Plot Puzzle; $10.00 If You Solve It.

Here are shown nine vacant plots. The owner asks you to number them from 1 to 9, so that no matter which way you connect them the total of the numbers will be 15. Do not use the same number twice. An excellent opportunity to win $10, which will keep on increasing without any effort on your part. It costs nothing to try, and is well worth your effort to win. Conditions of the contest: First; state name and address; Second, state age; Third, no more than one answer will be accepted from a family; Fifth, anyone found violating above conditions will forfeit his or her rights to award. We reserve the right to reject the answers of undesirable people. This $10 will be awarded in the form of a credit certificate, same to be applied on the purchase of a lot 80x120 feet, prices ranging from $85 to $485, located in a fast growing section and adjoining a high residential section. The highest and healthiest spot in Salisbury, within ten minutes walk of the N. & P. & N. depot, and within 100 yards of the B. & O. A. thereby assuring a great increase in value in that vicinity. Certificate winners must accept or reject same on presentation. We are giving away these $10 credit certificates to advertise and popularize our property and through the fortunate winners of the $10 credit certificates, we will sell a great deal of property, and thereby save a great many dollars that we would have to pay to newspapers for advertising space; by this method we also secure a better class of people through recommendations of the winners.

Over 150 lots to select from, and you take your pick. Ask for plot details.

STATE-WIDE LOCAL

Option Bill Killed In The House On Wednesday By Close Vote Of 50 To 48.

The much discussed Local Option Bill introduced under the direction of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, came up in the House on Wednesday, and after a warm and spirited debate was finally voted out, by a very close vote, forty eight in favor of the bill, and fifty opposed. The debate and fight over this bill was one of the bitterest seen in the House for some time.

The fight for the bill was led by Mr. Ford, of Somerset County, while Mr. Dawkins, of Baltimore City, and Mr. Benson, of Baltimore County, led the fight against it.

Mr. Anderson, of the Anti-Saloon League, was the target for the hottest shots, Messrs. Dawkins and Benson heatedly denounced him and his methods. Mr. Anderson, who in spite of the efforts of the opponents of the bill to exclude him from the House during the debate and vote, remained near Mr. Ford and quietly listened to the debate.

The defeat of this bill will be regretted by the friends of temperance all over the State, especially as it was believed to have a good chance to pass the House this time, and it is freely stated by the advocates of the bill that they had enough votes to pass it in the House, if some of the members had not betrayed the cause, and voted with its opponents at the last minute. Various insinuations are being made as to the cause of this sudden change on the part of some of the legislators.

Superintendent Anderson has called a meeting for Sunday in the Lyric at Baltimore, when the facts in the case are expected to be brought out and a plan presented for other action along the line of Temperance Legislation.

Messrs. Twilley, Baker and Wingate, of Wicomico County, voted for and supported the Bill.

The vote on the Bill follows:—

Against the Bill.—Messrs. Hayden, Crane, Watkins, Tate, Diggs, Slye, Benson, Oghlan, Fox, Glatz, Snyder, Rhodes, Marbury, J. P. Roe, Phillips, S. Roe, Archer, Sullivan, Coyne, McQuade, Beacham, Janetzke, Malne, Melis, Carr, Girdwood, Juera, Rahe, Slemmer, Wilcox, Ashby, Grant, Hogan, Dawkins, Marriott Krause, Paire, Parks, Peusch, Sheekells, Yates, Downin, Draper, Middlekauf, Abbott, Carl, Herpich, Kuierem, Wittig, Stoner—50.

For the Bill.—Speaker Peeples, Messrs. Willis, Harris, Murray, of Anne Arundel; Ross, Luby, Collier, Rose, Ford, Byrd, Carver, Andrews, Joyce, Maguire, Smith, Couden, Key, Crowley, Osmick, Thorn, King, Peters, Ausherman, Castle, Hargett, Harris, Wertenbaker, Jarrett, Osborn, Carter, Williamson, Eldridge, Brindle, Keedy, Cummings, Duval, Garrett, Henderson, Hill, Snader, Hesson, Brown, Hammond, Baker, Twilley, Wingate, Chappell, Bolden—48.

Absent or Not Voting.—Messrs. Dockett, Morfoot, Murray, of Worcester—3.

Rivenbark—Moore.

Miss Blanche Moore of this city and Mr. Carl Rivenbark, of Norfolk, Va., were married in Baltimore last Friday.

Miss Moore is stenographer to the Senate Finance Committee at Annapolis. Her marriage was a complete surprise to her Salisbury friends, who learned of it from the following article in Wednesday's Baltimore Sun.

The Sun Bureau, Annapolis, March 1.—When the stenographer to the Senate Finance Committee walked in to the room this morning, after an absence of several days, she was greeted cordially by Chairman Price and Clerk Jacobson.

"Good morning, Miss Moore, how?"

"Beg pardon, it is not Miss Moore any longer, but Mrs. Rivenbark," interrupted the stenographer, with a becoming blush.

"What?" from two thoroughly surprised men.

"Yes, I was married in Baltimore last Friday to Mr. Earl Rivenbark of Norfolk, Va.," responded the young lady, who thereupon received hearty congratulations.

It was a case of love at first sight according to the bride. She met Mr. Rivenbark at her home in Salisbury about six weeks ago, since which time the Virginian has been a persistent suitor.

Palme Accepted Devos's Offer.

Good yarn: How Devos got an agent at Delhi, N. Y.

Gladstone & Palme, were agents for —; we mustn't tell names. Devos wanted 'em. Palme was painting his big Colonial house. Said it took ten gallons of white for the trim.

Devos sent him ten gallons and said: If you get it all on, no pay; if you have any left, return it and pay for the rest. Agreed.

He returned four gallons and took the agency. Four or five years ago. He knows now that his old paint is adulterated; that's why it took ten gallons to equal 'ix of Devos.

Go by the name; there is but one name to go by; Devos lead-and-also.

WICOMICO PRESBYTERIAN

Church To Have Large Improvements Made Between April And September.

The contract for the improvements in the Wicomico Presbyterian Church on Broad Street this city, has been awarded to Captain Thomas M. Slemmons. The contract for rebuilding the tower and making the additions amounts to something over five thousand dollars. There will be new heating plant installed, new electric wiring and chandeliers, which together with the new decorations will run the cost of the improvements up to $9,000.

Over $8000 has been subscribed and it is hoped to have the balance before completion of the improvements.

The main auditorium will be enlarged by taking in the two ante-rooms opposite the present tower, and by adding twelve feet to the front of the church. This will give an additional seating capacity of 180 persons. This added to the present seating capacity of 255 will give the main auditorium seating room of about 440 persons. The present tower will be taken down to the ground and a new tower erected twelve feet farther towards the street. This tower will be of brick with a tall steeple of slate, adding much to the appearance of the building. The chairs will be taken out and new of handsome design installed. By taking in the ante-rooms and adding twelve feet to the church the main room will be enlarged twenty feet across the front of the church. Work will be started April 1 and it is expected to be completed by September 1.

"LITTLE NEMO."

The Biggest Show That Has Ever Been Brought To Baltimore. At The Academy Of Music Beginning Monday, March 7th.

The biggest show that has ever been brought to Baltimore Klaw & Erlanger's gigantic production of "Little Nemo", will be seen at the Academy of Music for one week beginning Monday, March 7th, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. The entertainment, which is the most elaborate musical comedy that has ever been presented in the world is the greatest sensation in theatricals for years. The newspapers of New York Chicago and Philadelphia unite in declaring that it is by far the most interesting and wonderful production that has ever been brought to these cities. So great is its scope so immense its organization and scenic equipment that it can be played only in the largest cities throughout the country.

The "Little Nemo" company numbers more than 200 performers with an all star cast of comedians including Joseph Cawthorn, Harry Clay Blaney, Harry Kelly, Master Gabriel and other world famous fun-makers.

BIVALVE.

The people of this place have been working faithfully and need to be praised highly.

Miss Frances F. Insley, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Ostlin, at White Haven for some time returned home Friday.

Miss Lessie White, of Nanticoke, was the guest of Miss Alma Insley, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Moore left here Thursday for Salisbury where they will reside in the future.

We are very glad to report Mrs. Harris Dunn improved at this writing.

The young people of this place are getting up an entertainment to be given at the Odd Fellows Hall. All are invited to attend.

The steamer Tanager made her appearance this morning for the first time lately, but in bad shape as she blew a hole in her boiler before reaching here.

Bill To Retire Judge Holland.

When the bill to retire Judge Wright was reported out of the Senate Committee on Judicial Proceedings, it was reported with an amendment which included Judge Holland of this County.

It is understood that Judge Holland sanctions this move. He will have reached the age limit in April, 1911, but his health is not good and he is unable to give the attention to this work that it requires.

Judge Holland succeeded the late Ephraim K. Wilson in 1884 when the latter was elected to the Senate, and he has served continuously since then, having been twice elected.

Judge Holland has made a capable and efficient Judge and during his long term on the bench has discharged the difficult duties of his office as to meet with the commendation and approval of the people of the First District whose interest he served.

The retirement of Judge Holland leaves the field open for a fight for his toga, and on news reaching here that the House had concurred in the Amendment and that same was passed, things began to get lively.

It is understood that Ex-Senator E. Stanley Toadwin's friends will urge his appointment on the Governor, and it is thought in some quarters that he is the man agreed upon by the party leader for the place.

The friends of Hon. James E. Ellegood will get behind him, and ask the Governor to crown his life long work at the Bar with the honor of ending his career on the Bench.

States Attorney Jos. L. Bailey is also understood to be a candidate for the appointment.

Mr. H. L. D. Stanford, of Somerset, has announced his candidacy and will have behind him his county, and it is understood further that he has strong endorsement from Worcester and Dorchester counties.

It is hoped in the interests of Wicomico County that an agreement will be made on some one man as it is of great importance to this community that the Judgeship be retained here.

W. C. Gullette.

The many friends of Mr. W. C. Gullette were shocked to learn of his death at his home here on Monday. Mr. Gullette had been a sufferer from cancer of the stomach for some time, and for some time the family had known that there was no hope of his recovery. Mr. Gullette was one of Salisbury's pushing prosperous business men, and was one of the best known citizens of this city. Quiet and unobtrusive in manner, kindly in heart, with a genial happy disposition, Mr. Gullette was highly esteemed and liked by all who knew him.

At the request of the deceased the Masonic fraternity participated in the funeral services held at his late home on Division Street Thursday afternoon, a large and representative body of this lodge following the remains of their deceased brother to his last resting place in Parsons Cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs. H. B. Freeny, L. Atwood Bennett, Geo. F. Sharpley, A. R. Leonard, Paul E. Watson, S. King White.

Mr. Gullette was born in Federalburg, Caroline county, Md., August 9th, 1866. For many years he had been traveling salesman for the Joel Baily Davis Company of Philadelphia, and was one of the most successful salesmen on the Peninsula. He was married in Pocomoke City, October 10th, 1893, to Miss Mary L. Landing, who survives, with four children. Mr. Gullette was a consistent member of Ashbury M. E. Church, and a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. Gullette and family moved to Salisbury several years ago, at once purchasing a residence on East Church Street, from Mr. Alfred Dykes, subsequently Mr. Gullette purchased the William Gordy property on the corner of N. Division and E. Church Streets, where he erected a handsome home.

Mr. Gullette invested largely in Salisbury real estate and leaves his family in good circumstances.

NEW LOCAL OPTION BILL

To be Introduced In Legislature This Term. Whole State Except Baltimore.

Undaunted in their efforts to have a local option bill passed by the present session of the Legislature, the headquarters committee of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League held a special meeting Thursday morning in its offices when it was decided unanimously to introduce another local option bill in the House Thursday, which would be applicable to the whole State, Baltimore city excluded.

The local option bill was taken to Annapolis by J. Bibb Mills, the League's attorney, and its provisions are identical with the one defeated Wednesday, the only change being that Baltimore city is not to be included in it. This bill was drafted some time ago, and has even been engrossed at Anti Saloon headquarters, so that it is likely that it will be introduced in the House immediately.

"If those who opposed the bill Wednesday are telling the truth and are honest the bill sent to Annapolis today will go through," declared Superintendent William H. Anderson of the Anti Saloon League. "We are going to test the good faith of the gentlemen who opposed the bill. They stated that they would give the bill to any community which wants it. We are now going to test their sincerity."

Not Likely To Ask Hearing.

It is not likely that the Anti Saloon League or those against the new bill will ask for a hearing, as it is rather late for a hearing, and it is sort of late for a hearing, said Superintendent Anderson, "and I do not think that a hearing would be calculated to throw any light on the subject."

Whether the Anti Saloon League has any other bill drafted and engrossed which might be introduced in the House in the event of the defeat of the one sent down today Mr. Anderson would not say. He declared, however, that the "Anti Saloon League never goes into a fight without having the next move already mapped out."

Had Victory Till Wednesday.

"We had the victory up until Wednesday morning," said Mr. Anderson today. "Some men had absolutely and positively promised to vote for the bill, but went back on their promise. Perhaps I will have something to say about these men at the Lyric on Sunday. I will not say what the men change their vote, but public can draw conclusions from men from temperance counties to support the local option bill against it."

As an earnest that they intend to keep up the fight for a local option bill a big demonstration will be held in the Lyric on Sunday afternoon, when Superintendent Anderson said today he would have some pretty warm things to say about certain people in particular who greatly helped to defeat the bill in the House Wednesday. Besides Mr. Anderson others will make addresses, among them being Representative Richmond P. Hobson of Alabama of "Merrimac fame," who is an ardent advocate of local option. This meeting will be held under the auspices of the various young people's leagues and Christian Endeavor societies of the churches of Baltimore.

—Miss Eva Taylor, of Quantico, gave a party to a number of her friends Saturday evening. Among those present were Misses Ethel Disharoon, Bernice Taylor, Olive Gillis, Annie Parrott, Gladys Roberts, Pauline Taylor, Ruth Twilley, Ma Taylor and Ola Taylor. Messrs. Harlan Graham, Paul Taylor, Lawrence Strauss, James Jones, Harry Gillis, Preston Woolford, George Parrott, Raymond Roberts, Steward Graham, Thomas Wooten, Francis Gale, Clifford Twilley, and James Gale. Refreshments were served at 11 o'clock. All reported a fine time.

RAISES BLACK ROSES

Says Cripple-Dennis Tapley Goes To Washington For Patent To Protect Discovery.

Confidently asserting that after 16 years' experimenting he has discovered a process whereby black roses may be grown, Dennis Tapley, a hopeless cripple from Savannah, Georgia, is in Washington to obtain, if possible, a patent upon his discovery.

He was preceded by a letter written by Col. A. R. Lawton, vice president of the Central of Georgia Railroad, who has interested himself in Tapley's claims and who has asked Representative Edwards of Georgia to take charge of the matter before the Patent Office. This Mr. Edwards will do, assuring the cripple, who has made key rings all his life for a living, that his invention will receive the same zealous guardianship as though he were Thomas A. Edison himself.

If Mr. Tapley has discovered a process for growing black roses—and he is accompanied by two friends who say he has—the secret will be worth thousands. The black rose is something for which the world has been waiting for a long time. The discoverer says that within the last month he has been offered $500,000 for his secret the day it is protected by patent, but he is going slow in accepting any offers.

From the fact that this second Burbank would say about his secret, it is learned that the process is a chemical treatment of an ordinary rose bush. After this treatment a bush that ordinarily would grow red, pink or white blossoms will yield a fragrant crop of jet black beauties.

Back home Dennis Tapley is known as the "Key Ring Boy of Johnson Square." For years he has been pitifully deformed because of the ravages of rheumatism, his head being drawn down upon his chest and his hands misshapen because of the disease.

Despite his physical imperfections however, Dennis has labored at making key rings and at his secret process. His rose bushes bearing black roses have been stolen on several occasions, and many a night Dennis has remained awake, after a hard day's toil, to guard his treasures. He has succeeded in displaying a few specimens of the anomalies in plant life produced by him, and has received considerable space in the columns of his home papers.

Considering the discoverer's lack of opportunities in early life, his deformity and the length of time it has required him to perfect the plant, his process must be deemed a remarkable one. If it is not patentable, Tapley will ask Representative Edwards to ask Congress to legislate in some manner so that he may reap the reward as its discoverer.

The cripple registered at the Harris Hotel the night of the recent fire there, and was carried from the burning building in the arms of a fireman. He saved his precious black rose process papers, but had a narrow escape.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Salisbury Citizen Can Afford To Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease.

J. S. Disharoon, 518 Elizabeth Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "For ten years kidney trouble made me miserable. I suffered from pains in the small of my back and when I got up in the morning, I was so lame that I could hardly move about. I was languid and often noticed that the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained much sediment. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me promptly. This remedy has been of more benefit to me than any other I have ever taken for my kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Saved A Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the civil war was more agreeable to J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., than facing it from what doctors said was consumption. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 178 pounds." For Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Gout, Whooping Cough and lung trouble, its supreme. 50c, $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

SEEKS A WIFE

Also Job, To Get $20,000—Englishman Must Have Both By May, Next Year.

John E. Mason, of Boston, whose search for work and a wife has been widely advertised, is flooded with communications from various applicants who think they are suited to fill the last mentioned need. Mr. Mason, years ago, received $500 from his father, a London merchant, and was sent to America to look out for himself. Before his departure his father told him that if at the age of 80 he could convince him or the executors of his will that he had married and settled down he would receive $20,000.

The time for fulfilling his obligation is up in May, 1911, and Mr. Mason is out of a position and unmarried. Since his needs were advertised, Mr. Mason has received over 100 letters. Some are earnest and breathe sincerity, some exceedingly humorous, while the majority are forward and bold, and discuss the matter in a cold-blooded fashion as though an exchange of horses were at stake.

Among Mr. Mason's correspondents have been three girls from New York.

Girl Loses Longest Appendix On Record.

Another "mysterious stranger" has come into the limelight in the "Show-me State."

It is the largest appendix in captivity and measures exactly 11 inches. George Goss, a former Yale athlete, recently laid claim to the appendix championship. He was six inches long. Later Howard Gould, of Winthrop, Mass., was operated on in a Boston hospital for appendicitis and Goss, champion for four days, had lost the record. Gould's appendix measured six and seven eighths inches.

Now comes Miss Stella Hogan, of Kansas City, who when operated on broke all records. The appendix measures eleven inches exactly.

How Good News Spreads.

"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by all druggists.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

And Requires An Internal Remedy.

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is the excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with Oil and Liniment will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, allows the malady to get a firmer hold on you. Liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure Rheumatism than paint will change the fibre of a rotten wood.

Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called "Rheumoid." Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures; we believe it will cure you. Rheumoid "gets at the joints from the inside," sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys, and makes you well all over. Rheumoid "strikes the root of the disease and removes its cause." This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c and $1.00 a bottle. In tablet form at 25c and 50c a package. Get a bottle today. Booklet free if you write to Bobbit Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md. Trial bottle 25c by mail.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

A FAMINE IN THE LAND

"I will send a famine in the land; not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord" (Amos vii. 11).

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 27.—Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle, New York, preached twice here today in our largest auditorium. He is well known here and had fine audiences. We report his discourse from the above text as follows:—

Today this prophecy is fulfilled in our midst! Notwithstanding the fact that during the past century Bibles have been printed and circulated among the people by the million, and notwithstanding the fact that education has become general so that rich and poor, old and young, have the ability to read God's Word, nevertheless we are in the midst of the very famine specified by the Prophet. It seems almost incredible that we should be famishing now with Bibles in our homes, when our saintly forefathers did not famish, though education was limited. The secret lies in the fact that increasing intelligence on every hand has awakened our reasoning faculties along religious lines, and the result is the gnawing of hunger in our hearts. Our hearts and our flesh cry out for a living and a true God—a God greater than ourselves—more just, more powerful, more loving. Feeling our own impotency, we more than ever feel our need of the Friend above all others with a love that sticketh closer than a brother's.

Consequently we cannot find the rest and refreshment and comfort from the Scriptures which our forefathers derived. Consequently the young men and the purest of heart in the world are repelled by the religion of the past as represented in the creeds of all denominations. They are hungry for the Truth. They are thirsty for the refreshment which they need. Intellectually many are looking, wandering, from sea to sea desiring the bread of life and the water of life. Scanning the creeds of all denominations they find them practically alike as respects theories of eternal reprobation and damnation for all except the elect, the saints. They are faint for lack of spiritual food and drink. They even look to the heathen and examine the Theosophy of India, the Buddhism of Japan and the Confucianism of China, seeking for some satisfying portion of Truth. These are in some respects like the prodigal son—far from home. They perceive the swinish content with the husks of business, money, pleasure and politics, but their spiritual longings cannot be satisfied with the husks which the swine eat. They are thought peculiar because of their interest in spiritual things. They are misunderstood by their best earthly friends. They must learn that in their wanderings along the highways of science and world religion they will never get satisfaction. There is a famine in every denomination, in every part of the world. No one thinks of looking to the Bible for refreshment and strength. The Higher Critics of all denominations have branded it unreliable. The Professors in all the great Colleges are reproaching the Bible and openly laughing at the thought of finding there either bread for the hungry or water for the thirsty.

This is the very picture given in our text. "They shall wander from sea to sea, from the North even to the East; they shall run to and fro to seek the Word of the Lord and shall not find it. In that day shall the fair virgins and the young men faint for thirst" (Amos viii. 12, 13). The Bread of Life and Water of Life. These hungry hearts must learn that there is only one satisfying portion under the Sun—the living and true God, and Jesus Christ whom he has sent to be the Bread of Life for the world, and the message of grace from his lips to be the Water of Life. It is ours to call the attention of this Truth-hungry class to the Great Teacher who declared, "My flesh is food indeed; and my blood is drink indeed; except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you" (John vi. 53, 54). But scarcely will the intelligent of our day hearken to these words, so prejudiced are their minds by the fallacies which becloud their understanding. They see not, neither do they understand the goodness of God.

Why is this? Why are these Bibles in millions of homes, Catholic and Protestant, neglected? Because the people know not that the bread of life and the water of life which they seek are hidden therein. Why is this? We answer that conditions were very much the same in Israel at the time of our Lord's First Advent. The explanation he then gave is applicable now. He said, "Ye do make void the Law of God through your traditions"—"the traditions of the ancients" (Mark vii. 13; 1 Peter i. 18). So now, the traditions handed down from our forefathers really make void, meaningless, ungracious, the message of God's Wisdom and Love sent to us through the Lord, the apostles and the prophets. Those who still hold tenaciously to the creeds of the past are thoroughly blinded now to the true teachings of God's Word, while, alas, the majority of the independent thinkers, in rejecting the creeds of the past, have rejected the Bible also, believing that the teachings of the creeds truthfully represent God's Word. These are wandering hither and thither, hungering and thirsting, looking for the bread of life and water of life, and finding it nowhere, because they seek not where alone it is to be found.

"No, Every One That Thirsteth, Come Ye." Ho! Ye all that hunger for Truth, Come ye. There is an abundance for us all in our Heavenly Father's wonderful provision—in the Bible. Describing all the creeds and traditions of power of love over the human heart, in contrast with the ungodly fear of the error, God says to us in so many words, "Which fear toward me is not of me, but is taught by the precepts of men." As an illustration: At a Bible Students' Convention not long ago in Ohio a well-dressed gentleman in attendance told me of how his heart had been touched with our presentations of the "Love Divine, all love excellant." He said, "For years I have been a member of the Presbyterian Church without being really a Christian at all. Occasionally I went on sprees; sometimes I gambled and drank, etc., etc. Not until I received a knowledge of the true character of God as set forth in our 'Scripture Studies' did my heart ever come to the proper attitude of surrender to the Lord. Then I was glad to give him my little all, and wished it were more." The next day, passing from the hotel to the auditorium to a question meeting, this gentleman put a slip of paper into my hand, which I supposed was a question, and I thrust into my coat pocket. On the platform I drew it forth as one of the questions to be answered, and to my astonishment, found it was a check for $1,000. The man had not been asked for one cent; but the Love of God had captivated his heart and gotten control—not only of it, but of his pocket-book and all. He wished to show the Lord his appreciation of the Love Divine, the length and breadth and height and depth, of which he now comprehended, as never before.

Another case: I met with a Convention of Bible Students in Chattanooga some five years ago. A gentleman attended who introduced himself to me saying that he was from Mississippi and that he had become deeply interested in my presentations of the harmony of the Word of God. He said in substance: "Brother Russell, I will not attempt to tell you how wicked a man I was before I got your literature. My dear wife here, an earnest Methodist, said to me, 'John, John, you will surely go to hell!' I replied to her, 'Mary, I know it! I know it! And, Mary, I am determined that I will deliver all that I get. I am not going to hell for nothing.' One of your tracts came to my desk in my store. I said that this was a waste of money. I never understood respecting the teachings of the Bible. It seems more God-like and more rational. I sent you for various Bible Students' Helps. The result, dear Brother Russell, is that the Love of God has constrained me, has conquered me, in a way that the doctrines of devilish torments could not influence me. Now I see the true teaching of God's Word. I can honor him and worship him and take pleasure in laying down my life in his service. I have made a full consecration of everything. For a time I sent you a $50 check every month, but Brother Russell, that was in the nature of conscience-money, because the most profitable feature of my store trade was the sale of liquor to the Mississippi negroes. Those checks stopped, because, as the grace of God more and more filled and overflowed my heart, it brought me to see that I must love my neighbor as myself and do injury to none. That is all gone now, Brother Russell, and my whole life is devoted to the service of God and my fellow-men."

Three murderers confined in the Columbus, Ohio, Penitentiary had from childhood been trained in the doctrines of eternal torment in different churches and yet committed murder. Those men, under God's providence, received some of our literature—"Scripture Studies"—and were cut to the heart when they learned of the Love of God, as expressed in the Divine Plan of the Ages. To be brief: A knowledge of the Love of God made such a change in the hearts and lives of those three murderers that the prison-keepers took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus and had learned of him. By and by they were paroled and today two of them are preaching the Gospel of the Love of God, seeking to bring their fellow-men out of the condition of darkness and sin into the glorious sunlight of Divine Love and Truth. Having tried the Gospel of fear and damnation and torture for sixteen centuries: having seen that under this teaching there are more blasphemy and general wickedness than even in the heathen world, is it not due time to give the true bread of life to the hungry and thirsty ones who, for lack of it, are searching the earth and many of them falling into Higher Criticism, infidelity and other delusions peculiar to our day?

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go off through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists at fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: a brick dust sediment or getting a stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

ACCORDING TO PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

In the fight for a state wide Local Option Bill, the members of the House of Delegates from this County stood and voted in favor of the bill. We believe that in doing so they expressed the wishes of the majority of the people in this county regardless of party affiliations and we congratulate Messrs. Twilley, Baker and Wingate on their stand on this question.

PASS THE PRIMARY BILL.

That the masses of the Democratic party in the state are in favor of a direct primary bill which will allow them to vote directly for the men they want in public office is evidenced by the stand the press all over the state has taken as well as reports from the counties where it was tried last year. In what form this bill ought to pass is a question that will have to be solved by the legislators themselves, but we believe that the majority of the voters in the democratic party of this state are strongly in favor of a law which will allow them to exercise their choice in candidates for office. If deemed impracticable or unwise to make the state nominees come under the law, then let us have it as far as county offices are concerned, and it will soon be found to be wise and practicable to apply it to all offices in the gift of the people.

GET TOGETHER.

The bill retiring Judge Holland has passed and doubtless will be approved and signed by the Governor. It is to be hoped that Wicomico County will be able to hold the Judgeship as Salisbury is geographically as well as in importance the right place to have a Judge. There seems at the present time some little inclination to make the appointment a free for all fight and it is feared that this may lessen the chances for the naming of a man who will be here.

do not want to lose the Judgeship and it is to be hoped that all the judges will see the necessity of getting together on the proposition in order to make the place. The fact of the increased business and the ever enlarging interests of Salisbury makes it of utmost importance to retain this Judgeship if we must have a fight let us have it later in the primaries.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

This week a great many of the farmers and truckers attended the Institute held here this week under the direction of W. L. Amos, who has charge of this work in the state. Year by year the value of these gatherings are being more and more recognized and this meeting was attended by a fair number of our most progressive and leading farmers. Years ago, in this county, all that was thought to be necessary, in order to grow a crop, was to sow the seed and give the plants some little attention until the crop was harvested; today this is changed and the farmers recognized that in order to get the best results from their labor, they must study the nature of the plants, find out what they want and then give it to them.

It is estimated that the size of our crops have almost doubled under the care of educated and skillful farming, and that in course of time when the subject is more thoroughly understood by those who till the soil that the productivity of our soil will be many times increased over that of the present day.

Every nation is absolutely dependent upon the farm and farmers for its prosperity and for its life itself and as our population increases it becomes necessary to adopt means to increase the productivity of our soil. Older nations with their teeming population have made wonderful progress in this and the productivity of the land has been doubled and tripled to that of our acre for acre. Our farmers are looking up to the fact that they can get better results by giving the study and attention more attention and in the line the Institute are doing good.

MANY FARMERS ATTEND

Annual Meeting Of The Institute At Court House This Week.

The Farmers Institute met at the Court House Thursday and Friday of this week and was largely attended. At Thursday's meeting 110 were present.

Mr. C. O. Hulbert, of New Jersey, discussed the Home Mixing vs the Commercial Fertilizers and he advised Home Mixed Fertilizers. Then Mr. Hulbert spoke at length about Cantaloupes for market. Near the close of the day W. L. Amos suggested a plan for Organization, he proposes to turn over a great deal of the work to be done at future meetings of the Institute to a committee of five members chosen from those present.

Organized in this manner Mr. Amos, or his successor can keep in touch with the farmers through his committee and determine what kind of discussion will be most beneficial to this section. The committee is as follows:

Mr. Chas. M. Peters, President.
Mr. Wm. C. Mitchell, Secretary and Treasurer; B. S. Morris, Wm. P. Ward, B. C. Rector, Executive Committee.

At 10 a. m. Friday, March 4th., Prof. T. C. Johnson discussed the Truckers Organization of Norfolk, Va. Mr. Chas. M. Day discussed Spraying and Spray Mixtures quite ably. We believe that spraying must be practised in this section if we are to get the best results from our fruit crops.

Seed breeding and seed saving was discussed by Mr. C. O. Hulbert. "Save your own seed and use only the best."

Friday afternoon Mr. H. destry of the Produce Exchange spoke on growing fewer varieties of strawberries. This was followed by a general discussion.

Most of the speakers in the audience spoke in favor of the Klondyke berry as the best all around berry for this county. Mr. F. E. Konetyko, of Princess Anne spoke of the berry growers grading their fruits and picking them in good shape.

Proceedings Of The County Commissioners At Tuesday's Session.

The County Commissioners were in session Tuesday and transacted the following business:

Mr. H. E. Freney, president of the company that is developing the Humphreys property, asked board to take some action to indicate what was their intention relative to putting in pivot bridges at Camden and South Division Streets. Board promised to report to him later.

E. M. Walston asked the board to lay out and build a short piece of road to extend east through the land of himself, Mrs. Mary E. Vincent, John L. Coffey and others. The matter was referred to Commissioner Ward.

The property owners on the new Parsonsburg road asked the board to give them a decision on the question as to who should own the bed of the abandoned road. Board agreed to have its attorney give an opinion, when they would be ready to answer the question.

E. E. Freney, C. P. Johnson and H. M. Clark, examiners, appointed to straighten and widen the section of the Salisbury-Mardela Road, filed their report and asked that final ratification notice be published.

I. Joseph Hearn, A. W. Carey and Penn Carey were before the board to straighten and widen the section of the Salisbury-Mardela Road, filed their report and asked that final ratification notice be published.

Geo. W. Adkins, Elisha W. Parsons and J. R. Layfield were appointed commissioners on a tax ditch known as the Smith Campbell ditch for the purpose of rearing and relaxing to maintain the property.

Mr. Ward was directed to have the Parker Road, from the Middle Neck Road to Zion Church worked.

Proceedings Of City Council At Monday's Session.

The City Council was in session Monday evening and transacted the following business:

Applications for permits to build were granted as follows: To Frank Booth, dwelling on Upton Street; to Julia D. Morris, front porch to her home on Isabella Street; to G. E. Bailey, store house on Locust Street; to Harland E. Galloway, dwelling on Charles Street; to J. J. Backler and H. O. Hill, laundry building on South Division Street, on a piece of the Humphreys' property between the old saw mill and the former food gates. The building will be 40x75 feet, and will be completely equipped to do all kinds of laundry work.

Councilmen Dennis and Sheppard were appointed a committee to confer with the Salisbury Realty Co., in reference to getting in a sewer from Water Street across the bed of the lake to the proposed new channel.

The Council decided to carry the Ida Brittingham case to the Court of Appeals and so instructed the City Solicitor, E. S. Toddvin.

An Awful Eruption.

of a volcano excites brief interest and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at all druggists.

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man is an unhappy slave. Burdock Blood Bitters builds up sound health—keeps you well.

Harsh physics react, weaken the bowels, cause chronic constipation. Doan's Regulator operates easily, tones the stomach, cures constipation. 25c. Ask your druggist for them.

Ancients will happen but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electro-Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurt.

Return Of The Jews To Palestine.

It is reported that the Jews from all parts of the world are flocking into Palestine. Zionism, the organized movement for the return of the Chosen People to their ancient homeland, is largely responsible for this influx.

The overthrow of absolutism and the proclamation of a constitution in Turkey have greatly facilitated this movement. It is said that already four-fifths of Jerusalem's one hundred thousand population is of the Jewish race and faith. Tens of thousands of Jews have settled in the smaller Palestinian towns, while in the country districts many colonies of Jewish farmers have been established. Almost the whole of the famous plain of Esraclon has been bought up by them. The Jew is literally spreading from Dan to Beer-sheba. The greater part of the present immigration is from Persia and Russia. Jewish capitalists are buying up the Jordan Valley, and agents of Jewish advocates are reported as distributed over Palestine buying land wherever they can from the Mohammedans.

Jerusalem has become again a Jewish city. More than a hundred Hebrew schools have been established there, and every branch of business, trade and industry is dominated by the Jew. Through the efforts of Zionists, thousands of dollars are being sent into Palestine to help their poorer compatriots to build homes and establish themselves on the land. The Zionist movement is making much more progress than was deemed possible a few years ago when the movement was inaugurated by the late Theodore Herzl.—Richmond Christian Advocate.

—G. M. Fisher, the Main Street Jeweler, has installed in his store, a Self Winding Electric Clock, which is itself by Western Union Tel. Co., and the U. S. Observatory time at Washington, D. C. at 12 o'clock, every day, and winds itself every hour electrically. So there need not be any further question as to who has the correct time. This is the only clock of its kind on the Eastern Shore, and we congratulate Mr. Fisher on his enterprising idea in placing this Regulator for the convenience of the public, as well as to have the time to the second, to regulate the high grade time pieces by.

—Arrangements are being made at Bridgeville, Del., to handle the large acreage of strawberries that are expected to be picked this coming season. Last year the conveyance and transportation facilities were not sufficiently convenient to take care of the berry crop, and as many farmers have greatly increased their fields a demand for more convenient means among the farmers and commission merchants. The thought the Pennsylvania Railroad will make considerable changes in yards and lay several new tracks and side tracks. The Pennsylvania will erect a large cold storage house in order to take care of the berries.

—Fire destroyed the Ocean City cold storage and ice plant Sunday morning at 3 o'clock. It also burned the building used for a storage house by the Ocean City Fishing Company in which its nets and fishing equipment were stored. The storage plant cost about $15,000 eight years ago and was owned by Thomas J. Cropper. It was partly covered by insurance. The fish storage warehouse and contents, worth about $3,000 was insured for $3,000. The ice plant had not been in operation since November. The origin of the fire is unknown.

—Work was begun Thursday on the foundation for an addition to the Washington Hotel, Princess Anne, which Mr. J. Douglass Wallop is owner and proprietor. The addition is the southern end of the hotel and dimensions will be 20.35 feet. It will be three stories high and contain twenty five sleeping rooms. On the ground floor there will be a bar, shop, writing room, pool room and large room for storage purposes. The new building will be fitted up in the same manner as the present hotel. Steam heat, baths, toilets, etc. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy about August 1st. The patronage of the Washington Hotel has increased to such an extent under the management of Mr. Wallop as to necessitate the securing of more room for the accommodation of his guests.

Developing Pink Hens That Will Lay Red Eggs.

By the use of certain kinds of dye white hens may be gradually changed to pink. Their eggs may be colored red, pink or other hues provided the right dyes are found.

A series of experiments at the poultry department of the New York State College of Agriculture has proved that by feeding a white hen rhodamine dye during the molting season her feathers will gradually turn to pink and that the whites of her eggs will also become pink. Other experiments with Sudan dye have shown that the yolk of an egg may be made red or even that the whole egg may be changed to that color.

NEW YORK EASTER STYLES

Trousseau For Easter Weddings: Eifel Tower Turbans; Changeables And Cameleons; Foulards For Linings; Indro Shantung Silks For Handsome Suits; Spider Veils And Crushed Bolts.

The windows of the smartest shops have blossomed out in Easter finery and all the world of womankind is intensely interested in the showing of new hats, costumes and fabrics that will be worn at Spring weddings and other gaieties scheduled for the weeks before society fits to the summer resorts.

For Easter Weddings.
All that is daintiest and most chic in fashionable designing is seen in the trousseaus of several well known girls who are to be married at Easter tide.
And every representative place where such fittings are turned out, is fairly humming with the stir of wedding preparations. Changeables and cam-eleon effects are the notable color trend. Contrasting linings are the rule, and figured foulards, especially in Persian patterns, are very much used for linings and facings of coats, and for hat trimmings.

New Suitings And Silks.
Gray is the leading favorite for tailored woolen suitings as indicated by the sales at Lord and Taylor's and other high class establishments. Indro Shantung Silks are first favorites for the handsome costume, that suits any occasion, yet stands the hardest wear, and the blacks in these, being yarn dyed, are a perfect jet with none of the dusty, gray appearance that formerly characterized black shantung.
Foulards have come back with a rush, and the double widths selling for from $1.50 per yard up, are those preferred for dresses, while the single widths at small prices are utilized for linings and trimmings. The Indro Shantung silks sell at $1 per yard. Lovely border chiffons in white or pale tints, with wide borders of roses reproducing Nature's colors, were shown at the same establishment and would be ideal for bridesmaid costumes.

Hats From Paris.
Hats just out of their Paris wrappings are among the most charmingly refined yet smart headwear that is shown here. An "Eifel Tower" turban with a crown of brown tulle over yellow in a high upstanding puffing, is bordered by a wide band of shaded velvet panicles, in soft red and brown tones, and, a little at the left of the centre back, has a bow of the shaded velvet ribbon which is one of the new novelties of this season. Another similar shape with a crown of yellow satin straw, is banded with shaded blue Marguerites, and has a bow of tulle at the back. A draped high toque with the crown of black Milan straw, has a lattice of medium blue straw, over the back forming the band. A single full plume of black ostrich is the sole trimming. A wide brimmed leghorn is dyed gold color, and trimmed with lilacs in shades that Nature never ac-tempts; tans, browns, old reds; and deepest royal purple, arranged across the hat, and caught with a bow of shaded velvet at the upturned side.

New Veilings.
The honey-comb mesh veil still continues to be extensively worn. It is too becoming to be lightly abandoned, but one sees either no veil at all, or what, for want of better name, are called "Spider" veils, from the intricacy of their meshes, and the fact that the figures are placed at the centers of closest weaving as a spider stays most often at the center of his web.
These are no doubt smart but very masklike, too much so for a pretty young face, though the girls are affecting them. Chantilly veils are also much worn, and are very becoming thrown back over the hat in front, and hanging down behind forming a most complimentary background. Draped belts of all sorts are popular, especially black patent leather, worn with linen or checked suits. Lucy Carter.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable.
Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment.
Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful.
It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c., including spraying

Our Ambition

Every worthy store has an ambition that is worth while. The ambition of the Gomprecht & Benesch Easton Branch will be the same that exists at the parent stores in Baltimore—i. e., to present an exceptionally large line of dependable Furniture in exclusive designs—not the ordinary common-stock patterns that you find everywhere, but designs that are peculiarly different, yet embodying all the better features of the common kinds.

Again, our ambition is to get in touch with all the people possible so that we both will be benefitted.
You will benefit most by getting acquainted with us,
by knowing our business policy, our idea of service, of accommodation, of painstaking care, of promptness in delivery. You will find it different from the way you have been used to, you will find it better, and you will like the difference.

It is our pride that we have the simplest and most satisfactory form of Credit Extension in existence.

Watch for the date of opening of our Easton

MONSTER MASS MEETING

Planned For Sunday Afternoon, March 20 In Trinity Church To Forward Anti-Saloon League.

Mr. William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland is planning for a monster League Mass Meeting on Sunday afternoon, March 20th, to be held in Trinity M. E. Church, South, this city.

The meeting is held at the time of the session of the Wilmington M. E. Conference for the purpose of arousing ministers and the Laymen to the necessity of supporting the plans of the League for the enactment of the state wide Local Option Bill excluding Baltimore City, at the present session of the Legislature, and in order to inspire a deeper interest in the future plans of the League for the redemption of Maryland from the saloon.

Mr. Anderson and his League followers are not at all discouraged at the recent defeat of the general Local Option Bill in the House of Delegates, and the new bill will be vigorously pressed.

The speakers at the proposed mass meeting will be Supt. Anderson, Rev. Charles L. Elderdice, of Federalburg, Md., and Supt. John M. Arters, who is in charge of the work of the League in the Eastern Shore Counties of Maryland.

If Congressman Hobson, who speaks at the Saturday night Temperance Anniversary remains in the city over Sunday, he will be asked to speak at the Mass Meeting.

The hour for the meeting will be 3:30 o'clock and special music will be furnished by the Messick singers, who are well known to Wicomico Countians and to the members and friends of the Wilmington Conference.

Fatal Accident At Princess Anne.

Sidney Pollitt, of Habnab, Somerset County, Wednesday morning met with a fatal accident at the railroad crossing South of the Princess Anne depot. He had come to Oohn and Bock's mill with a load of lumber, and on his return his team of two mules was struck by a freight train going North. The mules, having their legs broken, were shot.

Mr. Pollitt was hurt internally and mangled. He was taken to the Peninsula General Hospital at Salisbury, where he died in the afternoon. He was unmarried and resided with his mother and sister near Habnab.

The watchman at the crossing signaled for Mr. Pollitt not to cross the track, and it is supposed he misunderstood the warning and was on the railroad before he could be stopped.

HALLEY'S COMET COMING

Now 170,000 Miles Off But Will Reach Here In May, Says Prof. Ames.

Running on a schedule that gives the go-by to all way stations and provides 76 years for the round trip Halley's comet is coming toward the earth under such a full head of steam that in about two months more or, on May 18th, this champion express train of the solar system will be in full view. For about six hours the comet's tail, which is a mere 20,000,000 of miles long, or thereabouts, will be giving the earth some fancy wishes about the ears, and a meteoric shower will probably result.

Professor Ames, who is director of the physical laboratory at Johns Hopkins University, said that, though having a diameter of about 360,000 miles, Halley's namesake is exceedingly small in mass and couldn't do such a great deal of damage if it should "go off the rails." The atmosphere surrounding it is very rare. The comet is even now visible through the telescope, but it is 170,000,000 miles from the earth. When it scots past Venus on March 30th, its speed will be terrific.

This is the oldest comet known to scientists. Though named after Halley, who spotted it in 1682, and after studying its curves, declared it would come back again in 76 years, it had been recurring in every seventy six year from 11 B.C. down, as its record showed when looked up. In the Bayeux tapestry is a picture showing the people gazing at the comet in 1066, just before the Norman conquest. It used to have a bad reputation, being regarded as presaging some disaster. Long since, however, the astronomers have disabused the public of such ideas, and the comet is now viewed merely in light of curiosity when it reappears.

Hospital On Tree Top.

A cottage hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis, each cottage to be built in a tree top is announced as the plan of Dr. Arthur Funk, a medical missionary of the Presbyterian Church for the depletion of the disease in Persia. Dr. Funk took his idea from D. O. Steilberger, a resident of Urbana, Ohio, whose home is in the branches of a giant oak.

When the Steilberger home was constructed its owner was a victim of pulmonary trouble. He now claims to be fully recovered and asserts that his life eighty feet above ground is responsible for his good health.

Dr. Funk and his wife are stationed at Hamadan, a city of 80,000 population, about 200 miles west of Teheran. They are confident that the tree top plan will materially reduce the number of tubercular cases in their district.

DISFRANCHISEMENT BILL

Introduced—Same As Last Submitted Without The Educational Clause.

There has been a great deal of talk during this legislative session about another constitutional amendment looking towards the disfranchisement of the negro, but it was believed by many that it would not be pushed. The fact that Senator Price of this county has introduced such a bill, however, gives rise to the presumption that such course has been agreed upon by the leaders. [Senator Price, being the leader of his party in the Senate would hardly introduce a bill of this character unless he had the assurance of the support of his party leaders: The Baltimore Sun has the following to say in its news columns about the bill:

"Most striking of the features of the Price measure is that it eliminates the educational qualification. Democratic leaders believe that this feature of the recent Straus bill had more to do with its defeat than any other single cause; that it could not be understood by the foreign voters of Baltimore, who became panic stricken with the fear of disfranchisement and could not be persuaded that the grandfathers' and naturalization provisions would save them in the face of an educational qualification clause.

With the educational qualification removed, Democratic leaders who have decided upon another test of the question believe that the new measure will have an excellent chance of passage.

The section of the former bill permitting suffrage to the man whose wife pays taxes upon $500 worth of property has been eliminated also, although the property qualifications for men alone has been retained as one of the features. Otherwise the new bill is similar to the Straus bill of last year.

Senator Price said today that the advisability of offering a new disfranchising amendment had been decided favorably by the party leaders after long and thoughtful consideration.

"The question of disfranchising the ignorant and vicious negro was the principal plank in our last State platform," he said, "and it was the principal topic discussed before the people during the campaign. While the amendment was defeated largely because the foreign voters did not comprehend that it was harmless to them, the people of the State sent a three fifths Democratic majority to the Legislature. We think they will welcome another submission of the issue; at any rate, we do not intend to do back to them and say we failed to do that; that is, give them another opportunity to pass upon disfranchisement. We are not afraid to go before the people again with the issue in its amended form."

President Gorman, of the Senate, will support the franchise amendment.

"The Democratic party has been promising for years to disfranchise the negro. The party has the necessary three fifths of the membership of each house at this session, and if there is a failure to continue the effort to put the negro out of politics it will give grounds for the belief that the party has surrendered to the negro and is content to have him remain as a political factor in the State.

"It is true that two amendments have been proposed and rejected at the polls, but both were rejected for other causes than any effort to save the negro vote. All the argument against the amendment in the last campaign was directed to convince the people that some white men would lose their votes, and there is little question that these arguments, however, unjustified they were, caused the rejection of the amendment. The party must keep on in the effort to put the political power into the hands of the white race exclusively."

BRIDGE AT SHARPTOWN

To Be Constructed As Part of State Highway Seems Assured.

Senator Price has introduced a bill in the Senate providing for the building of a bridge over the Nanticoke at Sharptown. As the outline for the State roads calls for a crossing of the Nanticoke at this point, it is pointed out by Senator Price that it is necessary to have a bridge over the river here in order to properly connect up the road. The old ferry system is antiquated and makes a very poor excuse for a crossing. An appropriation of $25,000 is provided for in the bill to carry out its provisions. This bill has been favorably reported and passed to its third reading and it is believed will pass without any trouble. This will be a great convenience to Sharptown and the whole peninsula which desires to use the State road for traffic and travel. By the terms of the bill the bridge is made a part of the State highway.

NEXT HOUSE DEMOCRATIC

Is The Hopeful Outlook For Next Fall's Election.

Recent elections to all vacancies in Congress give unmistakable evidence that the tide is setting in the direction of the Democratic party, and the party leaders are encouraged to believe that the next House will be Democratic. The special election in the Sixth Missouri District to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Daniel A. DeArmond, resulted in the election of Clement C. Dickinson, by greatly increased majority. Congressman DeArmond's majority at the Presidential election held November, 1908, was 2,160. The majority for Mr. Dickinson at the special election on Tuesday last was 3,768 an increase of 1,628 showing a Democratic gain of 48 per cent. This ratio of gain spread throughout all the Congress districts of the country would, according to the calculations of the forecasters, make the next House of Representatives, surely Democratic. The New York Sun, in an editorial in which careful consideration is given to the subject, shows that a change in 35 districts would give next House to the Democrats, and that there is a reasonable possibility that such a change will occur. In the present House of Representatives, composed of 391 members, there are 319 Republicans, 170 Democrats and two vacancies, a Republican majority of 49. There are 29 districts in which Republican members of the present House were elected by less than 1,000 majority or plurality, ranging from 22 to 294, and nine in which Democrats were elected by less than 1000 majority or plurality, ranging from 4 to 925. Also there are in the present House 11 Republicans and 15 Democrats who were elected by pluralities or majorities of from 1000 to 3000. From this showing The Sun finds that there are 30 Republicans and 9 Democrats in present House who are in danger of losing their seats through a change of 500 votes, and 16 Democrats and 11 Republicans who are in similar danger through a change of 1000 votes. A gain of 35 seats is necessary to make the next House Democratic. Here is an encouraging field for securing considerably more than the necessary number.

CONGRESSMAN HOBSON

Of Merrimac Fame To Be The Orator In Salisbury Next Saturday Night, March 19th In Asbury Church On Temperance Anniversary.

The Wilmington Conference Temperance Anniversary will be held in Asbury M. E. Church on Saturday night, March 19th, at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. John M. Arters, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League for the Eastern Shore Counties of Maryland, will be the presiding officer, and the orator for the occasion will be Congressman Richmond Pierson Hobson of Alabama, the hero of the Merrimac, and now prominent in the political life of his native state.

Congressman Hobson has for several years taken a prominent part in the agitation against the saloon in Alabama, and his gifts as a public speaker make him especially useful in the modern warfare of the church against the liquor traffic. He spoke to a big house in the Lyric at Baltimore on Sunday, March 6th, and held his great audience charmed throughout his entire address.

The people of Salisbury and the members of the Wilmington Conference are to be considered as fortunate in having an opportunity to hear such a distinguished advocate of Temperance as Congressman Hobson.

The Messick singers, well known to Wicomico Countians will furnish special music, and the choir of Asbury Church will likewise be heard at the Anniversary.

Mouse Jumps From Women's Rat.

A mouse in a lady's "rat" cost one of Tipton's (Ind.) wealthy citizens a new set of chins, when it appeared suddenly on the breakfast table, after jumping out of the daughter's hair.

Her father had put out poison for mice. A mouse ate some of it and crawled into the "rat." He did not eat quite enough to kill him, but he was paralyzed for the time. When the young woman was awakened by the arrival of one of her girl friends she dressed hurriedly and did not examine the "rat" closely before putting it on.

When the family were at breakfast the mouse recovered from the effect of the poison and jumped from the "rat" to the table. The table was overturned in the excitement and every dish was broken.

HIGH SCHOOL VISITS

Annapolis And Receives A Hearty Welcome. Gov. Crothers Addresses Them.

The tenth and eleventh grades of the Wicomico High School and the graduating class of the Sharpstown High School, accompanied by Superintendent Holloway, Profs. Dye and Fellers and Miss Porter made a trip to Annapolis this week to get an object lesson in government. The trip was made by the R. M. McLaure under the command of Capt. Turner and conducted to the Capital city. The party was fortunate on its arrival to witness an interesting debate in the Senate relative to the retirement of Judge Holland, this besides being a local matter where they were fully acquainted with the parties was one of the most interesting debates of the session. The party visited the House of Delegates, the Governor's executive offices, the old Senate chamber and many other places of interest. On invitation of the Governor they were received by Governor Crothers. After greeting his youthful guests the Governor made them an address in his usual pleasing and happy style, which made quite an impression on his hearers. After complimenting them on coming to Annapolis on their present errand, laying due stress upon the necessity of an intimate knowledge of the principles of government, he dwelt upon the part the coming generations should take in public affairs, and the value of acquainting themselves with all matters pertaining to the public administration, and all matters affecting in any way the public welfare so that when called upon to pass upon men or measures they do so intelligently and honestly. He further dwelt upon the necessity of care in the appropriation of public funds and declared that they should not be thrown away but honestly expended for the good of the public to whom they belonged. After complimenting the pupils upon the showing they made both in number and appearance, he strongly commended the work being done by our public schools. It was owing to the good offices of Delegate Twilley and the courtesy of the Board of Public Works that the State steamer was placed at the disposal of the schools.

DOINGS AT ANNAPOLIS

Gas Monopoly Repeal Bills In House—Baltimore's Representation In Senate. Other Matters.

Most of the time in the House seems to have been taken up this week in the consideration of the repeal of the Gas Bills, which it is claimed gives the Consolidated Gas Company of Baltimore the sole right to manufacture and sell gas or electricity in Baltimore City and County. These bills have had the support of the majority of the House and it is generally believed that they will be repealed. The legislation and the passage of the Public Utility Bill is supposed to have arrayed against it the most powerful lobby ever seen at Annapolis, and if our city contemporaries are to be depended upon, more money and open corruption are being used than has been seen in a number of years. As a matter of fact if the strong and powerful lobby is adopting the means to kill these bills it seems full time for a legislative investigation. The time for open corruption ought to be past in this State. It is a singular thing that while the City is crying aloud for help from the county members of the House of Delegates to protect it from its own members that in the Senate most of the week has been taken up in the fight for increased representation. If the bill giving the City the representation it is asking for was a law now what would be its condition in regard to these very bills it is asking so hard to force through?

One of the greatest and best arguments made against the increase of Baltimore's representation, is the kind of men she sends to represent her in our legislative bodies. Over and over again she has had to call upon the counties for protection and help, and her condition would be pitiable indeed if she were given a big enough representation to control affairs at Annapolis.

Senator Price is making his first big fight on his Representative Bill and is managing it so well as to inspire confidence in him as a leader. Wicomico is justly proud of the record and reputation he is making at Annapolis. While his friends have never doubted his ability as a leader, yet he has unquestionably surprised even them by his masterly handling of the situation at Annapolis. He is rapidly being recognized as one of the big men of his party in the State and a force that hereafter will have to be reckoned with in the councils of his party.

Prize Bull Made Fighting Drunk—Got Lively.

Giving his prize bull a pint of whiskey to cure an attack of pneumonia, Philip Jones, a farmer, nearly caused the death, not only of the bull, but of himself and a hired man.

A jag was a new thing for a bull and the liquor must have done a fighting kind. Anyhow, Taurus went on the rampage and had both the farmer and the hired man down ready to gore them to death when neighbors interfered and saved them.

After that the animal began to tear up things generally in the barnyard, and almost bottled his own brains out before he was corralled.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...
Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL
Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle

Brooklyn Tabernacle, March 8.—Pastor Russell preached twice here today. His discourse on "Inferno" was delivered in Brooklyn's largest Auditorium, the Academy of Music, which was overcrowded. It was estimated in advance that this subject would draw a larger crowd than the Tabernacle would accommodate. The other meetings of the day were held in the Tabernacle. We report Pastor Russell's discourse from the text foregoing, as follows:—

It is difficult to please everybody. The duty of a Christian minister is to seek chiefly to please the Lord. "Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my Redeemer" (Psalm xix, 14). Our ministerial friends seem to be annoyed because we preach the "doctrines" of Christ. In substance, their sentiment is: Brother Russell, do you not know that in the fashionable topics of our day doctrines are tabooed by the great ministers of all denominations? Instead, as you perceive from the newspaper announcements, it is now quite the thing to discuss political, scientific and sociological doctrines. You should give the public lectures on subjects like these: Social Democracy; Rapid Transit in Brooklyn; from the text, "Many shall run to and fro"; Female Suffrage; The Boys' Brigade; The Best Novel of the Year; The Narrow Way of the Bicycle Rider; Will the Comet Sweep the Earth With Its Tail; Can Football Survive, etc.; or occasionally, for effect, gently rake the rich on better housing for the poor, or belabor the Trusts for soaring prices of food. Such topics as these, Brother Russell, interest the Christian public in our day. And the public constitute our principal congregations when we lift our largest collections. The only people who will be interested in the doctrines you are preaching are the old fogey, out-of-date folk, and you will find the majority of them poor in this world's riches. For pity's sake stop teaching the "doctrines of Christ!" Doctrines were good enough in the days of Jesus and Paul and Calvin and Luther and Wesley, but the people are not accustomed to them nowadays.

I have no fault to find with my Christian brethren in the ministry of the various denominations. It is not to me, but to the Lord, that they must give an account of their stewardship of their grand opportunities for declaring the Gospel of Christ. To their own Master they must stand or fall. It is not for me to forbid them because they follow not with us. It is for each one who stands as an ambassador of Christ and of God to follow his own convictions faithfully. Besides, I am assured that many of them are loyal to the core.

It is my understanding that, as a minister of the Gospel, I should take for my guide in this matter the instructions of my ordination. Like St. Paul my ordination to preach the Gospel was from the Lord. I must preach the message which I believe he has given me (1 Timothy ii, 7). As his ambassador I must preach the Word, following the example of the Lord and the Apostles. As they avoided politics, so must I. As they avoided vain philosophy and "science falsely so called," so must I. As they preached the doctrines of Christ, so must I—whether men hear or forbear to hear. I remember the words of St. Paul to Timothy: "Preach the Word..." with all long-suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own preferences they shall gather teachers to themselves: having itching ears they shall turn away from the truth and unto fables" (1 Timothy iv, 2-4).

There is a Reason. There must be a reason why Christian preachers and their hearers have abandoned the study of the "doctrines of Christ" set forth by the Apostles and Prophets. Is it not because they no longer believe those doctrines? Is it not true that the College and Seminary Professors have led the majority of the ministry into unbelief in the Bible, and that these ministers are gradually leading their confiding flocks into other "pastures green" than those which the Good Shepherd and his appointed mouthpieces, the Apostles, approved? Is not the Higher-Criticism infidelity of the colleges gradually penetrating even into the Sunday School Lessons and even into the High Schools of our land—undermining all faith in God's Book? But what led to this departure from the Word of God—into Higher-Criticism infidelity and into the Evolution theory, which makes void the Word of God and into Christian Science, which puts a premium on infidelity and into Theosophy, and "criticism," the doctrine of the alien "disincarnations"? How comes it that all these unscriptural theories now flourish, whereas only a century ago God's Word was respected and its doctrines were studied by Christian people of various and conflicting creeds? The answer is that with the increasing light of our day the creeds of the past are seen to be fallacious, irrational, by all who use their thinking apparatus. The leaders in the various Churches discovered this in advance of their flocks. They promptly and reverently set their creeds on a high shelf where the people might not so particularly notice their flaws, but might continue their reverence for them, until gradually their attention would be drawn aside and their hope and faith transplanted to Evolutionary or Theosophical and Spiritualistic child's play.

With the decline of Christian doctrines, including heart union with Christ and an understanding of its terms and conditions, Churchianity came in, to take the place of Christianity. Today the pride of all denominations centers, not in their doctrines, but in their institutions. The people are no longer exhorted to hold fast to the doctrines of Methodism, Calvinism, etc., but to hold fast to the System. They are no longer encouraged to think of their system as being the only one, outside of which there would be no salvation, but they are encouraged to cultivate a partisan spirit, which takes pride in their organization, its wealth, the value of its church property, the largeness of its collection, the number of its members, the wisdom, learning and ability of its preachers, and the fashion and wealth of its constituency.

It is not our wish to offer a single unkind or unbrotherly criticism. It is our duty and privilege, however, to point out that the creed doctrines of the various denominations, now set on the shelf as too frail and imperfect to stand handling and investigation, are not and never were the doctrines of Christ and the Apostles. It is our duty and pleasure to show forth to the Christian people to the extent of our ability that the teachings of the Bible, the doctrines of Christ, are grand, noble, reasonable, "worthy of all acceptance." To the extent that we succeed in doing this we are bringing back straying Christians from the deceptive bogs of Evolution and Higher-Criticism to the firm foundation, the solid rock of Truth—God's Word.

"The Wounds of a Friend." "Faithful are the wounds of a friend" is the Divine assurance. We cannot, therefore, better show our friendship and Christian love to our brethren than by pulling down from the shelf their revered creeds and allowing them to fall in pieces beyond repair. If every church could be thus induced to pull down its creeds, the present Laodicean stage of the Church would speedily come to its senses, as suggested by our Lord. Then, instead of feeling themselves rich and increased in goods and having need of nothing, our dear Christian brethren of all denominations would realize the meaning of our Lord's words—that Churchianity as a whole today is poor and naked and miserable and wretched and blind (Revelation iii, 14-23). As Christians of all denominations we have cause to rejoice that we have overcome the trundled-bed creeds of the past and that we can no longer wrap ourselves comfortably in the narrow bigotry of error. The Lord caused this to be written in the long-ago through the prophets, saying, "For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it; and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it" (Isaiah xxviii, 20). If in connection with this growth which has come to us and by which we have nobler conceptions than had our forefathers of the rights of man under the Golden Rule, it is a cause for rejoicing. Even though the transition has been accompanied by a great falling away into Higher-Criticism, Infidelity, Evolution, etc., nevertheless these errors are in many respects preferable to the blindness and bigotry. Happy are we, dear friends, if, the eyes of our understanding being opened, our hearts are led to a closer walk with God, a more care, full and prayerful study of his Word, and to a subsequent growth in grace and in the fruits of the holy Spirit.

Do some inquire for clearer specification respecting the features of the creeds put upon the shelf, which we think should be no longer cared for, but allowed to fall? We answer that, of course there are good features in all of our creeds—truths which will never fall. But with these truths are mixed the errors which are, as the Proverb says, "Dead flies (that) cause the ointment to stink" (Ecclesiastes x, 1). There is plenty more of the ointment; it is the stink of the "dead flies" of error that we are concerned with. Those of us who are Arminian in doctrine have much that is precious, but need also to cast away from us the thought that our loving Heavenly Father is merely good-intentioned and lacks the power, the ability, to make his benevolent desires effective towards any except a small handful of humanity. Our Disciple friends should cast aside the thought contained in their teachings that only the water-immersed experience forgiveness of sins and reconciliation to God and salvation from eternal torment. Similarly those of us who are Baptists, while holding to the precious truths which so long have comforted and strengthened us, should insist now on casting away as unscriptural and irrational the thought that has long perplexed us, namely, that no others than the water-immersed could be members of the Church of Christ, heirs of glory, and be saved from damnation. Once we set these absurdities removed, not only from our heads and hearts, but also from our professions, we shall be ready and anxious to have the doctrines of Christ on these subjects. Then we will search the Word and have God's blessing in finding its harmonies. "He that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened" (Matthew vii, 8). But so long as we hold to the fallacies how can we seek or pray for or find the Truth?

The Value of Doctrines.
The word doctrine signifies teaching. The doctrines of Christ, therefore, are the teachings of Christ; the doctrines of men, the teachings of men. What the Church needs today is, to receive into good and honest hearts afresh the doctrines of Jesus and the Apostles—allowing these to displace the doctrines which Christendom holds but discards, and which were formulated in a time of less light than the present. Instead, therefore, of discouraging each other in respect to the study of the doctrines of Christ, we should, as Christians, become more earnest in the study every day, hoping and expecting that in the wonderful light of our time God would be able to make clear to our understanding the harmonious interpretations of his Word. We should study to find the relationship between Election and Free Grace. We should clearly understand what is meant by baptism and what kind of baptism is necessary for our induction into the Body of Christ as members. On every line we should be looking for the harmonies, instead of rejoicing in the errors which have long divided us into hundreds of sects and parties.

However, in some respects sectarian energy is better than federated death. Might we not even say that if all the creeds were dashed to pieces and each Christian stood forth unbacked as a Reformer, a great improvement so far as individual thought, study, and relationship to God would be concerned? In a word, each Christian should have his own creed, his individual faith; and none should do more or less than to assist his mind to a full understanding of the Word of the Lord in respect to every subject.

Doctrines of Men.
All doctrines which cannot show a foundation and full authority in the teaching of Jesus and the Apostles and Prophets, are doctrines of men. The teachings from above come to us through heaven-appointed channels. The Jargon which prevails in Christendom in respect to Christian doctrines proves that they are of human origin. The Scriptures alone furnish to us

The Doctrines of Christ.
Briefly stated they declare, "To us there is one God, the Father, and one Lord, Jesus Christ" (1 Corinthians viii, 6). To us there is one Holy Spirit; to us there is "one Church of the Living God, whose names are written in heaven"; to us there is "one Lord and one faith and one baptism; one God and Father of all" (Ephesians iv, 4-6). However impossible these statements may have appeared during the "dark ages," they are no longer so. The light of Divine Truth is now shining. God has not only put into our possession wonderful Bibles, and wonderful helps for Bible-study, but has also given us the ability to read, to study the Word critically. And he is pleased now to assure us through the prophet that we are living in the time when "the wise shall understand" the "mystery hidden from past ages and dispensations," which could not be understood previously without working an interference with God's eternal purposes.

What, then, dear friends, shall we do? Shall we float on ingloriously, daily, hourly coming closer and closer to the great catastrophe which is awaiting us so many now? Or shall we, called High-Criticism? Or shall we accept God's Helping Hand? The doctrines of Christ, and know the Truth and be made free from the error and be brought into fellowship with our Redeemer on the highest plane? Let us, as the "wise virgins" of our Lord's parable, wake from sleep and trim our lamps, and in the light thereof, see God's wonderful riches of glory as they stand revealed on the threshold of the New Dispensation—the Millennial reign of Christ!

In conclusion, our Lord admonishes us as follows: "I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich, and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eye-salve, that thou mayest see" (Revelation iii, 18).

WOMEN AS WELL AS MEN ARE MADE MISERABLE BY KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE.
Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.
Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.
Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Electric Bitters
Succeed when everything else fails. In nervous prostration and female weaknesses they are the supreme remedy, as thousands have testified. FOR KIDNEY, LIVER AND STOMACH TROUBLE it is the best medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter.

A Reliable Remedy FOR CATARRH
Ely's Cream Balm
Is a quickly absorbed, gives Relief at Once. It cleanses, soothes, heals and protects the diseased membrane resulting from Catarrh and drives away a Cold in the Head quickly. Restores the Senses of Taste and Smell. Full size 50 cts. at Druggists or by mail. Liquid Cream Balm for use in atomizers 75 cts. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

—At Easton, Wednesday, burglars entered the store of Nichols and Bro., on South Washington Street, and rifled the safe, taking a considerable amount of money and a valuable watch and a collection of old and valuable coins owned by Thomas C. Nichols. The store of W. J. Hartnett, on Dover Street, also was entered. Here the money drawer was broken open and a considerable sum of paper money and silver was taken, but the burglars scattered the pennies all over the floor.

One Thousand Hens To Lay For Prizes.

More than 1000 hens from the United States and Europe will meet in an egg-laying contest in Mexico, Mo., next fall if the plans of T. E. Quisenberry, secretary of the Missouri State Poultry Board, are successfully carried out.

The competition will be held at the poultry experiment station which will be built there and constructed under the supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The proposed contest will be conducted along the lines of one held a few years ago in Australia. It will last six months, and is intended to demonstrate the possibilities of a scientifically conducted poultry business.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of food to keep your body in good health. You need a food that is easy to digest. You need a food that gives you strength and energy. You need a food that is pure and wholesome. You need a food that is rich in vitamins and minerals. You need a food that is low in calories and fat. You need a food that is easy on your stomach. You need a food that is good for your heart. You need a food that is good for your brain. You need a food that is good for your nerves. You need a food that is good for your skin. You need a food that is good for your hair. You need a food that is good for your teeth. You need a food that is good for your bones. You need a food that is good for your muscles. You need a food that is good for your blood. You need a food that is good for your circulation. You need a food that is good for your digestion. You need a food that is good for your absorption. You need a food that is good for your elimination. You need a food that is good for your excretion. You need a food that is good for your perspiration. You need a food that is good for your respiration. You need a food that is good for your circulation. You need a food that is good for your absorption. You need a food that is good for your elimination. You need a food that is good for your excretion. You need a food that is good for your perspiration. You need a food that is good for your respiration.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength. You must eat a sufficient amount of food regularly. You must eat a food that is easy to digest. You must eat a food that gives you strength and energy. You must eat a food that is pure and wholesome. You must eat a food that is rich in vitamins and minerals. You must eat a food that is low in calories and fat. You must eat a food that is easy on your stomach. You must eat a food that is good for your heart. You must eat a food that is good for your brain. You must eat a food that is good for your nerves. You must eat a food that is good for your skin. You must eat a food that is good for your hair. You must eat a food that is good for your teeth. You must eat a food that is good for your bones. You must eat a food that is good for your muscles. You must eat a food that is good for your blood. You must eat a food that is good for your circulation. You must eat a food that is good for your digestion. You must eat a food that is good for your absorption. You must eat a food that is good for your elimination. You must eat a food that is good for your excretion. You must eat a food that is good for your perspiration. You must eat a food that is good for your respiration.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach. You must take a food that is easy to digest. You must take a food that gives you strength and energy. You must take a food that is pure and wholesome. You must take a food that is rich in vitamins and minerals. You must take a food that is low in calories and fat. You must take a food that is easy on your stomach. You must take a food that is good for your heart. You must take a food that is good for your brain. You must take a food that is good for your nerves. You must take a food that is good for your skin. You must take a food that is good for your hair. You must take a food that is good for your teeth. You must take a food that is good for your bones. You must take a food that is good for your muscles. You must take a food that is good for your blood. You must take a food that is good for your circulation. You must take a food that is good for your digestion. You must take a food that is good for your absorption. You must take a food that is good for your elimination. You must take a food that is good for your excretion. You must take a food that is good for your perspiration. You must take a food that is good for your respiration.

The proper way to do it is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food. You must eat a food that is easy to digest. You must eat a food that gives you strength and energy. You must eat a food that is pure and wholesome. You must eat a food that is rich in vitamins and minerals. You must eat a food that is low in calories and fat. You must eat a food that is easy on your stomach. You must eat a food that is good for your heart. You must eat a food that is good for your brain. You must eat a food that is good for your nerves. You must eat a food that is good for your skin. You must eat a food that is good for your hair. You must eat a food that is good for your teeth. You must eat a food that is good for your bones. You must eat a food that is good for your muscles. You must eat a food that is good for your blood. You must eat a food that is good for your circulation. You must eat a food that is good for your digestion. You must eat a food that is good for your absorption. You must eat a food that is good for your elimination. You must eat a food that is good for your excretion. You must eat a food that is good for your perspiration. You must eat a food that is good for your respiration.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that. You must eat a food that is easy to digest. You must eat a food that gives you strength and energy. You must eat a food that is pure and wholesome. You must eat a food that is rich in vitamins and minerals. You must eat a food that is low in calories and fat. You must eat a food that is easy on your stomach. You must eat a food that is good for your heart. You must eat a food that is good for your brain. You must eat a food that is good for your nerves. You must eat a food that is good for your skin. You must eat a food that is good for your hair. You must eat a food that is good for your teeth. You must eat a food that is good for your bones. You must eat a food that is good for your muscles. You must eat a food that is good for your blood. You must eat a food that is good for your circulation. You must eat a food that is good for your digestion. You must eat a food that is good for your absorption. You must eat a food that is good for your elimination. You must eat a food that is good for your excretion. You must eat a food that is good for your perspiration. You must eat a food that is good for your respiration.

CHAPTER XXVI. CENTURIES TO FORGET.

"My lord," said Saunders the next day, appearing before his lordship after an agitated hour of preparation. "It's come to a point where something's got to be done." He got that far and then turned quite purple. His collar seemed to be choking him. "If what Mr. Chase says is true, we've got a precious short time to live. Well, we've—we've concluded to get all well out of the time that's left, my lord. So I've come to ask if it will be all right with you and her ladyship, sir. We don't want to do anything that would seem forward and out of place, sir."

"It's very considerate of you, Saunders, but what the devil are you talking about?"

"Miss—Miss Pelham and I have decided to get—er—get married before it's too late."

Deppingham stared hard for a moment and then grinned broadly. "You mean before you die?"

"That's it exactly, my lord. Haw, haw! It would be a bit late, wouldn't it, if we waited till afterward. Haw, haw! Splendid! So I have come to ask if you think it will interfere with your arrangements if—if we should be married tonight?"

"I'm sure, Saunders, that it won't interfere with me in the least," said his lordship. "By all means, Saunders, let it be tonight. See to-morrow we may die."

"Will you kindly speak to her ladyship, sir?"

"Gladly. And I'll take it as an honor if you will permit me to give away the bride."

"Thank you, my lord," cried Saunders, his face beaming. His lordship shook hands with him, whereupon his cup of happiness overflowed, notwithstanding the fact that his honeymoon was likely to be of scarcely any duration whatsoever.

The wedding took place that night in the little chapel. Chase deliberately took possession of the princess after the hollow wedding supper had come to an end. Her mood had changed. Now she was quite at ease with him. The taunting gleam in her eyes pre-empted every moment for his peace of mind.

"I'm inspired," he said to her. "A wedding always inspires me."

"It's very strange that you've never married," she retorted. She was striding freely by his side, confident in her power to resist sentiment with mockery.

"Will you be my wife?" he asked abruptly. She caught her breath before laughing tolerantly and then looked into his eyes with a tantalizing ingenueness.

"By no means," she responded. "I am not oppressed by the same views that actuated Miss Pelham. You see, Mr. Chase, I am quite confident that we are not to die in two weeks."

"I could almost wish that we could die in that time," he said. "How very diabolical!"

"It may seem odd to you, but I'd rather see you dead than married to Prince Karl!" She was silent. He went on. "Would you consent to be my wife if you felt in your heart that we should never leave this island?"

"I think I shall go in, Mr. Chase," she said, with a warning shake of her head.

"Don't, please! I'm not asking you to marry me if you should leave the island. You must give me credit for that," he argued whimsically.

"Ah, I see," she said, apparently very much relieved. "You want me only with the understanding that death should be quite close at hand to relieve you. And if I were to become your wife, here and now, and we should be taken from this dreadful place—what then?"

"You probably would have to go through a long and miserable career as plain Goodwife Chase," he explained.

"If it will make you any happier," she said, with a smile in which there lurked a touch of mischievous triumph. "I can say that I might consent to marry you if I were not so positive that I will leave the island soon. You seem to forget that my uncle's yacht is to call here, even though your cruises will not."

"I'll risk even that," he maintained stoutly. She stopped suddenly, her hand upon his arm.

"Do you really love me?" she demanded earnestly.

"With all my soul, I swear to you," he replied, staggered by the abrupt change in her manner.

"Then don't make it any harder for me," she said. "You know that I could not do what you ask. Please, please be fair with me. I—I can't even just about it. It is too much to ask of me."

She went on, with a strange firmness in her voice. "It would require centuries to make me forget that I am a princess, just as centuries were taken up in creating me what I am. I am no better than you, dear, but—but you understand?" She said so pleadingly, so hopefully, that he understood what it was that she could not say to him. "We seldom, if ever, marry the men whom God has made for us to love."

He lifted her hands to his breast and held them there. "If you will just go on loving me I'll some day make you forget you're a princess." She smiled and shook her head. Her hair gleamed red and bronze in the kindly light; a soft perfume came up to his nostrils.

The next day three of the native servants became violently ill, seized by the most appalling convulsions. At first a thrill of horror ran through the chateau. The plague—the plague in reality! But these fears were quickly dissipated. The sufferers soon began to mend. By midnight they were fairly well recovered. The mysterious seizure, however, was unexplained. Chase alone divined the cause. Poison! He was sure of it! But who the poisoner?

All previous perils and all that the future seemed to promise were forgotten in the startling discovery that came with the fall of night.

Lord Deppingham and Robert Browne were standing in the garden, looking at the moon. They appeared as if swallowed by the earth itself! Neenah, the wife of Selim, was the last of those in the chateau to see the heirs. They crossed the swift torrent by the narrow bridge at the base of the cliff and stopped below the mouth of the cavern which blew its cool breath out upon the hanging garden. Later on she saw them climb the stanch ladder and stand in the black opening, apparently enjoying the cooling wind that came from the damp bowels of the mountain. Her attention was called elsewhere, and that was the last glimpse she had of the two people about whom centered the struggle for untold riches.

"Chase, they are lost in there!" groaned Deppingham, numb with apprehension. He was trembling like a leaf.

"There's just one thing to do," said Chase. "We've got to explore that cavern to the end. They may have lost their bearings and strayed off into one of the lateral passages."

"I—I can't bear the thought of her wandering about in that horrible place," Deppingham cried as he started resolutely toward the ladder. "She'll come out of it all right," said Chase, a sudden compassion in his eyes.

Drusilla Browne was standing near by, cold and silent with dread, a set expression in her eyes. Her lips moved slowly, and Deppingham heard the bitter words: "You will find them, Lord Deppingham. You will find them!"

He stopped and passed his hand over his eyes. Then, without a word, he snatched a rifle from the hands of one of the patrol and led the way up the ladder. Chase turned to the white-faced princess and said between his teeth:

"If Skaggs and Wyckholme had been in the employ of the devil himself they could not have foreseen the result of their infernal plotting. I am afraid—mortally afraid!"

"Take care of him, Hollingsworth," she whispered shuddering. "Goodbye, Geneva, my princess," said Chase softly and then was off with Britt and Selim. As he passed Drusilla he seized her hand and paused long enough to say:

"It's all right, little woman, take my word for it. If I were you, I'd cry. You'll see things differently through your tears."

The four men, with their lights, vanished from sight a few moments later. Chase grasped Deppingham's arm and held him back, gravely suggesting that Selim should lead the way.

They were to learn the truth almost before they had fairly begun their investigations.

The heirs already were in the hands of their enemies, the Islanders! The eager searchers, shouting as they went, had come to what was known as the "cathedral." This was a wide, lofty chamber, hung with dripping stalactites, far below the level at which they began the descent. The floor was almost as flat and even as that of a modern dwelling. Here the cavern branched off in three or

"Von Blitz's powder kept all this. Four directions, like the tentacles of a monster devilfish, the narrow passages leading no one knew whither in that tomblike mountain."

A current of air swept up into their faces. The soft, loose earth about the rent in the floor was covered with the prints of naked feet; the bottom of the hole was packed down in places by a multitude of tracks. Chase's bewildered eyes were the first to discover the presence of loose, scattered masonry in the pile below, and the truth dawned upon him sharply. He gave a loud exclamation and then dropped lightly into the shallow hole.

"I've got it!" he shouted, stooping to peer intently ahead. "Von Blitz's powder kept all this. The secret lies, so hopefully, that he understood what it was that she could not say to him. 'We seldom, if ever, marry the men whom God has made for us to love.'"

He lifted her hands to his breast and held them there. "If you will just go on loving me I'll some day make you forget you're a princess." She smiled and shook her head. Her hair gleamed red and bronze in the kindly light; a soft perfume came up to his nostrils.

"My God, Chase!" cried Deppingham, staggering toward the opening. "These footprints are—they've murdered her! They've come in here and surprised—"

"Go easy, old man! We need to be cool now. It's all as plain as day to me. Rasoul and his men were exploring the caverns after the discovery of the treasure chests. They came upon this new made hole and then crawled into the cavern. They surprised Browne and— Yes, here are the prints of a woman's shoe—and a man's too. They are gone. God help 'em!"

Signs of a fierce struggle were found near the entrance to the "cathedral." Bobby Browne had made, a gallant fight. Blood stains marked the smooth floor and walls, and there was evidence that a body had been dragged across the chamber.

Britt put his hand over his eyes and shuddered. "They've settled this pest-chase, Chase, forever!" he groaned.

FOR SCHOOL WEAR

SEASON'S STYLES FOR MISSES SHOW GOOD SENSE.

Smart and Modish Effects May Be Done at Home with Practical Models as Guides—Loose Coats Again.

The gowns which are beginning to show themselves for autumn and winter wear for girls of high school and college age are stamped pleasingly with good sense. There are no exaggerations of cut or material to take away from the youthful simplicity required for maiden garments, and here and there one sees the lines of many a foregoing season reproduced.

The normal waist line is definitely with us once more, and so is the plaited skirt with plain front panel, which has long proven its usefulness and grace for walking purposes. Then there is the ancient coat sleeve which goes into the armhole with the barest suspicion of top gathering, and the skirt band that, after overskirts and before them, divided the jupe in two pieces. The semiprincess effects with jersey-like upper portion and plaited bottoms that these gowns display, are widely approved and exceedingly becoming to slight young figures.

There are hints that the waistband will get tighter, but so comfortably loose are gowns still at this point that one need not fear a swift return to the old wasp waist, which emphasized the size of the hips and was always unsuitable for young girls. Dresses cut all-in-one for misses sometimes show almost a wrapper looseness, these giving an added sweetness to rounded young bodies, and showing off the simplest band trimmings.

Misses' coats follow to a great extent the same looseness, may an odd garment, or the top jacket that goes with a jumper frock, revealing almost the same cut as the brother's top coat.

It is vain to hope that the adult feminine of ultra smart taste will be guided by reason in choosing her autumn or winter hat; but let us devoutly pray that the mothers of daughters who have not reached their full growth will exercise some of their own wisdom in the matter of buying the headpiece.

Reasonableness from every point governs the frock shown in the illustration, which would make an excellent classroom dress if a good, wiry serge turned out the skirt, and a pretty flannel, introducing the skirt color, formed the waist. Both pieces are in the newest designs for such garments, and both are too simple to present any terrors to the home sewer of even average gifts.

Schoolgirl sweaters of genuine splendor are in red, pale blue, white and light gray, as usual, but the bottom line has descended until at times it almost comes to the knees. Classroom aprons that are altogether girlish and charming are sometimes made of black tulle silk with a narrow edge of gaily-colored ribbon. The same ribbons, running through the beadings, form the belt and strings of these deliciously feminine skirt protectors.

The Short Redingote.

Evidently women quite liked the fashion of the transparent, half-length redingote that was brought out in June, for they are making it quite a feature of the midseason costumes.

It is often in the same color as the gown, but of a different tone. Violet will be worn over a princess frock of purple; jade and linden green will be mixed; turquoise and deeper blue will be combined.

Black ones are quite smart over checked white and black frocks. White ones are attractive slipped over gowns of grass green, lobster red, or turquoise blue.

The fabric is invariably of chiffon cloth or mousseline de soie. It has no lining and is plaited or tucked.

A few of them are worn like the long Russian jacket, with a loose girle dle around the waist of soft, unboned silk.

The Wisdom of Betty

ES, there are many charming girls here this summer and there is one very wise one," said the observant spinster at the resort hotel.

"Wisdom isn't an indispensable quality in a summer girl, is it?" asked the happily married woman.

"Oh, but there are various kinds of wisdom," laughed the observant spinster, "and Betty Fosbery has the kind that is different."

"Then it is pure waste," said the happily married woman, "for she is so very pretty."

"That is just it," answered the observant spinster. "Betty's prettiness is only one manifestation of her wisdom."

"The other girls are tanned and freckled and sunburned; Betty's face, and arms, while not extraordinarily pink and white in themselves, seem delicate in comparison. The other girls are running wildly from one thing to another all day; Betty hasn't touched a golf stick nor a tennis racket since she has been here. When she goes boating, some young man, not Betty, handles the oars. So she never looks tired or pulled to pieces."

"But," protested the happily married woman, "what is the good of going to a summer resort if you don't do anything but sit around?"

The observant spinster laughed. "You, who first met your husband on this very porch, ought to know better than to ask that question," she said.

"You know, and so does every woman, what summer resorts are for. Still, it is only now and then a Betty Fosbery who acts with any wisdom."

"You see," went on the observant spinster, "Betty decided that she would be the most popular girl here this summer and she is accomplishing that laudable ambition. Now, Betty has no special endowments above other girls—except the strange wisdom which is hers. At the beginning of the season Betty sat down, I have no doubt, and considered her assets."

"She acknowledged to herself that she had no speciality which could make her stand out pre-eminent above the other girls. She could play golf, of course, but not so well as Clara Barnes. She could play tennis, but she never could hope to win a set if Bertha Gates were on the other side of the net. She could swim, but she could not plunge for distance as Dorothy Tyler could. Then it was that her wisdom stood her in good stead. It whispered to her: 'Do not let yourself be always in second place. Hold yourself aloof from everything.' She has rigidly obeyed that command."

"Betty never arises until it is late. Then she has her breakfast in her room, and idles away the morning reading or lying in a hammock under the trees. In the afternoon she has a nap before it is time to bathe and dress for dinner. When the other girls, dusty and disheveled, come up on the porch, it is to see a crisp, cool Betty looking the picture of comfort."

"If only the girls saw her it wouldn't matter so much; but the men see her, too. It is all right to have a companion to tramp across the links with you in the broiling sun, but it is better to have some one in a dainty gown waiting on the porch to greet you when you come home. So many a girl who goes in for sport is learning something of the peritidy of man when she leads her partner of the day up on this porch, only to have him play the cavalier to Betty all evening."

"Naturally Betty is attractive in the evening. She can wear evening gowns without fear that her arms and neck will show three or four different shades of tan; she can dance all night without being tired, while the girl who has tramped about in heavy shoes all day is tired at the start."

"But even if the other girls are tanned and freckled," said the happily married woman, "I should think they might win out over Betty by the old rule of possession being nine points of the law; for they are with the men so much more."

"This from a married woman!" exclaimed the observant spinster. "Don't you know that the one infallible piece of wisdom in Betty's philosophy has nothing to do with sunburn or freckles or dusty clothes, but goes beyond all such things? She knows that to hold one's self apart as something rare is the first principle of the girl who would attract. She doesn't let herself become an old story."

"You ought to be married, yourself," conceded the happily married woman. "But I'm afraid you never will be, for you know too much. Betty Fosbery may be just wise enough, but everything can be carried too far, can't it—even wisdom?" — Chicago Daily News.

So Souful.

"What has become of that souful girl you used to rave so much about?"

"This is a world of disillusionments."

"How now?"

"The last time I called she was eating Hamburger cheese." — Louisville Courier-Journal.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD Bulletin.
DREADNAUGHT CARS.

The nab of railroading is first-class equipment and reliable service. The Pennsylvania Railroad provides this for the public. For many months big all-steel coaches, built like Dreadnaughts, have been operated on all through trains. Their easy-riding qualities and steadiness of motion have been widely praised. The all-steel dining cars too have distinct advantages over the wooden ones. They are stronger and steadier, and the act of eating is made more enjoyable by the smoother movement.

There are also some steel Pullman Cars—Combined Parlor-Smokers and Baggage—in the service now. Travelers like them. They have plenty of elbow room and they glide over the rails. The Sleeping Cars are coming. Some four hundred parlor and sleeping cars will be in use by Summer.

These steel coaches and cars are the strongest vehicles ever built for passenger transportation. They are fire proof, break proof and bend proof. They represent the climax of safety and the perfection of comfort in railroad travel.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has always been the leader in all manner of improved equipment as well as in all methods of making their patrons more comfortable. This is why it is known and honored as The Standard Railroad of America.

THE GOOD ROAD SWEEP

Going Over The United States—Demand Growing Fast For Improved Highways.

Never before in the history of the United States, perhaps not in the world, has there been such widespread interest and practical activity for good roads as is the case today. The good roads conventions that have been held during the past year have been remarkable, not only in numbers, but in the results accomplished. In the South the sentiment of the improved highways has crystallized into definite action, in most cases being led by the Governors and leading State officials.
Many miles of new roads are now about to be built, hundreds of miles are already under improvement and substantial appropriations have been voted by scores of counties and townships.

Many Conventions Held.

Conventions have been held in Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Virginia, Arkansas, North Carolina, and Georgia; on the Pacific coast, Seattle had the first conference of road builders, the American Road Masters' Association held its sixth annual convention in Columbus; Cleveland was the scene of the second annual National Good Roads Convention, which, organized the previous year by the American Automobile Association in a big convention in Buffalo, is now ably supported by the National Grange, United States Office of Public Roads, farmers' clubs of the country and every other body actively at work in the good roads propaganda. It has been a year of good roads conventions, and the meetings already planned for the coming year indicate that the good roads agitation will reach a higher standard of efficiency in 1910 than ever before.

Motor Plays Big Part.

The much-maligned automobile has played an important part in this great movement for serviceable highways.
Once regarded as the enemy of roads, and in some measure of mankind, the benefits of the motor vehicle are now acknowledged as of inestimable value.
If the automobile aroused discussion and criticism by destroying the roads considered good enough for the last generation, it is now widely recognized as the forerunner of better roads.
It has forced the road-builders and engineers to deal with new problems, the old system of high-class construction has been revolutionized and methods of proper maintenance are being studied with more care.

George O. Dield, chairman of the Good Roads Board of the American Automobile Association, spoke very truly when he said at one of the recent conventions:

"A great deal has been said about automobiles ruining the roads. Automobiles do disintegrate the water-bound road. But the interesting fact is that automobiles have come to stay.
It is only a question of time when the automobile will be used in hauling farm products. Then when we have arrived at the question of proper road construction, we can say that the automobile not only solves the problem of rapid travel but has also solved the problem of road maintenance."

Farmer Is Interested.

As a contrast to the automobilist's point of view it is interesting to see the farmer's attitude of the present day. The time was, and not so very long ago, when the farmer and the motorist were supposed to be at cross purposes, and to a large extent they were. But that is now ancient history.
T. O. Laylin, master of the Ohio State Grange, voiced very forcibly the agriculturist's point of view on this question at the A. A. A. convention in Cleveland by saying:

"Although the question of road improvement is of direct interest to the residents of our towns and cities, it is and always must be one of prime importance to the farmers. By far the greater mileage of our roads is located in the farming districts and the chief use of these roads is by the farmers in getting their products to market and for special intercourse with their neighbors. While we join with our friends, the owners of automobiles, in the discussion of plans for advancing the good roads movement, we of the Ohio State Grange believe that in-spite of all that is said or done this will remain a farmers' question, and to be settled rightly must be settled in accordance with the wishes of the farmers."

United States Has Big System.

In mileage the United States has the greatest system of roads which any country has possessed since the world began. According to a careful road census the length of all our roads amounts to 2,185,000 miles. The annual expenditure on these roads is approximately $90,000,000 a year. Road administration has been placed on a practical basis in about half the States of the Union, comprising the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas, California and Washington. These have adopted in principle or practice the system of centralizing under a State highway department the road work of the State, thereby securing uniformity in methods, economy in administration and skill in supervision.

BIG MILL FIRE

E. S. Adkins Company Suffers Loss At Their No. 2 Plant.

One of the largest fires in Salisbury for some time took place on Thursday when the large lumber plant of E. S. Adkins & Co., partly burned down. This fire seems to have originated in the shavings room and from there quickly spread to their large No. 2 mill, and from here despite the hard work of the firemen and the large force of employees, it looked as though it would make a clean sweep of the entire plant. Owing however to the direction of the wind the fire was kept away from the main plants of the mill. A large quantity of lumber around No. 2 was burned. The wind carried the blaze for the most part across the N. Y. P. & N. R. R. and for a time it looked as though the residences on the other side were doomed as well as several large plants in the vicinity. The plants of O. R. Disharoon Co., were in danger several times and a large quantity of machinery was moved out under orders of the firm. Traffic on the railroad was tied up for some time. It is said that one freight train which ran the gauntlet of fire at its height was instrumental in saving the building across the railroad, as the men fighting the fire were about exhausted and being driven back by the hot fire when the long freight interposing screened them from the fierce heat and allowed them to continue the fight. The loss of the firm of E. S. Adkins Co., is estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000 with insurance of about $10,000.

ANNUAL WILMINGTON

Conference in Session At Asbury Church, This City—Large Number Of Ministers Represented.

Salisbury is thronged this week with the members of the Methodist Episcopal Conference, Wilmington District, which is holding its sessions here. More than two hundred of the prominent ministers and lay delegates of Delaware, the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia, together with a large number of visitors are attending this conference, which is being presided over by Bishop John W. Hamilton. The visitors commenced to arrive on Monday and have been coming in all the week. The examinations were held in the lecture room of the Presbyterian Church on Monday afternoon, when quite a number of candidates presented themselves for examination.

The Evangelical Institute was held in the Asbury Church on Tuesday afternoon; in the evening Rev. Dr. C. E. MacNichol delivered the missionary sermon.

The conference session opened on Wednesday with Bishop Hamilton presiding, when an organization was effected. In the evening Bishop Hamilton delivered one of his famous lectures "Some Persons of Quality in Boston." This lecture was a decided success and was enjoyed by all. Bishop Hamilton's wit enlivened the lecture throughout, and personal recollections of persons famous in literature made the lecture one of the most entertaining which has been given here for some time.

The conference got down to business quickly and elected W. A. Wise secretary, with Revs. W. R. Mowbray, T. E. Pool and W. E. Greenfield as assistants; H. G. Budd, treasurer, with Revs. J. M. Arters, J. W. Prettyman, G. O. Williams, T. R. Vandye, V. E. Hills, J. T. Richardson, E. D. Taylor, O. T. Jones, J. K. Easley and O. E. Jones as assistants; H. A. G. Westfield as statistical secretary, with J. H. Geoghegan, J. L. Johnson, Milton McCann, H. B. Kelso, W. E. Geuby, A. W. Gordan, G. R. Ellis, G. S. Thomas, J. R. Bickings, W. H. Briggs, O. P. Keen, J. M. Kelso, J. S. Whittaker and O. E. Jones as assistants.

It was decided to hold an executive conference on Friday after the regular conference session too consider the matter of character and memorial services. A draft of $200 was received from the connection fund and added to the fund for assistance of needy ministers. This is a dividend on the money of the conference in the fund. Dr. George E. Reed, president of Dickinson College, made an address on the educational side of the church.

Dr. J. D. Martin, of the Methodist Hospital, Philadelphia, spoke on the success of the hospital. Dr. L. T. Wideman, agent for the Maryland Bible Society; Dr. Franklin Hamilton, brother of the Bishop and chancellor of the American University, and Dr. S. Krantz, of the Methodist Book Concern, also gave short addresses and reports.

There was considerable excitement over the report that Wilbur F. Corkran, pastor of Union Church, Wilmington, was to be appointed district superintendent to succeed Dr. Mowbray, of Wilmington district. Corkran was suspended by the conference two years ago for one year on account of gambling in the stock market. Some of the ministers stated that Corkran was the candidate of the "administration," but declined to state who constituted the administration.

Rev. W. T. Lewis was transferred from the Wilmington Conference to the Wyoming Conference; Rev. T. H. Jones to the New York Conference; Rev. J. W. Easley from the Kentucky Conference to the Wilmington Conference; Rev. J. A. Cook from the New York Conference and H. F. Jester from the Wyoming (Pa.) Conference to the Wilmington Conference.

Urge Local Option Bill.

On Thursday the Conference took up the Local Option Bill recently introduced in the Senate by Senator Dodson, and on motion of John M. Arters, Superintendent of the Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Anti-Saloon League the following message was authorized by the Conference, addressed to Senator Chas. P. Condy:—

"Wilmington Methodist Episcopal Conference in session here, representing every Methodist Episcopal Church on the Eastern Shore, urgently requests a speedy and favorable report of the amended State-wide local option bill now before your Temperance Committee."

The same telegram was sent to President Gorman, changed to "speedy and favorable consideration" and "now before the House."

Appointments Made.

Rev. Adam Stangle's relations to conference were changed from active to supernumerary.

Rev. W. H. B. Williams' relations were changed from active to supernumerary.

Farmers Getting All They Want of Government Seeds For Experiment Purposes.

Farmers on the Eastern Shore will not lack Government seed this year. The rural route carriers have been earning their salaries for the last month in hauling over the country roads packages of corn, tomatoes, carrots, lettuce, radishes, and so on down the lines of vegetables, and stuffing mail boxes full of franked parcels.

Not only have the Eastern Shore farmers been fortunate in having seed served them by mail, but the supply seems to be limitless, and office-holders in every county have been made secondary distributors, and notices are being printed in the county newspapers that any person desiring Government seed "for experiment purposes," may be cheerfully and liberally supplied with the same by calling on the designated office-holders in the various counties.

Radishes with a tendency to strike out for China, and watermelons that prove to be pumpkins, and such like freaks of the vegetable world, promise to be plentiful this summer, in the counties east of the bay.

Musical At Hebron.

Miss Ola Bidwell, a noted and versatile entertainer, will give a recital at Hebron Hall, Saturday night, March 26th. The program will consist of humorous, pathetic and dramatic readings, pleasing violin solos, and vocal solos. The entertainment will be held under the auspices of the Hebron School.

Concern to the conference for investments was reported to be $172.

C. N. Jones was elected solicitor for the "Peninsula Methodist."

The managers of the Conference Educational Society were elected as follows: Revs. V. S. Collins and F. F. Carpenter and Laymen A. B. Mayer and James B. Tawes.

Rev. Alfred Scott withdrew from the ministry and turned in his parsonage.

Battle Over Superintendents.

The real battle will be the appointment of the district superintendents for Wilmington and Dover districts to succeed Drs. Mowbray and Morgan. The report that Wilbur F. Corkran is slated for the Wilmington district superintendency is still circulated, but the prevailing opinion seems to be that Dr. C. A. Hill will receive the appointment. Next to Dr. Hill, Rev. C. T. Wyatt, of the Harrison Street Church, Wilmington, is mentioned as a strong probability. Robert Watt, of Smyrna, G. T. Anderson, of Newark, and H. C. Turner, of Wilmington, are the other candidates.

The general prediction is that E. L. Hufferaker, of Dover, will be the selection for the appointment in the Dover district. Z. H. Webster, of Asbury Church, Wilmington, is a strong candidate however, but there is some hesitancy about taking him from Asbury Church after only one year's work.

Saturday will be a busy day, if the present plans are carried out, as that is the day selected for the temperance reports and actions. John M. Arters, field secretary, will make a lengthy report.

It now seems that there will be a few changes among the churches of Wilmington. C. T. Wyatt, it is said, will undoubtedly be changed from the Harrison Street Church, as he has made such a request. It is also rumored that Dr. Martindale, pastor of the Asbury Church, this city, where conference is being held, will go to Dover. Dr. Martindale has been here eight years, having had a term of presiding elder, between the two terms of four years each.

Two suffrage amendments are pending before the Legislature. One was offered by Mr. Henderson, of Montgomery County, and the other by Senator Price, of Wicomico County. The Price amendment appears to be more popular with the Democrats. It is modeled after the Strass amendment, which was defeated last November, except the educational qualification is omitted.

SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT

Again To Be Submitted To The People Of Maryland. To Rid The State Of Negro Voters.

Some of the leading Democrats who are interested in the elimination of the negro as a political factor in Maryland, such as William L. Marbury, Arthur W. Machen and J. Harry Covington were in Annapolis Thursday to talk with members of the Legislature concerning the proposition of submitting another suffrage amendment to the people.

Notwithstanding the defeat of the two former amendments, Mr. Marbury and those who think with him are convinced that if the plain proposition of white, and only white, suffrage, stripped of all educational and property qualifications and of everything else that may tend to confuse or belond the issue, is submitted it will be approved. Their plan is to submit boldly an amendment of this sort and ask the people of Maryland to vote solely upon the question: "Shall or shall not the negro be entitled to vote in Maryland?"

If such an amendment should be adopted, it might mean the testing of the validity of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution in the Supreme Court, and this is what is desired. Mr. Marbury and Mr. Machen are firmly of the opinion that the amendment is made that even if the Supreme Court should decide that it is valid nothing will have been lost, and there is no danger to the Southern States in bringing the question fairly before the court and having it decided.

Those who are interested in the plan are not ready to divulge the details of the amendment they propose to urge, but it is understood it will be brought up in Democratic caucus.

In the late campaign Governor Crothers and Mr. Marbury led the fight for the adoption of the amendment and did the bulk of the speaking for it. It is believed by those who are urging the new plan that the Governor will be in accord with it and it has been talked over with him. A condition of the submission of the new amendment apparently conceded by all of those interested is the fulfillment of the party promises by this Legislature. Unless these party pledges are carried out in a way to satisfy the people the submission of another amendment will be futile.

Those with whom Mr. Marbury, Mr. Machen and Mr. Covington conferred tonight on this matter included Senators Lee, Harper, Frere, Delegates J. Mitchell Digges and others. They also called upon the Governor.

Chairman Murray Vandiver announced to Thursday that the Democratic members of the Legislature would hold a caucus next Tuesday night in the House of Delegates Chamber on the question of submitting another suffrage amendment to the voters of the State. The petition for the caucus which was circulated by Senator Frere and Delegate Digges both of Charles county, was signed by every Democratic Senator and Delegate and was presented to Senator Lee, of Montgomery county who will act as chairman of the caucus. Senator Lee turned it over to General Vandiver, who as the chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee is required to issue the call.

It is believed that the Democrats will decide to submit another amendment to the voters at the general election in November, 1911. The Democratic members from the counties in which the negro vote is heavy are demanding that the fight for the elimination of the illiterate negro from the politics of the State should be fought, despite the fact that the question has been defeated twice.

Two suffrage amendments are pending before the Legislature. One was offered by Mr. Henderson, of Montgomery County, and the other by Senator Price, of Wicomico County. The Price amendment appears to be more popular with the Democrats. It is modeled after the Strass amendment, which was defeated last November, except the educational qualification is omitted.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

CHARLES T.
RUSSELL,
Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Choose Ye This Day Between Truth and Error.

"Choose Ye This Day Whom Ye Will Serve... If Jehovah Be God, Serve Him" (Joshua xxv, 15).

Washington, D. C., March 13.—Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, New York, preached here twice today to splendid audiences. One of his discourses was entitled, "The Overthrow of Satan's Empire." We report the other one from the text above quoted. Pastor Russell said:—

As Christians in the light of this wonderful Twentieth Century we stand at the parting of the ways and must decide for right or for wrong, for truth or for falsehood, in respect to our religious convictions. Without questioning the sincerity of our fathers, we all object to their theology. It is in vain that ministers and Bible class teachers longer deny the facts of the case. Nor will intelligent and honest people agree that it is right that through their creeds they should profess one thing, and in their lives and general conversation they should ignore or absolutely deny the teachings of those creeds. Yet this is the position of practically all the thinking people of Christendom. Their consciences will not stand for this much longer. If they refrain from telling the Truth and taking their stand for it, they will not only bear their consciences (1 Timothy iv, 2) and correspondingly separate themselves from God's favor, but additionally bring upon them the disapproval and contempt of all honest people. For although the masses are not yet aroused on the subject, they are rapidly getting awake.

Do you wish me to illustrate what I mean? Do you wish me to show in what respect all denominations are ashamed of their creeds and anxious to hide the fact that they ever professed them or were anxious to give them some new interpretation more consistent with the broader thought and more generous sentiment common to civilized man in this Twentieth Century? I will do it.

Our Methodist friends are ashamed of that feature of their creed which declares that the Almighty is now doing everything that Divine Wisdom and Power can accomplish on behalf of our poor race to bring all to a full knowledge of Christ and to opportunity of faith and obedience. They realize that there is a weakness in this argument. And when they profess that God must work through means, and hence that the responsibility lies at the door of Christian believers to carry the Gospel to the heathen, they realize that this is an illogical argument too. For why should our Great Creator send to eternal torment millions of his creatures, because of an insufficiency of zeal on the part of some of their more enlightened and low-creatures? Acknowledging the inconsistency of such a theory our good Methodist brethren tell us that they hope that God has some other way of saving the ignorant of heathen lands and, perhaps, of civilized lands.

We appreciate the loving heart which prompts this answer and we agree that it is true—that God has another way for them. But when we attempt to point out what that other way is, some of these dear friends inquire, "Is it Methodism?" Did John Wesley preach it? Our answer is, No. Brother Wesley did not preach it and did not know of it. Not because it is new, but because it is so very old and was lost sight of during the "dark ages" for fifteen centuries before Brother Wesley was born. He was feeling after it, yearning for it, hungering and thirsting for it, but the "due time" for it to be made known to God's people had not yet come. He preached the eternal torture of all mankind, except the sanctified few, for ever and ever. But in his preaching of the love of God he was used of the Almighty to wondrously prepare the hearts of Christendom for the broader message of the Bible now due to be seen and understood. Wesley's Gospel of the love of God has mellowed the heart of Christendom, which once was frigid, under the cold teachings of Foreordination, Predestination, etc., of the Westminster Confession of Faith—once the basis of nearly all Protestant Communions.

If we and our Methodist brethren could maintain the same degree of spiritual warmth that Wesley and their forefathers enjoyed we might do without further instruction. But we cannot do this! None can stand still! Christians today are losing their holiness, their sanctification—their zeal for God is giving place to zeal for a sect.

The light of the Millennial morning which for a century has been gradually breaking upon the world, stimulating thought in every direction, makes it necessary for our Methodist brethren, as well as for us all, to awaken to the wonderful privileges of our day for Bible study: to ascertain the real teachings of God's Word, which, in the dark past we all seemingly misunderstood and misrepresented. Already the most intelligent one-fourth of Methodism not only rejects Brother Wesley's theory, but also, repudiates the Bible itself. It accepts instead of Salvation that most dangerous form of infidelity known as Higher Criticism and that most un-Scriptural proposition of human Evolution, which denies the fall of our race and makes void Christ's redemptive work and the glorious result thereof—human restitution (Acts iii, 19-23).

Bury the Dead Past. God forbid that we should bury any of the doctrines of Christ and his twelve apostles! On the contrary let us strive to resurrect those from the rubbish of human traditions which eighteen centuries have piled upon them. Let us instead bury our man-made creeds, of which we are all ashamed. Our Presbyterian friends some years ago set a noble example to all Christendom in the burial of their Confession of Faith and their substitution instead of a much simpler and much more rational statement.

But, No, I must correct myself here. Did not do it. Instead of burying the old creed, not only from sight, but also from odor, they have merely covered the corpse which is admitted to be dead and placed the briefer and better Confession atop the winding-sheet. They assuredly declare that it is not a substitute but merely a representative statement. Hence every time we read the re-statement, we must hold our noses to avoid contamination from the odors of the carcass beneath. Not all must do this, for, as the Apostles taught, all have not their senses exercised to discern, but all intelligent Presbyterians are being rapidly driven not only away from Calvinism but, alas, away from the Bible also, because of their erroneous supposition that the teaching of Calvin and the teachings of the Bible are one and the same.

These bright minds are not merely lost to the Christian forces. They become active agents in the promulgation of anti-Biblical teachings. They are engaged in pulling down the Bible and substituting for its teachings Darwin's Evolution theory. These sincere men are to be found in the faculties of all of the Colleges, in the highest pulpits throughout the land and in the most prominent positions in business and social life. Their loss of faith in the Bible has not made them murderers or thieves. Their noble inheritance from the past preserves to them an uprightness of character which the loss of a fear of hell-torment has not undermined. While they are no longer Christians from the Bible standpoint, no longer believers in Jesus as a Redeemer—they are still believers in Jesus as a great Teacher and a noble leader of men. They fail to discern the fact that if he posed as the lawgiver of God and the Redeemer of men, and was not such, instead of being a noble example, his life and teachings were most stupendous frauds and deceptions.

Baptists and Disciples Awakening. When we say that this awakening is also reaching our Baptist and our Disciple brethren, let it not be understood to mean that all of these have been asleep until now. Perhaps it would have been better for them if some who have gotten awake during the past thirty years had slumbered longer. These long awake have principally gone off into Darwinism and Higher Criticism. Baptist and Disciple schools and Colleges and Theological Seminaries, like those of other denominations, are manned with the brightest minds of the denominations, and all with one accord teaching Higher Criticism, infidelity and Darwinian Evolution. With one accord all are engaged in overthrowing the Christian Faith of the rising generation. They are doing this intelligently, wisely, courageously, but most with evil intent. Having gotten awake to the inconsistencies of their creeds these scholars, concluding that the creeds truthfully represented the Bible, abandoned faith in the Scriptures to the same degree that they have abandoned faith in the creeds which their intellects have repudiated. Now they are seeking to gradually help Christian people of all denominations to what they consider the higher plane of Truth. What they have—almost anything in fact—better than the word of God, they have repudiated. They are working hard and succeeding well in introducing their faith-destroying theory into the minds of the rising generation through the school books. From these they not only have eliminated everything sympathetic with Bible faith, but in the stead have introduced the subversive doctrine of Evolution.

As for the rank and file of Baptists and Disciples, probably three-fourths of them still hold vaguely and indeliberately to the Bible and their Confession of Faith though both of these denominations in their inconsistency of mind think that they have no creeds—that they take the Bible only. As these dear friends awaken to the inconsistencies of their Confession and teachings they are in great danger of following their leaders into a repudiation of everything pertaining to the past—into Higher Criticism—infidelity and Darwinism.

"Choose Ye This Day Whom Ye Will Serve."

Joshua's words to the Israelites, after they had come into Canaan, were, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." It is a trying position and that it was their duty to decide promptly and thoroughly which course they would take. So we may see today that Christians of all denominations are in a trying position and that a prompt decision to stand by God and the Bible is the necessary thing for those who would be delivered from the darkness of the past and avoid falling into the Adversary's great deception of the present—into which their leaders are guiding them. Unless they heed speedily, the blind leading the blind will fall into the ditch of Darwinism and the mire of Higher Criticism. There are not many ways to escape this threatening calamity! There is only one way—the Bible way. Many Baptist and Disciple ministers are becoming awake to the inconsistencies of their positions and drifting without foreknowledge of where their course will end. For instance, I have before me the words of the Rev. Dr. Mac Donald of our own city, Brooklyn, on February 27th. This gentleman speaks of the Baptist Confession of Faith as "these swaddling clothes of an ancient dogmatism." And respecting the Baptist doctrine which recognizes only immersed persons as members of the Church of Christ and heirs of salvation, he says, "Henceforth it can be regarded as an dead as the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, and as worthy of burial." The gentleman rejoiced that recently a Baptist minister had been ordained to the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church of Brooklyn who affirmed in advance that he would invite all to communion and Church membership who loved the Lord Jesus. He urged that "associate members" should be received into Baptist communions "without imposing baptism upon them."

This courageous brother fails to see wherein the course he advocates is illogical. What he needs to see is the real teaching of the Bible on the subject of Baptism—that it is baptism into Christ's death, and thus into the real Church of Christ—not the Baptist Church, nor any other human organization, but the Church of God—"The Church of the firstborn," whose names are written in heaven. That roll contains the names of all the saintly, faithful, consecrated believers in the Redeemer—of all denominations and outside of all denominations.

"Sanctify Them Through Thy Truth." It is not sufficient that we get rid of the errors and superstitions of the past. We must supplant those with the Truth, that "Ye may be able to withstand in this evil day" (Ephesians vi, 13). It alone will constitute the armor of God. Christian people hold most precious Truth, but hold it in so illogical and confused a manner that it fails to give them the needed strength. God permitted us to come to this very hour and has permitted the present tests for the purpose of developing the characters of the "Israelites indeed, in whom is no guile," and for the purpose of gathering out from them all the tares, all the chaff, and all not at heart copies of his dear Son. Let me now briefly summarize the errors of our creeds and briefly indicate the Bible remedy.

None of our Creeds were too strict in defining the saintliness of the Church class, invited to become the Bride of Christ and his Joint-heirs in his Kingdom. On the contrary, in many respects they were too loose—they were not nearly up to the standard of the Master's word. "If any man will be my disciple, let him take up his cross and follow me." "Strait is the gate and narrow the way which leadeth unto life; and few there be that find it" (Matthew vii, 14). Jesus taught that his followers must drink of his cup of suffering and be baptized into his death—and not merely into water. Our too-low standards have admitted to membership in all denominations millions who are far below the Master's standards.

Our error and deception was the supposition that all who are not saints, all who would not become the Bride of Christ, all who are not baptized into his death, all who do not drink of his cup of ignominy will be eternally tortured. This great mistake common to all Protestants (and in the much modified form of Purgatory shared also by Catholics) must be displaced by the Bible teaching that as soon as the elect Church shall be completed and glorified the antitypical Year of Jubilee will begin; that then for the thousand years of the reign of Christ and the Church as the spiritual Seed of Abraham, the non-elect, of all the families of the earth will be blessed by the elect (Galatians iii, 16, 29; Acts iii, 19-23). Let us, dear brethren, choose this day to stand by the Word of God, to reject all human traditions contrary to it and to hold fast the things that are true, just, loving, good.

If occasionally a thoughtful friend asks, "Why do you believe in a Millennium?" answer that it is one of the oldest doctrines of Christendom and, above all, the Bible doctrine. Answer that he who does not believe in the Millennium and the resurrection then of the world of mankind—"All that are in their graves"—must account for the dead in some other way—must claim that they have been experiencing pain or pleasure for thousands of years, or must claim that they are extinct as the brute beast and will have no resurrection or must believe in universal salvation regardless of a knowledge of Christ or obedience to him. On next Lord's Day, we will discuss the Millennium and show its absolute necessity, not only from a Bible standpoint but also from a scientific standpoint. "Choose ye this day" to stand for the Bible and reason and to oppose the Creeds of the dark ages and their unreason!

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable. Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N.Y., on every bottle.

SALISBURY'S WELCOME GUESTS.

It is not often that Salisbury has the honor of entertaining as distinguished and able a body of men as that which is now a guest within her gates.

Salisbury and Salisburyans are naturally hospitable and are most glad to welcome the members of the Wilmington Conference—and in the words of that hospitable representative of old, "The City, ourselves and all we have are at the disposal of our noble guests. May they feel at full liberty to command us and ours in all things, remembering that we are the ones blessed, and that our true happiness lies in making their stay a pleasant and happy one."

This we feel sure is the sentiment of the community, and we hope the stay of our guests will be made a pleasant one indeed.

IS A NEW AMENDMENT ADVISABLE.

Ever since the meeting of this Legislature there has been more or less talk about passing another constitutional Amendment looking towards the disfranchisement of the negroes. While there is not any division at all in the Democratic party about the wish to disfranchise the negro voter yet there is considerable difference on the ground of party policy.

By those who are in favor of disfranchising the black race yet doubt the advisability of passing another Amendment at this time, it is pointed out that the people of this State have twice voted upon this question and each time have defeated it by a large majority. Party divisions and other matters were given as the reason for the first defeat, and the bill of last year was drawn so as to meet all the mistakes made in the former one. This bill had the solid support of the party, yet was badly beaten. The main reason for its defeat is now given as being due to the educational qualification feature of the bill, and it is now proposed to pass a bill with this feature taken out, and simply draw a line on color and that alone.

It is believed by many that the placing of a new suffrage amendment before the people at this time after two successive defeats would endanger the entire State ticket two years from now. In the past the suffrage amendment has not been at all successful in Baltimore City and has apparently carried the party along with it to a certain extent.

People get tired of an issue after a while, and many who sincerely hope that the day will come and come soon when the ignorant negro is eliminated from our politics, yet doubt the advisability from a practical party standpoint of bringing this question before the public again at the present time.

Twilley A Hard Worker.

In an interval from his duties as keeper of the wampum of the Improved Order of Red Men and as a leading member of the Masons in his section, Mr. Eliaha E. Twilley, of Salisbury, is helping to hold up Wicomico county's end in the House of Delegates. Although recognized as a consolation, hard working member, Mr. Twilley did not come into conspicuous prominence until the gas monopoly repeal fight, when he buckled to his work with an energy and enthusiasm which proved an inspiration to other supporters of the measure. Mr. Twilley does not pose as an orator, but when it comes to hard, practical work he takes off his hat to no man.

Raid On Crap Shootinn.

The Police made a raid on a place which they had suspected of being the headquarters of a crowd of boys who were indulging in the "noble" game of "crap." According to reports the police took the parties by surprise and arrested a large number—reports given as many as thirty. There have been several strong efforts made to keep up this game both among the colored and white boys, and the authorities state that all cases will be prosecuted and that crap shooting in Salisbury must stop.

It is the only place second-hand goods are sold in Salisbury, Md. and all other places.

Proceedings Of County Commissioners

The County Commissioners were in session Tuesday and transacted the following business:

The examiners on the second section of the Parsonsburg road made their report which was ordered filed.

The report of H. M. Clark, E. E. Freeny and O. P. Johnson, examiners to widen and straighten the second section of the Salisbury-Mardela State road, was finally ratified.

The report of G. W. Adkins, G. E. Jackson and W. H. Brittingham, was finally ratified and confirmed, after allowing damages of $53.50 to Charles Lemon, $50 to Mrs. Mills and $35 to James Hammond, these sums being allowed to give entrance to property where the road lines are changed.

L. B. Weatherly and Dow Mills asked the Board to have Spring Hill road worked with the road machine. Request granted.

Mr. M. W. Oliphant asked the Board to have road from the Leonard mill to the Parker mill, known as the Dagsboro road, worked. Referred to Mr. Ward.

1888 and 1889, respectively, in Chancery in the Circuit Court for Wicomico County, Maryland, the Under-signed will sell at public sale in front of the storehouse formerly occupied by William H. Webb, in the town of Willards, in Willards Election District, Wicomico County, State of Maryland, on Saturday, the 9th Day of April, 1910,

at the hour of 12.30 o'clock all the following real estate situate, lying and being in Willards Election District, Wicomico County, State of Maryland, and particularly described: (1) All that tract or parcel of land situate in Willards Election District, Wicomico County, State of Maryland, beginning for same at the public road crossing at Willards, on the Baltimore Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company, and from thence running by and with the center of the track or said railroad North 35° degrees West 30 poles, thence North 6 degrees East 48 poles to a small white gum on the South side of the Poplar Neck road; thence by and with the same North 68° degrees West 19 poles; thence North 17° degrees West 25 poles; thence North 43 degrees West 11.6 poles, thence North 23° degrees East 77.6 poles to a small white gum standing on an old fence row; North 83° degrees East 18 poles East 31 poles; thence North 33° degrees East 3.36 poles to the 29th line of Tribulation; thence reversing the same South 23° degrees East 33.4 poles to the beginning of said courses; thence reversing the courses of the same South 65° degrees East 72 poles; thence South 15° degrees East 72 poles; thence South 16° degrees West 20 poles; thence South 60° degrees West 10 poles to the main run of the branch leading to New Hope Mills; thence down by and with the said run to the railroad; thence by and with the center of tracks of said road to the first beginning, containing one hundred and twenty seven acres, one rod and thirty seven poles of land in fee simple; being the same land which was conveyed to the said William H. Webb by Joseph Hamblin and wife by deed dated July 22nd, 1903, and recorded among the Land Records of Wicomico County, Maryland, in Liber E. A. T. No. 35, Folio 108; except so much thereof as was conveyed by the said William H. Webb to Mary E. Baker by deed dated November 1st, 1904, and recorded among the Land Records aforesaid in Liber E. A. T. No. 48, Folio 43

(2) All that lot or parcel of land, adjoining and lying on the West side of the above described land, and bounded on the North by and with the center of the West by the County Road leading North from Willards, being known as "The Stratton Road", containing about one acre of land, and being the same land which the said W. H. Webb bought from Ebenezer G. Davis

(3) And all the following personal property now located on the farm above described: 1 black horse mule, named "Jack"; 1 black horse mule, named "Clate"; 1 black horse mule, named "Darby"; 1 black horse mule, named "Jack", different from that above of the same name; 1 black horse mule, named "Bob"; 1 horse mule, grey or white in color, named "Horrey"; 1 bay horse mule, named "Mike"; 1 bay mare mule, named "Jennie"; two black mare mules named "Clara" and "Bird"; respectively: 1 black horse named "Dale"; 1 horse grey or white in color, unnamed; 1 black mare named "Maud"; 2 two horse log wagons; 1 lot wagon, old; 1 timber cart; 5 horse carts; 1 red yoke of oxen; 12 suits of wagon harness; 1 runabout; 1 suit carriage harness; also all the gum timber standing on the "Burton Farm" in Willards Election District, in Wicomico County, Maryland, which said Webb bought from N. Jerome Wimbrw, et al., the land on which said timber stands belongs to said Wimbrow et al.

The above land has been subdivided into a plat of which can be found in the office of Ellegood, Freney & Wailes for inspection at any time before sale, and will be exhibited at the day of sale at Willards.

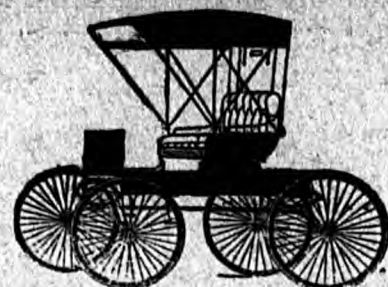

Title papers at expense of purchaser. All parcels of land being sold for $100.00 or less will be paid for in cash, and on all sales of more than $100.00 the undersigned attorney will accept 25 per cent in cash unless the said 25 per cent shall be less than $100.00. All deferred payments will be secured by the bill obligatory of the purchaser, with approved security bearing interest from the date of the sale.

CHARGES DEMOCRATIC

Legislature With Bad Faith, Violation of Pledges, Etc. Attorney Gen. Straus Scores.

Attorney General Isaac Lobe Straus expressed himself Thursday in vigorous and emphatic terms with respect to the alleged plan upon the part of various leaders in the present Legislature to enact so-called "public utilities law" which vested no real authority in the commission to regulate the prices charged and the services furnished by the public service corporations, and which withheld from the commission authority to enforce its orders. Mr. Straus said:

Pledged To Utilities Bill.
"The party pledged the people through its State Convention that it would pass a public utilities law applicable to all public service corporations. That was a distinct obligation. No man can have the slightest doubt that this meant that the public utilities law which the party thus pledged itself to pass would be a law effectively regulating these corporations. The only things to regulate about them are, first, the charges which they exact of the people for the services they render, and second, the services themselves. The gist, the essence, the whole substance of the whole matter comes down to that, namely, the requirement by law through the agency of a commission that the charges which these corporations make shall be reasonably adequate."
"This is all that there is to a genuine public service corporation commission."

New Plan Gives No Relief.
"The proposal to pass a law which withholds from any public service commission the power to ascertain what rates are reasonable and what services are reasonably adequate is a repudiation of the pledge. Such a plan will give no relief, and would be worse than useless, because it would not only be productive of no good at all, but would do distinct harm. It means in effect the prevention of any public service commission in Maryland which is worth its salt. It means the wasteful expenditure of large sums of the people's money to no purpose at all. It is a rank and unjustifiable surrender. It simply postpones action which we have promised to take now into the indefinite future, with the strong probability that no action will ever be taken. It is an utter betrayal not only of the party's pledge, but of its duty and obligations to the people."
"It is high time that this course of repudiation of party pledges should be stopped. It is high time a halt should be called. If this business of repudiation will be no Democratic party. It looks now as if every pledge is about to be broken and betrayed. First the duty which the party publicly assumed by its solemn promise to practice saving and economy in the matter of Legislative expenses was thrown to the winds, and everything that the party ought to have done upon this pledge was not only left undone, but a directly opposite course was taken, and the money of the people spent prodigally without an imitation. This was nothing more nor less than a repudiation of the party's promise to the people."

Repudiates Primary Pledge.
"Next came the repudiation of the pledge to pass the direct primary law, whereby the people who constitute the voters in each political party would be guaranteed the right to select and nominate their own candidates. This also was an important matter, dealing with the right of the people organized in parties to rule themselves and the parties which they compose and upon this also the course of the Democracy in control of the Legislature has so far been marked by repudiation."

Airily Waived Aside.
"And now comes the same course with respect to the public utilities commission. The pledge to establish a commission authorized and empowered to regulate prices and services is to be airily waived aside, and instead of that we are to have a commission to do nothing, or next to nothing. In other words, repudiation again."

"Now then, as a party man, I earnestly and solemnly warn those who are in charge of the General Assembly that repudiation in the course they have taken with respect to these momentous public matters and the party pledges relating to them will bring disaster and great disaster upon the Democratic party. The people will surely visit a record of repudiation as such a record deserves. They will visit it with rebuke. They will visit it with party defeat. And I venture to say that the most serious sort of defeat, which can overtake any party is defeat which is the punishment for breach of faith, violation of pledges and the wilful and recreant refusal to do what it promised."

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have been afflicted with indigestion, have been cured by Kodol. These nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it. Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows excess of food, just as naturally as a cold follows a cold. A sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sources of stomach, belching of gas and nausea, flatulence, bloated sensation, cramping pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (acid), diarrhoea, headaches, dizziness or chronic tired feeling, you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol, the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. Ordinary peptic "dyspepsia" tablets, "physic" etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Peppin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do. Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a bottle of Kodol. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will not pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate. All druggists know that our guarantee is good. That is why they apply to the large bottle only and to test one in a family. The large bottle contains 3 1/2 times as much as the tiny cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of M. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CHAPTER XXVII

THE FURNACE.

DEPPINGHAM sprang to his feet with a fierce oath on his lips. His usually lustrous eyes were gleaming with something more than despair. There was the wild light of unmistakable relief in them. It was as if a horrid doubt had been scaled from the soul of Lady Deppingham's husband.

"We must follow!" shouted his lordship, preparing to lower himself into the jagged opening. "We may be in time!"

"Stop, Deppingham!" cried Chase, leaping to his side. "Don't rush blindly into a trap like that. They've got an hour or more start of us. Nothing will be accomplished by rushing into an ambush. They'd kill us like rats. Rasula is a sagacious scoundrel. He'll not take the entire responsibility. There will be a council of all the heads. It will be of no advantage to them to kill the heirs unless they are sure that we're not live to tell the tale. They will go slow now that they have the chief obstacles to victory in their hands."

"If they will give her up to me I will guarantee that Lady Agnes shall relinquish all claim to the estate," announced the harassed husband.

"They won't do that, old man. Promises won't tempt them," protested Chase. "We've got to do what we can to rescue them. I'm with you, gentlemen, in the undertaking—first, for humanity's sake; second, because I am your friend; last, because I don't want my clients to lose all chance of winning out in this controversy by acting like confounded asses. It isn't what Sir John expects of me."

In the meantime the anxious coterie in the chateau were waiting eagerly for the return of the searchers. Drusilla made one remark, half unconsciously, no doubt, that rasped in the ears of the princess for days. It was the cold, bitter, resigned epitome of the young wife's thoughts:

"Robert has loved her for months."

That was all. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders, thankful that something had happened to divert attention from their own conspicuous plight, were discoursing freely in the center of a group composed of the four Englishmen from the bank.

"It's a plain out and out elopement," said Mrs. Saunders, fanning herself vigorously.

"But, my dear," expostulated her husband, blushing vividly over the first public use of the appellation, "where the devil could they elope to?"

"I don't know, Tommy, but elopers never take that into consideration. Do they, Mr. Bowles?"

At last the four men appeared in the mouth of the cavern. The watchers below fell into chilled silence when they discovered that the missing ones were not with them. Stumped with apprehension, they watched the men descend the ladder and cross the bridge.

"They are dead," fell from Drusilla Browne's lips. She swayed for an instant and then sank to the ground unconscious.

In the conference which followed the return of the searchers it was settled that three of the original party should undertake the further prosecution of the hunt for the two heirs. Lord Deppingham found ready volunteers in Chase and the faithful Selim. They prepared to go out in the hills before the night was an hour older. Selim convinced Chase that the wily Rasula would carry his captives to the mines, where he was in full power.

"You're right, Selim. If he's tried that game we'll beat him at it. Ten to one if he hasn't already chucked them into the sea they're now confined in one of the mills over there."

They were ready to start in a very short time. Selim carried a quantity of food and a small supply of brandy. Each was heavily armed and prepared for a stiff battle with the abductors.

"We seem constantly to be saying goodby to each other. Thus spoke the princess to Chase as he stood at the top of the steps waiting for Selim. The darkness hid the wan, despairing smile that gave the lie to her sprightly words.

"And I'm always doing the unexpected thing—coming back. This time I may vary the monotony by failing to return."

"I should think you could vary it more pleasantly by not going away," she said. "You will be careful?"

"The danger is here, not out there," he said meaningly.

"You mean me? But, like all danger, I soon shall pass. In a few days I shall say goodby forever and sail away."

"How much better it would be for you if this were the last goodby and I should not come back?"

"For me?"

"Yes. You could marry the prince without having me on your conscience forevermore."

"It's easier to forget the dead than the living, they say."

"Don't be too sure of that."

"Ah, there's Selim! Goodby! We'll have good news for you all. I hope, before long. Keep your eyes on Keenah. She and Selim have arranged a set of signals. Don't let him wink all night, and don't pray for me," he soothed, in reckless mood.

The three men stole out through the small gate in the upper end of the park. Selim at once took the lead. They crept off into the black forest, keeping clear of the mountain path.

until they were far from the walls. The starlight filtered down through the leafy canopy above the road, increasing rather than decreasing the density of the shadows through which they sped. None but strong, determined, inspired men could have followed the pace set by the lithe, sure-footed Selim.

Mile after mile fell behind them with no relaxation of energy or purpose. They were coming to the ridge road, and Selim fell back to explain the need for caution. This was the road, in all likelihood, he explained, that the abductors would have used in their flight from the cavern. Two miles farther south it joined the wide highway that ran from Anarat to the mines.

Selim crept on ahead to reconnoiter. He was back in ten minutes with the information that a party of men had but lately passed along the road to ward the south. Their footprints in the soft, untraveled road were fresh. The stub of a cigarette had scarcely burned itself out.

They broke away from the road and took a less exposed course through the forest to their right, keeping well within earshot of the ridge, but moving so carefully that there was slight danger of alarming the party ahead.

At the first sound of voices came to the ears of the pursuers. As they crept closer and closer, they became aware of the fact that the party had halted in the roadway at the point where a sharp defile through the rocks opened a way down into the valley. Like snakes the pursuers wriggled their way to a point just above the small basin in which the party was congregated.

A great throb of exultation leaped up from their hearts. In plain view, at the side of the road, were the two persons for whom they were searching. "Good luck is with us," whispered Chase unconsciously.

Lady Agnes, disheveled, her dress half stripped from her person, was seated upon a great boulder, staring hopelessly, lifelessly, at the crowd of men in the roadway. Beside her stood a tall islander, watching her and at the same time listening eagerly to the dispute that went on between his fellows. She was not bound. Her hands and feet and lips were free.

Bobby Browne was standing near by. His hands were tightly bound behind his back. His face was blood covered, and the upper part of his body was almost bare, evidence of the struggle he had made against overwhelming odds. He was staring at the ground, his head and shoulders drooping in utter dejection.

Three of the treasure chests were standing beside the road, affording seats for as many weary carriers. It was all quite plain to Chase. Rasula and his men had chanced upon the two white people during one of their trips to the cave for the purpose of removing the chests.

Rasula was haranguing the crowd of men in the road.

"It is the only way!" he was shouting angrily. "We cannot put them to death until we are sure that the others have no chance to escape to England. I am a lawyer. I know what it would mean if the story got to the ears of the government. We have them safely in our hands. The others will soon die. Then—then there can be no mistake! They must be taken to the mines and kept there until I have explained everything to the people. Part of us shall conduct them to the lower mill and the rest of us go on to the bank with these chests of gold."

Rasula and six of the sturdy men prepared to continue the journey to Anarat, transporting the chests. Five stout, resentful fellows moved over beside the captives and threw themselves down upon the grassy sward.

"We will wait here till day comes," growled one of them defiantly. "Why should we risk our necks going down the pass tonight? It is 1 o'clock. The sun will be here in three hours. Go on!"

"As you like, Abou Dal," said Rasula, shrugging his plumed shoulders. "I shall come to the mill at 6 o'clock." Turning to the prisoners, he bowed low and said, with a soft laugh: "Adios, my lady, and you, most noble sir. May your dreams be pleasant ones. Dream that you are seated in the lap of a beautiful woman, but spare none of your dream to the husband and wife who are lying awake and weeping for the foolish ones who would go searching for the forbidden fruit. Folly is a hard road to travel, and it leads to the graveyard of fools. Adios!"

Lady Agnes bent over and dropped her face into her hands. She was trembling convulsively. Browne did not show the slightest sign that he had heard the galling words.

At a single sharp command the six men picked up the three chests and moved off rapidly down the road, Rasula striding ahead with the fairs torch.

They were barely out of sight when Deppingham moved as though impulse was driving him into immediate attack upon the guards who were left behind with the unhappy prisoners. Chase laid a restraining hand upon his arm.

"Wait! Plenty of time. Wait an hour. Don't spoil everything. We'll save them sure," he breathed in the other's ear.

The minutes slipped by with excruciating slowness. The wakeful eyes of the three watchers missed nothing that took place in the little grassy niche below them. They could have sprung almost into the center of the group from the position they occupied. Two of the men sat with their backs to the rocks, their rifles across their knees. The others sprawled lazily upon the soft grass. Two torches stuck in the earth threw a weird light over the scene.

Bobby Browne was now lying with his shoulder against a fallen tree trunk, staring with unwearying gaze at the woman across the way. She was looking off into the night, steadfastly refusing to glance in his direction.

Then suddenly Lady Agnes arose to her feet and lifted her hands high toward the black dome of heaven, Balambra-like, and prayed aloud to her God, the unseen islanders looking on in silent derision.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM.
It is an Internal Disease And Requires An Internal Remedy.

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of uric acid in the blood. To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no more acid will be formed in excessive quantities. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with Ointment and Liniment will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, allows the acidity to get a firmer hold on you. Liniment may ease the pain, but they will not move uric acid from the joints and remove the cause. This special diet remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c and $1 a bottle. In sealed form at 25c and 50c a box. Get a bottle today. It will save you from the agony of Rheumatism. Write for free literature. Trial bottle sent free by mail.

Science has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure. It is called "Rheumoidin." It is made of purest ingredients. It has effected the most marvelous cures. We believe it will cure you. Rheumoidin sweeps the poisons out of the system, cleans up the stomach, regulates the liver and kidneys, and makes you well all over. Rheumoidin strikes the root of the disease and removes the cause. This special diet remedy is sold by druggists and dealers generally at 50c and $1 a bottle. In sealed form at 25c and 50c a box. Get a bottle today. It will save you from the agony of Rheumatism. Success Out of Failure

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Masonic) Church, Chicago.

Text: "Master, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing; nevertheless, at Thy word I will let down the net." Luke 5:5.

If you have ever climbed a very high mountain you have for many miles before reaching it gone up hills and down valleys. From the hilltop you have a good view; in the valley you are among the shadows. Such is the road to success in life. Success followed by failure, followed again by success; day following night, night following day; sunshine after shadow, and shadow after sunshine.

All this for our good. "Spring would be but gloomy weather had we nothing else but spring." If you have been uniformly successful in all your undertakings, you have not really been a success. Unless you have been developed by failure one side of your character is still undeveloped. These thoughts are illustrated by the dealings of Jesus with the disciples in the miraculous draught of fishes. We have here the good effects of failure and the good effects of success.

(1.) When it puts us to preparing for larger success. The fish were not running; the wind was in the wrong direction, or there was something the matter with the moon; anyway there were no fish to be caught. They toiled all night and had caught nothing but grass and mud. The grass and mud on the net, however, gave them something to do; they were not idle. In the dawning stream or on the pebbly beach of the lake they were washing their nets and preparing for fishing in the future.

Has your health failed? God perhaps desires to lay you aside for a while that He may cleanse and mend the net. He takes the net in hand in order that we may be cleansed and mended for a larger draught of success in the future. Whatever the failure, you may prepare, during the leisure that is given you, for the larger success in the future.

2. Failure has a good effect when it leads us to put what remains at the disposal of Jesus. Peter had no fish, but the boat was left. If he had caught fish the boat would not have been clean, but this very failure made the boat more ready for occupation and as the crowd presses upon Jesus, almost pushing Him into the sea, Peter brings the boat around, takes the Lord in, pushes a little from the land and sits and listens to His discourse to the people. Put into the hands of Jesus what remains of the wreck of faith, of business, of health, or of life, and He can use it for His glory.

3. Failure has a good effect when it leads us to do what Jesus commands, regardless of apparent reasons against it. Peter thought there was no use in launching out and casting the net, but he yielded his own judgment to the judgment of Christ, submitting his will to the will of Jesus, and throwing the responsibility of success upon Him. When we pursue that course, depend upon it, there will never be real failure.

This brings us to The Good Effects of Success.
1. They caught so many fish that their nets were breaking and by and by the boats were sinking. The great- est failures of all the world have been successes large enough to sink the boats with men and nets to the bottom of the sea. And after we have succeeded in any undertaking it is difficult to hold our success. It is harder often to keep money than to make it. Holding the fish in the net is more difficult than throwing the net around them.

And this leads us to the second effect of success.
2. The sense of unworthiness. Peter was overwhelmed with a consciousness of sinfulness as he stood in the presence of this miracle-working God. Not only the power of Jesus, but His purity, in contrast with Peter's weakness and sinfulness, led him to exclaim, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord." The tendency of success is to puff us up and make us forget God, who gives us success. Peter might have said: "Oh, we might have caught the fish anyway; the presence of Jesus had nothing to do with it. We came out just at the right time." But he did not say it; he attributed the success to Christ, and his sense of unworthiness humiliated him before the Lord.

3. The best effect of this success was promotion. "From henceforth thou shalt catch men." Jesus at once promoted them from catching fish in Galilee to catching men in Jerusalem and in the world; from following a secular to a sacred employment; from everyday routine work against wind and tide to everyday spiritual work against greater opposition; from working for money He promoted them to working for souls. And the climax of this promotion was the privilege of sacrificing for Him. "They forsook all and followed Him." Men who acquire much think they are successful.

A Small Sister's Reflections

UCH a row! And my darling dog Tip and I are right in the middle of it, like the hole in the doughnut! Why, we haven't had anything like it before since Fan engaged herself to poor Mr. John and turned saint and got to petting sweet Tip even when there wasn't company around.

Fan got a new diamond ring. I like a lucky stone best, one with a big, round hole.

Yesterday while Tip and I were playing on the porch I noticed that it was most lonesomely quiet. So Tip and I knew that Fan was up to some mischief. Well, we sneaked up to her room.

Fan was sitting in front of her white enameled dressing table, with the sunshine just pouring in on her and setting her hair on fire. And she had her hand up to her face and was flashing that diamond back and forth in the light. First she'd put her finger to her cheek and smooth it like this, and then she'd pretend to fix the net on her front hair. All the while she was making smirky eyes at the red and blue and violet lights that kept shooting all over her head.

Then, because she thought she was alone, not thinking that lovely Tip and I could see her, she bent over and kissed the ring. Oh, a million times. Fan is certainly getting odd. Ask Tip if you don't believe me. When she looked up her eyes were all wet, as if she'd been crying, but I can't see what for, because she and I had been peaceful. Anyway, it was all so funny that I clutched sweet Tip for support and happened to grab hold of his ear, because I didn't look to see what I was doing, for I didn't want to take my eyes off silly Fan. Then Tip let out the laughing howl, thinking it was a game, you see. Fan heard it and up she jumped like lightning, and slammed the door right against Tip's nose!

That was enough for me! To hurt Tip's feelings like that, and he so gentle! I hammered with both fists on her door and then I kicked. After that Tip and I went out to the swing to think up something.

That afternoon the house was just like a funeral. Fan shoved me away when I went to see what lacy thing she was sewing on the front porch.

"Tip," said I suddenly, "let's play gypsy. You can be Bedreddin Hassan Saleh Amina and I'll be Esmeralda Baba Abdalla. And we'll steal Fan's clothes and put them on and sneak down to meet poor Mr. John, because he's probably coming for dinner."

Of course Tip was crazy glad to do as I said, so we went up to Fan's room. First thing I hauled out her red empire with the black jet. It was lovely old dear Tip! And he tumbled over it so sweet and rumbled it up as cunning as could be, for it was too long and trailed all over the floor about him. Fan's amber beads on his blessed neck were too edifying! After that I slipped her green silk gloves on his front legs and wound up the hind ones with her automobile veil. Then I tied her white hat with the blue aigrettes on his lovely head and turned Bedreddin Hassan Saleh Amina loose, as perfect as a lily.

Fan's bracelets and rings wouldn't fit Tip's ears, so I saved them for me, and had a terrible time dressing, because the bracelets wobbled so on my ankles, and I had to keep my thumbs knicked all the time for fear the rings would slip off. In the meanwhile Tip got crazy to see himself and I was laughing so I nearly let the sweet dog tumble out of my arms while I held him up to the mirror to admire his beauty. When he saw how cute he was he got frisky and wanted to run to meet poor Mr. John, so I had to pounce into Fan's bronze satin slippers and her white lace coat and her black voile skirt. I stuck all her fancy hat pins in my hair.

After I'd put three of her belts around my neck I was ready. Such glee! In my excitement I'd forgotten to put any of Fan's powder on Tip's nose.

"Bedreddin Hassan Saleh Amina," I called after him, "come and get your beautifier."

But the pet had gone down stairs. So I ran after him, and—oh, well, I can't just remember how it happened, but that skirt of Fan's got between my knees and my heels turned out and I forgot, in the excitement, to keep my thumbs knicked, and so—

I must have rolled about 10 miles, for I woke up in bed with court plaster on my head where the hat pins had punctured me.

I stand at the table when I'm eating, for father's got an awfully strong hand. Ask Tip; he got some, too!

Everybody's been searching, even the neighbors. To-morrow poor Mr. John's going to shingle off the grass, and if that doesn't do any good they're going to burn it off.

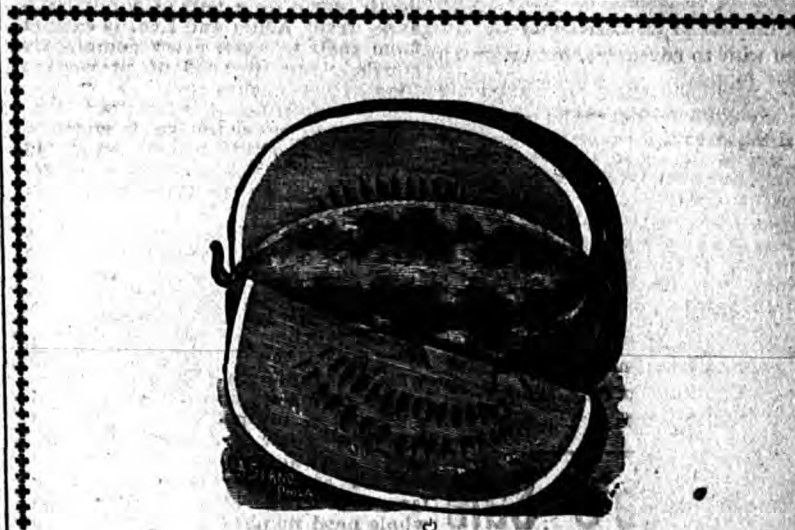

Such a row! But down in our hearts Tip and I are glad, for we're in the middle of it all, like the hole in the doughnut!

How Good News Spreads.
"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Ellensburg, Pa. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by all druggists.

One Doctor—Only One

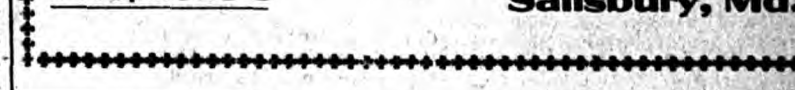

No sense in running from one doctor to another! Select the best one, then stand by him. No sense either in trying this thing, that thing, for your cough. Carefully, deliberately select the best cough medicine, then take it. Stick to it. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for throat and lung troubles. Sold for nearly seventy years. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Why try this thing, that thing, for your constipation? Why not stick to the good old reliable family laxative—Ayer's Pills? Ask your doctor if he approves this advice.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROADBulletin.*DREADNAUGHT CARS.

The nub of railroading is first-class equipment and reliable service. The Pennsylvania Railroad provides this for the public. For many months big all-steel coaches, built like Dreadnaughts, have been operated on all through trains. Their easy-riding qualities and steadiness of motion have been widely praised. The all-steel dining cars too have distinct advantages over the wooden ones. They are stronger and sturdier, and the act of eating is made more enjoyable by the smoother movement.

There are also some steel Pullman Cars—Combined Parlor-Smokers and Baggage—in the service now. Travelers like them. They have plenty of elbow room and they glide over the rails. The Sleeping Cars are coming. Some four hundred parlor and sleeping cars will be in use by Summer.

These steel coaches and cars are the strongest vehicles ever built for passenger transportation. They are fire proof, break proof and bend proof. They represent the climax of safety and the perfection of comfort in railroad travel.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has always been the leader in all manner of improved equipment as well as in all methods of making their patrons more comfortable. This is why it is known and honored as The Standard Railroad of America.

good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living right. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is quite important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.

Consequently, the Company's Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna gives general satisfaction. To get its beneficial effects buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Should be Instituted For Wicomico County. Better To Prevent Than To Cure.

Is it needed? Can the County and City afford it? A satisfactory answer to the first will be a sufficient answer to the second question.

Wicomico County is about as healthy a place as can be found, but as no community, since disease and death come as a part of our inheritance from Adam and Eve, is exempt from their ravages, every community stands more in need of preventive than curative remedies.

It is as wise, as it is familiar "that an ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure." This standard of "16 to 1" is universally accepted as a correct policy and valuation in matters of health.

We take hold of the wrong end of the stick to club disease. We wait to get sick and then call in the doctor to cure us, or let us die according to his best skill and judgement. Why not counsel him and pay him liberally to tell us how to keep well. When well, we think we know how to keep so, and think we know when we need a physician to make us well. The fact is we know but little about either of these things, but we know a great deal less about the former. A pain or fever demands relief. "They that are whole need no physician." True, but every one needs one to instruct him how to keep well. We are very careful to prevent our children getting their feet wet or sitting on damp ground, while we let them fill their tender lungs with impure air and their delicate stomachs with tainted meats, and let the fever bearing mosquito inject his virus into their veins.

The scientists among the medical profession are devoting their skill and even risking their lives to find specific, anti-toxins and preventatives for the numerous diseases among the children of man. Already small pox has been robbed of its epidemic scare because of vaccination and isolation.

The yellow fever is no longer the dreadful scourge it once was, because these scientists have found out that the mosquito is the breeder and transmitter of this disease to the human body; the same is also true of malaria fever, therefore, the prevention is to kill the mosquito by breaking up his breeding quarters. It is universally admitted that Typhoid is a stomach disease and that filth, water and flies are its most efficient propagators, therefore, destroy the flies and clear the cess pools; at any rate screen the flies outside instead of inside of the houses; keep them off, instead of letting the filthy things crawl over the meats and bread.

These scientists are learning more and more of the preventative methods for the dreaded white plague, commonly called consumption.

Mr. Wm. J. Bryan in writing from the Panama Canal in connection with Sanitation says "When the history of the construction of the canal is written, Colonel Wm. O. Gorgas of the Medical Staff of the army, and a member of the canal commission, will be credited with a very large part of the glory, for he is responsible for the system of sanitation in force on the zone and without sanitation the canal could not have been completed at least not without appalling loss of life. Dr. Gorgas attributes the present freedom from Yellow Fever to the extermination of the mosquito. Screens are used everywhere and the breeding places of the offending insect have been destroyed (Note this, screens and destruction of the breeding places.)

Continuing, Mr. Bryan says: "It is difficult to overestimate the influence which the American success in Sanitation will have on the settlement of the tropical countries. I have been here nine days," he says, "and have not seen or heard a mosquito." Now it is quite safe to assume he did not feel one.

The length, depth and width of the canal, the gigantic dams and locks can be measured by cubic yards, the number of laborers employed, the millions upon millions of dollars spent in its building can be reduced to statistics and will be inserted in histories, encyclopedias, but who can put in figures the value of the Sanitation schemes of Dr. Gorgas. Statistics will tell us how many died of disease, even the percentage of deaths to population and how many died of each kind of disease, but no statistics can tell us how many were saved from sickness and death by the sanitary methods of Dr. Gorgas and his fellow scientists and sanitarians. All diseases are not curable but nearly if not quite all, are preventable by proper sanitation.

To keep well is so much better than to get well, as not to admit of comparison. If people would only stop to think of it. The productive value of a healthy vigorous business man in a community, the productive value of healthy vigorous laboring men in a community, the immeasurable value of healthy, vigorous fathers and mothers with offspring like unto themselves, who can estimate these things in terms of dollars and cents, to say nothing of the happiness they bring to their possessors, their friends and kindred. But who wants to stamp the dollar mark on a man or woman. Suppose that man or woman be your child, a beloved member of your family. "All that a man hath will he give for his life." But how much taxes he is willing to pay to save the life of his neighbor is the present question.

Humanitarianism and benevolence are more than taxation, just as a man is more than a dollar mark. Salisbury and Wicomico stand at the front in business progress and material things in general. Will they halt at the door of sanitation?

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MASTERFUL ADDRESS

Delivered By Gen. Hobson—No House Here Large Enough For Audience.

From Trinity Church to Ulman's Opera House to the Court House Square records the constantly increasing crowds which flocked to hear Congressman Richard Pierson Hobson last Sunday afternoon in his address before the Wilmington Conference at its Temperance Rally.

Five thousand people are estimated to have heard the famed "Merrimac hero" as he logically and forcibly described the national situation on the liquor question today. Mr. Hobson showed that he had given the matter scientific research, a thorough inspection from all sides and had come to his strong advocacy of temperance, against saloons, conscientiously and from the force of his personal investigations, believing he was strongly in the right and determined to devote himself actively and zealously to the national fight against saloon rule and liquor corruption. Mr. Hobson depicted, in minute in careful terms the life long physical injury of intoxicating drinks and dwelt on the attending correspondent evils and demerit of the moral taints, the great wrong and suffering endured, in a logical, masterly manner that would admit of no refutation.

His large audience was heartily appreciative and in happy accord with him. The lecture was considered one of the best ever delivered in Salisbury. While here he was entertained by Mr. W. J. Downing, Park Avenue.

IN FIRING BATTLE

Three Lose Lives On B. & O. Train Near Wilmington.

In a battle on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's Royal Limited, north bound, which began between Newark, Del., and Wilmington at five o'clock Wednesday afternoon and ended at the Delaware Avenue Station in Wilmington, three men, including the one who started all the trouble, were killed, two were seriously injured and others were grazed by bullets.

The tragedy was an outcome of a quarrel between Bethea, a passenger who boarded the train at Washington and Williams the porter in the buffet smoking car Mercury. Bethea, who had been drinking, shot the porter through the heart, killing him instantly. Conductor Wellman heard the shot, and running back, remonstrated with the passenger, who still held the smoking weapon. Although the negro was dead, Bethea fired a second shot, the bullet entering the victim's stomach. Then, without a word, he turned and shot Wellman, who fell dead. The bullet had passed through his right arm, which he had thrown up to protect himself, and into his heart.

Barricades Himself In.

The passengers, in a mad rush to safety, ran back into the car in the rear, while Bethea rushed into a compartment of the car, barricaded himself in and threatened to kill the first person who approached.

By this time the train reached the station in Wilmington at 5:17 o'clock and a hurry call was sent to the police station. Police Captains Kane and Evans, Sergeant Kelleher and a squad of patrolmen, reinforced by park guards and a posse of trainmen and citizens, rushed to the scene. Bethea was called upon to surrender, but he only opened the door of his fortress far enough to poke an automatic revolver through the chink and begin to fire. Chief of Police Black, who had also reached the scene of hostilities, dodged just as a bullet whizzed by his head.

The South Carolina man must have had at least 100 cartridges, for he held the posse of several hundred men at bay and also held up the train from 5:17 o'clock until 6:35, and travel over the road was stopped. Every now and then the police opened fire at the car until all of the windows were riddled.

After an hour the police saw they would be unable to drive the man from cover, and a call was sent to the Water Witch Fire Company, near by for its engine. The apparatus responded on the run. A high pressure hose was attached to a water plug, and, with the firemen behind a barricade of boards and trucks, a stream was played upon the window of the compartment in which Bethea was.

Betha, fired a fusillade at the firemen, the police all the while calling upon him to surrender. In a few minutes, drenched with water, he staggered to the platform, and again the police shouted to him to hold up his hands. Without a word and with an air of bravado, he leveled his automatic revolver at the police and several shots rang out in quick succession.

Murderer Himself Shot Down.

Just as he fired the last shot Police Captain Evans, who had secured a shotgun, fired. A load of shot struck the murderer in the face but still he continued to blaze away. Patrolman Boughtman then fired with a pistol, and the bullet struck Bethea in the right arm. He tried to fire again, but Sergeant Kelleher fired and at the same time sprang upon the man. Several other policemen started to shoot, but the crowd yelled "Don't kill him." The shotgun and the bullets from the policemen's revolvers had already done their work, however, for just as Bethea was taken hold of by the police he fell dead into the arms of one of them.

One of the members of the crew of the train says Bethea, who had been drinking from the time the train left Washington and was quarrelsome, seemed to fly into a rage every time the colored porter approached him, and the subsequent double murder was the culmination of one of these violent outbreaks.

Caroline Banks Advance Rate of Interest.

The two national banks at Denton, Md., have advanced the rate of interest on savings accounts from 3 to 4 per cent, beginning July 1. The State banks at Preston, Hillsboro, Greensboro and Federalburg started paying 4 per cent this year and the other State bank in Caroline county, the bank of Ridgely announced that its future rate will be 4 1/2 per cent.

A feature of the county's prosperity in recent years has been the increase in the number of banks, all of them, with one exception, having been established within the last eight years, and all have been extraordinarily successful in building up large lines of deposits. The Caroline County Bank at Greensboro in business a little more than seven years, has a surplus three times greater than its capital stock.

THE GLADSOME SPRING

Is Attended With The "Wonderful" Millinery Openings—Ladies Out In Force.

The streets of Salisbury have been all aglow during the last few days with the interested fair of all ages, alike looking for the season's most suitable—as more fashionable head-wear.

It has been Opening week and the millinery departments have been all the go, to those who want spring hats—and who doesn't?

For years our city stores have been making an ever widening reputation for their season displays—for the high quality maintained in their bays and the extensive variety afforded in their selections. For weeks ahead the city milliners visit the fashionable centers—New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore,—and explore the stores of new designs, attending the earlier openings, enlarging and advancing their ideas by study and inspection, purchasing the most up-to-date and effective in the market.

Thus they bring to Salisbury each season the best that can be obtained by exhaustive search to cater to the public here and the "big outside" that comes to our city for their dressy apparel.

Throngs of ladies on the streets attest to the wise selections of "head-gear" and the windows of the millinery establishments are most attractive to the feminine passers-by. Various favorable comments evidence their appreciation.

The visiting crowds are seen most largely at R. E. Powell's, Kennerly-Shockley Co., Lowenthal's and Mrs. G. W. Taylor's.

For Protection And Profit Of The Retail Merchants Here.

For some time the Retail Merchants of Salisbury have had under consideration a movement looking to the formation of an association for their mutual protection and advantage. A meeting was held on Wednesday night which was largely attended by merchants representing the various classes of merchants, and the trade and credit conditions of the town were thoroughly discussed. It was decided to form a permanent organization broad enough in its scope to embrace the dealers in all lines, and a general policy has been determined upon, whereby credits may be regulated and controlled in each particular line. A committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Gordy, Hitch, Evans, Schuler, Phillips, Wilkins, Wroten, Doody and Fields, to cooperate with Attorney Lilly in preparing a tentative scheme for the operations of the association. This committee will report its efforts at a general meeting of all the retail merchants to be held at the City Hall on Wednesday evening, March 30th. A large attendance is hoped for at this meeting, when the work of the committee will be thoroughly gone over and a permanent constitution on and by-laws effected and officers and directors elected for managing the association.

Bill For Election of State Treasurer by the People.

Election of the State Treasurer by the people, instead of by the legislature, as proposed, is the subject of a bill introduced by Senator Crothers.

Senator Crothers has presented a bill for a constitutional amendment to effect the change. It provides that the State Treasurer shall be elected by popular vote at the time the Governor is chosen, and that his term shall be four years.

The amendment will also extend the term of the Comptroller of the Treasury to four years, and provides that he be elected at the same time that the Governor is chosen.

THE GRIM REAPER.

Removes From Their Earthly Existence To Another Abode.

Morris.

On Saturday, March 19th, death took from us one of the oldest and most highly respected of Wicomico's citizens, John L. Morris, born on February 19th, 1832.

Starting life with nothing he accumulated quite a little competency, which enabled him to help, unostentatiously, many of the needy.

He left surviving him, eight children, four sons, Elsie F. Roberts, L. William and James J. Morris, and four daughters, Mrs. John Freny, Mrs. Jacob M. Adkins, Mrs. Alfred J. Holloway and Mrs. Peter J. Dryden, and thirty five grandchildren, many of whom are among our best citizens; having inherited the sturdy characteristics of their grandfather; and eleven great-grandchildren to follow in his footsteps.

His remains were interred in his former home place in Nutter's District on Monday the 21st. Elder Francis, of the Baptist Church, conducted the ceremonies and preached an able sermon on the "Resurrection." The funeral was largely attended by his relatives and friends.

Parsons.

Mr. William F. Parsons died at Ocean City, at the home of his son, Mr. C. C. Parsons, Wednesday morning at six o'clock. He had been a widower for six years and leaves six children to mourn their loss: Mr. C. Parsons, of Ocean City; Mr. Harvey Parsons, of Salisbury; Mr. Benjamin Parsons, of Parsonsburg; Mrs. Jennie Collins, of Salisbury, and Mr. Virgil Parsons, of Onancock, Va. He was 73 years of age and had been a consistent member of the Methodist Church for a long time. His body was taken to Parsonsburg on the afternoon train Thursday for burial.

Bacon.

Mr. S. Harry Bacon, head of the Samuel Bacon Sons Lumber Co., Laurel, died at the Peninsula General Hospital in Salisbury, Saturday, following an operation for peritonitis. The operation was performed by a surgeon from the Jefferson Medical Hospital, Philadelphia. Mr. Bacon was 49 years of age.

UNWARRANTED EXTRAVAGANCE

Says Harper—Senator from Queen Anne's Scores Unwarranted Money Waste.

The "unwarranted extravagance" of the present Legislature in the matter of legislative employment was condemned in emphatic fashion by Senator J. Frank Harper of Queen Anne's county, just before the vote on the Price bill for $50,000 additional appropriation for legislative expenses. Senator Harper affirmed that there is a largely unnecessary number of employees now on the pay roll and pointed out particularly the case of Joseph Kelly, manager of the Toronto Baseball Club and son in law of John J. Mahon. "Mr. Kelly is drawing $5 a day from the Senate as a messenger," said Mr. Harper. "I would like to ask what services Mr. Kelly has rendered the Senate."

Mr. Harper characterized as quite superfluous the position of messengers to the Committees of Labor, Pensions, Public Buildings, Militia and Article 3 of the Constitution, which he said rarely, if ever, have a meeting. According to Mr. Harper, the Senate has 123 employees, the House 107. He argued that this "extravagance" is due to the failure of the Senate to adopt the resolutions he introduced last January limiting the number of employees and making it necessary to elect them in the open Senate. In conclusion he said: "The willful waste of the people's money by this Legislature has been in utter defiance of the best sentiment of the State."

The Price bill went through flying, the only negative votes being those of Mr. Harper and Senator Crothers, an nephew of the Governor.

KEEPING HOUSE BY

Machinery. System And Labor Saving Machinery That Secure Comfort In An Average Home—Simple Hospitality That Entails No Burdensome Taxing Of Resources.

"To work for work's sake, seems to me stupid," said a clever professional woman, who is withal an excellent housekeeper, and always ready in her leisure time to extend a gracious and easy hospitality to her many friends. "I avail myself of every good, labor saving machine that is offered, and consider the money thus spent my best paying investment. Our house is small, and domestic service of a satisfactory sort is difficult to secure, and more difficult to retain. Our vacuum cleaner replaces a housemaid, and our fireless cooker, that works quietly, all day and all night with never a complaint, is so efficient in its department that we scarcely regret the absence of a cook. Our dishwasher has reduced that dreaded task to a minimum, and—"Tell it not in Gath!"—we use it only once a day.

A Washing Machine.

A washing machine makes the laundry work go quickly, and our patent drier is so satisfactory that Mrs. Smith, our weekly "help," can accomplish as much in one day at our house as she does in two places where old-fashioned methods prevail. We use an electric iron and the even temperature maintained prevents scorching, or roughness of finish. An electric attachment runs the sewing machine, and another makes toast on the table mornings, while we are eating our fruit and cereal, or heats the chafing dish when we cook some of our favorite dishes. A revolving table that has several shelves, and can be wheeled into the pantry, takes care of the dishes removed at the end of each course, for our service is as dainty when we are alone, as when a guest is present.

Systematic Planning.

If the housekeeping seems to run automatically it is because mother is a master at reducing things to a system. It takes brains to so plan the running of even the simplest home, that no one hears the cranking of the cogs, and the planning is always for the easiest possible methods consistent with comfort.

The Reserve Stock.

In a little closet, in a cool corner of the large pantry, we keep what we call our "Reserved Stock" of prepared foods, which can be served at a moment's notice and thus meet unexpected calls upon our hospitality. Canned soups of the finest grade, in different sizes and styles, French peas, and string beans and whole tomatoes, fine sardines and salmon and home made salad dressing in a jar enable us to concoct an appetizing salad. Hawaiian pineapple, which is picked at the moment of perfect ripeness and canned on the spot, we find delicious in sliced form, eaten with a spoon like grape fruit, for this unlike the ordinary pineapple has no woody fibre, and in the crushed and grated form makes dainty ices, creams and desserts. Jellies, pickles and jams, peanut butter and potted meats and cheeses are always on hand in this closet.

Quality Essential.

We buy only the best brands of prepared foods for we find that though the "United States Pure Food Stamps" protect one from foods that are positively detrimental to health, they do not by any means insure the flavor and deliciousness of the contents. Only the brand of the maker can be relied upon for this, so we test the quality of such goods, and stick to the kinds we like, rejecting all "Just as good" sorts, which usually prove disappointing. Eleanor Frances.

"Tabernacle Shadows Of The Better Sacrifices."

This little book is not for the ordinary readers, but most decidedly it is what every advanced Bible student and earnest Christian should possess and study thoroughly. It costs but ten cents, is illustrated and draws its lessons on the higher life from the types and shadows of Israel's typical Atonement Day and other sacrifices. Surely every earnest Christian should have this little book and find in it a mine of spiritual wealth, health and refreshment. Order it now from the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Saved A Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the civil war was more agreeable to J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., than facing it from what doctors said was consumption. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 175 pounds." For Coughs, Colds, La Grippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough and Lung trouble, its supreme. 50c. 31c. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT...

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL, Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

PALM SUNDAY THE LOST OPPORTUNITY

Ten, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they are hid from thine eyes" (Luke xii, 42).

Little did the Jews understand the momentous importance to them of the event which Christians commemorate Palm Sunday. It will be remembered that the incident occurred at the close of our Lord's ministry—three and a half years after his baptism at Jordan and five days before his crucifixion. The Jewish Sabbath had been spent in rest at Bethany. Lazarus, whom Jesus awakened from the sleep of death, with his sisters Mary and Martha, prepared for Jesus a banquet, and when the Sabbath closed the supper was eaten. It was at that time that Mary brought forth the box of perfume, spikenard very valuable, and thereupon anointed our Lord's head and feet. It was the same occasion on which Judas, in a wrong spirit, had murmured against this expression of her loving devotion; that it was a waste; that preferably the money should have been given to the poor. It was then that the Master defended Mary and announced that the anointing was for his burial (which occurred later the same week), and suggested to the disciples, "The poor ye have all ways with you. And whensoever ye will ye do them good; but me ye have not always."

The next morning, the first day of the week, corresponding to our Sunday, Jesus made ready for his triumphal entry into the city of Jerusalem as the Jewish King, according to the custom of the Jewish kings riding upon an ass and hailed and acclaimed by the populace. The incident had been foretold by the Prophet Zechariah in great detail, saying, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold, thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass" (Zechariah ix, 9).

Prophecy Must Be Fulfilled. When the apostles had the large concourse of people (which had come from Jerusalem to see Jesus because of his awakening of Lazarus) shouted aloud. They were filled with enthusiasm and, after the manner of the time, some broke off palm branches for the ass to step upon; others laid their garments in the way and thus formed, as it were, a carpet in the road leading to Jerusalem near by. The shout of the people was just as the prophet had declared. They hailed Jesus as the promised Son of David, the Messiah long waited for. On previous occasions, when they sought to make Jesus a king, after witnessing his marvelous works, he withdrew himself from them to wait for their ardor to cool, knowing that the Father's time was not yet due. But now he knew that his hour was come and hence, instead of hindering, he helped on with the enthusiasm by sending for the ass, etc. Prominent sectarians Jews present, although unable to account for the miracle, were unprepared to think of Jesus as the true Messiah, or anything short of an impostor in that role. When these heard the multitude shouting and addressing Jesus as the Messiah they were offended and sent word to Jesus that he should restrain the ignorant people who were thus acclaiming him.

But instead of forbidding the ovation Jesus intimated that it was the proper thing, that because the Prophet Zechariah (ix, 9) said, "Shout, O daughter of Jerusalem!" therefore there must be a shout. If the people had not shouted, rather than have the prophecy go unfulfilled, Jesus said the very stones would have cried out.

Enroute to Jerusalem Jesus halted the ass and the procession at the top of the Mount of Olives and, overlooking the Holy City, wept while he pronounced his sentence upon it—utterly "unrepentant." As the "Traveller's Guide," "Israel knew not the time of her visitation." The time for Israel to receive the King had come and they were not only ignorant of the matter collectively, but they were not in the heart condition to understand or appreciate. Jesus cried, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" (Matthew xxiii, 37). For three and a half years he and his faithful apostles had been declaring that the Kingdom of God was at hand; that the people should repent and believe the good message. And even six months in advance of this John the Baptist and his disciples had similarly preached.

After those four years of faithful preaching throughout the length and breadth of Palestine, the nation was apparently as unprepared for Jesus as at the first. Hence our Lord's following words, "Therefore I say unto you, Your house is left unto you desolate! Ye shall see me no more until that day when ye shall say—Blessed be that cometh in the name of the Lord!" That day has not yet come. Meantime the Jewish nation was there cast off from fellowship with God, as the prophet declares, "Because they knew not the time of their visitation."

Israel has been outcast from national favor for more than eighteen centuries. Thank God the day is near at hand, when, at the second coming of Messiah, his Kingdom shall be turned over to them. And then, as he declares, they will be glad to say, "Blessed be that cometh in the name of the Lord." The long centuries of persecution and separation from God's favor will have brought that people to a humbler condition of heart, where they will be glad to receive of Divine grace upon Divine terms. To this great event St. Paul refers us in Romans xi, 27-34.

Although God foreknew all that had happened the offer of the Kingdom had

Many things indicate to us, now, that we are living in a time corresponding to that Palm Sunday! Many things imply that Christendom is now undergoing its great test and that only the fully consecrated of heart and life will be accepted of the Lord as his "Jewels" and be granted a share with Christ in his Kingdom. Many things imply that we are now in the time when the true people of God are being divided into two classes, as being for us by our Lord in the parable of the Wise and the Foolish Virgins. As only the Wise Virgins were prepared to enter into the marriage, so only the consecrated ones, the polished Jewels of the Lord, will be accepted as fit for the Kingdom and be granted a share in the glorious resurrection change which will precede the great time of trouble, in which the Foolish Virgin class, although not of the world, will participate with the world.

True, that great time of trouble will usher in the glorious Millennium dispensation, in which the Church in glory with the Great Redeemer will pour out upon all mankind the wonderful restitution blessings which God has promised by the mouth of all the holy prophets (Acts iii, 19-23). True, the Foolish Virgins may subsequently get the oil and subsequently have a glorious future, but they will lose the choice place of Divine favor and blessing. They cannot be of the "Bride" class, but will receive their blessing under the figure of "the virgins her companions that follow her" (Psalm xiv, 14).

It is in order for all of God's people who now get awake from the slumber of worldliness which has long stupefied them, to join hearts and voices in a great shout—the shout that the Kingdom is at hand! The shout of Hosanna to the Son of David! And that the time is at hand for the fulfillment of the passage, "Gather together my saints unto me, saith the Lord: those who have made a covenant with me by sacrifice. They shall be mine, saith the Lord, in that day when I come to make up my jewels" (individually) (Malachi iii, 17).

"See That Ye Refuse Not Him." As the Jewish nation was not ready to receive Jesus as its King, so that first Palm Sunday, neither is Christendom now ready to receive him at his second advent. As it was, only the "Israelites indeed," in whom was no guile, that then knew the voice of the Shepherd, so it will be here an individual matter. The Laodicean period of the Church's history is upon us (Revelation iii, 17). The Nominalism of our day is fully portrayed by our Lord's words. Christendom boasts that she is rich and increased in goods and has need of nothing; and knows not that she is poor and miserable and blind and naked. The Lord now stands at the door and knocks. He offers himself to the "Israelites indeed." Ours is Palm Sunday in the highest sense of all. How are we receiving the great blessings which be-taken the paragon of the Master? Do we hear his knock? Have we opened our hearts? Are we searching his Word and listening for his voice and seeking to know and to do his will in all things? To all such very shortly, we believe, will come the greater and fuller Pentecostal blessing—the resurrection "change" from the glory of character merely to the glory of person as well, when we shall see our Redeemer as he is, and share his glory. As St. Paul says, "See that ye reject not him that speaketh from heaven!" Greater light, greater privilege, greater blessing every way are ours than were those enjoyed by the Jews at our Lord's first advent. These privileges and blessings are our tests. Let us be faithful. Let us present our bodies living sacrifices and with renewed zeal seek to glorify our Lord in our bodies and our spirits, which are his (I Corinthians vi, 20).

Those who have the eyes to see and the ears to appreciate the voice now speaking from heaven should be alert to hail him Lord of all—to accept him as their Redeemer and King and voluntarily to present themselves to him and his service—not waiting for the time when he shall reveal himself in power and great glory to the world in general. The Lord is now looking for saints, for overcomers, valiant, faithful, persevering, and faithfully devoted to him, to his Cause of Righteousness, and thoroughly opposed to sin and especially active in overcoming its domination in their own hearts, in their own minds, in their own bodies. Such the Master pictures as his joint-heirs, priestly kings, sitting with himself in his Throne of glory and world dominion.

The Penalty of Success

BY ELLIOTT FLOWER.

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Ernest Walters belonged to the impressionist school of lovers. Given a few graceful lines, and imagination would do the rest; it was absolutely unnecessary to have the details worked out. With him love was a matter of form—good form, of course. He could fall in love with more ease than a willful, undisciplined youngster can fall out of a boat, and anyone who ever has had charge of such a youngster in a boat knows what that means. A pretty face surmounting a tall-made gown—or, better yet, one of those soft, fluffy summer gowns—would make Ernest desperately devoted and deeply sentimental at any moment. His name was well chosen too, although, of course, that was just a lucky guess on the part of his parents.

Thus, when he took Charlotte Culver's hand, looked into her eyes with that pleading look of unutterable longing, and told her that he could never again be happy without her, he believed every word of it.

"Love," he said, "came into my life the day I first saw you."

In a measure this was true, but he would have been more accurate if he had said that love re-entered on that occasion, for it was far from being his first visit. However, he never looked over his shoulder, and consequently quickly forgot what lay behind him. As for Charlotte, this whirlwind method of wooing was a novelty to her, although the very impetuosity of it was captivating. Still, it did seem to her as if two weeks was rather a brief period in which to determine whether they would make suitable life partners. So she fell back on the old refuge of startled womanhood in such circumstances, which means that she said: "This is so sudden."

"How I Did Love That Girl."

"Oh, they all say that!" he cried bitterly. "What!" she exclaimed. "In books, I mean," he hastily informed her, but not show the explanation was not quite satisfactory.

"Let us wait," she said cautiously. "In a little while we will know better."

"Wait!" he repeated despairingly. "A man stands at the gates of Paradise and you tell him to wait! A wayfarer dying of thirst reaches for a cup of water and you say: 'Wait! Are you sure you want it?' As well tell the parched fields to wait for the gentle rain without which the grass and the flowers must die! I can't wait! I come to you for love; I bring you love, and if I receive it not in return, my heart becomes a desert, a barren waste."

This little speech had been gradually perfected by experience and he knew it was most effective, but still she doubted.

"Do not force me to answer now," she pleaded. "I must have time to think, to consult my heart. It whispers to me that—that. But it may be wrong," she added hastily.

"Now or never!" he cried passionately, as he endeavored to draw her to him. "With so much at stake I cannot live in suspense! A lesser love might wait, but not this of mine! Your answer, Charlotte?"

Oh, the imploring vehemence of that plea! Yet it availed him nothing. Gently disengaging herself, she said: "No!" quite distinctly, and left him on the garden-seat with his face buried in his hands.

Ernest's heart was surely broken this time. He sat for a long time on the garden-seat without moving—five or ten minutes at least, although he estimated it at something like half an hour. Then he rose wearily and staggered down the street. Just why a young man should stagger in these circumstances is a mystery.

Ernest went to his room at the hotel, which was only a short distance from the Culvers' summer home, and there he gave way to despair—that is to say, he ordered a Scotch highball. Since golf has taken such a hold on the American people this is considered the very essence of good form. If you're tired, a little Scotch will freshen you up; if you're fresh, you can stand it all the better; if you're blue, it will cheer you; if you're jolly, why, that's just the time for it. So Ernest drank a Scotch highball, and then he drank another, and then he took a third. Now that he had nothing to live for, he told himself that it didn't much matter how many he took. He settled back in a big rocking-chair that persistent and aggressive "kicking" had induced the management to provide for his room—everyone knows the difficulty with which these luxuries are procured at a summer hotel—lit a cigar, and began to brood and then to dream. The brooding was over the dark future; the dreaming was occasioned by a photograph that he had not had time to put away since he last fell in love. Probably the Scotch had something to do with the transition from dismal thoughts to dreamy speculation. At any rate, he gradually began to give more attention to the photograph on the table and less to the dreary mental picture for which the affair at the garden-seat had been responsible.

"How I did love that girl!" he said reflectively, meaning the one represented in the photograph. "She's a beautiful girl too—and so distinguished, and tactful, and generally delightful. But she's like all the rest; it's always 'so sudden.' Why, oh, why, am I so uniformly unfortunate? Why am I ever unsuccessful? Other men love once and win; I love a dozen times and lose, and yet the odds are all in my favor. It's 13 to 1, yet here I am, disconsolate, hopeless. I must have been born under an unlucky star; fate is against me; I'll never know success." He disposed of what was left of his last highball and lit a fresh cigar, under the soothing influence of which the girl in the photograph seemed to smile at him. "I could have been happy with her," he sighed; then, after a pause: "I could be happy with her yet. How it would jar Charlotte Culver if I should marry her! Lovely girl! dreamily. 'I never saw one more charming than she was the night she said—' He straightened up in his chair suddenly. "By George! she didn't say it!" he cried.

"No, sir," she told me to wait; and when I told her about the man at the gates of Paradise and the wayfarer dying of thirst she said the man at the gates couldn't expect to have them opened the very instant he knocked—it was unreasonable; and that was all I could get out of her. She was a very queer girl, indeed she was. 'It doesn't follow,' she said, that a caller is not welcome because there is not an immediate response to the first knock on the door. Now what did she mean by that? Why, knock again, of course, and it's just about time too. Funny how it slipped my mind! And what a superb wife she would make! I never really loved anyone else anyway; I was just sort of seeking consolation, I guess."

"Once more I knock," he wrote, and signed his name. Then he ordered another highball and gave himself up entirely to dreams. Perhaps Fortune was to smile on him after all; it certainly seemed as if he ought to win if there were any virtue in persistence. "I would be such a domestic man if I only had the chance," he told himself; "I really ought to have a wife, and I deserve to have one. No man has been more earnest and enthusiastic in his search for a mate. And what is it the wise men say?—In persistence lies success. 'Industry is the key to success,' 'Keep everlastingly at it,' and 'Success is constant endeavor.' According to all rules I deserve success, and, besides, such love as mine should be rewarded. Ah, how I do love that girl!"

The answer to his telegram came the next morning, and it was a model of brevity. "Once more I knock," he had wired her. "Come in," she had wired back. He turned away from the desk in the hotel office proud and happy. "At last!" he cried exultantly, and then the clerk brought him down to earth by pushing a letter over to him. He opened it mechanically, his mind still being on the telegram.

"Dear one," it began, and then added in parentheses, "After what you said yesterday I know I may call you 'dear one.'"

"Great Heavens!" he cried. "What's the matter, old man?" asked an acquaintance who happened along just then; "anything wrong?"

"Oh, no," he answered lightly; "successful in love, you know, and it sort of startled me."

He sought a secluded spot and finished the note, thus learning that Miss Culver had "commenced" with her heart most of the preceding night and had discovered that—Well, perhaps it would be better if he called to get the information.

They found him with a telegram in one hand and a letter in the other, muttering to himself: "Oh, how I love that girl!"

"Which girl?" they asked. "How do I know?" he returned. Then, after a little, he asked: "If you were successful in love, what would you do?"

"I'd marry the girl," was the reply. "Bigamy?" he said warily, and they led him away and put him to bed. Clearly he was out of his head. An hour or so later he roused himself and pointing first to the telegram and then to the letter, said: "That girl says she will marry me and that one says she will marry me. How about it?"

"One of them is wrong."

"But which one?" he demanded fiercely.

At this his friends tapped their foreheads significantly and said: "Poor fellow! he's raving—utterly irresponsible—crazy," and after a moment he was heard to mutter: "Good idea." So he raved some more, and they got two doctors who doped him and gave him sedative baths, and, altogether, what he endured for a week or so, while he was very properly losing his memory, was—well, it was the penalty of success.

PUT LID ON TIGHT

MODERN VIGILANTES IN NEW JERSEY FRUIT BELT.

End of Rowdiness and Riotous Life Came When Citizens "Got Together" in Real Earnest to Subdue Trouble.

There is a little town up in the peach region of Hunterdon county, New Jersey, that manages its local affairs in a way that is worthy of emulation by large cities. Once the stronghold of rowdiness and riotous life, its streets are now as quiet and calm as the middle of the Sahara desert on a Sunday afternoon. And it was all brought about by a few determined citizens taking the law into their own hands, while they let public opinion—on gossip, rather—go hang. This is how it came about:

Being in the center of the fruit belt, which produces a half-million baskets of peaches yearly, New Germantown is visited by hordes of wanderers each fall who come to gather the crop. For the most part they are the sots and jacks of city slums and men of broken fortune who seek the coolness of country life for a few weeks. Almost without exception they are hard drinkers and make the night hideous with their revels. Last fall conditions were particularly bad. The peach pickers tore the lid clear off and made the village tavern a center of operations that caused the long-suffering townspeople to stand aghast. There were fights on front porches, doors kicked in and good citizens roughly treated on the streets, while oaths and raucous shouts resounded until early in the morning.

Now, this was all very well for a time. It had been going on for years, although not in so extreme a form, and so the natives passed it up as a bad business that could not be bettered. Then another element appeared which put a new face on matters. Like any other community, New Germantown contained several resident characters of bilious tendencies who joined the visitors in their celebrations and soon became the wildest of all. At last the fruit was gone and the "hoboes" too, had drifted away.

"Now," thought the citizens, "peace will be with us." But not so. On the first Saturday night the ill-will was aroused out of sight, and the resident characters did it all. They had set out to keep up the pace set by their late brethren, and they succeeded pretty well.

Thus matters stood for several weeks, and, in spite of protests to the constable, the disturbance constantly grew worse. Then one morning things came to a head. A leading townsman stepped out of his door and discovered a recumbent form in the spot where a favorite potted plant should have been. The townsman deposited the inert one more or less carefully in the gutter and set out to gather other prominent citizens together. They met in a store and in a very short time a law and order club had been formed, from which the mandate went forth that the next man seen drunk would be summarily and incontinently "pinched."

"They'll never do it," said the tipplers; "why, there ain't no law, real law, back of such a bluff."

So one of them made a test case that very night by running amuck down the main street. In just five minutes by the clock he was locked up in a lively stable with a law and order man on guard. Next day a local justice of the peace fined him heavily.

To-day the man who feels the need of his liquor regularly in that section takes a bottle of whisky and goes into the woods and casts fearful glances over his shoulder as he partakes of it.

$1,850,000 Just for Furnishings. And in our city hotels we have not included the cost of furnishings and equipment into the Waldorf-Astoria Mr. Boldt, or those behind him, put about $1,850,000. The management of the Plaza estimate their furnishings outlay at $1,000,000. The same figure is a minimum for the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia and the New Congress in Chicago. We find such random items as $200,000 for kitchen equipment, $50,000 for refrigerators, $60,000 for a single "state apartment," $50,000 for mirrors, $10,000 for a Louis XV. bed. The St. Regis put $550,000 into its bedroom floors alone. In the preliminary estimates for a hotel to cost $4,000,000, examined by the writer, $500,000 is allotted for furnishings, "upstairs," and $700,000 to three lower floors. Originally "hotels" were great town houses of the French nobility. Their imitators in twentieth century America are doing very well indeed.—Van Norden's Magazine.

Why Lights Injure Eyes. Our grandfathers, who were obliged to read their few papers by candle light, escaped many of the eye troubles which are common among their descendants who use electric lamps and incandescent gas mantles. It is the ultra-violet rays in our brilliant lights that are at fault, say oculists.

Dr. Terrien has found that the arc light contains three times as many of the objectionable rays as the Edison lamp, four times as many as the ordinary gas light or the petroleum lamp, six times as many as the old-fashioned oil lamp and infinitely more than candle light, which is almost free from ultraviolet rays.

The mysterious vapor lamp with glass shades of a greenish-yellow tint to filter out the dangerous rays is best.

WORLD'S DEBT TO BACTERIA

Their Work Is In Removing the Bodies of Each Generation to Make Room for the Next.

Geologists tell us that, as it is, entire strata of rocks on the earth's surface are largely made up of the skeletons of once living forms. Hence if it were not for bacteria, corpses would soon pile higher than the Andes, and the earth would be choked with its own dead. In other words, bacteria keep life going by removing the bodies of each generation to make room for the next. Thus life here begins with microbes and ends with them. Therefore, all this shows how in one way, at least, bacteria are indispensable, and we ought to be disinterested enough to admire their activity in thus working for the good of posterity, since without them there would soon be no posterity. This is the reason, when told that if he died for old Ireland he would gain the applause of posterity, demurred with the words, "Faith, what has posterity done for me that I should die for it?"

But do bacteria produce only what benefits for us, or cannot they furnish us with some antemortem ones? I am glad to say that some varieties of bacteria promise to increase our foodstuffs to an extent difficult for us now to foretell. But this statement needs some explanation. In the first place, the chemical element, nitrogen, is a necessary ingredient in our food, whether that be vegetable or animal. Now, three-fifths of the atmosphere is composed of nitrogen, and hence it may be imagined that we need not fear this source of supply giving out.—Everybody's Magazine.

Still Engaged in Relief Work. Lieutenant Commander Belknap, the American naval attaché in Berlin, is still engaged in superintending the relief work on account of the earthquake at Reggio, Italy, carried on by the United States government.

Consistent. "Uncle Joe Cannon says he is only the servant of the house of representatives."

"Well, he lords it over them as if he were their cook."

More of Pa's Wisdom. Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a philosopher?

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

And Requires An Internal Remedy.

The cause of Rheumatism and kindred diseases is an excess of the blood.
To cure this terrible disease this acid must be expelled and the system so regulated that no acid will be formed in excessive quantities.
Rheumatism is an internal disease and cannot be cured by external means. Rubbing oil on limbs will not cure, affords only temporary relief at best, causes you to delay the proper treatment, allows the malady to get a firmer hold on you. Limbs may be massaged, but they will not cure Rheumatism.
These pills will change the root of the disease, has at last discovered a perfect and complete cure, which is called "Rheumoid."
It has cured hundreds of cases, it has effected the most marvelous cures. It acts on the system, cleanses the blood, regulates the liver and kidneys, and makes you well all over. Rheumoid "strikes the root of the disease and removes its cause." This splendid remedy is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere at 50c and $1 a bottle. In tables and in the package. Get a bottle today. Write to Dr. J. H. Phillips, 1010

THE WIZARD OF THE TAPE

BY HAROLD C. BURR

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The gods of chance had called Andy Gage and he had hearkened. "There's no doubt of it," he said to his partner, Jenkins. "It's the wisest step we can take. We ought to branch out on a larger scale. Of course we'll have to put in a quotation board, hire bigger offices and more clerks. But look how our profits will increase, man! We ought to get in some outside customers. There's Duncan for one."

"Who's he?" asked old Jenkins, wavering. "Some friend of yours?"

"Yes—a stock gambling friend. He's a corker with a barrel of money behind him, his own. He don't dabble in stocks; he plunges. The tips he gets are safe and sure—absolutely. He's hand-and-glove with the big men—bank presidents, railroad wreckers and makers, financial giants—the crowd who moves things." Andy laughed. "The wizard of the tape. I can swing him into line. Jenkins, we ought to branch out."

Jenkins had known the strife of the street, man and boy. "That's all right," he said dubiously, "but I'm getting along in life. I've been through panic scares. I know what shirking, unrepentant margins mean—the danger. You're young and have never seen dull times down here. Private wires and heavy expenses—why, I wouldn't sleep nights!"

"Look around you, Jenkins," pleaded young Gage. "There's hundreds of successful firms all about us doing a customer's business. Watch them forge ahead. We're being distanced, side-tracked, lost among the small fry. There's no use in dodging, we're taking the dust of the big procession. We ought to branch out."

And his partner, eager yet cautious, caught some of the boy's enthusiasm. "That settles it," he conceded. "But if we're moved down"—doubtfully.

"We won't be," declared Gage. The new venture was a pronounced success from the start. Jenkins had rich friends who rallied around him solidly. Young Gage's wizard never balked about margins to carry along his big stock balances. The profits the first year doubled, tripled, quadrupled any in the concern's history. Andy was vindicated, elated; the senior partner converted.

A smash did come. Duncan, Jenkins & Co.'s star customer, was away somewhere shooting quail. On the eve of his departure he had disposed of everything bar five thousand Seaboard Traction. High prices faded and died that day, ten points loss. Jenkins, watching the tape like a hawk, telephoning, anxious, tried to reach Duncan by wire. No use. Nobody knew where he was, how to reach him. And his security vanished like snow on the Fourth of July.

Gage, because he was young and active, clear-headed, was over on the floor, tearing madly around, executing stop-loss orders, seeing the house of finance shake, hearing it tumbling about in his ears. His partner of the quaking heart sent him notes by the dozens—"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

"Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!" said Andy. "Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

the door was closed and he and Duncan were alone.

"What's all this rubbish I hear?" Andy laughed, awkwardly nervous. "Jenkins is scared. He's somehow got some fool idea into his head you're going to knife us. You—why, it's bosh and moonshine! You—"

"In the first place," the other requested on the spot, "please don't get theatrical. Heroes are crude and won't help you any. You're whipped, beaten, squelched!" He lounged on the table, half on, half off, leaning on his knee, laughing coolly, triumphant.

"I'm prepared to admit I'm false to the lady of the drama calls a false friend. I'm a rascal—anything. But I swore to get you, Gage, and I have, a—n you!"

Gage was stricken dumb. He stood where he was, quivering, his nostrils blowing, his young, shrewd face gray and wild. The blood pounded in his brain, clogging his thought. It was too horrible to understand. Duncan—the friend—the man he had trusted—hated him!

"What's—what's the game?" he mouthed, not realizing his nostrils blowing, his young, shrewd face gray and wild. The blood pounded in his brain, clogging his thought. It was too horrible to understand. Duncan—the friend—the man he had trusted—hated him!

"The game! The game!" the sneering wizard said after him. "Don't you know I hate you? Haven't you realized I love—love—Joan Rickard, the girl you married? No, you don't know so I'll tell you, Andy Gage!" His voice rose sharply, quickly, and he panted. "I do, I do, I do—these things! How I've waited, waited, waited, endless waits, weary waits! And now my chance has come. God! My chance has come!" The walls of the room were his cage now, restraining his frenzied pacing, beating him back. "I knew how the cat would jump, knew the market was top-heavy. I loaded up to the muzzle on Seaboard Traction. I went—nowhere. Thought I'd be a weakling and let you bleed me, hey? Why, you easy—keep off there!" he suddenly yelled.

But Gage, infuriated, goaded by his taunts, was flying for his throat, sinking his fingers there, crashing to the floor with the man who had betrayed him. The whole office was in an uproar. Clerks, headed by Jenkins, poured in upon the two battling men, squirming and cursing on the carpet. They had to pry them apart, Duncan gasping, bloody and frightened, his coat ripped and twisted, his flower gone; Gage unhurt, insane to rend and tear. A minute of chaotic confusion and—the wizard of the tape had vanished.

Jenkins & Co.'s course was run. It was hopeless to even attempt to continue business. Everything had to be sacrificed overboard to meet a settlement of eighty cents on the dollar. Duncan's revenge was complete, obliterated.

Jenkins, who was luckily a bachelor, went west to end his days on a hundred farm of his sister's. "You'll come to the surface again," he said to Gage on leaving. "They can't keep a good man down—if he's young. And see here, my boy, don't you ever go and forget Wizard Duncan!"

And Gage, miserable because he deserved all the blame, had squeezed his honest old withered hand. "I'll square our score!" he vowed stoutly. "The mills of the gods will help. I'm living for that. How I'll stamp him into the ground if I ever get the opportunity!"

Andy went around among his financial friends to see where he stood. "I don't want favors," he said to them. "I want work and a chance to retrieve. Yes, I am down, but I'm not quite out. I'm coming back."

Newcomb, of Newcomb & Hatch, had the most to offer. "Sure, old man, I'll do what I can. But look here, how did you get crippled? Some customer—?" he insinuated. But such a hard, level look had crept into Gage's eyes that he hastened on. "We want a telephone clerk—twenty dollars a week."

It wasn't much of a place for Andy, but false pride was but a symbol with him. He was out to get a fresh grip and it mattered not where he caught hold. The duties of a telephone clerk are not complicated, but vital, the manning of nearly every transaction on the floor of the stock exchange. Orders are telephoned to the board over private wires from the various offices. The order is written on a pad by the man at the exchange end of the connection, and forwarded to be executed.

He and Joan had to buckle down to hard-pan. But she had married him because she loved him, not to splurge, not to pose like a big, graceful, useless doll as the wife of rich young Andy Gage.

And the gods of chance still flitted with him. One day Wizard Duncan opened an account with Newcomb & Hatch, Andy's very employers, where at Andy waited, watchful and cautious. He laid in wait under cover.

The young telephone clerk contracted the laudable habit of keeping late office hours—to secretly pore over the customers' accounts. He learnt by heart and kept himself posted on every detail of the wizard's trading.

Then things failed to break right for Duncan. He began to slide. The big of the pool crowd who had allied many a ripe melon with him had died under the surgeon's knife. Speculating on margins is a precarious calling. It's an adage of the sound financial world that sooner or later he who gambles on the tape is lost. But Duncan hung on, going deeper and deeper, totally unable to break the shackles of the mania that had seized him, his very blood mad to win back his dwindling fortune. But the climax was reached on the Tonopah preferred deal.

He was heavily long on Tonopah preferred, a one-track system whose next to worthless stock was flim-flammed up and flim-flammed down, the price a mere decoy and a fake. Now the wizard was still solid in certain circles where they pull the string. Tonopah preferred was a good purchase at 40, a gold brick twenty points higher. Forty was low water, 60 high tide. It was all very simple to his understanding, the A B C of the game of stocks. Two weeks after he bought he received a telegram marked "rush."

"Sell quick! Fight on with Tonopah directors." Going to wreck, merge, freeze-out.

And Duncan was up to his neck in Tonopah preferred. It had seemed such a safe play, such a sure chance. But it hadn't been a chance. It had been a sure thing.

"I want to see you—alone," the wizard repeated stubbornly.

Jenkins started to say something, hesitated and stopped altogether. Andy nudged him and led the way to his private office. The next moment succeeded in fooling even himself. He would make a big haul and bid good-bye to the ticker, bid farewell to the nerve-racking, furious strife—forever. But even now he wasn't afraid, disappointed. His brain, working smoothly, naturally saw the easy way to hedge, to still play trumps. He gave his brokers instructions to sell twenty thousand shares of Tonopah preferred, whereas before he had been long but not ten thousand. It wasn't smart. It was the logical remedy. The telegram had warned him and gone over his head harmlessly.

That order came buzzing over the wire into Andy Gage's ear. Outside of the booth, of ringing phones, out on the floor of the exchange rose the murmuring about of Wall Street's pulse, dust-laden, jumbled, incessant. But Gage shut out all else save that dropping voice that came to him from the office. It was the voice of opportunity. Sell twenty thousand Tonopah preferred! It was a big order, a mighty big order, hampered by no price limitations. Sell at the market! The clerk at the other end was instructing him to scatter the order around in small lots, to sell by easy stages. Twenty thousand shares! Gage knew for whose account the sale was for. Something had happened. A break was coming. Why, Duncan was selling out, going short on Tonopah preferred!

He jingled the receiver back in place, wrote down the order facetiously, took a long breath and—tore it into long, thin strips.

The office of Newcomb & Hatch was a scene of angry shouts, accusations and denials. Duncan scented carelessness of some sort on somebody's part. He could feel himself grow moist and sick and desperate. Somehow the stock hadn't been sold. Newcomb, floor member of the firm, had denied all knowledge of the order. The wizard's margin was gone three times over. The borrowed trust funds he had staked were gambled away.

"Keep cool half a minute," Newcomb advised him strongly, seeing bad breakers ahead. "The firm can never weather this broadside. We're all in the same boat, rapids-bound. But keep cool. We'll ask Andy and see. He'll know."

And Andy came walking into the midst of them, into the midst of confusion and mystery. He looked straight at Duncan and—smiled, his blood beating a tattoo of victory. His enemy faced him one brief, paralyzing second in silence, white and stiff with sudden amazement, sudden understanding, sudden, rekindled hate.

"You—here!" he strangled out. "Why, you—"

Gage laughed mirthlessly. "You're whipped, beaten, squelched!" he mocked him tauntingly and laughed again in his face. He came closer to the man he had beaten down. "Yes, I tore up the order, your order. Yes, I sent fake reports on sales over here. Turn about is fair play, and I've turned—on you!"

Newcomb was gradually regaining his poise, his power to act. He pushed Andy Gage aside.

"What's the meaning of this outrage!" he demanded roughly. "You ungrateful young whipper-snapper, what have you done? We'll bring the insolence out of you. You're fired, discharged, dyer hear!"

"Of course," nodded Gage evenly. "It doesn't matter. But you won't suffer—Newcomb & Hatch won't. That can be easily arranged. You see, I heard from Jenkins yesterday. He's struck a million-dollar oil gusher on his sister's farm, and we're going to start up again. He'll stand your losses in Tonopah, Mr. Newcomb—gladly. I'll write him how I broke a traitor's back."

"That was all, and he half turned to go. Duncan was snarling at him. His big white teeth were chewing his lip, splitting the skin there into dry wet, red cracks. Poison centered, hard and steadfast, in the green of his contracted eyes. Suddenly he reached around back of him under the drop of his coat, the lust of the slaughter blast his sanity. He cursed when the revolver he carried caught in the pocket holster, and jerked it free. The arm of the maniac leveled. Once, twice he blazed into Andy Gage's face, missing both shots. Burrowing into the soft plaster of the side wall, the bullets found another mark. Every light in the office shivered, winked and went out. The flame of his weapon sputtered again through the dark. But the danger was over. He had turned the smoking barrel on himself.

Duncan had solved the last great riddle of life. The wizard of the tape was dead.

Preparatory service will be held on Thursday night of next week, March 31st. The session of the church will meet for the reception of new members either by letter or on profession, after each service tomorrow and after both the Wednesday and Thursday evening services.

—Miss Helen Wooten, of Laurel, Del., Miss Elizabeth Cole, St. Paul, Minn., and Miss Nettie Jones, of Baltimore, are the guests of Miss Maria Ellegood, North Division Street.

—LOST.—Dust-cap off automobile wheel with word "Anson" thereon, somewhere on the streets of Salisbury, Saturday afternoon. Finder please return to ADVERTISER office.

—Some of the students home for Easter are—Misses Ruth Price, Helen Graham, Sarah Utman, Catherine Toddvin; Messrs. Newton Jackson, Clarence Wheelton, Franklin Woodcock and Percy White.

—Married at the Methodist Protestant Parsonage on Division Street, March 23rd, 1910, by Rev. Dr. W. R. Graham, Mr. John Edward Nook, of the firm of Nook Bros., and Miss Willie Belle Disharoon, both of Salisbury.

—At the Surplus Store Sale yesterday the stock was bought by Fleishman and Barns Co., of Philadelphia, for $4500; fixtures, $358; Cash register by Graceman, of Philadelphia, $150. Ground lease and building by J. Sian, of Coatesville, Pa.

—The Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Co., has made a big improvement at the Fulton Station yards by scraping and resurfacing the entire street. Mill Street, owing to the very heavy traffic, was badly out of the mud and was several inches deep. By the use of several car loads of shells the street is now in fine condition.

—Electrocution as a death penalty in Maryland is provided in a bill Senator Price introduced Thursday. He introduced a similar bill two years ago to do away with hanging in Maryland, but it failed. Senator Price said his idea was that Maryland should stand with other States in the adoption of the modern method of executing criminals.

—The Laymen's Association of the Wilmington Conference concluded its annual convention on Saturday afternoon. Officers as follows were elected: President, J. E. Ellegood, of Salisbury; Vice Presidents, Melville Gambrill, of Wilmington, Thomas H. Rawlins, of Seaford, Walter O. Hoffecker of Smyrna, and John G. Townsend, of Salisbury; Secretary, C. A. Short, of Newark; Treasurer, John P. Holland, of Milford.

—Smith Street was visited by another fire Wednesday morning of this week, which started in the residence of Elwood Downing. This two story frame building, containing eight rooms, was almost completely destroyed, together with much of the contents. The dwelling of Voorhees Castle, adjoining, was also badly damaged by the flames. The loss on both properties is estimated at $2,500, partially covered by insurance.

—The Resurrection Body—"With What Body Do They Come?"—will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. Dr. Graham in Bethesda Methodist Protestant Church Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The subject for the morning service at 11 o'clock will be "The Credibility of the Resurrection."

Sabbath School, 9.30 A. M. Junior meeting in the afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Regular Christian Endeavor service, 8.45 P. M. Mid-week service in the lecture room Wednesday evening, 7.30 o'clock.

—Mr. Raymond E. Truitt and Miss May Strum were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Strum, Park Avenue, last Thursday night by Rev. T. E. Martindale, of Ashbury Church. They left on the midnight express north for New York, and other points.

Mr. Truitt, the groom, is the Junior member of the Insurance firm of White & Truitt, and is recognized as one of Salisbury's most popular and prominent young business men. Miss Strum has a host of friends here and is one of Salisbury's most admired young ladies.

—The Easter bonnet is blue, ornamented with red cherries; the Easter bonnet is green trimmed with pale blue roses; the Easter bonnet resembles a coal scuttle; the Easter bonnet looks like an inverted dish pan; the Easter bonnet is quiet and subdued; the Easter bonnet is a rainbow gone mad. In other words, no rule hamper the activities of this important article. In former years it has been required to conform to certain regulations; in the year of grace 1910 almost anything could pass as an Easter bonnet and its subterfuge never discovered. A good formula for the home milliner to follow is this: "Take one moderate sized pan and cover it with straw; wide, as sweet fancy dictates. Add a good part of the trimming from last summer's creation, two feathers from a winter hat, and 14 yards of perfectly new tulle. Stir all together and apply wildly. Put the name Croquette in the crown, and not even an enemy could prove the thing had not come direct from the Rue de la Paix."

Shoes To Last A Lifetime. Say, Mr. Shoemaker, would you rather have your customers speak of your shoes as wearing well, as not running down at the heel, as turning water, and taking a shine; or as their heads and say nothing?

We'd rather have ours, at long intervals, say: "We want some more pairs, and we want Devco." We know it isn't in human nature to paint very often; we don't expect them to come very often; don't want 'em to. All we want is to paint what they have to paint, whenever they paint it; the longer the time, the surer they are to come back. There's business enough in the world; there's business enough to paint; let 'em take their time.

If we were a shoemaker, we'd make shoes to last half a lifetime, and show the whole town. L. W. Gusty Co.

Eat What

You want of the food you need
Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it. If you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength. You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly. When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay. We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you. It would bankrupt us. The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. O. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR
W'GUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

CHAPTER XXVIII THE PERILS AHEAD.

THE man called Abon suddenly leaped to his feet and, with the cry of an eager animal, sprang to her side. His arms closed about her slender figure with the unmistakable lust of the victor. A hoarse, inarticulate cry of rage burst from Brodney's lips. His figure shot out through the air and down the short slope with the rush of an infuriated beast. Even as the astonished Abon dropped his struggling burden to meet the attack of the unexpected deliverer, he was felled to the earth by a mighty blow from the rifle which his assailant swung swift and true. His skull was crushed as if it were an eggshell.

He was felled to the earth by a mighty blow.

Lady Agnes struggled to her feet, wild eyed, half crazed by the double assault. The next instant she fell forward upon her face, dead to all that was to follow in the next few minutes.

There was no struggle. Chase and Selim were upon the stupefied islanders before they could move, covering them with their rifles. The wretches fell upon their knees and howled for mercy. While Deppingham was holding his wife's limp form in his arms, calling out to her in the agony of fear, utterly oblivious to all else that was happening about him, his two friends were swiftly disarming the groveling natives. Selim's knife severed the cords that bound Bobby Browne's hands. He was staring blankly, dizzily before him.

Ten minutes later Chase was addressing himself to the four islanders who, bound and gagged, were tied by their own sashes to trees some distance from the roadside.

"I've just thought of a little service you fellows can perform for me in return for what I've done for you. All the time you're doing it, however, there will be pistols quite close to your backs. Lady Deppingham is much too weak to make the five mile walk we've got to do in the next two hours—or less. You are to have the honor of carrying her four miles and a half, and you will have to get along the best you can with the gags in your mouths. Two of you form a basket with your hands. I'll show you how."

With Selim in the lead the little procession moved swiftly, but cautiously, through the black jungle, bent on reaching the gate if possible before the night lifted. Chase and Bobby Browne brought up the rear with the two reserve carriers in hand. Browne, weak and suffering from torture and exposure, struggled bravely along, determined not to retard their progress by a single moment of indecision.

In his heart Browne was now raging against the fate that had placed him in this humiliating, almost contemptible position. He, and he alone, was responsible for the sufferings that Lady Agnes had endured. It was as gall and wormwood to him that other men had been ordained to save her from the misery that he had created. He could almost have welcomed death for himself and her rather than to have been saved by George Deppingham.

His wife! He could never be the same to her. He had forfeited the trust and confidence of the one loyal believer among them all. And now Lady Deppingham loathed him because his weakness had been greater than hers!

When he would have slain the four helpless islanders with his own hands, Hollingsworth Chase had stayed his rage with the single, caustic adjuration: "Keep out of this, Browne! You've been enough of a boaster without trying that sort of thing!" Tears were in Bobby Browne's eyes as mile after mile he blundered along, his heart bleeding itself dry through the wound those words had made.

It was still pitch dark when they came to the ridge above the park. Through the trees the lights in the chateau could be seen. Lady Agnes opened her eyes and cried out in tremulous joy.

"You've labored well and faithfully," Chase said to the panting islanders. "and I'm going to reward you. I'm going to set you free, but not yet. Don't rejoice. First we shall tie you secretly to four stout trees just off the road. Just as soon as we are inside the walls I'll find some way to let your friends know that you are here."

He and Selim promptly marched the bewildered islanders into the woods. Bobby Browne, utterly exhausted, had thrown himself to the soft earth. Lady Deppingham was standing, swaying, but resolute, her gaze upon the distant friendly windows. After a long, tense moment of indecision she held out her hands, and Deppingham sprang forward to time to catch her as she swayed toward him. She was sobbing in his arms. Bobby Browne's heavy breathing ceased in that instant, and he closed his eyes against the sound that came to them.

Deppingham gently implored her to sit down with him and rest. At last she said: "I've made you unhappy. I've been so foolish. It has not been fun, either, my husband. God knows it hasn't. You do not love me now."

He did not answer her at once, and she shivered fearfully in his arms. Then he kissed her brow gently. "I do love you, Agnes," he said intently. "I will answer for my own love if you can answer for yours. Are you the same Agnes that you were—my Agnes?"

"Will you believe me?"

"Yes."

"I am the same Agnes. I am your Agnes. I am! You do believe me?"

He crushed her close to his breast and then patted her shoulder as a father might have touched an erring child.

At last she spoke: "It is not wholly my fault, George. I was to blame. I led him on. You understand?"

"Poor devil!" said he dryly. "It's a way you have, dear."

The object of this gentle commiseration was staring with gloomy eyes at the lights below. He was saying to himself, over and over again, "If I can only make Drusie understand!"

Chase and Selim came down upon this little low toned picture. The former paused an instant and smiled joyously in the darkness.

"Five men are near the gate," he whispered. "They watch so closely that no one may go to rescue those who have disappeared. Friends are hidden inside the wall, ready to open the gate at a signal. They have waited with Neenah all night. And day is near, sahib."

"We must attack at once," said Chase. "Quiet now!"

Five shadowy figures soon were distinguished huddled close to the wall below the gate. The sense of sight had become keen during those trying hours in the darkness.

The islanders were conversing in low tones, a word or two now and then reaching the ears of the others.

Suddenly a blinding, mysterious flash flashed upon the muttering group. As they fell back a voice, low and firm, called out to them:

"Not a sound or you die!"

Four unwavering rifles were bearing upon the surprised islanders, and four very material men were advancing.

The Princess Geneva was standing before him, her hand touching her turban in salute.

ing from the ghastly darkness. An electric lantern shot a ray of light athwart the scene.

"Drop your guns—quick!" commanded Chase. "Don't make a row!"

Paralyzed with fear and amazement, the men obeyed.

While the three white men kept their covered with their rifles Selim rai to the gate, uttering the shrill cry of a night bird. There was a rush of feet inside the walls, subdued exclamations, then a glad cry.

"Quick!" called Selim. The keys rattled in the locks, the bolts were thrown down, and an instant later Lady Deppingham was lying across the space which intervened between her and the gate.

The men were beside her a moment later, possessed of the weapons of the helpless sentinels. With a crash the gates were closed, and a joyous laugh rang out from the exultant throat of Hollingsworth Chase.

"By the Lord Harry, this is worth while!" he shouted. Outside the mad-dened guards were sounding the tardy alarm. The first gray shade of day was coming into the night.

He saw Neenah ahead of him, standing still in the center of the gravelled path. Beyond her was the tall figure of a man.

"You are a trump, Neenah," cried Chase, hurrying up to her, "a Persian angel!"

It was not Neenah's laugh that replied. Chase gasped in amazement and then uttered a cry of joy.

The Princess Geneva, slim and erect, was standing before him, her hand touching her turban in true military salute, soft laughter rippling from her lips.

In the exuberance of joy he clasped that little hand and crushed it against his lips.

"The devil!" fell involuntarily from his lips.

"Not at all! He is here to keep me from going to the devil!" she cried so merrily that he laughed aloud with her in the spirit of unbounded joy.

"Come! Let us run after the others. I want to run and dance and sing!"

He still held her hand as they ran swiftly down the drive, followed closely by the faithful sergeant.

"You are an angel," he said in her ear. She laughed as she looked up into his face.

"Yes—a Persian angel," she cried. "It's so much easier to run well in a Persian angel's costume," she added.

THE RUSSIAN PEASANT.

Stupid and Poor, a Good Fellow Who Merely Exists.

The Russian peasant does not live; he merely exists. "Nitchewo" ("It is nothing"), he merely says when anything happens to him. Nothing matters, nothing could be worse, and "Nitchewo" is his panacea for all evils.

And yet the Russian moujik is really a fine fellow. Ordinarily, E. P. Renard tells us in his book, "The Russian Peasant," he is a splendid, well built man, large limbed, large headed and healthy. He is equally unaffected by 20 degrees of frost or twenty glasses of vodka. He is clothed in unadorned sheepskins and carries in winter more clothes than the average Englishman could stand up in.

He is unspeakably stupid, however, and his dream of happiness is to gorge, to sleep as much as possible through the winter and dance and sing in the summer. But the stranger's first objection to the moujik is that he smells.

not because he does not wash himself. As a matter of fact, in every village there are public baths—baths—and the peasants wash themselves there untiringly every Saturday in order to be allowed to go to church on Sunday, for the Orthodox church enjoins cleanliness.

The Russian peasant is always poor and generally in debt. He plows the land in the same way that his father plowed it and gets as little for his labor. His main worry in life is how to pay the governor's taxes. If he says he cannot pay he is flogged, or perhaps he will lose part of his next year's power of work—a work for nothing for several months—to raise a loan, and of course he is worse off than ever the following year.

On Christmas night at dusk the marriageable village girls go out into the streets and meet their young men, and one says, "What is your name?" The young man answers "Foma," and she replies, "My husband's name is Foma."

Some days later at the girl's home relations are gathered together. There comes a knock at the door. The starosta and the young man enter, carrying a lovely bride. The starosta says something like this:

"We are German people, come from Turkey. We are hunters, good fellows. There was a time once in our country when we saw strange footprints in the snow, and my friend the prince here saw them, and we thought they might be a fox's or marten's footprints or it might be those of a beautiful girl. We hunters, we good fellows, are determined not to rest till we have found the animal. We have been in all cities from Germany to Turkey and have sought for this fox, this marten or this princess, and at last we have seen the same strange footprints in the snow again, here by your court. And we have come in. Come, let us take her, the beautiful princess, for we see her in front of us, or can it be that you would keep her till she grows a little older?"

Thus does the moujik ask for a wife.

From Bad to Worse.

A gentleman was admiring his pigeons the other afternoon when he heard a curious "thud" and saw one of his birds drop from a window sill to the ground.

Turning round, the gentleman was just in time to see a small boy in a blue jacket and cap and run.

After a short chase the culprit was caught.

"You young scoundrel!" ejaculated the angry owner of the pigeon. "What do you mean by coming and shooting my birds?"

"Please, sir, I didn't mean to do it," whined the captive. "I—I didn't shoot at the pigeon."

"Come, come," said the gentleman, "don't make matters worse. I saw the bird fall, and if you did not aim at it how came you to hit it?"

"Please, sir," blubbered the boy, "the pigeon got in the way. I—I was aiming at the window."—London Tit-Bits.

Inventor Davy and Love.

Sir Humphry Davy, the inventor of the Davy lamp, found love something of a delusion, if not a snare. Writing to his mother, he said, "I am the happiest of men in the hope of a union with a woman equally distinguished for virtues, talents and accomplishments."

And in a letter to his brother he expresses his rapture thus: "Mrs. Appreche has consented to marry me, and when the event takes place I shall not envy kings, princes or potentates."

The wifewoman had been a person possessed of great powers of fascination, for Sir Humphry Holland makes mention of her as a lady who made such a sensation in Edinburgh society that even a regius professor did not think it beneath his scholarship to go down on his knees in the street to fasten her shoe. The sequel need not be dwelt upon further than to add that the marriage turned out to be altogether a mistake.

Ferguson and the Rabbits.

Robert Ferguson, a poet, was first matriculated at St. Andrew's university in the session of 1764-5. It was the custom at this time for each bursar to take his turn in invoking "blessings" at the meals. The college table having been surfeited with an unbroken diet of rabbits in various forms of cookery, Ferguson, on being called to say grace, repeated what are now celebrated lines:

For rabbits young and for rabbits old,
For rabbits hot and for rabbits cold,
For rabbits tender and for rabbits tough
Our thanks we render, for we've had enough.

It may be added Ferguson was not sent down, but the rabbits were "tasted."

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Salisbury Citizen Can Afford To Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well known excretory organs, the kidneys, excrete a clear, amber fluid. Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Salisbury proof.

J. S. Disharoon, 318 Elizabeth Street, Salisbury, Md., says: "For ten years kidney trouble made me miserable. I suffered from pains in the small of my back and when I got up in the morning, I was so lame that I could hardly move about. I was languid and often noticed that the kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained much sediment. Finally I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me promptly. This remedy has been of more benefit to me than any other I have ever taken for my kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

600,000 YEARS OLD

Age Of Woman's Skull. Ate Nuts. Brain Was Larger Than Supposed.

Prof. Arthur Keith, curator of the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, who has been engaged in an examination of the famous prehistoric skull unearthed at Gibraltar some years ago, has announced his conclusions in the matter. The chief of these conclusions is that the skull is that of a woman who must have lived at least 600,000 years ago.

This skull has been the object of the examination of many scientists, and many theories have been evolved as a result. Professor Keith approached the task of lifting the veil from the past with a new system of intricate measurements and all the resources of science at his back, and he has compared the Gibraltar skull with all other available prehistoric relics.

"I have little doubt that the skull is that of a woman," he said, "and discarding technicalities, from the size of her brain, she must have been a shrewd one—probably a woman, too, of considerable spirit. One can reckon pretty accurately also the time at which she lived. It must have been at least 600,000 years ago."

From the shape of the jaws and the fact that the muscles of mastication were remarkably strong, it is possible to deduce what this prehistoric woman ate. Nuts and probably roots entered very largely into her diet. She was in the habit of eating things which required a great amount of mastication before much nourishment could be derived from them, hence the unusual development of the jaw muscles.

"The men of 600,000 years ago were without doubt long armed. Their legs were short, and they had abnormally thick necks. It is clear, too, I think, that their brains were far larger than has previously been conceded to be the case. It seems reasonable to believe, too, that they were able to speak to each other, for from my examination of the brain cavity of the skull I have been able to deduce quite clearly that the cells controlling speech were there."

The prehistoric woman's skull indicates she had a large nose. Her eyes, too, must have been prominent, and her palate was one-third larger than that of the woman of today.

Spiritism Said To Be Demonism.

A most interesting little brochure has recently come off the press, setting forth with Bible proofs that the communications received by and through Spiritist Mediums is of Demon origin. The writer traces his subject through the Scriptures from the time when certain of the holy angels became disobedient. He proves from the Scriptures that these fallen spirits deal in personating the human dead, with whose past history, spirits, though invisible, are thoroughly acquainted. He shows that they also frequently personate the Creator and the Redeemer, commanding their deceived ones to pray, do penance, etc. This, however, is merely to lead them on and to bring them more thoroughly under demoniacal control. Sometimes by breaking down the natural barrier, the human will, they obsess their victim and rule him more or less to his ruin—frequently sending such to the mad-house. Numerous illustrations, Scriptural and otherwise, are given. The price of the little book is but ten cents; it should be in the hands of all interested in Spiritism or who have friends interested therein. Enclose five two-cent stamps to the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Difficult Scriptures On Hell.

A little book selling at only ten cents, postpaid, is having a very wide circulation—running up into the millions. It contains some very startling information respecting the meaning of the word Hell. It claims to demonstrate, both from the Hebrew and the Greek of our Bible, that Hell is NOT a place of eternal torment, but merely another name for the Tomb, the Grave, the State of Death. It affects to show that man was not redeemed from a far-off place of eternal torture, but quotes the Scriptures, proving that he was Redeemed from the Grave at the cost of his Redeemer's life, and that the Scriptural hope, both for the Church and the World, is a resurrection hope based upon the death and resurrection of Jesus. The book is certainly worth the reading. The information it furnishes is certainly valuable, far beyond its trifling cost. Order it at once from the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The HARVEST MOON

HE put up the diaphan, rinsed the soap off her hands in the basin and dried them on the hand towel.

As she did this the light from the lamp shone on her face. It brought out against dark shadows the high cheekbones, the set mouth drooping at the corners, the heavy brown hair drawn tightly back from the forehead and the cold eyes.

She sighed deeply as she stepped to the lamp to lower its light, but her face did not relax with the sigh. In the growing darkness of the room a streak of moonlight, coming through a small opening of the door, stood out distinctly. This caught her eye. She stepped to the door and flung it open.

Moonlight flooded the room. It enveloped her.

She stepped out into this ethereal glow of the harvest moon, which blotted the earthly lines of care and monotony so lately written inexorably in her face.

It was kind, and how she had longed for kindness! In the exhilaration of the moment she forgot the drudgery of her life, forgot that to-morrow would come and with it the round of hard work—cows to milk, men to feed, berries to pick, the baking, scrubbing—all the innumerable things that never come to an end. She forgot that she was tired, that it was late and that the men were in bed.

She only felt—felt without thinking—that something was leading her on, that something thrilled her and seemed to be lifting her away from weary things.

She followed the moonlight, followed it through the field where the late summer grain had been piled in sheaves, each tawny pile topped with its fringing sheaf, each casting a pyramidal purple shadow on the yellow stubble. It seemed to her that a field never had looked so beautiful before.

She followed the moonlight past the tall trees that stood apart like sentinels and basked contentedly in the silver light.

She followed it down the stretch of rutted road to where the willows leaned over a ribbon of silver water.

There she stopped. She had reached Willow creek and could follow the moonlight no farther.

Still her dream did not desert her. She watched the silver shower of insects dance above the water. She watched them without thinking, only delighting in the vague hypnotic power of the night and the moon, only feeling that all was well for the moment and she must not think.

When a chill of dampness crept over her, her dream ended. She shivered and sighed.

But though the dream was gone, the hard look did not return to her features. The face was softened by the gentle light, and then came these thoughts:

"I have been mean to John because I had to work so hard. He has worked hard, too, and things haven't always gone well. I never tried to make it easy for him. I never cared except that it seemed as if I should always have to work and work. I've thought only of how it was going to be for me and didn't care about him."

"That's the reason I'm cross and ugly and people are almost afraid to speak to me. Why shouldn't the men who work for John never have a word for me? They like John because he isn't ugly and mean and I am."

"My life has been hard, but I've made it harder and made life harder for John, too."

"Oh, how soft, how good, how glorified the moonlight has made everything!"

"I wish John could see this night, but I suppose he would see nothing different. I suppose he's too tired. Poor John!"

She put her apron to her eyes and then quickly smoothed it down. As she neared the little plain farmhouse, her home and John's, she saw a dark figure on the back porch. To have been caught showing emotion would have been strange indeed in her. Her face stiffened back to the old lines.

But it was only for a moment and then with conscious effort she allowed her features to relax again.

John was sitting on the porch. His head bent forward as he drowsed. The wife put her hand fondly upon the drooping head. It did not seem so strange to caress him as she had expected. John woke with a start.

"John," she said, "why aren't you in bed? Have the others gone to bed?"

"I thought I'd stay up for you, Annie. There's a full moon. Did you see it? Seems as if I ain't seen so fine a night since a long time."

He fumbled awkwardly for Annie's other hand and took it in his two big calloused hands.

They said nothing. They couldn't. All seemed so strange and new. For the moonlight had brought a wonderful kindness.—Chicago Daily News.
