Cynthia Smith New FSU Police Chief

FSU has chosen a 22-year veteran of the Maryland State Police as the next chief of University Police. Retired MSP Lt. Col. Cynthia R. Smith of Grantsville, administrator of the Garrett County Detention Center, will assume her duties Wednesday, April 1.

Cynthia R. Smith

“I was extremely impressed with Chief Smith’s view of the role she wants to play with our students and the local community,” said FSU President Jonathan Gibralter. “Her goal for the future is on prevention first, enforcement and developing relationships with students and the community. I feel very fortunate to have someone of her caliber agree to join the Frostburg State University community.”

Smith said a university atmosphere, and specifically FSU’s, fits well with her policing philosophy. “I’m a participatory manager and a participatory police officer. It’s critical to listen to the community we have there, the students, the faculty and the police officers,” she said. “FSU really embodies the community policing concept.”

Smith agrees wholeheartedly with Gibralter’s approach to preventing the abuse of alcohol among students. “He’s committed to preventing dangerous binge drinking, and his ideas are dead spot on,” she said.

Smith has spent a total of 26 years in law enforcement, with 16 years in a command capacity, including as chief,

Special Programs for the State Police. She holds master’s and bachelor’s degrees from the Johns Hopkins Police Executive Leadership Program; she is also a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy, the Police Executive Research Forum, the Traffic Institute of Northwestern University and Garrett Community College.

Smith succeeds Acting Police Chief Clyde W. “Bill” Stewart, a 34-year veteran of University Police, and former Police Chief Brian Shanley, who served as chief since 1988 and retired in October.

Shah Honored With Regents’ Award for Public Service

The University System of Maryland was recently reminded how dedicated FSU faculty are to service when it recognized an FSU business professor with a Regents’ Faculty Award. Dr. Amit Shah, professor of management, was one of only four faculty members statewide to receive a Regents’ Faculty Award for Public Service in recognition of his contributions to his community and profession. He will be formally presented the award during a USM Board of Regents meeting Friday, April 10, at UMBC.

“Dr. Shah is among the faculty who are the most vocal about the need for University commitment to and engagement in the community,” said FSU President Jonathan Gibralter, noting Shah’s involvement as a project coordinator for the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene’s AIDS administration grants, which are designed to build the capacity of community-based organizations in Maryland. “These grants have totaled over $100,000 in the past three years to help more than 20 CBOs with support for training, equipment and organizational development.”

Shah founded the FSU College of Business’ Center for Community Partnership, which works to provide area businesses with skills development and management training workshops. The organization, recently transformed into the Center for Leadership Development, offers workshops specific to organizational needs at regional and national levels. Shah has also been active with the Allegany Chamber of Commerce’s Leadership Allegany! program and the Frostburg City Arts and Entertainment District Steering Committee.

Shah has contributed significant service to his profession during his 19 years at FSU. He has served on the editorial boards of three journals: “AIMS International Journal of Management,” “The Coastal Business Journal” and the “Advanced Management Journal.” Shah also served as president, vice president and program chair of the Southeast Decision Sciences Institute and the Southeastern Chapter of the Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (SE INFORMS). He won an Outstanding Service Award from SE INFORMS in 2008.

“It’s really a wonderful and humbling experience to be recognized by your peers,” Shah said. “I think of doing service as part of my daily routine, something that makes me a person. I am honored to be recognized for something that is so deeply a part of my life as an educator and member of my community.”

Take Note

Men's Lacrosse Added to Varsity Lineup

FSU will add men's lacrosse as a varsity sport, with competition scheduled to begin in spring 2011, and the FSU Athletic Department will hire a head coach this spring.

"Not only is lacrosse an incredibly competitive sport for our students, but it is a great recruitment tool," said FSU President Jonathan Gibralter. "The state of Maryland has a strong tradition in lacrosse, and adding men's lacrosse to our athletic lineup will allow us to tap into a pool of students who would not otherwise consider Frostburg."

Men's lacrosse is sponsored by 149 NCAA Division III institutions, including seven in the state of Maryland. The sport has also seen significant growth since 1981, when 70 teams competed at the DIII level. The number of student athletes has also increased from 2,059 (81-82) to 5,135 last year.

"When we make a decision to add a sport, we always keep in mind the benefit to the institution and our students," said FSU Athletic Director Troy Dell.

The team will compete as an independent in spring 2011 and will play its home games at Bobcat Stadium.

Points of Pride

Enrollment Continues Strong Trend

FSU is marking one of the largest spring undergraduate enrollments in its history, and University officials are very encouraged by the increasing number of students who are staying at FSU to continue their studies.

A spring undergraduate enrollment of 4,204 students is FSU's highest spring enrollment in more than a decade, which helps put the University in a stronger financial position. The number of students returning to FSU after the fall semester, 3,962, is also higher than it has been since at least 1993 and reflects the increasing satisfaction that current students feel with their Frostburg experience. These figures reflect students at the Frostburg campus and those studying at the University System of Maryland-Hagerstown as well.

"Strong enrollment numbers help place Frostburg State University in a much stronger position to weather the current economic climate," said FSU President Jonathan Gibraltar. "FSU has exceeded its goal for full-time equivalent students set for it by the Maryland Higher Education Commission, which is what determines our budget, for the second straight year."

"We are very pleased at the continued upward trend in our enrollment. This speaks to the appeal of an FSU education to freshmen and transfer students, and our improved retention is a testament to the good efforts of our faculty and staff who work closely with our students," said Wray Blair, associate vice president for Enrollment Management.

Open houses have been very well-attended and the number of applications is continuing at a strong pace, Gibraltar said. "We also now have signed dual enrollment agreements with Allegany College of Maryland and Hagerstown Community College and are continually expanding our efforts with community colleges throughout Maryland."

Gibraltar also commended the work of FSU's Enrollment Management Committee, which is made up of representatives of the entire campus and continues to examine the components of a healthy university enrollment.
