Public Meeting Wednesday Night

Mr. E. Herrman Cohn, chairman of the committee to raise funds to purchase a fire engine for the protection of property in this town, has issued a call for a meeting to be held in the Auditorium tomorrow (Wednesday) night. His letter follows:

"I notice article in your issue of September 28th, 'Will we Have Fire Protection?' and I am very glad to see this matter again brought to the attention of the public, and hope the result will be a good public meeting and action on the subject.

"Your article is in error in stating that 'no public meeting has been called by the committee' and reference to the files of your paper will show that a meeting was asked for Wednesday evening, August 3rd, and then again for the following Wednesday, at the Auditorium, and there were not more than half a dozen present either time and it was not thought worth while to proceed.

"As chairman of this committee, may I ask that you advertise a meeting for Wednesday evening, October 6th, at 8 o'clock, in the Auditorium, at which time all the information we have obtained will be presented to the citizens for their action."

Crisfield Election Case

The Crisfield election case, involving the legality of the seat of William H. Pierce in the City Council of Crisfield, was the center of interest in the Circuit Court last Tuesday and again on Friday afternoon. On Tuesday the appeal of Mr. Pierce from the decision of the old City Council, was heard, with all three Judges on the bench. Testimony was taken in this case, and the Court held its decision, pending the mandamus case which also covered the same case. The mandamus case came up Friday and was argued before the Court. Pierce was represented by Miles & Myers and Lankford & Lankford, while the petitioners were represented by former Attorney-General Isaac Lobe Strauss and Gordon Tull. The decision of the Court has not been announced.

Killed By A Live Wire

While loading logs on a freight car at Loretto Station on the N. Y. & P. N. Railroad last Wednesday morning, Mr. Frank Johnson was electrocuted when a wire cable attached to a boom used in hoisting logs came into contact with a high-tension electric wire. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Johnson was in the employ of Messrs. James A. McAllen and brother, of this town. He was about 30 years old and leaves a wife but no children. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson resided in Princess Anne. Funeral services were held last Thursday and interment was in the church cemetery at Perryhawkin.

GEORGE IVerson GETS INTO GAME

Files Papers As A Candidate For United States Senator

George D. Iverson, Jr., a Democratic member of the House of Delegates from the Fifteenth ward, Baltimore, last Thursday filed with Secretary of State Perlman petitions for the publication of his name on the official ballot as a candidate for the United States Senate. He says that over 20,000 qualified voters in Baltimore and in the counties have signed the petitions.

Mr. Iverson enters the race as the candidate of the "People's Party," which, according to the petitions, has a regular set of principles, the chief of which is a repeal of the Volstead act.

Among other declarations set forth in the platform are:

Opposition to the incorporation of idealism in the Constitution, state and national, and to the tendency of too much regulation by law.

For a League of Nations without entangling alliances.

Rigid economy in government as an offset to high cost of living.

Revision of all tax laws.

For a national budget.

Fair, square deal for soldiers, sailors and marines.

On the labor question the declaration says:

We recognize the right of labor, industry and the farmer to organize for their respective interests and to enjoy the benefits flowing therefrom, and of the opportunities and advantages gained thereby, so long as they do not exploit the public or cause unreasonable, or unjust, or undue hardships upon the people.

Rollie Bounds Accidentally Killed

Mr. Rollie Bounds, a former resident of Princess Anne, met a horrible death last Thursday morning while working at the Warren Meat Products Company. The Wisconsin Countain last Friday gives the following account of the accident:

"According to the statement of Mr. Warren, the two men were working on a rail that was being built in the store. Warren asked Mr. Bounds to go out and get him a two-inch bolt. Instead of going out, Bounds went down to the cellar in search of the bolt. In a few minutes Mr. Warren heard a scream and rushing to the cellar found Bounds lying face downwards on the floor. Upon examination it was found that he had been killed by coming into contact with a live wire or socket. Ammonia from the refrigerating machines and dampness are supposed to have rotted the insulation on the wires. Dr. Wailes was summoned, but efforts to revive life failed. A coroner's jury was impaneled under instructions of State's Attorney Long and a verdict of accidental death returned.

"The deceased was highly regarded in the community and is survived by his widow, one child and several brothers."

Killed In Fall Of Seaplane

During the flight of a seaplane at Wachapreague, Va., Monday afternoon of last week William Bell, 30 years old, the pilot, and Harry Boulter, son of Charles Boulter, of Wachapreague, a passenger, were instantly killed when the machine became uncontrollable and plunged to the earth from a height of 500 feet. The bodies of both victims were buried in the earth of the swamp and had to be dug out. They were mangled beyond recognition.

The tragedy was witnessed by a number of spectators, who had gathered to watch the ascensions being made by Bell, who was carrying passengers on pleasure trips along the Atlantic ocean. Bell was the son of Wm. P. S. Bell, a druggist of Accomac, Va. During the world war he served as an instructor at the aviation field at San Antonio, Texas. He left a widow and one child.

There were snow flurries at Cumberland, Md., last Friday morning, while considerable snow fell in the mountains about Oakland, where the temperature dropped to about 40 degrees, the coldest of the season.

COL. HODSON CALLED BY DEATH

Lawyer And a Republican Leader For Years In This County

Colonel Thomas S. Hodson, for more than a half century prominent in the public life of Maryland, died at his home in Crisfield last Wednesday morning after an illness of several months. For many weeks he was a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. He was 83 years old and had made Crisfield his home since its beginning.

Col. Hodson was born in Dorchester county. He studied at Yale and Princeton and in 1863 was admitted to the Philadelphia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and was pastor at Laurel, Del., and Annapessex Circuit, in Somerset. Then he became editor of the Somerset Herald, in Princess Anne, and in 1868 Collector of the Port at Crisfield and editor of the Crisfield Leader. He was admitted to the bar in 1872 and was long one of the leading admiralty lawyers in the State. In the nineties he removed to Baltimore and practiced there several years.

Col. Hodson was the oldest member of the Somerset county bar and one of the oldest practicing attorneys in Maryland; the acknowledged head of the Republican party in Somerset and identified with various business, professional and social movements of Crisfield. He was known as the "forlorn-hope" leader of the Eastern Shore Republicans. He ran for Congress in the days when no Republican had the slightest chance to win. He was State Senator from Somerset a quarter of a century ago, and the legislative father of the Haman oyster planting law and chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. He was a Roosevelt follower in 1912 and ran for Congress as a Progressive in 1914.

He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Clara J. Hodson, and two sons, Colonel Clarence Hodson and Sherwood S. Hodson. Funeral services were held at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, near Crisfield, last Friday morning.

Drifting To Democracy

A big drift of Republican and independent votes to the Democratic ticket in West Virginia on the League of Nations issue was predicted by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, in an address before a large noonday crowd at Parkersburg, W. Va., last Thursday. Roosevelt went to that city on a special street car from Marietta, O., where he made an address in a theatre.

"On this trip through West Virginia," he said, "I have talked with hundreds of Republicans and independents who, until the last few days, had been inclined to cast their ballots for the Republican candidate for the Presidency, but they have been coming to me of their own accord, all of them expressing the same general thought. Up to recently they had assumed that Harding was only waiting for the proper moment to make really clear his own position in regard to a foreign policy for the United States."

"It was therefore with a distinct shock that these Republicans and independents read Harding's statement in Baltimore that he is without any specific constructive program and that he has no clear plan to offer as a substitute for the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations."

Name Of Hawkins Will Be On Ballot

Secretary of State Perlman has announced that careful examination showed that the papers of W. Ashbie Hawkins, colored, independent candidate for the United States Senate, were in proper shape and that Hawkins' name would appear on the ballot. Secretary Perlman, after examining the papers, submitted them to the State Law Department.

Hawkins is leading the negroes' revolt against O. E. Weller, Republican candidate for Senator and party boss, and Mayor Broening, of Baltimore. Vigorous efforts have been made by Maryland Republicans and Republican national headquarters, it is said, to persuade Hawkins to quit, but they have been without avail. He is the first negro to go on the ticket in Maryland for high office.

Democratic Mass-Meetings

There will be a Democratic mass-meeting held in Princess Anne on Saturday, October 16th, at 3 o'clock p. m., and at Crisfield at night of the same day, at 7.30 o'clock. Among the prominent speakers who will address the meeting will be Hon. Howard Bryant, of Baltimore; Hon. T. Allan Goldsborough, Democratic candidate for Congress; Major E. Brooke Lee, Comptroller of the Treasury. The ladies are especially invited to these meetings.

Some one is killed by an automobile accident every 30 minutes, but fools are being born every minute so only a small part of them can be disposed of in this way.

Women of Somerset

Bear in mind that Tuesday, OCTOBER 5th, is Registration Day. Go to the polling place in your district and put yourself in position to exercise the right of suffrage for the first time in a great national election. Questions of overwhelming importance are at issue. Weigh carefully the issues to be determined. Study the covenant of the League of Nations framed to prevent conscription, militarism and war. The Republican party opposes this covenant. The Democratic party insists it is imperatively demanded in the interest of humanity; that the way to escape another world war is to join with other nations in a League to make war impossible.

Women of Somerset, register today, affiliate with the Democratic party and vote the Democratic ticket in November.

Josiah L. Kerr Dead

Mr. Josiah Leeds Kerr, one of the best known men in Dorchester county, died suddenly at his home in Cambridge Monday night of last week of heart trouble.

Mr. Kerr was born in Vienna in January, 1861, and was the son of the late Josiah and Sarah Cornwell Kerr. He was reared to manhood in Vienna, but, with his brother, the late Thomas E. Kerr, removed to Cambridge while a young man and had resided there ever since. He was school examiner of the county from 1898 to 1900 and was elected to Congress in 1900. Following the expiration of his term in Congress he engaged with his brother in the wholesale candy business, but finding the business entirely too confining to suit them they gave it up a little over a year after starting.

Mr. Kerr then accepted a position as the representative of the Christopher Sower Company, one of the oldest school-book publishing companies in the United States, and represented them ever since. He succeeded in getting the books published by the firm into the schools of every county in the State, and in his trips to the various county seats had become one of the best known men in Maryland.

Mr. Kerr was well-known in Princess Anne and it will be remembered that he delivered the address to the graduating class of Washington High School last May.

He is survived by his wife, who was before her marriage Miss Kate Jackson, and one son (George Crompton Kerr). He also leaves two sisters (Mrs. Annie E. Taitt and Mrs. Samuel Brohawn, both of Cambridge). The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery, Cambridge.

Senator Harding Speaks In Baltimore

Before an audience of 12,000 people or more, which crowded the Fifth Regiment Armory, in Baltimore, Monday night of last week, Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, flayed the Wilson administration for its conduct of the war and the burdening of the nation with an enormous war debt.

In his speech Senator Harding promised merchant marine policy incurring accessibility to all the markets of the world, linked with a protective tariff system to foster production at home.

The Republican Presidential nominee praised the Merchant Marine bill enacted at the last session of Congress and assailed the Democratic administration for "unpreparedness for peace" in its policy toward American shipping and other factors of financial and industrial rehabilitation.

It was the biggest thing of its sort that has been in Baltimore since the Bryan open-air meeting in 1896. One notable feature of the gathering was the presence of an unusual number of women. The women of Maryland, having just been given the vote, took advantage of the first notable meeting held in Baltimore in the campaign to hear what a Presidential candidate had to say on the issues now before the people, and Senator Harding had no more thoughtful and attentive listeners than the women.

Harding finds it necessary to imitate Cox in everything except frankness. Cox traveled; Harding had to give up his porch campaign and take to the ties. Cox had a railroad accident, and Harding's train has been "sideswiped." We are glad that neither candidate was injured, but we recall that imitation is the sincerest flattery. — Philadelphia Record.

LEGISLATURE COST $23,000.00

Printing Bills $2,500, Stationery $3,200 And 'Phones $1,000

The assembling of the Maryland legislature in extraordinary session to pass laws making smooth the functioning of the Federal Woman's Suffrage Amendment cost, according to unofficial figures, something over $23,000. Approximately $17,500 of this was for the session's own legitimate expenses, and $5,500 was to cover deficits occurring in the publication of constitutional amendments passed at the regular session of 1920 and to meet the expense of publication and distribution of the election laws of the state as amended at the regular session last winter.

The appropriation bill offered by the administration forces to care for the expenses of the session, and the other items mentioned, when first offered, carried $15,856 for the extra session and $5,500 for the 1920 deficit items. It was amended under suspension of the rules of both Houses on Wednesday night so as to add $5,000 for extra session costs.

Aside from the lump sums to pay the mileage and per diem of the members of the Senate and House, the larger items of the session showed the drafters of the bill did not expect the lawmakers to cut down on their telephone calls "back home."

"For payment telephone service for the members, $1,000," reads this item in the bill. Other items were:

Printing.....	$2,500
Binding laws.....	1,250
Copying and indexing laws.....	150
Arranging laws for publication.....	200
Recording laws.....	50
Indexing journals.....	200
For cleaning the State House.....	250
Proclamation.....	250

Total.....$4,850

These items, with the telephone charge of $1,000, make the general expenses of the session $5,850.

The members and officials were paid as follows, on the basis of the per diem, mileage and expenses applying in regular sessions:

SENATE
President, 3 days at $8 per diem.....	24
24 senators, at $5 per diem.....	360
Mileage, senators.....	1,350
Secretary of Senate, at $10 per diem.....	30
Mileage.....	90
Journal clerk, at $10 per diem.....	30
Mileage.....	68
Reading clerk, at $10 per diem.....	30
Mileage.....	18
Stationery.....	675

Total.....$2,675

HOUSE
Speaker, at $8 per diem.....	24
100 members, at $5 per diem.....	1,500
Mileage.....	4,560
Chief clerk, at $10 per diem.....	30
Mileage.....	30
Journal clerk, at $10 per diem.....	30
Mileage.....	26
Reading clerk, at $10 per diem.....	30
Mileage.....	25
Chaplain.....	15
Stationery.....	2,525

Senate and House.....$11,520
General expenses.....5,850

Total.....$17,370

There were, in addition, several stenographers, doorkeepers, pages and general helpers put on the payrolls at $5 per diem whose pay will, it is unofficially estimated, bring the total cost up to about $17,500.

The deficit items were $3,000 to pay for publishing and distributing the election laws and amendments thereto in the year 1920, and $2,500 for the balance due for advertising the constitutional amendments passed at the regular session last winter. These two items, added to the $17,500 for the costs of the session, make a total approximate estimate of $23,000 expenditure authorized from Monday night to Wednesday night.

Hospital Committee Visits Delaware

On Wednesday, Sept. 22nd, Messrs. W. B. Miller and Fred P. Adkins, of the campaign committee, and C. G. Fencil, the campaign manager, to raise funds for the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, spent the day in Delaware in the interest of the campaign organization in Sussex county, visiting Laurel and Seaford.

At Laurel conferences were held with Messrs. Wm. E. Valliant, H. Otwell and Wm. F. Deputy. It is expected that a larger group of Laurel's representative men and women will be arranged in the near future for further conference as to the organization of Laurel and vicinity.

At Seaford, where Mr. William Day had made advance arrangements, the visitors conferred with Messrs. Alexander Donohu, Capt. John R. Eekridge, E. Greenbaum, Dr. W. F. Baines, L. I. Hardesty, L. W. Hurley, Dr. H. M. Manning, J. A. Morgan and J. A. Wright. As a result of the conference a meeting was arranged for Tuesday evening, September 28th. Mr. Wright, as president of the Seaford Booster's Club, is backing the plans enthusiastically.

CIRCUIT COURT STILL IN SESSION

Grand Jury Discharged Last Tuesday Afternoon

The Circuit Court for Somerset county convened Monday morning of last week with Judges Duer and Bailey on the bench. Chief Judge John R. Pattison arrived Monday night and was present all the week.

The grand jury found seven indictments and were discharged Tuesday afternoon. The members of the grand jury were:

George P. Parsons, foreman; Frank M. Gould, W. O. Lankford, Sr., Philip O. Layfield, George T. Beauchamp, Harry W. Riffin, Arthur W. White, Albert W. Sterling, Isaac Fred Phoebus, Wm. R. Tull, Stanley Ford, Wm. F. Dougherty, Warren E. Owens, Edward T. Landon, Thomas O. Long, W. E. Todd, George W. Adams, Alonzo E. Tull, Ernest W. Townsend, Isaiah W. French, E. McD. Moore, Harlan Nelson, Charles W. Ralph.

The petit jurors are: Wm. G. Lankford, Robert F. Bounds, Robert Beauchamp, Edward Collier, John W. Horner, James Bailey, George W. Jones, Olin Horner, Wm. T. Evans, William W. Evans, John R. Giles, F. Douglas Sessa, Henry B. Ward, John H. Shockley, Arthur Briddell, Lyda W. Hall, George C. Hall, Frank Brown, C. Gray Lawson, L. Dow Evans, S. Upshur Long, S. D. Sterling, Charles A. Cathell, Wm. J. Benton, George Norman Pusey.

Messrs. Alonzo E. Tull, Wilmer O. Lankford, Sr., and Thomas O. Long, committee appointed to inspect the court house and jail, made the following report:

"We, a committee appointed by your honorable body to investigate and report upon the condition of the jail and court house, two of the institutions of said county, beg leave to state that we visited the jail and found two inmates therein. The high cost of living has been felt by the inmates—the amount allowed does not justify a menu to satisfy the occupants. We found the sanitary conditions good, with some repair by the plumber, which we were informed was in the course of being done. We found it imperative necessary that five windows on the upper floor should have two extra bars added to each window in order to prevent a repetition of the jail delivery of last February, it now being necessary, under present conditions, to restrict the prisoners to the cages, and we earnestly recommend the fixing of those windows for humanity's sake."

"In the court house we found the basement furnace room in a most deplorable condition. The janitor has been most dilatory in his work, in fact, if his work was too onerous for the pay, the pay should be such as to secure better service and remove from the furnace room all debris, some of which is a menace for fire. We most earnestly recommend that the Board of Education be given more room. The schools of this county have outgrown the present quarters of the Board of Education and we recommend the basement directly under the present quarters of the Board be fixed and communication by stair direct from the present room to the basement be made, thus giving almost double the room for the work of the Board, a most urgent necessity."

The committee to inspect the almshouse—Messrs. Harry W. Riffin, William C. Todd and J. Arthur White—made the following report:

"We, the undersigned committee appointed by the foreman of the grand jury to inspect the almshouse and surrounding buildings, have performed this duty. We have gone over the property and have found said buildings in a sanitary condition but needing repairs. The insane house needs paint badly and the outhouses need repairs. We found three pest houses have never been used, which could be moved up and joined to the other buildings and the old ones torn down and replaced by them, which we recommend. We found six insane male colored patients, five insane female colored patients, two female paupers (white) three male paupers (white). We found the stock in good shape and the crops in good condition. We also found that the keeper has turned in to the County Treasurer $320.00 for the sale of produce, upon which we congratulate him, as this is something that has never before happened, since the house has been in existence."

Thursday evening, out of respect for Col. Thomas S. Hodson, who was the oldest member of the Somerset bar, and whose funeral took place Friday morning, the witnesses and petit jurors were discharged and Court adjourned until yesterday (Monday) morning at 10 o'clock.

Among the cases disposed of last week were:

Agie B. Swift vs. Merritt I. Boston—suit for damages; before jury. Verdict for defendant.

Stephen C. Corbin, appeal, vs. State—having hard crabs unlawfully; before jury. Verdict for Corbin, not guilty.

Maggie A. Hayman vs. New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad—suit for damages; before jury. Verdict for Hayman.

State vs. John H. Ward—indictment for larceny—pleads guilty. Sentence suspended for three years.

WOULD YOU SWEAR AT THIS YOUNG LADY IF SHE WERE SITTING BESIDE YOUR DESK?

This is a typical telephone operator. She represents a class of well-trained, capable, efficient young women. She deserves the same courtesy and consideration you would give your stenographer.

"Cussing out" the telephone operator and then telling your neighbors how rotten the service is, doesn't remove telephone troubles or help the company the least bit to remedy defective service.

At least that's what Earl Godwin says. Mr. Godwin, who was at one time editor of the Washington Times, is assistant to the president of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. At a luncheon of the Advertising Club of Baltimore a few days ago he addressed the members on the subject of "Public Psychology," and also threw in a few remarks about ways and means of securing prompt attention and relief when anything goes wrong with the telephone service.

Unkindness and rough speech, he pointed out, operate only to the detriment of the service. One instance was cited where, during the war a great many operators in a certain city forsook the telephone industry. The new operators, inexperienced and inefficient, immediately became the butt of every newspaper cartoonist and jokester in the town. When the abuse finally got too severe the girls left en masse, and the telephone service in that particular city was crippled.

Poor service, inadequate service is seldom the fault of the individual operator. If you are having trouble, such as slowness in answering, calls by mistake, wrong number, or if your telephone is out of order, call the chief operator. She will see that the defects are remedied.

Mr. Godwin says that subscribers by co-operating with the company can keep service difficulties at a minimum. When telephone troubles occur, their removal depends only on the company being promptly notified.

BROUGHT BACK TOWN CRIER

Ancient Official Had Brief Day of Glory When Only Daily Newspaper Was Burned Out.

The connection between the town crier and the newspaper was demonstrated recently when the plant of the Macon (Mo.) Daily Chronicle-Herald, the only daily newspaper in the county, was so badly damaged by fire it was put out of commission for several weeks, according to the Fourth Estate.

Some important announcements were waiting—a big stock sale, a public meeting, features at the movie shows and special sales by the merchants. There were weekly papers, but these would not be out in time.

Then someone thought of Dick McKinney, the old town crier, who had been off the job for a decade, and whose retirement had been the cause of much storied sentiment as indicative of the passage of the old to the modern method which came with the daily newspaper.

Dick said he was old and rheumatically, and that his voice was not what it used to be, but they dug him up a bell, gave him a megaphone and told him to go out and tell the people what was coming.

The old town crier did the best he could, but it was evident that years had weakened his vocal organs, so that the bell was the most valuable feature of his service.

While the daily paper was out of commission the town slipped back a decade or more. No market reports, nothing about the weather, nothing from the conventions, no announcements of choir practice and socials.

The town crier was all in when the paper resumed publication and took his place. But, while his resurrection was brief, the town crier came into such fame as he had never known in his previous humble history.

Protecting Australian Animals.

At the present rate of extermination Australia's marsupials will have practically disappeared within 20 years, says Dr. Colin Mackenzie, in an article in the Melbourne Argus. The revival of shipping after the war with its opportunities for exporters, is giving point to his warning, and it is probable that some steps will be taken to control the export of live specimens of Australian fauna or of skins.

At present the protection of Australian animals is purely a state matter, though the commonwealth has customs regulations prohibiting the export of certain skins and of the feathers of specified birds. The unique character of Australian marsupials has long been recognized by the zoological gardens of the world, and it is not likely that legitimate exchanges between zoos will be prohibited by any Australian protective regulations.

Utilizing Solar Heat.

The scarcity of fuel has naturally turned attention to solar heat in sunny regions. In a late paper, C. Le Roy Melsinger states that, in Egypt, the Punjab and South Africa, glass-topped teakwood boxes, blackened inside and insulated, serve as ovens for cooking, and find many other uses. The midday temperature inside has been found to range from 240 degrees to 275 degrees F., while an auxiliary mirror may raise it as high as 320 degrees. The "solar cooker" devised at the Smithsonian Institution comprises a loop of pipe containing oil, a portion of the loop passing through a box containing an oven, while another portion receives the solar rays concentrated upon it by an iron-backed glass mirror having the form of a half cylinder. The unequal heating causes the oil to circulate throughout the tube. Heat is thus conveyed to the oven and cooking is done without fuel.

Not Altogether Birdlike.

At a social evening one very musical young lady sang a song entitled "Sylvan Sounds." It was very fine, indeed, and all the old ladies and gentlemen waxed quite enthusiastic.

"Most delightful!" gushed one dear old lady to a young man who chanced to be near her. "Isn't she a lovely singer?"

"Yes, quite good!" replied the young fellow coolly.

"And didn't it remind you of the singing of birds? In fact," went on the good lady enthusiastically, "one might almost believe it really was a bird singing."

"Well, I don't know," remarked the man; "I never saw a bird sit down at a table and drink three cups of tea and eat two helpings of veal-and-ham pie and enough cake and sweets to stock a school treat."

Famous Men Look Alike.

Houghton Mifflin company recently received a request from a distinguished member of the British parliament for an engraving of Hawthorne such as appears as a frontispiece in the standard edition of his works. It was, said the correspondent, for a "special purpose." Another letter told the purpose of the picture. It was framed and presented to Lloyd George, who has been, writes the M. P., "much impressed by the resemblance as shown by the portrait between Mr. Hawthorne and the prime minister."

CONTRARIES

By MILDRED WHITE.

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Tain't no use," said Lessie, "I'm too homely."

Mrs. Cy Cummings looked her over speculatively.

"Homely is a lot as folks make themselves," she replied. "Now look at Hanner West. Take her sweepin' in the morning, her hair in pins, homely as kin be. Then take her at a social in her plaid silk with her hair fussed up, an' she's a good-lookin' girl; happy, too; an' always comp'ny to see her home."

Lessie smiled; it was a good-humored smile which betrayed no regret in her loss of Cy Cummings.

"However," her sister went on, "let's get back to the subject. A well-to-do, sensible single man has bought the Wilby place. His stylish sister kept house for him over to Webster's Corners till she died six months ago. Now Nate Dixon is in search of a wife. Every one knows that, 'cause he told Mary when he engaged her to housekeep, that she needn't consider her position permanent. They's four women in our society this minute willin' to be Mrs. Dixon. Anyone of em's nice. But, they's no reason why you shouldn't cut 'em all out if you had a little of your sister's ambition."

"Maybe," said Lessie, with a flush, "I wanted to lose out, Ellen, where I wasn't interested."

Ellen sniffed. "Well, you look interested enough now, whenever Nate Dixon comes our way. Noticed it yesterday when he stopped over to ask a question. And you'd better know that a good house and bank account is worth takin' the trouble to smile for."

"I bought this pink muslin for you at Barnie's today," she said. "We can start makin' it up this afternoon. An' I'd trim my black hat over if I wuz you—black looks real well with pink. Then we'll get busy with your hair."

But Mrs. Cy Cummings dominated this situation just as she had dominated every situation of her household, and Lessie, dressed in pretty frocks and becoming headgear, went obediently—if rebelliously, upon her gay-chosen way. The new object of village interest was most perplexing in her attentions. For though he noticed not at all the four women who never failed to be present at each entertainment, his attention to Miss Lessie began at first encouragingly, caused her managing sister much anxiety and heart burning. For after a long and romantic drive through the country in Lessie's company, Mr. Dixon would absent himself from her presence for weeks at a time, reappearing unexpectedly at meeting some evening to walk home by her side, and thereupon disappearing again from any chance encounter.

"Mr. Dixon," Lessie remarked one day, "showed me some pictures of his sister last night. My! she must have been fine; looks like a fashion cover in all of 'em an' every one different. Used to play an' sing an' take part in public entertainments, he told me, an' gave teas an' parties herself besides."

"Pro'ly," Mrs. Cummings answered crossly, "that's why some dull stay-at-home folks ain't up to the mark with him. Anyone can see, Less Saunders, that you ain't enjoyin' yourself out in comp'ny even when you're dressed up an' pretendin' to be—"

It was then that Lessie revolted. "Well," she answered calmly, "there isn't going to be any more pretendin'; I'm through."

When Lessie appeared at breakfast next morning she was garbed in her neat print dress with sleeves rolled up at the elbows. And when she went out later to the apple trees with her sewing she returned her sister's disapproving frown with a smile. Lessie beneath the apple trees was just a wholesome, rosy-cheeked woman who sang as she rocked comfortably to and fro. Her sister's parting slam of the door as she left the house failed to disturb Lessie's satisfied calm. And presently upon one of his unexpected visits came Nate Dixon. Lessie motioned him indifferently to the bench at her side, but the color left her cheeks as she laid aside her sewing. The village prize stared wonderingly at the woman before him.

"Why—" he stammered, "you look real different some way, Miss Saunders."

"It's the dress," Lessie answered frankly, "and the plain way I've done my hair. This is it's natural way," she laughed shakily. "Reckon this is jest my natural self you're seeing to-day, Mr. Dixon."

A light came to the man's eyes as he leaned eagerly toward her.

"You mean," he asked, "that you aren't altogether a pleasure woman after all? Forgive me," he quickly added, "you see, my sister was never contented to stay in her own home—always running after excitement, never finding much happiness, either. So I never had much of a home, shifting most of the time for myself. So I hoped when I did come to like a woman—to love a woman—that she'd be the kind who could make a real home for me. Didn't want to tie her down, either, unless I was sure she'd be happy there. Lessie," he ended solemnly, "you look now like the woman who might be content in that home. Are you that woman, Lessie?"

And when she had wiped the tears from her eyes Lessie beamed upon him.

"Bents all," she said, "how my whole life has gone by contraries, right up to this minute when I thought you'd never care, for the real me—that I am."

HOW

IMPRISONED BEAR DEALT WITH THREATENED FLOOD.

How intelligent a bear may be is well illustrated by an account published by M. Baudouin in the Bulletin of the French Societe Nationale d'Acclimation of a brown specimen that lives in the Jardin des Plantes, Paris.

The bear had noticed that whenever there was a heavy fall of rain the lower part of his den was flooded and the orifice by which the water flowed out was obstructed. Whenever this happened he profited by the occasion to take a good bath. This finished, he used to go to the outlet and scrape away the debris that had stopped it up, until the water flowed out and his home was dry. But once, in an exceptionally heavy flood, the water rose through the hole from outside. The bear tried his usual method of getting rid of the water, but, finding this useless, sat down to think over the new situation.

Presently an idea came to him. A lot of rocks had been thrown into his den in an effort to raise the level of the floor and give him dry quarters. He studied these rocks attentively, and then began carrying them one by one to the place where the water was entering. He tried with these stones to build a dam against the increasing water. After the water receded it was discovered that the bear had placed twenty rocks, weighing from twenty to forty pounds each.

COYOTES AND KITTENS PLAY

How the Result of Cat's Adoption of Wild Cubs Seems to Be Worked Out.

In addition to an already large family of kittens, a cat which belongs to the M. Brent family of South Fork has adopted two coyote puppies.

Several weeks ago when W. W. Buckbee and R. H. Carter, who live near the Brent farm, found the den of a coyote on the latter's place, they captured several very small coyote puppies, says a western newspaper. When shown at the Brent farmhouse some of the children wanted the little coyotes and paid their captors for two of them.

The little coyotes were placed among the kittens belonging to the old family cat and after a careful scrutiny and a few sniffs, the old cat began mothering them the same as her own kittens.

Now the cat's family of kittens and the two adopted coyote puppies are nearly two months old and all live together happily and appear to be making the most of life. The coyotes are getting much bigger than the kittens and are playful and mischievous. In the rough-and-tumble tussles they are continually staging the coyotes are stronger, but the kittens are more active, so it is about an even match as yet. While the coyotes can easily wallop the kittens on a straight-out fight, yet the latter, when on the defensive, will curl up on their backs and keep the coyote puppies at bay by the rapid kicks of hind legs and the scratching of their sharp claws.—Exchange.

How Tides Will Be Harnessed.

An attempt is to be made to harness the tides at the mouths of several British rivers, using the power thus obtained to generate electricity. The engineers who are making the plans estimate that the electricity will be obtained at only two-thirds the cost of electric power generated by coal.

The basic principle underlying most of the inventions for harnessing the tides is the working of a turbine by tidal ebb and flow. The tide makes the power at both its inflow and its outflow, only ceasing for a comparatively short time during the period of half tide. In one Cheshire and Lancashire district the great variation in the hour of the tide at neighboring estuaries makes possible, through an ingenious discovery, the production of maximum energy during an almost continuous period.

How Pavement Was Repaired.

Special precautions have been taken in the repair of a wooden block pavement that was laid last year at St. Louis beneath a fervid Missouri sun. The blocks, somewhat too green, began to shrink, and joints less than a quarter-inch wide expanded to one-half inch. The pitch filler melted and looser block were floating like debris in an asphalt lake.

To reconstruct the pavement the blocks were driven tightly together, a fine mineral filler was forced to the bottom of the joints, a type of pitch was chosen that showed high melting points, and, after the pavement was again laid, it was shielded temporarily from direct solar heat with a coating of wet sand.

How to Get Through Work.

When it happens that you have need of doing things about which, since they appear to you in your sloth to be many and difficult, you begin to be weary, begin, nevertheless, bravely and quietly, with one, as if there were not another to do. For, by doing this diligently, you will come to do all with far less fatigue than that which in your sloth seemed to be before you.—Lorenzo Scupoli.

SENATOR SMITH A BENEFACTOR TO THE AFFLICTED

Recently the following letter was sent to Senator John Walter Smith from one of the most eminent and public spirited members of the Medical profession:

"Baltimore, Md., Aug. 12, 1920.
"Senator John Walter Smith,
"United States Senate, "Committee on the District of Columbia,
"Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Senator:
"I can most enthusiastically testify to the wonderful help that you have been to the medical profession for many years in some of the greatest public movements which you have undertaken in this State and in the whole United States. You have always been the one man in the United States Senate to whom we could go with a feeling of certainty that you would interest yourself in the cause for which we spoke. Your self-sacrificing work for the tuberculous of Maryland is a monument to your public spirit and fitness.

"With kindest regards and assurances of my best wishes, I am,
"Very sincerely yours,
"(Signed) HUGH H. YOUNG."

There are many reasons why Senator Smith well merits this splendid tribute.

Having a family history of consumption, that most terrible of the ministers of Death, Senator Smith determined to do what he could to save others from the bitter sorrow that he had endured. Having conferred with members of the Medical profession Senator Smith concluded that much might be done to cure patients suffering with this disease by proper treatment, and to prevent in great measure its spread by taking patients away from home while under treatment.

Senator Smith, therefore, at the session of the Legislature in 1906, prepared a bill providing for a State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, carrying an appropriation of $165,000. A splendid site on the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Frederick county was procured, suitable buildings erected and a corps of physicians and nurses engaged who have made this the model institution of the kind in the United States. It has about 450 patients at a time. According to the report of Dr. Victor F. Cullen, the Superintendent, for the years 1918 and 1919, 1,746 patients were admitted, and a like number discharged, many of them restored to health and many more improved and that many homes relieved of the imminent danger of contagion and the spread of the disease. In the dozen years that this great institution has been in operation, thousands of patients, many of them little children, have been treated, many restored to their homes, cured or the disease arrested; and the State has an investment of about $750,000 there. Mothers have received their children, rescued from death, children have had mothers and fathers restored to them, and thousands have had occasion to thank Senator Smith as their benefactor. Such work as this should appeal especially to the women of Maryland. Senator Smith is still President of this Sanatorium, and his interest in it is unabated. At each Session of the Legislature he is on hand to urge the appropriation for proper support.

Does not a man who has done all this disinterested benefaction in his fellow citizens deserve their support? Is it not well for the State that this faithful public servant should be retained in the public service?

It pays to be little. Switzerland hasn't had a war in 400 years. (If that isn't right, somebody will let us know in the next mail.)

If jazz is music "gone bolshevik," one begins to understand the origin of the jazz oratory now so often indulged in by political speakers.

That proposal to reduce the cost of leather by tanning sharks' hides may sound to the manufacturers as if it might be something personal.

Liberty bond prices may continue to drop, but it is well enough to remember that if the government survives they will be redeemed at par.

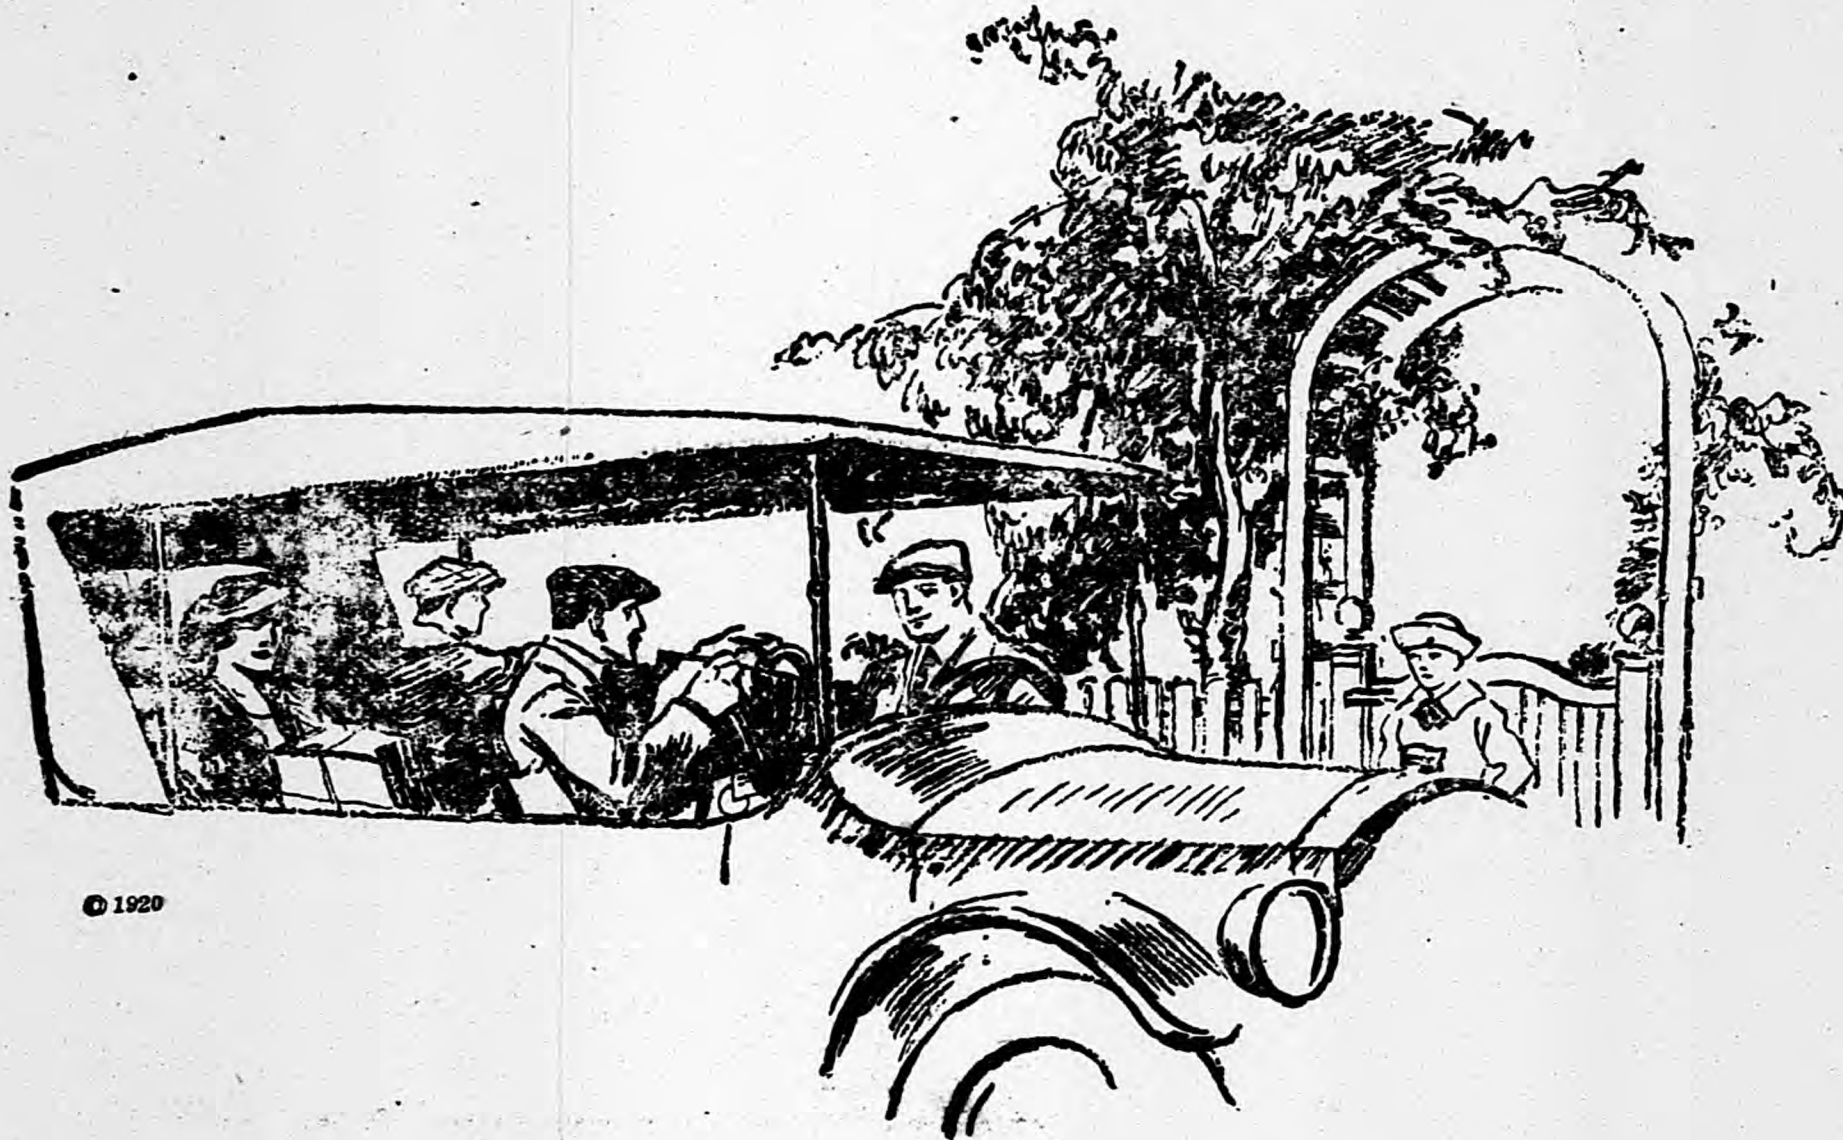

Chinese women are demanding representation in the government. It is a long stride from crippled feet to such a progressive step as this.

If the Turks destroy a few more American orphanages the French may have to do something to inspire Turkish respect for the American flag.

Jewelers report a heavy demand for diamonds. How else may one display the fact that he is a prosperous mechanic unless he wears gems on his fingers?

Paris streets have been named after Clemenceau, Pétain, Foch, Joffre and Poincaré, giving the Germans an opportunity to trample those names in the dust.

According to New York's spring fashion edict, men's coats will be worn "just a fraction longer," the fraction in many instances being about one-half year.

Nobody thinks anything now of going away on a trip

THE railroads were partly responsible. But it wasn't until the automobile reached its present state of development that the old barriers against travel were finally broken down.

II
More people own automobiles today than ever thought of owning a horse and buggy in the old days.

That's because the cost of motoring has been brought within reach of the average citizen's pocketbook.

We look upon it as part of our job to keep it there. If it weren't for the trade of the man with the medium priced car there wouldn't be much in this tire business for us.

III
The less a man has to spend on motoring, the more important it is that his tires should be of first quality.

Any tire is not good enough for the small car owner. He wants a tire that will give him just as much for his money in the small size as the big car man gets for his money in the large size.

IV
In thinking over what kind of tires we would represent in this community we tried to put ourselves in the place of the car owner. And we believe we hit it exactly when we selected U. S. Tires.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results everywhere—U. S. Royal Cord.

People who wonder why the government costs so much might reflect on the reasons why a public office is referred to as a "plum."

Everybody is perplexed and anxious in these times, except the office seekers, who will immediately solve all problems if elected.

The price of automobiles having been reduced, a lot of people will consider they are saving money when they borrow the funds with which to buy one.

A lot of the college boys know mighty little about history and science, but you can get an expert opinion from them on the styles of men's coats and shirts.

Anyway the young people are responding to the appeal to back up home enterprises by giving the ice cream joints and soda fountains a wonderful support.

FULFILL YOUR DUTY AS A CITIZEN

Today (October 5th), Saturday, October 9th and Tuesday, October 12th, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., are the days and hours set apart for the registration of voters, as provided by the General Assembly of Maryland. Tuesday, October 19th, is for revision only.

Heretofore it has been the duty of every naturalized male citizen of 21 years or older, to qualify as a voter by seeing to it that his name was placed on the registration list.

This year, for the first time in the history of the country, the same duty devolves upon the women of the nation. Whether the women of Maryland favor the equal suffrage amendment or not, whether they want to vote or not, the act of voting has now become, not alone a privilege, but a public duty.

Every woman in the country of legal age, who otherwise qualifies under the election laws, owes it to herself and her children to vote at the fast approaching November election.

It is natural to suppose that the Republican women will make every effort to vote. They, as a rule, were the advocates of woman suffrage. In the southern states, especially, the weight of their vote will be felt. There is a reason for this which needs no explanation.

It will be the natural inclination of the Democratic women, especially in the southern states, being opposed to suffrage from the first, to fail to qualify as voters by failing to register. They will feel a natural reluctance about mingling with all of those other women—but this is a reluctance which must be overcome if the country is to be saved for the Democratic party and its Jeffersonian creed.

The vote of each and every Democratic woman will be needed on November 2. The women of the country must again hear their country's call. And remember that you cannot answer that call on election day if you do not register as a voter on the days set apart for such registration.

To register is to take the first step in good citizenship. To vote on election day is the second step. The second step cannot be taken until the first is accomplished.

Bury your personal feelings about woman suffrage; bury your dislike for those with whom you will meet and mingle at the registration places and at the polls and as good citizens do your full duty when your country calls you, as it will call you on registration and election days.

THE BATTLE AGAINST HIGH PRICES

For about a year the producers of manufactured goods seemed to feel that the sky was the limit on prices and that the public would pay anything that could be asked.

Then something broke. What happened was due to retail trade. The home merchant everywhere could see that the high prices were drying up business. The retail trade demanded a return to normal. Merchants were warned that if they did not buy at the inflated figures they would be able to get nothing at all. But they took the risk and refused to pay figures beyond reason. The result is already a considerable recession of the price level.

The local merchant who lives close to his trade is the force that accomplished this result. Wherefore the public does well to stick to its own home town dealers who work faithfully for the protection of their customers.

There is no reason why producers should reduce their prices if they don't want to. They have a perfect right to hold their stock and pay interest and storage on it as long as they desire.

CONDITIONS ESSENTIALLY SOUND

Many people are depressed over the business situation. They read about scarce labor, insufficient transportation, high prices and think the country is on the verge of some great depression.

Yet trained business observers, the fellows who analyze a business situation the way a crop expert analyzes growing grain, seem to be well impressed by existing conditions. The summary recently issued of the report of 900 field agents for a Baltimore banking house, covering the whole country, expresses strong confidence that business will continue prosperous.

At almost any time you can find unfavorable factors. People who are naturally timorous always find bad spots. But the basic facts remain that the United States has wonderful crops and that the amount of unemployment is much below the average. Prosperity must exist with such conditions sound.

The newspaper publishers who don't dare raise prices to meet present conditions will also be afraid to ask what their plant is worth when they have to sell it for junk.

PURSuing THE BOMB PLOTTERS

It has been considered up to a recent time that the police forces knew pretty well who the dangerous anarchists were and that they could be headed off from committing any very terrible crimes. The recent terrible explosion in New York, coupled with other bomb attacks of recent history, shows that the most dangerous of these criminals have kept their tracks well covered.

There is a certain type of anarchists who do a lot of talking but are not dangerous. Those are the kind who are most familiar to the police. Their bark is worse than their bite. Many men who issue violent talk are mild in conduct and allow other people to do the dirty work of the movement.

The men who perform these deeds of horror are no fools and they lie very low. They must have a good knowledge of explosives and they may be experts in chemistry.

It will take the co-operation of a great number of people to round up these fellows. Police forces should be able to get some tips from known centers of the anarchist movement. It would greatly facilitate the work if people would keep their eyes open for suspicious acts and report them. As these people no doubt manufacture their own explosives it is a difficult matter to trace them through materials they are using. A close watch by dealers distributing materials out of which high explosives can be made might bring some results.

Every successful crime of this kind spreads the spirit of destruction. The people must take hold as a unit to crush this spirit of murder by wholesale. If civilization is to be maintained, those who are seeking to overturn it must be sternly dealt with.

Grip

Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason when grip is prevalent you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.

Wiggling And Wabbling

Senator Harding has wiggled and wabbling eight times on the League of Nations question, says Governor Cox.

1. He voted with the mild reservationists.
  2. Advocated the Lodge reservations.
  3. Voted for the Knox Resolution for a separate peace with Germany.
  4. Accepted the Republican platform, which declares that the League of Nations has signally failed.
  5. Proposed a separate peace with Germany and the "scrapping" of the League of Nations.
  6. Advocated the restoration of the dead Hague Tribunal.
  7. Says the League of Nations has passed beyond the possibility of restoration and has been abandoned by Europe.
  8. States that "amendment or revision or reconstruction" of the league is still among the possibilities.
- The Republican nominee has a difficult feat to perform. To ride into the Presidency on the shoulders of Johnson, and Borah, and Lodge, and Penrose, and Taft, and Wickersham, and Rockefeller, and Hoover requires that he ride eight horses at once.

Financial Loss Due To Colds

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.

Reduction in Prices of Ford Products

The War Is Over and War Prices Must Go

Effective at once Ford Cars and Trucks and Tractors sold F. O. B. Detroit at the following prices:

Touring, regular	$440.00
Touring, with starter	510.00
Runabout, regular	395.00
Runabout, with starter	465.00
Chassis, regular	360.00
Coupe, with starter and Dem.	745.00
Sedan, with starter and Dem.	795.00
Truck, with pneumatic tires	545.00
Tractor	790.00

The Ford Motor Company makes this reduction in the face of the fact that they have on hand immediate orders for one hundred forty-six thousand sixty-five cars and tractors. The company will suffer a temporary loss while using up the material bought at high prices. They are willing to make the sacrifice in order to bring business back to a going condition as quickly as possible and maintain the momentum of the buying power of the country. Henry Ford says, "The war is over and it is time war prices were over. There is no sense or wisdom in trying to maintain an artificial standard of values. For the best interests of all it is time a real practical effort was made to bring the business of the country and the life of the country down to regular pre-war standards."

We are at your command with regular Ford efficiency in service and eagerness to fill your orders.

CARNIVAL OF JOY

Turkish Capital the Most "Wide Open" of Cities.

Mainly Under Allied Control, There is No Interference With Any Form of Revelry That Could Be Thought Of.

Constantinople now combines all the frenzy of a new mining camp and a world seaport. It's "the end of the trail" for all the Balkan states and everything west of Suez on the Mediterranean.

Caucasian oil men, Donetz Basin miners, Anatolian sheep and cattle kings, Greek war millionaires and Syrian merchants rush to Constantinople to pop champagne in proof of their success. Soldiers and sailors of half a dozen nations swell the population and add to the cosmopolitan aspect of the streets and pleasure resorts.

Under allied occupation the city has become a wilder place than it was under the Turks. There are no civil courts. None of the allies desire to assume responsibility for reforms other than are necessary to safeguard life. Italian, French and British troops co-operate with the Turkish gendarmerie in keeping order. But everybody's job is nobody's job. Consequently Constantinople is a very wide-open town. Midnight closing is enforced pretty generally, but until that hour there is little interference with dance halls, gambling dives and red-light districts unless murder is committed.

Leadville and Goldfield in their disreputable days never offered anything wilder than certain sections of Constantinople, where jazz bands vie with Neapolitan orchestras and tsigane singers in their efforts to attract wayfarers into the beer tunnels and dance halls filled to overflowing with the painted women of many nationalities.

Half a dozen summer gardens offer raudiville programs which attract thousands of persons every night who seem to have far more interest in the drinks and restless crowds than in the Russian prima donnas and bare-legged dancers whose art is usually as meager as their attire. Turks, Arabs, Bedouins, Egyptians and Assyrians, gorgeously clad in native costumes, elbow their way among Cosacks and Georgians whose uniforms are far more brilliant than their recent military achievements.

Coal-black French colonials, resplendent in red fezzes and green khaki, mingle with Sikhs and Punjabi, whose long hair and many-colored headresses are wrapped in somber brown. Civilians, soldiers and sailors from all parts of the world are hopelessly jumbled together in Constantinople crowds and are so busy looking at each other that tenors from the Petrograd opera, naughty French singers from Montmartre and Austrian strong-jawed ladies claim but slight attention.

Constantinople itself is a grand pageant every day. Its main thoroughfare, Rue Grand Pera, is more fascinating than any scene which producers ever can hope to stage. Camel-drivers lead their patient trains, burdened with charcoal, through the maze of street cars, shrieking army motor cars and carriages, piloted over the rough paving at breakneck speed by Turkish hostlers who crack their whips and shout constantly at high pitch to pedestrians who venture off the narrow sidewalks.

Turks mounted on tiny donkeys move indifferently through this maelstrom. Occasionally Turkish peasants drive a flock of sheep or turkeys into this swirl of traffic and serene oxen draw heavy carts along at a pace so slow that drivers of military camions curse them in 10 languages.

The narrow, crooked streets of Constantinople are ill-suited to motor traffic and the slow-going fatalistic Turk is little inclined to change his pace. Consequently there are many accidents and the indifference with which foreign military cars are driven has done much to intensify Turkish hatred of foreigners.

Few American Linguists.
According to the Interchurch World movement, thirty-two different languages besides English are spoken in New York city by some 1,700,000 people; but, in spite of our polyglot city populations, native Americans are seldom gifted as linguists. The lines of class distinction in America, although elastic, are more of a handicap in that respect than they are in Europe. The European who lives near an international boundary comes frequently into contact with foreigners of his own social and intellectual interests, but most Americans see little of the foreigners among our people and neither inherit nor get by constant practice a facility in using other tongues. — Youth's Companion.

Gathering Up the Wreckage.
The uprising of wrecking companies since the war is one of the curiosities of the time. These concerns buy anything that is discarded for the purposes for which it was constructed, from a small shack to a battleship or a locomotive or even an entire railroad. Companies which conduct such business on a large scale are said to make immense profits and there is just sufficient element of chance to make it more or less exciting. It is simply the business of the old junk man glorified and enlarged in a way to produce fortunes in the reclaiming of waste material and the salvaging of what is considered valueless.

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or other car taking these sizes, go to your nearest Service Station for Goodyear Tires—get exceptional mileage at very low cost.

STRANGE TO WESTERN EYES

Habits and Customs of "Hermit Kingdom" of Korea Hard for Travelers to Understand.

Out into the Yellow sea and the Eastern sea juts a peninsula of more than 84,000 square miles. It is an extension of Manchuria, and for centuries was under the suzerainty of China.

In old atlases the peninsula is called Korea. For years it was known as "The Hermit Kingdom." For after the China-Japanese war the land became an independent kingdom, although even then Japan claimed jurisdiction over the country. But Korea enjoyed her freedom only a short time as an independent nation.

It was on August 29, 1918, that Japan formally annexed Korea, as an integral part of the kingdom. The old name was changed to Chosen. In Japanese this name is divided into two syllables—Cho Sen. This means "The Land of the Morning Calm."

Perhaps no other name would better suit the land which was once called the Hermit kingdom, for its people are indeed very calm. So calm have they been considered by Japan that it isn't generally known there was some opposition to the annexation of the kingdom, and that a republic was formed and a president elected. The president, it is said, was compelled to flee the country.

Many are the strange customs of this old little land. At one time the king ordered all men to wear broad-brimmed hats made of a material so brittle the men couldn't "get their heads together" without nicking their hats. And so, the story runs conspiracy was prevented.

But the mileposts of Chosen are not made of brittle material. They are painstakingly hewn out of wood, and are set up along the highways, carved with Chosen characters, which give the traveler the information he requires for a safe journey.

To the eyes of many a western traveler these mileposts look more like images intended to frighten than soothingly to inform. Of course, the particular demon that should be placed in each spot is properly placed by the posts. And so these Chosen mileposts serve the double purpose of informing human travelers and warning off those demons who might trouble the highway. — Temple Manning in Columbus Dispatch.

China's Needs Are Great.
Sydney Greenlee writes in the World's Work:

China needs assistance. Railroads are the world's salvation and China's sorrow. But for the lack of railroads, China would today be the most powerful nation on earth—financially and politically. And the fact that her railroads are short while those of other countries are long makes her a prey to those tentacles of trade against which she is helpless. China has today only about 8,500 miles of railroad; she needs 100,000. She who built the rambling walls has still only foot-paths. She needs 100,000 miles of highway. Her canals, which a thousand years ago kept the country open to trade and partially free from famine have fallen into disrepair. She needs telegraphs, telephones, wireless. If only the money she borrowed went into such enterprises China would repay the world a thousand fold.

Poison Gas for Whales.
A campaign against the Beluga or white whale was recently inaugurated from Douarnenez to Concarneau, in Brittany, by the French Oceanograph society, in which nets and poison tubes were used.

The Beluga, pest of the fisherman, is generally cream white in color, feeds mainly on marine fish and commits ravages among the shoals. The average length of the adult male is about 18 or 20 feet.

To hunt down the white whale a net 1,100 yards long was set up at Douarnenez, while another was placed in a suitable position by the fishermen at Concarneau. Furthermore, the skippers of the sardine boats used 4,000 Yves Delage poison tubes against the Belugas.

Reveals Sea's Bottom.
A two-inch section of sea bottom, with its tiny animal and plant life, magnified 15,000 times, has been reproduced in glass and wax at the American Museum of Natural History at New York.

It is called the Bryozoa group, taking its name from the minute sea animals popularly called sea mats and sea mosses, that it depicts.

Their shells are incrustated on seaweeds, pebbles and the shells of larger animals, and are said to be extremely beautiful in their intricate form and coloring. The "plumed worm," with its gay colors and other strange microscopic creatures, of which the average person seldom dreams, complete the group.

Possibilities Here.

An officer of the British army, Maj. Frederick de T. Craven, would not only increase the kinds and quality of game animals in the United States, but would add humor to sport. He suggests that the yak be transplanted from the Himalayas to the Rocky mountains, and that river buck, wart hogs and swamp hogs be brought from Africa and released in the swamps of Mississippi and Louisiana. The water buffalo of the Orient, he thinks, would also thrive there. He would stock regions that are now useless with game animals of considerable value. But think of the fun that the newspapers would have with the yak and the wart hog!—Youth's Companion.

Torpid Liver

Black-Draught "has no equal for headache, sour stomach, torpid liver and feverish colds." declares Mrs. Annie Whitmore, of Gate City, Va. "It is easy to take and does not gripe, as a lot of medicines do," she adds. "It is good to take in a hot tea for colds, or can be taken in a dry powder. I can't say enough for Black-Draught and the sickness it has saved us."

"It is splendid for our stomach, a bad taste in the mouth or torpid liver. I keep it all the time, use it with the children and feel it has saved us many dollars in doctor bills and many days in bed."

A WORD WITH WOMEN

Valuable Advice For Princess Anne Readers

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, blue, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow.

Then help the weakened kidneys. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed at home—Read this Princess Anne woman's convincing statement:

Mrs. Earl Waller, 109 Beckford avenue, says: "I was troubled with a very severe backache. At times I had dizzy spells and little black spots flashed in front of my eyes. I seemed to ache all over and certainly was miserable until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. I got this fine medicine at Smith & Co's. drug store, and after using two boxes, I was cured of the trouble."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Waller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

26,500,000 Women May Vote

Figures compiled by the Government of women in the United States over 21 years is 28,035,000, of whom approximately 26,500,000 are eligible to vote in November.

This estimate makes allowance for alien women and others ineligible to vote for various reasons.

American women married to aliens are not eligible to vote, but foreign-born women married to American citizens or whose fathers have become American citizens are entitled to the ballot without naturalization proceedings.

The number of eligible male voters in the United States this year has not been determined. Based on an estimated population of 105,000,000, the Census Bureau figured there are now 34,807,000 men in the United States over 21, of whom probably 31,500,000 would be entitled to vote in November.

The first annual field meeting of the Somerset County Agricultural Association was held last Thursday at "Cherry Grove," the farm of Mr. F. M. Cline, on the road leading to Revell's Neck, near Princess Anne. It was the largest farmers' meeting ever held in Somerset county and was attended by about 800 farmers from all sections of this county, as well as from adjoining counties and the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

The program opened in the morning with a tractor demonstration in plowing and disking. The following tractors were operated: The Moline, Fordson, Samson, Wallis, Cietrac, Happy Farmer, Frick and Midwest Utilitor.

Assistant State Forester J. A. Cope conducted a large party of farmers and lumbermen to a nearby pine woods, where he showed the proper method to be employed in thinning trees and in handling and caring for farm wood lots.

Mr. C. E. Holman, secretary of the National Board of Farm Organization, and Dr. A. F. Woods, president of the University of Maryland, and Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension, made addresses in which they emphasized the importance of forming co-operative associations among the farmers and of the vast benefit to be derived from co-operative marketing of farm crops. Mr. W. S. Wright made an appeal for the Near East relief fund.

The meeting was held under the direction of County Agent C. Z. Keller, and Mr. Charles C. Gelder, president of the Somerset County Association and a member of the Maryland Board of Agriculture, was chairman of the meeting.

Her remains were sent to Baltimore last Thursday morning and funeral services were held at the home of her son, Mr. John O. Maddox, on Thursday afternoon. Interment was in Mount Olive Cemetery, that city.

Mrs. Maddox is survived by one son, Mr. John Oscar Maddox, and one daughter, Mrs. Minnie Chaney, of Baltimore. She is also survived by one brother, Mr. Wm. J. Brown, of this town, and three sisters, Mrs. Nancy Johnson, Mrs. Dora Cantwell and Mrs. Mary E. Hayman.

The feature of the meeting was an address by Dr. Bridges, who represents the Maryland Tuberculosis Society. His subject was the early diagnosis of tuberculosis. Dr. Bridges complimented the Somerset Society upon its life and energy.

After the meeting the visiting members were guests of Princess Anne physicians at a dinner at the Washington Hotel.

They serve their own ends—hats and shoes.

CENSUS FIGURES FOR MARYLAND

Decrease Of 1,015 Farms During The Last Ten Years

The number of farms in the United States, given in detail by states and counties, was announced last Thursday by the Census Bureau as 6,459,998, as compared with 6,861,502 in 1910, and 7,371,372, 20 years ago. The per cent. of increase for 1920 over 1910, was 1.5.

The State of Maryland is shown to have had 47,908 farms in 1920. In 1910 the State had 48,923, and in 1900 there was 46,012. The last decade, therefore, shows a decrease and indicates that some of the farming lands have been abandoned or turned into building lots and villages.

Here is the number of farms by counties in Maryland, given by the Census Bureau for 1920 and 1910.

County	1920	1910
State totals	47,908	48,923
Allegany	990	1,023
Anne Arundel	1,965	2,038
Baltimore	3,587	4,178
Baltimore city	331	23
Calvert	1,130	1,080
Caroline	2,071	2,126
Carroll	3,518	3,484
Cecil	1,740	1,717
Charles	1,965	1,623
Dorchester	2,019	2,214
Frederick	3,817	3,804
Garrett	1,810	2,076
Harford	2,369	2,512
Howard	1,297	1,335
Kent	1,082	1,093
Montgomery	2,145	2,442
Prince Georges	2,457	2,228
Queen Annes	1,409	1,421
St. Marys	1,790	1,625
Somerset	1,820	1,986
Talbot	1,205	1,297
Washington	2,544	2,466
Wicomico	2,504	2,678
Worcester	2,334	2,344

Why so many fewer farms are in operation in this State than in 1910 is not explained. There was an increase of 2,911 farms in the decade from 1900 to 1910.

It is explained that "farm" for census purposes is all the land which is directly farmed by one person, either by his own labor alone or with the assistance of members of his household or hired men. When a landowner has one or more tenants, renters, croppers or managers, the land operated by each is considered as "farm."

Woman's Meeting Well Attended

A very interesting meeting was held in the Auditorium Monday night of last week for the purpose of forming an organization of the white women voters of East and West Princess Anne districts. This meeting was unique, as it was the first of its kind ever held in town—conducted entirely by and for women voters. Mrs. T. J. Smith presided.

Committees were appointed to cover the whole territory, whose duties were to urge friends and neighbors to register in order to take an active part in the coming election. Committees were also appointed to canvass the country districts.

A large number of those present had already registered and others signified their intention of doing so. Although the majority of those present were opposed to woman suffrage, they fully realize the gravity of the present situation and are energetically putting their shoulders to the wheel in a way that cannot be criticised.

The women's meeting held in Mt. Vernon last Friday night to organize for registration was largely attended. Mrs. Susie E. Gladden was made chairman of the meeting and addresses were made by Mrs. T. J. Smith and Col. Henry J. Waters, of Princess Anne.

Democratic Meetings Next Saturday

The campaign will be opened next Saturday, October 16th, in Somerset county, when two Democratic mass-meetings will be held and the issues of the campaign discussed by some of the most prominent public speakers of the State.

The first meeting will be held in the Auditorium, Princess Anne, at 8 o'clock in the afternoon, and the second meeting at Crisfield at 7.30 o'clock at night. The ladies are especially invited to attend both of these meetings, which will be addressed by Hon. Howard Bryant, of Baltimore; Hon. T. Allan Goldsborough, candidate for Congress; Major E. Brooke Lee, Comptroller of the Treasury, and other prominent speakers.

Get Your Money Ready For Fire Engine

At the citizens' meeting, held in the Auditorium last Wednesday evening, it was determined to proceed with the collection of funds in order that Princess Anne may be equipped with proper fire-fighting apparatus.

A majority of the residents of the town and community have subscribed to this cause, and they and all the residents will now be waited on by committees to collect. A generous and prompt response is desired and expected for this good cause.

SOMERSET PLANS WAR MEMORIAL

Columns of Bridge in Princess Anne To Bear Names of Service Men

Prominent citizens of Princess Anne and Senator John B. Robins, Mayor Edward P. Wyatt and the city council of Crisfield held a meeting in the court house Monday afternoon of last week to formulate plans for the erection of a memorial to the men from Somerset county, who were in any branch of military service during the World War.

A committee composed of a representative from each election precinct in the county was appointed to meet on Tuesday to perfect plans for the erection of the memorial. At this meeting it was proposed to hold the meeting for the above purpose at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, in Crisfield, on Saturday, October 16th, at 10.30 o'clock a. m. The members of the general committee are:

George W. Maslin, chairman, of Princess Anne.

Judge Robert F. Duer, of West Princess Anne district.

William S. Bennett, of St. Peter's district.

I. Henry Hall, of Brinkley's district, precinct No. 1. M. F. Carver, of Brinkley's district, precinct No. 2.

Bernard C. Dryden, of Dublin district.

Jefferson D. Webster, of Mt. Vernon district.

Robert H. Jones, of Fairmount district.

Dr. R. R. Norris, of Crisfield district, precinct No. 1. H. H. Matthews, of Crisfield district, precinct No. 2.

William L. Whittington, of Lawson's district.

W. Roland Parks, of Tangier district.

John Ross Corbin, of Smith's Island district.

Ernest P. Kelley, of Dames Quarter district.

Dr. S. P. Fuller, of Asbury district.

E. Dennett Long, of Westover district.

Arthur Andrews, of Deal's Island district.

Joshua W. Miles, of East Princess Anne district.

The memorial is to be erected in connection with the bridge to be constructed over the Manokin river at the north end of Main street, Princess Anne. This location is at the entrance to the county seat and is on the main State highway leading through the county. The State Road Commission is to erect a bridge over the Manokin river in connection with the building of a State road through the town of Princess Anne.

The plan for the construction of the memorial in connection with the erection of the bridge was first taken up with the State Roads Commission by Messrs. Joshua W. Miles and George W. Maslin some weeks ago. The Commission heartily approved of the plan and had prepared a plan of the bridge with the memorial columns thereon, which were shown at the meeting.

The central idea of the memorial plan is the erection of our large columns at the bridge. Each column is to have thereon four bronze tablets making 16 bronze tablets in all, and upon these tablets is to be engraved the names of the 900 men from Somerset county who were in military service. Somerset county is to bear the cost of the erection of the memorial and the plan is to raise the fund entirely by popular subscription among the 5,000 to 6,000 families in the county.

Cox Asks Women To Support League

Governor James M. Cox at a meeting held in his home town—Dayton, Ohio—Monday of last week, the Democratic Presidential candidate tells his feminine hearers they are "Leaders of Progress."

In his address to a body of women the Governor went into considerable detail why women should support the League cause, asserting that throughout the years they have been "the leaders of progress in the world" and declaring that the wrath of the women who were made to suffer in the war will pursue Franz Josef, William Hohenzollern and Nicholas Romanoff "through all eternity."

Though asserting that the monetary cost of the war, directly and indirectly, was $300,000,000,000, it was the women, Governor Cox declared, who know what the war really cost, "for they paid the price in personal suffering to provide the rulers of the earth with 10,000,000 men who were thrown into the gauges of battle to placate the anger of the gods of war."

The League, Governor Cox said, not only will prevent war, which he asserted is its primary purpose, but also will promote progress, and will set up or itself become a clearing-house for international justice and social service.

Many a man has sustained a compound fracture of the morals from slipping on his good intentions.

The Census Bureau to date has spent 40 weeks in supervising the enumeration and tabulation of the country's millions. On January 1st, this year, 85,000 enumerators began counting the men, women and children of the country and collecting certain information concerning the nation's resources. Under the direction of Sam L. Rogers, chief of the Census Bureau, enumerators collected data on farms, manufactures, forest and oil production, and it is this work which will occupy the attention of the Bureau from now on. A large force of statisticians and clerks will be retained to complete it.

"Cottage Grove" Farm At Public Sale

A real estate sale of more than passing interest to the people of this section will be held on next Saturday afternoon, October 16th, between Westover and Pocomoke City, when the well-known "Cottage Grove" farm, which has been divided into several 60-acre farms, will be sold at public auction. The sale will be conducted by the famous Dixie Twin auctioneers.

The "Cottage Grove Farm" is on the stone road between Westover and Pocomoke City, about five miles from the latter place, and was one of the prized possessions of the late Frank Barnes, one of the leading farmers in Somerset county in his day. It was recently purchased by Messrs. Lorie C. Quinn, Jr., and H. Gordon Mears, of Crisfield, who have had it divided into 60-acre farms. One farm is improved by a comfortable dwelling, barns, etc., and others of the farms are improved by large barns, granaries and other commodious out-buildings. There is a small tract of timber land with each farm.

"Cottage Grove Farm" has always been recognized as high-grade productive land and is especially adapted to strawberries and potatoes, as well as other trucks. It is expected that a large crowd from many sections of the lower Eastern Shore will be attracted to the sale. See advertisement on our 8th page.

Episcopal Clergy Plan For Drive

Members of the clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church from all parts of Maryland met last Tuesday at Church Home and Infirmary, Baltimore, to discuss plans for the drive for $600,000 that will be started on October 15th. Addresses were made by Edward Guest Gibson, secretary of the board of trustees; former Gov. Phillips Lee Goldsborough, chairman of the campaign committee; Bayard M. Hedrick, associate campaign director, and the Rev. Dr. Arthur Chilton Powell.

The Church Home and Infirmary offers free treatment to all members of the Episcopal clergy and special rates to clergymen of other denominations.

Women of Somerset

Bear in mind that to-day, October 12th, is the last Registration Day. Go to the polling place in your district and put yourself in position to exercise the right of suffrage for the first time in a great national election. Questions of overwhelming importance are at issue. Weigh carefully the issues to be determined. Study the covenant of the League of Nations framed to prevent conscription, militarism and war. The Republican party opposes this covenant. The Democratic party insists it is imperatively demanded in the interest of humanity; that the way to escape another world war is to join with other nations in a League to make war impossible.

Women of Somerset, register today, affiliate with the Democratic party and vote the Democratic ticket in November.

HOUSE MAY GAIN 50 NEW SEATS

South And Middle West Profit More Than Atlantic Coast States

Examination of the final census figures of the country indicates that the West and South proportionately will gain more in a political way than the East or Middle West through increased membership in the House of Representatives, more votes in the electoral college and larger delegations to the national political conventions.

As a result of the increase of 13,710,842 in population during the last ten years, 50 new seats must be added to the House to prevent any State from losing any part of its present representation. Should the present membership of 435 be left unchanged by increasing the basis of apportionment there will have to be a transfer of 13 seats, now held by 12 States, to nine other States. For the last half century the precedent has been to increase the size of the House so as to prevent loss of existing representation by any State. As a result, the House has grown from 243 to 435 members with only three States, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, losing one member each in the last 50 years.

If this precedent is followed this year five additional representatives' seats must be given to California, four each for New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan; three to Illinois and Texas, two to Massachusetts, New Jersey and North Carolina, and one each to Alabama, Arizona, Connecticut, Georgia, Maryland, Montana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Virginia, Arkansas and Minnesota.

While the present basis of apportionment is 211,877 inhabitants or its major fraction to the Congressional district, Congress can increase the basis to 219,427 without causing any loss. To advance beyond the latter figure will mean that Maine would lose one seat, with the net result of 48 new seats in Congress.

Elder Miller Attracting Large Crowds

Elder D. L. Miller, of Illinois, has attracted large crowds at the Church of the Brethren during the past week. He is a forceful speaker and having travelled extensively in the lands of which he speaks is able to present the truths of the Bible in a masterful manner. One feature which attracted much attention was the exhibition of many relics and curios from many of the countries he has visited, most of them from Palestine. All this week he will preach each evening at 7.30, and on Sunday evening, October 17th, the members of the church will hold a love-feast at the church when they will wash feet, eat the Lord's Supper and eat and drink the communion. The public is cordially invited to attend all services.

Special Picture At Auditorium

Tonight two well known and highly popular screen stars will be seen in a special picture entitled "Mother I Need You," at the Auditorium. Edward Coxen and Enid Markey will portray the leading roles. It is a story of Eve and her modern sister, and has played to record breaking houses all over the country. The admission price will be 33 and 32 cents for Tuesday night, as this picture is presented under the direction of professional movie men.

Even neatness may be overdone. The woman who is always cleaning house can't expect to keep her husband home.

THE STERLING HOME

By IDA W. GOULD.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Her name was Zarella How, and she was neither young nor pretty. Her dishevelled hair and ink-stained fingers were not attractive. Over her desk hung a motto, "Nothing worth winning except by hard work."

The fruits of this woman's work surrounded her. A bust of Clitelle, earned by the sale of "The Sailor's Revenge," stood near the set of Dickens, resulting from the "Midnight Mystery." Once her energy slackened, then she let her eyes refresh themselves with the sight of her real antique prayer rug, bought by the sale of "Another's Child." Over the piano hung a well-earned water color, one made possible for her by selling "The Double Murder." Upon the mahogany table were fine bits of pottery. The very robe Zarella worked in was a Japanese kimono, delicately embroidered in artistic fashion. That resulted from "A Temperance Tale."

With splendid health and a small income from investments, she lived in a top room of a house that sheltered many other business women. Her courage was supreme; no amount of rejected manuscripts restrained her assiduity.

As early dawn glimmered, the woman flung her last production aside, put out the light, and slept till noon. Every afternoon she sent the work off to the editors of a limerick contest which had been running some weeks. She aspired to build a small home like one illustrated in "Sterling Homes."

A faint odor of heliotrope pervaded all her belongings. In her plan of a house a bed of heliotrope plants just outside her workroom was indicated. Heliotrope was her mother's best-loved flower. Zarella always bought heliotrope perfume instead of the more common violet.

She remembered her mother, working at the common tasks in the old homestead, and a saying of her mother's brought the most vivid and tender memories to her.

"Always keep something sweet smelling that grows about you, to take your mind off your drudgery."

She would have a Dutch colonial home, box trees (like prim old maids) on each side of the brick wall. She would have plenty of heliotrope plants in her home. She would have a brass knocker on her front door, a lilac bush, a shelf for pitchers, and a cupboard like one described in a New England story of long ago. There must be a high shelf with brass candlesticks, and a banjo clock. Outside, she desired a duck pond and a few weeping willows gracefully reflected in the small sheet of water. She knew she could gather fresh material for more stories in such surroundings. She pictured herself lying in the hammock, looking at the fleecy shapes above her, inhaling perfume from her flower beds.

She would paint her house white, with green blinds. She loved glistening white paint.

She remembered when her mother had taken her to visit a sea captain's wife in Newburyport.

The sea captain had an absolute passion for white paint. How kind everyone had been there. Perhaps she, Zarella How, might pass along those same happy memories to some little girl, when she really owned her Sterling home.

The captain had given her a bunch of catnip and a shell at parting. The shell still did duty as a paper weight. The catnip had long ago been consumed by cats long since deceased.

Zarella's musings were interrupted by a knock, followed by the entrance of the top floor matron:

"Good evening, Miss How. A speshull d'livery for yer, just come; boy's wait-in."

Zarella broke the seal, read the contents of the letter, exclaiming in a delighted cry to the astonished listener:

"Mary, hear this; no, first tell the boy, here's the receipt for the letter."

"No bad news, miss."

"Good—good—nothing like it ever came my way; hurry, then come back, but don't tell anyone."

Mary made haste and was soon seated admiringly feasting her eyes on the beauty of the kimono.

"Listen, Mary."

"Madam—Enclosed find our check for five thousand dollars."

"You are winner, not for the cleverness of your last lines, but for the sustained interest shown. Out of 20,000 answers yours are noted for general merit, but principally for being the only contestant sending an answer every day since the contest began."

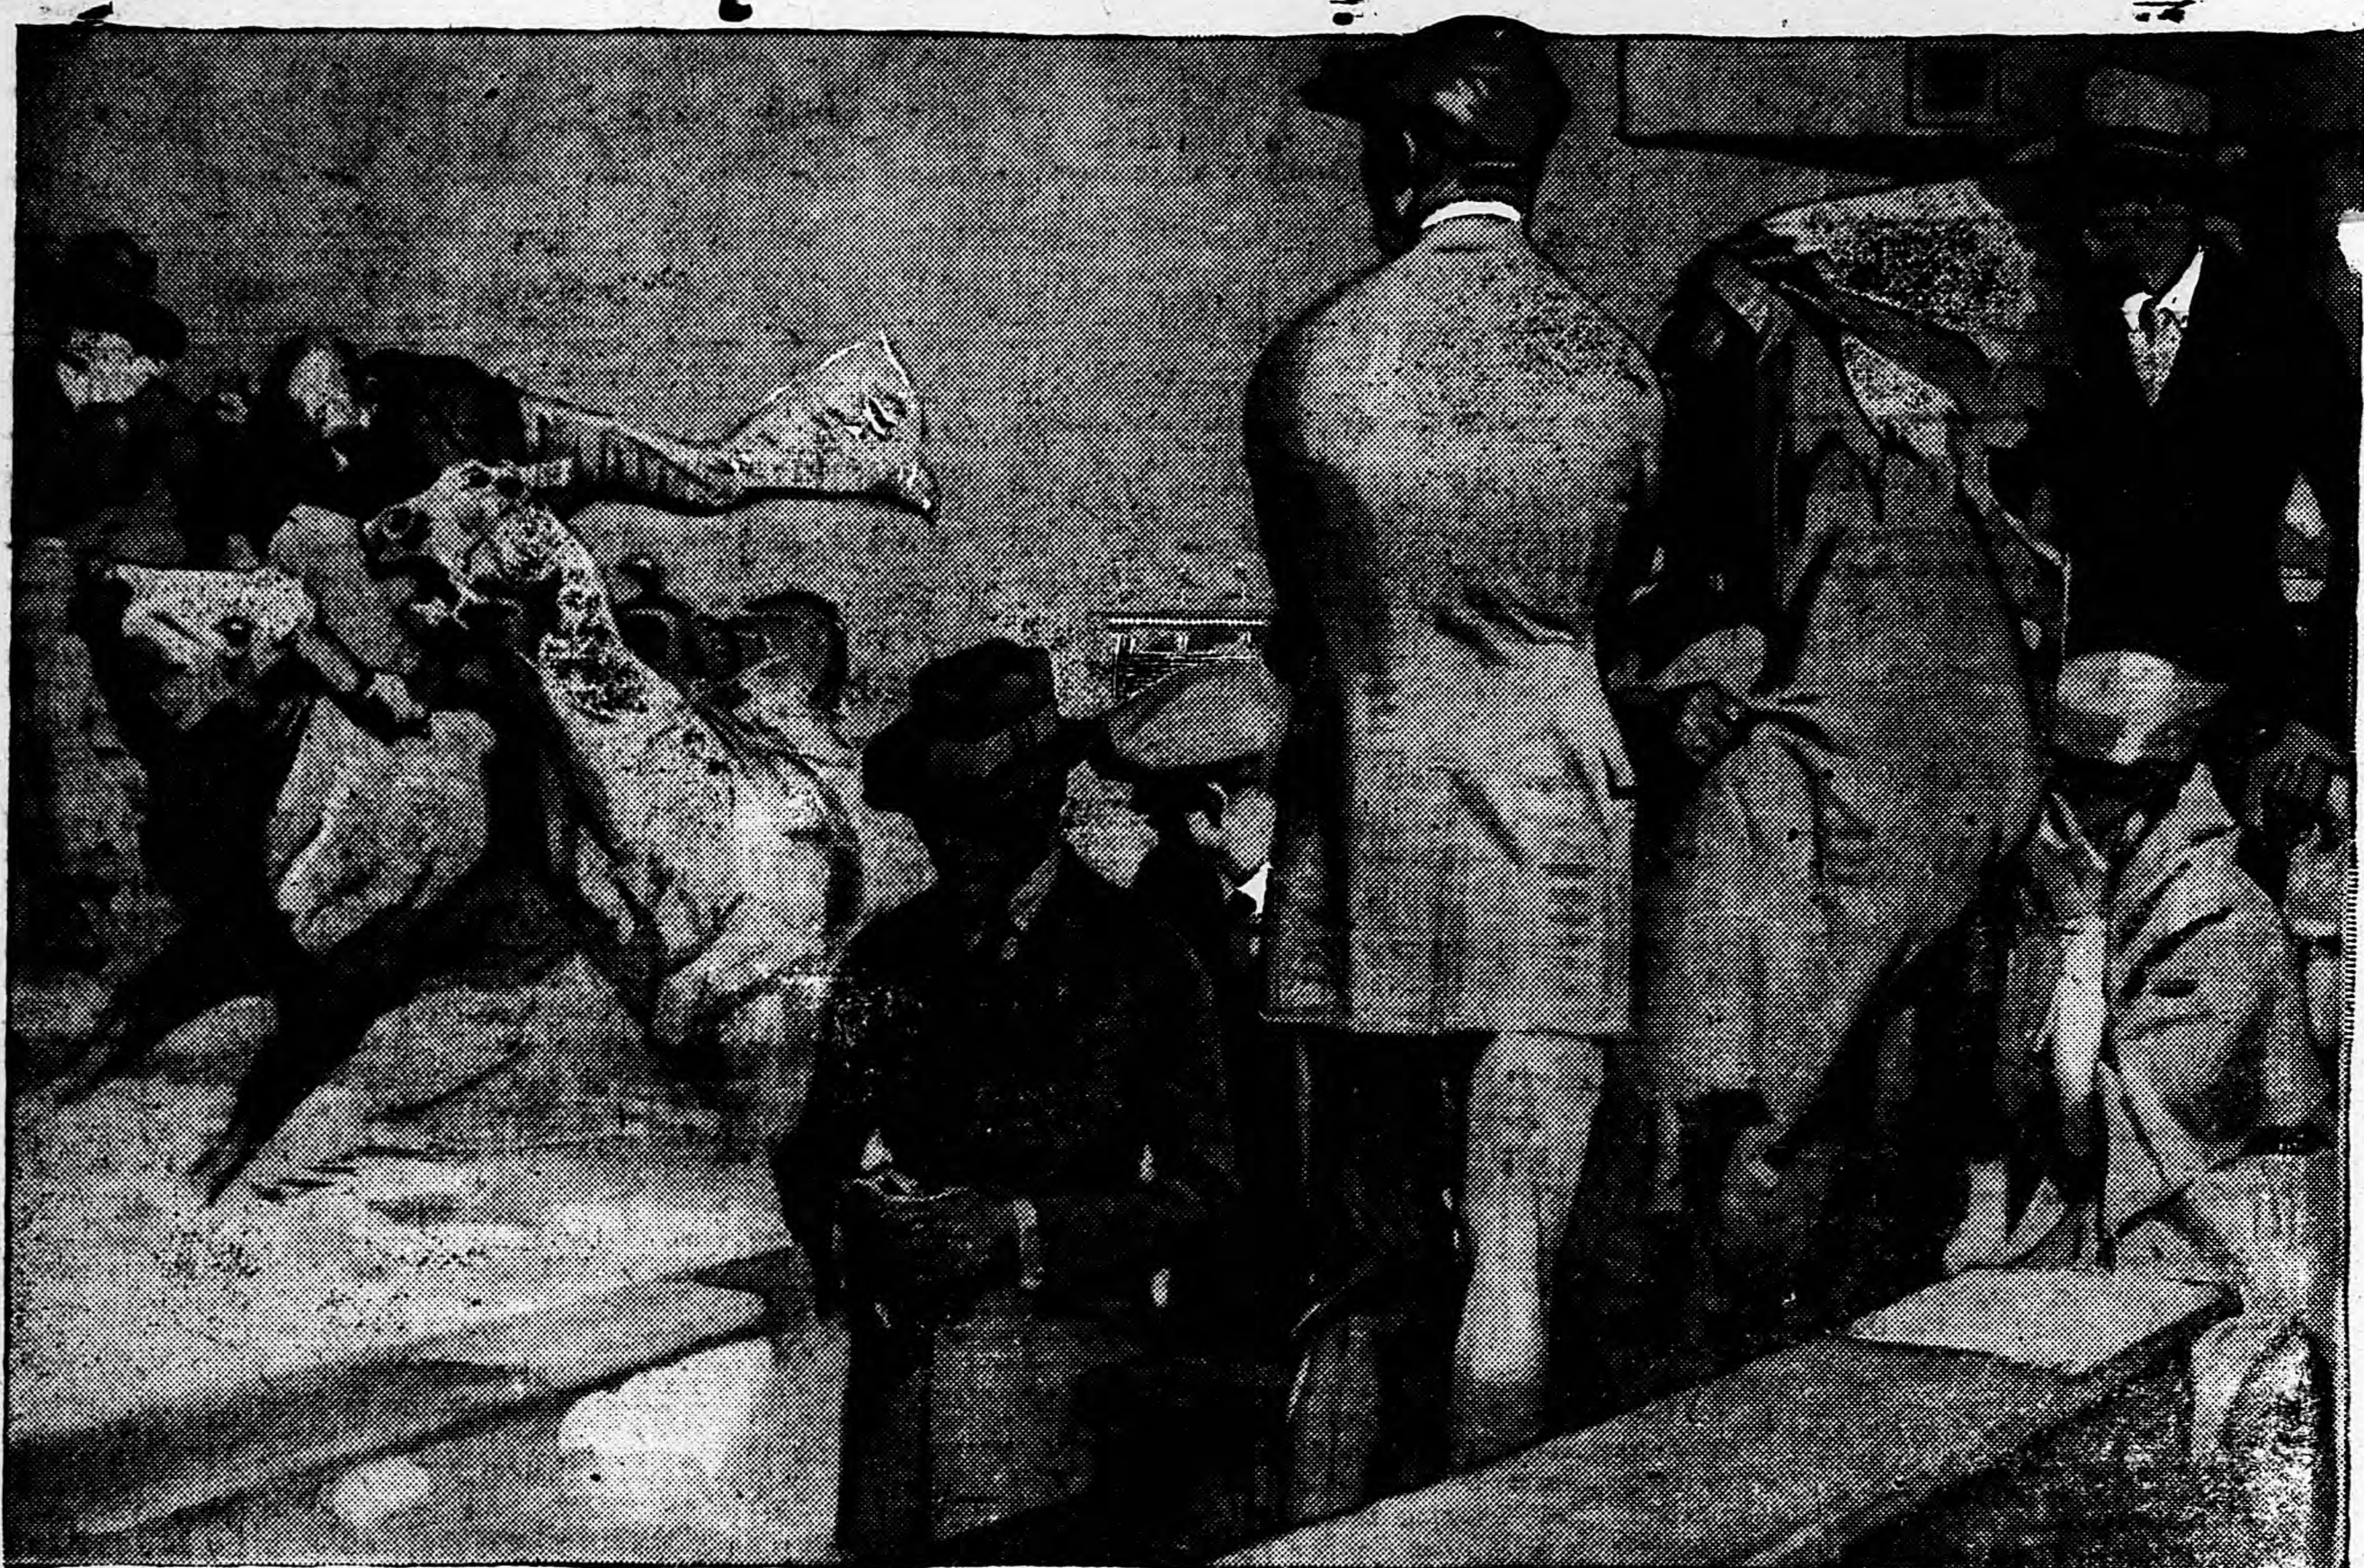

"I. Kauff, Editor, The Searchlight."

"Glory be to God, miss, is it writing brought yer that?"

"Yes, Mary, and I'm going to get me a white Sterling Home with green blinds with the money."

Farmers Live Longer.

This, on the authority of the bureau of labor, which has been compiling statistics on the subject. Undoubtedly they do. An open-air life, coupled with fairly regular hours, sufficient food and sleep, and lack of opportunities for some of the more wasteful forms of diversion, must needs conduce to longevity. The farmer reaps the reward of this virtue, even if the virtue be only that of necessity. Counterbalancing factors will be found in faulty food combinations, frequent exposure to cold and wet, and long spells of strenuous physical exertion. Rheumatism is distinctly a farmer's ailment.

WHY

Average Person's Lungs Are Seldom Filled

Among the first things that we learn from a good singing teacher is that we have been using about one-half or perhaps only one-third of our available lung capacity, leaving the balance untouched. The average person does not know anything about the bottom half of his lungs—he might as well not have any bottom half. If you tell him to take a deep breath, he starts, as usual, to fill his lungs from the top, and his deep breath is no deeper than his shallow one; it merely involves a lot of effort for substantially the same result. The trained singer or athlete, on the other hand, when about to indulge in a deep breath, builds up the mass of air in his lungs more or less like a pyramid. He starts at the bottom and works up; the central and upper regions of his lungs are not inflated until the bottom is blown up to the limit.

A New York singing teacher has invented a little device for recording lung capacity which emphasizes the difference between the right and the wrong ways of obtaining this capacity. Instead of interesting himself in the effects of expansion upon the subject's chest measure, he turns his attention to the waist, and measures the extent to which a filling of the lungs dilates this. More strictly, of course, this little instrument does not measure lung capacity itself but rather the extent to which the full potential lung capacity is being utilized. Try it out yourself; if you did not know it before, you will be surprised to see how greatly you can distend your sub-diaphragm by drawing in all the air you can hold.

WHERE SCIENCE STOPS SHORT

Why It Will Always Be Impossible to Square the Circle With Perfect Accuracy.

To a correspondent who suggests an experimental method of squaring the circle, the editor of the Scientific American replies that the method seems correct, but adds:

"Your results will, however, be no more accurate than your ability to construct squares and circles and to measure lines and angles. This does not go much beyond a ten-thousandth of an inch. This may be quite sufficient for the engineer, but it is not for the mathematician. He demands absolute accuracy. In 1882 it was proved by Lindemann that it was impossible to find the side of a square which was equal to a given circle. If this is so, all the other figures which you construct are equally impossible of exact determination. You cannot make a perfect square or a perfect circle with wood or metals. In everything we make we have to say, 'exact within the limits of measurement.'"

Why Lawyer Swore by Buddha.

Permission to swear by Buddha instead of God and the Holy Apostles was granted by the superior court of Cordoba the other day to a young law student of agnostic belief when he took oath of membership in the Argentine bar. He first sought to take the oath "by my country and my honor," but the court informed him that he would be obliged to take a religious oath.

The student, it is related, thereupon went to a library and began a profound study of the world's religions, on which he spent several days. He then returned to the court and informed the learned judges he had found that the Buddhist religion was "the most moral and most complete," and asked permission to take oath upon it.

The judge consulted musty tomes of Argentine law and decided there was nothing to exclude him from taking such an oath.

Why Fads Are a Good Thing.

As Walter Dill Scott suggests, every business youth, on beginning his or her business life, should adopt an avocation, a fad, some outside interest, only, less absorbing than his business, and should continuously cultivate it as a foil, a rest, a saving grace to his business. Provided this fad or unbusinesslike interest be one not too narrow and one not too difficult and fatiguing, the recipe is fundamentally an important one for this matter of business hours as well as for personal hygiene in general.—G. V. N. Dearborn, M. D., in the Scientific American.

Why No More "Proof Coins."

Formerly the mints furnished, at little more than cost, so-called "proof" coins, which were much desired by collectors. They were far superior in finish to the ordinary pieces, being struck by hand presses and dies specially cut and burnished. The "blanks" of metal thus stamped were burnished, so that the coins were beautifully bright and mirrorlike. Kept in little pockets of buckskin, they would retain their prettiness indefinitely. But the treasury has put a stop to this business and proof pieces are no longer to be obtained.

Why Rubies in Betrothal Rings.

As far as it can be learned, the oldest betrothal rings were set with rubies only, as the love token of long ago. That stone is credited with being what is called "lucky," and is said to drive away sadness and evil dreams. There is a legend about the ruby, which declares that Noah had one of marvelous brilliancy, "the light which it emitted being sufficient to illumine his chamber in the ark."

NASH SIX

Nash Prices Cannot Be Reduced BECAUSE They Have Never Been Inflated

There will be no reduction in the price of the Nash Six.

We think it only fair to state our policy plainly in justice to present Nash Six owners and those who contemplate purchasing this car.

Nash prices cannot be reduced because present prices represent the actual intrinsic value of the product plus a profit sufficient only to maintain manufacturing operations.

That is a plain statement of fact.

We cannot buy the high grade materials used in the Nash Six any cheaper.

We cannot buy the skilled labor employed in the making of the Nash Six any cheaper.

These two factors determine price. Until materials are lower, or labor is lower, no one can manufacture such a car as the Nash Six for less money.

We say no one advisedly because here in this great plant covering 101 acres of ground and employing 5000 skilled workmen, manufacturing costs are reduced to their lowest level.

Here, the Nash Six is manufactured 93% in its entirety.

We have every advantage that large resources and a well established business afford—the purchase of raw materials on a big scale, perfected manufacturing processes and the distribution of costs over a large output.

This insures minimum production costs for each individual car.

That is why the Nash Six has always represented exceptionally high value.

The savings made by our manufacturing methods have been given to the buyer, keeping the price of this car at the lowest possible figure.

Consider this fact.

Since 1917, while prices of all commodities have been soaring, the price of the Nash Six has risen only 31%. Considering the addition of cord tires and other equipment as standard equipment, the actual increase has been only 24%.

During that time, the increased price of other motor cars shows an average rise of 76%.

The cost of living has risen 104%.

These figures show plainly that Nash manufacturing ability does make possible a car of exceptional value, and that Nash selling prices have always been kept low in accordance with our low production cost.

In view of price changes, actual and rumored, we welcome the opportunity to make this statement:

"That the Nash Six today represents more actual value, and is a bigger and better automobile than any other car within hundreds of dollars of its price."

That is our judgment and that it is the judgment of many thousands of motor buyers is evident in the widespread conviction that the Nash Six does represent value impressively above the average.

Under these unsettled conditions it is the only explanation of the fact that today the Nash Motors Company has thousands of unfilled orders on its books and that maximum production schedules are being maintained in our factory.

You may purchase the Nash Six with the assurance that today as always, you are buying a car of exceptional value.

You buy more power with the Nash Six due to its Perfected Valve-in-Head Motor.

You buy comfort and convenience beyond the ordinary.

You buy really exceptional beauty of design and finish.

And you buy a car with the high character of its performance proved beyond question.

A STATEMENT

Our policy has always been to give the consumer the best automobile and best truck we could build at the least possible cost. We have never asked a dollar more, simply because we could get it.

In view of the fact that there is no reduction today in the price of materials or labor entering into Nash products, and that there is no possibility of any reduction for some time to come that can substantially affect manufacturing costs, the policy of The Nash Motors Company will be to absolutely maintain its present prices on both passenger cars and trucks to at least July 1st, 1921.

HOW

DOCTORS TEST QUALITIES OF WOULD-BE AIR PILOTS.—Ability to hold the breath as a test of the efficiency of the heart is applied in England to would-be airmen. The Lancet (London) says the breath-holding test enables the physician to obtain a fair idea as to the stability of the central respiratory nervous apparatus of the examinee.

A stop-watch and a nose-cup are all the apparatus required, while the precise instructions as to carrying out the experiment are equally simple. The time the man can hold his breath before the inevitable and forceful sensation of the need to breathe compels him to give way is noted. The average time in the normal fit pilot is 60 seconds, the minimum being 45 seconds. Nearly all cases with a time record as short as this were rejected on medical grounds apart from this test.

Not the least interesting part of the test as applied to airmen is the reply given when the examinee is asked what caused him to give way and breathe in, the normal response being: "I had to give up," or "I wanted to breathe." Under conditions that point to unfitness for pilotage the reply may be: "I felt giddy" or "squeamish" or "flushed," responses which indicate that other nerve centers are involved besides the true bulbar respiratory center.

The combination of minimum time record and abnormal verbal response points to the examinee being one likely to suffer from oxygen hunger at high altitudes, and possibly to an inherent inability, by a strong effort of will, to carry on under conditions of stress.

USE THE WATCH AS COMPASS

How the Timepiece May Be Employed if One Should Lose His Way in the Woods.

What would you do to find your way if you were lost in a forest without a compass?

F. C. Armstrong, sportsman's representative of the Canadian National railway at Cochrane, Ont., in the heart of the summer tourist camping and fishing country, asked the question. How would you tell north from south, east from west? Remember that in the summer months the sun does not rise in the east or set in the west. How, then, would you orientate yourself? It's easy if you know how.

"Lay your watch flat, face upward," said Armstrong. "Point the hour hand at the sun. The watch will be at a point half way between the hour hand and the figure 12 as the hands turn in the morning and backward in the afternoon."

So if you go after muskellunge this summer in the Rainy lake or Lake of the Woods region, be certain to take your watch with you.—Port Arthur (Ont.) Dispatch.

How to Measure Tree's Growth.

In the New York Botanical garden a new instrument has been attached to a certain maple tree, attracting the attention of passers-by. This is the "dendrograph"—a delicately adjusted machine which will actually register the rate of growth of a tree—slow as that is! A series of blocks of wood are attached firmly to the tree, and above these a metal "collar" which, however, is in contact with the tree at only two points. A needle projects from one of these, the other end of which traces its movements upon a slowly revolving paper "drum." Once a week this paper is replaced by a fresh sheet and the clockwork wound up; otherwise the machine is self-regulating and needs no attention. The growth or expansion of the tree is shown by the needle.

The instrument was devised by Dr. L. T. MacDougal, formerly director of laboratories at the New York Botanical garden, and now director of the botanical research department of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The dendrograph is one of a number of instruments which are being used this year to measure growth phenomena.—Leslie's Weekly.

How Movies Are Triumphant.

Mexico, we read in current dispatches, has decided to lift the heavy censorship from the movies and to foster the enterprise in every way. There seems to be no stopping the triumphant march of the movie stars. Not long ago we read that Devonshire House, the famous rendezvous of the Whigs in London, had fallen before the cinema. The Alhambra and the Empire, famous music halls, are to go, too. England and the Continent appear to be as wild for the screen as we are here. All doors are opening to it. Not long ago the conservative Vatican sanctioned the picturing of an important religious function. Great are the movies!—Philadelphia Record.

How British Care for Blind.

A bill has been introduced in the British parliament concerning the care and training of blind persons. It provides that it shall be the duty of every local authority to make sufficient and suitable provision for the technical training, employment and maintenance of every blind person over 16 years of age within its jurisdiction.

The political machine is a great labor-saving device. It enables many a man to live without work.

In spite of all the quarantine regulations the disease of loafitis is reported as epidemic all over the country.

The "more pay and less work" crowd are likely to realize at least a half of their program by not getting any work at all.

Some people feel that population is growing too fast, but the automobiles are doing their best to dispose of the surplus.

Now that freight rates have been raised to pay for the high prices, the high prices will have to be raised still more to pay for the freight rates.

Prohibition is a very ticklish issue this fall and many candidates are starting off on their stumping tours equipped for both wet and dry weather.

It ball players are going to sell out games they at least ought to hang out a red flag and have a public auction and advertise it with three insertions in all the newspapers.

All the boys are learning how to make and repair pleasure cars, but it is not considered that the world is going to have any further need for carpenters and blacksmiths.

The community says "well-done" to a limited number of people who show public spirit and it makes the same remark to a greater number who have bought get-rich quick stocks.

The present hours of labor are not reported to help cut the alarm clock business. However, the fellows who make spring beds, soft pillows and hammocks are booming under present conditions.

The young crowd would no doubt be willing to get out and march in the torchlight parades if they were paid $1.50 an hour for it. However, no one has as yet thoroughly explained how you can have a good campaign parade on a prohibition basis.

It is hoped that some of these girls who cultivate stylish handwriting can mark ballots more legibly than they can write letters. Also how is a fastidious lady voter going to be able to spit on those dull pencils in the polling booths to make them mark?

TODAY IS COLUMBUS DAY

Columbus Day is now a legal holiday in two-thirds of the States and will be generally celebrated in all of them before long. The people are glad of this breathing spell in the long pull between Labor Day and Thanksgiving. They are well pleased to have a day set aside in honor of the man who opened up this country to modern civilization.

In his time Columbus was regarded as a crack-brained adventurer. The successful men of wealth, the politicians of his time, scorned him, as lacking in ordinary common sense. Yet while they are forgotten the name of Columbus goes down in all history as one of the great benefactors of the race.

Everyone can have in his own life a little of the Columbus spirit, the willingness to try the unknown and venture out in search of better things. There is too much of tendency in a settled society to follow along the same old rut.

But people who wish to learn from the spirit of Columbus, should read his life and note what an exceedingly practical man he was. He was no dreamer starting off in search of new utopias which existed only in his imagination.
He had long pursued a sea-faring life.
In order to pursue his career under the most promising opportunities, he had left his home to serve in the ships of the Portuguese, then the best sailors of the world. As a skilled mariner and map maker, his opinion as to the existence of a new world was no mere fancy but a reasoned theory built on actual experience.

If in these present times people can combine the daring of the adventurer with the practical knowledge of the man who goes to the bottom of his subject, they will in their own way accomplish something of the achievements of the man whose fame is observed on October 12th.

DIRTY MONEY IN CIRCULATION

Many complaints are made by the public as to the dirty condition of paper money now supplied by the government.
Badly soiled bills are not merely offensive, but they are a possible source for carrying diseases.

Formerly many banks made a specialty of giving their customers clean money. They rarely failed to have a stock of clean new bills. A fellow felt rich with a wad of those crisp fellows in his pocket. But those days have long since passed.

The treasury department has some reasonable enough excuses. One great trouble is that bills wear out faster than they did. They are being printed on paper made from cotton, whereas they formerly came from linen paper made from flax imported from Ireland and Russia. Also the bureau of engraving and printing is busy on Liberty bonds, and the circulation of paper money has been greatly increased.

There is a widespread demand for greater efficiency in the public service.
It seems probable that the methods of government printing could be improved.
Government work is cursed by red tape and failure to reward superior ability.
The time will come when every department of the government will be overhauled and put on an efficiency basis.
The man and the party who is big enough to do that, regardless of political pull, will make a bit. When that time comes it seems reasonable to suppose that the government's printing can be done to better advantage and then the public could expect cleaner currency.

But it may be a good while before such a modernization can be effected and the public would like cleaner money now. If the treasury gradually reduces the inflation caused by the war, the department should be better able to supply the currency needs of the country.

Governor Cox And The Farmers

In 1918, when the whole nation was alive to the necessity of stimulating agricultural production, Governor Cox went to work to aid the Ohio farmers.

He called a meeting of tractor manufacturers and stated that he wanted them to allot at least fifteen hundred farm tractors for sale in Ohio. He then went to the Superintendent of the State Banking Department and obtained letters to every banker in the State, urging financial assistance to farmers in the matter of buying tractors. He deposited two million dollars of the State Industrial Commission funds in country banks, with a hint that they lend at least some of it to farmers buying tractors.

Governor Cox then went to the Federal Reserve Bank and secured a ruling that notes given by farmers purchasing tractors be discounted on the same basis as agricultural implement paper.
By these various means the farmers of Ohio were enabled to purchase in 1918
1,982 farm tractors, thus practically doubling the number in the State. This was said to be the most aggressive campaign ever waged by any governor.

Get Trees For Planting Now

The State Board of Forestry announces the list of stock available at the State Forest Nursery, College Park, of trees available for forest and roadside planting. There are four standard varieties of evergreens—White Pine, Loblolly Pine, Norway Spruce and Cypress.
The six standard varieties of hardwoods offered are Red Oak, American Elm, White Ash, Black Walnut, Black Locust and Pecan.

The stock offered has all been grown in the State Nursery and is distributed at actual cost or less. Small trees for forest planting are quoted as low as one cent apiece, while those suitable for roadside planting are listed for from twenty to fifty cents each and vary in size from seven to fifteen feet in height.

Application forms with full information regarding the trees can be had up-

No Reduction For Dodge Cars

"Official confirmation of press dispatches from Detroit, announcing that there would be no reduction in the price of Dodge Brothers motor cars, has been received by L. W. Gunby Company, of Salisbury, the Dodge Brothers dealer.
A telegram from C. W. Matheson, acting general sales manager, to that dealer, reads:

"Dodge Brothers policy has ever been to give full value for the price asked. There will be no reduction in the present prices of Dodge Brothers motor cars. Newspaper reports to the contrary are absolutely untrue."

"Dodge Brothers announcement was no surprise to us," said L. W. Gunby Company, "in fact, it is only a substantiation of Dodge Brothers business principles. At no time have they ever demanded an excess amount for their product. As in the past, they will continue in the future to demand a fair return for their efforts."

Financial Loss Due To Colds

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear.
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.

Record Corn Crop Forecast

A corn crop of 3,216,000,000 bushels, or 79,000,000 bushels greater than the record crop of 1912, was forecast last Friday by the Department of Agriculture from a condition of 89.1 on October 1st.

There was a further falling off, however, in the total wheat crop forecast, production being placed at 750,648,000 bushels as compared with a forecast of 770,000,000 bushels a month ago. The spring wheat crop was forecast at 218,- 007,000 last month. The conditions of the spring wheat and all wheat crops was not given in the department's announcement.

Got Her Good Health Out Of A Bottle

Mrs. Edward Raifsnider, Wabash,
Ind., says that she owes her good health to Chamberlain's Tablets. She suffered from distress after eating and constipation and was completely cured by the use of these tablets.

Oystermen Slow To License
Oystermen in Somerset county are unusually slow in licensing this fall. An examination of the license records in the clerk's office last Friday showed that there had been issued 260 licenses, as against 306 for the same period last year.

One explanation of the tardiness of the oystermen is that so many people who formerly engaged in oystering are busy in other trades which are more certain and more lucrative. It is also said that the young oysters are not so plentiful in our waters as in former years.

The Teacher's Opportunity

William Mather Lewis, Director Savings Division of the Treasury Department, gives the following sound advice to the teachers of public schools:

The strength of the United States depends upon the practical patriotism and sound economic thought of her future citizens. These characteristics must be developed in the daily life of the school. Economists agree that the universal adoption of habits of intelligent saving will strengthen our nation tremendously. When every wage earner has a reserve fund of money the country will be sound economically, socially and politically.

The teacher who encourages pupils to earn money and to invest in Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps is doing much for their economic strength and practical patriotism. Each child who buys stamps feels a partnership in the government; he learns the wisdom of investing his money in securities that are absolutely safe; he becomes familiar in a practical way with compound interest, and as he sticks stamp after stamp upon the card he has a visual demonstration of how savings grow.

Faith without works is dead. Thrift without safe investment such as government saving securities, is robbed of its benefits. Its virtue lies not only in its principles but in the actual practice of investment. Each year thousands of boys and girls in the United States are deprived of a college education because they lack money. You can remedy this situation among your pupils by starting them on the road to saving early in life and encourage them to safeguard these savings in government securities.

You are rendering a real service to your country by promoting the sale of these stamps. The burden of war debt still is heavy and the government must still borrow money. Add to your influence as a teacher. Promote sound economic thought, practical patriotism and prosperity by encouraging your pupils in the regular purchase of Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps.

Wall Maps for Schools

Last Tuesday, September 28th, an all day conference of the officials of the Maryland State Weather Service was held at the local office of the Weather Bureau, Custom House, Baltimore, Md. Arrangements were made to place in every school and college in Maryland and Delaware a set of large wall maps, printed in colors, illustrating the important features of the superior climate of the two States, so that the pupils may grow up with positive ideas on the subject.

Among the matters discussed at this meeting was the fact that some of our Maryland cities are losing many of their oak trees. These trees do not seem to stand "civilization" very much and when a home is built and the leaf covering removed from the ground under the oaks, they are likely to die.

Prof. W. T. L. Taliaferro, of the University of Maryland, who was in attendance at the meeting, stated that it was only necessary to feed the oaks to prevent their death and that the soil under the trees should be fertilized with raw bone meal in the late winter or early spring; it should ordinarily be used at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre, but the first year double that amount should be used.

The officers of the Maryland State Weather Service are Prof. E. B. Matthews, Johns Hopkins University, president; Prof. W. T. L. Taliaferro, University of Maryland, secretary and treasurer, and James H. Spencer, United States Weather Bureau, acting meteorologist.

MAKING WAR ON DISEASE MENACE

American Red Cross Announces Budget of $48,200,000 For Current Year.

NEW DISASTER RELIEF PLAN

Continuance of Heavy Work Abroad Deemed Necessary to Protect United States—$21,000,000 Less Than Last Year.

A program of relief and service to ward which appropriations of $48,200,000 have been made has been outlined for the American Red Cross for the fiscal year, July 1, 1920, to July 1, 1921, according to official announcement by national headquarters of the organization at Washington. The figures for 1920-21 are $21,000,000 below those of 1919-20, in which $69,400,000 was spent.

Important among the items of the budget for the present year is the appropriation of $31,600,000 for relief in foreign lands, which includes $11,000,000 in purchased supplies on hand and not distributed.

Must Protect United States.

This will enable the American Red Cross to continue its humanitarian effort to aid stricken peoples to re-establish themselves, to fight the disease epidemics which threaten many countries and to offset largely the remaining traces of the blight left by the World War. It is regarded as social as well as physical sanitation on a large scale that will have a direct bearing on future conditions in America.

Central Europe, the chief sufferer from the conflict, today is facing another winter of famine, pestilence and ruin. Typhus decreased much during the summer months where last winter it had its greatest stronghold, but physicians who investigated the situation at the behest of the League of Red Cross Societies have given their unqualified opinion that this coming winter will see a recurrence on an unprecedented scale. The Red Cross feels it must continue preventive measures abroad to keep this and other deadly maladies from the United States.

Millions for Work at Home.

When the disease was sweeping Central Europe last winter the American Red Cross, with the aid of the governments of afflicted nations, undertook the fight against it. Hospitals were established wherever possible and food and clothing were distributed to the unfortunates. By reason of their undernourishment they were easy prey to the epidemics. Where the organization contributed last year to the great inroads made by the disease, by virtue of its knowledge of the disease and the presence of well established hospital centers, the American Red Cross this year will undertake the work with a new confidence.

Including the total of $11,000,000 in supplies left from the last fiscal year, the $31,600,000 is $21,000,000 less than the expenditures for 1919-20.

Appropriations for domestic activities total $16,700,000. The largest item of this "home" budget is $7,600,000 for civilian relief work. This includes service and assistance for families of soldiers, sailors and marines, and work incidental to disaster. Of the total appropriation for civilian relief, $5,000,000 is held in reserve for the carrying out of actual disaster relief.

Reduced Overhead Expense.

The Red Cross invariably is the first thought of a community visited by calamity. With this in mind, it was determined by the Executive Committee in preparing the budget of 1919-20 to have a fixed reserve fund from which to draw in these instances.

For assistance to soldiers, sailors and marines in hospitals and in camps this year $1,000,000 has been set aside. Four million two hundred thousand dollars has been appropriated for improvement of health and prevention of disease throughout the United States during the current twelve months. The Red Cross is co-operating fully with the United States Health Service in this work and through its Junior Red Cross is doing much to spread among children the principles of sanitation. An appropriation of $1,000,000 has been made for developing the peace time program of the Red Cross by service to its chapters in all regions.

Famous Meeting Places.

Periodical gatherings of men with a common object in view go back to ancient history, for man is gregarious, likes to meet with his fellows to air his own opinions and to become acquainted with the views of others. It was in England that such meetings were first designated by the name of "club" when wits, writers and actors met "good thoughts to exchange." Should you ever walk along Cheapside in London you will see between Friday street and Bread street the spot whereon once stood the famous Mermaid tavern, where Ben Jonson founded his club, numbering among its members such great lights as Shakespeare, Beaumont, and Fletcher. Brilliant must have been the flashes of wit that scintillated within those walls. There is also the famous Will's coffee house, a favorite resort of Dryden and other literary men of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. When they began to sell "tea in the leaf and drink" in those rendezvous of refreshments, the Englishman must truly have come into his own, for who so devoted to that amber beverage as the sons of John Bull?

A Missed Opportunity.

A mayor of a small Indiana town was making a speech at one of the town school houses. Naturally he was telling of all the accomplishments of his administration. And always after he had told one he turned toward his wife who was in the audience and said, "My wife will bear me out in what I have just told."

Over and over he repeated his proof; over and over he repeated his rather long drawn out boasts despite his yawning audience. And finally at last he stopped. Then an irrepressible high-school youngster turned to his companion and said in a tone loud enough to be heard by the people in his vicinity, "Gee I'm so tired that I wish his wife had borne him out the first time he suggested it."

Paderewski has changed his mind back again from music to politics and hopes to keep it put this time.

Since the shiny suit is now fashionable many a man can be stylish for the first time in a good while.

The young men of the dancing world divide the fair sex into two classes—the highbrow and the low-neck.

Modern Wars.

Fresh troops were coming up to replace a regiment of color that had been unsuccessful in a recent attack. On the way in one of the debonair arrivals undertook to extract a little information on the subject of said attack from a member of the retiring force.

"Hey! What's the matter with youse guys, anyway? Ain't your outfit got any punch?"

The discouraged one rolled a baleful eye in the direction of this unnecessary addition to his trials, and replied:

"You tell 'em, boy! You tell 'em! But we didn't get no support. That there artillery didn't give us no garage!"—Saturday Evening Post.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That the following be and the same is hereby adopted as an amendment to Section 15 of Article III of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," of the Constitution of the State, as herein provided, to become Section 15 of Article III of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

15. The General Assembly may continue its session so long as in its judgment the public interest may require for a period not longer than ninety days; and each member thereof shall receive a compensation of three hundred dollars per annum and five dollars per diem for every day he shall attend the session, but not for such days as he may be absent, unless absent on account of sickness or by leave of the House of which he is a member and he shall also receive such mileage as may be allowed by law, not exceeding twenty cents per mile; and the presiding officer of each House shall receive an additional compensation of five dollars per diem. When the session shall be convened by proclamation of the Governor the session shall not continue longer than thirty days, and in such case compensation shall be the same as herein prescribed.

WM. J. BRYAN SAYS FILIPINO WON THE HONORS

(In a signed, copyrighted article written from the Democratic convention hall at San Francisco for the International News Service, William J. Bryan paid the following remarkable tribute to Jose P. Melencio, the young Filipino who is in charge of the Philippine Independence Publicity campaign in the United States):

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN.
The greatest personal victory yet won in this Democratic convention was scored by a young Filipino by the name of Jose P. Melencio. He has charge of the Philippine Publicity Bureau at Washington.

He is only twenty-six years old and received his education in the public schools of the Philippines—under American teachers, as he proudly boasted—and at Georgetown, D. C. He is a remarkably promising young man.

Speaking with grace, using the best language and without a trace of embarrassment, he presented the claim of the Filipinos to independence. The audience was astonished at the strength of his argument, the skill with which he marshaled his facts and the high tone of his speech. He captivated everyone and committed men and visitors paid him the compliment of rising and cheering when he concluded his plea.

When one of the committee asked him some questions he returned to the platform and answered them with as much logic and precision as if he had taken weeks to prepare his answer. It was a remarkable triumph.

As one who began twenty-two years ago to fight for the promise of independence I was proud of this illustration of what the Filipino is capable.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE PHILIPPINES

The University of Santo Tomas is 26 years older than Harvard.

The Philippine people number 10,350,000, of which 9,495,272 are Christians and only 8 per cent non-Christians.

They have been Christians for 800 years and have a culture and refinement that will compare very favorably with that of other nations.

There are only 4,634 Japanese in the Philippines. There are about 100,000 Japanese in California alone, or 15 times as many as in the entire Philippine archipelago.

English is taught exclusively in the Philippine public schools. Two million natives now speak English fluently, and there are 700,000 English speaking children in the public schools. It is destined to be the national language.

Seventy per cent of the inhabitants of the Philippines over ten years of age, according to a census just completed, are literate. This is a higher percentage of literacy than that of any South American country, higher than that of Spain and higher than that of any of the new republics of Europe whose independence is being guaranteed by the Allies.

The Filipino people are unanimous in their desire for independence. Whenever they are called upon to deposit their ballots they have always ratified this aspiration. At every session before adjournment their representatives in the Legislature reiterate their faith in the principles of liberty and the independence of the Filipino people.

The Filipinos declare they have no grudge or grievance against the American people. Their appeal is accompanied by a message of friendship and gratitude for all that America has done for them. They point out that Uncle Sam gave independence to Cuba, and they hope that they, too, will receive that boon without which, they declare, no civilized and patriotic people can enjoy the maximum of happiness and self-respect.

A special delegation of Filipinos, officially representing the Filipino people, attended the Republican and Democratic National conventions, seeking an endorsement of the Filipino desire for independence in the two platforms. Their arguments, briefly stated, were as follows:

First.—That the American Declaration of Independence declares that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed;

Second.—That the American Congress, in the Jones law, solemnly promised the Filipinos independence upon the establishment of a stable government, and that their claim that the said stable government is now in existence in the Islands has been officially confirmed by America's own representatives there; and Third.—That America went before the world in the recent war as the avowed champion of "self determination." American soldiers having been told it was one of the things they were fighting and dying for.

Springfield Mo.—"My back was so weak I could hardly stand up, and I would have bearing-down pains and was not well at any time," says Mrs. D. V. Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 6, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. I saw after taking some Cardui that I was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person."

Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me. My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

BLOOD IS FUEL TO THE BODY

Pumped Through The System By The Heart It Sustains The Muscles And Tissues

PEPTO-MANGAN HELPS BLOOD

Keep the Quality of Your Blood at its Best—It Means Vigorous Health and Ability to Accomplish

Blood acts like a fuel. Pumped through the body by the heart, it sustains the muscles and tissues. It renews them. It feeds the brain—the tissues of the eye and face. That is why people look so pale and lifeless when blood is impoverished. The blood tissues are being supplied with weak fuel. The blood has not enough red corpuscles. You would not eat poor food with no nourishment in it; no more should you let the fuel that supplies sustenance to your entire body be inferior. Have good blood. Improve the quality and keep it at its best.

If you look pale and feel weak, if you have lost your enthusiasm and energy, if your blood is clogged with poisons, your system is being fed with a poor grade of blood. That is no way to go around. If you are not at your best, get at the source of the trouble right away. Put an end to half-living. Take that ideal tonic, Pepto-Mangan, to tone up your blood and purify it. Get the full enjoyment out of living. Breathe fresh air, take exercise.

Be sure to ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." It comes in convenient tablet form and in liquid. One has the same medicinal value as the other. There is only one genuine Pepto-Mangan, and the name "Gude's" is on the package. Advertisement.

An Actual Lottery.
Marriage lotteries are still in vogue during October in some parts of India. The names of both sexes eligible for marriage are written on slips of paper and put into separate earthenware jars. The local wise man draws one of each kind and the youth whose name is drawn obtains a letter of introduction to the young woman whose name accompanies his, after which the courting commences.

To Rescue Drowning Person.
As soon as a drowning man begins to lose his recollection he gradually slackens his hold until he quits altogether. A rescuer should be careful to avoid being grasped, however. The safest method of approach is at the head. Grasp the struggler by the hair, turning him on his back. Then throw yourself on your back and swim, holding the man by his hair, his back to your stomach.

Stand-Patter.
This expression originated from "stand pat," a poker term used by a player to announce his intention to play cards originally dealt him without helping his hand by drawing cards. The term was first applied as political slang by Mark Hanna, in 1902, to indicate the attitude on the tariff question of leaders of the Republican party.

Most Sensitive Instrument.
The most sensitive instrument yet made is the bolometer, originally invented by Langley, which is used for measuring variations in the radiation of heat. It registers to a millionth of a degree. The heart of it is a platinum wire so thin that it cannot be seen except when a ray of bright light is reflected from it.

Eye of the Ostrich.
The ostrich's eye is as large as an ordinary marble. He has microscopic vision and can see the most minute particle. The eyelid does not move over the eye. Instead there is a film which flashes across it from time to time, somewhat like the shutter of a camera.

Puritans Used No Wedding Ring.
The Puritans of the seventeenth century used no ring at the wedding ceremony, as they considered it "a pagan symbol and superstitious contrivance." All they required was that the man and woman should join hands when stating their purpose to live together in wedlock.

Immense Telescopes.
The largest refracting telescopes in the world are in the United States—at Yerkes observatory, Geneva Lake, Wis., at Lick Observatory, Mt. Hamilton, Cal., at the United States observatory, Washington, D. C., and at Harvard university. Two of the most perfect reflecting telescopes ever built are at Mt. Wilson observatory, Pasadena, Cal. The latter is moved by electric motors in right ascension and declination. An important feature in this instrument is the different focal lengths that can be obtained, ranging from 80,100 to 450 feet.

A WORD WITH WOMEN

Valuable Advice For Princess Anne Readers

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, blue, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow.

Then help the weakened kidneys. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed at home—Read this Princess Anne woman's convincing statement:

Mrs. Earl Waller, 109 Beckford avenue, says: "I was troubled with a very severe backache. At times I had dizzy spells and little black spots flashed in front of my eyes. I seemed to ache all over and certainly was miserable until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. I got this fine medicine at Smith & Co's. drug store, and after using two boxes, I was cured of the trouble."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Waller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dynamiting the Clams.

The little pholas or boring clam is a great delicacy on the Pacific coast. Its meat is juicy and tender and is excellent in chowder. Consequently, fishermen are not content to dislodge the clams slowly with pick and crowbar. They use dynamite, one blast of which dislodges hundreds of clams, according to the Popular Science Monthly.

Grip

Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason when grip is prevalent you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.

Improve Your Digestion

If you have a weak digestion eat sparingly of meats, let at least five hours elapse between meals, eat nothing between meals. Drink an abundance of water. Take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. Do this and you will improve your digestion.

DEMOCRATIC MASS-MEETING

Auditorium Filled Last Saturday To Hear Prominent Speakers

The Democratic campaign was opened in Somerset county last Saturday afternoon by a large mass-meeting held in the Auditorium at Princess Anne. The audience consisted largely of ladies, who had become voters at the recent registration.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. George W. Maslin and the speakers were Hon. Robert E. Lee, of Baltimore; Hon. Allan T. Goldsborough, of Denton, Democratic Candidate for Congress on the Eastern Shore, and Mrs. Lydia W. Holmes, of Louisiana.

Mrs. Holmes was the first woman who ever addressed a political meeting in Somerset county and her appearance on the stage was greeted with prolonged applause. She possesses a very fine southern voice and her speech was listened to attentively and in the course of her address she was frequently interrupted by applause. She advocated vigorously the adoption of the League of Nations as a covenant of peace and said that it was the special duty of the women in this campaign to carry the fight for the adoption of the League from house to house.

Mrs. Holmes is a descendant of Margaret Brent of Maryland, who was the first advocate of woman's suffrage in the United States.

All the speakers referred especially to the candidacy of Senator John Walter Smith. To the great work that he had done as a Senator from Maryland and of the necessity for his return to the Senate of the United States. The meeting was enthusiastic throughout and the Auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity.

Connorton Goes To Prison

Charles C. Connorton, who was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary at the June term of the Accomac (Va.) County Circuit Court for shooting Roland Parks, of Tangier, after he refused to obey a local ordinance which compels a person to remain off the streets during church hours, has been taken to the State penitentiary by guards sent from Richmond. Connorton has been out on bail, awaiting the decision of the court in answer to a petition for a new trial.

Order Desired At Auditorium

Some of our boys who are full of youthful vigor and devilment should not forget that there are times and places when their feelings should be restrained. It is stated that some one of the boys who attend the moving picture shows, at the Auditorium one night last week, threw a peanut and struck the glasses of one of the lady spectators, breaking them. This was reported to the manager, who investigated the matter, but who could ascertain nothing definite, the boys being unwilling to tell on the guilty party.

The manager of the Auditorium not being able to be present in the hall all the time, and being anxious to keep perfect order therein, would consider it a great favor if any of the grown-ups would report to Mr. B. H. Dougherty the misconduct of youngsters in his absence. If it is done there will be no repetition of such shameful conduct as occurred last week.

Now is the time to plant your bulbs if you want the early spring flowers. Easter comes early next year and you will want plenty of the ever popular hyacinth and tulip. Plant them now if you would have them for the Easter holidays.

WOMEN VOTERS CHALLENGED

Anti-Suffragists Of Maryland Plan Contest and File Protest

The enfranchisement of women will not be allowed to go unchallenged in Maryland. On behalf of the Maryland League for State Defense, Judge Oscar Leser and T. F. Cadwalader have filed with the Board of Registry, of Baltimore, a protest against the registration of two women in the eleventh ward, one of whom is white and who registered as a Democrat, and another who is colored and who affiliated as a Republican, so that both races are included in the challenge.

Two reasons are advanced for questioning the course of the registers. The first is that the Nineteenth Amendment was not properly ratified, exception being taken to the endorsement by the states of Tennessee, Missouri and West Virginia. Again, it is claimed that the adoption of this amendment was beyond the power of Congress in that the Federal Constitution prohibits amendments which deprive the states of a republican form of government. Reference is made to the fact that the amendment is in conflict with the Constitution of Maryland, which limits the franchise to males.

The purpose is to make this a test case. It was necessary first to file the protest with the supervisors who will decline to consider it, and then an appeal is to be taken to the state courts. Whatever the decision of the lower tribunal an appeal is certain to be taken to the Court of Appeals and from here will go to the Supreme Court of the United States. William L. Marbury will conduct the case for the league which includes in its membership a number of the leading opponents of woman suffrage.

Supervisor Appointed

At the session of the Board of Education held last Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Florence Ardis Dryden was recommended by the County Superintendent and elected Rural Supervisor for Somerset county. Mrs. Dryden at present is principal of the graded school at Mt. Vernon, where her work has been very successful. She is a native of New Jersey and comes to Somerset with fine indorsements. In addition to her supervisory work, Mrs. Dryden will also perform the duties of attendance officer. Her duties will begin November 1st.

Mrs. Edith B. Wilson has been recommended to succeed Mrs. Dryden at Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Wilson was formerly a teacher in Somerset and subsequently taught for several years in Ohio and attended summer school in that State.

Mrs. Aurelia F. Campbell Dead

With her three sons and three nephews serving as pallbearers, the funeral of Mrs. Aurelia F. Campbell took place Tuesday afternoon at her home at Champ, the Rev. Mr. Moore, of Mt. Vernon, officiating. Interment was in the J. O. U. A. M. Cemetery.

Mrs. Campbell, who was in her 74th year, died Sunday, October 10th, after a lingering illness of one year. She was the widow of the late James A. Campbell, a Civil War veteran, who died about five months ago. The following children survive:

Messrs. William D. and James A. Campbell, of Champ; Levin Campbell, of Federalsburg, Md.; Mrs. E. C. Trower, of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Frank Morgan, of Federalsburg, Md.

Miss Mary Louise Adams, daughter of the late Robert W. Adams, and Mr. Samuel H. Sudler, son of Mrs. S. S. Sudler, were married last Saturday morning at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Walter Archbold, D. D., rector of Somerset Parish. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Morris H. Adams, only the immediate families and relatives of the contracting parties being present. Among those from out-of-town were Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Tull, of Annapolis. Mr. Sudler is Assistant Cashier of the Bank of Somerset, of Princess Anne.

DECIDES AGAINST BIDS ON ROADS

State Board Finds Cost Too High—Plans Called Off Until January

Except for the work already under way and that on contracts recently let there will be no more State road construction in Maryland until after January 1, with the possible exception of gravel roads in southern Maryland.

This was announced last Thursday as a definite policy of the commission, the reason given being the excessive costs of cement and other materials. The average cost of roads last year was $30,000 a mile, while the average bid by contractors this year is $45,000 a mile, an increase of 50 per cent., due almost entirely to the cost of material.

That this is the fact is shown by the last contract given by the commission, the Morganza-Colton road in St. Mary's county, which is to be of sand, clay and gravel, and for which the low bid was $70,429, or 14,953 per mile.

This was a lower unit price than given on any road of similar construction in the last two years, according to Chief Engineer Mackall. The material is of local production, the chief element of cost being labor. In contrast with this bid is that given some time ago for the Morantown-Ahagany road, in Allegany county, of nearly $56,000 a mile.

In announcing the policy of the board, Governor Ritchie made the following statement:

The State Roads Commission Thursday considered a number of bids for concrete road construction. Nearly all were for more than $40,000 per mile and one as high as $55,000. Such unprecedented prices were not and could not have been anticipated when our present road financing was planned and the prices are prohibitive.

They are chiefly due to the extremely high cost of cement, stone, gravel and sand. The commission, therefore, has rejected all these bids and will readvertise about January 1, 1921, by which time it is hoped conditions will have greatly improved.

History Of 115th Out

Unusual interest is being manifested throughout Baltimore city and the State in the recent publication of a history of the "115th Infantry in the World War," edited by Chaplain E. C. Reynolds, and dedicated to Col. Milton Atchison Keckford, the commanding officer of the regiment. The book is profusely illustrated with reproductions of photographs taken by the men overseas, including one of General Pershing decorating the colors of the 115th Infantry at Fresno, France, on March 24, 1919.

The boys are seen from the time they were on outpost duty near Cumberland, Md., until the time they arrived from "over there," and marched up Baltimore street. It is just the kind of a book that will make the boys live things over again with their buddies, and the well written story with the pictures will be followed eagerly by the friends and relatives of the men who served with the gallant 115th. There are even snapshots of the men on the front lines, a large panoramic view of no man's land, airplane views, shell holes, trenches, roads and villages.

In the front of the book is a tribute to the dead of the 115th, and a list of those who were killed in action, died of wounds, or from other causes.

The Matrimonial Epidemic

The Worcester Democrat and Ledger-Enterprise of last Saturday compliments Princess Anne in the following item:

"About twenty severe cases so far have been reported which have resulted seriously and the contagion seems to be spreading both in town and surrounding country. Parsons are kept busy collecting fees and license bureaus are swamped with rush orders. It seems to us rather an inopportune time to oil the stone road between Pocomoke City and Snow Hill. However, Princess Anne seems to be growing in favor and if the present state of affairs continue our neighboring county seat will have to be rechristened 'Gretna Green.'"

Gov. Cox Will Speak In Baltimore

Governor James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, soon will invade Maryland in connection with his campaign tour of the Eastern States.

Announcement has just been made from Democratic headquarters of the State that the Ohio executive will speak in Baltimore on the night of October 21. He will deliver his speech in the Fifth Regiment Armory, and the Democratic managers have launched arrangements to handle the big crowd that is expected to be present on that occasion.

Several suits brought by farmers of Wicomico county against J. G. and E. E. West, of Somerset county, for money alleged to be due from the sale of cantaloupes at the auction block at Salisbury this summer, were recently decided in favor of the plaintiffs by Justice J. Frank Miles, at Princess Anne.

DR. ROSSE SENTENCED TO JAIL

Crisfield Physician Gets Four Months For Illegal Whiskey Prescriptions

Dr. Samuel Alexander Rosse, of Crisfield, widely known on the Eastern Shore, was sentenced to jail for four months by Judge Rose, in the United States District Court, at Baltimore, Monday of last week.

Dr. Rosse pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the Volstead act by illegally prescribing for whiskey. He is the first physician in this jurisdiction to be sentenced under the Volstead act so far as a jail term is concerned.

There were 38 charges against the physician, to five of which, on the advice of his counsel, he entered pleas of guilty. The remaining 33 indictments will probably be nolle prossed.

Besides being deprived of his liberty, Dr. Rosse will be forced to pay the Government a considerable amount of money in taxes. Internal Revenue inspectors say they will immediately set to work to collect the tax on each gallon of whiskey that was withdrawn from bond through his prescriptions. This will amount to about $4 a gallon, with an added penalty. He will be required to pay another penalty for having sold liquor without first having a Federal retail liquor dealer's license.

The arrest of Dr. Rosse followed several weeks' work by Internal Revenue Agent Herman E. Parks, who trailed the physician back and forth from the Eastern Shore and who made an investigation of every prescription issued. Parks said that during the period from July 6 to 16 Dr. Rosse issued 33 prescriptions for a pint of whiskey each. The prescriptions were dated for days included in the period and were issued as from Crisfield, but Parks declared that during the time in question Dr. Rosse was not at his office.

Parks said he discovered that Dr. Rosse had sold 24 pints of whiskey to Percy Purnell, who has charge of a number of canning factories. This liquor, it was said, was sold by the physician, who issued prescriptions for the same under the names of persons working in the factories, but who knew nothing about the transaction.

His explanation of the sales to the Judge was that Purnell came to him and requested liquor for the canning factory hands, because the nature of their work frequently made them sick and they needed the stimulant.

Report Of State Game Farm

State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte, in his report to the Conservation Commission, dated October 7th, on the progress made at the State Game Farm, advised, that the number of breeding stock totaled 200, from which stock 5,600 eggs were laid; birds hatched and planted on field 3,015; birds shipped to the 23 counties of the State 2,326; birds for breeding at the farm 140, and the number of eggs shipped from the farm totaled 1,354. These eggs were shipped upon request from the public, who agreed to hatch the young birds and liberate them in the covers of our State for propagation purposes.

From numerous reports received by this department throughout the State, it is found that game of all species are most plentiful, more so than during former years. This is due to the game receiving more protection and being fed by the public during the winter months. The Game Department has expended vast amounts of money in the importation and propagation of game since the hunters' license system became effective. It might be well for the public to know that the Game Department is supported solely by the revenue derived through the sale of hunters' licenses, and not one cent is appropriated by the State.

With the success already obtained at the Game Farm during the past season in the propagation of the Chinese Ring-necked Pheasant, and with proper protection which is due from the public, it is hoped to establish this bird (which is commonly known as the king among game birds), permanently in the covers, not only for the benefit of the sportsmen, but for the agricultural interests as well.

Dr. Cook Now Bishop Of Delaware

The Rev. Dr. Philip Cook, for the last four and a-half years rector of St. Michael and All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church, Baltimore, was elevated last Thursday with impressive ceremonies to be Bishop of Delaware. The consecration service, which was held in Dr. Cook's church, was participated in and attended by six bishops, members of the clergy from the different dioceses and a large congregation made up of laity from Baltimore and other parts of Maryland and Delaware. The service began at 11 o'clock with a procession from the parish house. After the ceremonies a luncheon was served in the parish house.

LARGE BALLOT FOR ELECTION

One Of The Largest Ever Known In A Presidential Election

The official ballot to be voted in Somerset county at the coming election will be one of the largest ever seen at a Presidential election.

There will be five sets of Presidential electors on the ticket, an unusually big list. The Democrats will have one, the Republicans one, the Debs Socialist ticket one, the William W. Cox Labor ticket one and the Farmer-Labor party, whose Presidential candidate is Parley P. Christensen, one.

In addition to these names, there will be the names of four candidates for United States Senator—John Walter Smith, Democrat; O. E. Wellé, Republican; George D. Iverson, Jr., People's Party, and W. Ashbie Hawkins, Independent Republican.

There will also be two Constitutional Amendments to be voted upon and one member for Congress. These will no doubt make a ballot nearly, if not equal, in size to one page of the Marylander and Herald. This will no doubt frighten a great many voters, especially the women voters, who have had no experience in marking ballots.

But a careful study of the ballot will remove some of the fear of spoiling the ballot and make it quite simple to any intelligent mind. The things to be remembered are:

Each of the five groups on the ballot will contain the names of the President and Vice-President and also the names of eight electors for President and Vice-President. If the voter wishes to mark each one of the eight Presidential electors of the party favored by him or if he wants to split his ballot on the electors he must make an X mark opposite each name he wishes to vote for being careful not to make but eight cross marks for the electors.

The voter who wants to vote solidly for Cox and Roosevelt, or Harding and Coolidge, or any of the other Presidential candidates may place an X mark opposite the name of the candidates for President and Vice-President he favors, and that will carry the whole group of electors, but if he votes separately for electors he does not mark opposite the Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates.

In addition to these two or eight marks as the case may be, the voter will still have to make his cross mark opposite the name of the United States Senator and the candidate for Congress for whom he or she wishes to vote. And before he or she finishes marking the ticket there will be two Constitutional Amendments to be voted upon, as the voter may elect. These two amendments are usually printed in the last column and at the bottom of the ballot.

One of the proposed amendments to the State Constitution would raise the salaries of the clerks of the courts in Baltimore city from $3,500 to $4,500. The other would give members of the Legislature $300 a year in addition to the regular per diem of $5 when the Legislature is in session. At present the members are paid approximately $450 every two years. If the amendment carries they will be paid $600 additional for each two years, plus mileage.

Thousands of voters who are afraid of spoiling their ballots will no doubt pay no attention to these amendments, for the past elections have disclosed that hundreds of ballots, correctly marked as to candidates, have been rejected in the count by having been improperly marked as to the amendments.

Gain In Motor Licenses

The report of Automobile Commissioner Baughman for the fiscal year ended May 20, 1920, shows a substantial increase in receipts, as compared with the previous fiscal year, and a decrease in expenses. The gross receipts were $2,051,135.07, which was an increase of $360,441.64, or 21.5 per cent. The expenses were $163,417.78, as compared with $168,626.99 in the previous year, a saving of $5,209.21.

Mr. Baughman also reported that while the total number of licenses of all kinds issued during the year was 318,315, which was an increase of 37.6 per cent. over the previous year, the number of deaths resulting from automobile accidents decreased. There were 151 such deaths in the last fiscal year, which was 52 less than in the previous year.

GOLDSBOROUGH ON LIQUOR ISSUE

He Openly Advocates Stringent Prohibition Enforcement

A letter from the Hon. T. Allan Goldsborough, Democratic candidate for Congress, to L. Atwood Bennett, Esq., of Salisbury, defining his position on the temperance question:

October 12th, 1920.
L. Atwood Bennett, Esq.,
Salisbury, Md.

My Dear Mr. Bennett:—I have your letter in which you so kindly express absolute confidence in my position on the Temperance question and in which you assure me of your earnest and enthusiastic support.

I gather from your letter, however, that the Republican party is trying to create the impression among the womanhood of Wicomico county that I favor a modification of the Volstead Act.

My views are as follows:

(1) The Constitution does not permit the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors.

(2) It is the sworn duty of a Congressman to support the Constitution.

(3) If elected to Congress I will not vote to increase the alcoholic content of one-half of one per cent., as prescribed by the Volstead Act, but will vote and use my influence to prevent any increase.

(4) If elected to Congress I will not vote for any modification of the Volstead Act unless it be a modification which will make National Prohibition more effective than the Volstead Act makes it; in other words, it is clearly a Congressman's duty to vote as a "friend of the Constitution and not as an enemy."

I would like to say also that during the month of August I took a trip to Baltimore and also to New York and talked with a great many women in the crowded sections of South Baltimore and on New York's East side. I found they regarded Prohibition as a God-send. Investigation shows jails and penitentiaries to be comparatively empty, bread lines deserted, and the Mission Stations almost out of business.

I have hesitated to enter into a public discussion of this matter because it has always seemed to me that an honorable man would perform his clear and obvious duty without trying to make political capital out of it, but if my silence is going to be used by a certain class of politicians to try to mislead our womanhood at this, their first election, it clearly becomes my duty to speak and to speak in language that cannot be misunderstood.

Again thanking you for your expressions of high regard and esteem, which I assure you are fully reciprocated by me, I am

Very sincerely yours,
T. ALLAN GOLDSBOROUGH

REVOLT AT THE PENITENTIARY

Three Convicts Shot—Guards Overpowered—Riot Quelled

In a desperate attempt last Wednesday afternoon to fight their way to freedom, David Bender, a murderer, and James C. Evans, a robber, serving sentences at the Maryland Penitentiary, overpowered and disarmed three guards, struck terror to their fellow-convicts and engaged in a gun fight during which Evans, Anthony Cugino, one of the Armiger case bandits, and Carlyle Webster, wife slayer, were shot. Their wounds are not fatal. Three guards were injured.

The revolt was the second within a few weeks, but it was not general and was quickly quelled. A majority of the convicts who were working in the shops at the time of the outbreak offered to assist the penitentiary officials in subduing the recalcitrants.

Police reserves summoned while the melee was at its height, and led by Marshal Carter and Deputy Marshal Henry, convinced the two desperadoes who had barricaded themselves on the fourth floor of the institution, that further fighting would mean only their deaths.

For about half an hour it seemed that the penitentiary was seething with strife. Guards, attendants, clerks and wardens, under Acting Warden Patrick Brady, swarmed about the shops, anticipating a general uprising. They were amazed to find that the turmoil had been created by only two men—and that the majority of the prisoners, fearing to be shot down in their tracks, were crying for arms, with which to fight against the mutineers. Guards, finding their colleagues, who had been attacked by Bender and Evans, helpless, began firing steadily at the two desperadoes. In the confusion, Cugino received a wound which severed a finger, and Webster got a bullet in his arm. Bender, who is serving an 18-year sentence for killing Patrolman George Sauer, of the Eastern district, escaped injury, but Evans, who is doing a five-year bit, stopped a leaden missile with his leg.

Despite his wounds, Evans tried to hold the fourth floor with his partner, until the police appeared. Then, only after Marshal Carter had assured them that they would not be attacked, the two men clambered down the steps, handed over their revolvers and surrendered.

Silence is golden. If a dog could talk he wouldn't be such a true friend.

The World's Champion Singer

By R. RAY BAKER

(© 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As Jim Hennessey stood at the top of the brown-stone steps and stupidly surveyed the white panels of the green door, it began to dawn on him through his haze that woeing Maggie Walton and promoting prize fights did not harmonize.

With a ring in his pocket he had called that afternoon with an erratically thumping heart. He had been greeted coolly, however, and Maggie had seated herself on the davenport and glared at him reproachful and said accusingly:

"Jim, this is the end of things. I can't stand it any longer." He took the newspaper which she held up and his eyes met the headline:

KALOOZO'S CONCERT IS CALLED OFF
Advance Sale of Tickets So Light Managers Couldn't Make Expenses.

"Yes, it's the end of things," Maggie continued, while tears welled in her eyes. "Since you came to town a year ago and started the fighting business, Cattole has not stood for respectable entertainment. We used to have a real musical artist once in a while, but your fights have cultivated the city's brutal tastes. This is the second attempt to get a grand opera celebrity here, and it's the second failure, since Cattole developed a thirst for blood."

"Jim, I've tried to put up with it, because I cared a lot for you, but I love music and loathe fighting. So there's no use of our continuing."

Jim made the fatal mistake of attempting reconciliation with his bank-book.

"But look, Maggie," he implored, displaying the evidence of his prosperity. "See the big wad I've laid away as a result of the fights. Why, we could get married tomorrow. Let's do it. See, I've brought the ring."

Flame flared in Maggie's black eyes. With majesty and grandeur she rose to her feet.

"Go away, Jim Hennessey. I'd rather trim hats the rest of my life than marry the richest man in the world, unless he gained his wealth by some decent method."

"But, Maggie—" he protested, holding the bankbook before her.

"Don't Maggie me!" she cried, pushing him into the hall and out on the steps. "Do something worth while before you ask me to wear a ring."

Having surveyed the panels of the green door to his satisfaction, Jim shrugged his shoulders and made his way slowly to the home of the "Daily Banner." He had practically completed negotiations for an exhibition by the world's champion heavyweight, and it was the correct thing to consult the "Banner" sporting editor.

Jim walked dejectedly up the stairs to the editorial room. The sporting editor was busy, so Jim waited, and looked abstractedly out of a window. He saw a young couple pass, arm-in-arm, chatting blithely, and in a vacant lot two newsboys were battling each other while an admiring throng urged them on. Jim felt sick.

The sporting editor finished his work, approached him, rubbing his hands and grinning, and asked for a cigarette.

"Well, do we get the big bout?" he inquired affably, obtaining a match from the same source.

Jim turned from the window with a vacant stare.

"Ray, Bill," he asked thoughtfully, "who is the world's champion singer?"

It was about three months later that a shadowy name man, who appeared to have dressed with a fashion plate for a mirror, ascended the brown-stone steps and pressed the button beside the green door with white panels.

Maggie ushered him in. She looked exquisite in an evening dress she had made herself for this particular evening, and which on the morrow would be ripped ruthlessly in the process of transformation into a more serviceable every-day garment.

"Be seated, Mr. Langford," she told the young man, who deigned to deposit himself on the davenport. "You can't realize how I appreciate your invitation. I could conceive of no greater treat than to be present at a concert by Tezenatta. To think she should appear in Cattole's! Why, she's one of the world's greatest vocal artists, if not the greatest. Music lovers should extend a vote of thanks to Professor Labello, who is backing the enterprise. The brute population had its opportunity two months ago, when the heavyweight champion was here; and now we have a chance."

Mr. Langford shifted his position on the davenport. He had been one of the brutes who witnessed the champion's exhibition and had been one of the loudest to applaud. Mr. Langford's soul devoted only a small, remote corner to the ethereal, and he looked forward to Tezenatta's concert with little enthusiasm. His only object in inviting Maggie to the concert was a desire to be with her; for she had long been the object of his admiration.

The music lovers were appreciative, especially the first five rows of the orchestra section, where tickets were $5 each. The armory was filled, and this was a source of gratification to Maggie, who remarked:

"Now Cattole can be proud of herself. The audience that saw the pugilist couldn't have been larger. Professor Labello has resurrected Cattole's soul. Art has triumphed over brute."

Mr. Langford swallowed a yawn in the blooming stage.

After the concert Jim Hennessey sat in his bare room and smoked a pipe while he fingered the pages of a pocket notebook that served as a ledger.

"Yes, the heavyweight champ netted a nice sum," he mused, "nearly three thousand net profit."

A shrill female voice at the foot of the stairs interrupted his calculations. "Mr. Hennessey, there's a lady on the phone."

He went downstairs, but returned presently and adjusted his tie and wiped his shoes and creased his hat carefully. He left the house and walked several blocks before turning into a side street. Under a light at the next corner he paused, took out his pocket ledger and opened it.

"Yes," he mused, "the heavyweight champ was a good investment."

As he turned the pages a whimsical smile crept across his face.

"But this is different. Think of an initial outlay of four thousand, and then imagine giving away two thousand dollars' worth of passes to fill the best seats. And the gate receipts—only a thousand! Net profits? There ain't none! It's three thousand dollars' worth of net losses!"

Jim put the book in his pocket and continued his walk. A block farther on he was stopped by a debonair young man who appeared to have dressed with a fashion plate for a mirror.

"You're a smart one, aren't you," sneered the interloper. "Bill Jordan of the 'Banner' told us all about it—down at Boltwood's cafe; how you promoted the concert and used Labello's name to hide your connection. You deserve a medal of leather."

Jim smiled cheerfully and walked on without replying. He began to whistle, but the sound did not make the night birds envious; for Jim was not the world's champion whistler. But he felt like some kind of a champion as he mounted the brown-stone steps and pressed the button beside the green door with white panels.

FATE'S JOKE ON THE CRITIC

Woman Henceforth Will Be Slower to Find Fault With the Way Other Folks Dress.

A woman living on the upper East side of New York was being escorted through West Forty-ninth street on a recent evening on her way to her favorite moving picture house in Broadway. To her escort she remarked:

"Do look at the skirt on the woman just ahead of us. It is not hung right. It sags on the left side and hitches up on the right side. If I couldn't put my clothes on better than that I wouldn't go out."

The speaker's disapproval was hardly voiced when she gasped, clutched at one of her hips, then at the other, then whispered tragically to her escort:

"Mercy, some of my clothing is unfashioned. It's coming down right here in the street. Dear me, what shall I do? Isn't there a hotel near? I can't hold it up."

The escort steered her into a handy restaurant and she hastened inside, emerging in a little while looking greatly relieved. As the two took up their walk toward the theater the woman said contritely:

"Guess I won't be so pert again about criticizing other women's clothing and the way it's put on."

Road Law Easy to Learn.

Highway law is not hard to understand. It is universally recognized as the clearest expressed and the simplest system of law on our statute books. It speaks, not in terms of dead phrasing, but in simple, direct, forceful language. Any motorist who cares to do so can ascertain his legal rights and liabilities in his state in 15 minutes' reading, and he won't need an attorney to interpret it for him, either.—Chesla O. Sherlock in Motor.

On Peruvian Railways.

The railways of central Peru spread out in a Y, at the right-hand end of which is Huanuco, something more than 200 miles from Lima. At every railroad station, old women crowd through the cars selling the favorite nectar of the Incas, all purchasers drinking from the same cup, and generally several from the same filling. Nearly every traveler has his own supply of a more potent native beverage.

Great Russian Port.

The harbor of Odessa, in south Russia, is formed by several stone piers and a long breakwater and is protected in every direction. It is the only port in southern Russia where ships drawing 30 feet can come directly to the docks, and the docks are larger and better equipped than those of any other Black sea port. The depth is 35 feet on one side and 13 to 17 feet on the other.

Fall of the Bastille.

Just ten days after the celebration of our own Independence day, France and all her children, no matter in what part of the world they may be, mark with peculiar emphasis the 14th of July, which day has often been termed in America "the French Fourth of July." It was on July 14, 1789, the storming of the Bastille took place.

Should Have Cured Her.

At a moving picture theater a woman was reading aloud the announcements that accompanied the pictures, oblivious to the annoyance of those in her vicinity. Suddenly her voice slowly died away, and the crowd about her was convulsed with laughter as she read this aloud, from the screen: "We hate to put ashes in anybody's ice cream, but deliver us from the woman who reads the moving picture titles aloud."

Declares Filipinos All Want Independence

Former Illinois Congressman, Back From Philippines, Gives Interesting Views on Island Affairs.

By FORMER CONGRESSMAN CLYDE H. TAVENNER.

Clyde H. Tavenner.

contact with all classes of the people.

I found, however, that the viewpoint of Americans in the Philippines, and Americans in the United States, on the subject of independence, is not the same.

The attitude of the American government, and the great mass of the people of the United States, is to consider the Philippine question from the selfish viewpoint of what is best for the Filipino people. Ninety-five per cent of the opposition to independence emanates from American investors in the islands who are quite naturally more interested in the size of their dividends than the freedom of an alien people.

The unfortunate feature of the situation is that the opponents of independence, in order to convince the people of the United States that the Philippines should not be granted their independence, find it necessary to label an entire race. To tell a sensitive Christian people that they shall not have their promised independence because they are not fit for it will in the end prove a mistaken policy. It will only make their demand for independence the stronger.

At the present time, however, the masses of the Filipino people still have absolute confidence in the good faith of America. Their loyalty and gratitude to Uncle Sam has not as yet been impaired by the misrepresentations of the retentionists. Their leaders are intelligent enough to distinguish between those Americans who, oppose their aspirations to independence for purely selfish reasons, and the great mass of the American people whom they know desire this government to do by the Filipinos only that which is just and right.

In this connection, it is interesting to review the development of the present friendly relationship between the Filipino and American peoples.

Previous to 1918 the Philippine-American relationship is declared to have been not of the best. But with the passage in that year of the Jones law by practically both the Republican and Democratic memberships of Congress, a better feeling developed. This "better feeling" has now grown into a very strong bond of sympathy and affection.

The happy attitude of the Filipino people toward America is due not principally to the fact that Americans have shown the Filipinos how to make their country a better place to live in; not principally to the fact we have superintended the implanting in the Philippines of one of the finest educational systems in the world; nor to the building of high class roads, bridges and public works—but is due principally to the fact that in the Jones law America gave the Filipinos her word of honor that as soon as a stable government could be established we would withdraw our sovereignty from the Philippine Islands.

It might, at first thought, seem strange that in their sincere appreciation of all that we have done for them the Filipino people should place most emphasis on the promise to grant them their independence. For it cannot be successfully denied that on the whole the United States has treated the Filipino people better than any nation ever treated a dependent alien people in all the days since the curtain rose on the dawn of civilization. If we do not spall it, it is a record that we can be proud of.

But it really isn't so strange that the Filipino should love us more for our promise to give them sovereignty over themselves than for our other good works, for which, after all, outside of army and navy expenditures, the Filipinos have been taxed, and properly so, for every cent of the cost. If we but reverse the situation, and place ourselves in the shoes of the Filipinos, which cannot be said to be an unfair way of getting at the other fellow's viewpoint, we shall see that it is not strange.

Suppose that Great Britain or any other power that you can think of by referring to your geography or history, should impose its sovereignty upon us against our will and then give us an infinitely better government than we now enjoy? Could any such foreign power ever succeed in convincing us that it had our welfare more at heart than we have ourselves.

But to return to my story, the Filipinos heartily thanked us for the Jones law, considering it a sort of a covenant between the Filipino and American peoples, and immediately applied themselves to the task of setting up the prescribed stable government. And they set it up. It is in the Philippines now. America's own representative in the islands, the governor general, officially reports it is there, and recommends that since the Filipinos have earnestly fulfilled their part of the agreement, America should be as prompt in carrying out its part of the contract.

So that, in a few words, it is not the Philippines that now are on trial, but the United States.

There is but one answer. America will carry out its agreement. And since we are going to do it, we cannot afford to quibble and split hairs and hesitate until our tardiness robs us of half the glory of our achievement. Let us act with a promptness and willingness really worthy of America.

And when the people of the United States set up the Philippine Republic as the first Christian democracy of the Far East, they will be building a monument to themselves that will stand throughout eternity. On that day the beacon light of hope, humanity and justice will flash around the world. Such an example by America will accomplish more for the weak and struggling peoples of the earth than the four year world war, with all its cost in life and treasure.

WHY

Indirect Lighting Is Best for the Eyes

Not long ago we substituted the electric and gas light for the old-fashioned coal oil lamp. We think we have wonderful lighting systems. According to Forrest Knapp of Colorado Agricultural college, the glare due to the use of the incandescent lamp is so great that it may counteract all of the good effects of increased intensity of illumination. Did you ever notice any discomfort from having an electric light in your field of vision? Do your eyes become tired more easily at night than in the day time?

There are two main ways in which modern lighting is done, directly and indirectly. With indirect lighting the source of illumination cannot be seen but the light is reflected from the walls and ceiling, but when direct lighting is used the source may be seen. The latter is the more common.

If our eyes hurt we get a large globe and move it closer to our work. Theoretically this should be done. But how about experience?

It has been proved that after three hours' work the efficiency of the eye is but little less when indirect lighting is used. The efficiency of the eye after three hours' work in daylight is about 98 per cent. When an indirect light is used the efficiency is about 97 per cent. Not much difference. But when direct lighting is used this efficiency drops to about 15 per cent.

The intensity of illumination has little effect when indirect lighting is used, but a very great effect when the source of light is in the field of vision. The number of indirect lights does not decrease the efficiency to any noticeable degree but when direct lighting is used the efficiency drops rapidly with an increase in the number of lighting units.

Save your eyes.

ALWAYS MATTER OF POLITICS

Why Presidency of the United States Has Been Described as a Web of Fate.

The presidency has been described as a web of fate, because men in office have either assisted friends of theirs into the White House, or been compelled to bow low before the political drives of bitter enemies.

But before George Washington was named president despite his many enemies—between the call to arms in 1775 and the establishment of the Constitution—four men were virtually the presidency of the United States, says William Estabrook Chancellor in his book on "Our Presidents and Their Office." They were not individually presidents, but in combination they operated somewhat as a president operates. These four men were Samuel Adams, Patrick Henry, John Hancock and Benjamin Franklin. By far the ablest of these was Franklin. He had printing establishments in ten cities, including the West Indies. He financed Braddock's expedition, and made Washington a hero.

Had there been no war-hero there would have been no revolution, and consequently no president. Franklin hated war; Patrick Henry wanted it; Adams was the master politician, and though Hancock wanted to be commander-in-chief, he maneuvered cleverly, and with the aid of John Adams put Washington through.

Why Coke Is Good Fuel.

Coke does not give quite as much heat per ton as high grade anthracite coal; but in many instances the average grade of coke is available at a lower cost per ton than high grade anthracite, and as a special inducement some dealers give a few hundred pounds extra per ton of coke. In this case the purchaser of a ton of coke will realize about the same efficiency in total heat units as if he had purchased a ton of anthracite, says the Scientific American.

Coke weighs about 28 pounds per cubic foot for standard size, while anthracite coal weighs 50 pounds per cubic foot. It will, therefore, be seen that a ton of coke will require almost twice the volume or cubic feet of storage space that a ton of anthracite coal requires.

Why Winter Fruits Are Good.

Dried figs contain more than three times the nutrient of fresh eggs. Figs are justly entitled to a place among the food fruits. In the dry state or stewed they are an excellent food for children in cold weather. About five ounces of figs and a pint of milk make a sustaining meal for an adult. Weight for weight, dates are more nourishing than bread. In desert tracts, this fruit is almost the only source of nourishment for men and women, camels, horses and other animals.

How to Kill Mosquitoes.

M. Roubaud of the Pasteur Institute in Paris has now discovered a method of destroying the larvae of mosquitoes by sprinkling powdered formaline on the surface of the water. This does not injure fish or make water impossible to drink, and it is also said to be much more rapid and effective than oil.

How Asbestos Withstands Acids.

Asbestos is the queerest mineral in the world and is rapidly becoming one of the most important. It is impervious to the fiercest heat and can also withstand acids which would eat up almost any metal. Today its principal value is for packing marine engines and there is nothing else to compare with it for this purpose.

WORLD ABOUT THE SAME

Today, as in Ages Past, There Are Those Who Seek the Simple, "Old-Fashioned" Girl.

A London correspondent, remarks the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser, discovers a rollicking satire upon people of the day, that is of those of us who gravely shake our heads as we contemplate the manners and dress of many young folk of the day. The correspondent finds that in the Saturday Review of fifty years ago the following article was printed.

"The girl of the period is a creature who dyes her hair and paints her face as the first articles of her personal religion—a creature whose sole idea of life is fun, whose sole aim is unbounded luxury, and whose dress is the chief object of such thought and intellect as she possesses. Her main endeavor is to outlive her neighbors in the extravagance of fashion. If a sensible fashion lifts the gown out of the mud she raises hers.

"All men whose opinion is worth having prefer the simple and genuine girl of the past, with her tender little ways and pretty bashful modesties, to this loud and rampant modernization, with her false red hair and painted skin, talking slang as glibly as a man and by preference leading the conversation to doubtful subjects . . . All we can do is to wait patiently until the national madness has passed out and women have come back again to the old English idea."

Not a few writers and private talkers have said things to the same effect as the foregoing. We hear it every day and hearing it we may accept it as a scathing indictment of the new girl, just as our forbears accepted the foregoing article as a just indictment of the girls of a half century ago.

Headstrong, forward and disobedient young people were known long before the time of the Review's editorial. Readers of the "Last Days of Pompeii," may recall the lamentations of a chief character that young people of his time were not as reverent and respectful in the presence of their elders as they had been in a former generation. Neither were they as religious.

Certain it is that the Apostle Paul, in writing those epistolary messages thought it pertinent and timely to remind women not to be too forward in church. As it appeared to him it was necessary for him, as an authority, to repress women, warning them specifically against bobbing their hair.

It seems that the race has always stopped to ask now and then: "What has become of the old-fashioned girl who," etc.

De Soto's Route.

Council Bend, Miss., has taken from Memphis, Tenn., the honor of being the point at which De Soto first saw the mighty Mississippi. Dr. J. C. Rowland of Jackson, Miss., who has traced De Soto's route clear across Mississippi, guided by the narratives of De Soto's companions, in which the topography of the country was fully described, has located the great Indian mound at which the adventurous explorer and his followers camped the night before they saw the Father of Waters. On this, the highest Indian mound in Mississippi, a monument will be erected to De Soto.

Doctor Rowland is convinced that De Soto first beheld the great river at Council Bend. The explorer's famous trip from the point where Tampa, Fla., is now located, was made in 1541, 24 years before St. Augustine was founded, and 75 before the Mayflower completed its first voyage.

Trying to Economize.

I visited a cash-and-carry grocery. Their leader for the day was rice. I bought five pounds and several other articles and asked to have extra paper on the rice, but it was refused.

Struggling up the high steps of a street car with my many bundles, I stumbled; something pierced the bag of rice, and it began to ooze and fall. Of course the car was crowded, and as I squeezed in it suddenly lurched ahead. I made a frantic effort to save my rice, letting everything else go.

Kindly fellow passengers tried to help, hiding their laughter as best they could. I had the misery of being commiserated and laughed at, besides losing all my rice, and this has finished my efforts at trying to beat the old high cost of living.—Chicago Tribune.

The Sun Volcano.

Not long ago at the Yerkes Observatory an eruption was observed (and photographed) on the rim of the sun which threw up material to a height of 500,000 miles. One cloud of it, which appeared as if floating detached, was reckoned to have some thousands of times the volume of the earth.

We are accustomed to regard great volcanic explosions on the earth as the most appalling of natural phenomena, but they are feeble and trifling disturbances compared with the outbursts which are continually taking place all over the body of the sun.—Kansas City Star.

Has Proper Regard for Rooster.

Charles Collins of Oak Hill, Litchfield, Mo., thinks so much of a White Wyandotte rooster that he encourages him to roost nights on the footboard of his bed and feeds him every little while. This is because Mr. Collins was awakened one night by the excited crowing of the rooster, which had somehow got into the house, and found when he got up to investigate that the house was on fire. Anything that that rooster wants hereafter he must have.

The Actual Value of The Nash Six Has Never Been so Clearly Recognized As it is Right Now

That is because motor car buyers are scrutinizing and comparing automobile values now as they have not done for years.

A market such as this always brings into sharp relief values that are really sound.

It shows which cars are overpriced and which cars are worth every dollar asked for them.

This process of comparison is emphasizing anew the superiority of Nash Six value.

It is making plain just how low priced the Nash Six is in comparison with those cars which even approximate it in cost.

THE NASH MOTORS COMPANY, Kenosha, Wisconsin

It is gratifying to Nash Six owners and those contemplating its purchase to find that while the increased price of other cars since 1917 has averaged 76%, the Nash Six has increased but 31%; really 24% considering the addition of cord tires and other equipment as standard.

The soundness of Nash policies has been demonstrated.

You may purchase a Nash Six now or at any time with the positive assurance that the price represents actual, intrinsic value plus the smallest possible manufacturer's profit.

When You Feel Out of Sorts And See Things With a Dull Eye

LOOK TO YOUR BLOOD

Pale Complexions, Languid Feelings, Lowered Vitality, Need More Red Blood. Take Pepto-Mangan

So many people spend week after week feeling down and out. They never stop to think that something really is the matter. They satisfy themselves by saying, "Oh, I'm not sick. I'll be all right tomorrow."

And tomorrow comes again and again. Still they feel depressed and languid, scarcely able to get around.

If you don't feel like yourself, you are not yourself. If you are weak and pale, your blood needs strengthening. You should know about Pepto-Mangan, that famous blood tonic. Physicians recommend it and prescribe it because it contains just the ingredients needed to make red blood. It renews your energy, puts you where you ought to be. Begin with today. Get the tablets if they will be more convenient to take than the liquid. Both have the same medicinal properties. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Ask for "Gude's" and be sure that the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package.—Advertisement.

CAMERA INSTEAD OF RIFLE

Big Game Hunters Get the Thrill of the Sport Without the Useless Slaughter.

It was a notable event in the history of the wild life of our country when the first big game hunter hung up his rifle and took to the woods with a camera.

Ever since the first photographer went afield with a sportsman, the camera man has been the best exponent and advertiser of the prowess of the man with a gun. During the days of the slow and cumbersome wet plate and long exposures the alert and sudden wild animal was about as unattainable pictorially as the canals of Mars.

The dry plate opened up great possibilities in the photographing of dead game in its haunts. From 1884 onward American hunters of big game joyously welcomed the startling pictures made by Laton A. Huffman of Miles City, Mont. Mr. Huffman was a true sportsman, a fine shot, and as a photographer of hunting scenes he long stood without a rival. Never will I forget the thrills that I received in his little old log cabin studio in "Milestown," when he showed me his stereoscope views of "elk and dead grizzlies, glory enough for one day": a mountain sheep ram on the brink of a precipice, many buffalo-killing pictures, and antelope and deer galore. I think that Mr. Huffman—who still lives and photographs—enjoys the distinction of having had more photographs stolen for publication without credit than any other camera man on earth; and that, I know, is a large order.

American sportsmen hailed with joy the birth of the light, ever-ready, universal-focus camera. It was the opening of a new and delightful field of Christian endeavor. It presented a highway of escape from the flood of game-slaughter photographs that had been sweeping over the continent like a deluge.—"Masterpieces of Wild Animal Photography," by William T. Hornaday, in Scribner.

When Nature Conspires.

We are told that the "walking and climbing leaves" of Australia were, for over half a century, among the best attested of natural wonders.

It is related that a party of sailors, wandering inland, sat down to rest under a tree. A gust of wind shook to earth several dead and brown leaves. These, after remaining prone on the ground for a few minutes, proceeded to show signs of life and crawl toward the trunk, which they ascended, and attached themselves to their respective twigs.

Hence, the sailor-men, who promptly ran away, said the spot was bewitched.

The simple fact turned out to be that the so-called leaves were really leaf-shaped insects, having long, pendulous legs, which could be folded out of sight, and possessing the chameleon-like power of varying their color to correspond with that of the foliage they were clinging to.

Upon being shaken to the ground, instinct taught them to seek the shelter of the friendly leaves again as soon as possible.—Exchange.

Gab Tank, Terrified Waiters.

Pandemonium reigned in El Prado cafe for a few fast and furious seconds, the Havana Post states.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, when the extra waiters were busy handling the evening's largest crowd, there suddenly burst out in the cafe a rapid succession of short, sharp, hissing sounds:

Psst—psst—psst!

It seemed as though all Havana was suddenly giving the well known Cuban call for service. A hundred thousand people crowding about the cafe and shouting "Psst, chico!" could not have created more excitement. Waiters looked under chairs, behind the bar, rushed to all their customers, wiped off tables frantically, tossed their napkins desperately in midair and gave other signs of frenzy.

The fuss did not begin to abate until the proprietor, red faced and sweating with exertion, discovered the source of the hissing sounds. A large cylinder of the carbonated gas in the corner of the cafe had sprung a leak, the gas hissing mysteriously as each whiff of it escaped.

Vital Statistics.

One of the census men called at the home of a workman in New York, noted in his neighborhood as a great reader and a wiseacre for statistics. He found the man poring over an encyclopedia.

"How many children have you?" asked the census taker.

"I have just three—and that's all there will be too," replied the man, looking up from his book of knowledge.

"All right, by why so positive?"

"According to this book here," said the man with deadly seriousness, "every fourth child born in the world is a Chihaman!"—Saturday Evening Post.

American Women Have Prettiest Feet. A well-known French shoe manufacturer states that the shoe is the foundation of a woman's wardrobe. If she is not well shod, it spoils her appearance.

He says that American women have the prettiest feet in the world, and appreciate the value of the low-heeled shoe. For walking, this manufacturer insists the low-heeled shoe is the only one permissible. For wear around the house, he advocates sandals that hold the feet in shape, yet yield sufficiently to allow them to rest.

Money is said to talk and some of it being put up on base ball also smells.

A good many people think base ball has as many crooks as curved pitching.

Prices are down a little from the highest peak but they are still above the line of perpetual snows.

Formerly the red Indians used to scalp the palefaces for nothing and now they shear sheep for $12 a day.

The blush of youth may look very rosy but those who have sampled it says it often has a chemical taste.

A good many people are getting arrested for speeding autos but a lot more are getting run over by the speeders.

It would be a hard world for the get-rich-quick promoters if it were not for the widows, orphans and school teachers.

Mother says she is convinced that there is dirty work in football as the boys get their padded trousers terribly soiled.

Some of the people who swipe fruit along the roadsides wonder why farmers don't raise more and keep the market supplied.

Cities are growing seven times as fast as the country and all those people who flock into the big towns are kicking because food costs more.

Some folks long for the good old times when people used to vote for the side that got the most tallow candles in the windows along the parade route.

The people who stop their papers because they don't agree with the editor's opinion, must be awfully surprised when the next issue comes out on time.

Perhaps one reason why there has been no more betting on elections this year is that the gamblers may have thought base ball is a surer thing.

If ball games are going to be sold out it would be better to attach a coupon to each ticket and let the game go to the side that buys the most admissions.

THE URBAN AGE

When the Civil War closed the United States was a country of rural dwellers.
New York did not obtain a million population until considerably after 1870.
Chicago at the close of the Civil War had something over 200,000 people. San Francisco had not reached 100,000. The masses of the people lived in country towns and villages.

The census results for 1920 show that for the first time rural population is in the minority. It is figured that 52 percent of the people live in incorporated towns of 2500 or more people.

The change of the nation from a predominantly rural character brings advantages and disadvantages. It makes it easier to provide the facilities of modern progress. Urban life produces an alert type of people who think and act quickly.

At the same time urban life brings people too closely together. Great masses of them huddle into contracted quarters, where they become restless and discontented. Many develop into rolling stones, who never accomplish any permanent results in life. Multitudes of city dwellers seem to have no time to think. Their attention is taken up by the surface glitter of city life.
They do not read good literature or familiarize themselves with the problems of the times or develop into intelligent citizens.

There are two great parallel problems, the rural problem and the urban problem. The first is to provide the facilities of modern progress to the remote country. The second is to develop good citizenship and community spirit among the shifting hordes of the great cities.

The King Of Sports

The real thrill of the sporting season was furnished at the Ontario race track last Tuesday, and for genuine sporting blood Man-o-War is the hero of the hour. It is not wholly complimentary to mankind that base ball, in which there is opportunity and incentive for the brain and brawn of men to prove themselves in competitive test, should be under a cloud, and that base should be defied to throw a race or do anything but his best when called upon by his "master."—Philadelphia Evening Herald.

RED PROPAGANDA

The Russian Bolsheviks have so far shown no considerable ability in any form of human organization. They have destroyed the industries of their country. The population in the large towns and cities is near starvation.

But in one respect the Reds have made good and this is in propaganda.
They have shown themselves consummate masters of the art of antagonism, unrest, hatred and revolt among other people.

To some extent their success in this line has been due to the enormous sums of gold that they have confiscated from the Czar's treasury. This has given them a vast fund with which to support their agents all over the world.

But even apart from this money they have shown skill in their ability to spread suspicion, hate and all the forces of destruction. You may best their armies in the field but their agents penetrate boundaries with the mysterious certainty of a deadly epidemic. By the fatal powers of sophistry they infect the minds of men with hostility to all the systems of government and industry that have been built up as the result of thirty centuries of experience. But there is a limit to the power of lies.

The brains and sound sense of the world ought not to sit still while these propagandists are promoting this foul contagion of treason and anarchy. There should be a propaganda of reason, justice and wisdom to offset it. The red emissaries should not be permitted to deceive their dupes so easily. Systematic effort should be made everywhere to convince people that they will fare the best where individual enterprise is encouraged, where property is safe, where everyone is permitted to reap the fruits of his own toil, and that there is no country on earth where more is done for human welfare than in America.

Financial Loss Due To Colds

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. Much of this loss can be avoided by treating every cold as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear.
Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won a wide reputation and immense sale by its cures of this disease. Try it. You are certain to be pleased with its pleasant taste and the prompt relief which it affords.

POCKET MONEY

A manufacturer recently took a census of his employees to find out how much money they were carrying around in their pockets. He found that they averaged to carry $28 each. A financial writer protests against this habit on the ground that it withdraws from circulation and productive enterprises a big sum of money. He figures that if half the people are carrying around such sums it would withdraw from business $1,500,000,000.

A prudent man can carry money around in his pocket and keep it. But others make it their regular practice to spend it as fast as they have the cash in hand.

A considerable share of money thus carried is lost. Few people who find money make much effort to restore it to the rightful owner. The habit of depositing money, not immediately needed, in the banks of Princess Anne promotes individual prosperity and provides funds for industries and house building.

Got Her Good Health Out Of a Bottle

Mrs. Edward Raifinder, Wabash,
Ind., says that she owes her good health
to Chamberlain's Tablets. She suffered from distress after eating and constipation and was completely cured by the use of these tablets.

mentum of the buying power of the country. Henry Ford says, "The war is over and it is time war prices were over. There is no sense or wisdom in trying to maintain an artificial standard of values. For the best interests of all it is time a real practical effort was made to bring the business of the country and the life of

Crying For Bread

Photo International.
New East Relief Workers Distributing Bread to Newly Arrived Armenian Refugees in Constantinople.

The Constantinople district of the Near East Relief is wonderfully organized. All the bakeries which formerly supplied the Turkish army, under German management, have been taken over by the Near East Relief, and 20,000 loaves of bread are baked and distributed daily. Placed side by side, these loaves would make a line 280 miles long, for the five months that the Near East Relief has operated its consolidated bakeries in Constantinople, alone.

The Near East Relief, with offices in every state, is asking for funds to go on with this work.

Harem Victim Tells Story

Stolen from her home on the night before her wedding and imprisoned for five years in a Turkish harem, Aghavni Millian, a beautiful nineteen-year-old Armenian girl from Bitlis, has at last been discovered by her lover and through the assistance of the Near East Relief forcibly taken from her master and brought to one of the American Rescue Homes in Constantinople. Here she will stay until arrangements can be made for her marriage and her return to her old home.

"My story—it is like hundreds of others," Aghavni said simply. "I was stolen from my home on the night that the massacres first began in Bitlis. It was the night before I was to have been married. I was just folding my wedding veil away when the Turkish soldiers broke into the house. They carried me off. I—They took me up to Constantinople to the house of the man"—She stopped and put one hand over her eyes, a hand that bore the tell-tale tattoo of her Turkish master.

"But what does my story matter?" she exclaimed. "I am only one of so many. It is my people and their future that matters. Somehow we must rebuild our nation and show to the Turks who tried to beat out our life and to the whole world that, despite what we have suffered, Armenia is still unconquerable."

Aghavni Millian is, as she says, only one of many. It is estimated that one hundred thousand girls are still held captive in Turkish harems. The Near East Relief, America's official agent in Armenia, is making this work of rescue one of the most important features of its program, and it is to them and the support they receive from the American people that Aghavni's unfortunate sisters, still captive, must look for their release.

PAYING FOR WANTON WASTE

Settlers Have Lived to Regret the Ruthless Destruction of Their Black Walnut Trees.

Not many years ago the settlers of the middle West were girdling black walnut trees in order to kill them, the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle observes. They were too lazy to cut them down and took this method to destroy the life of the trees, so that they might plant corn and sow grain among the dead and leafless trees. In some localities mills were sawing the walnut logs into lumber for all purposes, even for boarding, floors and clapboards, inside finish and everything that could be made from it; and many a good walnut board has been split up for kindling.

Walnut was then cheap and plentiful. The settlers wanted to clear the land, and no one thought that the timber would become exhausted. Then the forests were full of grand old trees, any one of which would today pay the possessor the purchase price of many acres of land.

Today walnut is hard to find and the price is very high, as is illustrated by the fact that a Maryland farmer recently sold four old walnut stumps for $1,000—just such stumps as the farmers worked hard to pull and burn to get them out of the way.

Walnut is not alone in its scarcity, but the many purposes for which wood could be used made it a wood of great value, and now efforts are being made to reforest the denuded lands with black walnut. It is safe to assume that those little trees will be watched with great care until they grow to merchantable size, and then others will be set to replace the cuttings. There will be no more ruthless destruction of the forests, whether it be walnut or any other variety of wood. The people have learned a lesson; a costly one, it is true, but one that will never be forgotten.

The demands for timber are such that all governments are now protecting the forests, and the time is not far distant when the owners of timber and timber lands will be the men to whom the people will take off their hats, and to whom they will even get down upon their knees, so to speak, for timber will be king.

15. The General Assembly may continue its session so long as in its judgment the public interest may require for a period not longer than ninety days; and each member thereof shall receive a compensation of three hundred dollars per annum and five dollars per diem for every day he shall attend the session, but not for such days as he may be absent, unless absent on account of sickness or by leave of the House of which he is a member and he shall also receive such mileage as may be allowed by law, not exceeding twenty cents per mile; and the presiding officer of each House shall receive an additional compensation of five dollars per diem. When the General Assembly shall be convened by proclamation of the Governor, the session shall not continue longer than thirty days, and in such case the compensation shall be the same as herein prescribed.

HEMPHILL EXPLAINS ORGANIZATION OF NEAR EAST RELIEF

Prominent New York Banker Says Aim Is 100% Relief of Starving Peoples.

"Just what is the Near East Relief? Is the question that many people are asking whose interests have been awakened to the terrible conditions existing in the Levant today," says Alexander J. Hemphill, President of the Guarantee Trust Company and well known New York banker and financier. "In present facts, the Near East Relief is a body incorporated by act of Congress the object of which is to provide relief and to assist in the repatriation, rehabilitation and re-establishment of suffering and dependent people of the Near East and adjacent areas; to provide for the care of orphans and widows and to promote the social, economic and industrial well-

ALEXANDER J. HEMPHILL.

fare of those who have been rendered destitute or dependent, directly or indirectly, by the vicissitudes of war, the cruelties of men or other causes beyond their control.

100 Per Cent Relief.

"The aim of the organization is 100 per cent relief, the relief which puts those aided on a self-supporting basis, which instills in them a confidence for the future, places in their hands the means with which to begin life anew, and in their hearts the courage to go on. Work, that is the prescription subscribed and provided by those loyal men and women who have journeyed into perilous places for the sake of their fellow men; to make these people independent for the future, to encourage the flickering fire of national pride.

"There are 82,291 workers employed in the industrial establishments of the Near East Relief, where wool is furnished for the women to spin and weave, and all the girls who are strong enough are washing wool, sewing beds, grinding and sifting wheat, tailoring and learning to make lace. The big problem is to make these women independent.

"About 500 American men and women, Near East Relief workers, are now in the field, including 36 eminent physicians and surgeons, 76 nurses, 7 mechanics, 15 industrial experts, 16 agriculturists, 14 bacteriologists, 197 relief workers, 25 supply and transport workers, 19 teachers, 20 administrators, 94 secretaries, 7 engineers and 45 army officers.

Where Money Goes.

"Funds for relief purposes are distributed in two ways: First, the various relief centers are authorized by the Executive Committee to draw sight drafts on New York for specific amounts each month; second, by supplies purchased in America, the major portion of which are shipped to the committee warehouses at Derindje, and the remainder either to Beyrouth or Batoum.

"The relief is rapidly expanding and meeting the situation, but the future depends on the continuation of American support."

According to Mr. Hemphill, the need for American help to see the destitute peoples of the Near East through the crisis of present conditions is greater now than ever before on account of the uncertainty as to the future, the truculence of the Turkish government and the danger of bolshevism from Russia, which threatens to engulf the whole of Armenia.

Who Direct the Work.

Mr. Hemphill is the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Near East Relief. Other members are Dr. James L. Barton, Secretary of the Foreign Department of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; Edwin M. Hutkley, banker, of Spencer Trask & Co., New York; Judge Abram I. Elkus, former United States Ambassador to Turkey; Harold A. Hatch, a well known New York cotton man; Herbert Hoover; William B. Miller, one of the Secretaries of the Interchurch World Movement; Henry Morgenthau, United States Ambassador to Mexico; Edgar Rickard of the American Relief Administration; Charles V. Vickrey, who is Secretary of the Near East Relief; and Dr. Stanley White, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

WILL OBSERVE BUNDLE DAY

NEAR EAST RELIEF COMMITTEE ASKS FOR OLD CLOTHES FOR ARMENIAN SUFFERERS.

AT BALTIMORE TUESDAY, OCT. 19.

Send Your Cast Off Garments To The Public Schools, 453 Title Building, Baltimore, Or Enoch Pratt Library.

Say Boy, are you sporting a good suit today?

And, little Lady, are you wearing a pretty dress?

You're both happy, we're sure.

But do you know that thousands of little folks and their fathers and mothers too, will freeze to death in Armenia this winter if we don't help them?

They need the old clothes you laid aside when you got your nice school duds. The old clothes you can spare will help to save those freezing destitute sufferers.

Make up a bundle and take it to the nearest Public School, from which it will be forwarded free. And don't forget the old clothes of Father and Mother, Sister and Brother; take them along too. When? Why, on Bundle Day. At Baltimore, Tuesday, October 19th.

Former Ambassador Henry Morgenthau, as a member of the executive committee of the Near East Relief, has issued an appeal for second hand clothing to be sent to Armenia, to prevent the appalling death list of last year being repeated again this winter.

"I have before me a cable from Charles V. Vickrey, secretary of the Near East Relief," Mr. Morgenthau said. "Mr. Vickrey was in Constantinople when he sent the message, just returned from a trip of inspection of Transcaucasia.

"The need for old clothes in the Caucasus is simply indescribable," he cables. "The quantity necessary is unlimited."

The plea that touched the heart

BUNDLE DAY

TUES. OCT. 19

NEAR EAST RELIEF

The greater part of the Armenian Republic is at a very high altitude, and consequently bitterly cold in winter. Erivan, the capital, is 3,000 feet high, on the plain of Mt. Ararat. Kars is 5,260 feet, and there are 6,000 little children at Kars under American care. Alexandropol, where 10,000 orphans are housed in barracks by the Near East Relief, is 4,620 feet. At Erivan the Near East Relief is clothing and housing 7,768 children and feeding 25,872 others, who are clothed and housed as best they can by their own families. At 6,000 feet altitude, these 25,000 little ones face death from the rigors of a mountainous winter, unless they have sufficient clothing. There are no window panes left in Armenia, anywhere. In the Near East Relief orphanages we use oiled paper to keep out the cold.

"These orphaned boys and girls constitute the hope of the future in the Near East. They are the coming generation who will have to create a peaceful, civilized, prosperous Armenia if that land is ever to be regenerated at all. The future depends, therefore, upon the aid we give them now."

In a recent interview with Walter Duranty, of the New York Times, Col. Haskell, who had been in charge of the Near East Relief Work in Transcaucasia, declared that "without America there would be no Armenian problem any more. Armenian territory would remain, but the Armenian people would have ceased to exist. The lives literally of the whole nation have been saved by America!"

"A great work has been almost carried through in seeing Armenia through the valley of the shadow of death to peace and prosperity beyond. A little more patience and another effort and this winter will have passed, and the New Year may bring a permanent solution of the Armenian problem. Notwithstanding America's attitude on the mandate over Armenia is depending upon the American people and has not lost her confidence in us."

For the state of Maryland "Bundle Day" will be observed Tuesday, October 19, and will afford a splendid occasion for the exercise of charity toward those unfortunates whose needs cry aloud. Things that are needed are coats, dresses, sweaters, skirts, blankets, petticoats, overcoats, heavy hose and underwear, woolen gloves and mittens, boots and shoes and CHILDREN'S CLOTHES OF EVERY SORT. Send these articles of discarded clothing to any Public School or State Headquarters, 453 Title Building, Baltimore, or to the Enoch Pratt Library. They will be collected and forwarded to their destination by the proper parties.

To Protect Aluminum.

To protect aluminum and aluminum alloys from corrosion, says the Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, L. von Grotthuss has tried browning the metal electrolytically. By using this method, the aluminum may be bent or rolled without the coating. Aluminum thus treated was immersed in a salt solution for two months without showing the slightest trace of corrosion.—Chemical Round Table.

Dreaming of Ditches.

It's bad luck to dream of ditches. If they are deep, it foretells all kinds of misfortune, lessened in degree only by growing shallowness. Thieves will rob your house. When your children grow up they will be unfaithful. If you are in love, you'll have a quarrel with your sweetheart. If you are in business, you will suffer heavy loss.—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Ill-Flated Orchid Hunters.

Not very long ago a New York man, traversing a Venezuelan forest on an exploring expedition, came upon a hut wherein were found three human skeletons and thousands of dead orchid plants. From between the ribs of one of the skeletons grew an orchid of rare beauty. The three unfortunates had evidently been murdered.

Esparto.

Esparto grows throughout extensive districts in the south of Spain, and a poorer quality is found on large areas of poor and sandy lands in Algeria and Tunis. Esparto fiber has been used for centuries in Spain, and the manufacture of matting, baskets and cordage exclusively of esparto dates from the time of the Moorish occupation.

Metal Pen Result of Accident.

Some 80 years ago Joseph Gillitt was a working jeweler in Birmingham, England. One day, he accidentally split one of his fine steel tools, and, being suddenly required to sign a receipt, and not finding a pen handy, he used the split tool as a substitute. This happy accident is said to have led to the idea of making pens of metal.

"Pieces of Eight"

These are gold pieces which were coined early in the seventeenth century at the Amsterdam mint, the Netherlands being under Spanish rule at the time. They were worth eight Spanish reals, or about one Spanish Peruvian dollar, and were coined at the time that Spain was at the height of its power and prosperity.

Sculpture of Poe.

Olaf Mjorkman, American-Scandinavian sculptor, has created an impressionistic sculpture of Edgar Allan Poe, with the raven hovering over the head of the great American poet. It is considered one of the most remarkable conceptions of the subject.—Argonaut.

The Oldest Piano.

The oldest piano in existence was made by Cristofori in the year 1720, and is still in good condition. But its sound is more like that of a harp than a piano, for its wires, instead of being struck by hammers are plucked by points of quill or of hard leather.

No Kentucky Silver Mines.

The bureau of mines states that there are no silver mines in Kentucky. There is an old legend which prevails throughout the country regarding lost silver mines in that state, but there is no foundation for it.

Keep Young.

Keep serene. Live simply. Yet always dare and do; strive, work, play, love, learn intensely. Vivid enjoyment of each day, giving up everything and relaxing each night. That is the way to keep young.

Difficult Climbing.

MARYLAND STATE AGRICULTURAL CONVENTION

THE GREAT ANNUAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN SALISBURY, WICOMICO COUNTY, ON NOVEMBER 9, 10 & 11.

Salisbury is the metropolis of the Eastern Shore and one of the most progressive towns in the State of Maryland. Its population is approximately 15,000 people; the surrounding country is in a most highly developed state of cultivation and great preparations are being made by the people of the Eastern Shore to make this convention one of the most interesting and educational of any convention that has been held in our state.

The good people of Salisbury are noted for their most generous hospitality. The beautiful homes of the town, in addition to the hotels, will be thrown open on this occasion to take care of the visitors from all parts of the State. Everything is being done to make you comfortable and you will be missing a great opportunity should you fail to attend this great occasion.

This convention, as you know, includes the following sub-divisions: The Horticultural Society, the Crop Improvement Association, the Vegetable Growers Association, the Dairymen's Association, the Bee Keepers Association and the Sheep Growers Association. Each one of these sub-divisions will be provided with very attractive rooms in various parts of the town in which the meetings will be held.

In addition to this, the beautiful and spacious Arcade Theatre will be at the services of the Convention. Music and various forms of entertainment have been provided. To form a fitting climax to the wonderful program arranged, the visitors are to be treated to an old-time Eastern Shore oyster roast. This, in itself, would justify a trip from any part of the State.

Visitors from the Western Shore may make their trip doubly attractive by visiting the State Capitol, and then crossing by Claiborne Ferry to Salisbury and returning by way of Elkton or by Rock Hall Ferry and Baltimore. All of these routes are improved state highways which makes motoring very delightful.

Considerable time has been allotted from the program and special arrangements made for auto tours to a great many points of special interest including such famous nurseries as W. F. Allen's and Senator Harrison's; these two rank as the largest in the United States. In addition, visits will be made to famous Homestead Dairy Farms, owned by Senator Jackson; the home of "Man-of-War"; and a glimpse of the roaring surge of the Atlantic Ocean.

The program includes some of the most prominent speakers in the state and nation, among whom might be mentioned; Governor Ritchie; Hon. E. T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture; H. E. Jackson, of Washington, D. C.; Gray Silver, of the American Farm Bureau Federation; T. C. Atkinson, Washington, representative of the National Grange; Charles Lyman, Secretary, National Board of Farm Organizations.

The Baltimore, Chesapeake & Atlantic Railway Company will make special arrangements for additional coaches to furnish the traffic with satisfactory service on this great occasion. En route to Salisbury you would take the steamer from Baltimore to Claiborne, Maryland.

THAT BACKACHE SPELLS DANGER!

Action Today May Save Princess Anne People Future Misery

A bad back isn't a bad thing if it serves as a warning of hidden kidney disorders. Kidney diseases are frightfully common today. We over-do so much. We don't give the kidneys a chance to rest up, and while a bad back, some urinary disorder, an occasional dizzy spell or a persistent headache may be the only outward sign the kidney trouble that is behind it all may be overlooked or neglected. Put your signs to use. Take them as warnings. Fight off kidney weakness. It takes only a slight kidney disorder to start a case of fatal Bright's disease, from which 100,000 people die in the United States every year. Prompt treatment at first—that's all that's necessary to keep kidney weakness from turning into gravel, dropsy, gout, heart trouble or Bright's. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended Kidney Pills. Fifty thousand Americans recommend them publicly. Here's one Princess Anne case: Mrs. James A. Hayman, Beechwood street, says: "I was in a bad way some years ago with a severe backache, which caused me untold pain. Whenever I stooped over and then tried to straighten up, sharp pains like a thrust of a knife struck me in the small of my back. I was very miserable until I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and used a box. I was then rid of the trouble."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Hayman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Proposed Memorial to Soldiers of Somerset County

Our county sent about 900 men to the World War and now there is the opportunity for us to show our appreciation of their service.

The State Roads Commission is going to build a bridge across the Manokin at the County Seat, which we can have made a

Memorial Bridge

if we pay for the necessary additional work—by doing that we would get the benefits of the State's spending about twice as much as we would.

The proposed Memorial Bridge would have four columns and four bronze tablets to each column.

One dollar from each family in the county would pay for the addition to the bridge and the bronze tablets with the names of the soldiers from the county on the tablets.

The slogan is

"A Dollar a Family"

Bring your dollar when you come to vote on Tuesday, November 2, 1920. A committee will be near the voting place to receive it.

Grip

Grip usually starts just the same as a cold with a watery discharge from the nose. You are much more likely to contract the grip when you have a cold. For that reason when grip is prevalent you should go to bed as soon as you feel that you are taking cold and stay in bed until fully recovered which should not be long if you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Three days in bed now is better than three weeks later on.

ELECTRIC PLANT BEING ENLARGED

Plant Now Lights 164 Homes And Stores In Princess Anne

Mr. E. C. Cannon is having the Princess Anne electric light plant enlarged to double its present capacity, installing a 75 H. P. Fairbanks Morse 3-cylinder producer gas engine which will be directly connected to a 50 K. V. A. alternator. This will give the plant a trial of 150 horsepower, consisting of three Fairbanks Morse combustion engines. The power house will also be enlarged from its present size of 24x42 feet to 50x42 feet, which will extend to the corner of Broad and Beechwood streets. The new building will be built of brick, as is the old one. The east wall of the present building will be removed, thus putting all the machinery in one large room. There will also be an office and salesroom in the southeast corner of the new building with a large display window, where a line of electrical fixtures and appliances can be seen and demonstrated.

Electricity was first turned on in the town of Princess Anne on December 24th, 1914, and now the plant is lighting 164 homes, stores etc. in the town, and in addition to this the service has been extended to the Princess Anne Academy buildings, on the eastern suburb of the town, and to the home on the farm of Mr. Albert B. Fitzgerald. The new home of Mr. Robert S. Jones, on the western suburb of the town, will also soon be supplied with current from this plant. We understand the service will soon be extended to "Somerset Heights." The plant also furnishes power for pumping water for the town.

Twenty-four hour electric service was started April 1st, 1919, which has proven very successful. Princess Anne is the smallest town on the peninsula having 24-hour electric service without any motor load, depending entirely on appliances and lights for revenue. It also has the highest average of wired buildings, being about 78 per cent.

To Instruct Women Voters

The Democratic State Central Committee for Somerset county has secured the fire house on Prince William street, next to the Presbyterian chapel, for the purpose of instructing women voters.

The room will be fitted up with booths the same as an election house and will be open Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at 7 o'clock, and also on Saturday afternoon and night. If the weather is cool the room will be heated to make it comfortable. Sample ballots will be furnished and both men and women instructors will be present each evening to show how the ballots should be marked and folded on election day. The committee request that the women of the town and surrounding territory avail themselves of this opportunity of gaining much valuable information in regard to casting their first vote at an election.

WHAT THE REGISTRATION SHOWS

Affiliated Republicans Have Lead On Registration In Somerset County

Prior to the registration the Republican majority on affiliation in Somerset county was 465. The present Republican majority on affiliation is 1036. It is estimated that at the registration this year about 50 per cent. of white women in the county registered and about 75 per cent. of the negro women registered. The complete result of the four days registration in Somerset county is as follows:

White Male Democrats.....	176
White Male Republicans.....	70
White Female Democrats.....	1438
White Female Republicans.....	545
Colored Male Democrats.....	113
Colored Female Democrats.....	1457
Declined White Female.....	176
Declined Colored Female.....	1
Affiliated White Democrats.....	1614
Affiliated Colored Republicans.....	1570
Affiliated White Republicans.....	615

Republican majority on affiliation 571.

The statements from the registration books show that there was a large registration of white women in East and West Princess Anne districts, in the two Crisfield districts and in Dublin district, but in the other districts a large percentage of the white women did not register. In some of the larger districts hardly 25 per cent. of the white women registered.

The large registration in East and West Princess Anne districts was due to the diligent efforts and the systematic canvass made by the committee of women appointed to get the white female vote registered. These two districts cover a large territory, approximately ten miles square, and over 400 white women were registered. Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop was chairman of the Women's Democratic Committee and with her were associated Mrs. T. Jacob Smith, Mrs. J. Thomas Taylor, Mrs. Earle B. Polk, Mrs. Edwin Hayman, Mrs. George W. Brown, Mrs. J. Earl Morris, Mrs. George H. Myers, Mrs. H. H. Richardson, Mrs. George W. Wilson, Mrs. C. C. Gelder and Misses Bessie Cahill, Nell Jones and Madeline Hayman. Mrs. R. R. Norris, of Crisfield, was chairman of the Women's Democratic Committee there, and with her associates was instrumental in obtaining the large registration of women in Crisfield.

Growing Figs In Somerset

About four years ago Mr. A. E. Tull, of near Marion Station, and one of the county's most prosperous farmers, set out an orchard of 450 fig bushes on his farm, the west side of which is skirted by East creek, a branch of Pocomoke sound. During the first two years the severe winters killed the new wood, cutting them down to the roots, causing them to put out new shoots in the spring. This new wood proved too weak to mature the fruit which formed on the new shoots before the frosts cut them down. Last year the wood was not killed, and the leaves and fruit put out on the old wood in abundant quantities which matured and was marketed at 25 cents per quart. This year the bushes again bore abundantly and Mr. Tull is now reaping the crop, which finds ready sale in the home market at 20 cents per quart.

With slight protection during the winter months, such as a covering of straw, Mr. Tull says the bushes will stand our severest winters and begin growing in the spring where they left off the year before, and there is no reason why the growing of figs could not be made a profitable crop on some of the farms bordering on the salt water streams of our county.

Hon. T. Allan Goldsborough

of Denton, Caroline county, Democratic candidate for Congress from this district, is one of the Eastern Shore's most intelligent citizens and if elected to Congress will serve the interests of the people of this section, as well as the State, in an intelligent and satisfactory manner. The issues in this campaign are of such a nature as to require our best men, and Mr. Goldsborough measures up to that standard. A man who has gained the confidence of the people of his own county to the extent that Mr. Goldsborough has should be trusted by the voters of the First Congressional District. A vote against Mr. Goldsborough means a vote against the Democratic party. If there ever was a time in the history of our country when men of Mr. Goldsborough's type are needed

CARNEGIE HALL DEDICATED

Morgan College's New Building Opened Last Thursday

Last Thursday there took place at Morgan College, near Govans, Baltimore county, the dedication of the new granite building, Carnegie Hall, which is the gift of the late Andrew Carnegie to the college and designed to promote the educational development of the negro race. Mr. Carnegie's gift of $50,000 for the erection of Carnegie Hall is evidence of his willingness to lend a hand to the uplift of the negro if any desire to avail themselves of the opportunity thus offered.

At the date of the bestowal of the gift $50,000 was an ample sum for a building of such design as the donor had in mind. But times have changed and prices of building material and labor have changed with them, so that as the completed building stands today, its cost is estimated at $95,000. Nevertheless, despite the obstacles that have arisen to obstruct and delay the work, Carnegie Hall is finished and classes are now being held in a number of the recitation rooms. There is a fire proof vault, an assembly room with seating capacity for 200 persons and also lavatories in the basement floor of the building and above these are administration offices and classrooms on the main floor, with more classrooms on the second floor, while the top floor is devoted to science with chemical, physical and biological laboratories, a dark room for photography, a room for mechanical drawing and apparatus store rooms. The entire structure is fire-proof and equipped with interior telephones and program clocks. All the rooms are light and airy and in one of the many pleasant apartments a working college library has been installed. This is in addition to the "Charles Edmund Young Library of Morgan College" and large library of the academy.

The dedication of the building was made a gala occasion and preceded by an educational conference and a church workers' conference held Wednesday afternoon and night at the college. During the dedication exercises on Thursday there was an address by Bishop Matthew Wesley Clair, of Monrovia, Liberia, who is a graduate of Morgan College, class of 1889. Dr. Henry Pritchett, secretary of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, delivered an address and the presentation of the keys of the building by the architect, Mr. Edward Lippincott, to Mr. Henry S. Dulaney, chairman of the building committee. The dedication address was delivered by Bishop William Frazer McDowell, of Washington, D. C.

PENINSULA GENERAL HOSPITAL

Campaign To Raise $200,000 For New Building Fund Now On

The executive committee in charge of the organization of the big campaign to raise $200,000 for the new building of the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, has postponed the launching of the drive to this week, beginning Monday, October 25th, in order to give more time to perfect the organization.

In Wicomico county 26 teams are already lined up outside of Salisbury and for that city there are 13 teams which enroll more than eighty choice workers. In Worcester county Senator Orlando Harrison is boosting the campaign plans and reports organizations for Berlin, Ocean City and Bishopville. Pocomoke and Snow Hill will shortly be heard from. For upper Somerset county Judge Robert F. Duer is in charge of the organization.

How widely the service of the Peninsula General Hospital affects the lower peninsula is shown by the fact that since January 1914 patients have been treated representing 207 different towns, distributing by counties as follows: Accomac (Va.) 79, Somerset 35, Wicomico 34, Sussex (Del.) 32 and Worcester 27.

Almost every section of Somerset county is represented in the 655 people treated at the hospital since 1915, and over 80% of these patients cost the hospital more than the patients paid, so that this county has shared quite substantially in the charitable work of the hospital. Only 92 of the 562 patients for the five year period, 1915 to 1919, paid as much or more than their service cost. One hundred and twenty-nine of the others paid only part of the cost of their service, and 341 were treated absolutely free. The average daily cost per patient for food, medicine and other necessary expenses, without figuring anything for replacement of linen or other equipment, or repairs to the building, etc., is now about $2.40. Patients paying less than that, therefore, are the recipients of someone's charity to the extent of the difference between their cost to the hospital and what they actually pay.

That the hospital has been administered impartially for the entire peninsula is emphasized by the fact that the sections outside of Wicomico county have been getting a larger and larger share of its service. For the six year period, 1914 to 1919, the average number of patients annually from Wicomico county was 343, as compared with 334 for 1914, an increase of only 9, or less than 3%. For the other four counties, from which most of the patients come, the annual average was 528 as compared with 344 for 1914, an increase of 184, or nearly 54%.

For Somerset county the annual average for the six years was 109, as compared with 82 in 1914, an increase of 27 or over 33%.

There is every reason, therefore, why Somerset county people should take a generous share in making possible the new building, as it is apparent that the larger facilities are especially needed to receive and care for the sick and injured outside of Wicomico county.

Gov. Cox Speaks In Baltimore

Gov. James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential candidate, before a crowd which filled the Fifth Regiment Armory, Baltimore, last Thursday night, delivered an appeal to the voters of Maryland to recognize clearly the issue of the League of Nations, or no League of Nations, and to register their sentiments on that issue by voting for the Democratic candidate if they want a League or for the Republican candidate if they don't want a League. "Everyone who is against the League of Nations is against me," declared the Democratic candidate. "That is one thing about which there can be no doubt."

In his Baltimore address, he went into a detailed account of what he termed the "wabbling" of his Republican opponent, Senator Harding, on the League question. At the outset of his speech Governor Cox presented a list of 14 different positions on the League of Nations questions which he said Senator Harding has taken as a Senator and as a candidate.

Senator Harding's failure to clear the mind of the American people on his exact stand in regard to the League and his refusal to say whether he stands with Johnson and Borah for rejection, or Taft and Root for ratification, said Governor Cox, makes the Republican candidate "an imposter, deliberately trying to deceive the American people."

SHORE TO CULTIVATE FLAX

New York Financiers Ask Farmers To Contribute 60,000 Acres

Agents representing New York financiers are canvassing the farmers of Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland with a view to the cultivation of flax on a large scale. The farmers are asked to contract to plant 60,000 acres of flax in the spring and to deliver it to the big plant that is just being completed at Elk Mills, Md., where it will be transformed into thread ready for textile mills. It is understood that the farmers will be paid $40 a ton for the fibre, and that from one and a-half to two tons may be grown on an acre.

According to information that has reached here this is but the beginning of an industry that will eventually be extended to all parts of the United States, and to some of the foreign countries, and that this projected wholesale disposal of flax has been made possible recently through the discovery of a chemical process of treatment that eliminates the long and expensive rotting and curing, with its almost impossible physical work and terrible stench and other disagreeable features that have handicapped the cultivation of the crop in all except the countries where the soil and the poverty of workers seemed to make it necessary to stick to this sort of farming.

This newly discovered process cures the fibre in less than a day, whereas months were required under the old method. It is proposed that each year the acreage of the crop will be multiplied rapidly, and that from 60,000 acres next year farmers here and in Delaware and adjacent states will be engaged to plant 500,000 acres in flax; and the gain each year is expected to maintain this ratio of increase until it will exceed the total acreage of cotton in this country.

It is proposed to export a large amount of the fibre to Europe, notably to England and France, where it is especially in great demand, and where it is especially sought by manufacturers of air and water planes. The reduction of the cost in manufacture by the new method will make the cloth, or linen, cheaper than the ordinary cotton goods, and it is predicted that flax will eventually take the place of cotton, for the reason that it can be cultivated and harvested with a minimum of manual labor.

The new plant at Elk Mills is almost completed and is receiving its machinery; by spring it will be ready to care for all the yield of the fibre raised next season. It is regarded as the central plant, and others are planned for erection in various parts of the country during the coming summer, so that there will be a group of these mills in operation throughout the country wherever flax may be grown. It is understood that the test of the curing process has been tried out carefully in the last two years and that it has met every expectation.

There is much speculation as to the undertaking among the few who have been made acquainted with the details. Among other claims is one that will make the United States the chief flax-producing country in the world, and that it will almost wholly supersede cotton, because of its superiority and because of the lower price possible under the new process.

It is understood that the proposition has been amply financed, and that the company will be incorporated in one of the Eastern States for $1,000,000. All the money required for the enterprise has been provided by New York capitalists.

It means that 10,000,000 of acres of land in this country will be devoted to the culture of flax and that it will enable the farmers to turn from the over-production of wheat and corn—which seems inevitable with a lessening of the consumption by the prohibition of the manufacture of liquors—to a new crop that will pay them 100 per cent. more than the average value of the cereals or forage.

Our Bankers Visit Washington

The forty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association was in session in Washington, D. C., during last week. Sessions were held morning, afternoon and night.

Mr. W. B. Spiva, cashier of the Bank of Somerset, and Mr. Omar J. Crowell, cashier of the Peoples Bank of Somerset County, were present at the convention. Mrs. Crowell accompanied Mr. Crowell to Washington and they returned to Princess Anne Thursday night.

The program of the convention called for the consideration of all questions of finance, ranging from problems of the country bankers to international relations. Cabinet officers as well as bankers of national prominence addressed the meetings. There was also a daily round of entertainments, arranged particularly for women visitors.

Senator John Walter Smith's Record of Usefulness and Service

His Achievements For His State, Its People, His Party And The Country As Governor and Senator Have Not Been Surpassed By Any Other Maryland Man Who Filled These Offices and Entitled Him To Re-election.

For the benefit of those who do not follow the papers closely, or who having read may not remember, but, more than all, as a labor-saving device by way of making one fairly comprehensive answer to the many inquiries I daily have as to the specific record of Senator John Walter Smith, I shall ask you to publish the following:

I was Senator Smith's private secretary from 1899 until 1904, and as one devoted to him, and closely associated with him for over twenty years, I feel I can justly claim an intimacy of knowledge of his career not available to all, as well as a license to put before the public some achievements we have been unable to induce him to mention in his own behalf.

Every school child should learn, as the older generation knows, that as State Senator from Worcester County after six years' struggle Senator Smith put the Free School Book bill through; and was well-nigh written down a revolutionist.

As Governor he put through legislation to reorganize the public school system and strengthened it immeasurably; to reorganize the Police Department of Baltimore, and to rebuild the oyster navy and the House of Correction, to add to the State House, to build the Court of Appeals Building, the Fifth Regiment Armory, to finish the improvements to the Penitentiary, to add to Springfield Hospital for the Insane, and floated 3% State bonds at a premium and left the State Treasury virtually out of debt.

Two other significant acts stand out. He signed the original Workmen's Compensation Act for Maryland, one of the first acts of its kind passed anywhere; and upheld by the progressive doctors of the State, he started in 1902 the long, long fight for the State care of tuberculosis that at last developed fruit in the magnificent State Sanatorium at Sabillasville, of which he is president, and housing 425 patients; and a total appropriation recently made of $180,000 for a colored T. B. Sanatorium, designed ultimately to house 220 patients.

Aided by Samuel M. Shoemaker and Redmond C. Stewart and their associates, he passed and approved the first good roads law enacted in Maryland, and appointed Walter W. Crosby, a scientific roads engineer, Roads Engineer for Baltimore County. That was the beginning of Maryland's good roads system begun twenty years ago.

Senator Smith perhaps owes the President no heavy debt for personal favors, but he has recognized the President's patriotism and ability and has done a full share in living up to all the Democratic platform pledges. He has supported President Wilson's administration consistently.

The record of the Democratic party when in control of Congress was brilliant. Senator Smith was fully in accord with most of the legislation proposed by the party leaders during that unique period, such as the Federal Reserve Act, the extension of the Parcel Post and Free Rural Delivery, the Farm Loan Banks Act, laws to restrain gambling in cotton, grain, etc., the Federal Good Roads Act, the Child Labor Law, the act effecting the re-establishment of our Merchant Marine, etc.

Senator Smith did not share with Senator Lodge, and some others, the opinion that the United States should declare war on Germany hastily in the heat of passion when the Lusitania was sunk. He felt that every effort should be made to avoid war, but when the war did come, and even before, when his sound judgment told him war was inevitable, he ardently supported every measure designed to aid in preparing for and prosecuting the war. In a word, every war measure passed had his assistance.

He has also supported acts to provide War Risk Insurance, Vocational Instruction and every other act that properly recognized and rewarded in the right way the Army and the Navy and the civilian personnel, who did the real work of the war. His war record is without a flaw.

Senator Smith voted and worked for the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles with the Covenant of the League of Nations. He accepted reservations in the hope that concessions would insure the final adoption of the Covenant by the Senate, and on the theory that part of a loaf is better than no bread, though preferring the whole loaf.

He urged the return of business enterprises taken over during the war, as well as the railroads, telegraphs, etc., to their owners as soon as the stress and necessities of the war would permit, and opposed the Government going any deeper into business than competes with private enterprises that was necessary.

Senator Smith is a "Bigger Navy Man" has served for years on the Naval Affairs Committee, has frequently served as a member of the Board of Visitors to the Naval Academy and taken the deepest interest in the Navy and Naval Academy.

For years he has been on the District of Columbia Committee and for several years was its chairman. He is thoroughly familiar with Washington and produced a tremendous improvement in Washington's parks, schools, streets, hospitals, etc., and has held to the "half and half" tax system. His service on the District Committee is enthusiastically appreciated by all intelligent residents of the District.

Senator Smith, so far as I know, has but two hobbies—public education and public health. Experts like Dr. Hugh H. Young have publicly stated that no Senator in Washington was more helpful than Senator Smith in putting through public health measures for the alleviation of suffering and the prevention of disease.

Senator Smith has helped over $,000 Maryland people since the war began. He was always accessible, always indefatigable. He rendered them every sort of helpful, sympathetic service without regard to their politics or religion or color. If they were from Maryland and needed help, his time, energy, automobile and purse—all was theirs. Many of these people were supremely pitiful, helpless and obscure.

The business men of the State, the canners, the manufacturers, steamship men, landowners and others not un-naturally were subjected to many hardships when their properties were taken over by the Government during the war. These gentlemen sought Senator Smith, who usually, by the exercise of his energy, force and influence, found some way to help. Such practical services in a measure homely meant stupendous results to Maryland.

Likewise, the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, the Board of Trade, in fact all the representative business organizations of Baltimore and the State, look upon him as their champion, always ready and willing and able to serve the commercial and business interests of the State.

In addition to playing a serious and important part as a member of the Appropriation and other dignified and powerful committees in the larger legislative program, as I have said, Senator Smith has sustained an indispensable part in the following matters of more immediate and local interest:

The Act to turn Fort McHenry over to Baltimore City for a park; to appropriate $550,000 for Immigration Station at Baltimore; to appropriate $75,000 to erect a Memorial (in Baltimore) to Francis Scott Key; to appropriate $305,250 to dredge a deep ship channel through York Spit, so that Baltimore could be reached by ships of heavy draft; to make appropriations for Federal Buildings at Cambridge, $80,000, and Salisbury, $90,000; to make appropriations to build powder plant at Indian Head, $500,000 (and many later appropriations to enlarge the plant); and to establish a dairy farm for U. S. Naval Academy, and to erect market sheds for farmers in Washington; in securing all appropriations for Baltimore harbor and channels and surveys by the Chief Engineers, U. S. A., improvements of Crisfield Harbor, Elk River, Rock Hall, Eastern Bay at Calborne, Wicomico River and many other Maryland waters.

The passage by Congress of legislation authorizing the purchase by the Government of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal and its development as an inland waterway.

He broke the speed record in passing the necessary legislation through Congress to sanction the construction by the State of Maryland of a bridge across the Pocomoke River.

He succeeded in retaining the Sub-treasury in Baltimore, notwithstanding strenuous efforts which were made in Congress for years to abolish all the Subtreasuries; but lost out at the last session.

It is no longer secret that Baltimore was in danger of destruction by reason of the storage by the War Department of an enormous quantity of TNT and other high explosives, which had accumulated in the Government Ordnance Warehouse at Curtis Bay for shipment overseas. Senator Smith prevailed upon the War Department quietly to remove this stuff and was instrumental in securing an appropriation of $500,000 to provide storage for these explosives elsewhere, so that Baltimore will not again be threatened in that way with loss of life and property. This death dealing deposit was, of course, a subject of agonizing concern to the authorities at Baltimore, and to the business men cognizant of the danger.

Senator Smith was almost solely responsible for securing proper recognition and compensation for the civilian instructors and employees at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis; and also, through Secretary Daniels, for securing the establishment of a co-operative store at the Indian Head Proving Grounds for employees there, which was a boon to the men fighting the excessive living cost.

After years of effort, he secured passage of legislation permitting the erection in a public park in Washington of a statue of James Buchanan, former President of the United States, with money bequeathed for the purpose by the President's surviving niece, Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston. This small concession to the last wish of a cultured woman and to the honor of a dead President was bitterly fought by Senator Lodge and others on the ground that President Buchanan was too much in sympathy with the South!

He secured legislation authorizing the extension of water from the filters and mains of the District of Columbia to Montgomery and Prince George's Counties adjacent to the District. He worked that the children of parents employed in the District and residing in Maryland might have the privilege of free tuition in the schools of the District of Columbia, and got it.

He secured the appropriation and permission for the Confederate Reunion in Washington, D. C., and also for the G. A. R. Reunion in Washington, D. C., and for the National Capital Preparedness Parade.

While Chairman of the District Committee he was fortunate in securing the appropriation for the establishment of a fine Municipal Hospital.

He took the deepest interest in the educational welfare of the District and worked for the betterment of the schools and the teachers' salaries and for the extension of the school playgrounds and community playgrounds of the District, and was equally interested in securing increased salaries for the officers and privates of the Police and Fire Departments, and the two platoon system for Firemen of the District.

As a member of the large Committees on Appropriations, Naval Affairs and District of Columbia, he persistently advocated and secured salaries for Federal employees which were in a measure more nearly in just keeping with the increased cost of living.

He got appropriations for construction of extensions to the shelters for farmers' produce market used by farmers adjacent to the District of Columbia, and also for the construction of a new fish wharf and market in Washington.

Senator Smith urged the reclamation of the Anacostia River and flats, and finally secured the necessary appropriation for that work to extend to the District Line, the development to be named Anacostia Park. This aids Washington and also that section of Prince George's County adjacent to the District of Columbia.

No one worked harder for the improvement of streets in the District of Columbia and for suburban roads leading to the District Line to connect with the Maryland roads in Prince George's and Montgomery Counties than Senator Smith. At the last Session he secured appropriations to improve up to the Maryland Line within the District of Columbia the Bladensburg Road, the Bowen Road and the Ridge Road.

The late Vice-President Sherman, recognizing his special fitness, as president of the Senate was gracious enough to appoint Senator Smith a member of the unpaid Commission to acquire the Forest Reserves for the protection of the watersheds throughout the mountains of the country. The country profited by Senator Smith's experience in the timber business and knowledge of timber values. Aided by a personal examination of many tracts, he was enabled to save the Government large sums in the purchase of the enormous areas acquired.

Let any one who wishes to criticize Senator Smith point to any Senator who ever represented Maryland who has accomplished more, or to any Candidate in the field against him who can ever hope to accomplish a tenth as much.

ANCIENT LEGEND OF JAPAN

Many Stories Told of the Evil Power and Fierocious Qualities of River-Dwelling Kappa.

Stories and legends concerning rivers abound in Japan. One reason is that the rivers are generally treacherous streams which a greater part of the year are little more than dry gravelly beds, but which sometimes suddenly overflow their banks carrying destruction to the fields and to the houses along their way. The story of the Kappa is told on the occasion of river festivals, which are held in July.

The Kappa is supposed to be a hairy creature with scaly limbs and the body of a tortoise; his head resembles that of an ape, and in the top of it is a cavity containing a mysterious fluid, said to be the source of the Kappa's power. The chief delight of the Kappa, who is fierce and quarrelsome, is to challenge human beings to combat, an invitation that cannot be refused. To defeat a Kappa is as unfortunate as to be worsted by him, as the victor begins immediately to waste away.

The Kappa always lives in rivers, and there were Kappas in some districts which demanded two victims a year. If a person began suddenly to grow pale and thin, it was said that the Kappa had claimed him.

Kappa means "Child of the River." There is a shrine in Izumo called kawako-no-miya which is said to contain a document signed by the Kappa who once lived in a neighboring stream. This goblin was exceedingly ferocious and many a villager or a villager's animal fell victim. One day the Kappa attacked a horse which had stepped into the river. In doing so, the Kappa twisted its neck but still clung to the frightened horse, which dashed out of the river and to his master's home. The villagers captured the Kappa and wanted to kill it, but the owner of the horse protested that he had a better plan.

The Kappa was tightly bound and presented with a document, which promised that he would never molest the villagers or their animals again. The Kappa, in order to save his life, promised and affixed his seal to the document by dipping his hand into the ink and pressing it to the paper. He was then allowed to return to the river, and from that day to this he has never harmed the villagers.

Any Japanese today will acknowledge that he has heard of Kappa but few have seen one.—Sarah Moffatt Schenk in the Japan Advertiser, Tokyo.

Turpin's Famous Ride.

Dick Turpin, hero of many a romantic story, and one of the most outstanding figures in the history of English highwaymen, once made a ride that, for distance covered and speed maintained, has never been duplicated, as far as any record exists.

Turpin was in danger of capture, and capture meant death beyond question. He had beneath him a horse of unequalled speed and endurance, and before him an earthen path leading from London's cobble stones to York, a distance of 200 miles. Spur was touched to the mare, since famed in song and story as "Black Bess," and just as the sun was sinking to rest the highwayman and the eager mount took up the long trail.

The same sun rose 12 hours later over the house-tops of York, and the early-rising citizens who peered from shuttered windows saw a great black horse, dripping with sweat, eyes starting from her head and breath coming in gasps, thundering down the main street, while a dust-covered rider swayed in the saddle and made futile efforts to whip the travel stains from his gay costume. He had completed the distance in 12 hours, and without changing mounts.

Fiber Box Saves Wood.

The fiber box is considered an important factor in forest conservation, since only about one-sixth of its raw material is new wood pulp. The rest is almost wholly waste, according to the forest bureau of the department of agriculture, which says:

"At least half of fiber is old newspapers, screenings, wrapping paper, paper boxes and such material. But rope and baling are no less products of the waste heap. The increased price paid for old papers since fiber board boxes stimulated the demand has resulted in drawing supplies from small towns and rural communities, where formerly no one went to the trouble of collecting such material. It has encouraged also the diligence of scavengers who search the alleys, ash cans, and public garbage dumps in cities."

France Plans World Wireless System.

A dispatch from Paris says that Under Secretary of State for the Post, Telegraph and Telephone Services Deschamps has announced that the French government plans for an elaborate wireless system whose center will be in Paris and which will cover Europe, Asia, Africa and South America. If this system, part of which is already in existence, is integrally applied as now proposed, France's wireless communications throughout the world will be able to rival Great Britain's cable communications.

CLAIM OLD HOMES

French Peasants Repairing Devastation of War.

Cheerful Sights Seen in Districts Ravaged by the Hun Hordes—New Villages Arising From Heaps of Ruins.

La France is "an American magazine" which aims to promote Franco-American sympathy and understanding, says the New York Times, and is conducted by a group of public-spirited citizens. Recent numbers have contained notable records of the revival of agriculture and industry in the devastated region, photographs showing the progress which has been made in rebuilding churches and castles, and significant statistics as to the great recent increases in taxation, thanks to which France hopes to fund and eventually wipe out her war-time debt. Most impressive of all, however, is the story of a French failure as told by Claude Riviere.

In certain devastated districts the villages had been so thoroughly pulverized and the soil so completely blasted that it seemed impossible to repopulate them. Not a house was remaining, nor a tree; and instead of the familiar green herbage there came "a curious yellowish grass, utterly unlike anything seen before in this part of the country." With a characteristically dramatic instinct, the authorities planned to keep these districts as they were, and especially such places as had been the scene of signal and memorable examples of German barbarity. They were to be an example and a warning—the "red zone." But these dramatists reckoned without their hero—and heroine. Deep in the heart of the zone rouge, amid scenes of "volcanic" devastation, M. Riviere saw through his field glass a tiny green square upon a distant hillside. It proved to be a cultivated field, "an oasis in the desert." Disregarding the new law which "protected" the zone rouge, a peasant had returned to the site of his old home, had himself removed the unexploded shells from his soil—24 of them were lined up by the road—and so he had established himself as a producer once more, if only on a tiny strip. "We have always plowed the land," he said to M. Riviere; "we must plow again." In what was once the village of Nanteuil la Fosse, M. Riviere found an old woman who was somehow managing to live alone in the dismal wreck of her home, though she had to walk ten miles to buy food. She said simply that she wanted to die in her own house—"Je veux mourir dans ma maison." A more cheerful sight in the zone rouge is a village which formerly housed 800 people, all but five of whom have returned.

A correspondent of the London Times bears similar witness. The most recent battlefield guide book contains a picture entitled, "All That Is Left of Hooge—the Signboard." But the traveler finds that a new Hooge is already rising upon this site of so many bitter scenes in the battles for Ypres. Even the local guides have their troubles. One of them, having announced to his tourists that Guillemont was so completely destroyed that no attempt could ever be made to rebuild it, discovered upon reaching the site that four houses had been erected in his brief absence, and were already occupied, the children playing in the streets.

From the nation to which such things are possible much is to be expected. Heroic as it was in war, it has equal vigor and tenacity in the arts of peace.

Restoring Stonehenge.

Now that Stonehenge, the grandest and most mysterious monument in Britain, has become the property of the nation, the government is putting it to careful and painstaking repair in order to prevent the ultimate collapse of its mighty "hanging stones." It was five years ago that Sir Edward Antrobus, a Wiltshire baronet, sold the ancient monument to E. H. E. Chubb of Salisbury for $33,000, and it was two years ago when Mr. Chubb presented his purchase to the British government. The war was then still on and the office of works, to whose care it fell, had other things to think about, but now that the war is ended the office of works has speedily set about the task of preserving the great monoliths of Stonehenge.

Half a dozen men under the direction of Sir Frank Baines of the office of works, are making the ancient circle of stones look as it did when it was completed by the sun worshippers of Salisbury plain some 3,000 years ago.

Camels Hard Hit by War.

According to the report of the veterinary section of the war department of Great Britain, the loss of animals in the war was much lower in proportion than the loss of men, amounting to less than 15 per cent. This is the lowest percentage of any war in which England ever took part. The total number of animals lost by the English during the war was 484,148, including 5,680 that were drowned or died at sea. England's greatest loss was in camels, 22,512 of which were killed. This is accounted for by the fact that the camels were always used in the most dangerous positions and subjected to the greatest hardships. Of the camels used in Mesopotamia during the last year of the war 80.5 per cent were killed or died from exposure.

OCCUPATION FOR THE BORED

To Those Who Find Time Hanging Heavy on Their Hands Writer Recommends Washing Dog.

Those who find the days tedious may discover a diverting hour in the back-porch sport of washing the dog. After an hour of this, persons who have been bored to extinction have been known to feel real pleasure in just sitting still for two whole days, with hands folded and eyes closed—just sitting.

The hard part is to catch the animal. Somehow that jolly instinct which Mother Nature has given dumb brutes seems to inform him that all is not well. He who usually leaps forward with wagging tail at a friendly lift of the eyebrow will at this important moment regard his owner with a reproachful look that is quite beyond description. You have to see the look, and try to catch the hound, in order to appreciate it. Some favor the seductive smile and the velvet voice as the best means of coaxing the creature to draw near. Personally, I favor the ever-ready appeal to the stomach. Dogs may be long on sentiment, but they are never so emotionally inclined as when in full sight of a piece of juicy meat.

We will assume that you have caught him, however, and have started to drag him toward his doom.

Here it is that one notices for the first time the strange relation of the canine species to the mule family. If your dog has long ears, you will detect no difference whatever. Some dog fanciers declare that even the bark sounds brayish, a fact for which the author cannot vouch.

When the hound has at last been dragged to the edge of the tub or basin, the best advised move is to tackle him around the waist and jump in with him. You'll get drenched anyhow, so what does it matter? The real sport begins at this point, and usually continues until friend dog playfully swirls his soapy tail in your eye. Authorities agree that this is the best time to capitulate. You may not have succeeded in washing him, but, by thunder, you have showed him who's master here, and that's something, anyhow.

Besides, when the family gathers about and asks you if the hound actually got a bath, no one will dare dispute your word for it that the operation was signally successful. In spite of all evidence to the contrary—and I say evidence advisedly—all will agree that Rover is clean as a whistle. Otherwise someone might have to try it again.—Boston Herald.

"Gentlemen."

The Romance languages each have a word for "gentleman," but it does not express the meaning with which we invest the term. Larousse defines "gentilhomme"—tout homme de race noble; any man of noble birth. The Spanish dictionary gives it "Gentilhombre—hombre de buena familia que servia en casa de las reyes"; a man of good family, who serves in the house of kings. The Italian dictionary has it: "Gentiluomo ben nato"; a well-born man, a nobleman; a knight. None gives the fine delicate flavor to the word that we do when we say: "He is a true gentleman." We neither ask nor care about his family; we only know that he possesses the very flower of courtesy; that he is the soul of honor. Bearing a title of nobility does not of itself make a man a gentleman as we use the word. Shakespeare's old enemy was a gentleman in one sense, yet one of his remote descendants once said to me: "I never thought much of Sir Thomas Lucy. He used to go to the tavern and come home drunk and beat his wife." Full many a "gentilhomme" has failed to prove himself a gentleman, yet there are many French citizens of today, just as there was a host in the past, who live up to its true meaning, and they certainly have a right to incorporate "gentleman" into their charming language.

Edison's Paper Shirt.

Importation of paper suits from Germany by the department of commerce of the United States, which are heralded as costing about sixty cents a suit, brings to mind an even more economical invention at one time announced by Thomas A. Edison, according to an exchange.

Mr. Edison several years ago, in an interview on great inventions, which he had perfected or was about to perfect, went into great detail concerning a paper shirt. This shirt, made of very thin but durable paper, was to be composed of 365 layers. The highest degree of sanitation could be preserved by its wearer without the expense of a single laundry bill.

The idea was to make a new shirt every day by tearing away the layer which had seen service the day before. It was not reported that Mr. Edison ever put his garment on the market, or whether it turned out to be a failure.

Farm Woman's Working Day.

The state college authorities of North Dakota made a survey of the state to get certain information, and found, among other things, that the average working day of the farm woman was twelve hours in winter and fifteen hours in summer.

f. o. b. Kenosha.

We emphasize the price, $1695, because it is very low.

We have created in this car an actual and exceptional value which we know justifies this statement:

The Nash Six is a better value than any other car selling near it in price and equal to many costing hundreds of dollars more.

Determine this for yourself.

Compare the Nash Six with other cars; compare the power of its perfected valve-in-head motor, its roominess and comfort, and the really exceptional beauty of its design and finish.

And then compare its cost.

Up to date no landlady has manifested a willingness to accept silk shirts as a substitute for board money.

Automobile prices coming down so fast that a lot of people believe they can afford to borrow the money and buy one.

Women voters are hereby notified that they can't change their vote the day after election even if they do change their minds.

The cities are growing faster than the country, but then the Bible always said that the wicked shall spread themselves like the green bay tree.

The principal manifestation of industry displayed by a lot of people is cultivating the favor of wealthy relatives who may leave them some money.

While ex-Kaiser Bill has an income of $600,000 a year, millions of people who are bereft of their sons and daughters, by his acts, are having to receive public aid.

The people who think that a college education amounts to nothing might explain how it happens that eighteen out of twenty-eight American presidents were college men.

When corn is high the farmers can't make any money because feed costs so much and when corn is low the farmers can't make anything because they lose on their principal crop.

While everyone is doing business for less than it costs them, yet in some unaccountable way most people keep out of the bankruptcy courts and a lot of them buy automobiles.

It is hardly fair to say that automobile speeders are of no use in the world, as they give the traffic cops a chance to make a living and also contribute essentially to the maintenance of the judicial system.

A lot of college graduates who think they are going to make good without effort because of their advantages are reminded that many fellows of their type are still adding up figures in ledgers or operating trolley cars.

In spite of all the sacrifices made to acquire freedom and the blessings of good government for this country, you would have to get out a search warrant and writ of habeas corpus to induce some women to go to the polls.

THE NEED FOR LEADERSHIP

In these times of social unrest and class and industrial warfare the people feel their need of wise leadership more than ever before. In the past the United States has been blessed with great men who have had clear insight and sound judgment. The men who framed this form of government were matchless in far-sighted wisdom. Hardly in the history of the world would you find a group of men with such gifts of leadership, able to build political institutions that should survive the shocks of time for so many years.

There is in the present times no lack of attempted leadership. The newspapers, the soap boxes, the political campaigns and the halls of legislation are forums in which innumerable people attempt to solve the new problems of these times. But it is very easy to tell what should be done theoretically and very difficult to frame a program that the mass of the people will assent to and follow.

As the issues of these new days shape themselves one has faith to believe that history will repeat itself and worthy leaders will arise and help us solve the economic and industrial problems of the times.

Some one will be big and broad enough to show capital and labor how they can gain more by working together than by fighting each other. Some one will show the way to abolish the pestilential slums of the cities, to reduce poverty to a minimum and place education within reach of every child.

Those who aspire to lead the nation in solving these problems will need enthusiasm for humanity and practical familiarity with the hard facts of life. The world is sick of idealists who know little about real life and of materialists who are perfectly satisfied with the world as it is.

IMPOSING ON THE MERCHANTS

An item of business news in an exchange reports complaints by merchants that many people are asking to have goods sent to their homes for examination and are taking advantage of the good nature of merchants and their desire to make sales. It is said that many women will order dresses and other goods from several stores and will keep those they like best and return the others. Sometimes they wear a handsome gown to a party and then return it. Those practices are unfair. Probably goods returned in this way would require some labor in cleaning or pressing before they could be returned to the shelves. Somebody must pay for the extra work and it all comes out of the public. The merchants serve the public best when they shut down on such practices.

THE DANGER OF PANIC

Some business men seem to think that this country is on the verge of a business panic. A leading speaker at the recent convention of National Purchasing Agents held at Chicago, gave some good reasons why this view is not justified.

As he puts it, the thing that causes a panic is something with the element of surprise. Panics used to come when as a result of a scarcity of circulating currency, business men could not get cash at the banks. With the circulation of money now based on bank credits rather than on any fixed and inelastic amount of bonds or coin, surprise of this nature is impossible.

While there seems to be nothing in sight that could create any sudden crash, business may be slow for a time, owing to scarcity of capital and failure of the people to save money. When business men have to pay 10 per cent. to finance their operations, they are going a little slow in taking on new business.

It is to be hoped that the fall bargain sales will include a mark down of the $30,000,000 price which it is said is going to be paid for the fall election.

It used to be said that the women voters would scrutinize very carefully the personal appearance of candidates and they are already discovering that a lot of them are two-faced.

It is estimated that the average man loses three days time each year from inability to work on account of having a cold. ## JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

1825—John Quincy Adams inaugurated sixth president, aged fifty-seven.
1830-48—In congress.
1831—Presented first petition against slavery.
1848—February 23, death of Adams in the capitol.
Aged eighty.

THE chieftainship of every great nation still passed from father to son until the presidency of the United States was created, when the first free-for-all race and an even start for the highest prize was opened to the sons of men regardless of the accidents of birth. In this fair test, new blood has won every time with only two exceptions in a century and a quarter.

Even John Quincy Adams did not win the race, but was outrun at the polls by Andrew Jackson, the son of an immigrant. Political parties having disappeared in 1824, four men entered the contest and deadlocked the electoral college, which left the house of representatives to choose from among the three highest candidates. This eliminated the fourth man—Henry Clay—who aided in the election of Adams and who received from the new president the appointment of secretary of state.

The only non-partisan administration the country ever has had was not a shining example of success. Uncompromising, alone, John Quincy Adams stalked his solitary way, never once turning to the right or to the left from his own sense of duty and independence. With no sense of humor to relieve his sense of self-righteousness, to lighten up his fellows or to show his own icy virtues, it was impossible for his supporters to feel any enthusiasm for him.

John Quincy Adams led the simple life in the White House. Getting up at 5, he built his fire, read his daily portion of the Bible and while the government clerks still slept, he took his walk or swim.

John Quincy Adams alone has solved the problem of ex-presidents. He forgot that he had been president at all and went to work like any other citizen.

With his house in Quincy and Boston mortgaged and the income from his estate too slender for the support of his family, John Quincy Adams heard the bark of the wolf at his door as in his gloomy fancy he closed it upon public life in his sixty-second year. When some neighbors ventured to ask the next year if it would be beneath his dignity to represent the old Plymouth Rock district in congress, this great American, who had been a senator, a minister at the courts of The Hague, Berlin, St. Petersburg and London, a secretary of state and a president, replied that he was not above serving the people as one of the selectmen of his town.

Washington was aghast at the sight of an ex-president taking his seat in the hurly-burly of the lower house only two years after leaving the White House. Without joining the Democrats or the Whigs, with no faction about him, John Quincy Adams faced alone the Jackson administration which had supplanted his own and alone he met a swarm of his old-time critics on a level. Under his incessant pounding, the majority against the right of petition fell session by session until it disappeared entirely in 1844. He had won his long fight against the gag rule and his diary is lit up with his rejoicing in victory. His life was crowned. His work was done. Still he labored on. Although he fell in a Boston street under a stroke of paralysis, he insisted upon returning to his duties in congress, where the members stood as he entered the hall and cheered him on his way to his seat. A year afterward, as he seemed about to rise to address the speaker, he suddenly pitched forward upon the floor.

The veteran had been mortally stricken on the field. Although he lingered two days, he was not removed from the capitol, but remained in a little room off the old hall of the house. There, still at his post, died the old and devoted servant of his country.

Declares Filipinos All Want IndependenceFormer Illinois Congressman, Back From Philippines, Gives Interesting Views on Island Affairs.

By FORMER CONGRESSMAN CLYDE H. TAVENNER.

Clyde H. Tavenner.

The 10,500,000 inhabitants of the Philippines are practically unanimous in their desire for independence.

This is the strongest impression that I have brought back with me after touring the islands from one end to the other, and after having come in contact with all classes of the people.

I found, however, that the viewpoint of Americans in the Philippines, and Americans in the United States, on the subject of independence, is not the same.

The attitude of the American government, and the great mass of the people of the United States, is to consider the Philippine question from the unsatisfactory viewpoint of what is best for the Filipino people. Ninety-five per cent of the opposition to independence emanates from American investors in the islands who are quite naturally more interested in the size of their dividends than the freedom of an alien people.

The unfortunate feature of the situation is that the opponents of independence in the United States are the people of the United States who are quite naturally more interested in the size of their dividends than the freedom of an alien people.

The happy attitude of the Filipino people toward America is due not principally to the fact that Americans have shown the Filipinos how to make their country a better place to live in; not principally to the fact we have superintended the implanting in the Philippines of one of the finest educational systems in the world; nor to the building of high class roads, bridges and public works—but is due

The World's Most Beautiful Volcano!
Nevertheless It Is a Reservoir of Titanic Destructive Powers.

Mount Mayon, now quiet, but which in the recent past has taken many lives and destroyed much property. The Philippine islands are one of the most interesting lands in the world for the American tourist to visit.

Mount Mayon, in the province of Albay, Philippine Islands, is declared to be one of the most beautiful volcanoes in the world. No matter from which side the mountain is viewed, the cone is almost perfectly symmetrical. The setting of the volcano has much to do with its exquisite beauty, as it rises to a height of 7,643 feet from an almost level plain. The peak is visible for more than 60 miles, its regular, bare slopes near the top giving rare reflections from the illumination of the sun, while at its base is one of the most productive and picturesque landscapes to be seen anywhere in the world. A magnificent road, 120 miles in length, circles the mountain at its base, passing through the most varying scenery. Mayon has a history as an active volcano. It has destroyed whole towns. The most destructive eruption was in 1814, when 1,200 persons were killed. It last came to life in 1909, sending a river of lava into the sea at a distance of 8 miles from the mountain. Since then it has been quiet.

TWO OF THEM

By MILDRED WHITE.

The girl sat gazing across the hills to where a blue lake rippled the sunlight, but the beauty of the scene was not reflected in her brooding eyes. It was to this solitude she had come to heal her broken heart. At least, Diana was sure her heart must be broken, after all it had endured during the past three months.

For three months ago Diana had been a radiant creature, knowing the joy of love new-found, and weaving dreams of a happier future. Then, like the blackest cloud, from out of the bluest sky, came the cruel quest.

It was rather difficult now to remember what that quarrel was about; but tragedy had been its ending.

Diana recalled certain sharp and cutting remarks of Dickie's concerning a matinee idol, a sort of man who had during the last few weeks haunted Diana's presence. Though she had not in the least been interested in that handsome person, it was rather gratifying to find his devotion in the eyes of other maidens less favored, and as her engagement to Dickie had not yet been made known, where was the harm, she reflected, in consoling herself with the man's amusing companionship during Dickie's absence?

Dickie had been away a great deal. In a business capacity, and at these times Diana's loneliness grew depressing. The real "harm" in her mind was that Dickie, the heretofore impregnable, should retaliate by divulging himself after his return, to little Maddon. Dolly of all girls, with her saucy assurance and captivating ways, she had been as brief as possible.

With a gentle hand the milliner stroked back the unruly curls. "I know, dear," she encouraged the youthful confidant. "Somebody who is to be honored, besides many others who love you. But, my child, don't have your gown too long."

"Too long," gasped the girl. "But I haven't any, Miss Vanetta, and no prospect of any, either."

"Now let me see," mused the friendly little listener with one finger plucking the table while her eyes glistened triumphantly.

She crossed the room and drew a shimmering piece of soft silk from her fragrant cedar chest.

"Oh, Miss Vanetta," June exclaimed with a catch in her throat. "How much would I have to pay for that Cinderella gown?"

The woman considered with her finger to her lips. Then she tipped to the girl and whispered softly: "Dear friend! Indeed, I would do that and more for this wonderful poet's dream of a gown. No French girl in all gay Paris could boast of one so sweet."

Not a person it seemed from all the town was missing, for Lawrence Lane, who had made himself famous as a player of the guitar, was coming.

Aunt Priscilla took her place in the audience with an unheeding frown. Yet after she had watched the participants in the concert she began to feel troubled and uneasy.

"I wonder if I dare to look," she murmured, brokenly. Then, "If her dress is poor, her music is nothing to be ashamed of, June isn't to blame because her old aunt is a tyrant."

She raised her eyes to the platform and gasped. Not her little, old-fashioned June Day stood there playing with a far-off, happy smile, but a fairy from the forest with a piece of the summer sky for her gown and a spray of forest roses for her hair.

The applause was tremendous. Bewildered and not understanding Aunt Priscilla was standing alone when her hand was seized in a warm clasp. Looking up she saw Judge Good watching her with tender gaze.

"Priscilla," he pleaded, "when I saw your niece tonight she looked so like your sister that I was carried back to the time when you and she and I walked through the springtime fields together. I was your devoted suitor then and I am today. Will you marry me now, although there's 'silver threads among the gold'?"

With a hurried, nervous gesture she loosened her hand.

"I guess perhaps I can," she whispered back. "My chickens are all hatched—unexpected. There's nothing but June to keep me now."

As if in answer to her name the girl appeared.

"Don't think me disobedient, auntie," she said quietly. "Little Miss Vanetta helped me to make this dress and hat. My only payment was to play for her day after day. She and her sweet heart used to sing together before they quarreled. That was why I played those sweet melodies so well tonight. They will never be separated again because I coaxed his address from her and sent him a ticket for my recital. They are sitting there. The spring has claimed another bride besides you, dear auntie."

"Two others," said a deep voice by her side. "Aunt Priscilla, your June Day has consented to become Mrs. Lawrence Lane. Do you think that I will safely guard your little lone chicken?"

"That's just the answer!" fluttered the bewildered woman. "You've just explained these doings. Girls are just like chickens. They're bound to hatch and so unexpectedly."

A DIPLOMAT AT 14

1787—July 11, John Quincy Adams born in Braintree, now a part of Quincy, Mass.
1781—Secretary of Legation at St. Petersburg.
1787—Graduated at Harvard.
1790—Admitted to the Bar.
1794—Minister to The Hague.
1797—Married Louise Catherine Johnson.
1797-1801—Minister to Prussia.
1802—In Massachusetts Senate.
1803-14—In National Senate.
1809-14—Minister to Russia.
1814—Peace Commissioner at Ghent.
1815-17—Minister to England.
1817-25—Secretary of State.

AMONG the presidents, John Quincy Adams holds the record of having been the youngest and oldest public servant. From boyhood, when he was a secretary of legation at the extraordinary age of fourteen until he fell at his post in the halls of congress in his eighty-first year, he was in the service of his country 55 of those 81 years.

A president and the son of a president, all the other 15 presidents from Washington to Johnson were his associates. From the day he climbed a height near his Massachusetts birthplace to see the battle of Bunker Hill, 15 miles away, he was a witness to nearly every great event in the history of the nation until the close of the Mexican war.

With a gentle hand the milliner stroked back the unruly curls. "I know, dear," she encouraged the youthful confidant. "Somebody who is to be honored, besides many others who love you. But, my child, don't have your gown too long."

"Too long," gasped the girl. "But I haven't any, Miss Vanetta, and no prospect of any, either."

John Quincy Adams at 16.

Europe, and he came home to enter Harvard. After graduation, he opened a law office in Boston. But business was only beginning when the young attorney was appointed by Washington, minister at The Hague, where the government to which he was accredited first before the armies of France and left him in the midst of the triumphant revolutionists.

Meeting the daughter of the American consul in London, a Marylander, she and the young diplomat were married on the eve of his departure for Berlin, to which capital he had been promoted.

Among his last acts as president, John Adams removed his son from office to deprive Jefferson of the malicious satisfaction of dismissing him. When the recalled diplomat was elected to the senate he displayed his family trait of independence by taking sides with his father's hated rival and supporting the Jefferson administration.

The infuriated federalists of Massachusetts savagely turned upon him as a traitor to his party and a renegade from his class. They drove him from the senate, and when he came home he found himself in his Boston house, which stood where the Hotel Touraine now stands, a social outcast on a lonely island entirely surrounded by ice.

With his name erased forever from the Boston blue book, John Quincy Adams was no longer a gentleman, and the Jeffersonians, who were not gentlemen, but only Democrats, took him up. By their favor he became minister to Russia, a negotiator of the peace of Ghent in 1814, and minister to England.

From London, John Quincy Adams was called home to be secretary of state in the Monroe administration. In that post he played the leading part in shaping the Monroe doctrine.

In his retirement John Adams had watched with fond admiration the rise of John Quincy until he was only one rung from the top. Although, in his crabbedness, he complained that "my son will never get a chance at the presidency until the last Virginian is in his grave," fortune agreeably surprised the aged ex-president in next to the last of his ninety years, when he saw the scepter of the republic pass to a lineal hand.

HATCHED CHICKENS

By MAISIE BIRMIQHAM.

"Not a peep! Not a peep," warred Aunt Priscilla, stooping over the hen-coop. "I wouldn't mind, June, but it always was my care and custom to have the little chickens hatched out early. I so like the young life of spring."

"So do I," June answered eagerly. "And, oh, auntie, the young flowers, and the blue sky. 'Would blue look well on me—blue in a hat, sky blue, with bright flowers on the crown?'"

Her companion straightened from her task.

"Just because it's spring," she admonished sternly, "is no reason you should go sky-larking with foolish ideas."

"But, auntie," the girl protested hotly. "Everybody needs a hat!"

"I wouldn't care if it weren't for the recital. And Larry will be there. They say that 'in the spring a young man's fancy—'"

A blush and a girlish laugh halted her speech.

She half ran down the short street and rushed panting into the store of the little milliner.

"Miss Vanetta," she called impetuously, "would a hat the color of the spring sky cost very much and would you let me pay for it when my chickens are hatched?"

The little milliner turned smilingly. "You know the old proverb, 'Don't count your chickens before they're hatched.'"

"Have feathers enough to trim a hat?" laughed the girl. "But, oh, Miss Vanetta, the milliners are to give a recital and I'm to play. They'll all be dressed beautifully, while I'll have nothing but my decrepit old clothes."

With a gentle hand the milliner stroked back the unruly curls. "I know, dear," she encouraged the youthful confidant. "Somebody who is to be honored, besides many others who love you. But, my child, don't have your gown too long."

JAMES MONROE

1758—(April 28) James Monroe born in Westmoreland county, Va.
1776—Graduated William and Mary. Entered the army.
1782—In the legislature.
1783-86—In the Continental congress.
1787—In the legislature.
1788—In the state constitutional convention.
1790—In the senate.
1794-6—Minister to France.
1797-1802—Governor of Virginia.
1803-8—In the diplomatic service.
1809-10—In the legislature.
1811—Governor.
1811-17—Secretary of state.

NOT OTHER president, with the exception of John Quincy Adams, has served the country as long as James Monroe, and, without exception, none has had an official experience so varied.

From 1776, when he was a vigorous, six-foot, broad shouldered, raw-boned boy of eighteen, and left William and Mary's college to enter the Revolution, Monroe remained in the public service until 1825, when he retired from the White House a wrinkled, care bent, impoverished old man. In those 49 years, he had been a minor military officer under Washington; repentedly a member of the legislature, a member of the Continental congress and of the national senate; twice governor of Virginia; minister to France, England and Spain; secretary of state president for two terms.

Without wealth or family influence, with a slow, commonplace mind, with no gifts as a speaker; with a modest awkward presence and plain, unpolished manners, this very ordinary man plodded up the ladder of ambition to its topmost rung. How? By sheer force of his rugged, courageous, in-

Although he failed in some of his most important tasks, Monroe's failures were forgiven because they were honest mistakes. The ridicule and the disgrace brought upon him by the most spectacular episode of his undramatic life would have buried forever a man more brilliant and less sincere.

This remarkable scene was enacted on the highly theatrical stage of the national convention at Paris directly after the Reign of Terror and the fall of Robespierre, when France was the outcast among nations. At that moment, Monroe appeared as the envoy of the only sister republic and, to let all the world see that the Revolution had at least one friend left on earth, the president of the convention melodramatically folded the rustic Virginian in his arms.

After two years, he was recalled for his zeal, and came home in a rage of indignation. Passing by the gate of Mount Vernon without paying his respects to Washington, he paid them instead in 500 pages which he published in defense of himself and in denunciation of the administration. Nevertheless, the discredited diplomat was sent to Paris again by President Jefferson in a few years, when he came away covered with success, and with the treaty for the purchase of Louisiana under his arm by a fitting prelude to the Monroe doctrine, 20 years later.

There is a most interesting souvenir of Monroe in Paris. Like Madison, he had fallen in love while a member of congress and had married Elizabeth Kortright of New York. Two children having been born to them, one of the girls was placed in the famous French school of Mme. Campan, where she formed a friendship with Horace Beaumarchais that outlasted the many vicissitudes of Josephine's daughter.

Recently the notable figures in the court of the first consul of Malmson were modeled and grouped about Napoleon for a celebrated wax works show in Paris. In that brilliant galaxy of monarchs and dukes yet to be, Eliza Monroe, in girlish prettiness, is seen again by the side of the future queen of Holland and the destined mother of Napoleon III.

The report of Secretary Dashiell showed this year's pack was considerably less than that of previous years. This report showed the total pack of tomatoes to be as follows: Maryland, 3,212,630; Delaware, 571,226; New Jersey, 495,744 cases, or a total of 4,279,600, as compared with a total of 8,195,581 in 1918, 7,694,160 in 1917 and 7,951,000 in 1916. The pack in 1919 totaled but 2,777,525.

Opposed To Government Operations

The Maryland public is overwhelmingly opposed to radical government experiments according to the results of a questionnaire on the subject of government operation of industries sent out to the editors of this and the other States of the country. Of the 33 editors who replied, 31 or 94% said that the citizens of their communities were opposed to the government going into business in competition with its citizen.

The questionnaire was sent out by the Press Service Company of New York City. While the inquiry was based on the general principle of government operation, the so-called Muscle Shoals bill now before Congress was used as a concrete example. Under this bill a government-owned corporation would be given power, among other things, to produce at Muscle Shoals various fertilizer products and sell them in competition with private manufacturers and dealers.

As to the wisdom of the government adopting this policy toward the fertilizer industry the editors were asked for their personal opinion. Of the 31 editors who gave an opinion on this point, 28 or 90% were unqualifiedly opposed to the scheme.

The political affiliations of the Maryland papers whose editors answered the questionnaire were: Republican, 7; Democratic, 15; Independents, 10; and miscellaneous, 1.

A summary of the results of the questionnaire from the country at large shows that this opposition to government operation is general. Out of 5154 editors replying, 4466 or 86% voted their communities against the proposition. This is an increase of 3% in the opposition as compared with the results of a similar questionnaire sent out by the Press Service Company a year ago in connection with the question of turning the railroads back to their owners.

The papers heard from in the present poll are 1857 Republican, 1350 Democratic, 1458 Independent and 462 miscellaneous. Not only did political bias play no part in the replies but sectional differences seem to have no appreciable effect on the result. The combined circulation of the papers whose editors replied is 11,428,817, which means a constituency of at least 44,000,000 readers.

NEAR EAST RELIEF APPEAL FOR MORE FUNDS FOR WORK

MARYLAND IS ASKED TO SUPPORT
4,200 ARMENIAN WAR
ORPHANS.

IS MOST POPULAR PHILANTHROPY

Near East Relief, the American organization whose tremendously successful work in Armenia, Syria, Transcaucasia and Persia has saved the lives of half a million or more people who were starving to death after the close of the World War, is making a new appeal to American philanthropy for funds to continue its work. Practically the whole task now left to it, thanks to the success of the work of the past two years, is the care of war orphans in the orphanages which it has established.

There were about 250,000 of these orphans in Armenia and neighboring lands who were found after the war in roving bands seeking food in the cities and the open country and in all stages of starvation. There are few now to whom some sort of aid has not been given, but there are many thousands who have only America and Near East Relief to look to for food, clothing and shelter. It is for the purpose of continuing to provide this support of these orphans and to prevent their again being brought to the verge of death by starvation, that the appeal for money to keep up the work has been issued.

The people of the state of Maryland have been asked, as their share of this orphan support, to provide for 2,084 orphans for a year. Near East Relief is able to feed an orphan for $5 a month and to provide food, clothing, shelter and education for $15 a month, or $180 a year for each.

The Thanksgiving-Christmas period has been set as the time for the campaign in many Maryland counties to obtain the contributions which will support the orphans assigned to them. Every dollar contributed to this cause goes into actual relief work in Armenia and the neighboring Near East countries, no deductions being made for expenses, which are privately borne.

Near East Relief is a federal corporation, chartered by Congress. Its accounts are carefully audited by certified public accountants and reports made to Congress. It has been investigated and endorsed by the National Information Bureau.

Near East Relief provides food for the hungry. For instance, a few weeks ago 150,000 refugees were being fed in one city in the Caucasus. This food had to be provided every day and if the funds stopped for a few weeks all of these people would have perished.

Near East Relief provides shelter for the homeless. There are 229 orphanages, with an enrollment of 54,400, and also 56,039 other children cared for outside of these buildings. There were recently acquired an additional 60,000 children from Russia, who came to the Caucasus ahead of the Bolshevik army.

Near East Relief provides healing for the sick. There are 63 hospitals in the various districts and countries of the Near East, with a large staff of physicians, nurses and helpers.

Near East Relief provides rescue for imprisoned women and girls. There are eleven rescue homes full to overflowing. If more funds were provided, more homes could be opened and filled immediately. There are more than 100,000 of these Armenian women and girls in Turkish harems, but their release cannot be demanded until places of shelter for them are provided or their relatives, if any, can be located.

Near East Relief is building up industrial life. There are employed 23,000 men, women and young people in Near East Relief factories.

Near East Relief provides repatriation for refugees, returning them to their homes as far as possible when it is safe to do so.

Near East Relief desires the co-operation of every American. The Armenians are suffering because of their religious convictions, their loyalty to principle, their adherence to the cause of the Allies, for which we are under obligation to them in sacrificing their lives and thus saving American lives by shortening the war.

Near East Relief is perhaps the most popular philanthropy in America because of these facts and also that of all the relief areas in the world the Near East is the only place where no government aid is available. The Armenians are surrounded by neighbors who would rejoice in their extermination. They are the remnant of a martyred Christian race, whose fathers and relatives have died for the Christian faith, but this remnant, and especially the thousands of orphans whom American dollars are now supporting, constitute the hope of the future of the Near East.

If we have heart we will gladly sustain these people in their distress, save them from starvation and provide shelter and clothing, as well as food, for the many thousands of orphans who look to America for their very existence.

MEN OF THE SECRET SERVICE

Material for Many a Best Seller Might Be Found In Their Everyday Exploits.

The habit of deduction which got the polite idler Zedig into trouble with the king of Babylon, and a long time afterward amazed the matter-of-fact Doctor Watson when applied by Sherlock Holmes to the solution of mysteries of crime, is no part of the routine of the real detective, and perhaps Capt. Donella, who retires as the head of the federal secret service in Kentucky to become an Indiana farmer, never sat up late at night to read "Shadowed by Three," or patterned his methods after those of the heroes of Emile Gaboriau. But if the real life detective is no wizard he is at least a workman whose career is not barren of industrial results or of adventure which would be thrilling to readers if it were illuminated by the pen of a gifted writer, the Louisville Courier-Journal states.

Criminals are almost always wholly sordid. The "gentleman" crook, if the term "gentleman" connotes anything beyond a clean collar and a well-pressed suit of clothing, doesn't exist, detectives agree. The sentimental porch climber, the chivalrous burglar, the Raffles whose drawing-room manner is equalled only by his actual refinement of soul, are "bunk," but many crimes and many criminals are mystifying and highly interesting. In the official records of criminals hunted down in any state and any considerable city there is material for a hundred best selling stories of crime. The life of the secret service man is that of a huntsman whose game is not always approached easily, does not always fall at the first shot, and often fights spiritedly when brought to bay.

Men who lead dull lives at desks or behind counters dream of exciting adventure. Ship captains, deep sea fishermen, veterans of bloody wars, chasers of criminals, want to settle down upon farms and raise cows or chickens. Among them is Captain Donella, credited with having tracked down 8,000 counterfeiters.

Unlike the actress, whose exciting moments are make-believe, the man who has seen active service knows what he's about, as a rule, when he "settles down."

Doubtless a veteran detective will make an enthusiastic farmer, a deep student of the chemical composition of the soils and balanced rations for live stock. Sherlock Holmes of fiction would drug himself to death to avoid being bored to death upon a farm, but Mr. Burns of real life doubtless looks forward to spending his declining years as a rural proprietor.

The Entire Crop.
A federal official at Washington has discovered that he has still something to learn touching agriculture.

He has purchased a farm as a summer home for his family, and finds special delight in walking about the place, commenting on the condition of the crops and in many ways showing his interest in his possessions.

One evening during the summer he was strolling over the farm. The hired man had cut the grass during the day—a very thin crop—and left it on the ground to dry. The official saw it, and, calling his man, said:

"It appears to me that you are very careless. Why haven't you been more particular in raking up this hay? Don't you see that you have left dribblings all around?"

For a moment the hired man stared, wondering whether his boss was quizzing him. Then he replied:

"Dribblings? Why, sir, that's the entire crop!"

Yes, She Had Seen It.
The new typist determined to make a good impression upon her chief. She turned up half an hour early and began tidying up the room. When that was done she examined her typewriter, discovered it in a shocking condition, found a bottle and gave it a thorough oiling. While about it she examined all the other typewriters in the office and oiled them too.

There is nothing, she thought, like making oneself indispensable!

Her chief arrived. He looked around him with an air of satisfaction and crossed to the mantelpiece. Then his smile changed to a frown.

"Miss Smith," he said, "have you seen my cough mixture?"

Hard to Account for Moss.
A tiny bit of moss, perched on the crest of Niagara falls on the footing of a bare rock over which the cataract flows at the rate of 15 feet a second. Is one of the latest "sights" pointed out to tourists. Standing on Prospect point, it is easy to discern the little green patch which covers a spot some eight inches square.

Although the theory has been advanced that the original seed might have been carried down on the ice and there deposited on the brink of the falls, this idea is scouted on the grounds that the water-flow never ceases—winter or summer.

Undecided.
"I almost hate to buy a new dress," Mrs. Dubbs observed. "I am so torn by conflicting desires."

"Quite a proper feeling, I'm sure!" Dubbs hastily agreed with hopeful enthusiasm. "Just what—"

"Well, when other women admire a new frock of mine I can hardly decide whether to tell them the price was half what it really was, and make them envy me my wonderful bargain, or double the price and make them envy me my ability to spend so much money."

TO "ENJOY" A PERSIAN MEAL

Your Host Gauges Your Appreciation of Viands by the Noise of Your Eating.

We were ready long before the evening meal. Punctuality is not a prime characteristic of the Persians. On the porch with its carved wooden pillars, Khan Asseyed (a district chief in Persia), his son, his nephew, who was captain of the guards, and the two of us sat sipping tea and awaiting the announcement of dinner.

Tea is served from small, rounded glass cups and is thick with sugar. The guest drinks with loud sips and should he fail to produce a sound of correct pitch as he swallows the sickly liquid, he shows improper appreciation of its quality. We were, therefore, extremely careful to be as noisy as possible. When we had finished a cup, the servants snatched it from us, refilled it and handed it to the khan, who again presented it. In spite of protestations, we had to make another cupful go down. The numbers of cups and the wait until dinner seemed interminable.

I remember hearing that somewhere in Arabia proper etiquette demanded that guests consume a certain number of glasses of liquid refreshment before dinner could be served. Since it occurred to me, therefore, that there might be some connection between our tea drinking and the meal hour, I poured down as much as I could and listened to the conversation. It was largely stories of the Lubbish robbers. Asseyed was a pleasant, lackadaisical man, who seemed to take the delay in his dinner hour, as he probably took the world in general, very largely in the spirit of inshallah—if God will. His nephew, the captain of the guards, displayed more physical vigor but less intellect. I surmised that it might have been the nephew who earned Asseyed his reputation for bravery. Boastfulness is an accomplishment in Persia, and Asseyed proved himself a master of the art.

In the remote districts of Persia the position of khan is gained by the man who exhibits the most power. Even the robber chieftains themselves sometimes attain this high distinction.

By this time dinner, with its huge copper platters, had arrived. We went through the formality of washing our hands with water that the servants had poured over them from long spouted pitchers. The utensils of the table were a huge, beautifully carved near wood spoon for the sherbet, and the fingers of the right hand. The khan presently noticed our lack of dexterity in seizing and eating the choicest morsels. Graciously he remedied this defect. Leaning over, he would select a huge, fatty portion of meat, roll it carefully into a ball with his pudgy hands and thrust it smilingly between our astonished lips.

Lovesick Hindu Consults Spirits.
When the ancient Hindu suffered the pangs of jealousy, and was in doubt of winning his lady love, he sought the aid of spirits in a peculiar manner. He would make a clay image of the woman he loved and then shoot an arrow into the spot where the heart was supposed to be. The bowstring used had to be made of hemp, the arrowshaft of black alawood, the feather an owl's plume. If this formula was not strictly adhered to, there was absolutely no chance of winning the fair one. The idea of working evil on an enemy was extensively practiced by the Ojibwa Indian long before bullets were ever thought of as an ideal messenger of death. The Ojibwa would make a wooden image of the one whose destruction he sought, and then pierce its head or heart with a needle. He was positive in his belief that the object of his hate would be similarly affected. However, to make certain, he would burn the puppet to the accompaniment of magical words.

A Great Favor.
"You know Jack Carter?"

"Oh, yes."

"What sort is he?"

"Jack? Finest fellow you ever met." "He seemed to be all right, but I don't know him so well, and before lending him the $100 he asked me for I thought I'd just inquire about a bit."

"Jack has asked you for $100?"

"Yes."

"Well, as a great personal favor to me, I'll ask that you let him have it."

"Favor to you? How so?"

"Well, Jack owes me $50, and if you lend him $100 and I tackle him before he has a chance to get rid of it there will be an almost even chance that he will settle up with me."

The Wild, Wild Women.
Swiggs—The pictures I liked best were those wild animal ones of a few years back—the pictures that had a story interwoven around lions, tigers, wildcats and so forth. Quite unique and interesting! I wonder why they dropped off so suddenly. Did the animals perish, or devour the actors, or what happened?

Swiggs—Competition was their Nemesis. The vampire came into vogue about that time, and naturally they were too tame in comparison to terrify the public any longer.—From Film Fun.

Appropriate Condition.
"I see where they christened some destroyers with cider."

"I suppose that was to pledge them always to be in apple pie order."—Baltimore American.

Has to Be Clever.
"She's a clever conversationalist."

"She has to be, to cover up the breaks her husband makes."

ARMENIANS HAIL AMERICAN PEOPLE AS THEIR SAVIORS

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS ARE LIVING TODAY BECAUSE OF U. S. AID.

MAKE BRAVE FIGHT THEMSELVES

New York.—Charles V. Vickrey, secretary of Near East Relief, has sent the following cable message from Constantinople to Near East Relief headquarters in this city:

"Have just returned from a thorough inspection of conditions throughout Armenia. The premier, president, governors, mayors and all authorities agree that Armenia has saved last year by the flour and other foodstuffs sent from America. Hundreds of thousands are living today who would be dead had it not been for American relief. They are devoutly grateful to their saviors in the United States.

"The Armenians are thrifty, hard-working and industrious. Considering their handicaps they have made remarkable progress towards self-support. Hundreds of thousands of them are still homeless refugees from Turkish Armenia.

"Without modern agricultural implements, with an insufficient number of oxen and with an inadequate supply of seed wheat they have succeeded in raising food supplies that will carry them until mid-winter. Supplementary supplies must be provided until the recently signed peace treaty with Turkey can be made effective and security given under which they can return to the site of their ruined homes and regain full self-support.

"Everyone joins in high praise of the magnificent life-saving—if not nation saving—work of Col. Haskell in the four distribution of last winter. Since the withdrawal of Col. Haskell and the American military mission last August the relief work is being continued under the civilian direction of Capt. Yarrow and Strong.

"The American civilian personnel of Near East Relief operates one orphanage at Alexandropol that contains approximately ten thousand Armenian war orphans. Another orphanage at Kars accommodates six thousand orphans. There are three thousand at the Erivan orphanage and smaller orphanages at other centers.

"These orphaned boys and girls constitute the hope of the future for the Near East. American philanthropy, through Near East Relief, is rendering an inestimable service in promoting good will and international friendship. A few millions of dollars today in the form of food, education and industrial training for these orphans may save billions of dollars to-morrow in warfare and international strife."

AMERICAN RELIEF REACHES 100,000 IN THE NEAR EAST

The Near East Relief work is divided into three branches, with offices in Beirut, Alexandropol and Constantinople. The latter station, having a personnel of 200, is caring for 32,000 orphans, 12,000 hospital cases and 9,000 in industrial work, giving direct aid in money, clothing and soup to temporary refugees. The committee here visits needy homes, arranging employment and other aid affecting 12,000 people.

In the Caucasus the work now is concentrated at Alexandropol under a personnel of 20 Americans, where 24,000 orphans are fed and lodged. Refugees from Cilicia, on account of banditry in the French zone of Syria, have greatly increased. Col. Coombs, managing director at Constantinople, commends the spirits of sacrifice among American relief workers, which more than offsets the lack of some in experience.

When Americans became beleaguered in the bandit-infested interior, Col. Coombs wrote a circular letter informing the personnel that they were free to leave when they felt conditions warranted it, but only three former soldiers quit their posts. Even after Adana was surrounded Miss Doris Nevin, the late composer's daughter, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Ruth Henry, of Amherst, Mass., voluntarily braved a journey through the Turk lines to take charge of that branch. This was only one of several similar incidents.

GREECE OFFICIALLY THANKS NEAR EAST RELIEF

Washington.—The Greek legation in receipt of a report from the Greek High Commissioner in Constantinople, that the American organization, Near East Relief, is spending about 3,000 Turkish pounds per week (approximately $3,000) in Western Asia Minor, actively helping the refugees of that district, which is under the control of the Greek government.

The Greek charge has written the executive committee of Near East Relief that "it is a very gratifying feeling to know that so many innocent victims are relieved from their sufferings," and expressing his thanks to Near East Relief for its work in Asia Minor.

"HOW WELL YOU LOOK!"

When Your Blood Is Rich And Red
People Notice Your Good Health

PEPTO-MANGAN BUILDS HEALTH

Pale Face, Dull Eyes, Drooping Shoulders, Result From Clogged Blood

If your blood is in bad shape it shows up in your looks and feeling. When your blood is rich with red corpuscles your color is better—your lips are red, eyes wide open and bright; your good feeling shows in your actions.

Common sense will tell you that if weak, thin blood makes you look lifeless, it lowers your vitality. If your vitality is low you have little power to resist disease germs. Men, women and children with rich, red blood are able to fight off the germs which bring severe illness.

When you feel run down and weak, with no appetite and no ambition, take Pepto-Mangan for awhile. It is a great blood building tonic. You should begin to feel better within a few days.

Pepto-Mangan is put up in both liquid and tablet form. Take either kind you prefer, because they have the same medicinal value. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," should be on the package.—Advertisement.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN
Teaching First Aid

Every person mentally and physically able to do so should take the American Red Cross instruction in First Aid Treatment. It's a life-saver and a pain-saver on the farm, in the factory, on the street, at the office, in the home, wherever accidents may occur. Here's a young wife who ineptly wielded a can-opener and received an ugly gash across her wrist from the jagged can lid. Mother was there, however, with the First Aid kit and Red Cross instruction, and probably prevented a case of blood poison by giving prompt and proper treatment before the doctor arrived.

Immense Coal Dump.
The coal dump of the Snowden Coke company at Linn, Pa., is said to be the largest in the world. It takes care of twenty-eight coal cars at one time, dumping them simultaneously in one operation in eight seconds.

THIS SHOE FACTORY UNIQUE

How Women of the Belcher Islands Prepare the Walrus Hide for Foot Coverings.

The most peculiar boot factory in the world is probably that on the Belcher Islands, a small, barren, rock-ribbed group belonging to Canada, and 100 miles from the nearest Hudson Bay post off the Nastapokas. The shoes are made by the women of the colony, and are created from the skin of tanned walrus hides. The process that precedes the actual shaping of the boots consists of the women sitting in a row with large squares of hide in their hands, and solemnly chewing it inch by inch until the fat is removed from the hide. They squeeze the hide from time to time to loosen it up, and then go on with the chewing hour after hour.

For clothing the natives use the skins of elder duck, with the feathers worn inside, and while this makes a costume that has not been equalled for keeping out the cold, the odor arising from the skin is such that the few white explorers who have reached the island urged a return to Adam and Eve costume during their stay.

The first knowledge of the islands and their inhabitants came when Robert Flaherty, 21 years old, adventured out in the pay of Sir William MacKenzie, to locate them on the uncertain basis of an Indian legend. The admiral's chart showed that there was 20 fathoms of water where the islands are. Flaherty returned in triumph to disprove this.

HUMOR SUPERIOR TO WIT

Former Quality Always Kindly, While the Latter is Inclined to Be Cautious.

Both wit and humor, like, art, poetry and love, are quite indefinable. But humor is the more elusive of the two. There are national types of wit, an English wit, a French wit, a German wit, an Irish wit, and—yes—a Scottish wit.

But humor is something universal, the curious and blessed gift that man has, all the world over, of discerning the incongruous in most things, remarks a writer in the Edinburgh Scotsman. Wit is related to the superficial, but humor dwells deep down in the innermost heart of us. Wit may be caustic; humor is kindly. Wit is the accompaniment of comedy and draws forth the loud guffaw of the top gallery of the music hall. But humor is not divorced from tragedy, and its laughter may be very close to tears.

Scottish "wit" is not English wit, but a sense of humor is the same in kind all the world over. Scottish wit, of both the deliberate and the accidental kind, consists very largely in a certain dry way of saying something so simple and obvious that it is least expected.

The English Vocabulary.

The number of English words not yet obsolete, but found in good authors, or in approved usage by correct speakers, including the nomenclature of science and the arts, does not probably fall short of 100,000. Few writers or speakers use as many as 10,000 words, ordinary persons of fair intelligence not above three or four thousand. If a scholar were to be required to name, without examination, the authors whose English vocabulary was the largest, he would specify the all-embracing Shakespeare, and the all-knowing Milton. And yet in all the works of the great dramatist there seem not more than 15,000 words; in the poems of Milton not above 8,000. The whole number of Egyptian hieroglyphic symbols does not exceed 800, and the entire Italian operative vocabulary is said to be scarcely more extensive.—George Perkins Marsh.

Origin of Picture Postcards.

Picture postcards originated on the continent of Europe, probably in Germany and Austria, where the enterprising hotel keepers at the various spas of those countries induced their guests to send them to their friends as mementoes, with a shrewd idea of advertising their hostilities. At any rate, artistic postcards gradually became popular in Germany, France and Italy and other countries of continental Europe. They were introduced to the English-speaking people by the firm of Raphael Tuck & Sons, London, who were hindered at first by the British postal regulations, which would allow only a small part of the card to be devoted to a picture or view. Since then picture postcards have spread all over the world. They were first used in this country about 1897.

Success Lies Within Yourself.

It does not matter whether you were born in a hovel or in a mansion, it is within yourself that you will find the material that makes success. And if you have the right spirit, you will not urge lack of ability or of education as an excuse for failure or mediocrity. If you have the will to victory, you will not haggle about conditions or circumstances. The men who have accomplished great things did not wait for paraphernalia or for fine tools. It is not fine tools nor splendid opportunities nor influential friends nor great riches that make great men. The greatness is in the man or nowhere.—Orison Swett Marden in "You Can, but Will You?"

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried everything I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too. At all druggists. E 85

COST HIM LITTLE TO LIVE.

Roger Crab, Eccentric Englishman, Subsisted for Many Years on Roots, Weeds and Grass.

People today might with profit take a leaf from that rare pamphlet written by Roger Crab, "The English Hermit; or, Wonders of This Age."

There have been three men of this name who were more or less celebrated in literature, all, however, spelling their patronymics differently. Roger Crab, who died Sept. 11, 1680, was a hermit, and 1641 he began restricting himself to a vegetarian diet, avoiding even butter and cheese. From roots he got to a regimen of broth thickened with bran, and pudding made of bran and turnip leaves; and finally resorted to dock-leaves and grass. He drank nothing but water, and said his views came to him by illumination while digging in his garden. His publications were coarse at times, but shrewd.

Speaking of himself, he said: "Instead of strong drinks and wines, I gave the old man a cup of water."

The law of the old man in my fleshy members rebelled against the law of the mind, and had a shrewd skirmish; but, the mind being well enlightened, held it so that the old man became sick and weak with the flux, like to fall to the dust, but the wonderful love of God, being well pleased with the battle, raised him full of love, peace and contentment of mind, and he is now becoming more humble, for now he will eat dock-leaves, mallows or grass."—Chicago Journal.

REAL ORIGIN OF CHARIVARI

In Medieval Times It Was an Expression of Disapproval of Too Domineering Wife.

The unpleasant ceremony known in America as the charivari, in medieval times was the ceremony that went with the public disapproval of a weak-kneed husband and a strong-minded or strong-armed wife.

When a wife was known to be the head of the house and not averse to applying the family club to her husband's back, the men of the village, holding that such a precedent might come into unpleasant popularity, waited for a dark night, and then attacked the house of the ill-assorted couple. The wife was dragged from her bed, and in whatever scant attire she might be found, was tied to the back of a donkey, her face to the rear, while the husband was tied by the hands to the donkey's tail. They were then paraded through the streets under the glare of torches, while the entire population turned out to beat pans and blow horns and yell gibes and insults at the pair. As the years passed the ceremony was widened to include widows or widowers who had remarried too soon after their mate's death, or those persons whose wide difference in age met with public disapproval.

Beethoven Brutally Frank.

Probably there never lived a man more thoroughly brutal in his honesty than Ludwig van Beethoven. When he planned to do so he could play the part of the diplomat—as his letters to his publishers and to the royal personages, to whom he dedicated his works often show. But when taken unawares Beethoven spoke his mind without thought of whom he might offend or how he might offend them. A historic instance is that connected with the composer Paer, whose opera, "Fidelio," Beethoven went to hear. It is said that Paer approached Beethoven after the performance and naturally invited criticism, whereupon Beethoven blurted out, "I like your opera very much—I will set it to music." This to the sensitive Paer, who had written many musical successes, was tantamount to saying, "I like your wife very much; I will marry her!"

Operation of Microphone.

The microphone is applied to the detection of fire damp in mines. This is its principle: If sound waves from two pipes of equal pitch impinge on microphones connected in series with a telephone, a clear note is heard, but if one of the pipes emits a slightly different note beats will be heard in the telephone. Here is the application: One pipe is placed in the mine, the other above the ground, and they are blown simultaneously. If the air, in the mine is charged with fire damp it will produce a different note from that produced by clear air, owing to the difference of density, and, in consequence, a series of beats in the telephone gives warning of the presence of fire damp. The same apparatus is very sensitive to the presence of coal gas.—New York Sun and Herald.

Running Water Soothes Babies.

In the hill stations of India, one may often come across native babies lying asleep in the open, with a continuous stream of water flowing over their heads, this being obtained by damming up some little stream and inserting a length of bamboo piping. The cold water tends to drive the blood away from the brain, says a writer in the Wide World magazine, and so induces sleep. Infants are frequently left alone in this way quite safely for from eight to ten hours, while the mother earns her living cutting grass on the hillsides.

Be Firm in Purpose.

The man who is just and resolute will not be moved from his settled purpose, either by the misdirected rage of his fellow citizens or by the threats of an imperious tyrant.—Horace.

THE REAL FACTS ABOUT NEAR EAST

STATEMENT OF THE TRUSTEES.

$50,000,000 Of Cash And Supplies Administered Without The Known Loss Of A Dollar From Dishonesty.

To all Near East Relief State Directors, Workers and Any Others Interested:

Concerning sensational reports from Constantinople, I enclose herewith two votes passed at a meeting of our Board of Trustees and submit the following additional facts in which you may be interested.

1. I was in Constantinople at the time the arrests were being made and as General Secretary am personally familiar with the entire situation.

2. There were thefts from our warehouses.

3. These thefts were discovered by our own bookkeeper as a result of thoroughly business-like methods of keeping warehouse accounting records.

4. The detective work and arrests were affected under the personal supervision of Colonel Coombs, our Managing Director, and had we not prosecuted the guilty parties, the newspapers and general public would never have heard of the thieving.

5. Not one of the more than five hundred officially accredited representatives of the Near East Relief as sent from New York is in any way involved.

6. The charges are confined exclusively to employees who were engaged locally for distinctively warehouse and kindred work, who did not pass the usual tests of the New York Personnel Committee.

7. Every appointee of Near East Relief sent from New York is obliged to appear before our Personnel Committee and meet certain rather rigid requirements, both with reference to technical qualifications and as to moral character and altruistic motives in applying for appointment.

8. Among the more than thirty questions which every applicant must answer in writing is the following: "Are you a total abstainer from alcoholic beverages and narcotic drugs?" Since the passage of the 18th amendment no candidate is appointed who does not answer this question in the affirmative.

9. By more recent action of the Administrative Committee in Constantinople, confirmed by our Executive Committee and Board of Trustees, any employee as well as official representative of the Near East Relief who uses intoxicants is subject to immediate dismissal from the service.

10. The men who are now under arrest in Constantinople did use intoxicants, but they were ex-army men who went from France to Constantinople and were employed locally in the warehouse, without the appointment, approval or knowledge of the New York Committee.

11. As General Secretary of Near East Relief, intimately associated with the organization for nearly five years, I do not know of a single penny of Near East Relief funds that has ever been spent, in any place or in any form for wine or other alcoholic beverages, and no considerable expenditure of this kind could have been made without my knowledge. I grant the possibility of the employees above referred to having, without my knowledge, purchased drinks for Turkish officials or others, but any such action brought to our knowledge would have subjected them to instant dismissal.

12. The warehouse thievery is relatively small,—by latest official reports less than $20,000. More than $10,000 of the stolen goods have already been recovered and the remainder probably will be, for while the merchants who purchased the stolen goods are dishonest, they are financially responsible and can be made to restore most if not all of the loss.

13. I have not seen any glaring headlines in the daily papers about: (a) The more than $50,000,000 of cash and supplies which by our auditors' reports have been administered, without the known loss of a dollar from dishonesty on the part of any of our officially accredited employees.

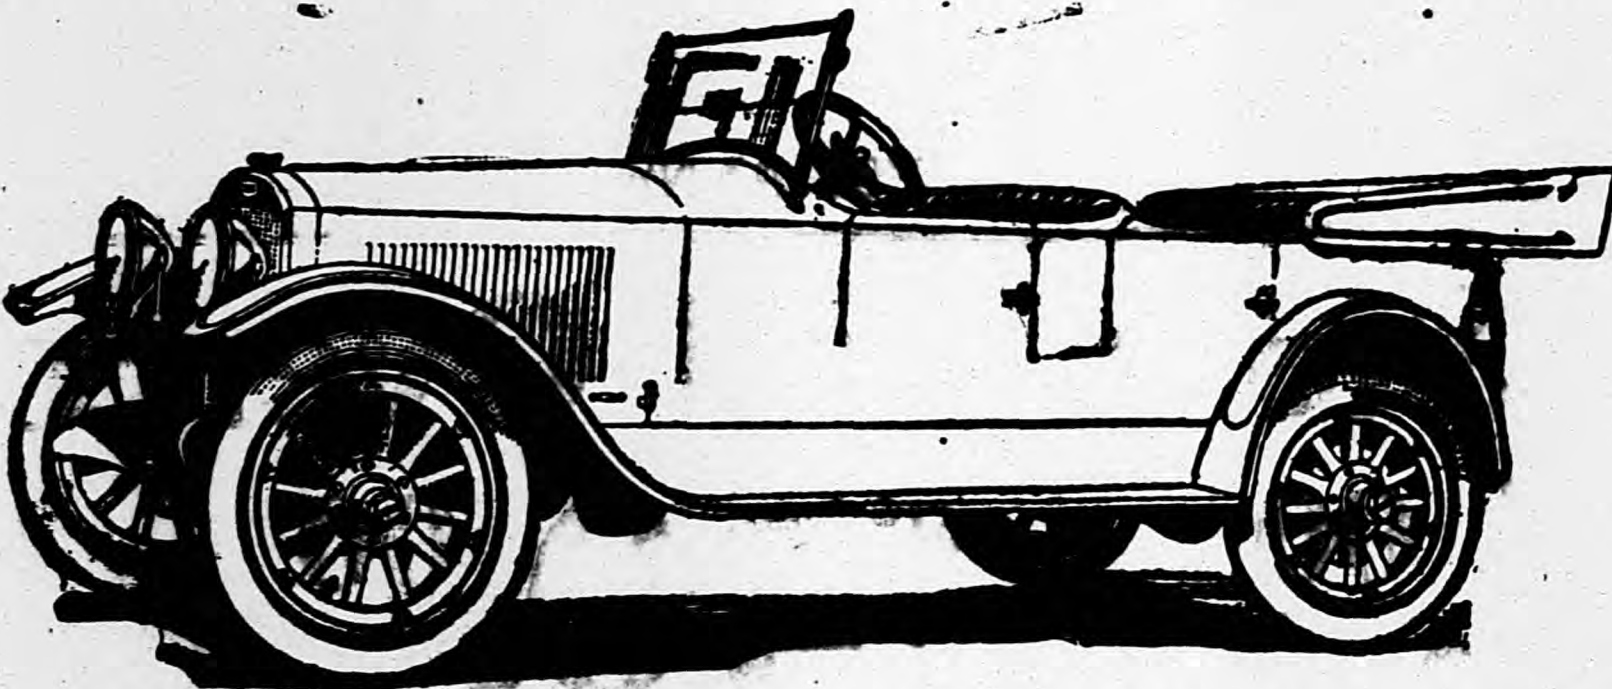

(b) The more than 500 heroic American men and women, who at great personal sacrifice have administered this relief, some of them literally becoming martyrs, laying down their lives as victims of typhus or other contagious diseases contracted while ministering to the needy.

(c) Of the 229 orphanages in connection with which 110,000 children are cared for.

(d) The 63 hospitals, caring daily for approximately 7,000 patients, nor (e) The 500,000 persons, who, by the testimony of competent Armenian authorities are living today who would have perished during the past year had it not been for American relief.

14. The ALLEGED breaking of a bottle of champagne of which I as General Secretary of the organization have absolutely no knowledge, is apparently of greater importance so far as news value is concerned than the service that the American people have rendered and are continuing to render in the salvaging of a nation.

THAT BACKACHE SPELLS DANGER!

Action Today May Save Princess Anne People Future Misery.

A bad back isn't a bad thing if it serves as a warning of hidden kidney disorders. Kidney diseases are frightfully common today. We over-do so much. We don't give the kidneys a chance to rest up, and while a bad back, some urinary disorder, an occasional dizzy spell or a persistent headache may be the only outward sign, the kidney trouble that is behind it all may be overlooked or neglected. Put your signs to use. Take them as warnings. Fight off kidney weakness. It takes only a slight kidney disorder to start a case of fatal Bright's disease, from which 100,000 people die in the United States every year. Prompt treatment at first—that's all that's necessary to keep kidney weakness from turning into gravel, dropsy, heart trouble or Bright's. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the oldest, the most widely used, the best recommended Kidney Pills. Fifty thousand Americans recommend them publicly. Here's one Princess Anne case: Mrs. James A. Hayman, Beechwood street, says: "I was in a bad way some years ago with a severe backache, which caused me untold pain. Whenever I stooped over and then tried to straighten up, sharp pains like a thrust of a knife struck me in the small of my back. I was very miserable until I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and used a box. I was then rid of the trouble."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Hayman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

"The Man Who Is Contented Is No Longer of Much Use To Me"

Said one of the greatest business executives in America a few days ago.

For twenty years this store has never been contented.

It takes a reasonable pride in its advancement and a satisfaction in its ability always to furnish BETTER CLOTHING at LOWER PRICES than other stores can furnish.

It is always dreaming of better things, better Clothing, better methods and a greater business.

Twenty years of this sort of discontent has, therefore, been twenty years of continued advancement.

Therefore, in spite of all unfavorable conditions and scarcities, we can, this season, offer to men first-class and unblemished stocks of fine Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats, strictly all wool and hand tailored.

We realize full well that in these days of intense competition we must offer as good, or better, values than prevail elsewhere, if customers are to buy our wares, and AND WE ARE DOING IT—attested by the largest sales in our twenty years of business.

Our prices are at their best right now on LOWER PRICES is the order of the day. We're going to sell fine goods on a closer basis than we have ever done. We are going to give you prices that are in accord with the trend of the times. We'll have to take a reduction in profit; we are doing it and we are here to prove it.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Styles for Young Men Are Simple

All the more attractive on that account. Two and three button single breasted suits will be favorites. Many double breasted models will also be worn. The coat openings are lower, the coats are a trifle longer and less body tracings. The waist line is set a little lower with shorter vests. We invite you good dressers of every age to come to Kennerly & Mitchell's for your clothes and we assure you that no city store can serve you better. Will positively save you money. See our prices
