Had Three Sisters Here.

News was received in this city Thursday announcing the death by drowning of Capt. Thomas H. Wright, who was in command of the schooner Carrie and Belle. The vessel was lost off Wolf Trap, Virginia, Sunday. Captain Wright was a brother of Mrs.
Katherine McMakin, Mrs. A. W. Woodcock and Mrs. A. J. Carey, of this city.
A telegram telling of the loss of the schooner and the death of the captain was also received by his brother Mr.
B. T. Wright, of Cambridge. Thursday night the body of the captain was recovered although the water in the vicinity of the place where the vessel went down had been dragged continually from the time the accident became known.

The boat was loaded with coal from Hampton for Baltimore. Captain Wright had recently suffered a slight paralytic stroke and relatives here surmise that he was stricken again while at the wheel. He made his home at Chesapeake City, where his widow, who was a Miss Potter, a grand-daughter of General Potter, of Potter's Landing, Caroline county, and two daughters, Misses Carrie and Nannie, reside.

Mr. Tomlinson Resigns.

The following letter, in which Mr.
J. H. Tomlinson tenders his resignation as a member of the Republican State Central Committee of Wicomico county is self explanatory. There are four members of the State Central Committee to be elected at the Republican County Convention to be held at the Court House, this city, August 17, and Mr. Tomlinson's resignation makes plain the fact that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Salisbury, Md., August 4th, 1909.
Hon. W. H. Jackson,
Chairman State Central Committee, Salisbury, Md.

Dear Sir:—

I hereby send you my resignation as a member of the State Central Committee of Wicomico County, Md., to take effect at once. Owing to the several duties in which I am interested, I find that it is only justice to myself as well as to the Republicans at large that you elect some one who can give the work more time and attention.

With best wishes, I beg to remain,
Very truly yours,
J. H. Tomlinson.

LAW BREAKING NEGROES LAND IN COUNTY JAIL.

Round-up Of Tough Element Will Rid Salisbury Of Gang That Has Been Making Trouble For Police For Several Months.

Eleven negroes were arrested by the county and city officers during the last few days and the round-up has been the means of ridding Wicomico county of a number of its worst element. The crimes for which the negroes were arrested go all the way down the line from shooting a man over a gambling table, to resisting arrest, selling whiskey, crap shooting, killing a horse and other minor offences.

This record for one week shows the vigilance of the city and county police officers and should serve as an example to other offenders. Neal Pryor, Ira Leonard and Emma Messick were the three principals captured Sunday.
Pryor with Leonard hired a horse from Ulysses Langston Sunday and started to Shiles' Camp and then proceeded to make trouble by shooting up the camp grounds. Appeals were issued to Sheriff Larmore and also to the Salisbury police. Sheriff Larmore went to the camp alone and Pryor and Leonard were found with revolvers terrorizing the camp. They made their escape and the sheriff summoned a posse at Quantico consisting of Messrs. Brady, Taylor and Gillis and started to look for them. The Salisbury police had started out consisting of Chief Disharoon, Deputy Sheriff Waller and Officer Crouch and located the gang in the woods about three miles from Salisbury. They were taken at the point of the revolver by the officers. All three are in jail awaiting trial.

John Hudson and Oscar Hudson were arrested for shooting crap. John paid his fine. Oscar is still in jail.

Three more arrests were made by Officers Disharoon and Waller on the charge of selling whiskey. The offenders were George Adams, James Anderson and Howard Pitts.

The next criminal rounded up was Joe Robbins, who has made a very unfavorable reputation for himself in this community. He was arrested by Sheriff Larmore in Seaford Sunday.
Robbins was engaged in a game of crap with several other colored men last week and got into a row over the spells.

Charles Roberts, colored, was arrested here Monday for disturbing the peace at White Haven Saturday night and locked up.

Jno. Long was arrested Monday for abusing a team he hired from Lowe & Kent Sunday. He is also in jail awaiting trial.

Death Of Mrs. Beulah Kennerly.

Mrs. Beulah Messick Kennerly, wife of Capt. W. B. Kennerly, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. E. Messick, died at her parents' home Thursday, July 29th, aged twenty-five years.
Mrs. Kennerly was married to Capt.
Kennerly not quite four years ago and their married life was exceptionally happy, but about a year ago, her health began to fail and despite all that loving friends and the best medical aid could do, she grew gradually weaker, until Thursday afternoon, when she passed peacefully away.

For several years prior to her marriage, Mrs. Kennerly taught school at Nanticoke and was a very successful teacher. She had many warm friends for she was a lady of very beautiful character, always bright and cheerful with a kind word for everyone.
Throughout her long illness she maintained the same cheerful disposition, trying to cheer the sorrowing friends, and though she had much to live for,
was ready to submit to the will of God, for she was a true christian and had been a member of the M. E. Church since her childhood.

The funeral services were held at the home Saturday morning and were largely attended. Rev. G. W. Hesting conducted the services. The casket was covered with beautiful flowers, showing the esteem in which she was held. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing relatives, while now they cannot understand the providence that took from them their loved one, in the bloom of her young womanhood.

Notice!!!

I will be unable to officiate in Spring Hill Parish on Sunday next, August 8.

HANDSOME KIMBALL PIANO AWARDED TO W. J. MORRIS.

Wrote The Words, "Hughes Sells Kimball Pianos" 1482 Times On A Paper The Size Of An Ordinary Postal—Many Contestants.

In the postal card contest, in which Mr. H. H. Hughes, an enterprising piano dealer, of Salisbury, gave away a fine Kimball Piano to the person writing the words "Hughes sells Kimball pianos" the greatest number of times on a piece of paper the size of a postal card, the judges' decision was as follows: First prize, a $400. piano, was awarded to Mr. John L. Morris, Jr., R. F. D. No. 4, Salisbury, Md.
This list contained 1482 sentences. The second, third and fourth prizes were awarded to Mr. Harry L. Harcum, Mr. Dallas H. Hearn and Mrs. E. H.
Walton respectively, all of whom reside in Salisbury. The judges were Messrs. S. A. Graham, H. L. Brewington and Joseph L. Bailey all of Salisbury. The prize piano and the winning list are on exhibition at Mr.
Hughes' store opposite the Court House.

Considerable interest was displayed in this unusual contest, over 900 cards having been sent in. The winner, Mr.
Morris, wrote the words 600 more times than his nearest competitor, yet each sentence could be read with the naked eye. The winner was decided by a vote of the judges after the sentences had been counted, without knowing who had sent in the cards.
The cards were numbered and a corresponding number with the name attached was enclosed in a sealed envelope and not opened until the decision had been announced.

of pure bred live stock and poultry of every description within the state of devote some attention to this matter in order to promote the breeding of pure bred stock and to improve the

It is hoped that the responses to this request will be sufficiently complete and extensive to justify the publication of a Live Stock Registry and of typhoid fever, after an illness of six weeks. Funeral services were held in the M. E. Church on Thursday night by Rev. R. H. Adams, of Harrington, Del. The family, with undertakers the body to Linden, Va., for interment. The floral tributes were many

COUNTY RESIDENTS NOW APPLY FOR GOOD ROADS.

Several Applications Before County Commissioners Asking For Roads Under Provisions Of Schumaker Legislative Act.

The fact that Wicomico county is making rapid progress along the line of good roads is evidenced by the fact that many petitions to build Schumaker roads in nearly every section of the county. The roads which will be built during the year, according to the present plans of the County Commissioners are as follows: From the end of the shell road leading to Delmar to Leonard's mill. This is now one of the worst pieces of road in the county. The new road will be built of shell macadam. There will be two reinforced concrete bridges, one at the Phillips dam and one at the Brewington mill stream.

The second Schumaker road to be constructed this year will be the "Meadow Bridge" road leading from Fruitland to the intersection of Wi-comico, Somerset and Worcester counties. This road will be nearly 3 miles long and will be constructed of shell macadam.

The next road to be improved is the road from Perdue's corner to Parsonsburg. This piece of road has long needed attention, but the property owners have been slow to make their requests. This piece of road, about three miles long, will be built under the Schumaker Act of shell macadam and clay and dirt.

The Commissioners are now building a fine dirt and clay road from Quantico to Hebron. This road will be about four miles and will be an important connection to the State highway, tapping the same within a mile of the Spring Hill Church.

Active work on the State Highway from the end of the shell road at Spring Hill to Mardela dam is now going on. Grading has been done on a good section of the road and the stone is now on its way and this week will see much stone spread on the road.
It is estimated that it will take about five months to complete this road.

To Remodel Store.

Mr. Lacy Thoroughgood has awarded the contract to Mr. T. H. Mitchell for remodeling the interior of his down town store. The work is to be done during the latter part of the present month. The entire inside wall in the rear of the front steps leading to the second floor of the building is to be taken out which will make the store about five feet wider. In this space all of the handsome clothing cabinets will be placed. This will give additional shelf room for nearly the entire length of one side of the room. All of the present fixtures are to be removed and solid oak fixtures to correspond with the finishing of the new front will be installed. When this work is completed Mr. Thoroughgood will have the handsomest clothing salesroom south of Wilmington.

Will Pay All Creditors.

The Sharptown Marine Railway Company which failed several weeks ago has resumed operations under new management. The entire stock of the company, it is said, has been purchased by the heaviest stockholders and new officers have been elected as follows: President, Mr. A. W. Robinson, Vice-President, Mr. Harvey Marvell;
Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. R. E.
Vallett; General Manager, Mr. Wm.
E. Tarbot. It is stated that none of the creditors of the old concern will lose on account of the recent failure.

The Sharptown Camp Meeting.

The Sharptown Camp Meeting Association began its annual camp on Thursday, but no services were held until Friday night. The steamer Old Point will run an excursion from Denils Island and intermediate points on Sunday. A large number of able ministers have been engaged and good camp is expected. Rev. E. H. Miller will have charge of the religious services.

Quantico.

There will be a festival held at the Methodist Protestant parsonage at Quantico on the 14th of August, beginning at 7 p. m. All are invited to come.

MR. STANFORD EXPLAINS.

Writes Letter Correcting Article Published in The Baltimore American Last Week.

To the Editor of The American:—

After a brief absence from my home, my attention has been called, on my return to a news article in your issue of the 30th ultimo, "A Judgeship for Henry Stanford," in which, among other inventions and varieties of your informant's imagination, it is stated:

"It appears that Wisconsin people have been advised that when Judge Holland's successor is named by the Governor next year, the appointment will go to Mr. Henry Stanford, of Somerset, a promise to that effect having been definitely made, it is said."

With reference to the pending judicial contest in this Circuit the same article further adds:

"The statement that Stanford has been promised Judge Holland's position accounts for the sudden dropping out of the Somerset man."

Now your valuable paper has been uniformly fair and generously complimentary to me in the past, and I am sure will give space, in your columns, to contradict the statements above quoted and to correct the erroneous impressions which its readers may have derived therefrom.

As a matter of fact, which should be stated as due Governor Crothers as well as to myself, the Governor has never directly or indirectly promised me anything, much less a judgeship, and furthermore, I have never directly or indirectly asked him to do so, or exchanged a word, spoken or written, with him on the subject of the existing or future selection of Judges, in this or any other Circuit.

A moment's reflection upon the fact that Governor Crothers has earnestly striven to retain his appointee, Judge Henry, as Chief Judge, whilst I, with equal earnestness, notwithstanding the Governor's appointment of Judge Henry, have advocated and still am advocating the nomination of Mr. John R. Pattison, the successful opponent of Judge Henry, in the recent Dorchester primaries, should convince the most dubious of the fact that even where I so disposed, I could not, under the circumstances, seek or likely obtain favor in this matter at the hands of the Governor, nor is it expected by me.

On the contrary, I have been more concerned in the exercise of my privilege and best judgment, with promoting the nomination of the approaching judicial convention in this Circuit of both Mr. Pattison as Chief Judge, and Judge Jones, as Associate, than with any aspirations of myself or any one else for preferment by way of appointment as Judge Holland's successor, when he retires in April, 1911.

Furthermore, I would state that I join with Governor Crothers and other eminent Democrats, including Ex-Governor Warfield, in advocating that our next General Assembly shall provide by a suitable mandatory law or amendment to the existing law, requiring that primaries shall be held by which the people may directly choose their candidates for Judges, as well as for State officers; and in this connection I would respectfully suggest that inasmuch as only three or four months would intervene between the date of Judge Holland's retirement and the holding of the primaries to name a candidate to succeed him, it would meet popular approval, in my opinion, if the Governor, shall, upon Judge Holland's retirement, defer making any appointment as his successor until at least a majority of the Democrats in the Circuit in their primaries shall have expressed a preference among would be aspirants, and I promise, if such be the case, to gracefully, if not cheerfully, acquiesce in the people's choice, so made, of a candidate of judicial character and ability for this important place, whether such candidate resides in Somerset or Wisconsin County.

In other words, I advocate a fair and open field to the people to select their own candidate with the assurance that I shall rest content with their determination in this way.

Although frequently importuned by many good Democrats in every County in this Circuit to become a candidate for Associate Judge in opposition to Judge Jones, I have from the first invariably declined to do so, in public print and otherwise, and moreover I have never authorized anyone to state that I would be a candidate to succeed Judge Holland and certainly shall not be a candidate unless at the proper time I shall find a reasonable request for my nomination among members of the Bar and Democrats of the Circuit.

Respectfully submitted,

Street Car Mail Service.

The system of collecting mail by street cars has been experimental since in Wilmington, Del., during the past four months and has seemed stood the test applied to it. The system began its operation in that city on the Delaware avenue line of street cars on March 17th last, and since that time has been carried on continuously on this line every day, except Sunday. It has been found to give excellent results in expediting local mailing collection, the street cars being used not only to take up the letters directly from the hands of their senders; but as a medium of constant transmission of corner-box mail to the postoffice, being taken up all day by the letter-carrier and deposited in the mail boxes attached to the car.

The car collection plan met prompt co-operation at the hands of the business men of Wilmington, with whom it has become a practice since its inauguration to use the Delaware avenue car line which runs along the main street of the city, for constantly dispatching their letters all day as soon as written, instead of sending them at the close of the day to the postoffice.

Cured Hay Fever And Summer Cold.

A. S. Nussbaum, Bates, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists.

QUICK GROWING TIMBER.

Eucalyptus Trees Planted in California Grow to Tremendous Proportions in a Few Years Time.

With the rapid decrease in the supply of timber, commercial foresters have, in recent years, become a matter of serious consideration for investors. Much time and much labor have been devoted to experiments having for their object the discovery of the best varieties of trees to grow and the best soil and the best climate in which to grow them. Rapidity of growth, freedom from insect and disease attacks, suitability of wood for use in the industries—all these points and many others in addition have been kept steadily in mind.

When attention was called to the depletion of the forests, California suddenly came to the front with its eucalyptus plantations. It was shown and proved that the eucalyptus, when grown in California, answered the requirements both from the viewpoint of the consumer and of the investor. The trees are rapid in growth, free from insect pest and disease, very easily raised and at very small expense.

In several instances companies were formed for the cultivation of the eucalyptus on a large scale and, with the incorporation of these companies, there came many inquiries addressed to the United States Department of Agriculture asking for information regarding the eucalyptus. To these inquiries the department responded as follows:

"The growing of eucalyptus for commercial purposes has been shown to be very profitable in southern California, and many companies have been organized for the purpose of planting these trees. They have been grown successfully in the warmer portions of Arizona, and it is likely that the more hardy of these trees will also thrive in many portions of New Mexico, Texas and Florida.

"The timber of the blue gum, which is the most rapid eucalypt in California is largely used for fuel, although it finds numerous other uses. The red gum and gray gum, with possibly a little slower in growth than these, are used and planted extensively, owing to the durability of their timber in the soil, and their many commercial uses."

COMMERCIAL TIMBER PLANTING

Several organizations of undoubted strength and responsibility have entered the field of commercial timber planting in California. They have used a remarkable and formidable array of statistics demonstrating the value of eucalyptus as an investment, and bringing to the proof thereof reports issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, Forest Service, by the California State forester and many other varied authorities. The claims made by these companies, large though they may appear, seem to be fully substantiated.

It is an undeniable fact that the existing hard wood timber still remaining will not supply this country at its present rate of consumption for more than an estimated period of fifteen to sixteen years. The immense industries of this country depending upon a continuous supply of hardwood have invested in their plants a capital aggregating $1,000,000,000 and employ hundreds of thousands of men whose subsistence depends upon a continuous supply of the raw material.

SUBSTITUTE FOR HARDWOOD

Since it takes more than the average lifetime of a man to grow an average hardwood tree fit to be used in manufacture, it would appear as if these industries were doomed, and that some substitute for hardwood would have to be developed.

In the opinion of experts, this is where the eucalyptus commercial planting companies have the field to themselves. It appears that California, owing to its soil and climate, holds the monopoly. There is a comparatively limited area in the only section of this country, with the exception of a small district in Arizona and New Mexico, where the eucalyptus finds favorable climatic conditions. For, by reason of its inability to stand climatic variations or extremes, the growing of eucalyptus is limited to this section.

USED FOR FIREWOOD

Introduced into California in 1856, for many years the so-called blue gum was regarded by the earlier ranchers as fit only for firewood, although they knew that "it made mighty good fence rails, and in a few years would grow to be a tall tree."

In 1870 Elwood Cooper, of Santa Barbara, planted one of the first commercial plantations of eucalyptus and in Bulletin No. 35, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Forestry, Mr. Cooper is quoted from a lecture he delivered in Santa Barbara, in 1875, as follows:

"At my home I have grown about 50,000 trees. The oldest were transplanted three years ago. A tree three years and two months from the seed, transplanted two years and ten months ago, is 9 1/2 inches in diameter and 42 feet 6 inches high.

RESULT OF INVESTIGATION

The Forestry Society of California, an organization of public-spirited prominent men, who are interested in the conservation of the forests and the development of the latest resources of that State, after studying the eucalyptus very carefully, caused to be conducted a series of investigations and measurements throughout the State, in order to arrive at some exact knowledge as to what could be expected from the eucalyptus, codified as a commercial planting proposition.

Taking the entire State as an average and including groves made simply as "utility" plantings, on the border of fields, around vineyards and orchards, along streets for shade, and in wood lots for fuel, it was found that the average eucalyptus tree, ten years old, reached a height of 92 feet, with a diameter of 11 inches.

It was found that 500 trees can reasonably be expected on each acre to attain this average, which, according to the Forestry Society, would yield about 100,000 feet of merchantable hardwood timber.

ACRE WORTH $2,500.

The value of hardwood timber of merchantable size is to-day about $25 a thousand board feet. From this it would appear that an acre of eucalyptus with a stand of 100,000 feet of merchantable timber is worth to-day not far from $2,500. On these figures, which are vouched for by official tests, the various eucalyptus timber companies that are planting eucalyptus lands for investors base their claims to offering what they say is one of the "most nearly certain" investments of the day.

Another point on which great stress is placed is the fact that the eucalyptus has the power to reproduce from the stump. Several sturdy shoots sprout out from the stump, attaining a greater height than the original tree grown from the seedling. The commercial cycle for eucalyptus cutting after the first growth, is seven years, and there are several groves in California that have now had as many as five to eight cuttings.

QUALITY OF WOOD.

The eucalyptus wood is very dense, hard, closed-grained and tough, and will bear a tremendous load of strain. It is susceptible of very high polish and fine finish, and is usually desirable for interior trimming and cabinet work. The various species of eucalyptus are being applied successfully to the special uses formerly reserved to oak, ash, hickory and mahogany.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Topic For Tomorrow, "Paul's Instruction To The Thessalonians," Discussed By Local Writer.

GOLDEN TEXT:—See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but even follow that which is good.

In Lesson III of this quarter we studied of Paul's stay in Thessalonica, laboring there for five or six months. He established a church composed mostly of converts from among Gentiles. He knew well the character of the people in the church and while at Corinth Timothy came to him and reported the condition of the church at Thessalonica. Paul was rejoiced to hear of the growth of the church and wrote two letters, I and II Thessalonians to these converts.

These were very practical letters, and our lesson from the first is chiefly upon Christian character building. Paul had only been away from Thessalonica for five or six months, as near as we can judge, and the church had prospered. Good, devout people had been living there and received the word with gladness and no doubt, as leaders in the new church gave force to the spreading of the gospel.

It is a matter of history in the New Testament writings that the missionary efforts were successful, establishing well-grounded and fully matured churches in short time, as compared with missionary efforts of today. Circumstances were quite different. Paul always went to the Jewish people who had been thoroughly educated in the old scriptures, and so many of the Gentile races had furnished proselytes to the Jewish church, and they were ready to receive the message, and once received, became thoroughly identified and well-grounded in Christian work. The Jewish people were of strong character. Out of all the nations, they had been deemed of God worthy to be the nation through which the light should come to the world. While they, as a nation, rejected Christ, yet enough devout Jews and devout Jewish proselytes accepted the new dispensation at; at once, place it upon a foundation among the nations of the world which has never been shaken. The Jews knew God, and their ideal of righteousness was ready for the ingrafting of the nature of the Son, who came to lead them still closer to Him. No other people were prepared as they for the coming of the Messiah. The un-Christian nations of to-day are lacking in this preparation, hence the preaching of the gospel to the world to-day is far different than the preaching of Paul to Thessalonica.

In our lesson to-day Paul says to the Thessalonians, and, to us, too, to know those who are over us and laboring among us in His name, know their feeling concerning us, and to love them for it. The personality of Christ's ambassadors may not be agreeable to us, but we are not to consider that; we are to esteem them for their work's sake, and not be contentious, but at peace. We are to comfort, and encourage those who do not readily understand, and the weak in the faith, by making the way plain, and by giving them help and strength.

We are to render good for evil; not evil for evil. The ideal character will suffer evil without doing evil, which act is necessary when evil is recompensed with evil. Hence, good or righteousness will not render evil for evil, but suffer it, leaving judgment unto Him, who has said "Judgment is mine, I will repay." Sin, or evil doing, works out its own punishment; judgment by righteousness in love. The church at Thessalonica was receiving much evil at the hands of the world, but Christ loved the world, and wins it through love, and his followers are to follow only the good, and rejoice always that the power is given them, that the ideal character is so far developed in them as to enable them to do His will.

Praying helps us in this. By prayer we commune with God, our ways are made clear, our ideals, our character strengthened, and a clear vision of our duties gained. We are to cultivate the spirit of prayer, wherein the Spirit manifests itself in return, making the way clear, developing our ideal and character. We are to accept the advice of good men, and hold fast to that which is good, and faithfulness in this brings its reward, for Christ is faithful, and will do all He has promised. "For I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have entrusted unto Him against that day."

The world had been very bitter to Paul, rendering evil, but he could render good, and rejoice in suffering for Christ. We cannot all be like Paul. Even he was not fully what he conceived as ideal, but Christ will help us.

The Absurd Attack Of The Wicomico News.

Our friends of The News, seem to be fearfully exercised in regard to the article which appeared in The Courier last Saturday in relation to the typhoid situation. We confess we are little at a loss to know why The News should be so eager and willing to take up the defense of the present unsanitary conditions in Salisbury and minimize the possibilities of a typhoid epidemic.

The facts were published last week not to arouse public apprehension, but that the people might understand the seriousness of the situation in Salisbury, and govern themselves accordingly.

The information in regard to the number of cases in the Hospital came direct from one of the most reputable physicians in the city who made the statement Thursday evening of last week, that there were seventeen cases of typhoid at the Hospital and that he had just sent another one there, making eighteen. He further stated that the Superintendent of the Hospital the same afternoon had spoken of the seventeen cases and made the statement that there were more fever patients at the Hospital at that single time than he had had to contend with in the Hospital from which she had just come, for an entire year. In the whole article there was not one word as to where these various cases were from and we were absolutely correct in every particular with reference to that article.

Since the publication of the article in The News, Dr. D. B. Potter—the physician from whom the information originally came,—has again confirmed the number as mentioned in this paper and also stated that Miss Allison, the Superintendent, was his authority in the matter, and that on Thursday of this week she again admitted having made the statement and added that on one occasion there were even nineteen.

The ridiculously extravagant statements made by The News in connection with the matter will carry little weight, for they are in the habit of making such statements at random. Their own investigation discovered sixteen cases and had they wanted to they could have ascertained the other two.

The beautiful consistency of The News is shown by the fact that in the same editorial columns in which it praises in the most glowing terms the general sanitary conditions of Salisbury and speaks of the fact that it "is well sewered," it then proceeds to make these remarkable statements:

"The attention of the Mayor and Council has been called on several occasions to the miserable drainage on some of the principal residential sections of the city, and the recent heavy rains have intensified the necessity of doing something at once to relieve the situation. Two of the worst drained streets in the city at present are Isabella street from Division to Park street and William street from Park to Division street."

The grade of these streets are of such a character that it is impossible to get the water to run off. In fact the streets have no sensible grades at all. Both ends are high and the water cannot get off, and after a big rain it would be possible to use a small boat for transportation on both streets.

This condition of affairs should not exist. It is unhealthy (UNHEALTHY, really!) to have the surface water stand in puddles and soak through the ground.

"Isabella street from Division to Park"—indeed! The little joker in the sentence results from the fact that the residence of the general Senator who handles one of the editorial pens of The News happens (?)—merely happens (?) to be located on this little stretch of street. There are any quantity of other places just as bad, but this is about all the editor needs to see.

We'll admit that our contemporary is right as to the conditions around The Courier office. They are bad—abominably bad—and it is up to the city to do something and we are grateful to our friends for calling the attention of the public to it. Perhaps its valuable influence may be exerted toward lessening the evils with which we are daily surrounded. We are not responsible for the nuisance and unfortunately have not the power to abate it.

If The News wanted to prove to the people of this community its absolute unreliability as to everything it touches, it could not have taken a better course than it has in this matter. It made the statement in its editorial columns "that the facts in the case (referring to our article upon the typhoid situation) as stated on the front page of this issue stamps the whole story as FALSE on its face," and then it proceeds to substantiate our story almost to the letter by printing the names of sixteen of the eighteen fever patients at the Hospital. To further substantiate the statements made as to the unsanitary conditions of Salisbury the editors proceed to viciously attack and severely condemn the city officials in the very same editorial to which we referred above, for the abominable drainage and unsatisfactory and unsanitary conditions of the streets mentioned, and close their editorial with this stinging statement:

"But the two streets mentioned above need to be graded properly and better drained before the city finds itself facing a damage suit caused by unsanitary conditions of such streets."

We fully agree with The News as to the natural healthfulness of this City. It is indeed a most valuable asset and it is for this reason that this publication called the attention of the people to the unsanitary condition of Lake Humphreys and other parts of the town, and in connection therewith, gave the public the benefit of the facts as they existed at the Hospital. It is our purpose to aid whenever and wherever practicable in maintaining the highest possible standards of health in the community, not by suppressing the news as to the unfavorable conditions, but by pointing them out in order that they may be rectified and those standards fully and uniformly upheld.

The Judicial Situation.

The more fully the facts are known concerning the recent primary in Dorchester County, the more insistent is the demand that the Republicans make nominations in this Judicial Circuit. Few contests in Maryland have been more bitter and hotly waged than the one which gave Mr. Pattison the endorsement of his County for the Chief Judgeship. From various sources of information there comes the same invariable story in regard to the corrupt methods which were used in securing control of the convention and it is little wonder that the best element of the Democratic party and the people in general are demanding an opportunity to vote for a candidate who was not placed before the people in such a debasing manner.

The suggestion which was made in these columns last week of Mr. Goldsborough and Mr. Lankford has met with general approval and it is certain that they would make an excellent fight with every prospect of success, should the Republicans nominate them this Fall. Their high character and legal attainments, together with their freedom from corrupt methods in securing the nomination would give them a very decided advantage over their competitors, and almost insure their election. It is the undoubted duty of the party to make nominations and if there is any way of changing the present plan, it is now probable that it will be done.

Mr. Stanford's Letter.

The letter from H. L. D. Stanford, Esq. to the Baltimore American in relation to the article which appeared in that paper last week and which was partially republished in The Courier in regard to his possible appointment as Judge upon the retirement of Judge Holland next year, is reprinted upon the second page of this issue at his request. The explanation is entirely plausible and is doubtless the correct statement of the situation at the present time. Just how The American could have secured the information it did upon the subject is rather puzzling and was probably the result of the imagination of some fertile brain whose activities were not required at that particular moment in other directions. It is evident The American needed a political article at that time and as the judgeship was the most interesting topic it was promptly forthcoming.

SILENT FOR 45 YEARS, SHE SEEKS HER BROTHER.

Mrs. William Fober, formerly of this County, Long Mourned As Dead,
Is A Sister Of Mr. Randall
Smullin, Of Fruitland.

After a silence as still as death lasting for over forty-five years, Mr. Randall Smullin, of Fruitland, this county, received a letter about two weeks ago
half a century ago and who has never been heard of by any of the family during that length of time.

The sister, Miss Theodosia, together with two brothers, Isma Purnell and
country when they were little children
and no word had been received from any of them since that time. Several attempts had been made by the family at home to locate them but without avail. About two weeks ago Mr.
Smullin received a letter addressed in strange handwriting and upon reading it he was surprised to learn that it had been written by his sister, who is now Mrs. William Fober, of Clay Center,
Kansas.

In the letter she told of the whereabouts of the two brothers who are also in Kansas and several letters have been exchanged since.

The letter stated that they were all doing well and that they look forward with pleasure to a meeting of the brothers and sister which is to take place shortly. Mr. Smullin is arranging to visit them in the near future.
He is now 62 years old.

Had Family Reunion.

Mrs. Esther Brewington, widow of the late Henry J. Brewington, celebrated her eightieth anniversary on Sunday last, at "Cedarhurst," the country home of her daughter, Mrs.
Levin W. Dorman, near this city.
Mrs. Brewington was surrounded by her own immediate family and the step-children of her two deceased husbands, the late Purnell I. Jones and
Henry J. Brewington.

Of her own family there were four generations represented, Mr. and Mrs.
L. W. Dorman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles
T. Leviness, and the Leviness children, making four generations in a direct line. The same thing was true of her step-children in two families. The large party assembled on the beautiful lawn at the Dorman farm where Mrs.
Brewington was congratulated upon her birthday and presented with many handsome tokens of affection from the various branches of the families represented. Refreshments were served on the lawn and a most pleasant afternoon enjoyed.

An Attempted Kidnaping.

Mrs. Frederick Imhoff, formerly Miss Bertie Julia Nelson, of this city, was subjected to a terrible fright last Monday while on her way from her home in Boston to visit her parents, Mr.
and Mrs. John Nelson of Salisbury.
While the train was standing at a way station a man who had been sitting in the seat behind Mrs. Imhoff and her oldest child, Irene, lifted the child from the seat and hurried out of the car. Mrs. Imhoff was not sure as to the man's identity but she stated to the crowd which congregated that he looked like her husband. Mr. Imhoff was seen later at their apartments and stated that the attempted kidnap-ing had probably been done by a friend of his who greatly resembles him. The child was found later in the apartments.

Glass Factory Here.

One of the most interesting exhibitions on the Fair grounds, is the glass blowers, where they make birds, baskets, fruits, ships, flowers, vases, etc., from common crystal glass while you wait. They present every visitor with a specimen of their work.
They spin glass and make it into admirable dresses, hats, pincushions, neckties, etc.

"YOU SUPPORT US, AND WE'LL SUPPORT YOU."

So Dictates The Counties To Baltimore City—Finally Agree To Vote For Amendment Giving Increased
Representation To City.

By what might be called a clever political move on the part of Maryland politicians outside of Baltimore city, an agreement was reached at the Democratic State Convention which met in the Monumental City Wednesday. According to the terms of the agreement, the counties will support an amendment for increased representation in Baltimore city provided Baltimore will support the suffrage amendment to be voted on this fall.
The suffrage amendment is a thing
dear to the hearts of the county Democrats and they mightily fear that the measure will be defeated as it was two years ago by an overwhelming majority against it in the city. Baltimore cannot get an increased representation without the support of the counties and for this reason the city was within the grasp of the counties.

Late in the afternoon, after a day of fruitless conferences, the counties agreed to commit their party to a proposition along the lines proposed by Mr. W. L. Marbury, that the city's representation should be according to population, based on the population of the most populous county in the State, which is Baltimore county. Under this arrangement Baltimore will be entitled to about 64 delegates and two additional senators, making a total of 66.

The counties did not surrender until they saw that they had the city in their grasp.

Dr. J. W. Herring was renominated
for State Comptroller. Messrs. James
T. Truitt, M. V. Brewington and H.
James Messick were elected members of the State Central Committee for Wicomico county.

More Store Improvements.

A real estate deal of considerable importance was consummated this week when Messrs. Kennerly & Mitchell purchased from Miss Hannah White the building in which this firm has been doing business for a number of years. The property has a frontage of 44 feet on Main street and extends through to West Church street. The second and third floors of the building are now occupied as a boarding house.

It is proposed by the new owners to make extensive alterations to the building which will involve entirely new fronts, much larger than the present show windows, new shelving and fixtures on the inside, making it a model storeroom in every particular.
These improvements are necessary in order to keep pace with the great improvements being made to other Main street properties and to accommodate the firm's growing business.

The firm of Kennerly & Mitchell has grown to be one of the largest clothing concerns on the Peninsula and this branching out is the result of the conservative business methods which have been employed since the business was founded in 1896.

EVERYTHING READY FOR WICOMICO FAIR.

Big Night Attractions And Fast Races
Will Undoubtedly Make Undertaking
A Phenomenal Success—Credit
Due The Association.

One of the features of the Wicomico County Fair which is scheduled for August 17th to 20th, inclusive, will be the night attractions. Ordinarily the fair grounds on the Eastern Shore circuit are not open in the evenings and
the idea is original in the minds of the hustling managers of the local association. This feature is unique in itself and it is estimated that thousands of people will be attracted to the grounds at night. The streets leading to the grounds will be brilliantly lighted by electricity and a contract has been made with the electric light company to furnish hundreds of lights on the grounds. Robbins' famous Wild West shows have been engaged for the entire four days of the Fair and exhibitions will be given each afternoon and evening.

Provision has been made to accommodate comfortably several thousand each day. The grandstand will seat comfortably 2,500 persons, and in addition to this an extra stand has been erected which will seat 2,000. There are on the grounds a mammoth exhibition hall, a large ladies' waiting room, supplied with toilets, a large dining hall and several booths where confections, ice cream and other refreshments will be sold.

Accommodations have been made to stable about 100 horses, and the prospects are that there will be that many,
if not more, entered in the races. The entries at Pocomoke this week numbered 180 and it is likely the same horses will come to Salisbury to contest in the four-days' races, the purses for which aggregate $5,800.

Entries for the races closed Tuesday night last, and the horses entered approximate two hundred, perhaps the largest number entered this season on the Eastern Shore. There will be many fast horses in the races and fast time is looked for. Dry Dock, General Mack and Julia Marlow are entered in the 2-15 pace and free-for-all classes, and it is expected there will be a very warm and close contest between these rivals. The managers of the Association are greatly pleased at the large number of entries in the various races.

Special attention is to be paid to exhibits and liberal premiums are being offered under the various departments.
The various divisions are as follows:

Division A—D. W. Perdue, superintendent, G. B. Collier and D. J. Ward, assistant superintendents. This division will embrace standard and trotting breed horses, general utility horses, coach horses, road and carriage horses. The first premiums amount to $112; second premiums, $63.

Division B—J. McFadden Dick, superintendent, embraces cattle of all kinds, short horn, hereford, holstein, Jerseys, dairy cows. First premiums amount to $63; second premiums, $34.50.

Division C—W. M. Cooper, superintendent, embraces swine, and competition is open to the world. First premiums amount to $41; second premiums, $20.50.

Division D—J. M. Toulson, superintendent, embraces poultry of every description. Premiums, $1.50 to first,
$1 to second, in each kind of exhibit.

Division E—W. F. Allen and W. M.
Cooper, superintendents, embraces agricultural and horticultural products. First premiums aggregate $122;
second $56.

Division F—Graham Gunby, superintendent, embraces machinery and implements, for which large space will be devoted. It is expected that this division will contain an extensive exhibit.

Division G—Bernard Ulman, superintendent, is the household department, with liberal premiums. It is hoped the people of this county, especially will make liberal exhibits.

Division H—Mrs. George E. Collier, superintendent, Mrs. M. V. Brewington, Mrs. F. P. Adkins, Miss Carrie
Peters, Mrs. D. W. Perdue, assistants, will embrace all kinds of fancy work.
Liberal premiums are offered.

Division I—W. J. Holloway, superintendent, embraces art and school exhibits. It is hoped to have large exhibits from the Manual Training departments of the various High Schools of the county and from the colored industrial school in Salisbury. First premiums aggregate $26; second, $13.
The general outlook is that the big event next week will be a decided success as is always the case when the people of this county get behind any big scheme.

DEMOCRATS OPPOSE STRAUS AMENDMENT.

Organization Of Strong Party Men Is Formed To Use Its Influence To Defeat The Disfranchisement
Measure Next Election.

With an original membership of about 100 the Democratic Association opposed to the Disfranchisement Amendment was organized in Baltimore City a few days ago. Its purpose is indicated by its name. The list of its members includes some of the most prominent lawyers and business men of Baltimore who have heretofore affiliated with the Democratic party, and its reasons for opposing the amendment are set forth in a declaration of principles which are briefly stated, as follows: First—Because the Amendment was framed by intemperate partisans for selfish purposes. Second —It cannot be shown that the present law, permitting all men to vote, except those convicted of crime, has been a disadvantage to the State. Third—There is no danger of negro domination. Fourth—The "grandfather clause" is un-American and un-Democratic and the so-called educational test is a violation of the Democratic pledges in that connection. Fifth—Because it is a direct violation of the Constitution of the United States.

The officers of the Association are:
Douglas M. Wylie, Chairman; Henry
C. Shirley, Treasurer, and an Executive Committee consisting of the above and Messrs. R. Brent Keyser, Bernard N. Baker, Allan McLane, E. Parkin Keech, Jr., John Tjarks, Wm.
H. Perkins, Henry E. Mann, Leigh
Bonsal, Lawrance Riggs and Stuart S.
Janney.

The formation of this Association is regarded as the most serious blow aimed at the Straus Amendment since His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons
openly declared against it upon substantially the same grounds a few months ago.

SILENT FOR 45 YEARS. SHE SEEKS HER BROTHER.

Mrs. William Fober, Formerly Of This County, Long Mourned As Dead,
Is A Sister Of Mr. Randall
Smullin, Of Fruitland.

After a silence as still as death lasting for over forty-five years, Mr. Randall Smullin, of Fruitland, this county,
half a century ago and who has never been heard of by any of the family
during that length of time.

The sister, Miss Theodora, together with two brothers, Isma Purnell and
country when they were little children
attempts had been made by the family
at home to locate them but without
avail. About two weeks ago Mr.
Smullin received a letter addressed in
strange handwriting and upon reading
been written by his sister, who is now Mrs. William Fober, of Clay Center,
Kansas.

In the letter she told of the whereabouts of the two brothers who are
also in Kansas and several letters have been exchanged since.

The letter stated that they were all doing well and that they look forward with pleasure to a meeting of the
place shortly. Mr. Smullin is arranging to visit them in the near future.
He is now 62 years old.

Had Family Reunion.

Mrs. Esther Brewington, widow of the late Henry J. Brewington, celebrated her eightieth anniversary on Sunday last, at "Cedarhurst," the
country home of her daughter, Mrs.
Levin W. Dorman, near this city.
Mrs. Brewington was surrounded by
her own immediate family and the
step-children of her two deceased husbands, the late Purnell I. Jones and
Henry J. Brewington.

Of her own family there were four
generations represented, Mr. and Mrs.
L. W. Dorman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles
T. Leviness, and the Leviness children, making four generations in a direct line. The same thing was true of her step-children in two families. The
large party assembled on the beautiful
lawn at the Dorman farm where Mrs.
Brewington was congratulated upon
her birthday and presented with many
handsome tokens of affection from the
various branches of the families represented. Refreshments were served on the lawn and a most pleasant afternoon enjoyed.

An Attempted Kidnapping.

Mrs. Frederick Imhoff, formerly Miss Bertie Julia Nelson, of this city, was subjected to a terrible fright last Monday while on her way from her home
in Boston to visit her parents, Mr.
and Mrs. John Nelson of Salisbury.
While the train was standing at a way station a man who had been sitting in the seat behind Mrs. Imhoff and her oldest child, Irene, lifted the child
from the seat and hurried out of the car. Mrs. Imhoff was not sure as to the man's identity but she stated to
the crowd which congregated that he looked like her husband. Mr. Imhoff
was seen later at their apartments
and stated that the attempted kidnap-ing had probably been done by a friend of his who greatly resembles him. The child was found later in the apartments.

Glass Factory Here.

One of the most interesting exhibitions on the Fair grounds, is the glass
blowers, where they make birds, baskets, fruits, ships, flowers, vases, etc.,
from common crystal glass while you
a specimen of their work.

They spin glass and make it into adles dresses, hats, pincushions, neckties, etc.

"YOU SUPPORT US, AND WE'LL SUPPORT YOU."

So Dictates The Counties To Baltimore
City—Finally Agree To Vote For Amendment Giving Increased
Representation To City.

By what might be called a clever
political move on the part of Maryland politicians outside of Baltimore
city, an agreement was reached at the Democratic State Convention, which
met in the Monumental City Wednesday. According to the terms of the agreement, the counties will support
an amendment for increased representation in Baltimore city provided Baltimore will support the suffrage
amendment to be voted on this fall.
The suffrage amendment is a thing
dear to the hearts of the county Democrats and they mightily fear that the
years ago by an overwhelming majority against it in the city. Baltimore cannot get an increased representation without the support of the counties and for this reason the city
was within the grasp of the counties.

Late in the afternoon, after a day of
agreed to commit their party to a proposition along the lines proposed
by Mr. W. L. Marbury, that the city's representation should be according to population, based on the population of
the most populous county in the State,
which is Baltimore county. Under
this arrangement Baltimore will be entitled to about 64 delegates and two additional senators, making a total of 66.

The counties did not surrender until they saw that they had the city in
their grasp.

Dr. J. W. Herring was renominated
for State Comptroller. Messrs. James
T. Truitt, M. V. Brewington and H.
James Messick were elected members of the State Central Committee for Wicomico county.

More Store Improvements.

A real estate deal of considerable importance was consummated this
week when Messrs. Kennerly & Mitchell purchased from Miss Hannah
White the building in which this firm
has been doing business for a number of years. The property has a frontage
of 44 feet on Main street and extends
through to West Church street. The second and third floors of the building
are now occupied as a boarding house.

fixtures on the inside, making it a model storeroom in every particular.
These improvements are necessary in order to keep pace with the great improvements being made to other Main street properties and to accommodate
the firm's growing business.

The firm of Kennerly & Mitchell has
grown to be one of the largest clothing
concerns on the Peninsula and this
branching out is the result of the conservative business methods which
was founded in 1896.

EVERYTHING READY FOR WICOMICO FAIR.

Big Night Attractions And Fast Races
Will Undoubtedly Make Undertaking
A Phenomenal Success—Credit
Due The Association.

One of the features of the Wicomico
County Fair which is scheduled for August 17th to 20th, inclusive, will be
the night attractions. Ordinarily the fair grounds on the Eastern Shore circuit are not open in the evenings and
the idea is original in the minds of
the hustling managers of the local association. This feature is unique in itself and it is estimated that thousands of people will be attracted to the grounds at night. The streets leading to the grounds will be brilli-
antly lighted by electricity and a contract
company to furnish hundreds of lights
on the grounds. Robbins' famous Wild West shows have been engaged for the entire four days of the Fair and exhibitions will be given each afternoon and evening.

Provision has been made to accommodate comfortably several thousand
each day. The grandstand will seat comfortably 2,500 persons, and in addition to this an extra stand has been
are on the grounds a mammoth exhibition hall, a large ladies' waiting room, supplied with toilets, a large dining hall and several booths where confections, ice cream and other refreshments will be sold.

Accommodations have been made to
stable about 100 horses, and the prospects are that there will be that many,
if not more, entered in the races. The
entries at Pocomoke this week numbered 180 and it is likely the same
horses will come to Salisbury to contest in the four-days' races, the purses
for which aggregate $3,800.

Entries for the races closed Tuesday
night last, and the horses entered approximate two hundred, perhaps the largest number entered this season on
the Eastern Shore. There will be many fast horses in the races and fast
time is looked for. Dry Dock, General Maack and Julia Marlow are entered in the 2.15 pace and free-for all classes,
and it is expected there will be a very
warm and close contest between these
rivals. The managers of the Association are greatly pleased at the large number of entries in the various races.

Special attention is to be paid to exhibits and liberal premiums are being offered under the various departments.
The various divisions are as follows:

Division A—D. W. Perdue, superintendent, G. B. Collier and D. J. Ward, assistant superintendents. This division will embrace standard and trotting breed horses, general utility
horses, coach horses, road and carriage
horses. The first premiums amount to $112; second premiums, $62.

Division B—J. McFadden Dick, superintendent, embraces cattle of all kinds, short horn, hereford, holstein, Jersey, dairy cows. First premiums amount to $68; second premiums, $34.50.

Division C—W. M. Cooper, superintendent, embraces swine, and competition is open to the world. First premiums amount to $41; second premiums, $20.50.

Division D—J. M. Toulson, superintendent, embraces poultry of every description. Premiums, $1.50 to first,
$1 to second, in each kind of exhibit.

Cooper, superintendents, embraces
agricultural and horticultural products. First premiums aggregate $122;
second $56.

Division F—Graham Gunby, superintendent, embraces machinery and
be devoted. It is expected that this division will contain an extensive exhibit.

Division G—Bernard Ulman, superintendent, is the household department, with liberal premiums. It is hoped the people of this county, especially will make liberal exhibits.

Division H—Mrs. George B. Collier, superintendent, Mrs. M. V. Brewing-ton, Mrs. F. P. Atkins, Miss Carrie Peters, Mrs. D. W. Perdue, assistants,
will embrace all kinds of fancy work.
Liberal premiums are offered.

Division I—W. J. Holloway, superintendent, embraces art and school exhibits. It is hoped to have large exhibits from the Manual Training departments of the various High Schools
of the county and from the colored industrial School in Salisbury. First

DEMOCRATS OPPOSE STRAUS AMENDMENT.

Organization Of Strong Party Men Is Formed To Use Its Influence To Defeat The Disfranchisement
Measure Next Election.

With an original membership of about 100 the Democratic Association
opposed to the Disfranchisement
Amendment was organized in Baltimore City a few days ago. Its purpose is indicated by its name. The list of its members includes some of the most prominent lawyers and business men of Baltimore who have heretofore affiliated with the Democratic party, and its reasons for opposing the amendment are set forth in a declaration of principles which are briefly stated, as follows: First—Because the Amendment was framed by intense partisans for selfish purposes. Second —It cannot be shown that the present
law, permitting all men to vote, except those convicted of crime, has been a disadvantage to the State.
Third—There is no danger of negro domination. Fourth—The "grandfather clause" is un-American and un-Democratic and the so-called educational test is a violation of the Democratic pledges in that connection.
Fifth—Because it is a direct violation of the Constitution of the United States.

The officers of the Association are:
Douglas M. Wylie, Chairman; Henry
C. Shirley, Treasurer, and an Executive Committee consisting of the above and Messrs. R. Brent Keysee, Bernard N. Baker, Allan McLane, E.
Parkin Keech, Jr., John Tjarks, Wm.
H. Perkins, Henry E. Mann, Leigh
Bonsal, Lawson Riggs and Stuart S.
Janney.

The formation of this Association is regarded as the most serious blow
aimed at the Straus Amendment since
His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons
openly declared against it upon substantially the same grounds a few months ago.

Church Notices For Tomorrow.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

Former Salisburyman Now Employed On Panama Canal Tells Of Ancient Spanish Fort.

SALISBURY, MD., August 12, 1909.
EDITOR, COURIER:

Dear Sir—I herewith hand you a letter containing an account of an excursion from Gatun (Gah-loon), my present home, on the Isthmus of Panama, to San Fort Lorenzo, an old Spanish Fort, on Sunday. This was a very pleasant trip, as all of such trips prove to be by lovers of ancient history. This letter was written to me by Mr. Porreut J. Myers, a steam shovel crewman on the Isthmus, who was formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa.

There is one incident connected with this old Fort handed down by tradition, and that is what is called the tunnel. I think it more appropriate to call it a dungeon. It is held and believed by these Panamanians who are the descendants of the old Spanish Colony, that one Morgan, who was the King of the Pirates at that time and who conquered and reigned there about 350 years since this man Morgan herded and compelled enough of his prisoners to enter this so-called tunnel to fill it full, he then caused it to be sealed up with brick and mortar air-tight and kept it guarded until all had perished, he then left it for further conquests. It was then taken charge of by the former Brother Spaniards and not allowed to be opened and is still guarded unto this day, as one over zealous American found to his cost who was caught trying to open this vault. After he had succeeded in removing four or five bricks he found himself in jail with a heavy fine standing between him and liberty. This old Fort, which is very curiously constructed, has many pieces of armor, cannon balls and bomb shells very neatly stored and the grounds kept clean, is very zealously guarded as the old tunnel. A policeman always on duty, who expects a tip from all visitors of a silver dollar (50 cents), whose appreciation is made known by a broad smile, is said that he gets a little careless sometimes and falls to see some American slip a small cannon ball in his pocket as a souvenir.

Yours respectfully,
S. B. ADKINS.

We left Gatun Sunday morning at 10 o'clock on a nice little gasoline launch and arrived at Fort San Lorenzo at 11 a. m. The distance from Gatun to the famous old Columbia Fort is seven miles, built nearly four hundred years ago, but at the present time is one of the possessions of the Republic of Panama. The Fort was abandoned by the Columbians in 1854. The walls are of stone and brick and are laid in the kind of mortar made at that time, and are in a good state of preservation. There are twelve cells and a number of underground tunnels or dungeons. And there are the walls of what was once a pool of water fourteen feet wide, thirty feet long and ten feet deep, in which the soldiers used to amuse themselves by drowning their unfortunate captives and unruly prisoners when they got tired of them. There are twenty old cannons, eight-inch bore, and a few hundred tons of cannon balls lying in piles near the camp.

The Fort is situated just where the Chayres river empties into the Caribbean Sea. This is the Atlantic entrance to the famous Panama, being built by the United States Government. Six of the party had their dinner served in the tower of the Fort, the other six had dinner at the only hotel in town of San Lorenzo, for which each paid $1.00, Panama currency, worth 50 cents U. S. currency. The dinner consisted of scrambled eggs, with vegetables, Spanish pork, fried plantain, which resembles the banana, and is used instead of white potatoes, baked beans, yams and bacon, boiled rice, white bread, coffee, tea, rice water.

We were requested to register our names and from what part of the world we were from and where we lived on the Canal Zone. There is one man living in the village of San Lorenzo who is said to be 107 years old. The village consists of about thirty houses, frame buildings and quite a number built of bamboo reeds and roofs of palm leaves. The day was delightful, no clouds and quite warm. We had an enjoyable time and left at 5.30 in the evening for our trip back to Gatun, much satisfied by our visit.

A. T. & T. CO. IN CONTROL.

All Bell Telephone Companies To Be Operated Under The Management Of One Board.

Boston—The banking community has been disposed to grin at the statement of the American Telephone management that the object it had in view in acquiring additional stocks of the operating companies was to secure greater efficiency and economy of operation.
That, however, is the exact statement of the case.

The Bell system grew up, bit or un-bit, and never has been, any coherence to the geographical subdivisions under which the various operating companies have been conducting operations. For instance, the Chicago Telephone Co. serves simply one big city. The New York company is of the same character. The New England Telephone Co. operates in three or four states, while the New York & New Jersey company operates partly in one state, and partly in another. There are seven operating companies in the state of New York. Still more complex is the situation of the Bell company of Pennsylvania, partly an operating and partly a holding company.

The lines serving these territories or territorial boundaries have no relation whatever to the boundaries or limits of business or social spheres of influence.
For some time past the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has been bringing under one common management companies covering more or less one natural division or district.

During the last five years the telephone has forged to the front as an essential public utility, and more and more the public has come around to the point of view of demanding but one single telephone company in a given community. With this demand has grown a coincident demand for public regulation. The day has now arrived when the telephone is to be subject to state regulation, through commission control, precisely as the railroads, the street railways, gas, and electric light companies.

That day, in fact, has already arrived for the telephone in Massachusetts, and is practically assured in the very near future in New York.

The first move is to merge the New York operating companies, of which there are seven, into one company, to operate only in that state, and be subject to state supervision.

So far as the securities of the American Telephone Co. system are concerned, it makes not a particle of difference what the arrangement of the subsidiary companies is. For instance, there are now outstanding in the hands of the public $592,475,400 of Bell system securities. This includes parent and subsidiary companies. If there is a change it will be a reduction, because the value of the American Telephone Co. shares is greater than the average value of the company stock.

One objection raised to the arrangement of the operating companies is that it will increase the burden of financing falling upon the parent company. This does not follow, for the sub-companies would probably be better able to assist in the financial problem after, than now —as at present many of the sub-companies are entirely financed by the parent company. Any re-arrangement according to natural and state limits would strengthen the weak companies, without weakening the strong ones.

with a summer cold so distressing that

Fortunately I insisted upon having cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Topic For Tomorrow, "Paul's Third Missionary Journey To Ephesus" Discussed By Local Writer.

GOLDEN TEXT:—The name of the Lord was magnified.

Paul ended the active labors of his second missionary journey at Corinth, but took his two steadfast friends, Aquila and Priscilla with him as far as Ephesus in Asia Minor, on the east of Aegean Sea. Here they remained while Paul passed on to Jerusalem and afterward to Antioch in Syria, the mother church of the missionaries.

What a joy it must have been to Paul to meet old friends and relate his experience, and what a rest he must have had in the security of their love and fellowship. How pleasant it is to those who have been out in the field to go home sometimes, or to meet with former fellow-workers and enjoy their fellowship,—to recount trials, victories and advancements, tell of new found joys and new opportunities, and counsel as to future work and the great joy anticipated in the prosecution of new plans. Paul no doubt received great encouragement here for his third missionary journey, which we shall now study.

This journey from Antioch followed much the course of the second journey north and then west through Asia Minor, visiting many of the churches as far as Antioch in Pisidia and then to Ephesus, the capital of Roman Asia Minor. Paul chose Ephesus as a place at which to labor for sometime, possibly three years, and from this church, which was one of the seven churches of Asia, went forth a powerful influence. It was a city of great commerce and its inland trade extended throughout Asia Minor and the East. It was a free city and thus a cosmopolitan one, and an excellent opportunity presented for the introduction of the gospel. Ephesus was later the home of the Apostle John and Mary, the mother of Jesus, and the gospel was so well received here and throughout the country that it became a stronghold of christianity in the next century.

Paul found a singular condition at Ephesus. One Apollo had been preaching with success christian living and the gospel of repentance of Christ as proclaiming the kingdom of heaven at hand, but had not the power of the Comforter, the Holy Ghost. Of this he was taught by Aquila and Priscilla and continued his work and accomplished much good. Paul upon his return to Ephesus was drawn to those who were attached to this doctrine, and when the full plan of salvation had been made plain and they had been baptized in the name of the Holy Ghost they were filled with the Spirit and there was another Pentecost. How the history of these Pentecosts stands out in the gospel! It means so much, every christian must have a Pentecost. There are many today who try to live christian lives, and churches that try to be churches for Christ without this Holy Ghost and a Pentecost. It is this Holy Spirit which, within the life, enriches it and elevates it into a higher plane, a nobler character even unto Christlikeness, a continual, never-ending Pentecost. Many have taught morality and caught glimpses of the truth of a purity which seemed so desirable, but only in Christ is the whole truth made plain. Paul found souls ready to receive this light at Ephesus, and they became the nucleus of a great church.

Paul taught boldly here in the synagogue until the Jews rebelled, and then he taught in the school of one Tyrannus. Ephesus was open to all doctrines of religion. It was a religious place, and its schools sought to learn of all new doctrines. The inhabitants were to a great extent Grecian, and worshippers of something. The great temple of Diana of the Ephesians, one of the seven wonders of the world was here, and was one of the greatest idols the world had known. But this great temple, like the doctrine of its inspiration, has crumbled before the doctrine of the true God, as it is preached to man in the reclaiming of the world. Only enough of the darkness is recalled, and enough of its old landmarks permitted to remain to act as guide-posts to show the right way to all the generations following.

In this center of idolatry there was need of great work and God did great things through Paul. Christ's healing, regenerating and converting power was with him. The word was given to all

Asia, and the good accomplished was so great as to attract the admiration and acknowledgement of opposing evil, first by endeavoring imitation on the part of the wicked, and second by the witness of the spirit of evil as to the life of Christ and His apostles. This opened the eyes of idol-worshipping Ephesus and they honored the name of the Lord.

Paul had two great things to help him at Ephesus; two things needful in every church and community where the gospel is preached. The first is healing and help. If we do not have Christ so deep in our lives that it heals us and helps us, we can never attain to the ideal man. It is the spiritual power that changes a life, renews a nature, makes a man purer, nobler, stronger, that helps him to do more, do better, and stand as a man worthy of respect and confidence, that is the power that attracts attention. Second, he had contentions. They confessed their wrong doings, their changing, their turning to the right, confessed their conversion, and showed fruits publicly of this change by destroying and forsaking, under sacrifice, the evidence of their old sins and sinful practices.

That is the way to preach Christ! Paul preached it thus, his converts preached it thus, and we must follow the example. The world is looking for religion still, just as Ephesus and the heathen nations are hearing of christianity, in the help it is offering, the elevation of character it offers, and the healing peace and rest it offers to them through love, as taught in Christ's life and death to claim the world. We must offer to the world everything we have, the advantages of all the accoutrements of our national christianity, and thus in our liberty, which we have as christians, give light to all men. We must live as home and foreign missionaries we must live the light.

Magnify the name of the Lord. As the history of our preaching is written to-day for the study and guidance of coming generations, how will it compare with the history of the early church? Our nation is built upon a foundation of christian liberty, and the eyes of the world are upon us, watching our dealings with others. We have espoused a great cause, and must live up to it, or falling pass, that a people more worthy might rise in our stead to send out Christ's light, the true light which liberates the world.

A Clever Scheme.

The plank in the Democratic platform in relation to Baltimore City is an ingeniously written arrangement and is a cleverly concocted scheme to save the Straus Amendment from impending disaster. It is so adroitly interwoven with the success of the Disfranchisement proposition that it is evident that unless the city gives a good majority for the amendment, the Democratic county representatives in the next General Assembly will feel bound in no way to support any plan looking toward an increase in the representation of Baltimore city.

It looks very much now as though the city had been beautifully and successfully hoodwinked; as it is definitely known that it will be unable to give any majority whatever for the amendment now pending before the people. On the other hand the county leaders played one of the shrewdest political games ever manipulated in this State. The overwhelming sentiment of the city against the whole disfranchisement scheme has been so apparent for months that in order to pull their pet measure out of the fire they were willing to make a barter or trade of any character, and they carefully lead the city leaders into the practically impossible proposition—that of obtaining a good majority for the Straus Amendment.

The plan is simplicity itself. If the city fails in rolling up the majority promised, then the county leaders are relieved from their promises and Baltimore continues with its present representation. But in the meantime the intense desire of the city to secure the proposed increase may lead large numbers of voters to support the amendment and in this way the county leaders figure that while there is no chance that Baltimore will give any actual majority for the proposition, still they may be able to so hold down the city majority against it that the larger majority for it in the counties may be able to finally save it from ignominious defeat. In that event the counties will have reached their goal and when Baltimore demands the increase so glibly promised, the city leaders will be met with the incontrovertible statement that Baltimore failed to obtain a substantial majority for the disfranchisement scheme and, therefore, it is entitled to nothing at the hands of the counties. It is wonderfully simple—to the county leaders—but as for Baltimore, it is evident that while it is undoubtedly entitled to the increase and should have had it long ago, it is useless to look to the Democratic party for the accomplishment of the desired end. The very manner of the adoption of the plank stamps the whole proceeding as a pure and simple farce and intended only for the purpose of obtaining votes for the amendment, and when the final test comes, Baltimore will find the opposition as strong and determined as ever and attainment of its hopes no nearer realized than at present.

The Retort Contemptible.

The retort of the Wicomico News to our reply last Saturday to the editorial which appeared in its columns of the week before upon the typhoid situation is a characteristic utterance and is entirely in line with the contemptible policy it has always pursued. Being unable to break the force of the facts presented, absolutely no attempt of that kind was made and the editors fall back upon despicable flings and false innuendoes. Once more they seek to give the impression to the public that our article referred to the number of cases from Salisbury, which is absolutely false, as no statement of that kind was made, and the article itself is a standing refutation of the libel sent forth by that paper. It was a plain statement of the number of cases at the Peninsula General Hospital and every fact stated was shown last week to have been entirely correct and not the slightest effort was made to controvert them in any respect.

We did request a statement from the Superintendent of the Hospital and acting under the order of certain of the directors she made none and referred the matter to the Board which met on last Friday. Late that afternoon, more than an hour after we had gone to press the statement from the directors referred to in The News was sent to this office giving in detail all the cases at the Hospital during the month. As can be seen, it was impossible to use it and it in no way contradicted the facts presented in our former issue.

The editors of The News know nothing of dignity in writing or logic in debate, and they have never had the faintest conception of the most common and ordinary rules of professional ethics and newspaper courtesy. As an individual cannot lose self-control without losing self respect, so a newspaper cannot lose the latter without losing the respect of the community in which it circulates, and it cannot sink to the level of the common and base and use the vernacular of the degraded and profane without displaying the innate coarseness which controls it and the vulgar tendencies which animates it. Its contemptible flings at this paper reflect not upon The Courier, but recoil with deadly force upon The News. We have combatted the statements contained in its columns and have differed with it upon vital questions of political and municipal policies, but in doing so we have always attempted to use the utmost courtesy toward its editors, and the same policy will be strictly adhered to, not because their own conduct has not warranted some other cause, but because our own self-respect will not permit it and our conception of the office, and work of a newspaper is too high to entirely forget and ignore all the courtesies and amenities which are supposed to control publications in their dealings with each other. There is only one class of readers—fortunately an exceptionally small one—which would enjoy a retort of the character made by The News, and its members belong to the same common element, the instincts of which are manifested in the utterances of that paper. The great body of the readers of that publication voice the sentiments of the large numbers who have spoken to us concerning it, and they view it only with disgust and contempt.

Editorial Jottings.

Road improvements are all right, but why make them all in the same direction?

The citizens of South Salisbury are becoming highly incensed at the condition of affairs as they are at the dam. They are entitled to better treatment at the hands of the city government and steps should be taken at once to relieve the present condition.

Unfortunately for the Democrats there is no lack of harmony in Republican quarters. The attempt to give the public the impression that the resignation of Mr. Tomlinson is the forerunner of sensational developments in the party and indicates a split within the ranks is as erroneous as it is amusing. There is one thing our friends can consider just as immutable as the undeniable fact concerning "taxes," and that is that whether the Republican party wins or loses, it always writes HARMONY with a big "H."

The people of Shad Point and those living along the River Road are pouring some hot shot into the camp of the County Commissioners—most of it being directed toward the President of that body. Some very pointed questions are being asked as to the reasons for the failure of the County Commissioners to carry out their promises to make some improvement upon this road. It is stated that repeated promises were made only to be repeatedly violated. The disgraceful condition of the road renders it imperative that something should be done immediately.

are not the cheapest engine per rated h. p. on the market; but contradictory as it may seem, they are the least expensive. For, in considering engine expenses, the first cost is not the most important feature.

It's the economy of operation the freedom from repair bills, the sure, safe service yielded by The Foos Gasolene Engines in the after years that made them, of all known engines, the least expensive.

Flying Age and Air Conquerors

Significant Features and Effect of Louis Blériot's Flight From Calais to Dover, Across the English Channel, in a Monoplane.

Plucky French Aviator Who Is Known as a Daredevil of the Air—Achievements of the Wright Brothers and Other Aeronauts.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE nineteenth century earned the name of the age of steam and electricity, so the twentieth promises to win the title of the flying age. Already a man has flown across the English channel, which may be as much of a milepost in its way as Marconi's achievement of sending a wireless message across the same turbulent neck of water a few years ago. Marconi's feat was the first marked success that called the world's attention to the fact that telegraphing without wires was an accomplished fact, a triumph that was speedily followed by the greater victory of flashing the messages of the air across the Atlantic. It was but yesterday that these things happened, yet so swiftly do we move in this era of scientific enchantment that today wireless telegraphy is in commercial use in all parts of the earth.

Louis Blériot's feat of flying across the English channel is an even greater accomplishment than that of Marconi, yet it is not so startling, since the Wright brothers and others had already conducted longer flights. For example, only a few days before the crossing of the channel, Henry Farman, an Englishman, had flown from Chalons to Sulpes, France, a distance of forty miles, thus breaking Blériot's own previous record of twenty-five miles from Etampes to Orleans, the longest cross-country flight of an aeroplane up to that time. The Wrights and most other aviators have never attempted cross country hikes, but have confined themselves to prescribed courses, returning to the place of starting.

The flight across the channel is a striking and dramatic thing in itself, even if longer flights above land had way, it is not without interest that it was exactly a decade which passed between the two triumphs, Marconi scoring his success in 1899 and Blériot in 1909. Was ever any age in the history of the world so packed with marvels? Either of these deeds in a former time would have been sufficient alone to have made a whole age illustrious, yet in this day, when the drivers of the car of Progress could be arrested any time for overspeeding, we jam both of them into ten years of time and prepare ourselves for the next wonder that our inventors may perform!

Only a few days after the channel passage Orville Wright in America broke all records for a two man flight by remaining in the air over one hour and twenty minutes in his government trials at Fort Myer. Our American pioneers of the aeroplane are not yet outclassed. They it was who first made flight in a heavier than air machine a practical success, they it was who have been copied by the French and other inventors, and so it is but poetic justice that whatever triumphs are accomplished by others they should yet play the star engagements and score the record triumphs.

Navigating the Fog.

It has long been suggested that the fog across the English channel are heavy enough to navigate, and perhaps Blériot's feat may be taken as proof of this. On the same theory the vicinity of London should be ideal for biplanes, monoplanes and any other sort of a plane that could sail around, in or on a fog. With such meaty, ponderous and substantial fogs as those of London it would be impossible for anything as light as an airship to fall through.

The channel is a historic body of water that has been the graveyard of

It is just as easy for an aeroplane to fly over their roaring and terrifying channel as it is to fly over an equal stretch of French meadows.

No wonder that the Britons are frantically playing "An Englishman's Home" and tremblingly scanning the heavens for the next flock of French aeroplanes or coveys of German dirigibles that are on their way to drop infernal machines all over London. "Thus conscience doth make cowards of us all," John Bull, when he remembers the mean things he has done to other nations, depending on that "water wall" of the English channel to protect him, cannot understand why the other nations do not get even, now that the beginning of the flying age has brought them the opportunity. He knows that he would have revenge if the shoe were on the other foot. It is this uneasy feeling, no doubt, that has spread the terror over England that is so mysterious to the rest of the world. John Bull knows that he has richly earned a licking, and now that everybody else has learned to fly he sits in chattering terror lest some of them give him his deserts.

He is probably safe. The other lands are so busy perfecting their air craft that they have no time to bother with a craven who can extract no higher sentiments for the wonderful time now dawning than an unreasoning and unmanly fear for his own personal safety. While all other lands are entranced in the day dawn of a new era, he alone is grieving that his walls of exclusion are melting away and his mastery of the seas will not serve him in an age when the air is to become the highway of the world. He has gone on building Dreadnoughts while other nations have built biplanes, monoplanes and dirigibles.

Let Him Get Used to It.

John Bull may be depended on to get over his fright at the new wonder, even as the old family horse grows accustomed to the railway and the automobile. When Dobbin finds that each train and auto is not bent on his individual destruction, but goes on regardless of his very existence, he in time becomes reassured. And when Mr. Bull discovers that the flying age arrived not with intent to bring about his destruction and that it goes serenely on its way as if no such portly and beef eating gentleman were on the planet, he may become as reassured as Dobbin. He will have opportunity as the Blériot machine is followed by successors, first in singles and next in flocks and droves. Then Mr. Bull may familiarize himself with the airship to all its aspects, and the panic will disappear. But there is no gainsaying that he is scared now.

The flying age is here. On Aug. 22, at Rheims, France, is to be held an international tournament of fliers in which records will be broken and may be machines and pecks also. Glenn H. Curtiss, the man who won the prizes at the Morris park races in New York city and that afterward flew for fifty-two minutes at Hempstead, will represent America. Mr. Curtiss has a biplane, but perhaps the lightest machine of them all, weighing only 550 pounds with the operator. The motor on Mr. Curtiss' aeroplane is said to be a marvel of lightness and power.

Aeronautics has today become a recognized department of human thought and activity. In every leading government large sums are now set aside for the pursuit of the science, aerial navies are being organized, thousands of the world's best inventors are wrestling with the problem and perfecting the vehicles of flight, and in a few years more it will become plain to all that a new day has arisen for humanity and that the kingdom of the air is at hand.

WONDER ROSEBUSH.

Horticultural Wizard Working on One to Bear a Hundred Varieties.

One bush containing a hundred varieties of roses! That is the ambition of George Shima, better known as the California "potato king," one of the wealthiest Japanese in the state.

And Shima's dream may come true. With infinite care Hugo Lillenthal, Berkeley (Cal.) horticulturist and landscape gardener, founder of the Juvenile Horticultural society, is pruning, trimming and grafting in an effort to produce the wonder bush. Lillenthal has promised Shima that he will produce a rosebush that will grow 100 varieties in red, yellow and snowy white.

Shima recently built a magnificent home in College Avenue, Berkeley. He commemorated the event by writing a check for $100 for the University of California to furnish a student's room in the university sanitarium.

When he began the planting of a garden Lillenthal was employed. Now Shima's garden is rapidly becoming talked of throughout Berkeley, though the college town has always been the home of magnificent flowers. But the wealthy Japanese was not satisfied. He wanted something different from his fellows. So he conceived the idea of a rose bush bearing 100 varieties. "It can be done," said Lillenthal. "Go ahead and produce it, then," said Shima.

Times to Laugh.

A.—Is the old man always so glum as this? B.—By no means. He laughs twice a year, spring and fall, when the new women's hats come in.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Nervous Indigestion

The action of digestion is controlled by nerves leading to the stomach. When they are weak, the stomach is deprived of its energy. It has no power to do its work. If you want permanent relief, you must restore this energy. Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy, and gives the organs power to perform their functions.

"For many years I was an acute sufferer from nervous indigestion; at times I was so despondent life seemed almost a burden. I tried all kinds of remedies and various physicians with little or no relief, until one night last summer I saw Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure advertised. I resolved to make one more trial which I did in the purchase of one bottle of Nervine and one of Heart Cure. In a few days I began to feel better, which encouraged me so much that I continued the medicine until I had taken more than a dozen bottles. I am very much improved in every way; in body, mind and spirits since. I make a special point to recommend the medicine, and I feel a sincere pleasure in knowing that several persons have been benefited through my recommendations." A. S. MELTON, Asheville, N. C.
Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

WITH FLYING COLORS. The Incident That Ended His Period of Probation.

By CLARICE ENGLE.
(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

A man picked his way slowly along the sun baked trail that led westward to Taggart across the desert. It was high noon and the day had been hot and dry and the man's throat was parched with thirst. This did not tend to lessen his ferocious aspect nor to soften the anger that glowed in his eyes. It was all due to his visit that morning to the little ranch a few miles behind, for there he had met with the first failure in his life. He had proposed and been rejected.

It was not Bill Warren's nature to be balked by anything. He usually carried matters his own way and with a high hand, as a result of which he was looked upon as a sort of local "bad man." But this cognomen was applied to him only by people who did not know Bill. In reality no better nor kinder natured man than he ever rode into Taggart.

But Sue Patterson was one of those who were not intimately acquainted with Warren, and this assertiveness she looked upon as something evil. Therefore, although otherwise she liked Warren better than any other of her admirers, she felt that she was acting quite right when she rejected his offer of marriage.

All the consolation that she had given him in answer to his earnest pleading was that she would put him on an indefinite probation and if he came through it with flying colors why she would think about it.

All or which Warren took too literally, and he thought that she had spoken thus only to soften her refusal. He became angry at the thought of it.

She don't care nothin' for me," he muttered savagely, "an' I know why. It's all along of that sneakin' coyote, Ralph Henderson. Been to Frisco an' seen a few things an' comes out here to lord it over us. I know the brand. She's plumb loco over the cuss, too, an' he ain't no man. No," he finished spitefully, "he ain't no man."

He rode on across the desert in a sort of dazed consciousness, with his hat pulled well down over his eyes. At length, toward the middle of the afternoon, he came into the foothills. Before him lay the Tooth of Time, the largest mountain in that vicinity. Beyond it, ten miles to the westward, was Taggart. This necessitated his taking the trail that wound round the slope of the mountain. This trail was hardly more than a well trodden foot-path and was only wide enough to permit a single rider upon it. One side of it sloped up at an angle of almost eighty degrees. The other formed the side of a precipice that dropped a sheer 200 feet to the sandy ravine below.

As he rode over the trail, lost in thought, Warren was dead to external sounds. He did not notice the slightest whinies. He had no intimation whatever that any one was approaching along the trail from the opposite direction. And yet not a hundred feet ahead of him a horse and rider were rounding the curve of the mountain. Neither noticed the other until they were fifty feet apart. Then by some strange intuition both raised their heads. Recognition was mutual and instantaneous, for the man ahead of Warren was Ralph Henderson.

The faces of both men paled with fear. Not in years had two men met on that narrow trail, and it seemed some strange intervention of destiny that it should be Warren and Henderson. While the face of the cattleman grew anxious, that of Henderson became quickly overshot with a crafty cunning.

"Hello!" he drawled pleasantly.

"Hello!" muttered Warren nervously. "Well, what are we going to do about it?" the city man continued. "It looks as if you'd have to go back."

"Not by a sight!" snapped Warren. "There's no turning about for either of us. We'll have to manage to pass each other. The place seems pretty wide here."

"Flip a coin for the inner side," suggested the other, suddenly reaching a hand into his pocket.

"Right," agreed Warren, "but let's have a look at it first."

Henderson's face turned scarlet and he stayed his hand. "I declare, I'm all out of coin," he rattled sheepishly.

"Here's an eagle," replied Warren, with narrow eyes. "Heave her up. Heads I pass on the inside, tails I pass on the outside."

He tossed the coin to Henderson as he spoke who, pale faced and hesitating, fumbled with it a moment and let it fly up into the air with a twirl of a veteran trickster. It fell down on the trail at their feet, ringing out clear and cold.

"Tails!" cried the city man, overcome with excitement. His face assumed something of its natural color and the old craftiness stole into his eyes. Warren accepted his fate nonchalantly, although he knew that it might mean death for him. There was one thing about it, however, that galled him. He well knew that Henderson was on his way to the Patterson ranch, and it came to him as a rather bitter thought that he might have to play the martyr and sacrifice his own life in order that the man could do so. But without a word he pressed his pony's ribs with his heels and rode forward. Henderson had driven his horse as close as he could against the side of the mountain, but he seemed over taken by fits of nervousness, for the reins shook in his hands and the color came and went in his dark cheeks.

The ledge where Warren would have to pass Henderson was somewhat wider than the rest of the trail, and he rode forward light hearted and confident that he would easily accomplish it. But just as he brushed against the side of Henderson the latter suddenly drove his spurs with great force against his horse's ribs. With a snort of terror the animal plunged madly forward, dislodging the other horse and rider, and sending them hurtling down and over the edge of the precipice. Then he went careening down the slope.

The breath went out of Warren as soon as he felt himself falling, and under the sickening sensation that ensued he lost consciousness. A stinging pain in his leg finally awoke him. Bruised and bleeding, he now sat up and gazed about him. He had landed in the branches of a tree that jutted out from the slope of the mountain. Down below on the sand he could see the form of his horse, dead as a stone.

The first thing Warren did was to swear. Then he looked to his leg. It had been broken just below the knee. As he started to wrap his handkerchief about it he heard a sound from above. Over the rim of the precipice a bushy head was peering.

"Hello!" it called. "Kin ye manage ef I send down a rope?"

"Sure," Warren yelled back.

A minute later the end of a lariet came whirling down through space. Warren caught it, made it fast about his body, and then, clinging to it with both hands, ordered the man above to hoist away. A few moments later he crawled up over the ledge and lay panting for breath at old Jem Patterson's feet.

"I seen the hull thing, Bill," began the latter as he unrolled the rope about the man's body. "Henderson will avenge for this or I'll shoot him on sight. I was comin' along a mile behind him an' I seen him jab the buckskin and then scoot." But Warren was unconscious before the man finished speaking, and Patterson lifted him up on his pony after great difficulty and started down the trail for home.

When Warren next regained consciousness he was lying on a bed in a dimly lighted room. Soft hands were bandaging his head and soothing words fell from the lips of their eyes. Warren opened his eyes and took in the situation at a glance.

"Sue," he demanded fiercely, "has that skunk been here?"

"Sh!" she murmured, touching a finger to his lips. "He has not been here. Evidently he has skipped the country. Father has told me all about it—the honorable way in which you acted and Henderson's treachery. You have indeed behaved splendidly."

"Sue!" cried the man eagerly, starting up.

"Be quiet," she admonished smilingly. Then she added, "Your probation is over, and you have come through it nobly."

And then Warren claimed his own.

Builder of the Great Wall of China.

To superstitious notions Chin added the lust of luxury, his life being a blaze of oriental magnificence. He built a wonderful palace, which has been described in the Imperial History as having certain gorgeous annexes attached at intervals, the whole extending over a distance of a hundred miles. In consequence of his life of luxury perhaps he became more and more a prey to superstition, and it may be that because of this he completed the Great wall. At any rate, history records that he was informed by prophecy that in time he would be overwhelmed and destroyed by outside enemies. So he mobilized an army of 300,000 men to work on the Great wall, and if necessary to fight in its behalf. Chin's design evidently was to inclose his massive empire in a rampart which should have the shape of a horseshoe, with the heel cleft at the ocean shore. He did not plan to parallel the coast with a wall, doubt less considering that seaside an ample protection to a country vast and densely populated. The wall is not for modern use. It is an ancient fossil, the largest fossil on the earth. But fossils are useful and truthful. It is a dividing line between two civilizations and between two eras. In space it cut off the herdsmen of the north from the tillers of the south.—William Edgar Geil in Harper's.

The Town of Bushire.

Residents of a miserable seaport on the Persian gulf call their town Bushire (Boosheer). It has narrow, dirty, ill paved streets. The city is visited by earthquakes and almshouses and its children of wholesome air and fresh water. It appears, however, to have enjoyed high repute among the ancient Egyptians, who have left buried about under moldering heaps of bricks with cuneiform inscriptions. In summer the citizens of Bushire live in a heat that is almost unbearable.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed. Have too much to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

William H. Nicholson, 400 Locust street, Salisbury, Md. "I was troubled the greater part of last summer by my back and kidneys. I was in pain all the time and I could not sit down or stand still without having a severe backache. In the morning when I got up, I was lame and stiff and it really seemed as though I would be unable to endure the misery much longer. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I obtained a supply at White & Leonard's drug store. I used two boxes and since then I have not been bothered by my back or kidneys. I willingly give my testimonial in favor of this excellent remedy.

English Difficult to Pronounce. The difficulty of English for strangers does not lie in its orthography, but in its pronunciation. Abroad people will constantly say that they can read and write English readily, while unable to utter a word or to understand a word of the spoken language, as, of course, vice versa, a great many English and Americans can read and write French long before they can understand or make themselves understood. The other languages are just as difficult for them to pronounce as English is for others. The only difference is that English stands alone with its system or lack of system of pronunciation. When a Frenchman knows how to write German he is at the same time able to speak the language, if not beautifully, at least so as to be understood. The same holds for a German speaking French. Professor Albert Schlimm in North America Review.

Noiseless Typewriter. A noiseless typewriter of Vienna construction will soon be put upon the market. The inventor guarantees that in a room where fifty or more of his typewriters are operated not a sound can be heard except the typists in conversation.

Why She Was Glad.

A young Louisville man who was out west not long ago has returned, telling a yarn which he admits is not at his own expense, but which he declares to be about one of the most interesting experiences of even his checkered career.

"I was walking along the street in a western town," he said, "when suddenly across the way I saw a Louisville girl whom I recognized immediately. She saw me, too, and I expected her to bow rather coolly and distantly, as had been her wont back home. I was considerably astonished, therefore, when she dashed across the street, seized me with both hands and fairly bubbled over in her delight. I was so surprised, in fact, that I commented on it.

"I'm glad to see you, too," I said when I had managed to extricate myself from her exuberant greeting; "but, to tell you the truth, I hadn't expected to see you so excited over my appearance. You always treated me rather as a iceberg at home, you know. What has caused your change of heart?"

"She was nonplused for only a moment and then explained, 'Mr. Smith, I've been away from home so long that I'd be glad to see even a dog if he came from Kentucky!'"

"I let it go at that."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Too True!

There is a rare bit of pathos in the letter written by the late Dr. Edward Everett Hale to the Tyngsboro, (Mass.) centennial committee in the latter part of March regretting his inability to attend the celebration. He wrote: "I have another engagement, which cannot cancel, for the end of June."

THE SALISBURY FAIR A REMARKABLE SUCCESS.

Thousands Of Visitors On The Grounds
During The Past Week—Exciting Races—The Exhibit Hall An Attractive Place.

The Salisbury Fair has passed in history. From early Tuesday morning until late last night, the town was hosting with unusual life and activity.
Thousands of visitors have poured in and out of the city intent on seeing everything to be seen from the fat lady to the 10 race. Street fakers and automobiles contested for the prize in reaping the richest harvest. The city has been in holiday attire and everywhere the spirit of restless activity has manifested itself.

Thursday was the record breaking day. In point of numbers it exceeded the attendance at any other time and over fourteen thousand people paid for admission to the grounds. Even as to the races, Thursday was decidedly the best day and all records for the Eastern Shore circuit were smashed when Wheeler Wilkes finished the mile in 2.10.

Excursions from Virginia, Delaware and neighboring Maryland towns were run daily and the railroad companies were taxed to the utmost to handle the large number of persons who daily visited the Fair. All the hotels were filled to overflowing and all the boarding houses as well as many private residences were pressed into service to accommodate the throngs. Everything passed off smoothly and easily and the Fair management is to be congratulated upon the general methods which they employed in carrying the project to such a successful finish.

The exhibits were exceptionally large and compared favorably with the other Fairs that have been held on the Eastern Shore. So far as the races are concerned they were undoubtedly the best that have been held this year and the races were interesting and exciting.

In the main exhibition hall there were beautiful displays in all the various booths and the artistic sense of Salisbury displayed itself to a wonderful extent.

In the fancy work department designs of an exquisite character could be seen, centerpieces of great worth were on exhibition and old silk cravats of unusual value nearly a half-century old were to be seen.

The Salisbury Hardware Company had the first booth at the north door and was one of the most attractive in the lot.

Piano Companies did not fail to remember the Fair. Prof. W. T. Dashiell, of this city and Messrs. Stief and Knabe of Baltimore having on exhibition many instruments of splendid quality and handsome appearance.

The artistic booth of Messrs. Harper & Taylor attracted considerable attention, the large mahogany cases being filled with an extensive and valuable display of diamonds, watches and other articles of jewelry.

Kennerly-Shockley Company had quite an elaborate booth and a full display of ladies' suits, fall models, etc.

Messrs. Ullman Sons and the household department occupied two adjointing places. The exhibits here were elaborate and tastefully arranged and many novel features were to be seen.

The Singer Sewing Machine Company was well represented in the latest styles were shown to good advantage.

The art and floral departments had upon exhibition some of the finest specimens to be seen at the Fair. The floral booths were a perfect bower of ferns, potted plants and palms.

In the L. W. Gunby Co. booth a cozy corner was beautifully arranged, creating a splendid retreat for the many visitors who thronged up and down the aisles.

The Salisbury Light, Heat & Power Co. had a very interesting display and at night held the centre of the many attractions in the Exhibition Hall. It was brilliantly lighted with lamps of novel design, and filled with the latest inventions in the electrical line.

The manual training and domestic science department of the Wicomico High School attracted considerable attention and many splendid specimens of sewing, wood work and drawing were on display. This display speaks well for these departments of Physical Culture For September.

Those who blandly and complacently congratulate themselves on the enlightenment and general spread of knowledge evidenced in this age may find food for thought in some pithy and forceful statements made in Physical Culture Magazine for September. Its editor, Bernard MacFadden, is far from believing that our present day educational system is perfect, and he strongly denounces modern education as failing to provide instruction on the most vital subjects of human existence. His pungent discussion of this point, and other questions of public interest are well worth the reading.

Other notable contributions to this number are: "Lawn Tennis and Its Value in Health Building," "The Tomato as a Food—Does It Cause Cancer?" "Golf as a Builder of Vitality," "Vagaries and Vices of Fashion," and "Improving and Beautifying the Complexion." An enlightening discussion of the value of "The Meat Diet in the Treatment of Consumption," and numerous interesting and instructive discussions of topics pertinent to health and hygiene round out the current number of this publication.

Ready For Convention.

The public school teachers of Wi-comico county are looking forward with great interest and with the expectation of attending the Tri-County Institution to be held at Ocean City August 22d to September 2d. A circular has been issued setting forth the excursion rates; a list of hotels and the price for board and other items of interest to the teacher. Lectures will be given each day during the first week including Saturday, and during the first four days of the second week, so that the institute may close on Thursday at 1 o'clock instead of Friday as heretofore. This arrangement will give the teachers ample time to return home and prepare for the school work of the coming week.

Judicial Nominations Made.

John R. Pattison, Esq., of Cambridge and Judge Robley D. Jones, of Snow Hill, were nominated on Tuesday at Ocean City as the Democratic candidates, respectively, for Chief Judge and Associate of the First Judicial Circuit of Maryland. Unless the present plans of the Republicans are changed, there will be no nominations against these gentlemen and their election will be a matter of course.

F. Leonard Wallis, Esq., of this County seconded the nomination of Mr. Pattison and L. Atwood Bennett, Esq., was Secretary to the convention,

AUTOMOBILE BUS LINE TO BE ESTABLISHED.

Large Motor Vehicles To Run At Short Intervals Over Regular Routes—Several Transfer Points Proposed.

The operation of the automobile bus from Laurel to and from the Fair has revived interest in the project of having a regular automobile bus line in town, and it may be consummated very shortly.
For some time plans have been in contemplation, by which several busses of this character would be purchased and regular lines established upon definite schedules of certain routes.

The main line would be from the city limits in Camden to the eastern end of the city on Church street and would take care of the passengers at the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk stations. There will be a transfer point at Division and Church and the line from the place would extend to the Northern limits of Division street, accommodating the B. C. & A. travel. Another transfer point would be established at Main and Dock streets, from which place the line would extend to the limits through California. This would give a very complete and up-to-date system of transportation in town at a reasonable rate, as the present plans contemplate a charge of five cents to and from any portion of the city.

It is hoped that the arrangements will be completed within a short time and if this should be the case, Salisbury would give one more evidence of its hustling qualities and up-to-date progressiveness.

Successful Camp At Parsonsburg.

The Parsonsburg Camp closed on Sunday night after ten days of extra meeting. The camp was very largely attended this year. Sunday, August 15th, was high-water mark for the attendance in the history of the camp.

The following preachers were present and assisted in the service: Revs.
G. P. Jones, District Superintendent,
F. N. Faulkner, G. P. Smith, B. F.
McFall, J. W. Fogle, T. F. Bean-champ, J. H. Wilson, J. M. Mitchell, G. W. Hastings, George S. Thomas, S.
H. Williams and Thomas L. Avery, Revs. J. L. Williams and Humphreys, of Salisbury, assisted as evangelists.

The people were delighted with Miss Watts of Washington, and will gladly welcome her again.

The order was good throughout, keeping up the record of past years.
On Sunday night Charles Bunting and Harvey Hastings came from Ocean City with two suit cases of liquor, but the Trustees had been informed and were on the look out for them and before they had time to dispose of their wares, they were arrested and lodged in the county jail. They were released by paying $50 and costs. It is reported that the men are running a speak-easy at Ocean City. It might be well for the Ocean City officials to send to the Parsonsburg trustees for assistance.

Rev. V. E. Hills is the pastor of the church and had charge of the campmeeting this year.

The campmeeting at Bethel is now in progress and the one at Melson's will begin next Saturday night.

PROMINENT CITIZEN OF SALISBURY DEAD.

Mr. E. Sampson Truitt Passes Away At His Home in This City—Funeral Yesterday From Representative House.

Mr. Elisha Sampson Truitt, one of the best known residents of the county, died at his home in the eastern section of this city on Wednesday last. He was born in 1841 between Wango and Powellville in this county, at the old homestead of his father, and was the son of the late George and Levia Truitt.

Mr. Truitt received only the rudiments of an education at the public schools. His later knowledge and information was obtained from his extensive reading and his general experience.

In early manhood he engaged in farming near his birthplace, and later conducted a blacksmith and wheelwright business at Wango. This was continued until he came to Salisbury in 1887, at which time he engaged in the general fertilizer business in which he continued until about two years ago when he retired so as to give his entire attention to his personal matters.

Mr. Truitt was always an active Democrat and at one time was County Commissioner.

He is survived by a widow, Mrs.
Della Truitt, who was a daughter of the late Lambert Powell, and also by the following children: Miss Maude M. Truitt, Mrs. Ethel May Perdue, wife of Mr. J. Herman Perdue, and Mr. E. Wilmer Truitt.

Mr. Truitt was an active Baptist, and the funeral took place at 2 o'clock yesterday from the Old School Baptist Meeting House and was conducted by Elders Francis and Poulson. The pallbearers were Messrs. James T. Truitt, Irving S. Powell, W. Jeff Stator, Willam Phipps, William C. Mitchell and William L. Laws. Mr. George O. Hill had charge of the funeral arrangements.

By close application to business and hard work Mr. Truitt had accumulated quite a large amount of money so that he leaves a very comfortable estate.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS.

Maryland Agricultural College Greatly Hampered During Past Year. New Courses Added.

The Maryland Agricultural College, the widespread importance of which as the State's School of Technology, is being more and more keenly realized all the time, will open its fifty-third year on September 14.

Every indication points to this as the most successful year in the history of the institution, which has the distinction of being the first and oldest Agricultural College in the United States.

Within the past few years rapid strides forward have been taken and the college is today thoroughly equipped for its great work of training young men to hold their own in the struggle for existence.

With the completion of the new engineering building, the plans for a fine and thoroughly modern Agricultural Building, a strengthened faculty and a new Athletic field, the college will this year present opportunities and attractions for the education of young men along scientific, engineering and agricultural lines, unrivaled in this State and unsurpassed in any other.

The institution as it stands today is one in which the State and the people of Maryland may well take pride. It means more to the welfare of the State and its general development along broad lines than any other educational institution within its borders. It is doing and has done more for the development of the natural resources of Maryland than any other agency, and it is now upon a foundation and in a position where its usefulness will be doubled and its sphere of activity greatly widened.

Since last year new courses have been added to the curriculum, and the two years courses in Agricultural and Horticultural, revised and amplified. Dr. R. W. Silvester and the members of his faculty have devoted themselves this summer to the work of preparing for what it is proposed to make the banner year in the history of this old and honorable school.

One of the things of greatest value about the Maryland Agricultural College is the ability of its graduates to obtain positions of importance and responsibility upon leaving college. Its graduates have made the name and fame of Maryland Agricultural College more than State wide—in the ranks of farmers, engineers, lawyers, physicians, scientific specialists and business men, they are found in the forefront, and their universal success in the calling for which they were prepared at College, is an object lesson which cannot escape the notice of a discerning and intelligent public.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Topic For Tomorrow, "Riot At Ephesus Paul's Third Missionary Journey." Discussed By Local Writer.

GOLDEN TEXT—He said unto me, "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Paul had been at Ephesus for two years, and the effect of his teaching was felt throughout the surrounding country, and we are not sure but that, during the latter part of his stay here, he used Ephesus as headquarters, preaching at various towns nearby. Paul's work here was about completed and he was anxious to visit other cities, and to go even to Rome. He visited the various churches in Macedonia and Greece. After leaving Ephesus and returned by way of Rhodes, Cyprus, Phoenicia and Caesarea to Jerusalem, completing his third journey.

While at Ephesus great opposition arose on account of the effect Christianity had upon certain business interests. We had, during the early part of his ministry here an example of how converts forsake bad business ways for Christianity. Now we have Christianity persecuted because of its interference with bad business. Christianity cannot be in a community very long without making itself felt.

These people at Ephesus and a greater part of Asia Minor were worshippers of idols and particularly at this time, of the Goddess Diana. They were liberal in the liberty of worship. A score of idols would not occasion jealousy, provided at each feast, or sacrificial day of any individual idol due homage was accorded, for just as at Athens they desired to propitiate all the gods. But the most honored of all was Diana, and her temple was beyond compare, and the sacrifices and offerings to the priests of her temple were munificent. A small image of the goddess was made, which used as an amulet, served as an idol for the personal use of her disciples. This rendered employment to many, and quite a union of these artisans existed, and when Paul's teaching had so impressed the people throughout the country as to interfere with the sale of these small images of Diana the manufacturers of them stirred the people to riot to destroy the teachers of this new way. Christianity had not attracted or worried them until it interfered with their business. So it is: As long as Christianity remains obscure, or is long-suffering, it is not opposed, but when it is so permeates the life of a community as to change the nature of its business, or the way of conducting its business, opposition is marked.

The vitality of Christianity is manifested in this way. Idolatry never cleansed the morals of a community, never demanded honesty in business, and purity in political parties and government, because it was never intended to purify or elevate mankind. But Christianity is a regenerating, elevating, complete redeeming power which is making itself felt more and more every day. There is great confusion to day as the purifying effect of Christianity makes itself felt, but it is the day of the harvest. The winning is going on and the great sifting is to continue, as the refining fire of Christianity removes the dross, the nations are being cleansed, and mankind will not be at peace until the judgment by righteousness proves all up to the standard, where we will be fit meat for the Master's use.

Paul considered himself an insignificant vessel to carry this great refining gift to the world, and having some infirmities which prevented his filling this office in the way which seemed to him ideal, he prayed that these (thorns in the flesh) might be removed, but he gives us God's answer, "My strength is made perfect in weakness." If Paul in his infirmity should succeed it would manifest God's power, as working through him. Paul, an intellectual giant, a physical giant, a political giant, might thunder out a new doctrine, but Paul, a physical weakling, with no physical prowess, no money, no political power, to succeed means a power working through him. Men who overcome human frailties, who stumble but do not fall, who overcome without the removal of the cross, are the living preachers and teachers of the truth, by the which sinful men is made into the perfect man; proving that it is he who is sick that needs the physician. And it is a joy to us to know that if Paul was human, and overcame his human frailties, we too, can overcome. Then we will glorify God, in whom we live, and not self. Therein has God chosen the weak that thereby he might confound the mighty.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds Of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed. Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follows.

A Salisbury citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

William H. Nicholson, 400 Locust street, Salisbury, Md. "I was troubled the greater part of last summer by my back and kidneys. I was in pain all the time and I could not sit down or stand still without having a severe backache. In the morning when I got up, I was lame and stiff and it really seemed as though I would be unable to endure the misery much longer. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I obtained a supply at White & Leonard's drug store. I used two boxes and since then I have not been bothered by my back or kidneys. I willingly give my testimonial in favor of this excellent remedy.

Thump At Cumberland.

The waterworks of Cumberland, several lunch rooms and a number of the industrial plants were tied up early last Monday morning by the supply of natural gas running short. The shortage was caused by the washing out of two sections of pipe near Douglas, in a small creek between Douglas and Davis, W. Va.

The natural gas company keeps a patrol and night watch constantly on the line and it was noticed that the gas pressure was growing lighter beyond Thomas at 2 o'clock Monday morning. Hurried telephone messages showed the trouble to be in the place near Douglas. It was found that a tremendous down-pour of rain had turned the usually quiet little creek at that point, where no trouble had been anticipated, into a torrent that swept everything before it. The water had carried away two sections of pipe that had been laid across the bed of the creek.

The gas shortage in Cumberland soon had the city water plant out of business until the boilers could be changed back for the use of coal. The N. & G. Taylor Company tin mill plant, in South Cumberland, had just finished running through a heat when the gas supply became low and they were compelled to stop.

Footer's large dye plant had to stop use of the gas, and the plant being equipped for the change was quickly using coal again.

The German Brewery was compelled to stop until the change back to coal could be made.

All the lunch rooms that had been using gas exclusively were compelled to resort to coal stoves or to charcoal for cooking.

The offices of the daily newspapers where gas is used in quantities in the linotype and stereotype departments were also tied up until the change could be made back to the use of artificial gas.

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. S. Nusbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes, "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists.

Salisbury Building & Loan and Banking
ASSOCIATION

This Association has two separate and distinct departments: "The Building & Loan Department" and "The Banking Department."

The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $134,500.00, makes loans, secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 30c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1897.

The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to act as a depository of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes, receive money on deposits, make loans on commercial paper, enter into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicit the patronage of its friends and the general public. The Seven Wise Men of Greece.

The seven wise men of Greece were Thales of Miletus, Periander of Corinth, Cleobulus of Lyndus, Chilon of Lacedaemon, Solon of Athens, Bias of Priene and Pittacus of Mitylene. Some fishermen of Miletus sold a draft of fishes to a bystander. When the net was drawn in it contained a golden tripod, and the purchaser claimed it was his, while the fishermen contended that they sold only the fish that might be in the net. The dispute was referred to the oracle of Delphi, who awarded the tripod to the wisest man in Greece. Thereupon it was taken to Thales, who declined it and suggested that it be given to Bias. He in turn refused to accept it, and thus it was successively declined by all the seven, and they were thereafter known as the seven wise men of Greece.

SPAIN'S BEAUTY CITY

Glimpses of Barcelona, Hotbed of the Present Revolution.

DIVIDED INTO TWO SECTIONS

It Has Its Old and New Quarters, an Ancient History and Beautiful Buildings—Spain's Most Important Commercial and Industrial Town.

Barcelona, where the present discontent of the people throughout Spain over the continuation of the fighting against the Moors at Melilla, in Morocco, recently assumed the character of civil war, is the capital of the captain generalcy of Catalonia as well as the most important commercial and industrial town in Spain. It is on an undulating plain on the shore of the Mediterranean, in about the same latitude as Rome. On the southeast rise the Montjuich hills, crowned by fortifications, on the three other sides of the plain stretches a picturesque mountain background. The suburbs are a series of cultivated, semitropical gardens, and beyond the plain is dotted with villages and farms and intersected with beautiful streams. Don Quixote described the city as "unique both in beauty and situation," and even in modern days, when the smoke of factory chimneys takes away some of the former picturesqueness, it ranks as one of the most attractive of Mediterranean towns.

Barcelona has a population of 530,000, counting the old and new towns together. The houses of the new town are largely built of brown stone, which make an imposing appearance, and the streets are laid out very regularly. The busy life of the city centers in the Rambla, a charming promenade which unites the old town with the new and along which are the principal theaters, shops and cafes and where the pretty flower girls display their wares under the shade of the plane trees.

City of Two Parts.

The old city was formerly surrounded by a line of ramparts defended by a citadel on the northeast erected by Philip V., but as these fortifications restricted the development of the town they were abolished by the local authorities in 1845 despite the opposition of the central government. The walls of the most were turned into cellars, and the ground was laid out in gardens. The city rapidly spread out to the northwest, and in 1890 an elaborate plan was made for laying out new districts. Thus the town is divided into old and new, the old interesting for its irregular, narrow streets and its houses, built in eastern fashion, chiefly of brick, four to five stories in height, with flat roofs.

Old Barcelona forms a hexagon, on the southeast side of which lies the harbor. On the highest point of the town, the Monte Taber, stands the cathedral, one of the finest specimens of Spanish Gothic architecture. It is on a site once occupied by a Roman temple and later by a Moorish mosque. The building of the cathedral was begun in 1298, and the keystone of the vaulting was laid by Andres Escuder in 1448. The scale is not large, but the arrangement and lighting are so fine that the impression of great size is given. To the right and left of the northeast doorway are two inscriptions relating to the building of the church.

Magnificent Sunset Effects.

The interior of the cathedral is very dark, but impressive. The small windows contain the finest fifteenth century stained glass, and the sunset effects upon them are magnificent. One of the most interesting of the chapels is that of Santo Crisi de Lepanto, which contains the "Christ of Lepanto," said to have been carried by Don John of Austria in his flagship at the famous battle of Oct. 6, 1571. The image of the Saviour is said to be bending its head to escape a Turkish bullet.

A number of interesting buildings are grouped near the cathedral. The Canonla (canony) dates from the fifteenth century, and on the back wall is a mural painting of "The Last Supper." The shoemakers' guild house is an example of sixteenth century renaissance. Not far off stands the palacio episcopal, which dates from 625, though rebuilt since then. It contains some Romanesque remains, and one of its gateways is partly of Roman workmanship.

The City's Mythical Founder.

In the Calle del Paradis behind the cathedral are buried three Corinthian columns fifty feet in height which are probably the remains of the portico of a Roman temple, described by legend as dedicated to Hercules, the mythical founder of Barcelona. The general archive, erected for Charles V., is an interesting Gothic structure containing about 4,000,000 documents, and the Provincial museum, too, is worthy of note.

Barcelona's place in the commercial history of Spain is one of pre-eminence. In the twelfth and thirteenth centuries it was the rival of Venice and Genoa. The merchants of Barcelona could be found trading with all the Mediterranean ports, with the Netherlands and the orient. With the emancipation of the Spanish-American colonies a decline set in, but the proved only temporary, and now its commercial and industrial status is quite assured. The town is sometimes called "The Manchester of Spanish Lancashire," and its cotton, silk and woolen mills are famous. Into its harbor, too, come ships from all the colonies, bringing tremendous cargoes of imports from all parts of the world.

Played It to the Limit.

Many writers have declared that an Irish gentleman's hospitality is unlimited, but this is a slight exaggeration, as is shown by a story borrowed from a book of Irish memories.

Jack McCarthy was often the guest of friends who on account of his pleasant ways extended to him that sort of old Irish hospitality which enabled a visitor in my own family who came for a fortnight to stay for six years.

In McCarthy's case the visit stretched to nearly double that time. After eight or nine years, however, his kindman got a little tired of his guest and let him know of his old man's proposed renovation and that he had signed a contract for having it painted from garret to cellar.

"By George," said Jerry, "it's fortunate that I don't object to the smell of paint, and it will be well to have some one to keep an eye on the painters now that the wall fruit is ripening."

Some months passed. Then his host informed him that he was going to be married, adding, "I thought I'd tell you in good time, so that you could make leisurely preparations to go, as the lady and you may not hit it off as well as you and I do."

With tearful eyes Jerry grasped his cousin's hand, saying:

"Oh, Dan, dear, you have my hearty thanks for your consideration; but, dear, dear boy, surely if you can put up with her I can."

Woodchopping as a Sport.

In Tasmania is to be found a national pastime that is special and particular to that state alone—the sport of woodchopping. It says much for the grit and vigor of Tasmanians that this really serious and arduous work should be regarded as the finest sport. At Hobart and Launceston they have their turf meetings, their cricket, football, golf, cycling, and so forth, but to a woodchopping contest people will flock from far and near—men, women and children—and watch the ax wielders hewing away at huge blocks of timber as if life and reputation depended upon the issue. Thud, thud, thud, go the axes, and the splinters fly in all directions, the judges calmly sitting near, taking notes of the strokes, the spectators cheering the competitors from time to time as frantically as if they were race horses. To be a woodchopping champion means something to a man in Tasmania.—Dundee Advertiser.

Look Prosperous or Pay in Advance.

"While there is a good deal of the American spirit prevailing in Sydney and Melbourne, they do things there in a peculiar way," said a traveling man. "It is hard to get used to them."

"They have excellent restaurants there, but they run on a peculiar plan. A man goes in and sits down at a table, and a waiter, generally a woman, hands him the bill of fare. He makes out his order on a slip, and before he is waited on the waiter goes to the cashier and has a little private talk with him. The cashier looks over at the customer, and if he appears to be good for the bill he is served; otherwise he is asked to pay in advance. The meals are good and cheap. The same careful scrutiny is made when a fellow registers at a hotel. Good looks will go further than any amount of baggage."—Omaha Bee.

The Intricacies of It.

"Why don't you study the time table, and then you wouldn't have missed your train?"

"That was the trouble. While I was trying to translate the time table the train pulled out."—New York Herald.

At His Best.

Blobs—The doctor told Gumbler drinking was the very worst thing he could do. Slobbs—I guess that doctor didn't know Gumbler or he would have realized that drinking is the best thing he does.—Philadelphia Record.

The Number 4.

There are four cardinal points, four winds, four quarters of the moon, four seasons, four rules of arithmetic, four suits of cards, four quarters to the hour, four legs for furniture, most animals go on four legs, the dead are placed between four planks, the prisoners between four walls. We have four incisor and four canine teeth, and our forks have four prongs. All animals when butchered are cut into four quarters. The violin, greatest of all string instruments, has but four strings. Four of a kind is a pretty good hand at poker, even if they are only four.—Exchange.

Dressed For the Part.

"What subject have you taken for your address at the Civic club?"

"Woman's moral obligations as a citizen."

"What a lovely subject! And what are you going to wear?"

"That new gown I brought home with me from Paris. And just think! I had it so cleverly packed by with my old clothes that the manager knew the spectator never discovered it was there."—Baltimore American.

SATURDAY, AUG. 21, 1909.

Up-to-Date Salisbury.

Salisbury has been on its good behavior during the past few days. The town has been in gala attire and hundreds and even thousands of visitors have been here during the week. Large numbers of those who have been here from a distance and who have not been here in recent years have been very agreeably surprised at the remarkable strides which have been made within the last decade. Its paved streets and up-to-date business houses have been favorable commented on and surprise has been expressed on all sides at the marvelous growth and the splendid achievements of the past few years.

A remarkable feature in connection with the Fair was the ease and rapidity with which the large crowds were transported to and from the fair grounds. Beside the large number of busses employed in conveying the passengers back and forth, dozens of automobiles were pressed into service and splendid results were accomplished. Hundreds were carried to and from the grounds without confusion or difficulty at reasonable rates and the showing made was a most creditable one.

For sometime Salisbury has been the undoubted metropolis of the Eastern Shore not only numerically, but commercially as well, and it only required an instance of this kind to demonstrate to the people at large the hustling qualities of the town and the position which it today occupies on the Eastern Shore.

Liquor Law Violations.

The large number of arrests which have been made in Wicomico recently speaks well for the officers, although it is an unfortunate commentary upon the general conditions at the present time in the county. Most of the persons arrested have been colored and a large number of the alleged offenses have been violations of the liquor law. In cases where the undoubted guilt of the parties is established the extreme penalty of the law should be meted out and, under these circumstances, it seems impossible to compel a compliance with the present statute there should by all means be a change at the next session of the legislature and the law should be made more drastic in its character.

The utmost caution, however, should be used by the officers in seeing that those who are charged with offenses are really guilty. It too frequently happens that in instances of this kind where large number of arrests are constantly being made, that the magistrates become lax in requiring the requisite proof to establish guilt, and in this way, it is possible that those who are not guilty may suffer an unjust punishment.

The officers are to be congratulated upon their determination to uphold the liquor laws and strictly enforce them and they should have and receive the earnest cooperation of all citizens who are interested in the maintenance of order in the community.

A Hard Task.

The Democratic press of the State is engaged in an up-hill effort to convince the people of Maryland that the Baltimore representation plank in the recent platform was a genuine and sincere promise to the people of the city to secure the increase if possible. The independent press of Baltimore was not so easily fooled and they have accepted the democratic platform in relation to the City with the mental reservation which the situation demands. The counties of the state know that they were powerless to secure the adoption of the proposed Strauss Amendment unless something was done to break the force of the heavy majority which was sure to be given against the proposed enactment in the city and hence the scheme was so contrived as to couple the proposition of increased representation with the disfranchisement amendment. The only difficulty, however, was that the whole arrangement was so patent upon its face as to destroy the very object sought to be accomplished. The amendment is more than ever doomed to defeat while Baltimore is no nearer the realization of its hopes than it was before.

Editorial Jottings.

All roads led to Salisbury during the past week.

If the managers of the Fair had arranged the weather conditions during the week to suit themselves, they could hardly have made them more perfect than they were.

In view of the general progressiveness shown by Salisbury, a number of the visitors were very much surprised that nothing had been done in relation to rebuilding the bridge at the dam. The unfortunate conditions which now exist have been the cause of a vast amount of inconvenience during the entire Fair and has shown more than ever the necessity for a change at once.

There Will Be No Let Up To The Great Remodeling Sale At Lacy Thoroughgood's

There will be no let up to the great Remodeling Sale until this immense stock of Kuppenheimer Suits for Men and young Men are reduced and the store remodeled. Every Man's Suit, every Child's Suit, every Hat, every Shirt—everything is reduced in price—prices have been reduced low enough to close out every dollar's worth of goods in the Store. Business is steadily increasing day after day—last Saturday was a record breaker for this time of the year, not half help enough, people who said Lacy Thoroughgood wouldn't or couldn't sell goods the way he advertised them, have found out that Thoroughgood not only could and would, but that he was actually glad to do it. There is not thought—of profit—no thought—of what a thing cost when he marked a re-modelled price on it. Lacy's whole thought was, mark the goods low enough to sell them to the first person who sees them, and get them out of the Store, and goods are selling rapidly. Bear in mind this REMODELING SALE is not an ordinary sale, not a sale for pure advertising purposes, not a sale to sell goods bought for the purpose, but a sale to reduce this stock. While extensive alterations are going on from the floor to the ceiling, a Sale to close out three hundred Children's Knickerbocker Suits at about half price preparatory to rearranging and reorganizing the entire business on new lines. Hundreds of people who bought last Saturday at this Sale "WOKE UP" to the fact no such a Clothing Sale was ever held in Salisbury before, it's time you WOKE UP.

JIMMY'S OPPORTUNITY.

A Very Important Conversation That Settled Matters.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.
(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

Jimmy Fitzgerald was downcast. Everybody was against him, he told himself, and in that sweeping generalization he included even Carroll. For it had not been for Carroll's convenience, her tame submission to the misadventure of interfering relatives, the words which had trembled on his lips for three dragging months would have been spoken long ago.

From the standpoint of a disinterested spectator Jimmy was ready to admire the cleverness which so far had circumvented him. "Good team work," he denominated it. The ingenious air with which Grandmother Reynolds would appear to claim Carroll's assistance in regard to a dropped stitch in her knitting just when Jimmy was bringing matters to a climax and Carroll was turning a most becoming pink was only equaled by the childlike innocence with which Carroll's small brother would rush bawling into the library with a bloody handkerchief held to his nose, interrupting an eloquent outbreak beginning "Since the first hour I saw you."

In Jimmy's estimation this was all the harder to bear because he was so perfectly eligible. Character and prospects alike were beyond question. The most serious accusation that could be brought against the match was that both of them were young. Carroll's sister, Marie, was of the opinion that an engagement would be absurd, and Jimmy thought he knew why. If George Freeman, Marie's latest admirer, had been as eager to propose as Jimmy was, the latter young man felt positive that no obstacles would be put in his way.

With a duplicity foreign to his usually frank nature, Jimmy lost no opportunity of expressing to Freeman the admiration with which Marie inspired him. If the older sister were once engaged or, better still, married, Jimmy believed there would be hope for him.

Meanwhile the family opposition showed itself in a system of espionage which kept Jimmy's great avowal unspoken. If he suggested a walk, either Mrs. Reynolds declared that Carroll's cold would not permit her to venture out or Marie invited herself to accompany them; if the theater, a chaperon was necessary. Whole souled co-operation on Carroll's part would have relieved the situation, but the girl knew so well what Jimmy wanted that her modesty shrank from giving him anything but the most negative assistance. Accordingly Jimmy decided that she, too, was against him and gave himself up to thoughts of unutterable gloom.

He called one afternoon wearing an expression of grim determination which, if he had known it, put the conspirators on their guard. He was ushered into the family living room, and Mrs. Reynolds entertained him till Carroll came down. Jimmy made a few inane comments on the weather, his eyes devouring the pretty girlish figure seated demurely in the opposite corner.

"It's too fine a day for the house," said Jimmy. "Suppose we take a little walk."

"Really, Carroll, dear," said Mrs. Reynolds before Carroll could reply. "It won't do for you to leave the house. Mrs. Baker is likely to want you any moment. We have a dressmaker here, Mr. Fitzgerald," she continued, turning to Jimmy with her most charming smile.

"Can't we sit on the piazza?" suggested Jimmy. Carroll agreed to the suggestion. But, as it proved, her small brother, Bob, was in possession of the hammock, and he remained for two hours, enlivening the occasion by describing the exploits of the ball team.

An ear splitting whistle in the rear of the house relieved them at length of Bob's company. Without delay Jimmy plunged into the subject uppermost in his mind.

"Carroll, there's something I want to say to you."

"Carroll, Mrs. Baker is ready for you," said Marie's voice behind the parlor shutters. That she had been waiting there, biding her time, Jimmy could not doubt. Then the gate clicked, and Mr. Reynolds came up the walk. He settled himself in the chair Carroll had vacated, and he and Jimmy talked politics till dinner time.

The young man refused an invitation to remain to dinner. He went away with a lowering brow and a heavy heart. But at half past 9 that evening the telephone bell rang, interrupting a game of bridge going on in the den. Carroll, who was nearest to the instrument, pushed back her chair and went to answer the summons.

"Hello—hello! Oh, yes, this is Carroll." She turned a pretty, flushed face toward the three at the card table. "Please don't talk for a minute. I can't hear."

The next minute she heard very distinctly, for the room had become absolutely still, and the voice at the other end of the wire was clear and penetrating.

"This is Jimmy, Carroll. There's something I've been trying to say to you for three months. And I'm going to say it now."

"Where I don't see?"

"Well, it doesn't matter whether you see or not. Just listen. Ever since I met you on Phil Reynolds' yacht a year ago I've loved you—from the very first hour."

"Oh, hush!"

"I'm not going to hush. I think about you every minute while I'm awake and dream about you when I'm asleep. I'm not any good any more, and I shan't be till I find out whether you care for me or not. And if you don't I'm going to the Philippines or somewhere."

"Don't talk so loud."

"I don't care who hears me. I've kept it to myself just as long as I can, Carroll, darling, can't you care for me a little?"

"Sh! Come tomorrow."

"I'll come tomorrow fast enough if you tell me what I want to hear. Haven't I been coming day after day for months without getting a chance to tell you that I love the very ground you walk on? And now I've got it! I'm going to wait till you say yes or no. If you can't love me I might as well—"

Abruptly the voice ceased. Carroll waited expectantly. Then a terrible suspicion flashed through her mind which in a moment had become a certainty. Tremulously she accused the operator. "You've cut me off."

"What number do you want?" replied that young woman.

"Oh, I don't know. I haven't any idea. Oh, why did you cut me off just then?"

The trio at the card table were staring at her strangely. "How absurdly you are acting, Carroll," exclaimed Marie sharply. "Come and finish the game."

"Yes, come and finish the game, Carroll," said her father. "The other matter can be settled another time, I hope."

"We've got 'em on the run, Miss Carroll," chuckled George Freeman, who happened to be Carroll's partner.

Slowly the girl moved toward her place. What would Jimmy think? Perhaps he would believe that she had deliberately hung up the receiver, preferring this way of giving him his answer. And he had spoken of the Philippines. She grew a little dizzy and groped for her chair.

Just at that moment the telephone rang again, and Carroll bounded toward it, her agility in surprising contrast to her late uncertainty and feebleness.

"Hello! Hello!"

"Hello, Jimmy. I will. I mean I do."

A long pause. "I suppose it's too late for me to come up this evening," suggested Jimmy tentatively.

"Of course not. Only hurry." She hung up the receiver and turned a radiant face. Again Marie looked suspicious.

"That must have been a very important conversation," she said scathingly. "I hope it's settled now."

Carroll answered her with a dignity in which there was no suggestion of the downtrodden younger sister.

"It is," she replied. "Jimmy and I are engaged."

His Rival.

In Turkey it often happens that marriages are arranged affairs—arranged by the parents of the man and the woman. Such was the case, says Demetra Vaka in Haremlik, with Halli Bey and his bride. They had never seen each other, and at first it did not look as if the match would be a good one, since the lady was buried deep in German philosophies. In which the gentleman had little interest.

By the time I had parted from Halli Bey's fiancée I was so filled up with high ideals that I kept thinking, "Poor Halli Bey!"

The next morning I found Halli Bey in the garden, very impatient to hear all about his fiancée.

"Tell me," he cried out as soon as we had shaken hands, "is she beautiful?"

"Very," I answered, "but, my poor boy, she is crazy over Kant and Schopenhauer."

"Who are they?" he bellowed, thunder in his voice and fire in his eyes. "Tell me quick, and I will draw every drop of blood from their veins!"

"I have no doubt," I said, "that in a fist to fist encounter you would have the best of them, but they are both dead and gone, and only their miserable books are left to fight against."

"Oh," he laughed, "is that all? I think I can take care of that."

As events turned out, he did.

Strong Proof.

"Used for a bunch of promises, eh?"

"Yep."

"Any defense?"

"Temporary insanity, and I expect to prove it by the love letters I wrote."

—Washington Herald.

Utter Contempt.

"I s'pose you wouldn't marry me if I were the only man on earth?"

"I wouldn't even be engaged to you," responded the girl. "If you were the only man at a summer resort!"—Knox City.

POLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

THERE'S A REASON.

Why the Mosquitoes Stayed Away From a Certain Summer Resort.

THE had just arrived at the summer resort and were sitting on the porch in the evening watching the yellow moon rise from behind the ragged sky line of the pine-crowned hill.

"They don't seem to have any mosquitoes here," said the lady newcomer in a tone of gratified surprise.

"You can't blame the mosquitoes for staying away," remarked the woman in the big rocker. "Just wait a moment."

And then without further warning a strange compound of villainous sounds came from the stuffy little parlor.

"Whirr—whang—zimmy—zimmy—sang—ging—zong—zong—kwang—brrrr!"

The newcomer gasped.

"That's the most awful phonograph I've ever heard," she said.

"That's what the mosquitoes think," said the woman, "and they stay away."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Different.

The woman in the parquet represses a sob, dashes her handkerchief to her eyes and sighs as the heroine on the stage makes one last appeal to her parents to allow her to wed the poor but proud young suitor. But not they sternly refuse, and she announces that she will go out into the cold, cruel world alone!

The woman in the parquet lifts her streaming eyes and beholds two familiar faces over the balcony rail. She stiffens with wrath and says:

"If there isn't my daughter with that young Porefoke chap that I've for hidden the house! I'll say a few things to her tonight when I get her home."—Boston Globe.

A Clever Turn.

An eminent lawyer was once cross-examining a very clever woman, mother of the plaintiff in a breach of promise action, and was completely worsted in the encounter of wits. At the close, however, he turned to the jury and exclaimed: "You saw, gentlemen, that even I was but a child in her hands. What must my client have been?" By this adroit stroke of advocacy he turned his failure into a success.—London Mail.

Out of the Question.

"Here is something very elegant," says the salesman, piloting the lady through the display of beds. "This is our latest design in twin beds and is one of the most popular things we sell. I would suggest that you cannot do better than to buy them."

"Twin beds?" replies the lady. "They are pretty, but—but we haven't twins!"—Chicago Post.

Not Gentle Enough.

Enpeck—I'd like to buy a nice, gentle driving horse.

Dealer—I've got just the horse you want. He is so quiet and gentle a woman can drive him.

Enpeck—But I want one to drive myself. Is that the gentlest you have?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

What He Thought.

"Pa, what do you call a person that reads heads?"

"A phrenologist, my boy."

"Gee! Then na must be one of those things. She felt of my head this afternoon and said right away, 'You've been swimming.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Modern Matrimony.

"But why should she marry in such haste?"

"To repent at leisure, I suppose."

"But why repent?"

"Oh, I don't know. Just to be in the fashion probably."—New York Herald.

Knocking Her Speechless.

"The cave man used to knock the girl he was in love with down with a club and then propose to her."

"Gee! The girls must have been continuous talkers in those days."—Houston Post.

Fortune Maybel.

Wear—Gee! If I kin keep up dis speed till I reaches de pound, me fortune's made.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Clear Warts.

"He has a quick temper, you know," was the excuse given by a friend for a boy's rude act.

"Is he quick at his lessons?" was the question.

"No," was the reply.

"Is he quick at sports?" the questioner went on.

Again the answer was "No."

"Is he quick in obedience?"

"No."

"Well," said the questioner, with a twinkle in his eye. "If he has so little quickness he'd better use it where it will do him some good. It's clear waste to put it on his temper."

What Would You Do

If three good physicians should pronounce your case hopeless. If they should decide that you could not live longer than six weeks. And if you should get well, after using only $12.00 worth of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine, what would you advise a friend in like condition to do?

"I have to thank you for saving my wife's life two years ago. We had continued with the doctor until the third doctor, like the two previous ones, said that nothing could be done for her; that she had better be taken home from the hospital to quietly wait her time, which would not be over 3 weeks at the most. I brought her home, and then I thought probably Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine might help her, so I got a bottle of each and some Nerve and Liver Pills and commenced to give them to her.
We soon seen an improvement, and encouraged by this we continued giving the medicine. We gave her eleven bottles in all of the medicine. She takes it occasionally now if she feels the need. I am in the military, and have been for 14 years."

BASEBALL FOLLOWS THE FLAG

Even in the Superheated Canal Zone
the Game Has Its Charms.

Baseball follows the flag even in the hot tropical possessions of the United States. In the Panama canal zone two leagues played a series of games in the season that recently closed there.

At Colon the sport has taken such a hold on the people that it is proposed to put up a new baseball park prior to the opening of the next league season.

The Panama Railroad company has granted the ground for the purpose, and the business men of Colon are contributing to a fund for the erection of an enclosure and grand stand. The games draw attendances varying from 600 to 1,200 each game.

A Tip to Dr. Elliot.
Oh, Doctor, Doctor Elliot, we're very, very sorry.
To turn your five foot library must be no secret.
For everybody's butting in with two or three pet books.
And you know the adage tried and true about "too many cooks!"

The schoolboy wants "Tom Sawyer" and the "Life of Deadwood Dick." The maiden of romantic age love tales alone would pick.
The housewife, sweats a cookbook you should place upon the shelf.
Oh, everybody knows your choice and makes a list himself!

But don't you let them tease you, your discretion to confound.
Go on! You know your business. Build the shelf of books you choose.
But whisper! Leave one little niche where one small book will fit—No, not the works of Shakespeare nor the Bible—not a bit!

It's not a work of fiction nor an episde—far from that—
But when its title's mentioned every heart goes pit-pat.
Include it in your five foot shelf and you'll be blessed, kind sir.
For, oh, it is the check book to which we here refer!

The Planet Mercury.
Though Mercury is one of the smallest of the planets, it is perhaps the most troublesome to the astronomer.
It lies so close to the sun that it is seen but seldom in comparison with the other great planets. Its orbit is very eccentric, and it experiences disturbances by the attraction of other bodies in a way not yet fully understood. A special difficulty has also been found in the attempt to place Mercury in the weighing scales. We can weigh the whole earth, we can weigh the sun, the moon and even Jupiter and other planets, but Mercury presents difficulties of a peculiar character. Le Verrier, however, succeeded in devising a method of weighing it.

He demonstrated that our earth is attracted by this planet, and he showed how the amount of attraction may be disclosed by observations of the sun, so that from an examination of the observations he made an approximate determination of the mass of Mercury.
Le Verrier's result indicated that the weight of the planet was about the fifteenth part of the weight of the earth.
In other words, if our earth was placed in a balance and fifteen globes, each equal to Mercury, were laid in the other the scales would hang evenly—
"Story of the Heavens."

When Her Turn Came.
The Journal had taken on a "woman editor," whose duty was to look after the "woman's page." Space being scarce in the "local room," a desk was given her in the managing editor's room, directly adjoining. For a week or two no fault was found with her work, but one morning the managing editor said to her:

"Miss Penfield, your style of writing is a little too terse and epigrammatic for the needs of your department. You must study expansion."

"Very well, Mr. Ringgold," she answered. "I will try."
Thereafter her work appeared to give entire satisfaction, for there was no further criticism. About six months later, however, the managing editor after a morning spent in working at his desk suddenly wheeled in his chair and said:

"Miss Penfield, I want a wife. I want you. Will you marry me?"
"Mr. Ringgold," she responded, with a mocking smile, "that is rather terse and epigrammatic. Don't you think you ought to study expansion a little?"

New Use For the Gramophone.
It has been left to the managing board of the Moscow, Windau and Rybinsk railway in Russia to turn the gramophone to practical use, for the board has announced its intention to set up a huge gramophone at the Moscow station of the line, so that the arrival and departure of every train can be announced clearly to the travelling public. At the same time the gramophone will sound the bell thrice, as is usual, before a train starts on its journey. As over 70 per cent of the people of European Russia are unable to read or write, the ordinary time tables are not of the smallest use to them, and the gramophone referred to has a splendid future before it if only it can be made to speak clearly and loudly enough.

"THE WASPS OF WAR"

French Military Official's Characterization of Aeroplanes.

HOW ARMY MEN REGARD THEM

Colonel H. O. S. Holstead Points Out Value of Wright and Blériot Machines if Used in Swarms—Valuable Adjunct to Troops in Many Ways.

Warlike efficiency of the aeroplane is at the moment a much discussed subject among army men. It is admitted by many that the possibilities in aerial warfare have yet to be developed, but recent achievements by Louis Blériot and Orville Wright have given rise to considerable speculation. There are apparently few officers who are prepared to assert that modern warfare would be revolutionized by the introduction of a fleet of Blériot mono-planes or Wright biplanes. But there are many who go so far as to say that such a fleet would be of value to any army.

Speaking of Blériot's flight across the English channel, General Brun, the new French minister of war, recently characterized the aeroplane as "the wasp of war."
"As soon as it is perfect," he declared, "the French army will be provided with a swarm of these wasps." The figure, according to officers of the regular United States army, was well chosen. It illustrates, they say, exactly what the mode of aerial warfare is likely to be.

There is plainly less skepticism among army men concerning air craft than formerly. Many have come to the conclusion that it is high time to consider seriously the adaptability of aeroplanes to military purposes. It is the signal corps, of course, that has taken hold of the matter officially, but interest has spread to every branch of the service.

Colonel Holstead a Believer.
It is the opinion of Colonel H. O. S.
Holstead, adjutant general of the department of the east, that the aero-plane will play an important part in the warfare of the future. "I am not an expert," he said the other day—"in fact, I have never seen an aeroplane in a real test. Nevertheless I am convinced that our government ought to be liberal in its appropriations for aeronautics. There is no doubt that the aeroplane, even in its present stage of development, would be of service in time of war."

"I think that comparison of an aero-plane to a wasp is a good one. It suggests what could be done with a fleet of these craft. For purposes of recon-noitering and scout work a single aeroplane would have its place, but with a whole fleet of them an army would be able to do considerable damage."

"Imagine, for example, what might be done if they were to be employed in an attack on New York city, or any city, for that matter. With one aero-plane going at the rate of forty miles an hour it would be difficult to de-much harm in the way of dropping explosives or inflammable materials down upon our heads, but with a fleet of them it would be different. It would then be the same as a volley fired by a troop of soldiers. Some of the shots would be almost sure to take effect."

An Attack by Sea.
"Now, suppose a fleet of warships preparing an attack on New York harbor, came equipped with a lot of these wasps, as they have been called.
While still out of range of the harbor guns they could launch their aeroplanes and keep them hovering over our fortifications, with more than an even chance of doing us considerable damage. Anyway, they would make things uncomfortable for the noncom-batants of the city. As for the fortifications, the fleet might succeed in dropping explosives so as to strike our magazines and storehouses, and you can readily imagine what that would mean."

"All this would be accomplished more easily with aeroplanes of the Wright or Blériot type than with dirigibles, because they would furnish less of a target for our guns. Besides, they are safer. A dirigible is always in danger of a spark from its own motor, which would be sufficient to explode the gas that supports it."

Harassed by a Torpedo Boat.
"Not long ago I took part in maneuvers and was delegated to the army of defense. Every night the attacking fleet had a way of sending out one of those little torpedo boats, which would come sneaking in close to shore and give us all a scare. It became necessary to call out the garrison at all hours just because of that one torpedo boat, and you can see that after a few days the army of defense was in sore need of a good night's rest. The men had been kept on the qui vive almost constantly, while the attacking force was lumbering soundly well out of our reach."

"That is the sort of tactics, it seems to me, that aeroplanes would be able to carry out effectively. They could worry a whole army, if they did not bring else. It would be a sort of hit and run game. They would be like a man's wasps about a man's head."
"If they wanted to, they could disregard the rules of warfare and destroy a city without warning. And there is not much doubt in my mind that the rules would be disregarded by the average army if the destruction of a certain city seemed advisable. The officer in command would no doubt find a good military reason for it."

—New York Post.

GREAT BASEBALL ENTHUSIAST

Career of Harry C. Pulliam, Late National League President.

Harry Clay Pulliam, president of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, who recently died in New York by shooting himself, was born in Scottsville, Ky., thirty-nine years ago, and soon after finishing his college course he went to Louisville to take up newspaper work. He served part of the time in the capacity of city editor, but was also interested in baseball. In 1868 he resigned as city editor of the Louisville Commercial to accept the presidency of the Louisville club. Prior to that he had served a year in the Kentucky legislature.

In Louisville Pulliam formed the acquaintance of Barney Dreyfuss, now the owner of the Pittsburgh club. They were associated in baseball for a number of years in Louisville and Pittsburg. Dreyfuss became president of the Louisville club, and Pulliam became his secretary and treasurer.

When Dreyfuss got hold of the Pittsburg club and transferred his players there he took Pulliam with him.
One of Pulliam's greatest "discoveries" in baseball was finding Hans Wagner, the best player in the game today. Wagner was playing in Paterson, N. J., at the time, and Pulliam went there on the recommendation of a friend and looked Wagner over. He signed him to a contract and took him to Louisville.

Pulliam stayed with the Pittsburgh club until 1902, when he was elected president of the National league, succeeding N. E. Young. About the time of his accession to the presidency peace was brought about between the National league and the American league, which had been at war.

Pulliam proved to be an energetic official for the National league and with considerable executive ability.
During his regime many vexatious problems have arisen, and he always was active and conscientious in dealing with such matters. He was anything but a figurehead president. One of the hardest problems he had to deal with was the famous New York-Chicago game of last year, which ended in a row at the Polo grounds in New York and was afterward played over on the order of the board of directors.

Once or twice efforts were made at the league annual meetings to oust Pulliam from the presidency, his administration not suiting all hands, but he had too strong support among the magnates, and the opposition to him dwined away. He was high strung and plain spoken, but impartial, and his honesty of purpose always has been recognized.

While he was in office the National league came to enjoy greater prosperity than it ever had before, the existence of two big leagues operating under a peace compact being partly responsible for the prosperity. Some of it, however, was due to his own efforts for the welfare of the game. He always had been a stickler for having his umpires treated with the respect he considered was due them and stuck to his umpires through thick and thin.

WOMAN TRAIL BLAZER.

Exploit of Mrs. James A. Cruikshank in the White Mountains.

A slender little woman—Mrs. James A. Cruikshank of New York—recently completed a feat which no one of the many mountaineers who have for years explored the White mountains has ever attempted—the blazing of a new and easily accessible trail from Mount Field to Mount Willey, according to a dispatch from Bretton Woods, N. H.

Accompanied by her husband, who was always in the rear and only present as a guard, Mrs. Cruikshank walked, crawled or climbed over fifteen miles of heavily wooded mountain country, three miles of which had never been invaded previously and most of which was such as to test the powers of the most experienced of mountaineers.

Although Mount Field and Mount Willey were already the terminals of trails from other mountains, they have never been connected by a path until the other night.

Mrs. Cruikshank holds a record for mountain climbing in Canada.

Her Sorrow.
"P-papa," sobbed small Sadie, "my canary is d-dead."
"Never mind, dear," replied her father; "I'll buy you another one."
"Oh, I'm calm now," rejoined Sadie,
"but when I first saw the poor little thing I cried like a child."—Exchange.

After the Race.
"So your horse was distanced, was he?"
"Yes."
"Did you have anything on him?"
"I thought I had a jockey on him, but it seems I didn't."

COUNTY.

Mardela.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hambery, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Dulaney, of Baltimore, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Daugherty last Sunday.

A large number attended the Fair at Salisbury Thursday and report a good time.

Quite a number of guests are at the hotel this week.

Poetry in the Store Business.

In the little town of Daguschahonda, Pa., the hardware merchant there recently received the following by mail: "Mr. ZIMMERMAN: We bought a cookin' stove from you 16 years this day makin' time. She is callin' the 924 Elizabeth Good Luck. She has horse shoes on the oven doors—kin we git fire-backs for this stove—its a cookin' stove—we never did but we expect we kin—if we can git just one more it will do me, for I am 60 years old now and I will never see it wear out. Answer soon as you kin, cause I am comin' to town when apples is ripe.

Respectfully yours,

JOHN WILHELM."

Mr. Zimmerman answered and said that he had fire-backs that he would be glad to sell—that he sold plenty of stoves but had little or no calls for fire-backs. Two weeks later Mr. Wilhelm, accompanied by his son, walked into Zimmerman's store and said: "Well here we are—we drove 30 miles this morning to git that fire-back for mother's stove."

Mr. Zimmerman gave them the fire-back, they paid him 90 cents for it and left the store. Their next move was to lay in a supply of "the stuff that made Kentucky famous"—about three hours later they returned "beautifully loaded"—bought a whip and started for home with their horses on the run. All went well until they struck the curve in the road at the grist mill pond, here the wagon upset, throwing both men into the pond. Wielding hands soon "fished them out"—the old gentleman with water dripping from his garments thanked his benefactors and by way of explanation recited these lines:

"Twenty miles we have drove To git a back for mother's stove. Fourteen dollars it has cost. Now—horses—wagon all are lost."

This little incident is of peculiar local interest this week for the reason that Dorman & Smyth the Hardware Co. of this city are giving away one of their celebrated cook stoves at our county fair.

This stove is exhibited in Dorman & Smyth's New Steel Exhibition Hall on the Fair grounds.

This substantial building contains a varied and complete exhibit of those things (most interesting to housekeepers and farmers) usually found in first class hardware stores.

Prominent among the other articles exhibited you will find the identical Oliver Chilled Plow exhibited at the World's Fair in Chicago, Ill., 1893. This plow was personally presented to Mr. Dorman at the close of the Chicago Fair by Mr. James Oliver.

The great Majestic Range also occupies a position of prominence along with the celebrated Cinderella Steel Ranges and Air Tight Stoves.

Dorman & Smyth's Permanent Steel Exhibition Building is one of the live attractions on the Fair grounds—it is "midway on the pike"—going or coming. You won't miss it.

They have souvenirs for everybody in addition to the free coupons for the Good Luck Stove Drawing.

THE SALISBURY FAIR
A REMARKABLE SUCCESS.

The Public School system of Wilcomico County.

The Maryland Agriculture station had an exceptionally interesting display which was of particular interest to the many farmers who visited the grounds. It consisted of grain, grasses and various seeds grown in Maryland and displayed to good advantage the natural resources of the State along this line.

THE MIDWAY.

On the "Midway" the attractions were unique and novel. The peanut vender and the red lemonade seller vied with each other in their efforts to attract attention and dispose of their stuff.

The Fat Lady was on hand—part of the time, the balance she was up the road stranded, but the happy-go-lucky crowds paid to see her just the same.

The Salome dancing girl and the Mermaid were on hand as usual and the educated horse—though far from a Princess Trixie—amused the moving crowds.

CITY OF MISFORTUNE.

Former Disaster in Acapulco—City Wrecked by Mexican Earthquake. Little Acapulco, the Mexican city with its 5,000 inhabitants which was antitically destroyed by the recent earthquake in Mexico, has achieved world-wide fame as a city of misfortune.

Twice this year has it been the scene of a catastrophe. On Feb. 15 300 persons were burned to death when the Flores theater was set on fire by a moving picture machine and destroyed at a special performance in honor of Governor Flores of the state of Guerrero.

Several times before the city has been damaged by severe earthquakes. In fact, the state of Guerrero is known as the home of seismic disturbances. Its severest shock occurred in 1907.

The whole region suffered, and Chilpancingo, the capital city, was practically destroyed. In 1908 Chilpancingo, a city of some 15,000 inhabitants, was badly damaged, and March 27 of the same year that city was again shaken, completing the ruin of the former shock.

Nevertheless, Acapulco, beset by tropical perils and cursed by a hot, unhealthy climate, is one of the most beautiful spots in the world. Its name, a corruption and abbreviation of Aqua Pulchra (beautiful waters), rings true. The coast at this point is sheer cliff. Not till the steamer is almost upon it does the bluff walled, blue channel to Acapulco harbor appear.

Acapulco harbor is one of the finest in the world. It lies 231 miles southwest of Mexico City, of which it was formerly the seaport. It had been for centuries the chief center of commerce with the Philippine Islands as well as with China and India. By pack trail the merchandise went overland from Acapulco to Mexico City and points beyond. Then came the railroad through from the capital to San Blas, and with it departed the commercial importance of Acapulco.

Chilpancingo, with a population of 12,000, is the largest city in Guerrero. Chilpancingo, the capital, is a small town in the center of the state, about 200 miles from Mexico City and about 110 miles from the coast. It was well built and lighted by electricity. Its population was about 7,000.

HUNDRED YEARS OF PEACE.

Canada Wants a Celebration to Teach the Older Nations a Lesson.

The proposals of the association which is being formed in Ottawa, Canada, for the celebration of the hundred years of peace following the war of 1812 have been submitted to and approved by Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is proposed that the celebration be national in character and form an object lesson in peace to the older nations.

The Dominion and United States governments will be asked to contribute to finance the proposition, which will require more money than for the Quebec tercentenary.

HOLLOW TREE TELEGRAPH.

Explorer Solves Secret of Long Range Communication in Colombia.

Captain Whittem recently arrived in London after years of exploration in southeastern Colombia. Among his discoveries is a secret system of telegraphy employed by the natives.

Hollow trees are selected of various thicknesses, which give out high or low notes when struck. The sound travels from thirty to forty miles.

No code is employed, but the natives recognize the words intended from the different musical notes.

HARMONY REIGNS SUPREME AT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Hon. Frank E. Williams Nominated For State Comptroller—Disfranchisement Amendment Made the Real Issue of Campaign.

Without resorting to any of the methods so frequently employed by political managers to awaken enthusiasm at party conventions, but impressed with the solemnity and the importance of the work they were about to undertake, the Republicans of Maryland, in State Convention assembled, proceeded Wednesday in a business-like and impressive manner to prepare for the impending conflict, the outcome of which means so much to the electorate of Maryland.

As the standard-bearer of the party it named Frank Edward Williams of Cecil county, one of the ablest and best equipped men in the State, a fearless fighter and a fair foe. The nomination for State Comptroller came to him unsolicited and undesired, he having no political aspirations and being wedded to his adopted profession of journalism. But, like a good soldier, he responded to the call of duty, and now that he has consented to lead his party, he may be depended upon to do his part. He will be found in the forefront, where the fighting is hottest and when the battle is over his opponents will admit their foe was worthy of their steel.

WORK OF THE CONVENTION.

Frank Edward Williams was nominated by the Republican State Convention for Comptroller.

The platform makes the disfranchisement amendment the paramount issue.

The bill of the Just Representation League was adopted by the Convention as its own.

Governor Crothers and Attorney General Straus were scored for refusing to pass on the legality of the black lines on ballots.

Ex-Senator Day withdrew the contesting delegation from Howard county and the Blakeney delegation was seated by the Convention.

Strong speeches were made by leading Republicans attacking the methods and schemes of the Democratic organization.

Held Anniversary.

The one hundred and seventy-sixth anniversary of Green Hill Protestant Episcopal Church was celebrated on Tuesday of this week. A large concourse of people was present from Wi-comico and Somerset counties. Bishop Adams came over from Easton and accompanied by Rev. David Howard, drove to Green Hill. The Bishop preached and Rev. Mr. Howard assisted in the services. After service dinner was served under the big trees surrounding the church.

This old church, which is one of the interesting landmarks on the Wicom-ico river, was erected in 1733 of bricks brought from England. It is now one of the oldest churches in Maryland.
The communion set is said to have been presented by the Queen of England.

Dry Dock Lowers Record.

A large number of Salisburyans attended the Easton Fair on Thursday.
It is stated that the attendance Thursday was larger than it has been for twenty years. Dry Dock, owned by Mr. D. C. Armstrong, of this city, failed to win in the 2.15 pace, but he succeeded in lowering his record to 2:12, which is two seconds faster than his previous record.

Death Of Mrs. Linnet.

Mrs. Daisy Simms Linnet, aged 39 years, wife of Mr. Peter Linnet, and daughter of the late Jesse and Leah A.
Simms, died Tuesday, August 24th, of tuberculosis. The interment was made Thursday afternoon at Siloam.

MEN NOT INTERESTED. SAYS LOCAL WRITER.

Advises The Building Up Of The Local Company Of Maryland State Troops And Points Out The Need Of Enlistment.

To the Editor.
For some time I have noticed in this community a certain lack of interest in the welfare of the company of the Maryland National Guard located here. There is rather a wide spread apathy towards enlisting, towards performing what is clearly a patriotic duty.

The Militia deserves all the support and encouragement that the people can give it, for in the last analysis, it is the only thing that lies between them and the necessity of maintaining a large standing army. (The possibility of domestic disorder is one that must be considered as ever present.) Again, great calamities, like the Baltimore fire, show the need of an organized body of armed men that may be quickly mobilized. It is certainly neither desirable nor economical for the National Government to supply these demands, for apart from the enormous expenses of keeping a standing army adequate for these two duties alone, the States' appealing to Washington for the regulation of these purely internal affairs would be another step towards that centralization, that overshadowing of state authority, which is all too apparently characterizing this age.) Maryland is wisely spending her money in arming and equipping the Militia. She thus has an instrument by which her authority may be enforced without appealing to Washington. She could adopt no course that will keep her integrity clearer, or that will better prevent her being merged into a mere district for governmental purposes like the ancient provinces of France.
Furthermore, the service that the Militia rendered the state at Frostburg and at the Baltimore fire was worth more than the money expended since the civil war in its maintenance. We believe that this statement may be proved in dollars and cents.

Again apart from these duties that the Militia must perform, it stands as the real heart of the National defense.
The United States has attained its growth singularly free from foreign complications. This immunity has been largely due to our advantage of geographical position. But the improvements in transportation have to a certain extent minimized these natural barriers. The time must come sooner or later when the Nation must go to war. To reach any other conclusion is to deny the whole course of history.

Many are claiming just now that arbitration will stop all war. The sane advocates of arbitration, and all sane men advocate arbitration, admit that it should not apply where questions of national honor or interest are at stake.
It is only claimed that arbitration can settle a dispute according to the law existing at the time. This is all that it can ever hope to do. To illustrate.
In 1775, the colonies went to war with England over the question of taxation without representation. If this dispute had been referred to arbitrators, the decision must have been in favor of England and the United States of America would not exist; for the law of the time recognized taxation without representation in a dozen instances. And so we could point to many great steps forward, epochs of history, which in the very nature of things could not have been attained by arbitration.

And therefore, since war must come,
the Nation must be prepared to fight.
And indeed this very preparedness is one of the very best guarantees of peace. But every American would rue the day when the National Government undertook to maintain a standing army adequate for the defense of the Nation, even as it is now viewing with the Governments of Europe in building a Navy.

No this duty should be and is preformed by the Militia. And therefore, we urge that it should be a patriotic duty to join the Militia. It should be regarded as a privilege that should be most highly cherished. We believe that the Americanism of Salisbury will more closely resemble that sterling brand to which the Nation owes its birth when there is a long waiting list of the very best men in the community ready and anxious to enlist in

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY PARTY HELD AT NANTICOKE.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Walter Give Elaborate Function To Celebrate The Birthday Of Their Daughter
And Mrs. Walter's Mother.

Both the older and younger members of society were very pleasantly entertained Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. J. Walter, it being the sixteenth birthday of their daughter, Miss Bernice and the seventy-eighth birthday of Mrs. Julia Harlington, Mrs. Walter's mother. The older guests were received by Mrs.
Walter, Mrs. Harington and Mrs. C.
W. Harington, while Miss Bernice was assisted by Misses Inez Watson and Alice Travers. Miss Annie Harington was in the dining-room, assisted by Mrs. Frank Tabling, Mrs. Agnes Watson and Misses Carrie and Sadie Turner.

The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and potted plants. The color scheme being red and white. The porches and lawn were lighted with Japanese lanterns.

At half past ten the guests were invited into the dining-room, where refreshments consisting of fruit, cake and ices, were served. The guests for Mrs. Harington were Mesdames John Thompson, of St. Louis, Mary Crosby, of Philadelphia, Mary Langrall, of Tyaskin, Mrs. Crockett, of Baltimore, A. F.
Turner, E. S. S. Turner, Agnes Watson, C. W. Harington, Jessie Travers, and Miss Bernice's guests were Misses Nellie and Rachel Robertson, Audrey, Geneva and Gladys Messick and Ida Hughes, of Trinity; Clara Culver, of Missouri; Louise Lansdale and Mamie Siddham, of Baltimore; Grace Willing, of Tyaskin; Katharine Post, of Vienna; Ruth Kennerly, of Salisbury; Hilda Watson, Alice Toadvine, Blanche, Nellie and Alice Travers. Annie Conway, Nellie Heath, Inez Watson and Ruth Messick, Messrs. Chester Robertson, Hobart Hughes, Maynard and Glen Messick, of Trinity; J. E. Willing, Jr. and Paul Conway, of Baltimore, Elwood Toadvine, Bernice Burton, Ernest Taylor and Winter Graham, of Tyaskin; Fred Luey, of Baltimore; Fred Jester, of Jestersville; Will and Everett White, Vaughn Williams, Woodford Walter, Carroll Watson, Ned Travers, Percy Tignor, Russell Heath, Clifton Street and Russell Messick.

Both Mrs. Harington and Mrs. Walter received many pretty gifts. One of Miss Walter's was a handsome gold watch, the gift of her parents.

Fishing Party—No fish.

A very pleasant fishing party, without the fish, was given last Wednesday. Those who indulged were Dr. F.
J. Barclay and wife, Mr. Chas. H. Lloyd and wife, Messrs. Joseph Sheeley, Carl Schuler, Marvin Evans, Homer Dickerson and Misses Louise Gunby, Ruth Gunby, Ora Disharoon, Rebecca Smith, Mary Collier, and Carrie Forrester. The fishing was greatly demoralized by a few of the ladies, who were more anxious to feed the fish than to catch them, consequently it was necessary to pull up anchor and make for shore, after which they all soon recuperated and spent the rest of the day playing bridge.

the local company.

Again we urge, that if the matter is seriously considered, if the great good that the Militia is doing us all is thought of, the apathy towards it will be dissolved.

Time will not allow us to dwell on the educational value of the service or the pleasures that the annual encampment affords. To the poor man, it offers a healthful and refreshing vacation once a year, a trip away from home, to new and unknown places with all expenses paid, and $1.25 a day and upwards besides. To the man in better circumstances, it offers the inestimable benefit of self denial and discipline for a high ideal, of marching shoulder to shoulder with the men whom the law and the Gospel says are our equals, of sleeping and living in the open, of offering the body those pleasant hardships which generations of fighting ancestors have made it crave. To all it offers the opportunity of doing a great service to the Country, which should not be the last motive for true Americans.

Application for enlistment should be made to Capt. H. Winter Owens, or to 1st Sgt. J. D. Carey, Recruiting Sergeant.

Yours truly,
August 28, 1909. A. W. Woodcock

COUNTY SCHOOLS SEPT. 6, CITY SCHOOLS SEPT. 20.

Because The New Buildings Will Not Be Completed In Time The Opening Of Schools In Salisbury Will Be Postponed.

With the exception of the Salisbury City public schools, all of the schools in Wicomico county will open for the Fall term, Monday, September 6th.
There are a few, however, that failed to maintain the required legal average last year and these will not be opened until October 4th. Because the new decided at the last meeting of the School Board to postpone the opening of the city schools until that date. All of the pupils will be expected to report at the old buildings on September 6th for grading so that the teachers can report to the county superintendent the number of pupils in each grade.

At this meeting Prof. Albert V.
Collins, a former instructor of science and mathematics at Frederick College, was appointed instructor of mathematics in the Wicomico High School.
Miss Maude A. Bishop, of Everett, Pa., was appointed instructor in the Commercial Course, and Prof. T. V. Fetters, of Cumberland, was appointed instructor in the Commercial department in the Sharptown High School.
All of these teachers have had excellent experience and come to this county exceedingly well recommended.

CHURCH DEBT PAID.

Riverside Edifice Remodeled And Appropriate Services Held Last Sunday.

For four weeks or more the Riverside M. E. Church was closed for needed repairs and was reopened August 22.

Sunday School at 1:30 p. m. was the first service held and this was attended with unusual interest. At 2:30 there was a praise service led by Mr. Chris Phillips, which was a preparatory service for the one to follow it. Promptly at 3:30 Rev. Henry Dulany, of Fruitland, made his appearance, and the church was packed to its utmost capacity, waiting for the message from this servant of God. The first message was a call for a collection to meet the expenses, which was cheerfully responded to by the people and friends of the congregation. Never in all my church work have I found such loyal, sacrificing people as at Riverside. They are not only true to their church and willing to make sacrifices for it, but they are also loyal to their pastor, which is a great aid to him in his work.

I want to express my greatest thanks to the good people of Salisbury and Fruitland for their liberal help in this our time of need. I trust this little church, with its beautiful new tower and bell to toll the hour of service, will ever stand as the beacon light to west Salisbury. All the old windows have been replaced with new ones, and, with one exception, these were all taken and paid for by individual members. That one was taken by the Young People's Society, which has done much to help beautify the church. The Ladies Aid Society, the last to mention, but not the least, did its part in purchasing a new carpet to replace the old one.

But I must come back to the second message. At 4 p. m. Rev. Dulany announced his text: "Go wash and be clean." This was one of the most helpful sermons that I have had the pleasure of hearing. Surely the Lord was in this place.

At 7:30, Rev. John Bunting, pastor of Mardela charge, preached a very able sermon from Matt. 25:15. At the close of this sermon one man fell at the altar and was happily saved and many more wept like children.

Thus the day closed with perhaps the greatest victory to the Riverside Church in its history—all debts fully met and one soul saved. Praise the Lord!

Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. S. Nubbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes, "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Sold by all druggists.

Oyster Season At Hand.

Now that the month of September is approaching the thoughts of the epicure dwell on the oyster, that luscious bivalve of the Chesapeake Bay, which has a reputation from the Atlantic to the Pacific for its fine quality and flavor. What the approaching season will bring forth is hard to tell, but from reports, there will be a good supply of marketable stock.

It is claimed by those thoroughly acquainted with the business that the present supply in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries promises to be larger and of finer quality than during last season, as a great many medium-sized oysters, which were left on the beds, have had chance to mature, and these will constitute the principal catch of the season.

The state law for the catching of oysters in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries is as follows: "Beginning September 1, tonging is permitted in the waters adjacent to the following counties: Kent, Queen Anne, Talbot, Somerset and Anne Arundel. In Dorchester and Wicomico counties tonging is permitted from September 15, and in Calvert and St. Mary's counties it will start October 1. In Somerset county dredging is permitted October 15, while in other counties November 1 will be the beginning of the dredging season." By an agreement between the States of Maryland and Virginia, dredging starts in the Potomac River October 15th, while no dredging is allowed by law in the Chesapeake Bay until November 1st.

Ollie Harris, the young man who was taken to the Baltimore City Jail from Rockville, Md., Sunday afternoon for safe keeping; Tuesday afternoon broke down and confessed that he had killed Henson Poole, his companion, in the latter's home near Travilah, Md., early on the morning of July 22. The confession was made without any hope of freedom being held out to the prisoner, in the presence of Captain of Detectives Pumphrey and the authorities of Montgomery county.

Skeletons In Excavation.

Fifteen skeletons, lying together in such a position as to indicate hasty burial, and three English copper coins, bearing the date 1723, found with the skeletons during the excavating for the United States Medical School Hospital, near the banks of the Potomac river, bring to light, it is believed, some Indian or piratical tragedy of early American days.

As authentic history sheds no illuminating ray on the case, the finger of suspicion wavers in its pointing, looking first toward the red men, who stole silently along the wooded Potomac banks a century and a half ago, next to a mythical pirate crew which is believed to have made its rendezvous on the Potomac, and lastly to a mutiny infested slave trading vessel. But the bones may remain forever as silent as they were in the grave.

Not matter how long you have suffered, Foley's Kidney Remedy will help you. Mrs. S. L. Bowen, of Wayne, W. Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." It will cure you. Sold by all druggists.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

People For Tomorrow, "Paul's Letter To The Church At Corinth"—Discussed By Local Writer.

The letter to the Corinthian Church was written by Paul while at Ephesus. The church at Corinth was established during the latter part of the second missionary journey, and was considered in our lesson for August 1st. It was possibly four years now since Paul left it, bringing Aquila and Priscilla with him as far as Ephesus, on his way to Jerusalem. Paul knew the needs of the church and his letter to them is very plain.

This letter is one of the most complete guides to culture in existence. The part of the letter taken as our lesson is Paul's description of Christian love. Charity, in this letter, is considered as love, as charity without being the fruit of love is not true charity. We are here taught that love is the completion, the supplying of all the efforts of life to the regeneration of man. Love is that which completes the life's work, which makes all things harmonious; the great force that cements the good of mankind and rejects the evil. It transforms at once the works and the worker from a lower to a higher and a more perfect plane, until, by love divine, they elevate unto the fulness of life and life, which, in righteous judgment, founded upon love itself, and free grace, by love, the workers of love are adjudged righteous.

Like life, with which it is so closely related, love cannot be easily defined, but we can give its attributes, and using them, describe it in an object lesson. Light is hard to define, but the chemist with his prism will take a ray of light, and making a spectrum of it, will show all the colors of the rainbow, and find each band of color in the spectrum in its place. And Christian love may be so analyzed, and its component parts studied. Divine inspiration, through Paul, is the prism, and he gives us the result of the study. One band in this spectrum is:

Patience. We know how patient true love is, it "suffereth long," never forsakes, but "suffers in patience."

Kindness. There is kindness and kindness. Kindness of policy, of name, of good-breeding, kindness of fear, but the kindness of love is a kindness absorbing the being of the donor in making up this great force, love.

Generosity. "Love envieth not." It does not desire preference, but prefers the object of love: prefers in honor, and does not envy, or desire to destroy.

Humility. "Vaunteth not," "is not puffed up." Love contains self in its proper position; prevents unwarranted pretensions to station, and eliminates selfish arrogance, the most unloving and unlovable trait of a life devoid of love.

Courtesy. "Doth not behave itself unseemly." Politeness springs from love: it is the most prominent mark of culture. The degree of culture manifests the degree of love. Courtesy is the love that never forgets that all human life is of the same fountain of life.

Good Temper. "Is not easily provoked." Temper is a component of character. An ill-temper, a quick temper, cannot be lightly considered in character formation. It is an agent of destruction. It begets ill-nature, and sows thorns in the path of mankind. It is the rock upon which culture goes to pieces. "A fool cannot become angry, a wise man will not." Wisdom is grounded in love.

Purity. "Thinketh no evil." Out of the fullness of the heart, the mouth speaketh. If love is in the heart, thought of others in all their acts toward us and before us will be pure, and will not impute questionable motives. Love rejoiceth not in iniquity, but seeks truth; despises iniquity and welcomes truth and light.

Eternal. Love is eternal. It has existed as an attribute of God, the Father, the Son, and Holy Spirit from all time, and will go into all eternity. It is the link between God and man, the force without which we will be empty, void, and unfit for the glorious estate, unto which we have been made partakers.

The chemist uses his spectrum to classify substances. By placing a substance in the line of the ray of light passing through it, it will absorb or intensify the bands of light in the spectrum peculiar to this substance alone, and by this spectrum of a substance, it is grouped or classified, as belonging to a certain class of substances or matter. So every life, if put before the ray of light from God's wisdom and truth, as it effects this spectrum of love, changing here and there the colors, our lives will be classified, the degree of our love made plain, and as love is the fulfilling of the law, we can know our position before that law.

Our golden text says: "And now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love. We have the greatest love of all to draw from and to pattern after, even the love of God, for God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him may have eternal life, and this love abideth with us. It is the true love that worketh the will of God." C. B.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds Of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed. Have too much to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Salisbury citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

William H. Nicholson, 400 Locust street, Salisbury, Md. "I was troubled the greater part of last summer by my back and kidneys. I was in pain all the time and I could not sit down or stand still without having a severe backache. In the morning when I got up, I was lame and stiff and it really seemed as though I would be unable to endure the misery much longer. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I obtained a supply at White & Leonard's drug store. I used two boxes and since then I have not been bothered by my back or kidneys. I willingly give my testimonial in favor of this excellent remedy.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

That Little Dollar.

An exchange writes as follows about the dollar which its subscribers owe it:

"Say, Mr. Subscriber, have you forgotten that little dollar you owe us on your subscription? It may seem small to you—only one dollar—but when you take them all (several hundred) and put them together it makes quite a snug sum, and looks as big as a house to us. And we have trusted you a whole year for it. It takes time, money and paper to send statements, so why not send us the dollar without a statement and stop fooling?—Bless your life we don't want to lose you, so attend to this right away, for we are losing money on you if you don't pay for your paper, just the same as you would be losing money if you didn't get pay for what you had to sell, which means your work and investment. We will answer this notice by the end of August. We are going to take down every name. Come, surprise us for once. Don't wait to be dunned for the bill."

What's In McClure's.

Lieutenant Shackleton, whose remarkable Antarctic expedition discovered new lands and made the closest approach to the South Pole yet achieved by man, begins his story of the expedition, entitled "Farthest South," in the September McClure's. President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard describes the great success of the new Canadian labor legislation under the title of "The Best Way to Prevent Industrial Warfare." Sir Harry Johnston, the English scientist, gives "An Englishman's Impressions of American Rule in Cuba." George Kibbe Turner discusses the current temperance question from a new standpoint in "Beer and the City Liquor Problem." Jesse Macy, on "The Efficiency of English Courts," and E. T. Brewster on "The Fly—The Disease of the House," contribute two interesting and notable articles. The fiction includes stories by Percival Gibbon, John Fleming Wilson, and Kenneth Brown, and there are poems by Florence Wilkinson and Willa Sibert Cather.

Salisbury Building & Loan and Banking
ASSOCIATION

The Building & Loan Department, with its paid-up capital stock of $134,500.00, makes loans, secured by mortgages, to be paid back in weekly installments of 50c, 40c, 50c, $1.00 or $2.00 per week, to suit borrower; and has been doing a popular and successful business since 1897.

The Banking Department was added in 1902 under authority granted by the General Assembly of Maryland of that year, to set apart $25,000.00 of the Association's capital stock for banking purposes, receives money on deposits, makes loans on commercial paper, enters into such business transactions as conservative banks ordinarily do, and earnestly solicits the patronage of its friends and the general public. College Boys Growing. Measurements by scientists bring out the interesting fact that the American college athletes of today is a much larger man than his father was and is constantly growing. The average height of the Yale athlete today is an inch and a half more than it was five years ago; he is twenty-two pounds heavier, with three inches more chest development and forty-two cubic inches more lung capacity; the average height of the Yale athlete is now 5 feet 9.9 inches and their weight exactly 170.5 pounds. At an examination of Harvard athletes Professor Sargent found that they were an inch taller and from four to five pounds heavier than were the students of thirty years ago.

Jarless Automobile Wheel. George Freisen of North Yakima, Wash., has completed an automobile wheel which, it is believed, will do away with the jar, at present a bad feature of the pneumatic tire, and also lessen the expense. The invention is the product of two years' work and absorbs all the jar of the machine. Freisen has applied for a patent.

Plan to Cure Fear of Lightning. A German has discovered an easy way to take away a child's fear of lightning. He struck some matches and compared the sudden flaring of the light to the lightning without. The child got intensely interested and has never since been afraid of a thunder-storm.

No Accent. Many stories are told of a former Canadian bishop who had passed his youth in Scotland, but flattered himself that not a hint of his origin could be gained from his speech or manner. One day he met a Scotchman, to whom he said at last abruptly, "Hoo lang hae ye been here?" "About six years," was the reply. "Hoot, mon!" said the bishop sharply. "Why hae ye na lost yer accent. Like myself?"

It Didn't Work. "I haven't anything fit to wear," she said. "Neither have I," he replied. "Let's stay at home." Taken up thus, there was nothing for her to do but hurry and get ready.—Buffalo Express.

"After You, Alphonse." In days of old, when Bobbitt was easy to be chivalry That pride of Spanish chivalry Went out to do and did! He called his knights of Aragon, He called the peasants poor, And then he quite successfully Cleaned up the turbaned Moor.

In those old days a man thought naught Of joining in a strife. Because his king had summoned him He gladly gave his life. But times have changed. Now people want— Yes, even in Castile— To be assured their sacrifice Will aid the common weal.

Oh, where is Spanish chivalry? Alphonse doth lament. With other things, like rights divine, Some time ago it went Away till now the common folks. Who used to gladly die Because their masters told them to. Are asking, "Tell us—why?"

Alphonse is a father now. He ought to understand That other folks have children, too. Throughout his native land. And, though he shoots those children down, I'll bet their last cry haunts. And he can see no humor in "We're after you, Alphonse!" —New York World.

TO CULL IMMIGRANTS

Missouri to Become a Pioneer in a Big Problem.

THE DISTRIBUTING OF ALIENS.

How the Bullion State Will Induce Foreigners of the Right Kind to Settle Within Her Confines—Value of the Scheme.

Missouri has decided to take its pick of the immigration coming to the United States. Ever since Governor Hadley took his seat the state authorities have been pondering over ways and means to attract a desirable class of immigrants to build up the waste places and put more value into the farm holdings. The Missouri State Society of New York has also been working at the other end of the line to accomplish the same object. Last winter these same patriotic sons of Missouri, who make their homes in New York, but who have not lost interest in the welfare of their native state, suggested that if a live, energetic agent were stationed at Ellis Island, where the great bulk of immigrants disembark, great good would be likely to come of it. Now, after a conference with Commissioner Keefe of the United States immigration bureau, Commissioner Curran of the Missouri immigration bureau has announced that the state board will establish an agency at the immigrant station at Ellis Island. The purpose is to work in co-operation with the federal bureau in inducing as many immigrants as possible of the right kind to make their homes in Missouri.

Advantages of the State. Thus Missouri is to become a pioneer in solving the problem of distributing immigrants throughout the United States instead of leaving them to act upon their own resources without aid or assistance of a trustworthy kind. Two other states, Louisiana and South Carolina, have tried the plan and are much pleased with the results. This state is likely to be still more so, inasmuch as it can offer many advantages in climate, soil and social environment which are lacking in the semitropical gulf states. Besides being centrally located, along the parallel of travel east and west, Missouri probably enjoys a greater diversity of soil and climate, both of the most favorable character, than any other state in the Union. With fertile grain producing lands in its center and northern counties, stock breeding and dairy farms of the northwest tier, cotton and tobacco in the southwest and its unsurpassed fruit orchards and vineyards along the slopes of the Ozarks in the southwest, this state presents every advantage to the agricultural immigrant that could be desired, not to speak of the coal, iron, zinc, lead and other flourishing mining industries which extend from the extreme northwestern to the southwestern borders, affording employment at high wages to many thousands of sturdy workers. Many workmen in the coal mines of this state net upward of $7 a day from eight hours of labor. Thus no industrious immigrant who settles in this state will have occasion to regret his choice so far as material prosperity is concerned, while from a social point of view no warmer hearted and more hospitable people can be found on earth than the native Missourians.

National Bureau to Be Established.

The federal authorities are said to be so much impressed with the Missouri idea of the state going directly to the source of supply to obtain the pick of the immigrants that they have decided to establish a national immigration bureau at Washington to direct immigrants to favorable locations throughout the United States and to gather information along this line for the benefit of states that may desire to take advantage of the opportunity to augment their population. This plan, if intelligently pursued, ought to go far to establish the much desired equilibrium of labor between the east and west which has been sought after for years alike by public officers in the bureau of immigration and private philanthropists. At least it cannot fail to lessen the tremendous congestion of aliens in the large cities of the east, which is fast becoming a menace to the welfare of the nation.—Kansas City Journal.

Cement For Panama Canal Work.

An idea of what the Panama canal construction means to one industry in the United States may be gleaned from the fact that almost a million tons of cement will be used in the gigantic work. Shipments have already begun in steamers owned by the government which will carry about 8,000 tons at a trip. It is estimated that it will take about four years to deliver the 4,800,000 barrels of cement contracted for at the present rate of shipment.

Handsome Winter Home For Bryan.

William J. Bryan has let the contract for his winter residence on his 180 acre farm near Mission, Tex., according to a dispatch from Austin, Tex. It is said by those who have seen the plans that it will be the handsomest country house in Texas.

GLIMPSES OF MARTY KEESE.

New York City Hall's Famous Janitor Who Arrested Boss Tweed.

Martin J. Keese, who recently died in Long Island City at the age of seventy-two, was janitor and custodian of the city hall at New York for twenty-eight years.

Marty Keese, as the aged janitor of the city hall has been known to mayors, aldermen, politicians and newspaper men who have come and gone there for more than a quarter of a century, had a most interesting history.

For nearly ten years he ran with the old volunteer firemen, fought through the civil war with the Ellsworth fire squads and saw the gallant colonel of that organization shot. He was himself wounded at the battle of Bull Run. As a deputy sheriff he arrested William M. Tweed and Comptroller Connolly and guarded the latter in his incarceration in Ludlow street jail. He enlisted in the famous Walker filibustering expedition, was one of the first three men to walk over the Brooklyn bridge and stood guard before the stand, on which General Butler and Horace Greeley spoke in City Hall park.

The old janitor always took great delight in telling of his joining the Walker expedition. He and several of his friends attended a meeting in the Bowery theater one night, at which General Walker spoke. They became so enthused with his account of the possibilities of his venture that they enlisted on the spot. On the way down the bay when the expedition started Marty and his companions bubbled over with the fun of the thing and made so much disturbance and played so many tricks on the boat that they were put ashore at Sandy Hook. "It was in January, and it took us three days to get home, but I never have been sorry that they put us off the boat," he would say. He also always congratulated himself, with good reason, on the failure of another seafaring experience. He was engaged to fill a vacancy on the steamship Pacific and had gone on board when the man whose place he was to fill turned up. Keese was told that he would not be wanted. He went ashore much disappointed. The boat sailed and was never heard of again.

The pension question was always a sore spot to Keese. A man who knew of his having been wounded in the war asked him with surprise once why he had never applied for a pension. "Why should I?" the old man replied. "I have always been disgusted with the number of undeserving people who receive pensions. Do you realize that the amount of money already spent by the country in pensions exceeds the cost of the war?"

One day Keese was asked what was the most exciting scene he ever saw in City Hall park. "The Greeley-Butler meeting," he replied promptly. "It was just after the war, and the people were very excitable. There was a big crowd, and the police and we deputies were out in full force. The people heard Greeley through all right, but when Butler got up he was hissed and booed, and we looked for serious trouble. Several missiles were thrown on to the platform, and one of them, a sound apple, struck on the table beside which the general was standing. He instantly picked it up, took out his knife and peeled, halved, quartered and ate it, coolly waiting for the disturbance to die down. I have always thought that act saved his life. I was told later that there were several men in the crowd with revolvers who had come to the meeting to kill the general. His coolness completely won over the crowd, however."

Pledged Always to Be Spinners.

With the corkscREW curl as the emblem of their society, eight Indiana girls recently organized a spinner club in the home of Mrs. Maurice Frohman in Columbus, O. They took a solemn pledge they would never, so long as they lived, become married. Bernita Crater was elected supreme spinner. The other officers are vice supreme spinner, keeper of the tabby cat, keeper of the poll parrot, most high maker of fudge, keeper of the inner shrine and protectress of the sacred oath. The girls are Nellie Crater and Bernita Crater of Edinburg, Florence Delta and Florence Miller of Madison, One Gore of Indianapolis, Katharine Harrell, Hattie Watts and Lulu Peterson of Columbus.

New Zionist Organization.

A new Zionist organization, which will be in a sense an adjunct of the Federation of American Zionists, was recently formed in New York city. It is to be known as the Solomon Neumann Zion lodge, and its purpose is to aid Zionist institutions throughout the world with especial reference to the founding of more colonies in Palestine. Dr. Solomon Neumann was elected president.

The Average.

"Pa, what's an average man?" "One who thinks his employer's goodness would be run a good deal better if he could have more to say in the matter himself."

"The owl may not be as wise as he looks, but he is wise enough not to try to work both the night and day shifts."—Acheson Globe.

SATURDAY, AUG. 28, 1909.

An Exceptionally Strong Document.

The platform adopted by the Republicans in Baltimore during the week is one of the strongest documents ever presented to the people of Maryland, and clearly and unreservedly meets the issues presented to the voters at the coming election.

As had been foreshadowed the most important plank referred to the Suffrage Amendment now pending before the people of the State. With strong and unequivocal statements it strikes at the very heart of the iniquitous measure and declares in ringing language that "it would render powerless for good independent voters, reform organizations and a free press and thus virtually destroy the salutary influence of public opinion on our State and city governments." With equal force it declares that "it would rob thousands of worthy citizens of rights solemnly assured them by the supreme law of the land," and that "its adoption would be a discredit to the State, an insult and grievance to our foreign born citizens and a grave menace to free government in Maryland."

But next to the amendment plank, the one around which public interest most largely centered related to increased representation in Baltimore. It more than fulfilled public expectation, and struck the key note of American political institutions, when it affirmed that "Republican principles condemn all arbitrary distinctions in political rights," and solemnly declared in favor of "a constitutional amendment whereby Baltimore shall have fifty-two members in the House of Delegates—that is to say, one member for every ten thousand of population, and sixteen Senators—that is to say, one Senator for every thirty thousand of population; this without decreasing the representation of any county." This absolutely protects the rights of every county in the State and at the same time assures for Baltimore a representation commensurate with her population, prestige and standing in the commonwealth. For years the palpable injustice under which Baltimore has suffered has been more and more apparent, but the politicians of the State have been afraid of its power should its representation be properly and proportionally increased, and the positive and straightforward declaration in relation to the subject is in marked contrast to the makeshift adopted by the Democratic Convention. The latter plank was inserted merely, as its phraseology shows, for the purpose of inducing the people of Baltimore to vote for the amendment in the hope that with its adoption the Democrats would give them increased representation. Now, however, with a plain, unequivocal, absolute and unqualified promise and declaration in favor of the increased representation proposition, the people of Baltimore can vote as they please on the subject of the disfranchisement amendment and yet support the Republican legislative ticket with the definite assurance that if the Republicans are placed in power they will carry out their pledges to the letter and obtain that for which they have so long and valiantly fought. They do not have to vote for something they do not want in order to secure something they do want. The propositions are separate and distinct and have been so treated and considered by the Republican Party.

In addition to these important and vital planks, the party declares for a just and unprejudiced supervision and control of public service corporations; for the repeal of the iniquitous Wilson Law; favors just and fair primaries, and a "progressive, practical and enlightened policy of good roads construction;" a strict and impartial enforcement of the corrupt practices act, and in favor of State care of indigent insane and the feeble minded; declares for the ratification by the Legislature of this State of the proposed Federal Amendment to the Constitution, providing for an income tax, and favors a pure food and drug act; propositions which appeal to the highest intelligence of the people and are for the undoubted welfare and betterment of the State.

It is seldom that a party so fully measures up to the requirements of the occasion as has been done in this instance, and it is certain that it enters the fight with a distinct and decided advantage over its rival for the control of the next Legislature and the election of its candidate for Comptroller.

Judge Jones And Mr. Lankford.

The attempt from certain quarters to make it appear that H. Fillmore Lankford, Esq., who will probably be the Republican nominee for Associate Judge in the First Judicial Circuit is the candidate of the "whiskey interests" is a contemptible piece of practical politics and is intended to prejudice his candidacy even before it is formally launched.

It cannot yet be definitely stated whether Mr. Lankford's name will appear upon the ballot, or not, but if such should be the case, he will no more be a candidate of particular interests than will Judge Jones himself. In fact, as every one knows who is at all familiar with the subject, Mr. Lankford is and always has been outspoken in his temperance sentiments, just as the Judge is, and it would be useless to attempt to raise an issue of this kind between them. While it is freely conceded that there are a number of persons within Judge Jones' own party in Worcester county who are associated with the whiskey element of the party who will not support him, it is also a fact that quite a number in the same party connected with the Anti-Saloon League will not vote for him this Fall, and this opposition will support any good lawyer whom the Republicans may name. This is in itself conclusive that considerations of this character are not entering into the opposition which has manifested itself to his candidacy, and that instead, there are certain matters of local interest in Worcester which have brought about the present condition in that county.

So far as Judge Jones and Mr. Lankford are concerned, both are men of sterling character and undoubted ability. If the latter should be nominated, considerations of a personal, rather than political, nature should enter into the decision of each voter as he casts his ballot upon the question. The campaign should be free from personalities and false statements intended to prejudice voters, and if Judge Jones can win he should do so upon his own strength and not by having the candidacy of his opponent undermined by improper and unjust methods. So far as the Judge himself is concerned it is certain that he had nothing to do with the reports sent out concerning the "interests", which, it is said, are backing Mr. Lankford, and it is known that he would not countenance a campaign of that kind.

The New College Of Business.

Salisbury is to be congratulated upon the opening of a College of Business within its gates. The doors will be formally thrown open the first of September, and already students enrolled for the fall term are arriving and taking up the quarters provided for them.

While Salisbury is to-day the leader commercially of the Shore and is reaching out in all directions in its earnest endeavor to have new concerns of a business character erect their plants here, it should not overlook enterprises of a different nature which may locate in our midst. From a business as well as an educational standpoint it is desirable to have an institution of this kind in our town, and it would seem that there are splendid opportunities presented for abundant success. So far as we are informed, this is the only college of the kind on the Peninsula South of Wilmington. Salisbury is so centrally situated that it is easily accessible from every point on the Shore and there is no reason why young persons desiring a business education should not avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded, rather than drift to the cities where they will be under heavier expense—not only in reaching them—but during their entire collegiate course, and be subjected to innumerable temptations to which they would not be exposed here.

From a purely business viewpoint a school of this kind is of distinct advantage to the place, and should receive the hearty encouragement and cooperation of our citizens. A large number of out-of-town students will attend during the year, and not only will they place in circulation quite a sum of money, but experience has shown that not a few of those attending college, immediately at the close of the scholastic year, secure positions in the town or city in which the institution is situated, and become permanent residents of the place. This is frequently followed later by a removal of all or a part of the young person's family, this becoming one of the many sources of substantially increasing the population and building up the town.

Salisbury is always glad of the opportunity of extending to strangers within her border the hand of welcome—and doubly so when they come for the purpose of identifying themselves with her interests and aiding in the development of the city and the widening of her influence.

The New Party.

And so—according to certain doubtful and questionable sources of information—there is to be a new Republican Party in Wicomico County. Good! But when is the wonderful transformation to take place? When is the "real" Republican Party to lift its banner over the ruins of its predecessor, composed of "derelicts" and "renegade democrats." The Courier regrets exceedingly that it knows nothing of this important movement within the party ranks as it would be delighted to give some authentic information concerning so vital a change in the management and control of the party in Wicomico County. But perhaps the same brain which concocted the thrilling story upon the subject has planned that the new party shall be run as an adjunct to a certain faction of the Democratic Party, and if so this might account for the wonderful degree of interest manifested, and intimate knowledge displayed, in the fate of the Republican Party at this particularly harrowing crisis in the career of the local organization.

They Want All Kinds of Poetry Along His Route.

VERSES FOR HICKS FAMILY.

Comforts the Family of Farmer
Green on the Loss of Their Baby.
Grinds Out a Poem For a Would Be Suicide.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)I HAD not driven a mile on my route the other morning when I met Farmer George Hicks going the other way, and he called out to me:"Abe, stop at the house when you get there. If you are to drive past and if you don't give that old poetry machine of yours a twist I'll never speak to you again."I stopped to find that the stork or gambler or gambler or some other old bird had come and left a girl baby.
The mother wasn't able to see me, but said that she must have at least two verses on the occasion and would show me the new arrival and record her"ABE, IT'S THE MOST AFFECTIONATE THING I EVER READ OR HEARD OF."thanks later on. I therefore sat down and dashed off the following and hurried on my way:Good Farmer Hicks and his good wife Have got another daughter,
Though they had three before she came,
And really hadn't order.But bless the kid, the little dear—Aye, bless her to her toes;
May she be happy all her life And dwell among the roses.I was told that there was sadness at Farmer Green's, and I found him at the gate with a solemn look on his face. As I greeted him he said:"Abe, our baby was buried yesterday. You'll have to come in and give us some poetry. Ma wants something to frame and hang in the parlor."I went in, and for twenty minutes I listened to the tales of Frank's smartness and the predictions of what he would have been had he lived on, and then I wrote:The doctor said it measles was,
And that they had struck in,
And that our Franky must depart
To lands without a sin.He died at 10 o'clock at night—
The winds did round us roar;
He spread his wings and flew away To brighter, better shore.It wasn't poetry to live forever, but just long enough to comfort and console for a year or two, and it was agreed by husband and wife that nothing could have taken the place of it.There was something less sorrowful awaiting me at Farmer Snow's. In a fence corner just beyond the house I found Jim Davis, his hired man, and he stopped me to ask:

About to Commit Suicide.

"Abe, are you willing to save me from a suicide's grave?"

"Perfectly willing, Jim."

"Maybe you know that for the last year I've been in love with Sarah Stone?"

"I suspected it."

"Well, I don't know whether she loves me or not, but I think she does.
I want something to sort of break her down and make her confess it. What's an ode, Abe?""A yard and a half of poetry praising some girl.""I thought it was, and I want one.
I must either have it or commit suicide."Under the circumstances I had to beat Uncle Sam out of twenty minutes' time and grind out the following:Her hair is blond, her eyes are blue, Her lips are cherry red,
Her teeth are white as driven snow,
And none as yet have shed.She moves around like a gazelle,
Her voice is like a song,
Her feet are bold under her,
And not so very long.The sun is kissing of her cheeks,
The moon is doing delight
In shining on her Grecian chin
On almost every night.Oh, maiden fair, my heart it beats
For thee, and then alone;
Be mine—be mine, I thee implore,
My angel, Sarah Stone.The turtle doves will coo for us—We'll have our shady bowers.No thunderstorms will ever come To turn sweet milk to sour.When I had finished the above and read it to Jim I found tears in his eyes, and as soon as he could control his voice he grasped my hand and said:"Abe, it's the most affecting thing I ever read or heard of. If that don't melt Sarah's heart and cause her to promise to be mine then she isn't the wonderful girl to be my wife. Say, I can't thank you enough. I feel that I can never reward you as you deserve. By thunder, if you don't go to heaven when you die none of us ever will!"I got down to Henry Jed's place just in time to witness a marriage and be hauled in to lunch with the guests.
After the ceremony I tried to make a sneak, but it was no go. I had to come to time with a poem and be told that Shakespeare hadn't the ghost of show with me in the county.Mr. Jason Morgan and Miss Debora Jed, They stood before the preacher and most properly were wed;And when they had been hitched for life the preacher he did say That 'twas about the slickest job he'd done for many a day.A few remarks he'd like to make, and he sought Jason's eye,
And told him he must hustle now and make the well to do;The more he sang and whistled the better he would work,
And the harder he did labor, why, the more the beans and pork.He gave him kindly warning to stick to good root beer,
With a barrel of hard cider to finish out the year;To run in debt as little as farmer ever could,
And pay the same tomorrow in good dry maple wood.He said to keep on courting the gal he'd made his wife,
And thus prevent the quarrels that enter into life;To kiss her every morning, and often through the day,
And let her see that Cupid was leading of the way.To never mind if trials came, but face 'em bold and brave,
And not to spend his hard earned cash when possible to save;To be honest to his fellow men, and to obey the law,
And to his many children be a loved and honored paw.And to the bride, whom he had kissed, he had a word to say—
"Twas just a word, most kindly said, in his most kindly way;But let us hope it was enough, and she will e'er beware,
And do no walking in the path that's set with tempting snare.Debora, dear, the petition was made for yours to wear,
And in its place is all O. K. for fairest of the fair;But when the breeches you'd put on and seek to be the it, Then things will go to Texas, oh, and happiness will fit.

Quick Diagnosis.

"Ah! How marvelous it is to sit and muse in the twilight," sighs the poet, resting his cheek upon his hand and gazing raptly into the gathering dusk."Here, far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife, I hear the mystic under-tones of the music of creation. To my ears there comes the shrilling of the fairy horns, the trumpet call of the legions of the marching night, the ding of the armies of the breeze and""Lucius!" calls his aunt, "You'd better come in off that grass on to the screened porch. I hear the skeeters buzzin' like mad."—Chicago Post.

Heard Something.

One summer evening a miller was leaning over his garden gate, facing the road, enjoying his pipe, when a conceited young farmer happened to be passing. The miller in a friendly tone said:

"Good evening, George."

"I didn't speak," said George gruffly.

"Oh," said the miller, "I thought you did, but it must have been your ears flapping."—Chattanooga Times.

A Helpful Plan.

"Why do you always say that you appreciate classical music when you know you don't care a rap for it?" we ask of our friend."Because," he answers, "when they ask me if I appreciate it and I say I do that ends the discussion. Otherwise they bore me to death with efforts to educate me up to an appreciation of the stuff."—New York Life.

Explaining Mixup.

"How did the accident happen?" asked the policeman. "Did that motor car scare the horse?""No," said the innocent bystander, who was nursing his elbow. "The horse scared the man who was learning to drive the car."—Detroit Free Press.

Not So Strange.

"That blind man is a stubborn mug."

"How's that?"

"I tried for an hour to convince him that despite his affliction the world still had many beauties for him, but I couldn't make him see them."—Houston Post.

Disadvantage.

"Don't you realize that you are financially handicapped by bad roads?""Of course we realize it," answered Farmer Cornusson. "No automobile darns travel fast enough to give us an excuse for collecting a fine."—Washington Star.

The Key Under the Door.

"It is customary for the back door key to be put halfway under the door so that I can reach it when coming off duty late at night," remarked an artist to a London Tit-Bits writer."The other morning at breakfast my landlady said to me, 'Do you know, I had an awful fright last night. I put the key halfway under the door, as usual, when, to my horror, I saw it drawn slowly out of sight. I of course thought some one had got the key and would unlock the door and come in.
So I quickly bolted it and shouted through the keyhole, 'My word, if you don't bring that key back!' Not daring to retire to rest, I sat quietly listening for a time. Then I got a table knife and pushed it under the door to see if the key had really been taken right away and to my surprise drew the key back again. So, very cautiously, I unlocked and unbolted the door, looked out and found not a burglar, but our own wicked cat, who, while sitting on the doorstep and seeing the key pushed under the door, must have drawn the key out of sight with her paws, thinking I was playing with her.'"

An American Joke From England.

The typical American, says a contributor to the English Illustrated Magazine, although partial to making jokes, is often quick tempered and unable to recognize a joke made by another, with results that are sometimes unpleasant.Thus, a senator was once at a fashionable dinner party at Washington when he was asked what fish he would take."Wal," he said, "I reckon I'll take place."A wit who chanced to be present remarked, with a twinkle in his eye, "Ah, senator, still a place seeker?""Yess," answered the senator, at the same time whipping out of a revolver and shooting the wit dead, "but what's that to you, you dern'd stranger?"Afterward, when the joke was explained to him, the senator confessed that he had acted rather hastily, and to show that he bore no grudge he went to the funeral of the inopportune wit.

A Queen Elizabeth Joke.

Queen Elizabeth liked her jokes, and, although her pleasantries were of a less sanguinary turn than her father's, she must have been even more formidable than usual when disposed to be frolicsome. A tale may be found in one of Lord Essex's letters with regard to a new dress belonging to one of her maids of honor, over the possession of which the owner had been rash enough to exhibit some elation.The young lady, it seems, was several inches taller than her majesty, hardly perhaps quite a piece or loyal thing to be. Having desired that the dress should be made over to her custody, the queen, first carefully selecting an extremely wet day, was pleased to put it on and trail it for yards behind her in the mud, the owner of the humiliated garment having to appear as delighted with the royal fun and condescension as the rest of the lookerson.—London Tatler.

And All With Company There.

"Now, children," said the mother as a whole roomful of company had come in, "suppose you run off and play by yourselves."

"All right, mother," replied Edith.

"Can we go up and play Hamlet and Ophelia?""Certainly," smiled the mother, while her guests looked on at the tableau."Goody," replied Edith. Then, turning to her sister, she said, "Now, Maude, you run up to mamma's room and get all her false hair that you can find."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Love.

Properly there is only one verb for love. It is not "amo." It is not "aimer." It is not the softest Italian verb. No printed language of man knows it. But the violin knows it, and the wild bird knows it; even the sea knows it. The rose is it, and the moon is it, and the look of a man's eyes into a woman's is it, and the loo-ing of a woman's eyes back again is it.
But no man or woman can say it in any language that endures.—Love Letters of the King.

Wanted No Trimmings.

Little Ollie was much frightened at a thunder shower, and her father told her she shouldn't be, as the rain was good for the grass and her flowers.Looking up through her tears, Ollie said, "Well, why c-a-n't we have j-ust plain r-r-rain?"—Exchange.

Skinsy's Anti-climatic Swipe.

The score was 1 to 0, and the Stars had two men out.It looked as if the finish no longer was in doubt.For it was Skinsy Lindsay who came up then to bat.And the Comets felt complacent; there was no doubt of that.Then Spider Watson, pitching, uncloaked his awkward length.He sent the balls in whistling, with most uncommon strength.And Skinsy stood there watching, with a set, determined face.That showed his one ambition was to circle to third base.But Spider kept on working till the record stood three-two.And Skinsy set his teeth until his compressed lips were blue.Then the ball came whizzing toward him and Skinsy swooped and missed.And the Comets chalked another mark upon their victory list.

Nerve Sick
If weak, worn-out, nervous, cannot sleep; have indigestion, headache, neuralgia or periodic pains, it is because your nerves are weak. It is the lack of nerve force that makes the stomach, heart, lungs, etc., work imperfectly—become sick. Dr. Miles' Nervine cures the sick when it restores nerve strength, and puts the power behind the organs to do their work.
"Almost three years I suffered from nervousness, indigestion, and palpitation of the heart. I could not eat or sleep with comfort, or walk or talk without suffering. Altogether I was in a bad condition. My doctor did not seem to do me any good. I had tried so many remedies that I did not have much hope of any of them doing me any good. Dr. Miles' Nervine was suggested by a friend. I got relief from the first, and after a few days I felt like a new person. It not only relieved my heart and nerves, but has invigorated my whole system. I am very grateful because since I have stopped using it, I have had absolutely no return of my old trouble."

MY LADY DAFFODIL.
How She Happened to Wear Her Yellow Gown That Night.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.
(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)
In Miss Priscilla's garden there was a clump of daffodils.
"I am going to pick all of them," said Judy Perkins, who was Miss Priscilla's niece.
"Please don't, Judy," said Miss Priscilla faintly.
"Why not?"
"Because," was Miss Priscilla's woman's reason.
Judy looked at her. "Tell me," she urged. "You are blushing, and you can't have any secrets from me, Aunt Priscilla."
Miss Priscilla beamed. It was such a new delight to be teased by this beautiful being who had come all the way from Europe to the little country village to see for the first time her father's sister.
"Tell me," Judy repeated and drew the little lady down beside her on the garden bench.
Judy listened intently while Miss Priscilla stammered out her little romance. "So you and he always sat on this bench by the daffodil bed, and you wore a little yellow dainty gown, and he called you 'My Lady Daffodil'?"
"Yes," Miss Priscilla's voice was dreamy. "And he used to quote some verses that ended:
"And then my heart with pleasure fills And dances with the daffodils."
"Why didn't you marry him?" Judy murmured.
"There was a misunderstanding," Miss Priscilla said, "and he went away, and I haven't heard from him since, and that was twenty years ago."
Judy enveloped the shabby black figure in a big hug. "Dear Aunt Priscilla," she said, "and you have been alone and lonely all these years, while I have been having a good time."
"You couldn't know," Miss Priscilla said. "That after father and mother died I invested all of my money in a mining scheme that failed."
"No, we didn't know," Judy said, "and you have scrimped and saved and gone without pretty things while I have simply squandered piles of money on gowns."
"The one you have on is a beauty," Miss Priscilla said. "You look like a rose." Judy laughed. "The rose and the daffodil," she sang. "We belong in your garden, Aunt Priscilla."
"Miss Priscilla," said some one from the other side of the fence, "may I have a rose from your garden?"
"I told you last night you couldn't, Bobbie," Judy retorted.
"Don't quarrel," Miss Priscilla expostulated. "Come up presently and have lunch with me."
As she left them Judy stood looking after the slender, old-fashioned figure. "Did she ever tell you about the daffodils, Bobbie?"
"No."
"He was her lover and he went away—and his name is Constantine Mercer."
"Do you know," Bobbie said, "there's a man at the hotel named Mercer—C. Mercer?" Judy grasped his hands across the fence. "Bobbie, boy," she said, "suppose it should be the same one—and suppose he is coming back here to look up Aunt Priscilla."
"She must have changed awfully in that time," Bobbie said. "She isn't very pretty now, you know, Judy."
"She's beautiful," Judy said defiantly. "Her hair is lovely and her eyes—"
"Constantine is probably old and bald and ugly—but of course that doesn't count."
"Well, one doesn't exactly look for beauty in a man."
"If one did one might be disappointed," Judy murmured pointedly. Then she went on. "If it is Constantine he'll probably be over this evening, Bobbie."
"Why?"
"Because she said he always came at twilight, and—and lovers don't forget such things, Bobbie."
"Don't they?" Bobbie demanded with some interest. "Will you remember that I always came at high noon in time for lunch, Judy?"
"Aunt Priscilla," Judy said a little later when they were at lunch, "I'm going to get the dinner tonight and I want it late. Bobbie's coming and I'm going to put on style."
Bobbie looked up in amazement, but Judy's eye warned him. "You are to come at 7:30," she said. "I want to show you what a fine cook I am."
After Bobbie left Miss Priscilla protested.
"Please," Judy began, "let me get the dinner and—and I want to dress you up and have you play lady for once in your life. You are going to wear a pretty gown tonight," Judy said decidedly. "Come on upstairs and choose one, Aunt Priscilla."
Once in Judy's room that enthusiastic maiden dumped on the bed a dozen gowns before she found the one she sought.
"There," she said at last, as she took down a shimmering duffly thing of pale yellow chiffon. "Put that on and see how you look, Aunt Priscilla."
"Oh, my dear," Miss Priscilla protested. But Judy commanded, and soon Miss Priscilla was seated in the wonderful gown—topped with a gold comb.
"But your hair's wrong," Judy decided and pulled out hairpins and curled and patted and puffed the shining brown locks into a wonderful coiffure—topped with a gold comb.
"Why, it's just the way I used to wear it," Miss Priscilla said.
"And now you are to take a look and go down to the garden seat and wait there until I call you to dinner." A half hour later Bobbie appeared at the kitchen door.
"Judy," he said in an awed voice, "I didn't know clothes could make such a difference."
"What?" asked Judy, abstracted. She was deep in the mysteries of mayonnaise.
"Miss Priscilla is down by the daffodil bed in a yellow gown, and she looks like a girl with her hair done that way. And Constantine is headed for the garden. He is a good looking old duffer, Judy."
"I hope he has piles of money," Judy said.
"I'll run back and dress," Bobbie said. "But I wish you'd let me get the Lady of the Roses if he gets My Lady Daffodil, Judy."
"Go 'way," said Judy, but her eyes were kind.
There were golden shadows across the grass as Bobbie went toward the gate, and Miss Priscilla's gown made a spot of gold in the dusky corner where the daffodils grew. And at the gate Bobbie met Constantine, but the man scarcely bowed. His eyes were on that golden spot in the dusky corner.
"My Lady Daffodil," he said softly.
Miss Priscilla turned, started up, and her eyes were like stars.
"Connie!" she gasped, and then Bobbie fled.
And when he crept back later he found shades on the silver candlesticks.
He produced a great bunch of daffodils and Judy put them in a silver bowl in the center of the table.
"Judy, this is my old friend, Constantine Mercer," said a happy voice.
Constantine held Judy's hand and looked down at her. "Priscilla and I have been wondering how you happened to make her wear that yellow gown today."
"A little bird told me you were at the hotel."
"Bob-bink," said Bobbie from the other side of the table.
"Oh," and Constantine grasped the other's hand. "I told you I knew Miss Perkins!"
"Yes," said Bobbie, "and I told Judy, and thereby hangs the tale."
But Constantine was not listening—hand in hand with Miss Priscilla he was looking at the daffodils that nodded under the golden light.
And Judy, watching the old lovers, turned her eyes presently on her young lover and then her hand went out to him and behind the backs of the others he bent and kissed her.
Willing, but Helpless.
"Shave," was all he said, and he snapped it out as if he wanted to be let alone during the operation.
"You oughter have a hair cut, sir. Needs it badly," said the barber.
"No; I want a shave," said the man.
Everything was quiet for the next few minutes, and the barber scraped away. Then, the bristles removed, the barber ran his hands through his hair, preparatory to combing it. That seemed to remind him of something.
"Hair's getting thin, sir. Shall I put on some follicular freshener?" he inquired.
"No!" snapped the man.
The barber fussed about some more and then, "Try a facial massage—just what you need," he said.
"No; I only want the shave," said the man firmly.
This appeared to get past the barber, for as he was flogging with the combs and brushes and looking over the customer's cranial development he remarked in a friendly and kindly tone, just as if the idea had that moment occurred to him, "You oughter have your hair cut, sir."
The tired man's patience was all gone now. "Hang it," he exclaimed, "if you are so anxious to cut somebody's hair, why don't you cut your own? It's four times as long as mine."
Sadly the barber looked at himself in the glass. His locks were best described by the mid-Victorian terms "ambrosial and umbrageous."
"If I could I would," he answered.—New York Press.
To Was or Not to Was.
"Dear me, now!" exclaimed the nervous old lady with the seventeen packages and the parrot, bound for Cockle-on-the-Shell. "What did the guard say was the next station? Did he say Cockle-on-the-Shell?"
"Excuse me," remonstrated the girl from Gilton. "You mean what is the next station. It's still a station, you know."
"You're wrong, madam," interposed an octogenarian. "What is was, isn't it?"
"Is it was?" asked the Gilton girl sharply.
"Don't be ridiculous!" snapped the nervous old lady. "Was may be is."

But it was was is, then is don't is is was wasn't was. Also guessed his hand across her forehead. "It was is was is was, isn't it?" she continued. "But it is is was, then is is was was, was was was, is is is?"
"Listen!" interposed a fifth. "It is was was, was was was, is is is?"
"Oh, well, anyway," cried the old lady, "is the next station my station—Cockle-on-the-Shell?"
"No, madam," replied the octogenarian. "But it was. We have just gone by it."—London Sketch.
A Candid Retrospect.
"Why are you in this prison, my friend?" asked the philanthropist.
"It was the result of my own folly."
"In what way were you foolish?"
"I didn't employ the right kind of a lawyer for my case."—Washington Star.
Geographical Knowledge in 1492.
But very little was known in regard to the extent of the world in Aristotle's day. In the fourth century before Christ, and but very little more was known about it 1,500 years later, in the time of Columbus. In 2,000 years the world had in reality retrograded rather than advanced. It was the popular belief in the time of Columbus that the world was flat, though many contemporary scholars thought differently. The great civilizations of the world at that time were grouped around the Mediterranean sea, although England was a considerable power and the Scandinavians were a great maritime people. But Europeans at that time knew but little of Asia and but little of Africa, and America, of course, was undreamed of. Even after Columbus had discovered the latter continent he was perfectly oblivious of the fact. He thought Haiti was Cipango or Japan and for a long time regarded Cuba as a part of the mainland of Asia.
A Famous All Potato Banquet.
One of the most remarkable menus ever drawn up must have been that of the feast in Paris to which Benjamin Franklin, Lavoisier, the founder of modern chemistry, and other distinguished men sat down as guests of Parmentier. Every dish at this banquet was made of potatoes, and even the brandy and liquors were the product of the same vegetable. This was Parmentier's final proof to his skeptical fellow countrymen that potatoes were not poison, as they persisted in believing. Louis XVI. himself was one of Parmentier's earliest converts, granted him land on which to grow his plants and did not disdain to wear the potato flower as a buttonhole. Then Parmentier cleverly posted guards round his potato fields by day and withdrew them by night, so that people were tempted to come then, steal, eat and be convinced. The all potato banquet was the climax of the great campaign.—Chicago News.
Horses in Pantaloon.
"Equine snubnoses are very well," said a veterinary, "but what would you say to equine trousers? You'll see them in Guayaquil. There the mosquitoes and greenhead flies are so thick that horses and donkeys, unless their legs are cased in cloth, become unmanageable with the pain. Guayaquil is in Ecuador. It is directly under the equator. The heat there is insufferable. Up and down its narrow and foul smelling streets in bluish clouds of buzzing insects walk horses and donkeys in snubnoses and pantaloon."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.
A Social Fad.
As a cure for nerves, society in Washington has taken up floor scrubbing.
The Old Fashioned Fourth of July.
The dawn of the Fourth—the old annual story—The nervous man's dread and the small boy's glory! The cat is yet gray when all the land rumbles. And the small cannon pops, and the big cannon grumbles. And the torrid sun creeps through a blue haze of powder. And the torpedoes snap, and the cannons boom louder.
On the Fourth of July—The old fashioned Fourth of July! The small boy's abroad and his breakfast forgotten. With his long stick of punk or his smoldering cotton. And he touches off bombs and crackers and rockets. And drops pinwheels in the policeman's pockets. Old gentlemen swear, and old ladies mutter. And the Chinaman peeps through his steel bolted shutter.
On the Fourth of July—The old fashioned Fourth of July! The nervous may fume and stifle with fire. But the rocket will flare and spout its red fire. The police protest, and almost probably. And the papers may plead to spend the day sanely. But remember the days when you were a tacker. And list to the boom of the big cannon cracker.
On the Fourth of July—The old fashioned Fourth of July! Victor A. Hermann is Judge.

Good Looking Brides Wanted.

Shortly after an angry looking couple bounced out of the chapel the pastor of an uptown church presented a perplexed countenance before the busy sexton.

"As you know," said he, "I am new in this parish and now in the city. Perhaps there are a few things I ought to know. Why, for instance, do so many people who never attend services in this church wish to be married here?"

"Because our church," said the sexton, "has the name of turning out the youngest and handsomest brides in New York. Our reputation for good works is dwarfed by our reputation for beautiful brides. To say that a woman is married here is equivalent to saying that she is a 'good looking'."

"No wonder," groaned the pastor, "that that plain looking woman went away in a huff. I earnestly advised her to be married in her own parish."

Paid For the Kiss.

Lord Northcote was once made curious as to why the governor general of Australia, says London M. A. P. Strolling one night through an avenue of somber trees to a friend's house to dinner, he was suddenly pounced upon by a maid-servant, who kissed him effusively and pressed a little parcel into his hand. "Here's a sausage for you I can't come out tonight, as master has company," she whispered and as mysteriously disappeared. When he got to the house he found one of his servants loitering by the gate. "What are you doing there?" asked Lord Northcote. "I'm waiting for my sweetheart," the man stammered. "Where is she?" "In service here." "Ah, then I am right. Here is a sausage from your sweetheart, and she wishes me to tell you that she cannot come out tonight, as her master has company." Seeing that the man looked nervous, he added kindly: "She also gave me a kiss for you, but perhaps you would rather wait until you see her. Here is 6 shillings instead."

The Honeymoon Special.

Bride—Yes, there were six brides parties on our train.
Old Chum—Well, well! And tell me about that long, narrow tunnel through the mountains. Did you get through safely?
Bride—Oh, yes, we just squeezed through.—Houston Post.
