cats if I ain't through with it!"

CARIBOU OF THE YUKON.

Caution of an Old Bull In Guiding and Guarding His Herd.

In his book, "Campfires In the Yukon," Harry A. Auer tells how his party watched through powerful glasses an old bull manage a herd of caribou:

"Five miles into the sea of peaks above our camp we saw a herd of thirty-four caribou that had been summering in the high altitudes, but were now driven out by the winter and were on the march to lower levels. There were cows, calves and small bulls in charge and under the strict domination of a fine old bull with a big head, which we decided not to shoot for fear of alarming the sheep that might be within hearing distance."

"We were quite content to watch the old patriarch manage his large family. We saw him lead the way to a small willow patch, and after his flock had browsed a few minutes he deliberately drove them away and headed them down the valley toward us, rushing first on one side and then on the other and finally at the rear of the column, trying to keep his charges from straggling or wandering off the course."

"When the caribou saw us at about 200 yards they started to stampe in different courses, but the old bull ran to the head of the column and changed the leader's course and, utterly regardless of his own danger from us, he rushed about, herding the animals in the way he had selected and was himself the last to follow, and as the flying band vanished around a low ridge the old fellow was charging a few smaller bulls from behind, driving them forward to make a compact formation."

ORIGIN OF WORDS.

Expressions Sometimes Stray From Their Original Meanings.

The word "sweetheart" seems everything it ought to be for expressiveness. One would naturally think that it had been coined for the occasion, like such a word as "honeysuckle."

But that is a delusion and a snare. It has no more to do with "heart" than it has with "lungs." It is a word that belongs to the class which includes "sluggard" and "coward" and "dullard" and "niggard." Pretty company for a poet's word! But it is true, though sad, that "sweetheart" ought to be spelled "sweetard."

Who has not joined in a country dance? Of course the country dance reminds one of maypoles and merry-makings and harvest homes. Sir Roger de Coverley and his quaint rural manners and ways seem inseparably connected with the dance. But it has no more connection with fields and haystacks and cornricks than the turkey trot. The partners in the dance face each other, and the French therefore called it a "contre danse." There you are! The secret's out.

What are "kicksnaws?" Just the French "quelques choses," which means "anything."

What is the origin of tramway? It is short for Outram way, because a man named Outram invented them, just as a man named Macadam invented macadamized roads.—London Answers.

Traditions of Mother Shipton.

Of all British prophets Mother Shipton is beyond doubt the most celebrated. She was, in fact, all that a prophet and witch should be, in strange contrast to the serious and scientific Nostradamus. The day she was born the sky became dark and gloomy and, according to her biographer, "belched out nothing for an hour but flames, thundering after a most hideous manner." Her personal appearance, described by her admiring biographer in 1602, is scarcely flattering: "Her physiognomy was so misshapen that it is altogether impossible to express fully in words or for the most ingenious to line her in colors, though many persons of eminent qualifications in that line have often attempted it, but without success."

His Favorite Phrase.

Once when they were talking literature Mrs. Isobel Strong said to Robert Louis Stevenson, "At least you have no mannerisms," whereupon Stevenson took a copy of his own "Merry Men," which she was reading, out of her hands and read, "It was a wonderful clear night of stars." "Oh," he said, "how many, many times I have written 'a wonderful clear night of stars.'"

THE COUNTY AGENT.

Progress Through Demonstration Made on a Virginia Farm.
[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

An interesting instance of the effect which an active county agent, supported by progressive farmers, can have upon the agriculture of a county is afforded by the experience of Culpeper county, Va. An article in the new year book of the United States department of agriculture traces the transformation which has taken place there since the appointment of a county agent in 1911.

The department of agriculture co-operated with the fiscal court of the county in the appointment of this agent. At first the farmers were none too receptive. The agent often had to spend from four to five hours to secure the co-operation of a farmer, while today the unsolicited calls for assistance require all of his time.

The first efforts of the county agent and the men behind him were toward the betterment of the lines of farming that supported the growing of live stock, the greatest agricultural industry of the county. Corn, accordingly, was among the first crops to receive attention. The aim was to secure the introduction of more productive varieties and proper cultivation. The first year twenty-two men co-operated by giving demonstrations on their farms. The demonstrators averaged forty-eight bushels an acre, whereas the average for the county in 1910 had been only 21.01 bushels. The following year more demonstrators were secured, and they averaged 70.6 bushels. The third year the average for the demonstrators fell to 50.7, but in the fourth it rose again to 65.5. For the four years in which demonstrations have been carried on 212 demonstrations on 1,100 acres averaged 53.7 bushels per acre.

Another object lesson was afforded by the Five Acre club, formed in 1914. In this club forty farmers agreed to grow each a five acre field of corn to determine what amount could be raised on that area. The result was an average of seventy-five bushels per acre. As a result of this work the increase in the yield of corn over the entire county has been estimated at 22½ per cent.

In the interest of more and better live stock more forage as well as more grain is necessary, and to this end the county agent has conducted systematic demonstration campaigns for the introduction and increase of alfalfa meadows and pastures. In the fall of 1911 only two patches of alfalfa were being grown in the county, and they were partial failures. The agent started two acres on his own farm, and immediately three or four other farmers did the same thing. These plots were visited by farmers from all over the county in order to learn the best practices to follow. As a result 2,000 acres were in alfalfa in 1915. One of the most interesting demonstrations with this crop took place on a large dairy farm. Last year six acres on this farm were cut five times, and the hay sold at $10 a ton. The gross receipts from the six acres were $784.54, the total amount of hay being 48.78½ tons and the average per acre being 7.797 tons.

TIMELY POULTRY NOTES.

If you do not grade your eggs some one else will, and you will pay him for doing it.

Grit should be supplied to chickens at all times, as it aids digestion. Lime in some form must be supplied to the laying hen to keep up her supply, which is so heavily drawn upon during egg production. Grit can be purchased in commercial form or coarse sand and small stones will do. Lime can be purchased in the form of oyster shells, though old plaster or dry cracked bones are fairly good.

Have a light poultry house admitting plenty of fresh air without producing direct drafts of air. The germs of most diseases cannot live in fresh air or very strong light.

Egg production is not measured so much by the quantity as by the quality of the food.

Feed the layers with proper rations. Avoid foods giving undesirable colors, flavors or odors to the egg contents. The dry, well lighted henhouse is a pretty good guarantee against roup.

Hughes And Fairbanks Nominated

Following the failure of conferees representing the Republican and Progressive conventions to agree upon any man for the amalgamation of the two parties, the Republican National Convention wound its work up at 2.05 o'clock last Saturday afternoon by nominating Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hughes, for President, and Charles W. Fairbanks, for Vice-President.

Before the adjournment, the chairman of the convention announced that he had received a message from Mr. Hughes saying that he would accept the nomination.

The final moves in the drama that culminated in the nomination of Mr. Hughes by the "straight goods" convention and inflicted the most violent jolt to the vanity of Colonel Roosevelt ever experienced by him, were short, sharp and decisive.

The Progressive National Convention after four days of tumult, with but one purpose in view, last Saturday nominated Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for President, and Colonel John M. Parker, of Louisiana, for Vice-President. A few hours later the delegates listened without protest to a message from Oyster Bay saying that Roosevelt would not "accept at this time." The convention adjourned at 4.58 p. m.

Colonel Roosevelt's declination was conditional and it was placed in the hands of the Progressive National Committee, to be held until such time as statements to be made by Justice Hughes, the nominee of the Republican party, "shall satisfy the committee that it is for the interest of the country that he be elected."

THE GRADUATE

This is the commencement season, when thousands of graduates are thrust out into the world, with only a piece of paper as a recommendation for years of preparation. It is a triumphant event in the lives of our young men and women, but it has its saddening effect upon the adults who have been subjected to the grinding mills of the worldly gods.

On such occasion commencement addresses and baccalaureate sermons are epochal and even necessary to give proper tone to the proceedings. These preachments breathe advice to the starter in the race for worldly aggrandizement and exploit the besetting temptations and traps to which he is subjected, but in the setting of new white dresses and black suits is there any real heed paid to these historic efforts? Would any attention be paid to similar advice under less auspicious conditions? The graduate is optimistic and it is his rightful prerogative. He has a world to conquer and he intends to conduct the warfare in his own original way. The obstacles of his father have no concern for him. He is almost omnipotent and immune from the hazards of his progenitors.

Presenting his sheepskin as his only recommendation to enter the world's competition, he gets his first blow to his aspiring ideas. He may survive the first, but the second or third cold shoulder hurts his scholastic pride. Faced with the cold fact that there is no enthusiastic desire for his services, it is then that the real caliber of the young man or woman is shown. Cynically accepting this reception, they can be accepted as failures. Rising above such exigencies and admitting that they are no better than their fathers, bucking down to the grind and compelling the respect of all concerned by their exhibition of grit and perseverance, there are others who will succeed either as plodders or illuminants in their chosen fields of action.

Youth is wonderful for the very reason that once lost it can never be restored. The optimism of the graduate has an equal valuation, and his prospective employer might well be reminded that he once had the Napoleonic idea of conquering the world and that it is within his province of experience to deal leniently with the boy or girl who may one day be a real man or woman. —Baltimore Star.

The Real Mexican Issue

The real issue in Mexico is totally ignored by the Republicans who denounce the President for not doing something—they are careful not to say what. The real issue is the Government of that country by constitutional means, or by a military despot.

Nearly six years ago the Mexicans rose in revolt against a military dictator. He was a very good one of his kind, but he was none the less a despot. We had nothing to do with the internal affairs of Mexico, but the greater part of the American people sympathized with the effort to secure popular government.

Since the Madero revolution was started the country has been devastated by continuous internecine warfare. We regretted it, but we could not prevent it. Diaz, Madero and Huerta have passed away and there has emerged a de facto government which appears to be pledged to constitutional methods of administration. Presumably the American people sympathize with this. But it has never become fully established, and it has not the iron hand of Porfirio Diaz. It could not restrain the bandits who are in insurrection against it, and when they crossed the boundary and attacked an American town we sent our army after them and the troops are still on foreign soil, not fighting against Mexico; not at enmity with the de facto Government; but determined to suppress the bandits who invaded this country.

In doing this our Government has done all that could be done, with the exception of one thing, which the Republicans are clamoring for by indirection, though they do not dare avow it. American capitalists have gone into Mexico, and they are entitled to protection from the Government of the country where they live and have invested their money. But for nearly six years there has been no Government that was strong enough to do this.

What the Republicans desire—though they refrain from putting it into words—is that the United States should invade Mexico and either annex the country, or set up another military despot who will protect the property interests of Americans who have gone into a foreign country in order to make money. The Republicans in effect, but evasively, insist that the United States shall find a "man on horseback" for Mexico and set him up and protect him with bayonets until he can establish such a strong but despotic rule as that of Diaz.

The whole burden of Republican complaint against the President for not recognizing Huerta and aiding him in borrowing money in New York is that the President would not lend the assistance of the United States to the maintenance of a despotism. If there were in Mexico another Diaz the Republicans would be satisfied because property would be protected. It is not the duty of the United States to govern Mexico. It is not the genius of Americanism to assist a military dictator in suppressing all movements for popular Government. And a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress will not conquer Mexico in order to safeguard property interests. That is the whole case of the Republicans against President Wilson in the matter of Mexico. —Philadelphia Record.

Catarh Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions, and in order to cure it you must take an internal remedy. Hall's Catarh Cure is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Hall's Catarh Cure was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years. It is composed of some of the best tonics known, combined with some of the best blood purifiers. The perfect combination of the ingredients in Hall's Catarh Cure is what produces such wonderful results in catarrhal conditions. Send for testimonials free.

Sea Fights And Navies

Let the Germans and the British make their claims and their counter-claims of victory in the great North Sea battle, Uncle Sam views the outcome with equanimity and observes as a direct result the rise of his own Navy in the scale of relative strength. The United States Navy today is stronger by reason of the twenty or thirty ships that went down in the North Sea battle. If the foe men are determined to carry the issue of their respective claims to control the seas to the ultimate, they will meet again in combat even more fierce than the Skagerak battle and with even greater numbers of ships engaged and severe losses.

The result will be the killing off of one or the other fleet and the crippling of the victor. By this Kilkeny-cat method of winning sea laurels the United States would find itself boosted perhaps even to the first rank as a sea power without being under the necessity of building a single additional ship. So that from a purely cold-blooded and selfish point of view the sooner the German and the British fleets get together again the more comfortable will the United States be after the war. For an arrogant sovereign of the sea would entail immense costs to this country in order to hold up its end and to insure its full rights of commerce. It may be that the preparedness program will not have to be so heroic through the reduction of the menace of foreign fleets by the process of sea battles and disputed victories. —Baltimore American.

Forethought

People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping ketchup years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Obtainable everywhere.

More Money For Blood

There seems to be no likelihood of the war, that has grown more bitter within the past weeks, closing before next winter sets in, or closing before that winter shall have ended. A bill introduced into the German Reichstag for $3,000,000,000 war credits indicates that the German government is still intent upon making the military map the prevailing argument for the exaction of an enormous indemnity from the foe upon the close of the war.

Germany is basing its war finances upon ultimate victory, and every fresh war loan makes the attainment of victory and the abandonment of a compromise peace a necessity for the national stability of the Germans. Hence, the prospect for a half-way settlement of the war vanishes with the new war loan that will be speedily authorized. This will mean a fresh war loan for the Allies and England will provide the bulk of this money.

The more money raised for the shedding of blood the more blood will have to be shed in the gamble now going on to see who shall pay the war debt for the entire group of nations engaged in the war orgie. —Baltimore American.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE Farm Property

By virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, passed at a sale in which Lizzie Parkin is plaintiff and Jacob Goble and others are defendants, the undersigned trustee therein named, will sell at public auction at the Court House door, in Princess Anne, Maryland, on

TUESDAY, JUNE 20TH, 1916,

at or about the hour of 2.30 o'clock p. m., all that valuable farm in West Princess Anne District, Somerset County, Maryland, on the northwest side of the new county road leading from Princess Anne to the Revell's Neck road, containing more or less, of which about 50 acres are high land and the balance marsh land, adjoining the land of Charles C. Gelder and the land of William Wetter and wife, wherein the late Peter C. Goble resided at the time of his death, and also a parcel of detached woodland on the southeast side of said county road, containing 8 1/2 acres, more or less, adjoining the land of Charles C. Gelder and used in connection with said farm.

This farm is improved by a dwelling house, barn and outbuildings. A plat of both parcels will be exhibited on the day of sale and can be seen in the meantime at the office of the trustee, in Princess Anne, Md.

This property will be sold subject to the dower interest of Maria C. Goble, widow of Peter C. Goble, therein, and also subject to the tenancy of Joseph Warwick for the year 1918; possession to be given on the 1st of January, 1917, and all crops to be harvested in the present year are reserved.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third cash on the day of sale, and the balance in two equal instalments of six and twelve months from the day of sale, to be secured by the bond of the purchaser with approved security, bearing interest from the day of sale, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. Title papers at the expense of the purchaser.

H. FILLMORE LANKFORD, Trustee.

Order Nisi

In the matter of the tax sale of Real Estate in Deal's Island Election District of Somerset County, assessed to William J. Harris, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset County. Harry T. Phoebus, purchaser, Ex Parte.

No. 3088 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity.

Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset County, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, a sale made by him to Harry T. Phoebus, of all that lot of land in Deal's Island District, Somerset County, Maryland, and Lot No. 11—Being all that lot of land in Deal's Island District, Somerset County, Maryland, as aforesaid, containing one and one-half acres of land more or less, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of Henry Cottman, Elizabeth Kemp and Sallie Titchman, conveyed unto William J. Harris by S. J. Windsor and others by deed recorded in Liber H. F. L., No. 5, folio 408, etc., and assessed to the said William J. Harris on the assessment books for said election district, for the said year 1915, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto, and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered this 6th day of May, in the year 1916, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset County, before the 30th day of June, in the year 1916, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 30th day of June, 1916, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report shows the amount of the sales to be $7.60.

Charlie Chaplin will be the attraction at the Auditorium next Friday night, June 16th, in one of his latest successes, "A Burlesque on Carmen," in four reels. This is the most expensive four reel picture that the management of the Auditorium has ever placed before the public, and all lovers of the movies should avail themselves of the opportunity of witnessing Charlie Chaplin, the high-priced actor. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

An effort should be made by the merchants to form an agreement among themselves to close their stores at 7 o'clock each evening during the week, with the exception of Saturday, during the warm weather. It is certainly to be hoped that they will succeed in making such an agreement. There are very few stores that makes expenses after that hour, and it is a hardship upon the clerks and owners which could easily be avoided. Nine people out of ten would do their dealing before that hour if they knew the stores would be closed. Some of our merchants have closed their stores heretofore but others remained open. Get together this year and all close during the hot summer months and all have the welfare of his fellowman at heart.

Mrs. John W. Dixon and daughter, Mrs. Clem Sterling, of Princess Anne, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Dixon's son, Mr. J. A. Dixon, at Cheriton, Va.

Mrs. Henry Flurer left last Thursday to attend the commencement exercises of Western Maryland College at Westminster, Md., where her daughter, Miss Gertrude Flurer, will be one of the graduates.

Mrs. Joseph Haines, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haines, Jr., and their little son, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herbert, of Philadelphia, spent the week end in Princess Anne at the home of Mrs. Anna L. Haines.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Twilley, Mr. Merritt Twilley, Master Richard Twilley and Miss Elizabeth L. Twilley, of Chestertown, Md., spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Twilley C. Porter, near Loretto.

The K. D. Sewing Club, of Mt. Vernon, will render the drama "Home Ties," at John Wesley Hall tonight (Tuesday) beginning at 8.15 o'clock. Proceeds for the benefit of the Junior League of John Wesley Church, Mt. Vernon.

Hon. and Mrs. Joshua W. Miles, Mrs. S. F. Miles, of Marion, and Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo L. Miles, of Salisbury, yesterday went by automobile to attend the commencement exercises of Western Maryland College at Westminster, Maryland.

The Board of County Commissioners for Talbot county have fixed the county tax rate for this year at $1 on the $100. It was 87¢ last year. Alfred Lee Tharp, Republican, was appointed counsel to the board in place of W. Mason Shehan, Democrat.

Mrs. Adeline LeCompte, who had been ill at Cambridge, Md., for some weeks past, has sufficiently recovered to return to the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. H. Hayman, in Princess Anne. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Gibbons, and her granddaughter, Mrs. Phelps, of Cambridge.

Rev. Robert G. Hamilton, who some years ago was Rector of Somerset Parish, died on Ascension Day at his home in Powell, Wyoming, in his 67th year. Funeral services were held at St. John's Church in that city on Monday, June 5th. Mr. Hamilton is well remembered. He and his family resided in the old rectory now owned by Mr. Henry Flurer. He was in charge of this parish for several years.

Heavy Fines To Sell Bad Eggs

Summer egg shipments can be made safely only if candled and all worthless eggs eliminated. Shippers will be liable to prosecution and their eggs to confiscation if the shipments contain more than 5 per cent dead loss. The United States Department of Agriculture, through the Bureau of Chemistry, has recently issued a bulletin containing the following statements:

"Under the Federal Food and Drugs Acts, eggs, in common with other articles of food, are adulterated if they consist of wholly or in part of a filthy, decomposed or putrid substance. Section 2 of the acts prohibits the shipment in interstate commerce of foods which are adulterated, and it is plain that this prohibition applies to the shipment in interstate commerce of 'current receipts' or of 'rejects' from candling rooms or of any other grade of eggs in the shell unless the filthy, decomposed or putrid eggs have been removed."

"In the opinion of the department, eggs which contain yolk stuck to the shell, moldy eggs, black spots, mixed rots, and any other eggs which consist wholly or in part of a filthy, decomposed, or putrid substance, are adulterated."

Under the new statutes persons who ship bad eggs, or who gather and bring to the stores or to dealers bad eggs, are liable to prosecution. The penalty is a fine of $200 for the first offense, and $300 for the second.

HE TEMPTS DEATH

Deadly Dangers a Nitroglycerin Maker Must Face.

NEVER IS SURE OF HIS LIFE.

Any Moment the Worker in a Nitroator May Be Blown to Atoms—A Calling That Demands Coolness, Prudence and Daring—One Man's Experience.

Nitroglycerin is made by ordinary sweet glycerin acting with a mixture of strong sulphuric and nitric acid. The glycerin is dropped by a very thin stream slowly into a mixture of three parts nitric and five parts sulphuric acid. During the process the containing vessel is kept cool by a water jacket, and the acid mixture is agitated by a stream of cool air. The temperature is maintained at about 80 degrees. After the operation the whole mixture is drawn off into a tank and is allowed to stand in this vessel, cooled by a water jacket. The glycerin, which is now nitroglycerin, immediately begins to come to the top like cream on milk. This is at once taken care of and is put through various processes to cleanse it of all remaining traces of acid.

In no department of our plant must greater care be exercised than in the nitroator, which is the name given to the building where nitroglycerin is manufactured.

Explosions are frequent, and it takes a man of iron nerve to conduct this department. It is like going into battle every day. Yet in the face of this we have one man who has successfully made nitroglycerin for twenty years, and he lives to tell you about it, only he won't. He is as reticent as the sphinx.

Like any other man of great courage, he does not boast, and John Viewberger will talk about anything except the miracle of his continued existence. I can only say that Divine Providence, a cool head and hands and a stout heart have kept him at his work.

The acid fumes that fill the building at all times when nitration is taking place have long since eaten away the very teeth in his head, but not his pluck. It is a fact that he is provided with a new set of false teeth on an average twice a year. The hair on his head has long ago disappeared, and the fumes have tanned his skin to the color of bronze until he resembles a cave man of old. And yet he has never had a day of sickness in these twenty years. He thinks, as I do, that no disease, no matter how virulent, could successfully combat the nitric fumes that he inhales. So his work has its compensations, if you are pleased to look at it that way.

While nitration of glycerin is going on Viewberger sits on a high stool, his arms stretched over the nitrating machine, one hand on a faucet that controls the flow of glycerin into the acid, the other hand on a valve regulating the cooled compressed air that is forced into the mixture and his eye glued to the thermometer that extends well down into the mixture. I have said that the glycerin undergoes nitration at a temperature of 80 degrees. The temperature is regulated by the quantity of glycerin that flows into the acid. If the temperature begins to rise above 80 degrees he closes his valve slightly, reducing the flow of glycerin, and increases the flow of cool air.

Any little foreign substance that might get into the mixture, even through the acid of glycerin or otherwise, would cause immediate trouble. The slightest leak in the water cooling coils, permitting a little water to get into the mixture, would be the signal for the thermometer to do a marathon, and in a few minutes the whole mixture would reach the degree of heat that would result in an explosion. Viewberger cannot desert his post when the temperature begins to rise rapidly. This condition frequently takes place, and most of the time it can be reduced by cutting off the flow of glycerin entirely and by turning on the air to the full pressure of fifty pounds. Sometimes, however, in spite of all, it will continue to rise, and Viewberger knows or feels that he has lost control. He must leave his mixture to its fate and "dig out."

His building, the nitroator, is located on a hill higher than its surroundings. The hill is a high sand dune. Immediately back of the stool on which he sits is a big door that is always left open when he is manufacturing. Viewberger's method of exit or getaway is to jump out of this door and roll down the hill. While he is on his way the explosion takes place. He has done this some twenty times and yet has never received an injury. He has never been struck with flying debris, although the air is filled with flying pieces of lead and iron. Does history record a greater miracle? Dug out of the sand semiconscious from the impact of an explosion, in the course of half an hour he has been quite himself again, ready to go to work if need be, his only regret being the loss of property sustained by the company.—Willard Fay in Collier's Weekly.

Reason For Joy.
"What a beautiful girl that is standing over there!"
"I'm glad to hear you say so. She is my daughter."
"Hallelujah!" he said to his wife when the mother had departed. "For once in my life I struck it right!"—Detroit Free Press.

There is always the sun, only we must do our part, we must move into it.—Clara Louise Burnham.

WHY YOU ARE NERVOUS

The nervous system is the alarm system of the human body. In perfect health we hardly realize that we have a network of nerves, but when health is ebbing, when strength is declining, the same nervous system gives the alarm in headaches, tiredness, dreamful sleep, irritability and unless corrected, leads straight to a breakdown. To correct nervousness, Scott's Emulsion is exactly what you should take; its rich nutriment gets into the blood and rich blood feeds the tiny nerve-cells while the whole system responds to its refreshing tonic force. It is free from alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

FRAMING PICTURES.

The Art Reached Its Climax in Italy in the Sixteenth Century. It is a significant sign of the unimportance accorded to picture frames that in attempting any research on the subject one can only discover an occasional notice of some individual frame among a mass of detail comprised under the generic title of "Frames," which ranges from chimney pieces, door furniture and girandoles down to the designs employed in book illustrations, called by the French "cartouches."

Only in Italy was the art of picture framing a fine art, and the examples worth studying belong almost entirely to that country. Picture frames are of comparatively modern origin, for during the long period of the middle ages such portable pictures as existed were inclosed in wooden cases with doors and had, consequently, no frames, while mirrors were not yet in existence. It was not till life became more settled and houses were considered in relation to peace as well as war that the custom began to prevail of placing pictures on walls. They start, therefore, in the fifteenth century and are at the height of their perfection in the sixteenth.

From the earliest times Italian artists knew that for a painting to be rightly appreciated it was necessary to inclose it in a kind of surrounding. They knew, too, that it could never be a matter of caprice what that particular surrounding should be, but that it must be chosen scientifically and with due regard to the effect of the painting on the spectator and of the whole as a work of art.

It is only necessary to study the fine examples that are still in existence from the best period of this art, which appears to have been exclusively Italian, to realize that neither chance nor fashion entered into it. On the contrary, it was the outcome of an instinctive aesthetic sentiment of feeling for the beautiful in conjunction with an almost scientific appreciation of what would enhance the intelligent understanding of the picture. Whether we look at them in their richness or their simplicity, we shall note that the structure of the frame was first carefully studied and adapted to its purpose of suitably inclosing the picture and that its subsequent enrichment, whether by modeling, gilding, painting or however, lost their native character, and coming under French influence became more and more debased until all sobriety of treatment disappeared.—Scribner's.

Measuring Your Pace.

How many steps do you take to the mile? Even if your considered reply be "Seventeen hundred and sixty," I shall take leave to doubt it. Should you be a British infantryman your pace will be the longest of any infantryman in the world. The Russians' pace is the shortest, being but twenty-seven and one-half inches; the French, Italian and Austrian pace is twenty-nine inches, while British soldiers stride an extra half inch. But your own pace, what of it? It depends upon your height. Take your eyebrow height, halve it, and that represents your pace. You will find it to be somewhere between thirty inches and thirty-two inches, so that you will need between 2,000 and 2,100 paces to the mile.—London Chronicle.

Ancient Barber's Forfeits.

Customers of hair dressers at one time were in danger of having to pay a forfeit as well as their fee when entering the barber's shop. Until half a century ago some barbers still kept a list of rules hanging in their shops—chiefly concerning swearing, seeking to be served out of turn, etc.—the penalty for breaking which was the price of a pint of ale. The antiquity of the practice is evident by Shakespeare's allusion to it in "Measure For Measure."

The strong statutes Stand, like the forfeits in a barber's shop, As much in mock as mark.

—London Standard.

A Grievous Burden.

"Just think!" exclaimed the humanitarian, "when a man enters prison he loses his identity and becomes simply a number."
"Well," replied the man in motor togs, "except for the fact that he is confined and has to do hard labor, I don't see that he is much worse off than I am. I not only have a number, but I'm compelled to pay for it!"—Birmingham Herald.

HONORED THE PASS.

And, as One Good Turn Deserves Another, It Was Used Again.

I was practicing law in Nevada, writes Thomas Fitch, and had successfully defended some men who were accused of stage robbery. A week afterward, with some companions, I was "seeing off" a London mining expert who was about to depart on the stagecoach. After a round of drinks he said to me jocularly: "I may meet some of your clients on the road. I wish you would give me a pass." "Certainly," I replied. I stepped to the hotel desk and on a sheet of my office paper which I happened to have in my pocket wrote: "To All Road Agents—Please pass the bearer and oblige me." I signed my name thereto. With a laugh he pocketed the note, and we bade each other goodbye.

That night, sure enough, the stage was stopped and the passengers lined up and relieved of their money and valuables by masked highwaymen. When my friend was reached he handed my note to the robber, exclaiming, "Here, my man, is a note for you." The robber carried it to the stagecoach lamp, read it and handed it to the captain of the gang, who read it and with a grin that could be seen below his mask, exclaimed, "That's good!" and passed the bearer of the note without robbing him.

Months afterward I received from the county jail a message from a man who was accused of being a participant in a shooting scrape that he desired to see me. I went there. He said that he desired to employ me to defend him. "I have no cash to pay a fee," said he, "but maybe this will serve for one." He handed me the pass I had issued. "It's good," said I. Could I have said less?—Case and Comment.

CRITICISING A CRITIC.

A Little Sermon on the Use of "Slow" as an Adverb.

A Brooklyn man writes to a Manhattan morning paper in great distress because signs by the roadside commonly say, "Automobiles Go Slow." The writer thinks the amount of paint and labor required "to change the adjective to an adverb would be very insignificant as compared with the purifying of a nation's speech."

But if purifying the speech means dropping the use of "slow" as an adverb let us be thankful the purifiers did not get busy before the great English authors began to write. The modern purifiers, or innovators, would deprive us of Milton "swinging slow with sullen roar" and compel Shakespeare to rewrite the first three lines of "Midsummer Night's Dream."

"Slow" as an adverb has been in literature since the year 1500. It is found in Byron, Thackeray and the Edinburgh Review. Johnson's Dictionary of 1773 quotes numerous examples of its use by Donne, Milton and Pope. It seems as if it ought to be especially suitable in an automobile warning sign. For cannot old fashioned people (not "purifiers") remember the couplet in "Marmion"?

And come he slow or come he fast
It is but death who comes at last.
The English language will continue to be a noble and forceful means of expressing thought if it remains proof against new and unheard of rules altering ancient usage. In other words, let us investigate and "go slow" before condemning a word just because it is encountered for the first time.—Brooklyn Standard Union.

Marat's Deadly Prescription.
Whether Marat of "the terror" was a veterinary surgeon or a fashionable physician is a point which historians have earnestly debated. Some light is thrown upon it by the memoirs of the papal envoy of the period, who was one of his patients, and reports as follows:

"He prescribed for me some medicine which would have killed me if the celebrated chemist of the Rue Jacob had been willing to give it to me. 'I see well enough,' he said, 'that this is no medicine for you; it is medicine for a horse. I recognize the doctor's signature; he is mad.' Apparently Marat had mistaken me for one of his patients at the stable at which he was a physician."

DO IT NOW

Princess Anne People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due largely to the fact that the little kidney trouble is usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms often give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer may slip gradually into some serious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney disorders—they act where others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's a case at home:
Mrs. Lena Hastings, Princess Anne, says: "For nearly seven years I was afflicted with disordered kidneys and was made miserable by backache. Sometimes I was taken with severe headaches and pains in my loins. Finally, the kidney secretions became disordered. Hearing about the cures Doan's Kidney Pills has made, I got this medicine at Omar A. Jones' drug store. The first box cured me of the trouble and toned up my entire system." Over four years later Mrs. Hastings said: "No former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. My cure has been lasting."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills the same that Mrs. Hastings has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Baltimore Star

The Leading Evening Paper of the South

The Baltimore Star, established August 17, 1908, by the publishers of The Baltimore American, has won its place as the representative evening paper of the South. It gives more news and more reading matter than any other afternoon paper in Maryland. It is especially rich in departments—financial, sporting, society, children, women, and to these departments the best writers of America are regular contributors. The Star is the great home paper, with something for every member of the family. It is a cheerful newspaper, with plenty of entertainment. Those who try it keep on taking it.

The Star is elaborately illustrated. It has the first photographs of important events. Its portraits of leading men and women are unequalled.

The Star has two great news services, with wires direct to its offices from all parts of the world. The Star has a wireless telegraph, it uses every modern invention and the best enterprise to get all the news.

The Star is different from other Southern papers. It has a quality of its own.

Big Time Crinoline.
The crinoline—under another name—was known and denounced in the eighteenth century, as witness the pamphlet published in England in 1745 under title of "The Enormous Abomination of the Hoop Petticoat, as the Fashion Now Is."

At that time the hoop, usually of whalebone, was often "so large as to fill the space of six men," and in 1754 a writer in the Connoisseur speaks of "hoops" capable of contracting or expanding "from the size of a butter churn to the circumference of three hogheads."

Opened the King's Eyes.
When Fenelon was almoner to Louis XIV. his majesty was astonished to find one Sunday, instead of the usual crowded congregation, only himself and the priest. "What is the meaning of this?" said the king. "I caused it to be given out," replied the prelate, "that your majesty did not attend chapel today, that you might see who it was that came here to worship God and who to flatter the king."

Memory Training.
"I have decided," remarked Senator Sorghum, "to train my memory."
"What system will you use?"
"I don't know. I'm looking for one that will enable me, when I am interviewed, to remember what to forget."
—Washington Star.

Death on the Cross.
Crucifixion was a common mode of execution among most of the old nations. It was in constant practice, especially in Assyria, Carthage and the Roman empire.

His Treat.
Bacon—Been to see the doctor?
Egbert—Sure thing.
"Did he treat you?"
"Oh, no; it was my treat. It cost me $2."—Buffalo News.

The Modest Model.
Julia Ward Howe, though a woman of very good appearance, was extremely modest.
"She once posed for me," said a Boston painter the other day. "But she hesitated a long time before consenting. To urge her on I said:
"Don't be afraid; I'll do you justice, madam."
"Ah," she answered, "it isn't justice I ask for at your hands; it's mercy."

In and Out.
The old saying that a man cannot be in two places at the same time has at last been proved false.
It was discovered one day that a baseball player, much to the dislike of a number of loyal fans, can be out at home.—New York Post.

Getting What You Pay For.
Church—Seats in the theaters in New York come high, don't they?
Gotham—Well, yes, higher than seats in the street cars. But there is the satisfaction when buying a seat in a theater you are pretty sure to get one.—Yonkers Statesman.

Grammarcy—What, another new gown?
Mrs. Grammarcy—Yes, dear; I must have one when I attend the lecture on domestic economy.—Judge.

Bowel Complaints in India
In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventive and cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere.

Seed Potato Growers Form Important Organization

Western Maryland Farmers Unite With Other Business Men To Promote A New Industry.

On Friday, April 14th, there was organized at Frostburg, Maryland, The Western Maryland Seed Potato Growers' Association. The object of the organization is to promote the growing and marketing of seed potatoes grown under such conditions of altitude and climate as make the seed as well suited to the requirements of Maryland and Virginia potato growers as is seed grown in Maine, Michigan or other higher altitudes.

The final organization of this association, which will be incorporated under the laws of Maryland, represents the culmination of the efforts of a number of banks and business men of Allegany county, aided by Mr. John McGill, Jr., county agent for Allegany county, and Professors Temple and Bomberger, of the State College of Agriculture.

The bankers and business men financed the project by procuring a carload of the best Maine seed potatoes for distribution among the farmers of Allegany and Garrett counties. Mr. McGill and Professor Temple supervised the growing of last year's crop, which is to serve as seed for this year's planting. Professor Bomberger prepared the plans for the incorporation and management of the organization of the growers. In the final steps of the organization valuable service was rendered by Mr. C. E. Bassett and O. B. Jessness, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

On Friday the 14th instant, about thirty seed potato growers of Western Maryland met and adopted a constitution and by-laws, elected officers and directors and outlined the work for the current season.

This organization represents the development of a new business for Maryland. Heretofore Maryland potato growers have depended upon northern grown potatoes for seed. It has been demonstrated by the Experiment Station that seed grown at the high altitudes prevailing in the mountain region of Western Maryland are fully equal to northern grown seed. It remained for the farmers of that region to undertake the growing of seed under proper regulations for guaranteeing a standard product free from disease in order to establish the business upon a sound commercial basis. The organization effected will do this; and, as the business expands, the potato growers of Maryland will not be compelled to send outside the State for standard seed. In time the seed potato industry of Western Maryland should assume large proportions and hundreds of thousands should be saved to the potato growers of the State. Already the farmers of Garrett county are preparing to follow the example of their Allegany county neighbors. The organization formed contemplates the affiliation of all the seed potato growers of Western Maryland with the association formed at Frostburg.

PROTECT YOURSELF IN BUYING CRIMSON CLOVER SEED.
C. P. SMITH,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Last year several farmers made the mistake of buying seed of crimson clover that was not properly tagged as to germination—lacking the germination test entirely, or without the date when the test was made. Were you one of them? Every lot of a bushel or more (10 pounds after October 1st) should be labeled to show as much information as: "Germination 90 per cent, tested June, 1916."

One lot of seed sampled last summer by the seed inspector was tagged 96 per cent germination—no date given. The sample was secured August 21 and our test of a month later, about as soon as the lot could have been planted in the field and there judged, showed a germination value of 32 1/2 per cent; a December test later, 24 1/2 per cent.

The prospect for crimson (scarlet) clover seed for 1916 is very poor: limited supplies and correspondingly high prices, some low purities and especially low germination. If you MUST have crimson clover seed regardless of cost and quality, do not risk buying seed that is offered you without the germination as shown by a RECENT test—i. e. April, May, or June, 1916. If the germination is given as 50 per cent, sow twice as thick as you usually do; if 25 per cent, sow fully four times as thick as with good seed.

If you desire a more recent or confirmative test, send a fair sample direct to the State Seed Laboratory, College Park. While the complete laboratory test takes four days, the second day or first count is commonly sufficient to judge the general germinative value of the stock. When requested, the report will be based upon this first count. KNOW WHAT YOU ARE PLANTING.

Gardens.—Keep up a succession of garden crops. Continue to plant beans, tomatoes and sweet corn. Tomatoes should be staked and pruned. The shoots appearing in the axils of the leaves should be removed as rapidly as they appear. All garden crops should be cultivated often and shallow. Horse cultivation is best. If this is not practicable, wheel hoes should be secured. A small outlay in good garden tools saves time and labor.

DISEASE PREVENTION FOR FARM HOMES

Screening Against Flies And Use Of Earth Closets Is Advised.

T. H. TALIAFERRO,
Maryland Agricultural College.

The advent of spring is closely followed in most places by the appearance of flies. In rural communities, especially on the farm, it seems practically impossible to prevent the fly nuisance on the farm, particularly so, if there are a number of animals about the place.

The fly, primarily a scavenger, would be a blessing if he would confine himself strictly to that business and remain at or near the manure pile, etc. He insists, however, on traveling, and thus finds his way into houses, even those in which an honest effort is made to keep the premises, particularly the kitchen, clean, and to put scraps, parings, etc., into properly covered cans.

The Fly Pest.
His favorite abode, when sojourning at the house, is the kitchen or dining room, and his choice as to a resting place and supply station is the food to be eaten or the utensil in which it is served. He is also very fond of roaming over the face, particularly the lips, of a sleeping child. This desire is strengthened when evidences of indulgence in food, generally sticky or greasy in nature, are found around the mouth.

Unless measures are taken which will prevent his doing so, the probability is that the fly, in his journeys to and from the house, has regaled himself upon human excreta or waste and that he is furnishing free transportation for typhoid, dysentery, and other disease germs which are found in the excreta.

Having reached the house, the fly, regardless of the fact that he may, for example, be teeming with colon bacilli, enters upon his regular routine, with the altogether too frequent result that there is an outbreak of typhoid fever.

Proper Sanitation.
On the farm it is not always possible, however, to have an up-to-date sanitary system. It is possible, however, to build or remodel a privy, so that the fly can not gain access to the human excreta. In this way, the opportunity for the fly to transmit certain disease germs to the food which is to be eaten in the house, etc., is minimized. It is imperative that such protection should be afforded, if health is to be conserved. The question of the slight increase in cost, if any, should not carry weight as an objection, for the reason that one outbreak of typhoid fever or dysentery, with the resultant loss of time and money, will prove far more expensive. Do not, however, make the mistake so often observed on farms, and elsewhere, of providing proper accommodation for everyone except the servants. The fly does not differentiate when he is foraging, neither do the colon bacilli consider social distinctions when choosing an abiding place. Screening the dwelling house is important, but it is not sufficient. The privy must be sanitary and fly proof. If it is fly proof, it is also impossible for fowls and animals to gain access to the human excreta.

Dry Earth Closet.
One of the best types of privies is the dry earth closet, in which the fresh excreta is covered with a small amount of dry earth taken from a box conveniently placed in the building. Lime also may be used with excellent results.

As to the construction of the building, individual tastes may govern, provided the fly is kept out and the place is kept in good order. Covers should be provided for the openings in the seat when not in use. The door, and particularly the window, should be screened to keep out flies and to permit the circulation of fresh air. Buckets or similar receptacles should be so placed beneath the openings as to receive the excreta. The buckets should be removed at intervals, cleansed and replaced. If it is not possible to obtain suitable buckets, a water-tight trough should be built with a stout ring in the end or side and sledge runners under it. The ring and the sledge runners will prove to be of great advantage when it is found necessary to remove the trough for emptying, etc. An application of lime in and around the trough or buckets from time to time will improve the sanitary conditions. A door which will fit tight when closed should be placed at the rear or side of the building to facilitate the removal of the buckets or trough. This door may be fitted with hinges or may slide in a groove. The latter is probably the better. It may be built entirely of wood, but a stout wooden frame covered with heavy close-meshed wire is preferable, as it permits the free circulation of air, which tends to keep down offensive odors.

Dispose Of Waste.
It is useless to build a sanitary, fly-proof building unless it is kept in good shape and a place provided for the disposal of the excreta. It may be buried, put in a compost heap, if thought safe, etc., but it must be protected from flies until the germs of typhoid fever, dysentery, etc., are destroyed by bacteria.

Any information desired regarding the construction, etc., of a fly-proof earth closet may be obtained from the Engineering Division of the Maryland Agricultural College, College Park, Md.

LEGEND OF WILLIAM TELL

The Story Was Old In Denmark Before The Swiss Borrowed It.

Do you know who shot the apple on the head of the little boy? Why, William Tell, of course! Everybody knows how Tell delivered Switzerland from the tyranny of Austria. At least everybody used to know. Unfortunately for pure romance, the historian and the investigator have been unduly active in the past quarter of a century, and the result has left us few heroes with enough clothing of romance to cover their skeletons.

We have read Schiller's beautiful and inspiring play, either in our college German course or in translation, and we cling to William Tell with all the ardor of youthful enthusiasm. And along comes the historian and tells us that it is all a myth, that the dates fixed by the Swiss chronicles on the subject do not coincide with the dates of the historic events that were supposed to be taking place in Austria at the same time and that earlier records of Switzerland make no mention of the archer's master shot.

The selfsame story is told in the Danish legends, two centuries before it crops out in the Swiss narrative, and further investigation shows that it was borrowed by the Danes, the original child's head by a German Bowman named Eigil, when King Ni-dung sought to test the man's skill and nerve. In that remote story it is related that Eigil concealed another arrow in his bosom with which to kill the king if he injured his child. John Fiske, the American historian, was largely responsible for robbing us of William Tell.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

JAPANESE STAGE CUSTOMS.

Actors and the Flower Path From the Green Room Entrance.

The profession of an actor in Japan is not considered a high one, says Mr. M. C. Marcus, the author of a work on the Japanese stage, and on the average they are not well paid. Still, there are exceptions. "When a play is staged it runs at least for twenty-three consecutive days. For such a term a first class man would earn about $1,200, and his annual income may be estimated at $7,500. But it must not be forgotten that out of this sum he must provide his own costumes, which are very expensive.

"The curtain does not rise, but is pulled sideways, and one can easily see the attendants who are intrusted with this work. The orchestra is hidden behind the scenery, while in a sort of proscenium box the reciter sits concealed behind a curtain of thin bamboo. There is no applause by clapping hands, as in our theaters, but the public stimulates the actors by exclamations in a way that may be compared to the encouraging and cheering of the dancers in Spain.

"From the greenroom a bridge leads to the platform. This bridge is called Flowerpath. The greenroom is closed by a drapery, which the actors of small parts must lift for themselves. When the performers have some importance and reputation they have an attendant for the purpose of lifting this drapery. But the first actors, as well of nogu (drama) as of kyogen (comedy), have the title taiya, which confers the right to two assistants to hold up the curtain of the greenroom for their entries and exits."

Sing a Song of Sixpence.
The London Globe's explanation of the rime "Sing a Song of Sixpence" is: "The four and twenty blackbirds represent the four and twenty hours. The bottom of the pie is the world. The top crust represents the sky. The opening of the pie is the dawn of the day, when the birds begin to sing, and surely such a sight is fit for a king. The king in his counting house counting out his money is the sun. The money the king is counting represents the golden sunshine. The queen, who sits in the parlor, is the moon. The honey she is eating is the moonlight. The industrious maid who is working in the garden before the sun has risen is the day dawn, and the clothes she hangs out are clouds. The bird that so tragically ends the song by nipping off her nose is the hour of sunset."

England's Coldest Days.
In his diary for March, 1653, John Evelyn records that the weather had been "the severest that any man alive had known in England. The crows' feet were frozen to their prey. Islands of ice inclosed both fish and fowl frozen, and some persons in their boats." For March 1667, he chronicles, "Great frosts, prodigious at the vernal equinox."—London Chronicle.

His Lucky Catch.
"H'lo, Jones! Hear you been fishing."
"Yep."
"When'd you go?"
"Four-thirty a. m. train out."
"Any luck?"
"Yep, great."
"What'd you catch?"
"Six-thirty p. m. train in."—Exchange.

No Change of Plan.
"And after they had married in haste I suppose they repented at leisure."
"No; they were perfectly consistent. They repented in haste also."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Mistake.
"That baby takes after its father."
"Oh, you don't know anything about its father. He never would leave anything behind for even a baby to take."—Baltimore American.

How to checkmate the new chestnut blight or bark disease that is causing such vast destruction is a problem of no small importance. From its obscure beginnings in eastern New York about twelve years ago it has swept into nineteen states and now affects about all of the northern half of our native chestnut stands, doing damage estimated at close upon $50,000,000. It attacks the trees in twig, branch and trunk, causing death in a year or two, and soon recurs in the sprouts or suckers sent up from the still living roots.

No native chestnut appears to be spared in the long run, but the little eastern bush chinquapin, with its smoother bark and comparative freedom from insect enemies, appears less readily attacked. The European chestnut in its favorite varieties is also subject to the disease, but when we come to the chestnuts of Japan and China we find very great resistance amounting in some varieties to almost practical immunity. There appears to be now no method of controlling this disease, which is caused by a fungus whose spores are carried about by birds and insects, creating new infections wherever they reach the sap wood or inner bark of the chestnut tree. There is no apparent diminution of its virulence since it came under observation.

The most obvious means of replacing the great losses of chestnut timber and nuts would seem to be in the substitution for our native forms the Asiatic species that best resist the disease, having evidently for ages been accustomed to its presence, and also to breed the chestnut as a valuable genus of forest trees, by hybridization and selection for the avowed production of varieties better adapted for our purposes.

Layering Grapes.

Grapes may be propagated by means of layering more easily than in many other ways. The best plan is to dig a trench from two to three inches deep, lay the vine in this and cover it over. Leave the tip sticking out. The vine that is covered will throw out roots and send stems up at the joints. These may be separated and planted separately. A raspberry vine may be made to produce new plants by bending over the tip of a cane and covering it with dirt at the end.—Farm Progress.

Should Sloan's Liniment Go Along? Of course it should! For after a strenuous day when your muscles have been exercised to the limit an application of Sloan's Liniment will take the soreness and stiffness away and get you in fine shape for the morrow. You should also use it for a sudden attack of toothache, stiff neck, backache, stings, bites and the many accidents that are incidental to a vacation. "We would as soon leave our baggage as to go on a vacation or camp out without Sloan's Liniment." Writes one vacationist: "We use it for everything from cramps to toothache." Put a bottle in your bag, be prepared and have no regrets.

Forest Notes

It is estimated that there is enough waste from the sawmills of the South alone to produce twenty thousand tons of paper a day.

Oiled paper has been found to be an excellent material for packing tree seedlings, when shipped in crates. When crates are not used, paper-lined burlap makes a particularly satisfactory wrapper.

The value of livestock dying from disease on the National Forest ranges in 1915 was less than $200,000. A majority of the cattlemen are now vaccinating their stock for blackleg, one of the chief loss-causing cattle diseases of the West, and thus preventing the serious losses of the past.

Because of the heavy snowfall last winter, forest rangers found it necessary this spring to remove two feet of snow from the Beaver Creek Nursery in Utah, so that the young trees might be uncovered by the time they were needed for spring planting on the National Forests of that region. Part of the snow was taken off by use of shovel and pick. By spreading a thin layer of fine soil over another part, the natural melting of the snow was hastened sufficiently to make shoveling unnecessary.

Why Endure Summer Colds?

It isn't necessary to have a stuffed head, running nose. To cough your head off as it were. All you need do is to use Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. The soothing and healing balsam opens the clogged air passages and in a short time you get relief and start on the road to recovery. Your nose stops running, you cough less and you know you are getting better. Get a bottle, use as directed. Keep what is left as cough and cold insurance.

The Prices of Shoes Advances

On all shoes, of all grade, prices have advanced, are advancing and will advance more. Business is good, the customer is prosperous and shoes are in big demand. This is no time for long faces, whining and stubbornness. The market is high and no amount of holding back or protesting will put it down.

The shoe dealer has brought into use his best business judgment and has adjusted himself to the new scale just as the manufacturers and wholesalers have done.

The customer is paying higher prices for everything, and he should not think that he is being robbed when he has to pay $3.50 for a good American shoe that previously sold for $3.00 as this is just about as normal a process as is going on in any retail store in the country. And this fact can be born in mind—the shoe dealer has not been making from 60 per cent. to 100 per cent. profit in years past as has the dry goods man, millinery, etc. The public may complain a little, but down in their hearts they know the SHOE retailer is giving them a good run for their money.

Just now the prices all over the country are somewhat at a variance—some wholesalers and manufacturers are all sold up and all prices are advanced—others did not sell so rapidly and for a few weeks may have a few shoes at only a small advance, but it is safe to say that by June 15th all lines of men's, boy's, youth's, women's, misses' and children's Shoes will have advanced one full grade over the price prevailing January 1, 1916.

As for ourselves, we did our best to buy as many Shoes as possible before the advance in price. The result is that we have twelve thousand pairs of Shoes which we can sell at a very little advance over the former prices. We would suggest that you buy your shoes now while our stock is complete and the prices reasonable.

Fight Off Cholera

WITH NOW

Cal-Sino Hog Restorative

THE PREVENTIVE treatment of Hog Cholera with Cal-Sino Hog Restorative Powder is easier, safer and more satisfactory than trying to cure the disease itself after it attacks your hogs for all too often sudden violent attacks occur which leave no time for treatment and always cause speedy death.

A warm spell of weather is apt to bring an outbreak of Cholera at any time. To insure against loss and to get the most weight it pays to give a regular course of Cal-Sino. It costs 10c to 20c per hog per month, depending upon size, to fortify against disease and to make them fleshier, for Cal-Sino helps to get all the real body-building, flesh-making material out of the food—and that's what counts.

If you once try it, you'll use it always. Ask your neighbors and the dealer. Don't put it off—delay may cause you loss.

Preparedness Parade At Crisfield

Flag Day was observed at Crisfield last Wednesday by the annual merchants' carnival and a "preparedness" parade under the direction of Major Hugh Riley and Capt. S. P. Fuller, of the Maryland National Guard. The town was decorated with American flags and bunting.

The celebration began with motorboat races in the harbor. In the afternoon a sham battle was engaged in by two platoons of Company L, one under Second Lieutenant Hill and the other under Lieutenant Carl Ward.

The preparedness parade, which was a half mile long, came next. It was headed by the Lawsons Concert Band and the band of Company L, followed by the guardsmen and a long line of floats. The parade formed at the post-office and marched up Main street to Central Park. Addresses were delivered by Congressman Jesse D. Price and Major Hugh Riley. T. Edward Webb, chairman of the Business Men's Association, introduced the speakers.

Lewis M. Potee In Santo Domingo

Lewis M. Potee, son of Harmon M. Potee, of this county, is with the expeditionary force of U. S. Marines recently rushed to Santo Domingo for the protection of the American Legation there during the current revolt against President Jimenes.

When insurrection breaks out anywhere to the south of Key West or north of Venezuela, the United States Marines are always first on the spot. Preparedness is the motto of the Marine soldier and sailor, too—always prepared for service in any climate, always prepared to move at a moment's notice without previous warning, and always prepared to efficiently hold the situation well in hand.

Young Potee enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at its Baltimore recruiting station on October 21, 1912.

Rev. Elderdice Called To Crisfield

The Rev. Charles L. Elderdice, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Methodist Protestant Church of Pittsburgh, Pa., has received a call from the Methodist Protestant Church of Crisfield. He will probably accept and take up his new charge July 1st. Mr. Elderdice was formerly pastor at Federalsburg, Md.

Mr. Elderdice went to Pittsburgh about nine months ago from Baltimore, where he had been pastor of Christ Methodist Protestant Church. The pulpit at Crisfield which he has been asked to fill has been vacant since the resignation of the Rev. Frank T. Benson, who is to become editor of the Methodist Protestant.

Death Of Mrs. J. M. Twilley

Mrs. Priscilla Reed Twilley, wife of Dr. J. M. Twilley, dentist of Dover, Del., died last Friday evening at her home on State street, after an illness for a week of pneumonia. Mrs. Twilley was a daughter of the late Elias Reed, of Dover, Delaware.

Dr. Twilley, many years ago, resided in Princess Anne. He is a brother of Mrs. C. C. Ball and Mr. George B. Twilley.

MARYLAND DELEGATES PLEASED

The National Suffrage Plank Source Of Great Satisfaction

At 5 o'clock Friday afternoon the bulk of the Maryland party left St. Louis on a special car which arrived in Baltimore late on Saturday afternoon.

Tired, but happy over the result of the convention, the Marylanders feel their time has been well spent. Their specific errand was to accomplish three things: Renomination of Wilson and Marshall, prevention of a national suffrage plank, and adoption of a platform fully meeting the ideas and thoughts of the President himself. These things have been accomplished.

The elimination of a national suffrage plank is an especial source of satisfaction. Maryland, like other southern states, is a strong exponent of state's rights and the adoption by the resolutions committee of a plank leaving the question of suffrage to the individual states themselves was hence directly in accordance with their ideas.

Governor Emerson C. Harrington, the State's representative on the platform committee, remained on the job at the Planters Hotel all night and did not arrive at his quarters in the Jefferson until 8 o'clock Friday morning.

The Governor said he was entirely satisfied with the platform as finally adopted by the committee.

Senator John Walter Smith, chairman of the delegation, also voiced his approval.

"This convention," said Senator Smith, "has been a great affair. It has accomplished much and has firmly established the principle of harmony within the Democratic party. With our ticket, our platform, this harmony spirit and the record of achievement of the party during the past four years, we will go into the campaign unusually strong and will, I believe, win another splendid victory next November."

"The recognition of the state's rights principle on the woman suffrage question is, I think, satisfactory to all of our delegates." We were opposed to the adoption of a national suffrage plank and this has been prevented."

The majority suffrage plank reads: "We recommend the extension of the franchise to the women of the country, State by State, upon equal terms with men."

Somerset Boys Showing At State Meet

At the Olympiad held in Baltimore on Friday, June 9th, the number of points made were as follows:

Baltimore City	90	Harford	8
Baltimore Co.	68	Queen Anne's	7
Alliagan	51	Carroll	7
Talbot	48	Washington	4
Frederick	19	Worcester	4
Calverton	16	Cecil	3
Somerset	11	Wicomico	3
Montgomery	9	Howard	2
Prince George	9	Anne Arundel	1

It will be seen from the score that Somerset stands seventh on the list. Every contestant from Somerset county merits the highest praise for having placed this county in such a good position on the roll of honor. The boys who secured these points are as follows: Stanley Robins 2, Carroll Gunby 2, Kirk Maddrix 3, Joseph Disharoon 3, Earl Hall 1. All the boys who attended the meet are loud in their praises of the royal way in which they were entertained in Baltimore.

Oyster Lessees In Arrears

Chairman Kemp of the Conservation Commission stated last Thursday that the commission has discovered that a large number of lessees of oyster lands had failed to pay rent due the State, for one, two or three years. The exact amount due had not been ascertained, he said, but he estimated it at something like $20,000.

"We have started sending to each lessee whose rent is overdue a statement of his account, inclosed in a registered letter," said Mr. Kemp. "We are anxious to collect as much as possible of the amount due the State, and we hope the lessees will pay the amount due. After we have done the best we can in collecting we shall begin weeding out the dead wood."

Morris-Miller Wedding

Miss Isabel Fisher Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Miller, and Mr. Louis Wright Morris, of Philadelphia, son of the late Dr. Louis Morris, of Salisbury, were married last Tuesday at the home of the bride's parents at Elkton, Md., by the Rev. J. F. Anderson, pastor of Cherry Hill Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted by the Rev. W. D. Stulz, of Bridgeton, N. J. The wedding march was played by Miss Miriam Palmer, of Wallingford, Pa. Mrs. Arthur C. Harvey, of Philadelphia, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. Charles W. Wainwright, of Princess Anne, best man.

DEMOCRATS NOMINATE WILSON AND MARSHALL

Both Candidates Expected To Go On Speech-Making Tours—President Wilson's Foreign Policies To Be Paramount Issue

The National Convention of the Democratic party, at St. Louis, Mo., last Thursday renominated Hon. Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, for President, and Hon. Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, for Vice President, amid the cheers of the thousands of delegates and spectators in the convention hall.

The nomination was made by acclamation at 11:52 Thursday night, Central time, and then to avoid a nomination on Friday Senator Kern dispensed with his speech placing Marshall's name before the convention and said: "I renominate Thomas Riley Marshall." Exactly three minutes after Wilson's nomination his running mate was also nominated without formality.

On motion of Senator Hughes, of New Jersey, the rules were suspended and no ballots whatever were taken. The delegates simply roared "Aye." When the names of Wilson and Marshall were called Chairman James declared them nominated by acclamation.

As Judge Wescott closed with a mention of the name "Woodrow Wilson," the crowd broke into a great demonstration. Moving picture flashlights blazed and flags were paraded in front of the stand. The band played The Star-Spangled Banner, while a huge banner bearing the President's likeness was unfurled from the roof of the hall.

Democratic leaders believe it will be easily possible to persuade President Wilson to make an extended speaking tour of the country early in the fall, going as far as the Pacific Coast. They believe that, by going direct to the voters he can emphasize the Democratic arguments in favor of his re-election. If what was said in St. Louis by administration Democrats is to be relied upon, the President is already considering the advisability of such a tour, beginning late in September and ending after the middle of October.

The High-Priced Country Road

After paying an average price of $14,000 a mile for 180 miles of concrete roads, Maryland has departed from what is termed the standard concrete road and in some cases has reduced construction cost to about $8500 a mile, this having been done with the conviction that the cheaper roads will last indefinitely if given a bituminous wearing surface. Thus the State has taken a long step toward restricting concrete to foundation purposes exclusively. Had the more recent Maryland roads been built with the latter purpose in view and provided with a 2-inch wearing surface of asphalt macadam, there would have resulted the type of road Monroe county, Mich., is building for less than $12,000 a mile, the Michigan road having concrete curbs as well as a 5-inch concrete foundation.

The radical change in Maryland's policy, the building of hundreds of miles of bituminous top roads on concrete bases in California and the adoption of the greatly improved type in Michigan, all presage the decline of country roads costing from $15,000 to $20,000 a mile. These prices are prohibitive in many localities, but when the materials that distinguish our present separate and costly types of roads can be so combined as to give better service at a saving of $2,000 to $5,000 a mile, we obtain what may well be called the American standard road.

A natural asphalt and good stone make an ideal and resilient wearing surface, and the concrete provides an unyielding foundation. It having been demonstrated that this composite type of road can be built for $12,000 or less per mile, the tax-payers are certain to adopt it once its true merit and economy are understood.

Income Tax Shows An Increase

If the receipts at the office of Collector of Internal Revenue Joshua W. Miles from those unfortunatefortunates who are subject to the Income Tax law may be taken as an index there is an honest-to-goodness wave of prosperity sweeping over this fair land.

Chief Deputy Collector Lewis M. Milbourne said last Wednesday that his office expected more than double the receipts of last year from the Maryland district, which comprises this State, the District of Columbia, Delaware and the two counties on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Last year the receipts from the district were $1,893,610; this year the sum counted upon is $4,334,000. If that sum is realized the increase will be about 133 per cent. Assuming a relative increase throughout the country, the problems of the Federal Treasury would be solved practically.

Some idea of the tide of money which is flowing into the Baltimore office may be had from Mr. Milbourne's statement that on Tuesday he took in about $150,000. This amount probably will be increased in each day of the two weeks remaining in which payments may be made. There is a penalty of five per cent. of the tax upon those liable who had not paid when the office closes on June 30th.

High School Teacher Honored

At a meeting of the Worcester county commissioners and the county school board in Snow Hill on Tuesday, Miss Ethel Dix, of Pocomoke, City, the teacher of domestic science in the Pocomoke High School, was appointed elementary county supervisor of schools.

The appointment has to be confirmed by State Superintendent of Schools, Dr. M. Bates Stephens, but his confirmation is said to be practically assured. Her successor at the Pocomoke school has not yet been appointed.

Farm Suggestions For July

Do not permit the stubble to lie idle. If it is to be succeeded by another grain crop in the fall or some cultivated crop in the spring, plant the stubble land to cow peas or soybeans. These crops not only improve the soil, but may be used for grazing or for silage. Continue frequent light, shallow cultivation of garden and field crops. This kind of cultivation causes moisture which is especially important at this season as the plants are large and require a great deal. Remember that plant food is useless without moisture to enable it to be carried to the plant. Do not stop the cultivation of corn too soon. In fact, cultivation should be continued until the winter cover crop is planted, which should be the latter part of July or during August.

Keep the garden going. Fall vegetable such as turnips, potatoes and cabbage should be started this month. Can all the garden vegetables and fruits. Do not permit anything to go to waste that can be saved for winter use.

Haul in and thresh the grain. Save all the hay possible. Grain straw should be stacked in a dry place or baled. The quality of hay is preserved if it is carefully stacked or baled.

Keep all the animals thrifty by furnishing them with pure water and a liberal amount of succulent food. If the pastures begin to dry up, feed young animals and dairy cows fresh hay. The cows should not be permitted to drop off in their milk.

Save all the eggs possible. If they do not command a reasonable price, preserve them for home use at a time when there is a good price for the supply of fresh eggs. Look after the health of the poultry. Keep the houses and runs well lined. If a disease breaks out, separate the affected chickens from the others and give them treatment. For causes, symptoms and treatment of poultry diseases, write to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin, No. 530.

Machine Plants 10,000 Trees A Day

A machine which plants from 10,000 to 15,000 forest tree seedlings a day is now being used at the Letchworth Park Forest and Arboretum, in Wyoming county, N. Y., according to officials of the Forest Service who are acting as advisers in the work. Previously the planting has been done by hand at the rate of 1,200 to 1,500 trees each day per man.

The machine was designed to set out cabbage and tomato plants, but works equally well with trees. It is about the size of an ordinary mowing machine and is operated by three men and two horses. One man drives the team while the other two handle the seedlings.

The machine makes a furrow in which the trees are set at any desired distance, and an automatic device indicates where they should be dropped. Two metal-tired wheels push and roll the dirt firmly down around the roots.

This is a very desirable feature, it is said, because the trees "re apt to die if this is not well done. Two attachments make it possible to place water and fertilizer at the roots of each seedling. Another attachment marks the line on which the next row of trees is to be planted.

No cost figures are available yet, but officials say that the cost will be much less than when the planting is done by hand. It is stated that the machine can be used on any land which has been cleared and is not to rough to plow and harrow.

The man who buys his friends does not always get his money's worth.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION SET WILD

Senator James' Tribute To Wilson Starts Great Demonstration

With one demonstration after another last Thursday the Democratic convention at St. Louis registered its approval of President Wilson's conduct of foreign affairs, which has kept the country at peace.

When Senator Ollie James, in a speech delivered after his election as permanent chairman of the convention, recounted the diplomatic achievements of the President in the negotiations with Germany the convention launched into an 18-minute uproar of cheering, waving of flags, in which William J. Bryan, from his seat in the press section, joined.

The great outburst of applause, which compelled Senator James to suspend speaking for more than a quarter of an hour, came when the Senator said:

"Woodrow Wilson, without orphaning a single child, without widowing a single American mother, without firing a single drop of blood, wrung from the most militant spirit that ever brooded above a battle field an agreement to American demands and a concession of American rights."

Cries of "Repeat it!" came from many of the delegates, and when the Senator, complying with their demand, recited again this tribute to the President the crowd rose up and broke loose with cheers.

The band swung into "America" and "The Star-Spangled Banner." Hats and flags went into the air. Somebody cried:

"Three cheers for Wilson!"

The crowd roared the answer. Stanchions were torn from the floor and a march of delegates through the hall was started. The aisles became choked, because the demonstration was begun without organized leadership. The congestion aided in shortening the demonstration. The band played "A Hot Time" as a marching tune, while Senator James fanned his florid face.

After the demonstration had been running 12 minutes the Kentucky standard was taken to the platform and placed directly behind Mr. James. It was the signal for cheers and a tiger for the speaker, while the band played "Dixie," followed by the "Battle Cry of Freedom."

Senator James declared in his address that the achievements of the Wilson Administration in enacting beneficial legislation and in keeping the country at peace without sacrifice of the national honor were epoch-making in American history.

"During three years of its national control," said the Senator, "Democracy has enacted into law more progressive remedial legislation than the nation has ever had written upon its statute books since its birth. In former national contests in the last two decades our party came as a prophet. Today we come with deeds, not words; with performance, not promise. The Democratic party has kept its word with the American people. We have made good."

Eastern Shore Baptists Meet

The Eastern District Baptist Association, composed of all the Baptist churches in the nine counties on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, opened a three days' convention last Tuesday in the First Baptist Church, Easton, Md. There were about 100 delegates and a number of visitors present. The convention was called to order that afternoon by J. C. Carver, Marumaco, Md. The president, the Rev. W. L. Witt, conducted devotional services and E. A. Frampton made the address of welcome, to which President Carver responded. Reports were presented by the Revs. Mr. Witt and F. W. Putney and A. L. Mattox and F. W. Byrd. Addresses were delivered by W. H. Brannock and the Rev. W. H. Stewart.

At the evening session the Rev. Mr. Putney delivered the associational sermon and the Revs. Dr. E. W. Pinchbeck and B. G. Parker spoke. The following officers were elected: President, J. C. Carver; first vice-president, the Rev. E. E. Krauss, Mardella Springs; second vice-president, Albert E. Frampton, Easton; secretary-treasurer, F. W. Byrd, Pocomoke City.

Kent's Big Tax Rate

The Board of County Commissioners of Kent county last Tuesday declared a tax rate of $1.53. This is 42 cents higher than the rate of last year, and is caused principally by the extra appropriation of $20,000 for public schools, indebtedness, the building of the Galena-Lambson macadam road and increased election expenses. Taxpayers living within the corporate limits of Chestertown will pay a tax this year of $2.39½.

The senior class of Washington High School gave a dance in the Auditorium last Wednesday night which was largely attended and all reported a very pleasant time.

Lives Lost In Grain Elevator Fire

Pennsylvania Railroad Elevator No. 3, on the harbor front at Canton, a suburb of Baltimore, was burned last Tuesday with a loss of life of 10 men, and injuries to more than 40 others. The victims were mostly elevator employees and cargo trimmers. Two steamships, the Willem Van Driel, Sr., a Dutch vessel, and the British steamer Welbeck Hall, which were loading grain at the elevator, also were badly damaged by fire and wreckage which dropped upon them from the elevator.

The flames spread to an ore pier next to the elevator, badly damaging it. Several strings of grain cars in the elevator were burned.

While the fire is thought to have been caused by an explosion of grain dust, a theory was advanced that it may have been caused by a bomb. This theory will be investigated.

The blast blew out the 90-foot tower, or upper elevator, and in an instant the whole building was ablaze.

Conservative estimates placed the loss at more than $2,000,000. This represents the cost of the elevator, the damage to the two ships and the value of the grain in the elevator and aboard the vessels. Altogether about a million bushels of wheat, oats, barley, rye and buckwheat were destroyed.

Scores of men barely escaped with their lives. Thirty-four grain handlers and stevedores, who were partially imprisoned in the hold of the Welbeck Hall, fought their way to freedom over the piles of grain. Gaining the deck of the ship they found their way to shore cut off by the flames. Some of them jumped overboard and were picked up. Launches ran alongside and took off the others.

A Family Secret

It Came Out Gradually and Satisfactorily

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

When I was old enough to desire a child to play with me I said to my mother:

"Mamma, why haven't you another little girl for me to play with?"

She kissed me and told me that I had a little brother whom I had never seen, but he was coming home soon and I would have a companion. I was too young to seek for a reason why this brother, whom she called Georgie, had never been at home since I had been born. I simply accepted the fact and rejoiced that I would have a playmate.

Georgie arrived a couple of days later. He was several years older than I. I asked him where he had been living all the while, and he said that he supposed he had been with his mother, but a few days before he came to us she had told him that she was not his mother and then was sent to us.

Whatever explanation of all these matters was made to us was called forth by our childish questions, and they were answered vaguely. We looked upon each other as brother and sister. We lived in a place in the country where we saw no other children and when we began to be educated were placed in charge of a young woman who taught us the rudiments and as we grew older had tutors.

When I was ten years old something occurred that troubled me. A lady visitor called on my mother. I was in an adjoining room reading a story book and as quiet as a mouse.

"Is Clara still ignorant of the fact that she is not a Clayton?" asked the visitor. My mother's name was Clayton.

"Yes, but she is getting to an age when we shall find it hard to keep the secret."

"How about Georgie?"

"He being older than Clara, we may expect still more difficulty in his case."

"I question it. Boys are not so curious about seeming trifles as girls. A boy's mind reaches out to discover what is going on without—how things are made and all that. A girl is curious about those things which immediately concern her."

I was thunderstruck. I could scarcely refrain from running into the other room and begging my mamma to explain what I had heard. But the presence of the visitor restrained me. I stole away and upstairs to my room, where I shut myself in and gave myself up to all kinds of (to me) terrible forebodings.

By this time Georgie had grown old enough to crave the society of boys of his own age and was out playing ball with some of his friends. Therefore I did not see him before I had had a conference with mamma. This was perhaps fortunate. As soon as the visitor had gone I went to her and almost with tears in my eyes asked her what the lady had meant by saying that I was not a Clayton.

Mother was evidently quite put out at first, but presently she took me up on to her lap and said:

"I will explain this if you will promise to ask me nothing more till you become eighteen years of age."

I gave a reluctant promise, and she continued:

"Papa is not your real father. Your real father died when you were a baby, and I married papa when you were too young to know anything about it."

This was a great shock to me. Remembering how it affected me, I have ever since condemned the bringing up of children in ignorance of their true parentage. After what my mother told me I was curious to know about Georgie. Forgetting my promise to ask no more questions, I begged mother to tell me about him. She considered for awhile, then said:

"Georgie must soon know about his case, but not now. I will tell you about him if you will promise to keep what I say a secret from him for the present."

I gave the promise, and she continued:

"Georgie is not your brother."

This was not the shock to me that the secret about my papa was. Possibly this was because of Georgie's introduction into the family at a time when I was old enough to take cognizance of his coming. Mother continued:

"Georgie's mother and I were very dear friends. She died when he was two years old, and Georgie was given in charge of a woman who took care of him till he came here. I would have taken him at the time of his mother's death, but it was then impossible. There had been an arrangement between me and her to that effect, and I carried it out as soon as I was able to do so."

Mother paused here for a while in order, I presume, to give me time to get somewhat used to what she had told me, then concluded what she was saying.

"And now, my dear little girl, I wish you to be brave and strong and say nothing to papa or Georgie as to what you have learned, but leave it to me to make it all known whenever I and that it will give the least shock." I made the promise sadly and kept it. This, for a child, great responsibility that was thrown upon me added several years to the few I had lived and made a woman of me earlier than I would have been without it. I presume my papa, as I continued to call him, was told that I had stumbled on the family secrets, but he never mentioned the matter to me, nor I to him. There was no change in our treatment of each other except that, having learned that he had treated me as his daughter who was not his daughter, my affection for him increased rather than diminished.

I have since been quite proud of myself for giving mother a free rein as to what course she should take with regard to giving Georgie his part of the family secret. From the day I gave her the promise to keep it I never mentioned it to her or asked her when she would tell him. This I think was more than was to be expected of a child. Month after month, year after year passed, and the matter was never mentioned.

But a time came when the relationship between Georgie and me became a matter of importance. When he was in his eighteenth year and I fifteen he was treating me as a sister, while I knew he was not my brother. The statement of the lady through whom I had learned the facts that a boy looks without rather than within the home circle was verified in this case. Georgie seemed to me to be very stupid about it. Nevertheless there were times when I wondered if he had not fallen upon the secret and was keeping his knowledge of it from me as I was keeping mine from him.

On his return from an absence when I was sixteen he took me in his arms and kissed me. Then, holding me off and looking at me, he saw a blush on my face.

"Look at the red!" he exclaimed, and, drawing me to him again, he gave me another kiss. Naturally this served to deepen the blush. I playfully boxed his ears, which, instead of making the matter appear more brotherly and sisterly, had the reverse effect.

"The last ear box I got for a kiss was for another fellow's sister," he said and, giving me a second kiss, released me. I stood for a moment panting, not knowing what to do or say, then walked away in a dignified manner, followed by a laugh from Georgie, which made me feel that I had come very near a giveaway.

But a worse one followed. A friend of mine, Bessy Lawrence, made me a visit, and Georgie seemed to me to be very much struck with her. This was the first revelation to me of the fact that I did not relish any other girl stepping in between Georgie and me. I tried not to show jealousy, but did not succeed. Bess ended her visit in a huff, and Georgie asked me what in the world was the matter with me. Since I could not explain, I walked out of the room, leaving him to put his own interpretation on my action.

There seemed to be plenty of funds in our family, and, since Georgie was not in a hurry to settle down to business, he concluded to spend a year in travel. He asked me to go with him; but, knowing what I did, of course I declined. He urged me for some time, insisting on my giving him a reason for my refusal. I gave him a number of them—all trumped up—and he laughed at me. When he started on his journey he called out:

"Sis, don't you pick up a fellow while I'm gone!"

"I won't promise!" I shouted. And he drove away, waving his handkerchief till I could see him no more.

He returned in six months, and after the first welcome, when he and I were alone together, he came to me and said:

"Sis, do you know the reason why I came home sooner than I intended?"

"No. Why?"

"Because I couldn't stay any longer away from my dear sister."

"You'll be saying that to some other fellow's sister pretty soon."

"Have you a brother?"

"What a question!"

"If you have I'm saying it to some other fellow's sister now."

I wondered if he could have got the secret.

"Sit down here," he added, drawing me to an easy chair big enough for us both. Then he continued:

"You and I were betrothed the day you were born. I have not known these things as long as you have, but I have known more than you. I have long known that papa and mamma are not my real parents. My real parents I never saw. My real mother arranged with my second mother that I should come into this family and be brought up with you, hoping that we would make a match. When it came time for me to come here mamma settled everything in her own way, and I consider it the right way. She is not to be blamed for anything, though some persons will say that she made a mistake. She certainly gave you a brother and me a sister. It now remains to be seen whether we shall be transformed from the grub brother and sister to the butterfly lover and lovers."

I was surprised at the relief and joy this declaration gave me. The secret between us having taken wings, left me very happy.

The rest would only sound pleasing if given in the terms of the novelist, who causes the hero lover to declare himself in terms that have been carefully written and duly worked over. I need only add that an understanding of the situation, as had been intended years before, and its termination were a relief and a matter of satisfaction to our dear papa and mamma as well as to ourselves.

SHE WAITED IN VAIN.

Pathetic End of a Romance Lasting Over Thirty Years.

Many years ago while studying in Boston I lived for a time in a private boarding house of the Back Bay. As most of the guests were wealthy widows, I named it the House of Vells. Among those coming in from the outside to take their meals was Miss Adams, a descendant of the historical Adams family and a woman of about sixty years.

She was engaged to be married and had been engaged for more than thirty years. Her lover called, took her to dinners and the theater, sent her flowers and sweets as in the days of her youth. Those who knew her told me this story:

While still young she had been left an income sufficiently large to maintain herself in comfort, but not enough for the upkeep of a home such as she thought befitting her station in life. So she lived in lodgings, while her fiance cared for his widowed mother, who lived to be very old.

At the time to which I refer her lover held a responsible position, and the only obstacle in the way of their marriage was the aged mother.

They were devoted lovers at sixty and had been devoted lovers for thirty years. Being the longest engagement of which I had ever heard or read, I was interested to know the ending of a story so unusual in life.

Some years after, meeting a former guest of the House of Vells, I asked about Miss Abigail Adams. The mother had outlived the son!

A sad and lonely old woman was still living in lodgings, looking back to the pride and selfishness of her youth, which had cost her a home and all that home might mean.—Chicago Tribune.

FATHER'S PERIL.

What Would You Have Done Had You Been In His Place?

Just three or four time yellowed pages in an old colonial diary. How the manuscript came into my possession is immaterial. But here are two paragraphs: "February ye tenth, 1628. This day a most terrible thing happened to Father. It hath been a long, cold winter, and ye members of our little colony have suffered grievously, supplies being scant. Our larder being well nigh bare, my goodly father started forth in search of game. Of late it hath grown exceeding difficult to obtain powder and lead. Father had but one charge left for his trusty blunderbuss; but, being a famous shot, he had no doubt that this would prove sufficient to bring down some wild creature that the household might be supplied with meat.

"He had wandered some way from ye settlement when he sighted a wild turkey perched on a limb. Drawing near, he took aim. At this moment a skulking savage leaped from behind a tree near by. An arrow hurled past dear father's head, barely missing him. Quickly he turned his blunderbuss upon ye savage and prepared to fire.

"But ye thought came to him that his wife and children were in dire straits for food. Having but the one shot, what should he do? To slay ye savage would mean that ye turkey would escape. To shoot ye turkey would place father at ye mercy of ye cruel redskin. Momentarily he hesitated; but, suddenly determining upon a bold course, he took steady aim, fired and slew ye—"

Here the manuscript breaks off. I'm sorry that I ever ran across the confounded thing.—Walter G. Doty in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Oddities of Taxation.

In England there have been many amusing taxes and more amusing evasions. At one time the horse was singled out as a peculiar victim, and the farmer evaded the obligation by riding his cow to market or by harnessing his wife to the cart alongside of a big dog to drag the produce to town. The tax on chimneys resulted in the destruction of many fine old fireplaces, and the tax on windows had the effect of making the houses look as if they had been boarded up and deserted. It also impaired the eyesight of hundreds of Englishmen.

A Cobbler's Dozen.

In most countries thirteen is always spoken of as "the baker's dozen," but in Italy it is called "a cobbler's dozen." There is a tradition in that land that formerly there was a law compelling cobblers to put twelve nails around the edge of a boot heel and that when nails were cheap a thirteenth nail was driven in the center for luck.—London Mail.

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says:

"No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

Who Wanted to Know.

The late E. H. Harriman, says the Wall Street Journal, was a stickler for facts. He cared little for an approximate statement. When he asked his employees for information he wanted it definite.

While traveling through Nevada one day with a number of the officials of the Union Pacific the train passed a little station with much platform, a bleak background of sagebrush and junipers and no habitation within sight.

"What is that station there for?" asked Mr. Harriman of one of the railway officials with the party.

"They ship a few cattle and two or three cars of wool."

"Which is it, two or three?" snapped Mr. Harriman. "Which is it? There is a difference of 33 1-3 per cent."

Birds as Lamps.

The natives of Trinidad make use of the young guacharo in an unusual manner. The young are very fat and are frequently found to weigh more than the full grown birds. Their fat is used by the natives to produce an oil which is a substitute for butter. Also it is frequently the custom of the natives to draw a wick through the body of a young guacharo and use it as a lamp or candle. Thus the guacharo is sometimes called the oil bird.

The Aftermath.

Mrs. DuPuy—I was so surprised to hear that Edith and Mr. Sissingham were married. You know they always used to claim their attachment was merely platonic. Mrs. Kolkrenes—Yes, I remember. But now, I fear, they wouldn't claim it was even that.

Bowel Complaints in India

In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventive and cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Amateur gardeners and farmers who wish to diversify their crops will find cucumbers a fairly safe and profitable product. The sale for this class of commodities is steady in all stages of growth. There is no rush about picking or marketing.

Cucumbers ought to return a net profit of $200 an acre. A Michigan grower reports $250 an acre. Grocers, pickle factories and town families will take the output, but the marketing should be arranged for in advance. It is also an easy matter for growers to put up pickles, and this system adds to the profits.

The soil needs to be light, warm and full of vegetable matter. Land that has borne clover is good. It must not be soggy. In drought periods the vines should be watered daily, but this applies to garden products generally as well as to cucumbers. If the ground is not considered just right it is advisable to use well rotted manure in the hills before planting. The best way is to use well fertilized land that was plowed in the fall, adding a little barnyard manure to the cucumber hills as they are formed. Have the soil worked down fine with harrow or rake and mark out in checks at least four feet each way. Many prefer five or six feet. It is easier to cultivate check rows than single rows. The hill system is preferred because it gives plants more leaf surface. Better drainage is also secured in case of excessive rains.

Four to six seeds should be dropped in each hill and lightly covered with soil. In case of unfavorable weather or uneven growth additional plantings may be made. Second and third plantings can also be made for prolonging the marketing of cucumbers and for raising pickle stock. In order to get an early start seeds may be planted in a hotbed of moderate temperature or in window pots in the dwelling. Planting in the open ground is to be deferred until the soil is in nice order and danger from frost is over. Whatever transplanting is necessary should be done in the evening.

Those who are engaged in this line of gardening on an extensive scale should consult the owners of pickle factories as to prices and time of marketing. The pickle companies sometimes prefer to furnish the seed. When a large crop is to be raised the cultivation can be with an ordinary two horse corn cultivator. Planting in drills seems to be the easier method, in the opinion of some, but the majority of experts think that results are better with the hill system. A corn planter may be used if desired, and the plants may be thinned out as they develop. Seed is generally used at the rate of one ounce to fifty hills.

Insects are often troublesome in cucumber growing. For cutworms use poisoned bran about four inches from where the plants are coming through. For striped beetle dust frequently with plaster, which acts as a repellent. Hellebore powder in water is also effective in destroying the striped bug. During the picking season the vines are gone over regularly at short intervals and the cucumbers removed as soon as they attain marketable size. This will prevent any check in the growth of vines and increase the number of cucumbers that can be secured.

One of the most delicious vegetables is watercress, and yet few farmers or gardeners are trying to utilize the delicacy. No other product grows into money easier or with less trouble. It grows wild in running brooks, in ditches or around fresh ponds. All that is demanded for the raising of cress is pure water. Plant seeds in the soft earth at the edge of the water. The plants will soon fill the bed of the stream or pond. After establishing the growth of watercress it is available for use in March and throughout the season. A large sale can be worked up in any town.

Corn salad is a paying winter product, the small leaves being served like lettuce during the cool fall and early winter months. It is used for garnishing meat dishes and is in good demand. Plant late in the summer for fall and winter use. It is quite hardy and a little protection with leaves will carry it safely through the winter.

Exercise For Sheep.

Sufficient exercise is very necessary to the health of sheep, as it is in the case of all sorts of live stock.

SPRING PREPARATION.

Don't burn corn or cotton stalks. They furnish the land with soil fertility as well as soil ability and lessen danger from drought. Don't plow land the least bit too wet. It makes sun dried bricks, kills soil bacteria and lessens production some times for years. Don't do it. Remember that preparation is half of cultivation and far easier, cheaper and better done before than after planting. Hurry is often like worry. It doesn't pay. —Farm Progress.

ROMANS AS DRY FARMERS.

They Garnered Rich Olive Crops From the Hot African Sands.

The problem of dry farming with which our western farmers are struggling was faced also by the ancient Romans and handled by them in a manner from which we moderns can borrow many a suggestion. When the French took control of Tunis they found established there, a legacy from the Roman colonists of old, a system of dry farming as perfect as anything achieved by modern experiments in Australia, South Africa and our own west. Professor J. Russell Smith of the University of Pennsylvania has made a first hand investigation of this remarkable archaeological puzzle, which he describes in the Century in an article entitled "The Dry Farmers of Rome." He says in part:

"Plainly the Romans were master dry farmers to succeed under conditions worse than those under which we have failed. How did they do it? Can we not copy them? Fortunately, we can very simply device of growing tree crops. Since our dry farming has failed with grain crops on ten inches of rain and upward and theirs succeeded with tree crops on ten inches of rain and downward, the lesson is most plain. We, too, should grow tree crops."

"The secret is not hard to find. The perennial plant, of which the tree is the highest type, is nature's great implement for fighting aridity. If there is deep water the tree will send its roots for it. Recently an artesian well digger in Arizona brought up the live root of a small bush from the depth of eighty-three feet. If there is surface water at almost any season the perennial desert plant will seize it as a hungry dog seizes a bone and keep it securely for months or even years, supporting life and if possible maturing a crop of seed. Many and interesting are the devices by which plants have modified themselves to get and hold water in the fierce and merciless processes of adaptation, natural selection and survival. The olive, for instance, is a deep rooter in moist soil or a far-reaching, shallow rooter if there is no water in the subsoil. Its leaves are glazed above and hairy beneath. If undisturbed the foliage will completely shade its trunk, thus protecting it from the rays of the sun. Given one good drink, an olive tree has shown its ability to survive two rainless desert summers with only a single shower between. That is why the dry farmers of Rome succeeded 1,500 years ago, and their successors are succeeding now, while our farmers have often failed through their dependence on the quick growing, quick perishing annuals."

Poultry Feed Trough.

The difficulty in keeping poultry feed clean and dry during continued exposure can be largely overcome by using troughs with slatted sides and broad, detachable roofs. The troughs are from six to ten feet long, with sides five inches high, says a Missouri exchange. The lath slats are two inches apart, and the troughs are sixteen inches high from floor to roof. The roofs project about two inches at the sides and effectually keep out the rain except when high winds prevail. The roof is very easily removed by lifting one end and sliding it off endwise. The trough can then be filled and the roof drawn back into place without lifting it. This arrangement is economical of feed, keeping it in good condition and avoiding waste. When dry mash is used there may be considerable waste by the finer parts being blown away, and on this account the dry mash trough should be put in a sheltered place out of the reach of the wind.

Increase In Nut Growing.

The pecan, the chestnut and the hickory nut are the only native nuts domesticated, but sometimes forest and waste places can be planted not only to the nuts named, but to improved varieties of acorns, beechnuts, butternuts, filberts, hazels, chinquapins and nut pines, to utilize waste lands, to diversify diet and to furnish articles of food that can be shipped long distances and be kept from year to year. The fact of today which substitutes nuts for meat may become a necessity tomorrow. Meanwhile it is interesting to note that the pecan has become within a few decades so important a crop that optimistic growers predict in another half century that pecan groves will be second only to the cotton fields in the south. There are sixty-seven varieties, of which more than a million and a half trees have been planted.—U. P. Hedrick, New York Experiment Station.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET
For United States Senator:
HON. DAVID J. LEWIS
Of Allegany County.
For Congressman from First District:
HON. JESSE D. PRICE
Of Wicomico County.

WILSON AND MARSHALL RENOMINATED
President Woodrow Wilson and Vice-President Marshall were re-nominated upon the Democratic ticket last Thursday night amid scenes of great jubilation. Forty-five minutes of cheers acclaimed the nomination of President Wilson. This result of the Democratic National Convention was no more than had been expected, and it is very pleasing to the Democrats of the United States. The platform adopted is also a gracious tribute to the Wilson administration.

President Wilson has been greatly criticized during his tenure of office and the Republican press is now utilizing its powers to show that the nomination of Judge Hughes is far superior to that of Mr. Wilson. The great difficulty with critics is to be specific. General criticism will not answer. Those who criticize must show specifically in what respects the naming of Hughes is superior and preceding criticism, must come reasonable assurance of what a Republican President would have done had he been in Mr. Wilson's place.

Judge Hughes and President Wilson are in many respects alike, the former accustomed to weighing matters from a judicial standpoint, and the latter careful and prudent as a thoroughly educated college man should be. It is more than likely that the former's views will more or less coincide with those of the latter. When it comes to the question of peace, we believe that Judge Hughes' opinion will not vary much from that of President Wilson. The doctrine of "peace with honor" is the one that is being strained by Republicans, as if the same doctrine had not prevailed with the present administration. The fact that we have peace means no more than "peace with honor." It is to the honor of the President and of this country that Germany was called to a halt in its sea ventures and not before the various notes exchanged had given Germany full chance to disclaim the sentiment of the United States. Do the Republicans mean by their talk of "peace with honor" that had they been in power this country would now be embroiled in foreign conflict? A peace loving President who is averse to slaughter is to be commended for his various notes that commanded the fullest respect and peace as well. This is certainly "peace with honor."

The status of this country under a Democratic administration is also deserving of a complimentary notice. The country is wonderfully prosperous and every class of business is making advances. This was not due to a tariff loving set of Republicans and hence they can not attribute the success of this country to any tariff difference. That has become a dead issue.

As to preparedness, about which so much has been said of late, what state of preparation was left by Republicans at the close of Taft's administration? This fact of itself was sufficient to make President Wilson cautious and not permit him to attempt what the country's condition would not allow. It is well enough now for Republicans to brag of what they might have done, but if they are sincere, why did they not foresee events and prepare for them. The Mexican situation also is one that is exciting the comments of Republicans. Would the latter rush into a controversy with their neighbor when they admit their fear of Germany by reason of their state of unpreparedness? Mr. Wilson has shown his good sense in dealing with Mexico, which dealing would have been far different had there been more than a "de facto" government in that country.

It is all well enough for the Republicans of the United States to brag of what they would have done had their candidate of 1912 won; it is quite another to view the activity and good sense of the Democrats under Wilson and the Republican attempt to denounce them.

It is our opinion that the peaceful people of this country do not intend to dispense with the services of President Wilson and our faithful Vice-President. On the contrary, the acclamation that attended their nomination will continue until November shall accord the prize to the man who has shown prudence as well as activity and who believes that peace is fully possible without the shadow of dishonor.

Europe's Starving Millions
Last month large quantities of Red Cross supplies intended for the Teutonic powers were held up at the port of New York because of failure to obtain Great Britain's consent to the passage of the goods. It has been understood for some time that shipments containing rubber goods would not be passed, on the ground that even gloves and sheets of that material could be easily made into rubber stock now needed for military purposes. At any rate the embargo has been relentlessly applied. Tons of hospital stores are now lying at Brooklyn docks and seem likely to remain on this side of the Atlantic for some time to come. Meanwhile Premier Asquith has unreservedly praised the "untiring humanity of the United States" and the work of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium under Chairman Hoover.

The need of the Belgians and the people of Northern France is as great today, it is said, as ever before, because of the exhaustion of native foods, including potatoes. The price of meat, too, has advanced to $1.25 a pound. The American public has been asked for contributions to the amount of $70,000 a day to relieve the distress. In Poland also children as well as adults are dying of starvation. The American Red Cross has begun a campaign to secure a million members at one dollar each per year, and gratifying progress is being made.

Soon Be Time For A Showdown
Heretofore the Republican attacks upon the course of the Democratic national administration have been general, not specific. It has been damned for doing what it has done in respect of our relations with the warring countries of Europe, and for its policy in respect of Mexico. But no Republican leader has ventured to say what a Republican administration would have done in respect of Europe, or in dealing with Mexico.

Now the time has come when the Republican party must be specific. It is bound to say what it would have done in dealing with the European and Mexican situations had it been in power, and what it proposes to do in the event the people consent to elevate it to power. And Mr. Hughes, its candidate for President, must be its chief spokesman.
Mr. Hughes is an able man, but abler men than he would be puzzled about meeting this situation. And it will have to be met.—Wilmington Evening.

Price Of Beef Doubled In Ten Years
The price of beef has more than doubled in the last ten years and the end is not yet, according to well-informed packers and dealers, of New York City. Good beef costs $15.50 a hundred pounds in carlots today. It sold for $7 a hundred in 1906, but it probably never will drop as low again, it is said. Instead, dealers look forward sadly to paying $20 a hundred before long—perhaps this very year, certainly in three or four years.

The market men are not pleased. True, retail prices keep pace exactly with the wholesale advance and the retailer gets his profit out just the same whether beef is high or low. But the higher it goes the narrower the circle of patrons—that is, every cent advance drives a certain number of customers to other foods.

Forethought
People are learning that a little forethought often saves them a big expense. Here is an instance: E. W. Archer, Caldwell, Ohio, writes: "I do not believe that our family has been without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since we commenced keeping house years ago. When we go on an extended visit we take it with us." Obtainable everywhere.

Among those to receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts were Maurice Brayden Ridenour, of Williamsport; Sam Houston Showell, of Ocean City. Donald David Utt, of Cumberland, received a certificate in Commerce. George Robert Shaw, of Frederick, was created Master of Arts, while Frederick Stanley Porter, of Loretto, was graduated with an LL. B. degree.

A Erroneous Statement

The following is going the rounds of various papers:

"Stained glass windows for a new Methodist Episcopal Church at Princess Anne were ordered in Europe a year ago, but have not yet been received. The war is responsible for the failure of the foreign manufacturer to ship them. The church is nearly completed and will be dedicated in a few weeks."

On the contrary, the glass was not ordered abroad and the windows are already in place. The pews have been delayed but they are now here and the church will be dedicated on Sunday, July 2nd.

Red Cross Wants 1,000,000 Members

The campaign of the American Red Cross Society to raise its membership to the million mark is being prosecuted with energy and thoroughness that are not likely to leave the excuse of ignorance of what is being done available to any reluctant possible recruit. Information as to terms of membership is more easy to obtain than to avoid.

Japan, with a population of 40,000,000, has 1,800,000 Red Cross members. The United States, with a population of 100,000,000, has 27,000 members of the society. Whether or not the proportional figures are significant of and measure any sort of merit in the two nations, the comparison should be sufficient to swamp the recruiting agents with names of volunteers.

Confidence that the society will surely realize its ambition to attain a membership of 1,000,000 in the nation—equal to Russia's enrollment—and of these 100,000 in and about this city, should not be permitted to restrain any individual's zeal in the enterprise. The million means 1,000,000 individuals.—New York Sun.

LANKFORD'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Now is the Time to Buy

There has never been a time since we have been in business that we could make this statement with such absolute emphasis as now. Merchandise in every department of our store will soon be effected by the rising prices.

Anticipate your wants a little and get what you need from the present stock while the prices are low.

Procrastination is against you. We still have real live bargains in all lines. We do not need to tell you that all lines are going up in price; you hear it and feel it. The merchant that was only lightly supplied when this condition came on can not show you low prices. While we claim to be second to none in the county, we do not want you to overestimate our ability to take care of you for an unlimited time. We can now show you a better stock, that was bought before the advances, than we have ever had the pleasure to offer before.

ODD PLACE NAMES

How Some of Our Cities Received Their Appellations.

CHANCE HUMOR AND SATIRE.

All These Had Roles in the Selection by the Pioneers of Titles For Their New Homes—Why There Is Not a Great Boston on the Pacific Coast.

The thriving cities, the picturesque streams and the rugged mountains of the United States have in numerous instances received their names for reasons calculated to give a shock to the national board of geographic names.

The most grotesque accidents and coincidences, the results of games or wagers, the grim efforts of the pioneer mind to be satirical at the expense of his new home, all have operated to determine the name by which proud municipalities or imposing physical features appear upon the map.

In a general study of the origin and significance of place names of this country made by the United States geological survey the following oddly given names have been picked out:

The naming of the populous city of Portland, Ore., was decided by the tossing of a copper coin by two settlers, one from Portland, Me., the other from Boston. The Maine man won, else we should have had another great Boston on the Pacific.

The city of Tombstone, Ariz., was named as a bit of grim humor. Its founder had been advised when starting on his prospecting tour that he would "find his tombstone." In order that the prophecy might be fulfilled he gave the name to the city he established.

The city of Bangor, Me., bears the name of an old psalm tune which our forefathers sang to the tremor of a tuning fork. The name was given by the Rev. Seth Noble, who represented the district in the Maine legislature.

Wheeling, the metropolis of West Virginia, owes its name to the circumstance of the Indians having displayed the head of a white man on a pole at this point. The name is from the Indian word "wheeling," meaning "place of a human head."

One of the most distinctive names on the map of Colorado is Uruy. It has been applied to a city, a county and an imposing mountain. Yet the name means nothing more nor less than "Wile" and is the result of the Ute Indians' attempt to translate this synonym of Harold and Percy into their own tongue.

The city of Norwalk, Conn., is said to have been so named because, when purchased from the Indians the northern boundary of the land was to extend northward from the sea one day's walk, according to the Indian marking of the distance.

A town in Georgia rejoices in the strikingly original but somewhat ambiguous designation of Nameless. The name was given from the fact that in a list of several hundred names submitted to the postoffice authorities not one was found satisfactory.

A town in Gunnison county, Colo., possesses the eloquent name of Tin Cup, given because in its early days, when a mining camp, gold was so plentiful that it was measured in a tin cup.

The Calico mountain range in California was given its name from the variegated color of its rocks.

The city of Jacksonville, Ill., was named for a prominent colored preacher and is perhaps the largest community in the country named for a negro.

The city of Spartanburg, S. C., was so called from the rigorous, Spartan-like self discipline practiced by the inhabitants during the Revolutionary war.

A stream in Ravalli county, Mont., is known as Weeping Child from the circumstance of an Indian child being carried off by a mountain lion, causing insanity in the mother.

Antelope county, in Nebraska, was so named in commemoration of the killing and eating of an antelope during the pursuit of some Indians by the pioneers.

The town of Deerfield, N. H., was so named because, when the petition for the establishment of the town was pending, a Mr. Batchelder killed a deer and upon presenting it to Governor Wentworth obtained the act of establishment and the town name.

Hell Gate, the narrow pass in the East river at New York, was called by the Dutch hellegat, meaning "bright strait" or "clear opening." The name quickly suggested the present English form, which was regarded as more appropriate on account of the whirlpools which made navigation dangerous.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Denmark in Her Prime. In the twelfth century Denmark was the mightiest state in northern Europe, and the Baltic had become a "Danish Mediterranean." This supremacy was short lived, though, and the country never again regained the power and prestige which she had won and lost at the point of the sword.—Argonaut.

Wanted to Demonstrate. "This man says you kicked him," said the judge. "I did, your honor." "Could you tell us how hard you kicked him?" "I could show you, your honor."—Yonkers Statesman.

It is happiness to be nobly descended; it is not less to have so much merit that nobody inquires whether we are so or not.—La Bruyere.

PUFFING UP THE OYSTER.

Showing How Easily Four Quarts May Be Swelled Into Five.

Adulteration of oysters on the half shell, freshly opened, might be thought as difficult as adulteration of unpeeled fruit. But the purists to whom all things are impure have discovered that oysters are "adulterated" by soaking them in fresh water. It is not suggested that the water is unwholesome, either for the oysters or those who eat them. But that is not the point.

These things are all arranged for us at Washington, and the department of agriculture, which is particularly devoted to oyster culture, has issued a formal statement to all and sundry regarding the heinous practice of making oysters look plump and white by soaking them in water. It is official information that if four quarts of oysters and a quart of fresh water are placed in a five quart container and the mixture allowed to stand for several hours there will be a marked change in the appearance of the contents of the container. To the naked eye there will appear to be five quarts of oysters, for the container will be full and there will be little or no water in sight, it being on the inside of the plump, succulent looking oysters. The average purchaser has no means of detecting the addition of water.

That relates only to "shucked" oysters. Half shell oysters "drink" water, and thus undersized oysters may be converted into "select" beyond the detection of any but a chemist. The purpose of publishing these facts is to make it known to all lawbreakers and oyster caterers that all such oysters are "adulterated" under section 7 of the food and drugs act, which provides that food is adulterated "if a substance has been substituted in whole or in part for the article."

LAW OF MOTION.

Why a Ball Follows You if Thrown in the Air While You Walk.

When you throw a ball into the air while moving your body forward or backward, either slowly or fast, the ball partakes of two motions—the upward and the forward or backward motion of your body. The ball possessed the motion of your body before it left your hand to go up into the air because your body was moving before you threw it up, and the ball was a part of you at the time.

If you are moving forward up to the time you throw the ball into the air and stop as soon as you let go of the ball, it will fall at some distance from you. Also if you throw the ball up from a standing position and move forward as soon as the ball leaves your hand the ball will fall behind you, provided you actually threw it straight up.

Of course you know that the earth is moving many miles per hour on its axis and that when you throw a ball straight into the air from a standing position, the earth and yourself, as well as the ball, move with the earth a long distance before the ball comes down again. The relative position is, however, the same. We get our sense of motion by a comparison with other objects.

If you are in a train that is moving swiftly and another train goes by in the opposite direction, moving just as fast, you seem to be going twice as fast as you really are. If the train on the other track, however, is going at the same rate of speed and in the same direction as you are you will appear to be standing still.

Going back to the ball again, you will find that it always partakes of the motion of the body holding it in addition to the motion given when it is thrown up.—Philadelphia Press.

Learning His Lesson.

The man whose house was next door was scraping an acquaintance with the man who had just moved in.

"I see you have an automobile," he said. "I suppose you will use the barn as a garage."

"Yes; I expect to use it as a garage," responded the new neighbor.

This held him for a minute or two, and then he made another overture.

"The man that lived here last year," he said, "used his back yard as a cat-bahz patch."—Pittsburgh Times.

His Views.

"Dear me, I forgot to send her an invitation to our wedding!" "I imagine it won't make much difference. We won't miss one pickle fork."—Kansas City Journal.

Don't keep on suffering, apply Sloan's Liniment where your pain is and notice how quick you get relief. Penetrates without rubbing. Buy it at any Drug Store. 25c. [Advertisement.]

IN THE PLACE OF MILLETS.

Tests of Sudan Grass Indicate the Value of This Crop.

[J. C. Hackleman, Missouri station.] Tests of Sudan grass by the Missouri station during the last two years indicate that this new crop will be of value to Missouri farmers, especially in the southern part of the state. It differs from Johnson grass in not possessing the heavy root stalks or underground stems which make Johnson grass so difficult to eradicate in those regions which are well suited for its production. The plants average from three to five feet in height when drilled or broadcasted and have stems a little larger than a lead pencil. If grown in rows and cultivated it reaches a height of from six to nine feet on good soil, with a corresponding increase in the size of the stems. When planted thinly it stools very freely, sometimes producing as many as a hundred stems from one crown.

Like other sorghums, Sudan grass does best in a warm climate. It should not be planted until all danger of frost is past and the ground thoroughly warmed. It is decidedly drought resistant, which makes it well suited to the semiarid regions of the southwest. It is also being grown with success in the more humid regions, but it has not attracted as much attention there as in the drier sections, where there are not so many other good hay plants. Two cuttings are usually made and under very favorable conditions sometimes three or four. It has rather wide adaptations as regards soil, growing successfully on almost every soil from a heavy clay to a light sand. It does best, however, on a rich, well drained loam.

Two methods of seeding are practiced, broadcasting or drilling solid or drilling in rows to be cultivated. An ordinary grain drill may be used and the seed covered from one-half to one inch deep. Where drilled in rows a sufficient number of holes are stopped up to put the rows the proper distance apart. Where an ordinary corn cultivator is to be used the rows should be from thirty-six to forty-two inches apart. Where seeded broadcast from twenty to twenty-five pounds of seed to the acre are required, while seeding with a drill requires about five pounds less. If seeded in rows four or five pounds are sufficient.

It is customary to cut it for hay just after full bloom and to cure in light windrows and small cocks. It may also be harvested with a binder and cured in shocks. Where grown for seed it is usually harvested with a grain binder when the first heads are fully ripe.

In Missouri Sudan grass should be considered a hay grass of much the same use on the general farm as millet. It will generally give two cuttings and will yield from two to four tons of good hay. In feeding value it is similar to timothy hay, millet and Johnson grass.

Masking the Guns.

Against air craft observation one of the first precautions taken is to splash guns, limbers and ammunition wagons with different neutral tints so that they will blend with the ground about them. Any earthworks, pits, etc., that are erected or dug are strewn with leaves and branches and the earth disturbed generally, so that from above nothing unusual shall be spotted by keen eyed air men.

A battery of guns is seldom placed along the sky line, for there it is an easy mark. Generally the guns are concealed some distance down the incline in front of the sky line, unless the guns are howitzers, in which case they can be best served from behind the ridge. The idea of placing the guns in front of the ridge is that the rising ground behind them serves as an effectual screen, as the guns themselves are painted to represent earth and foliage.—London Standard.

Shakespeare Altered.

A portable theater has been pitched in an out of the way spot where the prospective theatrical patrons were unsophisticated in matters dramatic. The players possessed the costumes for "Hamlet," and Shakespeare's tragedy was selected for representation. It then occurred to the proprietors of the show that the name might not attract, so they altered the title to "How the Stepmother Was Paid Out"—London Mail.

"The Best Possible Newspaper!"

What sort of a paper is it? In the first place, it must be a Home Paper—the Woman's Friend and a part of her daily life. And it must be a necessity to the Business Man. It must not only tell what is happening in the world, but it must go farther and tell why it is happening and what it means. The Best Possible Newspaper has a staff of correspondents covering the world of the Associated and United Press, securing the earth for vital human facts. It has fashions and art, books and music, literature and politics at its right hand. It has the markets for the farmer, the merchant, the broker.

The world has never seen an age of greater constructive significance in politics, in science, in society. Every move in the field of action is a topic for discussion in cities, villages, hamlets, at cross-roads. And the Best Possible Newspaper must equip its readers for intelligent understanding of all these things. That is precisely why it is the simple truth that for your purpose, and for the purposes of the whole South, the BEST POSSIBLE NEWSPAPER is

The Leading Evening Paper of the South

The Baltimore Star, established August 17, 1905, by the publishers of The Baltimore American, has won its place as the representative evening paper of the South. It gives more news and more reading matter than any other afternoon paper in Maryland. It is especially rich in departments—financial, sporting, society, children's, women's, and to these departments the best writers of America are regular contributors. The Star is the great home paper, with something for every member of the family. It is a cheerful newspaper, with plenty of entertainment. Those who try it keep on taking it.

The Star is elaborately illustrated. It has the first photographs of important events. Its portraits of leading men and women are unequalled. The Star has two great news services, with wires direct to its offices from all parts of the world. The Star has a wireless equipment. It uses every modern invention and the best enterprise to get all the news.

The Star is different from other Southern papers. It has a quality of its own.

LIGHTNING A MENACE ON THE FARM

Precautions To Be Observed In Protecting Life And Property From Lightning.

MYRON CREESE,

Maryland State College of Agriculture.

There are a number of types of lightning, the most common forms being the "forked stroke," band lightning, heat lightning and sheet lightning. The last two forms of lightning are so remote from the place where they are observed that they are perfectly harmless. Both the forked and band lightning are extremely dangerous forms.

The dangers from lightning may be classified as: (1) Dangers to person; (2) Dangers to property. In almost every case the danger to person is limited to shock which may result in injury or death. Danger to property includes the injury or death to livestock as a result of shock, or destruction of buildings, trees, etc., either shattered or set on fire.

Wise Precautions.

Statistics show that many persons have been injured by lightning in open fields, especially on hills towards which the storm was approaching. The only safe thing to do under such conditions is to find a dry depression in the ground and to lie down until the storm has passed. It is dangerous to take shelter in a thunderstorm under a tree or small group of trees; lightning striking the trees may be diverted from the tree trunk through the person's body to the ground or falling limbs may injure him. If there is a tree or small group of trees in an open field, it is safer to take up a position near the trees but not under them, because lightning is more liable to strike tall trees, which act like lightning rods, than the person. A person should take refuge in a building before the storm commences and avoid crossing an open field while the storm is passing.

It is very dangerous to take shelter, during a storm, under a metal roof which is not thoroughly connected to the ground by wires or pipes. Any building, such as a dwelling house or barn, is not entirely safe shelter unless it contains some well grounded metal extending above the roof. In unprotected buildings the most dangerous places to occupy during a storm are near chimneys, fireplaces, and the walls.

Protection To Buildings.

Protection from lightning does not consist in preventing the building from being struck; but in providing an easy path for the discharge to the ground. Lightning rods may be made of iron or copper; but, on account of the rapid corrosion of iron exposed to the weather, it is probably cheaper in the end to use copper. Rods should be placed from 8 to 12 feet apart along the ridge of the roof and one rod should be placed near each chimney. Rods near chimneys should project two or three feet above them and other rods should project at least three feet above the ridge. All rods should be fastened to the roof with short heavy screws, or bolts. Probably the best form of metallic connection between the rods and the ground is a loosely woven wire cable of small copper wires. The cross-section of the wires in the cable should be about equal to that of a solid wire three-eighths of an inch in diameter. The copper cable should be in one continuous piece, from one ground connection near a corner of the building to the roof and down the diagonally opposite corner to another ground connection. The cable should be carried from the first ground up the side of the building near a corner, along the cornice to the ridge, along the ridge, down the opposite cornice and down the corner to the second ground. The cable should be fastened to the rods on the roof with special metallic clamps; and to the building with special forms of clamping devices or ordinary pipe straps, the clamps or straps being secured with short, heavy nails or screws. No sharp bends should be made in the cable and it should be protected from mechanical injury by nailing a strip of board or molding over the cable from the ground line to a height of about six feet. All spouting and any pipes, such as ventilators, projecting above the roof should be connected metallically to the cable. Do not use insulators anywhere in connection with lightning rods. With an L-shaped building, it is wise to connect a third ground to the system at the angle of the L.

Proper Grounding.

By grounding is meant the best electrically conducting ground connection to be found near the building which is to be protected. Probably the best ground is a continuous extensive metallic pipe system buried in the earth, such as a water-pipe system. The simple process of connecting the cable to a pipe driven several feet into the ground is not generally sufficient grounding. If an extensive water-pipe system is not available for grounding, a pit two to three feet in diameter should be dug down to permanent moist earth. The ground cone or plate, to which the cable is secured, should be buried in the pit and surrounded with coke or charcoal to a depth of from one to two feet. The pit should then be filled with earth to the ground level. Soil saturated with stable drainage makes an excellent ground, but possesses the disadvantage of corroding the ground plate very rapidly.

HAMMER AND NAILS FOR COMMUNITY BUILDING

Maryland Ministers Will Hold Their Third Annual Country Life School And Conference, July 24 To August 5.

"No, I don't attend conventions any more," said a Maryland minister recently. "They just pump you full of inspiration until you feel that you are as big as Goliath and as cunning as David—man enough to tackle anything. But you go home and shrink and shrink as you meet the same old difficulties, until you feel too small and weak to carry out your conventional plans for the saving of the universe. It's like rhapsodizing on the beauties of the house you want the apprentice carpenter to build and failing to give him carpenter's tools or definite instructions."

A Common Defect Avoided.

The program committee of the third annual Country Life Conference of Maryland Ministers which will be held at the State College of Agriculture, August 2-4, and will be preceded by a Country Life School on Rural Community Problems, beginning July 24, has realized the truth of the above criticism and has sought by choice of speakers and arrangement of the addresses and discussion to make its session give a definite and practical message that can be used by the average minister in the average community. The previous school and conferences have provided both hammer and nails for community building has been proven by the good work since accomplished by the ministers who attended. Community centers, community improvement associations, granges, and county ministerial associations that have been organized during the past year are directly traceable to the 1914 and 1915 efforts.

A National Movement.

The ministers in many states are getting together for the good of the cause. In at least ten states the country life opportunity chard is being struck, and everywhere it makes for harmony and happiness in country life.

Country Life School.

The aim of the Country Life School is to give the minister a deeper insight into the social and economic phases of country life and also to give him practical training in agriculture and domestic science. Soils and Drainage, Rural Sanitation, Fertilizers, Use of Lime, Concrete on the Farm, Orchard Fruits, Small Fruits, Hog Cholera Control, and Poultry are some of the topics that will be presented by the specialists of the College and the Experiment Station. The purpose is to better equip the preacher to lead his community not to make him a specialist but to give him a deeper fundamental conception of the needs of his community for better agriculture as well as for better spiritual life.

Professor F. B. Bomberger, who is well qualified for this work by both experience and training and dean of the Economics Department of the State College, will give a series of lectures upon Rural Economics, tracing the development of agriculture and emphasizing the factors that make for progress.

Ralph A. Felton, of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, will lecture daily upon Rural Sociology. It is he who is largely responsible for the epoch making country life surveys for which his board is famous. His grasp is that of one thoroughly grounded in all the library can afford but depending upon intimate knowledge gained in his field work for his conclusions as to the measures necessary for the development of a satisfying social life for the country.

The Conference August 2-4.

Again in the conference the tools of community building will be presented and their use explained. While inspiration and enthusiasm will be much in evidence they will be accompanied by concrete suggestions.

Ralph Felton will lecture daily on sociological questions, Rev. Silas E. Persons, of Cazenovia, N. Y., whose work in a country pastorate has been heralded from coast to coast, will speak daily on mastering the everyday problems of the country pastorate. F. B. Freeman, of the International Y. M. C. A., will deliver three addresses upon Leadership of the Country Community. He has had years of successful experience in enlisting and training boys and girls in community work. Dr. W. H. Burk, of the Protestant Episcopal Domestic Mission Society, will speak daily upon "The Rural Sunday School." He is a national authority upon the country Sunday School, with a great faith in the wonderful opportunities it offers for building up the church.

Among the other speakers will be Dr. P. P. Claxton, commissioner of education; Gifford Pinchot, of the U. S. Conservation Association; Dr. E. L. Watson, a former district superintendent of the M. E. Church; and Dr. H. J. Patterson, president of the State College of Agriculture.

Several excellent pieces of work done in the State during the past year will also be reported by the ministers to whom credit is due. Half the time is left free for general discussion, thus making the conference a clearing house for all worth while and workable ideas.

Announcement bulletins may be obtained by writing to Prof. F. B. Bomberger, who has charge of the school, or to B. H. Darrow, secretary of the Country Life Conference, both at College Park, Md.

REFUSING RICHES.

Chances For Making Fortunes Have Often Been Turned Aside.

It is not an easy thing to say "No" to wealth when it is offered in hand, but there are people who have done it. In the eighties the best known and most popular actress in the world, perhaps, was Mary Anderson, an American who was as good as she was beautiful.

At twenty-eight she married and has never since been tempted out of her retirement except for a charity performance. In the hope of inducing her to go on the stage again an enterprising American manager offered her $60,000 for a season of thirty weeks—a fortune in itself. The lady refused.

Calve was offered $4,000 a week to go on the vaudeville stage. Her work was to consist of singing four songs—two at a matinee and two in the evening—which works out at about $150 a song. She also refused.

Jack Binn, who in the early days of wireless won worldwide fame by sticking to his post on a sinking liner and bringing help from the four quarters, was offered fabulous sums to appear on the music hall stage and show "how it was done." His reply was that he was an electrician and not an actor. So he "turned down" a fortune.

Mr. Gladstone refused several fortunes from enterprising publishers. He would only write what he wanted and when he wanted. Browning was the same.—London Answers.

SHAKESPEARE AND SLANG.

Later Day Phrases That Were Used by the Immortal Bard.

"Good night," a terse ejaculation that has taken ranking position among the slang of the day, had its source in no less authority than Will Shakespeare. It took a Hamilton college student to discover that the magic words were frequently used in Shakespeare's plays and with as much variety of meaning as we have been giving to them.

"The idea that 'good night' has the mark of modernity," declares this student, "is a sad mistake. In act 1, scene 3, of the first part of 'King Henry IV,' Worcester says he will disclose a matter of Hotspur which is as full of peril 'as to overwalk a current roaring loud on the unsteadfast footing of a spear.' To which Hotspur replies, 'If he fall in, good night.'"

Many other bits of modern vernacular are from Shakespeare, the student says, among them "Go to it!" "You cheese!" "I am for you," "Dead drunk" and plenty of others.

And regarding that once very favorite phrase "Beat it" the student says this: "Every one from a former president to a newsboy has made use of these two words. Yet in act 2, scene 1, of 'The Comedy of Errors' Luciana exclaims: 'Fie! Beat it hence!'"—Hartford Courant.

The Indignant Mandrill.

The blue faced mandrill which, or who, has ended an unhappy life in his solitary cage at the zoo was a victim to the human sense of humor. He had a long, broad, light blue nose with a pink stripe down the middle. The nose always caused a laugh. And when, in acute irritation, he turned his back upon the inevitable guffaw the bright blue thighs, edged with rose color, raised a new shout of delight. He knew perfectly well that the laugh was the laugh of derision, the third and lowest of the forms of human fun. He visibly hated his visitors. Nature had so colored him to enchant the eyes of a mate, but men have other eyes than hers. Swift in his days of failure and despair might have looked with the look of the indignant mandrill.—London Chronicle.

Blending the Odors.

It has been proved that two odors which do not seem to have anything in common, that of putrefied cheese and that of pineapple, are so closely allied from the chemical standpoint that it takes but a few minutes to transform an intense stench into a sweet fragrance. This curious experiment is easily made and requires but a small amount of three chemicals—valerianic acid, sulphuric acid and amylic alcohol. Care must be taken not to spill over the fingers or dress any drop of the first two named liquids. Sulphuric acid is exceedingly caustic, and the stench of valerianic acid, besides being unendurable, is very difficult to get rid of.—London Family Herald.

None of the Shop For Her.

Butcher—"Ow is my daughter gettin' on with 'er music, professor?"

Professor—"Well, I'm only teaching her the scales at present."

Butcher (indignantly)—"Teachin' 'er the scales! I don't want 'er to know nothink about the scales. She ain't goin' to serve in the shop. I mean 'er to be a lady. Teach 'er the pianer or I'll take 'er away from yer.—London Mail.

Different Matter.

"I'm trying to sell that house I bought last year. I thought it would be an easy matter, but it isn't."

"What made you think it would be easy?"

"Well, the agent didn't have any trouble selling it to me."—Exchange.

Advice Concerning the Baby.
If the baby is pretty tell the mother that it is the very image of her; if it looks like something the cat dragged in intimate that it takes strongly after the old man.—Columbia State.

Thought works in silence; so does virtue. One might erect statues to silence.—Carlyle.

Philadelphia Sunday Record
The average man has less than an hour to devote to newspaper reading on week-days. The daily issue of "The Philadelphia Record" therefore gives him the news in concise and attractive form, so arranged that he can grab the essentials of the day's history of the world without a moment's loss of time and find any particular item under its appropriate classification, just where he is accustomed to look for it. Sunday, however, is a day of leisure. The Sunday newspaper reader has time for mental recreation and demands it. The Sunday issue of "The Philadelphia Record" gives it to him, copiously, and yet with the discrimination that marks the difference between first-class and indifferent Sunday reading.

"The Sunday Record" has just added to its already abundant informative and entertaining features a new eight-page story section which is bound to appeal strongly to popular interest. This section, devoted wholly to the presentation of high-grade fiction, contains serials and short stories by writers of established reputation whose works are in great demand when published in book form. Their contributions to the story section of "The Sunday Record" are a valuable addition to the current fiction of the day, and are certain to be appreciated in every home to which that newspaper will carry them.

Good fiction appeals to the whole family—and there are scores of other features in "The Sunday Record" that help to account for its eager reception in cultivated homes. Its departments devoted to sports, fashions, domestic science, society, music and the drama, invention, art, the school and the nursery, set the standard in their respective fields. Its varied appeals to the serious and the humorous side of life interest young and old of both sexes. The addition of its new story section makes "The Philadelphia Record" a complete Sunday newspaper.

Fruits Of The Underwood Tariff

The Republicans have been lying about the Underwood tariff ever since it was enacted. They inserted a barefaced falsehood about it in their platform. They have got to keep on lying about it during the Presidential campaign. It is necessary, therefore, for "The Record," and other papers that keep the facts before their readers, to refer to this subject often.

The figures for our foreign commerce for April and for 10 months have just appeared. We can compare them with the figures for the corresponding part of 1912, when William Howard Taft was President and the Payne-Aldrich tariff was in force.

In 10 months of the fiscal year 1912 the imports of raw materials and partly manufactured articles, all of it grist for American mills, amounted to $692,000,000. In 10 months of this year these items amounted to $1,017,000,000 an increase of $325,000,000, that can be explained by the greatly increased activity of the factories and mills of this country.

The imports of manufactures ready for consumption, the finished product of industrial establishments, was $308,000,000 in the Republican period and $251,000,000 in the Democratic period, a decrease of $57,000,000. The Republican platform denounces the Underwood tariff for an enormous increase in imports. But that increase is in the materials used, and the reason for the enormous increase was the prosperity of our factories. In the finished product of mills and factories there was a substantial decrease.

The export of manufactured goods ready to enter into consumption increased from $544,000,000 to $1,520,000,000, a gain of $976,000,000. These are the statistics of the Underwood tariff and the Payne-Aldrich tariff. These are the facts that confront the complaint of the Republican platform that the Democratic tariff is flooding the country with the products of alien industry. The exports under the Payne-Aldrich tariff are an absolute refutation of the Protectionist claim that American manufacturers cannot hold the home market without the assistance of a high tariff. In the 10 months under consideration our manufacturers exported products of their shops and mills to the value of $544,000,000. If they can export like that they do not need protection. But large as that export was, the export of manufactured goods in the past 10 months was nearly three times as great. Is it likely that the country could do any better under a Republican tariff, which would burden all manufacturers with heavy duties on the raw materials they use?—Philadelphia Record.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.
To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

$1,144,000 For Bay Fort

Appropriations totaling $1,144,000, with which to start work immediately upon the giant fort at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay were last Wednesday approved by the House, sitting in committee of the whole with the Fortifications bill under consideration. Land upon which this fort will be erected at Cape Henry has been purchased, and plans for its construction have been drawn, and the War Department intends to push completion as rapidly as possible.

The fort will be manned with four 16-inch mortars having a range of over 25,000 yards. In the opinion of the army experts it will be impossible for a hostile fleet to get within striking distance of the Virginia shore line.

In the matter of the tax sale of Real Estate in Deal's Island Election District of Somerset county, assessed to William J. Harris, made and reported by John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset County, Maryland, as purchaser, Ex Parte.

No. 3086 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity.

Whereas, a certain John E. Holland, County Treasurer for Somerset County, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, a sale made by him to Harry T. Phoebus, of all that lot of land in Deal's Island District, Somerset County, Maryland, viz: Lot No. 11—Being all that lot of land in Deal's Island District, Somerset County, Maryland, as aforesaid, containing one and one-half acres of land, more or less, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of Henry Cottman, Elizabeth Kemp and Sallie Tilghman, conveyed unto William J. Harris by S. J. Windsor and others by deed recorded in Liber H. F. L. No. 5, folio 406, etc., and assessed to the said William J. Harris on the assessment books for said election district, for the said year 1915, and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings in relation thereto, and whereas upon examination it appears to the said Court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been complied with.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered this 6th day of May, in the year 1916, by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset County, before the 30th day of June, in the year 1916, warning all persons interested in the said real estate to be and appear in this Court on or before the 30th day of June, 1916, to show cause, if any they have, why said sale should not be ratified and confirmed.

The report shows the amount of the sales to be $1.50.

Fight Off Cholera
—NOW WITH—
Cal-Sino Hog Restorative

THE PREVENTIVE treatment of Hog Cholera with Cal-Sino Hog Restorative Powder is easier, safer and more satisfactory than trying to cure the disease itself after it attacks your hogs for all too often sudden violent attacks occur which leave no time for treatment and so always cause speedy death.

A warm spell of weather is apt to bring an outbreak of Cholera at any time. To insure against loss and to get the most weight it pays to give a regular course of Cal-Sino. It costs only about 10c to 20c per hog per month, depending upon size, to fortify against disease and to make them fleshier, for Cal-Sino helps to get all the real body-building flesh-making material out of the food—and that's what counts.

If you once try it, you'll use it always. Ask your neighbors and the dealers. Don't put it off—delay may cause you loss.

NEW ANTIOCH METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, WITH PARSONAGE TO THE LEFT

ANTIOCH METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH TO BE DEDICATED NEXT SUNDAY

The Beginning Of The New Church Enterprise Was As Far Back As 1912—The Cost Of The Building Is About $25,000 And Of This There Remains About $7,500 To Be Raised

The new Antioch Methodist Episcopal Church is to be dedicated on Sunday next, July 2nd. In March, 1915, the old structure was taken down, numerous cemetery changes were made and digging was begun for the cellar and foundation of the new church.

The new structure is complete in every detail. It is built of white marble, has a fine audience room, Sunday school room and a social hall over the latter. The building is finely seated, has elegant electric lights throughout, a piano in the Sunday School room and one in the social hall, the latter being fully equipped with all necessary kitchen utensils for various church entertainments. The cellar is fitted with a complete steam heating plant. Commemorative stained glass windows of beautiful design ornament the structure. The new pipe organ has not yet been bought, but funds are being raised to purchase a $2500 instrument. Mr. Leon Wilde Crawford, of Wilmington, is the architect.

In addition to the church and its equipment, the cemetery has been beautifully walled with a marble enclosure, concrete walks have been laid and the grass plots are in fine condition. The parsonage of the church adjoining has also been repainted and put in excellent condition.

The dedication services of the church will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. D. J. Givan. The ministers who have been invited and are expected to be present are Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Boston, Mass.; Dr. John Krantz, of New York; Dr. T. A. H. O'Brien, Superintendent of the Wilmington Conference; Dr. C. A. Hill, of Immanuel M. E. Church, Crisfield; Dr. T. E. Martindale, of Salisbury, and Dr. Hurshur, of Asbury M. E. Church, Salisbury.

The corner stone of the new church was laid on July 28, 1915, with interesting services, Rev. Dr. Thomas Martindale, of Salisbury, being the principal speaker. Dr. Martindale was one of the pastors of Antioch Church in 1890. In the corner stone were placed numerous memorials.

Clay Pigeon Tournament

The Hurlock Gun Club will have a clay pigeon tournament on the 22nd at Hurlock, Md., and the Princess Anne Trap-shooting Club sent a delegation of twelve members to attend.

There were 120 targets shot at and 20 prizes offered. Mr. B. H. Dougherty headed the Princess Anne boys with a score of 93 and won a prize. Dr. T. J. Smith, Omar Reading, and Edwin Haymen also drew prizes, making four prizes out of the twenty that the Princess Anne boys brought home. Mr. Frank Layfield also tied for a prize, but lost it on the toss of a coin.

Besides those mentioned above, the following members of the Princess Anne Club attended the shoot: Columbus Lankford, Dr. Barnes, C. C. Waller, Earle B. Polk, Dr. Buhman, E. C. Cannon and Herbert Holland. Dr. Barnes and Mr. Frank Layfield carried the boys over in their cars and the boys all report a royal time. It was their first experience at a regularly registered tournament.

With a house filled to capacity, L. Irving Handy, ex-Congressman from Delaware, delivered an interesting address in Mt. Olivet Methodist Protestant Church, Seaford, Del., Monday night of last week, in behalf of the Delaware Children's Home Society.

Antioch Church began in 1832, when a deed was given by John Dennis to John Waters, Levin Ballard, James Phoebeus, Stephen Drury, Richard E. Waters, Daniel Ballard, Lewis Phoebeus, Arnold H. Ballard and William Sudler, as a board of trustees. In 1856 an act was passed by the Legislature incorporating Antioch Church and vesting the title conveyed by said deed in the following trustees: John V. Pinto, James Brittingham, Josiah S. Crockett, Al. Whitney, William H. Fisher, William Hinman, George C. Dixon, William Leantes and Seth D. Venables. The act of 1856 was amended in 1876 as to the method of electing trustees.

The old brick structure, which has been torn down, stood for many years in its plain form, with two entrances in front and a gallery in the rear of the church, until 1875 when the church was remodeled, the gallery removed and a brick tower was erected at the northeast corner. A few years after it became necessary to remove this tower as there was danger of its falling and tearing out the church walls. In 1885

the church was again remodeled and a Sunday School room was built in front and a recess pulpit was erected in the rear. A bell was also purchased and rang from a southeast belfry which has also been taken down. In 1895 still another change was made, the ceiling being removed, exposed rafters work taking its place. A choir gallery behind the pulpit was also erected and a few years ago a pipe organ was installed.

The following are the present trustees: Thomas H. Bock, Charles W. Long, Wm. H. Dashiell, E. I. Brown, James A. McAllen, A. E. Krause, Dr. C. T. Fisher, George W. Brown and L. L. Pusey. The pastor, Rev. D. J. Givan, is also ex officio a member.

The pastors of the church since 1872 have been: John Shilling, W. I. Bain, R. C. Jones, W. F. Talbot, W. R. McFarlane, W. J. O'Neill, W. E. Tompkinson, Robert Watt, W. P. Compton, Charles F. Sheppard, R. W. Todd, G. T. Alderson, G. W. Woodall, I. G. Fosenocht, A. H. Covey, J. W. Colon, W. E. Gunby, J. Howard Gray, D. J. Givan.

The growth of the Methodist church in Princess Anne is something remarkable. For many years it was exceedingly slow. Many new people have come to Princess Anne and vicinity and have become members of the congregation, and their children are members of the Sunday school. The latter, in former years, had an enrollment of less than 100 members; it now has an enrollment of over 300. The church membership has also largely increased.

The beginning of the new church enterprise was as far back as 1912. One of the esteemed members of the church, and a prominent member of the board of trustees, offered the sum of $5,000 if the congregation would raise a similar sum. This was accomplished, and in 1915 the new church was begun. The same gentleman has contributed again, and most handsomely, to the enterprise, whilst the Ladies Aid Society and subscriptions have assisted largely in securing funds. The cost of the building will probably amount to $25,000, and of this there will remain about $7,500 to be raised.

Troops Off For Laurel

Company L, First Regiment, Captain S. P. Fuller, commanding, more than 70 strong, left Crisfield at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning for Camp Harrington at Laurel.

Tuesday night the guardsman hurried back and forth over the town, engaging in short drills and other maneuvers. Many of the men were unable to sleep, so eager were they to make their departure. Early Wednesday morning the bugle called them to the armory, and from there they marched to the railroad station. Thousands were out to see them off and lend encouragement.

Capt. S. P. Fuller accompanied by Harold J. Tawes and Olin Bedsworth, members of Company L, returned to Crisfield Friday morning for the purpose of securing 80 recruits to Company L. The minimum strength of a company has been increased from 65 to 150 and this causes the necessity of recruiting this early. Recruiting began at 1 p. m. Friday and will continue until 80 are obtained.

PRESIDENT WILSON CALLS NATION TO ARMS

145,000 Members Of State Militia Mobilizes For War With Mexico—Dispatches Predicted Trouble All Along The Rio Grande

President Wilson issued a call on the afternoon of the 18th instant to the National Guard organizations of every state in the Union for service on the Mexican border.

Despite the fact that the text of the official calls makes it plain that its purpose is merely to provide for the defense of American territory, it is regarded as possible that Carranza might seize upon it as a pretext for a declaration of war, as was the Russian mobilization of 1914.

That this is regarded as entirely possible is conceded by officials in the light of their growing conviction that Carranza's entire course of action in recent weeks has been framed with the idea of forcing a war with the United States as the last expedient remaining to him as a means of uniting the factions in Mexico behind him.

The Maryland troops ordered out are the following: One brigade of three regiments of infantry, one troop of cavalry, one battery of field artillery, one field hospital, one ambulance company. These troops will concentrate at Laurel, Md., and await orders to be sent to the border.

The first of the state militia troops ordered to the Mexican border for the immediate dispatch of the militia units were those of California, Missouri and Kansas. Orders for the movement of these troops to concentration points on the border were issued by the War Department last Wednesday.

Arrangements were made for their transportation and these troops started at once. These state troops were designated because they were the nearest troops to the border that week mobilized in state camps and substantially ready to go forward. All the militia called for from these states join in this first movement toward the border.

More than 6,000 troops are involved in this movement. These state troops will be sent to the points designated by General Funston and will be assigned to points along the border. The general plan under which the state allotment of troops to be called out was made is known as the 12-division plan, prepared by the War Department in 1912. A later scheme of organization has superseded this for use in a great war, but the old plan meets the present situation best. Under it the units called out represent 12 full army divisions when properly grouped. At peace strength they would total 100,000 men; at full war strength approximately 250,000.

Easton Will Celebrate July Fourth

The 4th of July will be observed in Talbot county this year by a community celebration, carried out on a larger scale than has ever heretofore been undertaken.

It will be a day of memorable events beginning with a gorgeous parade of floats, decorated motor cars, horsemen, large marching units and fraternal orders, to be followed by the concert program of a choir of five hundred voices and two bands, patriotic addresses by speakers of nation-wide fame, a big athletic meet in the afternoon, and rounded off with music by the chorus, selections by a double male quartette, a display of fire-works and open air dancing in the evening. Each event promises to exceed in elaborateness and attractiveness any ordinary fourth of July celebration and the whole bids fair to make this a truly "glorious" Independence Day.

The people of the entire Eastern Shore are invited to visit Easton on this occasion, be the guests of Talbot county for the day, and enjoy to the utmost the widely diversified offerings for their entertainment.

Provision will be made to park the automobiles, where they will be looked after by special officers. Ice cream will be served everyone without charge, and a large reception committee will see to the guests' comfort in every way. The people of Talbot county will look upon themselves as hosts with all the obligation of hospitality which this implies. It is their sincere hope that their friends everywhere will avail themselves of this invitation and make Easton a motor mecca for that day.

Forfeits a Fortune For Love

Mrs. Madeline Force Astor completed her sacrifice of money for love at the altar at Bar Harbor, Me., last Friday. Dressed in a simple blue serge traveling suit, with a straw hat to match, the widow of Col. John Jacob Astor was married to William Karl Dick, of New York. In so doing she automatically forfeited an income from the $5,000,000 principal left her by the Titanic's wealthiest victim.

HICKS' FORECASTS FOR JULY

A reactionary storm period is central on the 2d, 3rd and 4th. The Mercury period is central on the 3rd, Earth is in aphelion, or at greatest distance from the Sun, on the 2nd. On and touching Sunday the 2d, to Tuesday the 4th, the barometer will fall, beginning in western parts about the 2d, and advancing progressively eastward, bringing increasing cloudiness, with restless, threatening winds and high temperature. Rain and thunder storms will break in many sections, at the center and around the flanks of the advancing storm area. These storms will culminate in a crisis about the 3rd and 4th, passing from central parts of the country to eastern extremes on and next to those days.

A regular storm period is central on the 9th, extending over Friday the 7th, to Wednesday the 12th. The Moon is at first quarter on the 8th, and at greatest south declination on the 12th. The Mercury disturbance will also continue in its disturbing force into and perhaps to the close of this period. By the 7th and 8th, the temperature will be rising very high in western extremes, falling barometer will attend high temperature, clouds will form, and these conditions will begin to move eastward across the country.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 14th, 15th and 16th. The full Moon, or Moon's opposition with the Sun and Earth, falls on the 14th. This opposition is at an eclipse node, bringing an eclipse of the Moon on the 14th. This implies, of course, that the Sun, Earth and Moon will be on a direct line with each other at that time, thus aggravating and intensifying the waves, or lines of physical force plying between the Sun and the planetary body, greatly increasing the probabilities of magnetic, electric and atmospheric convulsions; seismic, volcanic and earthquake unrest is perceptibly increased at such times.

A regular storm period is central on the 20th, reaching from the 18th to the 23rd. The Moon is on the celestial equator on the 18th, in conjunction with Jupiter on the 22nd, and at last quarter on the 21st. Mercury is in perihelion on the 20th, and Venus is in aphelion on the 22d. The Venus equinox, blends with the regular "Vulcan" period, while the conjunction of the planet Neptune with Earth and Sun on the 25th, extends its perturbing influence quite over this whole period.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 25th, 26th and 27th. The Moon is at highest north declination on the 25th. The quadrature of Jupiter with Earth and Sun, and the superior conjunction of Mercury with Earth and Sun are on the 27th and 28th. This period leads up to new Moon on the 29th, on which date there is an annular eclipse of the Sun. The Moon is also in apogee, or at greatest distance from the Earth, on the 28th—a fact which changes the potentials of magnetic and electrical forces, breeding unrest and active squalls and storms in our atmosphere, adding greatly to the probability of seismic trouble about the 26th to 29th.

Upon the whole, we believe that July will prove a favorable month for agricultural interests. Some sections may suffer shortage in timely and diffused rains, but we do not calculate suffering from severe and general drouth. The Mercury period in the early part of the month, and the Venus period, which covers the last half of the month, are indications of frequent and perhaps sufficient showers.

Crops Devastated By Hail

A terrific hailstorm, accompanied by a downpour of rain passed over the section of Federalburg, Caroline county, Monday night of last week, doing thousands of dollars' worth of damage. Watermelon and cantaloupe patches were cut down by the hail, while wheat, corn, tomatoes and the remaining crops of strawberries were greatly damaged.

Fruit trees also were badly cut by the hail. A large field of early sweet corn, nearly ready to tassel, on the farm of Newton White, was cut to the ground as if a scythe had passed through it. The storm centered in a distance half a mile wide and three miles in length.

Caroline county was visited last Wednesday by another disastrous hailstorm, which did thousands of dollars' worth of damage. The storm centered around Goldsboro, where the hail cut the wheat and corn fields into ribbons. Practically every field in that locality was ruined. The hailstones were as large as marbles.

Wednesday of last week was the longest day of the year—that is, there were a few seconds more daylight than the day before or the day after.

A Strip of Seaweed

It Was Given as a Token at the Time of a Betrothal.

By F. A. MITCHEL

In the olden time Newport, R. I., was an important shipping port. Indeed, until the period of the Revolution a number of points on the Atlantic coast were about equally prominent in this respect. As the years rolled on all except New York, Boston and Philadelphia dropped out, the latter finally leaving the first the supremacy.

In that early day on the beach where now in the summer season hundreds, at times thousands, of fashionable persons drive and lounge and bathe, one moonlight night a young man and a girl sat looking out upon the gilded water. They were Edmond Roscoe and Evalina Blair, the young man a son of a prominent shipowner, the girl the daughter of a merchant. There were no sounds of revelry in the little town back of them, as there are now at that season, and, as for the beach, not a sound was to be heard except the splash of the sluggish waves as they broke and rolled in on the sand.

There could be no more fitting place for a young man to tell his story to a maiden, and Edmond Roscoe was telling Evalina Blair his love for her. Then and there their troth was plighted under the yellow light of the moon, the lovers' voices accompanied by the effervescing sound of the waves as they slid up in foam on the smooth sands.

There were both happiness and sadness for these two young creatures whose lives seemed so much to them. In a few days they were to part for several years. Evalina was to go to England that her education might be finished under the supervision of an aunt, for she was of the Blairs of Devonshire, a family of country gentlemen and ladies of blue blood, and must needs be given accomplishments suitable to her rank. Edmond was to enter Brown University, which was then in its babyhood and soon to give up its as yet only dormitory to quarter soldiers of the Revolution.

The transports of betrothal were scarcely over when Edmond said:

"You are going to a land where you will meet many persons of rank and fashion. I know that you will be a belle among them. Some man, possibly a noble, will fall in love with you. You will dread to return to this uncultivated land. You will remain in England, and I shall never see you again."

Looking at him through her earnest eyes, she replied:

"Give me some token by which I shall remember these words of yours. If I am tempted by fortune to remain in England I promise you I will look at it and am sure it will bring up before me the happiness of this evening, and I shall choose you and the life of a simple Rhode Island woman in preference to that of a lady of rank."

"Alas, I have nothing suitable. I should give you a ring or—"

"I wish no bauble," replied Evalina. "Give me something to remind me of these sands, the ocean, the plash of the waves."

Looking about him, Edmond saw a seaweed lying within his reach. Taking it up, he handed it to Evalina. She took it and, spreading it out on her lap, said:

"I, Evalina, promise you, Edmond, that in case I am tempted to place rank and fortune before my love for you I will think of you with this plant of the sea before me. And I assure you that when I have finished my education I will bring the token to you as evidence that I have been true to you and my heart has been always yours."

After this assurance there was a long embrace. Then they arose and, taking a path which is now a broad avenue, returned to the town.

Every day, or, rather, every evening, till Evalina's departure the lovers went to the beach. They were not troubled even in the daytime with persons to disturb their meetings. There were no bathers in fantastic suits, no carriages, no loungers. The last evening before Evalina's departure they passed there. The moon rose, as it were, out of the ocean, the first spark appearing like a far distant bonfire, then gliding the shore over the crests of the waves, and finally the great round disk rested on the horizon of water.

"Heaven grant," said Edmond, "that we will again see this beautiful sight and that we shall then be one."

"If I live you will have your wish," replied Evalina.

The next day the ship that was to carry her to England sailed from the little town on Narragansett bay, the lovers waving until they could distinguish each other's forms no longer.

During the first year of their separation Evalina wrote regularly to her lover. The second year abroad was for an education in social life. As her lover had predicted, she became a belle. She wrote Edmond of the fine people she met, of the amusements common among persons of quality. But her letters showed no diminution of love for him and indicated that she looked forward to their reunion with as much hope and pleasure as when she had left him.

Yet there was a great deal that she did not write him. She did not write of the offers of marriage that followed one another in rapid succession.

When these offers of marriage were showered upon Evalina she declined them without giving as a reason a previous attachment. Later, possibly as one might hide behind gauze, she frequently wore as a decoration the seaweed that her American lover had given her. Sometimes it was tacked to her skirt, sometimes she wore it in her corsage, and again it would be intertwined with her hair. In time she came to be called the Seaweed Lady.

Meanwhile Roscoe was studying as a collegian, though his mind was with his heart, and that was across the ocean. He read with avidity Evalina's letters and shuddered as he thought of the differences between himself, an undergraduate of a college but a few years old, without fortune, compared with some coroneted man with vast estates. Evalina's letters were reassuring, but she was growing from maidenhood to womanhood, and would she not give way at last?

However, the period allotted for her sojourn abroad was drawing to a close. She did not write her lover that she was coming home for the reason that she did not know if she would be permitted to return. Her parents were much chagrined at hearing that she had refused an earl and the second son of a duke and were debating whether to send the funds for her passage back to America or insist that she remain longer.

It was two years from the time of Evalina's departure that a storm such as Newport had not experienced in many years broke upon the coast. For three days the giant waves struck wildly upon the cliffs and rolled far up into Narragansett bay. Then, on the evening of the third day, the clouds broke away in the west, and the sun set in golden splendor.

That night the moon was at the full. As the sun went down the queen of night rose. Edmond, desiring to view the effect of the storm on the waves, when night had fallen and the moon was lighting the land and the water, started for the beach. The path was lonely, and there was terror in the tumbling of the great waves on the sands. The only likeness to the night of Edmond and Evalina's betrothal was the full moon.

He had passed midway from the town to the water when he saw before him a figure that he knew to be a woman by her garments fluttering in the wind, which was still strong. She seemed to be coming toward him, but as he advanced drew no nearer to him. He went on until he came to the edge of the beach and saw her still distant from him, sometimes flitting nearer, sometimes farther, and always seeming to rock like a bird resting on the crest of a wave.

Whether it was the night, still disturbed by the storm that had passed, or something bewildering in this unsteady figure, Roscoe could never tell, but an appalling premonition stretched a pall over him like the wings of some huge black bird. Something within him seemed to say: "A great misfortune has fallen upon you. The wind and the waves are a dirge. Be strong or you will be crushed."

And now, having reached a point overlooking the water, the sands being soaked, progress was slower. Scattered ragged clouds were flying above, now and again dashing across the face of the moon and shutting off its light. At these dark periods the flitting figure was lost, but reappeared when the cloud had passed and the full light of the moon was released.

Edmond had spent many an hour when home from college on the spot where he and Evalina had spoken their betrothal, and he saw that the figure was slowly moving toward it. Yet it was the movement of a floating object, driven by alternate advancing and receding waters, yet borne by an invisible tide toward a given point. But notwithstanding this apparently slow movement he gained but little on the figure. At last it reached the very spot where he and Evalina had plighted their troth. There it paused. Hastening his steps so far as he could—the moon at the moment was overcast—he advanced to join the figure. When he was a few yards from it a bright light burst from the moon and revealed—Evalina, looking at him with pale and melancholy visage.

He sprang toward her with outstretched arms, but at the moment another black cloud swept across the face of the only available light and hid his form from her. When it had passed she had vanished.

At his feet was a strip of seaweed.

When morning came a boatman stalking along over the soft sands saw a man lying so still that he thought it might be one cast in from a wreck by the storm. He found Edmond Roscoe. There was life in him, and the boatman after rousing him helped him home.

A ship came in and with it news that Evalina had departed for America. But the vessel on which she sailed never reached port. Pieces of wreck came ashore on the coast, denoting that a ship had foundered, but no fragment bore its name.

Edmond Roscoe never went back to college. He had lost all ambition, all desire for life. It was claimed that he had received some physical stroke which impaired his mental faculties. Whether this were so or whether the loss of his betrothed and his ailment were a coincidence was never settled. He was often seen on the beach at Newport wandering about aimlessly or sitting on one spot looking out on the water. This continued till he was an old man, and in the town in which he lived a few residents of other places began to build cottages for summer residences.

LIFE OF THE NARCISSUS.

A Plant That Teaches Us a Lesson in Patient Waiting.

Fifty weeks of saving for one or two of spending! Eleven months of living in darkness for one month of sunshine. Three hundred and fifty days as an ugly, brown, dirty bulb for fifteen days as a beautiful fragrant flower. If ever you want a lesson in patient waiting turn to the flower which is satisfied to remain obscure nearly all its life for the privilege of blooming for a few days—the narcissus.

The bulb existence of the narcissus is so much obscured that we forget all about how the flower is using it as a savings bank or a life insurance policy. What we think is a worthless, ugly clump in the earth is busy the year round storing up nourishment and strength to serve the flower during its blooming period.

If the bulb were not of a saving disposition there would be no blossoms. The flower in turn takes sunlight and oxygen and sends it into the bulb to store away for another period of blooming. It depends upon the bulb to conserve this strength, and the bulb's thrift never fails.

Don't make the mistake of calling the bulb the root. In reality the bulb is the stem of the flower, made out of a cluster of thick leaves. Planted in the earth the bulb sends down roots, which seize fast to the soil and drag the parent bulb down with them.—Philadelphia North American.

SPAIN'S ROYAL MAUSOLEUM.

The Escorial Is Also a Palace, a Monastery and a Church.

Twenty-seven miles from Madrid on a bleak height surrounded by a sterile and gloomy wilderness stands the Escorial, one of the most remarkable buildings in Europe. It is 786 feet long and 623 feet wide, with tall towers at the angles. It comprises at once a monastery, a church, a palace and a mausoleum.

On Aug. 10, 1567, the Spaniards gained a great victory over the French at St. Quentin, and the Spanish king, Philip II., had the building erected in commemoration of the event. As the battle occurred on St. Laurence's day, he had the building designed to resemble the famous gridiron on which St. Laurence suffered martyrdom by being roasted to death.

The work was begun in 1563 and continued for more than twenty years. The building contains a vast number of treasures—paintings, sculptures, manuscripts, etc. Among them is a life size figure of Christ on the cross done in ivory by Benvenuto Cellini.

As it stands today the Escorial and its contents represent an outlay of more than $10,000,000. Here lie the bodies of all the Spanish kings since the Emperor Charles V., except Philip V. and Ferdinand VI.—Argonaut.

The Original Paul Pry.

Thomas Hill, familiarly called Tommy Hill, was, says Dr. Brewer, the original Paul Pry. It was from him also that Theodore Hook drew his character of Gilbert Gurney. Planché in his "Recollections" says of Hill: "His specialty was the accurate information he could impart on all the petty details of the domestic economy of his friends, the contents of their wardrobes, their pantries, the number of pots of preserves in their store closets and of the table napkins in their linen presses, the dates of their births and marriages, the amounts of their tradesmen's bills and whether paid weekly or quarterly. He had been on the press and was connected with the Morning Chronicle. He used to drive Matthews crazy by ferreting out his whereabouts when he left London and popping the information in some paper."

Shrewd Father.

"So you've decided to name your boy after George Washington?" "Yes. You see, George has been dead a long time, and so many boys have been named after him who never amounted to anything that our son won't be conspicuous if he disappoints our fondest hopes and fails to become great."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Fight Off Cholera

NOW WITH Cal-Sino Hog Restorative

THE PREVENTIVE treatment of Hog Cholera with Cal-Sino Hog Restorative Powder is easier, safer and more satisfactory than trying to cure the disease itself after it attacks your hogs for all too often sudden violent attacks occur which leave no time for treatment and so always cause speedy death.

A warm spell of weather is apt to bring an outbreak of Cholera at any time. To insure against loss and to get the most weight it pays to give a regular course of Cal-Sino. It costs only about 10c to 20c per hog per month, depending upon size, to fortify against disease and to make them fleshier, for Cal-Sino helps to get all the real body-building flesh-making material out of the food—and that's what counts.

If you once try it, you'll use it always. Ask your neighbors and the dealers. Don't put it off—delay may cause you loss.

CAUSE OF SHADOWS.

And Why They Are Darker in the Night Than in the Daytime.

Where anything through which rays of light cannot pass intercepts the light rays coming from a luminous body the light rays are turned back in the direction from which they come and the part on the other side of the object which intercepted the light goes into shade and a shadow results.

A shadow then is produced by cutting off one or more light rays. We notice shadows when the sun is bright in the daytime and at night when we walk along the streets lighted partly by street lamps.

The shadows we see in the daytime are caused by our cutting off and throwing back some of the light rays which come from the sun. These are not so dark as the shadows we see at night because the rays of light from the sun are so bright and are reflected from so many other objects to the side and in back of us.

When, however, we are walking along a dimly lighted street and come to a street lamp the shadows our bodies cause are quite black. The night shadows are darker because the source of light is less intense and the objects to the side of and in back of us (if we are walking toward the light) do not reflect so much of the light rays as they do of the sun's rays in the daytime.—Philadelphia Press.

Two Little Bills.

Robert was in the habit of expecting reward for every little service. At the end of the week he made out a "bill" to his mother and carefully laid it where her eyes would fall upon it. The items were as follows:

"Mother owes to Robert.

"Five cents for running errands.

"Five cents for being good."

That evening there appeared beside Robert's plate a paper upon which was written:

"Robert owes mother, for years of happiness, nothing; for nursing him through long illnesses, nothing; for doing good to him, nothing."

Thoroughly ashamed of himself, Robert ran to mother, threw his arms around her and sobbed:

"Mother, I will do everything I can for you after this, and I'll never ask you to give me anything but just love."

BURNED LIME vs. LIME CARBONATE

The greatest authority on lime in the United States, Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins, of the University of Illinois, under date of December 1, 1915, says: "No trustworthy investigations support the use of burned lime in preference to natural lime carbonate, such as ground pulverized shells, limestone or marl. On many soils a moderate use of burned lime, in connection with the liberal use of farm manures, yields profitable returns, which, no doubt, would be still more profitable if the burned lime were replaced with carbonate in equivalent amount and of proper fineness."

A Mean Trick

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is a certain college in New England in which until a few years ago young women were admitted to the courses. It is well known that it was the men students who brought about the passage of the regulation that no woman should thereafter be admitted as a student to the college. Why the young men objected was a puzzle to every one except the faculty. The girls claimed that the reason of their being dropped from the college was that they took the scholarships away from the men, so that women instead of men were being helped through college. The boys declared that the reason why they did not want girls in college was that they took up room that otherwise would have been taken by men and there were fewer men to draw from for competing with other colleges in athletics.

Raised Decorations on Eggshells.

It is easy to work out a design in relief on an eggshell, whether the contents of the egg have been removed or not. The first step is to draw with a pencil the design or the lettering that you wish to appear on the egg. Make only an outline and the leading points of the design. Then melt a small quantity of candle wax in a shallow tin and let it set a little, but while it is still soft take it out of the tin and spread it over the design on the egg. If there is any difficulty in getting the wax to hold touch it here and there with the heated blade of a penknife. Take vinegar enough to cover the egg completely and soak the egg in it for a period that may be half an hour or may be an hour and a half, according to the strength of the vinegar. At the end of that period take the egg out and peel off the wax. The design will then stand up in relief against the rest of the shell, for the acid of the vinegar will have eaten away the uncovered part and left untouched only that part which the wax protected.—Youth's Companion.

Bowel Complaints in India.
In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventive and cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere. [Advertisement]

Gothic Architecture.

The styles called Gothic, springing from a common source in Romanesque architecture and developing throughout western Europe on differing lines, are in general characterized by the following features, although not all of these will be found in all examples:

Ribbed vaulting, pointed arches, the flying arch and pinnacled buttress, clustered shafting, traceried windows in all but the earliest phases, stained glass, a progressive tendency toward loftiness, lightness of supports and suppression of wall surfaces, a system of decoration of which one element was the emphasis and adornment of structural features and another the use of sculpture and carving of human, animal, vegetable and grotesque forms, controlled by a definite didactic purpose and significance, and finally the use of available materials according to their nature upon principles in part of structural logic and in part of decorative effect.—A. D. F. Hamlin in Architectural Record.

National Flags.

If the question were asked which country's national flag had been longest in use the answer would be either the dragon banner of China or the chrysanthemum flag of Japan. The former has been used from a very early period, and the latter is as old as the present dynasty in Japan, which is the most ancient in the world. Among European national flags that of Denmark, a white St. George's cross on a red ground, is the most ancient, having been in use since 1219. No other flag has existed without change for anything like the same period as a national emblem, although there are royal standards that are older.

The Spanish colors date only from 1785, and Great Britain's flag in its present form was first flown after the union with Ireland in 1801. The stars and stripes of the United States was first planned and ordered by Washington of an upholsterer in Philadelphia and formally adopted on June 14, 1777.—London Spectator.

Shaving on One Side.

The shaving on one side only of the heads and beards of prisoners of war was obviously done to prevent any attempt at escape. But there have been other motives for such half shaving, which occurs at all sorts of points in history. Sometimes the act has been pure insult, as when Hannu, king of the children of Ammon, shaved off half of the beards of David's servants. In these days the victims would have mended matters by shaving the other half. But Jewish reverence for the beard forbade that, and David told the men to "tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown." Demosthenes, when he shut himself up for months in a subterranean chamber to practice oratory, shaved half of his head to cut off all temptation to go abroad.—London Chronicle.

Earrings Denote Widowhood.

That India is a land of curious customs is confirmed by the Popular Science Monthly. A widow, instead of wearing black crape, dons ponderous earrings made of solid brass. Since her widowhood is perpetual she is obliged to wear them the rest of her life. Each year another ring is added. The constantly increasing weight of metal stretches the lobe of the ear, to which it is attached, in an extraordinary manner. It is safe to say that no widow ever forgets the fact of her widowhood when wearing such a clumsy weight.

A Silent City.

No industry brings the village of Giltthorn, Holland, into touch with the world. It is almost wholly inaccessible except by water, and the inhabitants are shy and keep within doors, betraying not the slightest interest in visitors. Indeed, Giltthorn has been likened, empty and silent in its green picturesqueness, to a place visited in a dream.—Argonaut.

Progressive.

"When did you commit your first fatal extravagance?"
"When my boss referred to my wages as my 'salary.'"
"And when did you perpetrate this latest folly?"
"The day my wife called my salary my 'income.'"—Cleveland Leader.

Appropriate.

Manufacturer—I'm going to call this new cigar "The American Lady in the Japanese Kimono." Dealer—Why? Manufacturer—Domestic filler and imported wrapper.—Illinois Siren.

The Feminine Pessimist.

The feminine pessimist worries because she is not as young as she once was; the optimist of the same sex rejoices that she is not so old as she will be.—Life.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Potomaine Poison.
"Potomaine is a scientific name for food poison," says a physician in Farm and Fireside. "and, although all ptomaines are not dangerous to health, there is no simple test for telling the dangerous ones from the others." Dr. Charles K. Francis, a noted chemist, gives the advice, "When doubtful about a food do not eat it." This applies especially to meat which has a peculiar odor or taste, canned goods, especially when they have been opened for some time, and other foods which do not seem just right. Taking a chance may be taking your health or life. Safety first!"

SUBMARINE OIL LINES.

How the Walls of Vera Cruz Are Tapped For Tank Steamers.

Many of the most productive oil wells in the state of Vera Cruz, Mexico, are situated near the port of Tuxpam. For some distance from the shore there the water is so shallow that few of the large oil tankers can get into port. The oil companies hit upon the idea of laying submarine pipe lines to points where the largest oil tankers can be conveniently moored for loading in any state of the tide and weather.

There are now five of these great iron pipes in duplicate. They are from six to eight inches in diameter, and four of them are nearly a mile long. They terminate in forty-three feet of water, where it is so deep that the waves have no effect on them. When they were laid divers fastened to the end of each 120 feet of flexible hose. When not in use the free end of the hose is closed and allowed to lie on the bottom of the sea, where its position is marked by a small buoy attached to the hose by a stout chain.

When the tank steamers arrive they moor themselves to the permanent buoys near by, lift the marked buoy with a derrick, raise the flexible hose to the deck of the ship and attach it to the tank openings. By means of a signal code the captains of the ships notify the pumping station on shore, in which are the valves that control the flow of oil through the pipe line. Generally speaking, it takes about twenty-four hours to load one of the large 15,000 ton tankers, which means that the pipes deliver 4,375 barrels of oil an hour.—Youth's Companion.

WHERE MEN WEAR COMBS.

In Ceylon They Mark the Native Male's Social Standing.

Ceylon is perhaps the only country in the world where men wear combs. It is the delight of the native males of the low country to wear their hair twisted into a roll at the back of the head, with a horseshoe shaped tortoise shell comb at the top. The women, curiously enough, do not affect this ornament. It appears that one of the great ambitions of the Cingalese man of humble position is to possess and wear a huge comb of the finest luster and most perfect manufacture, and many indicate their higher social status by means of an additional comb rising to a considerable height above their glossy coil.

The artist in tortoise shell who makes these combs obtains his raw materials from the hawk bill turtle. The turtle is killed and its carcass immediately immersed in boiling water. The plates when separated from the bony part of the animal are very irregular in form. Being brittle, they require careful manipulation, especially as a high temperature, which would soften them, tends to darken and cloud the shell. They are therefore treated at as low a heat as is possible for the work.

Thickness is obtained by softening, several plates and then applying pressure, when a union of the surface, takes place. Under heat the shell also is molded into various artificial forms.—Exchange.

Waterspouts.

A waterspout is a miniature tornado originating in a strong upward draft of air which occurs above the surface of a body of comparatively warm water. Its effect first becomes visible in a circular motion at the point of the cloud to which it ascends. This becomes a whirl, which condenses the vapor at its center, causing the portion of the cloud there to drop downward in the shape of a gigantic jelly bag. At the same time the continuing upward draft increases the rapidity of its original swirl and the condensed vapor caught within it until the ascending and descending masses join to form the waterspout. Necessarily by this process the air beneath the spout is rarefied, and thus where the phenomenon occurs at sea the water always seems to be sucked up into it, although this is not really the case to any considerable extent.

Secret of Harmony.

Pull together. This is the real secret of harmony. There is a story told of a man who had committed the care of one of his teams to a faithful servant for years. At last one of the horses sickened and died. While the servant was burying the faithful animal the other horse came across the field and stood by, watching the work as a silent mourner.

The master said, "I believe Dick loved Billy." Instantly the servant replied: "In case he did, massa. Why, they pulled together nigh twenty years."—Christian Herald.

An Old Massachusetts Law.

The general court of Massachusetts Bay Colony, following the example of the English parliament, in 1659 enacted a law that "anybody who is found observing by abstinence from labor, feasting or any other way any such day as Christmas day shall pay for every such offense 5 shillings." This law was repealed in 1681.

Getting Into Society.

"Guess I'll have to rig up a middle name," declared Flubdub. "I never really had one, but I gotta have one now."
"Why so?"
"My wife insists upon one to print on her visiting cards."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Nature.

"I just adore nature. Don't you?"
"Yes; in moderation, but one can't help feeling that nature was intended for the lower classes."—Browning's Magazine.

PATRIOTISM

The quick response of the militia organizations of the country to the request for mobilization, is also a generous response of the young men of this country to the call to arms in defense of the United States against the invasions of Mexico. In our own county the call has been promptly obeyed by the members of Company L, of Crisfield. In adjoining counties and in the State of Delaware the spirit of the young men has been equally willing.

The provocation that is thus being responded to is an entirely just one. The United States troops went into Mexico to run down Villa and his forces and they did so with the permission of the "de facto" leader, Gen. Carranza. The latter now claims that these troops must be recalled and it is intimated that Germany is behind that movement. The United States government does not intend to recall its troops but on the contrary is massing men to be in readiness when necessity arises.

The war spirit thus aroused carries one back to the early history of this country. The cry is for patriotism against a treacherous neighbor. What may be the result of the present mobilization, no one can now tell. It may mean war, and if so, such a step, much as it is to be regretted, must be forward, and no retrograde movement will be permitted. It is to be hoped, of course, that Carranza may see the futility of his recent orders and may retrograde himself. In any event, the young men of this country are to be commended for their prompt obedience to the call to duty. Their obedience means patriotism of the highest order.

It is evident that the world has not yet reached the stage when swords may be beaten into plowshares. The world is full of war, and if this country must be drawn into it it is most unfortunate. Perhaps the day will yet dawn when arbitration will take the place of the sword. That day may be not far off. For the present injustice knows no foe but the sword, and patriotism means the quick response in defense of one's own country.

Republican Evasion

Life is a humorous publication with a good many serious streaks in it. It is certainly not a political periodical. Its managers have the interest of all intelligent persons in public affairs, but it is not engaged in supporting any political organization, and can hardly be suspected of a partisan purpose in its comments on current events. Therefore it is particularly interesting when in its latest issue it says:

What the Republicans owe the country is a sound candidate on a platform that will define the points wherein President Wilson seems to Republicans and other dissenters not to have done well. A thorough discussion of the rights and wrongs of the conduct of the present Administration would do all of us good. Many persons who are quite deeply persuaded that President Wilson has not kept the country on the right track are still a good deal foggy as to the point where our national vehicle left the road. They will want the Republicans to walk back with them, if possible, and show them the place, or, at least, show it to them on a reliable map.

That is good sense, is it not? But the Republicans have not met that demand. They have nominated a sound candidate, but certainly the President loses nothing in this respect by comparison with him. The Republicans have not defined the points wherein President Wilson seems to Republicans and other dissenters not to have done well, because the overwhelming mass of these people wish he had done something more to Germany than to write notes, and the Republican platform can't say that for fear of losing the votes of persons who denounce the President for writing any notes at all, and trying to modify the submarine campaign.

We appreciate the reference to "Republicans and other dissenters." There are dissenters besides the Republicans. A part of both are represented by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Root. Another part are represented by the German-American Alliance, which has objected to everything the President has written to Germany. The Republicans will not go back with the dissenters and show them the place where Mr. Wilson left the national vehicle got off the track, because that would alienate the voters whose interest is greater in Germany than in the United States. They will not even point out the place on a reliable map. They want the votes of men who think the President ought to have made war on Germany and the votes of men who denounce the President because he even wrote notes to Germany in protest against the torpedoing of merchant steamers.

The Republicans can't win with a bifurcated electorate, supporting a non-committal candidate on an evasive platform. By all means let them point out the specific thing that Mr. Wilson did, which he ought not to, or neglected when he ought to have done it. "A thorough discussion of the rights and wrongs of the conduct of the present Administration would do all of us good." We concur. But there will be no discussion. The Republicans will confine themselves to abuse of the President. To tell why they are abusing the President would be to alienate the German-American Alliance. —Philadelphia Record.

Mettlesome Youth

These are perilous times for the parents of boys from 18 to 21 years old. In hundreds of homes youngsters are clamoring for the privilege of donning a uniform and going to the front. It is the way of youth, and one would think little of the boy whose blood at such a time does not flow faster and in whom the love of adventure does not quicken desire to follow the flag. It would be a sad and a bad old world if he felt otherwise.

But fortunately most fathers and mothers will be saved the trouble of putting a foot down and saying "No!" Uncle Sam demands rather a high order of health, strength and capacity these days. He does not take anybody who comes. He selects the fittest. Many a youth who feels that he must go will find himself turned back at the recruiting office. The thumping by the doctor will dispose of a good many others. The aim is to get men who can stand the strain of soldiering in a hot climate and to take along as few as possible who will have need of the hospital.

The understanding is that the Guard—at least all but a small part of it—will be used for patrol duty. It will watch the border while the regulars go into Mexico, if that course is found necessary. Months are required to put the Guard into shape for active service; and while the "boys" will be yearning to be in the hot of it and panting for glory, fathers and mothers who with sinking hearts watch them march away may console themselves with the thought that they may not have to go beyond the Rio Grande.—Baltimore News.

FOR SALE—Ice, Coal, Wood, Fertilizer, Corn, Oats, Hay, Flaxseed Meal, Cottonseed Meal, Bran, Middlings, Dairy Feeds, Hominy, Beef Scrap, Chicken Feeds, etc., wholesale and retail. W. P. TODD, Princess Anne, Md.

No. 2 SHARPLES SEPARATORS at $40.—Who ever heard of such price! This will be ours for two weeks only. This separator needs no introduction in this community, we have sold hundreds of them, and they usually bring around this price second-handed. Remember this price will only be good for two weeks, or until stock is exhausted. HAYMAN'S HARDWARE DEPT.

WASHING MACHINES AND WRINGERS.—We have been asking our friends for two years if they come across a better machine than the Easiest Way to let us know, we would get it. No one has reported, we naturally assume that there is no better one made, and at a price of $10 should solve the washing problem. If you don't own the Easiest Way you should see one at once at HAYMAN'S HARDWARE DEPT.

Mrs. Frank T. Smith left last Wednesday to visit friends in Ventnor City, New Jersey.

Mrs. Rebecca Todd has returned home from a visit to her son, Mr. Archie Todd and the Misses Furniss at Fairmount.

Miss Estelle Battaille, of Pungoteague, Va., spent several days last week at the home of Mrs. T. J. Smith, on Main street.

Messrs. H. L. D. Stanford and Robt. H. Maddox, who are students at St. John's College, Annapolis, are home for their vacation.

Miss Emily I. Dashiell, who has been teaching in the Dover, (Del.) High School, has returned to spend the vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dashiell.

Miss Madeline Hayman returned from Cambridge Monday night of last week after spending the week-end at a house party, at the home of Mrs. Clarence Henry, on Church street.

Mrs. R. W. Revelle, who has been visiting Mr. Revelle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Revelle, on Beechwood street, returned to her home in Wilmington, Del., last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brown, after attending the funeral of Mrs. Priscilla R. Twiley at Dover, Del., Monday of last week, spent Monday night and Tuesday in Wilmington, Del., where they were guests of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Howard Gray.

Col. Henry J. Waters, who some weeks ago was taken to the Peninsula General Hospital at Salisbury for an operation for appendicitis, had sufficiently recovered to return to his home in Princess Anne last Thursday evening. It will be gratifying to his many friends to learn of his returning health.

The editors of the Marylander and Herald acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of an invitation to be special guests at the big celebration in Easton on July 4th. We regret that we will be unable to accept the cordial invitation, and hope our sister Eastern Shore town will have a day of unalloyed pleasure, in keeping with the patriotic observance of the day.

The wedding of Miss Blanche Pearl Justice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Justice, of Pocomoke City, to Mr. P. Marcus Miles, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Miles, of Westover, took place last Wednesday noon at the home of the bride, the Rev. William O. Hurst officiating. The bride wore a dark blue traveling suit with hat to match and carried bride's roses. After a trip Mr. and Mrs. Miles will reside at Westover.

Mr. Everett C. Cannon made a business trip to Salisbury last Friday.

Mrs. Austin Dryden and Miss Lillian Dryden spent last Thursday in Pocomoke City.

Mrs. William J. Bailey, of Laurel, Delaware, spent the past week with her daughter, Mrs. Paul A. Walker.

Miss Ruth L. Malambre, of Baltimore, spent the week-end with Miss Beulah T. Powell, at "Waterford."

Mr. O. P. Dryden has returned to Lawrenceville, Va., after a short visit to his family on "Somerset Heights."

Miss Hazel Brittingham, of Perry-hawkin, was a guest of Miss Mary Dryden on "Somerset Heights" last week.

Dr. Charles W. Beauchamp, of Charlottesville, Va., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Beauchamp, near Westover.

Miss Beulah T. Powell returned to her home at "Waterford" to spend a few months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Powell.

Mrs. Harry Smith and son, of Charlottesville, Va., are visiting the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, at "Beckford."

Mr. and Mrs. William Rowe and children, Wyoming, Del., spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Todd.

Mrs. Charles Maynadier and little son, who have been spending a week at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Frank Collins, on south Main street, returned to their home in Baltimore yesterday.

The ladies of Salem M. P. Church at Manokin will hold their annual June supper and festival next Thursday, June 29th, in the grove adjoining the church. The public is cordially invited to attend.

From the Peninsula Produce Exchange comes the report that every indication points to good white and sweet potato crops this year, and the prices will be much more favorable to the farmers than for several years.

Sheriff Isaac S. Long has purchased from the Commissioners of Bucks county, Pa., for $75, a gallows upon which John Brown, colored, will be hanged at Hagerstown, Md., on June 30th, for the murder of Mrs. Susan Dixon.

Dr. and Mrs. James Wilson and children, and Miss Mary E. Wilson, of Clarksburg, W. Va., arrived in Princess Anne Friday to spend several weeks with Dr. Wilson's and Miss Wilson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. James Wilson.

A clean, healthy town should be the joy and pride of every man, woman and child. If each person will do his and her share of sincere and persistent co-operation, Princess Anne will soon be known as the finest example in America of cleanliness and health. Aren't you interested enough to do your part?

Children's Day services were held last Sunday morning by the Sunday school of Manokin Presbyterian church. The weather was most unfavorable, but those present were impressed with the character of the services. Rev. W. F. Freund is pastor of the church and Mr. W. O. Lankford is superintendent of the school.

The members of the Princess Anne Baptist Mission feel very grateful to the Manokin Presbyterian Church of Princess Anne, for its kind and liberal offer of its chapel for services. We gladly accept their kindness and trust that our Heavenly Father may bless not only our efforts but all Christian activities separately and collectively.

While Samuel H. Robertson, of Fairmount, was harvesting wheat on Thursday last his little 3-year-old son, who was in the field, and unnoticed by his father, was caught in the reaper blade and had one of his legs almost severed from his body. The little fellow was hurried to the Peninsula General Hospital at Salisbury, where the attending physicians hope to save the injured limb.

The Centreville Record says: "Down in Sussex county, as well as in many sections of Kent county, the Democrats are looking with favor upon the candidacy of Hon. L. Irving Handy for the United States Senatorial nomination. Mr. Handy is a big man, he has a big voice and he has a big circle of admiring friends. And with so much bigness, if nominated, there will likely be a pretty big jolt when Mr. Handy bumps into a big majority vote at the November election."

Campmeetings held on the Eastern Shore this year will be affected by a new law. In Caroline, Dorchester, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico, Queen Anne's and Worcester counties application in writing must be made at least 15 days before the opening of camp and a permit obtained from the County Commissioners. The application must be accompanied by a petition in writing signed by at least 25 taxpayers, each of whom shall reside within three miles of the camp, and such petition shall have annexed thereto an affidavit to the effect that the petitioners are bona fide taxpayers and reside within three miles of the camp.

Crisfield Officials Take Office

At the regular meeting of the Mayor and City Council of Crisfield Wednesday night Charles F. Richardson qualified as Mayor. A. B. Riggins and John W. Bedsworth, the recently elected Councilmen, also were sworn in. Elmer R. Gandy retired as Mayor, and Thomas J. Whittington and Walter Muir as Councilmen. Mayor Richardson also was a Councilman, but resigned before taking the oath of office.

Miss Crisfield To Wed

The engagement has been announced of Miss Lillie Habersham Crisfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pearce Crisfield, of Philadelphia, to William T. Dixon, son of Mrs. Dixon and the late Isaac H. Dixon, of Baltimore. Mr. Dixon is a brother of Mrs. Childs Frick, of Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Mrs. E. Ridgely Simpson, of Cambridge, Mass.; Miss Mary Allen Dixon and Miss Katherine Dixon. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Crisfield is a granddaughter of Mr. Arthur Crisfield, of Washington, D. C., and a great-granddaughter of the late John W. Crisfield, the well-known lawyer, of this county.

Western Maryland College reappears in our columns this week soliciting the patronage of our people. This College has established a reputation in the 48 years of its existence as a safe, thorough and earnest school. Its young people are doing it credit and its work has been felt all over the state. From its recent catalogue it appears to have 230 students and 21 teachers. It has graduated over 900. The courses of study cover the usual subjects in the best Colleges and we have no reason to think they are not well covered. We are interested especially in the course in Pedagogy which is offered to graduates, by which they are prepared to teach in the public schools and are given a certificate to teach by the State Board of Education without examination. We have heard nothing but good reports of this institution and we commend it to our readers.

Marriage Licenses

The following is a list of the marriage licenses issued by the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Somerset County:

$12,000 Blaze In Pocomoke City

A fire of unknown origin broke out in the large frame warehouse of Francis M. Wilson, in Pocomoke City, last Friday afternoon. The building, which was filled with building materials of all kinds, together with its contents, was entirely destroyed. Many adjoining buildings were damaged, and but for the good work done by the Fire Department, the town would have suffered a much greater loss. The loss is estimated to be about $12,000.

We wish to state that we have nothing to give away with a subscription. We hope to gain readers on merit and merit alone. This is no prize package paper. You can buy your automobiles, your earrings, your popcorn, and other things of those who deal in them, for you will get none with a subscription to the Marylander and Herald. We contend that one man who takes a paper because he wants it is of more value to an advertiser than a hundred who get the paper because they wish to aid some friend to win a prize.

LANKFORD'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Now is the Time to Buy

There has never been a time since we have been in business that we could make this statement with such absolute emphasis as now. Merchandise in every department of our store will soon be effected by the rising prices.

Anticipate your wants a little and get what you need from the present stock while the prices are low.

Procrastination is against you. We still have real live bargains in all lines. We do not need to tell you that all lines are going up in price; you hear it and feel it. The merchant that was only lightly supplied when this condition came on can not show you low prices. While we claim to be second to none in the county, we do not want you to overestimate our ability to take care of you for an unlimited time. We can now show you a better stock, that was bought before the advances, than we have ever had the pleasure to offer before.

SHOE DEPARTMENT

is stocked with the new Spring and Summer shapes and kinds.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT

is as full of the attractive fabrics as the times and styles and demands desire.

CARPET DEPARTMENT

AN ELEPHANT RIDE

The First Try on a Padded Animal
Is a Fearful Ordeal.

FEELS LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE.

And Remembers For a Time Trying to Sit on a Steep Slanting Roof—The Big Brutes Are Timid, and Little Pigs and Quicksands Terrify Them.

Elephant riding is a thing that, like guessing people's names correctly, requires a good deal of practice. The first ride is a thing never to be forgotten, more especially if it happens to be on a pad elephant—that is to say, one that carries no howdah or seat of any kind except an immense, hard, lumpy mattress, which is fastened on by four large rough ropes, pulled as taut as man's strength can pull them. If there are two or three other persons already mounted you get a corner of this mattress to sit on and are told to hold on by the ropes.

Meanwhile the elephant is getting tired of kneeling and keeps making heaving motions unpleasantly suggestive of the sea. You strive wildly to get your fingers under one of the ropes and are asked impatiently if you are ready.

You do not feel at all ready or likely ever to be ready, for your seat is uncertain and slippery, and for the life of you you cannot get a fair hold on the rope.

Breaking your nails in a last desperate effort, you say feebly that you are ready, when with a sudden jerk, that seems to drag all your bones out of their sockets, you are tilted up on a steep slope, about as pleasant to sit on as the side of a slate roof.

But you have no time to enjoy the position, for there comes another foundering jerk that knocks your hat over your eyes and throws you violently against your next neighbor, after which you find your seat is level again, and it presently dawns upon you that this earthquake was, in truth, merely the elephant's customary way of rising. He is now slowly and solemnly stalking onward, as you are aware by feeling your spine rhythmically and soundlessly dislocated at each noiseless step.

At first it seems to you as odd that you should ever come to like riding an elephant, as that eels should come to like being skinned, and your friend's assurance that you will ere long be able to dispense with the aid of ropes and go on chatting and even smiling while that colossal upheaval takes place falls on the ear as an idle tale.

Nevertheless it is the truth. Before a week is over you hardly notice the getting up or the kneeling down. You rarely take hold of a rope, and you are indifferent to almost any angle of steepness. You learn to appreciate the restfulness of being on a colossus that will never stumble, never shy, never trotle and with whose guidance you have no more to do than you have with that of a ship at sea.

Even when an elephant is mischievous he is so in a solemn, well considered manner. He will not run away, though he will on occasion stride away, and a sufficiently absurd sight it is, though not to those on his back.

I once saw an elephant try conclusions with his mahout and stride off defiantly in a wrong direction till the savage blows rained upon his head by the driver with his heavy iron hook made him change his tactics. He pulled up short and began rocking his body violently to and fro till first one rider and then another was sent flying until all were gone.

The sight of them strewing the ground around him and ruefully rubbing their bruises assuaged his anger.
An elephantine smile lit up his rugged face, and he once more rendered cheerful obedience to his mahout.

Considering his strength and size, the elephant is a timorous beast. They are greatly alarmed by small pigs, and I have known an otherwise sensible elephant utterly routed by a litter of pigglets scampering between his legs in thick grass jungle.

Now, a pigling can never have hurt an elephant. Therefore whence his fear? Can it be their latent powers of squealing?

Certain it is that pigs share with quicksands the power of terrifying an elephant. His reasons for fearing quicksands are weighty ones, and it is impossible not to sympathize with the huge beast's agony of terror when he finds himself on unsound ground.

A spot was pointed out to us along the river bank at Fyzabad, where a year ago an elephant had got into a quicksand and been lost.

All that could be done to save him was done, but the treacherous sand would not forego its victim. Four days he took to sink out of sight, and then nothing could be seen of him but the tip of his trunk, still pitifully beckoning in vain for help. At last the cruel sand closed over that, and his last agony was ended.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Some Pay More.

The man was looking over the family bills as his wife glanced through the paper.

"Oh, John," she said, "it tells here of a young fellow who was fined $6.90 for flirting."

"That's cheaper than I got off," replied the man, his eye still on the bills.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all virtues.—Nelson.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.
Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

PORK AND PORCELAIN.

And the Venus Shell of the Shores of the Mediterranean.

You remember the comment of the wag who declared that if fish should be served only on plates adorned with fishes and seaweed pork should be served only on porcelain. And you probably saw no connection whatever.
It is remotely possible that the wag saw no connection, either—beyond the sound of the words.

Curiously enough, there is a deep inner connection between pork and porcelain, a connection that happens to drag in a certain kind of fish that was found on the shores of the Mediterranean. That fish was the Venus shell, and it inhabited a house more beautiful than any Italian palace. The top of the shell was oval and arched, and when it was covered with a fine gray seaweed the children who played along the shore called it "porcelain," the little pig.

In time the Venus shell came to be known as the porcelina, perhaps because the people who gathered the shells for their commercial value were more familiar with the pig than with the luminous goddess of love, whose radiance was supposed to be reflected in the iridescent house of the creature who dwelt in the sea from which Venus is said to have arisen.

The luster of that shell was well known all over Europe, and when a potter at Meissen succeeded in producing a glaze on earthenware that was very hard and luminous he called it "porcelain," because it resembled the shell of the "porcelina." He was not thinking of "porco," the Italian hog, nor of "porca," his spouse, nor yet of "porcella," the little pig, but he gave his ware a name that ultimately suggests pork.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SPARE HARMLESS SNAKES.

They Are Natural Foes of Many of the Farmers' Worst Pests.

Among the best although least appreciated friends of the farmer are the harmless snakes, such as the milk snake, the "chicken" snake, the garter snake, the bull snake, the blotched king snake, the blue snake, the black snake and some others. All of them are the natural enemies of rats, mice, weasels and similar animals that infest farms and village homes, especially where there is poultry or other small live stock.

In an article in the Scientific American Dr. Robert W. Shufeldt says that it would well repay every farmer in the country to keep half a dozen harmless vermin destroying snakes on every acre of his place.

Although most farmers believe that the common "chicken" snake haunts their outbuildings in order to feed on their young ducks and chickens, the snake does nothing of the kind, but it does destroy great numbers of young mice and other pests. Man's dread and hatred of snakes, says Dr. Shufeldt, have been from the earliest time a matter of erroneous teaching. Harmless snakes are the easiest animals in the world to tame, and it is high time that the false ideas about them should be corrected.

More than that, it should be taught that, like birds, they are among the best friends that the farmer has. If we destroy them we pave the way for the destruction of our forests, our staple farm products and a good deal else that now and always has been protected by snakes and birds.

Bows to the People.

At the main entrance doors of the house of commons is still enacted a scene that recalls stern ceremonies of Elizabethan days. When the king's messenger, the black rod, approaches the house of commons the doors are closed and locked in his face. He must knock three times and bow three times with true humility to the common people; then and only then will the king's message be heard by the people's representatives in commons assembled. In such customs is indicated the inherent purpose of the house of commons to insist upon its full prerogative as the direct representative of the common people from which the creation of republics and democracies is made possible.—London Globe.

Delay Explained.

"What are you doing there, Ellen?"
"Excuse me, miss, but my apron caught in the door."
"But you left the room ten minutes ago!"
"Yes, miss, but I only just found it out."—Passing Show.

When did "kissing the book" come to be recognized as a part of the English oath? Master William Thorpe, a priest, who was tried for heresy before the archbishop of Canterbury in 1407, has in an account of his own trial related a conversation between a "man of law" and a "master of divinity" on the subject of oaths. The man of law spoke of a witness merely laying his hand on the book, whereupon the master of divinity said, "He that chargeth him to lay his hand thus upon the book, touching it and swearing by it, and kissing it, promising in this form to do this thing, will say and witness that he that toucheth thus a book and kisseth it hath sworn upon that book." So the practice is at least 500 years old.

"Kissing the book" must have been a familiar practice in Shakespeare's day, for in "The Tempest" there is more than one jocular reference to it.
"Swear by this bottle how thou camest hither," says Stephano to Trinculo.
"Here, kiss the book," offering him his bottle of sack. There is also legal proof that the practice was well known in the seventeenth century.— London Opinion.

Being the Vice President.

"Isn't it easy to be a vice president?"
remarked a young woman who had been sitting in one of the galleries for some time watching the senate work.
"Cinch," colloquially responded her escort.

But senators know differently, for they are fully aware of what it means to sit hour by hour and pilot their august body through the parliamentary jungle which frequently are confronted. The rules for legislative procedure in the United States senate are practically no rules at all, paradoxical as it may seem. The course of the upper house is guided largely upon precedent and past rulings of vice presidents, and as a consequence the presiding officer must be thoroughly conversant with what his predecessors have done from the time the nation was born.
This means long hours of study and extensive reading.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Antiquity of the Ballet.

Strictly defined, the ballet is properly a theatrical exhibition of the art of dancing in its highest perfection, complying generally with the rules of the drama as to its composition and form.
It was in existence in Italy as far back as A. D. 1500, the court of Turin in that day making especial use of it and the royal family and nobles taking part in it. The ballet was first introduced in France in the reign of Louis XIII, and both that monarch and Louis XIV, occasionally took part in its dances. About the year 1700 women made their first appearance in the ballet, which up to that time had been performed exclusively by men, as was the case also with plays and operas, but no woman ballet dancer of any note appeared until 1700.

Leggings of the Marines.

The stout leggings worn by members of the United States marine corps are not a purely decorative adjunct to their very natty uniforms, as popularly supposed by civilians, but are a protection for the men against tropical diseases while in foreign service, naval surgeons say. Many of the most dangerous tropical diseases are transmit-ed by the bites of insects. Among these are malaria, yellow fever, bubonic plague, hookworm, elephantiasis and tropical ulcer. Fleas and mosquitoes are the prime carriers, and they make their first attack upon the ankles, thence working their way over the whole body. The leggings worn by the United States marines afford splendid protection to the ankles against fleas, mosquitoes and infected dirt.

What Elope Used to Mean.

An elopement has a very definite meaning in the English language of today. It is restricted by custom to a single meaning, that relating to the disappearance of a pair of sweethearts.

But an elopement in advertisements in eighteenth century newspapers meant the absconding of a slave.

"Elope" is a venerable Scandinavian word, and Eric the Red would be much surprised to know that he would not be eloping from his ship should he jump ashore on the New England coast today. In his day "elope" meant "to leap from."—Des Moines Register.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots Of It In Princess Anne But Daily Growing Less

The kidneys often cry for help.
Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed;
Not one more important to health.
The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.
There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.
Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble.
It is often the kidneys' cry for help.
Heed it.

Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys.
Proof of merit in the following statement:

C. F. Parks, prop. of general store, Landoville, Md., says: "I suffered for several months from irregularity of the kidney action and at night my rest was disturbed. I had soreness in my kidneys and if I attempted to stoop or lift, I had sharp twinges. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I decided to give them a trial. I could not have received better results, for I was rid of the trouble." Over two years later Mr. Parks said: "The cure I received by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills some time ago is still permanent."

"The Best Possible Newspaper!"

What sort of a paper is it? In the first place, it must be a Home Paper—the Woman's Friend and a part of her daily life. And it must be a necessity to the Business Man. It must not only tell what is happening in the world, but it must go farther and tell why it is happening and what it means.
The Best Possible Newspaper has a staff of correspondents covering the world field of the Associated and United Press, securing the earth for vital human facts. It has fashions and art, books and music, literature and politics at its right hand. It has the markets for the farmer, the merchant, the broker.

The world has never seen an age of greater constructive significance in politics, in science, in society. Every move in the field of action is a topic for discussion in cities, villages, hamlets, at crossroads. And the Best Possible Newspaper must equip its readers for intelligent understanding of all these things.

That is precisely why it is the simple truth that for your purpose, and for the purposes of the whole South, the BEST POSSIBLE NEWSPAPER is

The Helmet That Fell.
Roquelaure, the deformed jester of Louis XIV., contrived to get out of many a scrape by his ready wit. One day he went to the king to ask his pardon for having struck off the helmet of one of his sentinels who had failed to give him the military salute. Louis, who knew his man, wondered that Roquelaure should crave his pardon for so venial an offense and said to him, "This is a serious matter, Roquelaure, but I will pardon you this time." It afterward turned out that the soldiers' head was in the helmet and fell with it to the ground.

The Blushing Brides.
"Why are brides generally expected to be blushing as they walk down the aisle?"
"I suppose," replied Suffron Long, glancing cautiously about and lowering his voice, "that a good many of them blush to think how they are going to subdue the lords of creation after they've safely got them."—Judge.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.
To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

CURIOUS BREADS.

Some Old World Makes Serve as Curtain or Wedding Ring.

Every nation has a bread that is typically its own. In one oat flour is used, in another wheat or rice or cassava, and the shape varies from the disklike Scandinavian hardtack that has a hole at the center for convenience in packing them away on poles to the farmhouse to our own plump loaves that come out of the oven in the well known form.

The bread of the Balkans, curiously made in the form of chains, is sold from the arms and necks of itinerant peddlers. In tent life in Balkania the detached links are often used for fun at quots or serve a more useful purpose in suspending temporary curtains and awnings. Then when the campers run out of provisions they literally eat their curtain rings! The Japanese bamboo bread, so named from its shape, is a somewhat similar product. It is sliced and sold in strings.

One of the strangest of biscuits comes from Russia. It is known as fit the mouth biscuit and, besides being much appreciated as a tea biscuit, is quite commonly used by merchants ignorant of the three R's as a makeshift abacus in counting money—a lower string of ten serving for kopecks and an upper string of the same number representing rubles. More picturesque still is its use as an extemporized ring for marrying poor peasants with whom the gold ring is lacking.—London Telegraph.

In Modern Times.
"In the old days the main element of a soldier was to know how to act under fire."

"And nowadays, in addition, he is supposed to know how to act under water in the earth and without air."—Puck.

Sociability.
"I hope you are not of those men who go home and find fault with the dinner."

"No," answered Mr. Growcher; "my wife and I eat at a restaurant where we can both find fault."—Washington Star.

A Wish.
"I wish success were a woman."

"Why?"
"Then everybody would know its sex."—Detroit Free Press.

LAWS THAT ARE NOT LAWS.

Many Statutes in England That Simply Could Not Be Enforced.

There are many written laws in England which the unwritten law permits us to break. One of the most surprising of these is playing football. Strictly speaking, football is illegal. "Whereas there has been heretofore great disorder caused by a company of lewd and disorderly persons using that unlawful exercise of foot ball at their pleasures" are the opening words of an act of parliament passed in 1602, and any one who "uses that unlawful exercise" is still liable to a fine of twelve pence.

"Why don't you take the pledge?" This piece of advice is offered every day by magistrates to what the police call "confirmed drunks" when they appear in the courts, and excellent advice it is. But, all the same, in offering it the magistrate is breaking the law himself.

According to an act of Edward VI., reign, which has never been repealed, people who conspire with or induce others to abstain from certain drinks and foods are liable to imprisonment as rogues and vagabonds. You may take the pledge yourself, but you may not advise other people to.

Do you go to the theater? Of course you do. And do you stay to see the last act? Again, of course, you do. But by witnessing that last act you are breaking the law.

An act which has been on the statute book for more than 200 years declares that persons assembling or causing other persons to assemble in any "booth, theater or place of public entertainment" after 10 o'clock in the evening are violating the written law.—Pearson's.

GET READY FOR OLD AGE.
Start Saving at Once if It Be Only a Cent a Day.

I care not how humble the circumstances of any reader may be, they are not too humble to enable him or her to begin to save and to prepare for the time in life when the vacation of old age must be taken. Remember that the earlier you begin the more you will have and that if you save but a cent a day at the end of the year you will have set aside nearly $4. That is something to begin with.

Persons are heard to say, "I can't save; I don't know how, and I can save so little that it never will amount to anything!" All wrong. You can save. If you begin with only a single cent, a five cent piece, a dime or a dollar.

The principal point to remember is that your money will earn something for you if you will only set it aside for that purpose, and it will work day and night while you are sleeping, working or resting. One hundred dollars in the savings bank at the end of the year will be worth $104, as it will earn 4 per cent interest. The same amount invested in a good bond will earn you $5 or $6 by the close of the year.

Better than all, you will have established the habit of thrift and saving. When once you have accumulated a $100 bond or two the rest will come much easier, and you will be surprised and delighted to realize that you are not left without means of support. It is a good thought to be ready for the vacation that must come with old age.—Jasper in Leslie's Weekly.

How Sheridan Paid a Debt.
No one knew better the power possessed by a really polished compliment than Sheridan, and on innumerable occasions during that rather stormy theatrical management of his he did extricate himself from a difficulty by means of one. A good instance is the following: An English nobleman who had married a beautiful actress once applied with much dignity in the green room to Mr. Sheridan for the arrears of her salary and vowed that he would not stir till they were paid.

"My dear lord," said the impecunious manager, "this is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for the little dust she has left behind her."

The nobleman immediately burst out laughing, and the debt was canceled.—London Standard.

Wasted Talents.
The train robber suddenly appeared as many of the passengers were preparing to retire for the night.

"Come, shell out!" he demanded as he stood towering above an eastern clergyman who had just finished a devout prayer.

The minister looked at him sadly for a moment and then said:

"If I had such energetic fellows as you to pass the plate now and then I might have something to give you."—Harper's Magazine.

No Wonder.
A Kansas schoolteacher recently gave her pupils the task of writing a sentence to illustrate the use of the word "heroes."

Little Willie handed in the following sentence:

"A man sat down on a chair. There was a tack in the chair. He rose."—Exchange.

Now's Their Chance.
"And so you are convinced, my friend," asked the curate, "that there is a place of eternal punishment?"

"I am," replied the uncharitable parishioner. "There's nothing in this world bad enough for some people."—Browning's Magazine.

Notes Which Count.
City Minister—Do you preach without notes? Country Minister—Not entirely. I get a five dollar note once in a while.—Philadelphia Record.

AN ESCAPE WINKED AT

By JOHN D. JAMIESON

I have often been asked if in my detective work I had shied off from the wrong trail when I was about to nab a criminal through sympathy. I never did that, but I once lost a woman whom I had under arrest because I had become convinced that she was innocent. I did not tell her that she might escape, but pretended to trust her. I was sorry afterward that I didn't let her know that I was willing she should go, for I saw her do something to gain her freedom that made my blood curdle.

A cashier of a bank had been convicted of defalcation, had been sent to the penitentiary and by means of steel saws sent him by his wife had cut the bars of a window of his cell. She had also provided him with a rope, on which he had lowered himself to the ground and had then thrown it over the prison wall, she being outside to catch it and secure the end. He then climbed on to the wall, and his wife and three of his friends had held a blanket, into which he had jumped. Then, getting into a carriage, he had been driven away.

The warden was quite sure that the escaped man's wife had secured his freedom, but had no evidence to support the charge. Some time after the escape I was ordered by my chief to go to Albany, where the woman was living, arrest her on a trumped up charge and bring her to Philadelphia, where the crime of which her husband had been convicted was committed. The object was to force her to betray his whereabouts, or, rather, to force him to give himself up to secure his wife's freedom.

I found the lady—she was a lady, and a refined lady, too—living in seclusion. She doubtless surmised what kind of a game was to be played on her, for I saw her face set with resolution. I did not believe anything could be forced out of her. She went with me without making any ado, and I refrained from the indignity of placing handcuffs on her. I took a seat beside her in the train, resolving to make the journey as easy for her as possible.

During the ride to New York she told me one of the most interesting stories of how a man's ruin may be planned to save another that I ever listened to. If the person who laid the scheme had devoted his genius to writing detective stories he might have made a large fortune. The most ingenious part of it was that he fixed on an innocent man so that there was no way that he could prove his innocence without casting an aspersion on his own wife.

Not only did the lady make the different steps in the plot plain to me, but by the artless way she told her story convinced me that she had not invented it and was telling the truth. And when she told me that she and her husband had intended to start for Brazil with her children in a few days to begin life anew under a different name I completely soured on my job.

On reaching New York we took supper together in a restaurant, crossed the river and boarded a train for Philadelphia. Having told me her story, the lady sat silently weeping. Her arrest had spoiled a plan that she and her husband had been working and waiting for for several months. If her story and my faith in its truth had not conquered me her tears would have done so—that is, being convinced of her innocence. After leaving Trenton I told her that I was going into the smoking car.

"Aren't you afraid I'll escape?" she asked.

"I don't see how you can," I replied. "This train doesn't stop till we reach Philadelphia, and before that I'll be back."

I did not intend to return to her till we were in the station at Philadelphia, hoping that she would find a way of giving me the slip there, and thought it possible that the train might pull up on the way and go slow enough for her to jump off.

I smoked several cigars. At one of the towns through which we passed where there were many tracks I noticed that we were running beside a train moving in the same direction as ourselves and on the next track. The two trains were so near together that I could put my hand in at the window of the one beside us. Both trains were going at pretty good speed.

Presently the other train began to pull ahead of mine. I was sitting in the front seat of the smoking car on the side next the other train. Suddenly as the platform of the rear car of the other trains caught and passed the platform of my car I saw my prisoner bend forward, grasp the rail of the platform beside her and step on to the other train. She missed the rail she tried for, and I thought it was all up with her, but she caught the rear rail and succeeded in clambering on to the platform. That's all I saw, for the train she was on passed out of sight.

I thanked heaven that I had been spared sending the poor woman to her death and that she had escaped me. Just before reaching Philadelphia I went into the car where I had left my prisoner and, not finding her, on reaching the hotel at which I put up notified my chief of the woman's escape, telling him exactly how she had effected it. It is needless to say I was discharged. After some difficulty I found another berth and never regretted what I had done. Many years after the lady's husband was exonerated, and the story just as she told it to me came out in the newspapers.

THE ARCH OF CTESIPHON.

Lone Remnant of a Once Wonderful and Magnificent City.

Just below Bagdad, on the Tigris, there stands a wonderful ruin known as the Arch of Ctesiphon—all that remains today of a once mighty city, the one time capital of the Parthian kingdom.

The ruins consist of an immense chamber, 81 feet wide by 154 feet long, with an arched roof in one single span of the whole width, the crown of the arch being 104 feet high. The edifice has a back, but in front is entirely open from top to bottom, displaying the whole of the magnificent vaulted chamber. On one side, at the same height as the arch, extends a kind of facade. The whole building is constructed of burnt bricks about a foot square, and it is supposed that the front was originally cased with marble.

Historical records show Ctesiphon was a second Babylon in point of size and in the splendor of its palaces and princely houses. When taken by the Romans 100,000 captives and a rich booty fell into their possession. Later it became the capital of Persia. Here Chosroes, the twenty-third king of Persia, lived in great style. His throne was in a palace of prodigious height and so vast that it was supported by 40,000 silver columns. Its roof was enriched with 1,000 golden globes, which all had different movements and represented the planets and the various constellations.

Some centuries later this wonderful palace and city were sacked by the Arabs, since when it has gradually decayed, all that remains today being this single arch.—Wide World Magazine.

THE CULPRIT CAME BACK.

Because "Big Sim" Was Only a Sheriff and Not a Surveyor.

A Salt Lake City man tells this story of one "Big Sim," a deputy sheriff of Eureka, from whom no criminal could get away by the cross country method. Sim was familiar with every foot of ground in eastern Nevada and could outrun a coyote.

As deputy sheriff he engaged in several long chases, always with success. His capture of a horse thief known as "Spanish Abe" was the toast of Eureka for a long time.

This Spanish Abe was a "bad actor," who made it his business to appropriate stray cattle and the blooded mares of the neighborhood. With a companion he was finally rounded up and incarcerated in the Eureka jail. The next night, however, the criminals forced the window of their cell and took to the brush, mounted on the fleetest animals they could steal.

Big Sim, hours later, hit the trail in pursuit. Spanish Abe turned toward Utah and was changing horses along the road. Big Sim, renewing his mount likewise and cutting across country, gained on the fugitives in the desert. Pursued and pursued he had been riding continuously, and the horses were giving way under the strain. But Big Sim kept on, and it is said he was well into Utah when he brought Spanish Abe and his companion upon a level with his gun and clapped on the handcuffs.

"You have no right to take us, Sim," the Mexican whined. "We are in Utah."

"Rats!" Big Sim replied. "I ain't no surveyor. Come on."—Case and Comment.

A Stream of Water.
A high pressure jet of water will bowl over a man as easily as if he were a box of matches and leave him half stunned. It will even turn a bullet from its path. Experiments have shown that a jet of water can be produced at such a high pressure that it becomes practically a bar of iron. Swords have been blunted in attempting to cut through these extra high pressure jets. Some years ago an armed thief attempted to hold up a high official of the Bank of England in his private office. The official managed to get out of the room unharmed and locked the door. A resourceful attendant brought the fire hose. He opened the door sufficiently to insert the nozzle. In a few minutes the would be thief was picked up senseless.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Family Affair.
It was at the information bureau—the place set apart for inquiries about wounded men in the various hospitals. In flattered a particularly pretty girl and addressed the rather severe looking lady in charge.

"I wish," she said, "to see Lieutenant Ernst Wagner. In what hospital is he?"

"Lieutenant Wagner can receive visits only from his relatives."

"I am his cousin."

"And I am his mother."—New York Post.

SOMERSET COUNTY HAPPENINGS

Newspapers Gathered By Our Correspondents During The Week

Perryhawkin
June 24—Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Mariner were guests at the home of Mrs. Mariner's sister, Mrs. W. T. Howard, at Pitts Creek, Worcester county, the first of the week.

After visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Dykes, Mrs. Hargis Hickman, of Pocomoke City, returned home Friday accompanied by her cousin, Miss Essie Mariner.

Mr. Albert Pope, an aged citizen of Worcester county, died at his home near Whitesburg Saturday night. Funeral services were held in Holland's M. E. Church Monday afternoon conducted by Rev. J. W. West.

The program for the festival to be held by the Ladies Aid of Perryhawkin Christian Church in the grove adjoining the church on July 4th, is as follows: From 4.30 to 6 p. m. will be devoted to vocal and instrumental music and speech-making; immediately after which the sale of supper baskets will commence.

Oriole

June 23—Mr. Raymond Wilson, after traveling to Chicago and other western cities, as representative of the Continental Can Company, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Wilson.

Mrs. Emily Phoebe and little granddaughter, Iva, have arrived home after spending a few days in Baltimore.

Mr. John Nutter, of Richmond, Va., is spending a few days with his niece, Miss C. Wilson.

The church of this place will hold a spread supper July 4th.

The Presidency Of The United States

Since the Constitution of the United States went into operation, twenty-seven men have been President. The term of office for which the President is elected is four years. Seven have served two terms, nine have served one term, eight have served less than one term, and three have served more than one term, but less than two. The term of office of the next President will begin March 4, 1917. President Woodrow Wilson is now serving his first term.

On November 7, 1916, the voters in the forty-eight states of the United States will express their choice for President for the next term. In Wyoming, Colorado, Washington, Utah, California, Idaho, Arizona, Kansas, Oregon, Nevada, Montana and Illinois women as well as men will vote.

The voters do not vote directly for President, but for Presidential Electors. Each state has as many Electors as it is entitled to Representatives and Senators in the national Congress.

The legislature of each state determines how its Electors shall be chosen. At the present time they are chosen directly by the people of each state as a whole. On January 8, 1917, the Electors in each state will meet and cast their votes directly for President of the United States. Three certified copies of this vote will be made. One copy will be sent to the President of the Senate of the United States by personal messenger, another copy to this same officer by mail, and the third copy will be filed with the federal district judge in whose district the Electors meet.

On February 14, 1917, "the President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and the House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted; the person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be the President, if such a number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed."

(Art. XII, Amendment, U. S. Constitution). If no candidate receives a majority of the electoral vote, the House of Representatives will immediately choose a President from among the three who received the highest number of electoral votes. In such an election, each state is entitled to one vote.

Initial Meeting Of Peace League

With Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, as the principal speaker, the Maryland Branch of the League to Enforce Peace will hold its initial meeting at the Lyric, Baltimore, tonight (Tuesday) June 27th.

The new organization will commence its career under brilliant circumstances, the indications being that it will attract not only a very large, but an usually distinguished audience. Besides Secretary Baker, the list of speakers will comprise Governor Harrington, Mayor Preston and Thomas Raeburn White, the noted lawyer, writer, lecturer and exponent of the peace movement. Mr. White, who is a resident of Philadelphia, is a member of the executive committee of the National League to Enforce Peace, of which former President Taft is the President.

Former Governor Edwin Warfield, who will be made President of the Maryland section of the League, will preside at the meeting, and Henry W. Williams, chairman of the organization committee, will be in charge of the business features. He will propose the officers, who in addition to Governor Warfield will include Joseph R. Walker, Treasurer, and Theodore Marburg, Vice-President. Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop John Gardner Murray, former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Judge J. Alfred Pearce, and many other prominent men will be among the honorary Vice-Presidents. The League is an entirely new organization and is not affiliated with any other peace society, its purpose being a militant one, in line with the preparedness movement.

Value Of Soy Beans In Orchard

Where cow peas are sown alone, the best and most effective way to use them is to grow the crop for forage and then seed down the field, after disking, to wheat or other fall-sown grain, says Nelson F. Page, of Virginia, in the American Fruit Grower. The principal fertilizing value of cow peas is in the nitrogen nodules on the roots. When sown alone, cow peas should be put in at the rate of one and one-half bushels of seed per acre. Mr. Page states that fertilizer should always be used to get the largest yields. Cow peas are of particular value in orchards as they furnish an abundance of humus, so essential to the growth of the trees.

County Agents Increase Alfalfa Yields

Every county agent in Virginia has had successful alfalfa demonstrations during the past year, and a total of 4,588 acres are now being grown under demonstration methods, according to T. O. Sandy, State Agent. The increase per acre has averaged one and one-third tons of cured hay over the ordinary methods. The increased value of the extra yield of alfalfa hay at the rate of $15 per ton amounts to $87,847.50. This sum is more than sufficient to pay the salaries of all the county agents in the state for the year.

The careful preparation of the seed-bed, inoculation, the use of well-drained land, the correction of acidity and the liberal use of fertilizer to give the crop a quick start and carry it along well insure success with alfalfa. For the first time in the history of the state, Virginia last year raised enough hay to supply her local markets.
