homecoming 1969

based on the theme "our american heritage," homecoming 1969 began with the decoration of the residence halls. on friday night, chuck berry was featured entertainment at compton auditorium. alpha delta chi, alpha xi delta, and the spanish club were division winners in the traditional saturday morning parade.

beautiful fall weather continued as the bobcats won the soccer game against trenton state, and then defeated bridgewater (va.) in the football game. lovely miss sandy berry, crowned during halftime activities, reigned as homecoming queen.

many students and their guests enjoyed the on-and off-campus dances which provided a memorable ending for the weekend.

p. e. club

to promote good sportsmanship, to gain participation and support for athletic teams and events—these are the aims of fsc's p.e. club. mr. and mrs. fred surgent advise the club and its officers who are (below, left to right) bill freeland—president, gloria ogg—secretary, damien howell—treasurer, linda farver—vice-president, and mike rowe—chairman of the men's division.

men's intramurals

men's intramurals allow competition between various fraternity and residence hall teams. the program, sponsored by the athletic committee, is supervised by instructors in the physical education department.

the purpose of the artist series is to bring to the campus annually a group of distinguished lecturers and other performing artists. a committee of faculty and students plan the series which is supported by funds from student association and the state of maryland.

one of the most outstanding events in the artist series was the performance of walter hautzig, concert pianist.

honors convocation

dr. john e. kane, visiting professor of health and physical education, was the principal speaker.

miss judy hughes receives the mathematics award from dr. walter j. rissler, department head.

the convocation is annually held to honor fsc's outstanding students. departmental and organizational awards are presented, those named to who's who in american colleges and universities are announced, and members of each class having the highest grade averages are recognized. black-gowned and colorfully mantled according to their academic fields, administrators and professors solemnly participate in this traditional event.

dr. keneth jablon, dean of the college, announced the award winners.

several who's whos congregate before the convocation.

not far away from the carefully decorated offices, president nelson p. guild makes last-minute preparations for his speech.

june week

this year the traditional june week of activities for seniors was highlighted by a rainy bull roast at platter's barn (opposite page), saturday's whiskey sour hour, and the faculty-senior banquet with a briggs-toon and nordvall-phipps comedy routine. at left, cindy butts presents a gift to mr. david sandford, class advisor. randy hilton, below, makes his last formal speech as senior class president.

once upon a time there was a little town, and in this town
there was a college.

this town and college were very, very small—some people never learned to appreciate either of them.

and, likewise, other people felt they had spent some of their best years in this tiny place.

1970 may not have been one of fsc's best years, but it certainly was one to remember . . . remember until . . . the end.

this book is dedicated to every student attending frostburg state college. we hope that it presents the past year faithfully. the pictures are captured moments of time, the words are expressions of ideas. together they function to create the thoughts and memories of the fsc student. i would like to express my special thanks for the fine work done by betty stanton, my diligent copy editor.
