Commentary: Something That Cannot Wait

I had the chance to see Maynard Jackson, former mayor of Atlanta, GA, at the Lane Center and very much enjoyed hearing the opinions of one of America's great, black politicians. I also had the opportunity to ask him to comment on the affirmative action programs and quota systems used to achieve racial balance in employment and education. His answer surprised me, since the white media all but makes it sound evil to participate in these programs, while the black media often tries to persuade one that affirmative action is the savior of the nation. That's why when a prominent black leader says "We don't want jobs because we're black" a basically white person like me starts to take this question seriously. Very seriously.

A good analogy can be made between quota systems and the way public opinion polls were conducted not so long ago. The polling sample was a miniature version of the city, state or area being polled, with the same percentage of each group in the sample as resided in the area. This method was known as a quota sample, and had terrible results. Then, George Galley came along and used his mathematical training to come up with a much more accurate method of drawing a sample. A certain number of people would be used, and each person in the polling area had the EXACT same chance of being part of the sample (random sample).

This is similar to the goals of an affirmative action program—to ensure that everyone has the exact same chance of being chosen. But does this work in practice? Mr. Jackson seems to think that if done properly affirmative action can balance in practice what civil rights laws have done in theory. The key here is that it be done properly.

Many affirmative action programs are only quota systems in that they ensure that if a certain percent of an area is black, then that same percentage of blacks will be in colleges and in various businesses around the area. Mr. Jackson seems to me to be of the opinion that affirmative action programs should not busy themselves with making sure that the races are represented as an exact reflection of the population, but to guarantee that everyone has an equal chance. This is affirmative.

But this raises an even more important question, the answer to which can only be found by looking inward—Why, in a land where "All men are created equal" do we as adults still need to be told that we're not allowed to treat others unfairly? Affirmative action tries to artificially balance what has been artificially imbalanced for generations. It's great to have the civil rights laws on the books, and these were landmarks in the black struggle, but to implement these laws is to change the thinking of America. And this is something that can not wait.

If any of you here at Frostburg ever wonder how competitive the "real world" can be, then wander into the Fine Arts Gallery and let all of your fears be realized. The works you will see are the products of three successful graphic design artists from New York City. Each of the artists has a different concentration, but all three are trying to achieve the same goal, which is to discover the secret ingredient that literally MAKES people do more than just glance at a work.

The work of Karen Schmidt deals mostly with the illustration of children's books. Some of her characters are very simple and straight forward, while others are so expertly personified that one has to take a second glance to make sure that you are really seeing a very motherly cow and not a mother who slightly resembles a cow. Ms. Schmidt's adept hands have an undeniable flair for making the most inanimate objects come to life on her sketch pad. Her use of soft, gentle facial expressions and soothing pastel colors is reminiscent of the work of illustrator Maurice Sendak, who is a veritable genius in the field. If you plan on publishing any of those children's stories you have laying around the typewriter, then Karen Schmidt is the artist to call!!

The phrase "graphic design" would probably be most accurate in the description of Ivan

Dieruf's pieces in the gallery. His work deals more with the relating of a particular product to a potential consumer through the use of labels, logos, and other forms of advertisement. Ivan is a free lance artist, which means he must compete much more vigorously to earn his daily bread. This is an advantage and a disadvantage for any artist. Freelancing liberates one from the "nine to five" routine but it can also limit one's resources, for if you turn down a job for lack of interest, you may not be able to pay next month's rent.

Mr. Dieruf's success can be easily recognized by his past achievements, one of which was his contribution to a Nobel Prize-winning piece dealing with the very intricate operation of the cat scan. The purpose of this particular product was to break the operating procedures of the complex unit down to simple terms that could be understood by almost anyone after a few hours of instruction. This work relates to other products from Mr. Dieruf's studio, using the "complex to simple" mode of relating any product to any viewer. Again, the purpose is to catch your eye and make whatever you see look very appealing.

With the first two artists mentioned in this article, the purpose of the work is relatively cut and dry; but not so with the conceptual art of Nikolai Buglaj. This Russian born artist makes his living in the field of graphics, but the work he treats more intimately has little to do with advertising, though the concept has a great potential for future use. The basis for Nikolai's more graphic work is to almost force the viewer to spend more time "with" the subject he is working with. He does this by separating the work into many small frames, somewhat like a section of film from a movie camera that is panning the subject very slowly. In this way, one has to look at each of the separate frames in order to visualize the picture as a whole. With this concept, Nikolai uses a Mercedes Benz as a product and titles it "Long Time With a Car," which is exactly what the piece causes the viewer to spend in a temporal sense.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

As a professor of government at Frostburg State College, I am charged with teaching the complexity of our criminal justice system. The mood of both students and parents alike is a disconcerting one. They cannot fathom how their friend and colleague in Stephanie Roper, could have been the subject of such a heinous act. But even more baffling to them are the circumstances surrounding the adjudication.

The horrible and untimely murder of Stephanie Roper has stirred the conscience of the people. The people demand reform of a system that allows the guilty to evade justice.

Granted, Senate Bill 109 is only one of a number of changes which are necessary. However, the common sense of this legislation cannot be denied.

The purpose of this legislation is to disallow intentional intoxication as a mitigating circumstance in the commission of murder in the first degree. Time and time again individuals who were otherwise guilty have been able to dilute their guilt during the sentencing phase of trial by claiming that drunkenness contributed or even caused their behavior.

Drunkenness should not be considered as a mitigating circumstance. I am not an attorney, but Black's Law Dictionary describes a mitigating circumstance as a factor which "extenuates or reduces the degree of moral culpability."

The effect of the present construction is to render the fact of drunkenness on the part of the defendant as lessening their guilt of first degree murder. Many defense attorneys have been able to use this condition of drunkenness as an excuse and explanation of why their client behaved in a criminal manner. This is not fair nor is it just.

This should not be the focus of our attention. Instead, our attention should turn to the actual impact of the defendants' actions. This legislation will no longer allow a defendant to hide behind this condition, a condition which was voluntarily induced. This bill would merely hold an individual accountable for their own actions.

Murder in the first degree is an extremely intentional act. The proof involved in the finding of this guilt must be overwhelming. We should not allow an individual who is intentionally intoxicated to evade this finding of guilt.

Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to what that dyke wrote in Letters to the Editor several weeks ago. Why does it bother you to be called a dyke if that is what you are? It doesn't bother me if someone calls me "A Straight" or a "woman chaser", because that is what I am. If you fags are satisfied with being homosexual, then it shouldn't bother you to be called one. I'm an Italian and proud of it, so it doesn't bother me if someone calls me a "wop". After all, a "wop" is an Italian even though it is a derogatory name for one. If it doesn't bother me to be an Italian, it shouldn't bother me to be called a "wop" because I know "You can't stop the wop". Do you, as a homosexual, feel so INFERIOR that a derogatory name bothers you that much?

If you, as a homosexual, want to fit in with the rest of the FSC students, then quit setting yourselves apart from the rest of us. I am referring to the campus Gay Support Group. If you fags would try to fit in rather than trying to be different maybe you would be more socially accepted.

Open Letter to the Editor:

CCB's 4th annual Talent Show was held on Feb. 10th 1983 as part of Winter Carnival. This year's talent show proved to be a great success! Comedian Tom Parks added an excellent dimension to the show as M.C. and was received very well by the audience. The audience also enjoyed the free refreshments which included potato chips, pretzels, and nachos.

Contratulations to the winners:

1st prize ($75)—George Harvey and Dave Schwartz;

2nd prize ($50)—Carole Wooden and Renee Cookerly;

3rd prize ($25)—Stephanie Reindollar.

CCB would also like to applaud all the acts that participated in the show: Mitch Yockelson and John Sayles, Sandy Tucker, Alice Huff, and Mary D'Angona, Steve Moffett and Steve Bruce, and Debbie Meberg and Pete Erwig, and the opening musical act, Smedley.

A very special thank you goes out to the three faculty members, Mrs. Hinkle (Mathematics), Mr. Honeycutt (Business Administration), and Dr. Gartner (English), who had the difficult task of judging the acts. They did a super job!

I must commend Theresa Gaffney and the whole Talent Show committee for all their hard work in getting the show together. And a big thanks to our fearless advisor, Beth Reuse, who always seems to be there when we need her!

I hope the students and faculty will continue to support the College Center Board. Look for our upcoming events: a pubnite with Ray Boston, Siblings Weekend, and the Bluegrass Festival!

CORRECTION: Due to a typing oversight, last weeks article on Kimberly Titus incorrectly implied that Kimberly is a she. Kimberly is, in fact, a he. Our apologies to the recipient.

Dear Editor,

I have only been at Frostburg for two semesters now, but I couldn't help noticing the dreadful problem we have on campus. Drastic measures must be taken to correct this terrible atrocity.

Of course, I am talking about the dog population on campus. I find it hard to believe that on a campus of this size (nearly 3200 students), we have only 8 to 10 dogs roaming around. A ratio of one dog for every 320 to 400 students is socially unacceptable considering the college's size and resources.

These few dogs try tremendously hard but they have a difficult time escorting the vast numbers of on (AND off) campus students to class and the cafeteria. With only one dog for 360 students, the chance of the dog having a meaningful, productive relationship with each person is severely limited. The most a person can expect each day is a friendly bark and a few licks before class. The solution to this problem cannot be resolved in the near future unless drastic steps are taken.

I have considered several solutions to this overwhelming problem and have decided on two. The first one involves each dorm adopting a dog from the animal shelter. This would immediately add 11 more dogs to the population. The second option, which involves the first one, would be to establish a Student Government Dog-Ad Hoc Committee to investigate this shameful neglect.

SGA should commence work on this right away. The resolution of this problem is in our reach and it is time for the apathy of this campus to be dissolved by support of those concerned with this problem.

Sincerely,
A Concerned Student

Up In Smoke....

Do you smoke because of tension and stress? Have you quit before, only to start smoking again when pressure mounted? Was quitting on your own too much of a burden? The Allegany County FREEDOM FROM SMOKING group program may be what you need.

"Quitting smoking involves more than simply eliminating a bad habit," says representative Elizabeth Hudson. "It's a major change in lifestyle which affects a person's self-image and the ways daily stresses are handled. Sometimes you can't eliminate smoking permanently unless you replace it with other coping strategies," she says.

Developed and tested extensively, the lung association's new FREEDOM FROM SMOKING clinic program runs for seven sessions. "Quit Night" is at the third session. Although the majority of sessions are a week apart, the fourth session is held two days after the third to offer support and encouragement within 48 hours of the quitting session.

To find out more information about the group program, which starts March 28, 1983, and culminates in a celebration on May 9, 1983, call Allegany County representative Elizabeth Hudson at 689-3849. Sessions will be held at Frostburg State College, Physical Education Center. Enrollment is limited; advanced registration is required to assure placement.

Minority Affairs Majority Affairs

On February 28, 1983, the Office of Minority Affairs will sponsor two events. At 11:00 a.m. in Dunkle 218, Richard Orange, a New York City multicultural education consultant and psychologist, will discuss "A Black Aesthetic in the Arts" for Dr. Joseph Rodeiro's Art Awareness 100 class. At 3:30 p.m. in Dunkle 218, Mr. Orange will lecture on "The Survival of Minorities in Higher Education." The college community is invited to both events.

On March 6-7, 1983, the Office of Minority Affairs will co-sponsor two events with the English Department. On March 6 at 8:00 p.m., in Lane Center 201, June Jordan, author of fourteen books and Professor of English at the S.U.N.Y. at Stony Brook; and E. Ethelbert Miller, author of four books and Director of the Afro-American Resource Center at Howard University, will present "Poetry Against Pogrom: Brooklyn and the Bronx." Refreshments will be served. Minority Affairs, which has been assisted by Dean Don Smith, Dr. Dustin Davis, Ms. Judith Dieruf, and Dr. Joseph Rodeiro of the Art Department, Dr. Gary Paul, and Mr. Don Moore, will uncover a surprise project that night. On March 7 at 11:00 a.m., in Dunkle 219, the writers will appear in Dr. Keith Schlegel's American Literature 242 class. The college community is invited to both events.

STAFF STUFF

Dr. Elizabeth C. Adams, (History), will be one of the participants in Roanoke College's women's studies conference, "Teaching/Learning About Women," March 12. She will deliver a paper entitled "From Eve to Judith: Images of Women Among the Ancient Hebrews" for the panel discussion on Ancient and Medieval Images of Women moderated by Dr. Patricia Gathercole of the Roanoke College faculty. Dr. Jose Rodeiro, (Art), will lecture on art history at Simon's Rock of Bard College March 10-11. Francis M. Tam, (Physics), has reviewed a new meteorology textbook, Weather and Climate, by George Howe of Benjamin/Cummings

Publishing Company. Three FSC staff members, Carolyn Princes, (Student Special Services), Mrs. Carmen Jackson, (Residence Life), and Charlie Spencer, (Library), represented Frostburg State College at the Association of Black Administrators Mid-Atlantic Region Conference held in Newark, Delaware. The conference consisted of several workshops that provided insight into issues and concerns related to management, administration, supervision, and professionalism for blacks at predominantly white institutions. Dr. John E. August, (Mathematics), has been invited to attend the Chautauqua Short Course entitled, "Science, Technology and Arms Control" at the University of Daytona in April. Dr. Eira Patnaik, (English), has been invited to present papers at the following conferences: Ninth Annual Third World Conference, Governors State University, Chicago, Illinois; "Metaphoric Perceptions of the Third World," March 24; International Communication Association, Intercultural Communication, Division 5, Dallas, Texas, chairing session on Intercultural Communication, May 26-30; Conference on International Policy, Howard University, Washington, D.C., "National Character and its Repercussions on Foreign Policy," June 3, 1983; Miami University, Oxford, Ohio; "Narcissism, Eastern Style," June 4.

Nuke News

Last August, the House of Representatives came within two votes of passing a resolution calling for a nuclear freeze, defeating it 204-202. Despite this apparent set-back, the proponents of the nuclear freeze have not been idle. Both the Maryland House and Senate have passed resolutions calling for the President of the U.S. to negotiate with the Soviet Union for a mutually verifiable freeze on testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons, missiles and delivery aircraft. Members of the U.S. Congress have recently reintroduced resolutions, similar to the one defeated in August, in both houses, and committee hearings are scheduled to begin later this month.

Several weeks ago a national convention of the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign was held in St. Louis, and over 600 people representing freeze groups across the country attended. The leaders of the freeze movement discussed a variety of strategies, but expect to concentrate their energies on lobbying Congress to endorse a nuclear freeze resolution in 1983. President Reagan's opposition to a freeze was seen as a way to mobilize extra support. "We cannot stop the nuclear arms race under President Reagan," said Randall Forsberg, the founder of the movement and chairman of its national advisory board. "He is not smart enough to do it."

According to an article in the Baltimore Sun by Robert Ruby, "The freeze campaign will try to circumvent the President's authority to negotiate arms control treaties by lobbying Congress to legislate new arms control policies that could have much the same effect. The campaign hopes to obtain from Congress a test ban on new nuclear weapons by amending military appropriation bills.

Congress will be pushed to legislate the testing bans for the next generation of strategic nuclear weapons—the land based MX missile, the submarine-launched Trident II, long range cruise missiles and the B-1 bomber. The freeze campaign says it will ask Congress to make the testing bans conditional on the Soviet Union's refraining from testing comparable new systems."

Delegates from the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign will be lobbying on Capitol Hill March 7 and 8. If you feel strongly about the nuclear freeze issue and would like to let your congressional representatives know how you feel, write to Beverly Byron, House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515, Senators Charles Mac Mathias, Jr., and/or Paul S. Sarbanes, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20510. Ms. Byron currently opposes the nuclear freeze (she voted against it in August) and both Senators Mathias and Sarbanes support the nuclear freeze. If you want to get involved locally, there is a campus organization—Students Against Nuclear Arms—which meets every Wednesday at 9 p.m. in room 202 of the Lane Center. Some upcoming events in this area are: March 5—benefit concert for the Cumberland Freeze Group featuring Harry Trainum which will be held at the Knights of Columbus behind Mason's barn on Rt. 48, and on March 22, a debate will be held between Beverly Byron and a representative from the Center for Defense, which will be from 7-9 p.m. in the Humanities Building at Allegany Community College.

Seder Season

An annual tradition at Frostburg State College is the popular celebration of the Campus Ministry—sponsored Seder, the ecumenical Christian/Jewish celebration of the Passover. Besides enjoying a delicious meal of matzo ball soup, lamb, wine and other goodies, a very meaningful experience is shared. Dr. Kenneth Jablon, Vice President for Academic Affairs, will be leading the celebration. There will be special music. People from both the campus and community meet together for this unique event. The cost is quite reasonable: $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for students. The Seder will be held on Tuesday, March 22 at 5:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Frostburg. If you are interested in attending the Seder, contact Rev. Larry Neumark or Fr. Fergus at 689-5041 or simply sign your name on the sheet posted in the Osborne Center. Because of the Seder's popularity, you are urged to sign up quickly. This year's attendance will be limited to 50 people.

Everything You Never Wa

Every time I ride down the highway and see a young woman hitchhiking or standing by the side of the road waiting for help with a car problem, I cringe with anger and longing for an age in which women need not live in fear of being victims. The silent, chilling cringe conjures up a montage of memories: the face of a friend victimized by rapists while backpacking in the Grand Canyon, the terror of a young woman attacked while doing the laundry one afternoon in her own basement, the undirected fury of the father of a former student raped while walking home from the library. And, most of all, the awful, uncontrollable, unjustified feeling of guilt, of self-blame, that torments the innocent victims of this most brutal crime.

Frostburg often seems a never-never land, a world apart from the stresses and strains of the "real world" that exists somewhere down state. Small town America evokes an almost hypnotic illusion of safety and security that draws us into believing that we are living in Mayberry, RFD, where Andy Taylor and bumbling Barney protect us from the evils of the outside world.

We do ourselves and the future of our campus community no service by allowing ourselves to be lured into behaving as if the illusion were reality. The sixteen incidents of sexual assault reported on campus over the past seven years are grim reminders that even in our idyllic mountain community we are not safe from the sickness of modern society. And the tragic rape and murder of a much-beloved colleague must keep us aware of the dangers of letting down our guard, of transplanting a rural sense of freedom to urban areas.

Too many people, male and female, refuse to take the problem seriously. "I just can't live that way: never walking alone late at night, being distrustful of every strange man I meet, never driving long distances alone after dark," says one female student. "I'm careful at home but I like Frostburg precisely because I don't need to worry here," says another. "What can I do," asks a nice, if naive male. "It can never happen to someone like me," the silent belief of the many.

Unfortunately it does happen to people just like you, to nice young women like Stephanie Roper or Carol Beehler who was raped while asleep in the dorms, women whose only crime was being in the wrong place at the wrong time. The sixteen women who have reported sexual assaults at Frostburg weren't out parading around seductively or teasing aroused, uncontrollable males. They were in their dorm rooms, walking to class or the library, or driving home to the city, unafraid and unwary, victims of the belief that it doesn't happen here, that it can't happen to me.

WHAT IS RAPE?

Rape is probably the most widely misunderstood crime in society.

Movies and magazines portray rapists as sex-starved men driven by rejection from frigid wives or by the seductive behavior of scantily clad young women. But nothing could be further from the truth. Rape is a crime of violence, not of passion. It is an attempt to hurt, humiliate and control the victim, rather than an attempt to satisfy the lust of the rapist. It is a hostile attack, just like assault or murder, with sex replacing a knife or gun as the principal weapon.

Motivation is not the only misunderstood issue. Indeed, few people seem to understand precisely what constitutes a rape. A guy walks you home from a party and threatens to hurt you if you don't have sexual relations with him. If you submit out of fear, you have been raped, for submission should not be confused with consent. If you are walking across campus when a man attacks you with a knife and forces you to perform oral sex on him, you are the victim of sexual assault, a crime legally treated in a manner similar to rape. Any sexual contact you have against your will is a form of sexual assault for the law protects your right to say no.

But

Information

Unfortunately it is difficult to categorize the rapist. We know that in 1981, 93% of the rapists for rape were male, and of them were between 18 and 25 years of age. The rapist is no "stranger" to the victim, or acquaintance. The victim who bothers to report the rape might be a student, a teacher, a parent, or a friend. The rapist might be a stranger, a friend, or a family member. The rapist might be a stranger, a friend, or a family member. The rapist might be a stranger, a friend, or a family member.

Nobody really knows how many women are raped in this country and estimates are for about 100,000 to 150,000. The police estimate that one out of every six women who are raped will be reported.

The watchword is BE CAREFUL. We all would like to be open, helpful and trusting. Unfortunately, those instincts are dangerous.

Never hitch-hike or travel alone. Hitch-hiking is involved in 20% of the rapes in small communities.

Keep your doors and windows locked when you are alone or at home.

Don't give out personal information over the phone to a stranger.

If you live alone, don't

While you were reading this article, someone in America was being raped. But she may be a woman you know and identifying marks, no clues, no formula for knowing who to avoid. Rapists are young and white and black, rich and poor, ordinary and strange. The one thing we know for sure is that rapists are rarely strangers to the people they attack. The familiar face, passing acquaintance, or the classmate is more likely your potential attackers than the unknown men on the street.

HE

There were 81,536 rapes reported in this country and 13 in this state. Even more disturbing is that despite increased cautions on the part of women and men both, the problem is getting worse: there were 48% more rapes in 1982 than there were in 1972.

EN DO?

Write your name in the phone book or in the mailbox. Use your intuition instead. Don't walk alone at night. Keep your car doors locked when you are driving. If you drive long distances, might get a CB Radio. If you need help, stay in the car, radio for assistance and wait for the police. Inform yourself. Sponsor a workshop on rape in your community or for your sorority. Go to such a workshop. Don't make it the problem. The life you live might be your own.

WHAT CAN MEN DO?

Rape is not a women's problem, it's society's problem. As long as women live in fear, they have to treat male strangers with suspicion and hostility. BE SENSITIVE. If a woman you know is nervous about walking alone at night, don't call her a coward and laugh; walk her home. If a woman you know is NOT nervous about walking alone at night, be aggressive and suggest you accompany her. When you drop a woman at her house or a friend's apartment, walk her inside or wait until you see her safely inside. If you see a man following a woman or hear a woman scream, don't avoid getting involved. And most importantly, don't belittle the fear; the woman who overhears the rape joke you are repeating might herself have been a victim of this crime. The next victim might be your friend, your sister or your mother.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU ARE BEING ASSAULTED

Nobody can tell you whether active resistance (screaming, struggling, and fighting back) will be the RIGHT thing to do. In some cases, it can frighten off or discourage the attacker. However, resistance may also lead the attacker to become more violent or increase the desire to subdue the victim. So there are no pat answers. The following suggestions, however, might be helpful.

1. Retain or regain control of your emotions.
2. Treat the attacker as a human being.
3. Gain his confidence.
4. Go along with the situation until you can react safely.
5. Use your own imagination and good judgement in any given situation.
6. Don't antagonize your attacker. He is already unstable and your improper reactions could really set him off.
7. Don't take any action that will hurt you.

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO IF YOU'RE A VICTIM OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

REPORT THE CRIME!! Most sexual offenders are repeaters. The more the police know, the more likely they will be to arrest an offender. Only then will the number of victims decrease.

It is important to see a doctor as soon as possible after an assault. The medical exam is important for four reasons:

1. To check for and treat internal and external physical injuries.
2. To assess your emotional state and prescribe medication if needed.
3. To prevent possible complications such as V.D. and/or other infections. If you are a female the possibility of pregnancy must be considered.

4. To gather physical evidence in case you want to go to court.

REMEMBER! Do not douche, change clothes, shower, or do anything to change your appearance. If you do, you may destroy evidence (seminal fluid, hair, clothing fibers, etc.) that the police and prosecutor need to arrest and convict your attacker.

Do not disturb the physical surroundings in which the assault took place. If you do, you may destroy valuable evidence.

HELP IS AVAILABLE

Law enforcement agencies have been training personnel especially to deal with victims of rape. While there are still horror stories about male police officers who belittle the crime and humiliate the victim, increasing numbers of women who report sexual assaults find themselves dealing with competent, supportive officers. We at Frostburg are extremely fortunate to have three women working at the College Police, one of whom is an expert in the problem of rape. So, if you need help don't hesitate to call the police. You can reach the campus police, the city police, or the Maryland State police by dialing 911.

They seem to be just a statistic from the F.B.I. or a name on the police blotter. Someone else reads this article, she may be you.

HUNGRY JOCKS

On Sunday Feb. 27 the Frostburg Recreation and Parks Department will be hosting the First Annual Frostburg Sports Awards Banquet. The purpose of the banquet is to pay tribute to a select group of individuals for their accomplishments in either sports or community services for Frostburg.

The evening will begin at 5:00 with cocktails. Dinner, which consists of roast beef, potatoes, green beans, salad, rolls and butter, cake and beverages, will be served at 6:30. The awards presentations will start at 7:30. Music will be provided by the Beall High Jazz Ensemble.

There will be four representatives of FSC honored at the event. Dr. Harold J. Cordts will receive the Frostburg Recognition Award for his contributions as the Chairman of the Recreation and Parks Commission for the city of Frostburg. Dr. Kenneth Kutler will receive the Frostburg Achievement Award for his outstanding leadership and accomplishments as coach of the Frostburg State soccer team. Senior Noel Cyrus will be honored as the FSC Student Athlete of the Year for his impressive achievements in both soccer and track. Freshman Randy Clark will be honored as the Beall High School Student Athlete of the Year for his versatile achievements in football, basketball and track last year as a senior at Beall.

Only two guest celebrities are confirmed at this time. They are Paul Gaudino, star of Family Physical Fitness Show on Channel 8 and Bob Miller, General Manager of the Hagerstown Suns minor league baseball team. Other guests will be announced at a later date.

The proceeds from the banquet will go to the Vicki Via Dotson Leukemia Foundation. Dr. Clarence Vincent of Sacred Heart Hospital will speak briefly about leukemia. The Vicki Via Dotson Memorial Leukemia Foundation was founded in 1979 by Albert J. Via in memory of his daughter, Vicki. Al Via, owner of Al's Motel, has worked diligently for the leukemia foundation since his daughter's death. In addition to coordinating the Sports Banquet, Mr. Via also sponsors an annual celebrity golf tournament at the Maplehurst Country Club, an annual dance at the Country Club Mall and the annual Allegany County Marathon Run.

Not only is the event benefiting a good cause, but it should be an enjoyable and rewarding evening. The public is welcome, in fact, urged to attend (yes, even college students). Tickets may be purchased now at the Frostburg Recreation and Parks Department (the Armory) at $15.00 a person. Please try to attend.

Athlete Of The Week

The athlete of the week award as presented by the Frostburg State Athletic Department for the week ending February 20 goes to Ann Whisner. Whisner finished second in the 50 yard breast stroke with a time of 33.84 in the state championships. The performance has qualified her for the Nationals.

Others nominated were: Phil Walter—Men's Basketball; Bill Croft—Men's Swimming; Mary Carol Jackson—Women's Basketball; Noel Cyrus—Men's Track and Kathy Crotty—Women's Track.

The athlete of the week award for the week ending February 13 was presented to Duane DeVance. DeVance cleared 7' in the High Jump at the West Virginia University Invitational.

TRACK...

For the past five years Bob Lewis' men's track team has captured the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship. This week they seek their sixth straight at George Mason.

"This is the strongest team we've taken to the meet," commented Lewis. "We aren't as deep in a couple of areas, but overall we are very strong."

Several defending champions return for Frostburg. Jack Kiley captured the 1000 and 1500 meters, in the process being named Most Outstanding Performer. Tim Street won the 55-meter dash, while Robert Stanley finished first in the 55-meter hurdles. FSC also captured first in the 3200-meter relay. Overall, Frostburg's 196 points was a new meet record.

Buckets And Breaststrokes

The time has arrived for the Frostburg State women's basketball team to prove whether they are deserving of a second-straight berth in the NCAA playoffs. Winners of seven straight, the Bobcats play four critical games in their last week of regular-season competition.

The week looks like this: at UMBC, February 21; home versus Catholic, February 22; home versus Washington & Jefferson, February 25; and at Marymount, February 26, Frostburg has already played each team this year, winning all four games. The most difficult contest should be at Marymount, a 66-53 loser to the Bobcats on February 6.

The Bobcats, now 15-4, played just once this past week, downing York 70-51. As has been the case during the winning streak, the tandem of Mary Carol Jackson and Diane Wisniewski led the way. Jackson scored 22 points and hauled in 13 rebounds, while Wisniewski had 18 points and 14 more boards. Jackson now has 1,001 career rebounds. Val Broadwater added 14 more points.

Broadwater has played very impressively as of late. Junior Billie Boddie has also played well, not only in scoring but rebounding as well.

The Bobcats must continue their aggressive play in order to get a bid for the NCAA playoffs.

The FSC swimmers were in the State Championships this past weekend at Towson State. The men's team finished third in the Tri-State Championships, while the women also finished third in the State Championships.

The men's third place finish was their best ever in the Tri-State Championships. Towson State won the meet, with Loyola finishing second.

Coach Bob McFarland singled out performances by Bill Croft, Chuck Jacobs and Mike O'Rourke. Croft won the 50 and 100-yd freestyle events, qualifying for the Nationals in the 100. Jacobs captured first place in the 100-yd breaststroke, second in the 200-yd breaststroke and third in the 200-yd I.M. O'Rourke set three team records.

The women's team finished behind Towson State and Navy respectively.

A third woman qualified for the Nationals, Ann Whisner finishing second in the 50-yd breaststroke with a time of 33.84. Laura Schlegel had been ill recently, but she was recovered enough to take one first place and three second places. She qualified for Nationals earlier in the year, as did Alicia Bobesink. Bobesink had a good performance with one second place finish and three third place finishes as well.

This weekend the women host the Third Annual Bobcat Women's Invitational. Preliminary events will begin on Saturday and Sunday at 10:00 a.m., with the finals scheduled for 6:00 p.m.

...And # FIELD

Coach Barb Surgent has brought her women's track team along slowly this year, but she feels they are ready now. "Almost everybody is healthy now, for a change," Surgent commented.

Surgent hopes her women athletes can finish second or third, although she realizes it won't be easy. The biggest disadvantage the Bobcats face is lack of depth. George Mason is the pre-championship favorite.

This past weekend the wo-

Field Hockey

This past weekend Frostburg's women's indoor field hockey team went to Salisbury for a qualifying National Tournament. The Bobcats sent two teams (7 members each) to the tournament.

Frostburg Team I consisted of Sally Blundon, Kelly Hyde, Lesli Morrison, Kathy Rafferty, Cathy Rucki, Tracey Shelley and Pam Shriver. Frostburg Team II was composed of Laura Baker, Caroline Cardullo, Debbie Flackavento, Donna Richardson, Tammy Walz, Maureen Wegener and Mary Beth Wulff.

Other teams that competed were Lynchburg College (VA), two Salisbury State teams and a club team from Salisbury.

The tournament was round robin, with a single elimination playoff final. The Frostburg Team I defeated Salisbury I in the finals. Upon obtaining the victory, Frostburg Team I received a bid to the NCAA National Indoor Tournament in Philadelphia on April 2.

The two teams would like to thank their coaches Gail Ritzert and Chris Lottes. They would also like to express their appreciation to Dr. and Mrs. Wulff and Mr. and Mrs. Wegener for feeding and housing the two teams for the weekend.

Congratulations to both teams for their fine play and good luck to Frostburg I in the NCAA tournament.

SPORTS

men participated in the Bucknell Invitational. In a rather laidback competition, two girls performed well.

Freshman Kathy Crotty set a personal best in the high jump with a jump of 5'5". She threw the shot 29'5", and long-jumped 15'11". As a member of the third-place mile relay team, she ran a 60.0 440-yd. dash.

All-American Val Pearce displayed her 1982 form in anchoring the mile relay team, running a 63.0 440.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ATTENTION DANCERS:

Auditions will be held for anyone interested in performing in the 1983 Spring Dance Concert. Everybody is welcome to audition. Experience is helpful but not mandatory. The time is 8:30 p.m. on Tues., Feb. 29th in the Dance Studio of the P.E. Building.

Students Against Nuclear Arms meets every Wednesday at 9:00 in room 202 in the Lane Center. The public is invited to attend and new members are always welcome.

The multi-media presentation "Waste Paper" will be sponsored by Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. There will be several free showings and one of them could be in your dorm next week. Look for further details concerning time and place of showings.

Frostburg State College cannot be responsible for any personal property, like a calculator, which is brought on campus and used by a department member unless the property is used for educational purposes. This property should be recorded with the department head, who should maintain a record of the item and forward a description and serial number to the purchasing department. If the above criteria is met, the property will be covered under the State of MD insurance policy. Faculty and staff are, however, encouraged to have all such property included on their home owner's policy. In addition, all state and personal property should be locked up at the end of the day.

Anyone who is interested in trying out for the 1983 Frostburg State College Field Hockey Team should contact Head Coach Christine Lottes at Room 266 in the Physical Education Center. There will be a sign-up sheet for appointments on the door. All interested field hockey players are encouraged to make an appointment!

Are you proud to live OFF-CAMPUS?!! Well you can display your pride by wearing a custom Off-Campus t-shirt. The price of the shirts will depend on the number of orders that we receive but will be in the range of 6 to 8 dollars. If you would like to see exactly what the design looks like or have any questions, contact an OCC member or stop by the SGA office or table in the Lane Center. Also contact any of our members or the SGA to place your order.

The FSC Foundation in conjunction with the Physics Department is accepting annual applications to the Anthony Wai Chiu Tam Memorial Scholarships.

Sophomores and juniors in Physics and/or Engineering at FSC may apply. The criteria are exceptional academic achievement, with preference to those students who have demonstrated an interest in international education. Application forms are available in the Physics Department office.

Wind Ensemble Concert—The FSC Symphonic Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Robert H. Hearson, will appear in concert Sunday, February 27, at 3:15 p.m. in the Lane College Center.

Psychology Meeting—There will be a Psychology Preprofessional Orientation on Monday, February 21, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. in Allegany Hall 104. The program is open to all interested Psychology majors who plan to go to graduate school, especially into a Ph.D. program. Students already in the preprofessional program are also invited to attend. The requirements for the preprofessional program and suggestions for applying to graduate school will be discussed.

Tickets Wanted—Persons possessing a Community Concert Series ticket and who are not planning to use their ticket on March 23 for the "Canadian Brass" concert are asked to call Rev. Neumark or Father Fergus at United Campus Ministry, 689-5041.

Students who are considering changing their majors are encouraged to complete the required form and return it to the department head of their new major no later than March 1, 1983.

Students who complete the change of major form by March 1 can be guaranteed that the name of their new advisors will appear on their course request cards. Additionally, they can be assured that their new advisors will have their advising folders to use during pre-registration advising (April 4-15).

Forms for declaring or changing majors are available in the Student Affairs Office, 120 Administration Building.

Men's Basketball

Despite the gritty play of the eight remaining healthy players this past week, the Frostburg State men's basketball team saw the chances of their first winning season in nine years vanish. The Bobcats split four games, bringing their record to 9-12 with two games remaining.

FSC travels to Waynesburg on Tuesday, February 22 to face the Yellow Jackets of Waynesburg, and conclude their season on February 26, hosting St. Mary's.

The game will mark the final appearance in a Bobcat uniform for Phil Walter and Mike Breslin. Both are making some of their final appearances very memorable. Over the past two weeks Walter has played the finest ball of his career, while Breslin has regained his shooting touch after a bout with the flu.

Frostburg defeated Western Maryland, 90-73, and Mary Washington, 87-77, at home this past week, dropping road encounters to York, 80-67, and Salisbury State, 78-64. Breslin and Eddie Rutledge were instrumental in the upset of the then 16-5 Green Terrors of Western Maryland, each scoring 22 points. The Bobcats played their finest forty minutes of basketball this season.

Walter was the only offense for Frostburg in the York loss, tossing in a career-high 28 points. He also played a major role in the defeat of Mary Washington, scoring several key buckets on his way to a 19 point effort. Rutledge added 19 more, while Steve Beauregard scored a career-high 17 and Breslin chipped in with 14 points and 11 rebounds.

Turnovers plagued FSC in the loss to Salisbury, as they lost the ball 24 times to just 9 for the Sea Gulls. Four Bobcats scored in double figures, but four games in five days ran its toll on the small squad, and a tired Frostburg club was unable to hold an 11-point halftime lead.

The Bobcats have made the most of their depleted situation, winning four of six games with three freshmen in the starting lineup and no one taller than 6-2 coming off the bench. The eight players deserve a great deal of credit for their recent hustle and determination.
