Race conference viewed

Compton Auditorium was the scene last Friday of "Black Backlash," a program designed to inform the local community of the severity of the black-white crisis. The Newman Center sponsored the program, which was open to the public.

The speakers included: Danny Gant, Director of CORE target city, Baltimore, Maryland; Reverend Walter Lubarski, Professor of Sociology at Virginia Union University, Richmond, Virginia; Nelson P. Guild, Dean of Frostburg State College; Reverend Goodwin Douglas, Director of N.A.A.C.P., Allegany County, Maryland; Frantz L. Violot, and Yaineshet Teferi, Frostburg State College students; and Reverend Braxton Boyd, Methodist minister, Washington, D.C. In addition, two speakers from Illinois participated, a sociology professor from the University of Illinois, and Bob Boggs a graduate student in the University of Chicago Divinity School. Reverend John Healey, Director of the Newman Center was unable to speak due to a death in his family. Each of the speakers gave a short talk followed by an open discussion, and the program was moderated by Mr. Gilligan.

As the program progressed two main views seemed to develop. The first, which might be termed the "liberal" approach, involved treating people as people regardless of the race. According to this view it would be hoped that people should strive for the time when color would no longer be an issue.

The second view might be called the "militant" approach. This approach was argued most fervently by Mr. Danny Gant and Mr. Bob Boggs. Rather than white people trying to help Negroes they should help themselves. This is what the Negro is now doing. He is finding his "manhood", his self-esteem. They advised concerned whites to do the same. Only when this is accomplished, can equality be possible, because both groups would then be composed of "men," rather than coalitions of children. The militant (black power) approach involves an active participation on the part of the black man in black affairs. As one speaker stated . . . "I don't have the time to hate you (whites)."

In audience participation, liberal views clashed with militant, tradition with radical, involvement with non-participation.

Tuition, fees to rise

Next year the cost of attending Frostburg State will rise by $205.00 for a full time boarding student. The cost will be broken down into the two semester billing system. First semester cost for Arts and Sciences or Teachers Education students will be $635.50 while second semester costs will be $580.50. Total for the year will be $1216.00. For day students the total cost will be $345.00, $200.00 for first semester and $145.00 for second semester.

For those under the tuition-waiver plan cost of full-time boarding student will be $1016.00, $535.50 for first semester and $480.50 for second semester. For day students under tuition-waiver the years cost will be $145.50, $100 for first semester and $45.00 for second semester.

Not included in the above summary are the costs for books, equipment, supplies, and trips which vary with courses, and room rental for all in-town resident students

For out-of-state students the tuition is $450.00 per year for enrollment in either the Arts and Science or Teacher Education program in addition to all fees at the college.

Responsible for this price increase is: a raise of curriculum fee from $20.00 to $40.00; the addition of a $50.00 per semester registration fee; a $100.00 increase in board, and a $75.00 increase in board. On the whole, the total cost of a boarding student, both those who have signed the tuition waiver pledge and those who have not signed the pledge, will increase by $205.00.

Stone, Creek victorious in close election for highest Student Association offices

By Tom Mullan

Tom Stone and Dave Creek were victorious in what some here called the closest Student Association election in the history of Frostburg State College. Mr. Stone will be the 1968-69 Student Association President and Mr. Creek will serve as his Vice President.

The closely contested presidential race, which witnessed the last minute withdrawal of Bob Sobus, ended with Stone's victory over Carter Clews by a vote of 391 to 328. Sobus, even though he was no longer a candidate, got 40 votes.

In the Vice Presidential election Dave Creek defeated Bob Norris 379 to 363. A surprising outcome for an office for which neither party did much campaigning.

Larry Lamson walked away with the election for Chief Justice defeating Vince Curl 427 to 287.

Commenting on his future Mr. Stone said, "Emerson once said, 'Progress is the exchanging of one nuisance for another nuisance.' The Student Association at Frostburg is going to work diligently with all students to disprove this quote of Emerson."

In the class elections Hazel Hermann ran unopposed for Senior Class President. Al Nathwitch was elected Vice President with Ronnie Derda, Secretary and Peg Thorn, Treasurer, rounding out the slate.

For the Class of '70 Jim Haupt was chosen President, George Sellers, Vice President, Bonnie Plaia, Secretary, and Cynthia Mutts, Treasurer.

Class of '71 elections showed Bob MacMullan running unopposed for President, Connie Garriot unopposed as Vice President, Jeanne Courtney, Secretary, and Bonnie Otto, Treasurer.

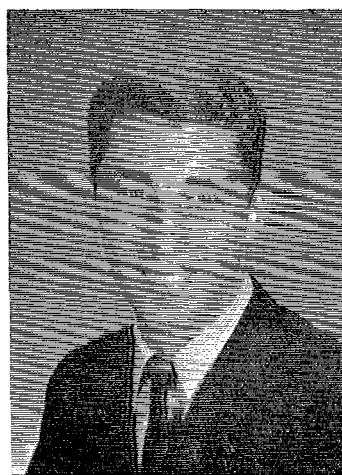

Mr. Boyle writes for magazine

Professor Joseph Boyle, acting Head of the Philosophy Department, published the six-page lead article in last week's National Review. "The Ecumenical Swindle," renamed by the editors as "The Catholic Plot Against the Catholic Church," was printed as the cover story.

Mr. Boyle's main contention is that the Catholic Church has been subverted by an alien philosophical tradition, and that the implementing of this philosophy was achieved through dubious methods. He wrote that the Church was reacting to trends in modern culture, and that changes in Catholic policies reflect the acceptance of such diverse strains of thought as nationalism, Protestant subjectivism, ecumenism, and cultural relativism. The acceptance of these currents was accomplished by Machiavellian-McLuhanesque techniques on the part of the "avant-garde" Catholic "peritii" and liberal journalists.

The article traces the historical development of liberal influence within the church from the reign of Pius XII through John XXIII to Paul VI. He concludes that the consequences of Vatican II are undermining all previous Catholic doctrine.

John Bardi, a junior from Washington, D.C., has been chosen by the Editorial Board of State-To-Date as Managing Editor for the school year 1968-69.

Mr. Bardi, a psychology major, has been active in sports during his three years at Frostburg and is presently a member of the paper's Editorial Board. He is already making plans for the fall, when he will assume his position. "There will be many policy changes next year," noted John,

"including a new staff organization which we will devise this summer and hope to have approved by the Student Association at the beginning of next year. All changes will be announced in the first issue in September."

Anyone interested in working on the staff next year should fill in the application on page 2 and bring it to the State-To-Date office in downstairs Gunter or send it to the staff in care of the school anytime during the summer.

Letter to the editor

DEAR SIR:

I apologize for my erroneous statement that Dr. Vrieze's production of Twelfth Night had been cut. I would like to point out to Dr. Vrieze that I agreed to review the production after several people had refused the task on opening night. As it was my first review, I consulted with Dr. Vrieze after the performance in order to hear what he had to say about his production. Any false impressions made in my review were oversights and not intentional as I had only a portion of a busy day to record my impressions.

Considering that Dr. Vrieze had several months to do his research,

I don't understand the numerous questionable criticisms he made in his letter. My views of the plot and sub-plot of Twelfth Night are substantiated by Herschel Baker of Harvard in the introduction to his edition of Twelfth Night (New York, 1965, xxiv); by Harold Jenkins' article "Shakespeare's Twelfth Night" (in Shakespeare: The Comedians, ed. Kenneth Muir, Englewood Cliffs, 1965, p. 73); in the introduction to the play in the New Cambridge Edition of Shakespeare's Plays (eds W. A. Neilson, C. J. Hill, Cambridge, Mass., 1942, p. 280); and many others if time and space permitted.

Miss Hillabretch is searching for a photography editor. Anyone interested is requested to apply at the Nemacolin office in Gunter Hall.

Stone announces future plans

By Tom Stone
President F.S.C. Student Assoc.

Frostburg State now has the opportunity to progress, but this cannot be done without each and every student working together toward a common goal. The Student Association this year, will strive to meet student demands. The Student Association is here as a coordinating body between the administration and the students and his desires, The Student Association is already endeavoring to make this next year the best yet in Frostburg's history. Freshman orientation will begin at the first of September and will be quite different from what it has been in the past. During the summer the Student Association and the Admissions Office are going to send to each new Freshman a newly revised Pathfinder and another book which will contain all of their fellow classmates, and what they did in High School. The Freshman will be told to read both of these and to bring it to freshman orientation with them. The Student Association thinks this will enable the student to be better informed about the college before they ever begin their first few days here.

Budgets are now being made up to be submitted to the General Assembly next year. It is imperative that all students realize that they play an integral part in the formulation of policy next year. In order to have a quorum, the Student General Assembly must have 10 percent of the student association present at the meeting. If 10 percent of the students are not there, then no business of the student association can be conducted. I urge all students to keep this in mind when the first meeting is called in September.

In the campaign for Student Association President I promised that we would receive more funds next year to help our college progress. This can only be done, if we, all the students, back the Student Association, who in turn, I assure you, will make their feelings felt in Annapolis. We can have much better campus facilities, but only if we all strive in a concerted effort toward doing so. Next year it is my hope to have a section in the paper devoted to S. A. News which will keep the student informed on campus activities. If anyone has any questions about what is happening on campus, please remember the Student Association of Frostburg is here to serve you.

Dorm room assignments finalized

The selection of dorm rooms was finalized on May 16 during a conference between students and administration when students voted not to reselect rooms. The meeting was arranged after a number of students approached President Morey protesting that the method used to choose rooms was unfair.

Voting separately, the men voted nearly unanimously to keep their present room assignments and the women decided likewise by nearly a 2 to 1 majority.

The meeting resulted from complaints by students that the numbers for the order of room selection should have all been picked at one time, and not in groups of 50, giving those in the front of the line a much better chance to receive the room of their choice.

The other problem was a misunderstanding arising from the transformation of Gray Hall into an interfraternity hall next year. Two greek brothers wanted to choose a room in Sowers Hall and heard that they were not allowed to, but the administration has stated that living in the dorm is optional. Diehl Hall will also be a men's dorm, and Simpson will again become a women's residence hall.

Dean Manicur announced at the meeting that the New Dorm II will be completed September 1, 1968. Also construction will begin in the near future on two new six-story dorms, to be erected across from the New Residence Halls. The six-story structures will have a cafeteria between them.
