Each druggist gets the benefit of the great values obtained in this way and passes them along to you. For instance, we now offer you a cigar far better than any 5c smoke we ever handled, and as good as many 10c cigars.

THE CITY STREETS.

Cost of Shells Used On All Salisbury's
Streets An Average of About $2200
Per Year for Four Years Past.

Messrs. Editors:—
The Mayor and City Council have given out as one of their reasons for paving Camden Avenue and North Division Street, that shells are too expensive as street paving material, citing the fact that about $4000 has been spent within the last nine months.

There does not seem to have been a very intelligible account of expenditures for shells till 1904. Beginning with June 1904, the ledger account shows there were shells bought from June 1904 to Jan. 1905, $833.01

" " 1908 to July 1, 1908, 8186.60

Shells for 4 1/2 years gross $10,063.30 an average of little over $2200 per year. Nearly half of the $10,000 put in shells has been spent since July 1st 1907, or within one year. It is therefore clear that no part of this expenditure has been for shells on the paved streets from Camden Avenue to the N. Y. P. and N. Depot. The people have been treated with this talk about shells as though these paved streets were the only shelled streets, while as a fact they do not constitute one seventh of them. Why do not these gentlemen carry their argument of cheapness to its proper conclusion?

The "Advertiser" showed last week that at four and one half per cent the investment means an annual expense of nearly $4500, or twice as much as the shell for ALL the streets have cost per annum for four and one half years.

Now add the continued expense to the tax payers, of both cleaning and repairing these paved streets; also the expense of cutting into them by abutting property owners for sewer, water and gas connection and repairs and the continued expense of keeping up the shelled streets, we then begin to see something of the expense account.

Now it is manifest that all the talk about expense has been either purposely or ignorantly misleading.

Another aspect of the question. Some have contended that the whole cost should have been laid upon the general taxpayers; in which case a party with a ten thousand dollar property, whether abutting or not on the improved street, would have to pay ten times as much as he with a one thousand dollar property. This we have always thought unjust, because the abutting property has a special benefit above that of other property; but it is also unjust to make an arbitrary assessment on abutting property disregarding these special benefits.

It seems too unfair to admit of argument that a property 300 ft. front 30 ft. deep on an unimproved street should pay as much per front foot as property on Main Street 30 feet front and 300 ft. deep—in the former it may mean a partial and possibly, a total confiscation.

Yet this illustrates the exactions of the Mayor and City Council in their method of assessing abutting property regardless of values or benefits.

Another question: Have the wishes of those most interested had proper consideration? We do not want to be harsh in criticism of the City officials, for we recognize that they hold an office in which the chief compensation is criticism but public officials should be as willing to submit to just criticism as to the commendation "well done" for their official conduct. Now it does seem that they, with a few supposedly earnest supporters have, been blinded by an earnest desire to have a few streets paved at great expense, like unto those of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. A very commendable desire in itself.

Aside from the merit of the controversy as to whether or not these other streets should be paved at great expense, their official conduct in apparently ignoring the wishes of the people has not been such as to commend them to public favor. For instance, they prepared specifications for only brick and bitulithic, two of the most expensive sort, and advertised for bids. On receipt of the bids they at once approved the bitulithic bid at an expense of about $4.00 per yard for the total cost, and then gave notice to the taxpayers that they would meet to CONSIDER the passage of an ordinance to pave with bitulithic. Probably three fourths of the abutting taxpayers with other general tax payers, appeared and respectfully petitioned the Mayor and Council not yet to accept the bids, for either brick or bitulithic and to get specifications and bids or macadam, so that those who have the cost to pay, might be informed; and asked for a postponement of the ordinance. This modest request was ignored, and the ordinance passed. Then appeals to the court were entered to test the matter, as is expressly provided by the City Charter. They practically ignore this

PRIZE FIGHTING

And Manly Art Of Self Defense An Analysis Of Monday's Match.
(Communicated.)

Messrs. Editors.

That Prize Fight, so called Boxing Contest, the misnamed "Manly art of Self defense" is a euphemistic way of calling the brutal art of plugging the other fellow with knock out blows.

Two men mutually agree for money and for the delectation of men of similar tastes, to use their whole strength and skill in trying to knock each other "down and out" in trying to inflict pain on each other and some call this manly, scientific, courageous and the like.

For the News, to call the recent conflict a "Boxing contest" and to say "the bout was not brutal in any way" is inconsistent with the description of the fight. "The bout was to be fifteen rounds, but the end came in the fifth round, when Smith had Sonny helpless on the ropes." But not brutal.

In the "first round Sonny was in splendid style." In the second and third he was in "fine style" and he "sent several terrific face blows on Smith." Not brutal of course. But in the fourth Smith "put Sonny down with a hard left on the body" still not "brutal." Sonny rose slowly. Johnnie with his right on the jaw dropped him again. In the fifth Sonny was so far gone that Smith went for him in "swift style" and finished him up in such short time, that the other ten rounds for which the public paid remained unthought. Surely "Smith is a wonderful fighter." Whether all this is "brutal" or not will depend on what meaning we give the word and in a great measure to the viewpoint we take. To the uninitiated it sounds and looks "brutal." And it would be better for our young men to remain among the uninitiated and unbrutalized than to become familiar with such scenes. These bouts may be justly classed with bull fights and cock fights which are not humanizing in their tendency but appeal principally if not wholly to the cruel instincts which enjoys looking upon suffering.

Tuesday's Proceedings of The County Commissioners.

The County Commissioners were in session Tuesday and had a great deal of routine business to transact.

Commissioner Wright reported that the Sharpstown Ferry had been sold to James F. Thomas and John Rayne for the year 1909, at $250; and Vienna Ferry to L. C. Chasum at $300; one half of each to be paid by Dorchester county.

Commissioner Messick was requested to examine into complaint of road supervisor Smith of house belonging to Bud Smith, in Tyaskin District, alleged to be out in the public road.

Commissioners Johnson and Truitt, committee to whom the matter was referred, reported that they had offered the School Board $300 for one of the rooms of the Pittsville schools for use as an election house, provided the school officials will move the house and place it in position, and they further concluded that $50 would put the property in condition for occupancy. The report was accepted.

Anna Dashiell, colored, was before the Board and asked that her son, age 11 years, feeble minded, be placed in some institution where he can be cared for.

—Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Kennerly and children, Franklin and Virginia, are spending the Fourth at Maryland.

Right by deciding to give the contract at once and having the paving done. As we have said the real merit of the controversy has become a small matter compared to the right of the people.

The City is to be put into a bonded indebtedness of $50,000 without the consent or vote of the people, and the abutting property owners to be compelled to pay as much more against their consent, with no regard to respective values or benefits. A species of taxation in both aspects without their consent to say the least.

It has been said that the bonded indebtedness was not submitted to a vote because they were afraid to trust the people to vote on it.

As to that are the products of the people's wishes are more satisfactory and enduring than those which disregard them. They have not been allowed to approve or disapprove of the bonded debt of $50,000, and now their right to a hearing as to the other part of the expense, is treated as a mere perfunctory right. The people who have asked for further consideration are not arbitrary obstructionists and if they are, they have an equal right to be arbitrary in protecting themselves against exactions, as their representatives have in ignoring them. If the city officials are making a mistake, it is a serious one. An error of commission is much harder to repair than one of omission, like hanging a victim and trying him afterwards.

ON TO DENVER

Delegates Assembling For National Democratic Convention To Nominate President, Vice President And Make Platform.

The delegates are beginning to pour into Denver as the date for the Democratic Convention draws nigh. Seats to the big hall where the convention will be held are in such a demand that genuine tickets for seats were bringing as high as $100 on Wednesday, and hard to get at that. It looks as though the claim made by the Bryan people would be made good and his nomination on the first ballot is regarded almost as an accomplished fact. The claim is heard in Denver as was the case with the Republican convention in Chicago by those opposed to Taft, that the "Allies" would have enough votes to prevent Mr. Bryan's nomination on the first ballot and that if this was accomplished then enough delegates would break away from their instructions to assure his defeat. No one is paying much attention to these claims of the Anti-Bryan men and judging from the appearances Bryan will have everything his own way. In fact the chief interest seems to have drifted away from the Presidential nominee to the platform itself. Here it looked like a stiff fight would be put up by some of the Eastern states—at least in the committee.

One of the proposed planks that seem to be giving trouble is the Anti-Injunction plank. Bryan is reported to be in favor of a plank that means something and is not a mere jumble of words that would please neither capital or labor, as is the case with the plank on the subject adopted by the Republican convention.

It is reported that the question of putting a "water plank" in the platform is likely to be brought before the convention, and if so a lively fight will likely be made on this issue.

Gov. Crothers of Maryland favors a "Good Road Plank" and thinks such a plank would be a great vote getter among the farmers.

The question of the federal government taking a hand in improving our roads has been long advocated by several broad-minded statesmen, and if incorporated in the platform would undoubtedly have a great deal of weight and influence with the rural vote.

Mr. Bryan is reported to be in a conciliatory spirit towards his opponents and those who differ with him on the platform, and that he is willing to grant any reasonable concession in the makeup that they may desire.

With both sides adopting this policy the party would be more strongly centered together than it has since 1896, and with complete harmony there is but little question but what the ticket would stand the best chance of election it ever had.

The main question in regard to nominees seems to center on the Vice-President, with the general admission of Mr. Bryan's nomination for President, his running mate has created most interest. In this connection Mr. Bryan is supposed to feel very favorably towards Judge Gray of Delaware. It is believed that if Judge Gray will allow his name to be used in connection with this office he will be the choice of the convention.

It is pointed out that this combination of Bryan and Gray would bring together the different elements of the Democratic party and make victory an easier matter.

Judge Gray would certainly add a great deal of strength to the party in the East and is believed to be very popular with the labor vote of the country as well.

Judge Gray however is quoted by one of the New York papers as saying that he was not a candidate for either the first or second place. His boom was the first launched in Denver under the management of Josiah Marvel, of Wilmington, Del.

The first preliminary scramble of the convention as to the selection of temporary chairman resulted in Mr. Bryan's choice, Theo. Bell being selected without opposition.

Goffey, National Chairman of Pennsylvania, who is reported as trying to get some of the state to break their instructions and oppose Mr. Bryan's nomination is coming in for much of harsh criticism, and it is not believed that his efforts in this direction will meet with any success.

THE PRIZE FIGHT

Of Monday Night A Surprise. Generally Understood That No More Were To Be Given.

The Citizens of Salisbury who were resting content with the assurance given, after the last brutal exhibition in the "Prize Ring," that no more like scenes would be allowed to disgrace our city, were given a rude awakening this week, when another so called "Boxing Contest" as held. As to whom is to blame for this policy of continuing these "fights" in Salisbury is another matter. If it is in the power of our city officials to prevent these fights the people are asking that they do so. At the finish of the last fight here when an exhibition of a man being knocked out was given, it was understood that the State's Attorney, Mr. Bailey served notice on the Boxing Club that no more fights would be permitted.

The City Council gave a permit for this fight to take place and issued a license for the same, charging a fee, and it is understood that as a result of the City officials taking this step, the State's Attorney did not feel called upon to act, as it would cause a conflict in authority between the city and county government.

The responsibility for the last fight here rests with the Mayor and City Council.

A matter of courtesy to the city authorities after they had granted a permit at a special session of the Council for the fight to take place was the only thing that kept the State's Attorney from interfering and stopping the fight.

TENNIS SEASON

Started With Enjoyable Meet In Salisbury Tuesday—Cambridge, Federalburg And Seaford Represented.

The growing interest in tennis over the peninsula has been manifested early this year. The most successful meet ever held on the shore was participated in on the courts of the Salisbury Tennis Association Tuesday by Cambridge, Federalburg and Seaford. The day was a trifle warm, but the playing energy was in full force and the contests while not all close were snappy, and full of vim.

In all the events played, Salisbury won every set in both doubles and singles.

In the doubles Leonard and Webster, of Cambridge, were defeated by J. R. White and E. K. Truitt, of Salisbury in two sets, 6-1 and 6-3.

Dutton and Cooke, of Seaford, defeated Stowell and Messenger, of Federalburg, by 6-4 and 6-3.

The Seaford men then played White and Truitt, of Salisbury, and were defeated by 6-1 and 6-3.

Truitt and Toulson, of Salisbury, defeated Murphy and Charles, of Federalburg, 6-1 and 6-3.

In singles the best game was between John Leonard of Cambridge, and G. William Phillips, of Salisbury, the latter winning two sets by 6-4 and 6-4.

Cooke, of Seaford, was defeated by Phillips, of Salisbury, by 6-1 and 6-0.

Dutton, of Seaford, lost to White, of Salisbury by 6-1 and 6-3.

An exhibition game between Charles, of Seaford and Toulson, of Salisbury was won by the latter, 6-1. Mr. Geo. Barnett, of Cambridge, President of the Peninsula Tennis Association attended the games but was unable to play at this time owing to a foot accident. He expects, however to get in the game by August.

There is a general movement in tennis all over the Shore and several meets are in process of arrangement. Smyrna and Dover have been asked to play here at an early date and Cambridge has invited several towns for Friday of next week. There will probably be several large tournaments at different towns during the season and some fine games.

ENGINEER HATTON'S

Proposition To The City Council. Seems Loath To Relinquish Job.

If we have been correctly informed Engineer Hatton's proposition is regard to giving up the work of overseeing the paving work on our streets now under consideration by the City Council, means that he is willing to get out if the Council so desires upon the payment to him of a sum of money almost equal to the amount he would get if he continued the work. According to our reports his terms are within about $300 to $400 of the total actual work, as per contract, would come to, and it is evident from this calculation he has considered what it would cost him to employ an engineer to look after the work, and deducted what he would have to pay him for his work—about $100 per month for from three to four months so if the Council accepts this offer Mr. Hatton would receive about the same profit without doing the work as he would with it.

As pointed out in the "ADVERTISER" some time back the proper course to pursue in regard to Mr. Hatton if his services were not desired by the City Council, was to refuse to give out any contracts at all until this matter was satisfactorily arranged. When the work is in sight and the money for it almost in touch a party is always harder to induce to make a reasonable proposition.

HIS OWN PRIVATE THEATRE.

Man With Money Who Wants to See Shows Built One for the Purpose.

There is a town in Pennsylvania, not far from Harrisburg, but off the beaten track, which boasts of a theatre, which for luxury of accommodation would be hard to equal. The theatre has all sorts of modern conveniences, of a kind which could hardly be expected in a city under a million of inhabitants. This particular city had at the last census about 10,000 inhabitants.

The reason for being of this theatre, which gets all the road attractions of high class, is that there is in the town an exceedingly wealthy man who wants to see shows with out leaving home. He is worth about $10,000,000.

He has lived in and about the place all his life making money out of lumber and manufactures. When he had enough to retire on he didn't want to go anywhere else to see a show, but he wanted the place boasted of was a very dingy one he had one built.

He runs the theatre himself at a considerable loss every year, but he gets what he wants. The theatre people like the place, too, because it is so very different from the average show house in the small town.

The Desert of Sahara.

The Desert of Sahara may be deserted; perhaps it is most desolate, like great tracts of sand, and there is no water, but that is not the conception that most of us have. Personally the writer is convinced that it is crowded with people all of them recognizing one another. It must be so, for the number of persons we hear exclaiming: "I should have known you, my dear, if I met you in the Desert of Sahara."

"They do not say that they ever have met anyone in the desert, but one gets the impression that the desert is particularly favorable for recognition—a sort of 'If you see it in the desert it's so.' The place apparently, gives a stamp of reality, proves it in fact, and that is why so many women say: 'I wouldn't have believed it, not if I'd seen it in the Desert of Sahara.' We know that if they would doubt it there, convincing them any where else would be out of the question. This may be quite an erroneous idea and only the result of not travelling. Some day that desert will have to be found out about and these minor points cleared up.

Fastidious Smokers.

Did you know," asked one member of a group who were talking of the recent Indian uprising in the Southwest, "that an Indian is much more fastidious than a white man in the matter of smoking? I saw, when I was in Montana, several of their war dances and the councils afterwards. You know they sit in a circle on the ground and pass the pipe of good-fellowship around in silence. Each man takes two or three puffs then hands the pipe to his next neighbor. But, if you notice, you will see that in the whole circuit which it makes the mouthpiece is never wet. The red man merely says the stem against his lower lip, and, keeping his mouth partly open, draws a deep breath. Removing the pipe, he exhales the smoke, and then perhaps repeats the process, but he never puts the mouthpiece into his mouth in the common 'palette' fashion. If he is asked to smoke a peace-pipe after a white man, he first wipes off the end of the pipe, where it has been in the previous smoker's mouth."

Guarding Bank of France.

Like the Bank of England, the Bank of France is now guarded every night by soldiers, without the exception of time when the bank resorted to a quite novel method of protecting their bullion.

This consisted in engaging masons to wall up the doors of the vaults in the cellar with hydraulic mortar as soon as the money was deposited each day in these receptacles. The water was then turned on and kept running until the whole cellar was flooded. A burglar would be obliged to work in a diving suit and break down a cement wall before he could even begin to plunder the vaults.

When the bank officials arrived next morning the water was drawn off, the masonry torn down, and the vaults opened.

The Energetic Collector.

New York thrives with collectors of "worthless" accounts, and they are worse than a pack of hounds after a sick fox in a stubble field. Their ways are peculiar. One very successful fellow writes a polite note to the debtor. Receiving no response he writes a second time, in style somewhat formal. Nothing doing, as the phrase goes, he makes a personal call and is in all probability kicked down stairs or threatened with personal violence. Corporal punishment only ages him on to renewed exertions. His next letter is addressed in scarlet ink, the handwriting being so big as to attract attention across the street. The language is quite as fierce as the chirography. It "throws a scare," and a settlement usually follows.

Statistics show that the longest-lived people eat the heartiest breakfasts.

A Danville (Ill.) hen recently laid her thousandth egg. This is believed to be the record.

Favors Covered Pails.

The advantages of using covered pails with small openings are apparent from the fact that one of the most prolific causes of contamination is from the cow and stable at the time of milking. When these small pails were first introduced into my stables the men claimed that they could not milk into them, but when one of them was reminded that one of his diversions was milking into the mouth of a cat sitting upon her hind legs his objection was readily overcome.—F. B. Dawley.

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds Of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed. Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains.

Backache, sidesache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. Diabetes, Bright's disease follows.

W. K. Norris, Norris Hotel, Boston, Md., says: "I suffered severely for some years with weak kidneys, constant backache with shooting pains across my loins and a weakness that was sickening. The slightest exertion would cause me to become so weak that I could hardly get about. Nights of sleeplessness on account of pains and too frequent passage of the secretions caused me to become run down in general health. I suffered this way for a long time although I was being treated by a physician. I was advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, he stating that he had been cured by their use, of practically the same complaint. I procured a supply at a drug store and took them in accordance with the directions. A short treatment effected a complete cure and I have had no return of the trouble since that time. I can gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from any form of kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

In all the various weaknesses, displacements, prostrations, inflammation and debilitating, catarrhal drains and in all cases of nervousness and debility, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most efficient remedy that can possibly be used. It has to its credit hundreds of thousands of cures—more in fact than any other remedy put up for sale through druggists, especially for women's use. The ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is composed have received the most positive endorsement from the leading medical writers on Materia Medica of all the several schools of practice. All the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper enclosing the bottle, so that any woman making use of this famous medicine may know exactly what she is taking. Dr. Pierce takes his patients into his full confidence, which he can afford to do as the formula after which the "Favorite Prescription" is made will bear the most careful examination.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best and safest laxative for women.

Many sufferers from nasal catarrh say they get splendid results by using an atomizer. For their benefit we prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Except that it is liquid it is in all respects like the healing helpful, pain allaying Cream Balm that the public has been familiar with for years. No cocaine or other dangerous drug in it. The soothing spray is a remedy that relieves at once. All druggists, 75c., including spraying tube or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

"Doan's Ointment cured me of eczema that had annoyed me a long time. The cure was permanent."—Hon. S. W. Matthews, Commissioner Labor Statistics, Augusta, Me.

DOCTOR ADVISED

After Other Treatment Failed—
Eczema in Raw Spot on Baby
Boy's Face Lasted for Months—
Cried with Pain when Washed.

ECZEMA WAS CURED AND HAS NEVER REAPPEARED

"Our baby boy broke out with eczema on his face when one month old. One place on the side of his face the size of a nickel was raw like beef-steak for three months, and he would cry out when I bathed the parts that were sore and broken out. I gave him three months' treatment from a good doctor, but at the end of that time the child was no better. Then my doctor recommended Cuticura. After using a cake of Cuticura Soap, a third of a box of Cuticura Ointment, and half a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent he was well and his face was as smooth as any baby's. He is now two years and a half old and no eczema has reappeared. I am still using the Cuticura Soap; I think it is the finest toilet soap I ever used. I keep my little girl's hair and face cleaned with it too. I am so thankful for what Cuticura has done for us."—Mrs. M. L. Harris, R. F. D. 1, Alton, Kan., May 14 and June 12, '07.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery"—was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famous "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the highest scientific endorsement from the leading medical authorities of the world, and are the basis of the "Golden Medical Discovery," a medicine which has been compiled by Dr. J. C. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

HALF TRUTHS WHOLE LIES.

July 5, '08—(1 Sam. 8:10-22.)

Many people do not distinguish between fact and truth. There is an infinite difference between them. Fact is the thing done, the thing visible, the thing that has shape, and that can be approached and touched. Truth is the thing that underlies it. We must know the truth before we can understand the fact.

Many a case has been settled according to the judgment of men based upon the facts revealed. And the decision has been eternally wrong because the truth has been suppressed. The facts have been as stated, there is no denying that, they have not been controverted nor overthrown. They have been abundantly supported by unimpeachable witnesses, who have sworn to them with all sincerity. And yet the whole thing has been a lie, an outrage, an injustice, a triumph of the lie, because the underlying truth in the case has not been uncovered. Man looketh on the outward appearance, judgeth the kernel by the shell and so rendereth an unjust verdict.

A striking illustration of this ability to deceive is found in the history of the Jewish nation. For hundreds of years the government had been a theocracy. From the days of Moses to the days of Samuel a succession of great men had led the people forward and upward, the whole nation, practically an ecclesiastical organization, a twelve-tribed church, owning allegiance strictly and unitedly to the rule of the Almighty. But near the close of Samuel's long career, as priest and civil governor, the people backslid from their pious position and began to look with envious eyes on the nations that surrounded them. They coveted the spectacular splendors of royalty and were bitten with desire to become like other people.

So they began to look around for an excuse for a change in political power. And it did not take them long to find it. The sons of Samuel who would naturally succeed their father as he head of the nation were licentious rascals and their influence was already demoralizing the people. When the elders of Israel saw this a outcry they said, "Here is a point of fact which cannot be denied." And they pulled on a pious face and came to Samuel saying, "Behold thou art old and thy sons walk not in thy ways; now make us a king to judge us like all the nations." That was the point of fact. But the truth was that he did not care the point of a pin about the morals of Samuel's sons. Professing to be deeply concerned about it and that only a king could save them from it, they were extremely glad to seize upon anything that would seem to give a good coloring to their case. The truth is they had decided to throw off the ancient form of God's government and have a king like other people whether or no, and they attempted to throw dust in Samuel's eyes, by bringing forward as an explanation the undeniable fact that his sons were so corrupt they had to do it to save the country.

The old prophet Samuel was deeply grieved at the implied condemnation of his lack of government but the Almighty reassured him with exposing the truth of the matter. "They have not rejected you," said God, "they have turned away from me." But what subject is offered here for consideration as it applies to every day affairs. How necessary that we should judge not altogether from the facts in any case. "Judge not from outward appearance," said Christ, "but judge righteous judgment." That is, get the truth underlying the facts if possible, and if not possible withhold judgment. Oaths in court do not always tell all the truth, affidavits do not do it. A man may honestly tell what he has seen with his own eyes, on the face of it the most damning evidence, and yet his testimony may be a lie as black as perdition. Oh, the great world of excuses! Oh, the faces which wear a mask! Oh, the visors and disguises which are set upon life in order to conceal its corruption, its depravity, its death! In the case before us the hand of God ripped off the hypocritical covering of the elders, but in many cases now, eternity alone will reveal the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

What a difference it would make if it were otherwise. Supposing a man were to be allowed to tell his own story and sit down in smug satisfaction at having stated the facts. Then suddenly the voice of Him who knows the heart should become a loud like a flaming thunderbolt. "Now I will tell the truth; you have made an excuse into a reason; you have lied; your case looks well, but I pour the sunlight of truths through every fibre of thy being and brand thee a liar and blasphemer! Do you think deceivers would be so numerous if it were likely to happen? It is only because such a contingency is not possible that the inconsistencies and immoralities of men do not often appear.

Mr. Harden is right: it's the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back, and all run-down conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at John M. WRINKLES TO ORDER

MONEY, WORRY, DISCONTENT
AUTOS, ALL BRING THEM.

The Skin of the Face Like a Sheet of Tissue Paper—All Kinds of Trouble Make Each Its Special Mark on It.

The beauty doctor took a piece of tissue paper in her hand, crinkled it up and threw it on the table. It lay, a crinkled mass.

"That," said she, "is the way the skin looks. Wrinkles may come slowly, or they may come suddenly. There is no rule which covers the wrinkles. It may take a year to develop in a woman's face or it may come in a night.

"Wrinkles are chiefly of three kinds. The most common are the spiderlike traces around the eyes and at the corners of the mouth. The housewife who puzzles over her weekly accounts gets them just as certainly as the woman of affairs.

"Women who worry have a queer set of wrinkles, which are not to be compared to wrinkles caused by anything else in all the wide world. They may run all over the face and they are apt to be particularly deep and disagreeing.

"The woman who lives a discontented life will have furrows going almost from the corners of the eyes down to her chin; she will have deep lines reaching from the corners of her mouth to her neck, and there will be ugly creases around her ears.

"There are muscles in the face which are influenced by a bad temper. The woman who sets her teeth in a determined way will make her jaws ugly. The habit will broaden her face, make her lips narrow and make a great many curves around the corners of her mouth and about the tip of her chin.

"The eyes of the discontented woman have a dull, tired look, and this means wrinkles around the eyes and bags under them.

"Automobiles are responsible for a great many lines that are not to be classified in any other way except as auto lines. One of my customers has the automobile countenance.

"Between her eyes there are three up and down wrinkles that look almost like herculean lines. They are just such creases as the clown paints on his forehead when he wants to make his eyes look queer.

"It was eye strain," she explained as she lifted her veil and showed me the wrinkles. "I looked right straight ahead at the glaring white road until these came into my face.

"The first step in removing automobile wrinkles is steaming the countenance. I take a little electric stove and I put a basin of warm water upon it, and as the water heats I let the woman hold her face over its steam. The vapor penetrates the cuticle and softens it, and then I spray her face with hot water to take out the dirt.

"Most wrinkles are caused by dirt, but if you tell a woman this she will get angry. But if you were to soften her face with a little warm water or steam and spread a little of soap or soap jelly over it and then wipe the whole thing off with some hot water both you and she would notice a great difference in her complexion.

"Most women are afraid of soap. They think it poisons the skin and they don't stop to reason that soap may be very good—if it is good soap.

"Most women go out too soon after washing the face, and this is the cause of a great many wrinkles. A woman after washing her face should stay indoors until her face has had time to cool, so that it is not subjected to a sudden change of temperature.

"If it is absolutely necessary to go out she may rub a little Cologne over her face to tighten the pores, or she can touch it with benzoin and water. Or, if she is a wise woman, she will keep a raw cucumber in the house with which to strengthen the skin against the quick changes of temperature.

"There is a professional beauty in New York whose dressing table resembles a vegetable stand. There is a cut lemon with which she takes off stains.

"The lemon is mixed, half and half, with water, followed by a touch of cold cream. In this way she wards off ugly little lines on the forehead and beneath the eyes.

"She rubs her face during the strawberry season with the pure juice of the strawberry, which makes her look pink and pleasant. She has a vegetable for almost every condition of the skin.

"If her forehead is furrowed with auto lines or creases she uses a cucumber and cutting it in running slices, she binds the places on her face, letting the juice dry in. The skin for a while has a queer, stiff feeling, but a little massage will limber it up.

"Few women realize that the skin is like a piece of tissue paper. It creases readily and the fine lines remain until they are rubbed out. They can be ironed out with a warm iron which should, however, be used over a damp cloth so as not to injure the tissue, or they can be rubbed out with the tips of the fingers.

"It is a good thing to experiment with tissue paper if you want to know how your skin will act under certain conditions.

Boy's Life Saved.
My little boy, four years old, had a severe attack of dysentery. We had two physicians, both of them gave him up. We then gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him and believe that saved his life.—William H. Stroiling, Carbon Hill, Ala. There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it with caution according to the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

LATEST SWIMMING MACHINE.

Closely Resembles a Bicycle in the Water.

Swimming machines, which in one form or another have appeared at intervals during the past few years, seem likely to become quite popular next season. The most interesting invention of this type recently patented is shown here. In this swimming machine the frame is constructed of tubing, bent into the form of a narrow ellipse. Within the frame is a cigar-shaped float, which buoyantly supports the swimmer in an outstretched position.

Foot-Propelled.

Extending from the rear of the frame is a rod carrying a small propeller, which is operated by the foot pedals journaled near the rear end of the frame. The position taken by the swimmer is clearly shown in the illustration, the steering being by means of a rudder operated by the hands. This machine should certainly appeal to all lovers of aquatic sports.

Torture Rooms in Russia.

Are the torture chambers of the middle ages to be found in Russia to-day? According to the Anglo-Russian magazine published in London, they are. The Anglo-Russian says: "From independent Russian, German, French and English sources come heart-sickening accounts of systematic tortures practiced in Russian prisons upon 'political' with the object of compelling them to betray their friends and supporters. For a long time such tortures have been reported from various prisons all over the empire, but the worst atrocities seem to be habitually perpetrated in the prisons of Poland and the Baltic provinces.

"In Riga, for instance, a special chamber has been fitted up with all the instruments of torture known to the inquisition of old. Rubber sticks, long pins, plinchers, a rack, and so forth, are used in the process of making the victim 'confess,' and all this not only by permission of the higher local authorities, but frequently even in their presence and under their personal guidance. Such things as knocking out the teeth, tearing out the hair and pieces of flesh are ordinary usage.

"Camille Huysman states in the Parisian Le Peuple as a positive fact that women are not exempted from these tortures, that in their case a red-hot iron is mostly used as the instrument for inflicting pain. No torture in Russia is legally inflicted without the knowledge and permission of the central government in St. Petersburg, which in such cases never acts without the sanction of the czar himself."

"Strangers in New York often comment on the number of stout women they meet, and I believe this is largely due to flat house and apartment life." remarked a physician with a large family practice. "Take the woman, for instance, who lives on the top floor of a house without an elevator, and if she is of a phlegmatic nature a week or more will pass without her leaving the house. I have some patients or mothers of patients who admit that Sunday or Saturday is the only day in the week when they go out. Even with housework to do in the average New York flat a woman does not secure exercise of the right sort to keep down her flesh. In the suburbs or the small cities the housewife climbs the stairs, one of the best exercises for reducing flesh, and she goes to market daily. Here in New York the average flat house has no more than a 30-foot hall to traverse if she wants to visit a neighbor, and she does her ordering through her husband or children. This statement will be confirmed by any grocer, baker or manager of a delicatessen shop. Children become very shrewd shoppers, while their mothers take on superfluous flesh."

—New York Press.

High Grade Chinese Tea.
"Many of the highest-grade Chinese teas never leave the country—that is, are never exported in commercial quantities," says a writer, "Tea specialists in Europe and America manage to obtain specimens through corresponding firms in Chinese export centers, but these samples are not for sale. These rare teas are preserved for occasional comparison and testing with the general commercial teas. They are known as 'unexported teas.' I have known of only one person outside of the tea-producing countries who supplies the trade or the general public with specimens of the rare teas. His prices range from $75 to $100 a pound.

NEW PERFECTION

is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is the ideal lamp for family use, convenient, economical and a great light-giver. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Wer'e Hitting 'Em Again.

Lacy Thoroughgood's Reduction Sale last week brought the customers in such numbers that Thoroughgood has decided to loosen up some more and make it a stampede for the rest of the season. Step in and see what you can get for little money. Now's your chance. Five hundred suits of the finest clothing that ever came to Salisbury, made to sell for $18.50, $20, $22.50 and $25, and even more. In this sale not a suit over $18.50, and the $18.50 suits $15 now. Lacy Thoroughgood sells the best clothes in Salisbury; every man and boy knows that. The temptations of the clothing business to cheat are countless. To sell only the best goods at fair prices requires iron will and strict stepping in the path of straight methods, and the avoidance of the slightest semblance of humbug. Year by year Thoroughgood has fought for a good reputation and conquered, until today he stands first in the estimation, confidence and good-will of thousands of the best people in this section.

$30.00 Suits for.....$18.50
$25.00 Suits for.....$15.00
$20.00 Suits for.....$15.00
$19.00 Suits for.....$14.00
$18.50 Suits for.....$13.50
$16.50 Suits for.....$12.00
$15.00 Suits for.....$10.00

It doesn't happen many times in a lifetime. Why are they here now? Because business in the large cities is very dull and the merchants that these suits were made for could not take them. Thoroughgood's business is better now than in twenty years.

CHAPTER XII.

ALWYN BENNETT sat in his own study at home in the big Bennett house that remained as almost the last landmark of that solid middle nineteenth century wealth and fashion which had once dominated a neighborhood now given over to office buildings and apartment houses.

The hour was late. Alwyn and more had passed since the young man and his mother had returned from the administration ball. The house was silent, and even the usually busy streets outside were wrapped in the hush that never falls until after midnight and is dispersed by the gray of dawn. Late as it was Alwyn had made no move to discard his evening clothes. Alone he sat, his head resting between his crossed arms on the desk before him.

Motionless, inert, hopeless, he had remained there ever since his arrival from the ball. But if his body was motionless, his brain was awfully busy. He would be able to see no light in the tangle of events into which his own sense of right had plunged him. He saw the future stretching out before him dreary and barren as a rainy sea.

Through all of his months of battling he had ever struggled forward through increasing difficulties toward one bright goal—Dallars' love. And now that goal was snatched from his grasp, through no fault of his own, and bestowed on a man unworthy to kiss the hem of her garment.

At each step in the long climb Alwyn had asked himself, "Would she approve?" And now through trying to be worthy that approval he had forever lost it. For Dallars, he knew, had not only rejected him and engaged herself to Gibbs, but had done so with the belief that Bennett was a heartless, unscrupulous intriguer, unbecomingly of a good woman's regard.

A rap at the door aroused Bennett from his bitter thoughts. He lifted his head and saw a servant enter. A drowsy servant came in with a card. "He says it's important business, sir," said the footman. "And he wishes to see you at once, if possible."

"Show him up," answered Bennett, dropping his voice so as not to disturb his mother, who slept on the same floor. "I will see him here."

A minute later Horrigan's bulky form blocked the threshold. "Quar time of night for a call," he observed casually, as he entered uninvited, closed the door behind him and took a chair, "but my business wouldn't wait."

"Then state it as briefly as you can," directed Bennett, making no move to rise or welcome his unbidden guest.

"It's very late, and I am tired."

"I've come to see you about our Borough bill."

"So I supposed."

"You won't call off your dog against us?"

"That question is hardly worth answering, No."

"I thought not. Well, Mr. Alwyn Bennett, I've got you! I've got you! Do you understand me?"

"Perfectly. Is that all?"

"No, it ain't all," mimicked the boss. "And I'm in earnest. I've got you where I want you."

"That doesn't interest me. If you've nothing else to say—"

"But I have," chuckled Horrigan. "When it came to a showdown between us two I put a staff of men to looking up your record."

"You found nothing you could use. Is that?"

"No; it isn't even the beginning. Then I remembered about your father."

"About my father?"

It grated on Bennett that his dead father's, honored name should be spoken by this low politician, but before he could protest more forcibly Horrigan went on:

"What'd you think if I said your father was a grafter—one of the worst of his time?"

"I'd say you lied," answered Bennett calmly, "and I'd drive the foul lie down your throat with my fist. You'll have to think of some better scheme than that."

"Do you think I'd be idiot enough to come here with the story if I didn't have full proof of it?" asked Horrigan in contempt.

And, despite himself, Alwyn saw the man was speaking what he believed to be the truth. He paused in his impulsive forward move, rechecked himself and asked coldly:

"What so-called 'proof' have you been fooling by your heebers into thinking?"

"Don't believe me, hey? Well, you will fast enough before I'm done. Unless you're afraid of what I've got to say."

"I'm not afraid of anything you can say. The highest tribute to my father's memory is the fact that a cur like you cannot defile it. Go on. I'll listen to you."

"Very good," said Horrigan, quite unmoved. "I'll make it as short as I can. I remembered your father got rich pretty quick. He was a member of the organization, and his firm got the jobs of building the aqueduct and the new library. That gave me my clew. I looked up the specifications for both jobs, and I turned them over to the old engineering firm of Morris & Cherrington. You know the firm, perhaps. If you don't, you can look them up. They don't belong to the organization; they're the best experts in their line, and they can't be juggled with."

"I know them. Go on."

"I paid them a fancy sum to go over those specifications and then examine the library and the aqueduct and see if they were up to the mark or if the city'd been cheated by the Bennett Contracting company. I had a strong idea I was right, but I wouldn't speak till I had the proof. When I got home after the ball tonight I found the Morris & Cherrington report waiting for me. I brought a copy of it along with me."

"Well," asked Bennett indifferently, "what then?"

"Here's the copy of the report. Look it over for yourself. The crookedest job ever pulled off in this city! Third rate material, when the material called for in the specifications was used at all. Granite shell filled with mortar instead of solid granite; foundations barely filled the depth called for; inferior tiles placed in place of the best; cheap, crumbly iron and steel instead of first quality—oh, there's fifty such substitutions and frauds! It's the rawest, bummiest job I ever heard of. If any of the organization tried it now, the men who did it would be wearing stripes in a week. Graft, hey? Why, your father was the boss grafter of the century, the star grafter of the bunch! He?"

"Hush! For God's sake, hush!" pouted Alwyn. "My mother sleeps only a few rooms beyond. I—"

"What do I care?" roared Horrigan in triumph. "Let everybody hear! The whole world is going to hear it! You see that Borough franchise bill goes through. Beat that bill and every paper in the country will have that report to publish. Stop your fight against us and the report is buried. That goes! See? Now, do as you please about the bill. You're a fine man to preach about graft, you are! The roof over your head, the clothes on your back, were bought with graft money!"

Bennett scarcely heeded the coarse insult, but that Borough franchise bill, that Horrigan's grating of good-by and the clump of his departing feet on the stairs. The young man sat, lost, hopeless, horror gripped, his eyes running mechanically over the closely typewritten pages of the engineer's report. Outraged as he was in matters of practical business, Alwyn could see that Horrigan had in no way exaggerated the document's contents. He knew, too, that the firm of engineers who had drawn up the report were the foremost of their sort and above all shadow of suspicion.

Little by little the numbness lifted from his brain, and in its place crept a horrible conviction of the truth. His father—the gallant young soldier who had won a nation's applause in the civil war—the man who, poor and unaided, had built up a fortune against keenest competition and had earned a reputation for sterling probity which had even been the delight and model of his son—this was the man whom a low blackguard like Horrigan now had the right to revile—a man apparently no better than the boss himself—than any dishonest heeler in the organization!

And, as if it were not enough that the idol of a lifetime were hurled, crushed and defiled, from its bright pedestal, the family name must next be dragged through the mire of political filth and ill repute and the dead man's memory forever blasted. Either that or his son must withdraw from the gallant fight he was waging against civic corruption, for that Horrigan would carry out his threat and blast forth to the world the story and profits of the older Bennett's shame Alwyn had no doubt. With all his faults the boss was a man of his word.

"Stop your fight against us," Horrigan had said, "and the report is buried."

Yes, the boss was a man of his word. Even Bennett admitted that. He would fulfill his promise in either event.

Listlessly Alwyn began to review the case. On the one side perhaps Quixotic fight for an abstract principle—a fight whose reward was political death, loss of the woman he adored, family shame that might crush his fragile old mother to the very grave. On the other wealth, honor, love, the governorship, a future happy and glorious.

Was he not a fool to hesitate? Had he not saved his conscience sufficiently by vetoing the Borough franchise bill? Had he the right to bring this new shame upon his mother's gray head? Where lay his highest duty?

The soft rustling of silk and a hand laid in light caress upon his head aroused the miserable man from his reflections.

Bennett looked up to see his mother standing beside him. She had thrown on a wrapper and its slippers feet had stolen noiselessly into the study.

"I was awakened by voices," she explained. "I thought I heard some one talking excitedly in here. Is anything the matter?"

"Nothing, nothing dear," he answered gently, drawing the little old lady affectionately down to a seat on his knee and smiling mantfully into her sleep flushed face; "nothing is the matter. Only a business call."

"A business call at 2 o'clock in the morning!" she exclaimed. "Dear boy, you are working too hard. Your father never brought his business worries and work home. He always left them at the office. Can't you do the same? You'll wear yourself out."

"My father"—began Bennett, but the name choked him.

"You are growing to be so much like him," went on Mrs. Bennett fondly. "And it makes me so happy that you are. Your splendid fight against that infamous Borough bill, for instance. How proud he would have been of that! It is just the sort of thing he himself would have done in your place. He was surrounded with wicked and dishonest men just as you are. But through it all he remained true, honorable, incorruptible. What a grand heritage for my son! He—Alwyn!"

She broke off, alarmed, "why do you look at me that way? I never saw such a look in your eyes before. Are you ill? Has something happened that you are keeping from me?"

"No, no," staved Bennett. "I only—"

"You had a caller here before I came in," pursued the mother, refusing to abandon the clew to which her womanly intuition had led her. "He brought you bad news? Tell me, dear! I'm your mother, and I love you."

"You are making my course more difficult for me by asking such questions, mother," he answered wretchedly. "I—"

"I only want to help you, Alwyn. I can't bear to see you miserable. A woman's wit and a mother's love are often a combination that can solve problems beyond even the wisest man's powers of logic. Let me help you."

"I was trying to make up my mind," vaguely replied Bennett, sorely distressed by her pleading, "whether a man ought to follow his conscience, even if it leads to heartbreak for those he loves, or whether he ought to let conscience go by the board for once and protect the happiness of his loved ones."

"Alwyn! How can you hesitate a second over such a question. One must do right, no matter what the consequences."

"I don't know about that," he said moodily.

"You know it perfectly well. It is what your father would have advised—and But, Alwyn, you surely are not making yourself unhappy over a mere supposititious case?"

"Well," he continued, "let us take a 'mere supposititious case' if you like. Suppose, for instance, that a man holding a position of trust had had a father whose memory he honored and revered as I do my own father's?"

"Yes?" prompted Mrs. Bennett as he paused.

"Suppose some one tempts him to betray his position of trust, even as I have lately been tempted, and threatens in case of his refusal to make public certain facts which would prove him dishonest?"

"I don't know about that," he said moodily.

POTASH

Look at your wheat and rye—study them well before cutting.

Too much stalk and leaf in proportion to your grain, means too much nitrogen in your soil.

Use fertilizers with at least 6 per cent of Potash. A stronger stalk and heavier head will be the result. But most fertilizers are too low in Potash, and if you cannot get the right brand, then make your brand complete by adding 15 pounds of Muriate of Potash to each 100 pounds of your mixture.

Complete fertilizer (3-6-6) means best crops and biggest profit.

Every agent sells phosphate. Few carry Potash in stock. Arrange for Potash now. Potash is profit.

Send for our books containing facts about soil, crops, manures and fertilizers. Mailed free.

Over Thirty Five Years.

In 1873 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy of treatment, and has for thirty five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use had extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Would Have Saved Him $100.00.

"In 1903 I had a very severe attack of diarrhoea," says R. N. Farrar of Oak Island, La. "For several weeks I was unable to do anything. On March 18, 1907, I had a similar attack and took Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which gave me prompt relief. I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1903 I believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill." Sold by at Toulson's Drug Store.

Bad Burn Quickly Healed.

"I am so delighted with what Chamberlain's Salve has done for me that I feel bound to write and tell you so," says Mrs. Robert Mytton, 457 John St., Hamilton, Ontario. "My little daughter had a bad burn on her knee. I applied Chamberlain's Salve and it healed beautifully." This salve allays the pain of a burn almost instantly. It is for sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

Best The World Affords.

"It gives me unbounded pleasure to recommend Bucklen's Arnica Salve," says J. W. Jenkins, of Chaple Hill, N. C. "I am convinced its the best salve the world affords. What Permanent Roads Will Do For Wicomico County.

As a citizen of Wicomico County, I feel it my duty to speak in behalf of the permanent road to be built by the State Highway Commission, which met in our city last Tuesday in order to ascertain from our citizens the desired route of this contemplated improvement in roads.

As a Real Estate Broker, and one who travels the county daily, I think that I am in a position when I say, that this permanent stone road that is going to be constructed by the State, will mean more for the citizens of Wicomico County in the way of convenience, and more particularly in the way of a monetary consideration, than any internal public improvement that could be made within our midst. Our roads are sandy and heavy; Salisbury being located in the middle section of our County, it necessarily means when our rural friends desire to come to the County town, a long, weary and heavy drive. With the roads in their present condition, the farmers have no incentive to come to Salisbury, whereby Salisbury misses much trade and necessarily loses the association of our country friends that it would otherwise have, if the roads were in condition to travel upon.

Our public roads are very bad at their best. They are not neglected by our county authorities but instead nature has endowed us with plenty of sand, which inure to our benefit for growing purposes, but which is a great hindrance to travel and road building.

It is my business to bring strangers within our midst, and in doing so we all must realize that our County must offer the inducements in the way of public improvement and convenience to the newcomer in order to have him locate with us. The greatest obstacle in the way of selling Wicomico County lands has been the condition of our roads, not those which are now constructed of shells, but those lateral roads which lead from the shell roads. In many of the letters received from Northern and western people who desire to locate with us and purchase a home they inquire the condition of our public roads.

I have to admit the true state of affairs, and in many instances I hear nothing further from the prospective buyer. With this road condition somewhat relieved by the construction of thirty miles of permanent road within our county, I will frankly say that many of our "land poor" farmers, can be greatly benefited and rural property will greatly enhance in value. I desire to see our people get the value of their land, and with this proposed road, along with our kind and rich soil which nature has so generously endowed us with, predict, after the construction of this State Road, that Wicomico County will improve more rapidly than any other County on the "Eastern Shore," thus raising the taxable basis which will assist us greatly in constructing lateral roads from this permanent road which is to be built. I do not desire to suggest where this road should be laid out, but will say that it will surely serve its purpose, no matter in what direction the Commission may select for its course.

I personally feel very enthusiastic over the proposed construction of this road, for I know I will be able to induce many more northern and western people to purchase homes and locate within our midst. In making my sales of real estate I desire to have locate with us people of some means, in order that they may improve their land, and be a credit to the section within which they live. I am for Wicomico County, my birth place and my home, and in all my career, the Salisbury street paving and this proposed State road for our County, is by far the greatest step in progress and advancement that has been made in our County. Progressiveness is the stepping stone to prosperity and happiness.

Do not be led astray by alluring advertisements of our competitors that are selling goods below cost and are not looking for any profit. That's too good to be true. But intelligent people of the twentieth century would not want those goods for a song.

THE PATIENT

The young man looked unusually determined. That is the way it struck the old man, who said: "Eh! Well, it's lying in the face of your uncle. It's—It's—why, confound it, young man, do you realize what I've done for you?"

"I think I do, uncle. But when it comes to choosing a wife it seems to me that I ought to do a little something for myself."

"That's what you think, is it? Well, you have no right to think anything of the kind. I don't want you to marry until I can approve your choice. There's no hurry. Who is the girl?"

"Her name is Spencer. She has been a school teacher. She lives on Landon street."

"Any family?"

"One mother, sir."

"Again the old man glared at him. 'Poor!'"

"From your point of view, yes, sir."

The old man drew his bushy gray eyebrows down. "Does she know you are entirely dependent on me?"

"I have told her of all your kindness, sir."

"And you have told her that I object to her?"

"I can't tell her that, uncle—at least, not until you have seen her."

The old man thumped his desk. "By gravity," he cried, "I'll go and see her! I'll give her to understand just what the situation is."

"Very well, uncle. I've prepared her for your coming."

The old man scowled. "Give me her address," he snapped.

The young man picked up a half sheet of paper and wrote the desired information.

As soon as his nephew left the room he started for the street. It was a ten-minute walk to the proper car line. With arm upraised he signaled the motorman to stop. A heavy truck was approaching, and to avoid it the old man ran out in the street. As he did so a light motor vehicle whirled round the corner, struck him and he fell heavily and lay quite still.

He was carried into a drug store. The druggist saw a folded slip of paper projecting from the injured man's pocket.

"Looks as if it might be his address," he said.

The sufferer stirred a little and opened his eyes. "Don't take me to the hospital," he feebly murmured. "Take me home."

"Home it is," the ambulance man replied as he glanced at the slip of paper. A moment later he was speeding toward Landon street.

There was only the maid of all work at the cottage when they reached there. She was a new arrival and she stood helplessly by when the ambulance crew carried the old man upstairs and placed him on the bed in the front room.

Half an hour later Mabel Spencer returned with her mother. The girl met her at the door.

"Da man is upstairs," she excitedly murmured.

"What man?"

"Da man who is sick. He is with doctor. Two men bring him in black wagon. They look at paper. They say this is the place. I get brassy. I get the doctor. See, he is coming."

The astonished woman looked toward the medical man, who was descending the stairs.

"Old you've come," he said.

"Your friend is resting easily just at present, but he needs constant attention. He's had a hard fall and severe shock and at his age these things are always serious."

"But we don't understand, doctor," said Mabel. "Who is the man and why is he here?"

"Eh! He started at her. 'Come upstairs,' he said.

"I never saw him before," she whispered.

The doctor frowned. "Must have been brought here through some stupid mistake," he said. "Anyhow, he can't be removed before to-morrow. I wouldn't answer for the consequences."

The girl removed her hat and jacket.

"Of course he stays," she said. "Tell me what to do."

That evening John Denton called at the usual time, and was a little surprised at the long white apron in which Mabel appeared.

"Why," he said, "you look like a nurse—and a very charming nurse at that."

"I am a nurse, John. Something very strange has happened. An old man was brought here in an ambulance this afternoon while mother and I were away. He had been hurt and was in a serious condition."

John Denton anxiously interrupted her. "Can I see him, Mabel?"

"Of course. He hasn't fully recovered consciousness, but the doctor thinks he will before long."

John Denton advanced to the bed. The heavy eyelids opened.

"Hello, John," said the feeble voice.

"Hello, uncle."

"I think not, uncle. Rest and quiet will bring you round all right."

The gray eyes rolled about. "I told them not to take me to a hospital. But I suppose there was nowhere else. It looks like a nice room. Is that the nurse there?"

Before John could reply Mabel was at the bedside.

"I am the nurse," she answered.

"This is very strange," John whispered. "He wasn't at dinner at the hotel to-night, but sometimes he stays away. Of course, I didn't dream he could be here. But I remember now that I gave him your address on a slip of paper—he said he would call on you—and it looks as if the ambulance man supposed it to be his home. And now what's to be done?"

"He will stay here, of course, until he is well."

"But the care and anxiety, Mabel."

"I think of what he has done for you, John. And he is your uncle. Don't worry, dear. We will get along all right. He thinks he's at a hospital."

John suddenly smiled.

"Perhaps that would be better. He is a little prejudiced against Mabel Spencer, you know."

A restless movement from the sleeper drew the girl quickly to the bedside. "Are you there, nurse?"

She put her cool hand on the old man's brow. "You have a nice voice and a soft hand," said the quivering voice. "Don't go away."

"I will stay right here."

The invalid steadily regained his strength. And then one day he had an alarming setback. It was an attack of heart failure. But when John reached the house the patient was sitting up smiling.

"Glad you came, John," he said. "The danger is over for the present, but it has set me to thinking pretty hard. Will you leave me with him for a minute, Mabel?" The girl smilingly nodded as she left the room.

"Now, John."

"There's a little matter that's on my mind. I want it settled right away. I told you the other day that I didn't think you treated Mabel as she deserved. Since then I've noticed a change in your demeanor toward her. I'm glad of it. I want you to marry that girl, John."

"Marry her, uncle?"

"Why not? She's the very girl for you. And then she's too good a nurse to lose out of the family. What do you say?"

"What does she say?"

"I don't know. I think she feels friendly. I've done my best to put you in a favorable light. Call her in and we'll find out."

"Come here, Mabel, please," said the old man. "You know I've had a warning, and there's no telling when I'll get something worse." The girl came forward and stood by the bedside. Mabel, my dear, what do you think of my nephew here?"

The girl's eyes opened wide. "I don't quite understand," she said.

"Do you think well enough of him to marry him?"

"I don't think well enough of me to ask me to marry him?"

"That isn't the question," said the old man. "But I'll ask him. Do you John?"

"If you wish it, uncle."

"Confound you, that's not the way to answer. She's a great deal too good for you. Will you marry him if I ask you to, my dear?"

The girl smilingly nodded.

John rolled his eyes toward the girl. "Wait, uncle. I want to tell you something." He paused and suddenly laughed. "This is the girl, uncle."

"What girl?"

"The girl I told you about, Mabel Spencer. The girl you started to see when the motor ran you down."

The old man stared at him.

"What's that? Why, you didn't say anything about her being a nurse. You—you said she was a school teacher."

"She's not a professional nurse, uncle."

"Eh! Isn't this a hospital?"

"No, uncle. This is Mabel's home."

He stared at them in silence. Then he scowled darkly.

"Well, bless you for a pair of grinning plotters!" he growled.

"Aren't you ashamed to take such an understanding advantage of a poor old man when he's down?"

And then he suddenly smiled.

PASSED FOR CURRENCY

Pearl Oyster, Extensively Employed in Manufacturing—Semi-Transparent Shells Used for Windows in China—Closely Connected With the Hindu Religion.

Civilized man at the present day has but little use for the shells of mollusks except as buttons, ornamental souvenirs and as eggshells forming food for poultry. For many hundreds of years shells of various kinds have passed as currency among the savages and even among semi-civilized races. The first known mention of the use of shells as money is in an ancient Hindu work on mathematics where this problem is given: "The $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1-6 of 1-5 of $\frac{3}{4}$ of $\frac{2}{3}$ of a dramma was given to a beggar by one from whom he asks an alms; tell me how many cowry shells the miser gave." This money cowry is a little oval yellow and white shell and in many places in west Africa it is still in use, tons of them being brought from England to that country for purposes of trade.

All of the sandalwood brought to China is paid for with small shells, and in certain islands of the Pacific shells alone are allowed to be bargained for in this currency. When the Hudson Bay Company began trading for furs with the Indians of the Northwest, a kind of long, tubular, horn-like shell was used as money, but this soon gave place to blankets. These shells were of different grades—the finest corresponding to our gold coins, while the broken and smaller pieces were used like nickels and quarters. Six feet of these shells strung on a thong would purchase a slave.

Wampum as used by the Indians of our eastern coast had more right to be called money, since it was made from certain parts of the shell by a laborious process. Both purple and white wampum were pieces of the common clam shell, cut and ground into cylindrical beads and pierced so that they could be strung. In addition to their use as currency, these beads served the important function of newspapers and books; since the Indians were able to preserve records and send messages to great distances by staining the wampum various colors and arranging the beads in various patterns.

On the west coast of Scotland a curious custom once prevailed which "no doubt was generally employed along the seaboard as the most simple and ready means of barter by a non-writing population. That was, when a bargain was made, each party to the transaction got one-half of a bivalve or oyster—such as a mussel, cockle, or oyster—and when the bargain was implemented, the half that fitted exactly was given up as a receipt. Thus a man who had a box full of unfiled shells might be either a creditor or a debtor; but the box filled with fitted shells represented re- ceived accounts. Those who know the difficulty of fitting the valves of some classes of bivalves will readily acknowledge the value of this arrangement."

Almost all savage tribes use shells as ornaments, ear-rings, bracelets, necklaces, bands for the forehead, etc. Filians use heavy ones as sinkers for nets, and the sharp-edged clam shells are made to serve as knives and razors. Rare and beautiful shells, such as the orange cowry, are used as badges by chiefs of high rank.

Triton and conch shells make excellent trumpets when the lip of the whorl is broken off; and many a New England laborer has been summoned to dinner from the hay field by the same device. Metallic noise, which has roused to battle the cannibals of some tropic island in the far Pacific.

Chank-shells are worn by all Hindu as bangles and anklets and they are also closely connected with their religion. The god Vishnu always holds one of these shells in his hand.

The most important shell in use today is that of the pearl oyster. From the internal mother-of-pearl lining are made buttons, knife-handles, studs, fans, boxes, brooches and cases and the pearl inlaid work with which we are all familiar. These shells are found in the Red Sea, Persian Gulf, Queensland, Bay of Panama, and Florida beaches. Pearls are also obtained from this mollusk.

Semi-transparent shells are used as windows in houses in Canton and ground shells made good lime. As usual in that country, a medicinal use is also in vogue—persons suffering from skin diseases being bathed in water in which cockle shells have been boiled. A conch shell which has the whorl turning to the right is believed, by the Chinese, to have the power of quieting the waves when blown upon loudly. These shells, when officers of state are obliged to travel much by sea, the Emperor presents them with one of these magic conchs.

In one thousand ounces of a ur gold, there are nine hundred ounces of pure gold, ten ounces of silver, and sixty of copper.

Salisbury's New CITY DIRECTORY

Every up-to-date town or city nowadays boasts an up-to-date City Directory, giving a complete list of its grown up residents, their businesses or occupations, also their residence addresses. Consequently every professional or business man should be interested in the New City Directory for Salisbury, which is now being compiled by the representatives (Arundel and Broers) of Messrs. R. L. Polk & Co., of Baltimore, the world-known directory publishers, with over 30 branch offices throughout America, also who own more than 250 different directories, covering every State in the Union, as well as Canada.

This City Directory of Salisbury will form part of the directory for the entire Peninsula, viz: for the whole State of Delaware, together with the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, which will be published later in the year.

The publishers will greatly appreciate any assistance that may be given by the public to their representatives.

ELECTRIC LIGHT METERS

are being installed in the commercial houses just as rapidly as we can get them in and our patrons to be a little patient and we will get around to them in a short time. The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantalum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters as rapidly as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial Houses, $3.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10 cents per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights not needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Our Superintendent will give prompt attention to any complaints as to our service. We have a "trouble" man always on hand to help you out of any difficulty. Call up the Main Street office and your wants will be attended to.

THE PROPOSAL.

Having made up my mind to it I was as enthusiastic as my friends said I had been slow before. If my deliberation had been characteristic, my ardor, once it was aroused, was not less natural. I assure you, for the Biddies, mother says, have always been a cautious race, but steadfast and devoted when once they have espoused a cause.

And it is hereditary, I suppose, that never to this day have I seen anything remarkable in the fact that it took me ten years to make up my mind to propose to Sally.

It did not take me ten years to know that she was pretty, and good, and charming; but it did take me ten years to be sure that I wanted to marry her—that I admit.

Now, I haven't told a soul before—not a living soul—and if I open my lips now it's because I am tired of hearing people titter when I approach, and because I think it's about time that some one knew the truth of the whole matter.

Well, as I was saying, I had made up my mind and I went to see Sally. I was full of the subject. Never had I felt so much of a man before. I was, don't you know, lifted up. I was nervous, of course. All men are at such times, I suppose, and I don't know how I managed to get into the house.

Well, Sally came down, as pretty and darling as ever, and with a rose in her hair. She wore her gray crepe dress, and she said to me:

"You know, dear, the one she had made for Mrs. Gale's reception, with the lace and the net and the lace, I had never seen her look better—never!"

"Sally, I have something very important to say to you."

"Well, Sally came down, as pretty as ever," you said.

"Oh! I know; you came to tell me about Mimi's puppies. Elaine told me yesterday. Aren't you going to give me one of them? I think you might."

"Oh, no! It wasn't that I came to tell you; though—of course, you shall have one if you like. It was to tell you."

"It was to tell you, Sally," I said, "that you might have all of them—all seven—and Mimi, too."

I wish you wouldn't laugh at me. How else could I put it—after what she had said to me? I thought it rather clever of me, rather neat, you know—to turn the phrase into what one might call its larger sense, and so seize victory from defeat. But even then she did not understand.

She burst out laughing.

"Oh, I should like one," she said, "but what would I do with all seven, and Mimi?"

And she went on laughing at the notion until I was quite—oh, quite discomfited, you know.

"Sally, I said, 'you persist in misconstruing my intentions.'"

"Why," she replied, "I thought you offered me all seven and Mimi."

"So I did, Sally, in a way," I said.

"Oh," she said, "then it was an Indian gift, was it?"

"An Indian gift?" I repeated, perplexed.

"Yes; a gift with a string to it. And what is the string, Freddie. Do tell me! I want to know!"

"Well—would you believe it?—right then an idea struck me! Another idea! I suppose it was love that put so many new ideas into my head. Oh, it must have been love. So I said:

"Yes, there is a string to my gift, Sally; I am the string!"

"You!" she repeated.

"I!" I said.

"The string?" said Sally. And then passionately: "Oh, Sally! Don't you comprehend me? Have you never heard the old, old saying: 'Love me, love my dog?'"

She was pink all over, and I would have taken her in my arms—I really would—had she not said to me:

"Well, I have already told you Freddie, that I might take one of the puppies, but not all of you!"

She then said those very words to me, and I was—oh, I was crushed, don't you know. But I rose to the occasion. I would not let her see my despair. I was determined, at all hazards, to assert my manhood, and so, with an air that—if I do say it—was quite, quite in the old-time manner, don't you know, I said:

"My dear Sally, you have told me that you accept one of the puppies, it is true; but you have not told me which one."

I think I smiled. Oh, I am sure I smiled as I said those words, and I know I bowed slightly. But I shall never, never smile again, for she said:

"Oh, it doesn't matter in the least which one you give me, Freddie; they're all such dear little wabbling things. But since you are so kind—And then she blushed.

"I would like one that I could call Biddy."

Now, there is the point: Was it an acceptance, as Tom Larkins swears it was—a yelled acceptance, don't you know—a kind of poetic license, Tom says; or was it the refusal, and thought about it, and I simply can't make out. Do tell me which you think it was. I'm dying to know.

Profit by Experience.

This year's experience should be next year's profit. For instance, ragweed appears in many grain fields. To keep it from seeding it should be cut just at the right time and the time is short. If cut too early the weed continues growing and branching; if left too late until the stalks are hard and woody, raking is necessary. But if cut when in bloom the crop will mature practically as usual and the following spring there will be little seed of the weed.

She—What do you think of the theory that no person should marry until he or she has reached the age of discretion?

He—Oh, I don't think it would be feasible to bar women from marriage altogether.

Well, Mather, I guess we better go to bed and give Miss Gossip a chance to go home.

ONE AT A TIME.

Jess—"Do you let men kiss you, dear?"

Tess—Of course not; I'm not a twin.

QUERY

Miss Olde—"Here is an interesting article on How to Remain Young."

Miss Tobacco-Young—"How to Remain young? Interesting? To whom?"

AN OPEN QUESTION.

He—"I don't know how far I chased the blooming thing, but I think I knew I found myself facing a wailing ensnare."

She—"Did it yawn before you got there or afterwards?"

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because it is deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure, apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away, cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and swelling pain in passing it, and comes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effects of Swamp-Root are realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. If you have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention receiving this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MRS. FRANK STROEBE

I was a nervous wreck.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY, THANKS TO PE-RU-NA.

Mrs. Frank Stroebe, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis., writes:

"I began using Peruna a few months ago when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck, could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live."

"Three bottles of Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength. While my recovery took nearly four months, at the end of that time I was better than I ever had been before. I had a splendid color and never weighed more in my life."

"I certainly think Peruna is without a rival as a tonic and strength builder, and it has my endorsement."

This lady entirely recovered from a nervous breakdown. She did not go away to a sanitarium, and spend hundreds of dollars for a cure. She just staid at home, took Peruna, and in four months weighed more than ever in her life, had a splendid color, life looked bright to her. Peruna did all this for her. What more could be expected of any remedy?

THE COUNTY'S WORK.

Busy Day With Commissioners, Tuesday
Advice Of Engineer.

The County Commissioners were in session on Tuesday, with all members present. Considerable business was transacted.

Mr. Slidell Baker, through his Attorney, was before the Board asking that the organization to cut the South prong of Green Run Branch be completed by appointing the managers.

Mr. Walton representing the Messrs. Wimbrow asked that action on this be delayed as it was the intention of his clients to petition the Board for a Commission to be appointed for this portion.

Commissioner Messick and Road Engineer Clark were authorized to have ditched the road in front of the Townline farm, now owned by Mr. Martin.

Mr. Job Darby was re-appointed keeper of the Alms House. Mr. Darby has managed the farm property very successfully.

Treasurer Perry submitted his final list of insolvencies for 1904, amounting to $54.68, which was allowed.

Commissioner Messick was authorized to have the old bridge on the road between Catch Penny and Green Hill, near the Harry Crawford farm, replaced with 24 inch tile and brick culvert.

Complaints having been made to the Board that some of the ferrymen, or assistants, in the employ of the county had been seen in an intoxicated condition during hours of duty, the clerk was instructed to give notice that the Board requires absolute sobriety from these employees, and that any further complaints would be promptly investigated, and if found correct, such employees would be removed.

The following resolution was passed. That notices be mailed to all Road Supervisors to discontinue all general work of road improvement, except by direction of Road Engineer Clark, under whose supervision this department of the county's work has been placed, or by direction of the County Commissioners; that further notice, Road Supervisors are to repair only such damages to highways as require immediate care to make them safe and passable, such as the repairing of bridges when found to be unsafe, and removing of obstructions from the road, etc.; that all general work of road building and improvements are to be done under the supervision and upon the order of the Road Engineer or a member of the Board.

Treasurer was directed to pay all election bills, that had not been assigned, on and after July 16.

Wesley C. Lewis was appointed Constable for Willard's District.

BURNS OLD ICE PLANT.

Fierce Fire Near Railroad Junction, Hard Work By Firemen Saves Valuable Property.

The old ice plant near the junction of the B. & O. and the N. Y. P. & N. R. R.'s was the scene of a not fire on Tuesday afternoon. It is supposed that the fire originated in an old fuel house adjoining the plant, and had gained considerable headway before the fire department could get to the scene.

Tuesday was one of our hottest days and the men in the fire department working the hose near the fire, were almost overcome by the heat, which was one of the fiercest felt here for some time. The fire was carried by a stiff breeze towards Jackson's big Box Mill not more than 80 or 40 feet away, where a large quantity of dry lumber was stored. As it was evident that the ice plant could not be saved the firemen concentrated all their efforts in saving the adjoining property, and despite the intense heat they succeeded in confining the blaze to the ice plant itself.

The value of the fire department and its efficiency in handling a big blaze was well shown by this fire.

The plant burned was the original ice plant erected several years ago by W. H. Jackson and others. It had a capacity of about 18 tons a day. When the Salisbury Ice Co. was organized about two years ago it took over the plants of the Crystal Ice Co., the Maryland Ice Co., and the old Salisbury Ice Co., with a combined capitalization of $65,000.00.

The plant destroyed was valued at $5,000 and was insured for $5,000. It has not been operated this year, the two larger plants being sufficient to supply the demands for ice.

RECOMMENDATIONS BY STATE BAR ASSOCIATION.

That The State Be Divided Into Judicial Circuits Each County Having A Judge And Abolishing The Orphan's Court Against Fee System. Able Paper From Mr. Stanford.

The Bar Association which is holding its sessions at the Blue Mountain House has had under consideration several changes in our present system as to reference to our Orphan's Court and general Judiciary system, as well as recommendations that various fee offices in the state be turned into salaried positions doing away entirely with the fee system. In the Clerk of Court, Register of Wills, Sheriffs and States Attorney offices.

As the legislature will not meet until another session of the State Bar, it was finally decided to postpone action on that portion of the report which had to do with changes in the Orphan's Court and Judges. This action was taken by a close vote of 41 to 47 and would seem to indicate that when the time for definite action on this recommendation comes the report will be adopted. The report and recommendation brought in by the committee and action postponed by the vote is as follows:

That the incoming committee on laws be directed to redraft Article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland.

The judiciary department so that a provision shall be made that the Court of Appeals shall become an appellate court, solely without any circuit duty whatsoever, and that the proposed article shall provide that the judges of the Court of Appeals be elected from the State at large, and that the present members of that Court shall continue in office until the expiration of their terms.

That the State be divided into judicial circuits whereby each county will have a resident judge, elected by the people, who shall preside in the circuit courts and also in the Orphan's Court, and thereby abolish the present system of selecting and electing judges for the Orphan's Court, who are often laymen, inexperienced in matters of law.

That the Orphan's Court in the counties be abolished, and the business of those courts be performed by the county judges.

That the Orphan's Court of Baltimore City should be abolished, and instead of the present arrangement of that Court, one member of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City be assigned to attend to the business of the Court.

The part of the report concerning the fee offices was adopted as was also a recommendation that the bills in legislative proceedings be printed instead of engrossed as at present. The report also condemns the passing of laws to take effect on the date of executive approval unless urgent necessity called for it.

Previous to the discussion of these reports Hon. H. L. D. Stanford, of Somerset County, who was a leading member of last legislature, read a paper on legislative proceeding which was enthusiastically received.

Paper From Mr. Stanford.

Mr. Stanford said in part:

Mr. President and Gentlemen—I venture to assert that if the searchlight of investigation be turned on, seeking for the paramount or most glaring evil of legislative procedure, that of procrastination, so to speak which is so prevalent at every session, would stand out conspicuously as the greatest and most baneful. Indeed, to my mind, delay is the mother of quite all the wrongs which creep into the work of the Assembly. It is the canker worm which strangles good intentions and destroys honest effort; it is the hope and consummation of the corrupt lobbyist and scheming politician, who use it fearfully to further a nefarious trade or a colorable and selfish purpose. When we consider that about two months elapse after our elections before the Legislature assembles, why is it that the intervening period is not utilized to pave the way for prompt procedure by the careful selection of presiding officers in ample time, so that during the first day or so of actual session the various committees could be named and at once get down to business? Why is it that many important bills after reaching the committee rooms are dragged along and delayed until the last hours of the session or are forever buried there? Do not these delays—these thieves of legislative time—so encouraged and tolerated, so promoted and fostered, fully justify the suspicion that they are the armament of the wrongdoer, seeking and using these means to ply doubtful practices to untoward events?

Delays Are Dangerous.

In legislative proceedings delays are dangerous and are the weapons which kill or poison good measures, nourish the infamous and bad and are productive of more snakes into the order of business of the Legislature than were ever inflicted upon a suffering people since the days of St. Patrick. There is no earthly good reason, though there may be "devilish good ones," why the General Assembly cannot start in upon its real work and activity on the first rather than the last day of its session, and such a start well continued through the entire session will gratify all reasonable public demands in the way of good, wholesome and popular legislation. A good early start would accomplish wonders for the public weal. It would insure publicity, so much demanded and so highly approved in the press during the last session. It would give time to print the bills as well as to engross them, and incidentally to discuss them, so that the gentlemen at the press desks might carry and spread the news to an inquisitive and critical constituency, and thereby help in guiding the servants of the people in the paths of legislative righteousness and procedure. In an age of corruption it is well to seek purity; in an age of extravagance it is well to place sentinels of economy on guard; in an age of scandal it is well to avoid the appearance of evil and, to strive, like unto Caesar's wife, to be above suspicion; and in an age of legislative procrastination in procedure it is well to dispel its darkness by the lights of publicity.

Summing up, I would say that delay is the root of all evil in legislative procedure, though in the same soil may flourish such poisonous and noxious weeds as graft, official patronage, or even hard cash, or the promise and expectation thereof. Cut out or abolish the root and other nearby or closely related growth of kindred corruption will languish and perish by the wayside.

A notorious and conspicuous example of the evil of delay in legislative procedure, as I view it, was furnished in the expiring hours of the last session of the General Assembly, when the so-called primary election bills were passed or are reported to have been passed in the House of Delegates. Both of the two leading political parties had formally promised or resolved in their platforms adopted in their conventions last year that such laws should be passed thereby the people of the whole State might nominate candidates for State officers and for United States Senators, and several bills looking to these ends were offered in one or the other of the two houses. Only one of those offered, in my judgment, fulfilled auto-election promises, and it was delayed and smothered in committee.

Another—the so-called State primary law—was also delayed in committee, but finally came up in the House as a Senate amendment to a House bill only two or three days before the final adjournment, when in "confusion worse confounded," under a previous question motion, its 23 sections were consecutively read in a manner which reminded one of the famous "Uncle Remus" tales of how "Brer Rabbit trotted almighty, olipitty, alipitty, olipitty down the big road," to the discomfort of the other animals.

There is a limit to human intelligence, and I am sure not a single member of the House—not even its alert wonder working reading clerk, whose performances on this and other like occasions were the admiration of all hearers—could or did understand a sentence of this belated and since much berated measure then and there so adopted.

The Senatorial Primary Law.

Still another of these bills—the so-called Senatorial primary election law—which your reader and a few other misguided compatriots had the honor or audacity to unsuccessfully antagonize, after having rested nearly dormant from the early days of the session was aroused from its slumbers on the second-reading file of the House on the very last day of the session, and, after failing to secure a two third vote for suspension of the rules, necessary under the Constitution to pave the way for final passage, was adopted by hook or crook by less than a two third vote of the members elected by the simple legislative process emergent in the then existing circumstance and then inaugurated for this primary use of striking out of an innocent appearing local measure for Anne Arundel county, then on the third-reading file, all after the words "A bill" and inserting the alleged amendments, "not therefore engrossed, in lieu thereof."

In view of the novel procedure introduced for the purpose of passing in the Legislature of our beloved State those measures which pretend to submit candidacies to popular choice, but which, as I read them, pervert the principle of majority rule to say nothing of the vicious practices which their provisions will probably encourage and stimulate; in view of the clear language comprehended in Section 27 of Article 3 of our Constitution, de-

THE PAVING CONTRACT

For Division And Camden Signed. Work
To Begin Next Week. Property
Assessors Appointed.

At a session of the Council held on Monday afternoon the contracts for paving North Division St., and Camden Avenue were signed. The city was represented by Hon. Robert P. Graham, of Baltimore, while Messrs. Warren Bros., were represented by the attorney for the Standard Bitulithic Co. Messrs. Warren Bros., gave bond with the United States Fidelity and Guaranty of Baltimore, for the faithful performance of its contract.

They are to commence the paving within 10 days from the signing of the contract and are to complete the work within 90 days from the date of beginning. The work will first commence on North Division Street and then on Camden Avenue.

It is presumed that Engineer Hutton will be in charge of the work on account of the city.

This is the contract for paving that has met so much opposition on the part of the property owners on these streets and from the general taxpayer—both on account of the excessive price asked by Messrs. Warren Bros., for their Bitulithic, and the general dissatisfaction as to the employing of the present engineer to oversee the work.

To all the protests of the property owners and taxpayers the Council has turned a deaf ear, despite protests, arguments and finally appeals to the court, which are still pending.

At the meeting of the City Council Monday evening the question of a reassessment of property in the city as provided in the new charter was taken up and Messrs. W. J. Ennis, E. J. O. Parsons and H. H. Hitch were appointed assessors and Mr. A. R. Leonard was appointed clerk. The work is to be completed within 30 days.

ROAD MEETING

At Cambridge—Some Of The People Want
To Change Route To Salisbury.

Believing as they do, that the proposed county road, which is to be made through Federalburg to Sharptown will benefit Caroline County as much as it would Dorchester, the people of Vienna, Salem, East New Market, Drawbridge and Linkwood, are endeavoring to change the geographical plan of the road and have ligonect Salisbury with Cambridge via Mt. Holly.

In pursuance of this idea, the above named towns sent delegates to Cambridge yesterday afternoon to reconsider the matter. The meeting was held in the Orphan's Court room, with about twenty delegates present. A committee was appointed to solicit in Cambridge and other places in the county for a petition favoring the change of road.

It was also decided to invite Gov. Crothers to come here and reconsider the road business.

It was brought out in the meeting that a road connecting East New Market, Linkwood, Vienna and Drawbridge would be of far greater benefit to Cambridge than up in the north-eastern section of the county.

It is expected that Gov. Crothers will again come to Cambridge soon to consider the change.—Wednesday's Cambridge Banner.

clearing in no mistakable words "that no bill shall originate in either house during the last 10 days of the session unless two thirds of the members elected thereto shall so determine by yeas and nays, nor shall any bill become a law until it be read on three different days of the session in each house unless two-thirds of the members elected to the house where such bill is pending shall so determine by yeas and nays; and no bill shall be read a third time until it shall have been actually engrossed for a third reading." I make bold to venture the opinion that the procedure especially devised and used for the passage of this particular Senatorial primary measure will not stand the test of judicial consideration and determination and that if so tested will not be upheld, but will be declared unconstitutional and void. Be its fate what it may, I shall be an interested listener if, as I trust, this much of this paper shall receive the honor of discussion by your members here gathered.

W. I. TODD'S DEATH

At A Ripe Old Age. Was An Active And Capable Citizen. Zealous In Good

Salisbury has lost one of her oldest and most respected citizens in the death of Mr. Wilson I. Todd, at the home of his brother, Dr. H. Laird Todd, Tuesday evening.

Mr. Todd had been in poor health for some time. He was born at the Todd home place, this city, September, 1831, making him nearly 77 years old. For many years he was employed by the firm of Mary E. Williams & Co., in the lumber business, and later on he operated a lumber mill and cranefactory at Allen. For the past several years he has been one of the balliffs of the Circuit Court. He was the ruling elder of the Wisconsin Presbyterian Church and took a keen interest in his Church and Sunday School.

Mr. Todd was a member of several of the fraternal orders here and had been engaged for many years as collector for them. In this capacity he had done a great deal of good in the way of keeping their dues up, when through carelessness or misfortune some would have lapsed. Many an orphan and widow in our community today have Mr. Todd to thank for his care and kindness in this respect—as without his attention and big heart they would today have been penniless, while he saved the insurance for them by paying the dues and keeping the members in good standing.

Mr. Todd's life was one of good and kindness, firm in his convictions and unswerving in what he considered to be the right. He will be much missed in our community, where his cheerfulness of spirit and uprightness of character endeared him to young and old alike.

Mr. Todd was also a member of the Masonic fraternity in good standing.

Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian Church Thursday afternoon and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Beale.

The Masonic lodge was represented and paid their last tribute of respect to their lost brother.

He leaves one son, Mr. Woodland I. Todd, one sister, Mrs. Annie Wallace, and two brothers, Drs. H. Laird Todd and Samuel Todd. His life was insured in the United Workmen for $2,000; in the Royal Arcanum, for $3,000; and in the Hesperian for $3,000 all in favor of his son, Woodland I. Todd.

The pall bearers were:

Honorary.—Dr. F. M. Stenc, Messrs. L. W. Gunby, John T. El L. McKim Porter, Thos. C. Morris Active.—Messrs. G. W. White, E. Sheppard, W. E. Dorman, Jas. Ball, G. E. Sirmen, Robt. G. Robert son.

MARDELA DROWNING.

Young Man From Philadelphia Loses Life
In Deep Part of Creek.

While Joseph Farman, of Marcella, was out swimming in Barron Creek, he got beyond his depth and was drowned before any assistance could reach him.

Farman was from Philadelphia and had been employed on the farm by Mr. Ware Everman. As to the manner of his fatal plunge in such depth of water is unknown, as his plight was not discovered until too late to reach him. Some parties were fishing on the Creek and witnessed the drowning, but were powerless to render him any assistance.

Mr. Farman was about 18 years of age and his parents live in Philadelphia. The Creek where he was drowned has a depth of from 18 to 20 feet of water.

Death of Mr. J. Sidney Adkins At His Home Here.

Mr. J. Sidney Adkins, who had been in failing health for two or three years, died Saturday at his home in this city, aged about 54 years. Deceased was a son of the late John Adkins, and was born in Parsons District, about four miles from Salisbury. When a young man he came to Salisbury and engaged in the mercantile business, which he continued until failing health compelled him to retire. He is survived by a widow who is a daughter of the late John Maddox, and two daughters, Carrie and Mamie Adkins. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Beale, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. The interment was in Parsons Cemetery.

For The Doctor.

To make the lame walk, the blind to see and the deaf to hear seems to be within the possibilities of modern science. Now comes a gentleman with a discovery that promises to bring the dead to life. The Poe artificial respiration machine is the new wonder of the scientific world.

It is a device whereby fresh air of oxygen is pumped into the lungs of a creature in suspended animation and the poisonous gases and fluids are at the same time pumped out. Rabbits which have been given morphine enough to kill a man, and are to all appearances dead, have again and again been revived or brought back to life by this machine. Dogs have been "killed" in the same way and restored to life. In one case the machine was applied to a man much the worse for liquor and sobered him in three minutes.

The contrivance is said to have numerous practical possibilities not only in the restoration of persons apparently dead from drowning or suffocation, but in overcoming the after effects of anesthetics in surgical operations, in attempted suicides and in many forms of accidents.—The Reveille, Butte, Mont.

Stars On The Flags Changed.

The one man who makes nearly all the flags that float over the public buildings in Washington had his hands full during last week. By last Saturday, July 4th, every flag belonging to Uncle Sam had to contain 46 stars—just one more than the national emblem did contain. The new star is to represent Oklahoma.

By operation of law the star of a new State becomes a part of the flag on the first Independence Day after the State is admitted to the Union. The Federal Government lives up strictly to the letter of the law. Therefore, thousands of flags were changed before they were flung to the breeze Saturday.

The task of finding a place on the flag for the new star was left to the War Department, and it was not an easy one. The new arrangement necessitates the shifting about of the entire field of stars. The flagmaker cannot sew any additional star into the field as it now is. He made a new field.

The largest correctly proportioned flag in the country hangs in the big court of the Postoffice Department. A force of laborers took it down Friday and when put back in its place early Saturday morning it contained the additional star.

AT SUMMER RESORTS

Fashionable Styles; Linen Frocks At Newport; Silk and Linen Tailor Gowns; Yachting Costumes; Bathing Suits; Pearls Now The Vogue.

The hard times seem to have no effect on the vagaries of Fashion, for gowns are more luxuriant this summer than ever were before, and at all the famous watering places of the East, especially Newport and Bar Harbor the costumes worn add great brilliancy to the season. In very fashionable society the Directors styles are literally carrying everything before them. Skirts are very long and clinging and waists are short.

One of the ladies, a spectator at the games at the tennis court at the Casino in Newport, the other day wore a stunning creation of pale pink linen, that must have come straight from Paris.

This gown had a long trailing skirt, trimmed at the knees with a twelve inch band of embroidery done on the material with linen thread and tiny white linen braids. It has a Directorate coat with the customary short waisted effect in the front and rather long tails in the back. The coat was trimmed with embroidery matching the garniture of the skirt. The sleeves were of three quarter length and adorned with broad bands of the embroidery.

Another handsome frock, seen at the same place, was of natural colored pongee and made in a tight Empire style and trimmed with broad vertical bands of ecru silk lace, through which one could catch distracting glimpses of a pale blue silk lining. With this dress, pale blue silk stockings and matching shoes were worn and on the head a pale blue straw hat with a blue plume. The parasol also was of tacked blue taffeta.

Silk Jackets and Linen Skirts.

Very smart and pretty are the new costumes in tailor effect made of a short pleated skirt of serge, pique or linen worn with a loose or semi-fitting jacket of colored silk either in the new cerise shade, green, copper color or matter blue. These little jackets are finished with big buttons of the silk or immense plain white flat pearl buttons. They are undeniably smart and are worn a great deal for driving.

Green parasols seem to have struck the fancy of the fashionable woman this summer. They are all shades from a regular olive tint to the vivid bottle green tone and are usually quite plain, though occasionally a narrow border of graduated tucks is seen.

Yachting Suits.

The yachting suits this summer are very chic, and sportlike in their appearance, and what is better than all, serviceable, as every outing costume nowadays must be serviceable in order to be correct. Very handsome ones are made in white serge with the regulation sailor blouse with an embroidered shield piece and a bright red silk tie. Of course suits of blue serge are used also.

Of late years, instead of the customary yachting suit there has gradually grown up a fashion of wearing tailor suits of serge or panama—that is coat and skirt suits for this purpose. With these are worn either a silk or linen skirt waist made in severe tailored style. For yachting white or tan shoes are usually worn, white with the white suits and tan with all other colors.

Modish Bathing Suits.

Bathing suits are more becoming this year than ever was the case before. The very newest fad is to have them made in princess style and fitted closely to the figure and of course this necessitates wearing a bathing corset. The smartest bathing suits are made of taffeta but very pretty ones are also seen in mohair of various colors.

It is very fashionable to have the bathing cap, belt and shoes all match. For example these accessories in gay red and green plaid are worn with dark blue and black suits.

Modish Jewelry.

The jewelry worn at Newport this summer indicates that there is at present a great vogue for pearls—very large pearl earrings are seen and also pendant or drop earrings. The flat variety of Baroque pearls are put to many uses and are embodied in necklaces, ornaments for the front of the corsage, scarf pins and swung on tiny chains over the collar in the ever graceful "La Valliere." In fact there is nothing quite so pretty in the way of summer jewelry as these pearls as they look so cool and go well with any costume.

How Freight Is Lost.

Indicative of the annoyance to which shippers as well as railroads are subjected, by reason of the failure to properly mark freight consigned for shipment, and of the necessity for the new rule, of the "official classification," requiring that all "less-than-carload" freight be plainly marked with the name and address of the consignee, is the fact that there has just been held by the Pennsylvania Railroad in Pittsburgh a four days' sale of over freight, in which were involved seven cars of miscellaneous merchandise, and one car containing over forty tons of iron, steel, etc., much of which brought at auction very much less than the real value.

In the lot were castings which were doubtless made to order, which would have been of value for the purpose intended, but as there were no identifying marks, it was impossible to locate either the consignee or the shipper, and they were sold at practically scrap iron prices.

On July 1 the 416 railroads in the "official classification" territory—east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, adopted the recently published rule requiring each package, bundle or piece of less than car load freight must be plainly marked by brush, stencil, pasted, labeled or securely fastened tag, showing the name of consignee, and the name of the station, town or city and the State to which destined.

Hundreds Of Salisbury Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed. Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains.

Backache, sideache, headache. Early symptoms of kidney ills. Diabetes, Bright's disease follows.

W. K. Norris, Norris Hotel, Easton, Md., says: "I suffered severely for some years with weak kidneys, constant backache with shooting pains across my loins and a weakness that was sickening. The slightest exertion would cause me to become so weak that I could hardly get about. Nights of sleeplessness on account of pains and too frequent passage of the secretions caused me to become run down in general health. I suffered this way for a long time although I was being treated by a physician. I was advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, he stating that he had been cured by their use, of practically the same complaint. I procured a supply at a drug store and took them in accordance with the directions. A short treatment effected a complete cure and I have had no return of the trouble since that time. I can gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from any form of kidney complaint."

BRYAN'S NOMINATION.

Again, by an overwhelming majority, the National Convention of the Democratic Party has selected William Jennings Bryan as its standard bearer. The position of Mr. Bryan in the country today is very different from that which he occupied in 1896, when he first came into the limelight of National politics. Then heralded all over the East as a socialist, anarchist and every other term of opprobrium that could be applied to a public man, he has lived through all this and now even in the ranks of those who do not agree with him politically will be found admiration for his great ability and respect for his sincerity and honesty.

There is no question but what Mr. Bryan is today a stronger man with the people of the country than ever before, and the enthusiasm the mention of his name at Denver called forth, clearly shows his hold upon his own party.

President Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan have taught the people of the country a new kind of politics, that differs as much from the "gun shoe methods" of modern politicians as day does from night—by appealing to the people at large, by publicity, and courage to state their convictions, they have succeeded in compelling the support of the leaders, who at heart, are as bitterly opposed to them as possible, by making them afraid to oppose, as the votes of the country would hold them responsible for their opposition.

Before the campaign of 1908 is over the enthusiasm for Mr. Bryan, which started at Denver will spread all over the country and probably one of the hottest campaigns witnessed in recent years will result—With President Roosevelt leading one side and Bryan the other it ought to make a fight worth seeing.

Both of them deep thinkers, both great leaders of men, and both of them fighters, who know not how to give up, surrounded by admirers in their respective parties whose enthusiastic support approaches idolatry, the battle will wage from now on, with a brief intermission to enable them to gather the material of warfare, appoint their generals, captains, lieutenants and sub-lieutenants, until the polls are closed in November—this ought to make a fight worth while and a victory worth winning.

PRETTY WEDDING

At Spring Grove Church. Reported To The Advertiser By Correspondent.

One of the prettiest weddings ever held in this community was solemnized Thursday evening, June 25th, at Spring Grove M. E. Church, when Miss Pearl Phillips became the bride of Mr. Roy Bennett, two of the most popular young people of our community. The ceremony took place at half past eight o'clock, but long before that hour the church was more than filled with friends and relatives of the young people.

The wedding march was beautifully rendered by Miss Alyce Taylor, of Riverport. The first to enter the church were the ushers, Mr. Soan Bennett, cousin of the groom and Mr. Delbert Phillips, brother of the bride. Entering through the east and west aisles proceeding to the chancel, they were followed by the bride on the arm of her brother, Mr. Holland Phillips, by whom she was given away. They were met at the altar by the groom supported by his best man, Mr. Levator Bennett, brother of the groom. Following the bride was the flower girl, Miss Blanche English, then came the maid of honor, Miss Iva Russell. Following were the bridesmaids, the Misses Grace and Mattie English and the groomsmen, Mr. Lewis Shookley and Mr. Billie Russell, cousin of the bride proceeding up the east and west aisles. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Bevelle of Somerset county. As the bridal party left the church, the flower girl strewed flowers in their path.

The bride was very beautiful in a costume of Brussels net elaborately trimmed with val lace and insertion over chiffon taffeta, and carried a large bouquet of brides roses and maiden hair ferns. The groom wore the conventional black.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore white silk and carried pink roses; the flower girl carried a dainty basket of carnations. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and showed much taste on the part of those having it in charge.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple were driven to Salisbury, where a reception was given them at the home of the groom's uncle, Mr. Irving Russell, after which they left for Ocean City, Md., where they will spend several days.

The bride's going away gown was brown chiffon taffeta, with hat and gloves to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett's friends wish them a long and happy life. They will be at home to their friends after July 5th, at Mardela Springs, Md.

Launch Party Given By Mr. and Mrs. Roberts On The Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roberts of White Haven and Mr. John G. Roberts of Princess Anne gave a very delightful launch party on the Fourth of July. Left Quantico Wharf at 8:30 o'clock A. M., took a trip down the river, stopping at Deals Island hotel for dinner. After enjoying beautiful music and delightful waiting on the wharf, the party then enjoyed the Deals Island celebration of the Fourth on the Old Camp Ground; leaving at 4 o'clock went back to White Haven and enjoyed the pleasure of the celebration there, each one declaring a delightful day. The party, Misses Jesse Taylor, Nellie Graham, Dora Jones, Lillian and Stella Bounds, Hilda Howard, Clara Wright, Mabel Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Twilley, Dr. Howard Lynch, Messrs. Howard Langrell, Clifford Taylor, Royland Bailey, George Austin, and Clifton Bounds.

Good Year For Potatoes.

The white potato crop of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia is quite prolific this year. They are being shipped in large quantities and are bringing $2.50 to $3.25 a barrel. This is regarded as a good price to the growers and one which will yield them a satisfactory profit. In view of the large yield promised.

The value of this entire crop cannot be definitely estimated, as no accurate statistics are kept of the growth, which is widely scattered in all parts of the country. That it will reach several million dollars however for the Maryland and Virginia sections is the conservative estimate of those most familiar with the trade.

Other truck in this section is equally as profitable, but this seems to have been a particularly good year for potatoes. These are in demand, and despite the large supply, prices so far have held near the top notch.

Yacht No. 7, Launched.

The Sharptown Yacht Co., launched a pretty little gasoline boat, known as No. 7, on Saturday evening. Quite a large number of people witnessed the launching. This is the third one launched within ten days, all of which are pleasure boats for Philadelphia customers. Nos 8 and 9 will be built as quickly as possible. These boats are built by the Sharptown Yacht Co., under the management of John B. Smith, architect and designer, and L. J. Costen, of Philadelphia, looking after the purchasing and selling. The concern has had a wonderful growth. The boats are all beautiful and are very much admired and the demand is increasing. For speed, fine finish, beauty of construction and neatness in all the departments these boats have a high record.

The Misses Day entertained a number of their friends at their home on Elizabeth Street this week.

TOWN OF PITTSVILLE

Sketch Of Its Foundation And Growth. Developed Into A Place Of Commercial Importance.

Pittsville, Md., the greatest shipping point for strawberries on the B. & A. R. R., is located about midway between Salisbury and Berlin. The first house was erected on this spot in the year 1817 by one, Joshua Lewis, a Justice of the Peace, and was designed for a country store. Three or four other buildings sprang up around this prior to 1868, when through the enterprise of the people on the eastern end of Wicomico county, the people of Worcester county, the Wicomico and Pocomoke R. R. was completed from Salisbury to Berlin. From this our little town began to spread and took on the name of Pittsville in honor of Dr. Hilary Pitts of Berlin, who was an active agent in the railroad enterprise. Let it be remembered that the people along the route of this road contributed heavily toward its construction. This railroad gave an impetus to trade, our people began to grow some trucks, strawberries, potatoes, etc., Dr. G. W. Freeny being among the first to begin the culture of strawberries for market in this locality, and our little town is greatly indebted to the culture of this fruit for its growth.

We number about three hundred inhabitants, support two churches. Our school has three teachers, one hundred and fifty pupils and does a higher grade work than any school in the county, outside of Salisbury. We have a bank organized about two years ago with a paid up capital of twenty five thousand dollars, and under the management of our enterprising cashier, M. A. Davis, is doing a thrifty business. We have five merchants doing a business of fifty thousand a year, besides Mrs. J. E. Richardson's millinery store, which will fit the ladies out with as neat hats as any store in the county. We have two hotels ready and willing to accommodate all travelers. As fine a team can be had at Mr. G. A. Shookley's livery as one may wish for.

We have two Doctors, G. W. and L. C. Freeny, so well skilled in their profession that it is seldom that our people have to suffer from any malady.

Our mechanics, under the leadership of Mr. James R. Freeny, are ever ready to erect as comfortable buildings as we can afford.

This district is naturally adapted to farming and trucking. The soil producing good crops of corn, strawberries, potatoes, peas, clover, etc., even though it be under cultivation every year, and it is being demonstrated that good crops of wheat may be grown on our soil. Mr. Daniel H. Parsons, an enterprising farmer just beyond the corporation limits of Pittsville, can boast as heavy yield of wheat per acre on his farm as almost any farmer.

Our manufacturing enterprises are constantly increasing. The crate and basket factory and lumber mill of the Petey Mfg. Co., under the management of Mr. B. S. Wimbrow, is doing a profitable business for the firm and is a great help to our town. This firm employed in and about their plant in this town an average of fifty men per day during the year 1907, paid an average wage of more than one dollar per day. They keep here constantly at work, thirteen mules besides some hired teams.

Mr. J. Cleveland White's canning factory located here employs during the canning season about one hundred hands and has opened up a profitable branch of trucking to our farmers, as our soil yields abundant crops of tomatoes and sweet potatoes.

Mr. H. James Truitt's shirt factory has a capacity of thirty machines. Among the residents of our town are a number of men engaged in the lumber business, having mills located in neighborhoods adjacent to the town, the lumber being hauled here for shipment. Among these are G. Ernest Hearn, E. T. Shookley and D. James Davis.

We have another class of men engaged in the brokerage business, who are an assistance to our farmers as they make it lively for each other and the commission men who come here during the shipping season. Among this class are the M. Davis Co., Thomas M. Truitt, Geo. A. Shookley, G. E. Hearn, P. T. Baker, Geo. W. Parker, A. B. Truitt and T. W. Davis.

One of our greatest needs is better roads. Three fourths of the population of Wicomico County, east of Salisbury, is located within four miles of the B. & A. R. R., and very few more than six miles, as this road runs near the center of the county most the way east of Salisbury. If the State Commission should see fit to run the State Road parallel to and near this railroad it will be a great benefit to four fifths of the people east of Salisbury, as it will give a great many of these a good road on which to haul their farm products to the railroad stations and will furnish to nearly all the eastern section a good drive way to Salisbury, the county seat.

We believe if the State road should follow this route that within a very few years our County Commissioners under the leadership of their worthy president, Mr. William M. Cooper, will open up good shell or stone roads from the various shipping points to the Delaware line and the Worcester line, thus giving every farmer in this section of our country an easy way of transporting his products to the railroad. Taxpayers, let us reason together and spend the portion of the State appropriation belonging to Wicomico County for the people of Wicomico County.

comico County. If this State Road should be run from Sharptown via of Mardela to Salisbury, and then parallel to the railroad it will be more benefit as has been said, to the people of Wicomico County and Worcester County than any other possible route, as it will go a great way toward building up Ocean City, besides other benefits enumerated; and this building up Ocean City may mean more to the farmers in these two counties than they realize at present. Since if Ocean City can be developed as it should be, it would be a ready and nearby market for a great quantity of garden vegetables, poultry and eggs, beef cattle, etc. A Citizen.

We number about three hundred inhabitants, support two churches. Our school has three teachers, one hundred and fifty pupils and does a higher grade work than any school in the county, outside of Salisbury. We have a bank organized about two years ago with a paid up capital of twenty five thousand dollars, and under the management of our enterprising cashier, M. A. Davis, is doing a thrifty business. We have five merchants doing a business of fifty thousand a year, besides Mrs. J. E. Richardson's millinery store, which will fit the ladies out with as neat hats as any store in the county. We have two hotels ready and willing to accommodate all travelers. As fine a team can be had at Mr. G. A. Shookley's livery as one may wish for.

We have two Doctors, G. W. and L. O. Freeny, so well skilled in their profession that it is seldom that our people have to suffer from any malady.

Our mechanics, under the leadership of Mr. James R. Freeny, are ever ready to erect us as comfortable buildings as we can afford.

This district is naturally adapted to farming and trucking. The soil producing good crops of corn, strawberries, potatoes, peas, clover, etc., even though it be under cultivation every year, and it is being demonstrated that good crops of wheat may be grown on our soil. Mr. Daniel H. Parsons, an enterprising farmer just beyond the corporation limits of Pittsville, can boast as heavy yield of wheat per acre on his farm as almost any farmer. Our manufacturing enterprises are constantly increasing. The crate and basket factory and lumber mill of the Petey Mfg. Co., under the management of Mr. B. S. Wimbrow, is doing a profitable business for the firm and is a great help to our town. This firm employed in and about their plant in this town an average of fifty men per day during the year 1907, paid an average wage of more than one dollar per day. They keep here constantly at work, thirteen mules besides some hired teams.

Mr. J. Cleveland White's canning factory located here employs during the canning season about one hundred hands and has opened up a profitable branch of trucking to our farmers, as our soil yields abundant crops of tomatoes and sweet potatoes.

Mr. H. James Truitt's shirt factory has a capacity of thirty machines. Among the residents of our town are a number of men engaged in the lumber business, having mills located in neighborhoods adjacent to the town, the lumber being hauled here for shipment. Among these are G. Ernest Hearn, E. T. Shookley and D. James Davis.

We have another class of men engaged in the brokerage business, who are an assistance to our farmers as they make it lively for each other, and the commission men who come here during the shipping season. Among this class are the M. Davis Co., Thomas M. Truitt, Geo. A. Shookley, G. E. Hearn, P. T. Baker, Geo. W. Parker, A. B. Truitt and T. W. Davis.

One of our greatest needs is better roads. Three fourths of the population of Wicomico County, east of Salisbury, is located within four miles of the B. O. & A. R. R., and very, very few more than six miles, as this road runs near the center of the county most the way east of Salisbury. If the State Commission should see fit to run the State Road parallel to and near this railroad it will be a great benefit to four fifths of the people east of Salisbury, as it will give a great many of these a good road on which to haul their farm products to the railroad stations and will furnish to nearly all the eastern section a good drive way to Salisbury, the county seat.

We believe if the State road should follow this route that within a very few years our County Commissioners under the leadership of their worthy president, Mr. William M. Cooper, will open up good shell or stone roads from the various shipping points to the Delaware line and the Worcester line, thus giving every farmer in this section of our country an easy way of transporting his products to the railroad. Taxpayers, let us reason together and spend the portion of the State appropriation belonging to Wicomico County for the people of Wicomico County.

comico County. If this State Road should be run from Sharytown via of Mardele to Salisbury and then parallel to the railroad it will be more benefit as has been said, to the people of Wicomico County and Worcester County than any other possible route, as it will go a great way toward building up Ocean City, besides other benefits enumerated; and this building up Ocean City may mean more to the farmers in these two counties than they realize at present. Since if Ocean City can be developed as it should be, it would be a ready and nearby market for a great quantity of garden vegetables, poultry and eggs, beef cattle, etc. A Citizen.

are being installed in the commercial houses just as rapidly as we can get them in and we ask our patrons to be a little patient and we will get around to them in a short time. The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantalum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10¢ per K. W. hour and under this amount all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters, as rapidly as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial houses, $2.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10¢ per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights not needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Our Superintendent will give prompt attention to any complaints as to our service. We have a "trouble" man always on hand to help you out of any difficulty. Call up the Main Street office and your wants will be attended to.

CHUMS FOR CHILDREN

DOGS USEFUL BOTH AS MURDER AND AS PLAYMATES.

The Most Companionable Breeds—Big Dogs Better for Babies Than
Splendid Chums.

Dogs are excellent playmates and companions for children, as all the world knows. To the boys and girls a mut, as the fancier terms a mongrel, is usually as welcome a chum as any pure breed of canine breeds. Yet when opportunity offers children make good caretakers of thoroughbred dogs, and to encourage a liking among them for animals of pedigree or at least distinct type is one of the objects of kennel owners.

It is in the open or about the household that children have most to do with dogs. Puppies and young children always get along easily together with the little of the association altogether on the dog. In the country a St. Bernard or terrier pup is often given to the children, with the knowledge that as it grows the dog will become a most trustworthy guardian, at home and abroad, and in the country such a guardian is worth having.

Such a dog is often told by the mother or nurse to mind the baby. To an old and self-respecting dog this is not a congenial task always, but the child uses it usually as a doorman or a punching bag, mingling its thuds with endearing and joyous talk. This sort of thing makes the old dog weary, but it sticks to the job.

An old dog behaves to a child much as it does to a puppy. A toddler unwatched will fall joyfully against the toughest looking of strange dogs, sure of kind treatment or of toleration at least. A puppy receives the same consideration, although when teased too much the big dog may curb the forward youngster by an admonitory growl, just as a grownup might correct a too familiar child.

It is all established that dogs reciprocate the affection shown to them by all children. There seems to be a subtle understanding or affinity between children and dogs that makes them true friends and comrades whatever may happen. This companionship is quite different from the relations of dogs and adults.

With adults the strongest allegiance is given to the master or mistress and less loyalty is given to the subordinates of the farm, household or kennel. But there is nothing individual in a dog's regard for children; they keep a warm spot in their hearts for all and the children know it.

Dogs that hunt by sight usually make better playmates for a child than those that follow a scent, for they are quicker and more adaptable, while the latter are self-contained and seldom play. Bloodhounds make a fine play dog, for the belief that they are ferocious in disposition is wholly erroneous. The elongated dashboards is most companionable.

Beagles and foxhounds are good dogs for children. The fighting abilities of the foxhound are not generally known. While by education the greatest of dogs they will when aroused in the chase or in defence of a child, whip their weight in wildcats.

Their quick sight and speed make deerhounds, greyhounds and Russian wolfhounds entertaining dogs for children in the country, for as with all big dogs the town falls on them and they need room. When put into harness these fleet dogs draw a small wagon at a rousing pace.

All the terriers are splendid chums. The white Scottish are a new fashion and are running a race in popularity with the other terriers. Both Shire and Yorkshire terriers, although seen at shows clad in excessively long coats, are game and lively dogs for children, when kept as workers and not trimmed up for the beach. Bull terriers are of a jealous disposition and unless this is overcome they may make trouble for the children by mixing up with other dogs that come along.

Buildings when not too bulky and phlegmatic, get along nicely with children. Boston terriers and French bulldogs possess the sprightly, cheery ways missing in their big cousins and they are admirable friends for the youngsters.

Pomps, toy terriers, toy spaniels and indeed all the pekinese except pugs are well worth owning by large children; but for small children the small dogs are mostly too short tempered to be safe as companions. Expressed in another way, they are too fragile or tender to withstand without reprisal the misadventures of the juveniles.

All dogs understand baby talk, but those of foreign birth have to learn English before they are the best of chums with larger children. At the shepherd's trial in Wales the shepherds give their orders in Welsh but on the borders of the Highlands the collies understand both Gaelic and English.

Stained Vases.
Discolored flower vases should be rubbed with used tea leaves and vinegar. This will take away the stains.

Single Trade Bad in England.
Through the British Automobile trade is proceeding beyond precedent this year the automobile trade has been unusually depressed, chiefly because of the wet season and partly because of the new American tariff against a prohibition of exports to that colony.

The False Orange.
In Kamohaka there grows a mushroom called the false orange, from which is made a liquor that produces delirium and convulsions. Nevertheless, it is a favorite beverage.

THE EFFECT OF OPIUM.

Victims Are Unable to Work
Hard or Apply Their Minds.

I stand little about the beautiful "recreant" and "victim" which opium is supposed to bring; all the smokers with whom I talked could be roughly divided into two classes—those who smoked in order to relieve pain or misery, and those miserable victims who smoked to relieve the acute physical distress brought on by the opium itself. Probably the majority of the victims take it up as a temporary relief; many begin in early childhood—the mother will have the baby whiff to stop its crying. It is a social vice only among the upper classes. The most notable outward effect of this indulgence is a resulting physical weakness and lassitude. The opium smoker cannot work hard; he finds it difficult to apply his mind to a problem or his body to a task. As the habit becomes firmly fastened on him, there is a perceptible weakening of his moral fibre; he shows himself unequal to emergencies which make any sudden demand upon him. If opium is denied him, he will lie and steal in order to obtain it.

Opium smoking is a costly vice. A pipeful of a moderately good native product costs more than a laborer can earn in a day; consequently the poorer classes smoke an expensive compound, based on pipe scrapings and charcoal. Along the highroads the coolies even scrape the grime from the pack saddles to mix with this dross. The clerk earning from twenty-five to fifty Mexican dollars a month will frequently spend from $10 to $20 a month on opium. The typical confirmed smoker is a man who spends a considerable part of the night in smoking himself to sleep, and all the next morning in sleeping off the effects. If he is able to work at all, it is only during the afternoon, and even at that time there will be many days when the official or merchant is incompetent to conduct his affairs. Thousands of prominent men are ruined every year.

The Cantonese have what they call "The Ten Cannots." Regarding the Opium Smoker: "He cannot (1) give up the habit, (2) enjoy sleep, (3) wait for his turn when sharing his pipe with his friends, (4) rise early, (5) be cured if sick, (6) help relations in need, (7) enjoy wealth, (8) plan anything, (9) get credit when an old customer, (10) walk any distance."—Success Magazine.

Thousands of prominent men are ruined every year.

The Cantonese have what they call "The Ten Cannots." Regarding the Opium Smoker: "He cannot (1) give up the habit, (2) enjoy sleep, (3) wait for his turn when sharing his pipe with his friends, (4) rise early, (5) be cured if sick, (6) help relations in need, (7) enjoy wealth, (8) plan anything, (9) get credit when an old customer, (10) walk any distance."—Success Magazine.

In Quest of Sensation.
Those spirits upon the hunt for "sensations" upon the coast of the "recreant" and "victim" which opium is supposed to bring; all the smokers with whom I talked could be roughly divided into two classes—those who smoked in order to relieve pain or misery, and those miserable victims who smoked to relieve the acute physical distress brought on by the opium itself. Probably the majority of the victims take it up as a temporary relief; many begin in early childhood—the mother will have the baby whiff to stop its crying. It is a social vice only among the upper classes. The most notable outward effect of this indulgence is a resulting physical weakness and lassitude. The opium smoker cannot work hard; he finds it difficult to apply his mind to a problem or his body to a task. As the habit becomes firmly fastened on him, there is a perceptible weakening of his moral fibre; he shows himself unequal to emergencies which make any sudden demand upon him. If opium is denied him, he will lie and steal in order to obtain it.

Opium smoking is a costly vice. A pipeful of a moderately good native product costs more than a laborer can earn in a day; consequently the poorer classes smoke an expensive compound, based on pipe scrapings and charcoal. Along the highroads the coolies even scrape the grime from the pack saddles to mix with this dross. The clerk earning from twenty-five to fifty Mexican dollars a month will frequently spend from $10 to $20 a month on opium. The typical confirmed smoker is a man who spends a considerable part of the night in smoking himself to sleep, and all the next morning in sleeping off the effects. If he is able to work at all, it is only during the afternoon, and even at that time there will be many days when the official or merchant is incompetent to conduct his affairs. Thousands of prominent men are ruined every year.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.
It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle, or a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

BRYAN'S NOMINATION.

Again, by an overwhelming majority, the National Convention of the Democratic Party has selected William Jennings Bryan as its standard bearer. The position of Mr. Bryan in the country today is very different from that which he occupied in 1896, when he first came into the limelight of National politics. Then heralded all over the East as a socialist, anarchist and every other term of opprobrium that could be applied to a public man, he has lived through all this and now even in the ranks of those who do not agree with him politically will be found admiration for his great ability and respect for his sincerity and honesty.

There is no question but what Mr. Bryan is today a stronger man with the people of the country than ever before, and the enthusiasm the mention of his name at Denver called forth, clearly shows his hold upon his own party.

President Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan have taught the people of the country a new kind of politics, that differs as much from the "gun show methods" of modern politicians as day does from night—by appealing to the people at large, by publicity, and courage to state their convictions, they have succeeded in compelling the support of the leaders, who at heart, are as bitterly opposed to them as possible, by making them afraid to oppose, as the votes of the country would hold them responsible for their opposition.

Before the campaign of 1908 is over the enthusiasm for Mr. Bryan, which started at Denver will spread all over the country and probably one of the hottest campaigns witnessed in recent years will result—With President Roosevelt leading one side and Bryan the other it ought to make a fight worth watching.

Both of them deep thinkers, both great leaders of men, and both of them fighters, who know not how to give up, surrounded by admirers in their respective parties whose enthusiastic support approaches idolatry, the battle will wage from now on, with a brief intermission to enable them to gather the material of warfare, appoint their generals, captains, lieutenants and sub-lieutenants, until the polls are closed in November—this ought to make a fight worth while and a victory worth winning.

PRETTY WEDDING

At Spring Grove Church. Reported To The Advertiser By Correspondent.

One of the prettiest weddings ever held in this community was solemnized Thursday evening, June 25th, at Spring Grove M. E. Church, when Miss Pearl Phillips became the bride of Mr. Roy Bennett, two of the most popular young people of our community. The ceremony took place at half after eight o'clock, but long before that hour the church was more than filled with friends and relatives of the young people.

The wedding march was beautifully rendered by Miss Alyce Taylor, of Riverport. The first to enter the church were the ushers, Mr. Soarn Bennett, cousin of the groom and Mr. Delbert Phillips, brother of the bride. Entering through the east and west aisles proceeding to the chancel, they were followed by the bride on the arm of her brother, Mr. Holland Phillips, by whom she was given away. They were met at the altar by the groom supported by his best man, Mr. Levator Bennett, brother of the groom. Following the bride was the flower girl, Miss Blanche English, then came the maid of honor, Miss Iva Russell. Following were the bridesmaids, the Misses Grace and Mattie English and the groomsmen, Mr. Lewis Shockley and Mr. Billie Russell, cousin of the bride proceeding up the east and west aisles. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Revelle of Somerset county. As the bridal party left the church, the flower girl strewed flowers in their path.

The bride was very beautiful in a costume of Brussels net elaborately trimmed with val lace and insertion over chiffon taffeta, and carried a large bouquet of brides roses and maiden hair ferns. The groom wore the conventional black.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore white silk and carried pink roses; the flower girl carried a dainty basket of carnations. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and showed much taste on the part of those having it in charge.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple were driven to Salisbury, where a reception was given them at the home of the groom's uncle, Mr. Irving Russell, after which they left for Ocean City, Md., where they will spend several days.

The bride's going away gown was brown chiffon-panama, with hat and gloves to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett's friends wish them a long and happy life. They will be at home to their friends after July 5th, at Mardele Springs, Md.

Launch Party Given By Mr. and Mrs. Roberts On The Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roberts of White Haven and Mr. John A. Roberts of Princess Anne gave a very delightful launch party on the Fourth of July. Left Quantico Wharf at 8:30 o'clock A. M., took a trip down the river, stopping at Deals Island hotel for dinner. After enjoying beautiful music and delightful walking on the wharf, the party then enjoyed the Deals Island celebration of the Fourth on the Old Camp Ground; leaving at 4 o'clock went back to White Haven and enjoyed the pleasure of the celebration there, each one declaring a delightful day. The party, Misses Jesse Taylor, Nellie Graham, Dora Jones, Lillian and Stella Bonds, Hilda Howard, Clara Wright, Mabel Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Twilley, Dr. Howard Lynch, Messrs. Howard Langrall, Clifford Taylor, Royland Bailey, George Austin, and Clifford Bonds.

Good Year for Potatoes.

The white potato crop of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia is quite prolific this year. They are being shipped in large quantities and are bringing $2.50 to $3.25 a barrel. This is regarded as a good price to the growers and one which will yield them a satisfactory profit, in view of the large yield produced.

The value of this entire crop cannot be definitely estimated, as no accurate statistics are kept of the growth, which is widely scattered to all parts of the country. That with reach several million dollars however for the Maryland and Virginia sections is the conservative estimate of those most familiar with the trade.

Another truck in this section is equally as profitable, but this seems to have been a particularly good year for potatoes. These are in demand, and despite the large supply, prices so far have held near the top notch.

Yacht No. 7, Launched.

The Sharptown Yacht Co., launched a pretty little gasoline boat, known as No. 7, on Saturday evening. Quite a large number of people witnessed the launching. This is the third one launched within ten days, all of which are pleasure boats for Philadelphia customers. Nos 8 and 9 will be built as quickly as possible. These boats are built by the Sharptown Yacht Co., under the management of John B. Smith, architect and designer, and L. J. Oosten, of Philadelphia, looking after the purchasing and selling. The concern has had a wonderful growth. The boats are all beautiful and are very much admired and the demand is increasing. For speed, fine finish, beauty of construction and neatness in all the departments these boats have a high record.

The Misses Day entertained a number of their friends at their home on Elizabeth Street this week.

TOWN OF PITTSVILLE

Sketch Of Its Foundation And Growth. Developed Into A Place Of Commercial Importance.

Pittsville, Md., the greatest shipping point for strawberries on the R. O. & A. R. R., is located about midway between Salisbury and Berlin. The first house was erected on this spot in the year 1817 by one, Joshua Lewis, a Justice of the Peace, and was designed for a country store. Three or four other buildings sprang up around this prior to 1865, when through the enterprise of the people on the eastern end of Wicomico county and the people of Worcester county, the Wicomico and Pocomoke R. R. was completed from Salisbury to Berlin. From this our little town began to spread and took on the name of Pittsville in honor of Dr. Hilary Pitts of Berlin, who was an active agent in the railroad enterprise. Let it be remembered that the people along the route of this road contributed heavily toward its construction. This railroad gave an impetus to trade, our people began to grow some truck, strawberries, potatoes, etc., Dr. G. W. Freeny being among the first to begin the culture of strawberries for market in this locality, and our little town is greatly indebted to the culture of this fruit for its growth.

We number about three hundred inhabitants, support two churches. Our school has three teachers, one hundred and fifty pupils and does a higher grade work than any school in the county, outside of Salisbury. We have a bank organized about two years ago with a paid up capital of twenty five thousand dollars, and under the management of our enterprising cashier, M. A. Davis, is doing a thrifty business. We have five merchants doing a business of fifty thousand a year, besides Mrs. J. E. Richardson's millinery store, which will fit the ladies out with as neat hats as any store in the county. We have two hotels ready and willing to accommodate all travelers. As fine a team can be had at Mr. G. A. Shockley's livery as one may wish for.

We have two Doctors, G. W. and L. O. Freeny, so well skilled in their profession that it is seldom that our people have to suffer long from any malady.

Our mechanics, under the leadership of Mr. James R. Freeny, are ever ready to erect us as comfortable buildings as we can afford.

This district is naturally adapted to farming and trucking. The soil producing good crops of corn, strawberries, potatoes, peas, clover, etc., even though it be under cultivation every year, and it is being demonstrated that good crops of wheat may be grown on our soil. Mr. Daniel H. Parsons, an enterprising farmer just beyond the corporation limits of Pittsville, can boast as heavy yield of wheat per acre on his farm as almost any farmer. Our manufacturing enterprises are constantly increasing. The crane and basket factory and lumber mill of the Peter Mfg. Co., under the management of Mr. B. S. Wimbrow, is doing a profitable business for the firm and is a great help to our town. This firm employed in and about their plant in this town an average of fifty men per day during the year 1907, paid an average wage of more than one dollar per day. They keep here constantly at work, thirteen mules besides some hired teams.

Mr. J. Cleveland White's canning factory located here employs during the canning season about one hundred hands and has opened up a profitable branch of trucking to our farmers, as our soil yields abundant crops of tomatoes and sweet potatoes.

Mr. H. James Traut's shirt factory has a capacity of thirty machines. Among the residents of our town are a number of men engaged in the lumber business, having mills located in neighborhoods adjacent to the town, the lumber being hauled here for shipment. Among these are G. Ernest Hearn, E. T. Shockley and D. James Davis.

We have another class of men engaged in the brokerage business, who are an assistance to our farmers as they make it lively for each other and the commission men who come here during the shipping season. Among this class are the M. Davis Co., Thomas M. Traut, Geo. A. Shockley, G. E. Hearn, P. T. Baker, Geo. W. Parker, A. B. Traut and T. W. Davis. One of our greatest needs is better roads. Three fourths of the population of Wicomico County, east of Salisbury, is located within four miles of the B. O. & A. R. R., and very, very few more than six miles, as this road runs near the center of the county most the way east of Salisbury. If the State Commission should see fit to run the State Road parallel to and near this railroad it will be a great benefit to four fifths of the people east of Salisbury, as it will give a great many of them a good road on which to haul their farm products to the railroad stations and will furnish to nearly all the eastern section a good drive way to Salisbury, the county seat.

We believe if the State Road should follow this route that within a very few years our County Commissioners under the leadership of their worthy president, Mr. William M. Cooper, will open up good shell or stone roads from the various shipping points to the Delaware line and the Worcester line, thus giving every farmer in this section of our country an easy way of transporting his products to the railroad. Taxpayers, let us reason together and spend the portion of the State appropriation belonging to Wicomico County for the people of Wicomico County.

comico County. If this State Road should be run from Sharptown via of Mardele to Salisbury and then parallel to the railroad it will be more benefit as has been said, to the people of Wicomico County and Worcester County than any other possible route, as it will go a great way toward building up Ocean City. Besides other benefits enumerated; and this building up Ocean City may mean more to the farmers in these two counties than they realize at present. Since if Ocean City can be developed as it should be, it would be a ready and nearby market for a great quantity of garden vegetables, poultry and eggs, beef cattle, etc.

Treatment FREE

I will treat a limited number of horses free of charge at S. P. Woodcock's stable, Saturday, June 20, 1908, between 2 and 7 p. m. Have you a horse that gets ravenously and is constantly getting thinner? Has he weak eyes, indigestion, swollen limbs, has he disagreeable habits such as cribbing, carrying tongue out of his mouth does he have a distill like coat of hair?

If you have a horse that has any of these ailments or any others, don't pour a lot of drugs into his stomach, but have him examined by a professional. As veterinary medicine offers the only rational treatment for any and all these ailments and a number of others. My methods are up-to-the-minute. Examination FREE. Charges reasonable.

Ocean City.

Located directly on the ocean, and yet right in the midst of a fine trucking and fruit district, Ocean City offers many inducements to tired, overworked city folk. Almost every hotel and boarding house here commands an unobstructed view of the ocean, and one can sit on the broad verandas and watch the large sailing-vessels and steamers far out to sea, while the cool sea breeze fans their brow. That is what many of our Baltimore, Washington and Philadelphia friends are doing this hot weather, and they are enjoying it, too. When one gets fully rested and begins to crave a little action, there are launches galore that can be had for a small sum. They will take you out and you can fish to your heart's content. If you are fond of golf we can accommodate you there also. When you come in, with an appetite whetted to a keen edge by your exertions, there awaits you in most any hotel or boarding house on the beach a feast suited to the taste of an epicurean. No one questions the ability of the Eastern Shore people to prepare food fit for a king, when they have it to prepare and—we have it; fried chicken, soft crabs, oysters, Maryland biscuits, etc.

In the evening there are many amusements to be found to take one's mind off of business cares and worries. Looked at from most any point of view, we have one of the most attractive resorts on the coast, for the pleasure hunter, sportsman or the business man seeking relaxation. And, judging from the number of people coming in every day, the outside world is beginning to realize this fact.

E. W. TRUITT, MANUFACTURER OF FERTILIZERS FOR ALL CROPS

For STRAWBERRIES—A fertilizer that is said to prevent frosts from injuring blossoms to a great extent; also make nice berries and make the size hold up well in case of long drouths. I have experimented of this particular kind for the past six years.

WHITE POTATOES—A fertilizer that will make a good crop (season permitting) without being too expensive.

CORN Fertilizer, for best results, must contain ingredients that will not burn the crop under the worst weather conditions.

TOMATO and CANTALOUPE Fertilizer is another study of mine. To get best results with smallest outlay consistent with what is expected out of the crop, the plants must grow fast from the start and have a fertilizer that contains all necessary elements.

Any kind of goods mixed to order on short notice. It is to my best interest to study the needs of the farmer in this line.

The New Mayor
Based on G. H. Broadhurst's Successful Play
THE MAN OF THE HOUR

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

With all the advantages of youth, education and good looks and no vocation other than the enjoyment of wealth, the hero of our present story chose rather to sacrifice his ease and comfort on the altar of his duty as a citizen. His city called him to save her from spoliation and corruption, and he responded to the call. To lure him from the path of right came the seductions of love and the claims of a revered parent's memory, allied with the mighty forces at the command of political and financial malefactors. The firmness with which "the man of the hour," singled out for the highest post in a great municipality by those who saw in him only a weakling and a tool, resisted the very forces that had elevated him for their own purposes to official power will be an inspiration to the reader, as it has been an uplifting force in the minds of thousands who have witnessed its theatrical representation.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE momentous Friday had arrived; the day when the famous—or infamous—Borough Street railway bill in its amended form was to come up for the aldermen's consideration. Every paper in the city devoted columns to the situation. Everywhere it was known that the "boy mayor" was fighting with all his might the bill he had already vetoed. Equally well was it understood that Horrigan was making the battle of his whole career in behalf of the measure. If he could but induce his "solid thirteen" aldermen to stand firm and could maintain his hold on Roberts for the fourteenth, all would be plain sailing and the bill would pass by a two-thirds vote in spite of the mayor's veto.

More than the mere bill and his price for it were included in Horrigan's reasons for his present activity. He recognized that his prestige as boss was at stake—that in case of failure his hold on the organization would be considerably weakened, perhaps almost as much shaken as to permit Phelan to fulfill his once absurd threat to tear him down from his eminence. For the whole organization was viewing with keenest interest the duel between Horrigan and the youthful mayor; the boss had "made" in such circles a beaten man commands scant respect.

The board of aldermen were in session in the city hall. Off the ante-chamber of the great room where they met was a small, snugly furnished apartment, first of a series of similar rooms that stretched away, with connecting doors, to the far end of the main corridor. This place, with the room adjoining, had once been the controller's office. Of late, however, that official had changed his quarters and the room nearest the ante-chamber had been appropriated by Horrigan himself as a sort of unofficial surgery, where he could sit at ease and transact business at close quarters whenever the organization's secret interests demanded his presence at the city hall.

Here, his whereabouts known only to his intimate and personal henchmen, the boss was wont to sit at ease, like some fat, rubicund spider in the center of a web of intrigue, and issue his orders or plans of campaign. Some of these were carried by word of mouth through the ante-room into the aldermanic chamber. Others he transmitted by means of a telephone that stood ready on the center table, before which his great easy chair was always placed.

Around this table as the board of aldermen were about to convene on the fateful Friday of the Borough bill's final consideration sat three men—Wainwright, Gibbs and Horrigan. The former, in spite of his habitual steady coolness, was plainly uneasy. Gibbs made no effort to deny his anxiety. His eyes were bloodshot, his manner abstracted and his nerves evidently strong to breaking point. Horrigan alone of the trio had abated not one jot of the colossal calm and brutal power that were part and parcel of the man's mighty character.

"When will our bill come up, do you suppose?" asked Gibbs, breaking a brief silence.

"In half an hour or so probably," answered Horrigan, glancing at his watch. "I thought it was better for us to get here ahead of time."

"Half an hour?" Gibbs asked. "And neither Ellis nor Roberts here yet? Suppose they don't rat here on time?"

"They will," Gibbs answered placidly.

"Do you think it is possible either of them has come yet?" asked Gibbs, with a glance at the ante-chamber door.

"No."

"How do you know? Perhaps—"

"Williams would have told me. He knows where I'm to be found."

"You're sure Ellis and Roberts will show up?"

"Yes."

"In good time."

"How soon?"

"But suppose they don't?" insisted Gibbs nervously. "What then?"

"Why, if they don't, then they won't. What do you suppose?" snapped Horrigan.

"What's the matter with you, anyhow? Are you looking for a museum job as the 'human question mark'?"

"Gibbs is naturally nervous," explained Wainwright. "He's not so old at this game as you and I, Horrigan, and we must make allowances."

"Nervous?" grunted the boss. "I should say he is! Just look at that cigar I gave him. He's been chewing it as if it was a sausage. That's no way to treat a fifty cent cigar, man! Here, try another, and see if you can't smoke it instead of eating a free lunch off it. Nothing like a good smoke to steady your nerves. If—"

The ante-chamber door opened, and Williams hurried in.

"I got Ellis!" he reported. "He's here, and—"

"With significant emphasis—'he'll vote right!'"

"Good!" assented Horrigan. "I thought he'd come to time. Now, for Roberts and the thing's done."

"The gallery in there is jammed," reported Williams, jerking his head toward the aldermanic chamber. "I never saw such a mob in the place before."

"That's what comes of all this newspaper publicity," growled Horrigan. "If it wasn't for the papers the people'd never make any trouble for us. But they read the news and then they get silly ideas about their 'rights,' and a lot of them come here to see they don't get swindled. Lord! If the papers would only suspend publication for one month, I'd guarantee to put the whole state in my vest pocket. They're always butting in to spoil the organization's honest profits. How are the crowd in the galleries behaving?"

"They're quiet," answered Williams uneasily. "Too quiet. That's what bothers me. They seem to be waiting for the Borough bill to—"

"If they raise any row, rush a motion through to clear the galleries," ordered Horrigan.

"Nothing short of the police could clear away that big crowd."

"Then we'll have the police in to help."

"But," argued Williams, "that would mean a riot, and a lot of people would get hurt. All the newspapers tomorrow would—"

"Never mind that. Go ahead and do as you're told. At the first sign of disapproval from the galleries have the motion passed and turn the police loose. Understand?"

"All right," acquiesced Williams dubiously and withdrew.

Wainwright opened his mouth to protest, but Horrigan was already busy at the telephone.

"Hello!" he called. "I want 900 P. 900 P. Yes—yes. Is that the captain?"

He went on a moment later. "Then send him to the phone. Tell him Mr. Horrigan—Hello, captain!" after another pause. "Yes, it's Horrigan. At city hall. In the aldermanic chamber there's a mob, and we're likely to need the police to quiet 'em. Yes, No, not beatless interest. You fool! Quiet them! Yes. Send us squad at double quick. Let the sergeant report to Williams. Let the boys bring their night sticks, and tell 'em they're to take no back talk and not to be afraid to slug it if it comes to that, and I guess it will. Pick out the right sort to send. Yes. Of course I'll back up anything they do. Sure. Rush 'em. Goodby."

"But," began Wainwright as Horrigan hung up the receiver. "The boss cut him short. 'I'll let that gallery crowd see it ain't safe to interfere with my work.'"

"But," protested Wainwright, "surely it will not be necessary to—"

"To break heads? It probably will. Why not?"

"I'd rather use diplomatic tactics."

"Diplomacy's a game I never took the trouble to learn."

"But those people you're about to antagonize control voters?"

"Yes. The people may control the votes, but we count them. See the difference?"

"But doesn't the law permit the public to attend these meetings?"

"Only so long as they behave themselves. If a few of 'em get clubbed they won't be so ready next time to butt in where they aren't wanted. They?"

"The tinkle of the telephone bell cut short the boss' public spirited remarks. Horrigan unslinging the receiver.

"Hello!" he balled. "Who's—On Roberts, eh?"

"Is it Roberts?" cried Gibbs excitedly.

"No," snarled Horrigan in ponderous sarcasm. "It's the car of Russia telephoning to borrow a nickel. I called him Roberts! What's that? Yes, this is Mr. Horrigan. Want to see me, do you? What for? No, there isn't. He went on angrily after a moment's hesitation. "You and I settled all that. Come and do your share of the—Yes, I tell you it's up to you to make good."

Another pause, during which Gibbs and Wainwright glanced at each other in suspense. Then the boss continued, in a louder voice, over the wire:

"Well, come to my room in the city hall, then. If you're not to see me. But there's no need for it. It's all settled and there's nothing more to be said. I'll be here. Don't keep me waiting. I—What's that? Not I won't come to you! You'll come to me, and you'll come on the double quick! Jump now, if you don't—No, that's all. Hurry up!"

"Wouldn't it be wiser," suggested Gibbs, to humor the man by going to him, as he suggested? Then—

"How do you know? Perhaps—"

"No, it wouldn't!" retorted Horrigan as he kept the telephone. "If I'd gone on the principle of 'humoring' folks, I'd still be working at eighteen per cent ferry tickets. Take my tip, friend! Never go to a man. Make him come to you. That's business. And it gives you a 90 per cent letter chance with him. Now, then," pulling a paper from his pocket, "I told you about the report I had Morris & Cherrington dig out showing up Bennett's old man. Here it is. Like to look it over while we're waiting?"

"Little enough good it seems to have done!" returned Wainwright as the three heads bent over the document. "He's still fighting us, tooth and nail."

"Yes," snarled Horrigan grimly. "But it's a satisfaction, knowing it's only us he's fighting. He's cutting his own throat too."

AN ODDITY AMONG NAILS.

Its Use Turned Out to Be Different From What Expected.

A man who had often seen on the side of a building that he passes in his rounds down town a sign reading "Cement Coated Nails," and who had wondered what cement coated nails could be used for and made up his mind that they must be for use in wharf buildings or something like that, under water, where the cement on them would protect them against rust, learned upon inquiry that the cement on the nails did indeed have a protective purpose, but this purpose turned out to be one quite different from that which he had imagined, says the New York Sun.

For the coating on cement coated nails is designed not to protect the nails themselves, but the goods in the boxes in which the nails may be driven; and this in a manner that to the man of inquiring mind seemed quite novel and remarkable.

The cement coated nail is a wire nail. In these days there are more wire nails used than cut nails, because wire nails are cheaper; they cost about the same by weight, but there are more wire nails to the pound, and so wire nails have come into wide-spread common use for many purposes, one of them being found in the nailing together of many sorts of boxes.

A wire nail can be drawn more easily than a cut nail and so with less likelihood of injury to the box, and this might seem only another recommendation of the wire nail in such use, as it is reasonably might be if one of the chief considerations were the preservation of the box; but the primary consideration is, of course, the protection of the box's contents, and here is where the cement coated nail comes in, and in the manner that seemed novel and remarkable.

With time and the opportunity the cover of a light box wire nailed could be lifted and replaced and the nails driven without showing any marks on the box, and thus there was the possibility of the destruction of goods from such boxes in transit. For instance, a pair of shoes might be taken out of a shoe case, and the cover put back without showing any signs of tampering. And with this requirement for it along comes the inventor of the cement coated nail, which is simply a wire nail covered with a very thin coating of material that makes the nail, once driven, stick so tightly that not only does it hold more securely but it can't be drawn without tearing or breaking the box.

Meat Tenderizer and Cleaver.

With the aid of an implement devised by a New Jersey man it now becomes possible for the butcher to chop the meat and at the same time add to its tenderness by pounding with a combined cleaver and meat-tenderizer. The cleaver, as shown in the illustration below, is similar to those commonly used. On one corner, opposite to the blade, a series of teeth are arranged at an angle. These teeth are used in tenderizing.

MEAT TENDERIZER AND CLEAVER.

The meat. The advantage of placing the teeth at an angle will be obvious. If they were placed parallel with the upper edge of the cleaver it would be impossible to manipulate the tenderizer without knocking the meat on the table. By placing the teeth at an angle the handle is removed from the table when either the cleaver or teeth are being used, preventing injury to the hand.

ALFALFA

Summer and early fall seeding of alfalfa will be successful if the plant is given a quick, steady, early start by the proper use of Potash.

Weeds are reduced to the minimum, and winter-killing is practically out of the question where Potash is used to invigorate the young plant and set the crop.

FARM AND GARDEN

FERTILIZERS FOR THE GARDEN.

Some of the Various Kinds Which Can Be Used with Success.

Stable manure is relied on by many gardeners, but it is very liable to introduce the seeds of weeds. Nevertheless excellent crops can be and are grown with stable manure alone. At any seed store you can buy a complete fertilizer—i. e., one containing nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. For ordinary garden crops from three to twelve pounds to a square rod is about the proper amount. A good fertilizer for corn contains three per cent of nitrogen, six of phosphoric acid and eight of potash.

Turnips, cabbages, cauliflower and lettuce require a large amount of phosphate (superphosphate); commercial fertilizers used for these crops should contain nearly twelve per cent of available phosphate acid. These crops also require a large amount of nitrogen, which can be added to advantage after the plants are partly grown, in the form of nitrate of soda scattered light on the ground near the plants and raked in. Tomatoes and other crops may be stimulated by the use of nitrate of soda used in the same way. It should not be allowed to touch the plants, and if used before a rain, so much the better.

Ground bone and wood ashes make an excellent fertilizer for fruit trees, shrubs, and small fruits of all kinds. Bone and wood ashes should be used in the spring and thoroughly dug into the soil. When wood ashes are not obtainable use bone meal and muriate of potash.

Asparagus should have a dressing of salt in the spring, and after the crop has been secured should be given a liberal amount of ground bone, muriate of potash, and nitrate of soda.

Potash or wood ashes should never be mixed with ground bone or with poultry droppings, or there will be loss of valuable ammonia.—Suburban Life.

Making a Barn Grain Chute.

In barns where the grain is kept on the upper floor and fed out below it is very convenient to have grain chutes leading from each bin so that the grain may be drawn near where fed out. In our barn we have one bin in the basement, but I find it is very handy to have chutes leading to each bin to draw out grain when not convenient to fill the large hopper. The cut shows a chute we have in use in one of my barns. We constructed it some ten or twelve years ago and have used it more or less ever since.

The interior of the chute should not be less than six inches square and for oats I prefer 8". The inter-for should be free from all obstruction so that the grain will pass down by its own weight.

The hopper shape device just under the bin is quite necessary with oats and especially ground feed. The cut off at the bottom is a drawer supported by two cleats on either side. A small projection is allowed in front for holding a bag.

Grain chutes of this nature are cheap and save a large amount of labor and travel in feeding stock. Every farmer should endeavor to economize both time and labor as much as possible by introducing handy devices.—L. C. R. in Prairie Farmer

Flax Pays.

We read of a farmer up in our Northwest country who bought 160 acres in the heart of the great flax belt for $10 an acre on the crop payment plan. He broke up 135 acres and planted it in flax. In round numbers he thrashed in the fall eighteen and one-half bushels to the acre; sold it for $1.35 a bushel; total $9,500; a little more than twice enough to pay for his land out of his first crop. Not only was the flax immensely profitable to him, but it removed from the country the stigma, "one crop country."

Slump in Whiskey.

The internal revenue reports on the production of whiskeys during the past few months tell a tale of a slump that is unparalleled in the history of liquor interests of the country. Eighty per cent of the standard whiskeys produced in America comes from the three States of Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Maryland, consequently the comparative figures on whiskey production in these three States show the general trend of conditions.

The decrease of whiskey production in Kentucky from October 1, 1907, to March 1, 1908, was from 57 to 79 per cent. The decrease in Pennsylvania during the same time ranged from 7 to 37 per cent, while the decrease in Maryland was from 44 to 60 per cent.

Over Thirty Five Years.

In 1873 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use had extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

Ocean City is Maryland's only seaside resort, delightfully situated, facing the broad Atlantic with Binepaxent Bay on the opposite side. It is absolutely free from malaria, and the dryness of its sea breezes, caused by the close proximity of the Gulf Stream makes it particularly desirable as a health resort. Ocean City is reached from Baltimore by steamer, via the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway from Pier 4 Light Street Wharf. From the South by daily boat from Norfolk or Old Point to Cape Charles City, then by rail via the N. Y. P. and N. R. R. From Philadelphia New York, and points North or West by Pennsylvania R. R., Delaware Division.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera And Diarrhoea Remedy Would Have Saved Him $100.00.

"In 1902 I had a very severe attack of diarrhoea," says R. N. Farrar of Cat Island, La. "For several weeks I was unable to do anything. On March 18, 1907, I had a similar attack and took Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which gave me prompt relief. I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1902 I believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill." Sold by at Toulson's Drug Store.

It is terribly hot in the city just now and efforts are being made to find homes for part of the summer for some of the fresh air children of the city. Any one who feels that they can take one or more of these children for awhile will please write to the Rev. Mr. Hancock, at Berlin, Md., for information on the subject. It is a most worthy cause and we hope many will respond to the appeal.

Bad Burn Quickly Healed.

"I am so delighted with what Chamberlain's Salve has done for me that I feel bound to write and tell you so," says Mrs. Robert Mytton, 457 John St., Hamilton, Ontario. "My little daughter had a bad burn on her knee. I applied Chamberlain's Salve and it healed beautifully." This salve allays the pain of a burn almost instantly. It is for sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

The Bachelor's Button

By Martha Gray Pillsbury.

The hot, sultry sun, peculiar alone to the month of August, was pouring its rays over the busy, turmoil of an overcrowded city. Through this crowd Julia Clayton was plodding her way to the office where files of ordinary papers awaited her glance. Life had become monotonous to her of late. One point on which she prided herself most was beginning to wear off its outer coat of novelty and reveal nothing substantial in the inner light. She had always boasted of being a bachelor maiden, armed with a heart of steel, which no masculine eye, however beguiling, could pierce or affect in the least. Now these fancies were becoming tiresome.

On this particular day, as she was hurrying to her daily trial, the lawyer's office, she met the eyes of an especially noticed man for the past week. The fact that made him so conspicuous in her eyes was the stately little bachelor's button that rested on his coat lapel, whose face of blue stared defiantly at her. All the week this little flower had haunted her vision and bothered her exceedingly. That the wearer should seem so different to her from the other members of his sex provoked her greatly.

Julie entered the office and was soon at her desk working with a furious haste to forget the impracticability of her former thoughts. The arrival of Mr. Forbes the lawyer, did not occasion her to raise her eyes, and soon she heard distinct voices conversing in the room adjoining; one she recognized as her employer's, and the other as a stranger's, but somehow the tones gave her an uneasy thrill, for at their sound the little blue flower came before her mind again.

Becoming absorbed in a legal document, she was greatly startled to hear a voice at her side. "Pardon me for my interruption, but have you the Welles deed here?" Julie held her breath. There was the stranger with the bachelor's button, that had caused her so much thought. Being naturally self-possessed, she soon collected herself to answer:

"Yes, I will look in the file."

Trembling, with too conscious fingers, she produced a bulky document.

"I think this must be the one you desire."

"Thank you very much for your trouble. Good morning."

In the latter part of the afternoon, Mr. Forbes informed her that he had engaged a young lawyer to help him in the office.

"Richards, come here a moment." The stranger obeyed.

"This is my new assistant, Mr. Richards, Miss Clayton."

Julie met the new lawyer at frequent intervals during the next week, and on the following Monday, when she raised her head to respond to the usual greeting, she noticed that the bachelor's button had disappeared.

He immediately crossed that room and seated himself in a chair beside her desk.

"I hope you will forgive me, but honestly I think you were wondering at the disappearance of a little button of mine—the flower that I usually wear. You see, I have always considered myself as enjoying the happy state of bachelorhood. So I wore the flower as a symbol."

"Well, I have resolved never to patronize that flower again, for to be honest, I am actually in love. I always imagined myself a man of sense, but I must have changed. Now do you understand why I do not wear the flower?"

An interruption prevented further conversation, and afterwards Julie was much vexed by a little voice that would set her to wondering who the happy girl was and what she was like.

The next day Julie found herself in the flow of conversation again.

"But what is this 'divinity' like in appearance?" she asked, after hearing much of her charming qualities.

"She has light, wavy hair, and eyes as—well, something like yours," he went on, hesitatingly.

"Does she acknowledge your love?"

"No. That's why I'm despondent. She is utterly oblivious to my overtures. To be serious, I feel that I am wrong in caring for her as she might not be content with my small salary and would scorn my affections if I told her."

"No decent girl would do that," impulsively exclaimed Julie.

"You really think, then, that my case is fortunate?"

"Yes," replied Julie.

"Suppose a man in my circumstances proposed to you, would you accept him?"

"Why, yes, if I contemplated that state," she carefully replied.

"Well, now, I ask you if you will accept?" he murmured, drawing nearer.

"What?" gasped Julie.

"My small income and my great love."

The violet eyes wandered bewilderingly for a moment, then the light of understanding beamed through the cloud of ignorance—and all was well.

MARRYING GRACE

By Marion Foster.

"It's so funny that Grace hasn't married," mused the young woman with black hair. "She's the only one of our crowd who hasn't, and I'm sure she is attractive!"

"Of course she is!" said the young woman with curly hair. "I'm sure Grace is a very nice girl. Let's see, she's nearly 30; isn't she? I don't think she's so strikingly pretty but she is nice and fresh looking!"

"She hasn't so much style about her," contributed the fashionably dressed young woman, "but of course that is knack, and she hasn't got it. Grace always looks neat and presentable, though no one would ever notice her twice. I'm very fond of Grace—she's so good-hearted!"

After this settling Grace in her proper place in the matrimonial game looked at one another and sighed contentedly.

"I don't know why the men don't flock around her more," pursued the black-haired one. "Of course Grace is such a fine girl that only women really appreciate her. Men don't care for these splendid housekeepers and sincere, well-meaning girls—till after they are married to them. And Grace hasn't any of the attractive little superficialities. She is so downright honest. You might call her tactless, and men hate that!"

"Yes, it certainly is poor Grace's fault," said the one with curly hair. "I don't believe she ever had even a real flirtation. She says I lost men don't interest her at all, but of course that is only a pose. She must know that she isn't popular with them."

"Sanford Raleigh!" suddenly shrieked the fashionable one, clapping her hands. The other two shrieked with her in approbation. "Let's marry Grace to Sanford Raleigh!" she continued. "Why didn't we ever think of it before? Of course he is 48 and homely, but Grace can't expect a young man to fall in love with her. They are all scared at the sight of her and she won't put herself out to amuse them. Sanford Raleigh needs a home and a wife and I'm sure he is kind, and Grace ought to be thankful to get him."

"He hasn't much money, but he is so capable that they could live nicely on his income, small as it is. Grace doesn't care about having things anyhow. She never made any fuss when we girls had better clothes than her people could afford to provide for her. It's just the thing and I'm sure she should be very grateful to us for arranging everything. It isn't everyone who would take so much pains for an old friend."

"I'll have them to dinner," said the black-haired one.

She did. Gracious! the evening talking over old times with her hostess and apparently enjoying herself very much while Sanford Raleigh persistently clung to his host.

He was a shy man and while Grace was pleasant she did not appear interested in him.

"Don't you think," her despairing hostess asked at the end of the evening, during which she had been utterly unable to make the prospective lovers become interested in each other, "don't you think that Sanford Raleigh is a fine fellow?"

"Oh, certainly," replied Grace, stifling a yawn. "He bores me to extinction, however."

"What does she expect. I'd like to know!" indignantly asked the black-haired one of her two fellow conspirators when next they met. "You'd think she had her pick of a dozen. She'd be in luck to get him!"

Following this the three of them artfully, persistently, patiently worked to throw Grace and Sanford Raleigh together without the two suspecting it. It was heroic work. For six weeks the three lost sleep and grew pale in this diplomatic service.

The airy unconcern of the object of their devoted efforts exasperated them to rebellion against their hostess. They had set out to get their old friend married and it was not in them to say die. The longer they thought of it the more eminently suitable seemed the match between prosaic, kindly, commonplace Sanford Raleigh and the domestic, economical, good-tempered, unfashionable friend of their girlhood.

"I could cry about it," mourned the curly-haired one toward the last. "It is one of the things that ought to be—and they won't pay any attention to each other!"

"I said I'd marry her off and I will if I devote the rest of my life to it!" said the black-haired one, determined.

In view of this the shock that was theirs when Grace suddenly married a man from Boston was unexplainable.

"He's the handsomest person I ever saw!" said Grace's black-haired friend with indignation. "Perfectly stunning!"

"And he's simply head over heels in love with her!" added the curly-haired one in bitter amusement.

"And he has ten times as much money as our three husbands put together!" snapped the fashionable one. "How on earth she ever got him I don't see!"

To this day they nourish a vague feeling of resentment against Grace for deliberately treating them in such an outrageous manner. They'll never forgive her.

But both Grace and the unrepentant Sanford Raleigh, who married a chit of a girl, with a doll-baby manner, are supremely happy, so it does not matter. Neither of them knows of their blighted romance.

The great and growing popularity of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due both to its scientific compounding and to the actual medicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the names of the ingredients on the wrapper of every bottle sold, gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy. It is not a patent medicine nor a secret one either. This fact puts it in a class all by itself, bearing as it does upon every bottle wrapper The Badge of Honesty, in the full list of its ingredients. Many years of active practice convinced Dr. Pierce of the value of many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense, both in time and in money, to perfect his own peculiar processes for rendering them both efficient and safe for tonic, alterative and rebuilding agents.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures weak stomach, indigestion or dyspepsia torpid liver and biliousness ulceration of stomach and bowels and all catarrhal affections no matter what parts or organs may be effected with it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Much imitated but never equaled. Sugar coated and easy to take as candy. One to three a dose.

Twenty-Five Horsepower

Marcell Gallois, the president of the large factory making the famous Jacques and Buddisart car, felt strangely uneasy when on a Monday morning he made his usual round of inspection through the factory, for the light twenty-five-horsepower car which he had allowed the foreman, Charles Bolland, to use the day before, was not in its place. He looked over the large number of finished cars which were ready for delivery, and saw immediately that the missing car was not among them. Just then he saw Bolland himself coming toward him, and his pale and haggard face told him that something serious had happened. He suspected that an accident had taken place, but before he had been able to ask any questions Bolland said:

"I must speak to you alone, Gallois."

Without saying a word in reply the president went down the long hall leading to his office and as soon as he closed the door behind him Bolland began to tell his story, nervously fingering his leather cap between his fingers.

"Mr. Gallois, I must tell you something. For four years I have been a foreman under you; you have really been alone, Gallois," satisfied with my work and when once in a while you had something to find fault with I always listened to you without trying to find any excuses. I tell this only to remind you that I have not been unworthy of your confidence. I am a man of steady and regular habits, and I am not afraid of any kind of work, although I am forty-five years old.

"As you may remember I was married in May last, or just about eleven months ago and you were then kind enough to send us a beautiful lamp as a wedding present. It still looks like new and not an evening has passed that we have not used it."

"I can tell you that we were very happy together during the first months, although we had to be very saving, because the wedding cost us a good deal of money, but my wife understood how to manage a household, and never allowed any of the dealers to overcharge her, and I worked overtime whenever I had a chance.

"Then one day in January, just as we were taking in more people in the factory, a young fellow came up to me and asked me if I was Mr. Bolland."

"That is my name," I replied. "Mr. Bolland," he said, "three months ago I left the army, having served my term, and since then I have had no work, but am very interested and willing to learn. Could you not find some position for me here?"

"He was a handsome and intelligent looking fellow and I liked him immediately. I was sure that he was a young man we could use, and when I told you that he was that George who yesterday was the best worker in the finishing department, you must admit that I made no mistake in taking him in."

"He seemed very thankful for what I had done, for he had been actually starving, and he tried to show his gratitude at every occasion, and so we soon became good friends. Many a night he went home with me to my house to listen to my wife singing and playing, and after a while we asked him to board with us, because we thought it would be cheaper for him than to eat at a restaurant. At the same time, the money he paid would help us along. We had an empty room, and this my wife fixed up for him."

"It was an unfortunate idea, M. Gallois, for that was the beginning of my unhappiness. George, as I already said, was a handsome fellow, who did not care to go out, and spent all his evenings with us, reading aloud while my wife was darning stockings, and I did nothing but listen."

"Whether Elsie did anything to make him fall in love with her or not I don't know, but after a while I began to suspect something. They were both very careful and far smarter than I have ever been, but when a man really loves his wife, something in his heart tells him when there is anything wrong. I had no proofs and I decided to say nothing until I should be perfectly sure of their guilt."

"Yesterday we went out in the car you were kind enough to let me have. It was so beautiful in the country, M. Gallois, and if there had been nothing wrong, if I hadn't felt the terrible suspicion gnawing at my heart, I should have enjoyed the ride immensely. It was still quite cold when we left the house yesterday morning at 5 o'clock."

"The 25-H.P. ran beautifully. I tried to explain to George who was sitting next to me, how he could get the greatest speed out of the car without using too much gasoline—it is a trick which I alone know," M. Gallois, and if you care for it I will teach it to you some other time—but he was absent-minded and listened much more attentively to my wife, who was sitting in the seat behind us."

"The outing was to be a pleasure trip, so I did not want to tell the two what I thought of them. At last we came to Vendome and had a fine lunch there."

"On the way back it had been the intention that George should drive the car, but as it was already getting late and we were in a hurry, I took the wheel again. We had not been riding very far when George said that he felt cold and that he would rather sit next to my wife in the rear seat."

"It began to grow dark and it required my whole attention to look after the running of the car. We were going about forty miles an hour and then one has his hands full and needs to keep his eyes on the road ahead. This I did, but at the same time I kept my ears open and tried to hear what the two behind me had to whisper together. Very often they laughed, and once I felt a sharp pain in my heart and felt sure he had kissed her."

"When I wasn't able to notice anything the two grew more and more audacious. Once I turned my head a little and then I saw that Elsie was lying with her head on his shoulder. I could have cried out with pain."

"Suddenly I noticed that the car was running hot. We were close to Versailles where the road turns sharply and where the railroad tracks are far below. I told George to look after the wheel and stepped out of the car to see what was the matter. It was very hot, so I went to the machinery, I saw the light of my lantern that the car jumped ahead the nut had fallen off the bolt which held the left chain together. If we had gone a short distance further the bolt would have fallen to the tracks below."

"Come down here and look at this, George!" I cried, and jumped to my feet. "He was in my seat in the front, but when he thought I had enough to do underneath the car he took hold of my wife's head with both his hands and was now kissing her on the mouth."

"And then, M. Gallois, I don't know exactly what happened, but I believe I let go the brake and pulled out the bolt which held the chain together—the car jumped ahead and fell down on the tracks. I heard no outcry, only the thud as it struck the ground below."

"At dawn I was near Bloette and from there I took a trolley to Ivry. Now I beg, M. Gallois, please look in the paper to see if there is anything about it, for I have not had the courage to buy a paper myself."

Gallois looked through a paper on his desk and on the first page he saw the head line:

"Terrible Automobile Accident—Car Falls on Railroad Track—Man and Woman Killed."

English as It Is Spoken.

An observing Englishman who has been in business in New York for twelve months or more, recently wrote to a friend in London of some of his impressions of New York life.

"One peculiar thing in this city," as I have noted it," he said in part "is that a large majority of foreign-born residents of alien tongue, when they are here, are German, Italian, French or Scandinavian—converse in their native language until they have occasion to use a profane expression (this of course, does not include polite society but people one encounters in the business day) then they resort to English almost invariably."

"Why this so I do not pretend to explain. It may be that the profanity common to our language is regarded more forbidding than the others—I cannot say. I only know that it is so. But it grates on the ear and is not complimentary to Anglo-Saxon morality."

Queen Notions About Bees.

The idea that bees know their keeper has led to a foolish custom which prevails in certain parts of Europe. When the keeper dies, some one goes out to the hives and whispers in each entrance the solemn fact, in order to keep the bees from leaving; in some instances, the hives are even draped in black."

A certain beekeeper died in Australia, and, as the coffin that contained his remains was carried from the house to the hearse, his bees, in large numbers, clustered on it. Every one present was deeply touched at this mark of their grief, little realizing that it was the fresh varnish on the coffin that had attracted them, and not love for their departed keeper.—Suburban Life.

THE MYSTERIES OF SCENT

Vagaries Which Hunters Can not Explain.

EARLY HUNTING DAYS

Theories That Have Been Advanced. Good and Bad Scouting Days—How Hounds Lose, and Recover the Trail. Fallen Leaves as a Help to the Hunted Fox.

If there is one thing more than another than has vexed the minds of sportsmen through countless centuries, it is the question of "scent"—that remarkable commodity which is so necessary to the success of the hunter. And yet even in this twentieth century, says the London Daily Mail, with all the accumulated knowledge of successive generations at our disposal, it is doubtful whether we know much more about the mysteries of scent than did Nimrod, who, so far as we know, was the mightiest hunter of early days.

As to Nimrod and his methods of hunting we are actually told but little for he is only referred to twice in all the writings of ancient days that are given to us, and no mention is made of his hounds. But we have records of one Marri—who is held by many old time writers to be one and the same as the mighty hunter of Genesis—and he certainly hunted with hounds the latter being invariably mentioned with his name.

At that very remote period, therefore, the usefulness of the hound as a tracker of wild beasts had been recognized and doubtless everything was done then, as it is to this day, to encourage the natural instinct of the canine race in this particular with a view to aiding man in the chase. Yet after all these days there is not an M. F. H. in the land, or a huntsman either, who can tell you why it is that under precisely similar meteorological conditions hounds can run on a burning scent all day on the Monday, and can scarcely raise a whimper on the Tuesday, though the fox be but half a field ahead of them.

Many theories have been advanced to explain the vagaries of scent, but none of them is entirely satisfactory. Some no doubt still pin their faith to the words of the poet who declared that:

A southerly wind and a cloudy sky,
Frolic a hunting morning.
But as a matter of fact neither the one nor the other will make scent "hang" if so be that Providence wills it otherwise. You cannot indeed lay down any hard and fast rule concerning so variable and intangible a thing as scent, which is generally at its best when you least expect it.

Country folk will frequently tell you that scent is never good during the fall of the leaf in autumn or, indeed until the fallen leaves have become rotten. The reason given in support of this argument is that the fox while running turns over the leaves as he goes along—accidentally, of course—and so conceals his tracks as it were, behind him.

It must be a careful fox that could accomplish this slight of foot with any degree of accuracy and a poor nosed pack of hounds that come not own his scent through the shallow density of a withered leaf. But the yokel is quite right up to a certain point in his argument. Scent very often is at its worst during the leaf fall but this is because the smell of decaying leaves themselves is so pungent that it baffles the noses of the pack unless the fox carry a very pronounced odor of his own. Perhaps it is because, like the countryman, we sometimes forget side issues of this description that we are often puzzled by the mysteries of scent.

One point in particular in regard to scent seems impossible of solution. A fox slips away on one side of a covert while hounds are drawing on the other. Somebody sees him and shouts a view hallo! Along comes the huntsman at his best speed and lays on his hounds at the spot where the afore-said person avers that the fox left the wood, but not a hound in the pack will own the line; never a whimper breaks in upon the expectant silence of the eager field. Cast after cast is made but to no purpose, and eventually the huntman moves off to resume his draw, futtering to himself that he "don't believe there weren't no fox at all."

For all that, twenty minutes later, when hounds happen again to be passing that way toward the next covert, suddenly there is a whimper here and another there, and away they go like pack possessed right across the field and through the very gap in yonder hedge that had been pointed out to the unbelieving huntsman. "Well, I never!" remarks that worthy, "and so old Mr. Stiggins was right after all."

Scent certainly at times hangs well in a high wind, just as it may on a very still day; it will unaccountably disappear all of a sudden. But there are days when the wind is high and the ground wet, at which times there must be plenty of evaporation going on, but never a vestige of scent is to be discovered, although hair a dozen foxes may leave covert before your very eyes.

People who have no sense can't do the best they can.

1st DISTRICT CONGRESS

Democrats Nominate At Ocean Thursday.
Republicans Later.

Democrats of the First Congressional district will meet next Thursday in Ocean City to nominate a candidate for Congress.

The indications now are that Mr. J. Harry Covington, of Talbot County, will be the unanimous choice of the convention.

Mr. Covington is at present State's Attorney of Talbot County, and is one of the best known of the younger Democrats on the Eastern Shore. He is said to be active, aggressive, a straight Democrat, with a good, clean record, and the party people generally believe conditions are such that with him as a candidate they will go into the fight in the district with a better chance of victory than they have had for a number of years.

It is pretty generally believed by Republicans that Congressman William H. Jackson will be renominated by their party in the district. That Mr. Jackson can have the unanimous renomination if he says the word, or that he can give it to anyone he desires, is beyond question.

If "Uncle Bill" is renominated by the First district Republicans this time, it is firm purpose of the Democrats in the district to "have the law on him" if he attempts to open up his purse strings to anything like the extent he did two years ago.

TELEPHONE CHARGES

Asked For Three Months Ahead. Drastic
Advance Payment Asked In Salisbury.

The necessity of a Public Service Commission similar in powers and jurisdiction to that adopted by New York state is brought close to home in Wicomico County by the recent act of the Bell Telephone Company in notifying all of its customers in Salisbury that hereafter bills would be rendered for rent of phone three months in advance. If the last legislature had taken up this question which at that time was agitated by several progressive and public spirited men in Baltimore city, we would now have a board to appeal against the injustice of this arbitrary action on the part of the Telephone Company, which asks pay for services before rendering them, and besides gets the use of the subscribers' money for three months for nothing.

If there is a natural monopoly anywhere the telephone would come under that definition as opposition phone companies only mean added expense and inconvenience to the patrons of the phones. As the Bell Company has a monopoly in this section and knowing an opposition company would be a doubtful business enterprise they have the people by the throat and can practically dictate both terms and service.

The people have no redress from their exactions but to discontinue the use of the phone.

The people should be protected both in charges and services rendered by any of our semi-public corporations, and the way to do this is to put the matter in the hands of a state commission with power to see that the rights of the public are fully protected. It was stated at the time of the sale by the old Telephone Company here to the Diamond State Telephone Co., that precautions had been taken to see that the people of Salisbury were fully protected against extortion and bad services. If this is the case it should be looked into and steps taken to protect the subscribers against the payment of services before same are rendered.

STREET PAVING.

The Steam Roller Proceedings of The Mayor And Council.

It is strange impetuosity which drives the Mayor and Council to throw aside their own charter provision providing for an appeal in street paving cases. Are they afraid that without this Bitulthic pavement, there is danger of an epidemic, or that the peace and good order of our well behaved people will be disturbed, or that the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness can not be preserved, till the Court has passed on their conduct. Evidently, they have taken some inconsiderate counsel from some impetuous individuals outside of legal advice.

It is hard to understand why they seem so anxious to defeat the right of appeal or to forestall the decisions of the Court by hurrying to get down the pavement before the appeals are tried at the September Term.

Are they anxious to compel the taxpayers to incur the additional expense of vexatious litigation by injunction proceedings to stop their action pending the appeals; or do they think they can't be enjoined in the interim and that they will have the pavement down (before the Court can act), and thereby render the right of appeal a nullity in its practical effect? In either case their motives are not such as become public officials holding a "public trust."

Have they thought out the possible results of their action? However this may be, they had the right of appeal inserted in their new charter, yet they now ignore, not only their own charter provision, but also the legal rights of the appellants. Having exercised the combined legislative and judicial powers, they now propose to exercise the executive function of government, without waiting for an independent and impartial tribunal to decide upon the legality of their action. Whether the pavement proceedings be wise or injudicious, economical or extravagant, and aside from the ability or inability of tax payers to bear the burdens, are small questions compared to the legal rights of those who have the bills to pay, to have these rights decided by the Court. The taxing Power under which the Mayor and Council are acting, that is the power to take the property of others without the consent of the owners, is one of the highest and most delicate that can be exercised by a sovereign state.

Apparently the city officials think it a light matter, as they do not propose to wait for a higher Court to review their acts.

They propose arbitrarily and despotically to compel the abutting owners to submit to a tax of one half without regard to benefits or values, or submit to a sale of their property. This one half they will have to pay at once while all other tax payers will have their payments of the other half spread out over a period of twenty five years, a due part of which these same abutting owners will have to pay. Why is it the Mayor and Council do not want their proceedings reviewed by the Court before they can get down the pavement?

ARRIVED IN TIME.
Refreshing Rains Through The County Help
Cantaloupe And Other Crops.

The dry weather that has threatened to destroy the Cantaloupe and late trucks, as well as seriously injuring the corn crop was broken in most parts of the County on Tuesday by heavy rains. In the Eastern section of the county the rain was accompanied by a heavy hail and wind doing much injury to the crops; on the road from Parsonsburg to Pittsville the corn in several places was literally cut into threads and beaten down very badly by the heavy winds.

It is believed that the rain was in time to save most of the cantaloupe crop which was drying up with the drought and extreme heat of the past few weeks. Cantaloupes bid fair to be very fine this year as the dry weather has kept them from becoming saturated with water, which destroys their taste and flavor.

BOY ARRESTED
On Incendiary Charge. Barn Owned By Mr.
Smith Burned.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Waller arrested ten year old William Ennis, on the charge of setting fire to a barn owned by Jas. F. Smith, this week. The boy lives with his uncle, Thomas Ennis, in Nutters district, and about one hundred yards from the barn burned. It is stated that the boy acknowledges the burning, and says that he set a shack on fire and from the hog pen threw it in.

The boy is very small for his age and according to the authorities does not seem to have matured either mentally or physically to the extent his age would indicate. There has been considerable sympathy aroused over his case and it is stated that there will be an effort made to have him put in some reformatory institution. He is now confined to the jail and has not been brought before a magistrate for a hearing.

Girl Bit By Dog.
Miss Katherine Beauchamp, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beauchamp was bitten on the face last Saturday by a stray dog. She was taken up to the office of Dr. Dick who cauterized the wound.

An effort was made on the part of friends to have the Council send the head of the dog to Pasteur Institute in Baltimore for analysis.

The Council expressed regret that it was not in their power to do this and offered individually to contribute toward having the head analyzed for rabies.

The head however has not been sent up, and it is not known whether the dog was mad or not.

The child as far as known seems to be doing all right.

BRYAN FIGURES 184.

Electoral Votes Sure At The Fall Election
Where The States Are Placed.

New York is the only State east of the Appalachian Mountains considered doubtful by Mr. Bryan and the Democratic leaders. Mr. Bryan has not said so for publication, but the program of the campaign, which he will offer in person to the Sub-Committee of Eleven in Chicago next week will mark plainly the Middle West and the Pacific coast as the prescribed fields for the third battle.

It is believed that New York will go into the Democratic column in November, and every available bit of strength and political strategy from the Democratic forces will be hurled into the Mississippi valley.

There was a conference of National Committeemen of acknowledged astuteness coming over the special train from Denver to Lincoln. The result submitted to Mr. Bryan was found to coincide with his views. The conferees claimed the solid South for Democracy, added Oklahoma's seven new electoral votes, the thirteen from Indiana and three from Nevada, and agreed that Bryan and Kern will not receive fewer than 184 electoral votes as a result of the November election.

They set down as certain for Taft and Sherman every Eastern State except New York. New England was conceded in a solid block, and to this showing they gave Michigan and Minnesota from the central West, dropped Utah, Wyoming and Idaho into the Republican basket, and waded Oregon and Washington for good measure.

Here is what they marked out for the bitter campaign of the next three months. California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

This electoral table, compiled by three representative National Committeemen, is accepted as the frame work upon which the Democratic campaign will be woven.

Sure Democratic.

Alabama	11	Nevada	3
Arkansas	9	North Carolina	12
Florida	9	Oklahoma	7
Georgia	13	South Carolina	9
Indiana	15	Tennessee	12
Kentucky	13	Texas	12
Louisiana	13	Virginia	12
Maryland	8
Mississippi	10	Total	184

Sure Republican.

Delaware	3	Rhode Island	4
Idaho	3	Utah	4
Maine	4	Vermont	4
Massachusetts	16	Washington	5
Michigan	14	West Virginia	7
Minnesota	11	Wyoming	3
New Hampshire	4
New Jersey	12	Total	140
Oregon	4

Doubtful.

California	10	New York	39
Colorado	5	North Dakota	4
Illinois	27	Ohio	25
Iowa	13	South Dakota	4
Kansas	10	Wisconsin	13
Montana	3
Nebraska	8	Total	159

California is placed in the doubtful list because of the Asiatic exclusion plank of the Denver platform. Illinois is there because Gompers and John Mitchell are expected to bring the labor vote into the Bryan camp, especially in view of the Republican factional fight.

Wisconsin is there because the Denver platform represents nearly everything which the Wisconsin delegation, through Senator La Follette, sought and lost in the Chicago Convention. Colorado is conceded fighting ground, and Nebraska already is in the throes of one of its most bitter political struggles. Ohio is held to be doubtful, but admittedly with the odds favoring the Republicans. Montana and the Dakotas look hopefully to the Democrats.

ROADS COMMISSION

Under $5,000,000 State Appropriation Act To Meet Next Wednesday And Decide On Wicomico, Somerset
And Worcester Roads.

The State Good Roads Commission will meet again July 22 to decide upon the preliminary location of the roads in Worcester, Wicomico, Somerset and other counties, which have been visited by the commission, but not acted upon. August 4 the commission will meet to decide permanent upon the location of the roads in Cecil, Kent, Caroline, Queen Anne's and Talbot counties. At that time hearings will be given to persons interested in the routes to be followed in these counties, and the commission will be glad to hear from any who have suggestions or recommendations before taking final action.

Mr. Daniel Lloyd, of Prince George's county, who is one of the local stenographers of the United States Senate, accompanied by Dr. N. A. Ryan, of Prince George's county, called on the commission and filed with it briefs recommending the selection of the old stage route between Annapolis and Washington as one of the roads to be built by the State. Mr. Lloyd wants the road to run from Bladensburg to Priest Bridge and then to Annapolis.

Routes Decided In St. Mary's And Calvert.
The Commission Wednesday took the first real step toward the construction of the system of State roads which it is proposed to build with the $5,000,000 authorized by the Legislature. After deciding upon the routes to be followed in St. Mary's and Calvert counties, by unanimous vote it authorized Chief Engineer W. W. Crosby to make the surveys for the roads in these two counties. Mr. Crosby this week will put surveying parties in Calvert and St. Mary's and within a short time it is believed the commission will be ready to award the contracts for building the roads. It was the first meeting of the commission in three weeks, to hear residents of St. Mary's and Calvert counties in regard to the routes proposed by those two counties.

PENINSULA PEACHES
Will Soon Move To Market Heavy Crop.
Over 3000 Cars Estimated More Than Last Year.

Within a few days the markets of the north, which up to the present time have been getting peaches from Florida and Georgia, will begin to receive shipments from the Delaware-Maryland Peninsula. In order to have equipment at hand sufficient to move the crop promptly, the Pennsylvania Railroad has made a survey of the situation, and estimates the Delaware season's output at 1,779,000 baskets.

The peach season is at its height in Georgia. It is estimated that the total output from that State will be 1,000,000 bushels more than for 1907. Approaching 4,000 carloads have already been forwarded to market. California, too, will furnish a large supply.

An extraordinarily rapid movement of the Georgia crop is being made this year. Peaches are moving from Fort Valley, the center of the State of Georgia producing district to New York City, in forty eight hours. Only a few years ago, it required a week for Georgia peaches to get to New York, most of the shipping then being by boat. By reason of the development of the refrigerator car and the quick movement of "perishable freight" trains, growers in any part of the country are finding it possible to place their product in fine condition at the most favorable markets.

The railroads are now looking to secure greater distribution of the crops. Through relations largely cultivated by traffic officers of railroads, the shippers are finding it worth while to ship to interior points, such as Utica, Providence, Elmira, Albany, Williamsport, Trenton, Harrisburg, etc., instead of pouring the whole output into New York, Philadelphia or Boston, with the attendant possibility of glutting the market.

The peach crop from the Delaware Peninsula last year amounted to only 186 cars, by reason of adverse conditions. It is expected that this year it will require more than 3800 cars to handle the output. With this idea in mind, the Pennsylvania Railroad is planning to send to the Peninsula during the past six weeks a large number of refrigerator and ventilator cars. These will be stored on side tracks, and be ready for immediate use as the peaches are brought in from the orchard. Trains will then be made up as rapidly as the loaded cars accumulate, and the cars will be rushed to market on passenger train schedules. Thus, peaches picked today in Delaware will be ready for consumption in New York tomorrow.

TO DISSOLVE PARTNER.
Ship. Messrs. Doody Brothers File Suit
For This Purpose.

Messrs. Richard T. Doody and Patrick H. Doody, trading under the name of Doody Bros., have filed a suit for dissolution and settlement of partnership business.

In order that the business in the meanwhile could be continued, Mr. L. Atwood Bennett and Mr. Geo. W. Bell were appointed receivers.

This action does not in the least reflect upon the credit of the firm which is of the best, but it is understood to be a matter between the partners for a settlement of the affairs of the firm. It is believed that an adjustment will be quickly made and the firm business continued by one of the partners, probably Mr. P. H. Doody, who has been in charge of the business for several years.

Since writing the above, the Court on application of Patrick Doody and B. L. Gillis and Son, has appointed B. F. Freeny co-receiver as representative for their interests.

WANTS THE ROAD

To Be Built Eastward To Go Toward Powellville Or Whiton. Reply To Pitts-ville Letter.

I presume after reading the Pitts-ville article on good roads, that the author has not traveled over the Wicomico County road to a great extent. If such were the case he would not speak of a stone road running parallel to and near the B. C. & A. R. R., as being a benefit to four fifths of the people east of Salisbury in Wicomico county, because of it being midway the county and the business districts.

From almost any point along the B. C. & A. R. R. in Wicomico County it is not more than three or four miles to the Delaware line. While it is from eight to ten miles from any point of the B. C. & A. R. R. to the Worcester County line.

The inhabitants of Parsonsburg, Pittsville, etc., and the people living within three or four miles of those places have the railroad to ship their products on and it is as cheap to get to Salisbury on the train as it is to drive.

Are we not acquainted with the fact that there are switches and stations along the B. C. & A. R. R. from Salisbury to Berlin within about three miles of each other? Whom would the road benefit in that case? The one who would get the benefit in that case would be the man whose farm lies between two stations, giving him the benefit of the roads for one mile and a half either side of him to the station. The only thing those people living at a distance could do, just to drive up on the road and unload their goods.

The people who live along the road and within a few miles either side of it, leading from Salisbury to Powellville are of the most industrious and enterprising people of the county. These people have to live mainly upon their lumber and farm products. What they need is a good road to haul their products to a railroad station.

Wm. L. Laws is one of the most enterprising farmers of Wicomico County. He sells not less than 2500 bushels of corn per year besides his fruit and lumber. He lives within eight miles of Parsonsburg, his nearest station, and twelve miles of Salisbury.

L. L. Law's sells from 800,000 to 400,000 feet of lumber yearly, which has to be hauled to Parsonsburg, which is six miles, or to Salisbury which is ten miles.

The Powellville crate and basket factory is one of the largest of its kind east of Salisbury. Powellville is six miles from a railroad station and fifteen miles of Salisbury.

L. B. Brittingham is one of the largest strawberry growers on the eastern shore of Maryland. He lives seven miles from Pittsville, his nearest station, or fourteen miles from Salisbury.

These are only a few of the enterprising people of Wicomico County living at a distance from a railroad station.

Within a radius of five miles from Powellville school house, which is eight miles south of Pittsville, there are between twenty and thirty lumber mills.

Most of this lumber is hauled to Salisbury. These people have no facilities for carrying their products to market. The roads are bad both winter and summer. In the winter they are sloughy while in the summer people cannot haul on account of the heavy sand.

The whole world depends upon the farmer for its food. Why not let the farmer who lives a distance from a railroad station have the use of the Good Roads?

The people east of Salisbury living within six to ten miles from the B. C. & A. R. R. would be pleased if the State Commission should let the State Road follow the Powellville road from Salisbury to Powellville or from Salisbury to Whiton where it would intersect the Worcester county line.

In so doing those people of Wicomico county who need the road would get the benefit of it and not the people of Delaware.

Death of Geo. H. Riall.
Mr. Geo. H. Riall, who was in the Peninsula Hospital, died suddenly Saturday evening. Mr. Riall had not been feeling very well for several days and had taken rooms at the Hospital Friday to be treated for fever. He was not considered very sick and within a few minutes before his death seemed to be in the best of spirits. According to the physician he died of heart trouble. Mr. Riall was well known in Wicomico county, and was about 46 years old. He was born in Tyaskin District, and spent most of his life in and around Salisbury. He was connected with several of the prominent families of the County. Mrs. Gustava White was his wife. His funeral services were held at St. Peter's Church, Monday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. Rev. David Henson officiating.

The Bryans Lived In A Barn.

It was seven years ago this Spring that the Bryans moved out to Fairview. At least seven years before they had begun planning for it. They used to ride out on the prairie on Summer evenings and there was always one knoll beyond Antelope Creek where the sunsets seemed loveliest. "Mary," he used to say, "some day when we have money enough, we'll have a home out here." The time arrived when they could buy five acres. Then they bought ten, then fifteen acres—so it grew. In the Spring of 1901 when the barn was done, they couldn't wait any longer. They moved into it and lived there for the summer, while the house was building, says a writer in the July Delineator. The family were welcomed to the rural community by a house warming, for which Uncle Jake marshalled all his neighbors. They took Mrs. Bryan into their confidence, but it was "a surprise on W. J.," as Uncle Jake tells to this day with a chuckle.

"Me an' my wife got there first," says Uncle Jake. "W. J. had just come in an' hung his hat on a nail in the kitchen. An' he says, 'Good evening, real cordial like, an' sat down to talk, thinkin' we'd just dropped in in neighbor fashion. Then pretty soon there was the sound of wagon wheels outside.'"

"Why, there's more folks comin'," he says, in a kind of bewildered way, his hand feelin' sort o' helplessly at his shirt band. Then they all burst in. "Well," he says, reachin' out with that hearty handshake o' his, "you caught me without a collar." From that night on the Bryans were naturalized citizens of Normal. Their house is far the finest of any in the community—but not so you'd feel it that way at all. The Farmers' Club when it meets there is as much at home as in the hamblett cottage. And when Mr. Bryan sits down to the grand piano and turns on the piano attachments and says, just as common as anybody, "Now let's have some music: what'll it be?" why, that makes everybody feel right, well acquainted. Somebody says, "Let's have Pentecostal Hymn No. 8, W. J."

HOW THE SOUTH HAS WON.

Small Cities Have Grown Into Manufacturing Centers. Commercially, the growth of the South since the war has been marvelous. Small cities have grown into great manufacturing centers, surrounded with buildings that would rival those of New York.

Look at Atlanta, Jacksonville, Memphis—to mention a scattered few—compare them with their wealth and size of a few years ago; tell, if you can, how far their growth has gone. These are the old cities. Now ones have been springing up since the war and developing into great commercial centers.

The railroad has played no small part in this development, but unless the country had contained the promise and the resources, the railroads would have been apt to leave it alone.

Where, not so many years ago, there were only a few miles of rails, and a service which made a trip South an uncomfortable proposition, now stretch thousands of miles of road, on which one can find the best passenger service. In spite of this, however, the facilities fall short of the demands of the expanding industries of the South.

Last winter many shippers were delayed for days because they could not get cars or having cars, could not find trains enough to carry their products. Speak to any southern railroad man, and he will likely tell you that he is at a loss.

The railroads are doing a great deal to meet this constantly increasing demand. Some of them are double-tracking their roads. They are ordering new engines, more cars. But all this takes time. Freight accumulates. And in many sections the South of to-day suffers from its very wealth.

The comparison socially, too, is just as interesting. Although the before-the-war days of the large plantations worked by slaves cannot be revived, the social life of the South is again distinctive—somewhat more democratic—ready to welcome worth shown in any honorable cause, but still clinging to its pride of family, centering itself, where it met years ago, mixing with the social life of the North, as that of the North mixes with it—Metropolitan Magazine.

Cement Buildings.

The use of cement is now firmly established in the construction of buildings for domestic and commercial purposes. The economies of this material are more than manifest and its solidity is hardly to be questioned, although it has been commonly used for a comparatively few years. There are any number of block-forming machines on the market and up to a short time ago these machines were limited to the formation of blocks of different kinds. The variety of design has been limited to the imitation of the different kinds of stone commonly used in architecture. The different cuts, shapes and finishes followed, but recently there has been a demand for something more than this, and one or two firms have undertaken to produce moulds for the formation of pillars, caps, balustrade posts and similar designs. These moulds are now to be had by those engaging in the business of making cement blocks, and with their use, it is possible to construct a building of very pleasing lines. Heretofore this has been rather difficult with the limitations of the square block, although some architects have secured some very interesting effects by the exercise of some ingenuity in the construction of such block shapes as were available.

The Hat in England.

Were the good King Edward VII. to wear a straw hat during the winter, the entire fashionable world would wear straw hats during the winter. In America, however, we localize these fashions to a certain extent. Our climate is to blame. Straw hats are all right in Florida, in December, but not in Maine. A fur cap is all right in the Canada woods, but not in Arizona. Commodore Gerry's sealskin cap was his biggest title to fame; J. P. Morgan wears a square-top derby; some of New York's leading merchants wear new hats the year round. Individual taste controls to a great extent. But a straw hat in a snowstorm is as incongruous as a silk tie in August. The hat societies used to be May 1 and September 1, but were changed a few years ago arbitrarily to Decoration Day and September 15.

Kaiser a Linguist.

Perhaps the next best linguist to King Edward among those sitting upon European thrones is the Kaiser, whose French is extraordinarily pure and idiomatic, and who also speaks excellent English, although he has never been able to rid himself of a strong German accent. But the Emperor only employs a foreign tongue on State occasions when it is a case of noble obligation, and even while fully aware of the Kaiser's dislike to most things German, including the language, he speaks to Nicholas II. his polite French toasts in sonorous, guttural German. The Kings of Spain and Italy are also good linguists, and among the Queens and Princesses of Europe the talent for languages is quite extraordinary, and adds greatly to the grace and charm of modern court life.—Tit-Bits.

"Miss Bronte was no doubt the governess," she says. "But what was Miss Bronte like?" she was asked, "for she wrote some famous stories." "Oh," replies the old lady, "I never heard tell as she'd come over to talk folk talk; she was no doubt the governess."

W. K. Norris, Norris Hotel, Easton, Md., says: "I suffered severely for some years with weak kidneys, constant backache with shooting pains across my loins and a weakness that was sickening. The slightest exertion would cause me to become so weak that I could hardly get about. Nights of sleeplessness on account of pains and too frequent passage of the secretions caused me to become run down in general health. I suffered this way for a long time although I was being treated by a physician. I was advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, he stating that he had been cured by their use, of practically the same complaint. I procured a supply at a drug store and took them in accordance with the directions. A short treatment effected a complete cure and I have had no return of the trouble since that time. I can gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from any form of kidney complaint."

Over Thirty Five Years.

In 1873 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use had extended to every part of the United States, and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

WAS DELIRIOUS WITH ECZEMA

On Chest, Back, and Head—Pain, Heat, and Tingling Were Excruciating—Nerves in Exhausted Condition—Sleep Badly Broken.

CURE BY CUTICURA SEEMED LIKE MAGIC

"Words cannot express the gratitude I feel for what Cuticura Remedies have done for me. I was a sufferer from Eczema. She is fifteen years of age, and has never had anything the matter with her skin until four months ago, when an eruption broke out on her chest. The first symptom was a redness, and then followed thickening and blisters, which would break and run matter. I took her to a doctor, and he pronounced it to be eczema of a very bad form. He treated her, but instead of being checked, the disease spread. It showed itself on her back, and then quickly spread upwards until the whole of her head was affected, and all her hair had to be cut off. The pain she suffered was excruciating, and what with that and the heat and tingling her life was almost unbearable. She became run down in health, and at times was very feverish, languid, and drowsy, and occasionally she was delirious. Her nerves were in such a state that she could not bear to be left alone. In spite of the cold weather she would insist on having her bedroom window open, and would lean out on the window-sill. She did not have a proper hour's sleep for many nights. The second doctor we tried advised her to use Cuticura. I procured Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, and before the Ointment was tried the eruption had almost entirely disappeared. The Ointment was really seemed like magic. Her hair is coming on nicely, and I still apply the Cuticura Ointment as it does it increases the growth wonderfully. Mrs. T. W. Hyde, 1, Orange Place, Bramford, Essex, England, May 6, 1907."

REPUBLICANS SHOW UNEASINESS.

The Mr. Bryan struck a popular chord in his action on the Publicity question as to the campaign funds is very evident from the reception the plan has met with the public. Papers which, are supporting Taft for the nomination do not hesitate to say that the Republicans will have to meet this issue fairly and squarely without evasions, and are advising Mr. Taft to come out with a like system of publicity on the part of his campaign.

The statement that the New York publicity law will be used as a pattern by the Republican party does not come up to the open, fair and above board policy that has been adopted by the Democratic Party—Let us have publicity and let it come before election instead of after it.

That the Republicans are worried about the labor vote is also evident from their attempts to belittle the influence of the labor organizations as far as vote control is concerned.

With Mr. Gompers and other labor leaders out in the field for the Democratic ticket, they realize that they are "up against it." If the labor shall decide to support the election of Mr. Bryan, as now appears it will have the balance of power in several states, and the Republicans fully realize this. In Baltimore there are said to be 109 labor organizations with a total membership of over 40,000, and it can readily be seen what effect on the election this vote would have if cast solidly for one party.

The campaign has started out in a manner that indicates a hot fight, and one that has probably not been equalled since 1896. The Taft papers are making a great fuss over W. R. Hearst and his Independence Party at present and it is amusing to see papers that in the past would not mention his name at all—unless it was unavoidable—devoting much space to him and his party, and it looks now as if some of these papers will make of the despised Hearst a statesman and public patriot—because he is no longer a democrat—and because they hope he will be able to control enough votes for his Independent Party in some of the doubtful states to defeat Bryan. Their early efforts to placate labor, land Hearst, and advise publicity, show very clearly that they realize they have a touch position.

Phillips—Bailey.

A very pretty and impressive wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening June 24th, at Riverton M. P. Church, the contracting parties being Miss L. M. Bailey and Mr. Holland Phillips, two well known young people of their community. The ceremony occurred at eight o'clock in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the young people. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Alyce Taylor, of Riverton. The first to enter through the east glaze proceeding to the chancel were the ushers, Mr. Billie Russell, cousin of the groom and Mr. Delbert Phillips, brother of the groom; following came the bridesmaid, Miss Pearl Phillips, sister of the groom, and the groomsmen, Mr. Roy Bennett, the next were the flower girls, Miss Alice Bailey, sister of the bride and Miss Lillian English, then came the bride and groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Harriman of Maryland.

The bride was becomingly attired in a costume of chiffon silk, trimmed with lace and ribbon, and carried a handsome bouquet of bride roses and ferns. The groom wore the conventional black; the bridesmaid wore cream dress with white roses, the flower girls carried dainty baskets of roses. After the ceremony the happy couple were driven to the home of the groom's brother, Capt. Webster W. Phillips, where a reception was given to them and a number of invited guests. They received many valuable presents. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips extend with them a long life of happiness.

WORTHLESS CHECKS

Passed in Salisbury, Young Man Arrested
After Suspicious Were Aroused.
$250.00 Involved.

It is alleged that a young man by name of S. A. Ebel has been passing worthless checks on some parties in this locality.

A check of $100 was given Mr. G. T. Taylor, President of the Ocean City Beach Co. of Ocean City, who being in Salisbury got the check cashed at one of the Banks here. Mr. R. H. Grier who knew Mr. Taylor very well endorsed the check for the purpose of identifying same with the bank. Becoming suspicious of the check Messrs. Taylor and Grier wired the Bank in Indiana about it. The bank wired back "check fraudulent, notify local police." Mr. Grier met the train Mr. Ebel was on and demanded the money back on the check which was given him, and received the money from Ebel. Another check which was given to Mr. S. A. Hoover Magr., of Atlantic Hotel, Ocean City was for $150. Mr. Hoover wired Baltimore to hold party on arrival of B. C. & A. boat. It was stated that another check given by the same party had been placed in the hands of another bank here for collection, and on the bank wiping whether or not the check was all right received reply that it was no good.

Taken by Detective at Steamer.
"A well-dressed young man, carrying a satchel, stepped ashore from the steamer Cambridge of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company this afternoon and felt a touch on the arm from a man who was waiting at the shore end of the gang plank."

"What do you want?" asked the young man with a note of impatience in his voice.

"I want you, I guess; your name's Aebel, isn't it?"

"Well, what if it is?"
"I am Detective Pöhler," replied his accoster, opening his coat and flashing his badge. "There's a little matter of some bad checks got off in Ocean City, Salisbury and other places, and the Captain wants to talk to you."

Aebel accompanied his captor to headquarters, where Captain Pumphrey showed him a telegram he had received from Manager S. A. Hoover of the Atlantic Hotel, Ocean City, asking for his arrest and stating that he had got off a number of bogus checks. Aebel admitted his identity and was locked up pending further instructions from the Ocean City authorities. Captain Pumphrey says he has reason to believe that Aebel has passed fraudulent checks in Indianapolis, Ind.; Rochester, N. Y., and Salisbury, Md.

Whose Say-so Is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Souder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Cox, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prostrates, anemias and restlessness and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up disagreeable discharges, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women.

Only a little cold in the head may be the beginning of an obstinate case of Nasal Catarrh. Drive out the invader with Ely's Cream Balm applied straight to the inflamed, stuffed up air passages. Price 50 cents. If you prefer to use an atomizer, ask for Liquid Cream Balm. It has all the good qualities of the solid form of this remedy and will rid you of catarrh or hay fever. No cocaine to breed a dreadful habit. No mercury to dry out the secretion. Price 75 cents with spraying tube. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 85 Warren Street, New York.

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

With all the advantages of youth, education and good looks and no vocation other than the enjoyment of wealth, the hero of our present story chose rather to sacrifice his ease and comfort on the altar of his duty as a citizen. His city called him to save her from spoliation and corruption, and he responded to the call. To turn him from the path of right came the seductions of love and the claims of a revered parent's memory, allied with the mighty forces at the command of political and financial malefactors. The firmness with which "the man of the hour," singled out for the highest post in a great municipality by those who saw in him only a weakling and a fool, resisted the very forces that had elevated him for their own purposes to official power will be an inspiration to the reader, as it has been an uplifting force in the minds of thousands who have witnessed its theatrical representation.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE first committee room that lay to the right of Horriggan's office—in the same relation to it as the antechamber to the left—was usually given over to dry official business, and its musty walls must almost have experienced a distinct shock about this time as Dallas Wainwright entered from the corridor behind. She was accompanied by Perry and by Phelan, who, passing through the corridor toward the antechamber, had collided with the brother and sister at the committee room door.

"Here's a good sight for sore eyes, Miss Wainwright," the alderman was saying with his best air. "But is it fair to ask what brings such a bunch of sunshine into an old pitiful shell like this? I'd as soon think of seeing Horriggan at mass as to find you here."

"I want to attend the alderman's meeting," exclaimed Dallas. "I have a special reason. So I made Perry bring me. But at the door they told us the gallery was so crowded that we couldn't."

"Never you mind the gallery, miss," interrupted Phelan. "It isn't meant for the likes of you anyway. You just sit here a few minutes, and I'll catch an attendant somewhere and make him hustle up a couple of good chairs for you on the main floor, where you can give everything just like you were in your own 'box cooping' of a swad of high C's."

"Thank you so much, alderman," replied Dallas. "I hope we're not putting you to too much trouble."

"No trouble at all. An' even if it was I'd come a-runnin' to meet it. I'm the original trouble-maker. Besides, the best in the house is none too good for the lady who was so interested in my outtings. So long! I'll be right back."

"What a queer chap he is!" mused Perry, as Phelan hastened away on his mission. "If I could take a six weeks' course in slang and hot air from that man I'd be able to sew buttons on the whole English language."

"I don't think you need very much tuition," observed Dallas. "But it was kind of Mr. Phelan to look after us. I like him."

"Because he's standing by Bennett so pluckily in this fight?"

"Mr. Bennett is nothing to me."

"No?" asked Perry in innocent amazement. "Then I wasted a lot of good cigarette money cabling to you about his campaign when you were across the big wash last summer. For a man who was 'nothing' to you you sure took large swads of intelligent interest. Look here, little girl," he went on, less diplomatically, "what's the matter? Has anything?"

"No," she broke in, with a miserable effort at courage. "Nothing's the matter. I'm perfectly happy. Why shouldn't I be? An engaged girl is always—"

"An engaged girl?" he shouted in high glee. "You don't mean to say you are?"

"Of course not. I am engaged to Mr. Gibbs."

"Good Lord!" gasped the lad in honest dismay. "If that's meant for a joke, it's the punkest ever! Did?"

"It isn't a joke, Perry, and it's very rude of you to talk so. I am engaged to Mr. Gibbs, and—"

"But—how—when did the atrocity come off, and?"

"I became engaged to him the night of the administration ball. I didn't want to tell you yet, because I knew you don't like him. I'm—"

"You're happy?"

"Certainly I am!" she retorted defiantly. "So happy that I—"

"That you are having a fight to keep from crying this blessed minute!" he finished. "Say, Dallas, it breaks me all up to have you so miserable. I don't think a whole lot of you. More of any one else but Cynthia. And I want to help you out of this meanie mixup. Won't you?"

"There is nothing any one can do," she murmured sadly. "I have chosen my course and I—"

"Cheese it!" whispered Perry in hurried admonition. "Here comes Bennett and Phelan's with him."

The young mayor came in, talking to the alderman as he came.

"This room's disengaged," he was saying. "I'll write it here and give it to—oh, I beg your pardon," he broke off, recognizing Dallas and Perry. "I didn't know—"

"I've got two good seats for you," announced Phelan. "Right where you can see an' hear the whole shootin' match. An' I guess before the meetin's over it'll be as interesting as a double 'Uncle Tom's' show in a tent. I'll show you the way as soon as you're ready. There's no rush. Things ain't begun to sizzle up yet."

"You speak of the police being in the aldermanic chamber," said Dallas. "What for?"

"To check any trouble the gallery may make," answered Horriggan. "This man Bennett's stirred the people up with a lot of his anarchistic reform ideas till they're crazy. Some one's liable to get a broken skull, and then Bennett will have himself to thank. Maybe when the police have hampered a little sense into folks' heads with their nightsticks, the victims will begin to understand just what sort of a man Alwyn Bennett is. Remember now, Gibbs, and you, too, young Wainwright, if there's any sign of a row bring Miss Wainwright back here at once."

"All right," agreed Perry, a little rueful at the prospect of missing a free fight. "Let's go in there now. I've never been to an aldermanic meeting before, but I ran up against a cat strike riot once, so I guess I'm on to most of the subtle rules of elegance that govern such shows. Come on, people, if you're coming."

"Your niece is a thoroughbred," repeated Horriggan, with rare approbation, as the antechamber door closed behind Dallas and her two escorts. "So she's to marry Gibbs, is she? I'm sorry for both of them."

"Why?" asked Wainwright sharply. "Because it won't take her a year to find out that he's a yellow cur. And when she does she'll either kick him out or lead him around on a chain. Now, the fellow a girl of that sort ought to have married is Bennett. He's an obstinate fool, but he's a man. I thought you said once he was stuck on her."

"He was. He still is."

"And she took Gibbs instead?" cried Horriggan, a world of incredulity in his rough voice. "Women are a queer lot! Why'd she shake Bennett, if it is a fair question?"

"I let her see Gibbs was a heroic martyr," said Wainwright, with quiet significance, "and that Bennett was—"

"Oh, I see!" chuckled Horriggan. "Still, there might be something made out of Bennett's love for her even yet."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm not quite sure. I'll have to think it over."

"Roberts has come!" exclaimed Williams, entering from the corridor. "He's asking for you. Shall I bring him in here?"

"Yes," replied Horriggan. "By the way," he added to Wainwright as Williams departed. "I'll have to ask you to clear out for a few minutes. I've got to see Roberts alone. Now for the tussle that'll decide the whole fight!"

Injustice in Army Promotions.

We see all around us in the service today the unhappy results of the selection principle. Until the promotion of Lieutenant-Colonel George Crook in 1873 to the grade of Brigadier-General for exceptionally brilliant, meritorious and long continued work against Indians—promotion by selection from juniors was never dreamed of in our little, hard worked but splendid and contented army.

Since the Spanish war promotion by selection has become the custom. And who selects and who are selected? It is not those whom fortune has placed under the eye of and in personal contact with the authority having the temporary power to select: the one who has the good luck to be placed at the time where his activity, energy, usefulness and fitness can impress himself on the selecting power.

But, in this selection, when made, what justice is there to those others of equal if not greater activity?

The cowardly Mountain Lion. Many attempts have been made to hold up the mountain lion as a true lion in point of bravery and courage, says Charles F. Hedges, in The Travel Magazine, but the consensus of opinion is of those who have hunted it, that the mountain lion is a coward, that the instances where it has attacked man are very few and far between. Almost any animal will fight when cornered like a rat, or in defense of its young, but the mountain lion has, at least to my knowledge, never been known to charge a camp of men, though I do know an instance where a cougar swam to a small bay in Florida and sprang into a camp and stole a pig that was being used as a lure, taking the animal from among the hunters who were demoralized by the apparent courage of the beast.

The proof of a faith is not in its prestige, but in its present power.

From the grid of drudgery comes at last the glorious divine spark.

Potash
Makes Two Bundles of Wheat Grow Where but One Bundle Grew Before.
Getting a full crop from a fertilizer with too little Potash, is like getting well by the doctor's prescription with its most important drug left out. Most commercial fertilizers need more Potash to get all the crop profit you are entitled to. Use a brand with at least 6 per cent. of Potash, but if your dealer does not keep it, then mix 15 pounds of Murrate of Potash with each 100 pounds of your fertilizer. That will raise it! I am selling two outside of Buggies, Wagons and Runabouts each week. Think for yourself what a saving this means to you! I have kept the prices down for years and increased the quality all the time. THE CAPTAIN'S BRIDE

"It's awkward! Shiver my timbers! I've spiked my own gun."

Captain Fairbreeze, late owner and skipper of the Seaway Leger, but now retired, did not exactly tear his hair. He had little to spare, and merely went through the pantomime of tearing it.

And really the position was awkward, not to say ludicrous.

For months past, he had been trying to convince his son, Frank, that to marry Madge Thornton, a mere farmer's daughter, and her very small fortune, would be the act of a fool.

Captain Fairbreeze was not a poor man, but he rarely gave a penny to his son.

He considered that he had worked hard for what he possessed, and he let Frank know with considerable emphasis, that he would "walk the plank" before he would share his savings with a couple of cooling and starving turtle doves!

"Would you compel me to marry for money, sir?" Frank had asked.

"No!" was the blunt reply. "But I'd bet you a battleship to a belying pin you don't marry on mine."

Then—how he could kick himself for it now!—Captain Fairbreeze had introduced the name of the Widow Laville.

Mrs. Laville had lately come to reside in the village, and had jumped into popularity at once.

"More, my boy," the old salt had added, "I've heard from a reliable source that she has two thousand pounds of her own! Now, Frank, go and find a quiet corner—and think!"

And Frank, like a dutiful son, obeyed. For days he seemed to be nothing else but think!

Then the result was seen. He talked lots of Madge and more of the widow.

Captain Fairbreeze had just begun to flatter himself that he had at last succeeded in "driving sense into the boy's head," when he made a startling discovery—a discovery that simply took his breath away!

He had studied the lady so closely and had sounded her praises so constantly, that now he could not bear the idea of parting with her, even to his own son!

With something more than a shock Captain Fairbreeze discovered that he loved her! And now he had a rival—a serious rival of his own making!

"I've a surprise for you my boy—a great surprise!"

II.

Captain Fairbreeze had been to the village, and had come back looking ten years younger.

"Perhaps it isn't such a surprise as you think, sir!" returned Frank. "I might guess its nature."

"Can you?"

"You are going to marry Mrs. Laville."

"Hit it first time!" laughed Captain Fairbreeze, bracing his hand down on his son's shoulder. "Have you nothing to say, Frank?"

Frank offered his congratulations with a warmth and sincerity for which the father was scarcely prepared.

"And now, sir," he went on, "I have a surprise, perhaps two, maybe three, to spring upon you."

"So many?" laughed Captain Fairbreeze, who was in excellent humor. "Steady with 'em, my boy. One at a time. The first—well, I dare say I could guess the first."

"Really," smiled Frank. "I have proposed to Madge and have been accepted."

"Good!" ejaculated Captain Fairbreeze heartily. "Surprise number two!"

"Madge Thornton has an aunt Mary!"

Captain Fairbreeze, more puzzled than surprised, leaned forward in his chair.

"Indeed!" he remarked. "Lots of people have said that. True, I was not aware that Madge Thornton had one, but—where's the surprise come in?"

"In what Aunt Mary proposed to do," replied Frank. "She is Madge's only aunt, and Madge is her only niece. Aunt Mary, it seems, is wealthy!"

breast, gripping his son's hand and wringing it warmly. "You'll rub along now."

III.

Captain Fairbreeze had the reputation of being a man of the world. He was wont to boast of the fact. But—4,000 pounds! It was a big sum and one not to be lost without an effort.

On the day before the wedding, which at Mrs. Laville's suggestion was to be a double one, Captain Fairbreeze favored the son with a little lecture, frugality being the text.

And on the following day Captain Fairbreeze kept his eyes open for Aunt Mary.

The double ceremony was over and they had returned for the wedding breakfast, and still the captain's curiosity was left unsatisfied.

"I say, Frank!" he blurted out at length. "This is a serious matter! Where is she? I've seen nothing of her!"

"Nonsense!" laughed Frank. "You married the lady an hour ago!"

Captain Fairbreeze could not dispute it.

"Yes, John, it is perfect for her," he was reading the eyes of his bride.

"Yes, John, it is perfectly true," she said. "Madge is my niece. Hearing how matters stood between the young lovers, I came down quietly, determining to bring about one wedding, though I did not expect to become involved in another."

"Frank told me of your generous resolve to double what Madge brought him, and I determined that between us we could give them a right good send-off. And I think we have done so. What do you think, John?"

John thought a great deal more than he ventured to say at the moment. Indeed, he was in a thoughtful mood for an hour or two.

Among other things he thought of was the proposed wage, "a battleship to a belying pin," that Frank didn't marry on his father's money.

Captain Fairbreeze soon got over it, however, for he had found a treasure in his domestic bride.

Those Petty Expenses.

Speaking of starting things and not finishing them," said a business man, "did I ever tell you of the curious habit that an uncle of mine had? He used to carry a memorandum book about with him, and whenever he spent any money he would jot down the figures. We always looked upon him as a model in keeping accounts. One day I got talking to him about it and he pulled the book out of his pocket to show me. What was my amazement on looking at it to discover that not one of the pages was totaled up. I asked him, naturally, whether he never added the columns to find out how much he was spending. He told me that he did not and never had; the practice was too discouraging. A sense of duty impelled him to put down the items, but there he stopped. An interesting man, my uncle, although a trifle eccentric."

"Not so very unlike the majority of humankind," said the business man's friend, "unless perhaps, in his honesty of account. I think there are a mighty few people who keep the record of their personal expenses in shipshape fashion. Lots of us start out with the best of intentions, say at the beginning of a year, but as a good deal like keeping up a diary, and just as the end of the year falls down the matter of totaling, it takes but an infinitesimal amount of time to run up a column, but somehow we don't like the operation; it's too much like bringing a charge against ourselves. So we save our consciences by jotting down items—when we think of them—and let them go at that. Pretty soon the account or memorandum book becomes hopelessly in arrears and it is put away where it will not be an irritant. The next January another beginning may be made, but unless the conscience is in very good working order there will be the same result."

Here's a Simile.

What would our language be without a simile? No one can forget George Aubrey's remark that an acquaintance had invested about everything he had in an ochre mine. "You've got about as much use for that mine as a cow has for a side pocket," Dr. Smelter was trying to tell the story. But about a certain prominent financier who is noted for his longness and leanness, "Is he so very thin?" asked a listener. "Thin? Why, he looks as if he could go an excursion up a gas pipe."

GLORIOUS GREY HAIRS.

July 19, '08.—(1. Sam. 12:1-5.)

One of the saddest sights that the eye ever beholds is an aged reprobate. To see an old man with one foot in the grave, whose shuffling step and bent form and general physical decrepitude are the visible and unmistakable signs of a life of debauchery and animalism is enough to make angels weep. There is no evidence of an innocent childhood, of a sturdy youth of an upright manhood, of a venerable age, everything points to a reckless, useless, wasted existence. If he ever had a higher ambition than to get something to drink it is not discernable. If he ever had a noble thought it has left no impression on his mind. If he ever had any friends they have long since cast him off. Ruined buildings are attractive, but not so a ruined man. We gaze with interest upon structures that have fallen into decay, but a man, in whose long career upon this planet there is not one redeeming feature is not an object of veneration—but of disgust.

On the other hand, where is there an object of greater interest, worthy of more universal regard and veneration than an aged man, who has lived his three score years and ten, and has come up to the summit of life, the summit to which Moses ascended, the mount of vision, his eyes undimmed by youth's excesses, his mind unclouded with drugs and folly, his frame unbroken by toil and exposure, his record clean, his words a benediction, his friends a legion. Such a man does not go down hill at the last; he steps from a high eminence upon the rounds of the ladder Jacob saw reaching from earth to heaven. It is not sunset; it is sunrise. The light that glows on the hilltops of eternity is the dawning of the morning.

It is a grand thing to be young, to have the sight clear, the hearing acute, the step elastic, all the pulses marching on to the drumming of a stout heart. But youth will not always last. It stays only long enough to give us exuberant spirits, and broad shoulders for burden-bearing, and an arm with which to battle our way through difficulties. Life's path if you follow it long enough will come under frowning crag and across trembling caseway. But there is nothing to dread about that. We should never be ashamed of being old if it comes naturally. The grandest things in the universe are old. Old mountains; old rivers; old seas; old stars; and an old eternity. Unless you are older than the hills, don't be ashamed of it. The only thing to be ashamed of is old age after a lifetime of evil.

A life of sobriety is preservative and conducive to longevity. No greater falsehood was ever coined than the phrase, "the good die young." Good habits are responsible for glorious old age. They are better than speaking tubes for the ear, a staff for the hand, or a tablet for the throat, or warm baths for the feet, or bitters for the stomach. Keeping the lips unpolished and the brain unobscured and the heart pure will postpone earthly exit. If you keep the slop of the brewery away from the roots of the tree of life it will be more liable to bear fruit in old age. And death will come at last not as the fall of a tree worm eaten and lightning-blasted, but as the falling of a giant of the forest whose mighty bulk is needed for the mast or ribs of a ship.

Such was the life of the old prophet Samuel whose faraway address challenges the admiration of men. There are few men who can have the courage to call attention to their record in such language as this: "Behold here am I; testify against me."

Whose are we? Have I taken? or whose have I defrauded? Whom have I oppressed? or from whose hands have I received any ransom? or that I withdraw my eyes from him; and I will restore it to you. And they said, thou hast not defrauded us, nor hast thou oppressed us, and thou hast not taken from any man's hand the least."

In other words, the whole nation bore testimony in the most public manner that Samuel himself had not practiced any graft in any position, nor feathered his nest with dishonest or "tainted money" in all his long public official and political career. He was a statesman, incorruptible. He was in ecstasies without a suspicion of self-seeking.

Glorious old age found its way of righteousness! How such a life shines the careers of many of our present day officials! How few are the men who would dare to a plea to the general public to produce the evidence of their righteousness! What arts are resorted to to cover up and suppress and keep out of sight the transactions that will not stand investigation. But here is an old man, a venerable old man, to lead a life of rectitude. Samuel was a bright every day and he had no regrets at the end. "The happy dead is a crown of glory if it be found in the way of righteousness."

ATTACHMENT FOR PITCHERS.

Drip Cup to Catch Drippings From the Spout of Vessels.

A peculiar and unique invention just patented is shown in the illustration below. The drip cup was designed to provide a simple means of preventing the contents of pitchers and similar vessels having a discharge spout trickling on the table or on whatever object they happen to be placed. The drip cup is secured to the receptacle beneath the spout. Its use will be apparent, the drippings from the spout of the receptacle dropping into the drip cup. It is impossible for the contents of the drip cup to drop out when the pitcher is tilted. For this purpose a guard is placed partly across the top.

How to Darn.

The darning of narrow lace edges is a most difficult matter.

If the tear is a serious one, the edges of the lace can be basted upon white letter paper and stitched several times to form a new edge and cross-threads stitched to hold this edge in place, then the paper pulled away and the remaining stitches put in on the machine or by hand.

Hamburg edgings and insertions can be darned in the same way. They should preferably be free of starch and smoothly ironed to facilitate perfect work.

White mosquito netting that has been washed will be found to give a good foundation for darning coarsely woven underwear on the machine, and soft black mosquito netting should be basted under the holes in the knees of boys' stockings.

It should be basted directly across the hole and the machine darning be done directly upon it. The rough edges and threads can afterward be trimmed away.

When you are through darning upon the machine do not forget to replace the pressure upon the pressure foot and the stitch action to the feed, otherwise you may be very much puzzled the next time you go to the machine and wonder why it "won't make a stitch."

Combinations of Color.

After all there is nothing more important in a costume than combination of color, for no matter how rich the material, if the colors do not harmonize the gown will be wrong. For this reason, brown and gold have remained so very popular, as have also smoke gray and silver.

A charming tea gown, of silver grey crepe de chine, made empire and slashed with yoke and sleeves of white Oriental lace which is not embroidered in heavily raised dots. The gown hangs straight and untripped from bust to hem, where it has a band of silver braid.

A tea gown of brown chiffon velvet is made in a rather skimpy style cut in slightly at the waist line, while the yoke and sleeves are of ecru net heavily embroidered with gold thread. At the foot of the gown is a band of the same embroidered net, only the thread extends over the edge of the net in places and makes a pretty curve on the velvet.

Ecru is always an attractive color, and so is champagne, and both combine beautifully with a deep golden brown. Blue is the hardest of all colors to trim, but its own color in a lighter or a darker shade is always a safe combination.

Straight Hair Remedy.

Straight hair is the basis of a girl's existence, and her lucky sister who was born with naturally wavy locks does not realize the agony the girl with the straight hair endures.

A good solution is the white of an egg mixed with an equal amount of rose water and a few drops of some fragrant perfume. Then the hair should be slightly shampooed with the mixture before wrapping around the curlers. Left until thoroughly dry, then brushed gently, the hair will be wavy. With a soft sheen on it, besides looking light and fluffy, and the wavy will remain permanent in spite of rain and fog.

Kills Off Mice.

To do away with mice a mixture of equal parts of flour and plaster of paris is said to be excellent. No moisture is applied to the powder, but all food is put away and the mixture is left on a plate where the mice will get it. After one repeat they return no more.

OCEAN CITY NEWS

Rescue in The Surf—Masked Ball—Other Notes.

Last Saturday morning there was a high sea running, making bathing a little dangerous. There were three ladies bathing in front of the Life Saving Station when the life line to which they were holding parted and in a moment they were being swept seaward. Mr. Chas. Tillman and Mr. Frank Bayley swam in and at the risk of their lives brought the trio safely ashore amid the applause of the on-lookers. Mr. Bayley represents one of Baltimore's large candy houses and Mr. Tillman is enjoining for the summer at Ocean City.

Arrangements are in progress to hold a camp meeting here. This is another feature that not only will accomplish a great deal of good, but will also bring a great number of people.

The engagement of Miss Grace Poe, of Baltimore, to Mr. James Edgar Hams, of North Harlowe, N. C., has been announced.

Saturday evening, August the first the Atlantic Hotel will be the scene of what is expected to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. This is to be a masquerade ball. Prizes will be awarded. Admission will be by card from the office only and the admission fee will be 35 cents.

Selected By Commission Wednesday, Via Sharpstown And Mardela From Dorchester Via Wango And Liberty To Worcester.

The question of where the road provided for by the Good Road Bill at last Legislature, which has been agitating this and our neighboring counties for some time was taken up on Wednesday by the Commission at their meeting in Baltimore and a route marked out for this County as well as for Worcester and Somerset.

Delegations from various sections of this County were before the Commission asking for special routes. The Commission was in session for more than four hours and attended to much routine business in addition to selecting the routes, which are the following:

Wicomico County—Sharpstown to Mardela Springs, to Quantico, to Salisbury, to Allen.

Salisbury to Wango, to the bridge over the Pocomoke river, south of Powellville, with a branch from that road through Powellville to Truitt to Willards.

Worcester County—Beginning at the Pocomoke river, south of Powellville, to Libertytown, to Berlin, to Ocean City.

Berlin to Newark, to Snow Hill and thence to the south of Pocomoke river, to Pocomoke, to the Somerset County line.

Somerset County—Beginning at the Wicomico line near Allen, to Princess Anne, to King's Creek, to Westover; Westover to Coates, to Worcester County near Pocomoke; Westover by the way of Harold, to Tall's Point to Orisfield.

Although these routes are subject to change, it is believed that they will stand. Governor Crothers reiterated his statement that it is the aim of the Good Roads Commission to build the roads for the benefit of the most people. Before work on the roads begins it is believed that the commission will go over the routes and again hear the opinions of the people which have been somewhat varied.

Messrs. A. W. Robinson, B. P. Gravenor, W. D. Gravenor, L. S. Cooper, J. P. Cooper, H. G. Elsey, W. U. Mann, J. W. Harrit, W. E. Walker, F. J. Bradley, B. H. Phillips and J. S. Bennett advocated the road passing through Sharpstown in Wicomico county. Messrs. E. G. Davis, J. Ernest Hearn, G. A. Shockey and Stansbury Wimbrow requested that it pass through Pittsville, Willards and then to Berlin. Wallace H. White and Virgil Bailey requested the commission to take the Powellville route. State Senator Milbourne L. Wesley Beauchamp, both of Somerset County, also discussed the route selected in their county.

Because of the progress that has been made by the commission it is believed that the engineering forces will soon be organized. Engineer Crosby and the members of the commission have received many applications for appointment, which, it was said, will be made solely upon efficiency.

It is not believed that it will be possible to begin active work on these roads until the early part of next year. Plans are being made, however, to begin work on the roads in St. Mary's and Calvert counties, and it is expected that the surveys will be made shortly.

A delegation, consisting of Messrs. W. F. King, E. H. Taylor, L. W. Onley, George L. Barnes, W. T. Townsend, James Scarborough and Colmore Bird, advocated the construction of the road from Snow Hill to Pocomoke City by way of Girdle Tree and Stockton, but this route was deemed inadvisable and too long.

The Commission has appointed August 19th as a time set for objection to any of the above routes in Wicomico.

While the roads for Wicomico County as given above are not necessarily final it is believed the Commission will adhere to the general plan as laid out, unless very good reasons are given for a change.

The architects of the New Nurses Home, Messrs. Owens and Sisco of Baltimore, Md., accepted on the part of the Directors the building on Tuesday. This is considered one of the handsomest and best equipped buildings of its kind in the country, and will make a delightful home for the hard worked nurses at the Hospital.

Mr. Thos. H. Mitchell had charge of the building and has received much praise for the manner in which the construction work was done.

Mr. Lewis Morgan did the plumbing work, which is said to be first class in every particular. Messrs. L. W. Gouby Co., put in the heating plant which was under the direct supervision of Mr. Alexander.

The painting was under the supervision of Mr. T. W. Davis and is executed in an artistic first class manner. The home will be tastefully and artistically furnished.

ENTHUSIASTIC CONVENTION OF FIRST DISTRICT DEMOCRATS

At Ocean City Thursday Makes It Plain That They Intend To Redeem The District This Year. J. Harry Covington, Of Easton, The Unanimous Choice. Nomination Made by Acclamation

The Democratic Convention of the First Congressional District met at Ocean City on Thursday and unanimously nominated J. Harry Covington, of Easton, States Attorney for Talbot County, for Congress.

There were several of the most prominent leaders on the shore absent, and the delegates were given a free hand to nominate whom they pleased without dictation from anyone.

United States Senator John Walter Smith is in Europe and has been there since June. Sen. John P. Moore of Worcester is spending his vacation in the Adirondacks and was not present, to call the convention to order as expected. Mr. W. Lee Carey is ill at his home in Berlin and was unable to be here. Mr. Samuel E. Dennis, one of Senator Smith's closest friends was on the grounds, but seemed to be present more to see his friends than to take any part in the proceedings of the convention. Hon. Joshua W. Miles, is a way with his wife, and his familiar figure was missing from the throng.

No one was in control but enthusiasm and harmony prevailed and there was no fight.

Mr. Covington had the field all to himself. While several other candidates for the nomination had been talked of, long before the convention was called to order the one candidate had been decided upon.

At a caucus held Wednesday night at which all of the nine counties in the district were represented it was agreed that Mr. Covington's name should be the only one put in nomination.

To Stop The Vote Buying.

The resolutions presented at the convention showed plainly that the Democrats of the district would make the main plank of their platform the strict enforcement of the corrupt-practices law enacted by the last Legislature. There has been some talk of calling a meeting of the State's Attorneys of the various counties with a view to having them pledge themselves to enforce strictly the corrupt-practices law. The convention was held in the ballroom of the Atlantic Hotel.

E. W. McMaster of Worcester county, acting for State Senator John P. Moore of Worcester county, member of the Democratic State Central Committee, called the meeting to order. Edward E. Goulin of Caroline county was then selected as chairman and Frederick A. Richardson of Dorchester county as secretary.

William Mason Sheehan of Easton, Talbot county, placed Mr. Covington in nomination, and the nomination was seconded by Frank Dashiell of Somerset County, Sen. Jesse D. Price, of Wicomico County, Oliver D. Collins of Worcester County, William J. Price Jr., of Queen Anne's county and several others. In endorsing Mr. Covington's candidacy Mr. Price said that while the delegation from his county came to urge the claim of J. H. C. Legg, of Centreville they were too loyal to Democratic principles to take a dictatorial stand.

For Clean Elections.

After the nomination Mr. Covington, who was in the hotel, was notified and escorted to the convention hall by a committee and made a ringing speech, endorsing the Democratic national ticket and declaring unequivocally for a firm and vigorous enforcement of the corrupt-practices law. Marion V. Brewington of Wicomico county presented the resolutions, which heartily endorsed the nomination of Bryan and Kern and urged a united party support in the approaching national election. The administration of Governor Austin L. Crothers and other State officials was highly commended.

The security of the rights of the people and a sound public sentiment demand that corruption in politics shall cease, declare the resolutions, and that the suffrage of the people shall be kept uncontaminated by the venal influence of corporations or individuals who seek political control through corruption.

The delegates to the convention stoutly maintain that the Eastern Shore is solid for Bryan, and state that the head of the Democratic ticket will carry that section of the State by a large majority. Gen. Joseph B. Seth and J. Frank Turner, both of Talbot, who fought Mr. Covington in the primaries, were not present. Those close to both men, however, maintain that they will adhere to their determination, announced some time ago, to support the nominee.

Slogan Of The Campaign.

The slogan of this campaign is to be the Corrupt Practices act, and the convention forcibly struck the keynote on this subject in the platform that they adopted. Democrats say that the only chance the Republicans have now or ever had of carrying this district is through "Uncle Bill" Jackson's money. Twice has it, they say, elected "Uncle Bill," and without it the Democrats would sweep the district. They look upon "Uncle Bill's" renomination as practically assured and are determined to prevent a repetition of the methods by which he won two years ago.

Mr. Covington proposes to make the Corrupt Practices act the big issue in his fight. He proposes to adhere rigidly and religiously to the letter and spirit of the law himself, and is preparing to bend every effort to force his opponent to do the same. In this matter he has the enthusiastic support of the Democrats from every county. These say the only thing they are afraid of in this campaign is "Uncle Bill's" money. If they can check its outflow they say they can win, and Mr. Covington says "We will check it or somebody will pay the penalty."

The Resolutions.

The resolutions committee, through Mr. Brewington, reported the platform, which was unanimously adopted with cheers. Here it is.

"We heartily endorse the nomination of that great Democratic leader, William Jennings Bryan, for President, and for him and his sterling associate, John W. Kern for Vice President, we earnestly and confidently urge a united and militant party support in the approaching national contest. It is only by an abandonment of the present dangerous and revolutionary doctrines of Republicanism and a return to the fundamental tenets of Democratic faith as pronounced in the Denver platform that this Government can be preserved as a people's government and administered in all its departments according to the Jeffersonian maxim of 'Equal rights to all and special privileges to none.'"

"We commend to the fullest extent the able, upright and wise administration of our State affairs under Gov. Austin L. Crothers and other State officials chosen as representatives of the Democratic party. The great program of civic advancement and national progress, inaugurated by the Executive, in connection with a Democratic Legislature, will certainly be of lasting benefit to Maryland; and the high standard of public service which the whole administration has given is a convincing proof that the Democratic party, constituting as it does, a large majority of the taxpayers and people of intelligence, is the party best fitted to select representatives of the State in the national as well as the local government."

"The security of the rights of the people and a sound public sentiment demand that corruption in politics shall cease, and that the suffrage of the people shall be kept uncontaminated by the venal influence of corporations or individuals who seek political control through the corrupting power of great wealth and not by the advocacy of honest principles. In furtherance and support of that sentiment, we unreservedly endorse the enactment into law of the stringent Corrupt Practices act now upon the statute books of Maryland; we pledge our party to a strict adherence to its provisions, and we call on all good citizens to aid in its rigid enforcement."

START OF PROSPERITY

On The Farm. Business Interests Watching The Crop Conditions. Anticipations Now Are Rather Encouraging.

At this season various business interests are keeping a close watch on the crop outlook. This is regarded as the basic element on which the general revival of prosperity makes its start. If the crops are good and bring satisfactory prices the farmers are well supplied with money. This they readily put into circulation to meet personal and farm needs, and all branches of life are benefited.

Local bankers among whose customers the grain dealers are preparing to meet the calls which they expect when the Western wheat crop begins to move, which it will do in about two or three weeks. Fortunately, the banks are well supplied with funds, and the grain operators will have little difficulty in borrowing at reasonable rates to carry the stock expected to go out from this port.

The Government report just issued has an important bearing on the crop situation, both as to future quantity and price. This gives the condition of winter wheat 80.6 at time of harvest. With an acreage of 29,751,000 the estimated yield is for 13.8 bushels to the acre, a possible crop of 410,568,800 bushels.

The spring wheat conditions are given at 89.4 with an indicated yield of 15.8 bushels for the 17,710,000 acres planted. This should produce a crop of 280,586,000 bushels, or a total of winter and spring combined, 701,000,000 bushels.

"Estimate Too Low."

Some observers of the situation believe that the Government estimate of spring wheat is too low. They base this view on the fact that there had been scarcely any complaint of crop conditions up to July 1. Within the last few days there has been complaint of dry weather, which caused an advance in the price of this cereal. These varied weather changes are always an important phase in the situation until the crop is harvested and may be expected from time to time.

It is anticipated that there will be a ready demand for all the crop grown and that prices will hold well. The European demands are likely to be larger than last year. Russia already advises that its winter wheat crop is short and the countries of Southern Europe generally had such dry weather in the growing period as to injure seriously their wheat crops. The demand from Greece, Italy and France, therefore, is likely to show an increase over last year.

These Countries Short.

With this shortage abroad the demand to meet it must fall upon the United States and Canada. Reserves here are less than last year, the visible supply now being only 13,000,000, as against 47,000,000 in 1907. The amounts in farmers' hands is estimated at 33,000,000 as compared with 54,000,000 bushels. This apparent shortage should keep prices up to a remunerative figure during the marketing of the crop. This is the anticipation of dealers and farmers, despite the activities and manipulations of the speculators.

The Government places the condition of the growing corn on July 1 at 82.3, with an acreage of 1,996,000. This promises a yield of 2,717,000,000 bushels. While the crop was delayed in important corn-growing States by rains, the weather since has enabled it to recover lost ground. The general outlook therefore is fully equal to last year at the same date.

Present prices of corn are high being above the average for 20 years. This has a tendency to check exports, as the foreign consumers are seeking substitutes.

But with condition of wheat and corn as indicated and with the prospect of a 1,000,000,000 bushel out crop, there is a sufficient cereal production in sight in this country upon which to base a good, substantial, business prosperity during the coming crop year.

With a yield of wheat as estimated at an average price of 80 cents a bushel, the return in cash will be $560,000,000. A corn crop of 2,700,000,000 bushels at 60 cents a bushel will yield $1,620,000,000 to the farmers. These are large figures, but it is claimed by those best informed that the possibilities of the prices named for this year are not exaggerated in view of existing conditions.

Attention.

Don't fail to come to the Alma House on Thursday, July 30th, as there will be horse racing, base ball clay pigeon shooting and etc. Racing will begin at three o'clock. There will be some fast horses in the race.

Refreshments will be served at the grounds. All are cordially invited to attend.

Vacation.

Everybody takes a vacation nowadays. Fifty years ago almost nobody did. The regular summer holiday in the now generally accepted sense was then unknown. Invalids went for their health to the old time springs. Southern planters moved their families in the summer to the Virginia mountains or to Saratoga; but this too was a matter of health. The only regular vacation gatherings were the politicians' meetings at Saratoga in New York, at Bedford Springs in Pennsylvania, and at the old White Sulphur Springs in what was then Virginia, but is now Greenbrier County, West Virginia.

Healthy people worked the year round, rested on Sunday and legal holidays and were idle only when there was no work to do. Prosperous merchants then lived over their stores and their families helped clerk and keep books. There was no idle class. There was no traveling except business trips.

You cannot make sweet butter in a foul, unclean churn. The stomach serves as a churn in which to agitate, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested. If it is weak, sluggish and foul the results will be torpid, sluggish liver and bad, impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol. Now this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a deleterious agent like alcohol, especially in the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion.

Prof. Finley Killguswood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of it: "In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs."

Cypress Swamp Is Again On Fire.

Those interested in the burnt land of the Cypress Swamp are in great hopes of the government's draining it. It is very dry in that section now and turf fires have been working over it for two weeks. It has been about fifteen years since so much of this underground burning occurred. There are many holes, burnt out large enough to hold a four horse team, and George Alfred Townsend, in "The Entailed Hat" by no means exceeds reality in his description of the treacherous nature of such a conflagration in this sparsely settled region.

W. K. Norris, Norris Hotel, Easton, Md., says: "I suffered severely for some years with weak kidneys, constant backache with shooting pains across my loins and a weakness that was sickening. The slightest exertion would cause me to become so weak that I could hardly get about. Nights of sleeplessness on account of pains and too frequent passage of the secretions caused me to become run down in general health. I suffered this way for a long time although I was being treated by a physician. I was advised by a friend to try Doan's Kidney Pills, he stating that he had been cured by their use, of practically the same complaint. I procured a supply at a drug store and took them in accordance with the directions. A short treatment effected a complete cure and I have had no return of the trouble since that time. I can gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from any form of kidney complaint."

—William H. Baker, formerly manager of the Diamond State Telephone Co., now a member of the Dover Lumber Co., has purchased from Post and Sheldon, of New York City, their old silk mill in the southern part of Dover. It will be fitted up as a crate, basket and shoo factory.

Over Thirty Five Years.

In 1873 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use had extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists on Mr. Ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale at Toolson's Drug Store.

—The instructions in methods closed on Wednesday at the University of Virginia, where about thirty of Williams' teachers took the summer course. Many of the teachers reached home this week.

CURE BY CUTICURA AT CITY MISSION

Young Woman Found in Awful Condition with Scabies—Body a Mass of Sores from Scratching—Tried Many Remedies for Seven Weeks—Result Was Discouraging, But

ITCHING TORTURES YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"While I was doing missionary work in the lower portion of several cities I found it necessary to know a little of the efficacy of a few remedies and after a while I found that a little knowledge of Cuticura was about all I needed. One of the worst I had known was a case of scabies. I had been told that it was a case of a young woman who had come to us not only broken in spirit but in a most awful condition physically. Our doctor examined her and told us that she had scabies (the itch), incipient paralysis, rheumatism, etc., brought on from exposure and the effects of her ragged-edge life. Her poor body was a mass of sores from scratching and she was not able to retain solid food. We tried many things, a good tonic was prescribed and baths with a rubbing of lard and sulphur. We worked hard for seven weeks and you can imagine how discouraged we were when, after all that time, we could see so little improvement. One day I happened to see a Cuticura advertisement telling how a little baby had been cured of a bad case of skin eruption, and although I had but ninety-seven cents with me, I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. When I reached home I was like a child with a new toy, and we bathed our patient well and gave her a full dose of the Resolvent. She slept that night better than she had since she had been with us and the next day I located the price of a box of Cuticura Ointment. I am not exaggerating when I say that in exactly five weeks this young woman was able to look for a position, being strong enough to work and full of ambition. In another month she left the home, and now has a good position in a nice family where she is respected and is strong and well. You may refer any one you wish to me, personally. The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the inadequate question, the obvious examination, and unpleasant local treatment, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispensed with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It always cures. It is a strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle wrapper, contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days fret on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of known composition. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound. If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

Need of Inebriate Asylums.

Dr. M. S. Gregory, the resident alienist at Bellevue Hospital, in New York, says that there is an urgent need for institutions for the treatment of habitual drunkards. He declares that the disposal of chronic alcoholism cases is a perplexing problem. The present method of treatment is unsatisfactory in that it is the aim to relieve immediate symptoms and discharge the individual as soon as possible. Such treatment has no lasting effect and affords not the slightest protection to the community. Workhouse sentences do not cure the condition, but merely prolong the life of the inebriate by enforcing occasional periods of sobriety by means not calculated to increase the drunkard's self-respect. The Louisville Courier Journal discussing the matter editorially, says:

"Unquestionably inebriates are defecives. While they are not insane in a legal sense, they are irresponsible and a menace to their families and the community. Farms or colonies for inebriates, under competent medical supervision, might cure many cases of alcoholism that in the ordinary course of events would never reach the 'cures' established as profitable enterprises. The pitiful tragedy of the inebriate's life is well known to persons who have from year to year witnessed the proceedings of a police court. Every city has its list of inebriates, male and female, who drift back to the clearinghouse of crime and misery as surely as a police judge sends them to jail or the workhouse. Legislation providing that such individuals should be committed to institutions and released only upon the recommendation of physicians in charge would serve the double purpose of saving the inebriates from the greater degradation to which they are now subject and of giving habitual drunkenness a status that might prove a deterrent to persons in the earlier stages of dissipation."

The question of whether or not the liquor traffic is, upon the whole, beneficial or hurtful to society, does not enter into this discussion. The inebriate is a bi-product of the trade. As the trade is sanctioned by law and will probably always be sanctioned, at least in centers of population, upon the principle that the weakness of the few should not be a bar to the temperate indulgence of the many, local governments should at least provide for the scientific and humane treatment of the victims of alcohol. A part of each saloon license devoted to the maintenance of such an institution in every state would defray the expense of caring for a class of sufferers now too much neglected."

Alcohol and Idiocy.

Dr. A. MacNicholl, a leading physician of New York City, has been making a report to the New York Academy of Medicine regarding his recent researches into the causes of mental deficiency in school children. He puts alcohol far to the front among the causes of degeneration. He says:

"In prosecuting this work I was forcibly impressed by the conspicuous position occupied by alcohol as a cause of mental deficiency of children. Alcohol, by destroying the integrity of the nerve structure, lowering the standard of organic relations, launches hereditary influences which, by continuous transmission, gain momentum and leave their impact upon gland and nerve until physical faculties are demoralized, mental energies hopelessly impaired and the moral nature becomes degenerate and diseased."

Dr. MacNicholl found that of children of drinking parents, but of abstaining grandparents, 75 per cent were dullards; of the children of abstaining parents and drinking grandparents, 18 per cent were dullards; of the children of abstaining parents and grandparents only 4 per cent were dullards.

All this tallies with official researches in Massachusetts, which demonstrated that forty-seven per cent of the idiocy of that state is found among children of drunkards. It will be noted that a former trustee of the Central Imbecile Asylum at Columbus, O., testified, in an article in the American Issue, that he and Dr. Doren had concluded that there were not less than 4,000 imbeciles in Ohio as the result of fact that drinking parents more than double the chance of having idiotic children in comparison with total abstainers.

Alcohol, Worry and Insanity.

"The overwhelming majority of cases of insanity depend absolutely upon material changes in the brain due to the circulation of some poison or other in the blood. Of these poisons the most important is alcohol, which, following an old teacher of mine, I have elsewhere called the toxin of the yeast plant."

"In the first place, worry is a potent cause of insanity because it leads to the use of drugs, and especially alcohol. . . . Alcohol stands out far beyond any other one factor as a cause of insanity, and worry is responsible for an enormous amount of drinking."—W. C. Saleeby, M. D., in Canadian Magazine.

Mr. Harden is right: it is the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back, and all rundown conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at John M. WOODS FOR FURNITURE

Three Chief Periods Known to Those Who Collect.

HOW BROUGHT ABOUT

There Are the Oak, the Walnut and the Mahogany—New York's Rosewood Period—Apple Knot Bowls of Dutch Settlers—Woodenware of the Pioneers.

Among furniture specialists it is usual to divide their treasures into three periods, the oak, the walnut and the mahogany, leaving out many woods which were much used both in this country and in Europe and which are now deservedly prized.

Of course, during the seventeenth century in both this country and the parent one oak was the wood most used and sought. It was used in panelling and wainscoting, and the same mouldings which helped to render the walls windtight were utilized in forming ornament for the chests, large chairs called wainscot chairs, tables and forms, which constituted the chief furniture of the houses.

It was a stout substantial wood, and when you remember that all such objects were not finished—that is were unvarnished or oiled—you can see how it acquired with years that black color which is now so highly prized and which is as different as possible from the dead black color which the forger of old furniture uses to stain his pieces.

When Charles II., indolent and fond of elegance, came to the throne in 1660 he demanded in accordance with his French training more comfort than was usual. Two years later his marriage to a Portuguese Princess still further increased the demand for choicer domestic articles than had been known in England, and they imported from Holland high class furniture made of walnut carved.

From this time on walnut rather crowded out oak. There were also imported from Flanders pieces of furniture carved and made of ebony or cedar, either copied from Chinese models by the clever Dutch or coming direct from the Orient.

Nor was America without her elegancies, too, and from these same sources, as can be gleaned from the inventories which accompany the wills made by the rich vrons and which are the source from which we draw much information of how the Colonists lived and what they had. Lacquered furniture was brought here from the Low Countries also, as well as direct from the Orient, and many such pieces are treasured by the descendants of the old Dutch families who brought them here.

American cabinet makers were using black walnut, white oak, which is very different from the English oak; nutwood (hickory), maple, poplar and chestnut. There are collectors in this country who will not admit to their collections anything but American made furniture of oak and made prior to 1700.

In New England and at the South the largest supply of luxuries was found, though the Dutch settlements around Albany and up the Mohawk Valley were not far behind. A "plank table" sold in New England in 1646 for ten shillings though red or white oak could be bought by the cord for three or four shillings. Sawmills were set up all over New England, the first in Portsmouth, in 1631.

In England rosewood was sometimes used for pianos and occasionally for inlay, but the French and Americans seem to have used it more artistically than the English. Indeed it is more a nineteenth century wood than an eighteenth, and its most famous worker in America was John Belter, whose shop was in New York city, and who turned out many sets of beautiful carved rosewood furniture during the few years he was at work from 1844 to 1848 or 1849.

The use of apple wood for bowls has been mentioned and occasionally they are to be found still. One belonging to a rich Dutch vron of Schenectady was marked with her initials and the date 1764. It stands upon slender silver feet and has a silver rim, and the wood has acquired a beautiful polish from age and much rubbing.

The use of what was known as woodenware in the Colonies was widespread, and in the Diary of Matthew Patten he states in March, 1765, that he paid £2 for the turning of eleven dishes, although he had furnished the knots himself. After the knots were turned the women of the household scraped the plates or bowls with bits of broken glass till they were made perfectly smooth. Then they were rubbed with sandpaper till they were fine as possible and of a beautiful light, yellowish brown color. Americans called them knot bowls, but abroad they were called mazer bowls, were made from maple wood, sometimes came in sets of three, and were used to drink beer from.

Manufacturing Tinfoil.

In the manufacture of tinfoil a pipe is made of pure tin and this is filled with lead. The whole is then beaten out in the same manner as leaf is beaten, the tin coating spreading with the lead core. The three sheets are sometimes reduced to a thickness of .0001 of an inch.

Boy's Life Saved.

My little boy, four years old, had a severe attack of dysentery. We had two physicians, both of them gave him up. We then gave him Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him and believe that saved his life.—William H. Strolling, Carbon Hill, Ala. There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it with castor oil according to the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale at Tomlinson's Drug Store.

AUDACIOUS WRETCH.

Wife (during the spat)—Come, dear, we have no occasion to quarrel this way. Of course I do some foolish things at times and so do you, you admit that, will you not? Husband—Of course, I'll admit that you do, my dear, that's what I said all along. Wife—Wretch, how dare you?

CAUGHT A TARTAR.

First Sailor—I hear you are going to quit the sea. Second Sailor—Yes, I had a fight with the mate, and he knocked the tar out of me.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION.

Officer Monk—Is this, the w.a. as done it? Joeburg—No he's green; the one that bit me was red.

EXPURGATED.

The Rev. Mr. Curate, (who has just found a playing card in a second-hand "Macbeth," he had recently purchased)—"Out! Out! Damned Spot!"

HOPPING MAD.

"You are accused of jumping your board bill." "And me a hopper—how ridiculous!"

ATTEMPT TO DRAG THE NEGRO INTO NATIONAL POLITICS.

The Baltimore Sun in an editorial of last Saturday called upon Mr. Bryan to declare himself upon some phases of the negro problem; that if the Brownsville affair and appointment to office. For so able and independent a paper as the "Sun" this strikes us very narrow. Whatever position Mr. Bryan might take, the probable effect would be to excite prejudice and no good result. The Brownsville affair is a closed incident even in Republican ranks and has never been opened in the Democratic party, so why try to drag it in now to the prejudice of Democratic success.

It may safely be assumed that if Mr. Taft is elected he will appoint negroes to office. Now does the Sun mean to imply that something is to be gained by the people of the South in electing Taft over Bryan. To answer this question let them look for the results under Taft's sponsor, President Roosevelt. Now suppose Mr. Bryan should declare that he will not under any circumstances appoint a negro to office, would not that intensify the prejudice not only of the negroes, but also of many white men all over the country—particularly of those who are not fully informed upon the race problem that confronts us in the South.

Many patriotic and thoughtful people are now convinced that it would have been much better for the negro and white voters both, if the former had not been misled by the Republican politician appealing to the negroes' unreasoning prejudices to vote only a Republican ticket. Many of the more intelligent of them are already beginning to understand that the word Republicanism contains no more patriotism than the word Democracy and that it is an absurd sense of gratitude that will cause them to vote for a man who once fought for their enslavement and its perpetuation, because he now fights as a republican candidate under a republican banner.

So long as the negro can vote let him do so with as much intelligence as he is capable of exercising and with as little appeal to his prejudices as possible.

The Fifteenth Amendment, which we believe to be the most unjust political legislation that was ever forcibly imposed upon a people was passed by a Republican congress at the close of the Civil War for the express purpose of compelling the Southern States to enfranchise the negro, or else disfranchise the white men, as the result of it was that one could not have the vote unless the other got it also; that is, it forbids to any state the power to "deny or abridge" the right of any citizen to vote on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. Prior to this amendment every qualification to vote remained with the states. Even yet any state may "deny" and nearly all of them do, the right of suffrage to women. We therefore find the right of negro men protected above that of our women. Any state may now not only "deny" but it may by constitutional provisions "abridge" the right, by raising the age limit above 21 years, or by adding property and educational qualifications, or by changing residence qualifications, or any read condition, that may seem wise people of a state, but the people who must stop at the "color" and that only.

The people of the North as they have become enlightened upon the subject of indiscriminate negro suffrage have unanimously changed their position and now the Supreme Court of the United States has not been all-

gent to find means for forcing the 15th Amendment in the South.

The people of the South have asked to be let alone in solving the race problem in its political aspect. They know the negro, mentally and temperamentally, and his capacity also. He will be more likely to receive justice in his civil and property rights if left to the generous sentiment of Southern people, than he will be by the meddlesome interference of outsiders. It is this constitutional compulsion of negro franchise that has goaded the people of the South into many desperate political acts, in order to evade the tyranny of the 15th Amendment.

Let the people of the South settle the political status of the negro, as they do his other rights. The negro has been the ward of the Nation and the white man's burden quite long enough. He and his white friends of the South can work out his salvation much more to the satisfaction of both if let alone by meddling people who know little of him. These are some of the reasons why we regret to see the Sun trying to make the race question a National issue.

Practically what will be the effect of having Mr. Bryan declare himself. It is not likely to bring him a considerable number of republican votes, and if it should hold to him democratic votes in the South, may it not lose him democratic votes in the West and thereby secure his defeat in those states where he needs them most and consequently mean the election of Mr. Taft.

Judge Parker was not asked to declare himself neither was Mr. Cleveland, while the latter did appoint negroes to some important offices and the Sun with reasons satisfactory to itself has always supported and commended him.

With all that the race problem in the South means, can not the people safely trust a man of Bryan's democratic sympathies and integrity of purpose to handle it prudently, as far as it may come within the sphere of National politics and with more assurance of safety than to commit to a partisan republican with his tendencies and environments. We say this without any invidious comparison of the men. If he can be trusted to handle the great national problems confronting the country, why, we may leave a question more of local than national politics to his wisdom.

Let the South settle the negro problem in what it wants.

are being installed in the commercial houses just as rapidly as we can get them in and we ask our patrons to be a little patient and we will get around to them in a short time. The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantalum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters as rapidly as possible. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial Houses, $2.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10 cents per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights at night, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Our Superintendent will give prompt attention to any complaints as to our service. We have a "trouble" man always on hand to help you out of any difficulty. Call up the Main Street office and your wants will be attended to.

REASONS FOR SECRECY

Means Used by Some to Get Wanted Information—Those Who Sell Exclusive Designs Must Always Be On the Watch—Smart Advertising Trick.

About 12 months ago a man was arrested in Paris charged with bribing an accomplice to steal some of the latest millinery models just invented for the forthcoming winter season by a famous French modiste. At his trial it appeared that he represented an English firm and had been, in fact, endeavoring to procure, for practically nothing, patterns worth a very large sum of money.

Such patterns, indeed, represent an expenditure of thought, labor and hard cash on the part of the select firms who originate new fashions of which the ordinary man has no conception. Skilled artists have to be employed and paid very high salaries; indeed, few draughtsmen anywhere make such good incomes as those whose work is to design new hats and bonnets.

The models, whether of dresses or hats, are prepared long before they are required, and are guarded as jealously as a government guards the secret plans of its forts and submarines. They are shown to none but a few wealthy well-known customers, and even these are allowed to see only the models likely to appeal to them, personally.

For these precautions there are only too good reasons. Enterprising and unscrupulous firms, who cannot or will not employ fashion artists of the first class, and yet do not wish to be behind the times, will stop literally at nothing to obtain the new designs. They usually employ a spy or pirate, whom they send out with a roving commission to get hold to anything fresh, either by fair means or foul. Of these spies only a few are men; the majority are women, and amazingly clever women they are.

No later than an afternoon of last spring the proprietor of one of the smartest shops in the West End of London noticed a lady walking in the park attired in a dress almost an exact copy of a brand new model of his own, a model which not half a dozen people had seen besides the inventor and himself. The design had been registered, but the copy was just sufficiently altered to steer clear of legal difficulties. A most searching inquiry revealed the fact that the culprit was a lady who had always been considered one of the firm's smartest and best customers. Her birth and position were less impressive than the state of her finances, and she had accepted the offer of a Berlin firm to dress her on condition that she supplied them with the very latest "creations" that found their way from Paris to London.

Having the entire of the innermost sanctum of the London firm referred to, she had taken advantage of their confidence in her to draw their designs from memory and post them to Berlin. The London firm had no legal remedy whatever. All they could do was when the autumn styles were due, and the lady called again, to inform her courteously that her patronage was no longer desired.

Last summer a lady arrived at a smart seaside hotel—the sort of place where people stay for the whole season. She was pretty smart and perfectly turned out, so well dressed, in fact, that other women, filled with envy did their best to find out who was her dressmaker. But though she frequently boasted that the people were perfect treasures that her bills amounted to next to nothing, she steadfastly refused to disclose the name. One day, however, she accidentally dropped an envelope inclosing a bill from the mysterious dressmaker, a bill artfully "faked" so as to show prices of startling cheapness. Within a week the firm who employed this clever lady welcomed a dozen new customers.

Hotels, too, find the lady tout most useful. Last autumn a very pretty girl arrived at a certain Scotch hydropathic establishment with her mother. She was smart, well dressed, a clever musician—just the sort of girl to be thoroughly popular with both sexes. At once she became the center of a large coterie of admirers. Then, after a few days, her vivacious expression gave place to a look of unutterable boredom. "I can't stand this place. It's so deadly dull," she said over and over again. Finally, one evening she announced that she could not support it an hour longer. She was going.

"Where?" was the question. "Back to Blithington," was the decided answer. "It may be a little dearer, but you get your money's worth there. One has such a rest of time there." And she proceeded to dilate at length upon the advantages of the place.

Next day she left, and before the week was out a large proportion of her friends had followed her.

To Remove Obstructions. One part tincture of iodine and eight parts sweet oil or vaseline, applied externally, will sometimes remove obstructions in the cow's teat. Make the application once each day directly over the obstruction and massage well to rub the mixture into the pores.

ZUNI INDIAN CORN PLANTER.

Primitive Implement Still in Use by Red Men of the Southwest.

The Zuni Indians of New Mexico are a self-supporting people who retain many of the interesting customs of prehistoric ancestors. The accompanying drawing represents the implement which they use for planting corn. It is hewn from a piece of hard cedar and is practically a wooden spade, the projecting horizontal piece near the base being for the foot of the digger to press upon. In early spring, when the oak leaves are the size of squirrels' ears, the Zuni farmer fills a basket with seed corn of as many colors as Joseph's coat; and slinging it and his corn planter across his burro's back, he mounts the patient little beast himself and goes jogging out on the plain to his sandy corn ground, which may be many miles from his home. Moisture in that arid land lies deep, so he must make with his wooden planter a much deeper hole than an Eastern farmer would think of making. Then he drops into it a few grains of corn, draws the sandy loam carefully over them with the blade of the planter, and proceeds to dig another hole six or eight feet away. And so on until the seed is all planted.

Monster and Rattler. Dr. James B. Ballitt, of Louisville, writes of a Gila monster and a rattlesnake:

"A two years' residence in Arizona made me quite familiar with both of these reptiles; for a good part of the time I had one of the former tied to the leg of my office table by a string. In his native habitat the monster is credited with being the enemy of the rattlesnake, and is said to kill him."

"Changing to have both reptiles on hand at the same time, I put them in a large box together and awaited results."

"The rattler coiled in one end of the box; the monster would waddle up to him, root under his coils with his nose and finally slip down on a coil near the tail."

"The rattler would then spring to the other end of the box and recoil. After this had happened a number of times the monster finally succeeded in seizing the snake by the neck just back of the head."

"He held a firm grip until the snake was choked to death. The monster sickened and died a couple of days afterward. On removing his skin I found two punctured wounds on his back, evidently the result of the snake's having struck him once."

A Musselman at Prayer. When saying his prayers the true Musselman is not easily disturbed. Hans Döring, in his account of his travels in Chinese Turkestan, writes: "It is an interesting sight to see a Musselman perform his devotions. Through the piece of glass in my paper window I saw the interpreter spread his carpet in front of his house just opposite the one in which I was living. His wife and child sat quite close to him talking loudly with some visitors, but this did not in the least disturb the old man at his devotions."

"In spite of the noise the melodious chanting of the koran was quite audible. The worshiper bowed several times and cried 'Allah! Allah! Allah!' Then for a while stood reverentially clasping his hands crosswise upon his breast, after which he joined in the conversation. His wife then went through the same performance, doing exactly the same as her husband. This they do every morning and evening whether there are friends with them or not."

Ravage Wrought by Rats. It is estimated that the rat does $50,000,000 worth of damage a year in England. In a slaughter house near Paris rats in a single night picked to the bone the carcasses of 16 horses. There is very little that they will not eat. Eggs, young birds and animals are among the dainties which they snap up in the ordinary course of business, but when pressed by hunger they will eat anything through which they can drive their terrible teeth. Rat will eat rat. The idea that a trapped rat will bite off an imprisoned leg and so escape is now said to be wrong; it is the other rats which do the biting. They eat the captive.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

WAYS OF MAKING MONEY

Other Means of Getting Rich Than Owning a Bank.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR ALL

Englishman Who Has a Corn Popping Trust—Jersey Woman Who Raises Bullfrogs—Reading Up for Other People—A Fortune in the Ripe Olive Business.

In the whole history of the world there has never been a country where it is so easy to make money as in the United States, and this is the most prosperous time the people of our nation have ever known. That there are many ways of making a living besides being a life insurance president, a prizefighter, or a podcaster, is shown by the following collection of unusual occupations, says the New York Sun.

Of the whole list of unique callings that have come to my attention none is more peculiar than the business of "Dr. Cockroach" of Louisville. For a stipulated annual consideration the "Doctor" contracts to keep one's premises rid of cockroaches.

An Englishman possessed of a small annuity and in bad health went to El Paso, Tex. The expenses of living were so great in the Southwestern city that he soon found his income inadequate. He invested all the ready money he had in eight gilt and gaudy popcorn stands, with little engines to run the poppers. The idea worked and before long he branched out to San Antonio. He soon worked up a baby trust which brought him an income of $8,000 a year.

A woman in Boston makes a business of taking inventories of houses which are rented furnished. She comes to the house and makes complete lists in triplicate of every article with a description of its condition. When the house is given up she comes again and checks over the household goods and gods and appraises the loss or damage. She has been so successful in this kind of work that her services are much in demand.

An Italian in New York takes over the rubbish from the garbage collections of the great Eastern metropolis at a stated annual price and makes from $20,000 to $30,000 a year from the business. He employs hundreds of sorters and pickers, who go over the rubbish to get old bottles, rags, rubber, leather and other junk. It is said that he realizes from $2,000 to $3,000 a year on old rubber shoes alone.

A Memphis newspaper woman boldly advertised in the newspapers that for a consideration she would prepare papers to be read at women's clubs, write speeches for banquets, or trace pedigrees back of forgotten grandmothers to the Colonial Dames. Her advertising was persistent until commissions began to come in, and many a woman leader of club life in this or that particular town has shone in the reflected glory of this Southern girl's hard working genius.

A New Jersey girl, broken down by teaching and office work, was ordered by her doctor to get some occupation which would keep her out of doors. She followed the physician's advice by acquiring a boggy farm in New Jersey where she began the culture of bullfrogs. Persons who heard of the new venture smiled, until they learned that she was making a lot of money selling frog's legs at big prices to New York hotels and restaurants. In order to get the fresh air she does her own killing. Attired in rubber boots she tramps about the marshes and shoots the frogs with a small rifle.

The United States consumes millions of olives every year, but they are nearly all imported. About eight years ago a California woman while traveling abroad learned the secret of picking a ripe olive in a peculiar fashion. The year after she came home she marketed twenty gallons of ripe olives. Three years later she could not begin to fill the orders which came to her and now she is annually marketing over 100,000 gallons of ripe olive oil and pickled olives.

A novel way of making a living is to do other people's reading for them. In the old days when a learned man desired to write a scientific book it was a labor of years. Not so nowadays in the United States. Suppose a physician who has attained great prominence of a particular disease desires to perpetuate his fame by writing a book on that subject. What does he do? More makes a contract with a professional reader to provide the history of cases of the particular disease recorded in the medical journals of all lands. The busy man then goes hastily over this collection, selecting the instances fit for his own use, and thus completes the work of ten years in one year. Not long ago one of our great physicians paid a professional reader $5,000 for compiling certain information for him.

The business of looking up family records to qualify a man or woman for admission to the Sons or Daughters of the American Revolution, or other historical societies is as well recognized in Washington as that of the attorney who looks up the war record of a claimant for a pension.

Defective Vision Makes Men Drink. Bad sight is given as the reason for men going wrong. Defective vision has been proved to be the cause of lack of self-control, alcoholism and drug taking.

When there is too much outside speculation, the matrimonial bond decreases in interest.

ATTEMPT TO DRAG THE NEGRO INTO NATIONAL POLITICS.

The Baltimore Sun in an editorial of last Saturday called upon Mr. Bryan to declare himself upon some phases of the negro problem; that if the Brownsville affair and appointment to office. For so able and independent a paper as the "Sun" this strikes us very narrow. Whatever position Mr. Bryan might take, the probable effect would be to excite prejudice and no good result. The Brownsville affair is a closed incident even in Republican ranks and has never been opened in the Democratic party, so why try to drag it in now to the prejudice of Democratic success.

It may safely be assumed that if Mr. Taft is elected he will appoint negroes to office. Now does the Sun mean to imply that something is to be gained by the people of the South in electing Taft over Bryan. To answer this question let them look for the results under Taft's sponsor, President Roosevelt. Now suppose Mr. Bryan should declare that he will not under any circumstances appoint a negro to office, would not that intensify the prejudice not only of the negroes, but also of many white men all over the country—particularly of those who are not fully informed upon the race problem that confronts us in the South.

Many patriotic and thoughtful people are now convinced that it would have been much better for the negro and white voters both, if the former had not been misled by the Republican politician appealing to the negroes' unreasoning prejudices to vote only a Republican ticket. Many of the more intelligent of them are already beginning to understand that the word Republicanism contains no more patriotism than the word Democracy and that it is an absurd sense of gratitude that will cause them to vote for a man who once fought for their enslavement and its perpetuation, because he now fights as a republican candidate under a republican banner.

So long as the negro can vote let him do so with as much intelligence as he is capable of exercising and with as little appeal to his prejudices as possible.

The Fifteenth Amendment, which we believe to be the most unjust political legislation that was ever forcibly imposed upon a people was passed by a Republican congress at the close of the Civil War for the express purpose of compelling the Southern States to enfranchise the negro, or else disfranchise the white men, as the result of it was that one could not have the vote unless the other got it also; that is, it forbids to any state the power to "deny or abridge" the right of any citizen to vote on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude. Prior to this amendment every qualification to vote remained with the state.—Even yet any state may "deny" and nearly all of them do, the right of suffrage to women. We therefore find the right of negro men protected above that of our women. Any state may now not only "deny" but it may by constitutional provisions "abridge" the right, by raising the age limit above 21 years, or by adding property and educational qualifications, or by changing residence qualifications, or any condition, that may seem wise people of a state, but the people who must stop at the "color" and that only.

The people of the North as they have become enlightened upon the subject of indiscriminate negro suffrage have modestly changed their position, and even the Supreme Court of the United States has been divided.

gent to find means for forcing the 15th Amendment in the South.

The people of the South have asked to be let alone in solving the race problem in its political aspect. They know the negro, mentally and temperamentally, and his capacity also. He will be more likely to receive justice in his civil and property rights if left to the generous sentiment of Southern people, than he will be by the meddlesome interference of outsiders. It is this constitutional compulsion of negro franchise that has goaded the people of the South into many desperate political acts, in order to evade the tyranny of the 15th Amendment.

Let the people of the South settle the political status of the negro, as they do his other rights. The negro has been the ward of the Nation and the white man's burden quite long enough. He and his white friends of the South can work out his salvation much more to the satisfaction of both if let alone by meddling people who know little of him. These are some of the reasons why we regret to see the Sun trying to make the race question a National issue.

Practically what will be the effect of having Mr. Bryan declare himself. It is not likely to bring him a considerable number of republican votes, and if it should hold to him democratic votes in the South, may it not lose him democratic votes in the West and thereby secure his defeat in those states where he needs them most and consequently mean the election of Mr. Taft.

Judge Parker was not asked to declare himself neither was Mr. Cleveland, while the latter did appoint negroes to some important offices and the Sun with reasons satisfactory to itself has always supported and commended him.

With all that the race problem in the South means, can not the people safely trust a man of Bryan's demonstrated sympathies and integrity of purpose to handle it prudently, as far as it may come within the sphere of National politics and with more assurance of safety than to commit to a partisan republican with his tendencies and environments.—We say this without any invidious comparison of the men. If he can be trusted to handle the great national problem confronting the country—surely we may leave a question more of local than national politics to his wisdom. Let the South settle the negro problem in what it wants.

Kodol

For Dyspepsia and Indigestion

If you suffer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gas on the Stomach, Belching, Sour Stomach, Heart-burn, etc., a little Kodol will Relieve you almost Instantly

Kodol supplies the same digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach. Being a liquid, it starts digestion at once.

Kodol not only digests your food, but helps you enjoy every mouthful you eat.

You need a sufficient amount of good, wholesome food to maintain strength and health.

But, this food must be digested thoroughly, otherwise the pains of indigestion and dyspepsia are the result.

When your stomach cannot do its work properly, take something to help your stomach. Kodol is the only thing that will give the stomach complete rest.

Why? Because Kodol does the same work as a strong stomach, and does it in a natural way.

So, don't neglect your stomach. Don't become a chronic dyspeptic. Keep your stomach healthy and strong by taking a little Kodol. You don't have to take Kodol all the time. You only take it when you need it.

Kodol is perfectly harmless.

Contracts Awarded For Schools.

The School Board, at a special meeting held last Thursday, opened bids for additions to the Sharpstown, Delmar, Athol and Friendship school buildings, and for a new building at Friendship. The following contracts were awarded: For the addition to the Sharpstown building, to N. W. Owens, for $734.00; for the addition to the Athol school, to A. M. Bonds, for $601.00; for the new school at Friendship, to W. S. Barbagel, for $470.00. There were no bids for the improvement to the White Haven building, but the Board expects bids to be submitted at its meeting tomorrow. The bids on improvements to the Friendship and Delmar schools were returned for revision.

The School Commissioners have adopted a regular color system of the painting of school buildings throughout this county. The color scheme is buff for the body, white trimmings and olive green shutters.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Would Have Saved Him $100.00.

"In 1903 I had a very severe attack of diarrhoea," says R. N. Farrar of Oak Island, La. "For several weeks I was unable to do anything. On March 18, 1907, I had a similar attack and took Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which gave me prompt relief. I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1903 I believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill." Sold by at Toulson's Drug Store.

—Prof. M. Bates Stevens, State Superintendent of Education who is very ill in a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Michigan, is considerably improved. Although he is seriously ill, his friends expect him to recover.

Bad Burn Quickly Healed.

"I am so delighted with what Chamberlain's Salve has done for me that I feel bound to write and tell you so," says Mrs. Robert Mytton, 457 John St., Hamilton, Ontario. "My little daughter had a bad burn on her knee. I applied Chamberlain's Salve and it healed beautifully." This salve allays the pain of a burn almost instantly. It is for sale at Toulson's Drug Store.

—The picnic season is now upon us, with the usual accompaniments, fleas, mosquitoes, grass chiggers and gnats. But there are bushels of fun in a day's outing anyway.

FLIES ELECTROCUTED.

Novel Way to Get Rid of These Troublesome Insects.

If you can't kill bugs with sticky flypaper or poisonous powders, try electricity. This electrocution of insects is the recommendation of a New York man, and has been officially approved by experts to prevent cruelty to animals. He has invented a contrivance entirely efficient for this purpose, which is simple and durable, with no complicated mechanism to get out of order. As shown in the accompanying illustration, the invention embodies a grid or screen of parallel wires alternately positive and negative and charged with electricity. A fly alighting on the grid or attempting to walk upon and touching the adjacent wires will be electrocuted as it were, and fall dead from the trap. The device is composed of two bars of wood, between which extend strips of brass. Live wires connect with a source of electricity of sufficient power to effect the electrocution of insects. The common house fly is readily attracted to anything bright or shiny, avoiding dark and dull objects. Hence it may be found advisable to place the traps near a window.

Old-Time Smoking.

Although the present universal habit of smoking is of comparatively recent date, the use of tobacco was carried on to a great extent when it was first introduced. The old-time citizen smoked when in church. All such offenders were solemnly communicated by Urban VIII. In 1624 an again by Innocent XIII. In 1690, when the practice seems to have extended to Rome itself. There was William Bredon, too, vicar of Thornton, England, "a profound divine and absolutely the most polite person for his time in that age," of whom the astrologer Jolly says that "when he had no tobacco he would cut the bell ropes and smoke them." Professions of the custom were frequent. "Them, you shall not utter," enjoins an alchemist of the time of James I., "nor willingly suffer to be uttered, drunks taken, any tobacco within your house, cellar or other place thereunto belonging." The rules of Othello school (1639) provided that the master must be "no puff of tobacco" and Charles II. sent a letter to the University of Cambridge forbidding the members to wear periwigs, smoke tobacco or read their sermons. A writer has recorded a visit to an Essex church about 1880, on which he saw not only pipes stowed away in various nooks ready for use on the following Sunday, but also spittoons in many of the pews.

Carrying Out Death Sentences.

A correspondent is anxious to know which is the most common form employed in the carrying out of death sentences. The probability is that most people, if asked would at once say the gallows; yet this is far from being the case, says the London Chronicle.

The favorite mode appears to be the guillotine, which is employed publicly in France, Belgium, Denmark, Hanover and two cantons of Switzerland; and privately in Bavaria, and Saxony.

The cheery gallows comes next in the running and is favored publicly in Austria, Portugal and Russia, and privately in Great Britain and the United States of America.

Death by the sword obtains in fifteen cantons in Switzerland, in China, and Russia; publicly, and in Prussia, Austria, Hungary, and Russia have adopted the guillotine, and in China they have strangled by the cord, and in Spain the garrote both public and in Brunswick death by the axe, and by the electric chair in New York.

Save grapes, tobacco, onions, and some other fruits we can grow in England all that can be grown in France with as good certainty, and often in better quality. From our country comes more than all the rest of the world in the world. Incomparable shire horses are still bred in the Cambridge shire, set up by Henry VIII. Scotland and all over the north are farmers whose peculiar knowledge, extending from tubers to trees, is, as one may say, a gift of the soil. Yet England, which is over civilized, is not yet half cultivated.—National Review.

Charlotte Bronte in Youth. There lives in a Yorkshire moor in England an old lady who remembers Charlotte Bronte in youth. She was servant in a family to which Charlotte was governess. "Miss Bronte was no doubt the governess," she says. "But what was Miss Bronte like?" she was asked, "for she wrote some famous stories." "Oh," replies the old lady, "I never heard till she'd come out to such folk talk; she was so quiet the governess."

has bought the large brick warehouse on Main street formerly used as a harness store, and will cover the entire lot, 50x210 feet, with a two story brick and iron building. I am selling two carloads of Buggies, Wagons and Runabouts each week. Think for yourself what a saving this means to you! I have kept the prices down for seven years and increased the quality all the time. There has been NO advance in the price of Buggies, as I buy large each year, and the manufacturers are figuring their prices down to get my business.

I SELL OVER FIFTY DOCTORS WRENN BUGGIES.

One doctor telephoned and asked me if I would let the prodigal son return. He said: "I bought a buggy from another place last year and am not satisfied. I want another Wrenn like the last one you sold me." We have very few persons to stay away, but they are just like the doctor—they come back and are always walking advertisements for us.

I HAVE IN STOCK

The ROMANCE of K. 374.

Francis Maria Joseph, from Oberdorfer, was the most jolly and light-hearted of all cavaliers, but to-day he was in the most abominable humor. Inside his head something was beating a drum, and there was a noise as if the whole brass band was practicing—remembrances of the night before.

To get over this attack he decided to look up his intimate friend and former fellow officer Huber Planhoefer. Huber possessed the talent of having a few thousand marks more debt than he, a good humor, which nothing could disturb, and credit everywhere, although his whole capital at the time consisted in half a bottle of sherry, and an unopened bottle of Pomeroy, extra dry, which he said he always kept on hand in case he ever made up his mind to commit suicide.

Besides this Planhoefer possessed the love of a charming blond girl, Kate, whom he would marry, if it wasn't for the fact that he didn't have a few thousand marks, absolutely necessary to an army officer to be allowed to enter the state of matrimony.

Kate's virtue was above suspicion, and as regards her love she was faithful, almost faithful enough to be of-fashioned.

The handsome Planhoefer resided in a fashionable cottage in the most aristocratic neighborhood of the city. The cottage belonged to some old baroness who spent all of her time at the Riviera, and who, because she was always afraid of being buried alive, had asked him to live in her cottage while he was away.

"Kate threw her arms around Huber's neck," Oberdorfer entered the cottage the light almost dazzled him. Every light in the house was turned on full and the dining room was decorated with flowers.

The couple sat at the table, a bottle of champagne in front of them.

As soon as Kate saw him she came rushing toward him and threw her arms around his neck, and squeezed him until he nearly lost his breath. It took some time until he had recovered sufficiently to ask his friend what in the world was the matter.

"Oh, we're going to marry in four weeks; we have the money now," they both cried.

"You have the money?"

And Kate, blushing and smiling, whispered into his ears the mysterious words "K. 374."

"But really, I don't understand you."

Planhoefer drew a deep sigh and said: "That is the license number of my former automobile."

He filled up the glasses and after they had all congratulated each other he began: "Well, I had an automobile, how I came into possession of it is another story, which it is not necessary to take up here, but I will say this much, that it was closely connected with an affair of business with a certain Nathaniel Buckenglander from Kraykaw or Lemberg."

"The question was to get rid of it without losing too much, and without getting yourself into trouble. But how? There was an American, a tall, craggy individual who was enormously rich, and who was the owner of some oil wells somewhere. He had come to Munich to see the carnival and to get rid of as much of his money as possible in the shortest possible time."

"He fell in love with Kate. I had to laugh at him. He wanted to make her oil queen right away. That I was engaged to her didn't bother him for a moment; he simply overlooked me as would a man who considers himself vastly superior to any human being of his acquaintance."

"Now listen. Kate let the American elope with her in my own automobile."

"What do you say?" Frank Oberdorfer exclaimed.

"I mean just what I say. She eloped with him, and that in spite of the fact that the Yankee was a God-fearing and pious man. At a ball he proposed to her to take her to an old aunt living somewhere in the suburbs to get her out of my influence. And then he simply took my automobile which was waiting downstairs and which Kate had already arranged for him to use."

"I followed on my wheel. In the auto was sitting my fiancée in pink domino a little nervous and scared, and next to her the long American with his expressionless fish face."

"They started out on second speed and it was a surprise to me to see how fine the thing could run. Nevertheless, I did not worry for a minute, for I knew my car, K. 374, stood alone in the world with its terrible speed for a considerable distance, but at last something happened."

happened. K. 374 became unmanageable and ran into a ditch.

"I was soon upon them with my wheel and succeeded in extricating Kate. I appeared before her with rage."

and the Yankee trembled with fear lest I should deal to him summary justice. He pleaded for mercy as he gazed upon the broken machinery and was anxious for his liberty at any price.

"Turning to my fiancée, I said: 'May I offer you my car, K. 374, for 40,000 marks?'"

"You forgive this poor sinner?" And like the good girl she is, she said, with tears in her eyes: 'Yes, I forgive him, because he regrets.'

"The American turned quite red in the face with happiness, kissed her hand, shook my hand, and then said, very embarrassed: 'I have something to ask you, and I sincerely hope that you will not refuse. Will you sell your car to me? It is a wonderful machine.'"

"He produced his check book and fountain pen. 'May I offer you my check for 40,000 marks?'"

"I was so dumbfounded that I simply couldn't say a word, and the man, of course, thought that he had offered me too little, and added: 'I mean fifty thousand marks.'"

"This time I hesitated no longer and when I started to walk toward the city with Kate, the American stood beaming with happiness, looking over what was left of K. 374. He was convinced that he had made a splendid bargain."

"On the way back Kate's conscience began to trouble her, and she said something about going back and telling the man that we had cheated him, but I succeeded in persuading her to leave him alone."

"It was a carnival joke which made it possible for us to become perfectly happy, and I am sure that there are to-day in all Munich, no happier people than Kate and I, unless it should be the owner of K. 374."

The Rooster Muzzle.

They were like fairy helmets—little wire helmets no bigger than a walnut.

"They are rooster muzzles," said the city farmer, as he led the way past the pen beds on the window sill, the potato field on the back porch, and the flourishing mushroom crop under the outhouse.

"Rooster muzzles?"

"Even so, muzzles, not to prevent roosters from biting—for even the gamest fowl has never been known to snap—but to prevent them from crowing. See here."

They had reached the tiny chicken run. The city farmer caught a rooster and gently slipped a muzzle over its fierce head.

"Now," said he, "it can't crow. It can't wake the neighbors with its crows at daybreak. Hence, thanks to the muzzle, it is at last possible to keep chickens in the most crowded city quarters."

"Harrison Wair invented the rooster muzzle. A rooster, to crow, you see, stands erect, flaps his wings, throws back his head and opens his beak wide. If he can't open his beak no crow can come from his little red throat.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Animals and Rain.

Lions, tigers and all the cat tribe dread rain," said a zoo keeper. "On a rainy day they tear nervously up and down their cages, growling and trembling. We usually give them an extra ration of hot milk. That puts them to sleep."

"Wolves love a gray day of rain. They then don any clover. Treacherous as the wolf is, no keeper need fear him on a rainy day. He is too happy to harm a fly."

"Snakes, too, like rain. They perk up wonderfully as the barometer falls and the damp makes itself felt in their warm cases."

"Rain makes monkeys giddy. They are apt from instinct when they see it through the window, to clasp their hands above their heads and sit so for hours. That attitude, you know, makes a kind of shelter. It is the primitive umbrella."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Watched Her Flumes.

A woman who was perfectly well, but fancied she was suffering from fever, called on an old and experienced physician to consult him. She described her symptoms at some length, and he listened patiently. At last he said: "I think I understand your case, madam. Sit perfectly still a few moments and let me look at you." She complied and he eyed her attentively for nearly a minute, glancing at his watch once or twice in the meantime. "There is nothing the matter with you, madam," he said. "You haven't the slightest indication of fever. Your heart beat is perfectly normal." "Why, how do you know doctor?" she asked in surprise. "You didn't feel my pulse."

"I didn't need to," he answered. "I counted the vibrations of the ostrich feather on your hat." And he bowed her out.—Kansas City Star.

When a man never did any of the things when he was young that boys of his age do, either he was a fool or he was a very old man.

"They are rooster muzzles," said the city farmer, as he led the way past the pen beds on the window sill, the potato field on the back porch, and the flourishing mushroom crop under the outhouse.

"Rooster muzzles?"

"Even so, muzzles, not to prevent roosters from biting—for even the gamest fowl has never been known to snap—but to prevent them from crowing. See here."

They had reached the tiny chicken run. The city farmer caught a rooster and gently slipped a muzzle over its fierce head.

"Now," said he, "it can't crow. It can't wake the neighbors with its crows at daybreak. Hence, thanks to the muzzle, it is at last possible to keep chickens in the most crowded city quarters."

"Harrison Wair invented the rooster muzzle. A rooster, to crow, you see, stands erect, flaps his wings, throws back his head and opens his beak wide. If he can't open his beak no crow can come from his little red throat.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Animals and Rain.

Lions, tigers and all the cat tribe dread rain," said a zoo keeper. "On a rainy day they tear nervously up and down their cages, growling and trembling. We usually give them an extra ration of hot milk. That puts them to sleep."

"Wolves love a gray day of rain. They then don any clover. Treacherous as the wolf is, no keeper need fear him on a rainy day. He is too happy to harm a fly."

"Snakes, too, like rain. They perk up wonderfully as the barometer falls and the damp makes itself felt in their warm cases."

"Rain makes monkeys giddy. They are apt from instinct when they see it through the window, to clasp their hands above their heads and sit so for hours. That attitude, you know, makes a kind of shelter. It is the primitive umbrella."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Watched Her Flumes.

A woman who was perfectly well, but fancied she was suffering from fever, called on an old and experienced physician to consult him. She described her symptoms at some length, and he listened patiently. At last he said: "I think I understand your case, madam. Sit perfectly still a few moments and let me look at you." She complied and he eyed her attentively for nearly a minute, glancing at his watch once or twice in the meantime. "There is nothing the matter with you, madam," he said. "You haven't the slightest indication of fever. Your heart beat is perfectly normal." "Why, how do you know doctor?" she asked in surprise. "You didn't feel my pulse."

"I didn't need to," he answered. "I counted the vibrations of the ostrich feather on your hat." And he bowed her out.—Kansas City Star.

When a man never did any of the things when he was young that boys of his age do, either he was a fool or he was a very old man.

HE HESITATED.

"Help!" The unnerving, harrowing screams of a strong man, whose strength and manhood have collapsed beneath the sudden strain of some deadly fear, some overpowering agony.

The river looked placidly beautiful. A growing circle of wavelets swept slowly over its calm surface—swept away as though shrinking in horror from the growling bubbles that came sputtering up where the swimmer had sunk like lead.

A minute before Vernon Dale had stopped to admire the solitary swimmer's strength and grace as he cut through the water like some fabulous sea creature, with a beautiful side stroke.

are being installed in the commercial houses just as rapidly as we can get them in and we ask our patrons to be a little patient and we will get around to them in a short time. The customers who have the meters are much pleased with them. They are at liberty to use any kind of lamp and with the new Tungsten and Tantalum lamps are getting the best results.

NO DISCOUNT ON METER BILLS.

We have fixed the rate for meters at 10c per K. W. hour and under this arrangement all bills for lights on the meter system are NET. We ask our customers to continue to remit regularly as heretofore. Users of light under the old flat rate are still entitled to the usual discount.

METERS FOR RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

will be installed just as fast as our force of men can get them in. All customers using as much as 80 candle power will be placed on meters as soon as they can be installed. As the meters are put in we would advise the use of either the Tantalum or Tungsten lamps as they draw only about half as much current as the old style lamps and therefore will be far less expensive.

THE MINIMUM RATE FOR METERS.

Commercial Houses, $2.50 per month. Residences, $1.50 per month. The rate for both kinds of lighting will be 10c per K. W. hour. With a little care in turning off the lights not needed, your bill will be less under the meter than under the old flat rate.

Our Superintendent will give prompt attention to any complaints as to our service. We call a "trouble" man always on hand to help you out of any difficulty. Have up the Main Street office and your wants will be attended to.
