MAN KILLS HIMSELF

Ray Fires Bullet Into His Head At His Home
Mr. Ray, secretary and treasurer of the Brilliant Manufacturing Company, was found lying on a bed at his home in Pocomoke City after 1 o'clock last Thursday, having committed suicide.

Mr. Ray formerly lived in Philadelphia where the Brilliant Manufacturing Company operates its principal factories. About a year ago he acquired a factory in Pocomoke City and moved there and began building an expensive building a few weeks ago. Mr. Ray was found to have been in a hospital and in a home, according to Robert J. Lee, his colored butler. Mr. Ray was a dependent.

He had planned to go to New York on a train leaving there at 10 o'clock last Thursday afternoon. Stokes had packed a bag and was preparing lunch when he heard the report of a pistol. He went upstairs and saw Mr. Ray lying on the bed beside the door. Dr. R. Lee Hall was summoned and Mr. Ray died in a few minutes. Edw. S. Hargis, coroner, impounded the body, a verdict of suicide being given.

Mr. Ray was 29 years of age and was general manager of the local sign factory, as well as secretary and treasurer of the Philadelphia company. He was a former service man, having been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in France. He was a Shriner and active in all local public enterprises. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Maud Ray, of Pocomoke City; his mother, Mrs. C. E. Ray, and a brother, Mr. M. R. Ray, president of the Brilliant Manufacturing Company, the last two of 1015 Ridge avenue, Philadelphia.

To Make Business Better

"One of the most far-reaching things which the people of this community can do by way of stimulating local business conditions, both for the balance of this year and throughout 1922," says Mr. Wm. B. Spiva, cashier of the Bank of Somerset, "would be to see that every possible dollar is spent here at home during the holiday season and throughout the New Year."

"This is not a new subject and we are apt to become hardened to 'trade at home' appeals. But we should understand that the dollar which is spent in local stores is in turn expended locally, and indirectly, that dollar in some part, returns again to the spender."

"Our local merchants have bought their holiday stocks carefully and offer an excellent selection at reasonable prices. If there is something special which a buyer desires, local dealers will gladly send away for such things and have them forwarded promptly."

"The big thing which every man and woman should remember is that we are all interested in making this town a better town, in seeing it grow, in promoting good business conditions with a friendly community spirit behind our every endeavor."

Ordination Service

Ordination service will be held at the First Baptist Church, Rev. J. A. Tumbler, pastor, in Princess Anne, Thursday night, December 8th, at 7:45 o'clock. The following deacons are to be ordained, not as preachers, but ordained to the office of deacon: Mr. W. R. Pusey, Mr. Walter Cox and Mr. Charles Widomson. Rev. Dr. Robert Kilgore, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Crisfield, will preach the ordination sermon, and Rev. J. L. Roarex, pastor at Marion, will deliver the charge. A cordial invitation is extended to the pastors and members of other religious denominations in Princess Anne to attend this impressive service.

November Weather

The weather report for the month of November, as compiled by Mr. James R. Stewart, cooperative observer of Princess Anne, is as follows:
Maximum temperature, 78 degrees on the 15th and 19th; minimum temperature, 36 degrees on the 6th, 11th, 13th and 16th; total precipitation, 2.78 inches; clear days, 11; partly cloudy, 10; cloudy, 9; falling frosts and ice on the 4th, 6th, 11th, 13th, 16th, 28th and 30th; fog on the 2nd, 23rd and 29th; hail on the 24th; thunder storms on the 12th and 14th; rain on the 14th; wild geese seen southward on the 3rd. The prevailing wind was northwest.

The Rev. Dr. J. T. Hanson, of Salisbury, will preach in Antioch M. E. Church next Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

HORTICULTURISTS' MEETING

New Officers Elected At Berlin For The Coming Year

The keynote of the last day's session—Thursday—of the Peninsula Horticultural Society, held at Berlin last week, was co-operative selling of standardized grades and packs of fruit and vegetables. It was urged that the peninsula growers adopt certain brands for their fruits and vegetables and it was brought out that proper grading, packing and advertising is essential in order to secure best sale values. The peninsula, on account of its climate, various types of soils and its proximity to markets, is the best geographically located producing section in the East and growers should avail themselves of these splendid opportunities, it was said.

Thursday's program began with an address by Col. Albert W. Sisk, of Boston, a large canner and broker of canned goods. He predicted that in order for the Eastern Shore to hold the lead in tomato canning growers must adopt methods whereby the cost of production will be lower. He said that the present average yield of four tons to the acre is not profitable, but showed that by proper selection of land, seed, up-to-date cultivation and thorough spraying the yield on commercial plantings can be raised to an average of 10 tons to the acre. He also said that it is up to the canner to cut his operating expenses so that the consumer may obtain tomatoes at a reasonable price.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Arthur Walker, Wyoming, Del.; vice-president, W. Lee Allen, Salisbury; secretary-treasurer, Wesley Webb, Dover, Del.

Shoreland Club Entertained

The Shoreland Club was entertained by Mrs. W. A. N. Bowland last Thursday afternoon. Those present were: Mrs. John B. Roberts, Mrs. H. C. Robertson, Mrs. Joseph G. Scott, Mrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, Mrs. G. W. Maslin, Mrs. Ralph P. Thompson, Mrs. Robert F. Duer, Mrs. W. O. Lankford, Jr., Mrs. Frank M. Cline, Mrs. J. Arthur Powell, Mrs. T. J. Smith, Mrs. John E. Holland, Misses R. D. Stewart and Berenice Thompson. Mrs. Wilson, of Kingston, and Mrs. H. L. Brittingham, of Washington, D. C., were guests of the club. The club will meet with Mrs. Frank M. Cline Thursday afternoon, December 15th.

Illustrated Talk On Pine Timber

Arrangements have been made by the Princess Anne Grange for a public meeting to be held in the Court House tomorrow (Wednesday) evening, December 7th, at 8 p. m.

Assistant State Forester J. A. Cope will give a talk on the pine woodlot. Lantern slides will be shown of a number of pine forests on the Shore. Everybody who is interested in timber growing should attend this meeting.

No Photoplay Until Saturday Night

There will be no pictures at the Auditorium this week, except on Saturday night, on account of the management having the engine overhauled. On Saturday night there will be the 6th episode of "Do or Die," two reel comedy, "Torchy's Big Lead," and a two reel Western "Arab's Vengeance."

A pessimist is one who looks for a cure before he gets the disease.

FAIL TO RAISE TREASURE SHIP

Will Try Again To Get Millions On Sunken Merida

The treasure-seeking steam trawler Ripple and her crew, including expert deep-sea divers, have failed to salvage the $4,000,000 in gold and silver from the Ward liner Merida, which sank off the Virginia Capes, 35 miles east of Cape Charles, when she was rammed in the darkness on the night of May 12, 1911, by the steamship Admiral Farragut.

This was the third failure to raise the treasure from the bottom of the sea. It is understood another attempt will be made with the coming of the spring by the H. L. Gotham Corporation, which financed the recent expedition by the Ripple.

At the time of the accident it was all the crew of the Merida could do to tranship 360 passengers to the Admiral Farragut, for the weather was very rough, the ship was filling quickly and the landmen all were much excited by fresh recollections of the Republic-Florida disaster. So the Merida settled with a death gurgle, carrying down 21 tons of bar silver and gold coin in casks, as well as a great quantity of jewelry which the passengers had entrusted to the purser and which there was no chance to remove from the safe.

The vessel lies in 35 fathoms of water. Among the expert divers in the Ripple's crew was Frank Criley, one of those who raised the United States submarine E-4 from 300 feet of water in Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

Thirty-five fathoms is only 210 feet, but the weather conditions have prevented the divers from recovering the sunken treasure on the three attempts.

Mrs. E. B. Polk Entertains

Last Friday afternoon Mrs. Earle Brodie Polk gave a tea from 5 to 7 in honor of her sister, Mrs. Page Toadvine, of Salisbury. Owing to the fact that the day was exceedingly rainy, a large number of those invited were kept at their homes. Those assisting the hostess to receive were Mrs. Page Toadvine, Mrs. E. H. Cohn, Mrs. H. J. Waters, Mrs. John B. Roberts and Miss Nannie P. Fontaine. Those assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Geo. H. Myers, Mrs. Geo. B. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Morris H. Adams, Mrs. Samuel H. Sudler and Miss Berenice Thompson.

Those present were Mrs. T. J. Smith, Mrs. Joseph E. Clark, Mrs. J. Arthur Powell, Mrs. E. P. Fitzgerald, Mrs. J. W. Miles, Mrs. H. C. Dashiell, Mrs. A. E. Krause, Mrs. G. W. Maslin, Mrs. E. D. Young, Mrs. Omar J. Crowell, Mrs. H. P. Dashiell, Mrs. J. Douglass Wallop, Mrs. Frank M. Cline, Mrs. Clarence Z. Keller, Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald Coe, Mrs. Joseph G. Scott, Mrs. W. O. Lankford, Jr., Mrs. Clarence E. Barnett, Mrs. Wm. H. Gale, Mrs. W. A. N. Bowland, Mrs. Wm. B. Spiva, Misses Dorothy Jones and Irene Taylor, of Princess Anne; Mrs. Sickle, of Baltimore; Mrs. Alonza L. Miles, of Salisbury, and Miss Hoen, of Baltimore.

In the evening the following were entertained at "500": Mr. and Mrs. George H. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Morris H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Sudler, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. N. Bowland, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. E. Herrman Cohn, Col. and Mrs. Henry J. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Omar J. Crowell, Mrs. Page Toadvine, Mrs. George B. Fitzgerald, Misses Berenice Thompson and Nannie P. Fontaine, Messrs. George H. Myers, Jr., F. Culbreth Polk and George B. Fitzgerald.

Maryland Corn Growers Win Prizes

Maryland-grown corn, exhibited by a number of growers of pure-bred varieties at the Hay and Grain Show, an annual event held at Chicago in connection with the International Livestock Exposition, won 17 prizes this year amounting to $165, according to J. E. Metzger, agronomist for the University of Maryland Experiment Station, who attended the show.

Out of a total of 50 possible prizes offered for 10-year exhibits of yellow corn Maryland growers won 5. The winners were G. D. Radenbaugh, of Bynum, Harford county; A. G. Ensor, of Forest Hill, Harford county; A. S. Short, of Elkton; Henry Rigdon, of Forest Hill; Lloyd Balderson, of Calora, Cecil county; James Galbreath, of Street, Harford county; Roy Enfield, of Forest Hill; C. C. Balderson, of Calora; Fred C. Jones, of Darlington; J. A. Hartensine, of Principio; Gladden Davis, of Rocks, and Galbreath Brothers, of Street.

The Epworth League of Antioch M. E. Church will hold a social in the Social Hall of the church tomorrow (Wednesday) night, and request all the young people of the community to be present.

CHRISTMAS SEALS SALE NOW ON

Tuberculosis Association Hopes To Collect $85,000

The sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals, conducted each year by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association and its county agencies, commenced on December first; it will end January first. Between those dates, it is hoped to collect the $85,000 necessary to carry on this tuberculosis work for another twelve months.

This is the fourteenth year that the association has presented its bright seals to the public as a means whereby it may secure decorations for its holiday packages and letters, and, at the same time, assist in fighting the most devastating scourge that afflicts mankind.

With the money received from the sale of seals and health bonds, the association supports all of the branches of its work: The preventorium for children at Claiborne, the modern health crusade in the schools and other educational work. It also supports, in part, the visiting nurses and the medical consultant service in the country districts.

Where other organizations ask for great sums, the Tuberculosis Association contents itself with small sums, and yet so efficient has been its work in handling the money received that each year shows a decided decrease in the number of cases of tuberculosis in the State. Thus, in 1918 there were 2,934 deaths from consumption in Maryland, while in 1920 there were 2,248, a decrease of 786 in two years. Some day, if this percentage is maintained, this disease will probably be entirely eliminated; at any rate, it is now "on the run" and needs, perhaps, only a persistent and concentrated effort to put it to rout as a health problem.

The counties, it is declared, should be particularly interested in the seal sale since 75% of all the funds raised in any one of them goes to fight the disease within its borders.

The sale will this season be under the leadership of Henry F. Baker, the well-known Baltimore financier, who has formed an organization which will give a maximum of work at a minimum of expense.

The committee in charge of the sale hopes that the number bought may be greater than ever before and the counties are urged to buy with a will, so that there will have to be no let-up in their warfare against tuberculosis.

C. & P. Would Keep Same Phone Rates

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company last Thursday filed with the Public Service Commission in Baltimore petition for the continuance of the company's existing rates after December 31st, when the present order of the Commission expires. The Utilities Board has set December 16th as the date for the hearing.

The company says in its petition "that while it is true that the past return from said rates has been inadequate and in fact unreasonably low so far as your petitioner is concerned, your petitioner is well aware of the inconvenience both to the public and itself of frequent changes in telephone rates and for that reason is not inclined at this time to ask authority to increase the same, but will be satisfied to continue such rates and charges in service in the hope that by the exercise of further economies and increased efficiency, it may yet be able to make such rates more remunerative, or until such time as changed conditions may warrant their modification in whole or in part."

Boiler Explosion Shakes Cambridge

Buildings throughout Cambridge were shaken and residents there and in the surrounding country startled by the noise when the boiler at the Green Valley Mills exploded last Thursday morning, injuring two men, one of them seriously.

George Mills, engineer at the plant, was cut and scalded and one eye was badly hurt. He was taken to Cambridge Hospital, where it was said he would probably recover. Capt. Joseph Robbins, one of the proprietors, who was in the office at the time, was cut by flying glass.

A section of the boiler was carried over three back yards, landing in that of James H. Adkins, 150 feet away. The largest part was carried about 30 feet. Flying timbers did considerable damage to surrounding property. In the yard of Levin Newcomb a coop of ten chickens was demolished and all the chickens killed.

The Rev. G. S. Allen, of Oriole, filled the pulpit of Antioch M. E. Church last Sunday morning and the Rev. Robert Wilson preached at night. The pastor of the church, the Rev. W. F. Dawson, expects to preach to his congregation next Sunday.

TWO DROWN WHEN AUTO PLUNGES

Mr. William B. Ward And Servant Trapped In Sedan

Trapped in a closed sedan which had plunged through an open drawbridge which crosses a cove at Crisfield, Mr. Beck Ward, one of the largest oyster and crab dealers on the Eastern Shore, and Mamie Sterling, a negro servant, were drowned last Thursday evening. In order to bring the bodies to the surface boatmen were forced to cut a hole through the top of the automobile and to lower hooks through the opening.

Mr. Ward's hands were badly cut, and it is thought that he shattered the windows of the sedan with his fists in an effort to escape from the car. The machine opened on only one side, and the door could not be forced because it rested against one of the bridge supports.

Mr. Ward was driving from his home at Lawsonia to his oyster house in Crisfield, a distance of one mile. A schooner had recently passed through the bridge and Mr. Ward failed to notice the open draw.

Judge Fred N. Holland, acting as coroner, held an inquest over the bodies of Mr. Ward and also the colored woman, Mamie Sterling, aged 21, of Crisfield. Dr. Chas. T. Schwabka acted as coroner's physician. The jury rendered a verdict to the effect that death was due to negligence, upon the part of Mr. Ward.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY TO MEET

Program Arranged For Gathering On January 10th

Business men, Congressmen and farm leaders will appear as speakers on the program of the annual meeting of the Maryland Agricultural Society, to be held in Baltimore, January 10 to 12, is announced by Dr. Thomas B. Symons, secretary.

Details of the meeting are rapidly being completed by D. G. Harry, president, and Dr. Symons, and while word from a number of prominent speakers is awaited before the program is definitely announced, sufficient replies have been received to assure a program of unusual diversity and interest, it is said.

It will be the first meeting of the society to be held in Baltimore since 1918. The Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association, one of the affiliated organizations to meet at the same time, will bring its members to Baltimore for the first time and is expected to draw a large representation from Southern Maryland.

It has been announced that all affiliated organizations, including the State Horticultural Society, the Dairymen's Association, the Vegetable Growers, the Beekeepers' Association, the Sheep Growers, Crop Improvement Association and the Maryland Tobacco Growers will hold their separate meetings in the morning and that the afternoon will be devoted to joint sessions of all groups.

The newly formed Agricultural Corporation of Maryland and other phases of co-operation, together with legislation and marketing, will form some of the important topics for discussion during the conference.

Fertilizer Manufacturers' Association

An informal meeting of the fertilizer manufacturers of the Del-Mar-Via Peninsula was held in Salisbury last week for the purpose of effecting temporary organization of an association to be known as the Peninsula Fertilizer Manufacturers' Association, and the consensus of opinion of those present was that such an organization would not only be of vast benefit to the fertilizer manufacturing industry as a whole but that it also would prove to be helpful to everything pertaining to agriculture on the Peninsula. Mr. William B. Tilghman, of Salisbury, was elected temporary president of the organization; Mr. E. Benson Dennis, of Crisfield, was chosen as vice-president, and Mr. William E. Valliant, of Georgetown, Del., served as secretary.

Meeting Of State Grange

The forty-ninth annual session of the Maryland State Grange will be held in the Armory at Cambridge beginning Wednesday morning December 7, and will last for three days.

A reception will be given at the Armory on Tuesday night to all visiting Grangers, and arrangements have been made to accommodate all visitors during the session.

All Grangers of Somerset county should avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the State Grange. The sixth degree will be given during the meeting. All who have not taken this degree should be present when it is given.

AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL WEEK

President Harding By Proclamation Sets December 4th To 10th

President Harding has issued a proclamation setting apart the week of December 4th to 10th as American education week, during which citizens of the United States are urged to assist general efforts to reduce illiteracy and give thought to remedying defects in the nation's educational system. The proclamation follows:

"Whereas public education is the basis of citizenship and is of primary importance to the welfare of the nation, and

"Whereas more than 5,000,000 boys and girls in America are not availing themselves of our free school advantages and are lacking in that youthful schooling which is so essential to the making of an intelligent citizenship, and

"Whereas the experience of the war reveals vast elements of population that are illiterate, physically unfit, or unfamiliar with American ideals and traditions, and our future strength and security are much dependent on their education and commitment to American ideals;

"Therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, do urge the Governors of the various States and Territories to set apart December 4th to 10th, inclusive, 1921, as American education week, during which citizens in every State are urged to special and thoughtful attention to the needs and the aims of the public schools. It is particularly recommended that efforts be addressed to practical expression of community interest in public education. To that end organizations for civic advancement and social betterment are earnestly requested when it can be made practicable to provide programs which will inform the people concerning the vital needs in this direction, instruct them regarding shortcomings and deficiencies in present facilities and bring to their attention specific, constructive methods by which in the respective communities these deficiencies may be supplied.

"The subject of public education has always been very close to the American heart, and to the fact that it has been made a chief responsibility of local governmental units we largely owe the wide diffusion of educational facilities. It is believed that a widespread and earnest effort at observance of education week would do much to emphasize this feeling of immediate responsibility. Therefore, it is suggested that the pulpit, press, schools and public gatherings be enlisted in behalf of this special effort."

Commissioners Agree To Book Plan

The proposal of a delegation from the Crisfield Parent-Teachers' Association to buy text books for that town provided the county would reimburse the association from its next levy in June was accepted by the County Commissioners last Tuesday after warm debate.

The delegation comprised William M. Wooster, E. L. Quinn, Jr., and Senator John B. Robins, the latter being spokesman. It was set forth that while many children of well-to-do parents had books bought for them by their parents, many poorer children had no texts out of which to study their lessons. Conditions were described as deplorable, instances being cited where in rooms of 40 pupils only two text books were available, the teacher being compelled to adopt the antiquated method of writing lessons on the blackboard.

The lack of text books is due to the fact that the County Commissioners, in passing on the school budget for the present year, cut it heavily, appropriating no money whatever for books. The reason the Commissioners had for doing this were set forth last Tuesday by President Frank Porter, of Princess Anne, who said the county did not have the money with which to grant the school requests. It was pointed out, however, that the money needed to keep up the text books supply for the whole county is only between $1,000 and $1,500, or about one cent on the county tax rate. Mr. Porter said the State should buy the books, anyway; that it was not the county's job.

Harry T. Phoebus, the new member of the board, said that even if the State had failed to provide enough money to buy books, this was no reason why children of the county should be deprived of the chance to make the most of the time they were spending in their education. Robert Maddox agreed with Mr. Phoebus, and after considerable discussion, a vote was taken, Mr. Porter being voted down.

It is estimated that the plan of the Crisfield association involves about $350.

A grain of wisdom is worth a gross of advice.

MAKE STRIDES IN CANCER RESEARCH

Artificial Tumors Produced in

X-RAY MACHINE IS IMPROVED

Rays of Unusual Power Developed by

Will Greatly Aid in Cures—Is Notable Advance.

New York.—What is called "a most important and far-reaching contribution to cancer research" is made known by Dr. Francis Carter Wood, director of the Columbia University Institute of Cancer Research, endowed by George Crocker, in a report to President Nicholas Murray Butler.

Doctor Wood states that two of the workers in the Columbia laboratories, Dr. Frederick D. Bullock and Miss M. R. Curtis, Ph. D., both ranking as associate in cancer research, have discovered a means of producing cancer artificially in rats, large numbers of which are constantly used in Columbia's work of cancer research.

"After five years of hard work," says Doctor Wood, "Doctors Bullock and Curtis have finally shown that if white rats be infested with the eggs of a certain parasite and kept for a period of not less than eight months, tumors will develop about the areas in which the parasites are present, and that these tumors are virulent cancers which rapidly kill the animals in which they start and can easily be transplanted to others."

"This is not the first time that cancer has been produced artificially. It is just 146 years since the London surgeon Pott showed that certain types of cancer follow certain occupations in which irritating substances come in contact with the body. The best known of these types of cancer is the chimney-sweep's cancer, which developed to such an extent in England that laws were passed regulating the conditions under which chimney sweeping could be done."

Names Forms of Cancers.

"Other forms of irritation cancer are the well-known Kaposi's sarcoma of the Kashmir native, the betel-nut cancer on the inner surface of the cheek among Malays and Filipinos, and the cancers following chronic X-ray dermatitis. It has also been known that it is possible to obtain a considerable number of cancers in animals by in-breeding cancerous strains, but some years are required to get enough stock, the number of tumors so obtained is not always large, and the time of their appearance cannot be determined, so that experiments requiring many tumors cannot be planned."

"Another means of inducing cancer has been by painting the skin of an animal with tar. This experiment is based upon the observation that workers in briquette factories, where the skin of the hands is constantly in contact with tar, not infrequently develop cancer. Professor Fibiger of Copenhagen has shown also that cancers can be produced in the stomachs of rats by feeding the animals on a certain parasite, but here also the actual percentage of production is small."

"In the method devised in this laboratory, however, the yield is very considerable, over half the animals of a certain strain developing cancer."

Doctor Wood quotes Dr. J. A. Murray, director of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund, London, a noted investigator of cancer, as saying recently that "one of the great disadvantages which retards progress in the study of cancer is the absence of a means of producing the diseases at will in experimental animals."

"With the discovery made in this laboratory," Doctor Wood adds, "this disadvantage no longer exists."

Doctor Wood reports the construction of a new machine through which, during the coming winter, will be added "new and important facts to the very vital question of the treatment of cancer by X-ray."

Seek High-Power X-Rays.

"There has been under consideration for some time," he continues, discussing experimental work, "the erection of an apparatus for the production of a direct current at high voltages in order to produce X-rays of unusual power, as the limitations of the commercial machine in certain modes of treatment are obvious."

"The matter had been discussed in an informal way during the last two or three years with a number of experts, among them Professor Duane and Professor Davis, and at the last annual meeting of the Crocker board it was proposed that the accrued income of the Bondy fund be devoted to the construction of a more powerful constant current X-ray apparatus than had yet been attempted, with the necessary equipment to permit of accurate determinations in physical units of the exact quantity of radiation given off by the X-ray tubes."

"Many unforeseen difficulties in the obtaining of equipment and materials have, of course, arisen, as is usual in the construction of research apparatus; but the machine has already been run for considerable periods, delivering a continuous current at high voltages, and gives promise that it will shortly be capable of furnishing not less than 200,000 volts with considerable amperage, and do this for such long periods of hours or even days as may be necessary in the experimental work."

REMEDY FOR NERVES

Concentration Is Recommended by Eminent Music Director.

Cultivate an Interest in Work, an Interest
That Becomes Absorbing—This Absorption Prevents Attention From Wandering.

London.—What are we to do about our "nerves"? It is the question which bothers half the world today. Everybody who has to work under the eye of a critic, from the orator who wonders how his speech is going to the shop girl who is aware of the shop-walker's eye while she is selling a yard of ribbon, is liable to an attack of what we call "nerves."

To all such sufferers, says the Daily Mail, Sir Hugh Allen spoke when, as director of the Royal College of Music, he addressed the students of the college at the opening of the new term. He was speaking mainly to those who are or will become public performers of music—but his words apply to everybody.

"It is not much to say," he declared, "that nerves are the most needed ingredient in the performer's outfit, and that nervousness has brought distress if not disaster to countless musicians. 'Nerve' and 'nervous' are words which have the most diverse meaning in our language. We speak of nerve as of something strong, vigorous, as courage and boldness and assurance, and of nerves as a disordered state of the nervous system."

"By 'nerves' we mean that miserable state which attacks us at all turns of the road, when we have to play or sing, when we don't know our work, when we are late, when we have to do things in front of others. Personally I know of no greater discomfort."

"I have known a man called upon to speak suddenly among friends to be absolutely dumb, and another to have uttered a string of unintelligible nonsense. I have known conductors who confessed to a feeling of complete blankness at the beginning of a concert."

"Now the paradox of the whole affair is that you cannot be a really good performer or conductor unless you are nervous (in a sense and in the right degree), and you cannot be if you are nervous! The case is really this: It is only those who have nervous susceptibility and a delicately balanced and well controlled nervous system who will ever make an appeal by their performance."

Beyond the need for obtaining their full knowledge of the matter in hand, Sir Hugh advises the nervous "to cultivate an interest in work, an interest which becomes absorbing, which means that our minds are taken up with what we are doing—not with why we are doing it. This absorption prevents our attention from wandering. The power of attention which enables us to concentrate upon what we are doing, and to become unsuspensible to outside influences, but it is also the best way to build up character."

Women's Influence Slowly Approximating That of British and American Women.

DISCARD SANDALS FOR SHOES

City Population of Japan Increasing Thirteen Times as Fast as That of Country—Million Men Engaged in Factory Work.

Honolulu, T. H.—A unique feature of the gradual rise of women's influence in Japan, until their position is now slowly approximating that of American and British women, is that they are giving up smoking, just at the time when great comment has arisen over the increase of smoking among their sisters in America and England.

The subject was discussed by Dr. T. W. Haden, dean of the theological department of Kwansei Gakuin, a mission college in Japan, who attended a session here of the Pan-American educational conference as one of the emissaries' representatives.

"Formerly all classes of women in Japan smoked in public as well as in their homes," Doctor Haden said. "The influence of the West has almost stopped this custom, although it is to the interest of the government to foster it, as tobacco is a government monopoly."

New Word for "Home" Coined. Doctor Haden said that a new word for home—"katei"—has been coined in Japan to express the meaning and idea of home life in Western civilization as is being learned by the Japanese.

"The changing conditions of Japanese women is only begun, but it is proceeding with a rapidity and intensity which are very significant and hopeful," he said. "The Japanese language has a word expressing house and household, but they had no conception of home life in the Occident, where women are on an equal footing with men. This is now expressed by 'katei,' with the new appreciation of home as a thing to be shared by husband and wife and the gradual rise of the Japanese women to the position of their American and British sisters."

Doctor Haden said that the city population of Japan is increasing 13 times as fast as that of the country, due to the change of industry from agriculture to manufacturing. More than 1,000,000 are engaged in factory work and more than one-half of these are under twenty years of age, he said.

Women Discard Sandals for Shoes. "A significant and interesting indication of the change in progress in Japan now," said Doctor Haden, "is the fact that, while the Japanese women retain the kimono as their chief attire, they have discarded the obi—the folded square of cloth worn on the back—and over their kimonos many of the women now wear a full, divided skirt, which ties around the waist with a wide sash hanging at the side. Many of them also wear shoes instead of their sandals."

Divorce laws also have been revised in accord with other transitions. Formerly a man could send his wife back to her parents without excuse or explanation. This act constituted legal freedom for him. Now he can only divorce her for infidelity or by agreement with her. The woman as yet has no recourse against the infidelity of her husband, not even though he bring a concubine into the home, as frequently has been done.

"The example of Americans, their homes and schools in Japan, gradually has altered the hearts and feelings of the Japanese until now they have been induced to effect these changes."

GET HOT WATER FROM WELL

Flows at the Rate of Forty Gallons a Minute—130 Degrees Temperature.

Sebring, Fla.—Hot water which began flowing some days ago from a well being driven for a local concern still was coming to the surface recently at a rate of 40 gallons a minute. Throughout the period the flow has maintained an even temperature of 130 degrees.

It is said to be the second instance of a hot flowing well observed in Florida, one having been drilled at Pensacola about 20 years ago. The flow of the Pensacola well was lost when the drill broke through the rock and diverted the water into a subterranean lake.

Sebring is about 40 miles northwest of Lake Okechobee, and in that part of the state where the formation indicates it once was the open sea, the land having been built upon coral reefs.

Lived in a Tree.

San Francisco.—Samuel Kumkuff, who was arrested several weeks ago when it was learned by the police that he had been living in a tree in Columbia square, was pulled out of the same tree again a few days ago, and was taken before Police Judge L. T. Jacks.

"I am told that you were warned by Judge McAtee to move on," said Jacks. "What are you trying to do, boycott the lodging houses? Why didn't you move?"

"I did," said the defendant blandly. "I moved to another branch."

Was Almost Equipped.

Wesley had been teasing his dad for a bicycle; his father, thinking him too young, refused. Wesley came into the house one day all excited after he had been trying to ride his chum's bicycle, saying: "I can have one now, father. I know everything there is to know about a bicycle and I can do everything on one but steer myself."

Wild Indians in South America.

There are not today in North America any wild tribes of Indians. In parts of South America, notably the forest regions of the Amazon, there are tribes of Indians which have not yet reached any degree of civilization.

Surely.

Some little time back a professor in the medical department of a certain college asked one of the more advanced students: "What is the name of the teeth that a human being gets last?" "False," was the reply.

The Grand bank of Newfoundland is supposed to be composed of deposits of solid matter brought from the Arctic seas by icebergs, which gradually melt by contact with the warm water of the Gulf stream.

Measuring the Moon.

Compared with the earth, the moon is a tiny body, with a diameter of 2,160 miles. In the great scale of the Pacific, from which, according to an old idea, it was born, the moon would make a solitary island.

BLIND 57 YEARS, YET BUILT CITY

Gen. A. R. Johnson of Burnet, Tex., One of the Figures of the Civil War.

IS STILL HARD AT WORK

At Eighty-Eight He Looks Back Over Practically All of the History of Texas—Lost Eyes in Battle in Kentucky.

Austin, Tex.—Blindness is a serious impediment to most men, but it did not prevent Gen. A. R. Johnson of Burnet, Tex., from accomplishing whatever purpose he had in mind—and he has had many purposes. After he had lost the sight of both eyes the general built the city of Marble Falls, made several trips East to interest capital and succeeded; built a water power plant, a school house, a shoe factory, a cotton mill, secured a railroad for his town, fought Indians and raised and educated six children he never had seen. He also has taken a prominent part in Texas politics and civic work since losing his sight. The general is now eighty-three years old and is as enterprising as ever.

Johnson's record in the war between the states was as brilliant as his work after the conflict had closed. It was along in 1864 that he lost his sight from explosion of a shot. Johnson is one of the few remaining generals of the Confederacy and has been a resident of Texas for more than sixty years.

When Johnson came to Texas before the Civil war, Kentucky being his native state, he had charge of a section of the Overland Mail Route, one of the links in the Butterfield Mail Route between New York and San Francisco. The Comanche Indians often attacked and killed the station agents, and in the fights with them Johnson always took a hand.

When the war came he hurried to Kentucky and joined General Forrest. Johnson had two brothers in the federal army and having been absent in Texas so long it was supposed his sentiments were similar and so he obtained valuable information for Forrest. It was at this time that Johnson earned the sobriquet "Stovepipe Johnson." Learning that there were 500 stands of guns at Newberg, Ind., he took but 30 men across the Ohio river, found some broken down wagons and joints of stovepipe. Mounting the pipe on the wagon wheels, he was able to deceive the people at Newberg into thinking that he had several powerful cannon trained upon their town and when he demanded of the Federal officers that they surrender their supplies they did so promptly.

Lost Eyesight in Battle. The general lost his sight during a fight at Grubbs Cross Roads, Ken., and was left for dead upon the battlefield. His obituary was published all over the South, but the Federals picked him up with other wounded and sent him to Boston harbor prison. Later he was exchanged, and spent the remainder of the war period filling cartridges. After Lee surrendered Johnson and his wife returned to Texas, where he still found his old enemy, the Comanches, on the war path, and he accompanied several expeditions against them. Then he began his plans to build Marble Falls, liking the location because of the falls in the Colorado river at that point and the natural dam. Thus the "Blind Man's Town," with its fine water power plant and factories, became a reality.

The general, though living at Burnet, a short distance from Marble Falls, takes great interest in the welfare of the projects begun by him, and is still planning new enterprises.

TO RAZE GREAT PEKING WALL

"Glory of the City" May Be Torn Down to Make Way for a Modern Tramway.

Peking.—Construction of a modern tramway system will wipe out the ancient walls of Peking, called by the populace "The glory of the city," if plans submitted to the municipality by the Peking Tramways company materialize.

The company, in its memorandum, refers to the city walls as "useless," and cites the "fine example of Tientsin," where the walls were razed several years ago.

The proposal is strongly opposed by foreigners and Chinese alike, who want to preserve the ancient walls at any cost.

ENGLISH TRAIN CUTS RECORD

Cornish Express Scheduled for 226 Miles in 257 Minutes Without a Stop.

London.—What is said to be the longest no-stop railroad run in the world, of the Cornish Riviera express from Paddington Station, London, to Plymouth—a distance of 226½ miles—has been accelerated by a quarter of an hour, thus reverting to the prewar time of four hours and seven minutes. This time is sometimes beaten by the ocean mail special trains from Plymouth to Paddington, which have made the journey in four hours. The express passes through 68 stations.

BOUT WITH ELEPHANT

Big Game Hunter Has Exciting Experience in Africa.

J. Morewood Dowsett Is Surprised When Big Beast Turns and Runs Away After Dowling and Trying to Trample Him.

London.—A good elephant yarn is told by J. Morewood Dowsett, a well-known big game hunter, who has just returned from a hunting trip in South Africa.

He was hunting elephants in Uganda when information was brought him of the whereabouts of a large herd. With a native chief and a house boy, he started to find them. The party came upon the herd in the forest. Mr. Dowsett got several photographs within 20 yards of the beasts when the chief warned him that they had been "scented" and that the animals were coming for them. Snatching up his rifle Mr. Dowsett shot and killed the leader, a big bull.

While some surrounded their leader many of the beasts stampeded, and, running the wrong way, Mr. Dowsett was cut off from the party. Reloading his gun, the hunter dashed off for safety and ran into a big bull elephant which crashed through the bush six yards in front of him.

Trunk aloft, ears extended and trumpeting wildly, the beast rushed at Mr. Dowsett and swept him to the ground with his trunk and turned rapidly in its own length ready to trample him.

The hunter took a flying dive under the monster's belly, realizing he would then be on the right side of the wind, but the beast turned rapidly round and again tried to trample him. Instead the animal rolled him over and over with its legs and the hunter saw above him the two great tusks as the beast tried to maneuver his body into position and pick him up. Mr. Dowsett managed to roll behind the animal and get to his feet and make a rush for cover. To the hunter's relief and surprise the furious beast set off in the opposite direction and disappeared.

CHAMPION BOXING DOG.

Champion middleweight canine of the world, Schnops, in the ring.

Schnops is a master boxer, and can "use his dukes" better than many a human, and is so enthusiastic about the new sport he has learned he is liable to introduce it to "select society of the canine world." Schnops, a great Dane, is shown in the ring with his owner Joseph Fredericks, of New York city.

SWEDEN IN RECORD GROWTH

Increase of 56,725 in Population Greatest in 100 Years, Official Figures Show.

Stockholm.—The population of Sweden numbered 5,903,762 persons in January this year, according to official figures just now published. The increase during 1920 was 56,725.

This increase is the highest recorded in Sweden in the last 100 years, both absolutely and relatively.

The mortality was 13.29 per thousand, which is the lowest hitherto recorded in Sweden, and Swedish statisticians proudly report this figure as a world's record. They affirm that Sweden is the healthiest place on earth.

Fur Farming Increases.

Ottawa, Canada.—The growing importance of fur farming in Canada is illustrated in the Dominion bureau of statistics report covering the industry for 1920. At the end of the year there were 582 fur farms, as against 414 in 1919, and the values had increased from $3,908,591 to $4,032,905.

300 Years Total Ages of 4 Women Diners

Middletown, N. Y.—Four women whose combined ages aggregate 300 years have just enjoyed a guinea hen dinner at Bloomingburg, Sullivan county, talking over old times, people and places.

They are: Mrs. Salter, seventy-one; Mrs. Evans, eighty; Mrs. France, seventy, and Mrs. Mills of Hawthorne, N. J., seventy-nine.

The dinner was cooked by Mrs. France, the menu consisting of guinea hen, spinach, boiled onions, cabbage, salad, apple pie, cheese and tea.

Who Owns The Bell Telephone System?

SOME people look upon the Bell System as a large corporation owned by a group of capitalists.

On the contrary, the stock of the Company is owned by 175,000 people. This does not include many thousands who are owners of the Company's bonds, or those who are paying for stock in installments.

More than half of these stockholders are women. The average number of shares held is 30 and no shareholder owns as much as one-half of one per cent. of the stock. More than one-third of the stockholders own five shares or less each.

These people buy this stock because they believe in the efficiency of the organization and the integrity of its management. They believe their money is safe and they expect to receive a continuous dividend on their investment.

The further extension of our system is dependent upon these people and others who may be attracted as investors. If we are going to continue to meet the growing demands for extension of our service, it is imperative that these people shall continue to receive satisfactory pay for the use of their money.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 6, 1921

What this country needs is more dishwashers and fewer film stars.

Formerly there was too much wine in this country and now there is too much whine.

The low necked girls do not require so much material for their dresses but they have to spend more for soap.

After talking all day to all who will listen to them some folks complain that there is no free speech in this country.

The burglars and hold up men are among those who think that the automobile is the greatest of modern improvements.

The Boy Scouts not merely know all the forest trails but they can track the doughnut jar in the most concealed location.

Formerly the children always used to enjoy dressing up in grown-up clothing but now the women folk are all looking for kid dresses.

Police officers apparently suffer a good deal from nearsight and deafness from the amount of illegal liquor selling that they fail to see and hear about.

The people who mail their Christmas packages about four days before the holiday will as usual be kicking about the delays in the mails.

After claiming that the churches do nothing for the community a lot of people rush in to the monthly church suppers to get a $1.00 meal for 35 cents.

Many men are being brought up in court for failure to support their wives but they may make the counter claim that their wives failed to support them.

The open season for birds, squirrels, etc. does not usually last more than a few weeks or months, but the government hunts the taxpayer every day in the year.

These kids that persist in riding bicycles directly in front of automobiles should be informed that the hospitals always keep a bed ready for that particular variety of fool.

If you are not interested in the proposition that store clerks and mail and express employees should have a pleasant holiday season then you can put off buying and shipping presents until just before Christmas.

The people who travel away to large cities to buy holiday gifts must love the railroad companies and the big city stores, as they make them valuable Christmas presents without getting any advantage in return.

THE GOOD OLD PUMPKIN PIE

A "pie hound" writes from Baltimore, Md., to the New York Times, asking where genuine old-fashioned pumpkin pie can be found. He refers to the many people who look back longingly to "the pies of ye olden days, all gloriously brown, with a crust crisp and tender so it would melt in your mouth."

This is a complaint that will be echoed by thousands not to say millions of people. These are the degenerate days. The typical pumpkin pie of these times is a squishy sort of concoction, in which the due proportion of creamy milk is lacking and which consequently has a watery and vegetable sort of a taste.

Moreover the crust is the greatest crime. Rammed through some large oven without that personal affection that mother used to give to every one of her noble creations, it is a soggy, bit of uncooked dough, sickening to the taste and afflicting to the memory of any person who ever lived in the country and was familiar with the culinary triumphs of 25 years ago. It is a machine made product and lacks even that careful oversight which wholesale production is supposed to give.

Formerly good cooks used to glory and exult in their triumphs. Their fame would spread beyond the limits of any one township. At the food sales of those days people would engage the product of a favorite pie maker for weeks in advance and the output of the old reliable cooks was all sold ahead.

But nowadays the glory of Israel has departed. Cooking is esteemed a distasteful art and it is considered that it interferes with intellectual development. Our friend the pie hound will have to look some distance before he finds the old-fashioned pie for his Christmas dinner.

BUYING AT HOME

An exchange tells of the case of a woman in its home town who a short time ago went shopping in a large city not far away. "She paid $100 for a coat and $18.30 for a hat," says this paper which went on to remark:
"On Monday in one of our stores she saw the same coat for $125 and the same hat for $10. She will try shopping at home in the future."

This is the kind of thing that people are constantly doing when they go away from Princess Anne to buy goods. The same difference exists on moderate priced stuff as in the high cost goods referred to by our exchange. Big-city prices have to be higher because of their high cost rental, costly organization and high cost living in big centers, which makes it necessary to pay more for every expense of operating a store.

ADDING TO HUMAN LIFE

At a convention of life insurance men recently held in Chicago, the statement was made that the human race has added 10 years to the life of the average man in the past 50 years. The speaker expressed belief that 10 more years would be added to the average life in the next half century and he believed that eventually man might reach the age of 300 years.

To increase the general average of longevity, terrible curses like tuberculosis and cancer must come under control. Also the contagious diseases like scarlet fever that carry off many children must be practically abolished.

Many people live through all the perils of contagion yet come to an early grave as the result of too fast living or too much worry. The human mind must cultivate a philosophical temperament in order to live long. The man who can not take life cheerfully as it comes has not acquired the secret of long life.

MAKING CHRISTMAS PURCHASES

The popular habit of everybody rushing into the stores about 10 days before the holiday or later and buying a lot of stuff and sending it all in a heap through the mails and express is one of the most preposterous customs that the American people ever adopted.

The majority of stores have to put on extra help and keep open longer hours at this season which makes the cost of operating a retail business higher for the time being. If this trade could only be spread over a period of four to six weeks, it could be attended to without opening additional hours and without putting on more help or running up other expenses. It would therefore be possible, in view of the big rush to buy at this season, to make a lower range of prices all around as the big volume of business would cut overhead and operating expenses.

The Marylander and Herald earnestly urges each one of its readers to take up the matter of Christmas buying now, and select the desired articles in the stores of Princess Anne and send them away without delay.

THE NEW INTERNATIONAL COURT

Another attempt to settle international disputes without war will come into organized form next January 23, when the new international court meets at the Hague. It will have to command better support than the old Hague tribunal if it is to accomplish much.

There are two ways by which these disputes can be settled other than by war. The first is through conferences where representatives of the powers try to bargain with each other and there is the method of referring the controversies to a court whose decisions are harmonious agreement. And each party is pledged to accept. Up to now the nations would not place their most vital interests at the disposal of such a tribunal. Someday they will find that it is infinitely cheaper to abide by the decisions of such a court, than to rush the world into the awful catastrophe of war.

Order of Publication

William C. Mudge vs. Florence Pearl Mudge.

No. 3612 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant.
The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married and ten, in the city of Hoboken, State of New Jersey, and resided together in the city of New York, State of New York, until the twenty-third day of July, nineteen hundred and eighteen; that although the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant without any just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and has declared her intention to live with him no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the plaintiff and defendant have no children born to them from said marriage; Florence Pearl Mudge, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, when last heard from residing in the city of New York, State of New York.
It is thereupon this 18th day of November, nineteen hundred and twenty-one, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset county once in each of four successive weeks before the twentieth day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-one, give notice to the said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, to show cause, if any, why she, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.
True Copy. Test. W. JEROME STERLING, Clerk.

Beautiful Coconut Palm.
The coconut palm is a beautiful tree.
The trunk seldom exceeds 20 inches in diameter at the base, and rises in a slender, graceful column to a height of 80 or 100 feet, where it bursts into a canopy of dark green foliage. It has been likened to a rocket, rising to a hundred feet or more and bursting into a shower of fronds. The space beneath is cool and inviting, partly and sometimes wholly shielded from the rays of the tropical sun. A coconut grove on a coral beach, washed by the waves of a tropic sea and splashed by the filtered beams of a silvery moon, is an enchanted place, and that one on the island of Gulmaras across the strait from Mollo, was a fairy land, well-fitted as the dwelling place of the entrancing Dolores in "Floradora."

Uncle Eben.
"It's easier," said Uncle Eben, "to sell a man some kind of a gold brick than it is to give him valuable advice free of charge."

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy The Mother's Favorite

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of young children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief and is free from opium and other harmful drugs.

THE HARDWARE QUESTION SOLVED

Do You Need a New Cook Stove

It's a waste of time and energy to try to cook and bake with the old-fashioned cook stove—and, worse still, an actual waste of fuel.
The modern kitchen stoves and ranges are marvels of efficiency, economy and convenience in comparison. They make cooking and baking easier, cheaper and more uniform.

We have them in the best makes—for small families and for large—with coal or wood grates—malleable, rust-proof and with the latest inventions and attachments.

We are always glad to show our stock

A contemporary gives the following advice to its delinquent subscribers: "If you have frequent fainting spells, accompanied by chills, cramps, corns, bunions, chilblains, epilepsy and jaundice, it is a sign that you are not well and liable to die any minute. Pay your subscription in advance, and thus make yourself solid for a good obituary notice."

The State Department of Education is sending out a pamphlet headed, "Do You Know the Important Facts About Maryland's Public Schools?" This pamphlet states the comparative position of Maryland's public schools to those of other States. An active defense is being made by the Department of Education of the increase in the school budget which it proposes to ask from the coming Legislature.

Governor Ritchie expects that the State's revenues for the next fiscal year will be about $15,000,000, sedulous calculations by the Comptroller's office having apparently failed to uncover a few stray millions. With $15,000,000 in revenue, budget estimates total some $22,000,000. It would appear therefore, that unless new revenue producers are discovered, the budget estimates will have to suffer to the extent of $7,000,000.

It attempting to cross the street at the intersection of Camden and Maryland avenues around midnight last Tuesday, Joseph Clyde Cantwell, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cantwell, of Salisbury, was struck by an automobile driven by State Police Officer Duke and sustained a badly fractured skull. The young man was hurriedly rushed to the Peninsula General Hospital immediately following the unfortunate accident. The young man never regained consciousness and died on Thursday morning.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith, of Salisbury, was the scene of a beautiful wedding last Wednesday afternoon when their daughter, Miss Margaret Smith, became the bride of Mr. Frederick W. C. Webb, the Rev. J. T. Heron officiating. Miss Smith had as her maid of honor Miss Mary Jane Atwell, Sewickly, Pa., while Mr. Webb was attended by his brother, Mr. Alan T. S. Webb, of Vienna. Following the ceremony a reception was held after which the young couple left for a wedding journey and upon their return they will reside in Salisbury.

Prof. E. Clark Fontaine, State supervisor of high schools for the Eastern Shore, and Willard I. Kimm, Maryland representative of Ginn and Company, school book publishers of New York, were injured last Tuesday afternoon when, owing to the wet condition of the road, their automobile skidded on a curve in the State road three miles below Sharptown, struck a stump near the roadside, and was badly smashed. Mr. Kimm was catapulted through the windshield, the glass cutting his face and hands, while Professor Fontaine, who was driving the machine, was jammed against the broken steering gear and severely bruised.

Black Hair Is Now The Rage

The 1921 girl not only is adding long, sweeping eyelashes to those with which she was endowed by nature, but is adding eyebrows in the same way to replace those which she had plucked out at the cost of 50 cents and a pain that hurt like 60 last year. Fashions in eyebrows vary; they may be arched, straight or meeting, as the individual prefers, but eyebrows there must be.

Hair, to be correct, must be black. Jet black, glossier than the wing of the well-known raven. Women with henna hair, or the nondescript brown, are dyeing without compunction and with considerable success, but blondes are in a quandary. Golden hair, or that of the ashy type, views black dye with supreme distrust and refuses to turn color properly.

Rouge, too, is a thing of the past. Paris cast it out last summer and at the same time placed a ban on pink powder.

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and pave the way for the more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds, may be had for a trifle?

Dec. 3—Mr. Wesley Messick, of Salisbury, was a guest of Mr. Thomas Shores last Tuesday.

Mrs. Mitchell Laird visited Mrs. James Bennett in Salisbury last week.

Mrs. G. S. Allen visited Mrs. Ira Allen at Marion a few days of this week.

Miss May Cannon spent the past week-end with Mrs. C. R. Bounds in Mt. Vernon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Phoebus spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beauchamp in Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heath, of Salisbury, visited relatives in this district several days of last week.

Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Allen and Miss Edna Crosswell were supper guests of Mrs. Carrie Willing last Sunday.

Miss Bertie Smith returned to Norfolk today after spending several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Abel Edley and little son Henry, of Venton, were the past week-end guests of Mr. George Noble.

Miss Helen Bozman returned to Salisbury Friday after a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Bozman.

Miss Mary Wilson, of Baltimore, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. William Laird returned to Baltimore Monday after a visit of three weeks with his daughter, Mrs. William Hopkins.

Rev. G. S. Allen spent a few days of this week in Seaford, Del., with his brother-in-law, Mr. S. G. Smith, who is seriously ill.

Mrs. Rebecca White and her daughter, Mrs. Crawford Nottingham, of Norfolk, Va., visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Somers a few days of last week.

Miss Eva Cannon, who has been nursing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Aull, in Norristown, Pa., during the past several months, is now spending some time with her brother, Mr. P. H. Cannon.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the M. E. Church met at St. Stephens' Church Monday, November 21st, 1921, Dr. Vaughn Collins, district superintendent, presiding. The conference was largely attended. Rev. G. S. Allen was unanimously invited to return to this charge for another year.

When You Are Constipated

To insure a healthy action of the bowels and correct disorders of the liver, take two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They will not only cause a gentle movement of the bowels, without unpleasant effects, but banish that dull, stupid feeling that often accompanies constipation.

School Readers Must Have Handled Myriad of Them, but "Kids" Did Not Suffer.

In those simple days when men now elderly turned with boyish thumbs pages of their copies of McGuffey's First Reader microbes were known only by laboratory workers; at least they had not begun to worry boards of education. Public school children did not receive textbooks free of charge, to pass along, after fumigation, to new classes of pupils just beginning to spell out the mysteries and delights of McGuffey's First. Then one copy of a textbook to a family served each generation, unless the encumbrance of dog ears, missing pages, broken backs, compelled purchase of a new copy for a late arrival in the family circle. Even then the oldest child in a family was likely to hide away his battered copy unless his mother had already hidden it among the treasures only mothers keep. Textbooks were not then taken from school daily for home study; school hours were longer, study hours were all in the school, other hours were all play or for the performance of domestic duties modern youngsters know little of. From beginning to end of terms books slumbered in desks when not on parade.

Microbes, germs of all sorts and evil conditions, how they must have plagued thousands of McGuffey's Firsts, with never fumigating storm of gas to trouble them! Were children stronger, sturdier than that they repulsed attacks of unseen inhabitants of textbooks; or, not knowing that the enemy was there, did they and their teachers thus earn the bliss of ignorance?—New York Herald.

OLD KENTUCKY COFFEE TREE

Given Its Name Because Seeds Were Once Used as a Substitute for the Real Thing.

Around some of the old homes in Maryland and Virginia one finds growing fig bushes, pecan trees and that other very useful tree of the early colonial and revolutionary periods, which our ancestors called the Kentucky coffee tree, because its seeds were used in brewing a drink which was used as a substitute for coffee, the Washington Star says.

The coffee tree is usually found in rich bottom lands in company with the black walnut, blue ash, hackberry, cottonwood, honey locust, red elm and the hickories. It is a native American tree and the name which the botanists have given it is "gymnocladus dioica." The first word is compounded of two Greek words meaning "naked branch," and the second part of the name is also compounded of two Greek words meaning that the plant has both male and female flowers on different branches. The coffee tree at maturity is from 75 to 110 feet tall and from two to three feet in the diameter of its trunk. The leaves are pinnate—that is, "feather-like," from "pinna" or feather. The leaves are pink at first. Later they turn bronze green and then dark green above and light green beneath. In autumn its foliage turns bright yellow. Legumes hang on it all winter unopened. In the pods are dark reddish-brown seeds three-quarters of an inch long and oval in form. These are the seeds or "berries" from which many early Americans made coffee.

Pepys Expert Shorthand Writer.

The most famous diary ever published was that of Samuel Pepys, which was written in the Shelton system. In this diary Pepys gives a vivid account of the great plague and the great fire of London, with many intimate accounts of the court of King Charles II. Pepys was an expert shorthand writer, because he mentions in his diary that in April, 1680, he attended the king, by command, at Newmarket, and there "took down in shorthand from his own mouth the narrative of his escape from the battle of Worcester."

It is interesting to recall that Thomas Jefferson, in a letter to his friend Page, dated January 23, 1764, proposed that they should master Shelton's system, the one used by Pepys, so that they might have something which was unintelligible to anyone else. He said: "I will send you some of these days Shelton's Tachygraphical alphabet and directions."

Chautauqua.

Chautauqua is the name of a beautiful lake in New York state, 18 miles long and one-third of a mile broad, 726 feet above Lake Erie, from which it is eight miles distant. On its banks is the village of Chautauqua, the center of a religious and educational movement of large and growing interest. This originated in 1874, when the village was selected as a summer place of meeting for all interested in Sunday schools and missions. Since then the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle has taken origin there, consisting of a regular and systematic course of reading, extending over four years, and entitling the student to a diploma. The name Chautauqua is evidently of Indian origin.

MORE GO TO SCHOOL

Census Bureau Statistics Show Increased Attention.

Utah Shows Largest School Attendance in 5-20 Age Group, and Louisiana Smallest—Growth, 5.1 Per Cent in 10 Years.

Washington.—The department of commerce, through the bureau of the census, issued a preliminary statement giving statistics of school attendance, by geographic divisions and states, compiled from the returns of the fourteenth decennial census, taken as of January 1, 1920.

The total population, 5 to 20 years of age, inclusive, enumerated in continental United States, numbered 33,250,870. Of this number, 21,373,976 attended school at some time between September 1, 1919, and January 1, 1920.

The total population 7 to 13 years of age, 15,306,793 included 13,869,010 children attending school.

The percentage attending school among the population 5 to 20 years of age increased from 59.2 for 1910 to 64.3 for 1920; and the corresponding percentage for children 7 to 13 years of age increased from 86.1 for the earlier to 90.6 for the later year.

Among the individual states the largest proportion attending school in the 5-20 age group, 73 per cent is shown for Utah, and the smallest, 53 per cent for Louisiana. In six states—Iowa, Nebraska, Montana, Idaho, Utah and Oregon—the proportion of school attendance for this age group was more than 70 per cent.

For the 7-13 age group the largest proportion of school attendance, 96.1 per cent, is that for Massachusetts, and the smallest, 75.9 per cent for Louisiana. In seven states—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Ohio, Iowa, Delaware, Idaho and Utah—the proportion was 95 per cent or more.

In Illinois the 5-20 age group is given as numbering 1,886,010. Of these 1,226,601, or 65 per cent, attended school, an increase of 4.8 per cent over the 1910 figures. The 7-13 age group's population totaled 860,832, of whom 815,060, or 94.7 per cent, attended school. This percentage was 5.2 higher than that of 1910.

SMALLEST CITY HALL

It is nothing new to hear a city boast of her large and magnificent city hall, but it is very rare, indeed, that you hear talk of the smallest. The city hall shown here is at Lisperville, Pa., and it is the smallest city hall in the world. It is eight feet high, ten feet deep and eight feet wide. Just a little larger than a doll's house.

HELGOLAND TO BE RESORT

Company Plans to Turn Dismantled Isle Into International Water Sports Center.

Hamburg, Germany.—Plans are now afoot to convert Helgoland, the dismantled German fortress, into an international watering place and a center for regattas and water sports.

A company with large capital is organizing a scheme which will include extensive beach improvements and establish regular transportation routes with Hamburg and Bremen.

It is expected that the enterprise will appease the dissatisfaction of the islanders, and put an end to the recession movement.

Two Crops of Potatoes.

Shelbyville, Ind.—Walter Vaught, who lives near Boggs town, Shelby county, has dug two crops of potatoes from his garden this year. In the summer he dug 17 bushels, leaving the smaller potatoes in the ground, which he plowed in. They took root and started to grow. Vaught became interested and cultivated them. Later Vaught dug 30 bushels of potatoes.

Snakes Milk Cows In Ohio, It's Said

Wooster, O.—A heated argument as to whether it is possible for snakes to milk cows has involved Wayne county and other interested farmers. The controversy started when a farmer reported that several of his cows had been milked by large snakes. A local doctor said such a thing was impossible. Now every other farmer in the county is recalling instances where snakes have been known to milk cows.

SO SOLOMON WAS ARRAYED

Marvelous Are the Uplifting Effects Produced on One With a New Outfit of Clothes.

It's wonderful what a brand new and exhilarating outlook on life comes to one with the possession of a new suit of clothes, new shoes, new linen, a new hat, new ties and a new appearance of one's self when he stands before the mirror—and reflects, then, that after all the years are not telling on him so badly as he thought, and the casual observer may mistake him for a millionaire.

Everybody knows how much finer the home atmosphere is, and how much better content seems to brood in it, when the house cleaning is done in the spring, when the furniture is moved about into new positions, the old wall papers go down, new paint and brightness finds its way to kitchen and to floors, new rugs appear, new curtains and a new aspect of coziness which cheers the whole family.

The new outfit for the individual has just this same sort of happy effect, says a writer in the New York World. We know it, but how long we so often stupidly postpone the blessing! How long we gloom unnecessarily in coats that feel so greasy to the touch, in trousers that shine, in shirts and neckwear that seem like an old home week whenever they are fastened together; in hats that are dingy and shoes that do not suggest statesmanship, urbanity, social standing or affluence to any to whom they may be exhibited.

The most pardonable spendthrift in the world is he who after a proper generosity to his dependents puts money on his own back, finds pleasure in being an object of enviable admiration on the street and when he confronts his fellow man for business or pleasure looks as if optimism were his bosom companion and worry the last long thought of self-indulgence in his soul.

SAW VALUE OF STEAM POWER

Newspaper of 1821 Hailed With Joy the Passing of the Day of the Sailing Vessel.

The clouds of prejudice and fear appear to recede at the first experiment and reason, says the National Gazette of Oct. 4, 1821. The ship Robert Fulton was full of passengers from New Orleans and Charleston, and each trip which this splendid vessel makes not only gives ample proof of safety and dispatch, but adds to the number of converts in favor of steam navigation on the ocean. What a gigantic improvement in science! Those who are in the habit of crossing the Atlantic are compelled to pass days and weeks in a dead calm, when the untroubled surface of the ocean that reflects like a mirror, and when the sun pours down his fierce and intolerable rays and the sails flay to and fro, can imagine what their feelings must be at seeing the steamship pass them rapidly; the wheels in quick motion and the smoke rolling in curled volumes from the furnace; to see myriads of well-dressed passengers walking the decks.

The next improvement of value is to make steamships carry freight—say 150 tons of the goods; and those which run from Montreal to Quebec may serve as models. There is yet much to be done in this way and from the enterprise of our citizens there is no doubt it will be done in time.

WEAK, NERVOUS, ALL RUN-DOWN

Missouri Lady Suffered Until She Tried Cardui.—Says "Result Was Surprising."—Got Along Fine, Became Normal and Healthy.

Springfield Mo.—"My back was so weak I could hardly stand up, and I would have bearing-down pains and was not well at any time," says Mrs. D. V. Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 6, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. 'I saw after taking some Cardui... that I was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person.'"

"Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me... My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

Thousands of women have suffered as Mrs. Williams describes, until they found relief from the use of Cardui. Since it has helped so many, you should not hesitate to try Cardui if troubled with womanly ailments. For sale everywhere. E. 33

CONCEIT A MASCULINE TRAIT

Woman Writer So Asserts, and Says It Usually Crops Out After His Marriage.

All feminine egotisms, from the cradle to the grave, proceed on the basis that all men are conceited. This is perhaps particularly true of the man who is no longer lover, but husband. As lover he had a wide streak of humility in his composition; a husband mostly regards humility as a waste product, writes a Woman of Forty in Harper's.

More than once I have seen some dull woman flatter my husband, and have had him tell me afterward what a fine, keen, warm-hearted little person she is. I have yet to meet the man who fails to feel that the woman who admires him has something sound and right about her. More than once I have flattered a man just to see him expand.

Indeed, it is a stupid or inexperienced woman who has not done this, and usually because she wanted to get something out of him. In his dealing with a woman it is quite easy to sell a man a gold brick. Doubtless, the well-known law of compensation works here; if men get plenty of self-satisfaction out of their self-confidence, it is something for which they have to pay the piper.

A woman of my age knows that a certain amount of self-satisfaction has been necessary to keep the race going, and that the self-satisfied type that appreciates itself most highly has been the most successful type. The trait has been very valuable to the race, at any rate in the rough-and-tumble conditions through which men have lived and struggled in evolving from the days of Pithecanthropus.

Women have done their bit in simulating this quality of conceit and self-satisfaction because they like successful men and have married them when they had the chance—which is the same thing as saying that they have married conceited men and bred conceited boys, whose conceit they fostered by praise.

MANY THINGS USED AS MONEY

Cattle, Shells and Whales' Teeth Among a Few That Are Reckoned as Currency.

When hunting was the chief occupation of man the skins of animals were the earliest means of currency, and this medium of exchange is still used by the North American Indians.

Leather money was the natural successor to skins, and was used freely in Rome and Carthage, as well as being circulated in Russia as late as the reign of Peter the Great.

As civilization advanced sheep and cattle came to be regarded as the most negotiable form of wealth, and many of our words in common use are historic reminders of the fact.

For example, "pecuniary" reminds us of the Latin "pecunia" meaning money, and "pecus" signifying cattle; whereas the word "fee," a sum of money paid as wages, is derived from the Saxon "feoh," a word used to express both cattle and money.

By an old German code of laws sheep and cattle were counted by the head, and were called "capitale," showing the source of the commercial word, "capital," for wealth, the law term "chattel" (in "goods and chattels"), for effects, and our common name for oxen—"cattle."

At the present time oxen form the principal wealth and circulating medium among the Zulus and Kafirs.

Year Without a Summer.

The year 1816 was the year without a summer. In that year the sun spots were at a maximum.

Old records say that the opening months of this anomalous year—January and February—were mild, but March turned cold. April started out warm, but before it ended the fields in the northern United States were stiffened with frost and whitened with snow. The cold continued throughout May, ice forming an inch thick, and repeated plantings of seed being successively destroyed, until farmers gave up in despair. June gave no relief, ice continuing to be formed on the streams and ponds and snow to be sprinkled over the fields. "Almost every green thing was killed; fruit nearly all destroyed; snow fell to the depth of ten inches in Vermont, seven in Maine, three in the interior of New York and also in Massachusetts."

No Special Time for Thought.
When is the best time to think, to have truth enter our minds? Thought along a particular line can best come when the mind is unwearied and unoccupied with other thought—the time of day has nothing to do with it.

The tired mind or the mind already active is not in condition to think. Often you have tried to read a book and been unable to follow the thought of the writer. Either your mind was tired or other vexing or more interesting thought held the ground.

Have the mind untired and undisturbed and you can think at one time as well as another.—Exchange.

Laboratory for Tribal Study.
Northern Rhodesia still is the happy hunting ground for the human geographer; where he may study the effects of a plateau region upon remote tribes that have been little affected by the encroachments of the white man. WONT DIE AND LEAVE WORK

Japanese silk rearing time is the silk districts, even the sickest people, contrary to all expectation, do not die. The rate of death among old people and invalids in the silk regions during the busiest season is very low indeed.

There are many reasons for death. But it is a remarkable thing that during the silk rearing time in the silk districts, even the sickest people, contrary to all expectation, do not die. The rate of death among old people and invalids in the silk regions during the busiest season is very low indeed.

What is the reason? Well, most of these people unconsciously think, "Well, if I die now, everything will be very much upset because I do not finish my work, and if I die, I too will be very much upset in the other world because no one here will have time to give me a good funeral and to see that I am properly and comfortably buried. So I guess I had better live just a bit longer." And remarkable to relate they do go on living. The will to live makes them bear the ills of living and they do not die during the rearing season.

But after the transfer of the matured silkworms to the cocoon beds, for ten days there are people dying everywhere. That is strange, too. But really it is because the spirit no longer holds them up. The excitement is over, and with rest comes death; the time of anxiety is over and the strain is loosened, and with the loosening comes the end of life.

In the silk regions there are not many deaths in either the extremely hot or the extremely cold times. But just after the silkworms are transferred to the cocoon beds, after the anxious days of rearing them from the egg are over, then they die like flies in winter. It is all a matter of spirit, or as some would call it, "mind."

HEN FAITHFULLY DID DUTY

Cleaver Woman's Confidence in Her Pet "Biddy" Proved to Be Abundantly Justified.

There was an old woman who lived in a shoe but on a farm in New Hampshire. She made a contract to deliver two dozen fresh eggs to an anxious family from New York who were building up on milk and eggs after a warbling season, and these eggs were to be delivered at a certain hour daily. Although she had to go by buckboard she always fulfilled her contract to the last egg.

But one day as the old woman was putting on her "bunnet" preparatory to start an accident broke one of the twenty-four fresh eggs and there was no time to wait for the laying of another. What was she to do? Fail to keep her appointment or deliver the twenty-three eggs with an excuse?

This clever old woman did neither of these things. She snatched up a squawking hen which had a record as a "hot layer," crammed it into a coop and started out. On the trip the needed fresh egg arrived, and it was added to the others and made up the quota.

When the customer was counting the eggs she noticed the warm one and asked the reason. The old woman laughed and told the story of how her favorite dependable hen had almost literally laid an egg in her hand. The story has been told over and over since then in ever-widening areas until with the return home of the New York family, no longer anxious, it has reached the metropolis.—New York Herald.

Heard in Every Home.

"Why on earth you will persist in coming into the house with all that dirt on your feet beats me. I never saw such a man."

"Now you leave me a little money before you go downtown. How do you expect me to pay the gas bill and vegetable man with nothing to pay with?"

"But I just gave you a dollar last Thursday to shop on. Do you mean to tell me you've gone and spent a whole dollar so soon?"

"It seems to me you might hose off the porch once in a while when you are hanging around doing nothing."

"Now, I don't want to see you winking at the hired girl again, or I'll pack right up and go straight home to mamma."

"My land! Take those big feet of yours off that sofa cushion right this minute. You are the limit!"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Fortified.

"Are you going to polish up your French in order to engage in diplomatic conversations?"

"It might be valuable," said Senator Sorghum. "A man speaking in a foreign tongue naturally commands respect and gets lots of chances to correct himself. But I guess I've had enough practice in filibustering to make myself sufficiently understood without going outside the Senate."

THE DOOR SLAMS ON HAPPINESS

Poor Blood Makes Bad Health—Then Comes the "Blues"

Once the vigor of red blood becomes sapped of its strength, the door to happiness is literally slammed. Weariness of body follows and it unfailingly engenders depressed thoughts. To be reserved and cheerless becomes a habit. After a time there is an almost filmy dimness in the expression of the eyes and a pallor to the skin. Days seem dull and dark and difficult. A sense of insufferable gloom pervades the spirit. Then it is that Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the great help. It is a red blood builder. It puts red into the blood—increasing the number of corpuscles which makes blood rich and red. When the blood is restored to its natural healthy state, the sensation of well-being returns. Instead of shuffling along carelessly, there is the firm and springy step, the bright lusterful eyes, the clear complexion, identified with the strength and vigor of good health. The druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

GERMAN SHIPPING REVIVES

Tonnage of Vessels at Hamburg 80 Per Cent of Peace Record, Harbor Statistics Show.

Hamburg.—Germany's freight-carrying trade is making steady progress toward regaining its prewar volume. Harbor statistics indicate that the aggregate tonnage of vessels using this port have reached 80 per cent of the peace traffic.

Announcements of steamers bought back from former enemy powers follow each other in rapid succession, and harbor facilities are already proving insufficient to accommodate the growing traffic, now that big plants, such as Krupp and Erhardt's, which formerly manufactured war material, are turning out peace goods in great quantities for overseas consumption. Shipping authorities are urging the revival of ambitious prewar plans for harbor extensions.

Make Your Home Comfortable For Your Wife

A Universal Products Plant Frees Women From the Dreary Drudgery, which is Really Un-American

TAKE the family washing and ironing, for instance—two of the hardest, most depressing tasks American women have had to endure. The Universal Products plant frees the women of the home for all time from the dreaded "blue Monday."

Here is power for many uses in the home and on the farm—for churning butter, doing the sweeping; the washing and for pumping water, running the dairy machinery—in fact for all the round of duties that take so much time that can now-days be put to better use.

Universal Products Light and Power keeps workers contented. Its labor-saving economy enables them to actually accomplish more 365 days in the year.

Let us show you this simple, economical plant. It costs less than you think. It produces more than you believe possible. Let us demonstrate some of the 1700 things it will do for you.

What Constitutes Real Wealth.
Real wealth does not consist in the material things of life—gold, silver and jewels—but in the intangible possessions on which there is no income tax to pay. A clean conscience, hosts of friends, love of wife and child, appreciation of nature's beauty, sense of the sublimity of art, clear faith in the progress of humanity—these are the things that constitute real wealth. They cannot be counted up in dollars, they exclude the tax assessor; but they are real nevertheless, and priceless.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Warm in Alaska.
Although less than thirty degrees from the North pole, the climate of south central Alaska is very mild, the temperature seldom registering below zero, says the American Forestry Magazine. The mean annual temperature for Prince William Sound is thirty-eight degrees Fahrenheit, and it is warmer during the winter months than at any other point in the world in similar latitude. The temperate climate is due largely to the beneficent influence of the Japan current which sets into the head of the Gulf of Alaska.

The Echo Came.
The mother of a five-year-old child was admonishing him to be a better boy, when the father who was present jokingly remarked, "It can't be did, it can't be did." Later when the little boy was saying his evening prayer just before retiring he invoked the Supreme Being to make him a better boy. Continuing, he said: "Make daddy a good man," then hesitating in his supplication he remarked, "It can't be did, daddy, it can't be did."—Columbus Dispatch.

Reprisal!
There's a little boy in our town who was given a puppy for Christmas, and the gift being at the puppiest age, when everything looks good to chew, he bites harder sometimes than he should. One morning, several days after Christmas, the little dog ran howling from the room. When the little boy's mother inquired what was the matter he replied: "He bit my finger and he can't learn to stop bitin', so I bit his ear."—Topeka Journal.

About Bosses.
One of the fool notions young men get is that the boss doesn't know what is going on in the plant. We never yet have known a boss who didn't somehow manage to know more about what was going on in the concern than any of the employees gave him credit for. Or to put it another way: We've never known a boss who raises the pay of a shirker under the false belief that he was a worker.—Exchange.

Glass and Tin Churns.
A patent was granted in England in 1851 for a cylindrical glass churn, and these were tested at the exhibition of 1851 in competition with French tin churns, and the old English wooden churns. The small wooden family churn worked so well that it was awarded a prize medal over its more aristocratic glass relations.—Scientific American.

Weather Affected by Sun Spots.
A Dutch meteorologist has studied the winter temperatures in western Europe from 780 to 1918 A. D. He has found that greater activity of sun spots is accompanied by winter setting in harder and earlier than usual, while less activity of the spots corresponds to late, mild winters.

Ingersoll Watches
FOR MAN OR BOY
$1.75 to $11.00

YOU Can't Get $50 Worth for $20

Occasionally a man will drop in to buy some good clothes of us, and will express himself a bit harshly about the lack of service that he experienced with a suit of the so-called cheap clothes that he had bought elsewhere.

This doesn't appear to us to be quite fair to the other fellow — nobody can sell really good clothes at the ridiculous prices which some houses advertise—GOOD clothes can't be made to sell at such prices, and the man who buys them shouldn't expect too much.

It does seem odd how some people are still hypnotized by a price mark—prices are entirely relative, and if you pay a low price, you will get a low suit. Better spend a bit more and get real clothes.

MORRIS' standard of Quality, Fabric and of Tailoring represents the best that the world affords in clothes. The prices for Fall and Winter Suits, Top Coats and Overcoats range from $15.00 upward, with special values at $25.00 and $30.00.

THE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck—Ford-built throughout—has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.
In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities—everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

MORE and more every day the demand for Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns, so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." A card to me will bring one to your door.

Appointed Consular Agent For Cuba

Mr. Milton S. Lankford, who has been connected with the Punta Alegre Sugar Company at Punta, San Juan and Caibarien, Cuba, for the past eighteen months, has been appointed by the Secretary of State as American Consul for the Caibarien district of Cuba.

Mr. Lankford also continues to connection with the Punta Alegre Sugar Company, which is one of the largest establishments in Cuba.

He reports that the company has furnished him a fine home in Caibarien and expresses the desire that if any of his friends are coming to that port of Cuba he will be delighted to entertain them.

Mr. Lankford was recommended for his appointment as Consular Agent by Consul General Hurst of Havana, a strong personal friend, who was American Consul General at Barcelona, Spain, during the late war, and with whom Mr. Lankford had many business and social transactions while he was stationed in France as the American purchasing and shipping agent for goods purchased in Spain for the war.

He was also strongly urged for the appointment by the manager of the sugar company, Mr. Leonard, with whom he was also closely associated in France during the war.

Mr. Lankford is a native of Princess Anne, is a son of the late Captain B. Frank Lankford and a brother of Lieutenant B. Louis Lankford, Supply Corps U. S. Navy, now stationed at Annapolis, Maryland. He was postmaster at Princess Anne from 1899 to 1906, when he resigned to accept a position in the U. S. sub-treasury, Baltimore, Maryland.

Roads Superintendent Appointed

Last Tuesday the County Commissioners of Somerset county appointed Mr. John E. Holland, of Princess Anne, roads superintendent for the county to succeed Mr. W. Page Jackson. We are informed that Mr. Holland has accepted the position and will take office January first. Mr. Holland was formerly cashier of the Peoples Bank of Somerset County, and in 1913 was elected County Treasurer on the Republican ticket.

Other applicants for the appointment were Messrs. Mark P. Malcolm, of Princess Anne; Denwood W. Welsh, of Mt. Vernon, and George Massey, of Brinkley's district. It was generally understood that Mr. Massey would be successful, and the naming of Mr. Holland came as a surprise, as he was not known to be an applicant for the position. Mr. Holland was a close friend of Commissioner Phoebe in his fight in the Republican primaries last September when Phoebe won the nomination over the organization candidate, Mr. J. Arthur White.

The Christmas Dance to be held in the Armory at Salisbury on Thursday evening, December 29th, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of the Peninsula General Hospital, promises to be a big social event of the season. Fischer's Orchestra of Baltimore will furnish music for the occasion.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE

Democrats Assail Its Treatment Of Bonus And Labor Questions

Launching of the new session of Congress was completed last Tuesday with the delivery by President Harding of his opening address at a joint session of the Senate and House, made notable by the presence of delegates to the Armament Limitation Conference.

Proposals for a flexible tariff, adjustable by the President or the Tariff Commission, for an industrial tribunal and for a constitutional amendment to stop the flood of tax-free securities were the President's outstanding statements on domestic affairs. Turning to the international field, the President said of the Armament Limitation Conference that "a most gratifying world accomplishment is not improbable." He also encouraged enactment of the measure for funding the Allied debt, proposed food relief for starving Russia, expressed satisfaction that the nation was at peace and held out promise of aid to the world in war restoration.

Quick reaction to the President's message to Congress was evidenced Tuesday afternoon in the House during a rambling debate on a dozen topics.

Urging prompt passage of soldier bonus legislation, Representative Galivan, Democrat, Massachusetts, declared the "men who won the war received but scant attention" in the message.

Representative Huddleston, Democrat, Alabama, asserted that the President, in his attitude toward labor, had "learned nothing from the past," but "proposes to hold on to the old system, the old struggle between the employer and the man who works for him."

Representative Mondell, Republican leader, was quick to reply, asserting that he had never heard so many "extraneous and misleading statements."

Photoplays At Auditorium This Week

Beautiful Marion Davies, will be the attraction at the Auditorium Tuesday night in her newest and greatest picture, F. Britton Austen's brilliant story, "Buried Treasure," a Paramount-Cosmopolitan release. Miss Davies begins as the daughter of a Wall street capitalist, and as such she wears some of the most stunning of costumes. When the story reverts to the sixteenth century she appears as a Castilian girl and the jewels, combs, shawls, etc., she wears are worth a fortune. The others in the cast are Norman Kerry, Anders Randolph, Edith Shyne, Earl Schenck, John Charles and Thomas Findlay.

A picture that makes you think; that grips your attention from the first reel and holds it without a break till the final fade-out—that is "The Witching Hour," a new Paramount picture, which will be shown Thursday night. It is a smooth, even vehicle that puts over powerfully the message that thoughts are actual forces. Elliot Dexter as "Jack Brookfield" gives an impersonation quite different from that of John Mason, who created the role on the stage, but equally impressive. The rest of the cast are Winter Hall, Ruth Renick, Robert Cain, Edward Sutherland, Mary Alden, Fred Turner, Genevieve Blinn, Charles West, L. M. Wells, Clarence Geldart and Jim Blackwell.

Saturday night the 7th episode of "Do or Die," featuring Eddie Polo, the dauntless daredevil of the Serial Screen and a 2-reel Western.

Death Of Mrs. Kate Pasquith

Mrs. Kate Pasquith, wife of Mr. Henry T. Pasquith, aged 48 years, died at her home on Beckford avenue Monday night of last week of acute nephritis. She is survived by her husband, three sons (Messrs. John, Thomas and William Pasquith, of Princess Anne), and three daughters (Mrs. William Dexter, of Erie, Mich., Mrs. Frank J. Panzer, of Hurlock, Md., and Miss Jessie Pasquith, of Chestertown). She is also survived by two brothers (Messrs. Carroll Hastings, of Princess Anne, and W. Washington Hastings, of Baltimore).

Funeral services were held in Manokin Presbyterian Church, of which she was a prominent member, last Wednesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. J. W. Lacy, of Pocomoke City. Interment was in the church cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. H. Fillmore Lankford, George W. Brown, W. O. Lankford, Sr., Charles S. Dryden, Columbus Lankford and H. K. Carrow.

W. H. S. MAGAZINE CAMPAIGN

To Raise Funds For The Physical Development Of Pupils

[Published by request W. H. S. Faculty]

Suppose the schools of Maryland should close their doors tomorrow, what would you do? What would your children do?

Fortunately, the schools aren't going to close, but if it should ever happen you would then realize the value of the schools to your children, to your community, to your country. The school of today is interested not alone in the development of the mind of the pupil, but also in the upbuilding of the body. It believes a highly developed brain needs a strong and vigorous body to wage life's battles successfully.

To provide funds for the extension of athletic activities in our schools, a magazine campaign has been started by the pupils of Washington High School, whereby a commission on each subscription secured by the pupils reverts to such fund. You can help make this campaign a success by ordering your own list of magazines through the children and urging your friends who are already regular readers of magazines to do likewise. The service is guaranteed to be efficient and the prices are the same as though you were dealing directly with the publishers.

Dispose of your Christmas worries now by making a number of your gifts subscriptions to your friends' favorite magazines.

We feel sure that we can depend on the cooperation of the patrons of our school to give the inspiration and encouragement that is needed to make this campaign a success.

TALKING POINTS FOR THE CAMPAIGN

Better than a book!—because you get 12 books for the price of one.

Better than flowers!—that last only an hour or two.

Better than candy!—gone in a day or so.

Better than tobacco!—because this will make tobacco more enjoyable the year round.

For mother, father, brother, sister, for the girl whose present puzzles you; for the bachelor, who is hardest of all to please, give one of our magazines as a Christmas gift, and don't forget to boost the magazine campaign to each and all of your friends.

What Is A Christmas Club?

The Christmas Club which our banks have installed is worthy of the attention of every man, woman and child in our community. It affords a systematic method for saving money. It is surprising how a start with these four amounts will count up to a nice tidy sum in 50 weeks.

You can start with 10 cents and increase your payment of 10 cents per week for 50 weeks. The largest payment is only $5.00 yet next Christmas you will have $127.50.

Start with 5c—increase 5c each week—next Christmas you will have $63.75.

Then there is the Club for the little folks and the baby. Start with 2c, increasing the payment 2c each week and you have, at the end of 50 weeks—$25.50. Start with 1c—you will have $12.75.

Or you can start with the largest deposit and decrease your payments each week. Then there are the "even amount or fixed sum" Clubs. Start with 25c, 50c, $1.00 or more. All or a part of this money can be drawn out of the bank next Christmas, or all or part of it can remain on deposit in the bank to start a regular account.

The Bank of Somerset or the Peoples Bank of Somerset County will be very glad to have any one come in and receive a Christmas Club Card, which shows how much is to be deposited and when and how much the various Clubs will amount to.

Star Memorial Bazar a Success

Considerable interest was manifested by the women of the town and county at the Christmas bazar held at the residence of Mrs. G. W. Maslin Wednesday afternoon of last week. The weather was very favorable and the sale was largely attended, it being conducted by the members of the Civic Club. Useful and attractive things were sold, such as fancy needlework, plants, eatables, etc. The proceeds amounted to nearly $200.00, to be used for the Star Memorial.

The club wishes to thank the women of the community for their splendid donations, the public for their generous patronage and the Marylander and Herald for advertising and printing to help make the sale a success.

Mr. Charles R. Day has been appointed acting postmaster at Marion Station, Postmaster R. B. Whittington having resigned.

AWARDED RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

Mr. Wm. P. Maddox Plans To Begin Work At Oxford, England

Mr. William P. Maddox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, 2207 Chelsea Terrace, Baltimore has been awarded the Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford (England) University from Maryland, it was announced Monday of last week by Emory H. Niles, secretary of the Maryland State Committee which selected the Rhodes scholar from this State. Only 20 years old, Mr. Maddox was the honor graduate of St. John's College last June, ranking first in a class of about 15. About four years ago Mr. and Mrs. Maddox and their son moved from Princess Anne to Baltimore. Young Maddox's father is in the Internal Revenue Department at the Custom House.

Mr. Maddox was born in Princess Anne, Somerset county, November 21, 1901, received his early education in the elementary schools of Somerset county. While a thorough and diligent student, he did not skip any grades, completing his grammar school course in the regular time. With his elementary education completed he entered the Washington High School at Princess Anne, remaining there three years. He left the institution one year before he would have been graduated to enter St. John's. This was made possible by close study during the summer and fall of 1917.

While at Annapolis Mr. Maddox was a close student, and also took an earnest part in athletics. While a member of the varsity squads in baseball and lacrosse, perhaps his highest athletic honor was that of manager of the 1920 varsity football team. In addition to varsity athletics, he played on the football, baseball and basketball teams of his class. He also found time to take part in the other activities of his class and the college.

He was elected vice-president of the class of 1921 in his senior year and secretary the three preceding years. He is a member of the Sigma Chapter of the Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity.

While studying for the Rhodes Scholarship, Young Maddox also decided to enter the law school of the University of Maryland to start his law studies. He is now a student in the first year of that institution and will continue his studies there during the present school year and will begin his work at Oxford next fall. He said he probably would sail for England early next September to begin at Oxford early in October to continue the study of law.

The St. John's College graduate was selected at a meeting of the State Committee Saturday the 3rd instant. In accordance with the rules however, the name was not made public until the Wednesday following. He was selected from among 16 applicants, who were recommended by colleges and universities in Maryland and institutions in other parts of the country. Four of the other 15 applicants were from Johns Hopkins, two from the University of Maryland, two from Blue Ridge College, two from Harvard, one from Western Maryland College, one from William and Mary College, one from Western Reserve University, one from Pennsylvania State College and one from Hobart College.

Mr. Niles, in commenting on the selection, said the committee was impressed with the record made by Maddox at St. John's and with his personality. There were several other candidates who were first-class men, Mr. Niles said, adding that this served to increase the honor paid to the St. John's graduate.

Memorial Bridge Dedication Dec. 27

The tablets on the County's Memorial Bridge are to be unveiled on December 27th—Tuesday of Christmas week—at 2.30 p. m. The simple service will open with an invocation, followed by several very brief addresses.

Immediately after the tablet unveiling service, the ladies of the community will dedicate the Star Memorial Grove and present it to the town, to be kept as a memorial park. The eleven soldiers from the county who were killed in battle. The central tree will be a white oak and the other ten will be cypress cedars, natives of the county. The residents of the county are cordially invited to be present.

On our fourth page will be found the statement of Roads Superintendent W. Page Jackson, showing the amount of money expended on roads and bridges in Somerset county for the year ending July 1st, 1921.

J. E. MOORE WRITES ABOUT HIS AUTOMOBILE TRIP TO FLORIDA

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 1, 1921

Friend Walker:—Since you asked me to write you a letter about my trip and will try and give you an outline of the drive through, we are located at Orlando until the first of the year; then we will go further South. We have been attending court for the last week taking in the Lena Clark trial, it has created quite a sensation here. I was much surprised when I drove into a garage yesterday and found Harley D. Yates working there, he has been here since August, he tells me.

Our speedometer shows that Orlando is 1314 miles from Princess Anne; we made the trip without puncture or blowout or engine trouble of any kind. As I look back over the trip it seems to divide itself into three parts, viz: Princess Anne to Millen, Georgia, Millen to Jacksonville, Florida, and Jacksonville to Orlando. From Princess Anne to Baltimore we had the usual good Maryland roads from the Virginia line to Richmond we had some very rough gravel road that was badly cut up so we made very poor time, only making Childsburg, Va. the second day of our drive. The third day we made Henderson, N. C., over some macadam, some sand-clay and some very rough graded dirt roads, the fourth day we spent the night at Camden, S. C., the fifth day we reached Millen, Ga., the roads all through South Carolina were sand clay and smooth as glass and we made fast time over them, also on to Millen, Ga. As this covers the first part of the trip I wish to say a few things about the country and farming conditions that we saw through the Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia. From Richmond, Va., all the way to Florida, I don't believe I saw a corn stalk as big as my thumb; the land is very rough and in some parts of the Carolinas gets mountainous, is badly washed and the only farming operations you see is patch farming, an acre of tobacco here and a few acres of cotton there with a little patch of corn now and then. The improvements consist of a series of cabins most of them in a bad state of repairs with an occasional fair set of farm buildings, very little stock is to be seen and it is scrubby and poor. I really believe that Somerset county's poorest land is as good as the best from the different roads all the way through. The boll weevil had ruined the cotton in the Carolinas and Georgia and the farmers are a blue lot and I am at a loss to know how they will exist until they can grow another crop. We were amused when we reached the sugar cane sections of Georgia and Florida as almost every person you could see would be sucking away at a stalk of sugar cane and it seems to be the National confection of the South at this time of the year, at stores, garages and shops you could see barrels of stalks of sugar cane being offered for sale at five cents per stalk. The timber has all been cut within sight of the different highways all the way through, there being no pine in sight except in parts of Georgia and Florida and all that, has been turpentine and is standing dead; trees no bigger than my arm having been girdled for turpentine. I could not help but notice the absence of young pine coming on, for as soon as the trees are cut for turpentine they die and the ground is soon covered with a growth of saw palmetto and there is no timber coming on here, for the use of coming generations and these turpentine sections are a barren waste, with barely enough hardwood for fuel and posts.

North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia are all at work on their roads, every few miles we would meet a bunch of convicts with their feet chained together building roads under the direction of a guard with a rifle, I presume we pass as many as 500 in the different States, all dressed in their stripes and apparently doing a good days work. Our fifth day out, as before stated, brought us to Millen, Ga., the first part of our trip. From Millen, to Jacksonville, Fla. via Waycross was simply a nightmare, from Millen to Waycross is 147 miles, the first 84 miles was over wet rutty red clay roads, the rest of the 147 miles was through deep sand cut so deep that it was useless to try to pull out of the ruts and nearly all the way through an uninhabited section. This route is known as the woodpecker route and we were told by the Augusta, (Ga.) Chamber of Commerce and by the garages that it was much better than the Dixie highway. Well, we got to Waycross but it took all of our sixth day to do it. From Waycross to Jacksonville is 76 miles. We left Waycross on our seventh day out over the Dixie Highway and the Woodpecker route as they both take the same road as well as the National Highway. For 7 miles we had fair roads, then we had to detour into the piney woods for 33 miles to Folkston, Ga., just a vast wilderness of dead pine trees and saw palmetto with a blaze here and there on the trees to guide us; this trail carried us along the edge of the Okefenokee Swamp, a trackless jungle full of bear, deer and wild turkeys, just a couple of ruts in the deep sand was the road.

There were three cars of us to make the start, a Ford touring car with a Tennessee license tag, a Dort car from Kentucky and us. The Dort was in the lead. Every 5 or 6 miles we would see a sign reading: "This trail is patrolled daily with a truck and six men paid by the Georgia State road commission to pull you out and tow you in," very cheerful news to us. In several places the old trail had cut in so deep that they had felled trees across the trail and almost buried itself; by digging a path for our front wheels to get out of the main track we were able to get around them, that was the last we saw of them. The Tennessee car and ourselves finally got through and never saw a living soul or a human habitation in that 33 miles, we reached Jacksonville at two P. M. and this ended the second lap of our trip.

We did not stop in Jacksonville but drove on to St. Augustine and drove around the different drives for an hour and found it to be one of the most beautiful cities we have seen. The live oaks covered with streamers of Spanish moss, the palm trees, the luxuriant ferns and shrubbery with the ocean for a back ground made a picture to be remembered, we then drove on through Hasting, Fla. and spent the night of our seventh day out at Bunnell, Fla.

We started from Bunnell early on our eighth day from home and drove to Dayton, 26 miles distant with brick road all the way, this road was through a tropical jungle. Dayton is also a beautiful city with a wonderful driveway on the sand beach. From Dayton we took a shell road that was very good to Sanford, Fla. by the way of New Smyrna, all the way through an undeveloped section. When we reached the St. Johns River we had to ferry it and what a difference there was between the two sides of that river, one a barren waste the other under a high state of cultivation, we were much impressed with the land around Sanford, we saw there thousands of acres of celery and lettuce growing to perfection, as Sanford is the largest shipper of celery and lettuce in the world. The soil is a black sandy loam and not a weed or a spear of grass to be seen anywhere, I have never seen such thorough cultivation as is practiced there.

From Sanford we drove to Orlando through grooves of oranges, grape fruit and tangerines, the trees being loaded with fruit and prosperity is evident on every side. I wish I had the ability to picture Orlando to you as it is, but it will require a more brilliant mind than mine to do it. I will say it has a population of 10,000 in the summer time and 20,000 in the winter; there are 17 lakes within the city limits and hundreds of them in the country, it would be hard to imagine a more perfect setting for a city than Orlando has, the silvery lakes with the green lawns sloping down to the waters edge, swans, white and blue cranes and hundreds of wild ducks swimming on the water right here in the city; the streets are lined on both sides with live oak, pecan, palm and magnolia trees full of the trailing Spanish moss, the yards are ablaze with the crimson poinsettias and roses, with a background of orange, grapefruit, bananas and palm trees all with their dark green foliage, the yards are a riot of ferns and tropical shrubbery making a perfect setting for the lovely homes.

From here we expect to go South and West to the Gulf of Mexico, but that is another story, I have strung this out much longer than I intended to so will stop with regards to all the Princess Anne folks.

AN AWAKENING

By ISABELLE ENGLAND

© 1931, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Mary, darling," murmured Ted. "Love me lots? Hummm? Why, what's the trouble now—what the deuce?" For his fiancée's expression had become anything but flattering. She looked, indeed, decidedly bored.

"You're a sweet boy," yawned Mary, "but really, you're horribly tiresome. One can be so sure of you. Oh, Ted! I do wish you weren't so faithful and adoring and—well—unthrilling. Now, if you'd only make love to Cynthia, next door, or something like that! I want excitement, and freedom. I want to be kidnapped by a big, bad man with rough hands, and be pulled by the hair, and kissed brutally, until—Oh-h-h-h!"

Ted regarded her, open-mouthed, with a half-dazed, incredulous expression. Then his face hardened.

"I'm sorry," he retorted, sneeringly, no longer the meek and perfect lover, but a very angry boy. "Sorry I had the great misfortune to be born respectable. Sorry I'm not a ruffian. Drag you by the hair, eh? A spanking would be more effective!"

Mary smiled, maddeningly.

"Of course you can't comprehend my feelings! Your life is so shallow, so petty. Your highest ambition is to marry me. Ye gods! What have I done to deserve such a fate. If you were half a man, you'd abuse me once in a while, or do something to make life interesting."

"Mary!" startled, but once more adoring, he knew not what to say.

"Anyhow, don't stand there gazing at me with that adoring, cat-like expression!" she scolded.

Ted was all at sea. His dignity had been completely swept away. He appeared griefed and meek, and a little uncomprehending, entirely unbelieveing.

"Mary—Mary, I can't understand! I can't see what the deuce is the matter. Didn't you like the violets I brought you?" And he gave an injured glance at the discarded offering.

Mistress Mary, quite contrary, shrugged disdainfully.

"Not so bad," she answered, "but it would have been much more interesting if you'd given them to some other girl. Please run home and don't bother me any longer!"

Mary laughed gayly as Ted's dejected back passed from view at the bend of the road.

"What an utter bore!" she sighed. "I wonder if I'd look more piquant and bohemian with my hair bobbed? And Ted hates bobbed hair—Oh, could anything get him really mad, and keep him mad? Inspiration!"

"Oh, mamma! Where's my comb? And oh, yes, the scissors, too? And, mamma, you wouldn't mind getting me the hand mirror, would you? Thank you!"

Mrs. Doran, a worried-looking little woman, fidgeted nervously about her over-temperamental daughter until the latter unmistakably excused her.

"I hope you're not going to do anything rash, Mary," murmured the nervous little mother rather apologetically.

"Oh, for heaven's sake, do go away, or I certainly will!" ejaculated Mary crossly. "Can't I have a minute's peace?"

Mary yawned. Really, she was so tired!

She pondered deeply a moment. Then, her decision made, she raised the scissors gingerly and trusted to luck—the flapper's god!

Several hours later a rather different Mary tripped down the stairs—a girl with short, stiff, uneven hair, resembling nothing so much as a futurist puzzle. Mary's eyes were suspiciously red. She held her head defiantly as she swept by her horrified father and her nearly hysterical mother, to the front porch.

The stars glittered dreamily; the town was quiet. What's more, Mary felt lonely.

She smiled in self-satisfaction. Of course she would take the poor boy back—after he had sufficiently suffered and repented his stupidity. In her mind she had the reunion almost staged, when—

"You darling!" Ted's voice sounded. It was dreamy, soft. The porch swing next door, at Cynthia's house, ceased squeaking, a gurgle of delight. Then, silence—silence—

Mary gasped and groped feebly for the door. That funny feeling in her heart was almost intolerable. All her sensations seemed to grow vaguer—stranger. She fell.

Mrs. Doran, hurrying into Mary's room, discovered her daughter in a tumbled heap on the floor in front of the easy-chair from which she had just slid.

"Didn't hurt yourself, dear, did you?" inquired Mrs. Doran. "I'd have called you before, only you were sleeping so peacefully. How on earth did you happen to fall out of that chair? Bad dreams?"

Mary picked herself up and anxiously felt of her hair. As her fingers encountered the loose coils she sighed with relief.

"Did Ted call up while I was asleep?" she asked. "Yes? And he's coming over this evening? Oh, joy and thrills! Is my organdie ironed?"

"Why, bless my soul!" exclaimed Mrs. Doran. "What can have got into the girl?"

But Mary didn't answer as she slipped away down the stairs. For, after all, dreams have little effect on youth.

ALL EMBRACED BY DEATH

Ancient Dance, Medieval Custom, About as Weird Performance as Could Be Imagined.

The ancient "death dance" was revived when a performance of the long-forgotten custom was given in the Church of St. Egidius at Labeck, Germany. A visitor describing his experience of it says: On entering the church in the dim twilight he noted mysterious lights flashing from the gallery while soft music was played. The curtains which had hidden the gallery were then drawn aside and the old building, rich in carvings dating from the Renaissance, was lit up by a cold blue light. The music ceased and then a tall, undefined ghostly figure playing a flute was seen. Up the darkened nave a procession now appeared, the players clad in medieval dresses. Heading the procession were the emperor and empress, the cardinal, the aristocrat, the doctor, the usurer, the nun, the peasant and the mother with her child. The procession mounted to the gallery and then disappeared in the dark. The death flute ceased its weird music and Death ordered the emperor and then the remainder of the procession before the tribune and condemned them all, irrespective of position. Death then danced with them, the dancers showing their terror or relief by realistic movements. The shrill accompaniment of a violin broke the silence. Finally Death convulsively gripped the child, the music became more weird, till at last the organ broke into a crash of chords, the players disappeared and the church was once more flooded with light.

BIRDS' TONGUES VARY WIDELY

Feathered Creatures Apparently Provided by Nature With That Best Suited to Its Species.

Some curious data have been gathered with respect to the tongues of birds. It is pointed out that many persons suppose that woodpeckers use their sharp-pointed tongues as darts with which to transfix their prey. It is true that the woodpecker, like the humming bird, can dart out its tongue with the greatest rapidity, and that its mouth is furnished with an elaborate mechanism for this purpose, yet investigation shows that the object of their swift motion is only to catch the prey, not to pierce it. For the purpose of holding the captured victim, the woodpecker's tongue is furnished with a sticky secretion.

Inasmuch as it possesses the power of imitating speech, it is not surprising to learn that the parrot's tongue resembles that of man more closely than any other bird's tongue. It is not because the parrot is more intelligent than many other birds, but because its tongue is better suited for articulation than theirs that it is able to amuse us with its mimicry.

In some respects the humming bird's tongue is the most remarkable of all. It is double nearly from end to end, so that the little creature is able to grasp its insect prey very much as if its mouth were furnished with a pair of fingers.

Boys May "Peek" at Any Show, Is Ruling

New York.—In an epoch-making decision, just handed down, Judge Peter Hatting has upheld the constitutional right of every American boy to "peek" into any show which has a peek-hole, whether the same be a tear in the canvas or a knothole.

The question arose in the case of the People vs. Albert Daut, a professional "bouncer."

Daut was accused of striking a nine-year-old boy. His defense was that the boy was "peeking" into a tent where Jack Johnson, former prize fight champion and convict, was exhibiting.

The judge held that this did not constitute a sufficient defense and fined Daut $50. Not having the money, Daut was sent to jail for ten days.

MOSCOW FARE 1,000 RUBLES

Street Cars Can Accommodate Only About 22 Per Cent of the Population.

Moscow, Russia.—Only 142 electrical street railway trains of two cars each are in condition to operate in Moscow. Consequently only about 22 per cent of the population can be accommodated.

Until only a few weeks ago government employees and workers were allowed to use the street railways, and had special cards. With the change in the government's trade policy, the street railways were thrown open to the bourgeoisie from 10 a. m. till 4 p. m., and the fare fixed at 1,000 rubles a "stretch," which is about half a mile.

The fares collected average about 1,500,000,000 rubles a month, and the monthly deficit of the street railways is 2,000,000,000 rubles.

Supposed Suicide Gets Up and Runs

Baltimore.—Several hundred persons gathered on President street to await the arrival of the police to move the body of a reported suicide lying under a railroad car. They were startled when the man got up and ran. William N. Houck, conductor of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad train, grabbed the man and held him for the police.

The "suicide" gave his name as Angelo Scapano, thirty-two, and an address on President street. He was found lying between two freight cars, with his head across one of the rails. A pistol with two discharged chambers was nearby.

A watchman at a nearby plant fired several shots to attract the police. Scapano told Lieutenant Mooney he had crawled under the car to sleep and knew nothing of the pistol or pistol shots.

NEW CAR PLAN WINS FAVOR

"Ride All Week for $1.25" Turns Out Big Success in Youngstown, Ohio.

Youngstown, O.—The slogan, "ride all week for $1.25," appears to have jumped into immediate favor with street car riders here. At the end of two weeks' trial of the scheme of selling weekly tickets, good for an unlimited number of rides during the week they are valid, officials of the Youngstown Municipal railway believe the success of the plan assured.

For the first week about 4,200 weekly tickets were sold. In the second week car riders responded to the company's advice to "be like a cop, ride where and when you please," by taking more than 5,000 tickets.

The plan was instituted to stimulate street car travel, hard hit by industrial depression and jitney competition. Since it became effective jitney men have admitted a falling off in their patronage.

Illinois Man Exhibits Powder Horn Which Was Used by Ancestor in 1690.

St. Louis.—Jason Humiston, Jr., son of Jason Humiston of Otterville, was in Jerseyville recently with an heirloom of the Humiston family about 230 years old, which was acquired by the first man of the Humiston family in this country.

During the Indian wars of 1690 and 1697, Jason Humiston, a member of the Colonial army, was on scouting duty and on the occasion he encountered an Indian. The two men fought and Humiston killed the Indian. On the body he found a beautiful powder horn. In his will he stated that the horn should go to his son, Jason, Jr., and to every son "Jason" of every son of that name from that time on.

Thousands of telephone employees are partners in the business—they are paying for telephone stock out of their wages.

Why Telephone Employees Want to Give Good Service

WHY is it," asked a telephone subscriber, "that telephone employees in general are so interested in their work and are so anxious to give good service to the public?"

The answer is: loyalty to the public, to the Company and to themselves. The telephone employees look upon their work as a public duty; they take pride in giving the best that is in them. They feel a sense of loyalty to the company because they are a part of the organization which constitutes the Company and because many of them have made telephone service their life work. Then, too, many of them are partners in the business.

More than 100,000 employees of the Bell System own telephone stock or are paying for it on the monthly payment plan, from their wages as earned. Many of these employees live in Maryland and help to give you telephone service. The par value of the stock owned or being paid for by these employees in Maryland amounts to $671,200.

Employees who have voluntarily invested their savings and earnings in the business in which they are engaged must have confidence in it and will do their utmost to make it a success.

Better He Hadn't Insisted.
The author of a few novels, meeting a literary friend, began talking with him about his, the author's latest work. Presently he said: "You go about a good deal, Brown. Tell me what you hear about my book."
"I assure you," answered the other, "that I've heard nothing but the most favorable and enthusiastic opinions of it."
"Oh, that's good! Now tell me who has talked to you about it."
"Um—well, I can't tell you that exactly."
"Oh, yes, you can. I insist."
"Well, then, since you insist, you're the only one I've heard say anything about it."—Boston Transcript.

Art Is a Science.
Whistler laid down the dictum that "art is a science—the science by which the artist picks, chooses and groups, that beauty may result." And he added, wisely "The artist can leave no more to chance than can the chemist, the botanist or the biologist." This applies quite as clearly to house decoration as to any other of the arts. It is only by picking, choosing and grouping intelligently and according to principles that an artistic interior can be built up.

ALIEN PROPERTY TO BE RETURNED

Government Officials Are Trying to Map Out Plan for Unraveling Tangle.

NECESSARY TO PEACE STATUS

Most of the Seized Holdings Will Eventually Go Back to the Original Owners—Claims of Our Citizens Must Be Satisfied.

Washington.—Administration leaders are trying to map out a policy for disposing of the alien property trusts. Most of the seized holdings will eventually go back to the original owners, but Alien Property Custodian Miller insists that the claims of American citizens against Germany and Austria must be satisfied first. The ultimate disposition of the property rests with congress, except in cases where it has expressly authorized settlements. Winding up the alien property affairs is now the big task before the administration in getting back to an actual peace status.

Virtually all the attention, both public and in congress, has been focused on the seized German holdings in this country. The chief claims of American citizens growing out of the war are against the German government, which will probably be charged up with the financial loss to Americans through the Lusitania sinking, on which many of the claims rest. For this reason it is expected that settlement of the German property will be longer delayed.

No Austria-Hungary Now.
In addition, the fact that the Austro-Hungarian empire broke up after the war has made possible a return of a large portion of the property seized from Austrian and Hungarian nationals who after the peace treaty became citizens of the new republics that assumed friendly diplomatic relationship with the United States. Mr. Miller has been proceeding quietly with the unraveling of numerous claims until the old Austrian property is in such shape that he can see daylight, and he anticipates little trouble from that source between now and the time congress acts.

Congress will have to pass on the disposition of less than half the Austro-Hungarian holdings, or property valued at $18,000,000 out of a total of $40,000,000 seized when war was declared. When congress amended the trading with the enemy act it provided that the possessions of citizens of Czechoslovakia and Poland and subjects of the new Jugoslav nation and the section of old Hungary added to Rumania might be returned, and settlement of the claims of these people is proceeding rapidly. Mr. Miller announced that possessions valued at more than $9,000,000 already had been handed back to the owners.

Of the remaining approximately $30,000,000 Mr. Miller estimated that about $12,000,000 subsequently will go to nationals of the three new European states or nationals of the new section of Rumania. This will leave approximately $18,000,000 tied up in trust until congress authorizes the President, through the alien property custodian and the Department of Justice, to return it or dispose of it otherwise.

In discussing the Austrian and Hungarian property seized in this country, very few pointed out that it included very few estates of any size—in fact, only one, the Gladys Vanderbilt estate, valued at $4,000,000, which was returned after congress provided that the property of American women married to alien enemies prior to April 6, 1917, which was taken over during the war, might be handed back. Count Szechenyi, who married Gladys Vanderbilt, is now mentioned as the Hungarian ambassador to the United States when the treaty ratifications are exchanged.

One Item of $400,000.
Of the remaining Austro-Hungarian property in the hands of the government the largest lump sum is that of $400,000 taken over with the Austro-Hungarian bank of New York. Part of this trust fund will probably be handed back before congress passes on the Austrian property. Mr. Miller said that citizens of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Rumania hold an interest, the extent of which is still undetermined, in the bank. It is expected to materially reduce the total when claims are allowed.

Virtually all the rest of the Austrian property consists of small estates, some of which amount to only $40 or similar sums awarded workmen under state compensation acts. The $18,000,000 of Austrian and Hungarian property is in the same boat as the bulk of the German trust funds, over which the President has no power of disposition until he obtains further authority.

The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns, so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." The body of Mr. Nate H. Forsyth arrived in Princess Anne last Sunday afternoon and was taken from here to Marion Station, where funeral services were held at Grace M. E. Church yesterday (Monday) afternoon. Mr. Forsyth was 57 years old and formerly a resident of Somerset county; he having sold his farm several years ago and moved to Youngstown, Ohio, where he died. He had been in ill health for some time. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. W. J. A. Connor, of near Marion Station. The remains were interred in St. Paul's burying ground.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Tull, of Upper Fairmount, celebrated the fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home last Tuesday, December 6th, and at the same time Dr. H. C. Tull celebrated his forty-fifth birthday anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Tull were married in Manokin Church, Jamestown, Somerset county, by Rev. O. B. Strayer, and it was recalled that at the time of the wedding the temperature was just six degrees below zero. Dinner was served to a number of friends at Tuesday's celebration and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to be present, among whom were all the children and two grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Tull.

Baptist Church Notice.

Beginning December 18th, 1921, the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Princess Anne will preach a series of sermons on the Gospel according to John. The subject in the morning of Sunday, December 18th, will be "Types of Soul Winners," John 1:35-45. Sunday evening, "Religion in the Home," John 2:1-15. This series will be continued, except on December 25th, and will cover the book in eight sermons. The other subjects will be announced in this paper a week in advance. All are cordially invited to come and hear these timely messages in the "Homely Church Around the Corner." Morning services at 11 and evening services at 7:30 o'clock.

Deal's Island High School Items

Contributions by the teachers and student body of the High School made possible the purchase of a new Columbia Grafonola. Many new records of noted artists were also bought. Exercises of unusual interest were held at the Deal's Island High School last week from 9 to 10 a. m. The plan for "better education" was successfully carried out by a carefully planned program for the week. The following topics were discussed: Monday, "Our Flag," by Rev. Thomas Tuesday, "American Ideals," by Mrs. T. P. Bradshaw. Wednesday, "The American Language," by Mrs. Hudgins. Thursday, "Immigration," by Mrs. Cullison. Friday, "Naturalization," by W. J. Tankersley. This was followed by a lively debate on "Immigration" by two members of the senior class. Special music was rendered, also patriotic songs by the children. Scriptural reading, prayer and the American creed, followed by flag raising, while the children stood at attention, were features to make the program interesting and entertaining as well as instructive. We were especially grateful to the parents for their attendance and co-operation with the teachers and we feel that the school and home are more closely united than ever before.

Mr. H. Pringle Ford, formerly of Somerset county, and a former principal of the Deal's Island High School, but for the past sixteen years a resident of Philadelphia, has presented the said school with a number of valuable reference books, including a set of encyclopedias. The presentation was made Miss by A. W. Bradshaw, a teacher in the school, at the morning assembly. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Ford for his valuable and much appreciated gift by teachers, pupils, parents and friends of the school.

The Eastern Shore

A magazine writer recently said of the Eastern Shore of Maryland some very good things. Here is a sample:

That division so popularly known as the "Eastern Shore" lies like an arm of land between the Atlantic and the Chesapeake, one of the largest and most beautiful bays to be found in the world. The Eastern Shore is a peninsula about two hundred miles in length, and seventy miles at its greatest breadth and ten miles at its narrowest part. It area is about six thousand square miles; being bounded on the north by the State of Pennsylvania, on the east by the Delaware Bay and Atlantic Ocean and on the west by the Chesapeake Bay. Of this territory, the Eastern Shore of Maryland comprises four-ninths, Delaware three ninths, the eastern shore of Virginia two ninths.

Its local name is no recent invention. In a letter written Lord Baltimore under date of October 23, 1656, he stated "His lordship requires his said lieutenant and council to cause the bounds thereof to be kept in memory and notoriously known, especially the bounds between Maryland and Virginia and on that part of the country known there by the name of Eastern Shore." This region has become so famous that its local name is known to the most intelligent people of the United States.

The climate of the Eastern Shore is a happy mean between the tropical and the temperate. One of the admirable features of the climate is its remarkable equableness. Surrounded as is the Eastern Shore with these great bodies of salt water—Delaware Bay and the Atlantic Ocean, with the Gulf Stream to soften the humid atmosphere, on the east and the Chesapeake on the west—the maximum distance between these waters being about seventy miles and the minimum about one-seventh as much—it is easy to understand the comparative evenness of its temperature in contrast to those sudden and excessive changes so prejudicial to comfort and health. As to the healthfulness of the Eastern Shore it compares most favorably with the most healthful districts in the world. Consumption—a scourge of new England and the West, is practically unknown.

The United States Government some years ago after making a survey of the United States for neocological data, officially published that Royal Oak, Maryland, is the healthiest spot to be found in the United States.

Nature has been very kind to the Eastern Shore. She has made it yield almost every fruit, vegetable and berry in profusion and of the finest quality; filled even the swamps with cypress, cedar and pine; stored the stream with fishes, filled the waters along the coast with shellfish, sent flocks of birds into the fields and woods, and flights of wild fowl upon all the water.

The Eastern Shore is a famous region. Its situation is interesting, its products are very valuable, and are in demand everywhere in the United States and in many places in Europe, and its fame is great because of the sensation it provides for the palates of men.

When You Are Constipated

To insure a healthy action of the bowels and correct disorders of the liver, take two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They will not only cause a gentle movement of the bowels, without unpleasant effects, but banish that dull, stupid feeling that often accompanies constipation.

LESSONS OF WAR IN NEW DEFENSE

Plan Provides for an Efficient
Staff Trained in Peace Time.

SARS CENTRALIZED CAMPS

Foundation Work on Great National Scheme of Mobilization Already Done—Regular Army to Train Men for War.

Washington.—Two lessons of the World war, learned at heavy cost, are sharply emphasized in a War department bulletin, giving the first of-
fense structure projected in the reorganized army of the United States.

One lesson comes direct from the battlefields of France. It is that efficient staff work is vital to modern military operations, and with it goes the corollary that staff functions cannot be learned over night.

The other comes from the wartime din and confusion of the centralized training camps at home. It is that efficient mobilization of the nation's fighting strength can be carried out only as a decentralized process through agencies set up in times of peace.

Realization that these lessons must be worked into the new military policy if perilous delay and costly confusion which preceded past mobilizations were to be avoided has marked the effort of the War department.
The bulletin shows that it has attempted to write regulations under the revised national defense act that would furnish a clean-cut scheme for war mobilization without violating national traditions against militarism or creating machinery that would impose heavy burdens in peace times upon the taxpayers.

To Profit by Experience.
The project undertaken probably is the most far-reaching military effort the nation has ever attempted in peace times.

The foundation work has been done.
All over the country decentralized machinery is being set up capable, its designers believe, of getting the nation on a war footing with little delay and confusion. Yet it is felt that the nation at large and even the most important links in the new defense chain, the regular army, the National Guard and the Officers' Reserve corps do not appreciate fully what is being done.

Col. John McA. Palmer, the officer assigned to aid congress in framing the legislation making it all possible, and who has devoted himself to a study of the subject, was called upon to furnish the document, and his work is to go to all parts of the new army as a means of preventing misunderstanding.

Colonel Palmer points out that at the conclusion of previous wars, the United States scrapped all it had learned in battle and demobilized without any attempt to carry those costly lessons on to younger generations for their protection and aid in time of war. Veterans of the Civil war, schooled in soldier craft, skilled in staff work and the handling of mighty forces with minimum confusion in movement and minimum losses in battle, went back to civil life, he says, and lost all touch with military matters. When the war with Spain came their knowledge was lost to the men of 1898. It was necessary to build again from the ground up, and 1917 saw this waste repeated, the bulletin asserts.

The purpose of the new scheme of welding the regulars, the National Guard and the organized reserves into the army of the United States in peace times is defined by Colonel Palmer as follows:
"It is primarily the object of our new law to perpetuate the framework of the organization developed in the World war, so that its tremendous cost can be funded as a permanent investment for all time."

Had such a system as is now well advanced toward establishment been erected after the Civil war, the officer adds, "in 1898 more divisions than were needed for the war with Spain could have begun their expansion within 24 hours after the declaration of hostilities."

Centralized Process Demoralizing.
"Mobilization in 1917," Colonel Palmer continues, "would have proceeded as a decentralized process and not as a great centralized process, upsetting the economic life of the nation. It would not have been necessary to spend millions for great concentrated training camps or to overburden the railroads with unclassified personnel and material in order to organize and train and equip and provide officers all at the same time. Such a national organization must have saved months in time and millions in money."

Colonel Palmer points out that Stonewall Jackson alone of leaders on either side of the Civil war entered the contest with knowledge of what staff work meant. He had studied Napoleon's troop orders, and in the first battle of the war, Colonel Palmer says, "showed that even raw troops can stand like a stone wall if the prevalent rawness does not extend to the craftsmanship of the commander."

To meet such a situation, the new military policy imposes on the regular army the duty of training in peace times the men on whom must of necessity fall the burden of command and direction of great forces in war.

From this arises the present distribution of the regulars into divisional areas which underlay the corps and army area structure. It is not expected, officers say, that more than a division ever will be brought together in peace times, but through practice in handling a divisional unit of 20,000 or so men, training can be imparted, it is felt, to fit future leaders to handle corps of armies in battle.

From its role as staff college, also, comes the demand of the army for a greater proportion of officers than the actual enlisted strength of any probable regular force would require.
These extra officers would play little part in the actual peace time employment of the army as such or even in small emergency that required only the regulars to meet the nation's needs. They would be under training in staff functions, and in turn be passing on their knowledge to the National Guardsmen and reserve officers and the whole scheme of keeping the country up to date in a military sense without keeping any substantial force under arms at any time rests on this provision, it is asserted.

PARIS HATES PAPER MONEY

Bills Are Badly Soiled While People Wait in Vain for Long Promised Metal Coins.

Paris.—American visitors here this season have been amazed at the distasteful condition of the 1 franc, 2 franc and 50 centime notes in circulation.

And France is still waiting for the long promised metal coins to take the place of the tattered paper money.

After laborious search, the finance authorities selected a suitable alloy and the manufacture of the coins began. Indeed, coins of the value of 35, 000,000 francs (about $7,000,000 normally) are now stored in the cellars of the mint. But there are notes worth 300,000,000 francs in circulation, and the administration deems it unwise to issue the coins until they also total 300,000,000 francs. In this manner all the paper money would be withdrawn simultaneously, all departments would be treated alike and there would be no cause for jealousy.

BIRTHS IN PARIS INCREASE

Many More Marriages Also Take Place
Than Before War, Records Show.

Paris.—Though Paris is yet dealing with a housing crisis, the residents seem determined that the existing homes shall be well filled, if one may judge by the steadily increasing birth rate. The records show many more marriages and births than before the war and also a reduction in the infant mortality in the crowded areas of the city.

There were 31,885 births in Paris during the first six months of 1921, as compared with 24,800 in the same period of 1913 and 27,906 in the first half of 1920.

The number of marriages in all of 1913 was only 31,916, while last year there were 53,829, and there have been 26,282 weddings in the first half of 1921. Parisians are well pleased with the prospect for the next census.

HALF NATION RENTS HOMES

Census Bureau Finds Only 6,522,119 Houses in United States Fully Paid For.

Washington.—More than half of the 24,351,676 families in the United States in 1920 were living in rented homes, according to census bureau enumeration results made public here.

The number of families renting their homes was 12,943,598, compared to 10, 836,960 who owned their homes. Of the owned homes 6,522,119 were free from incumbrances and 4,059,593 were incumbered, while for the remaining 285,248 the status was not reported.
The bureau's statement said the term home as employed in the report signified "the abiding place" of a single family and did not therefore necessarily denote an entire dwelling which may house a number of families as in the case of an apartment building.

Corn for Fuel.
Le Sueur, Minn.—Declaring that corn at 21 cents a bushel is cheaper fuel than coal, Dr. F. A. Dodge, a resident of Le Sueur and a farm owner, has commenced burning corn as a fuel to heat his residence. Al Schlegel, a farmer living near here also says he intends to use corn as a fuel, because of the low price and labor at $3 a day.

Skunks Establish Home in Church

West Chester, Pa.—A family of skunks has taken possession of the basement of the Church of the Holy Trinity, the most fashionable church in the borough.
Caretaker Henry Wynn is at a loss how to drive away the animals, but so far they have caused no trouble. Members of the families living near the church have noticed the animals playing about the building. Several skunk families have been found in the borough recently. Some days ago one of the animals invaded a bakery in the central business section.

"DEAD GAME SQUARE SPORT"

This is the epitaph of George W.
Pike on a tombstone at Douglas, Wyoming, erected by citizens of that town as a tribute to a "dead game, square sport," of by gone days, when the West was the "bad man's" paradise. Pike might have been tough, but he was on the level, and never shot a man unless forced to do so.

Pike was a sort of wild western Robin Hood, the open handed friend of every person in need. His funeral, despite the fact that he was a professional gambler, was one of the largest ever held in Wyoming.

WEST POINT STUDIES PAPERS

Perusal of Dailies Required of "Future Generals" at Military Academy.

West Point.—Future generals in the United States army are studying newspapers as part of their course at the military academy.

The cadets are required to read two New York dailies as part of their class work on current events, and pass examinations on deductions from important stories and editorials. Officers of the post say it is one of the most interesting, if not one of the most valuable, innovations in many years.

The papers are read immediately after breakfast. The instructors then quiz the cadets orally on the news of the day. They are asked to summarize the important happenings, foreign and domestic, and explain their significance.

CHICAGO BARS RED VEHICLES

Color Too Much Like That Used by Fire Department, Police Say.

Chicago.—After January 1, 1922, private vehicles in Chicago may not be painted with the same shade of red used by the fire department. The city council passed an ordinance to that effect, under the state law giving it authority to expedite the work of the police and fire departments.

It was explained that traffic policemen have given the right of way to private vehicles under the mistaken belief that they were going to a fire.

Lights Puzzle Jackrabbits.

In traveling the roads threading the Nevada desert one notices the well-defined rabbit trails criss-crossing the sand and leading off into the brush.
And when there is a moon, the jack-rabbits gambol merrily along the side of the road, shadowy and unreal in the moonlight until they cross the brilliant path cut by the automobile lights. Then bunny gets confused, stops, sits up, with ears elevated and awaits until the car is within a few feet of him, then off he romps into the wayside brush, unable to comprehend these artificial balls which fail to keep the respectful distance observed by the moon.—Christian Science Monitor.

It does not seem remarkable to find inscriptions written ages ago still visible on the Tower of London or on the steeple of some cathedral. But one would hardly look on a fragile pane of glass in a common window for characters more than two centuries old.

A notable case in point came to light in London not so long ago, in an old house where the notorious Jack Sheppard once lived as a carpenter's apprentice. One of the window panes still bears an inscription cut in it by a glazier's diamond, recording the name and address of a man who preceded Jack's master in that house. The inscription is: "John Woolley Brand, Painter and Glazier, March 2, 1706." That was nine years before the coming to the house of Jack Sheppard and almost two hundred and fifty years ago.

Belgian National Song.
Brabanconne is the national song of the Belgians, originally sung by the insurgents during the revolution of September, 1830. A young French player of the name of Jenneval was the author of the song, which was set to music by a singer named Campen-hout. Jenneval fell in a combat with the Dutch at Berchem.—New International Encyclopedia.

"BACK-TO-HOME MOVEMENT"

New York Post's Woman Commander Would Have Women Give Up Their Jobs.

Someone should start a "back-to-the home movement" for married women who toll unnecessarily in the business world, according to Mrs.
Julia E. Wheelock commander of the Barbara Frichie post of the American Legion in New York city, and widely known as a writer.

Mrs. Wheelock believes that "working wives" make lazy husbands." She believes married women should give up their jobs in favor of unemployed ex-service men.

It was Mrs. Wheelock who successfully opposed the making of the American Legion strictly a man's organization. As a result there are today several women enrolled as Legionnaires and several posts composed altogether of ex-service women.

Mrs. Wheelock began helping the United States win the war as early as 1918 when she started a campaign to obtain stevedores and coal heavers for the navy. She caused to be presented to congress petitions for adequate preparedness and is accredited with having through her own efforts recruited 10,000 men for the navy. In recognition of her services she was made a chief yeoman in the regular service.

Mrs. Wheelock is active in social and civic affairs in New York and is widely known for her writings in both the English and French languages.

AMONG "BIRDS OF PASSAGE"

Editorial Asserts West Point Will Continue to Turn Out Crop of Second Lieutenants.

That the "second loote," of whom there were so many during the war, is more or less an institution of active warfare is shown in an editorial from the American Legion Weekly under the caption "Birds of Passage."
It follows:

"Buried in the recent official list of the number of army officers of all grades who have contrived to survive the congressional gullotine appeared this inconspicuous entry:

"Second Lieutenants (all arms) . . . 238.
"Only 233 second lieutenants left!
And once there must have been that many thousand. Who shall now deny that the war is over? Certainly while it lasted they bloomed like so many hardy perennials, emerging full blown from the training camps and finally from the ranks, for was not the top sergeant only a little lower than the angels?"

"After the Armistice, when divisional and regimental shows began to appear all over the A. E. F., the second lieutenant won fresh immortality in the quips which Mr. Bones passed to Mr.
Tambo, and vice versa. It was a token of his popularity—for humanity does not poke gentle fun at what it hates.

"The second lieutenant is not extinguished. Most of him has graduated into a first lieutenancy. West Point will, of course, continue to turn out its annual crop, but even these will within a few months enter the larger life of the silver bar."

POST NAMED FOR LIEUTENANT

First American Artillery Officer to Die
In Action Is Honored by Surviving Comrades.

The first American artillery officer to die in action in France has been honored by his surviving comrades, who have named their post of the American Legion in New York in his honor. The post, which comprises members of the old First division, is known as the Jeff Feigl post.
Jefferson Feigl was a first lieutenant of Battery F, Seventh field artillery of the First division. He was twenty-two years old, and had entered the service of his country immediately upon his graduation from Harvard university.

A year after the death of the young officer on the field of battle, his personal property was sent to his parents, Colonel and Mrs. Feigl, who reside at the Biltmore hotel, New York. In a hand-bag was a letter addressed to his parents, which Lieutenant Feigl had written a short time before he was killed. In the letter he forecast his death, and said, "Dame Fortune couldn't have picked a more gentlemanly manner for me to make my ex-it."

TS CHANGE STAGE SCENES

Turn of Switch Transforms the Scenery, Costumes and Figures in London Theater.

WORKED OUT BY A RUSSIAN

M. Samoiloff Asserts He is Merely Utilizing Harmony Between Light, Line and Color—Principles Are Not New.

London.—The wonders accomplished in transforming scenes, costumes and actual figures from one period of history to another by a mere change of light on the stage of the Hippodrome has set all London talking. In a revue now playing there is a scene representing a very modern dame sighing for her lover in a frowning mountain pass. She sings, the echo answers and the audience is beguiled by the sweet sentimentality of the situation.

Then behind the scenes somebody does something and everything is altered in a flash. The grim mountains become a Hindu temple, the frowning rocks melt into sands and palms and the tall, slender young woman turns into a stout Indian maiden. It has all been brought about by a change in light, by the manipulation of more than 100 different switches at the same moment, and the audience is carried back 3,000 years and from one continent to another.
Every detail is transmogrified, and the girl, who was clad conventionally in a yellow artificial silk blouse with blue facings and a rust-red golf skirt, appears now with her bust draped in white, embroidered in black and brown, with her waist unclothed and her trousers-skirt, pale cream with a faint figured pattern.

Back Goes Everything.

An Oriental scene follows, with the customary dances. Men and women in all the finery of the East enter and weave in and out in the mazes of the ballet. The lover comes on, to all appearances robed in the loose white garments and the trousers of certain castes of Hindus. The action grows fast and furious; the heroine is threatened by a rival; she runs to the hero for protection, and as he clasps her to his arms some one throws those switches again.

Back goes everything to the mountain gorge, and a very modern young man in a brown lounge suit of unexceptionable cut is seen embracing the young woman in the crowd of equally modernly dressed people.

How is it done? Only Adrian V.
Samoiloff, the Russian artist who has worked the thing out, and the Moss Empire, who hold the patent, can tell in detail, but it is possible to give a general idea of this startling new stage effect. When M. Samoiloff was asked about it, he said:

"It's merely a matter of establishing and utilizing a harmony between light, line and color. Is it new? Well, all the elements of it have been known for years; I have merely brought them together and worked them out scientifically and systematically. Do you remember, for instance, the postcards we had as children, which showed one inscription in one light and another in another? Well, that's part of it. Then during the war he heard a lot about 'dazzle' and camouflage, and how a few apparently random lines of paint would alter to the distant observer the shape of the outline of a vessel. That's part of it, too. I have merely worked along these and similar lines until I got the results I wanted."

"But the girl's skirt and blouse in the mountain scene seemed to be of solid color and heavy material, while in the Hindu scene they were quite flimsy and covered with embroidery.
How about that?"

Light Changes Costume.

"That's quite simple," replied M.
Samoiloff. "To the colors I use in the mountain scene I applied two methods of analysis. First, I took their spectra; then I analyzed the paints used chemically. From the spectra I found into what colors the first would split up by the application of the proper kind of strong light, and by chemical analysis I discovered that a great variety of substances had been used in the original paints and colors to produce the original hues. Take, for example, several pieces of red material; they will seem to match exactly, but chemical analysis will show that one contains radium bromide, another phosphorine or zinc, and a third no special chemical at all. In ordinary daylight they look exactly alike, but when I begin to throw my specially prepared lights upon them they change in different ways according to the chemicals they contain.
When you have worked this out very carefully, as I did, it will be quite simple for you to make a plain blouse look like a mass of embroidery."

"Perhaps you noticed in the Oriental scene three of the dancers who seemed to be clothed in quite different ways; one looked as if she were wearing merely a skirt, another was draped to her shoulders, and so on. Yet when the light was changed all three were found to be clad in modern gowns, the only difference between them being the colors of their costumes. It's merely an application of the knowledge of how light affects color."

ONE BRAND- ONE QUALITY- One Size Package

All our skill, facilities, and lifelong knowledge of the finest tobaccos are concentrated on this one cigarette—CAMEL.

Into this ONE BRAND, we put the utmost quality.
Nothing is too good for Camels. They are as good as it's possible to make a cigarette.

Camel QUALITY is always maintained at the same high, exclusive standard. You can always depend on the same mellow-mild refreshing smoothness—the taste and rich flavor of choicest tobaccos—and entire freedom from cigarettey aftertaste.

And remember this! Camels come in one size package only—20 cigarettes—just the right size to make the greatest saving in production and packing. This saving goes straight into Camel Quality. That's one reason why you can get Camel Quality at so moderate a price.

Here's another. We put no useless frills on the Camel package. No "extra wrappers!" Nothing just for show!

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And their added cost must go onto the price or come out of the quality.

One thing, and only one, is responsible for Camels great and growing popularity —that is CAMEL QUALITY.

WHEN NERVES ARE UNSTRUNG

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Builds Up Vigor
and Strength

There are times when men and women cannot help losing strength. They try to do too much or they lose sleep or do not eat enough food that nourishes. Blood becomes sluggish because poisons clog it. Faces grow pale and pasty looking. It is not long before nerves get unstrung.

The best way to start a change for the better is to take a course of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It builds the blood. The weakness from a lack of red cells in the blood is overcome. Gude's Pepto-Mangan sends a fresh supply of red cells streaming through the blood. Good blood, pure and free from poisons, starts building vigor and strength. Sleep is better, appetite keener, so that the body becomes properly nourished. Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Advertisement.

Shrewd Hubby.
"The young husband was 'kindness personified' as far as his wife was concerned. But he didn't like delay and made many a diplomatic attempt to have her ready to go out when he himself was dressed. Living in a suburban community, they always attended the monthly dances at the country club."

"I've finally found the way," he told the men in the smoking room. "And she'll never guess. I used to bring her flowers. She always wants a bunch to wear for the dance when I come home. But now I plead they'll be fresher if we get them on our way to the club. If she keeps me waiting I explain with regret that there isn't time to get them. The florist is somewhat out of the way, and it means a half-hour's additional drive."

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Princess Anne Homes

Hard to do housework with an aching back.
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.
If women only knew the cause—that Backache pains often come from weak kidneys.

"I would save much needless woe." Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys. Ask your neighbor!

Read what a Princess Anne citizen says:
Mrs. Victoria Sexton, Antioch avenue, says: "I was in a run down condition with kidney trouble. My back ached constantly and kept me feeling miserable. My housework tired me out and I became weak and languid. Dizzy spells came over me and spots floated before my eyes. My sight blurred, too. My feet and ankles were swollen at times and my kidneys never acted regularly. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended at times and I used them from Jones & Colborn's drug store. They helped me wonderfully by relieving all symptoms of kidney trouble."

Peoples Bank of Somerset County vs. Lillie Johnson and Ambrose Johnson.

No. 2468 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, this 23rd day of November, 1921, that the sale of the property made and reported by L. Creston Beauchamp, trustee appointed by a decree of this court to make said sale, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary appear by exceptions filed on or before the 23rd day of December next; provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper published in Somerset County once in each of three successive weeks before the 23rd day of December next.

The report states the amount of sales to be $500. W. JEROME STERLING, Clerk.

Smoke Without Fire.
"Smoking strictly prohibited" notices caught the eye of a commercial consultant who had been called in by a north of England firm to investigate and report upon the efficiency of its business methods and to suggest possible improvements. So soon as he saw the sign precluding the fragrant weed he commanded: "Take all those notices down, paint them out. What will visitors think?" The factory was completely occupied for the manufacture of asbestos.

Wool of Australia.
The great superiority of Australian wool is supposed to be due mainly to climatic conditions; but no little credit is also due to the grasses and herbage upon which the sheep feed. The native grasses of Australia are looked upon as superior for pasture to exotic grasses; experience has inclined the opinion that way. They possess greater reproductive powers, and there is very little necessity for reseeded.

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and pave the way for the more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds, may be had for a trifle?

A STATEMENT OF J. W. MORRIS & SONS, Inc.

WE ARE NOT BANKRUPT nor putting on a receiver's sale. We are not moving, dissolving partnership, nor quitting business. We have not bought up a bunch of "job lots" for a sale, nor have we suddenly turned philanthropists.

"Why then?" you ask. For over twenty years this store has occupied a prominent place in the commercial life of Princess Anne. Our policy has always been to keep abreast of the times, handling only the best merchandise, selling at prices that would allow only a fair profit commensurate with our investment and service rendered.

In our plans for a greater volume of business we find our store packed with new goods. Our sole reason for putting on this sale is to reduce our stock at least one-half.

For this tremendous undertaking we have engaged the services of Mr. Charles Block, senior sales expert of the T. K. Lelley Sales System, Minneapolis, Minn., to come and help us out. He has gone through our stock, just slashing prices right and left, marking our great stock at prices which the people of Princess Anne and vicinity have not seen for years.

Of course we are going to stand by our agreement. Every statement or price advertised is the cold-blooded commercial truth. Come in and make us prove it. Sale is Now Going On and will last until December

Important Announcement—Opening of Our New

CHRISTMAS CLUB

INVITATION TO ALL

Our Bank extends to every man, woman and child in our city and community, a cordial invitation to come in and join our new CHRISTMAS CLUB.

This is the most popular plan ever devised for having money next Christmas and enables those of small means, those in moderate circumstances and also business men to lay aside money by systematic deposits each week.

To Join is Easy—No cost, no dues, no red tape. Look at the Tables below and select the Club you wish to join, 1c, 2c, 5c, 10c, 25c, 50c, $1, $2, $5, $10, $20 or more and come into our bank with the first deposit. We will enroll you as a member of the Club and give you a pass book showing the money deposited. That is all there is to it.

INCREASING CLUB PLAN

Put in 1c, 2c, 5c or 10c the first week. INCREASE your deposit 1c, 2c, 5c or 10c each week. In 50 weeks:

1c Club pays $12.75

2c Club pays $25.50

5c Club pays $63.75

10c Club pays $127.50

DECREASING CLUB PLAN

Start with the largest sum and Decrease your deposits each week. This is a very popular plan.

EVEN AMOUNT CLUB PLAN

Put in the SAME AMOUNT each week. In 50 weeks:

25c Club pays $12.50

50c Club pays $25.00

$1.00 Club pays $50.00

$2.00 Club pays $100.00

$10.00 Club pays $500.00

$20.00 Club pays $1,000.00

$50.00 Club pays $2,500.00

Come in and Join.

YOU CAN BEGIN WITH THE LARGEST PAYMENT AND DECREASE EACH WEEK
PLAN OF THE CLUB

The plan is simple: In the increasing Clubs you begin with a certain amount, 1c, 2c, 5c or 10c and increase your deposit the same amount each week.

In the decreasing Club, you begin with the largest payment and decrease each week.

In the Even Amount Clubs you begin with a certain amount, 25c, 50c, $1, $2, $5, $10, $20 or any amount and deposit the same amount each week.

You will never miss the money you deposit each week, and at the end of fifty weeks, which pass quickly, you will have a nice sum available for your Christmas, or start a regular account to help buy a home, educate the children or go into business for yourself.

Deposit some money regularly every week—That is our plan.

Come in and join today—YOU WILL RECEIVE 3 PER CENT INTEREST.

BANK OF SOMERSET, Princess Anne, Maryland

PRINCESS ANNE, MARYLAND, DECEMBER 20, 1921

Vol. XXIV No. 20

PRINCESS ANNE OUT OF LEAGUE

Club Directors Were Unable To Lease Suitable Ball Grounds

Mr. J. D. Wallop, president of the Princess Anne Base Ball Club, Monday week notified President Walter Miller, of the Eastern Shore Base League, that the Princess Anne Club had withdrawn from the new circuit. It is said that a meeting of the board of directors of the league will be called within a few days, and that every effort will be made to have the Princess Anne Club reconsider its decision.

The main reason for the withdrawal, according to the report, was that a suitable base ball field could not be obtained without it being necessary to go about a mile from town. It was stated that there are several lots suitable for base ball purposes right at the edge of the town limits but that prohibitive prices had been asked for them.

Last year, Princess Anne used the Washington High School grounds for their baseball contests, but as this field had been considered too small for a league diamond, Princess Anne found it necessary to seek elsewhere for a suitable site, with discouraging results.

The decision to drop out of the league was made at a meeting of the board of directors of the Princess Anne team held Friday night, the 9th instant, and since that meeting the stockholders who subscribed to stock in the newly organized league club have been released from their subscriptions and the money of those who already had paid for their stock has been returned.

It is stated that up until the time the trouble arose over the procuring of suitable grounds, everything had been going along finely. Between $2,700 and $2,800 in stock had either been sold or subscribed for, but that the price asked for the rental of the ground that the directors had been trying to procure, was absolutely beyond all reason.

State Grange Elect Officers

The Maryland State Grange, which met in Cambridge last week, closed its sessions last Thursday evening. The officers elected for the coming year were: Master, B. John Black, Baltimore county, re-elected; overseer, R. Bentley Thomas, Baltimore county; lecturer, Mrs. Harry Williams, Kent county; chaplain, James T. Anthony, Kent county; treasurer, G. S. Maloy, Prince George's county; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth O. Jean, Baltimore county; crier, Mrs. B. John Black; flora, Mrs. Grant Sexton, Wicomico county; Pomona, Mrs. E. A. Cairnes, Harford county; steward, Fulton Allen, Wicomico county; assistant steward, George R. Stuntz, Harford county, and lady assistant steward, Mrs. A. G. Eneor, Harford county.

The Grange received and adopted the report of State Master Black. He reviewed the work of the grange during the year, urged upon the subordinate granges regularly in holding meetings, asked for the passage of legislation against race-track gambling, and urged full support for the State colleges and schools and consolidation of the latter when possible. The sixth degree was conferred on a number of candidates Thursday evening.

Give Grain To Near East Relief

The farmers in the county have recently donated corn to the Near East Relief to be exchanged for flour and meal. About four hundred pounds of flour are now ready for shipment. Twenty-five hundred pounds of flour were shipped by the farmers of this county last September to the Near East Relief.

Farmers desiring to give a donation of several bushels of corn to this worthy cause can leave their contributions at the Westover Mills or the Cohn & Bock Company. All donations must be received not later than Friday, December 23d.

To Christmas Green Huntres

To those who would hie themselves to the woods, fields and roadsides to gather their Christmas greens, be reminded that there is a State law, enacted in 1918, which makes it a misdemeanor for any one to cut, or in any way injure any tree or shrubbery without the written consent or personal direction of the owner. A fine of from $5 to $25 or imprisonment of from 30 to 90 days is the penalty. This law was enacted to protect private property from depredation. The damage in past years has been enormous, especially in the vicinity of towns and villages.

A noted Russian singer says that the less woman wears the longer she will live. In that event it is only a question of time when half of the undertakers will go out of business.

The children of firm parents generally have better morals.

Colored Community Christmas Tree

The third annual community Christmas tree exercises will be held at Metropolitan M. E. Church, Princess Anne, December 26th, at 7.30 p. m. There are many nice gifts to be presented to the prize winners of the Fifth Colored Annual Agricultural Community Show, contributions by the merchants, banking institutions and friends of Princess Anne. Santa Claus is to be there again this year and every one wishing to remember any member of the family or friend has a splendid opportunity to send some gift to be presented from the Xmas tree. A committee is working up a joyful entertainment and the colored Sunday School children are to be remembered by Santa Claus.

"Work" rhymes with "shirk," but there is no other affinity.

TO UNVEIL MEMORIAL TABLETS

Impressive Ceremonies Will Be Held In Princess Anne December 27

The program is about complete for unveiling the tablets on Somerset county's Memorial Bridge to its soldiers in the World War, which will take place on Tuesday, December 27th. The tablets are being put up. They are of United States standard bronze and were made by The J. Arthur Limerick Co., of Baltimore. Mr. Limerick has come himself with his force of men to see that the work is well done. The tentative program follows:

Master of ceremonies, Hon. Joshua W. Miles; invocation by Rev. J. L. Johnson, of Crisfield; unveiling by Master Oliver T. Beauchamp, who is a nephew of First Lieutenant Oliver T. Beauchamp, the highest ranking officer from the county killed; music; five-minute addresses by Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Major R. R. Norris, surgeon, who is the commander of the American Legion of the county; Col. A. W. W. Woodcock, of Salisbury, under whom a number of volunteer soldiers from this county served in the war. He will be followed by Judge Robert F. Duer.

Immediately following the above ceremony the "Star Memorial Park" will be dedicated. Col. H. J. Waters will be master of ceremonies. The President of the Civic Club, on behalf of the women of the community, will present the deed for the lot to the President of the Commissioners of Princess Anne. The deed has this statement on it: "The lot described in this deed is presented to the town of Princess Anne by the women of the community, through the Civic Club, as a memorial park and the eleven trees planted on it are in remembrance of the eleven heroes from Somerset county who were killed in battle in the World War." Miss Mary Cochran, of Crisfield, a sister of Second Lieutenant Stanley Cochran, will plant a tree, while the audience joins in singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

The Maryland Agricultural Society

Programs have been completed for the annual meeting of the seven farm organizations of the State to be held in Baltimore January 10th, 11th and 12th, in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Maryland Agricultural Society, has been announced by Dr. Thomas B. Symons, secretary of the latter organization, with the exception of the Beekeepers' Association, which will hold its single session Tuesday evening, January 10th. All the affiliated organizations will meet during morning periods, beginning at 9.30 o'clock.

The Maryland State Horticultural Society is scheduled to meet on both Tuesday and Wednesday mornings and its program will include addresses by E. N. Cory, State Entomologist; Dr. J. W. Roberts, of the United States Department of Agriculture; J. C. Folger, of the International Apple Shippers Association, and C. E. Bassett, of the North American Fruit Exchange.

Sections of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association will be held Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, the latter meeting in conjunction with the Maryland Sheep Growers' Association. Speakers scheduled for these meetings will be J. W. Henderson, Germantown, Maryland; C. V. Piper, of the United States Department of Agriculture; D. A. Spencer, of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry; Dr. B. L. Hartwell, director of the Rhode Island Experiment Station; G. H. Bedell, eastern editor of the National Stockman and Farmer.

Dean R. L. Watts, of the Pennsylvania State College; Prof. William Stuart, of the United States Bureau of Plant Industry; Dr. Hartwell and A. D. Radebaugh, county agent of Cecil county, are the speakers who will address the Tuesday and Wednesday morning sessions of the Maryland Vegetable Growers' Association.

State Hogs On Increase

Home prepared sausage on Maryland farms appears to be just as popular as it ever was, as indicated by the census report last week on the number of farm-slaughtered hogs for the year 1919. The quantity of home-dressed beef and mutton used in the State, however, has decreased decidedly in 10 years.

In 1919 the number of hogs slaughtered on farms in Maryland was 189,893. Ten years before it had been 180,406. The number of beefs and calves slaughtered on farms was 5,948, as compared with 7,980 in 1909. Sheep slaughtered on farms decreased from 2,952 to 1,976.

The quantities of meat purchased in the State in 1919 were 1,110,489 pounds of beef and veal, 5,885,669 pounds of pork and 52,488 pounds of mutton.

Story of the Christmas Stocking

Y EARS and years ago stockings were not hung on Christmas eve as we hang them now. No one ever heard of such a thing as hanging up a stocking for Christmas gifts. And if children had thought of such a thing they would have said, "What a foolish idea! A stocking wouldn't hold half the things we want." So the children throughout the world placed crocks, big brass basins, and copper kettles on the hearth on Christmas eve and left notes in them telling Santa to fill them to the brim. Each year the children left larger vessels to be filled, children-left larger vessels to be filled.

Up in the great white north Santa's reindeer no longer pranced and pawed, impatient to be off on Christmas eve, as they once had done. They hung their heads and a tired look came into their big brown eyes, for they remembered how heavy the loads had grown and how many more trips they were forced to make year by year.

St. Nicholas no longer rested now through the summer months, as he once had done, but labored every day throughout the year, and often he built toys late into the night, for a great many gifts had to be made to fill the baskets that the greedy children left. The twinkling left his merry eyes, and he no longer sang about his work, for he was sad and thought of the time that would come when he could no longer build enough presents to go around.

Late one December day St. Nicholas stepped from his workshop into the deep snow. Facing the south, he stretched out his tired arms and called: "Hear, oh hear, children of the earth, my loved ones, can you not see you are becoming selfish and that your greedy demands are too great a task, even for St. Nicholas, king of the Christmas spirit? Can't you see, my children, that you are killing the spirit of Christmas?"

His chin sank upon his chest and tears glistened in his kindly eyes. A soft white snowflake fluttered down and nestled against his cheek, and a tiny voice whispered into his ear: "Santa, I will help you."

"Who are you?" asked St. Nicholas. "I am a snow fairy," answered the tiny voice. "As my sisters and I have danced about the air we have often swirled about your sleigh on Christmas eve, and have seen the great loads you have always carried and how tired you have looked."

"What, O what, shall I do?" asked Santa.

"Just go about your work as usual," answered the fairy. "I and all my sisters will help you."

"Oh, thank you—thank you," cried St. Nicholas. And the fairy floated out among the other snowflakes.

As the children went about the snowflakes whirled around them, and it seemed as if they heard the chanting of tiny voices, and as the snowflakes nestled against their ears they seemed to sing: "Just a stocking—hang a stocking up on Christmas eve." "Just a stocking—just a stocking," rang through the hearts of the children on Christmas eve. And in place of leaving the great vessels as they once had done they just hung up their stockings.

Some children were too selfish to hear the song of the snowflakes and left the great baskets as they always had done. But when they saw the great joy the unselfish children had in their gifts and how contented and happy they were these selfish ones were ashamed, and they, too, began to hang up only their stockings when Christmas eve came round.

When St. Nicholas found stockings in place of the great baskets and barrels the twinkling came again into his laughing eyes, his cheeks grew red, and he sang as he drove through the merry sea of snowflakes.

With just stockings to fill St. Nicholas had time to rest, and he grew strong and well, and the spirit of Christmas lived. So this is why, nowadays we hang up our stockings on Christmas eve. All this we are told by a writer, who learned it from a Christmas fairy.

The Old Ones Are The Best

The printer's devil was going through his first experience on "making up" forms. The paper was late and the boy got the galleys mixed. The first part of the obituary notice of a pecunious citizen had been dumped in the forms and the next handful of type came off of a galley describing a recent fire. It read like this: "The pall bearers lowered the body to the grave and as it was consigned to the flames there were few if any regrets for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for years. Of course there was individual loss but that was fully covered by insurance." The widow thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the lamented partner of her joys and sorrows owed him five years' subscription.

DISCUSSING NORA

By MOLLIE MATHERS.

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

They were in the sun room, while out where the scarlet sage made a glory around her, sat Nora.

"This," remarked a determined-looking woman, "is the most reckless thing that she has done. I must confess to having been more or less shocked all along at Nora's actions. She is what one might call independently reckless. Of course, I don't believe all that I hear about her throwing this one and that one over. It is more likely that the Wilkin's man, for instance, did not reach a state of proposal. Eligible young men are not so easily cast aside. But it is certain, that Nora went around with him here a lot."

A red haired, and very young girl spoke up from a corner.

"Ted Wilkins was crazy about Nora," she said defiantly, "anyone could see that. So are all her admirers—and every man who comes here is an admirer of her's, open or secret. But money doesn't move Nora. Honor, or charm, or anything. She's just friendly with them all, and a mighty good friend at that. I ought to know I've been with her enough."

Mrs. Gladden stared at the girl coldly.

"You are too young to judge, Helene," she reproved, "or to join in discussion."

The young girl bent to her knitting. "Some discussion," she remarked succinctly.

Mrs. Benton continued the topic. "Ever since I came to this hotel," she said, "it has been one man or another with that girl, driving or walking or singing in turn. And she is utterly indifferent to criticism. Strangers to her, these men are, yet dancing attendance after an evening's acquaintance. And Nora is old enough to know better. Much older, I really believe than most of us think. This latest episode of her's, however, is positively reckless. Going about day and night with a stable groom—a hotel stable groom."

Helene gazed meditatively out of the window.

"Gee!" she mused, "he's handsomer than any movie hero I know; tall, and dark and dandy."

"My dear," corrected Helene's mother, "you have caught Nora's foolish enthusiasm, and I am afraid some of her views. Keep them to yourself."

"The man has completely fascinated Nora," said Mrs. Gladden.

"Her aunt, Mrs. Barron insists that she will have not one penny of her money if she continues in her friendship with the interloper."

"I," said Mrs. Gladden virtuously, "have done all I could to influence the young man against it; assured him, when he was driving my car one day, and I entered casually but purposefully into conversation, that Nora acted in precisely this same manner to every new young man who came to the hotel, and that he, the Larry person, was not considered by her apart from his usefulness. The young man had the impudence to laugh in my face and tell me I was mistaken."

"Knows of course," sighed Mrs. Benton, "of Nora's complete infatuation. I, instead, endeavored to bring her to her senses. Showed her the impossibility of the situation. But it was of no use. Nora snubbed me directly; picked up her book and left the room."

"Someone else is going to leave the room right now," said Helene explosively, and she went out to the garden, crossing deliberately to Nora, among the scarlet blossoms. Helene dropped down on the grass at her friend's side.

"For the love of Mike, Nora," she exclaimed, "tell me whether you are in love with that handsome driver or not. And if you are, what you intend to do about it. Those cats," she shrugged back toward the hotel, "are having a great time speculating. Will you really lose every cent of your Aunt Barron's money if you insist on marrying?"

Nora smiled.

"I suppose so," she answered cheerfully, "but what matter?"

The very young girl stared wonderingly.

"So that's love," she remarked.

"You do love him, and so you don't care about anything else."

"He is worth loving," Nora said softly. Her brown eyes deepened in tenderness. "Larry has tried long and patiently to know me better, and to teach me to know him. But I missed a lot of my youth, Helene; it has only been on outings like this, that I came to know people at all. So, when Larry tried after our brief meeting in the hills where we were guests last summer, to call upon me later in the city, he was repeatedly refused and conceived therefore, this idea of playing groom at the Cliff hotel, where we are safe from aunt's surveillance and naturally, occasionally be thrown upon each other's companionship. He intended in this way to teach me to love him."

"And he has," cried Helene delightedly.

Nora's arm slipped round the girl's shoulders.

"We are going in to the city to be married tomorrow," she confided, "and when you hear, don't worry about my lost fortune. Lawrence Brevins is willing to take care of his wife, my dear; he is as successful at law, in the city, as he has been here—in

TAXPAYERS WILL NOT FEEL BURDEN

IF LEGISLATURE ADOPTS FITZ-HUGH'S PLAN OF FINANCING SCHOOLS

President State Board of Education Explains To Governor Ritchie.

DR. HENRY M. FITZHUGH

Westminster, Md., Nov. 28, 1921.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie, Annapolis, Maryland.

My dear Governor Ritchie:

At the time of discussion of the school budget in your office last Wednesday, you stated that the money raised by direct taxation is by law dedicated first, to the bonded debt requirements of the State, and secondly, to the schools. The conversation then developed the fact that public education is the only State activity that is supported principally out of the directly levied tax, and that the institutions caring for the sick, the indigent, the criminal, the insane, agriculture, higher education, etc., are supported by funds raised by indirect taxation.

Later you asked me if I thought that the public would stand for a ten-cent raise in the tax rate in order to carry out the proposed program of the State Board of Education. The implication carried by this question was, I take it, that the demands of other State-managed social activities would so reduce the general fund that the schools would be obliged to go directly to the people for additional money.

I have, since leaving your office, been considering the status of the school budget under the existing method of providing funds, and it seems that the situation, which possibly might embarrass the Executive, the Legislature, and the school system is substantially this:

Everything but bond and school requirements is provided out of the fund raised by indirect taxation. If, after everything else is provided for, any money remains in the general fund, that money goes to supplement an amount raised by direct taxation for the support of the schools. The schools then are sustained from two sources, both variable. The first source, namely, the general fund, contributes a small proportion; and the second source, namely, the direct tax, a large proportion. The first source is not under the close scrutiny of the taxpayers; the second, because it is on the tax bill, is at all times under the critical scrutiny not only of the taxpayers but of the politicians as well.

As both sources of income vary, and as the first is by custom and law the one that supplies the other social activities of the State, it naturally follows that the schools, by reason of being the residuary legatees, so to speak, are forced to levy taxes in direct proportion to the degree of expansion that the necessities of the other organizations demand. When the schools, in order to meet the demands of progress, are forced to fall back on funds derived from direct taxes they are in position to be attacked by the uninformed public as being extravagant and as the sole cause of the increased tax rate. The first source depends on and varies in proportion to the needs of other activities; the second depends on and varies with the experience, inclination, and sense of expediency of those who decide at any particular time what the rate is to be.

Now there are some features about the school system of the State that are, perhaps, occasionally lost sight of, but which by reason of their importance must be recognized:

First: It is in direct touch with a majority of the families of the State.

Second: It deals directly with about a quarter of a million children and is under the most critical scrutiny of their parents.

Third: It is a means provided by a democracy to produce and maintain such a constantly rising level of intelligence and information as will insure a progressive improvement in the general character of our national life.

Fourth: It employs seven thousand persons who to a very large extent influence the fundamental thoughts and characters of a quarter of a million children during the most impressionable period of their lives.

Fifth: It is the only institution charged by the State with a universal compulsory obligation, namely, that of compelling the attendance at school of the children between the ages of seven and seventeen years, regardless of the sect, color, social position or financial status of the parents; and most parents send their children to the public schools.

With the foregoing in mind, as a member of a Board the function of which it is to represent the people in the matter of public education, to see to it that the school facilities are adequate, and at the same time sensible, uniform and progressive, I wish to protest against the method by which the schools are financed because it seems to be poor state policy to permit so fundamental an obligation as the education of children to remain in a less secure position as regards its revenue than are such other activities as the care of the sick, indigent, the criminal, the insane, agriculture, higher education, etc. The present method in effect discriminates against the schools in favor of all other social activities that are assumed by the State and financed by the public purse. I protest then:

First: That it seems to be poor State policy to so arrange for the financing of one fundamental activity, i. e., the school system, as to make it appear to the taxpayers that its necessities are the principal cause of increased direct State taxation.

Second: That it seems to be poor State policy so to arrange for the financing of an institution.

1. Whose work is vitally fundamental.

2. Which is in direct contact with the majority of the people.

3. Which employs seven thousand professionally trained people of high grade.

4. Which is operated for the sole purpose of promoting the social efficiency of our people.

5. Which is now responsible for the instruction of a quarter of a million children.

6. Which is under the direct scrutiny of practically our whole population, and

7. Which provides a service the acceptance of which is compelled by law, as to require it to be the only contender for money raised by unpopular and generally opposed direct taxation, and the last to benefit by money raised by generally invisible, unfelt, and popular indirect taxation.

Third: That it seems to be poor State policy so to arrange for the financing of the State educational system as to have it depend on two variable sources of income, one of which diminishes in direct proportion as the demands of other activities increase, while the other depends directly on the experience, inclination and sense of expediency of those who have the power to decide what the direct tax rate shall be at any particular time.

Fourth: That it seems to be poor State policy so to arrange for the financing of one fundamental State aided social activity, i. e., the State educational system, as to cause it to constantly irritate the sore and sensitive pocket nerves of the taxpayers, while all the other State aided social activities subsist on proceeds derived from the taxpayers who are obtunded by the anesthesia of indirect taxation.

And I suggest:

1. That it might be better State policy so to arrange for the financing of the several social activities that each one, in the exact proportion that it shares in the total State income, be ratably represented in the direct tax levy.

2. That it might be better State policy to have the average taxpayer realize what proportion of the State income supports each State activity. (The average taxpayer has but little thought and knowledge of the fact that two-thirds of the State revenue is derived from indirect taxation, and is of the opinion that public operations are generally supported by the direct tax that he pays each year. This impression, while untrue, is the impression of the majority of our people, and it follows that the average taxpayers who now believe that the State income is synonymous with the proceeds of the direct levy, feel that the schools are absorbing over 40% of the State revenue, when, in reality, they absorb less than 20% of it. Therefore, the average uninformed voter feels that public education is an unduly expensive institution and until this misapprehension can be corrected, he will be unwilling to give the support that the schools require.)

The above is submitted with a full realization that this is one of your busy times; but I think you will, perhaps, agree that the importance of the matter of the relative costs and responsibilities of the State-aided social activities from the direct tax point of view, and the equitable and ratable distribution of the general fund, justify our intrusion.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) HENRY M. FITZHUGH, President, State Board of Education.

Difference in Minds.

To the living and affirmative mind difficulties and unintelligibilities are as dross, which successively rises to the surface, and dims the splendor of ascertained and perceived truth, but which is cast away, time after time, until the molten silver remains unclouded; but the negative mind is lead, and when all its formations of dross are skimmed away, nothing remains.—Coventry Patmore.

Beginning of Manual Training.

The earliest official recognition of manual training was given in Finland, where Uno Cygnaeus organized a plan for such work in primary schools in 1858, and where such instruction was made compulsory for certain pupils in 1868. Sweden soon after recognized the importance of such training and gave an impetus to the movement.

Get Moisture From Ice.

In the Tanana valley, Alaska, though the rainfall is very light, crops draw ample moisture from the melting of subterranean ice for the first few years after the land is first cultivated. Eventually the ice recedes to such a depth that it no longer supplies the plants with water.

Ha

ice, commandeering remarkable re- as a soldier, citizen and legionnaire.

When the American Legion came into being, Dr. VanDyke immediately became an active member. He was the first vice commander of St. Paul Post No. 8, which at the time was the largest post in the United States. He has served as chairman of the Ramsey county welfare committee and was a member of the legislative committee instrumental in getting the soldiers' bonus bill before the legislature.

Doctor VanDyke was born in Alexandria, Minn., and was graduated in 1905 from the University of Chicago School of Medicine. He later completed a course in dentistry at University of Minnesota. During the war he enlisted in the signal corps and because of previous training in artillery was sent to the M. O. R. camp in New Jersey as instructor.

THE DISABLED ARE FAVORED

Director of the Government Veterans' Bureau Aims to Give the Doubt to Claimants.

Gen. Red Tape, merciless foe of the disabled man, has been almost entirely eliminated through efforts of the American Legion, in its successful campaign for the passage of the Sweet bill—and the efforts of Charles R. Forbes, director of the government veterans' bureau.

Himself a veteran and a Legionnaire, Mr. Forbes has adopted a policy of seeking out the disabled man, instead of letting the disabled man's claim find its way into a pigeon hole via the route of red tape.

The government put an end to divided authority in its dealing with ex-service men with the appointment of Mr. Forbes as head of the veterans' bureau. This bureau dispenses the insurance, looks after hospital care and the difficult task of restoring disabled men to their former earning capacity, or creating them anew through vocational training.

Mr. Forbes' policy in dealing with compensation claims of disabled men and women gives the doubt to the claimant. "No claim," says Mr. Forbes, "shall be disallowed unless the disallowance is imperative, and doubts are to be decided in favor of the disabled man or woman."

HOW TO CURE UNEMPLOYMENT

Secretary of Labor, Writing in Legion Weekly, Tells How Situation May Be Relieved.

Writing in the American Legion Weekly on "Seeking the Cure for Unemployment," James J. Davis, secretary of labor, sums up the cure in single paragraph as follows:

"Wage earners can help by giving up unreasonable demands, so that employers can afford to start their mills again, or so that buildings can be built—houses, schools, factories, stores. Merchants can help by giving up unreasonable profits, so that more people can afford to buy clothing, furniture, food and general supplies. The landlord can help by lowering unreasonable rents, so that workmen can afford to accept a wage that shall become a living wage as rents are lowered."

Warm Welcome for "Legion" Steamer.

After having clipped ten hours off the record run between New York and Rio de Janeiro, the all-American-manned steamer American Legion, has returned to New York, following her maiden voyage. The vessel, with the majority of its crew members of the Legion, was greeted in every South American port it touched by Legion posts.

Along the Platte river from Montevideo to Buenos Ayres, the captain reported, launches put out from shore and their owners cracked bottles of wine and champagne over the bow plates of the ship as she slowly made her way up the river. This, he said, was the "South American Legionnaire" way of expressing their welcome.

How Maryland's Growth Affects Us

MARYLAND'S telephone system is now growing at the rate of some 9,000 telephones a year. That means that each year additional telephone plant and equipment must be added to provide this extension of service.

During the war, telephone equipment for usual purposes was practically unobtainable; in the reconstruction period the demand for it from all parts of the country has been greater than the capacity of the manufacturing plants.

Notwithstanding these conditions, Maryland's telephone system is being constantly extended to keep pace with the development of the State.

In 1919 our expenditures for extensions in Maryland were $1,433,000, in 1920 more than $1,800,000, and for the first nine months of this year nearly $1,300,000. Our plans call for further large expenditures.

Our investment in the State is now nearly $21,300,000.

Superstition Protects Spider.
There are traditions that hold the spider sacred. The French have a motto pressing bad luck for him who kills a spider in the morning; and there are old rhymes and warnings that those who wish to live and prosper will spare the life of this animal—it is not an insect, as most of us used to believe until entomologists informed us to the contrary.

IS LAND OF SUPERSTITION

Almost Any Belief Which One May Fancy Can Be Found in Journey Through Italy.

If you ask an Italian about the superstitions of Italy he will say—if he is well traveled—that Italy is rife with superstition, and that one has but to journey 15 miles in any direction to find an entirely new superstition, writes Temple Manning in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A village at the foot of a mountain may vary in its belief in certain superstitions from a town in the plains or a village halfway up the mountain-side. Indeed, there is a tendency in old countries for one little community to vie with another community in its belief in or scorn of signs, portents, omens and charms. It is a sort of competition in superstition.

In the matter of days of the week, the average Italian girl and her fiancé have strict preferences. Many believe that to marry on a Monday is sure to bring bad luck to future generations.

Tuesday is frowned on because it is supposed to be devoted to witches, evil spells and all their attendant sorrows.

Wednesday is a fast day, and, therefore, out of the question, as is Friday. In addition, Friday is considered unlucky. If it happens to be Friday the thirteenth, woe betide the Neapolitan youth who ever breathes the name and date of this day to the woman he loves.

Saturday is the day reserved for widows, and so is out of the question from a maiden.

Thursday might do, but Sunday—the day of rest and of sacred offices—usually is the day of the week chosen to celebrate weddings in Italy.

MADE IT PLAIN TO JUROR

Clever Lawyer Hit on Effective Method of Getting Facts into Old Seaman's Head.

A Boston lawyer tells of a clever colleague who, in court there, once took advantage of the nautical knowledge he possessed to work upon the feelings of a juror who did not seem to show any great degree of comprehension of the case being tried, namely, a suit against a street railway for damages.

Now, the dull juror was an old sailor, who, though doubtless very keen of perception along some lines, was nevertheless rather slow in his understanding of the points involved in this case. The lawyer noticed this and made his strike with this particular man. Approaching the jury box he addressed himself to this one juror and said:

"Mr. Jurymen, I will tell you how it happened. The plaintiff was in command of the outward-bound open car and stood in her starboard channels. Along came the inward-bound closed car and just as their bows met she jumped the track, sheered to port and knocked the plaintiff off and ran over him."

The old sailor was all attention after this version of the affair and joined in a $10,000 verdict for the injured man.

Wild Animals Loose on Ship.

Wild animals across the sea sometimes get loose on the voyage. An English dealer who came over from India to England with $10,000 worth of animals aboard a sailing ship had such an experience.

An Indian badger was loose for two weeks and a specimen of the sacred monkey of northern India was out of its cage for nearly the whole voyage. Where the badger concealed itself during the day nobody knew, but the meat and boiled rice that were put out for it at night always disappeared before morning.

The monkey lived up in the rigging comfortably enough, notwithstanding five feet of chain hanging to its neck. Food was put out for it every night, and by day it satisfied its hunger by catching and eating the potatoes that the sailors amused themselves by throwing up to it.

Egyptian Dwellings Lasting.

The climate of Egypt, with its blinding sand storms and rising waters of the Nile, demanded dwellings of great stability.

Archeologists report that oftentimes houses are found so deeply imbedded in solid rock that even huge iron derricks remove them with difficulty. Egypt's whole private and public history seems woven about this innate sense of strength. She seemed to glory in the might of wise building of homes and fortresses.

The furnishings of the homes, on the other hand, exhibit a crude but true sense of beauty and harmony. Homes of rough, bare stones were found to be as full of delicate color and rich adornments as those of any other ancient people.

Prehistoric Tin Trade.

Recent investigation of the old problem of the diffusion of tin over eastern Europe and Asia Minor in prehistoric times, leads to the conclusion that about a thousand years before Christ the tin of the British Isles was carried overland to the Aegean sea. The invention of the anchor led, about 2,700 years ago, to the opening of a marine route between England and the eastern end of the Mediterranean, and then the Phrygians controlled the tin trade with their ships. The short summer nights of north Britain were among the wonders that Greeks talked of in the days of Homer.

There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 20, 1921

From the pictures of the bouffant skirt it seems likely to get booted out.

These women that pay $500 a year to have their faces massaged must be awful plain looking to start with.

When the poultry shows start in the sound of the cackling is about as noisy as the social hour at the literary society.

The dress reformers merely tried to get the women to wear bloomers, but now the men are putting them on too.

Much is said about neglected children and in these days of society life for the kids there is such a thing as neglected parents.

The feeling exists among the aunts and grandmothers that presents of Christmas drums do not promote peace on earth.

Congress always has a deficiency appropriation bill, but what the country wants is a Congress that will have a surplus bill.

Railroad trains keep trying to pass each other on the same track, but up to date no successful experiments of that kind have been reported.

The shipyard employees who are thrown out of work by stopping warship construction can go into the junk business and work up the scrapped vessels.

The girls of this town all understand that making good fudge helps catch a husband, but some have not learned that making good bread helps keep one.

Education for domestic service may be all right, but when the hired girl becomes a "household assistant" she usually expects a large increase in pay.

Although the American people are warned to take note of the handwriting on the wall many motorists refuse to read the danger signs along the road.

The kids of this town would view Santa Claus with more respect if he would travel in a six cylinder car instead of behind his old woolly reindeers.

These Japs who do not want to accept a 60 per cent. naval ratio should reflect that if Uncle Sam gets his dander up they will have to scratch to maintain 40 per cent.

Out in the country they are killing 500 pound hogs and having fresh pork dinners, while in the cities they are consuming lemon tea and cracker wafers and claiming they are not hungry.

THE CHRISTMAS THOUGHT

It is interesting to go back to the original Christmas story and see what idea most impressed itself on those who first received the message of Jesus.

According to the original account, there appeared to men a multitude of the heavenly host, saying "peace on earth, good will to men." However one may interpret this record of strange occurrences, the fact remains that the people who remembered and chronicled these events were impressed with the idea that the fundamental message of Jesus was peace and good will.

This message is of equal importance to man with the idea of giving which we associate chiefly with Christmas. Humanity has made slow progress all these 1900 years, chiefly because of the spirit of ill will, hostility and warfare that has filled the world.

Men have preyed on each other much as wild beasts prey on lesser orders of creation. Man with his remnant of bestial nature has roamed about the earth seeking for weaker nations or persons whom he could crush down, making war on his fellow creatures, robbing them by murder or violence or depriving them of their rights through chicanery.

So as the world hears the Christmas bells this year it should do something other than engage in the game of exchanging gifts, beautiful as the custom may be in many respects. Every individual and every nation should do all that it can to live at peace with all men. A country may at some time have to rise to defend all that is righteous and holy. But the message of Christmas commands us to live at peace with all men so far as we may, having regard to other people's rights quite as much as our own.

If Christmas day brings a settlement of such disputes as the Irish question and the Pacific ocean controversies, the world will have received the best Christmas present offered since that far-away day back 1921 years ago.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy The Mother's Favorite

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and effective cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of young children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief and is free from opium and other harmful drugs.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE

Some economists worry about the waste of money involved in cutting off evergreen trees and using them for hanging presents on. If saved, these trees might of course some time grow to monster size and make lumber out of which you could build houses.

Yet the material uses for things are not the only ones that count. Christmas trees give an air of beauty to a holiday festival that no substitute or artificial creation can ever imitate. They help to make this holiday one of supreme joy for the youngsters. The Christmas romp without a tree seems like a kind of fake.

You can grow evergreen trees to take the place of the little one that is nipped off to carry away to some city home. But it is not so easy always to grow the sentiments of love, faith and joy in the child heart. A happy Christmas with the suggestion of beauty and growing life that the little green tree brings helps a child to love his home, his parents, and it assists him in developing the giving spirit. These sentiments, implanted in his heart, are worth more than the material value of the little tree.

Order of Publication

William C. Mudre vs. Florence Pearl Mudge.

No. 3512 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married on the tenth day of December, nineteen hundred and ten, in the city of Hoboken, State of New Jersey, and resided together in the city of New York, State of New York, until the twenty-third day of July, nineteen hundred and eleven; that although the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has always been kind, affectionate and above reproach, the said defendant, without any just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and has declared her intention to live with him no longer, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years; and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the plaintiff and defendant have no children born to them from said marriage; and that the defendant, Florence P. Mudge, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, when last heard from residing in the city of New York, State of New York.

It is therefore, this 15th day of November, nineteen hundred and twenty-one, ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Somerset County once in each of four successive weeks before the twentieth day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-one, give notice to the said non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning her to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, to show cause, if any she has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

The debate was postponed. A committee was appointed to report on the needs of the Domestic Science Department of the Washington High School.

Last Tuesday Mr. H. Fillmore Lankford appeared before the county commissioners and stating that he was acting for a large number of taxpayers, demanded a statement of the balance in the Somerset county road fund, together with a statement of the amount owed by Somerset county for road work. He said that he would give the county authorities a week in which to compile the statement.

A REQUEST
 As next Sunday will be Christmas and Monday, December 26th—our publication day—a legal holiday, the Marylander and Herald will be printed on Saturday morning. We request that correspondents and advertisers send in their copy not later than Friday morning, December 23rd. The Marylander and Herald never misses an issue and it is due to the employees to have a respite from their work.

We extend to our readers, patrons and friends and the people of Somerset county a very best wishes for a very Merry Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle B. Polk, Miss Nannie C. Fontaine and Mrs. Laura P. Fitzgerald, of Princess Anne, attended the funeral of Mrs. Albert E. Goodrich at Easton last Saturday.

Come and bring your friends to the "homely little church around the corner" and enjoy these exercises. You will go away with more of the Christ spirit. The series of sermons on the Gospel of John will be resumed the first Sunday in January, J. A. Tumbler, pastor.

MEETING OF M. E. CONFERENCE

Fifty-fourth Annual Session Will Convene in Cambridge March 29

The Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the recent semi-annual meeting in Syracuse, N. Y., set March 29, 1922, as the date for the next assembling of the Wilmington Annual Conference and assigned Bishop William F. McDowell residential bishop of the Washington area, as the presiding officer. This will be Bishop McDowell's fifth presidency of the conference. He is a master of assemblies and is exceedingly popular with the members of the conference and with its entire constituency.

The conference of the 1921 session in Crisfield, Md., enthusiastically accepted the invitation to be the guest of Zion Church, Cambridge, Md., Rev. Walter Edwin Gumbly, pastor.

This will be the fifty-fourth session of this conference, the first having been held in Asbury Church, Wilmington, Del., in March, 1869. Bishop Matthew Simpson, presiding. It was formerly a part of the Old Philadelphia Conference which was one of the first formed following the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore, during the Christmas season of 1784. Its territory takes in the whole of the Delmarva peninsula. The conference has met in Cambridge on two former occasions, the first on March 7th, 1893, Bishop Matthew Simpson in the chair, and the second on March 22nd, 1899, Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, presiding.

This session of the conference promises to excite more than ordinary interest. Three of the four district superintendents will have served six years as such, and while the time limit has been removed from the district superintendency, placing it upon the same plane as the pastorate, yet speculation is rife as to whether they will be re-appointed. The names of several prominent pastors have been mentioned in connection with these appointments, but this is only a part of the usual pre-conference talk and does not preclude that any of them spoken of will be named for either of these much coveted offices.

AN ORDINANCE

To License Hawkers, Peddlers, and other persons engaged in selling from Automobiles, Wagons, Etc., on the streets of Princess Anne.

Section 1.—Be it ordained and enacted, by the President and Commissioners of Princess Anne, that any hawker, peddler, person, firm or corporation, who shall at any time desire to sell any goods, merchandise, fruits, vegetables, fish, meat or other products from a wagon, truck, automobile, vehicle or temporary stand of any kind, on any of the public streets of the town of Princess Anne, for profit or gain, shall first make application to the President and Commissioners of Princess Anne for a license therefor for such period not exceeding one year as the said applicant may desire, and shall pay therefor at the rate of Two Dollars per month, or fraction thereof, for the term of said license as aforesaid, and upon such application being made the said President and Commissioners of Princess Anne shall issue such license therefor from the said applicant the said sum of Two Dollars per month, or fraction thereof, for the term of said license.

Section 2.—And be it ordained and enacted, by the President and Commissioners of Princess Anne that any hawker, peddler, person, firm or corporation who shall at any time sell or offer for sale from any wagon, truck, automobile, vehicle or temporary stand on any of the public streets of the town of Princess Anne any goods, merchandise, fruits, vegetables, fish, meat, or other products, for gain or profit, without first having obtained a license therefor from the said President and Commissioners of Princess Anne, as provided in Section 1 of this Ordinance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof be fined not more than Twenty-five Dollars for each such offense; provided that nothing in this section or the preceding section shall apply to the sale of fresh fruits, vegetables, fish, or other produce by the bona fide grower or producer thereof.

Section 3.—And be it ordained and enacted, That this Ordinance shall take effect from the date of its passage, December 14th, 1921.

To Our Patrons

We have for free distribution to our many customers and prospective customers a supply of 1922 calendars, suitable for the office and home. We will ask our friends to call or send to the bank at any time within the next thirty days and we will take pleasure in supplying your needs. Respectfully, The Bank of Somerset, Wm. B. Spive, cashier.

When You Are Constipated

To insure a healthy action of the bowels and correct disorders of the liver, take two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They will not only cause a gentle movement of the bowels, without unpleasant effects, but banish that dull, stupid feeling that often accompanies constipation.

FATIMA WAS PERFECT WOMAN

But, According to This, She Should Have Lived to See Her Name on the Billboards.

Fatima lived in the Seventh century, but by all rhyme and reason should have lived in the present day, when she could see her name on the billboards and all the cigar store windows, remarks a writer in the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune. Fatima was the perfect woman of her time. Married to a nobleman, one of the great rones of Egypt, she bore three sons whose first names all started with All. Fatima was beautiful to look upon and tried during her time to grab all the best looking hoofters in and about Mecca—which, like Fatima, is celebrated in cigarette lore.

Fatima was a daughter of Mohammed, who wrote a number of oriental spectacles and staged several others at the Arabian Hippodrome, but who was shocked to death after seeing an American version.

Fatima shook her first husband and started in to win Bluebeard, not that the noted butcher appealed to her, but she was curious to know what happened to so many women in Blue's halliwick.

Fatima was the symbol of feminine curiosity—in that, every time she heard of any local scandal, she said: "I'll look into that."

Fatima lived for 26 years, which was a long, long time when one considers the period in which she thrived—if she did thrive—and the very fact that she lasted over the honeymoon period with Bluebeard is greatly in her favor.

She was one of the first electricians of her day, being associated intimately with "Aladdin's lamp"—and lived to see her husband "lit up" several times during the darkest spells.

FIRST TO ILLUSTRATE BOOK

Roman Writer Is Credited With Innovation, Many Years Before the Coming of Christ.

Book illustrations are so common nowadays, and the various processes of reproducing pictures in print so slightly developed, that it seems almost strange to contemplate the fact that there was a time when the first illustrated book created a veritable sensation.

The event occurred in the year 70 A. C. Varro, a rather mediocre writer of ancient Rome, had been struggling for recognition for a good many years when he suddenly conceived the idea of preparing a volume containing biographies of 700 of his most famous fellow-citizens.

Varro is silent on the rather interesting question whether Varro used them for his services or not, but it is loud in his praise as the first writer who conceived the idea of illustrating his work with portraits.

They were crudely drawn, and as to whether they were good likenesses or not, will always remain an open question. But they were illustrations all the same, and after that the custom of embellishing historical works with drawings became a fad among the writers of those days.

Jenny Lind in 1851.

Anne Hollingsworth Wharton writes in her book, "In Old Pennsylvania Towns," that while visiting in Hollidaysburg friends told her of other and more romantic associations, still recalled by old inhabitants who remembered Jenny Lind's visit to Blair county in 1851. Mr. Snyder related an incident connected with the Swedish singer's stay at the Mountain house, which was situated at a railroad junction near Hollidaysburg.

While at this hotel the singer engaged a carriage to take her up the mountain side and on reaching a place from which there was an extended view of the distant mountains, the valley and the Juniata flowing through it, she was so impressed by beauty of the scene that she greeted it with an outburst of song so exquisite, said the narrator, that the birds, her only hearers except the coachman, must have felt that a rival of their own kind had joined them. The view of the hill and valley may have reminded the Swedish nightingale of some scene in her own land, as the song with which she broke in on the stillness of the mountain side was "Home, Sweet Home."

Erie Canal Souvenir.

Nearly 100 years ago, when the Erie canal was opened, De Witt Clinton poured a bucket of water from Lake Erie into New York bay as part of the opening exercises. The keg which was made use of on this occasion was preserved and now reposes in the museum of the New York Historical society. Clinton was really the father of the Erie canal and worked up a sentiment in its favor in the face of the greatest opposition. After he had served without any compensation for 15 years on the canal commission he was summarily removed by his political enemies and this act resulted in a boomerang, for a great sympathy was expressed for Clinton, which ultimately resulted in his election as governor. It was then that he brought about the completion of the canal.

IS ISLAND OF FEUDAL POMP

Rulers and People of Bali, Near Sumatra, Extremely Fond of Gorgeous Display.

If you search on a map of Malaysia long enough you will find the Sunda Islands. They are located to the south and west of Sumatra, and, like Sumatra and Java, and other isles near by, are under the rule of Holland. Perhaps if you have a large map you may be able to discover a tiny speck, attached to which will be the name "Bali."

The island of Bali is about 2,800 square miles in area, and is a most picturesque isle. Long ago it was conquered by hosts from India.

Although the Dutch rule Bali, and a Hollander sits at the table about which a Balinese raja gathers his chiefs to make laws, the iron hand is light in Bali. Indeed, a Bali overlord is permitted many wives, many dancing girls, many houses and as much pomp and gorgeous display of his high estate as his most regal ancestor ever contrived to show. Feudal rule in all its magnificence—but minus much of its impressiveness—is to be seen at its best or worst in Bali today.

Some of the Balinese, particularly the farmers, are virtually serfs. But they manage to live better, perhaps, than their brothers on the mainland of India. One reason, may be, is that the caste system is not so oppressive in Bali as it is in India.

The ears of the Balinese maiden are pierced when she is a baby. When she grows up, into the lobe of her ear is thrust a cylinder of bone. When a Balinese girl becomes a wife the bone cylinders give place to cylinders of silver or gold. But when a Balinese wife achieves the proud position of a mother then the earrings vanish entirely.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BEFORE THE DAY OF GLASS

Leather Bottles Were Once in Common Use, and Served Their Purpose Admirably.

In past days England had many bottles and other receptacles made from leather. This was largely owing to the scarcity of native pottery and glass and the costliness of such things when they were imported.

Among these leather vessels were the water bouget, the leather bottle, and the blackjack, the last-named including all pots made in leather. The water bouget was a pair of watertight leather bags joined together by their necks like a pair of glass oil and vinegar bottles. The leather bottle was used until the end of the Eighteenth century, its later use being in the harvest fields.

English leather drinking vessels and bottles had the characteristics of strength and solidity and were made of tanned oxhide, which was thick and rigid; while foreign-made bottles generally seem to have been—and still are, where they exist—composed of a lighter and thinner leather obtained from the goat, pig or sheep, which was cured in such a manner as to remain flexible.

There is great variety among these leather vessels, which were made of plain and stamped leather, and about which many particular uses and associations sprang up.

Parrot Fish Chews Cud.

Native to the Eastern Mediterranean is the parrot fish that chews its cud like a cow. In other words, it cuts off its food in relatively large bits, stores it away until it has time for the business of thoroughly chewing, and then reduces it to a fine pulp. Curiously enough, the ancients called this fish a ruminant, but their tales of it had been taken with many grains of salt, until recently, by modern naturalists. A writer in the Scientific American Monthly notes that as far back as the Fourth century B. C., Aristotle asserted that the parrot fish is to be classed among ruminant animals. This story was repeated by the Roman writer on natural history, Pliny. It passed as a fable, like so many other ancient statements of fact since verified.

Torn Bill Tip Brought Results. "Walter, I'm going to be here for five or six days," said the keen business man from Chicago, as he sat down in a New York restaurant, according to the Sun.

Whereupon he removed from his wallet a crisp $5 bill and carefully tore it in half. "This half you are to keep, and if you give me good service during my visit here I will deliver the other half of the bill to you just before I go away."

"Yassir," beamed the waiter. And the keen business man from Chicago had no complaint to make about the excellent service he received at this restaurant during his stay. The promise was fulfilled.

Ancient Form of Adornment.

Tattooing, that very apparent means of proclaiming one's love for the briny deep, is an ancient form of adornment, and in ancient times most honorable. The Polynesians are known to have been adepts in the art, and from that time to this there have always been people who have been attracted to this form of beauty. These decorations have taken all sorts of forms, from the plain black and white work to that in the most variegated colorings, to say nothing of the method of "gash" tattooing, which consists of cutting deep gashes in the desired design, filling them with clay and then letting them remain as a sort of cameo on the flesh.—Detroit News.

Fun With Christmas Parcels

LAST year we had much more fun over the Christmas tree than ever before because each parcel was wrapped in such a way that it was impossible to guess what it contained.

To stimulate the children's ingenuity, a prize of a box of candy was offered to the member of the family who displayed the greatest cleverness in wrapping gifts. This was won by eight-year-old Jack. He hung a string of remarkably lifelike sausages upon the tree, as an offering to his mother. When the strings were untied half-a-dozen hemstitched handkerchiefs tumbled out. Each handkerchief had first been rolled in a small cardboard and then wrapped in mottled paper.

A close second to Jack's was a fountain pen concealed in a candle made of thin pasteboard wrapped in white tissue paper twisted to a point at the top to represent the wick and blackened with a drop of ink to show that the wick had been lighted. This was stuck into the kitchen candlestick before placing it under the tree where it presented a very realistic appearance.

A wrist watch was hidden in a bouquet of paper flowers. The tiny watch hid itself in the heart of a huge American Beauty that formed the center blossom of this masterpiece. A bracelet was concealed among the stems and the wide ribbon which tied them together.

This year, a silk umbrella is to be disguised as a dachshund by first wrapping it in strong paper and then twisting a wire around each end and bending the ends up to form the short legs of "long bowwow." Another bit of paper twisted on the ferrule forms the tail. The crook handle of the umbrella is padded with cotton batting for the head and the whole thing covered with brown crepe paper. Two big pins are used for eyes.

Small gifts are the easiest of all to make mysterious. They can be hidden in imitation apples, bananas, oranges or other kinds of fruit or paper cornucopias or drums. A set of dollies has been made into Old Glory by using crepe paper covered with American flags. Two of these were cut out, pasted on cardboard and fastened together on each side of the flat package of dollies and a small stick attached to one end. This will "wave" most effectively from the Christmas tree.

A bottle of cologne is made into a doll. A round cake of soap forms the head which is swathed in a frilly cap, of white crepe paper. Eyes, nose and mouth are lightly traced upon its vacant countenance in water colors. The head is tied to the top of the bottle, the long dress of white crepe paper put on, and another twist of paper runs crosswise for arms.—Paula Nicholson in Farmer's Wife.

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Faint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried everything I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. I am sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too. At all druggists. E 35

"MOVING DAY" NO PROBLEM

Nomads of New Chile Simply Gather Up Their Houses and Utensils and Strike Trail.

There is not an encampment more picturesque than one of the nomads of New Chile, as the Chileans call their southern territory. Notwithstanding the Patagonian winter is rough and cold, with heavy rains, the Tehuelches prefer to remain in their toldos or skin tents that are like a half-hoop in shape. They group their toldos around that of the head tribesman, together with their innumerable dogs and fowls, and horses; and quickly strike camp as pitch it.

At a word from the chief there is bustle everywhere. The young men and boys lasso and bring up the horses, and the women, who are well treated, place on their backs the bolsters of reeds, tied with hides and the skin pouches and blankets, forming the saddles.

Others strap their belts on, get pots and pans, etc., together, or put their babies into wicker-work cradles; some of them rolling up the skins forming the covering of the toldos, and tying them and the tent poles on the baggage horses.

Meantime the men collect their flocks of horses and fill the water skins, which are carried on the march. The women mount astride of their bolster saddles, their babies and pet dogs are hoisted up behind; then they take their baggage horses in tow and set off in single file, the men driving the spare horses.

CLEVER SCHEME DIDN'T WORK

Most Wives Will Be of Opinion That Old Meane Well Deserved to Get "Stung."

Old Meane felt very annoyed because his wife wanted him to take her to the theater. She was always wanting to go to the theater. Why couldn't she be contented with the pictures?

For 40 cents at the picture show you could get just as good a show and a better seat than you paid $2 or $3 for at the theater.

Thus he mused as he wended his way along to get the tickets for his wife. But on his road he passed a picture theater and then stopped for a moment to look at the bill.

Then an idea struck him. He would tell his wife all the theater tickets had been sold and bring her to the pictures.

Mrs. Meane swallowed the yarn, and later that evening they could both have been found in the 40-cent seats of the movie. They watched the big picture through, and Meane was just about to rise to go out when the fashion pictures were thrown on the screen.

The first picture was a positive dream of a hat.

"How perfectly lovely!" sighed Mrs. Meane. "That reminds me, Henry dear, I need a new hat." And she rose to go out, adding: "Hurry up, I'll just be in time before the stores close!"

The hat cost—but Henry wished he had taken her to ten theater shows.

Real Household Economy.

Speaking of household economies, it is always a question of just what an economy is. Some people save one way and some another. What to one family seems an extravagance to another appears as a necessity. One person's way of saving strikes the next as foolish. So it goes.

There is one woman in this city who saves by lighting used matches from the gas stove flame, and using them to light additional burners, instead of using a new match for every burner.

One would imagine that a person might save as much as $1 a year by this procedure. Perhaps in a lifetime the saving might amount to $10. And yet, if some noted financiers are to be believed, this is the very way to save money and arrive at affluence.

Success by such methods, however, would seem to depend largely upon the thoroughness with which the idea is applied to many matters.—Exchange.

Thought Gas Was Spirit.

Although discovered early in the Seventeenth century, gas was never put into practical use to any large extent until a little more than a century ago. In fact, its very name indicated the superstition which surrounded it in the early days.

It was Van Helmont, a Belgian chemist, who in the course of some experiments discovered that coal yielded up "a wild spirit" for a form so phantom-like and elusive that he named it "geist" (the German for spirit).

Thus at its very christening gas was enshrined in a veil of mystery that for nearly two centuries obscured it because it carried the suggestion of intangibility to the superficial mind.

Gladstone Annoyed.

The prolonged debates on the address in answer to the king's speech were a matter of annoyance to Mr. Gladstone, says the Manchester Guardian. If the royal message, he once declared, instead of being "a dignified, decorous and convenient" method of meeting between sovereign and people and of initiating the business of the session, was to be made the subject of all manner of amendment, it would become "no better than a public nuisance."

He even went so far as to hint that it might be "wholly discontinued," but neither he nor any prime minister since has had the courage to put an end to the old custom.

EASY ENOUGH

Alice turned to her friend a tear-stained face. "I don't know what I am going to do," she bemoaned. "It is dreadful to be born with a bashful disposition. And having to be tied constantly to Aunt's old-fashioned apron keeps me growing more painfully bashful all the time; or maybe embarrassment, over my own lack of grace. Anyway I never can get out time wherever I am, while Aunt is so hard to hear before me. When Mr. Prescott arrived on the scene, he is bashfully silent and has my present anxiety."

"What I am trying to find out," she remarked "is why anyone should care to."

The wide eyes of Alice were tenderly reminiscent. "Mr. Prescott is so wonderfully good looking," she mused, "his eyes look as if they were trying to say many wonderful things that his lips cannot. While his ways—"

"Mercy," interrupted Cissy, "I do believe you are in love. That would be a serious state of affairs, especially your George William—oh! let's tell him Bill, to take the stiffness out of your Bill were also speaking in love with you. Fancy two glaciers, shining upon each other. Cissy dear," begged Alice, "such drawing power, couldn't you draw George William—Bill, I mean, out of his shell, and make him love you?"

"I think it would be easy if you must promise to take hands afterward. I am being entertained myself by the drawing."

George William Prescott, standing aloof against the supper room curtain, looked as lonely and as uncomfortable as he felt. His stilted replies to several maidens who had ventured inviting remarks regarding the evening, or the success of Mrs. Seymour's party, were not encouraged to further sociability. Alice, breathless, and startled-eyed, had suggested that supper would soon be served, and was allowed to drift on, to the escort of a braver and newly arrived man. George William, mentally reproached himself for leaving the assured entertainment of books for an uncertainty of enjoyment, when a laughing voice accosted him.

"I am your fate as supper companion," Cecelia informed him. "Being guest of honor, Mrs. Seymour gave me the privilege of choice, and I," Cissy Rose smiled, "I chose you." Mr. Prescott started to bow perfunctorily, then bending, drew her hand instead through his arm. Alice, at an opposite side of the flower decked table, gazed wonderingly at her admired one's evident enjoyment of the occasion. Once she heard in accompaniment to Cissy's merry glance at him, her daring use of the name, "Bill."

An eager light showed for a moment in the young man's eyes, his work was also his hobby, then from the doorway Cecelia looked back on the two, and George William turned, dazedly, to the shrinking figure at his side. But it was not of his beloved art that he spoke. "Cissy Rose," he repeated softly, "Why, you'd think the name was made for her, wouldn't you? With the rose color in her cheeks, and that sort of saucy way, she has—"

It was a long speech for William, which may have been accountable for the long silence that followed. From this silence Alice was only rescued by her former supper escort. "Hello," cried that young man breezily, "been looking for you everywhere. I want you to play a certain song for us, Oh! yes you will," he waved her shy objections aside. "I will sit on the bench beside you and give my moral support."

Cissy was in despair. Also, she began to realize certain alarming symptoms of timidity upon her own part at the approach of Bill Prescott.

"I love you!" declared the man whose timidity Alice had deplored.

"You love me, Cissy Rose, and we are going to be married." "Mercy!" gasped Cissy, her trembling fingers were promptly imprisoned in a masterful grasp.

"I have been trying to draw you out of Alice's sake." She confusedly explained. "Oh! that's all right," George William happily replied. "Alice does not need your help, that admirable acquaintance of hers has been doing some drawing himself—he tells me that they are engaged."

HEALTHFUL VIGOR IN STRONG BLOOD

Rich, Red Blood Built Up by Pepto-Mangan—Liquid or Tablet

Blood is strong and full of life-giving vigor when there are plenty of red cells in it. Anemic people have little strength because there are not enough red cells in the blood. It is thin and watery. Weak blood makes faces pale, pulls down the strength and leaves the body tired, weak and sickly. A course in Gude's Pepto-Mangan restores weak blood to its normal strength. Taken regularly for a while it adds red cells to the blood. Then with good blood, the strength and vigor of health return. There is pleasure in living, with good blood running through the veins. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is put up in liquid and in tablet form. They are the same medicinally. Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for years. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Advertisement.

Deal's Island
Dec. 17—Mrs. John H. Deal, Jr., who has been visiting relatives in Baltimore, has returned to the island for the winter.

The island has been visited by several hunting parties this week. Wild ducks are plentiful and luck has been with the hunters this year.

Mrs. E. J. Duffy arrived here this week from New York City and intends to spend the winter months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. White.

Dickens' Christmas carol will be presented on December 23rd at 7:30 p. m., by the members of the Deal's Island High School. Reading and music will be an additional attraction.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Brown last Wednesday evening. The meeting proved satisfactory and plans for a Christmas entertainment were decided upon. Refreshments were served before the members departed.

Quite a number of our home talent are rehearsing a drama which is to be given during the Christmas holidays at the Knights of Pythias Hall. The drama is a delightful comedy and the characters are well chosen. If it comes up to expectation of the manager it will be a great success.

Property Sized Up.

"Yes," remarked a conceited young bachelor, "I have the greatest admiration for the fair sex, but I never expect to marry—oh, dear, no!" "Indeed," a lady remarked, "Then I am to understand that you not only admire women, but you have a sincere regard for them as well."

IN A BAD WAY

Many a Princess Anne Reader Will Feel Grateful For This Information

If your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
If urinary troubles set in,
Perhaps your kidneys are "in a bad way!"

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys. Ask your neighbor.

Local evidence proves their merit. Mrs. C. A. Young, Beechwood street, Princess Anne, says: "I was in a bad way from a lameness in my back and a run down condition of my kidneys. My hands and ankles swelled and I had puffy sacs of water beneath my eyes. I was subject at times with dizzy spells when I stooped and sharp pains cut me in the small of my back. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills through a friend and after using one box I was rid of the trouble. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone who is troubled with backache or kidney trouble." (Statement given July 24th, 1916). On January 5, 1921, Mrs. Young said: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has been a lasting one. I cannot recommend Doan's too highly."

Offended His Dignity.
Jim Blue, colored, has resigned as a Pullman porter on the Central branch. He resigned in a huff. It came about this way: One night Jim was standing on the platform at Concordia. Suddenly he slipped and fell, and as he fell he threw his lantern high into the air. The engineer thought the lantern was giving the highball sign and pulled out of the station, leaving Jim on the platform. That peevish Jim and he decided to quit—Atchison Globe.

Diplomatic Bob.

Bob and I were out sailing when the boat was capsized by a sudden shifting breeze, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Journal. While we were in the water, clinging to the boat, Bob proposed, "I remember I said 'yes' for fear he would let me drown if I refused. As soon as he had his answer he said: 'The water is shallow here, so let's not bother righting the boat. We can just walk to shore.'"

Taking Desperate Chances

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and pave the way for the more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds, may be had for a trifle?

DR. O. H. MURPHY DIES SUDDENLY

Ordained Priest In St. Andrew's Church July 17th, 1884

The Rev. Oliver Hugh Murphy, D. D., died suddenly of heart trouble, about 11 o'clock Monday night of last week at his home on Beckford avenue. Dr. Murphy seemed quite well, was about town during the afternoon and did not complain any until stricken, after which he lived only a short time. Dr. Murphy was born November 19th, 1855, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George W. Murphy. After graduating at Washington College, Chestertown, Md., he attended Berkeley Theological Seminary, was ordained deacon in St. Paul's Church, Centerville, in 1883. The Rt. Rev. Henry C. Lay, Bishop of Eastern, ordained Dr. Murphy a priest in St. Andrew's Church, Princess Anne, July 17, 1884. Dr. Murphy held two parishes in the Diocese of Eastern, and while here was a member of the standing committee. He was rector of the Church of the Good Samaritan in Cowallis, Oregon, several years, and rector of parishes in Washington and New Jersey. After resigning from active work in October, 1915, Dr. Murphy came to Princess Anne, where he has very frequently filled the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church.

In 1886 Dr. Murphy married Miss Esther Dashiell, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cadmus Dashiell, of Princess Anne, who survives him with one daughter, Mrs. Wm. B. Spivey, and one son, Dr. Franklin O. Murphy.

Funeral services were held in St. Andrew's Church last Wednesday afternoon conducted by the Rt. Rev. George W. Davenport, Bishop of Eastern, and Archdeacon R. Bowden Shepherd. Interment was in the church cemetery. The pallbearers were Col. Henry J. Waters, Messrs. Joshua W. Miles, C. M. Dashiell, H. Fillmore Lankford, W. P. Todd and William H. Dashiell.

Trying To Oust Supervisor Todd

The controversy which has been going on for several weeks before the Board of County Commissioners of Somerset county and the State Tax Commission over the removal of County Supervisor of Assessments Archibald Todd came to a climax last Wednesday when the County Commissioners wrote the State Tax Commission advising that the County Commissioners would not pay Mr. Todd any salary after December 31st. This ultimatum from the County Commissioners came after the refusal of the State Tax Commission to remove Mr. Todd from office.

Mr. Todd is a Democrat and all the members of the Board of County Commissioners for Somerset county are Republicans, and if the County Commissioners should succeed in effecting Todd's removal the natural assumption is that he would be succeeded by a Republican.

The position assumed by the County Commissioners, if maintained, raises a question that will be of vital interest to the whole State. There is no contention over the legality of Todd's appointment to the position and the question will be whether the Board of County Commissioners can prevent him from exercising the duties of his office and the payment of his salary.

A large number of the leading attorneys in Princess Anne, when the proposition was submitted to them, stated that in their opinion the County Commissioners could not stop the payment of Mr. Todd's salary or prevent him from exercising the duties of his office. The State Tax Commission was removed by the State Tax Commission.

Pusey-Gibbons Wedding

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. James Pusey last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock when their daughter, Alice Pusey, was united in marriage to Mr. E. Thompson Gibbons, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Thompson Pusey, of this city, by the Rev. John Pusey.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a pretty gown and carried a bouquet of white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons reside in Worcester county, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Present at the wedding were Mr. E. T. Pusey and Mrs. E. T. Pusey, of Pocomoke; Mr. M. Pusey, of Pocomoke; Mr. T. C. Hope, of Pocomoke; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pusey, of Pocomoke; Mr. Walter Pusey, of Pocomoke; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Powell, and Mrs. Dennis D. Pusey, of Pocomoke; Mr. and Mrs. Hilda and Grace, of Pocomoke; Mr. and Mrs. Hattie, of Pocomoke; Mr. and Mrs. Helen Goodman, of Pocomoke; Mr. and Mrs. Milton, of Pocomoke; and Mr. and Mrs. Edward, of Pocomoke.

The New Year

THE year that has just closed means something different to most everybody. To some it has brought a great joy; to others a great sorrow; to many, both grief and gladness in full measure. Many of us have gone along the regular, uneventful path, filled with the happiness of love and work and the joy of everyday things, which, after all, is the best happiness.

To youth the New Year means a long, pleasure-filled evening and the writing of a new date on their letters. They look neither forward nor back. They make resolutions because it seems the correct thing to them to do. They keep them sometimes and it helps make them better men and women, but it is not a serious matter with them—just as is natural for youth.

Older folks involuntarily look back a bit on the even of a new year—not systematically, but with a general sweeping glance that usually makes them a bit uncomfortable at things left undone or failures to make good as they had intended. Maybe there has been just one thing accomplished that gives them a little warm feeling round their hearts—maybe not. The great sorrow or great joy stands out with more meaning to them than to youth. 'Tis another milestone passed.

The New Year may not present very bright prospects to some, but these same older folks know that there is something better in store than what the immediate future seems to offer—know that unhappy things can't last—that they are pretty sure to lead to something greater and better—know that even if they can't understand the reason for sorrow and trouble that there is a reason—know it deep down within themselves, though outwardly they resent and rebel against fate. It is not blind faith or optimism that teaches this, but reason and knowledge of life.

Older folks know that the year is bound to bring happiness and relief to those who are now bearing sorrow and trouble—Mrs. J. E. Leslie, in the Detroit News.

BLACK NEW YEAR PUDDING

Ingredients: One cupful black molasses; one cupful thick sour milk; one dessertspoonful soda; beat well. Add one teaspoonful salt; one grated nutmeg; one-eighth pound citron, chopped fine; one-fourth pound suet, chopped fine; four dry figs, chopped fine; one dozen almonds, minced fine; one cupful seeded raisins; three raw tart apples, chopped coarsely; three cupfuls flour. Mix all together, steam in a buttered mold for three hours and dry for 15 minutes in an oven. Serve with any good pudding sauce. This will serve 15 persons.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved: To save my money
And lead a frugal life.
Resolved: To do my duty
And still abstain from strife.
Resolved: To give up smoking
And never touch a drop.
Resolved: To heed the speed laws
And never offend a cop.
Resolved: To quit complaining
And smile whenever I can.
Resolved: To cease from knocking
And praise my fellow man.
Resolved—but what's the use of My plunging in so deep?
I've made more resolutions
Than any man could keep.

CENTER PIECE HINT.

To launder heavy embroidered round or oval center pieces, wash and starch quite stiff. While wet, divide into fourths or eighths, place paper on rug and pin to floor, as you would stretch curtains on a stretcher. When dry remove pins, and you will have a center done up beautifully, without any ironing.

Notice Of Ferry Schedule

Monday, December 26th and Monday, January 2d, being holidays, the Baltimore-Queenstown Ferry schedule will be: Leave Baltimore 8.30 a. m.; leave Love Point 11 a. m.; leave Queenstown 4.30 p. m.; leave Love Point 5.30 p. m.

On Tuesday, December 27th, and Tuesday, January 3rd, the schedule will be: Leave Baltimore 7 a. m.; leave Love Point 9.30 a. m.; leave Queenstown 10.30 a. m.; leave Love Point 11.30 a. m.; leave Baltimore 4 p. m.; leave Love Point 6.30 p. m.

A Card of Thanks

The pastor—Rev. J. A. Tumblin—and members of the First Baptist Church of Princess Anne, wish to thank Wm. Tribe of Red Men, of this town, for the gift of an organ. We hope some other good order will now give us a piano. The Red Men have won a big place in our hearts by this gift.

Cleaning Off the Slate

To Encourage The Savings Movement

Official announcement has been received by Postmaster Earle B. Polk, at Princess Anne, of the joining of hands of the Postoffice and Treasury Departments for the encouragement of the savings movement. The plan, as explained in a statement sent out by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, provides for the stimulation of the savings habit by the acceptance of postal savings deposits from 10 cents up and the offering of Treasury Savings Securities from $1 to $1,000.

There will be no Thrift Stamps nor War Savings Stamps offered during 1922, but all outstanding Thrift and War Savings Stamps will be redeemable precisely upon the terms upon which they were purchased, it is announced.

For the better co-ordination of the Postal and Treasury plans all who invest in Postal Savings may convert their deposits, when sufficiently large, into Treasury Savings Securities yielding 4 1/2 per cent. interest, compounded semi-annually, if held to maturity.

Further, the limit of individual holdings of Treasury Savings Securities has been increased from $1,000 to $5,000 and the 1921 issues of three of the securities bear the portraits of three great Americans—Roosevelt, Lincoln and Washington.

NEW YEAR'S EGGS.

The Persians still exchange presents of eggs at New Year's just as we do at Easter. But the rest of us now do our giving of presents at Christmas parties, though we may give to each other on January 1. In Scotland and England everybody calls on everybody else New Year's day, and drinks punch. Here in America calling has gone out of style, but if we do nothing more, we at least shout "Happy New Year" to everybody we meet on New Year's morning. When we shout that, we mean good luck to them for all the new year through.

NEVER AGAIN
Ostrich — New-fangled breakfast food, eh? Well I swore off from that stuff the first of last year!

PUMPKIN PIE.

Stew the pumpkin and rub through a colander. Beat the yolks of four eggs light; add a cupful of sugar and beat until you have a quart of the stewed pumpkin. Pour in a quart of milk, a teaspoonful of nutmeg, and cinnamon. Fold in the stiffened whites of four eggs. Line a deep pie plate with puff paste, then fill with the pumpkin and bake in a moderate oven till done.

SHORT LIFE IS LONG.

As the cartoonists have it, a year comes in as a baby and 365 days later dies as an old man. How fortunate it is that the human comes in as a human and not as a year.

New Year's in Egypt

IF A group of people were shipwrecked or otherwise cast upon their own resources and were to lose track of the date they would have no easy means of finding it again. Our year is an artificial one, and so must be made by careful study in well equipped observatories. Without precise instruments it would be difficult to fix the day when the new year begins.

The ancient Egyptians experienced no such difficulty. Their year, from which ours is derived, had a perfectly natural beginning. It always commenced on the day when Sirius and the sun rose together.

The temples of Egypt were really observatories, built to face this or that star as it rose. They were more or less elaborate, but all had as their fundamental plan a long narrow passage down which the star's rays came, and a dark chamber at the far end where the priest made the observation and where the image was kept.

The beginning of the new year was an important event. We can picture the scene as the priests, followed by the scribes, lawyers, merchants, and the curious crowd, wind their way up to the temple in the first streaks of dawn, and take their appointed places. As daylight comes on the interest of everyone is centered on two groups.

The priests on the roof are straining their eyes for the first glimpse of the coming sun, while those down in the dark chamber are watching for Sirius. Soldiers are stationed around the temple to keep the crowd silent and to prevent stragglers from crossing the path of the star's rays in front of the temple door at the critical moment.

A shout bursts from those on the roof as the sun tops the horizon. The observers below watch their water clocks carefully now as the minutes are told off, and strain their eyes at the narrow opening where Sirius is to shine. In a few moments Sirius itself flashes into view, and the new year has begun.

The Egyptians discovered that the year has an extra quarter of a day in it. They did it by noting that on some years Sirius and the sun rose almost together, while on others there was an appreciable difference in time, and that these changes repeated themselves every five years. They found the length of the year to within 11 minutes of its true value, which was a remarkable thing to do with the primitive appliances they had at hand.

NEW YEAR'S THEN AND NOW.

As long as people can remember, there have been New Year parties. The old Romans gave theirs in honor of Janus, the two-faced god. One face looked back at the old, spent year, and one face looked forward to the new, fresh year. They gave presents to him and to each other with the hope that the new year would be good to them. Some of the people who lived long ago waited until the end of March to celebrate the New Year, since that was the time that the trees and grass began new life.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

"Are you making any good resolutions for New Year's Day?"
"No, I haven't had time to break all my last New Year's ones yet."

A GOOD RESOLUTION.

A good resolution is the offspring of remorse and regret, who were wedded by experience.

Dryden's Demurrer Dismissed

The Circuit Court for Somerset County has overruled the demurrer filed by Charles S. Dryden to the petition of Charles P. Barnes in the election contest case growing out of the recent election for sheriff. By further order of the court Mr. Dryden was given until December 26 to answer the petition.

The argument over the demurrer was heard by Judges Pattison, Duer and Bailey, at Salisbury. The demurrer merely reached the question of the sufficiency of the form of the petition instituting the contest filed by Mr. Barnes. It is believed that the taking of testimony and the recounting of the ballots will begin soon after January 1. At the last election in Somerset county Mr. Dryden, the Republican candidate for sheriff, was returned elected over Mr. Barnes, the Democratic candidate, by three votes.

COL. HENRY WATTERSON DEAD

Famous Editor And Orator Passes Away At Age of 81 In Florida

Col. Henry Watterson, one of the country's best known journalists and former owner and publisher of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, died at a hotel in Jacksonville, Florida, at 6.15 last Thursday morning. Colonel Watterson's death was unexpected, though it had been known for some days that he was ill. The veteran publisher had been there for several weeks, as was his custom on his annual trips to Florida. He has for years been spending his winters largely at Fort Myers, and it was his intention to go to that place when his condition improved sufficiently to take the trip. His wife, son and daughter were at his bedside when he died.

Colonel Watterson's death was due to heart failure, superinduced by congestion of the lungs, according to physicians. He was born in Washington, D. C., on February 16, 1840.

Thus, "Marion Henry" passed to "that beautiful shore" where last October he wrote his comrades of the Confederate army he was sure "the Bonnie Blue flag will be flying at the fore and the bands will be playing 'Dixie' on parade and the pretty girls will be distributing the Chattanooga Rebel (the newspaper published by him during the war between the States) to groups of rugged, red-nosed angels who have not forgotten the rebel yell."

The body of Colonel Watterson, it was said by his son, Henry Watterson, would be placed in a vault at Jacksonville until spring, when it will be taken to Louisville for burial.

Memorial Bridge Dedication

The Memorial Bridge dedication on this (Tuesday) afternoon at 2.30 o'clock will be an interesting event. The program follows:

Master of ceremonies, Hon. Joshua W. Miles; invocation by Rev. J. L. Johnson, of Crisfield; unveiling by Master Oliver T. Beauchamp, who is a nephew of First Lieutenant Oliver T. Beauchamp, the highest ranking officer from the county killed; five-minute addresses by Hon. Joshua W. Miles, Major R. R. Norris, surgeon, who is the commander of the American Legion of the county; Col. A. W. W. Woodcock, of Salisbury, under whom a number of volunteer soldiers from this county served in the war. He will be followed by Judge Robert F. Duer.

Company L of Crisfield and Company I of Salisbury are to be here in uniform. Capt. S. P. Fuller will be in command of Company L and Capt. James R. Russell of Company I. Col. A. W. W. Woodcock will be the ranking officer as well as one of the speakers. He is also commander of the American Legion for the State of Maryland. The music will be by Pruitt's Band from Crisfield.

The members of the Service Legion and Gold Star Legion will be assembled next to the speakers' stand. The school children will assemble on Prince William street by the fire engine house and will be under the leadership of Mr. Stewart Fitzgerald. Everybody else is requested to assemble at the Court House and march to the bridge. Bring your flags.

Automobiles should be parked on Broad street or Prince William street, west of Church street, as no cars can be parked near the bridge. The Boy Scouts will be in charge of traffic regulations.

There will be no postponement. In case the weather is bad the bridge committee will unveil the tablets and declare the exercises over.

It is the county's memorial and the people from all parts of the county are cordially invited to come and take part in the exercises.

SECRETARY FALL IS "SURPRISED"

Interior Department Stages a Party Not on Official Schedule.

CHIEF IS SIXTY YEARS OLD

Personified National Parks Offer Congratulations in Verse—Affair Has Deep Significance for Army of Nature Lovers.

Washington.—Albert B. Fall secretary of the Interior, figured as guest of honor the other day in a social affair that was not on the official schedule and caught him entirely unaware. It was an unusual sort of affair in that it has a deep significance for the army of national park enthusiasts all over the country. It came about this way:

Secretary Fall is a "regular feller," the rank and file of the Interior department have decided. The national park service is especially emphatic on this point for the reason that the secretary has just finished an inspection of five of the big national parks and the field force of the service had a chance to try him out and size him up.

To camp out with a man is to know him—that's one of the eternal verities that all outdoor men accept without question. If he's got too much ego in his cosmos or a mean or a lazy or a yellow streak in him, it will stick out like a sore thumb. Traveling with a man on foot and horseback, sleeping with him under canvas or under the stars, getting wet and cold and hungry with him, sitting around the campfire and filling up on trout, bacon, flapjacks and coffee with him—that's when you get acquainted with him for keeps.

Of course nobody in the national park service was foolish enough to think for a minute that the secretary was a tenderfoot. They all knew too much about him for that. They all knew that although he was a practicing lawyer he was also a veteran of the Spanish-American war and a rancher, stockman and miner. Just the same, every last one of his traveling companions—officials, park superintendents and park rangers—wanted to see if he was as good as the New Mexicans said he was.

Secretary Makes Good.

Well, they found out. Though the secretary was hitting a trail before some of his party were born and the inspection trip took them into places too strenuous for the tourist, he went everywhere that anyone else went, saw everything, slept anywhere, never missed a meal and toiled his end all the time.

What's more, they found out to their delight—and maybe relief—that the secretary, who by virtue of his office is not only the head of the national park service but also one of the three members of the water power commission, is a dyed-in-the-wool nature lover and a national park enthusiast. He believes in the development of the scenic West by private enterprise. But he also believes that the national parks in their untouched wildness are a priceless heritage of the American people, to be used and not abused, to be conserved from commercial exploitation and passed on unharmed to future generations.

Hence the surprise party, as a token of appreciation and of loyal co-operation.

The Interior department people insisted upon making their affair quite exclusive and staged it in the secretary's office. They did, however, invite Mrs. Fall. So the secretary found himself surrounded by a sort of family party, assembled in honor of the sixtieth anniversary of his birth. In the party were First Assistant Secretary Finney, Director Mather of the national park service, and heads of the dozen or more bureaus of the department.

This official family was headed by five young women of the national park service who personified five of the national parks inspected by the secretary: Miss Isabelle Story, in green, Yosemite; Miss Beatrice Ward, in blue, Crater Lake; Miss Lella Price, in lavender, Mount Rainier; Miss May Schurr, in yellow, Yellowstone; Miss Bertha Miltenberg, in red, Rocky Mountain. Among them they carried five dozen chrysanthemums, one for each of the years which the secretary carries as lightly as did the girls the blossoms.

Yosemite.

Miss Yosemite, taking on airs because the secretary visited her first on his trip, presented her blossoms and said this nice little bit of verse:

We bring thee greeting on thy natal day
From all those glorious regions in the West.

Our Nation's Parks, where you, most welcome guest,
Have watched the people of a Nation play.

Have seen the joy which each succeeding day
Has brought to visitors who, seeking rest,

Have found as well that God is manifest
Where nature undenied still holds her sway.

The mighty rock that stands as sentinel,
O'er-shadowing the trees beneath its wall,

The rushing roar of waters as they fall
With rainbow tinted spray, all, all impel
The thoughts of man to turn to Deity.
This is the message from Yosemite.

Crater Lake.

Miss Crater Lake, fittingly in blue, had this to say in rhyme:

In far-off Oregon there lies
A lake of wondrous hue,
Not even cloudless summer skies
Are such cerulean blue.

In vividly contrasting shades,
Its blood-red walls rise clear,
A gorgeous ring of palisades, Buttressed and bold and sheer.

Although you traveled many a mile,
This stirring trip to take,
I'm sure you found it worth your while
To visit Crater Lake.

Mount Rainier.

Miss Mount Rainier was also strong on description and verse. Here's her piece:

Among the mountains of the West
Those mighty granite masses,
Rainier's the one I love the best.
Its majesty surpasses.

A crown of everlasting white
By day in sunlight gleaming,
A spectral crown when seen at night,
While all the world lies dreaming.

And through the snow, in contrast rare,
The trees grow tall and slender,
Its meadows quite beyond compare,
Where flowers bloom in splendor.

And every spot affords a view
That satisfies the hunger.
I'm sure if you come back, that you Will feel a whole lot younger.

Yellowstone.

Miss Yellowstone had so much to say about the oldest and biggest of the national parks that she wisely rejected poetry for prose:

From all the mountains and the valleys
Of Yellowstone, I bring you greeting,
From the mighty river and the lake Whose beauty is as yet untouched by the vandal hand of commercialism, I bring you greeting.

And from the mammoth hot springs and the playful geysers and the crannies and caves and the Eagle's nest, and the canyons and the water falls, and from the Elk and the Buffalo, the Brown Bear and the Grizzlies and even the Mountain Sheep and the Antelope, ever grateful for a safe haven from the hand of the hunter, from all of them, I bring you greeting.

And not to be outdone, all the trees, big and little, and all the rest of the growing things in Yellowstone join in the wish that your three score of years may be lengthened far beyond the allotted span.

Rocky Mountain.

Miss Rocky Mountain, with the pertness of youth, seized the opportunity to take a whack at a few who have been stirring up opposition to local national park service policy. Her troubles, however, are practically over, inasmuch as both the Estes Park Chamber of Commerce and the Denver Civic and Commercial association have endorsed the policy in question.

Miss Rocky Mountain was modest as well as pert, for in spite of her youth and the "silly strife" she leads all the national parks in attendance by a wide margin. Here's her contribution:

I feel quite young and immature.
In fact, you might say insecure.
For I am Rocky Mountain Park.
It's hard at times to tell my friends
From those who seek some selfish ends:
They almost leave me in the dark.

But I am sure that you'll agree
That if my friends are good to me,
And put an end to silly strife,
And not find fault, it won't be long Before I grow quite big and strong,
And live a very useful life.

Hope of the Future.

And then Miss Yosemite wound up the literary feast with this effusion:

And now, Mr. Secretary, we had hoped by this time to welcome a big grown-up sister to our midst, in the shape of Roosevelt National Park.

Perhaps by the time another year rolls around, you can make her acquaintance—and who knows—perhaps by that time, a new little sister will have arrived from somewhere in New Mexico to join us in our birthday greetings.

At any rate, may the year and all the years to come bring only peace, happiness and a continued opportunity to serve the nation and its people.

The Roosevelt National park she speaks of is Sequoia, enlarged and with the change of name; legislation is pending in congress to that end. In "new little sister from New Mexico" she refers to the movement to establish a national park in the Bandelier National monument region, which is rich in relics of a prehistoric race.

One thing is certain: a secretary of the Interior in sympathy with the national park movement has an "opportunity to serve the nation and its people."

Lions Invade Railway Station.
Nairobi, British East Africa.—Officials of a train arriving at one of the stations on the Uganda railway found three lions had taken possession, one in the telegraph room, and one in the refreshment room, while the other came out and stalked up and down the platform, "in true official style," as the driver expressed it.

A few shrieks from the engine whistle caused the lions to decamp, whereupon the station staff emerged from a building some distance away.

CHRISTMAS DOES NOT STAND ALONE

IF CHRISTMAS stood alone it would be an "idle mockery." But it does not stand alone. It is part of a year. Yet it is a peculiar part. It is that brief period in which the child rules the world.

It marks nowadays the culmination of a civilization which has had a leading principle. The selfish, the hard, the grasping and the unsparing are out and apart that one week from the great flowing tide of the development of the world's progress. The man or woman who does not know this or see it or feel it is alien to the Christian spirit and to all the products wrought by the Christ spirit in the twenty centuries last past.

Christmas day, then, brings a message. But it also sings a song of hope and calls aloud a prophecy. The message is that gentleness is stronger far than force and that the greatest power on earth is the compelling power of tenderness.

Every Christmas tree is lit with that light. The great flood of presents bears this as its message. The cheer and charity of the whole season are fed by this love.

If the result of this process is only a century flower, however, or one that blooms even only once a year, then of what use is this more than that, this grotesque fact than that stranger plant? It is a curious phenomenon only, a hothouse spectacle and not an abiding food product.—Rev. Dr. David M. Steele, Philadelphia.

Excellence in Art.

Excellence in art is to be attained only by active effort, and not by passive impressions; by the manly overcoming of difficulties, by patient, struggle against adverse circumstance, by the thrifty use of moderate opportunities. The great artists were not rocked and dandled into eminence, but they attained to it by that course of labor and discipline which no man need go to Rome or Paris or London to enter upon.—Hilliard.

The Harder the Fresher.

Girls, beware of the hard-boiled egg. He will get fresh.—Minnesota Star.

House in Form of Teapot.

Among the oddest of unusual cottages is the queerly shaped little house by the roadside in the parish of Dalderby, near Horncastle, in Lincolnshire, England. It is well known locally as "Teapot Hall." It has so whimsical an outline, and stands so plainly to be seen of all who pass along this road, that it is almost as famous in its way as Lincoln Minster itself. The story purporting to account for the name of it is that a merchant-skipper, captain many years ago of one of the once-famous East India clippers, retiring from the sea, built himself this extremely modest dwelling, and fashioned it, in allusive mood, in the shape of a teapot. The model itself is now long forgotten.—Christian Science Monitor.

Commercial Art.

"Don't you think the theater has become sadly commercialized?" "If," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes, "by 'commercialized' you mean affording opportunities to make large sums of money, I cannot say that I have noticed it personally."

Justifiable Pride.

Robinson—What's that rooster across the street crowing so for? Roosters don't lay eggs.

Cowley—No, but he's done something more wonderful. He just crossed the road without being hit by a fast automobile.

Apt Illustration.

Freddie had come into possession of a dog—something he had always wanted. He and the dog were inseparable. Conrad asked him to his birthday party. He hesitated, but finally said: "I'd like to go first rate, if I can take my dog along. Where I go he goes. It's just like we were twins."

Study the Golden Rule.

Man is his own worst enemy largely because he does not do by others as he would be done by himself. He may not realize it, but the more he studies the Golden Rule the more he will find therein relating to correct conduct.—Grit.

Evolution of Writing.

The earliest Greek inscriptions were written from right to left. Next came the method called "boustrophedon," in which the written lines run alternately from left to right, or vice versa. Lastly, writing from left to right became universal.

Old Theaters in London.

London still contains two buildings that witnessed the performance of Shakespeare's plays during Shakespeare's life—the Middle Temple hall and the hall of Gray's Inn.

NONE FOR HER.

Mr. Bacon—I see by using a modified wireless receiving instrument a French scientist has been able to detect thunder storms more than 800 miles distant.

Mrs. Bacon—Well, dear, if you were thinking of getting me anything like that for Christmas, forget it. I can hear thunderstorms soon enough as it is.

CELERY AND CHEESE SALAD.

Chop nicely bleached, tender celery fine and bind it together with mayonnaise. Line an ice cream dipper with cottage cheese, then fill up with the celery mixture, packing it in well. Screw out the cones on crisped lettuce leaves arranged for individual serving.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE BABIES.

Never deny the babies their Christmas! It is the shining seal set upon a year of happiness. Let them believe in Santa Claus, or St. Nicholas, or Kriss Kringle, or whatever name the jolly Dutch saint bears in your region.—Marion Harland.

NO MISTLETOE TRUST.

"If mistletoe was positively necessary to Christmas osculation," said Uncle Eben, "dadd be a mistletoe trust in no time."

PLEASURE.

Oh, pleasure may itself refute
As for its gifts we call.
We work so hard in its pursuit
We have no fun at all.

Save the Carpet.

If you do not wish your stair carpet to wear unevenly, put padding underneath it. There are pads prepared expressly for this use, but wanting these or anything of sufficient body to protect it, use newspapers, on the stair and folded so that they will project three or four inches beyond the stair. If thick enough they will save a great deal of wear and tear of the carpet, also deaden the sound of footsteps.

Our investment in Maryland is more than twenty-one million dollars.

What Is Meant By "Net Earnings?"

THE net earnings of an enterprise is the money left from revenues after expenses are paid. Judged solely as a sum of money—without relation to anything else—the net earnings of a public utility such as ours may seem large.

The meaning of net earnings can be determined only when they are related to the investment in the property.

The net earnings of this company for the year 1921, based on nine months, will be $884,000, which may seem a large sum.

But our investment in Maryland is more than $21,000,000, so that the net earnings are less than four and one-half per cent. on the investment.

Compared with the present high rates for money prevailing, this is a very modest rate of return.

Everyone he had met that day on his way to the office had said: "Good morning, Mr. Gilford; fine morning, isn't it?" And Larry Gilford had gazed into the sky and had seen that it was blue and cloudless and that the sun was shining, and had suddenly discovered that it was a fine day—outside. But when he opened the door of his business-looking office, everything was dingy and lonely—like his own thoughts.

Perhaps Erma Clark was to blame, perhaps she wasn't. Anyway, he had accompanied her to one of the usual twice-a-week theater trips that night, but he had not accompanied her home. She left him at the theater door and told him, very decidedly, that she preferred to go home alone.

So Larry plodded back to his two uninviting, rented rooms with a downcast heart and Erma's fiery words still ringing in his ears—words to the effect that he had become so engrossed in his business of late that he had neglected her to the point of rudeness.

A wonderful frame of mind to be in at the start of a long office day! Larry's head felt heavy and stupid and dull, too.

And the work that was before him! His desk was fairly swamped with letters. And right on top of the pile was a pink envelope, addressed in a feminine hand.

Larry gave a disgusted groan and threw the letter on the floor.

The door opened. Larry wheeled around in his chair and saw a tall, slender girl enter the room. She was dressed in soft, dark brown. But the chic French veil she wore was of such a dark, dense shade that it completely hid her features from him.

"Hello!" the person said. "Alone? Isn't that nice?"

Larry stared at her a moment, remembering that he hadn't risen to his feet, hastily did so and stood before her awkwardly silent.

Larry hadn't long to wonder, for the girl was already loosening the veil from her face, and then—

"Erma!" he cried joyously, springing toward her, "Erma—dear."

"I couldn't stay away any longer, Larry," she whispered softly, coming closer to him.

"But you said—"

The girl pressed a small hand over his mouth. "I know I said a lot of things, Larry dear, and I've come to be forgiven for them; the things I said about you being selfish and ugly, I mean."

"But I'm afraid I did neglect you, Erma. I didn't think I had more business than I could attend to last week, and it simply wouldn't let me think of anybody or anything else."

"Larry, you didn't neglect me; you've been wonderful to me—always. I needed this lesson—the thought that perhaps you wouldn't forgive me—to make me understand."

Larry didn't answer. He only stood silently before her, too happy, too bewildered to speak.

"Dear," she was saying in her soft, low voice, "I know how to appreciate you now. I couldn't get along without you. I love you, Larry! I love you. Please, please, forgive me."

Then it was that Larry spoke. "Dearest," he cried hoarsely, "stay with me always; promise me. I love you, Erma dear, I love—"

His last words were lost as he gathered her close in his arms and smothered his face in her hair, his whole heart filled with a new, warm joy of having her back again. For several moments they remained thus, until the sharp striking of the office clock awoke Larry and he lifted his head, still quite dazed, from the letter-littered desk top.

So that was all! Erma was still lost, he was still alone; it had only been a dream.

He mustn't think about it any longer, he told himself. His work must be done and he would tackle the worst part first. So thinking, he picked up the pink envelope, which had fallen at his feet, and opened it. It read:

"Dearest Larry—In half an hour I will be at your office, so have all callers out by then. I'm coming to be forgiven for the horrid things I said to you, Larry dear. I've missed you terribly since last night and I'm in such a hurry to see you that I can't stop to write any more.

"Lots of love,

"ERMA."

Erma had been lost and now she was found again. And happiness had come to Larry by the way of the pink letter.

87-Year-Old Plant.

After lying in a warehouse in the Minorities since 1834, a case of dried flora from the Azores has at last found a home in Kew gardens, to which it has been presented by the Royal Botanic society.

The circumstances of the case are remarkable. Last year a firm in Minorities, Messrs. Joseph Barber, as the Botanic society to accept a or dried plants, which had been in their warehouses for many years and to which a docket was attached giving the name of the collector, Mr. Carew Hunt (H. B. M. consul at the Azores), the name and place of finding of the plants, and the date of collection—1834. The parcel was addressed to the Botanic society of London, which ceased to exist in London. NO DOUBT ABOUT HER LOVE

Daily Routine of Married Woman, Described by Herself, Surely Sufficient to Prove It.

Here is a sample of why one woman is too busy to be unhappily married, as she writes it herself:

"At 7:30 o'clock breakfast is on the table. Dad is ready, but where is the school girl? 'Dad, you go on and eat; I have to get that child ready for school.' She is standing on one foot, holding her stocking in her hand.

"Mother, if we caught a bluebird—could we catch a bluebird, mother?"

"Yes, dear; now lace up your shoe while I brush your hair."

"We could give it to Dorothea; she has a cage."

"Honey, hurry up. You will be late."

"Well, I want to catch a bluebird."

"Now, darling, brush your teeth while I fry daddy's eggs."

"Did you brush your teeth?"

"Do I have to?"

"Of course. Do you want to be ugly?"

"Won't I get to go to parties if I am ugly?"

"No; but for goodness sake come to breakfast."

"Mother, dad cries, 'come and eat with me.'"

"I simply can't, dad. See that this child gets something inside her, will you? I have to dress little sister. She's up now."

"After dad and the school girl go, sister is made ready for breakfast. Mother puts the iron on to heat. Sister will not eat her cereal, and mother has to feed her. The iron gets too hot. While it is cooling mother puts the vacuum cleaner to work on the living room. She makes the beds. She cleans the house. She irons until 11:30. She hurries to get lunch. She rushes to finish a pair of bloomers. She makes buttonholes while the oven heats. She makes a pie while sister practices on the piano. She gets dinner. She watches small sister playing. She shoos home a whooping coughing child and rescues the piano from an apple core. She never wonders if her husband loves her. She is too busy. She loves him or she would never, never, never mend his socks."

Varieties of Spiders' Webs.

The common house spider spins a web quite different from that of the garden spider. The house spider's web consists of a silken tube hidden in a dark corner, with an irregular sheet of closely woven meshes spread before it. The tube is the spider's lurking hole and place of refuge; the outspread web is its snare. The wolf spider makes a tubular hole with a hinged door for a refuge and spreads no snare. Still another species of spider constructs a far simpler tube of silk without any lid or door.

IF OLD ORGAN COULD SPEAK!

Instrument in National Museum Might Settle Interesting Question Concerning "Immortal George."

If church organs could talk, there is one at the National museum that could settle the question whether or not George Washington napped through Sunday sermons in Christ church. The decision could be strictly relied on, for the reason that the organ was there at the time. Unfortunately for history, the tall and somewhat grandfather-clockish instrument is dumb in every key of its five octaves, though to any mathematician able to put two and two together and make five of it, its dim mahogany and tarnished gilt speaks for the prosperity of our ancestors, two centuries back, who could afford to import luxuries until a war came along and gave us liberty and home-made melodeons.

"The George Washington organ," was brought from England in 1700, but was not placed in the Alexandria edifice until it had served in the choir of a church in another part of Virginia. After an uncertain stay in Christ church (so far as the label will divulge) its adventures took it to Shepherdstown and later to Hancock, Md., where it remained until the vestry donated it to the museum, where it now heads a collection of musical instruments which vary in size from a rattle to a grand piano and represent every world-period, from Pan's pipes to jazz.

"DEATH AGONIES" PURE MYTH

Last Illness May Be Painful, but the Moment of Dissolution Is Without Suffering.

Recent study has led physiologists to the conclusion that the brain may live for 20 minutes or half an hour after a person has apparently "given up the ghost."

The heart, taken out of the body, will continue to beat for 24 hours if a stream of oxygenated blood be kept flowing through it.

Death from loss of blood is attended by no pain. The ancients, appreciating this fact, commonly had resort to "opening the veins" when they sought to commit suicide.

Drowning is an easy death, described by persons who have survived the process as "like falling asleep." It is said to be more painful to be resuscitated than to drown.

In the "dying hour" the sense of smell falls first, then taste, sight, touch and finally hearing.

The "death struggle" or "death agony" is an imaginary phenomenon. Convulsive movements usually occur toward the last, but they are mere nervous reactions of which the dying person is unconscious. A last illness may be painful, but death is painless.

One person in every 1,000 dies a "natural" death—that is to say, of old age. The remaining 999 die of disease.

It often happens in extreme old age that a marked weakening of the mental faculties is observable. Persons thus afflicted are said to be in their "dotage." They have to be cared for like small children. It is a trouble due to structural disintegration of the brain, which, like any other organ, is liable to wear out. As a matter of fact the brain, in these persons, wore out before their bodies.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

GAS TIP CAME AS ACCIDENT

"Invention," if Such It Can Be Called, Is Credited to Eccentric Young Scotsman.

While practically all inventions having to do with the rendition of the essential public utility services have romantic histories, none is more interesting than that of the gas tip, so common in homes and factories where there is gas illumination.

Thomas Murdock, a Scotsman, who is generally referred to as "the father of the gas industry," desired to stop the flow of gas which was burning from an open tube during one of his experiments, more than 100 years ago. To accomplish this, he clapped a thumb over the flame. The thumb had been pierced and the gas coming through the hole in smaller volume was brought into contact with a greater proportion of air at the point of combustion. This incident is said to have been responsible for the origin of the "gas tip."

Murdock was a queer young man, addicted to wearing wooden hats. He made a lantern by fixing a tube in the neck of a gas-filled bladder. The sight of him wandering around at night with the strange beacon filled the neighborhood with dismay and some people suspected him of being in league with Lucifer.

Beautiful Sea Shells.

It is a very pleasant hobby for those people who live by the sea to gather on suitable shores the delightful sea shells that lie on the beach among the pebbles or glitter beneath the water. No understanding of conchology is necessary to appreciate the beauty of the shells that invite attention. There is none more delightful to look at for perfection of design than the nautilus, which reminds us vividly of the illustrations to the stories of Charles Dickens. The painted top, the Venus, and lace sea shells are equally attractive. Many artists have derived direct inspiration from these little wonders. The fan tracery in European architecture must have owed its origin to the fan shells, with their exquisite markings. The colors frequently seem to have been put on by hand, so geometrically do they encircle the tiny home.—Christian Science Monitor.

A Century and a Half Ago.

That pleasant word "plene," so popular at all times in our country, played havoc with the spelling powers of the French. Their ways of rendering it were various, of which let "pique-nique" be a sample. Their appreciation, however, of that rustic entertainment was as enthusiastic as their spelling of it was uncertain. Nor was this the only word to be mangled, for Baron Closen writes "Jankey Doodle" as the nickname given us by the English! Milford effectively disguises two of our Indian tribes, the Cherokees and the Choc-taws, by calling them the Scherokys and the Tchetas, and spells Norwich (Connecticut) both Norege and Nor-alge; and Volney delights to tell of "Kentokey."—Charles H. Sherrill.

"Out of the Mouths of Babies."

A schoolboy was asked how "virgin" was derived, and he replied: "From the Latin word vir, a man, and gin, a trap."

Remember the boy's reply to the question, "What were the marriage customs of the ancient Greeks?"—"The marriage customs of the ancient Greeks were that a man married only one wife, and this was called Monotony."

THE Ford worm-driven, One-Ton Truck with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, are dependable, as well as serviceable. This, probably more than any other factor, accounts for their popularity. There is no evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Like the Ford car, the Ford One-Ton Truck—Ford-built throughout—has proven itself. In it are combined the Ford principles of simplicity, with strength, lowest first cost, lowest operating cost, durability.

In the city, on the farm, carrying its loads between cities—everywhere you will find the Ford One-Ton Truck doing duty. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers, have come to know it as the truck of utmost service.

MORE and more every day the demand for Fordson Tractor increases because the Fordson has demonstrated so much usefulness, so much economy, so much labor saving, so much money saving, along so many lines of activity. The farmer has discovered that not only for plowing, harrowing, discing, seeding, mowing, reaping or threshing, but a multitude of other uses; cutting wood; feed; grinding feed; churning; washing; furnishing water in the house; making electric light possible in the house and around the barns, so that, as a matter of fact, there is hardly an hour in the day when the Tractor cannot be made a profitable servant. There is ditching to do; there are roads to fix; and so on all down along the line of the enormous calls that constantly face the farmer the Fordson steps in and does the work, shoulders the complete burden of the toil and the hard work, one might almost say "drudgery." After the freak dancers get tired of the camel walk, they might next try the giraffe glide and after that the donkey trot.

After all the other special days and weeks have been celebrated, it might be a good idea to settle down and have a Work Week.

The newspapers are reporting bold robberies every day, to which might be included the prices of some kinds of building materials.

After reading the details of the new tax law, many people have concluded that the internal revenue should be called the infernal revenue.

The National League used 33,000 baseballs last year, but a considerable fraction of that number was lost last summer on the Washington High School campus.

Talking about an economic conference, many important ones are being held in Princess Anne when the women get together to discuss the bargains announced in the newspapers.

The people who think wars can't be stopped are probably descended from the old timers who used to think centuries ago that personal disputes would always be settled by seeing which was the best fighter.

HOLIDAY HOME-COMINGS

The holiday season brings special joy in these times because of the return of young people from their schools and colleges. The number of young people who go away to schools and colleges is very large and most of them are not very mature and do not understand how to cope with life.

It is a tremendous experience for them to make this first flight out into the wide world, where they meet temptations and run up against perplexing and difficult experiences. The home folks feel all the time a little uneasy as to their physical and moral welfare.

So it is a day of joy for the home circle when these young people come bounding up the old doorstep, bubbling over with joy to get back, full of their young enthusiasm. It gives the home folks a tremendous sense of satisfaction to see how they have grown in wisdom and experience. Truly the holiday returns of these young folks are about the finest thing of the year to some of the homes of Princess Anne.

THE MEANING OF NEW YEAR'S DAY

Coldly philosophical people can see no sense in celebrating the New Year. January 1st is just the same as December 31st, they argue. Nothing happened when this artificial and meaningless division of time passed, so why quit work and celebrate, just as if humanity had accomplished some noteworthy achievement?

This thought overlooks the significance of the passing of time. Our years slip by with the rapidity of a swiftly passing stream. The days melt into each other like the eddies in the smooth flowing river. Time drops out of sight without attracting attention, so that life passes beyond our grasp before we know it.

Men and women go on from youth to middle life and old age, scarcely realizing the changes. It is a useful thing to have a New Year's day come along to remind them of the rapidity of the flight of time. It should be a day of retrospection and anticipation.

People should ask themselves what they have accomplished in the previous twelve months. What did they do to improve their own equipment for life, to rise to better attainment, to achieve things for their community and their country? If New Year's day can not bring some sense of positive gain in the past year, there is something radically wrong about a person's life.

And so the old idea of turning over a new leaf and making new resolutions is a good one, much as it has been derided. No person is worth much unless he does from time to time resolve to make a fresh start to accomplish more in the future than in the past. Not necessarily to make more money and acquire more material success but to develop a finer personality and to be of greater service. New Year's day brings human life to a realization that life is moving swiftly and we must all seize its opportunities as they pass.

THE AFTER EFFECTS OF WAR

The tragic end of Lieut. Col. Whittlesey, noted hero of the "Lost Battalion," who jumped overboard from a steamer en route to Cuba, suggests how heavy a burden many of the ex-soldiers are carrying as the result of their war experiences. Col. Whittlesey had a very sensitive nature and the horrors of war are supposed to have preyed upon his mind.

Some people may have supposed that when the soldiers who had been under fire heard the joyful news of Armistice day they would be ready to resume normal life again just as they left it. But for a lot of them, the horror of war had been too deeply seared into their souls. They can not be the same men yet and some will never be.

A man with a calm and philosophical temperament might go through this awful hell and yet come out none the worse. But anyone with a sensitive and imaginative nature would not pass through the experience so lightly. Those sights and sounds of horror would haunt his mind. In many cases severe nervous strain has persisted and the men having had this experience find themselves in constant mental anguish.

The existence of many men in this condition should lead the government to do its utmost to see that cases of shell shock and other similar troubles get attention from the most skilled specialists.

The friends of men who underwent these severe nervous strains should not feel disheartened if their progress seems slow. Usually nature will heal these exhausted nerves. The rest of us who were far from the line of battle have no conception of what such men have borne for us. Their service and mental suffering represent a great sacrifice that their fellow countrymen should never forget.

When You Are Constipated

To insure a healthy action of the bowels and correct disorders of the liver, take two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They will not only cause a gentle movement of the bowels, without unpleasant effects, but banish that dull, stupid feeling that often accompanies constipation.

Order Nisi

In the matter of the Tax Sale of Real Estate in Brinkley's District of Somerset County, assessed to Eliza Jane Whittington, made and reported by R. Mark White, County Treasurer for Somerset County, Clarence W. Phillips, purchaser, Ex-parte.

No. 3518 Chancery. In the Circuit Court for Somerset County.

Whereas, a certain R. Mark White, County Treasurer for Somerset county, in the State of Maryland, has reported to the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, a sale made by him to Clarence W. Phillips, of all that lot and parcel of land in Brinkley's election district of Somerset county, Maryland, viz: All that lot of land in said Brinkley's district, Somerset county, Maryland, bounded on three sides by Marumco Creek with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of C. A. Lockerman, F. Gibson and others, assessed to the said Eliza Jane Whittington on the assessment books of the said election district, Somerset county, for the year 1916 and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas, upon examination it appears to the said court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been fully complied with.

Now, therefore, it is hereby ordered by the Circuit Court for Somerset county, in Equity, this 16th day of December, 1921, that notice be given by publication of this order once a week for four successive weeks, in the Marylander and Herald, a weekly newspaper published in Somerset county, Maryland, with the improvements thereon, adjoining the lands of C. A. Lockerman, F. Gibson and others, assessed to the said Eliza Jane Whittington on the assessment books of the said election district, Somerset county, for the year 1916 and sold for the payment of taxes due and in arrears, together with all the proceedings had in relation thereto; and whereas, upon examination it appears to the said court that the said proceedings are regular, and that the provisions of law in relation thereto have been fully complied with.

Look At The Date On Pink Label

The little pink label on your paper does more than bring this paper to you faithfully week after week, giving you the news of your friends, your county, of your State. It tells you at a glance just how many more weeks will elapse before your subscription expires. Look at the label today and see if you are in arrears and renew your subscription. By doing this you will render a great service to the Marylander and Herald and at the same time will assure yourself of the satisfaction of receiving the paper promptly and without interruption. If the label shows that your subscription is out or in arrears, mail a money order or check for $1.50, as all subscriptions must be paid in advance.

If you enjoy a hearty laugh, you will have abundant opportunities for laughter when you see Douglas MacLean in his new Paramount picture, "The Home Stretch," which will be shown at the Auditorium next Thursday night. Mr. MacLean is supported by Beatrice Burnham, Walt Whitman, Margaret Livingston, Wade Boetler, Mary Jane Irving, Charles Mailes, Molly McConnell, Jack Singleton, Jo Bennett and George Holmes.

The Ad On The Fence

I love my country's rocks and hills and feign would move from off her hills the billboard ads for liver pills. I love to gaze on some old barn that stands by wood or rock or tann. I love its curves and graceful lines, its weathered boards from oaks and pines. I love its silo, cribs and mows, its Plymouth Rocks and brindle cows; my farm-born heart with pleasure swells when I inhale its rich, ripe smells. But O, I hate to see its back, exposed to road or railway track, in glaring paint give doubtful dope on some one's double-action soap, or urge relief from human ills by chewing sixteen-horsepower pills. Around you curve the engine scoots, and way-worn travelers press their snoots against the dusty windowpanes, while tired eyes and weary brains drink in the peace of hills and plains. Forgetting cares and lack of cash, they gaze on fields of succotash. Green growing groves where dryads roost and babbling brooks their spirits boost. To keep these haunts for nymphs and Pan, the bilious billboard let us ban.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy The Mother's Favorite

The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of young children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief and is free from opium and other harmful drugs.

NEAR EAST MOVIE READY FOR PUBLIC

"ALICE IN HUNGERLAND" MAY BE GOTTEN BY MARYLAND ORGANIZATIONS

APPLY AT HEADQUARTERS

That wonderful new movie, "Alice in Hungerland," which was shown at the Maryland conference, and the actual scenes of the Caucasians, taken on the spot, thrilled and awayed the delegates, may be had for exhibition in this state by applying to Maryland Headquarters Near East Relief, 14 West Franklin Street, Baltimore, Md.

ALICE IN HUNGERLAND.

In this movie, the spectator is taken on an actual tour of the Caucasians, seeing the great orphanages, shelters and hospitals of the Near East Relief, the thousands upon thousands of boys and girls, all orphans, who are being taken care of; the ruined cities of the Near East; Jerusalem, and other places of great historic interest.

The movie opens at Brooklyn, where the four ship is loading for the Caucasians, and then the spectators are taken on the official inspection trip made last summer by the Near East Relief officials, those who spoke at the State Conference.

The picture is in three reels. Each reel is interesting from start to finish and besides showing the work of the Near East Relief, the movie presents other features well worth seeing. Every organization in the state should apply for the use of this film.

NEW TERRITORY IS ACQUIRED BY U. S.

SIX THOUSAND ACRES IN THRACE ARE RENTED BY NEAR EAST RELIEF

Six thousand acres of the richest farming land in the historic region of Thrace has been rented from the Greek Government by the Near East Relief, America's official organization, chartered by Congress, for carrying on relief work in the Near East, as a homeland for one thousand destitute Armenian refugees, dependent on the resources of the American charity. American money has provided the land, the American flag flies over it, and American machinery is to till it. And this last means the economic regeneration of the people and the country.

"The time had come to start something," said James Crutcher, a young Alabama relief worker in charge of the enterprise. "We were spending all our resources feeding the starving, sheltering the sick and clothing the naked. That work, of course, was absolutely necessary and had to be done. But it wasn't getting anywhere for the future. Besides, the people chafed at having continually to accept charity. They were hard-working, industrious people who had earned their bread by the sweat of their brows, and they wanted to work for what they got."

"We looked about us for a way. Then came the idea. There were acres of the richest farming land in the world right next door, in Thrace, and most of it wasn't being worked. With the cordial co-operation of the Greek Government, we rented six thousand acres of this, brought from home enough agricultural machinery of the latest make and enough seed to put things in motion and then transported one thousand of our refugees who were living in unspeakable filth and destitution at a camp in Ismid and the project was under way."

SCHOOL HELP IS URGED

I sincerely hope that teachers and children in the public and private schools of the United States will co-operate heartily and liberally with the Near East Relief in raising funds for food and clothing and care of children and others who have suffered from the ravages of war in the countries of the Near East. To do this will only be doing as we would have others do to us if, like these people, we were reduced to poverty and suffering through no fault of our own but through the ruthless ambitions of others.

Yours sincerely,
WILLIAM P. CLAYTON,
Committee on Education,
Washington, D. C.

MARYLAND HELPING COMMODITY DAY

ALL SECTIONS OF STATE GIVING CANNED GOODS AND DRIED FRUITS

NEED GREAT QUANTITY

As a result of the appeal which was made to the city of Baltimore for food stuffs to help all the Food Ship "Alla-quash" sailing from Philadelphia to Batoum, a splendid start was made. Hundreds of cases of prunes, raisins, corn-beef, salmon, soup, condensed milk, syrup, chocolate and ocoos, preserves, and jams, also soaps were sent. Sacks of sugar, flour, beans, seed wheat and seed corn helped to swell the cargo.

The need was only partly met. The appeal is now spreading throughout the State. Hagerstown and Frederick have used the public schools as did Baltimore for collecting points. Every school child was asked to bring on a certain day some of the desired articles.

The Boy Scouts collected the materials and put them in packing cases.

In Kent County through the efforts of Mrs. Evelyn Harris certain garages and stores were used as collecting points, where farmers brought all sorts of clothing and shoes, garden seed and commodities. These were gathered together by Gladders Express and brought to Baltimore to be included in the shipload.

Churches are now planning to have a white gift service, the results to be sent on the next ship sailing about the 10th of January. Gather together your clothing now. Order from your local grocer now. Delve into your pantries, search your warehouses and give something for the 2,000,000 people in the Near East who face starvation, 200,000 of whom are orphans. Notify the State Director at 14 W. Franklin Street, Baltimore, Maryland, of the material which is being sent. Wherever possible ask local companies to send it out.

Hoes, rakes, shovels, spades and other tools of all sorts are most acceptable. Put in a hammer or other tools which you can spare.

In the counties numerous auction sales are being held and farm machinery is being disposed of at low prices. Why not give many of these tools to the Near East Relief? There is nothing over there with which to begin the work of reconstructing cities or planting in the spring except as Americans furnish the utensils.

MODERN AMERICAN FARM TOOLS NEEDED

CONDITIONS IN THE CAUCASUS

Modern American farm implements are the only hope of preventing a recurrence next year of the present starvation situation in Armenia and adjacent states in Transcaucasian Russia. Captain Ernest A. Yarrow, relief director for those areas, cabled Maryland headquarters, near East Relief, today. He urged the immediate shipment of motor and horse tractors of all descriptions for use on 180,000 acres of land, that have been turned over by the local governments to American relief workers, to cultivate by using the labor of those whom American charity is aiding.

Following this plan of constructive relief in the Near East, word has been received by the Near East Relief office in New York that the National Grange, in session in Portland, Ore., had offered to send a tractor to the Armenian farmers through the relief organization. Offers of other agricultural implements, which are badly needed throughout the Near East, have also been received from other sources.

NEAR EAST SUFFERS FROM BITTER COLD

VAST NUMBERS OF ILL-CLAD REFUGEES CAUGHT WITH-OUT SHELTER

Cold weather is causing intense suffering throughout the Near East where it has caught vast armies of refugees ill-clad, hungry and without adequate shelter, workers of the Near East Relief from various areas overseas reported to Maryland headquarters today.

"Conditions among the refugees removed here from Ismid and other towns on the Peninsula are pitiful," reports an American worker in Thrace. "Most of them escaped at the time of the Greek evacuation with little more than the ragged garments they wore. When cold weather came within twenty-four hours this week relief headquarters was besieged by a large crowd of shivering humanity. Little children with only one tattered cotton garment, shrank as with the ague in the cold wind and sleet. During four days we clothed 1700 persons."

APPLE TREES POINT MORAL

All of Us, If We Would, Can Find Satisfaction in a Little Life Dream Coming True.

Oliver Wendell Holmes tells of a man who, in youth, planned to buy a certain piece of land for a home-stead, and on one part of it to plant an apple orchard, so that he could have the flowering trees in spring, the ripening fruit in summer and apples to eat and cider to drink in winter, says the Vancouver Sun.

Years passed, the man progressed toward old age; his son grew up, married and had a son. Finally the money was saved, the land bought, and the three men, grandfather, father and grandson, debated the question of planting the apple orchard.

The grandson said it took apple trees seven years to come into bearing, and he could not take any interest in anything happening so far ahead; the father said no one could tell what would happen in seven years, and they had better plant yearly crops; the grandfather said he would plant the apple trees himself, and he did, and lived 14 years, and during the last years of his life enjoyed the sight of the flowering trees and the apples and the cider in the delight and satisfaction of a little life dream come true.

Wherefore, says Doctor Holmes, if the time comes when you must lay down the fiddle and the bow because your fingers are too stiff, and drop the oars because your arms are too weak, and come at last to the reality of spectacles—if the time comes when the fire of life has burned low, that where its flames reverberated there is only the somber stain of regret, and where its coals glowed there are only the white ashes that cover the embers of memory—don't let your heart grow cold, and you may carry cheerfulness and love with you into the teens of your second century, if you can last so long.

BIG PRICE, BUT WORTH IT

England Paid Kingdom for Bill of Rights and Has Never Regretted the Fact.

One writer has aptly observed that England paid a kingdom for the Bill of Rights, but it was worth it. Literally the observation is true, for England presented to Prince William of Orange the British throne at the same moment that the protocol of the Bill of Rights was submitted for his sanction or rejection.

England found herself in a quandary with James II a fugitive in France, and William of Orange, son-in-law of James, with 13,000 Dutch invading the country. Anarchy was imminent. Then to save the country the opposing factions agreed that a parliament should be elected, which should enact a declaration of rights. So in 1689 parliament, duly elected, decided that James had forfeited his throne, and it was offered to William and his wife Mary. The declaration of rights was presented to their majesties in the banquet hall at Whitehall from a window through which Charles I had stepped out onto the scaffold 40 years before.

Curious Behavior of Yangtze.

The Yangtze, the great muddy river of China, is one of the greatest of streams, and its valley is the most densely populated and closely cultivated river basin in the world. It crosses the whole of China in its 2,000-mile course to the sea. The Yangtze has a different name in almost every province, and pours a flood of diluted mud through half its valley, tingling the ocean for more than a hundred miles offshore. There are many interesting features of this most interesting river.

When the snows melt in Tibet and the monsoon pours its annual flood on the watershed, the Yangtze rises 80 or 100 feet at Chungking, 70 or 80 feet at Ichang and 40 or 50 feet at Hankau, sweeping in a fierce flood from June to October, and then falling as rapidly as a foot a day.

Indian Cotton Cloth.

Indian cotton cloth is mentioned by Herodotus, and was known in Arabia in the Seventh century. In Spain cotton was quite extensively grown and manufactured in the Tenth century, but its manufacture was not introduced into other countries until some centuries later.

Tired

"I was weak and run-down," relates Mrs. Eula Burnett, of Dalton, Ga. "I was thin and just felt tired, all the time. I didn't rest well. I wasn't ever hungry. I knew, by this, I needed a tonic, and as there is none better than—

CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic

"... I began using Cardui," continues Mrs. Burnett. "After my first bottle, I slept better and ate better. I took four bottles. Now I'm well, feel just fine, eat and sleep, my skin is clear and I have gained and sure feel that Cardui is the best tonic ever made."

Thousands of other women have found Cardui just as Mrs. Burnett did. It should help you.

PRINCESS ANNE, MARYLAND

LENA'S BABY

By MARY J. HITCHCOCK.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Angela put the pan of biscuits down on the table and looked out of the pantry window. At the foot of the lane Amos was talking with the rural delivery man. Angela's sigh became a sob. How much of her present unhappiness would be gossip tomorrow? A tear splashed onto the bread board—another and another. Angela put her head down on the table and cried.

Summer heat, the time when romance calls to the blood; blood heat, the period when desire sings through one's veins—Angela had known each, and now it was zero!

"It wouldn't be so hard if I had someone else to love—a baby, now—" But the thought was fresh torture to Angela's bruised heart. Hadn't she hoped from the first that there would be children at Meadowbrook? Hopes had become prayers and heaven had been deaf! That was the added bitterness to her present grief. If Amos left her for that other woman there would be nothing but the long, lonely years! Angela knew. She had matured early, faded soon, and she had none of Lina's plump prettiness in her own lean, lank shapelessness.

And Lina Summers, who had laughed at the love of two men, was claiming Amos for her own.

"What you going to do about it, now that you know about us?" Amos had demanded. "There ain't no use our trying to go on same as if you'd never found it out. You'll have to say—"

But Angela had said nothing. Not then, nor through the long night which she had spent in the spare room. In the morning she had come to the homely tasks of every day.

And out in the lane Amos was turning toward the house—walking quickly, as he was apt to do when excited or troubled.

"Lina ain't expected to live the day out," he cried, standing white and anxious eyed in the doorway. "She went to a dance at the Corners last night and her husband was there. They say he tried to make her go home with him, but she jumped into an auto and tried to run it herself. I've got to go—"

It was dark when the sound of wheels roused Angela to activity again. All day she had seemed dead, yet conscious of the underlying throb of heart-ache—misery that had tortured and drained her of her strength. But she asked no questions as Amos stumbled across the lamp-light and called to her. "I've come over after you; I'm going right back—"

"Me! You came for me!" "I'm banking on you standing by her. Just because she's a woman, too. Maybe she won't last till we get there, but I told her husband you'd come—"

"Her husband. Is he—?"

"Been there all day—and all worked up, now she's going so fast!"

"I'm sorry for all of you," Angela found courage, and voice in the same minute. "She's done all she can to any of us, but I can't forget—"

"Last night?" Amos interrupted. "I know—I said things—but I thought, seeing as there's a baby—"

"Baby!" Angela grew tense.

"Didn't you know? She ran away from her husband because she didn't want to be tied down to children. He was trying to make her go home with him on account of the other little girl he didn't know how to take care of himself. Seems like she didn't run away soon enough, though, and—"

But Angela was no longer listening. In a minute she was slipping into her coat, pulling on her hat.

"Hurry!" she commanded, and again as they walked through the doorway to the waiting wagon—"Hurry!"

In the upper chamber where Lina was breathing out her life two men and a woman watched her labored gasping. Angela moved close to the tiny nurse of humanity that had slipped in as Lina was called out. Amos opened the door as the doctor returned from below stairs.

The woman on the bed opened heavy lidded eyes.

"I've made a lot of trouble—for all of you—" Her gaze left the others, fastened itself on the husband who leaned over her. "I'm sorry!" With an effort she turned her head toward Angela. "If I had been like you. You're a born mother. Could you—?" The dim eyes finished the question.

"I've been promising God I'd be a good mother—if—oh, I want to be!" Angela cried.

"Queer, you ain't never said a word to me about it since Lina died," Amos said to Angela one day. "But I want you to know—I wasn't as ready to leave you as you thought. She wasn't the kind to please me for long. I don't know what got into me—"

"It had to happen," Angela was humming at the sewing machine where she was making up tiny dresses for Lina's child. "I'd been praying for years for children I wasn't meant to get. Maybe there wasn't no other way of making it come true!"

"Making what come true?" Amos asked.

"The power and the glory," Angela answered, and would say nothing more.

THE BELGIANS

BUT FATE WORSE THAN THAT COUNTRY, SAYS CAPTAIN GRACEY

IS EASTERN AUTHORITY

Startling revelations about conditions in Armenia, were made by Captain George Gracey, B. S. O., an authority on the Eastern question, during a recent address, the following extracts from which are sent by Maryland headquarters, Near East Relief.

Armenia, declared Captain Gracey, was not unlike Belgium, but the suffering in Belgium, as the result of the German invasion, was not to be compared with that of the Armenians. And the Armenians are still suffering.

In the autumn of 1914, said Captain Gracey, the Turks sent emissaries to the national Congress of the Ottoman Armenians, then sitting at Erzerum, and made offers of autonomy if they would actively assist Turkey in the war. The Armenians replied that they would do their duty individually, as Ottoman subjects, but that as a nation they could not work for the cause of Turkey and her allies. On account, in part of this courageous refusal, the Ottoman Armenians were systematically murdered by the Turkish Government in 1915. Two-thirds of the population of Armenia were exterminated by the most cold-blooded and diabolical methods—more than 700,000 men, women and children. Thousands of men, women and children were deported. In this scheme of extermination 300,000 died before the deportation plan was completed.

Over 1,000 of the younger men were hurled down cliffs and killed. When a river was to be crossed, the women and children would be made to undress and the Turks would then take the jewelry that was concealed about them. It was no revolutionary society that held the Armenians together, said the Captain, it was their religion.

One Armenian priest was seized by the Turks and his Bible burnt, the same fire being used to sear his face, arms and legs. Then he was shod with iron shoes, as if he were a horse, and he was made to run about with a Turk on his back. To end his agony, the priest threw himself in a well. But he was taken out by the Turks, who then beat him to death. But there were even worse things done than this, said Captain Gracey.

The Americans, Captain Gracey pointed out, are supporting 100,000 orphans and there are still 100,000 unprovided for. He had received a letter, stating that Russian soldiers had given up parts of their rations so that some of the Armenians could satisfy their pangs of hunger. The soldiers could not see them suffer. For himself, Captain Gracey said he looked upon these Armenian children as if had been his own, and they were as dear. There were 30,000 orphans alone in the little town in which he had been working.

HAD NO CROPS BUT AIDED NEAR EAST

THESE FARMERS FOUND WAY TO HELP STARVING AND FREEZ-ING ARMENIANS

Maryland farmers who think their situation is bad, who say they can find nothing to give the Near East Relief to aid the freezing and starving hordes in the Caucasus, should read the following two letters, which are sent out from Maryland Headquarters, Near East Relief.

Here's the first one:

"Girvan, Sask., Nov. 9, 1921.

"Rev. Mr. Irwin,
"Winnipeg, Man.

"Dear Sir:

"Please find enclosed card as my donation towards the Armenian fund. I am sorry that I have not been able to make it a great deal larger, but I haven't had a crop since 1915. This year I had a good crop, but I got hauled out. There hasn't been a year since 1915 that I haven't had to buy seed, either wheat or oats, and I will have to buy oats again. However, I am sending this donation, small as it is, hoping that it may grow the same as when Christ fed the five thousand with the barley loaves and two small fishes, 10 1/2 bushels No. 3. I have delivered this grain on the above date.

"Yours for success,

"S. MILLAR,
"Box 31."

Here's the other letter:

"Altkow, Sask., Nov. 11, 1921.

"Rev. H. M. Irwin,
"402 Chamber of Commerce Bldg.,
"Winnipeg, Man.

"Dear Sir:

"The appeal to hand to help the fund being raised for starving Armenian children, and through the schools one of these circulars reached our children and today, Peace Bay, we want to commemorate it any better than what we can give in cash. Our wheat only amounted to 10 bushels this year and we are others worse off than I. I have received, in a motto I love to read, 'be glad to hear if this safely.'

"Mrs. George A. Clark."

Me-o-my, how you'll take to a pipe—and P. A.!

Before you're a day older you want to let the idea slip under your hat that this is the open season to start something with a joy's jimmy pipe—and some Prince Albert!

Because, a pipe packed with Prince Albert satisfies a man as he was never satisfied before—and keeps him satisfied! And, you can prove it! Why—P. A.'s flavor and fragrance and coolness and its freedom from bite and parch (cut out by our exclusive patented process) are a revelation to the man who never could get acquainted with a pipe! P. A. has made a pipe a thing of joy to four men where one was smoked before!

Ever roll up a cigarette with Prince Albert? Man, man—but you've got a party coming your way! Talk about a cigarette smoke; we tell you it's a peach!

Prince Albert is sold in tippy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tin humidor and the pound crystal glass humidifier with sponge moistener top.

BEFORE HEALTH BREAKS DOWN

Wise People Take Pepto-Mangan the Blood Builder

The prevention of sickness is one of the greatest works of the public health authorities. People are being taught how to take care of their bodies so that they can avoid sickness. In schools children are being taught hygiene. Serious illness can be avoided by proper care of the health. Pale faces, sickly bodies, loss of appetite and sleep, headaches and nervousness are usually signs of weak blood. With poor blood, the body has no resistance.

Disease germs have an easy time of it. People are learning the necessity of keeping blood in good condition. They take Gude's Pepto-Mangan when they feel run down. That keeps blood normal so that it can resist disease. It is sold in both liquid and tablet form at drug stores.—Advertisement.

TOO MUCH FOR CARTHAGINIAN

How Action of Legendary Giant of Italian Town Saved the Place From Pillage.

The old town of Molfetta, on the Adriatic, is rich in legends, one of which Constance M. Panunzio narrates in his book, "The Soul of an Immigrant." While Hannibal was ravaging Italia Antica the news reached Molfetta that a mighty host was about to descend upon it. The Roman centurion in command called the people together and told them to be of good cheer, for did they not boast one citizen alone, the giant of the place, who could drive back an entire army? The people had an uncanny regard for the giant's muscular drive, although they hardly felt that he would be able to rout, single-handed, Hannibal's combat divisions. He did it, however, by a ruse. At the command of the centurion he made his way to the outskirts of the village, where he lay down in the middle of the road. As the invading army approached he began to utter unearthly howls and screams. Hannibal's chief of staff came up to him and asked him what was the matter. He replied: "I am the smallest man in the town, and my heartless neighbors have driven me out so that I may not be in their way when the fight really starts."

The Carthaginian army retreated in record time.

That Sunday School Class!

Wishing to become acquainted with the methods of her predecessor, a young woman who taught a Sunday school class for the first time asked the group of bright-faced six-year-olds what the lesson had been the previous Sunday. Silence prevailed for a moment. Then a snub-nosed urchin waved his hand frantically and when granted permission to speak, answered: "It was about burning the bugs in the church." Conversation with the former teacher afterwards revealed that the lesson had been "Burning Incense in the Temple."

Country Mere Group of munities Before the and the Phone.

Students of the American government agree that one of the facts is the fact that a democracy has been made possible throughout the world by the use of the telephone. It will be remembered that Monroe warned congress that the country that reached from the Atlantic to the Middle West was "too extensive to be governed but by a despotic monarchy."

Monroe's pessimistic prophecy would doubtless have been fulfilled if the means of distributing political information had remained what they were in his day. Even with horseback riders displacing the stage coach, postal service was slow. It required three weeks for the news of Madison's election to reach the pioneers of Kentucky. The nation was merely a group of isolated communities.

To the telegraph and the telephone are due in part the satisfactory operation of election machinery, and hence, to a large extent, the success of a democratic form of government, under modern conditions.

Easy Way to Find Beam.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Rose, "here I have battered the wall all up with this nail—made a dozen unsightly holes trying to strike a beam, for that picture is heavy and must have a strong support."

Now, if Rose had only run her gaze along the mop board and noticed where it was nailed, she could easily have driven her nail in line with that and struck the beam or studding the first time.

Also, Rose should have dipped the nail in hot oil before pounding it into the wall. It would have been no chump, the plaster.

Arsenic in

It has long been known that arsenic is in human food. In certain plants, turnip and potato, and Astruc, mel.

Academy of Science, that arsenic is also to be found in peas, beans, lettuce, celer, parsnips and in most vegetables as food by man, as well as in apples, pears, pineapples, oranges and nuts. Since plants undoubtedly get the element from the soil, arsenic must occur far more widely in nature than was at one time supposed.

Ile de Treilles.

The point of the island, of the original Ile de Treilles, behind the statue of Henri IV, is one of those bright spots of green which leave an unrecognized impression upon the summer visitor to Paris.

"The western point of the island, that ship's prow continually at anchor, which, in the flow of two currents, looks at Paris, without ever reaching it. . . . A lonely strand, planted with great trees, a delicious retreat; an asylum in the midst of the crowd." (Zola)—"Walks in Paris." Augustus J. C. Hare.

Universal Products

The Standardized Electric Light and Power Plant

TAKE the family washing and ironing, for instance—two of the hardest, most depressing tasks American women have had to endure. The Universal Products plant frees the women of the home for all time from the dreaded "blue Monday."

Here is power for many uses in the home and on the farm—for churning butter, doing the sweeping; the washing and for pumping water, running the dairy machinery—in fact for all the round of duties that take so much time that can now-days be put to better use.

And there are hours gained for leisure and comfort and grace of living. Bright, cheerful, genial light—evenings pleasanter, the family happier and everybody more comfortable at home.

Universal Products Light and Power keeps workers contented. Its labor-saving economy enables them to actually accomplish more 365 days in the year.

Let us show you this simple, economical plant. It costs less than you think. It produces more than you believe possible. Let us demonstrate some of the 1700 things it will do for you.
