ROTC Accepted As Accredited Program

ROTC has formally and finally been approved by the College Forum as an accredited college program. The Forum voted overwhelmingly to accept the ROTC program as approved by the College Senate and recommended be the Curriculum Committee, at its special meeting last Wednesday, March 5.

The College Senate approved the ROTC program last December 12. However some members of the college community felt the issue was not adequately discussed and organized a recall petition. The validity of the recall petition became the object of debate at the February 13 meeting. The petition was accepted by the Forum yet the motion itself was tabled until the next meeting because requested documentation had not been circulated to members before the meeting.

At the March 5 meeting, Tom Franke (English Dept.), opened debate by proposing an amendment to the ROTC cross enrollment agreement with West Virginia University. The amendment, which altered section f of the cross enrollment agreement read as follows: "f. To grant academic credit not applicable towards graduation (that is institutional credit) for successful completion of courses by the Department of Military Science in accordance with established college policies..." (italic shows changes to motion)

What followed this amendment was a long and varied debate among the faculty and administrators in attendance. Dr. Root, Chairman of the Curriculum, explained the amount of time spent on the ROTC program just in his committee and subsequently closed debate on the amendment. When the vote was taken, the amendment to remove academic credit was defeated.

More debate ensued over the main motion at hand, the question of accepting ROTC as a 12 credit program. The main motion passed and after three months of debate, ROTC has become a component of our curriculum.

NATIONAL NEWS

Asserting that Ronald Reagan was "still the champion," former Texas governor John B. Connally formally withdrew his candidacy for the nomination of president for the Republican party. After spending $10 million dollars in a campaign that in Connally's own words "never got off the ground," Connally decided to withdraw from the race after receiving a sound thrashing from 3-time presidential hopeful, Ronald Reagan in the South Carolina presidential primary. Reagan won all six of the state's legislative districts with 54% of the vote, while Connally carried none of the districts in his second place finish with 30% of the popular vote. So far, Connally has not thrown his support to any other candidate in the form of an endorsement, but he stated that he might do so after conferring with his supporters.

Also withdrawing his name from future primary elections was Senator Howard Baker of Tennessee. Baker made the announcement after poor showings in both the Massachusetts and Vermont primaries. In the two primaries held last week, George Bush won in Massachusetts and finished third in Vermont, behind Ronald Reagan and a surprised John Anderson, who captured second place in both primaries. Bush, however, did not fare so well in the S.C. primary, where he won only 9% of the vote which earned him a third place finish. Rep. Anderson opted not to participate in that primary.

In the race for the Democratic nomination, Senator Edward Kennedy soundly defeated his two rivals, Jimmy Carter and California governor Jerry Brown, in his home state of Massachusetts. The victory was the first for the Massachusetts Senator, who hopes the victory will help revitalize his floundering campaign. In Vermont, it was president Carter who emerged victorious, as he defeated Sen. Kennedy by a margin of almost 3-1. Gov. Brown declined to enter the race in Vermont, citing a lack of support and funds.

The militant Iranian students who have held 50 Americans captive for 130 days have once again reversed an earlier decision and have decided not to release the hostages into the custody of the Iranian Revolutionary Council. The militants have stated that they will not allow the U.N. Commission to meet with the hostages or transfer them to government custody until certain conditions are met and approval is voiced by the Ayatollah Khomeini. Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh has issued a statement on behalf of the Revolutionary Council and the Iranian government in which he criticized the militants for imposing new conditions upon the release of the hostages.

The International Federation for Human Rights, located in Paris, has released information that said the Soviet Union is using deadly nerve gas to combat the Afgani rebels. One-hundred thirty-eight thousand Afghanis were forced from their homes and "entire families" were being killed in the gas attacks. The use of nerve gas is part of an all-out offensive by the Soviets in an effort to drive the Afghani people into submission. The Soviet News Agency has denied all reports of

Committee Justifies Proposed Increase

In a letter to Dr. Nelson Guild dated March 10, 1980, the Athletic Activities Committee has officially requested a fee increase from $44 to $64 per year. The proposed increase, along with a projected budget for Program 18 and a philosophical statement from the department and committee was unanimously accepted by the Athletics Activities Committee and has been passed on to the president and College Senate for final approval.

According to the letter written by Dr. David Fell, chairman of the Athletic committee, "One of the unanimous recommendations of our committee concerning a quality program is that the welfare of student participants must be a central concern"

Factors identified as crucial to a quality varsity, intramural, and recreational program include "facilities; coaching personnel; squad size; number of allowed contests; health, shelter, and nutritional considerations for athletes; adequate pre-season practice and post season participation opportunities; provision for effective sports information dissemination; provision for reasonable recruitment; and provision for continuing education through clinics and conferences." In addition the Committee recommended that bus transportation of teams to contests is essential to the welfare of both coaches and players.

A proposed budget was prepared by Ken Kutler, Athletics Director, and initially totalled more than $200,000. Reductions had to be made in the number of allowed contests for most programs and pre-game meals were eliminated. (See page 8 and 9 for existing and proposed budgets.) As quoted from the letter to Guild, the committee proposes "to continue all existing sports programs at a level of quality somewhat higher than at present but somewhat lower than we would propose if resources were not a concern".

"This increase reflects inflationary pressures, a desire to improve aspects of the program, and a determination to promote equity within and between men's and women's sport programs."

The committee maintains that the success of the proposals are dependent upon the retention of the two contractual staff members allocated to the department in spring 1979. The continuance of men's gymnastics is recommended but subject to review in January 1981 based on three conditions: a) minimum squad size of 10 men, b) minimum of 5 men per event (6 events), c) minimum of 4 all-arounders. The continuation of men's tennis will depend upon the department's ability to employ a qualified coach. Otherwise, the committee will recommend the suspension of men's tennis after the current season.

Other notable changes in Program 18 include increases in the meal allowances for athletes at away contest, extension of the pre-season training camp to cross-country, field hockey, soccer and women's tennis; and a maximum of $200. per club sport to help cover travel expenses and meals (see page 11). The College currently has four club sports: rugby, women's cross country, volleyball and women's softball.

Athletic Director Kutler maintains that the athletic activity fee is not a building usage fee. "It is a support fee for intercollegiate athletics", stated Kutler. In his opinion it does not give the student the right to attend an athletic event. "It is a tax", said Kutler.

If the fee increase is not approved, "Our program and all the decisions that the committee has made will have to go back to the drawing board" Kutler said.

Editorial

As shown by the extensive documents produced by the Athletic Activities Committee, considerable time and energy has been spent in developing the departmental philosophical statement, projected budgets for the '80-'81 school year, equitable distribution of financial resources and most importantly, the commitment to the welfare of the student participant. We applaud this monumental effort and acknowledge the good intentions of the Committee.

However, in spite of this effort, a vast majority of us still harbor resentment towards a program which is paid for out of student fees and exists for the students of this college. Undercurrents abound on this campus. Usually our anger is vented at the football program which traditionally is one of the most expensive sports to maintain. Although next year's projected budget shows a decrease in the amount of money designated toward the football program, this may only temporarily pacify the majority of the critics.

The problem will still exist. A large number of students who are not as actively involved in the athletics program still feel disenfranchised.

The College community will get its chance to debate this issue before the Senate in the near future. Even more important than whether the fee is increased or not, is the attitude between the Athletic department and the student body as a whole. The surface issue of this fee increase appears to be easily resolved. The department has justified the expenditures. However, the real challenge arrives when we, collectively as students, faculty, and administrators, attempt to resolve the deep seated hostilities that immediately boil whenever mention of our athletic program and budget is made.

COMMENTARY:

Frostburg National What???

Are you annoyed with the new banking system Frostburg National Bank has adopted? You should be.

First, it was the inconvenience of the "10 - day hold" that the students had to cope with. Then as if today's prices are not high enough and our pockets not as empty as they should be, the Bank declares a $3.00 service charge for checking accounts. But now comes the last straw. After withdrawing money from one's savings account three times in one month, the person has to pay a $.50 charge for processing. Frostburg National has no sympathy.

I, myself, have been humiliated more than once by this bank and for no reason. This is why, as soon as the Bank declared a $3.00 service charge for checking, I took my account elsewhere. But I have a car and travel to Cumberland to work on weekends, so a bank in the LaVale vicinity is not a big inconvenience for me. However, if you're a student without the means to bank elsewhere, Frostburg National is abusing you as a customer. If it were not for the college students, the bank's operations would drastically be reduced. Admittedly, there are a few students that have abused

There have been numerous articles concerning this situation. It deserves a lot of attention. What the bank has done and is doing is irritating, humiliating, and disgusting. It would be nice if we had a better way to take care of our transactions. But until then all we can do is complain, so let's make our complaints constructive and heard.

This Thursday night, March 13, 1980 the SGA will have a bank representative at the House meeting. He will be explaining the present system and its necessities. If you want to hear things first - hand and air your views, attend the SGA meeting this Thursday night. We can not let Frostburg National walk all over us.

COFFEE DRINKERS : You have probably been told many times that drinking coffee is not healthful; hopefully you've replied that you don't care. The French author and critic, Voltaire, however, had a better answer to this criticism. Voltaire, who reportedly drank 50 cups of coffee daily, once responded to the charge that coffee was a slow poison by saying, "I think it must be for I've been drinking it for 65 years and am not dead yet." The French diplomat Talleyrand was also a known coffee enthusiast; he eloquently described an 'ideal' cup of coffee as one which is "black as the devil, hot as hell, pure as an angel, and sweet as love". Sir James MacKintosh, a Scottish philosopher and statesman, went as far to assert that a man's mental power was directly proportional to the amount of coffee he consumed. However, the authors of Today on 'Who Cares?' believe that they have disproved this claim—they have uncovered living evidence against MacKintosh's assertion in the person of Chris Tutin, who admits to drinking nine cups of coffee daily, and whose mental powers remain underdeveloped.

Within 25 years, the clan grew to include 6 daughters, 8 sons, 18 grandsons and 14 granddaughters, all of whom were raised on grandma's home cooking. By 1435, when law officials finally stopped them, the Beane clan had already consumed over 1,000 people. While we're on this shoe sizes!

Judical System to Be Revised

The Judicial Revision Committee is composed of eight active members whose task is to revise and better the present-day judicial system of Frostburg State College. It is felt that there are inconsistencies between hearing officers and boards and limited sanctions to work with. There is a definite gap between probation and suspension. Another problem area was the technical language used in the booklet describing the college judicial system. The question was, "How can students, as well as others, follow the standards of the system if they cannot understand the description of the system?"

The committee, during their first few meetings discussed among themselves their goals and aims. Then there was a meeting where guest speakers, members of the college community, aired their views concerning the judicial system. An array of individuals were heard from, such as, campus police, students, past and present members of the Judicial board and administrators. Many of them, despite their field differences, mentioned the need for simplicity, for coordination, and for some specificity, especially concerning the sanctions. Moreover, sentences should be compatible with the crime and should not vary drastically for similar cases.

Also, needed is a spokesmen to represent the person bringing the charges, for too often the cases have been one-sided.

Dr. Guild was present at a subsequent meeting. His presentation focused on creating a more air-tight and consistent system. The president stated that the college needs a fairer and stronger judicial system in order to deal with present day dangers.

The Judicial Revision Committee now has its sights set on a revision of the present handbook; it needs to be restructured and reordered, the committee claims. The biggest concern of the revision is rewording. The committee wants to have an end product that is comprehensible by most everyone. The committee does plan to work on some disciplinary action in between probation and suspension. Redefining the judicial process, or trial procedure, will be another task.

The Judicial Revision Committee is incorporating not only their own ideas, but also the ideas of others. It is not too late to make suggestions for the re-vamping of the judicial system of Frostburg State College. Students should be particularly interested since this system mostly affects their welfare. For more information get in touch with any SGA representative, Pat Cuddy or Bill Hutson.

PLAY REVIEW: Charley's Aunt

Last weekend, March 6th, 7th, and 8th, FSC's Department of Speech and Theatre presented "Charley's Aunt," a three-act comedy by Brandon Thomas. The performance was highly entertaining, though perhaps a bit less professional and polished than the department's past performances. Generally, the technical effects, such as lighting and set, were more than passable and the actors were competent, if not striking.

Tom Herber as Jack Chesney performed adequately, but seemed to lack the naturalness and ease necessary to a good stage presence. Steve Moffett, who portrayed Charley Wyke-

Seder Feast Celebration

Each year United Campus Ministry sponsors the Seder Feast, which is an ecumenical Jewish-Christian celebration of the Passover. This year it will be held at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church on Thursday, March 20th at 5:30 p.m. It is opened to the entire campus community—students, faculty and administrators. To be sure, persons may feel free to invite friends who are not related to the college. If you are interested in attending the Seder, kindly write your name on the sign up sheet which is located on the first floor of the Osborne Center, just after you enter the front door. ham, succeeded in producing a rather stereotyped version of the lovesick Oxford clod, yet he assumed his character well enough not to appear artificial. Bill Arthor as Sir Francis was very good and his subtle and steady portrayal was supportive to the performance. David Chase as Brassett, the valet, was another constant element in the play—he stayed in character well, and his carriage and stage movements were noticeably good. Susie MacDonald as Kitty and Shari Jones as Amy played well off each other and thereby succeeded in injecting personality into what might have been rather flat characters. Geneva Wright as Donna Lucia was excellent—she succeeded in portraying the many aspects of her relatively complex character. Janet Officer in the minor role of Ela, was convincing and entertaining. Perhaps the best performer was Eric Trumbull in the role of the wicked old uncle, Stephen Spettigue. Trumbull had a role which could easily have been exaggerated into pretentiousness, but instead was believable and, consequently very amusing. The most striking character Lord Babberley, portrayed by Bruce Lockhart. His performance was outstanding, and he drew most of the laughs; he "carried the show" to a noticeable degree, but then the play's script practically prescribed that he should.

The performance, on the whole, lacked intensity and attention to detail (didn't someone notice that the "grab - the - baggage - ballet" performed in Act I was getting tired after its second repeat?) that FSC's presentations usually have, but the play was none the less entertaining, and it could be argued that the "light 'n breezy" quality of the performance merely helped make it more enjoyable.

Auditions For St. Joan

Frostburg State College Theatre announces that auditions for its production of St. Joan, by George Bernard Shaw, will be open to men in the community. There are numerous roles for men of all ages and physical appearance. Open auditions will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the following locations: Tuesday, March 11 in Compton Gym; Wednesday, March 12 in Room 201 in the Lane College Center; Thursday, March 13 in Pullen Auditorium. Final casting for principals who get called back will begin Friday at Pullen.

The play is about Joan of Arc. In Shaw's eyes, she was burned as a witch because she embarrassed soldiers, the king, and church leaders. The play moves between the comic and the serious, and is considered a modern classic.

Performance dates are April 24, 25, and 26. The director is David Press, professor of Speech and Theatre.

Desegregation Efforts Success

by Pansye S. Atkinson

A decade of desegregation efforts at Frostburg State College, coordinated and monitored by the Office of Minority Affairs, has brought about significantly increased minority student enrollment and good retention rates. The undergraduate minority-student graduation rate at Frostburg has averaged about 57% since 1969, although the average national graduation rate for students in general in similar institutions is significantly lower.

In 1969, minority students comprised 1% of the approximate 2,000 undergraduate enrollment. With a current enrollment of approximately 3,000 students, Frostburg's full-time undergraduate minority student enrollment now averages about 8%. Although minority enrollment in graduate programs is gradually increasing, increases by the low percentage of minority population in western Maryland.

Among the factors contributing to the success of Frostburg's desegregation program and to the long-term success rates for Frostburg's minority students are: 1) intensive recruitment-effort of the Minority Admissions Counselor who initiated the recruitment program in 1969, when Frostburg was little known to Maryland's black community; 2) development of excellent academic and student-life programs, and academic support services; 3) the College's leadership, generally cooperative staff and faculty, and sophisticated student body; 4) cooperative efforts with the Frostburg community; 5) minority students with a seriousness of purpose; 6) the increased presence and concerned efforts of minority faculty and staff; 7) coordination and monitoring of the desegregation process, under the supervision of Minority Affairs since 1969; 8) the Minority Affairs orientation and academic advising system, implemented in 1970.

The Minority Affairs Office—originally called the Integration Office—was instituted in 1969 when the State Colleges' desegregation program was implemented. While providing immediate support for the handful of minority students who were enrolled at that time, the Office began to foster in the College/Frostburg community understanding of and provision for the academic, social, and personal needs of minority students.

Programs which Minority Affairs requested be developed were an orientation and academic advising and counseling program to meet the needs of incoming black students; study skills and tutoring programs; a developmental communications program (English, Reading, Speech); student-life programming and measures for improved minority-student welfare. All programs have been developed, although a fundamental speech course has not been included in the developmental communications program.

Minority Affairs also pointed out the need for increased minority courses and minority faculty and staff.

Through the years, the Minority Affairs office has retained individual student welfare as number one priority. We maintain that the desegregation program should enhance the chances of success, the quality of life, and the academic development of the minority student, and this philosophy is reflected in the policies and practices of the Office.

Within the framework of the general responsibilities defined when the Office was instituted, specific objectives and functions of Minority Affairs develop as needs are expressed and/or perceived. The Minority Affairs staff functions primarily as follows:

- (1) Coordinates, monitors, and evaluates the College's desegregation process.
- (2) Advises the President and his staff in regard to the welfare of minority students.
- (3) Acts as ombudsman and trouble-shooter in the areas of minority-student welfare and human relations.
- (4) Promotes a multi-cultural community on campus—a community in which the traditions and needs of various races and ethnic groups are understood, accepted, and shared.
- (5) Plans programs, often in collaboration with other departments, to enhance minority-student welfare and improve human relations.
- (6) Promotes the academic and personal welfare, security, self-reliance and success of minority students by these means: a) serving as academic and general advisor to all black students during the first year of enrollment to

Commentary On The Liberal Arts

by Dr. Paul LaChance

Arts and Dollars

Beyond mere job preparation, which too many students—and some faculty—think is the sole aim of college life, the purpose of liberal education is an initiation into one's total human culture. Dr. Eva Brann from St. John's College, Annapolis, will have more to say on this at the Allegany Liberal Arts Festival to be held on this campus April 11-12. It will suffice here, then, to say merely that, from a holistic viewpoint, the liberal arts exist for one's very participation in the liberal arts themselves. Viewed from the perspective of culture, the liberal arts exist to embody and perpetuate the abiding, enduring fruits of human excellence—in the fine arts, the humanities, the sciences, and (perhaps) even in Eastern culture. If we lose sight of that high goal of education, we, as a college community, could end up by letting our students cheat themselves out of an invaluable learning process.

This past Fall, the College Senate passed the new Academic Master Plan which further stimulates the college's current revision of the General Studies Program and recommends the blending of liberal and practical or professional studies. A good education in both areas is proposed to our students to help them be competent in today's competitive job market. But there is, of course, more to liberal education than underwriting successful pursuit of the top-dollar in the business world. And the new Academic Master Plan (q.v.) strives to articulate those "other" aims.

The liberal arts may be good, in the long run, for one's purse, but in the immediate and abiding run of one's life, the liberal arts are better because they cultivate the human mind and soul.

Wheels Within Wheels

Aldous Huxley was right when he argued that "an army, without weapons of precision and with no particular base of operations, might more hopefully enter upon a campaign on the Rhine, than a man, devoid of a knowledge of what physical science has done in the last century, upon a criticism of life." It was true then and I suspect it is even more true after Einstein, Bohr, Heisenberg, and Heidegger. But the danger is our grasp of liberal education may be too tenuous. Our students may even fail to realize that the liberal arts are precisely the vehicle whereby one does participate fully in human culture so that he can enter upon a "criticism of life." Or can even become able to understand that profound phrase—let alone the awesome responsibility facing the professor who launches his students upon such an enterprise, which is not unlike "walking naked."

The Widening Gyre

Sigma Tau Psi was founded on the campus of Frostburg State College, Frostburg, Maryland in the spring of 1950 under the name of Alpha Tau Alpha. Alpha Tau Alpha was one of the first organized fraternities at Frostburg which proved successful.

The fraternity grew and became an example of a successful social fraternity. Within ten years the brotherhood was willing to become affiliated with a national fraternity. We searched extensively for a fraternity that would grow and benefit the campus. The men of Alpha Tau Alpha chose Sigma Tau Gamma. On May 21, 1960, Alpha Tau Alpha was initiated into Sigma Tau Gamma, Beta Pi chapter.

Upon being accepted into the national fraternity, Beta Pi became the first chapter of Sigma Tau Gamma in the state of Maryland. These men were also recognized as the first National Inter-Fraternity Conference fraternity at Frostburg State College.

At the close of a decade of affiliation with the national, many brothers began to ask questions as to the practicality of the association with the national fraternity. Receiving no adequate answers there developed a split between the national and local chapter. After several misunderstandings with Sigma Tau Gamma National Fraternity, the men of Beta Pi chapter, after due consideration, decided to withdraw from the national fraternity. With a brotherhood of over fifty founding fathers a new bond was formed. We voted to change the name to: Sigma Tau Gamma of Maryland, Alpha Chapter. The fraternity began to face the changing world with new ideas and above all, a new bond.

In the fall of 1978 Sigma Tau Gamma of Maryland Inc., Alpha Chapter, in an attempt to further retain and express our individuality, voted to change the name of the local chapter. With thirty-five voting members the brothers overwhelmingly voted to take the name of Sigma Tau Psi, Gamma Chapter. The men of Sigma Tau Psi continue to exhibit a strong sense of awareness and a strong bond of fraternal brotherhood here at Frostburg State College.

Sigma Tau Psi can be described as a brotherhood of individuals. Although bonded together for a common goal, each and every brother maintains his individuality and these diverse personalities are what make Sigma Tau Psi a unique fraternity. Those brothers athletically inclined participate in Frostburg's intramural program. Many other achievements could

by Mary Cialella

The floor was the center of a mass of activity. Women clad in brightly colored uniforms and warm ups scampered about the matted floor, practicing graceful moves or searching for familiar faces in the stands. It is 12:00 noon, Saturday March 8, and the stage has been set for the Eastern Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (EIAIW) Championship for the Division III Gymnastics.

Gymnasts from as far as Boston attended to compete in the first Division III Regionals. There were six complete teams and a total of seventeen schools represented. At one time or another, ninety athletes competed in at least one of the four events: vault, uneven bars, balance beam, or floor exercise.

When the afternoon activities were completed, about 5:00 p.m., the six teams were ranked according to the combined scores of their members. Frostburg was finally placed fourth in a very close meet. At the end of three events, the top three teams had been: Boston State College, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and Frostburg State College. This order was somewhat rearranged as those teams finished second, first, and fourth, respectively, and Connecticut College moved into third place.

scoring was taking place for individual competitors. Scores are produced by a combination of composition and execution points, each worth a maximum of 5.0. Therefore, a total of 10 points is possible and considered perfect. However, this is not a simple task and exemplified by recognizing that the highest score achieved in the entire meet was an 8.55 on the vault by Kathy Morton from Salem State College.

At approximately 8:15 the arena was again alive with the action of those female gymnasts continuing in individual competition. The top six girls were to become members of the All-Eastern Regional Team. Frostburg had three girls to send further into the final events of this long day. Becky Sharp represented F.S.C. as one of the six all-around gymnasts, along with Susie King and Bonnie Heflin on the vault. As the competition came to a close, Becky was rewarded for her performances by two third places. She placed third in all-around competition and also third on her floor exercise routine. When asked how she felt about her day's work, she replied, "It was better than I expected - I really didn't expect to place in all-around at all." Susie King placed fourth on the vault and Bonnie Heflin came in fifth place on the same apparatus.

appearance in the meet. We had the smallest team entered with only seven athletes. A previous member, and one of our top supporters, Martha Joyce, has been unable to compete recently due to elbow injuries. Remaining on the team are four all-around athletes: Becky Sharp (So.), Diana Sippel (Jr.), Bonnie Heflin (Sr.), and Susie King (So.). Debbie Culbertson (So.) eliminated vaulting in her competition because of ankle difficulties, leaving her with three events. Also, with three events was Senior Kim Krach, not competing on the uneven bars. The only freshman, Sandy Kelly, wrapped up her season on the vault.

The success and smoothness of this meet was due to the combined efforts of several people. Frostburg's Women's Gymnastics Coach and Championship Director, Margie Schaeffer did a highly commendable job of organizing the spectacular event. Her right-hand man was, Fred Sargent, Men's Gymnastics Coach and Manager of the Meet. Supporting Margie's left side was team manager and Scoretable Director, Julie Browning. Flanked by these two individuals and a series of other dedicated workers, the F.S.C. gymnasts and their Coach hosted a very efficient gymnastics meet. Their courage and perseverance can be best summed up by their own choice of a team candy bar (doesn't every team have one?!): POWER HOUSE!

Meanwhile, the preliminary

DAVID S. LINDER, SOPH.

I favor President Carter because if he pulls us out of this terrible world situation he should be the top candidate.

KEVIN MCGINNIS, SR.

Ted Kennedy, because he wants to put through better health programs, lower inflation, and solve America's problems first. He is also an advocate of the SALT talks and favors a lessening of the Defense Budget.

LYNN MORGAN, SR.

President Carter! His experience and handling of the Iran Crisis makes him most suited for the presidency. The other candidates and their past reputations don't fit my image of a President.

PETE SEIFFERT JR.

At this point in time I favor Bush, I think Bush has the necessary qualifications (Former director of CIA) and smarts to do a good job.

LAUREN KRAMER, JR.

George Bush! He has proven that he is a competent leader. Ronald Reagan is much too conservative. Bush has the ability to lead this nation, unlike many other presidential candidates. He's well-rounded, and has experience where it's needed.

DAVID COOK, FRESH.

Right now I would like to see Ford get back into the running because Carter is thru and Reagan is too old.

SUDIE LEO, FRESH.

At this point I am for George Bush. He seems to be the only candidate with any of the qualifications I feel a president needs. I lean strongly towards him because I feel other candidates such as Kennedy, Carter or Reagan are incompetent.

Candid Campus

At this point in the Presidential race, who do you favor and why?

Interviews and photos by Dave Kahn

GLENNETTA BROWN, SOPH.

I am in favor of Carter, because he knows more about the situations that the U.S. is facing at this time, such as the Iranian Crisis, no other candidates have as much insight to the problem as Carter does.

SAM RANDALL, SOPH.

At this point in the Presidential race it's hard to make a rational judgement but I'm going for Kennedy. Although he is not very well favored, I am hoping that he will work with our Congress in getting this country back to its basic value, Democracy. Also, because he is anti-draft, I hope he chooses a better alternative to the world crisis until the time we need such measures as draft possibilities.

JOHN LYNCH, SR.

I would like to see Gerald Ford enter the Republican campaign. I feel that he has the "presidential" requirements, if you know what I mean. I am in favor of seeing him step into the campaign because none of the others, in my opinion, appeal to me very much. I wish that he could have been elected in the 1976 elections, and maybe our country would not be suffering problems domestically and internationally.

SHERYL LYNN BLUM, SR.

I would like very much to see Gerald Ford run again for President. I feel that he handled his position well while president and was a man fully respected by the American people. At present, I'm angry at Carter because of his decision about the olympics and his handling of the hostages in Iran.

LLOYD DAVID YAVENER, SR.

George Bush. Kennedy isn't worthy, only his name is! Carter's proven he isn't worthy & Reagan should have stuck to the movies. Other than that, I feel Bush's experience in the C.I.A., and his countless other governmental capacities lead me to side with him. Also, he has a firm base of support in congress which is essential to being effective.

LYNN MEYER, SOPH.

I think President Carter is doing a good enough job as far as I can see. It may be because I don't know enough about the other candidates, but I think some may be ready for a drastic change that the people in the U.S. aren't ready for.

JULEY MOORE

I support Jimmy Carter because he is the best of the possible choices.

Liberal Arts from p. 4
understanding of it is the measure of a gap in American education. Today most newspaper readers know vaguely that Einstein had something to do with the atomic bomb, beyond that his name is simply a synonym for the abstruse. While his theories form part of the body of modern science, many of them are not yet part of the modern curriculum. It is not surprising, therefore, that many a college graduate still thinks of Einstein as a kind of mathematical surrealist rather than as the discoverer of certain cosmic laws of immense importance in man's slow struggle to understand physical reality. He may not realize that Relativity, over and above its scientific import, comprises a major philosophical system which augments and illumines the reflection of the great epistemologists--Locke, Berkeley, and Hume. Consequently he has very little notion of the vast, arcane, and mysteriously ordered universe in which he dwells.

Why Not Liberal Arts & Science?

There must always exist some cultural lag between true genius and the educated layman, but the liberal arts' dedication is to narrow the margin. And since awareness of the value of liberal education is just beginning to dawn on the general consciousness of our community, the integrity of the liberal arts needs to be stressed. Therefore, in all the publicity for the Spring Festival I have not seperated liberal arts and sciences, as if I were speaking about two things like great novelists and James Joyce, or great poets and William Butler Yeats. Speaking of the liberal arts as one integral yin-yang unit--as the full-circle "means and ends" of total participation in the finest aspects of cultured life--I hope to suggest that in the twentieth century the very success of the learning enterprise presupposes the integration of art and science...as well as "my race and your race" or "Western culture and Eastern culture."

The Allegany Liberal Arts Festival (symbolically, the weekend after Easter Sunday) will accentuate this point of crucial integration by highlighting both "Einstein" and "Zen"; both "French Romanticism" and "The Black Experience in American Culture"; both "Medieval and Renaissance Music" and "Blue Grass, Swing, and Southern Rock." The false dech-

Lane Center Employment

Applications are now available for students interested in working in the Lane College Center during the 1980-81 academic year. Positions will be available in the following areas: Information/Candy Counter, Games Room, Ticket Office and Room Arrangement.

Application forms will be available at the Lane Center Reservations Office. Reservation Office hours are 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. All applications must be returned to the Reservations Office no later than 4:30 p.m. Friday, March 28th. All students currently employed by the Lane Center who wish to return next year, must complete a new application. All interviews will be held following Spring Break.

otomies of "art/science", "our culture/their culture", "job preparation/mind cultivation" all pale before the great challenge of the pursuit of human excellence--especially if such quality (Excellent quality!) education is sought after with a heart wholly taken with preserving and fostering the best thought and said and done in the world--not just "our half" and not just "my discipline".

Liberal Education vs Donald Duck

So why liberal arts? Because the liberal arts are the essence of college life: because the liberal arts are the core of the cultured life. If any student doesn't understand all this, he or she should attend the April 11-12 Allegany Liberal Arts Festival in the Lane Center--and then get himself or herself into college. Then, perhaps, Frostburg's students can make a liar out of Robert Hutchins who gives this critique of American higher education: "Our culture has undergone so drastic a process of dilution that we are ill-equipped, even after graduation from a respectable college, to tackle anything much above the level of the comic book."

The final reason for "Why Liberal Arts?" is that one can hardly read Walter Lippmann's "Indispensable Opposition" without realizing that the defense of democracy and freedom. But today, as Hutchins warns, "The death of democracy is not likely to be an assassination from ambush. It will be a slow extinction from apathy, indifference, and undernourishment." But to underscore what was said about Lippmann's classic article, and to end on a positive note, I'll close with this remark from Thomas Jefferson, "I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education."

Desegregation from p. 4

provide ongoing orientation, counseling in avoiding and solving problems, and guidance in academic planning; b) encouraging campus student support services and their appropriate use by students; c) maintaining lines of communication and cooperation with all faculty-staff, minority/non-minority student groups, and with the Frostburg community.

The Minority Affairs advising system is the core of the College's undergraduate minority-student program. The objective of the system is to develop a sound academic plan for each student and help him/her become more self-reliant in the new environment and secure in choosing a major and making career plans.

This developmental advising system serves several important functions: it helps the student deal realistically and effectively with the new college environment; it increases the student's chances of success, more so than do less personal, more loosely structured systems (studies have confirmed this); it provides opportunity for each black student to receive--without search and delay--a particular kind of support and insight black students in a predominantly white institution often need from experienced black staff; it assists faculty and staff by helping to bridge a gap that often exists initially between minority students and non-minority staff.

In order to plan successfully, student and advisor use available background information, as well as input from College resources of analysis, to evaluate the student's strengths, weaknesses, and interests. Periodic follow-up and evaluation of progress are conducted. The program is flexible, allowing minimum or maximum support and time, as needed, for each individual, as the students undertake their studies and activities in the general College community. It is also aggressive, seeking out students, and actively involving other staff, faculty, and programs to aid in student evaluation and development.

As individual goals are achieved, each student seeks assignment with an advisor in the major department of his/her choice. Long-term planning, hard work, evaluation, replanning, and cooperation on the part of all involved has resulted in success for the majority of students.

The Office of Minority Affairs exists for the minority student; it seeks to more adequately serve all minority students on campus and welcomes relevant discussion and suggestions. The Office relies on the total College community--as well as the minority student--for the support and cooperation needed for significant and successful operation.

be enumerated, but none of these could have been possible if it were not for one other accomplishment. More important than these material achievements is the ability of our fraternity to realize when "status quo" is no longer the order of the day, and to accept together the responsibility od forward to make a more progressive fraternity. This is what we have accomplished here at FSC and this is what distinguishes us from other fraternities. While 'Sig Tau' has rendered innumerable hours to local community needs, we have and still remain an outgoing social organization devoted to good times both now and in the Jay Silverheels, better known as Tonto, the faithful Indian sidekick of the Lone Ranger, died last week at the age of 62. He had been in failing health since suffering a stroke 5½ years ago. Clayton Moore, who played the "masked man" in the long-running TV series, could not be reached for comment, but he had been to see his long-time friend a week or two earlier. Silverheels, a full-blooded Mohawk Indian, was an ardent supporter of the Indian causes and various Indian charities.
