Home-Seekers Take Notice!

I HAVE THE FOLLOWING VALUABLE REAL ESTATE WHICH I WILL SELL AT PRIVATE SALE:

No. 1—Consists of 101 acres and buildings situated about half way between Salisbury and Delmar, at the intersection of the Delmar and the Dagoboro road, and about one mile from Williams siding on the N. Y., P.
& N. railroad. Price $6,000.

No. 2—Consists of 60 acres fronting on the Delmar road, which has lately been built under the Shoemaker law, and is directly south of the above-described property. This tract has no buildings and can be bought for $3,000.

No. 3—Consists of 75 acres fronting on same road, directly south of
No. 2. This is the old Leonard homestead. The dwelling is in good repair, and the outbuildings, with a little attention at slight cost, can be made to answer for several years. This is good land, as the crops now growing on the farm will show. The location is ideal and the price is $7,500.

No. 4—Is directly south of No. 3, fronting on the same road, and contains 60 acres. This is an especially desirable tract of land, but contains no buildings. The price is $3,500.

No. 5—Consists of a little over 75 acres, fronting on same road and directly south of No. 4. About 25 acres cleared, the balance in woodland, mostly cut over, but still containing a considerable amount of fire wood;
also contains a small dwelling in fairly good repair. Although a little rough in its present condition, this can be made a very valuable farm, the quality of the land being exceptionally good. The price is $3,250.

No. 6—Contains 3 acres adjoining the Salisbury Fair Grounds on the side and is opposite Sewell Richardson's. A very valuable lot. Price $1,000.

No. 7—Immediately adjoins No. 6 and contains 4 acres. Price $1,300.

No. 8—Lies west of No. 7 and contains 6 acres. Price $1,500.

No. 9—Consists of 15 acres, dwelling and outbuildings, and lies directly in front of Mr. James E. Lowe's new residence, on Quantico road, and is very valuable property. Price $4,350.

No. 10—Is west of No. 9, contains 5 acres and has already been sold to Mr. Woolford Johnson.

No. 11—Is west of No. 10, contains 10 acres and is a very desirable tract. Price $2,500.

No. 12—Is west of No. 11 and situated at the beginning of the Stone road leading to Quantico. This tract contains 10 acres and the price is $2,500.

No. 13—Is directly in front of Mr. Stanford Culver's, on the Quantico road, and contains 8 and 48-100ths acres. Price $1,800.

No. 14—Consists of 3 acres just outside the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying between South Division Street extended and the N. Y., P. &
N. railroad. Price $750.

No. 15—Consists of something over 3 acres immediately adjoining
No. 14. Price $750.

No. 16—Consists of 3 acres lying on the east side of South Division Street extended, about three-eighths of a mile from the corporate limits.
Price $600.

No. 17—Contains 10 acres and is immediately adjoining the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying along the N. Y., P. & N. railroad, and fronting on Quantico street, directly south of Salisbury and in section commonly known as "Hastingstown." This tract will be sold in acre lots at $300 each, or will sell the entire piece to one party. Price on application.

All of the above properties were originally bought for their exceptionally good location. Each and every one of the above-named parcels of land, except No. 17, are fronting on prominent highways that have already been improved under the specifications of the Shoemaker law, and are especially desirable to progressive parties wishing to build homes in good neighborhoods.

FALL COURT SESSION

Now Convened For This County—Cases On Hand And Disposed Of.

The September term of the Circuit Court for Wicomico County convened Monday morning at 10 o'clock with Associate Judge Tordvin on the bench.
Chief Judge Patterson and Associate Judge Jones arrived Monday night and took their places on the bench Tuesday morning.

The calling of the docket revealed
the following number of cases: Trials, 59; appearances, 26; appeals, 10;
recognitions, 7; Criminal continu-ances, 5; Criminal Appearances, 5.

After selecting the Grand Jury Judge Tordvin delivered a rather lengthy charge to the jurors, dwelling upon the importance of the work they were about to engage in, and impressing upon them the responsibilities resting upon them in ferretting out infractions of the law, especially violations of the local liquor law, na-merous complaints of which will come before the Grand Jury. After receiving the charge the jurors retired to their room.

The following gentlemen compose
the Grand Jury:

Foreman, Harry Dennis, Wilson
Wright, Andrew Kennerly, American
Taylor, John Taylor, Glen Catlin,
James R. Freney, Larry Morris, Thos.
H. Burton, Wm. M. Day, William H.
Gonsoway, Elan Haroun, Frank
Stewart, Wade H. Kennerly, Isaac D.
Elliot, Dewitt Rounds, Oregon N.
Bennett, Samuel J. Cooper, Henry
James Messick, Oscar Robertson,
Frank Robertson, F. Willing, Theodore Jones, John W. Windsor.

The Petit Jurors are as follows:
Edward L. Austin, Elijah W. Bethards, Edward T. Hearn, V. Frank Collier, Charles R. Howard, Eliza-bath Owens, Wm. Sidney Smith, Stanesbury W. Farlow, Ezekiah Shookley, F. A.
Grier, James E. Betts, John J.
Hitebush, J. L. Rounds, Stephen W.
Moore, C. W. Turner, Eliza P. Hearn,
Alfred Tordvin, Thomas S. Fooks,
John H. Sturgis, Zeppa Oliphant,
George R. Turner, George W. Venables, Jas. E. Brewington, Murray
Dennis of A., Frank D. Gordy.

Cases From Other Counties.

Two cases removed from Worcester County and two from Somerset are on the trial docket.

Charles A. Babcock has brought suit for trespass against James J.
Jones, claiming $2,000 damages. The narrative that Jones went upon the lands of Babcock and out and hauled away timber in large quantities. Melvin Handy, of Pocomoke City and J.
L. Bailey, of Salisbury, will appear for plaintiff; Ellerswood, Freney and Wallas for defendant.

Isaac Saperstein sued Annie Goodman for goods sold defendant, the claim being $349.00. Jno. W. Staton will represent the plaintiff; and A. P.
Barnes the defendant.

The two cases from Somerset are similar to the Marine Bank of Ori-sfield case which was tried here last March Term. The Bank is plaintiff in one and defendant in the other,
and large sums of money are involved. In one case W. A. Sterling is suing the Bank; in the other case the Bank is suing J. E. Tull & Co. Miles and Stanford and T. S. Hodson are counsel in both cases.

There is also an attachment case involving the ownership of the piling mare Julia Marlowe, which figured prominently in the races at the Fair grounds this year.

Suit Against Railroad.

R. E. Lynch, administrator of Edward T. West has brought suit against the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad Company for $20,000 damages for the loss of the life of Engineer West in May 1909, in a railroad wreck at Fruitland. West was engineer of a north bound express which was thrown from the track by side, striking a freight train which was pulling out from a siding just as the express had passed Fruitland Station, running at the rate of 50 miles an hour. The engineer of the express was thrown from the track and Engineer West was killed under the engine and instantly killed. Ellerswood, Freney and Wallas are counsel for plaintiff; Miles and Stanford for defendants.

Cases Disposed Of.

Monday—No. 15. Trials. N. P.

Brook. No. 31. Resumed and on trial at time of going to press.

SALISBURY POSSIBILITIES

As Seen By A Baltimore Sun Writer—Views
The Town.

In the round of improvements now going on in Salisbury it is interesting to note the views of a stranger as expressed in a recent issue of the evening Sun of Baltimore, who says:
"So great is the demand for land in Salisbury that the people now are making it to supply the demand and at present are as busy as ants adding 400 acres of valuable property to the ground in the heart of the city."

On this achievement 400 acres may be manufactured in some other section and 4,000 in still another location. The possibilities are boundless.
Capital and labor alike are turning in this direction and Salisbury is growing like the proverbial mushroom. Factories are springing up on all sides, the banks are bulging with deposits and real estate is piling up treasure on earth for its owners and everybody is smiling. From a modest little village the town has developed into a city of nearly 8,000 persons, and its growth has been substantial as well as rapid.

Pond As Factory Site.

So, with the centre of the city, covered with brick and stone buildings, several citizens last winter took counsel together to provide more accommodation with every convenience for manufacturers and shippers, and their eyes turned toward Humphreys' pond.
Pretty pond it was until the dam broke, and then the beauty tricked out with the waters, leaving an unsightly waste and ake maldorons.

"Just the place for factory sites," confided Eliza E. Twilley to William M. Cooper and Henry B. Freney opined likewise.

So, with F. L. Wallis, the trio got their heads together and decided to utilize the barren bottom. Further than this, they picked up waste property here and there, chiefly in the rear of the Courthouse and from that point down to the Wicomico river, until they held nearly half a hundred acres. And the visitor from the out-lands smiled in superior pity, while the residents of the town awaited interesting developments, serene in the confidence that their friends would make good.

Capital Of $300,000.

For a time the proposition languished, while Mr. Twilley helped his colleagues in the House of Delegates to pass the anti monopoly bills and other good legislation. Three hundred thousand dollars had been subscribed as capital for the undertaking, and all was in readiness for its return from Annapolis. And coincidentally with his return came "doings". Two monster dredges floated the river and an army of laborers appeared on the scene; then Mr. Twilley blew the go-ahead whistle.

By Aid Of The Tide.

First and foremost two scows were floated under a bridge and barred propion, up a ditch to the scene of action. The tide rose and the barges and bridge rose with it; the dredges went up the stream and as the tide receded
the barges settled also and deposited the bridge upon its piers, to the fraction of a hair's breadth. The entire operation was performed on one turn of the tide.

Thus, about the middle of April,
the digging of a branch of the Wi-comico river was commenced, the earth being utilized for filling in the bottom of the old pond and the adjacent lowlands. Inch by inch the filling grew, as thousands of cubic yards of earth were thrown over the area and coincidentally thousands of dollars of concrete wealth were added to the prosperity of Salisbury. And throughout the summer the work was
hundred barren acres have been reclaimed and soon will be covered with factories and freight houses.

At the same time moreover, a waterway has been dug, nine feet deep at low tide and of ample width for the maneuvering of vessels tying up to the wharves. Into this will come steamers and sailboats and transportation by both land and water will be provided.

Besides the factories contemplated
the members of the Salisbury Realty Company expect the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad to erect a great terminal freight station on the land, to which will be run ample tracks and switch accommodations. Of the 46 acres, 27 lie above the old dam and 19 below it, and to both sections will be added more ground as fast as the company can pick up.

This is only one of Salisbury's enterprises; there are scores of others.

Do you use an atomizer in treating Nasal Catarrh? If so you will appreciate Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, the quickest and surest remedy for this disease. In all curative properties it is identical with the solid Cream Balm, which is so famous and so successful in overcoming Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the head. There is relief in the first dash of spray upon the heated sensitive air passages. All tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 26 Walden St., New York.

PREPARING TO GO EAST

People In That Section Of County Taking Notice And Getting Busy.

The people on the east side of the county are waking up to the fact that they are behind their neighbors on the west side in the matter of getting improved roads and are now hustling for some improvements. Through the efforts of Messrs. William M.
Cooper and "Willie" P. Ward, the Commissioner representing Parsons district, and the assistance of Commissioner Wesley D. Truitt, a great amount of work is now being done on the Parsonsburg road, and the Commissioners have started the work of grading and straightening the route of the State road to be built from Salisbury to Pocomoke; but the people on the east side are going to make a fight before the commission to endeavor to get it to change its plans and order the Pocomoke road built next. The Princess Anne road seems to have the best chance for the reason that it is the policy of the State Road Commission to get one main highway completed from the lower end of the State to Baltimore. This will be in favor of the building of the road to Princess Anne next, where it will connect up the road which is being built from Crisfield to Princess Anne.
The Pocomoke people point out the fact, however, that they are isolated and need the road built through their section much more than the people on the Princess Anne road need theirs.
It is the purpose of Mr. E. G. Davis and several citizens from Pittsville
to take the matter up with the State Road Commission and endeavor to convince the commission that their case is the most urgent one.

The County Commissioners decided that as the road would have to be graded and straightened anyway they would do some work on the road which would improve it while the question was being settled. The Pow-ellville road is certainly one of the worst in the county, and it is hoped the people out that way will not have long to wait for something better.

Mr. M. L. Robertson Elected

Mayor of Alabama Town.

Mr. M. L. Robertson, son of Mr.
Robert G. Robertson, Esq., assistant Treasurer of Wicomico County, was elected Mayor of Cullman, Alabama, last week. Mr. Robertson is one of the prominent citizens of Cullman, and has been a resident of that city
for several years. The Cullman Democrat, speaking of the election said
Mr. Robertson won in a close contest over his opponent by a majority of sixteen votes. It speaks of Mr. Robertson as follows:

"Mr. Robertson is cashier of the Parker Banking and Trust Company and is a man admired for his sterling worth and keen sense of justice. He will make a good Mayor and the interest of the city could not have fallen into more competent hands. He is in a position to know the needs of the town, and his ability as a thorough business man fits and qualifies him for the duties of the honorable position.
Under the administration of Mr.
Robertson the people of Cullman may look forward with pride to an able,
wise and conservative administration of the affairs of the city."

CHERTERTOWN CATCHES

Disastrous Fire Burns Residences And Business Block In Centre.

Fire wiped out an entire block of buildings in the central part of Chertertown Monday night, involving a loss of more than $100,000. The rapid spread of the flames and the prevalence of a high wind made the efforts of the local fire department of no avail and assistance from Wilmington, Del., was asked.

The fire was under control at 11 o'clock. A half dozen small houses occupied by negroes, in the rear of the burned block, were destroyed.

A number of men connected with Robins' circus gave valuable assistance in fighting the fire. One of them was seriously injured. He was knocked from a roof and his arm was broken.

The fire started in Davis and Sat-terfield's blacksmith shop at 7 P. M., and in a short time the block, extending from the Voeshell House corner to the Bordley building, and from High to Cannon Streets, was in ruins. The principal buildings destroyed were the following:

Davis and Satterfield's blacksmith shop.

Adams Express Company's office.

W. L. Fowler's paper hanging shop.

A. W. Kirby's marble works.

W. A. Burke's shoemaking shop.

John H. Vandergriff's barber shop and residence.

The Thomas S. Bordley Building.

J. W. Loud's residence and restaurant.

Vassant & Newsome's men furnishing store.

M. A. Toulson's drug store.

J. W. Bradley's residence.

James H. Shuster's shoe store.

Melshire & Hodgkin's grocery store.

H. Stepling's tailor shop.

A. W. Garman's grocery store.

Diamond State Telephone Company building.

Robert Moffit's butcher shop and residence.

W. P. Newnam's music store.

William Maul's confectionery store
and residence.

Most of the buildings burned were of frame construction. The entire town was thrown into great excitement and the streets adjacent to the burned block were crowded.

TO TRY MRS. HUDSON

Tuesday—Unwritten Law To Figure In Salisbury But Not Much.

The Grand Jury this week brought in an indictment for murder in the first degree against Elizabeth Anne Hudson, the woman who shot and killed her husband in the office of State's Attorney Joseph Bailey here a few weeks ago.

Mr. V. Calvin Trice, the woman's counsel, was here Wednesday of this week, and was in conference with the judge and State's Attorney Bailey, and it was agreed that the case will be called for trial on Tuesday next. It will be the first case called on Tuesday, but in the event of a case having been on trial and unfinished on the preceding day and extending over Tuesday a delay may ensue, but this is not likely.

It is expected that Mr. Trice will make a vigorous defense, as his reputation as a criminal lawyer has preceded him here. He has not divulged the nature of the defense. It is likely it will be the "unwritten law." This idea is not receiving much attention and it is expected that the judges will eliminate any such defense
as having no legal existence, and it is not likely that it will have much of a hearing on the case.

INJURED AIDING INJURED

Breaks Wrist Trying To Assist Neighbor In Hospital.

While driving through a newly tilled field on his farm a few miles from Delmar on Wednesday, Mr. Daniel H.
O'Neal was thrown from his dashboard and seriously injured. The dashboard ran on a high stump of a tree, throwing Mr. O'Neal on another stump. He was carried home and it was found necessary to take him to the hospital at Salisbury, several ribs and his hip being broken. He also suffered internal injuries.

Gardner L. Hastings ran for his automobile, and while cranking the machine his hand slipped from the handle, which flew back and broke his wrist.
Another machine was then proceeded and both Mr. Hastings and Mr. O'Neal were brought to the hospital.

Edward Palmer was also severely injured the same morning by being thrown from a dashboard on his farm near Delmar.

NECESSITY FOR MILLENNIUMBy REV. T. C. RUSSELL
Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Respecting two matters there can be no question:

1. That the early church thoroughly believed in a millennial kingdom, hoped for it, prayed for it—"Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in Heaven."

2. It is equally certain that today the doctrine of the millennium is tabooed as "out of date"—out of harmony with the views of the higher critics and evolutionists, who are filling practically all the chairs in our colleges and the majority of the pulpits of Christendom.

The present day concept of the Church of Christ is that God planted it amongst men as leaven in a batch of dough with the intent that it should propagate itself until the entire mass would be leavened.

The two views are so radically opposite that none should confuse them in their minds. If one is right, the other is wrong. If one is Scriptural, the other is unscriptural. The safe, the proper, the right course is to go back and take up afresh the doctrine of the millennium—the doctrine that the faithful of the church now being tried and tested will constitute the glorious Kingdom of God's dear Son after their change from earthly to spirit conditions in the "First Resurrection" (1 Corinthians, 15:42-44).

"Christian people have been fooling themselves long enough!" Yes, it is as absolutely irrational to think of converting the world, as it is unscriptural to believe that God ever gave us that impossible commission. The United States census reports show that there are twice as many heathens today as there were a century ago. The world heathens carries to many a very wrong impression. Many noble-hearted Christians have gone as missionaries to the heathen wholly unprepared for what they met—intelligent reasoning ability, etc. They found that the heathen were full of questions, logical questions, too, which they as Christians had never thought of, and which they were wholly unprepared to answer. Comparatively few of the missionaries are able to hold their own in argument with intelligent people in India, China and Japan. There is no danger of their converting these people. There is a more danger of their losing their own faith in the Bible, because of their misapprehension of some of its teachings—respecting the mission of the church, the hope of the church and the hope of the world!

Missionaries are thus handicapped! Full of commendable zeal they leave our shores to tell the heathen that their forefathers have gone to eternal torment and that they are going there, too, unless they accept Christ. It is a rude awakening to be asked where hell is? and why God should have condemned them and their forefathers to such a horrible eternity? and how this could be true and yet he be a God of pity, compassion, love? The heathen ask, Why the different denominations—the different theories of the terms of salvation—by water, by election, by free grace, by joining the church, etc. The missionary, wholly unable to answer the adult native, gathers children about him, starts a school and does all he is able, perhaps, to justify his presence in a foreign land—helping the sick and doing many other acts of kindness which are very commendable, whether from a religious or humanitarian standpoint.

Next let us note that the millennium itself is an absolute necessity for the world, according to the statistics of the world-wide. Many college professors and D. D.'s are inclined to speak glibly of the second coming of Christ being far in the future—"50,000 years yet," say some. But evidently these learned gentlemen have not used their educational advantages in connection with such statements. Any school boy can figure up what the population of the earth would be 1,000 years from now, taking the present population as per the census at sixteen hundred million and the ratio of increase as shown by the census reports at 5 per cent. in ten years. The total would show 3,375,325,000,000 population for the year 2900 A. D.—more than 2,000 for each person now living.

What would humanity do if the earth were crowded to that extent? Where would the necessary food, fuel and clothing be found? Computing all the tillable portion of the earth at twenty-five million square miles or sixteen billion acres would give but one acre for the support of 210 people, or less than five square yards each. At the close of a second such period, 390 A. D., at the same rate, there would be ten persons for each square foot of standing room. In other words they would stand 15 deep on each other's heads. What shall we think of the wisdom that tells us that the millennium is 50,000 years off? The answer is found in Isaiah's prophecy (29:14).

Are we asked how the millennium if at once introduced would avert the difficulties of the first statement, 210 people for each acre of the habitable earth? We reply that the Scriptures clearly intimate that the rapid increase of our race is associated with man's fallen condition; as our Creator declared to Mother Eve after her disobedience: "I will greatly multiply thy sorrows and thy conception." (Genesis 3:16).

MOST BE WATCHED

Little Things Which Make Great Differences in the Way a Dress, Hat, or Wrap Looks.

In dress, as in other things, the importance of the attention to little things is essential. If this be given, the big effect will take care of itself. A gown, hat or wrap can be raised from a plane of mediocrity to that of distinction by the introduction of little details of ornamentation that are decidedly successful in the attainment of that end, yet are within the reach of most fingers.

A hat that in itself is the duplicate of hundreds of others can be treated to a peculiar binding or an unusual adjustment of ornaments. The binding, by the way, offers wide field for differentiation from the usual flat velvet facing. Fringe in silk or linen forms is distinctive. If used as an edging for the turned-down rim, silk or velvet can be pulled or shirred over the edge, while a rose quilling is the newest trimming for that part of the hat.

In dress the details are extremely important. "What is the use of bothering about these little things?" many home dressmakers protest. It is just this attention to the details that the French have so thoroughly mastered that stamp a model as good or indifferent.

Little platings that are for the most part hidden, applications of tiny buttons or narrow braid, hidden bands of color under lace and the wonderful attention to hooks, loops and buttons at all fastenings are the factors that produce a successful whole.

Last of all, let there be paid a careful attention to the accessories with which woman adorns herself. With a blue dress wear blue pins and rings. With a red dress use the jewelry that best harmonizes with the shade. Black and white are more friendly to the jewel casket, but the rule of one color scheme is the best to be observed.

PRETTY TRIFLES IN MUSLIN

Round Pin Cushions, Dainty Dutch Caps for the Babies, Bias Corset Covers, Etc.

A round pin cushion of cross-barred muslin for the summer home is made with small bars and a wreath of pink flowers and green leaves embroidered in the center of the top. The cover is outlined with shallow scallopes in white mercerized cotton.

Just above the scallop is a row of oblong double eyelets worked in white. The under portion of cover has no embroidery. It is cut a trifle larger than the top, so that the scallop stands a little below as a second edge.

The cushion is laced with pink ribbon. Eyelets and scallopes may be done in a tone of the embroidery.

Dutch caps for babies are also made of this muslin. The front is turned back for three inches, and the edge finished with buttonholed scallop in white mercerized cotton. The crown is gathered to stand out at back in peasant fashion.

There is no trimming, but small rosettes of pink satin ribbon at lower front corners and soft mull ties hem-stitched across ends.

Bias corset covers of barred muslin reaching to waist, and edged at top with a row of German Val lace and two rows of insertion, are dainty and popular.

WORTH COPYING.

Original design for dull green crepe de chine, trimmed with bands and tiny buttons of satin. The underdress is of satin. The black hat is trimmed with white lilies and white foliage.

The General Tendency.
What's the use of singing me
Dat old "get busy" song
When nearly everything I see
Is better'n' alone?
De breeze dat blows de butterfly,
De birds a-singin' strong,
De clouds up yonder in de sky
Is better'n' alone.
De bee plums up a bunch o' sweet,
Den say: "Ting-a-ling-a-ling"
In de air de bee's work complete
An' better'n' alone.
De candle trimm' his note so high,
De moon an' stars—den say den't hold any—Dee's better'n' alone.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have been afflicted with indigestion, have been cured by it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia, constipation, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally as heat is caused by a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience soreness of stomach, belching of gas and gasping, flatulence, bloated sensation, yawning, pain in the pit of the stomach, heart-burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headache, dizziness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. But what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia" tablets, "physic," etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peptic is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A. B. C.

Our Guarantee

On your dyspepsia today and get a dollar back. After you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and we will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to one in a family. The large bottle contains 30 times as much as the fifty cent bottle. Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of W. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XIX.

MARGARET UNVANQUISHED.

HERE followed weeks of pain and anxiety in the great Haggleton mansion in Fifth avenue. Meantime Philip was passing through a moral as well as a physical crisis. In his weakness and suffering, in the long restless nights when his mind wandered in incoherent mutterings, in his days of increasing strength and courage, in every moment of wakefulness or half wakefulness, there was present before him, vaguely or distinctly, this one thought, that a sudden and tremendous responsibility had been placed upon him. What course should he decide upon? Here were dreams of his eager youth in the way of amazing realization.

And this stern, worldly man, dreading by thousands and millions the great lord of taskmasters in whose hands lay all power over tolling multitudes—here was, this richest man in America, Philip's own father, ready and eager to please him with untold benefactions, to do good instead of evil, to make amends for the past, as he had vowed in tender, broken words at that tortured bedside while he waited and hoped and possibly prayed (if Haggleton could pray) that his son's life might be spared him.

He would tear down "lung block," and he would put aside several millions for immediate steps toward solving the problem and saving millions more for miscellaneous charities in which his son might be interested. In short, Philip would have at least $10,000,000 at his disposal in a campaign of practical reform. Ten million dollars!

Margaret had nursed him with a sort of passionate intensity.

Philip assumed that the catastrophe had wiped out the past, that the obstacle which had risen between them had been leveled by it. Her evasive answers when he spoke of their coming marriage worried him a little, but her professional assertion that for the present his mind must be set first of all upon his recovery reassured him in a measure.

Her mind was fully made up. No, she could not bring herself to marry the son of a man who had destroyed and in a way disgraced her father.

She loved Philip, loved him in spite of this hateful relationship. She would have married him joyfully as Philip Ames, a man of the people; she would have married him in poverty, in obscurity, in sickness, in anything except his present state.

Her relations with the old millionaire were difficult. He spoke to her as little as possible. Yet it was unavoidable that time and again they should stand side by side watching over the patient when the fever rose and his chances of recovery seemed doubtful.

It was then that they listened together to his delirious mutterings in which his love for her, his admiration and affection for him, his reverence for his mother's memory, his perplexity over the wrong committed, were intermingled.

She began to like Haggleton, to admire the unvarying readiness of resource, the determination and efficiency that always were at his service in the sickroom, as they had been in the mans of men and in Moran's tenement.

Haggleton was fighting his final battle. He had conquered Philip, Gentle, Joe Caffrey, Jenny, Moran even, repentant in his cell awaiting trial. Now he was seeking to conquer Margaret.

Gentle had long since surrendered to the enemy, gone over to his camp, bag and baggage, his almsman already, marveling every day at the way Haggleton had of making every one of his preliminary gifts to the poor yield its hundred per cent of benefit. Jenny had been provided for. Haggleton had seen to this too.

And the bakery trust, forgotten now, flourished. It was selling better bread and cheaper bread to the whole east side. Joe Caffrey had found himself there. He was in temporary charge of the offices in Moran's transformed rooms. "If you want to make a lazy man house give him a job bossing somebody else," Haggleton had said laughingly to Gentle.

Thus three weeks passed, weeks of diminishing anxiety, Philip had been declared out of danger and was to make his first appearance at the dinner table that night. Margaret's service as a nurse had come to an end. She must make her final choice.

Haggleton left her alone with him, in his usual mental attitude of preparedness for whatever might happen, hoping that he had won her for Philip and Philip for himself, yet doubtful and ready to do battle to the very last.

Haggleton talked with Gentle in the library. He turned to the large picture of his wife and their infant son over the mantelpiece and looked at it.

"You have recovered your son, Mr. Haggleton," Gentle said, with reassuring conviction. "Philip answered the call of his blood, as you said he would. He loves you."

"Yes, he loves me. That's the great, precious fact—my boy loves me. But he knows this girl, too, and she won't change. I have watched her all these weeks while she has been nursing Philip. The doctor says that he owes his life to her devotion, but—no, she won't change; she can't forget."

"She can forgive."

"I doubt it, and I don't blame her. Like her, she has narrow ideas, but she holds to them hard. I'd rather have a person strongly wrong than weakly right."

"She will never leave Philip now," persisted Gentle.

"Suppose she makes Philip leave me?"

"Nothing is inconceivable, Mr. Gentle, when a good woman thinks that she is fighting a bad man. A conscientious woman has no scruples."

"At any rate, she must speak out soon."

A servant entered. "There's a person asking to see you, sir," he announced. "He says his name is Joe Caffrey. There's another person with him, a woman."

"It's Jenny," said Gentle in an undertone. "They want to plead for Moran. I guess. His case comes up next week."

"Show them both in."

"How was Moran when you last saw him in the Tombs?" asked the mill-lionaire.

"Sincerely sorry for what he did. When I told him what you have done for Jenny he broke down."

"I'll see that he is dealt with leniently. After all, his mad act was prompted by a father's love, like mine."

The servant opened the door again and admitted Joe Caffrey, followed timidly by Jenny.

Our Few Real Needs.
As civilization and culture make people more prosperous and more comfortable they are prone to forget how few and simple their real needs are. We need sleep, but not much of it, and most of us are asleep exactly when we ought most of all to be awake. We need food, but it is not necessary that food should be cunningly disguised with a thousand devices to tickle the jaded and surfeited palate, for the main trouble is that we eat too much and too little. We need clothes to wear, but the one suit of fur that lasts certain animals all their lives is so beautiful that some men spend their whole time in search of it. We need heaven and the sense of a higher power directing our lives and our destinies, but we spend most of our time refuting and denying the possibility of anything bigger or better than we are. We need the love of friends, and therefore it is the more strange that we should spend our time not in improving ourselves, but in decorating our bodies, filling them with food and bustling to about the earth in search of new (troubled) sensations.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Poor Fish.
This melancholy tragedy happened in Holland. A fisherman who caught a salt herring placed the fish in a tub full of salt water. Every day he took out some of the salt water and replaced it with fresh. In a few days he had the herring living in fresh water. But, not content at stopping here, he decided to try another plan. Every day he took a little water out of the tub until none was left, and the herring was still alive. The next course was walking. In a month or so the herring had developed feet and learned to walk, and he accompanied his master on his journeys. One day as they were crossing over a narrow bridge the herring caught sight of the water. Reminiscences of former days flashed through his head, and he resolved to try the water. But while still gazing at it he fell in, and before his master could aid him he was drowned.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Verdict.
The lecture was over, and the gentleman who did the talking strained his ears as he followed the audience out of the hall to gather in, so far as he could, what sort of an impression he had made. As he drew near to the doorway two old gentlemen who were making their way out just ahead of him rendered a verdict. "Well, Bankside," said one of them, "what did you think of it?" "I've heard worse," said Bankside. "Did you think it was at all illuminating?" asked the other. "In an old fashioned way, yes," replied the venerable Bankside. "I don't quite catch your point," said the questioner. "Why, it was illuminating, but it struck me as having more gas than electricity about it," explained the critic.—Judge.

The First Telegraph Line.
After the formal opening of the first telegraph line built for commercial purposes between Washington and Baltimore Professor Morse and his associates offered to sell the invention to the United States government for $100,000, but the price was considered too high. The government had appropriated $30,000 toward the construction of the Washington-Baltimore line, but after a short period of operation the Postmaster General, to whom President Polk had referred the matter, wrote, "Although the invention is an agent vastly superior to any other devised by the genius of man, yet the operation between Washington and Baltimore has not satisfied me that under any rate of postage that can be adopted its revenues can be made to cover its expenditures."

The Onion.
The onion has been so long in cultivation that its original form is not definitely known. It is said to have been known to the Egyptians, and there is about the taste no suggestion that cultivation or anything else could ever make them grateful to the human palate. In all probability the onion is a native of western Asia and adjacent parts of Africa, since it is mentioned in old Egyptian writings and the Pentateuch.

Tart Repartees.
Of Sir William Harcourt, Disraeli once said the three essential qualifications of success in politics—a due person, a loud voice and uprightness. "To this when it was repeated to him Harcourt rejoined, 'Leaving out the first two qualifications it might as well be applied to 'Dixie' himself.'"

An Autobiography.
Mrs. Chugwater-Joshua, what is an autobiography? Mr. Chugwater—"It's the story of a man's life written as he thinks it ought to be. Couldn't you tell that from the word itself?—Chicago Tribune.

A Guess.
Byrd attended a successful night of hand performance last night. Byrd—Really? Byrd—Yes, I lent a conjurer a counterfeit half dollar, and he gave me back a good one.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Salisbury People Should Know How To Read And Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment. Passages are frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is constant, day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent. The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay. Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache. Salisbury evidence proves this statement.

John H. Connolly, 805 E. Isabella Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and know of nothing better for curing kidney complaint. When in Virginia I was obliged to drink impure water and my kidneys became disordered, causing my back to grow very weak. At that time I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I was given prompt relief. I recently procured a supply of this remedy at White & Leonard's Drug Store to have on hand in case of need."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Forced To Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are forced to leave their homes and go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calumet, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It is surely the King of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It is positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup—all Throat and Lung troubles. 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all Druggists.

Reaching The Top

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

To represent the First Congressional District of Maryland in the Sixty-second Congress of the United States:

J. HARRY COVINGTON,
of Talbot County.

PEOPLE DETERMINED TO RULE.

Several years ago when the movement against Boss rule was first started in a number of States, it was freely prophesied that the movement would die down as all similar movements had in the past; but instead of fulfilling the promises of the politically wise the movement has spread and spread until today there is hardly a State in the Union where the fight is not going on. What is more encouraging to those who look upon the control of the bosses as a menace to our government, this fight against ring rule has in most instances been successful. Sometimes this fight takes place between members of the same political family, and wherever this has been a straight fight between a man who receives his strength from the people themselves, and not from sneakery, corruption or machine manipulation, the bosses have been defeated at every point.

In Maine where the party machinery held firm control of the Republican party, those who were dissatisfied with the party's management supported the Democratic ticket, with the gratifying result of an overwhelming victory at the polls for the Democrats.
Much as we would like to look upon this victory as one for the principles of the grand old Democratic party,
we are convinced that the management of the opposite party, both in National and State affairs was more responsible for the tremendous change of sentiment in the State than any change in regard to the tariff or other matters of party principle.

The biggest asset the Democratic party has today is the boss rule existing within the Republican party.
In some states the Republicans have fought out the fight within their own ranks and it will take the actual count of the votes cast next November to decide whether or not this will satisfy the voters to such an extent as to keep the party in power. One of the most notable victories won over the bosses was that won last week by Col. Roosevelt over the old guard in New York State. Although his opponents claim that while making his fight against the bosses he himself is the biggest boss in the country. This may be true but his strength is not obtained by corruption, trickery or use of machine manipulation, but comes from the voters themselves who have confidence in his ability, sincerity and honesty. Such "bossism" takes the form of leadership and is not objectionable nor dangerous. Leaders we must have, want and need, but the mere boss who depends upon patronage and trickery and party machinery to keep him in power, should go, and they are going one by one.

As the Republican party has long been in control in a majority of the States, it but follows that they are feeling the fight against bossism much more than is the Democratic party, and it also follows that the Democrats are going to receive the advantage when it comes to casting the votes this fall. Where the reformers, or progressives have failed to capture the State many will show their resentment against the party by voting the Democratic ticket, while where the old guards have gone to defeat and perhaps political oblivion, they and their followers are apt to do the same thing. In either case the Democrats are sure to profit, and from the present outlook will ride into power on the wave of dissatisfaction and party split. The next House of Representatives will be controlled in all probability by the Democrats, and if they show their cards well they will be able to hold their vantage grounds until after the next presidential election.

While there seems to be no reason to doubt the success of the party in winning the First Congressional District, one is well for the voters to take no chances. If it was advisable for those who believe in the principles of Democracy to vote for a Democrat who is not a boss, it is equally as advisable to vote for a Democrat who is not a boss.

special importance that Mr. Covin-ton should receive their support this year when the chances are in favor of his party, and when if elected, he will be in a position to render much more real service than in his previous term. His services during his term as congressman have been of such character that the First District can point with pride to them, and his ability is such that with his party in control he will be able to make even a better record. His advice and help will be badly needed in the councils of the party at Washington and the Democrats will be very lax in their duty, if they do not turn out and do every thing they can to make his election certain.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Nancy S. Wimbrow was born
October 3, 1825, and died September 3, 1910. She leaves to mourn her loss seven children; Moses, John, Samuel, Priscilla, Greenberry, Willis and Charles. Two brothers, David Tubbs, of Denton and Michael Tubbs, of Wilmington, two sisters, Mrs. Mary Wilson, of Denton, and Mrs. Tabitha Sammons, of Georgetown, twenty seven grand children. Her funeral was held in Wango church on September 5th. Rev. H. B. Kelo of Galestown officiating, assisted by Rev. H. B. Warren, pastor of Wango church. Interment in the church yard.

The pall bearers were her six grand sons, Algie, Laurence, Edgar, Wallace, Raymond and Reese Wimbrow.
Earth has lost its look of gladness
Heaven seems to us more bright,
Since the spirit of our dear one Took her happy homeward flight.

She is gone but not forgotten,
Sister Wimbrow, kind and true,
To that home of many mansions
Far above the starry blue.

And we long to cross that river
Long to rest upon that shore
There to see and know and love her,
With the Saviour evermore.

Written in behalf of Sister Nancy
S. Wimbrow by Rev. H. B. Warren.

Cambridge Wants A Steam Engine.

Mr. Edward L. Bramble, chief of the Cambridge Fire Department, will suggest to the Town Commissioners of Cambridge the purchase of a steam fire engine, the engine now in use being badly worn and not considered worth rebuilding. Mr. Bramble will also recommend to the Commissioners that four good men be secured to sleep
at the engine house in order to expeditely getting out the apparatus in case of fire. It is estimated that the men can be secured for $40 a month, the amount paid one police officer.

Holloway—Lynch Wedding.

Mr. Charles Holloway and Miss Flora Lynch, both of this city, were married Tuesday morning at 7.15 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E.
Lynch. Rev. W. B. Graham, D. D. performed the ceremony. The happy couple left on the 7.27 train for a tour to Baltimore and Washington. The groom is connected with the Salisbury Hardware Company, and is a well known young business man of Salisbury. Upon their return they will reside in their new home on North Division Street.

Epworth League Officers.

Following are the newly elected officers of Trinity Epworth League: President, A. Wilson Mattox; first vice-president, Benjamin L. Turner; second vice-president, Miss Cora Abbott; third vice-president, Miss Mary Orew; fourth vice-president, Harold Loggess; secretary, Wm. Houston;
treasurer, Charles Bethke; organist, Miss Elsie Smith. There will be a public installation of these officers at the evening service next Sunday. The pastor will make a special address, and a fine musical program will be rendered.

Go By The Name.

The way to buy paint is to go by the name. There is a name never seen on sham paint or weak paint or short measure paint; Devco. There are a hundred different names in paint. Some are sham; some weak;
some short measure; and some all three. If there is another such paint as Devco lead and zinc we don't know it; There are a few fairly good paints; a few only one Devco. A gallon Devco is worth a gallon and a half of these few.

Mr. Aaron Hixline, of Philadelphia,
N. J., always used 15 gallons of mixed paint for his house. Last spring he bought 15 gallons of Devco and had 4 gallons left. L. W. Ganby Co.

City Council Proceedings.

The City Council was in session Monday evening and transacted the following business:

Building permits were granted as follows: To E. Dale Adkins, garage on Church Street; to B. W. B. Adkins, storehouse, warehouse and blacksmith shop on Willow Street.

W. F. Calloway was before the Council with a request to have the hill on Brown Street graded down to a level.

Mayor Bounds, Councilmen Smith,
Bennett and Sheppard, with Surveyor
P. S. Shookley, were named a committee to meet on Pennsylvania Avenue Wednesday afternoon, September 28th to look over said avenue in reference to establishing a grade on the same.

The clerk was instructed to write to the American Fire Engine Co., of Seneca Falls, N. Y., requesting them to send an experienced man here at once to overhaul one of the city's fire engines.

Mayor Bounds appointed Irvin Russell assistant policeman to succeed Mr.
Long, resigned. The Council confirmed the appointment promptly but we understand Mr. Russell refused to qualify on account of the small salary paid.

PREACHING TO IMPRISONED SPIRITS

"By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison" (1 Peter iii, 19).

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 25.—A Convention of Bible Students is in session in this city. Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, as President of the International Bible Students Association, addressed the Students twice today. His audiences were large and intelligent. We report one of his addresses from the text foregoing. He said:—

Much speculation has been aroused by our text. Some have claimed that it signifies that Christ, after his death on the cross and before his resurrection, went to some place where human spirits are imprisoned in some kind of purgatory and there preached to them. Not only is the Catholic theory in line with this suggestion, but many Protestants hold that the dead may be prayed for and thus be assisted to escape from eternal torment. All of this is wrong, as we shall show—quite contrary to the teachings of our text when viewed in the light of its context.

Those preached to were not human beings, but spirit beings—not men, but angels. This is clearly stated in verse 20, which tells us when these angels were imprisoned and why. They were imprisoned in the days of Noah at the time of the flood. They were imprisoned for disobedience. So we read (verse 19), "He preached unto spirits in prison, which sometime were disobedient, when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparer." Turning back to the Genesis account of that time we find quite a complete record or history of these disobedient spirits. In the Sixth Chapter, verses 1-5.

Angels Preferred to Be Humans. Some time after father Adam's disobedience and his expulsion from Eden—the holy angels were permitted to visit humanity with a view to assisting men back to harmony with God. This doctrine was permitted for two reasons: First, had such an opportunity not been furnished, the angels might in the conclusion of God's great Plan have been inclined to say, Yes, God accomplished human salvation, but in a very roundabout way and at very great cost and trouble. Had he given us an opportunity to mingle with humanity we might have had an uplifting influence upon the people and have accomplished their reconciliation to God.

God wished to forestall any such misunderstanding of the wisdom of the Plan which he had arranged and would, in due time, work out; secondly, the angels themselves never had come in contact with sin of any kind. Hence they never had been tested or tried in respect to their obedience and loyalty to the Creator. They were permitted to attempt the recovery of humanity—partly in order to test their own obedience and loyalty to God.

Our knowledge of spirit beings and the powers granted to them by the Almighty is limited to our observation of the Bible record. The angels who appeared as young men at our Lord's sepulchre and again at his ascension and who, as soon as they had accomplished the purpose of their visit, vanished, are illustrations.

We remember the account of how Abraham sat in the door of his tent and, Behold, three men came to him. He received them as men, entertained them at dinner and, we read, "They did eat and talked with Abraham." They had human powers though still spirit beings. When they dematerialized they vanished.

Genesis vi, 1-2, informs us that this privilege of dematerialization for the assistance of mankind was eventually misused by some of the angels as an opportunity for sinful intercourse with humanity. The time at which this began is not definitely stated. The expression, "When men began to multiply on the face of the earth," might safely be estimated at about a thousand years after Adam's creation and fall. This would leave a period of 655 years to the flood. It was approximately during that long period that the angelic sons of God, seeing the daughters of men, took to themselves for wives all that chose of the fair daughters of men. And they bare children to them. The same became mighty men which were of old men of renown—and giants. We remember that at that early day human life was much longer than now, and the flood was scarcely reached before a century and that few became fathers sooner; and when we remember also that the children of the angels are not mentioned as boys, but men, mighty men, renowned men, it gives the thought that the angels, without Divine permission, had really started to propagate a new race and that their progeny was much stronger than that of the poor, Adamic stock.

The disregard of Divine Law meant that the strength of these giants would be used selfishly and the licentious example of the angels had a demoralizing effect upon the children of Adam, as well as upon their own children. All this is stated and implied in the words, "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." What a terrible picture of the condition of things before the flood! But God was not astonished; for he had foreknown everything. Hence he had a great canopy of water in the sky which temporarily gave the earth an equable, temperate climate, but which he intended should fall upon the earth and cause the great flood in Noah's day. Hence at the appropriate time God gave instruction to Noah to prepare an ark for the saving of himself and his house. Noah and his family were the only members of Adam's race in all the earth who were not more or less contaminated by those angels. How wide must have been that influence when we read as an exceptional matter, "Now Noah (and his family) was perfect in his generation"—the disobedient angels had nothing whatever to do with generating them.

Fallen Angels Changed.

While the angels preferred to live as men in human bodies, they would not be overwhelmed like humanity in the flood, but merely dissolve, by dematerialization, their human bodies and be, as originally, spirit beings. Satan was the first sinner against the Divine government, in his endeavor to set up a separate empire and to have humanity for his subjects. Although God had full power to destroy Satan and the other disobedient angels, he has not exercised that power. Instead he merely isolated them from himself and the holy angels and imprisoned them, in the sense that he no longer permitted them to materialize, either as a serpent or as humanity for the tempting and injury of our race. In this sense they are imprisoned—restrained of liberty.

Now let us hear St. Peter's words respecting these angels who sinned. He says (1 Peter ii, 4), "God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment." The word tartarus here rendered "hell" in our Common Version, is found nowhere else in the Bible. It refers to our earth's atmosphere and to the fact that those fallen angels, called demons or devils, are "the power of the air." And Satan, who was originally an angel of much higher rank and nature, is their Prince, "The Prince of the power of the air," the Prince of demons. They are "cast down" in the sense of being treated ignominiously. They are "in chains of darkness," not in chains of iron. They can still go and come and be sources of temptation to humanity who are in a sinful attitude of mind. They are restrained in chains of darkness in the sense that whatever they do must be done in the dark—until their judgment time at the Great Day—at the beginning of Messiah's thousand-year day of the reign of righteousness.

Turn to St. Jude's Epistle. There we read (verse 6), "The angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in age lasting chains, under darkness, unto the Judgment of the Great Day." Their first estate in which they were created was the spirit or angelic condition. They left their own proper condition of living and nature, in violation of the Divine will, that they might live on a lower plane—live in sin; for the angels are sexless, though always referred to as masculine. And our Lord declares that those begotten of the holy Spirit, who during this age shall not be the resurrection of the dead, the "First Resurrection," will be "like unto the angels" in several respects—one of these being that they will neither marry nor be given in marriage, but be without sexual distinction.

In harmony with this note how spiritualists hold their seances, either in absolute darkness or in a very faint light. They claim now that the spirits are getting more and more powerful of materialization and that soon they will be able to materialize in broad day light and go about amongst humanity as members of the race. We do not question the power of God to restrain these fallen angels, these demons—his power to restrain them from materializing and thus doing great harm in the world. Nevertheless, we wonder if they will not be permitted by God to find some greater powers of materialization, contrary to the Divine decree, that their course in this matter may more particularly manifest to what extent some of them have changed and reformed and desire to be obedient, for instance, while others are still as opposed to God and righteousness as ever. There is room for the understanding of the state of mind of the apostle that the chains of darkness were to control them until the Great Day—not necessarily into that day—perhaps at its very beginning they may be permitted to gain certain liberties and do a certain amount of injury to humanity, to all who are not attentive to the Word of God, and who, therefore, will not know who these spirits are—that they are the fallen angels, the demons of the Bible.

"Wicked Spirits," "Lying Spirits."

These are the terms used in the Scriptures in describing the fallen angels, who from earliest days have attempted to deceive humanity—representing themselves as human beings who have died and who desire to communicate with their friends. And they attempt to do so through spirit mediums. This is their practice from of old. Their endeavor is to break down the human will and to more and more control it. The height of their ambition, and success is to fully dominate the human will, so that they may use the human body as their own flesh, as when they had power to materialize. Those who come fully under their control become demoralized, often several spirits gaining possession of the one personality and attempting to use the same brains and body. It is estimated that one-half of all who are in insane asylums are merely victims of spirit obsession. The great remedy against all this is the Truth of God's Word. Those who accept that cannot be deceived. But the masses of mankind are being deceived. The Scripture teaching is that when a man is dead he knows nothing, and will never know anything until the resurrection of the dead. Whoever knows this is fortified against all the deceptions of the evil spirits.

We are not claiming that all mediums are fraudulent. Some of them we know to be most sincere. A large number have been delivered from their awful position of acting as tools of Satan by the reading of our little pamphlet, "Proofs that Spiritism is Demonism."

Jesus Preached to These Spirits.

There are no human spirits to be preached to. Human beings are not spirit beings. The dead of humanity who have never heard of "the only name given under heaven or amongst men whereby we must be saved" will hear that name in God's due time—in the resurrection—during the thousand years of Messiah's reign when he, as the true Light, shall lighten every man that cometh into the world" (John i, 9).

But if Jesus died and in death knew not anything, how could he preach to the fallen angels? We answer that it is a common expression that "actions speak louder than words." The great actions or facts connected with our Lord's death and resurrection constituted a most wonderful sermon to the fallen angels. As they beheld the Redeemer's faithfulness to God, even unto death, even the death of the cross, and as they then beheld God's faithfulness to him in raising him from the dead to the highest nature—the divine nature—"far above angels and principalities and powers and every name that is named"—all this constituted a most wonderful sermon of love and loyalty, faith and obedience, etc. The sermon to them meant, How serious was our mistake in being disobedient to God in any particular. It meant also, May not God, who has thus gone to so much trouble for the redemption of fallen men, have in his heart also a place of mercy for us, should we repent? The Apostle intimates that these angels, with the exception of Satan, are yet to have a feeling or trial, for he assumes the Church that God purposes that we, as the Bride of Christ, shall not only be entrusted with the work of judging or giving trial to the world of mankind during the Millennium, but also that we shall judge angels—not the holy angels, for, of course, they need no judging on our part, but the fallen angels (1 Cor. vi, 3).

Quite possibly the hopes inspired by that great sermon preached by our Lord's resurrection to the spirit beings led some of those fallen angels to repentance. If so we may suppose that during the eighteen centuries since, they have suffered severely at the hands of the rebellious angels, who would be aroused to animosity by their reform.

The Scriptures seem to imply that "fallen angels," "wicked spirits," "lying spirits," "demons," will have much to do with bringing about the great "time of trouble" with which this Gospel Age will end, before the complete inauguration of Messiah's Empire and the binding of Satan (Revelation xii, 4). The intimation is that the trouble here will be short and sharp, as in the days of Noah. The declaration of the Apostle that these evil spirits will be in chains of darkness until the Judgment of the Great Day leaves room for the inference that when the Judgment of the Great Day begins, the chains of darkness will be broken. If, therefore, we have the right understanding of this matter, great events are near at hand. Spirit mediums are already declaring that the spirits tell them that they will soon be able to materialize in broad daylight. With the power to counterfeited and personate humanity what may this not mean in the way of deception mentioned by our Lord, who declares that it will be so strong that it would deceive even the "very elect" were they not specially protected and guided.

We remind you also of the great stride which Spiritism, Occultism and Psychic Science have made within the last few years. These now number amongst their friends and advocates some of the brightest scientific minds. One of these, Prof. James of Harvard College, recently, before dying, declared that he would speedily communicate with his friends. Already the newspapers tell us that he has begun to communicate, but the mediums claim that he has difficulty in operating through them, because of the great force and power of his intellect and that they must gradually become able to act as his mediums. From the Bible standpoint all this is a fraud—a deception—but not on the part of the mediums who are themselves deceived, but on the part of the fallen angels, who are thus tricking humanity.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Correct inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine, you should get Swamp-Root. It has the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

All Over the World.

When buying a Sewing Machine isn't it worth something to be sure that the one you get will last your lifetime—always ready for service every day in the year?
And isn't it also worth something to know that you have a machine that is recognized all over the world as being the most reliable of all Sewing Machines?

After you get a SINGER in your home then you realize its superior value. It may have cost a little more but the value is there.

UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Haskins never did care for Selmore anyway. At first he had disliked the fellow mildly on general principles,
but later he hated Selmore cordially, for a specific reason. Alice Clark was the reason.

When Selmore first saw Alice Clark and fell a victim Alice was in Haskins'
car. Though he did not realize it, Haskins had grown to consider her as belonging to his car quite as much as he did himself. He had glowed with a little proprietary pride when he detected the gleam of interest and admiration in Selmore's eyes, but he was not prepared for what followed.

Selmore had stopped by the car,
and after being introduced, had cheerfully asked for a lift to his destination,
and got it, occupying the entire time of transit in conversing with Alice quite as though Haskins were a hired chauffeur.

A week later, when Haskins called on Alice and found Selmore there, he learned through the conversation that Selmore had accidentally met her in a candy shop and had promptly asked to call. And he kept on calling.

Haskins tried to convince himself that had it been any one else on earth than Selmore he should not have cared. It was simply, he told himself, because he disliked Selmore
so. Alice certainly had a right to have as many callers as she chose, inasmuch as she was not engaged to himself. It was the first time the idea of being engaged to Alice had presented itself to him, and he thought about it a great deal after that, mainly because Selmore persisted in interfering so with his established routine.

He was especially upset one evening when, having made an engagement over the telephone to take Alice automobile, he called, only to find that Selmore had just arrived.

Out of politeness he asked Selmore
to come along, and to his rage Sel-more brazenly accepted. Haskins had quite counted on that ride as a pleasant one, for it was a springlike evening. There was to have been a spin over the boulevards, supper at some quiet place and then home in the moonlight—and who could tell what might happen? Now, here was Sel-more, fastened on him for the whole evening.

He tried to make himself believe that Alice had looked a trifle disappointed when Selmore accepted, yet he bitterly felt it could not be so, for Selmore was looking especially handsome in his new spring suit.

The ride progressed in an electric silence on Haskins' part and with fugent conversation on Selmore's. They had the spin and the supper, which was ashen in Haskins' mouth. Then they started home. On a downtown street corner the machine wheeled and stopped. Haskins took malicious delight in making Selmore descend and help him back to the car, the tracks. Then he investigated irrita-bly, for accidents were alien to his car.

As he delved amid the machinery Selmore sat aloft amiably talking to Alice. When at last Haskins had to crawl under the machine and lie flat on his back while he pounded the mechanism he knew how anarchists feel.

"Here, Haskins," Selmore called down finally, "can't you fix it? I should think you'd know your own car better."

"It's getting terribly late," said
Alice.

As Haskins plodded away to a telephone he seethed with hatred of Sel-more. After wrestling with the phone and finding he could get no help, Haskins phoned his home garage and then went back to the two in his car.
"They're sending a tow after me," he said. "You two can just catch the last suburban train if you hurry. It will relieve my mind if you'll take it, so that I'll know Miss Clark will get safely home."

"Splendid idea!" agreed Selmore, and leaped out. He reached up a helping hand to the girl in the back seat.

Maybe she had had too much of Sel-more, maybe she felt sorry for Haskins; maybe—
At any rate she never moved. She regarded Selmore coolly.

"I am not going to desert the car and let Mr. Haskins wait here all alone till goodness knows when!" she said, distinctly. "You hurry along and catch the train, Mr. Selmore! I shall wait and be towed in with Mr. Haskins!"

So Selmore had to go. As Haskins watched him vanish around the corner he was conscious that a great joy percolated throughout his system. He climbed out of the driver's seat and in beside Alice.

"Thank the latest!" he breathed.
"Now maybe while we're waiting I can have a chance to say a few things to you that I've been waiting to say!"

Left it to the boys.
Cheering for ancient Greeks, who never had paid heads, or ought never to have had them, the boy students of Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware made a bonfire of their hats the other night. Dancing around the fire they swore never to imperil the hair of their heads again. The girl students applauded the proceedings from a safe distance, but refused to join in the sacrifice. Burn their new spring hats?
Well, hardly.

His Experience.
Peckens, who had loved and won,
Once let this sentence fall:
"The better to have loved and lost,
Than never to have loved at all."

Rubbing it in.
Sapient—Yess, several years ago
I fell in love with a girl, but she rejected me, doncher know—made a wonderful fool of me.
Miss Knox—Now, that what I call a meanie chance. I've often wondered how it happened.

HOME-MADE HAIR ORNAMENT

The New Ones of Plaited Ribbon Are Inexpensive to Make But Costly to Buy.

Have you seen the new ornaments of plaited ribbon with a single embouchon as fastening or one at each end? These are expensive to buy, but may be easily made at only the cost of enough ribbon to go three times around the head and a small box of pearl or colored beads.

Cut the ribbon into three equal parts and fastening it at one end plait into a loose braid. Gauss or satin ribbon about two inches wide is the best choice. A novel effect is given by using two or three colors, preferably different tones of the same shade or soft pastel tints. A central strand of black is used with good results.

While caschuchas can be bought at small cost they may be made perhaps more cheaply by stringing beads of different sizes on a fine gilt or silver wire, then twisting it into coils or ovals to form a solid ornament. This may be made quite flat or the wires can be bent to have it moundlike in form.

For Traveling.
Large sewing cases for travelers are to be had in abundance, but have you seen the tiny affairs put up in boxes about the size and shape of a round stick of shaving soap?

These contain a tiny spool of white and black silk, a small pair of scissors, a silver thimble, and a tiny inner box filled with needles. The entire case can easily be slipped in a handbag and kept there for emergencies.

Trifles of Muehl.
A round pincushion of cross-barred muslin for the summer home is made with small bars and a wreath of pink flowers and green leaves embroidered in the center of the top. The cover is outlined with shallow scallops in white mercerized cotton.

Cheese Balls.
Beat the whites of two eggs stiff.
Have ready one-half cupful of finely grated cheese. Mix cheese and beaten eggs quickly, mold into balls with floured hands, and fry in hot fat.
Serve while hot.

Buick! AND NOTHING BUT Buick!

From the INDIANAPOLIS MOTOR SPEEDWAY, July 2d:

"Cut this out and put it in your scrap book: Unless the Buick repeats itself, you will never see such a two days' racing record again.
No car ever has, no car except the Buick ever can, give such an astounding exhibition of efficiency. Indianapolis stands amazed tonight at the most impressive clean-sweep ever recorded on either side of the ocean."

BUILDER ATTEMPTS

Suicide—Harvey Beach, Well Known Contractor Drinks Laudanum.

Harvey Beach, a well known contractor and builder of Delmar, aged 50 years, son of the late Isaac Beach, at tempted suicide Tuesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. P. Ellis, with whom he resided. Mrs. Ellis went to Georgetown in the early morning and on her return in the evening found several bottles which had contained laudanum and horse medicine, also a note from her brother informing her that she would find his dead body in the barn loft. The letter further directed her as to its disposition and the funeral arrangements.

A search was immediately made which resulted in the finding of Beach in the loft in an unconscious condition.

He was brought to the Peninsula General Hospital, this city, where it is believed that he will live. Mr. Beach is single, and no reason for his act can be assigned.

A FACT

ABOUT THE "BLUES"

What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered liver.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

Tutt's Pills

They control and regulate the LIVER. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

CHESTERTOWN TO BUILD

Less $100,000; Insurance $45—Several Firms Already in Temporary Quarters.

With several firms in temporary quarters and rebuilding talk spreading rapidly as the ruins cool, Chestertown is getting over its biggest fire. The loss is now placed at from $80,000, to $100,000. Insurance adjusters say the damage is offset by $45,000 that will soon be paid.

Half a dozen merchants are already in temporary quarters and are busy planning rebuilding.

The Vonbell House basement is now a drug store and other merchants are finding places to greet their patrons.

The Wilmington firemen arrived just as the local firemen had conquered and some think a bit too much credit was given the visitors. Not that what they did was not appreciated. Chestertown has an ample water supply and a fine fire company. The buildings were as dry as tinder, the wind was high and it was simply a case of circumstances, not poor fire fighting.

When the flames swept through Main Street to Bradley's big brick store it was seen the firemen had a chance. They concentrated there and made a brilliant fight, and they won. Just as they saw victory, the Wilmington companies arrived, put long hoses in the river and drenched out what was left. They were needed earlier, but during the long drawn out run from Wilmington the local men fought the fire battle of their lives, with excellent generalship.

The three companies from Wilmington put themselves in for great gratitude and lasting thanks are due them.

ATHOL.

Miss Katie Evans entertained a few of her friends Monday evening at her home. Those present were Misses Mary Elliott, Mattie Truitt, Etha Calloway, Daisy Hurley, Mary Green, Lillian Wright, Bertie Taylor, Dora Majors, Lillian Justice, of Virginia, Edith Everman, Louise Lewis, Ida Phillips, Ethel Donard, Messrs. Clarence Evans, Claude Wright, Randolph Green, Marion Cordery, Lewis Phillips, Wilson Robertson, George Paradise of Virginia. Various games were indulged in and all reported a pleasant evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Graham were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Evans Sunday.

Mr. Harry Truitt, of Dorchester spent Sunday with Mr. Joseph Truitt of this place.

Mr. Samuel Wilson was the guest of Mr. J. S. Hurley Sunday.

Mr. Greenbury Green was buried last Saturday morning. He leaves a widow and two sons to mourn his loss.

The roads are getting dusty for the want of rain.

Miss Mary Elliott spent Monday at Mardela.

The tomato crops will soon be over.

The young ladies are very fond of fishing this fine weather.

The little child of Mr. John Seabreeze was buried Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Letitia Elliott is on the sick list this week.

MARDELA SPRINGS.

The M. P. Sunday School held a Rally Day last Sunday. Rev. J. McBrown, of Union Bridge, Md., led in the opening prayer. Dr. Walter R. Graham, of Salisbury, gave a good talk on Sunday School work. Special music was furnished by a male quartette, consisting of Messrs. Fred and Dale Atkins, Edgar Laws and William Sheppard, all of Salisbury.

Misses Mary Phillips, Mittie English and Mr. Mark Cooper were the guests of Mrs. Don Johnson Saturday and Sunday.

The Mardela Concert Band played for a festival at Spring Grove, Saturday evening.

Miss Mattie Bayley spent Sunday with her cousin, Miss Virgie Wilson.

Mrs. Mable Freemy, of Pittsville, has been spending a few weeks with her mother, Mrs. Unita Elderdisse.

Mrs. Ernest Kennerly, of Pocomoke City, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gillis.

There is more Ostarth in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Ostarth to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Ostarth Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

His Domestic Lady

By Annie Hinrichsen

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Because she had heard her brother and his friends laughing over Morton Kenneth's complaint that there were no simple, domestic women and that for this reason he intended to spend his life as a lonely bachelor, she wrote to him.

She was thirteen. "Dear Sir: I understand that you are a primal man. That is, in spite of the glaring footlights before which you have danced along the busy way that leads to wealth and fame; in spite of luxurious, magnificently gowned society queens who would pervert your tastes and set up in your soul a false standard of womanhood, you still feel within you the longing for the simple life when expenses are small and a wife is subservient—and a good cook."

"I will be such a wife to you. I am an old-fashioned woman. That is, I have a domestic soul. I believe that a woman's true vocation is to be her husband's handmaiden; to serve him, cook for him and help him pay in installments for a nice cottage with a little garden in which he can hoe when weary with life's bustle and the close, hot air of a downtown office."

"Will you not let me hear from you in regard to this matter at your earliest convenience, and oblige."

"Yours very respectfully,
"DOROTHEA HILLWOOD."

To this she replied: "Dear Madam: Your favor received. I wish to express to you my appreciation of your kindness and my sincerest thanks for the honor you would confer upon me. But I feel that I have no right to unite my worldly life with one as pure and innocent and unselfish as yours."

"Again thanking you, I remain,
"Yours very truly,
"MORTON KENNETH."

Ten years later she met him. But he did not remember. He had been so busy becoming a great statesman

"You Will Vote for It."

that proposals from unknown young women had no place in his mind. He was a member of the state legislature, leader of his faction in the house and member of half a dozen important committees.

For a month he was very devoted to her. He went to see her every day in her apartments in a frivolous and popular hotel, and told her how intensely he disliked women who lived in hotels, instead of in homes of their own. He sent her violets because, he said, they were symbolical of the type of woman he most admired—sweet and modest.

The legislature convened and he was compelled to go to the state capital for the winter session.

A week later, Mrs. Bonde Boyde, grandest of all the grand dames whose social and club activities fill the society pages, went to the capital and with her she took her niece, Dorothea. The Woman's Progressive league had prepared a bill granting women certain municipal privileges, and this bill was to be introduced in the house. Mrs. Bonde Boyde was president of the league.

She and her niece reached the capital late in the afternoon and went to an historic, old hotel.

After dinner Morton Kenneth came to her in the hotel drawing room. He sat down on a slim, squeaky, little chair so close to her that his shoes touched her new, rose-colored broadcloth.

"What are you doing here?" he asked gloomily.

"I am here because I am interested in certain measures pending before the house."

"What? Lobbying? You? Dorothea—His tone was exactly what it would have been if he had caught her in the act of hanging her grand-mother."

"House bill 158," she went on tranquilly.

"Woman's suffrage? You? Dorothea—"

"I desire you to support that bill," she said, as if she were asking him to call the waiter. "It will be read in the house tomorrow and referred to a committee of which you are a member. You will see that it is reported favorably out of the committee and its next reading in the house you will make a speech—a good, strong speech—in favor of it. You will vote for it every vote you control."

Then the smolder of the young man's wrath became a conflagration intended to destroy all her assertive and progressive tendencies. For two hours she listened to remonstrance, expostulations and downright refusal.

The next day she heard from the gallery of the house the bill read and referred to the committee on resolutions. Mr. Kenneth bowed to her, from a distance, in the house and in the hotel dining room.

For several days he treated her with a high and mighty disdain which should have reduced her to the clinging vine state. But it did not.

The chairman of the committee on resolutions gave a theater party one evening and after it a supper at the hotel. He was a young man and very charming. Morton Kenneth was not invited to the party.

When the chairman put Mrs. Bonde Boyde and her niece into the elevator about midnight, Mr. Kenneth was sitting in the corridor on a seat opposite the elevator staring into space and busily engaged in not looking at them. A few minutes later a maid brought Mrs. Hillwood a letter.

"Dear Dorothea: I am tired of foolishness. Drop this ridiculous woman's rights business and marry me. You are frittering away a sweet, womanly soul in an unprofitable, insincere life. Every woman should be in a home of her own with a husband to take care of her. Won't you take the home and the husband I offer you? Give up this chase after fade, this artificial way of living. I love you. I want you for my own. Won't you marry me, dear?"

"MORTON."

"Dear Sir: Your favor received. I wish to express to you my appreciation of your kindness and my sincerest thanks for the honor you would confer upon me. But I feel that I have no right to unite my worldly life with one as pure and innocent and unselfish as yours."

"Again thanking you, I remain,
"Yours very truly,
"DOROTHEA HILLWOOD."

Next morning the telephone awakened her.

"Were you that kid?"

"What kid?"

"The kid that proposed to me years ago."

"Silence."

"Say, Dorothea, are you still there?"

"Yes."

"Will you come down to the parlor? I want to see you."

"No. I'm busy."

"But I have something to tell you. The resolutions committee met this morning and your bill was reported out favorably."

"Mr. Gray promised me it should be."

"Gray didn't have a thing to do with it. I did it myself. And this afternoon by special order, it is to be read again in the house and I shall make a speech in favor of it."

"Do you believe in the bill, Morton?"

"I believe in you."

"I want you to believe in the bill. Do you?"

"Wouldn't support it if I didn't, even for you."

"Do you believe in women's rights?"

Silence.

"Morton, do you believe in women's equal rights with men?"

"Yes."

"Do you believe in the broader life for women, the same privileges that men have, political, business and social—especially social?"

"Oh, Dorothea."

"Do you?"

"Yes."

"I'll be down. And, Morton—are you still there—I'll walk over to the state house with you, if you want me. Hush—don't tell me over the phone that you love me. Yes, I do want to hear you say it—of course I want to know how much you love me. Tell me when I come down."

Edwards' Economy of Time.

A hundred and fifty years ago Jonathan Edwards was the leading theologian of New England. With his doctrine and his preaching we have nothing to do. His habits of industry, however, furnish the men and women of this generation a lesson which they will do well to study until they have learned it by heart and can repeat it in their lives.

This trait of the noted divine is described in the pages of "Heavenly Heretics," a recent book by Rev. Lyman P. Powell.

No one was ever more careful in the use of time. He lived by rule, rising before five, spending 13 hours in his study every day, reading the Bible and every book of worth he could lay hands on, catching every thought that came to mind and putting it on paper.

His habit of note-taking became with passing years so inveterate that even while he was at his daily exercise on horseback he was wont to jot down on scraps of paper stray ideas, pin each scrap to his coat, and come galloping home with papers fluttering to the breeze from shoulders, breast and coat tails.—Youth's Companion.

Substitute Suggested.

"I say, me good man," queried Algeron Perceval Montmorency as he entered the drug emporium, "have you—aw—a good hair, wenevah that I could use on me mustache, docher know?"

"Yes," replied the druggist, "but we have something still better for your purpose. It is called 'Blank's Hair Originator.'"

Wise Little Mice.

Educated mice are not altogether uncommon about the capitol and its office buildings, but Congressman Rodenberg of Illinois says that those that inhabit his room are more learned than any others. "You know my word is good," said Rodenberg, indicating that the story he was about to tell was a bit fishy. "Well, when my secretary and I were looking over the seeds that came to us from the agricultural department, we were on the verge of doing some tall cussing at the mice that gnawed a hole in the corner of nearly every package. Now, you know, the large envelopes contain several smaller seed packages, and I want to tell you our wrath gave place to admiration when, after opening several of the large packages, we found that none of the small packages in any of them had been touched except the packages of lettuce seed. 'I'll wager something pretty that there isn't another member of congress who has mice in his room that are trained as well as that.'—Washington Correspondence St. Louis Star.

Home-Seekers Take Notice!

SELL AT PRIVATE SALE:

- No. 1—Consists of 101 acres and buildings situated about half way between Salisbury and Delmar, at the intersection of the Delmar and the Dagoboro road, and about one mile from Williams siding on the N. Y., P. & N. railroad. Price $6,000.
- No. 2—Consists of 60 acres fronting on the Delmar road, which has lately been built under the Shoemaker law, and is directly south of the above-described property. This tract has no buildings and can be bought for $3,000.
- No. 3—Consists of 75 acres fronting on same road, directly south of No. 2. This is the old Leonard homestead. The dwelling is in good repair, and the outbuildings, with a little attention at slight cost, can be made to answer for several years. This is good land, as the crops now growing on the farm will show. The location is ideal and the price is $7,500.
- No. 4—Is directly south of No. 3, fronting on the same road, and contains 60 acres. This is an especially desirable tract of land, but contains no buildings. The price is $3,500.
- No. 5—Consists of a little over 75 acres, fronting on same road and directly south of No. 4. About 25 acres cleared, the balance in woodland, mostly cut over, but still containing a considerable amount of fire wood; also contains a small dwelling in fairly good repair. Although a little rough in its present condition, this can be made a very valuable farm, the quality of the land being exceptionally good. The price is $3,250.
- No. 6—Contains 3 acres adjoining the Salisbury Fair Grounds on the side and is opposite Sewell Richardson's. A very valuable lot. Price $1,200.
- No. 7—Immediately adjoins No. 6 and contains 41 acres. Price $1,200.
- No. 8—Lies west of No. 7 and contains 6 acres. Price $1,500.
- No. 9—Consists of 15 acres, dwelling and outbuildings, and lies directly in front of Mr. James E. Lowe's new residence, on Quantico road, and is very valuable property. Price $4,350.
- No. 10—Is west of No. 9, contains 5 acres and has already been sold to Mr. Woodford Johnson.
- No. 11—Is west of No. 10, contains 10 acres and is a very desirable tract. Price $2,500.
- No. 12—Is west of No. 11 and situated at the beginning of the Stone road leading to Quantico. This tract contains 10 acres and the price is $2,500.
- No. 13—Is directly in front of Mr. Stanford Culver's, on the Quantico road, and contains 8 and 48-100ths acres. Price $1,800.
- No. 14—Consists of 3 acres just outside the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying between South Division Street extended and the N. Y., P. & N. railroad. Price $750.
- No. 15—Consists of something over 3 acres immediately adjoining No. 14. Price $750.
- No. 16—Consists of 3 acres lying on the east side of South Division Street extended, about three-eighths of a mile from the corporate limits. Price $800.
- No. 17—Contains 10 acres and is immediately adjoining the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying along the N. Y., P. & N. railroad, and fronting on "Hastingstown." This tract will be sold in acre lots at $300 each, or will sell the entire piece to one party. Price on application.

All of the above properties were originally bought for their exceptionally good location. Each and every one of the above-named parcels of land, except No. 17, are fronting on prominent highways that have already been improved under the specifications of the Shoemaker law, and are especially desirable to progressive parties wishing to build homes in good neighborhoods.

COLORED FOLK GATHER

In Salisbury—Have Parade, Musical Band and General Celebration.

Thursday was a big day in Salisbury among our colored friends and thousands turned out to the celebration of Emancipation Day. It is estimated that more than 3000 members of the colored race were on the Fair grounds during the day. The day's exercises commenced by a mass parade, with floats and three bands in the procession and made quite a nice appearance as they marched 3000 strong through the streets of Salisbury. The exercises proper took place at the grounds in the afternoon when several prominent speakers addressed the meeting. Solomon T. Huston acted as chairman of the meeting.

Hon. W. B. Miller, representing Mayor Bonds gave the address of welcome and took occasion to give some very good advice in the course of his remarks. Dr. O'Connell followed and in an eloquent address pleaded with the men of his race to make themselves better and work out their own destiny.

Mr. Cummings, a prominent lawyer of Baltimore City and one of the ablest men of his race in the country made an earnest plea for progress and morality. The carrying of razors and pistols was condemned, and the men who did this were called the biggest cowards of today and not entitled to the respect of any man white or black. He strongly scored the propensity of the negro to move around and advised them to stay in one place, make a home and establish a reputation for honesty and sobriety, to become a part of the community in which they live and help by their own conduct to make it better for all. Shiftlessness and lawlessness was condemned in the strongest terms, and the colored man was advised to hand over to justice all members of his race who was not a law abiding citizen, and not to await the action of the authorities. They were told to respect, love and protect the ladies of their race, keep them from insult and wrong.

To live on good terms with the white race, and that if they wanted to rise in intelligent and morality they should adopt and live the high ideals of a race which had made such marked progress. Before they could expect the respect of the world they must establish and live up to high ideals of their own. The progress of the race since the abolition of slavery was reviewed and the race highly complimented on the progress made.

A very high ideal was put before them as to their civic duty and they were told to strive to make their race better and more fitted for the great responsibility of citizenship.

The audience gave close attention to the speakers and throughout was an orderly and well-behaved crowd. Those who were at the head of the movement followed: Solomon T. Huston, Chairman; Howard Pinkett, Corresponding Secretary; Emory Birkhead, Financial Secretary; W. G. Langston, Treasurer; J. F. Steward, Gen. Manager.

The Cambridge, St. Michael, Marcella and Princess Anne colored bands were present. A series of base ball games were played during the day between Princess Anne, Quantico and Salisbury teams.

BAY STEAMER ON FIRE

New York, Of N. Y., P. and N. Railway Damaged $100,000—The Tug Delmar Also Ablaze.

Fire Sunday burned away practically all of the superstructure of the handsome bay steamer New York, of the New York Philadelphia and Norfolk Railway. The vessel was lying along side of a wharf of the Norfolk Marine Railway, where she had been a week for repairs.

A half dozen fire fighting tugs hastened to the New York, the flames from which brilliantly lighted up the harbor. It was not long before 30 streams of water were being poured on the burning craft and the flames were checked, although several hours elapsed before the fire, which had gotten below decks, could be extinguished. Oil and other combustibles in the hold furnished excellent food for the flames.

The Norfolk Navy Yard lies just across the river from the marine railway and three of the naval tugs—the Mohawk, the Potomac and the Hercules—were among those belonging to various railroads to pour water on the flames.

The tug Delmar, also of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railway, lay alongside the New York, and the flames from the steamer rapidly spread to that vessel, first attacking Mohawk, Captain Downing, was the first to get to the scene and Captain Downing, seeing the peril of the Delmar, had his crew make a line fast to the vessel and hauled her out into the river. He poured a stream of water on the tug as it was towed along. The damage to the Delmar was slight.

The New York took fire amidships. Watchman Thomas Forrest is unable to account for the blaze which caused damage of upward of $100,000.

Laws—Truit.

A wedding of interest to Salisbury took place Monday at midnight when Miss Margaret Maud Truit, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sampson Truit became the bride of Mr. Victor Hartwell Laws, the son of the Hon. and Mrs. W. L. Laws.

The ceremony was quietly performed at the bride's home on E. Ohio St., by Elder T. M. Poulson. Only a few of the nearest relatives were present, those present being: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Perdue, Mrs. Della Truit, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Truit and children, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Powell, Mr. L. L. Laws, Miss Edna Laws, Mrs. Lida Riley, Elder T. M. Poulson.

The bride wore a traveling suit of tulle with hat and gloves to match. After the wedding supper the couple left on the train for a trip to the northern cities and Niagara Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Laws will make their home in Salisbury where Mr. Laws will enter business.

Big Plant A Fixture.

W. W. Seward, representing the Ridgely Fruit Growers Association, returned from Chicago, Tuesday where he completed negotiations for the return of Armour and Co., to Ridgely.

The Western packers will erect a $25,000 plant on the W. N. Cannon farm, five acres of which have been donated to the concern by the citizens of Ridgely and the surrounding country, by subscription. Armour and Co. last year rented the Alliance Preserving Company's plant during the strawberry season. So successful were they in the canning of strawberries for favoring purposes that next year they will not only handle strawberries, but also blackberries, raspberries, peaches and other fruits, running at least four months in the year and employing about 800 people.

Dryest Summer On Record

The dryest summer on record has passed into history. It would seem to be impossible to produce a good corn crop in such a summer, and it may be set down as a certainty that the yield this year is to be short, therefore the grain is likely to be high. As the corn supply has a direct influence on the pork product, it may be as safely predicted that hog meat will continue to be quite expensive, in sympathy with the beef products, which will be controlled largely by the trusts.

We learn from the weather bureau that the total rainfall for the astronomical summer which began on June 21 and ended September 23, is the lowest. Records show that just 4.69 inches fell during that period. The nearest approach to this dry spell was last year, when only 5.70 inches fell during the summer.

The total of 4.69 inches for this summer, however, is misleading. On the first day of September there was a local downpour, during which 1.62 ins. fell. While certain sections were flooded, the dust was not even laid in other sections. Deducting this cloudburst, that did good to neither crops nor the water supply systems, and a real total rainfall for the summer is had of only 3.06 inches.

Another noted dry summer besides this and last year, was in 1895, when a total rainfall of 6.99 inches was laid. The heaviest rainfall for any summer on record was in 1905, when there was a total of 21.33 inches.

In the matter of temperature, the summer was lightly above normal. Strange to say, the hottest day of the summer was had in the last days of summer, a temperature of 96 being registered on September 6. The hottest day in August was on the 3rd, when 90 degrees was had. In July 96 degrees were registered on the 10th, and in June, 96 degrees on the 3rd.

MRS. HUDSON'S TRIAL

Marked Interest And A Crowded Court Room Hears Evidence.

The case of Mrs. Hudson, on the charge of killing her husband, Tobias Hudson, occupied the time of the Court this week. The prosecution completed their case on Wednesday. This side was practically the same as was given in the report of the case, and a short review of the chief events leading up to the shooting.

According to the testimony, Mrs. Hudson came to Salisbury in search of her husband, found that he was living with another woman here. Had a warrant issued for his arrest on the charge of desertion. Hudson being held on same under a $250 bail. After the preliminary hearing the parties met at State's Attorney Bailey's office and after going over the matter decided to make it up. Hudson agreeing to give his wife $250 and break off connection with the other woman. Mrs. Hudson withdrew her charge of desertion. The money was to be paid the next day. That evening Hudson was seen again with the other woman, and made no attempt to see his wife. She went down to a hardware store and purchased a revolver, then asked the Chief of Police to take her over to the house where he was staying. As he was busy at the time and could not do it, she went up to State's Attorney Bailey's office and under the pretense of wanting to talk further with her husband, got him to send for him to come up. On Hudson's arrival they went into a private room, and soon after she shot him. This, in the main, was the testimony of the prosecution.

The defence put in a plea of insanity and have been trying to establish that fact. Her past history was gone into with the idea of proving that her mind was weak. A number of her neighbors and associates were put on the stand to substantiate this, among those were her former husband, who divorced her before the marriage to Hudson. His testimony, as well as the others, was to the effect that they regarded her as being wrong in the head. A number of experts were put on the stand and hypothetical questions asked in regard to her insanity under the conditions named. Dr. Clark, of Springfield, testified to the effect that he believed her insane at the time the act was committed. The case had just gone to the jury when we went to press.

State's Attorney Bailey has Geo W. Bell assisting him while on the defence, Calvin V. Trice, of Cambridge, has associated with him Ellegood, Freeny and Waller, Arthur Trader and Samuel R. Douglas.

The general opinion is that the verdict will be manslaughter, or not guilty, on the grounds of insanity.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have been troubled with indigestion, have been sorry for it when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to secure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results from the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (no-oiled), diarrhoea, headache, dizziness or chronic tired feeling, you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. But what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all. Kodol is a perfect digester. It not only digests the food, but it also digests the food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always work a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a bottle of Kodol. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, "I have not been able to secure it," we will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, it is our guarantee to you. Kodol is a perfect digester. It not only digests the food, but it also digests the food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of H. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XX.

THE BATTLE WON.

JOE was gorgeously attired, according to his own ideas. He wore a brown suit with large and loud checks—green and yellow and red—a blue striped shirt, a green knotted silk tie with a flashing scarlet and a green tuxedo hat, which for the moment he held respectfully in his hand.

Jenny was neatly dressed in black. Haggleton was again struck by her possibilities, her beauty.

"Gee," exclaimed Joe involuntarily, "this is a swell shop!"

"Good evening, Jenny," said Haggleton kindly. "How are you, Joe?"

"I'm all right, Mr. Haggleton," Mr. Haggleton, I mean, Sir, Mr. Haggleton. Jenny has something to say to you. It is important. That's why we have come. Soon's she told me I had an intuition."

The millionaire turned to the girl. "Well, Jenny?"

His voice was very gentle. "You have been very kind to me, Mr. Haggleton," she began diffidently, "and—and I would rather tell you alone."

"Come along, Joe," said Haggleton. "You know, Mr. Haggleton," began Jenny. "I told you after my husband was killed he left me with a little baby and no money. So I had to go out as a nurse. Then I sent my child—my beautiful baby girl—to a baby farm, and she died. They always do. I was all alone and so lonely in that beautiful house, and he—Mr. Lawrence—"

"Yes, Jenny. You told me."

"I can prove it all," she announced triumphantly. "I have his letters here."

Haggleton had often thought of this skeleton in the family closet of the unsuspecting Margaret when she had betrayed more plainly than usually her youthful contempt for the weakness and stumblings of poor human nature. But of these letters he had known nothing. So there were incriminating documents in the house of Lawrence, as well as in that of Haggleton! Well, well!

Jenny held out the letters. "Do you want them?"

He saw her meaning plainly now. "Why should I take these letters?" he asked.

"I know more than you think, Mr. Haggleton. I watched that girl, Miss Lawrence. She looks down on you, and—these letters would help."

"She would be unhappy."

"Why shouldn't she be unhappy? She makes others unhappy. I am unhappy."

"Jenny," he continued gravely, "you can't get happiness for yourself by taking it away from somebody else. You don't want to hurt Phil?"

"No, no; indeed not."

"Then forget all this. Make a clean start."

"Yes, you have given me a chance. Now her better nature won."

"Yes, I see," she said with frank contradiction. "It's wrong. Joe suggested it. I will destroy the letters. No! You destroy them!"

She laid the package on the table before him.

"All right," he said. "I will burn them."

He led her to the door.

"Good night, Jenny, and good luck to you. You will find Joe at the end of the hall and can go out with him."

"If you don't mind, sir," she stammered, "tell Phil that I wish him luck. Good night!"

She was gone.

Haggleton returned to the table, took up the package of letters and looked at it passively. Here was his last trump! He knew it. Haggleton stirred impatiently. Why could not Margaret be a little reasonable? Why did wisdom come so late in life? These letters might prove to her that she had no right to judge and condemn Philip's father. But, then, it would make her unhappy, and should Philip ever know—

Haggleton weighed the package in his hands, pondering. Gradually a light came into his eyes. He had found the way!

Philip should not suffer. It was his father, who would renounce.

He had learned to do his loving himself.

He approached the open fire in the huge fireplace, but ere he could thrust into its glow the compromising letters Margaret and Gentle entered. He hastily placed them on the mantelpiece and faced around interrogatively.

"Margaret was in street costume."

"Good evening," said Haggleton. "Are you going out, Miss Lawrence?"

"Miss Lawrence is leaving us," said Gentle. His voice was griefed and disapproving.

"You are not going to marry Philip?"

"No. You and he are one flesh, as you said yourself. I have no right to come between you."

"But you love him still?"

"I love him more."

"This will be a great shock to Philip. It may set back his recovery."

The girl saw his intent. Her face grew cold and obstinate.

"He is quite well," she answered in her professional tone, "and—he is a man."

"Listen to me."

"Margaret steeled herself."

"There is nothing you can say," she announced. "I cannot change."

Haggleton took up the package of letters.

"No," he said half aloud, as if to himself, "you cannot change."

She loved Philip, oh, yes, she reflected, but she loved his graveance more and most of all her conception of her own superior righteousness.

He stood there near the fire. He looked tired and old, but in his eyes shone a great light.

Margaret was determined to end this painful interview.

"I cannot live under this roof," she announced with an air of finality—"under the same roof with the man who ruined my father."

"It is bad business ruining another person," he asked Haggleton in a curious tone of voice.

He looked again at the bundle in his hands, then turned and threw it into the fire, watching the flames leap up around it.

Margaret watched him anxiously. What were those papers? Why did he destroy them now?

"Well," announced the millionaire, lifting his bowed head and squaring his drooping shoulders, "I will get my son. You renounce him; you do not even offer him his choice. But, as you say, he is a man."

He went to the door. With his hand on the knob he turned and added:

"Whatever happens, I want you to know that I have had more happiness

the girl in bewilderment.

Haggleton was smiling broadly.

"Well, what is it to be?" he asked. "You and the have been studying the problem for years, you now have all the money you want and the first thing you do is to condemn each other's plans?"

And here he received the greatest tribute that had ever been paid him in his wonderful career. These three reformers, so sure of themselves, turned to him with implicit reliance upon his talent for organization, his genius for leadership and without a doubt of his ability to solve their problem for them asked, as if with one voice:

"What would you do?"

The millionaire went to the library table, unlocked one of its drawers, took from it a bundle of blue prints and typewritten papers and spread them out before them.

"It is the easiest way in the world," he began deliberately. "There's only one sound, practical, common sense way to help the poor of New York City with $10,000,000 without demoralizing them, and this is the way—"

"What would you do?"

They were seated at the table now, Margaret between Philip and his father, her head leaning against the shoulder of the one, her hand holding that of the other. Gentle, at Haggleton's right, was beaming with contentment.

They were examining plans, reading memoranda, commenting, discussing, asking questions and receiving prompt, clear replies.

Haggleton was happy.

He had taught many lessons, but learned one far greater than all those he had given.

He had learned to do his loving himself.

The battle was won.

THE END.

Forced To Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. It is surely the King of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. It is positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Croup—all Throat and Lung troubles. 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all Druggists.

Reaching The Top

In any calling of life demands a vigorous body and a keen brain. Without health there is no success. But Electric Bitters is the greatest Health Builder the world has ever known. It compels perfect action of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, purifies and enriches the blood, tones and invigorates the whole system and enables you to stand the wear and tear of your daily work. "After months of suffering from Kidney Trouble," writes W. M. Sherman, of Canby, Me., "three bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." 50c at all Druggists.

It's The World's Best.

No one has ever made a salve, ointment or balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, For Sore Eyes, Cold Sores, Chapped Hands, or Sprains it's the supreme. Infallible for Piles. Only 25c at all Druggists.

Dyspepsia is our national ailment. Bardoock Blood Bitters is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans. "A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side. In a short time a lump came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg. I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged, but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs. R. R. Huxy, 713 Mineral Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

THE EMANCIPATION MEET.

The meeting held here on Thursday of this week, is a credit to the colored race, for despite the large crowd present, there was no evidence of roughness or rowdiness, but on the contrary they were a quiet, well-behaved people.
Some believe in condemning the negro he is right or wrong, though we are glad to say the number is getting fewer every day, but it is far better to give him credit when right.
The meeting of Thursday should bear nothing but good fruit. The speakers gave good advice and if followed the race will in the course of time occupy a much higher position among the citizens of this country than at present. Men of their own race pointed out their weaknesses and faults and urged them to remedy them. The carrying of razors and pistols was strongly condemned and the man who did so was told that he was a coward and unfit to associate with the decent men of his race. To obtain respect from others they were counselled to show themselves entitled to respect.
Immorality and shiftlessness were strongly condemned, and they were urged to raise their ideals to a higher moral plane. There was not one word that would raise any feeling against the white man, but on the contrary they gave him full honor and credit and praise. On the whole the meeting was conducted on a high plane and we compliment them on its success.

BALTIMORE CITY'S POLICE.

People all over the State have been carefully following the developments in the police situation in Baltimore City. That there may be cause for an investigation has been made plain,
but the way in which the Governor has gone about the matter has not inspired a great deal of confidence in his motives. While one may be mistaken at this distance it looks like a pre-judged affair to get control for some reasons unknown of the police department of Baltimore City. The preliminary investigation, made ostensibly for the purpose of finding whether or not formal charges were to be made against the official conduct of the commissioners, looked too much like a staged farce, while the threat to use military force to seat his new appointees during the trial of the present incumbents, was to say the least ill advised and ill considered.
In view of the past incidents a verdict from Governor Crothers as to the guilt or innocence of the charged parties will lose most of its weight, for it is not believed that he is in a position to give an unbiased and unprejudiced verdict. Whether or not the police board needed an investigation
we are unable to say, but we believe that a mistake has been made in the methods used, and that under the circumstances the Governor will make a mistake if in the hearing of the charges he does not associate with him
some men of known independence, otherwise even if right his motive will be misconstrued and his decision questioned.

Overcome By Gas.

Mr. J. H. Butcher, an employee of the Home Gas Company, had a narrow escape from death by asphyxiation Tuesday morning. He was at work making some connections in the pipe crossing the Camden Bridge and in some manner inhaled a large quantity of gas. He fell to the ground, and for a time it was thought he was dead. Dr. G. W. Todd was hastily summoned and succeeded in restoring the man.

2,200 POUNDS OF CARP

Around Centerville—This Fish Story Has Six Witnesses And Names Are Given.

Notwithstanding the fact that fish have been scarce in the local waters for some time past, a report, which is vouched for by six persons who were eye witnesses, is being told around Centerville. Last Saturday while Prof. R. C. Godwin and Mr. Lambert
Ware were out fishing they noticed a great commotion in the cattails and shallow water, near an island, a short distance from where they were fishing with hook and line in the upper Chester River. They decided to investigate, and for curiosity placed a small seine where the water had been noticed to be stirred. They then went home and left the net in position and waited for the tide to lower before the net was drawn in. When the net was started for the shore it was noticed it was completely alive with fish.
Dr. A. E. Landers, Mr. John E. Hendrix and Mr. Harry Hartley, who had also been fishing with hook and line up the river a short distance, and noticing that their comrades were landing the seine, decided to investigate.
They then pulled up the stakes and rowed to where the fishermen were landing the seine. After the net had been landed, it was found that fish enough had been caught to load three batteaus. The fish were weighed and the aggregate weight amounted to 2,200 pounds of carp, ranging in weight from 8 to 30 pounds. This is the largest number of fish caught at one time in the waters of the Chester
River for some years past.

Zion Church News.

Zion Methodist Episcopal Church,
one of the appointments on Parsonsburg circuit will be re-opened next Sunday afternoon at 2.30 p. m., October 9th, and a series of revival meetings will commence at the evening service. Pastor Collins is expecting some minister to assist in the services of the day.

Much improvement has been made to this old historic church, both on the inside and out. Beautiful is the comment passed by all that have seen it.

To much praise cannot be given the decorator for his excellent work. Also the faithful service of the committee who had the work in hand, and the good ladies of the church last mentioned, but not least in importance by any means. Let's make next Sunday a real 'Home Coming,' Sunday to this church. Come and see for yourself. A royal welcome awaits you.

The second Quarterly Conference
this charge was held at Parsonsburg Monday afternoon at 1.30 p. m., October 3rd. Rev. G. P. Jones, District Superintendent in the chair and E.
W. Oliphant as secretary. Splendid reports for the quarter were given of the different departments of the church work. Forty six precious souls reported saved during the quarter. Good congregations reported at all the services. The financial reports for the quarter were excellent. The District Superintendent being paid in advance and pastor Collins nearly in full. Total receipts for the quarter $233.35.

The pastor, Rev. E. H. Collins is happy in his work and is untiring in his efforts to advance the work of the whole circuit. The revival meeting at Melen's church last Sunday evening will long be remembered lasting until about midnight. Precious young men that had been prayed for during the meeting surrendered to God and some of them were converted to God in the aisles before they reached the altar for prayer. The praising of God by the saints all over the church, Sunday School room included was wonderful to behold.

Brother R. W. Long, an exhorter of this church for about twenty years much loved by this people was licensed as a local preacher at the Quarterly Conference. This honor of the church given Brother Long was well deserved. He is a good man, has an excellent family, an earnest Christian for the last 40 years. May God's richest blessings crown his labors.

The old Colonial home of John
M. Taylor was sold last week to Charles D. Carter, Iowa. Mr. Taylor, when a boy, went to New York and there made a fortune. Returning to his native county, he built this fine home, where he lived until his death.
The farm is situated on Turville creek, a tributary of Sinepuxent Bay,
the northern part of Worcester county.

Mr. Carter intends to engage extensively in fruit culture, and he made this purchase after thorough investigation and expert analysis of farm lands in different parts of the country. The property was sold for $5,000 and the deal made through R.
L. Farnell.

Miss Flossie McKelvey, of Williamsport, was seriously scolded on the face, neck and arms by the bursting of five cans of tomatoes which she was canning. The boiling contents of the cans were thrown over her.
She was leaning over the stove when the explosion occurred. She was nearly blinded and suffered intense pain. Dr.
W. S. Richardson dressed her wounds.

A spark from the engine of a threshing machine caused a loss of about $200 to John L. Parker, of L., while threshing his buckwheat on his farm leading from Salisbury to Par-sonsbury Thursday. The fire caught in his wheat straw among the chaff.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cannot be expelled at curing cold and cough.
Price 25 cents.

NINE TEASPOONS IN

Woman's Stomach—Big Screw And Five Inches Of Wire Also Found.

The peculiar circumstances connected with the death last Friday of Miss Catherine J. Moher, of Manchester,
N. H., at the Insane Asylum in Concord, N. H., have come to light.

Miss Moher became demented about four weeks ago and was sent there for treatment. She seemed to recover to an extent which removed her from the violent or dangerous class. On Thursday last an attendant noticed that Miss Moher was behaving rather queerly with a spoon. Before she could be reached by the nurse Miss Moher swallowed the spoon.

The matter was reported to the head physician, who ordered an immediate operation. Anesthetics were applied, and when the patient's stomach was opened nine teaspoons were found therein.

A good-sized screw and a piece of wire five inches long were also found in the stomach.

The Twenty-Year Paint.

Would you like to hear of a 20
year paint?

Mr. James A. O'Neill's house, Henderson, N. C. was painted 20 years ago with Devco and never painted again till last year; it then looked better than common paint in half that time.

The reason is; Devco is all paint and true paint; while the common paints are part true and part false.
Don't pay to monkey with paint.
And Devco costs less than any of 'em not by the gallon of course; by the house and year. That's how to reekon it. Go by the name.

Popping Corn
and a Question

"Ah!" said Mr. Luckey, advancing into the room. "A wood fire!"
"Yes," smiled Miss Doty, looking up. "Isn't it nice!"
"Fine!" exclaimed Mr. Luckey, sitting on the edge of a chair. "Fine!"
"It always looks so—so"—began Miss Doty.

"So cheerful!" cried Mr. Luckey.
"No, I didn't mean that; but so—so—" "So warm!" cried Mr. Luckey.
"No, not warm exactly, but so—so—"

"So homelike!" he asked.
"Yes," she softly answered, making eyes at him, and she sank on a hassock by the side of the fire, as though in any contemplation of this scene as a homelike spectacle, she was going to be in the picture.

"Have you an open fireplace in your room?" she asked, striving to present to his mind the antithesis of his present state of momentary happiness.

"No," he murmured; "no such luck."
"Poor boy!" she whispered to the fire. "Poor boy!"
"No such luck!" he repeated mournfully.

"Draw up your chair a little nearer," she kindly said to him. "There,
now, isn't that comfortable?"
"Fine!" said Mr. Luckey. "Fine!" Did you ever see anything like the way it rained today?

She frowned slightly and was apparently about to change the subject, but thought better of it at the last moment.

"I hope it won't rain tonight," she said.
"So do I," said he.
"I always feel so sorry when you have to leave in the rain."

"So do I," said he.
She made eyes at him again, sighed
at the silence more in sorrow than in anger and all at once looked brisk and excited.

"Gracious!" she cried, "I nearly forgot!"
"Forgot what?" he asked.

"I've got a corn popper and a lot of corn. Shall we make some popcorn?"
"Yes!" he cried. "That would be lots of fun."

She ran out into the kitchen and took the corn popper from a hook.
"Where's the corn, Sarah?" she asked the cook.

"I tell you the corn won't pop!" exclaimed the cook. "I told you once and I tell you again, that there corn ain't the kind to pop."

She took the corn nevertheless and went back into the parlor.
"Now," she said, "you put the corn
in the popper like this, and then you hold it over the fire. If you'll move over a little in that chair!"

He moved over silently and she sat down beside him. It was one of those large, comfortable Turkish rockers with high arms and back, just right for two, and as she leaned over to pop
the corn the cozy light of the fire played on her face and showed just where her dimples were.

She shook the popper with a vigorous arm; he moved over to give her more elbow room.

"It doesn't pop," she pouted.
They watched the corn carefully, both leaning forward, with their heads very close together.

"You hold it," she said; but as he took the handle she cried, "Wait!"
and seized the popper again, unconsciously placing her hand over his. "I thought I saw one pop then!" she cried.

"No," he said, taking it, "I don't see any."
She took the popper from him and holding it over the fire she fell to shaking it again, crying:

"Pop! Pop! Hang you, pop! Don't you see I'm waiting for you to pop?
Pop! pop! pop, I tell you! I never saw anything so slow in all my life!
What's the matter with you anyway?
Don't you know how to pop? Good grief! Pop! pop! Isn't there any pop in you! Pop! pop! pop, I tell you!
POP!"

And as she shook the handle, oh, ever so vigorously, a hand was bashfully placed over her arm; an arm was timidly placed about her waist—and Mr. Luckey popped.

Sad End to Boyish Frank.
A number of April fool stunts which Harry Edwards and his younger brother, Fred, played in the attic of their home at Arlington, N. J., resulted in the death of Harry. The two brothers were going to an April fool's party, but before they left they went up to the attic of the house. Fred left his brother for a few minutes to get something downstairs. When he returned he discovered Harry hanging from a rafter. He called to him, but received no answer. Around his neck was a thin leather strap, such as the boys use for their school books. Fred cut this and his brother dropped to the floor dead. The only explanation the police could get was that Harry probably wanted to fool his brother and make him believe that he had hanged himself. He stood up on a couch and may have slipped off accidentally.

Costume Would Make Up Well Shanting or Some Material of Similar Character.

Shanting would adapt itself well to this. The skirt has a pretty shaped yoke, cut with a point at back and front, and a tab on each hip. The lower part is plaited at the sides, and is then set to yoke. A light braiding design is arranged at the edge of yoke, also on the overbodies and sleeve-bands. The underplait is of white netting.

Straw hat to match dress, trimmed with chiffon.

Materials required: Eight yards
shanting 34 inches wide, one yard netting 42 inches wide, two dozen yards braid.

FANCY EMBROIDERED GOWNS

Embroidery Talk Which is in the Nature of a Word to the Wise Needlewoman.

All Paris is showing a touch of embroidery, sometimes quite heavy and elaborate, on the afternoon and evening gown.

Flower gowns predominate, but such effects as wheat and corn stalks are seen, and even fruit patterns are not unknown.

Every material is being used, from chiffon to satin, and the stitching is in black or in a dark, rich color to correspond with the gown. For, in general, it is only the darker dresses that are so being treated. The summer girls and the debutantes are as yet exempt.

Sometimes large dots define the seams of the skirt or form a vertical row down the front. This sounds too extreme for American women, but when these enormous black dots are repeated on the white lace of the yoke and down the tight sleeves the effect is stunning without being vulgar.

Embroidered chiffon gowns are made over heavy satin; black over white is especially smart, with the embroidery in a rich blue or green. The chiffon is usually held to the satin by bands of tulle.

Even gloves are heavily embroidered nowadays, black gloves showing wide stitching in white, and white gloves in black or colors.

POINTERS ABOUT SCISSORS

How to Treat Them When Ruined—Use the Curved Manicure Kind for Cutting Scalpels.

When delicate scalpels are to be cut out there is nothing does it so well as a sharp pair of curved nail scissors.
The curving enables one to get into the smallest indentations.

If children can be trusted to handle such sharp instruments, nail scissors are also excellent to cut out paper dolls and their clothing.

In buying nail scissors it pays to get the best that money can purchase.
They are hard to sharpen by amateur methods and unless the best steel is used in them, soon will be worthless.

It is generally better to substitute a more expensive pair of nail scissors
in the leather or wooden manure than are purchased for gifts. The other instruments will answer nicely.

If the scissors have become slightly rusted, rub first with sweet oil,
then on the edge of a file or emery paper. If the rust will not yield to oil rubbing, the blade should be immersed in oil for several hours.

In Memory Of Mrs. S. E. Dykes.

Mrs. Sara Elizabeth Dykes, wife of William Dykes, died October 1st, 1910, aged 71 years, after a lingering illness of pneumonia, leaving many warm and loving friends behind her. Besides a husband, one son, Ernest P. Dykes, and one daughter, Mrs. Allen Dryden, are left to mourn their loss.

Darling mother, you have left us,
And thy loss we deeply feel,
But 'tis God who has bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.

Hour by hour we saw you fade,
And slowly sink away,
Yet in our hearts we often prayed,
That you might linger stay.

Home is sad, so sad and dreary,
Lonely, lonely, every spot,
Listening for you all are weary,
Weary, for we hear you not.

Oh, the memory of those mornings,
As we stood with breaking hearts,
Seeing the one we loved so dearly
Pierced by death's most evil dart.

The vacant chair is with us,
But your face we cannot see,
No more your voice will cheer us,
Until we have crossed the sea.

May we all be ready, mother,
When the boatman's oar is heard,
When from those heavenly mansions,
We shall hear the welcome word.

—By her children.

A FACT ABOUT THE "BLUES"

What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered liver.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

Tutt's Pills

They control and regulate the liver. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

GRAND JURY REPORT

After Finding A Total Of Thirty-Nine True Bills.

The Grand Jury adjourned Saturday after a very busy week's work investigating various offenses against the laws. Thirty nine true bills were found—the largest number returned in several years. These bills cover a multitude of crimes, including larceny, carrying concealed weapons, whiskey selling, assaults with intent to kill, murder, etc. Mrs. Annie E. Hudson was indicted for murder. Indictments were also returned against Arthur Parsons, Norman Onell and Harry Leblum who are charged with larceny of hides from Mr. L. S. Short to the value of $155. Among the attorneys who will defend these parties is Amos W. Woodcock, Esq., who has recently been admitted to practice at this bar. An indictment was also found against Neal Fryor charged with carrying concealed weapons, whiskey selling and assault with intent to kill. Charles H. Williams, colored, is now in the toils under indictment for stealing clothing, etc. Williams, Fryor and Parsons are well known to the local police and are old offenders who have served former sentences.

Reports On County Property.

Wilson Wright, O. N. Bennett, A. J. Kennerly, American Taylor and Glen Catlin, the committee appointed to visit the Alms House, reported as follows:

"We, the committee appointed by your honorable foreman to visit and examine the County Home and make a report in reference thereto, respectfully submit that we did, on Thursday, September 29th, 1910, visit the County Home and that, in our judgment, we found the Home in a cleanly condition and well kept, but in need of some repair. There were seven inmates, 3 white males, 2 colored males and 2 colored females, all of whom seemed to be taken care of well.

In care of the keeper we found one horse, one pair of mules, six cows, one bull, six pigs and four shoats and all stock well taken care of. There are fifteen acres of corn and fifteen acres of timothy and clover.

We also found that the corn house on the premises is very much in need of repairs.

We would suggest that a telephone be installed in the dwelling house.

Report On Jail.

"Our report on the condition of the County Jail and Court House, visited as a body, is as follows:

"That said visit was made on Thursday, September 29th, 1910. We found the condition as follows:

"There are 13 prisoners therein, 6 colored men, 2 colored women, 4 white men and 1 white woman. The cells are in good condition except there are window sashes and windows needed.

A large lot of ashes need removing from the premises at once. We found that the floors in the hall and cook room need repairing. Also new washboards are needed in some places very badly. We would recommend that a door be used in the place of the bars in the southeast window of the basement so that the ashes could be removed direct from the cellar.

"We recommend the erection of a suitable building for the occupancy of the sheriff or his assistant as soon as practicable. We would also recommend that all walls of the jail be whitewashed, and all the work painted, and the floor of the cellar should be repaired.

"We inspected the Court House and found good condition. We saw a coat of paint on the porch and on the ceiling of the judges and grand jury rooms. The rooms in general need some attention. We have examined carefully all witnesses and have indicted 22 all sons."

Special Sermons.

"The pastor of the Division Street Baptist Church will preach a series of four special Sunday night sermons beginning tomorrow night.

October 9th—"Amusements, the Kind to Shun."

October 16th—"The Possibility of the Impossible."

October 23rd—"What Is a Lie?"

November 6th—"The Deathless Voice."

The preacher will endeavor to be practical and helpful in all these sermons. All members of the church are especially urged to be present at the morning service. The sermon theme will be "A Great Undertaking."

There is more cantarr in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven cantarr to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Cantarr Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Pamela's Decision

By Bernice C. Bicknell

Copyright, 1920, by Associated Literary Press

Pamela Hitchcock rearranged the pillow on her mother's chair and seating herself by the window looked out upon the fast fading day, which was changing into twilight. Presently she saw the tall, ungainly figure of Abner

Brown coming down the lane. This was no unusual sight, for Abner came every Saturday evening and had been coming for a number of years; but this time was Thursday. The unexpected-ness of this visit and the fact that in every movement of Abner's awkward

something, an animation to his gait

that she had not noticed before, convinced her that something awful had happened.

She arose and ran to throw open the door.

"Abner," she gasped, "what's the matter? Is somebody hurt?"

"No," he replied, and Pamela noted that an angry flush rushed to his face and his breath came in short, hard panta.

"I just heard about that fellow that has been coming to see you. I told the boys it wasn't so. Is it?"

Pamela stood in doubt a moment.

Then with slow dignity she drew herself to her full height and answered

stiffly:

"Abner Brown, I am surprised. It is none of your business who comes to see me. We are not engaged."

"None of my business," he blurted.

"I'll make it my business. I think a man that has been coming steady to see you for years has some right to your confidence."

"I have no confidence to give," she perished.

"Pamela!" he gasped in wide-eyed surprise.

"Bring Abner in," called a voice

from the sitting-room.

"Since Mrs. Hitchcock wants me to stay, I believe I will."

"I want you to stay, too, Abner."

"You do, eh?" he asked sarcastically and stalked into the house.

Pamela noticed her mother's face

brighten when Abner entered.

"Good evening, Abner, my boy. Let me see, this is Thursday. Rather early for you."

"I've wanted to, goodness knows, all these years, but every time I tried to say—my tongue would get twisted

and the nice phrases I had thought out

would disappear like magic and I would feel as awkward as a whale

on Pike's peak. I've waited

hoping that something would loosen

my tongue. It has come."

"In the guise of a real estate agent

who wants me to trade my 80 acres

for city property," Pamela put in slyly,

and glanced at her mother with anxious face reflecting her feelings.

"What a dunce I have been!" Abner stared at his astonishment. "Pamela, I love you. Don't sell the land.

Marry me and I'll take you to Springfield or any place you want to go," he pleaded.

Another knock at the door threw

Abner into a state of greater excitement.

"Answer me. Do you love me?"

"Yes," she murmured.

His lips were close to hers and with

Mrs. Hitchcock's nodding approval, he kissed her.

Pamela finally went to the door and opened it, but Mr. Morris had grown

impatient and departed.

In the fast gathering darkness she

saw a figure at the far end of the lane.

But she did not call him back.

WORK THAT MUST BE DONE

Impossible to Regulate the Hours of Labor: That the Farmer

Must Put In.

"That's My Business," She Retorted.

In the week for you?" Mrs. Hitchcock adjusted her spectacles to look at him quizzically.

"I had to go over to Ed Lamb's, and it being so close I thought it would be a shame to pass by. Crops are looking fine."

Pamela smiled to herself at his feeble attempt to shift the subject.

"It is a pretty sight to watch the rows and rows of ripening corn when a mile of wind is stirring, but I don't suppose I'll see it much longer, for—

"Why? You aren't going away, Mrs.

Hitchcock?" Brown asked in alarm.

"Pamela's been—" the old voice quavered and stopped short at a warning glance from her daughter.

"Of course, mother, after corn husking there will be nothing but bare fields, but you are used to that," Pamela remarked.

"But there won't be even bare fields in—" she continued.

"Certainly not," interrupted Pamela.

"How is Ed Lamb's folks? I have been so busy that I haven't had time to go there lately."

"Fair to middling. Ed is talking of selling his farm," Abner answered, absently gazing out of the window to where the old mill creek wound in and out of the little valley below.

"So are we," Mrs. Hitchcock said without looking at her daughter. "Pamela didn't want me to say any more about it until we had decided. Though

I believe she has about made up her mind. But, law me, I don't believe in being so close mouthed to anybody like you, Abner, that I held in my arms when you were a baby. What do you think about it?"

"I think it would be downright foolish to sell the farm that you have lived on so long. Then there are so many associations about it that must give you a deal of comfort. The city is no place for a woman like you, Mrs.

Hitchcock, that has been used to the broad out of doors."

"I know it. Do you hear that, Pamela?" Mrs. Hitchcock queried, a flush coming into her withered cheeks.

"Yes," Pamela murmured.

"Doesn't it change you a mite?" Her old voice trembled.

"No," Pamela answered. "I'm tired of this humdrum life of ours, mother;

each day is colorless as the others. I want to see something besides Miller's elevator, a few sprawling houses in the village, the town pump and Tom

Craig's general store. Just think of it, mother! We own 80 acres of some of the choicest prairie land in Illinois and you and I have never even been to Springfield!"

"I didn't know you cared about going to such places. Do you mind what the preacher said last Sabbath about folks being contented with their lot?

I reckon that some people from the stuffy city would be glad to change places with you," Mrs. Hitchcock said.

"If the preacher believes in being contented why wasn't he satisfied with the lot he had?" Mrs. Hitchcock asked him instead of finding fault with the out of it?" Pamela returned.

"I never felt called upon to criticize the minister and I don't think you ought to," Mrs. Hitchcock looked at her daughter reprovingly.

"I'll sell my 80, mother, so don't worry," Pamela declared, with an air of assurance that nearly provoked Abner into a spasm.

"Pamela Hitchcock, you don't know what you are doing! What would you invest your money in—mining stock?"

he protested.

"That's my business," she retorted.

A sharp rap on the parlor door brought Pamela to her feet with a start.

"It's Mr. Morris coming for my decision."

"What decision, Pamela—about your marriage?" Abner burst out frantically, his heavy masculine mind failing to see any significance between the mysterious caller and Pamela's desiring to sell her land. "No, say it is not, Pamela!"

She started to the door. Abner sprang to his feet and caught hold of her arm.

"One minute, before you go to the door," he cried, his voice choking with emotion. "I want to know if you have gone back on me?"

"No, Abner, you never gave me the chance."

"I've wanted to, goodness knows, all

these years, but every time I tried to

say—my tongue would get twisted

and the nice phrases I had thought out

would disappear like magic and I

would feel as awkward as a whale

on Pike's peak. I've waited

hoping that something would loosen

my tongue. It has come."

"In the guise of a real estate agent

who wants me to trade my 80 acres

for city property," Pamela put in slyly,

and glanced at her mother with anxious face reflecting her feelings.

"What a dunce I have been!" Abner stared at his astonishment. "Pamela, I love you. Don't sell the land.

Marry me and I'll take you to Springfield or any place you want to go," he

pleaded.

Another knock at the door threw

ment.

"Answer me. Do you love me?"

"Yes," she murmured.

His lips were close to hers and with

Mrs. Hitchcock's nodding approval, he kissed her.

Pamela finally went to the door and

opened it, but Mr. Morris had grown

impatient and departed.

In the fast gathering darkness she

saw a figure at the far end of the lane.

But she did not call him back.

AN UNUSUAL MAN

He paced nervously up and down before the display window of a large millinery establishment for some time before he finally entered. Then he walked straight up to the saleswoman with the air of a man who had made up his mind.

"I want a hat," he said.

The saleswoman looked at him doubtfully.

"We—er—keep only women's hats here," she said, finally.

"Well, that's the kind I want," he replied.

The saleswoman gazed at him helplessly. Two or three customers turned around and looked at him, too. The girls on the trimming counter giggled loudly.

The man was evidently painfully aware of these attentions, but he "pulled himself together" and said carelessly:

"Let's look at some of the latest models."

"Step this way, please," said the saleswoman, leading him out of range of the too curious onlookers. "What size hat would you like to see?"

"O, about 6 3/4," he said.

"No, no, you want a big hat with considerable trimming or a small, plain one—you see, it depends a good deal on the woman who is going to wear it. Now, if you could bring her in—"

"Say," he interrupted, "this is a surprise party I'm pulling off today and I'm going to engineer the deal myself. I don't see anything difficult about buying a hat. You just put me wise to the 1910 rules and I'll place my money. Anybody that would find away more than three minutes buying a hat hasn't got head enough to wear one himself. Now, this one looks like a winner, with the plumes on. Is the shape wise?"

"That is one of the sweetest things in the store," said the saleswoman, lifting the hat tenderly. "It is in the extreme of fashion. It is, of course, a big hat. Is your—the lady—or—is she tall or—er—short?"

"Well, I guess she's up to the weight, all right," returned the purchaser, holding the hat out at arm's length and balancing it critically. "I believe she can carry it. Are all these colors according to the revised rules?"

"Perfectly. Colors, of course, are always a matter of taste and harmony. Is your—the lady—a blonde or a brunette?"

The prospective purchaser appeared a little embarrassed for a moment, and then said frankly:

"Say, it's this way. I haven't just made up my mind which one—that is, I'm not sure just what I'll send it to yet. You see, I thought I'd buy a hat for one and a fur muff, maybe, or something like that, for the other. That is, you see, there are two I want to buy presents for, and—O, well, which would this hat go the best with, Amber Top or Raven Wing?"

"Why, I think, perhaps, a blonde could wear it to the best advantage," answered the saleswoman, looking knowing.

"All right, it's the hat for little Sunflower. How about the size of the hole in it—don't look to me like she could get her head and all her hair in that opening."

"O, her hair don't all go in there, you know," said the saleswoman reassuringly.

"Well, where does it go, then?" he demanded, looking suspiciously at the small opening in the center of the immense brim.

"Why, it puts up under the brim, you know. The more hair the better for a hat like this."

"Cradle it up, I'll take it. I'll have an express wagon come round and get it. What's the fine?"

The price was $18.50. He paid it and glanced at his watch.

"Five minutes before lunch time—just time enough to go across the street and buy that muff. Good day," and he hurried away.

Killed by a Swan.

The swans which gracefully glide over the many picturesque river stretches and artificial lakes in England are commonly regarded as harmless birds, much beloved by young and old, and fed and fondled as things embodying the poetic spirit of snow-white grace and beauty. A different story was told at Nottingham recently, where at an inquest it was stated that Cecil Barratt, five years old, was pulled into the river by a swan, who attacked him so savagely that he was drowned.

The boy was the son of the caretaker of the Nottingham Rowing club, and was playing on the landing stage when the swan attacked him. The lad's father ran to the scene of the accident, dived several times, but failed to find the boy, and was also attacked by the bird before he got ashore.

Napoleon's Elba Flag.

Lord Archibald Campbell has presented to the army museum in Paris a curious relic of Napoleon. This is the flag which the latter flew in the sale of Elba during his captivity there. The flag is square, white and fringed with gold, bearing three gold bees and a diagonal scarlet stripe. The staff carries a white and scarlet scarf, having also three gold bees. Napoleon does not seem to have used the flag he invented elsewhere than in the sale of Elba, where he was a dethroned and captive monarch. In France, although bees were always his emblem, and were embroidered on his state robes, his standard was the tricolor.

House Frocks.

The new materials that are being shown are for the most part decidedly heavier, though quite as soft and pliant as they were last year. Among them, however, in spite of the prominence given to heavy cloths, silks, velvets and cashmeres of all weights and weaves, there are many new materials admirably adapted to house gowns and negliges. Marquisette in soft, bright colors makes the most delightful sort of gown.

The Little Time.

So little time to love you—
So little time to see
The eyes that have made Heaven
On this poor earth for me!

So little time to listen
To that voice which thrills
A soul with sweeter music
Than mocking birds or rills.

But thankful that I met you
In days when Love was new,
And that I can't forget you—
The beautiful and true—
Sweetest L. Stanton, in Atlantic Coast.

A CORNER IN ANCESTORS

By FRANCIS COWLES

Leach Family

(Copyright by McClure Syndicate)

The Leach family goes back, in England, to the time of King Edward III., who ruled from 1327 to 1377. During his reign there were three visitations in England of the dreaded plague then called the "Black Death," and a good physician, or surgeon, as he was then called, was worth his weight in gold.

There was such a surgeon in the King's household, and his name was John Le Leche or Leach. Perhaps, as the first form of the name suggests, the family came from France, for King Edward's mother was a French woman. Anyway, the name Leach was derived from the leech then so much used in medicine, and considered practically a cure-all, the symbolism of health, and, therefore, a good name for a physician.

Later Edward granted a large landed estate to John Leach, and arms as well, and as you may see in the illustration the three crowns were made part of the coat-of-arms.

Some three hundred years later Lawrence Leach, a direct lineal descendant of this surgeon to royalty, decided to come with his wife Elizabeth, and his sons Robert and John, to America.

He went into farming and milling, and became a planter on a large scale. His mills were where Beverly—at present noted as President Taft's summer home—now stands, and they were considered of a great importance to the community that many surrounding towns had roads especially opened to the mill. Lawrence Leach served as one of the 12 jurors, in 1630, in the first trial of a capital case in Boston, and for several terms he represented Salem in the legislature.

Lawrence left two sons in England—Richard and Clement. But Clement came here ten years after his father, and married Ann Fuller of Salem. Robert, one of the sons who came here with his father, was one of the founders of Manchester, Mass. Several of his descendants were seafaring men, and their roving lives led them into adventure and excitement. One of them, Richard, was at Cartagena when the British took the town in 1706; and his son Benjamin was at Lisbon when the great earthquake of 1745 killed about 40,000 persons.

Benjamin's son Ezra was in the army, and then a lieutenant in the navy in the revolutionary war.

Lawrence had another son, Giles, born after his parents reached this country. It is estimated that he has descendants to the number of 10,000 and over.

Giles was born at Salem. He married Ann Nokes of Weymouth, and in 1664 settled at Bridgewater. There he purchased one of the 46 shares of the 1,000 acres bought some ten years earlier from Massachusetts—father of the great King Philip—by Miles Standish.

There is a big branch of the family in New Jersey, and of it Josiah Granville Leach, lawyer and genealogist, who first suggested that June 14 be set aside as "Flag Day," is the most noted member to-day.

There were a few other early Leaches in this country, but most of the great family here is sprung from the single forefather, Lawrence. The favorite Christian names among the Leaches have been Hanna, Susanna, Nokes, Joseph, Giles, Ann, Sarah and David. The only Leach registered as an officer of the Continental army in the revolution is Simon, of Massachusetts, who was a first lieutenant, but other Leaches served as privates.

One of the most noted Leaches on this continent in recent years was the late William Turnbull Leach, of Canada, his father born at Burwick-on-Tweed, Scotland, in 1805. He was ordained a Presbyterian minister, and later joined the Church of England, and was sent to Montreal, where he became archdeacon. Not only was he an eminent churchman, but he was also a noted educator in McGill university.

The arms already referred to are Ermine, on a chief indented gules three ducks coronets or. The crest is a hand couped at the wrist, grasping a snake.

TO SPEND A MILLION

Tuberculosis Association Shows How Money
From Red Cross Christmas Seals
Would Provide Needed Hospitals.

What "A Million for Tuberculosis" from Red Cross Seals will do in the checking of consumption, is explained in a bulletin issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Counting every available bed for consumptives in the United States, even those in almshouses, penal institutions, and hospitals for the insane, there are at the present time accommodations for hardly 80,000 tuberculosis patients. This is just about one bed for every ten indigent consumptive, and if all tuberculous persons in the country are counted, both rich and poor, hardly one for every twenty five or thirty. If sufficient hospital accommodations are provided only for those who are too poor to pay
the full price for their treatment, fully 775,000 more beds in special institutions for tuberculosis would be needed at once. The immense outlay necessary to provide and maintain so many beds in hospitals, makes it imperative, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares, that such institutions be erected from public money, either municipal, county or state. In order to get appropriations for public hospitals for tuberculosis, agitation is necessary, and in order to create a campaign of agitation, organization is demanded. But in order that an organization may carry on an effective campaign, funds are needed.

These funds it is proposed to secure in as many communities as possible from the sale of Red Cross Seals.

The National Association cites one illustration of the way in which a small sum spent in education has secured large appropriations. The New York State Charities Aid Association
in the three years, 1908, 1909 and 1910 has spent in the up state portion of New York about $55,000 in arousing the people to the dangers of tuberculosis. As a direct result of the public sentiment produced by this outlay,
the state, county and municipal authorities have already appropriated for tuberculosis work $1,500,000 and appropriations for hundreds of thousands of dollars are pending. Hundreds of hospital beds have been provided, and the Association already aims at "No Uncooled for Tuberculosis in 1915."

Thus, the National Association says
if a million dollars is realized from the sale of Red Cross Seals, millions more will be added to it from the
the public treasuries. Last year 5,000,000 stamps were sold. It is already this year to sell four times as many.

DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETing Will Be Held in Uman's Opera House

Saturday, October 29th.

The Democratic State Central Committee for Worcester county are arranging for a big Democratic Mass Meeting to be held in Uman's Opera House in this city on Saturday, October 29th. There will be two meetings, one in the afternoon at 2 o'clock and one in the evening at 8 o'clock.

The list of speakers has not yet been arranged but Congressman Covington who will be here will be accompanied by at least three other speakers who will be of National reputation.

The committee is arranging to have some special music for the occasion and the night meeting will be a special feature as one side of the Opera House will be reserved for the ladies.
It is proposed to make both of the meetings big demonstrations for the Democrats. The tariff issue, which is the real issue in this campaign will be thoroughly explained and the high cost of living will be gone into thoroughly and a remedy given for the present conditions.

Every man, Democrat, Republican or Prohibition who is feeling the pinch of the present conditions should be sure to attend these meetings and hear the speakers.

Registered Tournament.

The first annual registered tournament of the Salisbury Gun Club will be held in Salisbury on Monday, Oc-targets will receive the Hunter Arms Company Trophy—a beautiful vase.

- 1st Prize—Fishing Reel.
- 2d Prize—Tobacco Jar.
- 3d Prize—Gunning Coat.
- 4th Prize—Gunning Case.
- 5th Prize—Safety Razor.
- 6th Prize—Pair Leggings.
- 7th Prize—Loading Set.
- 8th Prize—Pocket Knife.
- 9th Prize—Pocket Knife.
- 10th Prize—Pocket Knife.

Program starts promptly at 10 a. m.
The committee has provided a handsome lot of prizes for the amateurs, only who shoot through the program. To win one of these you can shoot either for targets only, (25 for the day) or in the covey stakes.

PRISONERS PLOT TO

Escape Comes To Crisis But Fails At Last Moment—Salisbury Jail.

The jail here has been filled with prisoners waiting their turn at Court or with those already under sentence
but have not as yet been carried up.
It is supposed that some of these men made desperate by the hopelessness of their situation, made a plot to have a wholesale Jail delivery. That this was not successfully carried out is due to the watchfulness of Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith. Noticing all day that something seemed to be wrong and that the prisoners were restless and uneasy, his suspicions became aroused and he set out to find what was the matter, even then it is probable that the plans would have been successful
if one of the men, who had been selected to give him the blow, nerve had not failed at the critical time.

The plot as afterwards unravelled was for one of the men in the crowded cells to get Smith in on a pretext of wanting some water, and then for another to knock him over the head with a heavy iron pipe which they had wrenched from the ceiling. After doing this they were to take his keys
and his gun and open up the jail.
According to one, it was their intention to kill Smith and his family before making their escape. All went well up to the point of striking the blow. Smith had been called and entered the cell as per programme carrying in a bucket of water, but Arthur Parsons failed to do his part but acted so queerly that Smith, who had been suspicious for some time, asked him to go down stairs with him. Here he made a full confession of the plot and those concerned in it. Extra guards were put on, and the following night,
leg-irons were placed upon the men.
An examination of the jail showed that they had been making desperate efforts to get out. In one place they had made quite an impression on the wall by their attempts to cut through it. Several bars were nearly sawed into.

Sheriff Kelley took four of them to Baltimore on Thursday morning.

The pipe which they had wrenched off was a part of the heating system and was one and one half inch pipe
about eighteen inches long.

Neal Pryor, the man who said that it was his intention to shoot Smith at the time of his arrest and was only prevented from so doing by the untimely intervention of some woman, boasts that when he gets his release that he would parade the streets of Salisbury and make things hot for some people.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Verdict in Murder Case—Mrs. Hudson Takes Verdict Calmly.

After one of the hardest fought cases seen here in several years the jury late Saturday night brought in a verdict of manslaughter, in the case of Mrs. Hudson who was on trial here for the murder of her husband, Tobias Hudson. The case went to the jury Friday afternoon and from that time until the verdict was rendered—about eleven Saturday night—rumors of all kinds of verdicts were current. It appears that the jurors stood six for acquittal on the plea of insanity while the other six stood for murder in the first degree, and verdict rendered is a compromise one.

This case excited more than usual interest on account of the circumstances of the case, and the plea of the defense of insanity. This plea did not seem to be put for the purpose of bringing certain facts before the jury relating to the past of the man shot as has been the case of others of its nature in the country, but put and attempted to prove insanity at the time, before and at the present time of the accused. The unwritten law played but little part in the proceeding. Both the defense and prosecution made a strong effort, State's Attorney Bailey handling the prosecution in a masterly manner.

Hayman—Pollitt Wedding.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Friday evening at 7 o'clock, at the home of Mr. Josiah Pollitt in Eden, when his daughter, Miss Nerene Pollitt, became the bride of Otis T. Hayman. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. O. E.
James, pastor of Fruitland Church.
The bride and groom entered the parlor, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, while Loh-grin's wedding march was rendered in a very impressive manner by the organist, Miss Ethel Malone. The bride and groom were accompanied by Miss Bessie Pollitt, cousin of the bride and who was bride's maid, and by Mr. Jennie Pollitt, who was best man. Miss Pollitt was one of the popular young ladies of her neighborhood and Mr. Hayman is the rural mail carrier on the Eden Route, and is a young man esteemed by the people. A large number of people were present on this happy occasion, and after the wedding ceremony a splendid supper was served which everyone enjoyed.

ABOUT THE FLYING

Or Aviation Meet At Baltimore Next Month
Of Large Interest.

Between a tempting list of prizes, a large entry list of the most famous fliers of the world and practically perfect arrangements, the aviation meet to be held in Baltimore, November 2 to 8th, inclusive, promises to be one of the greatest affairs of its kind ever seen in this country, and second in importance only to the international event at Belmont Park this month. From that meet all the great fliers will come direct to Baltimore and a large proportion of the throng of spectators also is expected in that city.

So far scheduled for appearance are Glenn H. Curtiss, the international champion and his corps; the Wright Brothers and their associates, Hubert Latham and the two Counts de Les-sep and Astura and Simon. The English team, with Radley, holder of the world's record for speed, are elated, and other foreigners of equal note will reinforce the American talent.
Efforts also will be made to secure the presence of Monsieur Garros, with his "Demoiselle" machine, the smallest in existence, yet capable of prodigious speed. This machine also is known as the "anquy wasp" and the "humming bird" from its lightness, weighing only 250 pounds.

Selected by Curtiss and approved by other experts, the Baltimore course has been pronounced probably the best in the country, while it also is convenient and accessible. The track will be one mile in circumference and 800 feet wide, while banners and other structures will be provided for the aviators and grand stand and bleachers, with retiring tents and other conveniences for the spectators.

Two innovations will be introduced in the form of reduced prices and seats for the general admission crowds instead of the almost prohibitive prices which have prevailed at other meets, the scale will read: general admission, $1, with reserved seat in grandstand, $1.70 with seat in second tier box, $3 with seat in first tier box $5.50. A "royal" box will be reserved for President Taft and other distinguished guests who are expected to be present frequently during the meet. At other meets, the general admission crowd has been obliged to stand; at Baltimore seats will be provided.

The list of prizes so far announced,
but which probably will be increased in number and value, are as follows:
Lord Baltimore prize, $10,000; speed, $5,000; altitude $5,000; duration of flight, $3,500; longest distance flown, $3,500; slowest flight, $1,500; best getaway $300; accuracy, $300; best throwing, $3,500. Besides these there be several valuable trophies for aviators, while J. Berry Ryan has offered a magnificent cup, to be known as the Commodore Barry Cup, for bomb throwing, open only to members of the Aeronautic Reserve and to foreigners.

In anticipation of the great throngs expected, the railroad and steamboat companies are arranging reduced rates of fare, with special trains and excursions from all parts of the East, and also are enlarging their track and terminal facilities at the grounds.
A large majority of the visitors to the Pimlico race meet are expected to remain over for the aviation meet.

Death of Robert Hitch At Good Old Age.

There is genuine sorrow in this community at the demise of "Uncle"
Robert Hitch, as everyone knew him.
His death occurred Friday last at his home in California, from the infirmities of old age. Mr. Hitch was born in Spring Hill 53 years ago, and was the last survivor of ten children, several of whom had, like him, lived to a ripe old age. Two brothers, Esack-iel and George lived to be 77 and 85 years respectively. Two sisters, Ma-chael and Nancy, lived to be 87 and 91 years, respectively.

Mr. Hitch had been a resident of Salisbury for many years. He served as balliff to the grand jury for 25 years, occupying the position at the time of his fatal illness. In this capacity he came in contact with hundreds of people from all sections of this country, and by his kind and obliging manner won the friendship of all. As a mark of respect to his memory, Court adjourned Monday afternoon so that the judges and court officials could attend the funeral, which took place from St. Peter's P. E. Church. Deceased was a faithful member of this church. He was a true christian, and leaves to his family a legacy of a well spent life.
Deceased is survived by five children, viz.: Herbert H. George R. and Ernest B. Hitch; Mrs. Jennie Ellis and Mrs. Charles H. Ward, of Aubury Park, N. J.

SHE HAD A REASON

"No, girls, Janet hasn't come yet," answered Anne, as she greeted her guests from the steps of the veranda. "We are going to stay out here and wait for her and feast our eyes on my new green wicker tea car, with the furnishings that I told father must go with it. We can talk over this latest freak of Janet's, while we wait."

"Whatever do you think?" demanded the girl with drooping eyes. "If anyone of us were engaged to that stunning man, we'd cling to him, through fire and flood. And to think that she deliberately broke—"

"It is dreadful of her to do it, too, for he was so devoted, and such a dear, and it wasn't her money he wanted, for he has so much of his own," declared the girl with the Dresden parasol. "It seems a case of straight and simple idiocy. I had a bit of a talk with Janet by phone yesterday, and she said, 'Yes, he's just as charming as he ever was. And I wish we could stay where we were just before he gave me that wonderful hand wrought ring. But we can't.'"

"But why?" I asked her.

"Some time I'll tell you why—after I tell him," said Janet. "It's such a foolish, silly, simple sort of reason, that people will smile. Maybe the smile is what makes me hesitate. But after I tell him, I'll tell all you girls."

"I always did feel that Janet was superficial," murmured the girl with drooping eyes. "To smile about such a thing and end a glorious epoch in one's life for some trivial reason is something I cannot understand. We always felt that she was a coquette. When Mr. Worthington began going with her I was sure he had found his match in sentiment, and the courtship was so short and sudden—"

"Yes, but he is a bit of a flirt; we all know that, dear," chimed in the girl in the garden hat, with a sympathetic glance at the girl with drooping eyes. "Arthur tells me that he danced through college on a path of girls' hearts. But it is really not his fault that he was born a flirt, you know."

"How could she end it, when the conquest was so complete and so enviable?" Anne was pouring tea now. "I do so want her to come. Jack said today that Sinclair Worthington—think of that name, girls!—was as much puzzled as any of us. 'He is not so hard hit,' Jack said, 'but that he can say he's puzzled.'"

"It is a riddle to him no longer," broke in a voice from the steps. "He knows now. And so shall you."

Janet smiled at the sudden silence which came when they saw her. "I've been here only a minute and didn't listen after I found what you were talking about," she assured them. "I am so glad I don't have to bring up the subject, for I am crazy to talk it over. I can't quite understand why I am not sorry, unless it is—but that comes later. I know now it was silly to get engaged when everybody had tales to tell of his conquests, but the person who should listen never does, and he is a dear—I still think that."

"What reason did you give him?" demanded the girl with drooping eyes.

"Why, I just mailed him a letter last evening filled with a series of exhibits in the case."

"Exhibit A was a drawing of a lovely girl—he draws beautifully—with curly hair. Mine is straight, you know. He did that at my desk one evening when he was telling me how much I was to him."

"Exhibit B was an envelope that had been returned to me because of my address in the corner. Sinclair had addressed it to my grandfather at Smith college! I asked him to address it one evening when he begged me to write no more than a short note and then to talk to him. But he was thinking of some other girl all the time, as the address he put on grandfather's letter showed."

"Exhibit C was a bit of paper full of pinpricks. He had done it that last evening while he begged me to understand him and his love for me—assured me that he wanted my every thought as he was mine. The trouble was that I believed him that evening for the first time. It was only after he had gone that I found the pinpricked paper. In it I traced in very beautiful old English letters the word 'Louise.'"

"No, girls, we don't know Louise, do we?"

"So I put the proper dates on these exhibits and sent them in reply to his wild appeal to know why our engagement was ended. It is funny and you can laugh all you please, I'm not really sorry, for I have learned many things of late."

"Mother and I are going west next week to visit the Gregorys on their ranch. Billy is there for the summer, you know. He's been writing me three times a week all through my engagement. And, after all it is said, Billy is splendid, don't you think?"

Parting.
Night, and a cool, sweet air:
Stars in a velvet sky.
"This hard to part in a world so fair—Goodbye."
Night, and a breath of flowers
Floating out of the dusk:
Whispers of attired eyes, and hours
Of mirth.
Careless, the flames dance
And the insect orchestra plays.
Parvaneh, perchance for a year, perchance
For aye!

GOOD MANAGEMENT OF SWINE

Two Systems Now Commonly Used for Housing Pigs, Both Having Their Own Advantages.

There are two systems now commonly used for housing swine, the central house system and the separate houses. Both have their advantages and many farmers will do well to use both to a certain extent. The important factor in pig pens is to keep the swine dry and free from drafts. Damp beds and sleeping pens cause trouble.

Cement floors are preferable for a hog house, but sleeping pens should always be overlaid with board floors. As a rule hogs should be fed outside on a feeding floor. Inside feeding is unsanitary and wasteful of space, even though it may be convenient. Weaning pigs is a very important subject. If not properly weaned it proves detrimental to both the sows and the pigs. Pigs begin to eat when four or five weeks old and it is always best to have them eating well before weaning. They can be fed to the best advantage in a small pen away from the old sows. The pigs will early learn to eat shelled corn and a small quantity should always be kept before them, either in a trough or on a clean spot on the feeding floor. When fed on a slop ration the dry corn they consume in addition appears to keep them from scouring. At this state of growth the utmost care should be taken to keep animals from getting off feed. They should thrive and grow steadily. Fresh feed, clean troughs and feeding floors, with comfortable quarters will aid much in securing these results.

The young pigs should be fed at least three times a day, but not an excessive amount, and may be weaned at six weeks, but eight weeks is preferable. Many farmers allow pigs to run with their dams for 10 or 12 weeks, which is possible where only one litter is produced per year. It is good practice to allow a few of the smaller pigs to remain with the sows, when the larger ones are weaned, in order that the milk flow of the sows may be dried off gradually. If this is not convenient, the sows should be turned in with the pigs once a day for three or four days. This will obviate trouble with their udders.

SOME DISEASES OF POULTRY

Outside of Roup, Cholera or Chicken Mites Little is Known of Disorders of Hen.

Veterinarians know but very little about diseases of poultry, and with poultry raisers it is always a proposition of roup, cholera or chicken mites.

The revenues from poultry products, in the aggregate, are so enormous that statistics are looked upon with suspicion. Much money and time have been spent in the investigation of diseases of larger animals, and many volumes written, yet in economic importance they are, in some instances, comparatively insignificant. The chicken individually represents small value, and is, therefore, neglected; collectively the animal would pay the public debt.

There are no other food producing animals that suffer nearly so large a loss for disease. The chickens begin dying and are thrown over the fence long before they are old, and perhaps a little red pepper or onions are added to the feed as medicine.

However, the poultryman has learned from dire experience that it pays to keep the hen house and poultry yard clean, and every poultry raiser has a few receipts for keeping away cholera and roup. The normal temperature of the chicken is from five to ten degrees higher than other farm animals, and consequently the diseases are characteristic and incident only to chickens and their kind.

Not knowing the nature of poultry diseases, and much less their cause, of course the remedies are on a par with sixteenth century therapeutics, as applied to the larger animals and to man.

The Colorado Agricultural college, through its experiment station, has determined to look into this enormous loss incident to diseases of poultry, but if all the experiment stations were to undertake the same task it would be some time before we could expect to know as much about diseases of poultry as we do of the larger animals.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

To represent the First Congressional District of Maryland in the Sixty-second Congress of the United States:J. HARRY COVINGTON, of Talbot County.

DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS.

This is one of the most important elections held in years from the Democratic standpoint. Everything seems to indicate the success of the party in the Congressional elections to be held this fall, and it is up to the party in the First District to see that they do not lag behind in the vote cast for Mr. Covington next November. It is true enough that it looks as though the Democrats were going to have one of the easiest times in years to elect the ticket, but right here is the danger point. More victories have been lost by over-confidence than by any other means, and the voters in this county should not allow themselves to grow lukewarm in the fight because they believe the battle already won.

In order to make victory sure this year they must get out and work for the ticket, and not stay at home waiting for others to do as they expect them to do, vote for the ticket without any other work being done until election day. Every man who believes in the principles of the party should be deeply interested in the coming election.

Tariff reform never looked brighter than it does at the present time, and all that seems necessary to bring about the reduction of the tariff in the near future, is the success of the Democratic party this fall. Its success this year will give it a great deal of prestige for the coming presidential fight and be a big help in electing a Democrat for the President of the United States. And in order to accomplish the much needed reform in our present high and unjust tariff we must elect men to Congress who will fight for a tariff fair to all and that will stand for revenue alone.

The platform of the party in the State has very wisely declared that tariff reform is the paramount issue in the country today, and that the only hope the people have to escape the burdens of a tariff designed for the most part to fill the pockets of those already rich at the expense of the consumer lies in the success of the party which has always stood for low tariff.

Now is the chance for the voters of this county to get busy and help elect Mr. Covington to Congress where he will do his part in relieving them of the heavy burdens they are now carrying. The Mass Meeting to be held here on October 29th will be addressed by Mr. Covington and other well known men, and the Democrats should turn out en masse to give him assurances of their support and show their loyalty to party and principles by getting out the full vote of the party at the polls next November.

WORDS OF CAUTION.

The game of the swindlers changes as conditions change, and the old time smooth men who duped our farmers into making loans and fictitious investments have to a great extent given away to the smooth, alert promoters who come down with various propositions designed to part the prosperous hard working business man of his hard earned cash. It may be the stock in a gold mine or in almost any other enterprise dressed up in the most flattering and attractive style, which they are trying to dispose of—no matter what it is the gullible investor is made to see dollars where he puts in cents.

Smooth talkers are these gentlemen, and belong to a high school of philanthropy for their expressed purpose is to make every one who is wise enough to take advantage of the golden opportunity, a millionaire in a very short time. Six per cent returned on the money is too low for them to fool with for a moment and even a hundred per cent would be a poor return for most of the enterprises. To make it more attractive they will sell bonds, preferred stock or something of that nature and to those who buy will be given without any additional cost paid in thousands of dollars of stock in the company which they are told will in time be by far the most valuable of all.

These slick men first try to interest men in the community whose names stand for something in the business world and then make use of their interest to induce others who have confidence in the business judgement of these to make an investment. And sometimes we are sorry to say men whose names stand for progress and business integrity allow themselves to be so used, even at times accepting some of the stock either as a gift or at a merely nominal price, giving in return the use of their names. The desire to get something for nothing is a very strong one, but everyone should remember that this is seldom, if ever done, and never when the party doing it knows it.

Bargains such as have been offered to the public in and around Salisbury for the past few years would never have got this far if there had been any foundation for the fabulous tales of wealth which were poured into the laps of the fortunate stockholder, but would have been grabbed up by greedy men in our large cities.

As a rule it might be said that only stock which is refused by large investors ever reach here, or stock which they would not dare offer because they know it will not bear the close inspection of well informed business men. Thousands of dollars every year go out of our community in these worthless schemes, and it is time our people are getting their eyes opened to the fact. It would be far better to make all investments at home and with people whom you know than to fool with these slick swindlers. And we must say that we believe that if our leading business men would carefully analyze the use which some of these people make of their names, they would be more careful how they loaned them.

There has many and many a scheme been put before the public of this County during the past few years and it does not need much business sagacity to see that most of them were swindles plain and simple. Some few of course were legitimate business propositions but where one can point to a single one which ever paid back the principal, hundreds can be shown where all was lost. Invest at home unless you are rich enough to play a game where all the cards are stacked against you, and if you lose, it doesn't make any difference anyway.

WOULD CUT THE QUEUE

Chinese Diplomat Would Have The Emperor
Abolish The Pigtail.

Memorializing the Throne at Peking in favor of abolishing the queue, Wu Ting-fang, the former minister to Washington who kept Americans busy answering his questions while he was at this post, has explained how he happened to take the attitude. In his memorial, the text of which has just reached Washington, Dr. Wu says Chinese residents in North America, Central and South America have been mocked and teased by foreigners until they implored him to seek an Imperial edict giving official sanction to cropping the hair and changing their costume to accord with Western ideas.

All through Mexico, Peru, and Cuba, where he visited as Minister, he found the Chinese sincerely loyal and patriotic, but nine-tenths of them had divested themselves of their queues or had secreted them by coiling them on the tops of their heads. The Chinese told him they had found the hanging down of the queues as inconvenient, rolled their clothes and endangered them in many factories and mills. The Minister admonished them for changing their costume which he regarded as sacred but at last he agreed as to the "bald facts" concerning the queues, the elimination of which he now prays for.

Mr. Smith Saved Over $100

Two years ago, Mr. Grant Smith, Erie, Pa. painted three frame houses and the woodwork of a brick house. The painter estimated $116.00 for the paint, lead and oil. He bought Devco $97.40 and returned $11.60. Saved $81.10 on the paint. Don't know the cost of the work. By the rule, the saving of labor would be from $60 to $90.

On all, from $90 to $190.

This is the tale, as it comes from Messrs. W. F. Nick & Son, Devco agents there for years.

LITTLE FARMS ABROAD

A Lesson for Maryland—Good Use for Waste Land.

Mr. B. Howard Haman, the well known lawyer who spent four months in Europe returned Tuesday night. "We have been pioneers in travel in a way," Mr. Haman said, in speaking of his trip. "This summer we selected Brittany where we have friends. After several weeks in Paris and an early visit before the rush of travel began, to the chateau country of Touraine, we made a number of little journeys through the interior of Brittany as well as visiting several of the coast regions. The early part of September we spent among the cathedral towns of Normandy, and the latter part of the month was enjoyed in Holland.

"Perhaps the most vivid impressions I have formed are those of intensive farming in parts of France and Holland. These surpass anything in their practical results that I have known in this country. It has been my good fortune through the kindness of friends abroad to become intimately acquainted with advanced agricultural methods on little farms which I visited. It seems strange to me that in regions like Southern Maryland, which have been so fully described in The Sun, such methods could not be advantageously applied.

"I have also been much impressed by the success attending the management of small cities and towns abroad, particularly in Belgium and Holland. I must think that this success is due simply to the application of ordinary business methods in running the towns.

"I was impressed on my return with the clever and efficient way in which public utilities are conducted on this side of the water. The comforts of railway travel in the United States are greatly beyond what one experiences abroad. Public utility companies serve the people here better than they do in Europe. We are, however, greatly lacking in municipal management and of course in highways. It seems to me two things we need most in Maryland are the adoption of the proposed new charter for Baltimore and a thoroughly modern system of highway throughout the length and breadth of the State."

ZIONISM IN PROPHECY

ADDRESS TO
A Jewish Mass Meeting—The Hippodrome Jammed

New York, October 9.—Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle today addressed a Jewish Mass Meeting, in response to a request sent to him by a Jewish Mass Meeting Invitation Committee. The invitation was signed by many prominent Hebrews of New York City. The invitation and Pastor Russell's response to the same follow:—

New York, September 2, 1910.
Pastor C. T. Russell, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Dear Sir—Your sympathetic interest in the Jewish people for years past has not escaped our notice. Your denunciations of the atrocities perpetrated against our race in the name of Christianity has added to our conviction that you are a sincere friend. Your discourse on "Jerusalem and Jewish Hopes" has struck a responsive cord in the hearts of many of our people. Still we doubted a time when a Christian minister could really be interested in a Jew as a Jew and not merely from a hope of proselyting him. It is because of this feeling that some of us request you to make a public statement respecting the nature of your interest in our people and we desire you to know that from you as a Jew we have nothing to fear from you as a Jew.

On the contrary, in that statement you mentioned that the foundation of your interest in our people is built upon the testimonies of our Law and the messages of our Prophets. You may well understand how surprised we are to find a Christian minister acknowledging that there are prophecies of the Bible still unfulfilled, which belong to the Jew and not to the Christian, and that these prophecies, according to your studies, are nearing a fulfillment of momentous interest to our Jewish race and, through us as a people, to the nations of the world.

These things, Pastor Russell, have led to the formation of a Jewish Mass Meeting Committee, which, by this letter, requests you to give a public discourse, especially to our people. If you will kindly accept this invitation, you will permit us to suggest a topic for your discourse. We believe, will be very interesting to the public and especially to the Jews, namely, "Zionism in Prophecy."

As for the meeting, we suggest Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, October 9th. We have secured an option on the Hippodrome, New York's largest and finest Auditorium. For this date, and we hope that this date and the place will be agreeable to your convenience. We assure you also of a large audience of deeply interested Hebrews, besides whoever may come of the general public.

Trusting to hear from you soon, we subscribe ourselves,
Yours respectfully,
JEWISH MASS MEETING COMMITTEE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 21, 1910.
Jewish Mass Meeting Committee, New York City.
Gentlemen—Your kind invitation to address the Jewish Mass Meeting in the New York Hippodrome Sunday, October 9th, at 3 P. M., came duly to hand. I thank you for the confidence which this invitation implies. The date you have suggested is not only appropriate in its relationship to the Jewish New Year, but it is very suitable to my own arrangements, as I leave on October 12th for appointments in London and elsewhere in Great Britain.

Amongst the several prominent members of your race suggested for Chairman of the Mass Meeting, I select Mr. Jacob Barondess, because I have had the pleasure personally of conference with him and because I know him to be very loyal to the interests of your people and because I believe him to be very highly esteemed as such in the councils of your race.

Faithfully and respectfully yours,
C. T. RUSSELL.

The Hippodrome is really an immense and elegant Opera House with a capacity of about five thousand. It was crowded today and many failed to gain access. The Jewish people of this City, who number more than a million, have become deeply impressed by various discourses, which Pastor Russell has recently delivered and were alert for today's meeting. The presentation of Zionism as foretold by the prophets. The speaker held his immense audience spellbound for nearly two hours, all apparently as unconscious of the flight of time as was the speaker himself. After the service the Hebrews could be seen in little knots and groups here and there in the corridors and in the streets discussing the subject. The speaker's views were evidently shared by the majority. Altogether the meeting was something unique. Never before did Jews give such attention to the message of a Christian minister. And never before did a Christian minister give such a message to the Jews.

What Pastor Russell Said.
The speaker read to his audience many quotations from the prophecies of the Bible relating to Zionism, the first one of which was Psalm cii, 13-18:—"Thou shalt arise and have mercy upon Zion; for the time to favor her, yea, the set time, is come. For thy servants take pleasure in her stones, and favor the dust thereof. Then shall the Gentiles fear the name of Jehovah, and all the kings of the earth thy glory. When the Lord shall build up Zion, he shall appear in his glory."

Pastor Russell declared that while once he had been inclined to discard the Bible as unreliable along the lines of Higher Criticism, he had subsequently given it the earnest study, entirely apart from all creeds and theories of men. This study had greatly enlightened his mind and had given him a very different view of the sacred Book. He now has absolute confidence in it. He now realizes, not only that there is a great Creator, but that he is definite, orderly, in his dealings with humanity, in his shaping of earth's affairs. For instance, the first Psalm quoted mentions the time, yea, the set time, for the return of Divine favor to Zion. So he finds matters all through the Scriptures. In due time David, Solomon and others represented Jehovah in the Kingdom of Israel and "sat upon the throne of the Kingdom of the Lord." Later the Kingdom was taken from Zedekiah, the last of the line of David to sit upon the throne of God's typical Kingdom. When the dominion was taken from him the Gentile governments were instituted, but not in the same manner as was Israel. None of them was designated the Kingdom of God. None of them was given perpetuity of rule. But Gentile governments were promised a lease of power during the period when Israel would be cast off from God's favor. Then at the end of the appointed time the Gentile lease of earthly power in turn, and God's original provision for Israel to represent his Kingdom in the world, would return. These are the set times referred to by the Psalmist. God's promise to David—"The sure mercies of David"—were that of the fruit of his loins one should sit on the throne of the Lord forever. The real purport of this promise was that Messiah, the long-promised King of Israel, would be the root and offshoot of the Davidic line and blessed of the Lord; his Kingdom should be an everlasting one and fully competent to fulfill all of the Divine promises made to Abraham—"In thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

Zedekiah Rejected—Nebuchadnezzar Acknowledged.

So long as God acknowledged the nation of Israel as his Kingdom their kings were his representatives; but when Zedekiah was rejected it was not inconsistent on the Lord's part to recognize the Gentile governments, as above suggested. Of King Zedekiah we read, "O thou profane and wicked Prince, whose time has come that iniquity should have an end. Remove the diadem. Take off the crown. This shall not be the same. I will overturn, overturn, overturn it until he come whose right it is (Messiah), and I will give it unto him" (Ezekiel xxi, 26, 27). It was at this very time that God gave the lease of earthly power to Nebuchadnezzar and his successors, as is related in Daniel's prophecy. Nebuchadnezzar dreamed, but disembodied his vision. Daniel the Prophet, made prisoner at an earlier date, was, by Divine providence, introduced to the king as the one person in all the world able to rehearse the King's dream and to give its interpretation, and his power to do so is declared to have been of the Lord.

Nebuchadnezzar's Vision of Gentile Dominion.

The vision was of a stupendous image. Its head of gold represented Nebuchadnezzar's Empire—Babylon. Its breast and arms of silver represented the Medo-Persian Empire. Its belly and thighs of brass represented the Grecian Empire. Its strong legs of iron represented the Roman Empire, East and West. Its feet of iron and clay represented Papal Rome. The iron continues to represent civil governments, and the clay, making them appear like stone, represented ecclesiasticism as it is now mixed up with the politics of the ten kingdoms of Europe. The whole period of time in which these various Gentile governments would dominate the world would last until Messiah's promised Kingdom. And this period is symbolically stated to have been "seven times"; that is, seven years—evidently not literal years, but symbolical.

At their end the lease of earthly power of Gentile governments will terminate in the great time of trouble foretold by Daniel (xii, 1). Then Messiah shall stand up in the sense of assuming control of earth's affairs and Gentile governments will cease, for all nations shall serve and obey Messiah. And then God's Chosen People, Israel, will come to the front in the world's affairs, because they will become the representatives and instruments amongst men of Messiah's Kingdom, which will be spiritual and invisible, as is that of the Prince of the world, the Prince of darkness, whom Messiah will bind or restrain during the thousand years of his reign of righteousness and destroy at the conclusion, when he shall deliver over the Kingdom of earth to the Father. Mankind will then be perfect, because all wilful sinners will be destroyed in the Second Death. Meantime, Messiah's reign will not only bless and uplift Israel, but through Israel the blessing will extend to every nation, people, kindred and tongue in full accord with the Divine promise and oath made to Abraham more than thirty centuries ago.

All this is briefly and beautifully represented in Nebuchadnezzar's dream, as explained by Daniel. He saw a stone taken from the mountain without human aid. He watched and saw the stone smite the image on its feet and behold, as the result, complete demolishment of the Gentile systems. This smiting of the image in the feet symbolically represents that it will be by Divine power that present institutions will all come to naught preparatory to the establishment of the Kingdom of God in their stead.

Messiah's Kingdom in the Vision.
Then Messiah's Kingdom, symbolized by the stone, will not only fill the place where the image stood, but, gradually increasing, will fill the whole earth. From this standpoint, asks the speaker, it is not difficult for us to believe the words of the Psalmist that there is a time for God's regathering Zion, yea, a set time—fixed and unalterable. The speaker would not pretend to say the day or month or year in which these things would be accomplished—in which the Gentile lease of earth's dominion would expire and Messiah's Kingdom assume control. He did, however, offer suggestions as to how the events in very much closer than many of us had supposed. The seven times, or years, of Gentile domination, reckoned on the basis suggested in the Scriptures themselves, should be interpreted a day for a year, lunar time. Seven years in lunar time would represent 330 days and these, symbolically interpreted, would mean 330 years—from the time Nebuchadnezzar, the head of the image, was rejected down to the time of the expiration of the lease of Gentile power, when the stone shall smite the image in the feet. So far as Pastor Russell has been able to determine, the year of Zedekiah's dethronement was 605 B. C. Thus completed the 70 years of Gentile lease of power, will expire in October, 1914. There are some who claim that Zedekiah's dethronement should be dated B. C. 588. If this be true it could make a difference of but eighteen years and give the date 1902. Pastor Russell's convictions, however, favor the 1914 date.

Zionism's Future Assured.
For more than thirty years I have been presenting to Christian people the views I am today presenting specially to Jews, at the invitation of your Committee. Thirty years ago I attempted to tell to Israel the good tidings that God's set time to remember Zion had come. But that seemingly was too early. God's set time for Israel to hear was still future. I waited and am still waiting for God's own time and way for the fulfillment of Isaiah xl, 1, 2—"Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people; speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem. Cry unto her that her appointed time is accomplished, and her iniquity pardoned, for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all of her sin."

"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform." About twenty years ago providence raised up for your people a great leader, Dr. Herzl, whose name is now a household word with your race. While your people were waiting for any movement that I could give them they were ready for what God sent them through Dr. Herzl—a message of hope, a message of national aspiration which awakened the pulse of your people into new hope regarding the future of the Jews. Dr. Herzl's endeavor was to have all loyal sons of Israel rise from the dust and aspire to be a nation amongst nations and to pride a home for the persecuted of their race in Russia and Eastern Europe. Dr. Herzl struck the popular cord in the hearts of the people. At first it was purely political, and the name of Zion meant little of anything religious; but gradually Dr. Herzl and all the leaders of the councils of your people began to see that the movement of the movement was the strongest, the most powerful.

Dr. Herzl has been succeeded by Dr. Weizmann, also a Jew, of great talent and great patriotism; but Zionism languishes. I am disclosing no secret when I tell you that amongst the leaders, we well know, amongst the rank and file, Zionism is crumbling in the face of the fear of coming to naught. It has spent its force along the lines originally inaugurated; but it will not fall, as many fear. Without assuming the nature of a seer I answer you that Zionism is about to take on fresh vigor; that its most prosperous days are yet to come. According to my understanding of the Hebrew prophets the time of "Jacob's trouble" is not yet ended. Further pogroms of Russia may be expected and further atrocities in Roumania and elsewhere. It is indeed to be obliged to admit that these tribulations will probably come to you from professed Christians. How ashamed I feel of the Jewish dethronement of the name and the teachings of my Master. I cannot find words to express! They are deluded. They have misunderstood the Ten Commandments and they follow. Their thought is not to profess the name of Christ. Controlled by delusion they are serving the god Adversary and dishonoring the name of the Father and the difficulties of the patriarch Joseph were God's providences to lead him on to influence and power and honor, so will all these experiences and persecutions work blessings for your race and tend to drive them out of their present satisfaction and make them long for home—for Palestine. These experiences, which will be the voice of the prophets, which will henceforth more and more ring in your ears, will be the providences of God to accomplish that which the prophets have foretold. It is not my thought that the eight millions of Jew in the world will all go to Palestine, even though they have been estimated that, under most favorable conditions, the land could support more than twenty millions. It is my thought that some of your most earnest and saintly people will go to Palestine quickly, that the rejuvenation there will be astonishing to the world. Whether, it is my thought that Jew in every part of the world, in proportion as they come under the holy influences of God's promises through the prophets, will go to Palestine sympathetically—by encouraging those who can better go than themselves and by financial assistance and the establishment of these great centers of Jewish life, I am willing to suggest that in the time of trouble, incidental to the transfer of Gentile rule to the power of Messiah, all financial interests will be jeopardized. Many of your race, growing wealthy, will surely take pleasure in forwarding the work of Zionism, as soon as they shall realize that it is of God, foretold through the prophets. And those of your people of insufficient faith to use their means in forwarding the Lord's work at this important juncture will, however, lose and themselves in the condition pictured by the Prophet Ezekiel, who declares (vii, 19) that in this great day of trouble—"They shall cast their silver in the streets and their gold shall not be removed; their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of the Lord." The great Master of the universe, whom you delight in (Malachi iii, 1-3) will test and prove you as a people. Those who worship idols of gold and silver, stocks and bonds, will receive severe chastisement at his hand that they may learn a great lesson before he will grant them a share in the coming blessings.

Do You Get Up
With a Lame Back?
Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.
Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and blood purifier. It is a health restoring medicine. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in over-coming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It is a remedy for the inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and get up many times during the night.
Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also receive a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer and send in this paper and a sample bottle to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Salisbury People Should Know How To Read And Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment. Passages are frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is constant, day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent. The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay. Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache. Salisbury evidence proves this statement. John H. Connolly, 805 E. Isabella Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and know of nothing better for curing kidney complaint. When in Virginia I was obliged to drink impure water and my kidneys became disordered, causing my back to grow very weak. At that time I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I was given prompt relief. I recently procured a supply of this remedy at White & Leonard's Drug Store to have on hand in case of need."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

WOMEN FIGHT ELOPE-

ments—Appeal to Local Ministers Not To Perform Hasty Marriages.

In Rockville the Rockville Union Bible Class, the membership of which comprise many of the leading women of Rockville and vicinity, has issued an appeal to the ministers of Rockville, to exercise more care and discrimination in the administration of the marriage laws. A copy has been sent to each one of the ministers of the town. It is as follows:

"Referring to the recent order of the county clerk prohibiting the issuance of marriage licenses after office hours, which order has received favorable comments by the press and public generally, our organization begs leave to appeal to the ministers of our churches individually and collectively, to supplement the effort of the civil authorities to correct an abuse that has amounted to a reproach upon our town and county by declining to marry any persons, even when licensed to wed, unless at least one of the parties is known to the minister or is vouched for by a reputable person who is personally known to the minister."

"Many of these applicants are too young to enter upon such a sacred relation, while a goodly number are fleeing from parental authority. We respectfully submit that a majority of the marriages in Rockville are those of non-residents of this county are not of this character, coming at unseasonable hours and in unseemly haste. We beg to call to your attention some newspaper items which show how frequently the name of Rockville appears in unfavorable mention."

FASHION BANS BROAD

Shoulders—Athletic Chests With Narrow Shoulders, All The Rage For Men.

Well-tailored men of the coming fall will be narrow of shoulders and broad of chest, and the present type of the wide-shouldered but anemic "clothing-store athlete" will have vanished from the realm of elite.

Exhibits at the fashion show pre-arranged the passing of artificial wide shoulders and bare evidence that superfluous cloth in future will be lavished in the chest.

The overcoat will be loose and baggy. The latest thing in keep-warm clothing is called a "great coat." Any size will fit anyone fairly well, but is guaranteed not to fit any individual perfectly. The coat will bear the winter collar of last winter, only more so.

The "straight front," close-fitting collar has been placed on the backlist, and its most favored successor is one that looks somewhat like an Elizabethan ruff.

Flowing ties have come into their own. Their only rival for popular favor is the parti-colored tie, which displays an amazing set of contrasts when knotted four-in-hand.

The narrow-shouldered business suit, in addition to its burly chest, will be remarkable for the exceeding closeness of its fit around the hips. Peg-top trousers, gripping the shoe tops tightly, will be worn.

Zion Church News.

Last Sunday was a red letter day at Zion Methodist Episcopal Church.

Our pastor, Rev. E. H. Collins, failing to secure any one to assist him in the service, took charge himself and preached a strong sermon on the "Immutability of Jesus Christ."

After being closed for two months, the good people met to reopen their church. The weather conditions were a little unfavorable in the morning yet before the time for service in the afternoon the clouds and rain had all passed away, and the afternoon was an ideal one. A splendid congregation was present.

The Committee on Improvements proved themselves worthy of such a trust—and the good ladies—well, no words can express their good qualities. Excellent is the comment passed by all. Thorough overhauling of the exterior, beautifying the interior with new paper, carpet, painting and decorating, rearranging the pews, making a large center aisle, building a platform across the front of the church and many other little touches, making Zion one of the most beautiful country churches that you will find any where. Surprised at the extent of the improvements were all the people when they met for the re-opening—and that all these betterments were made for less than $250, few could believe. This amount had already been given by the good people who with the pastor greatly rejoice in their achievement.

A series of revival meetings are now being held in this church. Do your best to be present. Come, praying for an out-pouring of God's Holy Spirit. A royal welcome awaits you.

In the absence of our pastor next Sunday, Miss Kelley, a Deaconess of Wilmington, will spend the entire day on this charge, speaking at Parsonsburg at 10.30 A. M.; at Melson's Church at 3.00 P. M.; and will conduct revival service at Zion Church in the evening at 7.30 P. M. This is a rare treat for the people of this community. Miss Kelley is a consecrated and talented young woman, a very forcible speaker. Let no one fail to hear her.

Our pastor will spend the day at Brandy, Md., assisting Rev. F. N. Faulkner, an ex-pastor of Parsonsburg Church, in the dedication of a new church.

Death of Thomas H. Collins

Mr. Thomas H. Collins, one of the most prominent merchants of Snow Hill, died at his home in that town last Friday afternoon of heart disease after an illness of about two weeks' duration. Mr. Collins was 62 years of age. Mr. Collins leaves a widow, one daughter, Miss Lucile Collins, and one son, Mr. Howard Collins, the latter being associated with his father in business. Mr. Collins was a brother of Messrs. Oliver D. Collins, John J. Collins and Mrs. J. H. White, of Snow Hill. Mr. Collins was a Democrat and at one time was president of the Board of Election Supervisors of Worcester County.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Home-Seekers

Take Notice!

I HAVE THE FOLLOWING VALUABLE REAL ESTATE WHICH I WILL SELL AT PRIVATE SALE:

No. 1—Consists of 101 acres and buildings situated about half way between Salisbury and Delmar, at the intersection of the Delmar and the Dagoboro road, and about one mile from Williams siding on the N. Y., P. & N. railroad. Price $6,000.

No. 2—Consists of 60 acres fronting on the Delmar road, which has been built under the Shoemaker law, and is directly south of the above-described property. This tract has no buildings and can be bought for $3,000.

No. 3—Consists of 75 acres fronting on same road, directly south of No. 2. This is the old Leonard homestead. The dwelling is in good repair, and the outbuildings, with a little attention at slight cost, can be made to answer for several years. This is good land, as the crops now growing on the farm will show. The location is ideal and the price is $7,500.

No. 4—Is directly south of No. 3, fronting on the same road, and contains 60 acres. This is an especially desirable tract of land, but contains no buildings. The price is $3,500.

No. 5—Consists of a little over 75 acres, fronting on same road and directly south of No. 4. About 25 acres cleared, the balance in woodland, mostly cut over, but still containing a considerable amount of fire wood; also contains a small dwelling in fairly good repair. Although a little rough in its present condition, this can be made a very valuable farm, the quality of the land being exceptionally good. The price is $3,350.

No. 6—Contains 3 acres adjoining the Salisbury Fair Grounds on the side and is opposite Sewell Richardson's. A very valuable lot. Price $1,000.

No. 7—Immediately adjoins No. 6 and contains 4 1/2 acres. Price $1,300.

No. 8—Lies west of No. 7 and contains 6 acres. Price $1,500.

No. 9—Consists of 15 acres, dwelling and outbuildings, and lies directly in front of Mr. James E. Lowe's new residence, on Quantico road, and is very valuable property. Price $4,350.

No. 10—Is west of No. 9, contains 5 acres and has already been sold to Mr. Woodford Johnson.

No. 11—Is west of No. 10, contains 10 acres and is a very desirable tract. Price $3,500.

No. 12—Is west of No. 11 and situated at the beginning of the Stone road leading to Quantico. This tract contains 10 acres and the price is $3,500.

No. 13—Is directly in front of Mr. Stanford Culver's, on the Quantico road, and contains 8 and 48-100ths acres. Price $1,800.

No. 14—Consists of 3 acres just outside the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying between South Division Street extended and the N. Y., P. & N. railroad. Price $750.

No. 15—Consists of something over 3 acres immediately adjoining No. 14. Price $750.

No. 16—Consists of 3 acres lying on the east side of South Division Street extended, about three-eighths of a mile from the corporate limits. Price $600.

No. 17—Contains 10 acres and is immediately adjoining the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying along the N. Y., P. & N. railroad, and fronting on Quantico street, directly south of Salisbury and in section commonly known as "Hastings town." This tract will be sold in acre lots at $300 each, or will sell the entire piece to one party. Price on application.

All of the above properties were originally bought for their exceptionally good location. Each and every one of the above-named parcels of land, except No. 17, are fronting on prominent highways that have already been improved under the specifications of the Shoemaker law, and are especially desirable to progressive parties wishing to build homes in good neighborhoods.

Through the Pantry Window

By Claudine Sloan

On a certain chill October afternoon, which was brightened only by a flare of crimson leaves on all the maples and the ever-present tangles of aster and golden rod along the bushy banks, Elsie turned her horse in at a rickety picket gate and dismounted before the porch of a tiny, shabby, neglected house.

Tears came to Elsie's eyes, as she thought of the dead woman who had animated it with her kindly presence. She felt that she would like to go in and look about and try to imagine to refresh the abandoned rooms and to people them with the gentle figures that had once frequented them.

The thin old horse, a freckled gray from the livery stable in town, was pulling at the reins in an effort to get his nose to the grass. Elsie sought for some place to make him secure and remembered the little barn. If the door was not nailed up she could put him in there.

The door was not nailed up. It slid open easily and she led the horse in and tied him to the stall which had held only cobwebs and hay and dust for a long time. A little had remained in one corner. She carried it to the horse, who received it as eagerly as if it had been the freshest of fodder. Then she went to the house.

It was locked securely. She went about trying the shutters. At last she found one partly off the hinges—blown off by a high wind, no doubt. She swung it clear and put her hand to the window underneath. To her surprise, it raised as she pushed upon it. She seemed to hear a familiar voice saying in her ear:

"The ketch on that pantry window needs fixing bad, but I can't seem to do it. But, la! what difference does it make? There ain't no burglar coming in here for the little trash I've got. If one did come in he'd be glad enough to get out again, after I'd given it to him good and lively with that old pair of brass tongs I keep handy for the purpose."

Aunt Hope's dear voice! Aunt Hope's own remembered words! At last this was the pantry window. Elsie looked in. The tiny place was neat, the cupboard doors shut; an old iron spider hung against the wall. It looked perfectly natural and right, quite as if aunt Hope had just stepped out. Clara's Maine, the heiress, had left some things as they should be.

The window sill was only knee high from the ground, and Elsie climbed over it easily. She let down the window behind her. The floor gave back an empty sound beneath her feet as she walked across it to the kitchen. The kitchen, too, was quite unchanged. There stood the old-fashioned stove from which she had eaten so many of aunt Hope's good dinners. In the dining room the chairs and the table still stood in their places upon the painted floor. But the dishes were gone from the shelves where aunt Hope had kept them. Clara's Maine had appreciated the fact that such old blue ware was valuable.

After the dining room came the parlor, the room that in aunt Hope's lifetime Elsie had always loved best. It was a good sized room in the front of the house. She lifted a window and turned the sash of the closed shutters. The yellow afternoon light came in across the bare floor. Immense notes danced in its rays. Upon the walls a few old pictures still hung, and the wall paper showed fresh spaces upon its faded surface where others had been.

Elsie sat down upon one of the appealing chairs and clasped her hands in their riding gauntlets about her knee. There was a chill of firelessness and stale air in the room, but she did not feel it. She was thinking of the last time she had been in this room. There had been flowers in the room and many people. In the midst lay aunt Hope, always hitherto so graceful and genial, so quick to respond to the love of her friends and neighbors. Her hands were crossed upon a flower; her lips smiled a new little smile of understanding of men's ways and of God's. Above the hushed sound of tears rose a dignified voice: "I am the resurrection and the life."

How vividly she remembered it all! She had sat here and he had sat there with aunt Hope between. And though they both looked at aunt Hope tearfully they would not look at each other. How pale he had been! And, perhaps, she, too, had been just as pale under her veil. Well, it was over. Of what use was it to regret? Yet Elsie knew how seriously aunt Hope had longed for them to be friends again, how strongly she had advised their making up their foolish quarrel.

"You are both young and high tempered," she had pleaded again and again, "but there'll come a time when you'll be old and remorseful unless you make up now. Why, you are made for each other, Elsie. You'll never be happy with anyone else, nor will David. He's a splendid young fellow. Don't I know? Wasn't I with his mother the night he was born, and haven't I watched him grow up from baby to man? And haven't I watched you grow up, too? And I love you both. I've tried to have you care for each other because I felt that was as it should be. And now you're let that little trollop of a Doris Kennedy come between you! Oh, I know what folks say about me—that I am a meddling matchmaker."

"Peacemaker, aunt Hope," Elsie had laughed, tremulously.

"Well, then, peacemaker. I hope I am. Blessed you know what the Bible says. But I ain't sure of that unless you'll let me make peace between you and David!"

"Some day," Elsie had half promised. That was a year ago. Then they had met at aunt Hope's funeral and had not spoken. Afterward David had gone back to the city to his work and Elsie had gone here in the little country town. As far as she knew now, her romance was ended. There was no aunt Hope to advise and gently smooth away the difficulty.

But, oh, the sweetness and the bitterness of it lingered with her like mingled myrrh and honey. She had loved David—she loved him still—and must go on loving him as long as she lived. But she had the Bennett temper. He had it, too, far back somewhere, a couple of generations ago, a certain marriage had made them kin. She would not give up. Neither would he. And it was all because she had not liked his city cousin, Doris Kennedy, and he had! Perhaps down in her heart Elsie had been a bit jealous of the blonde young woman who looked as if she had been run in an exceedingly slender mold, and had never so much as bent her back since—an effect obtained, it was said, by means of an exacting dressmaker.

Elsie was far too natural to admire Doris' immobility, loads of false hair and layers of pink and white powder. And she had told David so in a none too pleasant way. "But her heart's all right," he had argued, stoutly. "Doris is a good girl. The trouble is, you are envious of her, that's all."

"Envious!" cried Elsie, scarlet with rage. So the quarrel had begun.

As she sat there, now in the empty room Elsie owned to herself sadly that she had been unreasonable. After all, Doris was David's own cousin and older than he. There had been no reason in the world for her being jealous—as she had been; yes, she had to admit that now.

"If only I had listened to aunt Hope. If only I had let her make peace as she wished—"

A crash at the back of the house startled her. A window had fallen! She sprang to her feet. Steps were coming toward her through the house—heavy steps—a man's. Now they were in the kitchen—now the dining room. She plunged toward the door that opened into the little front entry. It was locked. She tugged at it frantically. Heaven! To be shut in this house with a tramp. Still tugging, with futile desperation, at the unyielding door she looked back over her shoulder (just as the intruder appeared in the parlor door—a tall young fellow in a respectable ulster, who looked almost as white and shaken as she knew she was.

"Elsie!" he exclaimed. "Great Scott!"

"David!" she gasped. And half fell against the supporting door. They stared at each other, the color slowly coming back to their faces.

"Did you get in at the pantry window, too?" Elsie asked, when she could.

He nodded.

"I remembered that aunt Hope was always going to have it fixed and never did. What are you doing here, Elsie?" He came close to her.

"What are you?"

"I came because I had to. I felt as if I was being called."

"David! That's just the way I felt."

Their eyes sought each other's, awe-struck, wondering. Then their hands met.

"Forgive me, Elsie. I was wrong," he faltered.

"Forgive me, David, I was wrong, too."

They clung together.

"I didn't care for Doris. But she was my cousin—"

"I know. I know."

She was in his arms now. And she had kissed her.

"David," Elsie said, from his shoulder, solemnly. "Do you suppose—that she, aunt Hope, drew us here today?"

His eyes had the look of one who has been very near his holy things.

"Why, I know," he answered, very low. "Blessed are the peacemakers!"

Mrs. Golightly's Lesson

"Now, dear, I'll teach you how to play chess," said Mr. Golightly, as he settled himself for the evening. "Get the board and men, and you may bring my pipe, too."

"It's so nice of you to be willing to show me—"

"Of course, my dear, you know it is a man's game—it really takes brain to play a good game of chess. I hope you can master it enough to make a game interesting to me some time."

"Yes, dear," answered his wife, meekly.

"Now, Mrs. Golightly, you can't play chess with the board at an angle of 45 degrees."

"Degrees of what?"

"Fahrenheit. Get a higher chair and put your mind on the game—"

"I like this rocker; it's comfortable."

"It's against all rules of chess to keep fidgeting—"

"I'll put a book on my lap. I've been studying the rules, but I didn't see anything about fidgeting."

Here the book slipped and the board was only saved by the quick action of Mr. Golightly.

"If you think this a 'shoot the chutes,' you are mistaken," he said, severely. "My idea is to teach you chess—if possible."

"I'll get a higher chair," she said, assuming the expression of an early Christian martyr. "I learned how to set the men out of the book, only I want to play with the white ones, 'cause I've been practicing with them."

"What has the color to do with the game? Now I move—"

Perfect silence for a few minutes. "It's your move, dear," said Mrs. Golightly.

"Don't I know it? A man has to stop to think; he doesn't play any old thing. 'This is it,' give away."

"Then why do you put your castle where I can take it?"

"Because I was trying to show you the game, and I have to talk so much—"

"I thought you said it required silence!"

"It does, unless you are playing with a woman." Here Golightly started to take one of her men.

"Oh, wait, I haven't taken my fingers off yet. I don't think I'll move it there. I'll move it here and check your king."

"Very nice, only you can't jump across the board that way. Check to your queen."

"Too bad. I must take your queen. I guess you didn't see my bishop. Do you want me to take it back?"

"I don't play the baby act. If I hadn't been talking to you I should not have moved there."

Mrs. Golightly swept the queen from the board, and left two men in jeopardy.

"Ahem! I was watching your side—"

"I should think you'd watch your own. I do. It isn't your move."

"Yes, it is."

"No, you moved, and I took your queen and then you—"

"Don't get excited. Keep your temper—if you can. You make more fuss than you. This isn't a new bonnet," snarled Mr. Golightly.

"I think I am playing well enough to beat you just the same."

"Certainly when I have to work for us both. You may be able to beat a donkey—"

"That's what I said," grinned Mrs. Golightly. "Oh!" she shrieked, plunging through an unguarded space. "I'm going to take your king."

"Put that man down," yelled Golightly. "You can't take a king. You don't understand the first rudiments of the game—after all my teaching—"

"But he is so he can't move—"

"That would be checkmate—only I can move here."

"No you can't. My man guards that!"

"Well, if you can't play a simple game of chess without yelling like a Comanche—"

"What's a Comanche? Anyway, you can't move."

And Golightly looked what he wanted to say.

Wasn't Confidential Way.

Little Wee had been brought up to be polite, and not to interrupt when there was company unless it was very important. He always remembered this and kept very quiet. One day there were visitors who talked and stayed and stayed, until poor little Wee was tired. He wished them to go, but not for anything would he let them see this.

All of a sudden he thought of a nice plan that his mother and father knew when he was too little to spell and they did not want to hurt his feelings. So in a little pause in the ladies' talk, Wee said, in the prettiest way: "Mother, please can't we be a-t-o-n-e?"

And all the visitors laughed and kissed him goodby, and gave him his good mother all to himself.—Youth's Companion.

The Hat and Royalty.

The hat plays a considerable part in civilization as a sign and a symbol, quite apart from its purpose as a shelter against the weather. In the Mother of Parliaments, the etiquette regarding it is so elaborate that new members frequently find themselves involved in difficulties. There are two peers who to this day possess the right of remaining covered in the presence of royalty; if they care to exercise it. And the king always puts on his field marshal's hat before he reads the speech to the assembled lords and commons.—London Chronicle.

Disappointments of Our Lives

By REV. F. R. MARSH
Pastor First Congregational Church
Houston, Texas

What we see, largely determines what we are. The books we read and the sights we witness furnish much of the foodstuffs out of which character is made. Indeed, we say broadly: "Seeing is believing," and limit the field of man's activities to the boundaries of his horizon.

It is not without significance that the children of Israel, dying from fever caused by the fiery serpents, were told that everyone who looked about him, surely the principle is of wider application than this isolated incident. It can be truly said that only those who look really live. Here is a blind man. He never had the incentive to work that comes to every man at the sight of thousands of his fellows thronging our city's streets, intent upon their business. Standing on some mountain peak, he never saw the crimson bars falling behind the king of day; never knew the glory of God as shown with stars and constellations unfold his mighty acts; never felt the inspiration when the night was passed and on the morning sky clusters of purple cloud began to ripen in the crimson dawn—that man does not know nature, nor life nor God. Vision has value.

Years have passed. You have not been living on the tower. You have plunged in the valleys. You have waded deep waters. You have scaled steep heights. Sometimes it has been hard, God knows. Down the highways of the years you have come struggling, crying, cursing, sometimes praying, but the ideal has not been realized. Disappointment means the failure of one of two parties to keep an appointment. The vision has failed.

Here is where a prophet on a tower is needed. He can see some things which you can not. You, in the depths below! You, in the darkness behind! You, disappointed at the appointed place, hear what the Lord God says to Habbakuk on the tower: "The vision is yet for an appointed time."

Life's disappointments are a universal experience. Some disappointments must succeed the certain delusions of youth. The man higher up has spoken a word to us and our cherished plans have crumbled like a jig saw puzzle. Joys we have sought are crowded back into the future. Stern reality has driven beyond today into that vast tomorrow, blessings that seemed almost within our grasp.

It is equally true of the moral life. In the darkness of some depression we have had a vision of what we might be, of what we ought to be and of what we said: "By the grace of God, we will be."

But we haven't. At least I hope we have not attained that ideal. I say "hope so," because it means we have achieved that ambition it means, not that we have made wonderful progress, but that the vision was too insignificant to have lasting value. The disappointments of life, be they in secular business, Christian work or Christian character, may produce one of two results. One is despair. Hope deferred makes the heart sick. Disappointments are like eggs, which, brooded over and hatched, produce the serpents of despair. When a man begins to ask: "What's the use?" he ought to stop and find out.

The other effect of disappointment may be to call up reserves of strength and new battalions of energy.

Within the past year three notable biographies have been published of an actor, a soldier and a reporter. Richard Mansfield, autocrat of haughty spirit, at the beginning of his career was offered an important part in a play. He fainted because he had been two days without food, which he was too poor to buy, and was immediately dismissed. Disappointment of poverty. Tecumseh Sherman, forty years old, wrote: "I look upon myself as a dead cock in the pit, not worthy of further notice." Disappointed ambition! A little English boy, whose father was dead, whose mother had abandoned him, ran away from the poor house, drifted to America, fought as a Confederate soldier at Shiloh and eventually crowned disappointment with the laurels of success. His real name was John Henry M. Stanley.

Think of the disappointments of these men and a host of others who have endured as seeing an invisible vision. Paul wrote: "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed." We are perplexed, but not altogether without help. Persecuted but not forsaken. Cast down, but not destroyed. This means that with a vision to be attained, there must also be added a vision to secure attainment. This means that with an ideal there must also be added a force to realize that ideal.

Now, with this added help, though the vision tarry, wait for it. Do not discard the ideal. Do not even cramp the ideal to fit the real. Grow in its dimensions. Do not shrink the fact to fit your past efforts. Redouble your efforts. Be absolutely sure you have the right ideal before you make it your ideal.

Then, though it tarry, your disappointment will prove heaven's appointment for a future day and God will be on time.

House Frocks. The new materials that are being shown are for the most part decidedly heavier, though quite as soft and pliant as the ones of last year. Among them, however, in spite of the prominence given to heavy cloths, silks, velvets and cashmeres of all weights and weaves, there are many new materials admirably adapted to house gowns and negligees. Marquise in soft, bright colors makes the most delightful sort of tea gown.

WAYS OF SERVING POTATO

Recipes for a Week's Daily Variation of the Vegetable for Those Who Have It Habitually.

For the household which demands its "daily potato" here is a suggestion and a recipe for a daily variation of the vegetable:

Sunday—Mashed potatoes, peel, thin, steam, place in a pan and mash. Add milk, butter and salt, and beat like a cake batter, the longer the better, till they are nice and light. This steaming and heating will be a great improvement.

Monday—Bake potatoes in their jackets. If any are left over they may be warmed; do not peel them till cold, and then slice.

Tuesday—Peel and bake them with roast beef.

Wednesday—The potatoes are sliced thin as for frying and allowed to remain in cold water half an hour. The slices are then put in a pudding dish with salt and pepper and some milk, about one-half pint; put into an oven and bake for an hour.

Thursday—Peel, steam and serve whole.

Friday—Potatoes as is parsnips. Peel, cut in thin slices, lengthwise, sprinkle with pepper and salt and fry in butter or beef dripping, turning like griddle cakes.

Saturday—Potatoes boiled in their jackets.

The Home

Never try any brass or silver polish on lacquered ware. It will mean relacquering if you do.

When cooking dried peaches rub or cut off the skin. They will have when cooked a totally different and more delicate flavor.

If the flavor of onions is unpleasant afterward—they are not digestible with every one—use soda mint or a pinch of salt on tongue.

The secret of keeping chamois skin soft and supple is to hang it up to dry while still soapy. Remember this when washing chamois gloves.

If there is no regular day for silver cleaning the hostess will frequently be mortified by that sign of bad house-keeping, dingy table silver.

The cook who knows how to make good soup clears it with the white of an egg. It gathers together all small solids, as it does when dropped into coffee, thus making it clear.

Do not use either bread or cracker crumbs without seasoning. No amount of seasoning in the interior of a croquette or other made dish will make up for this omission.

Try putting horseradish through a meat chopper instead of grating it. It is much less trying to prepare. Bread-crumbs are also more easily prepared if run through the finest cogs of the meat chopper.

Knives that are used in peeling or cutting an onion should be immediately plunged into boiling water, then rubbed with sand soap and well rinsed or they may favor the next thing that is cut with them.

Cream of Cucumber.

Peel two large cucumbers, cut them in quarters, remove the seeds and slice coarsely. Parboil in salted water and drain. Put in a saucepan with two tablespoons of butter and one spoonful of oil. Season with sugar, salt, pepper and celery salt as required. Melt in another saucepan two tablespoons butter, stir in a tablespoon flour and cook without browning; add the cooked cucumber and one quart of hot milk. Cook slowly for ten minutes. Beat well the yolk of one egg in the tureen. Pour the soup slowly on the beaten yolk and serve with waters and croutons.

Bran Cakes.

One cup of brown sugar; one tablespoonful of granulated sugar; one cup of sour cream; one beaten egg; one teaspoonful of soda; the grated rind of a lemon; a pinch of salt, two and one-half cups of flour; one-half cup of chopped raisins. Mix and cook in 18 gem pans or a good-sized loaf tin.

Keeping Curtains Clean.

To prevent curtains from becoming soiled when the windows are open, by blowing against the screens, attach a safety pin to hem of curtain and catch over a small brass hook, screwed to the side of window, at a convenient height.

Steamed Pudding.

One cup of milk, one-half cup of molasses, one-third cup of butter, one-third teaspoonful of soda, one and one-half cups of flour, apples to taste. A few raisins may be added if these are liked. Steam for two hours.

Eggs With Tomato Sauce.

Boil six eggs hard; cut them lengthwise in halves and lay in a dish. Cover with seasoned tomato sauce. Stand over hot water for 15 minutes and serve.

The Little Time.

So little time to love you—so little time to see—The eyes that have made Heaven On this poor earth for me!

So little time to meet.

Unto that voice which thrills A soul with sweetest music—That mocking birds or pine.

But thanked that I met you In days when Love was new, And that I can't forget you—That I should not forget!

—James L. Watson in Atlantic Ocean.

IS LITTLE WORRIED.

Mrs. Hudson Not Brooding Over Ten-Year Sentence in Prison.

Perfectly calm and self possessed and with no apparent brooding over the fact that she will spend at least 10 years, less 20 months, within the gray stone walls of the Maryland Penitentiary, Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Hudson, who shot and killed her husband, Tobias Hudson, in the office of State's Attorney Bailey in Salisbury, Md. two months ago, sits in one of the receiving cells in the big State prison today.

Mrs. Hudson was carried to Baltimore Wednesday by the sheriff of Wicomico county and on her way to the city on the steamer she was not only very self possessed, but actually appeared in an excellent humor. When the Sheriff started to remove her handcuffs, which was attached to his wrist, that Mrs. Hudson might get with more comfort at the table in the dining room of the steamer he had some difficulty in unlocking the appliance, but his prisoner laughingly assisted him, and when the cuffs were removed she thoroughly enjoyed herself. Women prisoners are always allowed two days rest by Warden Weyler after they are admitted to the institution and placed in what are styled the "receiving cells". Monday morning Mrs. Hudson will be assigned to work in the shirt factory.

TROLLEY IN WICOMICO.

Company Formed To Build Electric Road Through County. So Says The Baltimore Sun Writer.

After many years of effort by leading business men of this locality, in which several attempts have been made to organize a company and build an electric railroad in Wicomico county, the construction and completion of an electric line by local and foreign capital in the near future now seem assured.

State Senator Jesse D. Price, while in the Maryland Senate, succeeded in getting a charter for an electric line in this county, and it is under this charter that the Wicomico Electric and Power Company will operate.

A meeting was held today, and the following officers and directors were elected: M. V. Brewington, president; H. James Messick, vice president; William M. Cooper, treasurer; Mark Cooper secretary; Jesse D. Price, Levin W. Dorman, W. Jefferson Staten, George O. Bounds, Whitefield S. Lowe, and J. B. Culver, directors. Along with these officials the Industrial Engineering Company, of Philadelphia has as its representatives here, Frank S. Gibson and J. B. Walters, engineers, who are looking over the field and are already contracting for rights of way from Salisbury to Nanticoke Point.

Will Touch Many Points.

The directors state that so far there has been no opposition to the granting of free rights of way for this railroad, which is expected to traverse the county from east to west touching Hebron, Quantico, Bivalve, Wetpin, Tyaskin, Nanticoke and White Haven. The experts state that they expect to have the road in full operation during the next year. The company is chartered with a capital of $500,000, which amount, it is stated, will take to construct this electric line.

Wicomico county is peculiarly situated, being bounded on the north by the Nanticoke river, on the south by the Wicomico river running east and west a distance of 35 miles with the breadth of about 16 miles to Nanticoke Point and the building of this road will give facility for traveling to the great number of people who live in the western section of the county—a facility which they do not now possess.

It will also traverse one of the best trucking and fruit growing sections, and will give shipping facilities to the oyster, crab and sea food industries by giving them direct shipping facilities from the bay shore to Salisbury, connecting with the railroads which run to the Northern cities.

The promoters have been assured that at least $50,000 of the capital stock can be subscribed along the road of the proposed line. All the retail and wholesale merchants of Salisbury are enthusiastic over this proposed branch electric line and will unquestionably subscribe to a large block of the stock.

This is the third attempt to construct a trolley line in this county, and when completed it will be the only electric line on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The Youth's Companion In 1911.

Just fifty two good numbers, one after another, of only the best reading selected from the world's abundance of every sort.

Nearly three hundred of the most entertaining stories ever written—not the kind that are forgotten as soon as read, but stories that one loves to remember and talk about.

Then there are the famous men and women who write for Companion readers. It is the next best thing to meeting them face to face, for they choose topics which are sure to be of interest for their audience of three million Companion readers.

The Announcement of the enlarged and improved Companion for next year will be sent to any address free, and with it sample copies of The Companion.

Those who subscribe at once, sending $1.75, will receive free all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1910; also the Companion's Art Calendar for 1911. Illustrated in thirteen colors and gold.

Business Men's Meeting.

There will be an important Meeting of the Business Men's Association, October 28, at 7.30 p. m. at the City Hall for election of officers. Full meeting is desired. At same meeting the Delegates to Cambridge Convention of Board of Trade of Maryland cities will make their report. This meeting will be very interesting. All interested in the Business welfare of Salisbury are invited to be present.

MANY FARMERS TO MEET.

Everybody Asked To Come To The Horticultural Show. State Fruits On View.

The thirteenth annual exhibition of the Maryland State Horticultural Society will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, in Baltimore, November 28 to December 2nd, inclusive. The best feature of the exhibition is the general invitation for everybody to visit it free. Cash premiums amounting to nearly $700 are offered and the competition will be keen. Only a very few years ago the entire exhibition was placed in one small room. Now it requires 50,000 square feet of floor space or nearly all of the drill hall of the armory.

The apple crop has been good in most parts of the State this year, and many bushels of the finest specimens are now in cold storage, waiting for the show. The tables will be loaded down with big apples, little apples and all shades of red, green and yellow apples. From year to year a marked improvement in the grade of apples exhibited has been observed. The growers are learning how to produce and select prize winning specimens. The success of Maryland apples in capturing premiums in competition with the entire country has given the growers confidence in their own product and has given apple culture a great impetus throughout the State. The quality of Maryland apples is second to none grown in this country.

In the department of flowers the exhibits will be especially beautiful and attractive. The mammoth corymbous themus will divide honors with the more popular roses and carnations of brightest hues. Specimen plants and evergreens will be there in great groups. The Park Board of Baltimore will display wagonloads of its choicest greenhouse plants in the most artistic grouping and massing. The trucking interest of the State will not be neglected. Generous premiums will be given all along the line from the humble turnip to the highly cultivated cauliflower and sweet potato.

A UNIQUE BIRTHDAY

Celebration By Former Wicomico Countians. Letter Shower.

A unique birthday celebration was that on the 17th inst., the occasion being the passing of the seventy ninth milestone in the life journey of Mrs. John S. Warren.

It came as an utter surprise to the dear old lady. Her niece, Miss Annie Jarman, had whispered in the ears of relatives and friends that "Aunt Adeline" would have a birthday on the 17th of October, and suggested surprising her with a "shower of letters." It had not become known to many of the neighbors but a few were present to enjoy the surprise with Mrs. Warren. There were flowers and a few simple gifts, but the crowning glory was the "letter shower" which pattered down with the last installment left by the carrier that afternoon. Miss Maggie placed the collection in her mother's lap with the laughing remark—"There, mother, you are always wishing for letters, so here are some, and they are all for you. Count them, and see how many there are." With a little wondering catch in her voice, she exclaimed, "Mag, what does it mean?" The reply was, "Don't you know it is your birthday?"

So with the pleasant wonderment still on her face, she fell to carefully counting them, and lo, there were twenty five letters and post cards from children, grand children, other relatives and friends. Being blind, of course, she could not read them herself and that was the pathetic feature about it—to see the eager but wistful delight of the face with its sightless eyes turned toward the reader, to catch every word of each message.

All letters and post cards were appreciated to the fullest, but, after all is said and done, I think the letters from her preacher-friends were the letters-of-letters to her. Elders Poulson, Durand, Chick and Francis, each sent her a beautiful letter which was as manna to the hungry, and cold water to the thirsty, for, since her later bodily affliction she has not been able to attend the meetings so dear to her, and these letters were like sermons to her.

Would that there were more such remembrances to the aged pilgrims upon life's highway.

ACCUSED OF PASSING

Worthless Checks. Customers Of "Candy Salesman Did Not Know He Had Lost Position.

According to Dr. Francis J. Townsend of Ocean City, Md., and Detective Walter Le Fèvre, Louis Weinfield, who was held for the Somerset county authorities by Justice Tyson of the Northwestern district on a charge of larceny, has been out on a wide swath in the bank accounts of confectionery dealers on the Eastern Shore.

Weinfeld, who was formerly employed as a traveling salesman by Huyler's confectionery concern, was arrested at his home at 1731 Thomas avenue, Baltimore. It appears from the statements of Dr. Townsend that Weinfield lost his position with the Huyler concern, but his customers along the Eastern Shore were not aware of the fact, as the salesman represented himself as still connected with the company.

Dr. Townsend who conducts a drug store in Ocean City, says he cashed one of Weinfield's checks for $85, and it was returned to him as bogus. John M. Laws, of Salisbury, Md., declares he cashed a bogus check for $50. O. Q. Snyder of Centerville, Md., claims he cashed a worthless bit of paper for $60. G. M. Gerverling, a merchant of Milford, Del., says he contributed $50 to the amount Weinfield was collecting, and A. H. Greenwell, of Hagerstown, Md., claims to have cashed other bogus check for $85.

HEAR THE ISSUES

Of 1910 Campaign By Prominent Speakers. October 29th.

The following prominent Democrats of Salisbury will have charge of the arrangements of the big Democratic meeting to be held in the Uman Opera House, Salisbury, Saturday afternoon and evening, October 29th: Hon. Charles R. Dishaon, E. A. Tondvise, S. King White, Hon. J. D. Price, former Mayor Charles E. Harper, Hon. E. E. Twilley and A. M. Jackson.

Some of the most prominent orators of the State will be present at the meetings, and Congressman J. Harry Covington will be here at the afternoon meeting.

Arrangements have been made with the Sunny South Concert Band to furnish music for the occasion and the concert to be given in the afternoon and evening before the meetings will be a feature of this big celebration.

It is hoped that citizens from all sections of the county will attend these meetings so that they will be able to hear the real issues of the present campaign discussed by prominent speakers who will be present.

Hotel Rennert Changes Managers.

Edward Davis has been appointed manager of the Hotel Rennert, Baltimore, and assumed his duties in October, the position being vacated the first of this month by the resignation of James P. A. O'Connor, who has been connected with the hotel for a score of years. Mr. Davis has been assistant manager at the Rennert for some time and is now manager of the Buena Vista Hotel. He is a son-in-law of John J. Mahon.

Mr. O'Connor went to the hotel shortly after it was opened in 1885 as chief clerk, and with the exception of four years, three of them spent as manager of the Stafford and one as manager of the St. James, his connection there has been continuous. In 1899 he returned to the Rennert as manager.

Harvest Home Celebration.

The annual "Harvest Home Celebration" will be held in the Asbury M. E. Church on Sunday next. The day promises to be one of marked interest. President Eugene A. Noble, L. L. D., of the Woman's College, Baltimore, one of the eloquent and distinguished ministers of the church, will be present and preach in the morning and deliver an address in the evening. The auditorium will be beautified with the fruits and grains of the Autumn. Special music will be rendered. During the day the congregation will present its benevolent offerings for many important and needy causes.

Japan's Problems And Solutions.

The problems of Japan and their solutions will be the subject of Dr. J. O. C. Newton's address Sunday night at Trinity M. E. Church, South. Dr. Newton has spent several years in Kobe, Japan and thoroughly understands the conditions there. He will also preach at 11 o'clock a. m. Sunday. Dr. Newton was pastor of Trinity several years ago.

The Reason Why
WE SELL MOREBUILDING MATERIALS OF ALL KINDS LUMBER AND MILL WORK

than our competitors is because we undersell them

OUR PRICES are always less than the other fellow wants for the same goods. If you don't believe it ask us for a price on something. We are after the business and to get it will give prices that can't be beat. Don't be misled on quality and grading. You know there's a difference, but you can't always detect it. The unscrupulous dealer knows this and takes advantage of your inexperience by giving you lower grade than you pay for. Our quality is absolutely guaranteed. Our grading is standard among the thousands who know. Send us an inquiry today. We are out to undersell the other fellow and save you money—and we do it.

GOING TO A WEDDING

"Did you have a good time?" asked the bookkeeper. The young woman stenographer dropped her heavy suitcase. Having assured herself that the manager had not yet reached the office that morning, she turned upon the bookkeeper a severe countenance.

"You are the most tactless man I know," she declared. "Did you ever hear of any one having a good time at anybody's wedding?"

"That's the point of my subtle joke," he said.

"Well, it sounded to me like an ordinary foolish question. I am a little peevish, I think, for I am trying to count up how much the wedding cost me."

"I thought you liked to spend money."

"I do, when I have some chance of getting a fair return for it. But what pleasure do I get out of this? Not any."

"First," went on the stenographer, bitterly. "I had to forfeit a day's salary for a substitute stenographer; then, in order to catch the six o'clock train I had to hire a taxicab. Next I had to say good-by to six perfectly good dollars for my railroad ticket."

"When I reached the town my thirteen-year-old nephew pushed me into a cab as if I were a bag of meal. Then he disappeared bashfully into the darkness, leaving me alone in the cab with a nice-looking young man who was going to the same place. All the romances foisted on the girl and the man meeting on the way to the house party flashed through my mind and I began to think that perhaps the wedding wouldn't be such a bore, after all."

"I didn't know before that you were so dependent on a mere man for your happiness," said the bookkeeper. "You are always bragging about the good times at your club."

"A girls' club is a jolly affair in itself," explained the stenographer, "but a church social or a wedding needs some foreign element—for example, an interesting man—to make it endurable."

"And this particular man?"

"His name was Smith. His wife and his small son were waiting for him at the house."

"Love's young dream blasted!" murmured the bookkeeper.

"I had one stroke of luck," said the stenographer. "The house was so full of relatives that I had to go to a neighbor's to sleep. I thought how lovely it was that I would not have to get up at seven o'clock in order to get to the office on time. They called me at six o'clock."

"After breakfast I helped make all the beds and then I sneaked off into one corner of the library and began to read a book. Unfortunately, my brother-in-law saw me and my reposeful attitude seemed to irritate him, for he asked me to get up and dust a picture frame."

"It was selfish of you to shirk—"

"Young man, don't you know that one of the greatest lessons in life is to learn one's own responsibility and let other people's alone? The caterers were there to cater; the decorators were there to decorate; the bride and the bridesmaids were in the hands of the hairdresser. I think it was nice of me not to go rushing around yelling 'Isn't there something I can do?'"

"I got even with my brother-in-law, however. All of his personal property that was downstairs I carried up, and anything I found of his upstairs I took downstairs. They will have to clean house again before he finds his things."

"Of course we had a stand-up lunch in the butler's pantry—and my suit will have to go to the cleaners."

"Two hours later the wedding march began. Then the procession came in, everybody counting four on each foot and all wishing they were well out of the whole business. Then during the ceremony there were some unostentatious tears shed. The man who wrote 'Merrily the Wedding Bells' certainly had a wonderful imagination. Next came the refreshments and the showering of rice."

"Well, this morning I crawled out at 4:30 and caught the train back to Chicago."

"But you had a visit with your relatives."

"I didn't. Besides, the trip cost me ten dollars, without counting the present."

"You could have gone to a lot of matinees for that."

The stenographer nodded. "Without anybody's being tired out or sick from overwork," she said. "I know one over. If ever I get married I'll put a standing advertisement of it in the newspaper. That will do away with addressing and stamping invitations. Then we will walk over to the nearest minister's—"

"Hush!" warned the bookkeeper. "Get busy! Here comes the boss."

A Good Reason. "I want to thank you," said the orator, "for the manner in which you gave attention to my remarks. Your attitude was gratifyingly different from the others."

"Yes," replied the auditor; "but I don't want any credit that is not due me. I have had insomnia for weeks."

Far from Encouraging. "Well," said the leading man as he appeared behind the scenes at the drop of the curtain, "how did the new play take?"

"Sentiment is somewhat divided," responded the manager. "One-half of the audience is outside talking about the execution of the play."

"And the other half?"

"Oh, they are on the inside talking about the execution of the actors."

Bitten. Hiram Hardapple—Ha! Ha! Poor old Silas Weatherby got stung again. He saw an ad. in a magazine that stated for 50 cents they'd send him one of the finest profiles of Lincoln ever designed.

Zeke Crawford—And did Silas Bite? Hiram Hardapple—Yes, he sent the 50 cents and they sent him one of them thar new Lincoln pennies.

Thorough Work. Bacon—it is claimed that a train running on a single rail can attain with perfect safety a much higher rate of speed than is possible on a double-track system.

Egbert—Then, of course, the tele-scooping of two trains can be made far more effectual—Yonkers Statesman.

A Mean Trick. "It was a mean trick to play on a blind man."

"What did they do?"

"Gave him a sheet of sticky flypaper plentifully sprinkled with flies, and told him it was something in raised letters by Henry James."

Unruffled Still. "When he was a boy he wore a large patch on his trousers without a trace of embarrassment."

"And now that he is a very rich man?"

"He carries a large blot on his reputation with equal composure."

The timely arrival of an employee of Albers Frits, near Bowell, Md., prevented Mr. Frits' 16-year-old son, Jay, from being gored to death by an enraged bull. As it was the boy's right shoulder was badly crushed and his collar bone fractured. The boy had gone into the stall occupied by the animal to feed him, something he had often done, when the bull made a plunge, striking him on the shoulder and crushing him into the corner of the stall. The interference of the hired man prevented the bull from continuing its attack.

With the departure of E. E. Whitman and Sons, former owners and Editors of the Eastern Md., Star Democrat, 30 men who have made this paper one of the best and largest circulated in Maryland's list of county newspapers. It is a well known fact that the Star Democrat assumed its present prominent, influential and lucrative position under the management and hard work of the Whitmans.

We predict for them a successful continuance of their journalistic career in their new field at Pleasantville, N. J., where they have purchased the Weekly Press.

That Cold Room

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature quickly or to keep the temperature up for a long period. That can't be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and overheating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a which can be kept at full or low heat for a short or long time. Four quarts of oil will give a glowing heat for nine hours, without smoke or smell. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not screw on; but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached by a chain and cannot get lost. An automatic locking flame spreader prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that it can be cleaned in an instant. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental. Has a cool handle.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle

The Seas In the Hollow Of God's Hand

"Who hath measured the seas in the hollow of his hand" (Isaiah xl, 12).

On the Ocean, October 16.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle, en route for London. He expects to be back in Brooklyn the first Sunday in December. His Sundays in Great Britain will be given to London, filling appointments with as many as possible of the smaller cities week days. His discourse for today from the foregoing text follows:—

The wonderful force, and immensity of the thought of our text, cannot be appreciated by those who have never been upon the great Ocean. As we travel through the water at railroad speed and keep watch in every direction, yet seldom see a vessel, large or small, day after day, we begin to get a little conception of the world in which we live. It is so much larger than previously we were able to comprehend. Yet by the aid of the telescope and the mathematical calculations we perceive that our earth and its seas are small, in comparison to many other worlds. We perceive that our solar system (our sun and his planetary satellites) constitutes but a small fraction of God's great creation. Astronomers tell us that by the aid of sensitive photographic plates they are able to count about one hundred and twenty-five millions of stars, around which planets are revolving, as our earth revolves around our sun. And they estimate that probably only a portion of these stars is visible to our naked eye—so far distant are they.

Astronomers estimate that there are millions of other suns so far distant that their light cannot even be discerned by photography.

We stand appalled at the immensity of space and the law and order which everywhere reign. We heartily assent to the words of the Prophet David: "Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge: there is no place where their voice is not heard." The person who can look upon this wonderful display of superhuman power and who can believe that these worlds created themselves, shows to the majority of us that, if he has brains, they are sadly disordered, unbalanced. The person who, after intelligent thought, concludes that there is no God, that everything came to be what it is by chance or by the operation of some blind force—that person is described in the Scriptures in the following words: "The fool hath said in his heart, 'There is no God'" (Psalm xiv, 1).

"The Fall Was Never Told."

On first reading our text some of us might have been inclined to say, Ah, a beautiful poetic extravagance! But not so, dear friends! As scientific instruments demonstrate to us the immensity of the universe, so the perspective that the Prophet used very moderate language indeed in his description of the majestic power and greatness of the Creator, representing him as weighing the mountains in his balances and holding the seas in the hollow of his hand and that, from his standpoint, a thousand years are but as a watch in the night. How insignificantly small we all feel in the presence of our God! No wonder some great hearts have been inclined to say that humanity is too insignificant from the Divine standpoint to be worthy of the least consideration—much less to be the objects of Divine care and providence! The Scriptures encourage us to reason from the known to the unknown. They tell us that although God is so great, so wise, so powerful, he is also just and loving. And the more we consider the matter, the more reasonable this Bible description of the Almighty appears. His power we see demonstrated. The wisdom of One so great cannot be doubted. Then we come to consider, Could One so wise and so powerful be unjust or ungenerous? Our hearts answer, No! No one is really great who is devoid of justice and love. So surely as our God is Jehovah he must possess these qualities.

When we came in contact with the Bible, and particularly after we learned something of its teachings and got rid of the misapprehensions which gathered about it during the dark ages—then we began to recognize it as the message of Jehovah to his creatures. It informed us that the great Creator of the universe is not only Almighty and All-wise, but loving and kind, with Justice as the very foundation of his Empire. From the Bible we learned, too, that our Creator had been pleased to make us in his own image, in his own moral likeness, to the intent that we might enjoy him and the fruits of his righteousness to all eternity. From this standpoint we began to realize that the loftiest sentiments of the human mind and heart are merely the reflections of this Creator.

Thus coming into sympathetic accord with our Maker we can comprehend the principles of his character—what justice signifies, and mercy and kindness—what is wisdom as contrasted with foolishness. From this standpoint we were enabled to see the glorious perfection of our Maker's character and attributes, which justify a name which he has taken to himself when he declares through his ambassador, "God is Love." As we come to realize this more and more, we are grasping the Infinite; we are getting near to the heart of the great Eternal One, who weighs the mountains as in a balance and measures the seas in the hollow of his hand.

"Like Unto Your Father"

Godlikeness is love-likeness, and, as the Scriptures declare, "Love is the fulfilling of the (Divine) Law" (Romans xiii, 10). Our great Creator, the only living and true God, is thus seen from as nothing else could have done. Besides, the experiences of mankind during the seven thousand years from Adam's creation to the end of Messiah's mediatorial Kingdom will demonstrate traits of the Divine character which could not otherwise be manifested to angels or to men.

For instance, without the permission of sin, the element of Divine Justice and the unalterable opposition of God to all sin would never have been known to his creatures. His sentence upon father Adam and his race and the permission of the reign of death and sin for all these centuries have demonstrated the fact that Divine Justice cannot be trifled with. And this reign of sin and the strength of the Divine opposition to sin, and the sentence upon sinners, in turn gave opportunity for the exhibit of Divine mercy, compassion, sympathy, love. Undoubtedly God's love was known to the angels before, but not to the same extent. His dealing with humanity will prove the depth of his sympathy to angels and to men. "God commanded his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners Christ died for us" (Romans v, 8). Surely, as the poet declares, we have in this a manifestation of "Love Divine, all love excelling."

More than this; some of us at one time were, perhaps, inclined to criticize our Maker and to say that he had no right to redeem us at the cost of Calvary; that it was wrong to cancel the sins of one and require their payment of another. But we erred. It was not thus. Rightly understood, the dealings of the Father with the Son and still further to his glory—magnify still more his Wisdom, Justice, Love and Power. With all power and authority the Almighty would not command the death of his Son. For Jesus to become man's Redeemer meant his voluntary sacrifice of himself. And how shall we understand this—the Redeemer's willingness to be man's ransom-price? The Scriptures, replying, tell us that it was because of his great love for the Father, his great confidence in him and his willingness to submit to the Divine will and purposes and arrangement in everything. Yet, notwithstanding the willingness of the Redeemer, the Father would not permit him to engage in this great undertaking which would cost himself so much, unless he would give him the corresponding reward. Thus we read of Jesus, that "for the joy that was set before him he endured the cross and despised the shame."

"No! It is Just Like Him."

The Divine Plan being set forth to an old colored woman, she was asked if it was not strange that God should do such great things for us. Her answer was, "No, Master; it is just like him!"

So we say respecting the great God who made the heavens and the earth and sun and stars, it is not strange that he should have a glorious Plan for all of his creatures—a Plan which will fully exemplify his character—his Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power! And amongst these wonderful things of the Divine Purpose none is more wonderful than that which relates to the Church class, "the elect," drawn and called and begotten of the holy spirit during the Gospel Age. These, justified by faith instantly, are a separate class from the world, who will be justified, perfected, through works during Messiah's glorious reign. The arrangement for their faith-justification through the merit of the Redeemer in advance of the world's justification is for the purpose of allowing these, who by nature are "children of wrath even as others," to become sons of God on the spirit plane, "partakers of the divine nature."

Dealing on lines of impartiality, God's offer to these members of Adam's race, a "little flock" in all, is that, if they join with their Redeemer in sacrifice and walk in his footsteps, his merit shall cover their blemishes and they may become for all eternity his glorious Bride, and joint heirs with him in his Kingdom—that they may sit with him in his Throne and be associated in the great work of uplifting the children of men.

How wonderful is our God, infinite in all his qualities! "Who hath known the mind of the Lord; who hath been his counsellor?" (Romans xi, 34.) How come all these wonderful things which are written in his Book, unless by his own knowledge? Let us bow before him and adore him and be faithful followers in the footsteps of Jesus until the end of the race—until we receive the crown of life.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or proplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickly by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root! If you do you will be disappointed.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment. Passages are frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is constant, day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent. The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay. Use a special kidney remedy. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache. Salisbury evidence proves this statement. John H. Connolly, 805 E. Isabella Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and know of nothing better for curing kidney complaint. When in Virginia I was obliged to drink impure water and my kidneys became disordered, causing my back to grow very weak. At that time I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I was given prompt relief. I recently procured a supply of this remedy at White & Leonard's Drug Store to have on hand in case of need."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

INTERESTING HALLOWEEN

Party—Inexpensive Method By Which A Girl's Club Entertained On Witch Night.

This little party was given by two girls who wished to entertain a number of friends before going to a club, but it could be enlarged upon to include boys, if desired. The guests came attired in all sorts and descriptions of oddly concocted and hand-formed costumes, more for the purpose of merry-making than with an eye to the artistic. There were represented in the fifteen or more present all characters from the lightly clothed Psyche with her sandalled feet to the heavily awed Indian maiden, and from the masterful masculine cowgirl to the dainty powdered reproduction of the girls of '76.

Before going to the supper table each guest draws from a large pumpkin—hollowed—a little ribbon (baby ribbon most efficient) to which is attached a small parcel wrapped in tissue paper. All color scheme to be black and yellow. These tiny parcels contain most inexpensive novelties, more ridiculous than fancy which may be purchased for 5 or 10 cents, such as tin snail, old maid, tin automobiles, shovel and coal bucket, tin spoon, etc. to which a line or two of home-made poetry may be added. The place cards at the table are of white paper, edged in yellow and a black dot painted on, or a pumpkin in yellow.

At each place there should be placed an apple on which is two yellow candles, miniature size. The candles are named for the person possessing the apple by the next in line and so on around the table and eagerly watched to see which of the persons for which the candles are named proves the most faithful. These candles should not be lit until all are seated. The collation consists of lettuce, ham and cheese sandwiches, small sweet pickles, Saratoga potatoes, sweet cider, gingerbread, nuts, fruit, pumpkin pie. Paper napkins should be used. A large pumpkin should be hollowed and placed in the center of the table and filled with fruit, while two quite small ones may be placed on either end filled with nuts, previously cracked, but not picked.

After leaving the table the lights are darkened, the only glimmer being the lights from the decorations, and ghost stories indulged in until a late hour, when the conventional "Oh, I must really go now," is heard.

In this way every guest receives a decidedly cheap memento of the occasion, which will bring back just as happy memories as the more expensive novelties of the formal soiree.

The decorations should consist of pumpkins, with the old fashioned carved face lighted from within by candles, the black cats, so easily and reasonably procured these days, whose eyes, with the candle behind them, shine with such a weird and fearful fire, and candles. Space no room for candles; what you burn with them you can save on the gas. Have huge bows of yellow crepe paper tied to the chandeliers. Have a candelabra on the table, and in or on any kind of a holder scattered all over the rooms to which the party is confined.

$1,000 IN PRIZES

For The Best Essays Showing How Much It Costs Baltimore To Secure A Million Dollars From High License.

The Anti Saloon League of Maryland, by virtue of special contributions for that purpose offers One Thousand Dollars in essay prizes as follows: A first prize of Five Hundred Dollars for the best essay, and three additional prizes of $250, $150 and $100 respectively for the three next best essays on:

"What it costs the people of Baltimore (1) morally, (2) physically, (3) mentally (4) financially and (5) industrially to secure the million dollars a year which the city now receives for the liquor traffic under the High License Law."

The contest is open to any person anywhere except salaried employees of the Anti Saloon League of Maryland. Essays must not exceed 5,000 words. Each number expressed will count as one word. The number of words must be indicated, and other things being equal, brevity will be considered in making the award. Facts will count for more than mere argument. Essays must be typewritten, double spaced, with ample margin, on one side of plain white paper 8 1/2 x 11 inches with name and address of the writer securely attached in a sealed envelope.

Essays must be received, postage fully prepaid, by Rev. J. F. Holm, D. D., Chairman of the Headquarters Committee at the League office, 801 American Building Baltimore, Md., on or before April 1, 1911. All essays shall become the property of the League. The decision will be made by the Headquarters Committee of the Anti Saloon League, or by judges designated by them and will be announced and the prizes paid as soon as the essays can be examined and a decision reached.

The Anti Saloon League of Md. By William H. Anderson, Esq., By Order of the Headquarters Committee.

Baltimore, Md. October 17, 1910. Recognizing that the revenue argument is permitted by many people to obscure the real merits of the case the League has undertaken; first by the order of the prize to challenge the attention of the public to the fact that there are two sides to the question; and second, through the essays to supply the argument to convince the man who is not afraid of the truth.

The League inaugurated this contest in June by the offer of One Hundred Dollars for the best essay of not over 2500 words, competition to close January 1, 1911. The additional Nine Hundred Dollars has been subscribed by friends for this special purpose. In consideration of the great increase in the prize fund the time has been extended and the maximum word limit increased.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. Take Notice!

I HAVE THE FOLLOWING VALUABLE REAL ESTATE WHICH I WILL SELL AT PRIVATE SALE:

No. 1—Consists of 101 acres and buildings situated about half way between Salisbury and Delmar, at the intersection of the Delmar and the Dagoboro road, and about one mile from Williams siding on the N. Y., P. & N. railroad. Price $6,000.

No. 2—Consists of 60 acres fronting on the Delmar road, which has been built under the Shoemaker law, and is directly south of the described property. This tract has no buildings and can be bought for $5,000.

No. 3—Consists of 75 acres fronting on same road, directly south of No. 2. This is the old Leonard homestead. The dwelling is in fair, and the outbuildings, with a little attention at slight cost, made to answer for several years. This is good land, as the crops growing on the farm will show. The location is ideal and the price $5,000.

No. 4—Is directly south of No. 3, fronting on the same road, and contains 60 acres. This is an especially desirable tract of land, but contains no buildings. The price is $3,500.

No. 5—Consists of a little over 75 acres, fronting on same road and directly south of No. 4. About 25 acres cleared, the balance in woodland, mostly cut over, but still containing a considerable amount of fire wood; also contains a small dwelling in fairly good repair. Although a little rough in its present condition, this can be made a very valuable farm, the quality of the land being exceptionally good. The price is $3,250.

No. 6—Contains 3 acres adjoining the Salisbury Fair Grounds on the side and is opposite Sewell Richardson's. A very valuable lot. Price $1,000.

No. 7—Immediately adjoins No. 6 and contains 4 1/2 acres. Price $1,300.

No. 8—Lies west of No. 7 and contains 6 acres. Price $1,500.

No. 9—Consists of 15 acres, dwelling and outbuildings, and lies directly in front of Mr. James E. Lowe's new residence, on Quantico road, and is very valuable property. Price $4,250.

No. 10—Is west of No. 9, contains 5 acres and has already been sold to Mr. Woolford Johnson.

No. 11—Is west of No. 10, contains 10 acres and is a very desirable tract. Price $2,500.

No. 12—Is west of No. 11 and situated at the beginning of the Stone road leading to Quantico. This tract contains 10 acres and the price is $2,500.

No. 13—Is directly in front of Mr. Stanford Culver's, on the Quantico road, and contains 8 and 48-100th acres. Price $1,800.

No. 14—Consists of 3 acres just outside the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying between South Division Street extended and the N. Y., P. & N. railroad. Price $750.

No. 15—Consists of something over 3 acres immediately adjoining No. 14. Price $750.

No. 16—Consists of 3 acres lying on the east side of South Division Street extended, about three-eighths of a mile from the corporate limits. Price $600.

No. 17—Contains 10 acres and is immediately adjoining the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying along the N. Y., P. & N. railroad, and fronting on — street, directly south of Salisbury and in section commonly known as "Hastings town." This tract will be sold in acre lots at $300 each, or will sell the entire piece to one party. Price on application.

All of the above properties were originally bought for their exceptionally good location. Each and every one of the above-named parcels of land, except No. 17, are fronting on prominent highways that have already been improved under the specifications of the Shoemaker law, and are especially desirable to progressive parties wishing to build homes in good neighborhoods.

My Hated Rival and a Lame Horse

By C. C. Hahn

I had left the lady of my heart at her home in a little village in the northern part of the state while I came to the city to make my fortune. In the meantime, however, Marian Phillips was true, and life would have run along very peacefully had it not been for a hated rival. He had money, while I was, as yet, a mere clerk. And there was no one in the little up-country town to say a word in my defense except one person, her Uncle Tom.

At length there came a heart-rending letter from Marian in which she told me of dire persecution to compel her to marry my rival, and closing with an expression of fear that there was a conspiracy on foot to kidnap her—on some pretext or other to get her over into Canada, where she could be concealed from me, or at least kept where the laws of the land would not permit her to marry against the wishes of her parents.

I did not give much thought to the latter possibility, but the fact that Marian was afraid was enough for me and I started back home the next day. I likewise took along a wedding suit.

At Bronxton we reached the end of our journey by rail; from which place an old-fashioned stage line perpetuated its franchise by means of an open spring wagon with three seats. In the waiting room of the station, I met two fellow travelers whom I had seen on the train but had not recognized. Years had passed since I had met Mr. and Mrs. Giles, the respected uncle and aunt of my hated rival. The revelation of their identity filled me with undefined fears. What was the object of their journey back from Massachusetts to the old home at this most suspicious occasion? Could there possibly be some foundation for Marian's fears of a compulsory marriage, or a flight into Canada?

The years which had changed the features of this worthy couple had brought greater changes in my own face. Thankful that they did not recognize me, and unwilling to reveal myself at that time, I gave my name as James Lacey, of Springfield, when we negotiated for seats with the stage driver. A breakdown near a small town created a diversion in the motion of the trip, and, walking on to the village, which was only a mile away, I hired a two-seated sleigh, and inviting Mr. and Mrs. Giles to accompany me, we renewed our journey. Again Fate seemed to have it laid up for me. We had gone no more than half a dozen miles when one of the horses went lame, and we barely reached a halfway house by night. The driver assured us the team would be all right by morning.

"I Started Back Home the Next Day."

Half an hour later, I saw a team standing in front of the tavern—a team so exactly like the one behind which we had labored for half a day, that I ran out to ask our driver what he meant by hitching up again. Rushing around to the barn I found the driver in conversation with a long, loose-boned young man with a feeble jaw and bay-colored hair, dressed in his Sunday best.

"All right, Hank," I heard the driver say, with an involuntary start I stepped back into the shadows. Hank Collins was my hated rival, and this was he!

"Be sure and rub my team down well, Pat," my rival was saying. "I've got to get back to Elmville tonight. Came over to hire Johnson's two-seated sleigh. Just got news that I will have to run over into Canada."

"A man doesn't need a two-seated sleigh to do that!"

"He does in my business," was the, to me, suspicious reply.

"There are others going with me and I know a fellow down state that would give his head to know about it. I'd like to see his face when he finds out we have turned the trick without him."

Could anything be more conclusive? Marian's fears were well founded. I had arrived in the nick of time to save her. A shiver passed through me. In an instant I saw the whole plot. And I had been helping the uncle and aunt on their road to assist in my undoing! Tonight they would meet in this little tavern, complete the details of their infamous plot and tomorrow my darling would be spirited away over into Canada.

I began to reason. Either Hank Collins must not get to the old home tonight or I must get there before him. But how? Then the thought of how his spirited team exactly matched my own lame and tired one flashed through my mind, and my plans were laid in an instant.

"Pat," I said, after the driver had returned with Hank's team and stabled it. "Have you had your supper?"

"Nary a bit."

"Go and get it as soon as you have rubbed down the team. And—here's $5 for saying nothing."

"Sure I can do that easy."

"I must get on to Elmville tonight. The lady and gentleman who were with me will come in the morning. Say nothing about it, but after you get your supper come out and hitch up for me."

"But that lame horse!"

"The hour's rest will make him all right!" He mumbled a little, but the $5 bill was a wonderful argument.

As soon as he was gone I changed the location of those two teams, so that the lame horse was in Hank's stall and his fresh team standing where Pat had left my own weary one.

This job safely accomplished, I went in to my own supper, recalling as I stepped inside the house that, in a moment of forgetfulness, I had signed my true name, Mark Hathaway, on the register, and there was my hated rival standing at the desk reading the list of guests.

Whatever scheme might be on foot, I soon noticed that the nephew was making a successful attempt to avoid the uncle, who clung persistently to my side. At length, however, we cornered one another at the hall entrance, and to my amazement the younger man was embarrassed at meeting his relative.

"You here?" was his only greeting as Uncle Giles grabbed him by the hand and hastened to introduce me as "Mr. James Lacey, of Springfield."

"Mr. James Lacey, of Springfield," repeated Hank, open-mouthed in astonishment. "Why, I thought—"

"I am glad to learn," I hastily broke in, "that you have been able to arrange your trip to Canada."

Hank shot a gleam of hate at me as "Going to Canada? You don't mean to say—"

I withdrew, and 15 minutes later Pat and I were on our way to Elmville, conscious that if Hank followed he would have an all-night job with a lame horse. Before midnight I had told the whole story to Uncle Tom, and early in the morning we drove over to Marian's.

Hank was not there, but his father was, and he glared at me in such a belligerent manner that I immediately took Marian in my arms and kissed her.

"Young man," he said, spreading a pious mask over his face, "do you mean to say that you have come up here to take this innocent girl away from her home and friends and marry her against their wishes?"

"I certainly intend to marry her," I replied, taking Marian's little hand in mine.

"Oh, Marian, Marian," continued Pa Collins; oh, little Marian, who has been in my Sunday school class and grown up under my eye, kin you, I ask, kin you so far forget yourself as to marry this man?"

"I certainly can and will," came firmly from "little Marian."

"Then," spoke up Uncle Tom, "the laws of the country having been complied with, I as clerk of the county of Worcester certify that you are man and wife."

"They are—man and—wife!" asked Pa Collins.

"I am glad to hear you pronounce them so," Uncle Tom flashed back before any one else could speak. "That was all that could possibly be necessary to make the marriage regular. Valid it was, anyway."

"What do you mean?" demanded both of Marian's parents in one breath.

"What do I mean? I mean just this: That Mr. Collins being a justice of the peace, having asked each one of these young folks if they would have each other, and both answering 'yes,' he has pronounced them man and wife, and as clerk of the county court will be obliged to make out a certificate for them to that effect."

"That's so," Pa Collins ejaculated, sinking back under the weight of the blow. "But I never thought of it."

What more might have been said or done no one can conjecture, for just then there was a ringing of sleigh bells and Uncle and Aunt Giles burst into the room.

"Do you know what that scoundrel of a son of yours has done?" Uncle Giles cried, shaking his fist in Pa Collins' face. "I sent him $5,000 to invest in the Canadian Muffin company, with a written agreement that if he should ever wish to sell out he would notify me so that I could protect my said wife and assets!"

Last week he made a fraudulent assignment without mentioning me as a creditor, and today he was to have gone to Canada with the three men he assigned to, where the assets were to be turned over, and I would have lost my money. But Providence was on the side of right, for by mistake he got a lame horse out of Johnson's livery stable, instead of his own, and couldn't go."

"So it was Hank's horse that got mixed up with yours?" asked Uncle Tom, with a twinkling in his eye.

"That was it."

"Then Providence was good to us all around, for I own half the shares in the Canadian Muffin business, and Marian's wedding portion would have been considerably reduced if you hadn't managed to make the exchange. Hither, shake hands with your nephew!"

NEWS FROM ETHEL

"Ethel must be going crazy!" exclaimed Mrs. Roxwell, who stood by the window of the breakfast room staring at a night telegram from her daughter.

"Why do you make such a strange remark, Elizabeth?" asked Ethel's Aunt Mary. "Ethel hasn't run away from school on its closing week, has she?"

"Of course not. She says she will be home today on the four o'clock train."

"Nothing crazy about that," remarked Ethel's Aunt Mary, slipping into her place at the table and wishing that her brother-in-law would make his appearance so that breakfast might be served.

"She has changed her mind," said Mrs. Roxwell. "We expected her tomorrow, you know, and she has concluded to come today instead."

"The mind," observed Ethel's Aunt Mary dialectically, "is not like a garment. We can change it without being out of it for a short moment. If a woman should be considered crazy merely because she changed her mind a good many of us would be handed over to the alienists. I must say, Elizabeth, you are very foolish thus to agitate yourself over a trifle. Ethel was coming home on Wednesday, she decides to come on Tuesday instead, and you are out of temper because you will see her 24 hours sooner than you expected. I am surprised at you, her own mother!"

"I am not!" snapped Mrs. Roxwell, irritably.

"You are not her mother?" inquired Ethel's Aunt Mary, with lifted eyebrows.

"Mary, there are times when you would vex a saint!" cried Mrs. Roxwell.

"Of course," she explained, more calmly. "I am glad that my daughter will be with me sooner than I had expected her to come, but—well, read her telegram for yourself."

Ethel's Aunt Mary adjusted her eyeglasses and read:

"I wish to say will be at home on Tuesday at four. On the train. The usual route. I changed my mind and will be at home on Tuesday instead of Wednesday. I will be there if the train is on time, otherwise will take the consequences. 45. The teachers are well. ETHEL."

Mrs. Roxwell waited with a somber brow while her sister read the telegram.

"It seems rather—er—lengthy," commented Ethel's Aunt Mary.

"Lengthy! I should say so," agreed Mrs. Roxwell, with considerable indignation. "She could have told all that was necessary in the usual ten words. And the loose construction of it! Why, that girl finishes school in another year!"

"She has a good deal to learn about the handling of the English language in that time," criticized Ethel's Aunt Mary. "Schools are not so particular as they were in our day, Elizabeth. I can't make out what she means by those figures—45."

"She probably thought the train gets in at 4:45 instead of four, and put the figures at the end instead of where they belong. See how she begins. I wish to say. Naturally she wished to say something or she need not have telegraphed."

"It is doubtless the style now to take nothing for granted," suggested Ethel's Aunt Mary.

"It evidently is," assented Mrs. Roxwell. "She says she is coming on the train. There is no other way that she could come, unless she should walk."

"She may have supposed that you would expect her to come on an aeroplane," suggested Ethel's Aunt Mary, with some sarcasm. "She remarks that if the train is not on time she will have to take the consequences. What consequences? Did you ever scold her because her train was late?"

"Certainly not. She simply means that she will suffer the usual annoyance caused by the delay."

"I see. Ethel's idea of a telegram seems to be that one should leave nothing to the imagination. She says the teachers are well. Have they been ill?"

"Not that I am aware of. That sentence seems to have been thrown in as a piece of general information. I could have waited until she arrives this afternoon to be apprised of the state of the faculty's health. But here is Charles. Let us see what he thinks of his daughter's telegraphic effort."

Roxwell laughed when he read Ethel's communication.

"The little puss was determined to get the worth of her money," he explained. "It is one of those telegraphic letters in which 50 words can be sent at night at the rate of ten words. When you know you are at liberty to write so many words you're no idea how difficult it is to think them up. Her figures mean that she has achieved 45 words up to that point. Then she adds that sentence about the teachers to make the even fifty."

"It is difficult to keep abreast of the times," sighed Ethel's Aunt Mary. "I had not heard about this new way of telegraphing."

"I am glad to have Ethel's high-society sentences explained," said Mrs. Roxwell, with a sigh of relief.

AMUSEMENT ROAD TO HELL

By Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell
Pastor St. James M. E. Church
Chicago

I shall talk about some roads leading out of Chicago which are not on the map. These roads take different routes, but all lead to the same awful destination.

There are many traveling these roads who are not fully aware of their destination. We should all listen to the warning of Solomon, who said, "Ponder the path of thy feet." The best travelers are open to mistakes. It is easy to get off the right road. It is both humiliating and fatal to get on the wrong road, especially when the train never stops and there is no return ticket.

The tragedy of life is that young men and women who need most wisdom have the least. I am standing here tonight as a guard at the station gate, warning people against taking the amusement road which leads from Chicago to hell.

Many young people, and older, are making the mistake referred to here by Solomon—the mistake in supposing that there is nothing better in life than amusing one's self. All thoughtful folk value recreation. They know that there must be hours of rest and change of thought and environment. Body and mind need rest. Science is teaching us that even inanimate matter gets tired and needs a rest. Car wheels and razors alike need rest. There is a strange restorative power in steel to recoup itself after its molecules have begun to crystallize and grow brittle.

God has implanted in each of us an instinctive love for those things which will bring rest to mind and body. We need to unbend. We need to relax muscle and rest brain. Hence the play-element is our safety valve. Wit and humor give rest and relaxation to the mind. People who never laugh have poor stomachs and never live out half their days. God intends his children to come to their best. He wants us to be fitted for work, and we can only be best fitted for work when we have had opportunity for the needed play.

Amusement is as much a part of God's program for our life as is work. The old notion that a sorrowful life is a sign of piety and that sanctity is measured by the degree of one's misery, has long since been exploded. There is some sarcasm but more truth in the old notion that the Puritans opposed bullfighting not so much on the ground that it gave the bulls pain as that it gave the people pleasure.

There are a thousand ways in which God has planned for the happiness of his children. It can be relied upon that the amusements God would have us freely employ are such as are devoid of these four things: First, they must not be unduly extravagant; second, they must not be damaging to health; third, they must not be detrimental to the mind, and fourth, they must not be contrary to good morals. These four principles are fundamental, and we must judge all pleasures by them.

There are many going along the amusement road to hell for fear, if they are Christians, they will not have a good time. Worldly-minded, evil-minded people do have a good time, according to their standard of what a good time is. Many a youth needs to have his ideal of pleasure changed; and until he does he will be unable to be happy according to rational ideals.

A drunkard may have a good time according to his present ideal; but when he comes to self-mastery he will no longer seek pleasure in such bestial manner. According to their tastes, wicked people have jolly times. But so soon as their lives are transformed by divine grace, they come to loathe the sty of the swine, because they are now qualified for the refined joys of the palace.

They who find their pleasures in the gratification of the fleshly appetites cannot understand how one can find joy in the realm of the mental and spiritual.

A Christian can enjoy even far more the legitimate pleasures of the physical senses, for they have not been dulled or diseased by satiety. His mind can grasp the wonders and beauties of the world with keener vision, because his powers are not dulled by dissipation. The Christian finds no bar across any pathway of pleasure which does not lead to sorrow and defeat. He finds every pathway open which leads to the pleasures which bring no sting.

The devil lies when he tells a youth he must be bad to be happy. Any man who will open his eyes can see that it is the transgressor of God's laws who has the hard time. It is the devil's children, not God's, who have a hell of a time on earth.

Many are going down to hell on the amusement road because as they say, they do not want any check or restraint upon them. I frequently am told by men and women that they would join the church if there were no restraint upon them; if they could do as they please.

Some churches have tried it. There are so-called liberal churches which have required almost nothing in the way of subscribing to a creed, and who have required less in the way of moral restraints on personal conduct. I state history when I say that such churches have not grown for 40 years.

House Frocks. The new materials that are being shown are for the most part decidedly heavier, though quite as soft and pliant as they were last year. Among them, however, in spite of the prominence given to heavy cloths, silks, velvets and cashmeres of all weights and weaves, there are many new materials admirably adapted to house gowns and negliges. Marquettette in soft, bright colors makes the most delightful sort of tea gown.

FEEDING THE YOUNG CHICKS

What a New Jersey Poultry Raiser Gives to Little Ones—Pure Clear Water Necessary.

The first feed I give is common white bread (whole wheat bread would be as good, possibly better) moistened with sweet milk so as to be Best Kind of Brooder.

softened, but not pasty, writes F. H. Valentine of New Jersey in Garden Magazine. Less meat is needed when milk is fed regularly.

As the chicks grow I give at least one feed a day consisting of a mixture of bread soaked in milk, ground oats (with the hulls sifted out) and corn meal, with a little bran or middlings to make it crumbly. The milk must be sweet, or else at the thick stage, but I use nothing but sweet milk for small chicks, unless it is scalded and made into curds, when it is excellent for both hens and chicks. The greatest care must be taken to have all the feed for the young chicks sweet; under no circumstances should anything moldy, musty or sour be given them.

For the other feeds, some of the best of the prepared chick feeds now sold by all poultry supply houses are excellent. Do not buy cheap ones—they are worth little and are often positively harmful—but those made by reputable firms are of good materials and give the variety needed in the right proportions.

If the chicks are confined, green stuff must be supplied in the form of chopped cabbage, lettuce, or similar vegetables. This must be fed daily. Fine grit is also necessary. A dish of bran and charcoal is helpful, placed so that the chicks can help themselves at will. Pinhead oatmeal, oat flakes, etc., are good for variety.

Later on, cracked corn and wheat are good. Beef scrap can be fed with success after ten days, unless the chick feed contains meat in some form. Pure clean water is a necessity.

POULTRY NOTES

Roosters fight when hens are laying. Seldom otherwise. In making up an egg ration, do not forget a liberal allowance of sunshine.

A cold draft will stop hens laying as quickly as anything in the world—sure.

Cleanliness in feeding will guard against diseases to which poultry are liable.

We don't sell all our eggs. Don't you think they are as good for us to eat as for other folks? A dull, sunken eye in a fowl denotes defective nutritive power and lack of constitution and vigor.

The baby ducks are just as well off, in fact better, without water to swim in until they have grown their crop of feathers.

Keep your hens from straying over on the land of your neighbor. Be particular about this if he has any crop growing there.

Bits from meat carried out with brine from the barrel and left on the ground will give hens serious bowel trouble. Don't risk it.

If your chicks are ever troubled with gapes, look after the earth worms. They are the common carriers of the worms and eggs.

Windows are good to make the hen house light. But they are seldom made tight enough to exclude drafts or cold air. If close to roosts, you run risks.

How to Feed.

Scratching is of more importance than feeding, and it is not necessary to feed them more than twice a day, as the noon meal usually satisfies the fowls that they will not be inclined to scratch and the exercise. The hen that has to hustle for part of her living will be laying eggs while the overfed hen is serenely digesting her food and quietly waiting for her owner to bring more.

By giving the hens just as much food as they will relish in the morning and scattering some small grain in the litter, they will start scratching and will keep it up until their crops are full. They can be given all they can eat of acceptable foods, varying as frequently as circumstances will allow. With the variety of food obtainable in the summer time, even for confined fowls, there is little excuse for having overfed birds.

Apply Whitewash Now.

A coat of lime inside the poultry house is an improvement in many ways. It makes the room lighter; it preserves the woodwork; it fills up the crevices and prevents them from becoming breeding places of insects. Lime wash is also a good killer of every sort of disease. A little carbolic acid mixed with the whitewash is a help. Use a spray pump and force the material into the crevices. No brush will be needed.

The Little Time.

So little time to love you—so little time to see the ones that have made Heaven on this poor earth for me!

So little time to bring unto that voice which thrills a soul with sweet music—then morning birds or rills.

But thankful that I met you in days when love was new, and that I could breast you—The beautiful bird true, Frank T. Station in Atlanta, Ga., 1909.

THE BIG YEARLY DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING.

Large Time For Political Warm-Up, As It Nears Election Time. Prominent Speakers And Music. Afternoon And Night.

Today the Democrats from all sections of this County will gather in the Opera House to listen to the good old doctrine interpreted by some of the ablest men of the party in the State today. Judging from all reports thousands will be here and the lack of enthusiasm which has been talked about so much that even some of those who know better have got to feel a little nervous, will have vanished as though it never existed.

The Big meeting has always been a very successful feature of Democratic campaign in this county and the party supporters have come to look forward to it like they do a camp meeting.
Recognizing this, it has always been the effort on the part of those in charge to bring to Salisbury the best in the way of speakers that could be obtained. The Democratic party is unusually fortunate this year in having for its candidate one of the ablest platform speakers in the State. Hon.
J. Harry Cowington is an all around good man and is a credit to the entire district which he has represented so faithfully in Congress, and is entitled to the confidence and respect of the citizens regardless of politics. To say that he enjoys this confidence to a large extent will not be going out of the way, for he is probably the most popular man who has held this office
in a number of years.

The Democrats in this County are fast awakening to the fact that owing to the large negro vote in the First Congressional District, this year's election is not by any means going to be a walk over, and are devoting their time in getting aroused the voters in the county. If the Republicans had nominated a man of stronger personality and then made the fight now being made, then it might turn out to be a pretty close matter, but as it seems now the only question is to get out the voters.

The arrangements for the meeting
today are in the hands of the following Democrats:

Hon. Charles R. Disharoon, Hon.
Jesse D. Price, E. A. Toadvine, S.
King White, former Mayor Charles E.
Harper, Hon. E. E. Twilley and A.
M. Jackson

These gentlemen met Friday night and appointed the following committees to assist in the arrangements:
Reception Committee to meet the Speakers: Mayor Harper, John M.
Toulson E. A. Toadvine, Harry Dennis and W. U. Polk.

Decorations Committee for Opera House: A. M. Jackson, E. E. Twil-ley, Daniel B. Cannon, Carl Brownington and Harry Fooks.

It has been arranged for Hon. Jesse D. Price to preside at the night meeting. At night special arrangements will be made to accommodate the ladies at the Opera House, one side of the building being reserved for them.

The Democratic Campaign Committee has arranged for two special trains for the day. One will leave at 10.10 at night after the meeting to take all passengers to the west side of the county from Salisbury to Mardela, and another special train will leave after the night meeting at eleven o'clock to take passengers from the east side from Salisbury to Willards. Passengers can come to Salisbury on all the regular trains and return by the special trains on their regular tickets without extra fare. By this arrangement everybody who wishes to stay for the night meeting from either side of the county can return home the same night. It is also expected that the gasoline boats running from White Haven and Nantuxoke will make special trips Saturday afternoon and Saturday night.

Big Band To Play.

The big band to furnish music at the big Democratic mass meetings in Salisbury this Saturday afternoon and evening will be composed of two solo cornet and two clarinet players from the First Infantry Band, of Wilmington; two trombones from the Dover band; snare drummer from Seaford and the remainder from Delmar. At 1.30 P. M., the band will render the following program in front of the Peninsula Hotel: Regimental March,
"On Parade"; overture, "War Songs of the Boys in Blue"; characteristic,
"The Lame Goose." At 7.30 the following selections will be played at the same place: two-step, "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon"; waltz song, "Daisies Won't Tell"; flower song, "Hearts and Flowers." After each concert the band will march to the Opera House where the meeting will be held.

NOTABLE PREACHERS

Present At The Re-Opening Of The Division Street Baptist Church.

The Baptist Re-opening held last Sunday in the new Division Street
Church was an interesting occasion.
Several noted men of the denomination were present and took part in the services. Prof. Bennett, of Baltimore, a well known soloist of the Southland, delighted everybody with his beautifully rendered selections.

Rev. Carl Wallace Petty, of New York City, was the speaker of the day.
Dr. Petty is the pastor of the Creston Avenue Baptist Church of the Metropolis. His address on Sunday afternoon was one of the most remarkable ever heard in Salisbury. His magnetic personality, his unusual gift of language, and his wonderful power of oratory, captivated his audience. Dr.
Petty spoke in the evening before an audience that filled the Church. It is thought that many were not able to get into the building. Dr. E. B.
Hatcher and Dr. J. H. Eager, of Baltimore, delivered splendid addresses during the day.

Messrs. Fred Atkins, William
Sheppard, Harry Atkins and Edgar Laws sang in the afternoon. The selection was beautifully rendered and well received. Mrs. Charles E. Wilkins sang in the evening to a most appreciative audience.

The evening service was in charge of the Young People's Society of the Church, and Miss Marian Evans presided.

STIRS IN CENTREVILLE.

Maryland Town In Throes Of Controversy
Over The Dread Pellagra Disease.
Is It Contagious?

Centreville, Md., is in the throes of a pellagra controversy, and although the advice of the State Board of Health has been asked and received,
the inhabitants of the town are not satisfied, but still debate among themselves as to the merits and demerits of the partly accepted theories regarding the cause of the dread disease. In the meantime, a portion of the county school system has been affected by the fight and one teacher has resigned and physicians and School Commissioners are arrayed one against the other.

Some time ago two children of Thomas L. Pratt who attended what is known as the Brick School, died of pellagra or a disease diagnosed as such. The facts in the case were not reported to the State Board of Health until after the death of the children.
When school reopened Mr. Pratt sent the remainder of his children back to school, but the teacher, Miss Corinne Troy, a daughter of Dr. W. D. Troy, of Centreville, sought to bar them from the school privileges on the ground that they probably would cause the disease to spread among the scholars.

Miss Troy was over-ruled by the County School Commissioners, and the Pratt children went to school. Miss Troy thereupon resigned, and her father took up the fight against the stand taken by the School Commissioners. He demanded that the school house be fumigated.

Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, of the State Board of Health was communicated with, and he gave it as his opinion that the disease was not communicable, which indicated that the School Commissioners were right, and that the brothers or sisters of the deceased scholars would in no way bring the disease into the school or that it would be necessary to fumigate the school house for the purpose of preventing pellagra.

The reply of Dr. Rohrer was not accepted by the Centreville people, however, and Dr. Troy insists that the finding of the Italian Government that the disease is spread by the bur-rillo fly and the generally accepted American theory of moldery corn are mere bosh, and that the disease could be prevented if the School Commissioners would fumigate the school.

Dr. Price, secretary of the State Board of Health, declared that the Centreville controversy was a tempest in a teacup. He said that it was absolutely of no use for the School Commissioners to fumigate the school with an idea to keep out pellagra, and that it was the height of folly to even think of keeping children away from school because their brother and sister died of pellagra some time ago.

METHODISTS' UNION.

Church Leaders To Meet In Baltimore On Nov. 30th To Formulate Plans.

Closer affiliation of the various branches of the Methodist Church with the view in consolidation ultimately will be discussed at a meeting to be held in Baltimore on November 30, a call for which meeting has been made.

At this meeting will be present members of commissions appointed by branches of Methodism, and because of the general desire apparent among leading Methodists of the country for closer co-operation, it is the belief today of leading local Methodists, many of whom will take prominent parts in the conference, that plans will be adopted which will result eventually in wiping out the lines that separate the various churches.

The question of a closer relation between the branches of Methodism
in America, with the possibility of ultimate union, has been much mooted at general conferences for years and the meeting of the commissions of the three representative bodies of that creed is being looked forward to with eagerness by Methodists all over the United States.

Members Of Commission.

Bishop Earl Cranston, of Washington is chairman of the Methodist Episcopal Commission and his associates are Bishop Luther B. Wilson, formerly of Baltimore; Bishop J. M.
Walden, Rev. Dr. J. F. Gouchoer,
Rev. Dr. G. A. Reader, Monks Vernon, Ohio; Rev. Dr. W. W. Evans, R. T. Miller, Hanford Crawford and
J. A. Paston, of Chhattanooga, Tenn.
Dr. Gouchoer is abroad and will not be present at the meeting.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South's commission is headed by the venerable Bishop Alphaeus W. Wilson of Baltimore, senior bishop of this church. Those associated with him are Bishops E. E. Hoss and Collins
Denny, Rev. Dr. W. J. Young, Rev.
Dr. F. M. Thomas, Rev. Dr. C. M.
Bishop, M. L. Walton, Dr. S. N. Hyer
and W. B. Stubbs.

Rev. Dr. T. H. Lewis, Chairman.

The chairman of the commission of the Methodist Protestant Church is Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Lewis, president of Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., who is well known in this city. The other members of this church commission are Rev. Drs. M.
L. Jennings, George Shaffer, D. G.
Helmiok, C. D. Siskinson and S. R.
Harris, J. E. Peterson, W. M. N.
Swift and J. J. Barge.

The call for the meeting in Baltimore was issued in pursuance to resolutions for closer relation between the various branches of Methodism adopted at the General Conference of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church in Asheville, N. C., last May at the Methodist Protestant General Conference in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1906, and at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore in 1908.

Associated Boards Of Trade.

A meeting of all the regular Boards of Trade of Maryland was held at Cambridge this week. At this meeting a strong organization was perfected for the purpose of increasing the business of Maryland. An amusing incident of the meeting was the plans made by the members from Baltimore City as to how the meeting was to be organized and run after their arrival on the grounds. These plans were all formulated on the boat before reaching Cambridge. These Baltimoreans however lost sight of the fact that they were coming to famed Eastern Shore, which always was a plan of its own. Indeed it is stated that a man on this shore never retires into his own room for a little quiet thinking on any problem without holding a cassus with himself as to how the conference is to be conducted when he reaches the room. At least when the party reached the point of their destination they found that as usual the Eastern shoremen had already organized and mapped out the plan of the meeting, so they were compelled to hide their own well thought out plans and abide by those already adopted. The delegates from Salisbury were Messrs W. B. Tilghman, Chas. E. Harper, and B. Frank Kennerly. Mr. Harper was made one of the Vice Presidents of the Association, Mr. Kennerly appointed on the transportation committee, and Mr.
Tilghman on the committee on organization.

Weds, Then Is Graduated.

Just an hour before the Commencement exercises of the Class of '10
Golden College, on Tuesday evening, Miss Nellie K. Yarnall, a member of the class, and Clarence Elliott, a business man of Salisbury, Md., were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. C. Linsler at 7 o'clock.
Immediately afterwards the bride hurried to the auditorium of the Wilmington High School, where the exercises were held.

Fall...
Tailored Suits at $25.00

We have specialized on $25.00 Tailored Suits this fall—bought them from the best makers, paid more for them than is usually paid for $25.00 suits, and insisted on having the very best possible combination of materials, style and tailoring.

As a result, our $25.00 Suits are in a class of their own—nothing to equal them can be found at or near their price.

Materials include broadcloths of genuine imported quality, rough basket-weaves, hard-finished worsteds, serges of best quality, and imported mannish mixtures, in the newest shades of brown, blue, gray, tan and wine, as well as the staple black and modish combinations.

Coats are in the new length, ranging from 30 to 34 inches, and are plain tailored, with hand-turned seams, or trimmed with braids or strappings of self material. We have both single and double-breasted models, with mannish collar, revers and sleeves. All are lined with superior silk or satin.

Skirts are in cluster or plain pleated effects—some in a modified hobble model, retaining the fashionable line, but affording ample room for walking.

Other Suits at $15 to $75

Than Our Competitors

Is Because We Undersell Them

Our Prices are always less than the other fellow wants for the same goods. If you don't believe it, ask us for a price on something. We are after the business, and to get it we will give prices that can't be beat. Don't be misled on Quality and Grading. You know there's a difference, but you can't always detect it. The unscrupulous dealer knows this and takes advantage of your inexperience by giving you lower grade than you pay for. Our Quality is absolutely guaranteed. Our Grading is standard among the thousands who know. Send Us An Inquiry To-day.

We're out to undersell the other fellow

MEAT WITH THE FAT

RICHNESS OF FLAVOR IS SECURED BY BROWNING.

Heating Usually Done in Frying Pan, Except in Case of Roasts, But Care Must Be Exercised to Avoid Scorching.

Next to the unchanged flavor of the meat itself comes the flavor which is secured by browning the meat with fat. The outside slices of roast meat have this browned flavor in marked degree. Except in the case of roasts, browning for flavor is usually accomplished by heating the meat in a frying pan in fat which has been fried out of pork or in suet or butter. Care should be taken that the fat is not scorched. The chief reason for the bad opinion in which fried food is held by many is that it almost always means eating burned fat. When fat is heated too high it splits up into fatty acids and glycerin, and from the glycerin is formed a substance (acrolein) which has a very irritating effect upon the mucous membrane. All will recall that the fumes of scorched fat make the eyes water. It is not surprising that such a substance, if taken into the stomach, should cause digestive disturbance. Fat in itself is a very valuable food, and the objection to fried foods because they may be fat seems illogical. If they supply burned fat there is a good reason for suspicion. Many housekeepers cook bacon in the oven on a wire broiler over a pan and believe it more wholesome than fried bacon. The reason, of course, is that thus cooked the bacon becomes impregnated with burned fat. Where fried salt pork is much used good cooks know that it must not be cooked over a very hot fire, even if they have never heard of the chemistry of burned fat. Recipes for bean-pot roast and other similar recipes may be varied by browning the meat or part of it before covering with water. This results in keeping some of the natural flavoring within the meat itself and allowing less to go into the gravy. The flavor of veal can be very greatly improved in this way.

How to Serve Watermelon.

Watermelons are especially cooling and refreshing on a hot day because of the quantities of deliciously-flavored juice which they contain. The edible portion is sometimes thoroughly chilled, cut in small cubes (removing seeds), sprinkled with powdered sugar and arranged in coupe glasses for the first course at luncheon or dinner. For family use it is more attractively served in one of the following ways: Cut a section three or four inches in thickness from the center of a chilled watermelon. With a sharp knife cut out a circle of the pink pulp (the edible portion) and place upon a chilled serving-dish of correct size. Serve in pie-shaped pieces on chilled plates or cut off a thick slice from both ends of melon (that the halves may stand level) and cut in halves crosswise. Arrange on a serving-dish on a bed of green leaves, if any are at hand.

Comet Salad.

Soak one-half box of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water for five minutes; add one-half cupful of mild vinegar, the juice of one lemon, one pint of boiling water, one-half cupful of sugar, and one teaspoonful of salt. Strain and when beginning to set add one cupful of finely shredded cabbage, two cupfuls of celery cut in small pieces, and one-fourth can of sweet red peppers finely cut. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve with lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing or cut in dice and serve in cases made of red or green peppers, or the mixture may be shaped in molds lined with pimientos. This is a delicious accompaniment to cold sliced chicken or veal.

Escalloped Corn.

Butter a baking dish, and in the bottom of the dish put a layer of rolled cracker crumbs, a little salt, pepper, and dots of butter; then a layer of canned corn, salt, pepper and butter; then cracker crumbs, salt, pepper and butter, and so on. Have cracker crumbs for last layer, salt, pepper and butter; then over all pour plenty of rich milk, as the crumbs absorb a good deal. Bake three-quarters of an hour in a moderately hot oven, until a light brown. This is a delicious dish, and one can of corn will serve ten people.

Rice and Cheese.

One teaspoonful of rice to four cupfuls of hot water. Boil rapidly for 20 minutes. On bottom of buttered baking dish put layer of bread crumbs, then a thick layer of rice and grated cheese, another layer of rice, another of cheese. Finish with bread crumbs on top. Pour over all a cold mixture of one egg, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one tablespoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of dry mustard. Bake 20 minutes in a quick oven. This is delicious as a luncheon dish or as a substitute for potatoes with meat.

Cleaning Straw Hats.

Many a person uses a solution of oxalic acid and water for cleaning a straw hat. Sometimes this solution gets on the hat band, sadly discoloring it.

The damage may be overcome by wiping off the band with ammonia water. An application of two of this liquid will restore the color.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

BULLETIN

Opening Of The Great Pennsylvania Station In New York.

On Sunday, November 27, full train service will be inaugurated by the Pennsylvania Railroad to and from its new station at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-second Street, New York City.

The location of the Pennsylvania Station, one block from Broadway, two blocks from Fifth Avenue, is in the heart of the hotel, club and theatre district of Manhattan. Within a short radius are located the majority of the big retail stores and restaurants. The Seventh Avenue surface cars and the Eighth Avenue surface cars pass its doors; the Thirty-fourth Street surface cars (crosstown) pass its Thirty-fourth Street entrance, and stations of the Sixth Avenue Elevated and Hudson and Manhattan Tubes are a short block from its main entrance.

Time tables showing the service to and from the Pennsylvania Station are now being arranged, and may be obtained at Ticket Offices before the opening of the Station.

Connections will be made at Manhattan Transfer (near Newark) with local trains to and from the down town stations by way of Jersey City, so that downtown New York passengers who desire may continue to use the Cortlandt and Desbrosses Street Stations and the Hudson Terminal Station of the Hudson and Manhattan Tubes.

REAL ESTATE

AND TIMBER

IN AND NEAR ALLEN.

By virtue of competent authority, the undersigned will sell at public auction, at the Court House door, in Salisbury, Md., on Saturday, November 26th,

1910 at 2 o'clock P. M. the following real estate:

(1.) All that lot of land where the late Levin B. Price resided at the time of his death, situated in the village of Allen, Wicomico County, Md., on the East side of the county road leading from Princess Anne to Collins wharf, containing Seven Acres of land, more or less. This tract is improved by a large two story dwelling in excellent condition and necessary out buildings.

(2.) All that farm located in Wicomico County, Maryland, near the village of Allen and bounded on the North by the lands of Levi Malone; on the east by a new road leading from W. B. H. Cooper's to den and lands of Mrs. C. C. Vickers; on the south by a private road, and on the west by the lands of Thomas W. H. White and others; containing 201 acres of land. Sixty Acres of this land is in a good state of cultivation, fine trucking land, and having a natural drainage. One Hundred and Forty One acres is set in Pine, Gum, and Oak timber.

(3.) All that tract of land lying East of tract No. 2, and bounded on the North by the lands of Thomas W. H. White on the East by lands of Jesse and John Goles; on the south by lands of James Dutton; containing Forty Two acres and ten perches of land, more or less; this tract is well set in nice marketable Pine, Oak and Gum Timber and is one and one half miles from Eden Station.

Tracts Nos. 2 and 3 are located about one half mile from the State Road now laid out.

Any one desiring an excellent home, a good farm, or nice timber will do well to attend the sale of the property.

Plans of the above property may be seen at office of L. Atwood Bennett.

TERMS of Sale may be had with the undersigned on day of sale.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it, Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have tried with indigestion, have been cured by it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a second and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nausea, flatulence, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headache, dizziness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peptic is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the class test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Get to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you are not completely cured, that is, if you are not free from all the symptoms of dyspepsia, we will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to one used in a family. The large bottle costs $1.00. The small bottle costs 50c.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

1911 Moline "35"

4x6 Long Stroke Motor — 35 H. P. — 36-inch Wheels — 112-inch Wheel Base

Touring Type . . . $1,650
Toy Tonneau . . . $1,600

One of the best evidences of the exceptional merits of the Moline "35" is the remarkable record it made in the 1910 Glidden Tour. In addition to winning the Chicago trophy, donated by the Chicago Motor Club, the Moline "35" made the best record of any car entered in the entire tour, regardless of classification, size, power and selling price. It out-pointed all competitors; was never late at control a single time; did not carry a single extra repair part, not a single extra 2,852 miles; and at final technical examination to determine the wear and tear of the cars at the grueling sixteen days' grind, it was found to be in the best mechanical condition of any car in the tour. This tells the story of the dependable, high standard service the Moline "35" will give its purchasers. By point the 1911 Moline will stand comparison with the tour, which will be mailed free on request.

From Lucile's Diary

Mother's small and perfectly unnecessary household economies annoy me dreadfully at times.

I said to her one day recently that I wished she would have our nickel telephone taken out and replaced by the unlimited service.

"As you nearly always use my nickels," laughed mother, "I don't see why you should care which kind of telephone we have. Seriously, dear, I think that if even a little money can be saved by using the nickel phone we ought to do it cheerfully."

I knew it was useless to argue the matter with mother any further at that time, but I did not give up the idea of securing the unlimited service. I rarely abandon any plan on which my mind is set, for I think persistence is one of the important elements of strength of character.

That evening just after dinner Betty called me up and asked me to come over and play cards.

"I hope you haven't any engagement," she said, "for Bob has brought a friend home to dinner tonight and we would like to have a little bridge."

When I got to Betty's I was sorry I had taken the trouble to change my dress. Her invitation was very misleading. I had naturally supposed that when Betty said Bob had brought a friend home she meant a man friend, and I was greatly surprised to be introduced to a plainly gowned and quite uninteresting looking woman.

"Miss Clyde went to school with Bob years ago and now she teaches in a western college," whispered Betty while I was removing my wraps. "She is very bright and charming."

"Really?" I murmured.

As we joined Bob and his old friend in the drawing room I noticed the telephone in the hall.

"Oh, I see you have the unlimited service now!" I exclaimed. "I'm trying to persuade mother to have it put in at our house."

"What's the use?" asked Uncle Bob, good-naturedly. "Whenever you feel an excess of telephonic enthusiasm coming on, drop in here and help yourself to our phone."

"That's awfully sweet of you, Uncle Bob," I replied. "I believe I'll avail myself of your generosity now while Betty is getting out her cards and the bridge table."

I slipped into the hall and rung up Mr. Owen, who has been ill for a few days. He appeared to enjoy a chat and we visited for quite a while. Then I remembered that I had promised to pass the evening at Louise Erwin's house, so I phoned her my apologies for not going. There were several others to whom I wished to speak and I was in the midst of a conversation with Arthur Knight when Betty called me.

"Just a moment, dear," I answered, considerably ignoring her petulant tone.

"Now, you are surely through," Betty said, coming into the hall a few minutes later. "Bob's tuning for our bridge."

"Poor Uncle Bob!" I laughed. "He'll have to be patient a little longer, for I'm waiting for a long-distance call."

Betty left me without another word, and in a minute more I was listening to the voice of Wigner Lee, whom I had been lucky enough to catch at the hotel in Cleveland where he is just now.

I told him about the new tennis club that some of our crowd are organizing and I asked his advice about the kind of racket I should buy. Wigner is such a devoted tennis player that he forgets all about time when he is discussing his favorite game. As he was so thoughtful about the racket, begging the privilege of choosing the one for me, I had not the heart to break off the conversation.

It was rudely interrupted by Uncle Bob, who asked me with uncalculated sharpness if I was "going to talk to that chap all night."

"Of course not," I said. "What time is it?"

"It's exactly 10:45 o'clock," I exclaimed.

"Mercy! I must go home at once!" I protested Betty, "and I was going to make a Welsh rabbit, Lucile."

"Well, I'll stay for a wee bit of the rabbit," I conceded. "Then I must fly. You know how mother dislikes having me remain out late."

Uncle Bob was extremely tactful all the way home. In fact, so short and gruff were his remarks that I was sorry I had bothered to go to his house. I have not seen him since that evening, but yesterday he told mother that a large bill had come in for long-distance telephoning which he thought I would want to pay out of my allowance. When mother spoke to me about it I said that I was simply astonished at Uncle Bob.

"Why, he invited me to use his phone any time," I told her.

"But he didn't expect you to talk to Cleveland for over an hour," said mother. "I do wish, Lucile, that you had not abused his generosity. It makes me very uncomfortable when you displease your Uncle Bob."

"Well, mother," I remarked, "if you would allow me to have the unlimited service put in a little unpleasantness like this would never happen."

Mother just sighed in that martyr-like way of hers.

The men have come today to change our phone. It will be a great comfort to have the unlimited service.

A woman is extolled for her virtues and adored for her weaknesses.

Fluffing the Hair.

To make the hair which goes over the pompadour fluffy, some girls resort to the device of rough combing it underneath, which means running the comb backward over the hair, and then sprinkling powder over it underneath where it does not show when the hair is done up. Combing and powdering in this manner undeniably has a drying effect which makes for stiffness, but both are too disastrous to the hair to be indulged in, for the rough combing breaks it, while the powder badly clogs the pores.

Previous to his elevation to the sovereignty, Jerome Bonaparte had formed a friendship with some young authors at that time in vogue for their wit and reckless gaiety. On the evening after Westphalia he met two of the jovial companions just as he was leaving the theater. "My dear fellows," said he, "I am delighted to see you. I suppose you know that I have been created king of Westphalia?" "Yes, sire, and permit us to be among the first—" "Eh, what! You are ceremonious, methinks; that might pass were I surrounded by my court, but at present away with form and let us be off to supper."

Upon this Jerome took his friends to one of the best restaurants in the Palais Royal. The three chatted and laughed, and said and did a thousand of those foolish things which when unmediated are so delightful.

It may be supposed that the conversation was not kept up without drinking. When the wine they had drunk began to take effect, "My good friends," said Jerome, "why should we quit each other? If you approve of my proposal you shall accompany me. You, C—, shall be my secretary; as for you, P—, who are fond of books, I appoint you my librarian." The arrangement was accepted and ratified over a fresh bottle of champagne.

At length the party began to think of leaving, and accordingly called for the bill. Jerome produced his purse, but the king of Westphalia could only find two louis, which formed but a small portion of 800, the amount of the bill. The new dignitaries, by clubbing their wealth, could only muster about 35.

What was to be done? At one o'clock in the morning where could resources be found? They determined to send for the master of the house and acquaint him how matters stood. He seemed to take the frolic in good part, and merely requested to know their names. Having told him, the restaurateur set his customers down as sharpers, and threatened to send for the commissary of police.

This alarmed Jerome, who, seeing that the restaurateur doubted them, handed over his watch in payment. This watch had been a present from Napoleon, and on the back was the emperor's cipher in brilliants.

On examining the watch the restaurateur concluded that it had been stolen, and took it to the commissary of police. The latter, recognizing the imperial cipher, ran with it to the prefect. The prefect flew to the minister of the interior, and he in turn went to the emperor at St. Cloud.

Next morning the Minister contained an ordinance in which Jerome was ordered to Westphalia at once, and prohibited from conferring any appointments till his arrival at his capital.

Best Way to Telephone.

"When I telephone while sitting, as I customarily do," said a woman who telephones a good deal, "I habitually speak in a low tone, not very much above a whisper; when I telephone standing up I don't shriek exactly, but I find myself always speaking in a loud tone. I suppose the reason for this thing is simple enough. When I am sitting I am comfortable and securely at ease bodily and inclined to do things easily, and then I can adjust the telephone to exactly the most convenient height and angle and speak into it quite without effort; it is all very easy, whereas when I have to stand at a telephone some effort is required in that I am more or less rigid to start with, and then the telephone may be one fixed in position. I may have to bend my face more or less up or down to the transmitter, to stand in a position more or less constrained, and then when I come to speak I adjust myself, as you might say, shouting into the telephone. It is my experience that I make myself heard more surely when sitting and telephoning as I do then, easily and in a low tone."

Wrong Name for a Card Sharp.

When John A. Strohsneider was arraigned before United States Commissioner Morie in Brooklyn, charged with aiding young Coleman to rob the National City bank of Cambridge, Mass., of a large amount of money, a policeman of German extraction said: "That's the first time I've heard a card sharp called by that name. The name was surely Strohsneider once on a time and was Americanized into what it is now. Strohsneider is German for straw cutter, but whenever Germans play cards they have only one name for the man who makes unpardonable mistakes, who trumps his partner's ace, who can't count 13 and who disregards rules, and that name is 'Strohsneider.' If I were in the card business I'd never have any confidence in a man with that name."

Breaking it to Him.

"Mr. Weerius, the last time you were here you forgot your watch chain and went away without it."

"Oh, I can get that any time, Miss Nona."

"Perhaps you'd better take it now, though. It may—be a long time, you know, before you come again."

The Way It Looked to Him.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge of the defendant in a case of assault and battery.

"I think I must be guilty, your honor," answered the defendant.

"You think so?" said the judge.

"Well, your honor," answered the prisoner. "It's like this: The plaintiff and I were the only ones in the room, and the first thing I knew was that I was standing up, and he was doubled up under the table. So I guess you'd better call it guilty."

A CORNER IN ANCESTORS

By FRANCIS COWLES

Welles Family

(Copyright by McClure Syndicate)

As a surname Welles is taken from the name of a place; for in many places, and in many languages, springs or wells gave their names to places. The same name is known in several languages—in French as Du Puy or Dupuis and De la Fontaine, in Dutch as Vander der Put, and in Italian as Pozzi. The name was also Latinized as De Fontibus. People living near a well that had no particular name were sometimes called At Wells, or De la Well, and these names were later shortened into Welles.

The Welles family in this country is doubtless of Norman origin, and in the country whence it came originally it was known as "de Welles." It is said that in the eleventh century William the Norman Conqueror gave to one of his knights, Richardus, the manor of Welles and made him Baron or Lord Welles. In return for this favor Lord

Welles was to see that the king's household was supplied with bread.

The family in America was established by a branch of this noble family of barons of the realm. And it is a strange story that tells of the coming to the new world of the first man of the name.

Thomas Welles was the owner and proprietor of a large hotel in London, which was much frequented by the nobility. He also owned shipyards, and one day at dinner he let fall some ideas about his religious beliefs. His shipyards were confiscated by the crown, and word reached him that he was suspected of non-conformity by the court of high commission.

This was in 1629, and Thomas and his family realized that no time could be lost. Aided and urged by his son, also named Thomas, the elder Welles put to sea in either the George Bonaventure, the Lion's Whelp, or the Talbot. Welles thought he was safe as soon as he boarded the vessel, but before sailing time men came to search for him. He was quickly hidden in a big, empty water-cask, and he stayed there until the vessel put to sea.

Thomas Welles landed at what is now Salem, Mass., and soon afterward his family joined him. He had five sons, Thomas, mentioned above, Hugh, Nathaniel, Joseph and Edward. All but the latter settled first in Rhode Island, and bought a tract of land of over 400 acres of the Narragansett Indians in the wilderness of Westport. Some of this land is still in the possession of their descendants.

Thomas, Hugh and John returned to Massachusetts in 1635, and later helped found Hartford, Connecticut.

Gideon Welles, who was secretary of the navy under Presidents Lincoln and Johnson, was a descendant of the Thomas, and was fourth governor of the state of Connecticut. Gideon's father, and grandfather were both named Samuel, and both fought in the revolutionary war.

Another branch of the family was founded here by another Thomas Welles, who was born in Dudley, Worcestershire, England, in 1694, and died in Hebron, Conn. He married Elizabeth Merrill, and settled in Saybrook and later in Hebron, Conn. He had many descendants, for the most part scattered over New York and Connecticut. Although this branch is not directly connected with the branch of the family already mentioned, it may possibly be from the same original stock.

The arms which are illustrated are those of the Welles family founded in England by Lord Welles. They are described in an old document as follows: "He beareth argent, a chevron voided azure between three flames of fire, proper, by the name Welles." It is supposed that these arms were granted to the family by Richard Coeur de Lion about 1200. It is very probable that the man to whom he granted them was one of his subjects who accompanied him on a crusade.

The "three flames" mentioned are symbolic, in heraldry, of the Holy Ghost, and therefore are a very suitable emblem for a crusader. The crest is a mailed arm, clasping a drawn scymitar, and the motto, "Pro Deo et Patria,"—for God and Country—also suggests the crusader.

Society Note.

Reverend Fourth seeks the seaside. Reverend Fifth the mountain crown. Reverend Tenth goes to Iowa. Only 6. Nick stays in town.

Apprehensive.

"Come on and take a ride in my monoplane," insisted the inventor.

"Why, it has a speed of a mile a minute."

"Indeed," said the cautious friend.

"What has direction to do with it?"

"Why, as—I was thinking perhaps it made that speed coming down toward the earth."

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."

Mrs. Anna Anderson, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It cures female ill, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

CORPORATIONS IN POLITICS.

The favoring of big corporations by such acts as the present unjust and unfair tariff measure, is largely responsible for the active participation in politics of our large trusts. Investigation after investigation has shown that these corporations have not hesitated to bribe our legislators, our party leaders, or any one else that had any influence upon legislation. Even our courts have not been immune from their tampering and we have the sad spectacle of one of the strong trusts writing to the "boss" of one of our largest commonwealths telling him to appoint a certain man as judge. Owing to the influence which money has had in our elections for the past few decades, party managers on both sides have been compelled to listen to the trusts or lose their large campaign contributions, which loss as a rule meant the success of their opponents at the polls. Why should these corporations be so interested in the success of parties, or rather of men—for their tools can be found in all parties?

There is, of course, but one answer and that is they are in it to promote and help their own business interests. Not in the broad sense of supporting measures which will help the entire business interests of the country, but in order that the business in which they are engaged will receive more than they are entitled to under any fair and just law. They are interested in order that the tariff which kills and stifles their competitors may be continued upon the products which they are engaged in manufacturing.

There is, of course, a community of interests among all high protectionists, and the sugar man will support the steel and so all along the line. Take away the incentive of these men to engage in practical politics and we will hear the last of corrupted legislatures and debauched electorates.

The time is fast coming when the voter with the best interest of his party and country at heart will look more at the character of the man who seeks office, than at the party which he is supposed to represent.

First, however, let us try to force out the bootlickers and corruptionists from our own party and failing in this we must support the man who stands for honest, fair and pure government, regardless of the party which he is supposed to represent.

The Republican party is fast recognizing the unfairness of the present tariff laws, and in the West they have nominated men who could stand on the Democratic platform and support its fight for low tariff as well as the time honored server in that party. Here however, in the East, the party shows but little signs of getting away from the unjust measure, and is now as it has been in the past, a strong supporter of the iniquitous high tariff.

Here in Maryland the Republican party has gone on record as being in favor of the present bill, and the people of the State can not expect any relief from either the party or its nominees if elected this fall.

Here in the first district measure it is as you please, either by the gauge of party and party principles, or by the higher gauge of ability, or by the still higher one of character and moral stability and the Democratic party will still stand in a position to offer the best and most logical man to send to Congress this fall.

In Mr. Covington, the Democratic nominee, the party this year offers a man who will appeal to the party supporters, the independents and to all those who believe it is time that the subsidy now given to our big trusts under the name of protective tariff, should be taken away. To those who believe that these self same trusts should be driven now and forever from the field of practical politics.

Today is the great meeting of the Democratic party in this country. Let every man who is interested in the government of his country, and the man who is not, is not worthy of citizenship, go to the Opera House and hear him interpret his platform and state his principles. See if his ability and his principles are not of that high order which justify a vote for him this fall. Let the Democrats come and give him encouragement in his fight this year and let the independents go, and see if he is not a candidate that they can support with pride, and let all other political parties go and listen to his principles and think over them and see if they do not tend to the best and true interests of this great country of ours.

look into the future and not only discourage permanent improvement, but throw all sorts of obstacles in the way of progressive officials who are trying to build for the future. Frequently there are a sufficient number of such citizens in a community to retard such work and thereby set a town back in the scale of progress for fifty or a hundred years. As Mayor of one of your sister towns for a period of six years, I was frequently confronted with these obstacles but fortunately my constituents' in the main were progressive in spirit and alive to the needs of the future and by their cooperation and encouragement we were enabled to go forward until we established a system of streets and sewers second to none in a city of the same size. Our experience has been that some of those who were satisfied with the old order of things and thought modern streets and an up to date sewerage system a waste of public money are now the strongest advocates of twentieth century methods.

EX-MAYOR HARPER

Makes An Address At Cambridge. Talks About Street-Making, Etc.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Maryland State Board of Trade; Being an Eastern Shoreman and a native of this grand old county it affords me more than ordinary pleasure to be with you today and participate in a movement that I trust will be for the material advancement of our State. Too much credit cannot be accorded to the originators of such a business proposition, and at the same time the unselfish spirit which characterizes their action. It requires co-operation on the part of all to bring about the desired results in any movement of consequence, and as co-operation is necessary, even so is it necessary to weave in a harmonious whole the various things accomplished to secure a successful result.

Many things go to make up the material and commercial progress of a City or State, but none are for more than its highways and drainage system. Upon this subject, as applied to our municipalities, I am called upon to address you. There are many phases from which this subject may be reviewed, but time will suffice only to view them from a practical standpoint. As the Apian Way, indestructible in construction and fame, meant much to the material advancement of Rome, so will the character of our streets reflect itself upon the material advancement of our cities.

From a practical standpoint, I would impress upon my hearers, especially from the smaller towns and cities, the necessity of beginning right. Most municipal authorities, coming in touch every day with their constituents are more than likely to be influenced from the course that would mean advancement of their town in order to gratify some caprice or whim of his fellow townsman, and thereby make a street narrower than it should be, or a bend where it should not be. To resist such temptation requires men of progressive spirit, who can look ahead enough to see that in the course of human events towns will not forever be confined to their present limits, and in order to build wisely, we should build for the future. The first thing then in laying streets is to see that they are of sufficient width, straight as conditions will permit and on proper grade. My experience demonstrates that the officers of a town should look well to the extension of streets, where and the manner in which they are laid out, and not permit every person that so desires to lay out his property, looking only to his own commercial advancement, which may destroy the symmetry and beauty of the town.

When streets are properly laid out and graded, the road bed should be permanently improved it is cheaper in the course of time when viewed in its final analysis, which phase I have not time to enter in, except to say that fine feathers make fine birds, and fine streets result in fine buildings. Build a nice street in front of a man's home, and it is like any other contagion, he will catch the fever and be impelled either by the spirit of the hour or by shame to build in keeping with his surroundings. When this rule does not apply in the concrete, he will sell out and move and give way to more progressive spirits. This in its final analysis means a more up to date town, larger treasury and happier people. As I take it, this is not the time to elaborate on the constructive work, as that is the duty of the engineer.

As night follows day, and one the natural sequence of the other, so is a sewerage system equally as inseparable and indispensable in the work of street improvement and municipal advancement. It means in its entirety perfect sanitary condition of the City, and it is not only a necessary adjunct, but a condition precedent to good streets. No street improvement can be successfully carried out without adequate sewerage system. The sanitary condition of a town means its uplift. Muddy streets, a promiscuous distribution of refuse and vegetable matter upon streets and premises, means disease, discomfort and death, and these in turn mean depleted cities, sleepy hollows and stand still towns.

The brief time allotted will not permit a discussion of this large subject in detail. Let me urge, however, the absolute necessity of good streets properly maintained and an adequate sewerage system as a requisite to happiness in the home, advancement in the mart, and a gratifying satisfaction to the whole people. Those who oppose thoughtlessly such improvements when the scale has dropped from their eyes will early in the morning wake from their lethargy and call for blessed. Unfortunately there are to be found in every town and city a large class of citizens who think anything will do and do not look into the future and not only discourage permanent improvement, but throw all sorts of obstacles in the way of progressive officials who are trying to build for the future. Frequently there are a sufficient number of such citizens in a community to retard such work and thereby set a town back in the scale of progress for fifty or a hundred years. As Mayor of one of your sister towns for a period of six years, I was frequently confronted with these obstacles but fortunately my constituents' in the main were progressive in spirit and alive to the needs of the future and by their cooperation and encouragement we were enabled to go forward until we established a system of streets and sewers second to none in a city of the same size. Our experience has been that some of those who were satisfied with the old order of things and thought modern streets and an up to date sewerage system a waste of public money are now the strongest advocates of twentieth century methods.

This is a progressive age in which we live, the spirit of progress is abroad and is being demonstrated on every hand. The State has but recently embarked on the building of a great system of public highways to be built and maintained at public expense and the people are lending their aid in the accomplishment of this great work and while there is naturally some who still believe the old way is good enough yet they are few and far between, and the great body of our citizens are enthusiastic and determined to go forward in this great work until this grand old State shall have a complete system of modern highways. If good roads and concrete bridges are good for the State—and we all agree that they are—how much more necessary is it that our towns and cities should be well paved and drained and a complete system of sewers established and maintained. This is true because of the congestion of population in the towns and cities which makes it necessary from a sanitary standpoint as well as from the standpoint of a long range economy. My experience has taught me that to continually patch up old worn out streets from year to year is a waste of public money and that when we build modern streets properly drained with sewers having due regard for sanitation it is the highest form of public economy and goes a long way in preserving the health happiness and prosperity of our suburban communities.

In conclusion let me urge upon you the necessity of building not for today or for the year but for the future and from my own experience and observation public money when properly expended for modern permanent streets and sewers will do more to establish a town or city on a firm foundation that expended for any other purpose.

SALISBURY (WICOMICO CO.) MARYLAND

Home-Seekers Take Notice!

I HAVE THE FOLLOWING VALUABLE REAL ESTATE WHICH I WILL SELL AT PRIVATE SALE:

No. 1—Consists of 101 acres and buildings situated about half way between Salisbury and Delmar, at the intersection of the Delmar and the Dagobert road, and about one mile from Williams siding on the N. Y. & P. & N. railroad. Price $6,000.

No. 2—Consists of 60 acres fronting on the Delmar road, which has been built under the Shoemaker law, and is directly south of the described property. This tract has no buildings and can be bought for $1,000.

No. 3—Consists of 75 acres fronting on same road, directly south of this is the old Leonard homestead. The dwelling is in good condition, and the outbuildings, with a little attention at slight cost, will answer for several years. This is good land, as the crops raised on the farm will show. The location is ideal and the price is $3,500.

No. 4—Is directly south of No. 3, fronting on the same road, and contains 60 acres. This is an especially desirable tract of land, but contains no buildings. The price is $3,500.

No. 5—Consists of a little over 75 acres, fronting on same road and mostly south of No. 4. About 25 acres cleared, the balance in woodland, mostly cut over, but still containing a considerable amount of fire wood; also contains a small dwelling in fairly good repair. Although a little rough in its present condition, this can be made a very valuable farm, the quality of the land being exceptionally good. The price is $3,250.

No. 6—Contains 3 acres adjoining the Salisbury Fair Grounds on the side and is opposite Sewell Richardson's. A very valuable lot. Price $1,000.

No. 7—Immediately adjoins No. 6 and contains 4 1/2 acres. Price $1,200.

No. 8—Lies west of No. 7 and contains 6 acres. Price $1,500.

No. 9—Consists of 15 acres, dwelling and outbuildings, and lies directly in front of Mr. James E. Lowe's new residence, on Quantico road, and is very valuable property. Price $4,250.

No. 10—Is west of No. 9, contains 5 acres and has already been sold to Mr. Woodford Johnson.

No. 11—Is west of No. 10, contains 10 acres and is a very desirable tract. Price $3,500.

No. 12—Is west of No. 11 and situated at the beginning of the Stone road leading to Quantico. This tract contains 10 acres and the price is $3,500.

No. 13—Is directly in front of Mr. Stanford Culver's, on the Quantico road, and contains 9 and 48-100ths acres. Price $1,800.

No. 14—Consists of 3 acres just outside the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying between South Division Street extended and the N. Y. & P. & N. railroad. Price $750.

No. 15—Consists of something over 3 acres immediately adjoining No. 14. Price $750.

No. 16—Consists of 3 acres lying on the east side of South Division Street extended, about three-eighths of a mile from the corporate limits. Price $800.

No. 17—Contains 10 acres and is immediately adjoining the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying along the N. Y. & P. & N. railroad, and extending on a street, directly south of Salisbury and in section commonly known as "Hastingsville." This tract will be sold in acre lots at $300 each, or will sell the entire piece to one party. Price on application.

All of the above properties were originally bought for their exceptionally good location. Each and every one of the above-named parcels of land, except No. 17, are fronting on prominent highways that have already been improved under the specifications of the Shoemaker law, and are especially desirable to progressive parties wishing to build homes in good neighborhoods.

Hospitality In a Nutshell

By Belle Mantates

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Huddled down among some tall, angular poplars in a valley between the high hills was a little white house with a lean-to at the rear and a big porch in front. Here had lived, for 48 years, a childless old couple. They thought that their little home which they had named "The Nutshell," the most beautiful place in the world, and their only lament was that so few persons "dropped in," or even passed by. Neighbors were remote, and their road was deserving of the appellation. It was not even a cross-road—hardly a lane—and the grass grew high between two faintly defined wagon ruts. Where it ended and turned into a crossroad, there was such a labyrinth of underbrush, brush and foliage from low-hanging, interlaced tree tops that the opening was completely hidden from view.

One afternoon as they sat on the porch—stoop, Phineas called it—his wife, Hannah, stopped rocking suddenly and listened.

"Some one's coming," she exclaimed, excitedly.

As she spoke a beautiful young woman on a shining black horse came into view.

"Like a picture," said Phineas, taking the pipe from his mouth.

The young lady looked admiringly at the little place and bestowed a friendly glance upon the old couple.

"I can't let her go by," gasped Hannah, as she started down the path. The rider reined in her horse.

"Wouldn't you like to stop a bit and have a drink of cold milk?" Hannah spoke enticingly and appealingly. The answering smile was radiant.

"Indeed, I would," she replied, dismounting, "and may I have one of those rose-cheeked apples I saw in the orchard?"

"You may have a bushel," emphatically asserted Phineas, as he stood up.

A Beautiful Young Woman on a Shining Black Horse.

and held out his hand. "Set right down, while I tie your horse."

She proved to be what Hannah called "folksy." She cheerfully told her name, where she lived and everything that Hannah yearned to know.

"Was you goin' far?" she finally asked.

"I wasn't going anywhere in particular. I don't know how I came to spy this road; it was so shut in. I don't see how people find it."

"They don't," said Hannah, wistfully. "No one comes by but the grocery man once a week, the essence man every four weeks and once in awhile the tin man. We like company, Phineas and I, and we like to have a game, too. We taught the tin man and the essence man to play domino and peder, so they always stop; but the grocery man don't get the time. Once I stopped a stranger and called him in. We played with a dummy."

"I call that a hold up," laughed the girl.

"So it was," allowed Phineas, coming up the steps. "Miss—"

"Irene," she answered.

"That was my mother's name," he said, musingly.

"Can't you stay to supper?" pleaded Hannah. "We have it real early because we have dinner early."

"Thank you," replied the girl. "I should love to stay."

"You can telephone your folks," suggested Phineas. "We have a telephone."

"It won't be necessary. I often go for long rides."

So Phineas led the horse to the barn to feed, while Irene helped to set the table with blue-sprigged china and tall, small bowled spoons. Hannah made a light blanchet. There was a square of golden honey with cream to match its hue. A silver cake basket was heaped with thick slices of gold and silver cake and strawberry preserves, pickles and fragrant tea completed the menu.

"I never ate such a delicious meal!" cried Irene, ecstatically.

"Pshaw, just a bite!" scoffed Phineas.

But while they were making merry throughout the supper hour, clouds had been gathering, and a quick patter of raindrops took them all to the window. A storm was coming on in earnest, and in a few moments there was a terrific roar of thunder and the rain came down in torrents.

"It's in for an all night's storm," predicted Phineas.

"You will have to stay all night," said Hannah, gloomily.

"Yes; ten miles in this rain and the unknown roads would be too venturesome even for me," replied Irene, going to the telephone and informing her mother of her safekeeping.

Presently the telephone rang again. The message was for Irene.

"That wasn't your folks," chuckled Phineas, as she hung up the receiver. "How did you guess?"

"Your tone was so different."

"Wasn't it your beau?" asked Hannah, timidly.

"Yes—almost my beau," laughed Irene. "He asked me to wait here tomorrow, until he rode over and we could ride home together."

"Then we can have a game!" said Hannah, hopefully.

"Yes; he shall stay for several games."

In the morning the sun was shining brightly, and after breakfast, while Phineas fed the cattle, Hannah churned so that "Irene's beau" might have fresh buttermilk to drink.

"I should think," said Irene, musingly, "that you would be perfectly happy in this dear, little place."

Hannah made no reply. Irene, looking up quickly, saw her wipe away a surreptitious tear. The girl's sympathetic questioning finally elicited the cause of her sadness.

"Phineas don't know yet," she said, "and I'm goin' to keep it from him as long as I can, but you see there's been a mortgage for quite a spell on 'The Nutshell.' We've kept up the interest, and thought we could always renew it, but the man wrote us yesterday that we must pay right off. Miss Simons brought me the letter from town, and, luckily, Phineas wasn't here. I can't think yet but a way will come."

"How much is it?"

"Four hundred dollars."

"Oh, is that all?" exclaimed Irene. "I should think you might borrow that somewhere."

"It's a lot to us. You see we've only got a 20 horse, and Phineas's too old to work it—more'n a garden patch for what we eat, and we ain't no hands to scrimp in our feed."

"No, indeed," agreed Irene, recalling her two sumptuous meals.

"Thought it seemed a lot to us, I suppose it's only a drop in the bucket to Mr. Philip Maxfield. But he's going to foreclose."

Irene's face turned pale and then red. She turned to the window to hide her confusion.

"I couldn't have believed it of him!" she thought, sadly.

As she stood there, she saw a horseman coming down the road. He was tall, straight, and sat on his horse like a cavalier.

"Here comes my friend," she said. "I'll go to meet him."

"Philip," she said, before he had dismounted, "these are the sweetest old people and this is the dearest place!"

"It is pretty," he admitted.

"Would you take it away from them—wreck their home—for just $400?"

"Why, what can you mean, dear?"

"They say you hold a mortgage for that amount on the place and that you have written them that you would foreclose at once."

"My dear Irene, I didn't even know that I owned this tiny place. I have so much property! My agent, Carter, attends to all the business. He probably wrote them and signed my name."

"You will let them renew it, please, Philip?"

"Why, of course, Irene."

"For how long?"

"For—forever, if you wish, Irene."

"Come into the house," she said, joyfully. "The your horse first. You have to play several games of domino."

"I would rather have a somewhat dubious as to what was expected of him."

"Mrs. Hewston, I want to introduce Mr. Maxfield."

"Oh, he's coming?"

"No," smiled Irene, "he's come for me."

While Hannah was serving the buttermilk, Phineas came in and was introduced.

"You're the gentleman who holds the mortgage?"

"So it seems, I didn't know it until now. Irene told me."

"We may get a way to pay it," said Hannah, anxiously.

"What's the use?" said Philip, quickly. "You can renew it as often as you please. I'll explain it to my agent today. I would rather have a glass of this buttermilk every time I ride by here than the amount of the mortgage."

"The flash of joy in Hannah's worn face was so reflected in Irene's eyes as she turned impulsively to him, that he glanced hope for the answer to the question he meant to ask on the way home."

GOING FISHING

"But I don't see the point," protested the summer resorter. The young man with his foot resting on the lower step and two fish-poles over his shoulder shook his head impatiently.

"Haven't I just explained," he said, "that when one goes to the country one must indulge in outdoor sports, and that fishing is included in the category? Given a perfectly good lake full of trusting little fish, why not fish? If one does not fish why not stay in town where one can order fish planked and then complain to the waiter? Do try to be in keeping with your surroundings. Just at present you are, theoretically, surrounded by shiny bass begging to be caught."

"I'm not!" declared the summer resorter, flatly. "I'm surrounded by a lake of mud and I loathe fishing any-how, and besides, any self-respecting fish would stay at home on a day like this! I'd have no regard, not the slightest, for a weak-minded fish that would go deliberately wandering around in the ice water looking for bait merely to be accommodated when it could just as well as not stay in the nice warm mud at the bottom of the lake! I shouldn't care to eat a fish like that, really! Don't you think it is going to snow?"

"It's really too cold to snow," admitted the young man. "If it could storm like this I'd be willing to prophesy those, but not just plain ordinary snow. All the horses at our place are blooming out in winter coats of heavy fur. Still, the fish don't mind that, because you can cut holes in the ice in winter and get them, you know."

"B-r-r!" shivered the summer resorter as they rounded the outskirts of the woods and came out on the lake front. "I'm glad to discover what you call pleasure! Of course, if you had invited me to go on a merry little jaunt through a cold-storage plant or something like that I would have known what to expect. Fishing has always been represented to me as an agreeable way of killing time. I don't see anything agreeable about this. I wish I had brought my furs!"

"We aren't fishing yet!" said the young man, patiently. "We are merely on the way. The zest of the sport will—"

"Ow-w-w!" moaned the summer resorter. "How was I to know that horrid hook was swinging loose? If you tear my best puffs getting it out I'll never forgive you as long as I live!"

"Then you'll have to unpin them and let them dangle on the hook," said the young man, shortly. "They may attract the fish."

"Thank it out!" commanded the summer resorter, fiercely. "I hate fish-hooks! I heard of a girl once who got a fishhook caught in her ear when she was a child and they couldn't get it out and she had to go through life that way."

"Too bad she couldn't unpin her ear as you can puffs," said the young man, unsympathetically. "Now, you sit on the box and I'll bait your hook."

"Ugh," said the summer resorter. "There must be something wrong with a human being who can handle angle worms and act as though he liked it! Doesn't it make creeps go down your spine?"

"No," said the young man, callously. "I'm just as wrong as they make 'em! Pardon me, but fish as a rule don't skate along the surface of the water—you'd better lower your line!"

"Truly," said the summer resorter through her chattering teeth, "are you having a good time?"

She stared questioningly at the young man who sat hunched up behind her, wrapped in a disreputable heavy coat and with a pipe between his teeth.

"Yes, indeed," he declared, cheerfully. "Aren't you? This is great!"

"I'm not," said the summer resorter, uncompromisingly. "And the lake is getting rougher and rougher and pretty soon it will splash over this pier and wash our stiffened corpses away—oh, what's the matter?"

"Gottabbe!" said the young man, running the words together. "What a nice bass! Put it into the basket!"

He rebaited his hook and then as the summer resorter didn't come back to her seat, he looked around.

"What in creation are you doing?" he roared.

"Sending this poor little fish back home," she said, coolly, as she dropped it into the lake. "It—It looked so little and sort of lonesome. Can't you catch them bigger than that?"

The young man looked at her and set his jaw. Then he arose resignedly. "Come on," he said, "and we'll go back to the log fire. I don't believe I care much about fishing today."

Benevolent of Humanity. Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from saying anything about it.

CORPORATIONS IN POLITICS.

The favoring of big corporations by such acts as the present unjust and unfair tariff measure, is largely responsible for the active participation in politics of our large trusts. Investigation after investigation has shown that these corporations have not hesitated to bribe our legislators, our party leaders, or any one else that had any influence upon legislation. Even our courts have not been immune from their tampering and we have the sad spectacle of one of the strong trusts writing to the "boss" of one of our largest commonwealths telling him to appoint a certain man as judge. Owing to the influence which money has had in our elections for the past few decades, party managers on both sides have been compelled to listen to the trusts or lose their large campaign contributions, which loss as a rule meant the success of their opponents at the polls. Why should these corporations be so interested in the success of parties, or rather of men—for their tools can be found in all parties?

There is, of course, but one answer and that is they are in it to promote and help their own business interests. Not in the broad sense of supporting measures which will help the entire business interests of the country, but in order that the business in which they are engaged will receive more than they are entitled to under any fair and just law. They are interested in order that the tariff which kills and stifles their competitors may be continued upon the products which they are engaged in manufacturing.

There is, of course, a community of interests among all high protectionists; and the sugar man will support the steel and so all along the line. Take away the incentive of these men to engage in practical politics and we will hear the last of corrupted legislatures and debauched electorates.

The time is fast coming when the voter with the best interest of his party and country at heart will look more at the character of the man who seeks office, than at the party which he is supposed to represent.

First, however, let us try to force out the hoodlums and corruptionists from our own party and failing in this we must support the man who stands for honest, fair and pure government, regardless of the party which he is supposed to represent.

The Republican party is fast recognizing the unfairness of the present tariff laws, and in the West they have nominated men who could stand on the Democratic platform and support its fight for low tariff as well as the time honored server in that party. Here however, in the East, the party shows but little signs of getting away from the unjust measure, and is now as it has been in the past, a strong supporter of the iniquitous high tariff.

Here in Maryland the Republican party has gone on record as being in favor of the present bill, and the people of the State can not expect any relief from either the party or its nominees if elected this fall.

Here in the first district measure it is as you please, either by the gauge of party and party principles, by the higher gauge of ability, or by the still higher one of character and moral stability and the Democratic party will still stand in a position to offer the best and most logical man to send to Congress this fall.

In Mr. Covington, the Democratic nominee, the party this year offers a man who will appeal to the party supporters, the independents and to all those who believe it is time that the subsidy now given to our big trusts under the name of protective tariff, should be taken away. To those who believe that these self same trusts should be driven now and forever from the field of practical politics.

Today is the great meeting of the Democratic party in this county. Let every man who is interested in the government of his country, and the man who is not, is not worthy of citizenship, go to the Opera House and hear him interpret his platform and state his principles. See if his ability and his principles are not of that high order which justify a vote for him this fall. Let the Democrats come and give him encouragement in his fight this year and let the independents go, and see if he is not a candidate that they can support with pride, and let all other political parties go and listen to his principles and think over them and see if they do not tend to the best and true interests of this great country of ours.

EX-MAYOR HARPER

Makes An Address At Cambridge. Talks About Street-Making, Etc.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Maryland State Board of Trade; Being an Eastern Shoreman and a native of this grand old county it affords me more than ordinary pleasure to be with you today and participate in a movement that I trust will be for the material advancement of our State. Too much credit cannot be accorded to the originators of such a business proposition, and at the same time the unselfish spirit which characterizes their action. It requires co-operation on the part of all to bring about the desired results in any movement of consequence, and as co-operation is necessary, even so is it necessary to weave in a harmonious whole the various things accomplished to secure a successful result.

Many things go to make up the material and commercial progress of a City or State, but none are for more than its highways and drainage system. Upon this subject, as applied to our municipalities, I am called upon to address you. There are many phases from which this subject may be reviewed, but time will suffice only to view them from a practical standpoint. As the Apian Way, indestructible in construction and fame, meant much to the material advancement of Rome, so will the character of our streets reflect itself upon the material advancement to our cities.

From a practical standpoint, I would impress upon my hearers, especially from the smaller towns and cities, the necessity of beginning right. Most municipal authorities, coming in touch every day with their constituents are more than likely to be influenced from the course that would mean advancement of their town in order to gratify some caprice or whim of his fellow townsman, and thereby make a street narrower than it should be, or a bend where it should not be. To resist such temptation requires men of progressive spirit, who can look ahead enough to see that in the course of human events towns will not forever be confined to their present limits, and in order to build wisely, we should build for the future. The first thing then in laying streets is to see that they are of sufficient width, straight as conditions will permit and on proper grade. My experience demonstrates that the officers of a town should look well to the extension of streets, where and the manner in which they are laid out, and not permit every person that so desires to lay out his property, looking only to his own commercial advancement, which may destroy the symmetry and beauty of the town. When streets are properly laid out and graded, the road bed should be permanently improved it is cheaper in the course of time when viewed in its final analysis, which phase I have not time to enter in, except to say that fine feathers make fine birds, and fine streets result in fine buildings. Build a nice street in front of a man's home, and it is like any other contagion, he will catch the fever and be impelled either by the spirit of the hour or by shame to build in keeping with his surroundings. When this rule does not apply in the concrete, he will sell out and move and give way to more progressive spirits. This in its final analysis means a more up to date town, larger treasury and happier people. As I take it, this is not the time to elaborate on the constructive work, as that is the duty of the engineer.

As night follows day, and one the natural sequence of the other, so is a sewerage system equally as inseparable and indispensable in the work of street improvement and municipal advancement. It means in its entirety perfect sanitary condition of the City, and it is not only a necessary adjunct, but a condition precedent to good streets. No street improvement can be successfully carried out without adequate sewerage system. The sanitary condition of a town means its uplift. Muddy streets, a promiscuous distribution of refuse and vegetable matter upon streets and premises, means disease, discomfort and death, and these in turn mean depleted cities, sleepy hollows and stand still towns.

The brief time allotted will not permit a discussion of this large subject in detail. Let me urge, however, the absolute necessity of good streets properly maintained and an adequate sewerage system as a requisite to happiness in the home, advancement in the mart, and a gratifying satisfaction to the whole people. Those who oppose thoughtlessly such improvements when the scale has dropped from their eyes will early in the morning wake from their lethargy and call you blessed. Unfortunately there are to be found in every town and city a large class of citizens who think anything will do and do not look into the future and not only discourage permanent improvement, but throw all sorts of obstacles in the way of progressive officials who are trying to build for the future. Frequently there are a sufficient number of such citizens in a community to retard such work and thereby set a town back in the scale of progress for fifty or a hundred years. As Mayor of one of your sister towns for a period of six years, I was frequently confronted with these obstacles but fortunately my constituents, in the main were progressive in spirit and alive to the needs of the future and by their cooperation and encouragement we were enabled to go forward until we established a system of streets and sewers second to none in a city of the same size. Our experience has been that some of those who were satisfied with the old order of things and thought modern streets and an up to date sewerage system a waste of public money are now the strongest advocates of twentieth century methods.

This is a progressive age in which we live, the spirit of progress is abroad and is being demonstrated on every hand. The State has but recently embarked on the building of a great system of public highways to be built and maintained at public expense and the people are lending their aid in the accomplishment of this great work and while there is naturally some who still believe the old way is good enough yet they are few and far between, and the great body of our citizens are enthusiastic and determined to go forward in this great work until this grand old State shall have a complete system of modern highways. If good roads and concrete bridges are good for the State—and we all agree that they are—how much more necessary is it that our towns and cities should be well paved and drained and a complete system of sewers established and maintained. This is true because of the congestion of population in the towns and cities which makes it necessary from a sanitary standpoint as well as from the standpoint of a long range economy. My experience has taught me that to continually patch up old worn out streets from year to year is a waste of public money and that when we build modern streets properly drained with sewers having due regard for sanitation it is the highest form of public economy and goes a long way in preserving the health happiness and prosperity of our suburban communities.

In conclusion let me urge upon you the necessity of building not for today or for the year but for the future and from my own experience and observation public money when properly expended for modern permanent streets and sewers will do more to establish a town or city on a firm foundation than that expended for any other purpose.

The ladies of Siloam Church will give an Oyster Supper on the camp ground on Thursday Nov. 3rd, 1910, beginning at six P. M., to which all are cordially invited. Proceeds for the benefit of the church. Prominent men will be present and speak.

Ulman—Hawkins Wedding.

The marriage of Mr. Leon S. Ulman, of Salisbury, and Miss Lily E. Hawkins, of Washington, D. C., was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of the bride, 2236 Q Street, N. E. The ceremony was witnessed by numerous relatives of the bride and groom. A reception followed, after which the happy couple left for Philadelphia, Atlantic City and New York, to be gone about ten days. Mr. and Mrs. Ulman, on their return will occupy their handsome new home on Elizabeth Street, this city. The groom is one of Salisbury's prominent young business men, being connected with the Dorman & Smyth Hardware Company. The bride is a member of a prominent Washington family.

All the good qualities of Ely's Cream Balm, solid, are found in liquid Cream Balm, which is intended for use in atomizers. That it is a wonderful remedy for Nasal Catarrh is proved by an ever increasing mass of testimony. It does not dry out nor rasp the tender air-passages. It allays the inflammation and goes straight to the root of the disease. Obsolete old cases have yielded in a few weeks. All druggists, 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment ever devised. A household remedy in America for 35 years.

Celebrated 92d Birthday.

Mrs. Mary A. Trader, of Salisbury, celebrated her 92nd birthday Tuesday and several of her children were present to celebrate the event. Mrs. Trader is one of the oldest, if not the oldest inhabitant of Salisbury. She can well remember when the city was a struggling little village built along one street with one general store and one typical blacksmith shop. The combined ages of Mrs. Trader and her six living children aggregate 505 years and a few months. There are 19 grand children and 3 great-grand children living. Mrs. Trader is in remarkably good health for a woman of her age. All of her faculties except her eyesight are unimpaired.

A Hallowe'en Social.

Monday evening at 8 P. M., a Hallowe'en Social will be given in the Social Hall of the Division Street Baptist Church. Interesting features have been arranged. The admission is ten cents. Refreshments free. An enjoyable evening is assured.

The Famous Rayo

The Lamp with Diffused Light

should always be used where several people sit, because it does not strain the eyes of those sitting far from it.

The Rayo Lamp is constructed to give the maximum diffused white light. Every detail that increases its light-giving value has been included.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp. You may pay $5, $10 or even $20 for other lamps and get a more expensive container—but you cannot get a better light than the Rayo gives.

This season's Rayo has a new and strengthened burner. A strong, durable shade-holder keeps the shade on firm and true. Easy to keep polished, as it is made of solid brass, finished in nickel.

God's Message of Comfort To the Jews

"Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins."—Isaiah xl, 1, 2.

London, October 23.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle today addressed an immense audience in the world's greatest Auditorium, the Royal Albert Hall. Many of his audience were Jews, attracted by the liberal extracts from Pastor Russell's sermons which have been appearing in the Jewish papers all over the world. The discourse was full of comforting assurances (both to Jew and Gentile) of the glorious outcome to the Divine Plan, as respects our world and its inhabitants. We report the address only in part, as follows:

There can be no doubt that the words of our text apply, not to Spiritual Israel and the heavenly Jerusalem, but to the Seed of Jacob, for many centuries travelling in pain—a nation without a land, people possessing most wonderful promises, yet enjoying none of them—a people scattered amongst all other peoples; yet, in harmony with the Divine promise made at the beginning of their organization, they have been preserved separate and distinct from all other nations. The Jews are a miracle in themselves. They witness to the civilized world God's promises and the power thereof in the human mind. As foretold in the Scriptures for long centuries they have had no Prophet, no Priest, no epiphany, no vision from God, no revelation. The people to whom at one time belonged the honor of being the only people to whom the Divine purposes were revealed have for more than eighteen centuries been left destitute of any evidence of Divine favor, except in this one fact, that their solidarity as a people is preserved.

We are not of those who rail against the Jew; who cry out, "Christ-killers; the vengeance of God is upon you, and what you have suffered is only for the more awful sufferings for all eternity!" Thank God, No! We have no such evil sentiment in our heart. We have nothing for the Jew but sympathy, even while in him, as in others of Adam's children, we may see much to reprehend; nevertheless, we also see his commendable qualities. Among others, we see the quality which God so greatly appreciated in Abraham: namely, faith in his God and in the Divine promises. Such a faith has inspired "God's Chosen People" to wait for his promised Messianic Kingdom, lo, these many centuries—through all kinds of discouragements, disappointments and persecutions.

The long-promised time of Israel's exaltation as the channel of Messianic blessing to mankind is near—it haseth greatly. What though there shall be another and great period of tribulation in conjunction with the birth of the New Order of things! Beyond the sighing and the crying, the morning dawn—the glorious day in which the Sun of Righteousness shall chase from the world all the shadows of death and despair, which sin and its penalty have brought upon mankind! What though the Scriptures tell us that Israel is yet to have "The time of Jacob's trouble" in connection with the world's great time of trouble impending. None of these things shall hinder us from rejoicing in the New Heavens and the New Earth, which God declares he is about to create and put into control of our world—"Be ye glad and rejoice forever in that which I create" (Isaiah lvi, 12).

The New Heavens and the New Earth are but symbolical terms for the consideration of that New Era, in which there will be a new social order, as well as a new ecclesiastical system, eternal in the heavens. The time has come when our text is having its fulfillment. The shining of the lamp of Truth upon the prophetic page shows us that the great clock of the Universe is marking the hour when he whose right it is shall take to himself his great power and reign. Ah, yes! We remember that it is written that then the nations shall be angry, and God's wrath shall be manifested, and then the time shall come for the judgment of the dead and the reward of all, both small and great. But we are glad, nevertheless, that the "times of the Gentiles" are nearly at an end and the time of Messianic theocratic government is at hand—For he must reign until he shall have put down all unrighteousness and in subordination, until he shall have caused every knee to bow and every tongue to confess to the glory of God the Father.

First in order of the Kingdom work will be the binding of Satan—the work of a heavenly, and not of an earthly king. Gradually, in the judgments, decrees, rewards, punishments of mankind and the banishing of sin and death will the great King of Glory reveal his own gracious character and the Father's righteousness to the children of men. Gradually all will have the eyes of their understanding opened to see, not only the Father of all in his true character, but also the Son in his glorious majesty—the Comforter, or "who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame," and hence is at the right hand of Divine majesty and entrusted with the pouring out of the Divine blessing upon Israel, and through Israel, extending that blessing to every nation.

One King, but Two Kingdoms. If has escaped Christendom in general until now that the Divine promise to Abraham is to be fulfilled through the Seed—our heavenly class, the other an earthly class, with Messiah the Head over all. For eighteen centuries God favored the Seed of Abraham, the nation of Israel. Christendom had, reports in righteous news; yet in all that time they had also Divine favor, as represented in their Law and in the Prophecies and in the wilderness which came to them under the Law Covenant, in that they had an annual Atonement Day, which continued to them Divine favor. That period of favor, explain it how we may, began to wane about the time of Jesus' death. It was completely removed from them in the desolation of their land by the Roman army A. D. 70. Now a parallel time has been reached, as stated in our text. Hence it is time for the return of God's favor, as here- in mentioned. The favor already is returning.

The Jew has not been so comfortable, nor so favorably fixed as he is today, in more than eighteen centuries. But his blessing is only beginning. Shortly Divine favor, in God's due time, will accomplish for his Chosen People all the precious promises of the Law and of the Prophecy. Already the Jew is awakening to a realization of this great Truth. Zionism, which started as a political movement, is about to bud and blossom into a religious movement and the blessing of Divine Providence will so order their affairs. The words of the Book, the words of Divine promise, so long read ignorantly and blindly, are about to become luminous and constitute the light which will direct them in the ways of the Lord—leading on to the rehabilitation of Jerusalem and to the attainment of their ideal amongst the Jewish people. A voice is sounding from the wilderness, and the Jews everywhere are hearkening to it. It does not call them to become Christians, but to remain Jews and to realize, as Jews, the ideals set before them by the Lord in the Law and by the Prophets. To all those exercised thereby a great blessing is near, which will more than compensate for the sorrows of the past. Neither by sword, nor guns, nor dreadnaughts, neither by flying air-ships, nor torpedoes will Israel's great victory be won, neither by money power and worshipping of the golden calf of finance, nor by trusting in the arm of flesh, but by looking to the Lord, from whom will come their help.

Messiah's Spiritual Empire, about to be established, will bind Satan, restrain every evil and lift up a standard for the people, blessing Israel and establishing with them the New (Law) Covenant instead of the Old Law Covenant—under the better Mediator, still more capable than the great Moses; under the greater King, still more wise than Solomon and still more beloved of God than David. This great Celestial Empire will be established with great authority in the world by a time of trouble, a time of earthly distress, which the prophecies picture as terrible—short reign of anarchy. Jews and Gentiles will be responsible, rich and poor, for the bringing to pass of this awful trouble, by reason of the selfishness which at present is governing the world and which will be used of the Lord to wreck our present grand civilization—grand at least on its surface and in its aspirations and pretensions. A Socialistic artillery of words and ecclesiastical bonds of similar nature will only aggravate the strife. Financial weights and levers will have much to do with the great crash of the forces of civilization in this near, approaching cataclysm of trouble, in which the reign of sin, iniquity, injustice, selfishness, shall forever fall, to rise no more; and the present reigning systems also shall be found wanting and pass away. For these old systems, symbolically the heavens and earth of the present time, will be substituted the New Heavens and the New Earth—the Church glorified beyond the veil as the Bride of the great Messiah, and, Society on earth reorganized, will constitute the New Earth, when all shall be righteous new. The transition will be a momentary ordeal, as compared with the glorious eternity of blessing under Messiah's righteous supervision. "He maketh wars to cease unto the end of the earth."

Israel's Hope—Why So Delayed? The perplexing thought with our Jewish friends, as well as with Christians, is, if these things be so; if Messiah's Kingdom is yet to be established, as the Jews contemplated, only on a spiritual plane instead of an earthly one; and if God's purpose is to use those anciently favored people as the channels of his blessing in the future, why has there been so long delay?

We answer: This is what the Scriptures teach. The Father's promise, which God did not reveal directly, either to Abraham or through any of the Prophets, indirectly he hinted at, saying to Abraham, "Thy Seed shall be as the stars of heaven, and as the sand of the seashore for multitude." But Abraham did not discern, nor did others, that these two illustrations belonged, not to the same people, but to two different Israelites. The earthly promises belonged to natural Israel. Eventually all mankind, to be saved under the Messianic reign, will be Israelites—of the Seed of Abraham. Thus Abraham's "Seed shall be as the sand of the seashore for multitude." And they must all have the faith of Abraham and his obedience, ere they can reach perfection as members of his Seed. First in the order of blessing will come the Ancient Worthies—Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and all the Prophets and holy ones of the past. These will be raised from the dead by the power of God—not imperfect and fallen, but perfect, fully up to all the glorious ideals of their minds. This will be their reward for having walked by faith and not by sight. Thus we read, "Instead of the fathers, they shall be the children, whom Messiah will make perfect in power, in rulership, in authority (Isaiah xiv, 16). At that time the blessing shall return to Israel that has been taken from them for more than eighteen centuries—God's special favor. Under their New Covenant they shall be blessed; their eyes shall be opened; "they shall look upon him whom they pierced;" they shall mourn for him; they shall rejoice in him. They will say, This is our ruler. We have waited for him, and he will save us (Zechariah xii, 10).

Crimes Committed in Jesus' Name. With shame true Christians must admit that most atrocious crimes were committed in the name of Jesus during the "Dark Ages." Worse than that! The horrible misrepresentation of all that the name of Jesus stands for still continues. Witness, for instance, the injustices practised in the name of Christianity against the Jew in Russia for years past, and in various nations in remoter times. Witness the fact also that only two months ago the so-called Christians of Roumania acted like veritable demons toward their Jewish neighbors. Well-authenticated accounts tell that the Jewish cemetery was despoiled. Many of those buried within the two preceding months were dug up and the putrid and mangled corpses thrown on the steps and in the door-yards of their families. Can you wonder that the Jew has come to have a hatred for the word Christian and for the name Jesus?

The name Jesus, as is well known, is but another form for Joshua, which signifies Deliverer. The name Christ is the Greek equivalent for the word Messiah. Every Jew, rightly informed respecting the character and the teachings of Jesus, is bound to respect him and his immediate followers as amongst the greatest Jews that ever lived. They must not be judged according to the perversion of their teachings, so common amongst Christians. And it should not be forgotten that while the masses of Christendom have misrepresented their teaching, doctrines and practices, there has been throughout the entire age a saintly few who have closely followed in the footsteps of Jesus.

In my preaching I do not urge upon the Jews to become Christians; but I seek to hold forth the Divine standard for them and to assist them to get ready for the fulfillment of the glorious promises which are theirs. That the due time for the fulfillment of these is at hand is the comfort we offer them, in harmony with our text. The Prophet declares that it will be after their return to their own land, and after the great time of trouble which is now impending upon Christendom, that the Jew will recognize that the great Messiah of glory, the great Michael of Daniel xii, 1, for whose Kingdom they have been waiting, is none other than the "Man Christ Jesus, who gave himself a ransom for all men" eighteen centuries ago. God will then blessedly open the eyes of understanding to that Jew who declares, "They shall look upon him whom they pierced;" they will then see the identity between the Jew, who was sacrificed for the sins of Israel and the world and the Messiah of Glory, whose Kingdom will use Israel in the blessing of the world.

Meantime, what has God wrought? Ah, this, again, we say is the Mystery! Here and there from Jew and Gentile, saintly characters have been sought and found by the preaching of the message of Christ, even though that message frequently was dimmed by earthly imperfections and blemishes by erroneous representations. Those saintly ones will be blessed with Messiah in Divine blessing upon the spirit plane, mentioned to Abraham under the figure that his "Seed shall be as the stars of heaven." But under what conditions do these attain a spiritual inheritance like unto the angels and far above them? We answer that the spirit nature is the divine reward of a special obedience. Our race was not created on the heavenly plane nor for a heavenly nature; but of the earth earthly. And its salvation from sin will bring it to the full perfection of human nature and to the full enjoyment of a worldwide Kingdom.

The Spiritual Seed of Abraham is to be composed of Messiah and the Elect Little Flock of saintly footsteps followers. The price of their exaltation is their consecration unto death and faithfulness to that "Yow. These are the Jewels mentioned by the Lord to the Prophet—"Gather together my saints unto me, saith the Lord: those who have made a Covenant with me by sacrifice." "They shall be mine, in that day when I make up my jewels."

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Therefore, when Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free. Also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS.

Salisbury People Should Know How To Read And Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment. Passages are frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is constant, day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent. The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay. Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache. Salisbury evidence proves this statement. John H. Connolly, 806 E. Isabella Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and know of nothing better for curing kidney complaint. When in Virginia I was obliged to drink impure water and my kidneys became disordered, causing my back to grow very weak. At that time I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and I was given prompt relief. I recently procured a supply of this remedy at White & Leonard's Drug Store to have on hand in case of need."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRIGHT DEMOCRATIC

Prospects For Nov. 8th, Says Baltimore Sun. Republicans Discouraged.

Neither State nor local candidates are to be elected in Maryland in November, and the campaign is being conducted upon national issues. And the most important of these—in fact, the only one that the people have taken to heart—is the tariff issue and the effect of the tariff upon the prices of the necessities of life. People who have to live by the sweat of their brows or brains and all who have small salaries have had increasing difficulty in keeping the wolf from the door. The Republican party promised relief, and it increased the burden. It violated its pledged faith, and now the people are not willing to accept another promise at its face value. Indeed, the only promise the Republican party is willing to make is to put off the troublesome question until after the next Presidential election, and then, if it could, it would put it off for good. The party at this time is even afraid to make another promise of tariff reduction, for it is dependent upon the tariff protected industries, including some of the big trusts, for its campaign funds. The rank and file of the Republican party are dissatisfied and disgusted, and the party here in Maryland, as in other States, is demoralized and disheartened.

Eighteen years ago, to wit, in 1892, following the enactment of the McKinley Tariff law, Maryland sent a full delegation of six Democrats to Congress. That year McKaig was elected in the Sixth district and Barnes Compton beat Thomas Parran, the present Republican candidate in the Fifth. Since that time the Democratic party in national politics has been wandering through the wilderness with no Moses in the lead. But finally it is in sight of the Promised Land. Two years ago the Democrats lost a strong Democratic district by 362 majority. That was the Third district which is now represented by Mr. Kronmiller. But it came within 317 votes beating Mr. Mudd in the Fifth district, and Mr. Pearce, the Republican candidate in the Sixth, was elected by a majority of only 456, the usual Republican majority in the district being from 1,000 to more than 4,000.

The Democratic party of Maryland is in fine spirits and seems to have the Republicans "on the run." The Democratic candidates have made for themselves a platform that satisfies public sentiment. It promises every effort to reduce the cost of living and alleviate the burdens that oppress the people. The Republican platform is reactionary and approves the Payne-Aldrich tariff under which the people are groaning and against which they are crying aloud. What the people of Maryland will say to the Republican party in November that party will be apt to remember for many years to come.—Baltimore Sun Editorial.

Tilghman—Wimbrow.

A very pretty and quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Wimbrow on October 26th, at Waldo, Md., when their daughter, Lola May, became the bride of Mr. Dennis Fulton Tilghman. Promptly at seven o'clock P. M., the procession started, with Nellie, the sister of the bride, playing the Lohengrin Wedding March. They proceeded into the parlor where everything was tastefully decorated. Here the ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Ogg, assisted by Rev. H. B. Wagner. The bride was handsomely attired in white Paris muslin, trimmed with baby Irish lace, while the groom wore the conventional black. With the departure of the bride goes one of Wango's most promising and esteemed young ladies that it has had in years. A shower of congratulations as well as rice, etc., went with the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Tilghman will reside near Salisbury.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Home-Seekers

Take Notice!

I HAVE THE FOLLOWING VALUABLE REAL ESTATE WHICH I WILL SELL AT PRIVATE SALE:

No. 1—Consists of 101 acres and buildings situated about half way between Salisbury and Delmar, at the intersection of the Delmar and the Dagobert road, and about one mile from Williams siding on the N. Y. & P. & N. railroad. Price $8,000.

No. 2—Consists of 60 acres fronting on the Delmar road, which has been built under the Shoemaker law, and is directly south of the described property. This tract has no buildings and can be bought for $1,000.

No. 3—Consists of 75 acres fronting on same road, directly south of No. 2. This is the old Leonard homestead. The dwelling is in good condition, and the outbuildings, with a little attention at slight cost, will answer for several years. This is good land, as the crops raised on the farm will show. The location is ideal and the price is $1,000.

No. 4—Is directly south of No. 3, fronting on the same road, and contains 60 acres. This is an especially desirable tract of land, but contains no buildings. The price is $3,500.

No. 5—Consists of a little over 75 acres, fronting on same road and directly south of No. 4. About 25 acres cleared, the balance in woodland, mostly cut over, but still containing a considerable amount of fire wood; also contains a small dwelling in fairly good repair. Although a little rough in its present condition, this can be made a very valuable farm, the quality of the land being exceptionally good. The price is $3,250.

No. 6—Contains 3 acres adjoining the Salisbury Fair Grounds on the side and is opposite Sewell Richardson's. A very valuable lot. Price $1,000.

No. 7—Immediately adjoins No. 6 and contains 41 acres. Price $1,200.

No. 8—Lies west of No. 7 and contains 6 acres. Price $1,500.

No. 9—Consists of 15 acres, dwelling and outbuildings, and lies directly in front of Mr. James E. Lowe's new residence, on Quantico road, and is very valuable property. Price $4,350.

No. 10—Is west of No. 9, contains 5 acres and has already been sold to Mr. Woodford Johnson.

No. 11—Is west of No. 10, contains 10 acres and is a very desirable tract. Price $2,500.

No. 12—Is west of No. 11 and situated at the beginning of the Stone road leading to Quantico. This tract contains 10 acres and the price is $2,500.

No. 13—Is directly in front of Mr. Stanford Culver's, on the Quantico road, and contains 8 and 48-100ths acres. Price $1,800.

No. 14—Consists of 3 acres just outside the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying between South Division Street extended and the N. Y. & P. & N. railroad. Price $750.

No. 15—Consists of something over 3 acres immediately adjoining No. 14. Price $750.

No. 16—Consists of 3 acres lying on the east side of South Division Street extended, about three-eighths of a mile from the corporate limits. Price $800.

No. 17—Contains 10 acres and is immediately adjoining the corporate limits of Salisbury, lying along the N. Y. & P. & N. railroad, and lying on the street, directly south of Salisbury and in section commonly known as "Hastingsville." This tract will be sold in acre lots at $300 each, or will sell the entire piece to one party. Price on application.

All of the above properties were originally bought for their exceptionally good location. Each and every one of the above-named parcels of land, except No. 17, are fronting on prominent highways that have already been improved under the specifications of the Shoemaker law, and are especially desirable to progressive parties wishing to build homes in good neighborhoods.

Hospitality In a Nutshell

By Belle Mantles

Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press

Huddled down among some tall, angular poplars in a valley between the high hills was a little white house with a lean-to at the rear and a big porch in front. Here had lived, for 42 years, a childless old couple. They thought that their little home which they had named "The Nutshell," the most beautiful place in the world, and their only lament was that so few persons "dropped in," or even passed by. Neighbors were remote, and their road was deserving of the appellation. It was not even a cross-road—hardly a lane—and the grass grew high between two faintly defined wagon ruts. Where it ended and turned into a crossroad, there was such a labyrinth of underbrush, brush and foliage from low-hanging, interlaced tree tops that the opening was completely hidden from view.

One afternoon as they sat on the porch—stoop, Phineas called it—his wife, Hannah, stopped rocking suddenly and exclaimed, excitedly.

"Some one's coming," she exclaimed, excitedly.

As she spoke a beautiful young woman on a shining black horse came into view.

"Like a picture," said Phineas, taking the pipe from his mouth.

The young lady looked admiringly at the little place and bestowed a friendly glance upon the old couple.

"I can't let her go by," gasped Hannah, as she started down the path.

The rider reined in her horse.

"Wouldn't you like to stop a bit and have a drink of cold milk?" Hannah spoke enticingly and appealingly. The answering smile was radiant.

"Indeed, I would," she replied, dismounting, "and may I have one of those rose-cheeked apples I saw in the orchard?"

"You may have a bushel," emphatically asserted Phineas, as he stood up.

"It's a lot to us. You see we've only got a 20 here, and Phineas's too old to work it—more'n a garden patch for what we eat, and we ain't no hands to scrimp in our feed."

"No, indeed," agreed Irene, recalling her two-suspicious meal.

"Though it seems a lot to us, I suppose it's only a drop in the bucket to Mr. Philip Maxfield. But he's going to foreclose."

Irene's face turned pale and then red. She turned to the window to hide her confusion.

"I couldn't have believed it of him!" she thought, sadly.

As she stood there, she saw a horseman coming down the road. He was tall, straight, and sat on his horse like a cavalryman.

"Here comes my friend," she said.

"I'll go to meet him," said Phineas.

"Philip," she said, before he had dismounted, "these are the sweetest old people and this is the dearest place!"

"It is pretty," he admitted.

"Would you take it away from them—wreck their home for just $400?"

"I? Why, what can you mean, dear?"

"They say you hold a mortgage for that amount on the place, and that you have written them that you would foreclose at once."

"My dear Irene, I didn't even know that I owned this tiny place. I have so much property! My agent, Carter, attends to all the business. He probably wrote them and signed my name."

"You will let them renew it, please, Philip?"

"Why, of course, Irene."

"For how long?"

"For—forever, if you wish, Irene."

"Come into the house," she said, joyfully. "Let your horse first. You have to play several games of casino."

He followed her, somewhat dubious as to what was expected of him.

"Mrs. Hewston, I want to introduce Mr. Maxfield."

"Oh, he's come for—"

"No," smiled Irene, "he's come for me."

While Hannah was serving the buttermilk, Phineas came in and was introduced.

"To the gentleman who holds the mortgage?"

"So it seems. I didn't know it until now. Irene told me."

"We may get a way to pay it," said Hannah, anxiously.

"What's the use?" said Philip, quickly. "You can renew it as often as you please. I'll explain it to my agent today. I would rather have a glass of this buttermilk every time I ride by here than the amount of the mortgage."

The flash of joy in Hannah's worn face was so reflected in Irene's eyes as she turned impulsively to him, that he glanced hope for the answer to the question he meant to ask on the way home.

The Lost Plug Hat.

"The old proverb, 'Find it or lose it,' usually holds good in the case of a silk hat," said the man. "Persons who lose silk hats are always reluctant to claim them. I know other people who have found hats, just as good, but no body ever tried to get them back. They were well worth advertising for, too. Who can explain this disregard for stray silk hats? Is it due to modesty? Were they lost under conditions so incriminating that the loser would rather buy another hat than reveal his whereabouts and the circumstances that caused him to lose his hat? That hypothesis hardly seems tenable, because most silk hats are picked up in very reputable places. Still the fact remains that many persons find silk hats in the streets and do not attempt to claim them. Is it because they are so common that they are not considered as valuable as other articles?—New York Sun.

GOING FISHING

"But I don't see the point," protested the summer resortor.

The young man with his foot resting on the lower step and two fish-poles over his shoulder shook his head patiently.

"Haven't I just explained," he said, "that when one goes to the country one must indulge in outdoor sports, and that fishing is included in the category? Given a perfectly good lake full of trusting little fish, why not fish? If one does not fish why not stay in town where one can order fish planked and then complain to the waiter? Do try to be in keeping with your surroundings. Just at present you are, theoretically, surrounded by shiny bass begging to be caught—"

"I'm not!" declared the summer resortor, flatly. "I'm surrounded by a sale of wind direct from the north pole and I'm freezing to death and I want to go back to the log fire inside the cottage from which you called me! You may think this is June, but I'll tell you it isn't—it's the middle of winter!"

"Oh, come on," begged the man on the lower step. "Honest, fishing isn't half bad. Besides, it's no fun to go alone!"

This is perfectly idiotic!" grumbled the summer resortor ten minutes later as she tramped along in sweater and old coat, her nose pink and her eyes weeping from the wind. "I'm frozen clear through and I loathe fishing anyhow, and besides, any self-respecting fish would stay at home on a day like this! I'd have no regard, not the slightest, for a weak-minded fish that would go deliberately wandering around in the ice water looking for bait merely to be accommodating when it could just as well not stay in the nice warm mud at the bottom of the lake! I shouldn't care to eat a fish like that, really! Don't you think it is going to snow?"

"It's really too cold to snow," admitted the young man. "If it could storm icebergs I'd be willing to prophesy those, but not just plain ordinary snow. All the horses at our place are blooming out in winter coats of heavy fur. Still, the fish don't mind that, because you can cut holes in the ice in winter and get them, you know."

"B-r-r!" shivered the summer resortor as they rounded the outskirts of the woods and came out on the lake front. "I'm glad to discover what you call pleasure! Of course, if you had invited me to go on a merry little jaunt through a cold-storage plant or something like that I would have known what to expect. Fishing has always been represented to me as an agreeable way of killing time. I don't see anything agreeable about this. I wish I had brought my fur!"

"We aren't fishing yet!" said the young man, patiently. "We are merely on the way. The rest of the sport will—"

"Ow-w-w!" moaned the summer resortor. "How was I to know that horrid hook was swinging loose? If you tear my best puffs getting it out I'll never forgive you as long as I live!"

"Then you'll have to unpin them and let them dangle on the hook," said the young man, shortly. "They may attract the fish."

"Yank it out!" commanded the summer resortor, fiercely. "I hate fish-hooks! I heard of a girl once who got a fishhook caught in her ear when she was a child and they couldn't get it out and she had to go through life that way."

"Too bad she couldn't unpin her ear as you can your puffs," said the young man, un sympathetically. "Now, you sit on the box and I'll bait your hook."

"Ugh," said the summer resortor. "There must be something wrong with a human being who can handle angle worms and act as though he liked it! Doesn't it make creeps go down your spine?"

"No," said the young man, callously. "I'm just as wrong as they make 'em! Pardon me, but fish as a rule don't skate along the surface of the water—they'd better lower your line!"

"Truly," said the summer resortor through her chattering teeth, "are you having a good time?"

She stared questioningly at the young man who sat hunched up beside her wrapped in a disreputable heavy coat and with a pipe between his teeth.

"Yes, indeed," he declared, cheerfully. "Aren't you? This is great!"

"I'm not," said the summer resortor, uncompromisingly. "And the lake is getting rougher and rougher and pretty soon it will splash over this pier and wash our stiffened corpses away—oh, what's the matter?"

"Getable!" said the young man, running the words together. "What a nice bass! Put it into the basket!"

He rebaited his hook and then as the summer resortor didn't come back to her seat, he looked around.

"What in creation are you doing?" he roared.

The young man looked at her and set his jaw. Then he arose resolutely. "Come on," he said, "and we'll go back to the log fire. I don't believe I care much about fishing today."

HER LOSS A GAIN

By GEORGE WEYMOUTH

It was against the rule of the house, and contrary to business ethics, Marcia knew that. But what are you going to do? Even when a girl becomes a part of the great business machine, she is not a piece of machinery.

Of course he didn't mean anything by it. Every three months he came breeding in from his western trip, full of enthusiasm and glad to see everybody in the firm. If he held Marcia's hand with a lingering pressure and looked at her until she blushed, it was only his way. If he gave her a flower and leaned a minute over her desk, saying commonplace things with his tongue and wonderful and mysteriously eloquent things with his eyes—why, it meant nothing. It was only the way of him.

But poor Marcia, part of the machine and yet not a piece of machinery, treasured the flower, remembered the pressure of the hand, and interpreted the message of the eloquent eyes in her dreams.

Which was against the rules of the house and contrary to all the sound ethics of business.

Then there came the day of the awful explosion. He had just come in from the road and there was trouble about his expense account.

"We can't stand for it, Mr. Jerome," said the head, angrily.

And because Jerome was young and foolish and didn't know how important the head was, and perhaps also because he traveled much in the west where men are free, there was a flip-pant reply that grated on the awful dignity of the big man of business, and the first thing Marcia knew there was a beautiful row on hand.

The head proposed to kick the salesman out of the office, and the salesman landed his resignation with a stiff uppercut on the adamant cheek of the sacred head.

Many men came running to the help of the mighty one, but the salesman strode out with quivering nostrils and glaring eyes, and no man dared to lay a hand upon him.

He looked about the office defiantly, and then when his eyes fell upon Marcia they softened. He came and leaned over her desk.

"Well, little girl," he said, "I've left the firm. I won't see you any more, will I?"

"I'm sorry—that you've left the firm," murmured Marcia.

"You're the only thing in the firm that I hate to leave, little girl—and I guess the town's not so big but I'll find you again."

And he said other things, putting into words the tender messages that his eyes only had spoken until now.

And Marcia blushed and trembled, and could say nothing, though perhaps the one little look she gave him was not without its meaning.

All of which was a flagrant violation of the rules of the house, and against the Medean laws of sound business. But Marcia was too dazed and happy to care. Really, she was glad that she wasn't a piece of machinery on this great day, but just a girl with a heart and a soul.

It might have been 4 o'clock that afternoon when the boy came with a package for Marcia. Without thinking, she opened it—a dozen long stemmed American beauties, and on the card that nestled among the blossoms she read: "James Fleming Jerome, with the Consolidated company."

Now, the Consolidated was the hated rival of Marcia's company. But she did not think of that. She just rejoiced in her heart because Mr. Jerome had found another position so soon.

Before Marcia could hide the flowers and the card she knew that some one was looking over her shoulder, and she dared not turn back to see who it was. But some instinct told her it was the head himself.

A moment later, when he moved around in front of her, she knew that it really was the head, and that his eyes were cold with anger and the bruised place on his cheek, where the resignation had landed, stood out pitifully prominent.

"You will send those flowers back," said he, witheringly, "and you will write that no employee of this house receives any gifts from ruffians."

"Indeed, I will not," said Marcia. She was so indignant that she forgot to be afraid of the head.

"Then you will go to the cashier and get your week's pay—this minute," he snapped. "And you need not refer to us when you want another position."

When Marcia found herself on the street with her week's salary in one hand and the roses in the other hand, she still was too indignant to be sorry that she had lost her job.

She was waiting along one of the principal streets when she ran into Mr. Jerome. In spite of her efforts to be brave there were tears in her eyes before she had finished telling him what had happened. After all, she just was a girl—and not a piece of machinery.

"Never mind, little girl, never mind," he said, tenderly. "I've got the Chicago territory with the Consolidated, and my salary is 40 per cent more than it was. We'll be married tomorrow, or the next day—the first minute you're ready. And I think that the best thing that ever happened was when we both got discharged without a recommendation—don't you think so?"

"Yes," said Marcia.

House Frocks.

The new materials that are being shown are for the most part decidedly heavier, though quite as soft and pliant as they were last year. Among them, however, in spite of the promise given to heavy cloths, silks, velvets and cashmeres of all weights and weaves, there are many new materials admirably adapted to house gowns and negliges. Marquise in soft, bright colors makes the most delightful sort of tea gown.

GIRL FASHIONS

Girls this year will run largely to loud colors. They will be seen everywhere, as usual. The quiet effects will, however, be used to some extent, and are always more serviceable.

The summer resort styles will be very much worn, and there are several popular varieties already on the market. Mountain girls, as usual, will come high.

European varieties are in great demand on account of the surplus cash that usually goes with them.

Large, handsome blondes lead in interest and activity. Of these there is the peach blonde, the svelte blonde, the hippy-hippy blonde and the languid blonde.

Several brunettes with flashing eyes have made a hit.

A prime favorite, much sought after, is a medium sized mushroom chateaucer variety, with a good disposition and a hatred of ice cream soda.

Motor girls continue with immense activity. One should be careful in selection, however, until outward wraps are removed, as appearances are deceptive.

Domestic varieties are a drug on the market. It is thought that this style will go out entirely.—Life.

BLESSINGS OF HOME

Home joys are blessed of heaven.—Seneca.

Home is the sacred refuge of our life.—Dryden.

Home is the chief school of human virtue.—Channing.

Home should be the center of joy, equatorial and tropical.—Beecher.

A cottage will hold as much happiness as would stock a palace.—James Hamilton.

Domestic happiness, thou only bliss of paradise that hath survived the fall.—Cowper.

Apelles used to paint a good housewife on a small, to import that she was homekeeping.—James Howell.

Silence and chaste reserve is woman's genuine praise, and to remain quiet within the house.—Euripides.

The sober comfort, all the peace which springs from the large aggregate of little things.—Hannah More.

She was little known beyond her home, but there she silently spread around her that soft, pure light, the preciousness of which is never fully understood till it is quenched.—Channing.

THE BACHELOR GIRL

Alas! Why is the marriage relation always a distant one?

Money talks! Yes, and it will also keep a lot of other people quiet.

It takes a man with lots of nerve to marry a woman with lots of nerves.

It is more often proximity than affinity that leads to those summer soul-matings.

As a preparation for her great life-work, one brother is of more assistance to the average girl than a college education.

It doesn't make a man jealous when his wife tells him about the men she might have married and didn't; it merely makes him envious.

The lower the neck the higher the price, but it's so difficult to convince a husband that the most expensive part of an evening gown is what's cut off at the top.

The road to hades may be paved with good intentions, but the men who go by the limited express escape all that by never having any intention of being good.—Helen Rowland.

HINTS FOR ANGLERS

A bookworm does not make good bait for trout fishing.

Trout may or may not make brains, but they certainly make liars.

The angler is like the actor in one respect, he must not forget his lines.

Birds are often brought down on the wing; trout are frequently brought up on the fly.

We prefer, however, having our trout stories overdrawn rather than our bank account.

The red spots on a trout do not indicate scarlet fever or the measles, as some suppose.

Like many humans, the trout that keeps his mouth shut saves himself lots of trouble.

If you hook a trout you pull it in; if you hook anything else you are apt to get pulled in yourself.

That is all we know about trout.

The Little Time.

So little time to love you—
So little time to see
The eyes that have made Heaven
On this poor earth for me!

So little time to listen
Unto that voice which thrills
A soul with sweeter music
Than mocking birds or rills.

But thankful that I met you
In days when Love was new,
And that I can't forget you—
The beautiful and true—
Frank L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

A Paroid Roof

The roofing that lasts and any one can lay. Thousands of the most progressive farmers, dairymen, poultrymen, etc., as well as railroad companies and the U. S. Government, use PAROID for roofing and siding in preference to all others, because they have proved that PAROID is

The Most Economical
The Most Durable
The Most Satisfactory
Of All Ready Roofings

THIS IS WHY: It is made of extra strong felt with an extra good saturation and coating, which make it proof against sparks, cinders, water, heat, cold, acids and fumes. Slate color, contains no tar, does not run or crack, and it does not stain rain-water.

The only roofing with rust-proof caps. They cannot rust out like ordinary roof caps.

Don't be put off with a cheap imitation; get the most economical and durable—the roofing that lasts.
